3-cent fuel tax increase passes

The Associated Press
BOISE — The Senate on Tuesday approved a 3-cent increase in the state fuel tax, reversing its position of a day earlier in recognition that the House-passed measure was the only way to inject additional cash into the deteriorating highway system.
"A lot of us wanted more, but this seems to be the best we can do," Republican Floor Leader Jerry Twigg of Blackfoot said.
The 26-16 vote, the exact opposite of the vote that defeated the bill a day before, sent the legislation back to the House for consideration of a Senate amendment. The House caucused, then quickly took up the bill and voted 41-40 to accept the amendments.

But Rep. Ray Infanger, R-Salmon, served notice that he might try to prevent a speedy final vote on the bill.

House Transportation Chairman John Sessions, R-Driggs, had speculated that the House would endorse the change, which ensures all proceeds from the higher tax go to road and bridge work. About 9 percent of the receipts from the current 18-cent-gallon tax goes to support the State Police and waterways and off-road-vehicle programs.
House Democrats urged the House to reject the amendments, which would throw the matter into a conference committee. Some House members wanted to modify the bill further so that money now going to off-road-vehicle and waterways projects would be reserved for use on roads and bridges providing access for ORV and boating enthusiasts.

The Magic Valley delegation voted Tuesday as it did on Monday on the tax, with Sen. Joyce McRoberts, R-Twin Falls, Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, and Sen. Russ Newcomb, R-Twin Falls supporting the hike.
"I voted for asphalt. That's what my people wanted and that's what I voted for," Newcomb said.

In a surprise ceremony Tuesday evening, James Mathis received the medals he earned during the Korean War.

Belated Purple Heart for Korea vet

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — James Mathis earned the Purple Heart during the Korean War more than 41 years ago.
He finally got it Tuesday.
In a surprise ceremony at the Blue Lakes Shopping Center Gulf Post, Congressman Richard Stallings pinned the medal, which is awarded to servicemen injured in combat, on Mathis' chest while scores of friends and family cheered.
"I had no idea this was going to happen," Mathis, 60, said after the ceremony. "I had more or less put it to one side and figured I'd probably never get it."
The Purple Heart wasn't the only medal he received.
The Good Conduct Medal, the National Defense Service Medal, the Korean Service Medal, the United Nations Service Medal and a Marksman's Badge were also pinned to his chest, prompting Sen. Steve Symms to suggest Mathis might need another Purple Heart.

Though he was injured, Mathis never received his Purple Heart. His daughter, Lynn Harmon, of Twin Falls, contacted Stallings' office and the congressman tracked down the missing medals.
It was fitting, Stallings said, that he presented Mathis' overdue medals as many Magic Valley men and women are returning from the Persian Gulf.
Marine Cpl. Kevin Butterworth of Buhl, recently returned from Persian Gulf duty, was one of the first to congratulate Mathis after the ceremony.
"I'm just glad this (war) was short," Mathis said later. "I hope none of my grandchildren or anyone else's grandchildren ever have to go through this."

What Mathis went through in the winter of 1950 was 15 miles of frozen mountain terrain that had been overrun by Chinese soldiers.
He was a staff sergeant with the 15th Anti-Aircraft Artillery, which had joined other U.S. troops at the northern end of the Chosin Reservoir in North Korea. Their mission was to cut off the only southbound road from Chinese invasion.
The Chinese overwhelmed the relatively small American contingent, however, and after six days the soldiers began to retreat. Few made it.
Mathis helped load many of his injured comrades onto trucks before heading south. He was hit by shrapnel and spent nine months in the hospital being treated for frostbite after making it to safety. Only nine other men from his unit made it out, Mathis said.

Big 5 at U.N. agree on resolution to end war

The Associated Press
UNITED NATIONS — The United States and the four other Security Council members with veto power reached broad agreement Tuesday on a complex resolution to end the Persian Gulf War. Western diplomats said.
The resolution demands the destruction of Iraq's chemical, biological and nuclear arms under U.N. supervision and would maintain the U.N. trade embargo on conventional arms purchases by Iraq. Some conventional arms purchases could be permitted later on the basis of genuine need, diplomats said.

The five permanent council members — United States, Britain, China, France and the Soviet Union — were expected to meet again on Wednesday to put the finishing touches on the draft resolution.

It could be presented to the other 10 Security Council members on Wednesday or Thursday for discussion. A vote could occur this weekend, but was considered more likely next week.
The draft resolution would clear the way to convert the current cease-fire into a formal end to hostilities, after which foreign troops would withdraw from Iraq and the U.N.-sanctioned economic embargo would be lifted.

5.5 million American children lack sufficient food

Knight-Ridder News Service
WASHINGTON — One of every eight children in the United States — about 5.5 million — does not get enough to eat, largely because of inadequate federal assistance programs, according to the first intensive national survey of childhood hunger.
As a result, these children are more likely to suffer from infections, fatigue, an inability to concentrate and higher rates of school absenteeism, according to the study, released Tuesday by the Food Research and Action Center (FRAC).

"A hungry child cannot learn, incurs higher medical and educational costs and ultimately is a less productive member of society," said Robert J. Fersh, executive director of FRAC, a Washington-based anti-hunger advocacy group. The group called for $5 billion in new federal spending to alleviate hunger.
The study was based on 2,335 household interviews in seven states from Connecticut to California: "There's never been a study of hunger anywhere in the world that has been more rigorous than this," said Dr. Victor Sidel, a professor of special medicine at Albert Einstein College in New York and chairman of the study's advisory committee.

Hunger rates ranged from a high of 42 percent among families in Hartford, Conn., to a low of 25 percent for families in relatively well-off Suffolk County, N.Y.
The rates in other areas: 37 percent in Hennepin County, Minn., and central California; 32 percent in Polk County, Fla., and 28 percent in Sumter County, Ala., and Pontiac, Mich. Researchers used totals from the seven sites, which were chosen according to geography, size and economic structure, to estimate the national hunger rate.

To solve the problem, Fersh said, the nation should devote the same care and resources to fighting childhood hunger as it does to political campaigns and military operations.
FRAC has launched a campaign to end childhood hunger, supported by a $750,000 grant from Kraft General Foods. Fersh said it would work to extend the special supplemental food program for women, infants and children (WIC) to all eligible families. The program helps save the lives of infants, Fersh said, yet nearly half the eligible families cannot receive benefits due to federal spending limits.

Blue Cross tax may go on the shelf

The Times-News and The Associated Press
BOISE — Legislation imposing a tax on Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Idaho may be sidetracked in the final days of the 1991 legislative session.
And that's what Magic Valley folks want, if judged by the phone calls representatives received Tuesday in opposition to the bill.
Rep. Celia Gould, R-Buhl, said she received four calls, a significant number on the day the last-minute bill was debated in committee.
"They're starting to get excited about it," Gould said.
Reps. Ron Black, R-Twin Falls, Clint Stennett, D-Ketchum, and Maxine Bell, R-Jerome, all also received calls from constituents who wanted them to vote against the bill because it would raise their insurance premiums.
The Andrus administration is asking for 1 percent tax on the premiums paid for all medical insurance policies. Commercial and mutual health care providers now pay a 3 percent tax, but non-profit providers such as the "Blues" pay only a per-person fee of 4 cents.
After the House Revenue and Taxation Committee discussed the proposal Tuesday, Gould moved to have the bill held "until the committee's next meeting."

Senate backs Idaho school aid increase

The Times-News and The Associated Press
BOISE — The Senate late Tuesday voted overwhelmingly to increase state aid to public schools for the coming year by $5 million over the package that has already passed the House.
The compromise was the result of nearly two days of negotiations within the 21-member Republican caucus and between GOP and Democratic leaders. It was handled with little difficulty once the deal was struck, and final approval was set for Wednesday morning.
Sen. Russ Newcomb, R-Twin Falls, disapproved of the private negotiating process and said senators should have voted on the original appropriation.
The amendment, he said, reflects the power of the Idaho Education Association, which contributed largely to Senate Democrats in the 1990 election. And political deal-making doesn't benefit the school children, he said.
But Sen. John Peavey of Carey, Idaho, said.

Kurdish leader returns; vows to free Iraq

ZAKHO, Iraq (AP) — A top Kurdish leader made a triumphant return to rebel-held Iraqi territory Tuesday and vowed to fight until Iraq is liberated.

More than 10,000 cheering Kurds greeted the arrival of Jalal Talabani, who immediately met with other opposition leaders to discuss an interim government to topple President Saddam Hussein.

"This is the first time ever that the whole of Iraqi Kurdistan has been liberated," said Talabani, who has spent 30 years fighting for autonomy in the northern Kurdish region.

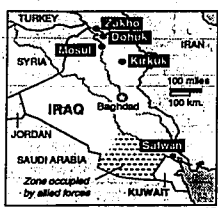

"We will continue the struggle until we defeat the regime of oppression in Baghdad and liberate the whole of Iraq," he told the crowd gathered in Zakho's main square.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Margaret Tutwiler said Tuesday that fighting continues between government forces in both northern and southern Iraq.

The fighting in the south has dropped off, but in the north, heavy fighting continued around the oil center of Kirkuk subsequent to the fall of that northern city to dissidents, she said.

Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams, too, said the government "continues to consolidate control" in the south. He said Iraqi forces are not fully engaged in the north because the insurgency in the south "is not the kind of thing they can turn their back on."

In the north, Talabani aides said they were beating back government forces in a battle midway between Zakho and the northern metropolis of Mosul, 60 miles south.

Kurdish rebels earlier had expressed reluctance to advance on Mosul, a predominantly Arab city, but they apparently changed their minds after reports of growing anti-Saddam unrest there.

Western reporters visiting Zakho along the Turkish border and Erbil, 90 miles to the southeast, found both firmly in the hands of rebels whose fight began after Saddam's defeat in the Persian Gulf War for Kuwait.

This was in contrast to the south, where refugees fleeing on Monday said troops loyal to Saddam had recaptured every southern city once held by Shiite Muslim guerrillas allied with Kurds to the north.

Williams said the U.S. military believes Iraq government forces are using phosphorus weapons against the insurgents. He said it is not clear what kinds of weapons are being used — phosphorus can be deployed with bullets, rockets or artillery fire — but it causes "intense fires" and is "very destructive."

The Pentagon spokesman also said helicopters continue to be used against the rebels both in the north and south. He said flights have decreased by about half in the last few days, but the U.S. military assumes that is because of bad weather.

In other gulf-related developments on Tuesday:

• Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, commander of the U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf, made a surprise visit to Oman to meet with the deputy premier in charge of security and defense. The official media did not provide any details on the talks.

• Iraq announced it would attend a meeting of the Arab League on Saturday in Cairo. It would be the first league session with all 21 member nations since a split over Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

• In Kuwait, American workers plugged the first of hundreds of damaged Kuwaiti oil wells, running mud 4,000 feet into a well that had been spewing 15,000 barrels of crude oil a day.

forces may exempt all their combat-zone pay from tax; officers may exempt $300 a month.

This provision may create problems for some officers because no taxes are withheld from combat-zone pay.

"The Defense Department had tried to communicate that fact to officers and suggest they set aside money to pay whatever taxes might be due (a year from now) on that combat pay," said IRS spokesman Henry Holmes.

IRS grants most gulf vets more time to file

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most military personnel who served in the Persian Gulf War zone will have until January to file their 1990 federal income tax returns, the Internal Revenue Service said Tuesday.

The IRS also reminded military personnel that the law exempting all or a portion of war-zone pay from tax will not affect 1990 returns because the gulf area was not declared a combat zone until January. When 1991 returns are filed a year from now, enlisted members of the armed

"We have been able to inspect them," the official said. "We have had the opportunity to see them but I can't tell you anything about the conditions they're being held in. This is part of the confidential reporting for all the parties concerned."

The all-Swiss ICRC is bound by neutrality and usually provides little information about the conditions in prisoner-of-war camps. But the official said the 400 "military refugees" were getting the same treatment as other prisoners.

"I think it depends on the situation inside Iraq at the moment as to whether they will be repatriated," he added.

"We have only repatriated those who have accepted to be repatriated. If they risk some kind of persecution in Iraq after repatriation, that is of concern to us."

The New York-based human rights watchdog group Middle East Watch recently expressed concern about the segregation of the "military refugees" by the Saudis and their ultimate welfare.

"There is a grave potential harm to the families of Iraqi POWs who are seen to have defected, voluntarily or not, including the likelihood of losing their government stipends," the group said in a report.

Official: POWs not being sought to oust Iraqi leader

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Tens of thousands of Iraqi prisoners live in tent cities in the Saudi Arabian desert, passing the time with prayers and small talk as they wait to be repatriated, an official said Tuesday.

There is no evidence, however, that any of the Iraqi POWs have been recruited to fight against Saddam Hussein, said an official of the International Committee of the Red Cross. Commenting on reports this month that Iraqi insurgents sought to enlist the prisoners to overthrow the Iraqi government, the official said the Red Cross had inspected the camps and was satisfied no such activity was taking place.

Speaking on condition of anonymity, the official described for the first time the conditions in the camps, which are run by Saudi Arabia because it was the host nation for Operation Desert Storm.

He said 400 prisoners who were captured in January before the end of the war that ended Feb. 28 were separated into different sections of the camps after they were categorized by the Saudis as "military refugees," a term he said does not exist in international law.

They have been variously described as defectors or deserters.

FIRST SECURITY BANK

Downtown Office

102 Main Avenue South, Twin Falls, Idaho • 734-1400

You're Invited To An OPEN HOUSE Celebration

for FRED D. HARDER

Friday, March 29, 1991
from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Fred D. Harder, Vice President and Manager of the Twin Falls Downtown Office, has announced his retirement from First Security Bank after 36 1/2 years of service. Fred began his banking career at the Kimberly Office of the Twin Falls Bank & Trust Co. in 1954. In 1959, Fred was promoted to Assistant Cashier and Assistant Manager of the Kimberly Office. He was named Assistant Vice President in 1967 and Vice President in 1971. A year later he was promoted to Manager of the Kimberly Office. In 1976, Fred was elected to the Board of Directors and in 1978, was transferred to the Downtown Office as Vice President and Manager. He was later promoted to Senior Vice President and in 1985, was promoted to Executive Vice President. In January 1990, following the Twin Falls Bank & Trust Company merging with First Security Bank, Fred was named Vice President and Manager of the Downtown Office of First Security Bank.

Fred has been actively involved in many banking organizations. He is a past president of the Idaho Independent Bankers Association and past State President for the National Association for Bank Audit and Control. Fred served as Treasurer of the Idaho Bankers Association and on the Executive Council of the Idaho Bankers Association. He has also been on the Board of Directors for the Magic Valley Chapters of the Bank Administration Institute and American Institute of Banking.

Fred's administrative abilities have been tapped by a number of other interests locally and on a state level such as Director of the Twin Falls Industrial Development Corp., the Magic Valley Chapter of the American Red Cross, the Snake River Area Council of Boy Scouts of America, Board of Directors of the Twin Falls Presbyterian Church and the Parent's Board of the University of Idaho. He currently serves as a director for the Idaho Foundation for Parks and Land and the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center. Fred has also been a member of the Elks, Rotary, and Twin Falls Toastmasters.

Even though Fred is retiring from First Security Bank, he still plans to remain active in community affairs and has also admitted that he is looking forward to spending time playing golf, skiing, fishing and traveling.

Please join us on March 29 in wishing Fred a happy and rewarding retirement.

Court drops ban of coerced confessions

WASHINGTON (AP) — A divided Supreme Court veered from previous rulings Tuesday and said criminal defendants whose coerced confessions were improperly used as evidence are not always entitled to new trials.

By a 5-4 vote, the court ruled in an Arizona case that using such confessions may be "harmless error" if their trial evidence was sufficient to convict the defendant.

Dissenters said the decision "dislodges one of the fundamental tenets" of justice in America.

In other decisions, the court:

- Ruled, 6-3, that U.S. citizens working in — foreign — nations for American companies are not protected by a federal law banning bias against women and minorities.

- Removed a major threat to the government's efforts to police the savings and loan industry by ruling unanimously that federal regulators may not be sued over their alleged negligence in handling the day-to-day operations of failing thrifts.

In the coerced-confession case, the court's dissenters said the decision "overrules (a) vast body of precedent, and ... dislodges one of the fundamental tenets of our criminal justice system" — that such evidence never may be used.

In decisions dating back to 1884, the court has said confessions are coerced and unconstitutional if not made "freely, voluntarily and without compulsion or inducement of any sort."

Confessions obtained through physical beatings and psychological ploys alike had been ruled inadmissible as evidence in a series of decisions, many of them in the 1960s from a liberal court led by the late Chief Justice Earl Warren.

Today's court is far more conservative, as reflected by the five-member majority in Tuesday's decision. That majority included William H. Rehnquist, appointed by President Richard M. Nixon and elevated to chief justice by President Ronald Reagan; the court's three Reagan appointees — Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, Antonin Scalia and Anthony M. Kennedy; and President Bush's sole appointee, Justice David H. Souter.

"This ruling doesn't chip away at past decisions. It goes right to the heart of the Warren court era," said Ira Robbins, an American University law professor.

"This is a major departure from the past, perhaps traceable to the absence of Justice (William J.) Brennan."

White House to reopen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kara Pease and Erin Van Winkle didn't know until almost the last minute that they were going to get inside the White House after all.

The two students, in town with their high school history class, said they talked about it all night.

Kara and Erin, both 18, from Idaho Springs, Colo., were among hundreds who showed up in bright spring weather Tuesday as the White House reopened its doors to public tours, barred since the Gulf War began on Jan. 16. Not since a major renovation of the mansion from 1948 to 1952 had it been declared "off-limits to ordinary Americans."

It was also closed during World War II and World War I.

Park Ranger Max Leffel said the National Park Service, which conducts the tours, received many inquiries as to when tours would resume, but "not complaints."

Doctors find way to wipe out cancer cells after bone marrow transplants

PHOENIX (AP) — Doctors said Tuesday they have found a way to alert the body's immune system to hunt down cancer cells after bone marrow transplants for leukemia in an effort to wipe out lingering traces of disease.

The new technique, still highly experimental, uses the common transplant drug cyclosporine to confuse disease-killing blood cells so they attack the patients' own body, believing it is foreign.

Dr. Robert B. Geller of the University of Chicago, who worked on the technique at Johns Hopkins University, where it was developed and has been most extensively tested. He outlined the approach at a meeting of the American Cancer Society.

Bone marrow transplants were once limited to young patients with blood cancers. But now they are being used in a variety of cancers in steadily older patients.

Initially, doctors attempted transplants in people who had cancers of the marrow tissue that makes blood cells. They killed the cancerous marrow with radiation and then replaced it with marrow taken from a closely related donor.

While this is still done, marrow transplants are now being performed in many other situations.

Sometimes doctors would like to give very high doses of chemotherapy to people with advanced tumors of other organs, such as the breast or brain, but cannot because the drugs damage the marrow.

Increasingly they are using self-transplants of the cancer patient's own marrow to skirt this limitation. They remove some bone marrow before treatment, blast the body with high doses of chemotherapy or radiation and then put back the marrow to restore the blood supply.

However, sometimes the marrow that is returned to the body contains traces of cancer.

Doctors hope that cyclosporine, among other strategies, will help clean out this remaining cancer and cure the patient.

When people receive marrow from relatives, the transplanted tissue often recognizes its new owner as foreign and attacks his body, causing a potentially life-threatening reaction called graft-versus-host disease.

Using low doses of cyclosporine, a drug ordinarily used to prevent graft-versus-host disease, doctors have found that they can actually stimulate a similar reaction when people get back their own bone marrow.

In this case, however, the blood cells are confused into thinking their former home is foreign.

Agency will consider ban on pesticide

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency will consider whether to ban ethyl parathion, a highly toxic pesticide in widespread use on American farms, a spokesman said Tuesday.

The agency will weigh the benefits of using parathion on each crop, as well as the hazards to farm workers, consumers and the environment, said the spokesman, Albert Heier.

He confirmed a report in The New York Times that some EPA scientists have recommended to Linda J. Fisher, the assistant administrator for pesticides and toxic substances, that she order a ban on parathion.

But he added, "Different scientists are going to have different opinions," and said the possibility of banning parathion had been under discussion at the agency for years.

Heier said any action is at least several months away, and could take much longer if the eventual decision is challenged by the manufacturer, Cheminova A.S. of Denmark, or by distributors.

"It's going to take some months just to develop the verbiage," Heier said. "There are benefits to be considered for each use."

But there also are severe hazards, parathion has been linked to the deaths of about 70 field workers between 1961 and 1981 in the United States, he said.

Researchers warn surgeons of AIDS risk

CHICAGO (AP) — Surgeons often get splashed, soaked or accidentally injected with patients' blood in ways that increase their risk of becoming infected with the AIDS virus, a federal study says.

Consequently, blood should be treated as a toxic substance in the same way industrial poisons are treated as dangerous chemicals, researchers said.

The survey by the federal Centers for Disease Control found that surgeons came into contact with patient blood in almost one of five operations involving an incision.

Other operating room workers came into contact with blood less frequently, according to the study of 206 operations over six months at Grady Memorial Hospital in Atlanta.

Contact was defined as getting stuck with a needle or cut with a sharp object that had touched patient blood; getting splashed with blood in the eyes, nose or mouth; or having one's skin touched or garments soaked with blood.

Needle sticks are believed to be the most common way health-care workers got AIDS virus infections on the job.

Soldiers overthrow Mali military dictator

KATH Imagraphics

BAMAKO, Mali (AP)—Soldiers overthrew Mali's military dictator Tuesday after days of rioting and promised to replace Gen. Moussa Traore's "bloodthirsty and corrupt regime" with a multiparty democracy.

At least 59 people were reported killed in violence after the overnight coup, including two top Traore supporters who were burned to death. Traore had ruled this landlocked West African nation for 23 years.

"The army will no longer meddle in politics," coup leader Lt. Col. Amadou Toumani Toure pledged in a radio broadcast. "The army will return to its barracks" after establishing "social justice and total democracy."

Traore's whereabouts were not known, though state radio said he was under arrest. Military sources said Traore was imprisoned with his family.

capital, at first cheered and set off fireworks to celebrate the news of the ouster of Traore.

Later, medical officials speaking on condition of anonymity said 59 people had been killed and about 200 injured in post-coup violence.

Looters continued to plunder shops and offices Tuesday, despite appeals from pro-democracy leaders and the new ruling National Reconciliation Council of 17 soldiers.

The new government, in a communique read on official radio, announced the disbanding of Traore's government and his People's Democratic Union, which was the sole legal political party.

Coup leaders met with pro-democracy leaders and promised to work with their Committee of Pro-Democracy Associations, an umbrella group.

Its chairman, human rights activist and lawyer Demba Diallo, praised "this group of patriotic officers," saying the new leadership had solicited the opposition for advice.

"Their intention is not to take power," Diallo told state Radio Mali. They would "ensure that the uniform no longer usurps the people's power."

"I am putting myself back in God's hands," Diallo quoted Traore as saying upon his arrest.

Soviets order halt to strike

MOSCOW (AP)—The legislature sought to protect the shaky Soviet economy on Tuesday by ordering a two-month suspension in a nationwide miners' strike that has stalled coal production and closed steel mills.

Strike leaders called the decision "unlawful and anti-democratic" but said it was up to individual mines to decide whether to obey.

The strike is already...

under way," Anatoly Snegurets, spokesman for the Independent Union of Miners, said in an interview. "Work collectives will decide whether to stop it."

Spokesman Edward Kinsler of the Chelyabinsk miners in the Ural Mountains said that if the government tried to use force, "it will make the situation even worse and it won't stop the miners."

Serbia, Croatia presidents come to an agreement

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—Serbia's hard-line Communist president and the leader of the restive republic of Croatia have agreed to peacefully resolve Yugoslavia's problems, a top Croatian official said Tuesday.

Serbia's Slobodan Milosevic and Croatia's President Franjo Tudjman held secret talks on the border of the two republics Monday night. The meeting was not made public until it ended.

A definite agreement was reached to avoid conflict situations and to find a way to live together and a peaceful settlement to the Yugoslav crisis," said the senior Croatian official. No further details were available. But the official said a meeting of the presidents of Yugoslavia's six republics slated for Thursday in the Croatian port of Split would be "historic."

Police kill 2 inmates to end hostage-taking

PRINCE ALBERT, Saskatchewan (AP)—Authorities stormed a maximum-security prison, killed two inmates and freed their two hostages Tuesday in an operation that ended a 24-hour standoff.

Neither hostage was hurt during the operation, but one had been severely beaten beforehand, authorities said. A third inmate was arrested. At least seven guards made the assault after firing tear gas into an area of Saskatchewan Penitentiary where prisoners do wood-working. That is where the three inmates, armed with crudely made knives, took their hostages Monday.

"We had no choice," Warden Jim O'Sullivan said. "We tried up to the final moment to negotiate. They gave us an ultimatum that the hostages would be harmed, (that) legs, arms would be broken."

O'Sullivan said prison officials decided to move in when they learned that one hostage, a prisoner, had been severely beaten.

Waste will be at WIPP soon, LaRocco says

CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP) — Rep. Larry LaRocco, D-Idaho, said the U.S. Department of Energy's Waste Isolation Pilot Plant should be able to start accepting waste from the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory in July.

LaRocco

LaRocco toured the site 26 miles southeast of Carlsbad on Tuesday with other members of the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee, before flying to northern Idaho to begin the Easter recess.

at least some plutonium-contaminated waste should start moving from temporary storage at the agency's INEL this summer. But he said that will mean the Energy Department answering environmental questions, resolving a jurisdictional debate between three House committees and Congress acting quickly to withdraw land at the New Mexico site from the Interior Department's Bureau of Land Management to Energy Department control.

He said he wanted to participate in the WIPP tour to let Department of Energy officials know Idaho has a member on the Interior committee who will be working to ensure they get the repository open as quickly as possible. "We don't want to be lied to and we want straight information," the freshman Democrat said. Earlier this month, LaRocco won a commitment from Rep. Peter Kostmayer, D-Pa., chairman of the Interior panel's Subcommittee on Energy and the Environment, to conduct an April 16 hearing on WIPP.

At the same time, some groups have accused the Energy Department of putting too much emphasis on getting waste into the plant this year without first ensuring the repository will be safe for thousands of years.

Craig blasts governor over his dispute with energy department

POCAHELLO (AP) — Sen. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, contends "political posturing" by Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus may have irreparably damaged the state's relationship with the U.S. Department of Energy.

Craig

His comments came in an interview with the Idaho State Journal. Craig, in Idaho during the Senate's Easter recess, said he would work to mend fences broken by the St. Vrain issue.

Department of Energy officials will evaluate by June whether the INEL will be considered as a location for the next generation of nuclear weapons plants as part of Energy Secretary James Watkins' "Complex 21" reconfiguration strategy. The agency is studying the feasibility of moving nuclear weapons manufacturing now done at Colorado's Rocky Flats Plant, Tennessee's Y-12 Plant and Texas' Pantex Plant to the INEL.

Those plants currently employ more than 15,000 people. Attracting one or all of the facilities to Idaho could double the number of employees at the INEL over the next two decades, Craig said.

But he said Watkins has told the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee that the Energy Department "will not go where it's not welcome."

"That's a step in the face, because until very recently, Idaho has had a good working relationship with the federal government," Craig said.

"They won't go where they don't have friends, and where they will be politically harassed. And Texas and the Carolinas are willing to welcome them, and all those jobs, with open arms."

Seniors decide to keep prayer

REXBURG (AP) — Saying they want to maintain traditions, Madison High School senior class officers have decided to have two student-led prayers at graduation exercises in May.

A federal judge in Boise to suspend the lawsuit until the U.S. Supreme Court rules in a similar case from Rhode Island.

Class President James Clarke, 18, said some of the students in his class meeting Monday expressed any opposition to having prayers at commencement. Madison High has 306 seniors.

The Idaho suit contends the families' constitutional rights are violated by Rexburg school officials allowing prayer at graduation ceremonies and before athletic events.

Clarke said seniors at Monday's meeting agreed they wanted to pattern their graduation after past ceremonies by including an invocation and benediction by top-honor students.

He said no consideration was given to what religious faiths the students who lead the prayers will represent.

Pea train makes final Union-Pacific run

SPOKANE (AP) — Union Pacific Railroad Co. this week will abandon 69 miles of track used by pea and lentil processors in Spokane and Whitman counties.

The railroad has received permission from the Interstate Commerce Commission to close the Tekoa-Pleasant Valley branch lines as unprofitable. The abandonment eliminates the cheapest shipping routes for 10 pea and lentil processors in Tekoa, Farmington and 10 other towns or whistle stops.

Inkom man faces manslaughter charge

POCATELLO — An Inkom man who allegedly killed an Idaho State University student with his car faces a vehicular manslaughter charge.

Perry Ray Smith, 36, is accused of fatally injuring Stephanie Casperson, 20, Monday afternoon as she was crossing a street in Pocatello, said Capt. Travis Wilhelm of the Pocatello Police Department. Ms. Casperson, of Emmett, died from multiple internal injuries. The captain said alcohol was involved in the death. Smith was set to be arraigned Tuesday in 6th District Magistrate Court on a felony charge of vehicular manslaughter. He is being held in the Bannock County Jail.

Dairy farmers plan delivery protest

BOISE — Idaho dairy farmers plan to deliver milk to the front porch of the Statehouse to protest the nation's dairy policies.

As part of National Dairy Action Day, dairy farmers on Wednesday will sell milk for 86 cents a gallon on the steps of the Idaho Capitol. Organizers say a pair of Holsteins will also be on site for the demonstration.

Eighty-six cents is the amount Idaho dairy farmers receive for each gallon of milk they sell. But it costs roughly $1.29 to produce a gallon of milk and the average retail price is $2.38, said Bill Bullard, a spokesman for the Utah-Idaho Farmers Union.

More people applying to Lewis-Clark

LEWISTON — A third more people have sought admission to Lewis-Clark State College than at the same time last year, school officials said. But admission applications have increased only about 2 percent at the University of Idaho from a year ago.

Steven Bussolini, Lewis-Clark's admissions and financial aid director, said 442 people through March 15 sought admission to the college for this fall, compared with 331 people at the same time last year.

School fire caused by drying mop heads

NAMPA — Mop heads in a dryer are blamed for causing a fire that gutted the gymnasium at South Junior High School in Nampa, fire officials say.

The March 15 blaze caused an estimated $1 million in damage.

"There was oil on the mop heads, and organic oils are notorious for spontaneous combustion," Deputy State Fire Marshal Don Dillard said. The mop heads may have hit the door of the dryer, knocking them open and allowing the heads to fall into a pile of towels, which then ignited.

Speaker says court has harmed Indian rights

LEWISTON (AP) — U.S. Supreme Court decisions since the 1970s that have been devastating to Indian sovereignty, Nez Perce tribal attorney Douglas Nash of Winchester said.

And as a result, he said, Indians must be careful about what rights they fight for before the high court.

Nez Perce Tribal Executive Committee member Dale White joined Nash in discussing Indian sovereignty on Monday as part of Indian Awareness Week at Lewis-Clark State College.

More than 15 opinions have been issued by the court since 1978 that have chipped away both at sovereignty and at the confidence of Indians in the court, Nash said.

In several cases, Congress has had to step in and enact legislation that would counteract the court's rulings, he said. The two men said few realize that Indian tribes are sovereign nations, and should have all the rights of the U.S. government or any other national government.

He said Congress tried in 1953 to legislate away all supervision and federal support of Indian tribes to make them "equal" with other American citizens.

"The Indians never wanted to be equal," White said. "They wanted to be treated like they wanted to be treated."

The Supreme Court defines tribes as "domestic dependent nations" — neither part of the United States nor a foreign country.

Mayor says Highway 75 'bypass' around Hailey not an option

By Deborah Shimkus
Times-News correspondent

In an impassioned speech at Monday night's City Council meeting, Hailey Mayor Keith Roark expressed outrage that the idea of rerouting part of the highway to the railroad right-of-way was even considered in the study.

The Hailey City Council has been on record since 1974 as being strongly opposed to moving traffic to the right-of-way.

Roark pointed to the city's comprehensive plan, which states that the city of Hailey is unequivocally opposed to the use of the Union Pacific railroad right-of-way for highway use.

The right-of-way recently was developed into the Wood River Trail System, where residents can hike, walk, jog, cross-country ski, etc.

Taking traffic off Main Street and putting it on the railroad right-of-way, would not be bypassing Hailey, according to Roark. It would fundamentally be putting a highway through residential areas, he said.

"While we are perfectly willing to cooperate with improvements to Highway 75, we are not going to sacrifice the residential areas of this community so that somebody can get from Bellevue to Ketchum three or four minutes quicker," Roark said.

Councilwoman Mary Ann Mix, who served on the Transportation Study Committee, said that the study included the option of the bypass of Hailey because the purpose of the report is to provide the public with all possible alternatives.

Before the Idaho Transportation Department will even consider improvements on Highway 75, the community must arrive at a plan supported by the general population, as well as elected officials, according to Len Harlig, vice chairman of the Blaine County Planning and Zoning Commission.

"They aren't going to do this to us or for us without our approval," he said.

However, Roark expressed concern that the discussion of the bypass option in the report will give the Highway Department hope that it can use the Union Pacific right-of-way for the highway.

"They will look at this (the bypass option) like a vampire would look at a woman, with a long neck," Roark said.

The council agreed unanimously to pass a resolution stating its staunch position against routing the highway off Main Street onto the right-of-way. The public will have an opportunity to comment on the REAP study at town meetings to be scheduled this spring. Copies of the study are available from each city office.

Kimberly School Board OKs new teaching positions

By Cathryn Stephens
Times-News correspondent

KIMBERLY - The district may add some teachers to its staff roster if the money is available through 1991-1992 appropriations.

The School Board approved the addition of several new teaching positions including a junior-high school teacher, a junior high guidance counselor, a director of special services for the district and a first-grade teacher. It also approved making the secondary business-computer teacher position full-time.

The positions will be filled only if the money becomes available.

The board also discussed a request from the residents who live next to the future site of the new middle school.

The residents want a 12-foot access between the new building and their property. The board decided to draw up such an agreement in specific terms to avoid future problems.

A new bus route for kindergarten children was approved at the board's last meeting as well to provide full transportation. The state reimburses the district 85 percent of the total cost of busing. The district currently buses about 35 kindergarten children on two routes each day.

In other business:

Superintendent Richard Bauscher reported that two drivers education classes will be offered April-through June. Students who had driving permits in the past will be signed up for the classes first.

Diane Neale, Business Professionals of America advisor, reported to the board that three students will be attending a national competition after placing in the state competition. Daynane Bradshaw, Matt Morrell and Anne Taylor will represent the group at the national competition.

Cindy Wall, co-president of the Parent-Teacher-Organization reported that the group raised $4568 from the spring carnival.

Craig suggests canal treaty renegotiation

MOSCOW (AP) - A group of conservative lawmakers including Republican Sen. Larry Craig is asking the Bush administration to renegotiate the Panama Canal Treaty to keep U.S. troops stationed in the canal zone.

The proposal is in the interest of both countries, Craig spokesman David Fish said Tuesday, because it guarantees security against military coups within Panama and terrorist attacks on the series of canal locks.

However, the Panamanian government of Guillermo Endara, installed by American troops after the December 1989 invasion of that country, wants nothing to do with the idea.

Panama's foreign relations ministry has declared Panama will not renegotiate the treaty, said Analisa Mir, press attache for Panama's embassy in Washington, D.C.

"Our view is this proposal would require renegotiation of the treaty, and we will not renegotiate the treaty."

Low-income families seeking heating bill help have 3 days

BOISE — Time is running out for low-income families to apply for home-heating grants to help with bills for this winter.

Applications will be accepted until Friday at community action agencies throughout Idaho under a federal program administered by the Department of Health and Welfare.

People who already have received grants may be eligible for additional funds if they are facing a home-heating crisis, including a possible utility shut off.

"Due to increased fuel costs this winter, coupled with the harsh cold snap in December, Idaho has received additional funds to help people facing a heating crisis," said Neva Kaufman, Health and Welfare grant supervisor.

Kaufman said anyone participating in the Idaho Telephone Assistance Program must also apply for home-heating assistance by Friday to remain eligible for the telephone program.

For more information, contact the South Central Community Action Agency in Twin Falls at 733-9351.

Sexually active girl a dilemma for stepmom

DEAR ABBY: I have a beautiful teen-aged stepdaughter who lives with her mother and stepfather. Although "Betty" loves her mother, she has never been able to confide in her. She's very religious and fairly strict, so Betty comes to me with everything.

Betty recently told me that she lost her virginity to a boy she had been forbidden to see. She needed someone to talk to — someone who wouldn't put her down, and I was there for her. She begged me not to tell her mother. My heart aches for this girl, and my biggest fear is that she may become pregnant or contract a venereal disease.

We discussed condoms and birth control pills, but she can't get the pill without parental consent. I'd like to get the pill for her, and I think I could if she were to go to my doctor, but I wouldn't feel right doing it behind her mother's back.

Her mother and I are very good friends and she trusts me. If I get Betty the pill, will it make it easier for her to continue having sex? She's already told me that if she got pregnant, she would come to me for help.

— BETTY'S CONFIDANTE

DEAR CONFIDANTE: Every teen-ager needs a mature, non-judgmental person to whom he or she can turn for sound advice and counsel.

Dear Abby
Abigail VanBuren

Ideally, that person is a parent. But if that's not possible — as in Betty's case — Betty's mother should be grateful that her daughter has someone like you in her daughter's corner.

Since Betty has already lost her virginity, I doubt that she will stop now. Stress the fact that sex today can have very serious consequences; therefore, selectivity is vital. We now know a sexually transmitted disease can be fatal. So be sure she understands how to protect herself from pregnancy or disease.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing on behalf of Ida Ward Einton, the daughter of Lemuel T. Ward, to whom you gave credit for writing "The Hunter's Poem" — describing the tragedy of having shot a pair of geese in flight.

I would like to set the record straight. The poem is titled "Remorse" and was written by Truman P. Reitmeyer of Philadelphia. Ida would like the public to know that it was not her intention to mislead them. "Remorse" was one of her father's favorite poems, and was one of 100 or more that Lem used to recite to visitors to his decoy shop. He used to hand out copies of the poems he recited, and of course, he would be asked to autograph them. Although the poems were printed with the names of the authors, it was only Lem's signature that the happy visitor would be aware of upon leaving.

Lem never wrote a poem, but his brother, Steve, did — and I suppose this fact helps add to the confusion. Ida has received many phone calls from all over the country since you published that poem, and it would help if you could publish a correction.

Thank you!
— JACK R. SCHROEDER,
CRISFIELD, MD.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Focus on deadline, intensity, decision affecting personal relationship. Emphasis on durable goods, property, automobile. Display ability to function under pressure. Capricorn, Cancer persons play roles.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You might be sighing "At last, end of journey!" Scenario features trips, visits, relatives, long-range features. Highlight universal appeal. Paint on broad canvas. Aries plays key role.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You'll make fresh start and tremendous impact. Emphasize personality, independence, originality. You could headline "show." Romantic involvement more serious than anticipated. Aquarian represented.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You'll no longer be "fearing the dark." Focus on inside information, special tour of home, hospital, museum. Family member "explains" bizarre plan. Maintain balance, perspective. Say, "Not!"

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Diversify, socialize, laugh at your own foibles. Celebration featured as you win friends, influence people. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Gemini, Sagittarius, Pisces.

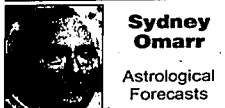

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Credit previously withheld will be given without further question. Check fine print, read between lines, express willingness to revise special material. Spotlight on career, prestige, fulfillment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Cycle highlights travel, investigation, discovery. You exude personal magnetism, sex appeal. Serious consideration given to marital status. You'll be asked to delineate motives. Comply!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Focus on service, ability to "fix things" at home. Family member surprises with invitation to dinner. Impromptu style, head inner voice. Scenario also features music, abundance of love.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Answers are found by looking behind scenes. Scenario accents the subtle, innuendoes, hidden clues. Focus on teaching, learning, streamlining techniques. Pisces, Virgo are in picture.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emphasis on marital status, partnership, legal agreement. Justice prevails following minor crisis. Other individual, formerly opponent, will be on your side. Capricorn plays significant role.

What's what?

The sexual aggressors
It was the women of ancient Egypt, always, who were the sexual aggressors, according to some historians.

Johnny Appleseed did his part to spread apple trees across North America. But that fruit's real pioneer, it's said, were those frontiersmen who craved hard cider. Pie was lagnappe.

Q Who invented baseball cards?
A Cigarette sellers. They wanted cardboard stiffeners in their packs. And at first, couldn't care less what was printed on the cardboard.

If you'd said you'd "totaled" your car 25 years ago, nobody would've known what you meant.

WHITE UNDERWEAR
German soldiers afield during World War II dried their washed white underwear on tree limbs. That's not why Germany lost that war. But it was why allied intelligence gatherers paid closer attention to aerial photographs. The history of military reconnaissance owes much to white underwear.

An old courteous handshake of the Reservation Navajo is a limp three-fingered offering. A hat hand grip is considered offensively aggressive.

Q When did Abraham Lincoln say, "God must have loved the common people - He made so many of them?"
A He didn't, according to researcher Richard Shenkman who says that line was delivered in 1928 by one James Morgan.

An expert on vampire bats says those little beasts prefer to hunt on moonless nights.

JUGGLING
Q To juggle three balls, how do you start?
A Hold two in one hand, one in the other. Toss up one from the two-hand. When it starts down, toss up the one from the one-hand. When it starts down, toss up the remaining one from the two-hand.

Those who know the sea say that sort of jellyfish known as the sea wasp is far more dangerous to humans than sharks.

Q Which river, next to the Amazon, has the most water?
A The Congo.

SPRING GREEN SALAD
 Raspberry Basil Vinaigrette (recipe follows)
 2 cans (16 ounces each) peach slices in juice or extra light syrup
 4 to 5 quarts mixed salad greens, torn into bite-sized pieces
 1 large red bell pepper, cut into thin strips
 1 cup crumbled feta cheese
 Prepare Raspberry Vinaigrette; set aside. Drain peaches, reserving all liquid for other uses. In large salad bowl, lightly toss together salad greens, peaches, pepper strips and cheese. Toss with dressing before serving.
 Makes 8 servings.

RASPBERRY BASIL VINAIGRETTE
 ½ cup olive oil
 3 tablespoons raspberry or red wine vinegar
 1 teaspoon Dijon-style mustard
 1 teaspoon dry basil leaves
 ¼ teaspoon black pepper
 Whisk together all ingredients until well combined.

Fricassee

 Dutch oven or deep saute pan, heat oil and brown chicken parts a few pieces at a time. As they brown, remove and set aside.
 Add carrots, celery, onion and leeks to pan and saute, 2 to 3 minutes. Arrange chicken in pot and add stock, white wine, water and bouquet garni. Bring to a simmer, lower heat, cover and cook about 25 minutes. Remove pieces of breast meat, cook dark meat 10 to 15 minutes longer, or until tender. Keep chicken warm and covered in a serving dish.
 Strain cooking broth, discarding vegetables and bouquet garni. Return broth to pot and boil vigorously until reduced to 2 cups.
 Blanch mushrooms 1 minute in boiling water; drain well. Cook whole unpeeled onions in boiling water for 3 minutes. Drain and rinse immediately in cold water. Cut off root end and gently squeeze stem end until onion slips out.
 In clean Dutch oven, heat 2 tablespoons oil; saute carrots 1 minute; add remaining onions and celery and cook until tender. Stir in broth and bring to simmer.
 In a separate bowl, combine cream, egg yolks and nutmeg with a whisk. Remove a cup of broth from the casserole and very slowly whisk cream mixture into it. Return to Dutch oven and bring to simmer. Season, if necessary, with salt and pepper. Return chicken to pot and cook 1 minute over very low heat. Makes 6 servings.

Coupons

 there are also coupons that are mailed to customers or printed on the back of cash register tapes.
 A two-year-old NCH study pegged the average weekly grocery bill at $74. Adding inflation since that study, NCH spokesman Edward Dunn figures it has risen to about $89. The same study pegged the average coupon savings — before extra store discounts — at $6 per bill, or 8.1 percent.
 But coupon-clipping can go far beyond that 8 percent.
 Martin Sloane, executive officer of the National Alliance of Supermarket Shoppers and author of a weekly newspaper column on grocery shopping, said that the average price for an item purchased with a coupon was $1.25. That would mean that the average coupon returns 40 percent of the cost of average good.

RATINGS
 The five category system of the voluntary film industry rating program is now as follows:
G - General audiences, all ages admitted.
PG - Parental Guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.
PG-13 - Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for children.
R - Restricted, under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.
NC-17 - No one under 17 admitted.

Times to cook the perfect ham

Place the ham, straight from the refrigerator, in a shallow roasting pan.
 By using a meat thermometer, there's no guesswork. Simply insert the thermometer so the tip does not touch bone or fat.
 Add water or liquid as directed. Cover pan tightly with aluminum foil. Roast in 325 degrees oven. Do not preheat oven except for hams 2 pounds or under. Remove the ham from the oven when the thermometer registers 135 degrees; the temperature will continue to rise to 140 degrees as it stands. Allow the ham to stand 10 minutes for easier carving.

CHOCOLATE LAYER CHEESECAKE
 1/3 cup cold butter or margarine
 1 package (16 ounces) pound cake mix
 3 packages (8 ounces each) cream cheese, softened
 ¼ cup sugar
 1½ teaspoons vanilla extract
 3 eggs
 2 ½ cup (4 ounces) semi-sweet chocolate morsels, melted
 Strawberries and raspberries for garnish currant or apple jelly, melted
 In mixing bowl, cut butter into pound cake mix until evenly distributed. Reserve 1 cup crumb mixture.
 Remove half of batter (about 2 cups) to separate bowl. Stir in melted chocolate; spread over crumb crust. Sprinkle reserved 1 cup crumb mixture evenly over chocolate layer. Top with remaining cheese mixture, spreading gently to cover. Return to oven and bake for 45 to 50 minutes, until just set; cool. Refrigerate 8 hours or overnight. Decorate with whole and sliced berries; brush with melted jelly.

 Makes 12 servings.

New standards allow more pickle stems

WASHINGTON (AP) - A bit more of the stem may be left on pickles under revisions of voluntary grading standards, the Agriculture Department has said.
 Daniel D. Haley, administrator of the department's Agricultural Marketing Service, said the revisions will be the first major changes in pickle standards in more than 20 years.
 The revisions, which will become effective April 23, eliminate the minimum salt standard, reduce the minimum acidity standard, permit "a little" stem, and extend the grading standards to refrigerated types of pickles.

Pruning trains, boosts fruit tree production

Yearly pruning of fruit trees will help improve fruit quality and increase the amount of fruit set on lower branches where it is easier to pick.

Allen Wilson Gardening

Young fruit trees need training to encourage the development of branches on the lower part of the trunk. If several branches have not been formed two to three feet above the ground, the main trunk should be pruned by a three to four foot height to encourage branch development.

Without pruning, fruit trees develop too many major branches along the trunk. Some of these branches should be removed so that plenty of light reaches the inner and lower branches.

Without adequate light, lower branches will gradually produce less fruit until all the fruit is concentrated in the upper part of the tree.

The more nearly horizontal a branch grows, the earlier and heavier their form matches these ideals. Trees which have not been pruned adequately each year may need to have some larger branches removed. Those which are crossing or growing into each other should be removed first.

Retain those which are most horizontal or parallel to the ground. Some middle height branches can be removed to allow branches at the lowest level to receive more light.

The main pruning job on established fruit trees is to thin out or remove excessive small branches so that more light can reach those which remain. This also reduces the number of fruits somewhat, resulting in larger fruit with better color. Normally 1/3 to 1/2 of the smallest branches are removed back to their origin.

Whenever two branches grow into each other or cross, one should be removed. All of the branches which grow toward the center of the tree should be removed. Outward growing or horizontal branches should be favored over upright, vertical branches because they will bear fruit sooner and more abundantly. Thin branches which bend downward are usually removed or shortened.

I have prepared a leaflet on pruning which contains detailed instructions and pictures on training and pruning fruit trees.

It also contains instructions and pictures for pruning shade and ornamental trees, shrubs, evergreens, hedges and small fruits such as raspberry. For a copy send $1 and a self-addressed envelope with two stamps to Allen Wilson, P.O. Box 343, Rexburg, Idaho 83440.

Be vigilant for a safe gas furnace

By Nick Harder
 Orange County Register

Nearly 25 years ago, a relative of mine watched in horror as her family's house burned.

A recent gas leak in my own home brought back those memories. A friend of mine was about to leave my house when he said he smelled gas. We quickly followed the smell to the furnace in my garage.

Not wanting to take a chance, I pulled the plug that powered the furnace and opened the garage doors and the door to the outside. Within a few minutes, the odor was gone.

The next day, I called Southern California Gas Co. and asked that an inspector be sent out. It only took Wes Beeson a few minutes to locate the problem - a loose pilot-light tube - and tighten it.

If you suspect a problem with a gas furnace, here are some tips from the gas company:

- If you smell gas, don't light a match.
- Don't turn electrical appliances or lights on or off or use the telephone in your home, since these devices might produce sparks.
- If the smell persists, call the gas company from outside the home. Or call the fire department.
- Here are a few other tips:
 - Keep insulation away from all heat sources, such as furnaces.
 - Keep openings to the furnace air supply free of insulation.

Smoke detectors have a variety of features for a variety of needs

Q: I'd like to have new smoke detectors in my home but would prefer they be wired to the house current so I wouldn't have to worry about battery failure. Are detectors of this type available? — R. Scullion.

A: Smoke detectors that can be connected directly to household wiring are available. Mike Gipson, product manager of Fire Alert, a leading manufacturer of detectors, said "hard-wired" detectors were used mostly in new homes and were installed by contractors because of the wiring required.

Do-it-yourselfers who understand electrical wiring can install them without difficulty, however.

Although a hard-wired detector won't have battery failure, there can be a lapse in performance because of a power outage.

For that reason, many hard-wired detectors include a battery backup that takes over if the main power fails.

However, battery-operated detectors remain the best bet for most homes because they can be placed in strategic spots without the need to run wiring.

Use of long-lasting alkaline batteries can keep detectors reliable, but both battery and alarm should be tested periodically.

Manufacturers regularly add new smoke detectors with special features. A recent addition to the First Alert line, for example, is a special detector for kitchens with a button to control nuisance alarms caused by normal cooking. Pushing the button temporarily increases the level of smoke needed to set off the alarm.

A smoke detector equipped with an escape light, which turns on if the alarm is activated, is another excellent feature.

Q: My home has three skylights at the top of shafts in the ceiling. In cold weather the skylights get condensation, and moisture drips into the house. What can I do about this? — D. Thatcher.

A: I suspect these are single-glass skylights, which are much more subject to condensation than double-glass or insulated units.

The condensation results, of course, when warm air carries moisture up into the shaft and contacts the cold skylight surface. A strategy that sometimes works is to seal the shaft openings with acrylic "storm windows" that help keep moist air from entering the shafts and contacting the cold skylights. Probably the ultimate solution is to replace the skylights with "modern" insulated units designed to resist condensation.

Q: I'd like to build a very basic workbench in my basement, something as simple as possible. Can you help? — H. Luffler.

A: Many home centers and building-supply outlets sell hardware kits that can be used with stock lumber to build simple but sturdy workbenches.

One of the simplest and best I've seen uses a kit called SteelCity Legs, made by Steel City Corp., of Youngstown, Ohio. The legs and ends of the bench are assembled from bolt-together metal channels. A single sheet of three-quarter-inch plywood is then sawed into pieces, with a cutting guide supplied with the kit, to form a bench top five feet long, two feet wide and 1 1/2 inches thick (two layers are used for the top). The plywood sheet also provides enough wood for a shelf and braces.

Also available at most home centers are such workbench accessories as tool racks that can be attached to the back of the bench and perforated panels and metal hooks for hanging tools on walls.

Do-it-yourselfers who have occasional need for a sizable work surface can rig it up quickly by buying a set of folding sawhorses for the legs and a hollow-core door for the top.

A temporary bench of this type is fine for purchasing, furniture assembly, refinishing and similar projects but shouldn't be used for heavy-duty pounding. Hollow-core doors are relatively inexpensive and light enough to be easily carried and stored.

Readers' questions and comments are welcome and should be sent to Gene Austin, The Philadelphia Inquirer, Box 2263, Philadelphia, Pa. 19101. Questions cannot be answered personally.

Market rises in sweeping rally

Market rises in sweeping rally

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Stocks closed broadly higher Tuesday as consumers' confidence in the economy rose sharply and institutional investors tried to put the best face on the first quarter.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 45.01 to 2,114.35.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by 2-to-1 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 1,041 up, 537 down and 475 unchanged.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 198.72 million shares, up from 153.92 million in the previous session.

Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 240.97 million shares.

Stocks gained momentum after the release of the Conference Board's Consumer Confidence Index, which rose to 81 in March from 59.4 in February.

It was the largest single month-to-month gain in the survey's 24 years.

Analysts said the report provided firm evidence the economy was headed for better days.

An equally important factor in the market's move was a phenomenon known as "window dressing." That is, when investment managers make quick, profitable trades at the end of a quarter to boost a portfolio's earnings and the manager's image.

More than 100 stocks posted new highs during trading Tuesday.

Financial services closed higher, with Citicorp up $\frac{1}{4}$ at 14 $\frac{1}{2}$ in yellow, with more than 2.4 million shares changing hands. BankAmerica Corp. of San Francisco closed up $\frac{1}{2}$ at 36 $\frac{1}{2}$ on volume of about 1.8 million shares.

Other blue chips advanced slightly, with IBM up $\frac{1}{4}$ at 113 $\frac{1}{2}$; Sears Roebuck up $\frac{1}{8}$ at 36 $\frac{1}{2}$; and Chrysler up $\frac{1}{4}$ to 14 $\frac{1}{2}$.

Losers included two top oil service companies, Halliburton Co. closed down 3 at 46 and Schlumberger Ltd. was down $\frac{1}{2}$ at 59 $\frac{1}{2}$. Losers also included two bank stocks, Citicorp and BankAmerica Corp. of San Francisco.

Several over-the-counter technology issues were higher.

Midway Airlines files for bankruptcy

The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Midway Airlines Inc., a regional carrier that soared to success with low fares but ran into the effects of the Persian Gulf crisis, said Tuesday it had filed for reorganization under the federal bankruptcy code.

It became the third airline to file for court protection from creditors under Chapter 11 since December.

Midway, which operates 53 destinations in the United States, U.S. Virgin Islands and the Bahamas, blamed the move on the decline in air travel and increases in jet fuel prices that followed the onset of the Persian Gulf crisis last summer.

"Despite the end of the Gulf War, the airline industry continues to suffer the effects of the recession," says a spokeswoman for reorganization, who declined to give names of creditors but said the airline had lost more than $40 million in income to cover operating costs during the reorganization, which would enable it to continue "business as usual."

All tickets will be honored and no flights will be canceled, she said.

In its filing late Monday in U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Chicago, Midway listed assets of $7.8 million and liabilities of $22.5 million.

However, "there is a strong indication that the worst is behind us," Hinson said, citing a record number of bookings this month, a "partial decline in fuel prices," and the expectation of more of the sale of the carrier's Philadelphia hub.

Sales of 'big ticket' items declines, confidence rises

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Orders for "big ticket" manufactured goods fell again in February as American industry remained mired in recession, but economists took partial comfort from a separate report Tuesday that showed consumer confidence surging in the wake of the Persian Gulf War.

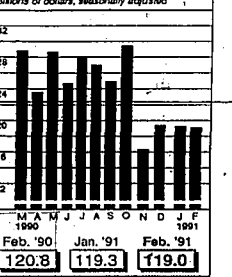

The Commerce Department said that orders for durable goods, everything from appliances to airplanes, dropped 0.3 percent in February, the third setback in the past four months.

But in a sign that better days could be ahead, a closely watched gauge of consumer confidence staged a giant rebound following the war victory, rising to 81 in March from 59.4 in February.

It was the biggest one-month gain in the 24-year history of the survey by the Conference Board, and it bolstered the Board's administration's contention that the quick end of the war will spell a quick end to the recession by giving consumers more faith in the future.

However, private economists cautioned against reading too much into the big jump in sentiment.

They said consumers might feel more upbeat, but they were still saddled

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOFF

"You don't learn to hold your own in the world by standing on guard, but by attacking, and getting well-hammered yourself."

— George Bernard Shaw.

Given no problems in the trump suit, today's South put his hopes on succeeding with either of two defenses. Good odds, to be sure, but he did miss an extra shot that would have improved his chances of winning 10 tricks.

By agreement, South bid his higher-ranking, fourth-card major over hearts—imagine his partner and the odds-on game was reached, and West took his two high clubs and switched safely to a trump when East followed low-high South won, drew the remaining trumps and cashed the heart ace, a heart led dummy's jack lost to East's queen, and the game now depended on the slim chance that the diamond finesse would win. Predictably it didn't, and the game fell out to West.

Why should South have played to drop East's doubtless heart queen? Since the game is cold if either opponent holds both missing key honors (as long as hearts are not 4:1), South should adopt a safety play to guard against a heart split. East queen with West 10. West started with Q-x-x. West would then lead safe and South would be in a crotch for 10 tricks.

Had East held three hearts including the queen, the safety play would have cost nothing. The game would then have depended on the diamond finesse, a possibility for which South had no counter.
