Poll shows economy helping Democrats close in on Bush

Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Anxiety over the nation's economy has brought the Democrats within range of President Bush in the 1992 campaign, but the party remains hindered by doubts about its ability to produce prosperity, a new Los Angeles Times Poll has found.

Less than three months before the first primary voters go to the polls in New Hampshire, the survey shows that none of the six announced Democratic candidates has yet made a meaningful impression on the public. And it found that New York Gov. Mario M. Cuomo, who has been contemplating a candidacy, would be an instant front-runner if he entered the race for the Democratic nomination.

President Bush, meanwhile, holds a commanding lead over two potential primary challengers: conservative columnist Patrick J. Buchanan and former Klu Klux Klan leader David Duke, a Louisiana state representative.

Among Republicans and independents, those surveyed say they would back Bush in a primary, as compared with just 8 percent who endorse Buchanan and 2 percent who support Duke. Bush also enjoys a comfortable margin over Cuomo in a general election race. The Times Poll, supervised by John Brennan, surveyed 1,709 adults from Nov. 21 through Nov. 24. It has a margin of plus or minus 3 percentage points for most questions; the margin of error is 5 percentage points for samples of only registered Democrats or Republicans.

Hydro projects won't damage river further

Consultant offers opinion of Snake

By N.S. Nektnev
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Water quality in the Middle Snake River is bad, a consultant says, but three proposed hydroelectric projects won't make it worse.

Design changes in LB Industries' proposed hydro projects at Boulder, Empire and Kanaka rapids would reduce their effects on water quality to near zero, said Mark Hill, who works for the Boise-consulting firm of Don Chapman Consultants Inc.

"There's no question about the condition of the river," he said. Low flows, years of sediments, infringements from fish hatcheries, irrigation return flows and municipal sewage treatment plants have left the river a fertile bed for weeds that choke parts of the river in summer. Hill told the Mid-Snake River Study Group Tuesday.

"They've got plenty of groceries to live on," he said.

Over the years sediments deposited on the bottom have reduced the depth of the river, giving the plants, which thrive in shallow water, plenty of places to grow. And the past few dry years have reduced the flows that normally discourage weed growth in most parts of the river, he said.

Echohawk finds fatal flaws in 1% tax lid proposal

By Drew DeSilver
Times-News writer

BOISE — Even if it passes next year, the 1 percent property tax initiative will never take effect in its present form, Attorney General Larry Echohawk said Tuesday.

Calling the tax-limitation initiative "seriously flawed," Echohawk said it could not be implemented without scrapping the state's entire property-tax structure.

And, according to a 28-page opinion released by Echohawk's office, most if not all of the initiative would be struck down by the courts as unconstitutional.

"The 1 percent will not stand up to a court challenge," Echohawk said at a press conference Tuesday morning.

The initiative's backers, especially Ron Rankin, president of the Idaho Property Owners Association, "have a responsibility to present something more than slogans," Echohawk said. "They have a responsibility to present something that will work."

"Mr. Rankin has failed miserably in that responsibility."

Two months ago, state Rep. Mike Simpson, R-Blackfoot, asked Echohawk for a formal legal opinion on the initiative. The opinion was issued Tuesday, drafted by several high-ranking attorneys in Echohawk's office, faults the initiative on several grounds.

Among the most significant:

- Counties have no power to apportion property tax receipts among independent taxing districts, as the initiative would require.

- Implementing the initiative would violate the state constitution's provision that all property within a taxing district be taxed uniformly.

- It would be impossible, and probably unconstitutional, to require that levy overrides be approved by two-thirds of qualified voters, rather than two-thirds of those actually voting.

- Even if it were implemented, the two-thirds rule would interfere with local government's ability to impose special levies for emergency expenses.

- The rule would also jeopardize tax-vote urban renewal within a specified zone and are repaid with taxes generated by increased property values within the zone.

- "The impact of this initiative on Idaho's standing in the bond market would be enormous," Echohawk said in a statement. "It would introduce such uncertainty into local governments to issue bonds at reasonable interest rates."

Rankin could not be reached for comment Tuesday. But last week, he said he rejected any opinion Echohawk's office might issue on the initiative because attorney general had previously expressed

Demos accept challenge to craft year-end tax cut

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Congressional Democrats on Tuesday accepted a challenge from President Bush to craft a year-end tax cut, vowing to start hearings next week and call the House and Senate back from holiday recess if needed.

On what had been planned as the last work day of the year, major bills to build highways, aid the Soviets and protect bank deposits awaited action.

But an angry House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., emerged from a closed-door meeting with fellow Democrats to tell reporters he would not tolerate suggestions from that Congress was shirking its duties by adjourning for the year.

Nor would he give Republicans a last-minute vote on their new plan to cut capital gains taxes and other levies, despite Bush's 11th-hour endorsement of the package.

"It is unbelievably irresponsible of the president to suggest he would like us to legislate this proposal until last night," Foley said.

The package would add $23 billion to the federal deficit, making it "unbelievably irresponsible. And I am not going to be a cooperater in any such effort," he said. Actions on an economic stimulus program of tax cuts had been expected to wait until next year, after Bush's State of the Union Address. But because of the flap, the House Ways and Means Committee would start hearings next week, Foley said.

"Whether we can get it (a tax bill) done depends on what the president can accept," said Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif.

The tax battle was fought while both the House and Senate were working through what they had hoped would be their final day of the year.

Andrus takes nuclear waste fight to E. Idaho

The Associated Press

IDAHO FALLS — Gov. Cecil Andrus took his fight against Energy Department radioactive waste management policies into the heart of Idaho National Engineering Laboratory country Tuesday.

In doing so, he again accused the government of trying to make INEL a commercial nuclear waste dump.

"It is my belief that, in the halls of the Department of Energy, there is a so far unspoken intent to alter the historic mission of INEL — perhaps to make weapons but more likely to become host to ones of high-level waste generated at commercial reactors across the country and around the world," Andrus told the Idaho Falls Chamber of Commerce.

"Our laboratory is at the crossroads of its future, and disturbingly, of Idaho's future," the governor said. "INEL should not

Judge blocks WIPP shipments

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A federal judge Tuesday ordered the government to halt its plans to ship nuclear waste to an underground storage facility near Carlsbad, N.M.

Congress has not authorized the storage of radioactive waste at the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant, said U.S. District Judge John Garret Penn, ruling in favor of the state of New Mexico, which challenged the plan.

The Energy Department wants to ship as many as 8,500 drums of plutonium-contaminated waste from Idaho to the plant, 26 miles southeast of Carlsbad. The test program was intended to help officials decide whether to use WIPP as a permanent disposal site.

However, Penn wrote, "Defendants Please see WIPP/A2 become a bomb factory, and INEL is not going to become a nuclear garbage dump."

But as the Democratic governor again shrugged off criticism of his confrontation with the government over further waste storage at INEL, another Republican subtly added his criticism of Andrus, claiming

"informed discussion has been drowned by emotional rhetoric which has politicized the issue."

Crapo comments - B1

State Sen. John Hansen of Idaho Falls, who is considering a run for the U.S. Senate next year, called for creation of an independent panel of experts to assess the potential environmental and health risks from the Energy Department's fuel storage plans for INEL.

Hansen suggested the state could suffer, by seeing INEL gradually phased out of the department's future plans if the impasse over waste storage there is not resolved.

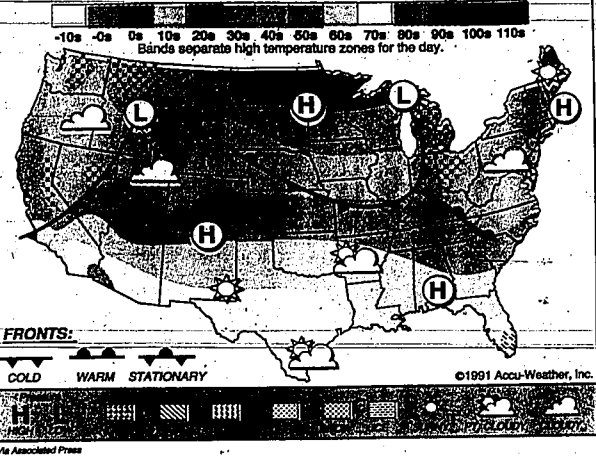

"The Idaho laboratory provides thousands of jobs and has brought billions of dollars into the state of Idaho," he said. "The Department of Energy will make the decisions on the location of future programs and facilities. There will be fierce

Weather summary

The National Weather Service has issued a winter storm warning for the central Idaho mountains through today and a snow advisory for the northern and southern mountains. A fairly strong storm system continued to push across the Pacific Northwest. Extremely cold air and gusty wind will follow this storm on Thursday and Friday. Travelers should be prepared for winter driving conditions during the next few days.

By Tuesday afternoon, light precipitation from the storm had already spread across much of Idaho. Lowell's .52 inch was the most reported, with other substantial amounts including .21 at Fairfield and Mullan, .17 at Rexburg and .15 at Caldwell.

Afternoon temperatures around the state were mostly in the 30s and 40s.

The warmest temperature in the state Tuesday was 49 degrees at Malla and Hagerman. Stanley reported the coldest at 11 degrees.

Elsewhere in the nation Tuesday, the highest temperature was 88 degrees at Glendale and Northridge, Calif. The lowest was 11 degrees below zero at Arcadia, Wis.

Strong northerly wind picked up moisture from the lower Great Lakes and produced snow squalls that produced locally heavy snow in upstate New York. Sixteen inches of snow was reported at Highmarket, N.Y., between Lake Ontario and the western edge of the Adirondacks.

Snow showers also developed over northern New England.

Elsewhere, a few showers spread over the Texas coast.

Morning lows dipped below 20 across much of the area from the upper Mississippi Valley to the Ohio Valley, and into the single digits in Upper Michigan and the upper Mississippi Valley.

In the South, freezing morning temperatures were reported from southern Louisiana to northern Florida.

Greenville, S.C., had a record low of 21; Jackson, Ky., had a record low of 17; and New Orleans hit a record low of 32.

N. Korea shifts on nuclear pact

River

His studies have shown that aquatic weeds use up more oxygen than the water can absorb in natural rapids. That leaves little for fish to survive on, he said.

Hill's studies attempted to predict how the three proposed projects by LB Industries, a Boise-based energy development company, would affect this already stressed river. His results led to changes that scaled back the projects and reduced their effect on the river's ability to absorb oxygen, he said.

He also found that the bottoms of deep pools below the three rapids were filled with "organic muck." Those pools would normally be kept clean by the scouring action of the river, absent in recent years.

The pools favored habitat of sturgeon and other fish.

To help relieve this problem, the powerhouses, where water used to drive generating turbines rejoins the river, were moved back so the released water would enter and help scour the pools, Hill said.

Though they will have little effect on the river, the three projects will not solve any problems of water quality in the river. That will take a program to reduce the sediments and nutrients entering the river and an increase in summer flows, he said.

Without the flow, the weeds grow, trap more sediment and start taking oxygen out of the water, "and everything goes to hell from there," Hill said.

negative opinions on it.

Rachel Gilbert, a Boise real-estate agent and former state senator who is vice president of the IPOAO, asked EchoHawk if he had "a serious ethical conflict" in issuing the opinion.

"Absolutely not," EchoHawk replied.

"This is a legal opinion, not a political opinion," he said. "I believe the opinion will stand on its merits."

State Rep. Jim Kempton, R-Albion, who has strenuously attacked the initiative's two-thirds requirement as undemocratic, said he was pleased that the attorney general agreed with him.

The initiative's backers describe themselves as conservatives, Kempton said, but requiring two-thirds of qualified voters to approve overrides would give non-voters the power to determine the outcome of any override election.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — mass destruction, says disposal of more than 25,000 munitions is likely to go well into 1993.

Under the Security Council's April-3 cease-fire-resolution ending the Gulf War, Baghdad agreed to cooperate in destroying its chemical, biological and nuclear weapons programs.

The commission said technical agreements were reached on disposing of mustard gas and nerve agents, but more talks are needed.

competition for these projects among other laboratories feeling the pinch because of declining defense spending.

INEL is refusing to directly endorse some sort of additional waste storage at the facility; Hansen said an independent, high-level panel of technical experts could provide the information on the kinds of risks involved so that "state officials" can make an informed decision.

Andrew Chief of Staff Mark Johnson said there is already an independent group reviewing environmental and health effects of INEL operations. The Dose Evaluation Risk Assessment Panel of non-governmental scientists and public, environmental, industry, labor and tribal interests, set up last summer as a result of meetings Andrus had with the Energy Department in 1988, will begin environmental and public health assessments in January.

And the governor told the Idaho Falls business leaders that the future of INEL rests in strengthening and expanding its research and development activities into the peaceful uses of nuclear energy.

He presented no convincing evidence that the hazardous waste materials they seek to introduce in the WIPP site are retrieved.

State officials contended the underground salt beds could collapse and make it impossible to remove the radioactive waste, thus making WIPP a permanent storage site by default.

Energy Department officials were not available to comment on the ruling, which was released late in the day.

The federal government had agreed to wait for a ruling by Penn, but government attorneys argued earlier this month that further delays would be expensive. It costs $3 million a month to maintain the WIPP site, on which more than $1 billion has been spent to date, government lawyers said.

But Penn said that money might be spent whether or not the test phase was carried out.

Stormy weather widespread across northern states

Penn ordered the federal government to stop its plans to ship radioactive waste to the New Mexico site. The injunction is intended to remain in effect until Penn makes a final ruling in the case.

The Energy Department took over the WIPP site Oct. 3 from the Interior Department after negotiations in Congress on a land transfer plan broke down. New Mexico officials argued that the land transfer was illegal, because the Constitution gives Congress control over federal land.

The Natural Resources Defense Council and the state of Texas joined New Mexico in the lawsuit. The waste repository is near the Texas border.

There is interest in the issue through much of the West because the first shipment would come from Idaho, though Utah and Colorado enroute to Carlsbad.

Economic recession turns holiday aid donors into receivers

The Associated Press

The economic slump has charities struggling to cope with increased numbers of people seeking aid this Thanksgiving, including a "new class of poor" who were the donors of past years, officials say.

A Connecticut church group is turning people away in what its director calls "the most heart-wrenching decision I've ever had to make."

In Michigan, which abolished welfare for 85,000 adults last month, a soup kitchen is facing "astronomical" demand.

In Burlington, Vt., the emergency food service is trying to serve up to 20 percent more people with only a tiny increase in donations.

"Don't tell me that the recession is over," said Ruth Sheeter, executive director of the Housing Information Center in Kansas City, Mo. "President Bush needs to walk with the people and find out what it really means."

Capt. Phil Murphy of the Salvation Army in Raleigh, N.C., said donations to his unit are off $18,000 from last year for the Christmas and winter relief drives, but the number of people seeking help has been rising.

"There are more people living from paycheck to paycheck than ever before," he said. "This is a whole different strata of people, and it's going to happen for some time."

In Bridgeport, Conn., hand-hit by economic troubles, a coalition of churches known as Area Congregations Together, or ACT, is turning away about 100 families who sought Thanksgiving food, out of about 250 who applied.

"It's unbelievable. It's tragic. It's the most heart-wrenching decision I've ever had to make," said executive director Kathleen Samela.

Donations to fund the holiday meal program are down so sharply that "we don't know if we can feed the families we've accepted, never mind the ones we've had to turn away," Samela said.

"In our annual mailing asking for Salt Lake City restaurateur Chris Rizaklis prepares Monday to feed an expected 1,800 homeless and needy people on Thanksgiving.

"These are people who might have given $10, $25 or more last year," Kay Wallick, executive director of the Mid-America Assistance Coalition in Kansas City, Mo., described the ranks of new applicants for aid as a "new class of poor, new clientele who have never used assistance before. These are people who used to give to the United Way."

Bill Thompson, 47, has been living at the Open Shelter in Columbus, Ohio, since July when he lost his job at a racetrack. Though he found work at a local paper company this month, he still will be spending his first Thanksgiving at a shelter.

"It'll be something new for me. I have to put up with what I can do," said Thompson.

In Jackson, Miss., Cassandra Crump, a 21-year-old mother of five, was one of 50 people who lined up last week at the Community Stewpot, waiting to be screened by volunteers to determine if they were eligible for aid.

"You try to get a job and they just holler at you to come back," said Crump.

Several charity administrators said the people seeking aid are getting younger.

"The age level is much, much lower than what it's traditionally been in years gone by," said the Rev. Waymon Pritchard of the Raleigh (N.C.) Rescue Mission. "And then the drug culture has had a lot to do with it."

A study released Sunday by the Children's Defense Fund, an advocacy group, said younger workers have borne the brunt of the recession.

The study concluded that 1 million of the 1.2 million recession-induced job losses have hit workers under age 25. Many workers over 25 lost jobs as well, the study said, but those losses were offset by job gains among other older workers, something that didn't happen with the younger workers.

Charities in Michigan are struggling under a particular burden this season, because of the sluggish auto economy and the Oct. 1 cutoff of welfare recipients who did not have custody of children and were deemed to be able-bodied.

"The numbers are astronomical," said Lewis Hickson, general manager of the Capuchin Soup Kitchen in Detroit, which feeds 1,000 people a day in its cafeteria and provides food packages for up to 4,000 additional meals a day.

Pressure reportedly halts rapper's beer ads

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Korean American merchants angered by what they call a racist song by rap music artist Ice Cube have forced a beer company to stop commercials starring the singer, a newspaper reported Tuesday.

Merchants in Philadelphia and across the country pulled St. Ides beer from their shelves earlier this month to protest a song called "Black Korea," that warned that disgruntled blacks might "burn your store right down to a crisp."

Ice Cube stars in radio and television ads for St. Ides, a high-strength malt beer popular in black neighborhoods.

Korean merchants own an increasing number of inner-city convenience stores, and several have found themselves in conflicts with blacks. A New York City store was picked after a black woman claimed she was pushed. Blacks have been shot by Korean-Americans in Philadelphia and Los Angeles.

An estimated 3,000 stores joined the beer boycott, which ended Nov. 20 after the brewer, San Francisco-based McKenzie River Corp., agreed to stop broadcasting Ice Cube ads for the time being. The Philadelphia Inquirer reported.

Brits detonate nuclear weapon

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Scientists detonated a British nuclear weapon Tuesday 1,500 feet below the surface of the Nevada Test Site.

The test, code-named Briton, was classified as having a yield of less than 20 kilotons, said Energy Department spokesman Darwin Morgan. It was the eighth test announced this year.

The weapon was buried 1,500 feet beneath Yucca Flat, about 80 miles northwest of Las Vegas, and detonated at 10:35 a.m. The blast was not felt outside the sprawling testing range, Morgan said.

It was the 715th announced test since testing began at the remote desert site in 1951. All British nuclear weapons are tested at the site under a mutual defense treaty, signed in 1958.

Ex-defendant will sue for false arrest

PHOENIX (AP) — One of four men cleared of charges in the killing of nine people at a Buddhist temple said Tuesday he is filing a false-arrest lawsuit against the county sheriff and a claim for $10 million.

Leo Valdez Bruce, who was freed Friday, alleged that he was defamed and suffered emotional distress when arrested in September on the strength of confessions they later recanted.

Bruce, 28, said the arrest by a task force headed by Maricopa County Sheriff Tom Agnos deeply hurt him and his family.

Does our low $59 eyeglass price scare you?

How many times have you seen a low advertised eyeglass price, but when you get to the store you find out they have only 5 or 6 frames at that price? We carry over 400 frames at each store, and the vast majority are available at our $59 price—complete with single vision, plastic lenses.

In fact, instead of our prices going up when you get here, our prices get even lower after your first pair.

A second pair, purchased at the same time, same prescription, is just $39! Most bifocals only $10 more.

Quality to crow about
Just because we have low prices doesn't mean we compromise on quality.

Our glasses are as well made or better made than those costing much more.

Contacts & glasses combo, $64!
Our clear, daily wear soft contact lenses by Sola Barnes Hind or Bausch & Lomb are just $25.

Add a pair of back-up glasses, with single vision, plastic lenses, for $39. That totals up to just $64 for both—contacts and glasses!

Who owns your prescription?
You do! Many people don't realize that when you receive an eye exam the prescription belongs to you. You can take it with you to buy glasses or contacts anywhere you want. Bring it to us and save money.

Doctor's Comment
"We think about eye exams as we get older, but it's also important for children to have their eyes checked regularly." "A child's performance in school might fall off before anyone realizes that he or she simply wasn't able to read the blackboard. Or a school screening may not detect a slight farsightedness that is causing reading problems or headaches."

Comprehensive eye exams by Independent Doctors of Optometry • Complete contact lens care
Over 400 fashionable frames, including latest designer styles
Free frame adjustments • Most vision care plans accepted

First pair $59
Single vision, plastic lenses. Most bifocals $10 extra. No extra charge for oversize lenses or for almost all high-power lenses.

Additional pairs $39
Same prescription, same visit. Most bifocals $10 extra.

Surveillance expert spies from shuttle

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — An Army surveillance expert flying aboard shuttle Atlantis spied on targets Tuesday in Cambodia, Zimbabwe and an Indian island that was a major staging area for U.S. troops during the Gulf war.

Space spy Thomas Hennen used a special telescope to zoom in on the points 224 miles below. The Pentagon provided few details as to what Hennen was looking at or the resolution achieved.

Military officials want to know just how much astronauts can see from orbit. Their eyes could prove useful during wartime.

Although Atlantis' 10-day military mission is unclassified, much about Hennen's job in orbit is secret. He is forbidden from being shown in shuttle videotapes holding maps and target charts, and his conversations with ground controllers often are blacked out.

Jury convicts Colombian assassin

NEW YORK — A Colombian reputed to be the most feared assassin of the Medellín cocaine cartel was convicted Tuesday of using a false identity and lying to federal agents who arrested him as he used a pay phone.

The two charges each carry prison sentences of up to five years. The trial in U.S. District Court began Monday, and the jury deliberated just a few hours. Judge Jack B. Weinstein set sentencing for Jan. 13 and ordered a full hearing into the background of Dandeny Munoz-Mosquera.

"If the government proves what it alleges, the defendant will probably get 10 years in prison," Weinstein said. Munoz's attorney said he would appeal.

House passes compromise ad legislation

WASHINGTON — The House on Tuesday passed compromise legislation outlawing the use of automated telephone and facsimile equipment to send unsolicited advertisements into people's homes.

The compromise, which combines separate versions passed earlier by the House and Senate, was approved on a voice vote. The Senate was expected to act on it before Congress adjourns Wednesday.

"The nightly ritual of phone calls was fed up," said Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass. "This is the beginning of the end for junk calls and junk faxes."

Date set for videotaped beating trial

LOS ANGELES — The trial of four police officers charged in the videotaped beating of black motorist Rodney King will be held in Ventura County beginning Feb. 3, a judge ordered Tuesday.

The trial site outside of Los Angeles County was selected by Superior Court Judge Stanley Weisberg from among three possibilities, including Alameda and Riverside counties.

Orange County, originally mentioned as a trial site, was dropped after Weisberg found out they did not have a court available. Prosecutors favored sending the case to Alameda County, which they said was farther away from the extensive publicity that has surrounded the case in Los Angeles County.

Rupture spills by-product into river

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — A tank rupture at a paper mill spilled 500,000 to 1 million gallons of a paper-making by-product into the St. Johns River, state officials estimated.

The 2 million-gallon tank ruptured early Monday at Jefferson Smurfit Corp.'s linerboard plant between downtown Jacksonville and the St. Johns River's mouth on the Atlantic. A maintenance man suffered burns.

The tank held so-called "black liquor," a liquid left after wood chips are cooked in the paper-making process. It is burned in the company's boilers as fuel.

Senate OKs jobless benefit expansion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate on Tuesday voted easy approval of a bill expanding unemployment benefits beyond the improvements enacted just two weeks ago.

The measure, a response to lawmakers' complaints that the earlier legislation shortchanged some states, gives extra weeks of benefits to people in 23 states and adds about 200,000 jobless-Americans to the new coverage.

It also liberalizes trade with several nations in South America and East Europe.

The Senate sent the bill to the House on a voice vote. The House was ready to approve the measure and ship it to President Bush for his expected signature.

"It assures jobless Americans in all 50 states they will have more time to find work and fewer worries about how they will pay the mortgage," said Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas.

Bush fought Democratic efforts since the summer to expand benefits for the 300,000 people per month who have used up the regular 26 weeks of unemployment coverage during the recession.

But the president, under attack as the economy continued to falter, relented after Democrats agreed to minor tax changes to pay for the changes. He signed a $5.3 billion package helping 2.8 million Americans on Nov. 15.

The new bill sweetens the earlier one by giving all eligible people who have used up the regular 26 weeks of coverage at least 13 extra weeks, instead of the six extra weeks people in 23 states would have gotten.

And it lets people in all states qualify for the extra coverage if they used up their regular benefits anytime after last March 1. Under the old bill, people in 18 states qualified only if they

States that new bill will help

WASHINGTON (AP) — These states will be helped by a bill the Senate passed Tuesday improving unemployment benefits:

States going from six to 13 weeks of extra coverage: Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Delaware, Hawaii, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Louisiana, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Hampshire, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah, Virginia, Wisconsin, Wyoming and the Virgin Islands.

States gaining retroactivity to March 1: Colorado, Delaware, Hawaii, Indiana, Iowa, Louisiana, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New Hampshire, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Utah, Virginia, Wisconsin, Wyoming and the Virgin Islands.

used up the regular coverage since Nov. 17. The Labor Department says this makes 200,000 more people eligible for coverage.

The measure has been stalled since last week. The final obstacle was cleared when the Senate dropped its opposition to a provision-casing import duties for Bolivia, Peru, Ecuador and Colombia to encourage their anti-drug crackdowns.

U.S. probes alleged smuggling

MIAMI (AP) — U.S. investigators are probing alleged drug-trafficking activities by top Cuban officials, a federal prosecutor brought out during questioning Tuesday at Manuel Noriega's racketeering trial.

The investigation emerged during testimony by convicted cocaine smuggler Carlos Lederer, a top Medellín cartel transporter who has tied the ousted Panamanian leader to drug protection payoffs.

Lederer said he also met with Cuban President Fidel Castro's brother Raul and the head of Cuban intelligence, Manuel "Redbeard" Pinciro, to discuss using their island nation as a transit point for U.S.-bound cocaine.

The witness said he first traveled to Cuba in 1981, meeting with fugitive U.S. financier Robert Vesco and Raul Castro. By 1982, he said, he had become the Medellín drug cartel's "connection" to Cuban authorities.

Doomsday Clock turns back

CHICAGO (AP) — The Doomsday Clock was turned back Wednesday to 11:43 p.m. — its furthest point ever from "nuclear midnight."

The clock appears on the cover of the Bulletin, founded in 1945 by University of Chicago scientists who helped build the atomic bomb. The Bulletin's directors and editors determine the setting.

The 40-year-long East-West nuclear arms race has ended, the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists said in an editorial. "The illusion that tens of thousands of nuclear weapons are a guarantor of national security has been stripped away."

The clock had stood at 11:50 p.m. since March 1990. It was closest to midnight — 11:58 p.m. — in 1953, after the United States tested the hydrogen bomb.

Ralston Purina must pay rival

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge has ordered Ralston Purina Co. to pay $12.1 million to rival ALPO Petfoods Inc. to make up for false advertising in touting the health benefits of Purina Puppy Chow.

The penalty ordered by U.S. District Judge Stanley Sporkin was higher than a previous $10.4-million damage award to ALPO, which was thrown out last year by a federal appeals court.

Ralston "perpetrated a cruel hoax on dog owners" in the mid-1980s with an advertising campaign claiming that its Puppy Chow could help prevent degenerative joint diseases, Sporkin said.

The judge also ordered ALPO to pay $850,994 to Ralston in connection with a counter-lawsuit that claimed an ALPO advertising campaign also was deceptive.

Suit aims to block reapportionment action

BOISE (AP) - The state Republican Party's national committee has asked a district court judge to bar the Legislature from taking any further action on redrawing legislative district lines.

Gov. Cecil Andrus said on Tuesday he thinks the lawsuit is premature. But Republican state Senate President Pro Tem Michael Crapo of Idaho Falls, while not endorsing the legal action, said having a court standing by ready to act is not a bad idea.

The lawsuit filed in 4th District Court on Monday on behalf of Janet Miller of Boise named Crapo, House Speaker Tom Boyd of Genesee and Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa, the state's chief election officer, as defendants.

The petition asks the court to bar the Legislature from further action on the reapportionment issue and assume responsibility for drawing a new state constitutional mandates of reducing the number of districts from 42 to no more than 35, eliminating so-called floater districts and reflect population growth and shifts during the 1980s.

In the alternative, Miller asked the court to set a deadline by which the Legislature must adopt an acceptable plan or turn the responsibility over to the courts.

If a deadline is not set to force legislative action or clear the way for a judicial declaration, the May primary would be disrupted, the suit maintained, and voters left in confusion.

"The Legislature is entitled to the chance to act," Andrus said. "The court is not entitled to act until the Legislature has failed to act. They haven't failed to act - yet."

A special legislative committee, working since last winter, has come up with four reapportionment options though none received the kind of bipartisan support that would have prompted Andrus to recall lawmakers into special session to approve the plan.

Crapo and Boyd, along with Democratic legislative leaders, are submitting those four plans to an independent legal panel to determine whether any would withstand a court challenge. And both Crapo and Boyd have unilaterally set a Jan. 31 deadline for legislative resolution of the issue.

"If the Legislature doesn't finish its work by January 31st, it will be clear that for whatever reason we cannot resolve the issue," Crapo said. "And when it becomes clear that the Legislature cannot resolve the issue, then it is not only appropriate but necessary that the judiciary step in and resolve it." Although he did not endorse the judiciary-infringing at this stage on the Legislature's authority to reapportion itself, Crapo said that if a deadlock does occur it would be helpful to have a court ready to act on Feb. 1 with all the legal preliminaries already taken care of.

"The people of the state of Idaho deserve to have this resolved, and they need to have it resolved in manners that does not disrupt our elections," Crapo said.

Although court intervention has been the rule rather than the exception in past reapportionment battles, it has never come before lawmakers actually adopted a plan that could be challenged.

The difference this time, Crapo said, is that the state constitution has been changed so that the current legislative district map is no longer constitutional and the courts would not have the option of keeping it in place while a new, acceptable map is drawn.

Lewiston farmer named to board

BOISE - Lewiston farmer G. Bert Henriksen has been named to the state Health and Welfare Board, and Gov. Cecil Andrus says he will bring a different perspective to the panel.

Henriksen replaces Ron Harlow, Lewiston, who resigned. The term runs until January, 1993. Henriksen holds degrees in agriculture from University of Idaho.

The Health and Welfare Board formulates rules and regulations for the Department of Health and Welfare. Appointments are subject to confirmation by the Idaho Senate.

Tribes may receive assistance from feds

BOISE - The U.S. Department of Interior has asked the Justice Department to intervene on behalf of the Coeur d'Alene Tribe in its lawsuit against the state over ownership of Lake Coeur d'Alene.

Ray Givens, attorney for the Coeur d'Alenes, has asked for a three-month extension to respond to the state of Idaho's motion to dismiss the tribe's suit. In court papers filed Monday in Boise, Givens said the delay was needed because of possible federal involvement in the case.

Department of Justice attorneys have said they need at least three months to prepare legal papers for the U.S. government to enter the suit, Givens wrote in court papers.

The Coeur d'Alenes filed their federal suit last spring, claiming they acquired the northern Idaho lake in a land trade with the federal government prior to Idaho's statehood. Idaho claims it acquired ownership rights to the lake when it became a state.

Lone policeman patrols Idaho City

IDAHO CITY - The law walks the streets again in Idaho City with a new police chief, Earl Cannady.

Not that it was ever truly gone. But for the past six years, this historic mountain town has operated without a police department. To save money, the city contracted with Boise County to keep the peace. But townfolks said it was not the same as having their own officer.

That changed Oct. 22, when Cannady hit town. The former narcotics officer from Paris, Texas, heads a department of one - himself. Cannady, 31, is a seven-year veteran of police work. Paris has a population of 30,000. His job covered the spectrum, from drug busts to riots.

Thieves strip couple's mobile home

OLDTOWN - Dan and Mary Shepard of Oldtown returned from a trip on Nov. 13 to find their mobile home stripped.

The missing appliances, tools, boat, woodstove, bullet-reloading gear, bow-hunting equipment, beds, clothing, homemade jam, family albums and financial records were one thing.

But the thieves even stole the poster that showed their 10-year-old son Nicholas, a victim of spinal fluid, as a state March of Dimes ambassador. The boy's room was also vandalized, his television set damaged and his Nintendo game stolen. Disabled by the disease and unable to talk, there has been little else Nicholas can do but play Nintendo.

Appeals court revives harassment claim

BOISE - A sexual harassment claim against the University of Idaho and its College of Law has been revived by the Idaho Court of Appeals.

The court on Tuesday in a unanimous decision written by Judge Cathy Sifak reversed the summary judgment granted by 2nd District Judge George Reinhardt III against the claim filed by Kathryn Ann George.

George alleged sexual harassment by a former College of Law professor, William Lee Eckhardt. The law student, the school and Eckhardt signed a 1986 agreement in which Eckhardt agreed to resign, the school kept him on the payroll for an additional 18 months and Eckhardt was to have no further intentional contact with George.

Michigan player earns 1st postseason honor

DETROIT — Desmond Howard was awarded the Walter Camp Trophy on Tuesday, the first of what promises to be a harvest of postseason awards for the Michigan split end.

The Camp trophy is given annually to college football's most outstanding player in balloting by coaches and sports information directors of Division I-A schools.

Last year's winner was Raghib "Rocket" Ismail of Notre Dame.

Howard led the No. 4 Wolverines (10-1 overall, 8-0 Big-Ten) to their 36th conference championship, their 14th outright, with a dazzling season. The 5-foot-9, 176-pounder scored 23 touchdowns and finished with 1,749 all-purpose yards.

MauI Invitational attracts impressive field for next year

LAHAINA, Hawaii — Defending national champion Duke, LSU, Oklahoma and DePaul — all current members of the Top 25 — are half the field for the 1992 Maui Invitational which will be played next year as a Christmas tournament.

Joining the ranked teams will be Memphis State, Stanford, Brigham Young and the host school, Chamade.

"On paper, this should be one of the best tournaments ever assembled for the Maui Invitational," tournament chairman Wayne Duke said Tuesday. "This may be one of the strongest fields ever assembled for a major college tournament."

Publishers negotiate for rights to 2nd Magic autobiography

NEW YORK — The financially struggling publishing industry hopes Ervin Johnson's basketball heroics and AIDS message can generate some sales magic.

Johnson's agents are negotiating with several publishers interested in securing the rights to his second autobiography. His first, published in 1983, is being reissued in paperback, and a not quite "instant" book is being rushed out.

All the books would capitalize on the attention generated by the basketball star's announcement that he has the virus that can cause AIDS.

3 Judo club members win at weekend Pocatello tourney

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Twin Falls-CSI Judo Club had three individual winners in a Pocatello tournament over the weekend.

Amy Fuller was first at 12 years of age, third in the 12-16 age group and second in the junior grand champion chase. Zachary Lynard won the eight and under and placed second in the 9-10 heavyweight while Fred Garcia won the senior white belt.

Other awards went to Mark Fuller, second, 8 and under; Mike Fuller, 2-15 and second grand champion; Casey Gumbrel, third 9-10; Chris Cornelison, third, 8-under; Uriah Holloway, second, 11-12, and Roy Villasear, second senior white belt.

O's shortstop adds Gold Glove to trophy case

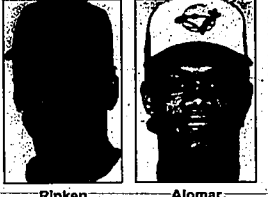

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Ground balls and popups, Cal Ripken always caught. The Gold Glove, he never captured — until now.

Ripken finally got the one award that had eluded him his entire career Tuesday, earning the prize that Rawlings presents to the finest in the field.

"It feels pretty good to win one of these," Ripken said, hoisting the trophy over his head. "I've been after it for quite awhile."

The Baltimore shortstop, who won his second American League MVP award last week, also was the All-Star Game MVP this season. He was rookie of the year in 1982 and won a World Series championship the next year, but had been left out in his 10 full seasons when it came time to honor the league's best fielders.

Ripken Alomar
Last year, Ripken made only three errors, but still lost out to Chicago's Ozzie Guillen, who won despite 17 miscues. This year, however, Ripken came out on top in a vote by the league's managers and coaches.

"I think last year raised a little controversy and maybe made the voters look a little closer at the statistics," said Ripken, who hit 323 with 34 home runs and 114 RBIs. "I've had other years that maybe warranted consideration, but I think this was my best."

Ripken, who again played all 162 games and raised his consecutive-games streak to 1,573, made 11 errors. He led AL shortstops in fielding percentage (.986), assists, putouts and double plays. Ripken averaged one error per 73 chances; all other AL shortstops averaged one error per 34 chances.

In addition to Ripken and Smith, other big winners Tuesday included Chicago Cubs second baseman Ryne Sandberg, who won his ninth straight award, and New York Yankees first baseman Don Mattingly, who won his sixth.

Other AL winners were Toronto second baseman Roberto Alomar, Chicago third baseman Robin Ventura, outfielders Kirby Puckett of Minnesota, Ken Griffey Jr. of Seattle and Devon White of Toronto, Boston catcher Tony Pena and California pitcher Matt Langston.

Alomar and Ventura won for the first time, Griffey won his second, Langston and White won their third, Pena got his fourth and Puckett won his fifth.

Other NL winners were San Francisco teammates Will Clark at first base and Ben Williams at third base, each with their first awards. In the outfield, Pittsburgh's Andy Van Slyke won his fourth and teammate Barry Bonds took his second, joined by San Diego's Tony Gwynn with his fifth. Chicago pitcher Greg Maddux won his second and St. Louis catcher Tom Pagnozzi won his first.

Chicago White Sox Manager Gene Lamont tries on his new uniform Tuesday.

White Sox follow trend, tab fresh face to manage club

The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Gene Lamont became the freshest face on the major league managing scene when he was hired Tuesday to lead the Chicago White Sox.

Lamont, Pittsburgh's third-base coach, succeeds Jeff Torborg, who quit to manage the New York Mets.

"We wanted freshness, a new guy and not someone recycled," White Sox general manager Ron Schueler said.

Lamont, 44, filled the 14th and final major league managerial opening this year and became the fifth manager hired without previous major league experience.

"I can promise you one thing," Lamont said. "When we start the game, I'll put in a good day's work and our players will be ready to play both mentally and physically."

Schueler's first choice had been Jim Leyland, but the White Sox were denied permission to talk to the Pittsburgh Pirates manager, who has two years left on his contract.

"Leyland backed me for the job and I learned a lot from him," Lamont said. "I'll be a lot like him in handling players but I'm not quite as outgoing as Jimmy."

Schueler said all four finalists were approved by owner Jerry Reinsdorf. Schueler picked Lamont over three other coaches: Bill Russell of Los Angeles, Rene Lachemann of Oakland and Larry Bowa of Philadelphia.

"Personality-wise, he's a lot like Torborg," Schueler said. "Jeff had a lot of strengths because the fans, the players and the media all liked him. Gene's a little more aggressive coming over from the National League."

TWIN FALLS — Sophomore Sharleece Keller hit four points in 10 seconds to lead the College of Southern Idaho Golden Eagles outlast the Northwest Nazarene Crusaders 58-55 in the opening basketball game of the year.

Keller's jumper off the baseline with 30 seconds left gave the Eagles a 56-53 lead and she padded that with two charities seconds later.

The Eagles remain in action today, traveling to Ontario to take on the Treasure Valley Chukars at 5 p.m. They return to Twin Falls Friday and Saturday for a pair of games with Walla Walla Community College, both games starting at 5 p.m. and preceding the men's K and T Steel Tournament.

CSI, only 10 days away from the volleyball regional finals, looked about as rusty as Coast and Ben Stroud feared in the early going, falling behind by 14 points with just over eight minutes left in the half.

But Shirley Stepan hit six points and CSI quickly out the deficit to 28-25 with 4:48 remaining. The Crusaders, dominating the off side of the offensive board, stayed ahead 32-27 through the half, however.

The Eagles cut to within one point when Stepan picked up five straight CSI points but Kristi Chatterton then canned two straight three-pointers. But NNC never had it that good again.

Keller and Kristina chopped the deficit to one and with 7:31 left in the game, Jerome freshman Liz Gilbert gave CSI its first lead at 46-45.

Brown, Stepan and Gilbert picked up the points that expanded that to 54-47 with three minutes left but former Eagle Suzanne Hansen and Kristie Pickens pulled the Crusaders back to within one before Keller came up with her winners.

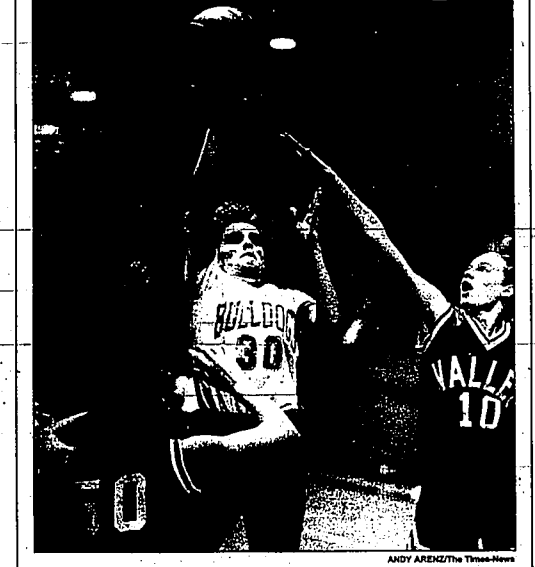

"It was a very good win for a young team with only seven days of practice," said Stepan. "But, we did we get tired. We have a lot of conditioning to do to get these girls where we want them."

Stroud had expected this to be a good shooting team but worried about that phase of the game early.

"After we got down 13 or 14, we did hit a little rhythm and got back into the game on it. But this team will shoot better than that," he predicted.

Thanksgiving game finally means something for Lions

The Associated Press

PONTIAC, Mich. — Usually at this time of year the Detroit Lions are just playing for pride. Now they're playing for more. A lot more.

The Lions' Thanksgiving Day game with the Chicago Bears is for NFC Central lead.

The Lions (8-4) helped set up the Motown Showdown by beating Minnesota 34-14 Sunday while the Bears (9-3) were upset 16-13 in overtime by the Miami Dolphins.

"We've never been in a position like this before," linebacker Chris Spielman said. "If we let it get away, we have no one to blame but ourselves. We have to 'keep on truckin',' that's the way the phrase goes."

The last time the Lions were 8-4 was 1970, when the team coached by Joe Schmidt finished 10-4 and lost a 5-0 playoff game to the Dallas Cowboys.

That 1970 team won its final five games to earn a wild-card berth. This year's team, which has won its last two, probably needs to win its four remaining games.

"We're not looking forward to any other week until we take care of this one," Lions nose tackle Jerry Ball said. "The most important thing right now is Chicago."

A victory by the Lions on Thanksgiving would tie them with the Bears for the division lead. But a defeat would virtually eliminate the Lions from title contention and leave them to compete with Atlanta, Dallas, Philadelphia and the New York Giants (all with 7-5 records) for the three NFC wild-card spots.

"Every game is a big game, and right now we have a chance to be tied for the division lead," defensive end Don Owens said. "This is the biggest game I've played in up until this point."

The Lions, who have yet to win outdoors, host the New York Jets on Dec. 8 in the Silverdome, then close out the regular season at Green Bay and Buffalo.

"The thing we have to do now is take it up another notch," coach Wayne Fontes said. "Chicago has been there before. We know they'll be ready. I'm looking forward to it and so are our players."

The Bears, who have won their three previous doom-games this season, get the Packers and Bucs at windy Soldier Field, then complete the regular season at San Francisco.

"I'm not surprised. Detroit is challenging," Chicago linebacker Mike Singletary said. "I've always thought any team in this division could come out and give us some competition. This might sound crazy, but I'm proud of Detroit. Everybody always assumed this was a weak division, but the Lions are proving that's not true anymore."

Bears coach Mike Ditka, who will be looking for his 100th regular season victory Thursday, knew the Lions were for real a long time ago.

"When you look at films and their draft picks and see what Wayne's been doing, it's no surprise," Ditka said. "The success they're having is no surprise to me because I think they're a very solid football team."

Ditka thinks there are three basic reasons why the Lions are roaring.

"I look at how much better they're playing on the defense side of the ball," he said. "In comparison to years past, the turnover ratio is better. With the run and shoot, it was a high-scoring offense, but yet it was a high-mistake offense. Now, they've taken the mistakes out of it. They're not making the mistakes with the offense."

"Third, they have a very solid kicking game. The reasons are evident. They're not using mirrors. That's very solid football."

Lack of height may haunt Shoshone

The Times-News

One quick look at the roster will tell you the problem the Shoshone Indians face this basketball season: Coach Larry Messick had only three people over six-foot tall and none over 6-1.

What the roster doesn't show, four-year starter Joe Messick is hobbled by a football knee injury and his availability is a question mark now and probably from game to game.

The Indians have three return starters. Messick carried a 22.5 point average last year while Alex Ugalde, 6-1, had 16.9 points and 6.8 rebounds. Jamie McClure, 5-9, averaged 4.7 points at the guard position.

Additional, the Indians return six-man Rick Beem, 6-1, at center. Beem started several games and provides some experience inside.

The other seniors are 5-10 Josh Shier, 5-6 Wade Sturgeon and 6-1 Juice Cordell.

The roster is rounded out by five juniors, ranging from 5-3 to 5-9. These include Tony Owens, Jeremy Higley, Jay Conklin, Roy Godeborg and Roger Fields.

Messick says the team's strength would be Messick and Ugalde providing the leadership and outside scoring as four-year starters. Another is that "the team has fair quickness with a pretty good work ethic."

Then comes up with five debits that must be overcome with the lack of height being No. 1, which immediately leads to No. 2 — rebounding.

"We have no proven rebounders," the coach said. "This is a team of guards and we'll have to use Alex inside some, even though he's better suited to the perimeter."

A lot of practice time will be spent "developing a consistent inside attack and an ability to defend inside."

Messick's availability is a huge question mark.

Bliss Bears

About the only thing new with the Bears this year might be a game ball. The two of the starters and four part-time starters return from last year's team and Jerry Couch is back for his 17th year at the Bears' helm.

The mix of the team — in Couch's opinion — is a tradeoff in two areas. "Returning experience and respectable height," are the assets while "lacking good overall team speed" and "shooting is suspect" are the debits.

Tallest of the returnees is 6-6 junior center Roger Patterson who average 7 points and 6 rebounds. Senior Jeff Lenker, 6-3, contributed 5 and 5 in largely a back up role.

Ray Ordway brings back the best stat—a 15-point per game average along with five rebounds while the other guard, Shawn Wood, 5-9, had five points and four rebounds. Senior Bill Stine-mates, 5-9, adds depth to the center spot with a five-point average from last season.

The lone veteran forward is 5-11 senior Rocky Haffen who had seven points and four rebounds.

Newcomers on the team will be sophomore guard Scott Wood, 5-9, and 6-3 freshman forward Brian Butler.

New Cardinal hears news of trade

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Andres Galarraga found out he was traded from Montreal to St. Louis while he was playing for the Caracas Lions in a Venezuelan winter league game.

"The reason for the trade was that the organization wanted to reconstruct the team with young players who were playing in the minor leagues, and wanted to get rid of players earning high salaries like mine," Galarraga said Tuesday.

"The Cardinals manager, Joe Torre, told me St. Louis has been after me for a long time, and now they've finally got me. He expects me to help the team both offensively and defensively. I'll be in the middle of the lineup."

Galarraga, 30, slumped to a .219 average with nine home runs and 33 RBIs in 1991, playing only 107 games. However, the first baseman averaged 21 home runs and 88 RBIs in four previous seasons and has a .269 career average.

Niners, Saints head in opposite directions

The Associated Press

The New Orleans Saints started losing games too late to miss the playoffs. The San Francisco 49ers started winning games too late to make them.

So Sunday's game between the Saints and 49ers becomes little more than another exercise by New Orleans to see if it can clinch the NFC title. And it's another exercise by the 49ers to make a last dash for the playoffs that isn't guaranteed even if they win their final four games.

San Francisco may get Steve Young back for this one, although it's hard to envision George Seifert subjecting Young's gimpy knee to the New Orleans pass rush. If he's as mobile as usual, fine, but that's unlikely.

Does he, however, want to subject Steve Bono to Pat Swilling, Ricky Jackson and the rest of the guys who comprise both the offense and defense for the Saints — unless you count practice squad refugee Fred McAfee.

Not surprisingly, the first game was a 10-3 affair, won by the Saints' defense.

This time, the 49ers are favored by three.

Make it seven.
49ERS, 10-3.
Chicago (plus 3) at Detroit (Thursday)

The one thing the Bears know is that there won't be any snow on the ground this week. The Lions know it, too — they're 8-0 in domes, 0-4 outdoors, where they've been outscored 130-34.

A guess, Detroit spent a lot of emotion in beating the Vikings last week. It will be hard to regenerate it in three days.

The Bears won the first, 20-10. Make this one.
BEARS, 20-17.
Pittsburgh (plus 6½) at Dallas (Thursday)

The Aikman may be in the same situation as the Lions — there was a lot of emotion put into upsetting the Redskins last week.

However, the spent emotion theory works on the Steelers, too.
COWBOYS, 17-13.
Philadelphia (plus 6) at Houston (Monday night)

The Eagles don't exactly have an easy path to the wild-card they seek — this one followed by the Giants.

But despite its defense, the Cowboys are short offensively. They averaged 247 yards a game, half-Nevada's norm, and McNeese's 15 points per game is one-third that of the Wolf Pack.

"We've won games all year with our defense," Cowboys coach Butch Keeler said. "The guys on the defensive side have played real well for us. That's been the constant."

"We're real young, especially on offense. Our offensive philosophy has been to avoid putting our defense in trouble."

One senior will be starting defensively on Saturday at Mackay Stadium. Five sophomores and a redshirt freshman are among the starters.

Nevada offense may find trouble in I-AA 1st round

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Explosive Nevada may find some of its firepower dampened on Saturday when it hosts the stingy defense of McNeese State.

Despite a 63-2 mark going into the I-AA playoffs, the Cowboys have allowed just one team to score three touchdowns against them this year.

"Everyone I talk to has the same response," Nevada coach Chris Aull said. "Every single person we've called has raved about McNeese State's defense, about how physical they are on defense."

The Wolf Pack, unbeaten in 11 regular season games, goes into the playoffs with the No. 1 ranking among NCAA Division I-AA teams. McNeese is 19th. The Southland Conference champion from Lake

San Francisco should beat New Orleans this week whether it sticks with Steve Bono or goes back to Steve Young at quarterback.

Charles, La., is making its first appearance in a I-AA playoff.

But despite its defense, the Cowboys are short offensively. They averaged 247 yards a game, half-Nevada's norm, and McNeese's 15 points per game is one-third that of the Wolf Pack.

Washington (minus 9) at Los Angeles Rams

Does anyone get the impression that the Rams have thrown in the towel?

Plus the Redskins are a little bit miffed.

REDSKINS, 41-3
New York Giants (minus 8½) at Cincinnati

The last time Phil Simms played the Bengals, he threw for 513 yards and lost.

This time, he'll probably throw for 153 and win. It'll be boring, too.

"This is the kind of pressure I like," Beuerlein said. "I'm not trying to put to rest the ghosts of last year but I've heard people talk about them. I'm not worried."

Beuerlein said he was amazed he was traded for just a fourth-round pick.

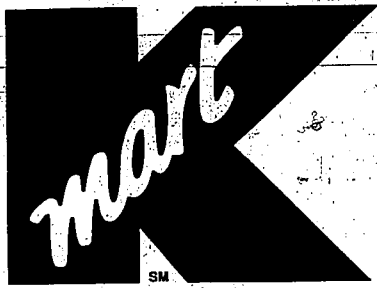

"I think the Cowboys got a pretty good deal for me," Beuerlein said. "I gave the Raiders everything I had and I'm not interested anymore in what they think about me. I have some opinions about Davis but I'm not commenting on them."

Chili feed, fireworks ring in shopping day

TWIN FALLS — Fireworks for Shop-Till-You-Drop Day? Capping what is traditionally the biggest shopping day of the year, six Magic Valley businesses will sponsor a Friday night chili-feed and pyrotechnics display to collect Christmas toys for kids who wouldn't otherwise have them.

It works like this: Show up at the field opposite Kimberly Nurseries on Addison Avenue East between 5 and 7:30 p.m. Friday. For a gift-wrapped toy suitable for kids aged 2-12, you'll get chili and the trimmings, followed by a fireworks display set to music.

It's the brainchild of Kimberly Nurseries president Jack Wright, who has tried the approach at his businesses in Elko County and in eastern Idaho. "We expect to collect hundreds of toys, to be distributed by Toys for Tots," Wright said.

Toys for Tots is a holiday season project of several Twin Falls-area businesses and service clubs to give Christmas toys to needy kids.

Toys must be gift-wrapped and the giver should indicate for what age group the toy is intended. Supper will be served starting at 5 p.m., fireworks will go off at 7:30. Organizers will have bleachers at the site for spectators, who are encouraged to bring their portable radios along to help amplify the music, Wright said.

Co-sponsors are KEZZ radio, Dods-Stroberg Insurance Agency, West One Bank, Coca-Cola Bottling Co. and Cooper-Norman & Co.

Appeals board upholds work release center decision

TWIN FALLS — An appeals board of two Twin Falls County commissioners and two city councilmen denied a request Tuesday to stop the state from building a work-release center in south Twin Falls.

In a 4-0 vote, the board upheld an August decision by the Twin Falls City Council in allowing the state to build the site on Washington Street South across from the Nevada Windows Inc. plant.

As he did in August, former Idaho Attorney General Jim Jones tried to convince the board that the area's manufacturing zoning does not allow a work-release center because that facility would be residential in nature. Idaho Department of Corrections officials said the center would be a government protective facility, allowed in the zone, and its residential nature is incidental.

Board members sided with the state. After the hearing, City Councilman Gale Kleinkopf said the appeal did not change his mind from the way he voted on the council in August.

"I see no reason, based on the testimony, that it doesn't fit that situation. It is a government protective facility and is defined as such. Consequently, it is allowed," he said.

Jones and the residents' next step would be to appeal the decision in the courts.

Twin Falls County landfills closed for Thanksgiving

TWIN FALLS — The county's main and two satellite landfills will close Thanksgiving/Day, according to the Solid Waste Department.

The landfills, however, will reopen Friday morning at 8 a.m. to accept trash from residents throughout Twin Falls County until 5 p.m.

Tax Commission distributing Unused Grocery Credit forms

BOISE — The Idaho State Tax Commission has started mailing more than 20,000 forms to elderly and disabled Idaho residents who may qualify for 1991 Unused Grocery Credit refunds of $15 to $60.

The Unused Grocery Credit benefits eligible persons who are not required to file regular income tax returns. The credit refunds a portion of the sales tax money they paid for food.

Applicants must have lived in Idaho during all of 1991 and be 62 or older, blind or a disabled American veteran.

Forms are being sent to people who received a refund last year. Those who did not file last year can get one from the Idaho Tax Commission office at 1038 Blue Lakes Blvd. N., Suite C, in Twin Falls.

Applications are due April 15.

Farmer files damage claim against Fish and Game

By Suzanne Hrabold
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — An $11,000 claim of elk damage on a farm near Bliss has been filed against the Department of Fish and Game by James Nafziger of Sunshine Farms in Wendell.

Mike McDonald, Regional Landowner-Sportsman Coordinator for Region 4 Fish and Game in Jerome, said Nafziger's claim was filed in early October and is still being investigated.

His is the largest of two elk damage claims for this year.

Nafziger's claim states that he lost about 195 tons of corn to an elk herd that was grazing his property. Nafziger and the Fish and Game destroyed 16 elk on the Bliss farm earlier in the season.

Nafziger has claimed that he has suffered losses of more than $100,000 from elk damage over the course of several years.

McDonald, who is in charge of the investigation of Nafziger's damage claim, said Tuesday that he had not yet determined how much of the damage to Nafziger's corn crop was the result of elk and how much was simply the forces of Mother Nature.

"There was elk damage, for sure,"

McDonald said. "But there was also quite a bit of wind damage as well."

Nafziger could not be reached for comment.

McDonald said he has interviewed several of Nafziger's neighbors and other farmers in the area to determine whether or not the elk herd was responsible for the destruction of other crops in the area and whether or not the

Miranda rights revolutionized law enforcement

By Drew DeSilver
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — When Jim Mildon entered the College of Southern Idaho in 1966 to begin his law-enforcement training, he was given something no American police officer had ever had before.

It was a wallet-sized card. Printed on the card were the rights of suspects in police custody, including the right to remain silent and the right to an attorney.

In his wallet or in his head, Mildon has been carrying around those rights ever since. "It's just another part of the job," said Mildon, now a sergeant in the Twin Falls police department. "It's like putting on my gun and my badge."

The same year Mildon entered CSI, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in the case of Miranda vs. Arizona that the Fifth Amendment guarantee of due process required police to inform detained suspects of their rights before questioning them.

That ruling has, in many ways, revolutionized the way police enforce the law in the United States. And Magic Valley law-enforcement officials say that overall, the changes have been for the good.

Jerome County Sheriff Larry Gold said that when he started his law-enforcement career in New York City in 1962, "we were not careful about guaranteeing the rights of people we arrested."

Mildon was more blunt. "In the past we had a lot of thugs," he said. "You'd hire the biggest, toughest guy on the block. If you wanted a confession, you'd send the thug out to get it any way he could."

Scenes from 1940s crime movies of manhunt interrogations under bright lights and confessions beaten out of suspects with rubber hoses were pretty accurate, Mildon said.

Given the widespread abuses of the time, Gold said, "we brought Miranda and everything else on ourselves."

Today, however, police go to great lengths to make sure suspects know their rights, since violating Miranda is one of the easiest ways to ensure that a confession is tossed out of court.

When Twin Falls police arrest someone, Mildon said, the first thing they do is read that person his or her rights, whether they plan to interrogate the person or not.

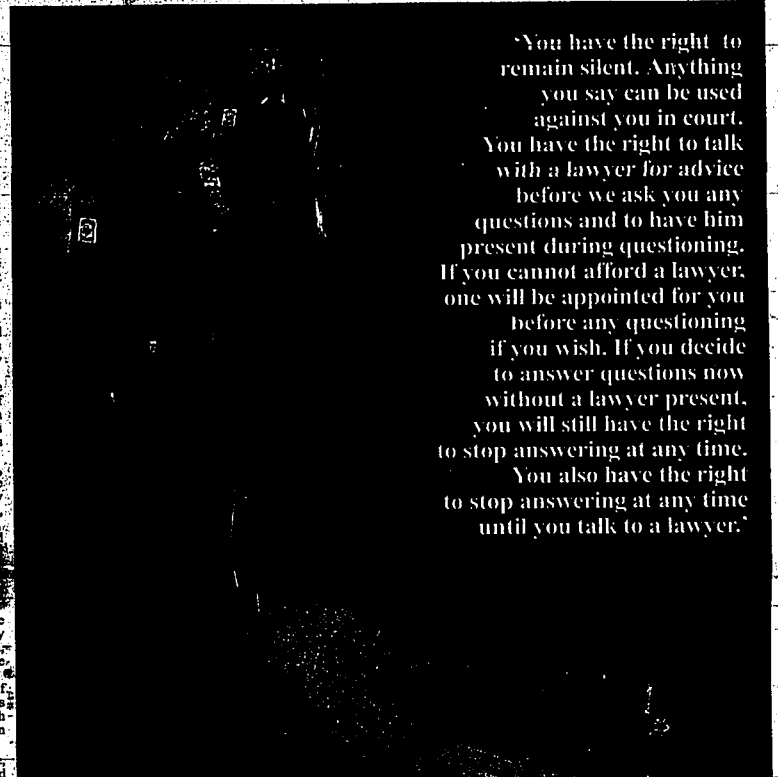

"It's like writing a ticket and making sure all the blanks are filled in," he said. "It's standard operating procedure."

If a person is brought in for questioning, he or she must read a sheet of paper listing his or her rights. The person must initial each line to indicate he has read and understood it, sign his name at the bottom, and sign again if he wants to waive his rights and answer police questions.

Mildon and Gold agreed that Miranda and other Supreme Court decisions of the 1960s forced police officers to become more professional and better-educated.

"Law enforcement had to change the way it operated," Gold said. "When I went from New York to Santa Barbara (Calif.) in 1969, I met an entirely different breed of officer."

When private property, public good collide

By Craig Lincoln

HAILEY — What do Elliot Caplow, John Barron, Chief Justice John Marshall and the Blaine County School Board have in common?

All four were, or are likely to be, intimately acquainted with the concept of eminent domain.

The Fifth Amendment recognizes eminent domain, the government's right to take private property for public use. But it also protects the rights of property owners, by providing that the government can't take property without paying "just compensation."

That provision led to a 1833 court decision in that put the Bill of Rights in a deep sleep for a century or more. And it was Barron's doing.

Barron was a Baltimore businessman

- Saturday: Eighth Amendment

who owned a profitable wharf. But the city altered the shape of the waterfront and made Barron's wharf useless. He sued, saying Baltimore should pay him for his wharf.

He lost. In Chief Justice Marshall's view, the Bill of Rights only applied to the federal government. State and local governments didn't have to pay attention to it.

Since then, however, the 14th Amendment has been added to the Constitution, and the U.S. Supreme Court has interpreted that amendment to mean that states, cities and school boards have to pay attention to the Bill of Rights, including the provisions regarding eminent domain.

That's good news for Caplow, a Blaine County businessman.

The Blaine County School District wants Caplow's land for a new school. If Caplow doesn't take the $450,000 the school board recently offered him, the district will go to court and try to condemn the land.

"Then we'll know first-hand about eminent domain," Blaine County School Superintendent Phillip Homer said.

"We've tried everything possible to avoid that."

1% would violate constitution

The Times-News

Highlights of Idaho Attorney General Larry EchoHawk's ruling on the 1 percent initiative Tuesday:

- The 1 percent initiative provides that counties shall collect property taxes and apportion them among the various taxing districts according to law.
- This provision cannot be implemented under existing law, because counties have no power to apportion taxes or to reduce or alter the boundaries of independent taxing districts within their borders. Neither does any other entity have that power.
- The initiative provides that taxing districts "by a two-thirds vote of the qualified electors of such districts, may impose special taxes" in excess of the 1 percent limit.
- The two-thirds requirement is unworkable. Many districts do not keep lists of registered voters, and those that do have no way to determine the number of qualified voters at any given time. Courts would either have to strike the requirement, leaving no provision for overrides, or interpret it to mean two-thirds of qualified voters who actually vote.

The two-thirds requirement also conflicts with Article VII, Section 3 of the Idaho Constitution, which allows taxing districts to issue bonds if two-thirds of all person voting approve. The requirement would undermine local government's ability to issue emergency bonds for such things as tort claim judgments and jeopardize the contract rights of holders of tax increment bonds.

Also, the meaning of the term "special taxes" is unclear, and would require a court ruling.

The initiative would violate Article VII, Section 5 of the constitution, which

Thanksgiving travelers face treacherous roads

By Steve Crump
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — If you're going over the river and through the woods to grandma's house this Thanksgiving, you might consider a sled.

Precipitation and freezing temperatures are headed this way, according to the National Weather Service, and if it's not a white Thanksgiving, it could well be an icy one.

"Snow has fallen across the state, even at the lower elevations, and it's not unusual for these first winter storms to catch many motorists unprepared," said

Col. Ron Moore, superintendent of the Idaho State Police.

Ketchum and Stanley had each added 3 inches of snow to the five already on the ground as of Tuesday night, and the forecast was for more today.

Down on the flatlands, the National Weather Service office in Kimberly was predicting a mixture of rain and snow today with highs in the 40s and lows in the teens. And although the coming storm is supposed to slacken by Thursday afternoon, forecasters estimated the temperature wouldn't reach 40 degrees on Thanksgiving.

Crapo: Magic Valley, eastern Idaho should work together on INEL cleanup

By Drew DeSivier
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—People in the Magic Valley and the Upper Snake River Valley both have an interest in making sure the Idaho Nuclear Engineering Laboratory doesn't become the nation's nuclear waste dump, congressional candidate Michael Crapo said Tuesday.

an interview with The Times-News that if he is elected to Richard Stallings' 2nd district seat next year, he will work both to keep other states' waste out of INEL and to devise a permanent solution to the country's nuclear-waste problem.

"We're on the same side of this issue," Crapo said, seeking to ally Magic Valley voters with INEL supporters on the Upper Snake area who are willing to risk polluting the aquifer by storing nuclear waste from other states.

"If the aquifer is polluted, you know the INEL will go down, and Idaho-Falls will go down with it," he said. "That's the worst thing that could happen to the Upper Snake River Valley."

Crapo said he supported proposals for a "summit" to decide how to resolve the nuclear waste issue, as well as attempts by Stallings, a Democrat, to extract information from the federal Energy Department about any contracts it may have made to ship waste to the INEL for storage.

He added that he supported a continued military mission for the INEL, but saw its future as including research on aerospace applications, medical technology and waste reprocessing, as well as commercial use of nuclear energy. "Nuclear energy is one of the keys to our national energy policy," he said.

On the state's reapportionment morass, Crapo said he thought there was enough agreement on a statewide plan that the Legislature could do the job in the first few weeks of the session.

The Fairfield-to-Carey stretch of U.S. Highway 20 was wet and fog-shrouded, with snow falling, while the Shoshone-Ketchum segment of Idaho Highway 75 was wet from Shoshone to Ketchum and snow-covered on Galena Summit, with more snow coming down.

government offices, banks and non-retail businesses will be closed. Things will pick up Friday, however, traditionally the busiest shopping day of the year.

Updated highway conditions can be obtained by phoning the Idaho Department of Transportation's Shoshone district office at 886-2266.

All retail stores will be opening day for many extended hours, as will banks and most public libraries and government offices, including the state liquor stores.

Motorists who do venture forth will pay less for gasoline than a year ago — a lot less.

Without exception, trash collection schedules in the valley will be pushed back a day as sanitation workers take Thursday off.

Preliminary hearing into cheerleader's death ends; decision on charges set

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News writer

GOODING - The details of the June 20 accident were by turns tear-jerking and tedious, but the question of whether a Mountain Home woman will stand trial for the death of a 16-year-old Jerome girl remained unanswered Tuesday.

After a day-long preliminary hearing at the Gooding County Courthouse, 5th District Magistrate Barry Wood said he will rule Dec. 6 on whether Shirley Wersland, 52, will be tried on a charge of vehicular manslaughter.

Gooding County Prosecutor Lynn Nelson has charged Wersland with the felony, saying she was either drunk or grossly negligent or both in causing the accident that claimed the life of Angela Jackson.

Jackson and two friends were driving east on the Clear Lake Country Club Road when the two cars collided.

Eighteen-year-old Jori Sexton, who was sitting next to Jackson in the car, remembered seeing her best friend slumped over the steering wheel, bleeding and unconscious.

Sexton touched Jackson's arm and asked if she was all right.

"I said, 'I love you, Ang. I have to get some help,'" said Sexton, fighting back tears.

Jackson, a Jerome High School cheerleader who would have been a junior this year, was taken to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in Twin Falls, but she never regained consciousness.

Defense attorney Randy Stoker of Twin Falls said his client was driving the second vehicle involved in that fatal accident, but he said Wersland was neither drunk nor negligent that night.

Wersland had no comment after the hearing.

The lengthy investigation, which was hampered by a lack of witnesses and a mixup of blood samples, has taken its toll on both sides.

"Suffice it to say that it's been a nightmare of the highest magnitude," said Wersland's husband, who declined further comment. He was joined by more than a dozen of his wife's friends at the hearing.

The other side of the courtroom was also full.

"Angie can't do this for herself now," said her mother, Julie Jackson. "We have to do it for her."

Both families will have to wait for Wood's ruling. He granted the delay to allow attorneys to write legal briefs about the way in which Wersland's blood was tested for alcohol.

Wersland was taken to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center after the accident. Routine blood samples were taken and one was later tested for alcohol, although not under orders from police, according to testimony by two hospital employees who drew the blood and performed the test.

Hospital employees tested only the blood serum. Idaho Department of Law Enforcement rules say only whole blood can be tested to determine someone's legal blood alcohol level, leading Stoker to object to the admission of the test results.

Since none of the original blood sample remains for a whole blood test, the issue is crucial to both sides.

Nelson wants to use a state expert from Boise who said she can estimate what the alcohol level would have been had whole blood been used.

Even if the state is not able to use the alcohol evidence, Nelson said his case is strong because Wersland's car was well on the left side of the road when the accident happened.

Idaho State Police Cpl. Fred Rice, an accident reconstruction expert, testified that the front of Wersland's car was completely on Jackson's side of the road when the cars collided.

Stoker pointed out that no center line had been painted on the road at the time of the accident, and he questioned Rice's ability to accurately reconstruct the accident, months after it occurred.

Before the hearing began, Stoker moved that the courtroom be closed to reporters, saying that extensive coverage will damage his client's ability to receive a fair trial.

Stoker called a Times-News reporter to the witness stand and submitted letters to the editor regarding the case printed in two local newspapers.

After listening to Stoker and to Times-News attorney Lloyd Webb, Wood ruled that not enough proof had been presented to warrant closing the hearing.

Childrens' choirs kick off City Park Christmas

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - That mean old Grinch kept the lights from going up before Thanksgiving this year - City Park was too wet to handle the big trucks needed to string them - but the time has come to celebrate Christmas in City Park.

This year's theme - Let's Sing a Song for Christmas.

Each Sunday from Dec. 1 through the 22nd, local groups will sing for a half hour at 5 p.m. in the City Park bandshell, said Donna Brizez, who helped coordinate City in Christmas Park.

Ruth Turner will direct this year's programs, Brizez said.

The festivities start this Sunday with an 80-member choir of local fourth-, fifth- and sixth-graders, Brizez said. About 150 local children tried out for the choir, she said.

Tuesday night, the choir held its last practice before Sunday's show.

neighboring farms also experienced damage from late September wind storms.

"We're still in the evaluation stage," McDonald said. "We're documenting the claim with photographs, and we're talking to the neighbors to see what their damage was."

McDonald said Nafziger determined his crop loss by comparing the yields on either side of his center pivot. The claim states that one side of the field was destroyed by elk.

There has been only one other claim of elk damage in Region 4 this year. The claim was for $8,000, but McDonald said he couldn't release the name of the other claimant.

McDonald said that if Nafziger's claim is rejected by the Fish and Game, his office will try to come up with an equitable settlement, which will be paid for out of Fish and Game's Wildlife Damage Fund. If Nafziger rejects the settlement, the claim will go into arbitration.

"If we're miles apart, we'll hopefully negotiate a settlement," McDonald said. "If not, then we'll go into arbitration."

The minimum requirement was two years of college, and you were expected to continue your education and get your (bachelor's) degree."

Despite the widespread public perception that Miranda and similar rulings have hindered police in their job of catching criminals, Milton and Gold said that wasn't the case.

"I've never thought of it as a hindrance," Milton said.

He said he's probably lost a few cases over the years due to Miranda violations, but no case in particular stands out in his mind.

"Most people know their rights better than I do, and they tell me so," he said.

But how secure are those rights, now that the Supreme Court has moved sharply rightward in the 1980s?

Not very, says Twin Falls County Public Defender Mike Wood. He predicted that Miranda would be overturned by decade's end, replaced by a looser standard under which suspects would have to prove that police coerced testimony or confessions out of them.

Twin Falls attorney Lloyd Webb, however, says that even if the Supreme Court carves out more exceptions to Miranda, the major thrust of the decision will stand.

"The basic concept of Miranda - that everyone ought to be lifted up to the level of the sophisticated violator, who already knows his rights - is excellent. But if someone wants to spill his guts, as long as he knows he doesn't have to, he should be allowed to

Kenya reacts to pressure with arrests

NAIROBI, Kenya — In an apparent response to growing international pressure, Kenya on Tuesday arrested two once-powerful government officials for questioning in the slaying of the foreign minister.

An investigator has called the men prime suspects in the murder of Robert Ouko, who reportedly was investigating government corruption when he was shot and set on fire in February 1990.

The detentions, five in all, followed increasing international pressure on President Daniel arap Moi to halt corruption, improve human rights and move toward multiparty democracy like many other African nations.

But the action did not head off a World Bank decision to halt all aid to Kenya for six months because of human rights violations and demand social and economic reforms. The bank announced the decision after a two-day meeting in Paris of Western donors, including the United States.

Yugoslav military stage new attacks

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia — The Serb-dominated Yugoslav military staged new attacks on the Croatian city of Osijek early Tuesday, the second day of a U.N.-sponsored truce.

Sporadic fighting continued to the east and south of Zagreb, the Croatian capital, even as the federal army began withdrawing men and heavy weapons from other parts of the separatist republic, scoured by months of civil war with the Serbs.

Defense officials in Osijek said two people were killed and several injured but gave no other details on the attacks in their city, scene of almost daily violence since Croatia declared independence from the six-republic Yugoslav federation June 25.

Brit papers score press freedom victory

LONDON — After five years and millions of dollars in legal fees, Britain's battle to prevent publication of a former intelligence agent's memoirs ended Tuesday in a victory for press freedom over government secrecy.

The European Court of Human Rights said the government violated the rights of three newspapers by forbidding them to print extracts of "Spycatcher."

It ordered the government to pay about $180,000 each to The Guardian, The Observer and The Sunday Times to cover legal costs.

Newspaper editors hailed the ruling as a victory for press freedom. They said it ended a farce of the government trying to bar publication of excerpts from the book by retired counter-espionage agent Peter Wright that was already widely available in Britain.

In "Spycatcher," Wright, 74, claims that for 20 years British security services repeatedly broke the law, including plotting to topple the 1974-1976 Labor Party government of Harold Wilson.

Violence flares up in Soviet republic

MOSCOW — Violence flared in South Ossetia Tuesday, one day after the Georgian parliament voted to lift a yearlong state of emergency in the mountainous enclave, Tass reported.

The Soviet news agency said early morning gunfire in the South Ossetian capital, Tskhinvali, left seven people injured, and several public buildings and 12 homes damaged.

A tunnel and column of trucks on the Transcaucasian Highway were bombed, Tass said.

U.S. shuts down Clark Air Force Base

CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines (AP) — The United States closed one of its largest overseas bases Tuesday, ending a nearly century-long military presence at this historic facility because it was buried by volcanic ash.

Filipino base employees wept and embraced departing Americans at the end of a two-hour ceremony, where the U.S. flag was lowered for the final time at Clark Air Base. About 15,000 Filipinos lost their jobs because of the closing.

"The long-standing U.S. military presence is ending," said Maj. Gen. William Studer, commander of the 13th Air Force. He said the 13th Air Force headquarters would move to Guam and units would be deployed elsewhere in the Pacific.

The 250 remaining Americans left for Subic Bay naval base, 30 miles away, where they were to depart for new assignments. In recent years, Clark was home to about 20,000 troops, military dependents and Defense Department civilians.

U.S. sources said invaders already had taken over the 130,000-acre base, taking appliances, cables and other goods.

A U.S. airman says goodbye to a Philippine employee of Clark Air Force Base on Tuesday.

Clark had been a major transportation hub and training center for U.S. and allied air forces in the western Pacific, with its presence here dating to the Spanish-American War of 1898.

But the base was heavily damaged in June when Mount Pinatubo erupted, dumping tons of volcanic debris on the installation and nearby towns. U.S. officials decided to give up the base rather than repair it. Washington then signed an agreement with President Corason Aquino's government to keep Subic 10 more years in return for $250 million in annual aid.

But the Philippine Senate rejected the agreement in September, talks are expected soon on a "mutual withdrawal from Subic," a base spokesman said, the troops feel some "excitement about going home, being back with your families again, sadness at leaving your friends here — all mixed up with some fatigue from working the way we have for the last four or five months."

U.S. forces first used this site 50 miles north of Manila when they seized the islands from Spain, letting horses for the cavalry graze there.

President Theodore Roosevelt declared the area a military garrison in 1903, and in 1919, the Army Air Corps established an air base. Clark Corp was bombed by the Japanese shortly after the December 1941 attack on Pearl Harbor. Japanese pilots flew suicide missions from a nearby airfield at the end of World War II.

The base was also used to support U.S. forces during the Korean and Vietnam wars and was the first stop for U.S. troops after they were released by the North Vietnamese.

In 1986, the late President Ferdinand Marcos and his family left from Clark for exile in the United States after the popular uprising that propelled Corason Aquino to the presidency.

Antonio Abad Santos, mayor of nearby Angeles, said the closing of Clark will create severe economic problems unless the government can quickly convert it to civilian use.

Final Kuwait pullout begins

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. military began its final withdrawal of combat forces from Kuwait on Tuesday.

The Pentagon said the pullout will be completed by mid-December.

About 100 members of a U.S. Army task force began the final withdrawal; most of the 1,500-member force will be out by the end of the week, Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said.

The soldiers have been on duty in Kuwait since late August. They were sent to the Persian Gulf emirate from their home bases in Germany as replacements for a larger combat force that had been kept there at the Kuwaiti government's request.

The only remaining U.S. military presence in Kuwait beyond mid-December will be about a dozen U.S. non-combat personnel to coordinate the recently signed U.S.-Kuwait security agreement and about 150 Army Corps of Engineer workers who are helping Kuwait rebuild from the destruction of the Gulf War, Williams said.

RATINGS

The five category system of the voluntary film industry rating program is now as follows:

- G - General audiences, all ages admitted.
- PG - Parental Guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.
- PG-13 - Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for children.
- R - Restricted, under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.
- NC-17 - No one under 17 admitted.

Astrological Forecasts

IF NOVEMBER 27 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Marital status subject to sudden change in December. You'll see places, situations, people in "different" light. You are dynamic, creative, impulsive, romantic, a natural humanitarian. Aries, Libra persons play significant roles in your life. Your most memorable month of 1992 will be April.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Breakthrough comes as a result of written communication. What at first was a trap will be transformed into open door. Focus on freedom, creativity, sex appeal. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius represented.

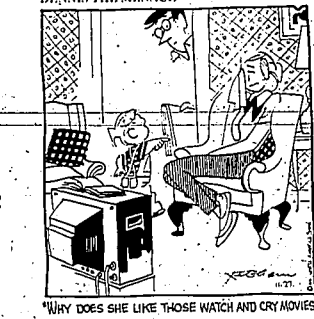

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Music in your life tonight — focus also on romance, restoration of harmony at home. If diplomatic, you can become viable concepts. Relative tells you story straight from shoulder. It behooves you to pay close attention. Pisces involved.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Attention revolves around career, business, investment, time allotted for completion of assignment. Relationship intensifies. If you are merely playing games, move on. Capricorn involved.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You comprehend trend of "universal appeal." What had been dormant will again be alive and kicking. Judgment, intuition hit bull's-eye. You'll be in spotlight, you'll reveal it in. Aries featured.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Stress independence, original approach, willingness to get to heart of matters. Let others know you don't intend to play "second fiddle." Say it this way: "I will do it my way!" Leo represented.

DENNIS-THE MENACE

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Intuitive intellect "takes over." You'll "wake up" with answers. Family tug of war should not actually concern you. Know it, respond accordingly. You'll win battles among the high and the mighty.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Focus on career, promotion, production, versatility, opportunity to obtain excellent display for talent, product. Money made available in unorthodox manner. Gemini, Sagittarius, persons play major role.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You might be saying, "This is my lucky day!" Emphasis on special studies, higher education, travel. You'll get message across in dynamic manner. Favorable publicity plays you in spotlight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Learn by teaching, submit manuscript, protect original material. What had been "steep from you" will be revealed. Hidden aspects of relationship could become public. Virgo, Sagittarius involved.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You earned right to initiate policy. Money, prestige, an object could be involved. Family member says, "My doubts about you have been erased!" Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons dominate scenario.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You might be humming—"Everything is going my way!" What had been nebulous becomes solid — to your advantage. You'll be complimented on appearance, romance will flourish. Another Pisces involved.

"Grandma says she's bakin' cookies. To bad this isn't a SMELL-EPHONE!"

What's what?

DON'T CROSS YOUR EYES

Many a child of the past was told, "Don't cross your eyes." They might say that way. What hubb! said a latter generation.

Still, the historical footnotes tell of old Ben Turpin, a one-famous comic known for two eyes that looked in two directions.

He didn't grow up so unparallelled. In an audition for the role of Happy Hooligan, he held his eyes out of alignment on purpose, and they stayed that way.

The ancient Greeks ate violas. Like spinach.

An told some balding historians in particular year for the long ago when the wearing of wigs carried aristocratic prestige.

"It was Louis XIII who started it. To cover his receding hairline. Everybody copied.

What's needed around here, some say, is a charismatic candidate with hair loss.

Another thing you can say of George Bush, he "about as old as Bush."

ANIMALS!

Chimps, spiter monkeys, lions, dolphins and humans — what do these five mammal-species have in common? An authority contends they're the only mammal types wherein the males sometimes, deliberately gang up on the females.

First entry in John Wydliffe's version of "The Holy Bible" — translated almost five centuries before Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address — reads: "This Bible is of the the People, by the People, and for the People."

Q. What was the name of Superman's horse?
A. Comet.

UNFOLDING SECRETS

Diplomats traditionally have dealt in secretive matters. So secretive that each of their documents — in ancient Greece, anyhow — was double-crested against peering eyes. The word "diplomat" is from the Greek for "folded twice."

Clock hands move clockwise because that's how the sundial's shadow moved long before such motion was called clockwise.

Believe I mentioned that. Failed to say, though, it's also why almost all dials — radio, TV, thermostat, whatever — so move to "on."

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

"It is by the goodness of God that in our country we have those three un-speakably precious things: freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the privilege never to practice either of them."
— Mark Twain

"I played the diamonds as anyone else would have," explained an unhappy South. "It took some bad breaks and a perfect defense to keep me from winning 10 tricks."
See if you can find a better way for South to play the game.
Dummy's club ace won, and the ace-king of trumps were cashed, revealing a trump trick for West. Leaving the trump queen at large, South cashed his diamond ace and led a diamond toward dummy's jack. East won and led a club to West, who then made a good play. Instead of relinquishing control of trumps by cashing the queen (taking two of declarer's trumps for one is usually a good move), West switched accurately to hearts. Dummy's ace won, and South tried to shed a heart on the diamonds, but it didn't work. West ruffed and cashed the heart king, and the defenders took a trick in each suit.
How should South have overcome the bad breaks and good defense? By paying more attention to the diamond suit. Instead of risking a finesse, South should have voluntarily conceded a diamond. He would forgo a chance at overtricks. In return, he would keep control of the play.
After cashing the two high trumps, South should cash the king and ace of diamonds and then lead a third round toward dummy's jack. East wins the queen as before, with one big difference. The diamonds are now established, and South can discard his heart loser on a diamond while West is scoring his trump queen.

ANSWER: Three no-trump. No assurance of success, but it's silly to guess that exactly three clubs is the limit for this hand.
