Gem congressmen unhappy with sugar changes

By Mark King
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — President Bush changed the sugar program with a stroke of his pen Friday and left Idaho congressmen complaining bitterly.
Bush signed an order allowing unlimited imports of sugar by foreign growers who are willing to pay a 16-cent per pound tariff for amounts exceeding their national quotas.

Under the 1985 Farm Bill, domestic sugar farmers were protected by quotas restricting imports of low-cost foreign sugar. The quotas kept supplies tight enough to prop up domestic sugar prices at a minimum of 18 cents per pound.
But "import quotas are prohibited under international rules unless certain rules are met," said a press release from the office of U.S. Trade Representative

Under the new system, each sugar-producing nation that has historically sold sugar in the United States will again be allowed to sell a certain quota within the U.S. But now, sales over the quota will also be allowed, subject to a 16-cent-per-pound tariff.
In June 1989, a General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs panel found the U.S. sugar program's quota system to be in violation of international trade rules.

Although three members of the Idaho congressional delegation criticized Bush's order, Idaho Sugar Beet Growers' Association President Myron Huettig was optimistic.
"I think the real key was how high they set the tariff," he said. The 16-cent tariff "should effectively stop anyone from selling any more sugar into this country."

Iraqis storm envoys' residences

The Associated Press
Iraq turned up the heat Friday on diplomats refusing to leave embassies in occupied Kuwait, while Western nations promised more soldiers, tanks and ships for the military machine confronting Iraq.
In Kuwait, Iraqi troops stormed the French ambassador's residence, seizing four citizens, including a diplomat, the French Foreign Ministry said. Soldiers also burst into the Belgian compound and the Canadian ambassador's residence.
The consuls from the United States and four other nations were briefly detained.
The incidents were the most serious confrontations involving diplomats in the emirate since Iraq ordered the embassies closed Aug. 24.
President Bush said the raids and brief detention of the American consul, who represents U.S. interests in Kuwait City, were a "clear violation of international law."
Iraq denied its soldiers entered the foreign compounds, which it referred to as "former diplomatic missions." The official Iraqi News Agency said the troops were under strict orders not to enter the compounds.

At least 17 embassies in Kuwait have defied an Iraqi order to close, and Baghdad has tried to make life intolerable for diplomats, in several cases surrounding the missions with troops and cutting off power and water.
After the raid on the French compound, French President Francois Mitterand called an emergency Cabinet meeting for Sept. 15 and said the Iraqi move "is an aggression, and we will respond to it."
While Iraq bore down on defiant diplomatic military pressure built on Iraq, Britain said Friday it would send an armored brigade of more than 120 tanks and 6,000 combat troops to the Persian Gulf, British Defense Secretary Tom King said. Another squadron of Tornado ground attack aircraft and additional air defense aircraft would also be sent.
The British forces mark the first dispatch of tanks and significant ground troops by any Western country besides the United States since Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion and subsequent annexation of neighboring Kuwait.
Canada on Friday committed a dozen fighter jets and a total of 450 troops and

U.S., Aussie ships fire warning shots, then board and search Iraqi tanker

The Associated Press
MANAMA, Bahrain — U.S. and Australian sailers fired warning shots Friday across the bow of an Iraqi tanker sailing toward the Persian Gulf and then boarded the vessel, American officials said.
In Washington, a Pentagon source said the sailers fired Friday from an American frigate in the Gulf of Oman and that an Australian frigate helped in the operation. A U.S. Navy spokesman in the Gulf said the Australian vessel had also fired a warning shot.
President Bush, speaking about the incident at an impromptu press conference in Washington, said he didn't believe it put the United States "closer to a war situation."

U.S., Aussie ships fire warning shots, then board and search Iraqi tanker
The Iraqi vessel boarded Friday, the Al-Fao, was first intercepted by the frigate Burton, the Navy spokesman said on condition of anonymity. Its master said he was headed for the Iraqi port of Basra with no cargo but refused to allow the Americans to board.
"After repeated requests to allow boarding, the Burton fired the first warning shots from one of its 50-caliber machine guns and requested that Al-Fao stop and permit a team to board," said the Navy spokesman.
"The Australians fired the second set, also from a 50-caliber machine-gun about 10 minutes later," he said.
Al-Fao then stopped and sailors from both frigates went on board, said the spokesman.
"The team discovered no prohibited cargo aboard and Al-Fao was allowed to proceed," he added.

Big prize puts Florida in frenzy

The Associated Press
TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — Scalpers fanned out from Georgia to New York on Friday to hawk tickets in Saturday night's $100 million Lotto drawing. Other out-of-staters flocked to Florida with wallets bulging.
Most of the action for the nation's second-highest jackpot was from toasters, though, and it was especially hot in the state's lottery terminals, where longer and conversations about the nine-digit prize began taking on the quality of questions in a math quiz.
"I have got 10,000 $1 tickets sold for $2 apiece," boasted David Douglas, a sales agent from New York City, in Miami on business.
"How much money is Douglas making? Ten-thousand dollars, minus any money he plunked down on the Lotto game. What are the odds of any one of his tickets winning? About 1 in 14 million, Lotto officials said.
"It's a bit of a long shot, but plenty of people decided the gamble was worth it."
"Everybody who knows I was coming to Florida this week wanted me to buy them Lotto tickets," said Frank Green, a Washington-based Democratic campaign consultant.

Lost letter costs Twin Falls $220,500 grant

By Craig Lincoln
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — In the midst of a housing crunch, the city of Twin Falls has let an application for up to $220,500 in federal rental rehabilitation funds targeted to low-income housing.
Twin Falls Mayor Tom Condit and City Manager Tom Courtney said they couldn't remember or find a letter from the Idaho Housing Agency about the grant. The city also apparently lost a letter from the South Central Community Action Agency offering to administer the grant.

With a deadline of Sept. 21, the city will have little chance of applying for the grant that can be used for a variety of improvements on private rental homes. Landlords must provide one-half of the money for the improvements, but a specific project doesn't have to be identified before receiving the money.
This is the second year the city has been offered the grant. Twin Falls decided not to apply for the grant last year, and Courtney told 'The Times-News' then that he hadn't seen the grant proposal.

The Housing Agency mailed a letter on Aug. 14 to Condit, announcing that Twin Falls was one of 10 Idaho cities eligible for the grant money. Even earlier, Community Action Executive Betty Wooten said she wrote Condit offering to administer the grant.
The deadline is probably too close for Community Action to stink on a proposal now, Wooten said.

Souter says he's undecided on reversing abortion ruling

The Associated Press
WASHINGTON — Supreme Court nominee David H. Souter said Friday he would vote as a justice if the court were asked to overturn its 1973 decision legalizing abortion.
While refusing repeatedly to give his own views on abortion, Souter told the Senate Judiciary Committee during the second day of his confirmation hearings that he had not yet formed an opinion on what should be done with Roe vs. Wade (the 1973 ruling). I would listen to both sides of the issue. I have not made up my mind and I would not go on the court saying I must go one way or the other way.
Abortion foes have high hopes that President Bush's nominee to replace liberal Justice William J. Brennan will provide the critical vote to overturn the decision.

Abortion-rights groups have expressed fears that that might indeed happen, and Planned Parenthood and the National Abortion Rights Action League announced their opposition Friday to Souter's nomination.
The day's most dramatic moment came when Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., pressed Souter to explain his role as New Hampshire's attorney general in defending the state's abortion ban against a lawsuit filed by a woman seeking an abortion.
"After Kennedy recited a quote attributed to Souter that the votes of illiterates 'dilute the votes of those people who can read,' Souter responded, 'That is kind of a statement of math.'"
Suggesting that Souter's response was callous, Kennedy said, "That's something that I find is troublesome."

Violent storms hammer Great Lakes region
The Associated Press
Violent weather, heavy rains, and hail pelled parts of Michigan and Indiana and a three-week heat wave in Nebraska broke Friday.
Tornadoes twirled down in southern Michigan but there were no reports of injuries. A employee of a dry cleaners in the Detroit suburb of Beverly Hills said she was sure it was tornado that "blasted through the roof" of the building.
"The wind did pick me up. My feet actually came off the ground. It was pretty scary," said Brenda Reeves. "God was looking out for me because if the dry cleaner hadn't come back and grabbed me, I would have gone out of the door."
There were reports of damage from thunderstorm winds near Chase, Beal City, New Paw, Flint, and north of Mishawaka, Ind. Gales reached 60 mph west of Flint and 65 mph at Crawfordsville, Ind. In Hail hit Tuscola, Mich., and heavy rain from strong storms caused flooding of streets, small streams and low lying areas around Three Rivers, Mich.

The sizzling heat wave that had gripped Nebraska since Aug. 23 broke Friday with temperatures dropping back into the comfortable 80's.
Showers and thundershowers also extended from North Carolina across South Carolina, Georgia, northwest Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi, southeast Arkansas, Louisiana, parts of Texas and southern New Mexico.
Storms and showers also reached from the North Carolina coast across eastern Virginia, Delaware, eastern Maryland, southern Pennsylvania and southern New Jersey.
Here, heavy scattered showers in central Maine, and northeast Florida and rain moved onto the northern coast of Oregon.
Heavier rainfall Friday included 2.71 inches at Osgood, Mich., 1.35 inches at Grand Rapids, Mich., 1.25 inches at Dover, Del., 1.09 inches at Houghton Lake, Mich., and 1 inch at Millville, N.J.

Budget leaks anger Republicans

The Associated Press
WASHINGTON - Angry Republican budget negotiators accused Democrats on Monday of giving reports of off-privately offered GOP tax proposals and said the disclosures were threatening deficit-reduction talks.
"We are trying to do a difficult job in cooperation with our Democratic colleagues," Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole said. "But it is not going to work if this garbage keeps piling up day after day."
Dole spoke as bargainers began their second week of confidential talks at Andrews Air Force Base in Maryland, just outside Washington. They spent much of Friday's session complaining about the leaks, said one official who asked to not be identified.

"The mood was basically ill-will," the official said.
After a spurt of movement earlier in the week toward a package saving $50 billion next year and $500 billion through 1995, progress has slowed.
Up and down like a roller coaster, was how President Bush described the talks.

Republican leaders angrily took to the Senate floor Friday after some reporters obtained copies of analyses of tax proposals Democrats and Republicans have made at the negotiations.
The Associated Press received the data from a source who demanded anonymity.
The studies - performed by Congress' nonpartisan Joint Tax Committee - showed that GOP tax proposals would raise taxes by $1 billion on people who earn $30,000 a year. They would cut taxes by $1 billion of those with higher incomes.
The president Bush could have satisfied the GATT by setting the import tariff at 18 cents," Symms said in a press release.
Sen. Jim McClure of Idaho said Bush's actions were premature.
"Our people can compete with sugar producers anywhere in the world as long as there are no trade-distorting practices," McClure's release said. "It might have been better to wait until we had some assurances from other countries on the table before we restructured our own sugar program."
Both the House and Senate approved an extension of the sugar program this summer in the 1990 Farm Bill, but the House sought to give a slightly greater share of the U.S. sugar market to impoverished Latin American countries. Congress was preparing to reconcile the two versions of the Farm Bill when Bush invoked executive authority and signed the order.

Sugar

Idaho Democratic Rep. Richard Stalling, a member of the House Agriculture Committee, said the program change could be bad news for farmers.
He said the initial import quota of 1.725 million metric tons should have been set lower.
"The (agriculture) secretary has the authority to raise the levels at any time and, given the quality of this year's crop of beets and cane sugar, the initial import levels should have been set at a lower level," Stalling said in a press release.
"I also have serious concerns about setting a fixed tariff rate of 16 cents per pound," he said. "Without a variable tariff, which could be adjusted as world currencies fluctuate, exporting countries could manipulate their currencies to avoid the tariffs."
Stalling also said that the new system could cause the sugar program to cost taxpayers money.

Under the 1985 sugar program, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Credit Corporation loans sugar processors 18 cents per pound for sugar deposited with the CCC. Sugar processors use that loan money to pay sugar beet, cane, and corn farmers for their crops. The foreign processors repay the loan, retrieve the sugar, and sell it, hoping for a profit.
Stalling said an increase in low cost imports could flood the U.S. market, causing sugar buyers to ignore sugar produced here and forcing processors to abandon sugar to the CCC because the 18-cent per pound loans would be too costly to repay. Abandoned sugar loans could cost taxpayers money.
But the trade office press release said the 16-cent tariff should keep the sugar market priced high enough to prevent CCC loans from being forfeited.
Idaho Sen. Steve Symms said the tariff as an effective 2-cent reduction of the sugar target price.

"President Bush could have satisfied the GATT by setting the import tariff at 18 cents," Symms said in a press release.
Sen. Jim McClure of Idaho said Bush's actions were premature.
"Our people can compete with sugar producers anywhere in the world as long as there are no trade-distorting practices," McClure's release said. "It might have been better to wait until we had some assurances from other countries on the table before we restructured our own sugar program."

"I don't even know if we could do that now," Wooten said.
The city Mayor Winston Goering called the program "a very, very good program."
Manipa was awarded $80,000 one year ago so a developer could rehabilitate an old dormitory into about 20 rental units. Under the program, which gives grants to private landlords, the landlords must provide one-half of the financing.
"It's a very positive program," Goering said. "You've got to have rental property that's respectable and affordable."
Twin Falls' opportunity may have ended up lost - literally.
"I guess my first question would be whether it got here, and if it did, it's fairly rare that a piece of fairly important mail gets lost or misplaced," Wooten said.

The city may not have applied even if it had known about the program.
"Our position has been that if there is somebody out there interested, we would work with them," the Work Director LaMar Orton said. "It takes a commitment on the part of private enterprise."
But the city didn't advertise or otherwise seek interested private developers, Orton said.
"If there's still time, and if we have an organization in the community interested in administering the grant, then we would be interested in filling out an application," Courtney said.

ground crew. "This is the West, nor is it a conflict between Iraq and the United States," said Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney. "It is Saddam Hussein against the civilized world."
Several other nations, including West Germany, Italy, Belgium and South Korea, pledged either money or equipment Friday to support the multinational contingent in the gulf.
Japan, facing allegations it has been too lenient during the crisis, pledged $3 billion on top of $1 billion it has already committed.
Meanwhile, the U.N. sanctions on trade with Iraq were taking their toll on the Iraqi economy. The ruling Baath Party newspaper Al-Thawra said that starting Saturday, Iraqis will be limited to three pieces of bread a day.
The raids on the diplomatic compounds appeared designed to intimidate diplomats who have remained to symbolize their rejection of Iraq's annexation of Kuwait. The diplomats also are trying to provide some protection for their citizens trapped there.

Souter

Earlier, Kennedy had asked Souter whether he believed abortion is moral. Souter refused to answer, but said his view on abortion's morality "will play absolutely no role" in his deciding any abortion case that would come before him.
Souter again refused to give his personal views after Kennedy's noted that "Sandra Day O'Connor responded to that question, Judge during the confirmation hearings that preceded her joining the Supreme Court in 1981."
Committee Chairman Joseph

Biden, D-Del., also expressed frustration over his inability to draw Souter out on abortion.
"No time here is seeking a commitment on anything," Biden said.
Also on abortion, Souter told the committee he had voted to let such operations be performed at a hospital where the surgery on the board of trustees, but he said his vote did not necessarily reflect his moral views on abortion.
On another topic, Souter told the senators that as a judge he might go against some stands the took as New Hampshire's attorney general.

Oil shock yields wholesale inflation

Nation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shock waves from the Persian Gulf crisis rippled through the economy in August as record increases in oil prices pushed wholesale inflation surging and sent retail sales into a nose dive.

The Labor Department said wholesale prices were up 1.3 percent last month, the steepest rise in seven months. Economists were pessimistic about future prospects.

"The worst is yet to come," said Allen Sinai, chief economist at the Boston Co. The government blamed virtually all the increase on higher oil costs that followed Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

A 16.9 percent increase in the price of gasoline and the 62.5 percent rise in crude petroleum were the highest one-month increases recorded since the government began tracking those commodities in 1947.

Also setting a one-month record was fuel oil, which soared 38.8 percent. Kerosene, diesel fuel and residual fuels also hit new highs.

The fallout from the Middle East upheaval has heightened economists' fears that higher inflationary pressures could push an already weak U.S. economy into a recession.

In more weak economic news, the government said industrial production dropped 0.2 percent in August. That poor showing in factory activity was the manufacturing sector's worst monthly performance since April — was also linked to higher energy prices, analysts said.

Friday's data was the first hard evidence that the oil crisis has indeed had a suggesting effect. While private analysts only expected inflationary pressures to worsen in coming months, the White House tried to sound a note of calm.

"President Bush called the big jump in wholesale inflation 'a matter of concern given the state of the economy.' But he insisted that energy prices had been pushed higher because of unfounded market fears about possible shortages of supplies.

"The speculative atmosphere betrays the reality, which is that there are sufficient petroleum products," Bush said. "The market should not be going for higher prices."

Private economists were far more discouraging. "The economic consequences of the Iraqi event is going to be worse than we expected in terms of costs to the U.S. economy in lost growth and higher inflation," said the Boston Co.'s Sinai.

"The initial round is so large, it implies that the ripple-through effect in coming months will be quite sizable," he said.

Robert Dederick of the Northern Trust Co. of Chicago said Friday's data on high wholesale inflation, coupled with weak growth, indicates the Iraqi conflict threatens to push a vulnerable U.S. economy into recession.

Producer Price Index

Seasonally adjusted, change from prior month

Retail Sales

Seasonally adjusted, billions of dollars

August's inflation outbreak is likely to become entrenched, analysts said, filtering through the thousands of plastic, chemical and other products made with petroleum.

Oil also figures into products that must be transported long distances and shows up in utility costs as well. While wholesale inflation sped upward a separate Commerce Department report showed that retail sales slumped 0.6 percent, with declines in nearly every category.

That drop is worrisome, analysts said, because consumer spending — or the lack of it — represents two-thirds of the nation's economic activity.

The August rise in wholesale prices was the largest since a cold snap caused a 1.9 percent spurt in January. If the price of finished goods rose as much as they did in August each month, it would translate into an annual increase of 16.4 percent.

So far this year, wholesale inflation has risen at an annual rate of 4.6 percent, the government said.

On Tuesday, the government will provide its first look at inflation at the consumer level since the turmoil began in the Middle East. That report is expected to be equally bad, given the fact that pump prices of gasoline went up almost immediately.

White energy costs overall rose 9.5 percent in August, food costs were up as well, rising 0.8 percent.

Prices for goods excluding volatile food and energy items — often taken by economists as a better barometer of underlying inflationary pressures — rose 0.3 percent. In July, that so-called core rate had declined 0.1 percent for the first drop in a year.

Fuel economy vote nears

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate cleared the way Friday for action on a bill that would require automakers to dramatically increase fuel economy.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, said he hoped to have a vote late next week on the bill. That would require automakers to increase average fuel economy of new cars to 35 miles per gallon by 1995.

Supporters contended the higher fuel economy requirements would save 2.8 million barrels of oil a day once they go fully into effect, but key opponents promised to continue fighting the measure on the Senate floor.

A similar bill has been introduced in the House, but it has yet to be taken up by the Energy and Commerce Committee, whose chairman, Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., is staunchly opposed to the measure.

Rep. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., and 40 miles per gallon by 2001. Sponsor of the House bill, said she would try to push the legislation if economy requirements would save 2.8 million barrels of oil a day once they go fully into effect, but key opponents promised to continue fighting the measure on the Senate floor.

Bush readies bill to trim Latin debts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush sent Congress a bill Friday to forgive some Latin American debt and to encourage more U.S. companies to invest there.

Aides said he also was readying a bill to allow the lowering of trade barriers with Mexico.

The Mexican free-trade measure could be submitted as early as Monday, when administration trade officials testify before the House-Senate Joint Economic Committee, sources said.

Bush would like to have the Mexico to lower trade barriers with Mexico in hand when he meets with President Carlos Salinas de Gortari in Mexico City in November, said officials who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

The Persian Gulf crisis, in focusing attention on world-oil supplies, has added to the impetus for such an agreement with Mexico, the officials said.

Mexico has the world's eighth largest oil reserves. A free-trade pact with the United States could spur oil production.

The United States already has a free-trade pact with Canada and Bush has voiced the hope that some day goods and services may be traded from Alaska to Argentina without trade barriers.

Gainesville search continues; police trying to plug leaks

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Searchers waded through alligator-infested swamps and scorched dense woods in humid 90-degree heat Friday, looking for evidence in the grisly slayings of five college students.

Searchers looking for body parts and other evidence concentrated on wilderness areas near the three apartments where the bodies of five students were found slain almost three weeks ago.

But officials said it will take lab work and analysis to determine if they are connected to the slayings.

"It's right on target," police Lt. Sadie Darnell said of the searchers. "Police County authorities," meanwhile, announced that the Florida Department of Law Enforcement had taken "body samples" from Stephen Bates, 30, a burglary suspect jailed in Bartow.

Near the Williamsburg Apartments, Gainesville police and Navy searchers combed dense woods 30 yards behind the apartment where the bodies of the first two victims — Sonia Mason, 18, and Christina Powell, 17 — were found Aug. 26.

Similar searches were going on in other areas.

Woman outwits her kidnapper

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The daughter of a McDonald's Corp. executive escaped from a 28-hour kidnapping ordeal and police said they arrested a friend of the family who had demanded $400,000 ransom.

Sarah Zien, 26, outwitted her abductor by persuading him to take her to a drug store, where she managed to use a phone out of his presence long enough to call her parents. They in turn called police, Sgt. Bill Holmes said Thursday.

J.C. "Bob" Aler, 55, of Point Loma, was arrested Wednesday by San Diego police in the same parking lot while apparently looking for Zien, authorities said. He had partially disguised himself and had a pistol in his car, police said.

Gorbachev's market plan controversial

MOSCOW — President Mikhail S. Gorbachev presented to the national parliament an economic reform plan Friday that proposes market-oriented policies and other measures to halt the nation's slide toward bankruptcy. But Gorbachev rejected the Russian parliament's conclusion that the solution to the economic crisis requires stripping the central government of much of its power. The Gorbachev plan refused to surrender the Kremlin's power to tax or give republics laws superiority over national ones. Gorbachev's disagreement with the Russian parliament reduces hope of a national consensus by the Oct. 1 deadline set by the president.

Walesa predicts victory if he does run

GDANSK, Poland — Solidarity chairman Lech Walesa says he will win if he decides to run for president of Poland. Walesa said he will make up his mind shortly on whether to be a candidate in elections expected to be held by spring. "My victory is rather certain," he said during his weekly news conference Thursday in Solidarity's home city of Gdansk. "I am not worried about victory, but about its scale." Walesa said. "The situation is hard, and if the president is elected with only 50 percent of the vote, he will have to work 48 hours a day. ... Thus he must win 80 percent."

E. Germans strip official of police job

EAST BERLIN — An East German official in charge of disbanding the secret police was stripped of those duties Friday after lawmakers criticized him for keeping former agents on his payroll. Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere relieved Interior Minister Peter-Michael Dietsch of responsibility for a committee investigating the dreaded security arm of the old Communist regime, a spokesman said. "The change was the latest development in a chaotic government that will soon be out of business when West Germany assumes control of the economically reeling country on Oct. 3, the formal date of German unification."

Magazine says Waite swap discussed

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Britain's ambassador has held talks with Lebanon's leading Shiite Muslim cleric on a plan for swapping Anglican church envoy Terry Waite for a Shiite cleric held by Israel, a magazine reported Friday. Al-Shura magazine said the talks were held Wednesday between Ambassador David Hasbani and Muhammad Hussein Fadlallah and focused on "details of releasing the British hostage Terry Waite in return for the release of Sheikh Abdul Karim Obeid." The story was not attributed to any source.

Reagan says U.S. troops had key role

WEST BERLIN — Former President Ronald Reagan Friday said U.S. troops in Berlin played an important role in the movements to democracy in Eastern Europe. Reagan spoke to about 1,000 American military people and dependents at Tempelhof Airport before flying to Poland, the second stop on his 10-day trip that also includes a visit to the Soviet Union. "Nowhere have the events been more dramatic than here in Berlin," Reagan said to the largely military audience on the airport tarmac, in a city of two old planes that flew food to West Berlin during the Soviet blockade more than four decades ago.

Yugoslav gun battle kills 2, hurts 1

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — A gun battle between police and ethnic Albanians left two people wounded and an officer wounded in rising violence in the southern Kosovo province, the state Tanjug news agency reported Friday. At least four ethnic Albanians died and three police officers have been injured since Thursday in the province, where the ethnic Albanian majority is struggling to regain autonomy from Serbia.

Rail strike shuts down Belgian trains

BRUSSELS, Belgium — A rail strike by the major unions paralyzed train traffic throughout Belgium on Friday and turned rush-hour city streets into a nightmare. Members of the Christian Democrat and Socialist union are striking for more pay. Commuters left home early Friday, but as early as 6:30 a.m. many of the main highways leading into Brussels were backed up. Train schedules will return to normal over the weekend, but more strikes are expected early next week.

Syria ups troop offer to Saudis

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syrian President Hafez Assad offered Friday to send thousands of additional troops to Saudi Arabia as part of the U.S.-led force guarding Saudi oil fields from possible Iraqi attacks. Secretary of State James A. Baker III told reporters after meeting with Assad for nearly five hours that the Syrians had volunteered to send "substantial forces" to Saudi Arabia. Western diplomatic sources said some 15,000 Syrian troops would join the 3,000 already there.

The session, which was suggested by President Bush and ran more than twice as long as scheduled, focused attention on Syria as an "armament ally" of the United States in the campaign against Iraq. Baker said he and Assad "talked about the subject of terrorism and the real problems that the U.S. has with Syria on this subject. We have had extensive discussions on that topic."

Syria is one of seven nations on a State Department list of countries accused of sponsoring terrorism.

A terrorist group with strong ties to Syria, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine - General Command, is suspected in the December 1988 bombing of Pan Am flight 103 over Lockerbie, Scotland. The disaster took 280 lives. Baker and Foreign Minister Faouk Al-Sharaa, meeting with reporters before the session, said Damascus disagreed sharply over the Pan Am bombing.

"Syria has condemned terrorism in all its forms," Sharaa said. "We have agreed that we have to follow up the Lockerbie incident and whenever it is found there is a genuine evidence against (Himed) Jibril (the front's leader) or any other Palestinian faction that is residing in Syria, the Syrian government will bring the necessary action and bring the persons involved to trial."

He said that the State Department lists Syria as a sponsor of terrorism "without any justification" and that the Western news media have exaggerated the Middle East terrorism issue.

Committee overrules Gorbachev on rallies

MOSCOW (AP) — A constitutional committee overruled a decree issued by President Mikhail S. Gorbachev that gave the Soviet government power over rallies in central Moscow, Tass reported Friday. The Constitutional Compliance Committee ruled that Gorbachev's decree was unconstitutional because it "narrowed" the powers of the Russian Republic — of which Moscow is capital — and the Moscow City Council. Gorbachev's decree had empowered the Soviet government to decide whether rallies could be held within the Garden Ring Road, a wide boulevard that circles central Moscow. Previously, Soviet legislation gave final say over rallies to parliaments in the republics.

South African violence threatens to derail hopes of peaceful change

By Barry Renfrew
The Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The violence-claiming scores of lives every week in South Africa threatens efforts to end apartheid and is pushing the country into what some fear will be civil war.

Optimism generated earlier this year by President F.W. de Klerk's steps to end white rule is fading. Rival black factions are feuding for power, while extremists vow to fight any effort to end apartheid, and the violence is creating mistrust on all sides.

Growing numbers of whites and blacks fear the country is hurtling out of control. White and black leaders warn they won't be able to end apartheid if there is no peace or trust between ethnic groups.

De Klerk warned Friday that growing violence was undermining the government's efforts to share power between whites and blacks and find a way for the two groups live together peacefully.

Analysis
Chris Hani, leader of the African National Congress military wing, said South Africa is already in a state of "undeclared war."

Almost 800 people have been killed since August in the black townships that ring Johannesburg. People have been butchered on trains, buried at death in their homes and hanged to death in the streets.

"More than everything in my life I want this fighting to stop. I haven't slept for days — every night I hear gunfire and shouting and whistles. Sometimes I get messages that they are coming," said Boxer Ngwenya, a township resident.

Despite calls from white and black leaders for peace, the violence shows no sign of ending. The reasons for the fighting are numerous and complex.

in Natal Province in recent years, and the power struggle has intensified and broadened with the government promise to end white rule, political analysts say.

The ANC and Inkatha disagree over plans for a future South Africa, with the nationalist Zulu group favoring conservative policies, including a capitalist economy. The tribal ANC talks about compulsory redistribution of wealth and left-leaning programs to end poverty.

But the violence in the townships has become increasingly chaotic, with armed men attacking strangers for no discernible reason. Fear appears to be fueling the violence, prompting people to kill before they are killed.

Inkatha leader Mangosuthu Buthe has repeatedly offered to meet Nelson Mandela, the ANC's deputy chief negotiator, but has refused to do so. The ANC has refused to get a meeting with Mandela and enhance his stature as a national leader.

In any case, the ANC and Inkatha acknowledge they have many young followers they cannot control.

Iraqi embassy intrusions break international law

WASHINGTON (AP) — Iraq trampled on a basic tenet of international law — the inviolability of foreign diplomats and embassies — when its troops forced their way into French, Canadian and Dutch diplomatic quarters in Kuwait, scholars and former diplomats said Friday. Frequently in history, the retaliation for violating diplomatic immunity has been military action. Some times, it has been war.

"This is an extremely serious case," said Grant McClanahan, a retired diplomat and author of the 1989 book "Diplomatic Immunity: Principles, Practices and Problems." "It's a very serious insult to the national dignity of the nations that suffer."

The attacks of diplomatic immunity — under which diplomats have freedom of movement and are free from arrest or taxation — is formally enshrined in the Vienna conventions of 1961 and 1963. Those conventions, which Iraq is a signatory, specifically say that the residences of diplomats are inviolate and can be entered by local authorities only with permission from the embassy. Iraq transgressed those provisions when its troops entered the residences of the French and Dutch ambassadors in Kuwait, said former Iraqi President Saddam Hussein had already ignored international law by arbitrarily demanding the closure of diplomatic missions in Kuwait and denying permission for some Western diplomats to leave.

Legislator calls '88 S&L sales a 'giveaway'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Banking Committee on Friday described some government sales of failed savings and loan institutions in late 1988 as a "giveaway" to the recipients of the sale contracts but does not intend to break them.

M. Danny Wall, a former government official who directed the sale of failed S&Ls, said the deal was "unfairly sound" and cost the government $4.7 billion less than the estimated cost of liquidating the failed banks.

Stock prices continue to drop, amid signs of increasing inflation

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Stock prices kept falling Friday, weighed down by new signs of stepped-up inflation and weak consumer spending.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped 18.36 to 2,564.11, extending its loss for the week to 55.44 points.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by more than 2 to 1 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 472 up, 1,008 down and 470 unchanged.

The Labor Department reported that the producer price index of finished goods jumped 1.3 percent in August, mostly because of sharp increases in energy prices. Separately, the Commerce Department said retail sales dropped 0.6 percent.

Neither of those figures came as a drastic surprise to Wall Street analysts, who have been busy since midsummer trying to estimate the possible fallout from the slowdown in the Midwest and a doubling of world oil prices.

Nevertheless, analysts said, the data served to reinforce fears of "stagflation," a combination of sluggish growth and increased inflationary pressures.

In that kind of climate, few market participants can be expected to optimism about the outlook for corporate profits and dividends.

Brokers also noted that stocks had to contend with rising oil prices in the commodity markets. Crude oil for October delivery climbed 69 cents a barrel to $31.76 on the New York Mercantile Exchange amid resurgent worries about the continuing slowdown in the Persian Gulf.

Losers among the blue-chip industrials included General Motors, down 1/4 at 37 1/2; General Electric, down 1/4 at 59 1/2; Digital Equipment Corp., down 1/4 at 56 1/2; and International Business Machines, down 1/4 at 104 1/2.

Bank stocks, which had a rocky week amid persistent credit crunch worries, tumbled in a mixed showing. Chemical Banking fell 1/4 to 20 1/2 and Citicorp slipped 1/4 to 17 1/2, while J.P. Morgan rose 1/4 to 32 1/2 and BankAmerica was unchanged at 21 1/2.

Energy issues also finished mixed. Exxon gained 1/4 to 51 1/2; Texaco added 1/4 to 64 1/2; Atlantic Richfield rose 1/4 to 139 1/2; Mobil dropped 1/4 to 65 1/2; and Chevron was down 1/4 to 75 1/2.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 335.9 million shares, against 123.37 million in the previous session. Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 159.7 million shares.

As measured by Wilshire Associates' index of more than 5,000 actively traded stocks, the market lost 1.01 to 174.15.

Standard & Poor's industrial index fell 1.26 to 174.60, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was down 1.82 at 316.83.

The NASDAQ composite index for 180 over-the-counter market traded 1.76 to 374.42. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed at 321.45, down .56.

The NYSE's composite index of all-listed common stocks dropped 1.01 to 174.15.

Standard & Poor's industrial index fell 1.26 to 174.60, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was down 1.82 at 316.83.

The NASDAQ composite index for 180 over-the-counter market traded 1.76 to 374.42. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed at 321.45, down .56.

Legislator calls '88 S&L sales a 'giveaway' Business Network yields $20 million in contracts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Banking Committee on Friday said some government sales of failed savings and loans in late 1988 as a "giveaway" and said many of the deals should be renegotiated.

Wall was accompanied by former members of the bank board and former officials of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. Lawrence J. White, a former member of the bank board, said the deals were "financially sound" and cost the government $4.7 billion less than the estimated cost of liquidating the failed thrifts.

BOISE (AP) — In the 11 months since the Idaho Business Network was organized, it has resulted in more than $20 million in business contracts awarded to Idaho companies, the Department of Commerce says.

Evaluation ordered for nude swimmer

COBUR D'ALENE — A skinny-dipping Wyoming transient who fought police officers must undergo mental and medical evaluations, a judge has ruled.

First District Magistrate Quintin Harpen, on Thursday ordered William A. Rose, 37, held in lieu of $500 bail to answer charges of being a public nuisance and resisting arrest.

The judge ordered Rose to undergo a series of medical and mental evaluations.

Rose was arrested Wednesday evening after police found him nude near a public dock where a man had earlier tried to board an occupied boat. Occupants of the boat used paddles to thwart the man's attempt to board, police said.

Law officer heads lottery security

BOISE — Mark Klingler, a veteran of years with the Idaho Department of Law Enforcement, is the Idaho Lottery's new security director.

Klingler, 44, has been serving in the position in an acting capacity since February, when security director Michael Best resigned. Lottery Director Wally Hedrick announced Friday Klingler has been named deputy director in charge of security from a field of 32 applications.

Klingler, a native of Rexburg, joined the lottery in April of 1989 as a senior criminal investigator.

He was an Idaho State Police trooper for eight years, served with the Idaho Bureau of Investigation for 2 1/2 years and provided executive protection for Gov. John Evans from 1983-86.

Airline ending service in western Idaho

LEWISTON — United Express has announced it will end its commuter airline service to the Lewiston-Nez Percé County and Pullman-Moscow airports Sept. 30.

The airline's parent company, Fresno, Calif.-based WestAir Holding Inc., announced plans Thursday to concentrate marketing efforts on the East Coast and California, and to pull out of several Inland Northwest airports.

Warren Wilkinson, United Express sales and marketing director in Pasco, Wash., said realignment of the company's route structure would include increased service in some markets and reduced or suspended service in others.

Wilkinson said WestAir has no plans to return to Lewiston or Pullman, but that could change.

Delay sought for Sho-Bar tax plan

POCATELLO — Eastern Idaho officials want more time to build their case for modifications to a plan by the Shoshone-Bannock Tribes to tax nontribal members on the land they lease on the Fort Hall Indian Reservation and the money they make from it.

Power County Commissioner Ralph Wheeler said his county along with Bingham and Blaine counties are asking tribal leaders to extend the period for comments and suggestions to the tax code that would affect businesses like FMC Corp. and Idaho Power Co.

The proposed code imposes a 5 percent possessory-interest tax on both fee land leases to nontribal members and nontribal members who own and make a profit from fee land.

The possessory-tax also applies to benefits derived by utility companies passing through the reservation.

In addition the code would levy a severance tax that would raise about $100,000 per year on FMC's phosphate mining operation.

for water bill

By Caryn Shefferly
States News Service

WASHINGTON — Idaho's House members are confident a bill approving the Fort Hall Indian Water Rights Settlement will pass this session, despite a recent amendment proposed by a Department of the Interior.

The bill, sponsored by Democratic Rep. Richard Stallings, was discussed this week in the Senate and House committees that deal with environmental legislation.

The Interior Department has proposed what it calls a "clarification" amendment to the bill, but representatives of the Shoshone-Bannock tribes are worried the language would weaken the tribe's rights to certain water claims in the future.

The change, tribe officials said, would allow the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to lay claim to water supplies from Stallings Lake, where there is a national wildlife refuge, and lands around it.

The amendment would specify the amount of water the Interior's Bureau of Indian Affairs could buy for $5 million to enhance management of the Fort Hall Indian Irrigation Project.

The agency also would purchase grazing rights with the money.

The existing language mentions no acreage figure, while the amendment proposes "acquisition of up to 3,300 acres of land, grazing rights and related improvements" to manage the project.

"We don't believe the amendments are necessary," said Caryn Jones, special assistant to Stallings. "But we don't think it's a major issue that would hold up passage of the bill." Jones said there also is some concern about the government's initial payment to the tribe because of inflation rates.

During earlier hearing Friday before members of the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, economist Charles Smith said the tribe could lose about $3 million under a 5 percent inflation rate.

The Fort Hall agreement — negotiated by the state, the tribes, water users and the federal agency for the past five years — provides for the federal government to commit about 100,000 acre-feet of storage space for water and $22 million during a 20-year period.

Aid possible for fuel tanks underground

BOISE (AP) — Owners of underground fuel tanks may be able to tap into a new state insurance-fund as well as help pay station cleanup costs. Financing for new fuel tanks and leak-detection devices to meet more stringent federal requirements.

"There's a ray of hope we're optimistic," Rolla Briggs, owner of Larry's Garden Valley store, said. "We've been having a hard time, yet in the private sector who will insure me."

Gas stations, cities, counties, schools and farmers face a number of new federal standards for certifying that their underground fuel tanks don't leak.

The requirements are designed to prevent groundwater contamination. State officials estimate more than 250 of the 12,000-plus underground fuel tanks in Idaho have been leaking since 1980, and at least 40 have contaminated the water table.

Some tank owners may have to spend $35,000 or more to install new tanks and leak-detection devices to meet the requirements. Owners with one to 12 tanks also must have insurance coverage by October 1991. Commercial petroleum marketers with 13 to 99 tanks must have insurance by next April.

Merle Parsley, manager of the state Petroleum Storage Tank Fund, said he hoped the fund could help keep service station dealers in business.

"That's the whole point of the program," Parsley said. "If we can make this baby work, we won't have a service station every 200 to 300 miles."

"If approved by the Environmental Protection Agency, the fund will provide surety coverage for the purchase of new insurance. To be eligible, owners will have to prove their tanks do not leak and that the tanks have not contaminated soil or groundwater.

"My job is to keep people in business, not to find ways to drive them out of business," Parsley said. "But we can't insure a contaminated site."

"Most fuel tanks will have some minimal level of contamination from overfilling and spills," he said.

Forest Service plans 2nd travel meeting

TWIN FALLS — The U.S. Forest Service has scheduled a second meeting on the Draft Trail Maps at the request of Idaho Congressman Richard Stallings.

The meeting will be held Sept. 24 in Twin Falls. Stallings' office staff said they will release the time and date when both are confirmed.

The travel maps specify which roads, trails and area in the Sawtooth National Forest are open to travel by motorized vehicles.

"I greatly appreciate the Forest Service's willingness to take the time to hear what people have to say," Stallings said. "Whatever the final decisions are on issues such as this — where controversy exists — all parties can better live with those decisions if they have been given ample opportunity to make their positions known."

County fair, rodeo board considers earlier fair dates

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Fair and Rodeo Board is serious about moving next year's fair up to begin Wednesday, Aug. 28 and end on Labor Day.

The board will meet 12:30 p.m. Monday in the Canyon Springs Inn Cedar Room and invite public comment on the proposed change in dates.

Some area schools have already expressed support for the change along with 4-H and Future Farmers of America leaders.

The board will also consider reducing the number of rodeo performances to three, replacing one rodeo with a popular-music concert.

The change would reduce direct competition with the Eastern Idaho State Fair, enabling professional livestock exhibitors to display here before moving onto Blackfoot the following week.

Voter registration drive set for 3 dates at McDonald's

TWIN FALLS — The county clerk's office and the League of Women Voters will take their local registration drive to the Twin Falls McDonald's restaurant, at 3 Blue Lakes Boulevard North, on three separate dates prior to the general election.

Voters can register from 8 a.m. until noon Sept. 22; which has been designated national voter registration day. Registrars will also be available from 4 to 6 p.m. Oct. 19 and from 8 a.m. until noon Oct. 20.

The last day to register to vote in the Nov. 6 general election is Oct. 26.

"Being able to register at McDonald's makes it much easier for working people who can't get away from work during regular office hours," said Betty Slifer, League of Women Voters' chapter president.

Buhl photographer takes conservation contest prize

FILER — Lowell Jagers of Buhl won the $200 grand prize in the second annual natural resource conservation photo contest.

Calvin Wilde, also of Buhl, took first place in the "land" category, and Marilyn Triplett of Wendell won first in the "kids in the environment" category.

The Twin Falls, Snake River and Balanced-Rock-Soil Conservation Districts sponsored the contest in an effort to increase the public's awareness of the Magic Valley's natural resources.

The grand prize was awarded by the soil conservation districts. Donated by the other categories were donated by Plant Foods, Inc., of Filer and Camera Land and Larson Arts, both of Twin Falls.

Dan Deagle of Twin Falls won the drawing for the firechick shawl, donated by Kimberly Nursery of Twin Falls, and Erna Weaver of Buhl won the drawing for the 30 pine tree seedlings, donated by Kiestges Evergreen Ranch of Kimberly.

About 205 farmers join Hawkins suit

Hawkins, state, Klein Brothers named in class-action lawsuit

By Mark Kind
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — About half of the farmers affected by the 1988 Hawkins Co. Ltd. warehouse failure have signed on to a multi-million-dollar class-action lawsuit filed by Twin Falls attorney Lloyd Walker.

"Out of the entire bunch, about 205 are in the suit," Walker said Wednesday.

The farmers are seeking $5 million from Hawkins Co. directors and the state of Idaho, as well as $1 million from Klein Brothers Ltd., a California-based agribusiness firm.

Hawkins Co. Ltd. collapsed in November 1988, seven months after a state Agriculture Department audit discovered the warehouse held fewer beans than farmers had consigned to the company.

Walker, the domestic candidate for the state Senate District 23B, charges in his suit that the warehouse should have been closed in May or the public should have been warned about the 6,475-sack shortage before farmers delivered their 1988 harvest.

But the warehouse remained open and Klein Brothers was allowed to buy 110,000 sacks of beans from Hawkins Co. between May and November, according to the complaint.

A reply to Walker's suit filed by Klein Brothers attorneys said that "Klein had no knowledge that the growers or any other party claimed any ownership interest in the beans sold to Klein by Hawkins Co."

The Agriculture Department closed the warehouse in November 1988 after a year-end audit by the company revealed a bear shortage that was eventually pegged at 115,000 sacks.

State Agriculture Department Director W.G. Nelson wrote in a letter to the editor in The Times-News last week that Hawkins Co. was required to "cover the shortage" when it was discovered in May 1988 and that "no complaints from growers, creditors, or the general public were ever received by the department regarding any facet of Hawkins' operations."

Walker disputed Nelson's claim that Hawkins Co. covered the shortage.

Hawkins' attorneys have filed a reply to Walker's suit, insisting that January bankruptcy proceedings settled the warehouse case.

Klein Brothers attorneys similarly replied that the Walker suit violates the bankruptcy order under which "beans remaining in the warehouse were sold under 450 ounces of those beans received $18 to $20 per sack."

Klein received the most money of any bean owner in the $6 million settlement — $317,500. Earlier in the bankruptcy proceedings, Honey Seed/Bean Growers, in which Klein Brothers holds a controlling interest, bought the warehouse for $300,100.

William Nungesser, a former director, also cited the bankruptcy settlement in his reply to the Walker suit. In addition, Nungesser's reply said he had no information about the May 1988 audit by the Agriculture Department.

Nungesser's reply also denied Walker's charge that "the failure of the board of directors to promptly close the warehouse by May of 1988 and to continue the reception of beans for the 1988 crop year was a result of the negligence of the board of directors."

Charboneau assigned new judge

By Anita Dennis
Times-News writer

BOISE — Fifth District Judge George Grania Jr. has been assigned to the Jaime Charboneau murder case.

At Charboneau's request, the Idaho Supreme Court reconsidered its previous appointment of 5th District Judge J. William Hart. The high court notified Charboneau's attorney, Jerome County Public Defender M. Lynn Dunlap, on Friday of the new appointment.

Asked if he is satisfied with the decision, Dunlap said, "It is what my client wanted me to accomplish."

Charboneau, 30, is awaiting resentencing for the 1984 first-degree murder of his former wife, Marilyn Arbaugh. He was sentenced to death in 1986 by 5th District Judge Phillip M. Becker, but that sentence has been overturned.

Becker removed himself from the case in June at Charboneau's request, after which the Supreme Court appointed Hart.

The Idaho Supreme Court upheld his conviction but vacated his death sentence on April 4, 1989, ruling that hearsay and "victim impact" testimony was improperly considered by Becker. The high court also ruled that Becker should have weighed each aggravating factor against all mitigating factors in considering whether to impose the death penalty.

The Supreme Court said in an order Thursday it was not aware on July 6 when it assigned Hart to hear the case, that Charboneau, three days earlier filed legal action to disqualify Hart.

Normally a defendant may not ask for disqualification of a judge assigned by the Supreme Court to hear a case, the court said, but in this case, Charboneau asked for disqualification before the appointment took effect.

At the same time, the court announced action on the Hart petition. Chief Justice Robert Steiner said grants has been assigned to hear further proceedings.

Shoshone schools get good start

By Cathryn Stephens
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — The school district has started off the school year with a new superintendent, good news about its financial standing, and a clean slate with the teachers' association.

For the first time in six or seven years the district is operating with a positive fund balance.

An audit report presented by accountant Thomas P. Jones at the last School Board meeting showed a balance of $2,844 for the year ending July 31, 1990.

Janice Hiesley, vice chairwoman, said board members are very pleased the district is not operating in the red any longer because the district has worked for many years to get back into the black.

During the presentation, Jones warned that while progress has been made in the district's accounting department, the district still needs to pay off its bank loan and build a reserve fund equal to one month's expenses — approximately $250,000.

"It may take us two to three years to do that," Superintendent Stephen Palaniuk said. "It just depends on how thrifty we are."

The board and the Shoshone Education Association have also resolved the controversy that surfaced at the end of the school year when several teachers were transferred to new duties without warning.

Former Superintendent Wayne Waddoups recommended the involuntary transfer of five teachers — one of which resigned over the issue.

At the time, parents unhappy with the district's treatment of the children to other school districts if the transferred teachers were not reinstated to their former positions.

Michelle Will, president of the Shoshone Education Association, said the School Board agreed to discuss the association's complaints with the transfers.

But the board decided in an Aug. 13 executive session not to reverse the transfers.

Gooding teachers, district are still negotiating

By Terrell Williams
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — Teachers and the school district still have not reached agreement on a 1990-1991 contract.

About 30 teachers attended the School Board meeting Tuesday to say they support the Gooding Education Association negotiators.

Spokesman David Hocklander read a statement from the teachers that said the team has done an outstanding job in representing the teachers and continues to have strong support from Gooding teachers.

"We urge the board to come to a quick settlement with the team so the teachers can get on with what they do best: serving students," Hocklander said.

Superintendent James Cobble thanked the teachers for giving such an orderly presentation.

Board Chairman Claire Major later said negotiations started last spring, resumed again in August and will continue until a settlement is reached. She could not say if the teachers who attended the board meeting, or sent letters of support for the GEA, influenced the board.

But, Major said, "We appreciate their coming and what they have to say. We appreciate the way in which they did it."

J. Lisa Hofflied, leader of the GEA negotiation team, said Thursday that it is "not terribly unusual" for contract talks to continue into the school year. The talks were on hold all summer, she explained, and are now making progress.

"I feel that in spite of the fact that we have not come to an agreement on our salary package, I feel we have a concerned board that is willing to listen to us," Hofflied said. "I feel positive that we're going to have a settlement soon."

Hofflied noted that she and the other three team members did not attend the board meeting or play a role in the teachers' attendance at the meeting.

"It was a decision made by the staff to do that," she said.

Hofflied declined to discuss details of the teacher contracts.

"I'm proud to work here, I can tell you that," she said.

Murtaugh needs to improve sewage system

By Rebecca Tansko
Times-News correspondent

MURTAUGH — The city needs to improve its sewage treatment facility, which is an aging system right now, according to an engineering firm.

Tracy Ahrens of JUB Engineers attended the city council meeting Wednesday evening to give a preliminary report to the firm on the results of a flow meter the firm set up in the city's sewer system.

The city is considering improving its sewage system, which needs more room. The meter measures the amount of waste water generated by the city.

The firm, in conjunction with the city, is trying to figure out how to improve the system.

JUB is measuring the sewer system's waste-water flows as well as its expansion rates.

Ahrens said that after six days, the meter measures an average of 33.4 gallons of water a minute.

The reading is "higher than what we got from our study in May," Ahrens said. But she said it "looks like the two-flow meters we did are comparable."

To assist in the improvement of its sewage system the city has applied for a grant from a division of the Health and Welfare Department.

Richard Huddleston of Health and Welfare's Environmental Quality division will oversee the grant — attended the meeting in order to clarify any questions about the division's requirements.

Spud Festival offers food, games, entertainment

By Terrell Williams
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — The annual Spud Festival in Gooding today will celebrate the Idaho potato with food, games and live entertainment.

The fun began Friday evening when local merchants decorated the telephone poles in front of their businesses in a local contest.

The Gooding Cheerleaders will kick-off events today with a public breakfast at the Frann Middle School from 6:30 to 10:30 a.m. Cost is $3 for adults and $1.50 for children.

Registration for a 5K walk, a 5K run and a 10K run will be at the Frann school from 9:30 to 10:15 a.m., with the races beginning promptly at 10:30 a.m. Entrance fees are $10 for adults and $6 for students. Prizes will be awarded to winners in eight age groups. Chairman of the races is Jack Nelson.

Potato games will be played in the Frann school yard from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Games chairman Susan Bolton said the games, open to all ages, will include a french fry eating contest, a mashed potato throwing contest, potato sack races, spud smashing contests and potato stacking contests. Prizes will be awarded in a side-walk chalk drawing contest with 10 potato theme.

A hearty spud buffet will be served at the county courthouse front lawn from 12:30 to 4 p.m. Cost is $3 for adults and $2 for children. Spud Festival chairman Loretta Myers said snow cones and cotton candy also will be served.

Grizzly mauls Wyoming man

GODDY, Wyo. (AP)—A Cody man remained in intensive care Friday after being mauled by a grizzly bear in the Feton-Wilderness area adjoining Yellowstone National Park.

In the wake of the attack, the Wyoming Game and Fish Department issued a release outlining how hunters and backpackers could avoid encounters with grizzlies.

"Simply put, there doesn't need to be a conflict if people are prepared and take the necessary precautions," said Collin Gillin, the agency's grizzly bear biologist.

"And they have to be willing to take a little common sense, too."

The guidelines were issued while Ed Higbie, 42, was recovering in Cody's West Park Hospital following surgery for injuries to his head, hands and torso. Higbie was mauled Wednesday while hunting elk in the company of a friend in the heart of Johnson's Creek in the wilderness area southeast of Yellowstone.

Nurses at the hospital said Higbie remained in the intensive care unit Friday evening and could not immediately be interviewed.

In Cheyenne, Game and Fish Department spokesman Larry Kruckenberg said the agency was investigating the mauling. A wilderness ranger, a biologist, and a game warden visited the site of the incident Friday, he said.

The spokesman did say the hunter was preparing to enter a stand of timber when the bear attacked Higbie.

Higbie was apparently charged by a bear and fired at close range, Kruckenberg said.

One of the other hunters left on horseback to get help and located a ranger who radioed for help, he said.

Expansion planned at Kellogg gondola

KELLOGG (AP)—Operators of the Silver Mountain gondola will spend an additional $5.3 million to build a new mountain amphitheater and improve ski facilities.

The expansion plans, announced Thursday, come at the end of Silver Mountain's successful first summer season. Since opening in June, about 62,000 people have ridden the 3-mile gondola, bringing $500,000 in revenues.

"We were always confident that we were going to gain a market for the expansion," said Peter Forsch, the resort's general manager and chief executive officer. "We're expanding our debt because we're pretty bullish after our success this summer."

The expansion plus the total Silver Mountain project cost at $20 million. A $6 million federal grant also was used for initial construction.

Projects scheduled to begin this fall include a 3,000-seat amphitheater atop the mountain, addition of a lift to increase the gondola's carrying capacity by 50 percent, installation of snow-making equipment and installation of a lighting system for night skiing on seven trails.

The resort's four restaurants also will be upgraded and completed and trail-grooming equipment will be purchased, Forsch said.

Construction and operation of the gondola, a ski resort's partner-ship between VonRohr Transport Co., Kellogg taxpayers and Idaho Hospitality Co.

Carter invites McClure to conference

WASHINGTON (AP)—Idaho Sen. James McClure, who is retiring at the end of this year after 18 years in the U.S. Senate, is ranking Republican members and former chairman of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee.

Carter to take part in a conference on the crisis in the Persian Gulf.

The two-hour conference, "A Carter Center Briefing: Crisis in the Gulf," will be held Sept. 17 at the Carter Center and Presidential Library in Atlanta. The former president will serve as moderator.

The latest of his several trips to the Midwest was in April, when he was part of a five-member Senate delegation that met with political and governmental leaders in Iraq, Syria, Jordan, Egypt and Israel.

In an invitation to McClure, Carter said, "It will certainly be interesting and helpful to all of our constituents and to worldwide viewers to understand more about the long-term impact of these events on a variety of economic, foreign policy and strategic concerns."

The earlier conference is scheduled to air on The Discovery cable, and Cable News Network also plans coverage.

Four half-hour segments will deal with different aspects of the crisis.

Pocatello lawyer travels to Soviet Union

POCATELLO (AP)—Pocatello attorney Bill Bacon travels to the Soviet Union this weekend to participate in a conference on the legal, economic and trade issues of the USSR.

He is the only delegate from Idaho and Bacon said the gathering will be a great opportunity for the two countries to open a dialogue on exporting western goods into what he calls "an untapped market."

"I've no doubt that the Soviet leadership will remain under and Gorbachev continues in power, I think it would be an excellent opportunity on a ground floor level, to do business with these people," he said.

But there are barriers keeping American businesses from exploring business ventures in the USSR.

"In 1987, the Soviet Union revised their joint venture laws, making it easier for western businesses to create joint ventures with the Soviets but there are some basic problems," he said.

"The primary problems are the ruble is not an internationally traded currency and Gorbachev is experiencing problems on the Soviet political front with those from the old school feeling he is moving too quickly and the younger school thinking his reforms are not moving quickly enough."

Bacon said these issues will be discussed, as well as other topics including the economic relationship between the U.S. and the USSR and global issues of common concern between the two countries. But Bacon feels the issue of civil rights will be the most important item addressed at the conference.

Shoshone

The board action is unfortunate. Yes, teachers will attempt to perform their new duties well, but the situation could have been so much better had the board held its own administrator accountable for following correct procedures," Will said.

Shoshone teachers' union president between the board members and the association "opened an avenue of communication."

The board has expressed a desire to work as a team this year. The teachers are looking forward to a better relationship with the board, especially under the guidance of our new superintendent," Will said.

Palaniuk said he has "been very encouraged by the positive attitudes that everyone has."

"I'm sure the old feelings are still there, but everyone has had a very professional demeanor about the situation this year," Palaniuk said.

During Monday's meeting, the board learned that special education teacher Diana Kennison is not yet certified in special education.

The state gave the district a one-year emergency authorization last year to retain Kennison as the special education teacher with the stipulation that the position would be offered to a certified special education teacher this year.

Because the district failed to comply with these stipulations, it is in jeopardy of losing state funding for both Kennison's salary and other ancillary services.

"The board didn't know that they had to comply with the stipulations," the previous superintendent should have let the board know. It should have been done in May, Helsey said. "Our new superintendent discovered the problem when he took the job."

The board voted to declare a state of emergency and request a letter of authorization from the state allowing Kennison, who is working toward her certification, to teach special education at Shoshone High School for the 1990-1991 school year.

According to Palaniuk, if the district does lose its funding, it could lose as much as $45,000.

In other business, the board unanimously approved Jess Kennison's contract as High School Principal, which included a 5 percent raise.

Live entertainment and special appearances from 1 to 4 p.m. at the outdoor lawn will be the centerpiece of the event.

Musicians Brian and the Little Brain Brothers, Larry Price, Miss Northside Jenni Thomason, Rick Strickland, George Marsh, Sherri Carpenter's Dance Studio and the Gooding County Rodeo Queen and Princess.

Also, arts and craft booths will be set up in front of the courthouse during the afternoon.

A Ping Pong Ball Drop, sponsored by the Gooding County Leader, is scheduled for 4:15 p.m. Myers said thousands of balls will be dropped on Main Street from an airplane.

Balls with business names can be redeemed for prizes at those businesses.

At 5 p.m., the movie "Ghost Dad" starring Bill Cosby will be shown at the Gooding Cinema. General admission is $1.

"Basically, it's just a day of some good entertainment," Myers said.

Murtaugh

As part of the requirements, the city must provide necessary documents, including the JUB report, to the public for 14 calendar days prior to public hearing on the matter.

The city will post the dates of publication of the documents and the public hearing date and time at a later date.

In other business, the city has found an interested buyer for the city-owned Fairfax Building.

The buyer is interested in putting a restaurant in the building but would like to know the city's asking price, how much property goes with the building, as well as restrictions that go along with the sale.

Murtaugh has no city building code, as anyone planning to build must follow county guidelines.

Councilwoman Ormetta Bailey mentioned that she would like to see something for the teens in Murtaugh but the council did not make any decisions.

Chair of Terry Reinke, who resigned last month. Reinke, representing Zone 1 since May of 1988, became ineligible for the trustee seat because his wife, Cathy, was hired as the elementary school principal.

Muchow, a farmer and business manager, took office at the board's August meeting after being appointed by a unanimous vote from the trustees.

Students Valentin Celaya and Howard Carrol presented a slide show of their five-day trip to Washington D.C. in June with the Future Farmers of America, Celaya, who won a state scholarship to attend the conference program, said the FFA members attended workshops to learn about citizenship, FFA activities, methods of teamwork and goal setting. In the meantime, the students went on day and night tours of the nation's capital.

Celaya, Locke and advisor Leonard Woodland thanked the School Board for helping to sponsor the trip.

High School Principal Larry Tinker said the school's "Drug Free Zone" has been "chopped down" the second time. The first real cut was in 1987 when the school was valued at $300 each, Tinker said.

The police do have a suspect in the case, he added.

The board hired Bob McHargue as high school wrestling coach, Tom Gingham as assistant wrestling coach and Howard Carrol as the principal director for the district. The board also voted to increase substitute teacher pay to $40 from $35 per day.

Superintendent Cobble read a letter from the school's insurance company, stating that the school has had to review its safety conditions. However, Cobble explained, the substantial liability claims made against the school last year were all unrelated to the school's activities.

He said one teacher hurt her back while moving a few chairs, a man's finger tip was pinched off in a door, a custodian developed a shoulder pain, another custodian slipped, though it is not a physical education teacher received a large splinter in her hand and another P.E. teacher had a pencil drive into her arm when a ball hit it.

"Yes, we had a lot of claims, Cobble said. "No, we do not operate an unsafe school system."

Sonny Bono, Palm Springs mayor, talking of possible run for senator

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Mayor Sonny Bono says he's thinking of taking his political act on the road — to Washington.

"If I made a move, I would decide for another four years I want to just continue being mayor of Palm Springs," Bono said.

Bono said he had talked with Sen. Pete Wilson, "about going beyond this point in politics."

If Wilson, a Republican, wins his bid for governor, he would be in a position to choose his own Senate replacement.

Bono, also a Republican, returned Wednesday from a promotional trip for his new line of chocolate chip cookies.

Leukemia patient resting after marrow transplant

SEATTLE (AP) — A leukemia victim whose search for a perfect bone marrow match inspired 50,000 people to offer theirs was recovering Friday after leaving the hospital.

Allison Atlas, 20, was discharged from the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center's bone marrow transplant floor Thursday, about a month after receiving marrow from her mother.

She went to an apartment near the center that her family has rented since they came to the area for her treatment this summer.

She's at day 36 (after the transplant) today and she will not be going home until she is at day 100 or so, said the center's spokeswoman, Susan Edmonds.

It will be six months to a year before it is known if her immune system has returned to normal.

The bone marrow trial is well established and functioning appropriately, said Dr. David Peace, one of Miss Atlas' physicians. "At this time, there is no evidence of recurrent disease." The transplant was conducted after her diseased marrow was destroyed by chemotherapy and radiation. A nationwide search for a perfectly matched marrow donor brought 50,000 would-be contributors, but none were suitable for her.

Paul Anka says attorney gave bad financial advice

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer-songwriter Paul Anka and his wife are suing their former attorney for allegedly giving bad tax and financial advice, court documents show.

The lawsuit filed Thursday in Los Angeles Superior Court alleges that Albert A. Rettig cost Paul and Anne Anka hundreds of thousands of dollars in back taxes and fines and threatens to cause the Ankas more than $600,000 in additional damages.

Anka's writing and recording career has spanned four decades and includes hits such as "Lonely Boy," "Puppy Love," "She's a Lady," and "My Way," made famous by Frank Sinatra.

Retting, the Anka attorney and accountant for 30 years, was fired in June. Rettig's law and accounting associates also are named in the suit.

Soldier Bush noted uneasy about gulf

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The latest from a soldier cited by President Bush as a symbol of patriotism included some notes the president didn't mention in his nationally televised address.

"As much as I love my job," wrote Army Pfc. Wade Merritt, "I don't believe it was worth the loss of lives of violence against fellow human beings, but it is my job."

The 26-year-old soldier, now in Saudi Arabia, told his parents in the Aug. 5 letter that "When I made a decision to make the Army my career, I knew this day would come, but I was hoping it wouldn't."

"It is not inconsistent with the president's message," Alise Glen, a White House spokeswoman, said Wednesday of the letter.

Merritt's mother, Ann, of Knoxville, sent the letter to the White House at the prompting of a neighbor. Bush quoted part of it in his speech to Congress and the nation Tuesday night on the Persian Gulf crisis.

"My mom, I talked to her several weeks ago before I came over here, and she said some of her friends had read it," Merritt said in a television interview Wednesday from the Middle East. "They got her to send it to the president. I was shocked."

In his speech, Bush cited Merritt as a symbol of patriotism. "In the face of danger, they are brave, well trained and dedicated," Bush said.

from Merritt's 24-page missive: "I am proud of my country and its firm stand against inhuman aggression. I am proud of my army and its men. ... I am proud to serve my country."

The president continued, "Let me just say, Wade, America is proud of you. And grateful to every soldier, sailor, marine and airman serving the cause of peace in the Persian Gulf."

Merritt's sister, Kim Inklebarger, said the family has "always felt that he was very special. He's always had a real special artistic writing ability. So we are glad that it has been recognized and we are pleased for him."

Mrs. Merritt said she told her son she sent the letter to Bush was "because it was beautiful and everybody loved it."

"As Americans we often take our freedom for granted," wrote Merritt, a member of the 24th Military Intelligence Battalion, which shipped out from Fort Stewart, Ga., for Saudi Arabia on Aug. 19.

"Now the freedom of peaceful nations is being jeopardized and it is the just duty of myself and my fellow men to restore freedom and rights to our fellow men."

He wrote of how children take their parents for granted, show their parents shouldn't worry about him and how hard he and his fellow soldiers have been working "so hard, in fact, that events occurring hardly pass a thought."

Judge OKs review of medical records in unusual rape case

OSHKOSH, Wis. (AP) — Lawyers for a man charged with raping a woman who says she has 21 personalities are being allowed to review some of her medical records to try to prove at least one personality consented to the sex.

Mate A. Peterson, 29, of Oshkosh, is charged with second-degree sexual assault for allegedly having sex with the 26-year-old woman on June 11.

He maintains the woman "consented" and he was unaware she had a mental illness. He is free on a $5,000 signature bond.

Judge Robert Hawley of Winnebago County Circuit Court ruled Thursday that the defense could review the woman's medical records for the 12 months before the alleged rape.

The district attorney says he is allowed to strike things from the records that he fears would invade the woman's privacy, pending a review in the judge's chambers.

Hawley denied a motion by Peterson's attorney, Edward Salzsieder, that a psychiatrist examine the defense's medical records and psychiatric examinations and that she be available for examination by the psychiatrist.

Hawley said a psychiatrist for the defense could talk to the woman's psychiatrist, listen to court testimony and examine records already available.

He added he would reconsider the motion, but the defense psychiatrist would have to testify as to the need to examine the woman.

Astrological Forecasts

IF SEPTEMBER 15 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY... You are bound by out-moded procedures; legal and otherwise. Take initiative, get to heart of matters, independence, and willingness to take charge of your own destiny. Define terms, separate fact from sledge-hammer words such as, "could be, might be, could have been." You can "make happen" what you want to happen. October is your power-month; represents intensity, prosperity, success (March 21-April 19). It won't be easy but this will be a day for style, creativity, power play. Jealous associate ignites rumor factory. Emphasis on physical attraction intensified relationship. Capricorn plays role.

ARIES (April 20-May 20): Attention attracted toward property, durable goods, automobile, "reput. shop." Individual who is loyal but lacks inspiration slows pace. Do things you love - despite "flirt" feelings.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Siccas independence, during, planning spirit, insistence on getting to heart of matters. Relative with "wanderers" wants to "pick your brain." Be sure your pockets are not also picked. You'll understand.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your kind of day! Money is available, family reunion lives place, views are vindicated. You'll be "at right" place at "dramatic" moment! What has been boring is transformed into exciting excitement.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): This will be a Saturday, night to be remembered! Focus on popularity, strong, love relationship. Change of scene is desirable. You'll be asked questions and you'll engage "the winner."

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Check facts, figures, accounting procedures. Leo individual confides secret, provides pertinent information: You'll feel more relaxed, confident, as result. That "bad dream" was only a dream.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be ready for clash of ideas, sensuality, sexuality, flirtation. Gain indicated through greater degree of self-expression, including written word. Legitimacy says: "Get it on paper and it'll sell!"

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Family member who had been "disgraced" would now fall into your arms. Be gracious! Be gracious! Be gracious! Focus on romance, dilution, necessity for discretion. Long distance call might lead to journey - Pisces will figure prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 19): Emphasis on responsibility, intense relationship, opportunity to considerably increase income. Money that had been "wondered" might become center of controversy. Be gracious but stand tall.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): More people become aware of your talents. Many seek your counsel. Long-standing project, assignment can be completed. Focus on contractual obligations, partnership, marriage. You're getting better.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Those who thought you were left behind might wake up to find that you have crossed finish line. Clearly you're today and catch break tonight. Focus on achievement, recognition, strong love relationship.

Mineco Wall-of-Fame to honor high achievers

RUPERT — Mineco High School has initiated a Wall-of-Fame to recognize outstanding athletic and academic achievement. Any present or former student of Mineco, Rupert, Paul, Heyburn or Aqueca high schools who have been named All-State or placed in a state competition in either athletics or academics are asked to contact Asst. Principal Randy Durr at 436-9645. Examples would be All-State cheer or band; All-State football, basketball, etc.; or placing in a state competition such as track or wrestling.

Students or former students who qualify for this program are asked to provide a 100-word photo (recent or past) along with justification of the honor.

All pictures received will be put on display in the Wall-of-Fame display case in the main hall at Mineco High School. All students are encouraged to participate in this program to receive the recognition they worked so hard to achieve.

Barr's decision to putt may cost him title at Canadian

OAKVILLE, Ontario — A questionable decision by Dave Barr helped take him from a chance to tie for the lead to two strokes back at the halfway point of the Canadian Open Golf Championship.

"It was a bad decision on my part. Maybe it will cost me, but it's a decision I'll have to live with," said Barr, who is attempting to become the first Canadian in 36 years to win this national championship.

"The siren had sounded, hitting second round play late Friday, and Barr — as is his right — decided to putt out on the par-5 18th hole at the Glen Abbey Golf Club.

He faced a 20-footer for a birdie that would give him a share of the lead.

"But I thought I could make it," he said. "But I guess it was so dark I couldn't see all the subtle breaks."

He missed it. Then he missed a 3-foot par putt in a pouring rain and took the bogey that dropped him two strokes back of halfway leader Wayne Levi.

"I'm still looking at a good chance for birdie and you walk out with a three-putt bogey. That hurts," he said.

2 plays make 2-TD difference for Patriots

By Larry Hoxby
Times-News sportswriter

TWIN FALLS — The difference of two plays turned a tight ball game into a 21-7 victory for the Centennial Patriots over the Twin Falls Bruins Friday night.

Two minutes into the fourth quarter, the Bruins saw a holding call nullify a 16-yard touchdown pass. Two plays later, Randy Amorebreita picked off a flat pass and returned it 76 yards for the touchdown that nailed down the victory.

A livid Twin Falls coach Jon Jund was unprepared to accept the sudden turnaround.

"The guy (official) makes one call all night and, of course, like always, it's against us, inside the 25-yard line. We aren't talking possibilities, we put the ball in the end zone. We have a chance to tie it with the kick-and-maybe have the momentum going into the final 10 minutes of the game," Jund said.

"It's a crime one call like that can ruin a good game like this. I thought we played very well for being as young as we are. I thought we played Centennial pretty well," the coach said.

The victory was the third straight for Centennial while Twin Falls absorbed its first loss in three outings. This one also counts in the playoff positioning.

Twin Falls used three Centennial turnovers to control the scoreboard through much of the first half. But Centennial unleashed a scoring drive to end the first half and opened the second with a 12-play drive

Camas County ruins Richfield Homecoming, 22-16

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News writer

RICHFIELD — The San Francisco 49ers have Joe Montana and Jerry Rice. The Camas County Musherers have Tyler Ballard and Eddie Harness, who spoiled the Tigers' homecoming game Friday afternoon, 22-16.

Richfield's defense had not been scored upon in two games against Sawtooth Conference's struggling Dietrich and Clark County, but it didn't take the Musherers' dynamic duo long to change that.

On Camas' first play from scrimmage, Ballard luffed a perfect pass to the speedy Harness who outran the Tiger secondary for a 52-yard touchdown.

The play was typical of the Camas offense, which was unable to sustain a drive throughout the game but scored on quick strikes.

"We were just so much better than they were physically," Richfield coach Clint Straatman said after his team fell to 2-1. "If we had these guys again, it would be over early."

Ballard, constantly harassed by the Tiger blitz, remained cool and completed several passes with red jerseys in his face.

"Tyler did a real good job on his passes," said Camas coach Galen Colter, whose team is also 2-1. "The offensive line play improved in the second half ... and he had a little more time to throw."

The Musherers looked to blow the game open in the first quarter, when Richfield fullback Eric Anderson caught up with the ball on his own 19 yard line with his team trailing, 8-0.

The defense held, however, and Richfield's offense took over on downs at its own 16 yard line. Thirteen plays and 84 yards later, the game was tied, 8-8.

The Tiger offensive line dominated Camas on the drive as quarterback Rob Appell threw only once — a 7-yarder that was negated by a 15-yard roughing the quarterback penalty.

Anderson made up for his earlier fumble, carrying eight times for 44 yards, including the 1-yard score.

It looked as though the teams would go into the locker rooms tied, but a bizarre turn of events found Camas in the end zone just before halftime.

Starting at their own 32, Richfield sent Anderson on a slant over the right side. Once through the line, he bounced to the outside and would have scored if not for a shoestring tackle by Harness at the Camus 25 yard line.

On the next play, Anderson missed the pitch from Appell, and Camas linebacker Rob Tupper came up with the ball at the 42.

No. 1 Pirates trip No. 2 Mackay, 14-6

By Ron Gates
Times-News writer

MACKAY — Mackay's second half defense played the biggest part as top-ranked Hagerman claimed an early, but important 14-6 Magic Valley Conference victory over No. 2 Mackay Friday evening.

By eliminating the conference opener, the Pirates remain unbeaten after three games while the Miners suffered their first setback in as many contests.

Hagerman, the defending Class A-4 11-man state champion, scored all of its points in a 2:13 period spanning the first and second quarters.

Ryan Pharis' three yard reception off a Chris Waitley aerial with 1:48 remaining in the first quarter finished a 66 yard drive that started with a 10-yard penalty against the host and featured a Waitley to Kirk Lindsay pass for 16 yards and a first down.

The conversion failed, but the Miners fumbled one play after the kickoff setting Hagerman up at the 22. Waitley's fourth down pass was knocked away, but a Mackay defender was caught grabbing a face mask and Jeff Coates took it in from 12 yards out on the next play making it 14-0.

A Mackay offense which kicked off the season with four touchdowns in blanking Challis then followed with three more against Butte county in posting non-conference wins against A-3 competition in its first two games got on the scoreboard with 7:20 left in the half.

Starting at their own 27, it took just two plays for starting quarterback Brad Lambson to find James Duke behind the defense for a 48 yard touchdown.

But after limiting the next Pirate possession to three yards, Lambson was felled after fielding the punt and departed the field by ambulance along with teammate

How 100 yards is better than another 100

The Dallas Morning News

All football fields may be 100 yards in length, but not all 100 yards are created equal.

To put it another way, there is a significant difference between rushing for 100 yards and passing for 100. On the offense, both efforts are created in an equal distance. But the 100-rushing yards move a team closer to victory.

This fact of NFL life never was more obvious than on opening week. Two players, Miami's Sammie Smith and Chicago's Neal Anderson, had 100-yard rushing days. Their teams won.

Five receivers had 100-yard receiving days. Their teams lost by an average of nearly 12 points.

Normally, the difference between these two modes of travel is not so staggering. Clearly, 100-yard receiving efforts shouldn't kill their teams' chances of winning. And they don't.

Last season, there were 165 receiving days of 100 yards or more. Of those, 94 (57 percent) were achieved by players on winning teams. 43 percent happened in losing games. So there is a correlation, although a small one, between big receiving days and victory.

By comparison, there were only 74 rushing efforts of 100 yards or more. Of those, 56 (75.7 percent) were for winning teams; less than 25 percent for losers.

Raise the totals, and the percentages increase slightly for the strong rushing efforts. Last year, teams had 20-3 records (.870) when a back rushed for 150 yards or more; they had 4-3 records (.672) when receivers caught passes worth 130 yards or more.

To dramatize, the Dallas Cowboys were 1-0 when they had a back rush for 100 yards, 0-15 when they didn't. Paul Palmer ran for 110 yards in the 13-3 victory at Washington.

The major reason for this trend is that teams with significant leads tend to run the ball and pile up rushing yards. Teams that fall way behind are forced to abandon the run and throw the ball. So these statistical realities do not mean teams should simply line up in the straight-11 and pound the ball between the tackles until a back reaches 100 yards.

They do indicate, however, that while the trend is toward more offensive rushing, the ability to run the ball consistently remains a weapon no offense should leave home without.

NEXT RECORD TO FALL

In 1989, the Cincinnati Bengals set an NFL record by kicking 35 field goals. Three reasons that mark will fall this year:

—The Saints' defense is so strong it will give them good field position throughout the year.

—Their offense with John Fourness is so bad it won't move the ball very far.

—Morten Anderson has the leg strength to blast 40-yard field goals week after week.

With four field goals after one week, Anderson needs to average a little more than two the rest of the way to break the record.

RULES AT WORK

Scoring was down more than 10 percent from opening week 1989. Whether new rules designed to speed up games are at fault is hard to say.

The scoring average for 14 games last weekend was 40 points. Although the season average last year was 41.2, the first-week average was 44.9. The number of plays had only a minor drop to 151.3 from 154 last season.

The first games the first weekend averaged 3:04, down from last season's 3:11.

FANTASY UPDATE

Joe Montana should bounce back with a big day against Washington. Montana was sacked six times Monday, and his receivers, especially Jerry Rice, were shut down by the Saints. The Redskins' defense won't be confused with New Orleans' defense.

Even the Cards' Timm Rosenbach threw for 228 yards against Washington last week. In five career starts, Montana has averaged 270 yards against the Redskins.

John Elway still figures to have a good season.

Quarterback Randy Stover hurries a pass off as a Centennial player makes contact during the second quarter.

Reedy says Martin drove on day of his death

PORT CRANE, N.Y. (AP) — A tearful William Reedy testified Friday that he didn't drive the pickup truck in which Billy Martin was killed but lied to authorities in claiming a priest — an accused incestuous priest — drove the truck.

The Detroit bar owner, accused of driving while intoxicated during the fatal wreck that killed Martin on Christmas 1989, choked back tears when recalling how the five-time New York Yankees manager didn't respond after the crash.

"I said to Billy, 'If you can get up, I'll push you out of the window,'" Reedy said of the crash's aftermath. "Billy's back was against the wall and his head slumped forward."

Reedy, a longtime friend of Martin's, is defending himself against charges by claiming that he wasn't driving and wasn't intoxicated. He testified for 1 1/2 hours Friday.

Reedy, who was staying at Martin's farm outside of Binghamton for the holidays, testified that he and Martin went to the city to run errands on Christmas afternoon and stopped at a bar for more than four hours.

Reedy said he had "four or five beers" and "a few drinks" while at the bar. But he insisted he wasn't drunk and left in his car with his glasses.

Shortly before the pickup truck began skidding on an icy road on the trip home, Reedy testified that he heard Martin say, "God damn it, I missed the turn."

The truck began skidding, screamingly picking up speed before coming to a stop, he said. Reedy said Martin had been thrown to the passenger side of the vehicle, which was flying driver-side-up in a ditch. Several witnesses who arrived on the scene minutes after the crash have testified that they found Reedy piled on top of Martin on the passenger side of the pickup truck.

Reedy said he called out to Martin and rubbed his face but received no response. Despite that, Reedy said he didn't think the accident was serious.

"I didn't think that I hurt my hip," said Reedy, who broke his hip in the accident.

Reedy, 53, began crying at this reminder but refused a request to take a brief recess in the trial.

Reedy said he didn't find out Martin had died until he was told by a priest, the Rev. Corey Van Kuren, at the Binghamton hospital where both testified he laid the priest that he was driving the car to protect Martin, who had a long history of alcohol-related problems, including public fights with his players.

Reedy was asked by defense attorney Jon Blochman if he had ever testified before on behalf of Martin.

"Yes, to the wife, many times," Reedy said. As an example, he threw the punches in a barroom fight with Martin who had been the combatant.

Also Friday, Van Kuren testified that Reedy told him that it was Reedy, not Martin, who drove the pickup truck last Christmas.

Two Broome County coroners also testified. One, Dr. Melvin Jones, said that an autopsy was not performed on Martin because Martin's wife said she didn't want Billy out of her.

Martin, 61, died of head and neck injuries.

The other coroner, Patrick Ruddy, said he noted in a report that Martin was the passenger in the vehicle, based on his conversations with hospital officials. He said he didn't talk to Reedy about this determination.

If convicted, Reedy faces a mandatory fine of between $350 and $500, revocation of his driver's license for at least six months and a possible jail sentence of up to a year.

Martin's widow, Jillunna, who has been attending the trial, has filed a wrongful death lawsuit against the town and Reedy.

Martin was a member of five World Series championship teams with the Yankees during an 11-year playing career.

He managed 16 years with the major leagues, including stints with Minnesota, Detroit, Texas and Oakland.

After receiving the pickoff, in the second half, three Twin Falls runners left Centennial protectionists' lead until Amorebica could tuck it away.

A late first-quarter fumble on a punt set up Twin Falls touchdown. Centennial 30 and junior Tai Gordon carried three straight times for a first down at the 18. Two running plays netted nothing before quarterback Randy Stover turned to Chad Heider for the touchdown pass. Nat Gellman booted the point after.

Three plays later Centennial fumbled the ball away again but Twin Falls couldn't move with it. The Patriots trying touchdown came on a whirlwind 76-yard march in four plays. Corey Christensen started with a 34-yard gain on a keep and a 27-yard run on a 12-yard run. The Patriots used a little chicanery on the next play, Christensen hanging off to Trendwell on an apparent sweep. But he kept going into a thrower pass from Trendwell, turning it into a 21-yard scoring play. Dave Winder hit the first of three conversions.

Centennial's third-quarter drive was largely the keeping of Christensen, the diving Pat Allen and one 14-yard pass by Trendwell before Allen plunged in from the two to make it 14-7.

Twin Falls rebounded immediately to the Centennial 28 before Joe Alloway shut that off with an interception. The teams then exchanged fumbles, setting up Twin Falls' first big chance.

Jim Horner recovered the ball at the Centennial 38 and bounced to a first down at the 16. It was there Stover connected with Jim Hyde for the apparent touchdown, only to see the holding call kick it. After a running play, Stover failed to get the ball over the linebacker and the outcome was no longer in doubt.

"The flat pass was part of our game plan, getting their linebackers outside and dumping it over the defensive end. It worked a couple of times but this time it (the pass) just wasn't high enough to get over," Jind said.

Sheehan paces field at Safeco Classic

KENT, Wash. (AP) — Patty Sheehan won the Safeco Classic on Friday in the second round of the LPGA Safeco Classic for a one-stroke lead over Sherri Steinhilber, whose 64 was one shot off the course record.

Sheehan, who won the Cellular One-Ping Championship in Portland last week, is at 134, 10 under par for two trips around the 6,222-yard Meridian Valley Country Club course.

A foursome of Danielle Amaccapane, Juli Inkster, Cindy Figg-Currier and Nancy Rubin won next at 140.

Amaccapane, who finished second to Sheehan last weekend by a stroke, and Figg-Currier each had a 68. Rubin and Inkster, a two-time Safeco Classic winner, each made a 70.

The foursome that included first-round co-leaders, Beth Daniel and Dale Egeland, and Shirley Furlong and Janet Coles, Daniel, No. 1 on the LPGA money list and winner of her last two tournaments and four of six, and Egeland each had a 72. Furlong had a 66 and Coles a 69.

Both Sheehan and Steinhilber played bogey-free rounds, but both needed key par saves to keep it going.

Sheehan sank a 16-foot birdie putt on the third hole, hit a sand shot within 6 feet for birdie or the fifth and pitched to 4 feet for par on the eighth.

Sheehan saved par with 10-foot putts on the 13th and 10-foot putt on the 14th.

Sheehan saved par with 10-foot putts on the 13th and 10-foot putt on the 14th.

Steinhilber, who has yet to win in five seasons on the LPGA Tour, played the back side first and began to make her move immediately.

She hit her 9-iron second shot to 3 feet and birdied the 10th hole. She was over the 12th green and chipped to 4 feet and saved par, chipped in from off the fringe to birdie the 14th and saved par again, chipping to 2 feet on the 15th.

She sank a 20-foot birdie putt on the 18th, wedged to 3 feet and birdied the 19th hole, and a 30-foot birdie putt on the third.

Steinhilber saved par again after she was over the fourth green, then chipped to 4 feet. She left a sand shot a foot from the cup and birdied the fifth, and sank birdie putts of 8 feet on the eighth and 10 on the ninth.

Rhodes doubled off Kelly Downs (1-1) in the first inning and scored on Franklin Stubbs' single. Rhodes doubled again in the third and scored on Davis' single.

Portugal (9-10) gave up a run in the fourth on a double by Robby Thompson and pinch-hitter Ernest Riles' single. Juan Agosto pitched three innings for his third save.

Dodgers 10, Reds 4 CINCINNATI (AP) — Kai Daniels' third grand slam of the season completed an eight-run rally in the sixth inning as the Los Angeles Dodgers finally beat Cincinnati's Tom Browning Friday night and cut the Reds' lead to 5-4 games in the National League West with a 10-4 victory.

The Dodgers trailed 2-1 when they broke through Browning (12-8), who had yielded just nine earned runs while beating the Dodgers in his four other starts this season.

Expos 4, Pirates 2 MONTREAL (AP) — Tim Lincecum doubled home the tying run with two out in the eighth inning and run in the seventh inning and pitched the Atlanta fourth with a walk, took second on Dave Justice's single and scored on Presley's double. Francisco Cabrera's single scored Justice with the tying run. One out later, Greg Olson and Mark Lemke hit consecutive RBI singles for a 4-2 lead. The fifth run came home as Lonnie Smith grounded out.

rookie Larry Walker followed with a two-run homer as Montreal beat Pittsburgh for the 11th time in 16 games. Despite the loss, the Pirates retained their 1/2-game lead in the National League East over the New York Mets, who lost to Philadelphia.

Montreal trailed 2-1 from two innings by Barry Bonds and was held to five hits in seven innings by Bob Walk. But Neal Heaton (12-9) relieved to start the eighth and walked Delino De

Strawberry sitting in the driver's seat, and the numbers prove it

NEW YORK — The story continues to unfold as if written by Darryl Strawberry's agent, From Smithers to September, the pieces have dropped perfectly into place.

Harvey Araton

Strawberry charges a base hit in the fourth inning Thursday night with the New York Mets down a couple of runs, and from medium right field makes his prime-time throw, which Barry Bonds simply cannot outrun. Bottom of the inning, the first two runners are suddenly on, and Strawberry is at the plate and Doug Drabek is quickly in a 2-0 hole and the entire ballpark seems to be sitting on the instant.

Out in right field, Pittsburgh's Bobby Bonilla is telling himself, "2-0. Damn, this is trouble." He can feel what's coming. He feels himself moving closer to the fence.

In the Mets' dugout, Keith Miller looks at Howard Johnson, who smiles and says, "If he hits one here, the house is coming down."

Strawberry is wearing an orange T-shirt under his jersey which on the back says, "I Only Hit Ropes." Urrric, for the 2-0 fastball becomes a long, lazy fly into the loche, not even hit all that well, but who at Shea Stadium is going to quibble? Who at Shea is not going to stand? Who at Shea at that moment would dare say, "He's not worth the money?"

Isn't holding his breath for a ride back. He's going ... he's going ... he's going to be a very wealthy man, one way or another, sometime this winter.

And yes, Cashen has to be uncomfortable wherever he sits these days, and he deserves to be. But the only conclusion anyone should draw when it comes to Strawberry, like him or not, is that he's got himself up for the big haul. Put an asterisk next to his name as a $4 million player, at least. He's clinched. His numbers are there. And if you still don't think he's worth it, your gripe is with the system, not him. Players don't create the demand, they just put themselves in the position of taking advantage of it.

Make no mistake about it, the demand for Strawberry is going to be tremendous this winter. He has made himself a must-bid for several teams, the Los Angeles Dodgers and New York Yankees among them. Of course he is worth more to the Mets, as the centerpiece for their lineup and the franchise's marquee name.

Before he carried the Mets to a 6-3 win and within 1 1/2 games of the Pirates, dressing in a near-empty clubhouse, Strawberry wasn't interested in anything other than the cold hard stats. He said he would let them speak, and they are talking tough.

He said, "How many other guys are going to be out there who put up the same type of power numbers?" He tossed out one free-agent-in-waiting, "George Bell?" he asked.

Darryl Strawberry takes kudos from teammate Dave Magadan for home run.

Bell has 20 home runs, 77 RBI.

"Do you realize," he was asked, "that you're already in the driver's seat? Three weeks left and you've got 33 homers, 93 RBI."

"Ninety-seven RBI," he politely corrected his visitor. And since he's counting, the revised numbers now read: 34 and 100. And counting.

Let's right now strike the P word forever from any conversation regarding Strawberry. Forget what he potentially should or shouldn't be. The point is what he usually gets. Based on three of the last four seasons, it usually is between 35 and 40 homers and the neighborhood of 100 RBI. This was the season he had to prove that, and he has.

"All I know is that he kills us," Botilla would say. "And that he scares the hell out of everyone."

Bonds, negotiating for Strawberry, not to mention himself, chimed in from the cubicle next door. "Give him all the money he wants." This has been the rap on Strawberry 1990: he had a hot six weeks, and what else did he do?

First of all, if he doesn't tear apart June, Buddy Hareless is Davey Johnson, the Mets are nowhere and Cashen isn't selling out his ballpark these last couple of nights. Second, Strawberry may have a white back topped out at 106, but the bottom hasn't exactly dropped out either. What do his critics think, that Kevin Mitchell, with the same number of home runs and 12 fewer RBI, makes that much better use of them?

"I know people call in to the radio shows and say, 'He's not worth it.' That's OK," Strawberry said. "I just wonder what they're going to say next year when there's nobody here to do what I do."

There, another ominous reference to the likelihood of Strawberry as a former Met. He's said many similar things the last couple of years regarding future employment, changing direction in the time it took him to turn around Drabek's heater.

He's stuck to this one since the Mets low-balled him in July, and Cashen gratuitously said he isn't a $5 million player, which followed Al Harazin saying, "Jose Canseco is not the market." As if the Mets will be in any position to determine the Strawberry market this winter.

"The market," Strawberry said before going out to add another half-million or so per to it, "is whatever someone out there will pay me."

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

The opportunity that God sends does not wake up; it hits you asleep.

Senegalese proverb.

Had I tied your suit originally, we would have had no problem in the tussle," admitted West. "Your lead might well have been a winner," offered East. "It was not so much your lead as it was your failure to use an obvious suit-preference signal."

Against a heart lead, the game goes down quietly; East wins the heart; ace and shifts to a diamond, and the defenders get a trick in each suit.

This West led the club jack with some reason. He didn't think a heart lead would do anything for East.

South had advertised his weakness, and a club lead might simplify the defense. Instead it set the stage for catastrophe.

Dummy's club queen went to East's ace, and since East had control, with the ace-of-trumps, he cashed the heart ace, dropping South's king. West did not appreciate East's problem and followed suit with a sleepy heart deuce. East, interpreting the deuce to mean that West could ruff a club, returned a club. Curtains! South's two small diamonds went on dummy's weakness, and South ended with 10 tricks with 100 bonus points!

West should drop his heart on the heart ace. After South's king drops, the high heart can only be a suit-preference signal, and a diamond shift nets a normal one diamond.
