

Senate confirms Gates as CIA chief

WASHINGTON — After a grueling six-month confirmation battle over spies, lies and the new world order, Robert M. Gates won the Senate's approval Tuesday as the new director of central intelligence.

Gates won a 64-31 vote after fighting charges that he had "selective amnesia" about CIA scandals, skewed intelligence reports to please his bosses and tried in a cold-war world. The 31 negative votes were the most ever cast against a nominee for director of central intelligence.

Gates, a 20-year CIA veteran and President Bush's deputy national security adviser since 1989, now faces the task of overhauling the nation's multi-billion-dollar intelligence machine. He has vowed to remake American intelligence and curtail its computers, satellites and eavesdropping gear from sold war targets toward threats still unforseen.

Gates, 48 and a native of Wichita, Kan., becomes the 15th director of central intelligence — only the third career CIA officer to hold the post, the second-youngest ever and the first to rise from the ranks of the agency's intelligence directorate. President Reagan nominated him as director of central intelligence in 1987, but Gates withdrew in the face of unanswered questions about his role in the Iran-

His supporters and detractors alike voiced hope that Gates was the man for the job. But some of the 'yeps' were ambivalent.

"A close call," said Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga. "A reasonable risk," said Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa.

No senator argued — and none could — that Gates was unqualified. "The question is not one of qualifications, but one of trust," said a supporter, Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala.

Voters few, far between

Incumbents find going rough in Magic Valley balloting

By Drew DeSilver
Times-News writer

It was a tough night for Magic Valley incumbents Tuesday, with at least three mayors and more than a dozen city council members turned out of office.

"I think there might be a mood in the country that, doggone it, they're just sick and tired of incumbents," said James Martin, who defeated Hagerman Mayor Gloria Jazwick, 130-98.

"Jazwick agreed. 'Obviously, the people think there should be a change,' she said.

Gooding and Heyburn voters also ousted their mayors Tuesday, while a three-way tie in Glens Ferry may lead to a new election or a coin toss to decide the winner.

With results still incomplete Tuesday evening, 13 incumbent council members had lost their seats in Rupert, Hansen, Paul, Minidoka, Wendell, Kimberly, Shoshone, Heyburn, Hagerman and Burley.

In Twin Falls, political newcomer Howard Allen easily defeated longtime political activist Don McMurrian, 1,525 to 370, for one of two contested City Council seats. Incumbent Art Franz defeated Jack Hayes for the other seat, 1,179 to 720.

In Gooding, assistant postmaster David Adair, in his fourth try for the job, defeated three-term Mayor Gene Heller 251-204. After the votes were counted, Adair told the people of Hagerman he would work for them, adding, "That's one factor I feel has been lost in recent years."

Heller said he wasn't disappointed about losing.

"Twelve years is long enough to be mayor of a small town," he said. "I have no regrets whatsoever."

Heyburn Mayor Harold Hurst was upset by challenger Glenn Loveland, 251-178.

In Burley, Councilman Derlin Taylor was re-elected; but colleagues David Gibbons and Leonard King placed out of the running in the 10-candidate field.

Chamberlains Brent Kerby and John Christian will take their places on the council.

Rupert Councilman Joel Rogers also lost his seat Tuesday to political newcomer Steve Porch, who was supported by Mayor Bill Whitton. Councilman Gar Loosli, appointed this summer, retained his seat.

Paul Councilman Steve Rens lost his seat to Melanie Haynes, who received 69 votes to Rens's 64. Incumbent David Warren retained his seat.

In Minidoka, Councilwoman Diane Stanley lost her seat to Rory Carpers, 11 votes to 7. Incumbents Carmen Rodriguez and Ross Shurz retained their seats.

Someone won one of the two council seats up for election in Glens Ferry, but election officials won't say who it is until at least today.

"That's because three candidates either used for the other seat or were within one vote of one another; and one ballot was lost."

Mayor Ernest Messerly said the ballots will be recounted today, and if a tie remains the winner will be determined by a coin flip.

But Councilman Jack Shrum said that would be "a horrible situation," and said another election might have to be held because of the misplaced ballot.

No one filed for the two council seats up for election in Hollister, so they were filled by write-in ballots.

O.C. McNeal won one of the seats with 16 votes, while Edwin Padgett and Dell McDonald each received five write-in votes. A coin toss today will decide who gets the second seat.

Cheese plant construction start at hand

By HR Weikel
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — Construction of the Le Sueur Cheese Co. $36 million cheese plant here will begin this week.

"We received the news in a phone call from Jim Ward, plant manager, as he drove to his Minnesota office in a blinding blizzard," Jerome Mayor Gerald Ostler said Tuesday.

Construction of the plant cleared its final hurdle in September when Jerome voters approved sales-of-revenue bonds to improve the city's waste-water system.

Excavation and ground work could start as early as Friday or Monday, Ostler said. Some work on filling a low place in the Industrial Park may have to be done by the city instead of by the cheese company as previously planned, he said.

Kramer Brothers of Plains, Wis., is the general contractor. Kleopfer Concrete, Inc., with offices in Twin Falls and Paul, has a local contract and Stutzman Excavating, Inc. of Twin Falls, will do most of the excavation work. That project that will involve removing and crushing rock to be used as fill to stabilize the soil that has been found to be inadequate to support the building and equipment for the cheese plant.

When in full operation, the plant will be able to process 2.1 million pounds of milk a day, enough to keep about 45,000 cows busy to be used as fill to stabilize the soil that has been found to be inadequate to support the building and equipment for the cheese plant.

There are an estimated 30,000 cows in Jerome County.

At full operation, the plant will employ 75 to 150 people.

Idaho group offers plan to cap terms

The Associated Press

BOISE — Two Boise Cascade Corp. employees on Tuesday launched Citizens For Political Reform and a new initiative to impose limits on the service of Idahoans in Congress.

"We've seen things happening in the government, and we want to see some change," Vernon Banks said and he, co-worker Roland Smith submitted their initiative to the Secretary of State's office for certification.

It will be reviewed by the attorney general's office in the next few weeks; before being returned for modification or circulation. The proposition needs nearly 32,000 signatures of registered voters to gain a spot on the 1992 general election ballot.

The announcement came as voters in Washington were deciding the fate of the toughest term limitation measure yet considered by a state. If passed, it would force all seven House members of the state congressional delegation, including House Speaker Tom Foley, to retire after one term.

Smith, a Republican who unsuccessfully challenged Democratic state Sen. Karl Brooks of Boise in 1990, said the limits of four consecutive two-year terms in the House of Representatives and the two consecutive six-year terms in the Senate for old careerists in politics, restore competition, reduce government spending, force legislative action on critical issues and lead to national political reform.

But Banks, who labeled himself a political independent with no elective political experience in Idaho, appear to be frustrated with what they see happening in the federal government, nothing that has occurred in state politics specifically prompted the initiative.

Magic Valley 7-Eleven stores to close in December, franchise holders told

By Kirk Mitchell

UNFORTUNATELY, Talkington's six employees and the employees at the three other stores were not considered in that stability business decision, he said.

Officials of Southland's regional office in Boise did not return phone calls Tuesday.

At least two of the four Magic Valley 7-Eleven were doing a "cash-cow" business, Talkington said.

Linda Stewart, who has owned the franchise for the 7-Eleven store on Kimberly Road for 11 years, said her store is one of the top three in sales in Idaho.

Stewart said she is deeply saddened by the move in which she or other franchise owners had no say.

"We knew they were on the market in July, but we weren't told until yesterday," Stewart said Tuesday.

"At first, Southland was going to sell the stores to another convenience store chain, but that deal fell through," Talkington said. The stores will close the second week of December unless a buyer is found, he said.

Talkington, who has owned his franchise for less than two years, offered to buy the Blue Lakes store but was told single-party owners cannot afford the liability insurance of owning a gas station because of new federal Environmental Protection Agency

WIPP bill clears Senate

States News Service

WASHINGTON — Legislation that would open the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant in southeastern New Mexico for experimental storage of radioactive waste was unanimously approved Tuesday by the Senate.

The Senate legislation would transfer control of 2,150 acres of land surrounding WIPP from Interior Department to Energy Department control and give the state up to $600 million in financial compensation for housing the nation's first permanent testing place for mid-level radioactive waste.

The measure contains a provision backed by New Mexico Republican Sen. Pete V. Domenici that would allow the Energy Department to approve removal of the Environmental Protection Agency — to place up to 8,500 drums of waste at WIPP during its five-to-seven year experimental period.

"The legislation we're going to send to the House is a long time in the making. It's a long time in the WIPP bill late Tuesday. "I can say to New Mexicans the Senate without an objection decided it was good legislation and sent it to the House."

The WIPP measure passed the Senate without a long time in the voting. Legislative procedure known as "consent" is provided that no senator raises an objection to a bill, the Senate's presiding officer can declare legislation passed without calling for voice or roll call vote.

Also passed by Senate consent were amendments to the legislation that would allow for public scrutiny of Labor Department inspections of WIPP mining of future ways to reduce the volume of low-level radioactive waste. A third technical amendment that passed would require that Tuesday's bill supersede all previous Senate WIPP legislation.

Supported by Democratic Gov. Bruce King and the Bush Administration, the Senate legislation is opposed by environmentalists and New Mexico Democratic Rep. Bill Richardson.

"We are disappointed with the bill the Senate passed," said Daniel C. Gilson, a spokesman for a Santa Fe environmental group. CCNS contends that the Senate bill lacks sufficient provisions to cover emergency response measures needed along the WIPP highway route and could encourage the Energy Department to store radioactive waste above ground at the site.

Richardson said the bill would halt a mile below the southeastern New Mexico desert. WIPP is a $1 billion maze of salt caverns designed to be the nation's first and final resting place for low-level radioactive waste from the nation's nuclear weapons factories.

About 90 percent of the radioactive waste dumped at WIPP will come from Idaho National Engineering Laboratory and Rocky Flats nuclear weapons factory near Denver, Colo.

WIPP can open for a five-to-seven year test period, land surrounding the Carlsbad area facility must be transferred from Interior Department to Energy Department control.

The Energy Department last month seized control of the WIPP land without congressional approval and planned to begin radioactive waste shipments more than three weeks ago. The agency was stymied when New Mexico State Attorney General Tom Udall filed a lawsuit protesting the administrative land transfer and challenging the need for any radioactive waste storage at WIPP during a test period.

The Energy Department has said it will hold off radioactive waste shipments to WIPP until legal issues are resolved in the Second Circuit Court of Appeals. A District of Columbia has scheduled a hearing on the WIPP lawsuit for Nov. 15.

Four environmental groups, Richardson, Utah Democratic Rep. Wayne Owens, and Pennsylvania Democrat Joseph R. Sestak have filed papers in support of Udall's suit. Kostmayer and Richardson are backing a House WIPP bill that forbids storage of radioactive waste at the Carlsbad dump until the government meets standards for permanent burial of the waste — a process that could take years.

Called "unacceptable" last week by Energy Secretary James D. Watkins, the Kostmayer bill limits the amount of nuclear waste that can be stored at WIPP to 2.5 million gallons for $387 million in financial compensation to New Mexico. Watkins has said he will recommend that President Bush veto the Kostmayer legislation if it is adopted by Congress.

Pneumonia fatal to actor MacMurray

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fred MacMurray, who played the wise, pipe-smoking father televisioner "My Three Sons," died Tuesday of pneumonia. He was 83.

MacMurray died at St. John's Hospital and Health Center in Santa Monica, said Sarah O'Meara, a family friend. He was admitted to the hospital Monday after pneumonia, she said.

MacMurray's stage, film and television career spanned more than 50 years and included more than 80 movies. He made films at a hectic pace, generally playing a genial, persistent lead man, opposite most of the leading ladies of the day.

His best-known credits include a family-theme comedies such as "Son of Flubber," "The Shaggy Dog" and "The Happiest Millionaire."

He is perhaps best known for his role as Steve Douglas, an aerodynamics engineer trying to raise his children in "My Three Sons." The show ran from 1960 to 1972, second only to "Ozzie and Harriet" as network television's longest-running situation comedy.

The show is still popular in syndication.

Barry Livingston, now 37, played son Eric Douglas on "My Three Sons." His real-life brother, Stanley, played his television brother, Chip.

"He was a big character in my life as a child," Livingston said. "He was a pretty commanding figure on the set. He took a very paternal interest in me on the set and my brother."

"He would always defer to his boys as the success behind his show. He was always a very humble man."

Stamp price unchanged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The governors of the Postal Service voted Tuesday to keep the price of a first-class stamp at 29 cents rather than raising it to 34 cents.

But Postmaster General Anthony Frank said holding the line now means the next increase, possibly as much as a nickel, will probably come a year earlier than originally planned.

The Postal Service put the 29-cent rate into effect last Feb. 3.

Stores

— He speculated that corporate "bean-counters" decided to move away from moderate-growth areas such as the Magic Valley to bigger, faster-growing metropolitan areas such as Boise, Portland and Seattle. Boise should have been doing a brisk business off its Magic Valley operations, and if it wasn't it is because the company has too many managers, Talkington said.

"Stores made in money, not bean-counters," he said.

The area was hard to service by field representatives and equipment technicians, Stewart said.

Talkington said he was particularly upset that he would have to lay off his six workers in mid-December.

"I feel like the Christmas Grinch," he said.

Southland owns the land, property and some equipment at each store. Franchise owners share store profits, Stewart said.

Talkington said Southland is paying him a premium amount for his franchise, but he is losing two years of his life and must start a new business.

"I'm devastated by it," Stewart said. "I will be a shock to the neighborhood."

Between 1,000 and 1,200 customers pour into her store every day, she said. Many of the people come two or three times a day.

It has to be a popular store for residents of a nearby mobile-home park.

"I've seen their families grow," she said. "I love my store and my customers."

Stewart and the other franchise owners have his opinion relating to other stores in the Northwest, she said.

Bush cancels Asia, Hawaii visits

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush, criticized by Democrats for traveling overseas while Americans are battered at home by economic problems, decided Tuesday night to put off a trip to Asia, Australia and Hawaii late this month.

The surprise announcement came on the eve of Bush's departure for Rome today for a NATO summit Thursday. He will then visit the Netherlands to address a summit of the European Community.

The change came amid a rash of polls showing voters are angry at Bush and his anxious about the economy.

MIAs:

Issue could be solved quickly, Vietnamese official says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vietnam's ambassador to the United Nations said Tuesday his government could quickly settle questions about missing Americans if the United States would stop making that a condition for normalizing relations.

Ambassador Trinh Xuan Luan refused to comment, however, when asked whether that meant his government was withholding information on missing Americans.

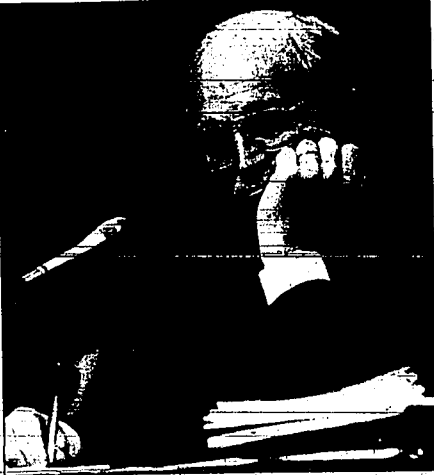

Lang spoke to reporters as a special Senate committee opened a new investigation into the fate of the 2,773 Americans still listed as missing in action from the Vietnam War. A spokesman for the State Department told the panel that the United States will watch Vietnam's cooperation and pace the move toward normal relations accordingly.

"We are in control of the process," the panel was told by Ken Quinn, deputy assistant secretary of state for east Asian and Pacific affairs.

Earlier, the chief U.S. MIA hunter, John Vessey, told the committee that the probability of finding live American prisoners had declined considerably since 1987, when he was named the president's emissary to Hanoi for POW-MIA matters.

The only conclusive evidence uncovered since then was confirmation of the death of Americans, Vessey said.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said every lead about American MIAs is pursued but studies of recently released photographs and purported eyewitness accounts had failed Defense Secretary Dick Cheney testifies Tuesday on Capitol Hill before a special committee investigating MIAs.

Cheney also said people who present false information should be called to account. "Each time we rush to produce any evidence that American prisoners were still alive in Vietnam," to answer these false alarms, our resources are diverted from solid leads and productive lines of inquiry," he said.

Outside the hearing room, Vietnam's ambassador noted the link the United States was making between resolution of the MIA issue and normalized relations.

"On our side, we understand... that statement in a different way that means the resolution of the MIA issues depends also on the pace and the scope of the willingness on the American side to achieve normalization of relations," the ambassador said.

Asked if that meant his government was withholding information on missing Americans, Lang paused for a couple of seconds and told reporters: "I don't want to comment on it."

Lang then was asked if his government could resolve the issue quickly if the United States dropped it as a condition of normal relations. "Yes," he replied.

Tuesday was the opening day of hearings for the special committee, established by the Senate just a couple of months ago and given a mandate to investigate the MIA issue. Veterans groups and families of the missing have argued that the government has lied or at the very least withheld much of what it knows about their loved ones.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., called for an expanded investigation that would also address the fate of Americans still missing from Korea.

U.S. profits from Persian Gulf War

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will collect almost $800 million more than it will pay for the Persian Gulf War if all the allies — particularly Saudi Arabia and Kuwait — pay what they have pledged, says the agency that watches government spending for Congress.

"Foreign commitments for cash contributions to help the U.S. costs for the operation total $48.3 billion, or almost $800 million more than the Office of Management and Budget's funding requirement estimate, assuming that each nation fulfills its pledge," the General Accounting Office said.

The report was released recently to Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

The Defense Department said Oct. 31 that Saudi Arabia still owed $2.4 billion of the $16.8 billion promised. Discussions with the United States were continuing; it added.

Kuwait also owed more than $2 billion of its pledged $16 billion but was paying at the rate of $700 million a month. It is expected to complete payments by Dec. 31.

Smaller amounts were still due from Japan, Germany and South Korea.

There are differences between total cost, funding cost — the amount the U.S. government must pay out — and incremental cost, the total expense to the United States in addition to costs if there had been no war.

"The total cost is estimated by the Pentagon at more than $61 billion.

The GAO quarrelled with that figure. It said it included $14 billion in spending that was "either previously funded, will never require funding or will not require funding in the next few years."

For example, it said the United States would not have to pay for $5.8 billion worth of fuel and other goods provided by the allies. It pointed out that $3.9 billion worth of long-term benefits to service people will be paid out over decades.

'Pee-wee Herman' agrees to deal in exposure case

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Actor Paul Reubens of Pee-wee Herman fame will plead no contest to indecent exposure charges and must produce an anti-drug video as part of a deal with prosecutors, his lawyer said Tuesday.

Reubens was not at a brief court hearing, but Sarasota County Judge Judy Goldiman ordered him to appear Thursday when his attorneys said he formally enter the plea.

"By accepting the plea, he can avoid the publicity of a trial and put this behind him," Reubens' attorney Dan Danneheiser told reporters.

"And this anti-drug message is something he believes in anyway," Reubens, 39, was arrested July 26 at an adult theater. He was charged with exposing himself, a misdemeanor carrying a maximum penalty of 60 days in jail and a $500 fine.

Under the plea bargain, Reubens must pay the cost of producing the anti-drug video, which will fulfill a requirement that he perform 75 hours of community service.

He also will be required to pay a $50 fine and court costs, yet to be determined.

Reubens, who portrayed a chuckle-browed, overgrown child in television's "Pee-wee's Playhouse" and movies including "Pee-wee's Big Adventure," grew up in Sarasota. He lives in Studio City, Calif., and was on a visit when he was arrested.

Prosecutors have promised not to seek a judgment of guilt under the plea bargain. Details, including any requirements of the public service video — will be spelled out at Thursday's hearing. Danneheiser said.

High court says state officials may be sued

WASHINGTON (AP) — State officials who violate someone's rights while performing government duties may be sued and forced to pay monetary damages, the Supreme Court ruled Tuesday.

The 8-0 decision in a Pennsylvania case could expose officials to costly lawsuits when they are accused of violating a Civil War-era federal law aimed at preventing abuses of power.

"Imposing personal liability on state officers may hamper their performance of public duties," Justice Sandra Day O'Connor wrote for the court.

But she said the law is clear: State officials are not immune from being sued "solely by virtue of the official nature of their acts."

In other developments, the court heard arguments in an Illinois dispute over the use of hearsay evidence in child sex abuse cases. At issue is whether juries may hear statements allegedly victimized children make to others if the young accusers do not testify at trial.

Heard arguments in a Texas case over the liability of cities when municipal workers are killed or injured on the job.

The court's decision in the Pennsylvania case cleared the way for trial of a suit against Barbara Hafer, the state's auditor general. Hafer, a Republican, was accused of firing 18 Democratic employees for political reasons.

The workers sued, alleging they were fired based on unsubstantiated charges that they had "bought jobs" in the auditor general's office.

Hafer was elected to her post in 1988 after a campaign in which she made the job-buying allegations.

The employees said they were dismissed after she took office without any further investigation of whether they paid to be hired or promoted.

They also said James West, acting U.S. attorney in Pennsylvania at the time, and a Republican appointee, conspired with Hafer against them.

The high court rejected Hafer's argument that she is immune from such a lawsuit because she acted in her official capacity.

The Constitution's 11th Amendment bars most lawsuits against state governments, and the court previously has given public officials some protection against civil rights suits.

In Hafer's case, the practical effect was to bar those who sue from recovering monetary damages from the state through lawsuits that name state officials as defendants.

But the 1989 ruling left unclear whether officials ever could be forced to pay out of their own pockets.

The court on Tuesday said they could.

O'Connor said the 1871 law is intended to provide relief for those who say they have been victimized by persons acting under color of any statute, ordinance, regulation, custom or usage.

"The requirement of action under color of state law means that Hafer may be liable for discharging (her workers) precisely because of her authority as auditor general," O'Connor said.

"We cannot accept the novel proposition that this same official authority insulates Hafer from suit."

O'Connor noted that officials who are sued may prevail by showing they acted in good faith, believing they acted on what they believed to be a law or policy that violated no one's rights.

Justice Clarence Thomas, who joined the court after the case was argued, did not participate in the decision.

Brain dead woman gives birth to boy

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A woman declared brain dead six weeks ago delivered a healthy baby and died soon after when she was taken off life-support machines, a hospital spokesman said.

Tracy Bucher, 31, gave birth Monday by Caesarian section to a 4-pound, 11-ounce boy at St. Joseph's Hospital, said the spokesman, Bob Vaccarelli. Doctors disconnected Bucher's life support immediately after the birth, he said.

2nd day of cold jams shelters

The Associated Press

Temperatures hit record lows in more than 70 cities Tuesday in the second day of a cold wave that has filled shelters for the homeless and closed schools in the Deep South.

Record lows mostly in the teens and 20s were reported at cities from Florida to New Jersey and from Minnesota to Texas.

Alamosa, Colo., hit a record 4 below zero and International Falls, Minn., upheld its icy reputation by tying its record of minus 19.

Normally hot Del Rio, Texas, on the Mexican border, chilled to a record 31.

Baton Rouge, La., hit a record of 26 and Birmingham, Ala., had a record low of 21. New Orleans dropped to a record 32 and, on the Gulf of Mexico, Pensacola, Fla., cooled to a record 30.

The low of 21 at Knoxville, Tenn., toppled the mark of 24 that had been on the books since 1879.

Records were set in 100 cities Monday, with below-zero readings setting the map from Colorado to Minnesota.

Cold, snow and ice since last week have been blamed for 13 deaths in Minnesota, six in Illinois and four in Nebraska.

Elementary school crossing guard Jerry Doorn, in Elkins, W.Va., said he usually doesn't even wear a jacket this time of year when he guides youngsters across a street, but Tuesday morning the temperature was only 8 degrees.

"I had my car running with the heater on the whole time," said Doorn, 50, a salesman for a printing company. "I'd sit in my car to stay warm until the next bunch wanted to cross the street. I had a sweater on and my winter coat."

In Louisiana, the cold kept hundreds of students home from Orleans Parish schools for a second day. Heating problems were blamed for the cancellation of classes at 17 campuses.

The National Weather Service warned farmers in Georgia to expect a freeze again early Wednesday in all parts of the state except the extreme southeast.

But forecasters said temperatures later in the week should be more typical of November.

"The cold has filled many homeless shelters, including Grace House of Union Mission in Savannah, Ga.," said the mission's executive director, the Rev. Michael Elliott.

Some shelters in Atlanta surpassed their capacity and put out a plea for clothing and blankets.

If the cold snap continues, the city may open overflow shelters Wednesday, said Jerome Eppinger, who coordinates shelters for Atlanta's Human Services Department.

Detroit sent vans to round up street people and opened recreation centers because of the bitter cold, at the same time thousands are expected to be evicted as they are kicked off welfare rolls in a state crackdown.

"We aren't very happy with what's happening. I just hate it to tell you the truth," said Donald Godfrey, president of the Pontiac Rescue Mission in the Detroit area. "And then we have a cold snap like this and we realize how full we are."

The mission's 100 beds have been filled every night and workers are dining 50 more by Thanksgiving, Godfrey said. Some may be forced to sleep on the chapel pews or in the dining area, he said.

On the northern Plains, blasted by a record snowstorm last week, icy rain muck tents slippery again Tuesday in Nebraska and some schools closed or delayed opening of classes.

Energy bill's defeat leaves issue in limbo

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief sponsor of legislation to force a drastic improvement in automobile fuel efficiency says the recent defeat of a major energy package helps his plan, and he'll likely seek a vote early next year.

Sen. Richard Bryan, D-Nev., said his plan can now be considered on its own merits without links to other controversial issues such as oil drilling in an Alaskan wildlife preserve. That was the main sticking point that led to the Senate's defeat of the energy bill last week.

"We think we've picked up some momentum," Bryan said. "The energy bill would require domestic and foreign automakers to improve the overall mileage of their new cars fleets by 40 percent within a decade. The Senate Commerce Committee approved it earlier this year, but it was short of the number required to vote for it as an amendment to the energy legislation sponsored by Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., which dealt with fuel economy in a manner favorable to industry."

But the Senate came up 10 votes short of the number required to halt a filibuster of the energy bill, in effect killing it for this year.

Bryan said in an interview Monday that he's debating whether to push his bill separately or make it the centerpiece of an energy package more to environmentalists' liking than Johnston's, emphasizing conservation and renewable resources.

He says he may seek a quick vote on his bill before Congress adjourns in a few weeks, but probably will wait until 1992.

Environmentalists who want a broader package favor a delay.

"People are exhausted and they don't want to fight about energy anymore for now," said Daniel Becker of the Sierra Club. "But what's important as the Senate has repudiated the failed energy policies of the past. The people who brought down Bennett Johnston will bring up the next energy bill."

Opponents say they'll be ready no matter when the vote occurs, the Coalition for Vehicle Choice, founded by the auto industry to battle the Bryan bill, said that last week's action wasn't significant.

Under existing law, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration sets annual mileage standards for new cars.

Bush seeks abortion compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush scurried to find new middle ground in his fight with Congress over abortion counseling Tuesday after lawmakers accused the White House of scuttling one potential compromise.

The flurry of activity came a day before the House was prepared to vote overwhelmingly to temporarily block an administration ban on federally financed abortion advice. Bush has threatened to veto any bill voiding the counseling ban. Congressional support for overturning the restrictions is so strong that lawmakers could override a Bush veto for the first time, following 12 previous unsuccessful efforts.

Seeking to avoid such a defeat, Bush dispatched Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan to Capitol Hill. Sullivan was bearing a letter explaining that the president could be flexible on the question and might agree to allow counseling under some conditions.

But earlier in the day, two House members who have fought to lift the counseling ban — a Republican and a Democrat — said the White House rejected a compromise. They warned Bush against vetoing the bill.

"A number of members of the Republican Party, certainly this one, sees this as a very, very important issue in the next election," said Rep. John Edward Porter, R-Ill.

Porter said that if Bush vetoed the bill, if the Supreme Court over- and if the economy remains weak next year, "I think the problems for our party at the polls would be very, very difficult."

Porter and Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., said they did not know if the House would muster the two-thirds majority it would later need to override a Bush veto.

But Wyden said, "We're in the ballpark," and he and Porter predicted that Bush would expect twice about vetoing the measure if the bill passed by a two-thirds margin.

White House spokesman Judy Smith would not comment immediately on the lawmakers' remarks.

The contested provision would block for one year a Reagan administration-imposed prohibition against federally financed clinics and hospitals providing abortion counseling.

The 1988 ban was upheld by the Supreme Court in May, but it has never been implemented because of court orders. But it is expected to take effect in the next few months unless blocked by congressional action.

The proposed compromise would have forbidden federal- financed clinics from dispensing abortion information. But it would have allowed them to send women who want such help to other agencies that don't get federal aid. Federally financed hospitals would have been allowed to offer abortion advice.

Supporters of the counseling ban say it would help prevent abortions.

Opponents say the restrictions violate the freedom of speech and jeopardize the health of women who use clinics, many of whom can't afford their own doctors.

Porter and Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., said the compromise language had been approved by several lawmakers. Bush's White House's Domestic Policy Council, the Department of Health and Human Services, Planned Parenthood, and Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., who has led Senate efforts to reach an accord. The Domestic Policy Council is made up of the president's Cabinet.

But they said that when the proposal went back to the White House for final approval, it was rejected.

"Who turned it down is a question I cannot answer," Porter said.

NEA announces 735 grants to various artists, organizations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Endowment for the Arts announced Tuesday 735 grants to artists and organizations.

Among them were $8,000 fellowships to a man and woman who are suing the endowment because their performances about gay life were turned down before.

One of the two, Tim Miller of Santa Monica, Calif., said that it "remains to be seen" whether they will pursue the lawsuit.

"It is certainly cheering that the grants to Holly Hughes and I are being made, but I feel the chilling effect is still very much there to artists," Miller said.

Miller said he would use the grant to develop performance pieces dealing with "the issues of my life as a gay person and the AIDS crisis."

Hughes, who lives in New York, could not be reached.

John E. Frohnmayer, chairman of the endowment, said Miller and Hughes were among 19 performance artists who received grants, out of 124 applicants. They were approved by a panel of private citizens, most of them artists, by the presidentially appointed National Council on the Arts and by the chairman.

Frohnmayer said Miller ranked second and Hughes tied for fourth in a ranking of the applicants by the panel.

"It seems to me that the only reason that I, as chairman, could throw it out and substitute my own judgment would be if I were really persuaded that there was no evidence of artistic substance in the proposed grant," he said. "And in these two along with every other grant we are announcing, I am persuaded there is artistic value."

"I would hope these individuals would not be condemned for who they are," he said.

The 735 grants, which are for the fourth quarter of the year, total $16.85 million. All states except Arkansas are represented, as well as the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and Guam.

Grants include $35,000 grant for a "Blues Mobile" bus to tour public schools in the Mississippi Delta area presenting traditional blues and gospel artists, $18,000 to the Western Folklife Center at Elko, Nev., for documentation and presentation of the arts of Hispanic cowboys, and a $24,500 grant to the Alabama Shakespeare Festival for a youth program.

Lotto America changes format

WARWICK, R.I. (AP) — Lotto America game will offer better odds and higher jackpots when it takes on a new shape next spring, officials said.

The board of directors voted Monday to change the format, saying they want to lure more players in light of sagging sales when jackpots are at the minimum $2 million.

The odds of winning a prize will be 20 times greater with the new format, said Mike Morris, Lotto America president.

The share of lottery sales applied to prizes will be increased from 45 percent to 50 percent, which could result in a jackpot up to $40 million.

In the last year, sales fell 60 percent during weeks when Lotto America had minimum jackpots.

The price to play will be $1 for two picks — will remain the same and numbers will continue to be drawn twice a week — Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Comic strip explores Quayle, drug claims

Boston Globe

WASHINGTON — "Doonesbury" comic strip author Gary Trudeau, whose satiric bite has often infuriated the Bush administration, is about to set off a new controversy with his strip suggesting that federal Drug Enforcement Administration suppressed a file with allegations about Vice President Dan Quayle.

The strip features the imaginary Washington Post reporter, Rick Redfern, who is said to learn that the DEA has a file containing unsubstantiated claims that Quayle bought cocaine while a U.S. senator.

But after raising the claim of a cocaine purchase, Trudeau then downplays it in subsequent strips by having his Redfern character say that it "is only hearsay."

Redfern then declares that the story is actually about the "cover-up" of the investigation and the file.

A spokesman for the Universal Press Syndicate, which distributes the strip, said Monday that the syndicate believes there is a DEA file that discusses Quayle that has been suppressed. The DEA declined to comment.

Quayle, in an interview Monday with the Boston Globe, said he was such a charge and he denied any knowledge of a DEA file about him.

"Who cares what a comic strip may or may not say about me or anyone else?" Quayle said. "I have no idea what the 'Doonesbury' strip is, but you ought to treat it as comic."

Quayle asked specifically if there is a DEA file on him, replied, "Not to my knowledge."

The "Doonesbury" strip is based partly on 1988 allegations by a convicted felon name Brett Kimberlin, who alleged during that year's presidential campaign that he had sold marijuana to Quayle.

Kimberlin is suing the government on grounds that it put him in solitary confinement to keep him quiet about Quayle.

Many news reports decided in 1988 not to publish Kimberlin's allegations because they could not be verified.

"He's a convicted felon... Geez... Quayle said of Kimberlin, "I mean, he's in jail."

Trudeau's strip, scheduled for publication next week, arrived Monday in the Washington Post and 100 newspapers that subscribe to it.

It is routinely delivered a week in advance.

Alan McDermott, managing editor of Universal Press Syndicate, which handles the "Doonesbury" strip, said Monday that his firm "won't comment until the series is published."

However, McDermott then said, "We feel comfortable and our lawyers feel comfortable with the evidence we have seen — that there is a file and in fact the file discusses a cocaine purchase and, in fact, there has been an attempt to cover up this file."

"The issue here is not so much belief in the vice president, but it is about being responsible about bringing such charges before the public."

Soviets open skies to spy planes, allow checks on military activity

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The Soviet Union, in a decisive break with its secretive past, said Tuesday it is ready to allow spy planes to fly over its entire territory to verify military activity.

The new proposal, which could take effect in 1993, marked a large step toward an "open skies" treaty that the 22 nations of NATO and the former Warsaw Pact have been negotiating since a conference in Canada in 1989.

To date, the Soviet military has jealously guarded its airspace and refused to allow flights over its installations, despite arms control agreements signed by President Mikhail S. Gorbachev. In 1960, U.S. pilot Gary Powers was shot down flying a U-2 spy plane deep over Soviet territory.

In September 1983, 269 people lost their lives when a Soviet pilot shot down a Korean jetliner that strayed into Soviet airspace in the Far East.

Both the United States and the Soviet Union have for years used satellites to spy on each other. But surveillance from high-flying jets is a more flexible and less expensive form of reconnaissance that produces more accurate intelligence.

The new proposal was unveiled at a Vienna session of the "open skies" conference. Chief Soviet delegate Yuryy Golovko, who addressed the closed-door talks, told The Associated Press afterwards that Western delegates were "all very content" with the new Soviet stand.

"It's been a good day," said U.S. Ambassador John Hawes, the chief American delegate. Golovko "made a very important and fundamental statement in that confirmation that all of Soviet territory is open to overflight makes it possible now to move rapidly in agreement. This has always been the central issue of these negotiations," Hawes said.

Both Golovko and Hawes said they hoped an "open skies" treaty could be signed by next March, when the 38 nations in the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe meet in Helsinki, Finland. The CSCE is sponsor of the "open skies" talks. "If the accord is signed next March, we hope the new regime (on overflights) could start in 1993," Golovko said.

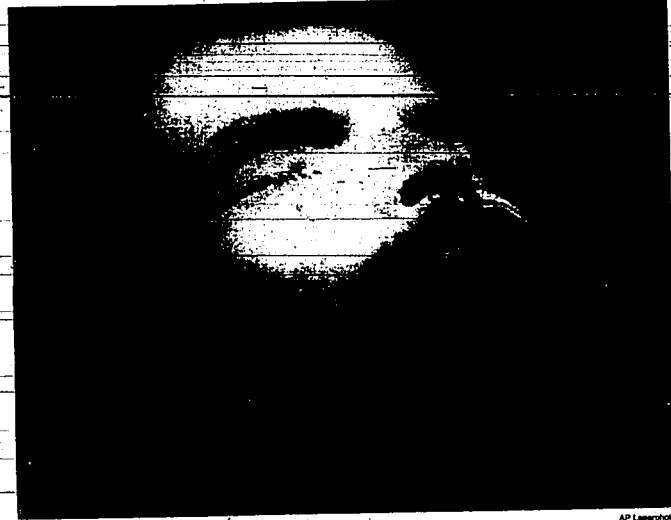

He said the failed August coup in the Soviet Union and the subsequent change at the top in the Defense Ministry did not play a decisive role in shifting the Soviet stance. Since the failed coup in August, Gorbachev and President Bush have made radical proposals to cut nuclear weapons. The new Soviet defense minister, Yevgeny Siniokov, has promised major overhaul of the armed forces since the failed coup removed his hard-line predecessor, Dmitry Yazov.

But Golovko said the new proposal is mostly connected to the development of our positions.

We have been thinking differently about military security and various factors came together.

Hawes said he believed internal political changes in Moscow were the main reason for the Soviet shift.

This recent picture Russian revolution leader Vladimir Ilyich's body was aired Monday as part of a documentary inside the Lenin Mausoleum, which had forbidden television and photographers since 1924.

ABC airs footage from Lenin's tomb

MOSCOW (AP) — The videotape of Vladimir Lenin's body shown on Western television was the first such tape ever made and was sold to the networks by a Soviet camera crew, photographers said today.

Video footage of the inside of Lenin's mausoleum was broadcast Monday night by ABC in the United States and by TF1 in France.

It was unclear whether Soviet viewers would get to see the historic footage.

"There was a threat from Gostelradio (the state television agency) that anyone who shows Lenin will be fired," said Alexander Vulkani, a photographer who was the first to take pictures of Lenin inside the red granite mausoleum on Red Square.

"Nobody wants to take the responsibility to show Lenin to the people," he said in an interview with the Associated Press.

Vulkani, who works for the newspaper Sovetskaya Rssiya, said he and a photographer from Pravda were allowed to take pictures inside the tomb only after receiving permission from an assistant to Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev. Cameras and other recording equipment normally are barred from the mausoleum and are confiscated from visitors before they enter the tomb.

Some Soviet reformers are urging the tomb be closed and Lenin's body buried in St. Petersburg, formally Leningrad.

Video of the inside of the tomb was bought for "thousand of dollars" by the French network TF1, its Moscow correspondent Amalid La Perre, said. He declined to give an exact figure.

A German television station also got into the mausoleum to shoot videotape. Still, photographs of Lenin were published in Pravda, including one on the front page that showed the head of the Soviet founder lying peacefully in his lion-temperature-controlled crypt.

Two of the remaining four pictures showed spectators and guards standing solemnly inside the premises. Another showed a guard sitting behind the dials that control the tomb's temperature.

Japan elects new prime minister

TOKYO (AP) — Veteran statesman Kiichi Miyazawa was elected Japan's 49th prime minister Tuesday in a change expected to give his nation a more authoritative voice abroad to match its economic muscle.

To many Japanese, however, the accession of the 72-year-old former leader and his new Cabinet promises few changes at home.

The Miyazawa administration marks a return to power of senior lawmakers in the long-governing Liberal Democratic Party who were sidelined by an influence-peddling scandal three years ago.

Miyazawa's predecessor, Toshiki Kaifu, had blocked the tainted politicians from Cabinet posts in three reshuffles during his two years in office. But Kaifu's attempts to reform the "money politics" that led to the scandal precipitated his own downfall.

Miyazawa himself was forced to resign as finance minister in 1988 because of the scandal involving Recruit, an information conglomerate. The company sold politicians current stock shares in an attempt to curry favor.

Four of the new Cabinet members, including the prime minister, received thousands of such shares. The other three were new Foreign Minister Michio Watanabe, who also became deputy prime minister, Chief Cabinet Secretary Koichi Kato and Posts and Telecommunications Minister Hideo Watanabe, who is not related to the foreign minister.

Another scandal-tainted Cabinet member is Tokuo Yamashita, the new health and welfare minister. He was involved in a sex scandal that forced him to resign as Kaifu's chief Cabinet secretary in 1989.

Still, if Miyazawa doesn't promise a change of ethics, he will likely bring a change of tone.

Kaifu was widely regarded as a weak leader without Miyazawa's firm political base of support. Last week, unlike Kaifu, who had virtually no international experience, Miyazawa's career as a diplomat and economics expert spans 30 years.

Low grain harvest, short food supply leave Muscovites battling for bread

MOSCOW (AP) — Angry, shouting Moscow shoppers battled over bread Tuesday in a city growing increasingly irritated over declining food supplies and looming price increases.

"Don't you see there's a line? Get in line! Get in line!" shouted an elderly woman standing in front of a swarm of shoppers who pushed and fought their way to get the last loaves of white bread at a store in central Moscow.

Moscow's bakeries are turning out 2,500 metric tons of the usually plentiful Soviet staple daily, but panic buying and long lines have drawn the attention of President Mikhail S. Gorbachev and other government leaders. "The supply of bread in Moscow, despite the fact that the production of bread was increased, does not satisfy the demand. Lines in the city are really huge," said presidential spokesman Andrei Grachev.

Grachev told a news conference the bread shortage was one of the topics discussed at Monday's meeting of the State Council, the post-coup government of Gorbachev and the leaders of the republics.

Last week, the government reported the 1991 Soviet grain harvest will be about a third smaller than last year. About 165 million metric tons has been gathered this year, compared with 237 million metric tons last year, according to the State Statistics Committee.

Mikhail Kovalenko, president of Moscow's biggest bakery, told the Tass news agency that all the city's bakeries are running at full capacity but demand is outstripping supply.

Bread shortages have been spotty around the capital. Shoppers interviewed Tuesday said it has not been difficult to find bread on some days.

There is a mood of anxiety among Muscovites, who fear that the cost of everything will be rising sharply in the coming days as part of Russian President Boris Yeltsin's plan to lift state price controls to shift to a market economy.

Yeltsin has promised that prices for basic goods such as bread, vodka and baby food will remain controlled, but many people — including the elderly on fixed incomes — are buying what they can.

At the site of Tuesday morning's scuffles, dozens of shoppers waited testily for racks of white bread to be refilled. When fewer than 20 loaves finally appeared, they nearly tipped over the entire rack in their rush to snag them up. "Is it fresh?" shouted one woman, who then snatched the loaf without checking further. Others grabbed more than one.

When an old woman began yelling at her fellow customers to form an orderly line, a harried saleswoman began to mutter angrily. One of the two cashiers looked at the impatient crowd and began shouting, "Get your change ready, please! Get your change ready!"

Later Tuesday, during the evening rush hour, a pair of puzzled Muscovites stood in front of another bread store about a mile away that had closed more than an hour early without explanation.

A black cat with white paws begged for scraps in front of Bread Store No. 150 — and two shoppers peered inside, then looked at the padlocked door and walked away.

One of the disappointed shoppers who would identify himself only as Viktor said he had succeeded in buying bread on Monday because he "was lucky."

"These last two days, buying bread has been really difficult," said the 50-year-old office worker. He blamed the impending price increases and hoarding.

After the Nuclear Age, the Nuclear Cleanup Age?

This year marks the 50th anniversary of one of the most powerful forces of the 20th century: America's military-industrial complex.

It was following the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor 50 years ago next month that America geared up to fight a world war, and then stayed in business to wage the peace.

Even today, with the Cold War over, with the Soviet Union in disarray, with Iraq defeated and with no serious enemies on the horizon, the military consumes one U.S. tax dollar in four. It accounts for, directly or indirectly, more than a third of the nation's economy.

America's military-industrial complex didn't succeed so brilliantly just because it brought together industry, technology and capital.

Germany, Japan and Britain all did that too. But the U.S. complex also developed the constituencies that insured its prosperity.

In a democracy, constituencies are an irresistible force. Put together enough of them and you can achieve a critical mass of money and power that can withstand changing political and economic fortunes to protect a common interest — in this case America's $1 trillion defense establishment.

The constituencies that treated the arsenal of democracy don't necessarily serve a post-industrial America well. Maybe it's time for a realignment of private interests in the public's interest.

Consider, for example, the issue of cleaning up nuclear waste. At the moment, it's a massive problem with no visible solution. It's going to cost up to $500 billion to clean up the radioactive commercial and military garbage we've already generated, and no state in its right mind wants to accept the stuff for even temporarily storage.

The constituencies that combined to create the mess — the nuclear industry, the construction industries, the military, commercial power companies, organized labor and dozens of chambers of commerce from Idaho Falls to Oak Ridge — are still in the business of creating more. They're steaming full speed ahead in a direction that most Americans want don't want to go, and they will continue to do so unless some other constituencies find a voice.

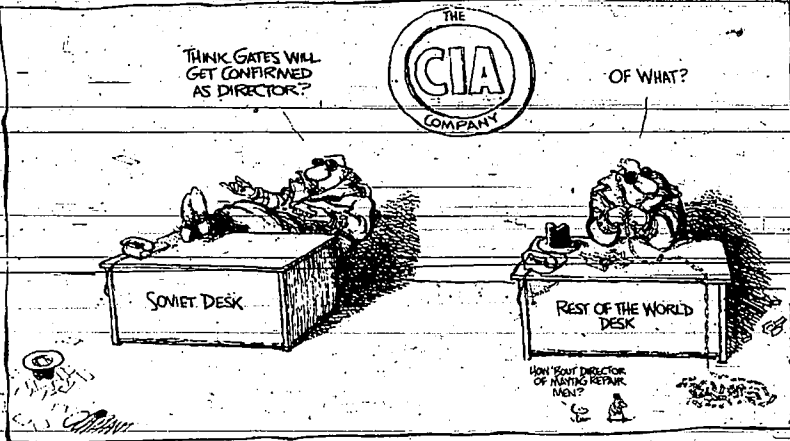

A few of them are stirring to life in southern Idaho, over the issue of storage of radioactive waste from outside Idaho at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

It started with the Snake River Alliance and a lonely group of activists such as Buhl's Bill Chisholm, who were willing to stage noisy demonstrations and stand in front of trucks delivering nuclear waste. But it's spreading.

The outlines of an improbable coalition are beginning to take shape, stretching from the anti-nuclear activists on the left to Republican legislators from the Magic Valley on the right. But more than local political forces are at work here.

The economics of cleaning up America's nuclear mess will soon become apparent; there's money to be made in untangling the gordian knot. Free-market forces can be brought to bear on the problem, and whole industries and economies will benefit.

Maybe starting right here in Idaho. A constituency is building here for cleaning up our most pressing legacy of the Cold War. As history has demonstrated, there's no force in America as powerful as a constituency whose time has come.

A chance to heal lingering MIA pain

By announcing its intent to discuss normalizing relations with Vietnam, the United States has taken a significant first step toward healing a lingering national wound.

The wound that won't heal concerns prisoners of war in Southeast Asia. Occasionally, grainy pictures surface in the news, stoking the fires of public shame over servicemen allegedly still held prisoner 18 years after war's end. During that period, there has been no easy path to verifying these sightings: Now — finally, mercifully — we may have the opportunity to put the issue to rest.

Our nation's preoccupation with Vietnam POWs or those reported missing in action is not surprising. Just as some individuals continue to harbor grief for loved ones killed in any war, it is understandable that family members of soldiers missing in action might grasp the slim need of hope that their son, husband or father still lives.

Yet the commotion caused by the Vietnam issue is disproportionately large when compared to other wars. The number of MIAs reported in the Vietnam episode is, in fact, far lower than the number in either World War II or Korea. One might logically look at this evidence and conclude that the fog of war almost always results in soldiers listed as missing, just as some troops will be killed by friendly fire even

Kevin Byrne

In a war dominated by "smart" weapons. However, those who blindly champion the MIA issue are prepared to find that logic on its head. For them, the evidence demonstrates that the American government has never made a good-faith effort to account for all of its soldiers at the end of the war.

This logic does not hold. If any president was to set on this issue, it was Ronald Reagan. Yet in eight years, the Reagan administration found no substantial evidence of live MIAs in Asia. And today, with talk of normalized relations at hand, the government of Vietnam has much to gain and little to lose by assisting American efforts to locate MIAs.

Even with these points in mind, suspicion remains. It has been created through a variety of actions, including Hanoi's reluctance to openly discuss the POW-MIA question since the war ended. But it also may stem from something buried deep in the American psyche.

There is a strong undercurrent of racism here, suggesting that an inscrutable Asian enemy subscribes to a form of torture that Westerners would eschew — that behind that mask of stoicism, the people of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia draw on a peculiar reservoir of hate, holding American servicemen in virtual slavery years after the end of the war.

This argument assumes that Western people would surely not subject their enemies to such physical and psychological abuse, especially after a war they have won.

Over time, this frustration over the POW-MIA question has hardened the emotions and hopes of many Americans. Some believe that Rambo-like rescue operations should liberate prisoners allegedly held and in the process, destroy scores of Southeast Asian lives. Unfortunately, some Americans still want to win this war.

Normalizing relations between the U.S. and Vietnam would ease travel restrictions between the two countries; allowing public and private investigations to finally be satisfied. But even more important, full access to Vietnam will prove one tragic reality — that the remains of some soldiers will not be accounted for at the end of any major war.

By laying to rest our suspicions about Southeast Asian people, we will go a long way toward healing a national wound that has festered too long.

Wildlife agent ruined fun

To the Fish and Game:
This past July, I was thrilled to draw out for an elk permit in Bennett Hills. My mother, who is 72 years young, also drew out. We left Wendell on Oct. 14 to set up camp and be ready for opening morning, Oct. 15.

My mother, my husband, Ralph, and I were on the mountain by 5 a.m. Two friends of ours from Wendell drove up that same morning. We all sat and waited for daybreak.

Just as dawn broke, we saw two cow elk. Mom and I both started firing. We had one elk down for sure. At this point, I should say our mother was the first shot fired that evening. Ralph did not find one elk down, and we started to clean her because the sun had come up and it was really warm. After we finished, Ralph went to move the truck closer.

I stayed right there with the elk. Mom had started over with a friend of ours. Another man started walking with them and asked them if they got anything. My mother said, "I think my daughter has one." He left them and walked over to me and started asking who we got the elk. I said, "I think it's my mother's."

This man started asking us both a series of questions and we both finally said we had both shot so we really didn't know who killed it. After a good 30 minutes, he flipped out this badge and said he was with the Fish and Game. Then he asked us where we shot from, how many bullets we fired, how far apart we were, etc.

He took my permit, left and walked over to where we shot from and measured how far apart we were, picked up our casings, came back, smelled both the guns and asked more questions. He then made reference to people who shoot game for other people who are left in camp then get back to get these disabled or old people then tag the animal with their tag.

Bravo to valley lawmakers

Congratulations to the 15 Republican Magic Valley legislators, Gov. Andrus and Bill Chisholm for giving voice to protecting what has long been the silent stream, the Snake River Aquifer.

Resisting the forces that placed that irreplaceable resource in a highly seismic area demand aggressive stances. The Snake River Aquifer slakes our thirst, feeds our bodies and empowers our lives.

Let us give power to those who will protect it and divest power from those who won't.

Magic Valley mouse roars again

In the tradition of being darkest before the dawn, the first rays of light seem so sweet.

While neither the New Production Reactor nor the BOR-S-3 fission nuclear waste shipments are dead on arrival, we certainly have a new lease on life, with more time to strengthen Idaho's legal defenses before the next onslaught from the federal fascists.

The unstoppable political force in the tiny Magic Valley has once again moved the immovable object, the forces of greed and big business that run the Department of Energy.

The silent majority of independent voters in the Magic Valley should place their arm behind their neck and pat themselves on the back. But stay tuned because positioning these deadly deeds until after the 1992 election allows those politicians practiced at the art of deception plenty of playroom.

The local Republican legislators did a great job intervening between the backstabbing, kickin' BS of our senators and the great legal efforts of Gov. Andrus and Larry Echolhawk.

Bringing that "letter of intention" from the DOE about New York nuclear waste is an enforceable commitment is a most deceptive lie, but not unusual from Steve Gump and Larry Craig.

While claiming the governor "had lost in court," Dirk Kempthorne bragged he would be "against further waste shipments until the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant is open." (Poatecilo Oct. 29, and Idaho Falls Oct. 30)

So Dirk gets to say, "Idaho should not have to bear every state's burden." He hopes no one will realize he admits he will later accept high-level waste from other states, even though it would never go to WIPP, which is not for high-level waste. Even if WIPP is forced open tomorrow, it faces a minimum five-year experiment that could fail and return the plutonium particle waste to Idaho.

Ministers oppose NC-17 ads

We are writing a joint letter to a local ministerial association to request your consideration of adopting an advertising policy for your newspaper. Because you, in essence, have a monopoly on printed local news, you hold a unique position and, therefore, a special obligation and responsibility to the community.

Last week, Oct. 27 through Nov. 3, was Pornography Awareness Week throughout the nation. Many law enforcement agencies and political, medical, psychological and religious leaders came together to identify the harmful effects of pornography on our society. The findings of the 1986 Attorney General's Commission on Pornography have been recently confirmed in the confirmation hearings of the Thomas unfortunate handling of the Thomas confirmation hearings. The effects of pornography in rising crime rates and rape statistics, as well as sexual harassment and exploitation of women, are glaringly apparent.

The point is that all of us as responsible members of society must do all we can to provide a safe atmosphere for every citizen. We should not lend a hand to allow this material to gain a foothold in our land.

We have taken note that for several months of this year in the Miscellaneous for Sale column of your classified section, there appeared an advertisement for X-rated videotapes, books and other sexually oriented paraphernalia. And we are glad that the ad no longer appears and thank the local law enforcement for persuading the individual to move on.

What we are seeking of you is to adopt the same advertising policy of the Los Angeles Times and the Cincinnati area newspapers who refuse to accept advertising for adult bookstores. We would like this for you, as a matter of principle, to add movies that are rated NC-17.

The film industry has attempted to offer sexually explicit material in our theaters under the guise of artistic labeling. Don't be fooled by this ploy.

We believe that because of recent public involvement against pornographic establishments and moral outrage over the confirmation proceedings that the Magic Valley community is behind the adoption of this policy.

Editor's Note: NC-17 is a category created by the film industry to cover a wide range of movies, including some that previously would have been X-rated. Theater companies and booking agents confirm, however, that any attempt to promote or comply under this new category would not be accepted by the American public.

While we agree that NC-17 films may be unacceptable to many people, in a free society the decision to attend such films should be left to the individual adult.

Most daily newspapers have continued to accept NC-17 advertising, and The Times-News is among them. We do, however, reserve the right to review all advertising and to reject any that is unacceptable. We do not publish advertising for X-rated films.

As to selection of films locally, that is a question for local theaters and their management.

In letter from camps, Vietnamese turn to Congress for help

HONG KONG (AP) — A group of boat people issued a desperate plea for help Tuesday to the U.S. Congress just days before Britain is expected to start forcing Vietnamese back to Vietnam.

The plea, made in a handwritten letter given to an Associated Press reporter, comes as the House of Representatives is to begin hearings on the boat people problem.

Last week, Vietnam and Britain agreed on a plan that could force 59,000 boat people back to their homeland by 1995. The subcommittee on Asian and Pacific Affairs of the Foreign Affairs Committee is to begin hearings on the problem Tuesday.

"To this meeting we would like to send an urgent appeal for help," read the letter from a group of boat people at Hong Kong's Whitehead Detention Center, the largest camp in the British territory.

"We bring to the American Congress a message of blood and tears with cries for urgent help from people who thirst for freedom like we thirst for sunshine. Save us."

The letter said many boat people feared that upon returning to Vietnam they would be punished by Vietnamese officials.

The first batch of Vietnamese to be forced back under the agreement is scheduled to return home within two weeks. Aid workers in the Hong Kong camps say they have been told Nov. 9 is the target date to force back a group comprising "double-backers," boat people who came to Hong Kong a second time after returning voluntarily to Vietnam.

While the group initially consisted of 225 people, it has since dwindled to 107 as many "double-backers" have dropped their opposition to going home, according to a Hong Kong government spokesman.

Under the plan, Vietnam has promised not to persecute the returning boat people, a reintigration rule Vietnamese life will be monitored by the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees.

In exchange, Vietnam will receive about $1,000 in aid for each returnee. Hanoi's government could obtain as much as $100 million if boat people from Thailand, Malaysia, Indonesia and the Philippines are factored in.

The letter, translated from Vietnamese by the AP, said few boat people had faith in the government assurances.

"Due to diplomatic pressure, the Vietnamese Communist government had to agree to this to retaliate against returns," the letter said, "but it's clear that they already have in mind discomfort which they will pour on our heads."

The letter described Vietnam's government as "like an angered fist covered with knives, so anxiously dangled and skillfully cunning."

"You are pushing our fates into the dead end of Communist prisons," the letter said.

The Bush administration says it opposes forced repatriation, but chances are not high that it will move to stop Britain's plan.

Western diplomats say the U.S. government has assured Vietnam that accepting forcibly repatriated boat people would not scuttle improving ties between Washington and Hanoi.

Such a move amounts to tacit acceptance of the deal, they say.

Publisher Maxwell found dead in water off the Canary Islands

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Robert Maxwell, the flamboyant billionaire who built a global newspaper and communications empire, was found dead Tuesday in waters off the Canary Islands, officials said.

He apparently fell from his luxury yacht.

The 68-year-old publisher disappeared from the 180-foot Lady Ghislaine while taking a weeklong rest after being accused by an investigative journalist of having close links with the Israeli secret service Mossad.

Maxwell's death ends the reign of one of the world's best-known and controversial entrepreneurs, who emigrated penniless to Britain in 1940 and built a $2 billion media conglomerate that provided news for millions of readers.

search, said Fernando Cano, spokesman at the rescue center in Madrid.

The body was being taken by helicopter to the Gando air base on the island of Tenerife.

Cause of death was not immediately clear, but an autopsy was planned for Wednesday.

Cano said Maxwell's wife, Elizabeth, and their son, Phillip, arrived to identify the body.

Maxwell was last seen alive on the deck of his yacht at 4:45 a.m. (11:45 p.m. EST) Monday, said John Campi, a Daily News spokesman.

At 11 a.m. a business call arrived from New York and the crew discovered Maxwell was not on board.

The captain, Gus Rankin, radioed a distress call, said Campi.

In London, Charles Wilson, director of Maxwell's Mirror Group Newspapers, said there had been no suggestion of foul play. "We can only assume that Mr. Maxwell slipped and fell overboard," he said.

Maxwell had been due to deliver a speech to the annual dinner of the Anglo-Israeli Association at a London hotel Monday night, but organizers were told about 30 minutes before the event began that he was ill. His son Ian delivered the speech instead.

The yacht docked afterward at Los Cristianos, a resort town on the southwestern tip of Tenerife. Weather officials said the skies were clear at the time of Maxwell's disappearance.

"Everyone is extremely shocked," said David Shaffer, president and chief operating officer in charge of most of Maxwell's Communication Corp.'s U.S. operations, based in Greenwich, Conn.

Before the announcement of Maxwell's disappearance, Maxwell Communications and its affiliate, Mirror Group Newspapers, PLC, asked the London Stock Exchange to suspend trading in their shares.

Maxwell's holdings range from several British tabloids to New York's Daily News to The European, an English-language daily. He acquired the Daily News in March from the Tribune Co. after a five-month strike nearly closed the paper.

Maxwell has always been heavily involved in the day-to-day operation of all his companies—and his death could seriously undermine their ability to set policy and even make daily decisions.

Maxwell had been selling assets to raise money to meet a $750 million debt payment due in October 1992. Maxwell earlier this year sold 49 percent of the Mirror Group of newspapers in a public offering, and sold the publishing house Pergamon Press to Elsevier NV of the Netherlands.

Vietnam, China ties normalized

Los Angeles Times

BEIJING — China and Vietnam formally normalized ties Tuesday, almost 13 years after fighting a brief border war.

The official announcement was made in the Great Hall of the People when Chinese Communist Party General Secretary Jiang Zemin and Premier Li Peng met with their Vietnamese counterparts, General Secretary Do Muoi and Prime Minister Vo Van Kiet.

Muoi and Kiet arrived here Tuesday for a five-day China visit.

Jiang said that their meeting ended a "tormentous" period in the two countries' relations, the official New China News Agency reported.

"This is a meeting which concludes the past and opens up the future," Jiang said. "The talks mark the normalization of bilateral relations and will have a profound impact on the development of such relations."

Jiang noted that full normalization of state-to-state and party-to-party ties was made possible by the signing in Paris last month of a comprehensive peace settlement between warring factions in Cambodia.

China provided key support to Hanoi during its decades-long struggle against French, American and South Vietnamese forces, which ended in a Communist victory in 1975.

But the two countries split over Vietnam's invasion of Cambodia in late 1978.

Peace efforts fail for Yugoslavs

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — Serbia defied the European Community's threat of economic sanctions and refused Tuesday to accept an EC peace proposal to turn Yugoslavia into a loose federation of independent states.

Leaders of Serbia and Yugoslavia's other republics did agree on another cease-fire in the Balkan federation, but all previous truces have collapsed.

Lord Carrington, chairman of EC-sponsored peace talks, warned he would adjourn the conference if the latest truce agreement did not stop the fighting, which pits secessionist Croats against the Serb-dominated federal army—and militant Serbs who do not want to live in an independent Croatia. The fighting has killed more than 1,000 people.

The continuing combat in Croatia "makes a farce of a conference aiming for a peaceful settlement," Carrington said.

The EC plan called for the six Yugoslav republics to retain the internal borders in place when Croatia and Slovenia declared independence June 25.

Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic and Serbia's small ally, Montenegro, countered with a demand Tuesday to create a new Yugoslavia out of Serb-populated areas, including up to two-thirds of Croatia and regions in other neighboring republics.

Croatian Foreign Minister Zvonimir Separovic told reporters "Milosevic's expansionist policies lead only to more violence and death."

EC sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the European Community was now considering seeking help from the United States, Soviet Union and United Nations in trying to end the fighting.

In Yugoslavia, "Serbian off-

Saudi Arabia wants to buy F-15s

DUBAI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — Saudi Arabia is seeking U.S. approval to buy 72 F-15 jet fighters worth $4 billion, an executive at McDonnell Douglas Corp., the maker of the warplane, said Tuesday.

The reported Saudi request is likely to face intense opposition from

New questions emerge about the future of Maxwell's debt-burdened holdings, which he ruled with a fierce profit-driven philosophy but with room for money-losers like the Daily News and risky ventures such as an all-Europe newspaper.

British Prime Minister John Major called the mercenary but generous Maxwell "a great character who will be missed."

"Mr. Maxwell was a remarkable man," said Maxwell's longtime rival, Rupert Murdoch, chairman of News International.

Maxwell's body was found 20 miles northwest of Grand Canary Island after an extensive air-and-sea

S. Africans maintain strike for 2nd day

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Downtowns were quiet and many businesses shuttered for a second day Tuesday as millions of blacks boycotted work to demand a say in running the country.

The strike officially was called to protest a new tax system, but organizers used it to rally black opposition to government policies in general.

"This two-day strike sends a clear and unambiguous message to the South African government that the vast majority of working people... are no longer prepared to accept its dictate," said Jay Naidoo of the Congress of South African Trade Unions.

The strike is part of a campaign by the black opposition to share power and control of the economy.

One of the most effective protests taken in recent months, the strike could be a major confidence-booster for the opposition following last month's agreement by black groups to set aside differences to fight the government.

Idaho BSU president says school will cooperate; Blanton blasts Barton

MOSCOW (AP) — Acting President Larry Selland says Boise State University will comply with a state Board of Education request for more information about the school's dealings with the private BSU Foundation.

The board in September adopted a new policy requiring all foundations associated with Idaho colleges and universities to make their financial records public.

The schools also are required to make public any agreements or contracts they have with private foundations, Selland said. Boise State intends to supply the board with information about BSU Foundation expenditures at the board's Nov. 22 meeting in Boise.

"The information is there and we'll report it," he said Monday.

Selland said he believes the BSU Foundation's board of directors will understand his working on the behalf of the university.

Robert Frisch, executive director of the BSU Foundation, said Monday that it hasn't responded to the Board of Education request for information because there hasn't been time to develop an agreement with the university on exactly how and what financial records should be opened to review.

Rayburn Barton, executive director of the Board of Education, said Selland's cooperation and an agreement being developed could eliminate the need for the board to pursue a copy of an independent auditor's report.

Board member NGA Mosman urged Barton in a letter last week to secure a copy of the report, which he said would make public the BSU Foundation's financial dealings with the university's athletic program.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association requires audit reports on all foundations associated with NCAA member institutions.

Mosman's request is part of a continuing controversy that started with the Sept. 20 firing of Boise State President John Keiser. Board members alleged Keiser wasn't keeping them fully informed about issues including the school's relationship with the private BSU Foundation.

The BSU Foundation later said in a full-page newspaper ad that it "paid" Keiser $175,500 annually and made other payments and annuity contributions to Boise State's athletic director, football and basketball coaches.

Meanwhile, board President Colleen Mahoney of Lewiston defended Barton against criticism from BSU Foundation President Charles Blanton.

In an Oct. 18 letter to Barton, the Boise attorney claimed the impasse between the BSU Foundation and the Board of Education is Barton's fault because he developed the board's new foundation policy.

"We would not have placed the blame on the board if you had candidly told us that you developed the policy without the board's input and that the board relied totally upon your recommendations," Blanton wrote.

But Mahoney said Barton does not owe anyone apologies.

"Your assertion that Dr. Barton formulated the foundation policy and coerced the Board of Education into supporting it impugns the integrity of Dr. Barton and every member of the board," she told Blanton in a letter dated Oct. 25.

State Supreme Court revises land suit

BOISE — The Idaho Supreme Court has revived a lawsuit over the sale of Ada County land.

The court on Tuesday voted 4-1 to reverse 4th District Judge Deborah Bail and reinstate a lawsuit filed by Kawai Farms, Inc., against Garrett Longstreet and Edward McNeil, individually and copartners in L and M Enterprises.

Bail granted summary judgment to Longstreet and McNeil, holding that the claims of misrepresentation were covered in an earlier lawsuit.

But the Supreme Court held that Kawai Farms' claim that the seller misrepresented the availability of water and cost of sewer hookups covered different issues than an earlier lawsuit. The case was sent back to district court for trial.

Pawnee urges Indians to forget past

MOSCOW — Indians are better off focusing on their future than dwelling on their bitter past, Idaho Attorney General Larry EchoHawk says.

And schools, including the University of Idaho, should let Indian students know they are wanted, the member of the Pawnee Tribe said Monday at the start of UI's cultural diversity week.

EchoHawk said he could have been bitter about his father being taken away from his parents to attend boarding school, or about what happened to other tribes.

EchoHawk said his own dream is for Indians to be able to achieve what they want no matter whether they stay on their reservations or get a college education.

Self-defense claimed in shooting case

COEUR D'ALENE — A Spokane man who shot his brother fired in self-defense as they struggled with a gun, his defense attorney contends.

Lance Kettleson, 34, of Spokane is charged with voluntary manslaughter in 1st District Court in the June 16 death of Reese Kettleson.

"These two brothers were as close as any two brothers could be," defense attorney Glen Walker told a jury Monday.

Reese Kettleson, 31, became violent when he drank, Walker said. On several occasions he had beaten Lance and choked him, he said.

Investigator: Disabled job bias ignored

BOISE — Many incidents of job bias against the disabled are not reported to the state, in part because some people do not realize there are discrimination laws addressing the issue, a state investigator says.

Most complaint reports are filed against employers who assume a disability will hinder a person's job performance, said Linda Goodman, an Idaho Human Rights Commission investigator.

She is taking part in this week's Idaho Worker's Compensation Seminar in Boise.

During fiscal year 1991, which ended Sept. 30, 46 such complaints came in, about the same number as 1990 and 1989.

Fuel truck overturns; creek is spared

YELLOW PINE — A fuel truck overturned Tuesday on Johnson Creek Road in the Boise National Forest, but the creek was spared when diesel fuel ruptured. 1,900-gallon tank remained in a ditch along the road.

Frank Carroll, a Boise National Forest spokesman, said a Harp Oil Co. truck from Cascade overturned on an icy curve shortly after 9 a.m.

No one was injured in the accident about 10 miles south of Yellow Pine at the base of White Horse Rapids, a Valley County sheriff's dispatcher said. The fuel spilled into a ditch leading to Johnson Creek, but Carroll said none of the diesel made it to the water. The ditch system apparently held the fuel like a trough, keeping it from making its way to the creek.

Boyd contends tax initiative hurt by clause

LEWISTON (AP) — The proposed 1-Percent Initiative may be blocked by a court injunction because of a provision House Speaker Tom Boyd labels a "fatal flaw."

Speaking Monday to Lewiston, School Board members, the Genesee Republican said he has heard talk about challenging the initiative "if it passes next fall because it requires approval of two-thirds of qualified voters for passage of an override law."

That would be an impossibly high standard because people could vote no simply by not voting, initiative critics say. School override laws now pass by majority vote while bond elections require two-thirds of those voting to pass.

Last month, Idaho Property Owners Association President Ron Rankin of Coeur d'Alene told the Missouri Chamber of Commerce the two-thirds provision was intentional.

Rankin said by closing off the option for local overrides, the initiative would force school supporters to put their political muscle behind plans to shift school funding from the property tax to the state.

The notion of challenging the initiative in court and obtaining an injunction delaying its implementation is "just casual conversation" among the measure's opponents, Boyd said.

"I think it is the fatal flaw if there is one," he said.

But such a plan would give legislators another chance to address tax equity if the measure passes next year, he said.

Proponents of the 1-Percent Initiative say they are nearing the number of signatures needed to put the tax limitation on the 1992 election ballot. If passed, it would roll back property taxes to 1 percent of market value, roughly half in some areas.

But it would slice as much as $164 million from the property tax base relied upon by schools and local units of government.

For Lewiston schools, the measure could mean the loss of $4.3 million.

"We're scared to death," said Lewiston School Board member Laure Peterson at an informal discussion with local legislators.

"We ought to separate out the tax relievers from the tax reformers and I'm here to tell you the people pushing this are tax relievers," Boyd said.

He said most initiative supporters want to cut taxes and government, rather than shift the tax load from property taxes to state sources, Boyd said.

Aside from its potential as a legal roadblock, the two-thirds of registered voters requirement may also prove to be a political problem for the initiative backers, he said.

"Senate Democratic Leader Bruce Sweeney of Lewiston. 'No one will ever pass anything,' he said. 'If enough responsible people understand the thing, that will make a lot of difference.'"

"I fear greatly this mania about property taxes," said Rep. Deanna Vickers, D-Lewiston. "It sounds great to say the 1-Percent is for the poor, but many of the poorest communities are not well reasoned."

Expect the Legislature to re-examine issues such as boosting the circuit breaker property tax exemption for low-income seniors, transferring more of the cost of public schools to the state and local option taxing authority for local governments, Boyd said.

But lawmakers will not be intimidated into approving those steps by a pending 1-percent ballot issue, he said.

Vickers added school officials should not try to anticipate passage of the 1-Percent by cutting back programs.

"The better the schools perform, the less likely this kind of reaction will come to fruition," she said.

State high court denies stay of murderer's execution

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Supreme Court has refused to stay the Nov. 18 execution of convicted triple murderer Paul Ezra Rhoades.

In a terse, two-paragraph order released Tuesday, the court rejected the petition for a stay from defense attorney David Parmenter after affirming the death sentence earlier this year. For the February 1987 slaying of convenience store clerk Stacy Baldwin. The court order ends the state appeals open to Rhoades, 34, but he still can press appeals in the federal courts.

Parmenter could not be reached for immediate comment. A stay must be granted by either the U.S. District Court or the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals to block the scheduled execution.

Rhoades is one of 20 convicted murderers on Idaho's Death Row, but the state has not had an execution since 1957.

In less than five weeks during the winter of 1987, authorities said Rhoades killed Baldwin and two other people in eastern Idaho before he was finally arrested.

He was given two death sentences in connection with the murder of Baldwin, 24.

Two more death sentences were imposed on Rhoades for his conviction in the murder less than five weeks of later of Idaho Falls school teacher Susan Michelbacher, 34, who was sexually molested and raped before her body was riddled with bullets.

Rhoades also pleaded guilty to first-degree murder in the death of convenience store clerk Nolan Hodson, 21, and was sentenced to life in prison without possibility of parole.

Parmenter appealed on a number of issues, but the one that gained the most attention was his challenge to the constitutionality of the state Legislature's repeal of insanity as a criminal defense a decade ago.

Allen, Frantz win in Twin Falls

By Phil Sahn
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—Longtime businessman Howard Allen joined incumbents Art Frantz, Gale Kleinkopf and Tom Condie in winning election to the Twin Falls City Council on Tuesday.

The unofficial final count showed Allen defeated Donald McMurrain 1,525 to 370 votes, while Frantz defeated Jack Hayes 1,179 to 720, Condie and Kleinkopf ran unopposed.

Twin Falls County Clerk Linda Wright said a little more than 15 percent of the city's registered voters — 1,973 people — exercised their right at the polls.

Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck, Goofy and Opie Taylor were among those who received write-in votes.

Allen, who won the seat vacated by Councilman Doug Vollmer, said he's ready to start the job.

"I'll immediately start listening and learning and get in the process as quickly as I can," said Allen, a retired jeweler. "I thank all the people who voted for their confidence in me."

McMurrain, a semi-retired entertainment manager, withdrew Allen the best, saying he will need it with various issues and problems facing the city. "I believe he's a qualified," he said.

This was his last run for office, McMurrain said.

"I'm relieved that it's all over with," he said. "I hope somebody else will pick up the gauntlet now."

Frantz said he looks forward to helping the city tackle a number of problems coming down the road.

"There are some very interesting problems coming up. I would like to be in on the solutions," he said.

He mentioned traffic, housing, drinking water, landfills and the 1-percent initiative as some of those issues.

"I'm pleased the voters have enough confidence to put me back in the job. It indicates I'm doing something right," he said.

Hayes, an advertising account representative, said the vote must indicate that people are satisfied with city government. He also left open the possibility of running again.

"I feel you have to get involved," Hayes said.

But he'd like the city go back to the old way of voting for candidates at large. That might create more interest in the election, he said.

Condie and Kleinkopf both look forward to four more years, but hope next time more people will vote. All the candidates said low turnout disappointed them.

Condie said it might be time for him to step aside as mayor. "Change brings about new insights," he said.

Council members Mary-McClusky, Pam Dowd and Jim Vickers' seals were not up for election this year.

Twin Falls resident faces rape charge

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man has been charged with raping a 14-year-old girl.

Carlton L. Metts Sr., 39, remained in the Twin Falls County Jail Tuesday night in lieu of $7,000 bond on three criminal charges.

Metts was arrested without incident Nov. 1 after being charged with felony rape and battery and a misdemeanor count of false imprisonment.

In Magistrate Court Monday, Metts pleaded innocent to the imprisonment charge; a preliminary hearing has been set for Nov. 15 on the other charges.

A 14-year-old girl told police in October that she had been raped, according to an affidavit by Twin Falls Police Detective Ron Roberson included in the court file. A warrant for Metts' arrest was issued on Nov. 1.

Local man to face felony counts stemming from burns

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man faces two felony counts stemming from a Tuesday morning incident in which a Hansen woman claims she was burned when a fireplace tool.

Hansen police officer Gail Watson went to the home of Marcia McCormick just after 8 a.m., where she said her arms had been burned during a dispute with a Twin Falls man.

Robert S. Cimer, 33, of Twin Falls, was arrested and charged with aggravated battery and aggravated assault. He remained in the Twin Falls County Jail Tuesday night in lieu of $5,000 bond for each count.

Tungsten mine, mill don't pose environmental threat

BURLEY — Sawtooth National Forest officials have decided a proposed tungsten mine and milling operation near the mouth of George Creek Canyon in northern Utah poses no major threat to the environment.

The operation by the Ensign Co. is proposed for the Half River Division of the forest's Burley Ranger District, about five miles south of the Idaho border.

"We are allowing the mining operation with the stipulation that will help ensure there are minimal effects on the environment," Burley District Ranger Jerry Green said. "We are seeing considerable multiple use in action."

The company plans to build a mill near George Creek and mine tungsten ore underground on a nearby hillside. The concentrated ore then will be trucked on existing forest roads to a processing plant in Nevada.

Land bureau trades acres in Jerome, Blaine counties

JEROME — The Bureau of Land Management is trading 525 acres south of Jerome for 2,839.41 acres in Blaine County owned by the Idaho State Bank.

The buyback acquired the Blaine County property as a result of a bankruptcy case, according to Mical Walker, BLM realty specialist.

The property in Jerome County had been identified by the BLM as suitable for disposal since it was difficult to manage with U.S. Highway 93 running through the land. The parcel is located on both sides of Highway 93, near the Petro-2 truck stop.

"When the bank gets the 525 acres, it will be sold for commercial purposes," Walker said.

The Blaine County land is located on Slaughter House Creek. The acreage to be exchanged was adjusted to make values match. Originally the BLM had identified 265 acres available for trade in Jerome County. This was increased to 525 acres when the preliminary appraisal of the Blaine County land totalled $327,000, Walker said.

"We like to have land in one compact unit," Walker said. "By acquiring the Blaine County land we can help protect access to hunting and grazing areas."

The exchange should be completed by February 1992, according to Walker.

Hamilton new mayor of Ketchum

By Michael Hofferber
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — A record turnout at the polls in Ketchum helped Dan Hamilton win a hotly-contested mayor's race against veteran city councilman Tom Held.

Hamilton, a psychologist running for political office for the first time, received 62 percent of the votes for mayor Tuesday. The final tally was 514 votes for Hamilton and 302 for Held.

"I'm surprised that it was by such a large margin," said Hamilton, whose campaign attacked Held's record and called for a change in the city government.

"I think the important thing is we've taken the first step toward getting the people more involved," Hamilton said.

Ketchum residents were more involved at the polls Tuesday than ever before, casting a total of 833 ballots. The previous record turnout was during the 1987 mayoral race, when 638 ballots were cast.

A record 1,846 voters were registered in Ketchum for the 1991 election. Voter turnout was 45 percent.

City Clerk Sandra Gady attributed the turnout to a joint registration program with Blaine County which allowed voters to register for both county and city elections with either government.

"This was the first year we've gone joint and didn't have to turn people away who thought they were registered but weren't," Gady explained.

The vacancies on the Ketchum City Council heightened voter interest in Tuesday's election. The current mayor, Larry Young, won election to a two-year term as councilman. Young received 289 votes.

First-time candidates Christina Potters and Dan Burdick finished close behind with 273 and 210 votes respectively.

Jerome officials re-elected

By H.R. Weixel
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — City Council members Janet Burdick, Rocky Jackson and Eliza Hall buckled the anti-incumbent trend in the Magic Valley Tuesday night, reclaiming their seats in a 10-candidate race.

Burdick, who was appointed in June to fill a council seat vacated by Darryl Cameron, and Jackson won the two four-year seats up for election. Hall, also an appointee to the council, and newcomer Ernest Brooks gained the two two-year positions.

For the four-year race, Burdick led the field with 623 votes to 502 for Jackson. Hyong K. Pak finished third with 345 votes and Janice Coleman fourth with 237 votes.

For the two-year position, Hall got 468 votes to 419 for Brooks, 329 for Diane Adams, 254 for Margaret Steinmetz, 146 for Vernie Blackmon and 92 for Ross Bateman.

"Oh, I won?" said Burdick, a consulting teacher with the Twin Falls School District. "I really want to thank all those who supported me and will continue to work to make Jerome a good place to live, work and raise a family."

Hall, a former Jerome County sheriff who joined the council 18 months ago, said he was looking forward to serving the city for a full term.

Jackson has spent four years on the City Council and directs the city parks and recreation department.

Brooks is a retired law enforcement officer.

How did other races in the Magic Valley go?

The Times-News

Filer Johnson wins seat by 2-1 margin

Of the two candidates competing for Filer City Council seat, Bette Johnson won the election in Filer, two to one.

Johnson received 110 votes and her opponent, Bob Templeman, received 53 votes. Johnson said she was "very happy and I thank the people that supported me."

She said she "hopes to be able to serve the people well" during the remainder of her two year term.

Johnson was appointed earlier this year to the council, following her husband's resignation due to health reasons.

The other two seats up for re-election were unopposed. Russell Sheridan, Jr. received 138 votes and Wanda Shafter received 134 votes. Write in candidates included two votes for Richard Schweitzer and one vote for E.C. Hansen.

Over 57 percent of the registered voters turned out to cast their ballot, and Mayor Bob Fort said "I believe that's a record for Filer."

Glenns Ferry Glitch puts election in doubt

Out of 285 registered voters, 163 showed up at the polls. Councilman Jack Shrum said one ballot could not be found and since three candidates for city council were within one vote of each other for second place, the election is in doubt.

He declined to release the name of the candidate who received "quite a few more votes" than other candidates.

"The race is too tight," Shrum said.

Incumbents Kevin King and Dora Mae Sellers are seeking reelection against John Isenhart, Jim Phillips, Kip Drewery, Patricia McElfish and John Morris.

Albion Pitchford remains on council

Incumbent Gene Pitchford came in third but will remain on the Albion City Council.

Lynda Anderson got the most votes, with 106. James Kell came in second with 85 votes and Pitchford received 69 votes. All three won four-year council seats.

Jim Kelley came in fourth with 36 write-in votes.

Burley voters turn away 2 incumbents, 'veteran'

By Robyn Maxfield
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — Two incumbent councilmen including 16-year veteran Leonard King, were ousted by city voters Tuesday night.

Challenger John Christian led the field with 533 votes. Incumbent Darlin Taylor retained his seat with 431 votes, and challenger Brent Kerbs received 387 votes.

King, tallying only 235 votes, lost his seat. Incumbent David Gibbons, with 379 votes, lost his seat as well.

The 16-way race brought out 68 percent of the 1,822 registered voters, according to City Clerk Bud Bringer.

Christian, formerly a 25-year city employee, will begin his term as councilman in January. He was unavailable for comment.

Taylor, who ran unopposed four years ago, was the only incumbent to retain his position.

"I'm pleased to be re-elected," he said. "I guess it's flattering the people of the city of Burley accepted what I've done during the last four years. It is gratifying. I've enjoyed the work."

"I'm also pleased with the other two gentlemen. I think the council will blend real well."

Kerbs, the 39-year-old owner of Kerbs Oil Company, said he was "looking forward to working with John and Darlin."

Among other candidates, Curtis Pope received 328 votes, Jeffrey Rasmussen 287, and Curtis Mendenhall 258.

Charles Warren received 234 votes, and Nick Rokich received 96 votes.

Former councilman earns seat in Wendell

By Terrell Williams
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — A former councilman and two women candidates won seats on the Wendell City Council.

Mike Wetzstein and Connie Bjorn won four-year terms and Gwen Roser won a two-year term. The three new council members will replace Jack Green, who was defeated, and Ron Finley and June Holm, who did not run.

Wetzstein, a retired serviceman who served a four-year council term from 1980 through 1983, said he will do the best he can.

"All I can say is, I thank everyone who voted, not only for me, but just who voted," Wetzstein said.

"Now the work starts," Bjorn, who runs a beauty shop, said she felt speechless.

"I know they were really good people running," Roser, a substitute teacher, said she is excited and anxious to get started. "I want to thank everybody that voted and all those who helped me campaign," Roser said. "I plan to dig in and work and do a good job."

Wendell Clerk Raquel Braga said 414 people voted. In the race for four-year terms, Wetzstein received 274 votes, Bjorn received 245, Green got 202 and John Crandall got 40. In the race for the two-year term, Roser got 257 votes and Gene Glick got 142.

Jerome pays big bucks for indigents

By H.R. Weikel
Times-News correspondent

JEROME—Jerome County last year allocated funds to pay medical costs for indigents, then ended up borrowing more funds to cover the ever-burgeoning bills.

Some County Commissioners say they are fed up with the system that is bleeding county government dry.

In 1991, Jerome County paid $517,872 on indigent costs for 251 applicants. Indigent costs in 1989 were $359,385 for 161 applicants.

Last fiscal year, 32 percent of property taxes raised by the county to fund the various activities required of local government were used for indigent costs.

"Anyone unable to come up with the cash is considered indigent," said Chairman Carl Montgomery. "We are forced to pay bills for financially irresponsible people who have incurred debts by using credit cards to the limit, buying frivolous items on time, and otherwise using their resources for uses other than necessary costs of living and health care. Court interpretations have defined these people as indigent, and property owners are paying their health bills."

The $517,872 spent last year included the maximum amount the county can raise from property taxes according to state law. After the county ran out of funds mid-year, it was forced to borrow nearly $200,000 additional funds to cover the remaining indigent costs.

According to state law, patients unable to pay medical and hospitalization costs in a reasonable time—some hospitals say 30 days is reasonable—are eligible for county assistance. Counties are required to pay the entire bills of eligible applicants, regardless of their ability to pay a portion of the costs.

Counties may then attempt to collect from the applicants if they are capable of paying a portion of their costs.

This makes the county a low-interest lending institution, using the taxpayer dollars, when they are poorly equipped to do so, commissioners said.

Recent legislation has proposed some changes in indigent funding. Jerome County has joined in a pool with 42 other Idaho counties to cover catastrophic medical costs of over $10,000 per incident.

Last year, Jerome County paid $65,000 into the pool to cover catastrophic costs. Funds were not budgeted for this fiscal year, since legislation has been passed giving the state responsibility for these costs.

"But Gov. Cecil Andrus didn't approve the funds, leaving the counties without any way to handle catastrophic care."

"Taxpayers need to know what their taxes are being used for," Montgomery said. "We have no choice but to pay these indigent bills."

Weather-forecasting groundhogs no better than rats, vet proclaims

EAST WENATCHEE, Wash. (AP) There will be no free lunch for groundhogs at the Grant Road viewpoint even though they've been given the responsibility of predicting spring's arrival.

A veterinarian warned the City Council that groundhogs carry diseases that can be transmitted to humans. The council agreed to post signs telling people not to feed the rodents.

"These little guys are just as dirty as rats," Dr. Randy Cain said Monday. "I know for sure if we had 200 to 300 rats running around down here, we'd have calls for an exterminator."

Last week, Gov. Booth Gardner signed a proclamation designating the viewpoint as Washington's shadow-view site on Feb. 2.

According to legend, if a groundhog emerges from its den on that date and sees its shadow, there will be six more weeks of winter.

No shadow, then spring is on its way.

The groundhogs are hibernating right now. But trappers have estimated the village will have as many as 300 groundhogs in the spring.

Roe Friesz, a biologist at the state Department of Wildlife, urged the council to adopt an ordinance forbidding people to feed the animals.

"Sooner or later, someone is going to be bit and hurt, or there's going to be substantial property damage," Friesz said.

Mayor Dick McGraw said he didn't want to go as far as enacting a law.

"What are you going to do, go down there and write a ticket to someone who feeds them?" he asked.

The council settled on posting signs against feeding the groundhogs.

United Way nominates new president

By Drew DeSilver
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—United Way of Magic Valley lost one president Tuesday, gained a temporary one and nominated a third to take office next year.

Colin Randolph, director of the College of Southern Idaho's career planning and placement center, was nominated by the board following the resignation of Doug Sharp as president.

Sharp had to resign when his employer, The Bon Marche, transferred him from the company's Magic Valley Mall store to its regional headquarters in Spokane, Wash. The transfer came last Friday, Sharp said, and his last day as manager of the local Bon was Monday. He said he would be in Twin Falls for a few more days at the most.

"The fact I'm going there is definitely confirmed," he said. "The exact hour isn't."

With Sharp leaving town, the United Way board had to pick someone to fill out the rest of the term, which expires at the end of the year.

Dan Brizee, who served as president in 1990, volunteered to complete Sharp's term but made it clear he didn't want to stay any longer than that.

"Somebody on this board is going to have to step up and take responsibility," said Brizee, who stepped in as campaign chairman earlier this year when the former chairwoman, Judy Robinetti, resigned.

last summer. That somebody turned out to be Randolph, 41, who has been involved with the Magic Valley United Way for three years.

"Randolph," who has begun a doctoral degree program in adult education through the University of Idaho, said he expected that, if he is elected president at the United Way's annual meeting in January, his new duties will affect his graduate studies to some degree.

"But we have to give something back to our community," he said. "We can't just take."

Brizee told Randolph before his nomination that "if you have a strong group of people on the board, being president is a no-brainer. You come in, look at the agenda, run the meeting and do a few things on the side. But if you don't (have active board members), it's a pain in the rear."

The board also voted to nominate Cecil Ward as 1992 campaign chairman and president-elect, and to nominate three new board members: Marsha Gehl, Andrew Barry and Norma McEachin.

Brizee and United Way Executive Director Kathy Williams reported that the 1991 has raised $112,000 to date, nearly half its $275,000 goal.

Contributions from several big companies have yet to arrive, Brizee said, expressing confidence that the 1991 goal would be reached, if not exceeded.

Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 28, is the official deadline for this year's campaign, but Brizee said contributions typically continue coming in throughout December.

Missoula voters reject $3.5 million recreation complex

The Associated Press

A bond issue to finance a $3.5 million recreation complex in Missoula went down to defeat at the polls Tuesday.

The baseball park-skating rink complex, intended to attract a minor league baseball team, was rejected by 72 percent of the voters.

The bond issue was one of many local issues on the ballot in Tuesday's Montana election, which featured no statewide issues. Most elections focused on races for city electoral positions.

With 100 percent of the precincts reporting in Missoula, 7,282 voters or 72 percent said no to the bond issue, while 2,832 voters or 28 percent said yes. Only 39 percent of registered Missoula voters turned out, so the bond issue would have needed 60 percent in favor for passage.

In Bozeman, former Montana House Speaker John Vincent easily won a spot on the Bozeman City Commission. Vincent, a Democrat who had considered a gubernatorial bid, had 2,263 votes. Former Bozeman Mayor Al Stiff also won a seat on the commission.

Vincent, a high school government teacher, served 16 years in the Legislature before retiring at the end of 1990. He said this year he would not run for governor because he couldn't afford to take time off from his job and still support his family.

In Great Falls, Mayor Ardi Aiken lost a bid for re-election to newcomer Gayle Morris. Morris had 5,562 votes to Aiken's 4,844. Aiken had been on the City Commission since 1981 and was mayor since 1988.

In Helena, former Lewis and Clark County Superintendent of Schools Kay McKenna easily won election as mayor. With 86 percent of precincts reporting, McKenna polled 3,249 votes. Her opponent, William McCausland had 541 votes.

Newcomer Colleen McCarthy won a position on the Helena City Commission with 2,593 votes and incumbent Tom Huddleston won reelection with 1,952 votes.

Serve up some speedy, spicy soups, stews

Sorting out the varieties of squash

Congress and the media seem to think they have discovered something new in the workplace - harassment. They aren't sure how to pronounce it (my dictionary says harASSment not HARassment by the way) but they are willing to spend days searching out its existence. I guiltily admit to squeezing tomatoes, shaking cantaloupes and pinching avocados regularly.

Jane Slickers Nutrition

Just yesterday I tried to push my thumbnail into a butternut squash skin to test its maturity. "A soft skin denotes a watery, bland immature fruit," according to Gourmet Magazine.

Rather than continually testing the lumpy exteriors of these vegetables, perhaps we should rely on their sterling reputations to deliver solid nutrition.

Squash, short for the Indian name squashash, and all its 287 varieties can be divided into summer and winter varieties. Gourmet magazine suggests "tender" and "hard shelled" are more appropriate names now, since both varieties are available summer and winter.

The summer varieties are characterized by softer skins, watery flesh and short storage capabilities. Hardshelled varieties are the product of colder, drier environments which produce a vegetable with a firmer drier flesh and relatively long storage time. Zucchini and yellow "summer" squash are the most familiar of the tender types.

Common hardshelled varieties include acorn, butternut, banana and Hubbard. Gourmet suggests that color is not an indicator of flavor in squash. While the color may fade with storage, the flavor will improve.

Squashes are low in calories, high in carbohydrates, as well as good sources of some vitamins. Squash makes great diet food if not loaded with butter and brown sugar.

Nutritionally, winter squash contains 14 times the vitamin A of summer varieties. Butternut contains twice that of most winter types. One and one-half cups of baked winter squash equals the vitamin A of one medium carrot. Vitamin A and its precursor beta-carotene, which is the component found in vegetables, are believed to have important cancer-fighting capabilities.

Potassium, calcium, and folic acid (one of the B vitamins) occur in small but worthwhile amounts.

Is there a limit to what a squash can become? I would not be the least surprised to find that zucchini is an Italian idiom for "anything goes." Recipes for zucchini bread, cake, pancakes, even "french fries" exist. Julia Child published a delightful if time-consuming recipe for stuffed squash blossoms in her new book "The Way to Cook." I must admit I haven't tried it.

Winter squash recipes intrigue us in soups, breads, custards, muffins and in soups, breads, custards, muffins and pie. Commercially canned pumpkin often consists of various kinds of winter squash, according to the World Book Encyclopedia.

To lighten the fat and cholesterol load of a traditional pumpkin pie, try using evaporated SKIM milk and 3 egg whites to replace the eggs. A graham cracker crust, as suggested in The New American Diet, will also cut down on the fat of the traditional flour and lard or vegetable shortening pie crust. Arteries don't need harassing, either.

Don't throw those seeds away. Gourmet advises boiling 2 cups of seeds in 1 quart of water with 2 tablespoons of salt for 10-15 minutes. Drain the seeds, toss with a tablespoon of corn oil and bake until golden and crisp in a 350 degree oven for approximately 30 minutes. Toss them around frequently to assure even cooking.

Microwaving rather than baking can substantially reduce the cooking time for a hardshelled squash. I must admit I like the drier texture baking appears to produce. I have microwaved butternut chunks until soft, mashed them with a sprinkling of brown sugar and baked for about half an hour depending on the amount.

Take advantage of the numerous hardshelled varieties in the stores now, but when selecting, don't squash the squash. Manhandling the exteriors only bruises the vulnerable flesh inside.

If you love long-simmered soups and stews but time-consuming cooking doesn't suit your style, this collection of meals-in-a-bowl is for you. Hearty, homey and chock-full of chunky vegetables, each spicy, soul-satisfying recipe is ready to serve in about half an hour.

Inspired by long-cooking favorites, these great-tasting new recipes from the PACE Picante Sauce test kitchens were created with an eye toward streamlined preparation.

Serve these super soups and stews at lunch or dinner with crusty breads, rolls, warm tortillas or chips. Or, pack them into thermal containers for enjoying at lunch.

SONORA-STYLE CHICKEN STEW

- 2 whole chicken breasts, split, boned and skinned (1 pound)
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
- 1 large onion, cut into 1/2-inch pieces
- 2 to 3 garlic cloves, minced, as desired
- 1 can (16 ounces) whole tomatoes, undrained, coarsely chopped
- 1 can (7 ounces) whole kernel corn, drained or 1 cup frozen corn kernels
- 1/2 cup picante sauce
- 1 teaspoon ground cumin
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- dash of ground cloves
- 1 large green-bell-pepper, cut into 1/2-inch pieces
- sour cream (optional)

Cut chicken into 1/2-inch cubes; sprinkle with 1/2 teaspoon of the salt. Cook in oil in large saucpan or Dutch oven until chicken loses its pink color. Add onion and garlic; continue cooking, stirring frequently, 3 minutes. Add remaining 1/2 teaspoon salt and remaining ingredients except green pepper and sour cream; mix well. Bring to a boil; reduce heat. Cover and simmer 5 minutes. Add green pepper; continue to simmer 10 minutes. Ladle into soup bowls; top with sour cream to serve, if desired. Serve with additional picante sauce.

Makes 6 servings, about 7 cups stew.

TWO-BEAN ITALIAN SAUSAGE STEW

- 1 pound Italian sausage, cut into 1/2-inch pieces, casing removed
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1 large onion, coarsely chopped
- 3 garlic cloves, minced

- 1 can (8 ounces) kidney beans, rinsed and drained

- 1/2 cup picante sauce

1 teaspoon ground cumin

1 teaspoon oregano leaves, crushed

Brown sausage in oil in large saucpan or Dutch oven over medium heat, about 10 minutes; remove from saucpan. Drain off all but about 1 tablespoon oil; add onion and garlic; cook 3 minutes, stirring frequently. Return sausage to saucpan; stir in remaining ingredients. Cover and simmer 10 minutes. Serve with additional picante sauce.

Makes 6 servings, about 8 cups stew.

Drain off all but about 1 tablespoon oil; add onion and garlic; cook 3 minutes, stirring frequently. Return sausage to saucpan; stir in remaining ingredients. Cover and simmer 10 minutes. Uncover; stir in 1 cup of the cheese and melted. Ladle into soup bowls; top with remaining cheese and, if desired, cilantro. Serve with additional picante sauce.

Makes 4 servings, about 5 1/2 cups soup.

1 tablespoon vegetable oil

1 can (28 ounces) whole tomatoes, undrained, coarsely chopped

1 can (16 ounces) kidney beans, rinsed and drained

1 cup beef broth

1 large green pepper, coarsely chopped

1 teaspoon chili powder

Combine meat, crushed tortilla chips, 1/3 cup of the picante sauce, green onions, egg, garlic, 1 teaspoon of the cumin and the salt; mix well. Shape to form 1-inch meatballs. ## Who has time to save money in the kitchen?

By Linda Lowe Morris
The Baltimore Sun

It's no accident we use the phrase "belt-tightening" when we talk of efforts to save money. We speak of "lean" times and usually remember the days when we ate "high on the hog."

Food has always been a barometer of family finances. With so many of our expenses - the mortgage, car payments, school tuition - fixed, the food budget is one area where we still have control. "People are going back to the basics," says Anselma Dopkin, chief operating officer and one of the owners of the Classic Catering People. "They're going back to meat loaf and turkey loaf. It's nothing new. There are lots of these old recipes. They've always been around for a long time."

But these days it's a little more complex than that. "You can cook a whole turkey and get three or four meals out of it. It's much cheaper than cooking turkey breast. But these days who has time to cook a whole turkey?" she added.

Unlike previous periods of hard times, here in the '90s we find ourselves having to balance shortages of both time and money. Many of the traditional money-saving

Small changes can make big difference in budget

The Baltimore Sun

Saving money on the food budget involves making dozens of small changes in the way we shop for food, the ways we store it and the ways we prepare it.

Here are some specific things to do:

Meat is one of the most expensive items on our shopping lists, according to Jeanne-Marie Holtz, a home economist with the Baltimore County office of the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service. "Look for less tender cuts of meat, anything you would use for stewing; blade roast, chuck roast, shank, some cuts from the round. But consider cost-per-serving rather than cost per pound. You can get four servings per pound with boneless meat as opposed to about two servings per pound for bone-in meat."

Recipes that call for expensive meats like veal can be made with chicken or turkey instead, explains Anselma Dopkin of the Classic Catering People. "Chicken is still very well priced," she says.

Many types of fish are expensive, she adds, but recipes that call for salmon and other expensive types of fish can be techniques involving doing more work in the kitchen, something we've been trying for the last decade to reduce.

The traditional ways of saving money on food have been to grow your own vegetables, to buy things in bulk when you find them at a good price and to use less expensive ingredients. But all of these things take time.

"Most of the cookbooks that have come out in the past few years are a good barometer of our interests in cooking - have focused on saving time rather than saving money, according to Arlene Gillis, owner of Books for Cooks in Baltimore.

All of the money-saving cookbooks from the late '70s and early '80s have gone out of print. But she recommends two new books, "The New Settlement Cookbook" (Simon & Schuster, hardcover, $25), edited by Charles Pierce, and "The Complete Make-a-Mix Cookbook" (HP Books, paperback, $12.95), by Carlen Eliason, Nevada Harwood and Madeline Westover.

There are still good economical recipes in ethnic cookbooks. Italian pasta recipes, Chinese stir-fries and French cassoulets are all peasant foods that sprung from the need to use the most precious ingredients - meats and flavorings - sparingly. These recipes use meat as much for flavor as for a protein source. And they take full advantage of vegetable proteins - rice, beans, corn.

The time crunch has also meant the

Selling spuds in New England's fine if you follow directions

It was the Massachusetts version of one Idaho Interstate junction. The one where you take the exit by the mall in Boise and try to get back to Magic Valley in one piece.

Left, you merge right then must merge left, quickly, only to realize you have to cross over two full lanes of traffic and must merge right. Most folks take the road of least resistance at least once and end up in Nampa.

Well, trying to get out of Boston is like these other drivers - who figure you're a local too, and should know what you're doing!

By the way, we didn't meet up with the other car until the next evening at the Boston airport.

New England during the middle of October is wonderful. The weather was warm enough we walked the red-lined Freedom Trail in Boston, nosing our way into churches, meeting halls, picturesque graveyards, ships, homes. Just ask me anything about The Revolution and I can find an answer.

Boy, are there a lot of "firsts" and "oldests" in that area. We ate in the oldest restaurant in Boston and rode on the oldest subway (the safest way to traverse the city) in the United States.

After doing Boston at a convention, we headed north for a couple of days to see the fall foliage still in its prime.

We visited the "Witches" museum in Salem, Mass. And found that 299 years ago some young girls bored with the staid Puritanism of the era, in the words of today "freaked-out" and accused lots of folk of being witches. Several people were killed (some smothered to death by heavy rocks) before the girls fessed-up to "over-excitement and over-imagination." Small comfort for the victims.

We over-nighted at Kennebunkport, Maine (lovely town, glad we were there before the storm) and had our fill of lobster at a local roadside.

It's good to be home. But friend-husband got the prize - he sold the Maine folk some of our famous spuds!

Here's some of the recipes I'd like to share with you.

- BOSTON BAKED BEANS
- 2 pounds dry pea beans
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 medium onion, peeled
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup molasses
- 1 cup brown sugar
- 1 pinch black pepper
- 2 teaspoons dry mustard
- 2 ounces salt pork, cut into 1/2-inch dice
- Cover the beans with cold water (about 1-inch over the top) and soak overnight. Drain the water off in the morning, then just barely cover with fresh cold water.

Stories offer nudge to take cancer tests

DEAR ABBY: I read a letter in your column in the Oregonian that shook me up. It was from a woman who said that her husband had had a physical - every year since 1971 - and checked out 100 percent - then out of the blue he was diagnosed as having inoperable prostate cancer! No one had told him that if his father or a brother had had prostate cancer, he should take a P.S.A. blood test. After I read this in your column, I wrote "DEAR ABBY" on the column - and handed it to my husband, because I'd brother has had prostate cancer. So with no symptoms, my husband took the P.S.A. test and was found to have early prostate cancer. Thank God for this letter - and thank you, Abby, for publishing it! I had copies made and sent them to all my male relatives. I even posted one on the bulletin board at our club. You may use my name.

-BOBBY (MRS. FRED) JACKSON, SOUTH BEACH, ORE.

Dear Abby
Abigail VanBuren

DEAR BOBBI: Thank you for permitting me to use your name. For those readers out there who want to know - the name of the blood test is "Prostate-Specific Antigen." And for those who need a nudge in the right direction - read on:

DEAR ABBY: This is a story about two men. One of them is my friend who went to his doctor for his regular physical examination. An elevated blood count indicated that he needed further testing and, as suspected, it was found he had two cancerous polyps on his prostate. They were removed by a simple surgical procedure. Prognosis: He will probably live a normal life. The other one is my brother, who had ample warning of the same problem for a year, but who kept putting off a visit to the doctor until it became absolutely necessary. By then, the cancer had spread through his system and he required radical and painful surgery. Prognosis: We buried him last week, and it was so unnecessary! Please excuse the tears stains. I miss my brother.

- GRIEVING IN THE OZARKS

DEAR ABBY: Last weekend, I went camping with my family and a friend. I met a really special guy who I fell for right away. The problem is, I told him I was 17 (I am 15). He is 17. Now I am worried that he will be mad at me for lying and thinking I am too young. The reason I told him I was older is because a lot of guys think I'm too young even before they get to know me. I look 17 and am very mature.

I don't think age should matter if two people really like each other.

How do I convince him that I like him so much, and that I'm sorry for lying?

-SORRY I LIED IN YUBA CITY, CALIF.

DEAR SORRY: Age does matter during the teen years, and so does the degree of maturity. Some 17-year-old "boys" are men - and much depends upon his degree of maturity at age 17. Liking him so much that you lied about your age is not much of a defense, but my advice is just to be straightforward and tell him what you've told me. Lying about one's age is, in itself, immature. But if he likes you enough, perhaps he'll be forgiving.

To get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Humane Society offers advice on keeping pets warm

WASHINGTON - Before you let your pet out to brave the cold of winter, The Humane Society of the United States asks that you consider a few suggestions that will keep him safe and warm.

- Walking: Make sure your pet is warm enough when you take him out for a walk. Marc Paulhus, HSUS vice-president for companion animals, says smaller and older dogs should wear a sweater for added protection against the low temperatures.
- Don't stay outside longer than necessary. If you leave it up to your pet to decide when to come home, he may wait until the middle of the walk to let you know; and he could freeze by the time you reach your house. If your walk takes you on salted surfaces, wipe your pet's feet off when you get home. Paulhus says salt crystals and other chemicals designed to melt ice can get embedded on the pads of your dog's feet and cause burns and irritation.

Eating: Your dog's or cat's coat can become dry in the warm air of the house. Paulhus suggests adding a teaspoon of vegetable oil to your pet's food to moisturize his coat. Also, you may want to feed your pet a little more in the cold weather because he is burning more calories to keep warm.

Even in the winter, an outside dog must have water to survive. Don't use metal containers because they can be dangerous to dogs in low temperatures. Check the water frequently to make sure it hasn't frozen.

Exercising: When your pet goes outdoors, he is able to run around to get exercise. Paulhus asks that you give your pet some extra playtime while he's cooped up inside. Cats enjoy climbing trees, so a carpeted cat post may be just what he needs to keep fit.

Exploring: Pets should never be allowed to wander unsupervised. Animals like to explore their surroundings, but curiosity can be especially dangerous in the winter. For example, in an effort to keep warm, cats often climb on top of car engines. Check under your hood before starting your car in cold weather.

Another danger to curious pets is antifreeze. The sweet smell attracts animals, but if it is ingested, it can be deadly. Use a funnel to add antifreeze and clean up any spills. Keep antifreeze and other dangerous chemicals out of reach and throw away empty containers.

Sleeping: During extreme weather, all pets should stay inside. In mild winter weather, dogs who spend time outside should be kept in a higher, draft-free shelter. Paulhus recommends that animals spend evenings inside with their human companions.

If your pet must be left outside during the day, he should have a house that is no more than 12 inches higher or three inches wider than the animal. The floor of the house should be raised off the ground to keep the cold and moisture away from your pet.

Let cooking help kids on path to success

Everyone wants to succeed including the younger members of the family. While you may be disappointed, it may be a major blow to your child if he doesn't make the team or ends up with lower grades than he expected. Why not boost his ego and build up his confidence by helping him succeed in the kitchen?

It's not hard for a kid to be good at cooking. Simply select some easy recipes and spend a little time teaching him the basics. Before long, Tim or Tammy will be able to win approval from family and friends alike for his or her cooking abilities.

Since no knives are required, Double Corn Pancakes make a good beginner's recipe. All-year children need to do is open a can, measure some turn-of-hand ingredients, stir, spoon and turn with a pancake ingredients are well blended. Stir in the corn.

Place a very lightly greased 10- to 12-inch omelet pan or skillet over medium heat. Sprinkle a few drops of water into the pan. If the drops sizzle, the pan is hot. It's ready for cooking. Spoon tablespoons of the corn mixture into the hot pan.
Leave a little space between each spoonful. Cook until the cakes are lightly browned on the bottom. With a pancake turner, turn the cakes over and brown the other side. With a pancake turner, lift the cakes onto a plate. Serve with applesauce or syrup.
Makes 4 kid-sized servings (about 16 small cakes).

- 1/2 cup yellow cornmeal
  - 1/2 cup all-purpose flour
  - 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 2 tablespoons cooking oil
  - 3 eggs
  - 1 tablespoon milk

Save

demise of many of the food co-ops, according to George Maroulis, manager of the Maryland Wholesale Produce Market in Jessup, Md. A decade ago a number of church and neighborhood groups banded together to save money by trading a few hours of work each week for a savings on fruits and vegetables. But these have all stopped, he says.

Our ancestors brought with them to this country a wonderful heritage of money-saving recipes. "The New Settlement Cookbook" is a collection of recipes originally printed in 1901 in Milwaukee by a community-service group of women who helped new immigrants from Europe adapt to life in America.

Here is a recipe from the book:

- PASTA WITH WHITE BEANS, TOMATOES AND HERBS
- Serves four.
  - 2 tablespoons butter
  - 2 tablespoons finely chopped shallots or onions
  - 2 cloves garlic, finely chopped.

Jones

3 to 4 medium fresh tomatoes (1 1/2 pounds), peeled, seeded and chopped or 1-28-ounce can, drained and chopped

- 1 cup cooked white beans (navy or Great Northern)
- Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste
- 1 pound-shaped or hollow pasta (fusilli, rigatoni, ziti, or shells)
- 1/2 cup fresh parsley, finely chopped

In a medium saucepan, melt the butter over medium-high heat. Add the shallots or onions and garlic. Add the tomatoes and cook until they begin to give off liquid and are warmed through, about 10 minutes. Stir in the cooked beans. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

In a large amount of boiling salted water, cook the pasta until tender, about 7 to 10 minutes. Drain and empty into a large mixing bowl. Toss with the tomato and bean mixture, the fresh parsley, and more salt and pepper to taste. Serve at once.

Budget

used for the cheaper cod or halibut.

Use beans, lentils and other vegetable proteins. "There's a trend toward vegetarian food," Dopkin says. "Good creative cuisine with vegetables is very inexpensive. You can cook a pound of pasta, add a sauce, maybe some smoked turkey; anything works well with pasta. And you have a wonderful meal for six."

Buy seasonal vegetables. "Buying tomatoes in November is silly," Dopkin adds.

Look for the traditional autumn vegetables: winter squashes, broccoli, potatoes, onions, kale and carrots.

Buying in bulk is usually a way to get better prices. In addition to buying direct from the farmer, in bulk, you can also find a number of local supermarkets that offer discounts for certain large items.

Make sure you can store perishables properly. Even if you get good prices on bulk items, you'll lose that saving if part of your food goes bad. Look for "Stocking Up" (Firestone, paperback, $17.95); by Carol Huppung and the staff of the Rodale Food Center; "Keeping the Harvest" (Storey, paperback, $10.95), by Nancy Chioffi and Gretchen Mead, revised by Linda Thompson; and "Root Cellaring" (Storey, $29.95 hardcover, $12.95 paperback), by Mike and Nancy Bubel. The last two can be ordered by calling (800) 827-8673. All of these books give tips on how to store fruits, vegetables, grains and meats inexpensively.

When shopping, stick to a list, says Holly. "Keep shopping trips to a minimum. Shop alone if possible. And purchase non-food items at a discount store."

Look for money-saving coupons, she adds, but only for those for foods you normally use.

Breads can be bought in bulk at bakery outlets and frozen. Holly recommends:

You can stretch meals by adding breads and other forms of grains, Holly adds. "Add oatmeal to tuna to get an extra sandwich out of a can. And add bread crumbs to hamburger to get an extra patty."

Buying convenience and prepared foods is more expensive than buying the raw ingredients. You can create your own convenience foods by cooking ahead of time and using your freezer and refrigerator. You can cook a whole turkey during the weekend and cut it up into portions. Use some right away, freeze other portions for use later in the week. Soups can be made ahead of time and frozen.

Do some of the preparation for dinners the night before. Meats can be marinated overnight and vegetables can be chopped for the next day's meal. Mix together dry ingredients for quick breads ahead of time.

roll in the remaining 1/2 cup sugar.

Bake for about 10 minutes (depending on your size of balls).
Makes 50 to 60 cookies.

BOILED SHRIMP

- 1- 1/2 pounds medium shrimp in shells
- 1 12-ounce can beer
- 1/2 teaspoon thyme
- 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
- 1 garlic clove, minced
- 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1 bay leaf
- 1/2 teaspoon chopped onion

Place shrimp, beer, thyme, mustard, parsley, garlic, salt, bayleaf and onion in a large pot and cover. Bring to a boil then quickly reduce heat. Simmer for 3 minutes (the shrimp should be pink) then drain and cool shrimp. Peel and devein. Chill and serve with cocktail sauce.

A wonderful soup for this time of year is the following first course winner:

- PUMPKIN ALMOND BISQUE
- 2 tablespoons butter
  - 3 tablespoons finely chopped celery
  - 3 tablespoons finely chopped onion
  - 2 cups canned pumpkin
  - 1 tablespoon tomato paste
  - 2 tablespoons almond paste
  - 3 cups chicken broth
  - 1/2 cups light cream
  - 1 teaspoon freshly grated nutmeg
  - 1 teaspoon white pepper
  - 1 1/2 teaspoons almond liquor
  - 1 salt to taste

In a heavy saucepan melt the butter over medium heat, then add the celery and onion and simmer for five minutes. Add the pumpkin, tomato paste and almond paste, blending well. Now add the chicken stock and simmer for 30 minutes.
Blend the cream into the soup and slowly heat until piping hot. Stir in the nutmeg, pepper, almond liquor and salt. Serve immediately in 6-bowls. Garnish with toasted pumpkin or sunflower seeds.
Enjoy!

Potato soup provides comfort on cold night

By Sherrie Clinton
The Baltimore Evening Sun

As the days get cooler and shorter it's time for the ultimate comfort food — soup. This thick creamy soup uses sweet potatoes and white potatoes for a rich, hearty flavor. Best of all, it's low in calories and fat.

TWO POTATO SOUP

- 4 cups chicken stock or broth
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 4 cups leeks, white part only, carefully washed and chopped
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic, minced
- 1/2 teaspoon ground red pepper
- 2 cups white potatoes, cut into 1/2-inch dice
- 2 cups sweet potatoes, cut into 1/2-inch dice
- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
- Pinch turmeric to taste
- Spring mint
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice

bottomed saucepan or Dutch oven over medium heat. Add the leeks, garlic and red pepper and saute until the leeks are translucent, three to five minutes. Add the chicken stock and bring to a boil. Add white and sweet potatoes and return to a boil. Reduce the heat and simmer gently until the potatoes are tender, about 20 to 25 minutes.

Cool slightly. Puree in a blender or food processor until smooth and return to the pot. Bring the puree to a simmer, then reduce the heat; stir in the curry powder, garlic powder, turmeric, lemon juice and mint. Simmer for another three to five minutes until the flavors have mingled. Serve hot with a sprinkle of chopped peppers.

Serves six. Each serving has 153 calories, 2.7 grams fat, 3.2 grams protein, 30 grams carbohydrate, 0 cholesterol and 28 milligrams sodium.

How to keep your house cozy during oncoming cold season

By Karol V. Menzie and Randy Johnson
The Baltimore Sun

Are you ready to face the winter? Got your sweaters out, know where your boots are, have that snow scraper handy? How about your house? Is it ready? Doors and windows tight, storms in place, attic sealed?

Getting a house ready for winter may not be much fun, but it will pay off in a cozier season and fewer problems come spring.

Protecting the house is especially important if you're working on it. Houses under construction are vulnerable to weather damage that can be expensive to repair when the weather improves.

Here's a checklist to help you get things battened down.

DOORS: Do they close tightly? If there are gaps, can you weatherstrip, move the stops, or install cash locks to tighten them up?

If you're working on the house and plan on making major changes to the windows later, you can install temporary "storm" windows with plastic, or seal gaps between sashes and frames with masking tape or duct tape.

DOORS: Weatherstrip around the frame to stop air infiltration. Install a sweep or threshold to keep air or snow and rain, from blowing in underneath.

Existing insulation: If you installed attic insulation in the past few years, check on it. If it has compressed or gotten damaged, replace it or add another layer.

Attic access: Make sure that hatches in the ceilings of heated rooms leading to unheated attic spaces are insulated and sealed with weatherstripping. Warm, moist air meeting cold-dry air will cause "rain" in the attic that can reduce insulation value, cause mildew, rot out wood and ruin ceilings.

If pipes or ductwork run through the attic, make sure there are no gaps around them that would let warm air into the cool space.

Heating systems: Change filters, test the system before it gets cold to see if there are any problems. If you have hot-water radiators, you may need to bleed radiators to remove air bubbles. If you have an oil-fired system, you should already have a yearly service agreement; make sure it's serviced before you need it.

Basements: Cold drafts make water pipes freeze. If there are gaps through foundation and first-floor joists, pack them with fiberglass bats. If a pipe does freeze, you can try using a hair dryer to thaw it, but it may break anyway as it thaws.

If you're rehabbing, design systems so pipes and ducts don't run through unheated spaces. If you're sealing at least this winter with pipes or ducts in bad places, insulate the ducts and wrap the pipes with heat tape and insulation.

OUTSIDE

Gutters and downspouts: Clean out leaves and debris so water doesn't collect and freeze. In a climate that's freeze-thaw-freeze-thaw, buildup can force its way under roof shingles; when it melts, water can run inside walls.

Hoses: Turn off water at inside shut-off, open exterior-hose-bibs to let water drain out before it can freeze. (If you leave the outside spigots open, any water trapped inside will have room to expand as it freezes.)

Foundations: Frozen ground won't accept more water and may keep additional moisture from draining away from the house. And when the ground thaws, it may still release water toward the house. Clear out make sure leaves, debris and depressions left from plantings don't trap water.

Air conditioners: Remove window units, clean them, drain them and put them away. If you can't get units out of the windows, remove the front cover and pack it with insulation, then weatherstrip around the unit. Wrap the outside with a piece of tarp or plastic.

While you're at it, you might make sure there's plenty of antifreeze in your car's radiator and that the battery's in good shape. So if worse comes to worst, you can always drive South.

Protect trees from extreme conditions of winter weather

Allen Wilson Gardening

Winter wind and sun can damage both evergreen and deciduous trees. Winds dry the needles of evergreen trees and gradually turn them brown. Alternate heating and cooling by winter sun can cause the bark of deciduous trees to crack and split.

Upright junipers and arbovitae are most susceptible to wind damage. Under extreme conditions pines and spruces can also be damaged. When the soil is frozen, roots cannot retrieve moisture from the ground and pump it to the needles. Those needles exposed to prevailing winds are the first to be damaged.

Susceptible evergreen trees can be wrapped or a windbreak can be constructed on the south and west sides. They can also be sprayed with an anti-desiccant such as Wilt-Pruf which coats the needles and prevents them from losing as much moisture.

Strips of a coarse, porous material such as burlap should be used to wrap trees. Plastic should never be used to wrap plants because of the rapid temperature changes which can occur inside of them.

Temperatures can rise rapidly when the sun is shining followed by a rapid drop after sundown. Windbreaks can be constructed of any material which will reduce the force of the wind.

Young shade and fruit trees have relatively thin bark which is more easily cracked by rapid temperature changes. Winter sun heats bark on the west and south sides of the trunk. This radiant heat can raise bark temperature 10 degrees or more above air temperature. This causes bark to stretch and expand.

When the sun goes down, bark temperature can drop 40 or 50 degrees in a few hours. The bark cools and contracts faster than the inner wood, which causes it to crack. Repeated freezing and thawing causes the cracks to become bigger.

The trunk below the lowest branch of trees less than five years old can either be painted or wrapped to reduce temperature changes and cracking. White outdoor latex paint diluted about half with water reflects the sunlight and reduces temperature buildup. Only the south and west sides of the trunk need to be painted.

Strips of cardboard, coarse cloth or paper wrap can also be wrapped or taped around the lower trunk. These shade the bark from the sun and insulate against rapid temperature changes. All wraps should be removed by early April so they do not restrict tree growth.

Try alternatives to chemical drain cleaners

Q. Our bathtub drains very slowly. My husband keeps using chemical cleaners, but they haven't helped. Is there a better way? — A. Keller.

Do it yourself
Gene Austin

A. Caustic chemical cleaners sometimes make a clogged drain a lot more dangerous to deal with. If a chemical fails to clear the drain, it can leave a corrosive solution in the fixture—trap or pipes so that follow-up methods can be hazardous.

Bathtubs sometimes drain sluggishly because of accumulations of hair and soap in the pipe under the drain opening. If the drain has a perforated cover, remove the retaining screw and lift off the cover. If the drain has a pop-up stopper, it can generally be removed by lifting the stopper and wiggle it. Fish around in the drain pipe with a piece of wire with the end bent into a hook and remove any debris. If a caustic drain cleaner has been used, wear goggles and rubber gloves for protection against splatters.

Try the drain with the screen or stopper removed. If drainage is still sluggish or blocked, try using a plunger or force cup. A full-size, five-inch-diameter plunger should be used. Again, if a chemical cleaner has been used, wear goggles and other protection.

Do not replace the screen or stopper when using a plunger. Place the cup of the plunger over the drain opening and run several inches of water into the tub. To help prevent leakage, have a helper lightly hold a wet rag or towel over the tub's overflow opening, which is near the top of the tub and is covered by a metal plate holding the drain-control lever. The drain-control lever should be in the open position.

Work the plunger up and down very forcefully over the drain opening, keeping some water in the tub. Several sessions with the plunger might be necessary. If the drain opens partially or completely, run or pour hot water into it to flush out remaining debris.

Plunging will open many drains, especially if done before there is a complete blockage. When plunging doesn't work, it is generally necessary to use a plumber's snake (a flexible cable) in the drain pipes or open and clean the trap. Unfortunately, bathtub traps are sometimes inaccessible or difficult to open, and a snake is tricky to use in tub pipes. If in doubt about these additional steps, call a plumber—and be sure to let the plumber know chemical cleaners have been used.

Q. My electric water heater periodically makes a thudding noise. I called the manufacturer but it had no explanation. What's going on? — L. Prock.

A. Electric water heaters sometimes make rumbling or thudding noises because of a buildup of scale or mineral deposits on the heating elements or an accumulation of sediment in the bottom of the tank. If tank sediment is the cause, the noise can often be stopped by draining some water out of the tank. Open the valve at the bottom, which will flush out some of the sediment. Incidentally, this step should be taken at least once a year even if the tank makes no noises.

Dirty elements are more difficult to deal with. Power must be shut off to the heater, which is then completely drained of water. The elements (usually two) are removed with a wrench and cleaned by soaking in vinegar or scraping. New gaskets should be used when the elements are replaced. The water before the electricity is turned on or the elements and/or tank can be damaged or ruined.

Experts offer kitchen buying tips

By Nancy L. Ross
The Washington Post

The following eye and buying tips come from seminar speakers George Fields, publisher of Decorating Remodeling magazine, and Dee Fogle, a certified kitchen designer.

They also represent the views of Ellen Rand, a former editor of Builders' Kitchen & Baths, and Florence Parshuk, a kitchen and bath designer, authors of Complete Book of Kitchen Design, just published by Consumer-Reports Books. It has an appendix of ratings of major appliances by brand name and model.

Appliances: The cheapest type of electric cooking is exposed coils. On-natural-gas models, pilotless ignition saves up to a third of the energy a pilot light uses. An induction stove requires ferromagnetic parts (iron, steel or porcelain-enamelled steel. Solid disk burners or hobs do not produce enough heat for sauteing.

Controls should be mounted along the front or side of the range for safety. White glass doors and controls cost more than black.

and a separate microwave rather than a combination oven with microwave, radiant and convection heating. A microwave cum ventilation unit over the cooktop can save space.

If you try to install a microwave that was sold separately from the range, be sure there is adequate space between the units so heat and steam from cooking will not damage the microwave controls.

Continuous-cleaning ovens remove droplets of grease but cannot vaporize major spills as self-cleaning ovens do. Also the former are hard to clean manually.

When the cooking surface is on an island in the kitchen, downdraft vents around the cooking surface are more aesthetically than upward ventilation through a hood. But you sacrifice some function as the downdraft ventilation pulls heat away from the burners. Filters in the ventilation duct should be cleaned regularly in the dishwasher.

Some standard refrigerators offer the look of custom built-in models at less cost. Trim kits for refrigerators permit the front panel to be changed to resemble other built-in surfaces. To save money an enameled refrigerator in good condition can be electrostatically repainted.

20-cubic-foot refrigerator with three cubic feet of freezer space for each member.

The main sink should not be on an island so dirty dishes are visible from an adjacent room. A U-shaped kitchen is best for one cook, while an L-shaped one with an island is ideal for two or more.

Cabinets: Stock cabinetry costs about half as much as custom made. Refacing cabinets with new fronts and pulls usually costs half as much as buying new cabinets. To save 10 to 20 percent on installation costs, have your own contractor do it rather than the dealer.

Low-pressure laminates, known as melamine, tend to chip and crack. A polyester finish is harder than lacquer, but more difficult to repair.

Flooring: Sheet vinyl is the cheapest at $6 to $30 per square yard. But even no-wax vinyls eventually lose their shine. Scuffs, stains and spills are harder to remove from vinyl than from wood or tile. Waxed Bleaching-a floor can take up to 10 days to dry.

Acrylic-impregnated pre-finished floors cannot be sanded down and redone. Ceramic tile starts at $1 each, going up to $75 for custom hand-made ones. It is easy to maintain, but hard on dropped objects.

Sun Valley ski opener on Nov. 16

The Times-News

SUN VALLEY - The opening of Sun Valley's 56th winter season will mark the earliest in the resort's history.

Saturday, Nov. 16, Eddy Mountain will open at the very minimum on Mid and Lower Warm Springs runs.

The earliest opening date for the ski resort is a result of the installation and operation of the world's largest automated snowmaking system complemented by a generous and early natural snowfall, according to Wallace Huffman, general manager of Sun Valley Resort.

Reduced lift rates will be in effect and include a $12 savings on the one-day adult ticket, which will be $28. The one-day child rate will be $15. The Sun Valley Sports Center may be contacted for the discounted rate schedule.

Skiers should check daily for an updated ski report. There is a strong possibility additional terrain will be announced for the opening. The toll-free snow report line is 1-800-635-4150. Local skiers may call 622-7099.

The forecast for Tuesday night called for a good chance of additional snow.

Dye's lawyer: Let NCAA have tapes

The Associated Press

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. - An attorney for Auburn coach Pat Dye on Tuesday accused a former player and his lawyer of creating a "media mirage" by releasing portions of secretly recorded tapes and called on them to release all the tapes to the NCAA.

But the attorney for former defensive back Eric Ramsey said the school should not be "anxious for all the tapes to be released."

"To be fair to Auburn, there are some subjects, particularly one that I'm aware of, that are so explosive, I won't even make it public," said Donald Watkins, Ramsey's attorney, who already has released two batches of tapes to the Birmingham News. Those tapes allegedly indicate that Ramsey received illegal payments from an Auburn booster and assistant coaches.

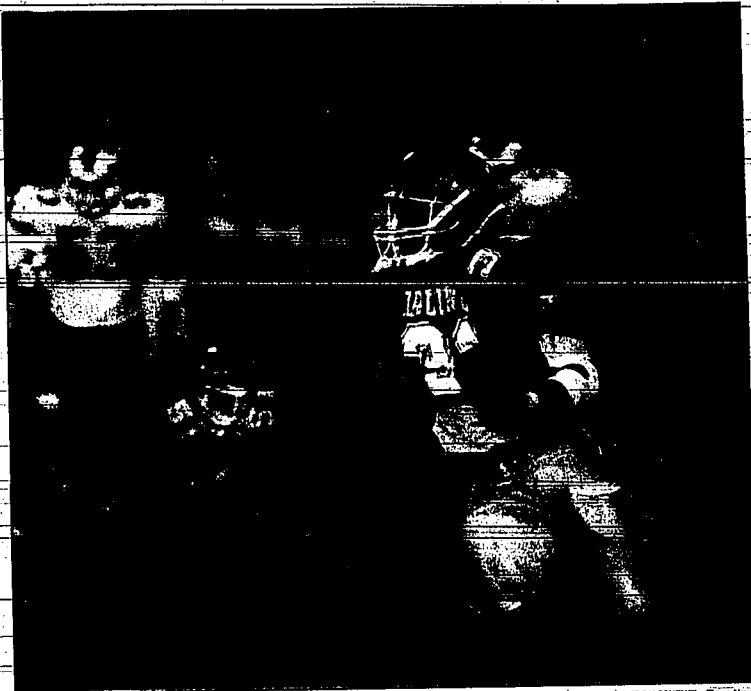

"They know what it is and I know what it is. ... I'm not going to categorize it unless I'm forced to. I can't see any set of circumstances that would require it at this time. They can't remember all the subjects they discussed with the players, all the matters they volunteered cash for."

Watkins also said he will release a final batch of tapes that contain conversations between Dye and Ramsey within two weeks.

Sam Franklin of Birmingham, Dye's attorney, said Watkins is undermining the effectiveness of the NCAA investigation by releasing some of the tapes rather than all of them.

"This, without extending full access to tapes to the NCAA and Auburn, eliminates the chance for verification of the tapes," Franklin said at a news conference. "The time-release" of a hand-picked portion of these tapes also raises questions

Start of 2nd season holds plenty of questions for Bruins, Nampa

By Larry Hovey
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - If there's anything either coaching staff needs to know about Twin Falls or Nampa, all they have to do is think back six days.

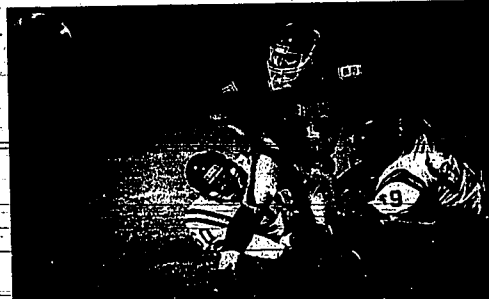

And that could be the major problem when the teams line up at 7 p.m. Thursday at Bruin Stadium in the first round of the Class A-1 Division I football playoffs.

The questions, of course, are can Twin Falls get excited about playing a team it just beat 28-7 and held to 14 yards rushing? Will Nampa come out fired up or let down after last week's battle? The next question is - who knows?

"It's a new session. Both teams are 0-0 even though they played last week," says Twin Falls Coach Jon Jund.

"I expect this to be a much different game plan for both teams because we know what each other tried last week and this time we will have good turf to run on, not a mud bowl like it was in Nampa last week. And I think that will especially help them because they are an option team but they couldn't make the quick cuts because of poor footing," Jund says.

A combination of too many games and

too much moisture left the Nampa Bowl turf quite sparse, particularly in the middle last week. And although Twin Falls won that one quite handily, there were a couple of things for the defense to think about.

One was a number of passes to wide open receivers up the middle that simply didn't connect. "Their verticals (routes) were open over the middle," Jund agrees, "and we are working on that and adjusting our defenses to their motion plays."

Twins' Knoblauch named AL Rookie of the Year

The Associated Press

NEW YORK - Chuck Knoblauch, a second baseman who made the jump from Class AA to the majors and helped spark the Minnesota Twins to a World Series victory, was chosen American League Rookie of the Year on Tuesday.

Knoblauch received 26 of 28 first-place votes in balloting by the Baseball Writers Association of America. Toronto pitcher Juan Guzman and Detroit outfielder Mitt Cuyler split the other two first-place votes.

"Luckily I was a winning team, did some things well and had a consistent year," Knoblauch said from his home in Houston. "There's been a lot of people saying I was going to get it, but I didn't feel like it until I got the call."

Knoblauch got two second-place votes and finished with 16 points in the 5-1 voting system. Guzman got 20 seconds and three third-place votes, finishing second with 68 points. Cuyler got two second-place votes and 11 thirds and was third with 22 points.

"It's the same like the World Series, it won't sink in for awhile," Knoblauch said.

He was drafted by the Twins in the first round in June 1989 after making

Knoblauch

The following year, he was promoted to Orlando of the Southern League and hit 289 with two homers and 53 RBIs. That earned him an invitation to spring training as a non-roster player.

"Our feeling was that we would more or less hold an open and even tryout at second base between (Nelson) Liriano and Knoblauch, and whoever had the better spring would make the club," Twins general manager Andy MacPhail said Tuesday. "We had decided not to arbitrarily send him back to Triple A and held the position open."

Knoblauch hit 388 in 20 spring games, going 26-for-67 with six RBIs. He impressed the Twins enough that Liriano was released six days before the season started.

Boxing promoter says mob tie allegations are fantasies

The Associated Press

NEW YORK - Boxing promoter Don King says allegations that he has ties to organized crime are the veridetta of a former FBI agent.

"People are trying to assassinate my business life," King said Tuesday at a news conference.

"The allegations were made on the show 'Frontline,' reported by Jack Newfield, which was to be shown on PBS Tuesday night, and in a Sports Illustrated story last week by Joseph Spinelli, the former FBI agent, as told to writer William Nack.

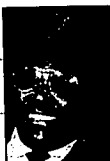

"Let me categorically deny any association with the mob," said King, who once ran a numbers game in Cleveland and served four years for manslaughter.

He said Newfield, a veteran investigative reporter with the New York Daily News and the Village Voice, "has had a vendetta for years trying to bring down black success."

"Blacks can make it in America, but they have to work doubly hard," King said. "Is there a double standard in this country? Yes. Is there racism in this country? Yes."

He called Spinelli a "frustrated FBI agent. Here's a guy who is incompetent. He's dreaming."

Spinelli investigated King while he was with the FBI, which he left in 1985 to become inspector general for the State of

King

New York. King was indicted on federal income tax charges but acquitted on all counts.

King served time on state manslaughter charges in Ohio. He since has been granted a full pardon in that state.

"They're rehashing news of 10, 20, 30 years ago and bringing it up like it was a current affair, and I'm connected with the mob," King said. "If I had a mob, they must be pisses."

In the Sports Illustrated story, Spinelli related an informant's account of King becoming "engaged in what appeared to be a heated conversation" in a restaurant with John Gotti, the reputed boss of the Gambino crime family in New York.

"I'm crazy, but I'm not that crazy," King said. "Arguing with John Gotti ... in New York!"

King said HBO, the cable television network, was behind the allegations on the television program and in the magazine article. King staged many boxing shows on HBO before splitting with the cable network after Mike Tyson's upset loss to James "Buster" Douglas on Feb. 11, 1990, in Tokyo.

Angels tab Hall-of-Famer Carew to improve hitting

ANAHAIM, Calif. (AP) — The California Angels, who finished last in the AL West with a record of 63 wins and 98 losses, moved to improve their offense Tuesday by hiring Rod Carew as their hitting instructor.

Carew, a seven-time AL batting champion inducted into the Hall of Fame this summer, finished his career with the Angels in 1985 and said he felt bitterness toward the team.

Carew wasn't offered a contract in 1986 as the Angels decided to go with Wally Joyner at first base. Joyner filed for free agency last week and might not return to the team next season.

"There were hard feelings," Carew said. "It was bitter, but I couldn't just keep on being that way. After a while, being away, I found myself enjoying doing other things."

"I went through a period when I left here... you can't go on harboring bitter feelings. It's a business. I didn't want to go for a few years."

Also hired Tuesday to work under manager Buck Rodgers were former Kansas City Royals manager John Wathan and ex-Montreal Expos bullpen coach Ken Madala.

The Angels were 81-81 last season despite a 3.69 ERA, tied with Minnesota for second best in the AL. However the Angels hit only .255 and the 653 runs they scored were the second-fewest in the league.

"I'm glad to be back," Carew said. "This is going to be a new challenge for me. Several years ago, Buck Rodgers called and offered me a job in Montreal and I turned him down because I didn't think I was ready."

Rodgers was fired as the Expos' manager early last season and hired by the Angels late in the year.

"I know that I can help," Carew said. "When the hitters leave spring training, they're not going to be looking for a swing. As a hitting instructor, I've got to make sure these guys can hunt and hit-and-run when Buck wants that."

"I know a lot of the guys and I've spent some time with the players during the season, talking to them. I believe I've got something to offer."

"Hopefully, I can get them thinking more at the plate, which is very important. I was a thinking hitter. When they walk up to home plate, I want them being prepared."

Former California Angels first baseman Rod Carew speaks to the press along with manager Buck Rodgers, left, and another New Angel coach John Wathan, center.

Carew said he was glad to be back in California and that he was looking forward to working with the Angels. He mentioned his previous experience with the Montreal Expos and his time in the major leagues.

Carew also mentioned his time as a player with the Angels and how he felt about the team's performance last season. He expressed his confidence in his ability to help the team improve.

Carew's hiring is seen as a move to improve the Angels' hitting. He is expected to work closely with the players and the manager to develop their batting skills.

Yanks sign reliever to 1-year deal

NEW YORK (AP) — Reliever Steve Howe agreed to a one-year, $600,000 contract with the New York Yankees on Tuesday and six players filed for free agency to increase the total to 86.

Howe, signed by the Yankees last year after five suspensions caused by drug and alcohol problems, had until Tuesday to exercise an option that would have sent him into salary arbitration.

Howe wanted to avoid that and instead agreed to a new deal with large bonus provisions. If he stays healthy and pitches regularly, Howe could make as much as $7.5 million.

The six players filing Tuesday were Boston second baseman Steve Lyons, Detroit outfielder Lloyd Moseby, Minnesota outfielder Dan Gladden, Cincinnati outfielders Carmelo Martinez and Herm Waintham and Pittsburgh shortstop Curtis Wilkerson.

Eighteen more players are eligible to file by Monday's deadline. On Tuesday, teams can begin making offers.

The top players among those who have filed for free agency include outfielders Bobby Bonilla and Danny Tartabull, first baseman Wally Joyner, pitchers Frank Viola and Tim Lincecum and relievers Mitch Williams and Alejandro Pena.

Howe was released by the Texas Rangers following the 1990 season and didn't return to the majors until May 1992. The 33-year-old left-hander was 3-1 with a 1.68 ERA in 37 games for the Yankees, but didn't pitch after Sept. 7 because of a tender elbow.

"Steve feels, and I feel, too, that there is an obligation to the Yankees," the pitcher's agent, Richard Moss, said. "The Yankees were the team that gave him a chance last year when everyone else was saying Steve Howe shouldn't be given another chance."

Howe made $500,000 last year. He was guaranteed just $150,000, but his salary increased to $300,000 when he still was on the roster June 1 and went up to his maximum when he was on his roster Aug. 1.

"This time, Howe's incentives include clauses for not being on the disabled list and innings pitched.

4 rookies placed on NBA All-Star ballot

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Four rookies were part of the 100-player NBA All-Star ballot released Tuesday.

Added to the list of perennial favorites like Michael Jordan, Magic Johnson, Larry Bird, Patrick Ewing, Karl Malone, Clyde Drexler, Hakeem Olajuwon and David Robinson are first-year players Larry Johnson of Charlotte, Kenny Anderson of New Jersey, Billy Owens of Golden State and Dikembe Mutombo of Denver.

Voting officially opened for the Feb. 9 NBA All-Star game at 12 different arenas Tuesday night hosting NBA games. The game will be played at the Orlando Arena, and has the host Magic allowed to cast the first ballot.

Point guard Scott Skiles made the vote, picking himself, teammates Dennis Scott and Otis Smith at forwards, Jordan at guard and Ewing at center for the Eastern Conference team. He selected Malone and Karl Malone at forwards for the Western Conference, along with Magic Johnson and John Stockton at guards and Robinson at center.

About 2.2 million votes were cast last year, with Jordan receiving a record 1.5 million. Each team receives 150,000 ballots, and the total vote is expected to surpass 2.5 million.

Balloting will determine the starting players for each conference. The rest of the team will be selected by Eastern Conference coach Phil Jackson and Western Conference coach Mike D'Antoni.

A six-man committee voted on Sept. 24 to determine which players would be on the ballot. Some of the finalists, however, have either been named from the league since Sept. 24 or they remained unsigned.

Roy Tarpley, banished Oct. 16 under the NBA's drug policy, is listed as a forward for the West. Anderson — Miami's — Sherman Douglas and the Los Angeles Clippers' Doc Rivers are holdouts in contract disputes.

"They are very big and at times last week they held us very well," Jund said. "We can't have any let up in effort."

Jund doesn't think that will happen. "All the players on this team have a good attitude about the opportunity to get back into the lineup."

The Bruins will be without safety Eddie Rehrle again this week, meaning that Gordon will again be asked to work both sides of the ball.

"I'm sure they will be giving us some different looks on defense so we will have to be prepared to adjust early," Jund says.

The other thing Twin Falls must consider is that Nampa still is the biggest team the Bruins have played this year.

"We went to our outside game in the second half with good success and if they get into that same stunting game, we will attack the quarterback."

But if all those seem like problems for Twin Falls, consider Nampa's plight. It has to find an answer to Twin Falls' ground attack highlighted by Tar Gordon's 477 yards in three quarters and Dillon Ward's 97 yard average of six days ago.

"After they look at the films, we expect them to try to trap us a little more this time. Defensively, they had success with the nine-man front, crushing the ends and looping the tackles," Jund continues.

"We expect them to go more with Turner as the main champion in 61-60 more option this time," Jund says.

Nampa also probably will have senior linebacker Chris Steltzer, 180-pounds, back for one.

about the motives of the taping, media-happy attorney," he said. "Don't touch it. If you've got it, make it available."

Franklin said that NCAA recommendations and a resolution by Auburn's trustees make it improper for Dye to respond further to the allegations.

"Therefore, someone needs to ask some serious, but obvious questions," Franklin said.

"He accused Watkins and Ramsey of 'keeping the NCAA from completing its investigation and stifling any independent verification of the taped conversations."

"He asked that Watkins turn over all the original tapes to the NCAA and let them decide 'how this story should end.'"

"Watkins' motivation is not the purity of the NCAA," he said, accusing Watkins and Ramsey of "placing themselves above that process."

Dye's position, Franklin said, "is to bring out the original of every tape with the NCAA and they will speak for themselves."

Dye, at his regular weekly news conference on Tuesday, declined any comment about Ramsey's allegations or "orders from my lawyer and the board of trustees."

Franklin said he believes that Dye does not think "that any reliability can be attached to the tapes."

Franklin said that "the media mirage they are creating is turning this issue into a three-ring circus. Ringmaster Donald Watkins should step aside, stop the special effects and back-room editing, and let the NCAA judge fairly the validity of these malicious charges."

Adding more threat to the possibility of a Nampa aerial circus was the fact that 6-3, 215-pound tight end Shawn Pfeiffer didn't play last week. And Nampa largely used Alan Graham at quarterback, moving senior signal-caller Shawn Turner around from running back to wide receiver and back to quarterback at times.

Kimberly's Heather Beard, diving for the ball, as well as teammate Cara McKinlay are members of the all-conference team.

The Times-News

Kimberly finished third in the Canyon Conference race, but the Bulldogs topped the league with four players named to the all-conference team in a vote by the circuit's coaches Monday.

League and state A-3 champion Gooding placed three on the team, as did conference and state runner-up Filner.

Juniors Tara Reinke and Dusty Pence joined senior RobEn Engles of Gooding on the squad. Representing Filner were sophomore Kelli McCabe and seniors Heather Garner and Christie Biggs.

Kimberly landed Cara McKinlay, Gina McAdams and Heather Beard (all seniors) as well as junior Megan Lee.

Rounding out the team were senior Rena Miller of Declo, senior Karena Kohtz of Valley and junior Kristen Smith of Glenns Ferry.

Gooding Coach Jolene Toome was voted the conference's coach of the year.

Tigers quietly pile up victories

By Jeff Hoodison
Times-News writer

JEROME - Taking care of business. The slogan fits the Jerome football team perfectly.

For years the Tigers have been the most-talked-about team in the valley. But this year, thanks in part to the No. 1-ranked Twin Falls Bruins, the Tigers have been able to go about their business with few distractions.

"They (Twin Falls) have helped us," said Tigers Coach Elmer Musgrave. "We haven't had the distraction and that's the way we want it." We knew early on that we had a pretty good club, but I have not been real vocal."

Over the last two weeks the Tigers have begun showing just how good of a club they really are.

Against conference foes Burley and Buhl the Tigers returned to the top of the past.

"It was a must win for us," Musgrave said about the Burley game. "Up to that point we hadn't had any. Burley had been able to roll up some big scores in their three previous games and we knew if we lost that game we lost the season because there was no way to win the conference."

"We went into that game really focused and the kids responded. Last week in the Buhl game I think the Tigers have relied on an offense that was similar to what they had run last year with some minor changes."

"We have added things, opened up a little and tried to diversify the offense," Musgrave said. "We added a roll out pass to take away the blitz up the middle and we also added some trick plays."

Those so-called trick plays have rewarded the Tigers with three scores in their last four games. Against both Sugarcreek and Burley the Tigers executed the reverse perfectly, resulting in two Ritchie Bishop kick returns for touchdowns.

The other trick play, a hook and ladder, also came against the Bobcats.

It also resulted in a game and a few other new plays on offense haven't been the keys to success for the Tigers. Rather it has been the players themselves and their hard work.

"We have a quarterback (Brett Walter) who should pass for over 3,000 yards in his career and a running back (Bishop) who averages almost 100 yards a game receiving. Musgrave said. "We have good kids who work hard."

Besides his standout quarterback and running backs, Musgrave is quick to praise the offensive line.

"You don't throw for numbers like that without a line," he said. "Our offensive line has done a tremendous job for us. They are the heart and soul of this team. We have good things. They have allowed only eight sacks the entire year and five of those were against Twin Falls. They have done a job."

Leading the way on that footer of power are Ben Thomas, Jason Cordova, Jeremy Satterwhite, and Brandon Dixon. All four play both offense and defense, meaning they are on the field a lot.

With all the hard work and time that has been put in the Tigers have been rewarded with an "A" record and a No. 2 ranking in the A-2 class. But as one could guess that will not be enough to satisfy them.

"Our goal coming into the season was to win the state championship," Musgrave said. "We have worked hard and feel good about where we are at."

Declo prepares for difficult Teton

By Brad Breland
Times-News writer

DECLO - If the Declo Hornets are about to face what may be their toughest test yet this year, it's pinned a 40-6 pasting on the Teton.

The Hornets, known as a fast field the last game, the usual high-scoring Hornet offense has scored 20 points in each of the last two games. The field at Glenns Ferry was wet and the field was icy last week in Declo. The elements won't play a big part this week when the Hornets move inside.

Last week's performance against Parma was disappointing to many of the Hornet players and that showing has encouraged a harder practice this week.

"I think we took them lightly," said Coach Jeff Peak of the opposition facing his squad. "They're really quick."

Magic Valley football fans will no doubt recognize the coach on the other side of the field for Teton, Dwight Ritchie, who coached Raft River last year, has seen the Hornets before. Last season, Declo pinned a 40-6 pasting on the Teton.

"I think we took them lightly," said Coach Jeff Peak of the opposition facing his squad. "They're really quick."

"We scored two times and then we laid back. We didn't really fool them. Peak thought differently than Knowles. He felt that his team played good defense, but the Panthers took advantage of the breaks handed to them."

"On their first touchdown they got 30 yards in penalty. One of their knees thought they intercepted a pass and on their third touchdown Ryan Payne slipped on the turf," he said. "Our stats had us dominating the game. I was pleased."

This week against Teton is a new challenge, said Knowles, but don't expect any changes.

"You really can't change things now. If it's not broke, you don't fix it," said Peak. They run a lot of option and we've got to play assignment football."

"We're going to have a good week of practice. We're going to work on being on defense," said Knowles. "That's our strong point. Our defense will win the game for us."

Judge orders NFL to pay union

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - A U.S. District Judge has ordered the National Football League to pay the union for a mediator's fees and costs of the collective bargaining agent for the players.

Judge David Doty's order called the league "utterly baseless and excessive litigation costs unnecessarily and vexatiously."

The NFLPA had argued that the union was an attempt to improperly supplement the record in order to have the issue reviewed. The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals had previously refused to review it.

Giants' linebacker blasts players, coaches

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) - The New York Giants wanted to turn things around after a mediocre first half of the season. In a way they have. They're going backward.

Not only are the defending Super Bowl champions heading the wrong way after a dismal 30-7 loss to Philadelphia on Monday night, but first-year coach Ray Handley apparently doesn't have a clue as to how to right it and his best player thinks he's playing with a bunch of quitters, himself included.

"We didn't do anything out there at all perennial Pro Bowl linebacker Lawrence Taylor said after the Giants (4-5) lost their second straight game. "In my 11 years in the league, I can't remember a game where all 47 players and all the coaches quit like this one ever."

The loss was the Giants' worst since a 44-7 decision to San Diego in 1980 and its severity may have made people realize this defending champion may not be a playoff team - a fate which also fell to the 1987 team after winning the Super Bowl.

The start is to the Giants' worst in a non-strike year since 1983 (2-6-1). With seven games left in the season, New York is out of a playoff spot, tied with Philadelphia and San Francisco for the eighth best record in the NFC.

Handley refused to address in the NFC Stadium on Tuesday, saying he had not read them and did not want to comment. He said if Taylor wanted to talk, they would.

The embattled rookie coach also said he had no intention of replacing Jeff Hostetler as quarterback with Phil Simms. In fact, he didn't mention making any changes for Sunday's game at Phoenix.

Handley said. "I think that has been hurt and they can attempt to regain that. We have to get started winning some games in order to regain that."

One thing is apparent: Handley believes his way is the right way and he is not going to change things or even threaten to change things in hopes it sparks a better performance. The soft-spoken coach even ruled out a locker room tirade, saying even the more vocal Bill Parcells didn't do that in recent years.

The only thing Handley will admit is the team has a confidence problem.

The offense has struggled all season with Hostetler at quarterback instead of Simms, who had led the offense since 1984. The unit is averaging a little more than 15 points per game, and it has not scored more than 23 points in any game. It has been outscored 107-60 in the second half of games.

In the last six quarters, the offense has scored just seven points and it is 2-for-14 on third-down conversions. "Ball-control offense" has run 34 plays in the second half compared to 81 combined for Washington and Philadelphia.

Hostetler has been the focus of the offense's ineffectiveness and there have been plenty of calls for Simms. The Giants all-time leading passer, who got his first action late Monday night in garbage time.

Handley ignored them Tuesday.

"I don't feel the play of the quarterback is the reason we're not playing well offensively, so I won't make the change," said Handley, adding that if he were going to make a change he wouldn't announce it.

New York Giants Coach Ray Handley says he has no plans to bench quarterback Jeff Hostetler in favor of Phil Simms.

"We have to try to get the players to rally and I think, as I said, there are some things they want to regain, and part of that is their pride,"

Buccaneers waive QB, pro bowl cornerback

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) - Quarterback Chris Chandler, who may wind up being Chastler Tampa Bay the top pick in next year's draft, and cornerback Wayne Haddix, the Buccaneers' only Pro Bowl selection last season, were waived today.

Chandler, obtained from the Indianapolis Colts for next year's No. 1 draft pick, started three games this season and was 0-6 in 17 years a fill-in for Vinny Testaverde.

The fourth-year player was critical of both Testaverde and coach Richard Williamson, who Chandler felt did not give him a fair opportunity to win the starting job.

The Buccaneers are 1-8, and the draft pick former coach Ray Perkins gave up to get Chandler could turn out to be the top pick overall next spring.

"A great deal of thought has gone into the decision," Williamson said in a prepared statement. "At this point and time, I do not see either of them contributing to making us a better team now and in the future."

"Chris has not been as successful as he would have liked and it has left him frustrated. I believe it would be better for all concerned to do this now."

Chandler completed 53 of 104 passes for 557 yards and four touchdowns with eight interceptions this season. His best performance came in relief of an injured Testaverde on Oct. 6 when he threw two fourth-quarter TD passes to beat the Philadelphia Eagles 14-13.

His last start came two weeks ago when Testaverde was recovering from a chipped thumb in his right thumb. The Buccaneers turned the ball over on four of their first five possessions against Green Bay, however, and Chandler was benched in favor of third-string quarterback Jeff Carlson.

Today's move means Carlson will move up on the depth chart behind Testaverde, whose quarterback rating of 55.3 is 27th in the NFL after nine games.

Bobcats hope to challenge for A-2 district title

The Times-News

BURLEY - If the Burley Bobcats can make a little experience go a long way, the squad could challenge for the A-2 District 4 title this year.

Point guard Rhonda Dudley and 6-0 center Jennifer Petersen started last season and juniors averaged seven and eight points per game respectively. Petersen also averaged 11 rebounds.

"After our first few girls, we will lack some experience," said second-year coach Michelle Skyles. "But, I think with experience will come confidence, which will help us a lot. It's not what happens now, but how you develop and play at the tournament in February."

Senior 5-9 forward Jennifer Mabey started much of last season, when Burley went 12-13. Cortney Petersen, a 9 junior guard/forward, started a few games. Junior guard Terra Anderson joined the varsity during the district tournament.

1991 Prep Preview

The Bobcats' only other senior is 6-1 center Mieke Hepworth. Juniors include Julene Bloham, Tiffany Ormand and Chere Bywater. Sophomore 5-8 guard/forward Trudy Rigby will join the varsity.

"We have some good potential, and if we use it wisely, we could have a good season," Skyles said.

The Bobcats open at Minico Friday.

Minico Spartans

New coach Kelly Arritt will work to get the Spartans away from being intimidated this year after last season's 0-22 mark.

"Hopefully we can surprise some people this year," Arritt said.

The Spartans return three senior starters, guard Nina Bair and 5-9 forwards Kathy Christenson and Marika Holton. Juniors Tracy Bair (5-8 guard/forward), Christy Serr (5-9 forward) and Kaye Shaw (5-10 forward/post) got varsity playing time last season.

Other candidates for Minico include 6-0 junior Nettie Hawker, sophomore guard Donna Henshied, junior guard/forward Michelle Ennen, senior guard Molly Brown, 6-1 senior Tina Hawker and 5-8 junior guard/forward Wendy Christenson.

"We have great quickness in Nina and Donna, and two players who will put up well in Kaye and Nettie," Arritt said. "We also have a 3-point threat this year and should be a strong rebounding team."

Arritt expects Twin Falls to be the team to beat in the region.

Richfield Tigers

The Tigers return four starters, including senior guard Becci Brown for her third varsity season, but need to overcome a lack of height and team speed.

Richfield lists no player taller than 5-7.

Also back this season is the front-line center, senior Wynna Sorenson, junior Deanna Ward and sophomore Sherry Jones.

The young girls will need to develop by the end of the season if we are to be successful," said Richfield Coach Jim Thomas.

Other varsity candidates are seniors Tammy King and Jennifer Donale, juniors Camille Fuchs and Dana Smart, and freshmen Becky Ward, and sophomore cross-country coach, and Michelle Hubbsmith.

The Tigers start their season at home against Hansen Tuesday.

FSU coach not looking too far ahead

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Florida State finds itself in a perilous situation on Saturday — playing unranked South Carolina before its final games against No. 2 Miami and No. 6 Florida.

Thinking ahead, though, is the last thing on the mind of Seminole coach Bobby Bowden. "I would say South Carolina is a very dangerous football team," Bowden said Tuesday. "They're a team I guess we'll be favored over heavily, but if you go out there looking ahead, you can get yourselves beat."

Which is what No. 1 Florida State (9-0) is trying to avoid in its quest for an elusive national championship. In the previous four seasons, the Seminoles lost just six games, finishing at No. 4 last season, No. 3 in '89, No. 3 in '88 and No. 2 in '87.

The Gamecocks (3-3-2) are 25-point underdogs as Florida State goes for a school-record 16th consecutive victory.

The Seminoles are expected to be healthy on Saturday with the return of quarterback Casey Weldon, and fullback Edgar Bennett, two of six injured players who sat out last week's 40-15 over Louisville.

Bowden said he's eager to get his injured players back before the "showdown" Saturday with the Hurricanes on Nov. 16 at Tallahassee. Florida State is at Florida on Nov. 30.

"I think they need to get back in there and play some more if it doesn't jeopardize anything," Bowden said. "I don't want to hold them out if the doctor says they're OK."

Weldon suffered strained knee ligaments and Bennett a separated shoulder two weeks ago at LSU. Weldon ranks eighth nationally in passing, completing 62 percent of his attempts for 1,820 yards and 17 touchdowns.

Bennett, the team's third leading rusher with 309 yards and second top receiver with 24 catches.

Bowden also hopes wide receiver Kevin Knox, noseguard Troy Sanders and center Robbie Baker can return from injuries. Offensive tackle Kevin Mancini and sophomore Richard Coes are the lone regulars out for South Carolina. Mancini has a knee injury, Coes a broken elbow.

Bowden also said Tuesday that sophomore walk-on Gerry Thomas will continue handling the place-kicking. Thomas has kicked 11 extra points without a miss and hit four of five field goals. "If this guy keeps kicking them like he is, it's going to be hard to get back in front of him," said Bowden. "His opportunity came and he's answered the bell."

Freshman Dan Mowrey has kicked six of seven field goal tries but missed eight extra points. Mowrey will continue to handle kickoffs.

Miami to take out frustrations on West Virginia

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — The Miami Hurricanes are sore that they slipped in the Top 25 this week, and they hope to make West Virginia pay for the insult.

The Hurricanes, off last Saturday, fell into a tie with Washington for the No. 2 ranking after the Huskies beat Arizona State 44-16. Washington (8-0) had been third behind Miami (7-0) the previous week.

"When that happens, it's like people don't respect you," Hurricanes cornerback Gino Torretta said Tuesday. "That's offensive for me, because I think we're one of the best teams in the country, and I don't see how, just because we didn't play, we can drop in the polls."

The Hurricanes will try to reaffirm that they belong ahead of Washington in Saturday's home game against the Mountaineers (10-3).

"We not only have to beat them, we have to beat them convincingly, because the polls are so tight right now," defensive end Rusty Medaris said.

Miami and Washington are tied with 1,413 poll points apiece. Because the Huskies lead 4-3 in first-place votes, their ranking could be described as 2A, while Miami is 2B.

"That's incentive for us to play that much better this weekend," Torretta said.

The Hurricanes' slide in the ratings could top a little luster from their Nov. 16 game at top-ranked Florida State, but 2B or not 2B, Miami refuses to sleep to No. 1.

"If that doesn't happen, there's going to be hell to pay," Medaris said with a smile.

Washington plays at Southern Cal on Saturday, and at Oregon State the following week.

The Miami-Washington tie underscores the possibility that the Huskies and either Miami or Florida State will finish undefeated, and voters will have to choose between them to decide the national champion. The Big Ten-Rose Bowl alliance would make a postseason pairing impossible.

"Something has to be done about the system," I think," Medaris said. "It's ridiculous. The ul-imate matchup would be one of the Florida teams against Washington. It would be a great scenario to meet somewhere in the Midwest for a big bowl game."

Receiver Lamar Thomas would even be willing to play the Huskies in Pasadena. "Washington don't want to play us. I really don't think so," Thomas said. "I would love to play in the Rose Bowl, get some of that Rose Bowl money for our school."

Medaris, from Ozark, Mo., verbally committed to Washington in 1989 before changing his mind and signing with Miami. That gives him a unique — though biased — perspective on the two teams.

"No contest," he said. "They don't have speed-like ours."

For now, Medaris doesn't begrudge the Huskies their ranking. "Washington is playing great football. They have every right to be tied with us," he said. "It doesn't really matter — No. 2 or No. 3, it's going to come down to Nov. 16."

Linebacker 1st sophomore Lombardi nominee

HOUSTON (AP) — Florida State's Marvin Jones became the first sophomore in the 22-year history of the Lombardi Award nominated annually to the nation's top collegiate line-man or linebacker.

Jones, a 19-year-old linebacker, was nominated on Tuesday along with defensive tackles Samana Dotson of Baylor and Steve Emmitman of Washington, and offensive tackle Greg Skrepanik of Michigan.

The award will be presented Dec. 5 at a dinner that raises money for the American Cancer Society.

Jones, 6-foot-2 and 220 pounds, has 86 tackles, nine for losses, and is the second leading tackler for top-ranked, unbeaten Florida State.

As a freshman, Jones led the Seminoles with 133 tackles. He became a starting strong-side linebacker in his third game last year. His top performance last season was 21 tackles against Virginia.

"It is a tribute to him to have reached this stage so early in his career," Florida State coach Bobby Bowden said. "He has done it on his own merit through hard work and determination."

Emmitman, 6-4, 280, has five sacks and 41 tackles this season. He is the first Washington player selected as a finalist for the award, named for Vince Lombardi, who died of cancer in 1970. He was the 1990 co-defensive player of the year in the Pac-10 and the league's top defensive lineman.

Emmitman also is a candidate for the nation's best interior lineman. A redshirt junior, Emmitman can submit his name for April's NFL draft after this season, Coach Don Jones admits there's a chance he could lose Emmitman and there has been conjecture Emmitman will be the first player picked in the draft.

"We'll talk about it at the end of the season," Jones said. "I want to make sure he gets the right information on how the NFL values him. There are experts he can talk to."

Skrepanik, at 6-8, 322, is the biggest player ever to wear a Michigan uniform, leading the charge for a running game that averages 5 yards per carry.

Through nine games, Dotson has 50 tackles and four sacks, and two blocked kicks for the Bears. Dotson was the Southwest Conference newcomer of the year in 1988; he is the son of Alphonse Dotson, who played for the Oakland Raiders.

Notre Dame's Chris Zorich won the 1990 award.

Bowl alliance may begin this season

The Associated Press

The bowl alliance set to start next season may begin much sooner — as early as this month — in order to clarify the postseason picture and set up the best matchups on New Year's Day.

Mickey Holmes, executive director of the Sugar Bowl, said he favors the idea and plans to discuss it with the heads of the three other major bowls that are part of the alliance: the Orange, Cotton and Fiesta.

"I would love to see it happen," Holmes said Tuesday. "That way, we could wait until the season is over and end up with four very good matchups instead of just one or two. It would be very good for postseason football and all college football fans."

Bowl bids are scheduled to go out Nov. 17, one day after No. 1 Florida State plays No. 2 Miami in Tallahassee. But if alliance members can work out a contingency plan based on what happens in key late-season games, such as Oklahoma-Nebraska on Nov. 29 and Florida State-Florida on Nov. 30, major bowl pairings may not be set until the end of the month.

"With so many terrific games happening after the 17th, this seems to be the perfect year to put the alliance in place," said Steve Hutchell, executive director of the Orange Bowl. "Of course, there's an awful lot of elements that have to be coordinated if that's going to happen."

John Junker, executive director of the Fiesta Bowl, had a mixed reaction to the proposal.

"I'd be quite surprised if so many details could be worked out in such a short amount of time," he said. "But I'm always willing to listen if there's a better way of doing things."

The athletic directors of Florida State and Miami indicated their schools might go along with the plan. Both schools will be members of the alliance, which includes four bowls: five conferences and Notre Dame.

"It's for the coalition so I don't see a problem in starting it a year early," Miami AD Dave Maggard said.

"We're team players," said Florida State's Bob Goin. "If everybody else thinks it's the right thing to do, we would probably go along."

However, Holmes said it might be hard to convince everyone in the alliance to wait until the season ends before the bowl pairings are set.

"I understand that could make a lot of people nervous," Holmes said. "But if we can convince everyone it's in their best interest, maybe we can pull it off."

Miami, for instance, is worried that it might end up in a less desirable New Year's bowl if it loses to Florida State and doesn't have a guaranteed berth in the Orange, Cotton or Sugar bowls.

That could leave Miami with a difficult choice. Would the Hurricanes go to the Fiesta Bowl, an alliance member, or the Blockbuster, a nonalliance bowl which competes with the Orange in South Florida? Despite its alliance ties, Miami would probably opt for the Blockbuster because it would give the Hurricanes a chance to play on their home turf.

"If the coalition doesn't come together this year, then we have to do what's best for the University of Miami," Maggard said. "And that could mean any bowl including the Blockbuster."

Right now, the Orange and Fiesta appear to have the best shot at getting a national championship game.

If Florida State beats Miami, the Seminoles would likely go to the Orange to play the Big Eight champion, either No. 11 Nebraska or No. 14 Colorado.

But if Miami beats Florida State, the Hurricanes might go to the Fiesta, to meet bitter rival Notre Dame if the No. 5 Irish beat Tennessee and Penn State before the bids go out. The Hurricanes have extra incentive to play Notre Dame because the Irish cut off their annual series during last year's game.

Of course, the whole scenario could change if Florida State beats Miami and then loses to Florida. That could leave all three Florida teams with one loss and set up a championship Rose Bowl between undefeated Washington and unbeaten Michigan.

The Rose is the only major bowl that isn't part of the alliance.

Army soldier faces life term if convicted of shooting umpire

DALLAS (AP) — A 22-year-old Army soldier faces up to life in prison if convicted in a July shooting incident that left American League umpire Steve Palermo seriously injured.

Army Pvt. Kevin Bivins, 22, stationed at Fort Hood in Killeen, is charged with aggravated robbery and two counts of attempted murder in the shooting. Former Southern Methodist football player Terence Mann also was injured as he and Palermo tried to stop a purse-snatching incident July 7.

Testimony in the trial began today before state District Judge John Crews. Bivins is being tried first on the aggravated robbery with a deadly weapon charge.

Bivins is the first of three men and a juvenile to go to trial in the case.

Bivins faces up to life in prison and a $10,000 fine for the aggravated robbery charge.

Palermo, who was shot in the back, recently returned to his Kansas City, Mo., home after months of rehabilitation in Dallas.

"He can now walk with the aid of braces and crutches. He threw out the first ball in the World Series between the Minnesota Twins and the Atlanta Braves."

Palermo was eating dinner at a restaurant after umpiring a Texas Rangers game, when waitresses outside the establishment were attacked by mobs. Palermo and Mann ran to help them. Both were shot.

U.S. golfers pick Aussies to win Four Tours title

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) — Americans Fred Couples and Lanny Wadkins are picking Australia to defend its title in the $1.15 million Four Tours World Championship of Golf beginning Thursday.

"Everybody's got a good team, but since they're at home they'll have the advantage," Couples said Tuesday of Australia's chances in the competition between six-man teams representing the Australian, United States, European and Japanese PGA tours.

"What we've got to overcome is the trip," Wadkins said. "We've been traveling 30 hours to get here, and we all feel ragged right now."

Ian Baker-Evans, the British Open champion, will be joined on the Australian team by Craig Parry, Roger Mackay, Rodney Davis, Graham Marsh and Mike Harwood. The U.S. team also includes Billy Mayfair, Bob Tway, Tom Purtzer and Jim Gallagher Jr.

Europe has five Ryder Cup players among its group of Colin Montgomerie, Steven Richardson, Sam Torrance, David Echarry, Paul Brodhurst and Ronan Rafferty.

The Japanese PGA tour will be represented by Noboru Sugai, Ricky Kawagishi, Hideki Kase, Hiroshi Makino, Tsukasa Watanabe and Yoshinori Kaneko.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

"Four be the things I am wiser to know: Idleness, sorrow, a friend and a foe."
— Dorothy Parker

West's opening bid told South all he needed to know to make his game, but South played the hand as if he had never heard the bidding. — Dummy's diamond king won, and South drew trumps and took a winning club finesse to dummy's jack. Next he cashed the diamond king and led a third diamond, hoping to enjoy West. He tucked there. West allowed East's 10 to hold for the crucial spade shift, and South could no longer avoid the loss-of-four tricks. Where did South go wrong? South was right in trying to end-play West. However, he made his fatal mistake at trick one. He should have ducked West's diamond queen at trick-one-to-slam-the-door-on-East.

The diamond continuation is won in dummy and South proceeds as before. He draws trumps, takes a club finesse to the jack and cashes dummy's other-high-diamond. Next he plays dummy's club ace and a club back to his queen, and West is finished. After winning the club king, he must lead away from his spade ace or offer a ruff and discard; either way, South gets his 10th winner.
