Astronomers find planet outside our solar system

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Astronomers say they have detected the first known planet outside the solar system, an object that orbits an extremely dense star and is perhaps 12 times as massive as Earth. The report petallerges extensives moteratability of how some stars form.

"This object, I timb is going to require some degree of wild speculation to explaint," said. Harvard astronomy professor Ramech Narayam, who was familiar with the work.

Other researchers have reported apparent detections of planets outside the solar system before, but some reports have been refuted and none is widely accepted.

Princeton University physics professor Joseph Taylor said he found the new report persuasive. They've got something their that is significant, no question about it," he said.

David Hack, director of the Lumar and Planetary Institute in Houston, called the study "a good start" toward a convincing case for the planet's existence.

The detection is reported in Thursday's issue of the firitish journal Nature by Andrew Lyar Matthew Barles and Settiann Shemar of the University of Manchester's Nutfield Radio Astronomy, Lahoratories in Jodrett Bank, England.

"We were very surprised," Lyne said in a languand. "We were very surprised," Lyne said in a telephone interview. The planet lies in the direction of the constellation Sagittarius, probably not far from the center of the Milky Way galaxy, Lyne said, It is some 20,000 to 30,000 light-years from Earth. A light-year is about 5.9 trillion miles. The scientists detected the apparent planet by analyzing radio waves from a dense object called a neutron star. "In exaces arrive in pulses about three times a second. But scientists noticed that this highly precise clock," would un about a hundredth of a second stow. said he and the other four sistronaus wish we had launched and were up in orbit right now.

"But we totally are behind the NASA decision to fix the problem. That's the right thing to do," said Blaha, who encountered further delay when the engine of his training twould not start for the flight back to Johnson Space Center in Houston. The launch team was equally disappointed, but 'you get over the disappointment of that pretty quickly. Sicek said.

"You get on with the job, and that's what we plan on doing." Trouble struck before dawn while the shuttle-was being filled with more than a balf million gallons of fuel for a 10:55 a.m. jiftoff. One of two communication channels on the engine controller compiler through shut down. Attempts, for the problem were unsuccessful, and the-countdown was balled.

The 213-pound controller, about the size of a small filing cabinet, drawer, serves as the brains of the engine. Each of the three main engines has its own controller, whigh communicates with the ship's flight computers.

Workers were not expected to get into the growded engine compariment to get at the controller until Thursday, after the fuel had been drained from the shuttle's external lank.

NASA officials said they have had problems before with engine controllers.

A 1989 flight by Átlantis was delayed nearly a week because of a faulty controller that had to be replaced at the launch pad.

Shautle director Robert Crippen said the controller trouble was unrelated to a string of last-minute equipment problems encountered by Atlantis in the past week.

The flight was delayed Friday so workers could replace a bad connector in a circuit used to separate the fuel_tank from the -orbiter after liftoff, 'An electrical component in the colid fuel rocket booster system was replaced earlier in the week, and workers had trouble, with a circuit for a data processor. Technicians also lad to repair a cracked floor beam.

"They're totally separate, independent kinds of things," Crippen state.

The ship's main cargo, a $120 million Tracking and Data Relay Satellite, remained safe instile Atlantis cargo bay.

The astronauts are to release the satellite six hours after Atlantis lifts off on the nine-day flight. An attached rocket will boost the satellite to a $2,300-mile-high orbit, where it will join three other TDRS craft that serve as switchboards between Mission Control and astronauts in space.

Hollywood joins pack, fights measles epidemic

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hot-bywood joined forces with health advocates Wednesday in launching a national immunization cam-paign to fight the measles epi-dentic and other preventable childhood diseases. The centerpiece of the cam-paign will be a push to vaccinate a risk children in nine cities dur-ing. National Immunization Week, Sep. 21-29.

The target cities are New York, Los Angeles, Chicago, Houston, Dallas, Mianti, Washington, Philadelphia and Huntington, W.Va.

The campaign also will feature public service announcements in which celebrities urge parents to have their children immunized, a toil-free telephone number parents can call to get information and local efforts to encourage immunications.

"Many parents think they don't have to vaccinate their children until they go to school, but that's not true," said actor Henry Win-

For money-hungry states, lotteries no longer a safe bet

When Gov. Ann Richards opened a special session of the Texas legis-lature last week, she urged lawmak-ers to support a state lottery to help with a multibillion-dollar deficit.

"It is the rarest of all creatures," she said, "a popular way to generate revenue."

But officials in Toxas — and Louisiana where a lottery begins this full — may be taking a bigger gamble than they think.

While the recession is blamed for a drop in betting, the reasons are often more complex. California's revenue fall came after the odds of their big lotto, games were raised by adding numbers to choose. Ohio also saw bets drop when it raised the

Latinos present opportunity for GOP

It's a Friday morning in San Diego, and inside the War Memorial Auditorium, this week's batch of about 150 immigrants will be sworn in as new Americans. Rep. Duncan L. Linda Chavez, a former Reagan appointed to the U.S. Civil Rights Commission, says the Democrats want to treat people as groups, which gives them the chance to us government spending to keep their votes.

But that approach ignores the differences between and within minority communities. During the Reagan-Bush decade, Latinos scored impressive gains: The number of Latino-owned businesses doubled, their income increased by about a fifth and their percent in 1982 to 8 percent in 1989. Will 'Pregnant Warriors' be Hollywood's next box-office smash? inside the magazine—it would be better for the public to go to the nearest video store and rent "Die Hard," a movie starring Moore's husband, Bruce Willis.

OK guys, here's a quiz.
When your wife was seven months pregnant, she looked like:
A) Deni Moore on the cover of the August issue of Vanity Fair magazine.
B) A sofa.
C) Your mother-in-law.

D) Idaho. If you answered B or D, you are a truthful man married to an average woman, but you are too dumb to know when it is in your best interest to lie.

interest to lie.

If you answered C, you should seek a marriage counselor. And if you chose A, you will probably have a large family.

Moore's picture has created quite a sir. She was very pregnant, very naked and very beautiful. No doubt sales of the August issue would have been anusually high anyway, because of all the people anxious to read the article about Vaclav Havel.

But back to Moore, Her picture has been deemed so offensive, or shocking or revealing, or whatever, that in most markets Vanity Fair was forced to put a cover on the cover to cover what Moore uncovered. This is because when it comes to nutity. Americans instantly think of sex and then decide they prefer violence.

They will take the magazine home with them and violently, but carefully, rip off the cover covering the cover so that they can see what Moore bas uncovered. They probably won't even want to get home to do it.

Rather than risk corruption through exposure to Moore's unclusted poses and beware, there are additional color pictures and rent "Die Hard," a movie starring Moore's husband, Brice Willts.

"Die Hard" was a greaf intwich American auchenees because it stude with a softenamental auchenees because it stude with a softenamental auchenees because it stude with a soften family-oriented theme: a good man who almost single-handedly, shoots, blows up, splatters, saraps the neck of and otherwise kills off in one chilling, stolent seene after another a group of homerdad, greedy but quite urbane international terroits.

There, I feel better already, talking about killing and violence.

Last month fivo rottings by the United States Supreme Court height realfirm society's views about violence and nudity in one case it ruled that it's OK to reject an appeal from a death row immate because his lawyer, possibly through incompetence.

missed a procedural deadline.

And only a few days before, the court had decided that in the interests of "protecting order and morality" states may be mude trotte dancing. Maybe "wider and morality will be so well guarded by G-strings and pastics that there will be fewer convicted murderers losing sleep over whether their inwyers missed an appeal date.

The point here is that the concern over the "preceived evil" of public mudity seems a hit misphaced on a court that en an say to any more more than the concern over the protection of the more moral to be of a crime, than his right to a full appeal, is forfeited because of a lawyer's error. Chops' Any last words?

This, however, is a long way from Demi Moore and the furtor she has recard, which has as much if not more to do with her pregnancy than it does with her mudity.

I have a great idea for a movie. It will be called "Pregnant Warriors." The plot goes something like this: About eight couples are at a Lamaze session when international terrorists buich an effort to rob a pizza delivery man. Trapped by police, they take the eight couples hostage and force them into a frozen yogurt store, where all the husbands pass out.

husbands pass out.

The pregnant women, however, garnote a couple of the terrorists and take their weapons. The other terrorists surrender rather than get blasted by the women. While out on bail, however, they escape, setting up the sequel: "Delivery: Revenge of the Pregnant Warriors."

School officials face slashed budgets

AMERICAN FALLS — Local school district officials are faced with slashing expenditures by as much as $1 million during the coming school year following voter rejection of a supplemental tery intended to head off any cubacks.

"We re just sitting here right now looking at what's going to be cut and who's going to be cut." Superintendent Sheldon Kovarsky said Wednesday. "If you cut a million dollars out of the school district, you're going to cut the heart right out of it."

On Tuesday, less than 48 percent of the voters supported an $869,000 supplemental property tax level for the school district making the third time this spring and summer the district has seen its rejuous for additional cash rebuffed, a simple majority was needed to pass the levy.

Man wins back money seized in arrest

BOISE — The $4,543 seized in a Robtemai County drug arrest must be returned to a man later convicted of reclling cocaine, the Ida-ho Court of Appeals says. The court on Wedfiesday reversed a 1st District Court order for-feiting money seized when Mark Printz was arrested in 1986.

Printz won a prellminary ruling in his criminal-trial-that officers. Improperly executed a search warrant when they seized the money and other evidence.

The ruling said the officers violated the "knock and announce" requirement for using search warrains.

First District Judge Gary Haman later approved the state's lawsuit seeking forfeiture of the money on the basis it was involved in a drug deal.

deal.

The Court of Appeals said once a judge ruled the evidence was improperly seized, that bars the state from later attempting to confiscate the money.

Boy with matches apparently starts fire

TWIN EALLS - A 12-year-old boy who winesses say was playing with matches was spouted running away from a burning house in northeast Twin Falls Wednesday morning, a fire official said. Fire damaged the Gone Good home on the corner of Skylane Drive and Hankins Road just north of the Boy Scout Center, said Kimberly Fire Chief Rob Vawser.

Rob Vawser.

The boy apparently was playing with matches near some bushes next to the brick home, Vawser said.

The fire quickly spread to the home's attic and roof, causing $18,000-$20,000 damage.

Nobody was injured in the fire, which owas reported at 10:41 a.m., but two firefighters were treated for heat exhaustion, Vawser said.

No evidence to support Burley rape claim, police say

BURLEY - There is no evidence to support a Pocatello woman's claim that she was raped in a Burley motel Jast weekend, an investigator said Wednesday.

weekend, an investigator said Wednesday. Pocatello police contacted the Cassia County Sheriil's Department Saturday evening in connection with a battery and rape tase, Detective Dave Tracy said. A 40-year-old woman told police that her ex-husband had entered her home—within a small handgum and physically-abused her, then took her to Arbon Valley and raped her. Tracy said.

The man allegedly then took her to the East Park Model in Burley and raped her, again, he said.

The motel manager told Cassia County officials that the woman had plenty of opportunity to get away if she wanted to, Tracy said.

Those statements, coupled with a lack of evidence from the motel room, leave Cassia County investigators with no case, he said.

The woman said she convinced her.

The woman said she convinced her attacker to return to Pocatello, where he was arrested and charged with rape, Tracy said.

U.S. collects gold at University Games

SHEFFIELD, England — Sprinter Jon-Drunmond split his pants and the wornen's basketball team ripped the Spaniards apart as the United States team went on a gold medal-winning spree at 'the World University Games on Wednesday. Drunmond was one of four Americans to collect golds on the track and revealed, what happened when he tore down the straight in the 200 meters final.

Other U.S. gold medalists on the track were 400 hurdler Derrick Adkins, who beat the field by a second, decathlete Steven Fritz with his highest ever points total and long jumper Alan Turner with his second-best longest jump ever.

The women's basketball team romped to an 88-62 triumph over Spain to complete the tournament with seven straight wins, and the men's team whipped Canada 96-56.

Hubert Davis and Calbert Cheanger secred 14 points each to lead the men's team to its victory over Canada.

Eric Anderson, George Lynch and Rodney Rogers also were in double figures for the Americans, who were too quick and powerful indde for the Canadians.

Spencer McKay had 15 points for Canada white loed Vickery added 13 foother silver medalists.

In the women's game, the Americans broke from a 22-all tie with Spain to take a 42-29 halltime lead and never looked back.

"Who could have besten them today" asked Spanish coach lose Buceta. "I don't know, perhaps the USA men's team."

The men's team were in action later Wednesday, feing Canada in the final. Of the four track winners, Drummond was the most noticeably exuberant. After crossing the finish line, he clapped and jumped-and-waved-hus-amac, imploring the-crowd to do the same.
"It was all that jumping around out there got me fried, not the race," said the Texas Christian University student, "It's all about showmanship, If the crowd doesn't enjoy you, they don't enjoy your event.

"I'd rather lose and have people like me than win and be disliked."

Adkins, a Georgia Tech senior, blew past the opposition in 49.01 seconds, beating Yoshitiko Saito of Japan by 1.01 seconds.

"I knew the fastget guy in the race was the Japanese in the lane inside of life." he said. "So the strategy was to go out hard the first bundred and stay in front."

Already holding a two-step lead with 100 meters to go, Adkins cruised easily through the tape with arms extended.

"I-felt, pretty good coming into the home-stretch," he said. "At that point I pretty much knew thad it."

Fritz finished 360 points ahead of countryman Kris Szabaduegy in leading the ong-two U.S. finish. He totaled 8,079 points, a personal best.

In Smithfield, R.L., the New England
Patrioty welcomed running back Leonard Russell to camp. Russell, from Arizona State, was the first running back picked in the draft and the 14th selection overall.

"I'm aware we have a game to play in 12 days, and that's why it was urgent for me to come in before the week was out," said Russell, who signed a three-year contract with the Patriots late Monday.

Financial terms were not announced when the signing was made official Tuesday but Russell will reportedly make just under $2.3 million over the life of the contract.

Fishing regs cover many situations

Among anglers, one of the most frequently asked questions is: "what are possession limits and how do they work?"

Let's take, for example, the possession fimit for rainbow trout. The general possession limit (outside of waters with special regulations) is six fish.

Stu Murrell Idaho Fish and Game

This means that you may catch and possess six lish in any period between 12 midnight one day and midnight the next. This does not mean you may catch six lish, go home, then return to the fishing hole and catch six more on the same day. But, what if you're going to camp by the lake for a few days?

Does the possession limit allow you to pussess six lish for every day that you're soinly six torut while in the field or while transporting the fish to the place of final consumption.

If you cat some of the fish, you can catch up to the six-trout possession limit the next day of fishing.

Fishermen should be aware that many waters have special limits or size restrictions that differ from the general bag, season and size limits.

Double check-your-regulations-for-thewaters you will be fishing.

Another question that arises is: "what if someone else eatches six trout and gives them to me? Can I still fish for, eatch and possess six more trout?"

No. Once you have the daily possession limit of trout, you may no that day.

Also, anglers should be aware that they need a proxy statement from the person when a prost of the states that all fish that are the law states that all fish that are least at heady and not immediately.

The reason for this regulation is simple. If an angler keeps several, small fish, then throws them back after catching some larger ones, the released lish that were on the stringer most likely Please see LIMITS/B9

Conservationist says sockeye sightings reveal urgency

BOISE Two more Snake River sockeye salmin adults were counted passing Lower Granite Dam in eastern Washington last week, bring the total to five this year.

But an Idaho conservationist contended the trickle of returning fish adds to the urgency of how best to help it survive.

"We believe the question still remains, what should be done with the last adult Snake River-sockeye on the face of the earth?" said Trish Klahr, water quality director of the Idaho Conservation director of the Idaho Conservation League.

The latest fish were spotted July 14 and 17, heading to spawn at Redfish Lake in the Savirouth Mountains in central Idaho. In 1990, no sockeye returned to the lake, and only two were counted the year before.

Klahr said she was opposed to the agencies plan to help the salmon survive.

"These fish do not take trapping, handling and trucking very well, she said, "We say let the fish spawn free and die."

All salmon die after spawning in their bitth waters.

BOISE — The Idaho Fish and Game Commission hopes proposed informal negotiations can latt what it believes is a growing anti-hunting sentiment within the National Park Service.

But if the talks fail to preserve hunting opportunities in much of the Magic Valley's City of Rocks -federal reserve, the commission said last week it is prepared to go back to the congressional delegation, which secured the hunting rights that now exist on the Park Service-administered land. "We've got to be very figm." Commissioner Richard Meiers of Boisg said because the ultimate decision on City of Rocks-hunting could also affect-thunting-opportunities in federally managed Hells Canyon.

Meiers also said his membership on the Idaho board of The Nature Conservancy had been terminated. "The very last color to vanish is green. Lackily for fishermen, the green light does not attract nosquitoes or other insects like a white light does."

Why are nocturnal fish attracted to light? There are many theories, but Pilit Diacoclier, acting unland rish-eries coordinator for Texas Parks and Wildlife, has the most plausible.

"The light attracts zooplankton, tiny microscopic organisms that make up the smallest link in the food chain." Durocher said.

"Presence of the zooplankton at-tracts a variety of small fish, includ-ing shad, that feed on zooplankton, and the predatory game-fish-are sure to follow."

REAL ESTATE/RENT

Banking business: Is it good or bad today?

NEW YORK — The trend in banking is big-mess, the assumption being that big banks are more able to absorb old errors, operate more ethi-ciently and demonstrate enough bulk to compete in the global economy.

While new to banking, merging is an old habit on the American business scene, having occurred in manufacturing, retailing, transportation, the media, medicine, real estate, securities, building supplies. You name it.

Big, so goes the rationale, is better, but there or supplies. You mame it.

Big, so goes the rationale, is better, but that explanation is a baffling one in the context of service. Millions of Americans not yet dated by events believe service is local, personal, interac-vice. Millions of Americans not yet dated vecents believe service is local, personal, interactive, responsive.

They wender how bigness suits the needs and wishes of smaller customers and local communicate. They wonder it bigness can be flexible enough to bend the rules in an emergency or for a very good cause. They wonder eithens revery—

The trend also focuses attention on the interpretation of competitive. Big might be competitive in a global sense, But is competition enhanced or lessened when one big bank rather than three smaller banks serves a community?

Public-interest concerns such as these seem to arise less often in banking than in other industries, where a familiar clause, "subject to Justice Department approval," often accompanies the aniouncement of metger plans.

In contrast, bank mergers seem instantaneous manouncing the merger of NCNB Corp, with C&S.Sovran Corp., NCSB chairman Hugh McColl said his company would dispatch 150 of its workers to C&S-Sovran within the week.

Considerations of service and competition have particular meaning in regard to the recent experiences of banking, the most significant of which is the mess banking got itself into and which hypnessis supposed to correct.

Much of the mess resulted from hig blunders with hig loans rather than small blunders on small loans—from huge foreign loans to countries that on slight reflection could be seen as non-credit-worthy, hapharard loans to real estate developer-whose collateral was speculation and in some instances, illegal loans to board members, goffing partners and charlatans.

Bad-loans to-individuals-and-to-small business es made up a small pinch in the industry's recipe for disaster, but it was thee? Bortwers who often suffered, their loan requests denied and their credit lines; but it was thee? Bortwers who often suffered, their loan requests denied and their credit lines; but it was thee? Bortwers who often suffered, their loan requests denied and their redd lines; but it was these for their errors by refusing to make good loans, further damaging the communities they were to serve.

Scores of solid small businesses in New England, where the recession was worst, will attest to the experience. Some economists contend that the blanker clampidown on lending played a major role in deepening the recession.

by the proper regulatory officials in the best interest of the country. But bigness in banking has already developed enormous momentum, and it is widely seen at inevitable. Inevitable does not, however, mean it is the widely seen at inevitable. Inevitable does not, however, mean it is the proper course.

Do you remember the conglomerate craze of the 1960s, when companies were merged for the 1960s, when companies were merged for synergy?—that together they would be higger than their multidual selves, an illogic sometimes explained as two and two equaling five?

Conglomeration produced huge companies, but didn't adways make the units more efficient and profitable. The numbers just didn't add up, and a decade or so later companies were diversing shrinking back to manageable size.

Where-the-nerport-tend lakes banking is for the future to determine, but it wouldn't be surprising to find the future giving a verdiet other than what is envisioned today.

Where-the rare grand designs something a verificable, and shall businesses often are niche operator that. Small businesses often are niche operator ill.

In would be typically American and therefore not surprising if enterprising local people in communities all over the country spotted opportunities to provide good, sound, local, responsive banking services.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

"Give me today, and take to-morrow." - Anon.

South both took and gave in to-day's diamond suit. This flip-flop hehavior was the only way for him to make his garne. East won his club as and re-turned the queen to South's king-South drew trump's ending in dum-my and took a successful diamond finesse. What was his next move?

Ind South abandoned diamonds, and relied on finding the spade ace with West, he would have been guilty of lorgetting the bidding (Playing East for a singleton or doubleton spade ace might work, but that was against the odds.) South would have lost three spades and his game as well.

The solution is to give East back what the diamond finesse had taken away. After dummy's diamond queen holds, South should eash his diamond nee and ruff his last club in-dummy. The diamond jack is cov-ered by East's king, and instead of ered by East's king, and instead of ruffing South allows tim to hold the trick. East is left with no safe lead, and the unusual endplay either gives South a ruff and discard or forces East to establish dummy's spade king.
