

Court gets Otter vote question

The Associated Press

BOISE — Democrats made good on their promise to challenge the tie-breaking power of Republican Lt. Gov. Butch Otter on Friday.

They asked the Idaho Supreme Court to void Otter's votes that let his party retain operating control of the evenly divided state Senate.

"This action of the lieutenant governor, unless rectified and prohibited by his court, will result in an unlawful and unconstitutional intrusion of the Executive Department into the affairs and responsibilities exclusively assigned to the Legislative

Magic Valley committee assignments - B1

Department," the seven-page petition said. The court immediately gave Republicans until Dec. 17 to file their response, and oral arguments were set for Dec. 21.

The legal action followed Thursday's series of 21-21 tie votes that were broken by Otter to make Republican Leader Michael Crapo to Idaho Falls president pro tem so his party can run the chamber.

If the Democratic petition is granted by the high court, the Senate would be forced to reorganize without the aid of Otter's tie-breaking vote. That would force the two parties to negotiate on control, which would likely end in some form of shared power, Republicans adamantly rejected that concept throughout negotiations since the election.

Attorney General Jim Jones indicated both parties would receive some financing through his office to pay the private attorneys hired to present their cases to the court.

And - Republicans quickly complained about Democrats tagging the taxpayers with the cost of a politically motivated court fight.

"I don't think the people of this state expect us to spend money on a lawsuit to defend our constitution that has served us well for 100 years," GOP Floor Leader Jerry Twigg of Blackfoot said.

The petition was filed just before Republicans again relied on Otter's vote to solidify their control of the chamber through adoption of rules guiding the Senate's operations over the next two years. Those rules create a Ways and Means Committee that

About 50 people gathered Friday in Ketchum to protest the possibility of United States involvement in a war over oil.

Ketchum anti-war rally draws 50

By Phil Sabm

Times-News writer

KETCHUM — In the hope fighting will be averted but fearing it will not, nearly 50 people gathered in Ketchum on Friday to protest a U.S. policy they say is bringing America toward war with Iraq.

The message to President George Bush was clear: Kuwait's oil is not worth the lives of young American men and women — give the economic sanctions more time to work.

"Oil is the real issue," Father William Taylor of St. Charles Barron Roman Catholic Church in Hailey told the crowd. "How many lives is a barrel of oil worth?"

But there might be hope in Bush's recent offer to talk with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, Taylor said.

"I congratulate the president for speaking with Hussein."

But he also warned that after Christmas passes, "there will be a countdown to war." Taylor said he has a personal reason to fear war. One of his nieces is in the military and in Saudi Arabia, and another nephew is going there.

Mike Sullivan of the Snake River Alliance, the group that helped organize the rally, said the embassy staff will not be needed once all Americans who want to leave Kuwait depart.

White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater echoed her comments. "The personnel there have performed courageously and at great personal sacrifice," he said.

The diplomats' departure would remove a possible provocation for conflict between the United States and Iraq.

President Bush has warned that he would hold Iraq responsible for the safety of the embassy personnel.

U.S. plans to abandon embassy in Kuwait

Knight-Ridder News Service

WASHINGTON — The diplomats who have been the U.S. flag flying for more than three months over their besieged embassy in Kuwait will leave after U.S. hostages are evacuated, the State Department announced Friday.

The State Department lowered its estimate of Americans in Kuwait and Iraq to 750, including 88 "human shields" held at key military and industrial facilities in Iraq. The department had previously estimated that there were more than 900 Americans, most of them in hiding.

Although Iraq has cut off food, water and electricity and ringed the embassy with troops — nine August, Ambassador Nathaniel Howell and seven other diplomats stayed to defy Iraq's order to close embassies in Kuwait.

State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said the embassy staff will not be needed once all Americans who want to leave Kuwait depart.

White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater echoed her comments. "The personnel there have performed courageously and at great personal sacrifice," he said.

Economy sags, job losses soar

WASHINGTON — The worst five-month stretch of layoffs since the 1981-82 recession pushed civilian unemployment to a three-year high of 5.9 percent in November, the government said Friday.

Payrolls fell by 267,000 last month, the Labor Department said, after a 180,000-job loss in October. Since June, when the unemployment rate was 5.2 percent, nearly 1.1 million Americans have joined the ranks of the unemployed.

Practically all the nation's industries have been affected.

"This report looks like a recession. It is like a recession. It is a recession," said Allen Sinai, chief economist at the Boston Co. "And it's full-fledged, accelerating and widespread."

Magic Valley labor situation remains strong

By Craig Lincoln

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The state may have flinched at the prospects of a national recession and the reality of a Middle East crisis, but the Magic Valley is standing its ground, according to unemployment data released Friday.

"As yet no sectors in our local economy have been affected," Lon McDonald of the Idaho Employment Department's Twin Falls office said. And the Wood River Valley, an area more likely to be affected by national economic troubles than the rest of the state, enters its winter tourism season concerned but still booming.

The department reported a preliminary, seasonally adjusted November unemployment rate of 4.9 percent in Jerome, Grand and Twin Falls counties, up from 4.6 percent in October and November 1989. The report continued a trend of moderate growth in the area's labor force.

It was the sixth month in a row that the area's unemployment rate was at or below 5 percent.

The Magic Valley performed better than the rest of Idaho.

"There is some indication that the much-talked-about national recession is starting to impact some areas and industries in Idaho, such as lumber, building-related, manufacturing and some wholesale trade," the department said.

Idaho's adjusted unemployment rate for November was 5.7 percent. The October rate was 5.6 percent, and November 1989's was 4.9 percent. All the employment rates are adjusted to remove seasonal fluctuations.

Weather summary

Clear skies, bright sunshine and light winds produced another excellent day across the Magic Valley and much of Idaho.

There were no reports of precipitation in Idaho, and under generally clear skies temperatures dipped to some of the coldest readings yet this season. Many stations in the higher elevations reported readings in the single digits or below zero. But temperatures rose with the sun, particularly during the afternoon.

The warmest temperature in the state Friday was 51 degrees at Hagerman. Spangler reported the coldest at 9 degrees below zero.

"Elsewhere in the nation Friday, the highest temperature was 88 degrees at Fallbrook and Escondido, Calif. The lowest was 12 below zero at West Yellowstone, Mont.

Thunderstorms scatter cold rain across Dixie

Elsewhere in the nation, gale warnings were in effect along parts of the western Gulf Coast, including the Galveston, Texas, area, and lake wind advisories had been issued across much of south Texas.

Plains and upper Great Lakes regions: High temperatures Friday afternoon were in the 20s and 30s in much of the West, and in the 30s and 40s from the Great Lakes region and northern sections of the Ohio Valley to northern New England.

Readings were in the 40s and 50s along the Pacific Coast and were warming into the 60s and 70s in the southwestern deserts.

Yellowstone Park in Montana was the coldest spot in the nation Friday with a low of 12 degrees below zero.

Thunderstorms scatter cold rain across Dixie

The Associated Press

Thunderstorms scattered cold rain from Mississippi and Louisiana to the southern Atlantic Coast on Friday as a cold front curved through the Southeast.

Temperatures in most areas dipped into the 40s Friday afternoon, but warm weather continued ahead of the cold front, with temperatures rising into the 60s and 70s across the Florida Peninsula.

Sunny skies also prevailed across the southern Plains states.

In the areas touched by the cold front, heavier rainfall totals for the six-hour period ending at 1 p.m. EST included three-quarters of an inch at Key West, Fla., and half an inch at Albany, Ga.

Earth gives Galileo spacecraft boost for voyage

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The Galileo spacecraft makes a rendezvous with Earth on Saturday evening as the planet's gravity gives it a slight boost to start its six-year journey to the solar system's largest planet, Jupiter.

Launched in October 1989, Galileo will swoop about 593 miles above the southwest Atlantic Ocean at 12:35 p.m. PST.

The pass will be monitored by mission controllers at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

During the flyby the spacecraft will measure gases that cause the "greenhouse effect" warming of Earth's atmosphere and will study high-altitude water vapor that helps create and destroy Earth's ozone layer scientists said.

Galileo will also be the first spacecraft with modern instruments to study the far side of the moon, which always faces away from Earth.

Mideast conference talks stuck

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Talks broke down Friday between the United States and non-aligned nations on a draft Security Council resolution endorsing a future international peace conference on the Middle East.

Ambassadors said the United States was likely to veto the measure, which is opposed by Israel. A future council meeting was set for Saturday evening.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has demanded an international effort to solve the Palestinian question as a condition for settling the Persian Gulf crisis. However, Bush administration officials deny the U.S. proposal is meant to satisfy him.

Malaysian Ambassador Razali Jemali, who represents the non-aligned nations on the 15-nation council, said after a series of meetings with U.S. Ambassador Thomas R. Pickering that "it appears that the talks cannot go any further."

When asked if the United States would veto the resolution, he said, "That seems to be their national position."

Diplomats said the United States was pushing for removal of language endorsing a peace conference "at the appropriate time," but the non-aligned nations insisted that it be left in.

Diplomats said the United States was pushing for removal of language endorsing a peace conference "at the appropriate time," but the non-aligned nations insisted that it be left in.

"I am very disappointed. We thought after six weeks we had come to a consensus. ... Apparently, it's impossible," said the council's president, Abdallah Saleh al-Ashtal of Yemen.

Israel, whose Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir is beginning a U.S. visit, has rejected the idea of such an international gathering. Pickering plans to meet Shamir behind closed doors Saturday, the U.S. Mission said.

Shamir, who is set to meet President Bush on Tuesday, has said he expects U.S. officials to clarify their stand on a peace conference.

said we have reached the 'lull before the storm. America is meddling in other countries in the name of freedom, justice and economics, he said.

"Who appointed the United States the mobile security force? With our own domestic problems, who are we to say what is right and wrong in other countries?" he asked.

Sullivan said he would advise his three sons to resist the draft if they were called up to fight for this war.

"Protecting the profits of kings and oil-companies is against my conscience," Sullivan said.

Vietnam-era veteran Jim Herbert said a government order last month for 20,000 caskets is a clear sign America is headed for war. The collins were ordered from a company in Memphis, Tenn., he said. He urged people to write congressmen and senators telling them to avoid war before young men and women start coming home in body bags.

Nye Wright, a 17-year-old student, told the crowd he would be old enough for the draft next year.

"I don't want to go for my tombstone that he died for that - greed," Wright said. Bush is a John Wayne wannabe - to whom war is remote, Wright said.

"Hey, it's not my kid. I don't have to worry."

After the rally, Bee Longley, of a group called 'Beyond War,' said the United States should have gone to the United Nations before committing ing military forces en masse to the Persian Gulf.

"Go to the U.N. first, then get consensus. Sway world opinion there. I don't think 400,000 Americans would be there if we had gone to the U.N. first," Longley said.

When the rally was finished, the group walked up to Main Street, then went a block farther and circled back to the parking lot.

They carried signs that said: "Read My Lips - Negotiate! Whose Freedom? Whose Oil? Whose Oil Are We Protecting? and Sanctions, Not Invasion!" among others.

Clark Shaffer of the Snake River Alliance said he hoped the rally might influence people who were wavering in their opinion of U.S. policy in the Gulf.

Senate

assures the GOP the power to control the fate of legislation "leaders deem the most critical."

In one final attempt to head off the court confrontation, Republican leaders offered to accept the Democratic version of the rules if the Democrats dropped their court suit.

That Democratic version eliminated the Ways and Means Committee and added a requirement that all committee chairmen appointed by Crapo be approved by the full Senate.

Democratic Leader Bruce Sweeney or Lewiston initially agreed the deal on the condition that Otter's vote would be specifically excluded when the Senate considers committee chairman appointments.

It was a condition Crapo declined to accept, and the settlement attempt failed.

"We made every effort to compromise," Crapo said. "I will continue to manage the Senate in a fair and unbiased manner."

But on being developed with the court petition, which names Otter and all 21 Republican senators, Crapo expressed concern about the use of the courts to force certain actions from the Legislature.

"It seems to me that there is an alarming trend developing where people, groups and now other legislators, who don't get what they want at the polling booth, go to the courts," he said. "Their bottom line is they want half the bottom line of the Senate, and our constitution doesn't provide for that."

Republicans maintain that the state constitution gives the lieutenant governor, as the Senate's president and presiding officer, power to vote at any time the chamber's members are equally divided.

But Otter said on a substantive legislative issue or a procedural matter,

Democrats argue that the lieutenant governor's tie-breaking power is limited to substantive legislative issues and votes on internal Senate procedures violate the constitutional separation of powers.

Backed by an opinion from outgoing Attorney General Jim Jones, Republicans refused all Democratic demands for positions of power, forcing the court test.

In recognition of the Democrats' even membership in the Senate, though, the Republican rules provide Democrats with equal committee membership staff and office space but tempered by the Ways and Means Committee, the only one with more Republicans than Democrats.

Crapo said it would handle political issues, but he declined to guarantee that substantive legislative matters would not be assigned to it as well.

Board moved to stimulate the economy by nudging interest rates lower. It pushed the rate charged among banks for overnight loans to 7 1/16 percent, down from 7 7/16 percent earlier in the week.

A handful of banks in turn trimmed their prime rates from 10 percent to 9 percent. That is the rate charged banks' best business customers, but a wide variety of business and consumer loans are tied to it.

November's 5.9 percent jobless rate was the highest since unemployment was 6 percent in October 1987.

Many analysts predict unemployment will hit 7 percent next year.

With 7.3 million Americans looking for work but unable to find it, November's losses hit hardest in the manufacturing sector, which has been sliding downhill for months. Factory payrolls declined by 200,000, the biggest one-month drop since 1982.

The automobile industry alone lost 55,000 jobs, reflecting temporary slowdowns to avoid excessive inventory buildup.

Construction lost 62,000 jobs as the housing market continued to deteriorate. Over the last six months, that industry has seen jobs dwindle by about 250,000.

The service-producing sector, which until a few months ago had been enjoying healthy job gains and keeping the economy steaming ahead, showed widespread weakness too.

Retail trade lost 70,000 jobs because general merchandise stores are falling short on their normal seasonal hirings. Employment also fell in wholesale trade and in finance, insurance and real estate.

All the job-loss calculations are seasonally adjusted.

Health insurance continued boom, adding 80,000 jobs. Over the last year, that industry has added more than 600,000 jobs.

Labor costs, frequently blamed for intensifying the nation's inflation problems, rose only slightly in November. The average hourly worker made $10.13 an hour last month, up one cent from October.

Overall, total civilian employment was about 117.3 million in November, down about 450,000 from the 117.7 million employed in October.

Magic Valley's raw numbers indicate a steady increase in the labor force with only moderate fluctuations and perhaps slightly lower levels in the later months.

In November, the three-county area had 37,689 people in labor force — either working or looking for work. Of that total, 35,591 were working and 1,698 were looking for work.

In November 1989, 37,567 people were in the labor force. And 36,009 of those were working with 1,558 looking for work.

Blaine County continued its reputation as the area's best place to look for a job. Its seasonally adjusted unemployment rate was 3.8 percent, up from 3.4 percent in October.

Raw numbers showed a labor force of 8,421, with 8,068 people working and 353 looking for work. Last year, the county had a labor force of 7,315, with 7,061 working and 254 unemployed.

The labor force in Idaho edged up slightly in November. Normal hiring for the Christmas was largely responsible for employment increases, department analysts said.

That balanced with the annual decrease in employment in the construction, lumber and agricultural sectors. The adjusted labor force increased 2,700 to top 463,900 for the first time since May.

"Our area compared with the rest of the state fared quite well," local analyst McDuggald said.

Of the other areas analyzed by the state, only Ada County's 3.4 percent November rate came in lower than the Magic Valley, while the Bonanza County unemployment rate matched the Magic Valley.

The national rate pushed to a 1989-year high of 5.9 percent in the October 267,000 jobs.

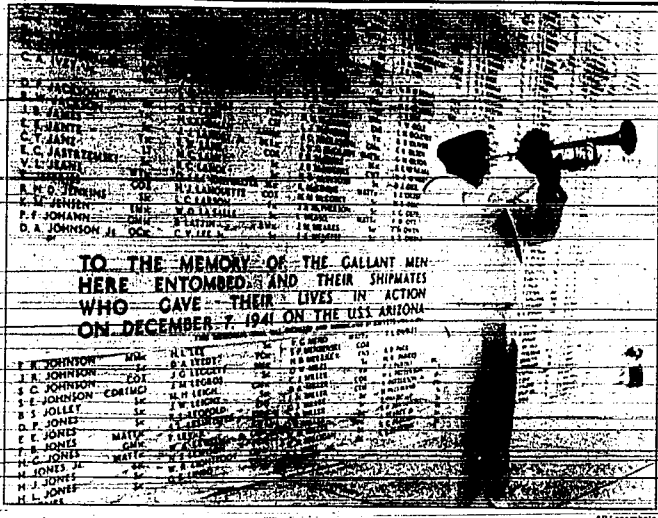

Regionally, the unemployment rate for November, October and November 1989 were:

- Panhandle, 7 percent, 7.3 percent, 6.3 percent.
- Lewiston area, 4.8 percent, 4.2 percent, 4.2 percent.
- Canyon County, 7.2 percent, 6.5 percent, 7 percent.
- Ada County, 3.4 percent, 3.7 percent, 3.2 percent.
- Blaine County, 3.8 percent, 4.9 percent, 4.6 percent.
- Pocatello area, 5.8 percent, 6.1 percent, 5.3 percent.
- Idaho Falls area, 4.9 percent, 4.7 percent, 4.1 percent.

Americans who died in Japanese attack are honored 49 years later

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — David J. Best's journey to honor a childhood friend killed 49 years ago at Pearl Harbor ended Friday at the stark limestone facade of the Indianapolis World War Memorial.

Best, 72, traveled from his Hayward, Calif., home to join other World War II veterans at a service honoring the 2,403 Americans killed in Japan's assault on the Pacific Fleet.

Best glanced at a photograph of Paul B. Free, whose life ended at 20 as he climbed into his airplane on Dec. 7, 1941.

"Few things stir man's compassion so deeply as remembering the supreme sacrifice of an old buddy, sleep comrade, sleep in peace," Best said.

Veterans alternated reading 10 names a minute, while tolling a large, silver bell from the USS Indianapolis one time for each American who died.

Similar ceremonies took place elsewhere, including in Hawaii, where dignitaries honored the USS Arizona Memorial for wreath presentations, a 21-gun salute and echo taps. At the Pearl Harbor Naval Base, a "missing man" flyover by Hawaii Air National Guard jets ended a minute of silence marking the time of the attack.

Best, a self-described "loyal, patriotic American who gets choked up when 'The Star-Spangled Banner' plays," grew up in a lovely Hawaiian morning 49 years ago. Americans who saw the sun rise did not see it set," said the Rev. Russell H. Waters, minister of the First Street Christian Church and veteran of the Eighth Air Force.

"With the tolling of the bell, remind us that someday the bell will toll for us."

"We are hoping this will lead to bells tolling all over the country next year on the 50th anniversary," said Elbert Watson, chairman of the World War II National Commemorative Association, which sponsored Friday's service.

Watson asked the Japanese government to apologize for the attack that drew the United States into World War II.

Some Japanese are trying to persuade their leaders to apologize before President Bush visits Japan next spring.

Japan has apologized to South Korea and China for its military actions in the 1930s and 1940s. No official apology has been issued to the United States.

Brando daughter ruled incompetent

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Lawyers in the murder case against Marlon Brando's son told a judge Friday that the prosecutor's star witness — the actor's daughter — was ruled mentally incompetent by a court in Tahiti.

Prosecutors pressed on with efforts to get her testimony.

Superior Court Judge Joel Rudolf tentatively ruled that he would issue an international document requesting French assistance in returning Cheyenne Brando to the United States to testify in her brother's trial.

But Rudolf didn't make that ruling final and gave lawyers until Dec. 19 to file documents on the issue.

Christian Brando, 32, is charged with first-degree murder in the shooting of his sister — Tahitian lover, 26-year-old Dag-Dorette — at Marlon Brando's mansion May 16.

Attorney Michael Nasatin, who is representing the 20-year-old Miss Brando, told the judge he was informed by lawyers in Tahiti that she was placed under the guardianship of her mother.

Study says formula outdated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's poorest states lost $3.2 billion in federal health-care dollars for the needy in 1989 because of an outdated formula for distributing Medicaid funds, the General Accounting Office said Friday.

The GAO said the formula, which bases payment on an average of per capita income, should be eliminated because it fails to account for the actual number of people living in poverty in a state and the ability of that state to raise revenues.

"The formula does not target most federal funds to states with the greatest needs... those with weak tax bases and high concentrations of poor people," GAO researcher Janet L. Shikles told the House Government Operations subcommittee on human resources and intergovernmental relations.

The hearing was called to investigate the growing strains on the federal-state program that is supposed to provide health care to the poor, serving 26 million people this year.

The federal government pays 55 percent of medical expenses under Medicaid; states pay the rest. The GAO said the combined expenditures totaled $61 billion in 1989.

Shikles specifically mentioned taxable business earnings that don't get counted when calculating per capita income.

If poverty levels and "taxable resources" had been used in tandem with reducing the federal share to 40 percent, nine states would have received more than $100 million in additional payments in 1989, Shikles said.

States that would have benefited are Arkansas, California, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, New York, Tennessee and Texas.

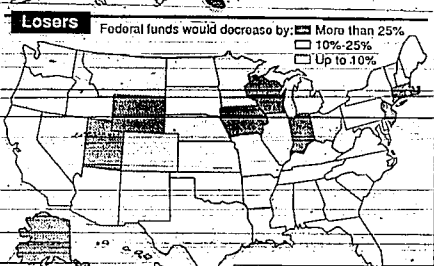

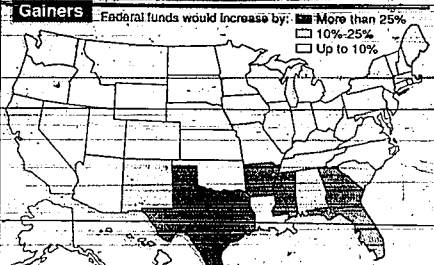

The 55 percent federal cap allows richer states to collect more than they need, she said.

Per capita income represents an average of income, so a high percentage of wealthy individuals would raise the average even though large numbers of people live in poverty, as in New York or California.

Astronauts teach space lesson while NASA battles shuttle woes

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Shuttle astronauts reviving the teacher-in-space dreams of Christa McAuliffe beamed a celestial lesson to 41 middle school students Friday, allowing the problem-plagued Columbia mission to create the first "space classrooms."

"You may have heard of some of the problems we've been having," astronaut Jeffrey Hoffman told the youngsters watching him on television screens at two NASA centers. "It's been quite an interesting and dynamic mission."

The shuttle's $150 million Astro observatory, crippled by computer failures, was put back in operation Friday with the help of students sent from the ground. But possibly more significant, the lessons beamed from 218 miles above Earth to American schoolchildren helped the space agency regenerate some of the goals struck down in the Challenger disaster.

"We weren't trying to take the place of what they were going to do on Challenger," said Karen Widenhofer, a Madison County, Ala., teacher on temporary assignment with NASA who assisted in the classroom Friday at Marshall Space Flight Center at Huntsville. "But this shows that NASA is still interested in education and encouraging students in science and math."

"NASA still plans to put a teacher in space."

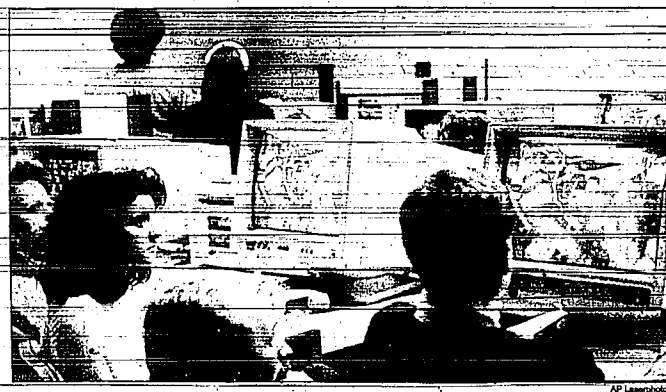

Friday's space lesson, conducted by four of the seven astronauts aboard Columbia, took place nearly five years after the Jan. 28, 1986 explosion of Challenger that killed all seven aboard that shuttle, including Mrs. McAuliffe, a New Hampshire social teacher.

Denny Elkins, a ninth grader from Snellville, Ga., was one of the 12 middle school students from four southeastern states who sat at a horseshoe-shaped desk in the space classroom at Marshall. He said he was watching on TV when Challenger's liftoff turned into a fireball in the sky.

"I saw it live because I already was interested in space travel," he said. "The explosion with the biggest impression of my life. I really don't know how to describe it, but when I saw that, I said, 'No.'"

"Now," he said, "I'm reconsidering."

During the opening 35-minute lesson, which was about 15 minutes late because of a communications

Astronauts stargaze with ground help

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Columbia's astronauts, with help from scientists on the ground, pushed forward with their stargazing Friday in a rush to make as many observations as possible with the shuttle's telescopes.

The four astronauts aboard Columbia talked about their problems operating the $150 million Astro observatory during a live lesson from space for middle school students and a question-and-answer session.

"Unfortunately, we've had some failures with computer terminals which have caused us to have to redo the way that we operate this mission. So it's been quite tedious and time-consuming to figure out how to do that," astronaut Ron Parise told 44 youngsters at NASA centers in Alabama and Maryland.

Observations were halted for half a day Thursday when a flight deck computer overheated and shut down. The only other on-board computer for operating Astro's three ultraviolet telescopes failed in a similar manner Sunday.

Following Thursday's failure, NASA hurriedly devised and implemented a plan in which ground teams aim and turn on the telescopes, with the astronauts using a joystick to zero in on the targets. The telescopes were tested successfully one by one and by Friday were producing results surpassing scientists' expectations.

Parise and fellow astronaut Robert Parker, for example, focused all three telescopes on a quasar for 51 minutes, three minutes longer than planned.

"That's what happens when you have good, old-fashioned astronomy ... and a little bit of help from your friends," Parker told Spacelab Mission Operations Control in Huntsville, Ala.

Other high-energy targets observed Friday included numerous galaxies and a supernova that exploded in 1987.

st radiation, Ms. Widenhofer gave students at Marshall about an hour-long class. Another 29 students took part in a similar space classroom at Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md. The space schoolhouse concluded with astronaut Ron Parise and Robert Parker fielding questions from the students on Earth.

"I'd like to know what is the most tedious and painstaking part of your trial radiation, Ms. Widenhofer gave students at Marshall about an hour-long class. mission so far?" said Mario Trimble, ninth grader from Montgomery, Ala.

"When you fly a mission, most of the time is scheduled very tightly and there are a lot of things to do," responded Parise.

"Unfortunately, some failures with computer terminals have caused us to redo the way we're doing our mission. We're slowly working around everything."

Burt Dorn of Glen, Miss., wanted to know how the problems had affected the Columbia's missions.

"Very greatly," astronaut astronomer Parker said, explaining that some of the telescope operations had to be done by hand instead of by computers.

"Tangles persisting throughout the mission have forced the astronauts to miss more than 100 planned observations. About 250 celestial targets were to have been studied."

The two computers able to run the observatory's three ultraviolet telescopes both failed. Flight director Gary Coen said the cause of the computer failures has not been determined and he didn't know if it was connected to a firm buildup in the equipment.

On Friday, the Astro observatory was being run by commands sent from the ground to guide the telescopes toward their desired targets. The astronauts used a joystick and aided by information from the ground aimed at objects.

The success of this process Thursday night and Friday gave scientists hope that many more observations could be made before Columbia's 10-day flight ends Tuesday.

"Our attitude here is that we've got a mode we feel is going to work and we're going to go get the science," mission manager Jack Jones said. But he added the shuttle's knowledge of how efficient the operation would be.

Spacelab Mission Operations Control's John David Bartoe congratulated the astronauts Friday morning for obtaining "fantastic observations of a quasar, one of the most distant objects in the universe. All three ultraviolet telescopes focused on the quasar for 51 minutes; three minutes longer than planned."

"That's what happens when you have good, old-fashioned astronomy ... and a little bit of help from your friends," Parker told Bartoe.

The space classroom programs will be available via some cable television companies to classrooms.

To illustrate the importance of studying all types of radiation emitted from celestial objects, Durrance played space music from the theme of the film "Star Wars."

Low and high-frequency notes were filtered electronically from the first version, and the taped music was unrecognizable. The same assures them were played with all the notes.

"As you can see, you need to hear all the notes to recognize the song to appreciate its full musical quality," Durrance said.

Ruling says lower court made error

WASHINGTON (AP) — NASA won another chance Friday to show why it shouldn't be forced to release the taped conversations of astronauts aboard the space shuttle Challenger moments before it exploded.

A bitterly divided federal appeals court held on a 6-5 vote that a lower court erred in ordering the release of the tapes without balancing the public interest against the harm of invading the privacy of the seven astronauts and their survivors.

The decision by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia sends the case back to U.S. District Judge Norman Johnson, who had ordered NASA in 1985 to release the tapes to The New York Times.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration "is entitled to an opportunity to prove its claim that release of the tapes would invade the privacy of the deceased astronauts, or their families," the appeals court majority said.

The ruling reversed both the original district court opinion and a 1988 holding by a split three-judge panel of the appeals court that had upheld the release of the tapes.

Circuit Judge D.H. Ginsburg, who dissented from the 1988 appellate ruling, on Friday filed the decision for the full court's six-member majority.

The decision goes back to a lawsuit the Times filed under the Freedom of Information Act seeking release of the tapes of cockpit conversations after liftoff, just moments before Challenger exploded.

All seven astronauts died in the Jan. 28, 1986, explosion.

NASA released a written transcript of the conversations, but the newspaper contended that an analysis of the audio tapes might help determine what caused the tragedy.

NASA, invoking a privacy exemption under FOIA, said that releasing the tapes would subject the astronauts' families to emotional distress because the recordings would be played repeatedly on radio and television.

In Friday's opinion, Ginsburg wrote that disclosure of the file would reveal the actual and imbedded of the crew's voices during the last seconds of their lives.

Nations flunk test of economic cooperation

By Martin Cruzinger
The Associated Press

BRUSSELS, Belgium — An effort by 107 nations to come up with new rules governing world trade was widely viewed as a crucial first test of global economic cooperation in the post-Cold War period.

But after five days of frustrating stalemate, the delegates admitted failure Friday and went home. That defeat, many fear, could have far-flung repercussions, resulting in increasing trade frictions, rising protectionism and possibly even an all-out global trade war.

The trade negotiations, known as the Uruguay Round for the country where the talks began in 1986, had been scheduled to wind up with five days of bargaining on a 291-page document to govern trade flow between nations into the 21st century.

However, the delegates never came close to agreement because of a fight between the United States and the 12-nation European Community over farm subsidies.

The talks are expected to resume in late January in Geneva among lower-level negotiators.

The United States, backed by Australia, Brazil and other major farm exporters, was seeking sharp reductions in subsidies. The Europeans claimed the U.S. proposal would force more than 2 million of its 10 million farmers off the land.

At the end, both sides bitterly

Carla P. Hills

Says compromise rejected complained about the intransigence of the other. U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills said that a compromise proposal put forward by Sweden to break the impasse had been rejected by a few countries with substantial economic strength, who were not prepared to negotiate fundamental agricultural reform.

In addition to the European Community, the United States expressed unhappiness with the intransigence of the Japanese, who were unwilling to open their closed rice market. Hills and other members of the U.S. delegation said there would be no point to beginning negotiations in Geneva until the European Community showed more flexibility.

And the EC gave no hint of any change in its bargaining stance. EC Agriculture Secretary Ray MacSharry of Ireland said: "We have what we believe to be a very concrete proposal on the table."

Officials conceded the dispute had put a strain on relations between the United States and some of its biggest trading partners, the European Community and Japan.

There was speculation, which Hills did not rebut, that the United States might begin taking a series of retaliatory actions against other countries based on charges that American companies were being kept out of foreign markets.

Those disputes involved the Japanese rice market and purchases of farm products including pork and beef in Europe. Farm groups in the United States have already asked the administration to retaliate in these matters.

"Those petitions are on my desk and we will be assessing them under the law," Hills said. "We pledged when we took office to uphold the law."

If the U.S. does retaliate against farm imports from Europe and Japan, it would more than likely spark similar moves against American products.

Some members of Congress said the failure to reach an agreement is likely to swell protectionist sentiment in Congress.

The U.S. continues to be a leader of the world-trading system. But we can no longer afford to go it alone," said House Majority Leader Ricketts Gephart, D-Mo., one of the leading advocates of using retaliatory measures to force open foreign markets.

It is also likely the trade battle could spill over into other foreign policy concerns, just as the United States is counting on a unified front in the campaign to force Iraq from Kuwait.

The trade talks are being held under the auspices of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, the organization charged with policing international trade rules.

In recent years, the GATT rules have been swamped by economic events. Trade in important areas such as agriculture, textiles and the fast-growing service industries of banking and the like are not even covered by GATT.

To correct these problems, the United States had pushed an ambitious agenda seeking to include the $1 trillion in world trade not now covered by GATT rules.

The freer markets expected to result would expand export opportunities for U.S. businesses and farmers and thus help to lower American's trade deficit, still stuck at around $100 billion a year.

Army sends extra forces on anniversary

JERUSALEM (AP) — The army sent reinforcements to the occupied lands Friday and imposed military curfews on towns and villages in an effort to thwart attacks marking the third anniversary of the Palestinian uprising.

Underground uprising leaders called a two-day general strike for the weekend, and a Marxist PLO faction, the Popular Front for the Liberation of "Palestine," urged "massive martyrdom" to mark the anniversary.

"The Palestinians in the West Bank have every good reason now to carry out spectacular attacks in the territories," a senior army officer was quoted as saying in the Maariv newspaper.

"The prime minister is in the United States. (U.S. Secretary of State James A.) Baker is about to meet with the president of Iraq, the third anniversary of the uprising is approaching, and there is a feeling that because of the Gulf crisis the uprising has been removed from the headlines, the unidentified officer was quoted as saying.

An army spokesman said reinforcements have been sent into the West Bank and Gaza Strip and that "special measures," including covert operations, were ordered to thwart violence.

The army also clamped curfews on the largest of the territories' towns — Gaza City, Nablus, and Hebron — and many refugee camps. It declared other sectors "closed military areas," barring journalists from entering.

The curfews essentially mean that an estimated 735,000 Palestinians living in those areas are ordered to stay home.

The strike Saturday was called to mark two months since the Temple Mount riots, in which at least 17 Palestinians were killed by Israeli police.

Gorbachev forms anti-porn commission in Moscow

The Washington Post

MOSCOW — What finally tipped the balance?

Was it the Soviet version of Dr. Ruth describing on national television the pleasures and risks of various sexual positions? Was it the live sex revue "Hot Night in Sochi," or perhaps the latest hard-core magazine from Riga, Eroticon?

For one reason or another, Mikhail Gorbachev has formed an anti-pornography commission. The "urgent measures to protect public morals" and not a moment too soon, Dmitri Likhachev, an eminent scholar of ancient Russian literature, has warned that the proliferation of smut threatens the young generation. Gorbachev's glasnost has not been all Pasternak, Solzhenitsyn and other high-minded work. It has also meant — as a stroll through any subway station here reveals — the sale of bootleg copies of "Emmanuelle," a "Sex-Hor-O-Log," which tells dogmatic weary Capricorns when and if they can expect a little help from the heavens in the pornography department, and the translation of the Kinsey Report and far ricker handbooks. Even the Komsomol, the Communist Party youth organization, shows soft-core videos for big rubles.

The Bolsheviks did not start out as puritanical revolutionaries. At the Kollantai, a member of Lenin's inner circle, once said that to satisfy the sexual urge is as natural as quenching one's thirst with a glass of water. But with the years, sexuality all but disappeared from Soviet literature and popular culture, and the symbols of motherland and the puritanical Komsomol sorts who could have been mistaken for the grim crowds in "The Scarlet Letter"

But as the censors began losing their jobs in recent years, sex returned to page, screen and subway station. Soviet publishers brought out an edition of Vladimir Nabokov's "Invitation."

And once the secrets of the Stalin era and Kremlin politics were no longer taboo, the underground press turned instead to sex: Even Soviet television, which used to be best known for its intense interest in tractor combines, is now a good deal more permissive than the American networks.

Alexander Vasiliev, for one, is not amused. A deputy in the Supreme Soviet, Vasiliev told a session of the legislature this week. "Our country is being overwhelmed by an avalanche of sex, violence and other such slime. The junk is being sold everywhere in the streets and underpasses."

In an order published in Thursday's issue of the still-prim Communist Party paper Pravda, Gorbachev said that to stem the proliferation of "pornography, pseudo-medical literature, erotic videos and similar publications," the new committee should be guided by the experience of other countries.

60 drown as boat capsizes near Nigeria

LAGOS, Nigeria — A boat capsized and 60 of its passengers drowned in the Atlantic Ocean off Nigeria's southern Cross River state, newspapers reported Friday. Most victims of the accident, which occurred late Thursday, were traders carrying goods between fishing communities, the reports said.

Thailand airline employees arrested

BANGKOK, Thailand — Two employees of Thailand's national airline were arrested Friday with about 100 pounds of heroin hidden in two suitcases, police said. The two were arrested in the parking lot of the domestic terminal of Bangkok's airport, according to the Narcotics Control Board.

Men destroy 10 Corsica apartments

BASTIA, Corsica — A dozen masked men tied up three people at a vacation complex early Friday and blew up 10 apartments, police reported. No group claimed responsibility, but the attack bore the hallmark of the separatist Corsican National Liberation Front, which views tourism as colonization by mainland France.

Iran drug arrests defy Amnesty group

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Iran says it has arrested 7,000 drug addicts and smugglers in only days, after Amnesty International condemned such arrests and said Iran had killed more than 1,100 alleged drug traffickers in 1989. Tehran radio, monitored in Nicosia, quoted the director of the anti-drug squads of the Islamic Revolutionary Committee as saying Thursday that 6,247 addicts, and 651 drug smugglers were arrested in the crackdown.

Bulgarian judge is new prime minister

SOFIA, Bulgaria — A politically independent judge who helped organize the country's first free elections was chosen prime minister Friday, ending a week of uncertainty since the former Communist premier resigned. Dimitar Popov, the head of Sofia's municipal court, was nominated earlier in the day to the 400-seat Grand National Assembly by President Zhelyu Zhelev.

White House arranging return of hostages

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — President Bush, winding down a South American tour, was expected by the Persian Gulf crisis, made his first stop Friday in Venezuela to express thanks for its help in easing the global oil crunch.

The White House, meanwhile, began arranging the return of American hostages promised freedom by Iraq's parliament, overwhelmingly endorsing Saddam Hussein's order to release more than 8,000 foreign hostages. Among them are 900 Americans.

Roman Popadiuk, another spokesman, told Friday with Bush, said the United States was expected to evacuate the hostages through charter flights, the same way more than 2,000 other Americans have departed Iraq and Kuwait.

Bush, in a speech to businessmen in Santiago before flying to Caracas, did not comment on the hostages. Caracas was the last stop on a week-long tour to salute the emergence of democracy and economic reforms throughout the world.

As in Chile, where guerrillas set off half-a-dozen bombs and police leaders were holding talks before a state dinner and they were to meet again Saturday before Bush returns to Washington, the administration official said.

Students also marched against the Bush visit in Maracaibo and Venezuela's second largest city and its oil center — and Valencia.

Peretz, whose country has the largest proven oil reserves in the hemisphere, quickly promised to help join with Saudi Arabia to lobby OPEC members to sustain production levels and stabilize prices. He also increased his own country's output.

Venezuela boosted its production from 2 million to more than 2.4 million barrels a day, and plans to increase that top by 100,000 barrels more by January.

He also said that economic reforms in Chile have led to a surge in foreign investment here and "even better times lie ahead."

Earthquakes shake Japan with no injury

TOKYO (AP) — A series of six earthquakes registering up to 5.5 on the Richter scale shook central Japan on Friday. There were no immediate reports of damage or casualties. The first quake was reported in the Nagano and Tokada areas, about 110 miles northwest of Tokyo, and around Niigata, about 160 miles northwest of the capital, the Meteorological Agency said.

Five more tremors were reported within two hours in the general area. The agency said the earthquakes' epicenter was at a depth of less than three miles in western Niigata Prefecture.

Police in Nagano and Niigata reported no injuries or damages.

Mubarak's ruling party wins by landslide victory

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Hosni Mubarak's ruling party won an overwhelming majority in violence-marred parliamentary elections, according to final results released Friday. A second round of voting was held Thursday. Figures announced by the Interior Ministry and reported by the government-run Middle East News Agency gave the governing National Democratic Party 538 out of the 444 seats being contested in the People's Assembly.

The small leftist National Unionist Progressive Party won six seats and independent candidates took 83. The ministry's statement said elections for seven seats will be repeated in four districts because of irregularities. It said the date would be announced later.

At least 10 people were reported killed and close to 100 wounded in clashes related to the two rounds of voting. Trouble in Thursday's runoff round, some involving police, left at least five dead and 54 wounded.

Major opposition parties boycotted the vote, charging that a new election law lacked adequate guarantees of free balloting. Some National Democrats who were not chosen by their party as candidates also ran as independents. The final results show that the seats they had counted in favor of the ruling party, even though they ran as independents.

In the first election round on Nov. 29, independents won 38 seats. Runoffs were necessary for almost 60 percent of the seats, a record for a parliamentary election, because almost 2,700 candidates ran. Candidates who failed to get a first-round majority had to face a second round.

Mubarak, riding a crest of popularity because of his strong stand against Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, opened the new Parliament on Dec. 12 with keynote addresses expected to focus on the Persian Gulf crisis.

The National Democrats controlled more than 350 seats in the outgoing parliament, which had 458 seats. Only 13 women ran in this election, the smallest number in republican Egypt's 34-year history.

League-leading scorer Barkley helps muscle 76ers past Nuggets

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Charles Barkley had 40 points and a season-high 22 rebounds, leading the Philadelphia 76ers to a 135-126 victory over Denver on Friday night, keeping the Nuggets winless in nine road games this season.

Barkley, the NBA's leading scorer, connected on 19 of 29 shots. Orlando Woolridge, the second-leading scorer, led the Nuggets with 36 points, while Michael Adams had 28.

Ron Anderson scored 12 of his 24 points in the fourth quarter as the 76ers bettered their record at home to 10-1. Hershey Hawkins also had 24 points for Philadelphia.

Philadelphia never trailed and was up by as many as 19 points in the first period. Denver closed to 92-87 in the third period and to 125-119 with 1:51 remaining, but the 76ers pulled away both times.

Trail Blazers 127, Pacers 105

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Portland improved its record to 17-1, matching the second-best start in NBA history, and stayed unbeaten on the road by defeating Indiana.

Clyde Drexler led Portland with 23 points, followed by Duak Williams with 20 and Terry Porter 19. Indiana was led by Chuck Person with 22 points.

The Trail Blazers, who led by as many as 26 points in the fourth period, extended a 2-point edge to 36-20 with a 16-2 run in the first period.

The Pacers pulled to within 7 points at the half on a free throw by Vern Fleming with 3:8 seconds left in the second period. But Indiana got no closer as Portland came out strong in the third period by a slam dunk by Jerome Kersey, followed by a three-point play by Porter to give Portland a 66-54 advantage.

The Trail Blazers' NBA history was 23-1 by the New York Knicks in the 1969-70 season. Milwaukee was 17-1 in 1970-71 and 1971-72.

Celtics 112, Mavericks 104

DALLAS (AP) — Robert Parish led a balanced attack with 26 points, as Boston improved its all-time mark against Dallas to 43-2.

Pro basketball

The Celtics, 6-2 on the road, beat the Mavericks with help from Reggie Miller, 91 points and 21 by Kevin McHale.

Rolando Blackman had 35 points to lead Dallas, which lost its fourth consecutive game and ninth of 11 in its worst start since 1981-82. Dennis Harper added 22 points for the Mavericks.

Suns 129, Nets 110

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Jeff Hornacek scored a season-high 28 points and Phoenix took control with a 13-1 second-quarter spurt to rout past New Jersey.

The victory snapped a three-game losing streak — the Suns' longest since losing four straight to the Los Angeles Lakers in the 1988-89 play-offs — and was only the second loss in seven games for the Nets.

Sam Bowie had a season-high 27 points for New Jersey, which broke its league-record 34-game road losing streak in Phoenix on Nov. 23.

Hornacek hit 12 of 16 shots from the field, scored 20 points in the first half and seemed to be at the center of every Suns' spurt. Phoenix, which trailed 14-4, took the lead for good with a 12-7 run late in the first quarter that ended with two 3-point field goals, a 15-foot jumper and a layup, all by Hornacek.

Bucks 104, Hawks 103

ATLANTA (AP) — Fred Roberts' 20-footer as time expired clinched a comeback from a 6-point deficit in the final 1:09 for Milwaukee against Atlanta.

The Bucks, who handed the Hawks their sixth consecutive homecourt defeat, started the rally from a 98-90 deficit when Alvin Robertson hit two free throws after Glenn Rivers was charged with a flagrant foul on Robertson's breakaway.

The Bucks got a basket from Ricky Pierce on the ensuing possession to cut the lead to 98-94.

Sidney Moncrief put the Hawks in front 103-100 with a three-point play with 51 seconds remaining and Jay Humphries made it 103-102 with a 20-footer with 54 seconds to play.

Magic 106, Sonics 100

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Otis Smith scored a season-high 33 points and Orlando, horrendous from the foul line for three quarters, hit 11 of 12 free throws in the last five minutes to beat Seattle.

The victory was the second in three games for the Magic, which stopped a seven-game losing streak at New York on Tuesday night. The Sonics lost for the seventh time in eight games.

Smith, whose 33 points matched a career high set against Philadelphia last season, sparked a 10-0 run that gave Orlando the lead for good late in the fourth quarter.

Orlando made only seven of 18 free throws in the first three periods.

Chicago 33, Bulls 29

CHICAGO (AP) — Michael Jordan scored 33 points and Chicago won its seventh consecutive game, keeping New York winless under new coach John MacLeod.

The margin of victory was the smallest by the Bulls in their last five games. They routed their previous four opponents by a margin of 29 points.

The win was the Bulls' 12th in their last 15 games, while the Knicks lost for the eighth time in their last 10 games, including two under MacLeod.

Patrick Ewing led the Knicks with 23 points and Kiki Vandeweghe scored 20.

In the third quarter, the Bulls led by as many as 16 points, but the Knicks, behind Vandeweghe's 12-point rally, Charles Oakley's two free throws with 28 seconds remaining left the Bulls with an 80-73 advantage.

Jazz 101, Lakers 79

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Karl Malone scored 27 points and John Stockton added 20 points and 17 assists as the Utah Jazz snapped the Los Angeles Lakers' eight-game winning streak with a 101-79 victory on Friday night.

Urbán, which has won eight of nine games, built a 54-39 lead at halftime, and the Lakers, shooting 43 percent for the game, never came close than 11 points in the second half.

Suns hope deal for X-man is last piece to NBA title puzzle

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Charles Barkley said the Philadelphia 76ers' pursuit of X-factor player Dennis Rodman is the last piece to their NBA title puzzle.

"I think the Suns have a chance to win the championship," he said. "They're tough and he's mean."

Suns president Bob Whittitt said it was difficult trading McDaniels, but that the deal should help return which dropped a 106-101 decision to Orlando on Friday in exchange for the day for their seventh loss in eight games.

Whittitt said the deal should give the Suns an offensive punch and a big plus for the Sonics' organization, strengthening their front line and might be the court, we're giving up offense for a team which has a winning streak with a 101-79 victory on Friday night.

Major, minor leagues reach agreement

NEW YORK — Negotiators for the major and minor league baseball players and owners reached a seven-year contract that will preserve organized baseball's 87-year-old structure.

The sides had said earlier in the week that they were near agreement and they wrapped up the final two issues Friday during day-long negotiations.

The deal was reached at a conference call Friday and was approved by the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues. "We reached an agreement that will have the unanimous recommendation of the executive committee."

Washington back wins Walker award

IRVING, Texas — Washington running back Greg Lewis was picked Friday as the winner of the first Doak Walker National Running Back Award.

Lewis, a second-team All-American, rushed for 178 yards and 12 touchdowns and scored nine touchdowns this season before injuring his right knee in the Huskies' final regular-season game.

"It's something of a great honor to me and I really appreciate being considered as one of the nation's best running backs," Lewis said.

Judge rejects team foreclosures request

HELENA, Mont. — The Helena Brewers baseball team will remain under the control of Say Hey Inc. and corporate president Rene Boisvert despite a payment overdue to the team's former owner, a district judge has ruled.

"There is no evidence that the mortgaged property is in danger of being lost," District Judge Thomas Honzel of Helena told plaintiff Roland Romaneski, 1987.

Romaneski is the president of Helena Brewers Ball Club, the corporation that agreed in December 1989 to sell the Pioneer League team to Boisvert for $335,000. Romaneski had bought the team eight months earlier.

Exchange student sets kicking record

NEW ORLEANS — Barely six months after he saw an American football for the first time, Arnie Riepe set a national high school record for extra points in a season with 85.

The previous record was held by Alan Cockerell of Parkwood High, Missouri, who kicked 81 in 1981. An exchange student from Oberlausen, Germany, Riepe knew nothing about American football until August, when he enrolled at Haynesville as a junior.

Spokane race track changes ownership

SPokane, Wash. — Joe Rizzuto, president of the corporation that manages Playfair Race Course, has resigned and sold his stock in Eastern Washington Race Inc.

Rizzuto was bought out by Sun Horton, vice president of Eastern Washington Racing. Terms of the stock transfer were not disclosed.

QB passes for prep record 4,337 yards

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Burlington Cummings quarterback Donnie Davis broke the single-season national high school passing record Friday night during his team's state championship contest.

The senior completed 14 of 17 passes for 185 yards in the opening half to move his total passing yardage to 4,337, breaking the national record of 4,179 set Lupe Rodriguez of Mission, Texas, in 1987.

World Cup downhill season set to start today on famed French course

VAL D'ISERE, France (AP) — Franck Piccard of France is worried about today's opening downhill of the World Cup season.

Piccard goes into the race after having won last weekend's Super-G at Valloire and moved into the overall lead with 40 points after three races.

But now comes the first speed test of the winter, on Val d'Isere's famed Orellier-Killy course, and Piccard is concerned.

"The first part is that I am a small guy and I can't go that fast there," the 5-foot-9 Frenchman said. "I am always slow there and it's the same problem every year."

Piccard, who was Olympic Super-G champion in 1988, has done well in the Super-Gs at Val d'Isere. He finished second in the Super-G race last Sunday's Super-G race.

But he has faded in the longer race, placing 49th and 37th in the double-downhill run last January. "I am a little anxious about tomorrow," Piccard said. "I need to be more aggressive than the jumps. I need to get the top too soon and need to touch down quicker."

The course is known for its compression and bumps, especially when the skiers take off for more than 50 yards midway down.

Piccard has not been impressive in training runs, but teammate Denis Rey has.

Rey has been in the top three for three of the four practice runs. Helmut Hoeflechner of Austria, Canada's Rob Boyd and American A.J. Kitt also have performed well.

Hoeflechner won successive downhill on the same slopes in January and has 10 World Cup downhill victories.

Boyd is one of Canada's top downhillers, and Kitt of Rochester, N.Y., is hoping to make an American breakthrough after mediocre showings in recent years.

"The Americans have never been in the Spotlight, but I am trying to change that," Kitt said.

Kitt said he had "as good a chance at winning as anybody in the top 15."

Hostages celebrate coming release

BAHGDAD, Iraq (AP) — Jubilant American hostages cheered Friday after Iraqi lawmakers ratified Saddam Hussein's decision to free all foreigners.

Some boasted that the United States had not stooped to bargain with their captors.

"Old Glory never came down and by God it won't," said Hamid El Miloudi, 46, an Arab-American from Chattanooga, Tenn.

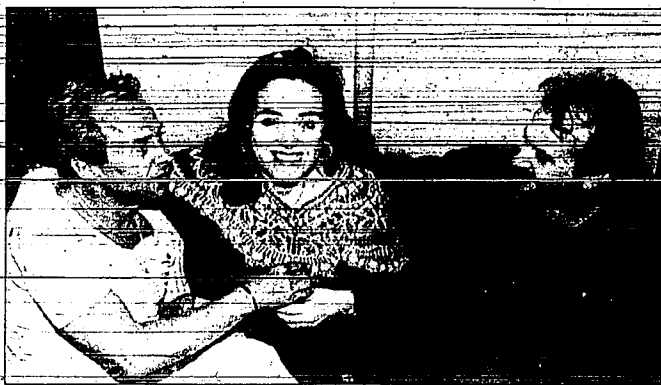

Until Tuesday, he had been one of the Americans who had taken refuge at the besieged U.S. Embassy in Kuwait.

During a rare special session held on the Muslim sabbath, Iraq's National Assembly endorsed Saddam's proposal to free all foreigners held or trapped in Iraq and Kuwait. There were 18 dissenting votes out of 250.

The more than 8,000 Westerners, East Europeans and Japanese stranded in Iraq and Kuwait will be allowed to leave beginning Saturday, Iraqi officials said. The group includes about 900 Americans.

Hundreds have been held as human shields at strategic sites around Iraq to deter attack. About 2,000 foreigners are believed to be hiding in occupied Kuwait. U.S. and British authorities urged them to remain hidden for now.

There was no indication that any foreigners were being brought to Baghdad for evacuation.

Paul and Angela Ellopoulos and friend Chris Komitis await their returns home from Baghdad.

Saddam made the surprise proposal Thursday, saying that the "human shields" already had served their purpose by buying Iraq time to complete its mobilization for the defense of occupied Kuwait.

He also noted "positive changes" in the crisis, and referred to mounting opposition in the United States to the use of force against Iraq.

With the addition of 30,000 fresh Iraqi troops, many transferred in recent days from the border with Iran, U.S. officials say Iraq now has 480,000 soldiers in Kuwait or southern Iraq.

But despite the military buildup on both sides of the border, the decision to free the hostages was joyous

Western allies say Japan not helping enough to face off Saddam

Knights-Ridder News Service
NORTHEASTERN DESERT, Saudi Arabia — Come war, joked a British tank officer whose unit is poised for attack against Iraqi forces holding Kuwait. "Our tanks will advance in the battle cry of 'Banazai,' just to let old Saddam know whose oil interests we truly are defending. A few miles away, in a sandbagged

Marine field hospital, bitterness underscored the voice of a U.S. combat surgeon as he reflected, "I used to be a cop of the world." Now it's more like we're the security subdivision of Japan Inc.
 "And don't talk to me about the few billion dollars Tokyo has kicked in to support the effort," said the surgeon, who is a Navy commander. "Drive that by the number of American, British, even French lives on the line here and it adds up to peanuts."

 Japan, which in recent years has desperately sought global political and economic status with its status as an economic superpower, does not seem to get much respect among the Western allies awaiting what may prove to be a bloody showdown with the armies of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

 "No one seriously expects, or even wants, Japan to commit fighting forces to the sands," said a Saudi-based Western diplomat. "Still, some ships, medical personnel, logistical support and other assistance to the Persian Gulf."
 So far, Japan has pledged $4 billion to help underwrite the cost of the United Nations peace-keeping effort, an amount that the United States and its allies say is not enough.
 The United States is also pressing

The government of Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu has been saying much the same thing since Iraq invaded Kuwait in August. However, political opponents and public opinion have thwarted plans to dispatch minesweepers, electronic surveillance ships, medical personnel, logistical support and other assistance to the Persian Gulf.
 So far, Japan has pledged $4 billion to help underwrite the cost of the United Nations peace-keeping effort, an amount that the United States and its allies say is not enough.
 The United States is also pressing

Japan to dispatch ships and unarmed military specialists to the region for noncombatant duty. Its unwillingness to do so, congressional and administration leaders have suggested, could do severe damage to U.S.-Japan relations if war erupts and American troops are lost defending a part of the world in which Japan has huge economic stake.
 So far, however, Japan has balked. "Sending troops abroad, even unarmed troops, is unconstitutional," said Masaharu Gotoda, a former chief cabinet secretary and leading politician.

 news for foreigners who had become unwilling pawns in Saddam's strategy to delay war and weaken the international coalition against him.
 "This is it. We're all free!" shouted a group of 50 to 60 American and British hostages and their families gathered in the lobby of the Al-Mansour Melia Hotel in downtown Baghdad.
 Government officials said foreigners would be allowed to apply for exit visas immediately.
 But they cautioned it will take days to complete the paperwork for thousands of exit visas and arranging flights out.
 "If they waive the visa requirement I guarantee we'll get them out as fast as we possibly can," said U.S. Charge d'Affaires Joseph Wilson.

 In Washington, State Department officials said they had asked Iraq to waive the exit visas but hadn't heard a response.
 Iraqi officials said they will put on additional Iraqi Airways flights to Amman, Jordan, the airline's only regular destination since the United Nations-imposed economic sanctions on Iraq because of the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.
 "Definitely, we would like to see everyone with his family by Christmas, because that is a very joyous and happy occasion, and it is time for family reunions," said Iraqi U.N. Ambassador Abdul Amir al-Anbari in New York.

He suggested it might speed the release of the detainees if the United States sent planes to Jordan to pick them up.
 A British Airways jet stocked with champagne left London for the Gulf Friday to pick up hostages. Planes were also being prepared in Denmark and Japan.
 In New York, Pan Am spokeswoman Pamela Hanlon said the airline had been contacted by the State Department, "and we're looking at the availability of aircraft."
 In all, there are 2 million foreigners in Iraq and occupied Kuwait. Asians and Arabs, who make up the majority of the foreigners, have been free to leave before the decision was made.

 "I feel deeply ashamed that Japan has not acted together with the United States and other allies," said Koichi Hamada, a prominent ruling party member of Japan's parliament.
 "Japan cannot expect respect from the other countries of the world if it fails to stand beside them in times of crisis," said Hamada during a recent interview in Tokyo.

Accident claims life of U.S. soldier

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 20-year-old Army private was accidentally crushed to death by an Army truck in Saudi Arabia on Wednesday, the Pentagon said Friday.
 The victim was identified as Dustin Craig LaMoureux, of Bremerton, Wash. He was deployed to the Persian Gulf with the 20th Engineer Brigade of Fort Bragg, N.C., as part of Operation Desert Shield.
 The accident occurred about 6 p.m. local time on Wednesday. While participating in a construction project, LaMoureux was crushed between the truck and a pallet of construction materials, the Pentagon said. The incident is being investigated.

 This was the 48th accidental death in Desert Shield.
 The Pentagon also said it has determined that the previously reported death Tuesday in Saudi Arabia of Lt. Col. Joe Hancock, a Tennessee National Guard commander, was a suicide. Hancock died of a gunshot wound while in his tent.
 The Pentagon said there have been three Desert Shield deaths due to natural causes and one earlier suicide.

Filer student says he made bomb threat

FILER—Police here say a 17-year-old high school student is responsible for a bomb threat two weeks ago.

Students and teachers were forced to stand outside in a chill wind for 30 minutes after someone found a note claiming a bomb was in Filer High School. A teacher later found a device that looked like a bomb but turned out to be harmless.

The note led the police to the prankster, Filer Police Chief Don Barkley said. Fingerprints were found on the tape used to attach cut-out letters to the note, he said.

Police talked to the boy, who has been a suspect since the incident, on Thursday, Barkley said.

He refused to cooperate but confessed to the school's principal Friday morning, he said.

The boy then admitted to police that he had concocted the scheme on a dare from another student, Barkley said.

The case is now in the hands of the Twin Falls County prosecutor's office, he said.

Prosecutors will determine exactly which charges to file, then a petition ordering the boy to appear in court will be issued.

Jerome police focus on 4 youths in series of break-ins

JEROME—Police here questioned four juvenile boys Thursday in connection with a string of break-ins at a local church and a park concession stand.

Knock on wood: Hopefully this will take care of the problem, Jerome Police Chief George Silver III said Friday.

The boys, three 14-year-olds and a 15-year-old, were quietly picked up at school Thursday and later released to their parents, Silver said.

Each of the boys will be charged with at least five counts of burglary and some with as many as eight, he said.

Petitions now have to be filed before the boys make their first appearance in court to admit to or deny the charges, he said.

Because of a large juvenile case load, that could take as long as a month, Silver said.

Over the past month and a half, St. Paul's Lutheran Church has been hit five times by vandals, the most recent incident was last weekend when the church suffered about $10,000 damage.

An empty concession stand at Forsyth Park has also been broken into several times recently.

If found guilty the youngsters could get probation if they may spend time at either of the state's juvenile detention facilities at Orofino or St. Anthony, Silver said.

Tickets available for final run of 'Elephant Man'

TWIN FALLS—The College of Southern Idaho will conclude its run of "The Elephant Man" at 8 p.m. today in Fine Arts Auditorium.

Tickets are $4 for the general public and $3 for students and senior citizens. Seats will be available at the door. Children under age 6 are not admitted.

Wendell Kiwanis donates books to Head Start center

WENDELL—The Wendell Kiwanis have donated 40 new books to students at the Orchard Valley Head Start center south of here.

Head Start is a federally sponsored education program for pre-school children from low income families, said center supervisor Judy Crist.

The Orchard Valley school serves all of Gooding County.

Kiwanis member Ardith Klein said the organization is sponsoring the national "Reading is Fundamental" program which provides books for Head Start students throughout the United States.

"Each child is given a book to read and take home," Klein said.

Crist said the Head Start students are scheduled to receive two more book distributions this school year.

Police prepare for road safety week

TWIN FALLS—Twin Falls police will have extra patrols on duty next week in observance of national Drunk and Drugged Driver Awareness week, which starts Sunday.

Local police are asking people to "be one on for safety" and will have more officers looking for impaired drivers, Cpl. Dave Heidemann said.

Arrests for driving under the influence are climbing, Heidemann said.

In 1988, Twin Falls police made 162 DUI arrests and investigated 25 accidents

Bell seated on powerful finance committee

By Anita Dennis
Times-News writer

BOISE—Rep. Maxine Bell, R-Jerome, will join Republican Sen. Lynn Tominga of Rupert as a second Magic Valley voice on the most powerful committee in the Idaho Legislature.

And Tominga will chair an influential new Senate committee, Ways and Means.

Bell, serving her second term in the House, was not seeking the seat on the Joint Finance and Appropriations Committee, but she said, "I'm happy to serve the Magic Valley."

Bell Tominga, who lost a bid for the assistant majority leadership Thursday to Sen.

Joyce McRoberts of Twin Falls, will head the newly created Ways and Means Committee that is designed to manage legislation in a Senate evenly divided between Democrats and Republicans.

Tominga will be the only member of the panel who is not a member of the Senate majority. It will also include the Senate assistant leader and caucus chairman from both parties.

The future of the committee, however, depends on whether or not the Democrats' legal challenge to the organization of the Senate by Republicans is successful. The issue hinges on whether Lt. Gov. Dutch Or-ter, a Republican, should have a tiebreaking vote in organizing the Senate.

Bell said her priority on JFAC will be protecting funding for the College of Southern Idaho.

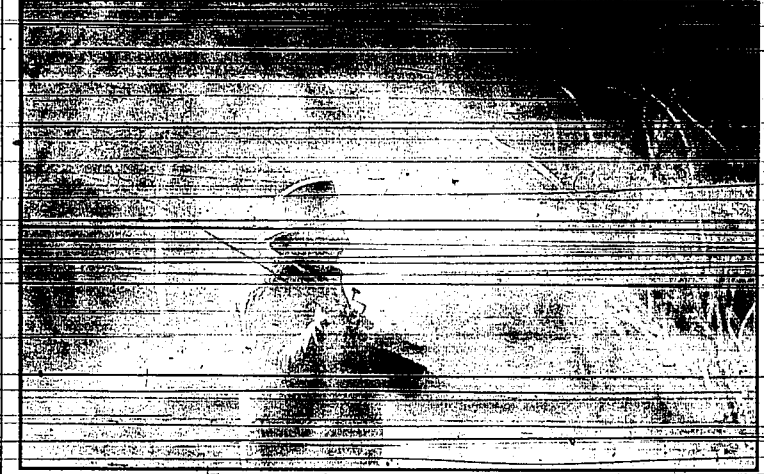

She said she will continue to sit on the Resources and Conservation Committee and the Agriculture Committee.

JFAC is the source of the appropriations bills that are considered by the House and Senate.

Bell's colleague Rep. Ralph Peters, R-Jerome, was named vice-chairman of the United Way closes in on 1990 goal

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS—After a slow start, the United Way of Magic Valley's annual fundraising campaign came within striking distance of this year's goal Friday.

A hefty donation from Universal Frozen Foods employees brought the total to $244,000. Just off the United Way's goal of $265,000.

Universal employees donated $21,940 and that amount is expected to be matched by the corporate offices, executive director Kathy Williams said.

"We're cooking now," Williams said, noting that this year's donation is an all-time high for Universal Frozen Foods.

First Security Bank also came through this week with $8,700, Williams said. More money is coming in from the Wood River Valley and several local corporate donors have yet to contribute, she said.

"We should be pretty much wrapped up by Christmas," Williams said. United Way officials had hoped to finish this year's campaign by Thanksgiving, but donations were "slow" in coming during the early stages.

The United Way does out money to numerous charities, service organizations and public service programs throughout southern Idaho.

"Talk of a recession doesn't seem to have negatively affected donations, Williams said. "It may even be helping. People are more aware of just how lucky they are, she said. "We're not seeing the railroad man anymore. It's families that are out of work and needing help."

Last year's campaign fell short of its goal, but Williams said she is confident this year's fundraiser will be more successful.

"We have the best shot of making our goal that we've had in a long time," she said.

Farm groups agree on single letter to Yeutter seeking help with prices

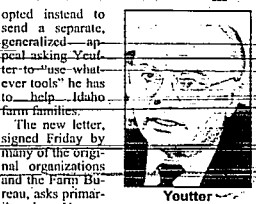

By Mark Kind
Times-News writer

BOISE—This time Idaho farm organizations will send just one letter to the Bush administration urging action on low wheat prices, rather than two separate letters with different messages.

"A single letter expressing the concerns of a large, diverse group of people is more effective than several letters from individual organizations, each expressing a different concern," said National Farmers' Union representative Bill Bullard in a press release.

In October, 15 Idaho farm and commodity groups urged U.S. Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter to increase the loan rate for wheat deposited with the Commodity Credit Corporation and to use more export enhancement funds to give exporters incentive to ship wheat overseas.

But the Idaho Farm Bureau, often billed as the largest general farm organization in the state, did not sign onto that letter. It opted instead to send a separate, generalized appeal asking Yeutter to "use whatever tools" he has to "help Idaho farm families."

The new letter, signed Friday by many of the original organizations and the Farm Bureau, asks primarily that Yeutter take actions to boost exports of wheat, including extension of export credit guarantees to the Soviet Union and renewed loans to Pakistan to buy U.S. wheat.

Gov. Cecil Andrus, Rep. Richard Stollings, and W.G. Nelson, director of the Idaho Agriculture Department, also signed the letter.

Nelson said unity came this time because the groups decided not to include issues on which they disagreed or to belabor the administration's responsibilities to farmers. That produced a less contentious letter, he said.

"This one is really very mild," Nelson said in a telephone interview.

Response to the original letters came from Richard Crowder, undersecretary of agriculture. He said the USDA had replenished the U.S. food security wheat reserve—another of the original letter's requests—and boosted export enhancement program bonuses.

Nelson said that Crowder had also faulted Idaho farmers for not playing the futures market by hedging or forward contracting their crop—an idea Nelson rejected.

"Only a small percentage of wheat producers in Idaho hedge their crops on a consistent basis and those who did choose that path did so at price levels considerably under last year's price," Nelson said in the press release.

Plan focuses on 2 counties for landfills

By Phil Salm
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—Twin Falls and Blaine counties each might be home to a regional landfill under a plan being considered by Magic Valley county commissioner.

The plan is not final, however, and a third landfill shared by Minidoka and Cassia counties might also be built, a consulting engineer said in a statement at a meeting at the College of Southern Idaho.

It also is possible a landfill might be built in Jerome County instead of Twin Falls, the engineer, Barry Damschen, said.

Damschen, who has been hired by the Magic Valley counties to help them select one or more landfill sites, spoke at a meeting to inform county residents of options to complying with pending federal regulations that will require counties across the country to close their current landfills and build new, expensive ones.

The regulations, called Subtitle D, are aimed at protecting groundwater from contaminants that leak from landfills.

There were a lot of empty chairs at the meeting. Besides media, county officials and engineers, only three people attended.

"You don't have to be a real wizard to figure out these are going to be expensive facilities," said Henry Schultz of the South Central Health District.

It will cost about $5.5 million to build the two landfills and $3.2 million a year to run them—a good reason for the Magic Valley counties to jointly build and operate them. The counties will form a solid waste district to share the cost of the landfills and find a way to pay for them.

In the two-landfill plan, Camas and Blaine Counties would share a landfill, while Twin Falls, Jerome, Gooding, Lincoln, Minidoka and Cassia counties shared another.

The land-counties produce 116,000 tons of garbage a year. Twin Falls County accounts for 49,000 tons, Damschen estimated.

Twin Falls County residents can expect their garbage bills to increase about $20 a year under the two-landfill plan, said Damschen. Twin Falls' price is a bargain compared with other counties, such as Lincoln, where garbage rates might increase $50 a year.

County and district health officials would like to find a site of 200 between 300 acres in Twin Falls or Jerome counties, but most of the county's price is a bargain compared with other counties, such as Lincoln, where garbage rates might increase $50 a year.

Police prepare for road safety week

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS—Twin Falls police will have extra patrols on duty next week in observance of national Drunk and Drugged Driver Awareness week, which starts Sunday.

Local police are asking people to "be one on for safety" and will have more officers looking for impaired drivers, Cpl. Dave Heidemann said.

Arrests for driving under the influence are climbing, Heidemann said.

In 1988, Twin Falls police made 162 DUI arrests and investigated 25 accidents caused by drunk drivers. In 1989, the number of DUI arrests in the city rose to 184, drunk-driving accidents increased to 42.

Christmas parties, vacations and overall good spirits cause drunk driving incidents to increase during the holidays, Heidemann said.

In Jerome, officers will give rides to people who have had one too many, said Police Chief George Silver III.

The program is not meant to be a taxi service for people who repeatedly call from a bar looking for a ride, but officers will make sure holiday parties get home safely, Silver said. "It makes for a pretty lonely Christmas if your mom or dad or sister or brother gets killed a couple of days before," he said.

The increase in local drunk driving arrests and accidents mirrors a statewide trend.

After declining for two straight years, accidents caused by drunk drivers statewide were up to 2,250 in 1989, a 3.4 percent increase over 1988, according to the Idaho Transportation Department.

Those accidents resulted in 1,841 injuries in 1989, a 4.9 percent jump over the previous year.

Loggers acquitted of bribery

MOSCOW (AP) — Two northern Idaho loggers accused of "bribing a U.S. Forest Service official to 'lose' logging records have been acquitted by a U.S. District Court jury in Moscow.

The eight-month, four-man jury Thursday night found Ronald Carlen of Spokane, Wash., and Stan Wolfe of St. Maries innocent of bribing a Forest Service employee at a Cobur d'Alene restaurant two years ago.

The loggers, who could have been sentenced to up to 15 years each in prison if convicted, said the charges were the result of retaliation.

"We've really been vindicated," Carlen said.

The jury deliberated for about 3 1/2 hours before returning a verdict in the trial presided over by new federal Judge Tom Nelson.

"It has been a long road for my clients," defense attorney James Stiche of Moscow said. "They still face a civil lawsuit being brought by the Forest Service, he said, and are in trouble with the timber industry over publicity surrounding the case. It stemmed from a huge timber sale near Egan Lake in 1988 which fostered a dispute between the loggers and the government over whether the pair took more trees than they were authorized to harvest.

Come Sundays, Layton beer bars will be open

LAYTON, Utah (AP) — Layton's beer drinkers won't have to suffer parched throats on Sundays any more.

Thursday night, the Layton City Council voted to allow its five beer taverns to remain open seven days a week. The decision ends a debate of more than a year — and threats of legal action against the city by one tavern owner.

The new ordinance also includes a provision that no alcoholic beverage can be sold in the city on Election Day while the polls are open.

Assistant City Attorney Steve Gardside said the ordinance treats taverns, markets, restaurants and private clubs the same when it comes to selling or serving alcohol. "We feel this ordinance is now fair to everyone," Gardside said.

Equal treatment under the law was the issue first raised by the tavern owners when they sought to have the ordinance changed last year to allow them to be open for Super Bowl Sunday and New Year's, which also fell on a Sunday.

Brent Bohman, an attorney for the Bar-Taverns Association of Utah, challenged the constitutionality of the city's ordinance because it required taverns to be closed on Sundays — but allowed private clubs to remain open.

Rupert council buys backhoe against advice of city attorney

By Slacey Kinzig
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT — The Rupert City Council accepted a bid for a new backhoe from an Idaho Falls company Tuesday night despite a warning from the city attorney that it did not meet bid specifications.

The council voted to accept a bid of $38,853 from the Arnold-Machinery Co. and rejected a three-year buy-back option offered by the company.

City Attorney Donald Chisholm said the bidders were asked to include a five-year buy-back option in their proposals. The option would ensure replacement of the backhoe with a new machine each year for five years at no extra cost to the city.

But two bids submitted, including Arnold's, specified either a three-year option only or none at all. Approval could open the city to litigation from other bidders, said Chisholm.

Chisholm recommended the council either pay cash for a backhoe or "rebid the project."

The superintendent of the city's water department, Irvin Hardy, said all models bid on were tested by the department and the JCB model from Arnold Machinery was preferred.

Although the council voted to accept the Arnold Machinery bid without the option package, Mayor Bill Whittem said Wednesday the company gave the city the option as a fringe benefit.

In other business, the council adopted a resolution, contingent upon review by Chisholm, to proceed with construction on the A Street improvement project.

The resolution comes after the city received a commitment from the state and federal government to pay for slightly more than 90 percent of the $1.3 million project.

The project is to include sidewalks, storm drainage, paving and widening of the approximate one-mile stretch on A Street from Idaho Highway 25 to 100 South.

Whittem said all city utilities, gas and phone lines have recently been installed under the old street, for future gas nodes and to avoid the need to disturb the planned new road.

The council also gave approval to the public works department to hire an employee to be used in the sanitation, street and water departments. Councilman Ronald Klebe said enough overtime and sick leave pay has been paid out to hire another full-time employee.

It also authorized the public works department to hire Kloefer Inc. of Paul to haul rock to build up embankments at the city's waste water lagoons.

Klebe said the approximate cost would be $6,300 and Kloefer will provide the trucks and loader.

The council sold for $2,500 a small parcel of land at 301 Scott Ave. to the only bidder, Tooling II & Partnership.

Whittem said that Broyles' "rates were notified of the prohibition."

Members of the sorority in Pullman and WSU sorority coordinator Linda Finegan declined comment Thursday.

In a brief filed Tuesday, Broyles' lawyer said that "defendants have implied that sexual promiscuity was one of the main reasons for Broyles' dismissal."

The report, dated Jan. 30, 1989, is signed by Broyles and two sorority officers and states that Broyles' "rates were notified of the prohibition."

Woman sues sorority over allegations

COLFAX, Wash. (AP) — A woman who claims the Washington State University chapter of Kappa Kappa Gamma breached her contract for alleged promiscuity has sued the sorority.

The lawsuit claims the sorority breached its membership contract, defamed Robyn Broyles' character and inflicted emotional distress when she was ousted two years ago. The Clarkston woman no longer attends WSU.

Lawyers representing the sorority said Broyles failed to abide by the rules of Kappa Kappa Gamma, according to documents filed in Whitman County Superior Court.

A sorority probation report states that Broyles, then a freshman, breached "Kappa Kappa Gamma by-laws and standard rules by misrepresenting Kappa ideals for social and moral conduct, especially dealing with male members and the general attitude toward the reputation of Kappa Kappa Gamma."

The report, dated Jan. 30, 1989, is signed by Broyles and two sorority officers and states that Broyles' "rates were notified of the prohibition."

Committees

House State Affairs Committee, a crucial panel in the upcoming reapportionment debate.

The reapportionment issue — the redrawing of legislative districts in light of the 1990 Census — will likely proceed through its committee.

Rep. Celia Gould, R-Buhl, said she will continue to sit on the Agricultural Affairs, Judiciary and Rules and Revenue and Taxation panels.

Rep. Clint Stenert, D-Ketchum, said he was assigned to the State Affairs, Commerce, Industry and Tourism and Environmental Affairs committees.

Rep. Pattie Narfag, D-Wendell, was assigned to Agricultural Affairs and Education. Stenert said that if Ron Blaker, R-Twin Falls, said he was named to the Education and Business committees, and was chosen vice-chairman of Health and Welfare.

Rep. Doug Jones, R-Filer, said he was assigned to the Education, Agricultural Affairs and Resources and Conservation panels.

The committee assignments of Rep. Bruce Newcomb, R-Barley, and Rep. Steve Antone, R-Rupert, were not known at press time. Newcomb is the newly elected House assistant majority leader and Antone is the longtime chairman of the Revenue and Taxation panel.

On the Senate side, approved committee assignments Friday evening were as follows:

Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey, will sit on State Affairs, Agricultural Affairs, Resources and Environment, and the new Ways and Means Committee in his capacity as Democratic caucus chairman.

Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, will chair Resources and Environment and sit on Agricultural Affairs and Education.

Members will serve on Health and Welfare, Judiciary and Rules and Environment and Finance committees. Tominga will sit on the Resources and Environment and Finance committees.

Finally, Sen. Russ Newcomb, R-Twin Falls, will sit on Health and Welfare, Human Resources, and Judiciary and Rules.

Arrangements are pending and will be handled by White Mortuary in Twin Falls.

Alma G. Wright

MURTAUGH — Alma Grace Wright, 81, of Murtaugh, died Thursday, Dec. 6, 1990, at the Mountain View Care Center in Kimberly.

She was born Dec. 18, 1908, in Rockland, Maine, the daughter of Albie and Lucy Handy Sewall. She grew up and attended school in Rockland and then moved to California to live with her sister and brother-in-law and worked as a waitress. She married Martin Wright on July 3, 1927, in Pasadena, Calif., and they moved to Murtaugh in 1932.

She worked at writing potatoes, took in ironing and helped in a school lunch program.

Wright was a member of the Methodist Church and participated in the Women's Society.

Surviving are one brother, Carl Sewall of Maine; one nephew, Orville Wright of Murtaugh; and three nieces. She was preceded in death by her husband in 1979.

The funeral will be at 3 p.m. Monday at White Mortuary in Twin Falls, with the Rev. Dale Metzger officiating. Burial will follow at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls. Friends may call from 3 to 8 p.m. today and Sunday at White Mortuary.

Friends may call from 9:30 to 10:45 a.m. Tuesday at the church. Cremation will follow the service.

Arrangements are under the direction of the Howe-Robertson Funeral Chapel in Jerome.

Farm

Others signing Friday's letter were representatives from the Idaho Dairy Association, Idaho Home Livestock and Poultry Raisers Association, Idaho Growers of Idaho, National Farmers Organization of Idaho, Southern Idaho Farm Hotline, Idaho Sugarbeet Growers Association, American Agriculture Association, Idaho Barley Commission, Idaho State Grange, Idaho Rural Council, Idaho Pork Producers Association, Idaho Grain Producers Association, Idaho Farmers Union, and the Idaho Wheat Commission.

Beef, sheep and dry bean producers had no representatives signing the letter.

Local wheat prices dropped $1.45 per bushel between January and October. Magic Valley elevators were paying $2.15 last week.

Wheat is grown on about 235,000 acres yearly in south-central Idaho — second only to alfalfa — and across Idaho it is grown on more acres than any other crop.

Trash

The counties will have to monitor the closed landfills for 30 years.

One Twin Falls County resident who attended Thursday night's meeting, Marlene Jenkins, questioned whether the closed landfills would be enough for the Magic Valley. She said trucks going out and from the landfill would foul up traffic and wear down roads.

Jenkins said Seattle and Portland, Ore., both had heavy increases in truck traffic when they started hauling garbage to a regional landfill.

But those cities have far more people than the Magic Valley and Damschen estimated the two-landfill plan would increase truck traffic by only six to 12 loads a day going to the landfills.

Another person who attended the meeting, Homer Abram, wondered if burning garbage might be economically feasible. Damschen said Magic Valley counties do not produce enough trash to make it economical, but he said in the future, that might be possible.

Gathering trash in regional landfills would be a good step if burning becomes a viable alternative, because all the trash would be collected in one place, he said.

Abram also said the counties should consider an additional landfill so less garbage is transported

The counties have a couple of options to finance the landfills, Schultz said. They could try to pass a bond issue or use a utility assessment. Idaho has no legal meaning — counties could tack a fee onto monthly garbage bills or add it to property tax.

"Right now where I'm pointing toward the utility assessment — because the courts have ruled a utility assessment is legal — that's the most equitable way," Schultz said.

If the assessment were put on garbage bills counties could eliminate a gate fee at the landfill, Schultz said. That might encourage people to use the landfill and stop dumping in the desert.

Besides the landfill, there would be transfer stations where people and haulers could take garbage and dump it in large containers that are hauled to the landfill. Some of these sites would have pits where tree limbs, bricks, etc. could be buried.

Schultz and Damschen said there would be enough transfer sites that people would not have to drive any farther than now to dump garbage.

The high costs of the new landfills will give people reason to recycle, Schultz said.

"It's called cost avoidance," he said.

The less garbage people produce, the less it will cost to store it. He estimated the eight Magic Valley counties could save $350,000 a year if people reduced their trash output by 25 percent.

Andrus spent over $1 million to win at polls

BOISE (AP) — Gov. Cecil Andrus spent just over $1 million to capture a fourth term in office, swamping Republican Roger Fairchild both in votes and in spending.

Andrus won 67 percent of the vote over Fairchild, former state senator from Paulding, and held a twice margin in campaign spending, including spending in 1988 and 1989. Andrus spent $1,046,409, becoming the first person ever elected Idaho governor four times.

Fairchild meanwhile spent $510,699 but listed $33,404 in unpaid payroll at his Golden Valley Foods company. He put $90,000 of his own money into winning a three-way primary election, but had less money in the general election against a heavily favored Andrus.

The governor spent $114,557 in the final two weeks of the campaign, including nearly $50,000 with a Washington company for media advertising.

Andrus received $47,960 in contribution between Oct. 23 and Nov. 16 with the largest $5,000 from B. Bruce Armstrong, Ketchum.

Larry LaRocco, the first Democrat to capture Idaho's 1st District congressional seat in 26 years, spent more than $475,000 to do it.

LaRocco's post-election report showed he spent $477,856 to defeat Republican Skip Smyser of Parma.

Madsen says his defeat was anti-Mormon, seeks recount

BOISE (AP) — Republican House Bill 625, the strict anti-abortion bill approved by the Legislature but vetoed by Gov. Cecil Andrus, Both Scanlin and Sally Snodgrass were pro-choice candidates, but Madsen said Friday he felt his defeat was as much an anti-Mormon vote as anything else.

Two other state Senate races have been recounted already, but neither changed. Democrat Donald Loke's 94-vote defeat by Sen. Ed Beck, another Boise Republican, held, as was the victory of Sen. Allan Larsen, R-Blackfoot, over Jim Christensen of Aberdeen.

The margin in the Larsen-Christensen race started at 179 votes and increased to 183 after the recount.

He filed the formal request Friday with the attorney general's office, along with a check for $15,000. He must post a bond of $100 per precinct to recount 15 precincts. It is refunded if a substantial change occurs.

Madsen was a church sponsor of LaRocco, a Boise stock broker, wound up with nearly $75,000 in debts as of Nov. 26, including $29,000 in personal campaign loans.

Smyser's post-election report wasn't filed by this morning but his final election report showed spending of about $330,000.

The bulk of LaRocco's debt was to the Washington, D.C., media company, Fenn and King Communications. LaRocco spent $73,193 on media advertising in the final two weeks of the campaign and listed a debt of $23,298 at the end of the reporting period.

For the campaign, LaRocco reported receiving $153,716 in contributions from individuals and $222,766 from political action committees and political committees.

Democrat Ron Fwitlegar, who lost the US Senate race to Republican Larry Craig, spent just over $500,000 but wound up with unpaid loans and other bills of $228,726. Craig said earlier he expected to spend about $1.5 million, but his latest report hasn't been received yet.

Twilegar's report showed outstanding loans of about $100,000, most of them personal but $34,788 due to Key Bank. Twilegar also listed unpaid bills of at least $10,000 to U.S. WEST, pollster David Rigley Menzel-Higgins Communications and New Mexico media producer Brown, Inc.

Republican Pat Kolo, who lost the attorney general race to Democrat Larry EchoHawk, spent $190,773 on the campaign. Kolo spent $35,244 after Oct. 23 and wound up paying $26,525 of his own money into the race.

EchoHawk spent about $24,000, including about $2,300 of his own funds.

State Treasurer Lydia Justice Edwards, who won a second four-year term over Democrat Magorje Ruth Moon, spent almost $46,000 on the race. Moon spent about $18,500.

Auditor J.D. Williams, elected to his first term after being appointed to the job earlier, spent about $68,000 on the race.

Pocatello possible future site of prison

BOISE (AP) — The state Board of Correction has conditionally endorsed Pocatello as the location for a proposed $10 million women's prison and given local officials until Jan. 7 to come up with a suitable site.

But board members also scheduled a tour of a 600-acre parcel of Idaho Department of Health and Welfare land in the Nampa area Friday, keeping options open in case Pocatello officials are unable to meet their needs.

"We feel we can delay this decision a year or more than our January board meeting," scheduled Jan. 11, the board said in a letter to Pocatello Mayor Peter Angstud, Bannock County Commission Chairman Tom Katsilometes and Tom Arnold of Bannock Development Corp.

Board members said the tentative decision to locate the 60-bed women's facility in Pocatello, including a 60-bed community work center outside the main prison walls, was based largely on the support local officials and residents have shown for the proposal.

Chairman Wendell Miller of Idaho Falls, said Boise Mayor Dirk

Kempthorne's endorsement of Pocatello's bid last month over two sites south of his own city was indicative of the Boise area's apparent indifference to being the home of another prison, although Ada County officials remain interested.

Corrections Director Richard Vernon said the best of the three Pocatello sites was a 60-acre parcel on Philbin Road on the city's north-west side, and he agreed with board members that Pocatello offers an impressive array of facilities and services, including educational and medical.

"It's obvious to me that the willingness is certainly there and the opportunity to develop something that would be excellent," he said.

But all three sites proposed so far, which are on private land, have serious flaws. The Philbin Road location, near BMC Corp. and J.R. Simplot Co. phosphate plants, is in a "non-attainment area" for air pollution.

"That's obviously the best site except for this one very serious concern," Vernon said. "We're investigating that. That may be very difficult to overcome."

BOISE (AP) — Mothers Against Drunk Driving are condemning Idaho's Health and Welfare Director Rich Donovan for maintaining his conviction for driving under the influence amounted to a technical violation.

The president of Idaho's MADD chapter on Thursday said Donovan, who heads the state's largest government agency, failed as a role model by insisting through his attorney his drinking did not impair his ability to drive.

Health and Welfare spokeswoman Mary Keltz, however, said the charge is unfair, adding Donovan has repeatedly indicated his remorse.

Ms. Keltz quoted Donovan as telling agency workers this week: "Don't take a chance on driving if you've been drinking. Don't even try to judge if that's OK."

The director pleaded guilty to the misdemeanor charge Thursday in Blaine County Magistrate Court.

His sentence includes four days of house arrest, 20 hours of community service, a $500 fine and alcohol counseling.

A blood-test showed that his blood-alcohol level was 0.14 percent. The legal limit is 0.10.

"He evidently showed remorse for the embarrassment his actions have caused his family and regret for the possible jeopardy to his career," Idaho MADD President Betty Stadler said in a prepared statement.

"There was, however, no evidence in the media's reporting of the incident that Mr. Donovan had any remorse for the fact that his actions endangered the lives of innocent people."

Even though his BAC measured 0.14, Mr. Donovan "described the charge against him as 'debatable' and expressed the belief that his faculties were not impaired."

"If Mr. Donovan or anyone else actually believes that ... we have a long way to go in educating the public about the hazards of driving while under the influence of alcohol."

viewed Thursday. His Idaho Falls attorney, John Ohman, could not be reached for comment.

At sentencing, Ohman said Donovan, arrested Oct. 5 on Idaho 75 near Ketchum, remains convinced "his faculties were not impaired."

In a letter to the governor released Monday, Donovan said "my guilt remains debatable."

Ms. Keltz said those comments relate to Donovan's legal strategy and should not be construed as indicating a lack of remorse.

She said Donovan intends to speak to MADD representatives to help resolve any differences.

Ms. Stadler, co-founder of Ada County's MADD chapter in 1988, lost her daughter in an automobile accident involving a drunken driver.

She said it is not too late for Donovan to correct the perception that he believes he is not guilty of driving drunk.

Trucker convicted of sexual abuse

BOISE (AP) — A Garden City, truck driver has been convicted of forcing a 9-year-old girl to engage in sexual intercourse and pose for explicit photographs.

The 34th District Court jury deliberated for three hours Thursday night before finding Karl William Larsen, 49, guilty of lewd and lascivious conduct with a minor and child sexual abuse. He faces a life sentence.

Judge Deborah Bail set sentencing for Jan. 14.

"He is one of the most dangerous people I have ever prosecuted," Ada County Deputy Prosecutor LaMont Anderson said of Larsen. "His offenses have involved acts of violence and the use of firearms."

Authorities said Larsen's long list of prior convictions include assault with intent to commit murder in Texas and the rape of a developmentally disabled 15-year-old girl in Oregon.

Voters approve middle school

PARMA (AP) — An aging, creaky Parma Middle School will soon be torn down, and a new $2.75 million structure will go up on nearby land to replace it.

Voters in the Parma School District on Thursday approved a bond to build the new school by a 606 to 279 vote, said Joe Finley, chairman of the Parma School Board.

The bond will increase taxes by about $72 annually on a $45,000 home, he said.

The election represents the third time Parma has tried to issue a bond, Finley said. Two bond measures failed in 1987.

Singer-songwriter contends Milli Vanilli stole his melody

NEW YORK (AP) — First they were accused of stealing somebody else's voice. Now they're accused of stealing somebody's melody. Lip-synchers Milli Vanilli are being sued for alleged copyright infringement by Broadway and TV smash hit Clayton Thomas...

Grammy they won for best new artist after it was revealed they did not sing the album's songs and were lip-synching the words in concerts. The suit, filed Thursday, seeks $120 million and names as defendants Pilatus, Morvan, producer Frank Farina and BMI Music Publishing Inc. which holds Clayton Thomas' music copyrights in trust...

He was to appear in Los Angeles Traffic Court on Jan. 2, the sergeant said. "I wish Feldman's officers arrest this year. On March 7, officers said they found balloons containing heroin and cocaine in his car. Feldman also was arrested Sept. 20 in connection with unpaid traffic tickets. Officers said they found a small amount of heroin on him during a search at a North Hollywood police station and the actor underwent drug treatment.

Joan Collins tries Coward to counter 'vixen' image LONDON (AP) — Actress Joan Collins says she wants people to see her play roles other than "the glamorous vixen type," so she's filming eight Noel Coward comedies for British television. Collins is best known for playing the decidedly vixenish Alexis Carrington Colby on the TV series "Dynasty." She currently is starring in a London stage production of Coward's "Private Lives."

Famous furniture fetches funds at food bank auction CHICAGO (AP) — A rocker used by Barbara Bush fetched $60 at a charity auction. A chair once used by Madonna got $225. And an orange plastic stadium seat, once thrown by Indiana University basketball coach Bob Knight sold for $150. Thursday night's, celebrity furniture auction raised $5,085 for the non-profit Greater Chicago Food Depository which distributes 20 million pounds of food a year to 500 soup kitchens, pantries and shelters in northeast Illinois and northwest Indiana.

Joan Collins loves challenges Antique Center. "You can never tell how it will go with a charity auction."

Corey Feldman Driving without a license

Young actor Feldman arrested on traffic charges LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Corey Feldman's latest tumbler with the law is over traffic tickets. The 19-year-old star of the movies "The Lost Boys," "Gremlins" and "Stand By Me" was arrested late Thursday, said Sgt. Pat Findley of the Los Angeles Police Department's Hollywood division. Officers had spotted his BMW bleeding a tire and discovered there was an outstanding traffic warrant for his arrest, Findley said. They also determined that Feldman had a suspended driver's license, Findley said. Feldman was released early Friday after paying $528 in outstanding tickets and fines, Findley said.

Radio legend Calvin Coolidge: 'The master of the platitude'

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (AP) — Decades before the sound bite became the parlance of politics, Calvin Coolidge defied his "Silent Cal" image and stepped up to the mike, delivering his annual Message to Congress to a spellbound nation. "Historians on Thursday remembered the anniversary of the president's first broadcast, hailed by critics of the day who said Coolidge's Yankee twang cut admirably across the crackle of early radio. "Apparently his high-pitched nasal whine really penetrated the ether," said Kelly Buckley, curator of the Coolidge collection at the Forbes Library in Northampton, the western Massachusetts town where Coolidge got his political start. The speech, delivered Dec. 6, 1923, on a hookup of seven radio stations, sent neighbors flocking to the homes of those who owned new radio sets, said Buckley, also a historian at the University of Massachusetts.

radio sets, said Buckley, also a historian at the University of Massachusetts. "Out on the prairie, picking up these little signals on crystal radio sets, it really must have given people a sense of connection that they never had before," he said. The speech was a lengthy discourse on several topics including foreign affairs, with Coolidge taking a wishy-washy stand on the League of Nations, and endorsing continued restricted immigration. "America must be kept American," Coolidge said in a broadcast heard by millions as far away as Missouri and Texas, said Michael Kittross, a professor at Emerson College in Boston. "Coolidge was the master of the platitude," Buckley said. "What he said was comforting and full of cracker-barrel wisdom."

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The displays of sparkling jump suits, gold records and shiny motorcycles at Elvis Presley's house are about to get a bit flashier, managers of the estate said Thursday. Tom Parker, who directed Presley's career for 30 years, has sold his personal collection of rock 'n' rollabilia to the residence known as Graceland. The collection includes about 70,000 pounds of business documents, photographs, clothes, newsreels and other items, Graceland managers said. It also includes more gold records, acetate recordings of Presley's early studio work and promotional tapes of Elvis messages passed out to radio stations in the early days of the singer's career. One acetate recording is of Presley's first appearance on the "Louisiana Hayride" radio show in 1954. Presley's famous gold lame suit will join his other outfits on display at Graceland, as will the 1976 Cadillac he gave Parker as a present. The gold suit will go on display in January during annual festivities surrounding Presley's birthday. Jim Javorowicz, Graceland's specialist for rock 'n' roll artifacts, said the collection covers Parker's 65 years as a music promoter and offers a clear paper trail on the business side of creating a star. "It's so well kept, it's like a time capsule from the '50s," Javorowicz said. Parker, 81, who generally avoids reporters, said he had several would-be buyers for the collection, including an eager Japanese bidder who offered the top price. Parker, known as Col. Tom Parker or just "the colonel," said he wanted the collection at Graceland. He said he expects there to be an "Elvis and the Colonel" museum at Graceland one day. "Sometime when I'm not around, it will always be 'Elvis and the Colonel,'" Parker said by telephone from his residence near Nashville. Jack Soden, executive director of the Graceland Division of Elvis Presley Enterprises Inc., would not reveal the purchase price for the collection. Neither would Parker. Graceland, which draws more than 600,000 visitors annually, already includes extensive displays of clothes, vehicles and memorabilia that once belonged to Presley. The estate also has a 36,000-square-foot shopping center devoted primarily to Elvis souvenirs. His body racked by drug abuse, Presley died at Graceland in 1977. He was 42. Parker said there was nothing he could do to keep Presley from abusing drugs. "He did it on his own. Elvis, you could not tell Elvis anything what to do," he said.

What's what?

Q: What did American colonists drink before tea and coffee were brought in?
A: A brew of sort of Billy leaves. Bitter as hell get out. But with a lot of castiers. Indians made it.

Q: What did American colonists drink before tea and coffee were brought in?
A: A brew of sort of Billy leaves. Bitter as hell get out. But with a lot of castiers. Indians made it.

Q: In the military, what's an "R4 Charlie?"
A: A combat photographer.

Q: Bullets ripped ragged holes in tree trunks around Civil War battlefields, but you can't find many anymore. Did they all grow high out of sight?
A: Healed over maybe. But they're at the same level. If you drive a spike into a tree trunk, it never gets higher.

Q: Don't most doctors marry nurses?
A: Not most. One out of five male doctors, historically, have married nurses. Female doctors rarely do so. From time to time, however, have said they either wind up loving doctors, or hating them.

A trainer of athletes says you can ward off athlete's feet with underarm anti-perspirant on your feet.

Q: I know Atlantic City is about as windy as any big town in the country. But which is the least windy?
A: Phoenix, maybe. With an average in the neighborhood of 5 mph.

OYSTERS
You say you don't eat oysters in months without an "R"? Forget it in Australia. There, those are exactly the months - May through August - when oysters are at their best.

Q: That's right, the male whale is smaller. Average female is 50 feet long. Did I question grow-female weighs about ton a foot?
A: Dominica is a small island. The Dominican Republic is half an island. Different places. Check the map.

An uninterrupted leaf floating down the Mississippi will travel about 100 miles a day.

Lot of tadpoles grow larger than the frogs they turn into.

Ellis Island was named for a Sam Ellis who ran a tavern there.

Gloomy employment news helps declining issues outnumber advances

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The stock market drifted lower in nationwide trading of New York futures, faced with gloomy news on the labor front.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 12.35 to 2,590.10, reducing its gain to 164.95 million shares, down from 256.38 million in the previous session. Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in the stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 199.71 million shares.

The labor Department reported that the unemployment rate jumped 0.2 percentage point, to 5.9 percent, in November, but that nonfarm payroll employment took a bigger-than-expected drop of 267,000.

Analysts said the data was a strong corroborating evidence that the economy has slipped into recession.

The fresh evidence of weakness in business activity sent interest rates lower in the U.S. government securities market.

Prices of long-term government bonds jumped more than $1 1/2 for each $100 in face value, outpacing their yields to the neighborhood of 8.18 percent — the lowest level in about 11 months.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE - BOBBY WOLFF

Dear Mr. Wolff: My husband and I were playing bridge and recording our bidding. An opponent committed an irregularity and my husband was the first one to call attention to it. Does our side lose the rights to any points?

ANSWER: Yes, you do. Law 11 of the Laws Duplicate Whist states: "The right to realize an irregularity may be forfeited if attention is first drawn to the irregularity by a spectator for whose presence at the table the non-offending side is responsible."

Dear Mr. Wolff: We play a social rubber bridge game in which duplicate players sometimes join. We don't know how to handle an occasional skip-bid warning by these duplicate players. Should we all start doing it?

ANSWER: The skip-bid warning is a procedure specifically authorized for ACBL-sponsored duplicate games. There is no requirement for rubber-bridge groups to adopt the procedure. The decision should be left to each group.

Dear Mr. Wolff: What is a short-suit game-try? ANSWER: This is a short-suit game-try, but it may be graded on any standard system. After an opening major-suit bid has been raised to two, opener tries for game by bidding his shorter suit. If responder has a decent raise with little high-card strength in opener's short suit, his value increases-in value. If instead, he duplicates opener's strength, the value decreases. (A holding of K-Q opposite a singleton has little value at suit play.)

Dear Mr. Wolff: Does the term "pump" as used in bridge mean "force declarer to ruff"? ANSWER: Yes, pumping and so do other such colloquialisms as "tap," "punch," etc. All refer to forcing declarer to ruff repeatedly in hopes of his losing trump control.

Dear Mr. Wolff: Is it illegal or unethical for a player to bid a weak suit (K-x-x) in the holds of a legitimate suit in which the holds are K? ANSWER: It is neither illegal nor unethical. It is known as a lead-inhibiting bid (a semi-psychic call). However, these bids are OK only if there is no prior partnership understanding. To pass the test, such-bids should risk developing one's partner as well as one's own.

008 Sales People: Sakoperson wanted for retail automobile business. Local area, no travel necessary. Representing the excellent lines of Oldsmobile, Buick and Pontiac.

008 Adult Care Services: Do you love babies? We are looking for nurses in the Twin Falls area to work our pediatric home care team.

008 Adult Care Services: THERAPY TECHNICIANS. Needed to work with children in a residential center. Excellent pay and benefits.

010 Professionals - Services: AMERICAN Personnel & Temporary Services, Inc. "Service people who save you!"

014 Child-care Services: Experienced babysitter w/ preschool activities. Helpline: 738-2424.

015 Babysitters Wanted: Full-time, in our home, for 2 infants, references: 937-4444.

016 Employment Wanted: House cleaning, reasonable rates; dependable and honest. 324-2871 or 734-1759.

ATTENTION CLASSIFIED READERS: If you have had problems with any providers of services, please notify the Times-News office as soon as possible.
