A economy should weather national recession

Craig Lincoln
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Idahoans shouldn't hunker down for bad economic times.

The latest economic reports for the Magic Valley and Idaho predict continued prosperity throughout this year.

"Business conditions in Idaho are among the nation's healthiest, and the fourth-quarter outlook remains highly favorable," First Security Bank recently reported.

The Magic Valley business community remains optimistic, although businesses may be a little nervous about turmoil in the oil-rich Middle East.

"I think everybody is feeling pretty good," Executive Director J. Kent Just of the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Com-mmerce. "I don't know of anybody who has predicted a recession."

First Security Bank reported that total wages and salaries increased 10.7 percent in Idaho from January to March, one of the highest rates in the country. Its leading-indicator index, a packet of statistics designed to predict the economy, hit a new high in July.

Impressive consumer spending and strong job growth in basic industries bolstered the bank's rosy prediction for Idaho.

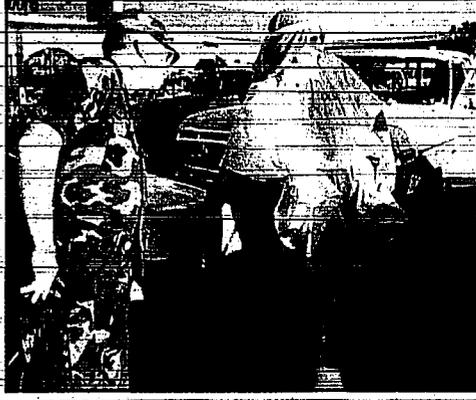

West One Bank reported a slip in its business-activity index, mostly because mild winter weather that boosted residential construction earlier this year led to a tapering off in the last few months.

And Idahoans, who labor for some of

In the gas lane

Dressed as a "wacky Iraqi," radio station Z-103 disc jockey Chad Miller prepares to pump gas for dozens of cars lining up at the Mr. Gas station at Falls Avenue and Blue Lakes Boulevard in Twin Falls, below. The two stations held a promotion Friday morning selling gas for $1.03 a gallon. In two hours Friday morning, about 3,000 gallons of fuel were sold at a 24 cents a gallon loss to Mr. Gas, said owner Jim Lynch. "We're sick of high prices," he said, adding that it was a fun way to "give something back" to the community. Above, Capt. Rex Jessup, an advisor to the Idaho Army National Guard, and Miller have a peaceful encounter at the gas pumps.

Baghdad expels envoys

The Associated Press

Iraq ordered the expulsion of dozens of U.S., European and Arab diplomats, and Baghdad declared Friday it was on a "march to victory" and would never retreat from Kuwait.

The United States, Spain and Egypt immediately retaliated in kind for Iraq's expulsions, which included three American envoys.

Traders took heed of Iraq's bellicose statements, and oil prices soared above $35 per barrel Friday on the futures market, posting an all-time high for that market, which began trading in 1983. Oil traded higher on the cash market — $40 a barrel in 1980.

Europe criticizing Iraq's Saddam Hussein for inflaming tensions and weighed new ways to seal leaks in the embargo against Baghdad.

At the United Nations, diplomats were crafting a broad new Security Council resolution that would impose an oil embargo against Iraq. No date was set for a vote.

As the Iraqi occupation of Kuwait entered its eighth week, the chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee warned that the situation in the Persian Gulf was "extremely dangerous."

"We see no signs at this point that Saddam Hussein is opening himself up to any kind of diplomatic solution," said Sen. David Boren, D-Okla. "In fact, if anything has happened over the last few days and the last several hours, it is that he seems to be hardening his position."

President Bush told reporters he still hoped for a peaceful settlement but said support for the deployment of U.S. troops to the gulf remains strong.

The United States stands united, he said after meeting with congressional leaders.

Utahn discovers Nevada power plant offspring

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Utah Rep. Wayne Owens, having triumphed in his battle against northeastern Nevada's proposed Thousand Springs power plant, says he's discovered what may be a back door effort to introduce the facility.

Owens, D-Utah, said the proposal was attached to a land exchange bill important to Utah utilities, meaning the power plant plan couldn't be killed without sterilizing the land swap, too.

So, Owens has added an amendment mandating that so-called "Son of Thousand Springs" plant cannot be built if it would significantly harm air quality in Utah.

Owens' aide Scott Kearin said the congressman discovered that the bill would give government land in eastern Nevada — just 60 miles south of the Thousand Springs site — to the city of Los Angeles for a future coal-burning power plant.

Owens and other Utah and Idaho politicians fought off the Thousand Springs plant on public land, charging it would give power to California, rob to Nevada and pollution to Utah and Idaho. Investors dropped their support of that plant last month.

Kearin said the new bill at first glance "appeared to be a fairly innocuous land exchange. Los Angeles would give the government prime land in the Santa Monica mountains for a large U.S. Bureau of Land Management parcel in eastern Nevada — for a coal-fired power plant."

"They said they don't know when the plant would be built — maybe 15 to 20 years from

U.S. pupils give schools high marks

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — In a survey that challenges widely held stereotypes, U.S. students rate their schools higher and take more business, computer and economics classes than Japanese youngsters do.

The Junior Achievement-Gallup International Youth Survey of 750 American and 790 Japanese junior and senior high school students released Friday found:

• 56 percent of U.S. students say they have a "great deal" or "quite a lot" of confidence in public schools, compared with 44 percent of Japanese;

• More U.S. students than Japanese students claim they are "very interested" in studying math, arts and music, science, and business. Japanese interest exceeds that of Americans only in social studies and history — 36 percent to 33 percent, and foreign language study — 43 percent to 31 percent;

• Nine out of 10 American students think their high schools do a good job teaching math and English, while only 70 percent of Japanese feel their schools teach math well and 63 percent believe schools teach Japanese well;

• U.S. students are three times more likely to complete business or economics courses than Japanese students are; 54 percent of U.S. students say they've taken such courses and 29 percent say they plan to. Among Japanese, 13 percent say they've taken such classes and 20 percent say they plan to;

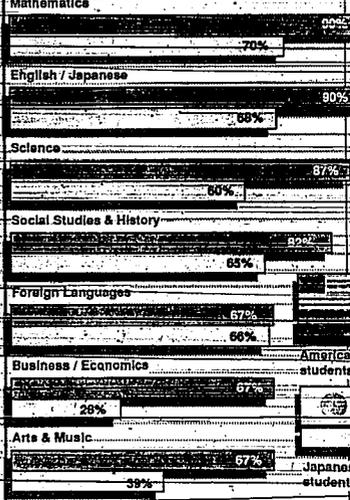

• 41 percent of American youngsters polled have studied computer science and 23 percent say they plan to, while 12 percent of Japanese have studied computers and 18 percent say they plan to.

"Working with computers does not play much of a role in the Japanese school,"

Weather summary

Summer will depart from the Magic Valley beneath generally fair skies and temperatures in the 80s. Autumn arrives tonight with the vernal equinox at 12:55 a.m. making Sunday the first day of fall.

On Friday, skies were clear across the Magic Valley and over much of Idaho as well. There were few clouds or showers reported, and winds were generally light and from the west to north.

Temperatures were slightly warmer than on Thursday and warmer conditions are forecast through the weekend.

Elsewhere in the nation Friday, the highest temperature was 103 degrees at Red Bluff, Calif. The lowest was 23 at Stanley, which was also the coldest reading in Idaho.

Rain drenches Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas

The Associated Press

A slow-moving cold front set off a deluge of heavy rain and thunderstorms in Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas early Friday.

Some State Fair of Oklahoma workers and residents of an Oklahoma City homeless shelter were evacuated as waters lapped at their buildings.

As much as 7 inches of rain fell in some areas of central Oklahoma overnight. By morning, 6 feet of water covered the first floor of the Ark Family Shelter, located on a flood plain by Crutch Creek, said executive director Paul Pearson.

Water was tapping at the bottom of trailers when Oklahoma City authorities evacuated 300 fair workers. The mobile homes and recreational vehicles are used to house carnival workers and concessionaires and were parked in a low-lying area, said Don Holtz, fair president and general manager.

Thunderstorms crept over north-central Texas drenching parts of Young County with up to 4 inches of rain Friday morning. The town of Graham was soaked with a 6-inch rain as 27 degrees at West Yellowstone, Mont.

Heavy thunderstorms in northwestern Arkansas caused street flooding around Spiro and Alma on Friday morning. Street flooding was also reported around Fort Smith, with water seeping into some parts of the city.

Showers and thunderstorms extended from southwestern Texas to Arkansas Friday afternoon.

Showers and a few thunderstorms were scattered along a warm front from western Tennessee to eastern Wisconsin and southern Michigan. And a few showers and storms were scattered over the Texas Coast and the Florida peninsula.

There were also scattered showers from Alabama to North Carolina, and a light rain and drizzle fell over eastern New Mexico and northwest Texas. A few showers were also over central California.

Bulk northerly winds ushered cool Arctic air into the central part of the nation from Oklahoma to the upper Mississippi Valley. Readings were only in the 50s in the central Plains this afternoon, and in the upper 40s and 50s across much of the area from North Dakota to Michigan.

Low temperature for the Lower 48 states Friday morning was 27 degrees at West Yellowstone, Mont.

FDIC sues Neil Bush, others Bush asks for cut in logging

WASHINGTON — Federal regulators filed a $700 million suit against President Bush's son Neil and other officers of the failed Silverado Banking, Savings and Loan Association on Friday, accusing them of "gross negligence" contributing to the institution's collapse.

The civil suit, filed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. in U.S. District Court in Denver, said the defendants "repeatedly breached their duties" to the Denver-based institution and the conduct of its senior management.

WASHINGTON — A White House task force, backed by President Bush, asked Congress Friday to cut timber harvest levels by 20 percent to save the northern spotted owl from extinction.

The recommended harvest level is far less than what has been sought by the timber industry but far more than what environmentalists say is necessary to protect the endangered owl and the old-growth forest it inhabits.

"This is not a perfect answer because a permanent ban is not possible," the task force's co-chairman, Secretary Manuel Lujan Jr., and Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yetter, said in a joint statement.

"We have balanced the very sensitive competing interests in a rational way," Yetter added.

The task force's proposal would require timber jobs to be deposited.

Neil Bush and the other outside directors failed to properly monitor the affairs of Silverado and the conduct of its senior management.

Washington, D.C. — A task force of 12 European diplomats was summoned to the State Department and informed of the U.S. decision, she said.

The expulsions of the European diplomats — handed down by Baghdad Thursday night but disclosed Friday by Western officials — came after the 12 European countries decided Monday to expel Iraqi military attaches. Some European countries had ordered additional expulsions as well.

Iraq said it was expelling military attaches from 11 of the 12 EC nations — Portugal does not have a military attaché in Baghdad — along with a number of other embassy staff members. Iraq also rejected the movements of the remaining European envoys.

Friday was the Muslim Sabbath, and Baghdad had no official statement on the expulsions.

The total number of diplomats being sent home was not immediately clear, but Western officials said they believe each of the 11 European embassies has at least two or three staff members. France took the biggest hit — 11 expulsions.

Spain was one of four nations whose diplomatic premises in occupied Kuwait were violated last week by Iraqi troops. Canada, Belgium, and the Netherlands were the target of Iraqi incursions as well.

Iraq has offered foreign missions in the occupied emirate to shut down, but about 15 embassies, including the United States, are defying the demand.

Spain also announced the expulsions of several Iraqi diplomats.

European nations criticized the Iraqi moves. British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher called Baghdad's expulsions unjustified.

French Foreign Ministry spokesman Daniel Bernard said they represented a new escalation in the crisis.

On the other hand, just 8 percent of U.S. students say they've taken calculus, compared with 27 percent of Japanese youngsters.

The poll, conducted by telephone last February, drew from a nationally representative sample of youngsters from both countries. It aimed to measure student attitudes toward jmoncy, schools, businesses and other institutions. The margin of sampling error ranged from plus or minus two to four percentage points, depending on the number of respondents.

The survey shows U.S. students surprisingly optimistic about their schools — and more satisfied with their Japanese counterparts. The findings thus apparently place Americans' perceptions squarely at odds with the many complaints leveled at U.S. public education during the last decade.

But one such critic said the survey may merely indicate that American students are more deluded about their schools and their own achievement levels than are Japanese children.

Some claim bias in upcoming miniseries

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some Southerners say the Confederacy is about to get a new and undesired black eye from pro-Northern historians during a two-hour, one-hour public television miniseries, "The Civil War." The series, which begins the fall season for the Public Broadcasting Service on Sunday night, has received rave reviews. Syndicated columnist George Will wrote Thursday, "If better use had been made of television, I have not a doubt that the claims to have been fair and impartial, when it's a Unionist view and leaves out the Confederate view entirely," Lunsford said in a telephone interview from Atlanta, "I saw five episodes. Probably three-fourths was taken up describing Union camps, Union generals. It was primarily told as if you were on the other (North) side."

Lunsford, who says groups like his are "charged with defending the integrity of our ancestors," rejects the conclusion of the historians interviewed in the five-part series that slavery was a root cause of the bloody North-South conflict.

"We consider it to be a myth that it was a crusade to free an enslaved people," Lunsford said. "This myth has been perpetuated for many years. It seeks to justify the unconstitutional and illegal action against the Confederate states."

Offering a more moderate, but no less determined view, is John A. Black, president of an Atlanta marketing and production company. While saying the series is well written and well documented, Black said it presents its facts selectively.

"It was a very fine piece of propaganda," he said.

PBS spokeswoman Mary Jane McKinnon said the series will be offered to schools and libraries along with reading materials and teaching aids, for $350 through PBS Home Video. After Oct. 31, the price will be $450.

Time-Life Video will sell a home video version at $14.95 for the first episode and $24.95 for each of the eight additional episodes. McKinnon said.

She said the series used 24 expert consultants to assure accuracy and fairness, including the late novelist Robert Penn Warren and retired Yale historian G. Vann Woodward.

"From our standpoint, the scholarship is impeccable," McKinnon said.

Southern writer Shelby Foote, the author of a three-volume history of the Civil War, is the series' on-camera guide. In an interview Friday at his Memphis home, he denied the series had a Northern bias.

Foreign money leaving the U.S.; Bush seeks lower interest rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — The faltering U.S. economy, already beset by skyrocketing energy prices from the Persian Gulf crisis, faces a new threat: Rising world interest rates are draining away the foreign money America depends on to finance its budget deficit and other borrowing needs.

The development has added greatly to the headaches of U.S. policymakers. With a recession looming, the Bush administration has been pressuring the Federal Reserve to lower interest rates to avert a downturn.

But the Fed has resisted. Many private economists believe the central bank is afraid a cut in U.S. interest rates would send even more foreigners rushing to withdraw their investments from the United States, a move which could weaken the dollar and worsen inflation prospects.

The shortage of capital and rising world interest rates are expected to be a primary topic when finance officials of the world's seven richest industrial countries gather today for a review of the problems facing the world economy in the wake of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady and Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan will hold a day-long discussion behind closed doors with their counterparts from Japan, West Germany, Britain, France, Italy and Canada.

The finance officials will be trying to develop a coordinated response in an effort to cushion the global economy from the oil shock and the rising inflationary pressures accompanying it.

Private economists said Friday in advance of the meetings that they exposed Brady and his colleagues at the least will try to sign a communique seeking to reassure financial markets of their commitment to more closely coordinate their economic policies. But economists said more assurances may not be enough.

"There is a real danger that interest rates will continue rising to a level that will push the entire world economy into a recession," said David J. Jones, an economist at Ansbrey G. Langston & Co.

The rise in world interest rates began earlier this year with fears in financial markets that the huge financing needs in Eastern Europe would drive up prices.

The increase in interest rates accelerated after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait as foreign central banks tried to dampen borrowing demands to head off an inflationary spiral triggered by rising oil prices.

Bond plea rejected

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Superior Court judge Friday rejected appeals to reduce Charles H. Keating's $5 million bail and sent him back to county jail to await arraignment on a 42-count state grand jury indictment.

Judge Gary Klausner reduced the $1-million bail set for each of three co-defendants but rejected arguments that Keating was not a flight risk.

Keating is the central figure in the collapse of Lincoln Savings & Loan.

Legal group comes out against Souter

WASHINGTON (AP) — A liberal legal affairs group on Friday called for the Senate to reject the nomination of David Souter to the Supreme Court.

The Alliance for Justice, a coalition representing a variety of interest groups including several feminist organizations, said Souter in Senate testimony raised "troubling questions about his judicial philosophy."

The alliance is convinced that Judge Souter will not protect the rights of those suffering discrimination on the basis of race, gender, ethnicity, religion, sexual orientation or literacy," the group said in a statement.

In three days of testimony, Souter carefully avoided controversial issues. For example, he refused to answer questions related to whether he would overturn the 1973 Supreme Court ruling in Roe vs. Wade which legalized abortion.

"He spoke volumes, but said little," the group said.

Nan Aron, director of the alliance, figured prominently in the successful effort by liberal groups to defeat the 1987 nomination of Robert Bork to the high court.

Souter is not expected to suffer the same fate. So far, no one in the Senate has come out against his nomination.

Saddam's tape en route; U.S. media to review

WASHINGTON (AP) — A courier was on his way with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's message for America's TV audience, U.S. officials said Friday.

President Bush told the tape would run 90 minutes, dismissed it with the comment, "No one could stay awake through that."

The networks said they wanted to see the tape saying how much

State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said Iraqi Ambassador Mohamed al-Mashat informed U.S. officials early Friday that the courier was in Amman, Jordan, where he would ask for a visa to enter the United States.

"We will obviously facilitate this person's visa," she said.

U.S. officials renewed their promise not to try to hinder showing of the videotape. But Bush said Saddam must understand that "under our system... the government can't mandate television time for him."

Iraq has insisted on giving the tape to the U.S. government, rather than to the news media. All media in Iraq are state-run.

Steve Friedman, executive producer of NBC Nightly News, said, "We have no intention of putting it on without seeing it." He said he couldn't speak for the rest of the network, but "I don't think there's a chance in the world that the 60 or 90 minutes would be run."

Search for weapon in murders widens

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Investigators searched Friday in a wooded area of Daytona Beach where a tipster said they may find evidence in the slayings of five Gainesville college students.

"We just got some information that there may be some articles connected to this case in this area," Gainesville Police Chief Wayland Clifton said.

While he refused to say what police are looking for, other sources told the Daytona Beach News-Journal that the investigators are looking for a knife or knives used in the slaying deaths.

Workers dismantle the scaffolding used during the renovation of the Brandenburg Gate in W. Berlin.

East Germans go rummaging through bargain basement of secret police HQ

EAST BERLIN (AP) — Roland Walter eyed a nifty short-wave radio as he stood in line at a strange, cluttered counter.

"Radios are a hobby of mine and I've been looking for one of these," said Walter. He is one of hundreds of people who occasionally visit the dimly lit halls of the secret police headquarters — to do a little shopping.

The East Berlin student wants to rid his country of the remnants of the secret police force known as the Stasi, but a rummage sale of Stasi goods offers bargains too good to pass up.

Since April, the democratic government has been selling items collected from the labyrinthine complex, that once was Stasi headquarters. Hundreds of tape recorders, television amplifiers, windbreakers, athletic caps, Communist flags and even soup bowls, tennis shoes, and record albums — somebody liked military marches — fill dozens of tables in a cavernous room at the head-quarters.

Wolfgang Haubold, who works for a committee set up to oversee the dissolution of the Stasi, said only $6,333 to $7,595 worth of goods have been sold. Old tape recorders sell for as little as $3.15.

The famed Stasi surveillance equipment isn't included, although electronic goods that could have been used for such purposes — microphones, amplifiers, relay switches and a variety of tape recorders — fill many tables.

Most of the sale items are odds and ends gathered from the hundreds of offices in the Stasi complex.

The Stasi also reportedly controlled billions of dollars in property, buildings, cars and other goods. Much of what happens to that material will be decided by a united German government after the two nations merge Oct. 3, but some Stasi buildings already are being rented.

Jacqueline Buss, 24, was part of the exodus of refugees who fled East Germany last year in the dying days of the Communist government, settling in Heemsen, West Germany. She was back this week to visit family and to pick up a leather purse — a Stasi purse — for a scant 10 marks, or $6.30.

"I came because I was curious," she said. "This is the last place anyone wanted to be before last year."

Walter bought his short-wave radio for $95. He said that under the Communist regime, it sold new for the equivalent of $6,333.

Walter, ironically, is one of a small group of activists camped outside the other side of the main Stasi building, demanding access to the secret dossiers the Stasi kept on millions of people. He said he shipped over to the other side of the giant building to do some bargain hunting.

Negotiators fail to confirm fate of U.S. bases

Los Angeles Times

MANILA, Philippines — The huge U.S. air and naval bases in the Philippines were not to be confirmed as negotiators concluded four days of often tense talks with no apparent agreement except to meet again.

U.S. and Philippine spokesmen could not even agree on the status of a Philippine proposal to take over three key Pentagon communications facilities and a military rest and recreation center complete with mountain-side villas and an 18-hole golf course.

At a press conference, Philippine spokesman Rafael Alunan III insisted that the Americans had agreed to cede control of the four installations Sept. 17, 1991, a day after an agreement governing the bases expires.

"They will revert to Philippine control," Alunan said. "They will be 100 percent Philippine."

U.S. spokesman Stanley Schragr said that there was no such agreement.

"It's a proposal," he said. "To the best of my knowledge no decision has been made."

The facilities are little-known, but they play a key role in Pentagon and U.S. Navy master fleet communications and relay station at San Miguel, about 60 miles north of Manila, the Air Force communications and electronic warfare system at nearby Camp O'Donnell, and an air defense, command, control, and reserved communications circuits facility at Wallace Air Station, about 145 miles north of Manila.

Thousands homeless as storm hits Vietnam

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Tropical Storm Edo tore through central Vietnam with torrential rains this week, killing 10 people and leaving thousands homeless, the official Vietnam News Agency said Friday.

The report said nine people were missing after the storm hit the provinces of Quang Nam-Da-Nang, Quang Tri, Thua Thien-Hue and Quang Nam.

The rain damaged tens of thousands of acres of crops and destroyed or badly damaged more than 100,000 houses, said the report, which was seen in Bangkok.

A report Thursday said the storm hit the provinces Tuesday and Wednesday. Wind speeds reached 23 mph.

Air embargo could tighten screws

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — An air blockade of Iraq would be difficult to enforce fully without cooperation from Arab neighbors who may already be allowing food and other supplies into Iraq, officials and aviation experts say.

But there is a little chance Iraq could manage to get in enough cargo to ease shortages, according to the experts.

"An effective air embargo is certainly possible," said Douglas Kerr of the International Institute for Strategic Studies.

The bottom line is that it's simply not physically possible to supply a nation of 16 million by air in these conditions," he said.

An air blockade is expected to be passed by the U.N. Security Council next week. It would permit air forces to intercept civilian aircraft suspected of violating anti-Iraq sanctions and order them to land for inspection.

Western officials believe that despite sanctions imposed Aug. 6, some supplies are reaching Iraq from Libya, Sudan, Yemen and possibly Jordan. Iraqi President Saddam Hussein also has nearly 100 military and civilian transport planes at his disposal. But the big question is how much the air lift and for how long.

Kerr and other aviation analysts say an air embargo will only be effective if Iraq's neighbors agree to close their airspace for flights in and out of Iraq, and aviation authorities around the world enforce rigid inspection of any aircraft suspected of carrying cargo for Iraq.

Syria, Iraq's arch-enemy in the Arab world, said it would not do anything to help Iraq. But Western officials believe Jordan and Iran, while both have said they will abide by the U.N. sanctions, are seen as being equivocal.

The experts say Jordan and Iran could probably refuse to allow planes flying to or from Iraq to land on their territory. But preventing overflights from other countries is a different matter.

"Anyone can physically break the embargo if they've a mind to," Kerr noted. "Offer pilots enough money and you're off-and-running. But they run the risk of losing their licenses and they never would be able to work again."

Gorbachev scolds lawmakers for delay

MOSCOW (AP) — President Mikhail S. Gorbachev scolded the national legislature Friday for dragging its feet on an economic rescue plan, and he asked lawmakers to give him sweeping new emergency powers to stabilize the ailing economy.

Despite the appeal, the Supreme Soviet failed to vote either on the plan or on the new powers Gorbachev requested. It was unable to muster a quorum and adjourned until Monday.

Pouring this pain on a wooden lectern, Gorbachev expressed exasperation with people "who think we have lots of time and we can still talk, think, try and experiment" before adopting a plan to move toward a "market economy."

"We don't have that time," the 59-year-old Soviet leader said.

The list of shortages Soviets cope with daily is growing, and officials speak of a breakdown of the country's production and distribution system, soaring budget deficit and inflation.

Gorbachev took the floor three times Friday to urge legislators to act following a week of tumultuous debate over three proposals for converting to a market economy: economist Stanislav Shatalin's radical plan to establish a free market in 300 days; Prime Minister Nikolai Rykov's conservative plan to retain government control over most of the economy; and Gorbachev's compromise plan to break up some government monopolies and encourage free enterprise to grow at a moderate pace.

Legislative committees endorsed Gorbachev's compromise and recommended in a resolution Friday that the full Supreme Soviet accept it. The committees said the legislature should add provisions from Rykov's plan on unemployment and price increases, as well as on agricultural reform. The resolution would ask Shatalin and other economists to work with legislative committees and present a finished version by Oct. 1.

Rykov, facing a chorus of calls for his resignation, offered a compromise of his own. He suggested the Supreme Soviet refer all three plans to a committee for more work and unification into a single, detailed blueprint. Economists and politicians have been unsuccessful in merging the plans previously because they differ so radically.

Historic Bellevue bar, cafe destroyed by fire

BELLEVUE—A local landmark burned Thursday night and Friday morning. The Silver Dollar Bar & Cafe on South Main was "an age-old establishment in this town," said Bellevue City Marshal Dean Biggs. "It's one of our wildest bars. We only have two."

The bar was closed and no one was there when the fire started, Biggs said. The exact cause is still under investigation, but Biggs said it may have been started by a smoldering cigarette butt.

The Bellevue City Volunteer Fire Department and the Wood River Rural Fire Department fought the blaze from about 9:30 p.m. Thursday to 1 a.m. Friday, Biggs said. They returned at about 6:20 a.m. and stayed until noon Friday because the fire flared up, he said.

The first fire only damaged part of the interior, but the second blaze destroyed the building, he said.

The property is owned by Greg Roos, Biggs said, and is leased to Rick Stillwell, who runs the bar.

Vandalism to war memorial hurts feelings, city pocketbook

JEROME—Vandalism to a veterans war memorial in South Park will cost the city and has angered at least one resident. "I really hate to see that happen," said Jerome Police Chief George Silver III. "Those men gave their lives. I have a rough time when you deal with someone defacing that. They have no more to give."

Three weeks ago, somebody unscrewed one of two flood-light fixtures that illuminate a concrete structure decorated with bronze plaques. The names of Jerome residents who have died in war are listed on the plaques, Silver said. Last weekend, somebody kicked in one of the light fixtures, and it will cost $150 to repair, Silver said.

He asks that the culprit or culprits stop. "The citizens of Jerome would be eternally grateful," he said.

Voter registration scheduled this morning at McDonald's

TWIN FALLS—You can register to vote faster than you can eat an Egg McMuffin today at the Twin Falls McDonald's restaurant, where volunteer registrars will be available from 8 a.m. until noon.

Those who can't register today will have two more chances. The League of Women Voters plans to offer registration at McDonald's from 4 to 6 p.m. Oct. 19 and from 8 a.m. until noon on Oct. 20.

"The last day to register at the county clerk's office to vote in the upcoming general election is Oct. 20."

County Commission hopeful to hold fund-raising dinner

TWIN FALLS—Twin Falls County Commission candidate Don McMurrian will hold a fund-raising dinner Sunday at a fish hatchery east of Buhl.

"I've called in all my favors," McMurrian said.

The dinner expects 150 to 200 people to attend the $6-a-plate dinner featuring fish or trout.

"My supporters can't afford $100 a plate," he said.

State Auditor J.D. Williams will be the featured speaker and there will be live entertainment.

"To get to the hatchery, turn north at George's Corner about three miles on the Buhl. Follow the road one mile north and one-quarter mile east, McMurrian said. A sign shows the way to the hatchery.

Dinner is at 5 p.m.

Candlelight vigil organized for children across the world

TWIN FALLS—A candlelight vigil for the children of the world will take place at sunset Sunday at Twin Falls City Park.

Ulahwi of Twin Falls, who is coordinating the event, said vigils will be held in 2,618 other locations in 80 nations this weekend.

According to vigil organizers, 4 million children worldwide, including 10,000 in the United States, die each year of malnutrition, lack of vaccinations, child abuse and other preventable causes.

The vigil is being held to "shine a light on the children and their problems," Ulahwi said. "Any child, any senior, any person who cares about children please come join us in the park."

Participants are asked to bring candles if they have them. Anyone who would like more information can call 734-5955.

This weekend's vigils are a prelude to the World Summit for Children planned next weekend at the United Nations headquarters in New York. There, 76 world leaders—possibly including President Bush—will gather to discuss ratification of a convention on children's rights.

Jerome sets bond election for $4.9 million

By H.R. Weixel
Times-News correspondent

JEROME—Local folk will vote on a $4.9 million bond issue Oct. 30 that would pay for a new elementary school and other proposed expansion projects if approved.

The School Board voted unanimously at a special meeting Thursday to place the $4,880,000 measure on the ballot.

In addition to a new elementary school to be built on 23 acres of school property north of Forsyth Park—the bond will fund a vocational-agriculture building at the high school and pay for a remodel of the junior high building being used for high school vo-ag classes.

Voters rejected a similar $3.4 million bond issue in March. The spring proposal included only a new elementary school, however. The measure was defeated 871 to 796. School districts need two-thirds of the voters' approval in order to pass bond issues.

Polls will be located at the building formerly occupied by Wild West Video in the Lincoln Plaza and at the Billy Emerson residence 3/4 miles west of Jerome on West Road. In prior years, voters cast their ballots at the junior high school, but to provide more parking and handicap access to the polls, the location has been changed to Lincoln Plaza.

The 62,400-square-foot elementary school will have 28 classrooms, music, computer and special education rooms; a 260-seat dining area; a physical education and multi-purpose area with a stage; a library; and faculty work rooms and offices.

Business people, teachers, principals, school officials and parents assisted in determining the floor plan for the elementary school, according to School Board member Robert Bingham.

The new elementary school will cost an estimated $4,053,000, which includes $250,000 for site work, $221,000 for architectural and engineering fees and $50,000 for furnishings.

The 6,660-square-foot vocational-agriculture building will have two floors and cost an estimated $324,800. Alterations at the junior high building will add five ad-

Back taxes may cost Twin Falls woman her home

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—When Sandy Tegan borrowed some money from relatives eight years ago, she never dreamed it might cost her a home.

The Internal Revenue Service seized Tegan's house last month to cover an unpaid tax balance of more than $30,000.

"It's home means nothing to anyone else," said Tegan. "I don't want people to feel sorry for me. I'm going to fight for it."

She raised four children in her home, a five-bedroom brick house at 144 Wiseman. Tegan and her husband bought the home in 1969, but soon divorced, leaving Sandy to raise the children and make the house payments.

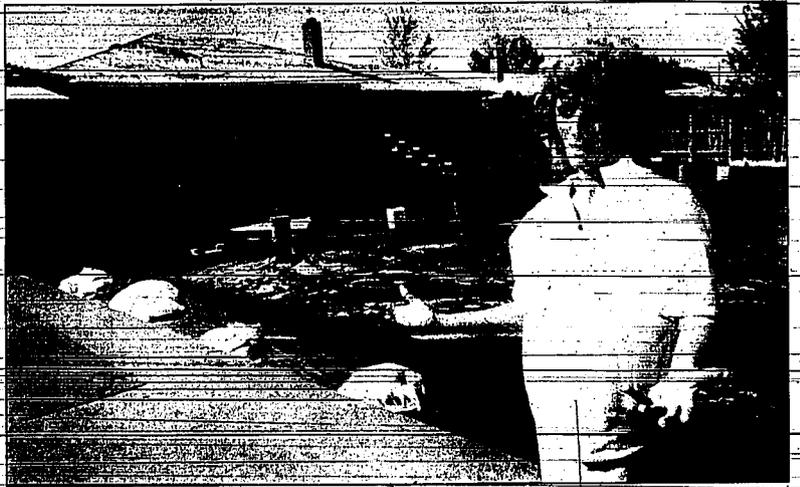

Although two of her children are married and the youngest is in Moscow attending the University of Idaho, the bedrooms look like the kids never left.

"I don't touch the rooms," she said as she straightened the covers on one of the beds. Motorcycle racing trophies still line the shelves in Rick's old room. He's 27 years old, married and living in Missouri now. Photos and posters and stuffed animals still decorate the rooms of Tegan's three daughters, but only Michele, 23 and recently graduated from Boise State University, still lives here.

"There are a lot of ghosts, a lot of memories here," Tegan said, fears welling up as she remembered countless nights when she came home to find her house being used for impromptu slumber parties or as a haven for youngsters having problems at home.

"I never refused a child from sleeping here," Tegan said. "Sometimes I didn't know where I was going to sleep."

Since moving here, Tegan has become an "I don't touch the rooms" mother. She worked for the Twin Falls School District as both a full-time and substitute teacher, usually while moonlighting as a cocktail waitress. For the past 20 years, she has also taught many local youngsters and adults how to swim in her backyard pool.

Now she works at Honker's Place, a Twin Falls bar, and the Third Dimension hair salon, although she is hindered by a back injury suffered two years ago.

"I'm unable to pay the $30,070.99 she owes the IRS, she will have to sell her home and pool or the government will do it for her.

On a financial statement provided to the IRS in December, Tegan lists the value of her home at $52,000. She currently has an outstanding mortgage of $37,000 on the house.

Once the IRS has exhausted all other collection options, the house can be sold at public auction, said Laurel Morgan, an IRS spokeswoman.

No sale date has been set for the home. Home seizures are "fairly common,"

Morgan said. Taxpayers are encouraged to sell their own homes because they are likely to get a higher price than would the government at auction, she said.

Tegan's unpaid taxes stem from a tax audit for the years 1982-83, which revealed some unidentified deposits. As a result, Tegan's taxable income was increased by more than $29,000 for the two years.

Minidoka School Board rules against busing request

By Stacey Kindig
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT—The school district is following state guidelines for busing in Heyburn, the Minidoka School Board has ruled.

Earlier in the week, the board heard a request from Heyburn parent Amber Uscola to allow her two older children to ride the bus to Heyburn Elementary School.

"We told the board that might their residence was outside the boundaries that determine which children must walk to school. She asked the board to let her children ride the bus to school this year.

She said her children rode the bus last year, but said the route was canceled one week into school this year.

Board members clarified policy language Wednesday night and agreed the district is following state guidelines with buses picking up students east of the Burley-Rupert Highway and North of Aldres Road in Heyburn.

Oliver LaRoque of the district bus garage said the farthest a student is required to walk to Heyburn Elementary School is about 7 1/2 blocks.

The board also approved several other bus route changes and added a second route for handicapped students.

The board did not address the overcrowding issue at Wednesday's meeting. Officials are debating whether to purchase one or several 912-square-foot portable classrooms to relieve overcrowding.

Officials are checking with nearby churches for classroom space before a decision is made.

County hopes to please with livestock ordinance

By H.R. Weixel
Times-News correspondent

JEROME—County officials say they hope their newest ordinance regulating livestock operations will meet the approval of affected dairy, resator and other operators as well as their nearby neighbors.

A public hearing will be held on the revised ordinance at 8:30 p.m. Monday at the courthouse.

All interested persons will have an opportunity to be heard, but anyone who wants to speak at the hearing must register at the county clerk's office prior to the meeting. Glenn Elwell, zoning com-

Hearing on ordinance

The county will hold a public hearing on the revised livestock operation ordinance at 8:30 p.m. Monday at the courthouse.

The Planning and Zoning Commission has been working on the ordinance for more than two years.

The revised ordinance does not address lights, odors, noise or sprinkling water or waste on roads because livestock operators aren't the only people guilty of mishaps with those categories, Elwell said.

The proposed ordinance applies to cattle, swine, sheep, poultry, goat and farrowing animal operations that stable or confine animals 45 days or more in any 12-month period.

Under the provisions:

- New operators must apply for a permit.
- New operations are allowed only in areas zoned agricultural, light industrial, heavy industrial or in outlying zones.
- All operations must be at least 40 feet away from a public road.
- Animals confinement areas, liquid waste treatment lagoons, liquid and/or solid waste storage and feed storage areas must meet a 300-foot setback requirement and must be at least 1,000 feet from any residence not related to the operation.

• Liquid waste treatment lagoons must be at least 300 feet away from any of the operation's property lines.

• Animal waste products cannot leave the property of the operator, unless the operator has prior approval and an agreement with another person allowing dispersal of the waste products dispersed on his property.

• Operators must comply with all health department guidelines.

Twin Falls offers revised plan for agricultural zones

By Phil Sahn
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—When an Illinois farmer was charged last spring with disturbing the peace for operating his tractor at 10:30 at night, people as far away as Twin Falls shuddered at the news.

The people who filed the charges dropped them when they learned the noise came from a farm—they had thought construction workers caused the din. But the incident pointed to the inevitable conflicts that arise when cities encroach upon farms.

"We don't want something like that happening here," said Helen Phipps of the Twin Falls County Zoning Department.

Phipps knows of no farmers charged with disturbing the peace for running tractors outside Twin Falls, but the county gets a number of complaints about noise, flies and odors coming from dairy farms, she said. That is a big reason why the county in 1988 drafted an ordi-

County seeks public opinion

Twin Falls County will hold a public meeting on the proposed dairy ordinance Wednesday, 7:30 p.m. in Rooms 117 and 118 of the Shields Building on the campus of the College of Southern Idaho.

The proposal to regulate dairy operations in and near the city. An ad-hoc committee of dairymen wrote a rough draft of the ordinance. The Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission reworked it and the first public hearing was held in February 1989. Dairy owners objected, saying the ordinance would put them out of business.

The proposal has been revised twice and the county will present its latest version on Wednesday at a public hearing at the College of Southern Idaho.

The biggest change in the latest proposal, Phipps said, is the stipulation that county planners will discourage people from building single-family homes in agricultural zones. Those who do would waive their right to complain about flies, noise, odors and other nuisances from adjacent farms.

The ordinance addresses environmental and health impacts of livestock confinement operations and the proximity of these operations to the city and its impact zone. The impact zone is the area surrounding the city, which, under Idaho law, is partially controlled by city laws.

Livestock confinement operations are defined in the ordinance as having more than 20 acres and 100 animal units per acre.

Animals are weighted by their potential effect on the environment. A dairy heifer or slaughter cow is one unit. A dairy cow is 1.4 units. A sheep or lamb is one-fifth of a unit.

Twilegar quiet on campaign tactics

BOISE (AP) — Democrat Ron Twilegar, just six weeks away from an election in which he hopes to win a seat in the U.S. Senate, isn't giving away much about his strategy in the final phase of the campaign.

Twilegar, former state legislator and Boise City Council member, said he was happy with the publicity generated by a recent flap over commercials centered on Craig's voting record in Congress this year.

Twilegar said he has no need for distortions to win voter support. "I don't have to distort Larry Craig's record to win. I just have to state the facts," he said.

Mideast protest evolves into debate

MOSCOW (AP) — What was slated as a protest of America's military presence in the Middle East turned into more of a debate over the government's policy as hecklers at times egged or outnumbered the protesters at the University of Idaho.

Protesters gathered in front of the administration building. Critics of the military deployment to Saudi Arabia in the wake of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait warned time and again that it was a precursor of another Vietnam.

Idaho's spuds make leap to morning TV

SHELLEY (AP) — Idaho and its most famous commodity, pitched by its chief executive, got another bit of national exposure with an appearance on ABC's "Good Morning America" to get the 62nd annual Idaho Spud Days celebration underway in eastern Idaho.

But as Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus, in the midst of a campaign for an unprecedented fourth term, touted the state's quality baked potatoes on Friday, several dozen anti-abortion advocates took the opportunity to blast "simmer" camera for voting what would have been the nation's most restrictive abortion bill.

Bush makes country star feel right at home

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music star Reba McEntire says she felt honored to spend 20 minutes with President Bush at the White House and get a tour of the living quarters from first lady Barbara Bush.

The Bushes, who are country music fans, invited McEntire to visit the White House in Washington Sept. 17 for radio and television appearances. At the time, Bush was working on his nationally televised speech about Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

"Considering all the president has on his mind, it was very gracious of them to take the time to make us feel right at home," McEntire said Thursday as she reflected on the visit.

McEntire was the Country Music Association's female vocalist of the year from 1984 through 1987. Her hit records include "Whispering in New England" and "Walk On."

22-year-old actor selling Highlands Ranch-house

DENVER (AP) — Actor Gary Coleman, famous for his part as the wise-cracking Arnold Jackson of the old sitcom "Diff'rent Strokes," is selling his Highlands Ranch house for $490,900, two years after he bought it.

No reason was given why Coleman has listed the home in the exclusive Falcon Hills neighborhood with Dave and Donna Evans, the same real estate agents who helped Coleman buy the house in 1988.

Coleman, 22, paid $470,000 for the 4,319-square-foot home.

In an interview last year, Coleman called the house his dream home, especially after he added 600 square feet to the basement to house his electric train set.

"I just love the house; there isn't one thing that I would change or move. They must have been thinking about me when they built this house," Coleman said at the time.

The home, styled after an English manor, features double-brick arches leading the way to the entrance, a curved stairwell and a kitchen with a hardwood floor.

reformed by tough love — himself. Dinkins described how, as a child, he stole reflectors from a license plate to decorate a "skate-scooter," which he described as a two-by-four and a soapbox, with skates on either end.

"He said a police officer who happened to be an African-American, caught me because I was the slowest and the smallest."

The officer told his mother and grandmother, who were "crushed that their nice little boy could do this terrible thing."

He said they did not usually spank him, but this time they took all the clothes off, stood me in the bathroom and beat me with straps.

"I have not stolen a reflector since," he said.

Teen actor faces new drug charges following booking

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Casey Feldman, awaiting trial on cocaine and heroin counts, faces new drug charges after police found what appeared to be heroin while booking him on traffic warrants.

Feldman, 19, who has appeared in such movies as "Stand-by Me" and whose voice was heard in the hit film, "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles," was released from jail Friday.

A bondsman posted $5,000 bail and paid $729 in outstanding traffic fines, police Sgt. James Riley said.

"He was arrested March 9 during a traffic stop after officers found 25 balloons in his car, each containing white powder that turned out to be cocaine and heroin, authorities said."

In April, Feldman pleaded innocent to two felony counts of possession of drugs for sale. He then announced he would enter a rehabilitation program and urged fans to resist drugs.

On Thursday afternoon, North Hollywood police investigated a report that someone was breaking into a car in front of the house where Feldman's wife lives and encountered Feldman, police said. Officers arrested Feldman when they discovered he was wanted on $729 worth of traffic warrants.

While booking Feldman at the police station, officers searched him and found two balloons that appeared to contain heroin, police said. He was booked for investigation of possession of a controlled substance.

Bush accepts honorary membership to golf club

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — President Bush has accepted an invitation to become an honorary member of Britain's Royal and Ancient Golf Club.

The 236-year-old club at St. Andrews in southeast Scotland made the announcement Thursday.

"Bush, who'll be the club's ninth honorary member, and his family have a long connection with golf. His grandfather, George Walker, a past president of the U.S. Golf Association, donated the Walker Cup, which American and British amateur players compete for every two years."

"The other honorary members of the Royal and Ancient are Prince Philip, husband of Queen Elizabeth II; the queen's cousin the Duke of Kent; and former British Open champions Kel Nagle, Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Gene Sarazen, Peter Thomson and Roberto de Vicenzo."

Son gets diploma, fulfills promise to dying mother

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Terry O'Kelley, the 22-year-old whose effort to keep his six brothers together became a made-for-TV movie, has fulfilled a promise he made to his dying mother, getting a high school equivalency diploma.

He graduated last weekend from the Gainesville State County Adult Learning Center.

"I've always pushed education on my brothers, so I thought it was time that I gave them an example," he said. "My mother always wanted me to go to school. I was only in high school one year, so I had a lot of catching up to do."

O'Kelley's attempt to keep his brothers together after their mother's death to his dying mother, getting attention and tied to the program aired in March, "A Son's Promise." In 1987, he gained legal custody of four of his six brothers.

Judge lifts stay, Mustang Ranch will remain closed

RENO, Nev. (AP) — A judge removed the federal government from the brothel business Friday by lifting a stay order that would have allowed a bankruptcy trustee to operate the infamous Mustang Ranch brothel.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge James Thompson lifted the stay in a brief hearing, opening the way for the Internal Revenue Service to foreclose on the brothel.

Bankruptcy trustee Jeri Coppa told Thompson that without the court's permission to operate this weekend, she would be unable to assume responsibility for the property. She asked that the IRS be allowed to foreclose.

Coppa had charged brothel operator Joe Conforte with operating between the September 18 deadline the government's intent to operate the 100-room brothel until a buyer can be found. The brothel is located 10 miles east of Reno in a county where prostitution is legal.

"Obviously, there is a lot of resistance to this to open," Coppa said. "I think it comes from the Confortes, directly or indirectly."

Store County officials on Wednesday told Coppa that Conforte's business license was not assumable.

Coppa said she was informed by the sheriff and Store County Commissioner Shirley Colletti that she would have to apply for a new license, a process which could take 90 days.

Federal authorities had wanted the brothel to be back in business by the weekend, Coppa said.

The Mustang Ranch shut down Tuesday after filing for bankruptcy liquidation. On Wednesday, court trustees were on the scene trying to get the business back in motion to pay off creditors.

Students give failed marks to field rations

BURLINGTON CITY, N.J. (AP) — Field rations for soldiers in Operation Desert Shield flunked a taste test by some youthful would-be gourmets.

Twenty-two third-graders at Saint Paul's School in Burlington City, 60 miles southwest of Newark, sampled meals eaten by U.S. troops deployed in the Persian Gulf.

Some were turned off when they had to squeeze the ready-to-eat entrees from brown plastic pouches. "Take your choice," 8-year-old Brandi Carnvale said after sampling beans in tomato sauce and cheese and crackers. "Everything's disgusting."

One student, Mikki Barclay, liked what he ate but wasn't sure what it was. "It's great — what is it, beef with gravy?" he said of an entree of dried peas, saltines and a brownie.

The tasting was part of an English project Monday that involved writing letters to soldiers stationed in Saudi Arabia.

Prank causes green-groom to see red

OSLO, Norway (AP) — The bride was in white, but the groom was seeing red.

Friends of a young Norwegian husband-to-be went too far in their attempt to make his bachelor party memorable. The six men in the south Norway town of Kristiansund staged the 25-year-old man, held him down and painted portions of his body green, the Oslo newspaper Verdens Gang said Friday.

The furious groom, retaliated by filing police charges against his ex-boys. The report did not specify the charges or name the men.

Mother gives birth to test-tube triplets

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Sirin Inassuriyong couldn't have a baby normally in eight years of marriage, but when she went the "test-tube" route she got triplets.

Mrs. Sirin, 33, and her husband Pongsak, a businessman, on Friday birth the three daughters — their three girls, named Mew, Min and Mot.

They were born Sept. 12 at Chulalongkorn Hospital by Caesarean section, six weeks premature but in good health.

Astrological Forecasts

IF SEPTEMBER 22 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY:
 You're dynamic, creative, generous, honest, from family tradition, could have been separated from the other parents at relatively early age. Taurus, Leo, Scorpio persons play important roles in your life. Many consider your personality explosive. You're a "strong" person, you're a "love cannon." In truth, you are perceptive, persistent, willing to learn, a student for a purpose or a challenge.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): What a Saturday night! Focus on affection, creativity, discovery, excitement that could accompany new love. Scenario leaves variety, adventure, speculation, family member says, "Count me in!" Affirmation: "I am a success."

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Define terms, separate facts from illusion. Focus on public relations, special appearance, deal affairs, marital status. Terms will be set, agreement reached that brings contentment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): This is your kind of day - you compete, you win, you also feel pangs of love. You'll be dealing with secrets, clandestine affairs, subtle clues. Taurus individual says, "It's time for final decision."

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Focus on communication, society, discovery, search of romance, former partners highlights secret messages, clandestine affairs, participation in group, old help project. Virgo focuses prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Major domestic adjustments, new love, new appearance of home, expenses, art, object or luxury item. Questions in mind, art, career, can be amicably settled. Taurus has your best interest at heart.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Focus on marriage, commitment, family. You're dealing with people in positions of authority. Hold fast to principles, reject plea for compromise. Message will become crystal clear.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Response received as result of recent communication with one overseas. Personal horizons broaden, include romance, style, travel, unique projects. Older individual, possibly Capricorn, offers vital support.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Intuition rings true, you'll help settle family dispute, somewhat money. What appeared defeat is merely delay. Former teacher, stands close ally. Check diet, nutrition. Aquarius is in picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Display versatility, humor, ability to overcome distance and language barriers. You'll be complimented on wardrobe, weight, general appearance. Money picture brighter than originally anticipated.

What's what?

Rapists normal?
 Those students of the mind evidently know little about what makes rapists tick. Most psychological examinations of such felons end up categorizing them as "normal."

An octopus can make itself transparent, almost.
 Some octopuses do this, who still make their own tomato soup pour the tomatoes into the milk, not the milk into the tomatoes. To avoid cutting, the acid ingredient should be poured into the non-acid, that's why. It's also why you're supposed to pour the coffee into the cream, not the cream into the coffee, but normally, you're supposed to mix them.

SKEWERED MEATS
 Every country has its own version of broiled meat chunks on skewers. Russia's shishkab, Greece's souvlaki, Italy's spiedini, France's brochettes, Turkey's shish-kabab. What's it called in Spain? Or doesn't Spain have one?

It's been estimated that North Americans shave off a million miles of whiskers a day.
 Ideal sleeping temperature, according to the experts, is 65 degrees F.

My birthday is tomorrow. This is birthday eve.

Bucs trim magic number down to 9 in NL East by beating Cards

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates' magic number is nine, but Barry Bonds says it's really 41. That's pitcher Zane Smith's number. Smith pitched a five-hitter to improve to 5-1 with Pittsburgh and Sid Bream broke a scoreless tie with a five-out double in the seventh inning, leading the division-leading Pirates past the St. Louis Cardinals, 4-0, Friday night.

The Pirates, trying for their first National League East title since 1979, increased their lead over slumping second-place New York to 3/2 and lowered their magic number to nine. The Mets' loss to Chicago 4-3 earlier Friday.

Bonds became the second 30-50 player in major-league history by stealing his 30th base as the Pirates won their third straight since ending a season-high six-game losing streak.

"Just look at the statistics, man. That shows you what he's meant to us," Bonds said. "He's been the biggest part of the club since we got him. We needed another left-hander to go with (John) Smiley and it's worked out great."

Red Sox 3, Yankees 0

NEW YORK (AP) — Dana Kluckner and LARRY ANDERSON combined on a three-hitter, Ellis Burks and Mike Greenwell homered and the Boston Red Sox won for just the third time in 14 games Friday night, beating the New York Yankees 3-0.

Kluckner (7-9), who had lost his last three starts with an 8-26 ERA, gave up two singles, struck out two and walked one in seven innings. He retired 10 straight batters before Anderson relieved to start the eighth and earned his first American League save. Loser Chuck Gary (5-11) gave up all three runs and seven hits in eight innings.

Indians 2, Blue Jays 1

TORONTO (AP) — Sandy Alomar's solo homer in the top of the Dykstra singled home Dave Hollis from first base with two outs in the 12th inning to beat the Expos, dropping them 29 games behind first place Pittsburgh.

With two down, Hollis drew a walk from reliever Bill Sampen (11-7) and Dykstra lined a 2-1 pitch over the glove of right fielder Marquis Grissom. Grissom appeared to get a bad jump on the ball.

Dykstra finished 2-for-6, including a homer, and is hitting .330.

Astros 4, Braves 3

ATLANTA (AP) — Mike Simms hit his first major-league homer with one out in the 10th inning, lifting Houston over Atlanta.

Simms' only other major-league RBI came in the 13th inning of Houston's 3-1 victory over Cincinnati on Sept. 12, when he broke a 1-1 tie with a single.

Kent Mercker (4-6), the Braves' sixth pitcher, gave up the game-winning homer. Juan Agosto (9-7), the Astros' fifth pitcher, got the last four outs for the victory.

Phillies 5, Expos 4

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia snapped Montreal's six-game winning streak when Lenny 13th inning gave the Cleveland Indians a 2-1 victory over Toronto on Friday night, dropping the Blue Jays back into a first-place tie in the American League East.

With 11 games remaining, the Blue Jays and Boston Red Sox have 32-69 records. However, Toronto has only two more home games.

Orioles 5, Brewers 3

BALTIMORE (AP) — Pete Harnisch allowed a run and four hits in seven-plus innings as Baltimore handed Ron Robinson his first loss since Aug. 1. Robinson (11-4) was bidding to tie the club record of eight straight victories. He gave up only four hits and three Baltimore runs were unearned.

Rangers 2, Twins 1

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Bobby Witt equaled his career best with a two-hitter and won for the 14th time in his last 15 decisions. Jack Daugherty drove in both Texas runs with singles in the fourth and sixth innings, the first off Kevin Tapan and the second off Juan Berengue (4-5).

Witt (17-9), who won 12 straight before losing Sept. 11, yielded two singles, including an RBI hit by Pedro Munoz in the second inning. He walked four and struck out eight

Angels 12, Royals 5

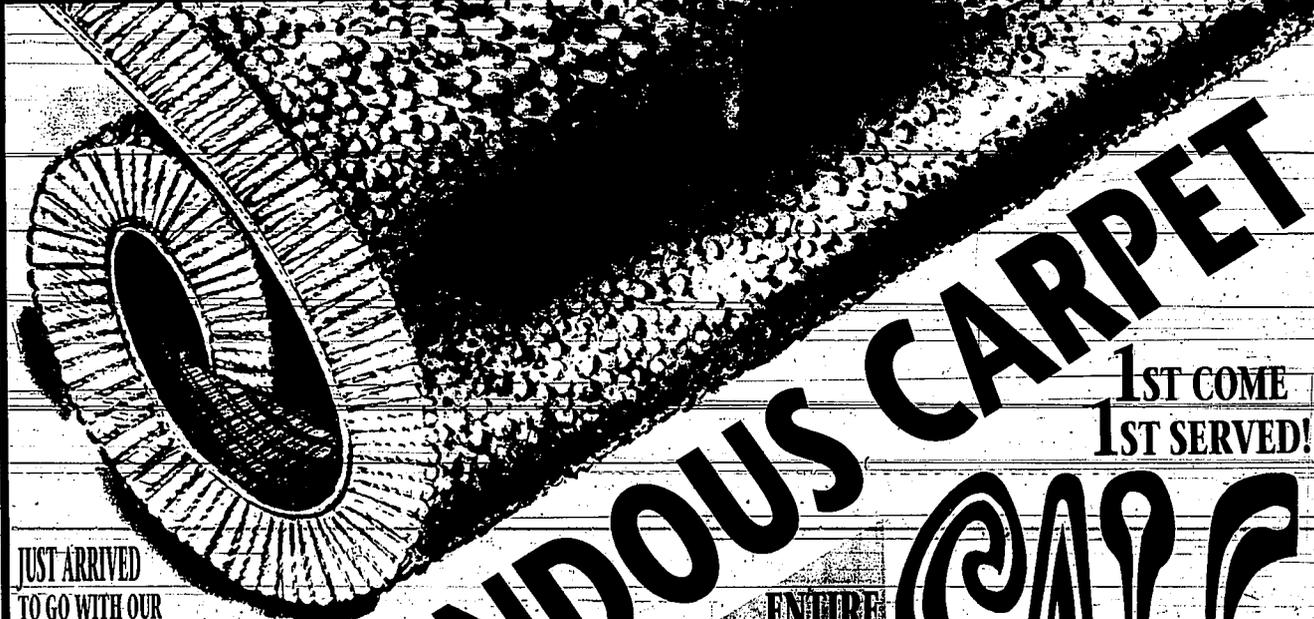

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Bret Saberhagen, pitching for the first time in more than two months following arthroscopic elbow surgery, gave up four runs and nine hits in five innings Friday night as the California Angels drubbed the Kansas City Royals 12-5. Saberhagen (5-8), the 1989 Cy Young winner who last pitched July 15, struck out four and didn't walk a batter. The right-hander underwent surgery July 23 to remove loose fragments in his elbow.

ISU presents school plan for Idaho Falls

LEWISTON (AP) — Offering what they called an alternative to a proposed community college, Idaho State University officials said they want to be the state's provider of general education and associate degree programs in the state. The plan was outlined for the state Board of Education at its Thursday meeting in Lewiston. It should supply an anchor for development of a more comprehensive Idaho Falls Higher Education Center, ISU Academic Vice President Michael Gallagher said.

...trying to put together a proposal that not only provides high quality services and is cost-effective, but it's also something I think the state of Idaho could be quite proud of. ... Chancellor told the board, "This is more than another community college in the state." ... The Board of Education took the proposal under advisement, but no final decision is expected until the interim committee issues its report and Idaho Falls voters decide the community college question next year. ... The Pocatello school's plan calls for programs beginning next fall to serve 500 full-time equivalent students in Idaho Falls, and an initial start-up instructional and support services. ... The academic classes would be designed to avoid any conflict with services already offered by Eastern Idaho Technical College. They would be offered at the existing University Place building and the planned $7.5 million Idaho State University-University of Idaho building. The proposal also allows for the later addition of a community sponsored cultural and performing arts facility in Freeman Park and an Idaho start-up instructional and laboratory-related graduate research facility. ... We suggest these four buildings would be, in time, a very fine higher education center for Idaho Falls," ISU President Richard Browne said. ... "I think it would demonstrate that the federal government, the state government, the city of Idaho Falls and the Board of Education could put together a fully functioning and working activity there."

Andrus off to capital on waste issue

BOISE — Gov. Cecil Andrus and three of his western colleagues head for the nation's capital on Tuesday to express their continuing concerns over the government's management of nuclear and hazardous wastes. ... The lobbying trip, which includes meetings at the White House, Environmental Protection Agency and Energy Department, comes as Senate committee considers legislation to reallocate federal facilities for siting sites of federal waste laws. ... Andrus will be part of a bipartisan delegation that includes Representative George Mickelson of South Dakota, Gov. Gary Carrey of New Mexico and Democrat Bob Miller of Nevada.

Andrus announces team for hazardous materials

POCATELLO (AP) — The first state hazardous material response team will be in Pocatello, operated by the Pocatello Fire Department, Gov. Cecil Andrus says. ... The team will be approved Andrus' request to create and fund several response teams in the northern, southwestern and southeastern areas of the state. ... Andrus announced Friday the state will purchase a vehicle, protective equipment and other tools needed to respond to chemical accidents. They will be turned over to the Pocatello Fire Department, which will be able to respond to hazardous spills. ... Exactly how the costs will be handled still is being negotiated, the governor said. ... We cannot expect a local fire department to foot the bill for the accidents or carelessness of a spiller of hazardous materials," Andrus said in a prepared statement. ... Pocatello is the site of the intersection of Interstate Highways 15 and 86 and has a large Union Pacific Railroad switching yard.

State funds for educational TV touted

LEWISTON — In a bid to bolster service to Idaho's public education system, the Board of Education has agreed to recommend state financing for producing public television programs for public schools. ... The $323,000 allocation, still subject to review by Gov. Cecil Andrus and approval by the Legislature, would augment the federal and private funds that have provided limited programming. ... The money is part of a $1.8 million budget request for the spending year that begins in July. That compares to just under $1.7 million allotted by the state for public television operations during this year.

Court: Tribunal on worker accidents should be informal

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Industrial Commission is designed as an informal tribunal, where the strict rules of legal procedure are relaxed a little, the Idaho Supreme Court says. ... The court in a 3-2 decision announced Friday rejected a claim filed by a former employee of a Glom Tech company, Inc. ... But the court said the Industrial Commission erred by refusing to let the woman, who represented herself, read her daughter's testimony from a medical treatise into the record. ... This treatise was relevant and its admission into evidence would have been consistent with the policy in Industrial Commission proceedings of simplicity, accommodation of claimants and justice," the court said. ... Since the inception of Idaho's Workers' Compensation Act, Industrial Commission proceedings have been informal and designed for simplicity, the primary purpose of these proceedings being the attainment of justice in each individual case," the court said. ... Thus, Industrial Commission proceedings are conducted as far as possible in accordance with the rules of equity," the court said.

Timber firms oppose lake designation

PRIEST LAKE — Timber industry officials are lobbying against a proposal to designate Priest Lake as an outstanding resource. ... Should the Legislature approve the Outstanding Resource Waters status, logging, building, farming and recreation around the prized lake would fall under stricter regulations. ... The Intermountain Forest Industry Association, said Thursday, "It would in all likelihood preclude logging around the shores of Priest Lake," Hinson said. ... The way the law reads, it could prohibit any land-disturbing activity that would create a change in that body of water."

Clearwater group blasts LaRocco

OROFINO — An active Democrat and director of the Clearwater Resource Coalition has blasted Democratic congressional candidate Larry LaRocco for claiming the coalition is beginning "an extension of the Republican Party." ... There are some Democrats who will continue to be members of this organization and they will continue to be Democrats," said Clearwater County Commissioner Jim Wilson. ... Wilson, a member of the Republican Woodworker's of America, has not defected to the camp of Republican nominee Skip Smyser as has his wife, who is a member of the Clearwater County Democratic Central Committee. ... But he is unhappy with LaRocco's political comment and the fact that he has the endorsement of the Sierra Club.

Man sentenced for beating youth

ST. ANTHONY — A Fremont County man has been fined and ordered to serve two years in jail after pleading guilty to beating and dragging a 13-year-old California youth at a youth ranch north of Ashton. ... Reid Richey, 61, was fined $150, placed on two years probation and ordered to serve 10 days in jail, eight of which must be served only if he violates the terms of probation. He pleaded guilty to misdemeanor battery.

Free fire truck heads for Cuprum, Bear

BOISE — The Hells Canyon-area towns of Cuprum and Bear are the lucky winners of a reconditioned 1950 American La France fire truck. ... The drawing was organized by a state firefighters union and the Idaho Firefighters magazine, and about a dozen businesses and volunteers donated their time to refurbish the truck.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

BOBBY WOLFF

"Solomon made a book of proverbs, but a book of proverbs never made a Solomon."
— English proverb.

Put yourself in today's East chair and defend against the no-trump game. Do you have an automatic play (third hand high) when partner leads his fourth-best heart?

If East follows his basic instruction religiously, he plays his heart ace at trick one and continues with his jack. South ducks routinely and wins the third round with his king. The club finesse loses, but it doesn't matter. If East has a fourth heart, South makes only nine tricks. If East doesn't, South gets home with an overtrick.

When Lorand, Triter of Houston held the East cards, his hand and the bidding told him that West was not likely to have a high-card entry. And instead of playing his heart ace at trick one, Lorand put in his casual heart jack.

Elly poor declarer. If he held up, he would have gone down had West held a Q-x-x in hearts, so he went the first trick with his king, hoping for the club finesse to win. When it lost, Lorand cashed his heart ace and led a third heart, and the defenders collected five tricks.

The more you force a declarer to guess, the more often he will go wrong. If you make things easy for him, he's bound to play well.
