

Tax limit repeal up for Senate vote

The Associated Press

BOISE — Legislation repealing the last vestige of Idaho's 1978 property tax revolt has been cleared by a Senate committee for final legislative action.

On a 7-4 vote late Friday, the Local Government and Taxation Committee rejected attempts to kill the House-passed bill, and then all members but Republican Stan Hawkins of Ucon approved sending the measure to floor for consideration of amendments.

"This is a bill that shows a lot of responsibility," said Chairman Jerry Thome of Nampa, the lone Republican to join the six Democrats in saving the bill from committee rejection.

"It makes our local officials responsible to the people, and it makes the people responsible for getting involved in the process," Thome said.

Labeled "Truth in Taxation," the legislation repeals the longstanding, though gradually eroded, 5 percent cap on increases in local property tax collections and replaces it with a requirement that any time a local taxing district wants to increase its property tax receipts, it must take a quarter-page advertisement in the local newspaper announcing its plans and what the impact will be on homes, farms and businesses.

Supporters said similar laws in other states have dramatically reduced the annual increases in property tax collections. They want to modify the measure to ensure it would not require a taxing district to advertise if its property tax collections rise because of growth and not because the levy is increased.

In the Senate State Affairs Committee, meanwhile, a $5.3 million exemption from the state sales tax was endorsed and forwarded to the full Senate for a final vote.

That House-passed bill was prompted by a December state Supreme Court decision dramatically expanding the eligibility for exemption from the 5 percent state sales tax for rental equipment and transportation involved in installing equipment needed to produce a product for final consumption.

While the legislation allows a major reduction in sales tax collections, failure to adopt it would have increased the loss to the state treasury to $13 million a year.

The bill removing the cap on property taxation has never come so near final approval as it has this year. It was spawned by years of increasing frustration over

Key Bank customer Sharon Dunken discovers the downtown Twin Falls bank is closed following the Friday robbery.

Police on lookout for suspect after downtown Twin Falls bank holdup

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Police across the state were looking for the balding, middle-aged man who robbed the Twin Falls Key Bank office at the corner of Main Avenue and Shoshone Street Friday afternoon.

At about 1 p.m., a man wearing a dark blue jacket and pants walked into the bank and demanded money from two tellers, said Capt. Gary Corder of the Twin Falls police detective division.

The tellers gave the man an undisclosed amount of money, and he quietly left the bank, Corder said. No gun was displayed during the robbery and the robber did not threaten to use a gun, he said.

Police had no description of a possible get-away vehicle Friday afternoon, Corder said. People working in nearby businesses said they had no idea anything out of the ordinary had happened until police began questioning them.

Corder and Federal Bureau of Investigation agent Jim Hillwert said they aren't releasing many details.

Bill's death cuts red ink for budget

The Associated Press

BOISE — Friday's demise of a $6.1 million transfer of indigent medical care costs from counties to the state dramatically reduced the red ink in the Legislature's evolving 1992 general tax spending blueprint.

And the prospect that some additional cash might be available for other programs was quickly grasped by members of the state Senate. That was despite warnings the budget for the spending year that begins July 1 remains millions of dollars out of balance.

"We need to know where the bottom line is," said Lee Staker of Idaho Falls, a Republican member of the Senate Finance Committee.

But the full Senate delayed until next week action on the House-passed $484.5 million public school aid package while a plan to supplement it with as much as $5 million more in state aid is fashioned.

In what has become an annual ritual to see who can outspend who on education, the current legislative aid plan is just $205,000 more than Andrus recommended.

Highway bond vote receives OK in House

The Associated Press

BOISE — Idaho voters may be asked if they want to increase the state motor fuel tax to pay for new highway construction.

The House voted 55-27 Friday for a vote referendum on the issue in a general election to authorize one and one-quarter cents per gallon to the state fuel tax to pay for $75 million in highway projects.

Opponents cautioned that they didn't like putting the state into debt. But sponsors contended that with current revenue from fuel taxes, the state is falling far behind in maintaining and rebuilding its transportation system.

"We have to start something today to give us the roads and bridges we need tomorrow," Rep. Wally Wright, D-Bayview, said. "This is a method by which we can fix our roads and bridges."

A highway study last year indicated Idaho has a $7.3 billion backlog in highway and bridge needs. Since then, lawmakers have been considering ways to pump more money into road work, although so far nothing has been approved.

The House earlier approved increasing the state's 18-cent-per-gallon motor fuel tax by 3 cents per gallon effective April 1.

U.S. downs another Iraqi jet; U.N. eases food ban

Knight-Ridder News Service

U.S. forces shot down a second Iraqi warplane for violating cease-fire terms Friday as the U.N. Security Council moved to lift restrictions on food imports to ease severe hunger and disease reportedly afflicting Iraq.

The U.S. Central Command in Saudi Arabia said an Air Force F-15C jet fighter downed an Iraqi Su-22 with a Sidewinder heat-seeking missile near Kirkuk in northern Iraq, the site of fierce fighting between government forces loyal to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and Kurdish rebels.

The air encounter, which occurred about 400 miles north of the positions held by U.S.-led allied forces in Iraq, was the second such incident in three days,

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush Friday proclaimed April 5 to April 7 as National Days of Thanksgiving as American troops triumphantly return home from the Persian Gulf War.

"I urge Americans to unite in prayer and turn to our greatest power," the president said. "We give thanks for the remarkable unity of our people throughout the conflict and especially for the strong support shown for our troops in the field."

"I am confident that our nation will emerge stronger and more united to face the challenges and opportunities that lie ahead," he said.

Bush said prayers had inspired U.S. forces during the conflict.

Wednesday, a U.S. F-15C shot down an Su-22 near Saddam's hometown, Tikrit, about 110 miles north of Baghdad.

The U.S. military had banned flights by Iraqi warplanes as one of the terms of a temporary cease-fire allied forces set after their victory in the Persian Gulf War on Feb. 28, and President Bush has warned that the allies would down any planes that violated the rule.

The Pentagon has refrained from shooting down helicopter gunships Iraqi forces have used to cross a three-week-old insurgency by rebellions Kurds in northern Iraq and anti-government Shiite Muslims in the south.

Although Bush has warned Saddam not to use the helicopters against the rebels, U.S. officials said the gunships were not being downed because the cease-fire terms allow Iraq to transport government officials in them and because they did not pose as much of a threat to allied forces as jet fighters.

At the United Nations, the Security Council's secretary-general has approved that the council immediately lift a ban on food imports to Iraq to help mitigate the Iraqi population's suffering as a result of the war.

Spring thunderstorms tossed hail and span tornadoes Friday across parts of the South and the Midwest.

Snow whitened sections of the north-central United States, but weather was mostly dry west of the Rocky Mountains.

A low pressure system stirred up thunderstorms that stretched from northeastern Texas to western Kansas. Storms also clustered over sections of the Mississippi and lower Ohio valleys.

At least six tornadoes were reported over Arkansas Friday morning. One, in Concord, damaged about 25 houses and destroyed several mobile homes. No serious injuries were reported.

Hail as big as 1 inch in diameter pelted northeastern Dallas County, Texas, and areas north of Hopkinsville, Ky. Lexington, Ky., was drenched with more than 1.67 inch of rain during the six-hour period ending at 7 a.m. EST.

That same weather system threatened winter-like weather in the north-central states.

Smart faces life term in prison

EXETER, N.H. (AP) — A high school instructor was convicted Friday of manslaughter in a life-in-prison without parole following a sensational trial on charges that she manipulated her student-lover into murdering her husband.

Pamela Smart, 23, stood mute before the Superior Court jury foreman pronounced her guilty of murder-conspiracy and being an accomplice to murder.

Judith Smart, who cried out as each verdict in her son's death was read, said afterward, "She got what she deserved."

Judith and William Smart left the court for the cemetery where their son is buried.

"We're going to tell Gregg," William Smart said. "We're going to tell him that, by God, she did do it."

Gregg Smart, a 24-year-old insurance agent, was murdered six days before his first wedding anniversary.

Smart

Pamela Smart's parents, John and Linda Wojas, were stone-faced as they left the courthouse.

"You know how I feel about that," Smart Wojas said when asked if her daughter had gotten a fair trial. Mrs. Wojas wore a yellow ribbon every day, symbolizing her belief that her daughter was a hostage of the judicial system.

"I feel terribly bad for the Wojas family," Judith Smart said. "I can imagine how I would feel and I feel very, very bad for them."

The jury, which heard three weeks of testimony, deliberated 72 hours over Smart days before returning its verdict. Three also was convicted of witness-tampering for encouraging her student-inmate to lie to police.

Rockingham County Superior Court Judge Douglas Gray immediately announced the mandatory life sentence for the accomplice-to-charge. An appeal is expected.

Smart was school district coordinator when she met teenage William Flynn, one of her instructors in a self-awareness program at Winnacunnet High School in Hampton in late 1989.

She worked in the program, intended to discourage drug and alcohol use, and worked in non-credit student video projects.

Prosecutors said the former high school cheerleader and college honor student tantalized and seduced Flynn, then 15 and a virgin, then threatened to end their affair unless he murdered her husband. Smart testified that she broke off the affair just before the murder.

Patrol tops create doubts of chase speed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Highway patrol officers pursuing black motorist Rodney King never mentioned he was driving faster than 65 mph in a chase that ended with his beating by club-wielding police, audio tapes released Friday show.

The California Highway Patrol radio conversations cast doubt on initial police reports placing the speed of King's Hyundai in excess of 100 mph.

King, a paroled armed robber who police say was legally drunk at the time of the March 3 attack, was being pursued by CHP officers when city police joined in.

King, 25, was beaten, kicked and shocked with an electric stun gun in an attack videotaped by a man in a nearby apartment. The audio tapes were released shortly after the four indicted officers won a delay in their case. But Superior Court Judge Gary Klausner said he wants the four to enter pleas next week.

Sgt. Stacey Koon and officers Theodore Lawrence Powell and Timothy Wind stood grim-faced during the brief hearing. Rookie officer Wind appeared particularly distraught.

Brazil attempting to revive coffee cartel

The Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — Fears of an OPEC-style java cartel put clouds in your morning coffee, relax.

But be prepared for possible price increases several dozen cups down the road.

Brazil, the world's largest coffee producer, announced Thursday it was suspending coffee exports and was seriously interested in rebuilding an international cartel that would fix raw bean prices.

That makes a turnaround from two years ago when Brazil refused to accept a smaller export quota so other producer countries could ship more beans. The price-support system then in place collapsed and sent raw bean prices plummeting.

A major Northeast supermarket chain said that several U.S. roasters were preparing to raise prices should Brazil follow through.

But several economic analysts who follow the coffee market said Brazil's stance doesn't amount to a hill of beans.

"The announcement does not alter the physical reality," said Arthur Secorson, analyst with Prudential Securities Inc. "There are plentiful supplies of coffee in major consumer markets such as Western Europe and America."

Analysts also expressed doubt that Brazil would agree to other coffee-producing nations' demands that it accept a smaller export quota.

If the suspension holds and Brazil re-establishes an international coffee cartel, resulting price increases in the supermarket probably will be minimal and won't take effect for some time, they said.

For consumers, the price increases could mean up to 10 cents more for a typical 13-ounce ear of coffee, said a coffee buyer at a major grocery chain, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The buyer also said any retail price increases would be less pronounced so-called "super-premium" coffees, which currently cost roughly $5 a can compared with $2-$3 a can for regular coffees.

Tax

ramifications of the limitation.

After officials realized the voter-passed 1978 initiative restricting property taxation to 1 percent of property valuation would not work, the cap was instituted by lawmakers as a way of preserving voters' intentions to rein in property taxes.

But the cap's impact on the state's 1978 levels and then allowed no more than a 5 percent annual increase each year.

But Rep. Michael Simpson, the Blackfoot Republican who sponsored the bill, maintained that cap has turned into a guaranteed annual 5 percent tax increase, since local officials realize they will never be able to recover the allowable revenue increase if they miss it once each year.

In addition, it rewarded free-spending taxing districts that had run their levies up prior to 1978 because they had a larger base on which to calculate the 5 percent hike while penalizing those that had tried to limit property taxes as well as possible.

The cap also left many counties hard-pressed to meet the service demands of economic expansion, forcing lawmakers to gradually erode the impact of the cap by creating new taxing districts to take on responsibilities once handled by counties and allowing counties to ignore the cap when it came to specific issues like indigent health care. As a result, the state now has

Budget

100 individual taxing districts and 40 percent of county budgets are not covered by the cap.

If the cap had really worked, Simpson said statewide property tax collections last year would have totaled $416 million. The actual collections hit $460 million.

He contended that forcing taxing districts to take major advertisements in newspapers each time they want to raise property taxes, rather than publishing a legal notice at the back of the paper in very small type, will let taxpayers know just how big the increase and give them a legitimate opportunity to react.

"We have had city officials, since the 1 Percent Initiative, who have never had to take responsibility for tax increases," Bill Jarocki, executive director of the Association of Idaho Cities, said. "What truth in taxation does is make them take responsibility."

Randy Nelson of the Associated Taxpayers of Idaho said that similar legislation has been on the books in Utah, the increase in annual statewide property tax collections has dropped from 12 percent to 3 percent.

"It's a matter of philosophy," Sen. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, said, "whether we at the state level are going to control the taxation of our local officials or whether we at the state level are going to let our local officials take responsibility."

details of the robbery to avoid sparking phone confessions.

"We've got to hold something back so, if someone calls, we can tell if they really know what happened," Corder said.

A sketchy press release describes the robber as a stocky white man aged 45-50, between 5 feet 10 inches and 6 feet tall, weighing 180-200 pounds. He is balding, with dark brown salt-and-pepper hair, the release says.

Security cameras at the bank filmed the robbery, which took little more than a minute, Hilliverta said. The robber spent about five minutes in the bank, parking around the customer service area before demanding money, he said.

The women who handed over the money were upset about the robbery, Corder said, but he declined to comment further on what was said during the robbery.

"Our branch staff did everything exactly right," Key Bank of Idaho security officer Mike Caldwell said from Boise. "There were no breakdowns in any security."

There are no armed guards inside the bank, but each branch office has a designated security officer instructed in how to handle emergencies, Caldwell said.

"Our main concern is the safety of our customers and our employees," he said.

A silent alarm in the bank was used to notify police, Corder said, although he said he doesn't know exactly how the message was relayed to police. The police department does not monitor business alarms.

Anyone with information about the robbery can contact the Twin Falls police department at 736-2200 or the FBI at 733-5720 or (801) 355-7521.

UM QASR, Iraq (AP) — Iraqi and American troops eyeball each other across the cease-fire demarcation line but the only shooting is between the government forces of Saddam Hussein and resistance fighters.

"The war is over now and we are friends," said a grim-looking Iraqi officer at a military checkpoint in Um Qasr, a town of about 6,000 residents held by Saddam's government but surrounded by U.S. forces.

"They say hello and we say hello. No problem," the officer said.

"No, no," he said when asked if he was angry at the Americans. A cluster of officers around him smiled.

All were sharply dressed in uniforms. Except for one, they were unarmed.

The naval base included docks, loading cranes, warehouses, railroad facilities and military barracks. A ship was docked there.

"We have orders not to say anything," the officer said. "This is Iraqi territory."

"That is the American side," he said, looking down the road less than a mile at the checkpoint guarded by troops of the U.S. 3rd Armored Division. Three Bradley Fighting Vehicles, their guns pointed at Um Qasr, were at the checkpoint.

U.S. forces are occupying about 15 percent of Iraq's territory until a permanent cease-fire is signed. The rebellion in Iraq has complicated its completion.

Iraqi death toll massive

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 100,000 Iraqi soldiers died in the Persian Gulf War, most of them killed during allied air strikes, a senior military official estimates.

The exact war toll on the Iraqi side may never be known, but it stands in stark contrast to the 124 American combat deaths.

Iraq has shown no interest in offering an estimate of its war dead. The U.S. command insists it never took a count and thus cannot provide a credible estimate.

But a senior allied officer in Riyadh estimated that 60,000 to 80,000 Iraqis were killed by the relentless allied air strikes before the ground war started, most of them buried alive when their bunkers collapsed atop them. An additional 15,000 to 25,000 Iraqi troops likely were killed in the four days of combined air and ground attacks, said the officer, who had access to battlefield damage and intelligence reports.

"A ballpark figure of 100,000 is about as good as we can do for now," said the officer, who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

Officially, the U.S. military is not interested in a body count, a practice in Vietnam that drew criticism and doubt about the reliability of the numbers.

"We're unlikely ever to know how many Iraqis were killed," Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said recently. "We have no idea how many were killed and shipped north during the campaign. We have no idea how many were killed and buried in the theater during the campaign."

Lawmaker offers logger compromise

WASHINGTON — Rep. Bruce Vento, D-Minn., offered a compromise Friday in the battle over protecting the Northwest's oldest forests, linking a proposed old-growth reserve's size of Vermont to a $150 million relief package for unemployed loggers.

The Ancient Forest Act of 1991 would ban logging across more than 6.3 million acres of the Northwest's federal forests. But it also would guarantee that nearly the same cutting levels would continue in the region through the next three years.

The Wilderness Society and Sierra Club responded positively to the proposal, while labor leaders and a defender of Northwest industry interests rejected it as one that would cost the region tens of thousands of jobs.

U.S. official: Environmentalists 'nuts'

DENVER — The head of the U.S. Bureau of Mines has told miners, loggers and others who advocate development of federal land that environmentalists are "a bunch of nuts," and he doesn't believe in endangered species.

T.S. Ary, who has headed the agency for the past three years, later qualified his comments on endangered species. In a speech Thursday, he expressed frustration over legal hurdles he says environmental groups have tried to erect to make it tougher to mine.

Mechanical error unlikely crash cause

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. — The Thursday crash of a P-3 Orion in which 27 crew members vanished was probably not caused by mechanical failures, the commander of the Patrol Wings Pacific Fleet said at a news conference Friday.

But because there is no "black box" on the naval aircraft that one typically finds on commercial airliners, it may be months before investigators determine the cause of the crash. More P-3s from Moffett field have been sent to the area to help in the investigation.

A sea and air search is continuing for survivors from the collision of two Moffett Field-based P-3 Orion aircraft in San Diego, but Navy officials hold little hope that any of the 27 sailors will be found alive.

Dairy farmers' hopes dashed after lobbying

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dairy industry representatives predicted Friday that consumer milk prices will rise and the pace of dairy farm failures will quicken because Congress refused to stop a free fall in raw milk prices.

But the Bush administration, which lobbied hard against passage of Sen. Patrick Leahy's plan to prop up raw milk prices, said it would have resulted in higher milk prices and pushed up the costs of federally funded nutrition programs.

Leahy, D-Vt., withdrew his proposal from a $5.2 billion spending package late Thursday night in the face of opposition from the administration, the House and Senate Appropriations Chairman Robert Byrd, D-W.Va.

The Senate voted earlier this week to include emergency dairy relief in legislation that includes foreign aid and money for domestic programs. But the White House threatened to veto the bill because of the provision, which would have temporarily boosted prices processors must pay for fluid milk.

"The Senate recognized that dairy farmers in virtually ever state are suffering and acted to stop the hemorrhaging," Leahy, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said Friday. "This is a sad day for our nation's dairy farmers. The administration and House turned a deaf ear to their plight."

According to Neal R. Bjornson, assistant to the general manager of Associated Milk Producers Inc., a dairy marketing cooperative in San Antonio, dairy farmers have seen incomes fall 30 percent over the past 15 months.

Raw prices have tumbled below the costs of production, causing some dairy farm failures already, Bjornson said. And with no relief in sight, Bjornson predicted there would be more.

"That's going to continue and the rather small excess milk production that has caused the current, very sharp decline, is going to disappear, and when it does, it's going to be replaced by an equally small shortage and then consumer prices are going to be much, much higher," said Bjornson, whose organization represents more than 18,000 dairy farmers nationwide.

Nixon says Baltics should be independent

MOSCOW (AP) — Former President Richard Nixon said Friday Soviet refusal to free the Baltic states is hurting relations with Washington, and the Kremlin should move swiftly to grant independence.

President Mikhail S. Gorbachev should move "expeditiously to respect the wishes of the people of the Baltics, which were overwhelmingly clear when they voted for independence," Nixon said.

Speaking to the Institute of World Economics and International Relations, Nixon said his call for Baltic independence could be interpreted as interference in Soviet internal affairs, "but when internal problems affect foreign policy, then it is everyone's business."

He said Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia did not join the Soviet Union voluntarily, but were illegally incorporated under the Hitler-Stalin pact.

Checking might have saved flight

LONDON (AP) — Pan Am and British authorities failed to provide luggage checks which might have prevented a bomb from being put aboard Pan Am Flight 103, an official inquiry determined Friday.

Sheff-Pricipal John S. Mowat said the bomb was hidden in an unaccompanied piece of luggage that escaped detection both in Frankfurt, Germany, and in London.

The bomb exploded on Dec. 21, 1988, as the Boeing 747 crossed the Scottish border, killing all 259 people aboard and 11 other people in the town of Lockerbie.

The report faulted the exclusive reliance on X-ray screening of baggage transferred from other airlines at Frankfurt and Heathrow. Mowat, the chief judge in the district where the wreckage fell, said a system of confirming that each bag was accompanied by someone on the flight would have been a reasonable precaution and "such a precaution might have avoided the deaths."

"Reliance on X-ray screening alone in relation to interline baggage at Heathrow and Frankfurt was a defect in a system of working which contributed to the deaths," Mowat added. The Department of Transport, whose regulations governing baggage control were faulted, said governments and airlines were actively working to improve the detection of dangers in baggage.

A spokesman for Pan Am in London said the airline would have no comment until it had reviewed the full report. Mowat concluded that all those aboard the aircraft died because of the gross negligence.

He also said there was no evidence that Khaled Nazir Jaafar, a passenger from Dearborn, Mich., who boarded in Frankfurt, had unwittingly carried the bomb aboard in his luggage.

Police arrest juvenile in shooting incident

HAILEY — Police arrested a juvenile suspected of shooting a man Friday afternoon.

The man, whose name was not released, remained in stable condition at Blaine County Medical Center.

The shooting was reported to the Blaine County Sheriff's Office at 2:44 p.m., and police began searching for a male juvenile suspect, dispatcher Gwen Gate said. Police arrested the suspect at about 8 p.m. Gate said. No further details were available at press time.

Driver of bug fares better than truck driver in crash

BURLEY — A tractor-trailer rig got the worst of an accident with a Volkswagen bug Friday morning.

The truck, driven by a 29-year-old American Falls driver, apparently hit the car from behind as both vehicles traveled southeast on Interstate 84 just east of Sweitzer Pass, Idaho State Police Cpl. Sid Edwards said.

The car was pushed off the right side of the road, and the truck jackknifed and rolled over, Edwards said.

The truck driver, whose name was not released, had to be extricated from the cab and flown to Bannock Regional Medical Center in Pocatello, he said.

The driver of the car received only minor injuries, Edwards said.

Odiaga will get new trial date without a Blaine County jury

HAILEY — The April 22 date set for the Mitchell Odiaga murder trial has been scratched by 5th District Judge James May, who also decided to empanel a jury from outside the area to hear the case.

Odiaga, 36, is the Boise man accused of shooting two men in Ketchum last summer.

May heard testimony on several pre-trial motions this week, including requests by defense attorneys for a new trial date and a change in venue.

The judge vacated the April date, although a new trial date has not been set, J.C. Ynchausti, May's law clerk, said Friday.

Although May did not grant the motion to move the trial to a different location, he has agreed to allow a jury to be selected outside Blaine County, Ynchausti said. Once the two sides have agreed on a site for jury selection, the court staff will go to that location to choose 12 jurors, then move back to Blaine County for the trial, he said.

Bill dictating behavior of officials passes Senate

BOISE — A bill making it a misdemeanor for public officials to knowingly conduct public business in private passed the Senate on Friday, 40-1.

Sponsored by Sen. Joyce McRoberts, R-Twin Falls, the legislation toughens enforcement of the existing open meetings law, in addition to being subject to criminal prosecution, knowing violators would be subject to a $300 civil penalty and any person affected by an illegal decision could file a civil lawsuit.

Current language would be expanded so that any action taken or decision made in an improperly closed meeting would be null and void.

War veterans and families to be honored at dinner

JEROME — Persian Gulf veterans and their families will be honored at a dinner to be held at 6:30 tonight at the Jerome High School cafeteria.

The event is sponsored by the Republican Central Council and the police office. Christine Russell is coordinating the celebration. A donation of $2 per person or $5 per family is suggested. Veterans and their families will be guests at no charge. Everyone planning to attend the dinner is asked to notify Russell at 324-4313.

Bill would set new standards for disabled, gifted students

BOISE — A bill that would bring Idaho law into compliance with federal standards in teaching students with disabilities as well as gifted and talented students passed the House on Thursday.

Idaho already provides educational services for students with disabilities, Jones said.

Aside from updating definitions into current educational vernacular, he said, the bill would mandate now-optional services for gifted and talented students.

Critics charged the measure would be burdensome to rural school districts, which would be forced into developing new programs.

Guatemala to lend Twin Falls Mayan artifacts

By Kirk Mitchell
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Area residents soon may see artifacts from one of the oldest archaeological digs in the New World, Herrett Museum Director Jim Woods said.

Woods and Museum Research Associate Gene Titmus next month will visit ruins of the ancient Mayan city of Nakbe near the Mexican border, where they will help an excavation team.

In exchange for their technical assistance on stone tools, the Guatemalan government will lend a collection of Nakbe artifacts to the Herrett Museum on the College of Southern Idaho campus, Woods said.

Woods and Titmus were invited by Richard Hansen of Rupert, director of the archaeological project.

Guatemalan government leaders hope by seeing artifacts at museums around the United States, people will become so interested that they will want to visit Central American ruins in person.

Mayan rain sightseeing — "the Central American nation's greatest tourist draw" — has waned under a tense political climate in which warring guerrillas have terrorized rural villages.

The pair will fly to Guatemala in April and drive to a small town called Carmelita in northern Guatemala. From there, they will take a two-day mule ride to Nakbe, which is located near the Mexican border.

The team of archeologists will stay three to four days at Nakbe assisting with the excavations and examining the stone tools in place before the tools are removed and sent to a lab.

The excavation is important because it is in a region that is almost completely unexplored.

Preliminary work indicates that Nakbe was a powerful city as early as 3,000 years ago, making it one of the oldest cities in the new world.

The pair will also spend a few days at the lab in Guatemala City where they will examine materials excavated during previous seasons.

Woods and Titmus will examine the stone tools recovered from the excavations and prepare a report.

They also will give a week-long seminar to Guatemalan government archeologists during the summer of 1992.

While recent past interest focused on what happened to the Mayan people, modern archaeology has turned its attention to their origin.

This site offers a rare opportunity to shed light on that question. Besides CSU, other colleges participating in the project include the Universidad de San Carlos, Brigham Young University, Texas A&M, University of California Los Angeles, University of Texas at Austin and Harvard University.

2 recycling bills are saved from junk heap

By Anita Dennis
Times-News writer

BOISE — With the legislative clock ticking down to its last minutes, Republican Sen. Russ Newcomb of Twin Falls and five Democrats stood up against their chairman and succeeded in pulling two recycling bills onto the Senate Health and Welfare Committee agenda.

Mark Stubbs of Twin Falls — arrived in the Senate last week.

Furness intended to consider neither.

He told his committee Friday that social bills are his priority, and that the recycling bills are poorly written and unenforceable.

Sally Snodgrass, both of Boise, and Newcomb.

"I have one more subject that I'm putting my neck on the line for," Newcomb said before the bills were called for. "I'm not going to fold."

Voting against a hearing for the bills were Furness and Republican Sens. Denton Darrington of Declo, Stans Hawkins of Ucon and Joyce McRoberts of Twin Falls.

committee meeting in case the time came to present the bill, said. "It took a lot of courage for Russ to do that and I'm glad he did."

He predicted that the bill will pass the Senate committee on Tuesday with the same 6-4 vote that brought it to a hearing Friday.

"But Newcomb said he hasn't decided how he will vote on the bill. He thought it was important that it have a hearing, he said, because it's an issue that needs to be dealt with. All I'm doing is representing my people."

standing against chairman Roy Furness, R-Rigby, Newcomb said. "You're an excellent committee. In no way do I mean to put pressure or disrespect to you as a chairman... but I think these are important bills to Idaho."

One bill provides for the recycling of tires for other lead acid batteries. The battery bill passed the House 53-26 and went to Furness' committee three weeks ago.

The tire recycling bill — which was also called forward to be heard in House committee by its co-sponsor, Republican Rep.

Newcomb — Furness commended voluntary recycling efforts, but said, "We can't provide recycling by statute."

But in calling for the bill, Sen. Mike Blackbird, D-Kellogg, said, "Solid waste is going to be the issue of this next decade."

Blackbird said the state has the opportunity to avert a crisis by acting now or it can "play catch up later."

Joining Blackbird were Democratic Sens. Mary Ellen Lloyd of Pocatello, Mari Calabretta of Osburn, and Cynthia Scanlin and voluntary recycling efforts, but said, "We can't provide recycling by statute."

She said recycling is an important issue, but that chairmen are charged with setting agendas and have also been told to close down the committees as the session draws to a close.

"Somewhere along the line, we have to back the committee chairman," McRoberts said.

Stubbs, who waited and watched the committee meeting in case the time came to present the bill, said. "It took a lot of courage for Russ to do that and I'm glad he did."

He predicted that the bill will pass the Senate committee on Tuesday with the same 6-4 vote that brought it to a hearing Friday.

"But Newcomb said he hasn't decided how he will vote on the bill. He thought it was important that it have a hearing, he said, because it's an issue that needs to be dealt with. All I'm doing is representing my people."

Newcomb also broke ranks with Republicans in a floor vote earlier this month and voted for a bill that would have required state agencies to purchase recycled paper.

When a lone Democrat also crossed party lines and joined the Republicans, there was a 21-2 tie, broken by Lt. Gov. "C.L." Butch Otter, a Republican, who voted no, and the bill failed.

Water bill goes down the drain

By N.S. Nokkenvold
and Anita Dennis
Times-News writers

BOISE — The Senate on Friday withdrew the last remaining piece of legislation dealing with Outstanding Resource Waters.

Dubbed the "generic bill," it would have established "best management practices," water quality monitoring and enforcement provisions for Outstanding Resource Waters — a designation that would prohibit any activity that would lower water quality in the designated stream.

Sen. Mari Calabretta, D-Osburn, amended the bill previously. The amendment would have stripped the state's authority to halt operations that violated the ORW designation.

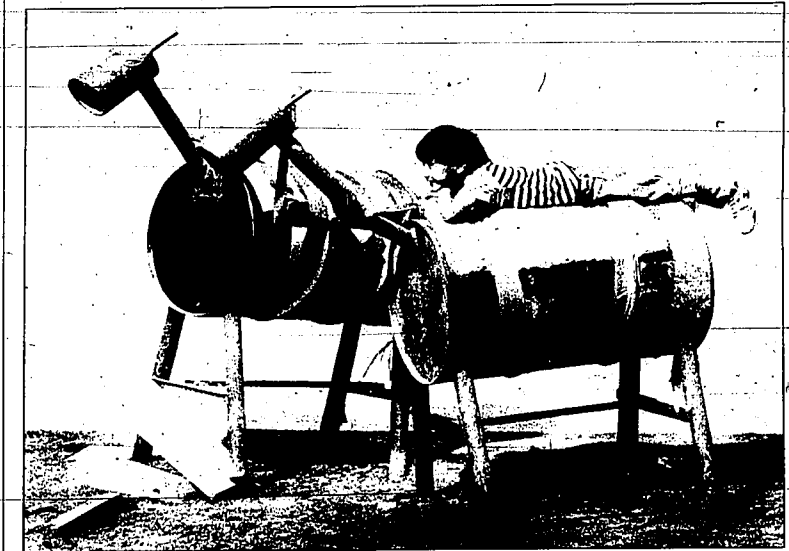

But Friday, she asked that the bill be returned to committee, where it will remain and not be acted upon.

The original bill was unacceptable to some parties, the amendments unacceptable to others, she said. But everyone involved has agreed to work over the summer to draft a better bill, she said.

Three other proposals to designate the Middle Fork of the Salmon River and various tributaries as ORWs failed to get out of the Senate Resources and Environment Committee this session. No bodies of water have earned the designation yet.

Blaine County schools win: District can raise taxes

By Anita Dennis
Times-News writer

BOISE — After the same legislation failed Thursday on a 41-41 tie vote, the Idaho House Friday passed a bill to let Blaine County residents pass indefinite override tax levies for their schools.

"They just want the chance so that they can pay more money for schools," said Rep. Clint Sienmet, D-Ketchum.

County School District relies on supplemental property tax overrides for 25 percent of its budget.

The legislation that passed Friday, sponsored by Rep. Patsie Nafziger, D-Newall, would ease the precarious nature of the county's school funding.

"I just don't know what that area is going to do if an override fails or the formula hurts them more, like it looks like it's going to do," Nafziger said.

If it passes the Senate and is signed by the governor, the bill would allow Blaine County to pass supplemental levies, which would raise property taxes above the 5 percent cap, with a simple majority vote at an election for an indefinite period of time. Each Supplemental levy would be incorporated into the existing base budget.

But districts could only put such a supplemental levy on the ballot if they have passed overrides for seven consecutive years, and if the overrides comprise at least 20 percent of

Bill to set up council passes House
BOISE — Rep. Ron Black's bill to establish a deaf and hard-of-hearing council passed through the House on Thursday with an 81-0 vote and is now headed to the governor's desk.

The state council would coordinate and improve services to the 10 percent of Idaho's population that is deaf or hard of hearing, said Black, a Twin Falls Republican.

One of the services that needs improvement in Idaho is the TTY phone system for the hearing impaired, Black said, pointing out that the Department of Health and Welfare doesn't have the expertise to apply for a job and they can't communicate," he said.

"Addressed in a separate bill, funding for the council, through the Office on Aging, has passed the House and awaits action in the Senate."

Lawmakers disagree over price support bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Idaho Congressman Richard Stallings says legislation raising dairy price supports to farmers is "necessary emergency action."

The Senate on Tuesday approved a bill added to the House-passed Dairy Emergency Supplemental Appropriations measure for Operation Desert Storm. It provides emergency price supports for the nation's dairy farmers, who are being staggered by the lowest prices in recent years for their product.

Stallings, a member of the House Agriculture Committee, urged the original committee working out differences between the House and Senate bills on Thursday to retain the Senate provision.

"This is not a long-term solution, but a temporary program to deal with the loss of an inordinate number of family farmers who have spent their lives getting where they are," the Idaho Democrat said.

Sen. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, opposes the so-called Leahy Amendment. He called it "a short-term cover up of a problem that needs long-term fixing," and said it actually would hurt dairy farmers because it "takes the pressure off the Agriculture Committee."

Stallings said work on a long-term solution to the production problem is under way through implementation of an inventory control program mandated in the 1990 farm bill.

In the meantime, however, "The Idaho dairy producers calling my office aren't at all sure they can hang on until the farm bill provides for a long-range solution," he said.

C.A. Grubb. They challenged the use of a "buy in" system for determining connection fees. The city uses an engineering firm to determine the value of the municipal system, and each year changes the connection fee to reflect the load the new customer will place on the system.

The Supreme Court refused to get into a discussion about whether the system used to determine the charge is proper.

"The methodology used to determine the value of the system is not unreasonable, nor is it unreasonable to charge a new user the value of that portion of the system capacity that the new user will utilize at that point in time," wrote Justice Larry Boyle.

"The fact that the connection fee may be higher in Hailey than in other municipalities will not invalidate the fee as long as it is reasonable and is not primarily a source of revenue," he said.

Man is charged in abuse case Water

The Times-News and The Associated Press

ELKO — A man charged with contributing to the deaths of scores of animals at an alleged puppy mill in rural northeastern Nevada has pleaded "innocent" in a federal criminal trial to 197 counts of animal cruelty.

The plea by Arthur Transeau sets up a joint trial with his wife, jailed under the name Marilyn Evans, on identical charges. No date for that trial has been set. Justice of the Peace Marjean Kidner said Friday.

Arthur Transeau, 40, a former Boise-area man, turned himself in at the Elko County Jail Wednesday.

He had not been arrested with his wife, who was taken into custody in January, because he was in Idaho receiving medical treatment.

His feet were frozen when he tried to get into the puppy farm, located on property in the Thousand Springs area near Wells, according to the sheriff's office.

His wife, 42, was arrested Jan. 7 in Reno after officers discovered the remains of dogs, cats, rabbits, chickens and a peacock on the property. Sixty-six dogs, 25 rabbits, six cats, 21 chickens and two peacocks were found alive. One of the peacocks later died.

The animals were without food and water for some time, Harris said. Most were found in outdoor cages with temperatures registering in the 20s and 30s degrees below zero when the sheriff's department received the report.

Evans was scheduled to go on trial in Wells Friday, but that was postponed.

man of the Resources and Environment Committee, had opposed Calabretta's amendment, and called it "a mind amendment, lock, stock and barrel."

Noh, whose own amendment to the bill failed, said Calabretta's amendment was "lethal" because it integrated with the original anti-degradation agreement and would have violated the federal Clean Water Act that spurred it.

He was hopeful that negotiations would be fruitful over the summer, saying that everyone seems committed to the amendment, lock, stock and barrel.

The mining association opposed the bill because it granted unprecedented authority to stop activities without provision for review, he said. The state already has adequate provisions for injunctive relief to stop violations of the designation, Ryan said.

But that authority could be exercised only in specific instances requiring immediate action, said Larry Koenig, program analyst with the state Division of Environmental Quality.

If violations would result in a fish kill, the state could get an injunction to halt the operation, but that could take two weeks, Koenig said. To protect the fish the pollution source would need to be stopped as soon as possible, he said.

The operator still would have the option to challenge the cease and desist order in court.

Calling it lawyer bait, timber industry spokesman Joe Hinson said the bill is based on "the faulty premise that an agency can look at a proposed activity on paper and certify that it would not lower water quality."

The Conservation League lobbyist Ed Connady said Calabretta's amendment would have resulted in less protection to the outstanding resource waters than all other state waters.

Court OKs Hailey 'buy in' charges for water, sewer

The Associated Press

BOISE — The city of Hailey's "buy in" charge for water and sewer connections is a proper use of governmental authority, the Idaho Supreme Court says.

The court on Friday upheld Hailey's connection charge, currently $1,800, which requires new customers to pay a fee calculated as the value of the portion of the existing system the new customer will use.

The decision was unanimous. But the Supreme Court reversed 5th District Judge James May's awarding of appeal fees to the city because the appeal was "frivolous, unreasonably and without foundation."

The Supreme Court held that the appeal brought up legitimate questions that needed to be answered to clarify a 1984 ruling, also involving a Hailey sewer connection fee.

The lawsuit was filed on behalf of Hailey residents Ned Loomis and the district's maintenance and operations budget.

In addition to Blaine County, only two other districts, Mullin and Wallace, would be eligible, at this time, to pass supplemental levies.

Even with this legislation, Blaine County would still need to pass overrides, but they'd only be for $200,000 to $300,000 instead of for more than $2 million, Stennett said.

"We can't continue to operate with that much of our operating budget put up to the voters every two years," he said.

The bill passed 52-32. One opponent, Rep. Jim Kempton, R-Albion, said the measure would inappropriately change the tax code for one school.

"And though he said he sympathizes with Blaine County's problems, Kempton said the requirements for this type of override could become a self-fulfilling prophecy in which districts go to voters and ask for overrides of 20 percent of the budget and tell them "in seven years we've got this baby wired."

Rep. Ron Black, R-Twin Falls, agreed, saying, "I'm not sure attacking that code for one district (when it affects the whole state is the answer."

But Nafziger said many members of the House advocate local control and "you can't get much more local than this."

Education board debates reform quickness

Idaho

CALDWELL (AP) — The state Board of Education wants to hear proposals at its April meeting on how consultants can help develop a plan for implementing recent recommendations on reforming Idaho's public schools.

But before directing state Superintendent of Public Instruction Jerry Evans to come to its Coeur d'Alene meetings with whatever proposals he can find, the board debated Friday whether to act on the proposals.

Roberta Fields of New Meadows, chairman of the board's Public Schools Committee, said there already have been too many delays in acting on reform proposals. Unless something is done soon, she said, another school year will get under way next fall without any significant action.

"The clock just keeps ticking on it," Mrs. Fields said. "I don't want to wait until September to begin putting the plan in effect."

But Evans said a proposal he received only the night before from Mrs. Fields and board President Gary Fay of Twin Falls, following up on last month's Education Summit on public school reform, was far too ambitious.

"I keep thinking about this thing as a decade of change, not something we're going to do between now and September," he said.

The outline for implementing recommendations in reports from the Task Force on the Future of Education in Idaho, appointed by Evans and Gov. Cecil Andrus, and the business-supported Idaho Education Project was aimed primarily as a starting point for discussion, Fay said.

But Evans said it was unrealistic to call for completing a "strategic plan" for reform by the board's April 18-19 meeting, submitting a proposal for statewide performance-based student goals by September and requiring school districts to develop strategies for meeting those goals by January.

"There is no way we can have a plan completed and present it to the board by April. There's just simply no way we can have these draft goals submitted to the state Board of Education by September of 1991," he said.

"I guess one of my biggest worries is we're going to try to run before we walk. If we want meaningful change you have to take people with you; you can't cram it down their throats. They have to have an opportunity to participate. They have to have an opportunity to commit themselves to the results."

Mrs. Fields, however, said people throughout the state had an opportunity to participate during development of the recommendations the board now wants to implement. What's needed, she said, is help from someone who participated in that process and can quickly devise a schedule for putting its results into practice.

She suggested hiring Phyllis Edmundson, an education professor at Boise State University who was a consultant to the Idaho Education Project.

Fay agreed that the board should move soon to begin preparing Idaho's public schools for the next century, whether or not the Legislature appropriates enough money to do everything members decide is needed.

"The Senate was expected next week to consider a House-passed $484.5 million public school appropriations bill. It includes $950,000 to begin implementing reform recommendations, including proposed pilot projects for school innovations. But that money would not be available until after the new budget year begins July 1, and would provide only a start on the amount the reports recommend spending on reform.

"If we don't get the appropriated amounts as suggested in the bill, then we need to go ask for them at the next legislative session," Fay said. "I am tired of waiting for the Legislature to act and appropriate the money without us having a plan in place."

But he agreed with Evans that the board and Department of Education should look for the best possible help in developing an implementation plan. Fay urged Evans to follow up on a brief discussion of the idea with Robert Rath of the Northwest Regional Educational Laboratory in Portland, Ore., and to ask for proposals from other experts in the field.

Evans said he had no objection to seeking proposals, but he warned board members that they should avoid trying to press ahead with enacting reform recommendations too quickly. "We can say all we want about how the people have participated," he said, "but when it comes down to changing what happens in each individual school I think you're going to have to have far more participation than we've had now."

Ex-congressman gets time to file documents

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Former U.S. Rep. George Hansen has his Chapter 11 bankruptcy petition back on track after a court trustee agreed to give him two more months to file necessary documents.

Trustee Jack Frankel for the U.S. Bankruptcy Court had filed a motion earlier this year asking the court to throw out Hansen's reorganization petition on grounds that, in four months, the Republican had failed to disclose his finances or submit any of the required monthly reports detailing his reorganizing plans.

But in a court appearance that lasted two minutes, Frankel withdrew his objections and agreed to give Hansen 60 more days to file the paperwork.

Hansen, who represented Idaho's 2nd District for 14 years before losing to Democrat Richard Stilling in 1984 — attended the hearing with his wife, Constance, but declined to comment afterward.

Frankel said he agreed to stick with the case after several of Hansen's creditors contacted him and requested the court grant him the extra time. Frankel declined to identify which creditors called.

Chapter 11 bankruptcy, if granted, would freeze Hansen's debts and allow him to work out a payment plan, subject to court approval. Without it he would have no protection from creditors.

Hansen filed for bankruptcy on Oct. 31 and is listed as owing 99 individuals and businesses in Idaho and elsewhere almost $19.5 million.

Rule changes not enough for mothers

CALDWELL (AP) — The state Board of Education has announced a comprehensive health education policy to allow parents to have their children excused from class when they object to the subject being taught.

But two mothers told the board during its meeting Friday in Caldwell that the change falls short of ensuring local schools and parents have the final say in sex education classes.

"I think you will have hundreds of Idaho parents who will be very upset if the rule remains in effect," said Debra Holm, who has three children in Mountain View schools.

The House Education Committee recommended final legislative approval Friday for a Senate-passed bill that would further amend the rule. It would specify that only local school districts have authority to decide whether to offer "human sexuality and family life" courses, as well as their content.

State Department of Education officials have said the action is unnecessary since local school districts already have that authority.

Robert Dutton, associate superintendent of public instruction for finance and administration, has said that the change falls short of requiring that all districts offer a kindergarten-through-high school curriculum containing "instruction in substance use and abuse and the prevention and control of diseases and disorders, including HIV-AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases." How that curriculum is offered is up to local officials.

But Mrs. Holm and Brenda Young, who has four children of her own and a foreign exchange student living with her family who attend Mountain View schools, told the board Friday that teaching about acquired immunodeficiency syndrome is the same as teaching about sex.

"And since it is required as part of the comprehensive health education curriculum, they said, parents are given no choice.

"AIDS education is sex education," Mrs. Holm said. "AIDS is caused by sex."

The amendment adopted by the board allows parents more of an option. According to the change, "Any student, whose parents or guardians have submitted a signed statement to school officials, stating their objections to a topic or topics within a specific health course, shall be released from the class when those topics are studied."

Prison near Boise wins accreditation

BOISE (AP) — Idaho's maximum-security prison near Boise has been accredited the first time through a national prison-monitoring organization.

"It's very rare for a facility to get accreditation the first time through, especially when it's the first institution in the state to go through the process," said Debra Shields, assistant to Warden A. Arave.

The Idaho Maximum Security Correctional Institution actually received the accreditation in January from the American Correctional Association, but prison officials were presented the certificate Thursday.

"I think we're extremely proud of the work and effort of the staff," Arave said. "We house Idaho's worst inmates, and I think the taxpayers need to understand that the prison is operating correctly.

An inspection team visited the prison in August. They rated the facility on more than 400 standards.

Bruins take pair from Nampa

By Larry Hovey Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Bruins didn't show a lot of power but they produced hits as they were needed to sweep a double-header from the Nampa Bulldogs 6-3 and 8-2 Friday afternoon. The victories ran Twin Falls' record to 5-2 with the Bruins looking at their first Region III battle against the Minico Spartans at 1 p.m. Tuesday in Rupert. “We hit the ball fairly well and our pitchers did pretty well,” said Coach Bill Ingram. “I'm pretty pleased because I think Nampa is a good ball team. They gave us a couple of errors that really helped us in the second game but overall I thought both games were well played.” Twin Falls had 14 hits as it took early leads in both games and never trailed. “In the first inning of the opener, the Bruins parlayed one hit into four runs as Nampa contributed a walk and an error and Eric Mordhorst added a sacrifice fly. Jeff Ames plated two runs with a single and the fourth scored on a passed ball. Nampa cut the deficit to one on an error, a double by Brad Hilton and Burt Thiel's single for two in the third and then got an unearned run in the fourth. Pitchers Dan Molyneux and Troy Scofield protected that one-run margin until the sixth when Mordhorst lived when his fly to left field was dropped. Chad Heider chased him home with a double and Riley Boyd sent Heider across with a baschet. In the nightcap, errors that let T.J. Newton and Boyd live in leading-off-the-inning doomed the Bulldogs. Jim Horner followed with a two-run double and scored himself when Ames singled to left. Again Nampa rallied to within a run on three straight hits against reliever Andrew Pierce. The Bruins then tied it with three in the bottom of the inning when walks to Newton and John Traveller were combined with singles from Ames, Jim Hyde and Molyneux. An injury later, consecutive doubles by Boyd and Horner and another Ames' single plated the final two runs.

North Carolina ends longshot Eastern Michigan's season

The final 16 of the NCAA tournament is turning into the blowout round. North Carolina and St. John's advanced to regional finals by routing their opposition Friday night. The Tar Heels beat longshot Eastern Michigan 93-67 in the East and the Redmen dominated top-seeded Ohio State 91-74 in the Midwest to move within one victory of the Final Four. Temple needed an overtime to beat Oklahoma State 72-63, but Duke handled Connecticut 81-67. The average margin in the first six regional semifinals has been 17.5 points. The closest was Seton Hall's four-point win over Arizona on Thursday. The top-seeded Tar Heels (28-5) will play Temple winner for the East championship at East Rutherford, N.J. Fourth-seeded St. John's (23-8) meets the Duke for the Midwest title at Pontiac, Mich. These games will be played on Sunday. Today, UNLV (33-0) plays Seton Hall (25-8) in the West final at Seattle and Arkansas (34-3) faces Kansas (25-7) for the Southeast championship at Charlotte, N.C. Hubert Davis hit all five of his 3-point shots and North Carolina held Eastern Michigan scoreless for 5 1/2 minutes to break it open. The 12th-seeded Hurons stayed with the Tar Heels for 28 minutes, but were finally worn down by North Carolina's superior depth and talent. “They have so many players,” said Carl Thomas, who scored a career-high 27 points for Eastern Michigan. “They come at you in waves and it takes a lot when you have only one or two big guys.” The Tar Heels' last 3-pointer, his fifth of the game, got the Hurons within 61-57 with 12:49 remaining. But Eastern Michigan then went cold, missing 17 of its last 21 shots, and was outscored 32-10 the rest of the way. “We just turned our game up a notch in the second half,” Davis said. St. John's coasted to a 43-24 halftime lead over Ohio State and never let up in the second half. “To play that well and sustain it makes me feel very, very good,” said St. John's coach Lou Carnesecca. Malik Sealy led the Redmen with 22 points, while Robert Werdann added a career-high 21. All of St. John's starters had at least 14 points. Jimmy Jackson had 19 points for Ohio State (22-4), which lost three of its last five games. The loss, Ohio State's worst in 16 months, eliminated the last of the Big Ten's five tournament teams. “St. John's kind of catches you off guard,” Ohio State's Mark Baker said. “Everybody said they like to control the tempo but they pushed the ball up.”

Eastern Michigan's Lorenzo Neely, front, looks for a way around North Carolina's King Rice.

Macon, 6-for-29 with eight airballs in the 1988 East Regional final against Duke, scored eight of his 24 points in overtime as Temple advanced to the regional championship game with a 72-63 victory over Oklahoma State. Macon played the entire game until fouling out with 1:19 left in the extra period and Temple leading 64-56. The 10th-seeded Owls became the third team with a double-digit seeding to advance to an NCAA regional final. LSU reached the Final Four as a 11th seed in 1986 and the regional finals in 1987 as a 10th seed. Macon scored the first six points of overtime, giving Temple a 59-53 lead. Mik Kilgore, who scored 17 points, made it eight consecutive points for the Owls with another

No teams gamble on Bo

The Associated Press
PHOENIX — Bo Jackson's baseball career was left in limbo Friday when no team was willing to gamble that he would recover from his hip injury and ever play again. Any club could have claimed multi-sport, multi-media star for $1 on the waiver wire. Instead, the afternoon deadline passed without a single bid and Jackson limped away a free agent. Jackson can now negotiate his own deal and his agent, Richard Woods, said some unidentified teams were interested. Jackson, however, likely would get far less than the $2.375 million guaranteed by the Kansas City Royals before he was released Monday because of his football injury. Jackson will collect $391,483.52, about one-sixth of his salary, from the Royals because they cut him before opening day. It's uncertain how much more this week's sudden developments will cost him on and off the field. The New York Yankees, who cov- Please see BO/B2

Red Sox ace gearing up for season

The Associated Press
Roger Clemens seems like he's ready for opening day, though he says he's not. Spring training Clemens had another strong outing on Friday, striking out six batters in six innings as the Boston Red Sox beat a Kansas City Royals split squad 9-2. “I'm not there yet,” Clemens said. “I was pretty lazy out there in the early innings, but I was able to pick it up,” he said. Clemens, making his fourth start this spring, allowed three hits and two runs, one of which was unearned. He walked three. “Clemens looked pretty good.” Please see SEASON/B2 basket, and Oklahoma State didn't threaten to catch up. Amazingly, Temple scored 19 points in overtime after getting only 17 in the second half.

Duke 81, Connecticut 67 — Christian Laettner's teammates did to Connecticut what Shaquille O'Neal's couldn't and Duke did to the Huskies what it couldn't do last year — beat them easily. Laettner scored 19 points and Greg Koubeek added 18 Friday night as second-seeded Duke moved within one victory of its fourth straight Final Four appearance with a 81-67 Midwest Regional semifinal victory over the 11th-seeded Huskies. Koubeek, one of only two Duke seniors, is looking for a personal 4-for-4 Final Four streak. A victory over St. John's Sunday would send No. 6 Duke (29-7) to the NCAA semifinals for the fifth time in six years and for the ninth time overall. Duke beat the Redmen 76-72 in last year's second round, the teams' only NCAA tournament meeting. Connecticut (20-11), hoping to avenge last year's 79-78 overtime loss to Duke in the East Regional final, had been the tournament's lowest remaining seed. Chris Smith and John Gwynn had 16 points each for UConn. The Huskies got to the round of 16 by daring opponents to shoot from the outside. In their 79-62 first-round win over LSU, they denied O'Neal the ball and the 7-footer's teammates shot only 24.5 percent. UConn used a similar formula to whip Xavier in the second round. But while Laettner finished second to O'Neal in the All-America voting, his supporting cast is far superior. Duke proved right away that Connecticut's pack-it-in style wouldn't work. In the first 3:18, Thomas Hill made two 3-pointers and Koubeek one for a quick 14-4 lead. Koubeek added another 3-pointer and Bobby Harley hit two in the first half, after which Duke led 44-27.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Reggie Miller scored 21 points and the Indiana Pacers took control with a 14-3 third-quarter surge to beat Boston 121-109 Friday night, handing the Celtics their fifth straight loss at Market Square Arena.

The Pacers, who got 21 rebounds from LaSalle Thompson, improved to .500 for the first time since Nov. 16, after an averaged two points losses by more than 20 points each to the Celtics.

Spurs 97, Heat 90 MIAMI (AP) — David Robinson scored 28 points and sparked a key third-quarter spree as San Antonio advanced Miami its seventh straight loss.

76ers 95, Bulls 90 PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ron An-

Pistons 109, Nets 93 AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) — Joe Dumars scored 12 of his 18 points in the first quarter, including eight in a 14-2 surge that got Detroit rolling.

Mavs 104, Knicks 102 (OT) DALLAS (AP) — Rolando Blackman scored six of his 25 points in overtime as Dallas cooled off New York, which missed three chances in the final seconds.

T'wolves 110, Cavaliers 105 MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Tony Campbell scored 11 of his 30 points in a stretch of 3:11 in the fourth quarter to lead the Minnesota Timberwolves to a 110-105 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Bullets 121, Hawks 116 BALTIMORE (AP) — Harvey Grant scored 14 of his 26 points in the fourth quarter to defeat the Atlanta Hawks 121-116 and snap a three-game losing streak.

SuperSonics 111, Suns 105 PHOENIX (AP) — Eddie Johnson scored 17 of his 34 points in the fourth period as the Seattle SuperSonics avenged their first time in four years by beating the Suns 111-105.

3 Magic Valley schools put wrestlers in finals

Jay Galentine, at 119 pounds, will face top-seeded Nathan Winward of Preston, after pinning his second round opponent in the second period.

Filer's 103-pound Robert Schick will go after the first place title after defeating Bryan Zollinger of Sugar-Salem, 9-8. He will be joined in the championship round by second-seeded Jason Bingham, who will face top-seeded Jeff McKinley of Sugar-Salem, an opponent he faced in the 103-pound title match last year, losing 9-3.

Curtis Yergenson, 189-pounder of Twin Falls, the second seed, came up short in his match against Wade Bell of Pocatello. Yergenson had taken the lead on a reversal with less than a minute to go in the match only to see a Bell score a takedown with less than ten seconds left to win the match, 6-5.

"He's only a junior, and this is a good tournament to give him confidence," said Twin Falls coach Wiley Dobbs. Twin Falls will also send 125-pound David Barker after a medal after he took a 6-2 win over Tom Hart of Meridian.

Jerome's hopes were dashed after three of their wrestlers failed to advance to the championship round. Paul Egbert, 135 pounds, lost a heartbreaker, 4-2 to top-seeded Roger Morris of Marsh Valley. "We'd like to think that we'll take four thirds tomorrow, but everyone is tough when you get this far in the tournament," said Jerome coach Tim Matthews.

His 189-pounder Clay Howell had his title hopes dashed by a first round pin at the hands of Corky Powell of Fruitland.

In the team race, Minico sits in fifth place with 75 points, 59% points behind No. 1 Pocatello. Twin Falls sits in 19th place with 13 points, followed by Burley in 22nd place with 8 points.

In the A-2 Division, Jerome currently occupies 12th place with 39% points, 6% points better than 16th place Buhl. Wood River rounds out the field with three points for 23rd place.

Declo leads three Valley teams in the top 10, sitting in fifth place with 67% points. Wendell sits in fifth with 66%. Filer is 10th place with 44% points. Kimberly ranked up 37 points to garner the 13th position, one place and two points better than Gooding.

Action resumes today with championship matches slated to begin at 6:45 p.m.

Seton Hall wants shot at 4-minute game

SEATTLE (AP) — Change the rules for the NCAA West Regional final, make it a gut-wrenching minutes instead of 40, and Seton Hall coach P.J. Carlesimo believes his Pirates can steal it from UNLV. Carlesimo is confident his team can beat the defending champions and stop their 44-game winning streak Saturday no matter how long the game goes on — if the Pirates play as well as they have to date in the tournament.

But give him a close game near the end, when every shot and every turnover is critical, and Carlesimo will be a happy man. "I would take my chances right now," Carlesimo said. "If Tark

Can 26-7 Arizona's mark be considered a failure?

SEATTLE (AP) — Seton Hall coach P.J. Carlesimo thinks something is wrong in college basketball when a team that finishes with a 26-7 record can be considered a failure. Arizona's season ended in the Kingdome on Thursday night with an 81-77 loss to Seton Hall in an NCAA West Regional semifinal game.

"They're better than a pretty good team," Carlesimo said Friday. "They're a great team. They're a great team every year. "Arizona is a great basketball program. When you have a great program, the expectations are so high and living up to those expectations are so difficult. "I marvel at a Syracuse or a Vegas or an Arizona or a Georgetown or a St. John's. People that have this level of expectation and continually live up to it." The Pacific-10 champion Wildcats, featuring talented transfers Brian Williams and Chris Mills, didn't meet a lot of people's expectations this season, however, Williams, a transfer from Maryland, and Mills, a transfer from Kentucky, were supposed to help Arizona challenge Nevada-Las Vegas for the NCAA championship this season. But the Wildcats failed to match the success of Olson's 1988 Arizona team that went 35-3 and got to the Final Four, or his 1989 team that went 29-4 and also made it to the Sweet Sixteen.

"We wanted to be able to sign him. We wanted an every way for it to happen," Yankees general manager George Michael said. "We just felt the Yankees were too great for us." Michael said the Yankees studied Jackson's medical reports and solicited the advice of six orthopedic specialists. The conclusion was the same one the Royals reached when they cut him: Bo and sports might be a no-go. "We are a bit surprised that he wasn't claimed because the reports out of New York were so strong that he would be," Woods said. "I told Bo that I thought he was the one I picked up for the Yankees, but I told him it may not happen. "He was not shocked by what happened," Woods said. "He's very excited that he gets to pick. I'm extraordinarily confident. Bo will sign

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

BOBBY WOLFF

"For the things we have to learn before we can do them, we learn by doing them."
— Aristotle.

When most average players hear the term "squeeze," they cross the street and head the other way. It's too complicated a subject for me" is a popular refrain.

In reality, some simple squeezes require only that the declarer play his winners and keep a watchful eye. The pressure of discarding automatically takes care of the rest.

Three rounds of spades produced a ruff for West, and he exited comfortably with the diamond king. He felt sure that he was going to score at least one minor-suit trick to beat the game.

Dummy's diamond ace won, and South had only one legitimate chance — a squeeze on West. If West had started with K-Q of diamonds and king of clubs, he was not going to be able to guard both suits. And since East's weak jump overcall virtually guaranteed that West had these cards, there remained only the matter of execution.

After the diamond ace, South ran all seven of his trump winners, forcing West to say "uncle." Before the last trump is played, West must reduce to three cards (diamond queen and K-J of clubs); dummy has the diamond Jack and A-10 of clubs. On the last trump, West must discard before dummy and cannot do so safely. If he discards a club, the diamond Jack is discarded from dummy. If West discards the diamond queen, dummy's Jack becomes a winner.

The "squeeze" word shouldn't terrify anyone. Some squeezes are really quite simple.
