Smoke continues to rise from the Gooding County landfill where an underground fire discovered more than a month ago has yet to be extinguished. State environmental agencies are helping the Gooding County Commissioners decide the best way to put out the 1.5-acre blaze.

$100,000 may go up in smoke at landfill fire

U.S. proposes major overhaul of bank system

The Associated Press
WASHINGTON — The Bush administration on Tuesday proposed a landmark overhaul of the nation's banking system that would reduce government guarantees to depositors and break down traditional walls between banks and other businesses.
The recommendations, the centerpiece of President Bush's domestic agenda, are his administration's response to a rising tide of bank failures unrivaled since the Depression.
Prepared by the Treasury Department after 18 months of study, the package would put the financial system through the biggest changes in 30 years, affecting nearly every American who borrows and saves.
For the first time since the establishment of federal deposit insurance in 1934, government guarantees to bank customers would shrink rather than expand. The changes, however, are carefully crafted to minimize their impact on average depositors.
Individual depositors would be covered for no more than $200,000 per institution, eliminating exotic combinations of trust and joint accounts which now enable families to insure more than $1 million. Moreover, regulators would be discouraged from fully reimbursing uninsured deposits, which they have done so far in virtually all bank failures.
Longstanding laws barring commercial and industrial companies from owning banks would crumble, as would the division of banking from the insurance and securities industries.
Customers, for instance, may be able to get a car loan, share in a mutual fund and a life insurance policy at their bank, which could be owned by a department store chain.
The long-awaited proposals must be approved by Congress, where many legislators are wary of repeating mistakes that worsened the savings and loan crisis.
"The administration makes a mistake in proposing new and risky activities for banks before the supervisory and deposit insurance reforms are in place and working," said Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Iowa.

Advocacy groups flay calling service test

The Associated Press
BOISE — The American Civil Liberties Union, Planned Parenthood, advocates for battered women, people with unlisted telephone numbers and others have joined forces to protest U.S. West Communications' plans to begin a market trial of its Caller ID service Feb. 18 in Boise.
Among other things, they contend the six-month test involving about 70,000 residential lines in three of the city's five "wire centers" could endanger spouses and children who move to shelter-in-place abuse.
"This is an important issue of privacy and we believe it needs to be debated before US West launches this invasion of privacy," Jack Van Valkenburgh, director of the ACLU's Idaho chapter, said at a news conference Tuesday.
Lives are essentially at stake, U.S. West's Boise trial will be the first in the nation involving a Caller ID system that includes a display on the receiving end with both the caller's number and name — a step not taken by other services. But the service also will allow callers, at no extra charge, to hit the "star" key in the lower left corner of the key pad on touch-tone phones, then 6 and 7 to block the display of both their number and name when the receiving end answers.
Van Valkenburgh and others said US WEST should allow customers who request it to have "line block" which would automatically block the display of their number on the receiving end of any Caller ID customer's phone.
US West has said it will offer line block only to domestic violence shelters and law enforcement agencies. It will be available to individual employees of those agencies and any other customer only case by case.

Air attacks strangle Iraqi supply flow

Knight-Ridder Newspapers
DHAKHAN, Saudi Arabia — As Syrian troops saw their first action here Tuesday, B-52 bombers pounded Iraqi positions every three hours and the allies claimed the flow of supplies to Iraqi troops in Kuwait had been reduced to a trickle.
In one of the most optimistic 24-hour assessments of the war, the allies also claimed to have silenced long-range Iraqi artillery, destroyed a 25-truck convoy and arrested six suspects in an attack on U.S. servicemen in Riyadh Monday. They also reported that at least 10 more Iraqi planes most of them top-of-the-line warplanes, have flown to Iran.

"I kind of boggles my mind that everything has gone on for so long for so well," a senior U.S. military officer said.
The most confident assessment came from Marine Maj. Gen. Robert Johnston, chief of staff of the Central Command, who said three weeks of allied air attacks had "substantially shut down (Iraq's) capability to resupply" the Kuwait area.
"In the early days of the war the number of supply vehicles on local roads was 'up in the thousands' ... and they're now in the hundreds," Johnston said. "While I would not like to say we've shut it off by 90 percent, that gives you an order of magnitude."
The bombing toll on Baghdad was apparent Tuesday as Iraq cut off sales of gasoline, heating oil and cooking gas to the capital's remaining residents, giving them no chance to stock up against the winter's cold. Temperatures have dipped to the low 30s overnight. An estimated 1 million of the capital's 4 million residents are believed to have fled the city.

More funds approved to bail out S&Ls

WASHINGTON — The Senate Banking Committee on Tuesday approved an extra $30 billion to allow the government to bail out failed savings and loan institutions over the next eight months.

That would raise to $80 billion the total of taxpayer funds authorized to pay off depositors in insolvent S&Ls. Because the government has a huge deficit, the money will have to be borrowed.

The total does not include another $47 billion the government plans to borrow to buy the assets of the failed institutions. This money is expected to be repaid.

The $30 billion will permit the Resolution Trust Corp., a Treasury Department agency, to close about 250 institutions. The agency says without the cash it will be forced to halt the bailout at the end of the month.

Factory orders lower than expected

WASHINGTON — Despite huge purchases of military goods and commercial aircraft, overall orders to U.S. factories stalled in December and retarded the 1990 total to a meager increase of 1.4 percent, the worst performance in four years, a government report showed Tuesday.

Some analysts said it was an indication the recession may not be as mild as predicted.

The Commerce Department reported that orders for durable and non-durable goods totaled $235.6 billion in December. For the year, orders edged up a meager 1.4 percent to $2.9 trillion, the smallest gain since 1986 when orders fell 1.2 percent.

Post Office does well, but loses money

WASHINGTON — The postal service maintained "good" service despite the deluge of Christmas and military mail, Postmaster General Anthony Frank reported Tuesday.

But "we're not yet where we want to be," Frank added, noting that overall, about four-fifths of first-class mail intended for overnight delivery is making it on time.

Frank's remarks came as the agency released the latest quarterly report on its performance, prepared by the independent accounting firm of Price Waterhouse.

At the same time, the Postal Service reported that it suffered a $1.2 billion loss between the start of the agency's fiscal year on Sept. 22 and Jan. 11.

Veteran actor Dean Jagger dies in sleep

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — Veteran character actor Dean Jagger, who won a best supporting Oscar for the 1949 movie "Twelve O'Clock High," died in his home Tuesday, his wife said. He was 87.

Etta Jagger said that her husband was recovering from the flu but was otherwise in good health. He died in his sleep this morning, she said.

Mrs. Jagger said her husband acted in more than 150 movies, including "White Christmas," "Bad Day at Black Rock" and "Elmer Gantry."

Transportation official defends decision

WASHINGTON — Transportation Secretary Samuel K. Skinner on Tuesday defended his decision to allow 49 percent foreign investment in U.S. airlines by saying financial needs demand multinationality-owned airlines.

In congressional testimony, Skinner said that as U.S. airlines stagger under the greatest financial pressure in history, organized labor should hold back on wage increase demands.

South Dakota House votes to ban abortions

PIERRE, S.D. (AP) — Legislation to ban all abortions in South Dakota was approved by a House committee Tuesday and panel members said it was the most difficult issue they've ever faced.

Gov. George Mickelson has said if the Legislature approves the measure, he would sign it into law.

The bill, similar to one that was signed into law in Utah last month, would allow abortions in cases involving rape, incest or a threat to the physical health of a pregnant woman. It also would permit abortions of fetuses that have severe handicaps.

The Judiciary Committee voted 8-5 to endorse the measure, setting the stage for a debate later this week in the full House of Representatives.

The vote drew applause from more than 100 anti-abortion spectators who had packed the committee room.

No criminal penalties could be imposed, but doctors who perform illegal abortions could face stiff civil fines. The bill includes no penalties

Group plans to counter NOW's Utah boycott

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Utah Association of Women says it will counter a threatened feminist boycott of the state over recent passage of stringent anti-abortion legislation.

Susan Roylance, president-elect of the 300-member UAW, said Monday her group wants to make sure it is known most women in predominantly Mormon Utah oppose legalized abortion.

"We feel a statement needs to be made that the Legislature did not represent the women of Utah," Roylance said.

The new law bans abortions except in cases of rape and incest, or where the mother's health is imperiled or the fetus has grave physical defects.

The Utah Chapter of the National Organization for Women, decrying the bill as an infringement on a woman's right to reproductive choices, has vowed to stage a conventional anti-tourist stay away from Utah.

For women who have illegal abortions, Roylance said at the committee meeting that the state must protect the life of all children, including the unborn.

"I also appreciate the fact that maybe choice ends when a new life is created," said House Republican Leader Jerry Lemmers. "Maybe then it's no longer a woman's choice."

Opponents argued that the bill is an unconstitutional violation of a woman's right to privacy. If the measure is passed by the Legislature, the state likely will have to spend as much as $1 million defending it against a certain court challenge, they said.

A number of state legislatures have considered abortion measures since the 1989 Supreme Court decision giving states more leeway in restricting the procedure.

Last year, a federal court threw out key provisions of Pennsylvania's strict law, and the governors of Idaho and Louisiana vetoed restrictive measures.

Bush's banking overhaul plan at a glance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here, at a glance, are key provisions in the Bush administration's plan to overhaul the banking system.

DEPOSIT INSURANCE: After two years, individual coverage would be limited to $200,000 per institution, $100,000 for retirement and $100,000 for other purposes.

Under current rules, a family of three can insure up to $1.2 million in a single bank. Depositors still could obtain virtually unlimited insurance by splitting their money among banks, but it would be more difficult because the proposal bans money brokers from wiring wealthy clients' money into banks.

TOO BIG TO FAIL: Regulators would be discouraged from fully reimbursing uninsured deposits. In the few cases remaining where a bank is considered "too big to fail" by the Treasury Department and Federal Reserve would make the decision.

The Federal Reserve would supply the extra money needed for such rescues and would be reimbursed later by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

INSURANCE FUND: Proposals to shore up the dwindling FDIC bank insurance fund are postponed. Bankers are debating ways to replenish the industry-financed fund without turning to general taxpayers.

BANK OWNERSHIP: Commercial and industrial companies such as Sears, Roebuck & Co. and Ford Motor Co. would be permitted to own holding companies which in turn own banks. However, strict "firewalls" would prevent them from siphoning off deposits for their own use. Commercial companies owning banks would be expected to invest a substantial amount of their own capital and replenish that when necessary.

That would cushion the bank against loss, protecting the deposit insurance fund.

BANK ACTIVITIES: For the first time since 1933, a single financial holding company could own both a bank and subsidiaries that underwrite and sell securities and insurance. However, banks would continue to be prohibited from directly investing in real estate and in commercial firms.

CAPITAL: Existing rules on how much capital a bank's owners must invest would remain unchanged. However, a new carrot-and-stick approach would be used to encourage banks to maintain adequate capital levels.

Banks with excess capital would earn lighter regulation and swifter approval for new activities. Weak banks could face regulators' orders to curtail dividends, raise capital, or fire managers. Strongly capitalized banks would pay less for deposit insurance than weak banks. Banks vulnerable to swings in interest rates would have to hold more capital, that more well-protected institutions.

INTERSTATE BANKING: Within three years, bank holding companies would be permitted to expand into any state to compete against local institutions.

States would be barred from discouraging out-of-state banks from establishing branches.

BUREAUCRACY: The number of federal agencies directly regulating banks and savings institutions would decline from four to two.

A new Federal Banking Agency within the Treasury Department would oversee all S&Ls and their holding companies as well as nationally-chartered banks and their holding companies.

The Federal Reserve would oversee all state-chartered banks and their holding companies. The FDIC would lose jurisdiction over thousands of state-chartered banks and be reduced to just an insurance agency.

Hawaiian woman could head SBA

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush is considering naming former Hawaii congressional member Pat Saiki as head of the Small Business Administration, a White House official said Tuesday.

Saiki, 60, a Republican, served two terms in the House and lost a Senate race last November to Republican Sen. Daniel K. Akaka.

President Bush campaigned in Hawaii last October for Saiki, but Akaka successfully defended the seat to which he was appointed following the death of longtime Democratic Sen. Spark Matsunaga.

The Wall Street Journal and the Detroit News have reported that Bush will name Saiki to the SBA job, left vacant by the resignation of Susan Englecler after two years.

Scouts probably won't be in tour

NEW YORK (AP) — The Boy Scouts of America is recommending that scouts avoid participating in the Philip Morris national Bill of Rights tour so they don't seem to be endorsing the company's products.

Anti-smoking activists praised the decision, but a public relations firm retained by the Boy Scouts said the decision was unrelated to the fact that Philip Morris makes cigarettes.

"The decision was based on the commercialism issue," said Caytice Daniell of Edelman Public Relations in Dallas.

"I think they did the right thing for the wrong reason," said Stanton Glantz, a health disease researcher at the University of California, San Francisco.

Aiming to please is task of budget writers

BOISE (AP) — Legislative budget writers wrapped up a month of hearings on agency spending requests Tuesday, while their staff analysts immediately set to work on a financial blueprint.

Their aim was to produce a document that would be politically palatable and yet still fit into a conservative revenue forecast.

A special House-Senate panel, meanwhile, delayed for at least two days and possibly longer its decision on a key piece of the budget puzzle — the amount of cash that will be allocated to state employee pay raises and benefit improvements.

Curbing the cost of state worker pay raises has become critical to accommodating a legislative revenue projection that gives budget writers some $16 million less to work with than Andrus used in his fashioning his financial program. The full Senate scheduled a final vote on that revenue projection for Wednesday.

Budget writers were not expected to start drafting their version of the spending plan for the year that begins July 1 until late next week, and the committee handling the employee pay package planned to make its decision final by Monday.

A consensus seemed to be gradually forming, however, for a 4 percent pay increase at an annual cost of $11.5 million. Andrus recommended a 3 percent plan costing $15.2 million while some on the committee pressed for just over half that amount in view of the scaled down revenue projection.

The Andrus proposal closely mirrored the recommendation of the state Personnel Commission, Commission Director Richard Hutchison said even at that level, state salary scales would still lag behind private industry pay levels for similar work.

That conservative legislative view puts growth for the current year at less than 3.6 percent and drops the anticipated rate of expansion in 1992 to 5.4 percent. The result is continuing revenue of $953.8 million and a one-time cash surplus of under $40 million.

Analysts for the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee were working on a draft spending plan that held spending within the lower legislative revenue estimate. But their draft would allocate more to public education than Andrus proposed.

Top priority of Republican legislative leaders — and still address the state's most pressing needs in other areas. To do that, the plan relies more heavily on funneling cash from the one-time surplus to education with no promise that the money will come in time to be provided after 1992. Even at his own higher growth levels, Andrus had to significantly curtail increased education spending.

Bark beetle epidemic may have peaked

BOISE (AP) — A bark beetle infestation that has killed hundreds of thousands of trees in the Boise National Forest shows signs of slowing down, U.S. Forest Service officials say.

Results of an annual aerial detection survey conducted by Boise National Forest pest management specialists indicate that bark beetles killed 100,000 trees in the forest in 1990, down from 120,000 in 1989.

Andrus may review pay raise

BOISE (AP) — House Speaker Tom Boyd is asking Gov. Cecil Andrus to review the legality of the legislative pay raise approved by a six-member citizens commission because four commission members apparently could not legally serve.

But both the Genesee Republican and Republican Senate President members of the panel cannot be state or local officials, or government employees.

Boyd said the governor should ask Attorney General Larry Echoflaw for a legal opinion on the validity of the commission and its actions. Andrus names half the members while Supreme Court

House committee endorses property tax relief measure

BOISE (AP) — The House Health and Welfare Committee has sent to the House floor a bill that Republicans say could give Idaho counties at least $11.5 million a year in permanent property tax relief.

The committee voted 13-2 Monday to recommend full House approval of a bill sponsored by Rep. Tom Loertscher, R-Idaho Falls, that would keep county property tax rates from having to meet the higher cost of medical treatment for those unable to pay themselves.

Lod-by Gov. Cecil Andrus, they want a $4 million program, to commence Oct. 1, that would expand Medicaid coverage to another 7,000 people designated "medically needy" who might not otherwise be considered indigent.

The state pays about 30 percent of the cost of treatment under Medicaid and the federal government pays the rest. The proposal expanding some Medicaid coverage, the Andrus plan would delay full implementation of the Medical Assistance Program for one year while using data collected from the initial expansion to better determine what the full cost will be.

Falls maintained the increase in legislative compensation from $6,700 to $12,000 a year should not be jeopardized because of questions over the commission's composition.

Under the 1976 constitutional amendment creating the commission and various other state laws, members of the panel cannot be state or local officials, or government employees.

Boyd said the governor should ask Attorney General Larry Echoflaw for a legal opinion on the validity of the commission and its actions. Andrus names half the members while Supreme Court

Democrats say the plan, which would take effect July 1, may be too costly and poses too many unanswered questions.

Andrus spokesman Scott Peyton said the governor would be examining the situation over the next several days for his return from a national governors' meeting in Washington, D.C.

Payments stave off tax deeds

WALLACE (AP) — Checks totaling $40,000 have staved off tax deeds for a number of mining properties in Shoshone County, but officials say they still plan to aggressively seek a solution to long-overdue property taxes.

"We're not going to just sit back and let six years go by without getting a satisfactory settlement," said County Commissioner David Dose.

Dose said Bunker Hill Mining Co. still owes the county $210,000 on 1987 taxes, but the company filed for bankruptcy protection under Chapter 11. A hearing on the bankruptcy petition is scheduled in U.S. District Court in Coeur d'Alene on Thursday.

Here's one ancient college tradition that ought to die

Used to be, campus hazing was chalked up as harmless pranksterism. Strip a freshman to his undergarments and dump him five miles from town? Send him on a promenade between two lines of paddleswinging upperclassmen? Perch him naked on an ice block for an hour or so?

Well, fraternity boys will be boys. In recent years, however, inspired by injuries and even deaths, colleges have begun taking a different view. They've begun seeing hazing for what it really is: juvenile, sadistic and dangerous.

The national movement to wipe out hazing has come to Idaho, where student groups are backing an attempt to define the practice as a crime.

We're not talking about harmless hunk jinks. The bill proposed by Rep. Clay White, D-Pocatello, and Rep. Gayle Wilde, R-McCall, is about indignities that would never be tolerated in the off-campus world.

The bill would define hazing as subjecting a student to bodily danger, or physical harm, or its likelihood, as a condition for joining a student group or becoming an officer.

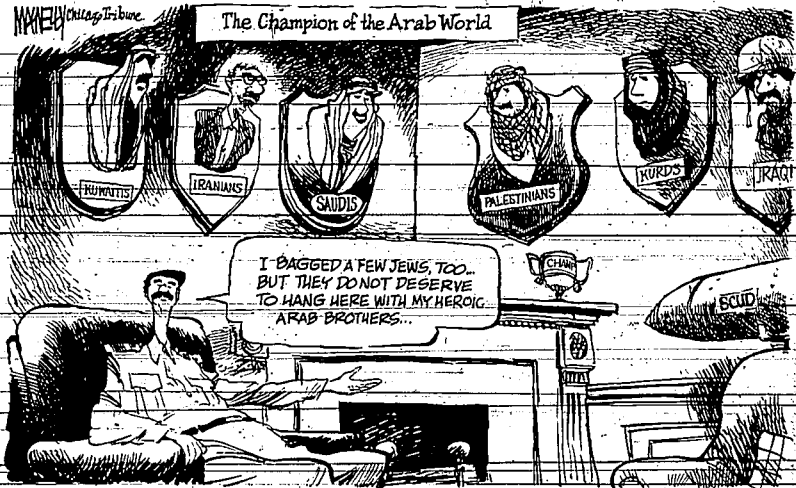

That definition includes subjecting students to calisthenics, nudity, compelled injection of any substance, physical assaults or assigned pranks among other loathsome indignities.

The legislation is being backed by the Idaho Student Lobby, and by the fraternities at the University of Idaho. Apparently the U of I is the only Idaho institution with a hazing problem; two months ago university officials revoked recognition of a fraternity after frat officers refused to discuss some hazing allegations.

It would be difficult for anyone to defend hazing or to oppose this bill. We wonder, however, whether police and prosecutors have done all they can under existing assault laws.

Though colleges always have been, somewhat separated from the outside world's behavior standards, the laws that protect citizens everywhere else should apply on campus too.

One way or another, the end of hazing is past due. True, the college years are a time of newfound freedom, or physical harm, or its likelihood, as a condition for joining a student group or becoming an officer.

Be proud of your country

America is a great country to live in. We have freedom to speak our opinions. Even if they don't agree with the government's thinking. Mike McAuley's letter on Jan. 18 leads me to believe that he is unhappy with this country.

Iraq does have the "battle-seasoned" troops and we are fighting on their territory. Saddam Hussein is a ruthless madman and must be stopped before he does damage to any other countries and possible America.

The troops are in the Gulf to insure this will be done. They may or may not agree with the reason they are over there, but they all realize the importance of their mission. The "mighty (ha) United States military" is composed of many young people who are the future of this nation. If Mike has a question as to their might, all he has to do is open an encyclopedia to find out that the United States is one of the top military powers in the world.

Yes, we are at war and many people will die. I, for one, believe in my country and will defend it. As for those people who think "this country has gone to the dogs," they can leave this country and try to live where freedom of speech is not respected (like Kuwait under Iraq rule).

makes for a very hard winter.

I'm a native of Idaho and my husband has lived here for 50 years. My husband has hunted and fished in Idaho since he was old enough to do so. He never violated or mistreated any Fish and Game laws. I feel he had every right to shoot my deer as long as I had a valid license and tag.

The two Fish and Game officers were very rude and bad-mannered. They took our guns out of the pickup and checked them without our permission. They took the deer that he had shot. The citation cost him $500 and his license was taken away for two years.

I feel this was very unjustified. We paid dearly for a deer that we didn't even get for two concerned senior citizens.

Take care with Constitution

I would never burn our flag. I love my country. I was in the service during World War II.

But I don't think it's a good idea to tamper with our Constitution. It has served us well for over 150 years.

I wonder where all the flags are being burned. I don't know of any in Idaho.

It seems like some legislators want to come up with something to affect our freedom.

I think we would be better off if the Legislature only met every other year. They wouldn't need the pay raise they got for themselves and making laws that we don't need. I would like to praise Mark Stubbs for his feelings about it. We need more like Mark.

Let's drill in the Soviet Union

We are having a war. It is one I think we could have stayed out of. We did not have any business going to Saudi Arabia. We should have stayed in the states. Now we are fighting for oil. Why? We have enough oil to support the United States. Every time we have something to do with the Middle East concerning these types of actions, we will have a war.

The richest oil lands are not in Kuwait. The richest oil reserves are in the Soviet Union. Why can't we pursue drilling in the Soviet Union?

There is oil there and in light of our new relations with them, we both could benefit in extracting the oil. Maybe we could cut a deal with Gorbachev. He might agree with what I am saying.

Watch that 900 phone number

Warning! Telephone subscribers. Access to the 900 number from your telephone (which all of them come with) is a "time bomb" that can blow your bank account. I found out the hard way.

I live in a big house, so I rent rooms mostly to college students and working girls.

One of the girls had her girlfriend end up to stay with her for couple of nights. During those two nights, Dec. 9 and 15, they spent most of all night placing a total of 39 calls on the 900 number listening to pornographic recordings at $1.65 per minute for a total charge of $637.25, which was added to my regular December bill.

This could happen to you. Just because you may never have used a 900 number and had nothing to do with authorizing its existence, the fact is that it is there and you could become the innocent victim unless you call your long distance company and put a block on it.

The normal use of the 900 number is to register your opinion on political and other issues and your number is automatically charged a certain amount for your participation.

If religious leaders and other Christian people who have been fighting pornography would get together and demand that a separate number be used for porno recordings with previous written consent by the telephone subscriber demanded before it could be accessed from their number it would cut off one of the tentacles of the pornographic octopus available to children and those who misuse your telephone.

Fuel industry should take part

Labour's fact from my observation, that the petroleum companies are not participating in the supply and demand ingredient of our democratic form of government. Let us look at what happened.

In the spring of with gas selling at $4.9 cents and oil on the world market at $22.60 world market went to under $18 and the pump price went to $1.07-9. When you consider the increase at the pump and the decrease on the world market, the result is nearly a 50 percent increase. Someone made terrific profits.

Then came the invasion of Kuwait. In less than 24 hours, the gas price jumped 5 cents a gallon for three weeks and then 3-cent and 2-cent increments until the price exceeded $1.40. Saudi Arabia increased their production to make up any shortage and stated we should be getting our oil for $20 a barrel.

We then came to the Jan. 15 deadline of no return stated by President Bush. Let us note, in the meantime, our usage and demand dropped to present standing. In data we have, our supplies are at an all-time high.

Petroleum companies have high inventories plus millions of barrels on boats. Uncle Sam has 600 million barrels as a strategic supply. Oil on the world market sold at $12.65 a barrel. Let us examine this situation.

There's probably enough blame within the oil industry to go around; however, having said that, I believe all will agree that 98 boys lost prior to hostilities and the innumerable casualties to come and in light of the two- and three-fold profits at this time surely borders on tremendous.

Think of what is happening, large deficits pushing PanAm and Eastern into extinction, crippling TWA, small businesses going out of operation, farmers whose price is unknown and fast but not least, consumers have to endure high inflation hearing double digits.

Guess who will be contributing millions to the politicians in 1992? I would urge everyone to write their senators and congressmen.

—RUBEN E. FESSENDEN, Rupert

There's too much hypocrisy

Like everybody else these days, I've been watching the news and I have shed many tears for the dear people involved in this war. I love them and support them.

Let me say that I agree with the president that Saddam Hussein must go; he is an mpdm Hitler. I've just read "The Rape of Kuwait," a very factual account of eyewitnesses. The atrocities that have been committed are horrendous but every time I think about Saddam's heinous acts, my mind automatically turns to another area, that of the brutal murders of almost 30 million of America's unborn civilians by our own hands.

I am deeply saddened by our hypocrisy and self-deception. Do we really have the right to persecute the enemy and justify ourselves?

I think not. Indeed, our solution is in turning away from our corporate and individual acts of crime against our fellow man, whatever they may be, and turning our hearts sincerely to the living God.

If we ask him to bless America and protect our troops, we had better stop giving lip service and give him our very lives. If we don't, God cannot bless America.

Citizens have right to arms

This is in response to your editorial on Monday, Jan. 21. As with most anti-gun writings, it was one on emotion and not on facts.

In the interest of fair reporting, here are some facts.

The Supreme Court did not rule that there was no constitutional right to own a machine gun. In fact, they did not rule at all; they simply refused to hear the case.

The law being challenged was a single provision of the McCall-Volker Firearms Owners Protection Act. Passed on May 19, 1986, the provision in question made it illegal to own or transfer an automatic weapon made in the date of passage.

This law only restricted manufacture and ownership of new guns. It did not affect in any way the right of ownership of automatic firearms. They may still be owned under the provisions of the National Firearms Act of 1934.

The BATE estimates that there are about 117,000 legally owned machine guns. Out of those, 117,000 firearms in 55 years there are no citable cases of a single one of these firearms being used in a crime.

Gun ownership by law-abiding citizens is not the problem and the NRA and the vast majority of American citizens understand this.

I sign this letter, unlike your editorials, where you can call people nuts and distort the truth without taking responsibility for your words.

—CARYL TABLOCK, Twin Falls

Kid does understand war

In regards to the letter from Mr. Molyneux titled, "Kids can't understand the Gulf war."

Mr. Molyneux, I am a 13-year-old young man, who also delivers papers for this newspaper. I think that your article was a little bit out of line. I may be wrong, but I'll bet I know a little bit more about this war than you do. I read the paper every morning, probably even before you get yours.

I watch CNN every day to keep up with the news in the Gulf.

But enough about me, let's talk about some of the kids I go to school with.

Every morning when we come into first-hour class, the first thing we talk about is what is happening in the Persian Gulf. You probably don't listen to Z103 in the mornings do you, but more than two days after the war started, the Z-Morning Zoo let people call in from all over the valley and express their opinions on the war.

Mostly kids called in and they have some pretty good opinions.

A good friend of mine called in and told of a plan that might win this war for us, but I suppose a person like you wouldn't listen to a 13-year-old.

Older kids can't have the time to write to this editorial because of schoolwork and projects, but when I saw this ignorant article, I just couldn't turn down the chance to tell adults everywhere that kids aren't "stupid."

And furthermore, Mr. Molyneux, "we" don't think war is "just a game." Even though we play war doesn't mean didn't. So from now on, Mr. Molyneux, I'd watch who you decide to "pick on" from now on because someone will always call you out on it.

Thank you for your time and I hope I won't be the next one to be picked on.

Let students make decision

In reference to your Jan. 28 article "ACLU Turns Eye Toward Boise State," the ACLU contends that the time-honored practice of prayer at graduation should be stopped.

The article states "We (ACLU) suggest both Christians and non-Christians are offended by the practice." My own suspicion is that the only students complaining about the practice are a small group belonging to the American Civil Liberties Union Club.

Since we are privileged to live in a free society, why not exercise our freedom and let the students at Boise State University decide for themselves by voting on this issue?

Coaches should have final say

This is in response to the column in Friday's Jan. 25 Times-News about select Wendell community members complaining about the benching of some players on the boys' JV basketball team.

As sophomores on the varsity boys' team at Wendell, we feel that if parents really want a say for the whole town, they need to step forward, their own child, they would allow the coaches to coach and use their judgements in game situations about who plays and who doesn't.

To earn playing time, a lot more than just going out for the team is required. Off-season practices and extra work are needed. This summer hundreds of hours were spent practicing and working by team member hopefuls. If this practice is not put in, a player will not get better and other players will. If a player does not get to play in his own fault, not his coaches'. If he wants more playing time, only he can change it by hard work both during season and the summer. If these team members are not willing to put the efforts into their sports like the rest of the regular players, perhaps they and their parents should look for an alternative activity.

Vote yes on Payette Plan

As a frequent boater on the North Fork of the Payette River, I have seen the river, I am opposed to hydropower development.

I know that we all use electricity, but we've all got to be more conservative in our use.

I reflect on the possibility of losing a section of river that provides exceptional scenic and recreational value so others can heat their hot tubs, driveways and other extravagant and other pompous lifestyles.

When is Idaho's legislative body going to show some prudent leadership by passing laws for conservative energy use? Why can't funds be provided to develop geothermal sources in our state? And why can't existing dams, Arrowrock for example, be upgraded to produce power?

Idaho's rivers are a much greater resource wild and natural than sold, dammed and tamed!

I urge you to vote yes on the Payette Plan. Thank you for your consideration.

Donated blood not for war

I have given my blood to American Red Cross blood drives locally twice a year for the last three and a half years. Since we can't choose where our donated blood goes, I won't give any more until this is over or we have a worldwide Red Cross. It is important to share responsibility with my fellow humans, but here's where I think I draw the line.

Wars are not the answer in 1991. It must be meaningful to the million soldiers line up against each other — a rite of passage to growing up. I will not participate in this crazy making "New World Order" of our government.

Stop pay raises and avoid tax

In regard to Gov. Andrus' road program:

If I remember correctly, when our governor was making an election promise, he stated he was mainly responsible for our surplus budget. He is real proud of this and continued to promise either a reduction in taxes or refunds.

Now, the true story:

Gov. Andrus now wants 6 cents added to our fuel tax, increases on vehicle registration and title fees. Why? To repair our state highways.

Maybe by stopping the big pay raise for our state legislators, cut some of the excess from our state vehicles and personnel (health and welfare and job services, etc.).

And how much money has the Department of Transportation wasted by moving the Bliss truck scales west? I drove there for several years and they seemed to work fairly well. I guess he wanted the taxes on his end of the state.

Maybe if our state legislators and the governor were taken off the state expense accounts and had to pay their own way, they wouldn't be too anxious to increase the cost of operating their vehicles.

It is amazing how soon the now-elected officials forget.

—GARY KELLEY, Wendell

Seniors should be allowed meat

On Oct. 25, 1990, my husband was given a citation from the Fish and Game for killing a deer to fill my tag. We were just two senior citizens out trying to get our meat for the winter. We are both on Social Security and without our wild meat, it

I live in a big house, so I rent rooms mostly to college students and working girls.

One of the girls had her girlfriend end up to stay with her for couple of nights. During those two nights, Dec. 9 and 15, they spent most of all night placing a total of 39 calls on the 900 number listening to pornographic recordings at $1.65 per minute for a total charge of $637.25, which was added to my regular December bill.

This could happen to you. Just because you may never have used a 900 number and had nothing to do with authorizing its existence, the fact is that it is there and you could become the innocent victim unless you call your long distance company and put a block on it.

The normal use of the 900 number is to register your opinion on political and other issues and your number is automatically charged a certain amount for your participation.

If religious leaders and other Christian people who have been fighting pornography would get together and demand that a separate number be used for porno recordings with previous written consent by the telephone subscriber demanded before it could be accessed from their number it would cut off one of the tentacles of the pornographic octopus available to children and those who misuse your telephone.

Fuel industry should take part

Labour's fact from my observation, that the petroleum companies are not participating in the supply and demand ingredient of our democratic form of government. Let us look at what happened.

In the spring of with gas selling at $4.9 cents and oil on the world market at $22.60 world market went to under $18 and the pump price went to $1.07-9. When you consider the increase at the pump and the decrease on the world market, the result is nearly a 50 percent increase. Someone made terrific profits.

Then came the invasion of Kuwait. In less than 24 hours, the gas price jumped 5 cents a gallon for three weeks and then 3-cent and 2-cent increments until the price exceeded $1.40. Saudi Arabia increased their production to make up any shortage and stated we should be getting our oil for $20 a barrel.

We then came to the Jan. 15 deadline of no return stated by President Bush. Let us note, in the meantime, our usage and demand dropped to present standing. In data we have, our supplies are at an all-time high.

Petroleum companies have high inventories plus millions of barrels on boats. Uncle Sam has 600 million barrels as a strategic supply. Oil on the world market sold at $12.65 a barrel. Let us examine this situation.

There's probably enough blame within the oil industry to go around; however, having said that, I believe all will agree that 98 boys lost prior to hostilities and the innumerable casualties to come and in light of the two- and three-fold profits at this time surely borders on tremendous.

Think of what is happening, large deficits pushing PanAm and Eastern into extinction, crippling TWA, small businesses going out of operation, farmers whose price is unknown and fast but not least, consumers have to endure high inflation hearing double digits.

Guess who will be contributing millions to the politicians in 1992? I would urge everyone to write their senators and congressmen.

There's too much hypocrisy

Like everybody else these days, I've been watching the news and I have shed many tears for the dear people involved in this war. I love them and support them.

Let me say that I agree with the president that Saddam Hussein must go; he is an mpdm Hitler. I've just read "The Rape of Kuwait," a very factual account of eyewitnesses. The atrocities that have been committed are horrendous but every time I think about Saddam's heinous acts, my mind automatically turns to another area, that of the brutal murders of almost 30 million of America's unborn civilians by our own hands.

I am deeply saddened by our hypocrisy and self-deception. Do we really have the right to persecute the enemy and justify ourselves?

I think not. Indeed, our solution is in turning away from our corporate and individual acts of crime against our fellow man, whatever they may be, and turning our hearts sincerely to the living God.

If we ask him to bless America and protect our troops, we had better stop giving lip service and give him our very lives. If we don't, God cannot bless America.

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev stepped up his war of words with Lithuanian leaders on Tuesday by rejecting their independence poll set for Saturday and ordering instead a Kremlin-controlled referendum.

Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis insisted the nonbinding ballot would be held as planned.

"Lithuania is in observance of law and views the president's decree as impermissible political interference in the matters of the sovereign Lithuanian state," he said in a statement read by spokeswoman Rita Dapkus.

The decree was sure to increase tension in the republic in the days ahead, indicating only that the Kremlin would not accept its results.

The poll and the attempt to call it a "plebiscite on the future of the Lithuanian state" (are) legally invalid," his decree said, according to the state news agency Tass.

The poll "cannot be seen as anything other than an attempt to block ... the holding of a national referendum on the question of preserving the Soviet Union," said Gorbachev, who has called for all 15 republics to vote March 17 on whether to preserve the union.

He ordered national authorities and Soviet-controlled officials in Lithuania to "ensure strict implementation" of the national referendum.

South African abuses go on

GENEVA (AP) — Human rights violations by South African security forces continue even though the government of F.W. de Klerk has undertaken political reforms, Amnesty International said Tuesday.

The rights group said the alleged abuses, including torture and killing of unarmed civilians, are due to the security forces' lack of judicial accountability.

Amnesty said De Klerk "has taken some initiatives to reduce violations of basic civil and political rights, starting with his speech to Parli-

Chinese activist trial begins

BEIJING (AP) — The first of four leaders of the 1989 democracy movement went on trial Tuesday in a Chinese court, charged with plotting to overthrow the Communist government.

The proceeding marked a new phase in a month-long series of trials of several dozen leading participants in the movement.

School financial suits will be consolidated

BOISE — Two separate lawsuits challenging Idaho's system of state financial support for local school districts will become one, a district judge has ruled.

After a hearing in Boise Tuesday, 4th District Judge Gerald Schroeder ruled that the lawsuits will be consolidated, since they deal with essentially the same issues. William von Tegen, attorney for the state officials and agencies who are defendants, said there was little opposition to the motion to consolidate.

Both the Boise and the Blaine County school districts will be allowed to intervene, the judge said.

Separate lawsuits were filed last year challenging the public school distribution formula used to channel state support to local districts.

One lawsuit involved 30 districts and claimed that not enough money was going into the formula to meet the constitutional guarantee of a free and proper public school education.

The second claims the so-called "property poor" districts are getting short-changed by the distribution formula. The 19 districts in that lawsuit want the formula changed.

County Fair, Rodeo Board has new members, officers

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Fair and Rodeo Board elected officers for 1991 Monday and welcomed two new members.

Gary Grindstaff of Buhl became chairman and Jack Ramsey of Filer was elected vice chairman.

New members are Carl Feldhusen of Kenberly and Terry-Curtis of Murtaugh.

Also on Monday, the board wrote off three unpaid debts. The largest, $1,250, was that of Big Sky Marketing, which was to have sponsored the 1990 fair-festivals display, but the company went out of business the week of the fair without having paid up. Manager Cindy DeMony said.

Craig proposing legislation to benefit gulf war military

WASHINGTON — Sen. Larry Craig has introduced legislation that would forbid tax penalties on servicemen and women in the Persian Gulf if they want to withdraw funds from Individual Retirement Accounts and annuities early.

Currently, individuals who make early withdrawals of retirement funds suffer a 10 percent penalty but Craig's bill would allow them to take out money penalty-free for up to 90 days after their service in Operation Desert Storm is finished. Craig said it was not fair to penalize reservists, who often make less money in the military than in the civilian world, for withdrawing cash to cover some expenses.

Professional engineers group to hold convention at Weston

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Society of Professional Engineers plans its 1991 convention this Thursday through Saturday at Weston Plaza.

The convention theme this year will be "Powering Idaho Through the Millennium" or looking ahead to Idaho's energy picture in 2001.

Featured speakers include retired Public Utilities Commissioner Perry Swisher, Rep. Richard Stallings and Don Hitt, president elect of the National Society, of which the Idaho group is a member. The convention also features representatives from energy suppliers that serve Idaho and the West, and it includes a number of meetings and seminars.

Registration for the entire three-day event is $85, individual program registration is $20. For information call the Twin Falls City Engineer's office at 736-2773.

American Ag Movement sets Thursday meeting date

TWIN FALLS — The American Agriculture Movement will meet 7 p.m. Thursday at Cavazos Restaurant, 2096 Kimberly Road.

Georgia Jucker of Buhl, an AAM national director, will discuss his recent trip to Washington D.C. The group will also discuss the General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs, the Agricultural Credit Act, and the National Family Farm Coalition.

More information is available from John Spanbauer, 324-2091.

TWIN FALLS — Being a drug-free school wouldn't mean all Twin Falls High School students just say no to drugs, but it would be recognition that the school is moving in that direction.

"We don't expect the school to be drug free," said Jim Spearman, a Norman, Okla., policeman.

Spearman and Gail Kennedy, a teacher from Phoenix, Ariz., commissioned by the U.S. Department of Education to determine whether the high school should be designated as a "Drug-Free School."

'You would be recognized throughout the country as a school with an excellent program.'

— Gail Kennedy
Teacher

Only schools with the most determined and encompassing drug-fighting programs earn the prestigious designation, Spearman said.

The pair spent Monday and Tuesday speaking with more than 100 people about the district's broad drug-fighting programs, such as student and teacher counseling, support groups, a class for students and parents, and free professional drug-abuse treatment. The high school also sponsors an all-night drug- and alcohol-free graduation party.

"We've talked with everyone from the superintendent to students," Spearman said. "We'll determine whether the school's programs are overstated." The high school has already survived a state cut and two national cuts in applicants, which have reduced the number of candidate schools from more than 1,000 to only 176.

Spearman and Kennedy said they could not comment on their impressions of the school's programs. They will pass their findings on to a succession of three committees before U.S. Department of Education officials make a final decision.

"It's not just something you write an application for and then you automatically receive an award, Spearman said.

"You would be recognized throughout the country as a school with an excellent program," Kennedy said.

Schools do not compete with each other, but against a standard of achievement that gauges community support, ancillary curriculum development, parent, community and student involvement; program development; and staff training.

Each year a different number of schools can earn the designation, Spearman said. Last year, President George Bush gave plaques to representatives from 51 schools that won the "Drug-Free School" title. Spearman and Kennedy said they know of only one other Idaho school — one in Pocatello — that has earned the designation. They were both involved with schools that were given the drug-free designation last year. The program is four years old.

Food safety lab may break ground in June

By Mark Kind
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Department of Agriculture might break ground in June on a laboratory designed to make certain that toxic chemicals aren't finding their way into Idaho food products.

But before that can happen, the Food Quality Assurance Laboratory steering committee must find operating funds.

Otherwise, it will not receive $2 million in construction and equipment funds conditionally appropriated by the Legislature last year, said Ron Foster, chairman of the committee.

The operating funds might also come from the state Agriculture Department. Director Greg Nelson recently said the lab could need as much as $1 million from the Idaho general fund in its first year.

Foster said he expects the lab to cost less than that to operate, however.

The lab will be located at the College of Southern Idaho campus and staffed by University of Idaho researchers.

The lab will continually test Idaho agricultural products for toxins — primarily pesticides and other man-made chemicals — on the assumption that most food samples will contain no harmful levels of toxins.

The idea is to be prepared to fight back against sudden consumer scares of pesticides or other toxins.

"We can say, 'Well, we've analyzed this commodity for five years here in the state — here's the data,'" said Jerry Lutz, head of the University of Idaho's new Food Science and Toxicology Department in Moscow.

The lab could also, on short notice, exclusively test one commodity for toxins in order to allay fears fueled by the news media. In 1980, a news report on Alar apples was widely blamed for discouraging apple sales and sending prices to their lowest levels in a decade.

Another function of the lab will be alerting farmers if toxic residues are found in foods so producers can seek alternative chemicals or change their practices.

Foster, who is also executive director of the Idaho Sugar Beet Growers Association, said the steering committee is now trying to figure out how much it will cost to operate the lab.

After the committee has found the money to operate the new lab, the state's construction and equipment money will be released, Foster said.

The steering committee will meet next at 1:30 p.m. Feb. 14 at the Idaho Agriculture Department in Boise to discuss the project and its funding.

Reach out and touch for free, State abuse act could change say Eden/Hazelton residents

HAZELTON — Nearly 430 citizens from Eden, Hazelton and Murtaugh turned out to show support and give testimony in favor of expanding the area's toll-free calling area during a hearing with the Public Utilities Commission.

"Our main area of service is Twin Falls," PUC assistant commissioner asked that the municipalities to call Twin Falls, Kimberly, Hansen and surrounding areas without a long-distance toll.

About 30 people testified at the meeting. "Our main area of service is Twin Falls," PUC assistant commissioner asked that the municipalities to call Twin Falls, Kimberly, Hansen and surrounding areas without a long-distance toll.

Eden/Hazelton customers averaged 47 such calls, she wrote.

In the same testimony, Anderson stated that Eden/Hazelton would lose an estimated $262,700 in revenue per year based on last August 1990 figures, if the calling area is extended.

Most of the residents who testified at the hearing were concerned with the lack of telephone access to medical services as well as to doctor's offices, nursing homes, the College of Southern Idaho, various stores and other businesses.

"Many farmers from the area testified that they do between 80 and 95 percent of their business with Twin Falls-based businesses, making it clear that Twin Falls is the area's market center."

Several businessmen and religious leaders from Twin Falls also testified in favor of the petition. They said many of their business calls are to and from these three communities.

Douglas Burks of Burks Tractor Co. Inc. estimated that he makes one-third of his toll calls to the east Jerome County area and said that "last month alone I made 220 toll calls."

Burks also stated that the people in this area contribute heavily to the economic base of Twin Falls. He cited a survey by Case III that estimated that "for every $10 spent (in the MV) $8.25 cents is spent in Twin Falls."

Dr. Jack Trotter, a pediatrician at the Pediatric Center in Twin Falls, testified that 318 families from the area are active cases at the center. He reminded the PUC that this includes only families with young children and does not include older residents or families with older children.

Trotter also said that "all the specialists as well as the intensive care nursery is located at MVMRC (Magic Valley Regional Medical Center) and not in the surrounding areas with hospitals," making it necessary for outlying districts to gravitate to Twin Falls for any medical emergencies.

PUC Chairman Dean J. Miller said the commission has already taken staff testimony from Eden/Hazelton and will now take the matter under advisement.

The PUC has 30 to 60 days to determine whether there is strong enough interest within the communities to warrant the expansion of the toll-free calling area and whether to make adjustments in the rates.

Residents will be notified of the commission's decision either through mail or advertisement.

BOISE — A Senate bill introduced Tuesday would strengthen Idaho's elderly abuse act and expand it to include "vulnerable adults" of all ages.

Idaho law already covers abuse of children, younger than 18, as well as abuse of people over age 60. But 18- to 59-year-olds make up about 25 percent of the caseload of adult protection workers statewide, said Lutz.

"It's a pocket-of-the-population that needs protection," Lutz said.

The legislation defines "vulnerable adults" as those who are unable to protect themselves from "abuse, neglect, or exploitation due to physical or mental impairment" that renders them unable to "make or communicate independent decisions regarding their person."

Domestic violence is not covered under the act.

County suggests Twin Falls as site for detention center

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News writer

JEROME — The Magic Valley's proposed juvenile detention center may be built in the city of Twin Falls, not Jerome County as previously thought.

Members of the six-county board looking to build the detention center were enthusiastic about a county-owned site offered by Twin Falls County Commissioner Jim Fraley Tuesday night.

"It's a mess right now, but it's being cleaned up," Fraley said. The 7½-acre parcel is near the railroad tracks between Beryl and Warren avenues in an industrial zone less than one half-mile east of Eastland Drive.

The site at the top of the board's list until Tuesday was a 10-acre piece of ground in Jerome County near the intersection of U.S. Highway 93 and Interstate 84.

The Twin Falls spot has several advantages over the Jerome County site because it is already served by existing water and power lines.

It is also close to a city fire station, sewer lines and a hospital.

If chosen, the newly proposed site would save the counties money they would otherwise have to spend in building or acquiring services to the Jerome County site, Blaine County Prosecutor and board Chairman Ned Williamson said.

Insurance for the detention center would likely be cheaper at the Twin Falls site as well because police, fire and ambulance services would be closer, Twin Falls County Sheriff Jim Amundson said.

The site was not proposed earlier because the county only recently acquired the deed to the property, Fraley said. The county received the property after the previous owner defaulted on property taxes and no bidders expressed interest in the site at a public auction, Fraley said.

If the detention center board pursues the site, a special use permit will likely have to be granted by the county's Planning and Zoning Commission, he said.

Earlier in Tuesday's meeting, the board shuffled members a bit.

Citing his county's financial constraints, Lincoln County Commissioner Jerry

Charboneau sentencing delayed for more tests

The Times-News

JEROME—Convicted murderer Jaimi Charboneau will undergo psychiatric testing once again to determine whether he is mentally able to assist in his own defense.

Fourth District Judge George Grunata granted a defense request for the tests, which will once again delay Charboneau's resentencing.

Sentencing had been scheduled for the week of March 11.

The court has the continuing obligation to make sure the defendant in front of them is competent to understand proceedings against him, and has the capacity to assist in his own defense," Grunata said Monday.

Charboneau, 31, was convicted of the 1984 first-degree murder of his former wife, Marilyn Arbaugh. He was sentenced to death in 1986 by 51st District Judge Philip Becker, but that sentence was overturned and the Idaho Supreme Court in 1989 refused to reinstate it.

A psychological test performed in February 1990 showed Charboneau was competent, Grunata said.

But a Jan. 2 telephone conversation between Charboneau and a Louisiana psychologist preparing him for sentencing hearing indicated he may no longer be mentally fit, Grunata said.

"She raised significant issues questioning the competency of the defendant to stand trial," he said.

M. Lynn Dunlap, Jerome county public defender and the latest in a list of attorneys appointed to defend Charboneau, said a letter from psychologist Jerry Lovelace of Lafayette, La., indicates Charboneau may have become delusional, dysfunctional and unable to express himself.

Lovelace said Charboneau is fixating on Dunlap, blaming the attorney for bad things that happen, Dunlap said.

As a result of Lovelace's report, Twin Falls psychologist Richard Smith will test Charboneau again. A competency hearing is scheduled for March 11.

Several other defense motions, including one filed by Charboneau to dismiss Dunlap and have a new attorney appointed, will have to wait until Charboneau's competency is determined, Grunata said.

A class action inquest questioning Dunlap's competence was filed by Charboneau and four other criminal defendants in August.

Two of the signers have since withdrawn their names.

Charboneau, who is being held at the state penitentiary in Boise, appeared in the courtroom shackled and handcuffed, wearing a grey corduroy sport jacket, pink dress shirt and jeans.

Charboneau's mother, Misty Hamilton of Mountain Home, said after the hearing that two previous tests showed her son to be in excellent mental condition.

"They found nothing wrong with Jaimi," Hamilton said. "Jaimi is preparing to be a parolee when he gets out. (He) told me that when he gets out he is going to be able to help somebody else in my predicament."

Mountain Home losing radar site

The Associated Press

MOUNTAIN HOME—The town was dealt another blow over the weekend when the Pentagon announced plans to "mothball" the Backscatter Radar site at the Air Force base just outside the city.

It's the second time in six months the Air Force has decided to scale back operations at Mountain Home Air Force Base.

In August, the service retired a squadron of F-111A fighters, prompting fears among local residents that the base could be closed.

During a Pentagon briefing Saturday, a senior Air Force officer said Backscatter facilities on the East and West coasts would be "mothballed" because of "the way the world has changed."

The radar system is designed to detect approaching Soviet bombers and cruise missiles.

The Mountain Home radar site could be shut down as early as March, or continue operating for several more months, said Peter Buccellato, who manages operations at the base.

Backscatter facilities for the prime contractor, General Electric.

The Pentagon's budget, released Monday, shows steadily decreasing the infrastructure at Mountain Home Air Force Base. It's 100 million to shut it down," Craig spokesman John Barclay said.

Radar facility, which very easily could be converted to another mission.

Base officials declined comment, saying they had heard nothing about plans to mothball the program. Officials at the Strategic Air Command headquarters also declined comment.

Col. Victor Andrews, who is in charge of the base, said in August that the facility needs new missions to survive.

Mothballing the Backscatter leaves the base with only two missions.

One of those, an F-111A training squadron, is due to be retired this year, leaving the radar-jamming F-111A jets currently deployed in the Persian Gulf as the base's lone mission.

In August, when Andrews thought the base soon would be left with only the F-111A and the Backscatter-Radar, he said, "You couldn't keep a whole Air Force base open with just those two missions, at the size they are in today's fiscal environment."

Burley council waives jail permit fee

By Christopher R. Clark

BURLEY—It was "in the interest of cooperation" that the City Council voted to waive the building permit fee for the new, two-county adult jail facility currently under construction within the city limits.

Monday night's City Council meeting and council members heard that the permit fee for a joint juvenile holding facility had been waived by the city of Rupert.

The increase will be discussed at public hearings that have not yet been scheduled, according to Bonneville Power's Idaho Falls business

Handy also eluded to hopes that efforts such as this might lay the groundwork for more cooperation between Minidoka and Cassia counties.

He said that waiving the fee was not a matter of dollars and cents, but a matter of perceived cooperation.

Mayor Frank Bauman announced the possibility of Bonneville Power raising its wholesale rate by 3 percent before the end of 1991. The city buys power from Bonneville at the wholesale rate and then sells it to its customers at a retail rate.

Abuse

This legislation.

The bill is an attempt to beef up the 1982 Elderly Abuse, Exploitation, Neglect and Abandonment Reporting Act, which was passed by the Idaho Legislature in 1982.

The bill would:

- Give the Health and Welfare legal authority to investigate suspected abuse without the victim's consent.
- Let prosecutors file felony charges against suspected abusers.
- Make it a misdemeanor for professionals such as doctors or nurses to fail to report suspicions of abuse.
- Let police acquire search warrants to investigate suspected abuse or neglect.
- Require Health and Welfare to provide support services (such as health care referrals to counselors) to victims if they desire.
- Marcie Donner, director of the Senior Companion Program at the College of Southern Idaho's Office on Aging, said she has been frustrated when Health and Welfare has not been able to probe abuse.

The existing law "just hasn't had the teeth to it," she said.

Lutz said the legislation more clearly defines the roles of the Health and Welfare department and law enforcement and allows them to work cooperatively in investigations.

"It's a hand-in-hand approach," she said.

Paul Du-Fresne, Twin Falls' police and fire chief and police and Health and Welfare have worked well together in Twin Falls investigating child and other abuse.

In his two-year tenure, there have been no reported cases of elderly abuse in the city, he said.

But mandatory reporting could help identify when it occurs.

"It is an issue," Du Fresne said. "How can we be sure people who can't report (abuse) for themselves get care?"

Gooding street project not on chopping block

By Suzanne Huxhold
Times-News correspondent

and if anyone is hurt because of them.

GOODING - With "nearly unanimous" support from local business owners, a $250,000 street project is one step closer to fruition.
Results from a survey conducted by the city last month indicate that most of the "businesses" on Main Street - where the city has proposed a major overhaul of the drainage system, curbs and sidewalks - are in favor of the project. The business owners also indicated that they are willing to bear the lion's share, about $136,000, of the cost of the project.

Heller went on to say that the city has been threatened with lawsuits before because of the sidewalk project. Heller said that the city and the school district are on top of the problem. The project does not include paying for repairs in front of the schools or the county buildings. The school district has contracted its own improvement project, and the county has agreed to pay for any repairs that its property requires.

Gooding Mayor Gene Heller said the cost for each 25-foot lot on Main Street would be between $750 and $790.
He also said the property owners would have five years to pay their share.
The Idaho state Department of Transportation has agreed to give the city a one-time grant of $50,000 toward the street improvement project.
The city will spend about $53,000 of its money on pipe for the drainage portion of the project, and will also provide $10,000 worth of in-kind labor.

At its Feb. 19 meeting, the council will choose a date for a public hearing on the Main Street project.
In other business, the council passed a resolution to begin the process of selecting an engineer to work on plans for the sewer treatment facility.
Councilman Jim Muscat told the council that in order to qualify for state grants, the city has to conduct a study to determine the extent and cost of the city's sewer treatment system up to Environmental Protection Agency standards.
Funding for the project has to be in place by October 1991.

Heller said he was pleased by the support of the Main Street businesses, and said the project has to be high priority for the council. He said Main Street sidewalks are in dire need of repair and the city could be held liable for the project. The regular City Council meeting scheduled for Feb. 18 has been postponed until Feb. 19 because of the President's Day holiday.

Consultant hired to plan university fee increases

MOSCOW (AP) - The University of Idaho has hired a Lewiston consultant at an anticipated cost of more than $13,000 to help President Elizabeth Zinser plan future student fee increases.

But the late start means the report will not be complete before March, Presnell-Gage reported last week to the fee committee. March is when University of Idaho officials are expected to propose a fee hike to the state Board of Education.

Zinser asked the committee to compare the university's student fees with those of the school's "peer institutions," as well as other state policies about tuition charges and financial aid. The peer list, approved by the Board of Education, includes 10 western universities.

University of Idaho students now pay $1,160 per year in fees.

Gutch said Tuesday that he was worried that the study by the consulting firm Presnell-Gage will be used by university administrators to justify higher fees. He contends many of the questions the firm has been asked to answer are irrelevant to setting fees.
Study fees at the Moscow school are being inappropriately compared to those in other states, creating a false impression that the university's fees are too low, Gutch said.
The study was hired to complete a task Zinser assigned to a committee of seven administrators and two students last March. The committee didn't begin to meet until late last fall and turned to the Lewiston accountants to help finish the report by spring.

Jerry Wallace, the school's acting financial vice president, said the firm was hired to gather information for the fee committee because of reduced staff in his office. Wallace's old job of assistant financial vice president has been vacant since he became acting vice president last June.

Gutch says Presnell-Gage's preliminary report will show the University of Idaho's fees are lower than most of those peer institutions, which is no surprise since student fees are lower in Idaho than in any other state except California and the District of Columbia.

On the other hand, Elmore County Commissioners plan to sign on to the agreement.
"They unanimously voted for it. They're just waiting for something to sign," said Ted Knudson, an Elmore County juvenile probation official.

Kimberly avenges earlier loss to Gooding

By Ron Giles
 Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — The same aggressive game that brought Gooding back from a 15-point deficit ultimately cost the Senators a 60-54 Canyon Conference defeat Tuesday.

Kimberly's Craig Cox's drive with 21 seconds remaining broke a tie at 54, then added a pair of free throws 21 seconds later, effectively putting the contest out of reach.

Tuesday's victory improved Kimberly to 6-5 in conference, 9-10 overall and avenged a 60-57 loss at Gooding on Jan. 12. Gooding, 7-12 on the season, remains in a tie for second place with Declo at 7-4. The Senators, who fell behind by 10 points with 2:02 left in the first period and trailed 28-13 3/4 minutes before intermission, still trailed 47-36 after a Brian Smith-free throw just seconds into the fourth quarter.

But Craig Gonzales and Brian Thompson scored two baskets apiece in a 10-0 Senator run that carried to 46-48 with 5:07 showing.

DeWayne Berg drew Gooding even at 48 as Chris Glenn, who led the Bulldogs with 18 points on 8-14 shooting, exited with his fifth foul a half minute later. Thompson's bucket off the give and go sent the Senators ahead on their next trip down the floor.

"Our lack of experience showed when the game got a little closer," admitted Bulldog coach Randy Potter. "We had a little bit of poor selection in our shots."

Following another tie, Brian Utz turned inside for what appeared to be the go ahead points only to be called for the charge, a major problem for the taller Senators all evening. "We got them concerned about getting the ball to the basket," said Gooding coach Rick Thompson. "I was yelling at them not to. Normally, you want to do it, but we drew fouls almost every time and it hurt us bad."

Utz charities with 2:40 remaining offset a pair by Kimberly's Chad Hodkins and the teams traded turnovers until Bob Glenn's 16 first-half points. Kimberly moved away on three scoring bursts.

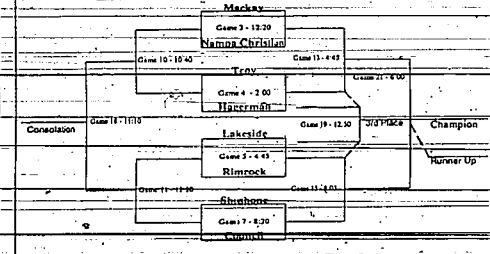

The six-foot senior contributed four points in an 8-0 run in the first four minutes, sent his team ahead 16-6 in the middle of a second, then took the score out to 26-12 with six straight points in the early minutes of the second period.

After dropping their second game of the season to Filer, the Pirates ripped a 20-point straight game without a loss that ended the Pirates beat Magic Valley Conference runner-up Oakley five times and Shoshone twice. They eventually lost to the Indians in the District 4 playoffs.

CSI will wait for Region 18 dust to settle over weekend

By Larry Hovey
 Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The could-be the one week of the year that College of Southern Idaho basketball can make its greatest strides toward hosting the Region 18 tournament.

The Eagles, both women and men, will be home to Treasure Valley for their only game of the week tonight, the women's game starting at 5:30 p.m. If CSI can win both of those, the bonuses could start rolling in this weekend because the two-three-four-six Scenic West men's teams will be colliding. CSI goes into the competition with a 19-1 record. North Idaho beat Ricks to claim second by itself at 7-3 while Utah Valley and Eastern Utah are 7-4 and Ricks is 6-4. Dixie slipped to 6-5.

The major weekend fireworks will revolve around Salt Lake City and Orem. Ricks and North Idaho will alternate meeting Salt Lake Community and Utah Valley. The possibilities of those four games alone could turn CSI virtually free in its bid for the regional host designation or could bring North Idaho and Ricks' back into contention if they can sweep.

It also could be a bonus weekend for Eastern Utah, which dropped Utah Valley last week. But only a northern school is eligible to host the playoffs. "Treasure Valley has some strong pluses," says Coach Fred Trenkle. "They are a very good free throw-shooting team. Of their five starters the worst one is hitting 75 percent from the line. As a team they are hitting 74 percent. They also are very capable of shooting well from the floor."

"They are smart enough to know their best chance of winning will be holding their own in limiting possessions and waiting for the good shots. So, we are looking for a low score."

Trenkle noted the last team that used that play, Northwest Nazarene just before Christmas, only missed beating the Eagles by a point. Against patience-like that, your defense has to be even more intense because they are going to let you play defense for 30 to 40 seconds every time you turnover," Trenkle said.

Treasure Valley owns just one conference win but Trenkle warned "we only beat them 12, they beat Snow to three overtime before losing last week and they played within nine points of North Idaho at Coeur d'Alene. So they are capable of putting off an upset."

TVCC has four men averaging in double figures — Devon Conway at 10.7, Alan McMurtry at 12.0, Joe Hall at 11.6, and Jeff Anderson 11.4. David Bigelow being 9.0 off the bench.

It remains the same for Coach Ben Stroud's women. They currently are tied for the top spot with Utah Valley at 10-1. The women whose tournament is being combined with the men for the first time this year, must finish in the top four to move to post-season play.

"It remains imperative to win at home. Tickets for everyone, we have only two home games and four road games — one of those at Utah Valley," Stroud said. Dixie, Salt Lake and Ricks are knocked with four losses behind the co-packeters. "We have to pick up our intensity again," Stroud said. "Against Dixie Friday and then the first 10 minutes against Snow we played and shot perhaps as well as we have all year. But after that 15-point lead against Snow, everything came apart. We lost all our focus. Our shooting and defense went down. We became a very tentative team playing with a lead on its own court."

Twin Falls, Jerome hook up in rematch with new looks

By Larry Hovey
 Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two teams that went in opposite directions from their season opener collide at 8 p.m. today when the Jerome Tigers invade Twin Falls. "We need a win," says Twin Falls Coach John Astorquia. Coach Jim Stauffer and the Tigers are looking for a little revenge.

The Bruins, down 32-16 late in the second quarter in the season opener, rallied to win it 51-46. Twin Falls then added two more victories for a 3-0 mark, but has stumbled to 1-1 since.

Jerome, which still has one-third of its regular season left to play in the next 11 days, has posted an 11-3 record since. "There also is about a 40 percent change in personnel since that November meeting," Jerome has improved its starting size by re-centering 6-4 Bart Hamilton and 6-2 Mark Holtzen into its starting line.

Twin Falls has lost two seniors, one quitting the team 10 days ago, and Brandon Eller being lost with a broken ankle. "Basically Jerome presents the same keys it has the last two years," Astorquia said. "You have to make sure that Gerard (Bett) Walter does go on a run of three-pointers and Williams inside poses problems for everyone, we have only two home games and he is a relentless offensive rebounder."

Matchup for the Bruins inside will be difficult against Jerome's 6-4 duo of Williams and Hamilton plus 6-6 Ryan Barnes, Walter, a six-footer, and Holtzen, 6-2, are a little taller than most Bruin defenders.

"A big key for us will be limiting them to one shot if we expect to win," Astorquia said. He added that same size factor on the other end will put a premium on Twin Falls' offensive rebounding.

Last time, Twin Falls overlooked Jerome when its full-court pressure caused some turnovers but seemed to have the most effect of putting the game's tempo a little higher than usual. "We can't expect that much help from the press this time," Astorquia said. "Pressure usually is more telling early in the season. Everyone is still 15 or so games new and their ball handling has improved." Stauffer said by "junk" target Jerome has handled pressure increasingly better but noted at times, particularly under the Burley game, the Tigers have unraveled in ball handling.

It also could be a bonus weekend for Eastern Utah, which dropped Utah Valley last week. But only a northern school is eligible to host the playoffs.

"Treasure Valley has some strong players," says Coach Fred Trenkle. "They are a very good free-throw shooting team. Of their first starters, the worst one is hitting 75 percent from the line. As a team they are hitting 74 percent. They also are very capable of shooting well from the field."

They are smart enough to know their best chance of winning will be holding the ball, possessing possession and waiting for the good shots. So, we are looking for a low score.

Trenkle noted the last team that used that play, Northwest Nazarene just before Christmas, only missed beating the Eagles by a point.

"Against patience like that, your defense has to be even more intense because they are going to let you play defense for 30 to 40 seconds every time downcourt," Trenkle said.

Treasure Valley owns just one conference win but Trenkle warned "we only beat them 15." They look strong to three overtimes before losing last week and they played within nine points of North Idaho at Cosur d'Alene. So they are capable of pulling off an upset."

TVCC has four men averaging in double figures — Devon Conway at 10.2, Alan McMurtry at 12.6, Joe Lall at 11.6, and Jeff Anderson 11.4. David Bigelow bring 8.9 off the bench.

It remains the same for Coach Ben Stroud's women. They currently are tied for the top spot with Utah Valley at 10-1. The women, whose tournament is being combined with the men for the first time this year, must finish in the top four to move to post-season play.

It remains imperative to win at home. At Treasure Valley we have only two home games well four road games — one of those at Utah Valley," Stroud said. Dixie, Salt Lake and Ricks are knotted with four losses behind the co-pacesters.

"We have to pick up our intensity again," Stroud said. "Against Dixie Friday and then the first 10 minutes against Snow we played and shot shorts as well as we have all year. But after that 15 point lead against Snow, everything came apart. We lost all our focus. Our shooting and defense went down. We became a very tentative team playing with a lead on its own court."

Twin Falls, Jerome hook up in rematch with new looks

By Larry Hovey

TWIN FALLS — Two teams that went in opposite directions from their season opener collide at 8 p.m. today when the Jerome Tigers invade Twin Falls.

"We need a win," says Twin Falls Coach John Astorquin. Coach Jim Stauffer and the Tigers are looking for a little revenge.

The Bruins, down 32-16 late in the second quarter in the season opener, rallied to win it 51-46. Twin Falls then added two more victories for a 3-0 mark but has stumbled to 1-1 since.

Jerome, which still has one-third of its regular season left to play in the next 11 days, has posted an 11-3 record since.

"There also is about a 40 percent change in personnel since that November meeting. Jerome has imposed its starting size by inserting 6-4 Bart Hamilton and 6-2 Mark Holtzen into its starting line.

"Twin Falls has lost two seniors, one quitting the team 10 days ago and Brandon Hiler being lost with a broken ankle.

"Basically, Jerome presents the same keys it has the last two years," Astorquin said. "You have to make sure that (guard Brett) Walter does go on a run of three-pointers and Williams inside poses problems for everyone. He can drive to the basket well and he is a relentless offensive rebounder."

Matchup for the Bruins inside will be difficult against Jerome's 6-4 duo of Williams and Hamilton plus 6-6 Ryan Burners, Walter, a six-footer, and Holzen, 6-2, are a little taller than most Bruin defenders.

"A big key for us will be limiting them to one shot if we expect to win," Astorquin said. He added that same size factor on the other end will put a premium on Twin Falls' offensive rebounding.

Last time, Twin Falls overtook Jerome when its full-court pressure caused some turnovers but seemed to have the most effect of putting the game's tempo a little higher than usual.

"We can't expect that much help from the press this time," Astorquin said. "Pressure usually is more telling early in the season. Everyone has had 15 or so games now and their ball handling has improved."

Stauffer said and large Jerome has handled pressure increasingly better but noted it does, particularly after the Burney game. The Tigers have unraveled in full court.

The Southside schools are larger and have more to choose from. "The Indians really hope that the formula that has worked so far will continue this week and end with a state title."

Burley shooting turns hot to eliminate

TWIN FALLS — The Burley girls suddenly jumped hot in their shooting midway through the second quarter Tuesday night and eliminated the Twin Falls Bruins 63-40 in the Region III Class A basketball playoffs.

The victory sends Burley to Pocatello Tuesday night to meet the loser of Thursday night's Highland-district tournament. Cring led the game the Pirates had handed the Indians their only two losses of the season, but their pressure defense turned things around in that matchup.

Although Twin Falls had beaten Burley twice in the regular season, Burley wasn't little time in establishing dominance this time around.

There was a tie at 3-3 before Courtney Peterson, Jennifer Swanson and Stephanie Jensen sent Burley ahead for the rest of the night.

Twin Falls did manage to stay within halting distance for a time, the last time when Cindy Scheel cut back to 11-10.

But Burley, which led its first four three-point attempts, then broke it wide open. Courtney Peterson hit three and Jensen went to the high post for a run-around jumper.

Another Peterson three-point shot led 26-14 before Ashley Meyers and Shannon Phillips took Twin Falls off 14. But by halftime, Burley was coasting at 29-18.

The Bobcats gave up the first field of the second half to Bruin Myndee Larsen, but then Cindy Thompson, Courtney Peterson and Jennifer Meyers reeled off unanswered points that left Twin Falls trailing by 35-20 and with very little hope.

Browns lure Belichick from NFL champs

CLEVELAND (AP) — A few hours after he signed a five-year contract with the Cleveland Browns, months before his first game as an NFL head coach, Bill Belichick was being compared to Don Shula.

The 38-year-old Belichick appreciated the long-term deal. But he'd rather do without the comparison. "To be compared to Don Shula really is a joke," Belichick said Tuesday. "I mean, the guy's a Hall of Fame coach. I haven't coached one game in this league. I hope he's not insulted."

Belichick's age, his background as a defensive player and coach, and his northeastern Ohio roots all reminded Browns owner Art Modell of Shula, who grew up near Cleveland and first became an NFL coach in 1952.

Belichick, an assistant with the New York Giants the past 12 years, spent part of his youth in nearby Hiram, where the Browns used to hold their preseason practices.

"I've always wanted to take over the team when I was 17, when I was a boy watching the Browns practice. I remember seeing some of the greats like Jim Brown, Lou Groza and Gary Collins," Belichick said. "I'm tremendously proud to be here. The interest here is tremendous, as it is with the team I was with."

Belichick replaces Bud Carson, who was fired Nov. 5 after the Browns lost seven of their first nine games.

Former offensive coordinator Jim Shofner finished the season as interim coach but took his name out of the running for the permanent job because he was unable to fill the lems wrecked morale on the defense. "I've been disappointed before, but I don't expect to be disappointed this time," Modell said. "We're not a 3-13 team, nor are we a 13-3 team. I think we are a competitive team. I will not give him not myself a time frame. I tried that before and it doesn't work."

Belichick's prospects of becoming a head coach were enhanced by the Giants' defensive performance last Rusty Tillman and Kansas City defensive coordinator Bill Cowher.

"Prior to taking this job I had very lengthy discussions with Art and other front office members," Belichick said. "I feel very comfortable with Art and how the organization works and I feel we can win with it."

"I want to be involved in all facets. I've coached offense. I've coached defense, and I've coached special teams. Everybody is going to work together and we are going to get it done. I want an aggressive, hustling team with a good work ethic."

Modell recognized the danger in comparing Belichick to Shula, but he did not back away from it.

"I hope the analogy holds up."

Modell said. Belichick is the son of Steve Belichick, a former fullback with the Detroit Lions and a long-time assistant coach at the U.S. Naval Academy.

The elder Belichick played football at Western Reserve University in Cleveland and coached at Hiram, and he got to know Indiana basketball coach Bob Knight at the Naval Academy. Knight called Modell to give an unsolicited recommendation for Belichick, Modell said.

The younger Belichick, who attended Wesleyan University in Connecticut, began his NFL coaching career as an assistant with Baltimore in 1975. He moved to Detroit as an assistant in 1976, then went to Denver in 1978 before joining the Giants under Ray Perkins in 1979. He remained in New York when Bill Parcells took over as the Giants' head coach in 1983.

Belichick is the eighth head coach in Browns' history, not counting two interim coaches.

Last year, the Raiders' Art Shell, 44, was the youngest coach in the NFL.

2 more pitchers join $3 million-a-year club

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Morris and Bruce Hurst became the 12th and 13th $3-million pitchers in baseball on Tuesday when Morris signed with the Minnesota Twins and Hurst got a two-year extension from the San Diego Padres.

Morris, the winningest pitcher of the 1980s, rejected a $9.3 million, three-year offer from the Detroit Tigers in Detroit and signed a one-year, $3-million contract with the Twins. The pitcher has options for 1992 and 1993 at $2 million a season.

Morris pitches 240 innings and makes 34 starts each season. In the two seasons, the contract would be worth $11 million over three years. "He brings us 240 quality innings," Twins manager Tom Kelly said. "It gives us somebody to look at if things are going bad." Let Jack pick.

Minnesota spurned Morris after the 1986 season when owners boycotted free agents. He was a new-look free agent this winter as part of the $280 million collusion settlement, and this time he was able to change teams.

He took four years and three agencies to get him there, but he's there now," said Morris' agent, Richard Moss.

Ten new-look free agents switched teams, three remained with their clubs for more money and two kept their old contracts. The 13 players' new deals signed for $84.5 million over 33 years, an average of $2.56 million a season.

Hurst, the most highly sought-free agent two winters ago, got an extension, though, 1993 for $6.4 million.

Three players in arbitration agreed to one-year, $1.5-million contracts, including mainstay players 77-year-old left-hander Norm Charlton, who made $175,000 last year, tripled his salary when he settled with the Reds at $625,000.

Center fielder Daryl Boston and the New York Yankees settled at $750,000, a rise of $40,000, while shortstop Luis Rivera agreed with Boston at $565,000, a raise of $255,000.

The first arbitration cases are scheduled for Wednesday in Los Angeles. San Diego catcher Benito Santiago and Montreal first-baseman outfielder Mike Aldrete both are scheduled for hearings.

Cubs pitcher Steve Wilson, who is eligible for arbitration, signed for $230,000, a raise of $85,000.

8 independents form Big East football conference

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — The 30-year dream of an Eastern football league became reality Tuesday with creation of another Big East conference.

But it was a nightmare that made it possible. Athletic directors of eight proud football independents saw a future of leagueish schedules, dominant nightmarish and dwindling television exposure.

"I think that the climate this time around almost forced the issue," Syracuse athletic director Jake Crummett said. "We're talking about the integrity of the schedule and the money."

"When you put it in their context, you get a little shaky-keed," independents, said Rutgers athletic director Fred Gruninger, "became an endangered species."

Syracuse, Boston College, Miami

of Florida and Pittsburgh, already Big East basketball members, will play Rutgers, Temple, West Virginia and Virginia Tech beginning this fall in the new football conference. Big East Commissioner Mike Tranchese said they will choose a champion this year, but he's not sure how yet because Miami and Virginia Tech will play only one conference game each.

If 1993, all have agreed to play a maximum of five conference games a year.

Rutgers, Temple and West Virginia will stay in the Atlantic 10 for all other sports, and Virginia Tech will continue in the Metro Conference.

William Flynn, recently retired Doston-College athletic director who talked up an Eastern league for three decades, beamed and told clustered reporters: "Fundamentally, we've been a league without name or association, and we've missed out on a lot by not being there."

Major market television — the independents — is the 11-year-old Big East basketball conference so successful, was on everyone's mind. Tranchese said the league would expand its 5-year-old in-house network and aim for a football game off-the-week.

Heisman winner's son chooses Pitt

The Associated Press

Tony Dorsett's son will play college football at his father's alma mater.

Anthony Dorsett, a 5-foot-11, 160-pound receiver-defensive back from Richardson, Texas, has decided to play at Pittsburgh.

Dorsett's high school coach, Mike Jenkins, said the player didn't want a lot of publicity about his decision.

"I think you can understand,"

Jenkins said. "There will be a lot of pressure on him because of his name."

Tony Dorsett won the Heisman Trophy in 1976 and went on to become the second-leading rusher in NFL history. He played for the Dallas Cowboys from 1977-87 and the Denver Broncos in 1988-89.

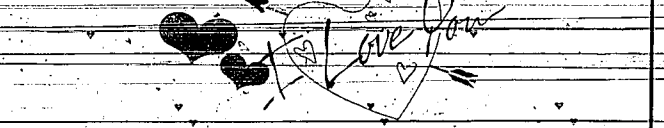

Wednesday is the first day high school players can sign national letters of intent, but most of the top players have already picked a school.

SuperPrep magazine's top-rated quarterback, Donnie Davis of Burlington, N.C., is going to Georgia Tech.

The magazine's No. 1 running back, Marquette Smith of Winter Park, Fla., has narrowed his choices to Florida or Florida State. The top receiver, Mike Miller of Willoughby, Texas, will attend Notre Dame.

Top-rated defensive lineman, Jason Laymer of Sevier County, Tenn., is going to Tennessee.

Clockwise from top: Red-cooked Mongolian Lamb, Jade and Coral Chilled Noodles, Drums of Heaven, Lucky Day Stir-fry and Perfect Tea Every Time.

takes only minutes to cook.

Jade and Coral Chilled Noodles is a tempting make-ahead side dish. Delightfully seasoned with ginger, garlic, vinegar and Kikkoman Life Soy Sauce, it has a light tangy flavor that is the perfect complement for these richly flavored dishes.

DRUMS OF HEAVEN

1 tablespoon naturally brewed soy sauce
1 tablespoon dry sherry

18 chicken wing drumettes
1/3 bottled teriyaki baste and glaze
1 large clove garlic, pressed
2 teaspoons toasted sesame seed (optional)

Combine soy sauce and sherry in large bowl; add drumettes and stir to coat all pieces well. Arrange drumettes, side by side, on large rack in shallow foil-lined baking pan. Bake in 425 degree oven 30 minutes. Meanwhile, mix teriyaki baste and glaze and garlic; brush tops of drumettes with half sauce. Turn pieces over and brush with remaining sauce. Bake 15 minutes longer, or until chicken is cooked. Sprinkle with sesame seed. Makes 6 appetizer servings.

For good health follow Fit-or-Fat? alternative

How many of you have given up on that New Year's resolution to diet and exercise more?

If you are on some crazy fat diet (need I define one?) you SHOULD give that up. I have found an alternative. Try the Covert Bailey Fit-or-Fat? System.

For the thousand or so who heard Bailey at the College of Southern Idaho, you already know the plan:

Jane Slickers Nutrition

1. Aerobic (Aerobic as he says) to exercise
2. Eat:
 - Low fat
 - Low sugar
 - High fiber

Simple. But not really. How easy is it to give up butter, cheese, whole milk and prime rib? When you realize the trade-off is good health, it becomes easier. When you realize this formula is ESSENTIAL for good health, it becomes even easier to follow.

Bailey is very blunt. Lots of four letter words (like butt, crap, bull and guts) pepper his speech. He snorts, chuckles, gestures, grunts and roams around the stage. Sometimes, he is even a bit of a smarty-pants.

During a question-and-answer period he pointed to someone in the crowd and said, "You look weird, what's your question?" The point is, (another Bailey-ism) after two and a half hours of lecturing on diet and exercise, Bailey leaves the crowd laughing, alert and motivated to follow his system for life.

Off stage, Bailey is considerably less flamboyant. I chatted with him in my dining room. He started with a five-day diet. Beginning with an early-flight from Portland, he gave two, two and a half hour lectures and a live TV interview.

With barely a half hour until his next performance, he requested a simple dinner. Wendy's chili. I sneaked a look in my Fast Food Guide to find out Wendy's chili contained a modest 28 percent of calories from fat, 25 percent of the recommended daily allowance of iron and 20 percent of the RDA for vitamin A.

Hypertensives beware however, this chili could take your daily word of sodium to 1,020 milligrams (1,100 - 3,300 are recommended for healthy adults).

His only question was "Why do you have such a big car?" My mind responded with "Why do you have such a big ego?" but my mouth said, "To get around in during hunting and trapping seasons." My response was why he has such a big ego. "Because he is a genius at what he does. He has entertainingly simplified all the complex diet and exercise advice in the universe and made it comprehensible to everyone. That is genius."

His ideas are not without some controversy. At each of the three lectures, questions surrounded his comment that walking is only an "OK aerobic exercise." He said the benefits of walking are limited because the human body is too efficient at it. He said it takes approximately 35 minutes of walking instead of 42-45 minutes of swimming or jogging (or several other exercises) to achieve an aerobic effect.

As strictly exercise, the benefits of walking may be limited, but it is a great stress reliever, cheap, can be done anywhere, anytime, and is almost-injury free, short-of-dog-bites-and-swearing cats.

Similarly, his not-usually-necessary stance on vitamins riled some listeners. He maintains in "The Fit-or-Fat? Target Diet III" that "if your diet is low in vitamins and minerals because it is unbalanced or low in calories (less than 1,200 for women or 1,700 for men per day) or consists of empty-calorie selections, you will want to consider supplements."

In his lecture he uses the "which belt" analogy to illustrate. If a man stood naked in front of you and asked which belt he should wear, you would naturally laugh and say "get your clothes on and then we will talk about the belt." Talking about vitamin deficiencies is naturally ridiculous when so many people are dying of too much fat in their diets, he says. Please see SLICKERS/C7

Sweep out the old, bang the drums loudly and bring in the year of the ram on Feb. 15 with gusto.

One of the 12 animals in the Chinese zodiac, the Ram symbolizes creativity and elegance. Charming "Ram" people (born in 1931, 1943, 1955, 1967 and 1979) are also sensitive and if they corral their energy into a single field, gain financial success. Famous "Rams" include Michelangelo, Rudolph, Valentino, Mark Twain and Orville Wright.

The most important Chinese festival, Chinese New Year is a time to share special foods and warm wishes with family and friends. Colorful red and gold envelopes filled with "happy money" are distributed as tokens of good fortune for the coming year. Capture this joyous spirit and celebrate with the tantalizing menu featured here.

Created to reflect the harmony and balance in flavor, color and texture that is the very essence of Chinese cuisine, this menu was designed for the busy cook who enjoys good food and entertaining without extra fuss.

No Chinese dinner would be complete without a steaming cup of that age-old favorite - tea. Start with a quality tea and follow the tried and true directions for perfect brewing to obtain the very best result. Served plain as the Chinese do, or with a thin slice of ginger or a twist of lemon peel, fresh brewed tea is a treasure to savor.

Enter into the spirit of this sumptuous meal with Drums of Heaven. These succulent bites of chicken are tossed with Kikkoman Soy Sauce and sherry. Then, while baking, they are basted with Kikkoman Teriyaki Baste & Glaze and garlic for a tangy-sweet flavor. A sprinkling of toasted sesame seeds adds a tasty crunch.

Red-cooked Mongolian Lamb is a hearty Chinese stew that's easy to make. First seared in the natural juices, the lamb simmers in a robust broth seasoned with Kikkoman Soy Sauce and zesty spices. As the stew slowly cooks, the lamb becomes super-tender and develops its characteristic reddish-brown color.

USDA proposes nutrition labels for meat, poultry

By Daniel P. Purp, Los Angeles Times

Mandatory nutrition labeling may soon appear on raw meat and poultry packages, according to a recent announcement by federal regulatory officials.

The Department of Agriculture, which has jurisdiction over beef, chicken and pork commodities, will outline a proposal later this year requiring processors to disclose important dietary ingredients such as salt, cholesterol and saturated fat on raw and frozen meat.

Government observers say that the delay in the department's action, which comes long after sweeping labeling revisions for all other foods, was partly because of its reluctance to mandate such labeling in the face of industry opposition.

"However, nutrition information on meat products became inevitable after Congress ordered label revisions for all other foods (processed items, produce and seafoods). The changes are meant to better reflect contemporary health concerns. The rules were last updated 18 years ago.

"We believe consumers deserve more nutrition information on the labels of all foods," said Jo Ann R. Smith, assistant secretary of agriculture. "We are committed to determining the best way to implement mandatory nutrition labeling of meat and poultry."

Industry reaction to the announcement was muted and there was particular concern about mandatory nutrition labeling for raw meats.

"(Nutrition labeling) would be very difficult on raw products," said Rosemary Mack, executive director of the Western States Meat Association in Oakland, Calif. "I don't think it is time for mandatory labeling. The USDA should encourage new labels, but not require them."

Even so, the Department of Agriculture has been under fire from consumer groups for dragging its heels on nutrition labeling. "Meat and poultry have never been subject to mandatory nutrition labeling," said

Ellen Haas, executive director for Public Voice for Food and Health Policy in Washington. "(Consumers) need the full picture on nutrition in order to make responsible and accurate decisions concerning their diets."

Haas is also critical of the government's failure to define such widely used terms as "lean" and "low fat." A senior Department of Agriculture official acknowledged that there could be confusion about such phrases under the current system. "We need to re-evaluate current policies to ensure these descriptors are as uniform and informative as possible," said Margaret Glavin, a deputy administrator at the Department of Agriculture's Food Safety and Inspection Service.

The Department of Agriculture faces several difficulties in formulating labeling regulations for meat. These include:

- Should labeling on raw products reflect the nutritional content of the food as purchased or after it is cooked?
- How are odd-size meat cuts to be labeled?

Should supermarkets be forced to label those meat products packaged at the store level - such as luncheon meats or take-out foods?

Should the labels for meats and all other foods be uniform? Mucklow said that generic nutritional information could be provided with free booklets at meat counters rather than on individual packages. That is the program currently being offered by the National Live Stock and Meat Board, which has produced pamphlets called "Meat Nutri-Facts" since 1985.

"There are unique qualities about various cuts, the particular genetics of an animal and the size randomness of the actual cut that would prevent you from saying exactly what the nutritional content is," said Eric Hentges, the Meat Board's director of nutrition research. "There would be problems... There is just no way that anyone can guarantee what the product is under these variables."

Adamson's experiments pay off with rewarding recipe

By Joan Bean, Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS - Leona Adamson's creativity helped her come up with a recipe selected for publication in Woman's Day magazine.

Adamson's recipe for stuffed shells was featured in the "How America Mis-crowns" department in the Jan. 15 issue. Her delectable pasta was shown to advantage on a blue and white checkered plate.

"It really tickled me, because blue and white dishes are my favorites," she says. "I collect them."

Adamson says this pasta dish was the result of choosing what she liked best from a number of recipes and experimenting until achieving the results she desired. She laughs as she admits that along the way there were some failures. "Lots of them," she says.

Her efforts were rewarded when she received a preview copy of the magazine with the recipe in it, plus a check for $50. In fact, she says this might try again. "I'm looking at other contests because it's kind of a challenge."

Here is the pasta dish that has probably spread tables across the country in the last few weeks. Adamson calls it...

STUFFED SHELLS

Serves 4
20 jumbo pasta shells
1 egg

ANDY ARIZONA/The Times-News

Woman's Day magazine her "stuffed shells" recipe that was featured in Leona's Adamson framed her.

- 2 cups 2 percent fat small curd cottage cheese
 - 2 cup turkey ham (about 3 1/2 ounces), chopped finely
 - 1/2 teaspoon dried parsley
 - 1/2 teaspoon dried oregano, crumbled
 - 4 teaspoon pepper
 - 2 cups melted spaghetti sauce
 - 1/2 cup shredded mozzarella cheese
- Cook shells according to package directions. Drain. Meanwhile, beat eggs in medium-sized bowl. Stir in cottage cheese, 1/2 cup of the parmesan cheese, the turkey ham, parsley, oregano and pepper in a 11x7x1 1/2 inch microwave-safe baking dish, spread 1/2 cup of the spaghetti sauce over the bottom.

Spoon about 2 tablespoons of the cottage cheese mixture into each shell. Arrange them in a single layer in dish. Top with remaining sauce and parmesan cheese. Cover with vented plastic wrap. Cook 10-12 minutes on high, rotating the dish 1/4 turn 3 times. It should be nice and bubbly. Remove the wrap. Sprinkle with the mozzarella cheese that isn't uncovered about 2 minutes, until cheese is melted.

Serve with broccoli and French bread. For many years she had to prepare meals at odd hours to adjust to the ever changing work schedule of her now retired husband. Phil. "I found recipes I could make ahead of time and put in the refrigerator, to microwave when he came home," she says. "So, at night I wasn't late cleaning up."

The following recipe is one she says can be prepared in the morning or the day before. This saves time at night, and also allows the flavors to mingle a little before cooking.

SAVORY STUFFED CHICKEN BREASTS

- Serves 8
- 1 medium-size onion, finely chopped
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 (10 ounce) package frozen chopped spinach, thawed and squeezed dry
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1/2 cups small curd cottage cheese
- 1/2 cup Swiss cheese, grated
- 1 teaspoon dried thyme leaves
- 1 teaspoon dried summer savory
- 1 tablespoon dried basil leaves

Old credit cards can have surprising value

By Anita Gold
Chicago Tribune

Long before credit cards became popular, folks who purchased goods or groceries in general stores or ma-and-pa-type establishments usually would give the proprietor mark down in his ledger a list of whatever items they bought and the amount owed for such purchases to be paid by the week or month, and thus created what is called credit.

Back then if folks couldn't pay their debts in a fair amount of time, firms such as the Curt Collecting Co., which operated in the 1880s in Chicago, were hired by the lenders to collect the owed debts. It was a very embarrassing situation when the debt collector would drive up in front of a home or business in his horse-drawn cart marked "Debt Collector" in large, bold letters for everyone to see. In those days the neighbors would then look upon those in debt with disdain.

Today, the Curt Collecting Co. would be obsolete, because the credit card has become a way of life.

If you have any old credit cards lying around that you forgot to throw out or cut up, consider yourself lucky if such cards are among those wanted by collectors.

Small metal charge plates were commonly used in the 1930s and '40s and were marked with a customer's name and address. When used to make a purchase, such a metal plate was placed in a machine with an inked ribbon between the plate and sales slip that transferred the plate's impression onto the sales slip (or multiple carbon paper slips) when a handle was pulled down.

The earliest paper or cardboard credit cards are reported to have been issued in the 1920s (or perhaps somewhat before) by airline and gasoline companies. Some examples of early charge plates and credit cards are considered to be rare, and a 1936 Air Travel Club charge card commanded a $400 price because it was used during the Depression when few such cards were issued.

If you want to check out credit cards for their rarity and value, or should you care to become a credit card collector and consult with other collectors, you credit card collector and historian Greg Tunks in care of the Credit Card Collector, 150 Hohlhale, Houston, Texas 77022, enclosing $19.50 for an annual club membership and monthly "Credit Card Collector" newsletter.

According to Tunks, a 1968 American Express card in good condition was purchased at a garage sale for 75 cents, and few months later, the same type of paper card in the same condition sold for $200. It was in the best condition would command more. Reported values for credit cards include $30 for a 1972 American Express, $12 for a 1975 Mobil tan card and $8 for a 1977 Shell card.

Credit cards, along with credit tokens, coins and metal charge plates, are sought to collect. To check out the value of any examples or to sell them, write Tunks, enclosing a photocopy of the back and front of such pieces and an addressed, stamped envelope for a reply.

Incidentally, if you're among the many who wish to break the credit card habit, you can send $10 to receive an "anti-charge" kit from the National Center for Financial Education, P.O. Box 3070, San Diego, CA 92163. The postpaid kit includes anti-charge stickers, a T-shirt and pamphlets to help you kick the credit habit. Send a check made payable to the center; credit cards of course, are not acceptable. Will such kits (once sold out) be of interest to credit card collectors? You can bet they will. The center is a nonprofit consumer education group.

Everything associated with credit can be of interest to collectors, including the interesting old store ledgers with written accounts of what folks purchased all those years ago on credit. Most ledgers are marked or stamped with the storekeeper's name and town, and many of the towns were small, one- or two-bergs-where-friends-stay-around-pobellied-stoves-in-country-stores-swapping-tall-tales-and-short-swigs-from-the-wine-jug-passed-around-on-cold-winter-days.

Piercing children's ears is child abuse

DEAR ABBY: You hear and read so much about preventing child abuse, yet one of the most common and blatant forms of child abuse goes on daily without comment.

Dear Abby
Abigail VanBuren

I refer to the practice of piercing the ears of infants and small children who have no say in the matter, which is a terrible thing to do to a child. I have walked past shops in malls where this is being done, and heard little girls screaming. Forcing children to have a hole punched through a tender part of their bodies is cruel and barbaric.

I've seen children not yet 3 or 4 with several earrings in each ear, with a hole for each earring. There is no doubt in my mind that a small child experiences a trauma from this abuse at the hands of the one who is supposed to love and protect them. Americans laugh at the customs of Africans with bones in their noses, but parents who inflict a similar (though lesser) disfigurement on their own children are no better. Please comment.

— JAMES R. NEWBY, VAN BUREN, IND.

DEAR MR. NEWBY: I agree, I, too, am opposed to putting a hole in a child's ear. And yes, I am aware that in some cultures it is a tradition. But, in my view, children should not be subjected to this until they are old enough to make that decision for themselves. (And please, dear readers, don't anybody bring up circumcision.)

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend surprised me with a diamond engagement ring for Christmas. It wasn't cheap by any means, but I hated it. Now the problem I want to know is: if I change it for the kind I wanted, a solitaire.

I've been married before and I hated my first engagement ring, so I got a solitaire. I love my boyfriend with all my heart, and I wouldn't hurt his feelings for the world, but I'm afraid I did. I could see the disappointment in his eyes when I told him I had exchanged my ring for a solitaire. He admitted he felt hurt, but he never brought the subject up again. Was I wrong to have exchanged the ring? I've been put down by family members. What do you think?

— PUT DOWN IN CANADA
DEAR PUT DOWN: To have exchanged your engagement ring without first discussing it with your fiancé showed bad manners, poor judgment and a blatant disregard for his feelings.

I was lucky. I remarried a wonderful man soon after my divorce. I am not bitter, but I will never forgive the shabby treatment I received following my divorce.

— LONG ISLAND

'Chef's Hot-Line' helps solve culinary troubles

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — If you knew you could call a professional chef for help when the kitchen falls flat or if you couldn't tell a dice from a mince, you might be more adventurous in the kitchen.

Such professional backup apparently has put one young man in good stead in the romance department. He regularly calls a hot-line set up by Jim Coleman, executive chef of the Sheraton Grand Torrey Pines hotel.

Once a week, we hear from a young single guy who apparently has an 'in' with the girls and he apparently has a different one each week," Coleman said. "We're kind of his dinner planner, coming up with his dinner menu for his dates. We help him do yeast dishes, seafood pasta, a Caesar salad; things that he can do and show off a little bit."

In fact, most callers to Coleman's hot line are male. When you call 619-450-4527, you hear "Chef's Hot Line," and one of the hotel's 10 chefs is on hand for simple advice or professional expertise. The advice is free; the amateur cook pays for the calls.

Coleman ever helped a New York City caterer prepare a party for 40. "I thought maybe I should have gotten a cut of that deal," he joked. "And then there was the woman who wanted a hot dinner done well. She wanted to fix something correctly, but something that the guests wouldn't like. They were her husband's friends and she didn't want to offend them," Coleman said. "We kicked her. Not too many people think it's appetizing. She thought it was a good idea and we gave her a recipe."

Coleman brought his hot line idea to this seaside resort north of San Diego when he relocated from Dallas. He installed a telephone line in the restaurant kitchen last year and encouraged customers to call in an effort to give the place a family feel. But now that the hot line is becoming known, the calls come from all over. "10 to 15 a day. Most of the calls are from out of state, so it doesn't necessarily bring people into the dining room, but it's a service and the different chefs rotate the calls depending on their specialty," hotel spokeswoman Mary Bishop said.

I know he has changed Twin Falls already. A hospital employee nudged up to me the day after seeing Bailey's performance and gushed. "Jane, I just want you to know I've been thinking I have been bringing my work-out clothes to work all week and today I put them on!"

For those of you who missed the inspiring lectures he gave, The Fit-or-Fat? System is published in his four books, beginning with Fit-or-Fat? followed by The Fit-or-Fat? Target Diet, Fit-or-Fat? Target Recipes and most recently the Fit-or-Fat? Woman. All are available at Jud's

1/2 cup chopped fresh parsley or 1/2 cup dried parsley
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 boneless chicken breasts, halved. Leave the skin on.
Salt and pepper, to taste
1/2 teaspoon melted butter
1/2 teaspoon Kitchen Bouquet

In a microwave-safe bowl, melt butter and cook onions until soft, about 2 minutes. In the same bowl, combine all ingredients except for the chicken, melted butter and Kitchen Bouquet. Mix well. Loosen skin of chicken and tuck one side of the filling underneath the skin. Be careful not to tear it. Pull skin over and make it into a little mound.

Put chicken into a 7-by-11 inch microwave safe baking dish. Brush chicken well with the melted butter and Kitchen Bouquet. Cover loosely with waxed paper. Microwave at 50 percent power for about 10 minutes. Bake the chicken uncovered in the baking dish and rotate it every 2 minutes. Microwave for 5 minutes on full power. Bake for 5 minutes in the microwave about 5 minutes before serving. The microwave will be still warm, so this helps finish cooking the chicken without drying the skin out too much.

"They're very rich," she says. "With maybe noodles-Romanoff or parmesan noodles, a large salad and crusty French bread, it's a good meal."

For dessert, she serves orange sherbert. If it is a dinner for company, she might put a mint leaf on the side. And here is another delicious microwave dish.

CREAMY TUNA AND NOODLE CASSEROLE

Serves 4
2 cups egg noodles
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1/2 cup evaporated milk
1/2 cup sour cream
1 tablespoon dry onion flakes
1 (6 1/2-ounce) can French style string beans, drained
Paprika
Cook noodles according to package directions. In a 2-quart casserole, white-riced egg-cooking-whisk together mushroom soup, evaporated milk, sour cream and dried onion flakes. Fold in tuna, string beans and cooked egg noodles. Cover with vented plastic wrap and microwave for 5 minutes at full power. Remove plastic wrap carefully, because the steam can burn. Stir it again. Cover with the plastic wrap until it has cooled a little. Steamy. Before serving, sprinkle paprika over top and add a little piece of fresh parsley for garnish. If desired.

Serve with a green salad and French bread, and top off with pie and ice cream.

"It's better than the tuna and noodle helper type of thing," she says. "It's real creamy and we like it with the string beans, especially the French-style cut, because it gives it a different look."

Put chicken into a 7-by-11 inch microwave safe baking dish. Brush chicken breasts well with the melted butter and Kitchen Bouquet. Cover loosely with waxed paper. Microwave at 50 percent power for about 10 minutes. Bake the chicken breasts with the skin on in the baking dish and rotate it 90 degrees. Microwave 7 minutes on full power. Bake: Let stand in the microwave about 5 minutes before serving. The microwave will be still warm, so this helps finish cooking the chicken without trying the skin out too much.

"They're very rich," she says. With maybe noodles Romanoff or parmesan-noodles, a large salad and crusty French bread, it's a good meal.

For dessert, she serves orange sherbert. Let it sit in a dinner for company, she might put a mint leaf on the side.

And here is another delicious microwave dish:

CREAMY TUNA AND NOODLE CASSEOLE

Serves 4
3 cups egg noodles
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1/2 cup evaporated milk
1/2 cup sour cream
1 tablespoon dry onion flakes
1 (6 1/2 ounce) can tuna
1 (1/2 ounce) can French-style string beans, drained
Paprika

Cook noodles according to package directions. In a 2-quart casserole, white noodles are cooked. Mix together mushroom soup, evaporated milk, sour cream and dried onion flakes. Fold in tuna, string beans and cooked egg noodles. Cover with vented plastic wrap and microwave for 5 minutes at full power. Remove plastic wrap carefully, because the steam can burn. Stir it again. Cover with the plastic wrap and microwave 5 more minutes or until it is very hot and steamy. Before serving, sprinkle paprika over top and add a little piece of fresh parsley for garnish, if desired.

Serve with a green salad and French bread, and top off with pie and ice cream.

"It's better than the tuna and noodle helper type of thing," she says. "It's real creamy and we like it with the string beans, especially the French-style cut, because it gives it a different look."

Ram

- 4 tablespoons cornstarch, divided
- 2 large cloves garlic, minced
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1 can (1 1/2 oz.) chicken broth
- 1/2 cup naturally brewed soy sauce
- 1/4 cup dry sherry
- 1 tablespoon brown sugar
- 1 tablespoon slivered fresh ginger root
- 1 small, whole, dried red chile
- 3 medium carrots, root cut into 1-inch pieces

1 bunch green onions and tops, cut into 1/2-inch lengths, separating whites from tops

Hot cooked rice

Cut lamb into 1/2-inch cubes; coat with 2 tablespoons cornstarch. Brown lamb and garlic in hot oil in Dutch oven or large skillet over medium heat. Pour chicken broth over lamb. Stir in soy sauce, sherry, brown sugar, ginger and chile. Cover; bring to boil. Reduce heat and simmer 1 hour and 20 minutes; stir occasionally. Add carrots and white parts of green onions. Cover and simmer 40 minutes. Meanwhile, blend remaining 2 tablespoons cornstarch and 1/2 cup water; stir into pan with green onion tops. Cook and stir until mixture boils and thickens, about 1 minute. Serve over rice. Makes 6 servings.

PERFECT TEA EVERY TIME

1. Bring freshly drawn cold water to a full rolling boil.
2. Rinse your teapot with hot water to warm it.
3. Immediately add 1 teabag or 1 teaspoon loose tea per cup; then pour the boiling water over the tea (5-6 ounces per serving).
4. Cover and let stand 3 to 5 minutes. For the best results, brew by the clock and not by the color. Some teas brew light and some brew dark.
5. Remove teabags or strain loose tea before serving. Serve it plain the traditional Chinese way — or add a thin slice of ginger or a twist of lemon peel.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFE

"Man can mull his life as badly as his lines and ladder. In it or out of it he's ham." - Archibald MacLeish. West earned an "Oscar" for his defense against today's slam. Until a player has learned to breathe duck an ace against a slam, he'll get no nominations from the "Department of Defense." South's heart jack won and South unblocked the spades, leading his 10 to dummy's ace. He played a low spade back to his own and won the third round in dummy, covering West's card. Declarer then led a low club to his king. West following innocently with his five. What would have happened had West taken his lead? The only hope left for a diamond trick would have rested on a diamond finesse, and when that worked South would have scored 11 tricks.
