Judge rejects Hostetler's plea bargain, probation

By Bmd Bowlin
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Spend three to nine years in prison, or stand trial on a felony child abuse count.

That's the choice facing Jodie Ann Hostetler after a judge on Monday rejected a plea bargain that would have given her two years probation.

Hostetler pleaded guilty to one count of allowing her 2-year-old daughter, Amanda, to live in filthy conditions and to be placed in a dangerous situation.

Amanda died in January from a severe blow to her abdomen. Donnell "Bud" Stradley, who was living with Hostetler when the girl died, is scheduled to stand trial for first-degree murder later this year.

The little girl had more than 50 bruises in different stages of healing on her body and signs of other injuries.

Under a plea agreement reached in May,

Hostetler admitted the single child abuse count in exchange for a second injury to a child count being dropped and immunity from further prosecution related to her daughter.

The agreed sentence would have been two years of probation and a suspended prison term, along with continued psychological treatment.

But 5th District Judge J. William Hart said after a hearing that lasted more than two hours that "justice will be better served by following my own conscience."

"It is time to reassure the community that such neglect will not be tolerated," Hart said.

Hostetler must report to the Twin Falls County Jail Tuesday evening, where she will spend at least a few days while she and her attorney decide what to do next.

She has three options: accept the

GOP applauds Reagan

Knight-Ridder News Service

HOUSTON — Republicans opened their 35th national convention Monday by squealing an abortion-rights inscription, welcoming a fired-up George Bush to Houston, pounding Bill Clinton and paying a nostalgic tribute to Ronald Reagan.

"Now is the time for choosing," Reagan said in his speech to the delegates, recalling the title of the 1964 speech that catapulted him to national fame as a conservative voice. Although he's 81, most of Reagan's speech dwelt not on the past, but on the future, evoking the optimism that made him the hero not only of conservatives, but also of working-class and young voters.

"Whatever else history may say about me when I'm gone, I hope it will be recorded that I appealed to your best hopes, not your worst fears, to your confidence rather than your doubts. My dream is that you will travel the road ahead with liberty's lamp guiding your steps and opportunity's arm steadying your way."

Bush's mood, by contrast, was not sentimental but combative when he arrived in Houston.

Former President Ronald Reagan, above, addresses the Republican National Convention in Houston, Texas, Monday evening as the party paid tribute to him. Reagan also gave a verbal boost to the re-election bid of President George Bush. Earlier in the day, Neil Bush, son of the president, below left, used a cellular phone from the convention floor although he is staying out of the spotlight. And Vice President Dan Quayle, below right, gave evangelist Pat Robertson a pat on the shoulder at the Christian Coalition's "God and Country" rally at a hotel.

Conservative causes make up platform

The Associated Press

HOUSTON — Republicans approved a platform filled with fighting words and conservative causes Monday after Bush campaign forces snuffed out attempts to bring a divisive abortion debate to the convention floor.

The president's strategists got just what they wanted: an aggressive blueprint for an uphill campaign, a firm stand against abortion and approval without debate, although there were some loud shouts of "no" on the final voice vote.

If the uncompromising call for a constitutional ban on abortion was not quite Bush's position, the president did not seem to mind. He told NBC News on Monday that he has "always favored exceptions for rape, incest and the life of the mother" and if that's not what the document says, "never mind. I'll be compatible with the platform on many other things."

Bush calls for allied force to halt air raids on Shiites

Knight-Ridder News Service

WASHINGTON — President Bush called Monday for allied military force to prevent Iraqi air strikes against dissident Shiite Muslims in southern Iraq to ensure that Saddam Hussein does not "thumb his nose" at the Persian Gulf War cease-fire accord.

Bush's latest move to intensify pressure on the Iraqi leader came as U.N. weapons inspectors in Baghdad averted a potential military confrontation by rejecting a U.S. request to examine a ministry building, administration officials revealed.

Since a standoff with Iraq over an inspection of its Agriculture Ministry was defused three weeks ago by a U.N.-brokered compromise, Bush has decided to step up enforcement of the cease-fire to undermine Saddam's power or force him into a new military showdown.

But the refusal of U.N. inspectors to enter any government ministries, which Iraq previously declared off limits, underscored the unwillingness of the United Nations to support any provocative moves that might lead to renewed U.S. bombing, U.S. officials said.

U.N. officials in New York said the inspectors saw no need to enter the ministry buildings.

Although Bush denied that he was trying to provoke a fight with Saddam, he said he would not shy away from military force if the Iraqi leader continues to defy the cease-fire by launching air attacks on Shiites in the south and preventing U.N. inspectors from dismantling Iraqi weapons of mass destruction.

"I think he, once again, thinks that he can bluff and bully his way, and I think that he may be, again, miscalculating," Bush said in an interview on CNN.

"I think, once again, he is looking at our election — he's a big CNN listener — and he hears a lot of news coverage and he says, 'Well, the president might not be re-elected' or whatever, and I think he's just trying to thumb his nose at the rest of the world," Bush added. "... We have responses planned, and they're strong responses."

In recent weeks, U.S. officials have reported that forces loyal to Saddam, a Sunni Muslim, have destroyed villages and killed residents in the southern marshlands that are home to Iraq's Shiites. The Shiites have rebelled against Saddam's rule ever

Webb survives cut but Andrus picks woman

The Associated Press and The Times-News

BOISE — Gov. Cecil Andrus picked Idaho's first woman to the state Supreme Court Monday by appointing 2nd District Judge Linda Copple Trout.

Lewiston, who beat a field that included long-time Twin-Falls attorney Lloyd Webb.

"I am honored to select such an experienced jurist to become Idaho's first woman on the Supreme Court," Andrus said from Lewiston. "Judge Trout is a native Idahoan reared and educated in Idaho, she has served in the trenches as both a magistrate judge and as a duly-elected district court judge, and she has distinguished herself in her professional life."

The Idaho Judicial Council on Monday submitted her name, as well as Linda Judd, lawyer in private practice at Post Falls and wife of 1st District Judge James Judd; Webb, who is also a former district judge; and B. Lynn Winmill, 6th District judge at Pocatello.

Trout's selection means that the state's highest court will have its first female in its 101-year history. She was chosen to replace Larry Boyle, who resigned to become a U.S. magistrate. The job pays $74,701 a year.

"I'm frustrated, but not surprised," Webb said. "He has decided that he wants a woman on the court, and he put a woman on it." Trout earned both her undergraduate and law degrees from the University of Idaho and has practiced law in Lewiston for six years.

In 1983, she was selected as a magistrate and served in that role until winning election to the district court in 1991.

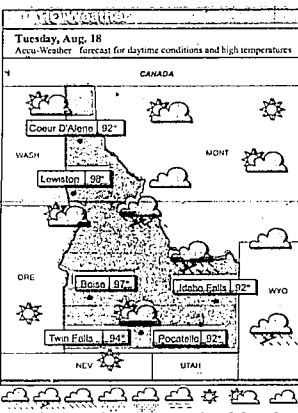

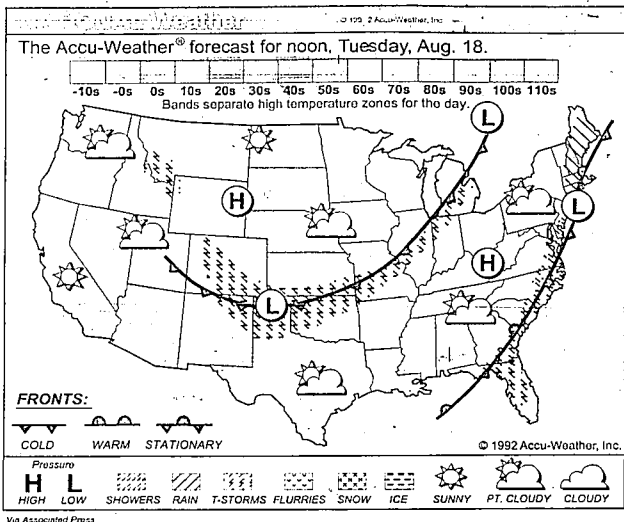

"I feel it's very important to have someone of Judge Trout's experience at the magistrate and district court levels to serve on our state's highest court," Andrus said. "The comprehensive on-the-ground experience of a trial court judge is crucial to the court in deciding

Weather summary

High pressure remains the dominant weather influence over the Gem State, and even with extensive clouds across central and south central Idaho temperatures are continuing warm.

The National Weather Service says the mercury will be near or at record levels for the entire state today.

A few thunderheads built up over the central mountains but there were only a few scattered reports of precipitation on Monday. Most of that was from eastern Idaho with Dubois' 3/8 inch the most. Other reports included .09 at Emmett, .08 at Lava Hot Springs and .02 at Soda Springs.

The warmest temperature in the state Monday was 101 degrees at Riggins. Soda Springs reported the coldest at 44 degrees.

Elsewhere in the nation Monday, the highest temperature was 121 degrees at Death Valley, Calif. The lowest was 40 degrees at Alpena, Mich.

Rain scattered across nation as temperature marks fall

Rain was scattered from the Northwest into the Plains and across the South and East on Monday, and temperatures hit record lows from the southern Plains into the South.

In the Atlantic, about 1,000 miles east of the Lesser Antilles, a tropical depression strengthened Monday into the first named storm of the Atlantic hurricane season, Tropical Storm Andrew. Its top wind speed was 45 mph and it was moving toward the west-northwest, the National Hurricane Center said.

At midday, showers and thunderstorms extended across the Tennessee Valley, the Appalachians, the eastern Gulf of Mexico states, and the southern and central East Coast states into southern New England.

Heavier rainfall during the six hours up to 2 p.m. EDT included 1.34 inches at Charleston, S.C.; 1.25 inches at Salisbury, Md.; and 1.21 at Dover, Del.

Rain had stopped at Goldsboro, N.C., after a record 11.2 inches fell at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base from 12:01 a.m. Friday until 8 a.m. Monday, the National Weather

Reagan

"In a fighter," he told cheering supporters in a hall next to the Astor-Morongo Hotel.

The other headliner was outspoken commentator Patrick Buchanan, whose role here was to patch things up between Bush and some 3 million voters who chose Buchanan on Aug. 18 in the Republican primaries.

"I want to congratulate President Bush and remove any doubt about where we stand," Buchanan said. "The primaries are over, the heart is strong again, and the Buchanan Brigades are enlisted — all the way to a comeback victory in November."

Buchanan, who in the primaries painted Bush as too liberal, had a heyday with the Democratic ticket. Never known for his subtlety, Buchanan attacked Clinton as a draft dodger and his wife as a radical feminist.

"The agenda Clinton & Clinton would impose on America — abortion on demand, a litmus test for the Supreme Court, homosexual rights, discrimination against religious schools, women in combat," Buchanan said. "There is a religious war going on in our country for the soul of America. It is a cultural war, as critical to the kind of nation we will one day be as was the Cold War itself."

Both Reagan and Buchanan touted the end of the Cold War as an example of what Republicans can accomplish.

"To hear the Democrats talk, you'd never know that the nightmare of nuclear annihilation has been lifted from our sleep," Reagan said. "I heard those speakers at the other convention saying, 'We won the Cold War,' and I couldn't help but wondering, just who exactly do they mean by 'we'?"

sentenced, appeal the sentence or defend the guilty plea and stand trial, withdrew attorney Tom Kershaw said.

He said it is unlikely his client will simply serve the sentence, but a decision likely won't be made until early next week.

Hostetler moved out of her rented house on Fourth Avenue East after Amanda died there, and now lives in Bellevue. She works as a housekeeper for Sun Valley Co.

In a brief statement before hearing the sentence, she quietly asked the judge to abide by the plea agreement.

"She admitted that she had done some things wrong and said 'I want to make up for it, I can't,'" Kershaw said. "Her father responded angrily to the ruling."

"She was railroaded," Tom Hostetler said outside the courthouse. "There's a bunch of loud-mouthed liars running around here that don't know her. And the media, as yourself, has raised public opinion against her."

One of the founders of Friends of Amanda, an ad hoc child protection group that formed after Amanda's death, said she was pleased with Monday's result.

"I'm glad the judge found the need to incarcerate her," said Connie Misenheimer of Buhl. "The kids in this community need to be protected."

since the Persian Gulf War ended 18 months ago.

"I'm glad there was a significant amount of fixed-wing aircraft and helicopter activity in the south," State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said Monday.

"The Iraqi army's pressure against the people in the marshes continues."

To top off the air attacks, the administration has lined up support from its gulf war allies to establish a "no-fly" zone south of the 32nd parallel, roughly the southern third of Iraq.

Iraqi planes entering the zone would be shot down by a U.S.-led force operating from aircraft carriers in the region or Saudi Arabian air bases.

GOP platform in brief

HOUSTON (AP) — Here are positions from the GOP platform added Monday at the Republican National Convention:

ABORTION. Calls for a constitutional amendment to ban abortion; opposes use of public revenues for abortion and supports appointment of anti-abortion judges.

TAXES. Supports expansion of Young Child Tax Credit to $500 per child for all children under age 10; would eliminate marriage penalty. Opposes "any attempt to increase taxes" and calls for repeal of 1990 tax hikes.

EDUCATION. Supports parental choice of public or private schools, with federal vouchers to low-income families that choose private schools; home schooling, and voluntary prayer. Opposes school clinics that provide birth control or abortion services.

HEALTH. Supports President Bush's plan to offer tax credits and deductions to offset insurance costs for some Americans.

AIDS. Opposes discrimination against victims; supports state laws that make it a criminal act to knowingly transmit the AIDS virus.

GAY RIGHTS. Opposes including sexual preference as a protected minority under civil rights statutes, and laws that recognize same-sex marriages and allow such couples to adopt children.

PORNOGRAPHY. Calls on the government to stop the sale of pornography and condemns the use of public funds to subsidize obscene art.

CHINA. Supports U.S. policy of giving preferential trade status to China.

he had, not yet read, makes no exceptions on abortion. Amendments to do so were rejected during a process closely monitored by his campaign.

Abortion-rights proponents lobbied hard to win enough support from delegates to air their views Monday. But the effort collapsed when two crucial allies — Maine Gov. John McKernan and Massachusetts Gov. William Weld — emerged from a meeting with Bush campaign strategist Charles Black and said they were giving up the fight.

"No one is willing to buck the hierarchy of this party when push comes to shove," said Kate Michelman, president of the National Abortion Rights Action League, which has spent two-thirds of its money this year helping Republican candidates.

Weld said it was "time to unite" behind Bush. "I'm not disappointed. I would have liked to have seen it come out the other way, but every day isn't Christmas," he said after the meeting with Black.

the many complex and diverse issues that come before it."

Andrus said earlier he intended to appoint Idaho's first female Supreme Court justice if he were presented with the name of a qualified candidate. That prompted an unprecedented nine women to apply for the job.

The five-member court has been down to four members since March 31, when Boyle resigned.

Fourteen people applied but one woman withdrew before Saturday's interviews with the Judicial Council.

The four finalists gave Andrus a range of experience and geographic balance to consider.

None of the four people now on the court, all Andrus appointees, has any trial court experience, which Webb, Trout and Winnill could supply. There also was no one from eastern Idaho or the Magic Valley on the Supreme Court or Idaho Court of Appeals.

standard presentence report after interviewing Hostetler in June.

Baxter and O'Hare butted heads over that report, with the prosecutor pointing out that the investigator apparently wanted Hostetler to be sentenced for the death of her child although she was not implicated in Amanda's death.

O'Hare retorted that it was Hostetler's duty as a parent to make sure her daughter was well cared for.

"No fit mother would raise a child in a filthy house," he said from the witness stand. "As a mother you should know that."

"Mr. O'Hare, I'm not on trial here," Baxter said.

"He took 15 minutes to prepare his ruling, and read much of it from a prepared statement. But his mind was not made up when he entered the court room Monday, Hart said later.

"I have given a lot of time and a lot of thought to this decision," he said.

President has a record, delegates say, if only he could articulate it

HOUSTON (AP) — Delegates to the Republican convention say President Bush joins the race with formidable strengths — his incumbency, his charm and his successes overseas — but with troublesome weaknesses, too. There's the economy and his indistinct message.

Some say he's too nice a guy, and too nice to Congress.

"We've been spoiled by the great communicator," says delegate Mike Tefft of Lincoln, Neb. "Ronald Reagan is a difficult, difficult man to follow when it comes to communicating ideas to the American people."

Overwhelmingly, if not surprisingly, Bush's successes abroad — Desert Storm, the death knell of the Communist threat, diffusing the nuclear cloud — are cited in delegate samplings by Associated Press reporters who asked about Bush's strengths and weaknesses in the campaign to come.

Almost as overwhelmingly, delegates fix on Bush's difficulty in conveying a sense of presidential purpose as his chief failing.

Many assert the deck is stacked against him by an unfriendly press. "His biggest weakness is that the press can't stand him," said Marlyn Dealy of Spokane, Wash. Agreed Dave Blumbers of Baltimore: "When they signed that treaty with the Russians on nuclear disarmament, it hardly got any publicity."

• Strength: Bush's character.

"He's an extremely honest, caring man with a great sense of humor," said Barbara Chinn of Maryland, a Bush supporter since 1980.

"He cares about people," said Margaret Ward, a state worker in Alaska. "It just comes across when I see him on television. I see his genuine concern for the American people."

"No one could carry his water as performing under pressure," said Oklahoma Corporation Commissioner J.C. Watts, former University of Oklahoma quarterback and the first black elected to statewide office in his state.

• Weakness: Bush's character.

"Too nice," said Joel Maiba of New Hampshire, and too willing to absorb "unanswered cheap shots."

"Not aggressive enough," said Vel-ma Childes of Pike County, Ky., a veteran GOP fundraiser.

"His major weakness may be his loyalty," said Priscilla Bakerstar of Delaware's Republican committee woman. "George Bush is very steadfast and very loyal to the people around him. Perhaps he has to look a little bit critically at them and how they are serving him and the country."

"He just hasn't come out and beat the hell out of Congress," Pennsylvania legislator Richard Gest of Altoona said. "He gets blamed for everything."

• Strength: His first term experience.

"Incumbency is the number one advantage," said Drew Ivers of Webster City, Iowa. The second man advantage is campaign experience. They've done it before. They know how to campaign."

"When they get to the point of pulling the lever, they'll realize Bush has been here four years and they know what to expect," said delegate Robert Gardner, a Tulsa, Okla., insurance executive.

• Weakness: the economy and "read my lips."

"He has been a little too conciliatory to both Congress," said Cheryl Komar of Dubuque, Iowa.

• Strength: His international craftsmanship.

"I can't think of anyone maybe since Roosevelt who could have done as good a job putting together the gut coalition," said Peter Gallinas of Chicago.

"This is still a dangerous world, and George Bush has proven himself from able of leading a nation in a dangerous world," said John W. ...

public chairman ...

• Weakness: Bush's ...

"What's the reason ... where are we going ... ing there?" asked John ...

"He has an inability to say, 'We've got a specific program to make this country move,'" said Bill ...

President Bush stresses a point to the Veterans of Foreign Wars Monday but GOP delegates say he doesn't communicate ideas well.

Clinton blasts Bush over aides' remarks

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Democrat Bill Clinton wrestled with a projected shortfall in the state's Medicaid budget on Monday and said Republican attacks on his personal life fit a pattern of broken promises by President Bush.

Arriving at the Statehouse to work on the budget problem, Clinton said Bush was ultimately responsible for personal attacks coming out of the Republican National Convention in Houston.

He referred to comments Sunday by Bush campaign chairman Robert Moshbacher and U.S. Treasurer Catalina Villalpando.

Ms. Villalpando, at a meeting of New Jersey delegates, described Clinton and former San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros as "two skirt-chasers."

The Bush campaign issued statements Monday in which Ms. Villalpando apologized and Moshbacher expressed regret "that, to some, my comments suggested that I was raising questions about Gov. Clinton's personal life."

"I was not," Moshbacher said. He claimed that in talking with reporters he had merely said that morality was "among the issues the voters would use to make their decision in the election."

Bush, in an interview with Cable News Network, reiterated Monday his distaste for injecting the personal lives of the candidates into the campaign. "The program is to stay away from the dirty business," he said.

But Clinton, communications director George Stephanopoulos, noting that Bush pledged earlier to fire Republicans who inject "sleaze," called on the president to dismiss Moshbacher and Villalpando.

Stephanopoulos said that would show that Bush was not a "hollow man" running a "cynical campaign."

Clinton himself said the personal attacks fit a pattern established by Bush.

"That's like when he said 'read my lips' or when he promised 15 million new jobs, when he said in February this wouldn't be part of the campaign," Clinton said.

CIA's director avoids testifying

WASHINGTON (AP) — The defense rested in former CIA spymaster Clair George's Iran-Contra coverage trial Monday without calling CIA Director Robert M. Gates to the stand.

Defense lawyer Richard Hisey refused to say why he decided not to call Gates to testify. Last week, Hisey won a ruling from U.S. District Judge Royce C. Lamberth upholding a defense subpoena.

Gates was "up to his eyeballs" in knowledge about the Iran-Contra affair, Lamberth said last week in denying a government bid to block his testimony.

George, the former head of CIA spy operations, is accused of concealing his knowledge of the Iran-Contra affair from congressional committees in late 1986.

Mortar, sniper fire kills 6, injures 40

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina - Mortar and sniper fire killed six people and wounded more than 40 in the besieged Bosnian capital Monday as nearly 1,000 women and children prepared to flee.

As Sarajevo continued to come under fire, there were reports of new negotiations that would give the United Nations control over heavy weapons that have pounded the city. Serbs have ringed the capital for months, and Muslim-led forces recently have been trying to break their grip.

International agencies, meanwhile, pressed their efforts to bring relief to civilians cut off by the violence ravaging the breakaway Yugoslav republic.

A convoy from the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees returned to Sarajevo early Monday after a tense trip to deliver the first relief supplies to Gorazde in more than three months.

Georgian leader says troops withdrew

TBILISI, Georgia - Georgian leader Eduard Shevardnadze declared Monday his troops have withdrawn from the capital of a breakaway region, but local officials said soldiers remained and shooting continued.

Three days of fighting between Georgian troops and local police in the Abkhazia region of western Georgia killed at least 38 people, according to the region's Interior Ministry. Commonwealth television reported Abkhazia's Health Ministry said there were 50 dead. The differing figures could not be immediately reconciled.

Shevardnadze sent troops to Abkhazia last week to pursue supporters of former Georgian President Zviad Gamsakhurdia, who was ousted in a civil war in January. Gamsakhurdia's loyalists had taken several Georgian officials hostage and held some of them in Abkhazia.

Boat people mistake Haiti for U.S.A.

PORT AU-PRINCE, Haiti - More than 150 boat people from China rowed or swam to Haiti, mistakenly believing it was the United States, after being left offshore by a ship, a refugee agency official said Monday.

The 151 young men arrived Saturday night near Jacmel, 75 miles southwest of Port-au-Prince, said Marlene Dorfeuille, director of the Permanent Haitian Refugee Center.

They apparently left Asia aboard a cargo vessel, which abandoned them offshore, said Ms. Dorfeuille, who was seeking a translator to be able to get more information from the men.

ANC rejects security forces' amnesty

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa - The African National Congress said Monday it rejects a blanket amnesty for government security forces because it would absolve killers and torturers.

The country's main black opposition group was responding to a call last week from the white minority government for amnesty for all members of the security forces and black resistance groups for any politically motivated offenses.

The ANC said an amnesty could only be granted to security force members who provided information to help expose past crimes and halt political violence.

The ANC wants a full disclosure of any illegal acts by the security forces. Government forces have been implicated in killings and beatings of anti-apartheid activists in the past.

Crash in Kuwait kills Marine pilot

KUWAIT - A U.S. Marine pilot died when his warplane crashed in the Kuwaiti desert during a night-training exercise, American officials said Monday.

The U.S. Navy and the U.S. Embassy issued statements saying the unarmed AV-8B Harrier from the assault ship USS Tarawa, anchored off Kuwait, crashed at 8:30 p.m. Sunday about 10 miles from the Iraqi border and 50 miles northwest of Kuwait City.

The pilot was identified by the Marines as Capt. Michael R. Vansickle, 32, of Omaha, Neb. He was married and has a son.

Envoy calls for aid workers' security

NAIROBI, Kenya - A United Nations special envoy urged Somalia's warlords Monday to ensure the safety of aid workers delivering food to the starving nation.

Mohamed Sahnoun told a news conference in Nairobi that it was "up to the Somali people, the Somali leadership, to respond with some level of responsibility and urgency" to the growing aid effort.

"These people are coming to help," Sahnoun said. "They will take risks. They are leaving their homes and families. They deserve at the least security."

Volcano's behaviour defy predictions

MANILA, Philippines - Mount Pinatubo is likely to erupt violently, but predictions are difficult because the volcano is acting strangely, scientists said Monday.

The Philippine Institute of Volcanology and Seismology had warned of a violent eruption within a one-week period that ended Sunday.

On Monday, seismologists recorded 22 high frequency and 190 low frequency earthquakes around the northern part of the volcano, some 70 miles north of Manila.

Gorbachev looks back in anger after coup

MOSCOW (AP) - A year after the start of the failed coup that began his downfall, Mikhail S. Gorbachev launched a stinging attack Monday on President Boris Yeltsin for destroying the Soviet Union and failing to reform Russia.

Gorbachev

"Where are we now? On the verge of economic collapse and total impoverishment," a named, confidence Gorbachev said at a news conference to mark the first anniversary of the Aug. 18-21 coup attempt.

The former Kremlin leader seemed unwilling to part with his dream of preserving the Soviet Union. He even quoted Vladimir Lenin at one point, saying that now "national interests were above those of the proletariat."

But Gorbachev also displayed anger and bitterness when a Russian journalist suggested he leave the capital and return to his native Stavropol region in southern Russia.

"I was president of a big country ... I ask you to bear this in mind," an emotional Gorbachev said, adding he could do more in Moscow.

The news conference came at the start of a week in which Russians will mark the tumultuous events that a year ago hastened the disintegration of the Soviet Union and Communist power.

On Aug. 18, 1991, hard-liners in the Communist Party, military and KGB who sought to preserve their power and reverse Gorbachev's reforms put him under house arrest at his summer home on the Black Sea.

The coup leaders sent tanks into Moscow, but Yeltsin defended democracy on the barricades in front of the Russian parliament, joined by tens of thousands of supporters.

Gorbachev returned to power after three days, but his authority was weakened by the Communist Party's leading role in the coup. He eventually resigned Dec. 25, without a Soviet Union to lead.

Although Yeltsin's actions brought Gorbachev back to power and perhaps saved his life, the former Soviet president has attacked Yeltsin's reforms.

On Monday, he called Yeltsin's economic reforms "utopian," an impractical attempt "to resolve the problems overnight, at one fell swoop."

"The individual is regarded as a cog, if not as a sheep," he said at the Gorbachev Foundation, the think tank he founded after resigning.

Gorbachev blasted Yeltsin's advisers as "too self-assured, too ambitious."

And he form Yeltsin's initiative Dec. 8 to fund the Commonwealth of Independent States "crossed out" his reforms behind his back.

But Gorbachev, who became Communist Party leader in 1985, said a return to the past was improbable.

"We may be in for a painful zig-zagging which quite often occurs in history," he said.

Region should round up different Cowboys

By Brad Breland
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — They didn't win the district American Legion baseball tournament. They exited the Idaho State American Legion baseball tourney after two games.

It's no surprise that the Twin Falls American Legion Cowboys won't be the pick for the favorite to win the Northwest Region 7 American Legion baseball tournament that begins Wednesday.

But don't count the Cowboys out. "We'll approach things differently in this tournament," said Twin Falls Coach Logan Easley. "We knew we'd make it this far whether we won or not. Now our season is reduced to two games."

If the Cowboys lose twice, the season is over. But optimism is riding high for these Pokes.

"If you remember last year at the state tournament, we came in as the second seed in the district and ended up second at state," said Cowboy catcher John Horner.

"Nobody here is undefeated," Easley reminded. "It's kind of an elite tournament and it's an honor for us to be out there."

Twin Falls earned the right to participate in the tourney when it was awarded the host site for the eight-team tournament. Twin Falls was also tabbed as a participant in the state tournament because the Cowboys hosted the 1991 state affair.

The Cowboys feel that they can be competitive in the tourney.

At state, they fell victim to the eventual champion Lewiston Twins. Twin Falls played close with the Twins and trailed 2-1 with men on second and third early in the contest. The game was suspended because of rain and was pushed to the next day.

The Cowboys failed to score in that inning. However, they did take a 4-3 lead on the Twins late in the game, but fell by a 6-4 margin. The Montana entry in the Northwest tournament, the Royals from Billings, have already played Twin Falls this year. The result was a split.

Twin Falls won the first game in extra innings and lost the nightcap. So there's no question in the minds of the players and coaches that Twin Falls can play with these teams.

Confidence, according to Coach Lauchlin McKinnon of the 40-7 Skagit (Wash.) Sox, is relative.

"We don't know anything about the other states. We open with California and we're not intimidated," he said. "We won state undefeated in five games. It wasn't a surprise. We were one of the favorites all year long. We haven't played outside the state of Washington, but we feel we can compete with anybody."

There is, however, something else in Twin Falls' favor. It's called Frontier Field or the home field advantage.

"The infield slows things down and we don't have a lot of big hitters," said Horner, who mentioned that speed may be the big factor in the games for the Twin Falls hitters.

"That will be an advantage and the Inn will definitely be an advantage," he said.

Easley agreed, but saw a different perspective. "We haven't done any traveling. We're not there packing up and caught up flying, stepping off an airplane," said Easley.

Easley also mentioned the time frame of the tournament, where some teams have lost players to school commitments. Twin Falls will be strong.

PGA champ plans wins, not burnout

Return of Cardinals' starting QB raises expectations in team

The Associated Press

TEMPE, Ariz. — Timm Rosenbach is 20 for 27 for 268 yards and three touchdowns in Phoenix's two exhibition wins this summer. But it's the block he threw last Saturday that symbolizes how far back he's come from reconstructive knee surgery.

"I wasn't really going to hit anybody," Rosenbach said. "I was just trying to get in the way. If you block a safety downfield during preseason, that can come back to haunt you."

Rosenbach went down last year without any contact, twisting his knee as he made a cut during a seemingly harmless scrimmage. He was lost for the season and so were the Cardinals — Tom Tupa, Stan Gelbaugh, Craig Kupp and Chris Chandler filled in as Phoenix finished 12-2.

Rosenbach came back with a splash, completing his first 16 passes to strengthen the belief of those who think he can make the Cardinals a winner.

"There's a big change in the Cardinals this year, and he's the reason. He's the key to the offense. He's so relaxed back there," said wide receiver Eric Jones, who caught a 53-yard bomb to open the scoring in Saturday's 20-17 win over Chicago, the game in which Rosenbach threw his "block."

Rosenbach says he is moving better than ever in the pocket, despite the 2-pound brace that could remind a weaker-willed person of the pain he went through. He also doesn't expect to continue his 90 percent-plus completion percentage.

But Jones is right. He's certainly relaxed. "To me, playing in the NFL is like being in my backyard. I'm trying to play it as if I'm playing Nerf ball as a kid," Rosenbach says.

Taken in the first round of the 1989 supplemental draft, Rosenbach got into just two games.

Completing the first 16 passes in his comeback caused many to think Tim Rosenbach can transform the Cardinals into a winner.

in 1990, he immediately installed Rosenbach as the starter, and the second-year player became one of only two NFL quarterbacks to take all of his team's snaps.

After an inconsistent beginning, Rosenbach gave Phoenix fans reason to think the future looked bright. He had streaks of 101 and 96 passes without an interception, 11 TD passes in the last eight games and games of 381 yards against the New York Giants and 301 against Philadelphia to end the 1990 season.

Rosenbach passed for 3,098 yards and added 470 rushing — second only to Randall Cunningham's 942 among the league's quarterbacks.

He hasn't run this season, but he hasn't had to. Rosenbach seems to have inspired the offensive line, as well as his stable of running backs.

"This whole preseason has been an optimistic one," said Pro Bowl strong safety Tim McDonald. "It's really something special. You can't describe what it means to get that good early lead."

Washington coach offers formula for more success

The Associated Press

SEATTLE — To Washington football coach Don James, staying on top is simple.

"All you have to do is win every game," he said.

Without Steve Emtman and 10 other players drafted by NFL teams in April, that won't be easy and the 59-year-old James is well aware of that fact.

Thanks to a 12-0 season that earned Washington the USA Today-CNN coaches' national championship, James is headed into his 18th season in Seattle at the apex of his coaching career. The Huskies have won two consecutive Rose Bowls and are 22-2 during the past two years.

When James found out his Huskies finished ahead of 12-0 Miami in the coaches' poll, he wept in front of reporters, a rarity for a man who rarely shows emotion in public.

"We deserved to have a share of it. I guarantee you that," he said. "I try to maintain an even keel. But I just got caught up in the emotions."

Press poll, but James was happy for a share.

"It would have been real selfish to think that Miami didn't deserve it, too," he said. "If you go 12-0 at this level, you deserve it."

Without Emtman, Hall and nine other drafted players from last season's team, Washington won't be as good. But the Huskies remain favored to win the Pac-10 and go to a third straight Rose Bowl.

"The thing that concerns me most is the line of scrimmage," James said. "Both on defense and on offense. We have a lot of new faces. We didn't get totally destroyed, but when you take 11 pro prospects off your team, that's a pretty good chunk."

Washington lost three starters each on its defensive and offensive lines. Andy Mason is the lone returning starter on

Braves take series with Bucs behind 10th-inning double

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Mark Lemke's two-out double in the 10th inning ended Pittsburgh's run of extra-inning victories as the Atlanta Braves beat the Pirates 5-4 Monday, their third victory in the four-game series between NL division leaders.

The Pirates, who lost the season series to Atlanta 7-5, had won four straight and five of their last six in extra innings. Losing pitcher Bob Patterson (5-2) had won four times in extra innings this season and 12 times among his 17 major-league victories.

David Justice, who broke out of a 1-for-16 slump by going 3 for 4 and scoring three times, doubled to greet Patterson in the 10th. Patterson got the next two batters, but Lemke hit a ground-rule double over the left-center field fence one pitch after a tape measure-length drive to left field just went foul.

Martin Freeman (5-4) pitched the ninth for the victory and Alejandro Pena finished up for his 15th save and his 12th in as many opportunities since May 10.

The Pirates, who had won 13 of 16, had the potential winning run on second with two out in the ninth, but Freeman got Alex Cole to ground out.

Major leagues

Monday night to defeat the New York Yankees 4-3.

The victory was the second straight and 14th in the last 19 games for the White Sox. The Yankees dropped their fifth in the last seven games and fell into a last-place tie with the ill Cleveland Indians in the American League East.

Hubbard (8-5) picked up his first victory since July 5. He had had one loss and five no-decisions in that span. Monday night, he struck out three and walked three before needing relief help. Scott Rainsby came in to get the last two outs for his 12th save after Bobby Thayer struggled at the start of the ninth.

Melillo Perez (9-13) was the loser although he allowed only five hits and two earned runs.

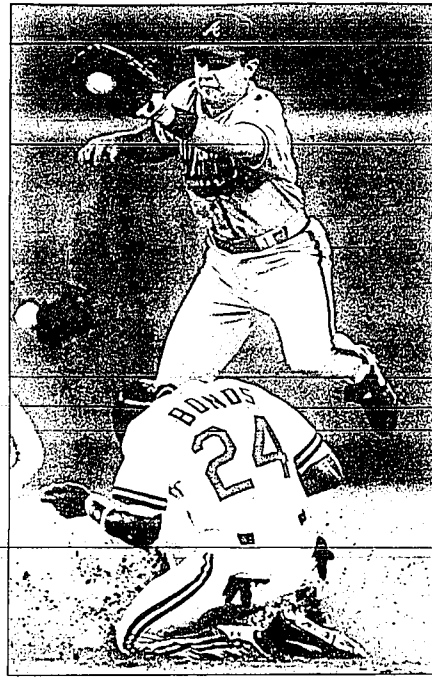

Royals 6, Tigers 5

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Mike MacLain drove in three runs with two doubles and his third homer in three games to power the Kansas City Royals to a 6-5 win over the Detroit Tigers.

MacLain's second double will tie out in the seventh scored Gary Thurman, who drew a leadoff walk from reliever Kim Kinnison (2-2).

The win was the third in a row for the Royals and only the second loss in the last 10 games for the Tigers, who tied the game 5-5 on Tony Phillips' third-out, two-run double in the seventh.

The win was the third in a row for the Royals' reliever, got the victory Jeff Montgomery pitched the ninth for his 20th save.

Pittsburgh's Barry Bonds steals second base as Atlanta's Jeff Treadway takes the late throw from catcher Damon Berryhill.

QB's hot quarter proves to be all Saints needed

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Bobby Hebert passed for 106 yards in just over a quarter, setting up two scores to start New Orleans on the way to a 26-0 NFL exhibition victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers Monday night.

Hebert, who completed eight of 10 passes, threw for 69 yards in New Orleans' first scoring drive, culminated by the first of three field goals by Cary Blanchard, a 48-yarder. He also connected from 48 and 43 yards in the fourth quarter.

Hebert's passing and running set up New Orleans' first touchdown, which came early in the second quarter on a 9-yard run by Craig Heyward. Heyward ran 2 yards for another score just before halftime.

Heyward ran six times for 18 yards and caught two passes for 15.

The Saints, 11-5 and NFC West champions last year, are 2-0 in exhibition play. The Steelers, 7-9 last season in the AFC Central, are 0-2.

Pittsburgh's problems started early, when quarterback Neil O'Donnell was sacked for an 8-yard loss on the first play of the game.

NFL preseason

O'Donnell, who completed 11 of 20 passes for 241 yards and three touchdowns, against Philadelphia last week, completed only one of five for 9 yards against New Orleans and was sacked three times for 21 yards.

Bills 30, Lions 24

OLDFATHER PARK, N.Y. — Barry Sanders and Thurman Thomas don't have to worry. Maybe Andre Ware does.

While Sanders and Thomas maul for the title of "best running back in the NFL," didn't have the best statistics Monday night, it was only because they spent most of their time on the sidelines.

Ware, the 1989 Heisman Trophy winner fighting for a job as Detroit's backup quarterback, got ample playing time but didn't do much with it as the Buffalo Bills beat the Lions 30-23 in a preseason game.

Playing with the Lions' first string, Ware was unimpressive in playing the first 17 quarters, finishing 0 for 3.

Price

The world and disappeared from tournament golf.

Graham also burned himself out more than a decade ago after winning the American national championship. "I'm not Jack Nicklaus and I never will be," Graham said at the time. "I know that. I have to take advantage of the opportunities when I have them."

The won only once in the 11 years since.

These lessons are not lost on Price. "I do not intend to wear myself thin," Price said. "If I find myself getting tired, I'll just take some time off."

Price has a history that shows he will not be back away from golf when the situation calls for it.

An example is his withdrawal from the 1991 PGA, when he was at the peak of his game, to be with his wife at the birth of their first child.

Ironically, his replacement was John Daly, the first alternate, who ended up winning.

"I feel the birth of your first child is a very special thing and the place to be is there when it happens," he said.

Winning his first major also was very special, Price said. Particularly so following losses in British Opens in 1982 and '88.

But Price said he learned from those losses.

"I learned that to win a major, you have to play a special game," Price said.

"For the last 18 months, I've felt I was close to that special game, close to taking the next step.

"In this tournament, I think I took that next step," he said.

In taking that step up, Price probably became a very marketable commodity. He is personable, presentable, articulate. He has the spice of a foreign flavor (a native of South Africa, a veteran of the Rhodesian air force, holder of a British passport but a resident of Orlando, Fla.) that Americans seem to like.

Networks question announcers' commitment

The Associated Press

First, he was going to Tampa, then he was going to Green Bay, then he was going to Tampa, and finally, he stayed at NBC. That was Bill Parcells, the former New York Giants coach.

Bill Walsh? First, he was at Stanford, then he was at the Sun.

Francisco 49ers, then he was at NBC, then he was at Stanford again.

If you were a network TV executive, would you want to hire a former football coach to be a broadcaster, invest several hundred thousand in his career, then pay a private eye to keep track of him? Some of these guys come to work with packed suitcases and a handful of airline schedules.

CBS is taking the gamble. Among the three new analysts it hired for the NFL this season is John Robinson, former head coach of the Los Angeles Rams and Southern Cal. Now, the obvious question is:

Are you really an announcer, or a just another guy killing time?

"The easy answer is, yes, I'm committed to this," Robinson said. "The most truthful answer is, I think I'm done coaching, but you never quite know. It's like any career change. I've had 16 years as a head coach, and I find myself eager to do this."

"I certainly didn't take this job as a sabbatical from coaching."

The other two newcomers at CBS are Matt Millen and George Starke. They're safe. They're both former players. Neither can go back, or some 400-pound named after a kitchen appliance will be walking around with a skull-shaped trophy under his arm.

"I guess we'll see if I'm any good at this," Robinson said.

Robinson won't do his first game until Oct. 4 because his NFL producer, Bob Mansbach, will be off at the U.S. Open tennis. When CBS finally puts him to work, he'll team with six-year play-by-play veteran James Brown.

Robinson, 57, grew up in Daly City, Calif., with another former coach-turned-analyst, John Madden.

John is in a league by himself," Robinson said. "As a male, or as someone who knows something about football, you like to feel the announcer talking to you at home, and your wife also should feel like he's talking to her. That may be the ultimate criteria of a good announcer."

He was walking around with a skull-shaped trophy under his arm.

Robinson won't do his first game until Oct. 4 because his NFL producer, Bob Mansbach, will be off at the U.S. Open tennis. When CBS finally puts him to work, he'll team with six-year play-by-play veteran James Brown.

Robinson, 57, grew up in Daly City, Calif., with another former coach-turned-analyst, John Madden.

John is in a league by himself," Robinson said. "As a male, or as someone who knows something about football, you like to feel the announcer talking to you at home, and your wife also should feel like he's talking to her. That may be the ultimate criteria of a good announcer."

14th seed falls in 1st round of U.S. Hardcourts tourney

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Twelfth-seeded Olivier Deltaire overcame peat serving Monday and rallied to beat Anders Jarryd 4-6, 6-4, 6-2 in the first round of the U.S. Hardcourts tennis tournament.

Christian Bergstrom, the 14th seed, wasn't as fortunate. The 25-year-old Swede fell to Todd Martin

6-0, 6-3 in another first-round match at the Indianapolis Sports Center.

Deltaire came very close to a similar fate.

The feisty Frenchman couldn't find his serve for the first two sets, repeatedly double-faulting, and Jarryd seemed on the verge of taking control of the match.

But trailing 3-1 in the third set and down 15-40, Deltaire came out with consecutive aces to even the game.

He won the next two points to even the set, and Jarryd seemed to unravel. The Swede won only four points the rest of the match.

"Maybe he was a bit upset when he lost that game," Deltaire said.

"Maybe his mind was not in control at this time," Deltaire finished with four aces, but hadn't served any prior to the fourth game of the third set. His first-serve percentage was an abysmal 33 percent and he double-faulted nine times, including at set point in the first set.

Emmman's play virtually stopped opponents from running the past two seasons. James Knutson he's not going to find another Emmman this season. He just hopes to come close.

Joining Mason in the front four will be Jamal Fontaine, Mike Lusky and D'Marco Farr.

The schedule helps. Last season, the Huskies played at Nebraska, California and Southern California. The Cal and Southern Cal games were the closest ones Washington played.

All three will be with Husky Stadium this year. The Huskies have seven home games and play on the road at Arizona State, Oregon, Arizona and Washington State.

Washington's best players appear to be the 6-foot-7, 340-pound Kennedy, a tackle who was a third-team All-America last season, and 6-2, 225-pound Dave Hoffmann, a senior inside linebacker who was a second-team All-America in 1991. Hoffmann has led the Huskies in tackles the past two seasons.

The Huskies feared Kennedy might try to leave school early and enter the draft, but he elected to play his senior season.

"Lincoln Kennedy's not just a good player," James said. "He's a good big player. He's a giant. I'd have a problem picking four or five players in the country who would be better than him."

Rookie pitcher for Bucs has opponents knuckling under PITTSBURGH (AP) — With a flutter and a flutter and a whole lot of foolery, rookie Tim Wakefield's dancing knuckleball has given the Pittsburgh Pirates' pitching staff a much-needed wake-up call for the pennant race.

"He's been like catching lightning in a bottle," Pirates manager Jim Leyland said.

So far, that lightning has struck three teams: the Cardinals, Mets and Braves, and Wakefield has a 3.0 record and 1.32 ERA in four major-league starts to show for it.

Wakefield, who started the season 10-3 at Triple-A Buffalo, has pitched at least eight innings in every start. He has two complete games and hasn't allowed more than two runs in any outing.

The Braves, whose pitching staff consisted of knuckleballing Phil Niekro and not much else for years, became the latest victim of Wakefield's slider, losing 4-2 Sunday in a weekend shootout of NL division leaders.

Atlanta had outscored Pittsburgh 22-5 in the first two games of the four-game series, only to be shut out on four hits until Greg Olson's two-run double in the fifth inning.

"His knuckleball is comparable to Phil Niekro's. His knuckleball is real," Pirates general manager Ted Simmons said. "To sum it up, he's for real."

Now the Braves know what other teams felt like trying to hit a pitch that tumbles like an out-of-orbit satellite in need of a NASA rescue mission.

"It's like a butterfly. It doesn't fly straight," the Braves' Otis Nixon said. "It goes all over the place."

One of just two pure knuckleballers in the majors — Charlie Hough is the other — Wakefield, 26, is a rarity among pitchers, a young gun who doesn't rely on heat or a sizzling slider. The Dodgers' Tom Candiotti also uses the knuckler, but throws just as many breaking balls.

One season clocked — Wakefield knuckled at 46 mph, or less than the speed limit on most highways. That's not even half as fast as Nolan Ryan's 98-mpg heater, but the frustration of trying to hit a pitch that flutters and dips is already wearing on NL hitters.

"As a hitter, you're conditioned to hitting the 90-mpg fastball and the slider. But you can't take batting practice against the knuckler," Pirates catcher Mike LaValiere said. "It's like nothing else you see."

No hitter has yet stepped out of the box and yanked a Wakefield challenge like you do, one does, "I'll challenge him ... I'll throw it slower," Wakefield said.

Since being called up from Buffalo, Tim Wakefield is 3-0 with a 1.32 ERA in four major-league starts with the Pirates.

"It doesn't buy the theory that hitters will adjust to him once they've seen him," Leyland said. "As long as he can throw it for strikes, I don't know if you can adjust. With the knuckler, there's no way you can prepare for what it's going to do."

It's evident what Wakefield has meant to a first-place team that won 13 of its last 16 games. He's stabilized a rotation that has lacked an effective fifth starter — the Pirates' No. 5 starters are 4-8 with a 4.81 ERA — and soon may have a sore shoulder.

Remarkably, Wakefield didn't turn to pitching until 1989. He and his father fooled around with the knuckler in their backyard in Melbourne, Fla.

But he was drafted as a first baseman in 1988. Only after he hit .189 in his first pro season and rookie ball manager Woody Huiskamp spotted him throwing the knuckler did he turn to pitching.

"When I started having success in Buffalo against guys who played in the big leagues, I said, 'Hey, I might be able to do it,'" Wakefield said.

What he's done is keep the Pirates in first place in the NL East.

"Maybe the hitters will adjust, maybe they won't," Wakefield said. "All I know is I'm going to keep throwing the knuckler. They want it 90 mph, I'll throw it 50."

Mariners apparently making moves to replace All-Star second baseman

Seattle Times

SEATTLE — The arrival of second baseman Bret Boone, the top-rated prospect in the Seattle Mariners' farm system, apparently is at hand.

According to a source with the Seattle club, Boone will join the Mariners in Baltimore this week.

"I can only say that when we do bring Boone up," General Manager Woody Woodward said, "he's going to play the majority of the games."

Boone's steady progress since signing as a fifth-round draft pick in 1990 has forced the club to regard the 22-year-old as a possible successor of second base to Harold Reynolds, who is at the end of a three-year contract.

Boone, whose father, former major-league catcher Bob Boone, manages the Pacific Coast League's Tacoma Tigers, has led the PCL's Calgary club in batting, home runs and runs produced all season. Meanwhile, Reynolds, one of the most popular players in Mariner history, has faltered, apparently upset and hurt that the American League club has held off discussions about a new contract.

Actually, the Mariners might consider a two-year deal for Reynolds, who wants a four-year contract.

Reynolds is batting .247, with three home runs and 30 runs batted in and 12 stolen bases. Through last Thursday, Boone was batting .322 at the Class AAA level, with 12 homers, 71 RBI and 46 steals.

Reynolds is expected to play the three-game series with the Orioles that starts Tuesday in Baltimore. The Orioles have expressed interest in acquiring Reynolds, a two-time All-Star and three-time Gold Glove winner, to help them in the AL East race with Toronto.

Starting with a three-game, Friday-through-Sunday series in Boston, Boone is expected to get his chance to show what he can do in the big leagues.

Harry (Reynolds) and I have talked about this situation," Seattle Manager Bill Plummer said. "I'm not sure exactly when we'll see Boone here. But he has to play when he gets here, because we have to find out if he can play at this level."

Before you let go of a player of the quality of Harry Reynolds, you've got to be as sure as you can the kid is ready."

Plummer said Reynolds stands

"He wants to stay and he's hurt and it hurts me to see him caught in this situation," said Plummer, who first managed Reynolds in the Seattle system as Class-A Vancouver.

Reynolds was named later at Calgary. "He's done a lot for this city and its community, and he's been a contributing player. There isn't a better kid around than Harry. He's like a son to me."

But this becomes one of those put-watching decisions to have to deal with in this game. You have to put your personal feelings aside. You have to deal with the realities of the business, too."

One of those realities hit last week when Seattle signed third baseman Edgar Martinez to a three-year, $10.1 million contract. Soon, a deal must be settled with outfielder Ken Griffey Jr.

Reynolds could not be reached for comment.

Middle Tennessee St. admits violations

MURFREESBORO, Tenn. (AP) — Middle Tennessee State University on Monday admitted to 11 violations of NCAA rules in its basketball program under former coach Bruce Stewart between April 1987 and August 1990.

The allegations included charges that Stewart paid players to participate in basketball camps, provided free transportation, allowed improper visits to the school by prospective recruits and distributed warm-up suits long before and after the basketball season.

Stewart has since left MTSU and now is the head coach of the Grand Rapids Hoops in the Continental Basketball Association.

The school also admitted that athletic booster Ted Beach gave player Jerry Clifton $60 in cash.

"The actions of past coaches were taken without the knowledge or approval of superiors of the university, but the athletic department must accept the responsibility," Middle Tennessee President James E. Walker said.

School officials will likely meet with the NCAA's enforcement staff the first week of September, the university said in a news release. They also are scheduled to meet with the NCAA's committee on infractions Sept. 26.

Members of the NCAA enforcement staff were in a meeting Monday and unavailable for comment on what penalties the school may face.

Middle Tennessee officials conducted their own investigation into the 11 violations, but Stewart refused to talk with them, Walker said. The former coach claimed players were coerced into implicating him, but would not say who coerced the responses.

"These allegations are based on fraudulent charges. These players were coerced with loss of scholarship, loss of eligibility," Stewart said.

New owners overhaul front office that built former NHL dynasty

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. (AP) — The New York Islanders broke up the front office that had run the team for all of its 20 NHL years, as a new ownership group swept out general manager Bill Torrey on Monday and brought back Bryan Trottier-part of a new setup.

Torrey, the first employee hired when the team was formed 20 years ago and its only general manager, was replaced as GM by Don Maloney, his assistant last season.

Torrey's power as chairman of the board was assumed by the new owners, who completed their purchase of control from majority owner John O. Pickett earlier this month. Jeanne Grossman will serve as president and chief operating officer, responsible for the club's day-to-day operations, with Trottier, the team's all-time leading scorer, as his executive assistant.

Grossman added that his group has the option to buy as much as 50 percent of the team from Pickett. He said Charles Dolan, chairman of Cablevision, the cable TV system that has shown Islanders games since 1974, is negotiating to buy the remainder of Pickett's shares in the team, but that his group will run the club either way.

Torrey, vacationing in Scotland, said in a statement released by the team that "After 21 years, it's time for a change. It has been a great run. I leave with no regrets."

Torrey, who Grossman said has a personal services contract with Pickett, will remain as a consultant.

Trottier, 36, was one of the most popular players in team history and a cornerstone of its Stanley Cup championship teams from 1980-83.

"I'm back," he said in his return to the Islanders after two years as a player with the Pittsburgh Penguins. He was released by the Islanders two years ago — but signed with the Penguins and added two more Stanley Cup rings to the quartet he earned on Long Island.

"I have no doubts that I could continue to play," he said. "But to say I'm happy to be here is an understatement. I'm looking forward to more fun here."

Trottier's job will be to help fill the Nassau Coliseum, which has looked like a ghost town on more than one occasion as the team's play declined from its Stanley Cup years. The Islanders were last in attendance in 1991-92, averaging just 10,099 in the 16,297-seat Coliseum.

"We want to make this a hot ticket again," Trottier said.

To do that, Maloney will have to build on the foundation laid by Torrey, Maloney, who spent most of his playing career with the arch-rival New York Rangers before finishing up with the Islanders, spent last season as the Isles' assistant GM. He said he learned a lot from his predecessor.

"I learned about patience, about keeping the big picture in focus," he said. "The other big thing I learned from Bill is not to be afraid to make mistakes. He always said, 'If you go down, go down swinging.'"

Tigers' slugger closes in on Ruth record despite sub-par season

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Cecil Fielder is still gaining on Babe Ruth.

Fielder dove in his 100th run on Sunday, moving him closer to Ruth's streak of three-straight seasons leading baseball in RBI. That was from 1919 to 1921, right after Ruth decided to take up full-time hitting rather than pitching.

"The most important thing, as far as I'm concerned, is to drive in the runs," said Fielder, who led Oakland's Mark McGwire by 10 after Sunday's games.

"It's a good feeling to have it happen again. That shows that I'm definitely a choice RBI man, which I've shown the last few years."

Fielder reached the milestone while having an otherwise sub-par season, batting only .238 — probably less than his weight — and has "only" 27 homers, third in the AL but well below the 51 and 44 he hit the last two seasons.

"It hasn't been what I'd call a banner season all the way around, but I've found some type of way to drive in my runs. I don't know how I do it," he said.

Thank you, Fielder, the Tigers again are among the majors' top slugging teams.

Detroit's Cecil Fielder says his third straight year with 100 RBI shows that he's a 'choice RBI man.'

In the weekend series against Texas, he scored 25 runs. On Sunday, Detroit had only five hits, but three home runs in a 6-0 victory.

Obviously, we've got more than Cecil on the team, but he's definitely one of our catalysts," said pitcher Frank Tomars. "It's exciting because you never know when he's going to hit one nice mile."

Fielder already is alongside many Hall of Famers in the record books. Even more impressive is that he is joining lists missed by three generations of sluggers including Hank Aaron, Willie Mays and Reggie Jackson.

On Sunday, Fielder became the first Tiger since Hank Greenberg to drive in 100 runs three straight seasons. Greenberg did it four consecutive years, 1937-40.

Last year, Fielder became the first player since Jimmie Foxx in 1932-33 to lead the majors in RBIs for two straight years.

Then there's the jewel awaiting after this season — tying Ruth, the jolly, rotund slugger Fielder resembles in more ways than statistics.

"That's quite a thing to attach your name to," said Tigers manager Sparky Anderson. "You've got to have things like that. Those are the kind of things that set you apart from other people."

But Fielder doesn't get as excited as his fans do when he is mentioned alongside those legends. "If that happens, it happens. You can't think about those type things when you go out there and hit people like Nolan Ryan," he said.

"It'd be an honor to achieve a goal like that, but you can't go out there worrying about that."

Part of the reason he could be downplaying his feats is because of the struggles he seems to keep being forced to endure.

After the Toronto Blue Jays couldn't find a spot for him, he went to Japan for the 1989 season to establish himself.

Upon his return to the majors the following season, he hit 51 homers — but finished second in the MVP balloting. Many said his feat was a fluke, until he repeated his major-league home run and RBI titles last year.

Again, he missed out on the MVP.

Then this summer he was snubbed from the All-Star team despite his RBI total and popularity.

Group enhances education by curtailing extra activities

The group that oversees Idaho high school athletics took a small but significant step toward getting its activities straight earlier this month. The board of directors of the Idaho School Activities Association voted to reduce the number of extra season varsity football games from 10 to nine, varsity volleyball matches from 18 to 16 and varsity basketball games from 20 to 18. It also mandated that there would be a maximum of 16 varsity wrestling matches and 25 matches; limited the number of baseball and softball games, cross country meets and golf tournaments; and required that tennis, football, baseball, softball, cross country and golf competitions could not be scheduled during school hours. Same for debate, drama, speech, music and chess competitions.

And for the first time, it stipulated that the amount of class time students must be a factor into scheduling athletic events. It also required that Friday nights and Saturdays and not weekdays are to be reserved for interschool activities whenever possible.

All of that may not seem like much, unless you're the parent of a student involved in high school activities.

If so, you know that from October to March, high school gyms are busy virtually every night of the week, booked solid with ninth-grade, sophomore, junior varsity and varsity competitions and practices.

It's not unusual for kids to be pulled out of class several days a week for various activities, and even less unusual for youngsters who have to be in class at 8:30 a.m. to have gotten off the bus from some out-of-town athletic competition at midnight the night before.

The encouraging thing about the IHSAA proposal was that it was drafted by a group of superintendents and administrators, the people who know what it's like to have to balance academics and athletics.

They recognized that, while extracurricular activities are important, the management and scheduling of those activities can't be allowed to compromise classwork.

Make no mistake, the superintendents' motives weren't entirely altruistic. The business of running a full-service high school activities program is expensive, and it's costly to replace teachers who are pulled out of class to coach a football game, chaperone a class outing or run a speech competition.

But fundamentally, the administrators were reacting to what they had heard from parents: In a competitive world where ability counts more than activity, kids can't afford to put learning second.

To get to bottom of Navy sex scandal, dry up its partnership with alcohol

The Tailhook scandal, in which hundreds of Navy and Marine officers engaged in licentious, offensive, even criminal behavior against women at a convention in Las Vegas, Nev., has spawned four separate investigations and brought down the secretary of the Navy. But when it comes to remedial action to change this offensive behavior in the military, the only thing discussed is sensitivity training on the subject of sexual harassment.

For anyone who has served in the military, or who was raised in it, as I was, this is laughable. It is not that sensitivity training isn't needed, but focusing just on Neanderthal sexual attitudes ignores a much more pervasive problem: alcohol abuse.

The alcohol bill for the three-day convention in Las Vegas ran about $7,000 per hospitation suite. Shocking, but not particularly surprising. Drunkenness has long been accepted in military life as a way to encourage bonding and let off steam for men drawn taut by the stress of putting their lives on the line. The military's own studies show a problem of such dimension that it should long ago have been raised as a national-security issue.

Nearly 20 years ago, a Navy study found the proportion of "problem drinkers" in the Navy to be as high as 38 percent. Three years ago, the Department of Defense released a study comparing military and civilian drinking habits; it concluded that the rate of very heavy drinking in the military is nearly twice that of the civilian population. Yet the military continues to sell cheap, unaged liquor at base stores and to permit happy hours at base clubs where drinks can be bought for as little as 25 cents.

The revelation of Tailhook is that the military is sadly out of sync with the values of the civilian community that supports it. Even more telling, however, is the fact that the military is even out of sync with its own reality: the assumption that alcohol fosters cohesion conducive to high performance on the battlefield certainly was proved wrong by the totally dry golf war, in which the military seemed to have performed to its own great satisfaction without benefit of booze.

In short, mandatory sensitivity training may help pacify current critics of military behavior; it will accomplish little else. But one of the marvels of the military is that it is a place where norms of behavior can be changed overnight.

The Pentagon should not only prohibit offensive behavior; it should mandate stress-management training at all levels. It is unrealistic to train men to kill, give them no training whatever in how to manage stress, then in effect hand them a bottle and still expect them to conduct themselves in a civilized manner.

Tailhook should be the watershed event that finally forces the Department of Defense to dissolve its longstanding, pathological partnership with alcohol.

Together, problems can be won

There are numerous problems facing citizens and law enforcement nationwide. Gooding County is no exception. It seems to be the consensus of citizens and law enforcement personnel that two of the most serious and fast-growing problems are drug abuse and the widespread increase in motorcycle problems. Both of these problems seem to grow and gather strength from each other.

In my 26 years in Gooding County, we have never had a comprehensive, workable, drug education program for our youth. I would like to include such a program in my next campaign. I believe that we would be able to propose a Junior Deputy Program aimed at educating our children about drugs.

Membership in this type of program would include:

- Swearing-in ceremonies with parents in an attempt to stress the importance and seriousness of pledging oneself to help fight these problems.
- A badge and certificate to reinforce the importance of their "oath."
- A monthly Junior Deputy meeting designed to discuss problems in their communities and solutions as viewed from the age of a young person. Meetings would be attended by the sheriff and/or resident deputy from each community.
- Hands-on law enforcement experience, including riding with officers in low-risk patrol situations.
- Public recognition for meritorious jobs and services rendered.
- Partial goals on the Junior Deputy Program would include:
 - An education program set up in conjunction with the schools in all four communities in Gooding County.
 - Teaching our children to "just say no" when confronted by drug pushers.
 - Create trust and unity between law enforcement officers and our younger citizens.
 - Instill the attitude of standing up for what is right through the use of positive peer pressure.
 - Educate awareness on basic safety principles both on and off school but on every facet including recreational excursions. Kids promoting safety to other kids.

This program will require a great deal of November of 1992 and that we must be doing something right for you to even give us the time of day.

The thing we hate to inform you on is that you have been misinformed. We finally have a man running for president who isn't a politician, so there aren't the lies and erud to have to listen to, choke on and try to digest. He also isn't a government official or paid by the government. He doesn't work for the Federal Reserve or the IRS.

He is just a good solid "American," like the rest of us, who is looking for clean government and to return to what our forefathers designed in the Constitution. He wants to turn back the government to the people. So that we finally again will be a "government of the people, by the people and for the people."

We want our money to be back in the hands of the Congress where it is supposed to be and not a private corporation of individuals that are getting rich on "us the people." All of what "Bo" says is documented and true. We have all checked it out and suggest you do also. We'd gladly get you a copy of the tape of the true facts and a copy of the Constitution.

We, the people, have become complacent too long and need to read and wake up to the cold, hard facts. "Bo" is not a Hitler, as he has been spoken of, and we are not blind. We would suggest you get a hold of the correct facts and check them out. Then you would find that your sources are all wrong!

In fact, bring your sources to talk to us and we'll gladly debate and prove the issues. We have nothing to hide, only open up the public to the "cold, hard facts" and why President Kennedy was assassinated because he knew the cold, hard facts, also.

We would suggest that yourself and anyone else reading this article would either call 1-800-633-7892 or 734-7879 to get a hold of the complete information so that you can make a justifiable decision on the truth of the matter!

Study up on our superpatriot

It is too bad the author of the Aug. 11 editorial on James "Bo" Griz did not take the time to study the platform of this superpatriot who has come up with an agenda which could save the United States from the decline it has been experiencing over the past few years.

To compare "Bo" Griz with David Duke is to admit a total lack of knowledge of what this man stands for. He is running for president because he has watched the leadership of the country - Republicans and Democrats - straying far from the Constitution and the intent of the Founding Fathers for our country. He believes he can lead the country back to constitutional principles and less reliance on a government-controlled economy.

Listen to what Griz stands for as outlined in the brochure: "Christian ethic and constitutional government under the Declaration of Independence and Bill of Rights. Bo is the only presidential candidate with a positive plan to get up out of debt; balance the federal budget, secure the economy and allow you to keep what you make ..."

To accomplish this, Griz would abolish the Federal Reserve system, which he points out is a private corporation run by fantastically wealthy bankers, some of whom are not even citizens of the United States.

When the United States government wants money to pay its bills, it goes to the Federal Reserve, which prints the money and then lends it to the government. Last year the interest on this money amounted to nearly $300 billion.

Griz would eliminate the income tax (which he says was never properly ratified by the states) and pay for the government with excise taxes, tariffs and other constitutional means of raising funds. And he would cut the salaries of government officials, including his own by half and eliminate many of the perks and special privileges many government officials enjoy.

Griz would also eliminate the spending of taxpayers' money to support foreign governments (foreign aid), a practice which he says is "nothing more than welfare with no U.S. recipient" and is in no way authorized by the Constitution. He is strongly opposed to the "New World Order," so strongly advocated by President Bush. The New World Order would eliminate the sovereignty of the United States and subordinate the U.S. Constitution to world government, he says.

Rexburg man faces shooting charges

REXBURG — A Rexburg man is charged with involuntary manslaughter in connection with a shooting that took the life of a woman.
James Walters, 22, was arraigned Monday in Rexburg's Magistrate Court, with bond set at $5,000.
Nicholas Strobel, 15, was shot in the head with a .357 handgun about 6:30 a.m. Sunday, at a convenience store off U.S. Highway 33. He died at 4:20 a.m. at Eastern Idaho Regional Medical Center.

Tem court revives malpractice suit

BOISE — The legal malpractice lawsuit filed by a Bonneville County man against an Idaho Falls attorney has been revived by the Idaho Supreme Court.
The court on Monday unanimously overturned a district judge's ruling and an Idaho Court of Appeals decision, and set aside dismissal of a malpractice lawsuit against Dona Adams Pike and her firm, Adams, Pike and Bush.

Clayton O. Thompson sued, contending Pike misrepresented him in negotiations with his former employer Suburban Propane (Vantage) in wrongful termination claim.

Officer says alleged dealer received tip

BOYCAVILLO — An alleged cocaine dealer began to curtail his drug sales last year after he told an undercover narcotics officer he came from "higher ups" that he and others were being investigated, an officer testified.
Meanwhile, state narcotics agents found what they believed were misused to measure and grind cocaine in a home shared by Wayne Heim and Dyan Patrice Jones.
Jones, 37, and Heim, 43, are co-defendants in a drug trafficking and conspiracy trial in its fourth day Monday before U.S. District Judge and Lodge. Also charged are Heim's twin brother, Dwayne Keith Heim, and Steve Brittenbach, 43.

Boise man's sentencing hearing delayed

BOISE — The federal sentencing hearing for Lamont Duane Jack, named in a Nampa sting operation, has been postponed because of a satellite trial.
The Boise man was slated to be sentenced in U.S. District Court Monday after being convicted of attempted robbery, conspiracy to commit robbery and use of a firearm in the commission of a felony.

Ed Board OKs BSU purchase

BOISE (AP) — By January, Boise State University may be sharing part of the classroom facilities now used by ITT Technical Institute.

With little discussion Monday, the state Board of Education approved Boise State's request to purchase a four-acre parcel for $3.2 million, including two classroom-laboratory buildings, and 250 parking spaces.
The building, owned by Nampa contractor Ron Van Auken, is leased to ITT, a technical-business school which has operated in the Boise area since 1990.

But Larry Selland, acting Boise State president, told the board ITT is using only 20,000 feet of space, and the university hopes to move into the rest of the 36,000-square-foot facility in January.
ITT's lease runs through the middle of 1995, and officials of the school's parent company in Indianapolis said last week they have no plans to leave before the lease ends.

They stressed that ITT, which has about 350 students in Boise, plans to remain in operation.
The board also voted unanimously to allow Boise State to purchase the 47-unit Capital Park Apartments adjacent to the ITT property. The $1.29 million deal will help the university deal with a critical shortage of student housing, Selland said.

"ITT is not going out of business," Selland told the board. "We will continue to work with them. They will remain in the building until other property is secured."

He said the property was appraised at $3.5 million. "The owner has the property for sale and wants to sell it," Selland said. "The price is right."

Court rejects bid to stop execution

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Supreme Court in a brief order Monday has denied a bid by an attorney for convicted slayer Mark Hamre Lankford to block Lankford's execution scheduled at the end of next week.
However, attorney Nick Swarth, Ottumwa, is expected to appeal with the federal court in an effort to stop the execution now scheduled for just after midnight of Monday.
Lankford, 36, a Texas native, on Monday was sentenced to death by District Judge George Reinhardt.

2-vehicle wreck burns haystacker, injures 2

TWIN FALLS—An accident near Twin Falls involving a haystacker started a fire and sent two Twin Falls County men to the hospital with minor injuries.

Jerry M. Schmoer, 49, of Filer was driving the haystacker and was injured in a collision with a Ford Mustang driven by Scott Koehn, 19, of Buhl at 5:34 p.m. Twin Falls County Sheriff's dispatcher J.P. O'Donnell said.

The accident on Pole Line Road near the Rock Creek Canyon, ignited the haystacker, the dispatcher said.

Both men were treated at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center and released, according to a nursing supervisor.

Oregon man detained for allegedly causing I-84 wreck

PAYETTE—An Oregon man has been arrested for allegedly causing a wreck on Interstate 84 which claimed the life of a Gooding resident.

James Donald Clark is accused of aggravated driving under the influence, vehicular manslaughter and leaving the scene of an accident.

"Some citizens tracked him down and brought him back," said Leroy Cordes, Payette County undersheriff. Authorities were unsure whether Clark lived in Portland or Seaside, Ore.

Clark was cashbanded on Interstate 84 near New Plymouth late Sunday evening when he tried to pass a van and clipped the end of it, an Idaho State Police dispatcher said.

The van went off the road, injuring B. Austin Luther, 82, and his wife, Fern Luther. Luther was taken by helicopter to Boise's St. Alphonsus Regional Center, where he died.

Mrs. Luther was listed in critical condition at Holy Rosary Hospital in Ontario, Ore., on Monday, a nursing supervisor said. Clark was being held in the Payette County Jail.

Developer of hydro projects will meet with commissioners

TWIN FALLS—A Boise developer of hydroelectric projects at three Snake River rapids will meet with the Gooding and Twin Falls county commissioners Monday.

The meeting sponsored by the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce Environmental Committee will be at the Weston Plaza, 1350 Blue Lakes Blvd. N.

LB Industries Inc. wants to build hydro plants at Boulder, Empire and Kanaka rapids. The Idaho Water Resources Board, however, has denied the projects an exemption to the protected status that prohibits developments in the middle Snake River.

The river has been granted interim protected status while the state develops a comprehensive state water plan.

But LB Industries plans to apply for a federal license anyway. Former Public Utilities Commissioner Perry Swisher, now a consultant to the LB Industries, recommends the rapids be developed by an Idaho company rather than an out-of-state company.

Kempthorne to address GOP National Convention at noon

HOUSTON—U.S. Senate candidate Dirk Kempthorne will address the Republican National Convention today at about noon, his campaign said.

The Boise mayor will speak for about five minutes on Western issues and the need for change in Congress, campaign spokesman Mark Snider said.

The CSIA will have two public channels will carry Kempthorne's address live as part of their regular convention coverage.

TWIN FALLS—U.S. Rep. Richard Stallings will speak to Magic Valley Jaycees tonight at 7:30 p.m. at the library of First Security Bank, Main Avenue and Shoshone Street.

Stallings, a Democrat, is running for the U.S. Senate against Boise Mayor Dirk Kempthorne.

Wanted: Twin Falls County landfill site

By N.S. Nokkentved
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—With Commissioner Marvin Hempleman at the wheel, county officials set out in search of a new county landfill Monday morning.

Staff and staff of the sky as the county commissioners and members of the new Twin Falls County Landfill Site Committee set off to inspect two existing landfills and three potential sites.

Following the collapse of a proposed six-county regional landfill at Hansen Butte last month, Twin Falls County is considering striking out on its own.

The county's main landfill has a little life left yet, but new federal regulations would require extensive and expensive drainage control and groundwater monitoring unless the site is closed by next October, said Darrell Heider, county solid waste director.

It would be cheaper to start with a new site and install an impermeable liner and other requirements, he said.

If things go well, the county could have its own new landfill site within six months, said committee chairman Gerald Tews of Filer, who also serves on the county Planning and Zoning Commission.

The group looked at plot of land

CSI clears budget with 1% pay hike

By Kirk Mitchell
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—The College of Southern Idaho's board of trustees has approved a $12.5 million budget that includes 1 percent salary increases for the 1992-93 school year.

The board voted on the budget, which is about 4.2 percent larger than last year's budget, in a meeting Monday night.

The college's revenue will increase $155,000 because of higher tuition and fees. Tuition will increase from $195 per semester to $205, and library and lab fees will increase from $20 per semester to $30.

An additional $10 was added to student fees to fund the new Student Health Center.

Property tax revenue is expected to increase about 7.5 percent this year, raising an additional $183,800. Of that, 5.3 percent will be raised through increased property values. The college raised the rest by increasing its levy rate.

The college will earn about $20,000 less than the $140,000 it received last year in interest income because of lower interest rates, said Mike Mason, college financial director.

State support for CSI will rise $154,550, a 3.9 percent increase. CSI's total revenue will increase about $500,000 over last year.

Board members gave employees a 1 percent increase to offset declines in state funding for benefits. President Gerald Meyerhoefer said. At best, the employees will break even with what they received last year, he said.

Other spending increases are budget in the following areas:

- Academic services $56,300 increase.

'Infested with dogs' Fed-up Burley woman offers her services as volunteer dog catcher

By Eric Goodell
Mini-Cassia News Service

BURLEY—She's so fed up with the dog problem that she offered to become a volunteer dog catcher.

Burley resident Virginia Belnap, 651 Oriental Ave., told the Burley City Council Monday night that the dog problem she has complained about for several weeks is persisting.

"We're infested with dogs," she said. "Some people let their dogs run loose early in the mornings and in weekends when animal control officers aren't patrolling, Belnap said.

"I want to know how I can help," she said. She volunteered to be a dog catcher during the weekends to put a stop to the problem.

City Clerk Bud Brinegar said animal control officers do patrol at times during the weekend, but aren't on call to the sheriff's department.

City Council members decided to have the city animal control officers talk over the problem with Belnap, and patrol in her area of the city during the problem times in an effort to catch the canines.

Many of the dogs' owners wouldn't pick up their pets at the animal shelter if they were caught, some council members said.

The council discussed other methods to get rid of the dog problem, including having Belnap catch dogs herself. City Attorney Bill Parsons said there wouldn't be a problem with having her catch the dogs for pickup by an animal control officer.

Twin Falls water, sewer rates rise; tax levy cut may fall

By Phil Salm
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—Water and sewer rates will go up, but the city's portion of the property tax levy likely will fall in the tentative 1992-93 city budget.

The City Council adopted a tentative $16.1 million budget at its meeting Monday night and set an Aug. 31 public hearing on the proposed spending plan. After taking public comments, the council will adopt a final budget.

Council members and the mayor will not get a pay raise in this budget, Councilman Tom Condie said.

The budget proposal represents a 6.7 increase from last year, but city Finance Director Gary Evans said more than half of the increase comes in four items:

- A $180,000 contract for fire protection for the newly created Twin Falls Fire Protection District. District members will pay for the contract, but the amount is figured into the city budget.

- A $250,000 allocation for potential changes in the city wastewater treatment plant to meet water quality standards.
- Another $100,000 in the city's effort to avoid costly filtering of drinking water under the Safe Drinking Water Act.
- Nearly $140,000 to improve city facilities to meet the needs of the Americans With Disabilities Act.

Without these four items, the budget would increase about 3 percent from last year's total, Evans said.

Water rates will rise 5 percent if the council adopts the budget, but the city has not raised water rates for two years, he said. Sewer rates would increase a projected 3.9 percent, he said.

The council budgeted roughly $200,000 for employee benefits and raises. Most of that sum goes toward health benefits, but the figures are not yet final, Evans said.

Sign language interpreter opens City Council meeting's doors to deaf community

By Phil Salm
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—Janette Lancaster went to Monday night's City Council meeting to learn how much money the city had allocated for the Americans With Disabilities Act.

But Lancaster is deaf, and for her to learn that information, the city had to provide a sign language interpreter. The interpreter, Valerie Sturm, stood at the front of the council chambers and interpreted for Lancaster what people were saying.

In that sense, Monday night's council meeting represented a milestone of sorts. Because of the ADA, the city must do its best to accommodate people with disabilities.

Lancaster said this is good. "People in government need input from the deaf. They need to understand our needs," she said in sign language.

Sturm interpreted. Lancaster wanted to see whether the council would provide an interpreter if she came to the meeting. The council's response heartened her.

"I'm going to tell others in the deaf community that they can come," she said. "I'm going to spread the news to the deaf."

Deaf people have never considered coming to a council meeting because it wasn't accessible, she said.

Now they can come. Sturm will attend meetings if the city is alerted in advance that deaf people intend to come, according to Jodi Hall, the council's recording secretary.

Lancaster said she might come to future council meetings. "I've always been interested in law and government. I've wanted to see how the council works," she said.

The council budgeted $138,000 for the city to comply with the ADA in the coming year.

Such a plan, Williams said, would guarantee minimal coverage while ensuring health-care choice and controlling costs.

"I don't think we can get control of costs without a basic plan, and we can't get control of the deficit without controlling health-care costs, because entitlement programs are so large a part of the budget," he said.

Crapo, however, expressed concern that the Williams-backed plan would be another unfunded federal mandate on the private sector.

A better approach, he said in an interview with The Times-News would be a combination of full deductibility for medical expenditures and a health-insurance tax credit, probably of between

Williams, Crapo agree on 1 thing - no national health-care plan

By Drew DeSilver
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—The two major candidates for Congress in the 2nd District staked out sharply differing positions on health-care reform Monday.

At a news conference in Twin Falls, Democrat J.D. Williams endorsed creating a basic health-insurance benefits package that would be available to everyone.

Such a basic plan would be designed by the federal government, Williams said, and all premiums paid for it would be tax-deductible.

His Republican rival, state Sen. Mike Crapo, said he favored setting up tax-credit and "medical care savings accounts" to allow people to buy their own health insurance through private insurers.

Both men say they strongly oppose a national health-care system.

Williams, the state auditor, spoke at the home of Twin Falls chiropractor Anthony Sirucek. He appeared with U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm of Texas, one of the leaders of his party's right wing and coordinator of the Conservative Democratic Forum in the House.

Under the health-care reform plan developed by the CDF and endorsed by Williams, the federal government would put together a "Chevrolet" basic benefits package, which all insurers would have to offer.

Williams Crapo

The cost of such a plan would be set by the government, Stenholm said, and would vary from region to region.

Premiums for the Chevy package (as opposed to a more generous "Cadillac" plan) would be 100 percent deductible.

Crapo said, however, expressed concern that the Williams-backed plan would be another unfunded federal mandate on the private sector.

A better approach, he said in an interview with The Times-News would be a combination of full deductibility for medical expenditures and a health-insurance tax credit, probably of between owned by Bill Loughmiller south of Twin Falls. Another possible landfill site is west of U.S. Highway 93 near Hollister, and a third is two miles west of the current Filer landfill — both on Bureau of Land Management land. The group also looked at the county landfill near Butte.

Landfill

Continued from

What the group is looking for is a location far enough from populated areas to minimize opposition, but close enough to good roads to keep down transportation costs.

The city of Twin Falls would be the source of at least half the garbage in the landfill. The site must also have a good layer of topsoil for disposal pits and to cover the garbage.

"We need lots of dirt," Heider

What the group is looking for is a location far enough away from populated areas to minimize opposition, but close enough to good roads to keep down transportation costs.

said, at least 25 to 30 feet. But the committee has not decided which is the best site, Tewes said. It will not make a recommendation until all the facts are in.

The committee wants to talk with the BLM and local residents, sample the soil and determine its depth before making any final decisions, Tewes said.

The sites inspected Monday were not included in consideration for a regional landfill because the area too far "off the beaten track," Heider said. Transportation would be inconvenient from remote areas.

Burley

Currently, animal control officers take certain hours during weekdays off to enable them to patrol during the weekend. Weekend duties also include cleaning cages, Mayor Frank Baumgart said.

In other business, the council approved its 1992-1993 budget without comment from those attending the meeting.

The $10,103,210 spending blueprint for next year is about $1.3 million less than this year's budget.

Council Chairman Clay Handy noted that the city has, over the years, continued to take the 5 percent tax increase that state law allows.

"That amounts to a substantial increase," he said.

He hoped that the city could eventually refrain from always taking the tax hike.

In other matters, the city:

- Approved a $28,074 offer from Thornton Construction in Burley to do curb and gutter work in the city. The offer wasn't required to go through the bidding process because no one submitted bids when the city first asked for bids on May 18.
- Allowed a resolution discussed before which will place various stop signs in the area of Rocky Road, Lara Lane, Janis Drive, Berkeley Avenue and Devon Street. In addition, the council decided to place a stop sign at the intersection of the newly re-routed Minidoka Avenue and Alfresco Road.

The street was re-routed in order to make way for the new K Mart.

Roger Burdick and each given a $10,000 bond.

Espinosa was arrested Friday and charged with three counts of delivery of a controlled substance. Each count carries a maximum sentence of five years in prison and $15,000 fine.

She was also charged with two counts of delivery of a controlled substance in the presence of children. If convicted, she could be sentenced to five years in prison for each count and a $5,000 fine.

Carl faces similar charges plus one count of intent to deliver that has a maximum five-year prison sentence and $5,000 fine.

Special agents made numerous buys of marijuana from the couple's residence at 508 18th Ave. in Jerome, according to Jerome Police Department reports. According to records, on one of the "buys" that occurred in the bedroom of the home, six adults and two juveniles were present at the time the purchase was made. Espinosa's 9-year old daughter was present at one of the buys, according to the records.

Selling drugs in the presence of a minor carries a separate felony charge.

Espinosa remained in the Twin Falls County jail and Carl in the Jerome County jail in lieu of $10,000 bond each Monday night.

"This was a great cooperative job done by the Jerome City police, members of the Tri-County Drug Task Force and the Idaho Bureau of Narcotics," Jerome County Prosecutor John Horgan said.

Jerome school plans near final stage

JEROME — Specifications for a new elementary school in Jerome have received final approval and a bid opening date has been scheduled.

A meeting of school officials and architects from the Leatham & Krohn firm in Boise met Monday to review the final drawings of the 28-classroom school. They set Sept. 1 at 11 a.m. for a preliminary conference with potential contractors and Sept. 10 to open bids. The bid opening date "should allow enough time to assure the school will be built in time for beginning of the 1993 school year," Superintendent Will Brown said.

The school will house about 600 students in grades one through five. Teachers' rooms, a computer room, media center, multi-purpose room, cafeteria, conference rooms and a special education room will be included in the building.

Thieves hit Jerome Elks Lodge

JEROME — The Jerome Elks Lodge was burglarized over the weekend.

The thief or thieves entered the Lodge through a vent in the roof, according to Detective Dean Larson of the Jerome Police Department.

Approximately $2,000 and an unknown amount of liquor were stolen. A juke box and cigarette machine were damaged.

The theft occurred sometime after 5 p.m. Friday, and Monday morning.

There are no suspects. The incident is under investigation, Larson said.

Both parties want Quayle to visit Idaho

HOUSTON (AP) — Idaho voters, according to delegates united in at least one wish: Both would like Vice President Dan Quayle to visit their state.

Last Friday, state Democratic Chairman Mike Wetherell said Quayle was so unpopular he'd probably help Idaho Democrats if he

"Any money left over after buying insurance could be deposited in a medical savings account, similar to an individual retirement account or a 401(k) plan, which people could use for any health-related expenses," Crapo said.

If insurance premiums were more than the tax credit, Crapo said, the additional amount would be fully deductible from income tax, as would out-of-pocket medical expenditures not covered by insurance.

The Medicaid program would need to be restructured to cover low-income workers, who might not benefit from a tax credit, he said.

Crapo said his plan would give people an incentive for people to shop around for the best deal on medical services, encourage people to lead healthy lifestyles, and save money by effectively removing small medical expenses from the insurance system.

"The key is whether the government takes your money and then gives it back to you in the form of services, or lets you keep your money and use it in a free and competitive manner," he said.

On another topic, both candidates said they favored holding at least one unstructured debate, similar to the ones between Senate candidates Dirk Kempthorne and Richard Stallings, before the November election.

Unlike more traditional debates, in which candidates respond to questions posed by a panel of reporters, Kempthorne and Stallings have argued issues directly with each other.

Crapo and Williams have both committed to the traditional debate co-sponsored by the League of Women Voters and the Idaho Press Club. They probably will debate at Idaho State University in Pocatello as well.

Williams said he would also like to debate in Twin Falls and perhaps in Burley. Crapo said he was open to any proposed forum with Williams.

Older bride's shower a chance to make splash

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dear Abby is on a two-week vacation. Following is a selection of some of her favorite past letters from 1972 and '73.

Dear Abby
Abigail VanBuren

DEAR ABBY: I can't believe I'm actually writing a "Dear Abby" letter, but a friend has just put me on the spot, and I don't know how to handle it.

Sarah is a 59-year-old widow who is marrying a 72-year-old widower she met on a cruise last winter. They are being married soon. She was just here and is as excited as a teen-ager. I think she's flipped her lid. She wants a bridal shower! Abby, Sarah has everything she needs, and she can afford to buy anything she wants, but she insists it's not the gifts, it's just the idea of having a shower.

She said when she was married the first time, things were rough and she never had a shower, and now she'd like one. Sarah is such a dear and generous person I hate to let her down, but, Abby, how can I invite women to a bridal shower for a 59-year-old bride who has everything? — ON THE SPOT IN PASSAIC

DEAR ON: Easy. Make it a gag gift shower. Ask everyone to bring a cute little inexpensive present for the 59-year-old bride of a 72-year-old groom. The possibilities are endless.

DEAR ABBY: I am a single girl living in New York City. I have my own car and I am dating a guy who doesn't have a car. It takes about an hour and 15 minutes from his house to mine using public transportation, but it's only 15 minutes by car. I find myself in the position of picking him up and taking him home whenever we go out.

Compounding the problem is the fact that I must use the toll bridge to get to and from his house, which adds up considerably for me.

I find this a very difficult adjustment, as I have been accustomed to having my dates pick me up and take me home. Should I continue this pickup and delivery service? He's not a native New Yorker and is afraid to take the subway late at night.

— DOOR-TO-DOOR SERVICE
DEAR DOOR: Thirty minutes in an automobile beats two and a half hours in a subway, no matter who does the driving. If he hasn't offered to pay for the toll, suggest it. If he can't or won't pay for it, you will have to decide whether dating him is worth the portal-to-portal service you're providing.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "GRATEFUL BEYOND WORDS": Most small-town clergyman are over-worked and underpaid, so since you say you can "well afford it," offer him a gift of cash. If he wishes to donate it to the church, let it be his option. Your letter indicates that your clergyman went far above and beyond the call of duty on your behalf, so be as generous with him as he was with you. (And if he's "insulted," you can blame me.)

Everything you'll need to know about planning a wedding can be found in Abby's Booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Get grip on features, patterns, sizes before picking up ice tongs

Q. My husband wants to collect ice tongs like those his grandfather used in the 1920s to deliver ice. How can he tell them from implements that look the same but were used for other purposes?

A. Ice tongs from the late 19th and early 20th Centuries ranged from huge, heavy ones designed to carry a block of ice weighing as much as 200 pounds to lightweight "family size" types. The smaller tongs have a span of 1 1/2 to 19 inches. "wagon size" tongs have as much as a 24- or 30-inch span. Sixty- included the Boston pattern with red handles, the Cincinnati, or chain pattern, designed with two clon links at the end of each handle, the patent link, designed with a two-inch link at either end of the grip; the Invincible, designed with round grips; and the Hand Malle, with three links of chain at each end of its grip handle. Especially desirable are tongs with a squarish handle, like the kind on an egg beater, that worked on a spring to grip a 14-inch block of ice; when closed, it could fold up. Other desirable tongs include blacksmith-wrought ones with pupil-shaped grips that could command $50, depending on workmanship and age. Manufactured tongs range in price from $10 to $30, depending on features, size and type. Implements that resemble ice tongs include railroad tie lifters or "tie tongs," which measure about 29 inches long and have longer handles than ice tongs.

Q. Where can I find information on Gladys Taber and the books she wrote about country life?

A. From the 1950s through the 1970s, Gladys Taber wrote books and articles for Family Circle magazine and other publications about her experiences, pets and projects at Stillmeadow and Still Cove, her historic New England homes.

Taber died in 1980, and some of her fans formed the Friends of Gladys Taber organization, which offers an annual membership and quarterly newsletter for $5. (For $10, more, you can get all the newsletters issued since 1984) from Gilbertine Moore, 321 S. College St., Franklin, Ky. 42134.

Q. I collect panda items and would like to know if a panda club has ever been established.

A. Panda collector Sandy Bellman, who has more than 1,000 pandas and panda-related items, wants to hear from others interested in starting a panda collectors club and newsletter. Write to Sandy Bellman, Apt. 257, 6830 N. Sheridan Rd., Chicago, Ill. 60626, enclosing an addressed, stamped envelope for a reply.

Q. Is there an old car museum in the Chicago area where vintage vehicles can be seen and where old car parts are sold?

A. The Velo Auto Museum has historic cars and conducts automobile auctions. The museum is one-half mile west of U.S. Highway 12 on Illinois Highway 120 in Velo (phone 815-385-3772). For more information, phone or write to Bill or Myra Gimm at the museum, enclosing an addressed, stamped business-size envelope for a brochure.

Q. Where can I find information on old Gillette razors and blades?

A. Write to Sigmond Wold in care of the Razor's Edge, Box 429, Roswell, N.Y. 10708-0429 (phone 914-476-5939), enclosing an addressed, stamped envelope for a reply.

Write to Anita Gold at the Chicago Tribune, 435 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60611. The mail volume precludes a personal response.

Priestflight commentators repeatedly say speed is power. Maybe so, it has been calculated that a brick-breaking karate blow must be extremely short and fast, remaining in contact with the surface as briefly as only five-one-hundredths of a second. The hand after such a blow, they say, must recede at almost 200 mph.

Economic stalemate: A political dilemma

NEW YORK - On the surface it is puzzling: In theory, lower interest rates spur economic activity. The Federal Reserve repeatedly has lowered rates. Some interest rates are now at 20-year lows.

John Cunniff Business

What's the activity? The seeming lack of consumer response to lower interest rates has frustrated policy makers, brought despair to retailers and disrupted election-year politics.

Since early 1990, such credit has fallen as a share of disposable personal income from 18.3 percent to 16.4 percent in May. But some of the decline is a technicality, that being the tendency of drivers to lease rather than buy.

Blame it on the 1980s, when the big debts were run up - debts that prevent buyers from entering the marketplace, debts that compel the Fed to lower interest rates and impose a burden of interest income, debts that prevent implementation of the traditional fiscal measures for spurring growth.

Resolving the stalemate is another matter, and there may be no way of accomplishing it without damage to another sector. In spite of budget deficits - a feeling grows that government spending or tax cuts might be tried next.

John Cunniff is business analyst for The Associated Press.

Reserve unlikely to cut interest rates this week

WASHINGTON (AP) - With Republicans meeting in Houston, Federal Reserve policy makers are likely to keep interest rates unchanged this week rather than appear to be buckling under political pressure, analysts said Monday.

But these analysts point to an economy that has been moving sideways recently and said that, if it were to deteriorate anew, the central bank probably would be prepared to cut rates to stimulate growth.

"I don't think the data has been conclusive enough to justify a further move at this point," said Laurence H. Meyer, head of a St. Louis economic forecasting company. "I believe the Fed would prefer to sit and watch the numbers and wait until its earlier actions are having any effect."

Daved Jones, an economist with Aubrey G. Lanston & Co., a New York securities dealer, agreed. "They're really under the political spotlight right now with the Republican convention in operation."

Members of the Federal Open Market Committee, who report on themselves on their independence, met privately Tuesday to consider monetary policy. The committee is composed of the seven Fed governors and the presidents of the 12 regional Fed banks, five of whom are voting members.

The Bush administration has repeatedly urged further interest rate cuts to stimulate the economy. The Fed last slashed rates July 2, shortly after the Labor Department said that unemployment had jumped to 7.8 percent in June, the highest since March 1984, and that payrolls unexpectedly had shrunk by 117,000 jobs.

Now, the state has started writing up plans for waste like that near the bridge. Under the recovery act, heavy metals must be disposed of at a waste dump, but an amendment says mine waste from ore does not have to be hauled to such a site. The waste nevertheless will be disposed without harm to the environment, Harvey said.

He explained the process at a Coeur d'Alene Basin Interagency Group meeting. The Council for Mineral Information had its reservations. "They don't need to redesign the process," council director Gordon Crow said. "It's designed for them."

He said having a policy is not a bad idea, but running tests at various sites will be time-consuming and costly. In the meantime, projects like the bridge will go unimpeded, he said. "The waste was unsure when the rules would be complete. Agencies affected by the plan, like the Bureau of Land Management will review the policy, he said.
