

Gulf force use likely to win OK

Chicago Tribune

WASHINGTON — Congress appeared ready late Friday to authorize President Bush to take the nation into war against Iraq, and as the voting neared, the administration lobbied hard to assure he would win what is arguably the most important vote of his presidency.

The House will vote Saturday afternoon, the Senate at some point later in the weekend.

The effort was especially intense in the Senate, where Bush supporters were reluctant to predict victory. Most tallies showed the vote would be close and if administration forces win, it would be by a

A defeat in either house would weaken Bush's hand in dealing with the crisis in the Persian Gulf—setting the Congress against the United Nations and the multi-national alliance that has endorsed the use of force to oust Saddam Hussein from Kuwait.

The House is scheduled to vote on three resolutions. One, a bipartisan effort backed by the administration, would give Bush authority to use military force at his discretion.

A second, offered by House Democrats, calls for the continued use of economic sanctions against Iraq and requires the president to seek congressional approval to use military force.

A third resolution reasserts the authority of Congress to declare war. The Senate was considering a pair of resolutions, all but identical to the first two in the House, but amendments that could modify them were expected.

Bush met Friday at the White House with about 125 House members from both parties and told them that "the last best chance for Saddam Hussein to get the message is in your hands."

CIA briefings were held for members of the Senate and House, and proponents of giving Bush authority to take military action in the Persian Gulf circulated a letter from CIA Director William Webster saying that sanctions, even if kept in 30-day gulf war would cost $173 for each Idahoan

By David Kelly
States News Service

WASHINGTON — Operation Desert Shield has already cost Idaho taxpayers $87 million and a 30-day war would cost an additional $174 million, according to a study released this week by a Michigan researcher.

That's $173 for every man, woman and child in Idaho. According to the study by James Anderson, a professor at Michigan State University, the American involvement in the Persian Gulf is adding further strain to state and local budgets already stretched to their limits by recession.

"With the needs of states, counties, and cities mounting, federal grant program aid diminishing, and tax revenues shrinking, the Bush administration has found a way to make a dangerous situation worse," said the report, which was prepared on behalf of Employment Research Associates, an economic research firm in East Lansing Mich.

But recently retired Sen. James McClure said those calculations miss the point.

"What does it cost us to have oil prices doubled?" he said. "The economic cost of oil alone is far greater than the economic cost of Desert Shield. If all this is an economic equation, war is less costly. It's not just an economic equation, but if that's all you're looking at, it doesn't cost us as much as the alternative."

Entitled, "Desert Bomb? A Budget Bomb?" the Michigan State report said that so far the military buildup in the gulf has cost $30 billion or an average of $600 million per state.

California taxpayers will shell out the most money for the operation estimated to cost them $3.8 billion. They

Armed services try to notify casualties' kin quickly

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — If war breaks out in the Persian Gulf and American troops are killed, the military is prepared for the grim duty of notifying their loved ones.

"We are always at a state of readiness," said Lt. Col. Joseph Allred, an Army spokesman at the Pentagon.

Even during times of peace, accidents or other causes claim the lives of military personnel and the procedure for notifying relatives is the same, Allred said.

Each serviceman or servicewoman fills out a file card when he or she is assigned to a duty station, listing the address and telephone number of a primary or secondary next of kin, Allred said.

When a soldier is killed, his or her commanding officer notifies the casualty assistance office nearest the primary next of kin, he said.

An officer of equal or higher rank than the person who died is given the details of the death and dispatched to the family's home, no matter what time of day it is.

Sometimes a chaplain is present to help the relatives through the grieving process, Allred said.

Most notifications take between 24 to 48 hours, he said.

"We try to carry out the notifications with the utmost dignity and we try to do it as quickly as possible," Allred said.

The procedure for other branches of the military is identical or similar to the Army's.

After the next of kin have been notified, the military releases the names to the media, either directly through the Pentagon or through local public affairs offices, Allred said.

Deadline confusion: Is it midnight EST or at the oasis?

The Associated Press

UNITED NATIONS — Everyone agrees that Iraq has until midnight Jan. 15, the end of Tuesday, to obey U.N. Security Council resolutions requiring it to withdraw from Iraq.

The problem is, there's no agreement on whether the deadline is to begin at midnight Eastern time or Iraqi time.

It makes an eight-hour difference. The "use of force" resolution demands that Baghdad "fully implement" all council resolutions on the invasion of Kuwait "on or before 15 January 1991."

That means the troop withdrawal must be under way and the ousted Kuwaiti government must be restored by midnight, diplomats agree.

But midnight where, and when? New York time? Or Kuwait-Saudi Arabia-Iraq time? The resolution gives no clue.

In Taif, Saudi Arabia, U.S. Secretary of State James A. Baker III told American combat pilots Friday that "we pass the brink" of war with Iraq precisely at midnight next Tuesday.

"Now as the clock ticks down to midnight Jan. 15," he said, "I cannot give you a definitive answer. But I can tell you that you will not have to wait much longer for an answer to that question."

"Just so there is no misunderstanding," Baker said, "let me be absolutely clear: We pass the brink at midnight, Jan. 15."

Governor says 6-cent gas tax increase needed to fix roads

The Associated Press

BOISE — Gov. Cecil Andrus is not backing down from a key proposal in his new budget — a 6-cent per gallon increase in the state fuel tax.

After Andrus made the presentation in his budget message Thursday, a lot of legislators criticized it and some made predictions it will never pass.

A Canyon County resident apparently carried the protest a step further. It was reported that an effigy of the governor was hung from an overpass briefly Thursday evening, protesting the increase. It wasn't there Friday.

The governor was asked Friday if he felt the opposition signaled that it would be hard to get the increase through the Legislature.

"Not if the people really want to improve the highways, roads and bridges in the state of Idaho," he said.

He said the Legislature is aware that Idaho's highway system needs some extra cash to catch up on a big backlog of projects. In the last governor's campaign, Andrus said many people told him they supported education, wanted good highways and were tired of increases in the property tax.

"They were very adamant about putting money into the improvement of highways," he said. "The problem is there; it has been outlined, it will cost money."

Andrus said there wasn't much protest in Idaho when the federal fuel tax went up 5 cents per gallon last summer.

"This money stays right here in Idaho and improves the highways, roads and bridges. That (the 6-cent increase) or something very close to it will pass," he said.

The governor said he was aware that there was some criticism because he was proposing a tax increase in a year when the state budget has a surplus. But he said it's necessary to have a stable, continuing source of funding for highway projects.

White supremacists to do time for bomb plot

The Associated Press

BOISE — Three northern Idaho white supremacists convicted of hatching a foiled plot to bomb a gay nightclub in Seattle last spring have been sentenced to a total of 19 years in federal prison.

U.S. District Judge Harold Ryan on Friday sentenced John Robert Winslow, 29, to nine years and a $3,500 fine, Stephen E. Nelson, 35, to eight years and 150 hours of community service, and Procter James Baker, 38, to two years, 150 hours of community service and a $7,500 fine.

All three have been in custody since their arrests last May 12, and Ryan gave each credit against their sentences for 244 days already served.

Nelson and Winslow, who prosecutors argued was the ringleader of the conspiracy, could have received 25 years each. Baker faced up to 20 years behind bars.

"It's pretty much what I expected at the beginning of the case," said Nelson's attorney, Eric Hackney. "Although in terms of what it would have been."

Hackney said he would appeal on Nelson's behalf. Douglas VanderBoegh, Winslow's attorney, said he also expected to challenge the sentences. Baker's attorney, Everett Hoemster, already has a motion before Ryan seeking a new trial.

Last fall, a jury in Boise found all three guilty on Oct. 18 of conspiracy and manufacturing and possessing pipe bombs. Nelson and Winslow also were convicted of using interstate commerce in a conspiracy to possess firearms in commission of a violent crime.

Nation's winter wheat farmers scale back their crop plantings

WASHINGTON (AP)—Farmers have scaled back winter wheat plantings sharply from 1990, reacting to abundant supplies and sagging market prices, an Agriculture Department report showed Friday.

Idaho acreage — B1

1991 winter wheat plantings were the smallest since 1988. After the idling rearmament program, the U.S. wheat stockpiles dwindled, but bumper harvests once again boosted inventories.

With a world abundance of wheat and a decline in exports, the American wheat farmers saw year-end surpluses rise quickly.

A related supply and demand report showed that the U.S. wheat stockpile at the start of the 1991-92 marketing year on June 1 is expected to be around 987 million bushels, up from 536 million bushels last June 1.

Meanwhile, the report said, the farm price of wheat in the current marketing year is projected to average $2.55-2.65 per bushel, two dollars from $3.72 in each of the two previous years.

A market report showed how wheat supplies have grown. As of Dec. 1, 1990, the "grain stocks" report said wheat in storage was estimated at 1.91 billion bushels, up 34 percent from Dec. 1, 1989.

Holding soybean farmers were estimated 762 million bushels, up 29 percent from a year earlier, while off-farm stocks at 1.15 billion bushels were up 38 percent.

The report showed corn stocks at 6.94 billion bushels, down 2 percent from Dec. 1, 1989, although farm inventories rose 4 percent to 4.87 billion bushels. Off-farm inventories were down 13 percent to 7.07 billion bushels.

Soybean stocks, estimated at 1.68 billion bushels, were up 5 percent from a year earlier. Farm stocks, at 754 million bushels, were down 5 percent, while off-farm soybeans were up 1 percent.

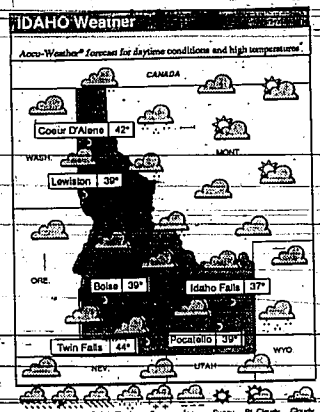

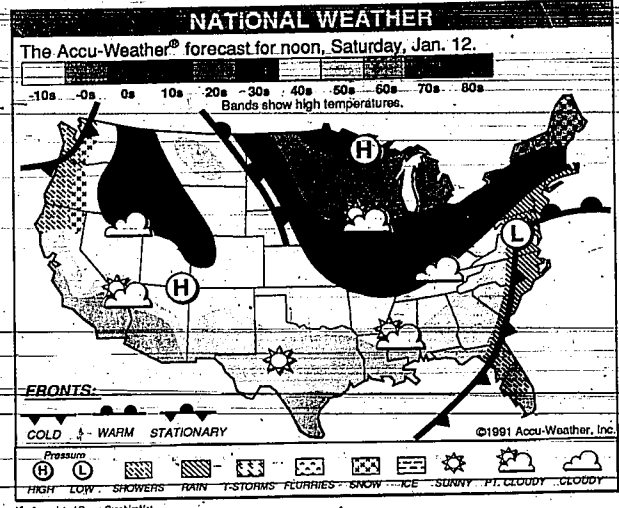

Corn has also been in relative abundance because of recent large yields, but the carryover supplies have slumped down substantially. By the time a new harvest is ready to 1.185 billion bushels from 1.344 billion last Sept. 1 and 1.93 billion bushels on Sept. 1, 1989.

The gradual reduction in "surplus" stocks is due to growing domestic use, primarily as livestock feed. Exports picked up to $9.90 but have shown a slight decline in the report showed.

Corn prices at the farm continue to be projected at $2.20 to $2.50 per bushel, compared with $2.36 last year and $2.54 in 1988-89.

A review of 1990 crop production showed relatively minor adjustments in USDA's previously announced harvest figures for the major crops.

Perot campaigning against war

Los Angeles Times

DALLAS — H. Ross Perot has a new mission — to persuade the nation not to go to war and shut down the economy. He has been sold a bill of goods by the Bush administration.

In speech after speech, Perot, one of the nation's richest men, has been hammering-home his message: that only Congress can declare war and that the Bush administration has portrayed combat as more of a "second Super Bowl" than as pain and death.

"I have a keen understanding of what war is. It is not an athletic contest," Perot said at a Dallas office Friday before leaving for Los Angeles and another talk show.

Perot, a U.S. Naval Academy graduate who made his fortune in the computer business, seems an unlikely person to be a vocal opponent of a Gulf war. But as a longtime advocate of the American soldier, Perot said he pledged to himself that he would work against any conflict that did not have the full support of the nation.

"First, commit the nation, then you commit the troops," he said, adding that he would not be surprised if he had received thousands of letters since he started speaking out against war and that only three were negative.

ing he was opposed to giving Bush the power to launch an attack soon. "What guarantees do we have that war will be brief, that American casualties will be light?" he said. "No one can say whether war will last five days, five weeks or five months."

Sen. John Warner, R-Va., who is the ranking Republican on the Senate Armed Services Committee, and generally sided with Nunn, split with him.

Warner said the choice for the Senate was: "Do we support the president's policy of achieving the clear objectives in the Persian Gulf ... or do we repudiate the president, repudiate the policy, repudiate the UN resolution?"

Amid the formal debate and the prolix, Congress was hearing from its constituents.

Leaders of the National Council of Churches, which had launched an 11-city effort, reaffirming their commitment to a peaceful solution to the crisis and urging members of Congress not to support military action in the Gulf.

Letters to be hand-delivered to each member of Congress Friday were to be followed up with phone calls and personal appeals by church leaders to representatives and senators. The council's membership represents 32 mainline Protestant and Orthodox Christian churches.

Bush's supporters in the House were predicting victory, believing that a bipartisan coalition was likely to prevail. Democrats outnumber Republicans in the House 267-167.

In the Senate, Republicans appear able to hold all-but one or two of their 44, meaning they needed to persuade about eight Democrats to come aboard. A group of six conservative Southern Democrats pledged to support Bush as did one moderate, Sen. Joseph Lieberman of Connecticut. Several other Democrats were undecided.

Supporters of the administration line argued that resolutions authorizing force would present a united front to Saddam.

Time

But Baker's precise terms left a question whether he meant midnight in the Persian Gulf or in Washington, which occurs eight hours later than in Iraq and Kuwait, or possibly some other time zone.

At first, U.S. officials traveling with Baker in Cairo said they did not know for sure. But a few hours later they said the deadline was Tuesday at midnight U.S. Eastern Standard Time, or 5 a.m. Greenwich mean time Wednesday.

This is in-line with a unilateral declaration by the French Foreign Minister earlier this week that the deadline expires at midnight New York time, where the resolution was adopted Nov. 29.

The president of the Security Council, Zeynab Al-Bassorah-Bagbe, Adede Nzenyeng, sided with the French, opting for a New York time zone.

The research group said that if a war breaks out the cost of $30 billion would double to $60 billion in the first month of hostilities.

This would raise Idaho's tax burden to $174 million. Neighboring Montana with a population of 872 million so far and a 30-day war would increase that to $144 million.

"The magnitude of these sums can be indicated in a single statistic," the report says. "If each state's share of only a $30 billion buildup were instead credited to its budget, every one of the 27 state budget deficits currently reported for fiscal year 1991 would be eliminated and replaced with a surplus."

The National Conference of State Legislatures reported — the total deficits of these 27 states are $8.7 million. Under state law, Idaho is required to have a balanced budget.

Weather summary

Precipitation was reported all across Idaho on Friday in the form of rain, freezing rain and snow, the National Weather Service said.

The heavier amounts fell in the central part of the state where up to 40 inch of water has been reported. Snow depths decreased in some areas though because of the rain.

The freezing rain produced slick roads and hazardous travel conditions in the Treasure Valley and other parts of southern Idaho.

Visibility restrictions continue around the area as fog as well as smoke and haze blanket the valley locations. The approaching storm systems moving toward Idaho from the west should help break down the inversions and scour out the air pollutants.

The warmest temperature in the state Friday was 52 degrees at Hagerman. Bear Lake reported the coldest at 8 degrees.

Elsewhere in the nation Friday, the highest temperature was 84 degrees at Daytona Beach, Fla. The lowest was 15 degrees below zero at Fort Kent, Maine, Newport, Vt., and Havre, Mont.

Rain, snow spread across much of nation

Freezing rain, sleet and snow spread across much of the upper East Coast on Friday and snow also fell around the Great Lakes and over parts of the northern Plains.

At midday, snow extended across much of New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Sleet and freezing rain moved northward and extended over Maryland, northern Delaware, northern Virginia, southern Pennsylvania and parts of West Virginia.

Up to 8 inches of snow fell in West Virginia's Eastern Panhandle before the snow changed to sleet. Snowfall totals in Pennsylvania ranged up to 5 inches at Allentown and Coudersport. In Maryland, 7 inches fell at Frostburg.

A winter storm warning was in effect into Saturday for eastern New York state and Vermont, where up to a foot of snow was possible.

...to southern and lower Michigan.

Snowfall totals in southern Wisconsin ranged up to 5 inches at Grant by early afternoon.

Rain extended across much of the area from northern Florida and the central Gulf Coast to the Ohio Valley and the mid-Atlantic Coast during the afternoon. A few thunderstorms crossed southern Georgia and northwestern Florida.

Showers and thunderstorms produced locally heavy rain in Georgia and northern Florida from Thursday into early Friday. Cabbage Grove, in northeastern Florida, got 8.65 inches.

Apalachicola, Fla., was deluged with 6.75 inches of rain between 7 p.m. EST Thursday and 1 p.m. EST Friday. Tallahassee got 5.25 inches of rain during the 24 hours up to 1 p.m. EST.

A weather system off the Pacific Coast produced rain and strong wind along the coast of Washington. One day is hereby designated as the day of the week on which legal notices will be published.

A few new showers spread over the northern Rockies during the afternoon.

Baker informs pilots 'We pass the brink' at midnight Tuesday

TAIF, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Secretary of State James A. Baker III told American combat pilots Friday that "we pass the brink" of war with Iraq precisely at midnight next Tuesday.

In a tough speech, clearly aimed at Saddam Hussein as well, he said the deadline will not be extended and the Iraqi leader will be making "his most tragic miscalculation" if he fails to pull his troops out of Kuwait by then.

Baker's speech, prepared for delivery to the 48th Tactical Fighter Wing, normally based in England, followed a breakdown in U.S. diplomatic efforts to persuade Saddam to withdraw the 500,000 Iraqi troops before the deadline by the U.S. Security Council last November.

Other diplomacy continued, however, and Baker spoke by telephone from Abu Dhabi, one of his three gulf stops, to Jacques Poos, the foreign minister of Luxembourg who is leading a bloc of the 12-nation European Community to persuade Saddam to quit Kuwait.

Also, Deputy Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger was being sent to Israel for talks Saturday night with Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir. President Bush telephoned Shamir on Thursday, officials in Washington said.

The Bush administration wants Israel to hold its fire unless it is attacked, fearing the Arab coalition against Iraq would splinter otherwise. Saddam has threatened to bomb Jerusalem in the event of war. And U.S. officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Baker had received fresh assurances during that week that they would not break away if Israel retaliated.

In Saudi Arabia, Baker told the pilots and crews assembled in a hangar, "You are the combat crews who will join in the liberation of Kuwait." Baker recalled that when he spoke to many of the same pilots at the same base last September he was unable to say when they might be called into action.

"Now as the clock ticks down to midnight Jan. 16, the time has come for a definitive answer. But I can tell you that you will not have to wait much longer for an answer to that question."

Baker directed the speech also to Saddam, saying the Iraqi might miscalculate "where the brink really is" and wait to make a move.

"Just so there is no misunderstanding," Baker said, "let me be absolutely clear: We pass the brink at midnight Jan. 16."

The deadline "is real," Baker said. "Efforts to extend it or postpone it will not succeed. Saddam can believe that or not, but if he doesn't he will have made his most tragic miscalculation."

Friday, Saudi Arabia pledged to bear 40 percent to 50 percent of the costs of confronting Iraq in the Persian Gulf, but U.S. and Saudi officials refused to estimate how much that might be in dollars. Prince Bandar, the Saudi ambassador to the United States, announced the pledge after Baker met in Riyadh with Prince Saud, the foreign minister, and other Saudi officials over breakfast.

Both Bandar and Baker declined to say whether the Saudis were increasing their proportional share of the costs of Operation Desert Shield.

"The kingdom has been very generous during 1990," Baker said. "At the same time that we had those discussions, we said we would have discussions regarding 1991. If the crisis continues into 1991 and we have had those discussions and I am very satisfied with those discussions."

Saudi oil profits have soared since Iraq invaded Kuwait last August and the U.N. Security Council imposed a worldwide boycott on Iraq and Kuwaiti oil in an attempt to force Iraq out. Some members of Congress, complaining of windfall profits, argue that the Saudis' contribution of about $1 billion a month until the end of 1990 represented a small fraction of what they took in.

Baker also stopped Friday in the oil-rich United Arab Emirates for a meeting with President Zayed bin Sultan al-Nahyan and Foreign Minister Rashid Abdullah Al-Jumayyil. A U.S. official, insisting on anonymity, said Baker had talked to the Zayed about additional contributions to support the campaign.

Iraq has numerical edge, but U.S. artillery has more accuracy

IN EASTERN SAUDI ARABIA, (AP) — Iraq "outguns" the multinational force in artillery, but the mobility and accuracy of U.S. artillery more than make up for Iraq's numerical advantage, allied military officials say.

"We don't worry about the numbers. It's accuracy that's going to count," said Command Sgt. Maj. Robert Speichinger, 43, of Lawton, Okla., who serves with the Army's 75th Artillery Brigade.

Iraq has 2,700 artillery pieces in the Kuwait theater of operations, according to the U.S. Central Command. Saddam Hussein's troops have a formidable array of hardware from France, the Soviet Union, Austria and Brazil, which it used effectively in the 1980-88 war with Iran. But most of the big guns have to be towed.

U.S. officials refuse to say how many artillery pieces they have. But Jane's Defense Weekly says 636 pieces, most of them self-propelled, are in the U.S. front lines. The Marines have about 100 artillery pieces.

The U.S. arsenal includes 60 radar-guided multiple launch rocket systems, laser-guided Copperhead missiles and an unrelaxed number of new Army Tactical Missile Systems. These systems, which have a range of more than 60 miles, help give the United States a "major advantage" over Saddam's men, according to Lt. Col. Patrick Sweeney, operations officer for the U.S. Army's 18th Airborne Artillery Corps.

"We plan to move and shoot. That's our big edge," Sweeney said. "The Iraqis haven't faced this kind of system, this kind of quality before. He's used to sitting in one position and firing a lot of shells. He can't do that against us. He's got to remember that or it'll be his last conscious memory," he said.

Allied forces can also target their fire more effectively if they choose to breach selected spots of Iraq's 165-mile-long defensive wall that runs from the gulf coast along the Saudi border, independent analysts said.

"The Iraqis have to cover every approach. The allies have a choice where to go so they can concentrate their artillery," said Col. Andrew Duncan of London's International Institute for Strategic Studies.

"Because U.S. artillery is self-propelled, the big guns can fire and move, or 'shoot and scoot,' as artillerymen say.

Iraq's artillery has to be towed on trailers through the sand, and most of their guns are dug in. "Pulling around a trailer in this stuff is like dragging an anchor," said Lt. Col. Gregory Morton, executive officer for the 75th Field Artillery Regiment. "They're sitting targets. They're not going anywhere."

He also said artillery, known as the "King of Battle," will form with air-power to soften up if not breach enemy lines. It will be used to blast bunkers and smash trenches to open lanes for tanks and infantry. Some rounds are specially made with delayed fuses to burrow into bunkers and then explode.

"You don't have to kill them. As long as they're covering down in the bottom of their bunkers, they're not shooting at you," said Morton, 44, of Kent, Ohio.

U.S. artillerymen are convinced their guns are more accurate than Iraq's. During a recent test of a 203mm, or eight-inch gun, the 5th Battalion of the 18th Field Artillery Regiment scored direct hits on five out of six shots from a range of 14 miles with 200-pound shells.

Gulf war would bring blood donation need

The Associated Press

Americans will be asked to roll up their sleeves and make special donations to avert blood shortages if war breaks out in the Persian Gulf, national blood banking organizations say.

"The anticipated response should be enough to prevent shortages, spokeswoman said.

"The patriotic response that we expect in this country will be so tremendous, as it has been with many emergencies experienced within this country, that we think our only problem will be continuing the response over time," said spokeswoman Elizabeth Hall of the American Red Cross.

The Red Cross collects about half the nation's blood supply. At the American Association of Blood Banks, whose 2,400 member institutions collect the other half, "we feel we can meet the need," said spokeswoman Marcia Lane.

Both the Red Cross and the American Association of Blood Banks are each contributing 1,000 units of blood a week now to the military. A unit is about a pint.

If war broke out, the two organizations each would contribute an expected 800 units a day, which would be 4 percent of the 20,000 units each organization collects every day, Lane said. The 800-unit estimate is a minimum, Hall said.

"In a wartime appeal is issued, blood banks would need additional donations over time rather than all at once," the spokeswoman said. Some donors might be turned away initially and asked to return later, Hall said.

She also said individual donors could not be asked to give their contributions would go the gulf, rather than being used domestically. January is traditionally a tough month for blood supplies. Donations tend to be down because many people get colds or the flu, and bad weather forces cancellation of blood drives. Demand is up because many people postpone elective surgery until after the holidays.

"The war is sort of happening at a bad time in terms of blood supply," Lane said.

All the Bonfils Memorial Blood Center in Denver, spokeswoman Ron Bergin said Friday he is concerned about the prospect of wartime blood demand during this annual supply slump.

No blood from the center goes to the military now, he said.

Israel steps up readiness for war with Iraqi forces

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel on Friday stepped up its readiness to defend against an Iraqi attack, calling up some reserve troops and urging citizens to protect their homes against chemical weapons.

The U.S. Embassy advised the 70,000 to 100,000 Americans living in Israel and the occupied territories to leave because of increased tensions.

Israel's Education Ministry said it was setting up special classrooms to seal off in case of attack. Major supermarkets announced special hours after the Jewish Sabbath ends at sundown Saturday to allow shoppers to stockpile emergency supplies.

A poll showed 55 percent of Israelis believe a war will break out. Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has threatened to attack Israel if his country is hit by U.S.-allied forces in the Persian Gulf.

Israel has tried to keep a low profile during the gulf crisis, in response to American requests to do nothing that could upset the U.S. alliance with Arab nations against Saddam.

Grocery stores were crowded Friday with shoppers buying staples for an emergency.

In Tel Aviv, one station dispensing government-issue gas masks was so crowded that those waiting in line had to help unload a truck full of the masks.

Carter calls for peace talks

ATLANTA (AP) — Former President Jimmy Carter on Friday called for an international peace conference to discuss the Persian Gulf crisis and Palestinian rights.

"War is neither inevitable nor necessary to resolve the gulf crisis," Democratic Carter said in a statement issued by the Carter Center. "Iraq's urgency and U.S. quibbling over negotiating dates and linkages have moved us slowly but inexorably toward military action." The Bush administration has adamantly opposed attempts to link Iraq's occupation of Kuwait with Palestinian grievances against Israel. Carter said the two issues should be discussed together, adding, "If necessary to save face, we can continue to deny what everyone knows: that linkage does exist."

Carter said war on Iraq would start three decades of bloodshed.

Sportsquote

“You guys come in the locker room, you’ve been whipped good and guys are giggling. If I lost by 35 at home, I couldn’t even look at my teammates or my coach. You’re lucky I don’t own this team because I’d waive eight of your butts right now. You’d have to sue to collect your money. I’d drag the litigation out forever. You might collect it in 50 years, but by then you’d be too old to enjoy it.”

49ers, Giants play for real with Super Bowl at stake

The Associated Press

Finally, the San Francisco 49ers and New York Giants get to play a game that really means something. “We finally have a real reason to be playing,” says Matt Millen, the inside linebacker for the 49ers, who began their quest for an unprecedented third straight Super Bowl victory against Washington on Saturday at Candlestick Park.

“People don’t realize that there’s a downside to clinching your division early,” says George Young, general manager of the Giants, who plays at home Sunday against the Chicago Bears in the other NFC semi-final.

The NFL will cut its eight remaining teams to four this weekend, beginning at 12:30 p.m. EST Sunday when Miami visits Buffalo in a reprise of their AFC East title battle four weeks ago. Then the 49ers play the Redskins.

The Giants-Bears game at Giants Stadium opens the Sunday action, followed by the Cincinnati Bengals in Los Angeles against the Raiders. While Buffalo (13-3) and the Raiders (12-4) had records similar to the 49ers (14-2) and the Giants (13-3), they had to work hard to the end of the regular season.

Buffalo didn’t clinch anything until the 15th week, when the Bills beat Miami 24-14 to win the AFC East and the home-field advantage in the conference. The Raiders clinched the AFC West over Kansas City only by beating San Diego 17-12 in their final game.

Both the 49ers and Giants finished the season relatively flat, in fact, they’ve been teams that since becoming the first teams to start a season 10-0 in tandem. Since the Bears and Lions did it in 1934. By that time, each had effectively clinched their divisions—the NFC West and East—as had the once-beaten Bears in the Central.

The Giants, 49ers and Bears lost in the eleventh week, then San Francisco beat New York 7-3 at Candlestick on Dec. 3 in this season’s “Game of the Century.” There were more press credentials issued for that game than the NFC title game a year ago.

“We played well defensively, but couldn’t get a shot off,” said Eagle coach Ben Stroh after watching his team drop its second game in 10 outings.

CSI, which hosts Eastern Utah in a Region 18 contest in a week near led and was outscored 16-6 early. The Eagles trimmed the deficit to four near end of first half, but back-to-back turnovers sent the Mounties up by eight points at halftime.

Outshot 62 to 51 from the field and charged with 24 turnovers CSI “struggled the whole night,” according to Stroh. “We got no scoring out of (Candace) Lords and (Cynthia) Clinger.” Clinger played all of about five Jerome's Matt Williams takes the high road for a jump shot over Ryan McDonald of Buhl.

Tigers' defense shuts down Indians, 56-44

By Larry Hovey Times-News writer

JEROME — The Jerome Tigers applied a strong defensive clamp to Buhl's offense in the first half Friday night and opened the South Central Idaho Conference title chase with a 56-44 victory.

Picking off a number of passes and forcing a lot of hurried shots, the Tigers pushed into a 31-12 halftime lead and hit 20-point margins a couple of times in the third quarter.

“That was a relief to Jerome Coach Jim Stauffer who twice had led by double digits at halftime on the home court and hadn’t been able to hang on.

Stauffer credited his defense for the victory, noting “I thought we played very well defensively in the first half. We worked at working up into the passing lanes. And I thought a big key was our best defensive man putting a two-point lid on (Buhl’s) offense. Jerome’s the first half. Wilson is a great scorer and I believe (Matt) Williams might be the best defensive player in the state. It was a great matchup between two very good players.”

Williams supported his defensive effort with 17 points, getting 13 of those in the first half. Wilson came back in the second half for 11 points to wind up with 13.

But the overall impression of that first half was Jerome’s ability to get more hands on Buhl passes than the Indians. As a result, it was a low-scoring half that really started falling. Jerome’s way when Williams opened the second quarter with a three-point goal.

Rose's son speaks out

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Pete Rose continued his silence Friday about the Hall of Fame’s moves to bar him from consideration. His son, however, lashed out at the eligibility committee’s moves.

“If they don’t let him in the Hall of Fame, then there shouldn’t be a Hall of Fame,” Pete Rose Jr. said.

A special committee of the Hall of Fame voted 7-3 Thursday to recommend that the names of banned players be kept off the ballot. The recommendation is expected to be adopted when the Hall of Fame’s board of directors meets on Feb. 4.

Baseball officials, players and fans continued to discuss the move Friday. Bill Guilio, the association director of the Hall, said some of the furor had lessened in Cooperstown, N.Y., the site of the Hall of Fame.

“We had a lot of calls yesterday,” Guilio said. “One of the radio stations in Cincinnati was conducting a campaign for fans to call. Today it’s shifted off considerably.”

Vance Dillard, operation manager of WLW in Cincinnati, said his station would continue to protest the move to exclude Clinger.

“We will keep coming up with ways for our listeners to voice their outrage,” he said. Guilio also said a large number of the telephone calls to the Hall of Fame in the last two days came from the Cincinnati area.

“They obviously are upset,” he said.

Tigers hold off Bruins, 58-51, remain unbeaten

By Jeff Haskisson Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Clutch foul shooting in the game’s final minutes provided the difference for the Jerome Tigers as they collected their 15th consecutive victory with a 58-51 non-conference win over the Twin Falls Bruins.

“That was a tough one,” remarked Tigers coach Ken Wright of his teams seven-point victory.

“We came out in foul trouble in the second-half and decided to go to them with a zone defense,” expressed Bruins coach Karen Kohling. “We forced them to take outside shots like we wanted but we were not able to shut them off the offense boards. That really hurt us.”

The Bruins made an attempt at the end of the quarter to close the gap getting two baskets from Cindy Scheel to cut the Tigers lead to 37-33 at the end of three quarters.

A: Freshwater springs.

No, ma'am, butter is not what you store in a "buttery." You store liquor there. Comes from "butt" meaning "cask."

Oil blamed for biggest wholesale price surge

WASHINGTON (AP) — The shock to oil costs delivered by the Persian Gulf crisis pushed wholesale prices up 5.6 percent last year, their steepest rise since 1981, the government said Friday.

Prices last month, however, fell 0.6 percent. It was the biggest one-month drop in 44 years.

For all of 1989, energy prices were up 23.8 percent. Gasoline prices rose 45.2 percent; home heating oil costs gained 28.1 percent; natural gas prices advanced 3.7 percent.

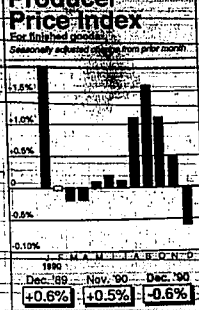

"The hike in oil prices really messed up a pretty good year," said economist Mark Zandi of Regional Financial Associates in West Chester, Pa. "We would have had pretty low inflation if it weren't for events in the Persian Gulf."

Excluding food and energy costs, which swing widely from month to month, the index rose 3.5 percent in 1990.

This rate is considered a better gauge of underlying inflationary pressures in the economy.

Food prices were up 2.5 percent. The sharpest advances were for fish, 15.9 percent; pork, 12.8 percent, and beef and veal, 9.5 percent. Egg

Producer Price Index

Source: U.S. Dept. of Labor

Prices, however, dropped 11.9 percent and turkeys and vegetables were both down 9 percent.

Last year's wholesale price acceleration compared to a 4.9 percent gain in 1989 and was the steepest since a 7.1 percent gain posted nine years ago.

Prices have risen in each of the last four years.

But Zandi predicted that with the economic downturn, gasoline and inflation will remain under control in 1991.

"Probably the only nice thing you can say about a recession is that it's going to limit inflation," he said.

Energy prices may spike up again, depending on what happens in the standoff between U.S. and Iraqi troops, analysts said.

Once war or diplomacy resolves the issue, however, plummeting oil costs should hold inflation overall to virtually zero, they said.

"There's a lot of oil out there and if we can resolve the uncertainty about oil delivery, prices are going to fall," said economist Donald Ratajczak of Georgia State University.

Energy prices fell 4.8 percent in December, after soaring more than 34 percent over the previous four months.

Fuel oil prices fell 10.7 percent and gasoline was down 7 percent. Natural gas costs, however, rose 6.7 percent.

Food prices fell 0.9 percent in December, after climbing steeply over the two previous months. The drop was led by an 18.5 percent tumble in fresh and dried vegetable costs and a 15.7 percent fall in turkey prices.

Excluding food and energy, prices rose 0.3 percent in December, down from a 0.5 percent rise in November.

Men's and children's clothing while women's costs fell for the second consecutive month.

There were price increases for passenger cars, cosmetics, floor coverings, lawn and garden equipment, tobacco and household appliances.

The various changes in December put the index for all finished goods at 121.9, up from 115.4 a year ago.

That means a hypothetical selection of goods costing $100 in 1982 would have cost $121.90 last month.

Inflation at earlier stages in the production process also was down in December.

Costs for intermediate goods fell 0.9 percent for crude goods, 5.4 percent. An example of the three processing stages is bread for finished flour for intermediate and wheat for crude.

The Producer Price Index, which measures only the price of goods, often provides a hint about the behavior of the Consumer Price Index, measuring both services and goods at the retail level.

Consumer figures for December were the previous months. The drop

Judge gives Vento concurrent sentence

NEW YORK — The former key witness in the Bensonhurst racial slaying who backed out of a deal to cooperate with prosecutors on Friday was given an additional prison term for his role.

State Supreme Court Justice Thaddeus Owens gave John Vento one and one-third to four years for his conviction last month on riot charges in the August 1989 attack on Yusuf Hawkins. But he ruled that the penalty was to run concurrently with his earlier sentence in the case.

Vento, 22, is serving two and two-thirds to eight years in prison for his conviction last summer on two counts of unlawful imprisonment and four counts of menacing.

Hawkins, 16, was slain when he and three friends, all black, crossed paths with a mob of bal-clawing whites on a street in Brooklyn's Bensonhurst neighborhood.

World trading system overhaul delayed

WASHINGTON — U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills on Friday put the prospects of concluding a four-year effort to overhaul the world trading system at a low 30 percent of less.

The talks, involving 107 nations, were suspended on Dec. 7 because of a deadlock over the European Community over the question of reducing costly farm subsidies.

While the United States and other farm exporting nations are pushing for drastic reductions in the subsidies, the 12-nation EC has refused on the grounds that the U.S. demands are politically unrealistic.

NASA plans to design a better station

WASHINGTON — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Friday it will go back to the drawing board to design a simpler, less costly space station as recommended by a panel of experts.

NASA administrator Richard Truly Truly also said NASA is moving to implement these other recommendations of the panel: Space science will remain as NASA's priority; a joint NASA-Department of Defense task force will study development of a new booster rocket to be used by both agencies; a personnel system will be worked out "that recognizes NASA's special requirements for attracting and retaining topflight scientists, engineers and other specialists.

Noriega cohort agrees to plea bargain

MIAMI — Manuel Noriega's prosecutors found themselves being grilled on the witness stand Friday defending their handling of tape recordings of the deposed Panamanian leader's phone calls from prison.

But the government also scored a victory when the last major co-defendant in custody, Amet Paredes, agreed to a plea bargain. Paredes allegedly worked directly with Noriega in arranging protection for drug traffickers.

Most of Friday's hearing dealt with a defense motion to dismiss the drug case against Noriega based on alleged government misconduct in handling taped telephone calls by the jailed Noriega to his attorneys.

Lukens released

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Former Rep. Donald Lukens was released from jail Friday after serving less than a third of a 30-day sentence and went to Washington, D.C., to undergo court-ordered counseling as a sex offender.

Lukens served nine days in jail for having sex with an underage girl in 1988 while he was a congressman.

Foreigners still trapped in Somalia

NAIROBI, Kenya — Heavy fighting on Friday again stalled efforts to rescue foreigners trapped in Somalia's capital, where the first foreign casualties were reported during battles outside the Italian Embassy.

Italy, a former colonial ruler of Somalia, said it would close its diplomatic mission in Mogadishu, the capital, as soon as foreigners taking shelter there could be evacuated.

In 15 days of fighting between rebels and government forces, more than 1,500 people have been killed and thousands wounded, according to the rebel United Somali Congress. The rebels say the capital is rife with cholera and typhoid spread by decomposing bodies.

Friday's fighting forced two Italian military planes sent to rescue 30 Italian and about 40 others trapped in the embassy to return empty to the Kenyan coastal city of Mombasa.

Military leader resigns from Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Druse warlord Walid Jumblatt resigned his post as minister without portfolio on Friday, dealing a blow to the half-Muslim, half-Christian government formed to steer Lebanon out of civil war.

The sudden resignation means the 30-seat Cabinet now lacks two of the three major militia leaders. Prime Minister Omar Karami had sought to attract to the national reconciliation government he formed on Dec. 24.

Soviets pare down defense budget

MOSCOW — Soviet lawmakers voted today to cut this year's defense budget by about 8 percent to $7 billion rubles, or $155 billion, roughly one-third of all government spending, the state news agency Tass reported.

The defense budget figure — until only recently considered a national secret — is 2 billion rubles less than requested by the Defense Ministry, and about 8 billion rubles less than last year's budget, Tass said.

Officials said last year's defense budget was about 71 billion rubles, or $114 billion, under an old pricing structure.

Soviet troops occupy Lithuania in crackdown

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Soviet troops firing into the air stormed the main printing plant and national guard headquarters Friday in the two-day takeover of Lithuania.

Western governments appealed to the Kremlin to use restraint.

The strikes, which pushed the 10-month-old Lithuanian confrontation with the Kremlin to the boiling point, left seven people injured, witnesses and Lithuanian officials said.

Hundreds of Lithuanian nationalists formed a "justice" chain around the republic's television station to keep troops away and urged Lithuanian guards stood at the parliament building with metal rods.

Friday's crackdown came a day after President Mikhail Gorbachev vowed he might impose direct rule over the republic unless it backs off its secession drive, which began with its declaration of independence last March 11.

On Monday, Gorbachev ordered paratroopers to enforce the draft in several secessionist republics.

All 15 Soviet republics have declared independence or some form of sovereignty.

Neither the Soviet Constitution nor national laws define what measures could be taken under presidential rule, but they could include disbanding the parliament and banning demonstrations and political groups.

Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis twice tried to call Gorbachev Friday to ask him to call off the troops.

But his calls were not put through, said Lithuanian parliament spokeswoman Rita Depkina.

Landsbergis left a message saying Soviet troops were "spilling blood in the republic of Lithuania, and that (he) must issue an order to halt this action immediately," she said.

Western governments watched the developing crackdown with deepening concern.

The NATO alliance and the European Community urged the Kremlin to refrain from violence in Lithuania and to seek talks with Baltic leaders. Pope John Paul II appealed for dialogue.

Neither Gorbachev's spokesman, as saying the situation Friday came about 1 a.m. (5 p.m. BST Thursday) and was reported Friday night — in contrast to 1986, when the government waited days before releasing the information.

Cernobyl's first and second power units, or reactors, were shut down after levels of high-quality cooling water dipped below permissible levels, Fedoseyev said.

Vitaly Ignatenko, nor his deputies returned several calls from the Associated Press requesting comment.

Seven people were injured Friday, including a truck driver who was in critical condition after being hit by a tank that was rolling toward the city, MA Depkina said.

Troops at the printing plant shot one young man in the face, said Aldas Pabubskas, a Lithuanian parliament spokesman.

Three other people were shot and three suffered broken bones from scuffles with soldiers, said ELTA, the Lithuanian state news agency.

Britain's Independent Television News said one of its cameramen Paul Ewen, was also injured. Ewen, 39, was filming a dozen paratroopers when five of them punched him in the face and knocked him to the ground and kicked him, said ITN's Moscow bureau chief, Tim Ewart.

Bureau has false start but will reopen soon

TWIN FALLS — The newly opened local office of the Better Business Bureau had a false start in December when the organization's office manager suddenly resigned for personal reasons, said Ken Thornberg, BBB executive director for southwest Idaho.

A new manager will be hired next week and the office will reopen soon, Thornberg said.

Ski marathon for charity is set for 10 a.m. Sunday

TWIN FALLS — Freeze on Skis, the Jaycees' annual cross-country ski marathon that raises funds for charity, will be Sunday.

The event was originally scheduled for New Year's Day, but canceled because of cold weather.

The event has been rescheduled for 10 a.m. Sunday, beginning at Shoshone Falls Park.

Participants secure pledges from sponsors before the event.

May trial date set for man charged with 3 rape counts

TWIN FALLS — A May trial date has been set for a local man charged with three counts of rape.

Richard Silvas, 22, pleaded innocent to the charges Monday before 5th District Judge Daniel Meehl. He is accused of raping a 14-year-old girl three times between Sept. 2 and Sept. 30 of last year.

In interviews with police, the girl said Silvas raped her in her own bed with one hand over her mouth to keep her from screaming.

Silvas, represented by Twin-Falls County Public Defender Michael Wood, is scheduled to stand trial May 29. He remains free on his own recognizance with orders to have no contact with the girl or her family.

Ward's Cheese plant is site of 3 burglaries in Gooding

GOODING — The Gooding County sheriff's department here arrested three men recently in connection with two separate burglaries at the Ward's Cheese plant.

Leofredo J. Trujillo, 20, of Jerome was arrested Jan. 4 and charged with stealing a welding jacket and torch from the plant.

He was released on his own recognizance and is scheduled to appear for a preliminary hearing on the grand theft charge Jan. 28.

Boise residents Jason Miller, 22, and Jeffrey Hamilton, 21, were arrested and charged with grand theft and second-degree burglary in connection with a separate burglary at Ward's Cheese plant.

There was $2,500 in stolen property recovered in that case, according to a statement from Gooding County Sheriff Robert Aja.

Both Miller and Hamilton have been bound over to district court and are scheduled to be arraigned there Jan. 14.

Fewer winter wheat acres seeded this year than in past

TWIN FALLS — Idaho's winter wheat seedings for the 1991 crop are estimated at 800,000 acres, according to the Idaho Agricultural Statistics Service.

"This acreage represents a 17 percent decrease from the 930,000 acres seeded for the 1990 crop. Nationally, winter wheat seedings totaled 51 million acres, a decrease of 10 percent from 1990's 57 million.

Idaho's 1990 winter wheat crop totaled 69 million bushels, harvested from 810,000 acres. The average yield of 75 bushels is a five bushel increase over a year ago and equals the record yield set in 1987.

Eight-three percent of 1990's winter wheat production was white wheat, unchanged from 1989.

Wedding aftermath ends in tragedy for ex-Idahoans

By Mark Kind
Times-News writer

Obituaries — B2

TWIN FALLS — Three former Magic Valley residents died of carbon monoxide poisoning following a family wedding Jan. 4 near Fairbanks, Alaska.

Douglas and Becky Griffith's bodies were found in their home last Sunday — two days after they died — by their just-married son, Bret Griffith.

Also killed was Edith McCauley, 77, stepmother to Becky Griffith, 49. McCauley had gone to Alaska from her California home to perform the wedding.

Douglas Griffith, 51, was changing from wedding clothes to work clothes when he died. He had apparently left his 1989 Cadillac running in the garage in hopes of later tracking down a transmission fluid leak, according to the Fairbanks Daily News-Miner.

"I don't think his intent was to be away from the car as long as he was," Alaska State Trooper Lantz Dahlke told the newspaper. "He took longer than expected to change his clothes and succumbed to the carbon dioxide."

Wedding guests told Dahlke that Douglas Griffith learned of the transmission fluid leak at the wedding. Such leaks are typically located while the car's engine is running.

Dahlke estimated that the three died within minutes of arriving home.

Douglas Griffith was born in Twin Falls Jan. 11, 1940. He graduated from Filer High School and worked for the Bureau of Land Management in the Hollister and Burley areas, as well as in Fairbanks. He returned in October.

Beth Rieseman of Twin Falls is his sister. Becky Griffith was born in Twin Falls in August, 1941. She graduated from Filer High School. Larry McCauley of Twin Falls is her brother.

Marjorie McCauley lived in Twin Falls for a time where she met and married Edwood McCauley.

A memorial service will be held 10 a.m. Monday at the Filer United Methodist Church.

Car plows into home in Burley

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Garth and Ina Jones were quietly watching television just after 1 a.m. Friday when a car crashed through their living room.

Juan F. Arenas, 18, of Burley was charged with a felony count of driving under the influence of alcohol after his AMC Eagle flew across the Jones' yard and through their picture window, Cassia County Sheriff Bill Crystal said.

Arenas' vehicle landed on Ina Jones, who was laying on the sofa, and pinned her there for an hour until emergency crews could free her.

She was taken to Cassia Memorial Hospital where she was expected to undergo surgery Friday evening for broken bones in her face and other injuries.

A nursing supervisor at the hospital said Ina Jones was in stable condition and improving late Friday afternoon.

Her husband escaped the incident without injury. Police say both Garth and Ina Jones are in their late forties.

Arenas suffered a broken nose and other injuries, Crystal said.

He was released from the hospital too late for a Friday arraignment and will be held in the Cassia County Jail until appearing in court Monday, Crystal said.

The incident began at about 12:30 a.m. when the sheriff's office received two calls about someone driving recklessly in the southeast corner of town, he said.

An officer tried to pull Arenas off at 1:05 a.m. but Arenas sped off, Crystal said.

The officer tried to give chase, but Arenas was driving so fast on the slick city streets that a chase was dangerous, so the officer backed off, the sheriff said.

Arenas drove to a "T" intersection and was unable to stop, he said.

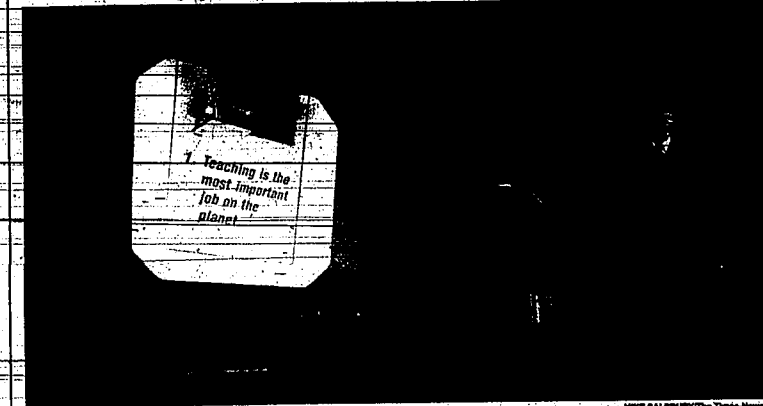

A snowbank catapulted his car into the Jones' house at 335 E. 23rd Dr., Crystal said.

The car went completely through the living room and damaged a major interior wall, coming to rest over the stairwell to the basement, and Ina Jones, he said.

Garth Jones told Crystal that the couple was hosting a family gathering less than an hour earlier.

The cars parked outside at that time likely would have tipped Arenas' car from ending up in the living room, Crystal said.

In addition to the aggravated DUI count, which is the most severe drinking-and-driving charge that can be issued, Crystal said Arenas was cited for illegal consumption of alcohol; driving without a license, eluding an officer and not wearing a seat belt.

TWIN FALLS — Students forget what their teachers teach them, but they never forget how they treat them, a California education consultant said here Friday.

That is one reason teachers should concentrate on cultivating high self-esteem in their students, San Diego consultant Bert Simmons told 1100 teachers and administrators from 13 Magic Valley school districts.

His comments came at a series of meetings on "Education Day." It was the first of what is planned to be an annual event, said Richard Bauscher, president of the Region IV Superintendents' Association. He is the superintendent of Kimberly School District.

Students who feel the teacher likes them do better in class, Simmons said.

"If we like ourselves we do better in all areas of our lives," he said. "Our greatest improvement comes from positive reinforcement."

He asked teachers to consider why students' self-esteem rises during summer vacation, on weekends and after school.

Simmons warned teachers not to lose hope for students who don't show "promise."

He told the story of one of his own students, who at age 14 was illiterate. Almost 30 years later he owns a logging company with 350 workers and a fleet of trucks.

Usually it is the ordinary student and not the "All-American" football star or "Silly rally" who becomes a mover and shaker of adult life, he said.

"You cannot pass judgment on that 15-year-old kid," he said.

"Too often teachers belittle students, and criticize them to colleagues. They'll say things like, 'Did you see Duane's mother?'"

"That is the kind of talk that comes out of the mouth of amateurs," Simmons said.

Teachers should find a way to encourage each of their students every day, even if they have to be creative, he said.

Heyburn Elementary teachers Teresa Vargas, left, and Joy Huakinson are instructed to react negatively to the word 'try'.

Teachers have got to know you like them," he said.

Each of Simmons' anecdotes had a message about the positive or negative impact teachers' actions have on students.

"Everything we're talking about has to do with caring," he said.

Teachers can have a big effect on how parents perceive their children as students, he said.

A teacher could tell parents in a quick phone conversation that their child succeeded at a school task and he is happy to have the child in his class.

"In that way you can go after at-risk kids right away," he said.

Gem court overturns award against Twin Falls attorney

The Associated Press

BOISE — Statements made by an attorney in another case can't be used against him in a malpractice case, the Idaho Supreme Court says.

The Supreme Court on Friday ruled unanimously against the $173,164 damage award ordered by a jury against Twin Falls attorney Lloyd Walker. The court said the award was caused in part by statements made by Walker in another case, later dismissed.

To rule otherwise, the court said, would be to put attorneys in impossible conflict of interest situations because they could not both zealously press cases for clients, and still protect themselves from malpractice lawsuits that might come later.

The court gave this background:

Bert and Jeanne Atkinson formed Rivers Meats, a limited partnership. Atkinson entered into an agreement with Country Pride to sell and deliver Country Pride products wholesale within a certain region. In 1977, Atkinson decided he was being overcharged by Country Pride.

In 1979, Country Pride sued for $81,000 it claimed Rivers Meats owed. The Atkinsons counterclaimed for breach of contract and overcharge. The Atkinsons consulted Walker and filed an antitrust lawsuit.

The suit by Country Pride was resolved, but the antitrust counterclaim based on price discrimination was not. Eventually Country Pride won dismissal because Walker did not perform certain actions.

The Atkinsons then filed a legal malpractice action against Walker, alleging as damages the amounts they would have recovered from the antitrust lawsuit against Country Pride. A jury awarded $173,164.

Walker appealed to the Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court said 4th District Judge Gerald Schroeder improperly admitted as evidence in the malpractice case statements made by Walker in the antitrust lawsuit.

The case was sent back to district court for a new trial over whether Country Pride violated a state law prohibiting price discrimination.

Grazing fees to rise

By Mark Kind
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The cattle industry is not upset about a nearly 9 percent increase in the federal grazing fee, an industry spokeswoman said Friday.

"We're happy to pay our fair share," said Betty Munis, executive vice president of the Idaho Cattle Association.

Grazing fees on U.S. Forest land will increase from $1.81 per animal unit month to $1.97 beginning March 1.

Munis said the increase was expected because the formula takes into account beef prices which have been very strong for a year.

An animal unit month is defined as the amount of forage consumed by one cow and one calf, one horse, or five sheep or goats in one month.

The BLM manages about 270 million acres nationwide, including about 174 million acres in the West.

Eighty-eight percent of cattle produced in Idaho graze at least part of the year on federal land.

Last year, the BLM collected about $18 million dollars in grazing fees from about 18,800 ranchers and farmers who graze livestock on BLM land.

About half that money goes to range improvement, while the rest goes to state and local government coffers.

13 isn't unlucky for Pence

TWIN FALLS — Besides a party with cake and punch, what else does an outgoing county clerk need?

How about a 3-boom box and a T-shirt saying "Take this job and shove it!" given to him by co-workers?

Twin Falls County Clerk Richard Pence does not officially leave his post until Monday at 10 a.m. But he, his wife, numerous friends and co-workers did not wait until Monday to celebrate the closing of his 13-year tenure as county clerk.

They took the time Friday afternoon with an open house at the County Courthouse.

Hagerman residents will have to junk idea of city moving cars

By Terrell Williams
Times-News correspondent

HAGERMAN — Residents who are bothered by their neighbors' junk cars will have to handle the problem on their own. City officials have decided not to enforce the city's ordinance prohibiting junk cars on city right-of-ways. In December, the city received complaints about an automobile from the neighbors of Leslie Lynch on Reed Street. Police Chief Todd Peterson served Lynch with a written notice to get rid of the offending vehicle. However, after a discussion with Lynch, Peterson said he was concerned that the problem of junk cars on city property extends throughout the city. Peterson told the council that if Lynch has more cars, he then to be paid everyone else in Hagerman should have to do the same. He said there are numerous vehicles that don't work on city property and enforcement of the ordinance prohibiting junk cars would be a major project that might require hiring extra help. Council members said city ordinances can be enforced by citizens who have a complaint and are willing to hire an attorney to take the matter to court. However, they decided, the city will not take action on the complaint. "We have better things to do than to worry about somebody's old car because it bothers a neighbor," Hoffman said. "There are higher priority things that need to be done." Hoffman said the city took a general ordinance violation to court, but the people who complained did not show up. They were all in Arizona, Hoffman said. Recently, she said, the city's policy now is that, "if you don't like what your neighbor is doing, it's your problem and you are going to have to handle it yourself."

Mayor Merle Oswley agreed, saying that if people want to take a neighbor to court, they can do it on their own. In other business: The council adopted a resolution stating that the city of Hagerman supports the men and women of the armed forces serving in the Middle East. The resolution is recommended by the Association of Idaho Cities. It states that Hagerman citizens recognize the "strong commitment of these armed forces who are protecting the Saudi Arabia border in support of world peace and freedom by prohibiting further aggression by Iraq."

City Clerk Coletta Lloyd said the purpose of the resolution is not to comment on this country's involvement in the Middle East, but to send a message of moral support to American troops there. She said copies of the resolution will be displayed at City Hall and sent to President George Bush and to members of the congressional delegation. Oswley said he was hospitalized for eight days last week due to fluid retention in his lungs, but there are no problems now. "It's fine," he said. Carlos Huck was sworn in as a volunteer reserve police officer. Peterson said Huck, who owns and manages the Blue Spruce Trail and Park in Hagerman, is energetic and will be a big asset to the city's reserve officer program. Huck is the city's third volunteer officer, along with Allen Iles and Gail Watson. Peterson said he is still looking for more reserve officers.

CASTLEFORD — The city is one step closer to forming its own fire protection district. City officials have been invited to submit a full application after the first one passed a preliminary screening.

WALKER — The court said Walker did not dispute negligence in the context of the legal malpractice action.

CASTLEFORD — The city's officials say they feel that a fire protection district would enable the volunteer fire department to upgrade its equipment, purchase modern trucks, improve firefighting capabilities and shorten response times.

CASTLEFORD — The council has scheduled a public hearing to discuss the fire district at 8 a.m. Friday in the Castleford school cafeteria.

CASTLEFORD — The Castleford Community Center will be sold at public auction in Castleford on today at 1 p.m. For more information call the city offices at 537-6544.

Murtaugh mayor to meet with state over problems with sewer lagoon

By Rebecca Titolova
Times-News correspondent

MURTAUGH — The city has decided it will take no action on its sewer lagoon, but that isn't acceptable to the Idaho Health and Welfare Department's Environmental Quality Division officials. In a letter to the city, Mike McMasters of the Environmental Quality Division stated that the city's decision to take no action is not acceptable to the state. And he requested a meeting with Mayor Robert Wright to discuss the city's options Monday. The city recommended taking no action on the advice of JUB Engineer's Scott Bybee, because there are no wells or houses near the lagoon, which would be too small if the community grows much more. The city also has no funds at this time for any remodeling or restructuring of the sewage treatment system. Rick Huddleston, also with Environmental Quality Division, who helped the city obtain funds for the recent study of the city's sewer system also will attend the meeting. In other business, Councilwoman Vonie Ward expressed concern about residents wasting water. "This is our most precious resource. If they do waste it, it doesn't know what we can do," Ward said. Idaho's water table has been getting lower in the past few years, which will increase residents' water rates since the city has to pay more for the water. Ward will begin heading up "a water conservation campaign," said Mayor Wright, in hopes that residents will be more aware of their water consumption. Also, council members are formulating a firearms ordinance for within the city limits. The ordinance will cover all types of weapons, including BB guns and slingshots. The ordinance will be presented at the February meeting.

Castleford may get fire system yet

By Diane Schorzman
Times-News correspondent

CASTLEFORD — The city's officials have been invited to submit a full application after the first one passed a preliminary screening. The application now awaits review by the Economic Development Council in Boise. The City Council met this past week with Region IV Development Corporation representatives who wrote the city's application for a federal Housing and Urban Development block grant of $185,550 to help fund the project. Carleen Herring, of the Twin Falls office of the Region IV Development Corporation, told the council that the awards probably will be made sometime around mid-March. The city was told by the Idaho Survey and Rating Bureau last summer that it was in danger of losing its current fire rating — the rating that fire insurance premiums are based upon — because of outdated and inadequate equipment.

The council has scheduled a public hearing to discuss the fire district at 8 a.m. Friday in the Castleford school cafeteria. In other business, the Castleford Community Center will be sold at public auction in Castleford on today at 1 p.m. For more information call the city offices at 537-6544.

Walker

Walker's negligence caused the trust action to be dismissed. The court said Walker did not dispute negligence in the context of the legal malpractice action. However, the fight to recover in a legal malpractice case does not arise merely from the fact of negligence by the attorney; the plaintiff is only entitled to recover if it can be proven that the attorney's negligence caused the loss of the right to recover in the underlying action. Thus, the Altonians could only recover from Walker if they proved in the legal malpractice action that they had a viable antitrust action which would have been resolved favorably but for Walker's negligence. The court also unanimously upheld a lower court ruling against punitive damages and denying attorney fees.

New women's prison sited near Boise

BOISE — The Idaho Board of Correction has voted unanimously to locate a $10 million, 160-bed state women's prison on state-owned land south of Boise.

The three-member board's decision Friday came just a month after it promised Pocatello the facility would be built in the southeastern Idaho city if officials there could come up with a site meeting the state's needs.

"We did everything possible to fulfill our intent," board member Philip Presnell of Lewiston said. But all three board members agreed that problems with sites proposed by Pocatello and the lack of time to consider a new location proposed only this week gave them no choice but to look elsewhere. "If we don't, we might lose an entire year in construction on this facility, and we really can't afford that luxury," board Chairman Wendell Miller of Idaho Falls said.

Pocatello Mayor Peter Angstadt said he was "perplexed" by the board's decision.

Mormon Church still against abortion

SALT LAKE CITY — The Mormon Church has reiterated its opposition to elective abortions, but has declined to favor any anti-abortion bill over another.

Church public communications managing director Bruce L. Olsen issued the statement Friday, two days before the lawmakers in Utah's 49th Legislature will be asked to pass a restrictive abortion bill during the 45-day general session.

"In view of the widespread public interest in the issue of abortion, we reaffirm that The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has consistently opposed elective abortion," Olsen said. "We have repeatedly counseled people everywhere to turn from the devastating practice of abortion for personal or social convenience."

New group will work to limit terms

BOISE — A bipartisan committee says the time has come to start working to limit terms in Congress and state offices, perhaps even the Legislature.

Formation of the Idahoans For Competitive Government was announced at a Boise news conference Friday. Chairman Larry Eastland of Boise said Idaho should join with other states in urging an amendment to the U.S. Constitution to limit congressional terms.

The group of Democrats and Republicans also will seek comment for a draft proposal to limit the terms of state officers and perhaps even legislators, Eastland said. "It is designed to give more opportunity to serve," said state Sen. Clair Wetherell, D-Mountain Home. "Other people have great knowledge, and should have the opportunity to serve."

Trapper not bothered by fur protest

GRANVILLE — An anti-trapping protest staged outside a fur sale in Granville has failed to faze an Idaho Trappers Association representative as much as the fur industry's current slump.

Donald Jenni of Orofino, who served as the association's regional director until last year, said the women protesting the sale did not pose much of a threat.

"As far as I'm concerned, I don't care. I went out and tried to sell them some raffle tickets," Jenni said. "Protester Mary Ann Davidson of Grangeville said the demonstration was intended to call attention to trapping."

About 20 trappers attended the sale, as fur buyers inspect the pelts and bid on them.

Revenue panel stunned by court rulings

BOISE (AP) — The legislative committee charged with projecting state tax revenues for the next budget was stunned Friday by estimates that the state may have to cough up $87 million to cover the cost of two recent Idaho Supreme Court rulings.

Idaho Gov. Cecil Andrus and the Legislature could see the state's tightening revenues for the 1992 budget cut by 9 percent to well below the cash available this year. "We should have been aware of this earlier," Sen. Russell Newcomb, R-Twin Falls, said after analysis for both the Tax Commission and the Andrus administration outlined the potential financial impact of the decisions for the Joint Committee on Revenue Projection.

Although the court ruled in one case last June and in the other a month ago, most committee members indicated they had no idea how serious the situation was, and Republican Mark Ricks of Rexburg, chairman of the panel's Senate committee, ordered the administration and commission to submit a detailed written disclosure of the problem.

"Why didn't the governor let the people know of the potential out there?" Republican Sen. Lee Staker of Idaho Falls asked. "I really feel that's a major error."

In a statement later in the day, Andrus labeled as political rhetoric the public complaints from Republicans claiming he tried to hide from them what even one Democrat called a fiscal crisis.

And administration economist Michael Ferguson told the committee that while the state's exposure of avoiding any revenue reductions, and legislation to that effect, was being drafted.

"We feel very confident that we have good, reasonable solutions to offer to you to deal with these problems," Ferguson told the panel. He rejected Newcomb's suggestion that the information was intentionally suppressed.

The cases are public," Andrus added. "They've been discussed by the Division of Financial Management with the appropriate legislators. We still don't know the full impact of the court's decisions and on certain points litigation is continuing."

The committee will not begin its deliberations until later next week after it has had time to assess the written explanation.

On Aug. 1, the high court ruled that the state income tax laws on the books in 1985 through 1987 allowed nonresidents working in Idaho to calculate their Idaho tax liability based on the percentage of their Idaho-came income to their total income.

Under the scheme, which the Legislature repealed in 1988, if a person earned half his income in Idaho, he would pay Idaho tax on only half that income and then at only half the rate. Lawmakers maintained they never intended to allow the reduction in the rate as well as the taxable income.

Although the decision involved only two Clarkston, Wash., men — who worked at the Potlatch Corp. in Lewiston, it was used as the basis for a suit on behalf of all nonresident Idaho workers that, if successful, could cost the state up to $39 million in income tax refunds and interest.

Then on Dec. 11, the high court extended the coverage of the sales tax exemption for equipment and materials used in manufacturing products to include items rented to construct, install or repair the manufacturing equipment. The court also extended eligibility to claim that exemption beyond the direct manufacturer to contractors hired to handle construction, installation or repair projects.

Again, the decision involved only a modest amount of tax revenue for rentals to Potlatch and five of its contractors. But Tax Commission analysts said it lays a legal foundation for past equipment renters to claim up to $35 million in sales tax payments and reduces future annual sales tax collections by $12 million.

Ferguson told the committee that the administration would propose legislation that effectively reaffirms the Legislature's intent.

Water panel Legislative wants new log

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — The state Water Resources Board is proposing a surcharge of $1 per acre-foot on water leased from the state's water banks to generate cash for its development fund.

But Ron Carlson, District 1 watermaster in eastern Idaho, predicts irrigators faced with weakening commodity markets will head off the charge.

"I have no reason to believe that the $1 an acre-foot surcharge will survive," Carlson said.

The surcharge was among several proposals made by the board earlier this week. The revenue would provide low-interest loans for communities to install or improve water systems.

The board has a round of hearings scheduled on the plan later this month, but after being finalized, it must win legislative approval to take effect. The surcharge would apply to anyone taking water from water banks, where the rate last year was $2.75 an acre-foot.

Power companies might be able to afford it, Carlson said, but "with $2 wheat, it is expensive to raise a crop that you're losing money on."

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

Dear Mr. Wolff: Would you consider making a free bid of four clubs in this situation? It's vulnerable vs. non-vulnerable, duplicate. My LHO opens two hearts (weak), partner cue-bids three hearts (strong) and RHO does: T1047-8-7-5; 10-7; 4-3-4-2; ♠-J-9-8-7.

should be longer than his diamonds.) Dear Mr. Wolff: My LHO opens one diamond and partner jumps to three spades. How many defensive tricks can I expect him to contribute if I choose to double five diamonds? Great Expectations, Coon, Texas

ANSWER: Yes, I would. If you don't show your club suit now, it's unlikely that you'll find it advisable to do so on the next round. Chances are good that your side's best suit is clubs, and it may be difficult to find that fit if opener bids four hearts after a pass by you.

ANSWER: None. Partner's preempt is a barrage maneuver promising a long suit and little or nothing in the way of defense. If he has a seven- or eight-card suit missing the ace, you don't rate to score any spade tricks. If you double, consider yourself on a solo flight.

Dear Mr. Wolff: I open one club, LHO overcalls one spade, and partner makes a negative double. If RHO bids two spades, is a bid of three diamonds by me considered a strong bid (i.e., a reverse)? Different Drummer, Waterbury, Conn.

ANSWER: No, it is not; it is a competitive bid. Typically the negative double promises support of the unbid suits, and a three-diamond bid is a bid of three diamonds by me considered a strong bid (i.e., a reverse)?

ANSWER: No, it is not; it is a competitive bid. Typically the negative double promises support of the unbid suits, and a three-diamond bid is a bid of three diamonds by me considered a strong bid (i.e., a reverse)?

"We beat the slam if you lead a club instead of a diamond," observed East. "With the club lead, South cannot set up the diamonds without losing two tricks."

Look over the play to see if you agree with East's analysis. West led a desperate singleton, eyed suspiciously by South. Wisely he went up with dummy's ace and returned the suit immediately, East winning his 10. East returned the heart king, but there was no escape. South had plenty of dummy entries to establish the diamonds, and South's losing club disappeared.

What about the initial club lead? Does it beat the slam? Not if South plays for the king to be with East. An endplay on East terminates play quickly. Dummy's club ace wins, one high trump removes the enemy trumps, and the ace of hearts is a heart ruff to eliminate that suit. South then exits with a club to East's king, and East cannot lead safely. The lead of a heart or a club offers a ruff and discard; a diamond surrenders a free finesse.

It's another example of why it's not a good idea for anyone to offer hasty post-mortems.
