IEA spends $303,392 on Gem legislative races

By Anita Dennis
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — More than $300,000 from the Idaho Education Association helped 34 Democrats and 14 Republicans get elected to the Legislature last month. Mandatory post-election campaign finance disclosure reports show that the Political Action Committee for Education spent $303,392 on 63 candidates in the 1990 election. Of the $310,107 raised from teachers' contributions, almost one-third — $97,614 — was borrowed against next year.

"Education is important in this state and the candidates who are best for education should be elected," said Richard Chilcote, president of the IEA.

The teachers' organization's heavy involvement in the elections has prompted charges that seats were bought. Democrats were favored and campaign financing must be reformed. Rep. Bruce Newcomb, R-Burley, said Republicans were gypped.

"We have made a concerted effort to break down the barriers that had been raised between Republicans and the IEA," the assistant majority leader said. "We felt like we really had made some headway. Then they came up like gangbusters as a Democratic PAC."

By Newcomb's calculations, the IEA gave only 3.6 percent of its money to Republican candidates. In his view, the IEA was deliberately trying to gain Democratic control of the Senate. But Chilcote said the group targeted

"the candidates who would be best for the future of public schools in Idaho," regardless of political party.

"As it so happens, those that we chose, those were Democrats," he said. Although the group did endorse candidates of both parties — 68 Democrats and 22 Republicans — financial contributions went overwhelmingly to Democrats. In two Senate races, the Democrats received more than $200,000 each — Gary Robbins of Twin Falls and Richard Ackerman of

Envoy, others arrive home from Iraq

The Associated Press

ANDREWS AIR FORCE BASE, Md. — Nearly 50 jubilant Westerners who had been trapped in Iraq and Kuwait touched down on American soil Friday, led by the U.S. diplomats who had refused to leave without them. First to bound off the plane was Nathaniel Howell, the ambassador to Kuwait, who had spent more than three months in the besieged U.S. embassy. "It's great to be home," Howell declared. "I'm delighted to bring home with me the last planeload of Americans who want to leave Kuwait."

The group was greeted in the biting December wind by Secretary of State James A. Baker III, who saluted them for being "victorious over an uncivilized and brutal ordeal."

But Baker added: "While your ordeal has ended, that of the Kuwaiti people continues. As you were freed, now too we must see Kuwait freed of Iraqi occupation."

The hostages were welcomed by a crowd of cheering friends and family members waving flags and bearing balloons. A young woman wearing a "Free Kuwait" sweatshirt handed out red roses. The hostages were whisked off to a pri-

Bush rips Saddam for Baker meeting delays

Knight-Ridder News Service

WASHINGTON — President Bush sharply criticized Saddam Hussein on Friday for insisting on meeting with Secretary of State James A. Baker III only three days before the U.N. deadline to withdraw Iraqi forces from Kuwait.

"That deadline is real," said Bush, who urged Saddam to "get moving" and set an earlier, more reasonable date than Jan. 12 for "high-level talks" in Baghdad. Bush, however, stopped short of issuing an ultimatum, saying, "I don't like to draw deadlines in the sand."

But Bush said he may ask Congress to authorize an attack on Iraq if it has not withdrawn by Jan. 15.

Bush said his scheduled meeting Monday with Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz

"is on hold" until Saddam agrees to meet Baker in Baghdad by Jan. 3. Bushnoted Saddam has rejected 15 dates for a meeting offered by the administration.

White House officials said Friday that they believe Saddam will quit stalling and that Baker and Saddam will meet early in January. "It seems to me that Saddam Hussein would want the meeting," said a senior official who spoke anonymously.

Court permits removal of woman's feeding tube

The Associated Press

CARTHAGE, Mo. — A judge ruled Friday that the parents of Nancy Cruzan can remove the feeding tube that has kept their comatose daughter alive for seven years, ending a landmark legal fight over the right to die.

In his two-page order, Jasper County Probate Judge Charles Teel said he believed there was "clear and convincing evidence" that Ms. Cruzan would want to end her life.

He said there was no evidence she would continue her present existence, hopeless as it is, and "slowly progressively worsening."

Ms. Cruzan's parents, Joe and Joyce Cruzan, thanked the judge and others in a statement distributed by their attorney at a news conference.

"I think most of all I'm proud of Nancy," the statement said. "She was our bright flaming star who flew through the heavens of our lives. Though brilliant, her flight was terribly short-lived. But she left a flaming trail, a legacy that I do not think will be shortly forgotten."

That was not in court. The clerk, who handed out the ruling, said the judge would have no comment.

A 1988 ruling by Teel on behalf of the parents was overturned. The case then went to the U.S. Supreme Court.

In its first right-to-die case, the nation's highest court said "clear and convincing" proof the 33-year-old woman would want to die.

Ms. Cruzan left no instructions about what she would want done if she ever became incapacitated. However, three of her former co-workers testified in November that she told them she would not want to be kept alive on a vegetative state.

Inflation up, economy off

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Wholesale prices rose 1 percent in November, the government said Friday.

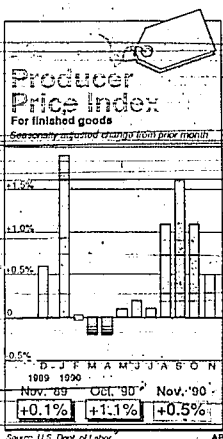

Analysis called it a disturbingly high increase at a time when the economy is slumping and energy costs are moderating.

In a separate report, the Federal Reserve said U.S. manufacturing had suffered its steepest one-month plunge in eight years.

The seasonally adjusted November rise in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index for finished goods, which measures prices one step short of retail, looked tame in comparison with monthly increases topping 1 percent from August through October.

November's increase translates, however, into a worrisome 6.1 percent annual rate.

Economist Elliot Platt of Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette said the higher-than-expected increase may postpone further action from the Federal Reserve to stimulate economic activity by lowering interest rates.

Weather summary

Clear skies and chilly temperatures prevailed over the Magic Valley and much of Idaho on Friday. Overnight snowfall accounted for most of the precipitation reports in Idaho, with the heaviest 2.7-inch at Pocatello and 2.1 at Idaho Falls. Lighter amounts were reported in the northern sections.

The cold front which brought the storm into southern Idaho moved to the east Thursday night and Friday morning, but on its way across the state produced 3 to 6 inches of snow in southern Idaho on Thursday. Behind the storm, westerly wind blowing at 20 to 40 mph on Friday caused considerable blowing snow over wide sections of the state.

Temperatures in mountain areas dropped to some of the coldest levels of the season with readings of zero or below widespread. Daytime readings were generally in the 20s and 30s on Friday.

The warmest temperature in the state Friday was 45 degrees at Lewistown and Lowell. Stanley reported the coldest at 15 below zero.

Elsewhere in the nation Friday, the highest temperature was 83 degrees at McAllen, Texas. The lowest was 4 below zero at Ely, Nev.

Storm dumps heavy snow on Rockies, heads eastward

The Associated Press

A snow storm took aim at the northern Mississippi Valley on Friday after blasting the Rockies with up to 16 inches of snow and a new storm moved into the Northwest.

A cold front crossing the Rockies produced heavy snow in the mountains of Colorado from Thursday into Friday, with up to 10 inches of new snow at West Creek Pass. Many other ski areas in Colorado received at least half a foot of fresh powder.

Wind gusts of 60 to 70 mph were reported in the Denver area during the morning and gusts to 74 were reported at Route, west of Fort Collins. Jeff Schwartz, a spokesman for EG&G-Rocky Flats, said an 82 mph gust was recorded at Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant outside Denver.

The snow storm reached blizzard-like intensity Friday morning in the area of Aspen, Colo., where schools were closed because of slippery roads and whiteout conditions, said Paul Gard of the National Weather Service in Denver. One Colorado traffic death was blamed on the weather.

The cold front produced 6 to 12 inches of snow in the mountains of western Wyoming during the night and snow spread across the state's northern mountains during the morning. Snowfall totals at midday ranged up to 14 inches at Deer Haven Lodge.

The cold front also gave Utah heavy snow, with up to 8 inches in southwestern and central sections of the state, from Cedar City to Salina. Ski resorts east of the Wasatch Front received 12 to 16 inches of new snow.

The cold front produced 3 to 6 inches of snow in southern Idaho on Thursday and westerly wind blowing at 20 to 40 mph on Friday caused considerable blowing snow.

In Montana, a small weather disturbance behind the cold front spread light snow across southern sections of the state.

Snow spread into South Dakota during the morning and freezing drizzle developed in southwestern Nebraska, changing to light snow during the afternoon.

By Saturday morning, snow was expected in parts of Minnesota and Wisconsin, the National Weather Service said.

A strong Pacific storm system bore down on the West Coast, with showers developing along the coast of Washington state. It was expected to produce heavy sleet during the weekend in the mountains of Washington, Oregon and northern California.

Prayer rite deaths held accidental

TJUANA, Mexico (AP) — Twelve people who died at a religious ceremony were the victims of accidental carbon monoxide poisoning, the state government said Friday.

"They fell asleep thinking they were in a trance," said Baja California state spokeswoman Sara Yolanda Gonzalez.

"Autopsies completed Friday on the 12 men, women and children whose bodies were discovered Thursday showed they died from carbon monoxide, a state government news release said.

"They had no electricity, only a gas lamp. It consumed all their oxygen, and they had no windows open," Gonzalez said.

She said the deaths were not related to the religious ceremony that brought the people together at the home in the U.S.-Mexico border city of Tijuana on Wednesday night.

"They had an altar to the Virgin of Guadalupe, candles and holy water," Gonzalez said.

"Prayer," Gonzalez said.

A team of investigators discarded notions that the worshippers were followers of the devil, the state news release said.

members of his bare-bones embassy staff left Iraq on Thursday on what was expected to be the last U.S. charter flight to evacuate Westerners from Iraq and occupied Kuwait.

After an overnight stop in Frankfurt, Germany, many of the hostages were flown to Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington aboard a C-5 military transport plane.

The passengers included 23 Americans, 10 non-U.S. citizen family members, as well as 15 people going to Canada, officials said.

Howell, 50, had been winding up a three-year stint in Kuwait and was preparing to leave when Iraq invaded the emirate on Aug. 2. Shortly after, Saddam closed all foreign missions in Kuwait and cut off services to those embassies that defied him.

Howell and others on the embassy staff held our for more than three months, living mainly on rice, tinned food and bottled water from the embassy swimming pool.

Only one, Wayne Cox, 40, of Orlando, Fla., would talk with reporters. He had been hiding in Kuwait with his wife, Layla, and their three children.

Cox praised President Bush's policies and advocated military action to liberate Kuwait.

"It can't go on much longer," he said. "It's just devastated. Cars are completely stripped everywhere, houses burned, stores burned."

Howell noted that he had left the flag flying when he left the U.S. embassy in Kuwait, and he vowed it would reopen in time — with new staff.

"The ordeal of the Kuwaitis ... still persists. The people there must be freed," he said.

Baker said Iraq's Saddam Hussein deserved no reward for his release of the hostages.

He said Saddam's aggression and the ordeal of the hostages "bars our sense of human decency and civility."

Witness tells of party after ecologist slain

XAPURI, Brazil (AP) — A young farmhand testified Friday that he celebrated the murder of famed rain forest activist Chico Mendes.

Genezio Barbosa da Silva, 15, caused a sensation in the tiny Xapuri courthouse with chilling details about rancher Darly Alves da Silva, who is accused of plotting Mendes' murder two years ago.

Da Silva's son and co-defendant, Darci Alves Pereira, confessed to the shooting on the trial's opening day Wednesday in this sultry Amazon river town 2,650 miles northwest of Rio de Janeiro.

Mendes, 44, had gained international recognition for organizing opposition among rubber tappers to ranchers who clearcut chunks of the delicate Amazon rain forest for pasture.

Idaho Falls. Both lost.

In seven other races, Democratic candidates received $10,000 to $20,000 each.

Contributions to all 15 Republicans, on the other hand, totaled less than $10,000.

Democrats received more money because they need "to even the playing field" in a predominantly Republican state, Chilcote said.

Look, for example, at Robbins, who received $29,345 from the IEA. As a Republican representative for Twin Falls, "He was just fine in the eyes of the voters," Chilcote said.

But when Robbins switched parties, the same person with the same views and philosophies lost a bid for a seat in the Senate.

"If Gary Robbins had run as a Republican, he would have won the election hands down," Chilcote said.

The timber industry spent 95 percent of its money on Republicans, he said, and nobody is questioning that.

Chilcote said the IEA targeted 12 races in the Senate.

One of the group's "secondary goals," Chilcote said, was a balanced Legislature for the purposes of reappointment.

"However, that was not our primary concern. Our primary concern is public education in the state," Chilcote said.

In the last reappointment 10 years ago, Republicans controlled the Legislature and the result was an "extremely conservative" Legislature and "a definite lack of support for public schools' first half of the 1980s," Chilcote said. "If they controlled the Legislature, Democrats would redirect to their benefit. Aside from receiving contributions from two or three PACs, Scanlin said her campaign was financed by 200 individuals. Yet, she said, "If I'm honest about it, I couldn't have won without them (the IEA). IEA contributions paid for her television ads, she said, which she credits for her success.

But Newcomb said that any legislator who accepts $18,000 or $20,000 from a PAC, especially when it's the chief campaign contributor, is "pretty much obligated to respond positively."

Chilcote said all the IEA wants is to be heard. "If the Legislature wants to pass campaign finance reform laws that would restrict PAC donations, he said, it has to be fair.

"If everyone else had the same restrictions, we've heard is restrict the IEA."

As for whether the IEA's agenda would be met by the 1991 Legislature, Chilcote said, "As to what shall occur, we don't have a crystal ball ... It looks fairly favorable."

Bush picks Illinois representative for labor post; 1 cabinet job to fill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush said Friday he would nominate Rep. Lynn Martin of Illinois to head the Labor Department, choosing a longtime friend who lost her congressional seat last month in a bid for the Senate.

The choice of Martin to replace Elizabeth Dole, who resigned to head the American Red Cross, will assure the continuing presence of at least one woman in Bush's Cabinet.

Another congresswoman who was defeated in her effort to unseat a Democratic senator, Patricia Saiki of Hawaii, is considered a frontrunner for the top position at the Education Department, where Lauro Cavazos was forced to resign this week.

Bush called Martin, 51, a "distinguished public servant and cherished friend."

The announcement got a somewhat chillier reception from labor leaders. Lane Kirkland, president of the 14.2 million-member AFL-CIO, said that during her 10-year tenure in Congress her voting record "has not reflected a sensitivity to the needs of workers."

And John Sturdivant, president of the 700,000-member American Federation of Government Employees, she had a pro-business reputation that "gives us some cause for concern."

Bush's announcement, made hastily before he boarded a heliethics rules would limit his outside income.

Martin was in Illinois on Friday, having been told earlier in the day that no announcement was imminent, an administration source said. In making his announcement, Bush said Martin had served as an "unofficial adviser" to him on legislative matters and the merit.

She backed him in his first presidential bid in 1980, helped him prepare for his vice presidential debate with Democrat Geraldine Ferraro in 1984 and was a national co-chairman of his presidential campaign two years ago.

It was also apparent that Bush felt he owed her something for her party loyalty in giving up a safe House seat to make the uphill bid against Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill. She had been passed over in Bush's first round of Cabinet appointments after the 1988 election, partly because of her own interest in the Senate.

"She's a mother who knows the need for child care. She's a professional who understands the business-labor relationship. And, as a congresswoman, she spent years dealing with the concerns and aspirations of the working Americans from every walk of life," Bush said. "I know that she will serve with great distinction in our Cabinet."

Rep. Saiki had also been considered in the running for the labor post, as well as the education slot.

NEA chief says he won't be 'decency czar'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Endowment for the Arts was Friday to "comply with Congress' new 'decency standard' by ensuring its grant-judging panels reflect the widest possible diversity of American cultural values.

This procedural solution was approved by members of the National Council on the Arts; the NEA's presidentially appointed advisory body, who met informally at a downtown hotel to discuss the implications of legislation Congress approved in October.

Council members effectively rejected a stronger alternative that would have required writing or oral guidelines on decency for the NEA panels of outside experts who review applications for federal arts grants.

After the vote, endowment chairman John E. Frohnmayer expressed approval of the council's approach and said, "I'm not going to be the decency czar here."

When it approved a $174 million budget for the arts endowment this year, Congress repealed a year-old obscenity ban and substituted a requirement that the NEA take "general standards of decency" into account when awarding federal grant money.

Waiter wins second-hand smoke claim

The Associated Press

A non-smoking waiter has received a settlement in a workers' compensation case in which he claimed his heart attack was caused by exposure to other people's cigarette smoke, his attorney said Friday.

"They've admitted that our claim is substantial enough that if they want to trial they'd probably lose," said the attorney, Charles Crane.

In the settlement, the California Compensation Insurance Fund agreed to take care of the 54-year-old waiter's medical bills, which amount to about $85,000.

Stanton Glantz, a researcher who testified in the case as an authority on passive smoking, said he believed it was the first time a workers' compensation decision was based on passive smoking-induced heart disease.

Ulysses' problems threaten mission

PASADENA — The Ulysses spacecraft is wobbling like an off-balance washing machine, threatening to cripple the $750 million U.S.-European mission to study the sun's poles.

Ulysses, launched from space shuttle Discovery on Oct. 6, started gyrating on Nov. 4, The Associated Press learned.

Officials this week confirmed the problem's existence, and said they hope they can work around the malfunction so it doesn't significantly harm Ulysses' five-year mission.

The wobble will leave the spacecraft's main dish-shaped antenna unable to point at Earth continuously.

Fire leaves more than 100 homeless

REVERE, Mass. — A suspicious fire fanned by high wind sped through a crowded neighborhood Friday, damaging 11 three-family houses and leaving more than 100 people homeless, many of them needy immigrants, authorities said.

Emergency officials who went to evacuate residents said they had trouble communicating the urgency of the problem to people who did not speak English.

"They were just reluctant to leave. They didn't realize the seppie of what was going on," said Deputy Fire Chief Dan Doherty.

No deaths or serious injuries were reported. Seven firefighters from Revere, Boston and Chelsea suffered smoke inhalation or other injuries. Three civilians were treated for minor injuries, police said.

Bakker solely liable for $130 million

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Jim Bakker was found liable by a jury Friday for nearly $130 million in damages in a lawsuit filed by former PTL religious contributors. His fellow defendants were found to be not at fault.

The federal jury deliberated for close to 28 hours over five days before reaching its decision. The trial lasted six weeks.

The lawsuit's other defendants — Big 8 accounting firm Deloitte, Haskins & Sells; David-Taggart, Bakker's former personal aide; and Aimee Cortese, a minister from New York, who served on PTL's board of directors — were not liable, the jury ruled.

Keating aide contradicts senator's testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Donald W. Riegle Jr. initiated a meeting between senators and thrift regulators on behalf of Charles H. Keating Jr., a former Keating aide testified Friday in contradiction of the Michigan Democrat's sworn statement.

James Grogan was the first Keating insider to testify in the Senate Ethics Committee hearings, and did so only under a grant of limited immunity that prevents his statements from being used against him in court.

Grogan

Riegle, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, has told the panel "I did not arrange the meeting April 2" (1987) between the top thrift regulator and four Senate colleagues — who were intervening for Keating's failing Lincoln Savings and Loan. Riegle did not attend the session.

"Is there any doubt in your mind that Sen. Riegle arranged the meeting with the senators?" committee special counsel Robert S. Bennett asked Grogan, who was Lincoln's corporate counsel.

"No sir," Grogan answered.

The April 2 meeting is important because the top regulator at the time, Edwin J. Gray, has testified that Sen. Dennis DeConcini tried to negotiate a deal for Lincoln that would have waived a rule prohibiting risky investments. DeConcini has denied the allegation.

Grogan said he later "got feedback (the four senators were miffed)" at Riegle's absence, since negative news stories about Lincoln's condition made the session potentially "politically explosive."

Grogan also told the committee that Riegle tried to hide his role in initiating the meeting.

The Keating executive said Riegle asked him to invite the other senators and to ask McCain and DeConcini, in turn, to invite Riegle to attend.

"Sen. McCain reacted very negatively" to the suggestion, Grogan said. "He said he would not invite Sen. Riegle to the meeting. He was very unhappy with that concept."

DeConcini did write an invitation to Riegle to meet with regulators — not for the April 2 meeting, but to a session a week later between all five senators and the San Francisco-based regulators who were investigating Lincoln.

At that session, the senators were advised that criminal referrals regarding Lincoln would be sent to the Justice Department.

The committee is investigating whether the five senators' intervention for Keating was related to the $1.3 million he and associates donated to their campaigns and favorite causes.

Most of Grogan's testimony concentrated on Riegle's actions, but he also said that Keating dealt personally with DeConcini when the businessman saw a chance to initiate a settlement in his feud with regulators.

Grogan said that Riegle volunteered to arrange a meeting between senators and Gray during a visit the senator made in March 1987 to Keating's parent company, American Continental Corp. of Phoenix.

Keating at the time was telling every politician who would listen that the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, headed by Gray, was treating Lincoln unfairly and leaking damaging material on the thrift to the news media, Grogan said.

Iraqi citizens urged to prepare for war as U.N. deadline nears

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — A month before the U.N. Security Council's deadline to withdraw from Kuwait, Iraq has stepped up preparations for war with U.S.-led forces.

Bomb shelters are being built, Iraqis are being trained in civil defense and first aid, and plans are being readied to evacuate major population centers.

The government-controlled media has publicized the need to be prepared for any eventuality. It has urged people not to panic during air raids.

Posters pinned on walls at street corners in Baghdad and other cities ask people to be prepared to face even chemical and nuclear weapons.

"Don't panic at the time of an air raid. Just be calm and ask for help from local civil defense men," reads one poster in a main plaza of Baghdad, which has a population of around 4 million.

There's been a noticeable intensification of such preparations since Nov. 29, when the Security Council passed a U.S.-sponsored resolution authorizing military force against Iraq if it does not leave Kuwait by Jan. 15.

On the very day the deadline runs out, evacuation drills are scheduled in the capital.

President Saddam Hussein and other leaders have insisted repeatedly that they will not relinquish any territory gained in the Aug. 2 invasion.

"We want peace... and are endeavoring to achieve it and work to reach a point where none of us brandishes his sword against the other. But if our enemies want to push affairs to a military duel, then with God's help we will win and walk over their corpses and tread on their heads," Saddam said Thursday.

"If war breaks out, it will be the most ferocious war that ever took place, so we have to make our people aware of that," a senior Iraqi official said in an interview. He spoke on condition of anonymity.

Many Iraqis believe the United States might launch an offensive aimed at retaking Kuwait after the Security Council deadline, and fear that targets in Iraq itself could be hit.

They believe that casualties could be high if the multinational force confronting Iraq uses its formidable air power — an estimated 1,900 aircraft will be available by mid-January — to knock out airbases, military factories and economic targets. Many of these are close to population centers.

Pentagon prepares for bloody consequences of war

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon is rushing more doctors, blood supplies and field hospitals to the Persian Gulf to handle the American and allied casualties that could occur in a land war against Iraq, officials said Friday.

Navy officials disclosed that up to 8,000 more reservists will be ordered to active duty to support the expansion of combat medical care in and around Saudi Arabia.

The total numbers of hospitals, beds, medical people and supplies for Operation Desert Shield are classified, as are the Pentagon's computer-generated estimates of casualties from a Gulf war.

Casualty projections vary according to assumptions about the type and length of a U.S. offensive campaign to liberate Kuwait. In remarks to a House Armed Services Committee hearing Thursday, retired Army Col. Trevor Dupuy estimated that an air and ground attack would result in about 9,000 casualties.

About 2,300 Navy reserve medical specialists are being mobilized this week to set up and operate two fleet hospitals in the Saudi Arabian desert. These are mobile, pre-packaged, climate-controlled hospitals that can be unpacked and set up quickly to treat casualties evacuated from the front lines.

The two Navy-run fleet hospitals, each with 500 beds and staffs of 950 people, will be in addition to one already operational with 500 beds and six operating tables in northeastern Saudi Arabia. Their exact locations are classified.

Also, the Navy announced that it is foreing active-duty officer and enlisted medical personnel to stay in uniform indefinitely. That means all Navy doctors, physician assistants, nurses, hospital corpsmen, oral surgeons and medical service corps personnel in eight specialties who had planned to leave the service or retire after Jan. 1, 1991, will be required to stay on active duty.

These are skills which are critical and in short supply due to expanded requirements for Navy medical personnel to support Marine Corps units, hospital ships, other casualty treatment ships and fleet hospitals in the Gulf, it said.

In the Gulf, it said, the Navy invoked a more limited use of the "stop-loss" authority to keep in uniform Navy personnel performing medical and other duties for the Marine Corps. The Army has frozen in place its entire active-duty force.

Another sign of intensifying U.S. preparations for the bloody consequences of war in the Gulf was the Pentagon's disclosure Thursday that it has put into operation an emergency civilian blood collection program.

The Pentagon notified the American Red Cross and the American Association of Blood Banks that it was activating a contract to purchase 375 pints of blood per week from each organization, starting Monday.

The blood is in addition to that which is being collected by the Pentagon's Armed Services Blood Program.

Red Cross officials said the Defense Department had indicated to them the agency might be called upon to send as much as 800 pints daily to the Gulf in the event of actual war.

Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams acknowledged to reporters Thursday that extra medical personnel, facilities and supplies are being dispatched to the Gulf area as U.S. military reinforcements begin arriving to back up the 260,000 American troops already there.

By late January as many as 430,000 U.S. troops are expected to be in the Gulf area, joined by more than 220,000 ground, naval and air forces of 28 allied nations.

Navy officials, speaking on condition they not be identified, said Fleet Hospital 20 and 22 are being mobilized for deployment to Saudi Arabia. Unlike Fleet Hospital 5, which already is set up in Saudi desert, the additional two facilities will be staffed entirely by Navy reservists, the officials said.

Fleet hospitals are similar to Mobile Army Surgical Hospital, or MASH, units but are capable of providing more sophisticated care. Those being sent to Saudi Arabia are designed to operate at the rear of the combat zone, about 75 miles behind the front line of troops. They are the first level-of-care available behind the Marine Corps medical units that accompany troops in combat.

The reservists will start Fleet Hospital 20 conducting their training at Navy facilities in Pennsylvania, Delaware and New Jersey. Its headquarters staff drills in Philadelphia. Fleet Hospital 20 is staffed by reservists who train in Kansas, Colorado, Wyoming, Nebraska and Missouri. Its headquarters staff trains in Olathe, Kan.

EC leaders pledge $1 billion in aid to Soviets

ROME (AP) — European Community leaders agreed Friday on a $1 billion food aid package for the Soviet Union and said it is worth the price if it helps keep President Mikhail S. Gorbachev in power.

The European leaders also were drafting a statement on the gulf crisis, with Italy and France pushing to give Iraq assurances it would not be attacked if it withdrew from Kuwait.

The leaders approved the emergency aid package, with the proportion of grants and loans still to be decided, at the opening of a two-day summit which is scheduled to launch the 12-nation bloc on a radical path toward European unity.

It is not in the interests of Europe or Britain that the Soviet Union should fall into anarchy or should lapse into the hands of some backward-looking tyrant," said British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd.

For the longer term, they agreed in principle on a two-year, $1.4 billion package of technical assistance for 1991-92 to help the Soviet Union in the fields of energy, transportation, distribution and telecommunications, summit spokesman Pio Mastromanni said.

Aid for the hard-pressed economies of Eastern Europe was also under discussion.

The European leaders stressed during their private talks that the Soviet Union doesn't face famine but is hampered by an inadequate distribution system and black market practices.

"It is no good having food rotting in a siding in Leningrad rather than rotting in a grainstore here," said British Prime Minister John Major, making his international debut since replacing Margaret Thatcher last month.

At the same time, Gorbachev needs breathing room to carry out his economic reform program, but his political hold is under constant challenge from various segments of Soviet society.

Earlier in the week, the United States joined 20 other countries in promising or delivering food aid. Chancellor Helmut Kohl of Germany, who has been in the forefront of the food aid drive for the Soviets, denounced attempts in the Soviet Union to undermine Gorbachev. He warned that Gorbachev fall from power would cost the world a lot more than would sending emergency aid now.

Because of the problems of getting food in from the countryside, the Europeans singled out Moscow and Leningrad for the emergency assistance.

Italian Premier Giulio Andreotti said the EC would draw immediately from community-held stocks and promised the Europeans would try to make sure the supplies reached the hungry — and not the black market.

On the eve of the summit, President Bush urged the Europeans in a letter to stand firm and united against Iraq as the Jan. 15 deadline set by the U.N. Security Council for possible military action approaches.

The Persian Gulf crisis figured to dominate discussions at a state dinner at the Renaissance Chigi Palace Friday evening, and it was also the focus of many of the bilateral talks.

Palestinians kill 3 Jews; Israelis seek revenge

JAFFA, Israel (AP) — Palestinians snatched three Jews to death in an aluminum factory Friday and sprayed Moslem fundamentalist slogans on the walls before fleeing, police said.

The killings sparked anti-Arab rioting and cries for vengeance.

The latest in a string of knife attacks on Jewish civilians also brought demands from Israeli right-wingers for a crackdown on Palestinians.

Police Minister Roni Milo warned of a "harsh and unequivocal response" to such attacks.

The slayings in the mixed Arab-Jewish town of Jaffa, adjacent to Tel Aviv, brought Jewish mobs onto the streets, stoning cars, assaulting Arab passersby and clamoring for vengeance.

Police said the attack was thought to be the work of an Arab from the occupied Gaza Strip who works at the factory, and one accomplice. Both were still being sought, they said.

The attackers apparently waited outside the Alum Shin plant until two Jewish employees arrived and escorted them in. They then stabbed Iris Asraf, a 22-year-old secretary, metal cutter Moshe Awan, 40, and Yehoshua Hakimaz, 30, an upholstery worker, next door who ran to help after hearing screams, police said.

The bodies were found at about 8:30 a.m. when another secretary arrived, found knives and pools of blood on the floor and called for help, police said.

Tambo urges ANC review of sanctions

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — ANC President Oliver Tambo on Friday urged the black opposition group to review its stand on international sanctions against South Africa, a cornerstone of the anti-apartheid campaign.

Tambo, who returned Thursday from 30 years of exile, told the opening session of the African National Congress' consultative conference that it had to re-amp its strategy in step with the evolving political situation in South Africa.

Noting worldwide support for President F.W. de Klerk's reforms, Tambo suggested that the ANC would be wiser to develop a consistent policy on sanctions before foreign nations dropped them altogether.

"It is no longer enough for us to repeat the tried slogans," Tambo said in a speech that could mark a major change in the ANC's position.

"We should, therefore, carefully reevaluate the advisability of insisting on the retention of sanctions, given the new developments in the country and abroad."

Both Tambo and Nelson Mandela, the ANC deputy president, praised changes in the white-led government that made the historic three-day conference possible.

Gorbachev accepts Nobel, cash in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — President Mikhail S. Gorbachev on Friday received the Nobel Peace Prize medal and a cash award in a Kremlin ceremony, and he said he would donate the money to medical centers, Tass reported.

The diploma, medal and cash were given to Gorbachev by First Deputy Foreign Minister Anatoly Kovalev, who traveled to Oslo, Norway, on Monday to receive the prize on behalf of the Soviet president.

Gorbachev said he had decided to donate the $15,000 prize money and the $450,000 from Italy's Fuggi Prize given him earlier this year, to children's medical centers.

"I think the money should be spent on health-promoting activities for children, first of all in ecological districts," Tass quoted Gorbachev as saying.

The Norwegian Nobel Committee said in Oslo that the 71st Peace Prize was a recognition of Gorbachev's international efforts more than his domestic policies.

Libya to blame for bombing, report claims

LONDON (AP) — A London newspaper Friday quoted sources close to the public inquiry into the Dec. 10 Pan Am Flight 103 bombing as saying they have proof that Libya was responsible.

The Independent quoted the unidentified high-level sources as saying the conclusion was based on analysis of a detonator fragment found in a field close to the Scottish town of Lockerbie. It said the evidence had come to light only in the past three months.

The newspaper said the confirmation of Libyan involvement refutes a theory that Syrian-based Palestinian faction was responsible for the bombing.

It quoted the sources as saying faction now against Libya could alienate Arab members of the international force in the Persian Gulf — and for that reason no indictments had been issued against the major suspects.

A spokesman for the Lord Advocate, Lord Fraser, Scotland's senior law officer, said he would not comment on "media speculation."

Prosecutor looking for prosecutor

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Kootenai County Prosecutor Bill Douglas is searching for an outside prosecutor to investigate charges that County Commissioner Evelyn Adams routinely padded her automobile mileage expense claims.

Douglas made the decision to seek outside help after taking affidavits from Adams and county administrative assistant Sand Ward Crow. He declined to explain why he decided on an independent investigation beyond saying he wanted to be as fair as possible.

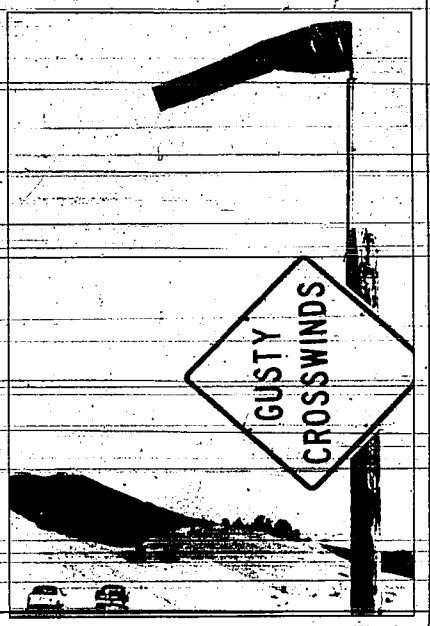

Earlier this week, the Kootenai County Property Owners Association asked for the investigation in the wake of public disclosures about Adams' questionable expense claims. Property Owners Association President Ron Rankin also claims Ward-Crow used county letterhead and postage to advertise a meeting of a private group she belongs to.

Commissioner Bob Haakensohn said the commission had given her permission to do so.

Last Wednesday during the commission's regular weekly meeting, Adams defended her admitted practice of inflating mileage claims, maintaining she did so to compensate for miles she forgot to jot down.

"Sometimes I may estimate the mileage incorrectly," she said. "But I always felt that I had enough unreported trips to balance things out."

Oredibility

Bear River is 'prickly' subject

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A legislative committee has withheld its endorsement of a bill that would establish a framework for developing the Bear River's water resources.

It's not that balking members of the Energy, Natural Resources and Agriculture Standing Committee oppose the project or its $10 million price tag.

The stumbling block is water ownership — a prickly subject in the arid West.

Committee members are at odds over whether entities receiving water from several proposed dams on the river can sell or exchange it.

The committee decided it wouldn't give the bill a favorable recommendation until after the disputes are settled by the Bear River Task Force, which meets again Monday. The amended bill won't be ready until after the general session convenes Jan. 14.

That means the bill will have to be introduced and wend its way through the normal process. The measure's sponsor is Sen. Fred Finlison, R-Murray.

Finlison, while frustrated with the committee's inaction, said it shouldn't hurt the measure's chances of passage.

Finlison, an attorney whose specialty includes water law, has said the task force's plan is unique in its plan to make the Division of Water Resources the owner, operator and seller of water from a series of dams projected along the river.

Elsewhere, those duties are usually handled by water conservancy districts with elected members.

"There's enough (legal ramifications) in here to keep water lawyers employed a long time," he during a committee meeting in November.

The plan envisions three reservoirs along the lower Bear River — at Honeyville, Barrens and Avon.

It's unlikely any projects will be undertaken on the upper Bear, Finlison has said, because Utah does not own enough water rights on that stretch, which meanders through Utah, Wyoming and Idaho.

If all three are built, they could supply 60,000 acre-foot to the Bear River Water Conservancy District, which serves much of Box Elder County; the same amount to municipalities and water districts in Cache County; and 50,000 acre-foot to both the Salt Lake County and Weber Basin water conservancy districts.

An acre-foot is the volume of water that covers an acre 1 foot deep and is the amount consumed by an average Utah family of four in a year.

Officials want to put an end to wrestling

POST FALLS (AP) — An elementary school principal and police detective are convinced professional-style wrestling has no place in the schoolyard, especially since a sixth-grader was temporarily paralyzed while roughhousing with his pals.

Three 11-year-old boys were grappling during recess recently when one of them applied a professional-style wrestling move commonly seen on television.

It started when one of the boys tackled a friend, Post Falls Police Detective Pete Marion said. Moments later, a third boy joined the tussle.

"As they wrestled, Marion said, the boy on top reached down and cupped his hands under his buddy's chin. The boy yelled "Boston Crab!" — the name of the pro wrestling move he used — and yanked his friend's head up and back.

The boy immediately lost all feeling from his neck to his toes, Marion said. He was taken by ambulance to Kootenai Medical Center in Coeur d'Alene, where all feeling returned about four hours later.

"He was real lucky," Marion said. "At first they thought he might have a broken neck."

The boy suffered a concussion of the spinal cord and was kept at the hospital overnight, the family told Marion. Other than a stiff, sore neck, the boy suffered no lasting injuries.

Marion and Frederick Post Elementary Principal Becky Ford said they believe the seriousness of the accident must be used to send a clear message to other students. The detective spoke to sixth-graders at the school the day after the accident.

"I wanted to point out that the wrestling you see on television is fake and if you do those moves on your friends somebody is going to get hurt," Marion said. "Kids don't think of the consequences when they're horsing around. But this wrestling stuff is so dangerous they need to know they can't go around doing it at school."

Ms. Ford was more direct. She said pro wrestling moves are not allowed on the playground.

"Wrestling moves are illegal just like fighting is illegal," she said.

Russian poet seeks common link with some

ST. GEORGE, Utah (AP) — A Russian poet-turned politician told a group of residents he wants to produce a common bond between people in the Soviet Union and America who have suffered the effects of nuclear testing in the two countries.

Olzhas Sulaimenov, president of the Supreme Soviet and anti-nuclear activist, actively protested when the USSR began conducting nuclear tests in the region of the country where he lived.

He drew many parallels between the efforts of his people and those in the United States, particularly Native Americans, who are becoming increasingly concerned about the damage produced from nuclear waste and waste dumps.

"I would say you are quite fond of us," he said through an interpreter. "You have succeeded in obtaining from your government a compensation agreement for full-out victims of nuclear tests."

He said he wanted to discuss the compensation and learn how it came about.

Sulaimenov's trip through America includes stops in nine cities and the White House. St. George was the only rural city on the agenda.

The tour is designed to consolidate public support behind a test ban treaty conference scheduled to take place at the United Nations on Jan. 14.

The conference involves 118 countries and calls for an amendment to a treaty.

Panel says reprimand of trooper was 'overkill' in speeding case

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho State Police agency is guilty of "overkill" in disciplining a trooper after he issued a speeding ticket to Bonneville County Sheriff Richard Ackerman, a state review panel has decided.

The three-member panel of state employees sided with Cpl. Elias Leija in recommending that the agency rescind a letter of reprimand issued

Oct. 4 against the four-year trooper from Mountain Home. "Three impartial people listened and they decided I was right," Leija said Thursday after receiving written notification of the findings. "I have to feel pretty good about it."

During a grievance hearing Monday in Boise, Leija maintained he was disciplined for bucking an unwritten policy of giving breaks to top state officials, legislators and other law enforcement officers. "The panel's recommendation will be considered by acting Idaho Law Enforcement Director Richard Cade."

Cade said late Thursday that he had not seen the findings. "I'm just not going to make any comment until I can review it," he said. The panel said the letter of reprimand should be replaced by a milder "performance record" form, stating: "The letter of reprimand from the head of the State Police was a case of overkill for this particular incident."

And State Police Superintendent Rich Humpherys was criticized for disclosing the confidential disciplinary action in an Oct. 16 letter of "personal apology" to Ackerman.

"Justice prevailed," said Leija's Service Employees Union representative, Warren Lundquist of Boise. "But I worry what the department's going to do."

Humpherys said he issued the reprimand because Leija was "rude" and "unprofessional" during the Sept. 29 traffic stop on U.S. Highway 20 near Hill City. At the time, Ackerman was a Democratic candidate for state senate in eastern Idaho.

He lost in the November election.

Humpherys said the discipline was ordered by former Law Enforcement Director Mack Richardson, who was recently forced to resign for pushing selective-enforcement practices on Idaho's rural highways.

House speaker fires first shot in meeting with Idaho teachers' lobby

LEWISTON (AP) — House Speaker Tom Boyd walked into what could have been a lion's den of a regional Idaho Education Association meeting and snarled back at the teachers' lobby.

Boyd

"As the Republican Party coked off at the IEA," the Genesee Republican asked Thursday, telling about 60 people in the audience he anticipated the question, "Hell yes, they are."

Boyd maintains the IEA spent all but $10,000 of a $303,000 campaign war chest electing Democrats, several of whom challenged Republican legislators with what Boyd characterized as good education records.

And he hinted earlier his appointment of conservative state Rep. R.L. "Dick" Davis, R-Rexburg, as the House Education Committee chairman was meant to send the IEA a message from the GOP. In spite of reversals in last month's election, Republicans control the House with a 56-28 majority. The 42-member state Senate is evenly divided, but the tie-breaking vote is in the hands of Republican Lt. Gov. C. "Burch" Otter.

The GOP will not "shoot their own kneecaps off" by voting against popular pro-education programs in retaliation for IEA financial support for Democrats, Boyd said.

"I don't see education in Idaho suffering from what went on as far as my party's concerned," he said. "The Republican Party in the House, especially, is quite conscious of concerns the people in the state would have if we started to go in the other direction."

Earlier in the day, IEA President Richard Chilcote maintained the IEA had publicly endorsed 22 moderate Republicans including Boyd. It took no position in 38 legislative races and endorsed Democrats in about 66.

However, many Republicans did not request or need IEA campaign funds, he said.

"Our mission in the political arena is to elect Democrats and Republicans who have exhibited to us their support for the public schools," Chilcote said.

Among those not on the IEA-endorsed list, however, is Davis who received a "zero" score from the lobby for his votes in 1989 and a 39 percent rating for the 1990 session. Boyd admitted Davis is no darling of the teachers, but he urged the IEA to give Davis and the Republican legislative education agenda a chance.

"Dick Davis will not foul up that situation," Boyd said.

Chilcote pointed to a series of recent public-opinion polls that point to widespread support for schools. A survey of 750 people commissioned by the IEA in July found 67 percent supported higher pay for teachers and 53 percent were willing to expend more sales tax to support better teacher salaries, he said.

That does not mean the IEA will seek a boost in Idaho's 5 percent sales tax next year, he added. "But this is evidence that the public thinks this is very important," he said.

Elsewhere, Chilcote urged lawmakers to support:

The Education Coalition's requested $71.4 million, or 15.8 percent, increase in state spending for public schools.

More money to reduce the size of Idaho classrooms continuing a 1990 legislative plan to reduce class sizes in the kindergarten through third grades to a 20-to-1 student-teacher ratio. "The public particularly supports this idea, he said. "This is something they can see. It's tangible," Chilcote said.

Mandating all school districts to offer kindergarten programs. Allowing school district employees who are not certified teachers to be represented by the IEA in collective bargaining.

Increased state support for school buildings.

Party leaders say GOP must ready comeback

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Top Republican leaders say their party must capture the Idaho governor post to fully recover from its losses in recent elections.

Batt

That hasn't happened since 1966. But the GOP is looking at 1994 as the race in which they finally break a long string of Democratic victories in elections for the state's most coveted job.

"We are off to a roaring start," said Phil Batt of Wilder, who was the party's losing governor candidate eight years ago. "We have a number of fine candidates that have expressed some interest."

"I think we are going to break that string, but not without some work," Batt said.

He was interviewed Friday for a weekend television program, along with Jim Risch of Boise, former Senate president pro tem, and Larry Eastland, state party finance chairman. Batt and Risch both have been thinking about running for state chairman. The man who holds that position, Boise Cascade executive Randy Ayre, has resigned effective with the Jan. 12 meeting at which party leaders will elect a successor.

Batt said he's working for the state chairman, but Risch said he hasn't made a decision whether to seek it. Both said they want to avoid a battle that could divide Republicans and weaken the party in future elections.

"The press likes to play with fractionalization in the party, but I see it as less and less," Risch said. "By the time we get around to four years from now, you will see a whole new ball game."

"The key is the governorship," said Eastland, who has been mentioned among those thinking about making the race. "We've got to retake the governorship."

"When you have a governor with the power of Cecil Andrus, it's easy to raise money. We've got to focus ourselves back in that game again and finance will follow that," he said.

When Andrus beat Republican Gov. Don Samuelson in 1970, it started a string of six straight Democratic victories in the governor elections. But Eastland said the fact Andrus has announced his next term will be his last gives Republicans a great chance to capture the governor post.

"He's a lame duck governor," Eastland said. "The power shifts immediately when someone doesn't run again and their name is never on the ballot."

Butler for $10 million

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Brett Butler, a new-look free agent not wanted by his old team, the San Francisco Giants, said he agreed Friday night to a three-year contract with the Los Angeles Dodgers worth approximately $10 million.

Dodgers executive vice president Fred Claire neither confirmed nor denied the signing, but Butler said "I've always wanted to play for the Dodgers."

Claire did say he spoke Friday with Butler's agent, Richard Moss, but didn't go beyond that.

"We have not made any comment, and I am not in any position to comment," Claire said.

Atlanta and the Boston Red Sox also had pursued the outfielder, who became a free agent Dec. 7 as part of the collusion settlement between the 26 clubs and the Major League Baseball Players Association.

Eagles escape with win

By Larry Hovey
 The Times-News

EPHRAIM, Utah — Ephraim Utah proved once again it is not an easy place to win a basketball game. College of Southern Idaho had to rally from as much as 11 points down to defeat the Snow Badgers 98-85 for the Golden Eagles' 11th consecutive victory of the season Friday night.

The win, based on the second half shooting of David Anderson and Larkay Shepard moved CSI to St. George tonight where they will meet the Dixie Rebels.

"The Eagles had their hands full throughout the first 27 minutes of the game, but then controlled the scoring midway through the second half to pull into their double-digit lead and win."

"It's a tough place to play. We've never had it easy here," said CSI Coach Fred Trenkle. "Snow played very well tonight. This is the kind of win that can win you a conference championship."

Anderson hit three 3-pointers, among his 19 second half points and had eight straight from the foul line. CSI took the lead for good on Shepard's turnaround jumper from the high post to make it 69-68. Over the next 1:31 the Eagles got four points from Nate Jackson, two from Tony Harris and two from Anderson to push ahead 75-68.

Freshman's spree helps CSI women defeat Snow

The Times-News

EPHRAIM, Utah — Freshman Tammy Clark's nine-point spree keyed a late first half break out and lifted the College of Southern Idaho women to a 75-57 win over Snow College Friday.

The Eagles trailed more than they led until Candace Lords started the break-away with a jumper at the seven minute mark. Over the next four minutes — with Clark hitting all nine of her points — CSI jumped into a 35-22 advantage.

The Eagles pushed that to 25 points early in the second half and then subsided.

4 scoring in double figures lift Declo over Glenns Ferry

The Times-News

DECLO — A strong first quarter, coupled with four players in double figures led Declo to a 76-62 victory over Glenns Ferry in a Canyon Conference contest Friday night.

Four of the five returning starters for the Hornets scored in double figures led by Kurt Steadman, who tallied 22 points. Ryan Payne had one of his best outings of the year for Declo scoring 19 points.

Declo, playing their first conference game of the season, saw Glenns Ferry make a comeback in the third quarter, but the Hornets were able to hold off the Pilot comeback.

Cy Farris had 16 for the Pilots, 0-3 in the conference.

Pocatello 55, Burley 50

POCATELLO — The Burley Bobcats found the road rough dropping their first game of the season 55-50 in a Region III contest at the Pocatello gym Friday night.

While the Bobcats were playing about even with the Indians in the first half, Pocatello surged ahead to a five-point advantage and kept that to the end of the contest.

Burley had a chance to come close to the Indians, but they missed some key free throws down the stretch. The Bobcats hit 13 free throws.

Justin Robinson led Burley with 13 points.

Kimberly 88, Buhl 86 2OT

KIMBERLY — In a marathon contest lasting about 2 1/2 hours, the Kimberly Bulldogs finally put away the Buhl Indians 88-86 in double overtime in a non-conference boys' basketball contest.

In regulation, both teams were dead even heading into the first overtime. In that period, the Bulldogs led 82-79, when Daren Garey banked in a three-pointer with nine seconds left to send the game into the second extra period.

In the second overtime, Chris Coe and Chris Glenn hit back-to-back buckets that increased Kimberly's lead to 84-84. After cutting the lead to two points, Buhl had a chance to win the game at the end, but Garey's shot missed the mark.

Kade Wilson led all scorers in the contest with 44 for Buhl. Glenn led the Bulldogs with 23 points.

NCAA accuses Minnesota of giving cash to recruits

The Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — University of Minnesota athletes and recruits received cash, loans, entertainment and other benefits in violation of NCAA rules, according to allegations announced Friday by the NCAA enforcement staff.

The long-awaited letter of official inquiry requested responses from the Big Ten school to 21 apparent violations, the most serious stemming from the activities of Luther Darville, a former university administrator who admitted giving university funds to athletes.

"This case appears to be major in nature," David Berst, the NCAA's assistant executive director for enforcement, said in the letter. "It appears reasonable to expect that the NCAA Committee on Infractions will find violations of NCAA legislation."

The infractions committee plans to give Minnesota a hearing during its next meeting Feb. 1-3 at Coronado, Calif.

"In my judgment, the death penalty is not a candidate at all," Minnesota Law School dean Robert Stein said during a news conference. The so-called "death penalty," under which the NCAA can shut down an athletic team for a year or more, can be invoked when a school is placed on probation twice within five years. Minnesota's basketball team was placed on probation in February 1988.

Stein said he hopes the NCAA views the latest allegations as a continuation of the 1988 case, which would soften possible penalties.

The names of suspected violators, including football and basketball coaches, were omitted from copies of the letter distributed by the university. Some dates also were omitted, but cases described in the letter date to 1982.

The letter arrived a day after Philadelphia Daily News columnist Paul Domovich reported that the investigation was the impetus for stepped-up efforts by Notre Dame's Lou Holtz to coach in the NFL. Holtz coached at Minnesota in 1984 and 1985 and was implicated by Lettroy Gardner, former Minnesota academic adviser, who said the coach once gave him $300 to give to a player.

Jerry Keeble, a former player, has said he received $500 from Gardner and another $500 from Holtz's secretary. Holtz denies

After slow start, Jazz playing sweet tune thanks to Malones

The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — Utah Jazz coach Jerry Sloan says there's no mystery to winning in the NBA. Just lead the roster with Malones.

The Jazz, shaking off a dismal 3-6 start, have won 11 of their last 12 games and are challenging San Antonio for the Midwest Division lead going into Saturday night's game here with the Indiana Pacers.

Guard Jeff Malone, who started as slowly as the team, has been a key in the turnaround. He's averaging 26.7 points in his last six games, including 43 in a 135-117 victory of Golden State on Tuesday and 29 in a 141-126 defeat over the Denver Nuggets on Thursday.

Sloan said he never doubted that the 6-foot-4 Malone, acquired from Washington in the off-season to provide perimeter scoring punch, would deliver.

"Not at all. We got Jeff Malone and we knew who he was when we got him," the coach said. "He's done everything we thought he could do."

Malone is vital to Sloan's scheme to loosen defensive pressure on Karl Malone, the Jazz's leading scorer (27.7 ppg), and All-Star guard John Stockton (16.2 points, 4.8 assists a game).

"Malone is a lot of pressure off when they go to double team," the coach said. "That makes a big difference in how we can play."

had trouble standing so much, I was used to moving around," he said. "There were times it was frustrating. But I'm getting into a better flow now."

Malone's outing against the Warriors wasn't unprecedented. He had 48 against the New Jersey Nets in 1987 and 47 in 1988 against the Phoenix Suns.

"There's going to be other nights like that," Jeff Malone vowed, but emphasized he's just one of several talented Jazz players.

"I'm getting a great night for me ... (but) the next night it might be Stockton or it might be Thurf (Haley). We have a lot of weapons on this team."

Malone led proudly points to the defensive prowess, and his statistics against some of the NBA's finest back him up. Opponents who have started head-to-head against him have made only 40.8 percent of their shots and are averaging just 14.4 points. The list includes the likes of Michael Jordan, Rolando Blackman, Clyde Drexler, and Joe Dumars.

Boston holds off furious Detroit comeback

BOSTON (AP) — Kevin McHale had 24 points and 11 rebounds, and the Boston Celtics withstood Detroit's furious comeback Friday night for a 108-100 victory over the Pistons.

Boston led 90-74 in the opening seconds of the fourth period, but the Pistons closed to 93-92 with an 18-3 run.

However, the Celtics regrouped after Isiah Thomas missed a 3-point bomb that would have put the Pistons ahead. Boston regained a six-point lead on a 3-pointer by Larry Bird and went on to beat the Pistons for the 18th time in 19 regular-season games at home since 1983.

Bird and Reggie Lewis finished with 16 points each for Boston, whose 18-4 record is second best in the NBA. The Pistons, who have lost six of their last seven games, were led by Thomas with 26 points and Joe Dumars with 18.

76ers vs. Heat 92

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Charles Barkley had 35 points and 15 rebounds and Hershey Hawkins made two crucial free throws with 30 seconds left as Philadelphia extended Miami's losing streak to six games.

Rick Mahorn's two free throws with 30 seconds to play gave Philadelphia a 93-89 lead, but Glen Rice tipped in a basket with 25 seconds remaining.

It was the Spurs' third consecutive road win, but their first at Cleveland since Jan. 2, 1983, ending a seven-game losing streak in the Coliseum.

The Cavaliers are 1-5 since Mookie Blaylock was lost for the season with a knee injury.

Bulls 128, Clippers 88

CHICAGO (AP) — Scottie Pippen scored 22 points and Michael Jordan 20 as Chicago rolled over Los Angeles for its eighth victory in 10 games.

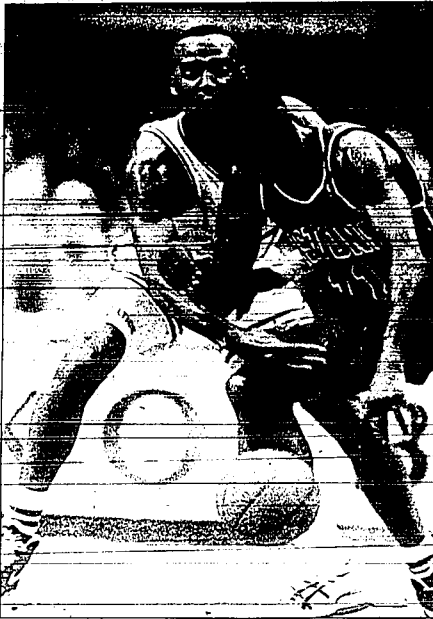

All 11 Bulls scored as they rolled to the largest victory margin of the season. Previously, Chicago beat Cleveland 120-85 on Dec. 1.

The loss was the seventh in nine road contests for the Clippers, who got 23 points from Jeff Martin and 17 from Danny Manning.

Bullets 106, Rockets 93

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Darrell Walker scored a season-high 22 points and added 10 assists and 10 rebounds for Washington against Houston.

A.J. English scored nine of his 21 points in the fourth quarter for the Bullets, who ended a three-game losing streak despite 13 points on 5-for-18 shooting by Bernard King.

Shoshone 92, Richfield 51

SHOSHONE — The Indians had six players score nine or more points to go 4-0 overall and win Shoshone's first Northwest Conference game.

Shoshone scoring leaders included Alex Ugaldie and Joe Messick (20 each), Jamie McClure (12) and Kevin Swainick (14). Indians Coach Larry Messick also noted Swainick's 11 rebounds and the defensive play of McClure.

Richfield got 26 points out of Robbie Appell. Brandon Swainston tallied 11 and Gene Lee 10.

Valley 60, Wendell 41

WENDELL — Blake Mitchell, Chuck Springer and Keith Yost scored a dozen points apiece to get Valley's Canyon conference schedule started with a victory.

"They're so tough mentally. Those kids are a bunch of winners," said Wendell Coach Allen Kelsey.

Jude Jasper led Wendell with 14 points. Valley scored 30 points in the first half.

Georgia improves to 6-1 by beating winless Miami

MIAMI (AP) — Litteral Green's 18 points helped No. 11 Georgia, which was outscored 20-4 at the free-throw line, to a 75-60 victory over winless Miami, Fla. on Friday night.

Georgia, bouncing back from an overtime Southeastern Conference loss at Vanderbilt on Tuesday, improved to 6-1. Miami, still seeking its first victory under new coach Leonard Hamilton, fell to 0-5. Georgia's worst start since 1939-40.

Green scored the first and last basket in a 17-2 run that gave Georgia a 24-13 lead with 12 minutes left in the first half. The Bulldogs scored on eight consecutive possessions during the spurt.

Baylor 86, Idaho 62

TOKYO (AP) — A 23-point effort by Dennis Lindsey led unbeaten Baylor over Idaho 86-62 Friday in the Daiva Ball tournament.

A pair of 3-pointers by Melvin Hunt and another by Willie Sublet got Baylor off to a 16-4 lead in the first five minutes, and the Bears held the lead through the first half.

Idaho took the lead for the first time, 42-41, three minutes into the second half on Calvin Ward's 3-pointer, but Baylor pulled away five minutes later.

Twin Falls loses to Centennial to drop 2nd home loss in a row

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Bruins suffered their second home loss in a row Friday night dropping a contest to Centennial 72-63 in boys' basketball action.

In the contest, the Patriots built a lead up to 19 points in the contest but the Bruins battled back and cut the advantage to five points and had the ball, but couldn't cut the lead to less than five.

Blake Kondracki led the Bruins while another 13-point performance, Steve Black also added 11 for Twin Falls.

Colby Knudsen had 15 to lead Raft River.

Castleford 38 — The Filter Wildcats outscored the Castleford Wolves 27-5 in the first quarter and routed the home club 67-38 in a non-conference contest Friday night.

Kirk Lincoln had all scorers with 25 for Filter.

RAFT RIVER — The Raft River Trojans took a 55-50 road victory Friday night over Rockland in a non-conference boys' basketball contest.

The game changed in the third quarter, the Trojans got in foul trouble and were outscored 12-4 by the Bulldogs, but were fortunate enough to win it at the end.

Girls Results

Bull 48; Wood River 17

BUILL — On the eve of playing their biggest contest of the year, the Bull Indians notched their first conference win of the season 48-17 in the conference opener for both teams in girls' basketball Friday night.

Bull actually had enough points midway through the second quarter to win the contest as they shut out the Wolverines in the first quarter and allowed them only four points in the second period and three in the final stanza.

Lynette Staehlecker led the Indians, scoring 10 points while playing only one quarter. Friday night's score: Bull 48-17. Wood River 17-17.

Eagles

"The Eagles had their biggest trouble in the first half when they lost their lead at 10-4 and quickly fell behind by 21-11. After that, they struggled to stay close, missing several free throws and a number of inside shots."

"You can't win if you won't compete," said Trenkle at halftime. He delivered a fiery halftime blast, but Snow remained just as intense, and managed to keep the lead until Shepard's shots.

Anderson tallied 33 points, Harris 21 and Shepard 18.

"I have always had great respect for this individual (Gardner) and thought he'd be a fine job with our athletics within the academic program. It is true that on three different occasions, I loaned him money for his personal needs," Holtz said.

"As a matter of fact, I even made him a loan upon his request after I was at the University of Notre Dame. I made these loans by writing three separate checks. I have the canceled checks, as well as thank-you letters from the individual."

"Why he said that one of the checks was to be given to athletes, I do not know," Holtz said.

"In my 22 years of being a head football coach I have never been accused nor have I been guilty of violating NCAA rules," Holtz said. "I have always conducted my program both within the letter and the spirit of the NCAA rules. I'm looking forward to meeting with the NCAA in February to let them see that I am not the person they think I am."

John Heister, Notre Dame sports information director, said Friday that Holtz would return to Notre Dame next season.

Cowboys coach faces biggest game in 2 years

The Associated Press

It seems like forever since the Dallas Cowboys played an important game in December. It was only five years ago. Now comes another one that Jimmy Johnson is calling the most important the Cowboys have played in his two seasons as their coach. He's not overstating it.

If Dallas beats Phoenix at Texas Stadium Sunday, it evens its record at 7-7 and puts itself in the middle of the race for the final two NFC wild-card playoff spots, a remarkable turnaround from last season's 1-15.

"We have an outside shot if we don't win, but we don't want to get caught up in all the different scenarios," says Johnson, who had some big late-season games in college but never in the pros.

Phoenix, which beat Dallas 20-3 in October, comes with three straight wins and a 5-8 record. In the new, watered-down format, it still gives it an outside chance at the playoffs. In fact, while all three NFC divisions have been clinched and Washington could wrap up a wild-card spot this week, only Atlanta in the AFC has been "eliminated" officially.

The Cowboys are coming off their off-week following three straight wins - against the Rams, Redskins and Saints.

The Cards, on the other hand, have beaten the Patriots, Colts and Falcons - not exactly top-flight teams. The defense has done the bulk of the work, with Marcus Turner scoring twice.

Still, Dallas hasn't defeated Phoenix since 1988 and hasn't beaten the Cardinals in Texas Stadium since 1987.

"We played as poorly as what I've seen in our first game against them," Johnson says. "That game was a major disappointment. We underestimated the talent Phoenix has."

Two of the weekend's more important games are Saturday.

One puts Buffalo at the Meadowlands against the Giants in a matchup of two teams with 11-2 records.

In the other, Washington could wrap up its wild-card spot in New York, which is only 11 straight and is 1-12 on the season.

In other Sunday games, Atlanta is at Cleveland; Houston at Kansas City; Indianapolis at the New York Jets; Minnesota at Tampa Bay; Pittsburgh at New Orleans; Seattle at Miami; and San Diego at Denver and Chicago at Detroit.

The Monday night game pits San Francisco against the Los Angeles Rams in Anaheim.

Houston (7-6) at Kansas City (9-4) Cincinnati (7-6) at Raiders (9-4)

Complimentary games that will have a major effect on the AFC Central and West races.

Houston was stomped 34-0 by the Chiefs last season and Warren Moon got into a fight with Derrick Thomas, an incident that still rankles Houston. But more important is the division race, where the Oilers, Bengals and Steelers are all 7-6.

In the West, meanwhile, Kansas City can win the division by winning its Houston (7-6) at San Diego and Chicago after this one. That's because the Chiefs swept the Raiders, who finish at Minnesota and at home with San Diego.

And both the Chiefs and Raiders can clinch a wild-card playoff spot with a victory this week.

Strangely enough, the Houston-Kansas City game is a quarterback duel. Warren Moon, yes, but Steve Deberg? Deberg has just three interceptions all season and has shed his reputation as a quarterback just good enough to toss.

"That's the way he prepares," says coach Marty Schottenheimer.

The Bengals have a problem going into the Coliseum - Boomer Esiason has a groin injury and may not play. If he doesn't, Erik Wilhelm, who has in common that he's left-handed will start.

Pro football

Their other problem is the league's 26th rated defense, 23rd against the run, which is what Marcus Allen and Bo Jackson do best.

Green Bay (6-7) at Philadelphia (7-6)

What's interesting here is that if the Packers win, they tie the Eagles for a playoff spot and gain a head-to-head tiebreaker.

It's probably not likely, not with Anthony Dilweg at quarterback facing Reggie White and his friends. Moreover, this is one of those weeks the up-and-down Eagles should be up after losses in Buffalo and Miami that both could have been wins.

Unless Randall Cunningham didn't practice Monday or Tuesday because he has a sore knee (he's human?), he'll probably play but if he doesn't, the Packers get to see their old friend Jim McMahon.

San Francisco (12-1) at Los Angeles Rams (5-8) (Monday night)

Revenge time in a series where the home team is at a disadvantage. The Rams have beaten the 49ers in four of the last six regular-season games at Candlestick, including the 28-17 decision three weeks ago. The 49ers have won nine of the last 10 in Anaheim and their last-17 on the road and the revenge factor should avoid any letdown here.

In fact, Los Angeles seems ready to avoid any letdown here. The 49ers are just the second time in John Robinson's nine-year tenure. Robinson now says he may experiment with Marcus Dupree, who has carried just six times since being activated Nov. 11.

Pittsburgh (7-6) at New Orleans (6-7)

This could be a playoff elimination game for both teams.

The Steelers are in that three-way tie at the top of the AFC Central, but are at a disadvantage in tiebreakers with Houston and Cincinnati. The Saints skayed alive in the muddled NFL wild-card picture by beating the Rams last week and Gill Fenerty because the latest in a line of successful New Orleans running backs.

This is as close to a homecoming as you can get for Barry Brainerd, although his hometown of Alexandria isn't exactly on top of New Orleans. Pittsburgh continues its intriguing start - the Steelers have failed to score a touchdown in six of their 13 games but have averaged 30 points a game in the last three.

Seattle (7-6) at Miami (10-3)

The Seahawks have snuck up on everyone after an 0-3 start and are right in the middle of the AFC playoff race. But it hasn't been easy - they've won four of five games; the first four of those games decided on the last play of the game; last week's 20-14 win over Green Bay was clinched when a Packers pass fell incomplete in the end zone with 1:08 left.

Miami, which has already clinched a wild-card berth, remains in the running for the AFC East no matter what Buffalo does because it beat the Bills in their first meeting and would hold the tiebreaker if it wins next week. That means the Dolphins can win the division by winning its last three games.

Chicago (10-3) at Detroit (4-9)

Mike Ditka said he wasn't upset at the Bears' 10-9 loss in Washington last week, then stormed out of a news conference Monday. In fact, that loss probably cost the Bears a wild-card spot in the playoffs, forcing them into the wild-card round.

This may not be easy. The Lions would have beaten the Bears in overtime at Soldier Field two weeks ago had not Eddie Murray missed a 35-yard field goal into the wind. Moreover, as the Raiders found out Monday night, Barry Sanders can give anyone fits.

Minnesota (6-7) at Tampa Bay (5-8)

The last time the Vikings won outdoors was in Tampa a year ago. Otherwise, they've lost eight straight outdoor games and 12 of their last Berriek Fenner and the Seattle Seahawks have snuck up on everyone and are right in the middle of the AFC playoff race.

13, including a 23-15 decision to the Giants last week that broke a five-game winning streak.

They probably can't afford another slip if they want to make the playoffs and Wade Wilson may soon be back at quarterback for Rich Gannon.

"He'll be standing at my side," says Jerry Burns.

As for the Bucs, they remain in nominal contention as they play their first game under Richard Williamson, the interim coach who replaced the fired Ray Perkins.

Atlanta (3-10) at Cleveland (2-11) The Falcons are the only team eliminated in the NFC, have lost 17 straight on the road; have backup Scott Camell, who threw three interceptions last week, at quarterback - and are favored, which tells you far the Seahawks have snuck up on everyone after an 0-3 start and are right in the middle of the AFC playoff race.

How far? They've allowed an average of 40 points a game in the four they've played since Jim Shofner succeeded Bud Carson at Denver (3-10).

Speaking of the mighty falling ... The Broncos, the AFC Super Bowl representatives three of the last four years, are one of just five teams already eliminated from the playoffs, although they've been competitive every week. Now John Elway is trying to rally the troops for the last three meaningless games.

You should play like a professional and go out and do the best you can do," he says.

The Chargers remain in the playoff picture, though a loss here would just about kill them. Nonetheless, they can at least say they showed progress.

Indianapolis (5-8) at New York Jets (4-9)

The Colts beat the Jets 17-14 in the Hoop Dome and called a mini-controversy at the Meadowlands, where Bruce Coslet has been critical of No. 1 draft choice Blair Thomas. The question? Whether Thomas will play hurt.

The Colts' No. 1 pick is the top overall, Jeff George, who not surprisingly has been inconsistent - he was good in three straight; not-so-good in losses to Phoenix and Buffalo. In fact, Bruce Smith sacked him four times last week.

Bills (11-2) at Giants (11-2)

The Buffalo Bills offense and the New York Giants defense will be out to prove a point today.

The visiting Bills have scored the most points in the National Football League this season (373, an average of 28.7 per game), and the Giants have allowed the fewest (163, a 12.5 average).

On the other side of the coin, Buffalo is fourth in the American Conference in points allowed (207), while the Giants are eighth in the National Conference in points scored (285).

The Giants (11-2) have clinched the NFC East, while Buffalo, assured of a playoff spot, has the AFC's best record (11-2) and owns a one-game lead over Miami in the AFC East.

Redskins (8-5) at Patriots (1-12) For a team in contention for a playoff spot, as Washington is, the Patriots would seem to be the perfect opponent. It is only the fourth meeting between the teams, with New England's only victory coming in 1972.

Nevada up against Georgia Southern's home-field mystique

STATESBORO, Ga. (AP) - One month into the 1990 season there was little reason to expect Georgia Southern to continue its domination of NCAA Division I-AA football, which had seen the Eagles reach the championship game four times in five years.

Southern, operating under new coach Tim Stowers after the retirement of Erik Russell, lost three of its first four games, including two to I-AA opposition.

But the Eagles (11-3) need 10 victories in a row to reach Saturday's national championship game again, against Nevada (13-1).

There was strong motivation for the Eagles. They didn't want to see two other teams vying for the title on their home field.

Southern hopes its Paulson Stadium mystique will continue. The Eagles have a 49-2 record in the 18,000-seat stadium, including a I-AA record 38 victories in a row during one stretch and a current 14-0 mark in playoff competition.

"It would make you feel bad knowing an opposing team was going to be in your dressing room," fullback Lester Efford said. "We don't want to be in the stands while someone else plays in our house. It just wouldn't be right."

"We've had great players and a legendary coach (Russell) walk those sidelines," Stowers said. "Just the fact that there have been those precedents might make those guys in blue jerseys play a little harder."

The mystique is those 11 players trying to carry on the tradition.

The task of extending the home field playoff streak won't be easy.

Nevada has reached the title game for the first time by surviving pressure situations, beating Furman 42-35 in the quarter-finals and Big Sky Conference foe Boise State 59-52 in the semifinals, with both games going three overtimes.

Nevada and Southern have met only once, the Eagles winning 48-38 in the 1986 semifinals at Reno.

Michigan State coach wants help for All-American against UNLV

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) - Michigan State coach Jud Heathcote is trying to find some help for Steve Smith. He knows a one-man gang will have little chance when the Spartans play No. 1 Nevada-Las Vegas on Saturday at The Palace.

Michigan State (3-2) has slipped from fourth in the preseason poll to No. 21, mainly because teammates like Matt Steigenga and Mark Montgomery haven't always come through when the All-American Smith needed them.

As a result, the Spartans lost at Nebraska and at Bowling Green. They almost let one slip away at Cincinnati on Thursday night. The Bearcats were beating Michigan State 40-25 after the first 20 minutes.

"At halftime (assistant coach) Tom Izzo said I had to score more," Smith said.

He did. Smith scored 22 of his 34 points in the second half, including a controversial basket as time expired, giving the Spartans a 65-63 victory.

"Steve has a lot of pressure on him to carry the scoring load, and we're not doing anything to disprove that in terms of the way the rest of the players are playing," Heathcote said. "We depend on Steve so much for offensive production that he's becoming more and more of a marked man for the opposition."

"I think what Steve has to do is carry the offense, even if he's not the main scorer - I can see the time coming where teams are going to box-and-one or going to double-team Steve every time he gets the ball."

Big things were expected of the Spartans because they had almost everyone returning from last season, when they won the Big Ten championship. But Ken Redfield was a good rebounder and Kirk Manns was an effective outside shooter and they've been difficult to replace.

Maryland coach ready for a balanced

Louisiana Tech in Independence Bowl

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) - Louisiana Tech has been back in Division I football for only two seasons, but that is enough time for Maryland coach John Krivak to know the potential of the Tech Terriers.

They will face Tech Saturday's Independence Bowl.

"Tech has great balance on offense and people who can execute it," Krivak said. "They are explosive and are two-deep at tailback ... There are not many one-back sets with two quality rushers like that."

The Bulldogs are ranked 10th in the nation with 450 yards total offense per game - 212 rushing and 238 passing. Two of their running backs - Michael Richardson and Jason Davis - combined for 2,043 rushing yards.

Louisiana Tech coach Joe Ryskind said Tech's reputation for Division I play in 1989, was concerned about the Bulldogs rushing game at the beginning of the season.

Tailback Derrick Douglas (school record 1,232 yards rushing in 1989) had graduated and Richardson was a split end.

"What was supposed to be a weakness turned into a strong point for us," Peace said. "Richardson and Davis each responded well. We learned early that you have to be able to run to survive in Division I football."

Richardson has 1,114 yards rushing and 13 touchdowns, while Davis has 929 yards and eight TDs. But the Bulldogs also have been able to throw the ball.

Quarterback Gene Johnson has completed 165 of 297 passes for 2,129 yards and 13 touchdowns. Backup quarterback (23 receptions) for 994 yards and five touchdowns) and Eddie Brown (50 for 799 and six TDs) are the mainstays.

"We don't have that balance on offense that Tech has," Krivak said. "We haven't been able to get that (production) from our running backs."

Maryland gets 73 percent of its offense from a passing game directed by Scott Zolok, who has 1,116 for 2,690 yards and 10 touchdowns. Zolok has led the Terriers to their first winning record since 1985 against a schedule that included six Top 25 opponents.

"When Scott's good, we are good," Krivak said. "But when he is not so good, we struggle a little."

Louisiana Tech has a five-game winning streak in which it has scored 164 points. The Bulldogs, who also were Division I from 1975 to 1981, played in the 1977 and 1978 Independence Bowls.

Maryland was named in 11 bowl games from 1973-85. The Terriers, however, are playing their first postseason game since the 1985 Cherry Bowl (a 35-18 victory over Syracuse) and 18th overall.

Maryland is 6-5, the Bulldogs 8-3.

Cowboys coach faces biggest game in 2 years

The Associated Press

It seems like forever since the Dallas Cowboys played an important game in December. It was only five years ago. Now comes another one that Jimmy Johnson is calling the most important the Cowboys have played in his two seasons as their coach. He's not overstating it.

If Dallas beats Phoenix at Texas Stadium Sunday, it events its record at 7-7 and puts itself in the middle of the race for the final two NFC wild-card playoff spots, a remarkable turnaround from last season's 1-15.

"We have an outside shot if we don't win, but we don't want to get caught in all the different second big," says Johnson, who had some big late-season games in college but never in the pros.

Phoenix, which beat Dallas 20-3 in October, comes with three straight wins and a 5-8 record, which in the new playoff format still gives it an outside chance at the playoffs. In fact, while all three NFC divisions have been clinched and Washington could wrap up a wild-card spot this week, only Atlanta in the NFC has been eliminated officially.

The Cowboys are coming off their off-week following three straight wins against the Rams, Redskins and Saints.

The Cards, on the other hand, have beaten the Patriots, Colts and Falcons — not exactly top-drawer teams. The defense has been the best to work, with Marcus Turner scoring twice.

Still, Dallas hasn't defeated Phoenix since 1988 and hasn't beaten the Cardinals in Texas Stadium since 1987.

"We're playing as poorly as what I've seen in our first game against them," Johnson says. "That game was a major disappointment. We underestimated the talent Phoenix has."

Two of the weekend's more important games are at the Meadowlands against the Giants in a matchup of two teams with 11-2 records.

In the other, Washington could wrap up its wild-card spot in New England, which has lost 11 straight and is 1-12 on the season.

Sunday's action in Atlanta is at Cleveland; Houston at Kansas City; Indianapolis at the New York Jets; Minnesota at Tampa Bay; Pittsburgh at New Orleans; Seattle at Miami; Green Bay at Philadelphia; Cincinnati at the Los Angeles Rams.

The Monday night game pits San Francisco against the Los Angeles Rams in Anaheim.

Houston (7-6) at Kansas City (9-4) Cincinnati (7-6) at Raiders (9-4) — Complete 1990 games that will have a major effect on the AFC Central and West races.

Houston was stomped 34-0 by the Chiefs last season and Warren Moon got into a fight with Derrick Thomas, an incident that still ranks Houston. But more important is the division race between the Bengals and Steelers are all 7-6.

Revenge time in a series where the home team is at a disadvantage.

The Rams have beaten the 49ers in four of the last six regular-season games at Candlestick, including the 28-17 decision three weeks ago that left San Francisco's only loss. But the 49ers have won nine of the last 10 in Anaheim and their last 17 on the road and the revenge factor should avoid any letdown here.

In fact, Los Angeles seems ready to concede missing the playoffs for just the second time in John Robinson's nine-year tenure. Robinson now says he may experiment with Marcus Dupree, who has carried just six times since being activated Nov. 11.

Pittsburgh (7-6) at New Orleans (7-6)

This could be a playoff elimination game for both teams.

The Steelers are in at three-way tie at the top of the AFC Central, but are at a disadvantage in tiebreakers with Houston and Cincinnati.

The Saints stayed alive in the muddled NFC South thanks to the help of the Rams last week and Gill Fenerty because the latest in a line of successful New Orleans running backs.

This is as close to a homecoming as there can be for Bubby Brister, although his hometown of Alexandria, La., is not in the city.

Pittsburgh continues its intriguing story — the Steelers have failed to score a touchdown in six of their 13 games but have averaged 30 points a game in the seven others.

Seattle (7-6) at Miami (10-3)

The Seahawks have picked up an every-down 0-2 start but are right in the middle of the AFC playoff race. But it hasn't been easy — they've won four of five games, the first four of those games decided on the last play of the game; last week a 20-17 win over Green Bay was complete in the end zone with 1:08 left.

NCR rejects AT&T tender offer Thiokol completes final test of rocket motor

NEW YORK (AP) — Directors of NCR Corp. unanimously rejected American Telephone & Telegraph Co.'s $50-a-share cash tender offer for the computer maker, NCR said Friday.

"Clearly, AT&T is attempting, for its own purposes, to take advantage of NCR's artificially inflated and temporarily depressed stock price," NCR Chairman Charles E. Wiley Jr. said in a statement.

"We cannot and will not permit them to seize for themselves the enormous values that are building steadily within NCR," Exley said. "Having just said no to this grossly inadequate offer, we are focused on implementing the business strategy that will continue to build very real and very significant value for NCR shareholders, customers and employees."

NCR's board met Thursday in New York, the company said. It was the board's first meeting since AT&T launched the $6.1 billion tender offer Dec. 5.

AT&T said it was disappointed by NCR's rejection. "Our $50-per-share price is a full, fair offer, as we believe NCR shareholders, if given the opportunity to decide, would agree," the phone company said in a statement.

The statement said AT&T is examining its options and "is determined to conclude the merger with NCR. We will continue to prefer to reach a negotiated agreement."

Industry analysts say the most likely next step for AT&T would be to launch a proxy battle to try to unseat NCR's directors. Exley has said he would be willing to enter into negotiations with AT&T if it raised its offer to $125 a share, or a total of about $8.5 billion. AT&T rejected the higher price as "outrageous and totally unjustified."

Analysts said they believe Exley is exploring several options to fight the takeover bid, which he has called an attempt by AT&T to rescue its own unprofitable computer line.

"I think Exley's trying to find somebody who will bail him out of this predicament without taking control of the company," said John Jones of Montgomery Securities Inc. in San Francisco.

Jones said Exley may seek another rejection.

company that would buy a major stake in NCR but allow the company to pursue its own course.

Exley has said he has been in contact with other companies that might be interested in some sort of combination with NCR, but he also said he is not interested in a "white knight," or another merger partner that would save NCR from the AT&T bid.

NCR stock was down $1.62 to $88.50 a share by late morning today on the New York Stock Exchange. AT&T shares fell 50 cents to $30.50.

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — A solid-fuel rocket motor designed for German and Swedish space experiments has successfully completed its third and final qualification test, Thiokol Corp. officials say.

The 30-foot-long Castor IVB motor, loaded with 21,982 pounds of propellant, was test-fired Wednesday at the Redstone Arsenal in Alabama. The other two qualification tests were in June and September.

The motor, which will be used with experiments requiring zero or extremely low gravity, now will go into production. Thiokol is working under an $11.4-million contract to deliver 10 of the Castor IVB motors to the German-Swedish Maxus program.

The Utah-based company will deliver the initial single-stage motor at the end of this month, Wendy Dimond, spokeswoman at Thiokol's Huntsville Division, Huntsville, Ala., said Thursday.

The first Maxus launch is scheduled for April 1991 from Sweden, Dimond said. The rocket will provide commercial and government researchers with up to 15 minutes of microgravity time.

Officers threaten suits over allegations

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS— One of three police officers who were put on paid leave after a Dec. 7 incident has threatened a lawsuit against the city.

Officer Chuck Dudley said Friday that some of the allegations made against himself and two other officers "have not been truthful."

A lawyer for a second officer also threatened lawsuits on Friday in connection with allegedly false information.

Dudley and officer Dan Chatterton remained on paid administrative leave Friday, but the third officer, Mike Covington, had returned to patrol duties.

The case is in the hands of the state attorney general's office, which will decide whether to file criminal charges in connection with the early morning traffic stop, according to James Whitehead, chief of the Idaho Bureau of Investigation, which investigated the case.

The three off-duty officers, who earlier had attended a police department Christmas party, stopped Denny Marshall, 16, of Twin Falls in the early morning hours of Dec. 7.

Marshall said his initial contact was with a car containing two of the officers. He said he had cut off the private, unmarked car in traffic in retaliation for being cut off by the car moments before. He did not know the occupants were police officers, he said.

He said one of the out-of-uniform officers pulled him from the car after he stopped at a red light. At some point a third officer, also in civilian clothes, arrived.

"They didn't identify themselves," Marshall said. "They didn't show me a badge, did not say they were police."

Marshall said that when the man holding him slipped, Marshall got back into his car and locked the door.

Once Marshall was back in his car, one of the officers pointed a gun at him, prompting Marshall to drive away, he said.

While pulling away from the curb, Marshall said, he bumped one of the officers with the front fender of his car.

Marshall drove home and was met there by uniformed officers who arrested him, handcuffed him and took him to the police station, Marshall said.

There, he was questioned by an officer from the Idaho Bureau of Investigation and

Federal prison awaits 2 Twin Falls women

BOISE— Two Twin Falls women were sentenced to federal prison this week for drug trafficking.

Christina Ann Salinas, 28, and Cindy Zain, 32, were each convicted in September of conspiracy to distribute cocaine and possession of cocaine with intent to distribute.

U.S. District Judge Harold Ryan sentenced Salinas Thursday to 151 months in prison for each of the two counts to be served concurrently. Salinas must also pay a special assessment of $100, and must serve five years of probation and 250 hours of community service after being released.

On Friday, Zain learned she will be joining Salinas in prison when Ryan sentenced her to 63 months for her two counts, also to be served concurrently. Zain will serve four years probation and 250 hours of community service after her release.

Twin Falls woman hopes to get her 3rd liver transplant

OMAHA, Neb.— Treacie O'Gorman, the 21-year-old Twin Falls woman who has undergone two liver transplants, is currently an outpatient at the University of Nebraska Medical Center hoping for a third.

O'Gorman's life seemingly returned to normal last year after her second transplant, in March, 1989, was an initial success.

But problems with that liver forced her to return to Omaha at the end of October of this year to wait for yet another transplant, said Mary Zgoda, public information official at the medical center.

O'Gorman is in stable condition and spends part of her days shopping around the city, always with a pager ready to beep at the arrival of a suitable liver, Zgoda said.

Idaho job growth continues; a recession shouldn't be felt

TWIN FALLS— Idaho is perhaps the only state in the nation with faster job growth in manufacturing than in the service sector.

That is one reason the Idaho economy should weather a national recession, even though growth rates may slow a bit, according to First Security Bank economist Kelly Matthews.

In a recent report, Matthews said the state's economy ranks among the best in the nation.

A key part of Idaho's strength is its job creation, especially in nonagricultural jobs, Matthews said.

The state had 10,200 more non-agricultural jobs this October than in October 1989.

Although construction has been in high gear this year, lumber and silver prices are slumping, Matthews said. And some agricultural prices have slumped—cattle prices are up, but lamb is down, potatoes are strong, but wheat has tumbled.

Community development applications being reviewed

BOISE— Applications for community development grants from 22 rural communities, including six in the Magic Valley, have passed preliminary screening and will be reviewed by the Economic Development Council.

The 22 grant applications seek a total of $4.7 million, and were pared down from 38 pre-applications asking for $9.2 million.

The grants will be announced next spring.

Not all the applications which survived this week's screening will receive funding. Only about $4 million is available.

Community development block funds come from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development. Grant proposals approved for full application include:

- Albion: $340,000 for a water system.
- Bellevue: $375,000 for sewer hookups.
- Cassida: $185,550 for a fire station and equipment.
- Oakley: $148,986 for a new well and water system.
- Twin Falls: $366,416 for sewer and water lines and a road to the labor camp.

Twin Falls has 2nd-highest accident rate in state

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS— Twin Falls has a higher traffic accident rate than any other major city in Idaho, and police plan to tackle the problem with a new accident reduction team to be officially christened by the City Council Monday.

The state recently gave the Twin Falls police department—$55,340—to fund a three-month traffic reduction team provided the city would chip in as well, Cpl. Dave Heidemann said.

The grant money, which came from the Office of Highway Safety of the Idaho Transportation Department, is intended to pay the salaries of two patrol officers. The city is required to chip in a patrol vehicle and a supervisor, said Heidemann, who will become the unit's supervisor.

"Our ultimate objective is to reduce fatal and injury accidents by 15 percent," Heidemann said.

The City Council has already approved and budgeted for the team and will officially accept the grant Monday, City Manager Tom Courtney said.

Judging by accident figures compiled by the state transportation department, Twin Falls needs help in making the streets safer for motorists.

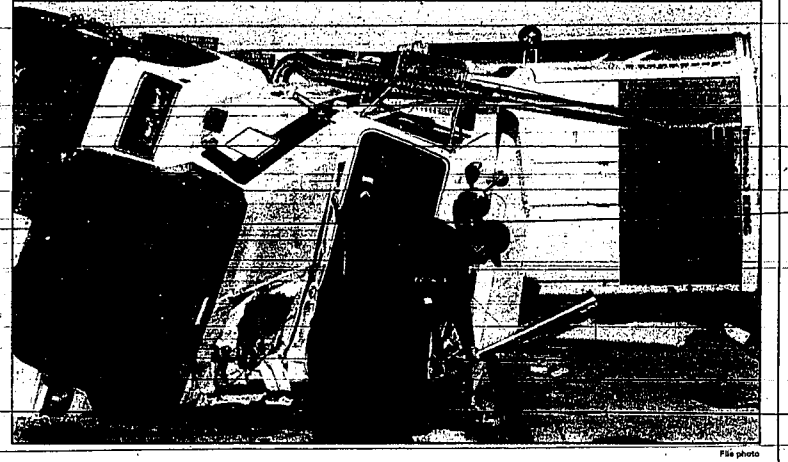

There were 10 fatal and injury accidents in Twin Falls last year, an average of 8.9 per 1,000 residents. That rate is the highest of any Idaho city with a population of 10,000 or more and second-highest of any city in the state.

What's worse, the numbers are increasing. Twin Falls had 77 injury accidents per 1,000 people in 1988, and 48 in 1987.

Twin Falls' emergence as a "mall city" that draws shoppers from throughout the Magic Valley has contributed to the high accident rate here, Heidemann said.

A recent accident on Blue Lakes Boulevard North provides an example.

"The four-car mishap snarled traffic on

A traffic reduction team would work to reduce the number of fatal and injury accidents in Twin Falls.

the city's main thoroughfare, and none of the drivers was hurt.

"They all meet here to have their accidents," Heidemann said.

The accident reduction team will focus on public education and coordinate with city engineers to work on accident hot spots, he said.

Three intersections that need immediate attention are East Five Points, where Kimberly Road, Main Avenue and Blue Lakes Boulevard meet; North Five Points, where Shoshone Street, Addison Avenue and Blue Lakes Boulevard meet, and the intersection of Falls Avenue and Blue Lakes Boulevard, Heidemann said.

The accident reduction team will use experienced officers already working for the police department, and new officers will be hired to replace them, he said.

The department had a traffic division until budget cuts forced it to be disbanded in 1985, Heidemann said. Since then necessary training and equipment for exper-traffic enforcement has been allowed to lapse, he said.

The new team will change all that, and some officers have already been given special training on how to handle accident reports, determine impact speeds and other things essential to good traffic enforcement, Heidemann said.

And the traffic officers will be very visible.

Officials applaud IACI switch on option taxes

By Phil Sahn
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS— Twin Falls Mayor Tom Condie had one word to describe how he viewed the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry dropping its opposition to the local option tax: "Great."

"They're taking a real positive view in that companies need another source of revenue. It is my understanding they have opposed this for a number of years," Condie said Friday.

IACI, a trade association whose members include the biggest businesses in Idaho, announced Thursday it was dropping opposition to the tax.

The group cited limits on cities' and counties' abilities to raise needed revenues through property, income and sales taxes as the reason for changing its position on the issue.

Voters in cities or counties would have to approve the tax.

Condie was optimistic that IACI's new stance on local option taxes might give cities an easier road in getting a bill through the Legislature.

With what he called a "changing of the guard" in the Idaho Senate, chances might also improve for getting a bill passed, Condie said.

In past Legislatures, the Idaho House has approved a local option tax but the measure has not gotten out of the Senate.

"I think it has a much better chance of being passed this year," Condie said.

Twin Falls County Commissioner Marvin Hempleman was less enthusiastic but said he supports the drive to get the Legislature to give cities and counties a chance to let citizens vote on the issue.

"We would still support it as long as we (counties) were included," Hempleman said. But the commissioner has said he is not sure people would vote to tax themselves.

"I'm not sure we could get things like that, but we need the opportunity," he said.

The local option tax could be added to sales and money from it could go directly back to the cities where the sales are made.

Twin Falls officials have said the local tax could save enough money that property taxes would be lowered.

"City officials have talked about 1-cent local tax.

The current sales tax distribution does not return as much money in taxes to Twin Falls as the city produces," Condie has said in the past. But with the local tax, the state could keep the current distribution formula and cities like Twin Falls, that are major trade centers, could get more of the benefits of their sales, he said.

Condie wants a local option tax tied to property tax reductions.

Twin Falls City Manager Tom Courtney said the commerce and industry association's change of heart indicates that people recognize cities and counties need different funding sources to keep up with growth. It also shows that the group recognizes people want to get away from property taxes.

State law caps property taxes at 5 percent of the assessed property value and caps them at a 1 percent increase each year.

The Association of Idaho Cities will try to get a local option tax bill through the Legislature in the upcoming session.

Grant may let Bliss students take class while not in class

By Suzanne Huxbold
Times-News correspondent

BLISS— A grant from the state Education Department may enable Bliss Schools to teach students via satellite soon, and offer classes currently unavailable.

Ken Reed, coordinator of educational television for the Education Department, told Bliss Superintendent Wernell Anderson that the district has been awarded a grant for the installation of a satellite learning system.

The amount of the grant has not been disclosed to the district, but the cost of setting up the system will be more than $100,000.

Anderson assured the board that the district would not be out of step with more than one-quarter the total funding in matched funds for the project.

The final application for grant funds must be completed by Dec. 31. The school will receive details about the grant after that time.

Anderson said Bliss was considered for the grant because it met all the criteria. The Education Department had set for eligibility. The school is situated in a town of less than 2,500 people, and is a considerable distance from any city that offers an institution of higher learning or a population base of more than 15,000 people.

running each satellite class would be about $500, but said that would increase as more students became involved.

Anderson said the cost would be balanced by a fact that the district would not have to hire additional teachers to teach such diverse classes as advanced math, science and language. Two teachers or aides will be trained to monitor transmissions and supervise classes.

Anderson reported on his trip to the Northwest Accrediting Association conference in Las Vegas. He said the board some valuable specialties at the four-day event, including one that questioned the benefit of the advanced education has made in the past 100 years. He said the speaker pointed out that Bliss' 180-day school schedule originated in an agricultural society that needed its young to farm during the three-month summer.

He said this schedule is not viable in an urbanized society, and noted that Japan has a 210-day school year and Germany spends 200 days in school each year.

Anderson said it was also noted at the conference that in the past 10 years the federal budget for education has increased by only 15 percent, while Defense Department budget has increased by 126 percent. Interest on the deficit has increased 224 percent and Social Security by 196 percent.

Bellevue continues ban on subdivisions in city

Deborah Shinkus
Times-News correspondent

BELLEVUE— The City Council has extended a moratorium on new subdivisions in the city for an additional four months.

The moratorium, first issued in August, was granted at the request of the city Planning and Zoning Commission, which is writing a new subdivision ordinance for Bellevue.

According to Mike Zapponi, zoning commission member, the current subdivision ordinance does not provide enough direction or restrictions to make Bellevue the kind of community the residents want.

"Our old ordinance was basically just pretty loose," said Zapponi.

In addressing developer's responsibilities, street engineering, public access and densities, the new ordinance will be no more restrictive than any other city in the county, according to Zapponi.

"We've modified this after Ketchum's ordinance. Why reinvent the wheel?" he said.

The new ordinance will permit the council to set subdivision fees by resolution. Currently, no fees are charged developers—the city pays for all legal reviews, engineering reviews and all mailings.

Legally, however, the city cannot generate revenue from subdivision fees.

"The fees will be set up to cover our costs," Zapponi said.

There have been no requests for new subdivision development since the original moratorium went into effect.

The extension, approved at Thursday evening's council meeting, will enable the Planning and Zoning Commission and the City Council to hold public hearings and revise the draft ordinance accordingly.

In other business, the council reviewed a notice of claim against the state of Idaho for damages during a fire in late September at the Silver Dollar Bar.

The claim, filed by USF&G Insurance Co. of Boise, charges the state with negligence in putting out the fire which destroyed the building. All that remains be- low the wooden sign are a snow covered table and two chairs.

It states that the "fire was put out by (the) Bellevue Fire Department and it then rekindled with substantial additional damage to the building and contents."

The insurance company is seeking $370,000 for property damage and loss of

Ask permission before speaking, Wendell residents advised

By Terrell Williams
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL - City council members voted to reject a new ordinance to establish use of parliamentary procedure in the council's proceedings.

The council, instead, will have a council workshop with the mayor on Wednesday to work out disagreements on how meetings should be conducted.

Mayor George Benson read the proposed ordinance at the council meeting Thursday and recommended that it be adopted for the benefit of the city.

To establish rules of council procedure, the ordinance, in part, states that "no person shall be allowed to address the council while in session without permission of the presiding officer."

It also reads that "the presiding officer" can go so far as "directing the removal of persons causing disruptions."

Benson said this procedure is recommended by the Association of Idaho Cities and by the state attorney general's office.

"It's in these books," he said.

"These are the guidelines." In parliamentary procedure, people at meetings are more courteous and more dignified, Benson said.

"We've been very lax in asking for the floor," he said. "We've had too much conversation going on. People asking for permission to speak through the chair."

As a result, Benson said, there has been confusion and lack of order.

But Councilman Ron Finley said Benson has stopped council members from speaking at meetings without allowing them time for discussion. This happened three times at the last meeting, Finley charged.

"You only use the parliamentary procedure when it suits you," he said to Benson. "This isn't once in a while. It's every time you feel like speeding it up and getting it over with. You use parliamentary procedure to benefit yourself."

Benson said everyone has a right to speak without interruption and everyone will have a turn to speak. But they need ask permission from the presiding officer.

"That was the sole thing I was concerned about tonight," Benson said.

Councilman Dale Bunn said he is in favor of following procedures, but "this much is not necessary," he said.

Asking the mayor for permission to speak each time is too time-consuming, he said. "It adds down discussions," Bunn said.

Benson said the ordinance would eliminate interruptions and make the meetings speedier and more simple.

Councilman Jack Green said he would like to study the three-page ordinance before voting on it.

Benson said it already has been discussed in workshops.

Councilwoman Pat Goodhart said she is in favor of following parliamentary procedure and would like to see city officials start conducting their meetings in a more professional manner.

Personal matters should be discussed in workshops rather than at council meetings, she said.

"I would have to say I am very embarrassed sitting on the Wendell City Council and I would like to see a change," Goodhart said.

Benson said he only wants decorum and order at the meetings.

"I don't believe that's asking too much," he said. "If we don't like one another, that's immaterial. What we are here for is to conduct business for the people of Wendell."

The city's current ordinance, passed in 1969, states only that meetings will be held at a certain place and time and it sets the procedure for calling special meetings.

The proposed ordinance also details procedures for voting, calling roll, setting the meeting agenda for the order of business, passing ordinances and veto of ordinances by the mayor.

In other business, Steve Koehler asked if the city could help the local recycling program by providing a building for collection.

"We're looking for a way to get this program under a roof," he said.

Council members commended the program but said the city has no extra inside space. Since October, the school's PTA has collected 12 tons of plastic, aluminum, glass and newspapers, Koehler said. But collecting has been limited to the last Saturday of the month from 9 a.m. to noon. Although there is plenty of interest in the program, much more materials would be donated if people could deposit them at a permanent site, Koehler predicted.

Also, he said, the large cardboard boxes used to sort the recyclable goods do not work very well in wet weather.

Koehler said collection for the month of December has been cancelled due to the holidays but will be held again in January.

He said there was no immediate indication why the airplane crashed, because the crash-site was covered by snow.

Ernest's family reported him missing the night of Dec. 7, launching a weekend search.

"It was suspended Monday when officials said they had no new leads.

Heyburn council is considering $1 million bond issue for plant

By Lynda Booddy
Times-News correspondent

HEYBURN - The City Council is pondering a $1 million bond issue election for a new waste water treatment plant at the Jan. 9 meeting.

The Rexburg engineering company is responsible for the facility plan.

The plan, still in draft, will provide city water with a new sanitation facility.

The city is waiting for approval of the plan by Health and Welfare, Hurst said.

Ruth Davis has been named to succeed retiring city clerk, Ilu DeSpain.

Davis, the deputy city clerk, will assume her new duties Jan. 1. Mayor Harold Hurst said Davis, who has a 12-year tenure with the city, accepted the promotion Wednesday night.

The council also approved the recommendation to hire Lynda Daily of Heyburn, the deputy clerk.

divisive debate over what would have been the nation's most restrictive abortion law.

Madsen, a primary sponsor of the bill was vetoed by Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus, represented a traditional conservative southern Ada County district.

But with substantial financial backing from the Idaho Education Association, Scanlin claimed the seat.

Her victory along with the 248-vote victory of Sally Snodgrass over Sen. Republican Floor Leader Rod Stansbury, a state opponent of abortion, gave the Democrats the two additional seats they needed to pull even with the GOP in the Senate.

Recout widens Scanlin's margin
BOISE (AP) - A recount in the narrow victory of Democrat Cynthia Scanlin over freshman Republican state Sen. Roger Madsen has added one more vote to Scanlin's winning margin.

State and local election officials tabulated the ballots on Friday from Ada County's 18th District, adding two votes to Scanlin's total and just one to Madsen's.

The final tally in the race that was pivotal in placing the state Senate in the hands of Democrat Gov. Andrus and 4,365 for Madsen, a 69-vote margin.

The original vote count was interrupted by a computer breakdown in

Accident

"We'll be asking the media to help us out with public service announcements. We'll be going to civic groups and schools, trying to preach traffic safety," Heimdamm said.

He also hopes to re-implement the city's long-defunct highway and traffic safety commission, which brought together citizens and representatives from the Twin Falls School District, the highway district and the city engineering staff and police department to develop solutions to problem areas such as crosswalks near schools.

Most accidents could be avoided if drivers would simply slow down, Heimdamm said.

"Speed is without a doubt the biggest cause of accidents in the city," he said, noting that people frequently drive at or above the speed limit even when weather conditions tell them to slow down.

The large number of unpatrolled intersections in Twin Falls also contributes to the high accident rate, Heimdamm said.

The city's projected growth rate of 2 percent per year means the current 139 miles of city streets in Twin Falls are likely to increase over the next decade, Heimdamm said.

The accident reduction team will be a key factor in handling traffic problems that come with growth, he said.

"Come hell or high water, we're going to meet our goal," he said.

Jewish-Christian families adjust to holiday

BOISE (AP) — The 1984 holiday season was a bit disconcerting for Jennifer Stearns-Drake.

"It was a little weird," she says. "Coming downstairs and seeing a Christmas tree — I'd almost do a double take."

Jennifer, who was then 11, is Jewish. Her December holiday is Hanukkah, which began Dec. 11 at sundown — not Christmas. It is time to light the menorah, not the Christmas tree.

But in September 1984, her mother, Leslie, married Bill Drake, who is Christian. Jennifer got a new stepfather, a new stepbrother, John, and a new holiday.

In fact, all four had to do some adjusting. Bill and John, who is now 16, had to get used to Hanukkah.

Now 17, Jennifer says: "I think it was weird for them that it was for us. We were rattling off all this Jewish mumbo-jumbo."

Six years later, the verdicts vary with the individual, but on the whole, the Drakes feel their personal experiment in religious integration is a success. They celebrate both Hanukkah and Christmas together and have created some of their own holiday traditions.

Leslie, who is president of Congregation Ahavath-Beth Israel, Boise's synagogue, initially found the addition of Christmas to her personal life a little difficult, but now says, "We've evolved into a real comfortable spot with the holidays."

"For me, it was a little confusing at first. I didn't really celebrate Christmas in my heart," she says. "It's a little like celebrating the Chinese New Year in Chinatown. You do it because you're there."

"But now I really get with the program. I've even gone to midnight Mass with my husband."

Bill, who has attended Protestant, Catholic and metaphysical churches as well as the synagogue, and has done religious studies, an avocation, says the addition of Hanukkah and the move toward a less commercial celebration has improved what had been a difficult holiday for him.

"The difference between the expectations and the reality of Christmas left me frustrated and angry. Now the focus has moved away from gift giving and become more religious and more family-oriented."

At first, says Jennifer, "I had trouble relating to Christmas. There was some adjusting to do." But now "it's really opened my eyes about what goes on in a family during Christmas. We've settled into a habit. I even help decorate the Christmas tree."

John says that celebrating the two holidays has increased his own faith. "Religion is more a part of my life now. I see Jews attending services at the synagogue all the time. They set a good example."

With only about 500 Jews in Idaho, many Jews marry outside their faith.

"There are a lot of mixed marriages," says Becky Groves, who is principal of Ahavath-Beth Israel's religious education program. "I'd estimate that 70 percent of the kids in our program celebrate both Hanukkah and Christmas."

She, husband Craig Groves and their two children did that at first, as well, she says.

Craig, who is not Jewish, was not raised with a strong religious background. When they married, he agreed the children would be raised Jewish, says Becky.

"At first we celebrated both (Hanukkah and Christmas)," she says. "But as we had children we realized we were celebrating Christmas only for secular reasons. We wanted the holidays to have some meaning behind them. We rethought our values."

The Groves now celebrate only Hanukkah.

Though the Drakes decided to celebrate both holidays, that re-thinking process was very similar to what they went through. The first couple years were bumpy, though.

Roman Catholic theologians: Vatican hampering renewal

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 400 American Roman Catholic theologians on Wednesday charged that the Vatican has been throttling church reforms and imposing "an excessive Roman centralization."

The theologians condemned the Vatican for its unyielding attitude toward women, violated rights of theologians, stowed the ecclesiastical drive for Christian unity and undermined the collegial functioning of national conferences of bishops.

The "role of the local churches, of their bishops and of the greater role for women, violated rights of theologians, is being diminished," the theologians declared in a 2,400-word statement drawn up in 1 1/2 days of work.

Sent to all American bishops by the Catholic Theological Society of America, the statement was approved by 431 of its 1,400 U.S. and Canadian members, which was 79 percent of a mailed response from 544 who replied.

The Rev. Walter H. Principe of Toronto, president of the society, said the support was greater than if the society had taken the action formally at a convention, since less than 300 usually attend.

The theologians portrayed recent restrictive moves by the Vatican as failures to live up to the reforming vision of the Second Vatican Council of 1962-65, noting that it invited all Christians to speak out "with that liberty and confidence which befits the children of God."

Visitors look at the Ill National Christmas Tree Thursday.

Bush lights the tree, monument to peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush paid tribute Thursday to recently returned hostages as he formally lit the national Christmas tree.

Four thousand lights decorate the tree and a white star shines from the top.

It is a living tree transplanted to its permanent spot in the Ellipse in 1978. The National Park Service estimated that about 15,000 people gathered to watch the ceremony on an unusually warm evening in the capital.

The theme for this year's "Pageant of Peace" national Christmas tree celebration is discovery.

Surrounding the tree are 57 smaller trees representing each state and territory, a tradition since 1981. Presidents have been lighting the nation's tree in the Ellipse just south of the White House every year except two since Calvin Coolidge first threw the switch in 1923.

In 1979, President Carter ordered that the tree remain dark to honor American hostages being held in Iran.

In 1980, the tree was lit for only 417 seconds — one second for each day the hostages had been in captivity.

Newton is wealthy, but not driven by it

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Entertainer Wayne Newton says money is not the driving force behind his career.

"I don't make career decisions based on monetary considerations," he said in an interview to be broadcast Dec. 26 on cable's The Nashville Network.

"When I was making $700 a week, I was working just as hard. I wasn't enjoying it as much. The money end of it is important, but it's not the most important thing and never has been."

Wayne Newton 'I've always been wealthy'

Newton, interviewed at his estate in Las Vegas, said he's been blessed with affluence of another kind. "I've always been wealthy in my mind."

The interview, and others with country music stars Reba McEntire and Ricky Van Shelton, is part of a special tribute to Christmas on Stage.

Sophia Loren, at age 56, says she needs husband

NEW YORK (AP) — Though she is seen more in advertisements for eyeglasses than in movies now-days, Sophia Loren bristles at the idea that her husband and frequent producer Carlo Ponti has done a poor job shaping her career.

"In the mentality of the public, how many names have lasted? Loren says in Vanity Fair's January issue. "Very few, I tell you. I'm know all over the world."

Loren, 56, has a movie tentatively scheduled for a spring U.S. release. Directed by Lena Wertmuller, "Saturday, Sunday and Monday" is the story of a large, noisy Neapolitan family.

Despite persistent rumors that her marriage is troubled, Loren said: "I don't think I could live without Carlo. I need him. I don't need anybody else."

boy was diagnosed 2 1/2 years ago, said his aunt, Yolanda Vasquez. "The probability of finding a donor remains a one-in-20,000 chance," she said.

Playwright Miller back following rehab program

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Actor and Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright Jason Miller says he is getting back on track by completing an alcohol rehabilitation program.

Miller issued a statement in connection with being fined Tuesday after he and a companion pleaded guilty to public intoxication and disruptive conduct. Charges of terrorizing threats and possession of marijuana were dismissed.

The charges against Miller resulted from an Oct. 22 incident when he was flying from South Bend, Ind., to his home in Scranton after attending the Miami-Northeast football game.

The pilot said Miller and Ronald Duschny were disorderly during the flight, which stopped in Pittsburgh. Allegheny County police arrested both men when they continued to act unruly at Greater Pittsburgh International Airport.

Miller, 51, said both men are sorry.

Former President Ford goes public with a plea

CATHARTON CITY, Calif. (AP) — Former President Ford asked the public Friday to help find a donor for a 9-year-old boy desperately needing a bone marrow transplant.

Robert Badley, who is suffering from a kind of anemia and is expected to die within two months without the transplant, shook hands with the former president at Sunnylands Elementary School.

"Robert badly needs your help for a bone marrow transplant as soon as possible," Ford told a gathering of students and reporters. "Please check at the blood bank to see if you can save his life."

"The boy, though not feeling well Friday morning, told his family he still wanted to go to school to meet Ford."

"I really want to go this morning because what if (Mr. Ford) can find someone who can help me," Robert said. "What if I can get well?"

The family has been trying to find a compatible donor ever since the image was inspired by the Scrooge character.

Even the names were familiar, the lawyer said. Benny and Ebenezer. Get it?

"Eb was always a grand guy," Winston said.

The references to Benny — led Chappelas to try an impression of the legendary comedian.

"I'm thinking, I'm thinking," he said at one point, a slight Benny tone in his voice.

Prosecutor Angelo Altioto said Scrooge deserved his bad name despite his change of heart at the end of the novel turned into a popular Christmas movie.

"Those nightmarers would scare the hell out of anybody," she said.

Chicago Cubs favorite loses popularity this time

BELLEVEUE, Iowa (AP) — Chicago Cubs star Shawn Dunston may have been an abbit with fans who got his autograph at a fund-raiser, but he struck out with organizers for updating his fee days before the event.

Residents of this Mississippi River town were excited when the shortstop agreed to help raise money for a new community library.

A bank had agreed to underwrite Dunston's $4,300 appearance fee, so all proceeds from admissions and sales of autographs and memorabilia would go to the library fund. But four days before last weekend's event, organizers said Dunston told them he wanted $1,200 more.

Some of the lights

He also said U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf area were in his prayers.

"We feel pride thinking of our young men and women standing strong in the harsh distant deserts and on the waters of the Persian Gulf," Bush said.

"And we think of their parents and their loved ones — and we join them in praying for their safe return."

The president's wife Barbara and several Bush grandchildren, along with five of the seven newly released hostages who met with Bush earlier in the day, also attended the festivities around the 35-foot blue spruce.

"As we gather here, we're doing what generations before us have done, watching our national Christmas tree become a brilliant symbol of hope, of peace and of compassion for all the world," Bush said as he threw a switch to illuminate the tree.

Judge decides Scrooge deserves a bad rap

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Even the ghost of Jack Benny couldn't save Ebenezer Scrooge on Wednesday when a judge refused to cancel the name of the miserly main character of "A Christmas Carol."

The tongue-in-cheek ruling by Municipal Judge George Chappelas came at the Court of Historical Review and Appeals, a mock court that tries to decide if the name of the character created by Charles Dickens should continue to be synonymous with greed and avarice.

In the past, the court has ruled on such weighty questions as the existence of Santa Claus or if chicken soup deserved to be considered Jewish penicillin. Yes on both, the court found.

The puns during the court's 65th session moved fast with "little Dickens" and "you've been Scrooged" bringing moans from 100 or so spectators.

Scrooge, dressed in black and wearing a top hat, pleaded his case, saying he had been "soberly hurt by an early, early love."

Scrooge, portrayed by retired drama teacher E. Wyman Spalding, claimed his mentor, Jacob Marley, should be blamed.

"It was Marley, Marley," he told the judge. "Marley" was the real Scrooge.

The mister was defended by Frank Winston, who said the world owes a debt to "Eb," insisting that comedian Jack Benny's tightwad

Ivana's woes, chapter 3: Trumped-up catalog bill

Knight-Ridder News Service

MIAMI — Life for Ivana Trump, the Donald, trouble, trouble. Then she heard from MasterCard. What about that $1,521,100 bill in Miami?

What bill? Ivana asked.

The one from the Spiegel catalog dresses, size large; women's shoes, size 9A; men's pants, size 36-44; items in all. Ordered for delivery to a Dade County, Fla., address.

The name was right, Ivana Zelnick, the ex-Mrs. Trump's maiden name.

Well, said Ivana. She used her card once last month at the Dorland International Spa. Just once.

To the MasterCard people at the prosecution.

The deliverable address was different — from the customer address, and Spiegel wanted an authorization, said Citibank spokesman Bill Alheim. "Those kinds of things set off bells and whistles."

A Metro-Dade cop, disguised as a UPS delivery man, delivered the merchandise to the Dade address last week.

Oh, said the 12-year-old female at the door. "I'm not expecting a package."

Police figured maybe her roommate, an employee at The Spa, was expecting a package.

A detective arrested Patricia Finlayson, 19, and charged her with fraudulent use of a credit card. The merchandise is now Exhibit A for

VOLKSWAGEN PASSAT GL

Introducing the new Volkswagen Passat GL Sedan. It has room enough for five passengers. More interior room for luggage than Toyota Camry and Mitsubishi Galant.

But unlike some other family sedans, the new Passat has zoom. Lots and lots of zoom. Its multi-valve, 134 hp, fuel-injected engine delivers more power than comparable models from Honda and Toyota. And, with power rack-and-pinion steering and four-wheel independent suspension, the new Passat confidently zooms where you want it to. European style.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE
BOBBY WOLFF

"And the end of the fight is a tombstone white with the name of the late deceased.
And the split: A Fool lies here who tried to hustle the East."
— Rudyard Kipling.

A midway Barker offers a small slam with a club lead—sinks the trump suit. Do you choose hearts (A-K-Q-J-10-9) or do you choose spades (A-10-9-8-7 opposite K-6-5)? If you're naive about the ways of the midway, don't believe everything you see.

At six hearts, the more solid trump suit, a club lead—sinks the slam. North's best shot is to lead a second club, cash the diamond ace and ruff a club in dummy. Next the diamond queen is led, for a ruffing finesse which loses for one down. Had it won, North would have discarded a spade for his 12th trick.

At six spades, the more solid suit, the slam is unbeatable as long as spades break normally and the second heart survives.

Dummy's club ace wins, the top trumps are cashed and the hearts are started. South deals his losing club on the third heart. The defense is helpless. Hearts are continued with South discarding losers, and whether West ruffs early, late, or not at all, South has his 12 tricks.

This is a good example of a lesser-known principle. When choosing between trump suits of equal length, you are often better off making the more solid suit the side-suit.
