Baker, Aziz: What will they discuss?

By Terence Hunt
The Associated Press

Analysis

WASHINGTON — Iraq's acceptance of high-level "discussions" with the United States is the first glimmer of hope in the five-month Persian Gulf crisis but raises a problem for President Bush.
Is there really anything to talk about? Baghdad and Washington have sharply different agendas for Wednesday's meeting in Geneva between Secretary of State James A. Baker III and Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz.
The White House said the only reason for the talks is to underscore demands for Iraq to "unconditionally end its takeover of Kuwait by Jan. 15. Bush said Friday "there can be no compromise or negotiation" on U.N. resolutions demanding withdrawal.

Yet, Baghdad has insisted it will not withdraw and says it also wants to discuss Israel's occupation of the West Bank and Gaza as well as Syria's military intervention in Lebanon.
Iraq said the talks "will last only five minutes" if the United States merely repeats withdrawal demands. Yet, Bush insisted anew Friday there could be no linkage between the Gulf crisis and the Arab-Israeli standoff.

"It looks like two trains on a collision course," said Marvin Feuerwerker, senior strategic fellow at the Washington Institute for Near East Policy.
Robert Neumann, a former U.S. ambassador to Saudi Arabia, also said the Baker-Aziz meeting probably would be fruitless.
"We want to prove that we're going every last step and so do the Iraqis," said Neumann, director of Middle East studies at the Center for Strategic and International Studies. "To just repeat there what they know anyway won't do any good."
"So I think largely this is PR," he added.
Nevertheless, the Baker-Aziz meeting surely will raise hopes for a peaceful outcome. The White House greeted Iraq's willingness to talk as an encouraging sign.

But, if those hopes are dashed and diplomacy is declared a failure, it could well remove some of the political obstacles for Bush to go to war.
It seems farfetched that Saddam Hussein would send an emissary into any talks unless he believed he could exploit them beyond the guidelines set by Bush and divide the international coalition.
After all, the Arab nations in the coalition against Baghdad give almost equal weight to the dispute with Israel as they do to the takeover of Kuwait.
"It will be his (Saddam's) objective to WASHINGTON — The Postal Rate Commission recommended on Friday that the price of a first-class stamp be increased from 25 cents to 29 cents.

That is a penny less than the rate requested by the Postal Service. The increase could take effect early next month.
The rate commission, saying first-class mail is paying more than its fair share, also trimmed a penny from the nickel increase the Postal Service wanted on post cards. But it proposed higher increases for third-class, or "junk" mail, than those sought by the Postal Service.
"The commission strongly disagrees with and has therefore rejected the service's proposal to shift yet more of the burden onto first class" mail, said commission Chairman George W. Haley. The commission said a penny reduction from the 30-cent rate requested by the service would save the public $800 million a year.

Final decisions on the new rates rest with the service's board of governors, expected to convene about Jan. 20 on the issue. The increases could then take effect as early as Feb. 3.
Postmaster General Anthony Frank welcomed the rate commission's recommendations as an affirmation of faith in his agency, which reduced staff by 30,000 people and cut its projected deficit by more than $200 million over the past year.
"While it lopped a penny off the rates proposed for both letters and post cards — to 29 cents and 19 cents — the commission proposed substantially higher rates for third-class mail, largely advertising materials."
The complex system of charges for third-class mail would rise by 25 percent under the commission proposal. The Postal Service had

Weather, economy send area jobless rate soaring

By Mark Kind
Times-News Writer
TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley's jobless rate shot up faster than the statewide rate in December, but the local problem was probably due to cold weather and seasonal layoffs, not spillover from the deepening national recession.
"It is too early to tell if the national recession is affecting our local economy," said Lon McDonald, labor market analyst for the Twin Falls Jobs Service.
Unemployment in Twin Falls, Gooding and Jerome counties jumped 0.6 percent, to 5.5 percent from 4.9 in November. But despite its rapid growth, the rate stayed below the state's rate.
"This is still 0.7 percent better than the statewide rate of 6.2 percent," McDonald said.
The huge 1.1 percent monthly jump in Blaine County was blamed on high gasoline costs and lagging consumer spending.

"The national recession would affect Blaine County more significantly than probably any other county in the state," McDonald said.
Likewise, the 0.5 percent jump statewide was partly due to the national recession as well as bitter cold weather.
"The Magic Valley had fewer jobs in food processing, construction, wholesale trade and agriculture compared to December 1989," McDonald said. He insisted those losses are not a harbinger of bad times.
"Last year's 4.1 December unemployment rate was unusually low," he said.
"At this point I feel quite positive about the economy when the weather warms up," he said.
Lower prices for agricultural products may have cost a few jobs, he said. But the Job losses push figures to 6.1%

The Associated Press
WASHINGTON — The worst three-month stretch of job losses since the depths of the 1981-82 recession pushed the nation's unemployment rate to 6.1 percent in December, the government reported Friday.
About 515,000 jobs were lost in the final three months of 1990. Since June, about 1 million Americans have been added to the unemployment rolls.
President Bush, asked about the poor jobs report before leaving for Camp David, stuck to the view that any recession will be relatively mild.
Some analysts saw a glimmer of hope in data showing that December's job losses were not nearly as dramatic as October and November, possibly indicating that the downturn might not be as severe as many have feared.
But other economists saw a separate Commerce Department report, showing factory orders taking the sharpest plunge on record last month, as further evidence of a deepening recession.

Gulf peace initiatives at a glance

The Associated Press

Here is a brief look at recent diplomatic initiatives to try to head off war in the Persian Gulf.

UNITED STATES — Iraq on Friday accepted a U.S. offer of talks between Secretary of State James A. Baker III and Iraq's foreign minister, Tariq Aziz in Switzerland on Jan. 9. President Bush made the offer on Thursday.

EUROPEAN COMMUNITY — EC foreign ministers on Friday invited Aziz to Luxembourg, and France unveiled its own peace plan. Aziz would meet with Luxembourg Foreign Minister Jacques Poos, whose country holds the EC's rotating presidency, or with the foreign ministers of Italy, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

The French peace plan calls for Iraq to leave Kuwait in accordance with U.N. Security Council resolutions. If Iraq agrees to leave Kuwait, the multinational force would pledge not to attack Iraq.

would be open to discussion in one or more international conferences. Also, French President Francois Mitterrand sent a top adviser to Baghdad on Wednesday to meet with Aziz. Mitterrand announced Friday that he would meet with Baker in Paris on Tuesday, a day before the Baker-Aziz talks.

UNITED NATIONS — Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, considering his own diplomatic initiative, will meet with Bush on Saturday. He met Iraq's U.N. ambassador Friday to explore all possibilities to avoid a military conflagration. The Iraqi envoy, Abdul-Amir A. Al-Anbari, returned to New York on Thursday night after talks in Baghdad with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and Aziz.

ARAB AND ISLAMIC EFFORTS — Leaders of Egypt, Libya, Sudan and Syria met Thursday in Libya on the crisis, but there was no agreement. Algeria and Jordan have attempted several peace initiatives.

Officials from Iran, Turkey and Pakistan, meeting in Islamabad on Thursday, sought an urgent gathering of the Organization of Islamic Conference, a group of Islamic states, to help negotiate a settlement. There was no immediate response.

Life breathed into new air base located in Saudi Arabia desert

IN CENTRAL SAUDI ARABIA (AP) — Four weeks ago, a sprawling air base in the middle of the desert would have been a mirage. But the real thing now stands, home to about 4,000 servicemen and 120 sleek U.S. warplanes capable of delivering 1 million pounds of bombs per day. It is within easy striking distance of Baghdad and Kuwait.

"We have gone from absolutely nothing out here but powdery sand to the largest tactical wing in the modern Air Force," said Col. Dave Eberly, deputy commander of operations for the 4th Tactical Fighter Wing.

The last of five squadrons arrived Thursday at the air base in central Saudi Arabia. Its precise location cannot be disclosed for security reasons, but it puts the air wing close enough to Baghdad to fly round trip missions without refueling, and enables warplanes to fly twice as many combat missions as before.

The first warplanes arrived Dec. 17. One month earlier, the only thing here was a 2-mile runway and a 10,000-foot taxiway that the Saudis had built in 1969. They had planned to open a base by 1994, but Saddam Hussein's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait altered the timetable.

Now, the base has over 600 tents and many of the amenities of a modern city: water, sewage and garbage collection systems; its own police department, shops, laundry, barber, post office, a chapel with a stained-glass window, a movie theater, a library and a club that features two live bands but doesn't serve alcohol. The base has 30 miles of electrical wire, 25 miles of high-voltage cable and 420 miles of security fence. It covers 220 square miles, about the size of the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport in Texas.

"There wasn't anything here higher than a cactus bush. Now it's really a small city," said Col. Pat Schaufele, 47. His formal title is combat support group commander, informally, he is called the mayor.

Each of the base's five attack squadrons comprises 18 to 24 warplanes.

The wing has two squadrons of F-15E Strike Eagles; one squadron of F-15C fighters; one squadron of F-16 Falcons; and one squadron of FA-16 ground support jets. Previously, the 4th Tactical Fighter Wing had been based farther south. "The main advantage to being here is proximity to targets. We can go to our target areas and back on our own internal fuel," said wing commander Col. Hal Homburg.

He also predicted the United States would gain air superiority quickly if war breaks out.

"I'm not saying it's going to be easy. But I think the skies are going to be clear in just a matter of days. I think it's just going to be a few days before the SAMs (surface-to-air missiles) are taken care of also. We're going to be able to take down (Saddam's) defenses if not in short order, at least in due course," Homburg said.

Desert Shield costs already high

WASHINGTON (AP) — Operation Desert Shield will cost $30 billion this fiscal year even if war does not break out, Congress' accounting agency said Friday.

The chief of the General Accounting Office said that if fighting does occur, the Persian Gulf operation would cost hundreds of millions of dollars daily, and perhaps more.

The cost estimates will go up very rapidly if we go into full-fledged conflict," the agency's comptroller general, Charles Bowsher, told the House Budget Committee.

The Bush administration has never officially estimated what it will cost to maintain the planned 450,000-troop force in the Persian Gulf. But administration officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, also have put the price tag at about $30 billion.

When U.S. troop levels were going to be capped at about 200,000 troops last fall, the administration estimated the fiscal 1991 cost at about $15 billion. The fiscal year began Oct. 1.

Bowsher said his estimate included the costs of deploying the troops in the Middle East, calling up reserves and providing the extra support they need. The figure does not count the $100 billion it will cost to pay and equip Desert Shield forces which otherwise would be on active duty elsewhere.

The comptroller general complained that Pentagon officials have not cooperated fully in providing GAO with information it would need to make a precise projection. But he said he believed the GAO estimate was accurate.

"I think the Pentagon has the numbers, they have the estimates," said the budget committee's chairman, Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif.

"I think the State Department has the numbers, they have the estimates. The problem here is a political problem of what the country is going to focus on in the next few days."

Panetta also criticized the administration for refusing to allow Pentagon and State Department officials to testify at the session.

U.S. Muslims confront loyalties

NEW YORK (AP) — Iraq's call for an international Islamic boycott of the gulf, our duty is to take some chance," he said. "Our duty as a Muslim and as an American is to attend the conference to prevent war."

The three-day Islamic conference is scheduled to begin Wednesday, six days before the United Nations deadline for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait or face the threat of war. Iraqi Religious Affairs Minister Abdullah Fadhl said the conference would draw up a strategy for Islamic action to respond to military action against his country.

Western diplomats have said the conference represents another effort by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to elicit Islamic support for his secular regime. In his New Year's message, Saddam struck hard at Muslim converts about the presence of foreign troops in Saudi Arabia, where Islamic shrines are located in Mecca and Medina. He said King Fahd of Saudi Arabia deserved the title of "Traitor of the Two Holy Mosques."

Saddam's strategy strikes at sympathetic chords. David Kerr, a professor of Islamic Studies and director of the Macdonald Center for the Study of Islam and Christian-Muslim Relations at Hartford Seminary, said even liberal Muslims are "impatient to the point of non-acceptance" to the presence of foreign troops in Islam's holy land.

"I think it's fair to say that while most Muslim organizations that I'm in touch with condemn the illegality of the invasion, they are anything on a scale from very unhappy to just completely opposed to an American presence in Saudi Arabia," Kerr said.

Gulf crisis hurts Iraq, study says

JDDAH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — The Persian Gulf crisis has cost Iraq $2.5 billion monthly in oil revenues and brought major development projects there to a halt, an alliance of its neighbors reported in a study Thursday.

The report, by the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council, said Iraq is suffering the losses as a result of the U.N.-sanctioned international blockade of Iraqi trade. The council's secretary predicted Iraq's losses will increase as long as the blockade remains in place.

Iraq is now producing 600,000 barrels a day for domestic use, compared to 3.5 million barrels, mainly for export, before the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

The study said that as a result of the crisis, five giant projects to advance oil production have halted. These include construction of a $500-million exploration platform and a new oil field at Tikrit, for which a German company was to supply equipment worth $200 million.

Another halted project is a power generation and water project to be carried out by British Northern Engineering Industries and Japan's Mitsubishi company, the study said.

According to the study, work on Al-Bakhdia Dam north of Iraq has also stopped. The $2-billion project was to be built by a consortium of Turkish and Yugoslav companies.

The study said work on a $2.5-billion complex to produce 21 different types of petrochemicals has ceased.

Work also came to a standstill on a project to establish a $1 billion central refinery when some engineering companies withdrew, said the study. The companies included the U.S. corporation Bechtel, along with firms from South Korea and Japan, it said.

Chief has to byte the (computer) bullet

HAILEY — Former police chief Dan Norton agreed Friday to pay $150 for using a city computer for personal gain.

Fifth District Magistrate Daniel Alban accepted the agreement between prosecutors and Norton's attorney, E. Lee, Schlander of Hailey.

Norton, who resigned last fall, pleaded guilty to the misdemeanor charge earlier this week.

Norton used the police department's computer to print 14 pages of documents for Sun Security, a group of retired and off-duty officers that work baggage security at Friedman Memorial Airport, Schlander said.

TJ International financial officer announces retirement

BOISE — TJ International announced Friday that its chief financial officer will resign at the end of January.

Walter J. Wadman is a 20-year veteran of TJ International, and President Walt Minnick called him "the financial architect of our growth."

Minnick also announced that he will assume the responsibility of being the company's chief financial officer, and Wadman's day-to-day responsibilities will be split among four of the company's senior financial executives.

TJ International is a Boise-based manufacturer of specialty building products. It is the owner of Norco Windows Inc., which has a wood-window manufacturing plant in Twin Falls.

Safe from Mail Room theft found empty, damaged

TWIN FALLS — A safe stolen from the Mail Room business in the Lynnwood Mill last week was found Wednesday evening, but it had been forced open and the contents removed.

The safe contained more than $8,000 in cash and gold coins when stolen, according to a police report filed after the store's owner found the safe missing a week ago.

Lt. Jim Kistler of the Twin Falls police department's detective division said police are building a case against a suspect who is currently in a Las Vegas, Nev. jail on an unrelated charge.

The safe was "pretty much ruined" when a passer-by found it on Wierching Avenue near Harrison Elementary, Kistler said. The theft likely involved more than one person, Kistler said.

A key was used to enter the Mail Room last weekend when the 500-pound safe was stolen, the police report said.

Commission to meet Monday, agenda still not pinned down

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Parks and Recreation Advisory Commission will meet Monday night in the County Annex Building at 246 3rd Ave. E.

The meeting will be at 7:30. A county spokeswoman said Friday that she did not know what was on the agenda for the meeting.

First Security Foundation awards $1,275 to CSI

BOISE — First Security Foundation has contributed $1,000 in scholarships and $275 in library grants to the College of Southern Idaho.

The money is part of $58,425 in scholarships and grants the foundation is distributing to area colleges and universities. First Security Foundation is part of First Security Bank, which has several offices in the Magic Valley.

The foundation has awarded more than $1 million in scholarships and grants to 19 mountain colleges and universities since it was founded in 1952.

Idahoans to possibly meet with president with message

BOISE — Nine Idahoans representing a coalition of groups, including the Snake River Alliance and the Boise Peace Quilt Project will travel to Washington D.C. to bring a message of concern about the Gulf crisis.

The delegation will spend seven days at the Capital, meeting with Congress and possibly with President Bush and his wife.

They will ask Congress to carefully review what role the United States should play in this regional conflict. And they will advocate a negotiated settlement, rather than a military solution.

No one knows yet whether pink slips will be handed out at Twin Falls Sears

The Times-News and The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Sears, Roebuck and Co. began eliminating 21,000 jobs from stores nationwide in an effort to streamline operations and maintain profits, the nation's largest retailer has announced.

Sears began sending employees pink slips this week and will work through June 1 to eliminate administration and operations positions at its 863 stores, Sears spokesman Gerald Buldak said.

The Twin Falls store has just started evaluating its personnel, Store Manager Denny Ryerson said. He didn't know if any employees would be laid off.

But Ryerson is interviewing employees to determine how Sears' continuing reorganization will affect employees locally.

Sears announced in November that cutbacks in non-selling positions were planned for the new year.

"The company said it didn't know yet how many workers will be left jobless because an undetermined number could be transferred to other positions."

Sears Merchandise Group, the company's retail chain, had 337,000 full- and part-time workers nationwide in 1990. The retailer has been struggling to compete with fast-growing Wal-Mart Stores Inc. and Kmart Corp. for consumers' dollars.

Since last fall, Sears has been seeking ways to improve customer service and cut costs. The company announced in September it will cut 600 jobs at its headquarters in Chicago and review 1,400 other jobs there. It terminated about 100 full-time employees at its Kansas City catalog distribution center in December.

Also in December, the retailer told salaried employees they won't receive regular pay increases in 1991 as part of the company's effort to cut costs and boost sagging profits.

Sears also announced Thursday that December sales at stores open at least a year fell 0.3 percent, while the company's overall sales rose 1.4 percent. Sears characterized its holiday sales as below expectations.

"Sales were slightly below our expectations for the season," Buldak said. "They nevertheless picked up in the last 10 days of the month as the holiday drew closer."

The boost during the final week before Christmas may have been helped by an aggressive nationwide television and radio drive advertising steep markdowns on apparel items, and special incentives such as no-interest financing on major appliances, the company said.

Gas prices dip again

The Times-News and The Associated Press

TWIN FALLS — Gasoline prices at the pump hit their lowest level since late August, the month Iraq invaded Kuwait, the American Automobile Association ion said Friday.

The average nationwide price for a gallon of self-serve unleaded regular gasoline was $1.267, said the AAA's weekly survey. The price was the lowest recorded by AAA since Aug. 20, when a gallon of self-serve unleaded averaged $1.237.

Self-serve unleaded regular gas sold for between $1.249 and $1.279 a gallon in Twin Falls Friday, $1.169 in Wendell, $1.249 in Gooding, $1.359 in Hailey, $1.399 in Ketchum and $1.219 in Burley.

The average price of self-serve unleaded regular gas in Idaho was $1.261, AAA said.

The average nationwide 19.2-cent-a-gallon higher than the price on Aug. 1, the day before the Iraqi invasion.

Pump prices have now fallen for the third time in four weeks, despite gasoline tax increases that took effect Jan. 1 in some states, the auto club said.

Gasoline prices were slightly higher in the Great Lakes region, but they fell in all other regions, AAA said.

New trial for Cassia man denied

The Associated Press

BOISE — The Idaho Court of Appeals on Friday upheld the denial of a new trial bid from a Cassia County man convicted of aggravated assault.

Paul Joseph Euglesky contended he had a new witness that would prove a key prosecution witness lied when she testified that Pugsley fired five shots into a Cassia County home.

The Court of Appeals agreed with a lower court ruling that the new witness was offered only to impeach testimony, not produce new facts, and was unlikely to produce acquittal.

In a Twin Falls County case, Daniel Evans won reversal of his conviction for second-degree burglary. The Court of Appeals agreed with Evans that District Judge Daniel Mechl improperly instructed the jury.

Evans contended the jury should have been advised of the laws concerning whether and when the appropriation of low property constitutes theft.

2nd chance coming up to air views on juvenile center

By Brad Bowlin Times-News writer

JEROME — The public will get another chance this month to voice its opinion on where a regional juvenile detention center should be built.

At a public hearing scheduled for Jan. 28 at 8:30 p.m. in the Jerome County Courthouse, the county planning and zoning commission will consider a special-use permit for construction of the detention center on a 10-acre parcel, one-half mile east of U.S. Highway 93.

The permit application does not mean the regional juvenile detention center board has made a final decision to use the location, currently owned by the Bureau of Land Management, said Jerome County Commissioner Veronice Lierman, who is also a member of detention center board.

"It's still not a definite location," Lierman said. "We have to go through this process before we can begin working with BLM to purchase the land."

At a public meeting in December, neighbors of the proposed site opposed the location, saying it is too close to homes and a planned agriculture museum.

"There was some negative reaction," Lierman acknowledged. "People didn't feel they had enough information. We hope to disseminate some more information to those groups that have concerns."

If the planning and zoning commission approves the special-use permit, the six-county board will be one step closer to finding a solution to the area's growing juvenile detention center problem.

A $740,022 state grant that Lierman said will pay for three-fourths of the project's overall cost was approved in October.

The counties involved will have to issue bonds to pay for the remainder, she said.

At a meeting Tuesday, board members will discuss finding an administrator for the proposed facility, she said.

The Magic Valley has been without a permanent juvenile detention center since the Southern Idaho Youth Center closed at the end of September.

Few persons agree whether nation should fight a war

By Barbara Neiwert Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Most Moslems in the Middle East believe they are God's chosen people superior above all others, says an Idaho State University professor.

— And they are willing to die to show their faith in the "Holy War" they have declared, which could mean heavy casualties for the United States, says Tahmoenores Sarraf, professor of Political Sociology at ISU.

He is the author of a recent book on the Iranian Revolution.

"Be patient," Sarraf told a shoulder-to-shoulder crowd of more than a 150 people during a forum Thursday night on the Middle East Crisis.

The forum was sponsored by Hailey's St. Charles Catholic Church and an antiwar group, Beyond War of the Wood River Valley and included people such as Sean McDermott, who was among the U.S. forces that invaded Panama.

While people disagreed about whether the United States should use force to get Iraq out of Kuwait, Sarraf lobbied for patience and negotiations and talked about the Muslim faith.

"His (Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's) army will sooner or later kill him. He will be overthrown. There will be a military coup against him," Sarraf predicted as he explained his hope for a resolution to the crisis.

Sarraf told the audience that Saddam Hussein is of the Shiite faith, but from the Suni sect.

In Iraq, only 40 percent of the population is Suni, while 60 percent of the Shiites live in the west of Iraq and are unrecognized by the Suni.

"Saddam is really not as popular a person in his country as he says he is," Sarraf said.

Sarraf predicted that if war breaks out and Saddam is killed, there is a possibility the Shi'ah of Iraq will take over the country.

In that scenario, there is a good chance neighboring Iran's Shi'ah population, which makes up 95 percent of the country's Moslems, will join the Iraqi Shi'ah.

"Then we are in a hall of a mess," Sarraf said because the United States cannot fight two such countries, who would gain allies from Russia and China and other eastern countries that are home to 950 million Moslems worldwide.

Exactly what chemical, biological and nuclear weapons Saddam possesses, is unclear, Sarraf said. If Saddam does not have any of these weapons, the United States could destroy him in three to four days.

But the use of chemical, biological and nuclear weapons would have a devastating effect.

For instance, Saddam could easily smuggle some chemical or biological weapons into New York City and quickly kill 5 million people, setting the United States back 10 to 15 years.

"We would be in a situation, I would say, worse than Vietnam," he said.

Sarraf, who was born in northern Iran, explained that Moslems believe in the principle of martyrdom — one has to die to show his religious faith to his successor.

This is honored by the Iraqi tradition of awarding soldiers the "Key of Martyrdom" — if the soldier dies, this key opens the door to heaven.

It was such beliefs that pushed 12-year-old Iranian boys to attack Iraqi tanks during the recent war between Iraq and Iran. It is such beliefs that would lead Iraq to stop at nothing to stop the United States now, Sarraf said.

Another panel member at the forum, Dan Schiavo, one of Ketchum, a former U.S. Marine corpsman, said he believes in non-violent conflict resolution and is concerned about the U.S. government's stance on the crisis.

Throughout history, physical violence has never settled wars, Schiavo said.

"We need to show Hussein there is some way out of this other than utter humiliation," he said.

He suggested applying principles of negotiation to the process.

"We've got to stop the bluff game — it's too dangerous," Schiavo said.

Changes will be difficult, prosecutor says

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — It will be difficult to prove negligence in a freeway pile-up on fog-shrouded Interstate 215 that on Friday claimed its fourth life, a prosecutor says.

"This accident is going to be a nightmare to reconstruct," Davis County Attorney Mel Wilson said. "I would doubt that they will come up with the evidence that will allow us to prove negligence unless alcohol was involved."

The accidents, involving about 50 vehicles, happened within minutes of each other between 9:45 and 10 a.m. Wednesday in the eastbound lanes between Redwood Road and I-15 in Davis County. A number of accidents also occurred on Redwood Road in the same vicinity at the Utah Highway Patrol investigators said the accident was caused by motorists driving too fast for existing conditions in the dense fog.

Three people died Wednesday. A fourth succumbed to injuries Friday as a result of the crash, said spokesman Craig Rasmussen. William A. Boes, 49, died at 3:30 p.m. of severe head injuries. He had been listed as critical and unstable. UHP Lt. Ken Bryan it could take up to two weeks to piece together events of the accident. "It is still under investigation. But we can find a clear violation of the law, yes, we will hold them accountable," Bryant said. "But Wilson said demonstrating negligent homicide in the accident would require proving "willful and wanton disregard for persons and property."

Geyser eruptions signal possible earthquake

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP) — A slight change in the eruption rate of Yellowstone National Park's Old Faithful Geyser tipped off a park official to an impending earthquake, he said.

Rick Hutchinson, a National Park Service research geologist, said he was able to predict in November the earthquake that rocked the Yellowstone area shortly before Christmas. The earthquake, which was about a shortening in the interval between the geyser's eruptions.

"In the first 21 days of November, Hutchinson measured the time between the geyser's eruptions at an average of 74.8 minutes, almost 4 minutes less than the average interval of 78.9 minutes recorded in the spring of 1989.

Hutchinson noted that other earthquakes in the area have been preceded by a shortening in the interval between eruptions of Old Faithful, leading him to believe there might be a relationship between changing subterranean pressure and the geyser's eruptive period.

Settlement reached over former mayor's promise to an employee

POCATELLO (AP) — The Pocatello City Council has agreed to pay a former-city worker $25,000 in an out-of-court settlement of his lawsuit contending a former mayor promised him a job when he got out of prison.

Eddie McGill had been seeking $120,000. "By making the settlement, the city will be released from any further claims by Mr. McGill.

McGill, a former sanitation department worker, filed suit in 6th District Court last month. It alleged the city did not fulfill former Mayor Dick Finlayson's promise to hire McGill once he was released from prison.

McGill has a letter which Finlayson instructed Sanitation Superintendent Lucien Marchand to sign in August 1989. "It said if McGill returned to Pocatello by mid-March 1990, the city would make arrangements to rehire him.

School wishes to dodge suit

REXBURG (AP) — Officials of the Madison School District fear they may be hit with a court order banning prayer at the high-school graduation, but they're looking for ways to continue the practice.

They claim the district is violating their constitutional rights by allowing prayer at graduation ceremonies and before athletic events. Mattocks also said he is gratified that outgoing Attorney General Jim Jones decided to endorse Rhode Island's bid to have the U.S. Supreme Court allow nondenominational prayer at school graduation ceremonies.

However, he said he thinks the Rhode Island case is weaker because it involved a high school, not a school, which gave benediction at an eighth-grade graduation ceremony. A federal appellate court held last summer that it is violated the constitution's mandates for separation of church and state.

"We think the Madison case is much stronger than the Rhode Island case," Mattocks said.

Magazine tells how kids care about Idaho

BOISE (AP) — Idaho's Centennial was not only for grown-ups, insist Boise's Hillcrest Elementary School students who compiled a magazine with young contributors from across the state.

On Thursday, the Boise students cashed in a "snow check" from Gov. Cecil Andrus by presenting him with the first copy at the Statehouse. They were slated to meet with him, but snow and cold weather forced a postponement.

The school sent out seven questions to every grade school classroom in Idaho and received responses from about 90 percent. The idea for the magazine came during a coffee break, said Hillcrest teachers Magey Kin and Jan Booe. All 400 kids in the school took part in the project.

But when McGill returned, he was told there was no job for him.

Mayor of Homedale appears at hearing

BOISE (AP) — A preliminary hearing before Friday in 4th District Magistrate Court for Homedale Mayor Paul Fink, who faces seven felony counts alleging he "misused public funds to buy sheet metal and aluminum bars and 700 from a state outlet for federal surplus property.

Fink appeared before Magistrate John Dutcher at the hearing to determine whether there is enough evidence to warrant a trial. It was continued after about two hours until a later date.

Deputy Attorney General Michael Henderson, serving as a special prosecutor in the case, called witnesses from the state Bureau of Surplus Federal Property and the Department of Agriculture to explain the procedure Fink allegedly used to acquire the sheet metal and aluminum.

Richard Stallings said that while the Iraq invasion of Kuwait must not be permitted to stand, he opposes any U.S. offensive action in lieu of giving economic sanctions time to work.

3 sailors found drown after search side of the river. Kinali, a Turkish national whose age was unknown, was found about five miles downstream from his ship, Tansey said.

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Three sailors drowned after they jumped from a Turkish freighter in the Columbia River Friday but two others survived, authorities said.

The men jumped from the Mehmet Emin as the vessel lay at anchor near Portland during the night. U.S. Coast Guard Lt. Cmdr. Tom Tansey said.

Authorities also found garbage bins stuffed with personal belongings washed up on the river banks. Tansey said at least one of the dead men had personal belongings taped to his body.

The incident began when the crew of the Turkish freighter, on a routine patrol spotted a body Friday morning about seven miles downstream from the anchored freighter.

There was no indication of foul play, he said. The Mehmet Emin is moored about a quarter-mile offshore at the Vancouver, Wash., anchorage, where ships wait before docking at the Port of Vancouver.

When authorities went to the vessel, they learned from the captain that five men had jumped ship during the night.

It was unknown how long the Mehmet Emin had been at anchor, Tansey said.

Mayor of Homedale appears at hearing

BOISE (AP) — A preliminary hearing before Friday in 4th District Magistrate Court for Homedale Mayor Paul Fink, who faces seven felony counts alleging he "misused public funds to buy sheet metal and aluminum bars and 700 from a state outlet for federal surplus property.

He also would be disqualified from running for public office. Fink was first elected mayor in 1984.

Fink appeared before Magistrate John Dutcher at the hearing to determine whether there is enough evidence to warrant a trial. It was continued after about two hours until a later date.

He currently is midway through his second term in the rural Owyhee County town of 2,000, about 45 miles west of Boise on the Snake River.

War

After explaining the U.S. military's strengths as well as Iraq's, McDevitt said the U.S. forces are the best trained forces in the world. "We have the most sophisticated, well trained, well equipped army that, if it is left to do its job, will crush Hussein's army in a very short order," McDevitt said.

"There's an awesome moral question about proceeding in that course and direction, especially when economic sanctions will work given time," Adkins said.

Richard Stallings said that while the Iraq invasion of Kuwait must not be permitted to stand, he opposes any U.S. offensive action in lieu of giving economic sanctions time to work.

McDevitt said that "ideally" he would support eliminating Saddam Hussein as a second language. "We are not policemen of the world; we are naive to think we are going to solve the problems."

"I am not interested in trading lives for barrels of oil," Stallings said.

McDevitt said that "ideally" he would support eliminating Saddam Hussein as a second language. "We are not policemen of the world; we are naive to think we are going to solve the problems."

When the forum was opened up to public opinion, Ketchum resident Loren Adkins pointed out that if war broke out, many more civilians would be killed and injured than members of both armies.

Symms said economic sanctions will be helpful, but will not be enough to entice a complete withdrawal of Iraq from Kuwait. "A written response from Rep.

Megachurch on the move

The Associated Press

Small "mom and pop" churches have the charm of first-name familiarity, and you can get from them, despite the personal touches, most people patronize supermarkets. The contrast, says church planner Lyle E. Schaller, is a key power to effectiveness of today's Christian congregations and a "hallmark" of their future. "The emergence of the megachurch" is the most important development of modern Christian history," he said. "In today's world, big churches are more attractive to younger adults. People nowadays want a church that offers a broad range of choices in teaching, scheduling and programming."

Soviet shoppers wait more than two hours to buy American chocolate candy bars.

More than half of young women sexually active, researchers say

ATLANTA (AP) — Sexual activity among young American women has soared in the last two decades to the point where more than half of those ages 15 to 19 have had premarital sex, federal health and behavior researchers reported Friday.

A new survey of women, conducted by the Centers for Disease Control, shows 51.5 percent reporting premarital sex by their late teens. Those figures — from 1988 data — are nearly double the 28.6 percent for 1970.

While the most current data show that 66.1 percent of 15-year-old girls have had sex, the figure reaches 75.3 percent for their 19-year-old counterparts.

The findings are not good news for those hoping the '70s and '80s would prove to be more sexually conservative than the swinging '60s. The message in this age of AIDS is that premarital sex is dangerous, many young people apparently didn't get it, researchers said.

"This is happening during a time when we are putting so much emphasis on public-health messages regarding the risks of sexual activity, because of the AIDS crisis," said Dr. Sevgi Aral, a sociologist with the CDC's Center for Prevention Services. "That's why this is so concerning."

The explosion among young women starting sex is a product of our times, Aral said.

"We do not give very clear, unidirectional messages to our adolescents," she said. "We say, 'Just say no.' Delay the initiation of sex, be monogamous. But in a lot of our popular mass-media messages, we're putting so much emphasis on sexuality, and glorifying sexuality."

The CDC, citing previous research, noted that by their late teens, about 4 percent of black females and 17 percent of white females had been infected with the sexually transmitted disease. In the CDC's 1988 survey, 10 percent of 15-year-old girls had had sex.

Comrades, unite: You have nothing to lose but your teeth

MOSCOW (AP) — Bundled against the cold to keep her sweet teeth from chattering, 15-year-old Lena Malakhova waited for two hours along with thousands of other Muscovites Friday for the chance to buy American candy bars.

Mars-inc., the U.S. candy-maker, put more than 23 tons of Snickers, Milky Way, Mars and Raider candy bars on sale for the first time in the Soviet Union — much to the delight of self-confessed chocolate addicts.

Due to advance notice that the candy would go on sale starting Friday at one site only, hundreds of people gathered at the doors of the huge bread and confectionery store for its 9 a.m. opening.

A Moscow newspaper had quipped that police and barricades would be needed "so that the building would not be swept away with the chocolate," and six policemen were on hand to control the crowds.

"At midday, more than 400 people were lined up along busy Kalinin Prospekt, two doors down from a theater where the American movie 'Gone With the Wind' is playing. And frankly, many didn't give a damn about the 12-degree temperatures and steady snowfall as they waited to buy their candy."

More than 200 others waited at several corners decorated with the candy bars stacked in pyramids.

"We were waiting for about two hours," Lena said as she and a giggling friend secured their candy bars and rebated their winter coats.

"Probably in the United States, you don't wait as long."

Lena, who had not tasted the chocolate yet, said the candy bars "are very beautiful... I have no words. We have never seen such candy in the Soviet Union."

"Excellent quality," said 14-year-old Roman Roy, who had just finished a Snickers bar after waiting 24 hours in line.

Back in the Soviet Union, 80 more women, and other older shoppers who said the American candy bars had too many additives.

"It's nothing special. It tastes pleasant," said Mrs. Lisovaya, chewing a Milky Way. "But it's much worse than Soviet chocolate. It's not pure chocolate."

"In our view, the chocolate is best when it's nothing but chocolate of good quality," she said. "And you use soybeans, yeast!"

The problem, all shoppers agreed, is that Soviet chocolate and other candy is practically impossible to find, primarily due to the nation's shortage of sugar.

Foreign-made candy bars, such as Snickers and Milky Way, bars, have been sold in the Soviet Union — but only at special stores for hard currency only.

John F. Skinner, director of Soviet sales for Mars, said Friday's shipment was the first of a 60-ton, $250,000 deal struck with the Soviet Union. Mars eventually plans to introduce M&M's to the U.S.S.R.

Barr bests Milli in recognition for mediocrity

CASCADE, Colo. (AP) — It's not even over when the fat lady sings the Millard Fillmore Society said Friday in awarding Rosanne Barr its 1990 Medal of Mediocrity for her role in the redemption of the nation's most mediocre chief executive.

"The award," she said, "was barely bested by Milli Vanilli as Best Non-Vocalist of the Year."

The award, it is officially, offered Jan. 7 by the society on the birthday of Millard Fillmore, the 13th president and considered by some to be the nation's most mediocre chief executive.

Phil Arkow, society vice president, said Barr was selected for her singing at a San Diego Padres game in which she tried to sing the "Star-Spangled Banner." She struck the words off-key, then scratched her crotch and spat on the ground in apparent imitation of a baseball player.

Arkow said the ideal scenario would have been for Barr to have "Milli Vanilli lip-synce the song. If not, Milli Vanilli was forced to return to Germany award this year."

Administration to seek cut in heating program for poor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Budget administration officials plan to request Congress to cut funding for a heating and energy program for the poor, more than one third of whom are supporters for the program said.

Administration officials in the House Appropriations Committee agreed that the money should be available to Northeastern states.

The extent to which the program would be cut is not clear. It is expected to be reduced by about 10 to 15 percent, the House Energy and Commerce Committee's staff says.

House Office of Management and Administration officials plan to seek $192 million in 1992 funding of $925 million. The $100 million contingency fund would be used to pay the heating program, which is the largest program in the bill, for the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program.

House Energy and Commerce Committee staff says the program would be reduced by about 10 to 15 percent. The House Energy and Commerce Committee's staff says.

Briefly

Some flood waters begin to lessen

CINCINNATI — Trees and telephone poles poked out from receding floodwaters along some stretches of the Ohio River on Friday, and residents began assessing the damage.

The Ohio-flooded-riverside-marinas and overrun the River Downs racetrack and Coney Island amusement park east of Cincinnati as the water peaked Thursday at 57 feet, or 5 feet above flood stage. The water dropped a foot Friday and was forecast to fall to 54 feet by 7 a.m. Saturday and to 52 feet Sunday morning.

Elsewhere in Ohio: The National Weather Service said flood warnings were still in effect for the Scioto River in Pike and Marion counties, the St. Joseph River, the Tiffin River and Maumee River at Waterville. The Ohio River was not expected to crest until Sunday at Evansville, Ind., where it was forecast to be about 2 feet above flood stage.

Cheney to decide on troubled stealth

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney is expected to decide the future of the troubled A-12 stealth aircraft by Monday, a Navy spokesman said Friday.

Lt. Dave Wray said Cheney was scheduled to discuss the program Saturday with Navy Secretary H. Lawrence Garrett III.

Wray said Navy officials believe Cheney will make his decision by Monday, because the day he must submit documents for his next budget to the Office of Management and Budget. "Presumably, he's got to tell them something about the A-12," Wray said.

McCain: Late payments not intended

WASHINGTON — Sen. John McCain told the Senate Ethics Committee Friday that he intended no wrongdoing in his tardy payments for flights on a political donor's corporate airplanes.

McCain's vacation flights on businessman Charles H. Keating's planes have been publicized before. But sharp questioning from the committee chairman gave the trips their most prominent role yet in hearings on the conduct of McCain, an Arizona Republican, and four Senate colleagues. The committee members are being held in a deadline whether the five senators improperly intervened with federal regulators on behalf of Keating, who raised $1.3 million for their campaigns and favorite causes.

Bush threatens vetoes over House vote

WASHINGTON — President Bush, accusing Democrats of breaking last fall's budget deal, threatened a flurry of vetoes on Friday if Congress has any effects of a House vote limiting the authority of his budget office.

Bush told a meeting of House Republicans at the White House that a rules-change vote in the House on Thursday "undercut the credibility of the entire budget agreement," according to presidential spokesman Martin Fitzwater. The change, pushed through by majority Democrats over the strong objections of Republicans, gave to the Congressional Budget Office an accounting power that the budget pact had given to the White House office.

Officials mum on Dangerfield's release

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. — Rodney Dangerfield was released Friday from Memorial Hospital after more than two days of tests, hospital officials said.

Hospital officials refused to say why the 69-year-old comedian checked in or what tests were performed.

Dangerfield entered the hospital Tuesday, the day after a New Year's Eve performance at the Sunrise Musical Theatre.

Governors: Positive signs in U.S. education system

WASHINGTON — The American education system is still ailing in many respects, but more and more states are taking creative approaches to the problems of school management, teacher training and minority advancement, according to a report released Friday by Colorado Governor Roy Romer.

In a press conference here, Romer said the report prepared by the National Governors Association (NGA), was encouraging, but many substantial problems remain.

Romer used the example of the potential Denver school strike to demonstrate one of the chief problems in the nation's education system.

"One big issue is how many periods a teacher will teach," he said. "Forty-five minute class periods do not come down the mountain with Moses. These are structural impediments to teachers. It's a problem with the management system."

The governor predicted that any changes in the management system of schools across the country, would be extremely difficult and would result "in a lot of blood on the floor."

Some of the advancements in education mentioned in the report included increased teacher quality, parental involvement, the use of video cassette recorders and computers in schools and state initiatives to increase the number of minority students attending and graduating college.

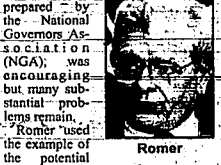

But for each advance there is an equal number of steps where the educational system falls flat.

For example, 36 states now require teacher candidates to pass multiple-choice tests and complete an approved program but few states have determined what teachers must know and be able to do to help all students achieve at high levels, the report said.

Also, many states have adopted programs that address the educational achievement of students at risk of failure in school but the NGA reports that few of these programs are statewide or comprehensive.

To address these shortcomings, Romer suggested that states adopt measures to ensure that their educational dollars are effectively spent.

He also said others areas of government spending could be cut to put more money into education. States could also "raise more revenue" if wanted, he said. "I am impressed by the new approaches in the report but despite the progress we have a long way to go — we are far and away from where we want to be," he said.

Promoters of orgy may have taken the money and run

GROSSE POINTE FARMS, Mich. (AP) — Police in this affluent, straitlaced Detroit suburb are looking for the promoters of an orgy in which the only stripping involved would be revelers' wallets.

Six people complained they were taken in by an advertisement in a weekly newspaper last month for a Second Annual Erotic New Year's Eve Party, police said.

The ad listed a phone number with a taped message from a woman calling herself Cindy Tarillo. She said the party in a four-bedroom home in the Grosse Pointe Farms area would feature a striptease contest, visits by pornographic film actors and actresses, "Arabian Nights orgy rooms" and a Jacuzzi and swimming pool where swimmers would be optional.

Men were told to send $40, women $10 and couples $30 in cash to a Grosse Pointe Farms address. Police, their suspicions aroused, sent $30 and received no reply.

"As soon as we heard the recorded message inviting people to this party — for cash — we figured it would be a scam," Detective Daniel Jensen said. "But we had to wait to see if the party was actually held. It wasn't, and the people who pulled off are pretty swift. They did their homework."

The address was a private mailing service. No phone number was listed for a Tarillo. Police reported no arrests, but said they and U.S. Postal Service inspectors would continue investigating.

What's what?

Sacrifices of masses
Q. What's "masses in association?"
A. Willingness of groups to sacrifice themselves for leaders to whom they've given all power. The Jonestown Suicides were so desecrated. And the Japanese kamikaze flights of World War II - the war attacks in the long run also may fit the description. Psychologist Theodor Reik coined the term.

Q. If you could string planets the size of earth like beads, how many would fit on a straight strand between here and the moon?
A. Almost but not quite 58.

Pedestrians over age 60 are four times more likely than young people to make "illegal risky crossings. So reports a British researcher, who says: "Many elderly walk the way they drive - quite intent on their own interests only."

Fewer than 10 out of every 100 millionaires own yachts.

DEXTERITY AND MATH
Cluney youngsters tend to do poorly in math. Or so say researchers who recently completed a four-year study of 67 children, aged 6-7. They find a link between body coordination and math ability. They don't yet know if dexterity indicates superior math potential. Interesting. Could a Michael Jordan, if taught, be an incipient math whiz? Maybe...

That lizard called the tuatara has a couple of eyes where you'd expect them to be and a third eye with a crude lens on top of its head. That eye doesn't work the way a regular eye works. Scientists still don't know what it's for.

It was the late Fred Astaire who observed, "The hardest job kids face today is learning good manners without seeing any."

MILLIONAIRES
Q. You said Idaho has the highest ratio of millionaires to population. Where does North Dakota rank?
A. No. 2.

Were you born with a fear of snakes? Many a scientist thinks that fear is passed down through genetic memory.

Q. Any Alps higher than Atlikska's Mount McKinley?
A. Not at Alp.

No crow learns how to caw. It knows. At hatching.

Low moisture may mean drought

POCATELLO — Snowpack remains below normal for much of southeastern Idaho, which could signal another year of drought...

Jones files suit for road damage

BOISE — Attorney General Jim Jones, on behalf of the state Land Board, has filed a lawsuit aimed at forcing the Idaho Transportation Department to clean up damage caused by the collapse of fill material into Lake Coeur d'Alene during construction on an Interstate 90 interchange.

A little snow can cause lots of trouble

SALT LAKE CITY — The same storm that dumped snow on the southern part of the state, making driving conditions horrible on Interstate 15, also wreaked havoc during the morning rush hour in the Salt Lake Valley on Friday.

The light snow combined with cold temperatures in the Salt Lake area caused nearly two dozen minor accidents during the morning commute, while much heavier snow from Provo to St. George caused 13 accidents by noon.

It was white, but not problem-free

EDGAR CITY, Utah — After struggling through two years of not-so-white Christmas holidays, things were looking up for the Brian Head ski resort as Christmas approached. Then the water pump failed Christmas Eve.

And to make matters worse, a replacement pump broke, leaving some residents without water for three days.

The system is up and running now, but town officials and businessmen are left trying to recoup losses and make up to venturers a bad experience. Some fear the resort's image has been tarnished, while others believe patrons left knowing townfolk did their best in a bad situation.

Brian Head Hotel General Manager Dear Reeder said the hotel issued rainchecks to customers, inviting them back within the year.

Space toy gun used in office hold-up

JDAHO FALLS — A man wearing a ski mask and holding what looked like a toy space gun held up the city treasurer's office.

Police said the man approached secretary Shalene Coombs on Thursday in the City Hall office and told her to fill up a nylon bag with money. The man had a 10-inch handgun that resembled a toy space gun.

Coombs put an undetermined amount of cash in one bag. He demanded more money, and she put in two bank bags with $1,354 in checks and $90 in cash, police said.

Search for prison site is postponed

POCATELLO — Weather problems postponed Friday's Pocatello visit by the Idaho Board of Correction to inspect potential sites for a $10 million state women's prison.

The state officials planned to evaluate three possible sites — one on the city's west side and two in northern Bannock County.

"Board members were fogged in at Boise and unable to fly here in time for our meeting," Mayor Peter Angstadt said. "They've rescheduled the tour for Tuesday, weather permitting."

The state Department of Corrections is looking for a site for a 160-bed prison, including a 60-bed community work center. It will produce about 90 jobs and an estimated $2 million annual payroll.

2 Idaho firms included in top-25 list

BOISE — Two corporations, with extensive Idaho connections are on Forbes magazine's select list of 25 "big winners" among the nation's companies.

In its Jan. 7 issue, Forbes assessed more than 1,000 American companies and picked the 25 most successful over the past five years based on revenue, return on equity, profit and growth.

At No. 15 is H.J. Heinz Co., the giant food processor and distributor, and No. 25 is Albertsons Inc., the nation's sixth-largest supermarket chain. No. 1 on the Forbes list is Microsoft, the computer and communications company.

Albertson's is headquartered in Boise, and Ore-Ida Foods Inc., a subsidiary considered one of the most successful in the Heinz group, has its corporate headquarters next door.

Simplot Co. to shut down fish facility

BOISE — Unable to net a profit from its fish-raising business, the J.R. Simplot Co. says it will close its tilapia fish facility near Caldwell within 90 days.

The plant, which began producing the perch-like fish in August 1988, is being closed because of operating and design problems that made it too expensive to run, Simplot spokesman Fred Zerza said Thursday.

McClure discussed GOP post with president

BOISE (AP) — Retiring Sen. James McClure says he discussed the chairmanship of the Republican Party with President Bush, but denied a report Bush asked him if he would take the job.

The Washington Post, quoting unnamed sources, said Thursday McClure was one of three prominent Republicans approached about serving as GOP chairman, but asked that they not be considered.

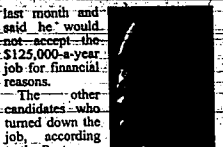

Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter, 60, accepted the post after McClure was offered the job Friday. Yeutter is a former head of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange and served as the nation's principal international trade negotiator.

Bush searched for a new chairman after his earlier choice, former drug czar and Education Secretary William Bennett, changed his mind last month and said he would not accept the $125,000-a-year job for financial reasons.

Other candidates who turned down the job, according to the Post, were Craig Fuller, McClure's chief of staff when he was vice president, and Mitchell Daniels, a former White House political director.

McClure said he discussed the job with both Bush and White House Chief of Staff John Sununu, a former governor of New Hampshire.

"Both the president and the governor are friends of mine," McClure said. "Knowing that I was leaving office, I took the opportunity to discuss a number of things with them. The question of the chairmanship of the party was discussed, but not in the context of me as a candidate for that job."

The Post said McClure met with Bush shortly before Christmas and McClure "declined when asked if he were interested in the post."

Said McClure: "In a general context, it was discussed and I probably may well have said that was not something I was very much interested in doing myself. I was not asked if I wanted it."

McClure said he likely brought the topic up in his talk with the president. "It is a job that needs to be done. They need a man or woman who is really capable of reaching across chasms or divisions within the party."

But McClure, who Thursday was in Boise as his successor, Sen. Larry Craig, returned to Idaho, said, "It's nothing that I particularly want to do."

Norman Ornstein of the American Enterprise Institute said McClure's decision not to seek the job was wise.

"Clearly, John Sununu is touching a lot of bases," he said. "McClure does bring a few things. He's an older statesman of the party. He's conservative."

"With the choice of Bill Bennett, what the White House was signaling was they wanted somebody who was over there on the right, who would give the president a little bit of protection from the right flank. They also wanted somebody who would be a pugnacious spokesman. That's not Jim McClure's style."

Economists continue warnings of slowdown

BOISE (AP) — The momentum Idaho has built up over the past three years since its resurgence from one of its worst economic downturns will insulate the state from the worst of the national recession, but economists on Friday continued warning lawmakers that future growth will be very slow.

"The fact that we have had such good years over the last few years suggests that downturn is not going to pull the state into a severe decline," Boise State University economist Charles Skoro said.

But, he told the House-Senate Committee on Revenue Projection, "Idaho is going to slow down in 1991 and continue fairly slow in 1992."

Because of that, Skoro and a team of economists from the three state universities warned that lawmakers should expect only modest growth in state tax receipts they need to underwrite government operations in contrast to the double-digit percentage increases they have enjoyed as the economic recovery took hold. They projected less than a 5 percent revenue growth for the current spending year that ends June 30 and just over 5 percent for the following year.

While only half the growth rates the state experienced as the 1980s came to a close, the projections from the university economists fell within the range of forecasts provided by business, financial and government leaders during the committee's three days of economic hearings.

The 16-member panel will determine just how much money the state can expect from its tax structure over the next 18 months, and those figures will guide lawmakers in formulating a state spending blueprint over the next three months.

Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus will issue his revenue outlook along with his own budget proposal next Thursday.

The estimates provided to the committee, while possibly seeming bright to lawmakers in more than half the states that are facing budget deficits this year, would provide the Legislature with only between $940 million and $962 million to underwrite its revenue outlook along with a 1992 state budget that legislative analysts say will require $927 million just to keep programs operating at current levels for another year.

But, experts indicated that not much more can be expected from a state economy that while still among the most positive in the nation is losing much of its steam.

Uncertainty about Persian Gulf drops oil industrials slightly

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Stock prices chummed in place Friday, bogged down in uncertainty about the economy and the situation in the Persian Gulf.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 7.42 to 2,566.09, extending its decline for the week to 63.12 points.

Advancing issues outnumbered declining ones by 8 to 7 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 790 up, 698 down and 496 unchanged.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 140.82 million shares, against 141.45 million in the previous session. Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 170.50 million shares.

Traders seemed unsure how to respond to the news that Secretary of State James Baker would meet next Wednesday with Iraqi officials in Geneva.

In addition, analysts said new government statistics on the economy left investors with some doubt about prospects for Federal Reserve policy and a continued decline in interest rates.

To complicate the session further, telephone-service disruptions in the New York City area caused problems for some investment firms and an estimated 25 dealers in the over-the-counter market. The NYSE said its operations were not disrupted, however.

Losers among the blue-chips included Merck, down 1/4 at 85 1/2; Bristol-Myers Squibb, down 1/4 at 74 1/2; General Electric, down 1/4 at 54 1/2; Western Missouri, down 1/4 at 25 1/2; and Gestmoteis, down 1/4 at 33.

GM stock hit its lowest level since early 1988.

Major Leaguers stand to gain from arbitration

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Salary arbitration season opens Saturday with 180 players eligible, and they could make even more than they would have in previous years because of the collusion settlement.

Three players, however, settled their contracts on Friday and won't have to file. Catcher Bob Melvin and Baltimore agreed on $1.55 million for two years, catcher Scott Bradley and Seattle agreed on $1.45 million for two years, and pitcher Jose Guzman and Texas agreed on $365,000 for one year.

In addition, Montreal received from the Chicago White Sox the details on pitcher Barry Jones' two-year, $1.85 million contract. Chicago traded Jones to Montreal on Dec. 24 without informing the Expos of the deal, which was agreed to early in December.

Players can file for arbitration from Saturday through Jan. 15 and the sides exchange figures on Jan. 18. Arbitrators will hear cases from Feb. 1-21.

Under the new collective bargaining agreement, the top 16 percent of players with between two and three years of service can file, a group that includes Mark Grace of Chicago. From 1987-90, only players with at least three years in the majors were eligible.

The overwhelming majority of players settle before hearings, but for those who don't, arbitrators may be especially lenient this year.

That's because the Major League Baseball Players Association and management's Player Relations Committee have agreed to give arbitrators a table in which 1988 and 1989 salaries are adjusted upward for arbitration purposes because of collusion.

For 1990 salaries, players with between three and four years of major league service are boosted $72,900, while those between four and five years are adjusted $82,719. Five-plus players are adjusted $13,989, while six-plus players are adjusted $136,203.

For 1989 salaries, the adjustments are $159,090 for three-plus, $111,506 for four-plus, $111,506 for five-plus and $227,333 for six-plus.

Since players in arbitration compare salaries with others in their class and use both new contracts and old deals as comparables, the adjustments can mean only additional increases.

Eagles surging defense stuffs Bruins

TWIN FALLS — A crowd that's used to a lot of offense and scoring isn't treated in one of the tougher defensive games played in the College of Southern Idaho gymnasium for a while, and took a Wendy's burger with them as a reward.

With an increasingly tougher grinding defense, the Golden Eagles turned back the Salt Lake Community College Bruins 79-52 to win the Coca-Cola Classic.

Consolation honors went to the BYU Jaycees who kept Treasure Valley winless with a 70-66 decision.

"I thought it was a great — a tremendous defensive game," said CSI Coach Fred Trenkle.

CSI's Bart Leach, top, tangles over a loose ball with Salt Lake Community College's Lorenzo Jarvis.

"We had a couple of breakdowns in the first half and they got inside for points and they also had a couple of putbacks on the offensive boards. But for a couple of stretches in the second half, our defense played extremely well."

CSI, with sophomore David Anderson pressing a 30-point night with an early 14-4 jump, ahead 16-6 in the first five minutes, but Salt Lake wouldn't wilt and, in fact, sliced back to within a point at 19-18.

Sophomore Sean Colter ended a three-missed fast-break layup streak with two critical baskets to get CSI going again but it took the rest of the half to build another double-digit lead.

"After they got to within one or two in the first half, it seemed to me we visibly got tougher and tougher on defense," said Trenkle, who saw his team reach the season's midpoint with a 14-1 record.

CSI placed three men on the all-tournament team in Anderson, Colter and Nate Jackson. Salt Lake had the other two in sophomore Dan Farr, who sustained a knee injury and missed much of the finals, and sophomore guard Zack Allison.

CSI returns to Region 18 action Wednesday night when both the men and women's teams travel to Ontario for a double-header against Treasure Valley.

BOISE — Vaughn Bair, who transferred from Twin Falls High School to Borah two years ago, burned the Bruins with a game-high 17 points Friday.

Bair hit 11 before halftime to get the Lions out to an early lead. He totalled four 3-pointers for the contest.

"The 3-pointers were the difference even though we had more," said Twin Falls

Coach John Astorquia. "The 3-pointers got the cushion for them."

The Bruins, now 3-6, netted seven threes to five for Borah.

Steve Black led Twin Falls with 12 points. Riley Boyd added 11 points and six rebounds. Brandon Eller passed for four assists.

With 3-pointers by Jon Traveller and Victor Sanchez, the Bruins cut Borah's lead to 55-47 with three minutes left. The Lions failed to score on their next five possessions, but Twin Falls could not close the big gap.

"That hurt us," Astorquia said. "We made a pretty good run. We were playing defense, but we couldn't get anything on offense."

Valley survives scare; downs Senators, 74-65

By Brad Breland
Times-News writer

HAZELTON — It ended in business as usual for Valley. What was unusual was a lead for Gooding for nearly the entire first half.

The Valley Vikings, ranked No. 1 among the state's Class A-3 schools in the Associated Press poll, escaped with a strong second half that beat the Senators 74-65 in a clash between the top two Canyon Conference clubs.

Gooding made a big move in the first quarter taking an early 12-7 lead, after Bill Piper hit a three-pointer followed by a Jason Summers bucket.

Keith Vest gave Valley a brief lead, but the Vikings trailed by a point at the end of the quarter.

The Senators' big man, 6-foot, 8-inch Shane Thiemann, scored the first bucket of the second quarter and Gooding was back to it's five-point advantage.

Traves Olsen and Eric Kohz scored four points apiece in the second quarter and Valley took a 35-33 lead in at the break.

"That's the best we've played offensively. We took good shots in the first half," said Gooding Coach Rich Thompson.

The Senator offense went into hiding in the second half as Valley went to it's running offense.

"The fast break was definitely the difference. We got behind and they started running," said Thompson.

The didn't seem to be the only thing going right for the Vikings.

"We changed quite a bit in the second half," said Valley Coach Bill Mitchell. "We started in a zone in the second half and then went back to a man-to-man press."

The press opened up opportunities for Valley in the second half, especially for Blake Mitchell, who popped in 17 of his 25 points in the half.

Mitchell scored 11 in the third quarter when Valley outscored Gooding 21-12 to take command of the game.

Wadkins in front of pack

The Associated Press

CARLSBAD, Calif. — Tom Kite had a game plan — throw a good round at Lanny Wadkins and make up some ground — and executed it to perfection.

There was only one problem: It didn't work.

"I shoot five under (par) and didn't move," Kite said Friday after a 67 left him still three shots off the pace at the halfway point of the Tournament of Champions, the kickoff event on the PGA Tour.

The front-running Wadkins also had a 67, his one with no bogeys, and retained his margin with a 132 total, 12 under par.

"He's playing good." Kite said after finishing 36 holes at 135. "But

NFL postseason kicks off today

The Associated Press

The NFL playoff format is new, but the excitement is old. The playoffs are a time for the players to show their skills and for the fans to cheer.

Miami will be playing its first playoff game since 1985 and Kansas City will be in its first postseason game since 1996.

We've got a good blend of water and wine. The young guys have enthusiasm and just the right amount of experience. It's now or never. We may not ever be on a team this good again.

Of the 47 players on each roster, only 16 Dolphins and 22 Chiefs have been in a postseason game.

The pants fall from former New York Met Ron Swoboda, now a New Orleans sportscaster, as he lives up to his promise if the Saints leads a winning record.

Washington coach Joe Gibbs doesn't sound like he's happy about being in Philadelphia because he's always preferred to play a lot of other teams. "I think we'd prefer to play a lot of other teams," Gibbs said. "But we're locked in to playing a tough opponent at this point. We'll have to win the game to advance. We're not going to let ourselves be eliminated. We're going to play hard. We're going to play tough. We're going to play physical. We're going to play aggressive. We're going to play like champions. We're going to play like winners. We're going to play like the champions of the NFL.

New Orleans was only 8-8 this season, but coach Jim Mora says that doesn't matter. "Everybody's goal is to get into the playoffs," he said. "I believe we deserve to be there."

Tomczak, filling in for injured Jim Harbaugh, has started the last two games. He has a 22-10 record in six years as a starter. Bears coach Mike Ditka has asked the crowd at Soldier Field to be patient with Tomczak.

"Jeffites is a good receiver, but it's not like he's going to come back with blood between them," Tomczak said.

Comback Eric Thomas, who helped the Bengals beat Houston 40-20 on Dec. 23, said Oilers wide receiver Haywood Jeffries talks too much.

"Jeffries is a good receiver, but it's not like he's going to come back with blood between them," Tomczak said.

Patriots seek change, fire head coach Rust

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Rod Rust was fired Friday as coach of the New England Patriots after a losing season and one win.

Five days after the worst season in Patriots history ended with their 14th straight loss and a 1-15 record, chief executive officer Sam Jankovich dismissed Rust with three years left on his contract.

There were several reasons for what Jankovich called a "tough decision," but he praised Rust as "a great coach."

He met with Rust for about three hours Friday and said Rust was concerned about problems in the working relationship with his assistant coaches. If Rust were retained, it might be difficult to find new assistants, considering the chances of a mid-season coaching change next season, Jankovich said.

City, New England and Pittsburgh before taking his first head coaching job.

He handled his firing without bitterness.

"I'm disappointed but I think I'll survive it," he said. "I think (when you're fired) you can't expect the world to be all roses."

Sam Jankovich

Waits someone 'full of fire' Jankovich said he wants Rust to give him a thorough evaluation of the team and its needs, and Rust said he would do whatever he could to help the Patriots.

"There are a great number of players I have a great regard for," Rust said. "I want to see them succeed."

Jankovich said it would be up to the new coach to decide which assistants he wants to retain.

The Patriots were beset by problems both on and off the field. Their 181 points were the fewest of any team in the 13 seasons the NFL has had a 16-game schedule. They allowed 446 points, second most in the league. Their poor play was reflected in poor attendance.

One day after their only victory, 16-14 over Indianapolis on Sept. 16, a locker room incident occurred in which reporter Lisa Olszewski said was "brutally" harassed by several players. After an investigation, the NFL fined the team and three players.

Redskins-Eagles games usually bruising

Knight-Ridder News Service

PHILADELPHIA — The last time Washington played the Philadelphia Eagles at Veterans Stadium, the most active member of the Redskins was the team physician.

Nine players were injured. Washington ran out of healthy quarterbacks, needing a running back (Brian Mitchell) to finish up on Nov. 12 in a devastating 28-14 loss to the Eagles, who didn't really act as representatives for the City of Brotherly Love.

"Bounty Hunters" taunted the fallen backs, asking if they needed body bags or an ambulance. "Hey, Eagles safety William Frizzell screamed, 'you guys are going to need a bus to get all the stretchers back home!'"

The Eagles (10-6) again play host but hardly good Samaritans on Saturday at 12:30 p.m. EST against the Redskins (10-6) in an NFL first-round playoff matchup. It's not a game for the squeamish. Philadelphia's ferocious, gambling defense sent six quarterbacks to the sideline during the last nine games. Washington's Jeff Rutledge and Stan Humphries were two of the victims.

"The game is called football if they get hurt, they get hurt," Frizzell said.

"I'm ticked off too, because we've got to win a playoff game."

In this evenly matched gridiron match, the Eagles' plan is simple: make life miserable for Redskins quarterback Mark Rypien and defuse an explosive offense.

"You get some hits on them, and they're human," Ryan said, speaking of quarterbacks. "They start wondering."

Rypien didn't get hit in the two games the teams split — Washington won the first time, 13-7, because he was already out, nursing a knee injury. But since his return, Rypien, known to rattle at times under pressure, has been shaky. The Eagles want to unnerve Rypien for their fight with the Redskins' big play "Posse of Art." Against his man-to-man defense.

Although there is word Washington coach Joe Gibbs may feature resurgent Earnest Byner (1,219 yards), the Eagles aren't as worried. They've stopped every other good back from getting 100 yards this season.

son, from Thurman (Thomas to Johnny Johnson, to Emmitt Smith. The New York Giants were the last team to break the 100-yard barrier nine weeks ago against the NFL's No. 1 team, the Redskins.

Philadelphia grounded Washington in its last game, losing to the Redskins 27-20.

Coming up, big in the run department also keeps Eagles quarterback Randall Cunningham on the sideline.

Cunningham, enjoying his finest season, is a nightmare with his running and improved passing game.

After 20 years, Chiefs looking for revenge

Los Angeles Times

MIAMI — The Christmas meal went cold as sudden death lingered. The first overtime ended, the second began as the Kansas City Chiefs and Miami Dolphins worked feverishly for victory in the 1971 American Football Conference playoffs.

"At one point in the second overtime, I found Nick Buoniconti resting on top of me," Ed Podolak, former Chiefs running back, recalled. "I remember looking up at him and saying, 'Do you think this thing will ever end?'"

"It ended, all right, with the wrong side winning. Looking back, it was kind of a turning point for both teams. It was the rise of Miami dominance and the beginning of the end for the Chiefs."

Despite Podolak's 350 all-purpose yards that Christmas Day, the Dolphins won, 27-24, in double overtime in the NFL's longest game.

"One of the great ones ever played," Miami Coach Don Shula said. "It's been a long time."

The wait for the playoff rematch has stretched to 20 years. Saturday, the Chiefs (11-5), who have made only one playoff appearance since 1986, since losing to the Dolphins in '71, will play the Dolphins (12-4) in an AFC wild-card game at Joe Robbie Stadium.

"I'm having fun, and I don't want it to end," said Kansas City quarterback Steve DeBers, who started and lost his only other playoff game while with the Denver Broncos in 1983.

The reconstructed Chiefs, under Coach Marty Schottenheimer, won four of their final five games last season, including two victories over the Dolphins.

"They wrapped up this season with six victories in their final seven games."

"They're even better than they were last year," Shula said. "They have Barry Word, and that gives them a one-two running punch with Christian Okoye. A size shoulder limited Okoye to 805 yards this season, but Word came on to gain 1,105 yards."

In the past month against Miami's defense, Eric Dickerson of the Indianapolis Colts ran for 110 yards; Buffalo Bill Thurman — Thomas gained 154, and Earnest Byner of the Washington Redskins picked up 157.

While needing bulk up front to contend with the 248-pound word and the 260-pound Okoye, the Dolphins learned this week they might be without 285-pound starting nose tackle Shawn Lee, who suffered back spasms Thursday and remained in the hospital Friday. "If they're successful running the ball, it's over," Miami cornerback Tim McKeyer said.

McKeyer, who was acquired from the San Francisco 49ers, has become the Dolphins' self-appointed magpie.

He said the Chiefs' highly regarded secondary was "suspect" because Houston's Warren Moon passed for 527 yards.

Chief cornerback Albert Lewis called McKeyer "ignorant" and said, "McKeyer's mouth was functioning a lot better than his brain."

McKeyer's teammates joined the fray, but their squabble was with McKeyer. Quarterback Dan Marino said McKeyer "junks too much."

Gretzky, under orders, is shooting more

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Wayne Gretzky came into the season without an aluminum stick and orders from his coach to shoot more and pass less.

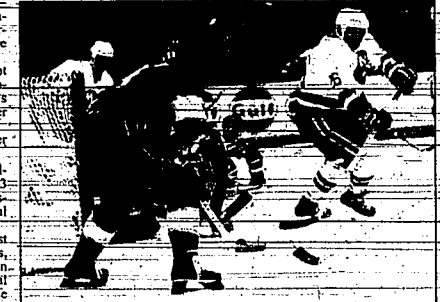

"Last year, he didn't shoot enough," Kings coach Tom Webster said, reflecting on Gretzky's 40-goal season that tied a career low.

Gretzky, armed with a quicker and harder stick, is hitting harder. He already has 25 goals, including three in Thursday night's 6-3 victory over the New York Islanders that boosted his career total to 702.

Gretzky, who already owns most of the NHL's offensive records, became only the fourth player in history to reach the 700-goal plateau. The others are Gordie Howe (701), Marcel Dionne (731) and Phil Esposito (717).

"I think I still have 100 goals in me, barring injury," Gretzky said. "I'd like to be on a better pace, but I think I can score 50 goals this year."

That used to be a given for Gretzky.

Gretzky, in black, scores his 700th NHL goal Thursday.

But his goal production has gone down and his assists have gone up since then. In 1985-86, when he was still with the Oilers, he set the record for goals in a season with 92 while with the Edmonton Oilers. NHL assist record with 163.

"The 92 goals, the 163 assists and the 50-59 are the records I'm most proud of," Gretzky said.

While needing bulk up front to contend with the 248-pound word and the 260-pound Okoye, the Dolphins learned this week they might be without 285-pound starting nose tackle Shawn Lee, who suffered back spasms Thursday and remained in the hospital Friday. One of the maxims learned early in one's bridge career is to lead the top card of a doubleton whenever it's time to break that suit. Was it right, therefore, for East to shift to his club jack?

East won his heart ace and correctly decided to switch to clubs. West's lead of the heart nine placed the king with South, and the best that West might contribute in the diamond suit was two winners. Clearly, the defenders needed a club trick to have any realistic hope.

Unfortunately for East, he cleared one hurdle and stumbled on the next: He switched to the jack of clubs. Dummy won, trumps were drawn and a diamond lost to West's queen. West led back a club with high hopes, but South turned up with the 10 instead of East (dummy played low). West then got one more diamond, but South got his game. It was hardly a fair trade.

There would have been a different ending had East switched to his club four instead of the jack. West's eight would have forced dummy's king, and when West won his first diamond, a club return would have earned the defense the setting trick.
