Newcomb wins race for Senate

By Michelle Cole, Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Although Democrats made some gains statewide, Republican Russell Newcomb will keep Magic Valley's District 25 state Senate seat in GOP hands.

At press time, Newcomb held a secure lead over Democrat Gary Robbins in the race for the eight-county historical district seat. The Republican had tallied 17,920 votes, or 54.6 percent. Portions of Gooding and Twin Falls counties had not yet reported results.

As of 11:45 a.m. Tuesday, Robbins trailed with 14,930 votes or 45.4 percent. "I can't feel any better," Newcomb said.

Newcomb — Newcomb-Robbins race captured statewide attention. It also became a battleground over the abortion issue. Newcomb is pro-life; Robbins is pro-choice.

"Everything is pretty much coming in as we thought," Robbins said. "It looks a bit dim," Robbins said, but he wasn't ready to call the race yet.

With the Democrats in reach of winning a majority in the state Senate, the Newcomb-Robbins race captured statewide attention. It also became a battleground over the abortion issue. Newcomb is pro-life; Robbins is pro-choice.

Neither candidate could say, however, what role the abortion issue played in the final outcome of their race.

"There are many parts to the puzzle," Robbins said. "I just have no idea."

Newcomb said he considered Robbins' negative campaigning more of a factor than other issues discussed in the race.

The following is a district-by-district report of other Magic Valley legislative races, reflecting the numbers available at press time.

Republican challenger Darrell De Fabry held the second spot with 2,388 votes or 28.3 percent. Libertarian Joseph Rohner trailed with 215 votes or 2.6 percent.

And it looks like Peavey will be joined by two more Democrats.

In the District 22 House races, newcomer Clint Stennett upset incumbent Rep. Tom Morrison, R-Gooding.

Stennett gained 5,032 of the ballots cast, or 61.7 percent. Morrison received 3,121 votes or 38.3 percent.

Newcomer Pattie Nafziger defeated Republican Dwight Osborne. Nafziger received 4,449 of the ballots cast, or 55 percent. Osborne received 3,632 votes or 44.9 percent.

Echohawk out front over Kole

The Associated Press

BOISE — Democrat Larry Echohawk held a solid lead late Tuesday in his bid for becoming Idaho attorney general.

With 617 of 880 precincts reporting, Echohawk held a 55-45 percent lead over Republican Pat Kole.

Echohawk had polled 107,309 votes to Kole's 86,411.

Partisan control of the resource policy-setting state Land Board was the primary stake in the race for the attorney general's office.

Echohawk was out not only to break the 16-year GOP stranglehold on the office and his 12-year majority on the Land Board but also to become the first Indian elected to statewide office.

Echohawk

With five out of eight Magic Valley counties reporting at press time, Kole had 15,237 votes, or 45.9 percent, to 17,948 votes for Echohawk, or 54.1 percent.

Attorney General Jim Jones gave up the job after two terms in an unsuccessful bid for the Republican U.S. Senate nomination. When he stepped down, Kole, 38, one of his chief assistants, immediately announced and was unopposed for the GOP nomination.

Echohawk, 42, a full-blooded Pawnee Indian and currently Blaine County prosecutor, also announced early and wound up with no primary opposition.

That had the groundwork for an intensive campaign in which two candidates reported spending of over $330,000 combined.

With four years of legislative service under his belt, Echohawk jumped ahead early in the race with better financing and organization. But Kole campaigned nonstop all summer to close the gap in the campaign's final stages.

Andrus landslide buries Fairchild

The Associated Press

BOISE — Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus, who lost his first two statewide campaigns nearly a quarter century ago, wrapped up the final race of his 30-year political career Tuesday with what many expected to be a record-setting landslide.

With 628 of 880 precincts reporting late Tuesday, Andrus led challenger Roger Fairchild 113,648 to 69,476.

Those totals gave Andrus 66 percent of the vote to Fairchild's 34 percent.

Fairchild, the former state Senate Republican floor leader, who claimed his party had abandoned him, remained combative to the end of his long-shot, wretchedly underfunded bid to deny Andrus an unprecedented fourth term.

Andrus

With results in electoral majority in a governor's race in his 1974 campaign for a second term when he won 43 of Idaho's 44 counties and claimed 70.8 percent of the vote over then Republican Lt. Gov. Jack Murphy, Lemhi votes, or 62.5 percent, to 8,319, or 37.5 percent, for Fairchild.

The incumbent and challenger crossed paths one last time over the weekend.

Fairchild again attacked Andrus for making promises he cannot keep and misrepresenting his accomplishments in office. But he has throughout the campaign, the governor easily deflected the criticism.

Andrus, 59, set the modern record for an

Stallings retains his seat

The Associated Press

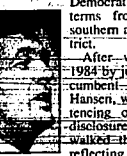

BOISE — Richard Stallings held a solid lead late Tuesday over Sean McDevitt in his bid to extend his record for service by a Democrat in Idaho's 2nd Congressional District.

With 369 of 453 precincts reporting, Stallings had 70,658 votes, or 43,319 for McDevitt.

That gave Stallings 62 percent of the vote compared to 38 percent for McDevitt.

With five out of the eight Magic Valley counties reporting at press time, Stallings had 14,913 votes, or 54.3 percent, to 12,887 votes for McDevitt, or 36 percent.

Stallings, who turned his back on an open U.S. Senate seat last February to continue building his political career in the House, had been the favorite to defeat Republican Sean McDevitt for a fourth two-year term.

Stallings

And some Democrats speculated that the incumbent's 1990 campaign could transform into a 1992 Stallings assault on the seat of GOP Sen. Steve Symms.

Stallings, 50, a former history teacher at Ricks College in Rexburg, is the only Democrat ever to serve three terms from the conservative southern and eastern Idaho district.

After winning the seat in 1984 by just 170 votes from incumbent Republican George Hansen, who was awaiting sentencing on a federal finance disclosure conviction, Stallings walked the fine line between reflecting his conservative constituency and working within a more liberal Democratic congressional majority.

He scored easy re-election victories in both 1986 and 1988 before pressure began building for him to seek the seat of retiring GOP Sen. James McClure this year.

Craig heads to Senate

The Associated Press

BOISE — Republican Congressman Larry Craig appeared in line to keep the seat of retiring U.S. Sen. James McClure in GOP hands late Tuesday.

Craig was leading Democrat Ron Twiligar, a former state legislator, making his first bid for statewide office, by a 123,155 to 76,682 vote margin.

That gave Craig 62 percent of the vote and Twiligar 38 percent with 628 of 880 precincts reporting.

With results in from five of the eight Magic Valley counties at press time, Craig had 14,182 votes, or 65.5 percent, to 7,434 votes for Twiligar, or 34.5 percent.

Craig, 45, a Midvale rancher before being elected to Idaho's 1st District congressional seat in 1980, was following in the footsteps of both McClure and GOP Sen. Steve Symms, who each represented the 1st District of western and northern Idaho before moving on to the Senate.

After McClure stunned the state party by announcing his retirement on Jan. 5 after 24 years in Congress, Craig quickly jumped into the race and claimed the bulk of McClure's so-called campaign organization.

He knocked off two-term Attorney General Jim Jones in the primary and then bucked Idaho political tradition by launching a media campaign in late June that pushed him well ahead in public opinion polls and kept him there.

Weather summary

A ridge of high pressure and a dry northerly flow dominated Idaho's weather Tuesday. This ridge will weaken today and allow an increasing chance of precipitation to drift south across the state today and Thursday.

Skies were mostly sunny around the Cam State Tuesday afternoon. The exceptions were mainly low clouds and fog in the panhandle and variable clouds with a few snow showers in the extreme southeast.

A few snow flurries fell in the valleys of the southeast Tuesday morning. Other snows in the mountains were expected. The winds were light, except for speeds of 10 to 20 mph in the southeast.

The afternoon temperatures were mostly in the 40s, but varied due to cloud-cover. At 3 p.m., the extremes ranged from 34 degrees at Malheur to 64 at Lowell.

The warmest temperature in the state Tuesday was 57 degrees at Pocatello. Malheur reported the coldest at 5 degrees.

Elsewhere in the nation, the highest temperature was 87 degrees at Fort Myers, Lakeland and Miami, Fla. The lowest was 7 below zero at West Yellowstone, Mont.

Snow in Wyoming, Colorado; storms hit Northeast

The latest in a series of storms produced heavy snow Tuesday in the central Rockies and another weather system spread high wind and heavy rain across the Northeast.

Parts of Wyoming got heavy snow from late Monday into Tuesday. Totals ranged up to 17 inches at Snake Canyon, 7 miles southwest of Lander, 13 inches at Lander, 12 inches at Topogrove Pass, 40 miles northeast of Jackson; and up to a foot at Casper. Casper Mountain got nearly 3 feet of snow in a 30-hour period, the National Weather Service said.

Snow also fell in south-central Colorado and parts of Nebraska. By daybreak, 3 inches of snow had fallen at Denver's Stapleton Airport. Totals in north-central Nebraska ranged up to 12 inches at Greeley, with 7 inches reported at Erickson, O'Neill and Loreto.

Snow-water systems which were in effect into Wednesday from New Mexico's central highlands and western mountains.

Low pressure in southern Quebec spread rain and snow over northern New England. In Maine, heavy rainfall for the six hours up to 1 p.m. EST included 1.75 inches at Portland, 1.56 inches at Brunswick and 1.03 inches at Augusta.

Snowfall totals in northern Maine ranged up to 4 inches at SanF. Agatha by late morning.

Strong west to northwest wind associated with the low pressure system over southern Quebec buffeted much of the Northeast.

In western New York state, wind gusted to 55 mph at Rochester overnight. Wind gusted to 61 mph at Buffalo and to 69 mph at Elmira.

The wind in western New York state downed utility poles, power lines and large trees, causing scattered blackouts.

In southern New England, winds gusted to 47 mph at Hartford, Conn., early in the morning. Wind over eastern New York state gusted to 48 mph at Rome during the afternoon.

The storm crossing southern Canada also produced heavy snow in Upper Michigan late Monday and into Tuesday. Totals in northern Lower Michigan ranged up to 12 inches at Atlanta. Up to 6 inches of snow was reported in eastern Upper Michigan.

Low pressure developing over southern Nevada generally strong and gusty wind in parts of California and Nevada.

Governor will talk with state troopers about ticketing policy

BOISE (AP) — Despite assurances from Gov. Cecil Andrus that he will talk with individual State Police troopers throughout Idaho about whether they believe there is a policy against giving traffic citations to legislators and other officials.

After meeting with Law Enforcement Director Mack Richardson and Police Superintendent RICH Humphreys for over an hour Tuesday, Andrus said he had no reason not to believe Richardson's claim that no special treatment policy existed.

The governor, reportedly extremely angry about the published report that the tolerance policy existed, said there appeared to be a belief among some troopers, at least in the southwestern part of the state, that they are under a directive to go easy on officials.

There is a difference of opinion among the officers," Andrus acknowledged, and he said he would fly to the outlying State Police districts on Wednesday to find out what troopers outside the southwestern region believe.

Richardson, 55, a former Secret Service agent who was named to head the Law Enforcement Department when Andrus took office four years ago, reiterated his statement that no trooper has been told to provide special treatment to legislators.

There is no now, there never has been and there never will be an official, unofficial policy of immunity from arrest initiated by my office or any division within this organization as long as I am director of this department," Richardson declared Tuesday afternoon. He cited the fact that citations have been issued to people in the alleged "immunity class."

He called claims to the contrary "completely inaccurate," but conceded that there has been confusion about special treatment for lawmakers even before he became director.

"That impression is wrong. I have taken every possible step to correct that impression," Richardson said. That included the decision to ignore "from now on" a provision of the state constitution that has long been used to justify immunity from minor traffic citations for legislators going to or from a legislative session. Humphreys said such an informal policy had been handed from administration to administration.

Richardson said state House and Senate members violating traffic laws during future legislative sessions will be cited and it will be up to a judge to decide whether the action is constitutional.

The director was unsure how any trooper came to believe special treatment was expected, but the order has been issued throughout the state that no one is immune from justified citation.

He also denied the controversy was the result of a rift between himself and top officers of the State Police, including Humphreys.

"Rich and I through the years I've been here have had our differences but we've always acted in a responsible and professional way," Richardson said.

Andrus said no decision will be made about the future of Richardson as director until after he completes his "quiet and confidential" discussions with troopers around the state. Richardson, who could not comment on what kind of instructions officers in the field had been giving their troopers, said no actions will be taken within the department until after that time as well.

Richardson's reply early to scream for blood, the governor said. "Wait until I find out the facts... I'm going to talk to the people out there. Those people who drive the black and whites know what the score is."

After meeting with Richardson and Humphreys in his Capitol office, Andrus said both agreed there was no formal written policy for providing special treatment to various officials.

"If you have an administrative policy, it has to be written down," Andrus said. "I can't find that."

The only policy Andrus said he found to exist at this point was one that left the decision on issuing a traffic citation to the discretion of the individual officer.

He also said the comment in a memorandum suggesting special treatment for legislators because they control the department's budget was actually made by a trooper, not Richardson, as initially suggested.

Williams holds office as auditor

BOISE (AP) — Incumbent Democratic state Auditor J.D. Williams retained his seat Tuesday.

Late returns Tuesday showed Williams with 123,259 votes compared with challenger RICH Williams, garnering 99,448 votes. The vote count represents a 55-43 percent difference.

Former Bingham County Commissioner Richard Williams, though personally little-known throughout the state, had been a constant threat to incumbent J.D. Williams' reelection solely because he had the same last name.

The race was almost a mirror of the 1986 campaign in which Richard Williams came within three percentage points of ousting seven-term incumbent J.D. Williams despite either in the way of a campaign by either candidate.

When Jec Williams decided to retire last fall, he named two successors: Democrat Gov. Cecil Andrus picked J.D. Williams as the state attorney and one-time candidate for Idaho Attorney General to finish the final two years of the term.

Edwards claims 2nd term as treasurer

BOISE (AP) — Republican Treasurer Lydia Justice Edwards claimed a second four-year term Tuesday, riding re-election over Democrat challenger Marjorie Ruth Moon.

With 78 percent of the state's 880 precincts reporting, Edwards had 123,259 votes, or 55 percent, while Moon had 99,448 votes, or 45 percent.

Edwards had to overcome a public perception that Moon still ran the office, she gave up in 1986 after nearly a quarter century on the job.

"I don't pay head down," Edwards said. "I didn't pay attention to my opponent or any shenanigans my opponent might have pulled."

Edwards, 53, a former two-term state House member from Boise, said she had been in office for 12 years in total, but had been out of office for 10 years in total, with Moon throughout much of the time they served together in state government.

treasurer's office after six terms to make an unsuccessful bid for lieutenant governor four years ago, Edwards got her heart set on late August and was unable to aggressively campaign through the fall.

At one point in mid-October, in fact, she accused Edwards of implying to voters that her health would make it difficult for Moon to serve if elected — a charge Edwards denied. Moon emphasized her doctors said she would be ready to take the oath in January.

Edwards, who easily defeated a former Moon deputy for the office, said she won the endorsement of most newspapers, including those that generally backed the rest of the Democratic state, and she was publicly supported by organized labor and longtime former Democratic state Auditor Joe Williams. Williams, who served with Moon for 12 years in office, had been out of office with Moon throughout much of the time they served together in state government.

Utah keeps food tax

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — An initiative to remove the state sales tax on food was defeated Tuesday. Utah's chief supporter vowed to continue his battle for tax reform in Utah.

With 698 of 1,629 precincts reporting, the vote was 91,860 against and 71,856 for, or 56-44 percent margin.

It was sponsored by Merrill Cook and his Independent Party of Utah.

PILT measure likely to pass

BOISE — With two-thirds of the votes counted, House Joint Resolution 114 seemed likely to pass.

The amendment to the state's Constitution would provide that unimproved lands owned by the Idaho Department of Fish and Game would be subject to a payment in lieu of taxes.

With 593 of 880 precincts reporting 107 percent, 94,930 Idahoans voted for the measure and 81,306 against, a margin of 54 percent in favor and 46 percent against.

Fish and Game officials support the measure, saying it will ease the financial relationship between the agencies and the counties. Under existing law, land acquired by the department is removed from county tax rolls.

It also maintained the amendment would mean double taxation for those Idahoans who buy fish and game licenses and pay conservation land fines.

Four of Gooding County's 12 precincts remained uncounted at press time.

District 23
Republicans continued their more than half-century domination in Twin Falls County when incumbent Sen. Joyce McRoberts, R-Twin Falls, won easily over Democrat Lloyd Walker.

With 29 of 44 precincts counted as of press time, McRoberts had received 5,591 of the ballots cast, 63.8 percent. Walker won 4,178 votes, or 42.6 percent.

In the race for House seat 23B, won handily over Democratic challenger Sally Gulick.

Gulick received 5,938 votes, or 61.8 percent. Gulick earned 3,472 votes, or 37.7 percent.

In a closer contest, Twin Falls County will return Rep. Lee Barnes, R-Buhl, to House seat 23C. Barnes received 5,351 votes, or 54 percent. Democratic challenger Merle Stoddard garnered 4,548, or 45.9 percent.

District 24
It appears that incumbent state Sen. Lynn Tomington, R-Rupert, held onto his District 24 seat after a strong challenge by Democrat George Grant.

Grant, who is past president of the Idaho Sugar Beet Growers and currently on the executive board of the American Sugar Beet Growers, launched his political career as a write-in candidate in the May primary.

Republican Mark Stubbs and Democrat Eugene Sullivan slugged it out for the District 25A House seat vacated by Robbins when he decided to make a run for the state Senate.

Both are considered heavyweights within their own parties, but at press time, it looked like Stubbs was pulling away with the win.

"I'm thrilled," Stubbs said. "But I think it was a case of the classic Republican taking on a classic Democrat."

Stubbs received 16,605 votes, or 54.3 percent, and Sullivan earned 13,990, or 45.6 percent.

In the race for House Seat 25B, two-term incumbent Rep. Ralph Peters, R-Jerome, sailed by Democratic challenger Elaine McLean.

Peters received 17,467 votes, or 56.5 percent. McLean garnered 13,460 or 43.5 percent.

Final figures for Twin Falls and Gooding counties were not in yet.

First reserves called for gulf combat duty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Marine Corps on Tuesday called to active duty hundreds of combat forces from reserve units across the country, marking the first use of American citizen-soldiers in combat roles in the Persian Gulf.

At the same time the Pentagon announced that more than 230,000 U.S. forces are now in the gulf area as part of Operation Desert Shield. That is 20,000 more than the previous Pentagon count given Oct. 23.

Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said Desert Shield deployments are continuing, but he declined to comment on what the additional forces would be.

"Stay tuned" for announcements of new deployments, he told reporters.

Williams also disclosed that the aircraft carrier battle group Independence had left the gulf area after being replaced by the carrier USS Midway. The spokesman said he could not comment on where the Independence was headed. Navy officials have said it is due back in the United States before Christmas.

The Marine reserve call-up, approved by the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Marine commandant is preparing the first stage of a troop rotation to relieve the expeditionary force that has been stationed in the gulf since shortly after Iraq invaded Kuwait in August 1990.

Marines are in the gulf area, Pentagon spokesman Wagner said. The Marine reserves would be assigned to the 5th Marine Expeditionary Brigade at Camp Pendleton, Calif. He said he

Marines call up reserves from 20 units in 14 states

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are the Marine Corps Reserve units from which 824 people were ordered to active duty Tuesday in support of Operation Desert Shield.

- COMBAT FORCES
- Battery A, 4th Light Anti-Air Defense Battalion at Pasadena, Calif., totaling 65 men.
 - A platoon from Company A, 4th Light Armored Vehicle Battalion at Camp Pendleton, 34 men.
 - Company A and a detachment from Headquarters and Service Company, 4th Tank Battalion at Miramar Naval Air Station, Calif., totaling 120 men.
 - An anti-tank platoon from the 23rd Marines at Bronson, La., totaling 75 men.
 - 4th Combat Engineer Battalion, an engineer support company, and a detachment from Headquarters and Service Company at Baltimore, Md., totaling 24 men.
 - 4th Platoon, Company A, 4th Amphibious Assault Battalion at Gulfport, Miss., and a platoon from Company A, 4th Assault Amphibian Battalion at Norfolk, Va., totaling 189 men.
 - A platoon from the 4th Force Reconnaissance Company at Reno, Nev., 34 men.

The call-up of Marine reserves, while not significantly increasing U.S. combat capability in the gulf, marks an important departure for the Pentagon. It opens the way to possible use of major Army reserve combat units in Desert Shield.

Williams denied published reports that the Pentagon has decided to activate major Army combat reserve units. He said Defense Secretary Dick Cheney had not yet granted the Army the necessary authority to order combat reserves to active duty.

"That is an option we'll certainly consider, but no decision has been made," Williams said.

The spokesman suggested for the first time that Cheney was uncertain whether major combat units from the Army reserves are properly prepared for battle in the Persian Gulf.

"It's something of an untested question," Williams said. He indicated that any Army combat reserves called to active duty would be given extra training in desert warfare at the Army's National Training Center at Fort Irwin, Calif., and their readiness then evaluated before deciding to send them to the gulf.

"You don't want to send anyone there until you have full faith and confidence in their ability to defend themselves," Williams said.

All of the more than 34,000 Army, Air Force, Navy, Coast Guard and Marine Corps reserves called to active duty for Desert Shield prior to Tuesday's Marine announcement are performing non-combat roles such as medical services and water purification.

Workers' productivity climbs fast

WASHINGTON — American workers' productivity climbed at its fastest pace in two years during the July-September quarter but hours worked fell, the government said Tuesday in a sign that the economic slowdown is forcing businesses to make do with fewer employees.

In the third quarter, non-farm productivity — output per hour of work advanced at a 4.6 percent seasonally adjusted annual rate compared with the previous three-month period. It was the third consecutive improvement and the best pace since the July-September quarter of 1988.

Productivity rose 0.3 percent in the second quarter, fell 1.3 percent in the first quarter and dropped 2.5 percent in the fourth quarter of last year.

Court rules against 'loss of society'

WASHINGTON — A unanimous Supreme Court ruled Tuesday that families of American seamen killed on the job may not be awarded monetary damages for lost future earnings or "loss of society."

The 8-0 decision, yielding the first signed opinion of the court's 1990-91 term, said general maritime law allows damages in lawsuits in such cases. But it added that any damages recovered cannot include those for loss of society or for lost future earnings.

Loss of society is defined as a broad range of mutual benefits family members receive from each other, including love, affection, care, attention, companionship, comfort and protection.

Judge to hear lawsuit alleging collusion

ATLANTA — A federal judge in Atlanta will hear a consolidated lawsuit alleging collusion and price-fixing by some of the nation's major airlines and their computerized fare network.

Thirty-one claims filed nationwide were consolidated Friday in the court of U.S. District Judge Marvin H. Shoob. The lawsuit alleges the airlines use computers to signal fare changes to each other, agree on price increases and then raise fares.

As a result of the alleged collusion, the suit charges that passengers are forced to pay artificially high ticket prices.

Postal Service earns 'B' grade

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service delivered about four-fifths of overnight mail on time in its first test by an outside consultant, a performance the postmaster general said Tuesday earns the agency a "low B."

Mail intended for overnight delivery arrived on time 60.61 percent of the time during a three-month test period that ended in mid-September, the accounting firm of Price Waterhouse reported.

That's how I would characterize it," Postmaster General Anthony Frank said following the monthly meeting of the service's board of governors.

While the national rating was just over 80 percent, performance varied widely from place to place, with larger cities such as New York "dragging down" the average.

Overnight delivery of mail destined for the Big Apple was on time just 46.94 percent of the time, the lowest share anywhere in the 50 states.

Man's driving test ends in DMV office

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man taking a driving test crashed into a Department of Motor Vehicles office Tuesday. Dozens of people scattered for safety as the car plowed 30 feet inside.

Only six minor injuries were reported but damage to the office was extensive, authorities said.

"A 70-year-old man really flunked the driving test. He ran right into the building," said police Officer Dennis Smith.

Two people were treated at the scene for minor injuries and four were examined at a hospital.

ASSIGNMENT: IDAHO ENERGY CONSERVATION

How to do more with less. That might be one of the most important lessons we learn in the 1990s. Everything from transportation to electricity generation to heating our homes is going to require a more thoughtful approach.

John Patterson and photographer Bob Melgard tackle the issue of energy conservation and provide you with tips on how to stretch what we have in this special 3-part edition of "Assignment - Idaho."

IEA's heavy spending sets Idaho on dangerous course

Whoever has won the Gary Robbins-Russel Newcomb Senate race this morning, one outcome of the race was certain in advance: If Idaho Senate seats can be bought, the price is going up.

The Idaho Education Association saw to that when it pumped more than $28,000 into Robbins' campaign.

That's a shocking amount of money. Some people would say it's a shameful amount of money.

We say it's a dangerous amount of money, and the Legislature ought to see that this race — the first in which an Idaho organization has made such an obvious attempt to buy influence — is also the last.

Idaho law currently has no restrictions on how much an Idaho resident or Idaho-based organization donates to a campaign. That omission leaves the heftiest of special interest groups their weight around as much as they want.

So far that hasn't been much of a problem. But this year, with control of the Senate up for grabs and reappointment coming, the stakes were particularly high.

What's to be feared is that the IEA will set a trend for future races. If other fact-based organizations feel obliged to copy — or counter — the union's behavior, voters will see elections become increasingly money-oriented.

If that happens, the IEA may come to regret starting the trend. It may find that its enemies can raise money even better than the union can. It also may find that a ham-handed show of strength can breed voter resentment.

...But those problems belong to the IEA — it bought and paid for them.

For citizens, the danger in mega-donations is that nobody ever gives away something for nothing.

The IEA's motives are fairly obvious: To deliver the Senate to the Democrats, and to be rewarded with friendly legislation. Other factions in future races may have motives even less appealing.

...Win or lose, the IEA's actions have set Idaho on a course toward elections that are costlier, more dependent on glibly advertising and less concerned with issues. That course also leads toward politicians who are beholden to big spenders.

Let's not go down that path. Instead, let's limit how much any one donor can spend on a race. Make the limit $1,000, or maybe $2,000, or $5,000. Just so it's well below the selling price of a state legislative seat.

Naturally, the problem isn't that simple. Every election finance reform leads to schemes to circumvent the rules. But when the Legislature meets in January, it should work — on at least blocking — the worst and most blatant of future abuses.

Gulf war looms under basic street code

We're moving closer to war. The Bush administration is losing patience with the original plan of blockading Iraq and waiting for the Iraqis to get hungry enough to give in.

The length, cost and misery of such a war are obvious. The threat of chemical warfare, the added enemy of the bitter desert climate, and the likelihood of a backlash within Arab countries also make the combat option a bad one.

The president cites ill treatment of U.S. hostages as a potential reason for military action — as if good treatment of hostages would somehow mitigate their captivity.

But the real reason we're on a collision course with armed conflict may have more to do with the 100,000-plus soldiers sitting idle and anxious in the Mideast — and the tons of material waiting there.

Without passing duty, that massive military presence becomes as much a cause for provocation as for deterrence.

There is a basic street code that says "Don't pull a gun unless you intend to use it." George Bush is probably a little rusty on his street knowledge, but for kids like Beaver, that code is a way of life.

Beaver is 5 feet 6 inches tall and thin as a rail. He grew up in the East St. Louis block for block one of the worst urban areas anywhere.

He was 16 when he got the ugly scar that seems to cover most of his chest and stomach. It's the mark of that war and the way he got it is a story.

He enjoys reciting the story about that day in the poolroom.

The game was eight-ball. Beaver and a lifelong friend were playing rotation. Two other friends stood by watching. They were all drinking malt liquor and lying and signifying and doing that male-bonding thing in an urban, inner-city kind of way.

Don Williamson

Beaver and his buddy were playing for money. That is, if you think of 50 cents a game as money. Beaver was shooting a weak stick that day and kept getting better. He kept playing because there really wasn't anything else to do. He got down to his last 50 cents, played, lost, and nacked for another game.

He knew he'd win the next one — and even if he didn't, he'd just have to owe his childhood pal 50 cents.

Beaver lost.

His friend asked for his money. Beaver said he was broke, and laughed. The guy with his hand out laughed, too. So did the two other friends who were standing around the table.

Then Beaver and the guy who won the game started playing around and selling each other waltz tickets. Waltz tickets are a way of talking tough and trying to back down an opponent. The waltz is the one setting the tickets — really has no desire or intention to fight.

It's normally a good natured, but high spirited — interaction that might be compared to aggressive bluffing in the game of poker. Even when Beaver and his buddy started getting loud, the two onlookers just laughed and ogled their on.

Being tough, not taking any mess, and talking back are survival tools in the world where Beaver just set some uncompromising rules for himself to grow up. There are precious few points given for intelligence or diplomacy of the art of compromise.

The ending continued. Then the malt liquor or the time of day or the phase of the moon took over. The winner's voice went harsh. Beaver made some uncompromising remark about never making payment. It was then that a 16-year-old boy who wanted his 50 cents pulled a gun.

Suddenly there was no air. It had all been sucked down the barrel of the Saturday-night special that stared Beaver in the face.

Beaver was cool. That's another street code: Never, under any circumstances, lose your cool.

"You better put that thing away," Beaver remembers saying as he tightened his fingers around the end of the cue stick.

"You better give me my money," was the response of the friend, with whom Beaver had attended elementary school, discovered girls and basement parties, and been thrown out of high school.

The gun had been pulled. Everyone knew it had to be fired. Beaver swung the cue stick. His friend pulled the trigger. The impact of the bullet — at such close range — threw Beaver and blood and tissue against the back wall of the poolroom.

Beaver almost died. His friend went to jail.

I've been thinking about Beaver ever since troops started landing in the Persian Gulf. More soldiers come daily. The gun has been pulled.

Bush said he's "had it" with the way America's tag team is being treated. Iraqis, Saddam Hussein told his generals to prepare for war. They're setting work tickets.

The longer it goes on, the more probable it is that some provocator will trigger the shooting.

Now, realizing this is the international arena, not a poolroom in East St. Louis. Diplomatic efforts may work, or Hussein may find a face-saving way to back down. But it keeps looking as if the gun has been pulled, the president is going to pull the trigger, and we're going to have to wear the scars.

Landfill articles revealing

Thank you, Phil Sahm, for writing Monday's front-page story on garbage and the Blackfoot Valley. Most people never visit a landfill, and it's good that someone is showing us what we're doing to our earth home as well as what can be done to make it better. Perhaps the high cost of high-tech landfills will speed the development of a recycling society. After all, some day there will be no more landfills.

A marvelous opportunity exists for manufacturers to make their products recyclable and sell them under that banner.

On a related note, a big thank you to the people in the Wendell area who brought their recyclables to the collection station on Oct. 27. We collected almost 3/4 tons of glass bottles, newspapers, aluminum cans, plastic containers, magazines, cardboard and scraps aluminum. That, folks, is a lot of garbage cans of stuff that could have but didn't get dumped in the landfill.

Thanks, also, to the Wendell teachers who recycled white paper from their classrooms. Appreciation is extended to Elmo's Repair Shop for donating space for the collection site, Hub City Building for loading the recyclables and Montana Express for hauling the materials to Twin Falls.

The Parent/Teachers Association would like to set new records for the amount of recycling collected at our next collection date, Saturday, Nov. 24, from 9 a.m. to noon. Mark your calendar. We want your trash. Please be sure to wash the junk out of glass containers (it's OK to leave the label on) and discard all caps from jars, bottles and milk jugs. Thank you.

Hovey article inappropriate

I think it was inappropriate and inaccurate of Larry Hovey to imply in his sports article of Oct. 31 that the Twin Falls Bruins' Cross Country team choked at the regional meet in Pocatello and, with a cringe, merely stepped aside to allow the Pokey harriers by.

How dare he! What does he know about the many hard practice miles the team ran from early August through October? What does he know about the extra miles that several of the team members ran on weekends? What, in fact, does he know about the Red Hill Course itself, which was the site of the meet? This course, which happens to be in the Pocatello harriers' backyard, is a course that they can run for practice anytime they like; and it is a course to which they did not have to travel. It has many difficult uphill and wetted-down sections, and it is unfamiliar to most cross-country runners.

Our team was a good team. They won all of their meets except one; beating Pocatello three times and Highland twice. Unfortunately, they were unable to win the regional meet; but it wasn't because they were intimidated by Pocatello. I'm sure they tried as hard as they legs and hearts and lungs would allow. I'm proud of their efforts; and if I were a Bruin Cross Country team member, I would say to Larry Hovey, "Pulverem Meum Vovisse" — the team motto for "Eat my dust."

Foreign oil dependence will kill

The United States' heavy dependence on foreign oil is eventually going to kill us — not to mention, financially, psychologically and for some, morally. Our society has reached the point where fast food, lawyers, TV and video are more important than roads, bridges and heavy industry, which is the basic strength of our country.

The president and Congress for the last 12 years have been incompetent bunglers, totally incapable of running the country's events show. We must not expect the federal government to help us in the energy situation. Congress' primary interest is in raising their pay, pork barrels and chain-letter deficit penny bills, the "brown over brains" myriad of other scandals. The credibility of Washington is zero, contributed to by all Idaho's representatives. The president and Congress can't get much worse; however, the "big oil" halo shines brightly.

Our policy with Israel, that highly complicated our foreign oil procurement. We have given Israel billions of dollars — all on the U.S. taxpayer (whether called loans, grants or other deadbeat language) to finance their "A" bombs, settlement projects, terrorism, oil "guarantees" and military equipment. This is an extreme of "special interests" at the expense of the U.S. taxpayer. We not only have squandered our money and made new enemies but abdicated the right of making our own foreign policy as evident in the Gulf/Iraq/Israel/Kuwait confrontation. If every Gulf oil well were still a camel, would the Iraq's aggression be noticed? Of course not.

America cannot continue to place itself "over a barrel" for foreign oil, particularly when we don't have to. We must understand that reality must be faced — the sooner, the better.

Natural gas must play a much larger part in our fuel-fed economy, particularly in transportation where approved installations have been in vogue for over 20 years. Fortunately, there are several "alternate energy" options. However, Idaho has no functioning organization, government or private, to encourage or foster a movement to energy self-sufficiency. There are many ways to energy except Idaho Power, Intermountain Gas and Big Oil.

High-priority must be placed on the development of various alternate energy sciences now to prevent further degradation of our living standards — now, fit for the world. Regardless of the future events in the Persian Gulf, it will no longer be the need to improve our alternate energies.

Jerome youth take a beating

I would ask everyone to carefully consider the following thoughts and happenings:

While our state and nation are actively involved trying to combat the influence of tobacco, drugs and alcohol on our youth, the Jerome City Council unanimously approved an ordinance allowing drinking alcohol in our city parks where our young people will be in attendance.

The City Council at another meeting unanimously approved of taking a portion of the children's park and basketball court for the purpose of a black-topped parking lot. This was done without benefit of a public hearing.

If it appears when they decided to take the property owned by the entire community and divert it for a specific group, they didn't feel it necessary to consider anyone else.

Because of indifference and "eye in the sky" proposals, our Jerome City Council has allowed the community swimming pool to deteriorate to a point it had to be closed. The repair costs have escalated dramatically because of their indecision and delays.

And last, the recent school bond election failed in the Jerome area by a scant 57 votes.

All in all, I would say — politically speaking — our young people have taken quite a beating in the last year and a half.

Lack of respect amazing

It amazes me to see the amount of hate and opposition that is present at election time. There always seems to be plenty of "mud slinging" every time someone runs for an office, and it has even come to the point where it has become something that expected.

Academic coverage neglected

As a student at Shoshone High School, I have noticed what could be described as an injustice. The Times-News gives excellent coverage to high school sports. However, the coverage of more academic contests seems to have been grossly neglected.

I was very offended, however, when I read the Sunday edition of The Times-News to find a circle around Gov. Andrus with a slash through him. With all politics aside, Gov. Andrus is still our governor, regardless of party affiliation and/or political opponent, and we need to respect him as such.

If we as Idahons, don't take pride in our governor, who will? I'm confident that our governor and the rest of the politicians who represent Idaho do all they can for our state and, as citizens (or political opponents), should support them even if we don't belong to their party or didn't vote for them.

But it seems that when election time comes around, some people almost hate the person who is running against the candidate they support. One reason we elect certain government officials is to help us maintain peace in the country. Yet, we ironically let an election create a war among ourselves.

I'm not writing this because I supported Gov. Andrus or Roger Fairchild. I am writing this because anyone who is the governor of our great state would be very offended to find that the people of the state which he represents have put a circle and a slash through his face. I am sure that if Mr. Fairchild were our current governor that he would feel the same way if it were done to him.

Let's support our governor and our government and concentrate on the positive aspects of each candidate and evaluate what they can do for the state and leave the "circles and the slashes" to the elementary student who doesn't know any better.

The sports teams in the Magic Valley have enjoyed great success, not only in regular season play but also at the state level. These athletes deserve all the recognition which they receive. The complete coverage they receive in The Times-News is much deserved and perhaps even a reward for their hard work and long hours of practice.

However, students who excel in other competitions not related to sports (such as speech, drama, journalism and music) receive little or no recognition in The Times-News. Students participating in the fine arts work as hard as athletes in order to perform well. They deserve as much recognition as athletes receive. Where are the coverage?

On Oct. 27, the Shoshone High School volleyball team won the state championship and thus became the subject of a lengthy article. Recently, journalism students from all over Idaho competed in the Idaho Journalism-Advisors Association writing contest in Sun Valley. This contest was considered the "state championship" of journalism. Many students from the Magic Valley competed in this contest. Many of these students received awards and placed well in the competition. However, no coverage.

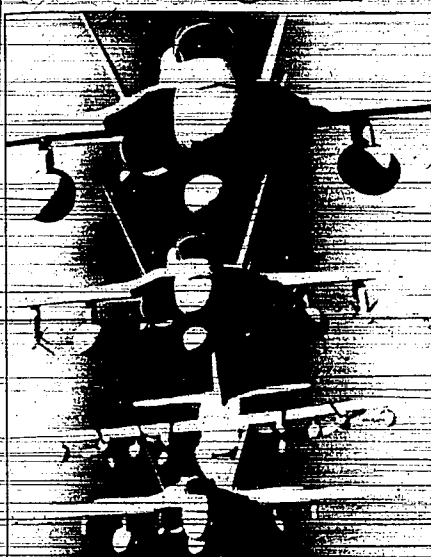

If an athlete received recognition for being the best in the state for two different sports, he/she would receive much praise in The Times-News. Recently a student at Shoshone High School won first place in both drama and speech for the entire state. She received no coverage in The Times-News. The great amount of effort she put forth to win these contests was at least equal to efforts of an athlete winning a 4-4 Player of the Year award.

The coverage given to sports in The Times-News is excellent. This should continue as sports are a major concern of the public. However, the coverage given other high school activities is far less than desirable. Give these students the credit they deserve.

More hostages to be freed; Baker seeks commitments

AP Laserphoto

Marine Corps F/A-18 fighter planes fly in tight formation over the Persian Gulf after refueling with a KC-130 tanker.

The Associated Press
Iraq on Tuesday promised to free 106 Japanese and European hostages, and Secretary of State James A. Baker III pressed U.S. allies about their willingness to go to war against Iraq.

Iraq's official news agency said 77 Japanese hostages would be freed in response to an appeal from former Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone.

It also said 20 Italians, five Swedes, two Germans and two Portuguese would be allowed to leave. Iraq did not say when the captives would be freed, but some had already begun to assemble at a Baghdad hotel.

They were among thousands of foreigners trapped when Iraq invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2.

Some had been held at strategic sites as "human shields" against attack.

Iraq has since freed hundreds of captives, but Western governments have expressed growing fears that Iraq's Saddam Hussein is successfully using the hostages to divide the alliance facing him.

Baker meanwhile was seeking to check on their physical and mental condition.

The Red Cross, a neutral agency, has not been involved in efforts to gain the release of the hostages.

The United States has demanded the hostages' unconditional release.

Representatives of the Iraqi Red Crescent say the hostages are fending adequately, Richards said.

"They felt their general health and nutrition were satisfactory," he said. But "their psychological well-being would be substantially improved were they able to send regular messages to and from their families."

The State Department welcomed the Red-Cross agreement, saying it would make the hostages' lives easier.

U.S. troops make up the bulk of the force, which numbers about 300,000.

The Pentagon said Tuesday the U.S. troop deployment in the region had reached 230,000 and was still growing.

In a sign of the escalating U.S. military commitment, the Marine Corps said it was calling up more than 34,000 reservists to support roles for combat roles.

Up until now, the more than 34,000 reservists called to active duty have served in support roles.

While in Egypt, Baker also met with China's foreign minister, Qian Qichen.

China is a permanent member of the U.N. Security Council, and its support would be needed for a U.N.-sanctioned military strike against Saddam.

Asked about such a military move, Qian expressed hopes a peaceful settlement could still be found.

All the armed forces have two roles to play, he told reporters. "One is to fight a war, and the other is to seek peace."

P.L.O. chairman Yasser Arafat, who has tried to act as a mediator in the Gulf crisis, said prospects for peace are improving as the world considers the consequences of an all-out conflict.

Saudi Arabia's foreign minister, however, committed Iraq on Tuesday that the United Nations has not restricted the use of military force to liberate Kuwait.

But that option is in the hands of the Israelis, said the foreign minister, Prince Saud.

Iraq's freeing of its Japanese hostages comes as Japanese lawmakers are considering a plan to send troops to the Gulf in non-combat roles.

However, the measure, prompted by strong protests in Japan and its prospects for approval look dim.

Nakasone's mission was technically private, but the 72-year-old former leader retains considerable clout in Japanese policymaking.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Taisei Watanabe said the Japanese hostages' freedom had been obtained without compromising the government's stand against Iraq.

Packages allowed for U.S. hostages

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans held at strategic targets in Iraq will be able to send messages and receive care packages under an agreement announced Tuesday by the Red Cross.

The first phase of the program involves message exchanges between the 106 hostages and their families.

Stephen Richards, the Red Cross' executive vice president, said after a cycle of messages has been completed, the Red Cross working with its sister organization, the Iraqi Red Crescent, will arrange for the shipment of packages including such items as books, clothing, paperbacks and toiletries.

Some hostages and their families have been able to communicate through letters shipped in and out of Iraq by the State Department, which is serving as a clearing house. In addition, Iraq has allowed a few hostages to telephone home.

The Red Cross agreement only covers the men at strategic sites, not all the Americans held against their will in Iraq and Kuwait, he said.

The Red Cross message exchange program is expected to start in about 10 days. Each cycle will take about two weeks.

The hostages will be handed short forms to write messages. Those will be shipped to the United States through Jordan, by the Red Cross.

Then, the family members will be allowed to write responses, which in turn will be delivered to the hostages.

The Iraqi Red-Crescent officials will serve as the couriers inside Iraq. Richardson, who just returned from Baghdad, said the Red Cross is also seeking permission to have a medical team visit the hostages to check on their physical and mental condition.

The Early Bird gets The Shopping dollar, or so the saying goes. People are shopping earlier and earlier for Christmas... because selections are more complete and stores are less crowded. There is less competition for you as a retailer, too. Many stores don't completely gear up for Christmas until December comes around, thus leaving the shopper who needs to shop early out in the cold.

Kahane's assassination spawns more death

JERUSALEM (AP) — Supporters of the slain Rabbi Meir Kahane shouted "Death to the Arabs!" on Tuesday, and Israeli reports said police suspected a Jewish extremist ally had retaliated by killing two elderly Palestinians.

The day brought a second tragedy for Kahane's wife, Libby, who her father died after a long illness. Rabbi Yacov Blum had been unconscious and did not know of his son-in-law's death.

Police and army reinforcements were deployed around Israel and the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip to prevent violence. But the increased security came too late to save two Palestinians killed at about 6 a.m. Tuesday, about two hours after Kahane was slain in New York City.

Israeli police said they suspected an Israeli radical killed the Palestinians and that the slayings may have been prompted by Kahane's murder, the national Iltm news agency reported.

Kahane

Israel television said the Israeli Foreign Ministry said Kahane's assassination was an unprecedented assault on an Israeli political figure on American soil and threats against the United States to increase security against terrorism.

State Department spokesman Richard Boucher called the killing "a despicable and cowardly act." Asked about a possible vendetta by Kahane supporters, he said: "We don't see this as a time for revenge. Now is the time for restraint."

Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar also decried Kahane's killing and violence in the occupied territories. "He deplores these and all acts of violence," said a spokeswoman, Nadia Younes.

Several Israeli papers linked Kahane's murder to his controversial views.

Faisal Hussein, a Palestine Liberation Organization supporter in Jerusalem, appealed for calm, saying violence and calling for violence will lead nowhere." He said Tuesday's killings in the West Bank raised concerns about the security of our people.

At least two Israeli Arab members of Parliament, Abdel Wahab Darouche and Mohammed Miani, left Jerusalem for their homes in northern Israel for fear of reprisals. Darouche said police told him of the threats.

Tuesday's Parliament session began with a minute of silence for Kahane, but only about 30 of the 120 lawmakers were present.

Kahane supporters warned of possible revenge attacks. Noam Federman, a Kahane spokesman, declined to say if the Kach movement was behind killings of the two Palestinians on Tuesday.

But the old Israel television that "don't rule out that after the murder of Rabbi Kahane, Jews will rise up and will honor his memory ... and will attack Arabs."

David Ben Dor, a Kach leader, said Kahane's ideas will survive.

Guam voters re-elect Ada as governor

AGANA, Guam — Gov. Joseph Ada won re-election Tuesday, becoming the first gubernatorial incumbent to win consecutive terms in this U.S. territory.

The Republican Ada and his running mate, Lt. Gov. Frank Blas, defeated Democratic challenger Madeleine Bordallo and her running mate, Jose "Ping" Duenas.

With all 76 precincts reporting, the unofficial vote count showed the Ada-Blas team with 20,677 votes to 15,688 votes for Bordallo-Duenas, the Guam Election Commission reported.

In the territory's congressional election, Republican Ben Blaz won a fourth term in a non-voting election, defeating Democrat Ben Pagelitan. Final unofficial tallies gave Blaz 21,390 votes to 16,437 for Pagelitan; the election commission said.

Bordallo, the first woman to run for governor, is the wife of former Guam Gov. Ricardo Bordallo, who committed suicide Jan. 30, one day before he was to begin an 18-month federal prison term in California. He was not in office at the time of his death.

Fog causes deadly pileup on highway

BREDA, Netherlands — Up to 160 cars smashed into each other in dense fog on a Dutch highway Tuesday, killing at least 10 people and injuring 72 others, police said.

Rescue workers were still pulling people out of the wreckage more than eight hours after the accident on the Rotterdam-to-Antwerp highway, and the casualty toll could still rise, Breda police spokesman Roel Holvast said. A second pileup occurred on the northbound lane when drivers there slowed down to see what happened; Holvast said.

Faulty valve kills 20 at plant in India

NEW DELHI, India — An explosion caused by a leaking valve in a petrochemical plant near Bombay killed 20 people, including five firemen sent to put out the blaze, United News of India reported Tuesday.

At least 16 people were injured in the accident, Monday night, the news agency said. The valve of a gas tank at a plant operated by the state-owned Indian Petrochemical Corp. sprang a leak, it said. The tank exploded, setting nearby buildings on fire.

Thatcher urges warming action

GENEVA (AP) — All nations must face up to the threat of a climate disaster and take steps against global warming, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Britain said Tuesday.

Thatcher, in a keynote speech to a United Nations meeting of ministers on the issue, said much more research is needed but a "clear case for precautionary action" exists now.

It is a race against time ... to save our planet," French Prime Minister Michel Rocard told the officials from some 120 countries, including more than 80 ministers.

In an appeal aimed in good part at the United States and the Soviet Union, Thatcher demanded all countries begin work on binding commitments to rein in rising pollution by "greenhouse gases."

Yeltsin says meeting with Gorbachev set

MOSCOW (AP) — In a move toward peace on the eve of the anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution, Boris N. Yeltsin said Tuesday he and Mikhail S. Gorbachev have agreed to discuss their differences.

Yeltsin, the Russian president, declined to say who proposed the meeting scheduled for Sunday, but it was the Soviet president who approached Yeltsin to shake his hand after a holiday ceremony in the Kremlin's Palace of Congresses. "We just agreed with Gorbachev to meet on the 11th one-on-one," Yeltsin said.

There will be very many issues and it will be an important meeting.

Area voters retain 4 Magic Valley judges

TWIN FALLS — The verdict is in: four Magic Valley judges will stay on the bench.

Voters in Twin Falls, Gooding and Cassia counties decided to retain their 5th District Magistrate Judges. Judges needed one more "yes" than "no" vote to be retained. Had they lost, a Magistrate commission would have appointed replacements.

In Twin Falls County, 29 of 44 precincts were tallied at press time, showing R. Michael Bodman with an 80 percent affirmative vote. Of 6,661 votes tallied, 6,908 were to keep him in office, 1,753 were to remove him.

The vote for Charles P. Brumbaugh, also of Twin Falls, was 6,815 to 2,323. That means he had received a 74 percent "yes" vote with more than half the precincts counted.

With eight of 12 precincts counted at press time in Gooding County, votes leaned toward keeping Thomas R. Cushman and gave him a 74 percent "yes" vote. Of 2,111 ballots, 1,539 were affirmative, 572 were negative.

Cassia County votes were complete. Roy C. Holloway of Cassia County kept his office with a 73 percent "yes" vote. Of 5,152 ballots, 3,769 were "yes" votes, 1,383 were "no" votes.

Public hearing on toll-free calling set for Valley High

HAZELTON — Two representatives from the Public Utilities Commission and a representative from U.S. West will be on hand tonight at 7:30 at Valley High School for a public hearing on toll-free calling.

Residents in Eden, Hazelton and Murtaugh have asked the PUC to allow them to call free of charge to the Twin Falls, Kimberly and Hansen areas.

The PUC will use the meeting to gauge public interest and decide whether the issue should be reconsidered with a hearing before the commission.

Judge sets bail for men facing drug charges in county jail

TWIN FALLS — Two men were in the Twin Falls County jail on drug charges Tuesday.

Gabriel Bastida Ortega, 23, of Twin Falls, is charged with delivery of a controlled substance, cocaine. Hugo Jimenez, 20, 917 Ninth Ave. N., Buhl, is charged with two counts delivery of a controlled substance, cocaine and marijuana.

Fifth District Magistrate Judge Melvin C. Edwards set their bail at $10,000 cash or $50,000 surety, each.

According to a probable cause statement, two people sold 6.8 grams of cocaine to a confidential informant for $340 on Monday. Another statement says that one of the two involved in Monday's deal sold almost 15 grams of marijuana to a confidential informant for $80 on Monday.

The Magic Valley Drug Task Force participated in the arrests.

Idaho Power signs electrical power contract with Moptana

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Power Co. has signed a contract to sell 2.2 million megawatt-hours to Moptana through March 1996.

The $65-million contract beginning Dec. 1 calls for sales of 75 megawatts to Moptana from October through March and 25 megawatts from April through September.

A megawatt is 1 million watts of electrical power.

The power is worth 2.45 cents per kilowatt-hour, but it may rise to 3 cents per kilowatt-hour during the contract. That adds up to $10.7 million the first year and as much as $12.2 million a year by the end of the contract.

The contract requires no new transmission facilities. And it will expire about the time Idaho Power anticipates the power will be needed for its Idaho customers.

The Park Service will issue information about cross-country skiing conditions in the monument.

The visitor center will be open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. throughout the winter except for holidays.

Blass, Hempleman appear headed for re-election

By Phil Sahn
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Republican Commissioners Norma Blass and Marvin Hempleman appeared easily headed for re-election, with votes from 28 of 43 Twin Falls County precincts counted Tuesday night.

In the 1st District, Blass, a one-term incumbent, led Democrat Donald McMurrin 5,850 votes to 3,045 votes, or 60 percent to 30 percent.

Hempleman, a three-term incumbent and the commission chairman, led Democrat Rickley Hetsley 6,051 votes to 3,631, or 62 percent to 37 percent.

"It's been a good race, a positive race. I'm confident in what we're doing and the stands I have taken," Blass said. "It was a good campaign. We owe that to the people."

Hempleman called his race against Hetsley "lousy." It's gratifying that somebody has that much faith in you," Hempleman said.

Blass and Hempleman both were happy that the enhanced 911 emergency communication system appeared to have passed.

Voter turnout high in neighborly business of Camas County elections

By Kirk Mitchell
Times-News writer

FAIRFIELD — A state Senate candidate once left frustrated by the conflicting roles of becoming an elected official and remaining a farmer.

So the reluctant legislative aspirant Bill Simon voted against himself. So did He lost by two votes.

"I defeated myself," said Simon, now 90. "I didn't have time to go down there (to Boise)."

Nevertheless, in a county where more than 80 percent of 544 registered voters go to the polls every two years — one of the highest voter turnout rates in Idaho — it is not surprising that Simon's critical desire to serve his state was strong.

Voters in 4 Magic Valley counties enhanced 911

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Voters in four Magic Valley counties gave ringing approval to the enhanced 911 emergency telephone system Tuesday.

The vote was 81 percent in favor of E911 in Twin Falls County, while Jerome County approved by 86 percent. With eight of 12 precincts reporting, 70 percent of Gooding County voters approved E911. In Lincoln County, 83 percent of the voters approved the system.

Cassia County voters had approved E911 in a previous election. Its residents, along with those in Twin Falls, Jerome, Lincoln and Minidoka counties, will pay $1 per month for each residential telephone line.

The measure was not in the ballot in Blaine, Camas and Minidoka counties.

Establishing the system will take at least 18 months. The money that accrues from the monthly service charges will help pay for the system.

The E911 system automatically identifies the caller's address and location, the police, fire or medical agency. The system also makes it impossible for the caller to disconnect.

The system could be designed to route the call from a regional dispatch center to a local dispatcher for the sheriff, police, fire or hospital.

However, cities and counties that want to keep their local dispatchers can do so.

Until the cities and counties that have adopted the E911 system decide the number and type of dispatch centers, the eventual cost of the system is unknown. However, under state law counties cannot charge more than $1 per phone line per month.

Blaine County

2 incumbent commissioners in contested races win re-election

HAILEY — Both incumbent Blaine County commissioners facing contested races won re-election Tuesday.

Democratic Commissioner Tom Blanchard received 2,547 votes, or 54 percent. Republican challenger Kaue Breckenridge received 2,191 votes, or 46 percent.

Republican Commissioner Rupert House received 2,642 votes, or 57 percent. Democratic challenger Clarence McQueen received 1,967 votes, or 43 percent.

Democratic Clerk Mary Green received 3,743 votes; Republican Treasurer Marilyn Lanier received 3,825 votes; Democratic Assessor Ted Uhrig received 3,799 votes; and Republican Coroner Russell D. Mikel received 3,838 votes.

A total of 4,838 voters, or 56.3 percent of the 8,588 county registered voters, cast ballots.

Results on the $4.57 million jail bond issue were not available at press time.

In the only other contested county race, Democratic incumbent 1st District County Commissioner Jack Renz received 225 votes or 54 percent and Republican challenger Steve Miller received 199 votes or 46 percent.

Voter turnout was heavy with 447 of 82 percent of 541 registered voters going to the polls.

In uncontested races, Republican Commissioner Veronica Barron received 378 votes; Republican County Clerk Rolfie Brunst received 301 votes; Republican Assessor Darrel Hupfer received 356 votes and Republican Coroner Pamela Jones received 381 votes.

Blaine County voters reject jail bond issue

By Kirk Mitchell
Times-News writer

HAILEY — A $4.57 million jail bond issue was defeated by a large margin Tuesday night.

A total of 2,244, or 50 percent, voted against the bond issue and 2,223, or 50 percent, voted in favor of the new jail.

A two-thirds majority was needed to pass the bond issue to build a new jail for Blaine County.

Commissioner Rupert House said it is likely the county will have to consider another bond issue, at least in the future.

If approved, the bond issue would have raised funds to acquire land and build a 24,000-square-foot facility similar to the jail compound in Twin Falls.

The 15-year bond would have cost property owners $412.40 a year for a home with an $80,000 valuation and a homeowner's exemption.

This summer a 15-member study group of county residents and officials researched and reviewed alternatives to either upgrade the existing jail facility built in 1970, expand it or build a new facility.

State correction officials gave the jail a substantial rating. The new jail would have been built to initially handle 53 beds and is designed for future additions which could expand the facility to a 109-bed capacity.

Cassia County

Good voter turnout reported despite 6 uncontested races

BURLEY — Though all six local officials up for reelection ran unopposed, 5,564 of the county's 9,066 voters, or 61.4 percent, turned out to cast their ballots.

All the new county officials are Republicans.

Here are the tallies: 1st District County Commissioner Jay Weldor Beck, 4,591 votes; 2nd District County Commissioner John R. Adams, 4,511 votes; District Court Clerk Frank B. Kearns, 4,654 votes; County Treasurer Gayle Erekson, 4,508 votes; County Assessor Martell C. Holland, 4,629 votes; and County Coroner Paul B. Young, 4,539 votes.

Camas County

GOP challenger takes county treasurer's race over Colter

FAIRFIELD — In the most hotly contested Camas County race, Republican challenger Rodney Pridmore beat incumbent Independent Wilma Colter in the county treasurer's race.

Pridmore received 222 votes, or 52 percent, and Colter, in a write-in campaign, received 207 votes or 48 percent.

Pridmore defeated Colter in the Republican primary. But Colter, who held the treasurer's job for 10 years, plunged back into the race as an Independent candidate.

people mistakenly came to Bicket to vote. They accepted the bad news well and turned around to go to the proper precinct.

At Bicket, there also were only two booths. The workers had plus five desks and chairs for voters to sit at.

Twin Falls County Clerk Richard Pence said the new method was working smoothly.

"I think they're doing really well. No problems that I know of," Pence said. Although, he had heard of one fellow who apparently mis-marked his ballot and tore it up in frustration.

"That was marked as a bad ballot," Pence said.

At Twin Falls High School, the lobby was crowded where people from the 10th, 12th and 14th precincts came to vote.

"I like it. It's easier," said David Blackmer. "It could be more private."

There were more booths at the high school lobby, but a lot of voters were placing their ballots against the wall or glass doors to mark them.

Using the new ballot was easy, said William Hafner.

"The hardest part is knowing which guy to vote for," he said. "I know one guy over there and he wasn't any good."

Ketchum residents near ski lifts reach compromise with parking lot operators

By David R. Langhous
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — Conflict between residents at the base of Bald Mountain's Warm Springs ski lifts and operators of seasonal parking lots has been settled for 1990 with a compromise.

Consistent with the direction taken in previous years by the Ketchum City Council and Ketchum Planning and Zoning Commission, the conditional use permits allowing parking on vacant lots at the base of Warm Springs lifts are being phased out.

At a Monday meeting, the council overrode the Oct. 25 zoning commission decision to eliminate all such parking this year and voted to allow 137 spaces to be operated this season, down from the 300 available last year.

Council members also reiterated their intent to eventually eliminate the conditional parking at Warm Springs altogether.

Ketchum Area Rapid Transit/KART buses are expected to fill the gap by transporting skiers from the bus at Monday's meeting.

A $2 million revenue bond was approved by voters in November 1989 for the purchase the park and ride lots in order to curb traffic congestion in the Warm Springs area.

The phasing-out has not come close enough for some residents. In a letter to the council, J. H. Hall asked "why should an owner in approved will allow only seasonal Warm Springs conform to one set of rules and another is permitted a mud hole with a free beer" given for each day parked?"

Referring to the revenue bond, Hall said "the residents of Warm Springs and all of Ketchum were co-opted, misled and now betrayed by the City Council."

Not all members of the Warm Springs community want to see the parking end, however. Restaurateur Brian Barsotti told the council that he and other businesses going to lose business to River Run. River Run is the center of Bald Mountain ski area, where parking is more available.

Two factors motivated the council to grant one more year of conditional parking: concern for the loss of revenue to the Sun Valley Ski Education Foundation, or SEF, and the shift to slowly phase in full reliance on the park-and-ride rather than make the change all at once. The vote, however, was not unanimous.

Councilwoman Sue Wolford pointed out that "this is not an all-or-a-sudden no-parking situation. We're trying to slowly phase in that we're trying to end congestion at Warm Springs."

Wolford and Suzanne Orb voted against the permits and members Guy Coles and Tom Held voted for them. Mayor Larry Young broke the tie in favor of one more year of conditional parking. The measure, as approved, will allow only seasonal not daily passes for the spaces and will not allow valet parking for the permitted spaces at the Pinnacle Club.

"When conditional parking is totally phased out, a dual leadership will befall the SEF, according to spokesman Don Woodcock. Woodcock said that would cause a financial problem which could hurt our scholarship base. Second, our staff arrives early, before KART buses run," he said.

According to Pete Smith of the SEF, the operating cost of $500 seasonal market spaces on the property of Jane Janssen would raise $35,000. After expenses, the SEF and Janssen will split the proceeds, resulting in approximately $15,000 for the SEF.

Other applicants for conditional parking permits were The Pinnacle Club, Grayhawk Investment Company, and Scott Curtis. Only the Grayhawk permit was denied, on the grounds that Grayhawk had contracted with a third party to operate the lots, a practice forbidden by the conditional use permits. The council denied a claim for damages against the city by Stephen Horowitz, who suffered injuries in a bicycle crash at one of the city's speed bumps. Horowitz claimed that the city was negligent by not posting warning signs on the bumps. Four warning signs at the site were presented, the council denied the claim.

Scientists visit Mount St. Helens crater

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Some rock was blown away and some slid off the lava dome in the crater of Mount St. Helens during a three-dayer steam and ash outburst, scientists said Tuesday.

Steve Brantley, a geologist at the Cascade Volcano Observatory, said scientists visited the crater Monday and Tuesday to make measurements and observations that could help indicate whether an eruption is likely soon.

Conclusive information won't be available until next week, but scientists did find a "slimy mass" of rock had slid from the dome, an 875-foot craggy mound of cooling lava that dwarfs the Kingdom in Seattle, Brantley said.

The rock, which he estimated weighed 100 tons, had broken into chunks of the dome more than six feet in diameter, were hurled against the west wall of the crater.

Chris Jonietz-Trisler, a research scientist at the University of Washington's seismology laboratory in Seattle, said the episode was "very, very minor" compared with the May 18, 1980, eruption that leveled 230 square miles of forest, killed 57 people and sent up an ash cloud that circled the globe.

Brantley revealed Tuesday that rather than one blast, there were three outbursts about a minute apart, starting at 2:07 a.m. PST Monday.

Scientists said the blasts could have come from water reaching hot rock beneath the surface and exploding into steam or from a buildup of gas released by cooling magma.

Brantley said measurements of the dome and cracks in the crater floor could indicate whether magma, or molten rock, is moving upward within the volcano or rising and cooling.

Using magma could mean a greater chance of an eruption in the near future, he said, but initial indications are that the opposite has occurred.

Brantley said monitoring instruments that survived the blast showed no sign that the mountain was swelling or gave any other indication of rising magma.

Nor has earthquake monitoring equipment registered any of the harmonic tremors, a seismic pattern that indicates an upwelling of molten rock.

The last explosive eruption of Mount St. Helens was in early 1983, and the last dome-building eruption — a more quiet upwelling of lava into the dome — was in October 1986.

Helsley also was hopeful at the county to pull him through as the evening wore on.

"I'm not going to be ashamed of my vote," he said. "I'm not going to anyone, I talked about the issues. We brought out some good issues," McMurrian said.

"If I beat it, it won't be Norma that beat me. It will be The Times-News," McMurrian said.

The election turnout Tuesday in Fairfield was predictably high. In the two-precinct county 2 precincts are split by Soldier Road, which is Fairfield's 200th Street.

447 of 82 percent of registered voters voted.

"You can usually count on your hands how many people don't vote," voting judge Mary Cluer said. "And usually you know why. Either they're sick or out of town."

In an unusual exchange of stewardship, Marnie Shaw, 83, who came to Camus County in 1919 in a covered wagon, passed along his job of election judge to grandson Randy Jewett after over 20 years of service.

But voting may be only part of the motivation behind trips to town on election day.

It's a last chance for some people who live in the nearby Soldier Mountains to see other people before they get snowed in for three or four months, election constable O. M. Ried said.

And if the patriotic sentiments run high in Camus County, it is also apparent that the political climate in precincts in Wright will succeed outgoing Clerk Richard Pence, who did not seek re-election.

Ronnie Bruning was unopposed for treasurer and had with 7,939 votes with 28 precincts in.

Incumbent County Assessor Dorothy Hamby had 8,396 votes with 28 precincts in.

Calvin C. Edwards ran unopposed as coroner and had 8,188 votes with 28 precincts in.

Breaking precedent, rancher Rodney Pridmore ran against fellow Republican Wilma Colter, the incumbent who has served 10 years as treasurer.

"I've been opposed every time," Colter said Tuesday. She sighed.

When Pridmore defeated Colter in the May 5 GOP primary, Colter mounted a written campaign as an independent. Her campaign poster on a metal post in the middle of the road, is the first thing drivers see upon arriving in town.

Pridmore won the election 222-207 Tuesday.

They're all completely out of it. I'm thinking it's going to turn out close," Helsley said. Lack of name recognition probably hurt him, he said.

In other county races, four Republicans ran unopposed for county clerk, treasurer, assessor and coroner.

Linda Wright ran for county clerk and had 7,811 votes with 28

this county has a unique flavor.

Eugene Sullivan, a Fairfield restaurateur and Democratic candidate for District 25 House Seat A, who admitted his chances were slim against Twin Falls Republican Mark Stubbs, said his political role is to prevent "the other side" from becoming too arrogant and uncaring.

Tuesday's preliminary results pointed to a fourth straight loss in legislative races for Sullivan.

The contest that drew the most attention in Fairfield, or seemingly driving the mostly Republican town apart — was the county treasurer's race, Sullivan said.

 peared to successfully defend his job as county assessor against Republican challenger Charles C. Devol.
 With 16 of 17 precincts reporting, Hayden tallied 2,711 votes and Devol received 896, giving Hayden a margin of 75 percent to Devol's 25 percent.
 Five other races in the county were uncontested, and officials who will return to office include District 1 County Commissioner Maurice A. Riddle, a Republican who won 2,493 votes; and District 2 Commissioner John W. Shrum, a Democrat who garnered 2,791 votes.
 County Clerk Ramona S. Yzabal received 3,062 votes; Treasurer Caryl J. Olds won 3,033 votes and Coroner H. Vert Humphreys tallied 2,674 votes. All are Democrats.
 Voters elected to return Magistrate Judge John R. Sellman to the bench, with 2,924 people voting yes, and 949 voting no on his re-election.

man tallied 2,573 votes, or 74.3 percent of the vote, to McKinney's 892, good for 25.7 percent of the vote. Liernan has been on the commission for three years.
 Heinrich captured 70 percent of the total with 2,543 votes to Steinmetz's 1,090 votes. Heinrich was appointed to the assessor's post in September to replace John Wurst, who resigned to take a management job with Cactus Pete's in Jackpot, Nev.
 Several incumbent Republican county officials ran unopposed: 2nd District County Commissioner George Andrus garnered 2,951 votes; Clerk of the District Court Cheryl Watts received 3,140 votes; Treasurer Mary Childers won 3,302 votes; and County Coroner Gerald Oster received 3,239 votes.
 The vote totals include the 219 absentee ballots sent in.

Lincoln County

6 unopposed incumbent county officials keep jobs

SHOSHONE — Six incumbent Lincoln County officials will remain in their jobs after running unopposed in Tuesday's election.
 Democrat Clarence J. Lewis, a farmer who has served two years as county commissioner for District 1, received 937 votes for another term. Democrat rancher Everett "Buck" Ward received 422 complimentary votes and will retain his post as county commissioner for District 2. A job he has held 16 years.
 Other incumbents on Tuesday's ballot were Treasurer Cathy Lautert, who received 906 votes; Clerk of District Court Dana Sturgeon, who won 884 votes; County Assessor Imogene Hestley, who received 884 votes; and County Coroner Francis M. Bergin, who tallied 913 votes. All are Republicans.
 A total of 1,265 people, or 72 percent of Lincoln County's 1,757 registered voters, cast ballots Tuesday. Election officials counted 49 absentee ballots and 17 write-in votes, all reflected in the totals.

Minidoka County

GOP incumbent retains seat over Demo Corless

RUPERT — Republican incumbent Lyle Barton retained his District 1 County Commission seat in Minidoka County's only contested election Tuesday.
 Barton garnered 2,908 votes to Democratic challenger Seth Corless, 2,247. The margin was 13 percent, with Barton getting 56.5 percent of the vote.
 Republicans ran unopposed in the remaining county races. 1st District County Commissioner Norman Seibold received 4,141 votes; Clerk Duane Smith got 4,010 votes.
 Elaine White, treasurer, received 4,413 votes; Assessor Larry Dee Hansen received 4,262 votes; and Coroner Arvin Lee Hansen got 4,490 votes.
 Of 9,116 registered voters, 5,315, or 58.3 percent, voted.

Gooding County

Incumbents hanging on strong in contested races

GOODING — With eight of 12 precincts reporting, the incumbents were running strong in Gooding County's three contested elections holding solid margins over their respective challengers.
 Democrat John Myers led Republican challenger Kim Vaughan for the county clerk job, with 1,083 votes to Vaughan's 927. Myers tallied 54 percent to Vaughan's 46 percent.
 Republican Helen Sabala Faulkner led with 1,147 votes, or 55.8 percent, over Democratic challenger B. Bertell Everski with 908 votes, or 44.2 percent, in the race for county treasurer.
 In the assessor's race, Republican Doyle Pugmire was ahead of Democratic challenger Tana Loyd Bradley. Pugmire drew 1,376 votes, or 66.9 percent, to Bradley's 681, or 33.1 percent.
 In the three uncontested county races, Coroner Dowell D. Demary received 1,678 votes; 1st District County Commissioner Don C. Morrow received 1,449; and 2nd District County Commissioner Robert E. Tupper received 1,384.

Jerome County

GOP incumbent defeats Independent in District 1

JEROME — Republican incumbent Veronica Liernan came out on top in her race to remain Jerome County's District 1 county commissioner, setting back a challenge by Ernest McKinney, a Republican running as an independent.
 In the county's only other contested race, Republican Gregory Heinrich won his bid to keep his job as county assessor, a job he has held two months.
 In the commissioner's race, Liernan

3 convicted in largest cocaine seizure; seizure; trial for 3 others

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three men accused of helping to run a drug ring cracked in the world's largest cocaine seizure in 1989 were convicted Tuesday by a federal jury.
 A jury deadlock spurred a mistrial for three other defendants.
 The drug ring led to the Sept. 28, 1989, seizure of 20 tons of cocaine at a warehouse in the Los Angeles suburb of Sylmar.
 A U.S. District jury returned guilty verdicts on all charges of drug possession and conspiracy against Carlos Tapia Ponce, 69, and his two sons, 37-year-old James Ramiro McTigue, 42, and 30-year-old Jencino Mauricio Monroy Iniguez, 37.
 Each faces a maximum life sentence and fines up to $4 million. Sentencing was scheduled for Jan. 28.
 Judge Terry J. Hatter Jr. declared a mistrial for three other men after jurors deadlocked 8-4 in favor of conviction. They are Ponce's son, Hector Tapia Anchondo, 39; Hugo Fernando Castillon Alvarez, 33; and Miguel Garcia Chavez, 35. The three remained in custody without bail.

 Prosecutors declined to comment except to say they intend to seek a new trial for the trio. A Nov. 19 hearing was scheduled to set a new trial date.
 Each defendant except Chavez was charged with one count of conspiracy and one count of possession with intent to distribute the cocaine.

Rams say goodbye to Warner, and $700,000 in salary

ANAHEIM, Calif. - Running back Curt Warner, who signed a $700,000 contract with the Los Angeles Rams during the off-season, was waived by the team on Tuesday.
 Warner, 29, signed with the Rams as a free agent after playing seven seasons with the Seattle Seahawks.
 The Rams also placed cornerback Mickey Sutton, who injured his left knee during a 17-13 victory over Houston on Sunday, on injured reserve and activated cornerback Clifford Hicks.
 Warner played seven of the Rams' eight games, rushing 49 times for 139 yards and a touchdown. He started at fullback the first three games but was replaced by Cleveland Gary.
 In his career, Warner has rushed for 844 yards on 1,698 carries and scored 36 touchdowns. He also caught 193 passes for 1,467 yards and seven touchdowns.

Irish-Volunteers game key to bowl picture

The Associated Press

Is Notre Dame going to the Orange Bowl? Will Miami play in the Cotton Bowl? And where are Nebraska, Virginia and Florida State going to spend New Year's Day?
 College football fans may learn the answers to these and other baffling bowl questions by the end of the week. Then again, they may not.
 Three weeks before the official bids are announced, the bowl picture is cloudier than an overcast in Seattle. One thing is clear, however - the outcome of Saturday's Notre Dame-Tennessee game in Knoxville will have a snowball effect on the rest of the major bowls.

If the top-ranked Irish beat the No. 9 Volunteers, they will probably play No. 4 Colorado in the Orange Bowl no matter what happens in their final two games against Penn State and Southern Cal. But if Notre Dame loses, it will set off a mad scramble for top teams among the Orange Sugar, Cotton, Fiesta and Citrus bowls.
 Even if Notre Dame wins on Saturday, the Irish may decide to pass up an Orange Bowl rematch against Colorado. True, the Orange would offer the biggest payout ($4.2 million per team) and probably the highest ranked opponent. But Notre Dame might not want to give Colorado a chance to avenge its 21-6 loss to the Irish in last season's Orange Bowl, a defeat that cost the Buffaloes the national championship.

"I don't think they want to play Colorado again," an Orange Bowl source said Tuesday. "Colorado is an experienced team. They'll be coming in with a nine-game winning streak and they'll have the revenge factor on their side."
 However, a Cotton Bowl insider said he thinks the Irish will accept an Orange Bowl bid if they beat Tennessee.
 "If they're No. 1, they can go anywhere they want to. And I think they want to go to the Orange Bowl," he said.
 But what if Tennessee beats Notre Dame? In that case, No. 5 Miami should get the Orange berth even though the Hurricanes lost to the Irish. The Orange Bowl traditionally matches the highest ranked team available against the Big Eight chamption, and Miami would probably move ahead of Notre Dame if the Irish lose to Tennessee.

 Under that scenario, Notre Dame would end up in the Cotton Sugar, Citrus or maybe even the Fiesta.
 Which one would the Irish choose? It's difficult to tell right now because each bowl has its drawbacks as well as its selling points.
 If Texas loses another game, the South Conference representative in the Cotton will have at least two losses.
 The Sugar might mean an undesirable rematch with Tennessee, the Citrus payout may fall short of the other major bowls and the Fiesta may not be able to attract a Top 10 opponent.

Major league wages jump by 20 percent

The Associated Press

NEW YORK - The average baseball salary this season skyrocketed 19.8 percent to $865,816, according to a study by management's Player-Relations Committee. It was the largest increase in one year since 1982.
 The study showed that the Kansas City Royals had the highest payroll in baseball, paying their players a total of $23,617,090. The Boston Red Sox were second at $22,713,098, followed by the San Francisco Giants ($22,456,224), the Oakland Athletics ($22,274,834) and the New York Mets ($22,154,333). The Mets had the highest payroll in 1989 at $21,300,878.
 At the other end, the lowest payroll belonged to the Baltimore Orioles at $8,087,702. Next-lowest was the Chicago White Sox at $11,118,810, the Seattle Mariners ($12,591,199) and the Texas Rangers ($14,753,855).

Herschel Walker's arrival in Minnesota was part of 'the deal of the century.' So far, only Dallas has benefited from the deal.

Vikes slide after trade for Walker

The Associated Press

Last Sunday night, Herschel Walker ran onto the field for the Minnesota Vikings, carried the ball for 12 yards and ran off the field.
 For a guy who had 9 yards on five carries in his two previous games, 12 yards was wonderful, yet he was taken out of the game.
 And that, perhaps better than anything, demonstrates the point: The Trade is a boom for Dallas and a bust for Minnesota.
 "If this takes us to the Super Bowl in the next two years, then it's a great deal," Mike Lynn, then president of the Vikings, said when he dealt six players, five draft choices and a host of conditions to the Cowboys for Walker. "If it's not, then it's a bad deal."
 Since the trade was made in the fifth week of the 1989 season, Minnesota is 9-11 and Walker never has approached the 148 yards he gained in his Vikings debut. The Vikings were blasted from the playoffs in the three games last year and are 2-6 this year. They need a minor miracle to return to the playoffs, even with an additional wildcard spot.
 Nor will Dallas make the playoffs this year, but it, at least, is showing improvement. Their three wins are three times last year's total. And coach Jimmy Johnson, the man who made the trade, says the point and conventional thing - "It was good for both teams."
 Sure.
 But unlike the Rams, who have slid back because some of the players they got with draft picks from the Eric Dickerson deal of 1987 appear to be disappointments, the Vikings have not.

Braves' non-prospect season's best rookie

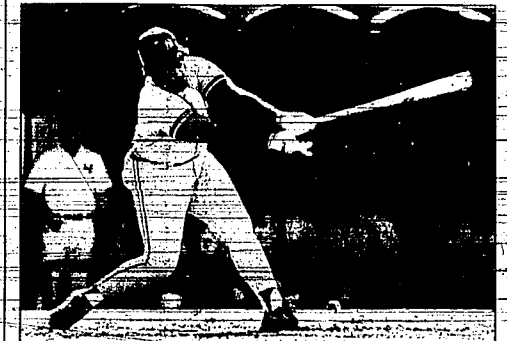

The Associated Press

NEW YORK - At the start of the season, no one considered Dave Justice a top prospect. Not even the Atlanta Braves.
 But Justice prevailed. After beginning the year in the minors, he blossomed into baseball's best baby boomie last Tuesday as the near-unanimous choice as National League rookie of the year.
 Justice hit 28 homers, most of them after he took over in right field when the Braves traded fan favorite Dale Murphy in early August. Justice batted .282 with 78 RBIs in 439 at-bats in 127 games.
 "I only had a great two months. It's hard to know what kind of year I could have," Justice said after winning the award. "I never have had 500 at-bats. I don't know what I can do."
 Justice received 23 of 24 first-place votes for 148 points. Montreal second baseman Delino DeShields got the other first-place vote and had 60 points.

 Cincinnati's first baseman Hal Morris (13), San Francisco pitcher John Burkett (12), Cubs pitcher Mike Hickey (7), St. Louis catcher Todd Zelje (4) and Montreal outfielder Morris Grissom (1) and Larry Walker (1) followed in the voting.
 Two members of the Baseball Writers Association of America in each city voted.
 Justice, 24, joined Eric Williams (1971) and Bob Horner (1978) as Atlanta players to win the award. The American League rookie of the year will be announced Wednesday.
 At the start of the season, Justice wasn't even in Atlanta's plans, particularly since the Braves had signed power-hitting, free-

Japanese all-stars mount 4-0 lead in exhibition series

The Associated Press

TOKYO - Makoto Sasaki of the Diablos had five hits in six at-bats to highlight a 20-hit outburst as a team of Japanese all-stars defeated a touring team of major league players 11-6 to take a 4-0 lead in the eighth game of a five-game exhibition series.
 The Japanese have tied, but never won a series against major league competition.
 The major leaguers committed four errors and allowed five stolen bases in the game at Heiwajima Stadium in Fukuoka, on the southern island of Kyushu.
 After the Japanese took a 1-0 lead in the first inning, New York Yankees outfielder Jesse Barfield tied the game in the second with a homer.
 Koji Akiyama's two-run single in the fourth gave the Japanese a 2-1 lead. The Japanese then added three runs in the fifth on four hits and one walk against starter

Dave Stieb of the Toronto Blue Jays.
 Jeff Montgomery of the Kansas City Royals relieved Stieb in the sixth, but the Japanese scored three more runs on three hits, including a homer by Hiroo Ishii of the Kinoshita Buffaloes.
 The Japanese added two runs in the seventh on five hits against Montgomery.
 Dennis Boyd of the Montreal Expos and Bobby Thigpen of the Chicago White Sox held the Japanese scoreless on two hits in the final two innings.
 The major leaguers scored their second run in the fifth on Ken Griffey Sr.'s sacrifice fly. San Diego's Roberto Alomar and the Chicago Cubs' Shannon Dunston each drove in a run in the sixth.
 In the ninth inning, Cecil Fielder, who played for the Hanshin Tigers in 1989 and had hit 31 home runs for the Detroit Tigers this season, connected for his first RBI in the series.

Experience expected to take A-4 titles

Shoshone favored in Northside Conference, but Carey has the size to mount formidable challenge

By Jeff Hokkisson
Times-News writer

Last year the Dietrich Blue Devils captured the Northside Conference girls basketball title only to see the Richfield Tigers and the Bliss Bears go one-two in the sub-district.

The Shoshone Indians, entering their second season in the Northside Conference, look to be this year's front-runners.

They have experience, size and a state title from volleyball on their side.

"We have a lot of experience back," said Indians coach Ed Sandy. "The Indians, who were 14-8 last year, will be led by three seniors and a couple of juniors in the starting lineup."

Ralene Duffin, a 5-11 senior, will provide the Indians with the size under the basket while 5-9 junior Stormy King will add to the inside.

5-7 senior Angie Hubbard and 5-5 junior Christina Kelly will give the Indians some good height with wings while 5-4 senior point-guard Tammy O'Maley will key the offense.

CAREY PANTHERS

Despite a 14-13 record a year ago, the Panthers appear to be one team that can challenge the Indians.

With 5-8 junior Kathy Simpson leading the way the Panthers have the size to make things difficult on the other teams in the conference.

Joining Simpson will be 3-5 junior Lisa Spear and 4-4 junior Jan Kirkland, 5-4 senior Leejean Ellis, 5-4 junior Heather Wharton, 5-3 junior Nicole Harshbarger, and 5-8 sophomore Becky Peterson.

"We are going to try to use our speed on both offense and defense," stated Panthers coach Heber Kirkland.

"We'll press and try to fast-break with those sprinter-guards."

DIETRICH BLUE DEVILS

The Devils under the direction of second year coach Denise Christ will look to repeat conference championships but will be doing so with only two seniors from last year's championship team.

Returning are 5-7 senior guard Heather Hubert and 5-9 senior center Debbie Southwick.

"The Devils will have to hope that the youngsters on the roster can fill in and help carry the team back to the top."

Among those who must play key roles are Jackie Green, 5-6 junior forward, Sandra Vasquez, 5-7 sophomore, forward, and Ann Seniors, 5-5 junior forward, and Stacy Bowman, 5-6 sophomore.

"It's too early to tell what our weaknesses are but we will be there if we get our game going," remarked Christ.

RICHFIELD TIGERS

The Tigers hope that this year can be off to a fast start by knocking off Dietrich in the sub-district then losing a heart breaker to Camas to just miss going to state.

Ward does it all for Tigers

By Jeff Hokkisson
Times-News writer

RICHFIELD—When the mention of Richfield basketball is made one name comes to mind, Melinda Ward.

Ward has been a starter and key player for the Tigers since her freshman year.

She has started since her freshman year and she does everything asked of her. She has played where we have needed her—the most," expressed Tigers coach Jim Thomas. "I hate to think what it would have been like without her."

Ward, who like to ride horses in her spare time, had a difficult time deciding what she likes to do besides play basketball.

"It's pretty much what I've wanted to do my whole life," she said.

On the court it becomes obvious that her desire to be a top notch player has paid off.

"She sees everything. She knows where everybody is. All we have to do is stay close and she will help us win in the end," said Thomas.

A 10 point plus per game scorer, she has been named to the all-conference team each of her three years and looks to make it four straight this year.

Although individual honors are important to her the team's success is just as important to her.

"I want the team to be good."

The Tigers will rely on the offense of 5-6 senior Melinda Ward. Ward has been a starter since her freshman year and has been a big part of the team's success.

Aiding Ward will be 5-4 junior Becky Brown, 5-5 sophomore Deanna Ward, 5-5 sophomore Carmen Butcher, and 5-5 junior Tamara Sorenson.

"We don't have much height, we're inexperienced underneath but we're Melinda," said Tiger coach Jim Thomas.

"I think that she can help us finish a little higher than most people think we can."

BLISS BEARS

The Bears will surprise sub-district runners-up last year and will have to have almost as much luck this year to make it back to the district playoffs.

The Bears are young, with only two seniors on the roster but will try to offset that with team speed and solid defense.

Leading the way for the Bears will be senior Rachelle Owensley, senior Melissa Davis, and sophomore Olivia Ferreira.

Melinda Ward
A top conference player

Ward said. "Sometimes I feel like that when a mistake is made that is partly my fault. I should be helping out more."

As for herself, "I like playing point guard. That way I can control the game on offense. On defense I like to play underneath. I like the competition of taller girls."

"I tell myself that I'm not going to let you have the ball."

"This year I feel stronger about playing. I feel better about what to do on the court."

That could mean trouble to her competitors as she is already considered one of the best in the conference.

Ward has her way the Tigers will win this year.

However, the season turns out for the Tigers you can bet that she will have a lot to say in the final outcome.

That should change. Everyone is back. Senior's Micki Miller, 5-10 post/wing, Joy Jones, 5-11 post, Jenn Bennett, 5-7 wing, Katherine Crabtree, 5-4 post, and Heather Madden, 5-8 post-all started at least part-time last season. So did 5-7 junior wing Bobi Jo Priddy.

Up from the JV team are juniors Darcie Abel, 5-10 post, and Amber Funkhouser, 5-5 wing.

"We didn't graduate any seniors. I got some team playing," Sullivan said.

The main concern for Camas is the lack of depth at the wing position and the absence of a true point guard.

KETCHUM-SUN VALLEY CUTTHROATS

This year's edition of the Cutthroats will be unlike those of the past.

This year coach John Remington will have a little to write with.

Despite some strong Southside Conference teams, Hagerman expected to return to state tournament

By Jeff Hokkisson
Times-News writer

Last year the Hagerman Pirates surprised everyone by finishing second in the state A-4 girls basketball tournament. This year the only surprise would be if the Pirates didn't make it back to the state tournament.

The Pirates will be led this year by a pair of standout seniors in Julie Thompson and Mary Henslee. Thompson is 5-10 and should give the Pirates a solid inside game. Henslee, at 5-3, will key the back court.

Round-out the starting five for the Pirates will be 5-9 senior Kerri Andrus, 5-9 junior Tanja Elchberger, and 5-8 junior Kristy Babington.

Andrus, who averaged 11.9 points per game last year, will team with Thompson and Elchberger. "I should be playing more year to give the Pirates a solid front court."

"We're young but experienced. Most of the girls played a lot last year, including in the state tournament," remarked Pirates coach Jerry Dicht.

The key matchup of the season for the Pirates will come in the county 40-when they play defending Magic Valley Conference champ Oakley at Oakley.

OAKLEY HORNETS

The Hornets enter the season as the defending county sub-district, and district champs and have a shot to repeat this year.

The Hornets will be paced by 5-11 junior forward Cara Cranney. Cranney will be the key to the success of the Hornets during the year.

Other key players will be juniors Anne Hale, Charlene Harly and Kelly Strauss, and senior Rachelle Hardy.

"We'll be competitive," said Hornets coach Don Tompkins of his young team.

RAFT RIVERS TROJANS

The Trojans could make things tough on both the Pirates and Hornets this year. Raft River has the luck of the schedule with both contenders at the tail end of the season.

District Champions, Trojans will be led by all-conference junior guard Kim Whisker. Joining Whisker will be a trio of talented seniors led by Becky Rigby, At 5-8 Rigby will give the Trojans the ability to play on the inside as well as the outside.

Angie Whelan and Allison Telford, lead the Trojans in scoring. Amy Briggs, a 5-8 junior, will round out the starters for the Trojans.

"We have real good experience and senior leadership," said Richlin.

That leadership may be enough to carry the Trojans over the top in the conference this season.

Henslee back after surgery

By Jeff Hokkisson
Times-News writer

HAGERMAN—Sometimes that hardest part in life is to watch.

Last year was one of those years for Hagerman's Mary Henslee. Henslee tore ligaments in her knee that resulted in reconstructive surgery and a missed season.

"It was really hard to watch the team go to state and not be able to play. It helped me to watch though. I picked up some things that I didn't see before," remarked Henslee.

Back at full strength this year she has already made her presence known for the Pirates.

"She is a good competitor. She fights hard and works hard," said Pirates Coach Jerry Dicht. "We are looking for her to come in and filter play on the volleyball court."

"I like basketball a lot and I really missed it last year."

She will be looked upon this year to be the team leader as well as provide the offensive punch that will hopefully lead the Pirates back to the state tournament.

Her comeback has not been easy though. Out of sports from January to August she has had to battle to get back what she lost during her recovery from surgery.

"I spent the summer riding my bike and lifting weights," she said. "The weight lifting really helped give it (her knee) more strength."

"My teammates have been really great. They have been real supportive of me and helped me get through it."

A 3-8 student she is the president of the honor society and hopes to attend Richs College next year after she graduates. "I hope to go into prelaw," she said.

"I think it would be fun but I haven't decided yet."

What ever she decides, the Pirates are happy to have her back as they prepare to take on all comers.

MURTAUGH

The Red Devils hope to improve under first year coach Stacey Winn.

The Devils, who were 3-14, hope this is a new coach and a new season will make a difference.

If genes are of any consequence the Devils may be okay with the presence of Amber Rovig and Amy Nebeker.

Rovig is the sister of former Devil standout Kelly Rovig while Nebeker is a telephone interview from former star Evan Nebeker.

Also joining the duo will be 5-9 junior Chaddie Grant, 5-4 junior Marc Anderson, and 5-7 junior Colleen Stinsky.

"We have a lot of young players who don't have that much experience even though they all played on the varsity last year," said Winn.

CASTLEFORD WOLVES

The Wolves will be looking to better their 4-14 record of a year ago.

Leading the way will be seniors Kim Higleson, 5-3, and Angie Astending, 5-6. Joining them will be a trio of juniors led by 5-9 Kristi Kent, 5-7 Ashlianna Bokun, and 5-7 Brandy Hansen.

The Wolves will look for some inside help coming off the bench in the likes of 5-10 sophomore Ely Beckman.

"We have a real team," they are going to have to get by on team desire," said Wolves coach Laurie Gaudiaga.

STEMBREMER WANTS BACK INTO FREE AGENT NEGOTIATIONS

NEW YORK (AP) — George Steinbrenner twice in September asked Commissioner Fay Vincent for permission to become involved in negotiations with free agents but was turned down flatly each time.

Steinbrenner, forced to give up control of the New York Yankees on Aug. 20 as a result of his dealings with gambler Howard Spira, maintains free agent talks are "extraordinary."

But Vincent determined they are day-to-day operations in an area Steinbrenner is prohibited from.

"No one in the Yankees organization has the experience I have with free agents," Steinbrenner said Tuesday in a telephone interview from his office in Tampa, Fla. "This is an extraordinary item. You only come to it once a year. This certainly qualifies."

But Vincent said he never intended to allow Steinbrenner to become involved in player contract talks.

"It was discussed at the time," Vincent said from Osaka, Japan, where he is attending baseball's goodwill tour.

Wyoming coach not relishing BYU matchup

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Wyoming coach Jerry Meyer is "scared to death" to play Brigham Young on Saturday, saying Wyoming can only win if the Cougars make mistakes—and his Cougars don't.

"Here's a team that scores 50 points a game," Roach said Tuesday. "I'm confident in the team, but I'm a realist. We're not as good a football team as they are. I hate to say it, but it's true. If we do it, it will be an upset."

The No. 25 Cowboys, who suffered their first defeat of the season last weekend to Colorado State, play the No. 8 Cougars at home in War Memorial Stadium in a game that will be televised nationally by ESPN.

Roach blames the loss, in part, on the fact that his team has made a habit of coming from behind to win last season's win-loss record.

CSU game would be no different, he said.

"I think they got into a mindset where they're always going to find a way to win like we have done for the last several weeks. That's a wonderful thing. But we can't continue to rely on that. They got caught in Fort Collins. Time ran out on them."

Roach said the Cowboys' honeymoon ended last Saturday in Fort Collins, Colo., when they were shot down by arch-rival Colorado State.

"I have to apologize for that little deal at CSU," Roach said. "It was a bitter disappointment. A tough loss. We shot ourselves in the foot."

The only game the Cowboys measured up to was the talented Brigham Young (7-1 overall, 5-0 in the WAC). Roach said, "was in their 13, road victory over Washington State of the PAC 10."

"We were clicking pretty well," Roach said.

Since then, the Cowboys haven't had the stuff to overpower the likes of Brigham Young, he said.

"When we started out, I said I didn't think we'd be a great team," he said. "We'd be a good team. Maybe the expectations or the hopes of the fans are a little greater than we were capable of accomplishing," the coach said. "That became apparent to me after four or five ball games when we couldn't knock somebody out."

Big Sky cross country meet Saturday in Utah

BOISE (AP) — Saturday's 28th Big Sky Conference Cross-Country Championships will take place at the low Weber State men and Northern Arizona women to give the competition a run for its money.

The event, run at the Rose Park Golf Course in conjunction with the NCA District Cross-Country Championships, is hosted by the University of Utah.

The men will cover a 10,000-meter course while the women will be tested on a 5,000-meter layout.

Teams from the Western Athletic Conference also will compete in the District 7 race, and conduct their men's and women's championships. Several independents, including the University of Colorado are slated to take part.

The meet provides the qualifications for the Nov. 19 NCAA Championships in Knoxville, Tenn. In addition, NCAA men's and women's District 7 races, the first two teams in addition to the top three individuals who are not members of those squads, advance to the NCAA Championships.

The defending champion Weber State was the pre-season favorite and could give Brigham Young University some trouble on its way to the meet. BYU was ranked No. 1 in the WAC. The Weber Wildcats, under head coach Chuck Hilstad, were ranked 16th in the Oct. 29 NCAA Division I men's cross country poll. Weber State will be tested by Northern Arizona, under the eye of head coach Ron Mann, and Drexel Koonz, University of Montana team.

Last season, Weber State knocked Northern Arizona's streak of three straight Big Sky titles to a halt by berkeys were looking for their fourth straight Western Conference meet will eight Big Sky titles, the most in the league.

Rams say goodbye to Warner, and $700,000 in salary

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Running back Curt Warner, who signed a $700,000 contract with the Los Angeles Rams during the off-season, was waived by the team on Tuesday.

Warner, 29, signed with the Rams as a free agent after playing seven seasons with the Seattle Seahawks.

The Rams also placed cornerback Mickey Simon, who injured his left knee during a 17-13 victory over Houston on Sunday, on injured reserve and activated cornerback Clifford Hicks.

Warner played in seven Rams games, rushing 49 times for 139 yards and a touchdown. He started at tailback the first three games but was replaced by Cleveland Gary.

In his career, Warner has rushed for 6,844 yards on 1,698 carries and scored 56 touchdowns. He also caught 193 passes for 1,467 yards and seven touchdowns.

Notre Dame going to the Orange Bowl? Will Miami play in the Cotton Bowl? And where are Nebraska, Virginia and Florida State going to spend New Year's Day?

College football fans may learn the answers to these and other baffling bow questions by the end of the week. Then again, they may not.

Three weeks before the official bids are announced, the bowl picture is cloudier than an overcast day in Seattle. One thing is clear, however — the outcome of Saturday's Notre Dame-Tennessee game in Knoxville will have a snowball effect on the rest of the major bowls.

If the top-ranked Irish beat the No. 9 Volunteers, they will probably play No. 4 Colorado in the Orange Bowl, no matter what happens in their final two games against Penn State and Southern Cal. But if Notre Dame loses, it will set off a mad scramble for top teams among the Orange Sugar, Cotton, Fiesta and Citrus bowls.

Even if Notre Dame wins on Saturday, the Irish may decide to pass up an Orange Bowl rematch against Colorado. True, the Orange would offer the biggest payout ($4.2 million per team) and probably the highest ranked opponent. But Notre Dame might not want to give Colorado a chance to avenge its 21-6 loss to the Irish in last season's Orange Bowl, a defeat the cost the Buffaloes the national championship.

Don't think they want to play Colorado again. "An Orange Bowl" source said Tuesday. "Colorado is an experienced team, they'll be coming in with a nine-game winning streak and they'll have the revenge factor on their side."

However, a Citrus Bowl insider said he thinks the Irish will accept an Orange Bowl bid if they beat Tennessee.

"If they're No. 1, they can go anywhere they want to. And I think they want to go to the Orange Bowl," he said.

But what if Tennessee beats Notre Dame? In that case, No. 5 Miami should get the Orange berth even though the Hurricanes lost to the Irish. The Orange Bowl traditionally matches the highest ranked team available against the Big Eight cham-

— and Miami would probably move ahead of Notre Dame if the Irish lose to Tennessee.

Under that scenario, Notre Dame would end up in the Cotton, Sugar, Citrus or maybe even the Fiesta.

Which one would the Irish choose? It's difficult to tell, right now, because each bowl has its drawbacks as well as its selling points.

If Texas loses another game, the South-west Conference representative in the Cotton will have at least two losses.

The Sugar might mean an undesirable rematch with Tennessee, the Citrus payout may fall short of the other major bowls and the Fiesta may not be able to attract a Top 10 opponent.

Major league wages jump by 20 percent

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The average baseball salary this season skyrocketed 19.4 percent to $586,816, according to a study by management's Player Relations Committee. It was the largest increase in one year since 1982.

The study showed that the Kansas City Royals had the highest payroll in baseball, paying their players a total of $23,617,090. The Boston Red Sox were second at $22,713,698, followed by the San Francisco Giants ($22,456,224), the Oakland Athletics ($22,274,834) and the New York Mets ($22,154,333). The Mets had the highest payroll in 1989 at $21,400,878.

At the other end, the lowest payroll belonged to the Baltimore Orioles at $8,087,702. Next-lowest was the Chicago White Sox at $7,178,810; the Seattle Mariners ($7,591,199) and the Texas Rangers ($12,753,035).

The study was distributed Tuesday at a meeting of general managers at Scottsdale, Ariz., and a copy was obtained by The Associated Press. The study includes prorated shares of signing bonuses and all earned performance bonuses, but does not include any extra money from postseason awards.

The Royals spent big money on free agent pitchers Mark Davis and Storm Davis last winter and that pushed their payroll to the top from their 1989 total of $17,007,047. It didn't help Kansas City on the field, however, as they finished sixth in the American League West with a 75-86 record.

The World Series champion Cincinnati Reds had the 16th-highest payroll at $15,751,395.

According to management's figures, the average salary jumped a record $97,277 from the 1988 average of $489,539.

The study shows the largest increase was for players newly eligible for salary arbitration, those with between three and four years of major league service at the start of the 1989 season. Their salaries jumped 48.1 percent from $398,525 in 1989 to $590,127 in 1990.

Another large jump was for those players with between six and seven years of service, a group that includes a large number of players who signed free agent contracts following the 1989 season. Their salaries rose 33.5 percent from $753,238 to $1,005,275.

In all, baseball players were paid $2.8 billion in 1989, a 10.5 percent increase. The study shows that probably will increase the total slightly. The payroll total includes $17,537,206 in termination pay money teams gave players whom they had released.

The leader in that category was the Atlanta Braves, who gave released players $3,167,500. 22.3 percent of their total payroll of $1,418,833. Second in termination pay was San Francisco ($1,600,983), followed by San Francisco ($1,486,348), Toronto ($1,125,000), the Chicago White Sox ($1,050,281) and Seattle ($1,000,531).

The only teams whose termination pay were the Philadelphia Phillies and the San Diego Padres.

Herschel Walker's arrival in Minnesota was part of the deal of the century. So far, only Dallas has benefited from the deal.

Vikes slide after trade for Walker

The Associated Press

Last Sunday night, Herschel Walker ran onto the field for the Minnesota Vikings, carried the ball for 13 yards and ran off the field.

For a guy who had 9 yards on six carries in his two previous games, 12 yards was wonderful, yet he was taken out of the game.

And that, perhaps better than anything, demonstrates the point: The trade is a boom for Dallas and a bust for Minnesota. "If this takes us to the Super Bowl in the next two years, then it's a great deal," Mike Lynn, vice president of the Vikings, said when he dealt six players, five draft choices and a host of conditions to the Cowboys for Walker. "If it's not, then it's a bad deal."

Since the trade was made in the fifth week of the 1989 season, Minnesota is 9-11 and Walker never has approached the 148 yards he gained in his Vikings debut. The Vikings were blasted from the playoffs in their first game last year and are 2-6 this year. They need a minor miracle to return to the playoffs, even with an additional wildcard spot.

Nor will Dallas make the playoffs this year, but it, at least, is showing improvement. Their three wins are three times last year's total. And coach Jimmy Johnson, the man who made the deal, says the public and conventional thing: "It was good for both teams."

But unlike the Rams, who have slid back because some of the players they got with draft picks from the Eric Dickerson deal of 1987 appear to be disappointments, the

Braves' non-prospect season's best rookie

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — At the start of the season, no one considered Dave Justice a top prospect. Not even the Atlanta Braves.

But Justice prevailed. After beginning the year in the minors, he blossomed into baseball's best baby boomer and Tuesday was the near-unanimous choice as National League rookie of the year.

Justice hit 28 homers, most of them after he took over in right field when the Braves traded fan favorite Dale Murphy in early August. Justice batted .282 with 78 RBIs in 439 at-bats in 127 games.

"Only had a great two months. It's hard to know what kind of year I could have," Justice said after winning the award. "I never have had 500 at-bats. I don't know what I can do."

Justice received 23 of 24 first-place votes for 118 points. Montreal second baseman Delino DeShields got the other first-place

Justice

Two members of the Baseball Writers Association of America in each NL city voted.

Justice, 24, joined Eric Williams (1971) and Bob Horner (1978) as Atlanta players to win the award. The American League rookie of the year will be announced Wednesday.

At the start of this season, Justice was in Atlanta's plans, particularly since the Braves had signed power hitting free-agent Nick Esasky. Justice, meanwhile, sustained a broken cheek bone in spring training when he was hit in the face with a ball and began the 1989 season in Richmond.

Even so, Justice didn't hit the Braves on May 16. He played out of position at first base and did not demonstrate what would follow.

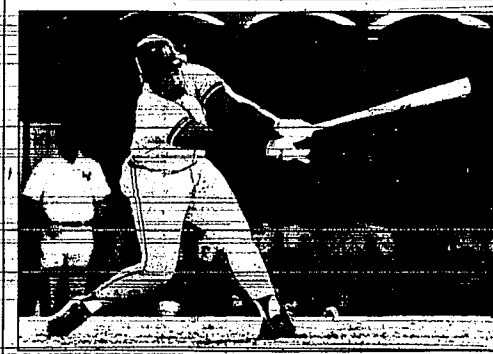

Justice, Atlanta's fourth-round choice in the 1985 draft, had never hit more than 12 home runs for one team in a season before.

Even so, Justice said he likes the public and conventional thing: "It was good for both teams."

But after the deal, the 6-foot-3 Justice moved to right and got comfortable in the field and at the plate, particularly in a ball park made for homers.

"I was able to concentrate on my hitting," he said.

Justice went on a tear and hit 355 with 20 home runs and 49 RBIs for the rest of the season.

Japanese all-stars mount 4-0 lead in exhibition series

The Associated Press

TOKYO — Makoto Sasaki of the Diablos Hawks had five hits in six at-bats to highlight a 20-hit outburst as a team of Japanese all-stars defeated a touring team of major leaguers 11-6 to take a 4-0 lead in the eight-game series.

The Japanese have tied, but never won a series against major league competition.

The major leaguers committed four errors and allowed five stolen bases in the game at Heiwada Stadium in Fukuoka, on the southern island of Kyushu.

After the Japanese took a 1-0 lead in the first inning, New York Yankees outfielder Jesse Barfield tied the game in the second with a homer.

Koji Akiyama's two-run single in the fourth gave the Japanese a 3-1 lead. The Japanese then added three runs in the fifth on four hits and one walk against starter

Dave Stieb of the Toronto Blue Jays. Jeff Montgomery of the Kansas City Royals relieved Stieb in the sixth, but the Japanese scored three more runs on three hits, including a homer by Hiroo Ishii of the Kintetsu Buffaloes.

The Japanese added two runs in the seventh on five hits against Montgomery.

Dave Boyd of the Montreal Expos and Bobby Thigpen of the Chicago White Sox held the Japanese scoreless on two hits in the final two innings.

The major leaguers scored their second run in the fifth on Ken Griffey Sr.'s sacrifice fly. San Diego's Roberto Alomar and the Chicago Cubs' Shawn Dunston each drove in a run in the sixth.

In the ninth inning, Cecil Fielder, who played for the Harbin Tigers in 1989 and when he hit 54 homers for the Detroit Tigers this season, connected for his first RBI in the series.

Experience expected to take A-4 titles

Shoshone favored in Northside Conference, but Carey has the size to mount formidable challenge

By Jeff Haskisson
Times-News writer

Last year the Dietrich Blue Devils captured the Northside Conference girls basketball title only to see the Richfield-Tigers and the Bliss Bears capture it in the district.

This year the Devils will have their work cut out to retain their title. The Shoshone Indians, entering their second season in the Northside Conference, look to be this year's first number one.

They have experience, size and a state title from volleyball on their side. "We have a lot of experience back," said Indians coach Ed Sandy.

The Indians, who were 14-8 last year, will be led by three seniors and a couple of juniors in the starting lineup. Ralene Duffin, a 5-11 senior, will provide the Indians with the size under the basket while 5-9 junior Stormy King will provide inside scoring. Hilbert, a 5-7 senior, and Christina Sandy will give the Indians some good height on the wings while 5-4 senior point guard Tammy O'Malley will key the offense.

CAREY PATHERS

Despite a 7-13 record a year ago the Panthers appear to be one team that can challenge the Indians. With 5-8 junior Kathy Simpson leading the way the Panthers have the size to make things difficult on the other teams in the conference. Joining Simpson will be 5-5 junior Michelle Sparks, 5-4 junior Jan Kirkland, 5-4 senior LeeJan Ellis, 5-3 junior Heather Wharton, 5-3 junior Nicole Harshberger, and 5-2 sophomore Becky Peterson.

"We are going to try to use our speed on both offense and defense," said Panthers coach Heber Kirkland.

"We'll press and try to fast break with those sprinter girls." The Panthers are still young, with only one senior, but have the experience of playing together for two years.

DIETRICH BLUE DEVILS

The Devils under the direction of Coach Mike Green, 5-6 juniors will look to repeat as conference champs but will be going so with only two starters back from last year's championship team.

Returning are 5-7 senior guard Heather Hubert and 5-9 senior center Debbie Southwick.

The Devils will have to hope that the youngsters on the roster can fill in and help carry the team back to the top.

Among those who must play key roles are Jackie Green, 5-6 junior forward, Sandra Vasquez, 5-7 sophomore, forward, LeAnn Sorenson, 5-5 junior forward, and Stacey Bowman, 5-0 junior guard.

"It's too early to tell what our weaknesses are but we will be there if we got our game going," remarked Green.

RICHFIELD TIERS

The Tigers had that this year can be as successful as last year, knocking off Dietrich in the sub-district then losing a heart-breaker to Cambridge to just miss going to state.

Ward does it all for Tigers

By Jeff Haskisson
Times-News writer

RICHFIELD - When the mention of Richfield basketball is made one name comes to mind, Melinda Ward.

Ward has been a starter and key player for the Tigers since her freshman year.

"She has started since her freshman year and she has done everything asked of her. She has played where we have needed her the most," expressed Tigers coach Jim Thomas. "I hate to think what it would have been like without her."

Ward, who like to ride horses in her spare time, has a difficult time thinking of what she likes to do besides play basketball.

"It's pretty much what I've wanted to do my whole life," she said.

On the court it becomes obvious that her desire to be a top notch player has paid off.

"She sees everything. She knows where everybody is. All we have to do is stay close and she will help us win in the end," said Thomas.

On 10 per cent per game scorer, she has been named to the all-conference team each of her three years and looks to make it four straight this year.

Although individual honors are important to her the team's success is just as important to her.

"I want the team to be good. That should change. Everyone is back, seniors Micki Miller, 5-10 junior, Tony Jones, 5-11 post, Jenn Bennett, 5-7 wing, Katherine Cautree, 5-8 post, and Heather Madden, 5-8 post all started at least part-time last season. So did 5-7 junior wing Bobi Jo Priddy.

Up from the JV team are juniors Darice Abell, 5-10 post and Amber Funkhouser, 5-5 wing.

"We didn't graduate any seniors. I got the same team playing," Sullivan said.

KETCHUM-SUN VALLEY CUTHROATS

This year's edition of the Cuthroats will be unlike those of the past.

This year coach John Remington will have a little to work with.

"Last year we had only six girls. This year we have 12. It is the biggest team that we've ever had."

Melinda Ward
A top conference player

Ward said, "Sometimes I feel like that when a mistake is made that is partly my fault. I should be helping out more."

"As for herself, 'I like playing point guard. That way I can control the game on offense. On defense I like to play underneath like the competition of taller girls."

"I tell myself that I'm not going to try to run the ball. I'm going to try to feel stronger about playing. I feel better about what to do on the court."

That could mean trouble to her competitors as she is already considered one of the best in the conference.

"If Ward has her way the Tigers will win this year."

However, the season turns out for the Tigers you can bet that she will have a lot to say in the final outcome.

"We'll be competitive," said Hornets coach Don Tompkins of his 1989 team.

RAFT-RIVER TROJANS

The Trojans could make things tough on both the Pirates and Hornets this year. Raft River has the bulk of the schedule with both contenders at the tail end of the season.

Dwight Richins, Trojans will be led by all-conference junior guard Kim Whittaker. Whittaker will be a trio of talented seniors led by Becky Rigby, 5-5, Rigby will be the anchor of the team, and she will play inside as well as the outside.

Angle Booth and Allison Telford will add their senior experience to the Trojans lineup. Amy Briggs, a 5-8 junior, will round out the squad for the Trojans.

"We have had a good experience and senior leadership," said Richins.

That leadership may be enough to carry the Trojans over the top in the conference this season.

HANSEN HUSKIES

The Hansen Huskies under the direction of fifth-year coach Terry David appear on the verge of making a move to the top half of the conference standings.

"I have more experience than ever," said David. "I think by the end of the year we're going to be right up there."

The Huskies will start three seniors a junior, and a sophomore this season. 5-8 Emily Butler will be joined by 5-3 junior Melissa Dowd.

Despite some strong Southside Conference teams, Hagerman expected to return to state tournament

By Jeff Haskisson
Times-News writer

Last year the Hagerman Pirates surprised everyone by finishing second in the state A-4 girls basketball tournament. This year the only surprise would be if the Pirates didn't make it back to the state tournament.

The Pirates will be led this year by a pair of standout seniors in Julie Thompson and Mary Henslee. Thompson is 5-10 and should give the Pirates a solid inside game.

Henslee, at 5-3, will key the back court. Rounding out the starting five for the Pirates will be 5-8 junior Kerl Andrus, 5-9 junior Tanja Eichelberger, and 5-8 junior Kristy Babington.

Andrus, who averaged 11.9 points per game last year, will team with Thompson and Eichelberger. 10 points per game last year to give the Pirates a strong front court trio.

"We're young but experienced. Most of the girls played a lot last year, including in the state tournament," remarked Pirates coach Jerry Duffin.

The key matchup of the season for the Pirates could come on January 10 when they play defending Magic Valley Conference champ Oakley at Oakley.

OAKLEY HORNETS

The Hornets enter the season as the defending conference, sub-district, and district champs and have a shot to repeat this year.

The Hornets will be paced by 5-11 junior forward Cara Cranney. Cranney will be the key to the success of the Hornets during the year.

She will be joined on the court by juniors Anne Hale, Charlotte Hardy, and Kelly Strauss, and senior Rachelle Hardy.

"We'll be competitive," said Hornets coach Don Tompkins of his 1989 team.

CASTLEFORD WOLVES

The Wolves will be looking to better their 4-14 record of a year ago.

Leading the way will be seniors Keri Johnson, 5-3, and Angie Asch. Asch is a 5-7 sophomore and will be a key player for the Wolves.

The Wolves will look for some good help coming off the bench in the form of 5-10 sophomore Ely Bookma.

"We are not a real tall team. We are going to have to get by on team desire," said Wolves coach Laurie Grindage.

NEW YORK (AP) - George Steinbrenner twice in September selected Commissioner Fay Vincent for permission to become involved in negotiations with free agents but was turned down flatly each time.

Steinbrenner, forced to give up control of the New York Yankees on Aug. 20 as a result of his dealings with gambler Howard Stern, wants to be free agent talks. Vincent, who was dismissed at the time, Vincent said from Osaka, Japan, where he is attending baseball's goodwill tour.

Henslee back after surgery

By Jeff Haskisson
Times-News writer

HAGERMAN - Sometimes that hard part in life is to watch.

Last year was one of those years for Hagerman's Mary Henslee. Henslee tore ligaments in her knee that resulted in reconstructive surgery and a missed season.

"It was really hard to watch the team go to state and not be able to play. It helped me to watch though. I picked up some things that I didn't see before," remarked Henslee.

Back at full strength this year she has already made her presence known for the Pirates.

"She is a good competitor. She fights hard and works hard," said Pirates Coach Jerry Duffin. "We are looking for her to come in and score. She can hit from the outside and shoots over 50 percent from the field."

Her play on the volleyball court was good enough to get her named to the Magic Valley all-star team.

Now that the basketball season is about to begin she finds herself back at the sport she loves and missed last year.

"I like basketball a lot and I really missed it last year." She will be looked upon as this year to be the team leader as well.

MURTAUGH

The Red Devils hope to improve under new year coach Stacy Murtaugh. The Devils who were 2-14, hope that a new coach and a new season will make a difference.

If genes are of any consequence the Devils may be okay with the presence of Amber Rovig and Amy Nebecker.

Rovig is the sister of former Division II standout Kelly Rovig while Nebecker is the younger sister of former star Evan Nebecker.

Also joining the duo will be 5-9 junior center Chandlee Graf, 5-4 junior Amber Anderson, and 5-7 junior Colleen Stasny.

"We have a lot of young players who don't have that much experience even though they all played on the varsity last year," said Winn.

Mary Henslee
A summer of rehabilitation

As provide the offensive punch back to the state tournament. Her comeback has not been easy though. Out of sports from January to August she has had to battle to get back what she lost during her recovery from surgery.

"I had to lift weights, she said. "The weight lifting really helped give me the knee muscle strength."

"My teammates have been really great. They have been real supportive of me and helped me get through it."

A 3.8 student she is the president of the honor society and hopes to attend Ricks College next year after she graduates. "I hope to go into prelaw," she said.

As for basketball and volleyball, "I think it would be fun but I haven't decided yet."

Whatever she decides the Pirates are happy to have her back as they prepare to take on all comers.

Wyoming coach not relishing BYU matchup

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) - Wyoming coach Paul Roach is "scared to death" to play Brigham Young on Saturday, saying Wyoming can only win if the Cowboys make mistakes and his Cowboys don't.

"Here's a team that scores 40 points a game," Roach said Tuesday. "I'm confident in the team, but I'm realistic. We're not as good a football team as they are. I hate to say it, but it is true. If we do it, it will be an upset."

The No. 25 Cowboys, who suffered their first defeat of the season last weekend to Colorado State, play the No. 8 Cougars at home in War Memorial Stadium in a game that will be televised nationally by ESPN.

"It would take a tremendous performance, letter perfect, by our team to upset them," said Roach, whose team fell to 9-1 overall and 5-1 in the Western Athletic Conference with the loss. "Maybe we'll catch them when they are not performing or executing as they have in the last few weeks. Do we have a chance? Yes. We do. But I don't know how much."

Roach said the Cowboy's honey-moon ended last Saturday in Fort Collins, Colo., when they were shot down by arch-rival Colorado State 17-8, and felt it necessary apologize Tuesday for his team's performance.

"I have to apologize for that little deal at CSU," Roach said. "It was a bitter disappointment. A tough loss. We shot ourselves in the foot."

Teams from the Western Athletic Conference also will compete in the District 7 football championships for men's and women's championships. Several independents, including the University of Colorado are slated to take part.

The meet provides the qualifiers for the Nov. 19-19 conference championships in the University of Utah. The meet will cover a 10,000-meter course while the women will be tested on a 5,000-meter layout.

Roach blames the loss, in part, on the fact that his team has made a habit of coming from behind to win.

"I think they got into a mindset that we're always going to find a way to win like we have done for the last several weeks. That's a wonderful thing. But we can't continue to rely on that. They got caught in Fort Collins. Time ran out on them."

Roach hopes the chin-dropping loss will put a little fire under the Cowboys.

"Maybe they'll be a little more aggressive, get after it earlier in the game. That's going to be a must going into this one," Roach said.

Division I men's cross country poll. Weber State will be tested by Northern Arizona under the eye of the former Big Ten coach, and Drexel Koboski, University of Montana team. Last season, Weber State topped Northern Arizona's state title as the state's best team.

The only game the Cowboys measured up to the talents of Brigham Young (7-1 overall; 5-0 in the WAC). Roach said, was in their 24-13 road victory over Washington State in the PAC-10.

"We were clicking pretty well," Roach said.

Since then, the Cowboys haven't had the stuff to overpower the likes of Brigham Young, he said.

"When we started out, I said, 'I didn't think we'd be a great team. I said we'd be a good team. Maybe the expectations or the hopes of the fans were a little greater than we were capable of accomplishing,' the coach said. "That became apparent to me after four or five ball games when we couldn't knock somebody out."

Webster State will be tested by Northern Arizona under the eye of the former Big Ten coach, and Drexel Koboski, University of Montana team. Last season, Weber State topped Northern Arizona's state title as the state's best team.

Big Sky cross country meet Saturday in Utah

BOISE (AP) - Saturday's 28th Big Sky Conference Cross Country Championships in Salt Lake will draw the Weber State men and Northern Arizona women to give the competition a run for its money.

The event, run at the Rose Park Golf Course in conjunction with the NCAA District Cross Country Championships, is hosted by the University of Utah.

The meet provides the qualifiers for the Nov. 19-19 conference championships in the University of Utah. The meet will cover a 10,000-meter course while the women will be tested on a 5,000-meter layout.

Teams from the Western Athletic Conference also will compete in the District 7 football championships for men's and women's championships. Several independents, including the University of Colorado are slated to take part.

Former Dolphin star man of the year

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — Nick Buoniconti, a former All-American and All-Pro linebacker, was selected the 1990 Walter Camp Man of the Year on Tuesday.

"He has been a great football player, he has attained outstanding success in both law and business and he has contributed immensely to the betterment of mankind in his role as a major fund-raiser and supporter of the Miami Prostate-to-Cure Paralysis," said Kevin O'Brien, Walter Camp Football Foundation president.

The Miami Prostate-to-Cure Paralysis Foundation is an effort to fund research, medical care and education for prostate cancer patients. Buoniconti has been a football injury left his son, Marc, a Citadel linebacker, with a diagnosis of "hopelessly quadruplegic."

Holyfield-Foreman fight set for April

NEW YORK — Boxer Holyfield's first defense of his heavy-weight title against former champion George Foreman will be April 19 in Atlantic City, N.J., promoter Dan Duva said Tuesday.

Duva said the fight will be staged by Trump Plaza, Trump, which had been bidding against Caesars Palace, paid a reported $10 million to $12 million as a site fee to put the bout in the Atlantic City Convention Center.

Holyfield, who knocked out Buster Douglas last month to win the title, is expected to be exempt from all three major boxing organizations. But he has been ordered by the World Boxing Council to make his first defense against ex-champ Mike Tyson.

If he fights Foreman first, the WBC has threatened to strip Holyfield of the title. The threat is the latest involving the title, subjected during the last year to lawsuits over opponents, sites, fighter management and promoters.

Indians training moving to Florida

TUCSON, Ariz. — The Cleveland Indians will move their spring operations from Tucson, where they have trained for 44 years, to Florida in three weeks, a newspaper reported Tuesday.

The American League team plans to move to the state of Venice, Fla., Myers and Napier, in Florida, by the Tucson Citizen said. In Cleveland, Indians spokesman Bob DiBiase, when asked of the Citizen's report, said, "The reports out of Tucson are premature. It is no secret the Indians have been looking for a training location in Florida."

Braves, Jays swap minor leaguers

ATLANTA — The Atlanta Braves on Tuesday traded left-handed pitcher Nate Cromwell to the Toronto Blue Jays in exchange for right-hander Earl Sanders.

Cromwell, whom the Braves claimed on waivers from Toronto in September, was 5-14 with a 5.56 ERA with Knoxville of the Class AAA Southern League last season.

Sanders, 25, was 4-11 with a 2.5 ERA and two saves in 37 relief appearances with Knoxville in 1990.

The Braves assigned Sanders to the Blue Jays' No. 1 draft pick in 1986, to their Richmond farm club in the Class AAA International League.

Corn can make great desserts

Potatoes could set trends

The trendy '80s have gone awry. We have entered the Age of Ambivalence, declared Sunday's paper.

Out with the '60s go pizza, pesto and pasta (except spaghetti). What better food to replace them in this alleged era of nothingness than the potato with its roasty texture, bland taste and plain brown wrapper?

Is Mr. Potatobrad really an ahead-nutritionally speaking?

Water makes up 70-80 percent of the average potato's weight. Of the dry weight, the majority of a potato is starch followed by protein, sugar, potassium, phosphorus, fats, vitamins and other minerals. Fiber resides primarily in the skin. A rather bland profile so far.

Surprisingly, potatoes supply a higher quality protein than whole wheat does. This means there are more of the eight essential amino acids (the ones our bodies need to make protein). Because they have a high per calorie yield, potatoes supply the world with more protein than either wheat or rice.

Potatoes are carbohydrate loaded at 65-80 percent of their dry weight. An average-sized baker before adulteration by humans has only 2 grams of fat. So, in another dietary enemy, adds up to only 15 milligrams per potato (equal to the amount in 2 small potato chips).

Potatoes, because Americans consume so many of them, supply us with more Vitamin C than any other food. One medium baker equals the vitamin C of one-half cup of orange juice—about one-third of an adult's recommended daily amount. A 1960 study done by the U.S. Plant, Soil and Nutrition Growing Laboratory, however, found the Vitamin C in stored potatoes decreased by about two-thirds from harvest in October to the following May.

The B vitamins are well represented in the potatoes repertoire. One baked potato has double the potassium of one banana. This is beginning to sound like dieter's ambrosia!

Another potato plus—iron. One medium baked potato contains a full cup of spinach in iron content. All this is housed in a 220-calorie package.

Unlike a duck or a deer, where there is no question of skinning before eating, a potato's skin is questionable. Most authorities concede the nutrients are concentrated in the skin. Cooking without skin causes leaching of water-soluble vitamins such as C and B.

However, various studies have found toxins in potato skins which can cause headaches and nausea. Science News reports a study done by the U.S. Agriculture Department exposing toxins in the shriveled, brown spots on potatoes. Unfortunately, the toxins were spread throughout the potato, not just in the spoiled sections. Heat (as in cooking) does not destroy these poisons. Another toxin, Solanine, originates in the green areas of potato skins.

All these studies were done under various artificial conditions. No study clarifies what amounts and under what conditions these toxins affect human health. Potentially these poisons are harmful but are they actual health threats? I do not eat a single potato, fried or roasted, or potatoes. To be safe, discard the entire damaged item.

Humans have rendered the innocent potato far more damaging than Nature has. This threat comes in the form of added fat, salt and preservatives. Some examples:

Fries: A fast-food order of fries is made from about one-third of a potato yet the calorie count of the fries and one whole potato are equal. The addition of 3 teaspoons of fat to the fries makes up the remainder of the calories. Potatoes manufactured into French fries become 50 percent fat.

Chips: These delicious treats are a fat lover's dream—that is if you dream of an early heart attack. Turning one medium potato into potato chips requires the addition of almost 16 teaspoons of fat and almost a teaspoon of salt. We've come a long way, baby from that dieter's ambrosia.

Baked: Fast food has taken the innocent baker and gussied it up with everything from cheese and sour cream to...

Homemade desserts with the well-loved flavors of America's heartland make any meal a special occasion. When preparation is streamlined with time-saving cooking methods and convenience products, these delicious sweet treats can be enjoyed on even the busiest of days.

With an eye toward traditional flavors and contemporary easy cooking, The Quaker Kitchens have created this new dessert. Each recipe relies on convenient, versatile corn meal. A long-time favorite for corn bread, corn meal's unique distinctive flavor and texture add something special to a wide range of homemade desserts.

Try these great-tasting, fuss-free new recipes, then experiment with enhancing your own favorite desserts, with the one-of-a-kind flavor of corn meal.

MICROWAVE FRALINE CORN BREAD PUDDING

This rich and creamy vanilla-brown sugar pecan flavored pudding is brought to the table with just 15 minutes of microwave cooking.

- 1/2 cup chopped pecans
- 2 cups cubed white bread (about 6 slices)
- 2 eggs, milk
- 1 cup (1/2 stick) margarine
- 1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1/2 cup corn meal
- 3 eggs, beaten
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
- 1/2 teaspoon baking powder

In 1 1/2 quart microwaveable bowl, microwave pecans at HIGH for 2 minutes or until lightly toasted, stirring once. Add bread cubes; set aside. In 2 quart microwaveable bowl, microwave milk and margarine at HIGH 3 to 4 minutes or until mixture begins to thicken, stirring after 2 minutes. Combine remaining ingredients; whisk into corn meal mixture; stirring until smooth. Pour over bread cubes. Microwave at HIGH 4 to 5 minutes, stirring after 2 minutes. Let stand immediately with milk or half and half, if desired. Makes 8 servings.

Tip: To reheat—one serving: Combine 1/2 cup bread pudding with 2 tablespoons milk or half and half. Microwave at HIGH about 1 minute or until hot.

HEARTLAND BERRY SHORTCAKE

Pancake mix speeds preparation of this shortcake, and frozen fruit makes it a quick-to-prepare, year-round treat. It moistens, lasts for days, and reheats beautifully in a microwave.

1 1/2 cups pancake and waffle mix

- 1/2 cup corn meal
- 1/2 cup plus 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 cup milk
- 1/2 cup (1/2 stick) margarine, melted
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- one 10-oz. package frozen raspberries, thawed, undrained, pured
- 1/2 cup fresh or frozen thawed blueberries
- 2 tablespoons almond-flavored liqueur (optional)

Heat oven to 400 degrees. Grease 9-inch round baking pan. Combine pancake mix, corn meal and 1/2 cup sugar. Add milk, margine and egg, mixing just until moistened. Sprinkle with cinnamon. Prepare filling. Combine remaining 1 tablespoon sugar and cinnamon, sprinkle over batter. Bake 18 to 20 minutes or until wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes on wire rack. Serve warm.

Tip: Shortcake—into wedges—serve with combined raspberries, blueberries and almond liqueur. Top with sweetened whipped cream, if desired. Makes 8 servings.

Tip: To reheat—one slice of shortcake: Microwave on HIGH 10 to 15 seconds.

Nutritional Information—per 1/2 slice of cake: 1/2 cup sugar—295; protein—5 g.; carbohydrate—47 g.; fat—9 g.; cholesterol—35 mg.; sodium—400 mg.; and dietary fiber—2 g.

Cooking for yourself doesn't have to be boring

Weekend cooking, resourceful shopping add variety, nutrition

The Washington Post

It's a bother to shop and cook for one, let alone make meals nutritious, too. Produce such as heads of cauliflower or lettuce frequently go to waste, chickens are too big and take too long to cook, and the kitchen is the size of a hallway closet. No wonder a pint of ice cream or a bag of beer just seems like the most sensible dinner.

But it doesn't have to be that way. It's easy to plan, single householders can fashion fast meals.

Here are some strategies for getting out of the microwave nachos rut:

• The supermarket salad bar. Use it as a building block for side dishes, main courses and desserts, not just for salads. Make a vegetarian sub by sauteeing onions, mushrooms, green bell or hot peppers, broccoli, carrots, baby corn and purple cabbage. Sprinkle with oregano and freshly ground black pepper, stuff into bread or a baguette and dress with a little oil and vinegar. Use the same vegetables, with or without one third of a pound of fresh scallops, shrimp or chicken to stir fry, adding a teaspoon each of wine, vinegar, sherry and soy sauce for the last minute. Sprinkle with sesame oil at the end. Or turn vegetable into soup by adding them to a can of good-quality chicken broth.

• Spike a pasta sauce with fresh broccoli or cauliflower florets; microwave a potato and top it with salad bar, peas, mushrooms and a sprinkling of grated cheese, then microwave again to melt the cheese.

• Or make a side dish of "kidney" beans, adding chopped garlic, a touch of oil, flavored vinegar and some dried sage.

Make strawberries romanoif; top berries with a dollop of vanilla yogurt and a sprinkling of brown sugar.

• Bulk foods. In a study conducted at three Washington supermarkets by Diane O'Neil, a nutritionist at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Human Nutrition Information Service, two thirds of the 36 bulk food items surveyed cost less than their packaged counterparts. One of the largest savings of bulk over packaged foods was for small package sizes, the type that singles are more likely to purchase. O'Neil also found that the largest savings in the bulk section was for herbs and spices.

Purchasing small quantities is an ideal situation for singles who may have trouble finishing the ground caribou purchased for a "company dinner" and herbs and spices help replace the flavor of fat and salt. This section is also a haven for

Louisiana still has inspired Creole cuisine to offer

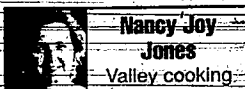

"Nawlin's" is the way it's locally pronounced, but you read New Orleans on a map.

I first visited the city twenty-two years ago, and once again I fell in love with the city.

High on its list of unique American cities with the combination of centuries of history, culture, climate and charm, it was a great convention place. Food was generally excellent.

Now after a decade of "frenzied" growth of convention facilities, streets and sidewalks, overpriced and underserved food, it once again is regaining some resemblance of gentleness. Yes, the gent is still in there in the giant hotels, the French Quarter, Bourbon Street, the overpriced and frantic paced restaurants—but some of the quiet elegance is again returning.

Some of the food still is wonderful. After all a place that made culinary history by putting boudin, bananas foster, chicken creole, jambalaya, shrimp gumbo, chicken crouffade, Etouffade and pralines on the map and making Creole and Cajun international phrases has to have a reason for its reputation.

Many restaurants are opting for placing a copy of their menu on display outside so you can see what's available at what price before you enter.

Again there for a convention last week, I took a refresher cooking school day. Basically I wanted some problems and questions solved and answered. Here are the recipes with my notes.

PRALINES

- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 1/2 cup light brown sugar
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/2 stick (6 tablespoons) butter
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Combine all ingredients and bring to soft ball stage (238-240 degrees), stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Stir until mixture thickens, becomes creamy and fluffy and petals (if used) stay suspended in mixture.

Spoon them out on buttered waxed paper, foil or parchment paper. Makes 10-50 pralines, depending on size. When using waxed paper, be sure to have newspapers underneath as the heat from the candy will transfer wax to whatever is underneath.

You can roast pecans by baking them at 275 degrees for 20 to 30 minutes until lightly browned and the wonderful smell permeates.

These candies have often not turned out well for me as I have not been doing it at cooking school last week. Here are my notes to help you:

Because of our higher altitude you might opt for the "soft ball" stage as temperatures sometimes are deceiving in candy-making.

To test for the soft-ball stage, drop a small amount of syrup into ice water (best done in clear glass) and it forms a ball which doesn't disintegrate but flattens out when picked up with your fingers.

Do not double this recipe. Make as close to serving time as possible. If you're going to rice, pasta and dried beans, which can be mixed and matched in soups or stews, as well as for snacks such as raisins or dried fruit.

—Weekend cooking. This is an obvious solution to having something to eat all week, and one that will save you from home-delivered pepperoni pizzas. Ellen Brown, a single cook, food consultant and cookbook author, roasts a chicken on a Sunday afternoon, stuffing it with fresh herbs and garlic under the skin. Eat it without the skin, the result is a flavorful, moist bird that will stretch into a few week-day dinners. Or Brown will cook up a stew, chiller and defat it, or prepare a pasta sauce or hearty soup such as minestrone or seafood gumbo. She makes "frozen dinners" by freezing soups, sauces and stews in individual portions; when she comes home late from a business trip, there's a sal-—To serve them at a party or give away on holiday, do so just a day or two ahead and note that they should be eaten early.

You must work very fast to ladle out the candy onto the paper. You probably won't get it all out in candy form. So just reheat and add some corn syrup to that in the pan and use as an ice-cream topping.

MUFFULETTA

1 1/2 cups chopped pimento-stuffed olives

1 cup chopped kalamata or other black olives

2/3 cup olive oil

1/2 cup minced fresh parsley leaves

1 ounce jar fillets, drained and chopped

3 anchovy filets, minced and mashed to paste

2 tablespoons capers

1 tablespoon garlic, minced

1/2 teaspoon fresh oregano, minced or 1 teaspoon dry

pepper to taste

Meeting of Christian Singles delayed

TWIN FALLS - The next meeting of the Magic Valley Christian Singles Over-50 has been postponed from this Thursday to 6:30 p.m. Nov. 15 at George K.S., 1719 Kimberly Road.

Expert will discuss care of clothing

BURLEY - A nationally recognized expert in the dry-cleaning industry will discuss clothing care problems Thursday at a University of Idaho 4-H Leaders Workshop. Norman Oehlke will demonstrate at-home stain identification and removal and discuss problems in understanding labels and in the accuracy of those labels. He will speak from 1 to 5 p.m. in the Miniola II Room at Burley. For more information, contact Ernestine Porter at 885-6872.

Service providers will get together

meeting is set for 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. Friday in the Oberlin and Grace meeting room, 264 Main Ave. S. Groups and agencies will share information on the availability of social services in Twin Falls.

Marines plan to hold birthday party

BUHL - The Magic Valley Marines invite all Marines and their spouses or guests to the annual Marine Birthday Party, set for 7 p.m. Saturday at the Clear Lake Country Club. There will be a $5 cover charge per person and a no-host bar. Dress is casual. For more information, call Gene at 543-5827.

CSL plays 'Bradshaw on the Family'

TWIN FALLS - The College of Southern Idaho's Center for New Directions will screen "Bradshaw on the Family," a series of tapes that explore family structure and ways to remedy family dysfunctions, starting at noon Friday in the Southern Idaho Development Center on campus as well as via teleconference at the CST Mini-Cassia Center, 1458 Overland Ave., Burley. The tapes will be shown from noon to 2 p.m. the second Friday of each month except December. There is no charge and no registration is needed. For more information, call 733-9554 ext. 468 or 736-0070.

World Community Day to be held

JEROME - Church Women United of Jerome will celebrate World Community Day at 1:30 p.m. Friday at First Baptist Church, 308 First Ave. E. The theme will be "Women for Justice." All women of faith are invited. Child care will be provided.

Scout troop plans potato-bar benefit

JEROME - Boy Scout Troop 94 will hold a potato bar fund-raising dinner from 6 to 9 p.m. Friday in the Jerome Moose Hall, 226 N. Lincoln St. Suggested dona-tions are $3 for adults and children 12 and over and $2 for senior citizens and children under 12. Tickets are available at Tiger Stop, Wild West, Video and R. & R. Pharmacy or from any member of Troop 94.

Church women plan bazaar, chili feed

BUHL - The women of Calvary Assembly of God will have a bazaar and chili feed this weekend at the church, located at the corner of Truck Lane and Poplar Street. The bazaar is set from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, with the chili feed set from noon to 8 p.m. Friday. Price is $1 for all the chili you care to eat. Pie and coffee will also be available.

The Times-News welcomes news of community events. Send material to The Times-News Valley Happenings, PO Box 548, Twin Falls, ID 83303-0548. Please submit news at least a week in advance and include a phone number where you can be reached.

Mother wants help with dishes

DEAR ABBY: My son is engaged to a girl I'll call Lucy. Lucy has sat in dinner at our house every Sunday for the last seven months. I fix good meals and she eats heartily and acts like she enjoys the meal, but she has never once offered to help me with the dishes, or even take her plate into the kitchen.

My son says Lucy is a guest and she never supposed to. I say he's wrong. What do you say?

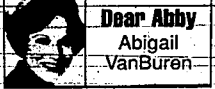

A DIFFERENCE OF OPINION

DEAR DIFFERENCE: Who's right and who's wrong is not nearly as important as developing a good relationship with your future daughter-in-law.

Try treating Lucy more like a member of the family than a guest. She opens after dinner, say, "Let's clear the table. I'm not the one with the clear work." Or, "How about giving me a hand with these dishes, Lucy? It's been a long day, besides I appreciate the company."

It will make Lucy feel useful and will do wonders for your relationship with your future daughter-in-law.

DEAR ABBY: Three months ago, I returned home to find our 29-year-old son lying on his bed, dead! Autopsy report: acute hemorrhagic pan-

I am printing your letter to let others know that ATAMON is there for friends and relatives of alcoholics. Unless they've given ATAMON a chance, they haven't done all they can for their alcoholic loved ones.

DEAR ABBY: How come all those wise guys who claim to know how to run the country are driving taxicabs and cutting hair?

— AVERAGE CITIZEN

DEAR AVERAGE CITIZEN: Be thankful that all those wise guys who claim to know how to run the country are driving taxicabs and cutting hair. And NOT running the country.

Please, tell other parents of alcoholic children that alcoholics are ill. Why isn't more done for alcoholism and finding a cure? I would bet it kills more young people than all the other diseases combined.

Letters of thanks

PTO expresses thanks for help with Math-A-Thon

Morningside Elementary School Parent Teachers' Organization recently held its annual fund-raising event - a Math-A-Thon. We would like to thank all of the friends, neighbors and relatives of Morningside students who pledged them in this event. In addition, we would like to express our gratitude to the businesses that supported our Math-A-Thon. Special thanks to McDonald's, Wendy's, Burger King, Video West and the Addison Avenue East Pizza Hut. We appreciate all of the community support we received during this fund-raising effort.

Jerome schools convey gratitude for election help

The Jerome School District Board of Trustees and Administrators would like to extend our deepest thanks to all of the dedicated and tireless volunteers who helped us promote and direct the Oct. 30 bond election. Countless hours of hard work was put in by these individuals, and their efforts showed in wide coverage of information in the community and the record turnout of voters at the polls.

Classes at church will deal with gulf

TWIN FALLS - The Middle East and the Persian Gulf will be the focus of a series of Sunday morning classes set Nov. 11 through Dec. 16 at First Presbyterian Church, 209 Fifth Ave. N. The classes will meet at 9:30 a.m. in the church's Fireside Lounge, and the public is welcome. The series will utilize guest speakers and films to study the history and people of the region in an effort to understand current conditions there.

Dr. Jim Gentry, history professor at the College of Southern Idaho, will lead the first two classes. He will use historical illustrations to clarify important Middle Eastern issues and will discuss some of the many opposing factions in the region. He will also talk about Middle Eastern contributions to art, culture and civilization.

The third and possibly fourth weeks will feature Kenneth and Virginia Parker, educators and former residents of Kuwait, and their classes will include a video series called "Terrorism and the Gospel."

Home/garden

Be careful not to overwater indoor plants

As winter approaches, days become shorter and light intensity is reduced. With less light, indoor plants grow more slowly. Slower growth means plants are using less water. This makes it easier to overwater indoor plants this time of year.

Allen Wilson
Gardening

The best way to reduce water is to increase the interval between waterings, rather than reduce the amount applied. The entire soil should be wet each time a potted plant is watered. Enough water should be applied so that a little runs out the drain holes.

The best way to determine when to water is to feel the soil of each plant. Wait until the top of the soil becomes dry before watering. Wet soil is darker than dry soil, so you may be able to tell when the soil is dry by appearance.

However, different soils are different colors. One soil may be as dark when dry as another is when wet. Avoid the habit of watering all plants at the same time. Some plants may need a longer interval between waterings than others.

Some plant containers are designed with automatic waterers. You can also buy water meters or indicators. I have tried some of them, but have never found any which were as reliable as my fingers.

Water quality and temperature is also important. Softened water should never be used for plants. Traces of the salt used to soften the water can accumulate in the soil and damage plant roots. Water softeners are generally attached only to the hot water. However, sometimes the cold water is also softened in the bathrooms.

Cold water reduces soil temperature and slows root growth. It is best to use room temperature water. I refill my plant-watering container when I finish watering. Then it is always ready with water of proper temperature. The next time I need it, if it becomes empty before I finish watering, I'll refill and let it sit for an hour or two before continuing.

Watering frequency is one of the best ways to determine if plants are in the right size containers. Plants which dry out quickly may be ready to shift to a larger pot. If a plant stays wet for two weeks between waterings, the pot may be too large. When soil stays wet too long, the air or oxygen content is reduced. This eventually reduces root growth and corresponding top growth. Remember that more plants are damaged from overwatering than underwatering.

Sun in winter can be controlled

I have sliding glass doors and wide windows on the south side of my home, and in winter the sun shines directly through them. I keep the drapes closed all day to protect my carpet and furniture. How can I deal with this problem, which I don't have in summer? — C. Howell

You are experiencing basic passive solar energy. The sun shines through the windows in winter because it passes at a much lower angle in the sky than in summer. Some people go to considerable expense and trouble to take advantage of this effect.

Among the more obvious ways to control sun-window problems year-round or just in winter or summer are drapes, blinds, and various types of interior and exterior shading devices, such as strategically placed trees.

An expensive solution for eliminating most of the sun's ultraviolet light, which is responsible for the fading of carpets and other materials, is to install glass with built-in coatings or sunscreens that block ultraviolet. I consider this practical only if the existing windows need replacement for other reasons, such as to reduce heat loss or maintenance.

Elastic sun-control film, which helps block ultraviolet light and reduce glare, can also be installed on the inner surface of the existing glass. Most films are intended for permanent installation, but at least one manufacturer, Solar Star, offers a product that can be peeled off and stored when the sun is not a problem. For information on Solar Star, which is held in place by static electricity and can be installed by do-it-yourselfers, call 800-783-0455. Window films are also sold at some home centers and auto-supply stores.

Do it yourself

Another approach is special sun-control screens, which usually also serve as insect screens and are removable. Examples are SunScreen, SunTex and SunScreen. For information, write Michelle English, Phifer Wire Products, Box 1700, Tuscaloosa, Ala. 35403.

My kitchen sink is in floor shape, but I can't keep water in it. I've tried several types of new stoppers, but the water still drains out. Any idea short of getting a new sink? — L. Lamb

The metal fitting that contains the drain opening is probably distorted and the opening no longer matches the plug. It's usually fit tightly enough to hold back water.

However, a new sink shouldn't be needed since the drain or strainer fitting is fairly easy to replace. Start by measuring the strainer fitting carefully and finding a duplicate at a plumbing supply outlet.

The strainer is held in place by a large flange nut under the sink. Detach the tailpiece and p-trap directly under the strainer, then remove the flange nut by turning it counter-clockwise with a spud wrench or a product that can be peeled off and stored when the sun is not a problem. Clear the hole in the sink and spread a thin bead of plumber's putty around the top surface of the drain hole; install the new strainer and flange nut and reattach the tailpiece and p-trap.

We're thinking of replacing a 19-year-old electric central air conditioner with a natural-gas model. Would gas be cost-effective in the long run? The house is already serviced with gas. — C. Dunn

Whether gas is more cost-effective than electricity as an air-conditioning fuel depends, of course, on the relative costs of the two fuels in your area; their future cost and the efficiency of the cooling units. For example, the Southeastern Pennsylvania Energy Center recently calculated that it would be 9 percent cheaper to operate a high-efficiency gas air conditioner in a Philadelphia-area home than to operate a high-efficiency electric conditioner of the same output. The reverse might be true in areas where electrical rates are lower.

Potatoes

corn and broccoli. At Wendy's, a baked potato with cheese triples the calories and adds 9 teaspoons of fat to a plain baked potato.

Dried flakes reconstituted with milk and butter, one-half cup contains a moderate 1 teaspoon of fat, but 3 times the sodium of an order of fries. The addition of preservatives further detracts from health this variety.

How can a potato be enhanced without ruining it nutritionally? Cooking Light magazine offers several suggestions for oven frying and roasting. Cut potato into 1/2-inch rounds or wedges. Top in a plastic bag with seasonings such as rosemary, pepper, onion powder, paprika or garlic powder. Spread them in a single layer on a cookie sheet sprayed with vegetable cooking spray and bake at 425 degrees. Bake 20 minutes for rounds and 45 minutes to an hour for wedges. These recipes yield less than one-fourth teaspoon of fat per serving.

When mashing potatoes, use skim milk and a scant amount (none is even better) of butter but add garlic, green onions or another favorite seasoning. Using plain hot fat wagon for some of the added liquid in mashed potatoes cuts the need for added butter and whole milk.

Enhancing a baked potato with a half tablespoon of butter actually increases the calories by one-fourth, and adds approximately 3 teaspoons of fat. The truly dedicated may only add a squeeze of lemon or a scant amount of butter to preserve the pristine nutrition of the potato.

Perhaps the prognosticator of the 1990s is the health benefits of style and nutrition. Nutritionists should turn to the potato for guidance. The absence of style does not obviate the presence of substance. Sometimes plain brown wrappers hide something far more tantalizing than anything else you can eat.

Try mushroom barley soup

Seattle Times

The following light eating recipe was developed by CoCo Sullivan, home economist on the staff of the Seattle Times.

MUSHROOM TOMATO BARLEY SOUP
(4 servings; approximate preparation time 20 minutes)

1 cup barley
2 large tomatoes
1 small onion, peeled and finely chopped
1 medium clove garlic, peeled and minced
2 cups low-sodium chicken broth, divided
1/2 pounds mushrooms, trimmed, cleaned and thinly sliced
1/2 teaspoon dried rosemary, crushed
1/4 teaspoon dried thyme, crushed
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper
1/4 cup water
1 tablespoon balsamic or red-wine vinegar
1/2 to 1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

1. Bring a medium pan of water to the boil; add the barley and cook a low boil 20 minutes. Drain and pat dry.
2. Bring another part of water to the boil; add the tomatoes and time 1 minute. Drain and rinse with cold water. Peel and chop the tomatoes. Set aside.
3. In a large pan combine the onion, garlic and 1/2 cup broth. Bring to a boil; reduce the heat and simmer 5 minutes. Add the mushrooms; cover and cook 10 minutes, until the mushrooms are softened and the liquid is thick. Stir in the tomatoes, the remaining 1/2 cup broth, the rosemary, thyme, paprika, salt, cayenne pepper and water. Stir, uncovered, 10 minutes.
4. Stir in the barley, vinegar and pepper; simmer 5 minutes. Stir in the parsley and eggs.

9-inch round Italian-style loaf of bread, split horizontally

1/2 pound Italian salami (thin sliced)

1/2 pound provolone cheese, thin sliced

After slicing the bread, brush the insides with the salad-type dressing and mound half of the olive dressing in the bottom half, pressing firmly.

Divide the cheeses and salami in alternate slices ending with a cheese on top. Place the remaining olive mixture on top and press the bread firmly over all. Wrap tightly in foil and weigh down with a pan or brick.

These are wonderful for after-game parties or for hunters to take to the field.

You can easily double the dressing and keep on hand in the refrigerator for a few weeks.

This is the easiest recipe for jambalaya I've run into. It's versatile and can easily be done while you're busy wrapping packages.

JAMBALAYA

- 1/2 cup oil
- 1 chicken, cut-up or boned (1/2 pounds) rolled sausage (use anything here—even hotdogs)
- 4 cups chopped onions
- 2 cups chopped celery
- 2 cups chopped green pepper
- 1 tablespoon chopped garlic
- 4 cups long-grain rice
- 5 cups stock or stock substitute (like bouillon made from cubes or powders)
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 2 cups chopped tomatoes
- 2/3 cup fresh tomatoes (optional)

Brown the chicken in the hot oil over medium-high heat then add the sausage and saute with the chicken. Remove meat from pot and do one of the following: For brown jambalaya add a couple of tablespoons of brown sugar to pot and proceed or make a roux (equal mixture of flour and oil, brown in the pot) or toast it, use some Kitchen Bouquet. For white jambalaya just proceed to next step.

Condiments. Open a single cook's refrigerator and the selection of fresh items is likely to be sparse. The selection of mustards, on the other hand, is likely to be plentiful. Use condiments to add flavor without oil. Coat a popovers, skillets, chicken breast with coarse or Dijon-style mustard and roll in whole-wheat bread crumbs and Parmesan cheese. Instead of butter brush jelly or jam in the hollow of an eggplant. Squash: glaze baked squash with orange marmalade. Instead of saute the onions, celery, green pepper and garlic together until onions are translucent. Return chicken and sausage to pot. Add liquid and salt, pepper and other desired seasonings that you might want to add and bring to boil. For red jambalaya add 1/2 cup paprika and maybe some tomato juice as some of your stock.

Add rice and return to boil. Cover and reduce heat to simmer. Cook for 30 minutes. After cooking for 10 minutes, turn rice and tomatoes. Turn rice from top to bottom completely. Add green onions and chopped tomatoes if desired. For seafood jambalaya saute seafood at first then don't return to pot until last bit.

Use the long-grain rice, not the short kind. However you can use brown rice, only you will have to cook maybe twice as long.

Enjoy!

THE ACES ON BRIDGE ROBBY WOLFF

Two and two continue to make four... the white of the ace... the crux of the battle for life.

Today's hand comes from a Pro-Am bridge tournament... a contest in which a seasoned pro is paired with an amateur...

an amateur sitting in the East chair will win the trick... the East hand and lead a spade... South will win the ace...

So what does the pro West do? He doesn't lead a low club... he either goes South a ruff and discard...

With the amateur in the West chair the play goes the way... West is on lead after winning his trump trick...

to cover the eight wins... but South must still lose a club trick... and his total is still nine tricks.

ANSWER: Two spades... South has more diamonds than spades... the combined trump holding in spades may be equal to or greater than the diamond holding.

Send him questions to the Area 10 box 12343, Dallas, Texas 75233... with self-addressed, stamped envelope.
