Opposition grows amid killings

The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Hundreds of thousands of people in Moscow, Leningrad and other cities answered Boris Yeltsin's call to resist hard-line Communist leaders Tuesday, amid signs that the new leadership might be crumbling.

Two people were killed early Wednesday after armored columns moved close to Yeltsin's headquarters. Opponents of the coup tripped a military vehicle beneath an underpass, and soldiers inside the vehicle opened fire, witnesses said. There were unconfirmed reports of further deaths.

A day after the coup that removed President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, three of the leaders believed behind the coup reportedly stepped down — two temporarily because of poor health. Ill health is often a reason given to explain high-level shakeups, including Gorbachev's removal Monday.

The reports could not be immediately confirmed, and it was unclear whether the replacements on the eight-member emergency committee were sympathetic or hostile to Gorbachev. The three who stepped down were the KGB chief, the defense minister and prime minister.

Among other related developments: Soviet troops attacked broadcast studios in Estonia and Latvia; and disbanded the Latvian prime minister's guards in the latest move by Moscow's new rulers to crush the Baltic region's independence drives.

The army command, seeking to keep control of Moscow, imposed an 11 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew and warned anti-coup forces to clear barricades protecting the Russian Parliament building, where Yeltsin, president of the Russian Federation, is ensconced.

But tens of thousands of Yeltsin supporters, backed by tanks and soldiers loyal to Yeltsin, defied the curfew and ringed the 19-story parliament building into the early hours Wednesday. They tore up paving stones to reinforce barricades surrounding what has been dubbed the Russian White House.

Their ranks were bolstered by the arrival of former Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze, who resigned in December warning of impending dictatorship.

Early Wednesday, automatic weapons fire was heard near the building and flames streaked through the sky. Demonstrators hurled gasoline bombs at passing armored vehicles, setting one afire outside the Foreign Ministry.

There were sporadic reports of tank movements around the city, but it was unclear if they signaled an attack. After one

The Washington Post

MOSCOW — Russian Republic President Boris Yeltsin told British Prime Minister John Major in a telephone call Tuesday that President Mikhail Gorbachev has been forcibly isolated in the Crimea.

Major told reporters in London that Yeltsin asked that the West demand Gorbachev's immediate release and called for setting up phone lines so Gorbachev could talk to President Bush and Major, as well as an independent medical examination for the Soviet president. Major said he agreed with Yeltsin's requests and Bush said in Washington that he had tried unsuccessfully to call Gorbachev.

Gorbachev

"They have completely isolated President Gorbachev," Major said, quoting Yeltsin. "He did remain in Crimea, not — as rumor had suggested — in Moscow. There were no telephone communications near President Gorbachev, and the runway close to where he was being held had been closed."

Yeltsin also told Major that Gorbachev, who coup leaders said had been replaced because he was ill, "had been examined by a doctor as recently as the 19th of August. He had been found to be in almost completely good health with only a few very minor complaints."

Sergei Stankevich, the deputy minister of defense, an ally of Yeltsin, added details to Yeltsin's version. Talking to Russian legislators and protesters, Stankevich, apparently citing a witness account, described an elaborate operation reportedly carried out Sunday afternoon on the evening hours before the formation by coup leaders of a State Emergency Committee, under the supervision of senior military leaders.

Gorbachev was arrested by hard-line Soviet generals as he attempted to board his official airplane to return to Moscow from a vacation in the Crimea. Stankevich said, according to news agency accounts, Stankevich said that the overthrow of Gorbachev was supervised by the chief of staff of the Soviet air defense forces, Col. Gen. Igor Maltsev, and the head of the chief directorate of the general staff, Col. Gen. Anatoly Denisov.

Nations' leaders line up against takeover

The Associated Press

LONDON — The European Community and Japan on Tuesday joined other nations in suspending Soviet aid, and President Bush said normal relations with Moscow were not possible while "coup plotters" control the Kremlin.

NATO members prepared for an emergency meeting Wednesday after the alliance's chief warned that military cutbacks in Europe could be slowed or halted if the hard-line Soviet regime reneges on troop withdrawal pledges.

British Former Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher suggested a pause in British military spending cuts because of the Soviet coup.

But Defense Secretary Tom King said planned cuts are all long-range, not current. Three members of the former Soviet bloc — Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Poland — hastily called a meeting late Tuesday in Warsaw to coordinate their responses.

Meeting in The Hague, the 12-nation EC suspended $1.2 billion in Soviet aid. Japan also withheld assistance, including a $350 million loan to refinance trade debts. The United States, Britain and Australia previously froze aid packages.

The EC called Mikhail Gorbachev's ouster a "flagrant violation" of international treaties and called for his reinstatement.

Jacques Attali, president of the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development, said he intended to ask the bank's directors to suspend its operations in the Soviet Union.

In Washington, Bush said the coup "puts the Soviet Union at odds with the world community."

Jury finds Odiaga guilty of second-degree murder

By Brad Bowlin

HAILEY — Mitchel John Odiaga will not be back on the streets anytime soon.

For that reason, Blaine County Prosecutor Ned Williamson said he is satisfied with Tuesday's jury verdict convicting Odiaga of two counts of second-degree murder even though it fell short of what Williamson had asked for.

After 13 hours of deliberation, jurors also found Odiaga guilty of one count of attempted first-degree murder and two counts of aggravated assault.

Odiaga was acquitted on a third aggravated assault count. "My bottom line throughout this case has been removing him from the street," said Williamson, who had asked the jury to convict Odiaga of first-degree murder.

By finding Odiaga guilty of the lesser charge, the jury concluded that he did not plan in advance to murder Bruce Tate Schaffer and Gerald "Shenandoah" Wright.

The reduced murder charges mean Odiaga has escaped a possible death penalty.

"I don't see, even if they had found him guilty of first-degree [murder], that this would be an appropriate case for the death penalty," said his attorney, David Nevin of Boise, who represents several Idaho death row inmates.

Families of victims say they're satisfied with verdict

HAILEY — The families of the two men killed in Ketchum by Mitchel John Odiaga more than a year ago say they are satisfied with Tuesday's verdict, a prosecutor said.

The families of Gerald "Shenandoah" Wright and Bruce Tate Schaffer did not attend the reading of the verdicts Tuesday, but Blaine County Prosecutor Ned Williamson called them immediately after Odiaga was convicted of two counts of second-degree murder.

"Their main concern was that [Odiaga] not be put back on the street," Williamson said.

"All I can say is that we were real pleased with the results," Bruce's father, David Schaffer, told The Times-News. He added that he was not worried that Odiaga would receive a light sentence when he goes back to court Oct. 22.

"I'm sure the courts will take care of the rest," Schaffer said. "Things will go just fine."

The man who almost became Odiaga's third victim on June 22, 1989, attended the hearing with his wife and three children.

Jerry Johnson of Ketchum ducked in his car just as Odiaga bore down on him with his rifle that night. He fired once, the bullet passing through the driver's side window, nicking Johnson's thumb and barely missing his head before going through the passenger's side door.

A few minutes before Tuesday's verdict, Johnson said he was glad the ordeal was over.

Wright's closest relative, a sister who lives in Coos Bay, Ore., could not be reached for comment by The Times-News on Tuesday.

Accident, rumor spark violent clash

NEW YORK — Several hundred people clashed with police and looted stores Tuesday night in a neighborhood where a fatal car accident the night before led to violence between blacks and Jews that left one man dead.

Police reported about 25 arrests and 30 injuries since the disturbances began. Two patrol cars were torched.

On Tuesday night, youths hurled bottles and rocks at lines of police in riot gear, and 15 officers were injured, Deputy Police Commissioner Suzanne Trzoff said. Two stores were looted and one was set ablaze, and three police vehicles were damaged, including one set afire, Trzoff said. She estimated that 300 to 400 people were involved in the melee.

"It's been chaotic and difficult," Trzoff said. "Hundreds of police in riot gear were trying to separate blacks and ultra-orthodox Hasidic Jews, BOGOTA, Colombia — At least 27 people died in a series of violent clashes and massacres, according to military sources, witnesses and news reports Tuesday.

An army communiqué said soldiers stormed a private house southwest of Bogota, killing seven leftist rebels — five men and two women — in a gunfight Sunday. But major newspapers quoted townpeople as saying the victims were local workers and housewives who were murdered in their sleep.

Boris Yeltsin takes center stage

Los Angeles Times

Russian Federation President Boris N. Yeltsin Tuesday became one of the few politicians in the world for whom people are willing to die.

As the burly Siberian made his stand against the rightist coup d'etat that had deposed Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, thousands upon thousands of Muscovites flocked to protect him in the riverside headquarters of the Russian Federation, the largest Soviet republic, from an anticipated military assault.

A security guard wields an AK-47 submachine gun as Russian President Boris Yeltsin addresses a crowd in front of the Russian Parliament building Tuesday

"It's going to be dangerous," an organizer of the defense lines called out over a bullhorn. "Volunteers only, volunteers only!"

And before the night was over, at least four of those volunteers were dead at the hands of Soviet troops.

Despite the organizers' warnings, in a dramatic expression of "people power," the crowds grew and grew into the evening hours; and the ordinary residents of the Soviet capital were joined by some of the country's most illustrious democrats — former Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze, and Alexander N. Yakovlev, known as the architect of perestroika reforms — and several senior Gorbachev aides.

Yeltsin, once a top leader of the Soviet Communist Party, now a radical populist dedicated to political and economic reform, had become not only the rallying point for opponents to the Kremlin coup but a symbol of the country's new and fragile democracy.

Elected president of Russia in June, Yeltsin found himself the only leader of national stature able and willing to stand up to the conservatives. Monday when Gorbachev was deposed, Yeltsin was the first republic leader to condemn the coup, defying the self-proclaimed Committee for the State of Emergency with calls for nationwide protests and a general strike while urging their people to remain calm.

A person's mental condition is a "mitigating circumstance" that judges look at when considering a sentence.

Odiaga, a 36-year-old former postal worker from Boise who shot and killed the two men on the streets of Boise on June 22, 1990, showed no emotion as court clerk Katie Riley read the verdict shortly after 1 p.m.

Odiaga's defense attorneys were visibly disappointed, however.

"I really meant what I said during my closing argument," said Nevin. He had asked the jury on Monday to acquit Odiaga of all the charges because Odiaga lacked the criminal intent necessary for a conviction.

Odiaga, who doctors say is mentally ill, was charged with anti-psychotic drugs since shortly after his arrest on June 23, 1990.

He will be returned to the secure mental facility at the Idaho State Penitentiary in Boise to continue treatment and await sentencing, which is scheduled for Oct. 22.

Williamson said he will press for consecutive life prison sentences on the murder counts and the maximum penalty on the other charges. Each of the five counts also carries an additional 15-year prison term, because a deadly weapon was used.

Defense attorneys wouldn't say whether they plan to appeal the case, but Williamson has little doubt Odiaga will have more days in court.

The case has presented "a whole host of legal issues" that could be the basis for an appeal, Williamson said.

The case, which revolved around Odiaga's mental condition, was destined for an Idaho Supreme Court that has in recent rulings upheld the state's nine-year-old law banning the insanity defense.

This is probably the first case that law was passed to include so much testimony about a defendant's mental condition, Williamson said.

In the wake of this case, Williamson said he will urge lawmakers to change archaic language in the law that prevents the pressure and unable to perform his duties.

A second coup leader, Defense Minister Dmitry Yazov, took ill and was temporarily replaced, said Vladimir Lukin, head of the Russian parliament's Foreign Relations Committee. It was not immediately possible to verify the claims.

The independent Interfax news agency, meanwhile, quoted unofficial military sources as saying a third leader, KGB chief Vladimir Kryuchkov, had resigned his post. No reason was given. That report also could not immediately be confirmed.

Another high-level Soviet official was reported ill. A Foreign Ministry official said Foreign Minister Alexander Besmertnykh had taken "sick" after returning from vacation, "but was expected to return to work in a few days."

Women's group opposes Thomas

WASHINGTON (AP) - The National Women's Law Center said Tuesday it opposes Clarence Thomas' nomination to the Supreme Court because his record "shows no commitment to core constitutional or statutory protections for women."

Marcia Greenberger, co-president of the women's rights advocacy group, told reporters, "As far as we're concerned, Judge Thomas is not the best person or even the best man for the job."

The center's 77-page report on Thomas criticizes his views on, among other things, the right to privacy - the basis for the Supreme Court's 1973 decision legalizing abortion.

Thomas

Thomas has a cramped view of how women's complaints of being treated unfairly should be reviewed by federal courts.

"We are concerned that he will reject the heightened scrutiny standard the Supreme Court uses to protect women against sex discrimination under the (14th Amendment's) Equal Protection Clause and return the law to the days when childbearing was reason enough to deny women the benefits and opportunities associated with public life," Greenberger said.

She acknowledged that "it's a very difficult problem to explain why" the judicial standard for reviewing such cases is important, but added that "real life concerns" hinge on which standard is used.

Meanwhile, about 30 blacks from South Carolina met reporters in the office of Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., to voice their support for Thomas.

Thomas attended the session but made no comment.

Fletcher Smith, a member of the Greenville County Council, presented the federal judge with a resolution in which the council supported his nomination. It called Thomas "one of the nation's finest public servants."

Judge orders protest leaders arrested

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) - More than 100 anti-abortion demonstrators stormed an abortion clinic Tuesday in defiance of a court order, and a federal judge sent U.S. marshals to arrest the leaders of the month-long protest.

About 2,400 arrests have been made since members of Operation Rescue, a militant anti-abortion group, began protests July 15 outside Wichita's three abortion clinics. Only two of the clinics applied for court protection.

"I got hit from behind and I went down," said Vickie Shingleton of Wichita, who was rattled and crying but not injured. "I could see the feet and legs rushing by me."

were Operation Rescue founder Randall Terry, and members Jim Evans and Wendy Wright, all of Binghamton, N.Y.; Keith Tucci, Charleston, S.C.; and Joe Stovence of Cleveland, Ohio.

Terry was believed to have gone home following an attempt to meet with President Bush during the weekend. Evans went home more than a week ago and has remained there. The others were in Wichita.

The protesters Tuesday knocked down two sawhorse barricades, scaled a wrought-iron fence and blocked the driveway of Women's Health Care Services, in what one officer described as the protesters' most aggressive action yet.

Police and federal marshals began making arrests after a few protesters knelt in front of a car carrying a patient and the rest ran toward the clinic.

About an hour after the arrests, the Rev. Pat Mahoney of Boca Raton, Fla., an Operation Rescue leader, was arrested by a federal marshal at Wichita Mid-Continent Airport as he returned from a trip to the East Coast.

U.S. Marshal Kent Petach was carrying an order issued Monday by Kelly that cites the protest leaders with failure to post a $100,000 peace bond on Aug. 6. A peace bond is sometimes imposed when a group's activities may cause disorder or property damage.

Northeast states pick up pieces after hurricane

BOSTON (AP) - Cleanup and repairs got under way Tuesday in the wake of Hurricane Bob, which knocked out power to 2.1 million customers and left at least 13 people dead between the Carolinas and eastern Canada.

Bob, which had slowed to a maximum sustained wind speed of about 105 mph when it roared ashore Monday, was the first hurricane to hit the Northeast since Gloria.

Ex-day care center worker testifies at child abuse trial

FARMVILLE, N.C. (AP) - A woman who worked at a day care center involved in child abuse charges said Tuesday that her daughter developed behavioral problems after attending the facility.

"She didn't want to go to her room in the morning," the woman testified. "She would want to stay with me. She would pitch a fit."

The woman, Brenda Ambrose, was the first parent of a child allegedly abused at the Little Rascals Day Care Center to testify in the trial of the center's owner.

Robert F. Kelly Jr., 43, has pleaded innocent to 183 charges of sexually abusing 22 children, ages 2 to 7, at the center. His wife, Elizabeth Kelly, and five others face sexual abuse charges at separate trials.

Mrs. Ambrose said her 3-year-old daughter was in the same room with her for a month after she began working at Little Rascals. But she said Kelly had her moved from the room for toddlers, where her daughter stayed, to a room for infants.

After she was separated from her child, she testified, Kelly would sometimes watch the children during nap time while teachers went to lunch. The charges against Kelly say many of the alleged offenses occurred during nap time.

The child had nightmares and once masturbated while watching television at home, Mrs. Ambrose testified. Neither behavior occurred before the girl started attending the day care.

Mail-bomber Moody receives 7 life terms, 400 years in prison

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) - A man convicted of killing a federal appeals judge and a civil rights lawyer with mail bombs was sentenced Tuesday to seven life terms plus 400 years in prison with no possibility of parole.

Walter Leroy Moody Jr. "struck viciously" at the principles of judicial independence and minority rights, U.S. District Judge Edward Devitt said as he imposed the toughest sentence allowed.

Moody stood quietly during the 15-minute sentencing hearing, deferential to defense attorney Edward Tolley when the judge asked, if he wished to comment.

"This case reflects a great tragedy to a great number of people," Tolley told the judge.

Tolley said a notice of appeal was filed immediately after sentencing.

Moody, 58, of Rex, Ga., was convicted June 28 by a jury. He was charged in a 71-count indictment with mailing pipe bombs in December 1989 that killed 11th U.S. Circuit Judge Robert S. Vance at his home in Mountain Brook, Ala., and lawyer Robert E. Robinson at his office in Savannah, Ga.

The trial was moved to St. Paul partly because of extensive publicity in the Southeast.

Former congressman dies at 84

CUMBERLAND, Md. (AP) - Former Rep. Hiram O. Staggers Sr., credited with revamping the nation's rail industry at the end of a 32-year career as a West Virginia congressman, died Tuesday. He was 84.

Staggers, father of U.S. Rep. Harley O. Staggers Jr., died at Sacred Heart Hospital of congestive heart failure and respiratory failure, said Jim Watkins, a spokesman for the younger Staggers.

He had been ill for several weeks and was hospitalized in July for a blood clot in his leg. He lived in Keyser, W.Va.

Staggers, a Democrat, served in Congress from 1948 until his retirement in 1980. His son has held the same seat since 1982.

Gov. Gaston Caperton said Staggers was "a giant in West Virginia. He was a man of immense ability and integrity."

Auto-tinting shops beat back lawsuit

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) - Five auto-tinting shops have beaten back a federal lawsuit that threatened to wipe out the nation's booming window-tinting business.

U.S. District Judge G. Kendall Sharp last week rejected highway traffic regulators' accusations that the shops violated federal safety standards by installing window film that was too dark.

If federal regulators had prevailed, it could have ended the $100 million-a-year industry nationwide, window film makers and distributors said.

Florida accounts for a third of the industry's business, and tinters say it has more darkened auto windows than any other state.

Regulators began investigating the tint shops - three in St. Petersburg and two in Orlando - in the late 1980s. Last year, they sued to collect $800,000 in fines and obtain a court ban on installing window tint film.

The U.S. Justice Department, on behalf of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, accused the shops of installing film that blocked more than 30 percent of outside light in violation of a federal regulation.

Soviet crisis Human barricade protects parliament

MOSCOW (AP) — With the roar of anti-Soviet chants echoing off the walls of the Russian parliament building, nationalists on Tuesday calmly began organizing a rudimentary defense force.

"It's better to die on your feet than to live on your knees," said Alexander Koshkarov, an organizer of the day-old Russian Self-Defense Force.

An estimated 150,000 protesters chanting "Gorbachev! Gorbachev!" joined Russian President Boris Yeltsin in denouncing the Kremlin coup at a rally outside the republic's white-marbled parliament building. Thousands of demonstrators encircled the 19-story building on the banks of the Moscow River after tanks, armored personnel carriers and trucks loaded with soldiers swarmed the capital Monday to enforce a state of emergency declared after the ouster of Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

Along with armed soldiers loyal to Yeltsin and rag-tag defenders, the demonstrators maintained their vigil into the night Tuesday, fearing an attack by Soviet troops.

People reinforced several makeshift barricades on streets and intersections around the building. They parked buses and trucks at the barricades and stripped off the tires to prevent them from being moved.

Demonstrators piled concrete blocks, planks and iron bars onto the barricades already standing as high as 10 feet.

Stones were taken from the 18th century Krasnopresnaya Bridge behind the building, like demonstrators did during the ill-fated 1905 revolt against czarist leaders.

They stockpiled firebombs and were showing others how to use them.

Other protesters were cracking the marble wall of the building and piling the pieces for use as weapons.

Former Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, who resigned in December warning of a coming dictatorship, told the rally earlier he doubted there would be a clash.

"I warned that dictatorship was coming. Unfortunately I was right. But dictatorship will not succeed," Shevardnadze said to cheers from the crowd.

Roses dangled from the muzzle of a Soviet tank gun whose drivers defected to Yeltsin's side.

Teens in borrowed camouflage shirts strummed guitars and waved Russian flags while sitting on tanks.

Yeltsin announced Monday he was assuming control over all military units on Russian Federation territory, stretching from Poland to the Sea of Japan.

Deputy Foreign Minister Georgy

Kunadze said any soldier obeying the Kremlin will be violating Yeltsin's orders.

On Tuesday morning, demonstrators began signing up volunteers into their own defense force, which Yeltsin had approved Monday.

Organizers signed up more than 100 men aged 18 to 50 by midday, Koshkarov said.

"We might be the first Russian Army," he said.

The force has no guns and no uniforms, and for the moment will be deployed only around the parliament building, he said.

Koshkarov conceded the force could offer little more than token resistance to the Soviet Army. "There's no chance against them without guns," he said.

The idea for a Russian Army had been suggested several times in the last year but never put into practice.

Soviet fighter pair denied tour access

CLEVELAND (AP) — The upheaval in the Soviet Union has killed plans to bring a pair of Soviet MIG-29 fighters and an Il-76 cargo plane to seven air shows in the United States, Cleveland National Air Show officials said Tuesday.

Jim Foster, the air show's assistant director, said the planes had landed as planned Monday in Alaska, but were told by the State Department that their clearance had been revoked. The planes returned to the Soviet Union, Foster said.

Tourists sense history, not fright

MOSCOW (AP) — Some American visitors snapped photographs, strolled the streets and attended anti-coup rallies in the Soviet capital Tuesday as Communist leaders faced off against opponents of their hard-line regime.

"We're not afraid," said Judy Bavasi of New York, who is on a language program with 40 other American teachers. "We feel like we're part of history."

"Many of us have taken part in marches on Washington about the rights or civil rights," she added. "But none of us have ever been around anything like a coup."

Ms. Bavasi and some other Americans sipped Pepsi at a Pizza Hut restaurant near the Kremlin, seemingly unconcerned about a State Department warning against travel to the Soviet Union.

Outside, Soviets milled about, hotly debating the coup and snatching up pamphlets issued by Russian republic President Boris Yeltsin and his allies, who oppose the takeover.

Down the street at the Intourist Hotel, vacationing Bob Kendall from San Jose, Calif., said he had not heard of the travel advisory for Americans, but was not worried.

"There are 2-year-old kids running around on the tanks out there," said Kendall, gesturing toward nearby Red Square.

Kendall said "things can't be too bad if I can still direct-dial the States."

The State Department warned Monday of "the possibility of civil disruption" and urged Americans in the Soviet Union to consider leaving the country as soon as possible.

State Department officials said there have been no reported incidents of violence against Americans, but advised U.S. citizens to "avoid public demonstrations and exercise caution." The department also said Americans in the Soviet Union should contact the U.S. Embassy in Moscow or the consulate in Leningrad.

Brian Jacob, one of about 20 librarians from Ohio State University visiting the Soviet Union, said he found the events in Moscow "very exciting."

Jacob attended a protest rally Tuesday called by Yeltsin.

"I'm taking lots of pictures and really trying to understand what's going on," said Jacob. "So far we haven't really been inconvenienced."

He said he first learned of the coup during a reception at a hotel when a column of tanks rolled by.

"The full impact of all this hasn't hit me yet," said Jacob. "Maybe when it does I'll be a little more nervous."

Our new $59 eyeglass price is no fairy tale!

What people commonly believe about something doesn't always correspond to reality. Take the value of eyeglasses for instance. Ask someone how much a pair of quality, fashionable eyeglasses should cost and you'll probably get a price anywhere from $100 to $300. Do you know what makes up much of that cost? It sure isn't those small pieces of plastic, glass and tiny screws.

You'd be surprised to learn how much of that price is the retailer's mark-up.

Back to reality

We're one of the nation's largest chains of eyewear stores, with over 130 locations throughout seven western states, so we buy our frames and lens blanks by the thousands. At very attractive volume discounts.

And because we sell thousands of pairs each week, we don't have to make a killing on each pair we sell.

So we're able to sell a pair of quality eyeglasses—complete with single vision plastic lenses—for just $59. And additional pairs, same prescription and visit, for just $39. Most bifocals just $10 more a pair.

And, believe it or not, our low price glasses are as well made—or better made—than those you'd pay considerably more for elsewhere.

Doctor's Comment

Dr. Dennis Bach, Phoenix, Arizona

"Your eyeglass prescription not only determines the focusing power of your lenses, it also includes a measurement of your eyes for the distance between your pupils. That is so your eyes will see through the lenses at the correct spot. But this only works when your glasses are properly adjusted to your face. Be sure to have your frames adjusted regularly, so your glasses can do the job they were designed to do."

*Comprehensive eye exams • Complete contact lens care

Soviet crisis

Soviet history drenched in sorrow

By David Remick
The Washington Post

Russian history may be the saddest story I've ever told. Soviet philosopher Pyotr Chadayev, it seems that Russia is intent on providing the world with an example of how not to live.

For a moment it seemed otherwise. Just last weekend my family and I packed our bags and headed home to the States after 3 1/2 years living and working in Moscow.

Analysis

We were convinced that despite the ever-present danger of the unexpected, we were leaving a place that had finally come to know a little light after so much darkness.

And now I'm near those relatives we missed for so long — some of them born in Russia, some of them brought up in Siberian labor camps — only to learn that the light has gone out once more.

The Soviet Union today is a land of broken hearts, of people who can only wonder if they will have to wait once more through two decades of grim reclusion and decay before the opening is as they did after Leonid Brezhnev and his circle ousted Nikita Khrushchev in 1964.

For hours, as I watched the television images of tanks tearing up the asphalt just outside our apartment building, I thought of our last unsupervised hours in Moscow. I took a walk in the woods with two of my family's closest friends in the Soviet Union, a married couple in their 30s who had long ago decided to pass up emigration.

Many of their friends had gone off to the West and found better jobs, astonishing freedoms. But my friends — and for the first time in years I have grown hesitant about using names — stayed in Moscow, unwilling to give up their stake in the culture and the language that sustain them.

While my wife sat with our year-old son and talked with other friends near the water's edge, the three of us walked along the banks, past peasants' houses and children skipping stones on the water. I told them that only months before I had come to the same canal with a man named Alexander Milchakov, a leader of the Memorial, a historical society dedicated to uncovering the brutal truths of Soviet history and restoring honor to the names of that history's victims. Milchakov had taken me deep into the woods and described to me how in the early 1930s prisoners, ordinary Soviet men and women, had been made to dig this useless canal with nothing more than picks and shovels.

"And when they grew too weak to work, when the cold and the hunger got to them, they were made to dig long mass graves for themselves. They were shot and arranged like sardines, like cords of wood, in the ground," Milchakov said. Now, thanks to Milchakov, those tens of thousands of victims are remembered. There is a huge memorial cross draped with barbed wire now in those woods.

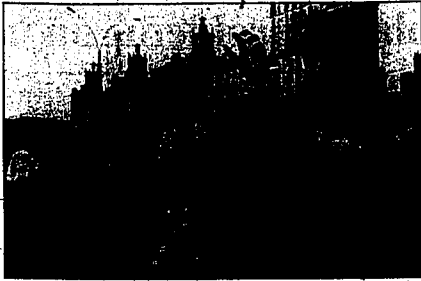

"We cannot give them back their lives, but we will give them back their names," he told me. Later, Milchakov and a few friends dug in the soft ground, and without much effort, found skulls and ribs just five feet down in the cool clay earth.

The return of history: That has always struck me as the most fundamental of all the changes that have taken place in the Soviet Union. And even as I sit here, wondering as we are all wondering about what will be next, what blood might flow, I am convinced that the eight men who engineered the coup in Moscow cannot run a tank over the revelations of the past.

This sense of living in a history that has finally returned never left me wherever I went in the Soviet Union.

A few months ago I visited the city of Magadan on the Pacific coast, once the center of a vast complex of forced-labor camps where old women were forced to dig gold mines in sub-zero temperatures, where the convicts were made to put on grotesque "beatniks" for the prison guards. Just a few years ago, the Communist Party leader of Magadan said the deaths of at least a million people in the vast Kolyma region was a subject "that does not exist for us."

Now there is no silence in Kolyma. An officer in the local police told me how he spends his days now in the archives making known what for so long was secret.

AP Laserphoto

Two Soviet men hold back a distraught Soviet woman crying, 'Oh my Lord, why the tanks?' on Monday in Moscow.

After seven decades of rule by violence and coercion, hardly anyone could stand what the revolution had created. Mikhail Gorbachev, a child of the Communist Party apparatus; even described his own sense of frustration after years of Stalinist repression and the utter decay of the years under Leonid Brezhnev.

At a class reunion last year of his law-school friends from Moscow State University, Gorbachev talked of returning home at 3 a.m. the night in 1985 that Konstantin Chernenko had died and the Communist Party leadership was trying to determine who would ascend to power. He described walking with his wife, Raisa, outside their house — presumably out of earshot of the KGB microphones — and saying he would probably get the job. "And then I told her, 'We can no longer live the way we have,'" Gorbachev said. It was a theme that he had shared in private with the two men who became his closest comrades in reform and who would later warn that a coup d'etat was in the works: former Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and former ideologist Alexander Yakovlev.

Gorbachev's revolution, for all its political flaws, did more to erase the fear of czars and general secretaries than any period in centuries. Suddenly the Soviet Union decodes before. My wife's mother — who had been raised in a Siberian "children's camp," whose father was shot and whose mother finally took the children to safety in America — had always told us that she would never visit the country she had left when she was 8 years old. Last year she came to visit us, all the while saying, "I never thought this could be possible. And I'm not afraid."

Of all the accomplishments and events of the Gorbachev era — if it is, in fact, over — the most significant may well turn out to be the return of history, the decision to tell the truth about the brutal experience that began in 1917.

Now once more the "dark forces" are turning language and truth inside out.

Once more the specter of untruth haunts the Soviet Union. How long can it last? It may be almost impossible to imagine, but I think the answer is this: It cannot last long. But what "long" means, as the physicist and legislator Vitaly Goldansky told me recently, "depends on your definition of time."

Soviet press on shaky ground

MOSCOW (AP) — Independent publications struggled to keep printing today after being banned by Communist hard-liners who ousted Mikhail S. Gorbachev. The coup leaders took control of the country's mass media and forbade the publication of all but nine pro-coup newspapers.

All independent broadcast media were shut down, but at least one radio station returned to the air. The KGB silenced the pro-reform Moscow Echo radio and Russian Television. Broadcast stations in Lithuania's second-largest city of Kaunas and the Latvian capital, Riga, were both taken over by troops and closed.

But Moscow Echo resumed broadcasting today after the Moscow City Council and Russian government intervened on its behalf, said journalist Vladimir Vankovskoyev. He declined to say how the station was able to return. Outside the country, an independent Russian-language radio station founded by Soviets in Norway beamed news of the coup to Leningrad and Riga.

Don't blame problems on immigrants

Patrick Buchanan claims to be a voice of conservatism in our country. Of his shallowness and blind bias, of this column which appeared in Sunday's paper is a reflection on all intelligent conservatives.

His simplistic use of a fantasy movie as an illustration was a farce. As a working adult during the '50s, I assure you the picture portrayed was far from reality. Attempts are still being made to clean up some of the mess of those years.

It has been my observation that most of the disgraceful litter that graces our highways and streets and even finds its way into our wilderness areas is discarded there by white middle-class Americans of European descent and not third-world immigrants.

It is true no one questions the right of Arabs to have an Arab nation or the Chinese to have a Chinese nation. It is also true that the fact these nations have walled themselves off from the rest of the world have made them what they are today.

Personally, I prefer what has happened to this country as a result of its openness and the contributions that have been made as a result of being a multicultural society.

The Soviet Union is in a struggle today as to whether they will move backward and close in on themselves or whether they will become a part of the growing edge—represented by open and progressive nations.

Among great nations of the world, we are at the bottom of the heap when it comes to having multilingual people. The fact that, in the past, many people were ashamed to acknowledge their heritage and their language remains one of the tragedies of our culture.

As a child, I was raised in a bilingual home but was given no encouragement to learn the language. In later years, I was to spend two years in high school trying to gain a smattering of that same language. Somebody has to be the goat for the problems we face as a nation. Let's be honest; it isn't the immigrants that are the cause of our bloated bureaucracy or the corporations that defraud the government whose flag they salute so conscientiously or the Wall Street moguls and bank presidents whose sole purpose is personal wealth—even at the cost of our economy.

What would Pat have us do? Remove the inscription on the State of Liberty about our rejection of the poor and huddled masses yearning to breathe free? He didn't mention the American Indians, did he, whose "culture" we improved on.

Shall we build walls to shut ourselves in? Pat deplores the decline of the churches. How long since he read the words of Jesus, "He that would save his life shall lose it, he that loathes his life for my sake shall find it."

In this day of resurgent prejudice, I'm sorry he didn't have anything better to write about and I'm sorry our paper had nothing better to print.

Editorial

Chop property taxes? Great — but then what?

If you spend an hour listening to Ron Rankin talk about his 1 percent property tax initiative, a messy swarm of contradictions starts creeping out of the woodwork.

We put in our hour Monday, at a Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce forum. We came back worried.

Rankin proposes to chop the funding mechanism that props up schools and local government. But he angrily denounces "scare tactics" by critics who say those agencies will suffer.

Huh? The goal, Rankin explains, is to force the state Legislature to find some other way to pay for those services.

What Rankin hasn't explained is how the Legislature is supposed to do that.

That's the troubling aspect of Rankin's crusade. He wants tear down the old system, but he wants someone else to figure out a new one.

Rankin knows that crafting an efficient and equitable tax structure to replace all that lost revenue is a daunting task. Maybe he isn't up to it. So he doesn't bother himself with it.

This is not tax reform. This is political vandalism.

Rankin's one gesture toward offering options is to suggest that a "2 percent" hike in the state income tax would cover the lost property tax revenue.

Two percent doesn't sound like much, until you find out how Rankin computed it. His "2 percent" is the difference between an 8 percent income tax rate and a 10 percent income tax rate.

Any honest mathematician will tell you that's a 25 percent increase.

When Rankin started his campaign, we commented that forcing a public debate about taxes would be healthy for Idaho. We still think so.

But the mess we hear from Rankin, the less we think of the debate he's trying to lead.

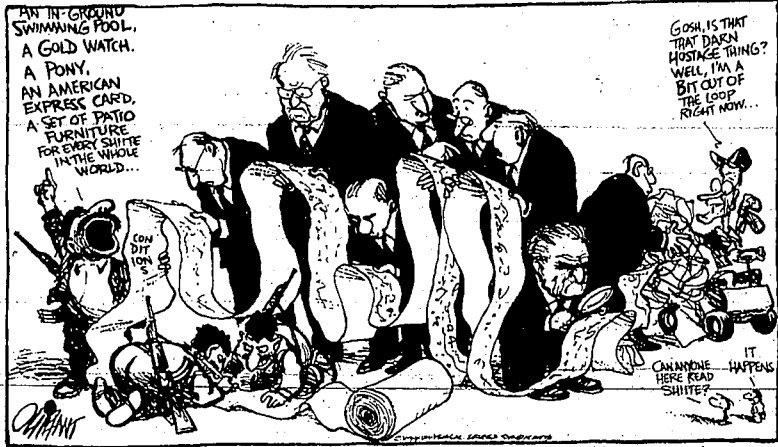

Rankin's campaign is based on the average citizen's gut-level resentment toward property taxes. It shouldn't be. It should be based on a calm, dollars-and-cents analysis of where our money goes and why.

Twin Falls attorney John Hohnhorst, who spoke against the initiative Monday, noted that the big winners in Rankin's game would be Idaho's biggest property owners: railroads, Idaho Power Co. and other corporate land giants.

That's worth thinking about. If the big guys are the winners, who are the losers?

Before Idaho voters sign on to Rankin's crusade, they should ask whether the initiative will really do what Rankin boasts it will do.

At this point, we're doubtful.

No one will welcome juveniles

No matter where you build the juvenile center, you will have people protest. The public fears for their safety. Get real, these same kids are out on the streets as I write this and believe me, no fence or guard is going to stop a kid that doesn't want to be in a secured place. They will find a way to escape if the need to be free is great enough.

To you who will be living in close proximity, what's to worry about? Do you think they are going to go over a fence then stop next door and rob your home? I don't think so. Once over that fence, their main goal is to be as far away from there in as short a time as possible.

A few questions come to my mind: Does Health and Welfare Youth Services have the manpower to run a facility for these children?

Do they have all the so-called programs to keep them occupied while being detained? Will they have a school program with a qualified teacher, a counselor, a psychologist, a doctor and a qualified administrator on staff?

So far, it has been promised that the new center will have better security and the staff will be trained to work with juveniles.

Incidentally, myself and several others from the Jerome facility took a juvenile careworkers course, along with a CPR and standard first-aid course — we all passed!

I personally worked at the facility for two years; some were there longer. I doubt if that would have any bearing, though, when it comes to Health and Welfare standards for a youth services employee since there are no degrees behind our names.

It would be my wish and I hope a lot of other people's that before a lot of grant money or money from any source is spent on a juvenile center that the people in charge take a long serious look at site standards, rules and regulations from every angle, from amount of detainees boys and girls allowed to all various programs that supposedly will be offered so that nothing gets lost in the red tape and paper shuffling of bureaucracy.

Giving up on recycling effort

I just recycled the last of my trash. From now on Parks & Sons will remove it as trash. When the recycling bins are full, it is no longer recyclable goods — it is litter and that is a crime.

A lot of good people out there are trying to make Idaho better by recycling but waste their time when it blows around the area as trash. The people in Twin are being responsible by recycling. How about whoever is responsible for disposing it, do it!

Board should accept report

Recently, the Buhl Board and Buhl Education Association agreed to present unresolved negotiation items to a panel of fact finders.

The BEA has publicly committed itself to accept the fact-finders' report. We have called upon the board to do the same in the interest of a speedy resolution.

What are the issues? There are several, including both salary and non-salary items. The district wishes to achieve a balanced budget. The BEA concurs in this goal.

The BEA has proposed ways in which teachers can improve themselves professionally through the creation of a professional development account which would reimburse teachers for tuition expense of up to three credits per year, a powerful incentive to return to school.

Also, we have proposed a concept called formative assistance designed to encourage teachers to interact with other teachers as part of an ongoing quest to sharpen professional skills. The Blackfoot District has operated this program successfully for several years.

Other items proposed by the BEA include a salary re-open clause allowing the board and teachers to negotiate for better salaries if unanticipated funds are received and a proposal to allow teachers to accumulate up to five unused days per year.

While the board has praised the BEA for its package, it has failed to agree to any items. Its sole proposal is a 1 percent increase which would raise the beginning teachers' salary to $17,069.

Both the board and the BEA will present facts to the panel in several weeks. The BEA believes the process will help illuminate the facts and create a settlement, especially if the board will take the step the BEA has taken and publicly commit itself to the recommendations in the report.

Concert season was great

Kudos to Mr. Ted Hadley, Bruce Whitehead and Greg English, to Camille for her Mozart and to all the gals and guys in the Twin Falls City Band for another great concert season. And to Chad Browning and his crew, thank you for keeping our park so clean and green. Also to the City Council for supporting the program.

We hope next year that "A Bite of Twin Falls" is better organized (it has been in the past). A few of the vendors took up seating space, blocking out sights and sounds of the band for many of us who are regular concert goers. We heard many complaints.

Will Timid George or Tough George face Soviet coup's thugs?

The question is why it took George Bush nine hours to find his real voice — and how long he will keep it.

When the dark night of repression fell suddenly across the Soviet Union, it ignited a psychodrama between two Bushes: Timid George vs. Tough George.

At first the news that Soviet power thugs had kidnapped his ally Mikhail Gorbachev seemed to stun Bush into a genteel funk.

He was plaintive, peevish and bumbling — a man whose golf vacation had been jinxed.

"The situation is murky and disturbing," a grumpy Bush told reporters in Kennebunkport, Maine, at 8 a.m. "It's not a time for show business or posturing. We'll be calm, cool and prudent."

Cool? Prudent? When Gorbachev, his friend and one of the 20th century's transforming leaders, had been mugged?

This was the commander in chief who unleashed the guns of Desert Storm? No, in fact, it was eerily reminiscent of the Bush who reacted with petulant caution in 1989 when Chinese army guns gunned down the democratic kids of Tiananmen Square.

Now, it seemed, Tiananmen George was back.

Sandy Grady

Would Bush, after a few ho-hum remonstrative clichés, play geopolitical ball with Gennady Yanayev and his Soviet hard-line mobsters?

"Tepid," Sen. Dave McCurdy, head of the Senate Intelligence panel, railed against Bush's spineless reaction. "It's what he (Bush) said and the way he said it. We can't do as we did in China and Yugoslavia. He has to stand up against the hardliners."

Fortunately, in the next nine hours, Tough George won a wrestling match with Timid George.

Some insiders say Bush, back at the White House, was advised to show more steel. But I suspect those three television sets in the Oval Office caused Bush's metamorphosis.

Maybe it was the sight on CNN of the Moscow gang of Six lined up at a news conference. Gory, impassive bureaucrats, they reminded you of a film clip of defendants at the Nuremberg Trials.

Maybe it was the flat-out lies they told. Lie No. 1: "Mikhail Gorbachev is on vacation. He's undergoing treatment. He's very tired and will need some time to get better. We hope ... he can return to office," said Yeltsin. "These people should have grown longer than Pinocchio's."

Lie No. 2: "We are committed to genuine democratic reform" — at the moment the Gang of Six was shutting down newspapers and rumbuling tanks in the streets.

Lie No. 3: "We stand ready to cooperate with the republics" — when troops were smashing their way to power in Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania.

"Or maybe Bush saw masses of Soviet people marching up Moscow boulevards. One man threw his body in front of a Soviet tank. A woman beseeched a young tank driver, 'You are our sons — what are you doing to us?'"

But it's a good guess that Bush was affected by the sight of Russian President Boris Yeltsin defying the coup, scrambling atop a tank to harangue the troops, "Don't smear the glory and honor of Russian weapons with the people's blood!" Or Yeltsin's telegram for a nationwide strike to restore Gorbachev. And 5,000 voices below, "Yeltsin! Yeltsin!"

Maybe the TV sights and sounds stiffened Bush's backbone. After a day of dithering, at 5 p.m. he issued a statement. It blasted the "misguided and illegitimate" coup. "We support Boris Yeltsin's call for restoring the constitution," said Bush.

"We will avoid in every possible way actions that support the coup." And no economic aid for the Gang of Six.

Tough George had been budgeted out of his funk. In truth, amid chaos as volatile as the 1917 revolution or 1964 Khrushchev's ouster, Bush had only one moral choice — throwing the U.S. weight behind the moxie and popularity of Boris Yeltsin.

"I think he's expressing the will of the people. I hope they heed his call," said Bush.

But how long before the hard-line junta puts the clutch on Yeltsin, a rebel, guarded by only a handful of defiant tanks, a few hundred paratroopers and homemade barricades?

"Yeltsin stands for something. He's there," said Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind. "I think he's in personal danger." "Yeltsin stands for something. He's there," said Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga. "My guess is that the coup leaders will make a move against him. That will be the real test of the Russian people."

Perhaps the Gang of Six will be Yeltsin's Gorbis Solovoi. According to CBS, it sent Prime Minister Valentin Gerasimov to demand Gorbachev's resignation. When he refused, Pavlov said, "You will be sick a long time."

Gorbachev, so recently cheered on Washington streets, is gone into limbo. Yeltsin's in danger. The coup thugs' tanks can bloody win a civil war. Bush's only card is an economic vise — cut off Western bucks and technology, squeeze the Yanayev bullies into slow ruin.

"We've never been able to affect their policies in the whole history of the Soviet Union," admits Soviet expert Michael Beschloss.

The question is whether Bush, who finally discovered amoral woken, will be tempted in the long run to accept Yanayev and his gray-fined KGB rogues.

"If the Soviet hardliners come forth with a moderate face, I think it will be a critical mistake for the U.S. to support them," warns Sen. McCurdy. "The United States is the only superpower left. We've got to stand behind the people and the flow of the future."

Let's hope Tough George gets no more back talk from Timid George.

Serbs, army bomb Croatian city

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — Serbian guerrillas and the Yugoslav federal army, in their heaviest attack since ethnic war broke out eight weeks ago in Croatia, Tuesday bombed the breakaway republic's fourth-largest city with mortar shells.

Three civilians were reported killed as shells hit the cathedral, a crowded streetcar, and apartment blocks in Osijek, an eastern Croatian city of 158,000 people. Seven other people were reported killed in fighting in three other Croatian towns.

The bombardment came on a day when leaders of Yugoslavia's six republics were meeting here in the Yugoslav capital in a new attempt to work out the political future of this patchwork Balkan nation. Most previous meetings have ended in angry deadlock.

A leader of the Serbian guerrillas, who are backed by the republic of Serbia and who appear to have the support of the Serb-dominated federal army, this week announced plans to seize control of three other major Croatian towns, including the Adriatic port of Zadar.

While the army has common interests and we need a large port," Milan Martić, chief military leader for the Serbian guerrillas in the Krajina region of Croatia, told the Belgrade daily Borba.

A Croatian Defense Ministry spokesman Tuesday dismissed the Croatian national guardsmen move through Pakrac Monday after Serbian guerrillas attacked the town with mortar and rifle fire. Now fighting has shattered the fragile cease-fire.

Serbian objectives as "empty talk and threats." Spokesman Antun Abramovic said "the defense of Zadar is very strong."

But the guerrillas already have taken control of nearly one-fifth of Croatia's territory. Ethnic Serbs make up about 12 percent of the Croatian population of 4.5 million, and guerrilla leaders say they will not stop fighting until they win control of all Croatian areas where there are large populations of Serbs.

By some of their own estimates, the guerrillas want to control a third of Croatian territory.

The attack on Osijek, where Serbs make up only about one-quarter of the population, Tuesday provoked an enraged protest from the Croatian government, which has conceded it is losing a territorial war to the Serbs. Milan Ramljak, a Croatian vice president, described the attack as "the most brutal and coordinated action" by the federal army and armed Serbs, who "consciously committed a crime against civilians."

6th man arrested for aiding Libya

MANNHEIM, Germany (AP) — Police on Tuesday arrested a sixth suspect in the 2-year-old investigation of German companies that allegedly helped build Libya's poison gas factory.

Hans-Joachim Renner, former manager of the Imhausen-Chemie chemical firm, is suspected of helping plan and build the plant at Rabta, Libya, according to a special Mannheim-based prosecutor's office probing the scandal.

Embarrassed by the allegations, the German government at first denied them. Germany ultimately conceded the charges were true, and launched its own investigation, which is continuing.

Three other German businessmen are currently on trial for alleged roles in the Rabta plant, which the Libyan government claimed was a medicine factory.

Libya denies it makes chemical weapons.

Another German businessman was arrested on Aug. 1 for allegedly helping with illegal exports for the Rabta complex.

Indian ambassador shot by assailants

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — India's ambassador to Romania was shot and slightly wounded in an attack by four men Tuesday evening, the state news agency Rompres said.

Ambassador Julio Francis Ribeiro was struck in the leg but was reported in good condition after being taken to a local hospital, said sources in the Indian Embassy.

One of the assailants was shot to death by police, another was wounded, a third arrested and the fourth escaped, Rompres reported.

No group has claimed responsibility for the attack.

Prime Gandhi suspect dies

BANGALORE, India (AP) — The prime suspect in the assassination of Rajiv Gandhi committed suicide Tuesday as police closed in on his hideout in a sleepy south Indian village, authorities said.

The death ended a 90-day manhunt for Sivarasana, a one-eyed Sri Lankan Tamil who is believed to have masterminded the May 21 suicide bomb attack that killed the former prime minister.

It also appeared to have closed all avenues for further investigation into the assassination. Police have suspected Gandhi's killing was ordered by the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam, a Sri Lankan separatist militia; but investigators say it will now be difficult to obtain conclusive proof.

Sivarasana, 29, shot himself through the temple before police stormed the brick house in Kananakunte, a village 12 miles south of Bangalore, said Police Commissioner R. Ramalingam.

"It is him, there is no doubt," the police officer said. "There is the glass eye."

Knight-Ridder News Service

MEXICO CITY — President Carlos Salinas de Gortari's sweeping mandate in Sunday's national elections frees his hand to continue his revolutionary economic reforms — but also raises fears that he now has too much power for Mexico's good.

"If there are no limits on him, then he's capable of anything," said conservative political analyst Federico Estevez, who has favored Salinas' reforms to date.

Although Salinas was not on the ballot, his ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI) appeared in early results to have gained more than 60 percent of the votes for deputies in the national legislature.

That will ease the way for Salinas, if he chooses, to muster the two-thirds majority he would need to pass such controversial changes as allowing foreign investment in the oil industry or nationalizing communal farms.

Some fear that Salinas might even attempt his own re-election. Currently, the Mexican presidency is limited to one six-year term.

Salinas' increased power could work against him in Washington, however, where Congress eventually must approve a U.S.-Mexico-Canada free-trade pact.

Some legislators already have protested the idea of economic marriage to an undemocratic state.

Adding weight to such charges is the knowledge that opposition parties are challenging the results in Sunday's elections for the legislative Chamber of Deputies, half the 64-seat Senate and six state governments.

The challengers charge that fraud prevented millions of eligible Mexicans from voting.

Despite such charges, Salinas will receive a boost of power from the return to majority rule of the PRI, which has held onto the presidency and most major legislative posts without a break since 1929.

The PRI suffered a crisis in 1988, when Salinas took power with barely 50 percent of the vote, the lowest PRI victory margin in modern history.

Aragon: Panel emphasizes WIPP too much

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — A committee of lawmakers is spending too much time on the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant and not enough effort on other hazardous-waste matters, New Mexico state Senate President Pro Tem Manny Aragon says.

Aragon told the Interior, Radiation and Hazardous Materials Committee on Monday that its focus on the proposed nuclear-waste disposal facility near Carlsbad is hurting the way the public views lawmakers — and not getting WIPP opened any faster.

"It's hurting the credibility of the committee and this Legislature in general," Aragon said.

Aragon, a member of the committee, suggested the panel take stock of its direction.

Rep. Nick Salazar, D-San Juan

Fuelbe, said he agreed the committee should turn its attention to other matters.

"I think the public perception is we are here to promote WIPP," Salazar said. And he objected that committee members had been combative with some state officials and others who appeared before the panel.

Committee Chairman Rep. Robert

Light, D-Carlsbad, said once WIPP is open the committee would spend much less time discussing it.

At Aragon's suggestion, the panel agreed to hear from critics of WIPP on technical aspects of the controversial project at its hearing next month.

The committee met to recommend changes to pending federal legislation on WIPP.

Idaho laws fail the test once again

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Laws in Idaho Falls and Pocatello that forbid uninvited door-to-door sales have been struck down for the second time by a federal appeals court.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals had ruled the Idaho Falls and Pocatello ordinances unconstitutional in 1988. The U.S. Supreme Court ordered reconsideration last year under new standards giving local governments somewhat more leeway, but the appeals court said on Monday the measures failed that test as well.

"The cities' prohibition on door-to-door solicitation sweeps far more broadly than necessary to protect the governmental interests," mainly individual privacy, said Judge William Canby in the 3-0 ruling.

He said the cities had failed to design their restrictions on business communication narrowly to achieve the protections they sought.

The Idaho Falls ordinance prohibits all uninvited soliciting and selling of private residences.

The Pocatello measure exempts charitable and nonprofit organizations.

Both were challenged by a company called Project 80's and one of the youths it employed to sell candy and household products.

The company says it teaches young people business skills and lets them earn money for college. The suit argued that the ordinances violated freedom of speech.

Reversing a ruling by U.S. District Judge Marion Callister in the cities' favor, the appeals court said the ban on commercial communication went far beyond any measures needed to protect privacy and other legitimate government interests.

MOSCOW (AP) — There appears to be little lingering anxiety as students return to the University of Idaho three weeks after the apparent suicide of a dark-skinned foreign student found hanged in a grove of trees.

"Incoming freshmen haven't mentioned it at all," said Matt Lawson, editor of the campus newspaper The Argonaut. "The school did a really good job of damage control."

The school got unwanted national media attention when Sharon Andrew Akhavan's body was found July 30, his hands tied behind his back. Authorities concluded that the 21-year-old student, born in Israel to Iranian parents, committed suicide after first reports that he was black and may have been lynched.

In a letter to 2,600 new students a week after the furor, University of Idaho President Elisabeth Zinser urged students to call the school "if you have any questions about this tragic incident."

"No one has taken her up on the offer."

ATHOL, Idaho (AP) — Hundreds of Girl Scouts and Girl Guides from the Northwest, Canada and Japan are building their outdoor skills and rebuilding trail during a week-long stay at Farragut State Park.

"This is not a big slumber party, though it may sound like it with all the singing and laughing," said Marilyn Stedman, spokeswoman for the Inland Empire Girl Scout Council. "These girls had to have advanced camping skills to come here. We're really hoping they'll learn while they have fun."

District judge drunk driving trial begins

GOODING — Fifth District Judge Phillip M. Becker will go on trial Sept. 26 on drunken driving charges, the Gooding County prosecutor said Tuesday.

The jury trial will take place in Gooding with 3rd District Magistrate Judge James C. Morriff of Caldwell presiding, according to Gooding County Prosecuting Attorney Lynn R. Nelson.

Idaho State Police arrested Becker on Interstate 84 on July 9. He failed field sobriety tests, and a breath test showed his blood alcohol level at .23 — more than twice Idaho's legal limit of .10, according to the ISP report.

Becker, who has been a district judge since 1983, serves Jerome and Gooding counties.

Fatal shooting of 17-year-old was self-inflicted police say

TWIN FALLS — The accidental shooting death of 17-year-old Peter Ross last Friday morning was self-inflicted, according to the Twin Falls County coroner and the Twin Falls police department.

Ross had apparently taken a .45-caliber automatic pistol out to show his friends at a party in his home, Coroner Cal Edwards said. He was twirling it in the air and pointing it at others, telling them the gun was empty, Edwards said. Then he put it to his head and pulled the trigger.

A bullet went through his head and lodged in the leg of a 15-year-old girl in the room. Ross died four hours later, Edwards said.

The party at 878 Wendell was attended by minors, Edwards said. Alcohol was consumed, authorities confirmed.

Edwards has ruled the shooting was an accident.

Ross was living with his father who was not home the night of the party, Edwards said.

The injured girl has requested that her name not be released, police Lt. Jim Kistler said. The department refused to release the name without the approval of police chief Paul Du Fresno, who was out of town Tuesday.

Juvenile center committee members meet this morning

SHOSHONE — The members of the six-county committee trying to build a juvenile detention center in the Magic Valley will meet here this morning to plot strategy and vote on the location of the panel's choice for a site by the Twin Falls City Council Monday night.

Several members of the committee said Tuesday the panel may consider taking legal action.

The Twin Falls council told the committee it could not put the center in the old Q Bar building on Addison Avenue East, saying the proposed center would violate zoning laws.

The session is scheduled for 10 a.m. at the Lincoln County Courthouse.

Council sponsors meeting on waste-water plant upgrade

JEROME — The Jerome City Council will sponsor an informational meeting at 7 tonight on a proposed $1.5 million revenue bond to upgrade the city's waste-water treatment plant.

The meeting will be at China Village. Voters will cast ballots on the proposed revenue bond on Sept. 17. Polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the City hall.

The bond will be paid off through fees from the Jerome Cheese Co., a cheese-processing plant expected to be built by next spring, according to Mayor Gerald Oster. County taxes will not be affected, he said.

Businessman Allen will run for Twin Falls City Council

TWIN FALLS — Longtime businessman Howard Allen, who recently announced his intention to seek a seat on the Twin Falls City Council, said Tuesday that he definitely will run for office.

"It's time to make it official. I've received a lot of support in getting my petitions signed," Allen said Tuesday.

Allen, who retired from the jewelry business three years ago, will run for the seat now held by Councilman Doug Vollmer.

Commission raises Jerome property taxes

By H.R. Weibel
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — Jerome County taxpayers can expect a 5 percent increase in property taxes next year, county commissioners and department heads say.

A property owner with a $52,000 home can expect to pay an additional $45 in taxes, according to county records.

But the budget could go higher if costs for charity and indigent assistance remain as high as in the past several years.

The cost of state-mandated assistance to the medically indigent paid by the county continues to rise and forces the budget to be opened each year, county officials say.

"So we have no choice but to pay it, even if we don't have the money," Carl Montgomery, commission chairman said. "We set the budget at the maximum

Meeting scheduled

A public meeting will be held at 9:30 a.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 3, at the Jerome County Courthouse to review and finalize the budget.

allowed, knowing it won't be enough."

Montgomery explained that the county borrows money, under a warrant, to pay for charity and indigent assistance costs each year. Interest is paid on the warrants, which also adds to the taxpayers' bill, and the warrant is redeemed out of the following year's budget.

In the current fiscal year, the budget increased by $200,000, from $336,517 to $536,517.

"Last year there were 160 cases we paid for, but through July 23 had 213, or a 33 percent increase with two months left in the fiscal year," said Clerk Cheryl Watts.

According to Idaho law, the state is to pay part of the costs, but "so far we haven't seen that happen," Montgomery said.

The new budget includes a 5 percent pay raise for all county employees, including the commissioners.

Juvenile justice functions are a new budget item for Jerome County, one of the counties involved in trying to build a regional juvenile justice center. A total of $70,912 is included for 1991-1992.

Last year's county budget also had to be opened for public defender costs primarily associated with the Jaime Charboneau case. The 1990-91 public defender budget was set at $33,500, but was increased to $54,183, a 62 percent increase.

The county prosecuting attorney will be asking people who request the services of a public defender for some reimbursement this year, said Watts. She noted that Fiscal Defender Lynn Dunlap is working almost full time and can't do everything within the former budget.

The cost of running the county's landfill is tentatively set at $184,000, up $63,224 from last year. A special fee — not a property tax — of $20 was assessed each residential homeowner and $40 for each commercial business to support the landfill last year.

There will be no tax levy in the 1991-92 fiscal year for the landfill, Watts said. "Also, we are 99 percent sure we won't have to increase the $20 fee," Montgomery said.

The sheriff's department budget was increased by 6 percent overall, enough to allow hiring a dispatcher and jailer half-time in the new year, Watts said.

Higher grazing fees mean downfall, ranchers fear

By N.S. Nokkenved
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — For Jerre Tews, a fourth-generation Filer rancher, a proposed grazing fee increase casts an uncertain light on the future.

Tews said the proposed four-fold increase in federal grazing fees would threaten the continued viability of the family's ranch.

"When it comes right down to it, what this is all about for me is nothing more than enough profit to pay for baby shoes," said Tews, 22, who has been married eight months.

Tews and 18 other southern Idaho ranchers, government officials and representatives of the Idaho livestock industry spoke out against the proposed fee increase Tuesday at a House subcommittee hearing.

U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, chairman of the House Agriculture Subcommittee on Livestock, Dairy and Poultry, called the hearing at the request of Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho.

The committee will look at the economic impact on agriculture and local governments of the increased grazing fees sponsored by Rep. Michael Synar, D-Okla., passed by the House in June.

"We need to demonstrate the economic impact of increased fees on Western stockmen," said Stallings, who opposes the proposed fee increase. The increased fees would drive a lot of Idaho cattlemen out of business, he said.

Ranchers now pay $1.97 a month per cow, for a cow and calf, for a bull, a horse or five sheep to graze on 300 million acres of federal land managed by the Forest Service and the Bureau of Land Management.

Two-thirds of Idaho is federal land, leaving little choice for rancher who would prefer to lease private grazing land, said Ada County Commissioner Gary Glenn.

The House voted in June to raise fees to $8.70 by 1995 as part of the Interior Department's appropriations bill. A separate bill approved last month included a trimmed-down formula that would limit any increase to 33 percent a year.

A similar bill is expected to appear in a Senate version of the Interior Department's appropriation bill next month.

But such a large increase would devastate most of Idaho's livestock industry, where 2,600 permit-holders produce the state's largest cash crop — $800 million, said state Auditor J.D. Williams. It would take $11 million out of Idaho's rural economies, he said.

Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, and Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, listen to testimony at Tuesday's hearing on the economic impact of a four-fold increase in federal grazing fees.

The government shouldn't try to balance the federal budget "on the backs of the livestock industry and rural communities," he said.

For Eric Davis, whose Owyhee County operation grazes livestock on 9,320 AUMs of state, federal and private lands, the increase would mean an annual increase of $63,000 without any offsetting increase in production, he said.

State Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, who runs 2,500 ewes on public land, said the higher fees would reduce the value of grazing permits and would penalize good operators as well as bad operators.

In addition to annual fees, most ranchers have a substantial investment in their grazing permits.

The permits, originally issued without a charge, have taken on a value, on which ranchers are taxed. Some permits are worth more than $100 per AUM, Noh said.

Political uncertainty, however, makes grazing permits a risky investment, he said. "What you really have is a privilege."

Grazing fees, however, have long been subject of discussion.

Congress has ignored past recommendations by the BLM, the Forest Service and the General Accounting Office to raise grazing fees, said Edward Robertson Jr., president of the Idaho Wildlife Federation.

"The Committee for Idaho's High Desert believes that the federal grazing fee should at least cover the cost of BLM management, as well as provide habitat, and bio-diversity on the public lands destroyed by grazing," said Randy Morris of Mountain Home.

But ranchers say that public rangeland is in better shape now than any time in this century.

Nelson moves to area, vies for same job

By Phil Sahn
Times-News writer

GOODING — Gooding County's prosecuting attorney wants the same job in Twin Falls County.

Lynn R. Nelson said Tuesday he plans to move to Twin Falls County and run for prosecuting attorney next year.

Nelson, a Republican who has worked seven years as Gooding County's lawyer, said he has formed a committee to explore running for the office.

He will move to Twin Falls County in time to establish residency to run for office, he said.

Idaho law requires a candidate for county office to live in the county for 30 days before the election.

The incumbent, two-term Republican K. Ellen Baxter, has announced she will not run for reelection.

In a telephone interview Tuesday, Nelson cited his trial experience as a big asset for the job.

"I'd like to handle the difficult cases," he said.

Nelson said he would try more civil cases in the Twin Falls County job than he has time for in Gooding County. Ensuring that deputy prosecutors are well-trained and competent would be a priority as well, he said.

A number of Twin Falls County residents approached Nelson about running for the job, he said.

The committee includes Twin Falls attorney and Republican state Rep. Mark Stubbs, former Twin Falls County Prosecuting Attorney Harry DeHaan, Buhl attorney Mike Felton and Marilyn Hempleman of Twin Falls, according to Nelson.

GOP nominates newcomer to succeed Tominaga

By Drew DeSilver
Times-News writer

HAZELTON — A political newcomer was the first choice of Jerome, Minidoka and Cassia county Republicans Tuesday night to replace retiring state Sen. Lynn Tominaga.

Dean Cameron, a 30-year-old insurance agent from Rupert with little previous political experience, was selected by the legislative District 24 Republican Central Committee.

His name, along with state Rep. Ralph Peters, R-Jerome, and former state Rep. Jerry Callan, R-Jerome, will be submitted to Gov. Cecil Andrus.

He has 15 days to choose from among the three candidates, and under state law the governor doesn't have to follow the central committee's preferences.

Tominaga, a 36-year-old former Rupert resident who was elected to four terms in the state Senate, resigned last Friday to go to work for the Idaho Water Users' Association in Boise.

His successor will be one of two Republican senators from District 24, a "double" district under the reapportionment solution imposed by a district judge in 1981.

It's a district that's likely to be changed considerably by the next reapportionment, due to go into effect before the 1992 election.

Most reapportionment proposals envision breaking up the three-county district, grouping Jerome County with Twin Falls County, putting Cassia County with several rural eastern Idaho counties and dividing Minidoka County between the other two districts.

That same reapportionment will put Peters, a former mayor of Jerome, out of a job.

He represents District 25, a "floating" district that encompasses the entire Magic Valley under the terms of the 1981 system.

It will be eliminated in the next reapportionment.

Callan represented the same district before he was defeated the 1988 GOP primary.

Lawmakers warm to 4th redraw plans

By Drew DeSilver
Times-News writer

NAMPA — A fourth plan to redraw Idaho's legislative districts was laid on the special reapportionment committee's table Tuesday, where it seemed to get a better reception than the previous three.

The plan, presented by Sens. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, and Marty Calabretta, D-Oborn, divides the state into 35 districts, with the Magic Valley getting five of those districts.

Under the plan, the city of Twin Falls would comprise District 22. The rest of Twin Falls County would be combined with the Elmore County precincts of King Hill and Glens Ferry to form District 21.

Jerome, Gooding and Camas counties would make up District 23. Blaine and Lincoln counties would join most of Minidoka County and the Custer County precincts of Stanley and Clayton in District 24. The rest of Minidoka County would join all but six eastern precincts of Cassia County to form District 25.

The city of Rupert would be split, with the part north of U.S. Highway 24 going to District 24 and the part south of the highway going to District 25. The Cassia County precincts of Heglar/Yate, Malte, Sublett-Bredig, Elba and Almo would

Where there's smoke, there's drill

By Phil Sahm
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Black smoke billowed from the Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional Airport on Tuesday, but it was only part of a drill.

The smoke simulated that of a 30-passenger plane that crashed while landing. Airport Manager Ron Madsen described the drill as a realistic problem.

The Aviation Administration says airports must go through such drills every three years to make sure they can handle accidents.

"It went well. There were a few weaknesses that were self-evident. But those would likely not be present under a real emergency,"

Madsen said. Too many cars cluttered the area where emergency workers looked at injured passengers, Madsen said.

But in a real crisis, those cars - belonging to airport, city and county officials and the news media - would not be in the area.

Airport firefighters set jet fuel ablaze in an open area north and east of the tower at around 10 a.m. Two fire trucks came within a couple of minutes and doused the fire with a combination of water and foam.

"We try to handle it as close to real as possible," Madsen said.

A school bus served as what was left of the plane and emergency workers looked at "injured passengers" in the bus. A number also were laid out in a field, as might happen in a real accident.

With artificial grass, cuts and blood, 19 or so people looked like they had been in an accident. One man played the part of a concerned parent trying to find his children in the wreckage.

"Those are my kids. I've got to go back," he screamed.

Sheriff's officers guided him away from the wreckage so that medical workers could do their job.

Jones, Rosholt join Hansen bid

The Times-News
and The Associated Press

BOISE - Another Republican took another step toward the 1992 U.S. Senate race Tuesday, and two prominent Magic Valley Republicans promptly climbed on board his bandwagon.

Rep. Tom Stenhouse announced the members of his exploratory committee, and they included state Rep. Doug Jones of Filer and Twin Falls attorney John Rosholt.

"A decision must be made within the next few weeks if I am to enter the race," said Hansen, who is considering taking on Boise mayor Dirk Kempthorne and Boise state Sen. Jim Jones.

"The seat belongs to all the citizens of Idaho, not just a few. I encourage broad participation in this decision as to who should be the Republican nominee."

"I'm an Idaho Falls lawyer and the brother of former 2nd District Congressman Orval Hansen, is one of the leaders of GOP moderates in the Legislature, and his campaign committee reflects that philosophy. In addition to Doug Jones and Rosholt, his committee includes former Gov. Robert Smylie; Hansen's state Rep. James Lucas, R-Moscow; former lawmakers Janet Hay of Nampa, Bill Ringert and Bill Roden of Boise and Dean Haugenson of Coeur d'Alene; Ken Johnson of Idaho Falls, former president of the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry; and party stalwart Louise Shadduck of Coeur d'Alene, one of the first women to become highly visible in Idaho Republican politics.

Meanwhile, a fourth potential Senate candidate, former Idaho Attorney General Jim Jones, has asked retiring GOP Sen. Steve Symms to make clear which of his staff members will be involved in the upcoming political campaign and dropped from the government payroll.

Jones, who has said he will announce his decision on the Senate race on Labor Day, told Symms in the letter that several of the potential contenders for the seat had expressed concern about the possibility that some key Symms aides would remain on the senator's staff while also working on the Kempthorne campaign.

He specifically cited the lunch Kempthorne had with Symms' chief of staff Phil Reberger and Al Henderson, who managed Sen. Larry Craig's 1990 campaign and now runs the Senate Resource Center for the two senators, the day before he entered the race last week.

"I realize this was nothing more than a friendly get-together, but it does raise a question," Jones wrote to Symms. "I expect that some of your staff members may wish to work on behalf of one or another of the Senate candidates."

"That is fine," Jones said; "but I think it would be a mistake to let them work both for you and a potential successor. I know you want to be evenhanded, and I hope that you will separate fairly quickly those staff members who go to work for the various candidates."

"That would eliminate the appearance of impropriety or favoritism," he said, "and help provide a level playing field for the various Senate contenders."

Jones said on Tuesday that he had not received a reply from Symms to his Aug. 14 letter.

Erhart, meanwhile, postponed his formal announcement of candidacy because of the volatility of the financial markets following the ouster of Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

But Erhart made it clear he was a candidate two weeks ago right after Symms announced he was retiring at the end of his second term next year.

Creditors end up short in Bunker deal

SPOKANE (AP) - The creditors for Bunker Limited Partnership are "fighting over a small pot" and are likely to receive only a fraction of what they are owed, a lawyer for the partnership says.

The partnership and Chemical Co. contends the partnership owes it more than $53 million.

But Bunker Limited expects to have only about $10 million after selling its northern Idaho timberland, said Jerome Shulkin, the partnership's Seattle lawyer.

Other creditors include Idaho Forest Industries Inc., law firms and accountants.

The partnership's creditors are "fighting over a small pot," Shulkin said Monday.

"There ain't no more in this city," Shulkin represents Bunker Limited in its Chapter 11 filing to reorganize debt under the U.S. Bankruptcy Code.

The partnership's principals are northern Idaho businessmen H.F. "Harry" Magnuson, Duane Hagadone and Jack W. Kendrick.

combine with Caribou, Bear Lake, Fremont, Blaine counties to form District 26.

Sen. Denton Darrington, R-Declo, said there was much in the McDermott-Calabretta plan to admire.

"It's a well-thought-out plan. It gives the Magic Valley five solid seats, and it makes me a pretty decent little district," he said. "But it disenfranchises 1,600 ranchers, good folks, by putting them with Soda Springs."

The proposal also protects five incumbent Democratic senators, including John Peavey of Carey, Darrington said.

Under a 1986 constitutional amendment, the number of legislative districts must be reduced from 42 to no more than 35. Each district will elect one senator and two representatives. Floterial districts, such as the Magic Valley's District 25, will be eliminated.

The new rules mean several incumbent lawmakers will end up running against each other in the 1992 elections. Since the Senate is split 21-21 between Republicans and Democrats, each party wants to protect as many of its own senators as possible.

Nonetheless, Darrington said, the plan presented Tuesday, along with one unveiled Monday by Rep. Evan Frasure, R-Pocatello, provides a basis for the committee to devise a final plan to present to the Legislature.

Rep. Doug Jones, R-Filer, said the new plan looked better than others he's seen, but he questioned whether the city of Twin Falls should comprise its own district.

Splitting Twin Falls County into eastern and western districts, with part of the city of Twin Falls in each district, would better represent the mixed character of the county, Jones said.

But Rep. Clint Stennett, D-Ketchikan, said it would be unfair to divide Twin Falls County that way.

"The people in the rural part of the county have more in common with each other than with the people in Twin Falls," Stennett said. "They deserve the same, and so do the people of Twin Falls. If you split up Twin Falls, all you do is dilute the urban vote."

Stennett said he, Jones and Darrington - the only Magic Valley legislators on the 20-person committee - would work together to draw up their own plan for the Magic Valley, perhaps in time for the committee's next meeting, set for Sept. 5 in Coeur d'Alene.

"That's unless we decide we can live with this one," he said.

Besides the McDermott-Calabretta map and two proposals presented by Frasure, the only statewide plan before the committee is one submitted Monday by Rep. Jim Hansen, D-Boise. But Republicans on the committee have reacted so negatively to Hansen's plan that it probably will not be heard from any further.

Rep. Jerry Twigg, R-Blackfoot, said Hansen's plan would force 24 or 25 Republican House members and nine Republican senators to run against each other, as opposed to four Democratic House members and two Democratic senators.

"If we're going to lay out a plan, we ought not to lay out a plan that is so obviously gerrymandered that it doesn't stand a chance," Twigg said.

Hansen hotly denied that partisan considerations lay behind his map.

"I didn't consider where people lived because frankly, I don't give a damn," he said.

"A committee was so concerned about protecting incumbents, he added, it should simply hand the task of redistricting over to a citizens' committee.

The remap committee also approved a new congressional district map to replace the one they scrapped Monday.

Grazing

"Ranchers are the first and the best conservationists," said Three Creek rancher Randall Brewer.

Agencies, however, could not produce any documents to back up the statement that rangeland is now in better condition, Robertson said.

The statement is made only for political purposes and is not based on facts, he said.

A 1976 BLM inventory of public rangeland conditions was halted, and the information gathered disappeared, Robertson said.

It is true that some areas have improved, but many areas, "particularly riparian areas, have been declined and are in a downward trend," he said.

Stenholm said that ranchers receive a subsidy.

It is his committee's job to look at the facts then make that judgment, he said.

Many of those who testified Tuesday said that public land provides nothing but the grass, while private grazing land provides water, fences and other developments.

"The higher costs and risks of grazing on public lands more than makes up for the difference between public and private land grazing fees, ranchers said.

"The BLM and the Forest Service, however, supply most of the materials for water developments, fences and cattleguards at road crossings."

Ranchers are expected to supply the labor and maintenance of those developments.

Democratic State Sen. John Peavey, a Carey rancher, said grazing fees are only a small part of cost of running livestock on public lands.

"It is not another subsidy," he said. "Livestock producers already pay their share of the cost."

Janet O'Crowley of Picabo, citing BLM figures, told the congressmen that every AUM costs taxpayers $3.90.

But that figure doesn't include the cost of environmental degradation caused by grazing.

Cable TV wants 15-year promise from city

By Bertilla L. Redfern
Times-News correspondent

BUHL - A special meeting was held at city hall this week to hear a request from Cable TV to continue operating in Buhl for the next 15 years. Buhl's current contract with Cable TV is not up for renewal until 1995.

Burt Greene, a Cable TV representative, gave an overview of what Cable TV would like to do in Buhl and explained why the 15-year commitment was requested.

Cable TV would like to increase the channels currently available and improve service by replacing obsolete equipment and building new distribution lines into Buhl. This would involve engineering, design and eventually construction, which would be at considerable cost to the cable company.

Greene said in order for the company to spend the funds, it would like a guarantee that it will be doing business in Buhl for at least 15 years.

Cable TV is currently offering a total of 19 programs which cost $58.80. The basic 16-channel program cost is $19.95.

Buhl resident Dick Beem objected to the proposal.

Beem said Buhl residents pay more money for less channels than Twin Falls, Boise, Nampa and Caldwell. Of the basic 16-channel program offered, eight channels are merely enhanced and could be obtained by an antenna, Beem said.

Beem also said Cable TV had not been very responsive to customer complaints over the last nine years. He said it was pressure from customers that got the last three channels, ESPN, Discovery and the Ted Turner channel, added to the cable company's lineup.

Beem said he would like to see a comprehensive plan, presented, spelling out what would be offered and when, adding, "when you run the only grocery store in town you must not think that's been the case here."

In defending the higher rates, Greene said it is just as costly to serve the Buhl area as it would be to serve a town the size of Twin Falls because the same amount of equipment and distribution lines are involved.

Because there are fewer paying customers in the Buhl area, it costs the company more for the service.

Greene said out of the 1,600 homes in Buhl, only 800 are currently Cable TV customers.

Greene said he would like all of Buhl to become Cable TV customers.

Councilman Dean Gillett asked if upgrading the obsolete equipment would be so costly that there wouldn't be any funds left to increase the number of channels offered, once improvements have been completed.

160-acre fire under control; firefighters head home

SHOSHONE - Most of 50 firefighters returned to base from a fire about 12 miles from Gooding Tuesday evening.

Helicopter water drops hit the few remaining trouble spots on the 160-acre fire in rough terrain, said Bureau of Land Management Fire Management Officer Dale Chatterton.

"It's looking good right now," Chatterton said Tuesday evening. BLM officials expect the fire to be under control by today, he said.

1.3 % cut forces CSI to hold equipment purchases

TWIN FALLS - The College of Southern Idaho will not buy some vocational equipment and professors will only attend mandatory professional meetings in the wake of Gov. Cecil Andrus' mandated 1.3 percent cut in spending.

President Gerald Meyerhoffer told college trustees Tuesday the measures would have the smallest impact on students.

He said the college will receive $85,000 less money than originally budgeted.

Man arraigned on attempted rape of local woman

TWIN FALLS - A 34-year-old man was arraigned Tuesday on charges that he tried to rape a Twin Falls woman outside Anderson's IGA Super-Center late Monday.

Harold Jay Garrison has been charged with aggravated assault and battery with intent to commit a serious felony. Garrison allegedly grabbed the woman from behind as she used a public telephone and then held a broken bottle to her face, threatening her.

Garrison's bond has been set at $10,000. He is still in custody.

The victim told Twin Falls police officer Daniel Chatterton that her attacker forced her to the ground and tried to pull her around the corner of the store. She fought, kicking the man in the stomach and groin area until he fled.

Chatterton said Garrison was arrested early Tuesday about a block from the scene of the attack.

The date for the preliminary hearing has not been set. Garrison's address was listed in court records as a motel in Twin Falls.

Sign company's appeal delayed until sides agree

TWIN FALLS - The Twin Falls City Council has tabled the appeal of a sign company that was denied permission to take down an old billboard and replace it.

The company appealing the denial, Metropolitan Outdoor Advertising, will meet with the city Planning and Zoning Commission and Community Development Director LaMar Orton this week to talk about the decision.

City Councilman Jim Vickers suggested Monday night that the council wait on deciding about the appeal until the sign company and city officials have tried to reach a compromise.

Metropolitan wanted to take down a billboard near the corner of Washington Street and Second Avenue West and replace it with a newer one. But Orton said the new sign would not meet the 1,000-foot separation from the next closest billboard required by city law.

The Planning and Zoning Commission is considering banning billboards or making them conform to the free-standing city laws on free-standing signs.

Jerome, Twin Falls students can ride bus to class

Trans IV Bus will be offering student transportation from Jerome and Twin Falls county students attending public and private schools in Twin Falls.

The service is limited to space available. For more information and registration, call 736-2133 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Meetings scheduled for high school bond issue

WENDELL - Two public meetings have been scheduled to discuss next month's bond issue election for a new high school.

There will be a Parent Teacher Student Association (PTSA) meeting at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday in the elementary school multipurpose room.

In addition to information about the bond issue election, elementary administrators and teachers will be introduced.

An open house at the high school is slated for 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 29. The public is invited to visit several stations throughout the building for information about the bond and other school-related news, including curriculum changes and new staff members.

For more information, call the school administration office at 536-2418.

Burglars stole souvenir T-shirts, hats, donations

TWIN FALLS - Burglars made off with 40 Idaho souvenir T-shirts, 15 hats and a donation box from the Buz Langdon Visitor Center near the Portine Bridge Monday night, according to Twin Falls County Sheriff's Department.

An estimate of damages could not be determined because it is unknown how much money was left in the donation box. Deputy Lita Murphy said. The cost of the shirts were estimated at $12 apiece. The hats cost $7 each.

The burglars broke a window and entered through the west side of the building, Murphy said. There are no suspects in the case.

Budget, lunch program cuts likely, officials say

By Terrell Williams
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL - The fund balance of the Wendell School District is too low, school auditor Bob Poulsen told trustees Monday.

Also, the hot lunch program is "about to the point where it's not going to make it any longer," he said.

"In reviewing the district's 94-page annual audit report, Poulsen said the $2.5 million budget had a carryover of only $316,671 from last year's budget.

"We consider that not sufficient," Poulsen said, adding he recommended a balance of twice that amount.

Wendell, like many other school districts, received less state funding than expected last year, the auditor explained, noting that it seems to be the A-3 or smaller districts that were hit with the highest percentage of funding loss. A-3 districts are those with enrollments between 150 and 299 students.

According to the audit report, the district received $1,636,29 in state funding, which was $58,246 less than expected in the budget.

The "hot lunch program" also suffered from federal cuts both in funding and in commodities, Poulsen reported.

Citizens want youth crime prevention

By Christopher R. Clark
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY - A group of concerned citizens approached the Burley City Council Monday night and for the second time asked what can be done about youths who commit crimes in the city of Burley.

Pam Denton, who is a local business owner and mother of a youth who was recently stabbed during a fight in the downtown area, told the council members that she is impatiently awaiting the apprehension and conviction of the individual who committed the crime.

"I am not down on the Sheriff's department," Denton said, "but I am hoping there is something we can do together, as a community, to prevent future violence in our city."

"I know I am a very impatient woman, but it has been three weeks now and no formal charges have been brought against anyone."

Denton asked the council about community service programs for offenders who were found guilty of defacing property. Several council members questioned the legality of such a program.

Councilman Derlin Taylor suggested Denton and her supporters meet with a few council members, the County Commissioners and the sheriff to get some help with gang-related violence in the city.

Dolphins dish out $25 million on Marino

The Associated Press

The Miami Dolphins have one first-string quarterback, are perfectly content with him, and are willing to give him the largest financial package in the NFL.

The New York Giants have two first-string quarterbacks and are trying to figure out if they can use them both in the same game.

While the Dolphins were signing Dan Marino to a contract extension expected to pay him $25 million over five years, Giants' coach Ray Handley was once again delaying his announcement on his starter — Phil Simms or Jeff Hostetler. In fact, he said he was considering alternating the two during some games.

Marino's new contract, announced at a Miami news conference, includes a $3 million signing bonus that added to his $1.6 million salary this year will bring his earnings to $4.6 million, $600,000 more than Joe Montana is due to make this year.

Highest NFL contract packages

The highest overall contract packages in the NFL based on figures in the NFLPA salary report and AP reports:

1. Dan Marino, Miami, $25 million, five years.
 2. Jim Kelly, Buffalo, $20 million, seven years.
 3. Randall Cunningham, Philadelphia, $15.4 million, six years.
 4. Jeff George, Indianapolis, $15 million, six years.
 5. Bernie Kosar, Cleveland, $14 million, six years.
 6. Joe Montana, San Francisco, $13 million, four years.
 7. Howie Long, Los Angeles Raiders, $9.7 million, seven years.
 8. Chris Doleman, Minnesota, $8.75 million, five years.
 9. Barry Sanders, Detroit, $8.6 million, six years.
 10. Keith Millard, Minnesota, $8 million, four years.
 - (tie) Warren Moon, Houston, $8 million, four years.

In New Jersey, meanwhile, Handley was still mulling over what to do about Simms and Hostetler, each of whom has quarterbacked the Giants to a Super Bowl victory.

Handley, who promised to make a decision after the third exhibition game, met with both quarterbacks and again said he had two first-stringers.

"I didn't want to make the quarterback situation out to be a circus," Handley said. "I'm trying to determine how to come out of this without the perception that there's a loser here."

There were a lot of other losers around the NFL as teams pared down to the 60-player roster limit by the 4 p.m. EDT deadline.

Among the prominent names to go Tuesday were two Broncos — Melvin Bratton, Denver's starting fullback the past two seasons and linebacker Rick Dennison, a 10-year veteran. Atlanta cut another 10-year man, offensive lineman John Scully; Cleveland released 36-year-old Roy Green, one of the NFL's top receivers, and the Rams cut defensive lineman Doug Reed, an 8-year veteran.

Backup quarterback Steve Pelluer, meanwhile, returned to the Chiefs after walking away a week ago and told coach Marty Schottenheimer he wanted to resume his career.

"I've been dealing with a personal issue, and now I've overcome that," said Pelluer. Please see NFL/66

Ore-Ida Women's Amateur starts today

BURLEY — The Ore-Ida Women's Amateur Golf Championship, among the state's best for quality of competition and peripheral amenities, starts its two-day run this morning at Burley Municipal Golf Course.

The tournament is guaranteed a new champion as defending titlist, Jean Smith of Boise, has been forced to miss most of this season due to a leg injury sustained in a golf cart accident.

But state champion Karen Darrington of Boise heads up a strong championship flight that includes several past Ore-Ida and state champions. Darrington won her fifth state crown this year.

Past champions are Doris Ellingham of Burley, who showed her game in top shape when she won the state seniors title on this course last weekend. Also there will be Ginny Rasmussen of Idaho Falls who was two strokes behind Ellingham in the senior test. Past champion Karen Parsons is back and Joyce Billings of Utah heads up a contingent of low handicaps from the Beehive State.

The tournament, which pays merchandise prizes in red and green in all flights, will run from 9 a.m. shotgun starts both days. That will allow the field to attend the awards presentation luncheon following play Thursday.

McKean jumps to 2nd place in NASCAR region standings

SCOTT'S VALLEY, Calif. — With victories in the two main events at Magic Valley Speedway Saturday, Eddy McKean of Jerome vaulted to second place in the NASCAR Great Northern Region standings. His 11th and 12th wins of the season moved him to within 50 points of leader Roger Gannon of Redding, Calif.

McKean actually finished first and second in the two races Saturday. He was awarded the second victory after a protest against Chris Jordan's car was upheld, leading to a disqualification.

Four drivers remain in contention for the region's $25,000 top prize. McKean, with a 174.2 point per start average, has the region's best record with all 18 starts finishing in the top five. Gannon has won 10 times and averages 167.6 points for his 19 starts. Kevin Nuttleman of Bangor, Wis., the 1989 Great Northern champion if fourth with 10 wins and a 170.4 average in 18 starts. Gary Lewis of Bothell, Wash., has only six victories but still holds a 162.1 average.

Gannon has 3,185 points to McKean's 3,135. Lewis has 3,079, 11 ahead of Nuttleman.

Recent victories have moved Kent Cooper into second place for the PRCA saddle bronc competition.

Albion's Cooper riding high after vaulting up saddle bronc standings

By Ron Gates
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Like most everyone else, professional cowboys have their good days and their bad ones. After pocketing $32,000 prize money in a single month, Kent Cooper is definitely on an upswing. Triumphs at the prestigious Cheyenne Frontier Days and Calgary Stampede rodeos helped vault the Albion man into second place among Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association saddle bronc contestants.

"Going into July I was about sixth," said the mustachioed Cooper, who has an unparalleled 70 90-point-plus rides on the books: "It's a plateau he'd like to reach again. Possibly in next month's Twin Falls County Rodeo.

"I'll be home for a few days, then rodeo in Kennelwick and Bremerton Washington on Thursday and Friday," Cooper said. After that, it's on to Tremonton, Utah and Pueblo, Colo. "It's a bunch. Between now and then I'll probably hit 15 rodeos."

That's slightly above average for man who participates in 75 to 80 such events per season, yet easily explained.

"Labor day is a big time in pro rodeo," he said.

If he can maintain the torrid pace Cooper, a perennial Wilderness Circuit champion, could well carry enough momentum into the National Finals Rodeo to claim the one prize that's so far eluded him.

"He was second in the 1984 NFR," said long time rodeo announcer Zeb Bell of Hansen. "He lost the title by less than $500. I was an announcer at that event. We didn't have the expediency of a computer seven years ago and, when it

Soviet athletes still competing despite turmoil in homeland

The Associated Press

While political turmoil rages in the Soviet Union, the country's athletes continue to compete internationally.

The chief of the Soviet track and field delegation to the World Championships in Tokyo said Tuesday he expects most of the 99-member team to arrive in Japan on Wednesday night. The team was scheduled to fly from Vladivostok to Nagoya on Wednesday.

Four other Soviet athletes, including pole vaulter Sergei Bubka, were scheduled to fly from Moscow to Japan on Thursday. The championships begin Friday.

"I am told flights are regular, so the team should be here as scheduled," said Igor Ter Ovanessian. "I have had no reports of any delays."

An 11-member team from the Soviet Union is in San Antonio for the World Championships of Modern Pentathlon, which begins Wednesday.

Members of the team spoke with reporters Monday, after news of the Soviet coup had been out for several hours.

"I expected it for a long time," competitor Herman Yuferev said.

Yuferev said his group had made a number of calls to the Soviet Union, but had been unable to get through to their family members.

The group plans to return home Aug. 29. At Indianapolis, Soviet gymnasts hoping to participate in next year's Barcelona Olympics must compete in the World Gymnastics Championships next month.

"Competitors have to be in our event if they want to be in the Olympics," said Mike Jacki, executive director of the Indianapolis-based U.S. Gymnastics Federation and president of the local organizing committee for the World Championships.

The Soviets have not indicated they will withdraw from the event, to be held Sept. 6-15, Jacki said. Soviet sports officials likely are already taking steps to ensure their athletes' participation, he said.

The upheaval in the Soviet Union also complicates the Philadelphia Flyers' efforts to sign a Soviet hockey star.

The Flyers are trying to sign left winger Andrei Lokakin, a member of the Soviet gold medal team at the 1988 Olympics who was drafted in the seventh round.

"As of this morning, I have no idea where we stand," assistant general manager John Blackwell said Monday.

NHL spokesman Greg Ingalls says the league has no idea about the status of its Soviet players.

Alexander Volkov, a forward with the Atlanta Hawks, was the first heard about the upheaval by telephone from a friend in New York.

"My friend said, 'Gorbachev is out,'" Volkov said Monday. "I couldn't believe it. But now I see. I am very worried. Look like big mess in Soviet Union."

Birmingham AA ballclub wants to be Bo's rehab site

The Associated Press

Bo Jackson was cleared to start his minor league rehabilitation, but the Chicago White Sox haven't determined where that will be.

Birmingham loves Bo and the Class AA Barons hope Jackson returns home to play for them before moving up to the Chicago White Sox, the general manager of the farm club said Tuesday.

Jackson has been pronounced fit to return to baseball and will undergo minor league rehabilitation at a Chicago White Sox farm club to be announced on Tuesday. White Sox officials refused Tuesday to comment on where Jackson will go.

"I'd love to have him," said Joe Scrivner, general manager of the White Sox Birmingham Barons affiliate.

Jackson has a house in Birmingham, and Scrivner said there are many other reasons for Jackson to go there.

"This is one of the best parks in the country, his doctor is here, his friends and family are here," said Scrivner, whose team plays in a 10,000-seat park.

"He grew up outside Birmingham and went to Auburn about two hours away."

The outfielder-running back injured his left hip on Jan. 13 in the NFL playoffs for the Los Angeles Raiders. Jackson was released in March by the Kansas City Royals, who deemed the injury career threatening. He was then signed by the White Sox.

Idaho wants another shot at champs

The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Idaho Coach John L. Smith would love to have another crack at Division I-A champion Georgia Southern, like he had in this past season's national championship game.

The goal isn't out of sight for a Vandal squad coming off a 9-4 season that ended with a 28-27 defeat in the quarterfinals of the divisional playoffs to the national championship team.

Idaho also returns a top quarterback, sophomore Doug Nusmeier, the division's best running back, senior Devon Pearce, and a wide-receiver, Kasey Dunn, who could break the Big Sky Conference career reception record this season.

The Vandals, picked by conference coaches to take the crown, have made the playoffs six straight years and have the Big Sky's best league record since 1982, 52-15. Smith acknowledges it's better to have great expectations than to have a team expected to be a tail-ender.

"I'd rather be dealing with that than dealing with the other end of it," he said. "(But) it is not that important. It's finishing at the end of the season."

"It's a great honor for our kids to see that people rate them so highly. It's what happens from here out that counts," Smith added.

He says Idaho should benefit from a favorable 1991 schedule. The Vandals have seven home games and host all of the top Big Sky teams. The four road Big Sky games are against teams with a combined 10-22 record last year.

"The home schedule leans to our advantage. I'd say, just end of it," he said. "But it's not that important. It's finishing at the end of the season."

Leading the way will be Nusmeier, who passed for 1,536 yards and 11 touchdowns before breaking an ankle Oct. 6 in a 59-21 blowout over Chico State. Senior Pat West, a three-year letterman, will play backup in case Nusmeier is injured again.

To offset Nusmeier's passing, Smith will look to Pearce. He topped the division with 1,393 yards, 15 touchdowns, and average of 126.6 yards per game and a good average of 5.2 yards per carry.

PGA champ earns spot in Skins Game

PONTEVEDRA, Fla. — John Daly, picking up another benefit from his victory in the PGA Championship, was among the four golfers named today to play in the Skins Game later this year.

Curtis Strange, U.S. Open champion Payne Stewart and Jack Nicklaus also will compete in the 18-hole event Nov. 30-Dec. 1 at La Quinta, Calif., the PGA Tour announced.

Strange is the defending champion in the made-for-television event. Stewart and Nicklaus were selected by a panel and Daly was the choice of the tournament sponsors, Ohlmyer Communications and TransWorld International.

Crenshaw, Azinger win golf challenge

PORTLAND, Ore. — Ben Crenshaw sank a 35-foot birdie putt on the second playoff hole Tuesday to help him and teammate Paul Azinger the $100,000 first prize in the Fred Meyer Challenge.

Three teams finished tied at 19-under 125 through the two rounds, forcing a first playoff in the six-year history of the best-ball tournament.

Two teams tied for first in the initial Fred Meyer event, but no playoff was held.

First-round leaders Raymond Floyd and Fred Couples tied for second with Bob Gilder and Mark Calcavecchia. Each second-place team won $37,500.

23-year-old takes U.S. Amateur lead

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. — Franklin Langham figured he needed a good showing before talking on The Honors Course in the U.S. Amateur and the All-American from Georgia got it.

The 23-year-old Langham, from Thomson, Ga., had five birdies for a first-round 65 on Tuesday at the Cleveland (Tenn.) Country Club, one of two courses being used for the tournament's first two rounds.

Mark Teleico, of Aurora, Ohio, and Hans Albersson, of Manchester Village, N.J., had the best rounds on the other course, shooting 2-under-par 70s at The Honors Course outside Chattanooga.

The defending champion and tournament favorite, Phil Mickelson of San Diego, shot a two-over-par 72 at Cleveland, struggling with three bogeys on the front nine.

The field of 312 golfers will shrink to 64 after a second round of stroke play Wednesday — they play 18 holes at each course — then the tournament finishes up with seven match play rounds at The Honors Course.

Journalist gets $21,000 from Browns

CLEVELAND — A freelance journalist who filed a lawsuit against the Cleveland Browns alleging he was abused by players in the team's locker room said Tuesday he will receive a $21,000 settlement.

Ken Myers, 33, who has covered the Browns for USA Today, filed suit Sept. 14 in Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court claiming he was abused and prevented from doing his job during two incidents in the locker room of the team's former practice quarters at Baldwin-Wallace College in 1989.

Myers claimed six players hurled equipment at him and used foul language toward him Dec. 29, 1989, and Jan. 10, 1990.

The outbursts came after players learned that Myers had written a story for the Akron Beacon Journal based on an interview with a woman who had been charged in 1988 with promoting prostitution. The July 16, 1989, article referred to certain Browns players the woman reportedly knew.

Taiwan opens with win over Dominicans

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Taiwan showed off another weapon in its Little League World Series arsenal on Tuesday, and it is the one thing that can do the most damage to other teams.

It is luck, and adding it to powerful hitting and precision pitching gave Taiwan a 3-2 victory over the Dominican Republic in Tuesday's opening game of the Little League World Series.

"We were very lucky to win this game," manager Lai Ta-Yuan said after Taiwan held off three Dominican rallies to remain alive in search for its 15th title in 19-World Series appearances.

After a 2-hour, 40-minute rain delay, the other opening-day game, matching Staten Island, N.Y., and Hamilton, Ohio, was postponed a day.

Fang Sheng's two-run homer in the first got the Far East champions started, and Lin Wei-Chu's homer in the fifth gave Taiwan the victory.

Pan Chih-Chang struck out 13, including Dominican Republic cleanup hitter Hector Morban four times. Wen Hsin-Yo saved the game for Taiwan with a catch that robbed Ramon Corporan of what would have been a three-run homer in the fifth.

Taiwan moved into Thursday's semifinals against the winner of Wednesday's game between Glouce Bay, Nova Scotia, and Dhahran Saudi Arabia. A U.S. quarterfinal between San Ramon Valley, Calif., and Dunedin, Fla., also is set Wednesday.

Little League World Series umpires, managers work around language barrier

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Little League umpires and managers worked around a language barrier in Senior League and Big League — know just enough English to get them in trouble. One player, he remembers, knew three words he shouldn't have.

According to Fiebig, older players — in Senior League and Big League — know just enough English to get them in trouble. One player, he remembers, knew three words he shouldn't have.

"It was 'supposed to know English, but ..." he said.

The trouble is rarely serious — the umpires all said they can get their point across. There has never been an ejection in the Little League World Series. This is Little League's 45th tournament.

"I guess if there's an argument, the umpire yells at the interpreter and the interpreter is supposed to turn and yell at the manager," Little League spokesman Steve Weller said, tongue-in-cheek.

At Monday night's coaches meeting, with a Spanish translator present, Little League officials had trouble with the coin flip.

"We needed an interpreter for the interpreter last night," Fiebig said.

After the Dominican Republic won the toss, no one could determine whether it wanted to bat first or last.

"We would ask, 'Do you want to be home or visitor?' and they would say 'Visitor?' like they didn't understand," Little League spokesman Steve Weller said.

Finally, the manager of the Saudi Arabian team, who speaks Spanish fluently, was able to get the point across. The Dominican Republic was the home team.

After Tuesday's game, won by Taiwan 3-2, coaches from both teams were invited to appear in a press conference simultaneously.

"If they had their second pitcher start the game, we wouldn't have been able to hit," Lai said. "They had some good hits, and if they had gone over (the fence), we would have lost by four runs or more."

who will be able to practice with a roster of players that will keep him from being counted against the 60-player limit.

"Now I'm trying to work it through with Marty. I made a decision to come back and want to see if it's possible."

The Giants' quarterbacks seemed impatient after meeting with Handley for the second straight day.

The 35-year-old Simms, who has started for most of his 12-year career and led the Giants to an 11-2 start last year before injuring a foot, did not talk to the media. Hostetler, who carried the Giants through two playoff wins and the Super Bowl victory over Buffalo, had only a few words to say.

Asked if the situation had become firing, he replied: "Yeah." Asked how he had handled it, the 30-year-old Hostetler replied: "You want."

Handley said he hoped to announce a decision Wednesday.

He said one option would be to use both quarterbacks, leaving opponents wondering whether to prepare for Simms' dropback style or Hostetler's scrambling. He said he got the idea while discussing the situation with his offensive coaches.

"Whether that's feasible or not, I'm not certain," Handley said. "I've said continually that these guys are interchangeable. Ideally, it would be a situation where if Simms or Hostetler came in, the team would respond and then say, 'Who was that?'"

Aside from Bratton, Dennison and Scully, most of Tuesday's cuts were low draft choices, free agents and marginal veterans.

Smith said Dunn will get a lot of attention from opposing teams.

"We have to take some of the pressure off him. Some of the other receivers are going to have to perform, and we will be throwing the ball to them to take the pressure off Casey."

"Our offensive line needs to mature, but we are all right at the skill spots," he said. "We are young in the secondary and young at linebacker. The defensive front will have to carry us."

Jeff Robinson, a 6-5, 255-pound junior defensive end, is the key to the defense, Smith said.

"Our front on defense is as good as any in the league, if not the best. Jeff Robinson is a great player."

was over, nobody out of 20,000 people in the arena knew whether he or Brad Germundsen had won.

"When Germundsen's name was announced you could have heard a pin drop. Everyone thought Kent had won the national crown. He lost by the slimmest of margins."

"I'm chasing one (Billy) and two (defending NFR champ Robert and younger brother Dan) are chasing me." Cooper added with a grin.

"Thank God I'm not having to chase all three of them."

A laborer, spurring spinning, kicking 1,300-pound broncs for living is, nonetheless, a physically demanding enterprise.

"You've got to be limber," Cooper cautioned. "You do this every day and it doesn't matter who you are, you're going to get some sore spots. Being flexible will keep you away from injury."

"Conditioning doesn't have to be better than in other sports, but it's a different kind of conditioning," he continued. "It takes more strength, but it's an eight to ten-second deal. You don't need a lot of endurance."

Discounting, "couple hundred thousand dollars," the proceeds of special contests, the 35-year-old Cooper's career earnings total right around $570,000.

In fact, Cooper, who raises horses on his Cassia County ranch could, should he so desire, enjoy a less strenuous career breeding quarter horses. From a financial point of view, rodeo has been kind, but considerations other than money and longevity are involved.

"I'll do it till I can't win or it's not fun anymore," said Cooper. "While you're still having fun and earning money it's hard to quit."

Home-canning creates endless pasta-bilities

What's inexpensive, quick and easy to make, loved by virtually everyone and full of heart-healthy carbohydrates? The answer is pasta.

Apart from legend, there is very little knowledge about the actual origins of pasta. Rice pastas were known early in China, and pastas made of wheat were used in India and Arabia long before their introduction to Europe in the 11th or 12th century. Of course, there is also the famous legend about how Marco Polo brought a pasta recipe back to Italy from his Asian journeys.

The recipes provided here make use of another great American cooking tradition: home-canned tomato sauce. With one simple recipe for homemade tomato sauce, you can create a variety of fresh, delicious pasta dishes. It's simply a matter of canning enough tomato sauce, when tomatoes are in season, and keeping it handy throughout the rest of the year.

Like pasta, home canning provides nutritional control, economy and convenience. It also provides a freshness that can't be duplicated in store-bought sauces and mixes. So put up several batches of homemade tomato sauce, stock up on pasta and follow these simple and delicious recipes.

PASTA SAUCE

- 20 pounds tomatoes, peeled and cored
 - ½ cup chopped onion, about 1 large onion
 - ½ cup chopped celery, about 1 stalk
 - 4 cloves garlic, minced
 - 2 tablespoons olive oil
 - 2 tablespoons brown sugar
 - 2 tablespoons oregano
 - 2 tablespoons parsley
 - ½ teaspoon black pepper
 - 1 teaspoon crushed red pepper
 - 3 bay leaves
- In large sauce pot cook onion, celery and garlic in oil until tender but not browned. Chop tomatoes in food processor or blender. Add tomatoes and remaining

Prepare home canning jars and lids according to manufacturer's instructions.

Press tomato mixture through a sieve or food mill. Press out liquid and pulp. Discard seeds. Return to large sauce pot and cook uncovered over medium-high heat until sauce thickens. Stir frequently to prevent sticking. Carefully ladle into hot jars, leaving ½-inch head space.

Process 35 minutes in a boiling water bath canner.

BASIL CHICKEN AND PASTA

1 pound skinned and boned chicken breasts

- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
 - 1 cup sliced mushrooms
 - 3 tablespoons chopped fresh basil
 - 2 pints pasta sauce
 - ½ cup grated Romano cheese
 - 8 ounces fettuccine
- Cut chicken into 1-inch pieces. Sauté chicken in vegetable oil until meat turns white. Add mushrooms and pasta; continue cooking until mushrooms are tender.

Add pasta sauce and simmer mixture until heated through.

Mini-Cassia area cook plans to autograph book at party

American Gas Association says gas grilling is cheaper

Here are some bits and pieces from the world of barbecue.

Although some of us won't give up the flavor of charcoal grilled food, the American Gas Association says gas is cheaper. It reports that if you had five cookouts a week for nine months over three years, you'd spend $610.20 on charcoal and lighter fluid 25oz. $129.60 on gas.

At the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena, researchers now believe the smoke emitted from barbecued meat might be a major source of air pollution, at least in their home state. Meat smoke, says a report in Science News, might exceed any other single source of tiny organic particles, including fireplaces, gasoline- and diesel-powered engines, forest fires and cigarettes.

Magazine says recession forces inexpensive eating

How has the recession changed the way we eat? Advertising Age reports we're not eating less, but we're definitely eating cheaper.

During the first four months of this year, we bought cheaper foods and more private label brands. We also clipped more coupons — almost 3 percent.

Based on dollar sales from the first four months of '91 vs. '90, here's what's up: canned soups up 7 percent; dry soups, 7 percent; frozen pizza, 5 percent; and packaged dry dinners, 5 percent.

What's down on shopping lists: English mums down 7 percent; peanut butter, 11 percent; coffee, 3 percent; and snack cakes, 2 percent.

Author's new book uses food to teach kids about fractions

Math — especially fractions — is not a subject many kids want to sink their teeth into. But now children's author-illustrator Bruce McMillan has done his best to turn the subject into a treat with his new book, "Eating Fractions" (Scholastic Inc., 1991, $13.95).

Through colorful photographs — and recipes too — children calculate as they eat their way through quarter, third and half pieces of bananas, pizza, strawberry pie and a special "Wiggle Pea" salad, made with gelatin, of course.

For fast breakfast, make it before a busy morning

By Felicia Grossetto
 Knight-Ridder News Service

Wake up: It's time for breakfast.

Too busy, you say. Never can eat in the morning. Got to get the kids up, dog walked, cat fed, coffee made, paper read, lunches packed, self washed and dressed and out the door. Who has time to eat breakfast, let alone cook it?

True, weekday mornings are not the time for most of us to whip up pancakes or even scramble an occasional egg. But aren't you weary of the old cereal-bagel-toast-juce routine?

Thought so. Why not rethink the day's first meal? How about breakfast pizza? A baked apple? A toasted slice of homemade quick bread with cheese? A made-by-you frozen yogurt pop? A warm slice of homemade quick?

Imagine the first bite from a bowl of cold, juicy grapefruit-and-orange sections, sprinkled with a few berries and a mango slice or so.

Impossible? Nah. Not if you're willing to do a little planning, a little night-before preparation and a little weekend baking. Then, rely on the microwave and blender to jump-start your mornings.

Most of these recipes are easy and designed to be made on weekends or the night before, then wrapped and refrigerated or frozen. That puts you just minutes away from breakfast, even on those days when, just opening the refrigerator to get the juice, seems more than you can handle.

Besides, you know that breakfast is good for you, the most important meal of the day, and so forth. We won't belabor that here, except to note that breakfast-eaters tend to be thinner and more energetic than those who skip it. And teachers will tell. Please see BREAKFAST/C8.

Vi Harrison bakes better when using buttermilk

By Joan Bean
 Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — When Vi Harrison sets out to mix up a batch of biscuits, rolls, pancakes or scones, buttermilk is usually among the assembled ingredients.

"My husband, being from the South, liked buttermilk," she says. "I was raised on a farm and we made our own butter, and my mother cooked with buttermilk. So I was used to it."

Harrison has been cooking with buttermilk since she and her husband Emmett were married. She says it adds a little better consistency — a different texture.

"Buttermilk always makes things just a little bit heavier — not quite as light," she says.

She has about 100 cookbooks to choose recipes from. She began her collection in 1943 with The Searchlight Recipe Book, from Household magazine.

"It's been sort of a staple," she says. "It's one of those cookbooks that you always go back to."

On about the first of November she will open the cookbook to page 63 and follow directions for making her family's best-loved fruitcake. She will use another of her favorite cooking ingredients: applesauce.

She has changed and added a little to the original recipe which follows. Tuck it away and use it on a cool November day — or right now, if you can find all the ingredients. But when you do decide to make fruitcakes, she says you have to set aside a day for it, "and that's all you do."

APPLESAUCE FRUITCAKE

- 1 large package candied fruit mix
 - 2 small packages candied pineapple
 - 2 small packages red cherries
 - 1 small package green cherries,
 - 1 box dark seedless raisins
 - 1 box white raisins
 - About 2 pounds pecans, halved
 - ¼ pound citron, thinly sliced (optional)
 - 1 cup whole wheat flour
 - 2 1/3 cups thick, well drained applesauce (sieve it, if desired — Harrison does not)
 - 1 cup shortening
 - 1 egg, well beaten
 - 4 teaspoons baking soda
 - 3 teaspoons cinnamon
 - 1 teaspoon mace
 - 1 teaspoon allspice
 - 1 teaspoon cloves
 - 2 teaspoons nutmeg
 - 2/3 cup molasses (she prefers Grandma's Molasses)
 - 2 cups brown sugar
 - 6 tablespoons lemon juice
 - 4 cups white flour
 - 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
 - Orange juice or light fruit wine
- Dredge all fruits and nuts with the 1 cup whole wheat

MACE BALLOON/By The Times-News

flour. In a very large bowl, combine molasses, eggs and lemon juice. In another bowl cream sugar and shortening and add applesauce. Add this to the molasses mixture. Sift the white flour and measure. Sift it again with the baking soda, salt, and all the spices and add to other mixture. Add the flour-dredged fruits and nuts, and mix.

Prepare 6-8 pans, the amount depending upon sizes used. Harrison's loaf pans hold a 1 pound loaf. She also uses gelatin molds and bundt pans. These may be lined with 2 layers of waxed paper sprayed with a vegetable spray or greased with margarine; or just spray the pans with vegetable spray and set each of them in heavy foil, bright side in, so that the foil comes up the sides to just a little bit above the edge of pan.

Put batter into pans to about 7/8 inch from top. Bake in a slow oven 300-325 degrees for about 2 hours. After about the first hour, about every 1/2 hour, start checking for doneness with a toothpick. When the pick comes out just slightly moist — not wet or sticky, the cake is done. You don't want them to be dry.

Take cakes out of oven, but do not remove from pans right away. Pour about 1/2 cup juice or light fruit wine over cakes immediately, while they are still hot. Use about 1/2 cup for larger pans. Let them stand for about 1/2 hour. Then turn out onto racks to cool. After they have cooled, wrap in foil, and put into plastic bags. Do not put them in the refrigerator or freezer, but in a cool place to season for about a month. Then store in refrigerator or freezer.

Harrison has a buttermilk biscuit recipe that she mixes up and stores in the refrigerator in an air-tight container. Harrison keeps her dough in the refrigerator for up to three weeks, but advises using it up as quickly as possible.

She says it's great for women who work outside the home. It's always ready to go.

OSARK BISCUITS

- To 1 cup warm water, add:
 - 1 package dry yeast
 - 1 tablespoon sugar
 - Dissolve and let stand 5 minutes. Then sift together:
 - 5 cups self-rising flour
 - A pinch of salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon soda
- Add to the yeast mixture to dry ingredients, along with:

- 1/2 cup Wesson oil
- 2 cups buttermilk

Mix well and place in a container with a tight lid; to seal. This will keep indefinitely in the refrigerator, although Harrison recommends using it up as quickly as possible. When ready to use, pinch off desired size pieces of dough and mold with hands on floured board. Turn each unbaked biscuit over in the greased pan. Bake at 450 degrees for about 15-20 minutes, until brown.

"The good thing about these is you don't have to let the oven get hot," she says. "You can put them in immediately when you turn the oven on and let them rise and cook while the oven is heating."

And next, let's try...

BUTTERMILK CORNBREAD

- 1 1/2 cups corn meal
- 3 tablespoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon soda
- 1/2 cup white flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1/2 cup soft shortening
- 1 egg, well beaten

Sift together all dry ingredients. Add soft shortening and mix well. Add milk and beaten egg, and continue stirring until well blended. Pour into an approximately 10 inch square, greased pan or corn pone mold. Bake at 450-500 degrees for 20-25 minutes. Yield 6-8 servings.

Food service departments announce lunch policies

Food service departments of Region IV school districts have announced the policy for free and reduced-price meals for children unable to pay the full price of meals served under the National School Lunch Program. A copy of the policy is available at all schools and at the superintendent's offices and may be reviewed by any interested party.

Federal income guidelines are used in determining eligibility. Children from households whose income is at or below the levels below are eligible for free or reduced-price meals.

Federal guidelines effective from July 1, 1991 to June 30, 1992 are as follows: For free meals, a one-person household annual income should be $8,606; two-person household, $11,544. For each additional family member, add $2,938 annual income. For reduced-price meals, a one-person household annual income should be $12,247; two-person household, $16,428. Add $4,181 for each additional family member.

Application forms are being sent to all homes with a letter to parents or guardians. To apply for free or reduced-price meals, households should fill out the application and return it to the school.

Additional copies are available from the principal's office in each school. The information provided on the application will be used for the purpose of determining eligibility and may be verified at any time during the school year by the school or other program officials.

To determine eligibility, households receiving food stamps or AFDC must list the child's name, their food stamp or AFDC case number and the signature and name of an adult household member.

Households not receiving food stamps or AFDC must list the names of all household members, Social Security numbers of all adult household members, or a statement that the household member does not possess one, a total household income and the amount and source of the income received by each household member and the signature of an adult household member certifying that the information provided is correct. Applications may be submitted at any time during the year.

Households that list a food stamp or AFDC case number must report when the household no longer receives these benefits. Other households approved for benefits are required to report increases in household income of over $50 per month or $600 per year and a decrease in household size.

Also, if a household member becomes unemployed or if the household size increases, the household should contact the school. Such changes may make the children of the household eligible for benefits if the household's income falls at or below the set levels.

In certain cases, foster children are also eligible for school meal benefits. If a household wishes to apply for benefits for foster children living with them, the household should contact the school for more information.

Information provided by the household is confidential and will be used only for the purposes of determining eligibility and verifying data. In the operation of child feeding programs administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, no child will be discriminated against because of race, color, sex, national origin, age or handicap. If any member of a household believes he or she has been discriminated against, he or she should write immediately to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, DC 20250.

Under the provisions of the free and reduced-price policy, applications will be reviewed and eligibility determined by the persons listed below for each school district. Parents or guardians dissatisfied with the eligibility ruling may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis. Parents wishing to make a formal appeal may make a request either orally or in writing as listed below.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Abby is on a two-week vacation. Following is a selection of some of her favorite past letters.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 55-year-old woman with a problem I've never seen in your column.

I have been going with this man for six years. He is 43, and he says he can't marry me because he promised his mama before she died three years ago that he wouldn't get married until his daddy got married, as she didn't want his daddy to be left all alone. His daddy hasn't got anybody to marry, and he isn't even looking.

Abby, I am no spring chicken, and I need to know how I can get this man either to let me quit him or marry me.

— NO SPRING CHICKEN IN ADA, OKLA.

DEAR ABBY: Only a dumb cluck would coop herself up waiting for her boyfriend's daddy to marry. Get another rooster on the roster.

DEAR ABBY: I have been living with Don for two years. I am 22 and he is 25.

Dear Abby
Abigail VanBuren

about bringing covered dishes to family gatherings, going to his folks' or hers for dinner, or for the weekend or the holidays, and I get more heartsick every day.

I've begun to realize what marriage is all about. It's really belonging to someone who loves you enough to want to make you a member of his family.

Don is always telling me what a wonderful arrangement we have and how much he loves me.

The past several months, I've been asking myself: "If it's so wonderful and he loves me so much, why do we lie, sneak around and let people assume we are married?"

Why doesn't he ask me to marry him and become a member of his family? They don't even know I exist.

— HEARTSICK

DEAR HEARTSICK: Because he doesn't want a legal commitment. And if he is able to get all the ben-fits of marriage with none of the responsibilities, who can blame him? I am assuming he didn't kidnap you. You agreed to live with him without marriage. You walked into it of your own free will, and you're free to walk out. Why don't you? I think you're ready.

DEAR ABBY: When I first heard about topless swimsuits for girls, I thought it was just a lot of talk, but yesterday I actually saw one for sale in a store!

If women would consider wearing a topless swimsuit in public, we have reached a new low in our civilization — even lower than the decadence that preceded the fall of the Roman Empire.

Topless swimsuits? Have we lost all sense of decency? Who cares if we are bombed back to the Stone Age? What's left to save?

— MOTHER OF GIRLS

DEAR MOTHER: The bottoms.

Abby's family recipes are included in her cookbooklet. Send a long, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Cookbooklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Letter of thanks

Employees do great job keeping Twin Falls clean

As chairman of the Western Days Art Show and the Art Guild of Magic Valley's 32nd Annual Art in the Park for 1991, I would personally like to say thank you to the city employees who take care of our city parks and our streets. I was told many times by out-of-town exhibitors what a beautiful town we have, as well as the City Park. They were also impressed at how clean everything was. This would not happen if the city employees didn't do their jobs so well. Many of the exhibitors said that they come to Twin Falls just because of our appearance. Thanks again, and I really do appreciate hearing these words from people who go to shows all over the Western states. I know from personal experience that many other places can't begin to compare to our own. CARMEN L. VAN ZANTE Twin Falls

The "Letter of Thanks" column will publish letters of up to 150 words from:

- Civic organizations thanking contributors or supporters.
Individuals thanking public agencies and civic organizations for extraordinary service.

If you would like to purchase a classified ad to express gratitude of a personal rather than public nature, call Times-News Customer Service at 733-0931.

What's what?

Slowest growers

Q. What sort of animal grows most slowly?

A. A Deep Sea clam, probably. Takes it about 100 years to grow a third of an inch.

Magyar, just about nowhere elsewhere. HOUSEWORK

Married men who do housework have told University of Washington pollsters they're quite content, leading pollsters to conclude that men who do housework have happier marriages than men who don't. Post this on the fridge.

Note, please, bispines are also native to Czechoslovakia.

Q. How many paintings gave Leonardo da Vinci his reputation as one of the world's greatest painters?

A. Seventeen, some unfinished.

The man who invented the never set. A. C. Gilbert was a doctor who never practiced medicine.

RAINBOWS

You've read that no two people see exactly the same rainbow. Children's verses are like that. So are their paintings. And their songs and dances. They make rainbows, sort of. And no two people see them in exactly the same way, either. A teacher told me that.

A biting snake is most likely to bite just a day or two before it sloughs its skin. It's eyes are clouded over. Can see much. It'll strike at anything then.

To grill a salmon, the Canadians say, measure its thickness at its thickest part, then give it 10 minutes per inch over the coal.

Home/garden

Water trees deeply

During the latter part of the summer, the deeper part of the soil becomes quite dry. Even regular lawn irrigation wets only the top few inches of soil. Trees need a long, soaking irrigation to reach deeper roots.

Allen Wilson Gardening

It is a good practice to water trees deeply now and again in late September and October to recharge the deeper part of the soil. Trees with plenty of water going into winter are more resistant to winter cold.

Most of the water absorbing roots of trees are located in a band near the outer reach of the branches. The most important area to soak deeply is a foot or two inside and outside the outer edge of the branches. Excessive water near the trunk can actually be harmful because it can cause crown rot. A slight mound of soil an inch or two deep near the trunk can prevent excessive water from collecting in that area.

In order to reach the deeper tree roots, enough water should be applied to reach two feet deep. In sandy soils an inch of water will wet the soil about 10 inches deep. In heavier clay soils, an inch of water will only penetrate about 6 inches. This means it will require 2 1/2 to 4 inches of water to wet the soil two feet deep, depending upon soil type.

Sprinkler hoses can be turned upside down so that water is confined to a narrow strip.

Because of slow application rate, it normally requires several hours to reach a two foot depth with this type of hose. With small trees, a basin or saucer can be made by placing a slight mound of soil in a circle near the outer edge of the branches. Then the basin can be flooded with water.

Fast treatment needed to remove oil

Q. Oil stains show up regularly on our concrete driveway. Is there a cleaner or combination of cleaners I can use to remove them? — W. Rueckert.

A. A container of absorbent material should be kept in a convenient place and sprinkled on oil stains as soon as they are discovered. The absorbent will draw out much of the stain and make it easier to clean up any residue. Cat litter is a good absorbent, and sand, sawdust or cement can also be used. Some auto-parts stores sell special absorbent materials, such as diatomaceous earth.

The stain should be fully covered with a layer of absorbent at least a quarter-inch thick. Allow the absorbent to work for five to 30 minutes, then sweep it up and apply fresh material for 5 to 30 minutes more. Repeat until no more oil can be absorbed.

If no granular or powdered absorbent is on hand, use a pad of paper towels, cleaning tissues or soft cloth to blot the stain; wiping will only spread and embed it.

Cleaning up residue of old stains is more difficult. A variety of special cleaners is sold at home centers and auto-parts stores, some for asphalt, some for concrete only and some for both. An example of a cleaner suitable for either surface is Klean-Strip's new Driveway and Patio Cleaner, a water-based product the manufacturer calls "environmentally considerate." For more information, write Klean-Strip, Box 1879, Memphis, Tenn. 38101.

Read and follow directions for special cleaners. For protection against splattering, wear goggles and gloves when using strong cleaners or solvents.

Other methods that can be used for residues or old stains:

- Saturate with engine cleaner, degreaser or paint thinner and cover with absorbent. Allow to work overnight then sweep up. Repeat if necessary.
- Apply a paste of water and TSP (trisodium phosphate), a heavy-duty cleaner sold at paint stores. Allow to dry overnight, then add water and scrub. Rinse and repeat if necessary.

Obviously, leaks from vehicles should be checked out and repaired as soon as possible. Unfortunately, many stains come from delivery and service vehicles over which homeowners have little control.

Q. Can you recommend a few good books to help us landscape our new house? — D. Ruesch.

The five category system of the voluntary film industry rating program is now as follows:

- G - General Audiences, all ages admitted.
- PG - Parental Guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.
- PG-13 - Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for children.
- R - Restricted, under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.
- NC-17 - No one under 17 admitted.

Do it yourself Gene Austin

A. "Tips for Carefree Landscapes," by Marianne Binetti ($7.95 paperback, $16.95 hard cover, Garden Way), is an excellent book for homeowners who want to dress up their properties but keep landscape maintenance at a minimum. The book has hundreds of tips for planting and caring for lawns, shrubs, flowers and other plants, but is short on illustrations. Call 800-827-8673 for more information.

"The New American Landscape Gardener," by Phebe Leighton and Calvin Simonds ($21.95 hard cover, Rodale Press), gives in-depth coverage of home landscaping and has some inspiring color photographs. Rock gardens, water gardens and wildlife gardens are covered along with more traditional landscaping treatments. This book can be ordered by calling 800-441-7761.

Q. I recently had new oak kitchen cabinets installed. How do I preserve the finish? — A. Castagna.

A. Waxing is the best treatment for almost any fine wood finish. For best results, use a high-quality, paste-type furniture or cabinet wax and follow directions on the container for applications and maintenance. Some top brands are Goddard's, Butcher's Wax, Antiquax and Renaissance Wax.

wood. What kind of soap should I use to clean it? — J.D. McGowan.

A. Almost any mild, diluted detergent can be used to clean painted outdoor furniture. Apply with a soft brush and rinse with a sponge and clear water or a fine spray from a hose. However, some do-it-yourselfers prefer Murphy's Oil Soap for cleaning all types of finished wood furniture and other woodwork. Add one-quarter cup of Murphy's to a gallon of warm water, apply with a soft cloth or brush and wipe dry.

Homeowners manual helps solve small, large problems

By Lynn Van Matre Chicago Tribune

a wide variety of design and construction options.

CHICAGO - Most of the time, owning your own home is a joy. There's the pride of possession. Furnishing the house is fun. Deciding on decorative touches is a delightful task.

James Slagberg and Susan Allen Toth's "A House of One's Own: Designing the House of Your Dreams" (Potter, 200 pages, $20 hardcover) takes a far more subjective first-person, anecdotal approach, with Slagberg drawing on his 30 years of experience as an architect as he describes how he and Toth built their country home.

Coping with household emergencies and routine home maintenance is a different story. It's a horrible, dreary business, and it's small wonder that most homeowners prefer not to think about what's going on behind the walls, under the floors and on the roof until confronted with a burst pipe or some other unpleasant surprise.

If the house of your dreams is a barn, Hubbard and Betsy Cobb's "Your Barn House" (Holt, 239 pages, $35 hardcover) tells how to convert an old barn into living space or build a new house in barn style. In 20 case histories, barn-house owners share their experiences and offer advice on what to expect in the way of problems and pleasures. The book includes a 16-page insert of color photographs.

"Most of us hope that we won't have to deal with many crises in our house, and subscribe happily to the maxim 'If it ain't broke, don't fix it'" the editors of Consumer Reports note in the introduction to Graham Blackburn's "Year-Round House Care" (Consumer Reports Books, 180 pages, $14.95 paperback).

Whether building or remodeling, it's vital that you and the suppliers, contractors and designers you're dealing with speak the same language. Fayal Greene's "The Anatomy of a House" (Doubleday, 108 pages, $9.95 paperback), a picture dictionary of architectural and design elements, is invaluable when you can visualize what you want but don't know the name for it. More than 500 line drawings and diagrams depict a variety of window styles, ceiling shapes, roof designs, kitchen and bathroom hardware and much more.

"Our lives are much too busy as it is without looking for extra work, especially in areas that may be largely a mystery to us. Unfortunately, the inner workings of a house are composed of vital systems which, if ignored, can break down and present us with precisely those emergencies we hope to avoid."

And if you're in the market for renovation supplies and vintage-looking fixtures and furnishings for an older home, check out "The Seventh Old House Catalogue" (Sterling/Main Street, 224 pages, $14.95 paperback). This new, updated edition lists sources for thousands of products and services.

If you know next to nothing about your home's inner workings, "Year-Round House Care" covers the basics in easy-to-understand style. The emphasis is on keeping small problems from turning into big ones, with chapters devoted to structural checks-ups, heating and cooling, plumbing and electrical systems, exterior cosmetic maintenance, roof care and preparing for winter.

And if your contents can prove hazardous to infants and young children, Jeanne Miller's "The Perfectly Safe Home" (Fireside, 284 pages, $9.95 paperback), aimed at parents of children 7 and under, is full of suggestions for creating a safe environment indoors and out. Topics include choosing children's furniture and toys, installing electrical outlet covers and child-proofing kitchens and bathrooms.

Once you've spotted a problem, you can handle it yourself, assuming you have the skills and time, or call in a professional. For do-it-yourselfers, the book also includes Consumer Reports ratings for a number of products, including paints and tools. Planning to build or remodel? The more you know going into a project, the less chance there is of it turning into a nightmare.

Phyllis Sperling and Lupe DiDonno's "How to Redesign & Renovate Your House or Apartment" (Sant, 333 pages, $18.95 paperback) deals with the process in detail, from hiring an architect/designer to installing ductwork and modifying electrical wiring. A noteworthy combination of design theory and do-it-yourself know-how, the book is illustrated with line drawings and diagrams and presents

Food

'Hopscotch Muffins' provide a quick treat

Quick and easy "Hopscotch Muffins" is smart food in more ways than one. Despite the name, there's no "kid stuff" about them — although kids love them too.

Four or five in the morning, rush household or if you or anyone in your family skip breakfast because there's no time, you're not hungry, or for any other reason, consider this: whip up the recipe the night before or during the weekend, if you don't have time in the morning.

You can have hot, crunchy, cashew and butterscotch drenched muffins in seconds when you reheat them in the microwave. Keep them stored in a sealed pouch or other container for refrigerated foods. Whenever you need a quick breakfast, just zap it. The steaming muffins are much quicker to prepare than a cup of coffee.

It is smart to create your own snacks. You not only save money, but you always know the quality of what you're serving.

Hopscotch Muffins prove to be a quick breakfast when prepared the night before.

- HOPSCOTCH MUFFINS
- 1/2 cups enriched all purpose flour
 - 1/2 cups enriched corn meal
 - 2/4 teaspoons baking powder*
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt*
 - 3 tablespoons sugar
 - 1/2 cup (6 oz. package) butterscotch chips
 - 1/2 cup chopped cashews
 - 3 eggs beaten
 - 1 cup milk
 - 1/3 cup oil

*If you use self-rising flour and self-rising corn meal, eliminate the baking powder and salt.

Heat oven to 425 degrees. Stir together dry ingredients. Blend eggs, 1 cup milk and oil. Add liquid all at once to flour and corn meal mixture, stirring until smooth. If necessary, add more milk to make a medium thick batter. Divide batter among 18 greased muffin cups. Bake for 15 to 20 minutes, or until golden brown.

Hollywood's food coach dishes out advice to stars

By Judith Blake
Seattle Times

She's the enforcer of Hollywood, but her clout is in food, not film.

With her long blond hair and super-svelte shape, Yolanda Bergman has the glamorous looks of a movie star. She isn't one, but she advises many of them in her real-life role as the "food cop."

That the nickname she's acquired and the name of the book she is in Seattle to promote the other day. In "Food Cop" (Bantam Books, $24.50, with Daryn Eller), Bergman supplies the same eating advice she dishes out to her clients in Los Angeles.

As a personal food "coach," Bergman lists a string of movie and music luminaries among her customers — Bill Murray, Carrie Fisher, Martin Sheen, Linda Ronstadt and Kate Jackson; to name several — all looking to lose weight or gain healthier eating habits.

Stars or not, they get the food-cop treatment from Bergman, whose modus operandi is to fling open a client's refrigerator and flush out the nutritional horrors lurking inside.

In Carrie Fisher's fridge and cupboards Bergman says she found a junk-food banquet: Coca-Cola, chips, lots of fried foods and "candy everywhere." Fisher, star of "Star Wars" and its sequels, wanted to shed a few pounds for a new film and had enlisted Bergman to help her out. A full-time chef did Fisher's cooking, so Bergman introduced both of them to the secrets of low-fat food, and Fisher got back in shape.

Paul Stanley, lead singer and guitarist with the rock group Kiss, was another junk-food junkie. "This was a man who could go a whole day on nothing but cookies, cake and candy; if a bowl of whipped cream was the only thing in the fridge for breakfast, no problem, he'd polish it off," writes Bergman. "By the eating to me because he wanted to change his ways — and he did."

A former ballerina, Bergman once had her own food problem. "When I was 15 I was 25 pounds overweight," she says. She got trim by age 19, mainly through "starvation," she says. She fought off fat through her dancing years, but it was only after marriage and motherhood that she discovered a healthful, low-fat and satisfying food format.

She entered an exercise class at Jane Fonda's Workout Studio in Beverly Hills and soon was teaching the class herself — with Fonda as one of her students.

Bergman left Fonda's to become a personal exercise trainer, evolving into a food coach after clients kept asking for healthful, eating tips.

You that kids really need to eat breakfast; dinner to lunch is too long for little tummies to be empty.

Here are some ideas for breakfast. (A few of them are from an article in a Sept. 1988 issue of 1,001 Home Ideas magazine.)

*The night before: Do everything you can. Portion cereals, cut grapefruits, set up the coffee maker. If you know you'll be eating on the run, pack up breakfast as you would a lunch to grab on the way out the door.

*Breakfast pizza: Why not? And who says pizza has to have tomato sauce? A slice of mozzarella cheese on an English muffin or pita bread, a sprinkle of eggplant, a minute under the broiler and you're set.

*For quick baked apples, prepare the night before and refrigerate. Rewarm in the microwave and add a dollop of vanilla yogurt.

*Spend a little extra for individual boxes of cereal to toss into a briefcase or lunchbox. Or be more frugal and portion out cereal from a big box.

*Bananas are a breakfast eat's best friend. They're great eaten straight. They add nutrition and oomph to cold cereal. They make for moist muffins and quick breads. They add body to quick breakfast shakes.

*Yogurt. Need we say more? We like it with a helping of wheat germ on top. Stir in a spoonful of all-fruit spread. Add a few raisins.

*Bake a breakfast quiche from your favorite recipe, but substitute Canadian bacon, liquid egg substitute and reduced-fat cheese for higher-fat ingredients such as bacon or ham, eggs and rich cheese. Cool, slice into servings, wrap well and freeze. Rewarm in the microwave.

*Top a rice cake with cottage cheese and berries or peanut butter and banana.

*Make fruit and cheese kabobs: Alternate cubes of cheese and fruit on small wooden skewers. Wrap well and refrigerate overnight.

*A sandwich for breakfast? Put together a cheese sandwich the night before and quickly grill it in the morning.

*Scop yogurt into an ice cream cone. Add sprinkles of wheat germ or raisins or a dollop of all-fruit jam.

*Along the same lines, dish up a breakfast parfait or banana split.

*A breakfast Popsicle? Make them with yogurt and fruit or fruit juice and fruit. Cold and yummy.

BREAKFAST POPS
Make your own frozen yogurt cups for yourself or kids:

- 1 8-ounce container yogurt
- 1 small sliced banana
- 1/2 cup sliced strawberries or other fruit

Stir fruit into yogurt, then spoon into paper or plastic cups. Insert a Popsicle stick (or small plastic spoon) and freeze. When firm, wrap in foil. Makes 2 small pops.

CHEDDAR APPLE BREAD

This is another from Beatrice Ojakangas' new "Quick Breads" ($11, Clarkson Potter). She suggests using it for French toast, but it didn't last long enough to try that when I made it.

- 1/2 cup (1 stick) butter, at room temperature
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon freshly ground nutmeg
- 1 cup chopped tart apple (1 medium, peeled and cored)
- 1/2 cup shredded sharp cheddar cheese

Preheat a 9-inch cup-chopped pecans. Grease the oven to 350 degrees. Grease and flour 1 9 1/2-by-5 1/2-inch loaf pan or 3 5 1/2-by-3 1/2-inch loaf pans.

In a large mixing bowl, cream the butter and sugar; add the eggs and beat until light. Stir the flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg together. Add with the apple to the creamed mixture. Fold in the cheese and nuts. Turn into the prepared pan or pans. Bake 1 hour for a large loaf, 40 to 45 minutes for small loaves, or until they test done. Cool in the pan for 5 minutes, then turn out onto a rack to finish cooling.

BREAKFAST BANANA SPLIT

Try this with other flavors of yogurt and your favorite fruits. How about lemon yogurt and chopped mangoes or peaches? The recipe is from Pillsbury.

- 1 small banana, sliced in half lengthwise
- 8 ounce carton vanilla yogurt
- 2 tablespoons sliced strawberries or raspberries
- 2 tablespoons blueberries
- 2 tablespoons crushed pineapple
- 2 tablespoons granola or chopped nuts

If you have banana split dishes, use them. Otherwise, use a small oblong dish. Place banana halves on sides of dish, then place yogurt in three scoops down center. Top each scoop with fruit, then sprinkle with granola or nuts. Serve immediately. Makes 1 serving.

TROPICAL SHAKE

Try this with frozen pineapple juice concentrate and banana instead of OJ and pineapple. It's from Restaurants and Institutions magazine. Vary the amounts to your taste.

- 2 tablespoons frozen orange juice concentrate
- 1 cup ginger ale or skim milk
- 2 tablespoons nonfat dry milk powder
- Handful of ice cubes
- 1/2 cup canned crushed pineapple
- 2 tablespoons coconut

Blend orange juice, ginger ale or milk, and dry milk in blender until creamy. Add ice, pineapple and coconut and blend again. Serve at once.

Garlic bread topping offers exceptionally low-fat content

By Rose Dosti and Deborah Kidushim-Allen
Los Angeles Times

A common misconception is that bread is fattening. But bread is a carbohydrate, and a gram of carbohydrate provides the same calories as protein: four per gram. It is the fat you add to bread that drives up the calories.

Here is a garlic-bread topping that is exceptionally low in fat because we use low-calorie margarine and cut the amount used by half. We also go lightly on the cheese and spruce up the flavor with herbs.

GARLIC BREAD

- 2 tablespoons low-calorie margarine
- 1 clove garlic, pressed
- 1 teaspoon fresh lemon juice

6 slices French bread, toasted on 1 side

1 tablespoon grated Romano cheese, optional

1 tablespoon chopped rosemary or parsley

Melt margarine in saucepan and add garlic and lemon juice. Spread garlic-margarine mixture on untoasted side of each bread slice. Sprinkle with paprika and cheese. Place bread slices, buttered side up, on broiler rack and broil 3 inches from source of heat, about 3 minutes, or until golden. Sprinkle with rosemary. Makes 6 servings.

Each slice contains about: 82 calories, 67 mg sodium, 1 mg cholesterol, 2.2 g fat, 13 g carbohydrate, 2 g protein; 1 g fiber; 27 percent calories from fat. Exchanges: 1 bread; 1/4 fat.

Securities market probe 'wide-ranging'

Knight-Ridder Financial News

WASHINGTON — A Justice Department official Tuesday characterized a department investigation into possible fraud and collusion in the government securities market as "wide-ranging."

Although he would not say whether the probe went beyond one-ended Salomon-Brothers Inc., the official went to new lengths to describe the nature and extent of the Justice Department's inquiry.

The department has been examining the investment of U.S. treasuries since a short squeeze occurred in the following the Treasury Department's sale of $12.26 billion in 2-year notes.

The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, told Knight-Ridder that the investigation was being conducted by three Justice divisions: the antitrust division, the criminal division, and the U.S. Attorney's office in New York.

He said the investigation also was being run in cooperation with the department's civil division and in coordination with the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and the Treasury Department.

The investigation has a very high priority and has ample resources focused on it, the official said. Justice has been particularly secretive about its investigation, usually offering little more than a confirmation that it was investigating the U.S. Treasury's market.

The Justice Department became involved in June, the official said.

The government's investigation was stepped up on Aug. 9 after Salomon-Brothers Inc. revealed it had violated Treasury's auction-bidding rules at least three times.

followed the submission of Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev by a coalition of Communist leaders.

By noon, prices moved lower as press reports speculated an attack on the Russian Parliament building may be imminent.

The crisis in the Soviet Union will benefit the U.S. economy, Communist analysts said. International investors buy stocks and bonds as safe haven for their cash.

Coup stalls expected rebound

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Reports of Soviet tanks converging on the Russian Parliament halted a stock rebound on Wall Street, with brick prices posting modest gains.

The rise was in sharp contrast to Monday's performance, when the Dow posted its steepest drop in 10 months, closing down 69.99 to 2,898.03. Stock prices rose quickly at the opening, a rebound from their sharp sell-off Monday that followed the submission of Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev by a coalition of Communist leaders.

By noon, prices moved lower as press reports speculated an attack on the Russian Parliament building may be imminent.

The crisis in the Soviet Union will benefit the U.S. economy, Communist analysts said. International investors buy stocks and bonds as safe haven for their cash.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

"The young feel tired at the end of an action — the old, at the beginning."
— T.S. Elliot.

"I was too tired to use the rule of 11," alibied a worn-out West, "Otherwise I would have unlocked the hearts to allow you to cash the setting trick."

Look over the play and the bidding to see if you can find another reason for finding the winning play.

West led his fourth-best heart, and East won the ace and returned the seven (original fourth-best). South ducked, as did West, and another heart cleared the suit. Eventually West got the ace of spades and his high heart, but since there was no entry to East's long heart, declarer took nine tricks.

East's return of the heart seven was revealing. The rule of 11 (11 minus seven equals four) signifies that the remaining three hands had four cards higher than the seven. Dummy had one and West was looking at two; therefore, South could have held only one. Knowing this, West could safely overtake the heart seven with his jack and return his queen to South's king. Later, when West wins the spade ace, he leads his small heart to East, and the defenders win five tricks.

Given that West was too tired to count (it was late and the session was very tiring), what other clue did West have? It was in the bidding. Since South had denied holding five spades (he would have bid four spades over three), he couldn't hold four hearts. With 4-4 in the majors, he would have bid one heart on the first round instead of one spade.
