Pat springs big surprise; Tsongas wins Demo race

The Associated Press

MANCHESTER, N.H. — President Bush gained grudging victory Tuesday night in the New Hampshire presidential primary, with challenger Patrick J. Buchanan claiming more than 40 percent of the Republican vote to fuel his conservative rebellion.

Former Sen. Paul E. Tsongas of Massachusetts won the five-way Democratic race, gaining 33 percent in partial returns and ratifying the frontrunner status even he called improbable. Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton ran second, pronounced himself "the comeback kid" and called it victory.

Sen. Bob Kerrey had a narrow lead over Tom Harkin of Iowa in the race for third place. Former California Gov. Jerry Brown was running fifth.

New Hampshire's blighted economy was the consuming issue in both parties' campaigns, but even so Buchanan's strength was a surprise that jolted the White House.

President Bush did not appear to accept his victory, but said in a sober written statement, "This election was far closer than many had predicted. I think the opponents on both sides reaped the harvest of discontent with the pace of New Hampshire's economy."

Celebrating his Democratic victory, Tsongas said New Hampshire made Bush president "and he forgot the people of New Hampshire and tonight they remembered him ... The message is we are hurting, America is hurting," he said.

Buchanan, claiming his victory in defeat, said he'll be there, too. "The battle of New Hampshire is over and won, now begins the battle of the South," he told cheering supporters at a Manchester restaurant. "We can take this battle to the entire country."

He repeated his campaign theme, declaring: "There is nothing wrong with putting America First." An ecstatic crowd chanted in return: "God Bless America: God Bless Pat."

Nearly a third of voters told pollsters they wished some other candidate had been on the ballot; but Democratic write-in efforts for Mario Cuomo and Ralph Nader both lagged.

Polls of voters leaving their polling places showed that the economy and jobs were the issues that mattered most to both Republicans and Democrats. Early exit polls reported by ABC found that 52 percent of Buchanan voters said they voted for him to send a message, compared with 47 percent who said he would make the best president.

Angela By Buchanan, manager of the challenger, said, "This is a victory. Going votes don't run this high. We're going against a president in his own party in the state that put him in office."

Bush supporters said Buchanan's best peaked in this small, conservative state.

"New Hampshire is Pat Buchanan's best shot," said Gov. Judd Gregg, a Bush partisan like the rest of the Republican establishment.

The Republican vote, with 69 percent of the precincts counted:

Bush 53,707 or 57 percent.

Buchanan 38,474 or 41 percent. Minor candidates had 1 percent.

Bush led for 14 nominating delegates; Buchanan for 33.

William J. Bennett, the former administration official, said in a CNN interview that the New Hampshire verdict was "serious trouble" for Bush. He said the president would have to get tough with Buchanan now; "kinder and gentler is over."

In the Democratic primary, Tsongas and Clinton both were splitting New Hampshire's 18 convention delegates. The vote was:

Tsongas 30,849 or 33 percent.

Clinton 24,449 or 27 percent.

Kerrey 10,860 or 12 percent.

Harkin 9,870 or 11 percent.

Brown 8,246 or 9 percent.

FAA sees noise boom over region

By N.S. Nokken/tved Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Nearly 300 sonic booms a month would rumble across southwestern Idaho under an Air Force proposal, according to a recent Federal Aviation Administration report.

The Air Force has proposed establishing a composite wing at Mountain Home Air Force Base and changing airspace regulations over Owyhee County to accommodate training of that wing.

The FAA's review of that proposal estimates that operations in southwestern Idaho would result in 281 sonic booms per month.

With operations going on from 6 a.m. to midnight, five days a week and two weekends a month, that would mean about 10 sonic booms per day or more than 3,300 a year.

Supersonic operations are not generally permitted over Owyhee County under current FAA restrictions.

Under its proposal, the Air Force says supersonic flight would be limited to altitudes higher than 10,000 feet above the ground. At that altitude, not all sonic booms would be heard by someone on the ground, said Lt. Col. Tom Bartol of Norton Air Force Base in California, the man in charge of developing the Air Force's environmental impact statement of the proposed changes.

The airspace above Three Creek and the surrounding ranches would be excluded from the military operation.

Against odds, Senate committee approves $1.6 billion health plan

By Drew DeSilver Times-News writer

BOISE — A bill to create a universal, state-run health insurance plan unexpectedly passed a Senate committee Tuesday, after one of the most conservative Republican senators joined with the panel's Democrats.

The 6-4 vote in the Senate Health and Welfare Committee means the full Senate will get the chance to consider the "IdaHealth" bill and its $1.6 billion price tag, sponsored by Sen. Matt Calabretta, D-Oburn.

Many observers had expected IdaHealth to die on a 5-5 party-line vote, as several other bills have this session. Because the Senate is divided evenly between Republicans and Democrats, so is each committee.

But after saying, "I find myself in a real bind on this particular bill," Sen. Stan Hawkins, R-Ucon, joined with Calabretta and the four other Democrats on the committee to send IdaHealth to the Senate floor without a recommendation on whether it should pass.

Although Hawkins said his vote shouldn't be interpreted as complete support for the concept of a "single-payer" health insurance system, he said the 25-page bill had not gotten close enough consideration during hearings Tuesday and last Friday.

"The focus has been on generalities, not the specifics of this bill," Hawkins said. "If this bill is killed in committee, that will end discussion (on health care reform) for this year," he said. "I have a lot of problems with this bill, but we need to be looking at solutions to the health care problem, and I think this is something that should be in the mix." IdaHealth would cover all Idahoans, regardless of income, disability or employment status. Among other things, the plan would cover routine examinations, hospital and outpatient care, medications, substance abuse treatment and glasses or contact lenses.

Calabretta estimates the cost of all that would be nearly $1.6 billion—at least half again as much as the state's entire General Fund budget.

Some of the money for IdaHealth would come from the Medicaid and Medicare funds the state now receives from the federal government. But more than a billion dollars would be raised by a 6.5 percent tax on gross payrolls, paid by employers; a 1 percent payroll tax paid by employees; and an 8 percent tax on people who are self-employed.

Calabretta and other IdaHealth backers have characterized those taxes as "assessments" that would be paid instead of insurance premiums. But opponents, including Ann Bell, past president of the Idaho Association of Health Underwriters, said the payroll tax would devastate small businesses.

"This legislation will not work," Bell said. "When my employer saw this plan, he was flabbergasted."

Memorial proposed for Wyoming internment site

Knight-Ridder News Service

CODY, Wyo. — Kicking her hard cold ground with her foot, Mary Blackburn unearthed a pretty stone embedded in the dirt.

"It used to be you'd find things buried under here, like a 1943 penny or a couple of marbles," she said. But now "unless you look real close, you'd never know those people were ever here."

This former site in northwestern Wyoming's Park County used to be the Heart Mountain Relocation Center, a guarded camp where most of the 6,000 Japanese-Americans in California's Santa Clara Valley were required to spend World War II.

Named for a nearby peak, the makeshift city was established after President Franklin Roosevelt signed an order 50 years ago today authorizing the forced exodus of Japanese-Americans on the West Coast to inland internment centers.

Among those centers was the Mindoka Relocation Center—of Hunt Camp, established in the eastern end of Jerome County.

All that's left of the Heart Mountain center today is a cluster of memorial plaques and the crumbling ruins of a hospital wing and guard tower. The tarpaper barracks were sold to veterans who wanted to homestead the area.

But the residents of Park County have not forgotten what happened here and are still struggling to resolve their feelings. They agree—the site is historically significant. But while some feel a sense of shame, others hesitate to acknowledge that the rights of U.S. citizens were violated. Those differences have polarized the community into two factions with opposing views about the future use of the site. One group is working to turn Heart Mountain into a state-supported educational and tourism complex that will fully address the internment experience.

"We can't continue to ignore what really happened here," said Deby Williams, vice president of the Heart Mountain Japanese-American Memorial Foundation, which has about 20 members. Williams said the existing memorial does not deal with issues of racism or constitutional rights.

U.S., Russia move toward joint defense system

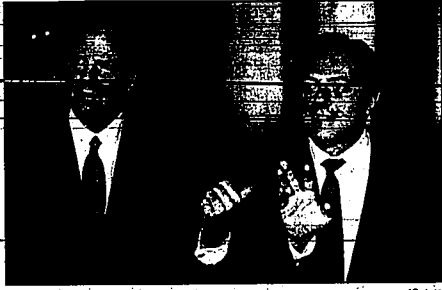

MOSCOW (AP) — The United States and Russia, in a first step toward a joint defense system, agreed Tuesday to set up an early warning center to alert them to ballistic missile attacks, U.S. officials said.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III and Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev also agreed on accelerated high-level talks toward an accord to sharply reduce their long-range nuclear arsenals, Kozyrev said.

Baker and Kozyrev decided to jettison the cumbersome arms control negotiating procedures of the Cold War, which involved large teams of experts working for years to reach agreement — if at all.

They agreed instead to conduct the negotiations themselves with a completion goal of July, when President Bush and Russian President Boris N. Yeltsin meet in Washington.

"Hopefully we're beyond the point of having to ... spend endless

Secretary of State James Baker and Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev discuss plans to cut long-range nuclear arsenals.

months and years haggling over the tiniest points and details," Baker said after meeting for more than two hours with Kozyrev.

The two will hold another round of talks on March 10 on the sidelines of a NATO foreign ministers' meeting in Brussels, a U.S. official said.

Baker said he hoped the North Atlantic Treaty Organization would be expanded to include other countries, saying that other countries would also be welcome if they acted in a responsible way.

The center would be established by the United States and Russia and would also be open to participation by the former Soviet republics in the Commonwealth of Independent States, said a senior official traveling with Baker.

"It's the first move to create a practical form of defense cooperation" between the adversaries of the Cold War, the official said.

He indicated that the project had not progressed much beyond the conceptual level.

The center, at a site yet to be determined, would utilize existing technologies — such as radar-aircraft-based surveillance — and might develop new techniques down the line, said the official.

He held out the possibility that the system would eventually require modification of the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile treaty, which bans space-based anti-missile defenses.

The Bush administration wants to modify the treaty to allow a limited space-based defense, but Russia does not.

The proposed system is of particular importance to Russia which is likely to lose some of its early warning capability from radar in the former. Soviet republics which have now declared independence.

The Russians feel themselves particularly vulnerable to attack from some of the countries they helped arm with Soviet-made weapons and which lie near their borders, such as Iraq.

Iraq's ballistic missile attacks on Saudi Arabia and Israel during the Gulf War highlighted that threat, the official said.

The Russians have been pressing for increased defense cooperation with the United States.

Submarine collision raises concern about its role

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a jarring reminder that Cold War dangers haven't disappeared, the Navy said Tuesday that one of its nuclear-powered attack submarines was hit, but apparently not damaged, by a Russian sub last week in the Arctic Ocean.

U.S. officials said they weren't sure which vessel was at fault, but beyond the issue of blame lay a broader question: If the former Soviet Union is no longer a threat to U.S. security, why are American subs still prowling its coastline?

Pentagon officials said the USS Baton Rouge, a Los Angeles-class attack submarine whose home port is Norfolk, Va., was on a routine patrol in the Barents Sea at the time of the collision, but they would not discuss its mission or exact location.

There was no report of nuclear contamination in the area of the accident.

Private U.S. analysis said it seemed likely the Baton Rouge was on a reconnaissance mission and some questioned the need for continued U.S. surveillance of Russian waters at a time of dramatically improved political relations.

"The question is, why are we doing this kind of operation now?" The Cold War is supposed to be over," said James T. Bush, a retired Navy captain and submariner. "They really haven't adjusted to the fact that the Cold War is over."

American officials have acknowledged that Soviet submarines no longer patrol regularly off the U.S. Atlantic coast.

The Defense Department said that the accident occurred Feb. 11, and that it waited a week to disclose it because Secretary of State James A. Baker III wanted to discuss it with Russian President Boris Yeltsin before the announcement.

"Given the change in the nature of the relationship between Russia and the United States, we thought it best to notify Boris Yeltsin," the department said in a brief statement.

Bob Hall, a Pentagon spokesman, said he believed it was the first time the department has announced a submarine collision, although this was not the first involving U.S. and Russian vessels. He said the mishap was disclosed in this case "because of the unusual nature of this incident."

Bush and others said it appears the U.S. Navy intends to continue its monitoring of the Russian Navy out of concern about political instability in the former Soviet republics and to watch disarmament moves.

Hall told reporters the U.S. Navy has 84 attack submarines in operation around the world. Their wartime role is to destroy enemy ships, particularly submarines. In peacetime they often are involved in intelligence-gathering operations.

Hall told reporters the U.S. Navy has 84 attack submarines in operation around the world. Their wartime role is to destroy enemy ships, particularly submarines. In peacetime they often are involved in intelligence-gathering operations.

Hall said there had been no Russian government protest of the incident, but the Interfax news agency in Moscow quoted Adm. Ivan Kapitanov as saying, "The fact that a foreign submarine secretly operated in our territorial water arouses legitimate concern in the Russian leadership."

Hall said the incident occurred beyond the 12-mile limit of Russian territorial waters recognized by the United States, but he would not be more specific beyond saying it happened in the Barents Sea.

Lt. Bob Ross, a Navy spokesman, said that the Russian government claims a wider territorial limit than 12 miles and that the incident apparently happens, but he would not be more specific beyond saying it happened in the Barents Sea.

Hall said the Baton Rouge was returning to Norfolk "for safety" reasons even though initial reports from the submarine indicated it sustained no apparent damage.

Witness: Jacobson misled hundreds

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — An infertility doctor being tried on fraud charges misled a "staggering" number of patients through false pregnancies and miscarriages, a doctor who examined his records testified Tuesday.

Dr. Cecil Jacobson "knew exactly what he was doing," said Dr. Mary Damewood, an infertility specialist at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Judging from Jacobson's medical records, she said, "He had a scheme outlined to do all of this."

Jacobson faces 52 counts of fraud and perjury. He is accused of using hormone injections to trick some patients into believing they were pregnant when they were not and of fathering up to 75 children by using his own sperm in artificial insemination while lying about the source.

Doctor infected by patient with AIDS dies

BALTIMORE (AP) — A former Johns Hopkins Hospital doctor who was infected with AIDS from a patient's blood and later sued the hospital for trying to avoid responsibility for his illness has died.

Dr. Hacı Aoun, 36, a cardiologist who began lecturing and writing on AIDS discrimination after leaving Johns Hopkins, died Sunday at his home in suburban Glen Arm of complications from AIDS, his family said. He contracted the AIDS virus in February 1983 when a tube holding a blood specimen shattered, cutting his finger. His infection was diagnosed more than three years later and his contract was not renewed.

Mood of gloom pervades polling place as New Hampshire votes

PEMBROKE, N.H. (AP) — Banker Brian Tufts still hadn't made up his mind as he walked to the clapboard Town Hall to cast his vote in New Hampshire's presidential primary.

"It's a tough choice, it really is," said Tufts, a Republican. "The problem is that you hear so many promises and you know these people will never be able to do what they say they're going to do."

At this precinct, many New Hampshire voters unraveled by recession carried more resignation than hope to the polls Tuesday to deliver the first judgment of campaign 1992.

Political rhetoric aimed at the economic issues, the issue that dominated the campaign, also left Democrats uninspired in this mill town-turned-bedroom community of 6,500.

"Frankly, I don't think anybody has a clue about what to do with the economy," Nic Harding said. "I'm afraid that perhaps New Hampshire will have to cure its own ills."

Harding, a sales manager, voted for Nebraska Sen. Bob Kerrey because "he was the least disappointing" of the Democrats.

President Bush's Republican supporters said they would not hold the state out of the economy against him. Some said they were voting for him because they wanted a stable leader. Many of the "undecideds" who had kept pollsters and pundits guessing arrived at the polling places in a similarly dispirited frame of mind.

Keith Richard wrote in "none of the above, I don't believe politicians are doing anything for the people," said Richard, a denim-clad dairy farmer. "It doesn't seem like they live in the same world we do."

Two Pembroke residents backed

Alabama Democrat Charles Woods. Another voted for Tom Laughlin, star of the "Billy Jack" films, and a third for consumer activist Ralph Nader.

"I didn't want a professional politician," summed up livestock dealer Michael Chickering, who voted for Woods.

John French, a software engineer, cast a protest vote for conservative GOP challenger Patrick Buchanan.

"I don't think George Bush understands what it's like to work 14 hours a day and still not be able to put enough food on the table," he said.

French was undecided until he read in the newspaper a plea in which first lady Barbara Bush asked voters not to heed Buchanan when he urges them to "send a message" to the president.

"Well I am going to send a message — I go back to Texas," French said.

The economy was the central issue in New Hampshire, which plunged from exponential growth in the late 1980s to the worst recession in recent decades.

Banks overextended on bad real estate loans and failed, unemployment shot up, welfare and food-stamp cases skyrocketed and bankruptcies multiplied.

With tens of thousands of jobs lost, the recession entered its fourth year.

"It's affected all of us and I don't know anyone who isn't affected by it," said David Theriault.

Census Bureau reports increase in eligible voters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Census Bureau reports that 189 million Americans will be old enough to vote in November, 6.3 million more than were eligible for the 1988 presidential election.

The bureau said Monday that most of the 3.4 percent increase will be among voters who are 45 years and older. The projected number of voters ages 18 to 24 is expected to decline from election day four years ago, census officials said. The youngest age category contained 26.57 million voters in 1988 and 26.39 million this year.

In the 25-to-44-year-old group, the bureau projected 81.74 million voters in 1992, compared to 79.43 million in 1988. The bureau said it expects 48.55 million voters in the 45-to-64-year-old group, compared with 46.18 million in 1982. And for Americans 65 years and older, the bureau projected 32.35 million voters this election, compared to 30.59 million in 1988.

The bureau also projected this breakdown by race: 160.28 million white voters in 1992, compared to 156.57 million in 1988; 21.52 million blacks in 1992, compared to 20.44 million in 1988; and 7.24 million for all other races in 1992, compared to 5.6 million in 1988.

Makers of 'Bugsy,' 'Fried Green Tomatoes' count on nominations

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Oscar nominations can deliver one thing television commercials, flashy newspaper ads and magazine covers can never guarantee: instant credibility at the box office.

For that reason, the makers of two Academy Award favorites, "Bugsy" and "Fried Green Tomatoes," are awaiting the announcement of Oscar nominations with anxious expectation. Both movies have been well-received by critics and the filmgoers, but neither has yet emerged as a box-office smash.

In fact, "Bugsy" has slipped from the Top 10 of the nation's highest-grossing titles.

Yet the makers of the gangster chronicle starring Warren Beatty are so sure it'll grab key Academy nominations, TriStar Pictures already has prepared a marketing campaign trumpeting the film's Oscar success.

Nominees for the 64th annual Academy Awards were to be announced at 5:30 a.m. (8:30 a.m. EST) Wednesday at the Beverly Hills headquarters of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

"The timing is to accommodate network television morning-news shows.

Hosting the announcement ceremony will be Academy President Karl Malden, and actress Kathleen Turner. Most of those attending will be journalists and agents.

Other films expected to figure prominently among award nominees include "The Prince of Tides," "Thelma and Louise" and "The Silence of the Lambs."

But the most anticipation, by far, focuses on "Bugsy."

TriStar planned to move the film into more theaters after the nominations are announced, expecting to seize Oscar momentum.

"Bugsy" is currently playing about 570 theaters. By comparison, "The Father of the Bride" is showing on 1,645 screens.

By last week, "Bugsy" grossed $39.6 million, a disappointment considering its $35 million budget and all-star ensemble, which besides Beatty includes actress Annette Bening and producer-director Barry Levinson.

The actor was resting comfortably and doctors hoped to discharge him Wednesday, she said.

Fed increases lending money

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve, in a move designed to increase the availability of money for borrowing, announced Tuesday it was reducing by $8 billion the amount of money that banks must hold in reserve to offset possible losses.

The reduction, from 12 percent to 10 percent of transaction accounts, will be effective with the two-week service maintenance period beginning Feb. 22.

The Fed said the reduction should strengthen the financial condition of banks and thereby improve their access to capital markets, putting them in a better position to extend credit.

Had the lower reserve ratio been in place in 1991, required reserves would have been $17.6 billion, now the nearly $50 billion level that prevailed last year, the announcement said.

The action preceded by a day Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan's appearance before the House Banking Committee to report on the central bank's monetary policy and its economic forecast for 1992.

Military commander foresees army breakup

MOSCOW (AP) — The commonwealth's military commander predicted Tuesday that the former Soviet forces, gradually, will split into separate national armies and expressed hope that the breakup will be "civilized."

...viet republics also have been wrangling for possession of the Black Sea fleet. Their disagreements have strained the unity of the Commonwealth of Independent States and contributed to a split at a summit meeting of commonwealth leaders last week.

"My personal prediction is that in the end, the (former Soviet) army will break up along national or state lines," Shaposhnikov said Tuesday. "But we are civilized people ... and we must do this in a civilized manner," he said.

Gorbachev told he needs an address

MOSCOW (AP) — Postal clerks in the Siberian city of Chita have a message for former Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev: Get a mailing address like everyone else.

Gorbachev Clerks at Chita's central post office refused to accept a letter from a group of teachers addressed only to "Mikhail Gorbachev," Moscow, the TASS news agency reported Tuesday.

Bombing continues in Mideast

JERUSALEM (AP) — Shiite Muslim guerrillas fired volleys of rockets at Israel again Tuesday, and the Israeli army struck back at three Lebanese villages with an artillery barrage that reportedly killed one person and wounded 11.

Lebanon's ambassador to the United Nations requested an urgent Security Council meeting to hear Lebanese protests over Israel's assassination of the leader of the pro-Iranian Hezbollah and attacks on other targets in Lebanon.

Israeli army radio said Katyusha rockets fired from southern Lebanon into the Galilee panhandle for a second consecutive day caused some damage, but no casualties were reported. Several missiles that hit Monday caused no harm.

The rockets were fired by Hezbollah guerrillas seeking to avenge the killing of their leader, Sheik Abbas Musawi, in an Israeli helicopter attack Sunday. Hezbollah, or Party of God, Tuesday elected its military commander, Sheik Hassan Nasrallah, to replace Musawi's secretary-general of the party, Nasrallah, 38, studied theology in Qom from graduating in 1978.

Security sources in Lebanon said about 65 rockets were fired at Israel and the security zone it occupies along the border in southern Lebanon Tuesday. Israeli troops and an allied Lebanese militia fired back at Hezbollah strongholds with 120 howitzer shells, the sources said.

At least one person died and 11 were wounded in the villages of Barasheet, Jibsheet and Zawtar, Lebanese officials said. Few details were available, and it was not known if any Hezbollah members were among the casualties.

Lebanon's government-owned National News Agency later said that in one attack, an Israeli helicopter fired a guided missile into Zawtar, damaging a house and wounding two women.

U.S. pay tops Japanese execs

TOKYO (AP) — Presidents of large Japanese companies earn about a third of what their counterparts in the United States do, a private research group reported Tuesday. The report said average compensation for presidents of Japanese companies with more than $78 million in capital was $375,000, well below the $1.2 million paid to presidents of comparably-sized American companies.

A $1.6 billion health plan? Are these people serious?

Say this for Marti Calabretta — when she has a bad idea, she thinks big.

The Democratic state senator from Osburn is chief cook of the frothy liberal confection known as IDealth. It's an ambitious plan to enroll every Idahoan in a state-run health insurance plan.

When Calabretta and her co-sponsors first lofted this idea, it seemed like a good conversation starter for lawmakers to talk about health care. Of course, no one thought it would be taken seriously.

After all, at a cost of almost $1.6 billion, it was bigger than the state's whole General Fund. A billion six — that's maybe $130 a month for every man, woman and child in Idaho.

This is the kind of idea that might win favor in Massachusetts. But Idaho? Never.

Amazingly, however, lawmakers seem to be paying serious attention. The IDealth bill escaped from the Senate Health and Welfare Committee Tuesday, and now it's running loose on the Senate floor.

So let's talk about this thing. From a philosophical standpoint, IDealth seems directly opposed to how most Idahoans want to live their lives and run their government.

First, it would more than double the share of Idaho's wealth absorbed by state government. The bureaucracy to administer this behemoth could easily dwarf the gargantuan Department of Health and Welfare.

And such power it would have! Though it wouldn't be socialized medicine in the British sense, it would be a monopolistic payment source for all health care. That means it would be a big intrusion by state government into people's lives.

It's not hard to imagine a future in which Idahoans find their access to health care sorely constrained by an unyielding bureaucracy, while the same bureaucracy takes an ever-expanding bite out of paychecks.

From a practical standpoint, can Idaho afford to be a pioneer in single-payer health plans? A single state that turns itself into an island of guaranteed health coverage is likely to discover it has become a magnet for sick people.

Granted, the plan has some attractive points. Backers predict it would encourage more preventive health-care measures, such as mammography and prenatal care. That's good, but does prevention have to cost $1.6 billion an ounce?

Also, it would provide a safety-net for the otherwise uninsurable — such as Paul Sharrai, a Twin Falls diabetic who testified for the bill last week. Sharrai and others like him certainly need a safety net — but lots of cheaper nets are available.

A billion six? Get real. IDealth is the wrong plan for Idaho, and the Legislature knows it is. Let's put it on ice and start talking about something practical.

State imposes double taxation

Our leaders in Boise are again searching for another way to get some more tax money from the people of Idaho.

If you remember about three years ago, our state revenue was about $650 million. This year, they will have more than $1 billion to spend. That shows around a 50 percent increase in the past three years. This year, it figures to be about $1,000 for every man, woman and child that live in the state.

One of the ways this has been accomplished was not to allow you any credit for the federal taxes you pay. It used to be you deducted the federal tax from your gross income and figured your state taxes on the balance. In other words, you didn't have to pay taxes on taxes. This appears to me to be double taxation. A wage earner never even gets to see the federal tax withheld from last salary so why should the state be allowed to tax this money again?

I'm sure the state is not going to lower our taxes, but they should show the rate we pay for what it really is. I'm sure the state needs the money, not always spent the way we would like it spent, but we are on the same roller-coaster as our federal government.

I think it is time for us to decide whether more additional taxes favor the growth of our income or that of our government!

Two sides to story of arrest

An open letter to Stan Crowley: In response to your open letter to the officer involved in Kim Crowley's arrest, my response is an effort to show that any incident has two sides. I'll use a rhyme I learned during my childhood in Kimberly. One bright day in the middle of the night, two dead boys got up to fight. Back-to-back they faced each other, pulled out swords and shot each other. A deaf policeman heard the noise, came right over and arrested the boys. If you think this tall is tall, ask the blind man who saw it all.

As you can see, there are two sides to every story. Were the boys dead or alive? Did they face each other or were they back-to-back? Did they shoot each other or use swords? Was the policeman really deaf, and was the man that saw it all really blind?

I believe that when this case is presented to a jury of our peers (people that we live with and share our community with) that those citizens will listen to the facts presented and make a fair and impartial decision.

I wish the best to the children involved, whom ever decides to claim them and hope that they have a long and happy life. See you in court.

Share blame for math lag

Testing shows a lag in math and science learning by U.S. students. They are below 15 countries. There must be a percentage blame: the family, the school, the church and the government. If you can name others, write your own letter and list them.

The nitty-gritty starts. The percentage of lag will change with everyone. You will admit that some percentage of blame befalls all listed above.

The percentage of parents to blame will fluctuate, depending on age and the education they have had. Be careful how you rank the family.

Schools percentage will get censure, possibly more than their share. Parents won't admit to lack of encouragement in the home. Teachers say that they are underpaid and overworked. Are you sure they can teach their best? Overcrowded classrooms cause percentage lag.

Criticism of the church is possible — more children in church, more parents in church. Be careful of your percentage of blame on the church.

All reading and writing will be careful of the percentage of blame on the government. We are the government. Those of us over 60 list our lag percentage differently than parents with children in school.

Share words fit the picture: money, ambition, work, pride, love and don't worry — Uncle Sam takes care. The bottom question is, if the lag isn't shared by the family, the school, the church and the government, who is responsible for the deterioration of our society? The transforming of all of us from the past through the present and into the future cannot be the responsibility of only one group.

If kids wander streets, don't blame the police

In response to Mary Anne Sproston's letter to the editor about the police department's handling of her son and his young friend.

Evidently someone must have called the police about the boys in the first place. And if what Mrs. Sproston said in her letter is correct and the boys were creeping into people's yards and knocking on the doors and windows, I would think someone was blowing or up to other mischievous antics. That seems to be a reason for people to call the police.

Now when a police officer is sent to find a prowler, they probably are concerned for their own safety and the safety of the person calling them. They would not have known who was doing the prowling when they are sent. They have to find who is outside the house, and then worry about the reason the boys were prowling. Maybe they were simply playing games with their neighbors, but the police certainly cannot be expected to know this before they catch them and talk with them.

Mrs. Sproston seems eager to lay blame on the police for scaring the boy into wetting his pants. But if she had been keeping her son in control, the police would not have had to be there in the first place. Let's take responsibility for our own children, and not expect the police to baby-sit for us.

Police officers deal with a variety of problems every day. If you allow your children to run the streets at night and crowd in other people's yards, don't complain when a police officer has to step in and do what you should have done in the first place.

Boys will be boys, and should be, but parents should still be parents and not let your boy go prowling. Especially if you are not wanting your boys to meet with police.

I hope that my children would be very scared if they had been doing what Mrs. Sproston's boy was. Maybe it would even keep them from doing something much worse later. Maybe if Mrs. Sproston had used the opportunity to explain the consequences of his actions to her son, she could have made this a learning experience for her son and herself.

The police in our city are overrun with problems, and we can help them by simply parenting our children ourselves. Let's try to help the police and stop tearing apart every action they take.

Idaho nursing rules do injustice to veterans

Until I joined the service almost four years ago, I had been living in Idaho all my life. As a hospital corpsman, I've had an excellent opportunity to receive the best health care training and education that the U.S. Navy has to offer. My first tour of duty was two years at the National Naval Medical Center in Bethesda, Md. Working in the neurosurgery intensive care unit, there was a wonderful learning experience. Then, I came over to the "Green Side," the Fleet Marine Force, and have been stationed with a Marine tank battalion since before Desert Shield/Storm.

I'll be getting out in a few months, and I plan to attend Boise State University to work toward being a registered nurse. Late last year, I obtained an application from the California State Board of Nursing to challenge the National Council of State Nursing Board's exam for licensure for practical nurse in the state of California (I am currently stationed in California).

I will be taking that exam here in April. It was my intention to work as a licensed practical nurse while going to college.

Unfortunately, I won't be able to do so back home in Boise. You see, while the California State Nursing Board allows for a combination of military education and on-the-job training and experience for eligibility to challenge the exam, the Idaho Board has no such provision. Nor will I be allowed to reciprocate my California license. I must attend an accredited college course of instruction to obtain an Idaho license, which would take me anywhere from nine to 12 months.

Let's say I decide to go ahead and take an LPN course. My tuition, books, cost of living and other expenses would be paid largely by my Montgomery GI Bill and federal grants. In other words, paid largely by taxpayers who would be footing the bill for education and training that they already paid for me to receive in the service.

I believe the Idaho Board of Nursing is doing a serious injustice to our veterans, as well as wasting the taxpayers hard-earned dollars.

Thank you for your sincere concern. LAWRENCE A. BUNCH HM3 U.S. Navy Twenty-nine Palms, Calif.

Change laws, judges to let executions go forth

When the founding fathers wrote the U.S. Constitution, they did not contemplate abolition of the death penalty. The death penalty in most states has been found not to be a violation of the cruel and unusual punishment clause of the Eighth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Many years have elapsed since an execution took place in Idaho and the number of inmates on Death Row continually increases. There are many substantive reasons supporting the death penalty, notwithstanding the fact that in a recent poll, 80 percent of Idahoans surveyed support it.

Let's examine some reasons. Some crimes are so repulsive that committing them revokes all human rights, including the right to life. The endangerment factor is removed;

and executed killer does not live to kill again.

The death penalty reminds all that serious crime will be dealt with by serious punishment. It affirms the value that society places on life. We spend millions to preserve and extend life and do not tolerate those who destroy that which we hold sacred.

The death penalty is society's way of repaying the killer for what has been done to the victim and the victim's family.

Why should the public be taxed to keep the worst criminals alive? Each Death Row inmate now costs Idaho taxpayers more than $18,000 per year.

Lastly, the death penalty discourages people from committing murders. The poet Hyman Barshay said:

"The death penalty is a warning, just like a lighthouse throwing its beams out to sea. We hear about shipwrecks, but we do not hear about the ships the lighthouse guides on their way. We do not have proof of the number of ships it saves, but we do not tear the lighthouse down."

A 1984 Idaho law requires Death Row inmates to bunch their appeals in the Idaho courts. Federal law is not so accommodating and the Federal 9th Circuit Court of Appeals has so far stalled our attempts to execute in Idaho.

Congress should change the federal laws and judges should be appointed to the 9th Circuit who will aggressively and fairly allow executions to go forth. And then justice will be done.

Stop using Snake River to carry away sewage

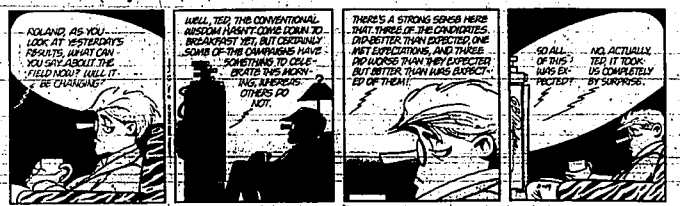

An article in The Times-News dated Feb. 4 told about Burley, Idaho's, sewage pipe releasing effluent too close to the south bank of the river. Burley officials were told by the environmental agency to extend the pipe 550 feet out to the deepest part of the river.

If they're concerned about the sewage sticking to the south bank of the river, what will it do to the river itself?

Libyan judge nixes extradition of accused

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Libya produced two men the United States accused of blowing up an American jetliner but insisted again Tuesday they will never be surrendered for trial in the West.

American and Scottish authorities have charged Abdel Basset Ali al-Megrahi and Lamien Khalifa Fhimah with planting the bomb that blew the Pan Am Flight 103 over Lockerbie, Scotland in December 1988. The attack killed 270 people.

The Libyans are described in U.S. and British indictments as intelligence agents. Libya has opened its own investigation and says the men could be tried in Libya.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said, "We think that a Libyan investigation or a hearing is a travesty of justice, amounts to nothing more than another attempt by Libya to delay and to evade its responsibility."

Balcony collapse, stampede kills 80

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The balcony of an old hostel in a southern town collapsed Tuesday on a gathering of pilgrims.

More than 80 people were killed by falling debris and in a stampede of terrified worshippers, news reports said.

The U.N. Security Council demanded last week that Libya surrender the two men. It also demanded four other Libyans be turned over to France to face charges in the bombing of a UTA plane over Africa in 1989 that killed 170 people.

Western nations have raised the possibility of economic sanctions if the men are not turned over. The United States and Britain also have not ruled out military action.

Foreign reporters were invited to Tripoli to attend what was announced as a public hearing Tuesday for Al-Megrahi and Fhimah. Instead, reporters were taken to a news conference, where the judge heading the investigation said there would be no public hearing.

"According to Libyan law, it is forbidden to make an investigation public," said the judge, Ahmed el-Tahir al-Zawi.

The judge also insisted that under the law the men could not be extradited for trial outside Libya.

"If convicted in a Libyan court and it is proven they blew up the airplane with the intention of killing those aboard, the penalty of the Libyan court is absolutely severe: it is death," al-Zawi said.

Al-Megrahi and Fhimah were present at a news conference after the news conference, but reporters were prohibited from asking any questions.

"I just want to say that we are not guilty," al-Megrahi said when offered the chance to speak. Fhimah, except for identifying himself, remained silent. He was the manager of the Libyan state airline office in Malta at the time of the bombing, Libyan leader Moammar Ghaddafi has denied the two men are government agents.

Washington man faces felony forgery counts

JEROME — A 29-year old Washington man faces two felony forgery counts in Jerome County.

Keith E. Crook was arrested Feb. 14 in Jerome and charged with trying to cash two forged payroll checks totaling more than $1,100. He appeared in 5th District Magistrate Court Tuesday where bond was set at $10,000. His preliminary hearing is scheduled for March 3.

Crook remained in the Jerome County Jail Tuesday night.

Pair of overnight blazes keep Twin Falls firefighters busy

TWIN FALLS — Firefighters in Twin Falls put out a couple of small blazes Monday night and Tuesday morning before the flames caused any major damage.

The second small fire in a week at the Longview Fibre Co., 348 South Park Ave. W., broke out after 10 p.m. Monday. The box-making plant suffered little damage, and firefighters don't think the fires are connected, Battalion Chief Jerry Hafer said.

A poorly installed chimney apparently is to blame for a fire inside a vacant rental house at 390 Van Buren St., Hafer said.

The property owner, Bob McCowen of Twin Falls, built a fire in the fireplace Monday night while he worked on the house, Hafer said.

The heat from the chimney ignited some fireplace rafters, which smoldered for quite a while before neighbors noticed the smoke and called firefighters at 10:49 a.m. Tuesday, he said.

Hafer estimated the damage at $1,000.

Bill allowing in-state training for tribal officers pushes on

BOISE — A bill sponsored by state Rep. Lee Barnes, R-Buhl, to allow tribal police officers to attend the state Peace Officer Standards and Training Academy passed a House committee unanimously Tuesday and was sent to the full House.

The current law prohibits tribal police from attending the state academy, which trains and certifies all other law enforcement officers in Idaho. Instead, tribal officers are certified by a federal academy in Arizona.

Barnes, who co-chaired an interim committee on Indian affairs last summer, said the bill would allow tribal police to be cross-deployed with neighboring city police or county sheriff's offices. That would allow them to arrest non-tribal members on reservation grounds, he said, and make it easier for them to get jobs in other jurisdictions.

U.S. Senate majority leader to attend Democrats' banquet

BOISE — U.S. Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell will be the featured speaker at the Idaho Democrats' annual Jefferson-Jackson Day Banquet on Feb. 29.

The dinner, the major fund-raising event of the year for Idaho Democrats, will also feature speeches for Gov. Cecil Andrus, U.S. Rep. Richard Stallings, U.S. Rep. Larry LaRocco, Attorney General Larry Echols and State Auditor J.D. Williams.

Stallings is seeking the U.S. Senate seat of Steve Symms, who is retiring. Williams is running to succeed Stallings and LaRocco is seeking election to a second term.

The dinner is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at the Boise Centre on the Grove. Tickets for the dinner can be obtained by phoning the Idaho Democratic Party at 800-542-4737.

Council approves Union Pacific's Rose Street crossing

TWIN FALLS — The City Council approved an agreement Tuesday for Union Pacific Railroad to build a crossing at Rose Street to help the city finish Victory Avenue.

The crossing will cost $220,000 and is needed for the city to finish Victory Avenue, which leads from the Victory Bridge, city Economic Development Director Dave McAlindin said.

Once Victory Avenue is finished, the route can be used as a detour while the Idaho Transportation Department replaces the Singing Bridge. Work on replacing that bridge cannot start until Victory Avenue is finished, McAlindin said.

The city will use a $250,000 state grant to pay for the railroad crossing.

Health insurance crisis plops plan into Senate's lap

By Drew DeSilver
Times-News writer

BOISE — At least 160,000 Idahoans — perhaps as many as 200,000 — lack health insurance completely and thousands more are considered underinsured.

But Boise insurance agent Hyatt Erstad said Tuesday that means the current system, for all its faults, insures 85 percent of all Idahoans.

Erstad made the case against IdaHealth, a $1.6 billion proposal that would make the state everyone's insurance company, but the bill was passed by the state Senate Health and Welfare Committee and sent to the full Senate for consideration.

Smaller changes, including expanding Medicaid eligibility and enacting so-called "small group reform" legislation to

Committee cools Cameron's call for maternity coverage cut

By Drew DeSilver
Times-News writer

BOISE — A bill by Sen. Dean Cameron of Rupert to exempt some small businesses from a requirement to include maternity coverage in their health insurance plans got stuck in a Senate committee Tuesday.

The legislation would have made maternity coverage optional for businesses with between five and 15 employees that provided health insurance. A law passed last year mandates such coverage for businesses with five or more workers.

Cameron, a first-term Republican and an insurance agent, said requiring such coverage for all women, whether or not they could bear children, served only to drive up the cost of health insurance for everyone.

"Maternity benefits should not be forced on women who don't want them or can't use them," he said.

Small business and insurance industry representatives supported the bill during a hearing before the Senate Human Resources Committee.

But Marilyn Schuler, executive director of the Idaho Commission on Human Rights, called the bill a form of sex discrimination and said it would do little to hold down health insurance costs.

"This is a little like the camel's nose under the tent," Schuler said.

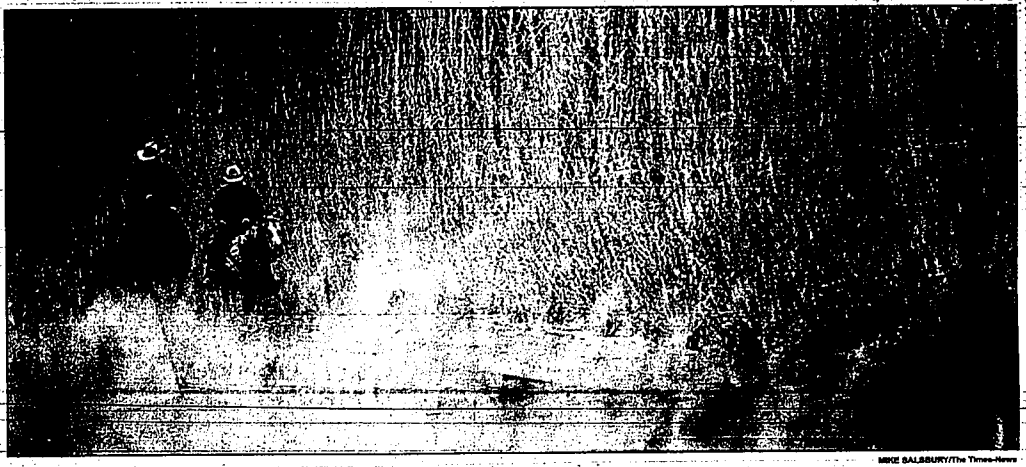

"Will older males be exempted next because they are very expensive to insure?"

Cameron said that pregnancy was not a disease or an injury, the traditional areas of coverage for health insurance.

But after noting that many diseases, including heart disease, have been linked to diet and lifestyle, Bruce Bistline, a lobbyist for the American Civil Liberties Union, said: "If we were talking about a bill to exempt heart disease coverage from men who don't take care of themselves, this hearing would not be taking place."

The committee rejected motions to report the bill to the floor and to hold it in committee by identical 4-4 party-line votes, leaving it in legislative limbo.

Lawyer seeks dismissal of throat-slashing case

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A public defender said Tuesday she will ask that charges against a Filee man charged by prosecutors of cutting his ex-wife's throat be dismissed.

Gary Wickel, 46, appeared in 5th District Court Tuesday, where his attorney, Twin Falls County Deputy Public Defender Lisa Barini-Garcia said she plans to file a motion to dismiss the attempted murder charge against her client.

Barini-Garcia filed a motion requesting a transcript of the Jan. 28 grand jury proceeding that resulted in Wickel's indictment on attempted first-degree murder. Twin Falls County Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter said she has no objection to providing the grand jury transcripts involving Wickel.

After Tuesday's hearing, Barini-Garcia said she was not prepared to say why she is requesting the dismissal.

Wickel was arrested Jan. 21 and charged with trying to kill Sandy Souza, 43, at her home north of Filee.

Souza's throat was severely cut, and she ran to the house next door, where her son had already called the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office.

Wickel was arrested without incident outside the house and has remained in the Twin Falls County jail in lieu of $500,000 bond since then.

He has not entered a plea to the charge, and Barini-Garcia on Tuesday asked for a delay in entering a plea until she can examine the grand jury transcripts and file her dismissal motion. Fifth District Judge Daniel Meehl granted her request and tentatively set a new arraignment date for March 17.

Souza was released from the hospital within a week of the incident and has regained her voice.

Planners seek public views on controlling Twin Falls growth

By Phil Sahm
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — City residents will get their chance to put in their 2 cents worth and then some as Twin Falls reshapes its master plan to accommodate growth.

Planners have begun a key element of reshaping the plan — citizen involvement, said Nancy Taylor of J-U-B Engineers of Boise. Taylor is the planner in charge of the project.

"We can't determine the issues until we talk to people," Taylor said Tuesday.

This talk will come in several forms.

First, Taylor and two other planners want to form an advisory group of up to 17 city residents. This group will include City Council members, planning and zoning commissioners, business and community leaders and other private citizens.

Council and planning and zoning commissioners have suggested members of the advisory group.

"We will take everything to them (the advisory group) and first-ask-for their help throughout the process," Taylor said.

Ideally, the group will reflect the community at large and help planners set goals and objectives regarding housing, traffic and other areas of concern.

Taylor also wants to interview 75 to 100 city residents to identify issues. She and her co-workers also plan a series of "open houses," possibly in area schools, where residents can talk about issues and what they want for the city.

After the interviews and open houses, planners will send 3,000 questionnaires out to citizens and businesses, Taylor said. Residents also will be able to pick them up at City Hall and get them in The Times-News, she said.

From the interviews, meetings and questionnaires, planners hope to learn what city residents want and then start shaping a comprehensive plan, Taylor said.

Part of this will include developing a master street plan, she said. This will include making a computer model of the city and studying traffic origin and destination points, she said.

Developing a comprehensive plan will take about 10 months. The city recently awarded the contract to J-U-B.

"It's something everyone should plan on being involved in," Taylor said.

Council OKs 4-plexes in northwest Twin Falls

By Phil Sahm
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The faces were different, but the problem is becoming increasingly familiar.

Worried neighbors asking the Twin Falls City Council to disallow a multi-unit housing development in their area.

But City Council members said they had no choice but to OK a plat for six four-plexes near intersection of Falls Avenue West and Sparks Street.

The vote at Tuesday night's meeting left neighbors disappointed and had council members saying that the city likely will face many such other decisions as Twin Falls keeps growing.

Council members said their hands were tied Tuesday night because the area zoning allows four-plexes.

Richard Jones, 389 Crestview Drive, said traffic problems, children's safety and property values were among neighbors' concerns.

One resident counted 300 cars at the Filer-Sparks intersection in 45 minutes on a recent morning, Jones said. Six four-plexes could add another 40 cars to the morning traffic, he said.

Jones videotaped children walking to and from school in the area and showed the tape to the council.

"I think you'll agree that's a very busy intersection," he told the council.

"We're not against development, but we feel this is overkill."

Residents are not against the developer, Roger Campbell, building on the property, but they would like to see 200 square-foot homes or fewer four-plexes, Jones said.

Campbell owns 1.3 acres and told the council he plans to put in a development that will not detract from the neighborhood. He lives just three blocks from the area, Campbell said.

"I don't want to see the neighborhood run down," he said.

The units would rent for $550-$600 a month with off-street parking. Campbell promised to landscape the units so that they would blend into the area.

Lease agreements would ensure the quality of the renters, Campbell said.

The area zoning was changed to allow four-plexes 11 years ago, said city Community Development Director LaMar Orton.

"We can sympathize with you ... but we can't vote in a manner inconsistent with city code," Councilman Gale Kleinkopf told the residents.

"We are in a growth mode and there may be hundreds of similar problems in the city," he said.

Councilman Jim Vickers agreed.

"These problems can keep rising and rising again as the inner part of the city develops," Vickers said.

City Attorney Fritz Wonderlich said there was nothing the residents could do to stop this development. To ward off future ones, they would have to ask the city Planning and Zoning Commission to recommend zoning changes for any similar properties in the area.

Also at the meeting, the council passed a new sign law that was about a year in the works. The law might be more restrictive of smaller properties, while allowing more signs on larger parcels.

The new law is based on property's square-footage — street frontage and depth, Orton said.

Every parcel can have a 100-square-foot free-standing sign. Larger signs can be built according to property size.

For every foot of street frontage more than 100 feet, a sign can be 1-square-foot larger than 100 square feet. For every foot of property depth more than 200 square feet, a sign can be one square foot larger than 100 square feet.

Property with less than 500 feet frontage and smaller than five acres can have up to 600 square feet of signs. Property more than five acres can have 800 square feet of signs.

"I don't want to see the neighborhood run down," he said.

The units would rent for $550-$600 a month with off-street parking. Campbell promised to landscape the units so that they would blend into the area.

Lease agreements would ensure the street maintenance budget to make the purchase.

BURLEY — Two members of the Burley City Council took exception Tuesday night to the city's plans to buy a street roller. Councilmen Clay Handy and Wendell McMurray said the money could be better spent in filling potholes and fixing curbs. They voted against spending $27,500 on the roller, but they were in the minority. The proposal, along with $12,230 for new garbage containers, passed 3-2.

"I hate to see funds come out of street repair," Handy said. "We are not keeping up with it now. We have curb and gutter in need of repair."

In other business:
• City Clerk Bud Brinegar reported several complaints about areas of the city and nearby rural areas that are unkempt. City Attorney Bill Parsons said a nuisance ordinance can be used to deal with such problems, but cautioned the council that often court action is required.

Handy called the Public Works Department's estimates of the use it will get out of the roller exaggerated and suggested the city consider renting a roller or sharing one with neighboring highway districts.
But Public Works Director Leon Bedke said when the city has tried to rent or borrow a roller in the past, work has been delayed.
Handy and McMurray expressed concern that money was being removed from the

The council voted unanimously to pursue the complaint.

• The council voted to allow no more than $3,000 on July 4 fireworks and to solicit donations from neighboring towns.

• Kelly Walton of Walton Inc. of Heyburn said his firm had provided an estimate to install a sewer extension pipe into the Snake River, the contract for which was awarded to a Twin Falls company last month.
He said he was not lodging a complaint, but would have appreciated more communications from the city regarding its priorities.

Gen. Polk dies at 80

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Retired Army Gen. James H. Polk, who spearheaded Gen. George Patton's drive across Europe in World War II, died Tuesday. He was 80.

Polk had suffered recently from cancer and pneumonia, and had been hospitalized several weeks.

Polk headed the 3rd Armored Cavalry Regiment, which led the 3rd Army's advances through France, Germany and into Czechoslovakia. He returned to the United States after brief occupation duty after the war. A few years later, Polk was ordered to Tokyo to serve in the U.S. Far East Command. He fought in three Korean War campaigns.

In June 1961, Polk took command of the 4th Armored Division, which guarded the border between West Germany and East Germany.
He became U.S. commandant in Berlin in January 1963, arriving in the divided city just four months after the Berlin Wall was built. Polk was commander in chief of the U.S. Army in Europe from 1966 to 1971, when he retired.

An expert rider during the days of the horse cavalry, Polk graduated from the U.S. Military Academy at West Point in 1933.

He is survived by his wife, Josephine; a daughter, Josephine Schwartz; a son, James H. Polk III; and two brothers, Col. John F. Polk, retired from the U.S. Army, and Capt. Thomas H. Polk, retired from the U.S. Navy.

Airline tests wind-shear warning system

DENVER (AP) — Continental Airlines is testing four systems designed to give pilots up to 90-second warnings that they're heading toward wind shears, an executive said Tuesday.

Continental plans to decide by June which system to install on all its aircraft, said Ray Valeika, senior vice president of Continental's technical operations.

At a news conference, Valeika described wind shears — sudden downward shifts in winds — as an "insidious phenomenon."

He said new technology predicting them will allow pilots to avoid them.

"Ninety seconds is an opportunity to get around it. It's really a wonderful amount of time," Valeika said.

The Federal Aviation Administration has required that all aircraft be equipped by Dec. 30, 1993, with systems that let pilots

'Ninety seconds is an opportunity to get around it. It's really a wonderful amount of time.'

— Ray Valeika, on the new warning system know they are in wind shears.

Continental is among airlines asking for an extension to that deadline to explore the more advanced systems that predict wind shears by as long as 90 seconds.

Three of the systems Continental has installed use pulsed Doppler radar, the colorful imaging used by many weather forecasters. The Doppler systems measure the speed of moisture and other airborne particles to determine wind speed.

The fourth system Continental is testing uses infrared technology, which senses heat.

Capt. Sam Shirck, a Continental pilot, said a 10-second warning of a wind shear would give pilots enough time to avoid it. "If we could achieve 20 seconds, we'd be happy."

Research began after wind shears were blamed for the crash of an Eastern flight at New York's Kennedy International Airport in 1975 that killed more than 100 people.

In 1982, a Pan Am flight was hurled to the ground shortly after takeoff in New Orleans, killing 154 people.

Wind shears also were blamed for the crash of a Delta flight in Dallas in 1985, that killed 137 people.

Pennsylvania fugitive commits suicide

GARDEN CITY (AP) — A fugitive from Pennsylvania apparently shot himself to death Tuesday as Garden City Police were arriving to arrest him.

Garden City Police Lt. James Bensley said Randall Alan Verner, 37, was a convicted rapist wanted on a parole violation warrant from Pennsylvania. He had been staying at a local mobile home since Feb. 8, Bensley said.

Police arrived at the trailer shortly after 10:30 a.m. Tuesday and knocked on the door. There was no response, and Bensley said officers soon heard a single gunshot from inside.

Officers found Verner slumped over in the bathroom, shot in the head.

He was alone in the trailer at the time and had a small-caliber handgun, Bensley said.

Verner was paroled from a Pennsylvania prison in May 1987 after being convicted in February, 1983 on statutory rape, indecent exposure, indecent assault and corruption of minors charges.

But Verner was arrested in Fawn Township, Pa., last month on five counts of indecent exposure.

A felony parole violation warrant was issued last Friday.

Bensley said one of Verner's relatives told Garden City detectives after Tuesday's shooting that Verner showed him a handgun last week and said he would kill himself before going back to prison.

Christina Bircher Peterson

She was born April 1, 1898, on a ranch near Miles City, Mont., the daughter of Emil and Mary Bauer. Bircher was one of 10 children. On Oct. 3, 1923, she married Julius T. Peterson from Avoca, Iowa. They lived and farmed in Iowa until 1927, when they moved to Idaho Falls; and in 1931, to Twin Falls. They were divorced in 1938. In 1945, she started a leather repair and manufacturing business and retail store under the name of Chris Line Originals. In 1959, the manufacturing business was sold to a company in Oklahoma and the name of the retail business was changed to Peterson's Western Apparel. In 1973, she sold her business to her son, Emery Peterson, who now operates it as Peterson's Western Wear.

In 1967, she was selected as Idaho Mother of the Year. She was active in the Scorpion Club, Twentieth Century Club, Order of the Eastern Star Chapter 29, First Presbyterian Church and, for more than 60 years, was a member of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Survivors include one daughter, Phyllis Gerber of Twin Falls; and three sons, Max Peterson of Boise, Blaine Peterson of Rochester, N.Y., and Emery Peterson of Twin Falls. She was preceded in death by three sisters and six brothers. The funeral will be held at 2 p.m.

Friday at White Mortuary in Twin Falls with Michael Ballard, D.D.M., officiating. Interment will follow at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls. Friends may call from 4 to 8 p.m. Thursday at White Mortuary. The family suggests memorial contributions may be made to the First Presbyterian Church, 209 Fifth Ave. N., Twin Falls ID 83301.

Eugene A. Berry

EDEN — Eugene Armond Berry, 62, of Eden, died Saturday, Feb. 15, 1992, as the result of injuries received in an industrial accident.

He was born May 16, 1930, in Rangley, Maine, the son of Carroll Thomas and Susan Myrtle Ross Berry. He moved to Idaho in 1968 and married Joyce Lou Bentley in Eden, Nev., on April 25, 1968. Gene farmed in the Hunt area until the time of his death. He also worked as a mechanic at the Milner Dam Project. He had served 11 years in the U.S. Army, serving in Vietnam; he was head of the Democratic Precinct in Eden and was a member of the American Legion in Wendell and Eden.

Survivors include his wife, Joyce Berry of Eden; two sons, Dan Thomas Berry of Auburn, Calif., and Ted Jay Berry of Eden; one daughter, Susan Nalley of Eden; two grandchildren, Jari M. and Gaven L. House; three brothers, John Berry of Coopersville, Maine, and Norman Berry of Denver, Colo.; two sisters, Lillian Boulye of Rangley, Maine, and Celia White of Farmington, Maine. He was preceded in death by his parents; one son, Gene; and four brothers.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday at White Mortuary in Twin Falls with Pastor James Amehd officiating. Friends may call from 4 to 8 p.m. today and Thursday at White Mortuary in Twin Falls. The family suggests memorial contributions may be made to the make it easier for small businesses to obtain health insurance, could take care of many of the state's uninsured, Ernest said.

"There's no need to throw out the baby with the bathwater," he told the committee.

"I'm neither a witness," Karen Simkins of Boise, said the time for piecemeal reform has passed.

"We don't need a bunch of little Band-Aids," Simkins said. "We need something that provides health care for everyone, now, and I think it must be done at the state level."
Sen. Stan Hawkins of Ucon, the only Republican on the committee to vote to send the bill to the Senate floor, said he shared many of his GOP colleagues' concerns. The plan could find itself overwhelmed by out-of-staters moving into Idaho to take advantage of its benefits, he said.

And like Sen. Russell Newcomb, a Twin Falls Republican who is the author of a different health insurance proposal, Hawkins said he was concerned about the estimated 5,000 to 7,000 workers in the private insurance and health-care industries who would lose their jobs if IdaHealth became law.

While Hawkins said those concerns probably would force him to vote against IdaHealth on the Senate floor, it remains in its current form. He said the problems could be addressed in a subsequent bill.

IdaHealth's sponsor, Sen. Matt Calabretta, D-Oburn, has suggested that rather than let IdaHealth be amended — and perhaps weakened — on the Senate floor, a so-called "trailer" bill could be passed afterward to clean up any flaws.

"At least, this will force people to read the bill," said Hawkins, known in the Senate as a stickler for details. "If people are going to get up and vote against this, they'd better be prepared to explain why."

Hawkins, usually a staunch opponent of expanding state government, said health care might be an exception.

"We already spend a great deal of money on health care," he said. "I'm a believer in the State Insurance Fund, and that's a bit against my normal philosophy too."

The State Insurance Fund is Idaho's largest provider of workers' compensation insurance. Under IdaHealth, the fund's manager would become the executive director of the plan.

State Senate protects portions of Henry's Fork Basin

BOISE (AP) — The state Senate has overwhelmingly approved legislation protecting portions of eastern Idaho's Henry's Fork Basin of the Snake River...

group gets greedy." But even supporters of the protective legislation acknowledged it would be modified before it could win approval in the House...

precludes any legitimate consideration of the projects, which could add to the tax base of one of the poorest areas of the state. The plan, Republican Stan Hawkins of Ucon said, "seems to say every project is an environmental disaster and that's not true..."

last year. Only 10 Republicans opposed the Henry's Fork proposal, most because of controversy over the pending hydro-dropper proposals. Hawkins maintained the projects could actually improve the environment rather than harm it...

accept some state protective scheme because without it, key parts of the basin could be designated as part of the federal Wild and Scenic Rivers system and be subject to even more restrictions.

Environment and Resources Chairman Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, said. Noh warned that the modifications being considered by critics of the plan appeared to provide special opportunities to a select few people and would only trigger demands from other potential developers for the same treatment.

IPC asks for 9% cut in electricity rates

BOISE — Idaho Power Co. has asked state utility regulators to cut by 9 percent the rate it pays for electricity it must buy from independent power producers.

The request to the Idaho Public Utilities Commission would only affect future contracts.

It has been 15 months since the PUC last ruled on so-called avoided-cost rates. They are set by calculating how much money a small power producer saves the utility by allowing it to delay the construction of new power plants.

Commission procedure allows Idaho Power's avoided-cost rates to be adjusted when the company acquires a specified amount of new resources.

Court finds against firm for fraud

BOISE — A court judgment was handed down against an Irvine, Calif. company for allegedly defrauding Idahoans in oil and gasoline investments.

Fourth District Judge Robert Rowett of Boise entered the judgment against Midwest Mineral Properties, Inc., NEBCO, Jerold Nabridge, Brett Nabridge and Stephen Bederson. The five were accused of offering investment interests in oil and gas wells and selling securities in Idaho without a license.

They also reportedly used fictitious names; Idaho investors lost more than $100,000 in the scheme, state Finance Director Belton Patty said.

Union chief: INEL laundry bills soil jobs

IDAHO FALLS — A labor union leader contends an Idaho National Engineering Laboratory contractor is ripping off the federal government by charging too much to wash contaminated laundry at the site.

And the high laundry bills of EG&G Idaho Inc. could cost some INEL workers their jobs, the local Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union president says.

"When EG&G rips off the government, and at excessive cost, something has to be done to correct the situation, but not at the expense of long-term workers at the INEL laundry," OCAW local President Duane Allen said in a letter to Augustine Pittolo, U.S. Department of Energy manager for Idaho.

Bill makes breath test standard issue

BOISE — Some convicted drunken drivers would have to blow into a breath analyzer before they could get behind the wheel if a bill introduced in the House on Monday becomes law.

The measure's sponsor, Rep. James "Doc" Lucas, R-Moscow, wants judges to have the discretion to order the installation of a breath analyzer attached to a car's ignition as an alternative to jail time.

"I was looking for a means to keeping alcoholics from driving that was a little cheaper than throwing them in prison," Lucas said.

Superintendents split on funding teacher salaries

BOISE (AP) — Some Idaho school superintendents disagree over the merits of pending legislation that would set a statewide salary schedule for teachers and be funded directly by the state.

Two superintendents testifying before the House Education Committee on Tuesday opposed the change, but Philip Homer of Blaine, County supported it.

"It would give my district more money," Homer said. "And it would be a break for the property owners across the state."

Bart Simmons of Grace and Chris

Mattocks of the Madison County District opposed the measure, raising the possibility it could lead to a statewide teacher strike.

"It could require the Legislature to enter into bargaining with the Idaho Education Association over salary levels," said Mattocks.

He said there would be no limits on how high salaries could go. "Let local boards decide what they want," he said.

Education Chairman Dick Davis, R-Redburg, said the panel "won't vote on the bill until a later meeting."

Chain-reaction crash tangles Interstate 15

POCATELLO (AP) — As many as 50 vehicles slid off the highway or were involved in a chain-reaction crash on an icy stretch of Interstate 15 over Malad Pass Monday evening.

Twenty-four people were injured, Idaho State Police said.

The accidents started about 7:30 p.m. and forced closure of north-bound lanes, where most of the accidents occurred, for about two hours on a 15-mile section of the highway about 25 miles north of the Utah Line, said Camille Severe, an Idaho State Police dispatcher.

Harry Sherman, an Oneida County ambulance driver, said the road was "like a sheet of glass." A motor-trailer rig had jack-knifed, forcing some motorists off the freeway, he said.

Two or three vehicles were totally destroyed.

"I saw so many cars and so many people who needed help," Sherman said. "It could have been a lot worse."

Twelve people were taken to Bannock Regional Medical Center in Pocatello.

Five were admitted and the others were treated and released.

Julie Baer, 20, of Provo, Utah, was the most seriously injured. She was flown by Life Flight helicopter to Bannock Regional Medical Center, where she was in critical condition Tuesday with head injuries.

Seven people were taken to Pocatello Regional Medical Center. Six were treated and released and one remained hospitalized Tuesday.

All five people taken to Oneida County Hospital in Malad were treated and released Monday night.

Dave Hayball, 22, of Boring, Ore., returning Ricks College in Redburg from a weekend visit to Provo, Utah, was among the people who tried to get oncoming traffic to slow down.

He saw five to seven cars slam into each other.

Buyers Guide: This May Be The Last Chance To Purchase Annuities, But Use Caution

What Is An Annuity?

In brief, an annuity is a contract between you and an insurance company. First, you invest a certain amount of money to work for you. When you retire, or whenever you wish, you may choose to receive payments guaranteed for life or a specific period of time. Or, you may simply elect to receive a single sum.

How much and how often you contribute is up to you. And, like an IRA or Keogh plan, any earnings are tax-deferred until you make withdrawals or begin receiving payouts.

The important difference is: there's no annual investment ceiling on an annuity. So you can set aside as much tax-advantaged money as your retirement plans require.

We offer annuities up to 8.15% from several companies all rated A or A+

Food facts

Project encourages more healthy snacking

About 7 million children either take care of themselves after school or are watched by a sibling. Naturally, one of the favorite things to do is snack, which can be a problem, given the dangers inherent in the kitchen.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture advises parents to post "Kitchen Rules" to educate children on food and kitchen safety. Steer younger children toward cold snacks - always make sure there are things like fruits, yogurt, cookies or other snacks that don't require cooking. Older children who are able to read instructions should be taught to use a microwave safely and taught that foods can reach scalding temperatures quickly.

Other tips for kids:

- Don't leave refrigerated foods on the counter after you use them; put them back where you found them.

- Do not eat bread, cheese, fruits or vegetables that have even small moldy spots.

- Wash fruits and vegetables with water before eating them.
- If preparing packaged food, be sure to read all instructions carefully.

- If using the microwave, use potholders to remove the food after cooking. If the dish is covered with plastic wrap or wax paper, pull up one corner to let excess steam escape. Because steam can burn you, pull wrap off the food so steam escapes away from you.

If you hate airline food, just think how pilots must feel

Fly the pilot who has to live on airline and airport food. It's a serious problem, says the Flight Safety Foundation, which just published a paper titled "Eating Habits During Layover Affect Flight Performance."

It's not just the quality - or lack thereof - in airline food. It's the difficulty of obtaining "quality nutrition during layovers."

Many times, the paper notes, breaks in their schedules aren't long enough even to grab a bite to eat during the rest of the day. And vending machine items, as we all know, "are normally high in sugar, saturated fat, cholesterol and sodium, all of which are unhealthy nutritional elements when eaten in excess."

Additionally, pilots frequently are asked to show up for pre-dawn flights, a time when breakfast isn't yet available at airport restaurants or hotels where they are put up overnight.

The result may be serious, the paper notes: "Problems in obtaining proper nutrition during layovers contributed to subsequent flight fatigue."

The answer, the Flight Safety Foundation suggests, is for pilots to pack a small, portable cooler, especially on shorter flights when food is not served. "Such foods as a lean meat sandwich with lettuce and other vegetables, an apple, an orange, grapes and some crackers can be packed in the cooler."

U.S. safety commission recalls Micro-Dome Food Processor

The Micro-Dome Food Processor has been recalled by the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission. It seems the top of the container may blow off while in the microwave or after you take it out, causing burns. The container itself is prone to cracking, the safety commission says. It recommends that consumers not use the Micro-Dome Food Processor. Call 1-800-726-8330, 11 a.m.-7:30 p.m. weekdays, for information on rebates or other questions concerning the product.

Compiled from wire reports

It's hearty, classy and soul-satisfying, and American and European alike will find it perfectly warming it can be. It's Eastern European cuisine, and it's taking the world by storm.

Traditional Eastern European food translates into flavorful marinades, robust meats, pilaf, paprikash and delectable desserts, made lighter than ever to please 1990s tastes.

Try these wonderful dishes by assembling a special dinner from lamb, olive oil and tea.

After sampling how these ingredients adapt to Eastern European tradition, you'll want to keep the lines of communication open between these countries that have contributed these recipes to the world's cuisines.

RACK OF LAMB WITH PERSIAN TEA MARINADE

2 lean racks of fresh lamb (approximately 2 pounds, 8 ribs each), well-trimmed
Persian Tea Marinade (recipe follows)
In nonmetallic pan, place lamb racks, meat side down, and pour on tea marinade. Cover and marinate 4-6 hours, turning twice.

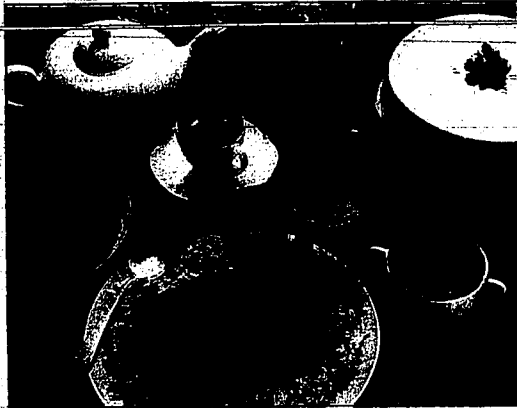

Remove lamb from marinade and place lamb, meat side up, on roasting rack in shallow-roasting pan. Roast in preheated 375-degree oven to desired degree of doneness; internal temperature of 140 degrees for 25-27 minutes per pound for rare; 150 degrees for 28-30 minutes per pound for medium; 160 degrees for 31-33 minutes per pound for medium-well.

Remove from oven, cover and let stand for 5 minutes. Slice and serve.

Makes 4 servings.

PERSIAN TEA MARINADE

1 cup boiling water

Eastern European cuisine is taking the world by storm with food such as, from left, Red Pepper Paprikash, Rack of Lamb with Persian Tea Marinade, Spicy Armenian Lamb Lentil Soup and Russian Cheesecake.

2 tea bags (use favorite brand of black tea)

1 cinnamon stick
2/3 cup extra virgin olive oil
2/3 cup finely minced onion
5 garlic cloves, minced
2 tablespoons chopped fresh mint or 2 teaspoons dried mint leaves, crushed
2 tablespoons fresh rosemary leaves or 2 teaspoons dried rosemary leaves
4 teaspoons lemon pepper
2 teaspoons salt

In medium bowl, combine water, tea bags and cinnamon stick. Allow to brew for 5 minutes. Remove tea bags and cinnamon stick. Stir in olive oil, onion, garlic, mint, rosemary, lemon pepper and salt.

Makes 2 cups.

WALNUT PILAF

2 tablespoons extra virgin olive oil
1/3 cup crushed vermicelli
2 cups chicken broth

1 cup long grain rice
1/2 teaspoon black pepper
1/2 cup toasted, coarsely chopped walnuts
2 teaspoons minced parsley
In heavy 2-quart saucepan with cover, heat olive oil. Brown vermicelli, stirring constantly. Add broth, rice, salt and pepper. Cover; bring to a boil, lower heat and simmer for 20 minutes or until liquid is absorbed. Fluff with fork, stir in walnuts and parsley. Serve.

Makes 4 servings.

RUSSIAN CHEESECAKE

Crust
2 cups (approximately 50 cookies) finely ground vanilla wafer cookie crumbs
1/3 cup toasted almonds, finely ground
1/4 cup powdered sugar
1/4 cup light olive oil
In medium bowl, blend vanilla cookie crumbs, almonds and powdered sugar; mixing well. Add olive oil and stir to moisten all ingredients. Using 9-inch spring-form pan, pour in crumb mixture and prepare crust by pressing crumbs in bottom and 1 inch up sides of pan. Bake in a preheated 325 degree oven for 10 minutes. Cool.

Filling
4 cups (32 ounces) low fat cottage cheese
1 cup (8 ounces) low fat vanilla yogurt
2 eggs
3 egg whites
3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
4 teaspoons lemon zest
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/2 cup powdered sugar
3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1/4 cup golden raisins
Topping Please see EUROPE/C8

Good planning, keen eye help lower grocery bill

By Felicia Gressetto
Knight-Ridder News Service

As the federal budget begins its convoluted way through Congress and the annual debate begins about the billions that make up our national spending, we thought we ought to look at financial affairs closer to home. The recession lingers on, and it's high time to get a grip on the grocery bill.

Spending on food and household products is no trivial matter in terms of dollars, but for many of us, it's a series of automatic-pilot decisions. What we buy and where we buy it have become an unthinking - and expensive - routine. By investing some time and thought and mustering the willingness to change, you can save money.

Grocery purchases are deceptive because they consist of a large number of small items, few with a "Look-at-that!" price tag. So choosing products to save a few cents here, a dollar there can add up to considerable savings. If you can save $7 a week, say, from an $80 bill, you'll trim your yearly spending from $4,160 to $3,796, a savings of $364.

If you can cut down on the amount of food you waste, you'll also save. Consider this statistic, reported by Dade County (Fla.) Extension home economist Anne Cooper: The average person throws away from 7 to 25 percent of his or her total food purchases. Using our $80 a week figure, throwing away 17 percent of it means $13.60 a week or $707.20 a year!

Unless you're a ruthlessly smart shopper who never gives in to impulse, always plans meals, makes purchases

Tried and true tips still work best

Knight-Ridder News Service

You won't find any amazing new solutions here, but these time-tested tips still work.

Plan menus, including snacks, so meal-fool doesn't get eaten ahead of time. Include leftovers, used in new ways, in the plan: Roast chicken shreds become a pasta sauce.

Keep a running list of staples such as flour and sugar as you run low on them.

Set up your list according to the layout of the store. Sort through your coupons at home and clip the ones you need to the list.

Don't shop when you're hungry, tired or in a hurry. (This leaves a very small window of opportunity for some of us.)

Please see TIPS/C8

Spending breakdown - C8

plan before you go to the store. Jot down a week's worth of menus or at least dinner ideas, then make your list. Add any staples you're running low on, such as sugar, milk and breakfast cereal. Know your prices. Check newspaper ads for specials. Go through your coupons, if you save them, and take the ones you'll need for this trip. Set a limit on what you'll spend. Leave the kids at home.

A few gives:

• People don't change grocery stores on prices alone. We look for a combination of location, service, product selection and atmosphere as well.

• Food companies spend millions in advertising, promotions and cents-off coupons to inspire and maintain brand loyalty. The only way to find out if a cheaper alternative is acceptable to you is to try it.

• Grocery shopping involves trade-offs among nutrition, money and time spent shopping and cooking. Don't forget the time and money it takes to travel to different stores vs. the convenience of one-stop shopping.

It's a decision each household must make, and it can change from week to week.

GETTING STARTED

For a money-saving program to be meaningful, you have to get a handle on your current spending on food. The first step for anyone: Examine what you buy. Save your receipts.

Packed with favorite recipes, Patty High says her family cookbook also serves as a sort of family history.

Highs create cookbook from family favorites

By Joan Bean
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS - "High Living - A Family Cookbook," compiled in 1990 by Patty and Tom High, is packed with recipes for favorite dishes from about 30 relatives.

This was not a commercial venture - the cookbook isn't for sale - but a labor of love.

"The book arose out of our mutual love of food, and the fact that the Highs are all such good cooks," Patty says. "Whenever they had family get-togethers, the food was always great."

So she says they decided to send letters to family members requesting their favorite recipes. They also asked Tom's mother and aunts for particular dishes.

Every recipe arrived with some sort of note, which they printed along with it in the cookbook. "It's been so much fun to go through the cookbook and look at these notes," Patty says.

The 60-page book which, except for the cover, was printed on the Highs' home computer, took about three months to do in their spare time. Everyone in the family received a copy.

One of the recipes Patty is especially enthusiastic about came from Tom's mother, Shirley. It's an old recipe for meat filled pastry, called "pasties."

"When I first married Tom, he just raved about his mother's pasties, and I had never heard of such a thing," Patty says.

One day, Patty decided to try to make them, using a recipe she found in a cookbook. When Tom came home that day, Patty was covered with flour and in tears.

"They were horrible things," she says. "They didn't look and taste like his mother's pasties."

Shortly thereafter Tom asked his mother to fix her recipe, and Patty has had more trouble making them.

Here is Shirley High's recipe for...

PASTIES

Makes 10-12
The filling:
1 pound ground beef
1/3 pound ground pork sausage
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
2 grated raw potatoes
1 small onion, grated or finely chopped
1 small green pepper, grated or finely chopped

Mix thoroughly.
The pastry dough:
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup shortening
About 1/4 cup cold water

Mix thoroughly. Add enough cold water to make a pliable dough. Take a small amount of dough and roll out into a circular shape. Cut circle, using a saucer as a model. Place large spoonful of meat mixture on half a circle. Flip over other half. Put a few drops of water on edge of dough and crimp edges together. Prick the top with a fork twice. Place on cookie tray.

Place in preheated 375 degree oven for 10 minutes. Cool.

It's currently the rage to bash Japanese Engagement

DEAR READERS: I am indebted to The New York Times (Jan. 29) for this thought-provoking verse: "When phone is out of order, and the roof has sprung a leak...
 "When the money in your pay-week...
 "When the baby has the colic, and your dog is full of fleas,
 "Don't complain to Washington...
 "When the crooks are running rampant, and the judges are too lax,
 "When letters from the IRS demand some extra tax,
 "When your son is quitting college, and your daughter's getting D's,
 "Just do what Iacocca does - and curse the Japanese.
 "When your taxes keep on rising, while your bankbook starts to sink,
 "When pollution clouds your city, so the air begins to stink,
 "When the temperature is falling, and your pipes are sure to freeze,

 Then it happened again with my manager at work. I was always attached to him and knew that he was to me, too. He told me that he was getting a divorce, so we got together, and it happened again.
 Will God forgive me for the second time? I really do want to serve the Lord more than anything else. I pray that God will give me the strength to resist temptation. I am not even going to tell you about the third guy. I don't even know his last name. It happened so fast and I am ashamed.

Class on tutoring disabled students set to start at CSI

TWIN FALLS - Tutoring the Disabled Student, a five-session course for professionals and non-professionals working with students, is set for 7 to 9 p.m. Thursdays, Feb. 20 to March 19, in Room 209 of the Shields Building at the College of Southern Idaho.
 The course is designed to develop an understanding of the learning disabled child and understand what tutors do when working with children in one-to-one settings on reading, spelling, language or math.

Angie L. Eames, an academic specialist with Lenker, Michener and Associates Inc. in Twin Falls, will be the instructor. She is certified in Idaho for elementary education, advanced exceptional child, consulting teacher and reading endorsement.
 This class is sponsored by the Scottish Rite Learning Clinic and CSI. The fee is $30. Interested persons can register in the Taylor Administration Building. For more information, call 733-9554, Ext. 270, or call Eames at 734-3914.

CSI Mini-Cassia Enrichment Program sponsors seminar on lifestyles changes

BURLEY - The College of Southern Idaho Mini-Cassia Enrichment Program is sponsoring an introduction to lifestyle changes seminar with Wendy Granada as the presenter.
 The seminar is planned for 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday at the Burley High School. Cost is $10 and students must pre-register at the CSI Mini-Cassia Center, 1458 Overland Ave.
 The seminar is designed to help students learn to balance their lives and learn to cope with stress. The goal is interesting, wellness and fun, and that weight is not the answer. Emphasis will be placed on the importance of activity in their lifestyles.
 Granada, director of the Racquetball Fitness Program, teaches classes for CSI and is a well-known authority on all aspects of fitness and nutrition.

Letters of thanks

CSI appreciates help in dealing with bomb threats

The College of Southern Idaho would like to thank the professional people who assisted us in the adversity presented by the recent bomb threats.
 Special mention should go to Paul Du Fresno, Twin Falls Public Safety director, and Jim Howells, Jim Kistler, Ron Garey, Brick Wells, Bob Hodge and Phil Clough from his department; and from the Mountain Home Air Force Base, Tim Green, Glenn Williams, Richard Mendenhall, Shawn Stallworth, David Carlin, Carl Schwesler, Bob Ward and Teddy, the German Shepherd; and from the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, Augustine Pinols, R.C. Green and D.A. Seely. We appreciate their prompt attention and concern to make our campus safe. While the situation was unpleasant for all of us, it is reassuring to know we have such a pool of caring professionals available.

The "Letter of Thanks" column will publish letters of up to 150 words from:
 • Civic organizations thanking contributors or supporters.
 • Individuals thanking public agencies and civic organizations for extraordinary services.
 If you would like to purchase a classified ad to express gratitude of a personal rather than public nature, call Times-News Customer Service at 733-0931.

IF FEBRUARY 19 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are independent, creative, dynamic, and stubborn. You are an original thinker, courageous leader rather than a follower.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Work methods require review, revision. Focus on unknown factors, delays, necessity for streamlining procedures. Get second wind - refuse to be discouraged by temporary confinement. VIRGO

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Attention revolves around impulsive passion, dedication, ability to "sway the crowd." You'll be told, "You have almost hypnotic effect on..." Cancer, Capricorn persons figure in scenario.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Consultation relates to travel, real estate, possible purchase of property. Many will be drawn to you, will seek your counsel on numerous areas, including intimate problems.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Success, independence, daring, imagination, creativity. Short trip is part of active scenario - relates to visits, relatives, concepts, imprint style, acceptance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Check Cancer message. Scenario features "mysterious circumstances." Close associate acts in bizarre manner. Finance involved. Intuitive intellect serves as reliable guide.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Cycle high for writing, advertising, investigating situations that could be bordering on fraud. Ask questions, give full play to intellectual curiosity. There will be reason for celebration.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Protect possessions. Check locks, keys. Scorpio individual is true ally but requires additional praise, responsibility. Focus on career, business, elevation of prestige. Toss aside red tape.

Some new flowers available in spring

Three of the most popular annual flowers in the Magic Valley are petunias, geraniums and alyssum. We grew several new varieties of each in the Rick's College Horticulture Research and Demonstration Garden in Rexburg last summer.

Super Cascade Lilac and Super Cascade Blue are two new extra large flowered petunias. Cascade Lilac is a very attractive pastel lavender shade. Cascade Blue is a dark violet blue.

Two new Asters with needle-like petals are Nova and Senstar. Asters do not bloom as early as other annuals like petunias and alyssum but are very attractive late in the summer. They also make very nice cut flowers.

Dwarf snapdragons are also increasing in popularity. Floral Showers Snapdragon grows only 4 inches high in a wide range of bright colors. Tahiti Snapdragon is a bright, uniform 6 inch mixture. Both series are available in separate colors as well as mixtures.

Some of these new flowers will be available as plants from nurseries and greenhouses later this spring, especially if you tell them now that you would like to be able to buy them. You can buy seeds of many of them in some of the larger flower seed catalogs such as Park, Burpee and Stokes.

My book Intermountain Flower Gardening includes descriptive and planting information on about 150 annual and perennial flowers which grow well in the Magic Valley. It also includes 14 lists of flowers for specific use situations, including cool and warm locations, shady, container, cutting, drying, reseeding, rock gardens, three different height categories, and perennials by blooming periods. For a copy send $11.95 (includes tax and handling) to Allen Wilson, P.O. Box 343, Rexburg, Idaho 83440.

Allen Wilson teaches horticulture at Rick's College. His column appears every Wednesday in The Times-News.

Adhesives help fix loose wallpaper seams

Q. I have a heavy vinyl wallpaper in my kitchen. It is coming loose in several places at the seams. I tried pasting the seams, but it didn't work. Any suggestions about removing the wallpaper? — A. Turde

A. Wallpaper seams that peel away from the wall are often very springy, and special methods will be needed to keep them flat.

Since most modern wall coverings are not paper, but vinyl, the best bet is to use a special vinyl adhesive. Adhesives designed for repairs are sold in toothpaste-size tubes at many wallpaper stores and home centers.

A small artist's brush is the best tool for applying the adhesive. Shake the tube, and squirt a little adhesive on a piece of cardboard, palette style, and dip the brush in it. Attempting to apply adhesive directly from the tube sometimes results in messy drips.

Be sure to read the directions on the adhesive tube before attempting any repairs. Elmer's Wallcovering Repair Adhesive is applied to both the covering and wall surfaces, allowed to dry before the surfaces are joined. Starfix, another adhesive, bonds while wet.

Use a wallpaper seam roller to press the seam flat.

If the seam still refuses to stay flat, it will have to be held down, giving the adhesive more time to cure. One way is to press a flat stick or board against the seam and hold it in place with a heavy chair or other weight of furniture. Wait about 30 minutes before removing the stick.

Q. We own a mountain vacation home and turn the heat off in winter. We've been able to successfully winterize most of our plumbing. However, we haven't hooked up our dishwasher and clothes washer because we are not sure how to winterize them. Can you help? — D. Dunning

A. Some plumbers use compressed air to blow water out of appliances and pipes that might be damaged by freeze-ups, and I consider this the safest system. Pumps on appliances of this type also might have to be drained or protected with nontoxic antifreeze. I'd hire an expert to do the winterizing, at least the first time, and watch carefully to pick up tips for handling your brand of appliances.

Q. We recently bought a new wood table and I wonder if I can brush polyurethane over the top to waterproof it. What do you think? — M. Bura

A. I don't recommend applying polyurethane to a new table. Although polyurethane is more water-resistant than most other furniture finishes, virtually all finishes used on modern furniture have good resistance to water. Polyurethane is also tricky to apply and might not be compatible with the existing finish. In short, you could ruin the table.

My advice is to apply a high-quality furniture wax and use coasters, pads or other protection under glasses, cups and dishes.

Q. Our group wants to give the impression of more space in our meeting room by putting mirror tiles on one wall. We'd like to use four-inch tiles, but can't find a source. Can you help? — A. Kane

A. I don't know a source of small mirror tiles — they are usually 12 by 12 inches. If any reader knows a source and lets me know, I'll pass it along. However, I think a better impression of more space could be had by using large mirrors, since small tiles would chip up the images.

Readers' questions and comments are welcome and should be sent to Gene Austin, The Philadelphia Inquirer, Box 8263, Philadelphia, Pa. 19101. Questions cannot be answered personally.

Pink Daddy is a large flowered light pastel pink with deeper pink veins. It is an attractive addition to the Daddy series of veined petunias.

Many new small flowered petunias are being introduced each year.

We trialed new varieties in the Primetime, Polo, Pearls and Target series. Four of the best were Primetime Light Pink Vein, Light Salmon Pearls, Polo Rose and Red Target. Alyssum is the very best edging flower for Eastern Idaho.

However, some of the new pastel mixtures are very attractive. The new Gofly Pastel Mix Alyssum is one of the best we have trialed. Easter Bonnet, Easter Basket and Pastel Carpet are very attractive. The new Basket Alyssum series has five colors including Red Basket, which is a unique deep rose red.

The Multibloom Geranium series has added a very attractive bridal pink color named Multibloom Appleblossom. The Multibloom series is a little dwarfier than most geraniums and produces more flowers. Finto Quick-silver is a new lavender pink shade which is very similar in color to Multibloom Lavender. Orange Appeal and Signal Orange are two truly orange geraniums which are very bright.

Tire device helps avoid accidents

Los Angeles Times

Tirechecks, valve caps that can self-inflate, can save drivers money, wear on their tires, and quite possibly, their lives.

be purchased from M & E Enterprises, P.O. Box 37, Pleasantville, N.Y. 10570.

According to National Highway Traffic Safety Administration statistics, low tire pressure is responsible for nearly 260,000 accidents annually nationwide, causing 28,000 injuries and 720 deaths. A recent report by the agency also estimates that low-pressure warning devices could save 40 million tires, "saving the consumer over $1,500,000,000 annually just in tire wear."

The valve caps, which fit all normal tire valve stems on cars, vans, motorcycles, pickup trucks and some RVs, are easy to install and work automatically on any tire that uses 20 to 42 pounds of air pressure. They fit imported and domestic models.

To use, first make sure your tires are inflated to the proper pressure. Then screw on the Tirecheck valve caps. A color indicator in the top of the valve cap will show bright green. When the tire has lost pressure, an orange indicator will pop up. After you fill the tire, you can reinstall the Tirecheck, making sure that the seal ring is in place before screwing the cap back on.

SPICY ARMENIAN LAMB LENTIL SOUP

6 cups stock

1 1/2 cups lentils, rinsed, discarding unusable lentils
3 tablespoons olive oil
1 pound lean fresh lamb boristess stew meat, well-trimmed and cut into 1/2-inch cubes
1 cup chopped onion
2 garlic cloves, minced
2 teaspoons paprika
2 teaspoons salt
1 1/2 teaspoons ground cumin
1 teaspoon black pepper
1 teaspoon ground coriander
1 teaspoon dried tarragon leaves, crushed
5-10 drops red pepper sauce
1/3 cup finely chopped dried apricots
2/3 cup chopped plum tomatoes

2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
2 tablespoons chopped parsley or mint garnish
In 4-quart pan, combine stock and lentils. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer for 1 hour, stirring occasionally.
In large skillet, heat olive oil and brown lamb, onion and garlic, stirring for approximately 6-8 minutes. To partially cooked lentils, add lamb-onion-mixture, paprika, salt, cumin, black pepper, coriander, tarragon, red pepper sauce and apricots.
Simmer for 30 minutes or until lentils are tender. Stir in tomatoes and lemon juice. Garnish with parsley or mint and serve.

Makes 8 cups.
RED PEPPER PAPRIKASH
3 tablespoons extra virgin olive oil
2 medium red onions, cut into crescents
6 red bell peppers, sliced thin
2 garlic cloves, minced
1 1/2 teaspoons sweet Hungarian paprika

1/2 cup chicken broth
1/2 cup chopped plum tomatoes
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon black pepper
1/2 cup red wine vinegar
3 tablespoons sugar
In large skillet, heat olive oil. Sauté red onions until tender.

approximately 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add bell peppers, garlic and paprika; Sauté for 8-10 minutes, stirring occasionally.
Add broth, tomatoes, salt and pepper; simmer for 5 minutes. Remove from heat, stir in vinegar and sugar. Serve warm or cold. Makes 4 servings.

for a few weeks, preferably a month, then sit down and add them up.
If you can remember any of the things you didn't plan to buy but picked up anyway, highlight them; impulse purchases add up.
Next, identify your household needs and what you're spending on them. It's helpful to separate edible from non-edible purchases and raw materials (i.e. food you prepare) from convenience foods (frozen dinners and mixes). Paper goods and cleaning products can tack dollars onto supermarket bill and offer an opportunity for big savings.
Think of this master list as your blueprint for change. With it in hand, you can compare prices at your regular store and other grocery stores, membership wholesale warehouses and discounters.
How much looking around you do will depend on your time and patience.
Once you have jotted down the products you buy over and over (in my house, they include apple juice, oat-cereal, cereals, pasta and vegetables), take the list to the store and re-examine the brands you routinely choose. There probably will be some surprises.
For instance, national brand apple juice is about the same as store brand, but store brand oat-cereal costs about half as much as the familiar yellow box. The same is true for store-brand pasta.

NON-FOOD BRANDS
When I priced some of my usual brands at different stores, I found big potential savings on cleaning products, soaps and paper goods. For my household, it would pay to make a once-a-month trip elsewhere to stock up on nonperishable items. (Cheaper still would be homemade alternatives. Old favorites such as vinegar, washing soda and bicarbonate are 75 percent less than commercial products.)

This comparison shopping process also made me rethink some habits. When I figured the per bag price of zipper-lock plastic bags, which I use often-to-store leftovers, I was shocked to reach for the Tupperware instead. Ditto for paper towels and paper

Who spends what on food shopping

Knight-Ridder News Service

Take a look at these federal government figures from November, 1991. They assume food for all meals and snacks is purchased at the store and fixed at home; the numbers are per week and don't include nonfood products.
• A family of 2 (ages 20 to 50) spends from $48.60 (thrifty) to $93.80 (liberal).
• An older family of 2 (ages 51 and up) spends from $46.10 (thrifty) to $86.70 (liberal).
• A family of 4 (adults 20 to 50 and kids under 5) spends from $70.90 (thrifty) to $132.60 (liberal).
• A family of 4 (adults 20 to 50 and kids 6 to 11) spends $81.10 (thrifty) to $156.20 (liberal).
• Eating in or eating out: It's important to consider the grand total you spend on eating - at home and in restaurants. Figures from 1989 (the latest we found) showed that 45 percent of our eating was done in restaurants; much of that is at fast food or counter service places.

napkins. All three options are more ecologically sound as well as cheaper in the long run.
I also spend a lot of money on impulse buys, partly reminding myself to try new things as part of my job, but mainly because a few dollars here and there doesn't seem like a splurge. (And while I don't mind planning dinners a few days at a time, a week seems too structured or rigid somehow.) I keep reminding myself that 55-a-week-in-what-else-buys is $260 a year I could spend on other things, like eating in nice restaurants.

Tips

- Learn the regular prices of items you buy often so you can recognize a bargain when you see one. Be alert for unadvertised store specials and stock up.
- Check Sunday newspaper inserts for discount stores' specials on paper products, cleaning products and soaps and shampoos. If your regular brand is on sale and you stock up, it may be worth the time and travel.
- Read labels. (It's tedious, but once you've done it and chosen your brands, weekly shopping becomes easier.)
- Shop without your children. They're expensive little distractions.
- Avoid impulse buys and resist the "I might need it soon" buys. This is an area of big potential savings.
- Buy serving sizes that make sense for your household. A big box isn't a bargain if you won't use it.
- Clip and use coupons for products you usually buy. If you patronize a store that offers double coupons, the savings can add up.
- Keep track of your spending, including lunches and dinners out. Make a family commitment to eat out one less time a week and save the money for a vacation or household splurge instead.
- Check out store brands and generics. If you're not sure your family will eat them, sneak it into the regular box and see.
- Look high and low on the shelves. That's where the bargains and staples are; eye-level shelves are reserved for premium-priced products.
- Make sure convenience foods are worth the cost to you.
- Don't buy more than you'll cook and eat. (I tend to buy things, thinking I'll make them in a day or so, then I'm too tired and they go to waste.) Check the crisper drawer. Inspect the cabinet shelves. Don't let food go bad.
- Use frozen food sooner rather than later.
- Go straight home from the store to put perishables away.
- Consider packaging when choosing products and buy refills when you can. They're usually cheaper.

BEEF KEBABS WAJKKI
Serves 4-6
2 pounds sirloin steak, 2 inches thick (round steak may be used)
1 1/2 teaspoons dry mustard
1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
1/4 teaspoon ground pepper
Garlic clove minced

6 tablespoons soy sauce
3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
3 tablespoons oil
8 cherry tomatoes
8 wedges green pepper
8 whole fresh mushrooms
Slice steak into strips 1/2 inch thick. Place in shallow pan or dish. Combine mustard, ginger, pepper and garlic. Mix the soy sauce, lemon juice and oil. Add to seasonings. Mix well. Pour marinade over steak and allow to marinate for at least 4 hours. High lets it marinate overnight. Thread steak strips on metal skewers, alternating tomatoes, peppers and mushrooms between each piece - or as you like it. Brush with the marinade.
High says she varies the vegetables and uses whatever might be put on a kebab; such as onion slices and pineapple.
Although the Highs always cook these on the barbecue grill, the recipe calls for placing kebabs under the broiler - 4 inches from heat, for 3 minutes on first side. Turn and brush with marinade and broil 3-4

1 full teaspoon baking powder
1 cup chopped nuts
1 teaspoon vanilla
Grease and flour angel cake pan. Add eggs one at a time. Mix in remaining ingredients. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour.
High says although she has not baked this cake herself, she has tasted it. "It's like a brownie cake; the mashed potatoes make it moist," she says. "It's wonderful."

Legion needs help with new lighting

TWIN FALLS — In order to host The Northwest Regional Baseball Tournament at Frontier Field Aug. 19-23, the Twin Falls American Legion Post 7 needs to upgrade the 20-year-old lighting at the ballpark.

The Legion will assemble and install the new lights, poles, cross arms, wiring, breaker boxes and switches, much of which a state inspector deemed in need of replacement. A work party, for which 50 volunteers are needed, will tackle the task at 9 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 29.

The old lights will be used by the City of Twin Falls to improve conditions at other softball and baseball fields.

The installation will be under the direction of Don Smith Electric, Twin Falls and Jack Hattenbach Electric of Jerome.

The project will cost approximately $35,000 for materials alone. Donors so far include Post 7 ($18,000), City of Twin Falls ($4,000 with a promise of $1,000 more), College of Southern Idaho ($5,000), American Legion Booster Club ($4,000) and Platt Electric Supply ($1,000).

Anyone interested in joining the work party or contributing toward the remaining $2,000 or so yet to be raised should contact Roland Gardner at 734-3612 or Roy Sletten at 733-2587.

A2: Tigers, Bobeats advance

By Mike Maller
Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — The Jerome Tigers played basketball Tuesday like the U.S. Olympic team plays hockey — pumped full of emotion and not afraid to bump into somebody once in a while.

With the charge especially coming from Kevin Mower and Richie Bishop off the bench, the Tigers passed Wood River in the fourth quarter for a 66-62 win at College of Southern Idaho.

The final set up a Jerome-Burley match in the winner's bracket of tonight's second round of the Class A-2 District 4 boys' basketball tournament. Wood River takes on Buhl in a loser-out contest at 6:15 p.m. to open the action.

Burley started the tournament Tuesday by playing near its peak and crushing Buhl 69-38.

Mower was passed over for a starting assignment by Coach Jim Stauffer in favor of the taller Buddy Bryant, giving Jerome a better matchup with the Wolverines.

"I told him I needed him to come off the bench and play hard for us," Stauffer said about Mower.

The 6-1 senior netted 14 points; mostly on muscle in the paint. Bart Hamilton led the Tigers' power game with 15 points and 13 rebounds. High-scoring guard Bret Waller was held to a pair of free throws for three quarters, but fired in nine fourth-period points to complete Jerome's comeback from an early deficit.

Bishop, at 5-11, provided seven points working inside and a pair of blocked shots on defense, before getting ejected along with Wood River's Chris Aldinger near the end of the third quarter.

Brian Homer's silky jumper connected six times from 3-point land on the way to 26 points to lead Wood River. The Wolverines sorely missed point guard David Morgan, limping on a sprained ankle. Travis Williams provided a boost with his drives on the basket that shredded the Jerome defense for 24 tallies.

"Losing David Morgan hurt them. That's too bad when a kid has worked so hard," Stauffer said. "The other kids stepped forward and took the challenge."

The Tigers played catchup since Homer popped a 3-pointer from the corner five seconds into the game. A running bank shot for Williams gave Wood River its biggest lead, 23-11, with a minute left in the first period.

The Wolverines held varying leads until Mower and Walter hit back-to-back shots for a 53-52 Jerome edge with 5:55 left in the game.

Bruins top Highland in Class A-1

By Larry Hovey
Times-News writer

POCATELLO — Rand Stover provided a big push early and eight-for-11 free throw shooting in the last 65 seconds wound it up as Twin Falls beat Highland 56-45 in a Region III Class A-1 tournament opener Tuesday.

The victory left Twin Falls fans wondering when the last time the Bruins won on this floor (probably 1985) and even the last time it won a tournament game in Pocatello (probably 1985).

"Anyway, it means the Bruins get to go back to Pocatello at 7:30 p.m. Thursday to play Coach Ron Kress' Indians, who beat Minico 61-45 Tuesday night. A win there would leave the Bruins almost assured of going to state. And, it would mean that any tournament game after that would be played on the Bruins' home court.

Stover, hotter than a two-dollar pistol the last two weeks, hit his first four attempts from the field and Paul Ramussen and Eddie Frenkle tang in with three pointers as the Bruins, battled to a 17-15 lead in the first quarter.

El Astorguina and Andy Pierce shoved the Bruins in front by 33-24 at intermission — and then came the Bruins nemesis, the third quarter.

Highland cut the deficit to 37-33 over the first five minutes but then blanked out the

U.S. hockey team continues drive

The Associated Press

ALBERTVILLE, France — Feisty and unbeaten, Italian playboy Alberto Tomba on the mountain and the "ugly American" hockey team on the ice reign supreme.

The battling Americans whipped France 4-1 Tuesday night, brawling even after the game, to go into the semifinals against the winner of Wednesday's game between the Unified Team and Finland.

Boasting the best record in the Winter Games, 5-0-1, the U.S. team is within one victory of its first medal since the miracle gold of 1980.

Tomba looked as tough on the slopes of Val d'Isere as the U.S. team was in Meribel. U.S. speedskaters Dan Jansen and Eric Flaim, though, merely looked weak in the 1,000-meter, their final chance at medals in these Games. Germany's Olaf Zinke won the gold, giving his country its 23rd medal — tops in the Games and six shy of the record set by the Soviet Union in 1988.

The latest U.S. hockey victory, though not as violent as Monday's brawl with Sweden, was punctuated by a punch-out at the end between America's Guy Gosselin and France's Antoine Richer.

Sticks and fists flew as the benches cleared after the final horn, but order was restored after a few minutes.

The "ugly American" tag already is being dumped on U.S. players, to which they take deep umbrage. They prefer to think of themselves as dedicated young gentlemen with a knack for body checks. "The bottom line is we win and people can say whatever they want," U.S. captain Clark Donatelli said. "I don't think we're a dirty team. We're a hard-working team."

Some French players didn't quite agree. "They didn't play dirty during the game except for five minutes at the end," Philippe Bozon said. "They have to play physical to be successful. I don't think they're going to stop now."

Art Berglund, the U.S. personnel director, said he doubted people "will start thinking of us as ugly Americans. They're shaking hands two minutes later.

U.S. women show promise in skating, though Japan's Ito may steal the show

The Associated Press

ALBERTVILLE, France — Figuring the Olympic women's figure skating competition is as simple as 1-2-3 — Kristi Yamaguchi, Tonya Harding and Nancy Kerrigan.

The trio of young Americans accomplished the first-ever single country gold-silver-bronze sweep at the world championship last year, making the United States a full-sized favorite in the Winter Games competition, which begins Wednesday.

Unless, of course, you prefer a compact model from Japan.

Midori Ito; less than 100 pounds including her skates, is the wild card that could upset the U.S. plan. She is an acrobat on ice, the first woman to solve the mystery of the triple Axel, that difficult 3-1/2 revolution jump that never fails to impress even the most dour judge. Ito and the Americans own center stage in CBS' taped coverage of the Games Wednesday night. Also scheduled to be shown are the women's giant slalom and highlights of the hockey quarterfinal games matching Sweden against Czechoslovakia and the Unified Team against Finland.

In the morning, the short-track speeded the women's GS and now-track speed skating action live. Also on Wednesday's Olympic schedule is the women's 15-kilometer biathlon and curling, a demonstration sport at these Games.

Ito soared at the Calgary Olympics and nearly stole the show, earning standing ovations for a breathtaking free skating program and finishing fifth behind gold medalist Katarina Witt.

A year later, at age 20, she was world champion. But the rigors of her routines took their toll, resulting in two broken legs and repeated sore ankles. Ito's troubles were magnified at the 1991 world competition when she crashed into and over the boards at Munich and finished fourth behind Yamaguchi and the other Americans.

After that, Ito retreated to Japan for intensive, private training. Last fall, she ventured out briefly, beating Yamaguchi to win the LaTique Trophy on the same Olympic ice on which she skates on Wednesday. There she will unveil an all new original program which earned her five perfect marks of 6.0 in last month's All-Japan championships.

Ito still has Yamaguchi on her mind. "She is very lovely," the Japanese skater said. "She always practices hard and steadily. She doesn't make errors."

"But I don't want to be defeated by her."

Speedskating means party in Dutch

ALBERTVILLE, France (AP) — Most wear orange clothes. A lot sport orange wigs and face paint. And there's one guy who comes dressed as a cow.

So the Dutch fans at speedskating, the leading party animals of the Winter Olympics.

In the Netherlands, speedskating is a national passion, and these fans let their juices flow as skater after skater spins around the Olympic oval in an abjectly methodical fashion most Americans find as numbing as watching water freeze.

For the Dutch fans, that equals ice, as in "on the rocks," and they wouldn't be anywhere else.

"It is very, very, very exciting," said Andrië's Rienks as she sat in the frigid stands. "In Holland you cannot get tickets for speedskating. It is always sold out. It's packed for every event."

In Albertville, the Dutch have filled the stands, outnumbering the other nationalities at every event. At $13 a ticket, they think speedskating is the bargain of the Winter Games. It's also a big party.

Long after the Blair Bunch packed up and left, the outnumbered Norwegians finished their celebration, the Germans scooped up the medals and the Japanese took down their banners, the Dutch were still at it, even though other countries were winning most of the medals.

"I have been to every event and loved every one," said Anita deJong. "I would have loved it more if Holland had won more medals, but I admire a good skater even if he isn't Dutch." Indeed, deJong and her countrymen cheered for many of the other skaters, especially the Americans.

"This is the best," said the 22-year-old deJong. "The atmosphere at speedskating is always so special. The people all around you are excited and having fun. They sure were."

DeJong, dressed in a bright orange insulated jump suit, like many others in the crowd, had a small sign suspended above her head: "HUP."

"It is something you yell, not just for the Dutch, but for everybody," she said. "It means 'Go'."

Yelling along with her were Dutch with their hair sprayed orange, Dutch with bright orange wigs, orange hats, orange coats and orange face paint. The man dressed as a cow, complete with horns and long tail, said his costume was symbolic of the Dutch dairy industry.

"We Dutch like to show our color and our flag," said Wyb Praamstri, who sold orange flags, hats and scarves for $10 each outside the track. Business was brisk.

The Dutch also brought orange flashing lights and orange flares to the track, and used both. They chanted and cheered as the skaters went around and around, and when the track was cleared by the Zambonies, they sang together and drank from hip flasks.

"In Holland everyone skates and everyone is a fan," said Jan Slagier. "We always go and we always make a party where we go. What could be better?"

U.S. Skiing official wants basketball players to learn ski jumping

LA LECHERE, France (AP) — Too short and skinny to make the big time in basketball? Then trade your Air Jordans for a pair of fiberglass boards and experience the real meaning of "hang time."

The U.S. ski jumping team wants you.

If Herschel Walker can make the transition from football to bobsledding, then why can't a basketball player make the switch from scoring on defenders to soaring over mountains?

That's the theory espoused by Howard Peterson, executive director of U.S. Skiing, the national governing body for the sport.

"When I think of the model for a ski jumper," he said, "it's someone with an amazing vertical jump who is fairly small, doesn't weigh a lot, and doesn't have much of a basketball future. A ski jumper needs explosive timing, coupled with microsecond strength. A good ballplayer has that."

Peterson said he wants to open up new opportunities in a sport which now has been practiced mainly in the upper Midwest and New England.

"We're not trying to force people on a sport or disregard our traditional roots," he said. "But we can always use more top athletes. Ski jumping in the U.S. simply is not popular in many places. We would like to crack open a new approach."

Peterson called it "a creative opportunity."

"It reaches out to some individuals who otherwise might miss the Olympic experience," he said.

"We're going to put a lot of effort into it. We believe it's worth a real legitimate effort."

The effort will take the shape of a $12 million ski jumping complex near Salt Lake City, Utah.

"We are designing it to accommodate every level of jumper, from little kids on up," Peterson said. "We'll explain how this can be another sport that can be a fairly fast track into the Olympics."

The Salt Lake City program will emphasize the potential financial benefits of the sport.

"If you do well, you can buy a car, you can buy your parents a house," Peterson said. "We don't think someone is going to become a ski jumper just for the money, but we are reward-driven society."

The United States has won only one ski jumping medal in Olympic history, a bronze by Anders Haugen in 1924. The best U.S. jumper at the Albertville Games is Jim Holland of Norwich, Vt., who finished 12th in the large hill competition and 13th in the normal hill.

Peterson hopes to attract lower-income, urban youth to the sport, a strategy he said is already starting to pay off in the U.S. luge program.

"We're so lily white, especially in the Winter Games," he said. "We're missing a huge portion of the population. I think that's a tragedy. We have no role models other than those from a white European background. I think it would be refreshing to be more heterogeneous."

The approach is not limited to ski jumping. The U.S. team handball program has concentrated its recruiting on basketball players.

Peterson said long-distance runners and triathletes are being targeted by the U.S. cross-country ski team.

The strategy has the approval of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

"One of our ultimate goals," said USOC Executive Director Harvey Schiller, "is to expose as many people as possible to the various disciplines like jumping, luge and bobsled."

you know what I mean?" Well, kind of, Bozon said.

"I think the players were looking at each other, (during the handshakes), wondering if fights were going to start again," he said.

Ted Donato scored twice in a 3:16 span of the second period, breaking open a 1-1 game, silencing the home-crowd cheers of "Allez le France!" (Go France!) and eliciting chants of "U-S-A! U-S-A!" from a vocal minority of U.S. fans. Donato also assisted on Marty McInnis' third-period goal.

Roy LeBlanc made 35 saves. He has allowed only eight goals while playing all 360 minutes of the tournament.

Greg Brown, who suffered a concussion, a broken nose and facial lacerations against Sweden, got out of the hospital Tuesday morning but didn't play against France. He might be available Friday.

As well as the U.S. team play, so Tomba skied in his inimitable dashing style.

Black-jawed, dark-eyed and dreaming of Hollywood, Tomba charged into Jean Claude Killy's hometown in the French Alps and claimed it for Italy.

"Now you can call it Tombaville," the Italian Alps extended northward Tuesday as Tomba careened ferociously down the giant slalom, like a Ferrari tearing through the turns at Monza, for his third gold in two Winter Olympics just after his training partner, Deborah Campagnoni, grabbed the gold in the women's super giant slalom.

"It's a great day for Italy," said Campagnoni, who came from home surgery before the 1988 Calgary Games and intestinal surgery in 1990.

"We couldn't have done any better," said Tomba, who fancies himself a Ramboesque actor in Sylvester Stallone movies or maybe even a comic of the silver screen.

Stallone met him in Aspen and promised to do lunch in Italy. If Clint Eastwood decides to make spaghetti Westerns again, with a gunslinging skier riding the Rockies, which she describes as "sometimes dramatic, sometimes soft and romantic." Still, she knows it poses a formidable Olympic challenge.

"I have seven triple jumps in my program and I know how difficult that is, so I have a lot of respect for her," she said.

There is no triple Axel in Yamaguchi's routine; Harding has

Skating

Yamaguchi shook off the Laliq loss and won the U.S. Nationals last month with her own freestyle repertoire of spirals and jumps, which she describes as "sometimes dramatic, sometimes soft and romantic." Still, she knows it poses a formidable Olympic challenge.

"I will be doing the triple Axel," she promised, "double toe loop."

The gauntlet is down. Let the skating begin.

In the hockey tournament, Sweden had a day off Tuesday to contemplate its furious three-goal, third-period comeback against the Americans that produced a 3-3 tie

Monday night and clinched second place in Group A.

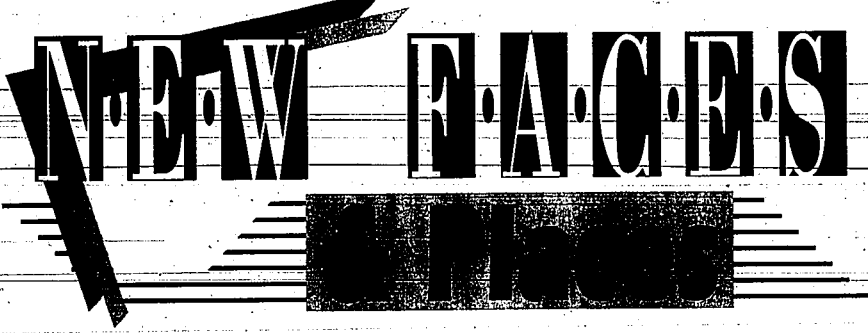

That meant Sweden drew Czechoslovakia instead of the perennial gold medal team from the former Soviet Union in the first medal round game, Finland dropped to third place in Group A as a result of the U.S. Sweden tie and faced the Unified Team in the other quarterfinal.

Favored Carole Merle of France, upset by Deborah Campagnoni of Italy in Tuesday's super giant slalom, gets another chance in the giant slalom.

Merle is the season leader in World Cup GS races while Campagnoni has finished second four times. Also set for the race is defending Olympic champion Vreni Schneider of Switzerland.

Three American skiers — Diann Roffe, Eva Twardokens and Julie Parisien have finished in the top six of a World Cup GS at least once this season, making the U.S. a legitimate medal threat in the Olympic race.

Twardokens finished eighth in the Super-G while Parisien was disqualified for starting too soon and Roffe fell.

Bucks beat Cavaliers, 128-116

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Moses Malone scored 30 points and Jay Humphries sparked a third-quarter run Tuesday night as the Milwaukee Bucks beat the Cleveland Cavaliers 128-116.

Dale Ellis added 26 for Milwaukee as the Bucks won their sixth straight home game and broke a two-game losing streak.

Cleveland, coming off a big win at Chicago a night earlier and appearing listless, got 19 points from Brad Daugherty and 18 from John Battle.

The Bucks shot 73 percent (16 for 22) to outscore the Cavs 33-24 in the third quarter behind 11 points from Humphries. Milwaukee built a 12-point lead as each of the team's five starters had two baskets in a 22-11 run.

Knicks 110, Kings 97

NEW YORK (AP) — Patrick Ewing scored 34 points and Mark Jackson came within one rebound of a triple-double, leading New York over Sacramento 110-97 Tuesday.

The Knicks have won 10 of their last 13 games and five straight over Sacramento. They moved into a four game lead over the Boston Celtics in the Atlantic Division.

The Kings, who have not won at Madison Square Garden since 1981, lost their fifth straight road game and third in a row overall.

Jackson scored 20 points, had 15 assists and nine rebounds. Kiki Vandeweghe added 17 points. Wayman Tisdale and Spud Webb led Sacramento with 18 each.

Pistons 117, Magic 95

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) — The Detroit Pistons continued their domination over Orlando as Dennis Rodman had 18 points and 27 rebounds to lead the Pistons over the Magic.

The Pistons are 10-0 against the Magic since Orlando's entrance into the NBA, including 3-0 this season.

Rodman hit eight of 10 shots, including two 3-pointers. Orlando Woodridge had 21 points for the Pistons, who went eight games over .500 for only the second time this season.

Anthony Bonvicini had 17 points for the Magic, while Stanley Roberts added 14 points and 12 rebounds.

Bucks' Brkowski races Daugherty for ball.

76ers 94, Mavericks 90

DALLAS (AP) — Johnny Dawkins' three-point play with 1:21 remaining snapped a tie and led the Philadelphia 76ers to a 94-90 victory Tuesday night over poor-shooting Dallas, handing the Mavericks their 21st loss in 24 games.

Dawkins hit a layup and converted the ensuing free throw to give Philadelphia, which trailed by as many as 18 points in the first half, a 90-87 lead.

Charles Barkley, who led the 76ers with 28 points, converted a free throw with 34 seconds left and Dawkins added a free throw with 17.3 seconds remaining as Philadelphia snapped a three-game losing streak.

Terry Davis led Dallas, which made only three of 22 shots in the final period, with 17 points and 14 rebounds. The Mavericks' 11 points in the final period was their season-low for any quarter.

Mike Luzzolmi's 3-pointer with 3:7 seconds left pulled Dallas to 92-90, but Ron Anderson converted two free throws with 1:9 seconds left for the final margin.

Allison faults Daytona driving

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — There was a time when stock car drivers took pride in bumping, banging — and finishing.

Then there was Sunday's Daytona 500, which featured a 14-car wreck on lap 92 that knocked many of the top drivers out of the 200-lap race won by Davey Allison.

"We would bang each other pretty good, but there was a mutual respect out there, and the idea was to bring the cars home," recalled Allison's father Bobby, a three-time Daytona 500 winner. "The things that are happening now just don't seem right to me. These guys don't seem to respect each other. They either are making stupid mistakes and just being too aggressive."

Sunday's accident began suddenly, with two-time Daytona winner Bill Elliott trying to pass leader Sterling Marlin on the high side coming off the second turn and onto the 3,000-foot back straightaway of the 2.5-mile Daytona International Speedway oval.

Then, 1991 Daytona winner Ernie Ivan, made it three-wide at 190 mph, diving low on the banked track and the pileups began.

The initial reaction was that the incident was "just one of those deals."

"When you're running wide open and somebody gets somebody bottled up like that, you either have to go to the bottom, go to the top, or lift and get run over from behind," Ivan said. "It's just a hard situation. Nobody wants to be three-abreast, believe me."

So why were they? And why so early in the race? Good questions that are cryptically answered.

"I don't know how you can blame anyone; everyone was racing hard, trying to occupy the same space where there was only room for one car," Elliott said in one breath.

"Then he said, 'Ernie shouldn't have been digging the way he was digging down there. He wasn't going anywhere. He hadn't been that good all day long. He'd been decent, but ... I don't know. This is one of those things like, I mean, it's hard to point a finger at anyone, but ...'"

It should be noted that over the last two seasons Ivan has been in the center — some say the instigator — of a half-dozen big wrecks.

Cone receives arbitration record

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Mets right-hander David Cone was awarded a record $4.25 million in arbitration today just as Texas outfielder Ruben Sierra prepared to argue his case for a $5 million request.

Arbitrator Nicholas Zumas, who heard arguments for 5½ hours Monday, ruled that Cone's "figure" over the Mets' $3 million offer.

Cone was 14-14 with a 3.29 ERA in 1991 and made $2.35 million. His new salary tops the $3.35 million awarded in arbitration last winter to Pittsburgh Pirates right-hander Doug Drabek.

"We felt it would be a difficult case to win after the recent contracts awarded to similar pitchers, specifically when comparing it to Greg Maddux's contract," Mets general manager Al Hirsch said. "We're delighted that arbitration season is over and we're ready to start playing baseball again. We hope David has a great season."

Cone's agents, Stephen Fehr and Richard Moss, compared the client to Chuck Finley of California, who will average $4.625 million in a four-year deal; and to the Chicago Cubs' Maddux, who signed for $4.2 million.

Sierra hit .307 last season with 25 homers and 116 RBIs and made $2.65 million. He was offered $3.8 million by Texas and the sides were set to argue this afternoon before arbitration William Rentfro.

"The Rangers have indicated they're not interested in negotiating on a one-year contract," said Chuck Berry, one of the outfielder's agents. "They have the right to go to arbitration. We have the right to go the free agent route at the end of the season or to request a trade, and I think that's the direction we're going to take."

Berry had proposed a $27.5 million, five-year deal; but withdrew the proposal Friday. Rangers president Tom Schieffer has refused to consider guaranteeing a deal of that length, although general manager Tom Greve was said to be in favor of accepting the offer.

Division I team reaches 0-26 for season

PRAIRIE VIEW, Texas (AP) — Like one of those hapless teams that always lose to the Harlem Globetrotters, Prairie View is winless this season.

The Panthers, playing a Division I schedule without scholarships, are 0-26, one game away from tying the record for most losses in a season.

The Southwest Athletic Conference team could match the mark for futility on Saturday in its season finale against Texas Southern. It's a sorry situation that coach Elwood Plummer never anticipated when he returned to Prairie View two years ago.

"It will be difficult to stay in Division I if we don't get scholarships in the next three or four years," Plummer said. "With everybody in the SWAC giving scholarships and we don't have any, that's difficult."

It's also an understatement.

Plummer, who directed winning teams at Prairie View from 1973-79, returned for his second term in April 1990. One month later, the school discontinued the basketball program and all other athletics except track and field.

Basketball was reinstated in July 1990, but the scholarship program was discontinued and most of Plummer's players left. Any athlete on scholarship at the time of the austerity move kept his or her scholarship, but Plummer's last two scholarship players graduate this season.

Plummer expects to play next season with no athletic scholarships. He still will recruit, but his recruiting list will be different from most coaches seeking talent.

"Hopefully we can get some kids who are qualified to get some need-based scholarships," Plummer said.

ISU hires coach from Boise State

POCATELLO (AP) — Chris Cullig has been hired as defensive backfield coach and Kyle Whittingham promoted to defensive coordinator for the Idaho State University football team.

Cullig has been assistant defensive backfield coach and special teams coordinator at Boise State for the past five seasons. His Broncos' special teams led the Big-Sky Conference in net punting and punt returns last year.

They blocked five punts, five field goal attempts and two extra points in 1990.

Whittingham has been both linebackers coach and special teams coordinator at Idaho State for the past four seasons. He will remain as linebackers coach as well as defensive coordinator for the Bengals.

Boom Boom trades acting for boxing

NEW YORK (AP) — Actors often do odd-jobs between assignments. Ray Mancini has decided that between roles he will fight.

Mancini once fought well enough to win a piece of the world lightweight title, but he hasn't fought since March 3, 1989, and that was his only match since he failed to regain the WBA lightweight title Feb. 16, 1985.

So why, reporters wanted to know, has Mancini decided to fight a tough customer like Greg Haugen, also a former lightweight champion, who has had 20 fights since 1985, three of them last year?

"Starting actor," Haugen gave as Mancini's reason for signing to fight him a 12-round junior welterweight match April 3 at Reno, Nev.

Each fighter reportedly will make about $500,000, a sum that would cover a lot of odd-jobs, but Mancini maintains it's not money that is bringing him back.

With the man they call Boom Boom, it seems the ring lights still shine brighter than the footlights, although in the last 16 years he has had parts in three films and a role in the off-Broadway play "Sit Down: Conversations with the Mob."

"I want to see how I stand with the top fighters, right now," the 30-year Mancini said Tuesday.
