Illegal drug sales exceed $40 billion

WASHINGTON — Americans shelled out more than $40 billion for illegal drugs last year, according to a new and "very rough" estimate of the illicit retail market, "A hell of a lot of money is being spent for drugs," Bob Martinez, director of the Office of National Drug Control Polley, said Wednesday as he released the report. The study estimates "the amount of money America's users actually took out of their pockets, or took out of other people's pockets, to purchase drugs," Martinez told a national conference on state and local drug policy.

House votes to cancel Jordan arms aid

WASHINGTON — The House voted Wednesday to cut off military aid to Jordan as a reprisal for that country's support of Iraqi President Saddam Husensi during the Persian Gulf War.

Lawrnakers softened the blow by giving President Bushelte authority to waive the cutoff of military aid, expected to total $27 million in the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1, if certain conditions are met.

The aid cutoff was approved $10-4$ after the House voted to let the president keep mid flowing to Jordan if he deems it to be in the national interest, and if he certifies that Jordan has committed to bilateral negotiations with Israel, recognized Israel's right to exist and stopped aiding Iraq.

Denver voters elect 1st black mayor

DENVER — City Auditor Wellington Webb was elected Dower's first black mayor after a shoestring — and shoe-leather — campaign. Webb, who walked Denver's neighborhoods and stayed at supporters' homes along the way to counter District Attorney Norm Early's 16g-money media campaign, got 60,511 votes, or 38 percent, to Early's 48,702 votes, or 42 percent. Webb likened himself to Rocky Balboa when he launched his walking campaign in May as a nearly broke underdog. On Tuesday night, the ruised his arms Rocky-like as supporters cheered. The "Rocky" theme blared over the packed street.

Documents show Noriega ties with cartel

MIAMI — Manuel Noriega aided Bolivian drug smugglers and provided phony passports and even a Ferrari to Colombia 's Medellin cartel, according to prosecution documents released Wednesday. Noriega, accused of protecting four cociane shipments for the cartel, helped ship 10 to 15 additional loads, each several hundred pounds, the government said, the once accepted bribes to release a drug ship that was intercepted by the U.S. Coast Guard in the late 1970s and turned over to the Panamanian government, prosecutors said. The accusations were made in a prosecution document aimed at bolstering the drug and racketering case against the deposed Panamanian leader, whose trial is scheduled to begin Sept. 3.

Tighter employer bill gains new ground

-WASHINGTON — Legislation to ban employers from permanent-y replacing striking workers cleared its first Senate hurdle Wednes-lay in the face of stiff Republican opposition and the administration's alk of a veto:

The Senate Education and Labor Committee sent the measure to the floor on a 10-7 party-line vote. A similar bill is expected to hit the House floor in late July. The panel's action came as the AFL-CIO mounted a radio and television campaign designed to muster public support of the measure.

Sandinistas occupying areas in protest

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — Sandinistus held at least six city halls and two radio stations Wednesday in their protest against the repeal of a giveway that enriched thousands of Sandinistas at the end of their regime.

The occupations continued after a night of bombings that rocked a Sandinista radio station and the headquarters of pro-government parties. No injuries were reported and damage was said to be minor. The National Assembly is expected to vote within three weeks on revoking two laws that gave government-controlled land, houses and other property to thousands of leftist Sandinistas, including some top party leaders, before they left office last spring.

Power grab attempts reflect fear of change

The Associated Press

MOSCOW — The attempt by Prime Minister Valentin Pavlov to wrest power from President Mikhail S. Gorbachev testifies yet again to the deep fear of radical rofom rooted in the Communist bureaucracy.
"The conservatives are disappointed in Gorbachev," Russian television said Wednesday, commenting on fears among hard-liners that Gorbachev's rebom reformism jeopardizes their carcers.
Pavlov broke new ground in Soviet politics Tuesday by trying to pull what one reformer called a "constitutional coup" — asking the Supreme Soviet legislature for emergency powers similar to those held by Gorbachev.

Pavlov's proposal is a more public version of behind-the-scenes pressure brought to bear by his predecessor, Nikolai Ryzhkov, in September to persuade Gorbachev to scrup a plan to transform the Soviet conomy from a centrally planned to a market economy in 500 days,

But Pavlov's effort seems less likely to succeed, in part because of the drubbing that Ryzhkov took earlier this month in a popular election with reformer Boris N. Yeltsin for the presidency of Russia. Yeltsin scored 57 percent of the vote and Ryzhkov 16 percent from a field of six candidates.

"It is nothing dangerous. I don't think Gorbachev wants to overdramatize it," the president's spokesman, Vitaly Ignaticho, told reporters Tuesday. Gorbachev may be taking the event lightly because he and Yeltsin are trying to conclude a new Union Treaty.

That pact would disband the current Supreme Soviet legislature, and likely would end the parliamentary careers of its Communist-dominated majority.

For future's sake, America must learn to teach math

We learned a decade ago that Joine ny can't read. Turns out he can't divide either.

The results of the National Assessment of Education Progress administered to eighth-graders last year show that, on the average, nowhere in the country can eighth-graders do eighth-graders and the proficiency level expected of fifth-graders.

Idaho's eighth-graders ranked eighth out of 40 states and territories—13 states didn't administer the tests. Idaho's median score was not quite up to sixth-grade work.

The results of the test, part of an annual assessment of the nation's classroom skills, are a national disgrace.

They shows that most eighth-graders including Idaho's, are not capable of going beyond simple computation. Most of the kids can add, but they have serious trouble thinking through simple problems.

The vast majority of these students are not remotely prepared for calculus, trigonometry or computer science—the kind of math skills America will need to compete with the rest of the world into the next century. The results of the National Ass

- the kind of math skills America will need to compete with the rest of the world into the next century.

That fact should set alarms ringing all over the country.

But don't blame the kids; math education in America is failing.
In an age in which machines can do millions of computations in the blink of an eye, American kids are still learning math the way their greatgrandparents did. Few math classes use calculators or computers. Fewer use calculators or computers. Fewer still offer any practical applications.

The result is that for most kids, math is deadly dull, and problem-solving skills are rudimentary.

Thirty-five years ago, the launch of the Sputnik spacecraft by the Soviet Union served as a wake-up call for American education. Math and science, theretofore the refuge of nerds in Eisenhower's America, became is sues of national concern. Math and science education was expanded, promoted and improved, with better facilities, better methods and better teachers.

cilities, better methods and bette teachers.

If anything, the need is greater now. What the appalling math skills of American adolescents portend for the future presents a greater threat to the country than Sputnik ever did.

We need more small-group instruction in the classroom and less rote learning. We need more kids using more calculators and computers from the time they learn to add. And we need more math teachers like Twin Falls High School's TeRon Smith who are the starts of their profession, not part-time coaches whose real interest in math begins and ends with the number of time-outs left in the quarter.

Most of all, we need Americans to realize the implications of these numbers.

We're losing to the Japanese in most high-tech fields today. In others, we're losing to the South Koreans, the Chinese and the Europeans as well.
Our world competitiveness, our standard of living – even our national security are at stake. We simply have no alternative but to improve math literacy among the young – now.

Straight talk on sex? Start with, 'No'

"Kids need straight talk, not idealistic preaching, on sre," found in the June 18 issue, was an affront to my intelligence. Obviously, the writer and I disagree almost completely about the way we ought to handle the difficult problem of sexual activity in our youth. Perhaps that's to be expect, considering our respective occupations. However, my objection rests in the ridiculously clumsy use of opinion and selected bits of information in a piece ostensibly advocating the use of "facts" in counseling kids about sex.

The writer quotes several slogans from the "Sex Respect" curricular materials and then cites the objectives the program hopes to accomplish.

Now, I've not seen the "Sex Respect" books, so I don't know if your editorial gives either a complete or correct idea of its books, so I don't know if your editorial gives either a complete or correct idea of its content. All that is clear is that the writer doesn't like the program, characterizing it all as a "pipe dream."

Thanks for your opinion, gentlemen, but don't consider it a fact simply because it flows from your perior.

The editorial goes on to say, "Adolescents are remarkably responsive to straight talk. They're just as good at tuning out double-Ltalk." I think most people who have any contact with young people would agree.

I wonder, though, whether it isn't straight talk—the very straightest—to suggest that abstinence does, indeed, avoid the problems of pregnancy, venereal disease, neglected children, abortion, AIDS, etc. You may no like the sound of it, but "just saying no" is straight talk straight talk.

Perhaps the key line in the piece is, "The real world for adolescents is a baffling flurry of mixed messages." Bingo, again! You must have some teen-agers in your house.

Do you think they could tell the difference between a message that says an unequivocable, unmixed "no" to premarital sex and all the other messages they get from media and environment?
They may not agree with the unmixed message, but they "il at least know that some members of their society feel the best way to use the bodies they live in is to abstain from sex until marriage.

There are people like me who value con-from sex until marriage.

There are people like me who value concrete, objective, biblical standards of behavior and who want those standards presented to our kids. There are also others who want no standards applied, who instead suggest a freedom of choice that constantly redefines the concepts of right and wrong as our actions place us in ever new and dangerous situations.

I suggest that people like me have a stronger claim to factual basis for our views.

There is indeed a good deal of "idealistic preaching" on this issue. I think you were in your pulpit on June 18.

You mentioned the Bush administration seems not to have a clue about how to stanch the rising toll of drugs. Hogwash! Many high Urls-officials are involved in high crimes concerning drugs, as well as many other things. Since space does not permit, I suggest that all law enforcement offi-

I did write to this editor once before about getting rid of the drug problem. Here goes

Blue Lakes doesn't need a light

Another Blue Lakes Boulevard signal just adds another bottleneck to the worst street in lown, another out of sync signal to further back up traffic.

This is the worst example of congestion caused by signals I have ever driven through. The reverse-timed red lights that make you stop at every signal. Try going south on Shoshone from the Second West light to the Sixth West light at the speed lirrit – it always turns red as you get there. Sure, go 40 miles per hour, you might make the yellow.

Sure, go of hines per hour, you have been been considered by the yellow.

Whoever is in charge of the signals must never drive Blue Lakes and Shoshone. Over half the street is empty with up to 40 stopped cars belehing pollution while waiting for the straggling left-turners to get completely out of sight before the signals finally turn green after what seems to be the longest minutes in history.

The worst accident-causer is the utilot turning off either too slowly or stopping halfway around and getting rear-ended. They should be cited, rather than the person-hitting them. I don't think another light is the answer.

We'll know soon, when an arsenic test is performed on the remains of Zachary Taylor.

If he was slain, the question becomes, "sho done it?" The obvious answer is the person who benefited most. That was Millard Fillmore. He was Taylor's vice president and moved up upon ZT's death in 1850.

Some people might say a little arsenic in ZT's milk turned out to pustifiable homicide, historically speaking. Here is a 90-second history lesson.

Taylor's Whig Party was split down the middle on the question of slavery. He opposed slavery in the wester territories. Most. Southern Whigs favored it. Sen. Heary Clay of Kentucky, the era's leading Whig, drafted a proposal that among other things allowed some slavery in the west but not commet.

Winfield Scott.

Taylar only got elected president because former Democratic President Martin Van Buren ran as a third-party candidate in 1848 and split the Democratic vote.

Taylor died after two years in office. Fillmore was so unpopular that he lost the nomination in 1852 to Scott, who lost the election to Democrat Franklin Pierce. That was the end of the Whigs.

Fillmore ran for president in 1856 as the nominee of the Whigs.

Year by year, the syndrome has gotten worse. In fact, if you talk these days to a political "professional" either candidate or handler you'll more often than not meet. you'll more often than not meet with a puzzled expression if you suggest that, if leadership comes first, public opinion will follow.

fry ou talk policy, you'll likely get an immediate question such as: "What issues do you think are hot?" or "What should our message be?". As one who has been involved in national campaigns for 30 years, as a media, campaign and policy advis-er, I can attest that this is in contrast to the entry-point questions of polit-ical discussion even a few years back: namely, what do we stand for and how can-we get it done?

and how can we get it done?
From White House to state legislative campaign office, the trend of the past 20 years has been toward least-common-denominator political campaign commercials for President Bush were the ultimate example which will exhibit the state of the electorate rather than appeal to its higher institutes. It will not be long before we see the perfect political loop - commercials directly feeding back opiniod data to the electorate, telling it what it wants to hear.

At the sande time, we also could it wants to hear.

Afthe sanfe time, we also could skip a step in the campaign finance-process. Public and private monitories given to campaign sould be allocated directly to pollsters and campaign consultants for use as they chose, thus further eliminating the need for candidates themselves.

Why do our president and other responsible political leaders sit still for such nonsense? Why do voters?

U.S. politicians need more guts The country is ripe for a George Wallace with brains who will run for president on a straightforward platform: Kill the consultants. TWIN FALLS - Tipped off by a business alarm, police on Wednesday arrested an 18-year-old man and three juveniles suspected of stealing about $135,000 worth of property over the past year. All four of the youngsters are charged with two counts of first-degree burglary. Each also faces a single grand thet auco charge in connection with four vehicles stolen from Wills Motor Co. over the weekend, Lt. Jim Kistler of the Twin Falls police department said.

All of those cars have been recovered, although one was completely destroyed, Kistler said.

Judge instructs Washington, 2 other states to open low-level waste dumps to Michigan

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A-group of low-level radioactive waste producers halted Tuesday a federal-court ruling that Washington, Nevada and South Carolina must once sgain open their dumps to Michigan waste.

One expert said Washington and Nevada may continue to block Michigan waste, but an attorney for the producers said the legal arguments for such action won't success.

the producers said the legal argu-ments for such action won't suc-ceed.

U.S. District Judge Robert Holmes Bell issued an order in Grand Rapids line Monday, He rold' South Carolina, Nevada, and Wash-nigton to take waste from Michigan despite this state's slowness in building a federally mandated dump to hold low-level waste from seven states.

"It's good news. We won based on the first argument we presented," asid William Lukens, exceutive director of the Michigan Coalition of Radioactive Material Users Inc.
He said that argument was that Michigan was in compliance with federal law and shouldn't be denied access.

Granting Michigan access to the disposal facilities in the sited states at this time is not a long-term solu-tion to Michigan's low-level waste problem.

> - Robert Holmes Bell, U.S. District Judge

(three) states to deny access at this time." He added that federal law allows them to close their doors to waste from outside their regions on Jan. 1, 1993.

Bell also noted that regaining access to those dumps won't solve Michigan's problems.

"Granting Michigan access to the disposal facilities in the sited states at this time is not a long-term solution to Michigan's low-level waste problem," he wrote.

"Michigan may have a day of reckoning, but that day is not to-

Bell's ruling was also hailed by James Cleary, commissioner of the Michigan Low-Level Radioactive Waste Authority. That agency is charged with finding a dump site:

"It's really good of news for those in the sent of the with sent of the with sent of the with for the with federal law, he said. He said most of Michigan's waste had been shipped to South Carolina, with some going to Washington and little to Newada.

little to Nevada.

Bell's ruling was still being reviewed in Washington state and no decision had been made on arr appeal, said Sheryl Hutchison, assistant press secretary in Gov. Booth-Gardner-soffice.

But she said attorneys for Washington's Department of Ecology questioned whether a federal court in Michigan has jurisdiction over Washington state.

questioned whether a federal courin Michigan has jurisdiction over Washington state.
"It is not our intention at this point to reopen our doors to Michigan waste," Hutchinson said.
"We remain very confident in and committed to the compact process and about our concern about Michigan's reluctance to move ahead with siting its own disposal area," she said.

A Nevada official said his state and Washington can continue to block Michigan waste because their regional compacts voted to ban it. The compacts weren't named in the lawsuit filed by Lukens' group.

"There's not going to be any waste coming in because they don't have approval from the Rocky Mountain corripact," said Jerry Griepentrog, director of the Newada Democration of Human Resources. "They (the compacts) approve the exporting or importing of waste," not the individual states. "We clearly do not agree with the judge's decision," he said, adding that Newada would appeal if the ruling were expanded to include the compacts. Lukens wasn't available to respond, but attorney Richard Kraus was confident Bell's ruling would cover the compacts. If needed, he said, he'd return to court for a broader ruling." "I don't believe that gives them any basis to disobey Judge Bell's order," Kraus said, "This is frankly not a surprise and it's nothing we're worried about." Michigan's failure to provide a site, as ordered in 1987 by the Midwest Interstate Low-Level Rudiouctive Waste Commission, has also put it at odds with the Midwest group. A key meeting is scheduled for next week, and Michigan might be ejected from the group. Lukens said he expects Bell's order will tasky in effect until reversed by another court. "Give us the days and we'll have under the other states, Lukens said, "you have to make sure the days and we'll have under benefit of the court of the other states, Lukens and hospitals. It has been stored at 51 sites; across Michigan since Nevada, Washington and South Carolina cut off access.

EPA presents new sludge cleanup plan

POCATELLO — The Environmental Protection Agency has a plan calls the safest, most cost-effective approach to cleaning up the polted Union Pacific Railroad sludge pit in Pocatello, But it won't be cheap.

This alternative make pretty-cheaply among those considered, but we feel if properly implemented, it will fully safeguard people and the environment, Am Williamson, the EPA's project manager for the Williamson and the Superfund cleanup will cost Union Pacific approximately $3.8 million and will take about five years. Plans call for the milroad to dig up about 4,200 cubic yards of sludge and dispose off in at a hazardous waste landfill in Utah.

Drug group severs ties with boat race

COEUR d'ALENE — A drug-abuse prevention group voted to end jis affiliation with a fund-raising boat race after posters featuring a beer company were used to promote it:

were do not want to risk any association with a brewery," Kim Cooper, fund-mising chairman for the Kootenai County Substance Abuse Council said after Tuesday's vote. The boat race, intended to raise money for the Drug Abuse Resistance Education, (DARE) program in Kootenai County Schools, is scheduled for this weekend at Spirit Lake.

Prosecutor to investigate shooting death

Prosecutor to investigate snooting death

CALDWELL — A Canyon County man was shot to death Tuesday night during a struggle outside a rural home south of Nampa with 76year-old former sheriff and coroner Dale Haile.

James Myron Spears, 36, was shot about 10:30 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Dianne Donndelinger, the estranged wife of Dr. Thomas Donndelinger, a Nampa pathologist, Canyon County Prosecutor
Richard Harris said.

Spears died about 11 p.m. at Mercy Medical Center in Nampa. Harris said he was shot once in the chest with Haile's 9mm pistol.

No charges were filed Wednesday. Harris said the statu attorney general's office had agreed to appoint a special prosecutor and the Idaho Department of Law Enforcement was leading the investigation with help from the Canyon County sheriff's office.

Governor mediates between fishermen, agriculture interests

POCATELLO (AP) — The Portneuf River, once one of eastern Ida-ho's top trout streams, is suffering-from siltation.

Agriculture and recreation met Tuesday with Gov. Cecil Andrus and other officials on what to do about it. But the governor made it clear he wants solutions, not more arguments about the problem.

"We're not here to point fingers or to blame anyone," Andrus said,
"We're here to admit there is a problem and to work together to fix it."
Dick Scully, regional fish managefor the Fish and Game Department, organized a tour along the river to get sportsmen and landowners talking about the sillation problem.

The plan was for stops along up-per stretches of the river for presen-tations from each group. Instead, people from each group curious about what others were saying joined the tour at the first stop and followed the governor's van to later stops.

State fish and

Andrus State fish and game director Couley made the trip, along with Lou of Couley made the trip, along with Lou of Came Commission.

Jimmy Gabettas of The Friends of the Porneuf-described the river-during the 1960s as a blue ribbon stream. "The fishing was consistently excellent, and the exciting part is that it could be again," he said.

He showed riparian fencing built by his group to keep cattle out of the river and away from the banks. Ga-bettas said cattle contribute to silta-tion by breaking down the banks and cating -vegetation - in the river and-along the banks.

along the banks.

Ervin Gilbert, president of the Portneuf-Marsh Valley Canal Co., said his company uses the river to move irrigation water to Downey. The canal company is not opposed to fencing and bank improvements along the canal.

"Our primary purpose is to move water through the river for irrigation...but we'll help with improvements as long as they don't reduce our water flow, the said. The King Creek Grazing Association towns or controls land along the Portneuf River below the canal and manager Steven Hebdon said the association has agreed to allow fencing on an experimental basis.

Preston voters turn down levy

PRESTON (AP) — Preston School District patrons narrowly defeated a $150,000 override levy to reduce class size and maintain the present level of funding. The final vote Tuesday was 197 in favor of the proposal and 192 against. Superintendent Orson Bowler said most of the money would have gone to hire teachers for fourth and sixth grade at Oakwood Elementary School.

He said the district received some funding from the state to implement class size reduction. But without the additional money Preston will top an average of 30 students in the upper elementary classes.

State advisory panel begins work at INEI

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A newly appointed state advisory panel has been asked to help select a contractor to study possible human exposure to radiation at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

"We hope to see this program function as an information sourcefor the people of Idaho," Richard Donovan, director of the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, said Wednesday,

The study, called a dose reconstruction, was requested by Gov. Cecil Andrus in March after it was recommended by a group of scientists who found flaws in a draft version of a less-comprehensive historic dose evaluation study is due to be released in July or August and the public panel named by Donovan last weck has been asked to review its findings.

Some committee members said it to find the state Division of Health, might be a waste of time to examine that study since a full dose reconstruction study has been requested.

"We're going to be looking at maybe analyzing a dead horse," pan-el member Charles Brockway, a hydrologist with the University of Idaho Water Research Institute, said at dose reconstruction," he said.

"That's intrinsically valuable to the state." The 14-member panel, assembled by the state under an agreement with the Energy Department, represents scientific disciplines, environmental groups, business and labor leaders, Indian groups and the general public. Schultz said the committee also was appointed to review models used to produce the INEL's annual radiation reports.

NEW YORK — The stock market took its sharpest drop in more than five weeks Wednesday, beset once again by interestrate worries.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 313 points to 2,955.50, for its largest loss since it fell 37.57 points on May 14.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by nearly 3 to 1 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 414 up, 1,156 down and 471 unchanged.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 156.18 million shares as of 4 p.m. EDT, against 154.92 million at the same point Tuesday. In after-horus-trading at the exchange, an additional 3.55 million changed hands.

The market's retreat followed an overnight selloff in Tokyo stock prices, which came amid discouraging signs about the chances of lower interest rates in Japan.

That, in turn, apparently gave investors in this country, new cause to worry about the likely course of U.S. interest rates.

The government bond market held steady Wednesday, however, leaving yields in the 8.50 percent-8.55 percent range. Elsewhere in the economic news, the Commerce Department reported that the U.S. trade deficit stood at $4.78 billion in April, up from a revised $4.07 billion the month before. But April exports stepped up to a record pace.

under the bankruptey laws.

Among artively randed blue chips, American Express dropped ¼ to 23½, Procter & Gamble 2½ to 81; Philip Morris ¾ to 65%; General Motors ¼ to 43, and Pepsico ¾ to 29%.

Japanese issues truded in this country were broadly lower. Histori, fell 1½ to 76%; Kyocera 1½ to 89, and Maisushita Electrical 2½ to 117.

Wang Laboratories class B shares, traded on the American Stock Exchange, dropped ¾ to 3¾. The company said it will take sig-mineaux canages for the fiscal year ending, this month for restructuring as part of a deal-with. International Business Machines underwhich it will resel IBM computers, IBM stock edged up it to 101. Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 195.03 million shares.

As measured by Wilshire Associates' index of more than 5,000 actively traded stocks, the market lost $33.81 billion, or 0.93 percent, in value.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

"Nowadays we are all of us so hard up that the only pleasant things to pay are compliments. They're the only things we can pay."

— Oscar Wilde.

"Nicely played," said a happy North as he added the rubber totals. He was too busy or too polite to mention anything about the bidding or defense.

mention anyuning about the bidding:

or defense.

South was a bit impulsive with his jump to five diamonds. Many would have preferred to gamble on the intertick norturing pame.

At diamonds South drew trumps, cashed the high clubs and ruffed a club. Then he cashed dummy's pade ace and played a second spade, giving the defense an impossible problem. If East rose with his king to lead a heart, dummy's spade jack would promote to South's 11th winner. And if East played his spade winner. And if East played his spade nine, West would win the queen and suffer an endplay.

East ducked with hope (South might have held only two spades), but it didn't work. West won his queen but had no safe lead. South, made both his queen and his acc of hearts and claimed It tricks.

While South did make a good play in spades, West was gullty of cooperation with the enemy. When during's spade ace is cashed. West should visualize whale coming he way and should drop his queen under durmmy's ace. East then wins the second spade and South is held to only 10 tricks.

Seaby Yates, Dravecky's agent, said he spoke with Dravecky on Wednesday and characterized him as being "upbeat."
"Dave and it was wonderful not to be in plain anymore, "Yates said."
"Dave and his family are doing well. They see this development as a relief as much as anything. They just want Dave to get well."
Dr. Brennan is chairman of the Department of Surgery at Sloan-Kettering, which pioneered limb preservation procedures for sarcomas such

There had been some hope that the arm could be saved, but according to Dravecky's father, the decision was made to proceed with the amoutation following two late tests.

The amputation was performed during a 2%-hour operation, which the hospital said proceeded as planned.

According to the hospital, the surgery was necessary "due to progressive pain and loss of function."

King Hill's Gorrell brothers maintain balance while amassing rodeo honors

Hornets deal would bring in UNLV star

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The prospect of paying a No. I draft pick unce than 53 million has the Charlotte Hornets looking to cut salary expenses, and one option under consideration is to send Rex Chapman and JR, Reid to the San Antonio Spurs.

Such a trade would bring Willie Anderson to the Hornets, a source close to the Spurs told The Charlotte Observer

Anderson or the Spurs told The Charlotte Observer
The deal would help the Homets stay under the NBA salary cap when they make their No. 1 pick next Wednesday. It could increase the likelihood that Charlotte will use the pick to get UNLV forward Larry Johnson, the newspaper reported.
Homets officials met with Johnson's agent Monday, but they insist the team has not reached a final decision. Johnson's agent, Steve Endicott, has said Johnson's with playin Charlotte. Jerry Reynolds, director of player personnel for Sacramento, has said he won't even interview. Johnson because he is sure he won't be around for the Kings' No. 3 pick.

Deadline for contolled hunts nears

With the June 30th deadline only a few days away, I am once again driven to commit my annual act of futility—mak-ing application for big game controlled hunts.

I guess I should not complain too much since I have experienced some sucmuch since I have experienced some suc-cess over the past twenty years.

There certainly are those who have done worse, but it is human nature to whell on the luck of those who year after year draw not one hunt, but two and sometimes there and then have the au-dacity to complain about how they won't have time to make all the hunts.

And then there are those who draw and have time to make all the hunts.

And then there are those who draw and
never take the gun from the rack.
There are other methods of determining who will get big game permits. Some states use a point system which improves your chances of drawing each year until you have a sure thing. If that were the case it would still take me the maximum numbers of years entered to draw that a hunt.

It seems that no matter what system is used, you either have the touch or you don't.

I suppose there is one good side to not drawing—getting the refunds checks back in August.

Years back when those who drew the previous year could not apply for two-years. I got some consolation from the knowledge that some of the "lucky" individuals were out of the running.

But no system can compensate for rotten luck.

But those of us with less than a fair share of good fortune don't have to take this fate lying down. There are actions we can take which will improve our odds of drawing a hunt this fall.

fall. ne most obvious strategy is to select s which offer more favorable odds. unts which offer more lavorable odds. or example, it takes a heavy charge of ick to draw a buck muley in unit 45 here the odds last year were 20 to 1.

Final hearing today on fishing regs

Fish and Game officials seek comment to plan for future

TWIN FALLS — For the first time in nemory, the Region 4 of the Idaho Fish and Game Department is giving Magic Valley fishermen time for stating prefer-nces while the paper is still blank.

Chip Corsi, Region 4 fisheries manager, will conduct the last of three public hearings for Twin Falls area fisherman at 7:30 p.m. today at the KMVT community room on Blue Lakes north.

"Rather than wait until we get our proposals on paper and then sent to Boise for approval before offering them for study the public, we decided to see if our fightermen had anything they'd like to suggest first," Corsi said.

While it adds another round to the annual hubbub surrounding regulation changes, it could become a time saver. For instance, Corsi said the department already has been soliciting opinions at

Low river flows viewed as partly to blame for low chinook migration

BOISE — With the adult spring chinook salmon migration nearly complete, just 6,078, fish, third-lowest count ever for midule, have been tallied at Lower Granite Dam, officials say.

The 1991 count shows the spring -chinook salmon is hovering near the extinction level, Salmon Watch Survival officials said.

The low numbers mean a chinook season on the Little Salmon River appears remote. Fish and Game's Steve Yundt said a salmon season "is not even a possibility without a miracle."

Last year at this time, 16,283 adult spring chinook were counted at Lower Granite, the last of eight dams fish must negotiate on their upriver migration to cen-tral Idaho.

The 10-year average for the mid-June was 17,813 adults.

"Idaho produces millions of wild and hatchey fish — about 10 million each year — but the dams, reservoirs and barges keep grinding them up," said Wendy Wil-son, executive director for Idaho Rivers United, a sponsor of the fish counts.

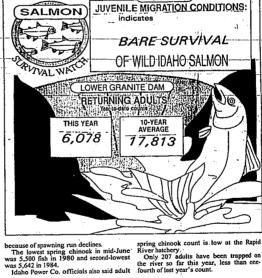

United, a sponsor of the list counts.

Watch officials blamed poor dam-passage conditions in 1987-88 and low river flows for the reason there are are so few adult fish returning this year.

"We just put the fish in the Snake River and wave goodbye." Wilson said.

Snake River spring, summer and fall chi-nook salmon have been proposed for list-ing as a threatened species.

Man nabbed in federal fish-poaching sting agrees to change plea to guilty

OLYMPIA — The first person to be tried as a result of a 14-month state fish-poaching sting has pleaded guilty to the illegal possession and sale of salmon, the state Department of Wildlife said.

John Leigh, 23, of Olympia, initially leaded innocent to nine charges but hanged his plea during the second day of stral Tuesday in Thurston County Super Court, the department said.

A part of a plea agreement, Leigh admit-ted guilt to two felony charges of posses-sion and sale of salmon, a gross misch salmon charge of possession and sale of salmon, and a gross misdemeanor charge of trafficking in steelhead.

The two felonies involved salmon worth more than $250. Wildlife Department spokesman Dave

A part of a plea agree-ment, Leigh admitted guilt to two felony charges of possession and sale of salmon, a gross misdemeanor charge of possession and sale of salmon, and a gross misdemeanor charge of trafficking in steelhead.

Workman said other charges against Leigh were dropped and a reduced sentence was recommended in return for his cooperation in the prosecution of others involved in black-market fishing operations.

state for damage to the fisheries resource, Workman said.

Judge Paula Casey has not set a sentencing date.

Leigh was arrested in April along with Joann Leigh-Squally and Randy Miller. Similar charges against Leigh-Squally and Miller are pending in Thurston County.

"They are among a dozen non-Indians inplicated in connection with a Wildlife Department undercover sting of poachers, buyers and sellers of 5% tons of salmon, steelhead and sturgeon, state officials say. The sting ran from January 1990 through March of this year.

Several members of Northwest Indian tribes, including 10 members of the Yakiman Indian Nation, also have been investigated in the case.

The Denartment of Wildlife has sent in-

The Department of Wildlife has sent information to Indian authorities for consideration of charges in tribal courts.

Dredging near Silver Creek worries anglers

PICABO — Responding to complaints by anglers, he Idaho Department of Water Resources is investigating the dredging of a slough along Sill-ver Creek west of Picabo that occurred early this spring.

An island in the slough was removed-by rancher-Nick-Purdy,—who, said the work was needed to protect his diversion dam which creates the pond just below Kilpatrick Bridge. But anglers are questioning his right to dredge in the waterway—without a stream alteration permit.

"I didn't know Inceded one," Purdy said of the permit.

Terry Blau of the Department of Water Resources and Idaho Fish and Game Conservation Officer Paul Valcarce visited the site last week. "There's quite a bit of aquatic vegetation that's been disturbed," Blau said. No sign of the island remains.
The Department of Water Resources is investigating the accussation that the island was removed to deny them hunting and fishing access. The slough is surrounded by Purdy's property and some anglers claim the runcher has been antagonistic about their presence on the site. "I believe we will take action if it is determined that the removal was not necessary for maintaining the landowner's water right," Blau said.

For a long time, I thought a "Na-tive" was simply a naturally spawned cutthroat that grew up and was caught in its original habitat. It took me a long while to deter-mine that a "Native" is really the parent species of three sub-species, the "Ripper," the "Bigun" and the "Keeper."

parent species of three sub-species, the "Ripper," the "Bigun", and the Keeper."

Each of the sub-species can be found in the same watershed. The "Native. Bigun" runs to sizes exceeding. 20 inches, are found in deeper, faster water and grow better after evisceration than the "Ripper" or the "Keeper." "Keepers," in most watersheds, rarely exceed 5% inches. In very favorable waters, they can reach 11% inches.

The "Native Ripper" is a tough, fast fish that can be found anywhere, much like a hatchery rainbow. It is so fast, its fight has entered the language of fisherman as a modifier even for other species like the legendary "Lunker."

You will hear a successful fisherman say, "Yeah, it ripped me off, took my whole outfil. Sometimes, a quick darting child after creating some raucous choos will affectionately be called "a real Ripper."

The "Ripper" also is known for its exceedingly sharp dental work, recognized in colorful terminology like, "Den, he ripped me good," or the ever more popular, "It ripped me anew—"

The latter indicates the fish is a high acrobatio leaper but possibly a bottom feeder.

For years, the legendary "Lunker" was like our famous sturgeon. There were a limited number, they resided—

We knew historically the "Lunker" had been an important fish in highly productive waters like Henry's Lake or Pend Oreille Lake up north. Anyone who caught a verifiable "Lunker" was a local hero ifiable "Lunker" was a local hero for most of the summer.

Decision on salmon should consider impact on economy

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — The man who will decide whether to put Snake River sockeye and chinook salmon on the endangered species list wants a panel of economists to study the potential impact on the Northwest's econo-impact on the Northwest's economy.

Rolland Schmitten, Pacific Northwest director of the National Marine Fisheries Service, said Monday he doesn't want to wait until next, year — when his agency mustaceide whether to protect the salmon runs — to begin an economic analysis.

He said a committee with representatives from all the region's various interest groups would allow his agency to take into account the economic ramifications of proposed recovery actions. "They could provide us with the raw data to help us as we decide on critical habitat."

He said he doesn't want to have he uncertainty the government had when it listed the northern spotted owl as threatened in 1990. In that case, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service didn't begin its recovery plan until after it listed the species. It proposed 11.6 million acres of critical habitat in April, severely limiting the timber harvest in coastal forests.

The Fisheries Service in April recommended endangered status for the Smake River sockeye and June 7 called for threatened status for the spring, summer and fall chinook runs.

Socioeconomic effects cannot be considered by the agency when it decides whether to list a species as threatened or endangered. But it can consider economics when it writes a recovery plan or designation.

The young birds banded June 2 — three males and a female — were 28 days old, as did biologist Ed Levine. Peregrines, an endangered species, usually hatch two eggs. with four being the high average.

The male parent came from the first Boise release at the West One Bank tower in 1988. As indicated by her leg bands, the adult female was also released after being hatched, but Levine has not examined her bands closely.

The first female at the nesting site in Nampa fell into a smokestack last summer, leaving the male, who attended the current mate in Nampa fell into a smokestack last summer, leaving the male, who attended the current mate in Celaniag up the pigeons in the area" and are enjoyed by the employees. The young birds should begin flying in two more weeks and hunting on their own in six weeks.

The committee would be representatives of irrigators, barge companies, electric utilities, interest groups and others. Water in the Snake and Columbia rivers comes from as far-away as the mountains of Woming and Montana, and electricity from hydroclectric damis — the major cause of the salmon's decline — provides power to commandition for the salmon's decline — provides power to commandition to Arotacing salmon could curtail activities throughout the Columbia River watershed, from logging, mining and irrigation's power generation, aluminum manufacturing and commercial fishing.

Sherl Chupman, executive director of the Idaho Water Users Association, said he had suggest-deconvening such a panel in his comments on the recommendation to list Snake River sockeye as an endangered species. "In order to list salmon in the first place, they had done a biological status review with a committee of biologists. It just seemed logical to us to convene an economic panel so they can determine the economic expertise already is available in the Northwest Power Planning Couried. Convening representatives of additional groups would formation, she said, but an economic impact panel could dig through the "gloom and doom" rhetoric that many have expressed.

Fish threat may jeopardize irrigation plan

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Fed-eral agencies, fishing enthusiasts, en-vironmentalists and several Indian tribes are at loggerheads over a plan to build a massive river-diversion project in northwestern New Mexico project in northwestern New Mexico while seeking to save the endangered Colorado squarvish from extinction. Unless a compromise can be worked out to preserve the water rights of the various groups involved, any move to break ground on the Animas-La Plata Irrigation Project will likely lead to a lawsuit, according to those familiar with the dispute. And because water-rights cases often drag on for years, a court battle at a time when federal support for water projects in the West is drying up would seemingly spell the end of the project.

The Animas-La Plata project is in-tended to complete the development of the San Juan River basin, a system of rivers and tributaries that drains the heart of the Four Comers area, where New Mexico, Colorado, Utah and Arizona moet.

The Animas and La Plain rivers run out of southern Colorado and empty into the San Juan River near Farmington, N.M. The Animas-La Plata project would divert part of the flow of the Animas across a mountain range into the La Plata to the west to irrigate about 68,000 acres of fertile farmland.

Proponents say the project would west to irrigate about 08,000 alers of fertile farmland.

Proponents say the project would benefit farmers and settle century-old water claims by the Southern Ute and Ute Mountain Indian tribes in south-western Colorido. It would also-pro-vide drinking water for the New Mexico communities of Farmington, Bloomfield and Aztec and power a Farmington hydroelectric project. But the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Ser-vice is now concerned about the survival of the squawfish, a large, hardy species that once thrived along the basins of the upper Colorado, San Juan and Green rivers but which since has been placed on the endangered species list.

Biologists cannot fully explain its decline, but they theorize that the fish's reproduction depends on conditions that prevalled during the spring runoff, when snowmelt from the mountains secured huge quantities of sill from the riverbeds. Today, with dams and other flood control measures, natural runoff conditions no longer occur and the spring the state of the spring that the spring the spring that the spring the spring that the spring

Faced with the prospect of seeing the project canceled, the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation proposed a "reasonable and prudent alternative," calling for the Animas-La Plata project to be scaled back and for water releases from Navajo Dam, an impoundment of the San Juan River upstream from Farmington, to be timed to mimic the natural river flow. To sweeten the deal, the Bureau of Reclamation proposed funding a biological study of the squawfish.

Fish and Wildlife Service regional officials seemed favorably inclined toward the bureau's scaled-back approach when, a few months ago, a new objection was lodged, this time by the Navajo tribe. Peterson Zah, the tribe's efforts to complete the this plan would endanger the tribe's efforts to complete the 110,000-acre Navajo Irrigation Project in an area south of Farmington.
