Gas fuels jump in wholesale prices

BPA could buy water to aid fish

IDAHO FALLS—The Bonneville Power Administration could buy up to 364,000 acre-feet of water from Idaho irrigators to flush young salmon through reservoirs on the lower Snake River under a new agreement with 20 Northwest fish agencies and tribes.

The BPA agreed Thursday to fund an $80,000 study of testing water from Idaho irrigators to improve Snake River flows. If it proves feasible, the federal government's regional power marketing agency will fund a $1-million pilot water project in 1991.

The National Marine Fisheries Service is studying the species of Snake River salmon for possible protection under the federal Endangered Species Act. A major problem has been providing enough water to flush the young salmon downriver in the spring.

For $1 million, the BPA could purchase 364,000 acre-feet of water from the Snake River water bank, said Ron Carlson, watermaster for Water District 1.

Because of drought conditions, Upper Snake River Valley irrigators could not provide that much water for a fish buy-back program, Carlson said—but they could provide two-thirds or about 229,000 acre-feet.

"We've had years where we certainly could supply that and more," in some years 1 million acre-feet, Carlson said.

An acre-foot of water is the amount of water needed to cover an acre of land one foot deep. The water bank sells water at $2.75 per acre-foot.

The Committee of Nine, which represents Snake River irrigators from Ashton to Milner, has had no formal discussions with BPA about selling water. And Carlson said there are hurdles.

WASHINGTON—Wholesale prices soared 1.6 percent in September—an annual rate of more than 20 percent—as gasoline prices shot up at their fastest pace on record, the government said Friday.

"The oil shock is hitting with a vengeance... It's just one more jolt to an already fragile economy," said Robert Decker, chief economist at the Northern Trust Co. of Chicago.

Prices at the start of the wave of double-digit inflation will have to suffer through for the next quarter or two because of Iraq, said Allen Sinai, chief economist at the Boston Co. "It's going to propel an economy that's already in recession into a deeper recession."

While the Labor Department blamed much of the steep increase in wholesale

Costs one step short of the retail-level on costlier petroleum, prices excluding the volatile energy and food areas were still up a whopping 0.4 percent since the August gauge.

Last month's rise in the Producer Price Index for finished goods followed a 1.3 percent increase in August, also caused by higher energy costs brought on by the Gulf crisis.

It was the biggest two-month jump in wholesale prices since 1980, the government said.

Prices at earlier stages of the production process were up sharply, too. Crude-goods costs jumped 4.6 percent while intermediate goods prices rose 1.8 percent.

An example of the three processing stages would be cotton at the crude-goods level, cloth in the intermediate-goods level, and clothing at the finished-goods level.

At the finished-goods level:

- Energy costs overall rose 13.8 percent.
- Fuel oil prices rose 21.3 percent.
- Natural gas prices were up 1.3 percent.
- Final prices were down 0.9 percent after rising 0.8 percent in August.
- Passenger car prices were up a sharp 3.4 percent after rising 0.8 percent.

The Consumer Price Index, which measures the prices of goods and services at the retail level, is due out next week.

The August changes put the Producer Price Index for all finished goods at 120.3 in September. That means a hypothetical selection of goods that cost $100 in 1982 would

Celebrating the spud

The Twin Falls High School homecoming parade lived up to its tradition of being a little out of the ordinary. Members of the senior class portrayed the "evolution of the potato," complete with "gigantic french fries" and "ketchup." The Bruins faced Meridian in the homecoming football game later Friday.

Democrats go for middle class tax cuts

Knigh-Ridder News Service

WASHINGTON—House Democrats unveiled a package of tax cuts with middle class appeal Friday, honing their campaign to make the rich pay more for reducing the deficit.

The House Democrats' declaration of class warfare a month before elections further eroded chances of getting a bipartisan budget agreement and posed new problems for President Bush and his fractious GOP foot soldiers in Capitol Hill.

A top Bush's gyrations on taxes this week, the budget has become a loose ball up for grabs in a political free-for-all.

Late Friday, the Senate Finance Committee neared approval of a "middle of the road" package that claimed bipartisan support in that chamber.

Announcing the latest House Democratic plan, Ways and Means chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., cast aside any pretense of bipartisanship.

"For the first time you're seeing the difference between the Democratic Party and what we want to do, and the Republican Party and who they want to protect," said Rostenkowski, reaching for his party's populist roots.

Rostenkowski's new plan would allow every taxpayer $100,000 in tax-free lifetime capital gains and would permit an additional $1,000 a year in tax-free capital gains for those making less than $100,000.

"The central theme for the middle class" beamed Rep. Tom Dawney, D-N.Y.

Beating House Republicans to the punch, Rostenkowski also dropped an unpopular proposed 12-cent gas tax increase from his deficit-reduction plan. Republicans had signaled their intention to fight the proposed gas tax.

At a press conference, Rostenkowski referred to the plan as "our platform," a term usually reserved for political tracts.

The AFL-CIO immediately declared its support for the plan.

More Western diplomats head home from Kuwait

The Associated Press

Western diplomatic defiance of Iraq's seizure of Kuwait weakened Friday when Germany and Belgium announced that their envoys had left the occupied nation.

A jetliner carrying 257 evacuees from Kuwait and Iraq landed in North Carolina.

The Pan Am jet, the first U.S.-chartered flight in nearly three weeks, landed Friday afternoon at Raleigh-Durham airport with 123 American citizens, six Canadians and others of unknown nationality.

About 100 of those on the flight from London were under 13, including a few infants, officials said.

Also Friday, a French news magazine reported that the U.S. military has drawn up plans to free Kuwait and deter Iraq in an attack next month. A group of Iraqi exiles said Saddam Hussein is already considering withdrawing from the emirate-Iraq over an Aug. 2.

Iraq, meanwhile, said it may stop Soviet detainees from returning home if they have knowledge of Iraqi weapons systems. The evacuation began Sunday and Iraq has promised to let at least 2,000 Soviets leave.

4-day war plan - A6

U.S. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney plans to ask Soviet officials next week for intelligence data on the Iraqi military, which was assembled largely by the Soviet Union.

There were signs that Western impatience with the standoff was growing and that the U.S.-led forces arrayed in Saudi Arabia and elsewhere in the region could be sent to help fend Iraq off from Kuwait.

Pentagon sources said a Marine amphibious force was planning a practice assault on the Arabian coast soon as a trial run for a possible U.S. invasion of Kuwait. A French magazine reported Friday that U.S. military officials have drawn up an offensive plan against Iraq.

U.S. officials refused to comment, in line with Pentagon security rules.

Twin Falls will accept census housing count

By Phil Sahn
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—The city of Twin Falls probably will not contest the U.S. Census Bureau's count of Twin Falls housing units, the community development director said Friday.

City officials had said the U.S. Census Bureau's count of Twin Falls houses was more than 500 short and had planned to contest the tally. But Community Development Director LaMar Orton said Friday that a city zoning enforcement officer's recount has shown the Census Bureau's count accurate.

"I don't know where the answer is," Orton said. "Even though we found a 500-house discrepancy, we can't prove they're inaccurate."

City figures had shown 863 building permits issued the past decade—without another 171 properties annexed. Yet census figures showed a gain of only 428 houses during that time.

Orton had said some of the difference might have come from building permits issued for the area of impact. The impact area is part of the county but, under Idaho law, is partially controlled by city laws. Building permits in the impact area are given by the city.

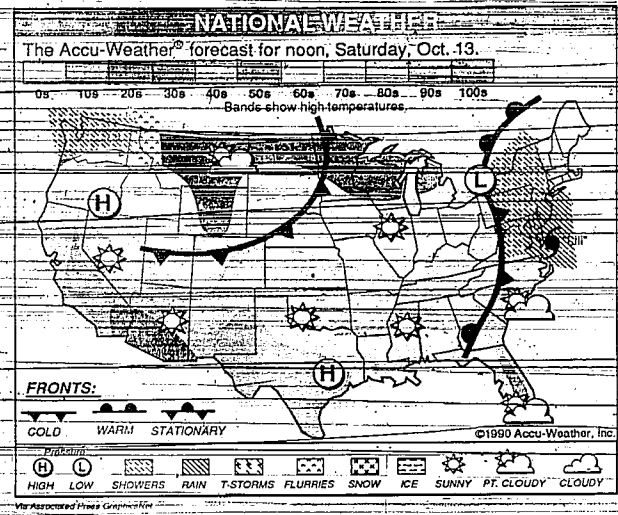

But building permits issued for the impact area probably would not have been enough to significantly alter the total, Orton said.

The city targeted newer neighborhoods in the outlying areas of town as the likely place where the Census Bureau might have miscounted. But this far the city's count has been right on or within one of the census total, Orton said.

"I don't think we're going to pursue it," he said.

The lower housing count cost the county tens of thousands of dollars in sales taxes and possible grant money.

Morning stars

Mars, Jupiter

Nevada - Fair skies and cool tonight. Mild with high clouds today and Sunday. Lows mid-20s to mid-30s. Highs nasty in the 50s.

Weather summary

Mild temperatures and increasing clouds made up Friday's weather picture over Idaho and the Magic Valley. Clouds increased over the southern part of the state late in the afternoon. Some rain showers fell in central and northern sections of the state but precipitation amounts were not heavy. Reports ranged from traces at Boise, Pocatello, Tropicville and Stanley up to .05 inches at Moscow, and .12 at Lowell and 1.2 at Mullin.

The warmest temperature in the state Friday was 74 degrees at Hagerman. Dixie, Red River and Ketchum reported the coldest at 17 degrees.

Elsewhere in the nation Friday, the highest temperature was 101 degrees at Borrego Springs, Calif. The lowest was 12 at Wells, Nev., and Kenner, Wyo.

Heavy rains fall in South, along Atlantic Coast

Extensive high and low temperature were reported around the nation Friday. Low temperature records for the date tied or broken Friday included 53 degrees at Brownsville, Texas, 45 degrees in Lake Charles, La., and 28 degrees in Muskogee, Mich.

On the other extreme, Cape Hatteras, N.C. reached 85 degrees Friday, breaking its high record for the date. Miami warmed to 91 degrees, tying its high for the date.

At midrange EDT, the center of Hurricane Lili was about 345 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras, N.C., moving northwest at about 14 mph. A tropical storm warning was posted over Cape Lookout, N.C., north to Virginia Beach, Va. A tropical storm watch extended from Virginia Beach to Cape Hatteras, N.C.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 p.m. EDT ranged from 45 degrees at Williston, N.D., to 94 degrees at Palm Springs, Calif.

U.N. Security Council agrees on resolution condemning Israel

The United Nations Security Council agreed on a resolution Friday night on a resolution to condemn Israel in the killing of 19 Palestinians and to ask a U.N. investigation into the deaths, diplomats said.

The agreement would avert a U.S. veto of a harsh P.L.O. resolution condemning Israel and would preserve the fragile U.S.-Israeli coalition against Iraq that would have been jeopardized by a U.S. veto.

The accord, reached after five days of marathon negotiations and U.S. protests, indicated the long-aligned movement had split on the issue and was not wholeheartedly in the camp of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Nevada officials blast nuclear waste move by federal agencies

CARSON CITY (AP) - State officials blasted the federal Department of Energy on Tuesday for moving to place a nuclear waste dump at Yucca Mountain, Nevada.

Gov. Bob Miller and Attorney General Brian McKay sent copies of a letter from energy Secretary James Watkins to a dump site, outlining the strategy.

The latest move from the DOE to place Nevada as an out-of-state site for high-level nuclear waste, Miller said, "is clearly doing nothing but paying lip service to state's rights."

"This letter is proof that the DOE wants to circumvent the court system and also the right that Nevada has to be heard on this issue," Miller said. "The DOE is clearly doing nothing but paying lip service to state's rights."

"This letter is proof that the DOE wants to circumvent the court system and also the right that Nevada has to be heard on this issue," Miller said. "The DOE is clearly doing nothing but paying lip service to state's rights."

German interior minister shot

OPPENAU, Germany (AP) - Interior Minister Wolfgang Schäuble, who guided negotiations of the two German states was shot and seriously wounded late Friday at a campaign gathering, police said.

Schäuble was struck by two bullets in the head and chest and seriously wounded, but his life was not immediately in danger, Interior Minister Wolfgang Schäuble said.

Police arrested a 27-year-old suspect who comes from the criminal drug scene," the ZDF television network said.

Ralf Krueger, head of the Baden-Wuerttemberg state criminal office, said there was no indication the suspect had a terrorist background, and that he probably acted alone. Police denied an early report that two others involved in the 10 p.m. shooting had fled.

Inflation

Continued from A1 - have cost $120.30 last month, up from $113.60 a year earlier.

The 20.6 percent rise in the cost of gasoline was the highest one-month increase since the government began tracking the commodity in 1947.

At the earliest stage of the production process, crude oil prices rose 20.4 percent, fueling analysts' concern that the higher prices will begin affecting the thousands of plastic, chemical and other products made with petroleum.

Oil also shows up in utility costs and figures in prices for products that may be transported long distances.

Analysis says the combination of higher prices and stronger consumer spending deepens the dilemma for the Federal Reserve, which has been under pressure from the Bush administration to raise its inflation-fighting campaign and lower interest rates to spur the economy.

"How in the world can the Fed ease? The consumer at least hasn't rolled over and inflation is rebelling. The two reports give a further reason for the Fed to remain frozen in its current posture," Detrick said.

At the White House, spokesman Martin Fitzwater said, "inflation is never good news." He declined to criticize the Federal Reserve's apparent tight monetary policy.

"We still are concerned about growth and about preventing a recession. We think the Fed has recognized all these factors and is on the right course," Fitzwater said.

September's 1.6 percent rise in wholesale prices would translate into an annual rate of 2.0 percent if prices rose at the same pace for 12 straight months, the government said.

Before Iraq occupied Kuwait Aug. 2, wholesale prices were rising at an annual rate of 1.3 percent. But with the August and September increases figured in, wholesale inflation has increased at an annual rate of 6.3 percent so far in 1990, the government said.

Gulf

Continued from A1 - Electricity and water have been shut off to most of them.

In Bonn, a German Foreign Ministry spokesman said the last diplomatic elements of two armored cavalry units that arrived this week, the Pentagon sources said. Officials indicated the buildup may be winding down.

The latest weapon used so far against Iraq has been the trade embargo imposed by the United Nations.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher told her Conservative Party to be prepared for war if those sanctions failed to force Iraq to withdraw.

Saddam has claimed that Kuwait is historically part of Iraq and has said repeatedly that Iraq will never withdraw.

However, an Iraqi opposition party, the Islamic Front, said Iraq's Baath Socialist Party has circulated a questionnaire asking prominent members whether they believe Iraq should pull out.

The claim by the Kurdistan Democratic Party that Iraq is an independently confirmed if true, it would represent an unprecedented quest for consensus by Saddam.

Diplomats from nations that oppose the Aug. 2 invasion have pledged to hold out but are slowly abandoning the embargo for lack of food and inimitable living conditions.

Water

Continued from A1 - of Idaho and irrigators allowing them to sell 36,000 acres to the stream.

Those irrigators and other water users who sell their water through the end-of-the-priority list for storage space, the following year, Carlson said. That means they may not have storage space the runoff does not fill the reservoirs.

The Shoshone-Bannock and Nez Perce tribes and the Idaho Department of Fish and Game will participate with BPA on the project. The Shoshone-Bannock tribes recently reached an agreement with the state.

Idaho and irrigators allowing them to sell 36,000 acres to the stream.

This year's agreement sets guidelines on use of Columbia River water available under the Columbia River Non-Treaty Storage Agreement. BPA signed July 9 with British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority. That agreement gives the BPA access to more water in Mica Reservoir in southeastern British Columbia.

The guidelines are designed to ensure the additional water helps and does not harm Columbia River fish.

Twin storms, floods sweep through Southeast; hurricane looms

North Carolina prepares for Hurricane Lili.

The Associated Press

Hurricane Lili and the remains of Tropical Storm Marco locked pincers on the South on Friday with a combination of rain, wind, flooding and drenching rains.

At least eight people have died in the storms.

Lili lurked off the shore of North Carolina, swirling among hurricanes, spinning harmless 8-foot waves onto the Outer Banks. Its winds were clocked at 75 mph, barely over the hurricane threshold of 74 mph.

But the convergence of Lili and Marco, plus the dying remnants of Tropical Storm Klaus, brought a third day of rain and dangerous flooding to parts of the coastal Southeast.

"We got so much rain, so fast. We've never had anything like this," said Pam Smith, director of the Richmond County Emergency Management Agency, in a telephone interview. "The west side was swamped by floods."

In South Carolina, where floods Thursday carried caskets out of a graveyard, state climatologist John Purvis said some places had the most rainfall in a century.

At the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables, Fla., forecasters said it appeared to be moving to the north sooner than expected, decreasing the threat of a direct hit on the mid-Atlantic coast.

At 4:55 p.m. EDT Friday, Lili's center was near latitude 31.5° north and 74.0° longitude west, or about 225 miles west of Cape Hatteras, N.C. It was moving northwest at nearly 15 mph.

"It poses less threat to the East Coast now," said Herb White, of the National Weather Service in Raleigh, N.C. "Now it's projected to parallel the coast the rest of the week."

Forecasters said pair-force winds would extend 25 miles inland along the route of the storm.

Tourists in North Carolina packed ferries to flee the Outer Banks, although the most perilous part of the storm were waves big enough to drift surfers.

"I'm a little bit nervous; for my parents' sake," said Tom Sherer, 18, of Coonjock, N.C., who was riding a skim board on the waves. "They're sort of worried."

"I worried we're going to get hurt," said 16-year-old Mike Vernon of Currituck, N.C.

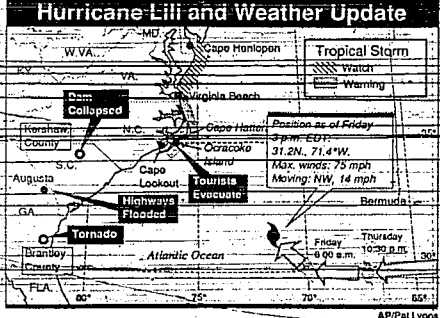

The real danger for the time being lay farther south, in Georgia, where three people drowned in rising flood waters that ravaged the Augusta area.

The bodies were blown over the remnants of Tropical Storm Marco, which blew north out of the Gulf of Mexico on Thursday.

The victims included an 80-year-old man who drowned as he and his wife struggled to leave their car at a flooded railroad track north of Augusta. Governor Thomas King said the man was swept away in the floodwaters; his wife managed to escape.

Two people also drowned in Jefferson County, about 50 miles southwest of Augusta, the sheriff, Deputy Mark Williamson said.

Authorities also were searching for two missing persons, who were swept away as she and her husband were abandoning their car, Williamson said.

Baby born on bridge during tropical storm

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Riding behind her husband as they drove through the dark in a blinding rain, Mrs. Brenda Urban gave birth to a boy who couldn't wait for a tropical storm to subside.

At 4 a.m. Thursday in the downpour from Tropical Storm Marco, Mrs. Urban and her husband, Rick, were speeding across the three-mile Howard Frankland bridge, trying to get to their home in a midwife birthing center, 15 miles away in St. Petersburg.

"We were just to the edge of the bridge when I said, 'This baby's coming out,'" Mrs. Urban said. "It was scary, being stuck on the bridge with a newborn baby in the car. I was prepared to stop on the middle of the bridge and take care of it right then."

But a tractor-trailer was bearing down behind them and they couldn't stop. Neither could their first baby. "It went real fast," Mrs. Urban said. "My husband just reached his arm down and held the baby's head right over the side."

All the other end of the bridge they pulled over, and I supported the cord from the newborn's neck and laid him on his mother to keep him warm."

"I kept saying, 'I can't believe we had our baby in the car,'" the 34-year-old Mrs. Urban eventually made it to Bayfront Medical Center. Emergency workers suggested the baby be named Howard Marco. The Urbans declined.

Garrett Michael Urban, 6 pounds 2 ounces, was declared to be in good health. The family went home Thursday, about time the first rays of sun appeared through the receding storm clouds.

Activists want to disrupt deer hunt

CAMP BLANDING, Fla. — Animal activists protesting a state-sponsored deer hunt this weekend will challenge a new hunter-harassment law by making noise to try to frighten off the deer, their attorney said.

"I think it should be proper to make noises in order to alert the deer of possible hunts," Boca Raton lawyer Barry Silver said Thursday. The activists, who have a state permit to gather on a roadside, also will protest the permit's noise restrictions, which Silver said violate free speech rights.

The activists were to gather Saturday outside the Camp Blanding Wildlife Management Area, where the hunters are inside. The annual hunt begins on Oct. 15, when permit and guide dogs are unleashed to hunt safely, as sponsored by the state's Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

Bush to veto job-discrimination bill

WASHINGTON — The White House said Friday that President Bush still plans to veto a major job-discrimination bill despite last-minute changes designed by proponents to overcome administration objections.

Presidential press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said changes adopted by House-Senate conferees did not eliminate features in the civil rights bill that administration contends would encourage employers to adopt hiring and promotion quotas to avoid lawsuits. "We still believe this is a quota bill," Fitzwater told reporters. "We continue to believe veto is warranted on that basis."

The legislation would undo six Supreme Court decisions that civil rights lawyers claim make it harder for plaintiffs to prove employment discrimination.

AIDS case to test new Illinois law

MARION, Ill. — A man with AIDS forced an 18-year-old relative to have oral sex, the child and a prosecutor told jurors Friday in a test case of a new state law.

Randall Lee Dempsey, 34, of rural Marion is charged with criminal transmission of the HIV virus and aggravated criminal sexual assault. He has pleaded innocent to the charges.

The case is believed the first test of the state's new criminal HIV-transmission law, which took effect Sept. 14, 1989.

Under the law, the attacker must know he is carrying the AIDS virus when he performs an act, such as sexual intercourse, which would expose someone to the virus. Conviction does not require that the victim develop AIDS.

Garbage can still go to other states

WASHINGTON — New Jersey can breathe freely again. It can ship its garbage to Indiana.

A proposal that would have allowed states to close their borders to other states' garbage was killed in House-Senate negotiations Friday.

The garbage fight has pitted New Jersey lawmakers against those from Indiana, but the issue had far broader ramifications. By some estimates, as many as two-thirds of the states' ship garbage beyond their borders because of landfill shortages.

Senate bill mandates OK for teen abortions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Friday to require a parent be notified before teenagers can obtain an abortion at most hospitals.

The requirement was added to a big appropriations bill covering the Department of Health and Human Services and other agencies. The bill was passed and sent back to the House, which did not include the abortion notice requirement.

The Senate also rejected amendments by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., to slash new federal spending on AIDS.

The Senate approved the abortion notice requirement offered by Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo., on a voice vote after opponents failed on a 48-48 vote to table, or stall, it. A tie vote meant the motion to table did not pass.

The provision would require abortions for women under 18 at any hospital that receives Medicaid or other federal money.

If enacted, the provision would be the first federal requirement that parents be involved in abortion decisions by young people, although many states have passed laws requiring notice or consent by a parent or parents. Many of the state laws have been invalidated by court decisions.

Release of Iran-Contra items blocked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Dick Thornburgh on Friday snubbed his legislative colleagues' release of government secrets that had scuttled the Iran-Contra trial of former CIA agent Joseph Fernandez.

The Justice Department's announcement drew a stinging response from the Iran-Contra special prosecutor.

Independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh said the dismissal of charges against Fernandez was forced by an "over-protective attitude toward classified information."

"No matter how the administration rationalizes the nonproduction of this information, it shows a lack of concern for applying the rule of law to officials of the intelligence community," Walsh said.

He said the administration's stance "will form the basis for an important part of our final report" to Congress on the Iran-Contra investigation.

Fernandez, former CIA station chief in Costa Rica, was charged with helping the presidential commission that investigated the Iran-Contra affair and CIA superiors about his role in helping ship arms to the Nicaraguan rebels.

Frank Lloyd Wright plans may be used

PITTSBURGH (AP) — An architect has proposed building a 12-story luxury apartment tower using plans prepared and then abandoned by Frank Lloyd Wright 38 years ago.

Architect Louis Astorino told city officials he wanted to build the triangular tower on the edge of Mount Washington, a cliff overlooking downtown and the Monongahela River.

The building would have 12 large apartments, one on each floor, that would cost $1 million to $1.2 million each. It would be built on the site of the closed St. Mary of the Mount High School.

City officials have welcomed the plan.

"I think it's an exciting wonder. An urban," said City Councilwoman Michelle Ajlouni. "People would be living in a work of art."

House OKs military spending bill with cuts in B-2 bomber, SDI

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House approved a 1991 military spending bill Friday that would cut 15 planes and slash budget for Bush's budget request for the Strategic Defense Initiative.

By a vote of 322-97, lawmakers adopted the overall package that gives $268 billion for fiscal 1991. In addition, the House Appropriations Committee tacked on this week to meet the revised budget levels approved by Congress.

Both Idaho congressmen

Democrat Richard Stallings and Republican Larry Craig voted for the measure.

Stallings' support for the bill was tepid. While 11 House members that Bush would veto the legislation because of whole-sale cuts in strategic weapons.

A total of 122 Republicans joined with 100 Democrats in voting for the legislation while 37 Republicans and 58 Democrats opposed the bill.

Following House approval in September of a defense authorization bill that sets spending ceilings, the registration cuts Bush's proposal for SDI to $2.5 billion in the fiscal year which began Oct. 1. He had requested $4.7 billion.

The appropriations bill also stops production of the B-2 stealth bomber at the 15 aircraft under construction and provides no production money for the program to place 400 nuclear missiles on railroad cars.

Instead, the bill creates a strategic pot of $618 million for the MX and Midgetman land-based missiles.

The spending blueprint also provides $403 million for the A-22 pro-Joelle Dodge Secretary of Defense's second attempt in two years to kill the lift-tor aircraft.

The spending plan cuts for a cut of 17,000 U.S. troops worldwide. The Bush administration has proposed a cut of 38,000 from the active duty troop total of 2.1 million.

The bill is expected to take its version of the appropriations bill next week.

The package approved by the Senate Appropriations Committee late Thursday is markedly different from the House-approved legislation.

The Senate committee bill trims about $1 billion from Bush's budget request for SDI. Funds the president's request for the B-2 bomber.

As lawmakers pushed to complete the bill by midday, major sections of the package were approved by voice vote with the little-remembered debate that harmony quickly disintegrated into a raucous fight over military spending.

Liberal Democrats and a handful of Republicans sought to eliminate $1 billion from the spending out-the amount the committee added this week of a 1 percent.

"This isn't about a war with the Soviets. This is about a war with the economic survival of this country," said Sen. George Miller, D-Calif.

Sen. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., cited the end of the Cold War, reports of widespread fraud in Pentagon procurement and the need for wealthy U.S. allies to foot more of the bill for weapons infrastructure for the reduction.

Test rocks Las Vegas high rises

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Scientists detonated a nuclear weapon after a minor technical delay Friday.

It delivered a blast that registered 5.7 on the Richter scale and was felt distinctly in Las Vegas, 103 miles from ground zero.

The weapon was up to 10 times more powerful than the bomb that destroyed Hiroshima.

The test was the seventh of the year and the third in three weeks at the sprawling Nevada Test Site.

The 2.2 megaton on the Richter scale was recorded at the National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., according to spokesman Waverly Peterson.

Fred Beyer, who monitored the test at a control point 34 miles from ground zero, said scientists at the facility seemed pleased with the test.

"All I see is happy faces," Beyer said. "The situation appears normal. Everything looks real good."

Beyer said the test, code-named Tenabo, sent a slight rolling motion through the control point, but was not as distinct as some previous tests.

The test was scheduled for 9 a.m. EDT but was delayed until 11:30 a.m. because of technical difficulties. Beyer said he did not know the extent of the problem.

The test was put on hold until they checked out the mechanisms, he said. "I don't have any details, and I doubt if they'd tell me. Obviously, it wasn't anything very serious."

The test was originally scheduled for Thursday morning, but was postponed because of winds blowing toward the Las Vegas area. Tests are not conducted if winds are blowing toward a populated area in the event radioactive gases should escape from the underground shot.

The nuclear weapon was buried 2,000 feet beneath Pahute Mesa, about 105 miles northwest of Las Vegas.

DOE monitors atop high rise buildings in Las Vegas said the blast was "felt distinctly" at the Sahara, Kiu and Palace Station hotels.

Gilbert Yarchaver, who has an apartment on the 25th floor of the Regency Towers, a high rise building east of the Strip, said "anything hanging moved."

Despite increase in retail sales, economy still weak, experts say

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rebounding automobile purchases and surging gasoline prices powered retail sales to a strong 1.1 percent gain in September, the government said Friday.

That was the biggest advance in four months, but economists said the two special factors were masking an otherwise weak report, which included a large decline in department store sales.

Sales figures are not adjusted to factor out price increases. Gasoline costs have shot up since Iraq occupied Kuwait Aug. 2, inflating that sales category.

The recovery in auto sales was positive but came after months of deteriorating sales, analysts said.

Overall sales rose $1.6 billion to a seasonally adjusted $151.2 billion, the Commerce Department said. It followed a 0.4 percent decline in August.

What is underscored by these numbers is that the process of economic decline is a very slow one.

Consumers take two steps backward and then one step forward at least if they're given a bargain as they were with autos, said economist David Jones of Aubrey G. Larson & Co.

Retail sales are an important barometer of economic health because they represent about one-third of the nation's economic activity.

"Consumers are gradually becoming increasingly cautious because they see the oil price shock and they're starting to worry about the job market and, in some parts of the and other general merchandise stores were down 0.2 percent last month to $17.6 billion. That followed a 0.2 percent rise in August.

The rebound in auto sales means consumer confidence, while deteriorating, is not collapsing, said economist Sandra Shaber of The Future's Group, a Washington consulting firm.

She said "the one really disappointing number is the decline in department store sales. That will be viewed with great concern going into the Christmas season."

In separate, private report Thursday, major retail chains reported disappointing results for last month.

According to the Commerce Department, all retail sales in the July-September period were only 2.8 percent higher than the same period a year earlier. That is less than the inflation rate.

In details from the report, the government said:

- Sales of durable goods, such as major appliances and autos, rose 1.4 percent in September, following a 0.5 percent gain in the month before.
- Non-durable goods sales climbed 0.9 percent after a 0.8 percent gain in August.
- Hardware, garden and building supply stores in September reported sales dropped 0.5 percent while clothing and accessory store sales fell 1.2 percent.
- Furniture sales last month rose 0.7 percent, food store receipts were up 1.6 percent, restaurant and bar sales increased 1 percent, and drug store sales advanced 0.4 percent.

Commission seeks to ban production of baby cushions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission said Friday it has taken the first step toward banning "crib bumpers" because of 30 reported cases of babies found dead on them.

The commission voted Thursday to publish a notice of proposed rule making in which it will seek public comments to help it develop an accurate definition of the product.

The cribs are cradles with plastic foam beads or other granular material that conform to the body of an infant as he or she lies down. When the infant is placed stomach down, they have been promoted as resting or stepping places for infants or devices to prop them upright, but in at least 30 cases have led to death.

The commission announced earlier this year an agreement with all known manufacturers of the cushions to recall them and not produce any more. The recalls, covering about a million cushions, are expected to be completed by the end of the year, but the commission said it would not allow any more production until it has issued a final ruling.

Recall instructions can be obtained from a toll-free telephone number, 1-800-639-2272. Manufacturers have offered refunds.

Commenting on the commission's decision, a representative for the American Sleep Foundation said, "Although production of infant cushions has stopped, we need to prevent any future production of this product in order to prevent more deaths."

Russian convicted of insulting Jews, sentenced to labor camp

MOSCOW (AP) — A court on Friday convicted a Russian nationalist of fanning ethnic hostility and insulting Jews in a landmark case that had galvanized fears of anti-Jewish pogroms and fueled a Jewish exodus from the country.

A Russian and Soviet Jewish leader hailed the verdict as the first real sign of a government crackdown on Russian anti-Semitism. A lawyer said it was the first time an accused anti-Semite has been put on trial in Russia.

The judge sentenced Konstantin Smirnov-Ostashvili, a 34-year-old factory worker, to two years in a labor camp.

"Everything is taken out of context. It's all a lie," the defendant shouted angrily in one of many outbursts during the half-hour session in the packed and heavily-guarded Moscow City Court.

Smirnov-Ostashvili, a member of the nationalist group Pamyat, has denied being anti-Semitic, but maintains that the Soviet Union's 1.4 million Jews hold a disproportionate number of high places in government and society.

He was accused of organizing protesters who broke up a Jan. 18 meeting at the Central House of Literature in Moscow, and insulted Jewish writers. The court determined he was drunk at the time.

The judge also identified Smirnov-Ostashvili as the protester whom the weekly magazine, Gonyon, noted as shouting at the writers.

"Your time is over. Neither the police, nor the KGB, nor the party will help you. Now we will be masters of the country and you newcomers, clear out and go to Israel. How long can we tolerate your Russophobia?"

It was the first trial under a year-old law passed to quell unrest among the Soviet Union's more than 100 ethnic groups. The law punishes inciting hatred and enmity among ethnic groups.

Anti-Semitism dates back centuries in Russia, the nation's largest republic, and has frequently been associated with Russian nationalism, although it also has reared its head in most of the other 14 Soviet republics at various times.

Smirnov-Ostashvili brought up his national heritage repeatedly Friday in court.

Smirnov-Ostashvili's lawyer said the defendant shouted as he stood behind a brown wooden partition, guarded by five green-uniformed Interior Ministry soldiers bearing guns and rubber batons.

He wore a jacket over a blue track suit and shouted and jibbed his fist in the air.

Supporters of Smirnov-Ostashvili, some wearing Pamyat buttons, heckled the judge as he read a summary of the case and the verdict.

Israeli police use a water cannon to disperse Moslems wanting to enter the old city Friday.

Israelis keep Arabs from prayer at temple, site of recent killings

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli used tear gas, roadblocks and water cannons Friday to stop thousands of Arabs from attending prayer services at the Temple Mount, where police killed 19 Palestinians earlier this week.

In the occupied territories, troops shot and killed two Palestinians and wounded at least 10 in clashes with stone-throwing youths, Arab reports said.

Also Friday, Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said Israel would reject any effort by the U.N. Security Council to send a team to investigate the Temple Mount deaths, which occurred Monday.

Shamir said a U.N. investigation would be an infringement on Israel's sovereignty over Jerusalem, which it captured the Arab sector, which includes the Temple Mount, from Jordan in the 1947 Middle East war and later annexed it.

"In the recent past in the Middle East, there have been a number of incidents where people were killed," the premier told Israel radio. "We did not see the Security Council being pressured to such gross excesses, and with such broad dimensions."

A Security Council resolution condemning the incident has been hung up over differences on the form of a U.N. investigation and whether to emphasize protecting Palestinians. The issues have divided the United States and its allies.

The Arab League will hold an urgent meeting on the matter next Wednesday, sources in Tunis said.

Shortly after Shamir spoke, the Palestinian human rights group, Al Haq, issued its preliminary report on the killings, calling them a massacre and urging "international protection" for Palestinians.

The group said massive stone-throwing, which police say prompted their gunfire, did not begin until after tear gas was fired onto the Temple Mount. It also accused paramilitary border police units of opening fire without warning.

Since the wall against Israeli occupation of the territories began in December 1987, 207 Palestinians have been killed by Israeli soldiers or civilians.

An additional 278 Palestinians have been killed by fellow Arabs, most on suspicion of collaboration with Israeli authorities. Forty-eight Israelis have died in the violence.

The latest victims were Amar Derouiche, 29, from the West Bank village of Toubas, and Rami Jarar, 18, from nearby Jenin, Arab reports said. Derouiche was shot in the head in a stone-throwing clash with troops, and Jarar was shot as soldiers chased curfew-violators.

The army spokesman's office said it was checking the reports.

Monday's rioting on the Temple Mount, sacred to both Moslems and Jews, started when Arabs threw stones down at Jews worshipping below at the Western Wall, also known as the Wailing Wall.

The Moslems had been inflamed by rumors that a zealous Jewish group, Temple Mount Faithful, was planning a march to the Mount to reclaim the site for Judaism.

On Friday, hundreds of police and paramilitary units were on duty around the Mount, and a helicopter circled above.

Palestinians from the West Bank were stopped by army roadblocks from approaching Jerusalem. In the city, police blocked hundreds of young men from walking to prayers, halting them at the gates to the Old City or to the Mount.

Palestinians threw stones on a group of 200 Palestinian youths who tried to march to the Mount.

The youths retreated to a nearby street and pelted passing cars with stones.

Four homemade explosives were found on the roadside near the hotel and defused.

The shooting occurred a block from the U.S. Embassy. El-Mahgoub was being driven to meet a Syrian delegation at another hotel about 1 1/2 miles away.

The incident happened a day after a national referendum to decide whether President Hafez Assad should dissolve parliament and call new elections.

Moussa warned before the vote that Iraqis and other Arabs had infiltrated the country to destabilize the government through terror attacks, including assassinations. Egypt has led Arab opposition to Iraq's Aug. 2 occupation of Kuwait.

Gunfire kills Egyptian official, 4 guards

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Gunmen killed the parliament speaker and four security men outside a luxury hotel Friday, days after the government warned that terrorists might strike to punish Egypt for its opposition to Iraq.

There was no claim of responsibility in the slayings. Officials said they suspected either Moslem fundamentalists or terrorists from Iraq.

Police stepped up security in Cairo and placed airports on alert following the shootings.

Khaled el-Mahgoub, 65, speaker of the People's Assembly and the second ranking politician after the president, was shot in his chauffeur-driven Mercedes as he passed the Hotel Semiramis Inter-Continental said Interior Minister Abdel-Halim Moussa.

Moussa said two assailants attacked el-Mahgoub's vehicle and an accompanying security car from two Suzuki motorcycles, while two others shot from the roadside, their rifles earlier hidden in bags.

Three escaped on the bikes, and the fourth ran into a densely populated area nearby and disappeared.

He wounded two bystanders who tried to stop him, Moussa said.

The minister said two security men were killed in el-Mahgoub's car and another in a security car traveling behind him. A brigadier hospitalized with eight gunshot wounds later died, police said.

Attempt fails to kill general in Beirut

BEIRUT (AP) — A Shiite Moslem gunman fired at Christian Gen. Michel Aoun on Friday as he addressed thousands of supporters, but the bullet missed the general and struck one of his aides, Aoun's radio station said.

The assassination attempt came shortly after the Syrian army moved thousands of troops toward the enclave for an expected attack on the headquarters of Aoun, who has resisted orders by Lebanon's government to step down.

House OKs military spending bill with cuts in B-2 bomber, SDI

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House approved a 1991 military spending bill Friday that would cut off production of 17 B-2 stealth bombers at 15 planes and slash President Bush's budget request for the Strategic Defense Initiative.

By a vote of 297-137, lawmakers adopted the overall package that gives $268 billion to defense, including a $5.3 billion addition the House Appropriations Committee tacked on this week to meet the revised budget request.

Both Idaho congressmen —

Democrat Richard Stansbury and Republican Larry Craig — voted for the measure.

Overwhelming support for the bill came despite "White House statements that Bush would veto the legislation because of wholesale cuts in strategic weapons."

A total of 132 Republicans joined with 190 Democrats in voting for the legislation, while 39 Republicans and 58 Democrats opposed the bill.

Following House approval in Senate, a number of defense authorization bill that sets spending ceilings, the legislation cuts Bush's proposal for SDI to $2.3 billion in the fiscal year which began Oct. 1. He had requested $4.7 billion.

The appropriations bill also stops production of the B-2 stealth bomber at the 15 aircraft under construction and provides no production money for the Pentagon's plan to place MX nuclear missiles on railroad cars.

Instead, the bill creates a strategic pot of $618 million for the MX and Wignerman land-based missiles.

The spending blueprint also provides $403 million for the V-22 Osprey despite Defense Secretary Dick Cheney's second attempt in two weeks to kill the helicopter with the spending plan calls for a cut of 77,000 U.S. troops worldwide. The Bush administration has proposed a cut of 38,000 from the active duty troop total of 71 million.

The Senate is expected to take up its version of the appropriations bill next week.

The package authorized by the Senate Appropriations Committee late Thursday is markedly different from the House-approved legislation.

The Senate committee bill trims about $7 billion from Bush's budget request for SDI, funds the president's request for the B-2 bomber and cuts U.S. troop strength by 700,000.

As lawmakers pushed to complete the bill by midday, major sections of the package were approved by a vote with little or no objection. But harmony quickly disintegrated into a rancorous fight over military spending.

Liberal Democrats and a handful of Republicans sought to eliminate $3.5 billion from the spending bill the amount the committee added this week — by imposing an across-the-board cut of 2 percent.

"This isn't about a war with the Russians. This isn't about a war in the Middle East. This is about the economic survival of this country," said Rep. George Miller, D-Calif.

Rep. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., cited the end of the Cold War, reports of widespread fraud in Pentagon procurement and the need for wealthy U.S. allies to foot more of the bill for defense as the rationale for the reduction.

The test was originally scheduled for Thursday morning, but was postponed because of winds blowing toward the Las Vegas area. Tests are not conducted if winds are blowing toward a populated area in the event of a radioactive gas release or leakage from the underground shot.

Commsion seeks to ban production of baby cushions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission says it has taken the first step to ban infant bean-bag cushions because of 30 reported cases of babies found dead on them.

The commission voted Thursday to publish a notice of proposed rule-making, in which it will seek public comment on how to best develop an accurate definition of the product.

The cushions are filled with plastic foam beads or other granular material that can conform to the body of an infant, especially to the face, when the infant is placed stomach down on a couch or sleeping places for infants, or devices to prop them upright, but in at least 30 cases have led to death through suffocation.

The commission announced earlier that it would seek to force all known manufacturers of the cushions to recall them and not produce any more. The recalls, covering about a million cushions, are still in effect.

Consumers who have not already returned their infant cushions should stop using them, return to the store to destroy them, the commission said.

Recall instructions can be obtained from a toll-free telephone number, 1-800-638-2272. Most manufacturers have offered refunds.

Commenting on the commission's vote, Chairman Jacqueline Jones Smith said, "Although parents need to be alerted to the danger, we need to prevent any future production of this product in order to prevent more deaths."

Ford art treasures up for auction

NEW YORK (AP) — Thirty-six impressive and modern works of art from the estate of Henry Ford II will be sold at auction Nov. 12, Sotheby's announced.

The paintings, drawings and sculpture include major works by Paul Cezanne, Amedeo Modigliani, Henri Matisse, Joan Miro and Marc Chagall. The auction is expected to net more than $50 million.

Ford, who was vice chairman of the firm from 1960 to 1980, died in 1987. He was grandson of auto paintings, including the 26 paintings Sotheby's will sell, Pierre Auguste Renoir's "The Cup of Chocolate," which belonged to Henry Ford II's father, Edsel B. Ford. It depicts one of the artist's favorite models with a finely rendered silk scarf and a patterned floral wallpaper in the background.

The painting, valued at $15 million to $18 million, was consigned to Sotheby's by the Henry Ford II Family Collection.

Russian convicted of insulting Jews, sentenced to labor camp

MOSCOW (AP) — A court on Friday convicted a Russian nationalist of fanning ethnic hostility and insulting Jews in a landmark case that has galvanized fears of anti-Jewish pogroms and hatred a Jewish exodus from the country.

American and Soviet Jewish leaders hailed the verdict as the first real sign of a government crackdown on Russian anti-Semitism. A lawyer said it was the first time an accused antisemite has been put on trial in Russia.

The judge sentenced Konstantin Smimov-Ostashev, a 54-year-old factory worker, to two years in a labor camp.

"Everything is taken out of context," said a Jewish defense lawyer, shouting angrily in one of many outbursts during the half-hour session in the packed and heavily guarded Moscow City Court.

Smimov-Ostashev, a member of the nationalist group Pamyat, has denied being anti-Semitic, but maintains that the Soviet Union's 1.4 million Jews hold "a disproportionate number of high places in government and industry."

He was accused of organizing protesters who broke up a Jan. 18 meeting at the Central House of Literature in Moscow and insulted Jewish writers. The court determined he was drunk at the time.

The judge also identified Smimov-Ostashev as the protester whom the weekly magazine Ogoniok quoted as shouting at the writers.

"Your time is over. Neither the police nor the KGB, nor the party will help you. Now we will be masters of the country and you, newspapers, clear out and go to Israel. How long can we tolerate your Russophobia?"

It was the first trial under a year-old law passed to quell unrest among the Soviet Union's more than 160 ethnic groups. The law punishes inciting hatred and enmity among ethnic groups.

Anti-Semitism dates back centuries in Russia, the nation's largest republic and has frequently been associated with Russian nationalism, although it also has reared its head in most of the other 14 Soviet republics at various times.

Smimov-Ostashev brought up his minority heritage repeatedly Friday.

"I am a Jew-hater and has frequently been found out shouting as he stood behind a brown wooden partition, guarded by five, green-uniformed Interior Ministry soldiers bearing guns and rubber truncheons.

"He wore a jacket over a blue track suit and shouted and jabbed his fist in the air.

Supporters of Smimov-Ostashev, some wearing Pamyat buttons, heckled the judge as he read a summary of the case and the verdict.

Israeli police use a water cannon to disperse Moslems wanting to enter the old city Friday.

Israelis keep Arabs from prayer at temple, site of recent killings

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel used curfews, roadblocks and water cannons Friday to stop thousands of Arabs from attending prayer services at the Temple Mount, where police killed 19 Palestinians earlier this week.

The occupied territories, troops shot and killed two Palestinians and wounded at least 10 in clashes with stone-throwing youths, Arab reports said.

Also Friday, Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said Israel would reject any effort by the U.N. Security Council to send a team to investigate the Temple Mount deaths, which occurred Monday.

Shamir said a U.N. investigation would be an infringement on Israel's sovereignty over Jerusalem, Israel captured the Arab sector, which contains the Temple Mount, from Jordan in the 1967 Middle East war and later annexed it.

"In the recent past in the Middle East, there have been a number of incidents where people were killed," the premier told Israel radio. "We did not see the Security Council being pressured to such grave discussions, and with such broad-outcome."

A Security Council resolution condemning the incident has been hung up over differences on the form of a U.N. investigation and whether to emphasize protecting Palestinians. The issues have divided the United States and its allies.

The Arab League will hold an urgent meeting on the confrontation Wednesday, sources in Tunisia said.

Shortly after Shamir spoke, the Palestinian human rights group, Al Haq, issued its preliminary report on the killings, calling them a massacre and urging "international protection" for Palestinians.

The group said massive stone-throwing, which police say prompted their gunfire, did not begin until after tear gas was fired onto the Temple Mount. It also accused paramilitary border police units of opening fire without warning.

Since the revolt against Israeli occupation of the territories began in December 1987, 760 Palestinians have been killed by Israeli soldiers or civilians.

An additional 278 Palestinians have been killed by fellow Arabs, most on suspicion of collaboration with Israeli authorities. Forty-eight Israelis have died in the violence.

The latest victims were Amad Dorchoum, 20, from the West Bank village of Toubas, and Rami Janir, 18, from nearby Jenin. Arab reports said Dorchoum was shot in the head in a stone-throwing clash with troops, and Janir was shot as soldiers chased curfew violators.

The army spokesman's office said it was checking the reports.

Monday's rioting on the Temple Mount, sacred to both Moslems and Jews, started when Arabs threw stones down at Jews worshipping below at the Wailing Wall, also known as the Wall of Tears.

The Moslems had been inflamed by rumors that a zealous Jewish group, the Temple Mount Faithful, was planning a march to the Mount to reclaim the site for Judaism.

On Friday, hundreds of police and paramilitary units were on duty around the Mount, and a helicopter circled above.

Palestinians from the West Bank were stopped by army roadblocks from approaching Jerusalem. In the city, police blocked hundreds of young men from walking to pray at the Temple Mount.

Police turned water cannons on a group of 200 Palestinian youths who tried to march to the Mount.

The youths retreated to a nearby street and pelted passing cars with stones.

gunfire killed an Egyptian official, 4 guards.

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Gunmen killed the parliament speaker and four security men outside a hotel Friday here after the government warned that terrorists might strike to oust Egypt for its opposition to Iraq.

There was no claim of responsibility in the slayings. Officials said they suspected either Moslem fundamentalists or terrorists from Iraq.

Police stepped up security in Cairo and closed airports on planet following the shootings.

Rifaat el-Mahgoub, 64, speaker of the People's Assembly and the second-ranking politician after the president, was shot in his chauffeur-driven Mercedes as the car passed the Hotel Semiramis Inter-Continental.

Interior Minister Abdel-Halim Moussa said two assassins attacked el-Mahgoub's vehicle and an accompanying security car from two Suzuki motorbikes, while two others shot from the roadside, their rifles earlier hidden in bags.

Three escaped on the bikes, and the fourth ran into a densely populated area nearby and disappeared. He wounded two bystanders who tried to stop him, Moussa said.

The minister said two security men were killed in el-Mahgoub's car and another in a security car traveling behind him. A brigadier hospitalized with eight gunshot wounds later died, police said.

A Soviet-made hand grenade and four homemade explosives were found on the roadside near the hotel and defused.

The shooting occurred a block from the U.S. Embassy. El-Mahgoub was being driven to meet a Syrian delegation at another hotel about 1 1/2 miles away.

The incident happened a day after a national referendum to decide whether President Hosni Mubarak should dissolve parliament and call new elections.

Moussa warned before the vote that Iraqis and other Arabs had infiltrated the country to destabilize the government through terror attacks, including assassinations. Egypt has led Arab opposition to Iraq's Aug. 2 occupation of Kuwait.

attempt fails to kill general in Beirut

BEIRUT (AP) — A Shiite Moslem gunman fired at Christian Gen. Michel Aoun on Friday as he addressed thousands of supporters, but the bullet missed the general and struck one of his aides. Aoun's radio station said.

The assassination attempt came shortly after the Syrian army moved thousands of troops toward the enclave for an expected attack on the headquarters of Aoun, who has resisted orders by Lebanon's government to step down.

Bulk of Iraq's navy is useless, trapped in Italian port on Riviera

ROME (AP) — Every morning 90 Iraqi sailors hoist the flag on the two Emerald-class corvettes, rev their engines and swivel their 70-millimeter cannons menacingly along the horizon.

It is a scene that would worry the U.S. military — if it were not taking place on the sunny Italian Riviera. The two corvettes, and eight other Emerald-class corvettes, were built in Italy in 1980. They were to have formed the bulk of Iraq's most powerful naval fleet ever.

But as Saddam Hussein's country prepares for war, it would be navy is stranded at an Italian military base and a nearby shipyard's docks, a victim of delays and Italian government embargoes.

"It will be very difficult" for these ships to ever arrive in Iraq," said Marco Maria Ferranti, spokesman for the Italian shipbuilder, Finmeccanica.

The shipbuilding deal between Iraq and Italy is an example of the lucrative arms contracts that Baghdad reached with Western countries in the past decade.

The deal also included a billion contract for shipbuilding industry.

It called for the state-owned Finmeccanica to supply Iraq with four Lupo-class frigates, each displacing about 2,500 tons and armed with short-range missiles.

The company also agreed to build two Emerald-class corvettes and four Wadi-class corvettes, loaded with helicopters, missile and rocket launchers, and anti-submarine torpedoes supplied by other Italian firms.

The fleet also included a support ship and a floating dock.

It would have completely transformed the quality and capacity of their (Iraq's) fleet," said Jim McCoy, managing director of the London-based International Institute of Strategic Studies.

"They would have become a force in the Persian Gulf."

The first part of the shipbuilding deal, a support ship, headed for Iraq in 1982. The rest of the fleet was to be built in Italy.

But Iraq's navy was to be built in the Persian Gulf. The ship could not reach its base at Basra since the Shatt-al-Arab waterway was blocked.

The vessel docked at Alexandria, Egypt, where it remained for a year.

In 1986, two corvettes were formally turned over to Iraq. One hundred Iraqi sailors went to the naval base at La Spezia, 270 miles north of Rome, to train on the ships.

But later that year, Iraq decided to suspend the sale of military goods to Iran and Iraq, Iraq, which had paid half the price of the ships, cut off further payments.

Finmeccanica continued to build, hoping the measure was temporary. Their hopes were raised when the Iraq-Iran war ground to a halt in 1988.

Finally, in April, the Italian government announced it was prepared in principle to let the ships go to Iraq.

But Iraq decided it wanted some compensation for its long wait. According to Ferranti, Iraq demanded more helicopters, radar systems, a high-speed gunboat, shipbuilding plans and a sophisticated electronic warfare command system.

The Italian government began to get cold feet. In May, Italian police seized nearly 100 tons of steel parts.

on suspicions they were destined for an alleged Iraqi supergun. Italy then refused to let the two Iraqi corvettes go home.

"The position of Saddam Hussein certainly wasn't reassuring," said a Foreign Ministry spokesman, Alessandro Di Franco.

In the meantime, Iran, worried about the Gulf war, summoned the Italian ambassador to protest any turnover of the ships to Iraq.

Negotiations on Iraq's demands were stalled by the time it invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2. Italy has since observed a U.N. boycott on trade with Iraq, leaving the ships stuck once again.

Don Kerr, another analyst at the Institute of Strategic Studies, says the ships "could have been useful now to Iraq." At the very least like a security blanket.

However, they would have been no match for the multinational force now in the Gulf.

What will happen to Iraq's would-be navy?

The ships may be sold to someone else, Ferranti said. However, such a sale would mean breaking a legal contract with Iraq and paying it back.

These aren't packets of nuts. They are warships," said Di Franco. "It's a delicate thing."

Finmeccanica is losing millions of dollars a year maintaining the ships it can't deliver, Ferranti said.

Meanwhile, every day, the 90 Iraqis go through their paces on their corvettes, running fire drills, swiveling the anti-aircraft missile ramps and aiming the guns at imaginary enemies, officials said.

The arms have no ammunition, to 20 degrees from the 115-degree norm in August, when the soldiers started to arrive.

"A couple days ago it was 95 and that was magnificent," said Col. Tom Trabackary, 43, of the 24th Infantry Division's Aviation Brigade.

Many troops are also getting their first phone calls home and it's always a toss-up who is more surprised the caller or the recipient in the United States.

One staff sergeant, sitting in the middle of a fruitless waste of sand, got through to his wife in Camp Pendleton, Calif., via satellite link.

He was obviously having trouble getting a word in edgewise as he kept saying into the phone, "Uh, honey...honey..."

Finally, he bellowed, "Honey! Shut up! I love you!"

School children's letters help relieve boredom for U.S. troops

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Danny sent the scores from the Bronco game. Melissa said her fish was dead. Amy wanted to know if there is going to be a war.

The fifth-grade class at Mary Blair Elementary School in Loveland, Colo., has adopted U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf.

Seven letters arrived Thursday, bringing the colonel's haul to 11. "It's a tie for me back to the real world, life goes on," said the Army public relations officer.

The class adopted the colonel from Alexandria, Va., because Danny, his 10-year-old nephew, is one of the pupils.

The letters were a mix of personal anecdotes and questions about the situation in the Gulf.

Melissa was one of the most talkative, saying, "I have one cat, and I used to have a fish. My brother's fish ate it. I need to get a new one."

Then she starts asking about his life. "I wonder what it's like over there. I bet it's kind of scary. I just looked over the map. I don't know where you are. It is a long way away."

You, even at a distance, managed to hit the nail on the head about the prevailing attitude among soldiers and journalists with his question, "I only have one question and that is what is it like to be going out there doing nothing, but waiting there to see if anything happens?"

The arrival of October has brought a slight easing in the fierce desert temperatures that kept troops inactive for much of the day.

"The mercury has started to fall, with the water in storage tanks actually too cold in the morning for some people's taste for showers."

Davine temperatures, while still high by most standards, are down 10 degrees from the 115-degree norm in August, when the soldiers started to arrive.

"A couple days ago it was 95 and that was magnificent," said Col. Tom Trabackary, 43, of the 24th Infantry Division's Aviation Brigade.

"The weather is hot and the entertainment is scarce," said Senan Charles Caperton, 19, of Fort Ord, Fla.

The crew enjoys daily movies through the ship's closed-circuit TV and the food, while heavy on powdered mashed potatoes, is better than the packaged, ready-to-eat meals that ground troops are eating.

Berthing messes are air conditioned, so sailors get relief from the heat for at least part of the day.

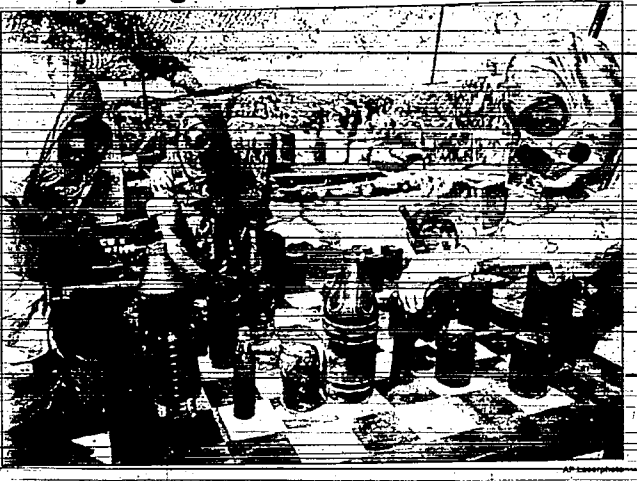

On duty, they concentrate on their primary task: the delivery of munitions in support of the Marines.

One is a velocimeter, a dome-shaped electronic device atop each turret that measures the speed of the shells as they leave the muzzle. The accurate determination of shell velocity is vital to achieve pinpoint fire.

The Wisconsin also is equipped with five remotely piloted vehicles, or RPVs. These are radio controlled airplanes launched off the rear deck of the ship and recovered by flying them into sort of a volleyball net draped across the helicopter deck.

The RPVs carry a small television camera that transmits a picture of the target back to the ship.

U.S. sailors feel secure aboard 46-year-old Wisconsin in gulf

Knights-Ridder News Service

ABOARD THE USS WISCONSIN — If it comes to shooting war, the crew of the battleship Wisconsin will be shells made in 1937 out of a gun forged in 1943 from a ship that was commissioned in 1944.

Yet many of the 1,500 crew members surrounded by this dated naval ordinance say they feel more secure than they would on other ships in the Persian Gulf.

"It's just a bit of mud-sucking being behind 16 inches of steel," said Seaman Simon Cytelski, 21, a navigation specialist from Chicago.

The crew is aware that in 1987 an Iraqi jet fired at the frigate Stark with two French-built Exocet missiles which easily punched through the ship's thin hull and killed 37 of its crew.

But the Wisconsin, built to withstand 18-inch shells from Japanese battleships, has armor plating that runs from 2 inches thick in the outer hull to 22 inches on the turret.

All that armor does not conceal the sense of letdown aboard the ship. "When we first came over, we saw an upright and ready to go," said Lance Cpl. Stephen Rogers, 20, in other of the Marine detachment.

The activity since has been a endless routine of drills as the ship steams in circles at a leisurely 10 knots.

"The weather is hot and the entertainment is scarce," said Senan Charles Caperton, 19, of Fort Ord, Fla.

Magazine: U.S. has plans for 4-day war

PARIS (AP) — A French news magazine reported Friday that U.S. military officials have drawn up plans to free Kuwait and defeat Iraq in a four-day offensive that would leave Saddam Hussein's armed forces in ruins.

L'Express said it obtained an outline of Operation Night Camel from an unidentified adviser to Defense Secretary Richard Cheney.

The attack would begin on a moonless night with high altitude bombing by American warplanes dispatched from Turkey, Saudi Arabia and the aircraft carrier Independence, the magazine said.

The plans, including B-52s with cruise missiles, would attempt to destroy Iraq's air power, neutralize radar systems, bombing missile bases and attacking air bases before Iraqi planes could counterattack, L'Express said.

"By dawn, Iraq has lost all capacity to react," it said. "The first phase could have lasted less than six hours."

In the second phase, L'Express said, warplanes and missiles would be used to annihilate Iraq's entire military industrial complex. Targets would include nuclear facilities, chemical weapon plants, arms factories, command bunkers and the multi-lane highway to Kuwait.

Also during this phase, an air force would be mounted on Iraqi tank units massed near the border with Saudi Arabia, L'Express said.

The magazine said the goal of the third phase would be to cut off links between Kuwait and Iraq. It said U.S. Green Berets and Navy commandos would infiltrate behind Iraqi lines to disrupt communications.

Then, it said, the multinational force would launch an offensive along the Iraqi-Kuwait border, using tank-fighter planes, combat helicopters and 200 U.S. M-1 tanks. This would be aimed at cutting off the 170,000 Iraqi soldiers in Kuwait from supplies and reinforcements in Iraq.

The fourth and final phase, according to L'Express, would be an even larger offensive to reconquer Kuwait.

It said 11,000 U.S. Marines would land on Kuwait's north coast, while 35,000 Marines, three mechanized U.S. Army infantry battalions, 4,000 French troops, 6,000 British troops and 50,000 soldiers from the paratrooper would cross into Kuwait from the south to liberate it, it said.

NRA won't endorse in this year's Idaho gubernatorial race

The Associated Press

The National Rifle Association endorsed the opponent of Gov. Cecil Andrus four years ago, but will remain neutral in the Democratic's seemingly unopposed bid for an unprecedented fourth term.

In 1986, The National Rifle Association's Institute for Legislative Action endorsed Republican Lt. Gov. David Leroy over Andrus, who let it be known he was not happy with the NRA, labeling members "the gun nuts of the world."

This time around, Andrus did not return the organization's questionnaire. Republican opponent Roger Fairchild completed the survey.

"We... elected in that race not to grade or endorse either candidate," said Jack Lenz, director of Washington, D.C., state liaison for the NRA political arm. But in its ranking of candidates, provided to Idaho NRA members through its publications, the group indicated that still had reservations about Andrus, who is a devoted hunter. A "White" flag. Andrus did sign the recently enacted reform of the concealed-carry permit law. Andrus has taken in the past on "gun control" issues and his commitment to firearms ownership and sportsmen's concerns," according to the NRA Official Jour-

Andrus Fairchild

"Mr. Fairchild's record as a state senator and his candidate questionnaire both indicate solid support for the industry spreading the goodies among his good ol' boy network."

"The Andrus administration is rife with similar special-interest influence that may not always get in all of Idaho's best interests."

Asked why no rank-and-file members of said Friday in Wallace that the federal government must not to preserve the silver industry.

"There is no question that Idaho's silver producers are in a fight for survival. It is unthinkable to me that the United States will let this essential industry be forced to its knees by unfair foreign competition," the governor said.

He called for federal price controls on silver and a tariff on foreign imports.

Democratic U.S. Senate candidate Milton Twigg criticized the role Congress and President Bush are taking in a so-far futile effort to resolve the budget crisis.

"It's a circus," Twigg said Friday. "If the politicians can't do any better than this, they ought to just go home and let voters elect some new blood."

He said he supports cutting spending first. And he says whatever is done, it should be fair.

"Everybody is willing to give up a little bit, but the weight of the solution should not be on the middle class or the seniors. The 1980s weren't their party, and they shouldn't have to pay for it," he said.

Andrus was instrumental in getting financial backing for Andrus from the state's largest utility in his last two campaigns and the appointment obviously was a political payoff.

"This is yet another example of Mr. Andrus spreading the goodies among his good ol' boy network."

County must use old zoning laws

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Court of Appeals says Bannock County must rule on a 1983 zoning request using laws in effect at the time because it never issued a formal ruling on the matter.

The court on Friday unanimously upheld a decision by 6th District Judge William Woodland, who directed the county to rule on the zoning matter on the basis of a 1978 ordinance. Domingo Sologoa and Ronald Mills asked for a change in zoning from agricultural to recreational for Sologoa's land in Bannock County.

Experts to outline fish protection issues

MOSCOW — Economists and biologists from universities in Idaho, Oregon and Washington have agreed to help the region's residents understand issues stemming from protection of salmon in the Northwest's Columbia Basin.

The National Marine Fisheries Service is studying the possibility of designating five types of salmon in the Columbia River and its tributaries as threatened or endangered species.

Experts from the University of Idaho, Oregon State University and Washington State University met recently in Portland, Ore., to discuss easing the impact.

Decision pending on using evidence

LEWISTON — Attorneys have argued the legality of admitting into evidence statements made by Richard Brewer, charged with the first-degree murder of a Lewiston man.

Brewer, 17, of San Bernardino, Calif., is charged in the stabbing death of Logan Hollingsworth, a Lewiston waiter. Hollingsworth's body was found in his apartment on June 14. Brewer and Scott Weimann, 19, of St. Maries, were stopped by police in Klamath Falls, Ore., as they were reportedly driving Hollingsworth's car.

Following a two-day hearing Thursday, 2nd District Judge John Bengtson said he would wait for written arguments before deciding if he will deny prosecutors the right to use as evidence statements Brewer made to Lewiston and Oregon State police.

Lewiston schools must teach inmates

LEWISTON — When a $12 million regional juvenile detention center opens in Lewiston in a year's time, the local schools must educate the inmates.

"Wherever the detention center is located, that's the district that is responsible," C. Montgomery Hibbard, Lewiston School District special services director, said Thursday.

1st District rancor erupts during debate

BOISE (AP) — Democratic 1st District congressional candidate Larry LaRocco has raised a record amount of money for his race against Republican state Sen. Skip Smyser, and says he'll use part of it to offset Smyser's negative campaign.

In an interview Friday, LaRocco said his federal campaign finance report due Monday will show he has raised $250,000, a record for a 1st District Democrat. He says he has raised $250,000, a record for a 1st District Democrat. He says he has raised $250,000, a record for a 1st District Democrat.

LaRocco

"I thought the shots he then left, but LaRocco was really stayed and further vented his anger. This is a turning point in this campaign," he said.

The candidate appeared together Thursday on a newspaper debate that turned into a heated confrontation. Both candidates vowed to retaliate for what they claimed were negative attacks from the other.

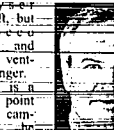

The exchange came after the candidates participated in a debate that will appear in Sunday's editions of The Idaho Statesman. Smyser turned his back on LaRocco as the two men stood to leave, sparking the following exchange:

LaRocco: "Skip, you won't even turn and face me after some of those questions—that's some of the sleaziest stuff I've ever seen."

Smyser, who then turned and shook LaRocco's hand, retorted: "You'll see me."

LaRocco: "Thanks for the threat, Skip."

Smyser: "That's no threat; that's fact."

Smyser

"Anyone who's watched this race knows that he's been attacking and attacking and attacking," Smyser said.

LaRocco said he had three reasons to be mad.

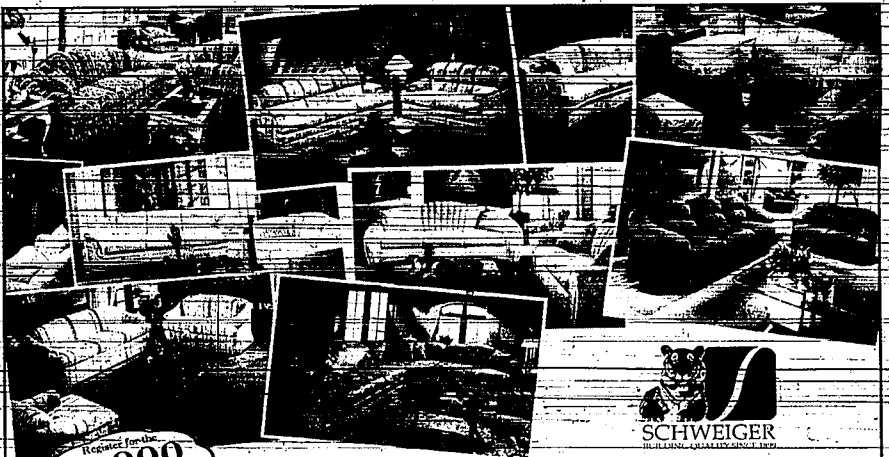

First, during the debate Smyser asked LaRocco how much he personally made from an account his employer, a Boise brokerage house, Retirement System of Idaho.

LaRocco called it an improper question and noted he did not choose to question Smyser, an attorney, about his defense of clients charged with drunken driving.

That's what the door for a long time. LaRocco said he'd defend drunk drivers. Maybe we'll talk about what we do for a living. Maybe this will turn into the dirtiest campaign in Idaho history.

Second, LaRocco complained about Smyser's "new television ad, which accuses LaRocco of flip-flopping and features unflattering photographs."

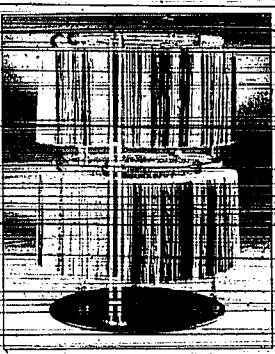

LaRocco said his ad, criticizing Smyser's vote for the anti-abortion House Bill 625, used a current Smyser campaign photograph, which he says he never used a picture of Skip Smyser 30 pounds overweight, but said Friday he would not, even in retaliation for Smyser's tactics.

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Bruins controlled the first five and last five minutes of the game Friday night to post a 14-7 victory over the Meridian Warriors.

The Bruins, driving 49 yards for the go-ahead touchdown on their second possession, posted their first playoff victory of the season and moved to 4-3 on the season.

Before the game Brain Coach John Jund said early intensity would be the key to the victory and the Bruins arose to the occasion. Later, the defense turned back Meridian on three of four scoring threats and in the closing four minutes junior Tim Gordon, a straight A student, fumbled off two tough runs for five downs that let Twin Falls run out the clock.

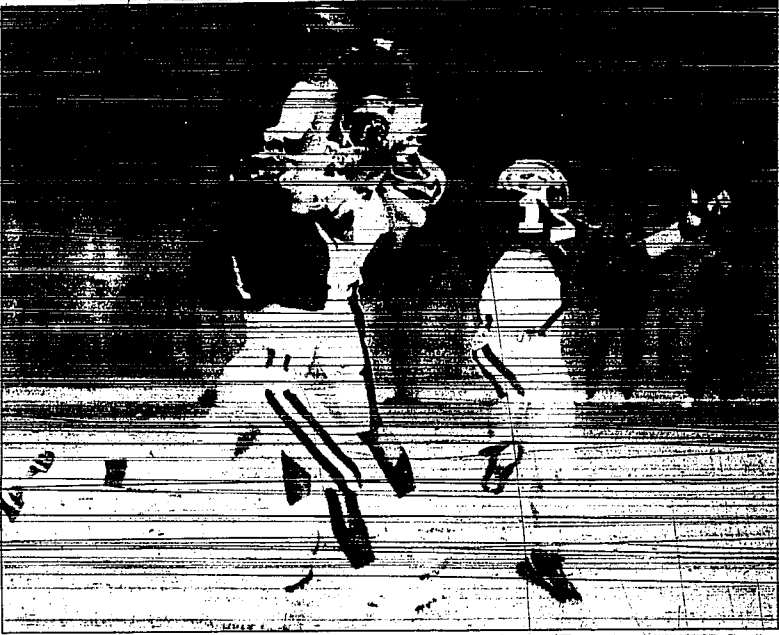

And, fittingly, it was the defense that provided the difference. Linebacker Jeff Ames picking off a flat pass and romping 66 yards for a touchdown in the second quarter.

Along the way, the Bruins made a couple of mistakes that loomed large at the time but the defense redeemed all but one of them. In the opening minutes the Bruins, holding a 7-0 lead, limited Meridian to a minus 21 yards and a punt on its first seven plays.

Then in the fourth quarter, Twin Falls appeared driving for a clinching score, moving to a first down at the Meridian 26 when junior Mark Arista had a pass picked off.

Meridian took that threat — its final pass session — to the Bruin 41 before the defense again held and the offense wasted the clock.

Jund said the plays were calculated and they would repair them again.

Reds edge by Pirates for pennant

CINCINNATI — The Cincinnati Reds won the National League pennant with a one-hitter, a game-saving catch and, of course, the Nasty Boys.

The Reds beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1 in Game 6 Friday night, and will play the Oakland A's in the World Series starting here Tuesday night.

As they had in their previous three victories in the best-of-seven series, the Reds beat the Pirates with good pitching and defense.

Starler Danny Jackson and relievers Norm Charlton and Randy Myers combined to hold the Pirates to one hit, Pittsburgh made three errors.

Ron Oester, the remaining link to the Big Red Machine of the 1970s, led off the seventh inning with a single off Zane Smith.

The Reds celebrate Friday's victory.

delivered a single to drive in Oester and send the Reds to their ninth NL pennant.

They've got a great shot at a national title if they beat us.

Oklahoma, Texas gear for classic matchup

The eyes of Texas are upon Oklahoma, and that can't be entirely good news to the Sooners.

For the 24th time in 45 years since World War II, the Sooners enter Saturday's game against Texas undefeated, this time at 5-0.

College football

Oklahoma is on NCAA probation and can't be in a bowl game this year, so the Sooners must do it in the regular season.

O'Meara has chance to top PGA record

LAS VEGAS — A combination of ideal playing conditions, some friendly little resort courses and the need for aggressive play have put the PGA Tour's 90-hole scoring record in jeopardy.

Mark O'Meara, the man with the best chance of breaking the 27-under-par 333 mark in the 5-day, $13 million Las Vegas Invitational, really isn't interested.

But that's not my concern. My concern is just staying close enough to have a chance to win Sunday afternoon.

Now we're going back to the Country Club and we've got to get these kinds of playing conditions, the boys are going to fight it up.

Hagerman bests Oakley in shoot-out

The Times-News
HAGERMAN Pirat quarter back, kept the Pirates undefeated in a see-saw battle with the Trojans.
 The Pirates offense was in high gear, but the defense had trouble stopping the fourth-ranked Hornets, who dropped to 1-3-2 in the Valley Conference.
 "They ran all over us tonight," said Dan Udy, who led the Trojans to a narrow 14-10 victory over Oakley in the second overtime to improve to 6-0 overall, 4-0 in conference play.
 "We played well, but we were out of sync," Hagerman said. "We were out of sync in the first half, but we came back in the second half and we were able to stop them from scoring." Hagerman threw for 200 yards and three touchdowns, including three in overtime.
 "Oakley quarterback Todd Hale did most of the damage for the Hornets. He must have had a million yards tonight," Udy said.

Wales out in Dunhill Cup
ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP)
 With teams traveling halfway around the world in pursuit of $1 million, Jan. 22, 1990, the Dunhill Cup was a better way to decide the winner of the Dunhill Cup.
 Woosnam watched in disappointment Friday as poor play by teammates Mark and Phil Parkin helped New Zealand eliminate the Welsh Wales 2-1 in the opening match of the series on the Old Course.
 New Zealand next plays third-seeded Ireland, the 13-8 favorite. The Irish beat Spain in the second round. The seventh-seeded Wales 2-1, seeded England, a 2-1 winner over Scotland, against eighth-seeded Japan, which blanked France 3-0.

Valley 21, Gooding 7
GOODING Brian Hardy rushed 155 yards and two touchdowns to lead the Valley Vikings to a 21-7 win over the Gooding Spartans in the opening game of the Valley Conference football season.
 Hardy got his first score in the opening quarter on an 18-yard run and picked up his second one in the second quarter with a run of 75 yards. With the Vikings up 14-0, Hardy led Gooding to the game away from the Vikings when he blocked a Senators punt and returned it 23 yards for the score.
 "The Vikings win gives them a perfect 7-0 record while the Senators fall to 3-4."

Fairfield 20, Shoshone 16
FAIRFIELD The Shoshone defense was able to shut out Camas quarterback Tyler Ballard in the first half, but in the end Ballard gunned down the Indians to keep the Mustangs in a virtual tie at the Sawtooth Conference.
 The teams traded touchdowns in the first half, with Shoshone scoring in the first quarter and Camas coming back in the second. A successful conversion left the Indians with a 6-14 lead.
 Shoshone drew first blood in the second half and took a 10-point lead before the Camas offense got rolling. Ballard threw 18 yards to Eddie Harness as the third period wound down to pull within 16-12.
 Ballard hit his favorite receiver again in the final game to move the Mustangs to the eighth place in the league. Their lone loss came to North Gem, also 3-1.

Mackay 30, Hansen 6
MACKAY Senior quarterback Brad Lambson passed for three touchdowns and ran in another Friday as Mackay trounced Hansen 30-6 in the Magic Conference football season.
 It was the second-ranked Miners' fifth victory in six outings and improved their MVC slate to 3-1. Hansen slipped to 2-5 and 2-3 with the Joss.
 Lambson hooked up with Brandon Curtis for a strike in the first period before keeping for the first seven yards in his team's second quarter drive. James Puke and Josh Stoddard were the recipients of Lambson's TD passes after intricate play.

Jerome 20, S-Fremont 7
ST. ANTHONY Richie DeLong broke a pair of long touchdowns run by the Jerome Tigers to their sixth straight Friday night, a 20-7 victory over the South Fremont Cougars.
 The Cougars scored on runs of 21 yards in the second quarter and 61 in the third to put a little heat into the otherwise windy and icy Eastern Idaho night.
 Gary Showers gave Jerome the lead in the early minutes with a one-yard plunge in the first quarter.
 The Cougars answered on a 51-yard bomb from junior Steve Christensen to Chad Rose.

Castleford 48, Murtaugh 14
MURTAUGH Mike Wilkins rushed for 100 yards and two touchdowns as Castleford won its first game of the season. Wilkins rushed for 100 yards and two touchdowns as Castleford won its first game of the season.

Carey 50, Sho-Ban 6
CAREY The Panthers routed the winless Chiefs behind three consecutive rushing touchdowns by Matt Parke.
 The win evened Carey's conference mark at 3-3. The Panthers will take next week off before finishing the season with Shoshone.

Rockland 35, Richfield 14
RICHFIELD The Rockland Bulldogs remained in the thick of the Sawtooth Conference football race by virtue of a 35-14 decision of Richfield's Tigers Friday afternoon.
 The Bulldogs, 4-1 in conference and 5-1 overall, thus remain in a virtual first place tie with Camas (5-1 and 6-1), 20-6 victory over Shoshone Friday, and have already visited only loss on the regular-offer once beaten club, North Gem.

Wendell 19, Kimberly 32
WENDELL The Bulldogs exploded for 19 first-quarter points en route to a 19-31 victory over Kimberly.
 Ater Kimberly recovered a Wendell fumble in the end zone, Chris Glenn went to work, hitting Bill Hanegy for a 63-yard score.
 Lanny Ledbetter capped the period with a 38-yard touchdown run.
 Wendell took the lead with nine minutes left in the fourth with its second TD pass, a 48-yard strike to Brian Thompson.

Patriots' boss taking team's bevy of troubles in stride

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — From a sexual harassment accusation to four losses in five games to a scuffle outside a nightclub, the New England Patriots' season has been one outrageous problem after another.

General Manager Patrick Sullivan says he bothers him more these days than any other time in his 16 years as the Patriots' coach.

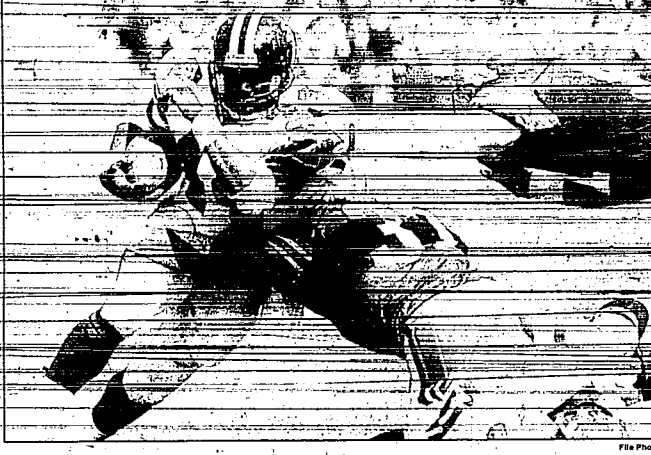

Earley Thursday night on one count of felony assault against Dykes. The charge carries up to 10 years in prison if Earley is convicted. Maj. Milton Wilson said.

Wilson said he was one of the referees who drew up the conviction against Earley. Fryer, who faces a felony gun charge in connection with the scuffle, was hit on the head by what one of Fryer's lawyers said might have been a crutch.

Fryer was released on Saturday pending a hearing Dec. 12. Sullivan doubted that Fryer, because he was the one attacked, would receive anywhere near the maximum penalty of five years in prison.

49ers go for club record in facing Atlanta

There's a saying in racing that a top horse takes its track with it — meaning it can win anywhere. That's what the San Francisco 49ers want with the horses, do in the National Football League.

Falcons' John Settle should be in the backfield in Sunday's game

The 49ers (3-0) will be at Atlanta Sunday attempting to win for the 14th consecutive time on the road. Success would stretch their overall winning streak to a club-record 15 games.

The Falcons beat the Redskins 38-24 last Sunday. Seattle's Derrick Penner has rushed for an NFL-leading eight touchdowns in a 32-20 win over New Orleans. The Seahawks rushed for a total of five touchdowns in 1989.

The Rams hope Jim Everett, the NFL's fourth-leading passer, can get them untracked from their worst start since going 1-6 in 1987.

The Lions hope Jim Everett, the NFL's fourth-leading passer, can get them untracked from their worst start since going 1-6 in 1987.

Atlanta (2-2) club has contributed to the 49ers' overall streak this season, losing 19-16 Sept. 23 at Candlestick Park.

The Rams hope Jim Everett, the NFL's fourth-leading passer, can get them untracked from their worst start since going 1-6 in 1987.

The Lions hope Jim Everett, the NFL's fourth-leading passer, can get them untracked from their worst start since going 1-6 in 1987.

Detmer returns but BYU defense shaky

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Ty Detmer's passing hand has healed, so coach LaVell Edwards counts on the Utah-ranked quarterback's return to avenge the loss of a key offensive weapon against Colorado State.

I'm 'not too concerned' about keeping CSU in check — LaVell Edwards

But then there's the defense, nearly as prolific in surrendering touchdowns as it has been in scoring. The junior quarterback had a sprained knee — has led the 13th-ranked Cougars to 529 yards offense in a game. BYU's defense, which has been riddled for an average of 435 yards.

Overall, 2.0 in conference play. "CSU runs an I-formation. They like to run the football and they'll run some option, too," Edwards said.

Gerring up by 1 stroke in world championship

CELBY, Tampa (AP) — Cathy Gerring shot a second straight 69 Friday and held the lead after two rounds of the U.S. World Golf Championship while Japan's Ayako Uehara surged into contention with a 6 under-par 66.

Edwards' Oklahoma's round was the best score of the tourney. "She had five birdies, one bogey and a triple eagle at the 20th hole, she chipped a 9 on about 10 yards." "My timing and rhythm" were great today, Okamoto said.

Deadlines loom on plan to sell Expos to local buyers

MONTREAL (AP) — Claude Brochu, the Montreal Expos' president and chief executive officer, says local buyers is scrambling to get his group of investors together to meet two looming deadlines.

Brochu said he is 54-55 million short of having the $20 million in private investment needed to purchase the team. He is expected to present his plans to a group of other major league owners by Dec. 1-6 winter meetings in Las Vegas.

Brochu must have a full group of investors to present to the scouting service Alter. But the stadium to be moved and renovated would have to wait until 1992.

Brochu said the stadium renovation is essential to our season-ticket sales campaign. "The board said it needs confirmation the group will buy the club by the end of the month so it can put out tenders for the work."

NBA dominance in Europe slugging

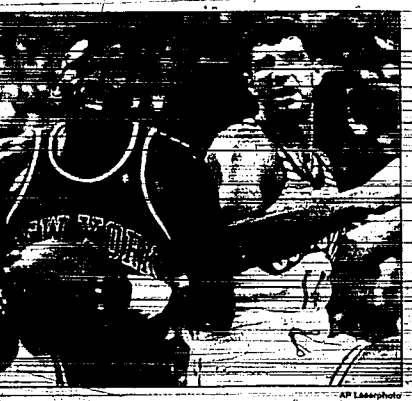

Continental teams no longer easy pickings for visitors from United States

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — The NBA's Cook, who spent seven years in the NBA before leaving to take over the Greek league, says it's not longer that easy.

Barcelonians combined for 44 points, including a 30-point performance by forward Panos Giannoulis. The Knicks received a dominating performance from Patrick Ewing, who had 34 points, 17 rebounds, eight blocks and three steals.

The length of the game hurt us," Scavolini coach Sergio Scavolini said. "We're not used to playing anything less 55 minutes." The Knicks will face European champion POP 84 Split of Yugoslavia in Saturday's championship game. The Yugoslavian team defeated Barcelona 102-97 Thursday, with guard Velimir Perasovic scoring 24 points and forward Toni Kukoc 23.

Kukoc, who was drafted by the Chicago Bulls this year but elected to stay in his native Yugoslavia, showed why he is known in Europe as "the left-handed Magic Johnson."

NEW YORK—The stock market pulled out of a steep three-session slide with a rally Friday, but analysts expect it to remain volatile through the week to 1142.00 points. Advancing issues outnumbered declines by nearly 3 to 2 in a nationwide trading session. The Dow Jones Industrial Average rose 32.92 points to 2,398.02, cutting its loss from the previous session. Nationwide, the "solidated" volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trading in those issues regionally, changed and the over-the-counter market, including 472.75 million shares. Oil prices dropped amid speculation that chances might be improving for a break in the Specifically, analysts cited a report attributed to the opposition party President Saddam Hussein had been winning opinions on the possibility of withdrawing from Kuwait. But hawkers also said the economic and financial news offered little evidence of lasting relief from the recession worries that have plagued the market for several months. The Labor Department reported that the unemployment rate had risen to 6.9 percent, lumped 16 percent in September, propelled by surging interest rates.

The new, unusual economics may belong to no school at all

NEW YORK — The new economics now on display in Congress is tantamount to millions of Americans who were brought up on a more or less standard brand of the art that everyone understood.

It included government actions to smooth wrinkles in the economic cycle — maintaining an equilibrium between supply and demand and avoiding inflation and recession. Economic growth was good, stagnation was to be avoided.

Now they aren't sure. The new economics, they fear, belongs to no school at all, and say the wages are likely ever to gain admittance to a school. It appears instead to be a conglomeration of conflicts and contradictions.

Those brought up in the practical school of economics over the past half century accepted the idea that government inaction was sometimes acceptable to control an economy from growing too weakly or too strongly.

Booms and busts were to be avoided. You avoided booms by raising interest rates and maybe taxes, and by controlling federal spending. You averted recessions by lowering taxes and interest rates, and maybe by spending more.

John Cuniff
Business Mirror

The new economics now on display in Washington seems to be a different — and so far unidentifiable — brand, since it would raise taxes and provocatively slow federal spending while the country trends toward recession.

It is also accompanied by a monetary policy — a Federal Reserve policy — that appears to be more contractionist than expansionist, and that has resisted pleas by businesses and investors for easier money.

Yes, it's confusing, and it may be little solace to people to realize that many members of the professional community internally are confused as anyone. Negatives abound, they say, and more taxes might make them worse.

Among the negatives: Economic expansion, if it still exists, has slowed to a crawl and may soon go into reverse. Consumer confidence is at its lowest since the 1982 recession. Unemployment is growing steadily. Manufacturing activity is stalling.

Small businesses are complaining of a credit crunch. Bankruptcies are rising. Banks are failing. Important insurers are endangered because their real estate portfolios have collapsed. Household, business and government debt is high.

The securities markets are in serious trouble: junk bonds are defaulting and the stock market has plunged, erasing just billions of dollars but literally trillions from portfolios around the world in August and September.

Had such a situation occurred in the past it most likely would have been countered by calls for propping up the economy through tax relief, lower interest rates and conceivably some pump-priming by the federal government. Today, the economy seems to be caught in a vicious political debate that obscures the issues. It has no sponsor, no spokesman, no outspoken defender.

The Federal Reserve, which handles monetary policy, has indicated that interest-rate relief might be forthcoming if budget negotiators reach an acceptable agreement. But what if they don't?

Corporate leaders cautious about prospects of a recession

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — The U.S. economy still can't avert a recession, most of the nation's top business leaders said Friday, but others counted that a downturn already has begun or is imminent.

Even if the economy does skirt a recession, the Business Council forecast calls for no more than a barely perceptible 0.3 percent growth during the second half of the year.

The report prepared for the 100 chief executives of the nation's largest corporations, holding their semi-annual two-day meeting at the mountain resort, was much more pessimistic than one last spring projecting moderate growth in the months ahead.

"They're much more worried" than they were at May's meeting, said a spokesman for J.P. Morgan & Co., the council's vice chairman, said of the 19 corporate economists who compiled the forecast. "Not worried enough, in my judgment."

Asked whether he thought the economy already was in a recession, a person told reporters, "I do."

Several other council members agreed.

The council's economic consultants had predicted last spring the economy would continue to grow moderately at least through 1991.

"A clear majority... still expect slow, but positive, growth through the middle of 1991," their new report said, although five of the 19 economists projected a recession.

"The September survey indicates that economic growth is expected to slow from the already sluggish 1.1 percent annual rate in the first half of 1990 to only 0.3 percent in the second half before gradually accelerating to a 1.2 percent pace in the first half of 1991 and 2.6 percent in the second half of next year," the report said.

The council report said economic weakness is expected to be concentrated in housing, consumer spending on durable goods — usually expensive items — expected to last more than three years — and business investment.

Other highlights from the forecast:

- Industrial production will advance less than 1 percent through the middle of 1991 but accelerate to a 3.6 percent annual rate in the second half of 1991.
- The nation's merchandise trade deficit will continue to improve because of a lower dollar and strong economies overseas.
- The gap is predicted to drop from 109 billion in 1989 to $68 billion this year and $91 billion in 1991.

Although most of the consultants were not forecasting a recession, they raised the probability of a downturn by year's end to 39 percent from 22 percent last May.

The probability of a recession by mid-1991 has increased from 29 percent to 47 percent, the report added.

"Indeed," it said, "an informal poll taken at an Oct. 2 meeting indicated that a majority of the consultants had further lowered their growth expectations since the September survey as the result of additional increases in oil prices and generally weak economic reports."

But the poll found that the economists believe any recession would be relatively mild and not as severe as the downturns of 1973-75 and 1981-82.

VFW official to honor local man at celebration

TWIN FALLS — The national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, James L. Kinney, will be in town today to honor state VFW Commander Randy Russell of Twin Falls.

A homecoming celebration for Russell, the state VFW commander since June, will be held tonight at 6 p.m. at the Turf Club.

Kinney will arrive at 11 p.m. today at Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional Airport.

Twine maker begins work on more warehouse space

JEROME — Bridon Cordage, Inc., has started construction on additional warehouse and storage space at its twine manufacturing plant located in the Jerome Industrial Park.

One of the first companies to occupy the park, Bridon Cordage received a building permit for a 20,000-square-foot addition to the present building, according to Kirk Hansen, Jerome County building inspector. Construction valuation for the expansion is $323,379, Hansen said.

Doris Jean Stetter, administrative manager at the Bridon Cordage headquarters in Albert Lea, Minn., declined to give information on the new addition.

Eden now picks up garbage; water rates will climb by $1

EDEN — The city of Eden is picking up residents' garbage every week for a monthly rate of $5 per household and water rates will increase.

Eden City Council member Diann McNeil said that since the city began picking up the garbage, there have been several households just the list of residents to want the service.

Council members Sharon Krupp and McNeil both said the City Council members will continue to provide the service at least until spring.

In the spring, with the switch from day-light savings time to standard time, a teen-ager should be available after school to pick up the garbage with the city's new truck, some council members said.

Public welcome to speak at BLM resource meetings

TWIN FALLS — The public can participate in an upcoming land use plan for the Bennett Hills Resource Area in a series of open meetings scheduled by the Shoshone District Bureau of Land Management.

The Bennett Hills Area includes 649,000 acres of public land in Blaine, Elmore, Camias, Gooding, Lincoln, and Jerome counties. Public comment will be used to develop a Resource Management Plan that will provide management of the area for the next 20 years.

All meetings will run from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. BLM personnel will answer questions and document the public comments.

Thursday, Oct. 17 — Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce
 Thursday, Oct. 17 — Gooding County Courthouse
 Saturday, Oct. 19 — Jerome City Hall
 Tuesday, Oct. 22 — Shoshone District BLM office

Wednesday, Oct. 24 — Camas County Sheriff's office in Fairfield
 Saturday, Oct. 26 — The Old Blaine County Courthouse in Halley.

Comments may also be sent to the Shoshone District office at 400 West F Street, P.O. Box 2B, Shoshone 83352.

House-Senate panel agrees on INEL program funding

WASHINGTON — A House-Senate conference committee has agreed to recommend $13 million in the coming year for the Idaho neutron capture therapy program at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, said the recommendation came after he thwarted House conferees' attempts to cut funding for the experimental cancer treatment program at the U.S. Department of Energy.

McClure also claimed victory by blocking attempts to remove language directing the Energy Department to start converting the INEL's idled Power Burst Facility nuclear reactor within the year.

The debate came on consideration of the Energy and Water Development Appropriations Bill for fiscal 1991. The reconciled measure now returns to both the House and Senate for final congressional approval.

Developers want Filer to pay them $300,000

By Cathryn Stephens
Times-News correspondent

FILER — Developers of a proposed subdivision have demanded $300,000 from the city as compensation for what the developers' lawyer calls "planned and premeditated stalling" by Mayor Robert Fort.

Crest Hughes of Filer is developing the Golden State Subdivision west of Thurman Street and south of West Midway.

Along with two family members and co-owners, Judy Hughes and Jeanette Hughes, he filed a claim for damages in District Court. Under Idaho law, such a claim is the preliminary step before a lawsuit.

Lawyer Bill Groom said the clients are seeking compensation for costs caused by the city's delays. Although the City Council approved an agreement allowing the subdivision in June, Fort did not sign the agreement until August.

"When you get to the point that a citizen has done all they can do, it is up to the city official to do what they are legally bound to do," the citizen shouldn't have to pay the court costs and attorney's fees, Groom said.

Along with legal costs, the claim asks for compensation for lost rent and profit from the sale of subdivision lots. In addition, Groom said the Hugheses lost the 1990 bonding season as a result of the subdivision not being approved until the end of the summer.

"The mayor caring for the city's interests is one thing," Groom said. "Planned and premeditated stalling is something else."

On Groom's advice, Crest Hughes declined to comment on the claim.

Fort and City Attorney Fred Decker also refused to comment on grounds that legal action is pending.

But in a memorandum to the council on Aug. 27, the day he signed the subdivision approval agreement, Fort said he had delayed signing to "take the opportunity to express my objections to the agreement as it is now expressed."

The memo said the city Water Department had informed Fort that the city had insufficient well capacity for the development, and arrangements had not been made to drill more wells.

Fort also expressed concern that the agreement would be a poor precedent by waiving some of the normal subdivision requirements.

Groom said that the Hugheses first proposed the subdivision in February, but even after the City Council approved the plan in June, the mayor did not sign the agreement

Rangers to crack down on hunting at fossil beds

By Suzanne Huxhold
Times-News correspondent

HAGERMAN — After nearly two years of looking the other way, National Park rangers will begin enforcing the no-hunting law at the Hagerman Fossil Beds National Monument when the season begins next weekend.

Rangers will also begin tearing down duck blinds along the shoreline.

The move has drawn fire from the local Wildlife Council and hunters say they are concerned they have lost their hunting rights without proper representation from government on either a local or a national level.

Rangers David Pugh and Neil King told an angry group of hunters from the Hagerman area Thursday night that they will begin to enforce the National Park policy that prohibits hunting on park property.

Hagerman Fossil Beds National Park was established in March 1988, but Pugh said rangers have been unable to enforce the ban until now due to lack of funds and manpower.

The affected area runs about one-quarter mile downstream from Upper Salmon Falls Power Plant about six miles down the river to about three-quarters of a mile above the Lower Salmon Falls Power Plant.

The Snake River's high-water mark is a boundary and the western boundary runs along the former BLM survey lines.

King told the group that under the Organic Act of 1916, all National Parks must be managed for "non-consumptive use of resources."

The hunters were not impressed.

Many of the questions from the group of local hunters centered around the fact that the issue has only recently come to their attention. They asked Pugh and King why they had not been informed earlier of the change in policy.

"I think this community was unaware of this," said local resident John Perry.

The rangers said that hearings had been held in the course of several years, including one that Hagerman Mayor Merle Cusley and city officials attended and another that Idaho Sen. James McClure attended.

Pugh and King said no one ever brought up the subject of hunting at "those public" sites. In fact, King noted, the records of all official hearings on the Fossil Beds Monument conducted by Congress between 1976 and 1987 contained no references to hunting.

The only official objection ever filed about the hunting was a letter from the Fish and Game Department, but it concerned the City of Rocks and not the

E911 vote could speed help to those in need

By Phil Sahm
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It comes down to time.

A 3-year-old calls 911. Her mother is bleeding and unconscious from a fall, but the child does not know the home address.

A woman being beaten by her husband dials 911, but she slams down the phone before police can take her name.

It could be any fire or medical emergency and anyone making the call can panic and give the wrong address, or not know the address. This has happened when people dial 911 in an emergency.

A few minutes, a few seconds, can cost a life.

Law enforcement officers, firefighters and medical workers say an enhanced 911 emergency communications system, or E911, can save lives by saving time.

Twin Falls, Lincoln, Jerome and Gooding counties will vote Nov. 6 on establishing E911. "Each county already has approved E911."

If voters approve the initiative, it will cost $1 a month for each residential phone line. Establishing a system would take at least 18 months. The money accrued from the 5-year program change during that time would help pay for the system.

"I'm going to vote for it," said Brent Butters, a paramedic at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

But he added that the enhanced system's real advantage will depend on how services are dispatched.

Unlike the current 911 system, E911 automatically identifies the caller's address.

McRoberts, Walker focus on health, farm issues

By Mark Kind
Times-News writer

One-term incumbent Republican state Sen. Joyce McRoberts of Twin Falls would like to resolve some health care issues in the coming session of the Idaho Legislature.

Democratic challenger Lloyd Walker of Twin Falls wants to see a change in Idaho's agriculture warehouse bonding practices.

Education

McRoberts: "When it comes to education, until the community, the parents and businesses take an interest, it's just not going to work."

McRoberts favors merit pay for teachers, but fears school administrators may not know how to determine which teachers deserve it. She wants more training for administrators on personnel and financial matters.

She said she would probably support the plan to create a statewide community college funding system.

Walker: "One of the problems with Idaho

District 23 race background

The Times-News

Joyce McRoberts, also of Twin Falls.

TWIN FALLS — A self-described "unconstructed 60s liberal" is pursuing the Senate seat held for the past six years by Republicans named McRoberts.

Lloyd Walker, a Twin Falls Democrat and lawyer, is challenging incumbent McRoberts, a Twin Falls businesswoman, who was first elected from District 23 in 1988, but she had already filled the seat several times for her husband, former Sen. Darrel McRoberts, when he went out of state on business.

District 23 covers Twin Falls County.

Walker said he was the place of 126 people to decide this for the whole state.

Walker: "I think I favor parental control and pushing a button."

On merit pay, Walker said, "I believe in it. I'm not sure how you go about it."

On community colleges, he said he's opposed to creating a community college district by political office holder has an obligation far greater than going to Boise and pushing a button."

Walker said he would be spreading out funding for the community colleges.

Abortion

McRoberts: "I would by far rather have adoption than abortion."

Walker: "I would have an issue in future legislative sessions. McRoberts would favor letting the people decide in a statewide vote."

"At least if we put it on the ballot, if 31 percent of the people vote to have it, that's then that's the way it should be."

She voted against House Bill 625, the anti-abortion law. Gail Andrus last session that would have outlawed late abortions except for some victims of rape or incest or for women whose health was producers for hiking prices. Since Iraq's invasion of oil-rich Kuwait, I think it's a matter of who's profiting."

Other issues

McRoberts: She wants the state to take indigent medical-payment programs from the counties and expand them to include eye care, dental care, soft organ transplants, and some psychiatric services.

She would also like to see the in-home health-care program funded. The plan, created in the last session, seeks to keep health care costs down by providing financial assistance for the care of elderly people who wish to remain in Idaho. It will cost the state an estimated $1.2 million its first year and $3.5 million the second year and it would serve about 2,500 people.

Talk show host criticizes Nashville mayor

NEW YORK (AP) — Nashville Mayor Bill Boner has been so diverted by his romance with aspiring country singer Traci Peal that he isn't doing his job, talk show host Phil Donahue says.

"You are very close to giving the finger to the city," Donahue said during a taping of "Donahue" Thursday. "You're a distracted mayor. You were an out-of-the-control adult."

Peal and Boner made national headlines during their reported summer romance while the mayor was still married to his third wife, Betty. Boner married Peal on Oct. 1, three days after his divorce was final.

Boner said he has accomplished much during his three-year term.

"I've brought more money into Nashville than anybody else," Boner said. "We lived up to our commitments. We have a totally integrated solid-waste management system."

Peal sang "Rocky Top" during the show, accompanied by Boner on the harmonica.

Pierce recorded "There Stands the Glass" and "Wondering." Tennessee's Ernie Ford was named this year's hall of fame inductee at the Country Music Association awards show Monday.

Gordin, 55, was in stable condition Friday at Baptist Hospital's coronary care unit with bypass surgery scheduled later in the day, the hospital said. He was admitted earlier in the day.

Gordin was honored Wednesday at the annual banquet of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers. He was recognized for his hit songs "I'm Still Crazy," "That Just About Does It," and "Who You Gonna Blame it on This Time."

Duchess-of-York planning Australian trip next month

LONDON (AP) — The Duchess of York will make a four-day official visit to Australia next month, Buckingham Palace announced Friday.

The duchess was invited to Australia by the Royal Flying Doctor Service, but will also carry out other engagements in New South Wales and Victoria from Nov. 5 to 8.

The former Sarah Ferguson, who will turn 41 on Monday, married Prince Andrew, the second son of Queen Elizabeth II, in July 1986. On their wedding day, the queen made Andrew the Duke of York.

Columnist Broder receives Colter's Lovjoy award

WATERVILLE, Maine (AP) — Syndicated columnist David S. Broder of The Washington Post is the recipient of the Philip Colter Parish Lovjoy award, Colby College officials said.

Broder, winner of the 1973 Pulitzer Prize for distinguished commentary, will be honored as the 38th Lovjoy fellow in a Nov. 16 ceremony at Colby's Waterville campus. He will receive an honorary doctor of laws degree and deliver the annual Lovjoy lecture.

The award is presented annually in memory of the Colby alumnus who is considered America's first martyr in the struggle to protect press freedoms. Lovjoy was killed in 1837 trying to defend his abolitionist newspaper from a pro-slavery mob.

Broder, picked by a panel of journalists and college officials, has written four books on American politics. He also writes a semi-weekly column that appears in more than 400 newspapers.

Rap star Hammer boosts spirits of cancer patient

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — An eighth-grader who is battling cancer got her spirits boosted with rapper M.C. Hammer's visit with her before a concert.

"I was really, really nice," Robyn Best said after talking to Hammer Thursday night at Rochester's Community War Memorial. "The kids at school are not going to believe this."

The meeting was arranged by Anne Colley, a secretary at Strong Children's Christ-Care Center.

Colley wrote about Robyn to local radio station WDKX, which forwarded the letter to Capitol Records and Hammer.

Hammer wrote back that he'd be happy to meet Robyn and the radio station sent her tickets and backstage passes.

Officer disguised as cameraman rescues salesgirl held at gunpoint

SÃO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — A police sergeant disguised as a television cameraman rescued a 14-year-old salesgirl held hostage for three hours on Wednesday by a drug cartel.

The sergeant, Sgt. Claudio Manoel Franco de Figueiredo, disguised as a TV cameraman, slowly approached Bastos. Seeing that the gunman's weapon was not cocked, he hurled the camera at him and grabbed the pistol.

Miss Oliveira was rescued unhurt. Bastos was walked out of the store but was carried by more than 50 police in front of a nearby Pentecostal church.

2 country singers suffering from different ailments

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singers Webb Pierce and Vassar Gordin honored this week during Country Music Week, were hospitalized with different ailments.

Pierce, 64, a nominee for the Country Music Awards Hall of Fame, said he has contracted meningitis, a rare infection of the brain, at the Southern Hills Medical Center early Friday, a hospital official said.

Pierce, who suffers from pancreatic cancer, underwent abdominal surgery in March. He was hospitalized Thursday when he began hemorrhaging.

Terminally ill boy not giving up on hope to meet president

LAKE RONCONKOMA, N.Y. (AP) — An 8-year-old boy who is terminally ill is holding out hope that President Bush will reverse a staff decision and agree to visit him.

"I want to see what he does and I want to see what he looks like," Jimmy Kilanowski said Thursday.

"The first thing I'll do when I see him is give him a big hug. And I think he wants to see me, too."

"Jimmy made his request to Wash is Granted, a non-profit organization that tries to make dreams come true for children with fatal diseases."

The youngster was diagnosed in April 1989 as suffering from malignant glioma, a brain tumor condition that claims 98 percent of the people afflicted with it within two years.

The boy's cause has been taken up by U.S. Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, whose political home base is

'Simpsons' premiere beats 'Cosby Show'

NEW YORK (AP) — The second-season premiere of Fox's "The Simpsons" beat NBC's "The Cosby Show" by more than half a ratings point, overnight ratings showed Friday.

"But NBC officials were not about to have a cow," said Preston Beckman, NBC vice president for audience research.

"The national Nielsen sample in Bill Cosby's office 'in all likelihood will win,'" said Beckman.

"The Simpsons," whose reruns have been obliterated by NBC's hit series since the new season began last month, averaged a 19.9 rating in its 24-city overnight ratings when it began its second season Thursday night.

in the Long Island suburbs where Jimmy lives. D'Amato, R-N.Y., asked White House staffers on Thursday to change their minds.

D'Amato said it appeared the staff turned down Jimmy's request without Bush's knowledge. The president now has been made aware of the situation, he said.

D'Amato said Donald Trump has agreed to fly Jimmy and his family to Washington if the visit is arranged.

"I really hope the president will change his mind," said Lori Kilanowski, Jimmy's mother. "My son is not expecting a sit-down dinner at the White House. He just wants to shake the president's hand."

Alixie Glen, a deputy White House spokeswoman, said earlier that because the White House is inundated with requests from organizations, the president deals exclusively with Make a Wish in Washington, D.C. averaging an 11.5. A CBS movie "Dark Avenger" was left far behind with a 5.2.

The 24-city overnight ratings represent more than 74 percent of the nation's 93.1 million TV households, according to Nielsen Media Research.

The high "Simpsons" ratings were indicated by NBC. Beckman said both because of heavy press coverage of the show's return and heavy coverage of the show's week.

"For most have spent an enormous amount on promotion for this show," he said. "Given all that, it's a good number for him."

Can Matt Groening's bug-eyed, big-toothed cartoon clan continue Fox Broadcasting Co.'s hit family? "It's really difficult to say," Beckman said. "That will become clearer in about two weeks from now."

The first half hour of a new "Simpsons" episode on Oct. 13, the Thursday ratings battle, he said.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

«Guess if you can, choose if you dare.»
— Pierre Cornelle

South lost not only today's slam but also the post-mortem. He tried to establish a winner in dummy, but it was of no use. The key to success rested with holding the trump suit to only one loser.

At trick two, South crossed to dummy's spade king and led a low trump. East, dummy's partner, played low and South suffered before he played low, finessing against a possible Q-x. West won the queen; later East got his ace and the slam went one-down.

«It was a pure guess,» alibied South. «It was just as likely for East to hold the queen as it was for West.»

Enter the kibitzing mathematician. «You're right about the odds being 50-50 on the queen,» said the king, «but that applies only if trumps are 2-2. Since you had a second entry to dummy, your guess finesse would also lose to A-Q-x or Q-x-x with East. Therefore, it was right in this instance to play the king. The king wins 50 percent of the time when trumps are 2-2-Q-x with West, and it also wins when West holds a singleton queen.»

ANSWER: Four clubs. Partner's motives are unclear, but it's safe to cooperate with four clubs. This hand has great potential, with the ace in each of partner's suits.
