Stallings takes next step in senate bid

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Four-term Democratic Congressman Richard Stallings says he's putting together a campaign organization to run against veteran Republican Steve Symms in next year's U.S. Senate election. While he won't make the formal announcement until later, Stallings told a news conference in Washington Tuesday he's naming an exploratory committee "to formally explore the viability of a Senate race."

It would be no easy task. Symms, who celebrated his 53rd birthday Tuesday, is unbeaten in six congressional elections, with four victories in the 1st Congressional District and twice winning a U.S. Senate campaign against a formidable Democrat.

"I have taken a hard look at the factors that contribute to such a decision. All of the signs are positive, and I am ready to take this next important step," Stallings said.

He acknowledged that a recent poll helped him make a decision over the weekend, which he privately communicated with Democratic leaders on Monday.

Darrington, Stubbs, Jones consider 2nd District race

TWIN FALLS — Jockeying for the 2nd-District Congressional seat being vacated by Democrat Richard Stallings has begun.

With Stallings' announcement Tuesday that he intends to try to win the U.S. Senate seat from Republican Steve Symms, handfuls of names from both parties were flying about in the political wind, including a few stumblers from the left.

"It was very encouraging. That was sort of the final push...the results were so positive," he said.

There was no immediate comment from Symms, but an aide said the senator would issue a statement on Wednesday. He's expected to seek a third Senate term.

Idaho economy earns below-average grades

By Craig Lincoln
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho earned below-average grades in an economic study released by an private research group Tuesday.

Idaho received two Cs and two Ds from the Corporation for Enterprise Development, a group that favors what it calls government "investment" in education, infrastructure and technology.

"Idaho's economy has put in an average economic performance, but poor business vitality, just-adequate development resources and a meager state policy effort pose major challenges for the state's future economic growth," the research group said.

The fourth-best literacy rate in the country, effective international marketing and high short-term employment growth were among the bright spots in the report. But poor and unequal job quality, little industrial diversity and low education funding helped drag down Idaho's grades.

Idaho received a C in economic performance, largely because of short-term job growth. The state also earned a C in development capacity, a measure of human, technology, capital, amenities and infrastructure capacity.

But the state only earned Ds in business vitality and state policy. Lack of industrial diversity pulled the state vitality grade down; and various factors, including bad highways and meager educational funding, hurt its state policy grade.

Group cites 5 states as best economic models

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Five states earned top grades for strengthening their economies with sound investments designed to generate job and income growth, according to a report card issued Tuesday by a private research group.

The Corporation for Enterprise Development said Connecticut, Maryland, Minnesota, New Jersey and Pennsylvania made its honor roll for their economic performance, business vitality, development capacity and government policy.

Connecticut and Maryland got straight As, Minnesota and New Jersey each had three As and one B and Pennsylvania, three Bs and an A.

Louisiana, on the other hand, got straight Fs, trailing West Virginia with three Fs and a D and Montana with three Ds and an F.

The top-ranked states have turned away from the short-term "smoke-stack chasing" of the 1960s and 1970s, when governments offered tax and rent inducements to lure industries, Doug Ross, CED president, told a news conference.

Instead, they are investing in fundamentals including education, technology, financial capacity, physical infrastructures and amenities, Ross said.

Pentagon picks Lockheed bid for jet contract

Boston Globe

WASHINGTON — Georgia and Texas beat Missouri and California Tuesday in the Air Force contest over who gets the nearly $100 billion contract to build the first jet fighter of the 21st century. The decision could affect not only the nature of air warfare but also the shape of the already truncated aerospace industry, analysts say.

Lockheed, General Dynamics and Boeing — based in Marietta, Ga., Ft. Worth, Texas and Seattle — won the bid with their jointly designed prototype plane, the YF-22, nicknamed "Lightning II."

Northrop and McDonnell-Douglas — based in Hawthorne, Calif. and St. Louis — lost with their YF-23, also known as the "Gray Ghost."

Each team of companies had invested over $1 billion of their own money to develop the prototype.

The Pratt & Whitney division of United Technologies Corp. was chosen to provide engines for the new fighter, defeating General Electric Co., a spokesman at General Electric's plant in Lynn, Mass., said its engine was being developed primarily at the company's Evendale, Ohio, plant. He said as many as 1,000 jobs could be affected by the loss of the contract, probably about 200 of them in Lynn.

Bush dishes out praise for general

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush welcomed Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf to the White House Tuesday with accolades for his "fantastic" leadership of the U.S. military in the Persian Gulf War.

The four-star general, home only two days from the Midwest, had lunch with the commander in chief and several of Bush's top advisers.

Bush later joked, "You should've seen the guy eat." Schwarzkopf also met in an informal welcome-home with Colin Powell, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and other service chiefs at the Pentagon before heading back to his command post at McDill Air Force Base, Fla.

Bush signed congressional legislation awarding gold medals to Schwarzkopf for his "exemplary performance as a military leader" in the war and to Powell for his service as "a military leader and adviser to the president" during the crisis.

The medals, costing $30,000 each, were specially struck to honor the two officers. Bronze duplicates were to be sold to make back the money, aides said.

Bush said in welcoming Schwarzkopf back from the gulf that he told the general:

"Well done. And what he and his troops did ... in terms of fulfilling our objectives is fantastic. What he and his troops did for the morale of the United States of America is unbelievable."

"We have a great team in (Defense Secretary Dick) Cheney and General Powell and General Schwarzkopf, and the country knows it. You can feel it. Anytime you get out of this place, why, you sense it. It is fantastic. And I told him that, and congratulated him."

During a photo session before lunch, Schwarzkopf said he was taking a cue from the president in dealing with reporters' questions.

Weather summary
 The National Weather Service in Boise reported mostly dry and mild weather Tuesday, but it predicts it will be cooler and wet Wednesday.
 Other than some afternoon showers and thunderstorms, mostly in the mountains, the Gem State enjoyed a beautiful spring day Tuesday with above normal temperatures.
 A Pacific frontal system located along the West Coast Tuesday afternoon is expected to bring a good chance of rain to the western part of the state by Wednesday morning. It will spread across the state by afternoon.
 Temperatures will be much cooler as the frontal system passes and will remain cool into the weekend.
 At 3 p.m. Tuesday, Lewiston had a very light rain shower in progress for the only precipitation reported in Idaho. Pocatello reported winds of 15 to 20 mph.
 Temperatures at 3 p.m. included Lewiston 71, Boise 70, Coeur d'Alene 66, Pocatello and Twin Falls with 62, and McCall with 59.
 The warmest temperature in the state Tuesday was 78 degrees at Hagerman. Powell reported the coldest at 22 degrees.
 Elsewhere in the nation Tuesday, the highest temperature was 95 degrees at Laredo, Texas. The lowest was 18 degrees at Pinedale, Wyo.

Strong thunderstorms strike Southeast
 The Associated Press
 Strong thunderstorms buffeted parts of the Southeast on Tuesday. Rain was scattered across the Midwest and cold weather returned to the north-central states.
 Showers and thunderstorms developed south of a stationary front curving across the Southeast.
 Before daybreak, showers and thunderstorms over southern Alabama and Georgia produced 2.06 inches of rain at Albany, Ga., and 1.08 inches at Dothan, Ala.
 By afternoon, thunderstorms extended across much of the northern half of Florida.
 Thunderstorms over northeastern Florida produced high wind that uprooted trees and downed power lines around Green Cove Springs. Wind damaged a light plane at Keystone Heights, the National Weather Service said.
 Heavier rainfall totals for the six hours up to 2 p.m. EDT included 2.07 inches at Jacksonville, Fla., 1.32 inches at Brunswick, Ga., and 1.16 inches at Mayport, Fla.

Committee sends gun bill to full House
 WASHINGTON - The House Judiciary Committee approved a seven-day waiting period for handgun purchases Tuesday, paving the way for debate by the full House. The measure, supporters say will help stem the nation's crime epidemic.
 The panel approved the so-called Brady bill on a 23-11 vote after rejecting an alternative proposal to require "point-of-sale" checks of computerized criminal records.
 The amendment failed on a 23-11 vote. Its sponsor, Rep. Harley O. Staggers Jr., D-W.Va., plans to propose the provision again when the full House debates the issue. The amendment has 100 cosponsors.
 Both sides say they expect a close vote when the Brady bill comes to the House floor in two weeks.
 The bill gained momentum last month when it was endorsed by ex-President Reagan, who had long opposed the measure. The White House has signaled a softening of its opposition to the bill, indicating it might accept it if Congress passes key elements of President Bush's crime bill.
Singer Houston charged with assault
 LEXINGTON, Ky. - Whitney Houston was charged in a summons Tuesday with punching a man in the eye and threatening to kill him during a fight in a hotel lounge.

 Ransom Brotherton of Lexington filed a complaint alleging that Miss Houston assaulted him Friday night in a hotel lounge when he tried to break up a fight.
 Brotherton said the fight involved the singer's brother, Michael Houston, and Michael Owens of Austin, Texas, in the lounge of the Radisson Plaza hotel.
White House: Sununu paid $47,000
 WASHINGTON - White House chief of staff John Sununu and the Republican Party reimbursed the government $47,000 for personal and personal trips that cost taxpayers more than a half million dollars, according to documents released Tuesday.
 Sununu listed most of his travel on military planes, including visits to Colorado ski resorts and repeated trips to his home state of New Hampshire, as official business.
 The documents were distributed by the White House amid a political uproar over Sununu's extensive use of government aircraft for personal and political business. Democrats already have instituted a congressional audit of his travel expenses.

3rd biggest program on budget tabbed for borrowing

WASHINGTON (AP) - The federal budget the Senate began debating Tuesday contains an undebated $210 billion item - third largest amount in the bill - that buys no federal services at all.
 It's the ever-increasing interest on the national debt and a figure that rarely comes up when lawmakers debate spending priorities.
 As the Senate began debate on the $1.45 trillion budget for next year, most of the discussion focused on a plan by Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., to slightly cut the Social Security payroll tax.
 President Bush sent lawmakers a letter declaring that Moynihan's proposal "could... threaten to bankrupt the Social Security system."
 On Monday, Moynihan said such concern over an expanded and amounting to "an effort to frighten seniors."
 The budget under consideration, written mostly by majority Democrats, would spend more on social programs, such as education and Medicare, than President Bush, and less on science and space.

 Whatever spending plan is agreed to, it will include nearly $210 billion for interest on the nation's debt.
 The House approved a fiscal plan last week with $209.8 billion for interest. The budget Bush introduced in February proposed spending $206 billion. Either way, next year will be the first time the figure will surpass $200 billion as the federal interest payment continues the sharp climb begun during the Reagan years.

 Magic Valley.
 "I would consider a congressional run," said state Sen. Denton Darrington, a Declo Republican serving his fifth term in Boise. "You just have to wait a little bit to see how it shakes out."
 Darrington said another state Senate Republican is receiving much support, and he's waiting to see what happens with President Pro Tem Mike Crapp's bid.
 Crapp said he needs to do more planning before he announces his candidacy.
 "I think that I have good support and I wouldn't toss my hat into the ring if I didn't think I could win the general election," he said.
 First-term Republican state Rep. Mark Stubbs of Twin Falls is also considering the race.
 Stubbs, a former Twin Falls County GOP chairman, represents eight counties in his floriater seat in the House. But floriater seats will be abolished following the 1990 Census, so if he wants to stay in politics, Stubbs would be an option.
 "It'd be a big step, but certainly it would be a logical step," he said, and he has been asked to run.
 "I'm flattered and complimented and I certainly think I could do the job," Stubbs said. "Let's just say, 'I'd certainly be interested in the prospects but I'm far from having committed any time or resources to the effort.'"
 State Sen. Lynn Tominga, R-Rupert, said he has considered the race, but decided against running.
 "Now, let Mike (Crapp) take on whoever the Democrats can come up with," Tominga said.
 Despite the number of Republicans interested in the seat, Tominga said Crapp "will scare about half of them away."
 Other Republicans who have expressed interest include state Sen. John Hansen of Idaho Falls, Ada County Commissioner Gary Glenn, former state Sen. Dan Watkins of Idaho Falls and former GOP State Treasurer Larry Eastland.
 In addition, former Attorney General Jim Jones said he was considering the race.

Stallings

 Democrat opposition for the party nomination, Symms could, Milton Erhart, Boise stock broker who made an unsuccessful bid for the GOP gubernatorial nomination last year, said he's 45-60 days away from deciding whether to run for the Republican Senate nomination.
 "That would probably move intentions of running up a notch," he said, after Stallings' announcement.
 Stallings, 50, a former Ricks College teacher, beat seven cent-right Republican congressmen George-Hansen in 1984, the first Democrat to capture the seat in 20 years. He has handily won three times since then.
 Symms has an even better record, capturing the House seat in 1972, winning re-election three times and beating a 24-year veteran senator Frank Church in 1980. Symms defeated John Evans, at the time winding up 10 years as governor for his second year in 1986.
 Stallings immediately launched what could become his campaign theme, that Symms has been ineffective in his long service in Congress.
 "Steve Symms is extraordinarily vulnerable - let there be no mistake about that. Idaho is changing - Steve Symms has not."
 "I firmly believe that he has fallen out of step with Idaho and Idahoans, and has become an ineffective minority within the minority in the Senate," Stallings said.
 He said Symms' own statements will be used against him. "...whether the issue is the nuclear waste coming into the state or expanding to the special interest groups or excessive abuse heaped upon those who choose to disagree with him."
 Stallings said membership on his exploratory committee has already been accepted by state Sen. Mary Lou Reed of Coeur d'Alene, Boise pediatrician David Peterman, Boise attorney Nick Miller and Oakley farmer Mike Crann. He said others from southern and eastern Idaho would join the panel soon. His responsibility will be to raise $30,000 to $40,000 to finance initial planning for the campaign.
 When Republican James McClure retired from the U.S. Senate last year, leaving the seat open, Stallings was one of six across the state who reasons why he decided to run this time, against an incumbent.
 "We have some time. First, there's enough time to raise the necessary funds to make it a competitive race. And then we're not doing a farm bill this year, so we're not doing much of his time last year."
 Stallings said his campaign goal is $2 million, admittedly less than Symms could raise. "There's no way I can outspend him, and I don't intend to," he said.

 to question Bush, but he invoked his often-broken rule of not answering questions at the sessions.
 Instead he called on Schwarzkopf, saying, "Would you like to see how a guy would handle the press?" Crapp, the Norm, ... and don't change your style."
 Schwarzkopf was asked if he thought Bush should have kept the Persian Gulf war going longer.
 "I don't see any reason to answer any questions. I damn sure am not going to answer any questions," he said.
 Schwarzkopf said in a recent interview with television interviewer David Frost that he had recommended continuing to prosecute the war.
 That prompted the White House to quickly assert that Schwarzkopf and all of Bush's advisers had been in agreement to cut off the offensive when Bush did it.

 A reporter joked that Schwarzkopf was difficult to recognize in his dark dress uniform instead of the desert camouflage he wore in the Middle East.
 "First time I've had these on in eight months," Schwarzkopf replied.
 Bush later joked in arriving late for a speech at the Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md., that he had been detained by the lunch with the hefy general.
 "He hadn't had a good meal in a long time. You should've seen the guy eat. So were a little late. I tell you, we can't afford to invite him, over there any more," the president said.
 Schwarzkopf has announced he will retire next fall.

The story Tuesday incorrectly reported that Blaine County Commissioner Alan Reynolds said actor Bruce Willis, a Blaine County homeowner, should pay for the replacement of an access bridge, which is adjacent to Willis' property, and spans the Big Wood River. During a discussion about gathering donations for reconstruction of the bridge, Reynolds said the project would be paid for by the county. To show he's a good neighbor, Reynolds said. Allies establish control over northern Iraqi city

ZAKHO, Iraq (AP) — U.S. Marines tightened their control on this northern Iraqi city Tuesday, ordering 50 Iraqi soldiers to leave the area and demanding that a menacing police presence be reduced.

Kurdish refugees unload a U.S. helicopter of food on the mountaintop of the Iskeveren refugee camp.

However, three days after the Marines entered northern Iraq as the vanguard of a multinational force to create a safe haven for Kurdish refugees, residents indicated they were still too frightened to talk to foreign reporters.

Dozens of Iraqi police officers walked the streets of the nearby deserted city, which once was home to about 50,000 people. Most of its residents fled into the mountains after the collapse of the Kurdish rebellion against Saddam Hussein.

Some of the police, who are loyal to Saddam, carried AK-47 automatic rifles and hovered over private conversations. "Saddam is good, good," one told reporters.

Marines guarded the perimeter of a tent city being assembled for refugees within sight of the city. They reported nightly machine gun fire in the hills overlooking the valley, evidence of continued sporadic fighting between Kurdish rebels and Iraqi troops.

The relief operation for the estimated 850,000 Kurds in the high mountains along the border between Iraq and Turkey continued unabated. Supplies moved out constantly to the refugees by air and road.

The U.S. European Command in Stuttgart, Germany, said that by Monday, allied forces had supplied 4,732 tons of relief supplies to refugees with planes from the United States, Britain, France, Canada and Italy.

An additional 1.5 million Kurds are thought to have fled to the mountainous region along the Iraq-Iraq border. Shiite Muslims, who flocked to a rebellion in southern Iraq, also have sought refuge in Iran.

In Washington, the White House said Tuesday that Iran had accepted a U.S. offer to provide assistance for refugees in Iran. Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said it was still being decided whether the aid would be flown directly to Iran by American planes or supplied through third parties.

In other related developments Tuesday:

• Diplomats reported that some of the Iraqi planes that were mysteriously flown into Iran during the Gulf war had been repainted with Iranian air force insignias.

• The son of Iran's late Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini lashed out at any move by Iran to improve relations with the West, according to a broadcast on Tehran radio.

• Refugees arriving in Iran from southern Iraq said opposition forces continued to clash nightly with Saddam's Republican Guard in the predominantly Shiite Muslim region.

Baker spends full day with Assad

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Nearing the end of his Mideast mission, Secretary of State James A. Baker III said Tuesday he had a "useful discussion" in lengthy talks with Syria's president but would not say whether agreement was closer on an Arab-Israeli peace conference.

After nearly 10 hours of talks with Hafez Assad, Baker prepared for a quick side trip to the Soviet Union to talk to Foreign Minister Alexander A. Besmertnykh about cosponsoring the conference.

In Washington, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said Baker and Besmertnykh would discuss "the Middle East peace process, the situation in the Persian Gulf and arms control."

In Moscow, Vitaly Ignatenko, a spokesman for President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, said the two foreign ministers probably would also discuss plans for a Bush-Gorbachev summit meeting. He reiterated that the Soviet leader hopes for a June summit and said one would probably be held then, but Fitzwater said no date had been set.

A tired-looking Baker, asked after his meeting with Assad whether he had made progress, said: "I hope we did. We'll see."

He told reporters as he returned to his hotel room: "We had some useful discussion." Asked if the Syrians agreed, Baker said: "I'm not going to speak for other countries."

Assad may hold the key, on the Arab side, to whether the United States succeeds in producing negotiations to end the 43-year Arab-Israeli conflict and addressing the demands of 1.7 million Palestinian Arabs who live under Israeli administration on the West Bank and in Gaza.

The Syrians are determined to recover the Golan Heights from Israel, but Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, mindful of attacks on villages in northern Israel before the 1967 Six-Day war, is determined to hold on to the territory. Even though Assad drew close to President Bush by contributing troops for the war on Iraq, he is taking a cautious approach to Baker's peace mission.

Iranians paint their insignia on Iraq jets

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iranian crews have begun painting their air force insignia on some of the Iraqi warplanes that were mysteriously flown into the Islamic republic during the Gulf War, diplomats said Tuesday.

The claim, which could not be independently confirmed, indicates Tehran plans to keep at least some of the military aircraft that sought refuge from the allied air offensive in neighboring Iran.

In another sign that Tehran plans to hold on to the planes, Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati said Sunday that only 22 aircraft, including some airliners plundered from Kuwait, "would be returned when the crisis is over."

The rest, he said, either crashed or were shot down by allied jet fighters before they could land.

He did not specify which types of aircraft were among the 22 cited, but stressed the fate of the planes would be decided by Iran and Iraq with the help of the United Nations.

Iraq insisted April 12 that 148 of its military and civilian planes had flown to Iran. U.S. military spokesmen said 137 Iraqi planes were in Iran.

The Iraqis listed the 115 military aircraft as 24 Mirage F-1s, 24 Sukhoi Su-24s, 40 Su-22s, four Su-20s, seven Su-25s, 12 MiG-23s and four MiG-29s.

Baghdad claims U.S. violates sovereignty

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Baghdad complained Tuesday that the Kurdish refugee camps the U.S. Army is setting up in northern Iraq violate its national sovereignty, and it asked the United Nations to take them over.

U.N. spokeswoman Nadia Younes said the United Nations had just received the request from Iraqi Foreign Minister Ahmed Hussein and had relayed a copy of it to Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar in Paris.

The U.S. Mission to the United Nations had no official reaction, but officials said privately that Washington always has intended the United Nations take charge of the camps as soon as possible.

Western diplomats, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the United States, Britain and France would begin discussing the transfer of authority with Perez de Cuellar later this week, when he returns from Paris.

The Iraqi letter calls the U.S. military effort "a serious, unjustifiable and unfounded attack on the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Iraq."

It noted, however, that Baghdad has not taken any steps to block the establishment of the camps around the town of Zakho.

About 450,000 Iraqi refugees, most of them Kurds, have fled to Turkey since the Kurdish rebellion was crushed by Saddam Hussein. Another 400,000 are at the Turkish border.

Even as the United States was moving last week to begin setting up the Kurdish refugee camps in northern Iraq, Baghdad was negotiating with the United Nations to set up U.N.-run camps.

Iraqi officials signed an agreement Thursday with Prince Sadruddin Aga Khan, the top U.N. official for relief efforts in the Gulf region, that calls for relief stations in northern Iraq as well as camps in southern Iraq, where a Shiite rebellion against Saddam failed in March.

An estimated 1 million Shiite and Kurdish Iraqi refugees have fled south and east to Iran and another 500,000 have moved to the southern border area.

Iraq's foreign minister asked the United Nations to take over the U.S. relief effort "to define all relief operations in Iraq in an integrated and balanced matter."

The U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees is sending a team to Baghdad this week to begin setting up the U.N. camps, Ms. Younes said.

The team of 10 to 15 experts will fan out across the country to set up field offices, and will arrive with equipment, she said.

The commissioner, Sadako Ogata, said that her office has agreed to provide relief supplies "and, to the extent possible, protection" to the refugees on the Iraq-Kuwait border.

Contaminated soil finally finds home

SUMTER, S.C. (AP) - A trainload of contaminated soil already rejected by six states may finally be on its way to an acceptable dump, but the shipper is not about to reveal where.

The CSX Transportation Co. train that sat in a rail yard near Sumter for nearly two weeks has been a target of protests by environmental groups and a source of concern for the state Department of Health and Environmental Control.

The soil, contaminated by an acid, came from the site of a train wreck in Michigan. It was to have been buried at a landfill in Ohio but was driven out by protests and CSX has since hauled it through West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and the Carolinas.

The 32-car train left Sumter on Monday and by Tuesday morning was outside the state, said CSX Transportation spokesman Norm Going.

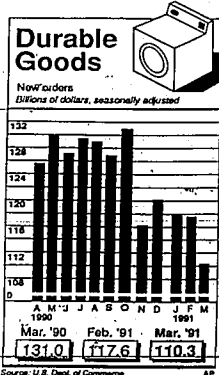

"It's long gone from South Carolina," Going said. "The train goes have a destination to a landfill that will accept it. It's just headed to nowhere."

The company refused to disclose the destination.

On Monday, three Greenpeace activists locked themselves to the train while three more climbed atop a car with a banner. All six were charged with trespassing and were released on $237 bond each.

Environmental groups said they would follow the train until the soil is returned to Michigan for disposal.

Durable goods post worst showing in months

WASHINGTON (AP) - Orders for manufactured durable goods plummeted 6.2 percent in March, the most severe setback in four months, Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan and private analysts said the recession was continuing.

"I think the evidence at this stage suggests the economy is still modestly moving lower, but moving so at a diminishing rate," Greenspan told the Senate Banking Committee. He added: "We do expect the bottom ... to occur within a reasonably short period ahead."

Lawrence Chimerine, senior economic counselor for DJJ/McGraw-Hill in Lexington, Mass., agreed, saying, "The recession isn't over."

"It'll obviously be a couple of months before the economy starts to bottom out."

The Commerce-Department said the shrinkage in durable goods orders was broad-based and dropped bookings to a seasonally adjusted $110.3 billion. That was the lowest level since orders totaled $110.1 billion in August 1987 and 15.4 percent below that of March a year ago.

Many analysts had expected a slight gain in orders last month, supporting the view of the Bush administration that the economic recovery would begin in the current quarter.

Instead, it was the fourth decline in five months and the worst since an 11.2 percent drop in November. After picking up 2.5 percent in December, orders again began falling, down 2.0 percent in January and 0.2 percent in February.

The key category of non-defense capital goods, often a barometer of business investment plans, plunged 10.3 percent in March after tumbling 11.9 percent in January and 0.5 percent a month later.

Unfilled orders, an indication of how busy factories will be in coming months, dipped 0.9 percent to $502.3 billion. All major industries declined.

Rather than the start of a recovery, we're looking at the second quarter as a quarter of transition, where the economy is moving toward stabilization," said Laurence H. Meyer, head of a St. Louis economic forecasting firm. "We'll see it begin to expand by the third quarter."

Asked whether the Federal Reserve might lower interest rates further to stimulate economic growth, Greenspan replied, "I can't comment on that directly, Mr. Chairman. But I will say that we are obviously looking at the economy on a day-to-day basis and that our options are open."

Bush administration officials have taken every opportunity to urge the central bank to help jump start the economy with eased credit.

Nearly all major categories posted losses in orders for durable goods - items from motor vehicles to machinery - tools - expected to last more than three years.

Transportation orders slumped 10.8 percent to $26.6 billion after edging up 0.1 a month earlier. Excluding transportation, orders fell 4.6 percent.

FBI calls in field chiefs for discrimination talks

WASHINGTON (AP) - FBI Director William S. Sessions is bringing the chiefs of the bureau's 56 field offices to headquarters to discuss the discrimination complaints of black agents, the bureau said Tuesday.

The unusual, daylong session set for Wednesday was the latest move by Sessions in a personal campaign to deal with the FBI's simmering racial difficulties.

Earlier this month, Sessions met with some 250 black agents representing every field office in the country. He has met twice with a smaller group of black agents who have outstanding discrimination complaints against the FBI. And he has ordered hiring, assignment and promotion data turned over to their attorneys in an effort to head off a lawsuit charging the FBI with job bias.

With the special agents-in-charge, Sessions, Deputy Director Floyd Clarke and other top headquarters officials plan to discuss personnel policies and practices.

Scholars: It's wrong to ignore intellectuals' prejudices

BOSTON (AP) - Teachers shouldn't gloss over the bigoted beliefs held by geniuses such as composer Richard Wagner and poet T.S. Eliot, but scholars at a "Tainted Greatness" conference differed over the best way to deal with them.

Some at the two-day gathering, which ended Monday at Boston University, said it would be enough for instructors simply to point out the intellectual giants' prejudices.

Others thought the works of such people should carry warning labels similar to those on cigarettes packages.

But the biases shouldn't be ignored, the scholars said, because doing so can reinforce myths that education produces civilization and that knowledge can be equated with wisdom.

"Why do we have cultural heroes in the first place?" asked Allan Janik, professor of philosophy at the University of Vienna. "The only reason for having ethics is to produce better people. Historically, for that to occur, one had to give flesh and blood to precepts, to serve as examples."

He said it was increasingly hard to get a consensus on role models as society became more secular and pluralist, and that people were taking athletes or other stars, because of their success, as examples of how to live.

Heinz plane got OK to land

WASHINGTON (AP) — The plane in which Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., was killed did not appear to have landing gear problems as its pilots believed, and was cleared for landing before it collided with a helicopter, according to airport communications tape released Tuesday.

"Everything looks good from here," said the oil-company helicopter pilot who volunteered to inspect the plane's gear from the air near Philadelphia.

"Okay, appreciate that, we'll start to turn in," replied one of the pilots of the Piper Acrostar PA-60.

The plane was told by the Philadelphia tower to make a left turn to the airport, and was assigned a runway to land.

Then, the helicopter and the plane collided. No crash is heard on the tape released by the Federal Aviation Administration. The last words on the tape are of the airport tower trying vainly to communicate with the plane and the helicopter.

The April 4 collision occurred over a suburban Philadelphia schoolyard. Heinz, 52, the crafts' four pilots and two first-grade schoolchildren on the ground were also killed. The plane was headed to Philadelphia from Lycoming County in central Pennsylvania.

One of the plane's pilots had reported that an instrument light had failed to confirm the landing gear was down and locked.

The crew of a Sun Co. helicopter in the area saw the plane and reported that the gear appeared to be down.

NASA will try launch again

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA called off Tuesday's launch of space shuttle Discovery after a sensor on one of the main engines failed during fueling. It said the next liftoff attempt would be Sunday at the earliest.

Engineers will not know the cause or extent of the problem until they gain access to the shuttle's rear compartment on Wednesday, officials said.

Workers easily could replace the sensor or an attached bundle of electrical cables, said Boyce Mix, deputy manager for NASA's shuttle main engine project. That would allow officials to try again Sunday to send Discovery on a military mission devoted to

"Star Wars" research.

It would take a few extra days to put in a new controller, Mix said. The electronic package is about the size of a microwave oven.

The repairs can be done at the launch pad.

The sensor malfunctioned early Tuesday as more than a half-million gallons of liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen were being pumped into Discovery's external fuel tank.

Stamp sheet mistake costs government

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service will destroy 300 million stamps because of an error in the margin of the 100-stamp sheets honoring the late Hubert H. Humphrey.

The mistake will cost the government $580,000, said Postal Service spokesman Michael O'Hara.

The stamps themselves are fine, but the biographical data on the side of the sheets says that Humphrey became vice president in 1964. He was elected in 1964, but didn't take office until the next January.

"We don't want to have a stamp out there with incorrect information," O'Hara said.

He said the mistake was made by a researcher writing the biographical sketch.

The error went undiscovered until the Postal Service was preparing press releases for the stamp, O'Hara said.

The 52-cent stamp, which features a purple-and-white portrait of Humphrey, is the latest issue in the Postal Service's problem-plagued "Great American" series.

Members of Congress recently criticized the Postal Service for contracting with a private company that used a printing error on the new stamps honoring former Sen. Dennis Chavez of New Mexico and former Chief Justice Earl Warren.

Court says bowling ball isn't weapon

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — A bowling ball and a barbell are not deadly weapons, the Delaware Supreme Court ruled in overturning a weapons conviction.

The state's highest court ruling came in an appeal by James E. Stansbury, who was sentenced to life without parole for murder, plus five years for each of two weapons offenses.

Stansbury was convicted in the 1988 slaying of his housemate, Kimberly Watson. An autopsy showed she was strangled and had been beaten in the head with a barbell and a bowling ball.

In addition to murder, Stansbury was charged with two counts of possession of a deadly weapon during a felony.

In a ruling Friday, the court said the barbell and bowling ball are items of common usage and may become "deadly instrumentalities," but are not deadly weapons.

Thieves roll salesman in rug, take the goods

WEST HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Two robbers rolled a salesman into one of his prized rugs by making of a $500,000 worth of goods, police said.

"In 20 years, this is the first time I've come in contact with a robbery victim who was rolled up in a rug," police Lt. William Henderson said.

Samuel Shaoulain, owner of Samuel's Rug Gallery, was alone Monday morning when two men entered his store with a large suitcase that they said contained a rug they wanted to sell.

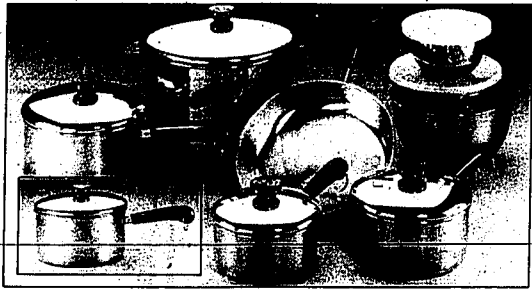

When he bent down to help open the case, one of them pulled a gun. The "thief's" hands were bound with duct tape and he was rolled into one of the display rugs, police said.

"They apparently took the merchandise while the victim was bundled inside the rug," Henderson said.

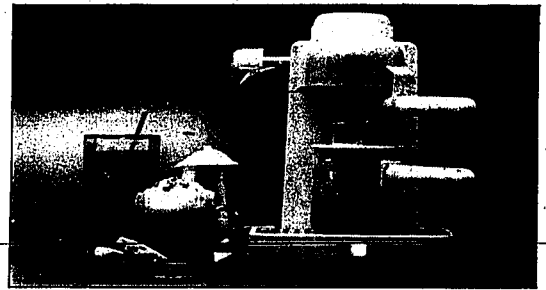

Shaoulain, 46, squirmed free a half-hour later and called police. The thieves made off with 60 rugs valued at about $500,000, Henderson said.

Shaoulain declined to discuss the robbery.

Indian gambling ruling can only be bad news

This week's court ruling on Connecticut's Indian gambling case is bad news for Idaho.

In fact, it's bad news for any state where citizens would like to keep reservation gambling at bay.

The U.S. Supreme Court let stand a lower court ruling that says Connecticut can't ban casino gambling outright on reservations. That ruling was based on the 1988 federal Indian Gaming Regulatory Act, which says a state can't ban reservation gambling operations if the state "permits such gaming for any purpose by any person, organization or entity."

The key phrase is "such gaming." You might think that phrase means gaming that is substantially similar — in other words, casino gambling. Not so, say the federal courts.

Connecticut allows charities to hold "Las Vegas Nights," those sociable fund-raisers where you bet with play money and spend your "winnings" in an auction afterward.

According to the courts (and the U.S. Justice Department, which backed the Mashantucket Pequot Indian Tribe's suit), that kind of charity fling is the camel's nose that opens the tent to full-fledged casinos and high-stakes bingo parlors.

Games of chance are all alike, the federal courts apparently believe.

We say the courts are wrong. Surely this is not what Congress had in mind in 1988. Surely reasonable people can see a distinction between a church-basement bingo game and a strip of neon-embellished casinos.

This week's ruling has two likely outcomes:

First, expect more gambling in America. For many years Nevada and Atlantic City were the nation's main enclaves of 21, roulette and one-armed bandits, and that was just fine. Folk elsewhere could take a weekend plunge if they wanted, but gambling didn't pervade every region of the country.

That will change. In our view, America's social values will be the worse.

Second, the reservations' favored economic status will intensify racial hostility. Reservation bingo and casinos aren't a racial issue; gambling has nothing to do with being an Indian. But if the reservations' special status under federal law lets them become uncontrolled Monte Carlos within unwilling states, their neighbors will resent them.

Special-rights rulings such as this one lay a dangerous groundwork for confrontation and enmity.

In the end, tribes may find that gambling's economic benefits will carry a heavy price: deteriorating relations with surrounding non-Indian communities, and deteriorating moral values both on and off the reservation.

Honesty needed in project to fund trails

Clark Collins of the Blue Ribbon Coalition has publicly chastised conservation organizations and called for honesty in the debate over the National Trails Fund Act of 1991 (NRTFA) sponsored by Sen. Steve Symms. I believe Mr. Collins has a point; his call for honesty is in order.

The Blue Ribbon Coalition is a group of motorized recreation enthusiasts. These enthusiasts include Honda, Yamaha, Kawasaki, Suzuki, Boise Cascade, J.R. Simplot, Louisiana Pacific Lumber, Garland Pole Co., Associated Logging Contractors, Idaho Forest Industries, the Idaho Cattle Association, the Idaho Wool Growers Association, Meridian Gold Co., S&H Mine Supply, Metals Research Co., and many more. And yes, there are some individual members as well.

Perhaps you don't see the connection between a bunch of Japanese motorcycle companies, lumber companies, mining companies and livestock associations. But it is quite simple; all of them have a commercial interest in America's public lands. They are making a profit by using our public lands at the expense of the American taxpayer. Mining, logging, livestock grazing and off-road vehicle use all adversely affect our public lands and in nearly every case, a taxpayer subsidy is involved.

Our roadless lands are our natural trea-

Brian Finegan
Reader comment

surely. In addition to undisturbed forests, they also contain great numbers of fish and game and present unparalleled opportunities for recreation, hunting and fishing at no cost to the taxpayers.

But these lands also present an opportunity for commercial interests to make a profit, if only the taxpayers will pay additional millions of dollars to put in more roads and trails. Wilderness designation prohibits motorized use and as such is anathema for those industries who see public lands as primarily a good place to make a government guaranteed profit. Motorized recreation enthusiasts see a convenient cover-for-industry efforts to gain access to the few remaining areas of our national forests that they don't already control.

The NRTFA sponsored by Sen. Symms and strongly supported by the Blue Ribbon Coalition would make funds available for, among other things, building motorized trails in roadless areas. Once there are motorized trails in the roadless area, wilderness designation is very unlikely and the area would probably be opened to logging, grazing and mining. The motorized trails and the subsequent logging roads are of course paid for by the taxpayers and as habitat is destroyed, wildlife populations decrease significantly. There are presently over 360,000 miles of roads and many thousands of miles of motorized trails in our national forests; enough, one would think, to provide for several lifetimes of off-road vehicle fun.

Sen. Symms has pointed out that the approximately $75 million that his bill would take from the Highway Trust Fund in 1991, would be available to repair existing trails, both motorized and non-motorized, as well as to construct new motorized trails. But I have to question, what is a nation with an annual deficit approaching $400 billion and an estimated $3 trillion backlog of highway and bridge repairs, doing diverting part of its tax revenues to build any trails at all? And what is a conservative senator who claims to be the champion of the balanced budget doing running up the deficit even further?

Perhaps the answer lies with the political action committees of the same organizations that together with motorized recreation enthusiasts make up the Blue Ribbon Coalition.

Brady Bill wastes time, money

The recent front-page article about the Brady Bill was troubling, because it distracts readers from the relevant issue. Most debates on the proposal involve the costs and benefits of suspending a citizen's constitutional rights for seven days. Instead, we should be discussing how to keep criminals from getting guns. Because criminals get most of their weapons from illegal sources, the Brady Bill (which will only affect legitimate channels) is a waste of time and money.

For many years, federal agents have apprehended criminals buying guns from licensed dealers. When any non-licensee buys more than one handgun from a dealer within a specified time period, the sale must be reported to the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms. Most customers don't realize this law exists. Federal agents, however, know a lot about it. BATF people regularly follow up on these reports. If criminals are involved, arrests are made. This is where many of the statistics on illegal interstate gun traffic come from. If we need more resources to apprehend these criminals, let's discuss that. Certainly, other issues exist, but they involve illegitimate trade channels. Taking constitutional rights away from honest citizens is not a productive endeavor.

As you can see, relevant topics address illegal gun sources. Passing the Brady Bill will merely allow criminals to laugh at the harassment of honest people.

quoting such as "TFHS senior class officers who agreed to have Sen. Symms as their speaker were railroaded into it," as an inaccurate personal opinion and considered calling us for comments on that statement. You peaked up the opportunity to check with us. Instead, you chose to use segments of my quotes from the "Bruin News" article to defend our selection.

It is deplorable that you chose to contact Startin for comments dealing with this story and did not even consider reaching one of the four senior class officers to present our side of the story. As it is, I'm neither for nor against Sen. Symms. However, I support the decisions made by our senior class officers to have Sen. Symms as our graduation speaker.

I also urged students to ignore the complaints against Sen. Symms because it's my duty as senior class president to help make graduation as memorable as possible. I wouldn't be fulfilling my job if I let these complaints interfere with the senior class' outlook on their graduation.

How can you consider complaints about Sen. Symms from 14 students out of a class of 350 as front-page news? Not only was your headline grossly exaggerated but your quotes from Startin went uncorrected, leading the community to believe that Sen. Symms is unwelcome at our high school.

I learned that you allowed this article to go through the news wire. Newspapers as far away as Spokane, Wash., are known to have used this article as if it had some significance. Your decision has reflected negatively on my classmates and it discredits our community.

It is unfortunate that you chose an event such as our graduation to stir up an eye-catching story for your paper.

Regardless of political affiliation, we should be proud of having a U.S. senator as our graduation speaker. How many high schools across our country can boast of having one?

Voting is best way to show view

I have read the article about the senior class of Twin Falls High objecting to having Sen. Symms as the commencement speaker. If they truly object to Sen. Symms, I ask that they remember to celebrate their 18th birthday by registering to vote, finding a candidate they prefer and supporting that candidate. This is their right and responsibility as they become adults.

War leaves dire consequences

Like Earl Olson, I find it hard to justify our involvement in the gulf war. This is especially true if one looks at the consequences of our having made war on Iraq.

The first, and probably the most important, consequence is that we killed or estimated 150,000 Iraqi people, many of whom were women and children. To mask the horror of what we did, we coined a new euphemism for the killing of innocent civilians. We call it collateral damage.

The second important consequence is that we destroyed Iraq's infrastructure. Destroying a nation's electrical power system, its sewer and water systems, its bridges and public buildings and its communication and transportation systems is a cruel blow to any urban society that — aside from the misery caused directly — is likely to have drastic effects on public health.

The third important consequence is the refugee problem that came about because our president urged the Iraqi people to overthrow Saddam Hussein. When the Kurds in the north and the Shiites in the south responded to Bush's urging and revolted against Saddam, Saddam's troops quashed the rebellions, which left 2 million people scurrying for the border to escape the wrath of Saddam. The situation is so desperate that the lot of the refugees is miserable, that it seems there is no reasonable solution to the problem.

There are other consequences to our making war on Iraq, some good and some bad. I cited only the three listed to make the point that if the bad consequences were weighed against the good, the bad would outweigh the good many times over. It would be a better world if we had never taken up arms against the people of Iraq.

School alternatives unexplored

One month from now, we, the public, are being asked to go to the polls and vote to raise our taxes. Some time ago, the School Board put forth a proposal to issue $9 million in bonds to finance "needed new buildings." At that time, myself and several others questioned whether the new buildings were needed. The cost at that time was $9 million. The general opinion at that time was that more study was needed to determine if new buildings were in fact needed or if we would be better served by another plan. Year-round school and double shifting were both suggested as possible alternatives.

The School Board then appointed the usual committee, the members of which seem to be known for rubber stamping whatever the appointing body says rather than looking at the problem and studying all alternatives. The end result is that a $9 million proposal that we couldn't afford is now $20 million, which we definitely can't afford, and the possibility of another method is still unexplored. Both of the previously mentioned have been used in other areas with excellent results. Year-round school gives us an immediate 25 percent increase in space with no additional building and double shifting gives us a 100 percent increase with only the possible need for the construction of office space for teachers to do out-of-classroom work.

Both of these solutions work at considerable savings. Both will require the hiring of additional teachers and staff, but who will man $20 million in new buildings under the existing plan?

Let's more efficiently use our existing facilities and save our money to upgrade teacher salaries so that we can attract and hold the finest available. Let's use our money to purchase more and better classroom equipment and supplies. We need these things more than we need a new building.

The existing board is right about one thing — it is our education system. Let's retake control of it. Vote "No" on the bond issue and while we are at it, let's have a change in the board. Maybe a new School Board will listen. The current one sure isn't!

70 trees not worth the protest

Residents of the Wood River Valley, wake up and smell the coffee! Can't you find something more worthwhile to protest or spend the taxpayers' money on than 70 some cottonwood trees? How about world peace, our homeless, our starving, our poor? It is apparent that you are not all native Idahoans or you would have the good sense to see what you are doing. Your hypocrisy has really "got my goat." It seems that it is just fine to cut down hundreds of thousands of trees and scar up a beautiful mountainside to put the "biggest and best" ski lift around. Or to tear up the land and trees on nature's beautiful valleys, hillsides and riverbeds to build your goliath homes, only to have them occupied a few months out of the year.

The need for a wider, safer roadway is long overdue because of the continued — growth of the valley. Granted, none of us want a "boomercy jungle," but I would much rather have a larger road to travel when I go camping or fishing than to become another statistic on a deadly highway. Do you realize that if you succeed in stopping this piteous and the feds withdraw their money, the Wood River Valley — and maybe even all of southern Idaho — will be hard pressed to get another tax dollar to help repair our roads? Then who will there be to blame when the tourists won't come because of the "cattle trails" one has to drive in Idaho?

Don't be wasting my tax dollars on your "environmentalist" attitudes! Go back to the "environment," that you came from if you don't like it here.

Search continues after quake shakes Costa Rica, Panama

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Rescuers searched the rubble of buildings and international aid began pouring in Tuesday for victims of a powerful earthquake that killed at least 74 people, injured more than 800 and left thousands homeless.

The Monday night tremor, which measured 7.4 on the Richter scale, was the deadliest in Central America since 1986, when an earthquake left 1,500 people dead in El Salvador.

Officials said there were at least 50 confirmed deaths in Costa Rica and 24 more in Panama's remote provinces of Bocas del Toro, which had not registered an earthquake since 1916.

Monday's quake, which measured 7.4 on the Richter scale, ripped apart a road near Betán, Costa Rica.

Bridges and roads throughout Costa Rica were destroyed or damaged by the earthquake, making it difficult to assess the extent of deaths and damage.

Nicaragua sent helicopters to fly over areas cut off by landslides and road damage.

President Rafael Ángel Calderón, appealing for medicine and other humanitarian aid, and help quickly began arriving.

The epicenter was near Puerto Limón, a sleepy Caribbean port of 130,000 people about 75 miles east of this Costa Rican capital.

In that city, two hotels, the customs house, an office building and scores of homes collapsed. A hospital was damaged and Red Cross workers were treating injured in the streets.

Red Cross spokesman Miguel Orozco said hospital patients and those injured in the earthquake were being treated in a tent set up in the street near the hospital.

"This place looks like one of those Hollywood apocalyptic movies. It felt like the world was coming to an end as everything moved and heaved," Rigoberto Pérez, a resident of Puerto Limón, said by telephone.

Thousands of people, fearful of aftershocks, slept in the streets around bonfires rather than go home.

When the quake hit, the sea receded 100 feet and some terrified Puerto Limón residents fled to higher ground, fearing a tidal wave. Similar scenes were reported in Panama.

In Panama, radio reports said freight cars derailed, blocking railroad access to an area reachable only by rail, air and sea. The Pan American Highway linking Costa Rica to Panama reportedly was cut by damage to a bridge.

Capt. Eduardo Sanchez of the Red Cross said by telephone from Puerto Limón that the death toll was still rising. He said about 400 homes and other buildings were reported destroyed.

On the port's outskirts, a gasoline tank exploded, sending up a huge fireball at a government-owned refinery, the fire department said.

Orozco, the Red Cross spokesman, said hundreds of villagers were given shelter in soccer stadiums.

Strike adds to Gorbachev's woes

MOSCOW (AP) — Tens of thousands of striking workers filled the streets of Minsk on Tuesday, the eve of a Communist Party meeting to make Mikhail S. Gorbachev account for the popular discontent in the nation.

The strike in the capital of the southwestern republic of Byelorussia was its second in less than two weeks and came amid labor unrest that began March 1 with a walkout by coal miners who want Gorbachev to resign as president.

The working-class anger at Gorbachev over the Soviet Union's crumbling economy is certain to be taken up at the Communist Party Central Committee plenum in Moscow on Wednesday.

Gorbachev, who also heads the party as general secretary, will be asked to give the 410-member Central Committee an account of his handling of the economic collapse and other issues troubling the nation.

The criticism is expected to be stinging, and there may be calls for his resignation as party leader. The plenum cannot remove him from either of his posts, but it could convene a party Congress and recommend his departure as general secretary.

"I think the general secretary will receive very harsh criticism but will preserve his post," said Alexei Prigun, a Central Committee member, in an interview with The Associated Press.

"There will be a real fight," said Zoya Krylova, another Central Committee member. "The plenum will be very heated. It's a huge country undergoing change and now we need to decide which way to go."

The increasingly unpopular 60-year-old Soviet leader faces criticism these days not only from radical politicians who say his "perestroika" reforms begun six years ago have not proceeded fast enough, but also from hard-line Communists who say he has gone too far.

The hard-liners are likely to be his severest critics during Wednesday's meeting, which will be held behind closed doors at the steel-gray Central Committee headquarters on Old Square, near the Kremlin.

"There is a mounting challenge to President Gorbachev from what we call conservative forces in the party apparatus," said a presidential spokesman Vitaly Ignatenko.

Lawmakers OK 'anti-crisis' program

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet legislature on Tuesday passed legislation that Gorbachev's program to pull the country out of its economic crisis through sharp budget cuts, privatization and steps to introduce a convertible currency.

Lawmakers, meeting in the Kremlin, also recommended creation of a committee of representatives of all 15 Soviet republics to coordinate the economic reforms that can now be implemented, the state news agency Tass reported.

Gorbachev said this month that the nation was heading toward "economic collapse" and proposed the package of "anti-crisis" measures to avert catastrophe.

Among the recommended measures is a large reduction in government spending to cut the budget deficit, which is expected to balloon from about $106 billion in 1990 to more than $230 billion this year.

However, the economic reform program does not include a specific target on how much the budget deficit should be reduced.

The Gorbachev program also proposed to begin selling off some small state enterprises.

Under his plan, two-thirds of all small businesses in the service and consumer sectors would be in private hands by the end of 1992.

The program calls additionally for later steps to establish stock and commodity exchanges and would make the ruble a freely convertible international currency.

The ruble exchange rates are now artificially set by the government.

Prime Minister Valentin Pavlov presented the program to the legislature Monday with the warning that if it was not adopted and the current strikes continued, industrial output and national income would fall by 20 percent this year.

Canadian truckers move their protest

FOR ERIE, Ontario (AP) — Canadian truckers protested against high taxes and free trade at a major border crossing into New York state Tuesday after a court ordered them to stop blocking commercial traffic at a bridge to Detroit.

More than 50 truckers parked their rigs at the Canadian end of Peace Bridge, which links Fort Erie and Buffalo, N.Y., narrowing traffic on the U.S.-bound side of the span to one lane.

"The truckers maintain that the Canadian and Ontario governments failed to live up to promises to help Canadian truckers compete with their U.S. counterparts, who pay less for gas, insurance and taxes.

As their numbers grew, the truckers began carrying signs and waving over other drivers to try to persuade them to join the blockade.

"Where they were previously just stopping U.S.-bound traffic, they're now stopping Canada-bound traffic as well and talking to the drivers," said Constable William Anderson of the Ontario Provincial Police.

But the peaceful protest did not significantly reduce the flow of traffic across the bridge, which normally carries about 1,200 to 1,500 trucks each way every day, a Peace Bridge official said.

A similar protest involving about 100 trucks shut off commercial traffic Monday across the Ambassador Bridge between Windsor, Ontario, and Detroit.

"That protest broke up Tuesday morning after the authority that operates the bridge obtained a court order against the blockade."

McNamara says buildup in Vietnam era wrong

KYOTO, Japan (AP) — Former U.S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara told an international publishers meeting Tuesday that he was wrong in his approach to the Vietnam War.

In a heated confrontation following his appearance in a panel on future military and economic threats to security, McNamara was challenged to explain his support for disarmament in the light of his role as defense secretary during the Vietnam War.

"OK, I got it wrong," he said.

When pressed by London-based journalist Jonathan Mirtky of the Observer to explain his change in position, McNamara said, "My God, I said it was wrong."

McNamara oversaw a huge buildup of U.S. forces in Vietnam while defense secretary from 1961 to 1968. He then served as president of the World Bank until 1981.

"McNamara, 74, largely has avoided discussing the war in public for the past three decades. In December he touched on his war experiences in testimony before Congress on the need for congressional approval for making war on Iraq. In February he discussed his experiences in an interview with Time magazine.

A McNamara acquaintance contacted in Washington, D.C., said Tuesday that he had declined to discuss his Vietnam role because he did not want to rewrite history or second-guess the decisions of people no longer alive to defend themselves. The acquaintance spoke on condition of anonymity.

Group looks at earning power of world's workers

GENEVA (AP) — Bakers in Burundi and Burma have to work more than 100 hours to earn enough money to buy one loaf of bread, while Indian plumbers make enough in the same time to purchase 10 loaves, according to a survey by the International Labor Organization.

The publication Tuesday showed bakers in Yugoslavia have to put in five hours' work to pay for two pounds of beef or fish.

But some hour's work for their counterparts in Denmark would buy nearly 4½ pounds of beef and enable Cubans to buy the same amount of fish.

The survey compared 1989 data on earnings and hours of work for 159 occupations with retail prices on 93 food items among 100 countries. The United States was not mentioned in the survey.

It also said:

- Sweet-toothed workers in Gibraltar, Iceland and Sweden could buy five bars of chocolate with an hour's pay. Wages for an hour's work by Austrian computer programmers in insurance companies were enough to buy 27 bars.

- Bus conductors in Bahrain earned enough in one hour for 13 pounds of sugar. By contrast, construction workers in Bangladesh had to work for more than two hours for two pounds of sugar.
- Writers in Bolivia and Sri Lanka had for serve at least one hour to buy a beer. Their colleagues in the Netherlands and Austria could buy 10 during the same time.

Students pose as white supremacists

HAYDEN LAKE (AP) — Two Washington State University students claim they posed as white-supremacist sympathizers from Tacoma, Wash., to get into last weekend's Aryan Youth Action Congress at Hayden Lake.

But a spokesman for the event's organizers said Monday that they had no problem with the students' action.

"Unless they are obviously not white, we admit them," said Carl Franklin, a staff member for the Church of Jesus Christ Christian-Aryan Nations. "We have no problem as long as they are white, participate and behave themselves."

What their sympathies are we don't know," Eric R. Everson and David J. Lane, both Washington State seniors majoring in political science, said Monday that they paid $45 entry fees and told conference organizers they were white-supremacist sympathizers to get into the congress Saturday at the Aryan Nations compound.

"It was a lot easier than either of us expected," said Kane, who is from Tacoma. "I was really nervous at first, but I thought I can't give up an opportunity like this to learn a lot and see what the reality is."

Everson, an editorial writer for Washington State's student newspaper, said he and Lane left the conference Saturday night after a swastika was burned.

"I heard a lot of amazing and really weird things, and a lot of real impassioned speeches and talk," he said. "I got a little bit of insight into our culture."

Stensrud sentenced in Utah chef murder

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Grant Stensrud has been sentenced to five years to life in the Utah State Prison for his part in the slaying of pie chef Victor Agular.

Stensrud said he kicked the victim twice in the head but had nothing more to do with the stabbing death.

Stensrud, 21, apologized for his part in the February 1990 burglary that turned into murder. He asked for leniency during a brief hearing Monday before 3rd District Judge Timothy Hansen.

"I hope the court will see me as a person who is not willing to kill someone for something, because I'm not," he said.

Stensrud

The defendant originally said he had nothing to do with the killing but changed his story after detectives found his hair and possibly his blood on the victim's body.

Hansen sentenced him to prison and ordered him to pay the victim's funeral bill.

Stensrud's family and friends packed the small courtroom and many wept openly.

The judge said Stensrud's past criminal record and the fact he did nothing to help the victim was the reason for the maximum penalty.

In a plea bargain, Stensrud pleaded guilty last February to a single first-degree felony count of murder. The state dropped a first-degree felony, aggravated-burglary charge in exchange for the plea.

Stensrud recounted the night he and Thomas Evan Trujillo burglarized the Marie Callender Pies restaurant. Trujillo has pleaded guilty to the murder and was sentenced to life in prison.

It was Trujillo who suggested they burglarize the restaurant after a night of drinking, said Stensrud.

"He kept telling me it would be easy — in and out — real easy. He said it would take about five minutes," he said. Trujillo had just been fired from the restaurant and was apparently familiar with the business's safe and alarm system.

While prying the restaurant's safe from an office floor, the pair were surprised by the victim.

"I don't remember the exact words, but he (Trujillo) put it across that we should go in and rough the guy up a little, to make him disoriented so he wouldn't know what was going on," said Stensrud. He said they wrestled with the victim for several minutes and then split up. He said Trujillo later admitted he may have killed the chef.

Adult book store owner pleads guilty to charges

BOISE (AP) — The owner of a Garden City adult bookstore has pleaded guilty to selling obscene materials in a case the Ada County prosecutor's office says will turn up the heat on pornography retailers.

The obscenity conviction — the first in Ada County in at least 20 years — means Over 19 bookstore owner Lamar Larsen could lose his business license under a nine-year-old Garden City ordinance regulating adult bookstores.

But Larsen has filed a lawsuit challenging that ordinance as unconstitutional.

Appearing briefly Monday in Ada County Magistrate Court, Larsen pleaded guilty to two misdemeanor obscenity counts and was sentenced, to 50 hours of community service.

Two additional charges pending against the 58-year-old Boise man were dismissed, as were obscenity charges against Larsen's wife, Jean, and bookstore manager Clair Clifford Freese.

"It's a sad day for Thomas Jefferson and the Bill of Rights," Larsen said afterward. "And that's all I've got to say."

Authorities hailed the outcome as an historic victory against smut.

"It's the first obscenity conviction in Ada County in modern history," Ada County Prosecutor Greg Bower declared.

"It's eluded prosecutors in this county and this state since time immemorial. This rings the bell that obscenity prosecutions are going to be successful and community standards are going to be enforced," Bower said.

"It should send a message that we don't want this stuff in our community," said Boise lawyer Gordon Nielson, a director of Idaho Families for Decency, which opposes pornography merchandising.

Republican Gilbert may seek 1st district seat in 1992 election

NAMPA (AP) — Rachel Gilbert, the former state senator who ran for the Republican governor nomination last year, says she's thinking about challenging Democrat Rep. Larry LaRocco in the 1st Congressional District next year.

Gilbert, a Boise real estate broker, has been working recently as a radio commentator. She said Monday she's received a number of telephone calls urging her to challenge the freshman congressman.

"I'm telling you the truth I haven't thought of it," Gilbert said about running against LaRocco, but she's considering it now after receiving calls, including some from northern Idaho.

"I think the people up north look a look at the (gubernatorial) primary statistics and saw that I won seven counties in the 1st District, and won every precinct in Kootenai County," Gilbert said.

Gilbert, 60, lost to Roger Fairchild of Fruitland in her bid for the governor nomination, but ran ahead of the third candidate, Boise stockbroker Milton Ehrhart.

"I realize it would be an overwhelming task to unseat an incumbent (LaRocco), but if we don't do it now the power of the incumbency will make it virtually impossible," she said.

Court reverses conviction in scam case

SANDPOINT (AP) — A former Sandpoint resident who buried a logging machine and then reported it stolen slipped through a legal loophole and avoided prison by admitting he told a witness to lie.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco on Monday reversed two witness-tampering convictions against Lewis R. Kulczyk, who now lives in Spokane, Wash.

When charges were filed against Kulczyk in 1987, federal law made it illegal to mislead a witness into giving false testimony. But the appellate court ruled the law did not bar people from openly telling witnesses to perjure themselves.

Kulczyk admitted that he concealed a co-worker to lie to conceal an insurance scam.

"This was really a technical loophole," said Kim Lindquist, the assistant U.S. attorney who prosecuted the case.

Congress amended the law, closing the loophole when the case went to trial, Lindquist said.

Kulczyk was convicted of 11 counts of mail fraud, one count of conspiracy and five counts of witness tampering in the case.

Farmers group, council to discuss dairy troubles

TWIN FALLS — The Utah-Idaho Farmers Union and the Idaho Rural Council have organized a public meeting for Friday to discuss problems facing Idaho dairymen.

The session, sponsored by Magic Valley dairymen and small-town businessmen, will be held Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the Aspen Building at the College of Southern Idaho.

The organizers have invited all four members of Idaho's congressional delegation, Gov. Cecil Andrus and officials of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

"We will not accept a wilderness proposal that extends into a grazing area or agricultural area," the Idaho Cattle Association's Bob Waddups told his fellow negotiators.

"Waddups said the cattlemen's hard-line stance was a response to a similar stance by wilderness advocates concerning the Boulder and White Cloud mountains north of Ketchum.

Blaine County crash survivor expected out of hospital today

HAILEY — A Blaine County man is expected to be released from Boise hospital today after surviving a chilly crash into Deer Creek northwest of Hailey last week.

Keith Jones, 20, was riding in a pickup when the driver, Shannon McLean of Ketchum, lost control of the vehicle on Deer Creek Road and crashed into the creek, Blaine County Sheriff Walt Femling said.

McLean, 18, was driving on a dirt road and lost control on a washboard section and overcorrected, Femling said. Jones was thrown from the pickup, which rolled onto him while he was in the creek, he said.

Passersby spotted Jones' legs sticking out of the water and rolled the pickup off him, Femling said. Jones was flown to St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise and is expected to be released today, hospital spokeswoman Linda Morgan said.

McLean was treated at Blaine County Medical Center and released, Femling said.

Hailey resident in critical condition following accident

HAILEY — A 39-year-old Hailey man, injured when a fence pole struck him in the head during a weekend traffic accident, remained in critical condition at St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise Tuesday.

Earl Vaughn was southbound on Broadford Road between Hailey and Bellevue Saturday night when he failed to negotiate a curve and crashed through a fence, Blaine County Sheriff Walt Femling said.

Vaughn's vehicle sheared off a wooden fence pole, which flew through the windshield and struck him in the head, Femling said. Vaughn apparently was driving at a high rate of speed when he missed the curve, Femling said.

He was flown to St. Alphonsus and officials there said Tuesday that Vaughn has a 50-50 chance for survival, Femling said.

Green Party to hold initial meeting in Ketchum tonight

KETCHUM — A sprouting Green Movement will hold an organizational meeting at 6 p.m. tonight in the Ketchum Town Square meeting hall.

The Green Party is a 15-year-old, grassroots environmental and political movement with 4 million members in Western Europe. Greens are slowly gaining momentum in the United States, and branches are forming in Idaho from Boise to Burley, according to Mike Sullivan of Hailey.

At tonight's meeting, bylaws will be considered and an action agenda for the upcoming year, including putting candidates on election ballots in 1992, will be discussed.

For more information, call Sullivan at 788-2984 or Tony Lutz at 726-3206.

Sides take to trenches in wilderness fight

By N.S. Nolkentval

SUN VALLEY — Wilderness negotiators nearly disintegrated Tuesday under salvos from entrenched positions.

"We will not accept a wilderness proposal that extends into a grazing area or agricultural area," the Idaho Cattle Association's Bob Waddups told his fellow negotiators.

"Waddups said the cattlemen's hard-line stance was a response to a similar stance by wilderness advocates concerning the Boulder and White Cloud mountains north of Ketchum.

Mike Medberry of the Idaho Conservation League. He represents wilderness advocates at the negotiation table.

Environmental and wilderness groups have worked to put together proposals, but "We haven't had a fair response to any of them," Medberry said.

"We have offered an olive branch, a willingness to negotiate," he said. "That olive branch has been stomped on."

Hope for success was thin as the meeting broke up early following the apparent stale-

Residents on their own as sewer seen too costly

By Phil Salm
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — County residents in the impact zone northeast of Twin Falls heard bad news Tuesday night — putting in a sewer system would cost too much money to justify the project for now.

Residents of 125 houses in eight subdivisions likely will keep using their septic systems — with the threat of periodically contaminating their drinking water — for a few years.

However, an engineer with EHM Engineers Inc. said he thinks growth in Twin Falls could justify a sewage connection near Pole Line Road and Blue Lakes Boulevard in five to 10 years that would help the residents hook up to city services.

About 40 people attended a hearing at the College of Southern Idaho where EHM engineer Gary Burkett outlined a study begun last June. "Weather-residents could afford a sewer and water system."

With 125 people living in the area, it would cost about $71 a month for each house if residents received a 4 percent loan from the state. With a conventional 8 percent loan, the cost would approach $95 a month for each house, Burkett said.

Payback on the loan would be 20 years. The proposed project would cost almost $1.3 million, Burkett said. EHM recommended a gravitational flow system with no lift stations.

"The recommendation is to not proceed," Burkett said, until residents can get a grant, or a developer is willing to pay for sewer and water extensions, or the city extends services so fees could be $30 a month.

The $30 is the recommended state figure based on 2 percent of the median income of area residents. Monthly fees higher than $30 would not justify the project in this area of the county, Burkett said.

Residents probably cannot look to Twin Falls for money to get onto the city sewer system, City Manager Tom Courtney said. City policy historically has been to have developers pay for improvements, and Courtney said he is not sure the city could legally use fees charged to existing water and sewer users to expand the system.

If they build a sewer system and the city annexes the area, residents would have to continue paying the $30 monthly fee because it is considered debt on the property, Courtney said. He was not sure the City Council would want to annex the area.

Twin Falls County likely cannot help with money, either, Commissioner Marvin Hempleman said in a telephone interview Tuesday.

The average income in the area probably is too high for the residents to qualify for a grant, although some loans might be available, Burkett said.

Residents asked if developments near the area might increase chances of getting city service lines extended or bring enough people to lower the sewer system costs for each house.

Castleford voters choose to establish fire district

The Times-News

CASTLEFORD — Area residents Tuesday voted 154 to 90 to form a fire district that will encompass 161 square miles in the Castleford area, including Roseworth and Blue Gulch and extending all the way to the Owyhee County line.

The measure needed a simple majority to pass.

Castleford Fire Chief Dan DeBoer said he was confident the proposal would pass and said it had a lot of support.

"But there was still a little doubt in my mind, I guess. You never know."

Next the Twin Falls County commissioners will make a recommendation to Gov. Cecil Andrus, who will then appoint three fire commissioners to run the district.

They will organize a bond issue election to raise money for the district.

DeBoer said it is not clear who will be able to vote in the bond issue election so the citizens advisory board that has worked to form the district will have to seek legal counsel to interpret state law.

Officials estimate it will cost $395,000 to get the fire district up and running: $120,000 for a new fire station; $120,000 to purchase two used trucks — one pumper and one tanker; and the rest for administration and engineering for the trucks and insurance for firemen.

The city already has been awarded a community development grant of $15,000 and the city of Castleford will donate $10,000 in land for the proposed fire station.

Hailey City Council moves closer to annexation

By Michael Hofferber
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — The City Council has tentatively approved the annexation of north end property that its owner wants to develop into a factory outlet shopping center.

The annexation ordinance, along with a business zoning designation for the property, will be voted on at a special City Council meeting on Monday. The meeting will be held at 6 p.m. at the Blaine County Courthouse.

"I think it would be a real tragedy to see this developed in our county," said Councilman John Carson.

Although the property is commercial zoned, Bart Rinker's shopping center development was twice turned down by the Blaine County Planning and Zoning Commission last year. The city of Hailey opposed both applications, citing adverse impact on the city's downtown commercial core.

"It will be developed someday," said Carson. "This is a chance to bring it in under our wing."

As part of the annexation request, Rinker offered to donate $50,000 to the city for downtown parking, $10,000 for well drilling, and $20,000 toward other impacts on city services. He also volunteered deed restrictions that would prohibit a supermarket or drug store from operating on the site.

During a public hearing on the annexation request, Tom Richmond of Hailey questioned the protection being given to the city's downtown businesses.

"Yes, we are protecting the downtown core," responded Mayor Keith Roark. "We do not intend that there be a pro-

Ex-state senator Gilbert raises hackles with 'Golden Flak' list

Everyone's a critic. But not everybody thinks a list of "Golden Flak Awards" by conservative former state Sen. Rachel Gilbert is particularly insightful.

"Rachel Gilbert is a very caustic person. I thought that before I read it and I thought so even more after reading this," said Twin Falls, Republican Rep. Ron Black.

Gilbert, a Boise Republican, spoofed former U.S. Sen. William Proxmire's "Golden Fleece Awards" of the 1970s, which she said were given "to the deserving folks who fleeced the people and misled the public through bad governmental and tax policies."

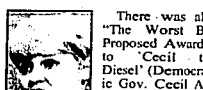

She said she wrote her first annual awards, with the help of legislators whom she did not identify and reporters, because, "I think it was such a disgusting session, don't you?"

Anita Dennis
That's politics

Her awards go to both Democrats and Republicans—for their work in Boise last winter, and the list is prefaced with the disclaimer, "I hope you know this is full of truth and some jest."

First is the "To Hell With The People Award — to all the legislators and especially Sen. Jerry Thorne (R-Nampa) who jumbled their noses at the people of Idaho and voted to repeal the last vestige of the people's One-Percent Initiative and lifted the 5 percent cap on city and county (property tax) budgets."

Gilbert

There was also "The Worst Bill Proposed Award — Cecil the Diesel" (Democrat) for his proposed 6-cent gas tax and his doubling of the car registration and license fees. Some legislators called it the "Pass the Gas Tax Bill."

And the "Lack of Leadership Award — to Sens. Mike Crapo (R-Idaho Falls) and Bruce Sweeney (D-Lewiston) for burying the 82 percent legislative pay increase in the State Affairs Committee, and also for stumbling along on an incredibly long, boring, expensive session."

Head Start reaches Blaine County

By Barbara Neiwert
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — For the first time ever, the South Central Community Head Start program will begin serving Blaine County preschool children.

An orientation meeting this afternoon with the parents of a dozen 4-year-olds marks the end of what has been a lengthy process to get the program established in Blaine County.

"We feel very lucky to be getting funding for Blaine County," said Donna Suhr, Head Start director for the Magic Valley.

Due to the highly competitive nature of the grant application process, Blaine County's request was not awarded until the third application. Blaine County was one of only three applications selected from a field of 22 applicants statewide.

Shoshone, which has also worked hard and applied for federal funding three times, was turned down, Suhr said. However, a fourth application has been submitted for Shoshone and Suhr is hopeful it will be approved later this year.

Andrus fires new volley

POCATELLO (AP) — After a brief July Gov. Cecil Andrus has fired another volley in the federal government war that he sees as its continuing failure to deal with the disposal of radioactive and other hazardous wastes.

And he told those attending a hazardous waste management conference in Pocatello Tuesday that developing the technologies to finally begin handling the waste is only the beginning.

"Your task is to sensitize the public," Andrus said. "These challenges are not insurmountable... What we are lacking, in my judgment, is the necessary political will to do what must be done."

Two and a half years ago, Andrus focused national attention on the nuclear waste problem when he refused to allow the Energy Department to ship any more radioactive waste into Idaho for temporary storage. The action came after the government repeatedly failed to fulfill its pledge to open a permanent dump in southeastern New Mexico.

The clash has been renewed several times since then, most recently in February when Andrus refused to accept high-level radioactive waste from a commercial reactor in Colorado for storage. That dispute is now in the federal courts.

Speech on drug awareness slated

TWIN FALLS — Thomas Hedrick, president and executive director of the Media Advertising Partnership for a Drug-Free America, Inc., will speak to members of the Sawtooth Press Club and high school journalism students Thursday at the College of Southern Idaho.

Partnership for a Drug-Free America is a coalition of media and advertising volunteers that produces drug prevention public service announcements. He will talk about efforts to increase awareness of the dangers of drugs.

Not all the awards were negative, however. Like "The Tie-Breaker Award" to Lt. Gov. Cl. "Butch" Otter, who cast almost a dozen tie-breaking votes in a Senate equally divided between Republicans and Democrats. "He was even-tempered and gentlemanly, had a quick smile and gavel and a ready opinion," Gilbert wrote.

And to "the predictable, respected, well-liked (House) Democrat Minority Leader Jim Stoecheff (of Sandpoint) who would make a great, common-sense Republican or superintendent of public instruction."

"I only beat up on the legislators I thought deserved it," said Gilbert, who lost a primary bid for the governorship in 1990 and is now eyeing 1st District Democratic Congressman Larry LaRocco's seat.

"I felt it was in poor taste," Black said of Gilbert's remarks. "I hate to see these things come out because what are we accomplishing? It's vintage Rachel."

Rep. Mark Stubbs, R-Twin Falls, was the only Magic Valley legislator to be gilded by Gilbert. He and four other first-term representatives received "The Next Speaker Award" — to the freshmen House members who had to testify on every bill, causing some old-timers to comment "How did we ever get along without them?"

Stubbs said he doesn't feel particularly honored "nor picked on."

Michael White, an investment analyst, said his research on factory outlet stores in other areas suggests that Rinker's project could produce as much as $24 million in retail sales annually and support up to 60 jobs.

"I think it's a project that needs strong support," he said.

The council found fault with several items in Rinker's proposed annexation agreement and renegotiated those with his attorney, Ed Lawson. A final agreement will be prepared along with the ordinance for the special meeting.

In other business, Michael Chapman was sworn in to office as Hailey's first full-time fire chief.

"But if something doesn't happen soon, there's going to be a lot of us in trouble," Hougaard said after the hearing.

He estimated 25 to 30 percent of the homes in the eight subdivisions have well problems. "Eventually, we'll all have problems," he said.

The study was started last summer by EHM after evidence of contamination turned up in wells.

EHM's study concluded that 348 homes need to be on the sewer system to lower the monthly user fee below $30. If the residents could get a 4 percent loan plus $400,000 in grant money or from a developer, 240 users could bring the monthly fee down to $30, Burkett said.

Subdivisions in the area include College Terrace, Lakewood and Lakewood II, Ken Lee, Sunridge, Donna Leigh, Plainview, Sahara and Bowlin.

When talk degenerated into accusations and counter accusations, Ty Tice of the Mediation Institute of Seattle, hired to conduct the process, sent the group home with the admonition to do their homework before the next meeting.

Several of the negotiators were not prepared for Tuesday's meeting. Mining representative Jack Lynnman was uncertain of possible mineral deposits in one area of discussion. He had come prepared to discuss the Pioneer Mountains and was not ready to discuss other areas, he said.

He said he would have a map of mineral deposits in about a week. Timber representative Tom Rieger was uncertain just "what canyons have marketable timber in the Palsimer Valley. Sawmill workers in Salmon depend on trees from the Challis National Forest, and the designation suggested by environmentalists could put many of them out of work, Rieger said.

Tice suggested everybody start with the same scale Forest Service map. Then each interest group should mark their areas of interest on clear plastic overlays. At the next meeting all the overlays could be placed on top of each other.

The resulting map would quickly show what areas are in contention.

"You will either come to terms with it within the neighborhood, or you'll fight it," Tice said.

IRA MINIMUM DISTRIBUTION RULES REQUIRE PLANNING
When the government established its tax-deferred benefits for individual retirement plans, it planned that retired individuals would begin to use them as a source of retirement income starting at age 70 1/2. If not sooner. Failure to comply with IRA minimum distribution rules means a 50% excise tax. This article describes the relatively complex IRA minimum distribution rules and emphasizes the importance of planning ahead. The example cited in the article shows that required distributions for a man age 70 1/2 could have been substantially less if he had elected distributions over his lifetime and the lifetime of his daughter. It is also important to remember that estate taxes and federal and state gift taxes could be imposed on balances in an IRA account after the death of a participant. Future distributions to a beneficiary will also be subject to income tax. Although the IRA is a simple retirement vehicle, its minimum distribution rules require planning on the part of the participant and beneficiary.

After 3 months' labor, Minidoka board tables bus route revisions

By Terri McAfee Times-News correspondent

RUPERT - After three months of work and discussions, the Minidoka County School Board has tabled a proposal to change four bus routes in the northwest section of the county.

But a committee will study the proposed changes more. Oliver LaRoque, the district's transportation director, drove the four routes and found a discrepancy in the parents' estimate of the number of miles saved.

Parents Tammy Stevenson and Laurel Asgharian, who suggested the proposed changes, had estimated a 17-mile-a-day savings on the four routes. LaRoque found the mileage savings to be only 12.2 miles per day.

The difference stems from the way the two parties measured the miles - LaRoque used an actual odometer and the parents used a graph map they had prepared.

The 12.2-mile-a-day savings would add up to 2,196 miles for a savings of $2,920 a year, $438.10 of which is paid by the local district.

The parents' proposal was further hampered by a letter from the Minidoka Highway District approving the School Board of a road on route No. 85, that is closed and barricaded each year after the first snow. At a cost of $20 a mile to grade the road, the Highway District considers it a low-priority road as it has no houses on it.

A route change to adjust for the closed road further eroded the savings to only 2.8 miles per day.

In addition, a proposed change on route No. 80 included a turn-around up the Wayne Maughn lane.

"You must back that mileage out for reimbursement," Curriculum Director Darwin Anderson said.

In the course of investigating routes pertaining to turn-arounds on private land, the district learned that such mileage is not reimbursable by the state. The county had not been deducting it previously.

A change in route No. 76 would use the Reifer Store parking lot for a turn-around. But the owner did not want her property used.

"I feel that we are not saving that much," LaRoque said. "It would be longer for a couple of families. It would be shorter for some."

According to Tammy Stevenson, 67 students would spend less time on the bus under the proposed changes, while 37 students would spend more time on the bus.

"I have put a lot of time and I don't think it has been given a fair shot," Stevenson said when the route changes were tabled by the board.

The district is considering purchasing computer software that would map out the best bus routes. But this software is not available yet. It is unlikely the program would be in the district before August. And it may take a year of data input before it is usable.

A public hearing will be held in August to discuss bus routes and possible changes.

"If we are going to do that, we should create a committee to work with these people," board member Bill Hepworth said.

Hepworth agreed to head such a committee. Further study will be given to the four route changes.

In a surprise announcement, Curriculum Director Darwin Anderson asked the board for a release from his contract, effective June 30.

"I appreciate very much having you on staff," Superintendent Gene Snapp said.

DC-3s gain power for firefighting

OGDEN, Utah (AP) - Once, the Forest Service flew a fleet of the half-century-old DC-3 cargo planes. Now, they're down to two of the venerable aircraft.

But since Forest Service officials still find that there's nothing like the twin-engine DC-3 for getting smokejumpers and firefighting equipment to a wilderness fire, the agency is spending millions to refit the planes.

Both of the aircraft will be based in the Intermountain region, ready to assault fires that erupt in hard-to-reach forest areas.

Ron Bell, aviation officer for the Forest Service's Intermountain Region, on Monday showed off one of the planes subjected to a cockpit-to-tail refurbishment.

The Forest Service began phasing out the DC-3 after one of the aircraft crashed in 1979, killing 10 firefighters. One of the Forest Service's old DC-3s was given to the Hill Air Force Base Museum.

But two of the planes - one that was on display in Ogden this week, and the other, based in Missoula, Mont. - were kept and refurbished at a cost of more than $2.5 million each.

"It would take $6 million to $8 million to replace them and you still wouldn't have the same life expectancy; we think it's a great deal," Bell said.

Forest Service's Ron Bell stands in front of a modernized DC-3.

The refurbishment includes upgraded aviation electronics and twin turbo-prop engines that increase the plane's speed from 180 mph to 230 mph.

Bell said the DC-3 works for the Forest Service because its large landing gear tires enable it to put down just about anywhere. Its large wing span gives it a quick, high lift that doesn't need a lot of runway, he added.

The plane flew over Ogden on a training flight Monday and will be around for additional training flights the next few weeks. After that, it will be kept in McCall, Idaho, until needed for firefighting efforts.

Bell said the plane can carry 20 smokejumpers (firefighters who parachute from planes to tackle blazes in back-country areas) and their equipment.

John Chambers, director of fire management for the region, said the Forest Service is bracing for a severe fire season.

Officials prepare for budgeting

By Terri McAfee Times-News correspondent

RUPERT - The Cassia-Minidoka county jail may be finished by early winter and county officials have heard the first rustlings of the new budget year looming ahead.

At the County Commission's meeting this week, County Clerk Duane Smith asked fellow county officials to look at their six-month budget figures - particularly those who have already spent more than 50 percent of their budgets only halfway through the year.

With the budget-making process scheduled to begin soon, Smith cautioned department heads to look closely at requests since the county may be short funds during the upcoming budget year.

The two-county jail has a new administrator - Lt. Dennis Dexter, from Cassia County Sheriff's office, has been chosen to head the jail.

The training program for the police officers from both counties who will work at the new facility will begin soon.

The officers are responsible for setting up the policy and procedural manuals, Minidoka County Sheriff Ray Jarvis said.

"If they are responsible for policy and procedure, they are going to be happier employees," Jarvis said.

Each of the 18 employees will attend a five-day training session. Only four people are allowed, in each session.

Arrangements are being made for the officers to work a shift in the Twin Falls County jail, designed similarly to the Mini-Cassia facility.

"We anticipate being hard pressed (for time)," Jarvis said. The Minidoka County commissioners agreed to pay $11,500 as their share of the jail transition budget. Cassia will match that with a similar amount.

Jarvis said that plans are being made to allow citizens an opportunity to stay in the jail for a fee before the jail is opened to real prisoners.

To other matters, the commissioners agreed to include the insurance coverage of the Minidoka County Senior Citizens bus under the county's insurance package.

"I'm trying to provide services for the seniors," said Dick Boyd from the Area Office on Aging.

"Our insurance is costing around $1,700 a year. It will free up the dollars to be used for other things."

The county's premium will not be raised and Boyd agreed that the cost of meeting the deductible and any future increase in insurance costs for the bus would be paid for by his office.

Also at the meeting: Max Vaughn was sworn in as the new assessor.

"There will be no changes in the assessor's office for the present," he said.

Diane Schmeibauch accepted a contract with Minidoka County to be the new County Extension home economist, effective Aug. 1.

The county attorney, Charles Creason, has hired Elizabeth Burt, a law intern student from the University of Idaho, to work in the prosecutor's office for the summer.

The commissioners signed a Special Land Use Permit with the Bureau of Land Management and the Bureau of Reclamation, effective April 1 through March 31, 1994, which will allow the county's building on the abandoned landfill site to remain intact.

Blaine County tree demonstrators pelted with pellets, bottles

By Brad Bowlin Times-News writer

KETCHUM - Apparently not everyone in Blaine County is interested in saving the cottonwood trees north of town that are slated for removal by the Idaho Transportation Department.

Demonstrators trying to spare the trees from the ax were shot with a pellet gun by someone in a passing pickup Friday night, Blaine County sheriff's deputy Ron Taylor said.

The following night, someone tossed a bottle at demonstrators, Taylor said.

No one was injured in the attacks, nor have any arrests been made but Blaine County Sheriff Walt Felling said he does have some suspects.

Doug Greene, of Ketchum, was standing near the trees Friday night when a vehicle drove by and pelted demonstrators with pellets.

"I remember hearing a click, click, click sound. Then I heard pellets hitting all around the - one of them hit my car," he said. Greene said he was hit in the shoulder with a pellet but thick clothing prevented injury.

Four people, including two children, reported being hit by the pellets, Felling said.

More than 70 mature cottonwood trees lining Idaho Highway 75 near the Lake Creek Trailhead became a forest of controversy last week as local residents tried to block the Transportation Department from cutting the trees as part of a road realignment project.

A pair of environmental organizations have filed suit in federal court against the Transportation Department and several other agencies to stop the cutting. The Transportation Department agreed April 16 to postpone the tree removal until after the case is heard Friday.

Demonstrators have vowed to keep a 24-hour vigil at several threatened groves until the state agrees not to cut them down.

Last week's attacks don't necessarily mean people are opposed to what the protesters are trying to do, Greene said.

"I don't know if it was just kids out looking for something to do," he said. "I don't think it was focused on opposing our philosophy."

People aren't likely to be intimidated by the attacks, but the incident "shows that this whole thing is really getting out of hand," Greene said.

What began as an innocuous project to make a dangerous curve safer has grown into a threat to more than just the 74 trees at the trailhead, he said.

"We're not just out here to save a few trees," Greene said. "The demonstration is more of a symbol of the overall damage this project will create."

Commission hears proposal to upgrade Ketchum golf course

By Michael Hofferber Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM - Dave Sellgren, owner of the Big Wood Golf Course, teed up a new proposal for expanding the facility from nine holes to 18 holes before the Ketchum Planning and Zoning Commission Monday night.

An earlier proposal, which included new holes on undeveloped hillsides north and south of the present course, was unanimously opposed by the commission.

But Sellgren's new plan squeezes the nine additional holes onto the present 87-acre property. The zoning commission declined to rule on the proposal Monday. Instead, it asked for more detailed plans and a feasibility report from an independent golf course consultant.

"I'd be tempted to approve it if I knew what I was doing," said Commissioner John Craig.

Sellgren complained that he had been to three meetings in seven weeks without a decision from the commission.

"With something of this magnitude it doesn't make sense to rush," Craig responded.

The commission also struggled with the design review of a proposed new city Street Department building for recycling. The suitability of a permanent recycling center at the Warm Springs Road and 10th Street intersection was questioned because of its potential impact on traffic.

"There seems to be doubt about how much traffic the facility will generate. We're not sure," said City Planner Bethann Skamsner.

The commission tabled the matter for a month and plans to monitor traffic at the temporary recycling center along Saddle Road that is scheduled to open today.

The Saddle Road center, located next to the city's park-and-ride lot, was given a one-year conditional use permit earlier this month.

Measure would boost taxes for largest casinos

CARSON CITY (AP) - Nevada's largest casinos would get a slight bump in taxes to raise about $13 million more for state coffers, under a new Assembly bill.

AB569 was introduced Tuesday by the Taxation Committee, chaired by Assemblyman Bob Price was unsuccessfully targeted for defeat during the 1990 elections by casino interests.

Price said the one-quarter percent tax hike on the club's gross revenues adds one more revenue source to areas already being considered by lawmakers, including a controversial business activity tax backed by Gov. Bob Miller.

"We've said all along everything would be on the table to look at. Price, D-North Las Vegas, said of AB569.

Gaming industry lobbyist Jim Joyce said he expected some casino levy would come before the Legislature this session. But he added that it's bad tax policy and likely won't be supported by lawmakers.

"Frankly, we've detected very little appetite in either the Assembly or Senate" for such a tax measure, the lobbyist said.

No big surprise: Leyva gets the boot

Philadelphia Phillies general manager Lee Thomas presents new manager Jim Fregosi with a game shirt Tuesday.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Nick Leyva expected to be fired as manager of the Philadelphia Phillies and he turned out to be right.

Leyva was dismissed Tuesday after only 13 games with a 4-9 record and a last-place standing. The Phillies named Jim Fregosi to take over starting with a three-game series against New York.

Actually, the rumors Leyva was in trouble started in spring training when the manager and GM Lee Thomas had differences on the direction of the team.

The Leyva watch officially started when the Phillies lost their first two games of the season to the Mets at Shea Stadium. Things only got worse as the Phillies' young pitching staff had trouble finding the strike zone and Leyva had trouble finding reasons why.

"I didn't like the way the club was going," Thomas said. "It's best for the organization before we get too far into the season."

It was the third fastest firing in baseball history. In 1988, the year Baltimore lost its first 21 games, the Orioles sacked Cal Ripken Sr. six games into the season. Ripken was replaced by Frank Robinson.

And in 1972, Preston Gomez managed the San Diego Padres for 11 games before being fired. Other early firings involved George Steinbrenner's New York Yankees. Bob Lemon was fired after 14 games in 1982 and Yogi Berra after 16 games in 1985.

Fregosi, 49, was 430-475 as manager of the Chicago White Sox and California Angels. His 1979 Angels club won the American League West.

"He can handle modern-day players. He's a people person. He's a good strategist," Thomas said.

Fregosi, who was given a contract through the end of the 1991 season, is best known as the player the Mets acquired from the Angels in 1971 for Nolan Ryan.

Leyva, 37, said he understood the move, approved by club president Bill Giles.

"The club is not playing good," Leyva said. "When it doesn't somebody takes the blame. I tried to do the best job I could and it didn't work out."

Snake River team wins all-star dual swim meet

BAKER CITY, Ore. — Three Magic Valley YFCA Swim Team members joined the Snake River All-Stars and placed in a dual meet against Inland Empire Swimming of Washington here Saturday.

The local trio, all 12-year-olds, included losing Bierl of Twin Falls; Keri Roemer of Twin Falls and Xko Egan of Burley. Bierl took second in the 100-yard backstroke and fifth in the 50 free style. Roemer got third in the 200 individual medley and fourth in the 100 breaststroke. Egan placed fourth in the 100 butterfly and fifth in the 100 IM.

The Snake River squad won the meet 455-430. The team was coached by Valerie VanLeeuwen from the Magic Valley YFCA team.

Catching, hitting leads Twin Falls to 20th-season victory

MERIDIAN — A big hit by catcher Jim Horner and five-hit pitching from Kevin Gibson helped Twin Falls earn its 20th victory of the season, 7-3 over Meridian Tuesday.

Gibson walked seven against four strikeouts, but never let Meridian get a big inning going.

"He was pretty consistent, staying out of trouble," said Twin Falls Coach Bill Ingram. "We played pretty good defense."

Horner clouted a bases-loaded triple in the top of the fifth inning to put the Bruins, now 20-6, ahead 5-1.

Borah comes to Twin Falls for a double-header at 4 p.m. Friday.

Bruins sweep Bobcats, 12-0

The Times-News

BURLEY — The Twin Falls Bruins overpowered Burley 12-0 for the second time this season.

The Bruins raised their dual record to 7-5 after finishing ninth out of 15 schools at the Capital Invitational last weekend.

"It was nice to come back and have everyone playing really, really well," said Twin Falls Coach Sharon Behrens.

Twin Falls' Eric Robbins, Greg Whitney, Jon Fitzhugh, Maria Barbara and the mixed doubles team of Josh Cunningham and Thongsy Keopanya all won by 6-0, 6-0 scores.

Courtney Barlow and Jill Hanks lost only one game in winning two-set sweeps.

Brad Hess and Jennifer Mabey proved to be the toughest Bobcats to defeat, taking Jeremy Kassis and Jenny Gould to 6-4, 6-7, 6-3.

Thursday's 3 p.m. match with Wood River, scheduled to be played in Hatley, may be changed to Twin Falls, depending on the weather conditions that morning.

Rockets could cut Lakers to the quick - real quick

The Associated Press

Take it from a semi-neutral observer, the Los Angeles Lakers' quest for another NBA title could stop in the first round with the Houston Rockets, one of the league's hottest teams.

"This year, they have a better shot than ever of beating the Lakers," Denver's Orlando Woolridge, an ex-Laker, says of the Rockets. "They have the advantage down low and their guard play is so much better than last year. I think this is their year."

If it is, it starts Thursday night at the Forum, where the Rockets take on the Lakers in one of the five games that starts the first round of the NBA playoffs.

In the other Thursday night games, New York is at Chicago, Philadelphia at Milwaukee, Golden State at San Antonio and Utah at Phoenix.

The other three series start Friday with Atlanta at two-time defending champion Detroit; Seattle at Portland and Indiana at Boston.

But the highlight comes when the Lakers, Please see PLAYOFFS/5

Official trying to curb phony autographs

NEW YORK (AP) — Terming the sports autograph business as "40 percent phony," New York State Attorney General Robert Abrams proposed legislation Tuesday designed to clean up the $1.5 billion industry.

Abrams' bill, which is endorsed by Major League Baseball Properties and the National Baseball Hall of Fame, would require dealers who sell memorabilia for $50 or more to provide their customers with written certificates of authenticity.

The National reported Tuesday that the FBI is conducting an investigation of the sports collectible business and has interviewed four Hall of Famers — Bob Feller, Mickey Mantle, Ted Williams and Joe DiMaggio — hoping they can help identify counterfeit signatures.

The paper said the investigation, Please see AUTOGRAPHS/5

No fight date set, but verbal barrage is ferocious

NEW YORK (AP) — Evander Holyfield and Mike Tyson haven't agreed to fight yet, but their camps already are engaged in a war of words.

Tyson's promoter, Don King, started the verbal volley Tuesday with a barrage of challenges and charges against Holyfield and his three closest associates — promoter Dan Duva, co-trainer Lou Duva and manager Shelly Finkel. During an informal luncheon with reporters, King repeatedly called Finkel and the Duvas "liars and deceivers," accused Holyfield of ducking Tyson and challenged the heavyweight champion to a winner-take-all bout against Tyson in September or October. "We'll fight him anytime, anywhere, anyplace," King said. "The winner goes home with everything, the loser goes home with nothing."

King said "the public wants this fight, I want this fight, and Mike Tyson wants this fight, but Holyfield and his people are trying to avoid it. It's a travesty. Boxing fans are tired of being treated like Bozo the Clown."

Informed of King's comments, Dan Duva launched a counterattack. Duva said last Friday's Holyfield-George Foreman fight

"breathed a fresh air into the sport. Now Don King has gone back to polluting the environment."

Duva dismissed King's winner-take-all challenge, as well as an alternate offer — a 50-50 split between the champion and No. 1 challenger.

"They're both ridiculous," Duva said. "Fighters work too hard for one guy to come away with nothing."

King claims a 50-50 split is fair because Tyson is a bigger draw than Holyfield. "Evander Holyfield can't draw flies to a dump," King said.

Owens says investigation didn't turn him pro

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Syracuse star Billy Owens said Tuesday his decision to turn pro a year early was not influenced by an investigation of possible NCAA rules violations at the school.

"The investigation didn't really decide what I was going to do," said Owens, who was accompanied by his father and Syracuse coach Jim Boeheim at a news conference at Manley Field House.

Owens, a 6-foot-9 junior forward who turns 22 next week, is expected to be among the top five picks in the June 26th NBA draft.

He said he made up his mind to turn pro in the past few days, and that the decision wasn't an easy one.

"I feel I made the right decision for my family and me," he said. "It was a hard decision, but I feel I'm ready for the next level."

"I like Syracuse, I like playing in the Dome, I like the basketball atmosphere. I'm not going to get that on an expansion team."

Owens averaged 23.3 points, 11.6 rebounds and 3.5 assists last season in leading the Orangemen to the Big East regular-season title and earning conference Player of the Year honors.

"Physically and mentally, he's as ready to go to the next level as any player we've had," Boeheim said. "He's made an outstanding contribution to our basketball program and he's got an outstanding future ahead

Syracuse All-American forward Bill Owens announces his intention to pass up his final year of eligibility at Syracuse to enter the NBA draft. He is expected to be one of the top five players.

In the NBA, Syracuse is completing an internal investigation of the NCAA allegations, first detailed by the Syracuse Post-Standard in December, that players got cash, merchandise, meals and other considerations from boosters.

"I doubt if the team goes on probation," Owens said.

Owens is expected to be among also are questioning former players and recruits. But Owens and Boeheim said any penalties against the team probably would not take effect until after next season.

"I'd be shocked if he didn't go in the top three," Boeheim said.

The only player with comparable ability is Larry Johnson.

"He's going to be very high in the draft," said New Jersey Nets' senior vice president Willis Reed. "You can never tell. He could be No. 1."

Jerry Reynolds, Sacramento's director of player personnel, said Owens' size, ball-handling and passing skills will be a plus.

"Most teams look at Billy Owens as a guy who could possibly play three positions," Reynolds said. "Your chances of making a bad decision are minimized."

Reynolds said Owens' only weakness is his outside shooting.

"That's something he's going to have to work on at the next level," Reynolds said.

The non-playoff teams in the NBA will participate in a lottery on May 19 to decide the exact order of the June 26 draft.

Owens said he doesn't care where he ends up next year, although the Carlisle, Pa., native said he'd like to be "somewhere warm."

Owens, who said he promised his family he will eventually get a college degree, joins Anderson, a sophomore guard, and juniors Terrell Brandon of Oregon and center Brian Williams of Arizona as underclassmen who've entered the draft.

Owens started all 103 games during his college career, finishing among Syracuse's career leaders in every major category.

Borg seems old in game against younger players

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — "Vive Le Roi! Long Live the King!" chanted a bunch of groupies as Bjorn Borg headed toward center court Tuesday for his first tournament match in eight years.

But it soon became clear how far Borg has to go to regain his throne as he lost badly to Jordi Arrese of Spain 6-2, 6-3, in the first round of the Monte Carlo Open.

The 75-minute match proved it will take more than sheer will and hard work for the 34-year-old Swede to make a successful comeback in the sport he left in 1983. Younger legs, quicker reflexes and a new racket might help.

In some ways, this was the Borg of old. He looked the same — long blond hair, heavy-lidded eyes, a strong, athletic build. He played the same — topspin groundstrokes, two-handed backhand, cut dennisator, no show of emotion.

But in other ways, it was a Borg who seemed just plain old in a game now dominated by youngsters who hit the ball harder and make fewer mistakes than the generation of 10 years ago.

Arrese, 26, is a clay-court expert ranked No. 52 in the world. To him, a player of that rank would have had trouble taking a few games off Borg. But, with the new graphic rackets and cut-throat competition of today, Arrese has all the tools to stop the man who won the French Open six times and Wimbledon five years in a row.

Borg remained upbeat about it all. He blamed the long layoff for his poor showing and said he needs more matches to become competitive in the sport.

"My expectations were not that high," he said. "After eight years, it's impossible to play top tennis in your first match. I learned a lot from this match. Even if I lost, I enjoyed just playing a match. I enjoyed competing again."

Borg said he still plans to enter the Italian Open, French Open and Wimbledon.

"It's going to take a few more tournaments before I will be 100 percent confident again," he said. "I'm sure if I play more matches I'm going to improve my game. I'm pretty confident about that."

Bjorn Borg hides his face after loss

Arrese had all the confidence Tuesday. He controlled the points with heavy topspin shots. He moved Borg around the court.

Borg, still playing with a wooden racket, could do little more than keep the ball in play. The points often ended with Borg badly handling a backhand or sailing a forehand beyond the baseline. The match began with Borg hitting a backhand long and ended with him slapping a forehand approach shot long.

Borg committed 31 unforced errors, compared with 25 by Arrese. The Spaniard had 13 winners, five more than Borg. In all, Arrese won 59 points to 44 for Borg.

"The type of game I have was the worst thing that could happen to me," Arrese said. "You could see he was moving his feet trying to slow the game down. It was too fast for him."

"It would have been better for him to play against someone who makes more mistakes."

Arrese agreed that the wooden racket was a handicap for Borg, who says the graphic models don't give him enough control.

"I know it will be a problem for him," Arrese said. "It's not strong enough and players today will take advantage of it."

Hall of Famer beats cancer, wants to spread word

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Hall of Famer Stan Musial says he's beaten prostate cancer and wants others to know it can be done.

"I'm feeling great," said Musial, who discussed his battle with the disease with other former prostate cancer victims on Tuesday at Barnes Hospital. "I'm back to normal again."

Musial, 70, underwent surgery in September 1989 and later went through six weeks of radiation therapy.

It was a depressing time for the player known as "Stan the Man," a three-time National League MVP who always prided himself on his physical fitness.

"Being an athlete, it was kind of a shock when I heard that I had this problem," said Musial, who retired at age 42 with a career average of .331. "I didn't want to go to a ballgame, see the sport, watch television or read newspapers. It's a very tough struggle."

He's regained most of the weight and now weighs about 192 pounds, only five pounds more than he weighed in 1963, his final season. He says he keeps active by riding a bike every day.

Musial lost about 20 pounds during radiation therapy but says it was "surprisingly easy. I was looking for some after-effects and it never did bother me, so I was very fortunate in that respect."

His commitment to football will not prevent him from making sure that his erroneous suspension is overturned, Mike McCurry, a spokesman for Barnes, said in Washington.

Panel upholds suspension of shot put record-holder

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A two-year drug-related suspension of Randy Barnes, the world record-holder in the shot put, was upheld by an appeals panel. The Athletics Congress said Tuesday.

Barnes, 24, tested positive for methyltestosterone, a banned substance, at a meet in Sweden on Aug. 7, 1990. His suspension began last November and runs through Nov. 1, 1992.

A Drug Appeals Board panel of attorneys William Hickman of Seattle and Ted Brickner of Los Angeles and hurdler Candy Young of Hackensack, N.J., upheld the suspension announced earlier by TAC's Doping Hearing Board. It was the last appeal through TAC, the sport's national governing body, for Barnes, who still could appeal to the U.S. Olympic Committee.

Barnes was the 1988 Olympic silver medalist and last year broke the world record for the shot put, with a heave of 75 feet, 10 1/2 inches at a meet in Los Angeles. Barnes said Tuesday he would continue to seek other avenues for vindication and that he's turned his sights on a career in the NFL.

"His commitment to football will not prevent him from making sure that his erroneous suspension is overturned," Mike McCurry, a spokesman for Barnes, said in Washington.

Time to put heavy recipes on the shelf

I've decided it's time to adopt a teen-ager. Now I'm not rash enough to want to make this permanent, but it would be great to have one "on staff."

Nancy Joy Jones
Valley cooking

Just think one who could taste-test for me and mumble "gross" or "cool" or whatever the equivalent phrases are today. A teen-ager would keep me up on what's "in."

I figure a teen-ager would have been able to tell me in advance that the movie "Silence of the Lambs" wasn't about shepherding.

Finally, maybe, it's going to get warm. I love spring and summer cooking and eating - especially when we "lighten" everything.

Here's a chili that is really good and pretty good for you. The ingredients call for canned beans, but I'll bet you can think ahead and soak and cook them. I've done this when making larger pots of soups and stuff and just frozen the cooked beans in broth by the cup. Use a couple of these size containers for this recipe.

SPRING CHICKEN CHILI

- 6 medium whole chicken breasts, boned
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil, preferably safflower
- 3 large onions, finely chopped
- 1 jalapeno chile, seeded and finely chopped
- 8 medium garlic cloves, finely minced
- 4 teaspoons ground oregano
- 3 tablespoons ground cumin
- 2 teaspoons ground coriander
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 cup chili powder
- 1 12-ounce can beer
- 2 1/2 cups chicken stock or broth
- 1 25-ounce can crushed tomatoes
- 2 sweet red peppers, seeded and cut into 1/4-inch dice
- 1 sweet yellow pepper, seeded and cut into 1/4-inch dice
- 1 15-ounce can (approximately) can kidney beans, drained
- 1 16-ounce can pinto beans, drained
- 1 square chocolate, grated
- 2 to 3 teaspoons salt or to taste
- garnish suggestions:
sour cream or no-fat plain yogurt tomato or jalapeno salsa grated sharp cheese chopped green or red onion

Remove skins from chicken and cube into 1-inch pieces. Refrigerate until 30 minutes before adding to chili.
In a large pot, heat 3 tablespoons of the oil over medium heat and add the onions and saute for 3 to 5 minutes until soft. Add the jalapeno chile and saute one more minute. Now add the garlic, oregano, cumin, coriander, cinnamon and chili powder. Stir everything together.

Now add the beer, chicken stock and tomatoes and bring to a simmer. Keep it at a low simmer for an hour and stir a couple of times. Meanwhile in a medium skillet, heat the other 3 tablespoons of oil over medium heat and add the diced red and yellow peppers and saute for 3 to 5 minutes or until slightly cooked but still crisp. Set aside.

Now add the beans to the chili mixture and cook another 30 minutes, uncovered. This should be getting sort of thick. Add the chicken, sauteed peppers, grated chocolate and salt. Stir until the chocolate is melted. Taste for seasoning. Serve in large bowls with your garnish.
This serves 10 to 12.
If you're having a bunch over, you might either serve the following as an entree or side dish.
It came to me second-hand and I think it's from the famous Canyon Ranch. Sp. Try it, if you love fresh veggies you'll love it.

FRESH SPA CHOPPED VEGETABLE SALAD

- 1/3 cup raw sunflower seeds
- 2 cups chopped broccoli (I would cut the pieces of broccoli in boiling water for 1 minute before chopping)
- 2 cups sliced mushrooms
- 1 1/2 cups chopped cauliflower
- 1 1/2 cups diced jicama (my friend used canned water chestnuts)
- 1 cup diced carrots
- 1/2 cup diced yellow squash
- 1/2 cup diced zucchini
- 1/2 cup alfalfa sprouts

Savor the flavors of spring in Ginger-Orange Chicken with Garden Wild Rice. Topped with a spicy-sweet mix of orange marmalade, ginger, garlic and cilantro; the meal can be fixed in less than 30 minutes.

Fast - fresh

Ring in spring with light, easy suppers

Springtime calls for a change in supper strategy. It's time for winter's hearty, long-cooking fare to take a back burner to less demanding dinners that feature foods as light, fresh and natural as the season itself.

Whether you're planning a midweek family meal or a dinner for friends, these easy-to-prepare recipes will point the way to springtime's simple, fresh approach.

- ### GINGER-ORANGE CHICKEN WITH GARDEN WILD RICE
- 1 2/3 cups water
 - 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
 - 1 package (5.2 ounces) Long Grain & Wild Rice Garden Vegetable Blend
 - 4 chicken-breast halves, boned and skinned
 - salt to taste
 - 2 cloves garlic, minced
 - 1/4 cup plus 1 tablespoon orange marmalade
 - 2 teaspoons finely shredded fresh ginger
 - 2 tablespoons chopped cilantro
 - 6 ounces pea pods, halved if large, thawed if frozen (1 1/2 cups)

- 1/2 cup diced red bell pepper
- Combine water, 1 tablespoon butter and contents of rice and seasoning packets in saucepan. Bring to a boil. Cover tightly, reduce heat and simmer 22 minutes. While rice simmers, poach chicken to 1/4-inch thickness; sprinkle with salt. Melt remaining butter in 10-inch skillet over medium heat. Add chicken and garlic; cook 4 to 5 minutes per side or until cooked through.
- Remove to serving platter; keep warm.
- Add 1/4-cup of the marmalade and ginger to skillet; cook and stir until boiling and thickened, about 3 minutes. Spoon over chicken; sprinkle with cilantro. Stir in pea pods, red pepper and remaining marmalade into rice; cover and continue to simmer until liquid is absorbed, about 3 minutes. Serve alongside chicken.
- Makes 4 servings.

- 6 beef tenderloin filets, cut 1-inch thick (1 1/2 to 2 pounds)
- 1 to 2 garlic cloves, as desired, minced, salt and pepper
- 1 1/2 cups thinly sliced fresh spinach leaves
- Combine water, butter, contents of rice and seasoning packets and mushrooms in saucepan.
- Bring to a boil. Cover tightly and simmer until all liquid is absorbed, about 25 minutes.
- While rice simmers, sprinkle meat with garlic, salt and pepper to taste; press lightly onto meat. Grill, broil or pan-broil to desired doneness, about 4 minutes per side for medium rare. Stir spinach into rice; serve alongside filets.
- Makes 6 servings.

- 1 1/2 to 2 cups watercress leaves, stems removed (about 1 to 2 bunches)
- Combine 3 tablespoons of the honey with mustard, mixing well. Reserve 2 tablespoons mixture; spread remaining evenly over all sides of lamb. Place on rack in shallow roasting pan. Roast at 375 degrees 30 to 40 minutes or until meat thermometer inserted in thickest part of meat registers 150 degrees for medium. Let stand 5 minutes.
- While lamb is roasting, combine water, butter and contents of rice and seasoning packets in saucepan. Bring to a boil. Cover tightly and simmer until all liquid is absorbed, about 25 minutes. Stir remaining 1/2-cup honey and watercress into rice. Slice lamb; drizzle with reserved honey-mustard mixture. Serve alongside rice.
- Makes 6 servings.

- ### GARLIC FILET OF BEEF WITH SPINACH-MUSHROOM WILD RICE
- 2 1/2 cups water
 - 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
 - 1 package (6 ounces) Long Grain & Wild Rice Original Recipe
 - 1 1/2 cups mushrooms, quartered (4 ounces)

- ### HONEY-MUSTARD LAMB WITH WATERCRESS WILD RICE
- 1/2 cup honey
 - 1/4 cup country-style dijon mustard
 - 1/2 leg of lamb, boned, butterflied and well-trimmed (2 pounds)
 - 2 1/3 cups water
 - 1 tablespoon butter
 - 1 package (6 ounces) Long Grain & Wild Rice Original Recipe

- ### LEMON-HERB CHICKEN WITH VEGETABLE GARDEN WILD RICE
- 1 2/3 cups water
 - 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
 - 1 package (5.2 ounces) Long Grain & Wild Rice Garden Vegetable Blend

Cholesterol levels appear to be lower as Americans watch what they eat

By Mary MacVean
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The message, some experts say, is getting through: The cholesterol levels of Americans keep declining.

The levels of people studied in Minneapolis-St. Paul, dropped significantly in the early 1980s, according to a study published in the New England Journal of Medicine earlier this month.

"We've seen changes in dietary intake of total fat, saturated fats and cholesterol, which suggests that people are eating better," said Dr. Gregory L. Burke, a researcher at Bowman Gray School of Medicine in Winston-Salem, N.C., and director of the study.

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services has reported from surveys that in 1988, 30 percent of people said they had tried to change their diets to lower their cholesterol levels, up from 14 percent in 1983.

'Certainly, people are more conscious of cholesterol, and labeling has improved, although there is still some mislabeling.'

— Albert Oberman,
American Heart Association

Products still say they have no cholesterol when they contain saturated fat," said Albert Oberman, chairman of the American Heart Association Council on Epidemiology and director of the division of general and preventative medicine at the University of Alabama.

Cholesterol is a waxy substance found only in animal products, but the body can turn saturated fats into body cholesterol, which is linked to coronary heart disease.

While cholesterol levels appear to be dropping across the population, people apparently are not eating less, because average weights are on the rise, Oberman said.

Burke also noted that some food companies are changing recipes. For example, many cracker makers stopped using tropical oils, which are highly saturated.

Burke and his colleagues found that during the first half of the 1980s, men's blood cholesterol levels fell an average of 5 points to 200, and women's dropped 6 points to 195.

"On an individual basis, that may not seem like a lot, but when you talk about a population, it's a big stuff," Burke said.

That's a 2.5 percent decline for men, which translates into a 5 percent decline in heart disease, Burke said. For every 1 percent decline in cholesterol levels in a population, there's a 2 percent decline in heart disease, he said.

The study was based on surveys of random samples in Minneapolis-St. Paul of 3,365 people from 1980 through 1982 and 4,545 people from 1985-87. The people were 25 to 74 years old.

Some things to know when reheating food

By Marie Bianco
Newsday

We live in a reheated society. This morning's coffee, last night's pizza, dishes from Sunday's cooking marathon, cantons from the local Chinese restaurant.

Whether we call them warm-ups, entrees, planned-overs or surprise casseroles, reheating is a way to get two meals for the work (and cost) of one.

But, like learning to cook, we must learn to reheat. To cover or not to cover? What is the best cover? Is it better in the microwave oven? Or is it worth the wait in a conventional oven? What about plain old hot water?

Reheaters are only safe to reheat if care is taken to refrigerate them as quickly as possible after they make.

Tell us the best advice your mom ever gave you

Remember last year, when we asked readers to tell us the best advice their fathers ever gave them?

This year, we want to hear about the best advice your mom ever gave you. Two entrants will win $10 gift certificates to treat their moms to a great Mother's Day breakfast at Sodbuster Restaurant in Twin Falls.

Think back: What words of wisdom from your mom still echo in your mind? (She could have said them yesterday... or 20 years ago or more.) How has she helped you negotiate life's path? How has she helped you to love, learn and laugh?

One gift certificate will go to an entrant under 18. The other will be awarded to an adult who writes in about her or his own mother. Talk about making Mother's Day gift shopping easy!

Send us your entry by May 3. We'll be featuring your mothers' wise words in a story on Mother's Day, May 12. We'll also announce the winners that day... but the winners will receive their gift certificates in plenty of time to treat their moms to that special Mother's Day breakfast.

The best advice my mom ever gave me was...

My mom's name: _____

Her town: _____

Her phone number: _____

My name: _____

My town: _____

My phone number: _____

My age (as of May 12, 1991): _____

Send your entries to Wise Words From Mom, The Times-News, Box 548, Twin Falls, ID 83303, or bring them to Features Editor Darlene Huner at the newspaper office, 132 Third St. W., Twin Falls.

IF APRIL 24 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY:
You have unusual voice, sense of drama, harmony, are attracted to theater, fine food, luxury and you can be self-indulgent. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons play important roles in your life. You are sensitive, creative, romantic, often are better at helping others than when it comes to promoting your own cause. During May, vitality returns, you'll imprint style and will benefit from financial windfall.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Check records, be positive concerning your "mathematical skills." Means insure that you get fair court. Focus on inventory, basic values, more solid grasp of "current situation."

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Keep plans flexible. Original appointment site subject to "quick change." Scenario highlights variety, filtration, creative endeavor. Written message from Virgo native contains pertinent data.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Attention revolves around home, family, ability to collect money promised one month ago. Be diplomatic but let others know you are not without allies. Renovation, remodeling part of scenario.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Define terms, avoid brooding about past. Relative returns from trip with news that elevates morale. You learn difference between Texas, temporary delay. Pisces play significant role.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emphasis on responsibility, power, authority, ability to meet "deadline." -Credibility is restored, money is released in your name. Relationship meet, stormy but also rewarding. You'll survive!

What's what?

Writes an experienced client: "Stage magicians practice 'prestidigitation' - that's 'nimble fingers' - and 'legerdemain' - that's 'sleight of hand.' I learned those words in junior high. My hobby was magic. It's perfect training for picking pockets? As I write this in my cell..."

Ninety-one percent of the 8,600 known species of birds are faithful to their mates. Statistics on homo sapiens remain unreliable..."

It has long been the practice in England for panckect owners to teach their birds their home phone numbers. No, wait, it's so finders of said birds can call the numbers if the birds stray.

Piranha bite piranha, too.

Imagine you've already figured out why cars with tinted windows use less gasoline...

DEADWOOD
Q. Why was South Dakota's Deadwood called that?

A. Started out as Deadwood Gulch, a ravine loaded with downed trees and branches. Gold prospectors had to clean it out before they could mine.

"In 40 years of doing crossword puzzles," writes a client, "I've learned a lot of new words, and haven't found a use for any of them in ordinary conversation."

Some say "down escalator" is an oxymoron, some don't.

The chair on which the bishop sat was called a "cathedra." Whence its building's name: "cathedral." The saint's cape was called a "chappelle." Whence its building's name: "chapel." And the guard at that building's door, mightn't he, was called a "chaplain."

HUMAN RIGHTS

The Universal Declaration of Human Rights adopted by the United Nations General Assembly in 1948 states, unequivocally: "Everyone has the right to have a country including his own and to return to that country."

If a shark can't digest whatever it'll disgorge its stomach inside out, ruse it not so delicately, then rswallow same.

McDonald's joins low-fat bandwagon

CHICAGO (AP) — Low fat, or at least lower fat, where it's at, consumers said after munching on a new, leaner McDonald's burger.

"It tastes the same as the other hamburgers," secretary Kathy Mulgrew said as she ate the McLean Deluxe at a McDonald's in New York City's Rockefeller Center. "I feel less guilty when I eat it."

Catching a ride on a consumer wave toward healthier eating, McDonald's has launched the burger at its 8,500 U.S. restaurants.

The sandwich looks like other McDonald's offerings: a 3.75-ounce beef patty on a sesame seed bun with lettuce, tomato, pickles and catsup.

The difference is in the beef: it's 91 percent fat free after cooking, spokesman Chuck Ebeling said.

Even so, the McLean sandwich including trimmings, will cost you 320 calories — 28 percent of which are derived from fat.

"If you were going to have a salad, you're better off with the salad," said Bonnie Liebman, director of nutrition for the Center for Science in the Public Interest in Washington.

"This is leaner than any other burger you can buy," Lieberman said. "It certainly is an improvement. But it is not low fat."

Anti-cholesterol crusader Phil Sokolof — who last summer took out newspaper ads to blast McDonald's for the fat content of its food — said McLean Deluxe is swell.

"This is not a health food," said Sokolof in an interview from his office in Omaha, Neb. "But Americans are going to eat many burgers, and this is a revolutionary hamburger. It has less than half the fat of the conventional burger."

One reason for the low fat content is an additive McDonald's has put in the burgers called carboxymethyl — a seaweed derivative.

"It's kind of dry, but I thought I'd try it," said Joe Pestas as he ate at McDonald's, but I think I'll stay with the Big Mac."

Asked if he'd stick with the McLean or go back to the Big Mac, Pestas said, "I usually don't eat at McDonald's, but I think I'll stay with the Big Mac."

Janice Mosher sampled a McLean Deluxe for the first time at a McDonald's in downtown Grand Rapids, Mich.

"To me, all the burgers taste pretty much the same anyway," Mosher said. "So if I can save a few calories with this one, I'm all for it."

Ebeling said the new burger is selling well, but declined to provide sales figures or comparisons with the fast-food giant's other burgers.

"Hamburgers are a substantial part of our business," said Ebeling. "We expect McLean to be a substantial part of that."

Managers at two Little Rock, Ark., McDonald's said the new McLean is faring well in its first two days. Reaction among customers there was mixed.

"To me, all the burgers taste pretty much the same anyway," Mosher said. "So if I can save a few calories with this one, I'm all for it."

The new sandwich ranges in price from $1.78 to a little over $2 without cheese.

Mary Ann Carrington of Pine Bluff, Ark., also ate a McLean. "I like it, and I think it's good to cut down on fat in your diet — even though I'm eating french fries," she said.

Here are a variety of recipe contests currently seeking contestants. Read contest rules for specifics on ingredients and deadlines.

Other tips? Read through your recipe carefully to make sure that all ingredients are listed, and that the cooking directions are clear and easy to follow. Be sure to include cooking times, temperatures and appropriate pan sizes.

Avocado aficionados are encouraged to try for the $5,000 grand prize in the second annual McCall's Avocado Recipe Contest. There is no limit to the number of entries that you may submit as long as they are not guacamole recipes (which are being accepted).

Dishes will be judged on originality, taste, appearance, ease of preparation, general appeal and creativity.

There is still time to win the $2,500 grand prize in the fifth annual Favorite Veal Recipe Contest

The worst that could happen is that you eat all the rejects... or you could win the $10,000 grand prize. Sponsored by M&M's and Gold Medal Flour, the contest is open to non-professional bakers older than 10 years of age.

Recipes must be original and contain at least one cup of Gold Medal Flour and one cup of M&M's plain or peanut chocolate candies.

For rules and entry form, write to: Ultimate Cookie Contest, P.O. Box 5403, Department 30, Minneapolis, Minn. 55460. Entries must be postmarked by May 15.

There is still time to win the $2,500 grand prize in the fifth annual Favorite Veal Recipe Contest. Judges are looking for tasty recipes that are just a little bit out of the ordinary — yet not too far out — and are easy to prepare.

Last year's winner was veal patties with mustard sauce. Ground veal was seasoned with a blend of herbs and served with a quick yogurt-mustard sauce made in the same pan.

Entries must be postmarked by April 26. Only one entry per envelope. Entrants must be 18 years or older. To receive complete contest rules, write: Veal Rules, P.O. Box 530, Barrington, Ill. 60011.

This year's search for the most delicious sandwich is open to kids 6 through 14. Ham and cheese with Bosco vinaigrette? Come up with a creative (and edible) sandwich using Kraft Singles Cheese and you could be the winner of a trip to Walt Disney World resort.

Judging will be based upon originality and creativity (60 percent), clarity and completeness of instructions (20 percent), appropriate use of Kraft Singles Cheese (10 percent), ease of preparation (10 percent).

Entrants must be the original work of each contestant — in other words, parents, but out! — The contest ends June 28. For a list of rules, send a stamped, self-addressed No. 10 envelope to: Kraft Singles Rules, P.O. Box 4036, Blair, Neb. 68009. Requests must be received by June 7.

Pasta sausage soup an easy meal

By Sherrie Clinton
The Baltimore Evening Sun

This main-course soup is easy to make. Preparation is just a matter of slicing Italian sausage links and combining them with a few ingredients. This recipe is from The Pillsbury Co.

ITALIAN PASTA SAUSAGE SOUP
1/2 pound hot or sweet sausage links
1 28-ounce can tomatoes, undrained, cut up
1 1 1/4-ounce can chicken broth
1 8-ounce can no-salt-added tomato sauce
1 teaspoon dried basil leaves
1 teaspoon dried oregano leaves
1 16-ounce package frozen vegetables and pasta
2 tablespoons Parmesan cheese

Place sausage links in large saucepan or 5-quart Dutch oven. Add water to a depth of about 1/2-inch. Bring to a boil; reduce heat. Cover and simmer 10 minutes or until sausage is partially cooked; drain.

Put sausage into slices; return to saucepan. Add tomatoes, chicken broth, tomato sauce, basil and oregano; blend well. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat; cover and simmer 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir in frozen pasta and vegetables. Cover; bring to a boil. Reduce heat; simmer three to five minutes or until vegetables are crisp-tender. Garnish with Parmesan cheese. Serves six.

1/2 cup green onion tops, finely chopped
2 apples, cored and diced
1/2 cup raisins
1/2 cup raw almonds, chopped
1 cup diced mozzarella cheese
1/2 cup parmesan cheese, grated
1/2 cup low-calorie (and best low-fat too) dressing, your choice

Spread the sunflower seeds on a baking sheet and toast in a 350-degree oven for 5 to 10 minutes. It depends on how toasted you like them. Set aside.

Mix all the other ingredients together. Sprinkle 2 tablespoons toasted sunflower seeds over the top of each salad serving. Makes 8 servings of 1 1/2 cups each. Figure 220 calories per serving.

Here's a nice piece of beef for your barbecue. Ask your butcher for the top- and sometimes called the bottom sirloin cut. It's just the right size to serve 4 to 6 and is marbled with fat which makes it great for grill cooking. This recipe calls for an herb paste marinade. After cooking, serve it by slicing and topping each piece with sauce.

TRIANGLE TIP BARBECUED ROAST

1 2-pound triangle tip roast
Marinade paste:
2 garlic cloves, finely chopped
1/2 teaspoon turmeric
1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon salt

is medium rare. To serve hot, slice on the diagonal and pour a little of the sauce on each slice.

Note: This is excellent cooked and chilled (super for a picnic). Just let the meat come to room temperature before refrigeration. I wouldn't slice it before serving if you're going to chill it.

Sour Cream Sauce for Beef:
1 cup sour cream (try the new low-fat stuff here, it works in places like this)
1/2 cup finely chopped cucumber (peel and seed before chopping)
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon fresh chopped chives
1 tablespoon fresh mint, chopped

1/2 teaspoon finely chopped fresh dill
1/2 teaspoon hot pepper oil (see above for directions)
1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
2 teaspoons mint jelly
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper, white is best

Whisk all ingredients together, cover and refrigerate. Enjoy!

One important reason for the decline is an increase in physician intervention, by ordering weight loss or low-fat diets, exercise, and in fewer cases, drugs, Burke said.

But there is plenty of work left to do, he said, noting that two-thirds of the people who have high levels of cholesterol were unaware of that fact. Burke suggests: Replace high-fat snack foods with fruit, and give up a half-hour of television to take a walk.

Despite the good news in Burke's study, a national survey released April 16 by the American Heart, Lung and Blood Institute found that Americans know more about cholesterol but are not changing their eating habits.

Reheat

their premiere. Leaving a sliced-roast beef out on a buffet table for 3 or 4 hours is asking for trouble. The same holds true for shellfish and chicken dishes.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture says that meat should be reheated to 165 degrees to destroy bacteria. Unfortunately, most meat is considered dried out and overdone at this temperature, so a dose of common sense is required. When in doubt, throw it out! should be the reheater's motto.

Variables such as the temperature of the food, the type of dish and the accuracy of your conventional or microwave oven will affect the times given below. Use them as guides.

1. When using paper toweling or napkins, buy the unrecycled, unprinted kind made without bleaching agents. Paper allows steam to escape and is best when heating bread or absorbing fat when cooking bacon.

2. Use microwave-safe vented plastic wrap for reheating foods that should be kept moist, such as vegetables and seafood.

3. Wax paper distributes heat, evenly and is recommended for covering chicken and fruits. Since it absorbs splatters, it can be used for sauces and fatty foods.

4. Always check after lowest cooking time, especially when microwaving.

5. If your microwave has a temperature probe, set it for 160 degrees when "reheating" soups, stews, casseroles and meat loaf.

6. Unless they are microwave-safe, never reheat takeout food in the plastic containers they arrive in.

7. When possible, stir contents of dish, regardless of whether it's reheated in the microwave oven, conventional oven or saucepan.

8. Food heated in a microwave oven for more than 10 minutes should stand 5 to 7 minutes after the dish is removed from the oven to equalize heat.

9. Using a covered casserole dish, such as Corning Ware or Pyrex for leftovers has three advantages: It can be heated in either the conventional oven or the microwave oven, it eliminates the need for plastic or paper towel cover and it can be used as a serving dish.

10. To cut down on reheating time, always use the shallowest dish available.

Now is the time to fertilize, control weeds for better-looking lawn

Spring fertilization and weed control will improve lawn appearance for the entire growing season. By applying fertilizer at the same time weeds are removed, the grass quickly grows into the holes left by weeds. A thick lawn greatly reduces weed regrowth.

Lawn weed killers work best when weeds are growing rapidly. By applying in the spring, weeds are killed before they can produce a crop of seeds. But with weeds like dandelions you have to hurry because they produce flowers so early.

Allen Wilson Gardening

Although all chemical pesticides have come under attack in recent years, 2,4-D and its related weed killers have proven to be one of the safest groups over a long period of use.

The main danger in using them is application to desirable plants which can be killed or damaged. However, at this time of year, there are not many plants which can be accidentally sprayed.

Lawn weed killers are available in several forms.

In my experience, the concentrated liquids are the least expensive and most effective.

A pint bottle will make several applications because only a couple of tablespoons to a gallon of water are needed. Diluted liquids are also available where no mixing is required. These are great for spot weeding a small number of weeds.

If you have not yet fertilized your lawn this spring, the easiest to apply are the weed and feed combination products.

These are available in both dry, granular formulations and hose attachment sprayer formulations. Lawn care and landscape maintenance companies can also apply weed killers and fertilizers for you.

When selecting a lawn weed killer, look for a product which contains more than one chemical.

Some weeds are resistant to one chemical, but will be controlled by a different chemical or a combination of two or three chemicals.

Although the main visible growth response in lawn fertilization is nitrogen, other nutrient elements are also needed.

Phosphorus and potassium are the other two major nutrients usually included in lawn fertilizers.

In the Magic Valley, iron and sulfur are two additional important nutrients.

The sulfur lowers the pH of our alkaline soils and makes micronutrients already in the soil more available to plants.

Iron gives grass a dark green color.

Both chemical and organic fertilizers are available with all of these important nutrient elements.

Wood decks require regular maintenance

Q. I have a three-year-old deck made from pressure-treated lumber. It looks gray and dingy compared with my neighbor's new deck. How can I make it look new again and also protect it against weather? — S. Moody.

A. Keeping a natural-finish wood deck in good condition is a two-step process, cleaning and sealing, that needs to be repeated periodically.

Sealing, with a water repellent, can help keep or restore the original color and help reduce mildew, checking (cracking) and warping.

Some decks need annual treatment; others can go two or three years before their appearance and water absorption signals treatment is needed.

Sprinkling some water on the deck is one way to test absorption. If the water soaks in quickly, sealing is needed; if water beads up and runs off, sealing is adequate. A thorough cleaning can eliminate mildew and dirt and restore much of the original color and brightness to the wood.

A variety of special deck cleaners—some called restorers, revivers or brighteners—is sold at many home centers, hardware stores and lumber yards. Some, such as Wolman Deck Brightener, are designed for cleaning pressure-treated wood. Most cleaners are applied with a sprayer, then scrubbed over the wood and rinsed.

Be sure to read directions thoroughly; some cleaners contain strong chemicals and require personal protection, such as goggles and gloves, and some can harm unprotected plants.

Water-repellent sealers are also available under many brand names. Carefully reading directions is again important, because some sealers are intended to help restore the appearance of new wood, while others let wood weather naturally.

Do it yourself

Following the recommended application method is also important. Typical sealers can be applied with a brush, roller, spray or pad. However, roller, spray or pad applications may need some follow-up brushing to smooth out runs and ensure good penetration.

Q. For several years we've had carpenter ants in our house. An exterminator sprayed one year but said he couldn't find the nest. I tried doing my own spraying for a couple of years and also couldn't find the nest. Can you help? — D. O'Malley.

A. Carpenter ants prefer to nest in decaying, moist wood. Likely areas for a nest are in wood near a roof leak or near a plumbing leak, such as under a sink.

One clue to the presence of a nest is scattered piles of wood fragments.

Fortunately, unlike some insects, these large ants don't use wood for food, and the damage they do is often relatively minor.

Q. I have a dining-room set finished with polyurethane. Just dusting seems to keep it shiny. Does it need any other care? — G. Leven.

A. Polyurethane is one of the most durable furniture finishes and should need no special treatment if used with care. If extra protection against spills and scratches is wanted, the table top can be waxed.

Greenspan's words send market down

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The stock market advanced slightly Tuesday, restrained by new signals the Federal Reserve may postpone further cuts in interest rates.

Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan's guarded testimony on interest rates weakened the government bond market, which in turn supported strength from stocks, analysts said.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 2.73 to 2,930.45. Advancing issues narrowly outnumbered declines in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 830 up, 794 down and 460 unchanged.

Greenpan, responding to questions before the Senate Banking Committee, said inflation was more of a concern now than in the summer of 1986.

He also indicated no immediate action to lower interest rates was ahead.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 167.84 million shares, up from 164.40 million on Monday.

Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 209.90 million shares.

After the opening bell, the Dow advanced quickly gained about 18 points on momentum from active foreign trading overnight in U.S. markets.

Also boosting the market were traders hunting for bargains following three straight losing sessions. Stocks lost ground when the bond market declined over inflation fears.

Other negative economic news came when the government reported orders to U.S. factories for "big-ticket" durable goods plunged 6.2 percent in March, dropping to their lowest level in three years. Failure of the bond market to strengthen on this news also depressed stocks, analysts said.

Actively traded issues included RJR Nabisco, up 1/4 at 11 1/4. The tobacco and food concern reported a first quarter profit of $5 million, compared with a loss of $2.2 million for the same period a year ago.

American Telephone & Telegraph was down 1/4 to 36 after the telecom manager bid for NCR Corp., which was dropped 10 1/2.

Fleet-Norstar Financial Group Inc. of Providence, R.I., gained 3/4 to

2 1/4 following its successful joint bid with Kohlberg Kravis, Roberts & Co. for the failed Bank of New England.

Bank of Boston Corp., a losing bidder, fell 1/4 to 7 1/4.

Other active issues included MBIA Corp., the municipal bond insurance company, which gained 1/4 to 35 1/4; and Upjohn, down 1/4 to 44 1/4.

As measured by Wilshire Associates' index of more than 5,000 actively traded stocks, the market gained $4.965 billion, or 0.14 percent, in value.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose 0.29 to 208.68. Standard & Poor's industrial index rose 0.99 to 452.99, and S&P's 500-stock composite index gained 0.31 to 381.74.

The NASDAQ composite index of over-the-counter market rose 1.70 to 496.08.

Albertson's: Prosecution in child labor-law case unfair

The Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. — Albertson's Inc., facing penalties of $144,500 for alleged violations of Oregon child-labor laws, claimed Monday it is being unfairly prosecuted by the state.

The Oregon Bureau of Labor and Industries has accused the grocery chain of 288 infractions, all pertaining to lax record keeping on an failure to file employment certificates for 137 minors who worked at 36 Albertson's stores.

"The evidence will show that there was an edict issued from the top of the bureau that Albertson's was to be treated differently by bureau personnel," criticized Gordon, an attorney for the grocery business, chain, said during opening statements in a contested case hearing.

More than 50 witnesses are to be called during the hearing, which is expected to be among the lengthiest in the bureau's history. Testimony could take three weeks.

Albertson's requested the hearing, which is being overseen by a referee who is employed by the bureau, to defend itself against charges.

One of Albertson's defenses in the case is selective enforcement. The chain believes rules are being enforced against it that are not enforced against other employers, including those in the Portland area.
