FDIC broke, economists tell Congress

Knight-Ridder News Service

WASHINGTON — A trio of economists said Monday that the fund that insures the bulk of the nation's bank deposits is "insolvent," and the fund's chairman called for a quick injection of billions of extra dollars to prop up the strained deposit insurance system.

The economists told a congressional subcommittee that even a mild recession will wipe out the insurance fund's $9 billion in reserves, leaving taxpayers to bear the cost of insuring more than $2 trillion in bank deposits. They warned that many of the nation's biggest banks "are on or near the edge of insolvency."

Testifying later, Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. chairman L. William Seidman conceded that the system, which has insured deposits since the Depression, is running perilously short of money. Although he predicted that it is now broke, he predicted for the first time that it will lose another $5 billion next year.

Seidman said the nation's commercial banks should quickly inject 1 percent of their deposits, or about $25 billion, to replenish the fund, and pay an extra $1 billion a year in deposit insurance premiums to ensure that it stays replenished.

"The... fund remains solvent and probably will be solvent at the end of 1991," Seidman told the financial institutions subcommittee of the Housing Banking Committee. "But it is very weak."

The assessments by both the economists and Seidman painted the bleakest picture yet of the nation's deposit insurance system, and prompted outcries from subcommittee members.

"The scenario unfolding in banking has an eerie sound of an S&L crisis," said Rep. Toby Roth, R-Wis.

Magic Valley students clean up in recycling contest

By N.S. Nokkintved Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley students cleaned up in a statewide recycling competition this fall, with eight schools winning recognition.

Heather Eskridge, a ninth-grader at Robert Stuart Junior High School in Twin Falls, won a personal computer in recognition for collecting the most recyclable material of the state's junior-high students. And Lincoln Elementary School won an Apple computer for collecting the most for an elementary school in its division.

Heather will go to Boise Wednesday along with other winners to meet Gov. Cecil Andrus and receive her award in the event sponsored by American Recycling Co. in cooperation with the state.

Heather, 14, said the program does more than just earn students and schools money and awards. It makes people more conscious of the garbage they throw away, some of which will be around forever, she said.

"It gets more people involved with recycling," she said. She collected about 12,000 pounds of cardboard, glass, paper, and aluminum cans to take the top honors in the junior high school division in the state.

She said she doesn't know much about computers, but she's going to learn.

Lincoln Elementary School

collected nearly 23,000 pounds of glass, paper, plastics and metal to earn a first place in its division.

"I think we should recycle because if we don't recycle, people will cut down trees to make paper," said first-grader Jessica James.

"But trophies and money offer more tangible benefits. For first-grader Katie Brock a trophy was all the incentive she needed; besides she has a ready supply of recyclables."

"My dad manages the Sander, and we get all the glass there," she said.

"I tried to get the trophy, but one kid just beat me," Jessica said.

Barbie's pitch upsets loggers

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Barbie, the doll usually more occupied with clothing and hairstyle decisions, didn't mean to upset anyone.

But now she stands accused by a Northwest logging group of promoting the "radical agenda" of environmentalists.

"Barbie was a Mattel Toys commercial in which Barbie asked her young admirers how to make the world a better place. One possibility, she suggested, was that 'We could keep the trees from falling, keep the eagles soaring.'"

That drew the ire of the Oregon Lands Coalition, which charged that Mattel and Barbie had pandered to a movement out to shut down "the engines of this country" and had exposed children to the "preservationists' radical agenda."

The logging group, which lobbied Congress last year against legislation aimed at protecting the northern spotted owl, also had protested in letter-writing and telephone campaigns the pro-environment products and activities of several other companies. They include K-Mart, Cannon Copiers, American Greeting Cards, Cotler

Stalemate over talks persists

Knight-Ridder News Service

WASHINGTON — The United States and Iraq failed to break a stalemate over dates for high-level talks Monday, as President Bush vowed to carry out a U.N. resolution authorizing the use of force if Iraqi troops are not out of Kuwait by Jan. 15.

Bush said he still hopes the two sides can agree on acceptable dates for the talks so that the Persian Gulf crisis can be resolved peacefully.

But if midnight Jan. 15 comes, and Iraqi President Saddam Hussein is not "totally out of Kuwait, the U.N. sanctions must be fulfilled," Bush said at a news conference. He refused to say exactly how he intended to respond if the deadline passes with Iraq still holding Kuwait as its 19th province.

Earlier Monday, the Iraqi government issued a statement declaring it would not let the United States dictate dates for the talks and vowed that it would never surrender Kuwait.

GOP asks court to uphold claim

The Associated Press

BOISE — Declaring Democratic legal arguments filled with "logical absurdities," Senate Republicans have urged the Idaho Supreme Court to reject attempts to void their claim to operating control of the state Senate.

In a 49-page brief filed with the court on Monday, attorneys for both the Senate's 21 GOP members and Republican Lt. Gov. Butch Otter cited case after case to back the contention Otter had the right to cast the tie-breaking vote that gave his party continued control of the chamber.

"The drafters of the constitution clearly recognized the necessity of the office of the lieutenant governor in avoiding deadlock," the brief stated. It cited the report of the constitution-convening proceedings that produced the provision giving the lieutenant governor the Senate president who "shall vote only when the Senate is equally divided."

In fact, the brief suggested that the court should not even review the matter, maintaining it was solely within the purview of those involved in the Senate, including Otter, and not subject to the discretion of the court.

Democrats, who threw the chamber into a partisan 21-21 tie with two narrow victories over incumbent Boise Republican last month, have asked the high court to void Otter's tie-breaking votes during the Dec. 6-7 organizational session and force the Senate to re-organize again, this time without Otter's interference. They maintain a question of constitutional interpretation exists that only the court can resolve.

The Supreme Court has set Friday morning for oral arguments in the case. While control of the Senate is a political prize, it has become a significant bearing on the kinds of legislation that will be considered over the next two years and could determine when the Senate is equally

Cade, Moore fill top Gem law posts

The Associated Press

BOISE — The new leaders of Idaho's state law enforcement effort are coming from within the ranks, Gov. Cecil D. Andrus says.

The governor announced Monday he has appointed Richard Cade, deputy director of the Department of Law Enforcement, as the new director.

Capt. Ronald Moore, district commander for the Idaho State Police at Lewiston, will become superintendent of the force and will be promoted to colonel.

Both have had long careers in Idaho law enforcement, about 50 years between them. And Andrus said the issue that got their predecessors in trouble should be considered dead and buried.

Mark Richardson resigned as director of the department and Col. Rich Humphreys, ISP superintendent, took early retirement over a controversy that erupted over an unwritten policy of selective law enforcement.

Richardson fostered a policy allowing immunity from traffic citations for state legislators and others in the law enforcement field. Andrus said it appeared Richardson had lost the support of the ISP force over the policy, and asked Humphreys to retire early because of the controversy.

Cade, Richardson's chief deputy and acting director, will become director Jan. 1 and will be paid $65,000 per year. The governor gave Moore's promotion to the $52,000 per year superintendent job will be effective next month, depending on Humphreys' actual retirement date.

Both appointees said a major goal would be to improve harmony in working relationships. As part of that, Andrus said Moore would carry the title of deputy director of Law Enforcement over a controversy that

Shopping center burglars bat .882 in weekend foray

By Brad Bowlin Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Business owners in Centennial Square were scratching their heads and talking to insurance adjusters Monday after a weekend burglary spree that hit 15 of 17 businesses in the shopping center on Blue Lakes Boulevard North.

In all, thieves struck at least 18 businesses along Blue Lakes.

Every store in Centennial Square except Taco Time and Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream fell victim to one or more burglars who struck late Saturday night and early Sunday morning.

Police detectives spent Monday afternoon interviewing the victims and gathering clues.

Detective Jim Howells said police have no suspects and haven't yet determined if the thefts are the work of one person or a group of people.

Each business reported its back door pried open with a crowbar or similar tool, but in most cases little more than petty cash was stolen.

"Cash was the thing they were after," Dale Kelsey, owner of Papa Kelsey's and Fred's restaurant, said. Fortunately for Kelsey, there was no money in his business to be stolen.

Kim Knits yarn and sewing shop was not as lucky. About $100 in cash from Saturday sales was stolen, owner Kim Cohen said.

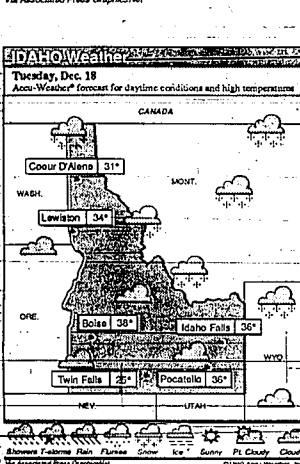

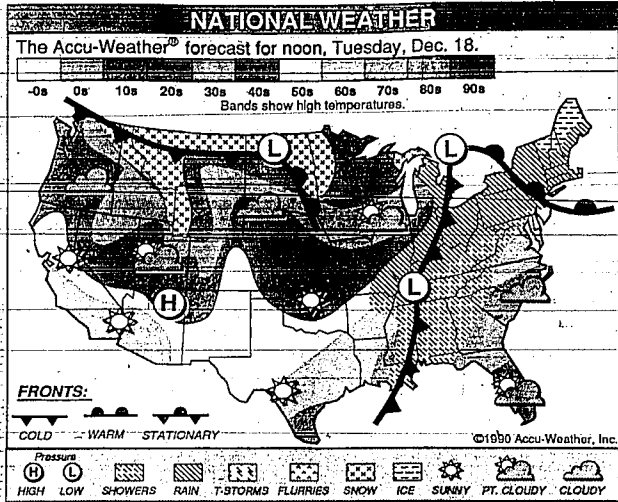

"We're just counting our blessings that it wasn't worse," Cohen said, noting that several expensive pieces of machinery were left untouched.

The attitude was the same down the row at BJ's Wash-U where owner Bob Jones arrived Sunday morning to find a big hole in the wall where his change machine used to be.

Whoever took the bill-changer was probably disappointed because the machine was new and Jones hadn't put any

Weather summary

Clouds presaging the next round of storms moved across the Magic Valley on Monday, bringing moderating temperatures during the afternoon.

Readings climbed into the 30s after single digit lows near zero but were expected to begin dropping during the evening hours and early today as the snow began falling.

There were reports of snow, ice and freezing rain in mountain areas across the central part of Idaho, but moisture totals were light to moderate there. In the north, Mount Lewiston reported 30 inch of moisture and Lowell 26.

The warmest temperature in the state Monday was 43 degrees at Moscow. Idaho Falls reported the coldest at 06 degrees below zero.

Elsewhere in the nation Monday, the highest temperature was 92 degrees at McAllen, Texas. The lowest was 10 below zero at Gunnison, Colo.

Snow scattered from Northwest across Rockies

The Associated Press

Snow was scattered from the Northwest through the Rockies and into the upper Mississippi Valley on Monday, while rain fell across the Midwest and the South.

Snow showers reached from western Montana across the Idaho Panhandle and northern Idaho, central Washington state, south-central Oregon, western Wyoming, north-central through central Utah, Colorado, northern and central New Mexico, southwestern Kansas, eastern and central Nebraska, central and northeastern Iowa, southeastern Minnesota and Wisconsin.

By late morning, 1 to 3 inches of snow had fallen in Nebraska between Hastings and near Omaha, the National Weather Service said. Roads were snow-packed and slippery across south central and eastern Nebraska.

Heaviest snowfall during the six hours up to 1 p.m. EST included 4 inches at Wausau, La Crosse and Tomah, Wis.; 3 inches at Virroqua, Wis.; and 1 inch at Denver, Goodland, Kan.; Trimmed, Colo.; and Waterloo, Iowa.

Freezing rain fell across northwestern Montana at midday.

Rain fell across southwestern Lower Michigan, Ohio, West Virginia, western Virginia, western North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, northern Mississippi, Indiana, Illinois, southeastern Iowa, central and southern Missouri, eastern Oklahoma, northeastern Texas, and western Louisiana.

Rain also fell along the northern Pacific Coast.

Rainfall amounts during the six hours up to 1 p.m. EST were less than one inch.

Elsewhere, snowfall ended around Juneau, Alaska, after 13 inches of snow since Sunday morning.

In southern California, frost advisories were posted from Monday night into Tuesday morning across the San Diego agricultural area.

But parts of Texas enjoyed record highs, including 81 at Austin, 82 at Corpus Christi, and 80 at San Antonio, where the previous record of 79 had stood since 1886.

mine the relative-public-opinion position of the two parties heading into the 1992 election.

Democrats, "pulling themselves from minority status for the first time in three decades, claimed that as a member of the executive branch of government, Otter's constitutional power to break ties is limited to legislative issues and cannot be exercised on internal, organizational matters.

Democrats have argued that the electorate's decision to elect 21 members from each party is a mandate for shared power, something the GOP has refused to concede.

To bolster their position, Democrats have cited other provisions of the state constitution that say "each house" of the Legislature will organize, determining its officers and operating rules. Since Otter is not a full-fledged member of the Senate, they contend that provision limits the other one's Otter the right to vote when the Senate is tied.

But Idaho Falls attorney C. Timothy Hopkins, representing the Republicans, maintained that reorganizing runs counter to state and federal rulings, including those of the U.S. Supreme Court.

He also cited past court rulings that, in his view, "the original meaning of a statute is always to be preferred to any curious, narrow or hidden sense.

That student was Lincoln sixth-grader Rickie Palmer, who won a $100 savings bond as the top elementary student recycler in the state.

"You're making the earth better for the next generation," Lincoln sixth-grader Jaime Koepnick said. "And for our children," her two friends Palmer and Whitney Trainor chimed in.

"It's not just for kids to do it, everybody should do it," Trainor said. "It makes you feel good about yourself."

But there's more than environmental ethics driving these young recyclers.

"Yeah, you get money too," Koepnick said.

Lincoln's students' efforts earned them $510. The money was turned over to the school for sports equipment and a tree to be planted in the school yard.

One teacher complained the students were not so good at their homework, but they were great "garbage ladies," the three said.

Kris Ferlic's first-grade class also received recognition for the most participation, and Joe Newby's sixth-grade class for the most pounds collected.

Other Magic Valley schools that finished in the running were Agape Christian School of Twin Falls, Murrumbidgee of Washington and Jefferson elementary schools of Jerome, Wendell High School and Wendell Elementary and Poppewell Elementary in Buhl.

Palmer's mother, Carolyn Palmer, volunteer coordinator of the school's effort, spent many hours and weekends organizing the students' recycling activities.

One Saturday a month, the kids brought what they had collected to the school.

"I think they should do something like this all year," Palmer said. It not only earns prizes and money for the students, but it spreads the idea of recycling as students bring it home to their parents.

The top prize in the statewide contest, a new car, went to Stacy Stefferson of Idaho Falls.

money in it, Jones said.

No clothes were taken, no washers or dryers were damaged. Even the soda machine was untouched.

"Thank the Lord for that," Jones said. "If they had priced open these washers and dryers, I wouldn't have things to open today. We would have had it."

Reports of burglarized businesses didn't stop at Centennial Square.

The Subway sandwich shop-up the street was also broken into at about the same time, and reported the same mode of entry - a back door pry open.

Although the intruders did more damage to doors than to the bank accounts of the businesses, the thieves had managers and owners in the shopping center talking about extra security.

The businesses currently don't have alarms, but some will have them soon.

"We'll get one," Jones said. "I don't have time to mess around with this sort of thing."

"It's certainly something we're considering," TCBY frozen yogurt owner Kent Snow said. "It's something the association here at the (shopping center) will be looking into together. We're all basically at risk."

The floor safe at TCBY was stolen over the weekend, Snow said. Although he would not say how much cash was inside, he said it was mostly weekend change and deposit records.

Like most neighboring businesses, TCBY doesn't keep much cash in the store, Snow said. Now, he may keep even less, making more frequent trips to the bank to deposit receipts, he said.

Former Tennessee governor nominated as education secretary

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush said Monday he would nominate former Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander as education secretary, choosing a teachers' son with a reputation as an education reformer to take over a department recently troubled by controversy.

Bush made no mention of last week's abrupt departure of his first education secretary, Lauro Cavazos, who was forced to resign by the White House. Praise for the choice of Alexander, currently president of the University of Tennessee, was quick and widespread, suggesting there would be no lingering ill effects from the firing of Cavazos.

Meanwhile, there were signs the administration was near a resolution of a dispute between the White House and the Education Department's Office of Civil Rights over whether colleges and universities can legally set aside scholarships for minorities.

Alexander

Presidential spokesman Martin Fitzwater said Bush was "very disturbed" by a department official's ruling last week that such scholarships are illegal.

Bush "believes these scholarships are important to minorities and to ensuring opportunities for all Americans to get a good education," and has ordered the department to conduct a quick review, with advice from the Justice Department and White House lawyers, Fitzwater said.

Alexander refused to be drawn into the controversy, saying in answer to questions that he had "many many opinions about it" and would be willing to "be the fall of advice to the president" and the Senate.

"My general disposition would be that when you're wandering through constitutional thickets, that a warm heart and a little common sense sometimes are helpful," he said, noting that the University of Tennessee offers scholarships to poor, minority students.

The president, announcing his choice of Alexander, said, "No governor in the country is so clearly identified with the imperative to improve education in America."

"Lamar, if you'll remember, was at the forefront of the movement to restructure our nation's schools," Bush said. "When he was chairman of the National Governors' Association he was instrumental in bringing education reform to the very top of the agenda."

Alexander, 50, left the Tennessee governor's office in 1986 after two terms and moved to Australia for six months. In 1988, he was appointed to his university post.

He said his goals, in addition to improving schools for the nation's children, will include creating better training and adult education opportunities for America's workers who need new skills for the changing workplace.

Alexander said that when Tennessee was looking for workers for a new General Motors plant, families considering the move had two concerns.

"The second question is, 'Where can I get good schools-for-my-children?' and the first question is, 'Where can I go back to school?'" he said.

While governor, Alexander unveiled an education reform package called Better Schools that included adding a career ladder of pay raises for teachers and principals, expanding basic education curriculum, putting computers in junior high schools and hiring more math and science teachers.

In early reaction to the choice:

- Richard F. Rosser, president of the National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities, called Alexander "one of the best people in the country" in terms of background and understanding of education.
- Rosser added, "He also is known as a thoughtful, moderate Republican—and clearly we need someone who is going to be in the mainstream in terms of their thinking of what needs to be done in education."
- Albert Shanker, president of the American Federation of Teachers, said he was optimistic that Alexander would bring to the department some of the dynamism that Rosser said it lacked under Cavazos. He said he hoped Alexander would not be as zealous as others in the Bush administration in pushing the concept of public school choice as the key to school reform.
- Ernest Boyer, head of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, said, "Every signal suggests that not only does he have strong commitment but a realistic sense of what the priorities should be. It seems to me that he's looked at reform more broadly. There is nothing in his past record to suggest that he's be narrow or ideological."

Martin says she'll be a friend to workers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lynn Martin said Monday she expects a "very productive relationship" with organized labor if she's confirmed as secretary of labor.

The AFL-CIO has given Martin's nomination a chilly reception, saying she failed to show "sensitivity" to workers' needs during her five terms as a Republican member of Congress from Illinois.

Martin, who met Monday with President Bush at the White House, said at a news conference that she looked forward to working with organized labor.

"And I think we'll have a very productive relationship," she said, adding that she also wanted to work for non-union employees.

Bush said "working Americans have a friend in Lynn Martin, and she understands the challenges facing our workforce."

Martin, who was in Illinois when he first announced her nomination Friday, must be confirmed by the Senate before taking over the agency that oversees dozens of federal laws regarding job safety, hours and wages, equal opportunity and pensions.

The Senate Education and Labor Committee is confirming hearings are likely to be held in late January or February, a committee spokeswoman said.

Martin, a longtime Bush loyalist, also denied a Washington Post report that White House Chief of Staff John Sununu told her she would not be allowed to pick her own deputy.

"No... No, there was no talk forward to working with the White House, because we share the same goals," Martin said when asked whether she had been told she could not choose her own deputy.

The deputy secretary generally runs the day-to-day operations of the agency. Administration officials have speculated that the White House may give the job to David Demar, a special assistant to the White House.

Bush who served as an assistant secretary of labor for public affairs in the Reagan administration.

Martin, who gave up her House seat to make an unsuccessful bid to unseat Democratic Sen. Paul Simon, has been given a lifetime voting score of 29 percent by the AFL-CIO.

The federation said she voted "wrong" on workers' issues more than two-thirds of the time.

Martin, the AFL-CIO said, voted against workers on child care and civil rights legislation, but voted "right" on mandatory parental leave legislation.

On minimum wage legislation, Martin sent labor mixed signals, voting to get a bill that would have raised the hourly wage to $4.65 but later "wavered" as the AFL-CIO wanted to override Bush's veto of the bill, the federation said.

Elizabeth Dole, who was labor secretary for two years, resigned to head the American Red Cross.

Mrs. Dole tried to strengthen job safety laws and crack down on child labor violators.

Most recently, she had launched an initiative to search for ways to crack the "glass ceiling" that keeps minorities and women from moving up the corporate ladder.

Martin supported Bush in his 1980 presidential bid, helped him prepare for his 1984 vice presidential debate with Democrat Geraldine Ferraro.

Study: Records error for elderly

NEW YORK (AP) — Hospital records erred 60 percent of the time in listing important medications that patients older than age 65 were taking when admitted, raising a risk of serious treatment errors, a study found.

Such recording mistakes mean patients may not get drugs they need in the hospital, or they may get unneeded drugs that cause harmful side effects, said researcher Dr. Mark Beers.

The study involved 122 randomly chosen patients at two hospitals. Their average age was 77, and all were older than 65.

At least one error occurred in 60 percent of records when analysis was restricted to medications "excluding over-the-counter drugs, medicines and medications applied on the skin," Beers said. Three or more errors occurred in 18 percent of the records. Beers recommended that people of any age carry an updated list of current medications.

WASHINGTON (AP) — New York Gov. Mario Cuomo came to the capital Monday to discuss his powerbrokers of fusing the nation and to reaffirm his longtime status as a potential but not actual presidential candidate.

The third-term Democrat, in a speech at the National Press Club, altered his already predictable views with heightened but renewed certainties of the last 10 years of Republican economic policies.

He contended the nation is in a punishing recession as a result of those policies and that only the federal government can spur a recovery. He said the state will do all it can to raise taxes and cut services. Cuomo said, adding that governors have watched their popularity plummet while those with national power avoid making any tough choices.

Families of hostages hold church vigil

WASHINGTON — Friends and families of hostages in Lebanon held a church vigil Monday and asked Americans to pray for the captives during the holiday season.

"We have a burning desire to see our loved ones returned to us soon," said Thomas Cioppio of Norristown, Pa., the brother of Joseph Cioppio, who was abducted Jan. 24, 1987.

"Here we are once again into the Christmas season," he said.

"If he were a hostage, Cioppio said he would be praying for help from President Bush. Cioppio said his message would be: "Mr. President, my name is Terry Anderson. Do you remember me? My freedom was taken away 2,103 days ago."

Ethiopia will let more Jews emigrate

WASHINGTON — The Marxist government of Ethiopia has reached an agreement with the United States and Israel to more than double the number of Jews it allows to emigrate, officials said Monday.

The Ethiopian government is being rewarded with Israeli aid and a thaw in relations with Washington, which have been strained for over a decade, said the officials who spoke only on condition of anonymity.

Study: Aid would be wasted in U.S.S.R.

WASHINGTON — An in-depth study of the Soviet economy concludes that massive Western aid at this time would be wasted because the country's economic system is in such disarray, official sources said Monday.

Instead, an extensive infusion of technical assistance to help carry out fundamental economic reforms will be recommended, according to sources familiar with the report due to be released this week.

"Basically, the problems are structural, which no amount of external aid will solve," one Soviet specialist said Monday.

The sources, speaking on condition they not be identified, characterized the findings as pessimistic and depressing because they "describe a system even more backward than expected and practically paralyzed by inefficiency and confusion."

Filming starts on James Brady story

WASHINGTON — Filming began Monday on a movie about former presidential press secretary James Brady and his fight for survival after being shot nine years ago in the attack on President Reagan by John Hinckley Jr.

Crews for HBO Pictures filmed a re-enactment Monday of the attempted assassination at the Washington Hilton Hotel. On Wednesday they're scheduled to simulate the presidential motorcade.

The movie's working title is "The James Brady Story," with Beau Bridges playing the lead. It is based on the book "Thumbs Up," about Brady's life since one of Hinckley's shots struck him in the head, nearly killing him. Reagan also was severely wounded, but he recovered fully while Brady suffered permanent impairment of his mobility and speech.

Some of the extras in the movie include newsmen and photographers who were at the actual 1981 shooting.

Skipper's fatigue a factor in oil spill

WASHINGTON — The captain of an oil tanker that caused the west-coast spill in Alaska was suffering from "acute fatigue" when his ship ran aground, a federal agency said Monday.

Capt. Iakovos Georgiadis had worked for 35 consecutive hours before making a series of mistakes that caused the June 23, 1989, oil spill, the National Transportation Safety Board said.

Delinquent mortgages on rise in 3rd quarter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mortgage delinquencies rose sharply from July through September, the Mortgage Bankers Association said Monday in a report it said was further proof the economy is in a downturn.

"Overall delinquency rates are essentially the same as a year ago," Executive Vice-President Warren Lasko said. "But following a dip earlier this year, we now see a significant upward movement in all categories of delinquencies."

"Unfortunately, in the context of higher unemployment rates and a decline in home price appreciation, we may be looking at further evidence that a recession is upon us," he added.

Indeed, the association report said it "would not be surprising for delinquency rates to stay at the higher levels of the third quarter and perhaps to even drift up a bit more, given the state of the economy, particularly in the New England states."

The association survey found the delinquency rate was 5.0 percent, up from 4.52 percent in the second quarter and 4.41 percent in the first. The rate in the third quarter of 1989 was 4.96 percent.

The survey also found that foreclosures had risen slightly. The 0.33 percent rate compared with a 0.31 percent rate in the previous quarter.

Contributing most to the delinquency increase were mortgages 30 days past due. This category, which provides the least concern, rose from 3.13 percent in the second quarter to 3.47 percent in the third.

But mortgages with 60-day delinquencies increased from 0.70 percent to 0.78 percent while those that were 90-day late rose from 0.69 percent to 0.75 percent.

"On a regional basis, delinquency rates were higher in the Northeast and South, but were lower in the Midwest and West, compared to year-ago levels, the report said."

"During the same time period, the percentage of loans in foreclosure fell in the Midwest and West, but rose in the Northeast and South."

Federal Reserve might soon ease interest rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve, caught between persistently bad inflation figures and a slumping economy, is likely to opt for a slight easing of credit conditions in coming weeks, private economists said Monday on the eve of a key meeting of Fed policy-makers.

The Bush administration has been pressuring the Fed to ease interest rates aggressively in an effort to lessen the severity of the recession that many economists think began in October.

However, the downturn is occurring at a time when inflation has remained at disturbing levels, in large part because the Persian Gulf crisis has sent energy prices soaring.

For this reason, many economists believe that Fed policy-makers will adopt a go-slow approach when they meet behind closed doors on Tuesday to map monetary strategy.

"Normally, in this kind of downturn, the Fed would be easing aggressively, but inflation off the Middle East events is still substantial," said Allen Sinai, chief economist of the Boston Co.

Many economists were looking for Fed policy-makers, meeting as the Federal Open Market Committee, to engineer another small decrease in the federal funds rate, the interest that banks charge each other for overnight loans, private economists predicted Monday.

In the past seven weeks, the Fed has pushed the funds rate down a quarter point three times, from 8 percent to 7.25 percent.

Many analysts said they believed the Fed would wait until the December unemployment report is released on Jan. 4 before reducing the rate again.

That would give the central bank time to assess other economic data and also to gauge whether inflation is moderating. A key statistic on that front will be released right before Tuesday's meeting when the Labor Department reports on consumer inflation for the month of November.

Officials fear higher gas tax will spawn tax evasion schemes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department said Monday it is investigating 100 schemes to evade gasoline taxes and officials fear the new, nickel-a-gallon hike in the federal levy will spawn more fraud.

With the five-cent increase in the gasoline excise tax, we have no doubt there will be an incentive to cheat," said Shirley D. Peterson, the assistant attorney general who heads the Justice Department's tax division.

After the tax hike took effect Dec.

1, an informant told a government prosecutor that "the word on the street is 'thanks for the early Christmas present,'" she told reporters.

The schemes, which cost the federal government at least $1 billion in lost revenue, were initially detected in the mid-1980s as a way for organized crime to muscle into a legitimate business, officials said.

But legitimate businesses are increasingly involved in the schemes, particularly businesses under the pressure of price competition in an industry with thin profit margins, officials said.

There have been 25 convictions since 1987, Peterson said.

But the Nov. 16 guilty verdict against Getty Terminals Corp., a Getty executive and two independent gasoline wholesalers for scheming to evade $1 million in excise taxes was one of the first convictions of a legitimate business, she said. The company could be fined $2 million and individual defendants could be sentenced to 20 years in prison.

"If you consider the number of gallons of gasoline sold, you begin to understand the magnitude of the potential problem and the temptation to cheat," she said. "There's just enormous, enormous money to be made by those who are able to find ways to basically defraud the payment of the tax."

With low profit margins, legitimate dealers "are driven out of business unless they get on board the criminal activity."

Besides trying to recover lost tax revenue, "we want to make it possible for the legitimate business to carry on his business without getting creamed by criminal activity," she said.

The 100 investigations of gasoline tax evasion schemes are being conducted in 18 cities around the country, Peterson said. Most have reached the stage of prosecutors submitting evidence to federal grand juries.

In addition to the New York City area, the problem is most evident in Florida, Texas, the Midwest and California, officials said.

The sale of gasoline stocks at terminals from one registered wholesaler to another is exempt from excise taxes.

But businesses use phony corporations, fake invoices and other schemes that "test the perseverance of prosecutors and agents to go through the mountains and mountains of documents," said James A. Bruton, one of Peterson's deputies.

Local bill could lead to turmoil

WASHINGTON (AP) — The District of Columbia Council is set to pass the nation's most far-reaching gun control bill, making manufacturers and dealers liable for deaths and injuries caused by semiautomatic weapons.

The bill may well throw Congress into turmoil early in its new session because it reviews all District of Columbia legislation.

The measure would give private citizens the right to sue for damages from manufacturers and sellers of semiautomatic weapons, regardless of where the makers and dealers do business.

"It's time for these merchants of death to pay a price," said council member William Lightfoot, who cosponsored the bill. "We can set a very meaningful precedent."

Officials in Washington, which has the highest murder rate in the United States, say that since January 1988 about 70 percent of the 8,500 guns recovered by police have been traced to dealers in neighboring Maryland and Virginia.

The council is expected to approve the bill Tuesday and send the legislation to Mayor Marion Barry Jr., who has not said whether he will veto the measure, sign it or let it become law without his signature.

If it becomes law, the measure will face strong opposition from the National Rifle Association when it arrives in Congress for a 30-day review period that begins when Congress returns to legislative business Jan. 23.

Congress normally lets new city laws stand, but controversial measures sometimes become platforms for ideological debate and are defeated.

The NRA is one of the most powerful lobbying organizations in the country and successfully managed to defeat three congressional proposals to ban semiautomatic weapons last fall.

A lobbyist for the NRA, Carl T. Rowan Jr., called the bill "preposterous" and said it would "not have any impact on the violence."

"I don't think it stands a chance in court," he added.

Michael Beard, president of the Coalition to Stop Gun Violence, said he believes the bill would survive a court challenge, although no real precedent exists.

A top aide to Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Calif., who heads the House District of Columbia Committee, said Dellums would support the measure.

But the office of California Republican Dan Rostenkowski, who also is on the committee, said letting such a law stand would be "unconscionable."

President Bush's chief of staff, John Sununu, has said the White House also will look at the matter.

The bill is based on product-liability law, which allows individuals to seek monetary damages for death or injury to themselves or family members caused by a particular product.

In such cases, juries or judges decide the amount of damages after a trial on the individual's lawsuit.

The city already has one of the strictest gun laws in the country. Sales are banned and private citizens are prohibited from owning weapons unless they were purchased and registered before 1976.

Legislative term limits only restrict a voter's freedom

"Stop us before we elect again!" So goes the chorus — rapidly gaining volume — in favor of legislative term limits. The reasoning goes this way: Since voters keep electing those same old rotten incumbents, let's put a constitutional limit on the number of terms the bums can serve.

The idea has been talked about mostly in reference to Congress, where it is a questionable concept. But lately it also has been suggested for Idaho's Legislature, where the idea is genuinely dangerous.

Term limits derive their appeal from citizens' growing discontent with politics-as-usual. Every two years, angry voters vow to throw the rascals out. And yet, every two years, nearly all of the rascals get re-elected.

But term limits are a poor prescription for what ails American politics. They're an even worse prescription for Idaho, because the patient doesn't appear to be sick.

The idea's drawbacks are numerous. In the first place, term limits restrict voters' freedom. If the voters of a given district want to re-elect a popular legislator again and again, shouldn't they have that right?

Second, limits would throw out the baby with the bilge water. What a shame to lose an honest, hard-working and knowledgeable lawmaker simply because his time has run out.

Third, long-time lawmakers provide an institutional memory that is essential for balance among the branches of government. This is perhaps the idea's most important flaw.

Bureaucrats have no limits on the terms they serve; they have whole careers in which to gather knowledge and connections. Remember that none of those people stand for election. Congress is the primary check on their power.

As dismal as the federal budget process is now, imagine the mayhem if seasoned bureaucrats faced a Congress dominated by novices.

At the national level, a better alternative to term limits would be campaign finance reform that reduces incumbents' advantages. Limit spending. Eliminate the corrupting influence of political-action committees. Curtail franking.

On the state level, meanwhile, there's no evidence a problem exists at all.

Idaho incumbents are neither entrenched nor isolated from their constituents. Our lawmakers are out there, at home, doing their regular jobs and meeting the voters at the supermarket and the movie theater.

Of the state legislators going to Boise next week, nearly a fourth will be freshmen. That's a healthy turnover; you wouldn't want much more.

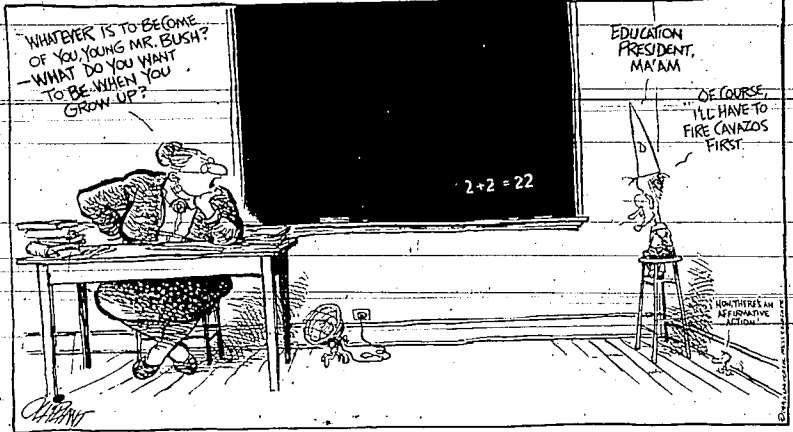

Institutional memory is especially important in a citizen Legislature such as Idaho's. New lawmakers have neither the time nor the resources to engage instant experts on the diverse issues they must face. Take away the veterans, and the neophytes would be babes in a forest of bureaucrats and lobbyists.

No thanks. The term-limit chorus at the national level may grow so noisy that it drowns out all opposition. But in Idaho, where we can still hear ourselves think, we can recognize it as a faulty fix for a system that isn't broken.

Fear, politics vs. a safe abortion pill

Fifty thousand French women can't be wrong. In France, a pregnant woman, who doesn't want to be, can visit a clinic and swallow a pill, RU-486, that will stop an embryo from attaching to her uterine wall. A follow-up injection of the hormone prostaglandin then brings on her menses.

One-third of all French women undergoing abortion now use this early, inexpensive technique. And an article in the New England Journal of Medicine has concluded that the RU-486 routine is safe.

The routine doesn't work on 4 percent of women, who then need to have surgical abortions.

In the United States, all women who are pregnant, and don't want to be, must undergo surgical procedures. These operations can be traumatic and costly. They can also be bloody — which is why some doctors are loath to perform late abortions on women infected with the human immunodeficiency virus that causes AIDS.

Eventually, RU-486 may be perfected into a "morning-after" pill, something a woman could take to bring on her period, regardless of whether she's sure she is pregnant.

In France, the pill is given only to women who have confirmed pregnancies. Taking's syndromé. Kathryn Hołowitz, a University of Colorado medical professor, worked with RU-486 for seven years in breast cancer research. "It slows the growth of cancer cells in a petri dish," she said. This year she found it difficult to obtain RU-486 to continue her exploration. "Never before have I run into political obstacles in trying to do my work," she said.

Here is a hormonal treatment that potentially could transform abortion. What's expelled is a blood clot, not a fetus with winsome features.

The pill will be available soon to women in Great Britain and Scandinavia. But not in the United States. That's because the huge German company, Hoechst AG, which owns the French concern Roussel-Uclaf, which invented the pill, is Hoechst, which also makes chemicals, plastics and textiles, fears a boycott if it promotes the pill in the United States.

Anti-abortionists have powerful friends in Washington, D.C.—The Federal Drug Administration should be welcoming clinical tests of this promising new drug. Instead, it has a new rule that makes it difficult for American scientists to import RU-486 for research, no matter what their goals.

RU-486 seems able to combat certain cancers, including brain cancer and Cushing's syndromé. Kathryn Hołowitz, a University of Colorado medical professor, worked with RU-486 for seven years in breast cancer research. "It slows the growth of cancer cells in a petri dish," she said. This year she found it difficult to obtain RU-486 to continue her exploration. "Never before have I run into political obstacles in trying to do my work," she said.

Some California advocates are thinking about bypassing the FDA with a plan that somehow would not require the little French pill to be imported or shipped from another state. They're eyeing a law that may allow the state to test and manufacture drugs for Californians' use only. Green submits that a similar law may enable New York to do the same. That law, however, mentions only testing; it says nothing about selling the drug within the state.

The first danger, as RU-486 becomes more widely available in Europe, is that it will become a black-market drug in the United States and be used without medical supervision. That could be a tragedy for some women. Blocking the pill to serve a narrow ideology is a bigger tragedy still.

Whatever happens next, so far it's been a decade where good guys won

Whatever happens in the Persian Gulf, however long or deep the recession and the Asian crisis, America has had the good sign of the fact that this has been a decade of victory.

The rusty, leaky Iron Curtain has lifted. The term "captive nations" has the same obsolete ring as the term "free world"; the nations are not captive anymore, and the world is free of Soviet communism, a decade and a half of bloody tyranny that for more than 70 years held millions in thrall.

That the United States under a line of presidents from Truman to Bush has been largely responsible for this great historical triumph of human liberty is the point here, with intended. The good people of the United States, by and large, seem unaware of their country's role is disappointing.

No Thermopylae, no Actium, no Lepanto, no Waterloo, nor any Gettysburg, Anzio or Tarawa caused this wonderful change. Rather it was the firm, unwavering dedication of millions of Americans who backed the Truman Doctrine and the Marshall Plan, endured the bitter cold of the Chosin Reservoir in Korea and brutal combat in Pleiku and Hue and the Delta, in taxes paid and missions flown and blood shed and steady pressure over generations that brought the communist structure finally crashing down. Freedom and individual liberty were right and successful. Collective tyranny and the cold, stultic, hopeless, Godless doctrine of economic determinism were wrong and have failed.

That is the historical truth, as rare as the destruction of the Berlin Wall and the privatization of the British welfare state. The good guys won.

People who still pretend not to know what the Vietnam War was all about might try to think beyond the atrocities inevitable in every war to the moral integrity of consistent resistance to evil.

I wish I could claim credit for this insight. Actually, it is a paraphrase of an address given by the chief justice of the United States, William Rehnquist, June 9 at commencement exercises of Thayer Academy in Braintree, Mass.

Deliberately unpublicized, Rehnquist spoke in fulfillment of a promise to his son, Jim, a one-time member of the Thayer faculty who has left teaching to practice law. Accompanied by Secret Service agents, the justice slipped in and out of town in a gray limousine almost unnoticed. But his talk had great meaning for those who heard it.

He pointed out that he graduated from high school six months after Pearl Harbor and that through all his life the nation had been involved in international struggle. The fascist and communist foes have now been subdued, the former in a bloody war and the latter in a long, hard continuation of an ideological and philosophical battle of the minds of men and women that began with the communist revolution in Russia in 1917.

Rehnquist quoted Wordsworth's line about the French Revolution, "Bliss it was in that dawn to be alive, to be young was very heaven," which Leonard Woolf, Virginia Woolf's husband, appropriated to apply to the Bolshevik Revolution.

Forgotten by such romantics, even today are the Terror and the Gulag, the massacre of nobility, peasantry, rivals, dissidents and genuinely revolutionaries, the intolerance of distinction, the conviction that ends justify any and all means.

Rehnquist said that under nine presidents, four Democrats and five Republicans, the United States "has had the courage of its convictions and stood firm in its policy for half a century" at great cost in lives and money.

"These lives and this treasure were furnished by the generations of the parents and grandparents of those of you who are graduating here today," he said. "You graduating seniors should realize that the brighter world into which you are stepping has been made possible by these sacrifices of your parents and grandparents — not in the immediate sense of supporting you and paying tuition but in the broader sense of having been willing to sustain the foreign-policy of the United States for over half a century."

Great changes that happen over a long time tend to be difficult to grasp for what used to be called "the New generation." And it is perhaps evidence of superannuation if not actual senility to take an optimistic view of history and to attempt to ascribe some credit for positive change. That the preceding reflection is not more widely shared and acknowledged is, and should be, of concern to Americans considering their country's future. We won.

Letters

Hunting an effective alternative

This letter is directed towards Bernice Walker's comments made several days previous. I would assume that you are somewhat pro-animal rights, if you are not then I apologize for my misjudgment. The helicopters that you are using in your area are there as a management tool to help control an alarming increase in coyote and fox populations. As their numbers increase, so do the depredation complaints increase, as well.

For several years now, animal rights activists have staged a propaganda war on the fur industry, causing a severe lack of interest in garments made from the skins of animals. Now, with the price of fur at an all-time low, so is the interest in the hunting and trapping of predators. With this lack of interest we now face because of declining fur prices, the population has to be controlled by other means. In their infinite kindness, these activists have all but written permission for the government agencies to bring back poison use, air gunning, and possibly even bounty to boost hunter interest. These activists can only blame themselves if they choose these courses.

I still enjoy predator calling even with the new price. I also realize that I may sell as a management tool of sorts, helping control the ever-increasing populations of coyotes and foxes. Even though I kill many of these animals, it doesn't mean that I have any less respect for them than you do. I also believe that foxes are 10-to-1 better mousers than any cat I've ever seen. However, I have never seen a feral cat run a sleep through a barbed-wire fence.

One area I had hunted in 1989 for foxes averaged two animals per square mile. This same area now averages five according to my log; far too many for this populated area to support. One woman in Filer I had asked to hunt last year who had politely said no, surprised me this year by saying yes on my return visit. It seems that a pair of fox had come into her yard on Thanksgiving morning and pulled her indoor cat off of her screen door.

I am definitely not an advocate of the old adage "kill them all," but hunting and trapping, when used properly, is an effective alternative to some of the other methods the activists are pushing the agencies into using. JIM LEB, Twin Falls

Tobacco ads aim at teen-agers

When I read in The Times-News on Dec. 12 that the tobacco industry is not directing advertising at teenagers, I felt I needed to respond to that blatant lie. The nicotine industry is well aware that its future lies in recruiting children. Each day nearly 1,000 adult smokers die of cigarette-induced cancer, heart disease, and emphysema. Another 4,000 quit smoking because they don't want to die. These smokers need to be replaced or profits will fall. Ninety percent of all smokers begin smoking by the age of 19. If the cigarette companies don't get them at that age, they won't get them at all. Several surveys have indicated that teenage smoking is up in the last few years and this is undoubtedly related to the increased advertising aimed at teens. In recent years, cigarette advertising revenue are up at a rate seven times greater than the inflation rate to the point where $9 million is spent per day on cigarette advertising. Would the companies spend this money if it didn't work?

Many of the new campaigns are aimed at teens. One of the most outrageous, but effective, is the cartoon character that urges teenagers to smoke Camels. Does the industry think that they can convince us that cartoon characters are aimed at adults?

In a country which highly prizes individual freedoms, one can argue about the pros and cons of advertising, but please don't ask us to believe that advertising is not aimed at teenagers. BARTON W. ADRIAN, M.D., Twin Falls

Resuscitator Baby helps with training

A couple of weeks ago, I hand-delivered a story to The Times-News regarding the fact that the Altnus Club of Magic Valley had donated a Resuscitator Baby to the American Red Cross local chapter.

Apparently someone decided that this was not a really important piece of information for the Magic Valley to have, I think it is.

Ruth Young, Chapter Manager, told us that the Red Cross is trying to identify people involved with infant and child care to ensure that these people get training in CPR for youngsters.

The Altnus Club of Magic Valley felt that this worthwhile goal deserved our support, and invested in the Resuscitator Baby so that more people would be able to be trained quickly.

The Altnus Club of Magic Valley is a community service group. Other current projects include recycling, student scholarships and providing funds for new furniture for the library expansion. MARTI OVERSTREET Twin Falls

Write to us

The Times-News welcomes letters from readers on subjects of public interest. To make sure your letter is published promptly, here are a few guidelines to remember:

Each letter should include the writer's signature, mailing address and telephone number. Typewritten letters are preferred, because they allow faster handling with less chance of error.

Letters may be brought to our Twin Falls office, mailed to P.O. Box 548, Twin Falls, 83403, or sent by fax to (208)734-5538.

Letters considered libelous, obscene or in bad taste will be rejected, as will material expressing racial, ethnic or religious bigotry.

We do not publish verse or poetry, and we generally remove or limit religious quotations. Articles taken from other publications will not be reprinted.

Because of space constraints, please limit letters to 400 words. Longer letters will be shortened. The Times-News reserves the right to edit all letters.

We look forward to hearing from you!

Glenns Ferry beats Valley to keep lead in Canyon Conference

EDEN — The Glenns Ferry Pilots held onto their Canyon Conference lead by defeating the Valley Vikings 49-43 in girls' basketball Monday night.

Mercl Smith scored nine of her game-high 23 points in the third quarter when the Pilots pulled to a 37-30 lead.

"That was the big difference. We couldn't shut her down," said Valley Coach Rod Malone.

Glenns Ferry is now 7-0 in league play, 10-1 overall.

"They're all big anymore," said Pilots Coach Deanna Brock. "Our conference is so evenly matched this year. There's no real standout team. My girls know that."

Tasha Marin added seven assists and four steals for Glenns Ferry. Smith also had 16 rebounds.

Valley, 6-4, 4-3, has lost three straight Canyon Conference games since losing center Regan Clark with a torn hip muscle.

Glenns Ferry — K. Smith 3, Brown 5, Marin 2, Young 2, Cowda 2, Warner 4, Gault 2, Hays 4, M. Smith 23, Butler 9. Totals 21-40, 7-10 25-40.
Valley — Gault 14, Marin 4, Cowda 5, West 3, Olson 2, Schwartz 3, Lewis 10. Totals 15-51 17-32 44-63.
Fouled out — K. Smith, Young.
Penalty game — Glenns Ferry won.

Shoshone 65, Carey 50

CAREY — The Shoshone Indians sped to a 17-0 start to deny Carey's attempt to keep up the Northside Conference race. The Indians' win leaves them 9-0 in league action. Carey falls to 6-2.

Shoshone — J. Ward 4, Hildner 6, D. Southwick 6, Heather Hubert 10, L. Ward 2. Totals 19-44 17-30.
Carey County — Mike B. Jones 2, Manier 6, Madison 1, Priddy 10. Totals 20-39 11-22 30-50.
Fouled out — Priddy.

Girls' basketball

Angie Hlibbard topped Shoshone with 14 points. Stormi King chipped in 12.

Behind Kathy Simpson's 23 points, Carey cut the lead to 59-50 with 1:30 left.

Shoshone — Heather Hubert 14, Hildner 14, D. Southwick 6, King 12, Hildner 2, O'Malley 9, S. Hildner 4, Duffin 8, Davidson 5. Totals 24-37 17-32 19-65.
Carey — Cowda 5, Wharton 1, Peterson 2, Hershberger 6, Kirkland 6, Simpson 23, Ellis 3. Totals 19-11 20-19 50.
The point guard — Hershberger.
Fouled out — Sparks, Peterson.

Dietrich 36, Camas County 26

FAIRFIELD — The Dietrich Blue Devils outscored Camas County 12-8 in the second quarter to set the state for a Northside Conference win.

"We started bobbling the ball and they took advantage of it," said Camas Coach Dave Sullivan. "We dug ourselves into a hole and couldn't quite climb out."

Heather Hubert, who scored all six of Dietrich's fourth quarter points, paced the Devils with 16 points.

Bobbi Jo Pridmore went 5-for-7 from the free throw line to lead Camas, 4-7, 2-7, with 11 points.

Dietrich — Heather Hubert 16, Hildner 6, D. Southwick 6, Heather Hubert 10, L. Ward 2. Totals 19-44 17-30.
Camas County — Mike B. Jones 2, Manier 6, Madison 1, Priddy 10. Totals 20-39 11-22 30-50.
Fouled out — Priddy.

49ers avenge earlier loss to Rams

ANAHEIM, Calif. — The ever-efficient San Francisco 49ers methodically took care of two items of business Monday night. Most importantly, they locked up the home-field advantage for the NFC playoffs as they go for their third consecutive Super Bowl title.

And, by beating the Los Angeles Rams 26-10, they avenged their only loss of the season.

The Rams, taking advantage of six San Francisco turnovers, upset the 49ers 28-17 on Nov. 25 at Candlestick Park. In Monday night's rematch at Anaheim Stadium, the 49ers played solid defense, got a 60-yard scoring pass from quarterback Steve Young.

Rice and a 74-yard run by rookie Dexter Carter for his first NFL touchdown.

"I think it was important for us to come in here and win because they beat us the last time and we played pretty bad," Montana said. "In the first part of the game (at Candlestick), we gave up the ball four of the first six times we had it."

"We felt if we didn't make those mistakes, we could play pretty well (in the rematch)."

San Francisco coach George Seifert said that revenge was no factor in the game.

"We respect John Robinson and Los Angeles too much," he said.

The 49ers close out the regular season with two games in which they have nothing at stake, but Seifert said his team must concentrate and improve.

"The important things now are dual purpose," Seifert said. "We have to get some players stronger and rested, and it still has to be paramount to win the games."

Alabama refuses to back out of Fiesta Bowl

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. — The University of Alabama refused on Monday to back out of the Fiesta Bowl, but agreed to measures to honor the memory of Martin Luther King Jr.

King was the founder of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, which asked that the Crimson Tide not play in the Jan. 1 game at Tempe, Ariz. The SCLC objected because Arizona voters voted down a referendum that would have made King's birthday a paid holiday for state employees.

The SCLC could not have been more eloquent or persuasive in presenting the case for why the university should not take part in the game.

"The decision of the Arizona voters," university President Roger Sayers said, "though our talks ended in thoughtful disagreement on the issue of attending the bowl, we did share certain goals and objectives for improving race relations both on campus and throughout the state."

A committee of faculty, staff and students agreed Monday that the school will set aside at least $100,000 from its bowl receipts to match contributions of $100,000 each from the bowl and its sponsor, Sunbelt, to enhance academic programs that relate to minority issues.

Alabama will join with Louisville and the Fiesta Bowl to honor King during the game. The Alabama band will wear shoulder patches in his honor and will join in a half-time tribute. The players have voted to wear armbands in King's memory and to present a portrait of the slain civil rights leader to the bowl.

The university also will reactivate an advisory committee for minority affairs "to promote full representation by African-Americans in the life of the university."

CSI basketball teams square off against NNC

TWIN FALLS — Both College of Southern Idaho basketball teams will face some pretty good competition tonight when they entertain the Northwest Nazarene Crusaders.

Coach Ben Stroud and his CSI women will wind up their pre-holiday schedule by entertaining the NNC Crusaders at 5:30 p.m. The men will meet the NAIA NNC men's team at 7:30 p.m. The men remain in action Wednesday night to play the Southwestern Oregon Community College at 7:30 p.m.

The Eagle women will be seeking to reprise their victory over NNC in the season opener but Stroud isn't sure it will be any easier this time around.

"They've beaten Western Montana in Dillon and that indicates to me that they are totally competent," said Stroud. "I feel we will have to play well to beat them here."

"They have some good inside height and their perimeter people are very good,"

who is more than aware of CSI's reputation and proclivities.

"I can't just sit and anticipate anything when you are going against a fairly veteran team," Trinkle said. "We anticipate a very tough battle."

CSI has not faced a SWOCC team since the Oregon junior colleges dropped out of NCAA competition. That forced the re-vamping of Region 18 from Oregon, Washington and Idaho to the current Idaho-Utah schedule.

"We know absolutely nothing about SWOCC except their roster. They are 6 foot, 8 inches, 6-9 and 6-10 on that roster. That would be the best size we've face this season but we don't know if those three people start," Trinkle said.

The CSI women will not play again until traveling to Treasure Valley on Jan. 9. CSI's men will disband for Christmas but return to Twin Falls on Dec. 30 to prepare for the Eagle Classic on Jan. 3-4.

UCLA off to best start since 1975

LOS ANGELES — Jim Harrick promised stability when he became the sixth man to follow John Wooden as UCLA basketball coach. What he's delivering is success.

At 7-0, the Bruins are off to their best start since Wooden quit winning national championships in 1973, and they're among the best in the nation in this week's Associated Press poll.

"Two years ago, I think we were 45th," Harrick said Monday. "That's probably the best part of it, where we were and where we've come to."

The Bruins haven't been ranked this high since the next-to-last poll of the 1982-83 season.

The top four teams — UNLV, Arkansas, Syracuse and Arizona — are unchanged from last week. Georgetown fell from No. 5 to No. 12 after losing to Texas; El Paso 71-60 on Saturday, clearing the way for UCLA to move up from No. 6.

"I know it's early in the season," Harrick said, "but I'd rather be there than not."

In his third season since replacing the fired Walt Hazzard, Harrick has compiled a 50-21 record. That's one more loss than Wooden had in his last 10 seasons combined, but it's progress nevertheless for a school that lost its first junior year two of the previous seasons before Harrick arrived.

"What got us to the top five is playing together, sharing the ball and making the extra pass," Harrick said. "We have better defenders, more depth and we're sharing the ball. Those are the key things."

UNLV (3-0), a 95-75 winner over Michigan State, polled 61 of 63 first-place votes and 1,573 ranking points; Syracuse, which beat Long Beach State 94-79, and UCLA, which beat DePaul 92-90, got the other two first-place votes.

Five UCLA players average in double figures, and three of them — Don MacLean, Steve Nash and Keith Owen — are making 60 percent or better of their field goal attempts. Tarver, a freshman, and Owens are reserves.

"We have seven starters," Harrick said, stressing the importance of Tarver and Owens. "We have goals of 20 to 25 assists and 52 to 55 percent (field goal shooting)."

We've reached those goals most of the time this year. We have some very good shooters on this team."

Harrick pointed to Owens and Tarver as keys to UCLA's success.

"He's just been a catalyst," Harrick said of Owens, who has blocked 22 shots in UCLA's seven games. "I expected him to help us and contribute and it's been much more than that. He does all the little things, he's the smartest player I've ever coached."

Shon Tarver, who won't be 18 until next week, has just played beyond his years. 24.3 points and 7.9 rebounds; Harrick said, "Don has worked very hard to become a complete player. He scores, rebounds, passes, defends and handles the ball. He's fourth on the team in assists and he's 10."

Glenns Ferry beats Valley to keep lead in Canyon Conference

EDEN — The Glenns Ferry Pilots held onto their Canyon Conference lead by defeating the Valley Vikings 49-43 in girls' basketball Monday night.

Mindi Smith scored nine of her game-high 23 points in the third quarter when the Pilots pulled to a 37-30 lead.

"That was the big difference. We couldn't shut her down," said Valley Coach Rod Malone.

"They're all big anymore," said Pilots Coach Deanna Brock. "Our conference is so evenly matched this year. There's no real standout team. My girls know that."

Tasha Morin added seven assists and four steals for Glenns Ferry. Smith also had 16 rebounds.

Valley, 6-4, 4-3, has lost three straight Canyon Conference games since losing center Regan Clark with a torn hip muscle.

49ers avenge earlier loss to Rams

The Associated Press

ANAHEIM, Calif. — The ever-efficient San Francisco 49ers methodically took care of two items of business Monday night. Most importantly, they locked up the home-field advantage for the NFC playoffs as they go for their third consecutive Super Bowl title.

And, by beating the Los Angeles Rams 26-10, they avenged their only loss of the season.

The Rams, taking advantage of six San Francisco turnovers, upset the 49ers 28-17 on Nov. 25 at Candlestick Park. In Monday night's rematch at Anaheim Stadium, the 49ers played solid defense, got a 64-yard scoring pass from Joe Montana to Jerry Rice and a 74-yard run by rookie Dexter Carter for his first NFL touchdown.

"I think it was important for us to come in here and win because they beat us the last time and we played pretty bad," Montana said. "In the first part of the game (at Candlestick), we gave up the ball four of the first six times we had it. We felt if we didn't make those mistakes, we could play pretty well (in the rematch)."

San Francisco coach George Seifert said that revenge was no factor in the game.

"We respect John Robinson and Los Angeles too much," he said.

The 49ers close out the regular season with two games in which they have nothing at stake, but Seifert said his team must concentrate and improve.

"The important things now are dual purpose," Seifert said. "We have to get some players stronger and rested, and it still has to be paramount to win the games."

Malone leads Jazz in holding off pesky Nets

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Karl Malone scored 23 points and grabbed 10 rebounds Monday night as the Utah Jazz held on to edge the New Jersey Nets 100-98.

"The Jazz, who made 28 turnovers, appeared to have a safe lead at 98-92 after Mark Eaton stuffed in a rebound on 51 seconds remaining."

But Chris Morris made a 3-pointer with 40 seconds to go and, after a tip-in by Eaton, Morris made a free throw with 40 seconds to go. The Nets used a full-court press and forced Jeff Malone into a backcourt violation leaving New Jersey's ball at midcourt with 2.2 seconds remaining. After a timeout, the Nets attempted to set up Mookie Blaylock for a potential game-tying 3-pointer.

As the ball was inbound, Blaylock was wrapped up by John Stockton and went to the line for two free throws. He made the first and intentionally missed the second.

Reggie Theus of New Jersey got a rebound shot, but the ball bounced off the back rim as the buzzer sounded.

Stockton had 17 points and 14 assists and Jeff Malone also scored 17 points for the Jazz, who have won seven of eight.

Morris scored 19 points for the Nets, who have lost three straight. Theus, Derrick Gervin and Jack Haley scored 14 points each.

Utah, which led 50-42 at halftime, scored eight straight points in the third quarter to open a 61-52 lead.

Pro basketball

Hawks 109, Cavaliers 98

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Dominique Wilkins hit seven straight field goals and scored 15 of his 32 points during the third quarter as the Atlanta Hawks beat the stumbling Cleveland Cavaliers 109-98 on Monday night.

John Battle added 24 points as the Hawks won their fifth straight game while sending the Cavaliers to their sixth straight loss. Cleveland is 1-7 in home games.

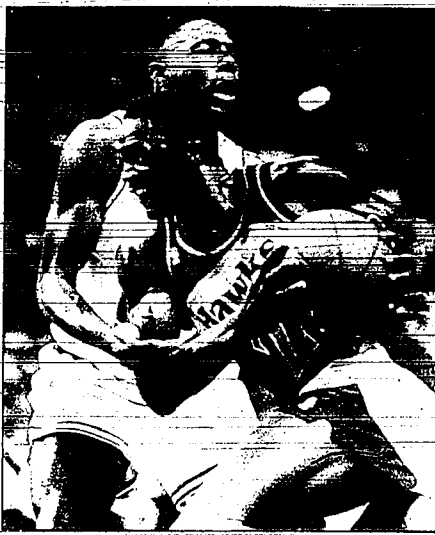

Spud Webb followed with a knee injury in a Nov. 30 game at Atlanta.

Battle and Wilkins each scored four points during an 11-2 run that put the Hawks ahead 49-34 late in the first half. They led by nine at halftime, and Wilkins sank two 15-foot jumpers and Spud Webb followed with an 18-footer for a 57-42 lead early in the third period.

Cleveland, which got 33 points and a career-high 18 rebounds from Brad Daugherty, fought back within seven — on Daugherty's — 15-foot jumper in the fourth quarter.

The Hawks, however, answered with eight straight points, the last four on jumpers by Battle, and Cleveland never threatened again.

Battle's 24 points came on game after he set his career high with 28 points in a win against Washington on Saturday. The Hawk had 16 points and 13 rebounds.

No. 7 Ohio State tops 100 for school-record 6th time

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Perry Carter scored 20 points and Jim Jackson added 18 as No. 7 Ohio State scored more than 100 points for a school-record sixth time in a 103-66 victory over Tennessee State on Monday night.

The Buckeyes moved to 7-0, the third time in the last 30 years they have opened with seven straight wins. Their closest game was a 30-point victory over Wright State.

The 103 points gave them six games with more than 100 this season, surpassing the record of five 100-plus games set last season.

Tamara Brown added 12 points. Greg Lee added

College basketball

11 and Bill Robinson had 10 points to go with a career-high 11 rebounds for Ohio State.

J.J. Eubanks, playing his first game after transferring from Marshall, scored 30 points for Tennessee State (2-7). Tony Lewis added 11.

Utah 68, Weber St. 52

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Utah survived poor first-half shooting and Josh Grant scored 14 of his 19 points in the second half as the Utes went on to defeat Weber State 68-52 Monday night. Jimmy Solo and M'Kay McGrath added 9 points each for the host Utes (8-1) of the Western Athletic Conference.

David Baldwin, Al Hamilton and Jason-Joe each scored 14 points for the Weber Wildcats (2-4) of ton and Jason Joe each scored 14 points for the Weber Wildcats (2s in the first half).

The Utes led 11-4 after a Byron Wilson 3-pointer with 13:57 remaining in the half, but the Wildcats finished the half with a 21-10 run to lead 25-21, at intermission. Hamilton hit all 8 of his first half points during the run.

Quarterback injuries throw NFL Super Bowl picture wide open

The Associated Press

Take Jim Kelly away from the Bills, Phil Simms from the Giants and Jim Harbaugh from Bears, and you have...

...fala fans who wanted him as the starter rather than Kelly. "We're not one man," said Bills coach Marv Levy. "There are 44 other guys who can pick it up for Jim."

from one division may make the playoffs — the Giants, Redskins, Eagles and Cowboys in the NFC East. That's because for the first time ever, league rules allow four teams from one division to make it.

over the Chiefs, who lost to Houston thanks to Warren Moon's near-record 527 passing yards. In fact, there are five AFC teams eliminated — New England, Cleveland, Denver, the New York Jets and San Diego.

Dallas' road to the playoffs still isn't particularly easy. The Cowboys must play next Sunday in Philadelphia, where the Eagles have been awesome lately.

once when San Diego was in position for a game-winning field goal, the second time in overtime to set up Norm Johnson's game-winning field goal for Seattle.

1. Unarmed, perhaps through the playoffs, three of the teams considered most dangerous to the San Francisco 49ers' chances of an unprecedented third straight Super Bowl championship.

2. Thrown the Super Bowl picture wide open by giving new hope to the second tier of challengers, led by the surging Eagles and Oilers.

Contradictory? Yes, but that's fitting in a season full of plot-twists in the NFL.

A month ago, the New York Giants were 10-0, the Chicago Bears and the Buffalo Bills 9-1. Since then, the Giants and the Bears are 1-3, the Bills 3-1, and all three are without their starting quarterbacks.

The Bills will go with Frank Reich instead of Kelly, out at least the rest of the regular season with a knee injury; The Giants will be led by Jeff Hostetler instead of Simms, out with a sprained foot, and the Bears are left with Mike Tomczak and Peter Tom Willis instead of Harbaugh, sidelined by a separated shoulder.

Buffalo, ironically, might have been better off for the long-term war if it had lost its battle with the Giants.

Kelly was injured in the Bills' 17-13 win one play after the Giants' Lawrence Taylor "dropped" what would have almost surely been an interception for a touchdown.

If Taylor had held the ball, the Bills might have lost the game, but not Kelly, and they wouldn't be much worse off — they still need a win over Miami in Buffalo next Sunday to wrap up the AFC East and the home field for the AFC playoffs.

But all isn't bleak for the Giants and Bills. New York has only to beat Phoenix or New England, hardly the toughest of opponents, to secure the second seed in the NFC behind the 49ers and a first-round bye. Moreover, Hostetler is 3-0 in sustained appearances (4-1 if you count the second half Sunday) and is the designated quarterback against the Cards — he relieved an injured Simms in the first game this season and rallied the Giants to a win, and he had a TD pass and two TD runs last season in Phoenix.

Reich, meanwhile, was 3-0 last season when Kelly was out and actually won a radio poll among Buf-

One good sign for Eagles fans is that there was less blowhardiness in the clubhouse.

"We can't get comfortable," Reggie White said inside the playoff-clinching win. "Besides, we were expected to make the playoffs all along."

For the first time ever, four teams

When the NFL added two more teams to the playoffs for this season. But with two weeks still left in the regular season, only four of the 12 berths are still available — just one in the NFC and three in the AFC. Moreover, two AFC teams can clinch at least wild-cards next week — Houston by beating Cincinnati and Kansas City by winning in San Diego.

Buffalo and Miami, who meet to settle the AFC East next week, have already made it. So have the Raiders, whose 24-7 victory over the Bengals Sunday put them in the playoffs for the first time since 1985 and gave them control of the West

Astrological Forecasts

IF DECEMBER 18 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You seem to have secret of attracting people to you — you are "boss office." You also are better at helping others than when it comes to promoting your own cause. Aries, Libra individuals play significant roles in your life. You must constantly be cautious when handling sharp objects, including tools, kitchen utensils. Marital status emphasized in 1991 — there could also be an addition to family.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Individual who deliberately ignored calls will now sit up and take notice. Emphasis on prestige, production, achievement. You could be recipient of famous honor: "Stand Tall," avoid false modesty.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent exploration, inquisitiveness, communication with one who knows plenty about travel, foreign customs, history. Major domestic adjustment results in beautifying surroundings. Libra involved.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): What you read is close at hand but not yet in sight. Someone who does know remains quiet. Information revealed through dramatic fashion. You'll enjoy every minute of it. Virgo represented.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Focus on power, authority, ability to meet deadline. Scenarios revolves around legal affairs, public relations, credibility, marriage. Opportunity exists to dramatically increase income.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Job that had unpleasant overtones is finally "out of the way." Accented practical affairs, care of pets, dependents, health report. Focus also on popularity, travel, advertising. Aries in picture.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You said you wouldn't do it again, but here it is and you will make attempt. Focus on pioneering project, inventiveness, style, daring. Member of opposite sex says, "You make it easy to fall in love!"

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Intuitive intellect on target. Attention revolves around basic safety, safety, shelter, durability. Acquaintance advice on whether to purchase property. Unorthodox methods bring results.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Almost as if by magic you have things your own way. Puzzle pieces fall into place, details unraveled, emotional-fulfillment replacement. Short trip involves relative, complexion of mission.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You're a 24-hour-a-day person. You may put second wind. Those who claimed you are a "day late" will be in for rude awakening. Financial picture bright enough to make you blink.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Cycle high, make public appearance, wear dark colors. Dialogue with Gemini, Virgo individuals — pro-stimulating — ultimately leads to profit. You'll be working with your hands, testing temper.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Individual who thought you were "asleep at the wheel" will pay price for such assumptions. Truth about, take advantage of an opportunity. Secret meeting results in elevation of prestige.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Family member confides, "I lost the money!" Don't cast first stone. Be interested, sympathetic without becoming inordinately involved in domestic controversy. Major wish will be fulfilled.

Gorbachev rebuffs resignation demand, offers few solutions

MOSCOW (AP) — President Mikhail S. Gorbachev on Monday "sweetly" rebuffed a demand that he resign "as a result of the devastation, hunger, cold, blood, tears" and responded with a call for a nationwide referendum on forming a new federation.

In an hour-long address to the Congress of People's Deputies, the national parliament, Gorbachev offered few solutions and took a decidedly conservative tone.

"We must not let the (Soviet) Union disintegrate. This would have a devastating effect on millions of people," Gorbachev said in a state-of-the-union address that received just a few seconds of light applause from the Kremlin audience.

The dramatic highlight came earlier, at the start of the 10-day Congress, when a nervous delegate demanded that Gorbachev resign.

"Who the hell says we do not have the moral right to hold his post," said lawmaker Sazhi Umutalova, a Communist Party hard-liner. "You brought devastation, hunger, cold, blood, tears. Innocent people Mikhail Gorbachev, right, listens with Boris Yeltsin, as he is perishing." Her voice shaking, the Congress assembly was defeated 1,288 to 426, and Gorbachev did not mention it. Her proposal to put such a vote on

The 59-year-old Kremlin leader's popularity has plummeted amid shortages of food and consumer goods, more crime and increased ethnic conflicts. Thousands of demonstrators have demanded he resign but never before had the issue come to a formal vote in parliament.

In his speech, which he read in a monotone without his usual deviousness, Gorbachev said the country's severest threat comes from secessionists.

"We must take strong measures to halt separatist, nationalist actions," he said.

He proposed a nationwide referendum on whether citizens want to form "a union of sovereign states on a federative basis." But he said republics that want to secede must follow laws requiring a separate referendum and a waiting period of up to five years.

The Baltic republics of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia already have declared independence. The 12 other Soviet republics have proclaimed some form of sovereignty.

The principle of a union of sovereign states is contained in Gorbachev's Union Treaty, which the Congress is to consider during its session. The treaty would preserve central control over national security and such key industries as energy and transportation. Most republics are demanding that the national government also yield power over economic decisions.

Delegates from the republics of Lithuania and Armenia boycotted the congressional meeting Monday,

Umutalova

The Congress, the country's highest lawmaking body, has the right to approve proposed constitutional changes, but only the republics have the power to approve the Union Treaty.

Gorbachev's main political rival, Boris Yeltsin, president of the Russian republic, said the proposed referendum would be a "waste of time" because the new federal structure already had been worked out by specialists. In general, he said, Gorbachev's speech showed he came to the Congress empty-handed.

"I expected to hear nothing new and my expectations came true," he told reporters. Speaker after speaker, expressed disappointment in Gorbachev's speech.

Gorbachev admitted making mistakes during his nearly six years in power but said the Soviet people can overcome them within 18 months, while moving to a market economy.

"We have learned a lesson, but we should not be panic-stricken," he said. He urged lawmakers to approve constitutional amendments to strengthen presidential power by adding a vice president and replacing the 89-member Council of Ministers with a Cabinet made up of about 15 people.

The Soviet Union, Gorbachev said, should not "return to the limitless dictatorship and arbitrariness we have condemned and rejected."

Despite the Russian Federation, parliament's approval this month of private ownership of land, Gorbachev stuck to a conservative line, calling for a nationwide referendum on the issue.

Killing mars celebration as U.S. says Aristide apparent winner

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — The U.S. government said Monday the Rev. Jean-Bertrand Aristide was the apparent winner of Haiti's first fully democratic election.

Widespread victory celebrations, however, were silenced when police killed a pregnant supporter of the left priest.

Although no official results were yet available from Sunday's balloting, Bernard W. Aronson, assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, said a U.S. delegation first met with Aristide Monday morning and congratulated him on his victory.

The U.S. official cited no figures but said it was clear from partial returns that Aristide had won without the need of a runoff.

"We congratulated him on his victory and told him the United States fully supports his democratic process in Haiti," Aronson said. "We fully respect him as the apparent president-elect of Haiti and look forward to working closely with his government."

The killing of the woman was the first violence reported in connection with Sunday's balloting, which international observers had described as the first fully democratic election in the Caribbean nation's turbulent 186-year history.

The independent Electoral Council had said it would begin issuing partial results of the election by noon Monday, but none had been announced by early afternoon.

Mary Bordes, an official at the council, said results were being entered into a computer, but she could not say when they would be made public.

Even before the results were known, however, thousands of jubilant supporters of Aristide, a charismatic leftist priest, had poured into the streets of the capital, Port-au-Prince, to celebrate his anticipated victory.

Aristide, a 37-year-old firebrand, told the poor during his campaign that they were following God's will to fight for their rights. He was expelled from the conservative Salesian Order in 1988 for allegedly inciting class hatred. He has said he would renounce the priesthood if elected, complying with a Vatican policy that priests can't hold public office.

The killing occurred at midday outside St. Jean Bosco Roman Catholic Church, where Aristide once preached and which was the site of an attack in September of 1988. In that violence, thugs armed with machetes, knives and pikes attacked the church during Mass, killing 12 parishioners and wounding 70.

Leaders decry rebel fighting in El Salvador

PUNTARENAS, Costa Rica (AP) — Five Central American presidents strongly condemned the Salvadoran guerrillas Monday for their latest military offensive and demanded an immediate rebel cease-fire in El Salvador.

The presidents ended their three-day summit with a communique that fully supported the rightist government of President Alfredo Cristiani.

Referring to the leftist rebels of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, the statement said: "We condemn the FMLN for its violent actions, which have caused pain and death in the Salvadoran civilian population and caused serious damage to the economic infrastructure of the country."

It demanded the rebels stop fighting and join the Salvadoran political process, the position the Salvadoran government has held in cease-fire talks. "We give our decided support to President Alfredo Cristiani in his repeated and permanent efforts to achieve peace through the peaceful means of dialogue and negotiation," the presidents said.

Dockworkers strike at busy French port

MARSEILLE, France (AP) — More than 1,300 Marseille dockworkers went on strike Monday in a pay dispute, severely disrupting operations at France's busiest port.

The strike halted cargo loading and unloading at the port's east basin, used primarily by ships traveling to and from Corsica and North Africa. Strikers used trucks and machinery to block entries to the docks.

The 690 dockworkers in the west basin were not involved.

The strike arose from a dispute with management over overtime pay. A three-hour period last week in which they did not work because of a strike by a seamen's union.

Gas explosion deadly

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A gas tanker exploded in a Punjab town on Monday, killing at least eight people, the Press Trust of India news agency reported.

The tanker, which was carrying liquefied petroleum gas, skidded off the road in the town of Mandi and caught fire, the news agency said.

Baker warns allies to resist partial solutions

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Secretary of State James A. Baker III said Monday that Saddam Hussein may withdraw some Iraqi troops from Kuwait by Jan. 15 in a ploy to divide the alliance against Iraq.

He urged foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to stand firm against any Iraqi tactics and resist partial solutions to the Persian Gulf crisis.

"We need to anticipate Saddam's possible moves, be prepared for a partial withdrawal play and coordinate closely our responses," Baker said at the start of a two-day meeting of the 16-nation North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Baker said he was willing to go to Baghdad for talks with Saddam on any day from Dec. 20 through Jan. 3, Iraq has suggested Jan. 12 for the talks, just three days before the deadline set in a U.N. resolution authorizing the use of force to drive Iraq from Kuwait.

"I ... Saddam Hussein is not willing to see me on any one of 15 dates, he is telling all of us that he is interested not in communication but manipulation," Baker said.

"We are willing to communicate, but not to play Saddam's games. And no one else should either," he told his counterparts in a text made available to reporters.

At the end of the day's talks, the ministers released a statement reaffirming their resolve to see the Iraqi invaders out of Kuwait by Jan. 15.

"The responsibility now lies with the government of Iraq to ensure peace by complying fully with the mandatory United Nations decisions," said the NATO statement.

It said complete withdrawal from Kuwait and restoration of its legitimate government "are unequivocal conditions for a peaceful solution."

"There can be no partial solutions," the statement said. Baker cautioned the ministers that as the mid-January deadline approaches, they should expect Saddam "to try to undercut the collective will of the international community to use force."

"Just as I believe it is our duty to release hostages for this purpose, I think he may take a dramatic step on or around Jan. 15," he said. "He could withdraw partially."

British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd urged Saddam to dismiss any thoughts of dividing the coalition against his Aug. 2 seizure of Kuwait. He said the NATO statement, as well as one issued during the weekend by the 12-nation European Community, underscored Western unity.

"All this should be mounting evidence for Iraq that there is no point in staying in Kuwait in the hope that somehow the coalition is about to split," he said.

"It is very important from the point of view of looking for peaceful solutions that the Iraqis should not deceive themselves in the next few weeks," he said.

"We have not decided to go to war, (but) we are running out of time," said Belgian Foreign Minister Mark Eyskens. "The choice between peace and war is in the hands of Iraq."

Italian Foreign Minister Gianni De Michelis said the European Community would decide Tuesday whether to meet this week with Iraq's foreign minister, Tariq Aziz.

The EC had asked De Michelis to meet in Rome with Aziz after he went to Washington for talks with President Bush. But Aziz's meeting with Bush scheduled for Monday was canceled.

Baker called on allies to shoulder more of the costs of the Gulf operation in light of increased U.S. troop deployments. By mid-January, the United States will have more than 400,000 troops in the Gulf region.

Ex-security officials say military action shouldn't be delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fourteen former government officials, including top national security experts, cautioned on Monday against delaying military action in the Persian Gulf much beyond the Jan. 15 U.N. deadline set for the withdrawal of Iraqi forces from Kuwait.

Adm. William J. Moorer, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said war in the Gulf "is certainly probable, but it is not totally certain."

"I think the debate is primarily about when it will become necessary rather than whether," Moorer said.

The retired admiral joined Robert F. Ellsworth, a former deputy secretary of defense, in releasing a letter that they and 12 other former civilian and military officials sent to Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz.

The letter urged Aziz to advise Iraqi President Saddam Hussein that the signers oppose demands in Congress for continued reliance on sanctions.

"Such misguided views should not stand in the way of the use of all necessary means" to enforce the deadline, the signers said.

"If Iraq does not unconditionally withdraw from Kuwait by Jan. 15, they said, "we do not believe it wise or in the interest of international security to delay the use of force. Necessary means much beyond that date."

Ellsworth, a former Republican congressman from Kansas, said that "the calls for letting the sanctions work for six months, for 12 months — some congressional leaders have even called for 24 months — simply play into Saddam Hussein's hands."

"Saddam Hussein will not respond to anything except a credible threat of immediate military action. That's what will move him out of Kuwait," Ellsworth said.

Moorer told reporters, "I don't think we can just sit forever and rely totally on sanctions."

The letter expressed support of President Bush and the U.N. Security Council in "insisting Iraq's immediate, complete and unconditional withdrawal from Kuwait."

Others signing the letter were Richard V. Allen and Robert C. McFarlane, both of whom served as national security advisers to former President Reagan; Thomas C. Reed, former secretary of the Air Force; John F. Lehman, former secretary of the Navy; Retired Gen. P.X. Kelly, former commandant of the Marine Corps; Retired Vice Adm. John J. Shanahan, former commander of the U.S. 2nd Fleet; Retired Brig. Gen. James D. Hittle, former assistant secretary of the Navy; retired Brig. Gen. Hugh S. Aitken, former deputy director of joint plans for the Marine Corps; Robert H. Knight, former chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York; Robert D. Blackwill, former special assistant to the president for national security affairs; Roland A. Paul, former counsel of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee; and William J. Taylor, former director for national security studies of the U.S. Military Academy.

Man dies after his car crashes into truck

TWIN FALLS - A man who came to Twin Falls from his native Romania last year died Monday morning when he ran a stop sign and crashed his car into a garbage truck.

Valentin Stana, 38, was driving his Chevrolet Citation west on Orchard Drive when he failed to stop at the intersection with Blue Lakes Boulevard South and smashed into a garbage truck driven by Gerardo Sanchez of Twin Falls, said Cpt. Salena Stanley of the Idaho State Police.

Stana, who was not wearing a seat belt, was thrown from the car and was dead when police arrived just before 7 a.m., Stanley said.

Although the garbage truck rolled onto its side, Sanchez and two other men inside received only minor injuries and were treated at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center and released, she said.

Burley, Rupert Chambers to host a legislators' luncheon

BURLEY - The Burley Area Chamber of Commerce and the Greater Rupert Area Chamber of Commerce will host a "meet your legislators luncheon" today at Price's Cafe in Burley.

Legislators from Districts 24 and 25 have been invited to speak on upcoming issues of the next legislative session.

The luncheon, which is open to the public and costs $5, will begin at noon at the cafe, 2444 Overland Ave.

Spears to make an offer to city of Jerome it can't refuse

JEROME - On the agenda for Tuesday's Jerome City Council meeting will be an offer from the Spears Manufacturing Co. that City Administrator Larry Paine says Jerome can't refuse.

The offer, from Spears "that we can't afford to turn down," Paine said, is to give the city a complete water system, including two wells, water storage tanks, a pumping system and water rights.

Water from the wells is being inspected to ensure it is safe from contamination left in the surrounding soil by Tupperware, which sold the facility two years ago.

The water system would supply water for the industrial park as well as for city use when required, Paine said.

Also scheduled is the third reading of the bill that would add a 5-percent increase to Jerome sewer rates to fund a sewer jet needed to keep sewer lines clear. The council will also hear the results of a recent audit.

Local veterinarian pleads innocent to 2 charges

TWIN FALLS - Twin Falls veterinarian David Stafford pleaded innocent in 5th District Court Monday to one count of aggravated assault and one count of first-degree burglary.

Stafford, 37, is accused of pointing a gun at another local veterinarian, Robert Monroe, with whom Stafford has had a long-running feud.

The burglary charge stems from a 1989 incident in which one of Stafford's clients claims the veterinarian stole her microwave oven.

5th District Judge Daniel Harlbutt stated a scheduling conference for Jan. 2 at which time a trial date will be set.

Voters can cast ballots in 12 locations for CSI elections

TWIN FALLS - Voters may cast ballots today at 12 locations for the College of Southern Idaho Board of Trustees election pitting Buhl artist Teddy Keeton against Twin Falls dermatologist H. Fred Scholze, the incumbent.

The polling places are the Taylor Administration Building on the CSI campus, the main lobby of the Twin Falls County Courthouse, Morningside, Elementary School in Twin Falls, the Buhl Senior Citizen Center, the Red Barrel in Castletown, Valley High School, Filer High School, Hansen City Hall, Hellsburg Grade School, Jerome Senior Citizens Center, the Kimberly Senior Citizens Center and the Minnigh City Hall.

Voters may select the most convenient polling place. They will be required to sign an oath stating that they have not previously voted today and that they are registered voters.

Idaho spuds may be on Soviet tables soon

By Mark Kind
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Idaho's lingering bumper crop of potatoes may end up on Soviet dinner tables if Sen. Steve Symms gets his way.

He has asked U.S. Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yentler to pitch spuds when Soviet commodity buyers arrive over the next few weeks to buy agricultural produce.

"This is a heck of an opportunity to help out while selling down a bumper crop of Idaho potatoes," Symms said in a press release Monday.

The Soviet Union grows 20 percent of the world's potatoes and is the world's largest producer. But this year the country's nagging transportation and storage have been worse than usual and President Bush recently approved special export credits to allow the Soviet Union to buy more U.S. farm products.

Idaho has huge stocks of potatoes remaining from this year's record harvest - 79.5 million 100-pound sacks remained in farmers, processors and packers sheds as of Dec. 1.

The president of the National Potato Board said last month during a visit with the Potato Growers of Idaho that he did not expect the Soviets to use export credits to buy potatoes, however.

"I suspect they'll need feed grains and things like that," Bob Mercer said.

The Associated Press reported Monday that corn futures prices rose Monday in response to indications that the Soviet Union was seeking to buy as much as 600,000 metric tons - about 22 million bushels.

That activity also carried wheat futures slightly higher on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Symms said up to 26 million pounds of frozen dehydrated potatoes could be available for "immediate export" if the Soviets want them.

CSI may need new housing

By Kirk Mitchell
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - The College of Southern Idaho may need new dormitories soon to accommodate students who cannot find housing, President Gerald Meyerhoeffer said Monday.

"It's not an easy case to find housing in Twin Falls," Meyerhoeffer told members of the school's board of trustees at their monthly meeting Monday night.

A recent poll of 346 students found that 90 students or 27 percent of respondents knew people who wanted to attend CSI but couldn't because they were unable to find housing.

Meyerhoeffer said some students with scholarships were unable to find housing and did not come to CSI.

The survey found that 105 respondents of 31 percent drive more than 10 miles from their residences to reach the college.

Fifty-one or 21 percent of respondents said it took more than a month to find a residence.

One student said it took one year to find a place.

The survey found that 78 percent were satisfied with the cost of their housing, the location of their housing and the quality of their housing in three separate questions.

In other business, the board accepted bids from three different Salt Lake City companies for $51,733 in telecommunications equipment that will be used to link classes between the CSI campus and Gooding.

A Federal Title 3 grant will pay for the equipment, said Jerry Beck, dean of continuing education.

The link will be part of an expanding system to give people in rural areas of Magic Valley access to CSI classes, Beck said.

The video and television system will enable teachers and students at Burley, Twin Falls or Gooding to interact during a lesson with students at the other locations simultaneously.

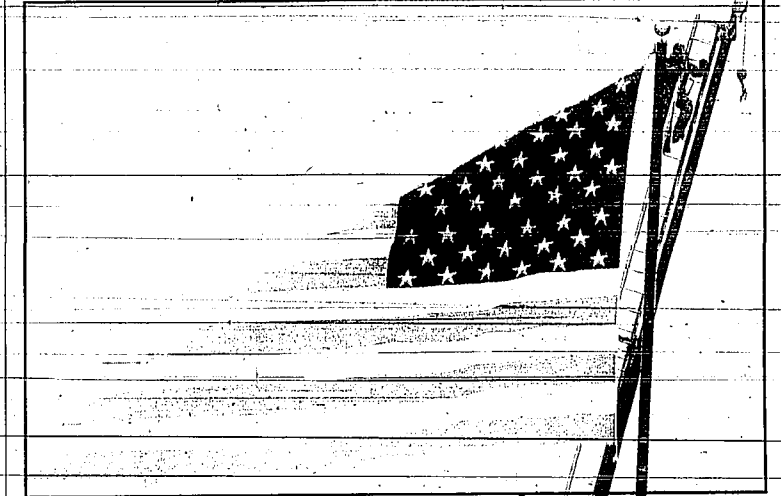

The Gooding system will be ready by next fall, Beck said.

He anticipates between 75 and 100 new CSI students will participate in the program. This fall was the first semester the program was used in a link with Burley.

A hundred new students in the Mini-Cassia area enrolled at CSI this year because of the new program, he said.

Students will pay $40 per credit for the classes and Gooding County will pay $50 per credit, he said.

2 Twin Falls police return to duty

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Two Twin Falls police officers were reinstated to active duty Monday after Idaho deputy attorney general said he does not plan to file charges against them or a third officer in connection with an off-duty arrest.

Twin Falls Public Safety Director Paul Du Fresno, who declined comment earlier, said Monday that officers Chuck Dudley and Dan Chatterton have returned to duty.

Dudley and Chatterton had been on paid administrative leave since attempting to arrest a 16-year-old Twin Falls youth on Dec. 7 a few hours after attending a department Christmas party. A third officer, Mike Covington, returned to normal duties earlier.

"I'm relieved at this point to see my officers are not going to be charged," Du Fresno said.

He referred to a Monday afternoon conversation with Michael Kane, the chief of the attorney general's criminal law division, during which Kane said he reviewed a report from the Idaho Bureau of Investigation over the weekend and decided no charges are warranted.

"At this time, barring any further information, it is not my intention to file charges against anyone as a result of the officers' actions," Kane said in a letter to Du Fresno. Kane could not be reached for further comment.

Although no charges will be filed by the state, Du Fresno said there will be an internal review of the incident within the police

City won't wreck firm's plans to grow

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - The Twin Falls City Council gave the go-ahead Monday night for wrecking yard to expand its operations to include a sawmill and log-home factory.

Jack Jansson, whose mother, Nelda, had applied for a zoning change to allow the expansion of the family's wrecking yard on Addison Avenue West, told council members that an eight-foot fence and some landscaping will prevent the expansion from becoming an eyesore.

Nobody at the meeting objected to the expansion, which rezoned 16 acres formerly classified C-2 to M-2.

In other action, the council upheld an earlier planning and zoning commission ruling placing restrictions on a proposed golf cart storage building on Grandview Drive.

Northwest Crane, Rigging and Transport Co. appealed conditions placed by the commission on a special-use permit that would allow the building.

The council stood by the commission in requiring a paved entrance, landscaping and other conditions, but added that some of the requirements might be deferred for as long as three years.

Craig is Idaho's top spender in election campaign

Craig's spending amounted to a whopping $15 million

By Anita Dennis
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Republican Sen.-elect Larry Craig was the top spender among six candidates seeking congressional seats in Idaho in the 1990 general election.

He spent $1.5 million to win the U.S. Senate seat vacated by retiring Republican Sen. Jim McClure.

The latest "sunshine reports" - mandatory campaign finance disclosures - show that Rep. Craig received $1,491,433 in net contributions from the first of year through Dec. 31. During the same period, his net operating expenditures totaled $1,504,778.

"The way I look at it, since 1980 ... this is not an expensive race," said Al Henderson, Craig's campaign manager.

But Henderson said that Craig spent $2 million in his re-election bid and in 1986 Sen. Steve Symms and his unsuccessful challenger, Democrat John Evans, each raised $3 million, Henderson said.

By contrast, Craig's Democratic opponent, Boise businessman Ron Twiligar, spent $803,004. He said a Senate seat can be won for that amount, but not if the candidate is outspent by a 3-to-1 margin.

"It's the ratio that's important," Twiligar said. The election was not decided on results of ideas. Twiligar said. "It was decided on money."

Twiligar received $403,529 in net contributions and took out $138,600 in loans, $122,600 of which came from his personal funds. On Nov. 26, the Senate Committee for Twiligar was still $228,726 in debt, almost half of which was owed Twiligar.

Twiligar said he had hoped to raise $1 million, and had anticipated only contributing $500,000 of his own money to the campaign. Instead, he will end up contributing about $200,000, he said.

Twiligar received more than half his contributions from political action committees - $212,049. In the final reporting period, Oct. 18 to Nov. 26, he got $49,199 from 31 PACs, particularly from labor interests such as American Federation of Teachers, American Postal Workers, Bricklayers, United Mine Workers and United Steel Workers of America PACs. He was also supported by the National Abortion Rights Action League and the Sierra Club.

He also received a total of $156,473 in individual contributions. In the last reporting period, Twiligar got $20,445 from 46 individuals and $7,481 in individual unitemized contributions of less than $200 each.

Craig also received more than half his contributions from PACs, $766,945. In the final reporting period, Craig got $125,946 from 92 PACs, including insurance, real estate, power, timber, defense and oil interests. He was also supported by the National Rifle Association, the Right to Work PAC, the Adolph Coors Co. and a tobacco company.

Craig received $665,331 in individual contributions. In the last reporting period, he got $50,825 from 871 people.

Craig took out no loans, contributed none of his own money to the campaign and had no debts when the election was over.

"That's the best way to run a campaign," Henderson said.

On the congressional side, 2nd District Democratic Congressman Richard Stallings spent $332,921 to keep his seat against Republican challenger Sean McDevitt, who spent $109,293.

"It was definitely in the range of what we expected to spend," said Saltee Gansser, Stallings' campaign manager.

Stallings collected a total of $293,661 in contributions, about one-third from individuals - $101,035 - and two-thirds from PACs, $192,626. He contributed none of his own money and took out no loans.

In the last reporting period, Stallings received $18,224 from 430 individuals. During the same time, he got $38,555 from 32 PACs, including agriculture, real estate, insurance and labor interests. He also got $1,500 from Justice, a pro-life organization; $500 from the Sierra Club and $4,500 from the National Rifle Association.

Stallings' campaign committee had $12,094 in debts after the election.

McDevitt, meanwhile, received $80,324 in contributions, a little more than half of which came from individuals, $42,859. In the last reporting period, he got $4,000 from his parents and $1,000 from Joe Albrecht, owner of the food store chain. Another $7,641 came from individuals giving less than $200.

McDevitt only received $1,900 from PACs, $500 in the last period, from the Conservative Victory Fund. He contributed $31,055 of his own money. His sunshine report says

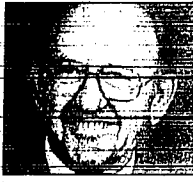

"The report also indicates McDevitt still owes $30,000 on a bank loan he took out in February, and that he paid $30,000 on another loan, but there is no supporting documentation for that payment. His father found him that amount in October, and since written to the Federal Election Commission that it is being repaid.

No individual can contribute more than $1,000 to one candidate per election. Unpaid loans are considered contributions.

The Idaho Democratic Party filed a complaint with the FEC in November alleging that McDevitt was illegally financing his campaign with an improper loan from his family.

implied that the officers were involved in "drunk and disorderly" conduct.

Chatterton wanted to make it clear he did not drink at the party. Stubbs said adding that it is important for a police officer such as Chatterton, who has stressed that he does not drink, to refute any implication that he was drinking. "His reputation can be hurt," said Stubbs.

"Right from the start, there never was any question of the officers being drunk or disorderly when they came into the station that evening," Du Fresno said. "Although they had been at a Christmas party, there was no indication that they had been drinking."

Chatterton and Covington have declined comment. Dudley has threatened a lawsuit against the city over what he said were allegations that "have not been truthful."

Mark Stubbs, an attorney for Chatterton, said the officers dispute Marshall's account of the incident. He said the officers said they identified themselves as police and that his client did not touch Marshall.

On Friday, Stubbs sent a news release to Twin Falls-area news media warning of a possible slander action against anyone who was releasing false information about his client.

Stubbs said televised news reports

Any disciplinary action taken against the officers would not be made public in accordance with state law, he said.

Kane's investigation was sparked when the three off-duty officers attempted to arrest Dennis Marshall, 16, of Twin Falls.

In an interview with The Times-News last week, Marshall said his first contact was with a car containing two off-duty officers. He said he had cut off the private, unmarked car in traffic in retaliation for being cut off by the car moments before. He did not know the occupants were police officers, he said.

Marshall said one of the out-of-uniform officers pulled him from the car after he stopped at red light. At some point a third officer, also in civilian clothes, arrived. They didn't identify themselves," Marshall said. "They didn't show me a badge, did not say they were police."

Marshall said when the man holding him slipped, he got back into his car and locked the door. Once Marshall was back in his car, Marshall said one of the officers pointed a gun at him, prompting Marshall to drive away.

While pulling away from the curb, Marshall said he bumped one of the officers with the front fender of his car. Marshall drove home and was met there by uniformed officers, who arrested him, handcuffed him and took him to the police station. He was questioned and released, and Marshall said he was not charged and was not given a traffic citation.

Du Fresno said he placed the officers on paid leave to remove them from public attention until an investigation was complete, not because they did anything wrong. "The administrative leave was intended to provide the officers with some opportunity to receive outside public scrutiny," Du Fresno said. "I regret that their names became public information."

Holiday season highlights hardships of working poor

The Associated Press

BOISE — As Christmas nears, exposing and amplifying needs of the plight of groups throughout Idaho are struggling to cope with a looming recession and a growing, changing clientele.

They still serve the homeless, the transient and the unemployed. But they are dealing more and more with the plight of the working poor, people with jobs who still find themselves unable to survive without some help.

"Most of the people we serve here have some type of a part-time job and they're looking for full-time work, they're working full-time for a minimum wage," said Doug Gabel, director of the Bonner Community Food Center, which operates food banks in Sandpoint, Priest River and Clark Fork.

It is not a problem isolated to the panhandle. Social service agencies throughout the state report as many as 65 percent of the people they as-ist have at least one income in their households and still qualify for help under federal-poverty guidelines.

But hardships faced by the working poor become more evident during the holidays, when higher heating bills, a shortage of low-income rental housing and other unfulfilled needs pinch most.

This year especially, with the costs of fuel and petroleum-based products rising and signs that Idaho's economy may be starting to follow the nation's into the doldrums, charities are finding their services in increasing demand.

The difference between the haves and the have-nots is growing," said Janis Rhoads, executive director of the Southwestern Idaho Community Action Agency in Pocatello.

A chronic housing shortage is among the most pressing concerns in the Twin Falls area, a crossroads for workers seeking low-income service jobs in the resort community of Sun Valley or the gambling halls of northern Nevada.

"I think it's going to get worse before it gets better," said Cyd Dillon, multi-county specialist for the South Central Community Action Agency.

In Boise, requests for food baskets at the local Salvation Army office are up 33 percent from last year. But collections from the group's ubiquitous kettles also are barely keeping pace with 1989, and response is down to its holiday fund-raising appeal through the mail.

At the Idaho Hunger Action Council, Executive Director Wanda Michaelson said calls for help and referrals have "drastically increased."

"We're out of food all the time," she said. "Instead of being able to stockpile for the winter, it's going out as fast as it's coming in."

Since July, Gabel said, his agency has been serving about one-third more people than the previous monthly average of 400. Swelling demand are a growing number of people passing through the area in search of Idaho's much ballyhooed economic boom.

Food is the biggest problem in the Pocatello and Blackfoot areas, where food-basket distribution has grown from 200 in all of 1988 to as much as 200 a month now.

So why is Salvation Army spokeswoman Joy Buermyer still upbeat?

"We're the most optimistic group in the world," she said. "We just anticipate that the money or donated goods will come in to meet the need."

Michaelson said the Hunger Action Council has been tracing since early November for harder times signaled by corporations scaling back their donations to compensate for an anticipated drop in earnings.

But besides appealing again to individuals, churches and other regular contributors, there has been little her organization or others could do to prepare for the Christmas season or the even tighter times charities always see after the holidays. "Agencies that operate on a shoestring, like individuals who operate on a shoestring, don't have much latitude in terms of putting money away for a rainy day."

Michaelson said. "But we can't pare back in times of recession. That's when we're needed most."

And in some areas, response to the need is encouraging. Both Twin Falls' Dillon and Rhoads said giving is up this year, especially from the middle-class, churches and service clubs.

In Pocatello, Rhoads credits an emphasis on "strategic planning" aimed at building public awareness of local problems. She said her group works to personalize contributors' involvement with the needy and refuses to rely primarily on short-term government grants.

Dillon said part of the improvement also might stem from the passing of the so-called "Me Generation," and a growing realization of poverty and hunger hitting a little too close to home.

"I've seen a lot more people responding to the needs of the people who are in need," she said. "People who have never given before are coming out and saying, 'We want to help.'"

Government can reduce Palisades Dam flows

The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — The government can reduce flows from Palisades Dam in eastern Idaho over the opposition of fishing and conservation groups, without a formal environmental study, a federal appeals court says.

The U.S. Bureau of Reclamation dam was operating over 13 years before the federal environmental reporting law took effect, and flow reductions are a routine part of its management, said the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

For projects that were completed before the law took effect, no environmental report is required when officials are taking "routine managerial actions ... simply operating the facility in the manner intended," said Judge Oliver Kocisch in the 3-0 ruling issued Monday.

The court rejected a suit by Trout Unlimited, other fishing groups and the Idaho Environmental Council seeking to require the bureau to prepare an environmental impact statement before reducing water flows from the dam below 1,000 cubic feet per second.

The suit was opposed by the bureau and by farmers who rely on the reservoir water for irrigation.

Twin Falls Attorney Steven Tolman, lawyer for the Twin Falls Canal Co. and other users of water from the reservoir, said the ruling was vital to farming on hundreds of thousands of acres.

"It allows the bureau to store water, which is critical to the irrigation in this part of state," he said. "Without that stored water they would never be able to produce a crop."

Tolman said lining hundreds of miles of canals with concrete to prevent seepage would be prohibitively expensive.

He said reducing flows from the dam "is going to kill off some fish, but it's not going to eradicate them."

The dam is on the South Fork of the Snake River, about 15 miles from the Wyoming border.

Flows from its reservoir normally exceed 1,000 cfs but were reduced as low as 750 cfs in 1988 because of a lack of rainfall.

The bureau now is releasing 1,200 cfs into the river from a reservoir at Jackson Lake above the dam, said Russell Webb, lawyer for the plaintiffs.

Webb said an environmental statement would have to examine methods of saving water, such as lining irrigation canals, that would be less damaging to the fishery than cutting dam releases through the area in fits.

"Right now, half the capacity leaches through the main feeder canals before it ever gets to an irrigated field," he said.

The appeals court, upholding a decision by U.S. District Judge Marion Callister, noted that the dam began operation in 1936, and the National Environmental Policy Act, which requires review of major federal actions affecting the environment, did not take effect until Jan. 1, 1970.

The fishing and environmental groups argued that flow reductions below 1,000 cfs from the dam were not part of routine management, as they had occurred for seven days or more in only three years — 1977, 1982 and 1988, all drought years. But the court said the decisions were nonetheless routine.

"A particular flow rate will vary over time as changing weather conditions dictate," Kocisch said. "In particular, low flows are the routine during drought years."

Bruina McDevitt, the candidate's mother and treasurer, declined to comment on the report Monday.

Her son could not comment either, she said, because he was out of town.

"We've learned our lesson and we're never going to talk to any media ever again," she said.

The two candidates vying for Craig's open 1st Congressional District seat spent about the same amount. State Sen. Skip Smyser, R-Parma, received $458,828 in net contributions since the first of the year and his net operating expenses were $451,914.

Boise Democrat Larry LaRocco, the winner, received $386,032 and spent $414,870.

Alpine chief dispute is nearly over

ALPINE, Utah (AP) — An end to the dispute between Alpine City and its former police chief may be at hand, although residents sponsoring a petition to reinstate the chief are not giving up their efforts.

Alpine Mayor Elaine Barnes signed a settlement agreement Friday that was negotiated between the city and former chief Brent Lesberg about three weeks ago.

That document, which allows Lesberg to resign rather than be fired from his position, and a check for one month's severance pay, were to be given to Lesberg in a meeting Tuesday.

Because the City Council passed the resolution in a public meeting Nov. 27, signing it is a formality, according to Lynn Lund, an attorney representing Alpine.

The city gave Lesberg the original copy and transcripts of a tape recording of "allegations of improper behavior against Les-berg" in a meeting last Wednesday.

However, copies of the tape have been leaked to the media, including the Deseret News. The settlement between Lesberg and city officials prohibits both parties and city employees from talking about the contents of the recording.

On the same day, a female officer, though with Alpine, told another Alpine officer about an incident involving Lesberg that occurred last March, the Deseret News reported Monday. The female officer apparently was aware the conversation was being recorded.

Neither Lund nor Lesberg would comment on the tape.

Lund said the city will play a role in the city's decision to hire Lesberg.

He said the city will play a role in the city's decision to hire Lesberg.

Idaho man is captive 4th holiday

BOISE (AP) — Former Boise resident Jesse "Jon" Turner won't have a merry Christmas.

Although all the American hostages in Iraq have been released in time for the holidays, Turner and 12 other westerners will remain captives of radical Moslem groups in Lebanon.

This is the fourth year Turner, 43, will spend Christmas imprisoned by armed terrorists. That means a "rough Christmas for his family in Boise as well.

"Christmas is harder this year because you see Joanne without her daddy and Brad without her husband. We're just not a complete family," Turner's mother, Estelle Neuburg, said.

Turner's wife, Brad, and daughter, Joanne, 3, are staying with Joanne and her husband, Eugene, at their Boise home.

"Any of the fun or happy things we do, Jon is always in my mind," said Brad, who was raised in Beirut and Syria. "Every celebration we have, everything we do, we think of him."

Brad said her sisters, who live in Beirut, had heard rumors that all the hostages may be released before the end of the year.

Turner was kidnapped along with three other American professors from Beirut University College on Jan. 24, 1987. Two of the men have since been released; Ajam Sien remains in captivity with Turner.

Eric Chalabi, a Lebanese native and Middle East expert at Santa Monica College in California, said he believes conditions in Lebanon favor a release of the hostages.

The various factions that have thrown Lebanon into civil war for the past several years have stopped fighting and are giving up their weapons.

Also, the central government, with the backing of Syria's army, seems to be regaining control of the country.

Chiropractic students make no bones about their studies

DEAR ABBY: I am a student at a chiropractic college in Portland, Ore. When I told a friend that my microbiology instructor has a Ph.D. in microbiology, a master's degree in public health and has worked in Malaysia as an expert in tropical diseases, my friend said, "Why is someone with such outstanding credentials teaching at that quick medical school you go to?"

Dear Abby
Abigail VanBuren

Abby, this brought home a popular misconception many people have about chiropractors. We take many of the same courses that are taught in medical school — with less emphasis on drugs and biochemistry, and more emphasis on nutrition, biomechanics, the nervous system and radiology. I'm learning to recognize disease and dysfunction, to treat what's appropriate for chiropractic care and refer what is not. I must go to school for four years and pass the national and state boards before I can practice.

It bothers me to work this hard, learn so much and dedicate my life to patient care, and know that about half the population thinks I'm an untrained quack with a one-year degree. Please let people know that we are competent, well-trained, and we care.

CAROLYN MCMAKIN,
PORTLAND

DEAR CAROLYN: I called Dr. Charles F. Downing, president of the American Chiropractic Association, who graciously allowed me to fax your letter to him. He then faxed me the following letter:

DEAR ABBY: Unfortunately, Carolyn's experience is not uncommon. There are many people who remain misinformed about chiropractors and their legitimate role in the health-care system.

Worldwide studies by governmental commissions and independent researchers have demonstrated the health and cost benefits of chiropractic care. Chiropractic colleges can attract highly qualified science faculty, like Carolyn's microbiology instructor because the faculty know the facts and want to help chiropractic students become competent, scientifically trained doctors of chiropractic.

Recent scientific studies continue to validate the superiority of chiropractic over traditional medicine in the treatment of CERTAIN CONDITIONS — most recently, a study published in the July 1990 issue of the British Medical Journal titled "Low Back Pain of Mechanical Origin," by Meade, Dyer, Browne, Townsend and Frank.

The exams administered to doctors of chiropractic are some of the most stringent anywhere as they relate to human health and biomechanics. To the degree they focus on specific aspects of health — the nervous system and its relationship to proper functions of the body — they are known to be the most stringent compared to other examinations.

To be informed is to be enlightened. The American Chiropractic Association encourages citizens of the world to discover the truth behind the effectiveness and affordability of this health-care alternative as a mainstream option. Please feel free to write to the American Chiropractic Association for more information: 1701 Clarendon Blvd., Arlington, Va. 22209. Please enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Employing older workers may reduce health insurance costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Employing older workers does not cost much more in health insurance expenses than employing younger ones and may actually reduce an employer's health insurance costs, a study says.

It concluded that differences in workers' health insurance costs among age groups were not great enough to be a major factor in employment decisions.

The study, commissioned by the American Association of Retired Persons, compared insurance costs of younger and older workers, reviewed federal studies and examined data from Blue Cross-Blue Shield's Federal Employee Program.

Health insurance costs for older workers compared favorably to younger workers in part because the older employees generally had fewer dependents. "In addition, hospital admission rates and lengths of stay have been falling rapidly for older Americans," it said.

The study found instances in which hiring older workers could actually reduce employer health costs, including:

- Hiring older single workers. The study said the highest-expense single-worker group, those aged 60-64, costs less than the lowest-expense family group, parents aged 25 or younger.

- Hiring older workers eligible for Medicare which will pay most of the medical bills for those over 65.

- Hiring older workers covered by another employer, including those workers covered in a spouse's or other household member's health care.

Andrus appoints 2 to state agencies

BOISE — Gov. Cecil Andrus has announced appointments to two state agencies.

Roy Egenkopf, of Boise, was appointed to the Uniform Building Code Advisory Board and will represent the recreational vehicle industry on the panel. He succeeds Robert Payne of Boise, whose term had expired.

Also, contractor Gene Brown of Lewiston was re-appointed to the board. Both men's terms run until July 1, 1994.

Todd Flick of Nampa was appointed to the Alfalfa Seed Commission as a representative for seed dealers, with his term running until June 30, 1993. Flick succeeds Mike Finke, also of Nampa, whose term had expired.

INEL prepares for holiday week off

ARCO — Major contractors at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, convinced that the Christmas holidays are extremely unproductive for their work forces, are preparing for their first major Christmas week shutdown.

INEL spokesman Brad Bugger said only about a fifth of the site's normal 7,000 a day labor force were expected to report for work during the holiday week.

EG&G Idaho Inc., Westinghouse Idaho Nuclear Co. and MK-Ferguson of Idaho have been encouraging a holiday shutdown for several months, following the lead of Argonne National Laboratory-West and Rockwell-INEL, which have been closing down during Christmas Week.

Because many workers take off during the holidays anyway, leaving offices understaffed and unproductive, the large contractors want non-essential workers to take off Dec. 26-28 and New Year's Eve along with their already-paid holidays of Christmas Eve, Christmas Day and New Year's Day.

The company has offered their workers the options of taking vacation time, unpaid leave or advance vacation against their 1991 time off.

Idaho Power gathering plant samples

BOISE — As part of its environmental field work, Idaho Power Co. has been collecting a lot of plant samples.

And soon, the collection promises to become the largest botanical sampling of southern Idaho's Snake River drainage, company officials say.

The Idaho Power herbarium contains more than 530 samples of 300 species of plants, utility plant ecologist Nancy Cole said.

"It could double in size by the early part of the next century when we finish the intensive stage of data collection," she said.

Plant research is linked to the company's environmental assessment of the habitat impacted by the relicensing and operation of its Snake River hydroelectric generating plants.

Shaw stays on national beef board

CALDWELL — A southern Idaho man has been reappointed to a national board for beef promotion and research.

U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Clayton Yutler named Tom Shaw to continue serving on the Cattlemen's Beef Promotion and Research Board.

Shaw, who has been on the board for the past four years, raises cattle near Cascade. He is a past president of the Idaho Cattle Association and the Idaho and American Hereford Associations. Also, he has served on the board of the National Cattlemen's Association.

The Beef Promotion and Research Board was created in 1985 to help increase beef consumption and is funded by a $1-per-head check-off.

Nez Perce Forest supervisor retiring

GRANGEVILLE — Thomas Kovalecky, supervisor of the Nez Perce National Forest, has announced he will retire at year's end.

Kovalecky said that no successor has been appointed and an interim supervisor will likely manage the forest for the next few months.

The supervisor expressed a desire to change directions in his life. Kovalecky gained national prominence as a maverick forester for putting fish and wildlife on par with timber.

He was one of the first foresters to advocate change in the Forest Service and was generally praised by fish and wildlife groups.

The Associated Press

Republican candidate Twila Hornbeck of Grangeville closed the gap to just 17 votes Monday in a partial recount of her election defeat at the hands of Rep. Paul Decelle, D-Orofino, and a full recount was ordered.

Hornbeck lost by 23 votes, but gained six votes Monday in a recount of eight Lewis County precincts in Nezperce and one Idaho County precinct at Grangeville.

That left the results at 4,140 for Decelle and 4,123 for Hornbeck. The Lewis County recount cut four votes from Decelle's total and added two to Hornbeck's tally.

Ben Ysursa, deputy attorney general, said the partial recount produced a change that if projected across the 50 precincts in the legislative district could reverse the outcome. That triggered a state law requiring a recount at public expense of all 50 precincts.

The election was reported at 4,144 for Decelle to 4,121 for Hornbeck for the seat vacated by Democrat Carl Braun. Unofficial election night results had Hornbeck the winner by 100 votes. The next morning, Lewis County Auditor Cathy Larson said 128 Decelle votes were not entered into the voting machines.

When that was done, Decelle pulled ahead by 28 votes.

Later, Hornbeck's tally increased by five votes but she still lost by 23.

Hornbeck posed a bond of $900 and asked for a recount in nine of the district's 50 precincts.

Ysursa and Deputy Attorney General Frank Walker presided over the recounts Monday.

After a full recount was ordered, they went to Orofino to recount the 15 Clearwater County precincts in the district.

Ysursa and Walker planned to return to Grangeville Tuesday to recount 26 Idaho County precincts not included in the first recount.

Hornbeck's bond was to be used to cover the costs of the recount, but since there was a substantial change in the partial recount, the entire process will be at public expense and the bond will be refunded.

Chilean guerrillas invade Mormon chapel

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Leftist guerrillas invaded a Mormon chapel and ordered about 30 people attending a Sunday service out at gunpoint before setting it on fire, police reported.

Police said no one was hurt, but the chapel in a northern Santiago working class neighborhood was badly damaged. Police said about 15 masked guerrillas, including three women, took part in the attack at the chapel in La Pinoyra suburb.

Before fleeing, the guerrillas wrote "Yankes out!" on a chapel wall, and left behind pamphlets of the Lautaro Front, a small radical leftist guerrilla gang. The group claims the Mormon Church is "a tool of Yankee imperialism."

Dispute pits EMTs against their boss

SODA SPRINGS (AP) — An County EMS president, the letter, arbitrator is trying to mediate a dispute between emergency medical service volunteers and their boss in Soda Springs, a confrontation that has created concern over adequate emergency response.

Officials said Conrad Wilkins was meeting with both sides, and the Caribou County Commission could make a decision on how to handle the dispute later this week. The face-off began three weeks ago when 18 emergency medical technicians wrote commissioners asking they replace Roger Chermic as the Soda Springs coordinator for county emergency medical services with either Chris Torgesen or Darin Selward.

"Actions taken during the past several weeks by the Soda Springs coordinator have jeopardized not only the capability of the Soda Springs EMS to respond to future ambulance runs but have also instilled a resentment and a lack of confidence in the Caribou

The 18 volunteers were not specific about the actions of Chermic that they objected to and declined to directly attack his competence. "We value his experience and skill as an EMT," they wrote. "However, he is not the best person to be put into the coordinator position at this time."

Soda Springs accounts for a total of 28 volunteers, half of the county's emergency medical services volunteer corps.

But Welker, whose request to the commission was supported by coordinators in Grace and Bannock, maintained even with the elimination of the 18 volunteers involved in the dispute, the county had sufficient personnel to ensure adequate emergency medical coverage.

Court overturns ruling against credit union

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Supreme Court has concluded that a federal District Court jury was given the wrong instructions, and it has overturned a judgment for nearly $105,000 awarded to a woman fired by her employer after 19 years.

In a Bannock County case, Lila Burton sued the Atomic Workers Federal Credit Union after she was terminated in 1985.

The woman claimed she was promised employment until she reached retirement age, but was terminated due to a clash with the chairman of the credit union's board of directors.

A jury awarded her $68,000 for breach of employment contract and $40,000 for a violation of good faith and fair dealing. The judgment was reduced by unemployment compensation the woman received, to $104,952.

In a 4-1 decision released Monday, the Supreme Court said District Judge Peter McDermott improperly instructed the jury on the credit union's theory of fraud in employment contracts. Improperly allowed Burton to read her pretrial affidavit to the jury and committed other errors.

The Supreme Court also announced it has reversed itself, and will allow an Aug. 9, 1989, decision to apply to all cases pending on that date, which includes Burton.

At the time Metal versus Inter-mountain Gas Co. was announced, the court ruled 3-2 it would be applied only prospectively, from that time on.

The court said Monday a majority of the court now holds the decision should be applied to all cases pending on Aug. 9, 1989.

The 1989 decision created an implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing in employment contracts. It made the covenant a contract matter, and said a plaintiff could not claim both a tort (wrong or injury) and a contract violation in such cases.

The credit union argued the Burton award should be overturned because McDermott allowed both a contract and a tort cause of action to be submitted to the jury. The Supreme Court agreed.

Craig names new aide

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Barclay, who has been district administrator for Rep. Larry Craig for five years, will be Craig's communications director next month when Craig moves to the U.S. Senate.

Craig defeated Democrat Ron Twilinger for the seat being vacated by the retiring Sen. James McClure.

Craig said Monday current members of his Idaho staff will become part of his Senate organization, describing them as "a winning team."

David Fish, press secretary, has been named to the same position on the Senate staff, Craig said.

Barclay, a former Idaho legislator, previously held posts in state and governmental agencies, including Idaho Mining Assoc., Potlatch Corp. He was executive vice president of the state's administrative assistant to state Lt. Gov. Lydia Justice Edwards.

Fish, whose family lives in Twin Falls and Spokane, was press secretary for Craig's Senate campaign.

Police investigate spree of violence

BOISE (AP) — Authorities are investigating a drive-by shooting and two stabbings in Boise as unrelated incidents in a weekend spree of random violence.

All three victims were hospitalized, and neither of the assailants has been arrested.

Police said Peter Gregory, 33, of Idaho Falls, was just entering a trailer at a Christmas tree lot early Sunday morning when three shots were fired from a passing short-bed, four-wheel-drive truck. He was hit in the abdomen.

Gregory was listed in serious condition at St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center. About the same time Sunday morning, Boiseans Dane Butler, 23, and Troy Gustafson, 24, were stabbed as they walked out of a downtown Boise. Police Sgt. Mike Webb said.

American to buy TWA routes

DALLAS (AP) — American Airlines gained a gateway to London by agreeing to pay $445 million for six routes of the World-Airlines seven-U.S. routes there.

The seventh route, not included in the deal, is being negotiated separately, American spokesman A.J. Becker said.

At the same time, TWA Chairman Gene Francis said the airline will acquire Pan American World Airways, which agreed last month to sell its London routes to United Airlines for $400 million.

If the route sales are approved by the federal government, Pan Am and TWA, which built their reputations through overseas travel, will no longer fly to London, United and American, the strongest U.S. carriers, will compete.

The routes TWA is selling are between London's Heathrow and gateway airports and cities in Central America—Los Angeles, Boston, Baltimore, Philadelphia and St. Louis.

Loach said TWA has lost money on the London routes for two years. "Our current agreements with American will generate additional cash flow," he said.

American already flies to many foreign destinations, including cities in Europe, the Far East, South America and Central America. It hopes to serve Hanoi by May and Gatwick by November.

"This transaction will enable American to become a leading U.S. carrier to London and will add tremendous synergy to both the U.S. and the U.K. with many more carrier and destination choices," American Chairman Robert L. Crandall said in a statement.

American also agreed to pay TWA $70 million for 40 takeoff and landing slots at Heathrow and Gatwick, plus three gates at Chicago's O'Hare Airport.

TWA is considered one of the financially weakest U.S. carriers.

Why would California billionaire buy chunk of Chrysler stock now?

DETROIT (AP) — California billionaire Kirk Kerkerian may turn a quick, tidy profit on the $72 million he has invested in the struggling Chrysler Corp., according to some analysts.

A variety of scenarios — including a takeover bid — have unfolded since Friday's news that Kerkerian bought 9.8 percent of Chrysler's stock, becoming the company's largest shareholder.

In a report filed Monday with the Securities-and-Exchange-Commission, Kerkerian said he has plans to buy more Chrysler stock and does not immediately intend "an extraorinary corporate transaction" such as a merger, reorganization or liquidation.

A Chrysler statement Friday said the company had no comment on his motives for such an investment. "As Chrysler announced the purchase, it said its board of directors lowered the threshold for the company's "poison pill" anti-takeover provision to kick into action.

Previously, if a shareholder collected 20 percent of the stock, other shareholders could buy stock at less-than-market value. On Friday, the board halved that to 10 percent.

Kerkerian, known as a shrewd investor, said he would consider general economic, money and stock market conditions in determining whether to buy more Chrysler shares. He said in the SEC report that his actual stake in Chrysler as of last Friday was 22 million shares, or 9.77 percent.

The stock was purchased, mostly on the open market at the New York Stock Exchange, between Oct. 11 and Nov. 16 at prices ranging from $10.50 to $11.25.

Kerkerian has told Chrysler Chairman Lee Iacocca he was a passive investor.

Bernsen 'wives' are everywhere

By Joey Sasso

"L.A. Law ladykiller Corbin Bernsen may find himself up to his eyeballs in wives this season. Last year, his womanizing character, Arnie Becker, got married on the top-rated show. Now, NBC executives are talking about bringing Corbin's real-life wife, Amanda Pays, aboard to do some steamy love scenes with co-star Jimmy Smits. What's sauce for the goose, as they say.

Real-life relationships have put a crumple on superstar Robert Redford over his new flick, "The Dark Wind." Seems they're upset because Lou Diamond Phillips will play a Navajo Indian - and he's part Cherokee.

Tyne Daly has suddenly halted divorce proceedings against her husband, George Sanford Brown, because she is afraid of losing her youngest child in a bitter custody fight. Friends tell me:

Don't get Angie Dickinson wrong - she's all for women's rights, but she firmly believes the

I am a woman who believes in being a woman. I believe that woman should be allowed to go out and do a man's job - but she should still be a woman."

Fan in arguments about Cash's age

By Bettelou Peterson
Knight-Ridder News Service

Q. My brothers and I get into big arguments over the age of Johnny Cash. Settle this please. — Mrs. K.F., Ann Arbor, Mich.

A. Cash was born Feb. 26, 1932.

Q. Is Anne Archer the daughter of show business parents? I've been trying to find out since I saw "Fatal Attraction." — A.P., Chicago.

A. Archer is the daughter of Marjorie Lord, best known as Danny Thomas' TV wife, and her first husband, actor John Archer.

Q. What's happened to the beautiful British actress Jenny Agutter? I hope she's still acting. — G.W.S., Biloxi, Miss.

Johnny Cash
Many years in the business

A. She is, in fact, you can see her in "Child's Play 2," currently in theaters. Agutter, 41, works on both sides of the Atlantic — her native London, England, and in California. For a time, she taught Shakespeare to youngsters at a school in Los Angeles' Watts area.

Q. What has happened to my favorite film, "Woman Under the Influence," starring Faye Dunaway and Peter Falk? I've requested it from many video stores and no one can help me. Where can I get it? — M.C., Newport Beach, Calif.

A. The 1974 film, directed by Rowland's late husband, John Cassavetes, hasn't been released on tape yet.

Marlo, the famed Thomas, is not Danny's only child

By Bettelou Peterson
Knight-Ridder News Service

Q. Does Danny Thomas have any other children than "Maigret Marlo"? Is she Phil Donahue's first wife? If not who was? — C.R.C., Detroit.

A. Danny and wife Rose Marie have three children. Son Tony is the man in the middle in the successful production team Witt/Thomas/Harris, whose shows include "Soap" and "The Golden Girls." Young daughter Teresa had a brief singing career. Donahue was married to the former Margie Conroy, 1958-75. Donahue and Thomas were married in 1980.

Q. Have looked for years-for data on Faye Emerson, who was on TV 20 years ago. She was married to one of President Roosevelt's sons and to Skitch Henderson. — Mrs. R.H.C., Philadelphia.

A. Emerson was a minor movie actress when she married Elliot Roosevelt in 1944 and turned into an Eastern socialite.

She started in TV in New York in 1948 became a leading personality on talk and panel shows, known-for-her wit and her plunging necklines. She married Henderson in the 1950s after her divorce from Roosevelt, divorced Henderson in 1957. By 1963 she was out of TV and went to Europe and never returned to the U.S. She declined TV and stage offers, lived in retirement in Majorca until her death at 66 in 1983.

Q. How old is Tom Selleck? And what is his birthday? When will he do another "Magnum, P.I." special? — S.F., Acworth, Ga.

A. Selleck is 45, born Jan. 29, 1945. Although his feature film career has sputtered, he isn't likely to return to TV any time soon, as Magnum or any one else.

Q. Who is John Goodman, of "Roseanne," married to? Is she an actress? — M.L., Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada.

Danny Thomas
Son is man in the middle

A. Goodman, 38, married college student Annabeth Hartzog, 27, in 1989. They became parents of Molly Aug. 31.

Q. I have seen Claude Akins in commercials and numerous TV series and movies. How long has he been in show business? — K.B., Woodmont, Conn.

A. Akins started on stage in the late 1940s, made his Broadway debut in "The Rose Tattoo" in 1951 and his movie debut in "From Here to Eternity" in 1953.

Q. I've met my sister that an actress has played Mrs. Columbo. — F.W., Romulus, Mich.

A. Kate Mulgrew was Kate Columbo but not on the Peter Falk series, where "the missus" has never been seen. The 1980 show started as "Kate Columbo," was entitled "The Detective," then "Kate Lives a Mystery," and Kate was renamed Callahan.

Q. I like Timothy Busfield, of "Thirtysomething." He was in "Prepper John, M.D." and "Family Ties." What else has he done? — L.H., Charlotte, NC.

A. Busfield doesn't list "Ties" among his credits. He was a regular on the summer series "Reggie" and did guest roles on "Paper Chase" and "AfterMASH." His feature films include "Revenge of the Nerds" and "Field of Dreams." He spent his 1990 "Thirtysomething" hiatus on Broadway in "A Few Good Men."

Learn rules in a snap

Chances are, you've taken one or two fuzzy pictures — not to mention the countless times the lighting wasn't right and your subjects ended-up with red eyes.

Not exactly catchy quality.

Follow the picture-taking tips offered here by professional photographer Patsy Hodge, and you'll be able to record those precious moments with your children this holiday for memory's sake.

Play with your camera, flash and film in good working order. Remember to keep fresh batteries, test your film, advance and exposure meter and keep your lens clean.

In order to become comfortable as a photographer, familiarize yourself with your camera. Even though it'll may seem tedious to read the instruction manual, you'll be amazed at how much helpful information it contains.

Take note of the background in your pictures. Move your subjects away from the wall in order to avoid distracting shadows and reflections.

Parade live on Christmas Day

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. — Those "brags on the half shell," the Teen-age Mutant Ninja Turtles, join Santa Claus for holiday fun at the eighth annual "Walt Disney World Very Merry Christmas Parade" to be telecast live 10-11 a.m. Christmas Day on ABC-TV.

Joan Lunden ("Good Morning America") and Alan Thicke ("Growing Pains") return to co-anchor the show, with Regis Philbin and Kathie Lee Gifford. The parade features more than two dozen floats and 200-plus performers.

Other special guests include "Minnie 'n' Me" star Christa Larson and celebrities wishing viewers "Merry Christmas" from the Vacation Kingdom. "Outstanding Teacher of 1986," Sylvia Anne Washburn of Toledo, Ohio, chosen by 36 other honorees in a Disney Channel special as the "best of the best," also will be featured.

President and Mrs. Bush will send holiday wishes. The broadcast will end with a moving tribute to the military in the Midwest.

This year's special opens with "It's Beginning to Look A Lot Like Christmas" as Mickey Mouse and his pals get ready for the party with a fanciful journey from park to park at Walt Disney World to invite friends.

Santa Claus rides high in the annual Disney parade.

Next, Scrooge McDuck and the "Duck Tales" gang sing their version of "Deck the Halls," followed by Pinocchio and the Little Mermaid floats. Other Disney favorites include Winnie the Pooh's Corner to the tunes of "Up on the Housetop" and "Holly Jolly Christmas," and Snow White and her prince.

The parade's special toy section will include a fantasy toy factory, a human-size army of toy soldiers and other oversized playthings.

Viewers will see Mrs. Claus and characters from "Wonderly Poppins," "Alice in Wonderland," "The Three Little Pigs," "Robin Hood" and "Peter Pan" ushering in Santa Claus and his comical reindeer in the parade's elaborate finale.

throughout December. While "FAM" airs the favorite "It's A Wonderful Life" Saturday, it also presents the contemporary "Clarence" based on the angel from Frank Capra's "It's A Wonderful Life."

This time, Clarence the angel returns to earth to thwart a young woman's attempt to commit suicide. Robert Carradine stars. Another musical special is "Pageant: A Christmas Spectacular" Christmas Day.

Produced by The First Baptist Church of Houston, this show features a 450-voice choir and orchestra and a cast of more than 600 performers.

A movie celebrating the spirit of Christmas is "It Came Upon A Midnight Clear" starring Mickey Rooney. This 1984 movie is about an ex-conv now angel who goes home to New York to give his grandson an old-fashioned Christmas.

It airs Wednesday and the following Monday.

Redgrave sisters pool talents

Knight-Ridder News Service

Q. Have sisters Vanessa and Lynn Redgrave declined to act together because they are so competitive?

A. After more than a quarter-century of individual successes, the Redgraves recently got together for the ABC remake of the memorable chiller "Whatever Happened to Baby Jane?" Vanessa, the exotic extremist, and Lynn, the earth mother, even pursued their careers on different continents — Vanessa at home in Britain and Lynn in the United States. "I think when we were first acting, we thought it would be a gimmick to appear together," Lynn says. As the child of an acting family, Lynn — six years younger than Vanessa, who is 53 — also wanted to preserve her own identity. Nonetheless, they are close. "This movie (in which Lynn is Baby Jane) is the longest we've been together on a day-to-day basis since Vanessa left home when she was 20," she says. "We've had great fun talking and giggling over tea."

Q. Was Cher really seriously ill earlier this year?

A. Cher has finally revealed that she suffered from Epstein-Barr, the energy-zapping, virus that seems to seek out overworked celebrities. She discovered it back in 1986, while filming "The Witches of Eastwick," but she wasn't fully aware of its debilitating nature until she was working on her latest film, "Mermaids." "I was so sick, I thought I was going to die," says Cher, 44. "I went to doctor after doctor." Eventually, she shook off the fatigue and these days appears to be staying on the mend.

Q. Does soul singer Luther Vandross' wildly fluctuating weight come from a poor self-image?

A. Sort-of. "I'd lose it when I fell in love and then, when the love failed, gain it back," says Vandross, who, at 6-foot-3, has gone from 190 to 320 pounds and back at least seven times.

Dolly's ready for season, heads home for holidays

By Lynn Hoogenboom
TV Data

When we talked to Dolly Parton a few weeks back, she was busy getting into the Christmas spirit.

"Mer-r-ry Christmas!" she playfully told us, even though it was then at least six weeks before the big day. But she had good reason for getting ready early: She was in the middle of filming her Christmas special, "Dolly Parton: Christmas at Home," which airs Friday on ABC.

"I've done so many specials that I'm used to how you do it," she said philosophically. "But it was so much nicer working in October. Boy, it's hard dressing up in their coats and things in the middle of July, which I've done in the past. We like to suffocate. We like to die!"

The special was filmed in the Smoky Mountains of Tennessee, where Parton grew up. "It's all done up here in the old home place," she said. "We had no outside stars and 99 percent of every face you'll see will be some relative-of-mine." Now, when our family gets together to sing, the results are — well, mixed. But Parton's family is a little different.

"Just about every one of my brothers and sisters sings really

Dolly Parton

"I just picked the songs I like"

well," she said. "My uncles and aunts on Mama's side are very, very talented. They all play and sing and write some wonderful songs. Some of the people in my dad's family are musical, but not as many. So they make good congregation singers. And the ones that couldn't sing, we stuck them in the audience," Parton said. "We let them be the atmosphere."

"Picking the music was a breeze. I just picked the songs I liked," said Parton, who has also recorded many of the same songs on a new Christmas album, "Home for Christmas." "Go Tell it on the Mountain, The First Noel and Joy to the World" were just songs that I particularly like."

Gill's back in print on country charts

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Vince Gill has resumed a sputtering recording career with a classic country music weeper about lost love.

Gill was a little noticed singer throughout the mid-1980s who finally asked to be released from his recording contract with RCA Records in 1987.

He went without a record deal until he emerged this year with MCA Records and put out the acclaimed single and album "When I Call Your Name."

The LP is closing in on gold status (500,000 copies) — or 10 times more than his three previous albums.

"A lot of people figured I was done," the amiable 33-year-old Gill said as he reflected on his lean years. "Nothing major had happened, and people started losing enthusiasm. I never doubted the fact that I had a hit record in me. It was just trying to find it."

Gill found it with "When I Call Your Name," which he wrote and which has become one of the year's top country hits. The song, featuring a whining steel guitar and a compelling piano solo, tells the story of a man who thinks about his lover all day and rushes home to find a goodbye note on the table. Party Lovelace provides backup vocals.

"It's the kind of song that gave me goose bumps," said Gill, former lead singer for Pure Prairie League. "It has a haunting chorus and it's a very lonesome and sad song."

Gill said he treats records the way a casting director does a movie: "Every part is so crucial. There are things that can enhance them or detract and I think we made all the right calls in what we did to the record. "It really took off when I put my her vocals on there. I just love our voices together."

Even without newfound success, Gill had fashioned a behind-the-scenes career using his velvet tenor as a backup vocalist for recording sessions. By his count, he has sung on records done by more than 100 other singers.

They 'winter' in Pasadena

Pasadena is a favorite winter resort for Easterners visiting California.

It is best known today for its Tournament of Roses Parade, annual Rose Bowl Game and art museums.

There is the Huntington Library and Botanical Gardens and, in January, the Huntington Hotel, a famed Pasadena landmark since 1906, will reopen its doors under the Ritz Carlton banner.

What's offered: The new hotel's exterior design will closely follow the original architecture. The Viennese Room will feature original leaded crystal chandeliers made for the hotel in the 1920s and one of the hotel's dining rooms will again house the antique one-half slip models from the personal collection of Stephen Rayne.

Each of the Ritz Carlton Huntington Hotel's 385 guest rooms and suites will be oversized and elegantly appointed with marble bathrooms, sitting area, desks, large closets and two telephones.

The Big Outdoors

Question

Should I shift gears during a climb, and how and when should I get out of the saddle?

Answer

Generally, I recommend shifting early (at the start of the hill) and not during the climb. Allow yourself an initially higher cadence to drop down to a more comfortable range (60-80 r.p.m.) for the rest of the climb. Try to avoid shifting in the hill unless the gradient changes, otherwise you will lose speed and have a new cadence to adjust to.

If your cadence drops below the point where you can pedal smoothly and comfortably, you may want to stand up. Pull yourself out of the saddle with your arms while pedaling. A comfortable cadence for hills will vary among individual and gradients and should be slower when standing than sitting.

Honda Civic 4-door Sedans designed for affordability

With power options and bodystyles to fit a wide range of driving needs, the 1991 Honda Civic line of four-door sedans, three-door hatchbacks and wagons offer Honda value, quality and reliability at affordable prices.

The Honda Civic's fuel efficiency is achieved by using state-of-the-art automotive technology. All three engines feature Honda's Programmed Fuel Injection (PGM-FI) and four-valve-per-cylinder design, delivering power cleanly, smoothly and economically. To reduce weight and improve engine cooling, Civic engine blocks and cylinder heads are cast from aluminum alloy with iron cylinder sleeves.

With two available engine choices and three trim levels, the 1991 Civic 4-Door Sedan offers Honda value, engineering and economy with the comfort of a four-door configuration.

mote trunk and fuel filler door releases, tinted glass, rear seat heater ducts and child-proof rear door locks. The rear seatback folds down for increased storage capacity.

Available with both front-wheel drive and Real Time four-wheel drive, the versatile line of Civic Wagons offers the room and convenience of a wagon configuration, with distinctive styling and Honda value and engineering.

The Civic Wagon is powered by the 1.5 liter, 92 hp engine. A five-speed manual transmission is standard; power steering is standard with the optional four-speed automatic transmission.

Standard features on Civic Wagons include an adjustable steering column, adjustable front and rear head restraints, rear window wiper/washer, rear seat heater ducts and child-proof locks.

The 4WD Wagon features the 1.6 liter, SOHC 16-valve engine, with Multi-Point fuel injection, developing 108 horsepower. A six-speed manual transmission with an extra-low first gear is standard. Also available is an electronically controlled, four-speed automatic transmission with driver-selectable Sport-mode and low-hold. All-season P175/70 R14 tires are standard.

Tired of commuting? Catalog can help you

By Broderick Perkins
Knight-Ridder News Service

Every year Californians waste 1.19 billion hours sitting in traffic. That's the equivalent of each driver stuck in traffic an average of 3 1/2 consecutive days, or 10,000 drivers stuck in traffic for 13.6 years, according to the western office of the "Road Information Program," a non-profit agency that compiles data on highway transportation issues.

Emeryville, Calif., resident and direct-mail entrepreneur Mabel Yee had a helpful idea. Her Love to Commute catalog offers alternatives to being irate on the interstate.

During drive time now, Yee packs Tele-Notes, note pads that safely attach to the steering wheel; a Sacro-Ease Orthopedic car seat; an under-the-seat commuter attaché; Classpockets, an organizer that keeps stuff from spilling out of the seat during stops and turns; a variety of motivational cassettes; and what she calls a Commuter Survival Kit.

The emergency kit, packed with three days' worth of survival equipment — including water, food and first-aid supplies — is one of the more popular products in the catalog, marketed by her Emeryville Commuter Products Corp.

Yee outfits motorized living spaces with cigarette-lighter powered ovens and fridges, foot and back massagers, travel desks, tables and totes, and more gadgets that clear auto air, auto clutter and, best of all, auto boredom.

From a few bucks to a few hundred, products in the 25-page catalog can find and start your car from afar, drive home an electronic message to drivers who get too near your rear, light a map, organize the glove box, rest your neck and protect your nerves from kids who always whine. "Are we there yet?"

There are also stuffed animals to adorn seat belts, eating utensils, trash containers and cassette tapes that cure stress or make you a success.

Yee also sells portable color televisions, stereo headrests and even a converter that lets you plug in your Macintosh.

For a Love to Commute catalog call 415-420-6666.

The address of Emeryville Commuter Products Corp. is 1311 63rd St., Emeryville, Calif. 94608.

Win this luxury trip

United Bus Owners of America, is looking for a definition of the "best" reason for choosing the motorcoach.

Anyone who can write the "best" 300-word essay about the "best" reason will win a motorcoach for him or herself and up to 35 friends, club members, fellow students, relatives or whomever to travel up to 1,000 miles and back.

Here are some reasons contestants may want to enter:

- Energy efficiency is critical, so the best reason might be the fact that a motorcoach consumes less than a quarter of the energy used by commercial aircraft or private autos or a train.

- Cleaning the environment is a national priority. The motorcoach returns to the air only a small fraction of pollutants which would be created if passengers traveled individually.

- Economy is a good reason. Your entire group of 36, for instance, could travel to and from your 1,000-mile destination in a motorcoach for the price of a handful of airline tickets.

A 300-word essay can put you on the road.

Honeymoon time's coming soon 'Tis the perfect season for helping someone

Q: My girlfriend and I are getting married in a few months. We were both virgins until we found each other, and we are still pretty un knowledgeable about sex. I want to make our honeymoon the most wonderful sexual experience possible for her.

A: I've heard about a book called "The Kama Sutra." Can you recommend this as a good guide for us? Also, do you have any other suggestions on reading material? I want to become as knowledgeable as possible before the big day.

Ask Dr. Ruth

A: "The Kama Sutra" is perhaps not the best place to start! It is full of exotic and sometimes difficult to achieve, positions for having sex. Also, I would recommend my own book, "Dr. Ruth's Guide to Good Sex" and Dr. Alex Comfort's "The Joy of Sex." I know you will have a wonderful honeymoon, especially if you don't try too hard to know everything about sex before it begins.

Relax and enjoy learning by getting it all by the time you say "I do," what will you have to look forward to learning?

More Americans are reaching out to help those in need this holiday season than ever before:

- The Mechanical Contractors Association of America keeps members warm during the winter months for low-income elderly and disabled individuals.
- Members of the California Trucking Association voluntarily deliver donated food to area food banks.
- The Kentucky Optometric Association provides free eye care to thousands of Kentucky's working poor.
- The Medical Association of Atlanta operates a medical clinic that provides free care to the homeless.
- The Philadelphia Bar Association provides free legal services for the city's poor.

• Members of the Oregon Remodelers Association repair the homes of low-income elderly persons for free.

Volunteerism is a tradition deeply rooted in American life. According to a recent ASAE study, members donated nearly 330 million hours of their time to community service projects last year.

Move past bad memories this holiday

By Louise Reid Ritchie

Parenting

If you grew up in a dysfunctional family, the December holiday festivities can remind you of when your father drunkenly knocked down the Christmas tree or when your mother verbally abused you at a holiday party.

You can fear that you'll pass along the same miserable traditions to your children. But there are things you can do to make this holiday a pleasant one for yourself and for your children:

Attend a support group. Free groups include:

—Nar-Anon, for people who have been affected by others' drug use.

If you'd prefer to dump your problems on your friends and family, think again. Support groups can help you find hope and solutions. Often friends and relatives can give you only pity.

Remember that you can determine how to celebrate your holidays. If abusiveness, arguments and insults result when your relatives gather—stay away or make your visits brief.

When returning from out of town, choose to stay in a hotel or to stay with supportive friends or relatives. If family members become abusive while visiting you, ask them to leave. Because of their emotional problems, your relatives may try to make you feel guilty about your new assertiveness. But your bottom line must be choosing the best decision for yourself.

Recognize that perfect holidays exist only in fairy tales. So don't assume that because you're an adult or because you no longer live at home everything will be wonderful this December.

Holidays are stressful for everyone. There will be times when nothing seems to go right, no matter how well you've planned. They won't mean that you're bad or people hate you. It will just mean that you're human. Learn to laugh and recognize that today's mishap can become a story.

Don't go into debt to buy your children expensive toys because you never got toys when you were a child. You have the right to buy your children presents that are within your means and your value system. They may complain—many children do. But that doesn't mean they're experiencing the kind of trauma you experienced when you got nothing. Over-spending won't guarantee happiness for your family. It will only leave you a financially poor parent with greedily manipulative brats.

Remember the AL-ANON expression, "You can't keep it unless you give it away." Helping others can help you hold onto the good feelings you'll experience as you begin recovering from your unhappy childhood. Volunteer to answer your support group's crisis line or to greet newcomers at meetings. Look for opportunities to help other people.

Holiday planters can last with a bit of know-how

Take the foil off. Yes, it is pretty, but the foil won't allow the plant to drain properly and many gift plants drown because of it. Never allow it to dry out. As soon as the top of the soil feels dry to the touch, water it with lukewarm water.

Most of these plants are in a mix that is high in peat, and if they are allowed to dry out too much they are impossible to rewet properly.

If that happens, take the whole pot and submerge it in a bucket or sink of water until the soil ball is completely wet. Afterward, stand it in the dish drainer until it has stopped dripping.

Keep the plant in a cool room without drafts. Poinsettias like their light bright enough to read fine print by.

You want to jazz up the plain wreath you just brought home? Look around the yard. Holly is fairly rare here, but there are lots of alternatives to brighten things up.

Hawthorns, crabapples, mountain ash, pyracantha, some viburnums and some cotoneasters give red berries. Some roses will produce stunning bright red hips.

Did you know this?

Q. The air we breathe is mostly (a) oxygen (b) nitrogen (c) pollution? A. Nitrogen makes up 97% of our air.

The blue berries of juniper are always a favorite of mine. Some junipers bear exceptionally heavy and showy crops of blue berries that add color and aroma to holiday decorations.

Merry Christmas, and may your new year be green and growing.

Add gold embroidered military bars to a breast pocket. An embroidered and beaded crest might be perfect on a black velvet zoot dress. Or, add small jeweled motifs to a pair of suede pumps.

Here are ideas you need: Gifts for those gardeners

By Art Kozella
Chicago Tribune

Pleasing the gardener on your Christmas gift list may be easier than you think, and it's a great way to cultivate the friendship of those who indulge in green thumb pursuits:

You could fill a large flower pot or wicker basket with hand tools, such as a shiny aluminum trowel or pruning shears.

Here are some other ideas: Why not a lawn sprinkler, rain gauge, lawn trimmer and edger, seed and fertilizer spreader, or a new rake or hoe?

Then there are sprayers and dusters, trees and shrub root feeders, spades, forks, soil testing kits, long-handled shovels, durable garden gloves, knee pads, weatherproof plant labels, loppers, pole pruners and chain saws.

If cost is not an object, consider a portable greenhouse, aluminum cold frame, electric or cordless hedge trimmers and the ultimate for those with larger gardens — a small tractor complete with attachments to handle almost any lawn and garden task.

Mist sprayers, terrariums, spill-proof watering cans, peat pots, propagation kits, seed starting trays and fluorescent lights to encourage seedlings to grow and to keep violets and other light sensitive plants flowering during the dark winter days.

Also for the gardening buff's indoor pleasure consider gifts of potted foliage and flowering plants. Exotic specimens such as bromeliads, orchids, streptocarpus, clivia, burro's tails and episcias have special appeal. Or gift wrap bulbs that can be forced for early-bloom indoors, like amaryllis, crocus, paperwhite narcissus and glioxins.

Garden accessories and ornaments also offer myriad gift possibilities. Consider sundials, wind chimes, bird baths, bird houses and feeders, especially the plastic windowpane models for intimate viewing of birds from inside the house.

What's cooking in your kitchen?

Americans spend more of their time at home nowadays, and the kitchen has become the central part of the house.

Instead of investing money in building a new family room or a den, as families tended to do in the 60s and 70s, the family of the 90s is more likely to spend redecorating funds on a magnificent kitchen.

They require no special cookware.

Any pups under your tree?

By Deborah Lawson
Knight-Ridder News Service

If you are thinking about buying a pet as a Christmas gift, the advice here is: forget about it.

The few days that remain before Christmas are not nearly enough time to prudently shop for a dog, cat, bird or other animal.

As for giving an animal to a friend or relative as a surprise gift, remember the person who rhapodizes about, for example, Persian cats may love the way they look but be less enthusiastic when presented with one.

Instead of a live pet, give the person you considered surprising a "certificate" stating that you would like to buy a pet for a gift, then discuss whether he or she really wants an animal.

If this comes too late and you already have bought a pet to be picked up in time for Christmas delivery, at least defer its homecoming for about a week after the holiday.

The excitement, noise and turmoil of celebrations can traumatize pets trying to adjust to a frightening new environment.

Try this: Egg entertainment

The egg in the bottle trick

Can you really put an egg into a bottle - if the bottle has a neck that's slightly smaller than the egg - without mashing the egg?

You'll need:

A peeled, hard-boiled egg; a small-necked jar, such as a water jug or baby bottle, and hot water.

- 1 Pour boiling water into the bottle.
- 2 Shake it around and then pour it out.
- 3 Quickly place the peeled egg over the mouth of the bottle.

Even though the egg is larger than the opening, the egg drops into the bottle.

Why did it happen?

The hot water leaves steam in the bottle, which forces out some of the air. As the steam in the bottle cools, it condenses into droplets of water and requires less space. This reduces the amount of air pressure in the bottle, so the pressure of the outside air pushes the egg inside the bottle.

Finding the hard-boiled egg

What a dilemma! You've put a cooked egg back in the refrigerator and someone stuck it back among the raw eggs. You need the cooked one for a salad. But which one is it?

You'll need:

2 or more eggs (1 hard-boiled)

- 1 Spin each egg. Note what happens.
- 2 Then touch each egg lightly.

Most of the eggs wobble, but one spins steadily.

The spinner is the hard-boiled egg. When you touch the spinning hard-boiled egg lightly, it stops spinning completely. The raw eggs move again after you've tried to stop them.

Why did it happen?

The loose yolks and whites in the raw eggs rotate slowly because of inertia; the tendency of an object to continue at rest or in motion. This causes the raw eggs to wobble and the raw eggs to continue to move even after you try to stop them. The solid white and yolk cause the hard-boiled egg to respond more quickly.

Life is filled with dreams Recalling the old days is both bitter and sweet

Dream Warrior By Marty Diehl

My life with you was a mirage
Images of what I envisioned love should be

A bride filled with storybook expectations
Walked down the aisle of hopes.

And jumped upon your horse of white.
Only to discover I was astride
Your steed of white lies.

In mock ceremony, you measured
Warpaint upon my willing soul

I was needing your love
While you were using my blood.

To fight for your dreams—
Which were nightmares in disguise.

What a brave warrior I was What a fool!

You were my chief
And led me into your bottomless pool

Of broken promises and grief

For my hero and partner in life
I was the ever loyal wife

Climbing to the very edge
Of your sacrificial altar of despair

At that moment, I looked into your eyes
And finally recognized the lies—
I wept—and realized—that all along

A bride filled with storybook expectations walked down the aisle of hopes.

While I was needing your love
You were using my blood

To fight for your dreams—
Which were nightmares in disguise.

Marty Diehl, a Jerome resident, is a secretary and the mother of three who has always enjoyed writing poetry as a hobby.

Like the Old-Time Folks By Vicki Lucas-Carter

There was a time when I was young
And foolish, too, at times.

I'd walk the woods and frozen ponds.
And whisper to the ground.
Had many friends upon that farm
Willows, fishes, birds and woods.

They all spoke to me at times
Bright are those memories left
But somehow I'm like the butterfly
I must return to the past.

Like the old-time folks from long ago
I find myself removed from city folks.
Yet their thoughts and works see unfold
And the land and those memories

I hold so dear, seem nowhere left to find

a pioneer's heart.
And these city-folks keep buying up the land.
Setting up their building as new owners of this land

Ever seeking smart advice of those that talked.
To willows, frozen ground and brook.

As the butterfly returns to the father's Nesting ground
So will all the cowboys and Old-time folks to their hallowed ground.
And the circle will keep on turning.

Vicki Lucas-Carter, a Californian, has family living in Jerome. She hopes that her poetry will help people to see that everything works out in time and that the strong survive all hardships.

Hats off to rodeo cowboy

Rodeo Cowboys By Bill Miller

To all rodeo cowboys
A special praise to all
That ride in every rodeo
And never take a fall.

Most cowboys come from far away
Just to ride in an event
But it's something to remember
When they loose and can't pay the rent.

To watch each and every cowboy
As they perform all around
It's amazing how they do it

And not end up on the ground.

So to all the rodeo cowboys
A special praise to all
The ones that do come out on top
And never take a fall.

The cowboys that come out the best
And some don't do too swell
But it's a good thing to remember
That they all go home and well.

Bill Miller is new to cowboy poetry. He lives in Twin Falls and has lived in Idaho since 1946.

Strawberry Roan gives quite a ride

I Rode Strawberry Roan By Lucy Mae Holt

A fellow just called me on the phone
Said, I have a pony called Strawberry Roan.

Now, this old pony has never been rode
And if you mount him, you will surely be thrown.

But I have a 20 if you can ride this steed.
And while you do it, you will do me a good deed.

I said I'll be over, you can count on me.
I picked up my saddle to go and see.

Yes, there stood a pony all sordid and mean Stood 15 hands high, had real knobby knees

I walked in the barnyard, my saddle in my hand
My hat cocked on one side, a leather-for-a-band.

I threw out my lasso, it hooked over his head,
I knew that I had him and then I said.

'Come on you critter, now don't act so bad.'
I've seen plenty of ponies, But I wasn't real glad.

I'm going to ride you, just wait and see.
I know you are a tough one, but I'll put you on your knees.

I swung on the saddle and bucked it down tight.
I knew in a moment I'd be on a flight.

I slid myself on him and jerked up the blinds
He bowed in the middle, kicked up his behind.

But I stayed on him, this is the reason why
I was glued to the saddle and that is no lie.

Before I got on him, I poured on the glue
It ran down the saddle and down in my shoe

Yes, I was still on him when he made his high dive
Now I can ride him as long as he's alive.

So that is my story, told from my home
I low rode that old pony called Strawberry Roan.

Lucy M. Holt, of Norman, Okla., is a busy 72-year-old. She made this poem into a song and sings it to the tune of 'Old Strawberry Roan.'

Writer shatters Disney illusions

By Clarence Petersen Chicago Tribune

DISNEY'S WORLD, by Leonard Mosley (Scarborough Voice, $14.95).

Mosley, a respected and prolific biographer, verges on the apologetic in his brace-yourself introduction, and indeed it is unnerving to read that the creator of Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck was anti-Semitic, anti-black, a shameless self-promoter, a stridently extreme rightist, a man bitterly at odds with his brother and, by way of treating himself for back pain with Scotch, a lush—all of this hidden by a well-oiled publicity machine that tended the myth of good-old-Uncle Walt. . . .
Mosley does make clear that Disney was a genius with a grand vision, that he had struggled valiantly just to make his mark as a cartoonist and had endured de-pressions from worrying about the future of Disney Studios; and Mosley regards him a giant among dwarves who succeeded him.

So, again, we may be disillusioned, but that's increasingly the price of having illusions in the first place.

ACC point sets well with guards

By Neil Best
Newsday

The Georgia Tech and Virginia football teams were pleasant surprises this fall, but they were mere diversions compared to the autumn ritual of true ACC fans: reading preseason basketball publications.

And what did those voluminous tomes have to say? Mostly that the Atlantic Coast Conference is blessed with the finest collection of point guards since Frank McGuire started raiding New York City for talent in the 1950s.

Still, the guards have had mixed results this season. An update:

Cordiani — The 6-1 senior has been brilliant, averaging 22.6 points, 9.8 assists and 3.0 steals and shooting 55.9 percent from the field; Anderson — The 6-2 sophomore is averaging 20.4 points, 7.4 assists and 5.7 rebounds but is shooting 39.8 percent and was awful in a loss to St.

John's; Croty — The 6-1 senior is averaging 16.7 points and 5.3 assists. His role: Get the ball to

Bryant Smith. Croty should pass Coach Jeff Jones' school career assists record of 598 this season; Williams — The 6-8½ junior is averaging 19.4 points and 6.2 assists but is shooting 40.2 percent;

Hurley — The 6-foot sophomore is averaging 7.6 assists but has suffered lapses, particularly against quick teams such as Arkansas.

Complaint's for discrimination

NEW YORK (AP) — Two physical education professors at Brooklyn College said they have filed a federal complaint accusing the college of widespread discrimination against women in athletics.

Linda Carpenter and Vivian Acosta, said the complaint lists violations of each of the 13 program areas cited in the law, included sex-related imbalances in coaching salaries, equipment and supplies, athletic scholarships, locker-room facilities, travel and practice facilities.

For example, according to figures cited by the professors, Brooklyn College spends a total of $180,475 a year on salaries for coaches of eight men's sports while allocating only $39,523 for salaries of coaches of six women's teams.

"The men's basketball program gets $30,000 more than all six women's teams put together," said Carpenter.

Radio has lot to offer, like bullet protection

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A pocket radio stopped a bullet fired point-blank at a mugging victim's heart.

"I call it a miracle of God," said Gary Lee, who was shot at after his car had broken down.

He was at a telephone booth calling for help when he was approached by two young men, one carrying a handgun, Sgt. Doug Tanteo said.

"They asked him for his wallet and he complied," Tanteo said. "Nevertheless, the one with a gun put it right up over the left side of his chest — right over the heart and fired once," Lee noted. From the impact and collapsed to the sidewalk, but he suffered only minor injuries.

Paramedics found the what looked like a .25-caliber slug imbedded in the radio in the left breast pocket of Lee's jacket.

Tanteo said. The assailants, described as 18 to 20 years old, escaped with the wallet, which contained $100. "I was going to listen to a little bit of the football game," said Lee. "I'm sure glad I had that radio."

Cocktail blows the whistle at right moment to solve crime

FORT WALTON BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Frankie LaDel was sitting pretty until Coco the cocktail blew the whistle on him, authorities said.

LaDel was arrested on charges of breaking into a home. He left the stolen Coco with the owner of Tatt's Are Us Tattoo Emporium, according to a police report.

When police officer Jim Walker stopped by the parlor, the bird sang the theme song from "The Andy Griffith Show." Walker recalled that Coco's owner had told an investigator his bird could whistle the tune from the comedy show about a small-town sheriff.
