Sides in crisis said 'not that far apart'

The Associated Press
NICOSIA, Cyprus — Diplomacy intensified Tuesday to bring an end to the hostage drama in Lebanon, and reports pointed to a possible deal in which Israel could free a Muslim cleric within days and Arab captors would turn over missing Israeli soldiers.
In a sign of the quickening pace of efforts to free the Western captives, U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar announced plans to meet with an Israeli negotiating team and said the two sides were "not that far apart."
"I continue with my hopes," he told back the secretary-general's bid to broker a release. "We fully support his efforts," Bush told reporters in Mainz.

Perez de Cuellar "feels there's enough movement going on that there's reason to feel more optimism," the president said.
However, the spiritual leader of Hezbollah, believed to be an umbrella group for the hostage-holders, expressed mistrust of the United States and said Washington might scuttle a settlement of the hostage crisis.
"We ask ourselves if the United States ... is today going to permit the United Nations to play a role to find a solution," Sheik Mohamed Fadlallah said in an interview from Beirut with the French TV network TF-1. "We doubt it, and it's for that reason that I'm not optimistic," he said.
The developments came amid a number of published reports suggesting increased prospects for a hostage release.
They contained some contradictory facts, but previous hostage releases have often been preceded by a rash of reports that were contradictory but correctly forecast the freeing of a captive.
The Iranian-backed Shiite Muslim kidnappers have freed three Western hostages — Briton John McCarthy, American Edward Tracy and Frenchman Jerome Leyraud — since Thursday.

Mollers convinced their son died at Iraqi hands

The Times-News and The Associated Press
PAUL — The only Idahoan to die in combat in the Persian Gulf War wasn't a victim of a missile or shell fired by American forces; his stepmother said Tuesday.
"We are as confident as we can be that it was an Iraqi tank or armored vehicle," Pat Moller said of her stepson, Army Sgt. Nels Andrew Moller.
Moller, a gunner on a Bradley Fighting Vehicle assigned to the 2nd Armored Cavalry Regiment, was killed in southern Iraq on Feb. 26, the third day of the ground war.
The Pentagon reported Tuesday that nearly a quarter of all American soldiers killed in the Gulf War died in accidental attacks by U.S. forces — mostly during the climactic 100-hour land battle in the Iraqi desert.
But in speaking with Andrew's commander and others who were there, the Moller family remains convinced that an Iraqi tank or armored vehicle fired the shot that killed Andrew, Pat Moller said.
The Pentagon declined to release the names of the friendly-fire victims, saying some of the families had requested the names be kept secret even though the names of all those killed during the war were made public earlier.
The figures of 35 soldiers killed and 72 wounded by friendly fire from U.S. forces are far higher than previously acknowledged by the military, which has been investigating the cases since the war ended Feb. 28.
According to the Pentagon there were two friendly fire incidents involving Moller's unit on Feb. 26.
In the first incident, three soldiers were killed and three were wounded when machine gun fire from a tank hit their

Quiet, deaf man accused of Social Security fraud

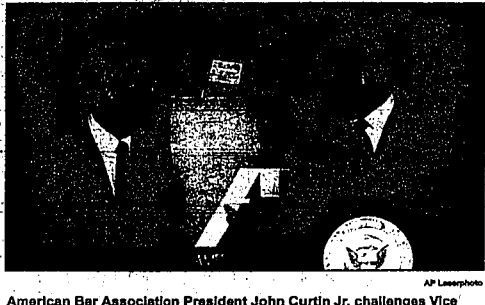

The Associated Press
LOS ANGELES — Robert Leroy Chesney lived the life of a modest retiree on a $62 monthly income. Prosecutors say that income provided cover for what could be the nation's biggest Social Security scam.
Chesney habitually wore the same outfit and a cotton hat. Deaf and barely able to speak, he would buy $1.50 lunches at a senior citizens kitchen and take the food to his $210-a-month federally subsidized apartment, neighbors said.
"He dressed like a beggar, to tell you the truth," said Isabel Williams, a neighbor. "He never had any visitors. He was very quiet."
Chesney, 59, was arrested July 10 and indicted July 23 on charges of bilking the federal government out of $100,000 through an elaborate Social Security scheme. Prosecutors believe the total amount taken since 1988 could be as much as $1.3 million.
He has pleaded innocent. He is being held on $50,000 bail, awaiting an Oct. 1 trial on charges of filing false claims and diversion of money belonging to the United States.
His lawyer, deputy federal public defender Amy Karlin, said she hadn't reviewed the government's evidence against Chesney and therefore couldn't comment. She did note, however, that Chesney is "a quiet."

Officials predict varying impact of spending cuts

By Drew DeSilver Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Gov. Cecil Andrus Tuesday ordered state agencies to cut spending by 1.3 percent, citing lower-than-expected revenues despite Idaho's strong economy.
The spending cuts amount to $12.9 million out of a total state budget of $998 million — what Andrus called a "fine-tuning" of the state's spending plan.
"Our growth continues strong, our non-agricultural employment is at an all-time high, personal income is at an all-time high," Andrus said. "We're just not as strong as the Legislature thought we'd be."
Andrus ordered all state agencies to come up with spending cuts by Sept. 13. If possible, he said, reductions should come from the $36.9 million in one-time expenditures in the state budget.
The Legislature could make up the difference next year by appropriating funds from the state's "rainy day" fund, which now holds about $34.5 million, Andrus said.
Linda Caballero, deputy director of the state Department of Health and Welfare, said any cuts would come from travel, not filling vacant positions and other operating expenses. The department will have to cut about $2 million.
"We won't look at any plan that impacts client services or entails laying off employees," said Caballero, in Twin Falls for a meeting of the state Board of Health and Welfare.
Public schools will have to get by with $6,338 million less. If each school district has to cut 1.3 percent of its budget, the Twin Falls District will have to trim $170,000, Superintendent Terry Donich said.
"It's going to be the pits," Donich said. "The teachers are already under contract and we've purchased most of the supplies for the coming school year, so I don't know where we'd cut."
The money might come from the district's contingency fund, which contains between $400,000 and $500,000, he said.
Although the numbers may look large, a 1.3 percent reduction shouldn't be too onerous, said Joe Nagel, administrator of the state's Division of Environmental Quality.
"If you've got enough forewarning, there's a lot you can do with your operating expenses," Nagel said. "If this came with only six or eight weeks left in the fiscal year, then we'd be in trouble."

Lawyer engages Quayle in impromptu debate

The Washington Post
ATLANTA — Vice President Dan Quayle Tuesday laid out the Bush administration's plan for curbing the nation's legal bills and promptly found himself debating the president of the American Bar Association on the merits of the proposal.
Quayle had no sooner finished a speech questioning whether "America really needs 70 percent of the world's lawyers ... and 18 million new lawsuits a year," than ABA President John J. Curtin Jr. stepped to the microphone and told him — the administration was unfairly blaming the legal profession for what Quayle had termed a $300 billion-a-year "self-inflicted competitive disadvantage" in the world economy.
"Dramatically reducing the lawyers in America's courtrooms will not make America more competitive in the marketplace," Curtin said.
If they are gone, he added, "who will protect the poor, the injured, the victims of negligence, the victims of racial discrimination and violence?"
Quayle, who had stood stony-faced at Curtin's side while the ABA president delivered his criticism, immediately returned to the microphone. "Nobody is talking about eliminating lawyers," he said.

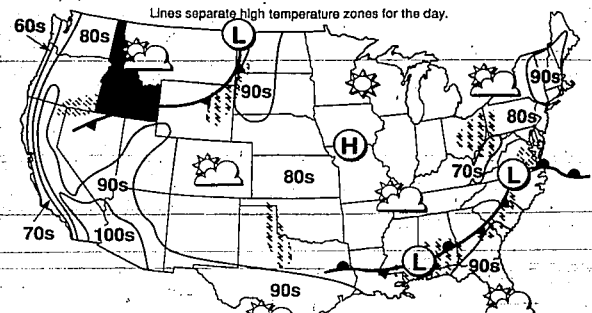

American Bar Association President John Curtin Jr. challenges Vice President Dan Quayle at the end of his speech.

"Nobody is talking about not allowing individuals to have their day in court. So let's not be extreme. Let's focus on the very fundamental problem and that is we should challenge the status quo. I am convinced we can have a better legal system in America if we sit down and work together."
The 500 members of the ABA's House of Delegates and other lawyers attending the convention listened in silence to Quayle's formal address, then cheered their president's rebuttal.
But when Quayle joined the debate, he too drew strong applause.
The impromptu argument virtually overshadowed Quayle's formal introduction of the 50-point "civil justice reform" proposal framed by Solicitor General Kenneth W. Starr and unanimously approved by the Cabinet-level Council on Competitiveness, which Quayle heads.
The proposal includes caps on punitive damages, a "loser pays" rule for legal costs in certain types of lawsuits and stricter limits on discovery procedures and "expert" testimony.

Rain fell over the Plains and Gulf Coast states Tuesday, causing minor flooding in places.
As much as 3 inches fell in the Dallas area, swelling the Trinity River through Dallas-Fort Worth. The river was expected to crest at flood stage or a foot over it, the National Weather Service said.
Minor flooding was reported in northwest Florida. A flood watch was posted near Seward, Alaska, where heavy rain in the mountains combined with glacial melt pushed the Resurrection River to a high level.
At 1 p.m. EDT, rain showers and thunderstorms continued over the Gulf Coast states, the western portion of the lower Mississippi Valley, the southern Plains and the southern portion of the Ohio Valley. Showers also were

Judge orders Argentine President Menem to testify

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — A federal judge on Tuesday ordered President Carlos Menem to testify in the money laundering case involving his former appointments secretary.
Menem's secretary, Amalia Yoma, his former husband, customs official

Abraham Al Ibrahim, and another official were formally indicted last month for laundering drug money. All assigned their jobs and are free on bail.
The case has turned into a public relations war for Menem. Menem at first proclaimed the innocence of Ms. Yoma, who is his sister-in-law. Last week, the judge handing the case, Maria Servini de Cubria, stepped down and was indicted on a charge of authority charges following reports that she secretly leaked information on the case to Menem and attorneys for Ms. Yoma.

FDR's eldest son, James, dies at 83

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. — James Roosevelt, the colorful eldest son of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and head of a Social Security lobby that critics said exploited his father's legacy, died Tuesday at the age of 83.
—Roosevelt died of natural causes at his Newport Beach home with his wife, Mary, at his side, said Bernice McLean, Orange County coroner's senior deputy.
"He died as he lived — peacefully and with grace," the family said in a statement issued by H. Delano Roosevelt, one of James Roosevelt's seven children. Complications from a stroke and from Parkinson's disease contributed to his death, the son said.

BOGOTA, Colombia — The government on Tuesday decreed a general amnesty for guerrilla fighters who lay down their arms, in its latest effort to end a 30-year leftist insurgency.
Two guerrilla organizations are still battling the government, although they have expressed their willingness to eventually join other rebel armies who have entered the political process in recent years.
The latest round of peace talks between the rebels and the government was to reconvene Aug. 26.

S. Africa won't ban private arms

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Law and Order Minister Adrian Vlok said Tuesday he has no immediate plans to ban private arms possession or extremist groups.
Vlok spoke after a weekend clash between police and armed members of the white, right-wing Afrikaner Resistance Movement in Ventersdorp killed three people and injured dozens.
In another weekend development, the military wing of the African National Congress, the largest black opposition group, said it would take steps to split its armed wing, Spear of the Nation, into a regular army.

Sheriff rejects 'hate crime' in killings

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Maricopa County Sheriff Tom Agnos Tuesday discounted the theory that nine people shot to death at a Buddhist temple here last weekend were victims of a religious or racial "hate crime," and a source close to the investigation said that a possible "drug connection" was being examined as a motive.
Agnos announced formation of a task force including the FBI, the Phoenix police and other agencies to investigate the killings, which have caused concern among Asian communities in the West and in Thailand, the homeland of the slain Buddhists.
He also said in an interview that "at least two persons" were involved in the slaying of the six monks, one nun and two disciples, who were killed at the Wat Fronkanaran Buddhist Temple of Arizona.

ATLANTA — Authorities in Georgia and Alabama are investigating 18 deaths at two hospitals where the same nurse worked, a television station reported. Officials confirmed an investigation was under way but wouldn't give details.
Seventeen deaths at a suburban Atlanta hospital and one death at a hospital in Birmingham, Ala., were being investigated, WAGA-TV in Atlanta said Monday. It didn't cite a source for the figures.
The television station said the investigation centers on an intensive care nurse who worked at North Fulton Regional Hospital in Roswell, Ga., before

Earth First! defendants plead guilty

PRESCOTT, Ariz. (AP) — Five environmental activists pleaded guilty Tuesday to federal charges in an alleged plot to sabotage nuclear facilities in three states, but the judge didn't immediately accept the plea bargain.
The defendants, including the co-founder of the radical environmental group Earth First!, entered their pleas in the middle of their federal court trial.
U.S. District Judge Robert Bloomfield continued the trial until Sept. 10, saying he would decide before then whether to accept the deal.
Prosecutor Roslyn Moore-Silver said the agreement called for all the pleas to be accepted as a package or they would be withdrawn and the trial would resume.
The government accused the defendants of conspiring in January 1989 to damage power lines and transmission towers serving the Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant outside Denver; the Diablo Canyon Nuclear Generating Facility near San Luis Obispo, Calif.; and the Palo Verde Nuclear Generating Station west of Phoenix.

Nuclear plant shut down after power system fails

OSWEGO, N.Y. (AP) — A power failure knocked out warning lights and other control room instruments at a nuclear energy plant Tuesday, and backup power systems also failed, authorities said. Plant officials declared a site area emergency, the second most serious classification under federal guidelines.
But operators of Nine Mile Plant 2 were able shut the reactor down safely.
No radiation was released, no plant workers or local residents were evacuated and no sirens sounded under the site area emergency, said Robert Butch, spokesman for plant operator Niagara Mohawk Power Corp.
Among the instruments that shut down was a display monitoring the reactor's control rods, said a spokesman for the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission.
Butch said operators were able to monitor the reactor's status using other instruments that weren't knocked out.
The NRC sent a team of seven inspectors to the 3-year-old, 1,100-megawatt plant, the site of Lake Ontario, to investigate the incident and operators' response.
"They have five power supplies that were supposed to be non-interruptible and they proved to be inoperable," NRC spokesman Joseph Fouchard said.
"There were systems that are important to operators that did not function and we want to find out why."

In the second, five soldiers were wounded when their Bradley was incorrectly identified and hit by a TOW missile.
The Pentagon said Tuesday that three-quarters of all U.S. combat vehicles that suffered significant battle damage were struck by American weapons, including seven of 10 M1-A1 main battle tanks and 20 of 25 Bradley infantry fighting vehicles.

The single worst case occurred Feb. 27 when an unidentified U.S. ground unit opened fire on another unit inside Iraq, killing six Americans and wounding 25. Five M1-A1 tanks and five Bradley infantry fighting vehicles were destroyed.
Lt. Gen. Martin Brandner, operations director for the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told a Pentagon news conference that all instances of friendly fire were accidents and that the services are investigating some cases for possible misconduct.
He said no disciplinary action had been taken against any soldier involved in a friendly fire incident "at this juncture."
The 35 soldiers killed by U.S. fire — 21 Army soldiers and 14 members of the Marine Corps — represent 3 percent of the 148 Americans listed as killed in action during the war.
Of those 35, 20 were killed during the ground phase of the war, Feb. 24-28.
No soldiers or Air Force members were killed by friendly fire, the Pentagon said.

Judge gives anti-abortion protester jail time

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — A federal judge berated a Roman Catholic bishop Tuesday for failing to tell priests and nuns to stop blocking entrances to clinics that offer abortions.

During a hearing in which he sentenced an anti-abortion protester to a year in jail, U.S. District Judge Patrick F. Kelly criticized the Most Reverend Eugene Gerber, bishop of the diocese of Wichita.

"I hear nothing from this bishop saying 'Stop this madness.' Of all the people in this city who ought to respond, it's him," Kelly said.

Kelly sentenced Jay Cody Gibson, 34, of Neosho, Mo., to prison on a contempt of court charge for directing children to block access to a clinic. Kelly had issued an order barring protesters from blocking two clinics.

Nearly 2,100 arrests have been made since July 15, and many protesters have been arrested several times. Kelly had issued an order barring protesters from blocking two clinics.

Three Catholic priests and a number of nuns have been among those arrested.

A nun, Sister Mary Frances Morris, was called as a defense witness during Gibson's hearing. At the conclusion of her testimony, Kelly, who is Catholic, began speaking about the bishop, who wasn't in the courtroom.

"When Gibson objected, saying that wasn't the purpose of the hearing, the judge disagreed.

"It has everything to do with why we are here," Kelly said firmly.

"What we have here is the essence of what occurs when lawlessness is unchecked," he said.

Gerber said in a telephone interview he can press for peaceful and prayerful conduct, but he can't order priests and nuns not to practice civil disobedience.

"I can stress that civil disobedience is not part of the church's effort to restore the right of life to unborn children," he said. "But I must stop at the threshold of the actual decision. I must stop at the threshold of the conscience."

The bishop has attended several of the protests to show his solidarity with the intent of the protests, but hasn't participated in blockades. Gerber said his conscience hasn't moved him to participate in blockades.

Jury indicts 5 members of KKK after cross burning

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal grand jury in Louisiana has indicted five Ku Klux Klan members on civil rights charges stemming from cross burnings at schools, a court house and other places, the Justice Department said Tuesday.

The five are members of the Invisible Empire Knights of the Ku Klux Klan and includes its reputed Grand Dragon, or state leader, Wayne A. Pierce, and its No. 2 official, Terry Litton, the Justice Department said.

Nine crosses were burned May 7 and 8 around Shreveport, La., to intimidate blacks, the indictment charges.

It said Pierce ordered the crosses burned on the day he was to go to jail on a federal firearms conviction.

The crosses were burned at the Shreveport headquarters of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, two public schools, the home of a black family, the federal courthouse in Shreveport, the Central Christian Church, an apartment complex and along two roadways.

Also named as defendants were Ernest Palmer, Henry Litton and David W. Lively.

The charges come as increased Klan activity in northern Louisiana has been noted by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, whose civil rights division monitors the Klan and other hate groups.

In a recent report, the ADL listed Pierce as Grand Dragon of the Invisible Empire KKK and said he led a march last fall by 17 robed Klansmen in Shreveport.

Protesters confronted the Klansmen, and police in riot gear stepped between the groups to prevent violence.

Washington (AP) — Clark Clifford resigned Tuesday as chairman of First American Bankshares Inc., the holding company the government says was illegally acquired by Bank of Credit and Commerce International.

Robert Altman, Clifford's law partner, resigned as president of First American Corp., one of the companies controlled by the holding company.

The departures were announced by First American in a mid-afternoon press release.

"Mr. Altman and I must ensure that this public attention does not adversely affect the company," Clifford said in a statement.

"The interests of First American's employees, customers and depositors remain our highest priority."

The bank said that Nicholas Katzenbach, a former U.S. attorney general and senior vice president and general counsel of International Business Machines Corp., will replace Clifford as chairman of First American Bankshares.

Clifford and Altman decided to leave in order to protect First American, the bank's announcement said.

First American's chief operating officer, Paul G. Adams III, recently denied a report in a banking industry newspaper that depositors were taking money out of the bank because of its link with BCCI.

Clifford, Altman resign amid the BCCI scandal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Clark Clifford resigned Tuesday as chairman of First American Bankshares Inc., the holding company the government says was illegally acquired by Bank of Credit and Commerce International.

Robert Altman, Clifford's law partner, resigned as president of First American Corp., one of the companies controlled by the holding company.

The departures were announced by First American in a mid-afternoon press release.

one of the leading figures in the worldwide scandal involving BCCI, which has been accused of drug money laundering, arms trafficking and support of terrorists.

"While the BCCI matter has created controversy about First American, much of the publicity surrounding BCCI has featured Robert Altman and me — often inaccurately," Clifford's statement said.

Quayle says nation can't afford the growing number of lawyers

Knight-Ridder News Service

ATLANTA — Vice President Dan Quayle suggested Tuesday that the nation was becoming bogged down by too much litigation by too many lawyers costing too much money. His audience, several thousand lawyers at the American Bar Association's annual meeting, wasn't too thrilled.

"Does America really need 70 percent of the world's lawyers?" Quayle asked, looking over an army of lawyers at the Atlanta gathering.

"Is it healthy for our economy to have 18 million new lawsuits coursing through the system annually? Is it right that people with disputes come up against staggering expense and delay?"

Quayle came to Atlanta with the just-published report on civil justice by the President's Council on Competitiveness calling for major reforms in how civil (non-criminal) lawsuits are managed in the United States, including measures vigorously opposed by the ABA.

The report claims that the nearly $300 billion crisis resulting from litigation are crippling the United States competitively.

"Our system of civil justice is, at times, a self-inflicted competitive disadvantage."

He endorsed the report's call for a cap on punitive damages and for limiting discovery in civil cases, the process of examining an opponent's evidence and witnesses before a trial.

FDA approves fat substitute

CHICAGO (AP) — The NutraSweet Co. said Tuesday it has gained federal approval to market a new version of the fat substitute Simplesse for use in all non-frozen food categories.

NutraSweet said it would immediately begin marketing the new substitute.

The newly approved version of Simplesse is made from whey protein, a substance found in milk. Another version of Simplesse, based on a substance found in eggs, already had been approved for use in frozen desserts such as low-fat ice cream substitutes.

Approval of the new version by the Food and Drug Administration means it can be used in foods ranging from dairy products to pies and pastries, NutraSweet said in a statement.

Teens paint swastika on monument

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — Vandals on Tuesday painted a swastika on Plymouth Rock, the symbolic landing place of the Pilgrims, and state officials said they are considering building a fence around the monument.

"It's a very public rock and a public symbol, and young people seem to like to do vandalism where it's going to be seen and thumb their noses at society," said Charles Dane, regional supervisor for the Massachusetts Division of Forests and Parks, which oversees the landmark.

Soviet prime minister sees bleak economy

MOSCOW (AP) — Prime Minister Valentin Pavlov said Tuesday the Soviet grain harvest is declining, higher energy prices threaten to set off explosive inflation, and parts of the country face chronic shortages of electricity.

Pavlov's gloomy overview indicated the Soviet Union faces another tough winter as Premier Mikhail S. Gorbachev's government plots a painful course toward a market economy.

He also rejected proposals for drastic steps to bring in this year's grain harvest, such as declaring emergency zones and commandeering trucks, he said.

He did not attend the meeting. Despite concern that inflation is getting out of hand, the Cabinet rejected a proposal from Deputy Prime Minister Vladimir Sheherbakov for a nationwide freeze on salaries, Pavlov said.

He did not forecast the total crop, but Western experts said such a drop would cut the harvest from last year's near-record 218 million tons to less than 190 million tons, necessitating substantial imports of wheat.

Another opponent to Thomas weighs in WASHINGTON (AP) — The NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund declared on Tuesday its opposition to Clarence Thomas's nomination to the Supreme Court, saying he is a threat to civil and constitutional rights.

A conservative group that supports Thomas, meanwhile, issued reports assessing his judicial record as "well within the mainstream of American jurisprudence."

The NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund is separate from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. The NAACP, the largest civil rights organization in the nation, previously announced its opposition to Thomas.

Julius L. Chambers, director and counsel of the legal defense fund, said Thomas's confirmation "would further threaten civil rights and constitutional guarantees that are now under siege."

The fund pointed to a 1987 speech by Thomas at the Cato Institute. Thomas described as a significant derior the once-debated notion that the "American ideal of freedom" included the freedom to own slaves. But, the fund said, Thomas asserted "it is not as egregious as the opposite assumption: that freedom requires a powerful, activist government at every turn in our lives."

At a separate news conference, the Citizens Committee to Confirm Clarence Thomas issued a pair of reports assessing Thomas's record as chairman of the equal Employment Opportunity Commission and analyzing his statements supporting the notion of "natural law."

"These studies demonstrate two key points," said committee president Gary L. Bauer, a former Reagan White House official and head of the Family Research Council. "First, that any fair and detailed examination of Judge Thomas's civil rights record at the EEOC confirms that he was an effective enforcer of civil rights laws. And second, that Judge Thomas's views on natural law are well within the mainstream of American jurisprudence."

Guilty plea expected in IRS case

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — An aerospace engineer will plead guilty to trying to blow up internal Revenue Service offices in California, including one attempt that could have leveled two city blocks, a prosecutor said Tuesday.

Dean Harvey Hicks will admit responsibility for pipe bombs launched at the regional IRS center in Fresno on April Fools' Day this year and three attempted bombings in Southern California, said assistant U.S. attorney George Newhouse.

No one was hurt in any of the bombing attempts, but Newhouse provided new details indicating scores of people could have been injured or killed had one of the bombs exploded in February 1990.

Four barrels containing 2,000 pounds of a highly explosive mixture of ammonium nitrate and fuel oil were placed in a pickup and angled so they were aimed at an IRS office in west Los Angeles, Newhouse said. The truck was set on fire, but firefighters put the flames out before the explosive was detonated.

Police towed the truck and its cargo to the Mojave Desert and detonated them, Newhouse added in a telephone interview from Los Angeles.

"It was an awesome blast," he said. "The kill zone was estimated at 250 feet in circumference. The truck, when it blew up, simply ceased to exist."

The explosion created a crater 15 feet deep and 30 feet across. Experts estimated it would have destroyed two square blocks if it had gone off in the heavily populated west Los Angeles area, Newhouse added.

Serial killer says he wants death sentence

Knight-Ridder News Service

BILOXI, Miss. — Donald Leroy Evans, charged with kidnapping a 10-year-old girl whose body was found in Pearl River County on Sunday, admitted Monday that he killed at least six women in three states and said he wants the death sentence.

"His desire is to die as soon as possible," Fred Lusk, Evans' court-appointed attorney, said Monday. "Police believe the body count could go much higher."

The revelations were made Monday in U.S. District Court in Biloxi, where Evans, 40, appeared for a detention hearing on a federal charge of kidnapping 10-year-old Beatrice Louise Routh on Aug. 1 from a Gulfport park.

Her badly decomposed body was found at 1:15 a.m. Sunday in Pearl River County. She had been sexually assaulted and strangled.

Lusk and Assistant U.S. Attorney Jay Golden said Evans has confessed to murders in at least three states: Florida, Illinois and Texas.

Lusk said there were "a number of others," mostly in 1985 or before, but would not give details or dates, except to say that one murder occurred in Daytona, Fla., and another in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., involving women about 19 or 20 years old.

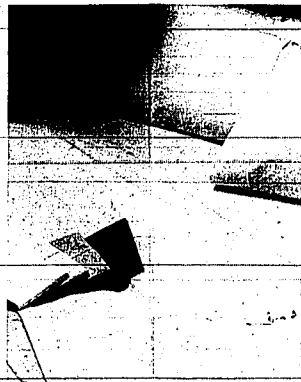

Taped beating case will move from L.A.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge granted a change of venue Tuesday in the assault case against four white police officers charged in the videotaped beating of a black motorist.

Superior Court Judge Gary Klausner said he will ask the state Judicial Council to give him a list of cities that have courts able to accommodate the trial. He ordered lawyers back to court Aug. 22 to discuss a new location for the trial.

The California 2nd District Court of Appeal ordered the trial moved out of Los Angeles because of a political firestorm that followed the beating of Rodney King during a traffic stop in March.

Editorial

If water goes to high bidder, it'll all flow to California

Darned clever, those Californians. When last we looked in on the Golden State, politicians were dreaming of diverting Snake River water, perhaps through an aqueduct near Hagerman, to slake the never-ending thirst of Southern California.

Now comes the Abundant Water Act, proposed by Rep. William Dannemeyer, R-California, who would very much like to have Idaho water filling the swimming pools of his Orange County district.

Dannemeyer proposes that all water rights, traditionally controlled by state agencies, be turned over to individuals, corporations, water districts or canal companies. All parties with existing water rights would be given certificates of ownership by the secretary of the interior.

The certificates could be used, bought or sold on the open market.

In short, market forces would drive the transfer of water rights, and in the West, whoever had the most money would be in the best position to get the water.

So guess who has the most money? "The idea that water rights would be transferable and marketable under a certificate system is not something we would welcome," said R. Keith Hightson, director of the Idaho Department of Water Resources.

"It's an attempted coup, and it's in direct conflict with Congress' traditional deference to state water law," said Idaho Attorney General Larry Echo Hawk. "But even though the idea is absurd on its face, we'd be foolish not to take it seriously because stranger things have happened in Washington."

Indeed they have. And barely visible through the fractured logic of Dannemeyer's bill is the outline of a real threat to Idaho's water.

If you believe, as we do, in the virtues of a free-market economy, Dannemeyer's idea has a kind of sinister logic: After all, shouldn't water — like other commodities — go to the highest bidder?

But this is one of those cases where protecting the public's welfare should balance free-market economics.

If water rights flow from Idaho farmers to California subdividers, Idaho water will only make possible a further overpopulation of the Golden State.

Idaho's economy will hemorrhage, the nation will lose valuable agricultural production, and Southern California will become an even worse rabbit-warren than it already is.

None of the states whose water California covets can win a bidding war. We have our water now only because of a series of arcane, turn-of-the-century laws and court decisions — and because the late Sen. Frank Church pushed a moratorium on inter-basin water transfers through Congress in the late 1960s.

But in Federal jurisprudence, nothing is forever. Any law that can be passed can be superseded, and it's becoming increasingly apparent that before the U.S. Supreme Court, there are relatively few immutable doctrines.

That leaves Idaho, and states like it, to survive by their wits in a world of the best lawyers California can buy. We're swimming with sharks, and we can expect they're only going to get hungrier.

Abortion: No room for compromise

WICHITA, Kan. — Perhaps the abortion question comes down to your emotional reaction to pitiful pictures.

As part of their pro-life protest, Operation Rescue folks in Wichita have been circulating photos of the aftermath of an abortion: the torn arms and legs and splattered remains of unborn children ripped from their mothers' wombs. The sight is profoundly disturbing; no one can doubt that something fundamentally human has been lost.

Dr. George Tiller, the prime target of Operation Rescue, also has a book of horrors. His photos are of pathetically deformed, late-term fetuses that are beyond hope of repair. Figures so grim that it's a mercy they were destroyed. Face it, as marvelous as God's creation is, sometimes the wires get crossed.

The pictures have only hardened my belief that by the time a woman seeks an abortion, both sides the issue have failed. While Operation Rescue activists may persuade a handful of women not to have an abortion, they will have no effect on the millions of women who are determined to end their pregnancy.

Likewise, in their stress on women's rights, pro-choice advocates have helped create a contraception/abortion mentality that downplays the harmful consequences of sexual liberation.

Thus, the United States has the highest rates of abortion and teenage pregnancy in the Western world.

In 1987, for example, of the 1.6 million abortions done in the United States, 407,000 were obtained by teen-agers; 42 percent of pregnant teen-agers chose abortion. From 1973 through 1988, more than 22 million legal abortions took place in the United States.

The only real way to stop abortion is to end the demand for abortion. That means aggressive sex education campaigns, stressing abstinence and a mature approach toward sexuality. It means a more responsible attitude toward sex by the media and the makers of popular entertainment. It means a greater awareness of the adoption option. It means better day care and social and educational programs for young mothers, to help them and their babies survive a tough time.

But, having followed the abortion controversy for more than 20 years, I am convinced that some people on both sides have no sincere interest in lowering abortion numbers.

Instead, abortion has become a convenient battlefield for two conflicting social and political agendas.

Attacks on 19th century anti-abortion laws escalated in the late 1960s. With the sexual revolution in full swing, many daughters of the politically powerful had unwanted pregnancies, and often risked their lives in back-alley abortions. In response, state legislatures started liberalizing abortion laws.

By the time of the 1973 Roe vs. Wade ruling, abortion had become a key issue for the rising feminist movement. Feminists argued that control over fertility was a key to women's liberation.

Abortion has become a litmus test for sex, religion, medicine and virtually every other aspect of U.S. social and political life, even extending to foreign and environmental policies through global family planning issues.

The problem is that the American political system is totally unequipped to handle such a wrenching moral and social matter. Compromise is the genius of American democracy, and there is no compromise on abortion. The rights of women and the unborn are irreconcilable.

And so the fight will continue until Americans abandon the mindset that the personal is political, and recognize the limits of the law to affect individual decisions.

As a rookie reporter on the police beat in the pre-Roe vs. Wade era, I had the misfortune to cover several botched abortions. I still have nightmares of seeing a woman lying unconscious on a filthy cot, her midsection and legs covered in blood and human gore, the fire department paramedics struggling to keep her alive.

Such experiences made me pro-choice. It would be unconscionable to ban abortion and return to the time when women would jeopardize their lives to end a pregnancy.

Furthermore, there is no national consensus on abortion. When people of good will disagree, tolerance of diversity is the only course in a free society. On abortion, people must be allowed to follow their own moral and religious beliefs.

The only other option is a police state similar to Romania under the anti-abortion Communists.

That said, for me, the pro-life side wins the abortion argument on religious and logical grounds: While a woman has rights over her body, the human growing in her womb is someone distinct from herself. Just as smoking excessive alcohol or drug use while pregnant is a form of child abuse, abortion is a form of homicide.

Rather than block clinics and harass pregnant women, pro-lifers should redouble their efforts to educate about abortion. Once a person's heart and mind are won, her body will follow.

Abortion will always be a personal matter; the only practical means to stop it is to create the moral awareness and the social support system that makes abortion an unacceptable choice.

Restore campaign civility

According to the headline on a piece in the Aug. 10 Times-News, Sen. Steve Symms plans to "shock" Congressman Richard Stallings with a piece of videotape.

What is incredibly more "shocking" is that a United States senator would arrive unannounced and uninvited to a news conference called by his colleague in the Congress and proceed to obnoxiously interrupt the proceedings.

Why did the soon-to-be ex-senator bring his own cameraman?
It is obvious that Steve Symms is going to be the designated dirt disher of the upcoming senatorial race to keep his candidate free of mud — a job for which he is eminently qualified with years of on-the-job training.

It is interesting to note that according to Symms' own pill, he was behind Stallings, but three other Republicans could come off the winner.

It appears the people have spoken, and what they are saying is that there are at least four other men they'd rather see in Washington than Steve.

I would prefer to see Symms and his girlfriend return to the family fruit farm and give us a respite from his nonsensical, brutal, valueless campaign style.

Let Mr. Stallings and the Republican candidate restore our faith in the campaign system by showing that gentlemen can civily discuss campaign issues with honesty and integrity, two traits decidedly missing from the last two Symms campaigns.

Support aid for 'notch' group

To Sens. Larry Craig and Steven Symms and Reps. Larry LaRocco and Richard Stallings:

I guess you and your elected people are not hearing or listening to us older folks. I also suppose you think the younger people are voting?

I am referring to the Notch Act S. 567. After my husband and I received a letter of Aug. 2 from Sen. Craig, we decided he and the rest of you should not be in office and that most any lay person could see that the money to bring up the amount equal to everyone else's Social Security as it was taken away with the stroke of a pen, it could be given back to the age group of 1917 to 1926.

Not only would these people have more to spend for medicine and food but what a boost for their morale. Social Security, we all know, is not to be a living wage but is to help with our non-working years.

The Notch Act story is very unfair and we believe the seniors who do the voting are really taking notice of those in Washington who care.

We do not agree with the large raise in salaries you people gave yourselves.

Hopefully, you will reconsider and get busy with a lot of us and support the Notch Bill.

We are looking for people who will do some research into this unfair bill.

We remain unhappy with your opinion. LAYONE "BONNIE" and ADRIAN A. SMITH, Twin Falls

Three Island Crossing is a Wild West show worthy of Hollywood

Cecil B. De Mille could not have staged a more spectacular production than the Three Island Crossing Saturday.

The overpowering river current shocked the crowd of 15,000 by grabbing the second wagon and causing the team to be dragged under the water with one horse drowned. Hollywood never staged a more dramatic spectacle.

The difficulty encountered in the crossing should not blot out the rest of the wonderful two days' celebration reliving the crossing of the Snake River by wagon trains crossing on the Oregon Trail. Accidents at river crossings on the Platte to the Portneuf and finally at the Three Islands of the Snake were the greatest cause of accidental loss of life, both human and animal.

Lloyd Walker
Reader comment

Mountain men's pack trains had crossed the Snake since 1810, when Donald MacKenzie of the Canadian Northwest Fur Co. explored south Idaho. The Bruneau Desert is named for Pierre Bruneau, one of his men. Alexander Ross followed and in the 1820s, the Hudson's Bay-Snake River Brigades of Peter Sken Ogden were regular visitors to south Idaho.

In 1836 came Marcus and Narcissa Whitman and Henry and Eliza Spaulding, heading north to bring the word to the heathen. Marcus, against all advice, brought a two-wheel wagon past Fort Hall. It was rolled in the current at Three Islands and the mules were barely saved. The cart was left at Fort Boise (Panna).

The 1901 crossing at Glass Ferry is a simple re-enactment of a very real part of history. It is an outstanding production.

From the cowboy poets and storytellers to the fiddle music, the Indian lodges and the food, a little bit of the courage and struggles of 150 years ago can be experienced. The entire affair is real theater.

Rich Wills, the committee chairman, and Bud Allen, the wagon master, perhaps can be singled out for praise. Beyond them, the entire community must be extremely proud of the great success their efforts create.

The week ends Saturday. They were the Bruneau cowboys and cowgirls. The audience saw true cowboys at work. As the trouble developed in the river, each of the riders and teamsters went calmly about the business of finishing their job.

After the second wagon lost the horse, there was a third wagon left to cross the channel. The third team was in trouble as well, but with calm and skill, the river was cleared.

Everyone along the banks spontaneously cheered as the wagons and riders pulled up onto the riverbank. It was a great show from the Bruneau community. Kitty Wilkins would have been proud.

Bush picks career regulator to head FDIC

The Associated Press
WASHINGTON—William Taylor, President Bush's choice to head the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., would face a mountain of bank failures on taking office and the challenge of regulating a rapidly changing industry.

President Bush, vacationing in Kennebunkport, Maine, announced the long-expected nomination of the 52-year-old career regulator on Tuesday.

If confirmed by the Senate, Taylor will leave the FDIC to take a relatively low-profile position of chief bank regulator at the Federal Reserve.

Taylor, 52, has held the high-profile FDIC job at a time when both the banking and savings and loan industries have been rocked by financial problems.

"This is one of the most visible and important jobs in government right now," the president has a lot at stake here," said William Isaac, who served as FDIC chairman from 1982 to 1985. "A decade ago, not too many people knew what the FDIC did. Today, not too many people don't."

In addition to leading the agency, which guarantees deposits in banks and S&Ls, Taylor also would serve, at least at first, as chairman of the Resolution Trust Corp., the agency conducting the S&L bailout.

The administration is searching for a chief executive to run the trust corporation separately and Congress is considering legislation that would sever the ties between the two agencies. At the FDIC, Taylor would succeed L. William Seidman, 70, who led the White House last week. He will stay on the job until his six-year term ends Oct. 16.

Bonds, bank stocks push prices up

The Associated Press
NEW YORK—Stock prices climbed today, boosted by computerized trading, a rally in the bond market and strong demand for bank stocks.

The Commerce Department reported this morning that retail sales rose 0.5 percent in July, more than many economists had predicted.

The news initially caused Treasury bond prices to drop, which sent interest rates higher and depressed stock prices as well. Signs of economic improvement are bad for the bond market since they make it less likely the Federal Reserve will lower interest rates.

Bond prices recovered and stock prices followed suit, continuing their upward momentum from Monday.

ISU professor appointed to 2nd term

POCATELLO — Ernest "Ras" Rowe, an Idaho State University professor of education, has been named to a second two-year term on the Education Commission of the States.

Rowe was first nominated to the commission by Gov. Cecil Andrus in 1989.

Idaho restricts use of Bear Lake land

BOISE — The state Land Board has restricted use of the lake bed exposed as Bear Lake drops.

Bear Lake, which straddles the Idaho-Utah border in southeastern Idaho, has been dropping because of drought. Officials say that's exposed up to a quarter-mile of beaches around the lake.

Council balks at Veterans Home needs

LEWISTON — The city of Lewiston has donated five acres for the proposed Idaho State Veterans Home, but the City Council may have pressed to come up with another five, but the project now needs.

The council has already committed to providing five acres for the veterans home, but site plans revealed Monday 10.22 acres are required.

No decision was made, although the council is expected to make its views known by Sept. 15.

Prosecutor files charges against deputy

WALLACE — Shoshone County Prosecutor Jack Rose has filed a grand theft charge against a former sheriff's deputy, who apparently is the FBI informant he earlier accused of stealing police records.

Rose accuses John Mautcel of obtaining officers logs in a felony charge filed Monday in 1st District Court in Wallace and signed by Magistrate Neil Walter.

GOP finance chairman moves to D.C.

BOISE — Juan Benitez, former president of Micron Technology, has left his post as finance chairman of the Idaho Republican Party.

Benitez, named to the job in January by GOP Chairman Phil Batt, returned to the Washington, D.C., area last month. Benitez was U.S. deputy assistant secretary of Commerce in 1989 and deputy undersecretary for technology in 1990. He was Micron president from 1985-88.

Benitez said Monday he has returned to the East to be near his son, Tito, who is enrolled as at Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh.

Grass farmers begin torching

POST FALLS (AP) — Rathdrum Prairie grass farmers have ignited their first fields of the 1991 burning season, sending a tall plume of smoke away from Post Falls, Coeur d'Alene and Spokane north to Sandpoint.

As much as 10 percent of the prairie's bluegrass crop — or about 1,000 acres — may have been burned on Monday, said Al Haselbacher, executive secretary of the Intermountain Grass Growers Association.

Burning began shortly before 11 a.m. and the last fields were ignited at 3 p.m., Haselbacher said. While Coeur d'Alene and surrounding communities were spared, Sandpoint residents saw the first smoke billows roll into their city at about 4 p.m.

Fern Watt, who lives on the Fond Oreille River, said the plume followed her home along U.S. 95 from a shopping expedition north of Coeur d'Alene, and obscured her view.

"You can tell your county commissioners that we've spent considerable money at Silver Lake Mall and I'm not going to in the future if they keep this up," Ms. Watt said of Kootenai County.

Another complainant was Art Long, administrator of the Sandpoint-based Clean Air Coalition. Long, who was driving southward to attend a private meeting of grass-growers, seed-processors, environmentalists and regulators Monday evening, said numerous cars were driving with their lights on down Highway 95.

Hagadone appeals golf course valuation

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Hagadone Hospitality Co. wants the assessed property tax value of its Lake Coeur d'Alene golf course slashed to about two-thirds of the site's 1987 purchase price.

Company executive Art Flagan appealed to the state Board of Tax Appeals last week to set the taxable value of the 135-acre course at $3.2 million.

Fights for water

Attorney general receives support general legislation

BOISE (AP) — The Conference of Western Attorneys General, joined Idaho Attorney General Larry Echohawk in opposing legislation they contend would effectively replace state water law with a new federal system.

"The Abundant Water Act is sponsored by Rep. William Dannemeyer, R-Calif.

"It's an attempted coup, and it's in direct conflict with Congress' tradiitional deference to state water law," Echohawk said in a news release. "But even though the idea is absurd on its face, we'd be foolish not to take it seriously because stranger things have happened in Washington."

Echohawk said the federal government has no justification for trying to take control of established water law. The Western Attorneys General agreed.

Purported polygamist leader released

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — A purported northern Utah polygamist leader facing child sex charges was released from jail Tuesday on condition he stay at home and wear an electronic ankle bracelet.

Second Circuit Judge Parley Baldwin said Arvin Shreeve would have to wear the monitoring device to track his whereabouts. He will be allowed to leave his Ogden home only for medical treatment and to meet with his attorneys.

Such trips away from home must first be cleared through Mountain Alarm, a local security company, or the court, Baldwin said.

In releasing Shreeve, Baldwin noted the 61-year-old retired landscaper had been a lifetime Weber County resident and had turned himself in to Cedar City police Friday when he learned warrants were out for his arrest.

"He's been cooperative in every sense of the word," said the judge, who also scheduled a Sept. 26 preliminary hearing for Shreeve.

On Monday, Shreeve was formally charged in a video hearing before Baldwin with two counts of aggravated sexual assault and two counts of sodomy involving two boys under the age of 14.

Latah schools consider merger

TROY (AP) — Will it be the White Pine High School "Cones"? Or perhaps the "Needles"?

Or will trustees of White Pine School District 284 opt to leave the Troy Trojans and the Deary Mustangs attending classes in their respective Latah County towns?

After years of haggling between parents in both towns, the School Board on Monday decided to decide whether to merge Troy and Deary high schools while creating a middle school.

Two public meetings were set for Aug. 26 and Sept. 5.

Woman dies in crash

CALDWELL (AP) — Canyon County authorities say it appears the inattention caused a car-train crash which claimed the life of a 51-year-old Caldwell woman.

Monday afternoon, a Union Pacific train struck a vehicle crossing the tracks at Look Road near U.S. Highway 20-26, a dispatcher said.

The victim was Marjorie Sharon Mattox, 51, of Caldwell.

Odiaga had normal childhood, father says

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Mitchel John Odiaga was a normal kid when he was growing up, his father said in court Tuesday. He did his schoolwork, held a job and had a date for the prom, said 69-year-old Joe Odiaga Jr.

But the elder Odiaga offered no explanation how his only child, whom he said was "raised in a good Basque family," turned into the man prosecutors say shot and killed two men in Ketchum last year.

"I thought he went off the deep end," Joe Odiaga said, explaining why he waited until two weeks after the shootings to visit his son in jail.

Since then, Joe Odiaga has taken retirement from his job with the Postal Service so he could support his son through his criminal trial.

Mitchel Odiaga, 36, is charged with two counts of first-degree murder and several other felonies in connection with a shooting spree the night of June 22, 1990. He faces a possible death sentence if convicted.

Joe Odiaga said he has supported his son all his life, offering love, support or money whenever necessary. In return, Joe said his son made him a sort of "whipping post," blaming his problems on his father.

Mitchel Odiaga remained quiet and showed no emotion as his father took the witness stand Tuesday. His expression changed only once, when he smiled at a joke his father made.

After Mitchel graduated from Boise High School in 1972, he began having problems with alcohol, Joe Odiaga said.

After an alcohol-related accident in 1975, a judge finally told Mitchel Odiaga to Please see ODIAGA/B2

State says truck drivers must take drug tests

BOISE — Most truck drivers and some school bus drivers operating in Idaho will be required to take annual drug tests under regulations adopted by the Idaho Public Utilities Commission.

The PUC voted this week to adopt the order, and is expected to sign it by the end of the week.

The new rule is identical to the federal one regulating interstate drivers. It covers vehicles with a gross weight of 26,000 pounds or more, passenger vehicles designed to transport 16 or more people, and any one used to move hazardous materials.

Bus companies that transport school children in contract for school districts will be affected by the new ruling, while buses owned and operated by school districts will not, said Deputy Attorney General Mike Gilmore.

D-Bus Co., which handles the Twin Falls School District's transportation, will be affected by the testing, he said.

Exemptions include taxis; hotel courtesies; farm vehicles operated by the farmer; those used to transport farm, mining or forest products; mail delivery; and transport of household goods.

Cross-country ski resort on the market for $687,000

KETCHUM — Galena Lodge, a cross-country ski resort in the Sawtooth National Recreation Area, is for sale.

Steve Haims, owner of the operation, said he started listing the property last week. His asking price is $687,000.

"I just don't have the money to do what I want," Haims explained. "And I'm tired."

Eighteen months ago Haims proposed an ambitious expansion of the resort, developing it into a "four-season" destination with on-site lodging. A master plan in development at that time included a new lodge with 20 or more rooms, a telemark slope, a sledding-tubing area, cabins and an expansion of the existing lift-system. A costly environmental impact statement was required before the expansion could begin, Haims explained, but he lacked the money to pay for it himself.

Kids can sign up for fun run-walk on CSI campus

TWIN FALLS — Registration is open for Saturday's seventh annual Micro-Marathon fun run-walk for youngsters.

The event is for kids 13 years and younger. The race is one mile for kids 3 and under and two miles for those 4 to 13. The course is a mostly circuitous one of the College of Southern Idaho. The under-3 race starts at 9 a.m. and the 4-13 event at 9:15. Participants must check in 30 minutes before the starting time on the west side of the CSI campus at the Office of Aging on Washington St. N.

trophies will be awarded to the top overall finishers, and the youngest finishers, but all finishers will receive ribbons and all participants will get shirts and free refreshments.

There is a $6 entry fee. Registration forms are available at the Pediatric Center, Lenkner-Mitchner & Associates and Donnelly's Sports.

Ketchum residents will be without power for 4 hours

KETCHUM — Residents of the north end of Ketchum will be without electricity Thursday morning while Idaho Power Co. does some repairs. The outage is scheduled for between 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the area north of Helen Meadows.

Fire crews battle 2 blazes at Sawtooth Recreation Area

STANLEY — Forest Service fire crews fought two human-caused fires on the Sawtooth National Recreation Area Tuesday.

A small fire was spotted just off the trail to McDonald Lake Tuesday morning, according to Carol Brown, assistant fire management officer for the SNRA. That fire was contained quickly by four firefighters and consumed only about one-tenth of an acre.

A more serious blaze was fought Tuesday afternoon in the Beaver Creek area north of Alturas Lake. Twenty-five firefighters, including a Forest Service helicopter and three fire trucks, attacked the fire and brought it under control by 4 p.m. It burned approximately one acre of timber.

Compiled from staff and wire reports.

Grit and bear it

MIKE BALLSURY/The Times-News

GIVING blood for the 184th time isn't overly traumatic for Vernon Smith as he jokingly grimaces for nurse Joyce Hill. Tuesday's donation marked the completion of 23 gallons of blood given to the American Red Cross by the 69-year-old Twin Falls man. He said he began the donations in the early 1950s and has continued since.

School district may lose dollars if 1% plan passes

By Kirk Mitchell
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The school district could lose income equal to 37 teachers' salaries if the proposed 1 percent initiative passes, Superintendent Terrell Donicht says.

"Needless to say the impact is going to be staggering," Donicht told School Board members Tuesday night.

He said state officials have projected the loss to the Twin Falls School District would range between $977,000 or 6.3 percent of the current $15.5 million budget to $1.6 million or 10.4 percent of the budget.

Besides the potential threat of having to layoff teachers, the district also would have to cut back on school supplies and equipment, Donicht said.

The 1 percent initiative, which backers are trying to get on the November 1992 ballot, would limit property taxes to 1 percent of market value.

'Needless to say the impact is going to be staggering.'

— Superintendent Terrell Donicht

The initiative could cost Idaho's school districts up to $74 million, according to the Idaho Education Association.

In other business, the School Board approved a new graduation policy that requires students to complete all graduation requirements before receiving their diplomas, Donicht said.

In the past, too many students have promised to finish taking classes in the summer but didn't, he said.

Graduation requirements include the following course work: English, 8 credits;

reading, 1 credit; speech, 1 credit; math, 4 credits; health, 1 credit; humanities, 4 credits; social studies, 2 credits; consumer economics, 1 credit; U.S. history, 2 credits; government, 2 credits; science, 4 credits; physical education, 2 credits; and electives, 12 credits.

The policy does not take effect until 1993.

Board members approved a new bus transportation policy in which children can ride on a bus to day-care facilities.

The day-care facility must be located within the enrollment boundaries regularly served by the school the child attends for the child to be eligible.

Parents must apply for the service.

Donicht reported to the School Board that the district received $31,341 to buy science equipment including 37 microscopes, a Panasonic microscopy system, a ballistic pendulum, eight stereo microscopes and other items.

That is a healthy chunk of the $1 million the state is giving to school districts as part of the Idaho Science Equipment Procurement Act, Donicht said.

The board also ratified the formation of the Twin Falls School District #411 Educational Foundation, Inc.

The foundation will spearhead fundraising activities for new school equipment or supplies and receive private donations, many of which are given on condition the district uses it for designated purposes, Donicht said.

The board of directors of the foundation are: Jim Cox, Gerald Kleinkopf, David G. Saxe, J. Walter Sinclair and Lee Wagner.

The School Board also approved a new policy that allows students to be released from school for one period a day for religious or other purposes.

Students under 18 must receive parental permission.

Stallings plans to raise $2 million for Senate race

By Drew DeSilver
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — U.S. Rep. Richard Stallings said Tuesday he plans to raise about $2 million for his upcoming Senate campaign, and has already raised more than $100,000.

Stallings, who plans to run for the seat of retiring Sen. Steve Symms, also said next year's race will be one of the top priorities for both national parties, though not as much as if Symms were running.

The 2nd District Democrat spoke with The Times-News Tuesday morning about the looming campaign, the abortion "gag rule," term limitation and other issues.

Stallings said he planned to raise at least as much money as did former Gov. John Evans when he challenged Symms in 1986. Evans spent $2.13 million in 1986; Symms spent $3.23 million.

Stallings acknowledged that his Symms out of the running, fund-raising will be easier.

"A lot of Idaho groups, like the sugar beet growers, were divided on who to support," he said. "Now it's an easy choice."

Stallings said he was not concerned about Symms' campaign war chest, which contained $535,000 on July 31, or the prospect that Symms would swing his money and his campaign muscle behind the eventual Republican candidate.

"Having someone dump half a million dollars into ads against you has got to have an impact," Stallings said.

"But having Symms in the race will be a problem for the Republican nominee as well. Does he endorse what Symms is doing, or distance himself from it? Is Symms trying to anoint his successor? Those kinds of questions could really cloud his campaign."

Stallings also said he wasn't concerned about a videotape Symms claims to have of the congressman.

In Lewiston last week, Symms claimed that the tape, taken at a Capitol Hill press conference last month, was so embarrassing that it would help defeat Stallings. Symms wouldn't say what was on the tape, but said he might use it to help Stallings' Republican opponent.

Stallings said he had no idea what Symms was talking about.

"I spoke to the camera, swung over to Symms for his response," he said. "That took me a little off stride, but then I responded, and that was it. If I'd done

Planning commission OKs plan for accessory apartments

By Michael Hofferber

KETCHUM — An ordinance allowing accessory apartments in Ketchum's residential neighborhoods was approved unanimously by the city's Planning and Zoning Commission Monday night.

The ordinance will appear before the Ketchum City Council next month with a "do pass" recommendation from the commission.

"Perennially, there's a problem with housing in this community," said John Craig, acting chairman for the commission meeting. "We're trying to at least put a finger in the dike."

As approved by the commission, the new ordinance allows single-family homeowners to add on an attached rental unit of 400 to 600 square feet if their lot has 16,000 square

Fire district bond issue fizzles

The Times-News

CASTLEFORD — Residents within the boundaries of the new Castleford Fire District failed Tuesday to approve a $200,000 bond issue to cover the cost of the district.

With a total of 318 votes cast, 145 people voted against the bond issue and 173 voted in favor of the measure. A two-thirds majority was needed for the measure to pass.

"The problem I found with people is that with all the information we put out, there are still people grossly misunderstanding what's going on," said Fire Chief Dan DeBoer.

DeBoer said he received a lot of phone calls from people asking questions about information that has been public knowledge for months.

The fire chief said he will meet with the district's three fire commissioners to look at the options and decide what to do next.

Voters approved the formation of the district in the spring. The 10-year bond issue would have paid for new fire trucks and other firefighting equipment.

In addition, the city of Castleford had donated $100,000 in land to be used for a new fire station. And the city had been awarded a $185,000 community development block grant, which would have paid for the construction of a new fire station and engineering and administration costs.

But DeBoer said that grant was contingent upon passage of the $200,000 bond issue and probably is lost. The district probably would have to reapply for the grant if it decides to ask voters for money, again, DeBoer said.

"The problem is there is no free lunch and this is as close as we could get for a grant," he said. "We were just asking people to come up matching funds."

Jerome delays action on classroom space

By H.R. Weikel
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — A supplemental levy to construct additional classrooms at the Jerome kindergarten center has been postponed until after a citizens committee can study the district's overcrowding problem.

The School Board had decided in July to construct a 6,480-square-foot addition to the center for an estimated $398,136, using funds generated by an override levy. The levy was scheduled to go to voters Sept. 5.

Kindergarten students attending Washington school would be moved to the center, which would help relieve overcrowded elementary school classrooms.

"I'd like to test the waters by getting input from the community on which way it should go," Robert Bingham, School Board trustee, said.

"But we're postponing the only thing that could possibly do away with split sessions," Ben Neff, trustee replied.

"Anything we postpone only aggravates the problem," Neff said.

With Neff voting against the move and Alvin Chojnacky and Bingham voting in favor, the board decided to postpone the levy and to form a community committee to advise the board on the best way to relieve overcrowding in the schools.

"We need to make this thing public, because there are some people not here. We want a workable committee that will get something done," Nancy Churchman, board chairwoman said.

About 40 parents and school staff attended the meeting. None of those present commented during the public comment portion of the meeting, although many had staged protests to split sessions scheduled to begin with this school year.

"They set the agenda up so the board discussed the split sessions after public comment was allowed and then they wouldn't let us say anything when the split sessions came up," Carl Nutsch, a parent, said after the meeting. "And they talked so low, we couldn't hear anything they said."

The board meeting was held in the Central Elementary School auditorium due to the large audience. After the meeting, six people volunteered to work on the committee to plan what should be done with the overcrowded situation.

In other business, the board:

- Accepted the resignation of School Board member Steve Marshall who is moving from his electoral zone.

- Heard a report by Mike Gibson, school-business administrator, that the district would lose as much as $500,000 in revenue if the 1 percent initiative passes.

- Unanimously agreed to put in a request to the city to annex 22 acres of school property, located at the northeast edge of Jerome.

- Seventy-six requests had been received asking for changes in scheduling middle school students attending the split sessions and 53 of those requests had been honored, Craig Ainsworth, middle school principal said.

Judge sentences Buhl dairyman to 10 years for drug conviction

By Craig Lincoln
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Antonio Avelar's struggle for independence and a better life ended Tuesday when a judge sentenced him to 10 years in prison.

Avelar is a church-going native of Portugal who has been working on his family's dairy in Buhl for a decade. He is a "walking reminder of how lucky we are to be born in America," 5th District Judge Daniel Meehl said.

But he also is a reminder of the nation's serious drug problem, Meehl said.

"It seems probable that Mr. Avelar was simply a loyal soldier acting on someone else's behalf," Meehl said. "Rich criminal organizations seem to have no trouble finding good soldiers to do their dirty work, even if these people do not fit a criminal profile."

So Meehl rejected defense requests for probation and on Tuesday afternoon sentenced Avelar to a two- to 10-year prison sentence. The sentence ended Avelar's trek for financial freedom that started under a dictator—in the Portuguese islands called the Azores.

He left the Azores for the African country of Angola. He set up a dairy that was seized by a Marxist regime that took control when Angola was granted independence.

Except for his cocaine conviction, 36-year-old Avelar has been an "employable citizen" since he moved from Angola to the United States 15 years ago, Meehl said. Now he faces deportation.

Probation, Meehl said, wouldn't discourage other people from being "good soldiers" or encourage them to testify against drug-ring leaders.

Avelar's emotional case — it was watched closely by family and friends who with anger and tears protested the sentence outside the courthouse Tuesday — is destined for appeal.

Avelar was convicted mainly on the testimony of a man who testified he once bought cocaine from the Buhl dairyman.

That man, David Homolka, was given 120 days in jail and probation. Avelar's attorney, Harry DeHaan of Twin Falls, said Homolka's testimony against Avelar wasn't good enough.

"He said he wasn't sure whether he delivered cocaine or powdered sugar," DeHaan said.

A jury convicted Avelar on March 1 of selling cocaine to Homolka. Homolka was arrested after arranging to sell the drugs to an undercover police officer.

DeHaan said police apparently convinced Homolka to testify against Avelar, who prosecutors said supplied Homolka with drugs.

They couldn't convince Avelar to testify against his supplier, Meehl said.

But Meehl also said Avelar was unlikely to commit any more crimes and shouldn't be deported.

"His family is quite Americanized and serves an active, constructive role in the church and community," Meehl said.

"The defendant will likely do the same when released."

A 1984 graduate of Twin Falls High School, Andy Toolson will be going to Italy after playing last year with the NBA's Utah Jazz.

Guaranteed contract lures Toolson from NBA

By Brad Breland
Times-News writer

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah — Andy and Holly Toolson need to brush up on their Italian.

After spending a year with the National Basketball Association's Utah Jazz franchise, the Twin Falls native wanted another shot with the Jazz. Instead, he'll be far away from Utah when he signs a one-year guaranteed contract with Brescia of the Italian League.

The turning point in negotiations between Toolson and the Utah Jazz was on the contract. Toolson wasn't concerned about the amount that the Jazz or Brescia were offering him.

"I've always said that it's crazy making money playing basketball," he said from his Salt Lake City home Monday night. "My agent called and said one of the offers came through. There were a few teams in Italy that were interested. The Jazz would not offer a guaranteed contract. They called back and they offered what they thought was sufficient."

Toolson decided to accept the Italian offer. That offer includes guaranteed money plus housing and a car.

The Jazz were going to invite him to camp this season. If Toolson didn't make the cut, he wouldn't have been able to hook up with another NBA franchise. If he did make the cut, he probably would have spent time on the bench for Utah.

"I have no hard feelings. The Jazz organization is a great one to work for," he said.

The Jazz front office showed mutual admiration.

"We like Andy a lot. He made a valuable contribution last season. But it was just premature for us to offer any guaranteed contracts at this stage," said Utah general manager Tim Howells.

Toolson and Howells agree that the Italian contract would give him more playing time and that exposure would help him next season.

"I'm excited to have the opportunity to play in Italy. I'm disappointed that things didn't work out here," said Toolson.

Brescia is already in preseason workouts and has asked Toolson to come as soon as possible. The 6-foot, 6-inch swingman will probably leave on Friday.

Before the 1990-91 season began, Toolson already had another job lined up. Even Jazz coach Jerry Sloan told Toolson to play basketball in Europe.

"We have a lot of players at your position," said Toolson, recalling what Sloan told him.

Toolson, who graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1984, decided that Please see TOOLSON/B5

Inter-City medalist honors go to Jensen

GOODING — The fifth match of the Magic Valley Ladies Inter-City Golf Association was held at the Gooding Country Club Tuesday.

Medalist for the day was Jerome's Norma Jensen with 78. Blue Lakes' Karen Krieger was second with an 83. Olita Roberts, Clear Lakes, followed in third place one stroke back of Krieger.

Ether Nelson, Jerome, and Clear Lakes' Joyce Grindstad tied for net number at 66. Jeanne Alban, also representing Clear Lakes, stood third in net at 67.

Twin Falls leads the team standings with 57½ points. A tie for second at 54 exists between the Jerome and Blue Lakes Country Club ladies. Canyon Springs, with 48½, rings in third followed by Burley and Clear Lakes each with 42½. Gooding has 32½ and Rupert Country Club, which hosts the next match on Sep. 17, is at 28½ points.

Rupert starts fall program with football registration

RUPERT — The Rupert Parks and Recreation Department's fall program starts with the registration of youth for the flag football program. Leagues will be formed for 4th and 5th graders and 6th and 7th graders. Players can sign up at the Recreation Office, 620 N. St. until Friday, Aug. 30. Registration fees are $10 for city residents and $15 for non-residents.

Registration for coed volleyball will also be held through Aug. 30 at the Recreation Office. Games will be played in the Civic Gym on Monday and Thursday evenings. The fees are $10 for residents and $15 for others. Two leagues will have play for 5th and 6th graders and junior high (7-9).

Coaches for flag football or volleyball and officials, downers keepers and timers are needed for the programs. Those interested should call the Parks and Recreation Office at 436-3531.

Registration nears for youth soccer program in Kimberly

KIMBERLY — The Kimberly Lions Club will hold registration for its youth soccer program Aug. 26-30.

Boys and girls in grades 1-6 will receive registration forms at school. They must be returned by Friday, Aug. 30. The fee is $8.

For more information or for additional registration forms, call Barry Watson at 423-6220.

Dorsey Tierney of the U.S. celebrates after breaking her own Pan Am Games record in the 200-meter breaststroke with a time of 2:28.69

U.S. swimmers add more Pan Am gold

The Associated Press

HAVANA — On land and in the water, speed runs in Dorsey Tierney's family.

The cousin of former Indy 500 champion Danny Sullivan, Tierney shattered the Pan American Games record in the women's 200-meter breaststroke twice Tuesday as U.S. swimmers captured four more golds and three silvers.

The only race Americans haven't won among 10 in two days of competition was the men's 100 butterfly, the specialty of Olympic and Pan Am champion Anthony Nesty of Surinam.

Nesty, who trains at the University of Florida, broke his own Pan Am record to win in 53.45 seconds, well ahead of silver medalist Mike Merrell, 18, of Charlotte, N.C., who is headed for Southern Cal.

Tierney, of Louisville, Ky., leaped out of the water and pumped her fist when she saw her time of 2:28.69, nearly seven seconds faster than the record she cracked earlier in the day when she swam 2:32.33. The old Pan Am record of 2:35.53, also was beaten in an earlier heat by Canada's Chantal Dubois, who won the silver.

"I put the blinders on. I tried not to think of anything else," said Tierney, the NCAA champion, whose winning time was the second best ever by an American and second fastest in the world this year to 14-year-old Anita Nall's 2:27.08.

"When I saw the time I was shocked," said Tierney, the U.S. women's team captain. "My coach kept telling me I should go that fast, and I had a real good summer. I changed my stroke a little bit.

"Mentally, I'm much stronger. I'm older, I'm 21. A lot of people think maybe it's a little too old to drop a lot of time in swimming, but it can be done."

The death of her father a year and half ago put so much stress on her, she said, that she couldn't enjoy swimming. "I had about six months or so that I just didn't have my head on straight,"

she said. "I wasn't having fun and I was stressed out all the time. Finally, my roommate at Texas said, 'You've got to look at reality and not stress out so much.' With the help of her and my coaches, I overcame an obstacle at the NCAAs this past year and went a lot faster and ended up winning my first major championship. Those two things changed my swimming around."

Alex Kostich and Jody Braden swam to a gold-silver finish in the men's 400 freestyle. Kostich, a senior at Stanford, led throughout the race to win in 4:23.96. Braden came back from a distant fourth after 300 meters to finish second ahead of Canada's Jason Pratt.

Kostich said the only pressure he felt going into the race was "positive pressure."

"A lot of the press had dubbed us the 'B' team, and this was a chance for us to prove we were world-class athletes," he said, referring to the absence of the fastest U.S. swimmers, who are training for or competing in other meets. "We're happy about the recognition. It's nice to finally get some respect."

Phillies find winning formula

The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — The ingredients in the Philadelphia Phillies' record-tying 13-game winning streak — strong pitching and timely hitting — are those usually associated with a winning recipe.

But what makes the whole concoction difficult to believe is that the Phillies are doing the cooking. They entered Tuesday night's game in Pittsburgh trying to set a team record. The winning streak matches one from 1977 as the team's longest this century.

How did a last-place team on a seven-game losing skid go the next two weeks without another loss? "A total team effort adds up to a lot of wins," said Len Dykstra, who knocked in the deciding run in Monday's 2-1 victory over Montreal.

That 1977 streak was powered by such names as Tim Lincecum, Gary Maddox, Ted Sizemore and Mike Schmidt, and lifted the second-place Phils into first in the National League East.

The 1991 streak was led by Wes Chamberlain, John Kruk and relief pitcher Mitch Williams, whose disquieting nickname is Wild Thing. The team climbed from the cellar to fifth place.

For longer streaks, you have to go back to the 19th century and the old Baker Bowl, where the Phillies put together 16-game streaks in 1887, 1890 and 1892. None of those teams won a title, and this one — still 12½ games behind Pittsburgh starting play Tuesday night — probably won't either.

Raiders coach sings praises of rookie quarterback

The Associated Press

IRVING, Texas — Let it be recorded that Todd Marinovich completed 75 percent of his passes in his NFL debut.

Of course, he threw only four when he got his shot for the Los Angeles Raiders against Dallas Cowboys on Monday night. One of them was the game-winner in a 17-12 victory.

That had people comparing him with Kenny Stabler, another left-hander. Stabler once completed 91 percent of his passes in a game for the Raiders, and he owns 13 club passing records.

Marinovich, a first-round draft pick after he gave up two years of eligibility at Southern California when he was bounced off the team, wasn't quite that good.

But he did look every nickel worth the three-year, $2.25 million contract he signed.

"He can throw the ball on the money," Raiders coach Art Shell said. "For the first time out he did a very good job. He had good command in the huddle and he

Light lunch recipes for out-of-doors

I honestly appreciate my forefathers a lot more today. Mine, like so many, came West with all their worldly goods in a covered wagon while they walked behind-or-rode-a-saddle-horses. Some wagons were horse drawn, some by oxen.

So many set out, so many of them didn't make it.

Nancy Joy Jones
Valley cooking

It wasn't until we attended "A Crossing in Time" at Three Island State Park last weekend that I really realized the actual perils of those pioneers.

Like many of the spectators, we came to see the colorful re-enactment pageant with cowboys, cavalry, Indians and covered wagons. (We personally knew some of the "Indians"). This was an unexpected realistic presentation.

The first wagon seemed to float quickly with little trouble through the swift currents of the Snake River.

Then the second wagon, hesitated briefly and started across. The current caught it, turn it on its side and we cheered as it righted itself, only to realize that the horses drawing this wagon were in trouble in the deep water.

Cowboys astride horses swarmed to help, but with the thrashing feet from the big beautiful draft horses, they had to keep clear. We soon understood that one of those horses had been underwater too long.

So when the current caught the third wagon and it wobbled, we collectively held our breaths. The horses, deep in water, thrashed but kept going to higher ground. We all kept holding our breaths until it was clear, then relief made us cheer as this third wagon came across and out in front of us.

We met our friends at the breakfast, but after watching some of the entertainment, went to our own lunch. I'll share some of the recipes we used.

NUTRITIOUS SALAD AHEAD FOR ON-THE-RUN-DAYS

1/2 cup raw sunflower seeds, spread on a baking sheet and toasted at 350 degrees until your choice of brownness (5 to 10 minutes)

2 cups chopped broccoli
1 1/2 cups chopped cauliflower
1 1/2 cups diced jicama (maybe canned water chestnuts)

1/2 cup sliced carrots
1 cup diced zucchini
1/2 cup alfalfa sprouts
1/2 cup green onions, white and tops, very finely chopped
2 apples, cored and diced
1/2 raisins, any color
1/2 cup sliced almonds
1/2 cup diced mozzarella cheese
1/2 cup grated parmesan cheese
1/2 to 1 1/2 cup low-cal and low-fat dressing, your choice flavor optional

Ingredients: sliced mushrooms; yellow squash, slivers of snow peas, chopped blanched green beans, corn cooked on the cob and sliced off.

Combine all ingredients and serve on lettuce leaves. If you wish the sunflower seeds could be reserved and used as garnish. This keeps several days in a clear container under refrigeration.

Usually tomatoes and cucumbers are too wet to add unless using immediately.

FRESH HERBS AND GOAT CHEESE BREAD

1 unliced small (baguette size) french bread
4 to 5 ounces goat cheese, room temperature
1/3 cup margarine, room temperature
1 teaspoon minced chives
1 teaspoon minced parsley
1 teaspoon chopped thyme leaves
1 teaspoon chopped fresh dill optional; 1/3 teaspoon-Dijon-style mustard

Cut the bread lengthwise in half. Cut each of these halves in crosswise slices about 1-inch thick. Cut almost through the crust but leave a bit so it hangs together. Set aside.

Cut or crumble cheese into smallish cubes. Blend cheese, margarine and herbs with an electric mixer or in a food processor with metal or plastic blade.

Keep slices of bread together and spread the mixture over the cut side of each half of bread. Wrap airtight in foil. This can be kept for up to 24-hours before finishing.

To finish, bake for 10 minutes in a preheated 400 degree oven. To serve, finish cutting slices apart and serve in a bowl.

1/2 cup Pimm's
1/2 cup fresh orange juice

PIMM'S SYRUP

1/2 cup Pimm's
1/2 cup granulated sugar
3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
1 tablespoon fresh orange juice

1. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Generously grease and flour a 12-cup Bundt pan. Tap out any excess flour.

2. In a medium bowl, using a wire whisk, stir together the flour, baking powder and salt. Set aside.

3. In a large bowl, using an electric mixer, beat the butter on medium high speed until light and fluffy. Gradually add the sugar and continue to beat 5-6 minutes, or-until the mixture is light in texture and almost white in color. One at a time, add the eggs, beating well after each addition. Beat in the orange zest, vanilla and yogurt.

with half of the Pimm's and orange juice mixture. Mix briefly just until each addition is barely incorporated into the batter. Scrape down the sides of the bowl and mix the batter 20 seconds longer until smooth.

5. Transfer the batter to the prepared pan and smooth the surface. Bake for 50 minutes to 1 hour, or until a toothpick inserted into the center of the cake comes out clean. Cool cake in the pan on a wire rack for 15 minutes.

6. Meanwhile prepare Pimm's syrup. In a small nonreactive saucepan, combine the Pimm's, sugar, lemon and orange juice. Bring to a boil over moderate heat, stirring until sugar dissolves. Reduce heat to moderately low and simmer gently until the syrup has reduced to about 1/2 cup, 8-10 minutes.

7. Invert cake onto a serving plate and brush all of the warm syrup over the entire cake.

The cake can be prepared up to 2 days ahead and kept tightly covered at room temperature. The cake is delicious as is or with fruit and Flavored Whipped Cream (directions follow). Serves 12-16 people.

FLAVORED WHIPPED CREAM

1 cup heavy cream
1/4 cup confectioners sugar
2 tablespoons Pimm's
In a medium bowl combine cream and sugar. Beat with an electric mixer until stiff. Fold in the Pimm's and serve.

New FDA regulations provide food for thought

By Mary MacVean
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — When you buy a 50-cent bag of pretzels from a vending machine, do you expect it holds 1.65 servings? Do you usually drink half a 12-ounce can of soda and put the rest in the fridge?

Most cereal boxes list 90 to 110 calories per serving, but serving sizes range from one-quarter cup to a cup and a quarter.

And just how much tuna should be in one serving?

These are some of the contentious issues federal regulators and the food industry are facing as new food label regulations are worked out.

It's not enough to compare calories, or fat or sodium. You must also look at serving sizes. But the Food and Drug Administration and the industry say it will be tough to set standard serving sizes, since companies now can set sizes that put their products in the best light.

The goal of the FDA plan is that "if you look at one can of green beans and you compare with another can of green beans, without even looking at the serving size, at least you will have a fair basis of comparison," said Marilyn Stephenson, part of the team working on label regulations for the FDA's Office of Nutrition and Food Science.

The FDA decided to standardize serving sizes for 150 categories of foods. Today, however, "there is no common accepted standard," said Jeff Nedelman, vice president of the Grocery Manufacturers of America, a Washington-based industry group. "It's left to the company to determine what a serving size of their products are."

The National Food Processors Association, another industry group, wants industry to continue to set serving sizes.

The FDA could step in when a company is "using inappropriate serving sizes," said Allen Matthys, director of technical regulatory affairs for the association.

What he doesn't want, Matthys said, is "change for the sake of change."

For example, he said, with most canned fruits and vegetables based on half-cup servings, the FDA originally proposed new sizes that were not much different.

The agency now is working on a second round of proposals, based on comments at public hearings and from Congress, which passed the Nutrition Labeling and

Health concerns, convenience influence what we eat

By Diane Duston
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Households with children spend more food money on milk and sweets than anyone else.

The elderly buy more fruits and vegetables. And higher income families spend more on fish, cheese and butter.

But it's health concerns and convenience that have the most influence over what the modern American eats, says an Agriculture Department economist.

The dominance of health awareness on food choices reached a high level in the 1980s and is still rising, says Alden Manchester in a report based on a forthcoming study called "Rearranging the Economic Landscape: The Food Marketing Revolution, 1950-90."

More than ever, foods are being viewed as good and bad, depending on popular perceptions of health consequences, he said.

Concern about the ill effects of cholesterol, fat and caffeine, and knowledge about the need for fiber are major considerations when people plan their meals nowadays.

As a result, the collective American thumb has tipped up for poultry, cheese, fresh fruits and vegetables, fruit juices and cereal products. It has turned down on beef and pork, bakery products, sugar and sweets and coffee and tea, according to Manchester's research.

Convenience starts to become more significant, Manchester says, when the adults in the family work outside the home.

He says the proportion of families with more than one wage earner began to increase sharply after World War II from 39 percent in 1950 to 59 percent in 1988. Average household income also increased, jumping 126 percent in those 38 years because of rising real income per wage earner and declining family and household size.

These factors have led to more money and less time spent on food, Microwave ovens are 70 percent of American homes, undoubtedly contributing to the finding that in families with adults who work outside the home, meals are fixed in 20 minutes today instead of the average 30 minutes of a few years ago.

People also are eating out more, spending 46 percent of their food dollars on restaurant food in 1990 compared to 25 percent in 1954. Fast food places saw the most growth, Manchester says.

He says the kinds of food people buy in the grocery store differs somewhat among races and geographic regions. But confirmed that kids tend to higher milk and sweets consumption; old-age to fruits and vegetables and increased income to more fish, cheese and eggs.

Keeping up with what consumers want to eat and how they want to buy it has led to major changes in the food industry over the last 40 years, Manchester says.

In 1950, people were shopping mostly at small to medium-sized grocery stores. But the push toward diversity and convenience led to dominance in the 1970s by the larger supermarkets with their wider range of items.

Sometimes cause for death is cause for public concern

DEAR ABBY: How tragically ironic that your column advocating concealing the cause of death to spare the feelings of the survivors appeared in the same issue of the Los Angeles Times as the obituary of the famous actor, James Franciscus, dead of emphysema at 57.

Dear Abby
Abigail VanBuren

I am happy to report that Burt Folkart's fine obituary plainly stated that Franciscus was a heavy smoker! I tend to agree with your position — with one glaring exception: When a prominent person dies of lung cancer, emphysema, pneumonia, or any other smoking-related disease — (Ed Murrow, Steve McQueen, Yul Brynner, Nat Cole, Harry James, Lucille Ball, John Wayne, Zeppo Marx, Humphrey Bogart, Bette Davis, Sammy Davis, et al — the list is endless), to suppress the fact that the deceased was a nicotine addict (as they almost always are), is to play into the hands of the cigarette manufacturers.

By the same token, juvenile criminals should always be identified, no matter how young. Perpetrators of adult crimes should be treated like adults, not coddled by the news media.

Incidentally, I am a retired dentist who has always told my smoking patients to worry less about the ugly brown stain on their teeth and more about the possibility of premature tobacco-caused death.

— MARVIN H. LEAF, D.D.S., LOS ANGELES

DEAR DR. LEAF: You said a mouthful.

DEAR ABBY: My fiancé, "Jack," agreed to be the best man at the upcoming wedding of his friend, "Alan." Alan and I are acquainted, and he knows that Jack and I have been engaged for over a year. The problem is that I did not get an invitation to the wedding. Some mutual friends got their invitation a couple of weeks ago, so I know the invitations have already been sent out.

It is my understanding that the members of the wedding party should also be sent invitations as a matter of courtesy — but Alan and his bride-to-be have not done this.

Jack says that they probably just assume that I will also attend, because he will be the best man. Abby, I would feel uncomfortable going to a wedding and reception to which I was not invited.

Also, I'm not sure it was an innocent oversight, because Alan has tried to set Jack up with other women in the past. Knowing full well he is engaged to me. What should I do, if anything?

SNUBBED

DEAR SNUBBED: Tell Jack that you are offended at having been "overlooked" — and you'd feel more welcome if you were to receive an invitation. And since the bride sends the invitations, she should be reminding him to include you.

But whether you receive a formal invitation or not, would it be foolish to sit home while your fiancé is dancing at the wedding?

"How to Be Popular" is an excellent guide to becoming a better conversationalist — and a more attractive person. To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Popularity Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. ABC on right track with Special Olympics

By Rick DuBrow
Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD — TV or not, TV

TV is finally opening its doors to enlightened portrayals of the mentally retarded and disabled.

The recent drama series "Equal Justice" was a notable example. So is "Life Goes On," which stars Chris Burke, who has Down's syndrome.

Thus, the timing of Thursday's two-hour ABC broadcast, "The International Special Olympics All-Star Gala," which is built around the joyous competition of mentally retarded athletes from more than 100 nations, could not be more appropriate.

"This Olympics has been an important part of my life," Burke says in the show, which is not really a sports program at all, but a celebration of the spirit. Yes, there is a star-studded opening ceremony in a colorful, Olympics-style extravaganza before 6,000 fans at the Minneapolis Metrodome last month.

But the show tries to avoid this single dimension by focusing in part on the individual tales of four competitors, including a young Navajo man from Arizona and a boy from Minnesota following them from their homes before the games right through the weeklong Olympics.

Singer Bob Seger, who, like the other participating stars, worked for free, went to Nepal, as did the show, which also taped sequences in Greece, home of the Olympics.

Burke, clearly moved in his appearances, is a past competitor in the Special Olympics, having won a medal for broad jumping.

In the new age of TV, with Larry Drake playing retarded office worker Benny Stulwicz in "L.A. Law" and Marlee Matlin, portraying a hearing-impaired prosecutor in the fall series "Reasonable Doubts," the approach of ABC's Thursday special adds to the healthy trend.

It is decidedly upbeat, feel-good TV, blending the stars, the sports events and the nine-hour documentaries of the athletes, which include some hilarious passages — especially about a "united" softball team of retarded and non-retarded players from Connecticut.

The team seems straight out of "The Bad News Bears." After they get slaughtered in their first game, B-4, the coach observes: "I wouldn't count us out." After they lose again, he notes: "This game was probably the worst we played." One of the retarded players has the solution: "Base hits, base hits."

Viewers who enjoy the spectacle of an Olympics will see the usual rituals — the running of the torch, the opening parade of the more than 6,000 athletes and the accompanying entertainment. And there are, a few eye-openers, including the 168-year-old man who is the oldest Special Olympian.

Registration begins soon for ISU classes in Twin Falls

TWIN FALLS — Registration for Idaho State University classes in Twin Falls this fall will be held from noon to 7 p.m. Thursday at the ISU Resident Center, 140 Second St. E. Appointments for student admission may be made by calling 734-4478 or 733-9554, extension 177.

The following classes will be offered:

- College of Education: Advanced Educational Psychology, Health Behavior Change Strategies and Language Arts on Wednesdays; and Classroom Instruction For Elementary Teachers on Thursdays.
- Foundations of Occupational Education will be offered on Thursdays in Burley.
- Developmental Reading will be delivered through telecommunications from 7 to 10 p.m. Mondays at the College of Southern Idaho telecommunications building. This class will also be relayed to the Mini-Cassia Center in Burley.
- Dr. Bob Petrosson will instruct the class from the ISU Distance Learning Center in Pocatello.
- College of Business: Management Information Systems on Mondays and Tuesdays; and Archaeology of the City of Rocks and Business and Professional Speaking on Tuesdays; Probability and Statistics on Tuesdays and Thursdays; The Presidency on Wednesdays; and Archaeology of the New World on Thursdays.
- Adolescent Dual Diagnosis will be offered Sept. 17 and 18.

Social Work Research will be broadcast to the CSI telecommunications building from 7 to 10 p.m. Wednesdays. The instructor is Dr. Don Pierson.

Health-Related Professions: Socialization into Professional Nursing and Drug Therapy will be delivered through telecommunications from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesdays at the CSI telecommunications building. Both classes are for students pursuing a bachelor's degree in nursing.

Six graduate-level nursing classes will be held at times to be arranged.

On public television, two courses from ISU will be broadcast on Saturdays: Reading Children from 10 to 11 a.m. with instructors Robert and Dale Pehrsson, and Principles of Dental Hygiene from 8 to 9 a.m. taught by Kathleen Morr.

Filer, Murtaugh schools plan registration for this week

Filer and Murtaugh school districts will hold registration this week.

Filer School District has scheduled registration for 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3 p.m. Thursday and Friday.

Kindergarten through fifth-grade students should register at the Filer Elementary School. Parents need to bring the child's birth certificate, proof of immunizations and Social Security card. Idaho law states that students must be 5 on or before Aug. 18 in order to attend school this year.

Kindergarten through sixth-grade students in Hollister will register at the Hollister Elementary School.

Filer sixth-, seventh- and eighth-graders and Hollister seventh- and eighth-graders will register at the Filer Middle School. Middle school fees are $10 for an annual card (includes admission to all athletic events at both the high school and middle school) and $6.50 for the yearbook. Athletic fees are $15 for the first sport, $10 for the second sport and $5 for the third. Insurance is also available.

At Filer High School, seniors register from 9 a.m. to noon and juniors from 1 to 3 p.m. Thursday. Sophomores will register from 9 a.m. to noon and freshmen from 1 to 3 p.m. Friday. High school fees are $20 for the activity card, $25 for the yearbook and $1 locker rental. Athletic fees are $20 for the first sport and $5 each for second and third sports. Lunch fee is $1.10 daily for all grades.

Murtaugh School District registration is set for Friday. Seniors will register at 8 a.m. and meet at 8:30 a.m. to order graduation announcements, juniors register at 9 a.m., sophomores at 10 a.m. and freshmen at 11 a.m., all at the high school.

register from 1 to 3 p.m. at the middle school.

New kindergarten through fifth-grade students will register from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the elementary school. Returning elementary students do not need to register until the first day of school (Monday).

Fees for middle and high school students are: $25 student body fee, $10 for Future Farmers of America and $8 for Future Homemakers of America. Elementary students may pay an optional fee of $10 for an activity card. Fees may be paid at registration or before the start of school.

Lunch fees are 90 cents daily for kindergarten through third grade and $1 daily for fourth through 12th grades. A photographer will be on campus all day to take identification photos and school pictures.

Astrological Forecasts

IF AUGUST 14 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You are dynamic, creative, restless, romantic, members of opposite sex find you "delectating." You have writer's signature, are capable of articulating facts, figures, feelings in informal, entertaining manner. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons play important roles. Major domestic adjustment takes place before year is finished.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Crunch time where close relationships, including marriage, command attention. Temporary separation on current scene could provide answer. Focus on individuality, temperament, legal considerations.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Emphasis on achievement, accomplishment, responsibility, intense relationship. Feeling is awkward; you are doing someone else's work. Issue ultimatum. Get organized. You'll be vindicated.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Lunar aspect "highlight" completion, added recognition, journey in connection with romance. Emphasis on style, creativity, strong physical attraction. Aries, Libra persons.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): New deal indicated in connection with property, home, rules, regulations. Stress originality, innovation, fresh approach. Indications are premature for buying or selling. Profitable deal developing.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Intuitive intellect provides accurate answers, family involved. Sense of direction restores unorthodox procedure necessary. Dinner tonight blends reunion with romance. You'll enjoy the food, too!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Diversity,

Rolling smokes

Q: How old was the inventor of the cigarette-rolling machine?
A: Twenty. Credit James A. Bonsack. He came up with it in Roonoke County, Va., 1880. Please add: Samuel Colt was 21 when he invented the repeating pistol. Richard Gatling was 44 when he devised the Gatling gun. Alfred Nobel was 34 when he perfected dynamite.

Q: What street in San Diego is called Haightway?
A: Many think you need a lot of money to be a writer. Not so. You can write an entire light little 45,000-word book with just one ordinary lead pencil. One pencil doesn't cost much. Cost of erasers is unreasoned here.

The really fine cooks, it's said, can never explain what they do that makes their dishes better.

WIDOWS, WIDOWERS
Most women talk personally to close friends and relatives. Most men reveal their feelings only to their wives. So reports a student of matters matrimonial, who says it explains why widowers have a tougher time than widows.

Pablo Picasso said, "I'm just a public entertainer who has understood his time."

Notes a client: "Nancy Reagan was the only First Lady who'd been an actress. The onetime actress Priscilla Cooper Tyler, wife of President John Tyler's son, Robert, served only as a substitute First Lady during the paralytic illness of the president's wife, Letitia Tyler."

Claim is the only predator that will eat a lightning bug is a frog, but that one's hard to prove.

HOODLUM
—in Germany's Bavarian dialect is an old word "hoodlum" which means "ragged beggar." Some linguists insist that she's the real origin of our word "hoodlum."

Q: Is there a wall around "Paradise"?
A: The world would suggest. Comes from the Persian "paridaza" meaning "walled-in garden."

Right up to 1972 it was still illegal in New Jersey for a woman to be a common scold. "A maud" was never a character.

Three out of five college students are near-sighted.

Food

Treat guests to a non-filling dip

If you've ever hosted a dinner party, you know that unless your guests have superhuman willpower, they will partake of the raw vegetables and accompanying dip until dinner is served. It's certainly not something you would discourage — every host wants guests to enjoy the hors d'oeuvres.

A problem arises, however, when the strangely flavored dips usually served paralyze guests' taste buds — just in time for dinner. To help solve this dilemma, The Knox Test Kitchens have developed a recipe for Zucchini & Onion Dip, a light, "clean-tasting" dip that doesn't leave a strong aftertaste.

Zucchini & Onion Dip
2 tablespoons margarine
2 medium zucchini, sliced
1 medium onion, sliced
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water

1 cup skim milk, heated to boiling
¼ cup lite sour cream
1/3 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 tablespoon snipped fresh dill*
dash red pepper
Suggested Dippers

In medium skillet, melt margarine over medium heat, stirring occasionally. 7 minutes or until very tender; set aside. In blender, sprinkle unflavored gelatin over cold water; let stand 2 minutes. Add hot milk and process at low speed until gelatin is completely dissolved, about 2 minutes. Add sour cream, cheese, dill, salt and pepper, then zucchini mixture. Process at high speed until smooth, about 1 minute. Pour into bowl. Chill until set, about 3 hours. To serve, whisk until smooth.

Makes 3½ cups dip.
Substitution: Use 1 teaspoon dried dill weed.

Delicious chocolate-cherry brownies with almonds

Cherry Vanilla Brownies
½ cup chopped maraschino cherries, well drained
1/3 cup butter, softened
¼ cup sugar
2 eggs

2 tablespoons light corn syrup
2 tablespoons Kirsch liqueur
2/3 cup all-purpose flour
1/3 cup unsweetened cocoa
¼ teaspoon baking powder
1/3 cup chopped slivered almonds
¼ cup vanilla-milk-flavored chips
Vanilla drizzle

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Line a 9-inch square baking pan with foil. Grease and flour. Blot cherries between layers of paper towels.

In small mixer bowl, beat butter, sugar, eggs, corn syrup and Kirsch until blended.

Add flour, cocoa and baking powder; blend until combined. Stir in chopped cherries, almonds and vanilla chips. Pour into prepared pan; bake 25 to 30 minutes or until brownies begin to pull away from sides of pan. Cool completely. Cut into 16 squares.

¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons white wine vinegar
1 cup (8 ounces) sour cream
1 tablespoon orange zest

In a medium bowl, combine all ingredients. Refrigerate ½ hour to blend flavors. Serve with an arranged platter of your favorite seasonal fruits. As an accompaniment, toasted sugar-glazed pecans make a crunchy contrast in the fruit salad.

Makes 1½ cups dressing.

Brunch

2 tablespoons finely-chopped crystallized ginger
2 tablespoons Dijon mustard
2 tablespoons Pimm's
1 tablespoon orange zest
1. Preheat oven to 300 degrees.
2. Put ham fat side up in roasting pan just big enough to hold it. Bake 3 hours.
3. Meanwhile in a small bowl combine remaining ingredients for making glaze.

4. Remove ham from oven and peel off outer layer of fat. Score top of ham with a sharp knife at 1-inch intervals in a diamond pattern.
5. Brush ham with glaze. Return to oven and baste frequently baking an additional 1½ hours.
6. Remove ham from oven and cool 30 minutes before slicing.

FRESH FRUIT DRESSING

3 tablespoons granulated sugar

Education Act last November. Draft regulations are due this November.

While some labels clearly state nutritional content based on amounts that are easy to count, such as a specific number of cookies, others make the job more difficult.

A 12-ounce can of many diet sodas contains two servings. Many sugared sodas have no nutrition label at all.

Cheerios' serving size is 1½ cups, while for some bran cereals it's a quarter cup; others are somewhere in between. Many food labels list serving sizes by ounces, although it's unlikely most cooks weigh their food.

A 6½-ounce can of Star Kist solid white tuna packed in spring water contains 3.1 servings. Kraft Swiss cheese slices lists a serving size of one or two thin number of slices. And one juice box of Ocean Spray pink grapefruit juice cocktail contains 1.4 servings, according to the label.

Del Monte, on its 15-ounce box of raisins, lists a three-ounce serving size, while Sun Maid golden raisins are listed in half-cup servings.

Congress has directed the FDA to come up with serving sizes in common household measurements — cups, slices, tablespoons, even ounces — but still leaves open the question of just how much food that serving should contain. Ten potato chips? A cup of cereal?

"It is important because the serving size drives the rest of the nutritional profile," Nedelman said. "This is a very competitive business, and we want a level playing field so all foods are treated the same."

"When we first had nutritional labeling, what was emphasized was vitamins and mineral content, so you'd see large-serving sizes," which could lead people to believe the product contained a lot of those vitamins and minerals, Stephenson said. Since then, some serving sizes are smaller, making a product appear to have less of something that wasn't as desirable, or qualifying it for such descriptions as low sodium, she said.

Consumers, not surprisingly, complained.

The FDA is responsible for most foods, except meat and poultry; those are covered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Separate, voluntary labeling is expected for those foods.

spkin lined basket.

It's that time of year when the Hedgehog mushrooms are found in certain spots in our area. Unless you are an absolute expert in picking wild mushrooms, use those from the supermarket in this next recipe. Any commercial ones will do, but the Hedgehogs give a special woodsy flavor.

MUSHROOM, LEEK AND CHEDDAR QUICHE
1 9-inch pie pastry (the ones sold in the dairy section of the supermarket are more than adequate)
¼ cup grated SHARP cheddar cheese
½ pound mushrooms, stems trimmed and coarsely chopped
4 small leeks, washed well and trimmed to white part and about ½-inch of green part (slice lengthwise for this recipe into matchstick size pieces)

3 tablespoons butter (preferably unsalted)
1½ tablespoons finely chopped pickled jalapeno pepper
1½ tablespoons chopped pimento or roasted red pepper one pinch of each cayenne pepper and nutmeg
3 whole large eggs
1/3 cup milk (whole is best)
1/3 cup sour cream
salt to taste

Line pie pan with pastry and crimp the edges. Sprinkle bottom with half of the cheese. Melt the butter in a skillet and saute the leeks over medium heat just until tender and then add the mushrooms and cook, stirring until all the liquid has evaporated.

Now add the chopped peppers and seasonings, stir and remove from heat and allow to cool until barely warm.

In a bowl combine the eggs, milk, sour cream and salt and whisk well together. Spread the vegetables evenly over the cheese in the pie pan, sprinkle remaining cheese over the top and pour the mixed milk products carefully over the top.

Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven for 25 minutes. Test for doneness by inserting any cake tester in center until it comes out clean.

This is just as great cold as hot so goes to a picnic as well as a barbecue. Enjoy the summer, it's getting shorter!

High-energy, light-weight food for hiking

By Louise Tenment Smith
Knight-Ridder News Service

Long-distance hikers, long-distance bike riders, fishermen and those on a picnic with the children have one thing in common — they are all enjoying being outdoors. But the degree of pain — and satisfaction — varies, as do the kinds and amounts of food needed by each group. Those on a picnic, for instance, can prepare foods at home and lug them along in an ice chest.

But long-distance hikers have a hard time consuming enough calories. Long-distance bikers such as those on the annual Tour de France race must also monitor their food carefully. They eat a light breakfast and very little until dinner time. These high-energy cookies are ideal snacks for the backpack, the camper, the fishing boat or the picnic basket.

OATMEAL-RAISIN BACKPACK SNACKS
1 cup sweet butter OR margarine, softened
¼ cup light brown sugar, firmly packed
¼ cup granulated sugar
1 large egg
1½ cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
1½ cups old fashioned rolled oats, uncooked, NOT quick cooking or instant
1½ cups dark raisins
2 cups coarsely chopped walnuts
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
Heat oven to 350 degrees, butter 2 cookie sheets.

In a large bowl, beat butter with electric mixer on high speed until creamy. Add the brown sugar plus the granulated sugar, then the egg, beating until light yellow and creamy.

In small bowl, stir together flour, soda, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg; stir into butter mixture. Stir in oats, raisins, walnuts and vanilla. Roll balls, then in additional granulated sugar, if desired. Place on cookie sheets, flattening cookies slightly. Bake 10 minutes or until lightly browned. Let stand 2 minutes on cookie sheet; remove to wire rack to cool. Store in lightly sealed container. Makes about 9 dozen 2-inch cookies.

FRUIT LEATHER
2 cups fruit
2 teaspoons lemon juice
½ cup corn syrup or honey
Select ripe or slightly overripe fruit. Wash in cool water, remove peel, seeds and stem. Cut fruit into chunks. Puree fruit until smooth.
Add lemon juice and sweetener.
Line a 13-by-15-inch cookie pan with edges with plastic wrap, being sure to smooth out wrinkles: Do not use waxed paper or aluminum foil. Pour puree into center. Spread puree evenly, about ¼-inch thick. Avoid pouring puree too close to the edge of the cookie sheet. Approximate drying times are: 6 to 8 hours in a dehydrator, up to 18 hours in a 140 degree oven and 1 to 2 days in the sun. Test for dryness by touching center of leather; no indentation should be evident. While warm, peel from plastic and roll, allow to cool and rewrap the roll in plastic. Fruit leather will keep up to 1 month at room temperature. Makes 1 13-by-15-inch leather.

A banana bread developed in Seattle that is low in calories, fat

The Seattle Times

The following light eating recipe was developed by CeCe Sullivan, home economist on the staff of The Seattle Times.

LIGHTER BANANA BREAD
(14 servings; approximate preparation time 20 minutes)
3 ripe bananas
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ cup flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg

1½ teaspoon ground cloves
1 egg
2 egg whites
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup vegetable oil
2 tablespoons buttermilk
1. Spray a 9-by-5-inch loaf pan with vegetable cooking spray. Line the bottom of the pan with wax paper and spray lightly again. Puree the bananas with the lemon juice. Sift together the flour, baking powder, soda, salt, nutmeg and cloves.
2. With an electric mixer beat together the egg, egg whites, sugar, oil and buttermilk on medium speed. Beat in the bananas. Slowly add the flour mixture, beating just until blended.

3. Transfer the batter to the prepared pan and bake in a preheated 350-degree oven 1 hour. Test for doneness. Let cool in the pan 5 minutes before unloading. Cool on a rack before cutting.

Food processing also became bigger business, with larger firms making the largest share of the food we eat.

Mergers, acquisitions, leveraged buyouts and divestitures have led to internationalization of the business.

"Many large U.S. food companies are manufacturing and selling abroad; several sell more in foreign countries than in the United States," said Manchester. "Similarly, European, Canadian and most recently Australian companies have acquired U.S. food firms."

Changing demands also has led to changes in the way certain products are packaged.

For example, the popularity of hamburger restaurants and demand for convenience means that parts of the cow that used to be cut into roasts, too time consuming to cook on workdays, are being ground into hamburger meat.

Chickens and turkeys were sold as whole birds for many years, but since the early 1960s more and more were cut up before sale.

More than half of all poultry is now sold in pieces.

Processed products that barely existed before World War II are now taken for granted as standard fare: like frozen concentrated fruit juice, fresh juices, frozen prepared foods, frozen baked goods, frozen fruits and vegetables, dehydrated vegetables as soups, refrigerated soups, corn sweeteners, processed egg products, foods in vacuum packaging that keeps it stable when stored unrefrigerated.

As for the future, Manchester says the population will continue to age, incomes will probably continue to rise and restaurant eating will likely become even more important.

If the food choices of the population groups remain unchanged, fish, cheese, fresh fruit and vegetables will likely rise in demand and eggs and milk will continue to decline, he says.

Home/garden

Now is the time to apply fertilizer to stimulate healthy lawn

Shorter days and cooler night temperatures stimulate grass growth in late August and September. Now is an excellent time to apply fertilizer to make lawns thicker and greener. It is also an ideal time to plant new lawns.

Allen Wilson Gardening

Fertilizer. It is reduced if limited fertilizer is available.

Grass requires more nitrogen than any other fertilizer nutrient. It is the most likely to be in short supply. Phosphorus and potassium are also needed for root and stem growth. Sulfur and iron are additional nutrients which are helpful in our alkaline soils. Sulfur reduces alkalinity and iron stimulates dark green color.

Typical lawn fertilizers contain 15 to 20 percent nitrogen. Lawns need only about 1/3 as much phosphorus as nitrogen.

They need about half to 2/3 as much potassium as nitrogen. Smaller quantities of sulfur and iron are needed. Even one percent or less of iron can have a big effect. Fertilizer labels are required by law to list the percentage of each nutrient.

Nutrients can be supplied from organic sources or chemical ones. Although there are advantages and disadvantages to each source, all nutrients are reduced to the same soluble compounds before plant roots can absorb them.

Chemical fertilizers are more quickly available. Organic ones are longer lasting. Chemical sources are often coated to make them longer lasting. Both organic and coated fertilizers are more expensive. Slow release characteristics are more important in the spring when there is a long growing season ahead. Organic sources contain other micronutrients in small quantities which can be helpful for grass growth.

Fertilizer can burn grass if applied at too heavy a rate during hot weather. Do not apply more than the recommended rate. Fertilizer is best applied in the morning or on a cool day.

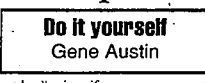

Sprinkling right after fertilizer application helps reduce the risk of burning.

Lawn care and landscape maintenance companies can also apply fertilizer for you.

Resurfacing can improve concrete patio

Q. We have a concrete patio covered with indoor-outdoor carpeting that looks horrid. Is it possible to cover the patio with flagstones? How do we remove the carpet? — W.R.

Do it yourself Gene Austin

A. Concrete slabs can be resurfaced with flagstones, bricks, quarry tiles or several other materials, including wood.

It should not be too difficult to remove the carpet, as gentleness is not necessary. Scraping is the best bet, and a sharpened ice scraper or flat shape is a good tool. It doesn't matter if the surface of the concrete is roughed up or scratched by the scraping; if fact, this will help improve adhesion of the new surface. If a large surface is involved and hand scraping proves difficult, you can rent a power scraper, which some tool-rental agencies have. Scrape until all traces of the carpet and adhesive, if any, are removed, leaving the surface with a strong detergent solution and rinse.

A new surface of flagstones can be laid in a bed of mortar about one inch thick. Flagstones are not the easiest resurfacing material because of their irregular shapes, and it is wise to lay all the stones dry at first to work out a pattern.

A row of bricks is sometimes used around the perimeter to make a neat edge. Some cutting of stones, using a masonry blade in a portable circular saw, probably will be necessary. Be sure and wear goggles and cut to a depth of about one-quarter inch with each pass. Once you determine the pattern, begin resurfacing by working a small area at a time. Spread mortar as evenly as possible with a large trowel and seat the stones by tapping them with the handle of the trowel.

The patio should slope slightly away from the house for drainage, so adjust the thickness of the mortar, if necessary, as work progresses. Check frequently with a level and/or straight edge to make sure the surface is flat and slopes correctly.

After the mortar cures, fill joints between flagstones with more mortar, using a small trowel. Wipe up any mortar stains immediately with a wet cloth.

Readers' questions and comments are welcome and should be sent to Gene Austin, The Philadelphia Inquirer, Box 3263, Philadelphia, PA 19101. Questions cannot be answered personally.

Decorating books can fire imagination

By Jo Weme Knight-Ridder News Service

During the summer doldrums, few of us can think of home decorating projects. But we can curl up in a favorite armchair and read about them.

Several new books offer ideas for projects to do when the weather cools off. Among the most useful are the "Living Style" series from Sterling Publishing Co. Inexpensive ($7.95 each) and practical, these paperback books are illustrated with color—photographs and black-and-white "how-to" illustrations.

"Curtains and Blinds" by Eileen Kitter shows how to make all sorts of window treatments, from simple unlined curtains to Roman blinds. The complexities of curtain sewing are unraveled in step-by-step directions. The book includes tips on making different types of headings, such as rails, poles and tapes, and a variety of embellishments, such as pelmets, tie-backs and swags.

"Cushions and Covers" by Sue Locke covers everything from the simplest pillows to slip covers. Projects for bedrooms, children's rooms, living and dining rooms are included. Some projects are so simple—such as table cloths—that even those who don't sew often can tackle them.

"Quilting" by Caroline Green shows how to make quilted cushions, wall-hangings, bed-covers—even quilted evening jackets. Twelve types of quilts, including flat, trapunto, Italian and corded, are described and illustrated with fabric recommendations, tools and materials lists.

"Table Decorations" by Audrey Ellis offers tips for setting a table for every occasion—even every day. From choosing china-and-furniture to folding napkins, selecting place settings and making lemon and orange twists, the author thoroughly covers the subject in 80 pages. There's also a section with illustrations showing how to carve meat and poultry.

"Wrap It Up" by Arona Khan will help people with 10 thumbs learn to wrap presents they'll be proud to give. The author suggests a variety of wrapping materials—even foil and newspapers—in addition to regular gift wrap. There are ideas for using ribbons, bows, curl clusters and sequins, and directions for turning boxes into beautiful containers.

Here are books that collectors and fans of Art Deco, quilts and decorative boxes will enjoy:

"Popular Art Deco: Depression Era Style and Design" by Robert Heide and John Gilman (Abbeville Press, $35) is a history of this poplar-style. Objects such as Bakelite radios, Fiesta ware and other futuristic-looking yet inexpensive items first came into vogue during the Great Depression when people longed to embrace the "world of tomorrow."

The book discusses the famous designers—Donald Deskey, Paul Frankl, Norman Bel-Geddes, Raymond Loewy, Walter von Nessen, Gilbert Rohde and Russel Wright—who began in the 1930s to streamline everyday items marketed on a mass scale.

"Sunshine and Shadow: The Amish and Their Quilts" by Phyllis Haders (Sterling/Main Street, $9.95 paperback) celebrates the exquisite design and color of Amish quilts.

The book features color photographs of stars, baskets, bow ties, double nine-patch and honeycombs worked into the quilts. The author also gives a brief look into the Amish life style and traditions that enhance the 16 quilts featured. Interspersed with each color plate are Amish hymns, Bible verses and photos that provide a close look at the intricacies of the pattern.

Pasta. Made the way the West likes it.

The West. It's uniquely American. Just like durum wheat. It's a premium-quality wheat that can only be grown under the most special conditions—like we have here in the West. For making pasta, there's no better wheat.

It's the only type of wheat used in Creamette® pasta. And it's what gives Creamette® pasta its special taste and texture. It's the type of taste and texture the West loves. So try your favorite recipe—or one of these—tonight. And bring the delicious taste of the American West home to your kitchen.

Great West Pasta Salad

- 1/2 of a (1-pound) package Creamette Rotini, uncooked
- 3 cups small fresh broccoli flowers, blanched
- 2 cups diced cooked chicken
- 6 ounces fresh snow peas, trimmed and blanched or (6-ounce) package frozen snow peas, thawed and drained
- 1 small red bell pepper, cut into thin strips
- 1/2 cup sliced green onions
- 2 tablespoons peanut oil

Prepare Creamette Rotini according to package directions. Drain. In large bowl, combine rotini, broccoli, chicken, snow peas, red pepper and green onions; mix well. In small bowl, blend oil, vinegar, hot pepper sauce, honey, salt, ginger and garlic powder. Add to salad mixture; toss to coat. Cover; chill thoroughly. Toss gently before serving. Refrigerate leftovers. 4 to 8 servings.

Salt Lake Super Salad

- 1/2 of a (1-pound) package Creamettes Elbow Macaroni (2 cups uncooked)
- 1 (6 1/2-ounce) can tuna, drained and flaked
- 2 medium tomatoes, chopped
- 1 medium cucumber, peeled, seeded and chopped

- 1 (8-ounce) package fresh mushrooms, sliced
- 1/2 cup dried Cheddar cheese
- 1/2 cup diced Swiss cheese
- 1/2 cup sliced pimiento stuffed green olives
- 1/4 cup sliced green onions
- 1/2 cup olive oil
- 1/4 cup white vinegar
- 1 teaspoon seasoned salt
- 1/2 teaspoon dill weed
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder

Prepare Creamettes Elbow Macaroni according to package directions; drain. In large bowl, combine elbow macaroni and next 8 ingredients. In small bowl, blend together oil, vinegar, seasoned salt, oil, pepper and garlic powder. Add to salad mixture; toss to coat. Cover; chill thoroughly. Toss gently before serving. Refrigerate leftovers. 6 to 8 servings.

Death at the wall

Sister recalls family's 'darling' on Iron Curtain's anniversary

The Associated Press

BERLIN — She tried to cross the barrier he helped build, Peter Fechter lay by the Berlin Wall and died for his people on the West. German side pleaded with East Germans to save him, but Fechter bled for nearly an hour before being dragged away lifeless.

"He was the only son, the darling of the family," his sister Gisela Geue sadly remembered Tuesday, the 30th anniversary of the building of the Iron Curtain's most notorious section.

Mrs. Geue publicly recalled her brother's death for the first time, speaking with a few reporters after a ceremony marking the wall's construction. Interior Minister Wolfgang Schauble and Berlin Mayor Eberhard Diepgen invoked Fechter's memory in front of a simple cross, smothered in wreaths, near where he was shot.

The family was hounded by East German secret police — the hated Stasi — until the wall finally fell in 1989.

"They didn't even stop at the cemetery. There sat the Stasi, and took the flowers away," Gisela Geue said.

Fechter was only 18 when he was killed on Aug. 17, 1962, and he remains the most famous of the roughly 200 people who risked their lives to flee East Germany, including about 80 in Berlin.

The widely reported shooting stunned the West with its brutality and left a sense of helplessness about the police state only a few years away.

Fechter's family still feels a bitterness echoed by many former East Germans who suffered under the stern political repression of a Stalinist regime.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl's Cabinet was to act Wednesday on a bill to compensate political prisoners in former East Germany, including people who tried to flee. The bill would offer $260 for each month spent in prison. About 180,000 people would be eligible to receive a total of $872 million. Measures to compensate relatives of victims — such as Fechter's family — are envisioned, but no details have emerged.

Mrs. Geue talked to reporters about a block from where Checkpoint Charlie stood as one of the main Allied crossing points to East Berlin. The path of the wall is now a paved street, Zimmer Street, as it used to be.

With tears in her eyes, Mrs. Geue said, "Now anyone can go through, and of brother, our Peter, he was shot only because he wanted to go from Germany to Germany, and then these inhuman people did not help him."

Mrs. Geue (pronounced GOI-ah) said her parents were dragged out of their apartment on that day in 1962 to identify their son, who had been working to complete the wall. Agents of the Ministry of State Security, known as Stasi in German, searched the apartment for evidence of young Peter's "political crimes," but found nothing, she said.

"After that, for the whole week up to the burial—we were practically besieged and watched," she said. She said the family was watched "practically until November 1989" when the wall fell under the weight of a popular revolution in East Germany.

Her parents never received better jobs, and became "intolerable mental cases," Mrs. Geue said.

Her father could not bear the loss of his son and died in 1968. Her mother died last February. "She did not really understand the opening of the wall," Mrs. Geue said.

Mrs. Geue said she went six years without work, and she and her husband never received the usual vacation trips through their unions.

Israel seeks information, hostage swap

Los Angeles Times

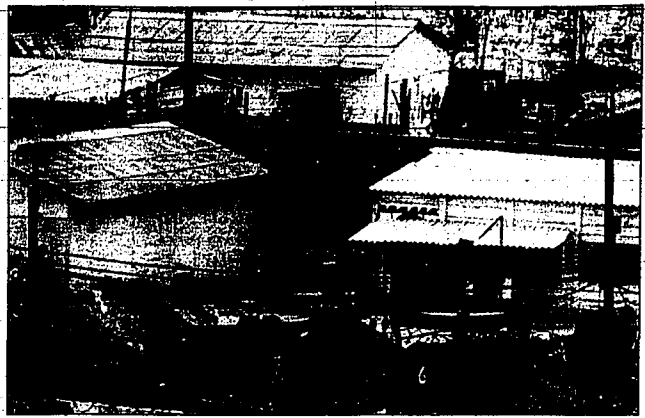

JERUSALEM — Israel plans to propose a phased exchange of information, and eventually prisoners, in an effort to break a logjam in the release of hostages held in the Middle East, Israeli officials said Tuesday.

A pair of negotiators are scheduled to meet in Geneva, Switzerland, Wednesday with U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to make the offer.

The plan involves four steps: Israel would obtain details from hostage-holders on the condition of seven Israeli servicemen who are missing in Lebanon; Israel would agree in principle to release about 400 Lebanese detainees imprisoned in an Israeli-controlled jail in Lebanon as well as a Muslim cleric held hostage in Israel; the Israelis and Westerners held captive in Lebanon would be released, and Israel would then free its own prisoners.

One official said Israel would consider making a token release of captives simply in return for information. The outline gives shape to Israel's main preoccupation — that any hostage deal also include Israeli captives, or, if they are dead, their remains. If not, officials have warned, Israel will take no step to free prisoners of its own, despite international pressure to do so as a gesture of goodwill. British and American officials have suggested that a release by Israel would maintain momentum in the efforts to free hostages.

"We are really not saying anything new. We want information on our boys first. As soon as there is a sign of life, we can move forward," said Dani Naveh, a spokesman for Defense Minister Moshe Arens.

Officials believe that any prisoner exchange with Israel would involve some Palestinian and Lebanese prisoners being held at Atilat, an Israeli prison south of the port city of Haifa.

"There is no doubt that Israel is ready to make gestures for the whole issue of freeing hostages and prisoner exchanges," added another Israeli official. "But first and foremost we have to take care of our own people."

Of the seven missing Israelis, officials here believe that one is alive; the others are presumed dead, despite conflicting reports. Ten Westerners remain the hostages of various Shiite Muslim terrorist groups in Lebanon. The Israeli negotiators, Uri Lubrani and Uri Slonim, are bringing to Geneva a list of captives Israel is willing to set free; it will include Lebanese and Palestinians captured in Lebanon; not Palestinian rebels from the occupied West Bank or Gaza Strip, officials said.

Perez de Cuellar called the issue of the missing Israelis "one of the main problems, one of the main concerns."

"If I could solve this problem," he added, "almost everything would be solved. That is why I attach great importance to the whereabouts of the seven Israelis who are missing." Israeli officials began to speak in hopeful terms about the chances for progress.

"They pointed out that the willingness of Lebanese groups to use the offices of Perez de Cuellar meant they were serious about reaching a deal. In addition, public statements by officials in Syria and Iran over the need to bring the hostage swap to an end has heartened the Israelis.

Mexico's health minister discusses cholera

The Associated Press

MEXICO CITY — Health Secretary Jesus Kumate briefed congressional officials on the cholera outbreak in Mexico amid criticism from some lawmakers that he had failed to inform the public about the disease's threat.

Health Department spokeswoman Monica Ortiz said Tuesday she did not know why the public and news-media were excluded from Kumate's meeting with key lawmakers in the Chamber of Deputies.

A department news release quoted Kumate as saying cholera in Mexico was under control. He called it a minor problem compared to other gastrointestinal afflictions — faced by Mexicans living in areas that lack clean drinking water.

Kumate said five people have died of cholera since it was first diagnosed in Mexico in May. At least 20,000 people died of other diseases, that cause fatal diarrhea last year, he said, according to the news release.

The cholera outbreak in Mexico is the edge of an epidemic that began in January in Peru.

More than 2,000 people have died in South America and tens of thousands have fallen ill.

Kumate has been criticized by some medical professionals and lawmakers for failing to inform the public about the cholera problem.

"Faced with the gravity of this disease," Health Department officials and everyone in the ruling party are saying that everything is under control. They are minimizing it for political and electoral reasons," opposition Deputy Juan Guerra, of the Democratic Revolutionary Party, told the government newspaper El Nacional after the Kumate briefing.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFE

"Beware! Let you lose the substance by grasping at the shadow."

Today's cruel layout is dedicated to those whose fitness always loses. Since they know their fitness are all offside, they're found to find the winning plan.

On a very good day, South can score 12 tricks after West's heart lead. He ducks in dummy and wins the jack when East doesn't have the king. (Remember, this is on a very good day.) Trumps are drawn, the heart finesse is repeated, and the diamond ace is distributed. South's low club goes out, dummy's diamond jack, and another winning finesse in clubs lands 13 winners.

What happens when the finesses all lose? East wins the heart king and shifts to clubs. South wins his ace, and after drawing trumps, leads his diamond king. The night mare continues, since it's East who has the ace. Another club comes through, and as expected, West has the king and the game falls one short.

How can South virtually ensure the game? He wins the heart ace at trick one, and after drawing trumps, leads a diamond. This far-sighted maneuver prevents the loss of two club tricks (he has time to discard one of dummy's diamond jack) and he scores 10 tricks instead of nine.

BID WITH THE ACES

South holds:

- ♠ 9 8
- ♥ A 8 5 3
- ♦ 10 8
- ♣ A K 9 8 8

ANSWER: Three diamonds. Worth one point because of the outstanding trump support.
