Weather summary

The National Weather Service says a Pacific frontal system makes rain likely in the northern Idaho's Panhandle today.

The system brought up to an inch of rain along the coast and about a half-inch in the Puget Sound area on Thursday.

Chances of rain in southern Idaho are not as likely. However, strong gusty winds are expected today for the north along with much cooler temperatures. The southern part of the state will escape most of the frontal weather with the southeast having a slight chance of thunderstorms. In the Magic Valley Thursday, skies were mostly fair although smoke and haze limited visibility. Winds were light most of the day. Temperatures were about normal for early August, with most readings in the 80s and low 90s.

There were no reports of precipitation from any of the stations around Idaho on Thursday.

The warmest temperature in the state Thursday was 98 degrees at Hagerman. Stanley reported the coldest at 31 degrees.

Elsewhere in the nation Thursday, the highest temperature was 110 degrees at Lake Havasu City, Ariz. The lowest was 31 degrees at Truckee, Calif.

U.S. backs access for U.N. team

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The Bush administration demanded Thursday that Iraq allow U.N. weapons inspectors complete access to any building they want to examine, saying U.S. resolve "is quite strong and quite serious."

Bush and his top aides left open the possibility that force would be used if Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein carries through on a threat to bar further U.N. inspections from Iraqi ministries.

"The United Nations resolutions will be honored in full and he will comply with United Nations resolutions and just leave it at that," Bush said at a news conference as he wound up a two-day campaign trip and headed back to Washington.

"The United Nations has every right under international law" to inspect Iraqi facilities for nuclear weapons, Bush said.

Earlier, White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater said the Iraqi leader "does not have the right" to block U.N. inspectors from ministry buildings or any other facilities.

"We demand full access to any of the sites that are selected by our U.N. inspectors, ministries or otherwise," the spokesman said.

"I assure you that the intent of the United States is quite strong and quite serious," Fitzwater said.

"All options are open to us and we have discussed them over a number of months," he said.

And, while Fitzwater would not discuss specific options, he said: "No one should be under any apprehension that there are not ways to seek very forceful compliance with these resolutions."

Fitzwater spoke after the official Iraqi News Agency reported that a newly arriving team of U.N. weapons inspectors would not be allowed to search government ministries in Baghdad.

It quoted Culture Minister Hamed Youssef Hammadi as saying visits to ministries have a political, not a technical purpose, and are meant to humiliate Iraq. The agency, monitored in Cyprus, paraphrased, giving no direct quotes.

The latest flare-up came several days after a protracted dispute in which U.N. inspectors were denied access to the Agriculture Ministry in Baghdad.

After several days, the inspectors were permitted in, but after Saddam won agreement to his demand that no Americans be permitted inside.

Seven 20-man crews battled the 2,000-acre Champagne Fire on the high desert north of Craters of the Moon. And while the fire was still out of control, it was no longer considered a threat to the nearby Champagne Mine.

The 33,000-acre Sagehen fire on the Fort Hall Indian Reservation was declared contained Thursday morning, and the 146,000-acre fire complex near Craters of the Moon National Monument and the 20,000-acre fire on the Curlew National Grassland south of Pocatello were contained Thursday night.

and Metzgerbaum of confusing the issue by claiming to punish only wealthy corporations.

"Family ranches in the West are in dire financial straits," Simpson said. "They are pooling resources to cut down on overhead costs just to make ends meet."

Western senators corralled colleagues on both parties and, from all regions. But as the bill heads toward a closed-door House and Senate conference in the coming weeks, they can hardly cheer this victory, which drew fewer supporters than in years past.

The narrowness of the margin will likely embolden opponents of the current grazing fee, especially Rep. Jim Yates, D-Ill., the House's chief interior committee confere. Last year, the House's hike eliminated in a deal that struck down a block on funds for an project that could be considered obscure.

This session, Yates is said to be more committed to putting in motion a "reasonable" increase, once and for all, said another Congressional staff member close to the appropriations process.

who until recently commanded the U.N. peace-keeping force in Bosnia. "Until they come together (to negotiate), the fighting will continue and nobody is going to be able to stop it."

Both sides are accused of atrocities. MacKenzie believes the Muslims and Croats, widely panned as the aggressors, also are guilty of atrocities.

"On a particular day of a particular month, you'd better ask who the bad boy is, and depending on that day of the month, you might well have a different answer," MacKenzie said.

And hitting the enemy is difficult. Large artillery pieces could be destroyed from the air, but the weapons of choice are mortars and rifle grenade launchers, found in many Bosnian backyards. They often hidden in ambulances and school buses and targets by U.S. commander would risk destroying them.

While most defense experts maintain any U.S. combat role in Bosnia could quickly turn into a quagmire, one strategist recommends launching a series of precision strikes against Serbian leader Slobodan Milosevic to compel his cooperation in ending the slaughter.

Bill Taylor, a retired Army colonel now with the Center for Strategic and International Studies, a Washington think tank, called for air strikes against targets in Belgrade, the capital of Serbia and Milosevic's seat of power.

Such attacks could be launched from the aircraft carrier USS Saratoga, now in the Mediterranean Sea, or from three Italian air bases opened to allied air forces, he said.

"We should start by taking out the targets he values most," Taylor said, listing his headquarters, military command posts, bridges and power stations as likely targets. "We want to inflict pain on him, plain and simple."

The United States and its allies should avoid increasing attacks unless the forces under Milosevic's command in Bosnia stop their fighting, and then hunt down and force the irregular Serbian forces to do the same, Taylor said.

But Bush expressed doubts Thursday about such tactics. "This is a very complicated military question," he said. "It's not an easy military problem, even for our Air Force."

began running this week states that a congressman Stallings voted to take away state water rights.

Stallings' charges echo those made by Sean McDevitt, who unsuccessfully challenged Stallings in 1990.

Rosholt said the issue is not as clear-cut as the mayor is making it out to be.

"It's one of those rabbit-trail issues," he said. "The question's complicated, there are two schools of thought on what happens if you let the courts deal with it."

"It's not an abortion — yes or no? — kind of issue," he said.

Rosholt said many Western water lawyers likely would have disagreed with McDevitt's position. "We hate to see any language that contributes to establishment of a federal reserved water right," he said.

However, he acknowledged that under an accepted principle of water law known as the "Winters doctrine," federal land that is reserved for a specific use — such as Indian reservations and wildlife refuges — automatically carries an enough water to enable it to fulfill its basic purpose.

Rosholt suggested that specifically including a federal reserved water right in the Nevada bill didn't make much difference, since a court likely would find such a right existed anyway.

"It's either either by implied reservation or water by legislation," he said. "I don't know that the result is as violent or devastating as has been indicated."

Stallings' radio ad, which began running in the Magic Valley Thursday and will air statewide today, accuses Kempthorne of having "a dangerous lack of knowledge about our water rights."

"Kempthorne's attack was misinformed, or worse, he was playing politics with Idaho water," he adds.

Ray Rigby, a veteran water attorney and former Democratic state senator from Rexburg, called Kempthorne's characterization of Stallings' vote "ridiculous" and "a far cry from the truth."

"Everyone knows (federal reservation) takes with it a water right," Rigby said. "The only question is how much."

Rigby noted that when the federal government established the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory outside of Arden, it also gave the facility a water right.

In fact, he said, the Winters doctrine goes back to 1908.

"This is nothing new," he said.

Bush won't get any re-election help from lackluster economy

Justice to jurists: Fight sexism in courts

By Michael Hofferber
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — Women are often treated as second-class citizens and sexually harassed in the nation's court system, and that has to stop.

That was the word Thursday from the first woman to sit on the U.S. Supreme Court, who told lawyers and jurists from throughout the West that they must eliminate sexism from their courtrooms.

'Where the courts go, the rest of the judicial system will follow.'

— Justice Sandra Day O'Connor

The 62-year-old Arizonan, appointed to the high court by President Reagan in 1981, explained that gender bias can start at a very early age. As an example, she quoted from a letter she recently received from a student in New Jersey: "I think you're the fairest judge in the United States. I hope you become the president's wife."

More than half the judges surveyed by the 9th Circuit's gender bias task force said they observed lawyers treating women with less respect than they treated male litigants, O'Connor pointed out.

Judges should not let inappropriate behavior occur in their courtrooms simply because they are used to it, she said.

O'Connor also made a pitch for greater civility in the courtroom and called for an end to military metaphors in discussing litigation.

Accident near Jerome sends 4 to hospital

Jerome — A two-car accident northeast of Jerome sent four Jerome County residents to hospitals, a sheriff's dispatcher reported.

The accident on a county road at 200 South, 100 East was reported at 6:16 p.m. and deputies remained on the scene Thursday night, the dispatcher said.

One woman, two boys and a girl were injured. Two were taken to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in Twin Falls and two were taken to St. Benedict's Family Medical Center in Jerome, she said.

The names of the victims and the cause of the accident were not available.

Bull youth serious following rollover Thursday morning

Buhl — A 16-year-old Bull girl was seriously injured Thursday morning when the car she was driving hit a patch of loose gravel and rolled several times.

A 16-year-old boy in the car received cuts and bruises, and was released from the hospital Thursday afternoon, Twin Falls County Sheriff's Deputy Corey Evans said. He declined to release the names of the victims.

The girl was driving 50-70 mph on Helen Valley Road northwest of Buhl at 11:13 a.m. when she reached a stretch of road that had been freshly coated with fresh chips, Evans said.

The car rolled several times, ejecting both the driver and her passenger. She suffered a concussion, a broken collarbone, wrist and pelvis, along with numerous cuts, Evans said. Neither person wore a seat belt.

Open house set for retiring Twin Falls police detective

TWIN FALLS — There will be an open house for retiring Twin Falls police detective Gene Ritchie at the police station at 100 South 5th.

Ritchie, a 22-year department veteran, has spent the past several years as the school resource officer, working with students at Twin Falls High School and other city schools.

Detective Bill Handey will take over that job when school begins this fall.

The public is invited to today's open house. The police station is located at 100 South 5th Ave. E.

Local man draws probation for molesting young girl

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man who admitted molesting a 6-year-old girl was given 10 years' probation Thursday after spending six months in the state's sex offender program.

Tommy Wayne Trautloff was sentenced in February to 10 years in prison, but 5th District Judge Daniel Hurlbutt retained jurisdiction in the case until after the 180 day term.

He was released until a space in the sex-offender program was available, but police arrested him 10 days later for violating the terms of his release.

Trautloff was not allowed to have any children other than his wife's two children, in his home. Authorities issued an arrest warrant after learning a third child was living in the house.

Trautloff's probation will begin with a 90-day stint in the Twin Falls County jail, where he will continue to be evaluated. Hurlbutt will review Trautloff's sentence again in November.

FAIRFIELD — A community picnic, oatmeal cookie contest and carnival will highlight today's activities at the Camas County Fair.

The potluck picnic is scheduled for 6 p.m. at 4-H Park, including raffles, a prairie dog contest and cow-clip show.

The cookie contest will be held at the American Legion Hall, with winners to be announced at the picnic. The carnival is scheduled from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Saturday's agenda includes a livestock show and judging, beginning at 8 a.m. at 4-H Park.

A silent auction to benefit the American Cancer Society is slated for 9 a.m. at Camas County High School.

The parade is set for 1:30 p.m. on Main Street, preceded at 12:15 by a "situation" on Main Street.

The livestock sale is scheduled for 2:30 p.m., followed by a community volleyball tournament at the high school at 5 p.m. and a street dance on Main Street at 9 a.m.

On Sunday, a breakfast will be served by the American Legion post from 7 a.m. to 10 a.m. on Main Street, followed by the Alumni Golf Tournament at the golf course at 9 a.m.

From 4 p.m. to 6:30 p.m., barbecue ribs will be served at Hidden Paradise, with a Nozzie Braun concert to follow.

Jim Couch's war

Guadalcanal changed young easterner's world forever

By Steve Crump
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Fifty years ago this morning, Pfc. James Couch stepped out of a gray troop ship and into a green hell.

"I was only 18 years old and I'd been the Marines for eight months," said Couch on Thursday in his Twin Falls home, remembering the moment when landing craft deposited him and 15,000 other Marines of the 1st Division on a South Pacific island called Guadalcanal.

"We expected a fight, but we had no idea what was in store for us."

It was a morning for the history books: the first full-scale, mechanized amphibious assault in Marine Corps history, the first invasion by American forces of Japanese-held territory since Pearl Harbor, the first real offensive by U.S. ground troops of World War II.

But in the 17 months it took American Marines and soldiers to dislodge 38,000 Japanese, the battle for Guadalcanal deteriorated into a feverish nightmare of sullen misery and sudden death.

"I've never had a beach more different from the West Virginia coal and steel town where Jim Couch grew up."

"I quit when I was in my senior year in high school to join the Marines," said Couch, a retired employee of a produce company who has lived in Twin Falls for 46 years, Jan. 2, 1942.

"Went through Parris Island and New River (Marine training bases in the Carolinas)," he said. "After they finally shipped us out to Wellington, New Zealand, we were supposed to practice amphibious landings in the Fiji Islands. Some of the landing craft got hung up, so that was canceled, and when we went ashore at Guadalcanal it was new to all of us."

"What I remember were the Higgins boats (small landing craft)," said Anthony Vitale of Jerome, a retired miner who 30 years ago was a sergeant in a Marine special-forces outfit assigned to take out Japanese outposts. "A lot of guys died in the water. That was the worst part of the whole thing, the landing. There was no place to take cover, nowhere to hide. The Jap snipers tied themselves in the tree tops."

They had plenty of cover. Guadalcanal was a riot of rotting tropical vegetation, a place of 95 percent humidity, razor-sharp Kunai grass, snakes that killed in a heartbeat, torrential rain and falling steel.

"Most of the Japanese bombs and shells were aimed at Henderson Field, a quagmire covered with steel mating and the reason the Marines were marooned on Guadalcanal in the first place. When the Marines' planes were flying from Henderson, they dominated thousands of miles of the Pacific and the approaches to Australia, Japan's next goal.

Guadalcanal turned tide in Pacific

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — In an ocean full of tropical paradises, the Americans picked a curious spot to crack Japan's outer defenses in August 1942.

Guadalcanal, a malaria and largely uninhabitable backwater of the Solomon Islands more than 3,000 miles from Tokyo, had nothing but geography in its favor.

And on a soggy plain between two rivers, there was enough room for an airstrip.

Guadalcanal is 1,000 miles from Australia and a fighter plane's sortie away from the major shipping routes that supplied the last remaining Allied redoubts in the South Pacific in the summer of 1942.

The Japanese seized the opportunity to build an airstrip there, discovered by the Allies not long before its completion.

But the island could also be turned against the Japanese and their formidable string of island defenses that ran up the Solomons toward Rabaul, Japan's superbase in the southwest Pacific.

So the Marines went ashore 50 years ago today, captured the airstrip and renamed it Henderson Field. Japan, despite 18 months of trying and 29,000 dead, never got it back.

The Solomons campaign cost the Allies hundreds of ships, swarms of planes and thousands of lives, but it drove the wedge in the Japanese defenses that continued to widen throughout the war.

"Everything on the island centered around the airfield," Couch said. "The Marines defended it, and when they'd shell us or bomb us, the Seabees would patch it up. It was never out of action for long."

Couch and other members of G Company, 2nd Battalion waded ashore against light resistance on Aug. 7, but the

Firefighters see light through smoke, haze

By N.S. Nokkentved

TWIN FALLS — The fires that have raged through more than 235,000 acres of southern Idaho forest and range land since Sunday might have abated, and some are nearly under control.

On the Magic Valley fires, firefighters are attacking hot spots and reinforcing fire lines. Some crews are being pulled off the fires.

Forest Service officials expected to have the Ro Fire, which has threatened the Wood River Valley, under control by Thursday evening, spokeswoman Stacy Clark said Thursday afternoon.

Residents of Jarbidge are returning to that old mining town in northern Nevada after a fire forced the evacuation. The Coffeepot Fire is 70 percent contained, spokeswoman Merle Glenn said. The Forest Service has predicted when the fire will be fully contained.

The 44,800-acre blaze came within about one-half mile of the town. The fire burned "on top" of the ridge at the edge of town, but fire lines held and the town was saved, said Forest Service spokesman Dick Williamson.

The fire now is burning southwest, mostly away from Jarbidge.

Kids to the rescue - A5

But the effort took about 700 firefighters, four air tankers and three helicopters, he said.

A complex of range fires east of Richfield covered about 146,000 acres Thursday afternoon. Bureau of Land Management officials expected to have those fires contained Thursday night.

In southeast Idaho two fires joined to become the 20,000-acre Curlew Fire. Officials also expect a 34-mile bulldozer line around the fire completed by Thursday night. Officials Thursday also were releasing some non-essential equipment and relieving tired crews.

South of the Idaho border in the northern corner of Nevada, erratic winds and difficult terrain continued to hamper efforts on the 5,500-acre Idaho Line Fire.

"Because of the high fire danger, the Forest Service and the BLM have issued fire restriction on public lands.

Campfires will be allowed only in designated, developed campsites. Smoking will be allowed only in enclosed vehicles, buildings and developed recreation sites with no flammable materials within three feet.

Minidoka School Board cuts back on bus routes

New schedule should save district money, reduce travel time for students

By James Prichard
Mini-Cassia News Service

RUPERT — The Minidoka County School Board has approved a bus route schedule that should save the district some $93,000 annually, but will cost three drivers their jobs.

During a special meeting Thursday evening, the trustees approved a plan developed by district transportation director Oliver LaRoque that reduces the total number of school bus routes from 54 to 47.

The plan is designed to not only allow the district to save money and reduce the amount of time students spend on buses.

Of the district's 5,200 students, roughly half ride buses to and from school, Superintendent Michael Bishop said after the meeting.

Bishop said the district will save about $47,000 per year in salaries and benefits under the plan.

Immunizations - A6

In addition, because Minidoka schools will have to buy one less bus annually, it would save another $46,000 a year.

Although three fewer drivers will be needed, Bishop said, they probably will be offered positions now open in other areas within the district.

Which drivers will be dismissed will be based primarily on seniority, he added.

Sometime before school starts on Aug. 26, the remaining drivers will perform a dry run of their assigned routes to see how close their times are compared to the time estimates projected by the school's computer study.

Parents will be given bus schedules for their children during school registration, to be held Aug. 17-21.

Idaho Power files for increase in rates

By N.S. Nokkvent
Times-News writer

BOISE — Idaho Power Co. is thinking about raising its electric rates.

The utility has notified the state Public Utilities Commission that it plans to ask for a 3 to 5 percent rate increase after Oct. 5.

But the request is just a formality. The PUC requires the utility to file a notice of intent 60 days before actually filing a request for a rate increase.

"If the numbers are there — if we can justify a rate case, we'll file," said Chairman Joe Marshall. "If we can't we won't."

The company is looking at its rate base to see if it is entitled to charge more for the electricity it generates and sells, he said. Until those numbers are assembled, the utility won't know if it needs to ask for the increase.

Rate base refers to the investments on which the company is entitled to earn a return. Because the utility is a monopoly it is regulated by the PUC, which set the amount of return the company is entitled to earn.

Additional investments — such as new distribution equipment and the new power plant nearing completion at Miller Dam — may be added to the rate base. But as those investments depreciate the reduction in value is subtracted from the rate base.

The last rate increase was approved in 1985. That 8.1 percent increase was up to the PUC in January, 1989. But it included a provision that the company would not seek another general rate increase until 1992.

Meanwhile, the company has had two temporary increases: A one-year 3 percent surcharge began in June 1988. The second was a 3.9 percent overall increase — 2.9 for residential customers — effective one year from May 1 this year.

"We've done a lot of things since 1985," Marshall said. The company has invested in research and new distribution equipment.

But the PUC is to determine if the costs and investments were prudently incurred, Marshall said.

Twin Falls youths stamp out arsonists' handiwork

By Brad Bowler
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A pair of Twin Falls boys stamped out a grass fire in Beck Creek Canyon Wednesday night, a Sheriff's department investigator said Thursday.

After J.D. Ringenberg, 13, and Todd Widaman, 12, spotted the blaze in the canyon near the western end of Filer Avenue, they told someone to call for help, then started fighting the flames themselves, Lt. Bill Tilson of the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Department said.

"They were kinda drunk, so we just stayed away from them," Ringenberg said.

After they told someone to call for help and returned to the blaze, the boys stamped out the flames and used their borrowed shovel to stop the fire from spreading.

The boys soaked their T-shirts in the creek and used them to put out the flames, a tactic frowned upon by Ringenberg's mom.

"She was upset that I ruined a T-shirt," Ringenberg said.

The fire scorched about 200 square feet of dry grass and brush, but it could have spread to a nearby coral and mobile home and other buildings if not checked early, Tilson said.

Errors prompt Jerome budget review

By H.R. Weisel
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — The Jerome City Council agreed on the city's 1993 budget Tuesday night, then changed its mind Wednesday.

Some errors in computations in the budget had been found in the budget after the council approval it, City Administrator Larry Paine said.

A special meeting was still in progress at press time Thursday to review the revised budget and approve it.

A public hearing date for the budget was to be scheduled.

Miller will take over Aug. 15.

Paoli said she was quitting because "changes in our organization structure that have made it increasingly more difficult for me to perform my duties as city clerk retired. First with the hiring of a city administrator instead of a city clerk director and then with the addition of an accountant, I have had such restrictions placed upon me that I find it virtually impossible to function."

"You have made your choice. Now let us put in peace," Paoli said in her resignation letter.

Paoli has worked for the city of Jerome since 1981. She served as a clerk in the water department, was appointed deputy city clerk in 1984 and was hired as city clerk-treasurer on Jan. 2, 1990.

"I was very proud indeed to be representing Jerome," she said. "I was not on more than one occasion that Jerome is a very progressive and well-structured city due to the leadership of (former Jerome mayor) Ralph Peters."

In accepting the resignation, Mayor Gene Oles said he wanted to thank Paoli for her "dedication, hard work and ability to get the job done well."

"We have no time-frame in mind at this time" for hiring Paoli's permanent successor, Ostler said.

Paoli's husband, Paul, a member of the city Planning and Zoning Commission, also turned in a letter of resignation to the council. He cited the "turmoil" his wife had gone through as the reason for the resignation. Paul Paoli had served as a member of the commission since Feb. 3, 1987.

Murtaugh to vote on new school plans

The Times-News

MURTAUGH — School officials think it's time to replace the town's creaky old high school with modern facilities, and they're calling for a bond issue to fund it.

Superintendent Michael Chesley said that after consulting with architects and real estate agents the board determined that it will take $2.1 million to build a new school.

The town will bring the request to voters in an election scheduled for Sept. 8.

Chesley said a survey several months ago indicated that the majority of Murtaugh residents think it's time for a new high school, and he believes that they will vote to support the bond proposal.

A man living on the canyon rim tossed the 60's T-shirt when he saw what they were doing. And Beven Erenbruck of Gooding, who was visiting the park with his family, joined the boys.

The flames were out by the time firefighters arrived, Tilson said.

Firefighters could not get a fire truck to the scene, and had to carry water packs in to put out the remaining hot spots, Filer Fire Chief Bud Compher said.

The Fire Department plans to issue fire safety certificates of commendation signed by all the firefighters, Compher said.

The boys said they were riding their bicycles in the park at about 7:30 p.m. when they saw the flames. When they went for help, two young men asked them whether they had seen the fire.

INEL among sites for nuclear trigger production

The Times-News

WASHINGTON — The Idaho National Engineering Laboratory may be the site of a new plant to build plutonium triggers for nuclear weapons.

Assistant Secretary of Energy Richard A. Claytor told Washington reporters at a breakfast meeting this week that the department is looking at five sites for the plant, according to a story in Thursday's Washington Post. The plant would replace a plutonium-processing plant a Rocky Flats in Colorado.

Claytor is in charge of defense programs for the Department of Energy.

Although old triggers from retired nuclear weapons can be recycled into new ones, the Post reported that the department is looking for "foolish and foolhardy not to have a Rocky Flats capability" somewhere in the country in case "changes in the world situation" require the use of the U.S. arsenal.

The department would announce its proposed location next fall and construction would take 10 years, Claytor said. In addition to INEL, the department is considering nuclear facilities in Oak Ridge, Tenn.; Amarillo, Tex.; Hanford, Wash.; and Savannah River, S.C.

Vote on new school plans

Plans call for demolishing the present school, which Chesley calls "1920s vintage," and building a new structure around the existing gymnasium, which is still in good shape. The proposed school building will be about 50,000 square feet.

Chesley said that if the bond issue passes, construction will begin in early 1993, and will take about nine or 10 months to complete. Children will continue to attend classes in the existing school until the new one is completed. Then the old building will be destroyed.

The repayment schedule for the proposed bond is set at 20 years, Chesley said. The town has no bond indebtedness now and would impose a bond levy if the proposal passes.

Hospital seeks director

By Kirk Mitchell
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Canyon View Hospital's parent company is conducting a nationwide search for a new administrator, Jeff Hauser resigned last month.

Chris Cronberg has been appointed interim administrator while Sterling Health Care Inc., which owns the Twin Falls psychiatric hospital, seeks a permanent chief executive officer.

Snyder, Canyon View's director of out-patient services, is demanding. The average tenure of such an administrator is two years or less, he said.

Hospital seeks director

Tom Tennent, communications director in Seattle, declined to comment on Hauser's departure.

"I just felt like I had gone as far as I could go," Hauser said Thursday. "I had reached a plateau and I wanted to give someone else a chance to step in and take over."

During his leadership, Canyon View added to and improved its programs, he said. The hospital has added new and talented managers, and increased awareness about the hospital and its services, he said.

Hauser said that the psychological hospital administrative positions are demanding. The average tenure of such an administrator is two years or less, he said.

feared naval battle that followed by night, sank their Liberty ship and forced the withdrawal of the armada that carried the Marines' supplies.

"We lived mostly on Japanese rations," Couch said. "We ate corned beef and fish heads. I didn't go in for fish heads."

Couch's outfit dug in a mile from the end of the Henderson Field runway at the mouth of a sinking channel called the Tenara River, where on Aug. 21 1942 Japanese "throwing firecrackers and cursing in English" came charging out of the Kuma grass in the dead of night.

Fight hundred fifty of them were killed. So were 34 Marines.

"It was really nothing to prepare us for that experience," Couch said simply. "Three of my best friends died."

On an island that 1,200 Marines never left, Jim Couch's war ended with a case of malaria. He was evacuated to the States on July 7, 1942, the first anniversary of Pearl Harbor.

He hasn't been back, although there's some talk of a tour by some Guadalcanal vets next year. "I stay in touch with a few of my buddies," Couch says. "I talk about it now and then, but not much anymore," he said. "There's not many of us around to talk about it."

False bomb report draws probation for ex-officer

By Brad Bowler
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A former Twin Falls County Sheriff's deputy was sentenced Thursday to two years' probation for falsely reporting in March that a bomb had been planted beneath his patrol car.

Under a plea agreement reached earlier, 5th District Judge Daniel Hurlbut suspended a prison sentence of 18 months to five years for James D. Clawson, 37.

A fine of $1,000 also was suspended, but Clawson must pay $100 restitution to cover costs of investigating the crime.

False bomb report draws probation for ex-officer

Police called in an explosive disposal team from Mountain Home Air Force Base after Clawson told a court judge that he had planted a bomb beneath his patrol car.

The device, made of galvanized steel, a cap, copper wire and gunpowder, lacked a battery that could have detonated it, Clawson later admitted to the court. He had found a bomb beneath his patrol car.

Clawson was suspended from the

O'Connor

Statements such as "I demolished her argument..." or "If you use that defense, they'll kill you" encourage a warlike attitude in and out of the courtroom, she said.

As an alternative, she suggested approaching legal arguments as a form of discourse. Instead of focusing on attacks and tactics, lawyers ought to give greater attention to mediation, arbitration and negotiation, she said.

O'Connor also criticized the "bottom-line" focus of the nation's top law firms and said lawyers need to be more mindful of their civic and moral responsibilities.

"While lawyers are working harder than ever and making more money than ever, an increasing demand for pro bono service is going unmet," she said.

O'Connor also criticized the 9th Circuit's process for handling 11th-hour appeals of executions.

"A single judge on a 28-judge court is able to delay (an execution) up to a week simply by calling for a vote," she said.

"The other circuits seem to be able to consider habeas petitions (pleas for intervention by appellate courts) in well under seven days."

Red Beach veterans back again

GUADALCANAL, Solomon Islands (AP) — Half a century after they began one of World War II's fiercest and most crucial battles, Marine veterans returned to Red Beach on Thursday.

Dressed in sports clothes instead of combat gear, and arriving on a cruise ship rather than clumsy, wooden Higgins boats, this trip to the beach seemed far more pleasant on the surface.

But the veterans were as emotional as on Aug. 7, 1942.

"I might look like I am having a good time, but inside I am crying," said Bill Cristea of Erie, Pa., who stood on the beach with a can of beer at hand.

"This is a place that tested men's souls," said Cristea, who was a corporal when he became one of the first Marines to set foot on the 90-mile-long island.

Guadalcanal was the first U.S. offensive in the Pacific Theater. It set the stage for the island-hopping campaign that led ever closer to Japan, and it furnished the Marines' reputation for valor under extraordinary hardship.

If cost the United States dearly — 1,769 ground forces, 4,911 men at sea and 420 in the air. But Japan lost more than 30,000 men.

Ralph Darsey, 75, who served on an ammunition ship at Guadalcanal, said he never expected to return. Darsey, from Carson City, Nev., Coast Guard uniform he wore 50 years ago.

"It still fits beautifully," the retired mobile-home manufacturer said proudly.

Allan Rothenberg, 74, from Virginia Beach, Va., won a Navy Cross as a flyer at Guadalcanal. He has been back four times and is leading a group of 137 veterans.

Rothenberg, accompanied by his wife, Doris, said his first return in 1981 was devastating. "I could not stop crying," the former stockbroker said.

Standing in the hot tropical sun Thursday at a small white memorial marker at Edison's Ridge, the site of one of the campaign's fiercest battles, had a somber effect on the veterans.

"Some just stand and look," Rothenberg said. "One gentleman this morning just sat and stared into space like he was frozen."

Rothenberg is a member of the Guadalcanal National Veterans War Memorial Foundation, which built an imposing red granite monument to the dead on Skyline Ridge. It will be formally dedicated Friday with hymns, honor guards and prayers.

During construction, workers uncovered the remains of an American soldier who has not been identified.

Chinese court upholds verdict

BEIJING (AP) — A Chinese court on Thursday upheld the conviction of a former high-level official who leaked word in 1989 that martial law would be imposed to crush pro-democracy protests.

The man to whom Bao Tong leaked the news, his assistant, Gao Shan, was separately tried Wednesday and sentenced to four years in jail, court officials said. The court said Gao passed the state secret on to scholars and activists who tried to call an emergency meeting of the Chinese legislature to intervene.

Presses crank out rubles by millions

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia, starved for cash and unable to meet workers' payrolls, last month printed more rubles than the entire Soviet Union did in its last 30 years, the economy minister said Thursday.

Economists generally contend that the profligate printing of currency leads to severe inflation. Russia's inflation rate currently is about 15 percent a month.

But Economics Minister Andrei Nechayev told reporters that the 260 billion rubles a month now being produced would not aggravate inflation, unless the government uses the extra cash to increase spending.

Contraceptive next

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Out-of-towners love those swarms of pigeons, the classic trap for a snare shot in the Piazza Duomo. But the city government wants the birds to get out — and stay out.

"The latest strategy, expected to be implemented next month, is to move some 200,000 pigeons to the countryside, then feed contraceptive-spiked seed to the rest."

Kempthorne on water: Is he deceptive or just confused?

So which is it? Is Boise Mayor Dirk Kempthorne cynically exploiting Idahoans' nervousness about water rights? Or is he just misinformed?

Kempthorne, Idaho's Republican candidate for U.S. senator, is making a campaign issue out of Democratic Congressman Richard Stallings' support of the 1989 Nevada Wilderness Protection Act.

One provision in that act creates a federal reserved water right for Nevada wilderness areas. Stallings voted yes, and Kempthorne reads that as a willingness by Stallings to surrender states' water rights to the federal government.

But, as Times-News political writer Drew DeSilver reported this week, a key backer of that bill was Kempthorne's own campaign chairman, former Republican Sen. Jim McClure. In fact, Stallings says McClure's approval of the water-rights provision was one reason Stallings decided the bill was OK.

The question is, how can Kempthorne criticize Stallings on this issue, without also criticizing McClure?

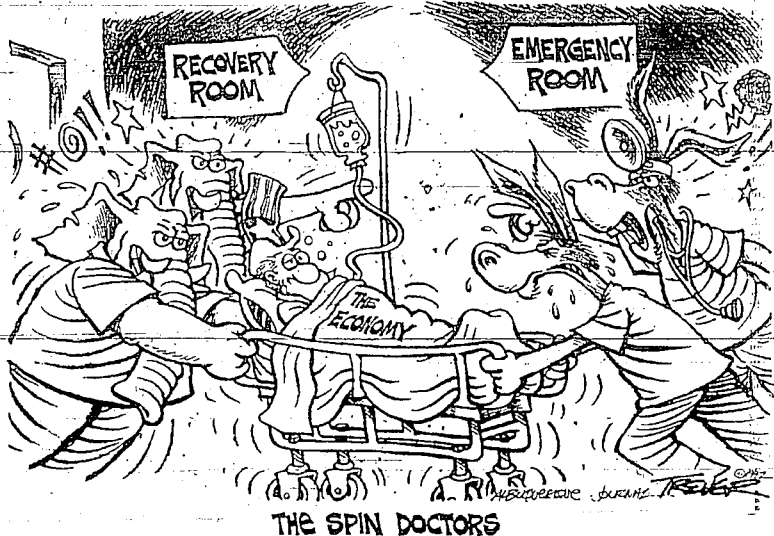

We don't know. But we can assume that criticizing the elder statesman of Idaho's GOP is the last thing any sane Republican nominee would want to do. Especially if he has McClure heading his campaign.

Did the Kempthorne campaign fail to check the Senate votes on the bill before deciding to attack Stallings? Or did Kempthorne just figure the details didn't matter, as long as he could find an excuse to slam his opponent?

Water law is a dizzyingly complex topic, and we can't say with absolute certainty what impact the Nevada wilderness act will have on water rights. But this much we know:

At the time, McClure had the Idaho delegation's best understanding of the issue. He worked on the bill until he thought it was acceptable. He satisfied himself that it wouldn't affect Idaho's water.

If the final bill was good enough for someone with McClure's experience and expertise, shouldn't it be good enough for a neophyte like Kempthorne?

Scripture sign returned

In Tuesday's paper was our letter about someone taking our scripture sign from our front yard. Thursday morning, our sign was lying in our yard.

We want to thank whoever returned it. I don't know if someone found it and brought it back or if the person that took it brought it back.

Anyway, we want to thank them for returning it.

Just write about anything

I have been delayed in responding to Bessie Parrott's letter criticizing my contribution regarding the dress code of some doctors. She described my letter as in "poor taste." She will probably really be upset when I confess that I have not been to a local doctor in years.

A crotchety old senior citizen and I were having dinner when we observed a well-conversation drifted into the subject of how unprofessional some doctors dress these days. This was the inspiration for my letter.

Those of us who contribute to the letters page should write something periodically, even if we don't have anything worthwhile to say. I am sure Ms. Parrott agrees with that.

Country needs a change

KEITH SINGER'S letter of Aug. 4, "The Republican platform has a very strong family-values approach." Certainly George Bush cannot be accused of forgetting his family while in office.

Trying to keep his son out of jail because of his involvement with the El Dorado Savings scam and helping his son attain employment in the Middle East to look after the family's soil holdings shows me Bush is a family man.

"A strong and positive approach to law and order to include an adequate, effective, strong military presence...."

Does this also mean to sell technology and vital materials to the enemy so he can build up his military presence? Bush did a remarkable job in helping Saddam create a military machine that we ended up fighting and costing us the lives of our soldiers.

"The Republican Party's platform to understand that we are not for control by abortion." The Bush family actively supports the Planned Parenthood Association with generous donations and by sitting on the board of the organization. This is the very organization you probably refer to as an abortion clinic.

Wealthy women will have the means to get abortions simply by flying to Europe for the infamous French abortion pill. All the while, the middle and lower-class women will either seek illegal abortions or carry their unwanted pregnancies to term. And this is what you refer to as being the party for the less fortunate who are not for control by abortion? The Bush family accuse the Democrats of being "tax-and-spend liberals." The last 12 years with the Reagan/Bush administration has produced the highest increase in taxes to the middle class in history, and need I say what they have done to the federal deficit? Before you begin to blame Congress for this, President Bush has never submitted a balanced budget to Congress in the four years he has been president, and this is with the same Congress we have had with several other presidents who succeeded in reducing the deficit.

I do not proclaim to be a member of either political party, but I do recognize when there is a need for a change from what we had for the last 12 years. The country has declined both economically and morally and for you to write about how wonderful the Republican Party is makes me realize you have enjoyed the decay. And you call the Democrats dumb?

Troubled by sports section

Sunday's (Aug. 2) sports section really troubled me. Beginning with the front page, you insult and belittle women and their accomplishments and, in a not-so-subtle way, slam the value of a United States gold medal in comparison to a foreign country's gold.

Here is the big picture, size 6 and a quarter inches by 19 inches, of a British runner male, exalting over winning a gold medal in the 100 meter race. Directly underneath, a minuscule picture, 2 and three-eighths inches by 3 and three-eighths inches, of our U.S. runner—a woman—winning a gold medal for the women's 100 meter race.

Roughly estimating, the photo of the British man is about six times larger than the U.S. woman for the same medal, same distance race. I don't care if these are Associated Press pictures, Fagi pictures or Getty's pictures. The Times-News is not a British newspaper nor an all-male-led newspaper.

I consider this an insult to women and to our Olympic team.

And then on page 5, there's a 4 and one-quarter-inch by 5 and three-eighths-inch picture of Kim Zmeskal and quite an article about her failure to deliver at the Olympics. A sorry fact I feel needn't have been gone over at all.

But was there a similar size picture of Shannon Miller and a similar article on her five medal wins? No! You rub more salt on the loser's wounds with my a separate story about the happy winner. Disgustingly inexplicable. I say,

We don't need Ross Perot

Perhaps it's time the people took the bull by the horns and took back our country. We don't need a Ross Perot.

I well realize Idaho to be a Republican state that has, in the past, gone Democrat at times. This is the time for all good Americans to go to the aid of their country—forget party lines.

I ask you all in good-faith, "Can we as a nation stand four more years of Quayle and Bush?" Four more years will finish us as a nation.

We will become part of the world order of the United Nations one government—not as we know it but as the president of the world would have it. George Herbert (Hoover) Bush—note the middle name—Herbert (Hoover), depression, no jobs and promise after promise.

Mr. Bush said, "No new taxes." He lied. "We won't war." He lied. "Our economy is improving." He lied. "Let's be the nation for ecology." He lied. "Let's work to stop drugs and crime." He lied. "Let's work for better education." He lied. "Let's work to stop AIDS." He lied. And last, but certainly not least, "Let's put America back to work." He lied.

Give me four more years. It's the Congress and the Senate that are at fault, he lies. Let's throw all the buns out. Let's start clean for 1993 with a new president, new Congress and Senate and let's not forget the vice president that still needs to learn how to spell "potato." Idaho grows the best. Sure glad we did not grow a Quayle or a Bush.

Let's show those in Washington, D.C., we still have the power to choose our destiny and our future. We don't need those that would sell us out. We need those that can represent we the people, our freedom and our flag.

Election facts to keep in mind

With the upcoming election, there are many things we need to keep in mind. Our national debt is beyond any comprehension. It is unbelievable that our so-called representatives let it get so high by their reckless spending of money that they did not have to spend. Here are some things which would help to keep our debt down.

Why do we lend millions to Israel? We have, in this country, thousands of people of the religion. Many of these are very well off financially. Why do these people help their own people out with their debt problems?

Cut out most of the frinking privilege for representative sold out his stamps for cash (one reported in the paper). Do not recall receiving mail as to what had taken place in Congress.

Cut out these congressional "junks," where members of Congress go to far-away places, supposedly on Congress business.

Our president doing numerous trips to Europe and the Far East. He seems more interested in foreign affairs than our problems here.

Members of Congress travel by air—Air Force planes. The secretary of the Air Force, at football season a year ago, went to the Notre Dame/Air Force football game in South Bend. The plane he used cost $1,875 per hour to fly. The trip would be about four hours both ways. Quite a nice, expensive trip.

The vice president, many times, went on golfing trips, usually with a companion and went by Air Force plane.

It was in a paper that many members of Congress had eaten in the dining room but failed to pay their checks.

How many times have you seen a member of Congress making a speech? The seats were empty. The congressional members say their secretaries get copies of all speeches. Maybe they do, but how many times are these read by members?

Seniors, let's do something. Be careful for whom you vote this November. Let's all get out and vote and carefully choose who you vote for.

ADA allows for equality

Hip, Hip, Hooray! for the A-a-a D-d-d A-a-a-a!

The passage of the Americans with Disabilities Act will go down in history as the most important human rights legislation of this century. It is one step closer to justice and equality for all.

The American educational system has used competitive sports and other win/lose contests as its main character builder for our children.

Most of our sports during the 1960s. The accepted coaching philosophy was "the best defense is a good offense."

In the locker room and behind the scenes, this philosophy translates into slogans for winning. Some of these slogans are, "Get them before they get you," "Nice guys finish last," "Demolish the key player," "A team is only as good as its weakest player," "Blame the other guy for your fouls," "Bash in their brains," "Pound their flesh," "Don't share plays," "Don't share ideas," "Don't be open and honest," "Take them before they take you," "Do it for the 'gipper'" and "Do it for God."

That's the American way. That is America's gladiator. That is America's learned hostility and negativism.

Then we grow up and our learned slogans on to our children. Thus, the cycle continues.

I now think of myself as a person with abilities. I have spent since the 1980s coaching people the "Game of Life." My coaching philosophy has been, "The best defense is a good defense."

In the locker room and behind the scenes, this translates into slogans for winning. Some of these slogans are, "Respect the rights of others," "Be the best you can be," "Share ideas," "Share plays," "Stick to it," "You can do it," "Compete with yourself," "Help others" and, "United we win, divided we fail."

This is what I think leveling the playing field means. The ADA is saying when the playing field is level, then you are equal with him.

In the "Game of Life," we either are all winners or all losers. There is no in-between. I believe the ADA is a giant step toward the inevitable changes in humankind: SHalom.

It's OK to be liberal

"Liberal" is not a dirty word. The United States was born in a liberal tradition.

Thomas Jefferson followed liberal philosophy in proposing the American democracy be based on freedom and opportunity for the common man—it was a liberal, even radical thought.

There is no progress without challenging ideas. Conservatism has a place; it balances liberal thought. It is not better or more noble. In fact, left without a liberal counterbalance, conservatism can lead to closed opportunity and stagnation.

So don't use the term "liberal" to try to insult people. Some of us just may talk as a compliment.

Jerome events questioned

From the ridiculous to the sublime—

These past months, I have been keeping track of the goings on between the Jerome sheriff's office and the Jerome County commissioners.

I have a couple of questions for the Jerome County commissioners.

Do you believe that because Larry is one of those New York slickers that he is the closest thing to the "mafia" that Jerome has?

Do you believe his cloak-and-dagger operation is proof positive of his criminal tendencies?

Come on now, Jerome commissioners. The time is now. Don't grow old, grow ugly.

I'm writing today because of a situation I witnessed on Aug. 4 during a funeral procession.

I witnessed people on Blue Lakes South cut into the funeral procession because they were afraid to give up a few minutes of their precious time to allow someone else to be able to pay their respect to their loved ones.

Come on, people. Let's have a little more respect for people. I'm sure you would expect the same kind of respect if it were you in that funeral procession. Let's stop and allow others to proceed without delay. After all, this is the last time they will have to spend

Hiroshima remembers victims of world's 1st atom bomb attack

TOKYO (AP) — Thousands of paper lanterns glowed on the rivers of Hiroshima after dark on Thursday, ending a day of remembrance for the victims of the world's first atom bomb attack 47 years ago.

The lanterns carry the souls of the dead to repose, according to Buddhist tradition. They were set afloat in a ritual of the Bon festival for the dead, celebrated throughout Japan in August.

Earlier in the day about 50,000 dignitaries, visitors and Hiroshima residents gathered beside the park built on the spot where the bomb exploded into a mushroom-cloud inferno that killed 140,000 people on Aug. 6, 1945.

At 8:15 a.m., the moment of the explosion, the city observed a minute of silence.

The muggy stillness was broken only by the mournful toll of bells and pulsing buzz of cicadas. A flame that Hiroshima has vowed to keep burning until nuclear weapons are banned glowed brightly, and about 1,500 doves were released into the sky.

Almost a half-century after the U.S. attack that helped bring World War II to an end, Hiroshima's residents still mourn the world's failure to eliminate all nuclear weapons.

U.S., Kuwaiti soldiers team up for drills

SIXTH BRIGADE HEADQUARTERS, Kuwait City — The Iraqi army lent a note of reality to the U.S.-Kuwaiti military exercises that began Thursday at this base 20 miles from the border.

Not that Iraqi soldiers were anywhere nearby, but the Marines found the destroyed buildings the Iraqis left behind "fantastic" for urban warfare drills.

The language barrier sometimes created problems for the 150 Marines and 100 Kuwaiti military police taking part in the exercise. Getting across such basics as "If you stand there, you will shoot your friend-in-the-back" required extensive miming.

The exercises by 1,900 U.S. troops from the 11th Marine Expeditionary Unit and a roughly equivalent number of Kuwaitis reflect the fact that the two sides may have to fight together, under a 10-year defense pact signed last year.

"In any combat situation today, you are going to fight in buildings in a built-up area. It's good familiarization for us and them to have worked together," said Capt. Michael Owen, 33, of Pleasanton, Calif., a company commander of the 1st Battalion, 4th Marines.

More than 5,000 U.S. troops from all branches of the military are to take part in the desert exercises over the next two months.

"It's a new way of war, and this is a new way of training for us," said Kuwaiti Lt. Khalid al-Sabah.

The Marines were comfortable in their training ground — a bombed-out barracks.

"This is fantastic," said platoon commander Lt. Dodds Hayden, 23, of Boise, Idaho. "There's grass on the ground, there's rubble, holes blown in the walls, furniture tipped over. That's the environment you go into, not an empty concrete sterile building."

Paper lanterns float on the Motayasu River in Hiroshima Thursday evening as the Atomic Bomb Dome sits in the background.

"It is absolutely imperative that we halt the proliferation of nuclear weapons and the spread of nuclear technology," said Hiroshima's Mayor Takashi Hiroaka.

He and other participants at a symposium Thursday urged a ban on nuclear weapons testing. The U.S. Senate passed a bill this week that would ban all tests after 1996, but the legislation has not received the backing of President Bush.

"Never can we forget the horrible sights that assailed our eyes under Hiroshima's mushroom cloud," Hiroaka said.

During a ceremony Thursday, morning, the names of 4,944 people who were exposed to the bomb's radiation and died over the last year were added to those already enshrined in a granite cenotaph at the memorial site. They bring the total number of fatalities to 176,364.

Although it is difficult to determine which deaths were related to the bomb, researchers believe the risk of leukemia and other cancers is greater for those who were exposed to its radiation.

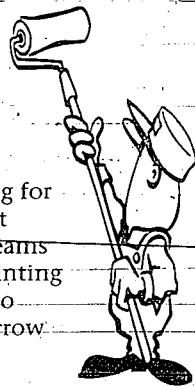

Among the dignitaries participating were Nagasaki Mayor Hitoshi Motoshima, whose own city was devastated by a second U.S. bomb attack on Aug. 9, 1945 that killed 70,000 people.

Suits claim feds fail to safeguard salmon

PORTLAND (AP) — Industry and environmental groups have filed additional claims that the government is ignoring its duty to protect salmon listed as threatened or endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Direct Service Industries, a group of aluminum, titanium and chemical manufacturers in Oregon, Washington and Montana, announced Wednesday that it had filed a lawsuit to force the government to study the effects of continued salmon fishing, hatchery production and poor habitat management.

"For two years, members of our association and many others in the Northwest have been attempting to forge a salmon recovery plan that recognizes necessary changes to all of the major factors of salmon decline," executive director John Carr said in a news release.

"We will never succeed if federal agencies do not live up to their legal responsibility under the Endangered Species Act to identify, monitor and control these factors."

Carr said the National Marine Fisheries Service is required by law to protect the salmon, but it hasn't even consulted other federal agencies to make sure their activities don't further endanger the fish.

"We're taking these actions reluctantly, but with good justification," Carr said of the lawsuit filed in U.S. District Court in Oregon.

The group also filed a motion to intervene in a lawsuit filed last month by the Sierra Club Legal Defense Fund that claims the government has refused to alter hydropower operations on the Columbia River system to help the fish survive. The motion says increased summer flows, that were intended to flush young fish downstream, have no benefit.

Meanwhile, the Defense Fund on Wednesday announced it intends to file yet another lawsuit to prod the government into taking action to save the fish.

The Seattle-based law firm filed a required 60-day notice of intent to sue the U.S. Forest Service for its failure to protect the habitat of the threatened Snake River chinook salmon on the Gnatflie and Wolfowitz-Whittam National Forests in eastern Oregon and Washington.

The notice was filed on behalf of The Wilderness Society, Oregon Rivers Council, Oregon Natural Resources Council, Oregon Natural Desert Association and Hells Canyon Preservation Council.

Army drops tests, probes Utah gas leak

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Army has scrapped testing methods of destroying chemical weapons at Tooele Army Depot to investigate the cause of a mustard gas leak last month.

On July 7, workers at the Chemical Agent Munition Disposal Systems plant were testing the thawing process of a one-ton container of frozen mustard gas when monitoring instruments within the facility found excessive gas in the air, said Charles Baronian, program manager for the Army's chemical weapons destruction program.

The mishap occurred at the facility about 20 miles south of Tooele. The CAMDS plant is used to test the processes, equipment and procedures for destroying the nation's stockpile of chemical weapons.

Baronian said mustard gas is a lethal, acrid, blister agent that causes intense irritation to the eyes, skin and mucous membranes.

In the July 7 mishap, Baronian said twice the allowed amount of the gas was emitted into the air for about two minutes.

No one was injured. Those conducting the test quickly put on their ducking masks when the alarm sounded and they called for cleanup crews, Baronian said.

However, construction workers building the full-scale weapons incinerators about two miles north of CAMDS have complained that they too should have been notified of the incident.

The leak occurred about 8 p.m. but the nearby construction crews didn't know about it until 4 a.m., when their shift ended and guards had locked the main gate, preventing anyone from leaving the depot.

Stranded in their cars, workers began to panic and a few of them approached the guards to find out what the problem was, said laborer Kevin Demos.

Air Force grounds F-117s

ALAMOGORDO (AP) — As investigators probed the wreckage of a once-secret plane that crashed in a sparsely populated area north of town, the Air Force grounded its remaining fleet of 55 Stealth fighters.

Senior Master Sgt. Steve Fogler, a spokesman for Holloman Air Force Base, said Wednesday the F-117A planes were grounded to allow officials to focus on investigating the crash of one of the $46 million planes Tuesday night.

It was the fourth Stealth fighter crash in history, said Capt. Monica Aloisio, an Air Force spokeswoman at the Pentagon.

The first was a prototype on its acceptance flight and was flown by a Lockheed pilot. The pilot did survive," she said Wednesday.

The crash Tuesday sent thinning debris into three trailers, but nobody was seriously hurt. The pilot, Capt. John B. Mills, safely ejected from the plane. He was treated and released for minor injuries at the base hospital, base spokesman Bob Pepper said.

The Air Force would not speculate on the cause of the crash, Pepper said, adding the probe could take months.

Allergic reaction claims Porcaro

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Drummer Jeff Porcaro of the Grammy-winning rock band Toto died of a heart attack after an apparent allergic reaction to pesticides he was using in his yard, his manager said Thursday.

Porcaro, 38, was spraying pesticides in the garden of his home in suburban Hidden Hills on Wednesday when he collapsed, said manager Larry Fitzgerald.

He was pronounced dead at a hospital Wednesday evening, said Margaret White, a spokeswoman for the coroner's office. An autopsy was planned to determine the exact cause of death, she said.

"He was doing a little yard work," said Fitzgerald. "The doctor believes the pesticides somehow triggered an allergic reaction and he suffered a cardiac arrest."

Special guest to tell tales in Sun Valley

SUN VALLEY — Jim Cogan, an educator-storyteller and former area resident, will be the special guest at the Sun Valley Arts and Crafts Festival. Festival hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. today and Sunday and 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday. Admission is free.

Located on the soccer field at the Sun Valley resort, the festival will host 130 artists. Among the arts and crafts featured will be ceramics, photography, clothing, sculpture, furniture, painting, fiber and toys.

Cogan, also known as "Quijote," will gather children and adults together at various intervals during the festival to relate myths, legends, instructive folktales and original stories. Also featured will be the jazz and classical guitar work of Carl Dede and Bill Borneman. A schedule of specific times will be posted at the festival.

Cogan, a former staff member at the Community School in Ketchikan, is gaining national recognition for his work with children, parents and teachers in the fields of storytelling, history and literacy. He travels throughout the United States and presents concerts and workshops for the National Storytelling Congress, the National Park Service and, regionally, the Boise Literacy Rally, among others. He is also active as a consultant to corporations, correctional institutions, school districts and environmental organizations.

Cogan is the co-founder of the Ojai Storytelling Guild in Ojai, Calif., where he currently resides, and a member of the National Association for the Preservation and Perpetuation of Storytelling.

The Sun Valley Co. offers food and beverages at several locations on or adjacent to the festival grounds. For more information, call Sally Brock at the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities (726-9491).

9 bands to perform all day at Country Rock Jamboree

SHOSHONE — The 7th annual Country Rock Jamboree will run from 11 a.m. to dusk Sunday in Shoshone City Park. Nine bands will play all day, and families are invited to bring picnic lunches. Treats will be sold at a small concession stand.

Bands scheduled to play this year are Cat and the Bush Pilots, Snake River Band, Rock and Country, Idaho Rodeo Band, Leather and Lace, Hot Ride, Bob Nora, Quick Draw and Renegade.

Souvenir hats and T-shirts will be for sale. The main dance floor will be in the sheltered picnic area next to the band stage. The city pool, nearby, will be open for swimming. Regular swim fees will be charged.

The jamboree is free and open to the public.

Music leads Bob Nora on life's travels

By Denise Turner
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Bob Nora's love affair with music has determined his direction in life for nearly all of his 45 years. He plans to keep it that way.

"All I ever wanted to do was play music," said Nora, whose Bob Nora Band is currently tuning up for next week's St. Edward's street dance. "My goal is to keep getting better and better."

It all started 40 years ago, when Nora began plunking out tunes on the piano. He came by his musical talent naturally. His father, the senior Bob Nora, was once a leader of big bands in Omaha, Neb.

The Noras moved from Omaha to Twin Falls when young Bob was 8. An only child, he graduated from Twin Falls High School and then moved to California to study music at Los Angeles City College and Immaculate Heart Conservatory. He made his music in Los Angeles and Hawaii for 20 more years before returning to his home base, two years ago.

These days, Nora performs at places like the Blue Lakes Country Club, Weston Plaza, the Turf Club, the Boise Art Museum and the Ste. Chappelle Summer Jazz Festival in Caldwell. He does a brunch show at BLT's near Sun Valley and frequently crisscrosses the highways from Wyoming to Utah to Washington. "Two years ago, I had 50,000 miles on my car," Nora said. "Today it has 175,000 miles."

Nora is partial to the Twin Falls area, though he doesn't love to settle in for the duration. "I love to travel the country, and I love jazz," he said. "There is not one jazz club in the entire state of Idaho."

As a result, Nora's band often plays music on request. The repertoire ranges from rock to rhythm and blues to country and western to pop to big band. "If no one wants to hear the jazz I love to play, I just play something else," Nora said. "And, in a way, it's good for me to learn the new things."

Nora has learned a lot traveling with various bands throughout the years. In Los Angeles, he studied jazz under Sonny Criss and played a club dates with Johnny Raycheck and Richard Berry, who wrote "Louie Louie."

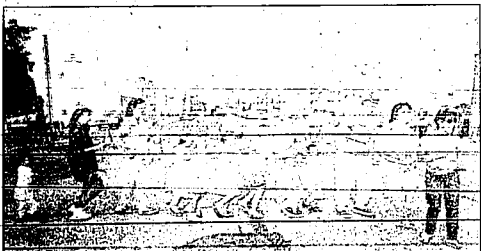

"He doesn't look anything like you'd expect," Nora said of Berry. "He looks like a Harvard professor."

Nora spent seven years in Hawaii, where he performed with Don Ho. His 7-

Sweet Baby James develops political edge to his music

By Gary Graff
Knight-Ridder News Service

With the environment on red alert, the economy in chaos, urban areas in decay and racial relations polarized, it's hard these days to be Sweet Baby James.

So on his latest album, "New Moon Shine," veteran singer-songwriter James Taylor has stepped away from the intensely personal reflections that have been his trademark. Instead, he has taken on a broader array of political and social concerns, including civil rights, the environment and warringongering.

It's not something he has done often. While his election year timing is impeccable, it's not an artistic step taken lightly by the writer of "Fire and Rain" and singer of "You've Got a Friend." "I think as a musician my responsibility is to shut up about it and play music," Taylor, 44, says by telephone from his seaside home in Nantucket, where he

In these days, preceding the presidential election, James Taylor isn't the only troubadour pursuing a more political path.

Recent releases by many pop and country writers feature songs that deal with issues of the day. And while these singer-songwriters may not be setting the country's political agenda, they're certainly reflecting it.

political agenda. "But Taylor, who has taken part in scores of benefit concerts, hails from a generation of pop troubadours who followed in the footsteps of Woody Guthrie, the Weavers and Bob Dylan. They are united by a desire to write with verve and insight about both the human condition and the state of the world.

For Taylor it's "basically the former. But he's equally pointed when flashing 'lefty-Democratic-liberal roots' in song."

That has resulted in new songs such as "Shed a Little Light," which fondly recalls the idealism of the early civil rights movement. His "Native Son" salutes Vietnam veterans, while "Slap Leather" attacks post-Vietnam Gulf War jingoism.

"Take all the money that we need for school."

"And to keep the street people in out of the cold."

"Spend it on a weapon you can never use."

"But because of the music, I think people are attracted to me. I have an ability to put energy in a direction because of what you would call my celebrity — not because of my political awareness or my credentials as a scientist or a legislator or a scholar or anything. The energy I can muster is basically about these little songs I write, and it could be a well-argued point that it's inappropriate for me to transfer that to some

Slide lecture features Time photographer

SUN VALLEY - The Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities will present Time magazine photographer Diana Walker in a slide lecture at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Sun Valley Center Gallery. Tickets are available at the gallery and are $6 per person or $5 for Sun Valley Center members.

Walker's first photographs for Time appeared in the magazine in 1976. After covering the Mondale presidential campaign in 1984, she became one of Time's two White House photographers covering Presidents Reagan and Bush. On the White House beat, she has traveled widely, photographing summit meetings, diplomatic missions and international crises.

Walker's work has garnered prizes and awards from the White House News Photographers Association, the National Press Photographers Association and the Page One Awards. She was the 1990 recipient of a first prize award from the White House News Photographers Association for her photographs of George Bush with his troops in Saudi Arabia.

She is a native of Washington, D.C., and currently lives there with her husband, Mallory, and their sons, Taylor and Wiley.

For more information, call the Sun Valley Center at 724-9691.

Twin Falls woman to receive Governor's Award in the Arts

TWIN FALLS - Martha (Marty) Mead will head to Nampa in September to receive the Governor's Award in the Arts.

This week, Mead was named recipient of the Support of the Arts Governor's Award in recognition of her significant contributions to the arts in Idaho. The well-known Magic Valley singer was one of the founders of Dilettantes, organized fund-raising efforts for the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium, helped found JUMP CO., and assisted in organizing the Magic Valley Arts Council, the Northwest Opera Guild and the Magic Valley Chorale.

The Governor's Awards in the Arts was created in 1970 by the Idaho Commission on the Arts. Idaho was among the first in the nation to establish such a program. Today, nearly all of the 56 state and

"This summer, Nora is busily making plans to spend some time with his daughter, But, beyond that, who knows? More jazz is definitely in his future, but the specifics are not yet finalized."

When asked if he would someday like to be a household name, Nora replied with a smile, "I guess I wouldn't mind," he said.

Reception opens August galleries show

KETCHUM - Summer in Sun Valley won't not be complete without viewing the wide array of art the area's art galleries have to offer.

The Sun Valley Gallery Association makes it easy to visit all 14 member galleries with an opening reception for the August show from 6 to 9 p.m. today. Many of the featured artists will be in attendance and complimentary hors d'oeuvres, beverages and music will be provided.

Each Thursday throughout the month of August, the gallery association will sponsor free guided tours of the galleries. Those interested should meet at the Ketchum Town Square at 9:45 a.m. for the two-hour tour. All galleries are within easy walking distance of one another.

Anne Reed Gallery, 620 Sun Valley Road, will present the realistic paintings of Janet Fish. Well known for her oil and pastel paintings of glass objects, fruit and flowers, Fish saturates her compositions with richly executed motion and energy. Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and noon to 4 p.m. Sunday. (726-2036).

Joseph's Galleries, Sixth and Leadville, will exhibit the artwork with watercolors of Native American artifacts by Theodore Villa. His innovative techniques reflect the richness of hand-tanned leather, the movement of decorative fringe and the polished brilliance of multicolored beadwork. From closer inspection, symbols of modern culture appear. Open 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday. (726-4950).

Gail Severn Gallery, 620 Sun Valley Road, will exhibit the work of two sculpture artists: Gwynn Murrill and Mark Lindquist.

Murrill, internationally known for her sculptures of animals, will present new bronzes of life-size cougars, coyotes, domestic cats and dogs, with smaller sculptures of bears, wolves and birds. Lindquist will show his newest non-objective sculpture and painted wood wall relief, similar to his pieces in the Metropolitan Museum of Art collection. Hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, 10

The Kavesh Gallery's 'Landscape: Alternative Prospects' includes Susan Elsen's 'Evening in the Wadi' clay work.

Kavesh Gallery, The Atrium at Fifth and Leadville, will present a group exhibition, "The Landscape: Alternative Prospects," which considers the issue of the landscape from 10 very different points of view.

No "sofa-size paintings whose colors match the draperies" are to be seen here. Open 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday. (726-2523).

Kneeland Gallery, 271 First Ave. N., will present "Animalia," a troika mix of styles and mediums with each artist's interpretation of animals from dogs, horses, cows, bear and trout to endangered species. Featured artists include K.C. Bonesteel, Thom Ross, Will Caldwell, Dan Vigil, Larry Firnie and David Wharton. Hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and noon to 5 p.m. Saturday. (725-5512).

The Red Dog Gallery and Blue Bird Supply, 891 Warm Springs Road, will feature the work of Larry Merlin Williamson of Panaca, Nev. Williamson's woodpieces of people and animals are made from found organic materials. In addition, Debbie Feders, Singers of Ketchum will display new outdoor sculptures and painted birdhouses. Open 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday or by appointment. (726-2602).

River Run Gallery, 291 First Ave., will exhibit oil pastel drawings by Okidawia artist Jean Richardson. She addresses equine imagery in these new works, created expressly for the gallery's show. The drawings retain the action and texture for which Richardson is known but have a somewhat more literal translation. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday. (726-8878).

The Roland Gallery, 601 Sun Valley Road, will feature the award winning work of fiber artist Kim Huber. His bold contemporary colors and designs are first painted onto silk, which is then used to create scarves, kimono coats, and other wearable art. A native of Kentucky, Huber has won numerous awards, including the prestigious Atlanta Arts Award. Open 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily. (726-2333).

Steve Snyder Gallery, 131 W. Fourth St., will feature Steve Snyder's photographs, which capture the western mystique in fine art images of black and white and sepia. Snyder's photographs embrace the beauty of Idaho's mountains, the coastal Pacific Northwest, and the Native American Southwest. Hours are noon to 4 p.m. daily. (726-8100).

Stonington Gallery, 220 East Ave. next to Piccolo's Pasta, will present new works by artist Nancy Taylor for Stonington. This spring, Stonington went on a week-long Salmon River trip and returned with a magnificent group of watercolor images as seen from the river and camps along the way. Open 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. (726-4826).

Sun Valley Center Gallery, 620 Sun Valley Road, will feature works by artists Penny Mulligan of Seattle and John Pavlicek.

Pavlicek, inspired by the tradition of Cubist painting and collage, delights in arranging pre-formed paper shapes, cutouts and printed images, combined with acrylic painting, to create harmonious and rich compositions. Like Pavlicek's work, Mulligan's sculptures play strict geometry against seductive curves. Bronze and painted or stainless steel are used to form bold and intriguing abstract sculptures. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and by appointment Sunday. (726-6491).

Toneri Art Gallery, 620 Sun Valley Road, will exhibit new oversized watercolors by local artist Lynn Toneri. Her work includes a vivid collection of landscape, floral, fish and wildlife watercolors, as well as summer scenes of the Wood River Valley. The gallery will also feature contemporary arts and crafts from Northwest artists. Open 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily. (726-5639).

Antique cars rev up for 24th annual car show

JEROME - Antique cars, restored to like-new condition, hard to find old car parts and a wide variety of arts and crafts will fill the North and South parks on Main Street Saturday and Sunday.

The 24th annual car show, swap meet and arts and crafts fair is sponsored by the Magic Valley Chapter of the Veteran Motor Car Club of America. Swap items from southern Idaho and several other states will be set up late today for the weekend event. No pre-registration is required. Show cars may be entered either Saturday or Sunday mornings. No entry fee will be charged for show cars, trucks and art objects, and the public is invited at no admission charge.

Exhibitors will vote for first and second place trophy winners in seven show categories. Awards will be presented at 3 p.m. Sunday.

The city of Jerome has granted the use of the parks to the VMCCA for most of the past 24 years, and many old car collectors and swappers have made the car show a regular part of their summer schedules.

The show is one of few shows in the area offering a collection of antique cars painstakingly restored to original condition. This year's show is offering special words-to-other car clubs that have supported the event. The Magic Valley Chevy Club, Magic Valley Model A Club and Classic T-Birds of Idaho will enter special displays. Most of the classic Thunderbirds, all 1955-1957 cars, will be on the show grounds from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday only.

More information is available from show officials, Russ Smedley (733-7189) and Bonnie Jones (733-0631), co-chairmen; Merle Jones (324-4112), arts and crafts; and Opal Howell (324-4271), local arrangements.

Baseball tale reminds us of language misuse

DEAR ABBY: You had a column recently that I enjoyed very much. It had to do with improper misusage of the language.

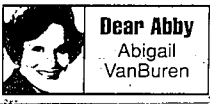

That subject brings to mind this story that Vin Scully, radio/TV announcer for the Los Angeles Dodgers, enjoys telling.

It seems there was a very talented outfielder who had played for Harvard University's baseball team. He could gather in any fly ball that he could anywhere near his territory - and when he caught it, he'd yell, "I got it! I got it!"

Between innings, the manager went to this player and said, "Jonsey - you are undoubtedly the best outfielder in college baseball, but I would like to remind you that we represent a highly respected university, and we should speak accordingly." The correct phrase is, "I have it!"

The outfielder replied, "OK, Coach. I'll remember."

The next inning, Jonsey went to his position, and the inevitable fly ball came toward him. He jumped two feet into the air and caught it, yelling, "I have it! I have it!" Then

Dear Abby
Abigail VanBuren

he promptly dropped the ball.

— A.R. CHARLES, CONCORD, CALIF.
DEAR MR. CHARLES: Beautiful! Thanks for the memory.

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Remembering Lisa," the man who could not forget his high school sweetheart, tell him to leave no stone unturned. It may be the best thing that ever happened to him.

I, too, had a young man I had dated whom I could not get out of my system. He had married and divorced, and I had never married. We found each other last February, and we are to be married in October!

Neither of us was (or is) the same. We are older, wiser, and much more able to handle all aspects of our relationship, including those that troubled us early on.

Don't let the distance stop you. We were 1,300 miles apart, and now reside in the same city. Abby, one phone call could change his life. It did mine. You may use my name.

— LOVE IS LOVELIER THE SECOND TIME AROUND, KIM JOHNSON, DENVER, CO.

DEAR KIM: Congratulations and may all of God's blessings be yours. Your letter is further testimony to the wisdom of keeping all one's old telephone numbers and addresses. Nothing ventured, nothing gained.

DEAR ABBY: I light the timexes in your column. Please keep them coming. Here's my all-time favorite. I believe Bennett Cerf is the author:

Wrote a swan to his gal in Saskatchewan:

"If you'll wear my ring, I'll dis-patchewm."

"By parcel post when

Elkhorn Music Festival kicks off

SUN VALLEY - Returning for an eighth season of free outdoor concerts, the Elkhorn Music Festival begins Saturday and continues through Aug. 23.

Nature's Realm is this year's theme. The one-hour concerts are held at 6:30 p.m. on the plaza at Radisson's Elkhorn Resort. Concerts will be held nightly except Thursdays when Jazz on the Green provides jazz entertainment from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Seating is under the open-air tent with picnics welcome on the lawn.

Founded by Conductor Carl Eherl in 1985, the festival has now evolved into a premiere 35-member ensemble. Last year more than 10,000 people attended. Musicians from prestigious orchestras and symphonies from across the country vie for positions with the orchestra. This year's festival is headed by Raymond Robler, concertmaster of the San Francisco Symphony.

On Saturday, America the Beautiful is the theme, with Grofé's "Painted Desert," Rodgers' "Oklahoma!" and lives' "Central Park in the Dark." Sunday evening, the Elkhorn Chamber Players, with guest artist Paul Renzi, will give the first of three chamber recitals.

On Monday, Flora and Fauna abound with classics for the kids, such as Tchaikovsky's "Waltz of the Flowers," McDowell's "Woodland Sketches," and Prokofiev's "Peter and the Wolf." Birds take over on Tuesday with Avian Jazz.

A special benefit is planned on Wednesday, combining visual and performing arts at the Kneeland Gallery in Ketchum. Meet the Artists brings together the paintings of local artist K.C. Bonesteel and the music of composer Carl Byron. This is the only event that is not free.

Classics on Deck will be held free of charge at noon at the Trail Creek Village on the south entrance to Ketchum followed by a performance at 5:30 p.m. at the Galleria.

On Aug. 14, Gardens, Deserts, Fire is the theme, and the summer's choral and orchestral collaboration, "The Creation" by Franz Josef Haydn, is set for Aug. 15 with the Wood River Community Chorus, the Idaho Falls Chorus and the Camerata Singers from Pocatello.

On Aug. 16 The East Trio will perform works by Brahms, Weber and Gnaeusner, with another Classics for Kids! set for Aug. 17. On Aug. 18, it's Summer/Winter, and a special benefit concert for festival patrons will be held Aug. 19.

Classics on Deck returns at noon Aug. 20 on the Sun Valley Lodge Terrace and again at 5:30 p.m. at the Creekside Restaurant. On Aug. 21, Mountains and Prairies come to mind. Voices of Spring can be heard Aug. 22, with the final concert of the season, a chamber recital set for Aug. 23.

Benefit tickets for Wednesday, priced at $20, may be purchased at Elkhorn or the Kneeland Gallery or at Chapter One Bookstore in Ketchum. For further information contact the festival office at 622-4511, ext. 3114.

Wilson Phillips sings about unhappiness with fathers

NEW YORK (AP) - Wilson Phillips may owe their harmonizing heritage to their famous fathers, but the trio also remembers the pain their dads caused. So on their second album, they sing about those unhappy relationships.

"We were excited to express ourselves individually. The last time we didn't."

It's of course widely known that re-born Wendy Wilson, 22, and "re-mixed" Carnie Wilson, 24, are the daughters of Brian Wilson, songwriter-singer-arranger of the Beach Boys, and that blonde Chynna Phillips, 24, is the daughter of John and Michelle Phillips of the Mamas and the Papas.

"And much was made of their musical forebears when their debut album, 'Wilson Phillips,' was released in 1990 by SBK. Four hit singles - 'Hold On,' 'Release Me,' 'Impulsive' and 'You're in Love' - came from it.

Besides releasing the follow-up album 'Shadows and Light,' Wilson Phillips will start touring in late August.

"The new album makes me so emotional. I guess you can't think of the lyrics when you're performing. Otherwise we'd be howling in the middle of the set," Wendy Wilson said.

"We have no contact with our father," Carnie Wilson said. "He invited us out to lunch, individually, two years ago, right before the first single came out. Since then we haven't seen or talked to him."

"The song 'Flesh and Blood,' she went on, "is our way of reaching out to him. He'll probably be shocked. It's a very sad song. It's like we're yearning, saying, 'The fact we're your daughters, isn't that enough? Make you want to know us? How can we be enemies when we're related?'"

Said Wendy Wilson: "I remember when you came up with that line, I started crying. We all did, even Glen." (They wrote seven of the songs, including the one, with producer Glen Ballard.)

"When we got together two years ago, I would look in his eyes and see a very sad man," Carnie Wilson said. "He's my father. I don't have the relationship I want to. Maybe someday I will. I'm very angry at him and he knows that. I think he is brain-damaged. He did a lot of drugs."

As recently as December their father was involved in a court wrangle that resulted in a settlement ordering him to stay away from his longtime psychologist and submit his finances to a conservator.

The lawsuit, which tore apart the famous musical family, was filed by Wilson's brother, Carl, and their cousins, Mike and Stan Love. They portrayed Eugene Jandry, Wilson's live-in psychologist and business partner, as an opportunist who brainwashed Wilson and used him as a multimillion-dollar cash cow.

"Chynna Phillips at least has rekindled her relationship with her father, who recently had a life-saving transplant to replace his liver, destroyed by years of abusing alcohol and illegal drugs."

She said there's "been a nice turnaround in the last couple of years. I've been able to spend time with him and talk. We reached out to each other."

She also co-wrote "Where Are You?" about child molestation.

"When I was 6, I was molested by a stranger," Phillips said. "This year, I really felt I needed to vent my feelings about what had happened to me. I think it was an important step for me into adulthood to be able to let go of that."

"I was nervous about putting it on the album. It puts me in a vulnerable place. So many people don't try and tackle what happened because it is so overwhelming. It'll never go away but it's possible to make yourself at peace with it."

"I was sitting at the piano. I never tried to write about it before. I could remember staring out a window. It was my only escape out of that room."

"The writing went fast, though. ... I said, 'Wilson said they'd often write a song in a day. Her sister explained: 'We'd stored all these emotions in us for two years. They just came out.'"

Said Phillips: "I could feel it building, when I was about to write. I felt this energy in my chest. I knew I had stuff I needed to vent."

Eastwood revives the western, and maybe we should thank him for it

By Bill Cosford
Knight-Ridder News Service

Eastwood

Westerns are the most revered and most influential film form in the history of world cinema.

We hate 'em.

This is quite a yarn, actually. It starts with the introduction of a narrative in film, which is generally traced to a western - Edwin S. Porter's 1903 "The Great Train Robbery" (filmed, my bucaranos, in the wilds of New Jersey). It wraps with the evidence of box-office receipts and Hollywood production schedules, that say we have all but turned our backs on the most storied genre in Hollywood history.

Today, when Clint Eastwood makes a new western and packs the cast with heavyweights, close observers of Hollywood call it risky business. "Unforgiven," with Eastwood as a onetime gunslinger who must strap 'em on one more time - and with Gene Hackman, Morgan Freeman and Richard Harris in the cast - is the newest. This, say the "braves" and the movie magazines, runs Warner Bros., the distributor, out a limb.

Now, there was a time when Hollywood made more westerns than any other kind of film, and we liked it that way. And a time when there were more than 30 television westerns on the air. But westerns don't appeal to any longer. They haven't for years.

There is the occasional aberration: the two "Young Guns" movies ('88 and '90) were box-office successes; producers correctly figured fans of brut-packers Charlie Sheen, Kiefer Sutherland and Lou Diamond Phillips would pay to see them in ANYTHING, even a movie about Billy the Kid. And "Dances With Wolves," the biggest movie surprise of 1990, was regarded as an epic fluke.

Other popular film forms have fallen from favor, it's true. You don't see many musicals any more at the Colorado River through the Grand Canyon, and it's a pity to see that don't involve dancing tapots or singing fish.

But no genre has fallen from such a height as the western. Somewhere along the line, the myths lost their resonance. Westerns depended for their formula - and for decades it was as rigid a narrative frame as anything popular culture has devised - on a familiar roster of key elements. Westerns had horses, they had wide open spaces that posed a physical challenge to anyone passing through, they had violence, they had great scenery and they drew on history. They were the first and most direct cinema stages for enacting uncomplimented stories of good triumphing over evil.

They also employed two more subtle elements, themes that were rarely explicit, but which drove many a plot. A frequent character was the outlaw hero; typically a gunslinger with a fondness for a date from his now-found peacable ways to settle a score on behalf of the innocent.

And a frequent motif was that of white supremacy: in all but a handful of westerns ("Dances With Wolves" the most recent exception), American Indians were seen as nothing more than obstacles to civilization.

In these elements are the seeds of the western's popularity, and the agents of its collapse. Take them one at a time:

Horses no longer interest people. They are no longer transportation for anyone, and no longer even expensive pets for any but the affluent few.

The "wide open spaces" remain, but they are no challenge to anyone who doesn't seek them out specifically for that challenge. We fly over the Badlands. It costs you good money to run the Colorado River through the Grand Canyon, and it's a pity to see that you don't get to throw up a cabin and stake your claim.

Violence endures as a narrative staple in movies, and modern movie violence is much more explicit than anything vintage westerns employed. Those were the days of the bloodless gunshot wound and the bruise-free, rollicking fistfight. The reality of violent America overtook the myth of western showdowns.

As for that great scenery, it is now within reach of the average American; the movies can't depend on their appeal as travelogues in a time when almost everyone travels.

And history? The westerns were never all that accurate, though they did observe the trappings and codes of the period. But we have memories at short as our history, and period pieces are a tough sell.

The theme of white man as civilizer and rightful appropriator of "untamed" lands is now in such disarray that a good part of the appeal of "Dances With Wolves" was laid to its portrayal of the Sioux as spiritual superiors to the settlers and their cavalry who slaughtered the Indians for their property.

Only the myth of the outlaw hero seems to have any resonance left for modern audiences, but even that idea has long since migrated onto modern urban plots.

So the western is dead (sporadic revivals such as "Unforgiven" aside), and long live the western, and you care, anyway?

Actually, we should. The virtues of the western are simple and clean and timeless. Good meets evil. Families eke out a living on hard ground (stolen though it may be). Man pushes the frontier of his experience. Dance-hall gals-bop-sodden cowpokes over the heads with whiskey bottles.

Director scores with 'Death Becomes Her'

By Lawrence Toppan
Knight-Ridder News Service

"Death Becomes Her" will turn your head, your stomach, or maybe both at once. Its comedy is so raucous, insensitive and outrageous that it will drive audiences into the convulsed and the repulsed. I'm in the first camp.

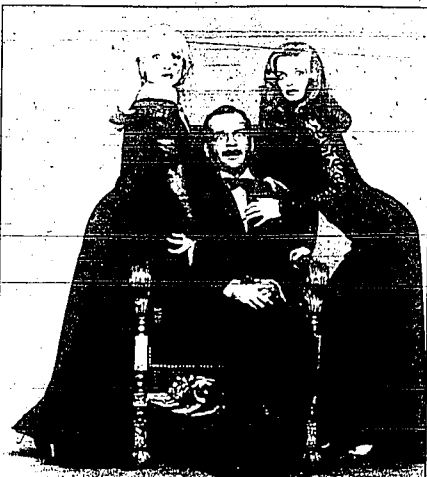

Director Bob Zemeckis has now given us three of the most innovative, offbeat and witty comedies of the last seven years: "Back to the Future," "Who Framed Roger Rabbit" and this nose-thumbing at our beauty-conscious culture.

He's abetted by Martin Donovan and David Koepp, writers who had teamed before only for the unheralded "Apartment Zero." The macabre humor comes in equal measure from their script and Zemeckis' direction, which makes constant fun of horror film clichés.

This creative trio is perfectly in tune with Goldie Hawn, Meryl Streep and Bruce Willis. Those stars have usually been typecast as zany, bratty and completely, and each of them rejoices in this opportunity to shatter their molds.

Streep takes the high road as bluff-brained Madeline Ashton, a Broadway musical star obsessed with crew's feet and turkey wattles. Goldie Hawn goes for a playmaker's belly meanness as Helen Sharp, who lost her fiance to Ashton 14 years ago and now wants him back (if only to humiliate her long-time rival).

Willis is Ernest Menville, a top-flight plastic surgeon who turns to the bottle during his unhappy marriage to Madeline and ends up wiping the smirks off corpses at Forest Lawn. The fourth side to this twisted rectangle is Isabella Rossellini, an ageless beauty consultant who promises Madeline she can become beautiful forever.

Meryl Streep, Bruce Willis and Goldie Hawn rejoice in the chance to shatter their typical movie molds in "Death Becomes Her."

The actors have so much fun with these characters that their excesses can be forgiven, even enjoyed. Streep has never fought her accents-and-Oscars image so successfully, whether vamping on stage in a self-indulgent number titled "Me" or looking on in wonder as the beauty potioneer firms up her butt and realigns her bosom. Hawn takes special delight in Helen's early scenes, where the filled woman hoists to 200 pounds and surrounds herself with cats.

Review

Willis, whose previous string of smirking performances had been interrupted only by "In Country" and the "Die Hard" films, pulls off the hardest role: the schlumpy middleman, befuddled and eager to please. When he learns the bizarre truth about the two women who manipulate him, his voice rises to the clenched-groin pitch of Gene Wilder confronting the monster in "Young Frankenstein."

Yet the people who should be lining up at Oscar time are the effects designers: Dick Smith (makeup), Kevin Hume (prosthetics), Ken Ralston (visual effects) and Tom Woodruff and Alec Gillis Jr. (special body effects). They're the ones who turn Hawn into a daughter and Streep into an "Exorcist"-style head-swiveler, creating such superb effects that you believe there's nothing these "imortal" bodies can't do.

The plot lets them down slightly: The magic potion's effects vary with the user, as the writers change the rules of the game slightly. They've also tacked on a redundant ending, which is unnecessary after we realize the wickedly apt destinies these characters face.

Those are small drawbacks to a movie whose grand design is so uproariously nasty. The greatest pleasure comes from seeing Hollywood, a community of narcissists, pointing a satiric finger at its own images of physical perfection. Half the actresses who live there would probably sell their souls, families and rights to star in "Batman 3" to get a sip of such a potion.

'Buffy the Vampire Slayer' lives up to its goofball title

Los Angeles Times

Capsule reviews

The following are capsule reviews of movies now showing in the Magic Valley. Ratings are by the Motion Picture Association of America and the Los Angeles Times. Opinions are by Los Angeles Times reviewers.

BUFFY THE VAMPIRE SLAYER (PG-13). As high-spirited, undeniably silly and not particularly deep as its teen-age heroine, this is one film that lives up to the promise of its goofball title. Starring Kristy Swanson as a hom-to-shop airhead who discovers she is really born to save the world, with nice supporting work by Donald Sutherland as her mentor and Luke Perry as the only guy who takes her seriously. In a particularly bloated summer, "Buffy" knows enough not to take itself too seriously.

is the not unfamiliar device that never fits into the funniest mainstream comedy in who knows how long. A tribute to those often denigrated qualities, slickness and professionalism, "Sister," helped in no small measure by superlative supporting performances by Maggie Smith, Kathy Najimy, Mary Wickes and Wendy Makkena, is just about as good as Hollywood gets.

A LEAGUE OF THEIR OWN (PG). Blessed with a pleasing comedy concept (World War II women's baseball), a funny director (Penny Marshall) and a cast that knows its way around the bases (Geena Davis, Tom Hanks, Madonna), this lightweight entertainment can't hold a lead. Stating out funny, it just about drowns in excessive sentimentality and unnecessary plot complications.

Rossellini stands out from crowded 'Death' field

By Larry Hackett
New York Daily News

NEW YORK — Case of the pretty-face biting the hand that feeds it?

No, says Isabella Rossellini, not a bite. Just a nip. "I called Lancone," she says, referring to the cosmetics giant she's represented in advertisements for 11 years, "and I said, 'I'm going to do the perfect film! I have the better answer for youth!'"

With Meryl Streep, Goldie Hawn and Bruce Willis crowding the marquee, "Death Becomes Her," the new comedy by Bob Zemeckis, doesn't appear to leave much room for Rossellini. Still, her turn as the eternally beautiful potion peddler Lisa von Ruman has enough irony — and comic hits — to stand out.

The reclusive von Ruman operates an unlicensed Fountain of Youth for the more desperately vain of her Beverly Hills clients. They include Streep and Hawn, who both come to her separately for a double shot of perpetual good looks.

The transaction has unforeseen developments, which are the heart of this satire about the beauty myth: Not the sort of picture where one expects to find the world's foremost face in the beauty business making an appearance.

Rossellini, however, says Lancone was thrilled. "It's the same goal, lipstick and this kind of film," she laughs. "It's to make people feel good. We're on the same mission."

Maybe, but Rossellini's twin missions are on very different paths. In one, she is the visage of mainstream elegance, the face a global cosmetics company eagerly chooses to hide behind.

Rossellini is Isabella Rossellini, an ageless beauty consultant who promises Madeline she can become beautiful forever.

Her choices are not intentionally against the grain, Rossellini says.

"We all want people to go see the films, obviously, but there's always a search for something new, rather than just repeating something that has been done," she says, squinting a bit in the late-morning sunlight splashing her upper East Side hotel room terrace.

"I might just have that strange little taste," she adds. "It might just be my background. My father's films were so artistic, with very, very little concession to commercialism."

(Dad is Roberto Rossellini, the famous late-Italian film director. Mom, was Ingrid Bergman. A whole other story entirely.)

Her eagerness for the part in "Death" turned to anxiety when she learned whom she would have to face — and face down — on screen.

According to the script, Streep and Hawn come to von Ruman in the final throes of their desperation. They are at the mercy of the sorceress, who struts about her hair nearly naked and accompanied by two feather-stand boy toys.

"(They (Hawn, Streep and Willis) were delightful people, but it is their reputations that are intimidating," Rossellini says. "It's not easy to talk down to Meryl Streep, you know what I mean? Here I had to overwhelm her, and I felt completely overwhelmed by her."

Sort of like that time she had dinner with Mikhail Baryshnikov during the making of her first American picture, "White Nights." Misha, it seemed, was having such a good time that he kept up at dinner's end and shouted, "Let's go dancing!"

Rossellini laughs at the memory. "We all became self-conscious. It ruined the evening for us."

IF AUGUST 7 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY:

You are spiritual, precient, your own most secret critic. You are dynamic, considered by many to be a "mysterious figure." Before August is finished, you'll have more responsibility... could be madly in love, might be anticipating addition to family. Married or single, you'll be saying, "At first I thought this was more than I could handle... I wouldn't have missed a letter of the world."

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You'll feel as if the whole wide world is there, waiting for you. Focus on university, travel, correspondence, love in its most idealistic, idyllic state. You'll say, "Life can be beautiful... I'm in love!"

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You'll be pleased by legal settlement, division of property. Emphasis on sales, purchases, participation in commercial enterprise. Marital status also commands portion of spotlight. Exciting menu!

Hunters have little time to voice fowl opinion

By Larry Hovey
Times-News writer

JEROME — The time crush of establishing the continental migratory waterfowl population and converting that into possible hunting and harvest seasons leaves Magic Valley hunters just one day for input on this year's season.

The Idaho Fish and Game Department received the framework guidelines from the U.S. Forest Service Monday and put together its recommendations by Thursday noon. Those ideas were faxed to regional offices. The only places hunters can give their opinions of the recommendations.

The waterfowl season open house will be conducted at the Jerome regional headquarters from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday. Any input received will be immediately forwarded to Boise where it will receive consideration when the Fish and Game Commission makes its final enactment Thursday or Friday at its quarterly meeting.

Region 4 Wildlife Manager Craig Kvack said the department suggestions have "very few changes" from last year.

The season — the Interior Department allows 59 days — would run from Oct. 10 to Oct. 17 in the first split and conclude Nov. 14 to Jan. 3 in area 3, which includes all of Magic Valley except small portions of Camas and Blaine counties and the Minidoka Wildlife Refuge (Lake Walcott).

That area 2 proposal, which would encompass the Camas, Blaine and Minidoka wildlife refuge exceptions, has two options. The first would be the same as last year, opening Oct. 3 and running through Nov. 30.

The second, requested by eastern Idaho hunters seeking more late season opportunity, would delay the season until Oct. 17 and run through Dec. 14.

Shooting hours and bag and species limits would remain the same as last year.

The goose season also follows the calendar.

Ward finishes 5th, may have set record

RICHFIELD Becky Ward, a sophomore at Richfield High School, was fifth in the National Junior Olympic Championships and probably set an all-time best at 1500 meters for an Idaho lass. Finishing in the finals at Mt. San Antonio College in Walnut, Calif., Ward covered the 1500 meters in 4:46.18, which converts to a 3:03 mile. That would be the record that no one in Idaho has ever matched. It was also a full 10 seconds off her previous personal best.

Earlier, she'd placed third in her qualifying heat with a 4:38.

"It's great to have a national medal," said Ward.

She also participated in the 800-meter run and turned in a solid 2:22.75 but that wasn't enough to advance her to the finals. However, she had the 12th best time overall.

Jerome sets 1st grid practice, times to pick up equipment

JEROME — Jerome High School will conduct its first football practice at 8 a.m. Aug. 17.

Seniors may pick up their equipment from 9 a.m. to noon Aug. 11, juniors from 9 a.m. to noon on Aug. 12 and sophomores from 9 a.m. to noon on Aug. 13. A team meeting is slated for 7 p.m. Aug. 14 at the school.

UAB, Illinois head teams in Great Alaska Shootout

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — The University of Alaska Anchorage on Thursday announced first-round pairings for the 15th annual Great Alaska Shootout.

Alabama-Birmingham will play Vanderbilt, the UAA Seawolves will play Oregon, the UAA will play Dayton and New Mexico State will meet Tennessee-Chattanooga.

The Shootout is Nov. 25-28 at the Sullivan Arena.

Jeffcoat ends holdout, reports to Cowboys' training camp

DALLAS — Veteran lineman Jim Jeffcoat ended his holdout with the Dallas Cowboys on Thursday, leaving the team with six unsigned veterans.

"Details of Jeffcoat's contract were not disclosed."

Jeffcoat flew to Miami to join the team, but it was uncertain whether the defensive end would play in Friday night's game against the Dolphins.

Last year, Jeffcoat was fifth on the team for quarterback sacks with 3.5. He is seventh in sacks among the NFL's active defensive players with 66 since 1982.

'King Carl' heads list of gold-medal winners

The Associated Press

BARCELONA, Spain — King Carl led a U.S. sweep in the long jump. Kevin Young shot down a 29-year-old world record, and Mike Markl had a very merry un-birthday. It seemed like a golden opportunity to throw an All-American party at the Summer Olympics.

"I've got the gold, I've got the record, I've got it all. Today's my lucky day," Young said, echoing the sentiments of a marvelously talented group of American athletes, who heard enough national anthems Thursday for a week of baseball.

Let's invite sprinter Gwen Torrence and wrestler Bruce Baumgartner to the party, too. Torrence is new to these parties.

Big Bruce? Well, he got his first hat and whistle eight years ago and is the only American wrestler ever to win medals in three straight Olympics.

Save a piece of cake for Dave Johnson, while you're at it. He didn't make the gold-medal party, but he toughed it out in the decathlon with a sore, possibly broken, right ankle for a bronze medal.

"That hurt so much, it hurt so much," Johnson said. "I had to battle my injury, battle the competition and battle the crowd. If everything had been healthy, we'd be talking about a different thing right now."

Now, he can go back to selling shoes.

Don't expect big plays out of Eagles

Cunningham says offense structured differently under Kotite

PHILADELPHIA — Leadership, not big plays, is what Randall Cunningham talks about as he takes back control of the Philadelphia Eagles' offense this week.

No more talk about Buddy Ryan and making five big plays a game. A preseason game Saturday at Pittsburgh will be his first action since he opened the Rich-Kotite era last year with a knee injury that put him out for the season.

"I'm a veteran now, so it's time for me to start taking more control. You might see more leadership out of me as far as telling guys, 'You should get more depth on your route.' He promises not to change his scrambling style, even though he'll be doing it this year with a brace on his left knee.

NFL preview

"I'm going to go out and play the same way I did," said Cunningham, who threw for 30 touchdowns in 1990. "I'll have to dive over somebody for a touchdown, I'll dive over them. If I have to put a move on somebody and break down and dive to the ground, then that's what I'm going to have to do."

The Eagles may learn a little more Saturday about another important question concerning their offense: How much will Herschel Walker help? Walker, carried four times losing a yard, in the Eagles' 41-14 preseason-opening loss to the New York Jets.

New Steelers coach Bill Cowher has named only one starter for his debut as successor to the retired Chuck Noll. Quarterback Mark Reynolds is the one. Cowher declined Thursday to reveal his other starters, including quarterback, when Neil O'Donnell and Bobby Brister are competing for the No. 1 job.

This week's preseason lineup began with a Thursday-night matchup in Seattle between the Seahawks and Los Angeles Rams. On Friday night, Jimmy Johnson returns to Miami as his Dallas Cowboys play the Dolphins. The Eagles-Steelers game headlines a 10-game lineup Saturday.

Fired Schembechler considers lawsuit

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. — Somebody saved the napkin.

Bo Schembechler, fired as president of the Detroit Tigers, never had a formal contract with club owner Tom Monaghan. Some figures were scribbled on a paper napkin, a deal was reached, and the two men shook hands.

Now, Schembechler wants the Tigers to live up to the terms of that agreement. He has hired a lawyer and said Thursday he is prepared to sue if an amicable settlement can't be reached.

"I had a 10-year commitment. It's pretty specific," Schembechler said. "We intend to see that it's honored. I don't want to be more specific than that."

Attorney Joseph A. Golden said Schembechler was wrongfully fired.

"There were certain promises made to him to leave the University of Michigan," Golden said. "He was to stay with the Tigers for 10 years, or until age 70."

Golden said he has asked Monaghan for a meeting within two weeks. If the situation can't be settled out of court, Schembechler

Williams, Shockey lead tourney

TWIN FALLS — Celia Collins of Twin Falls and Wilma Shockey of Paul took the first-day lead in the Bud Light Twin Falls Women's Amateur Golf Tournament Thursday.

Collins and Shockey shared the lead at five-over par 79, one stroke ahead of Chris Sterluga and Barb Galloway.

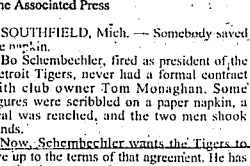

The tournament will conclude today with the second round, followed by an awards luncheon at the clubhouse.

Kathy Hanchett had an 84 to keep her hopes alive with Nancy Kemper and Della Wilson, both at 87.

In the first flight, Twin Falls' Jeanne Alban edged ahead of Mary Ferrell; Twin Falls, 87-88 with Heidi's Ruth Crawford just another step behind.

Twin Falls sophomore Whitney Lewis was at 90 with Jo Lewin by Blake Mason and Carole Kassel and Elaine Wingring, Twin Falls, at 92. Mary Obenchain was alone at 93 and Kathy Janson had a 94.

Patty Lee took the second flight lead with a 93, followed by Elizabeth by Blake Mason at 94. It was three strokes back to Pat Morrow with Elva Felton and 98, Gladys Iltruff at 99 and Roz Kintzler at 100.

Schembechler will sue, Golden said. Monaghan had no immediate comment on the remarks by Schembechler or Golden, spokeswoman Betsy Kanitz said. Schembechler and club chairman Jim Campbell were fired Monday. Schembechler, 63, a highly successful football coach at Michigan for 21 years, became Tigers president in 1990. Campbell had been with the club 43 years. In a statement announcing the firings, Monaghan cited unspecified differences with Schembechler.

Schembechler says he doesn't know why he was fired.

"I'm sitting here disappointed and confused," he said.

Monaghan, owner of financially troubled Domino's Pizza Inc., agreed last week to sell the Tigers to his pizza rival, Mike Hitch, owner of Little Caesars and the NHL Detroit

Lewis withstands furious final jump by Powell

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — It wasn't his best jump or even his best meet. But to Carl Lewis, it was his best day ever in the Olympics.

Lewis, the greatest long jumper ever and perhaps the best track and field athlete of all time, proclaimed that his seventh gold medal was his most precious.

He leaped into Olympic history, Thursday night, becoming the long jumper's first three-time gold medalist and edging world record-holder Mike Powell by 1/8 inches in the most hyped matchup of the Games.

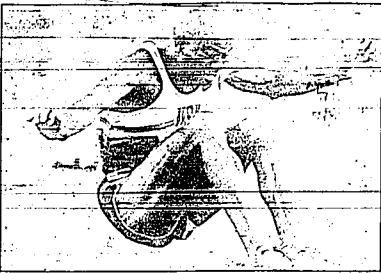

"This is my best gold medal of all," he said after surviving a furious final leap by Powell that fell just short of the winning distance of 28 feet, 3/8 inches.

"I had a rough time earlier this summer and I was so down. To come back and win is so exciting."

Weakened by a virus at the U.S. trials in June, Lewis failed to qualify for the Olympics in the 100-meter dash — in which he holds the world record — and the 200. But he recovered in the Olympics and reasserted his reputation as the best big meet performer in the sport.

"I just didn't have it today; I felt flat," said Powell, who didn't blame the loss on the sore hamstring and lower back that have slowed him recently. "I finally got going at the end, but I came up just short."

Lewis went wire-to-wire, outkicking his best jump on his first try, celebrating with a fist pump and then watching Powell try to "catch up. Before his final leap, Powell knelt in prayer for about 15 seconds with his forehead touching the track. After the jump, he again clutched his hands in prayer and walked nervously away from the pit while waiting for the scoreboard to post his distance. When Powell got the news, Lewis came over to console him with a brief embrace before grabbing an American flag and taking a victory lap.

"I thought the last jump would be enough, but it wasn't," Powell said.

Said Lewis of Powell's final jump: "It was in his hands and the hands of the Father."

Joe Greene gave the United States its first medals sweep of the Games by taking the bronze at 27-4/8. It was the fourth U.S. sweep of the long jump at the Olympics, the others coming in 1896, 1904 and 1988.

But all the pressure and all the attention were on Powell and Lewis, who waged the greatest long jump competition ever at last year's world championships, when Lewis topped 29 feet three times and still lost to Powell's world mark of 29-4/8.

That led to speculation that the 30-foot barrier might fall in Barcelona. Despite an enthusiastic crowd that clapped and shouted before each of their jumps, neither man came close on a hot, muggy night when they usually were leaping against the wind.

In fact, Lewis' winning leap was a quarter-inch shorter than his best qualifying leap the previous day.

"The wind was very difficult," said Lewis, who won four golds at Los Angeles in 1984 and two at Seoul in 1988. "It was hard to get my strides in."

zebra-patterned track suit, said he felt great during warmups.

But it took him time to find his form once the competition began.

"I got going at the end but it was a little too late," said Powell, who ended Lewis' 10-year, 65-meet winning streak at the world championships last year.

Lewis, accused of arrogance early in his career, didn't gloat after beating Powell for the 16th time in 18 meetings.

"It's not the end of anything. This is only the beginning," Lewis said. "There'll be more great competitions in the future. I don't think I'll win every one, and I don't think Mike will win every one."

The 31-year-old Lewis was noncommittal when asked whether he planned to continue competing until the 1996 Atlanta Games.

"I'm going to take it one meet at a time, one event at a time," he said.

After his first jump, Lewis' best effort was 27-10/8 on his fifth and sixth jumps. He leaped 27-4 on his second try before fouling on his next two jumps.

Powell opened with a poor jump of 26-1. He followed with leaps of 26-11/8, 27-4, a foul and 28-0 before nearly pulling off the victory with his final jump.

Greene, who fouled on his first two jumps, made his best leap on his fourth effort.

"I came here to win, but I'll settle for the bronze medal," he said. "The greatest thing is being part of a U.S. sweep of all the medals."

Reebok defeats Reebok in decathlon

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — It wasn't Dan or Dave. It was Bob. And Reebok, which spent up to $25 million on the "Dan and Dave" television advertising campaign, found solace Thursday in Robert Zmelik of Czechoslovakia, who wore Reebok shoes in winning a surprise gold medal in the decathlon.

"It took a Reebok to beat a Reebok, and we feel that the advertising campaign is one that we can be proud of as a company," said John Boulter, Reebok vice president of global sports marketing.

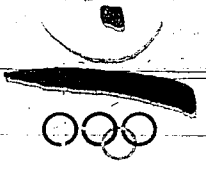

Boulter insisted Reebok's "Dan and Dave" campaign wasn't a failure even though neither Dan O'Brien, who didn't qualify for the Olympics, nor Dave Johnson, who did, won the title of the world's greatest athlete.

Johnson, the gold medal favorite from Missoula, Mont., competed on an injured right ankle and won the bronze. Spain's Antonio Peñalver was second with 8,412 points, 199 behind Zmelik. Johnson had 8,309 points.

Focused on the rivalry between Johnson and fellow American O'Brien, the world's top-ranked decathlete, Reebok built the multi-million-dollar ad campaign around the theme: "Dan or Dave — to be Settled in Barcelona."

It was settled, prematurely and dramatically, in New Orleans, when O'Brien failed to register any height in the pole vault and finished 11th in the U.S. trials in June. He came to Barcelona as a track analyst for NBC.

Things only got worse for Reebok, not to mention Dave, when Johnson, of Pomona, Calif., had to compete Thursday in great pain because of the ankle injury, possibly a stress fracture.

Johnson started the second day of the 10-event Olympics competition ninth, moved up to third with a strong showing in the javelin and led on with a gutsy 1,500-meter run.

"That was a great performance for a man who was running hurt," said Boulter, who has been in Barcelona since the start of the Games. "I think everybody in America must be proud of him. We certainly are."

"And we're very pleased and proud of Zmelik, the Czechoslovakian that won the gold medal. And as you probably noticed, he was wearing the same Reebok shoes that Dave was," he added.

Johnson injured the ankle during a 1,500-meter drill, and said he hadn't run in three weeks in hopes of resting it. It is the same ankle where a bone spur was discovered in 1987.

Boulter said Johnson has nothing to be ashamed of and Reebok has nothing to be embarrassed about.

Dave Johnson of the United States, left, a heavy favorite to win the decathlon, hugs gold medalist Robert Zmelik of Czechoslovakia after the 1,500 meters Thursday. Johnson competed with an injured ankle, but still earned a bronze.

Smirnoff might aid Russia by offsetting Olympic team costs

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — Smirnoff vodka, trying to make a splash in the Russian market, is negotiating to underwrite the future costs of Russia's Olympic sports, officials said Thursday.

Negotiations have begun on a contract that would set out terms of the sponsorship, said Paul Tynan, worldwide marketing vice president for The Pierre Smirnoff Company.

Smirnoff, which was produced in Russia in the late 19th century, has been banned from that country since the Bolsheviks seized power in 1917.

As the first step of its comeback, Smirnoff decided to underwrite the Olympic costs of the Unified Team competing here for the first — and last — time. The team includes athletes from 12 of the 15 former Soviet republics.

"They needed our money, hard cash. And we gave it. Our objective was to build good will for the brand and heightened awareness — quickly," Tynan said.

He declined to name the figure, although he said it was seven digits.

Whatever it cost, the potential profits of the current and future sponsorship are immense. Tynan said Russians consume about 200 million cases of vodka per year — four times more than the rest of the world.

The sponsorship will have to negotiate the tricky shoals of the Olympic charter, which Tynan said prohibits advertising displays for alcoholic drinks.

So unlike sportswear manufacturers, for example, Smirnoff cannot put its label on team uniforms.

Whatever the sponsorship terms, the Russians are grateful.

"They made it possible for us to be here," said Alexander Kozlovsky, vice president of the Russian Olympic Committee. From Smirnoff and Adidas, organizers of the Unified Team managed to raise $3.5 million within four months to outfit and send the 900-member delegation to the Olympics, he said.

Smirnoff, based in Farmington, Conn., is focusing its negotiations on Russia although other members of the Unified Team have approached the company about future sponsorship.

Tynan said Kozlovsky, formerly vice president of the Soviet Olympic Committee, made clear that after the Barcelona Games, each republic will be on its own.

Krabbe could face criminal investigation

BERLIN (AP) — Prosecutors are considering a criminal investigation of world champion sprinter Karin Krabbe in what might be a prelude to a crackdown on the use of performance-enhancing substances by German athletes and trainers.

Krabbe's trainer, Thomas Springstein, is already the subject of a probe, prosecutors said Thursday.

The scandal has threatened to end the career of Krabbe, a former East German competing for a unified Germany. She skipped the Barcelona Olympics as a result of an earlier drug-testing dispute.

German track officials have been seeking to halt the use of performance-enhancing substances to clear away the dark legacy of drug use by former Communist East German athletes.

"Krabbe, who has gone from heroine to pariah in the eyes of Germans, was quoted by a newspaper as admitting she took the performance-enhancing substance Clenbuterol. But she claimed she didn't know it was banned."

"We'd been using the substance since April 16, after our doctor had given us the OK," the Bild newspaper quoted her as saying. "At that time, the medication was not on any doping list. I'm totally shocked."

U.S. hammer thrower Jud Logan and two others have been accused of using Clenbuterol and expelled from the Games.

Clenbuterol is banned because it is an anabolic agent that promotes the healing and growth of muscle, the International Olympic Committee said.

Clenbuterol has some of the properties of steroids, but has not been classified as such.

One of Clenbuterol's known uses is to beef up cattle in the United States. It is available as a licensed asthma drug in Germany.

Bernad Schnitzler, chief prosecutor in Krabbe's hometown of Neubrandenburg, said the possible charges against Springstein involve violations of drug laws and causing bodily harm.

The Berliner Kurier daily newspaper quoted Schnitzler as saying Krabbe also may come under criminal investigation.

If it is proved that she took the substance, Krabbe faces an automatic four-year suspension under International Amateur Athletic Federation rules. That would make her 26 before she could compete again, and most likely past her athletic prime.

She is the reigning world champion sprinter at 100 meters and 200 meters.

Germans are reacting with disbelief to the news, saying Krabbe's extended battle to gain reinstatement after a suspension in the drug-testing dispute earlier this year should have taught her a lesson.

During a news conference in Neubrandenburg, Springstein on Thursday admitted giving Clenbuterol to Krabbe and a teammate, but claimed he did not know it was on the IAAF and IOC lists of banned substances.

Hagerman cager earns scholarship

HAGERMAN — Keri Andrus, a four-year starting guard for the Hagerman Pirates, will undertake her basketball career into the college level at the University of Alaska Anchorage this year.

Andrus, twice named an All-star in the A-1 classification by the Associated Press and a two-time Magic Valley Conference All-Star, averaged 18.5 points and 9 rebounds for the Pirates as a senior in 1991-92.

While a prepster, Andrus also lettered in both volleyball and track.

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls All-Star American Baseball Team concluded a 19-10 campaign last weekend.

The team, made up of boys 11- and 12-year-olds, captured their first place in the Boise Invitational Tournament, finished fourth in their own event and added the sportsmanship trophy in a tournament played in Burley earlier in the season.

Team member included: Chase Quesnell, Beau Percy, Mike Robbins, Jeremy Flinn, Nick Newlan, Shawn Kaufman, Rick Berry, Ryan Schmeider, Jason Ward, Jake Robinson, Scott Leavitt and Eric Studelaker.

Steve Kaufman, assisted by Terry Newlan and Dale Robinson, served as head coach of the Twin Falls team.

RICHFIELD — Becky Ward, a sophomore-to-be at Richfield High School who was first in A-3 cross country and won state championships in all three distance events in May, came away from the National Junior Olympics with yet another medal.

Ward, running in the 1992 National Junior Olympic Championships at Mt. San Antonio College in Walnut, Calif. Aug. 2, toured 1500 meters in 4:46.18 for fifth place.

That mark eclipsed the 4:48 flat Ward managed in her qualifying heat and far exceeded her personal best of 4:56 prior to the competition.

Ward missed out at 800 meters despite a 2:22.75. Only eight runners advanced to those finals.

Bears' cubs share (shattered) dreams, but push on anyway

PLATTEVILLE, Wis. (AP) — They're not Monsters of the Midway, yet — merely Bear cubs.

The rookies of the Chicago Bears number 27, and most are knocking themselves out at the team's summer training camp for 5-10 a week, a ticket home and a broken heart.

"It's a long shot for me coming up here and trying to play," offensive lineman David Nubbe, from the University of Indianapolis, said Thursday.

"Everybody is faster."

"But it's always been my dream to play in the NFL. I have to go for my dreams right now and work hard."

Olds are he will be gone when the first cuts are made. But if not, "It will be real-encouraging for me, being a free agent on a Division II school," Nubbe said, "Making the first cut means they have some interest in you."

"All rookies share the dream."

From the first-rounder to the last guy drafted and the free agents, every one wants to play, rookie tackle Troy Auzenne said.

Realistically, roster openings are scarce every year for all but the first two draft picks.

Because of the team's low draft spot in recent years, there isn't much comparison to Chicago's Class of 1983, when Jimbo Covert, Willie Clark, Richard Dent, Mike Richardson, Dave Duerson, Tom Thayer and Mark Buttz were first-year players.

But this could be the best chance since for a few late drafted or even

'From the first-rounder to the last guy drafted and the free agents, every one wants to play.'

— Chicago Bears rookie Tony Auzenne undrafted rookies to make the Bears because of the advancing age of some veteran players and the potential shown by some of the younger ones.

"We have an awful lot of good players, young and old," offensive coordinator Greg Landry said. "We really have to make the right decisions on whether to keep an older guy or give way to a younger player."

Aug. 24 and Aug. 31 are the dates for the cul-de-sac, the camp's 11 draftees and 16 free agents. Aug. 24 is when NFL teams must trim their rosters from 80 to 60. On Aug. 31, the final 47-man roster must be determined. Coach Mike Ditka, moving camp to the team's suburban Chicago headquarters on Saturday, said he would make the first cuts after Monday night's exhibition opener against the New Orleans Saints.

Excluded from Ditka's ax is first-rounder pick Alonzo Spellman, who could wind up a regular on the defensive line. He is an awesome physical specimen — 6-foot-4, 280 pounds; body fat under 6 percent. He also has all the tools to be a great defender: speed, quickness, big hands and long arms.

"He is a thoroughbred," Ditka said. "If he can ever use all that talent, boy, he's going to be a good football player."

Auzenne, the second-round pick, also is assured of a roster spot.

"He's a tremendous pass blocker and has great balance," tackle Keith Van Horn said.

How do the other rookies get Ditka's attention in training camp?

"They've got to play hard," the coach said. "You've got to make the plays when the films are on."

"When the films come on, you can't hide. Come out and do the best you can — we don't ask any more than that."

"It's hard to evaluate players who are injured. We know they can play but they are not out there."

One of those sidelined rookies is safety Jeremy Lincoln, a third-round draft choice whose chances of making the team have been reduced by a sprained left knee.

Wide receiver John Brown III, a big and speedy seventh-round selection, also has missed a great deal of practice time with a shoulder separation.

Ditka likes what he has seen of safety John Wiley, tackle Louis Age, wide receiver Gene Thomas, cornerback Mark Berry and tight ends Todd Harrison and Kelly Blackwell. But Ditka's phrase doesn't necessarily translate into a roster spot.

Fabel cards 8-under par 64

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — Brad Fabel, seeking his first win in eight years on the PGA Tour, shot an 8-under-par 64 Thursday to take a two-shot lead over Australian Wayne Grady in the first round of the Buick Open.

Fabel, whose best career finish was a tie for second two years ago at the Hartford Open, birdied five of the first nine holes he played. Playing the back side first, he made his only bogey at No. 1 when he needed three putts to get down from 50 feet.

Grady, who has won since taking the 1990 U.S. Championship, tied for 10th at No. 1. Open last year over the 71-hole layout at Warwick Hills Golf and Country Club.

Buick Open

— Jeff Maggen, Bill "Kratzer" and David Frost were three strokes off the lead at 67.

Among the big-name golfers vying for the $100,000 first prize, Greg Norman shot 68, Fuzzy Zoeller 70 and defending champ Brad Faxon 69. U.S. Open champion Tom Kite shot even par, 72, the same as Ben Crenshaw and Lanny Wadkins.

"I hit a bad tee shot on No. 1," Fabel said, "I didn't get the ball like I wanted to. My drive wasn't working."

It was his only mistake. None of Fabel's other putts were more than 10 feet.

"I never got ahead of myself," he said. "I've had a lot of trouble putting lately. But I've played really well the last couple of months."

Indeed, Fabel's best finish this year was a tie for fourth July 19 at Chattanooga. Last week, he finished tied for 37th at Hartford. Fabel has earned $150,297 so far in 1992.

The 64, one shot shy of the course record, matches Fabel's best this season. He finished tied for 12th after opening with a 64 at the Phoenix Open in January.

Grady, whose best this year was a tie for seventh at the MCI Heritage in April, had five birdies and a bogey on the back nine.

Luckless golfer shares LPGA lead

STRATTON MOUNTAIN, Vt. (AP) — Sherri Steinhauer, without a victory in seven years on the tour, sank a 50-foot putt on the final hole Thursday to tie Dottie Mochrie for the first-round lead in the LPGA Stratton Mountain Classic.

Each shot 3-under-par 68 on the mountain course.

Deedee Lasker, who also hasn't won since joining the tour in 1983, was at 68 and LPGA veteran, including Betsy King, who is fifth in earnings this year, and Deb Richard, ranked 16th.

Steinhauer's curving putt from the fringe put her in the same position she held last Sunday entering the final round of the Bay State Classic — tied with Mochrie. Mochrie, the hottest player on the tour, won that event and Steinhauer fell to third, matching her best tour finish.

Mochrie, who has won three tournaments this year and is the leading money winner, overcame a double bogey on No. 15, when she hit a bunker and then over-shot the green.

That dropped her to 2-under, but she sank a 15-footer two holes later for a birdie to finish where she left off last week.

"I'm just continuing to do what I did last week. I hit a lot of greens and gave myself a lot of opportunities," she said.

She hit 14 greens in regulation, had no three-putt holes, and used only 29 putts, including rollers of 10, 15, 6 and 12 for her other four birdies.

LPGA Stratton Mountain Classic

Steinhauer, 29, of Madison, Wis., who began her round on the back nine, started slowly with a bogey on her second hole. But she birdied three holes before the turn.

Then came her big test when she three-putted consecutive holes on the back nine.

She said she tried not to let it bother her because she knew others were having similar problems, and her patience paid off with an 8-foot birdie putt on No. 8 and the 50-footer on No. 9.

Minnesota's Mall of America In 'flyover country,' promoters build 'The Alps we never had'

The Associated Press

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. — The Statue of Liberty is a beloved symbol of American freedom, but you can't play miniature golf there.

The Grand Canyon will dazzle you with its beauty. Just try to get a haircut, though.

The Sistine Chapel? Well, it's all the way over in Italy. And they don't sell teasers.

For the sightseer who's seen it all and the shopper who wants it all comes the Mall of America, suburbia's nominee to the touring Hall of Fame.

The $625 million, 350-store shopping center and amusement park opens in this Minneapolis suburb on Tuesday, a day after a $75-a-ticket gala featuring about 125 celebrities. Ray Charles will sing "America the Beautiful," Miss America will... well, she'll be Miss America.

"It wouldn't be the Mall of America without Miss America," says mall spokeswoman Maureen Hooley.

And it wouldn't be the Midwest without a shopping mall. "The Midwest is flyover country, the landscape rolls on and ferretated, pepper, want something to stand out," says University of Minnesota professor and American culture aficionado Karal Ann Marling. "We're always looking for something so we can compare ourselves to New York or Los Angeles. I suppose the megamall is the Alps we never had."

For the power shopper, the mall's allure is obvious. But even if a day trekking from store to store isn't your cup of tea (let's face it, there are more than a dozen places to bag some), the mall's boosters aren't ready to give up on you. "It's no secret that malls, in a lot of people's minds, are a turnoff," says marketing director Rosemary Gericke McCormick. "We try to show people that within this box there's a lot of fabulous goods."

And McCormick can tell just by looking at you what goodies might draw you in, be it nightclubs or golf clubs, roller skates or roller coasters, flower shop or beer garden.

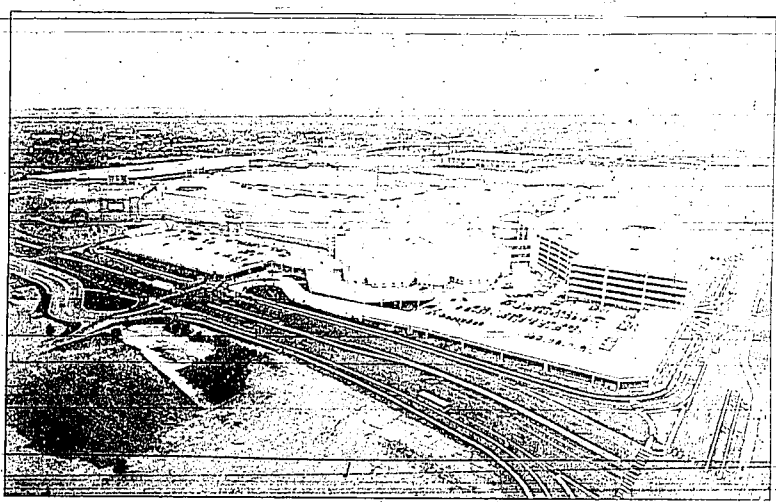

There will be a Hornet cockpit area. SpantLand — in Knott's Camp Snoopy, a seven-acre theme park with 25 rides and attractions. The mall has exhibits for devotees of electric trains or woolly mammoths. "There is Tony Roma's ribs restaurant and 'Bare Bones,' a store which sells bones."

And, for the lazy among us, there will be a booth where you can walk in, tell the agents what you want, and sit back while they scour the mall for, say, jalapeno nut brittle.

Mall promoters like to begin sentences with "Our research tells us..." This is what other coasters, flower shops or beer gardens the kinds of visitors the megamall will get.

Shoppers. With 2.6 million square feet just for shopping, there should be enough to satisfy the most dedicated consumer.

DINKS. An acronym for "Dual Income,

At 4.2 million square feet — the size of about 80 football fields — only the West Edmonton Mall in Canada is larger than the Mall of America in Bloomington, Minn., just southwest of Minneapolis.

- 10,000 full- and part-time employees
- 600 tons of garbage to be recycled at the mall each year

- 44 escalators
- Grand Canyon. I've been to Niagara Falls. Let's go out and see the mall," McCormick says.
- "With the majority of people it will be the whole thing that attracts them," says general manager John Wheeler. "If we limit ourselves to looking at the parts, we limit the kind of people who say, 'I've been to the

It's an amusement park inside a shopping mall surrounded by a mystery. Neither Wheeler nor anyone else on the mall's staff knows how to describe the time or what makes it so compelling.

"It's an open-ended time that we're in the process of inventing," Wheeler offers. The mall's staff grows by 4,000 persons to other malls because it attracts a variety. It replaces the Del Amo in Inglewood, Calif., as the nation's largest and truly only the West Edmonton Mall in Canada is total space.

"It's unfortunate that they called it 'Mall of America.' It's not like a mall in a theme city,"

And at least one observer thinks it compares favorably. "There's a blend of urbanism in the Midwest. We're pretty skeptical of the city," says architect expert Marling. "Malls are cities, but ones better than you ever thought they could be because they are enclosed and managed and everything is controlled."

"It's a culture that is the province of almost chokid onlookers with no chance from that point of view. It is the urban city."

No Kids. Along with other young adults, these complexes might come to the nightclubs.

Family. Oh, to have a nickel for every time a parent says: "If you kids are good, you can go on the carousel when we're done shopping."

Destination. Experience tourists. "They're the kind of people who say, 'I've been to the David Kelly, consumer-specialist at Data Resources Inc. in Lexington, Mass., said real income at the start of the second half was actually lower than at the beginning of the year, leading to the value-conscious shopper.

"Businesses have been unusually slow to hire," and continue to cut costs amid signs of a slowly expanding economy, Kelly said.

"Most mainstream department stores showed some gains, but failed to keep pace with the discount chains."

Dayton, Hudson posted an increase of 3.2 percent. Federated stores were up 0.1 percent. May stores were up 3.7 percent, but Sears sales fell 2.2 percent. The analysts cited ongoing public relations problems with Sears' automotive business after allegations in California that the company was attempting to charge customers for unnecessary repairs in some cases.

A 9.7 percent increase in July for JCPenney was based on a change in marketing strategy to attempt to recapture middle-income shoppers. Specialty stores The Gap, up 7.0 percent, and The Limited, down 0.6 percent, were mixed.

Overall, "we don't see any breakout from the sluggish consumer spending pattern of the last few months" and do not expect substantial improvements in income and employment, Kelly says.

Kelly said the July report showed falling consumer confidence polls were no longer predicting actual spending patterns, a divergence from the first two months of the year.

Beat-up demand for staple goods is resulting in necessary spending, he said.

July monthly results are often difficult to dissect because retailers typically resort to clearance sales and other special promotions to move remaining summer inventory and make room for autumn seasonal merchandise, said Catherine Cooper, retail analyst at Kemper Securities Inc.

"Retailers still have to have a sale to attract the consumer," said Karen Sack, retail analyst at Standard and Poor's in New York.

Several of the major chains attributed better sales to improved weather in some parts of the country, leading to accelerated sales of seasonal merchandise.

Analysts believe July U.S. store sales show consumers lack income growth

Knight-Ridder News Service

CHICAGO — Uneven sales gains from most major U.S. retail chains in July reflect the stubborn lack of income growth among consumers and reluctance of businesses to hire new workers, analysts said Thursday.

Discounters, including retail giants Wal-Mart and Kmart, continue to post the strongest consistent sales figures among major retailers, underscoring the pattern of consumers spending their modest disposable income carefully, the analysts said.

"Lackluster, anemic, erratic, mixed; (the results) are all of those things. They are very strong unless you are a discounter," said Sandra Shaber, economist at the Futures Group in Washington.

Wal-Mart same-store sales were up 13.0 percent and Kmart sales were up 7.5 percent compared to the year-ago totals for July.

Mel Hughes, retail analyst at Stein Roe and Farnham stockbrokers here, agreed that despite some sales increases "it is clearly a thrifty, price-conscious consumer out there" displaying underlying concerns about job security and household debt levels.

Major airlines lower Atlantic winter fares

NEW YORK — Delta Air Lines Inc. announced this week it would lower trans-Atlantic fares this fall and winter about 30 percent, the first carrier to cut tourist fares to Europe for the traditionally slow travel months.

Delta cut fares between 10 percent and 40 percent to all of its 33 European destinations and Israel.

American Airlines, British Airways and Continental matched the cuts. United Airlines said it planned to meet Delta's prices, but was still studying the details. Trans World Airlines spokesman Don Fleming said the airline would follow Delta's lead with a few possible exceptions.

American, the nation's largest carrier, also extended cuts to up to 30 percent started last week in domestic markets to the Bahamas, Bermuda and the Caribbean.

GM loses $357 million but core business does better

DETROIT — General Motors Corp. reported a second-quarter loss of $357 million Thursday because of job cuts and other restructuring at its defense subsidiary, but its core business improved to its best level in two years.

Excluding the one-time restructuring cost, the world's No. 1 manufacturer of vehicles earned $392 million.

The previously announced $749 million accounting charge against earnings at Hughes Aircraft Co. will pay for cutting 15 percent of the defense contractor's worldwide staff, or 9,000 jobs, and other austerity moves brought on by less Pentagon work.

On a per-share basis, GM's loss amounted to 66 cents compared with a loss of $1.44, or $785 million, in the second quarter last year.

Despite recent negative opinions that have driven GM's stock price lower, Wall Street generally likes GM's long-term prospects. For the first half of the year, GM lost $217.8 million, or 69 cents a share, compared with a loss of $28.3 million, or $1.84 a share, in the first six months of 1991.

World Bank OKs $600 million loan to help Russia import

WASHINGTON — The World Bank Thursday approved a $600 million loan to Russia to finance imports of critical goods.

The loan is the World Bank's first credit to Russia since it became a member in June. The bank is expected to make additional loans to Russia in the next 12 months to support changes to the country's agriculture and energy sectors.

The World Bank decision comes one day after its sister institution, the International Monetary Fund, approved a $1.04 billion credit Wednesday to Russia to help it cover a balance-of-payments shortfall for this year.

Former Albertson's chairman declines board appointment

BOISE — Former Albertson's Inc. Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Warren McCain has declined an appointment to Micron Semiconductor Inc.'s newly formed board of directors.

Micron Semiconductor is the chief computer memory-chip manufacturing subsidiary of Boise-based Micron Technology Inc.

Officers and directors of the parent company's subsidiaries were announced last week as part of a reorganization previously approved by shareholders.

"All I can say is that we offered Warren a position to serve on the board and he declined," Micron spokesman Kipp Beards said Wednesday.

Wholesaler plans no-frills grocery stores in Washington

SPOKANE, Wash. — Grocery wholesaler Super Valu will enter the retail market with three low-cost grocery stores in Eastern Washington, the company says.

The company will open Rite Choice stores in Pateo, Kennewick and Tappanish in September, director of retail development Jay Molitor said Wednesday.

Super Valu in Spokane is a division of Minneapolis-based Super Value Stores Inc., the nation's largest grocery wholesaler. The small-no-frills Rite Choice stores are the first retail venture for Super Valu, which has an 11-acre warehouse in Spokane to distribute groceries and produce to 100 supermarkets in the region.

Serious investors should shift from stocks to bonds

By Steve Kaufman
Knight-Ridder News Service

SAN JOSE, Calif. — Most of the time, serious long-term investors properly focus their attention on the stock market. But right now, they should consider shifting their sights to bonds, which boast unusually strong prospects of outperforming stocks over the next few years.

Experts say the prices of bonds — especially long-term bonds — will rise further this year as bond investors can supplement today's interest-rate yields of nearly 7.5 percent with capital appreciation and collect double-digit returns.

Their conclusion is based on the shape of the so-called yield curve — the range of interest rates on bonds of various maturities. The differential in interest-rate yields between 90-day U.S. Treasury bills and 30-year U.S. Treasury bonds has never been deeper, and the gap is sure to close in the coming months.

This can only happen in one of two ways: Either short-term rates will rise, which analysts say is extremely unlikely amid a weak economy, or long rates, which are artificially high, will decline. The latter is in the cards, they say, and that will push up the prices of those bonds and produce a fitter return overall.

The potential decline in bond prices is sizable — and especially attractive against the backdrop of a pricey stock market that seems ripe for a correction. With inflation running at only 3 percent, long-term bonds are yielding a premium above inflation of almost 4.5 percentage points. Historically, the premium has been less than 2 percentage points. "Long bond rates are high because the financial markets still remember the inflation bubble of the early 1980s," said Tom Mudge, vice president of research of Baird, Heck & Kober in San Mateo, Calif. "But inflation has been coming down steadily, and it's a solid bet that it will stay down. We expect long-term bond yields to continue to decline."

Brent Harris, chairman of PIMCO Funds, a Newport Beach, Calif.-based family of bond mutual funds with $3.6 billion in assets, says investors should sell about 10 percent of their stock or stock fund portfolios and put the proceeds into bonds or bond funds. At the minimum, Harris said, 30-year bond yields will decline to 6.5 percent over the next three years and produce a total average annual return of nearly 11 percent.

A few experts, such as Jay Goldinger, a market strategist at Capital Investors in Beverly Hills, Calif., caution investors to avoid bonds for now. Investor sentiment toward bonds is so positive that it's dangerous, he says. "Inflation may not become a problem again, but simply the belief that it might can depress bond prices."

But even nervous nellys can reap the advantages of an ongoing bond market rally and sleep well at night. They should be considering moving out of money market funds yielding 8.5 percent and into, say, three-year notes, where the yield is about 4.9 percent — and the loss of principal is minimal if interest rates rebound.

Dow drops 24 as U.S. bonds fall, IBM and GM slump

Knight-Ridder News Service

NEW YORK — The Dow industrials sank 24 points to close at 3,340.56 on Monday, nervous over the likely announcement of Friday's U.S. Treasury employment and over next week's quarterly Treasury refunding, said nearby points intraday.

Stocks were further undermined as household-name issues International Business Machines and General Motors posted prominent declines.

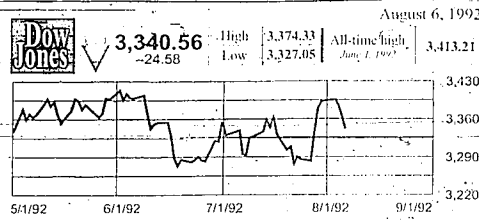

Uneven sales gains from most major U.S. retail chains in July also failed to encourage market bulls.

Bonds fell in early trading despite a 6.00% increase in state metropolitan claims for the week ended July 25.

Bonds should have rallied on the news, but uncertainties tied to distortions in current data sent them lower. At the current juncture, the last thing stock traders wish to see is long-term interest rates headed higher again.

"The U.S. economic picture is going to be cloudy for the rest of the summer," said economist Daniel C. Seto at Nikko Securities. Distortions have arisen from such factors as the two-week General Motors' shutdowns, the government's summer job program that could artificially boost payroll by several hundred thousand, and perceptions that lots of discouraged workers are coming back to look for jobs.

Daily market roundup are coming back to look for jobs workers who had formerly dropped off the unemployment lists because they had simply stopped looking for work. Seto said currently, a 100,000 increase in July payrolls is generally expected by Wall Street.

The jobless rate is expected to drop to 7.7 percent from 7.8 percent. But fletching out the distinctions will be tough to state, stressed.

Some key Dow components fell prominently in price, including to undermine bullish market sentiment, traders said.

IBM fell as much as 3% to 88% on top of its 2% loss on Wednesday following a Smith Barney downgrade.

Thursday, although such brokers as Kipper, Peabody and Oppenheimer were said to reiterate their "buy" recommendations, other houses, such as Merrill Lynch and Brown Brothers Harriman, following the lead of Smith Barney in lowering their earnings estimates, traders said.

The lower expectations brought new selling into the market, on balance, at a time when IBM was already trading after its $1.21-per-share dividend was announced and before it was paid out.

Action in General Motors also troubled the market. The lower expectations brought new selling into the market, on balance, at a time when IBM was already trading after its $1.21-per-share dividend was announced and before it was paid out.

executive had said the company might wait until next year to announce more plant closing and restructuring capacity.

Ford also encountered sellers, and the stock dropped as much as 2 points to 4 1/2% intraday after at least one brokerage downgrade.

Uneven retail sales reports for July also served to dampen sentiment.

Analysts said a stubborn lack of income growth among consumers and the reduction of businesses to hire new workers led to a situation where only discounters such as Wal-Mart and Kmart continued to improve sales consistently.

At the close, the Dow stood at 3,340.56, down 24.58, while declines led advances on the Big Board by 975 to 705 on moderate volume of 1.81 billion shares, expanding from Wednesday's 172 million.

"We're seeing a market reaction to a lot of small things," said strategist Hugh Johnson at First Albany. "If people want to take some profits, there are plenty of reasons out there."

GM closed as much as 2 points to 37 1/2% after an impressive earnings report, and after the Wall Street Journal reported that a senior GM executive had said the company might wait until next year to announce more plant closing and restructuring capacity.

Sediment halts pipeline construction

MOYLE SPRINGS — Construction of a natural gas pipeline has been halted temporarily until builders can come up with a way to keep from muddying the Moyle River, the Pacific Gas Transmission Co. says.

Work on the 84-mile project stirred up more sediment than expected when crews dug the first two of eight trenches in the river last week, said Michael Deherty, a spokesman for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

In one spot, turbidity — the measure of water clarity — was 15 times higher than the state standard, Deherty said. At another site, turbidity was four times the accepted level, he said.

Teen-ager faces murder charge

IDAHO FALLS — Another Idaho Falls teen-ager has been charged in connection with a July 19 'shootout that left 15-year-old Jessica Filtholt dead.

Deputy Bonneville County Prosecutor Gil Gardner said Ascension Labra, 17, Wednesday was charged as an adult with aggravated assault. A criminal complaint accuses him of threatening Brian Duffin with a .22-caliber pistol. Labra also faces extra penalties for allegedly using a gun.

Bonneville County already has charged Jason Sorensen, 19, with second-degree murder and aggravated battery; Manuel Hernandez, 19, with aggravated assault and misdemeanor battery; and Gregorio Labra, 19, with accessory to a felony. All are from Idaho Falls.

Payette Lake swimming area denied

McCALL — The state Department of Lands has denied the request from San Diego developer Douglas Manchester to rope off a section of Payette Lake for a private swimming area.

He had asked to rope off 120 feet by 74 feet in front of his home northwest of Shore Lodge. The board decided it would set an undesirable precedent in the use of public land, said Will Pitman, Department of Lands lake expert in Coeur d'Alene.

Manchester wanted to protect swimmers from boaters on the lake. Pitman said nearly 300 letters were sent to the state about the issue and virtually all of them opposed the swimming area.

Under the Lake Protection Act of 1972, excluding the public is banned. The city of McCall already has a no-swim zone that extends 300 feet into the lake that protects swimmers.

Engineers will pay for boat damage

OROHONO — The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has accepted responsibility and financial liability for the destruction of boating slips and damage to boats during a late-June wind storm on Dworshak Reservoir.

Lt. Col. Robert Volz of Walla Walla said Wednesday that the corps' floating docks at the Big Eddie Marina were replaced on one week later. The docks, which about 90 boats tied to, were swept against a nearby island and pounded for about five minutes by the waves, witnesses said.

The actual value of losses from the June 25 storm are yet to be determined. Volz said the corps is willing to pay the value of the boat docks as well as compensate boat owners for damage to their boats.

Logging closes public land near Dixie

DIXIE — U.S. Forest Service officials have expanded the area closed to the public to protect logging operations on the Red River Ranger District near Dixie.

Forest Supervisor Michael King signed a notice Tuesday closing about 27 square miles of the Nez Perce National Forest.

"These restrictions are necessary for public safety and to prevent interference with government contractors in the performance of authorized activities," King said in his order.

The closed area surrounds the Grouse and Noble timber sales targeted by Earth First!, environmental activists.

It extends from the mouth of Mallard Creek on the Salmon River north to the slopes of Jack Mountain and from the Mallard Creek Ranch westward to the headwaters of Little Mallard and Noble creeks.

BPA wants study to include fed option

CASCADE — The Bonneville Power Administration wants an environmental study to include the option the federal government could retain ownership of unutilized water storage in Cascade Reservoir.

The BPA suggestion would be considered in a review taking place. It addresses a proposal by the state that the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation sell to Idaho 300,000 acre-feet of water to establish a minimum conservation pool that protects the fish and the raptors which depend on them.

Jerry Gregg, Reclamation's Central Snake Projects coordinator, said BPA's request is part of an environmental assessment under way. The state has set aside $2 million to buy the minimum pool. Idaho and Reclamation are negotiating the sale.

Gregg said Bonneville's comments are typical of the assessment process, as well as consultation with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service regarding bald eagles, and the National Marine Fisheries Service whether the water sale would help Idaho's imperiled salmon runs.

Judge restores murder charges

ST. MARIES — First District Judge Craig Kosonen has rejected a controversial plea, bargain and a reduced second-degree murder charge against a St. Maries man accused of killing a 2-year-old girl.

Kosonen ruled Wednesday that reducing the charge in March to injury to a child "seriously deprecates the gravity of the offense."

John Wood, 31, is accused of striking Tasha Altmendinger on Nov. 16, 1990, causing her to slip into a coma from which she never recovered.

Restoration of the original charge increases the maximum penalty from three years to life in prison.

Ada magistrate garners award

BOISE — Ada County Magistrate Charles Hay has been honored by a national organization for his work with the Youth Court program.

Hay was among 10 individuals recognized this week by the Foundation for Improvement of Justice for outstanding work in improving the U.S. justice system. The Atlanta-based organization awarded Hay $10,000 for his program.

"I was pretty excited. I didn't know I was being considered for this," Hay said. "It's a real honor."

Hay, 47, a magistrate for three years, will receive the award in October.

The idea for the Youth Court came from an article about a similar court in Danville, Calif., Hay said.

Strike could hamper phone operations

POCATELLO — Communications Workers of America members have authorized a strike that could hamper US West Communications telephone operations in eastern Idaho.

The members backed the strike against US West Communications and US West Business Resources by a 9-1 margin.

If a settlement is not reached by midnight Aug. 15, about 140 union members — from Preston to St. Anthony, and from Briggs to Arco — could go on strike, said Char Baker, executive vice president of the CWA local.

Pensions, wage increases, health care and job security are sticking points, Baker said.

Arkansas-Idaho land swap clears hurdle

The Associated Press

Legislation clearing the way for a land trade involving some 74,000 acres in Idaho and Arkansas has cleared a Senate hurdle.

The Public Lands, National Parks and Forests Subcommittee unanimously approved the land swap bill Wednesday.

"We were able to get it out of committee today, intact and the way we wanted it," said Sen. Larry Craig, R-Idaho.

Craig said he supported changes in the bill aimed at protecting the wilderness potential of federal lands involved in the exchange near Grandmother Mountain north of Clarkia.

Craig said he is hopeful the bill will make it through Congress this year.

He was less optimistic about the chances after a July 14 subcommittee hearing in Lewistown.

The land swap would trade some 18,000 acres of Idaho forests for about 56,000 acres of Arkansas hardwood forests that are flooded each winter.

The Arkansas land, owned by Potlatch Corp., would be traded to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to expand the Cache and White River national wildlife refuges. The river bottoms there are prime wintering grounds for mallard ducks in the Mississippi Flyway.

The federal lands in Idaho, which would be turned over to Potlatch, now are overseen primarily by the Bureau of Land Management and Forest Service.

Opponents in Idaho have attacked the plan as good for Arkansas, but bad for Idaho. The trade would deplete the BLM's supply of lands it has used in trade for valuable recreation parcels close to home, they contend.

Conservationists originally were concerned about the trade's impact on roadless lands near Grandmother Mountain, a favorite hiking and camping area.

Malicious harassment law won't be challenged

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — The first, serious challenge to Idaho's malicious harassment law has been withdrawn with Kootenai County's decision to reduce the charge against a California transient to assault.

In a brief hearing Wednesday before 1st District Court Judge Gary Pitman, Deputy Prosecutor Scott Wayman asked that a charge of malicious harassment against Duane Weaver be reduced to misdemeanor assault.

"A motion filed with the request said Weaver has agreed to plead guilty to the reduced charge," Wayman declared further comment on reasons for the change and Prosecutor Bill Douglas was unavailable for comment Wednesday.

Public Defender Greg Jones would say only that he had withdrawn a motion filed in June challenging the constitutionality of Idaho's malicious harassment statute.

Weaver, 29, was charged with verbally harassing black Coeur d'Alene police officer Mary Kyle after he was arrested for being drunk in public.

Jones based his motion on a June U.S. Supreme Court decision striking down a St. Paul, Minn., ordinance banning cross burning, swastika displays and other expressions of racial supremacy and bias.

"The high court said 'hate crime' laws that ban cross burning and other similar expressions of racial bias violate the right of free speech."

Idaho's malicious harassment law was passed in 1983. It bans acts that threaten or injure someone based on race, creed, color, religion or national origin.

In his motion, Jones said Idaho's law is unconstitutional as overly broad and "impermissibly content based."

Applying the St. Paul case to Idaho law, Jones wrote, shows "an element of bias motivation is present in Idaho statute."

"Content discrimination is not reasonably necessary to achieve the compelling interest of the Idaho Legislature," he wrote.

"The statute is therefore presumptively invalid."

Judge nabbed for DUI will face reduced charge

CALDWELL (AP) — Third District Judge James Doottle has pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of inattentive driving after being arrested for driving under the influence.

The plea Thursday came after the results of the blood-alcohol tests were tossed out as evidence in the second day of his DUI trial in Caldwell.

Doottle's sentence included 10 days suspended jail time, a fine of $300 and one year's probation. He was ordered to undergo alcohol evaluation and follow any subsequent recommendations.

Doottle was arrested and charged Feb. 20 after officers received a call a pickup truck had backed up and hit a resident's fence. The truck was traced to Doottle's home.

Third District Magistrate and the Canyon County prosecutor's office had refused to try the case because of a potential conflict of interest.

Camas County Magistrate Judge John Varin refused to allow into evidence the results of a breathalyzer test administered to Doottle after his arrest.

Deputy Attorney General Michael Kane said that, based on the remainder of the evidence, he felt he had no choice but to accept a plea to a lesser charge.

Doottle's conviction on the inattentive driving carries a maximum $100 fine and 30 months' probation.

Greg Lavan, one of Doottle's defense attorneys, argued Thursday the breathalyzer test was invalid because the judge was not observed for the required 15 minutes prior to the assessment.

The tests showed Doottle had a blood-alcohol level of .15. Under Idaho law, a person with a BAC over .10 is legally intoxicated.

The 15-minute observation period is required to allow time for excessive alcohol on the BFT subject's breath to dissipate, and to determine if the person has put anything into his or her mouth that might skew the breathalyzer test.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

"Well, if I called the wrong number, why did you answer the phone?"
— James Thurber.

"I caught another bad trump break, partner," was South's sorrowful report. "I can't make the game when all the trumps are in one hand."
"Perhaps not," replied North. "But you will never knowingly find the correct play if you don't know how many trumps you can afford to lose."

South ruffed the third heart, led a diamond to dummy's ace and took the winning trump finesse to his queen. But the win was only temporary. West's discard revealed the nasty break, and East now had two cash trump tricks to beat the game.

Should South have first played his trump ace, willing to concede the loss of a trump trick? That would win against any 3-1 or 2-2 trump break; but would lose against almost any 4-0 break.

The way to guard against a 4-0 trump break with East is to first lead low to dummy's trump jack. It loses a trick unnecessarily if East has K-x or a singleton king, but it does eliminate a second trump loser when East has all the trumps.

In today's layout, East was his king and exits with a club, which is win in dummy. Declarer leads a trump back, capturing one of East's intermediate trumps. He then returns to dummy to repeat the finesse, making his vulnerable game.

Already busy Bradley brings storytelling, integrity to fledgling CBS newsmagazine

By George Robinson
TV Data

It's the day after the Democratic Convention, and Ed Bradley is bushed.—The veteran-CBS newsmag has been juggling a schedule that includes work on CBS News, reporting for "60 Minutes" and, a recent addition,—anchoring the network's newest newsmagazine "Street Stories."

When Bradley was first offered the anchor spot on "Street Stories" last winter, he almost turned it down. "I didn't think I had the time for anything else," he says with a small chuckle.

But he was persuaded. After all, there were only going to be four shows. "We did four shows, and they were so well-received that the network said, 'Hey, let's do some more.' And some more became a permanent show," he says.

'I think that there is a hunger for reality, to tell us what is happening in the world. People are aware that things aren't that great, and they want to know more.'

— Ed Bradley on the popularity of newsmagazines

Catherine Lasiewicz, "Street Stories" executive producer, says,

"We're a hybrid of the (other) two. The pieces are more magazine-like, with a beginning, a middle and an end, unlike 58 Hours." But unlike "60 Minutes," the show's stories are "about everyday people, not trends," says Lasiewicz, who was senior producer on "48 Hours."

Bradley's own style is sober and low-key. He does little reporting on "Street Stories." (One notable exception was the hour-long special report on jailed fighter Mick Tyson, a major scoop that netted the program its highest ratings so far.)

Lasiewicz was ecstatic when asked about Bradley's contribution to the program. "It brings credibility, and journalistic integrity," she says. "He is an accomplished storyteller and, as time permits, he will be more involved in the broadcast."

—The success of "Street Stories" gives the network three highly rated newsmagazines. Not surprisingly, they compete with one another eagerly. "We're all looking in the same barrel," Bradley says. "There are some stories that come across my desk that I say 'I don't think this is a "60 Minutes" story, but it might work for "Street Stories."' Or vice versa."

Bradley readily admits that "Street Stories" is very much the kid brother at the network. "We're the new guy on the block," he says. "60 Minutes" is "60 Minutes." It was the No. 1 rated broadcast in television last week.

Right now, the newsmagazines are enjoying enormous success. "I think that there is a hunger for reality, to tell us what is happening in the world," he says. "People are aware that things aren't that great, and they want to know more."

—Lasiewicz agrees.—"The newsmagazines can tell you a little bit more about the evening news," she says. "They can make the story more understandable as we try to cope with these issues."

PBS banks on ghost to anchor fall season

By Kay Gardella
New York Daily News

LOS ANGELES — Last year the hot PBS program for young people was the geography game show, where in the "World Is Carmen Sandiego?" which returns this fall. This season PBS is betting the new hot kid show could be "Ghostwriter."

— Aimed at the nation's literacy problem, it uses the mystery format in an gritty urban setting and features a hip group of young city kids who solve cases with the help of "Ghostwriter," a mysterious, invisible ghost who can only communicate with the youngsters through writing.

The show is scheduled to premiere Oct. 4 at 6 p.m. ET.

His messages "turn up anywhere on a signboard in the street, on a computer screen, on a classroom chalkboard, on a notepad, always when they're least expected.

The letters appear to have life as they form their words and swirl across a surface. According to executive producer Liz Nealon, the characters will get into situations that present very strong moral dilemmas or heightened jeopardy cliffhangers that are solved through "literacy activity."

Targeted at 7 to 10-year-olds, the show, Nealon said, tested "positive" with young people in the area of comprehension, plus they could relate to the multiethnic cast of characters.

"What you don't want to do," she said, "is create a situation where they (young people) feel like a failure as a reader. You want to make them feel like they're still up with the story."

NBC scores Olympian ratings win worthy of gold

NEW YORK (AP) — In this season of mostly reruns, NBC's Summer Olympics coverage has left competing networks in the dust, audience figures released Tuesday showed.

NBC won every night of its first full week of Olympic telecasts and claimed the top seven slots, with an average 20.2 rating, for the week ending Sunday, Aug. 2.

Far behind, second-place CBS had 8.2;

ABC, 7.5; and Fox, 6. A.C. Nielsen Co. said.

Each ratings point represents 921,000 homes.

NBC said its 12-point margin over CBS was the widest weekly win in the network's history. It was the highest rating NBC has posted since October 1986.

The share-of-the-viewing audience tuned to NBC's Olympics coverage — which blanketed the network's primetime schedule — ranged from a strong 34 percent (Friday and Sunday) to a hunking 40 percent on Thursday.

NBC averaged a 36 percent share for the week, compared to CBS' 15, ABC's 13 and Fox's 11.

Roundup on the top 10-rated shows were reruns of ABC's "Roseanne" and "Home Improvement," and the repeat of a TV movie, "Conspiracy of Silence," on CBS.

Sci-Fi Channel to air sample

NEW YORK (AP) — A round-the-clock preview of the Sci-Fi Channel will be beamed down to the nation's cable operators and some of their subscribers starting next week.

The feed, which begins Monday at 9 a.m. EDT and will continue until the channel's official launch Sept. 24, is intended to stir interest in the long-delayed science-fiction network, and to lend video evidence that it's fact.

Like a signal from alien beings, the pre-launch feed will be transmitted unscrambled and available to anyone with a satellite dish.

Cable operators will be free to carry the feed on their systems for the public to sample.

Crossing the line

More and more actors call the shots from behind the camera

By Jerry Buck
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Stars are no longer just working in front of the camera. More and more they're running the show, creating their own projects.

The lineup includes actors like Jerry Seinfeld, Paul Reiser, Gregory Harrison, Carroll O'Connor, Larry Hagman, Donna Mills, and many others.

"I've never been one who was comfortable waiting for others to give me opportunities," says Harrison, who in 1981 was one of the first stars of this generation to generate his own shows. He began with the movie "For Ladies Only" while starring in the series "Trapper John, M.D."

"As an actor in this business you're at the mercy of agents, producers, directors," he said. "There are just too many people making too many whimsical decisions without your input that critically affect your career. I wanted to know that no matter how whimsical others may get about my career that I would at least be assuring myself of an occasional job that interested me and that satisfied me."

Seinfeld is co-creator with Larry David of his popular NBC comedy series "Seinfeld" and has written many of the episodes. "Seinfeld," which puts characterization foremost among its goals, is a dramatic twist on Seinfeld's stand-up comedy.

"I just do observations about life," Seinfeld said. He writes his own comedy material because his act reflects his point of view.

O'Connor is an executive producer of "In the Heat of the Night," which moves from NBC to CBS in the fall. He helms some of the episodes and rewrites virtually all of the others.

Harrison says he began producing as soon as "Trapper John, M.D." gave him enough "heat" to be taken seriously by the networks. Since then, Harrison's Carolina Productions has turned out more than a dozen movie and theater projects and was a co-producer with Miller-Boyett in making the series "The Family Man."

Jerry Seinfeld, co-creator of "Seinfeld," writes many of the episodes.

"I've never produced anything because I enjoy producing," he said. "It's only been as a means of enhancing my acting career. What I love is acting."

Harrison says he believes he is taken more seriously by the industry now because he has shown himself willing to take a financial risk on a project. At the same time, he says it has also cost him acting jobs because some producers falsely believed he would not accept a job unless he was producing.

Deals with the studios and networks that give stars such freedom come with protracted red tape. Production contracts are awarded frequently as an incentive to sign on with a network or remain with a popular show,

Curry will be 'Hanging with Mr. Cooper' this fall

By Jerry Buck
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — While most future-television stars studied acting, Mark Curry of ABC's new fall sitcom "Hanging With Mr. Cooper" managed a laugh-as-you-wait drugstore.

The Oakland, Calif., shop was Curry's stage, where he kept the customers cheerful by trying out material for his after-hours comedy club act.

"I had a patter," he recalls. "Customers came in and I'd do jokes. I wrote a lot of my jokes in that drugstore. I tried them out on customers and my co-workers. You know how managers are supposed to be stern? I was so young and friendly."

But not everyone was laughing at Curry. A co-manager of the store kept a list of grievances and reasons why he should be fired.

Curry worked at the drugstore for seven years before he became successful enough as a comedian to quit. He said he hated to quit the job, but couldn't keep calling "dick." His grandmother had "died" three times. He was running out of excuses.

In "Hanging with Mr. Cooper," Curry plays a substitute schoolteacher who shares a schoolhouse with two women, Dawn Leary and Holly Robinson, in what could be described as a black version of "Three's Company."

Coincidentally, one performer who gave Curry a lot of encouragement for his TV role was Suzanne Somers, who starred in "Three's Company" for four years.

"She gave me good advice," he said. "I couldn't believe how nice she was. She'll tell me all about Hollywood and television."

"Not only is 'Hanging With Mr. Cooper' Curry's first television series, it also is the first time he has ever acted in a sitcom. He has starred in his own HBO special, "One, Night Stand," and is the host of "Showtime at the Apollo."

His first appearance on "Arsenio" was interrupted by a special report on the Gulf War last year, but he's scheduled to return the day before "Mr. Cooper" debuts on Tuesday, Sept. 22.

Curry's experience as a stand-up comedian helped him be at ease in front of a TV camera, and with his effervescent personality and amusing facial expressions and amusing physicals.

"Mr. Cooper" came about after copies of Curry's HBO special were sent to the networks. ABC signed him to a contract and began looking for a show for him.

"I wanted the right vehicle," he said.

"I didn't want to do a show just to be doing a show, and ABC gave Curry the enviable Tuesday night time slot after "Full House" and before "Roseanne."

Soap opera scene

One Life to Live

Joy and Alana grow close, and Max and Luna make up. Clarkson's photographer continues to follow Cassie and Andrew, looking for information on their destinies. Andrew, suspicious of Swade and his interest in Luna, Andrew declares his love for Cassie to the crowd at Rodi's Tavern, but Cassie worries that their happiness will be destroyed by those who are trying to bring down Andrew. Jonathan, the former lover of Andrew's brother, William, arrives in Llanview and asks Andrew to help him create a panel for the AIDS quilt. Lee Ann becomes hysterical as the custody battle threatens to kill anyone who tries to take away her baby, but Kevin is awarded custody of Duke.

Loving

Trisha is almost seduced by Giff's passion. But Giff explodes, then calms his anger, when Trisha, says Trucker's name while kissing him. Clay demands that Isabelle tell him all about the past. But Clay does not tell Isabelle the truth about his paternity. Ava finally meets Leo Burnett, who whisks her off for a private lunch and reminds her they went to high school together. Ally tells Casey his crush on Ava is a waste of time. Trucker's obsession about Giff's involvement with Trisha and the baby. Meanwhile Casey worries that Giff is obsessing over Trisha. Stacy moves back into her old home. Trucker nips baby Christopher to the hospital.

General Hospital

Bill and Holly fight their way through the dangers of the San Sebastian jungle and their growing attraction to each other. Karen is horrified to learn that her mother's actions were responsible for Jagger's severe beating. Jenny and Ned's passion is rekindled during their Caribbean vacation, but inclement weather sends them back to the problems they were trying to escape. Felicia shadows Mac on the case she set up for him, not knowing that she, too, is being off-limits. Nikki sees AJ as her key to the good life.

All My Children

Charlie rejects Hayley's sexual advances, while Brian and Dixie make love. Initially Dixie is upset when she learns that Gloria has set up a savings account for Junior, but she accepts the gesture and tentatively they bury the hatchet. Much to Hayley's dismay, Brian forgives An L. Trevor and Jeremy make Carter angry when they warn him to stay away from Galea. Edmund decides to pursue his claim legally and hires Jackson as his attorney. Dimitri is furious when Angelique gives Edmund access to Flora's memorabilia, and he demands that she choose sides. Hayley overrules Adam, posing as Stuart, make a date with Gloria. She agrees to keep quiet when Adam explains he wants to protect Stuart and is trying to find out if Gloria is a gold-digger.

Days of Our Lives

After Shawn-Douglas nearly blows Nikki's cover, Vivian hears a sigh of relief when Carly's first encounter with her son produces no additional fireworks. Lissane has the ammunition she may need to bring Carly out to dry when she overbites. But out that Lawrence ruined Carly's life. Distracted over the death of a patient, Curry channels his energies into a ground-breaking plan for a medical van to provide care to uninsured families. Bob again gambles with his future at the academy when he defies direct orders to rescue Marcus from a life-threatening situation. Thanks-to-Marcus, who discovers his artistic talents, Roger gets a reprieve from prison; but Stella is not sure she should be grateful. Lawrence may not be prepared for the repercussions of housing Vivian and Lissane under the same roof.

The Young and the Restless

Jack and Ashley discuss Victor's rudeness in not calling Ashley after returning home. Lauren asks Paul if he has received the custody petition she sent, and they agree she should get the right thing by seeking custody of Scotty. Scott admits he would like to marry Lauren, but claims he would never use Scotty as a tool to accomplish that end. Victor tells Douglas Nikki is undecided about marrying him, but she doesn't want to hurt anyone. Ryan and Vicki make love, but she is unattracted; she confesses to Nina that she doesn't really enjoy sex and wonders if there is something wrong with her. Ashley is filing for divorce and throws the ball into Nikki's court. Victor admits to Nikki that their divorce was his worst mistake he ever made, and Nikki agrees to marry him.

Santa Barbara

Sawyer is arrested for shooting Frank. Sawyer denies he killed Frank and claims he left him alive in the desert, but the evidence points to his guilt. Boswell warns Reese not to get involved in the case, but he refuses and Boswell takes his badge. Josie faints into Mitchell's arms after asking him to go easy on her son. When Reese comes to pick her up and return her wedding ring, he wants to get back together with her. Ted admits to Angela that he and Karen are still together. Karen hides when Warren arrives to pick up his things. Warren tells Angela that Ted probably turned her in for illegally demolishing the building. The hearing over the case begins, and C.C. grants custody to Lorel and Gina.
