Poverty rolls soar with recession

The Associated Press
WASHINGTON — The tightening recession dumped more than 2 million Americans into poverty in 1991, the Census Bureau said Thursday.
The number of Americans officially categorized by the government as poor reached a 27-year high.
Last year, during the depths of the recession, 35.7 million Americans were listed as poor. In 1991, poor-Americans were 14.2 percent of the population, up from 13.5 percent the year before.
The government counts people as poor if their income falls below the national poverty line. Last year a family of four earning $13,924 was poor. So was an individual earning $6,932 or less.
Americans in general earned less in 1991 than the year before. The government said median household income declined by 3.5 percent to $30,126, after adjusting for inflation.

Idaho's poverty rate declined to 13.9 percent in 1991 from 14.9 in 1990, but the state's median income also slipped. That figure dipped to $26,116 in 1991 from $26,370 the year before.
The poverty numbers immediately became ammunition in the presidential campaigns.
The Republican Bush administration defended its record.
"Certainly I think we have to expect that the recession would have a significant and serious impact on income and on poverty levels," said White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater. "We have tried to target a number of programs in the last couple of years particularly to those problems, knowing that the recession would have deleterious effects."
Democratic presidential nominee Bill Clinton attacked.
"Today's poverty figures are yet another

Pegasus launches Black Pine Mine project

BLACK PINE — Like the scars of some giant slasher game, mine roads and ore pits cut the face of Black Pine Mountain.
Modern open-pit gold mining is a disruptive operation, but it need not be environmentally irresponsible, said Pegasus Gold Corp. president and CEO John Willson.
With pomp and flags and a lunch cooked in 36 Dutch ovens, Pegasus officially opened Black Pine Mine this week. It's located on the eastern face of Black Pine Mountain, west of Interstate 84 about 60 miles southeast of Burley near the Utah border.

The Spokane, Wash.-based company, which operates six other gold mines, bought the $20-million project from the Noranda Corp. for about $6 million in 1990. Willson expects Black Pine to yield about 50,000 ounces of gold per year for five years.
"If I believe our geologists, we'll be here a lot longer than that," he said.
Already crews are drilling exploratory holes on the 31,500-acre parcel. The actual mining will affect only about 4,000 acres. But the company will adhere strictly to high safety and environmental standards, Willson assured the visiting dignitaries.

Pegasus began work on the project — blasting rock and trucking ore down the mountain — about a year ago. Geologists have located three areas of ore — mineral-bearing rock with enough gold to make recovery economical.
Exploration has located other areas that may yield ore bodies as well.
"We're very excited about what we see here," said Pete Petrowsky, the general manager of the mine.
But the company will do additional environmental analysis on any extensive exploration and expansion, he said.
The Forest Service's primary concern

It takes today's miners a lot to produce a little

BLACK PINE — Modern gold mining is mostly an earth-moving operation.
Giant trucks haul 100 tons of ore per load down wide roads carved into the eastern face of Black Pine Mountain — enough ore to yield a little more than two ounces of gold.
Pegasus Gold Corp. of Spokane, Wash., officially opened its Black Pine Mine this week, a gold-mining operation that looks improbable.

The trucks haul ordinary looking rock to a big pile. Then what looks like ordinary water is sprinkled over the pile.
When the water is processed, it magically yields gold.
The process starts with geologists looking for likely gold-bearing formations under the ground. It's almost like looking for a needle in the haystack, but not quite.

At Black Pine, geologists found gold on a mountain formed millions of years ago along with the Basin and Range formation that crinkled Utah and Nevada from the Wasatch Front to the Sierra Nevada.
Over time, hot water — bearing minerals, including gold — seeped up through cracks in various kinds of rock, depositing the minerals. The water followed fault lines, and the highest

Pack-a-day moms likely to have squabbling brats

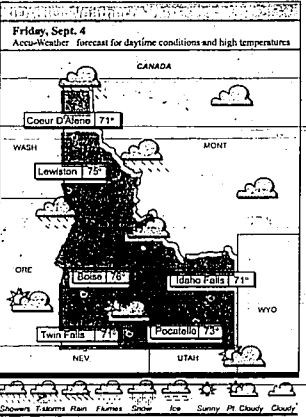

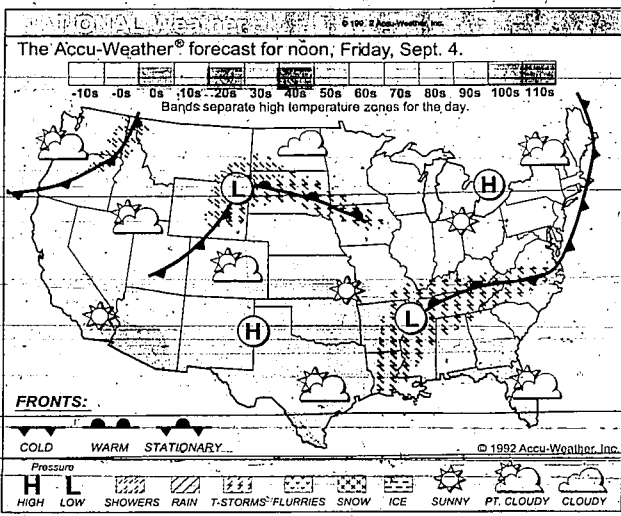

The Associated Press
CHICAGO — The more cigarettes a mother smokes, the more behavior problems her children are likely to have, researchers say.
Women who smoke at least a pack a day have children with twice the rate of extreme behavior problems such as anxiety, disobedience or conflict with others — compared with children of non-smokers, the researchers say.
Refraining from smoking only during pregnancy didn't help, according to the study published in September's Pediatrics journal.

Children of pack-a-day mothers who smoked after the child's birth had problems just as often as children of pack-a-day women who smoked during pregnancy and afterward.
Smoking less than a pack a day also was linked to elevated rates of behavior problems, but the rates were not as high as for heavier smokers, the researchers said. They used data from a Labor Department survey in which parents of 2,256 youngsters ages 4 to 11 were interviewed. The survey didn't ask about fathers' smoking.

"We are aware of no other study to date that has investigated the relationship between maternal smoking and behavior problems in children," said the authors, led by Dr. Michael Weitzman, associate chair of pediatrics at the University of Rochester School of Medicine in New York state.
"It does not surprise me at all that this association exists," said Dr. Loraine Stern, an associate clinical professor of pediatrics at the University of California, Los Angeles.

"There's thousands of toxins in cigarette smoke," any one of which could affect behavior in children, she said.
"Surprisingly," Weitzman said, smoke exposure rivaled other major stressors on children — very low birthweight, poverty, chronic illness, parents' divorce — in being linked with elevated rates of serious behavior problems.

Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert, Jerome and Gooding: Mostly cloudy and windy with showers this morning, decreasing this afternoon. Westerly winds 20 to 30 mph. Highs near 70. Tonight and Saturday partly cloudy. Lows in the mid- to upper 40s. Highs near 70. Rest of Labor Day weekend partly cloudy and cool with a slight chance of showers Sunday.

Camas Prairie and Wood River Valley: Occasional showers this morning becoming partly cloudy this afternoon. Highs in the lower to mid-60s. Tonight and Saturday partly cloudy with a light chance of showers. Lows in the 30s. Highs in the lower to mid-60s. Rest of Labor Day weekend partly cloudy and cool. A slight chance of showers Sunday.

Extended forecast: Southern Idaho, Sunday through Tuesday: Partly cloudy Sunday with a chance of showers east and a slight chance west. Mostly sunny Labor Day and Tuesday. Highs in the mid-60s to around 80. Lows in the 30s to mid-40s.

Northern Utah and Nevada: Utah - Cloudy with scattered showers and thunderstorms this morning. Gradual clearing starting this afternoon. Cooler with highs in the 70s. Tonight and Saturday partly cloudy. Lows near 50. Highs in the mid-70s.

Elko County - Scattered showers east this morning, otherwise partly cloudy today. Fair tonight. Partly cloudy Saturday with a slight chance of showers north. Highs from the lower 70s to around 80. Lows from the mid-30s to the upper 40s.

The low temperature for the lower 48 states Thursday was 32 at West Yellowstone, Mont.

Weather summary

The National Weather Service says clouds were increasing over southern Idaho Thursday, producing showers at Boise and Mountain Home.

There were no thunderstorms at Pocatello, but in the north skies were nearly clear and the weather dry.

However, a storm system is brewing along the state line between Oregon and California, circulating more clouds and moisture into Idaho. Cooler air also is expected to spread into the state from the north, bringing significant weather changes over the state the next couple of days.

Some of those clouds were visible over the Magic Valley Thursday, but little if any moisture developed. Afternoon temperatures were generally in the 70s and 80s around the state.

The warmest temperature in the state Thursday was 87 degrees at Higgins and Pocatello. Ketchum reported the coldest at 28 degrees, which was also the nation's low.

Elsewhere in the nation Thursday, the highest temperature was 105 degrees at Imperial, Calif., and Lake Havasu City, Ariz.

Thunderstorms drench much of nation once again

The Associated Press

Thunderstorms moved across much of the nation for a second day Thursday.

Rainstorms and wind gusts blew trees down across roads around Waynesboro, Tenn. Several roads were washed out, and residents were trapped in homes by rising water, the National Weather Service said.

Trailers were washed off foundations in the area.

By midday, rain showers and thunderstorms extended over parts of the Atlantic Coast; the Appalachians; the Great Lakes; the Ohio, Tennessee and Mississippi valleys; the Gulf of Mexico; Texas; Oregon; Northern California and Nevada.

Heavier rainfall during the 6-hour ending at 2 p.m. EDT included more than an inch at Islip, N.Y., and Erie, Pa., as well as an inch at Lafayette, La., and Massena, N.Y.

About an inch and a half of rain fell during 30 minutes at League City, Texas.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 p.m. EDT Thursday ranged from 52 at Rockland, Maine, to 99 at Beeville, Texas.

The low temperature at Kodiak, Alaska, was 98. Clear skies that helped the temperature drop made it possible for the northern lights — aurora borealis — to be seen overnight.

The low temperature for the lower 48 states Thursday was 32 at West Yellowstone, Mont.

Superman's demise set for November

NEW YORK — An irresistible force is going to meet an immovable object in November and something's going to give:

Superman will meet his demise.

The Man of Steel will die fighting to save the city of Metropolis from the super-lunatic Doomsday, a new villain who is an escapee from a cosmic insane asylum.

Mike Carlin, the editor of the DC Superman comic books, delivered the advance obituary in the November issue of a trade-publication that began arriving on comic-book-store shelves this week.

DC Comics, publisher of the Superman comics that appear under four titles, refused comment.

Drug war costly; shows little return

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration has spent $15.2 billion in the War on drugs, but has little to show for it, a private group concluded Thursday.

The White House hasn't focused on the demand side of the drug problem, as it said it would, and has been unable to sustain a sharp downward trend in drug use, the Drug Policy Foundation said in a report. It found that more than 70 percent of the money spent by the Bush administration has been on law enforcement.

President Bush "declared war on drugs three years ago was 'deceptive' and Bush is continuing the deception by declaring victory," said foundation president Arnold S. Trebach.

Illegal drug use declined 39 percent between 1985 and 1988, but the rate slowed to 15 percent between 1988 and 1991, said the report.

An administration policy planner rejected the criticism, saying the "turnaround in drug use has been nothing short of amazing."

Clinton holds 15-point lead in poll

WASHINGTON — Democrat Bill Clinton held a 15-point lead over President Bush among voters nationwide as the presidential race headed into the Labor Day weekend, according to a CNN-USA Today poll released Thursday.

The survey showed 54 percent for Clinton and running-mate Al Gore to 39 percent for Bush and Vice President Dan Quayle with 7 percent undecided.

In the survey, 14 percent of those responding said they would vote for Dallas business executive Ross Perot if he were on the ballot, even if he did not actively campaign.

Yellowstone oil leasing under attack

SHERIDAN, Wyo. — Federal plans for oil and gas leasing around Yellowstone National Park would turn the nation's oldest park into a "jungle gym of pipelines," Sierra Club officials said Wednesday.

In a report entitled "Yellowstone Under Siege," the environmental group listed the effects of minerals development on the outskirts of Yellowstone.

The Forest Service has opened the door for oil and gas producers to turn our recreational national forests into a jungle gym of pipelines," said Kirk Koppes, a Sierra Club associate representative based in Sheridan.

Poverty

terrible indication of the devastation of 12 years of Republican rule," said Clinton spokesman George Stephanopoulos. "Working Americans are becoming poorer because George Bush is doing nothing for them."

Your chances of being poor, increased if you:

- Were black or Hispanic.
- Didn't yet celebrate your 18th birthday.
- Lived outside the suburbs.
- Hailed from the South.
- Lived alone.

Women were more likely to be poor than men. One woman in six lived in poverty, compared to one man in eight.

Women are especially vulnerable financially when their marriages break up and they're left with the children. Seventeen-percent-of families headed by women are poor. American blacks and Hispanics had the highest poverty rates of any other ethnic groups — one in three was poor, one white American in 10 was poor, and one Asian and Pacific Islander in seven.

The number of poor Americans has increased two years in a row, and is likely to continue to rise.

"Unfortunately, there's more bad news ahead," said Robert Greenstein, director of the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, a Washington research group. "A further substantial jump in poverty is virtually certain in 1992, since the unemployment rate is now well above 1991 levels."

The last time so many Americans lived below the poverty line was is the visual effects of the mine, and anything that will have a visual impact would require additional permits, Bettowsky said.

But excessive permit restrictions and reclamation requirements can get out of hand and make low-grade deposits unprofitable, he said.

The Black Pine deposits are low grade, averaging .022 ounces per ton of ore — that's about 45 tons of ore to make one ounce of gold.

But that's the company's specialty, Bettowsky said.

Ore is piled in a "leach pit" where it is sprayed with a weak cyanide solution. The cyanide dissolves microscopic flakes of gold on the rock, and the gold is then extracted from the solution.

The use of cyanide, however, is cause for concern among wildlife officials.

Though the area is dry and has little surface water, the Idaho Department of Fish and Game is still concerned about the long-term effects of an cyanide leach, said Carl Nells, the Region 4 director.

But the development of water sources away from the mine will help draw wildlife away from the mine's open cyanide pond, he said.

Miners

concentrations of minerals were trapped where fault lines intersect. Geologists look for those lines.

"Where faults intersect, that's where we find our gold," Jim Carver, a Pegasus geologist, said.

A thin, almost imperceptible line runs from the bottom of the 100-foot deep Tallman Pit to the surface. It's one of the small fault lines that Carver looks for.

The Tallman Pit is textbook open-pit mine, he said, pointing out other formations and fault lines in the ragged walls of the pit, which has yielded about 75,000 ounces of gold.

Meanwhile in the background, a movable rig drilled holes in the bottom of the pit. Next week the holes will be packed with explosives and another 100 feet of rock blasted free, to be loaded onto the big yellow trucks.

The gold is deposited in silstone, sandstone and limestone. The deposits vary in richness from .018 to .035 ounces of gold per ton of ore. The average is .022 ounces per ton, which means it takes about 45 tons of ore to produce one ounce of gold.

Carver estimates the mine contains as much as 15.7 million tons of ore.

Modern-day miners use a weak solution of sodium cyanide to extract minute quantities of gold from huge quantities of ore.

Some scientists have linked cyanide to the formation of life. It consists of carbon and nitrogen and is formed in the atmosphere by lightning. Under some conditions it interacts with other chemicals to form amino acids — the building blocks of life.

At Black Pine, the process works like this:

Miners built a dam across a small natural valley on the side of the mountain. Then the dam added more than 60 acres above it were lined with clay and plastic. On top of this, miners pile the ore.

The cyanide is sprinkled over the ore, trickles down and collects behind the dam beneath the rock pile. It is then pumped through a recovery plant.

The gold first is absorbed by carbon filters. It is then removed from the carbon by a strong cyanide solution. The gold is removed from that solution by running direct current through ordinary steel wool submerged in the solution.

The gold is deposited on steel wool, which is then processed to release the gold.

The mine also recovers a small amount of silver. But that's just "beer money," one miner joked.

The operation costs about $3.08 per ton of ore, or about $202 per ounce of gold recovered. Gold now sells for about $340 per ounce.

A line was omitted from the caption of a photo on Page A-1 Thursday because of a composition mistake. The complete sentence could have read, "Construction began Aug. 20 and the 34,000 square foot structure is expected to be finished by the end of the year," said Al Knappenberger of Hansen Rice, Inc., the general contractor."

Residents balk at leaving damaged homes

HOMESTEAD, Fla. (AP) — Building inspectors and social workers went door-to-door Thursday trying to coax more people out of their hurricane-ravaged and possibly dangerous homes—and into military tent cities.

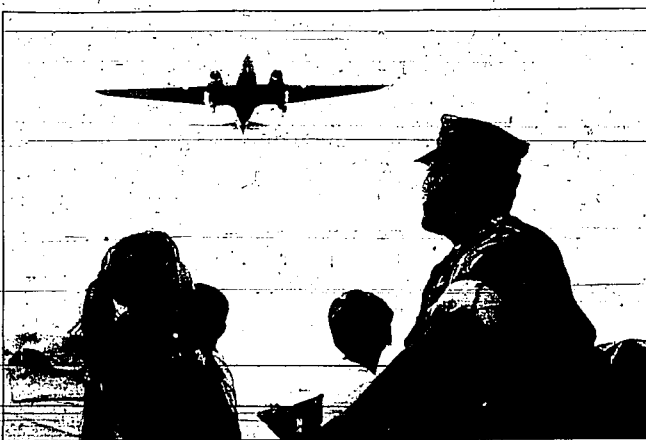

More rain fell on the area smashed by Hurricane Andrew on Aug. 24, making busy roads slippery and weighing down soaked, sagging building materials exposed by the storm. At least four homes collapsed overnight because of the rain, Homestead Police Maj. Chuck Habernest said.

No new injuries were reported. Democratic presidential nominee Bill Clinton joined the long line of politicians visiting southern Florida, flying to the heavily damaged Homestead Air Force Base that President Bush promised to rebuild, even though some Democrats in Congress are opposed.

The rain, which forecasters said would pick up again this weekend, dampened some of the earlier optimism about huge rains and a building effort that has brought nearly 34,000 military personnel to southern Florida.

"Today, I was hoping to see the progress I'm hearing about, but it was hard to see," Linda Shelley, secretary of the Florida Department of Community Affairs, said after a helicopter tour.

Residents she talked to complained of not enough ice, water and toilets and too many mosquitoes. The Air Force helped Duval County with aerial spraying. State officials asked prod-

Thursday, The tent city near Homestead, Fla. is housing those left homeless by Hurricane Andrew.

Florida and Louisiana, reducing the usual 30-day processing period to seven days.

The White House announced that the Small Business Administration had speeded up its handling of loan applications from hurricane victims in Florida and Louisiana, reducing the usual 30-day processing period to seven days.

The state Department of Labor reported Thursday that 60,000 homes had been destroyed in Florida, leaving 250,000 people homeless. It said 60,000 people were thrown out of work by the storm. More than 400,000 people remained without electricity.

Other federal and local agencies have produced widely varying estimates of the number of homes destroyed.

State officials also said 1.9 million meals had been served at 110 sites. As of Thursday, the hurricane was blamed for 16 deaths in Florida, Louisiana and the Bahamas. Damage in Florida has been estimated at $20 billion.

Five tent cities in Homestead and Florida City with room for 3,800 people were up, but only a few hundred people used them Wednesday night. The Army said seven more could be built, bringing the capacity to 20,000 people.

Some said they stayed with their damaged homes because they feared looters and others were simply unwilling to leave what they called home.

"It's just because we've lived here so long, 20 years, that I don't know, I just wanted to stay here," said Kathy Shawyer. Her house is so badly damaged that she, her husband and four children can use only one room.

Some residents don't want to live in military-run tents, and others with questionable immigration status also balked.

Mike Shelly, a Florida state legislator, said no detentions were being made for immigration violations and that the 30 agents and 10 vehicles in south Dade were helping distribute food and supplies.

"It's good news, but the migrants are still scared to death," said Bruce Netter, site coordinator at St. Ann's Mission in Naranja.

State authorities will urge the Army to scatter tent areas to allow people to stay close to their homes — perhaps even put up tents in their yards.

"You can't expect the people who have been through this kind of trauma to leave whatever semblance of their lives is left and go to a place that they don't know, understand and trust," Shelley said.

Stan Makowski, chief building inspector for Homestead, said inspectors were trying to use persuasion, instead of forcing residents out. However, in some cases of imminent danger, people were evicted from condemned homes.

"If we made everybody leave (badly damaged homes), there'd be thousands of people at the tent city," said inspector Wayne Anderson.

Dominic and Michelle Gosein were among those who did go to the tents. They and their five children shared a 16-by-32-mat Army tent with 10 other people. They said they came only because they were ordered out of their condemned apartment building.

"People feel their home is a sanctuary. They're safe," Gosein said.

"They don't want to give it up."

At one four-bedroom house in Homestead, code enforcement officer Juan Mesa pleaded unsuccessfully for Willie Kowitz and the six other adults and four children who share the home to leave.

"I don't want to lecture you. I just want to tell you that you have choices. You have children here. There are other ways to live," Ms. Mesa said.

They didn't budge.

"We're comfortable here," Ms. Kowitz said. "The water's no good, but we can shower. There's no electricity, but that's OK."

Jobless benefit claims slow climb

WASHINGTON (AP) — New claims for unemployment benefits in mid-August held near a two-year low for the second consecutive week, the government said Thursday, offering hope that the nation's job market is perking up.

The number of claims increased a less-than-expected 3,000 to 386,000 during the week ended Aug. 22, the Labor Department said. Before the previous week, the claims number had not dipped below 400,000 since October 1990, early in the recession.

"We're gradually crawling up from the bottom," said economist David Wynn of DRI-McGraw Hill, a Lexington, Mass., forecasting firm.

Meanwhile, the nation's largest retailers reported mostly modest increases in August sales as Hurricane Andrew depressed results in the South and a late Labor Day holiday delayed back-to-school shopping.

And two reports on the second quarter — one on Americans' productivity, the other on mortgage delinquencies — showed the economy struggling.

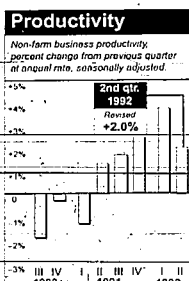

The productivity of non-farm workers, based on a healthy seasonally adjusted annual rate of 2 percent, increased on an even bigger gain in the first quarter, the Labor Department said.

But economists said the figure largely reflects employers' decision to defer hiring in a soft economy and to work their existing labor force harder.

The Mortgage Bankers Association of America said the percentage of homeowners 30 or more days behind on their mortgage payments jumped to 4.77 percent in the second quarter from 4.52 percent in the first three months of the year.

Officials of the association said the increase would have been even worse if lower mortgage rates had not reduced the monthly payments of millions of Americans.

Wynn and other analysts said

Thursday's jobless claims report is a hopeful sign that the economy, after stalling at midyear, is on an upward path again and that nation's unemployment rate may continue to improve.

Despite five consecutive quarters of economic growth through June, the unemployment rate continued to rise, hitting an eight-year high of 7.8 percent in June. It edged down to 7.7 percent in July and economists expect a report being released Friday to show a further decrease to 7.6 percent in August.

When claims fell to 383,000 during the week ended Aug. 15, analysts were skeptical. They said the big swing might have simply been a rebound from a surge caused by a temporary shutdown at General Motors Corp. factories.

But they were reassured that the improvement held during the latest week.

"It's an important number and if we get one or two more weeks of it, it will confirm that the labor market is stabilizing at the minimum and perhaps moving in the direction of a slow acceleration," said economist Thomas Carpenter of ASB Capital Management in Washington.

Hurricane robs farm workers of jobs, homes

NARANJA, Fla. (AP) — Maura James stretched and sweated picking limes in the fields for years to stash away enough money to buy a small house.

Now she has no clothes, no blankets — and no roof over her head.

Hurricane Andrew robbed the 33-year-old farm worker and her family of their meager belongings, their jobs and maybe even a stable future. Nothing is certain now — not even their next meal.

"Where am I going to go?" she asks, her braided head bowed, twisting her hands as she sits outside St. Ann's Mission in this community 20 miles south of Miami. "Where is my home? I feel destroyed. ... I get so sad that I want to cry."

Many of the thousands of farm and migrant workers who pick limes, beans, tomatoes and other vegetables in the south Florida fields face the same cruel predicament: The storm that ravaged their homes also has put their livelihoods in jeopardy.

The hurricane, according to preliminary estimates, caused more than $1 billion damage to crops and buildings. State officials say almost all the lime, avocado, Cuban vegetable and tropical fruit crops were destroyed and virtually the entire horticulture industry — including 900 nurseries — was wiped out.

The Florida City Farmers Market, a $53 million-a-year business employing about 650 people, also is gone, said Nelson Pugh, a State Agriculture Department spokesman.

The hurricane devastation affects about 23,000 agriculture-related jobs many held by people like the James family, who have no insurance, no security net and no choice but to pick up and start over.

The Jameses, who pick limes for 50 cents a bucket everyday with their three children, had saved far more than a decade to buy their house. When they returned after the hurricane, they found that the roof was blown off and their furniture and clothes destroyed.

"They struggle for so many years to get money together ... and now there's nothing," said Sister Ilana Vialles, a worker at the mission, which is part of the Archdiocese of Miami. "What are they going to do? All they've ever done is pick limes."

"They're the forgotten people," the nun said of farm workers. "You hear about all the nice homes, the people who lost, but you don't hear about the poor. These are the people that pick the vegetables on the table."

Many farm workers around this community — its name means orange in Spanish — say they hope to repair their battered homes.

Tomasa Vega, a 59-year-old mother of 11, is happy just to have survived.

"I lost everything," she said through an interpreter, standing in a littered bedroom where the sky peeks in from a great gash in the roof caused by a tree falling onto the house. "I lost my clothes. I lost a TV and a bed. I don't know if I have a job."

But she ticks off her blessings, proudly standing in front of her faded wedding photo, taken 42 years ago. "We have a stove," she says, with a slow smile. "We have water. We have a generator. We feel lucky."

"I feel privileged," she adds, "because my kids are alive."

Bush camp rejects debate offer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush's re-election campaign Thursday rejected a bipartisan panel's recommendation for three presidential debates and one vice presidential debate.

The format had already been accepted by Democrat Bill Clinton.

"We're not sure that's the best way to serve the public. We really have not come to an absolute position on what we think is the best way to do it yet," said Robert Teeter, chairman of the Bush-Quayle re-election committee.

"We will not accept the commission's proposal as it's outlined now."

Asked whether the Bush team was unhappy about the number of proposed debates or the format, Teeter said: "Both."

Teeter said he wasn't ruling out debates, and assumed that they would take place, but that Bush wasn't ready to commit himself.

Paroled rapist pleads guilty to 2nd slaying

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — A paroled rapist who confessed to killing a four-year-old girl has entered a second guilty plea in connection with the killings.

Leslie Allen Williams, who pleaded guilty in June to killing a 15-year-old, entered the same plea Wednesday in the death of 18-year-old Kami Villanueva, his lawyer, Lawrence Kalsany said.

Sentencing was set for Sept. 24. Williams, who was sentenced to life in prison after the first murder plea, faces another life term.

He also pleaded guilty Wednesday to criminal sexual conduct and being a habitual offender.

Want to kick smoking habit? Self-help best bet, CDC says

ATLANTA (AP) — Most smokers who kick the habit do so on their own instead of enrolling in CDC clinics, but heavy smokers who can't stop may need a clinic that sets a deadline and provides a support group, federal officials said Thursday.

Self-help methods give the most lift for the best, said epidemiologist Dana Shelton of the Centers for Disease Control. "But clinics provide the necessary support for some smokers ... who should look for programs that really guard against relapse."

ers in the United States and about 44 million foreign smokers. The CDC said it looked at several studies of smoking-cessation methods to gauge which were most cost-effective.

The agency concluded that self-help methods were both the most widely used means of kicking the habit — used by 90 percent of former smokers — and the most cost-effective, while smoking clinics were the least used and least cost-effective.

For people trying to quit on their own, advice from a doctor appeared to be the most important aid, the CDC said.

Militants move to oust chief

DUSHANBE, Tajikistan (AP) — Anti-government militants have moved to oust Tajikistan's besieged presidential palace Thursday, saying they feared that would allow President Rakhmon Nabiyev to retain power.

Fighting worsened Thursday in the southern Tajik city of Kurgan-Tyube where armed supporters of Nabiyev battled members of the opposition, according to government and opposition sources. The sources said as many as 100 people were killed Wednesday, but the reports could not be independently verified.

The reported clashes erupted after Tajikistan's Cabinet of Ministers and parliament-makers on Wednesday passed a resolution saying Nabiyev was "displaced from power," and scheduled a special parliamentary session for Friday to force his resignation.

In Abkhazia, another flash-point of unrest in the former Soviet Union, a cease-fire was to go into effect at noon and Georgia was to withdraw most of its troops from the rebellious region, where scores of people have died in three weeks of fighting.

The agreement was worked out Thursday at a meeting in Moscow of Russian President Boris Yeltsin, Georgian leader Eduard Shevardnadze and Abkhazian leader Vladislav Ardzinba.

It is unclear whether Tajikistan's parliament has the power to remove the president. In addition, pro-Nabiyev lawmakers are expected to boycott Friday's session, leaving in doubt whether a quorum could be mustered to take any action.

The militants, some with automatic weapons, said they would not leave before Friday's session. Late Wednesday they released the last of the 35 senior officials held hostage for more than three days.

Bush: F-16 sale doesn't break rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration Thursday denied it had violated past promises to China in its decision to sell F-16 fighter jets to Taiwan, and said that State Department officials were prepared to go to Beijing to explain that to the Chinese.

"We are confident that what we have done is fully in keeping with the spirit and the letter" of a 1982 U.S.-China communique limiting U.S. arms sales to Taiwan, State Department spokesman Joseph Snyder said at a news briefing.

Snyder said Assistant Secretary of State William Clark, the former ambassador to India, would be in Japan and was prepared to travel to Beijing to discuss the F-16 deal and overall relations. He declined to say whether the Chinese, who have accused Washington of duplicity in selling arms to Taiwan while promoting arms control elsewhere, were willing to meet Clark.

President Bush on Wednesday announced he was approving sale of 150 F-16s to the government of Taiwan, China's adversary since the Nationalists fled the mainland to Taiwan in 1949.

The announcement of the $6 billion deal was made in Fort Worth, Texas, home to several thousand General Dynamics Corp. workers who might have lost their jobs without the Taiwan contract.

Bush's critics charged the decision was an election-year ploy to win badly needed votes in Texas, and China issued a strong protest and threatened to withdraw from international arms control talks.

Snyder denied that he had violated the 1982 communique in which the United States pledged to gradually reduce arms sales to Taiwan and said it "does not seek to carry out a long-term policy of arms sales to Taiwan."

Extremists burn refugee shelter outside Berlin; 2 arrested, 1 at-large

BONN, Germany (AP) — One of the most despicable attacks on foreigners in a two-week outbreak of violence sent 44 Bulgarian and Romanian refugees running from a blazing shelter, police said Thursday.

Also Thursday, Vera Wolleberger, a prominent leftist lawmaker, said she was convinced that former members of the East German secret police have played key roles in the recent xenophobic outbreaks. The attacks have taken place largely in eastern Germany, where poverty, unemployment and discontent have soared as outdated, inefficient enterprises of the Communist era become absorbed into western Germany's modern economy.

The attack that sent refugees fleeing in panic from their shelter took place overnight in Ketzin, an eastern German city about 12 miles west of Berlin. Right-wing extremists threw a firebomb into the center, leaving it gutted with only its blackened walls still standing.

Geert Piorowski, a police spokesman in nearby Potsdam, said two of the attackers in Ketzin were arrested and one escaped. The refugees were taken to another shelter, he said.

In the east German city of Erfurt, police arrested four extremists who hurled stones and flames at a building occupied by Vietnamese workers. No one was injured.

Police in Goettingen, in western Germany, said that assailants broke windows at two refugee shelters in the nearby town of Northeim. No one was hurt. In two attacks in the eastern state of Saxony-Anhalt, firebombs were thrown into a refugee shelter in Oschersleben causing minor damage, and two cars were set on fire in front of an asylum home in the town of Blankenburg, police said.

In the west German city of Dusseldorf, a firebomb thrown into a shelter for ethnic Germans from Russia failed to ignite, police said.

Saddam's strategy shuns clash, pushes diplomacy, propaganda

By Victoria Graham
The Associated Press

BAGHDAD, Iraq — One week after the allies imposed a no-fly zone over southern Iraq, Saddam Hussein's strategy is a pragmatic one of avoiding military confrontation while keeping up a heavy propaganda offensive.

Iraq's most potent weapons for now appear to be diplomacy, legal arguments and propaganda.

Some analysts do not believe that Saddam can afford to stand by passively and do nothing while the Americans and their allies challenge his authority and credibility.

There's no doubt the Iraqis consider the imposition of the air exclusion zone — set up below the 32nd parallel to help protect Shiite Muslim rebels — an outrage and a violation of sovereignty that must be resisted.

But diplomats say Iraq doesn't want to provoke another potentially devastating conflict that would shatter its remarkable post-Gulf War reconstruction, especially in the all-important oil sector.

They said Saddam appears to have chosen the best — if not the only — possible strategy short of war.

On Tuesday, the governor of Zuhair province in the southern marshes said Baghdad has issued orders not to engage allied aircraft.

Iraqi children express their support for Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein to a foreign reporter visiting the southern province of Melsan Wednesday. Several rallies were staged protesting the 'no-fly' zone.

Western officials claim that before President Bush declared the no-fly zone last Thursday, the Iraqis had been flying an average of 30 sorties a day against the Shites.

Since then, no flights have been reported over the zone by Saddam's estimated 150 operational combat aircraft, all he has left from a prewar fleet of some 700 jets.

Iraq's leaders apparently hope the limited and fragile support for U.S., British and French overflights will erode in time, especially after the U.S. elections in November, if Baghdad acts responsibly.

Iraq is portraying itself as a beleaguered country bullied by the Western powers who want to steal its oil and partition it into a Kurdish zone in the north and a Shiite sector in the south, with Saddam's Sunni-Muslim-dominated minority regime holding Baghdad and the landlocked central provinces.

The Kurds, under allied protection since last year, have established a de facto mini-state with its own elected legislature in the north.

But the Kurds, who have been fighting for autonomy for decades, are far better organized, militarily and politically, than the Shites, who dominate the oil-rich south.

The prospect of a Shiite-held zone emerging is considered distant unless the allies or Iraq intervene on a large scale on the ground — which seems unlikely for the present.

But that could happen if Iraq launched a major offensive on the ground, a move diplomats suggest would be counter-productive for Saddam right now.

The Iraqi opposition claims combat is already under way and likely to intensify. Baghdad denies it is fighting Iraqi Shites, only Iranian infiltrators, army deserters and bandits.

On the diplomatic front, Iraq plans to raise the issue of crippling U.N. economic sanctions and the allies' military intervention at the non-aligned movement summit in Indonesia.

Issues of violated sovereignty, de facto partition and neo-colonialism resonate powerfully in much of the developing world, which sees the United Nations as dominated by the Western powers.

Baghdad also has been hammering away at what it calls the illegality of the military intervention.

It claims allied action is not justified by Chapter 7 of the U.N. Charter, which authorizes the use of force.

Bush declared the no-fly zone under U.N. Resolution 688, which demands repression of Iraq's 17-million people must stop.

It is not clear whether Iraq will respond to the allied moves by becoming more intransigent in its disagreements with the United Nations over inspection teams charged with destroying Iraq's weapons of mass destruction or the issue of U.N. guards for relief operations.

Ramos orders evacuation of thousands threatened by Pinatubo

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Fidel Ramos on Thursday ordered the evacuation of thousands of people from areas threatened by volcanic avalanches from Mount Pinatubo.

Presidential spokeswoman Annabelle Abaya said Ramos told the military to use force if necessary to carry out the evacuation after avalanches from last year's eruption killed 24 people in the past two weeks.

There was no official estimate of the number of people living in the affected areas near the volcano, 60 miles north of Manila.

The Philippine Institute of Volcanology and Seismology recorded more than 600 earthquakes during a 24-hour period ending early Thursday.

The number of quakes was somewhat lower than last week but tremors are growing stronger, the institute said. That indicates magma is rising to the surface, possibly for a new, violent eruption.

Briefly

Iraq lacks facilities for atomic bomb

BAGHDAD, Iraq — The leader of the U.N. weapons-search team said Thursday that Iraq no longer has facilities for making atomic bombs.

Maurizio Ziliotto, an Italian who works with the International Atomic Energy Agency, told reporters: "There is no longer any nuclear activity in Iraq. They have no facilities where they can carry out this activity."

At the end of the third day of inspections by the 21-member team, Ziliotto said the "work was good, cooperation was good."

However, in a statement issued at its headquarters in Vienna, Austria, the U.N. agency said Ziliotto was not issuing "a clean bill of health for Iraq in the nuclear sphere."

Italian cargo plane carrying aid crashes

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — An Italian transport plane crashed Thursday while carrying blankets and other emergency goods to besieged Sarajevo, and a U.N. official said there was no sign that the four crew members survived.

U.N. officials suspended humanitarian flights to the city pending an investigation of the crash. But Fernando del Mundo, a U.N. spokesman in Geneva, said there was no indication the plane had been hit by gunfire.

The crash of the third day of inspections by the 21-member team, Ziliotto said the "work was good, cooperation was good."

However, in a statement issued at its headquarters in Vienna, Austria, the U.N. agency said Ziliotto was not issuing "a clean bill of health for Iraq in the nuclear sphere."

Wall of mud, rock flushes through Kabul

KABUL, Afghanistan — A churning wall of water, mud and rock swept through the fertile valleys of the Hindu Kush Mountains, leaving hundreds of people dead or missing, a British-based charity said Thursday.

Rescue workers were just starting to dig bodies out of the 6-foot deposits of mud, the Halo Trust charity said, and estimated the death toll could rise to 3,000.

Floods wiped out entire villages in the Salang, Dhorband and Shalut valleys, destroying orchards, irrigation canals and up to 1,000 homes, said Guy Willoughby, head of Halo Trust. The organization was clearing mines scattered in the area during the 14-year war between the former Communist government and Muslim rebels that succeeded it.

Willoughby said in a statement that some of the destroyed homes in the narrow valleys — flanked by barren slopes and snow-capped peaks — were built by returning refugees.

4 million Africans will die without aid

LONDON — At least 4 million people will die in parched southern Africa if food is not delivered quickly, a British aid worker said Thursday as seven agencies launched a joint appeal.

An official of Oxfam said the situation in Somalia was the worst he had seen in two decades, including the Ethiopian famine of 1984.

The public appeal for support, backed by five-minute television programs Thursday night on BBC and independent television, is being made by Action Aid, the British Red Cross, Catholic Christian Aid, Help the Aged, Oxfam and Save the Children.

James Oparia-Ekwaro, head of the African and Middle East department of Christian Aid, said drought threatened starvation for millions in Mozambique, Malawi, Angola, Namibia, Botswana, Lesotho, Zimbabwe and Zambia.

Iranian leader to travel to China soon

BEIJING — China announced Thursday that President Hashemi Rafsanjani of Iran will visit an official visit to China from Sept. 9-12.

Rafsanjani has been invited by his Chinese counterpart, President Yang Shangkun, Foreign Ministry spokesman Wu Jiamin told a weekly news briefing.

Yang traveled to Iran late last year on the first official visit to that country by a Chinese head of state since the 1979 Islamic revolution.

China was a major arms supplier to Iran during the 1980-88 Iran-Iraq war. China also has sold nuclear technology to Iran, but says it was only for peaceful purposes and that the two countries are not involved in a nuclear weapons program.

Seoul church builds cemetery for fetuses

SEOUL, South Korea — The Roman Catholic diocese Seoul said Thursday it will build a cemetery for aborted fetuses.

The Korean Catholic Church is waging a public campaign against government moves to legalize abortion in limited cases, including when the mother's life is in danger.

The fetus tombs will be constructed next month at the diocese's cemetery in Yongin south of Seoul, said priest Lee Ki-jung.

U.S. planes resume airlift to Somalia

NAIROBI, Kenya — U.S. military planes resumed an emergency airlift into Somalia Thursday after a one-day respite. Relief officials said conditions in the starving nation were worse than the 1984 famine in Ethiopia.

The Americans sent five military C-130 cargo planes to Belet Huen, a village on Somalia's western border with Ethiopia.

Clinton's education plan deserves serious attention

There's persuasive evidence that the next big education issue won't be why Johnny can't read.

Higher education costs are rising nearly as fast as health-care costs in this country.

How fast? Well, if your kid is bright and in the third grade, you'd better set aside about $180,000 if you want to send him to Harvard for four years.

And it isn't just the cost of a private education that's rising out of the reach of many Americans. The average cost of attending a public college has grown by nearly half since 1980.

Most people with college-bound kids save for their education, but most people don't earn $100,000 a year. And how many kids can you send to Stanford on a plumber's salary?

That's why presidential candidate Bill Clinton's college funding idea makes some sense.

Clinton proposes creating a National Service Trust Fund that would give every American the right to borrow money for college. Those who borrow would repay the balance either as a small percentage of their earnings over time or by performing community service.

The key point is service.

The idea is to avoid another open-ended federal student-loan program whose defaults and sloppy management are subsidized by the taxpayers. To get the money, a student would incur an obligation.

The concept isn't new, of course, but the notion that Americans have an obligation to give something in return for access to a college education is still a sound one.

And make no mistake, a college education is important in this society.

In 1990, a full-time male worker, 25 years of age, with four years of college, earned $42,524, on the average. His high school counterpart made $27,315. That's a 50 percent difference.

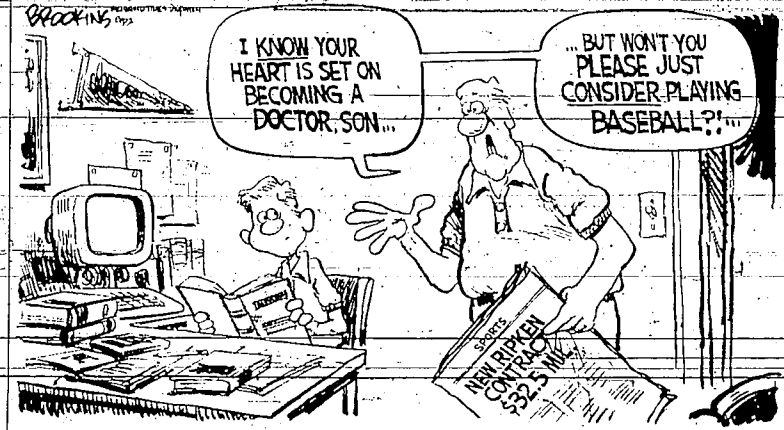

No American is entitled to a college education, but every American should have the chance to work for one.

You can track the rise of America as an economic superpower with the increase in access to higher education by more Americans, and the growth of Japan closely parallels the development of an educational system strictly based on merit.

Over the same period, you can plot the relative decline of Britain and France, countries where higher education was, until a generation ago, rationed by cost.

We can't afford to let that happen in this country. The day a farmer's kid can't attend MIT because his parents can't afford to send him is the day we can stop worrying about competing with Europe and Japan.

Clinton's plan is a good start toward assuring that won't happen.

Comment on teachers simply cliches

Gay Petersen
Reader comment

Every year, as regular as clockwork, the editor of The Times-News decides it is time to pontificate on the same old theme: "Lack of teachers' values."

The editor always throws a few clichés our way — ours is perhaps "even a crab's" vocation, there are a few local teachers whom the respected editor "respects and admires."

Well, I, for one, am tired of the same old cliches. Teachers are always to do their best. We are — with intelligence, knowledge and great dignity — to teach the children all types of information to assure they will do well in the world, and at the same time, we are to sit back and say, "We won't mention salaries. We will be thankful for whatever you want to pay us."

You placed a list of back-to-school suggestions for teachers in your editorial. I would like to comment on each of those.

You say we, as professionals, should support merit pay. I support merit pay, as will most teachers. Our question is: Who will judge? Should students be allowed to judge teachers? Should parents judge? How about the teachers' peers — judging them, or superintendents and principals? Should we be judged by a group of the above? No one can decide and, whatever the decision, someone will be slighted and certainly will be hurt in many ways by that slight.

private schools in this area that meet state requirements. Therefore, most people must do send their children to public schools in their particular areas, and we deal with this accordingly. Come look at the 40 to 50 students to a classroom sometime.

You say we should stay out of partisan politics. We cannot help but get involved in politics. We have no choice. The Legislature gives schools money. If we ignored them, they, in turn, would ignore us.

For years I have said little, accepted whatever was paid and done the best job I know how to do. I will continue to do the best possible job I can do because I love children, and I owe those children the best, as true of all the teachers with whom I am acquainted. But I no longer can sit back and listen to people like you tell us we should not be concerned about our own livelihood.

You do not complain of the prices charged by other professionals such as doctors and lawyers. Perhaps teachers, too, should just forget the bargaining and charge so much per hour for each student we teach.

How often do you hear these charges in the matter, and until you, Mr. Editor, have "walked a mile in our shoes," I ask you to keep your criticisms to yourself.

How ever, most parents cannot afford to choose private education, and there are few

Letters

Beware of the U.N.

To Barbara Bush: This will acknowledge receipt of your recent letter in which you asked for a contribution for your husband's presidential campaign. You will note by the enclosed reply that I have declined your invitation.

In the third paragraph of your letter on Page 3, you make this statement: "And it is most disappointing to see our opponents favor big government spending programs for which our children will have to pay the price tag in years to come."

I call to your attention the statement your husband, George Bush, made: "Read my lips, no new taxes." Did your husband keep that promise? The answer is no. That is not the only time your husband has failed to keep a promise to the people.

I am certain you are familiar with the publication, "The Spotlight." This publication prides itself in telling the truth. In a recent publication, "The Spotlight" enumerated a number of promises he did not keep.

When George Bush was sworn in as president, he took an oath to defend and protect the Constitution. He has failed to keep that oath. He is sponsoring what he calls the "New World Order." What is the New World Order? The New World Order will scrap our constitutional form of government and place us in a government under the United Nations.

Your husband's opponent for president, Bill Clinton, is a Bilderberg. The Bilderbergs are an organization working to scrap our constitutional form of government.

The voters at the coming election do not have a choice.

Vote the bums out

As with the civil war in Los Angeles, the same applies to southern Florida and Louisiana and the disaster of Hurricane Andrew. Our great commander observed, no promise and failed as Los Angeles, Florida and Louisiana waited for the help our federal government promised.

sustain a family with children?

I think not. Relief and help should have been on the way before the storm Andrew cleared the area. This is what we would call fast action. This is thinking ahead, which I do not think you are capable of when it comes to and concerns our people, our country and our form of government. Your proposals are like the bull shit that we can find on our local farms.

You ask for four more years of promise, and you will do what you promised four years ago. Just read my lips. For your information, Mr. President, we do not want to vote to scrap our Constitution and Bill of Rights for a world government under the leadership of the United Nations.

The last time I heard of a world order was Adolf Hitler in World War II. He wanted to rule the world to survive as long as we have a free and independent nation of the people, by the people and for the people.

You, Mr. Bush, are in no way like Harry S. Truman. He was a great American commander and a great president. Any comparison to this great American is an insult to Harry S. Truman and the American people.

Any attempt to change our type of government to a world order will find all veterans and all good Americans ready to defend our country, our freedom and our government.

I, as you, Mr. President, took an oath of allegiance as a member of our armed forces, and I shall never forget that oath.

Vote the bums out: clean house from the top down. Balleets now or bullets later. America, awake before it's too late. God bless America, our flag and our country — now and forever.

Veteran World War II centered senior citizen and very unhappy voter.

A lasting landfill solution

We have a huge problem with the fact that no one wants to have a burial ground for this community's garbage next door to them. And I can't blame them for the way they feel. The problem is we are still wanting to sweep our problems under the rug. We should all sit back and reflect on the last 100 years and the travesty that we have called progress and the throw-away society that we have created. Well, you know the rest of the story.

Let's all consider a bold new approach to the problem. We have all started with this new way of thinking — it's called recycling. But we still stop short of the ultimate goal. I propose that Twin Falls become the model community and take the initiative and build — not a landfill but a complete recycling facility. Garbage in, recycled and inert materials out. Even if we can't recycle 100 percent, the remaining material can be cleanly incinerated to less than one to five percent of its original volume, and we won't have to worry about hazardous materials being buried to later seep into our water supply. We are prepared to spend millions of dollars to bury our garbage, are we willing to spend a little more to be environmentally responsible? I don't have all the answers, but I do have a lot of good ideas, and so do many of you. Stop thinking landfills and start thinking recycling.

Wouldn't it be better to be known for something better than where some guy managed to level his land to a canyon? We have an exciting opportunity to be the leading edge of a new industry of change that our children's children will talk about in years to come.

This is our work in the road. Let's take the narrow uphill path to earth first.

Vote for Jax as sheriff

After having read the recent letter to the editor submitted by Rita Byram of Gooding concerning keeping Sheriff Robert Aja as Gooding County sheriff and having given it some thought, I felt that I would insert some thoughts in connection with one of her remarks. The remark being that the voter should not listen to what former employees have to say.

When considering a candidate for any office, why would a person not be interested in what former employees have to say? After all, former employees have been there and involved with the workings of the agency. They surely would have answers and observations that are not made from the outside. And, when I observe several varied experienced former employees of the Gooding County Sheriff's Office no longer there and I also note that they are openly supporting Jim Jax for sheriff. I feel that there has to be a valid reason for their actions.

Yes, I agree that Gooding County voters should wake up and give some very intelligent and deep thought before they cast their vote for sheriff on Nov. 3. I feel that when they ask the right questions and make the right observations, they will want to support Jim Jax for sheriff.

Symms' poll senseless

Listen to the questions asked by a recent poll from the office of Sen. Steve Symms:

Which do you agree with? "Yes, my job and the jobs of my friends and neighbors depend on a sound Idaho economy. I want you to keep up the fight for common sense with the Private Property Rights Act and the Progressive Endangered Species Act."

Yes, Sen. Symms, although my job is not directly threatened, I agree that Idaho's economy will suffer unless common sense is used. Keep up the fight for the Private Property Rights Act and the Progressive Endangered Species Act.

No, I disagree. Private property, jobs or common sense should not be considered when it comes to environmental or land-use policies. The environmentalists and regulators should be given free rein to do as they wish.

A little biased? I would say so, although it comes as no surprise since Symms is not known for fair play.

Stated in such a manner, what citizen is going to choose Answer 3? Will Symms then claim that most Idahoans want to gut the Endangered Species Act? Will he invite the Department of Energy to use Idaho as a nuclear waste dump? Who benefits from the so-called "progressive" Endangered Species Act besides Symms and his rich friends? Who is harmed but the species that cannot adapt quickly enough to our changing world and future generations whose legacy will be a dead strip of diversity and beauty?"

Propaganda such as Symms puts out only serves to pit citizen against citizen. It hides the real issue: money and greed. It will solve nothing in the environmental arena. Clearly, the issues are not black and white, as Sen. Symms would have us believe.

He talks about using a common sense approach to resource and land management. Is it common sense to foul one's nest? Is it common sense to allow a nuclear waste dump over the sole-source aquifer of 200,000 people? Is it common sense to destroy the diversity of life on this planet?

It is common sense to let Steve Symms and his big-money cronies use up the natural resources that belong to all of us in order to line their own pockets? Is it common sense to let greatly people such as this oversee the stewardship of this land?

The question is not jobs or environment, and the sense needed to decide is not so common after all.

Unhappy with prosecutor

A year and a half ago, we had a guest in our home receive several packets of checks. While we were in Washington state and Arizona, this individual and another wrote better than $3,000 in groceries. In July 1991, this individual passed the last two forged checks at the market we trade with at the Filer store. Charges were filed on him; he was found in New York state; arrested there, brought back to Idaho and jailed in Twin Falls.

The preliminary hearing was held in January 1992. I was flown back to Twin at the expense of Twin Falls County from Arizona, round trip, as I was there to have eye surgery at the Veterans Administration Medical Center in Fresno at the time I was legally blind. This individual was incarcerated in the Twin Falls County Jail until the "day of the trial," June 30. I was informed the morning of the trial that there had been a "plea bargain," and that there would be a later date for sentencing. I asked the prosecuting attorney's office for the date. I was told probably four to six weeks from then.

I finally called the clerk of the court, and then discovered that the sentencing had been the day that the trial was cancelled. I asked the judge the court on my views and the damage that had been done by the individual to me and my family, let alone every grocery store in Twin Falls, Buhl, Kimberly and Filer.

Two charges of forgery had been dropped to one charge of petty larceny. He used his identification, signed the checks, was seen and recognized and was known to the office person who OK'd the checks twice in two days. The sentence was for time served; what a miscarriage of justice!

It seems the prosecutor's office spends more time to not go to trial and having plea bargaining than doing the job that they were elected and hired to do.

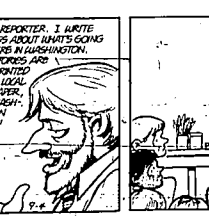

The time has come, in my opinion, to clean house totally. Twin Falls County lost more than $5,000 on this one trial and six-month incarceration. We could hire an additional much-needed deputy sheriff from the money that is wasted in the prosecutor's office.

Agents indicted Weaver after he refused to become informant

Boston Globe

Weaver atop Ruby Ridge with his wife and four children, and was subject to BOSTON — Federal agents in Idaho "pressured" Randy Weaver to "become" a government informant against white-supremacy groups more than two years ago, according to his lawyer and written correspondence.

FBI agents and marshals have said that they were not "until" the marshal was shot to death that they vigorously sought Weaver's arrest. Indeed, for a year and a half, Weaver secluded himself at Ruby Ridge with his wife and four children, and was subject to only occasional surveillance by federal authorities.

When this nation was asked to let a former federal agent, Michael Johnson, a U.S. marshal in Idaho, said Wednesday, "If anything, history will show that the marshals' service, to the point of getting criticized five or six months ago by a number of media, did not go up there and storm the house."

separatist and unorthodox religious beliefs. Spence was contacted by James Earl Ray, a former federal agent, who talked Weaver into the cabin after FBI negotiators had failed to make progress. Weaver was also a Green Beret, although he apparently never saw combat duty. "If the justice system fails to work to protect the rights of Mr. Weaver and his rights are diminished because of his letters, so are the rights of all of us," said Spence. "That is the ultimate issue in this case."

"The fact is, he was (approached) by undercover agents in that case," Gerry Spence, Weaver's lawyer from Jackson, Wyo., said in a telephone interview Wednesday. "You know what the government does. They then descend on you and say, 'If you don't join us, we will get you.' They deal with someone who wouldn't be a snitch."

According to a source, Weaver said after his surrender on Monday, "I would rather see the worst justice go down than be a snitch."

Weaver's remark and Spence's assertions corroborate a letter that Weaver supports at the FBI's first week in Naples, Idaho, which they said his wife, Vicki, wrote on June 12, 1990.

In the letter, addressed to "Aryan Nations and all our brethren of the Anglo Saxon Race," Vicki Weaver said she and her husband had been followed to a friend's house that night by two agents from the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

"They threatened him with federal firearms charges and prison time and the confiscation of our truck," the letter reads. "They said they didn't have a warrant yet. They said they want him to join their team and that he must come alone to the courthouse in Spokane tomorrow at 11 a.m."

"Randy said, 'NO WAY.' They said, 'Oh, yes, that's the way we do things,'" the letter reads.

The letter names the two agents as "Gunderson and Barley." Two agents who work out of ATF's Spokane, Wash., office, Steve Gunderson and Herb Barley, could not be reached for comment Wednesday. An ATF spokesman in Seattle would not discuss Weaver or any relationship he may have had with the agency.

"Whether we would discuss that at this point, we have to be pretty careful what can be said at this time," said Jim Provencher, the spokesman. "That's not an area in which I can comment."

Spence would not elaborate on his assertion that Weaver had been approached by the government to become an informant.

Weaver, 44, a white separatist with former ties to The Aryan Nation, a white-supremacy group based in Idaho, surrendered Monday afternoon after an 11-day standoff at his cabin atop Ruby Ridge in the remote hills west of Naples, about 30 miles south of the Canadian border.

Several hundred heavily armed federal agents and marshals surrounded his cabin as Weaver, his three daughters and family friend Kevin Harris secluded themselves inside.

The siege began after Deputy U.S. Marshal William Degan of Quincy, Mass., was killed in a mountainside gunfight Aug. 21 among marshals, Weaver, Weaver's son Samuel and Harris. Samuel Weaver, 13, was also killed in the shootout.

Degan had been flown to Idaho from Boston to conduct surveillance in the government's ongoing attempt to arrest Weaver on a 1991 charge of possessing a sawed-off shotgun.

On Aug. 22, the second day of the siege, Vicki Weaver was shot in the head and killed as she stood in the cabin doorway holding her young daughter. Randall Weaver and Harris were injured by gunfire at the same time.

Harris, who is hospitalized, has been charged with the murder of a federal agent while Weaver, who remains imprisoned in Boise, is charged with assault on a federal officer.

"He lost his son, who wouldn't come up past your waist, his wife, who was shot in the head as she clutched her baby," said Spence. "He was shot himself, and his friend was shot and is badly hurt."

"This all because of a government that has unlimited force and can use unlimited force against one of its small citizens. It is a very frightening proposition."

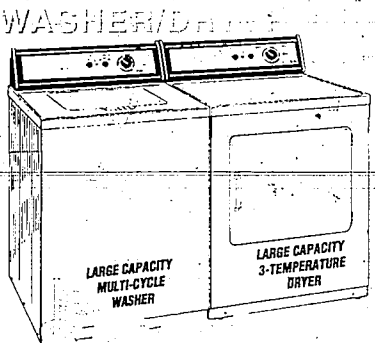

Weaver was alleged to have sold two 12-gauge shotguns at his cabin to a federal informant in October 1989. In June 1990, he was approached by the two ATF agents, according to the letter. In December 1990, he was indicted on the firearms charges, and in January he was arrested by ATF agents. After being set free pending a court appearance, he secluded himself in his cabin in February 1991 and did not leave until Monday.

With his failure to appear for a federal trial, it was the responsibility of the U.S. Marshals Service to bring him to justice.

Craig discounts politics in farmer aid

By Drew DeSilver
Times-News writer

'We knew we had a disaster. But you can't provide disaster relief until you determine the extent of the disaster. How do you do that? By yields. So this announcement is coming right on schedule.'

— Sen. Larry Craig

TWIN FALLS Election-year politics played only a small role in President Bush's recent announcement of disaster aid for U.S. farmers, Sen. Larry Craig said Thursday.

He conceded, though, that Bush's release of $755 million in emergency funds probably will have some political impact.

"Sure there's politics," Craig told The Times-News during a visit to Twin Falls. "Anything the president does between now and Election Day will have politics in it."

But the timing of the aid release, two months before the general election, wasn't intended to influence the election, the Republican senator said.

The money was appropriated earlier this year as part of a $1.75-billion emergency relief bill. $955 million was distributed this spring to help cover crop losses in 1990 and 1991, but the remainder required a certification of emergency by Bush.

The president announced that certification on Tuesday during a campaign trip to South Dakota, thereby making the funds available.

When members of Idaho's congressional delegation first wrote to Bush in June, asking him to release the funds, Agriculture Secretary Edward Madigan told them that it would be done in late summer, Craig said.

That was to allow the Agriculture Department to properly assess the extent of Police credit youngster with helping save dad

TWIN FALLS - A telephone call that may have saved his father's life earned a Twin Falls youngster a certificate of achievement from the Twin Falls police department.

Seven-year-old Whitney Devers dialed the emergency 911 telephone number Wednesday afternoon when his father began suffering a severe asthma attack.

Steven L. Devers, a respiratory therapist, said such attacks can be life-threatening if medical help does not arrive quickly.

He was at home with his son and 2-year-old daughter when the attack occurred.

Whitney learned about 911 in kindergarten and said he was not frightened during the incident.

Investigators discover little evidence at scene of hay fire

TWIN FALLS - Investigators may never know what caused a fire that burned $16,000 worth of hay in north Twin Falls on Aug. 22, a Twin Falls police detective said Thursday.

Police thought arson may have been involved in the haystack fire behind the Sandpiper Restaurant, but detective Ike Kistler said they have been able to gather no physical evidence.

Because of its close proximity to a pair of bars, the 20-ton haystack on North College Road became a common place for couples to go, and the fire may have been started by a carelessly tossed cigarette, Kistler said.

The wind was blowing that night and easily could have turned a small spark into a flame, he said.

The owner of the hay earlier suggested a Sandpiper employee could have been the culprit, but he was somewhere else when the fire started, Kistler said.

Jerome County planner quits for work with his business

JEROME - The Jerome County planning and zoning administrator has resigned.

Glenn Elwell left the job Monday to devote full time to his heating engineering and installation business.

As the P&Z administrator, Elwell worked part time for the county.

The commissioners had considered marking the position full time when the budget for the next year was compiled, but were unable to find enough money.

Elwell said he would have considered staying with the county if the job would have been full-time.

"It's nobody's fault, I hate to leave, but that's just the way it is," Elwell said.

Applications are being taken at the county courthouse for the administrator position.

Jerome will close landfill for Labor Day holiday

JEROME - Jerome County residents will not be able to dump refuse at the landfill on Labor Day, the county commissioners say.

The facility will be closed for the holiday, Commissioner Carl Montgomery said.

The commissioners also decided this week that used appliances that have been accepted at the landfill for a $3 fee will no longer be accepted.

The appliances can be taken to the Appliance & TV Barn at 988 W. Main St., Montgomery said. There is no fee for leaving appliances at the business, he said.

Jerome County residents pay an annual fee for the operation of the landfill. Anyone from out of the county who wants to use the landfill, must pay a fee at the gate. Identification is required.

Jerome closes courthouse offices in memory of Andrus

JEROME - The Jerome County courthouse offices will be closed from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. today in remembrance of Commissioner George Andrus, who died Tuesday.

Law enforcement facilities in the courthouse will remain open.

The funeral for Andrus will be held at 11 a.m. today at the Jerome 6th Ward LDS chapel, located north of Jerome High School.

Former attorney general joins battle to save couple's home from tax sale

The Associated Press

BOISE - Former attorney general Jim Jones is helping a West Boise couple fight the tax delinquency sale of their home by the Nampa & Meridian Irrigation District for $303.

"It's clearly unconscionable for a person to lose a $70,000 or $75,000 home for $303," said Jones, who practices law in Twin Falls and Boise. "I don't think the legal system will permit this to happen."

Frank and Kay Veldevere contend they were unaware of plans to sell their home at public auction over their failure to pay $118.91 in irrigation assessments over the past 3 1/2 years.

Ron and Teresa Barker bought the three-bedroom ranch house after attending a financial planning seminar. The Veldeveres found out about their home sale when they got a note from the Barkers recently.

"Do you want to be considered as potential renters, or would you care to diligently, and made extraordinary efforts to inform the municipalities of what the consequences of their actions would be," Coon said.

Mrs. Veldevere said she has not paid the assessment because the couple - like many other homeowners in subdivisions built on irrigated farm property - do not get water, only water rights, Jones calls it "ghost irrigation."

"I probably would have just paid - under protest," Mrs. Veldevere said. "We have a good $15,000 to $20,000 equity in the house."

For the Barkers, the home represents a potential investment.

They went to the auction after attending a seminar that included advice on buying property at government auctions.

But the Barkers may pay more for the property than $303, Coon said there may be financial encumbrances such as liens and mortgages on tax deeds, and the Veldeveres still owe $52,000 on their mortgage.

Ketchum man wins lottery by numbers

The Times-News

BOISE - A Ketchum man who uses a statistical theory to pick his numbers will share the largest jackpot ever awarded for Idaho Fantasy 5, one of the games sponsored by the Idaho Lottery Commission.

The man who asked the Lottery Commission not to release his name, will receive a check for $152,463, a third of the Sept. 1 jackpot of more than $457,000.

The two other winners were from Pocatello and Post Falls, but they had not claimed their prizes Thursday.

The Ketchum winner, who bought his ticket at the Circle K on Main Street in Ketchum, told the Lottery Commission he picked every possible five-number combination between 21 and 27 on his winning ticket.

He said he usually picks numbers in the 20s because he read a book that explained the odds are better with those numbers.

The winner said he usually buys a dual draw Fantasy 5 ticket every Tuesday, using just one set of numbers and only picks many possible combinations when the jackpot gets high. He said he would use the money to pay bills and buy his son a car for his last year in college.

Through a Beautiful Country," after an entry in the journal of Capt. William Clark, co-leader of the Lewis and Clark Expedition that opened the Northwest for development in 1805 and 1806. It was first broadcast by Idaho's three PBS affiliates in 1990.

For two years, a small film crew traveled some 65,000 miles, interviewed more than 130 people, shot 400 hours of raw tape and worked thousands of hours to script, edit and edit together the programs. The project cost $750,000.

Cartan-Hansen and her co-producer, Jeff Tucker, used the tapes to produce an educational course of 15-minute programs designed for fourth-graders.

The tapes were reviewed and approved by an advisory board that included college professors and classroom teachers to ensure the material was appropriate for classrooms, Cartan-Hansen said.

Hagerman eyes better city water

By Terrell Williams
Times-News correspondent

HAGERMAN - City officials are asking for help from local residents in planning a new city water system.

"The scope of this work is quite large; so that's why we need public input," Scott Bybee, chief U.S. Engineer, told the Hagerman City Council Tuesday. "It may involve passing a bond to get matching funds."

A public hearing to study options for a new water system was set for 7:30 p.m. on Sept. 22 at the senior citizens center in Hagerman.

"We'd like to get as many people here as we can," Bybee said. "We really want to hear what the public wants to do. We won't have all the answers but we'll have a lot of information."

The city has four basic alternatives to consider in applying for federal funding, Bybee said. The options are:

The city can choose to prove that the quality of the springs meets new Division of Environmental Quality standards.

Water from the city's two springs would have to be tested for many things every year.

Bybee said the labor of getting all the samples and the cost of analysis at laboratories in Boise makes this option impractical. Also, it does not make the water safe.

The city could continue to use the springs, but filter the water before it comes to the city.

A recent increase in disease from unfiltered spring water is what prompted the new DEQ regulations, Bybee said, noting that all cities must be in compliance by July of 1994.

"That's the law," he said, "and the purpose of the law is to protect the public."

Filtering is expensive, he noted.

The city can totally eliminate use of spring water and make a conversion to deep water wells.

The city could put in one new well, plus a filtration system for continued use of the wells, and the law is to be water.

These four options are what the city will be looking at during the next two months before the city applies for a grant by the Nov. 6 deadline, Bybee said.

At the Sept. 22 hearing, Bybee and representatives of Region 4, who are writing the grant application, will talk about the city's options.

Questions will be answered about construction costs, effects of the drought, diseases in the water and other problems, Bybee said.

This will be the first of several hearings, he said, and a greater turnout will add points to the city's chances of winning funds.

Another way to secure more points, Bybee advised, is for the city to set up a committee of 10 or 12 residents to analyze the city's needs and to help develop commerce. Most growth in a small city

At Morningside, Kidvid brings history to life

By Kirk Mitchell
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Kids learn things by watching television, so it makes sense for fourth-graders to get their Idaho history on video, a Morningside Elementary School student observed Saturday.

"Kids always remember what they watch on television, like Bart Simpson," said Whitney Liberty, a student in Carol Boyd's fourth-grade class.

On Thursday, Whitney and her classmates were watching a river of molten lava pour out of a volcano.

With no active volcanoes in Idaho, a Hawaiian substitute was used to give students a vivid impression of how their state's landscape was formed, said Joan Cartan-Hansen, co-producer of the 15-part video series called, "Proceeding on Visions of Idaho."

Cartan-Hansen

The videos, compiled from a 13-part TV series on Idaho history produced by Idaho Public Television for the state's centennial two years ago, are designed to supplement what Idaho fourth-graders are learning about history, geography, Indians and industry, she said.

"I love it," said Boyd, who was an adviser for the project. "I'm really anxious to use it."

When asked if the video was a fun and effective learning tool, students responded with a resounding chorus of, "Ye-ahs."

The TV series, narrated by Dreich Bowler of Bliss, was entitled, "Proceeding on

Through a Beautiful Country," after an entry in the journal of Capt. William Clark, co-leader of the Lewis and Clark Expedition that opened the Northwest for development in 1805 and 1806. It was first broadcast by Idaho's three PBS affiliates in 1990.

For two years, a small film crew traveled some 65,000 miles, interviewed more than 130 people, shot 400 hours of raw tape and worked thousands of hours to script, edit and edit together the programs. The project cost $750,000.

Cartan-Hansen and her co-producer, Jeff Tucker, used the tapes to produce an educational course of 15-minute programs designed for fourth-graders.

The tapes were reviewed and approved by an advisory board that included college professors and classroom teachers to ensure the material was appropriate for classrooms, Cartan-Hansen said.

Copies of the series, which have a 20-year shelf life, will be sent to all 350 public schools in Idaho with fourth graders, she said.

The series spotlights women and people of different ethnic groups who are positive role models, she said.

After watching one video, fourth-grader Jake Skeeman said he learned that dams produce electricity. His classmate, Tyler Garcia, added that dams also make it tough for fish to swim up rivers.

The videos come with teachers' guides. The guides are designed to suggest ways you can use the tapes to enrich the study of Idaho history in your classroom," said Phyllis Edmundson, Boise State University associate dean of education, who moderated the series.

"A good way to remember things is by making them come to life," Edmundson said about the video series.

Officials consider re-opening Zion road

SPRINGDALE, Utah (AP) — Utah Department of Transportation officials have cleared State Road 9 and plan to open the southern entrance to Zion National Park Thursday, less than two days after an earthquake closed the road.

Park spokesman Denny Davies said the two-lane highway, which runs through adjacent Springdale and is traveled by more than two-thirds of the park's visitors, was expected to be cleared of debris from a large rockslide by 7 p.m. MDT.

"With that, we will be open for the Labor Day weekend and will welcome all comers," Davies said.

Tons of debris blocked the road early Wednesday when a moderate earthquake sent a large slide tumbling down a mountainside just outside the park entrance. Three homes were destroyed but there were no serious injuries.

Utah Geological Survey geologist Barry Solomon said the slide was apparently a so-called "rotational slip" which developed on the northeast side of Blacks Canyon, just across S.R. 9 from the park's Wahvian Campground. It occurred in the so-called Clinch Formation, which is prone to landslides in southwestern Utah.

Utah Geological Survey geologist Barry Solomon said the slide was apparently a so-called "rotational slip" which developed on the northeast side of Blacks Canyon, just across S.R. 9 from the park's Wahvian Campground. It occurred in the so-called Clinch Formation, which is prone to landslides in southwestern Utah.

Meantime, geologists are still trying to determine the origin of the tremor, which measured 5.9 on the Richter scale.

State geologist M. Lee Allison said the quake likely occurred in one of two faults in the area. More precise information isn't available because the nearest seismograph was located in Cedar City, 55 miles to the north.

Scientists hope predicted aftershocks will help them determine the exact location of the fault slippage.

Allison said the quake likely occurred either on the Washington or Hurricane faults. His estimated epicenter was immediately west of surface exposure of the Washington fault, he said.

The Washington fault runs roughly north-south through northern Arizona and southern Utah. The crack may be either vertical or dip slightly to the west. Eight miles to the north the Hurricane fault, which also is either parallel to the surface or slopes to the west.

Allison said the estimated depth of the quake would indicate it occurred along either fault providing they do slope. It also may be the quake may have occurred on an as-yet-unknown buried fault.

Officials have sent seismologists with portable measuring instruments into the area to await aftershocks which should occur during the next few days.

Court halts gaming case pending November vote

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Supreme Court has vacated the Sept. 15 hearing on the state's appeal of a lower court ruling authorizing bingo by a nonprofit organization in Ada County.

Court Clerk Fred Lyon said Thursday that attorneys on both sides of the controversy had agreed to delay all proceedings in the case until after voters decide the fate of the proposed constitutional amendment restricting gaming activities throughout the state.

Lyon said, however, that there was no consensus among the parties over what impact passage of the constitutional amendment would have on the case.

At issue is the ruling of 4th District Judge Robert Newhouse that provisions of the 1988 state lottery amendment to the constitution authorizing charitable gaming were self-creating. In that light, there was no violation of Idaho's anti-gaming laws by the Riverbend Addiction Prevention Association, which had been conducting bingo games in a suburban Boise.

The state and other critics of the decision maintained that charitable gaming was only legal if conducted as prescribed by law and since the Legislature had never passed any charitable gaming laws no charitable gaming would be legal.

Newhouse's ruling came only weeks before Idaho Indian leaders notified the state that they wanted to begin federally mandated negotiations on a compact to regulate casino-type gambling on their reservations under the 1988 Indian Gaming Regulatory Act.

That act authorizes tribes to legally conduct any gambling operations on their reservations that the state permits under any conditions elsewhere.

The combination of events spurred legislative leaders to convene lawmakers in a special session in late July to approve the constitutional amendment restricting charitable gaming to only bingo, lotteries and raffles and to restrict the kinds of nonprofit organizations able to engage in those activities.

Kempthorne takes time off for campaign

The Associated Press

Republican Sen. candidate Dirk Kempthorne announced Thursday that he would begin a two-month unpaid leave of absence as mayor of Boise on Sept. 10 to campaign full time for the seat of retiring GOP Sen. Steve Symms.

"As I indicated when I first entered the race for the United States Senate, there would come a time when the demands of a statewide campaign would virtually require my full attention," Kempthorne wrote to City Council President Sara Baker. "That time is here."

Kempthorne said his leave would run through Nov. 2, election day.

He will forego any sick leave or vacation time otherwise accrued during those 54 days and will personally pay the full cost of his fringe benefits such as health insurance and retirement.

Kempthorne

Kempthorne, who faces Democratic Congressman Richard Stallings in November, announced earlier this week that he would begin a three-week statewide campaign bus tour on Sept. 30.

His campaign manager came under criticism earlier this summer for running the political operation while still receiving federal compensation as a staff member for Symms. Phil

Reberger, who had been paid $18,000 a year as Symms' chief of staff, finally gave up his $150-a-month staff stipend and the lucrative taxpayer-subsidized pension and health benefits it kept him eligible for.

In the 1st District congressional race, Freedom Means Choice formally endorsed incumbent Democrat Larry LaRocco over GOP challenger Rachel Gilbert, who as a state senator voted for the 1990 anti-abortion bill that Gov. Cecil Andrus vetoed.

Pro-choice spokeswoman Lisa Kronberg said the 1990 legislative showdown on abortion "woke us up and we realized we can't sit back... It's time now to come together and work hard."

LaRocco has steadfastly opposed restrictions on abortion and is one of the sponsors of the federal Freedom of Choice Act. He admits that there is a dwindling chance that bill will come to a vote in the House this year.

Kronberg maintained that abortion remains a high-profile issue in the presidential race, and while the debate in Idaho has cooled, that presidential focus on abortion should carry over into state races.

But Debbie Foster of Idaho Right to Life rejected Kronberg and LaRocco's contentions that the majority of Idaho's are pro-choice. She said national polls conducted before and after the Republican National Convention last month showed that the anti-abortion position gained strength among voters as it was emphasized during the convention.

Before the convention only 26 percent of voters said President Bush would launch anti-abortion stand, would best handle the issue but afterward the support rose to 36 percent.

Gritz has chance in eastern Idaho, sociologist says

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Populist Party presidential candidate James "Ho" Gritz, who gained national attention while helping end an armed standoff in northern Idaho, could win a couple of eastern Idaho counties in the presidential election, an Idaho State University professor says.

"I wouldn't be surprised if Bo Gritz were to win a couple of counties in our part of the state," said James Aho, a sociology professor who has studied the track record of the religious right in Idaho.

Aho said he suspects Gritz will do well, and could even win in rural counties like Jefferson and Teton where Populist candidates historically have enjoyed support.

Gritz, 53, picked up some political mileage by being credited with convincing fugitive Randy Weaver to put down his weapons in the standoff with federal marshals in northern Idaho.

Jeff Schrade, chairman of Bonneville County's Republican Party, said it is interesting to see people who usually vote Republican supporting a candidate who has no chance of winning.

"I think what people need to know is that they're voting for their own Bill Clinton," he said.

Jonathan Foster, director of the Clinton-Gore campaign in Idaho said Gritz could attract more Bush voters to himself, and affect the race between Bush and Clinton.

"He could play a major role because I think like the presidential race in Idaho is going to be very close," Foster said.

"Polls show the two candidates a few percentage points apart."

Jeff Malmen, executive director of the Idaho Republican Party disagreed.

"We believe that the president is going to win Idaho by a fairly large margin and I think it's unlikely any fringe candidate is going to peel away support," he said.

occurs from business already there, he said.

Businessman Jim Stoval said a city with this committee can plan how it will develop. That plan puts the city in good grant position, he said.

Bybee said the city's shot at fringe grant will be better if the public shows concern and strong support.

In other business:

Due to a misprint in published advertising, a public hearing for the city budget has been rescheduled.

At the first hearing on Tuesday, the City Hall was filled with concerned residents asking why the city's proposed budget, advertised in the Gooding County Leader, had projected revenue of only $69,636.

"What was published was $200,000 short, Mayor Jim Martin explained. "The budget will be decided with the correct total and then another budget hearing will be scheduled, he said.

"We apologize for the error," Councilwoman Mary Temple said. "It wasn't anything we did intentionally."

In paying bills, the council decided to pay the $470 newspaper advertising bill at this time.

Councilman Lyle Cornelison said the proposed 1992-93 budget of $269,636 is about the same as it was last year.

City Superintendent Richard Scroggs said the level of the city's savings has been rising in recent days.

Martin said it will be alright now for residents to water at any time.

Martin said weeds in Hagerman are being mowed and ordinances are being enforced to remove abandoned cars from city streets and alleyways. Dogs are a continuous problem, especially at night, he added.

dropped related damage, he said.

"The application period for disaster relief will be Oct. 13 and Oct. 12, 1993."

People who think they qualify should call their local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office, Craig said.

Idaho's two House members, 1st District Democrat Larry LaRocco and 2nd District Democrat Richard Andrus, have said that because of hurricane damage in Florida and Louisiana, more emergency disaster aid probably will be needed.

"Money was tight before Andrew came along," they said in a joint statement Wednesday. "Now it will be even tighter."

The two congressmen plan to solicit support for more emergency aid among their colleagues, Craig said Thursday that he might support their efforts.

"I don't argue against that," the senator said. "But we'll need to evaluate that in terms of the (relief) applications coming in."

A supplemental emergency disaster relief bill could be approved before Congress adjourns for good in early October, Craig said.

Idaho farmers also will benefit from the $1 billion wheat subsidy announced by Bush this week, Craig said.

The Export Enhancement Program subsidy will be applied to up to 1.1 billion bushels of wheat for shipment to 28 countries and regions between now and next June.

On another topic, Craig said the proposed North American Free Trade Agreement was getting mixed reviews from Idaho commodities groups, even though details of the agreement are just starting to come out.

For example, he said, the agreement limits annual production of fresh-packed potatoes to 15,000 tons, a ceiling most Idaho spud farmers feel is too low.

Some growers in Mexico from exporting Caribbean or Latin American sugar to the United States, he said. Idaho sugarcane producers have expressed fears that such "transshipment" could doom the domestic beet-sugar industry.

Senior center promotes optimism, outlaws gripes

By Eric Oodell
Mini-Cassia News Service

BURLEY — If you are a senior citizen and have a complaint, you better say it before Sept. 15. That's when Sharon Rucker, manager of the Golden Heritage Senior Center in Burley, will hold a "No Gripe Day."

Rucker said she was fed up with griping at the center when she decided to start the special day.

She said she had heard some of the senior citizens complain about conditions at the center, "from the color of the curtains to the room temperature."

Manager of other area centers, Rucker had talked to said they have also noticed a lot of complaining going on, Rucker added.

The situation, Rucker decided, called for the first no gripe day at her center.

After announcing the day, Rucker said several people have called her to show their support.

"They said we agree with you 100 percent," Rucker said.

Rucker said it's not just the senior citizens who complain, but everyone. "It seems we always see the negative instead of the good," she said.

Rucker said she would have to decide on a penalty for people who are caught complaining on the special day.

4 arrested in burglary of firearms

BURLEY — Four males were arrested early Thursday morning and charged with the first degree burglary of PayLess Drug Store in Burley.

The four attempted to steal more than $5,000 worth of goods, according to the Cassia County Sheriff's Department.

Charged with first degree burglary were Francisco Martinez, 26; Heyburn; David Martinez, 23; Heyburn; and David Rodriguez, 20. Heyburn, a 17-year-old juvenile was also charged in the crime.

An alarm at the drug store went off at about 3 a.m., and deputies spotted a suspicious car leaving the nearby Sawtooth Apartments, a report said.

Upon following the vehicle, law officers said the suspects inside the vehicle threw four guns out of the vehicle's window.

Officers stopped the car and found many guns inside the car, a report said. Total value of the guns which still had PayLess tags on them, was $5,609.

Rupert store finds beer, food missing

RUPERT — Six cases of beer and some food were stolen from the Grandview Store in Rupert, according to Rupert Police Detective Terry Quinn.

The theft was discovered early Thursday morning. The burglars broke through a door to get inside the building, according to a report.

BLM items found nearby in field

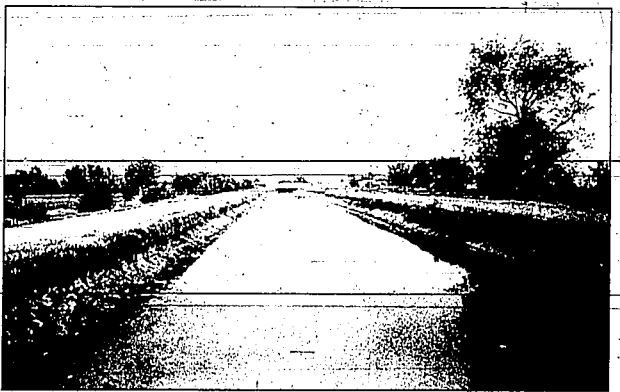

BURLEY — The Burley BLM office at 3603 Overland Ave. was burglarized Tuesday night, but most of the items stolen were located later at the edge of a nearby grain field, it was reported.

Someone apparently came through a window and took several items, including three telephones, a radio, tape player and calculator, as well as $23 in cash. Most of the property was later recovered in the grainfield that morning.

The report said all of the property in the field was thought to have come from the BLM office, except a rock in a roll tape found near the items.

California police brace for big cuts under state's new austerity budget

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When California lawmakers passed a long overdue budget, they put handcuffs on money used by police and sheriff's departments already struggling with rampant crime and manpower shortages.

A $1.3 billion cut in funds for local governments will mean fewer officers, cutbacks in the type of incidents they can respond to and increased response times, law enforcement officials said Thursday.

While some local governments have been able to shield vital services, millions of Californians in urban centers and rural areas alike will have to make do with less police protection.

The state budget was signed on the heels of Los Angeles County's bloodiest August: 263 violent deaths, including 169 shootings and 24 stabbings. Yet law enforcement budgets in the area will be lucky to escape cuts.

Hard-hit county departments, including the sheriff's, have been told more cuts are coming. The force of 8,000 deputies may be reduced by 500. And in a move that will hit individual citizens, county supervisors voted Thursday to charge anyone rescued by a sheriff's or fire helicopter a fee of $1,138.

Los Angeles faces a $55 million shortfall, about 2 percent of the city's budget, and had already been forced to eliminate more than 2,000 jobs in the last year, said assistant city administrator Stephen Wong.

Some political leaders could not imagine further reductions.

"There's no way we can cut the number of police. Our residents would be seeing major problems," said Councilwoman Joy Picus, supporter of moves to put a property tax hike on the fall ballot to pay for 1,000 more officers.

The $57 billion budget signed early Wednesday by Gov. Pete Wilson was delayed for two months by wrangling between the Republican governor and the Democrat-controlled Legislature.

In addition to the $1.3 billion cut for local governments, the austere, no-new-taxes spending plan cuts welfare grants by 5.8 percent, and reduces spending on schools.

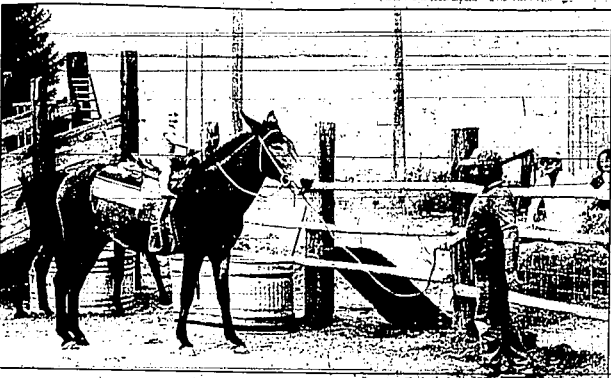

In central California, Modesto County adopted a tentative budget before the budget crisis ended. It calls for $200,000 in cuts in sheriff's department, including three fewer deputies to patrol the mostly rural area. "It's going to hurt us. And it comes at a time when we're growing," said Sheriff Glenn Seymour, projecting that more incidents will be handled by phone, which will likely result in delays.

"Officers may be rolling 20 or 30 miles to a call," Seymour said. The budget was more bad news to San Bernardino County, which encompasses both populous urban areas and vast desert areas.

What that means is that we're talking about a $15 million shortfall for San Bernardino County," said sheriff's spokesman Jim Bryant.

Federal investigators enter case following report of occult ties

By Eric Goodell
Mini-Cassia News Service

BURLEY — Federal authorities have been called in to help solve the murder of a Burley man whose body was found dismembered in late June. The Cassia County Sheriff's Department made the request after a Salt Lake City TV station aired a videotape Aug. 10, tying the slaying to possible cult activity.

In the videotape, an unidentified Mini-Cassia woman who said she was a member of a cult said she knew a slaying would occur near the end of June.

Benita Ruiz Carabeo's dismembered body was found in garbage bags June 22 near the Lincoln County-Minidoka County border.

Two brothers, Luis Rodriguez, 24, and Anastacio Rodriguez, 25, who were living with Carabeo, were charged with the slaying. Authorities believe the two had fled to Mexico.

According to the TV report, the woman said cult members had signed a blood oath to commit a "great sacrifice."

The woman said she made the videotape June 5 in front of three witnesses to protect herself.

TV reporter Paul Murphy, who investigated the story said the television station didn't pay for her videotape.

Murphy said Thursday that he learned of the tape after several Mini-Cassia residents alerted him.

However, Sheriff Billy Crystal said he doubts there is any connection to cult activity in the slaying. He added he didn't know how credible the tape was.

The woman also has declined to be interviewed by law enforcement officers, he said.

Pathologist Kerry Patterson, during his autopsy, found that the spinal column of Carabeo was cut out when he was decapitated. Spinal columns were also cut out during max. cut slaying in Matamoros, Mexico, in 1989. Thirteen people were killed in the murder.

Because of the similarity regarding spinal columns, Crystal said federal agencies are being contacted to determine if there could be a link with satanism.

Detective Dave Tracy said he believes Carabeo was killed as a result of a dispute over rent. Another roommate said the brothers had been drinking heavily.

Crystal said there was no evidence to show the Rodriguez brothers were involved in cult worship.

Cassia County officials are currently working with the Mexican Consulate in Salt Lake City to determine if the Mexican government would help track the brothers down.

The amount of satanic activity in the Mini-Cassia area has been widely debated. The Idaho attorney general's office, in their investigation of the Baby X case, determined there was little activity.

Baby X was an infant found mutilated near the Minidoka County landfill in 1989.

...The radical environmental groups don't give one whit about grazing fees. Their hidden agenda is the elimination of multiple use of public lands.

Ranchers who graze livestock on federal land currently pay $1.92 per month to graze a cow and calf, or five sheep, or one horse. A plan approved by the U.S. House of Representatives earlier this year, but killed by the Senate, would increase the fees to $8.70 per month, roughly the same rate ranchers now pay to graze livestock on private land.

Renewed attempts to increase the fees are expected in Congress early next year.

But some in Congress believe the current fees are little more than subsidies to ranchers, and environmentalists say cattle are ruining lands managed by the U.S. Bureau of Land Management and U.S. Forest Service.

"I do support multi-use, provided that that use doesn't harm wildlife or their habitat," said Sweetwater County resident JoLyn Reeves, a member of the Wyoming Wildlife Federation.

Members of Citizens to Put Utah First, a group that supports the initiative, say they aren't surprised by the letters. "I'm sure that they are going to do everything they can to stamp out the horse industry in Utah," said Mac Murray, a member and former chairman of the group's board of directors.

In June, several members of the Mormon Church's Council of the Twelve made public appearances and met with local church leaders to urge members to oppose legalized gambling in any form.

Leaders of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints said permitting gambling in any form is bad public policy. Only Utah and Hawaii ban all forms of gambling.

But Murray anticipates that the letters to religious leaders will have little effect on the initiative to legalize gambling on horse races in Utah. "I think the average intellectual individual who really thinks the situation through and can see both sides will vote in favor of it," he said.

Utah said members of Citizens Against Parimutuel Gambling are trying to promote the issue as a moral one. But his group maintains that legalizing parimutuel wagering will not open the floodgates to gambling.

"I think the average citizen will vote their conscience," Murray said. "I think Utahns are smarter than that."

Meantime, a survey of Cache Chamber of Commerce members indicates the majority of the group is opposed to parimutuel wagering in Utah, but they recommended the Chamber take a neutral position.

Opponents of parimutuel betting urge support from religious groups

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A group that opposes a ballot initiative to legalize parimutuel wagering in Utah is asking religious leaders to join in their fight.

Utah Citizens Against Parimutuel Gambling has sent letters to churches and synagogues this week urging church members to vote against the measure in November.

"Quite frankly, we're finding that many religious institutions are afraid to be outspoken on anti-gambling issues," said Hugh Matheson, the group's campaign manager. "We want religious people in Utah to be comfortable playing a role in our cause."

In the letter, church leaders are told that the support of thousands of Utahns is needed to defeat the initiative.

Members of Citizens to Put Utah First, a group that supports the initiative, say they aren't surprised by the letters. "I'm sure that they are going to do everything they can to stamp out the horse industry in Utah," said Mac Murray, a member and former chairman of the group's board of directors.

Party for Symms will feature Wendell man

WENDELL This cowboy is on his way to the Washington, D.C., to entertain, that is.

Western entertainer Ernie Sites, based in Wendell, has been invited to perform at a retirement party for U.S. Sen. Steve Symms in the nation's capital on Sept. 16. Some 300 dignitaries, including Vice President Dan Quayle, are expected to be on hand to bid farewell to the Republican senator.

"I am so excited to be pulled out of little Wendell to perform at something like this," said Sites, who sings a blend of cowboy poetry, trick roping and song took him on tour this year to places like New York City, Boston, Ala., and Nashville, Tenn.

Several political dignitaries caught his act at Idaho Rocky Mountain Guest Ranch in the Stanley Basin, Sites said, and the rest is history.

Sites plans to represent Idaho well in Washington, D.C., where he will sing a song he wrote for the centennial, entitled "Ode to Idaho." He will also address the group of partygoers on subjects like the preservation of the cowboy and the environment. "Generally speaking, I'm a Republican," he said.

For those who want a sample of what the Symms party will see, Sites just completed his new album, entitled "Saddlebags and Wishes." It costs $10 and is available by writing Sites at 237 Sixth Ave. E. in Wendell, ID 83855.

Yellow Pine Harmonica-champ once gave up treasure in exchange for food

By Denise Turner
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS—The newly crowned champion of the Yellow Pine Harmonica Contest credits his instrument with helping him survive life in a Japanese prisoner-of-war camp. But he didn't use the harmonica to make soothing music; he traded it for food.

Dwight Shaw, who farms 200 acres on the Salmon Tract south of Twin Falls, picked up his $100 prize at Yellow Pine, Idaho, last month, nearly 50 years after his World War II experience. In the historical autobiography he's now writing, he flashes back to life in the 40s.

"My brother Elbert and his wife Gladys had given me a Hohner chromatic harmonica for my high school graduation," Shaw wrote. "This was one of my most prized possessions, and I had been able to hang onto it. There was an American who wanted it so bad that he was ready to go hungry to get it. After we had gotten the second half of our Red Cross packages, he had hoarded enough that I couldn't refuse his offer."

For his musical treasure, Shaw received a can of corned beef, a can of instant coffee and five packages of American cigarettes to trade. (He doesn't smoke.) He doesn't regret the deal. "In that camp, I had a lot of other interests besides harmonica," he said, "like food."

Auditorium panel begins fund-raising fury

February deadline looms, but 1 man says 1,000 seats are enough

By Denise Turner
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—Standing room only? That's the consensus from a group of people hoping to expand Twin Falls High School's soon-to-be auditorium to 1,500 seats. Preparing to mount a $500,000 fund-raising campaign, the newly organized volunteers say that 1,000 seats are simply not enough.

"With cities like Boise building 6,000-seat auditoriums, this is not a question of a mammoth facility," said Ken Edmunds, co-chairman of the 10-member fund-raising committee. "We're just trying to satisfy some basic existing needs."

At a May election, voters OK'd a 1,000-seat auditorium with a price tag of $1.8 million. But such an auditorium would not seat the high school's entire student body of 1,400-plus students.

Currently, for school assemblies, the students are split into groups. "We don't even have guest speakers because of that," said Twin Falls High School Principal Carl Snow. "If we had the seating, we would have assemblies at least monthly."

That's where the school board comes in. "The board is wholeheartedly behind the idea of this group raising money to expand the auditorium," said board member David Sassa. "Even if they don't raise the $500,000, we will use whatever they raise for enhancement of the auditorium."

Sassa went on to explain that, even though members of community arts groups are sewing on the fund-raising campaign, the primary purpose of the auditorium will be education. "There is no wadding on that," he said. He added that the auditorium, when available, could be used for non-school events, "with performing arts groups being treated equally regardless of how much money each one contributes to the effort."

A few rumblings do exist in opposition to the expansion of the auditorium.

In July and August, Christian Parrott sent The Times-News two letters to the editor on the subject. In one, he spoke of "outside entertainment outfits" trying to "subvert the school election ... by wanting to take over the auditorium and manage it for their own purposes." He expressed concern the taxpayer might end up footing the bill for increased insurance and maintenance.

Parrott, 70 and retired, has had children and grandchildren in the Twin Falls schools. He is speaking out, he said, as a concerned citizen. "It was for the school at South Park and for building the auditorium because we need it." Since the vote is in, Parrott said, it should stay that way.

As for the increased tax money, Snow said the size of the auditorium wouldn't make any difference in insurance rates since the district already has a blanket policy. Unkept would be paid out of fees charged to outside groups. "Everyone will want to use an auditorium like this," Snow said.

Another concern, voiced by Twin Falls City Council member Mary McClusky, is parking. Though the area in front of the new auditorium will be a parking lot,

ANDY ARENZ/The Times-News

Ken Edmunds is optimistic that the community will support the expanded auditorium effort.

McClusky has her doubts about finding space for the number of people who would frequent a 1,500-seat auditorium. She also said that some people have lost confidence in the whole process.

"People come to me and say, 'Mary, we went out and got this bond through and gave you what you wanted, so you should be satisfied,'" McClusky said. "They are not down on the schools; but they are tired of people saying one thing and doing something else."

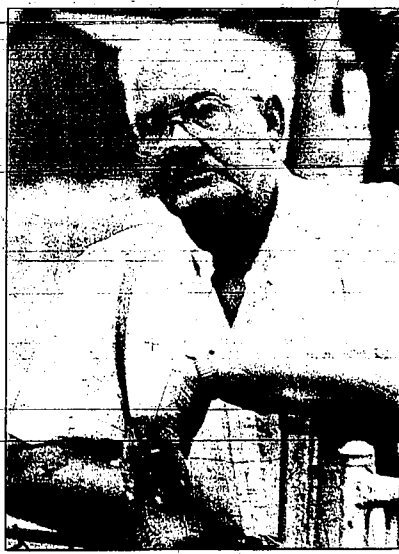

It makes more sense, according to McClusky, to wait a few years until the time comes to build another high school or until the exact need for a bigger auditorium in the community can be determined.

Meanwhile, committee gears are churning and people seem to be easing their lots on the side of auditorium expansion. The question: Will those people cast their dollars in that direction, too?

With the first $5,000 in the bank, the committee is working on strategy. Small fund-raising events will advertise the cause, but the committee is really after individual and corporate donations or pledges. The money, said Twin Falls School District Foundation treasurer Dennis Brown, would qualify as a state credit against tax and also as an itemized deduction on both the state and the federal return.

Right now, the main concern is time, as committee members scurry to stockpile the cash by Feb. 15. That deadline is just prior to the time when the district will seek contractors' bids, with the building

Please see AUDITORIUM/C2

Christian Parrott says the auditorium should remain the way voters approved it.

Many artists will attend gallery walk

KETCHUM - Taking the Evening Gallery Walk at this resort area's many galleries is one way to savor Sun Valley's Wagons Days celebration during the action-packed Labor Day weekend.

The 14 members of the Sun Valley Gallery Association have selected an array of art to exhibit during their September show.

The galleries will host opening receptions during the Evening Gallery Walk from 6 to 9 p.m. today. Many of the featured artists will be in attendance, and complimentary hors d'oeuvres, beverages and music will be provided. Most shows will hang through September. The next gallery opening is set for Nov. 27.

Care packages sent to Persian Gulf are better late than never

DEAR ABBY: I am currently in the U.S. Air Force, serving temporary duty in the Persian Gulf. Yes, some of us are still over here, enjoying the 100-degree day weather. Sorry I cannot be more specific about my location.

My job here is dealing with moving freight. We recently received a large shipment of freight that had been delayed at a water port for almost a year and a half. This shipment contained numerous "care packages sent by caring people from Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Iowa, and a few other Midwest states.

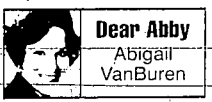

Although these "care" packages were sent for troops during the war, they have been distributed, and are being thoroughly enjoyed by those of us who are stationed here now.

Abby, please print this to let people know that their packages were received, and greatly appreciated.

—AIRMAN IN THE GULF

DEAR AIRMAN: I will spread the word to my readers. And yes, I am aware that you cannot be any more specific about your location for security reasons. That's not surprising, and God bless every one of you men and women, and return you home safely.

DEAR ABBY: Since you have introduced limerejks in your column, I can wait no longer. I am enclosing a limerejk written many years ago by my father, George D. Vail, a former Yale University historian, renowned humorist and prolific author. His contention was that a limerejk, by definition, is naughty in its connotation.

Dear Abby

In the May 1979 issue of Reader's Digest, his limerejk was selected as the winner from among 12,000 entries in a national limerejk contest sponsored by Mohagan Community College in Newwich, Conn. I believe my father collected $50 (in pennies!) for his winning entry. I hope you will consider it a worthy addition to your column.

—GEORGE D. VAIL, JR., WINDSCHLEIER, MASS.

DEAR GEORGE: I do. And here's the limerejk.

"The husband's an exquisite toy. With minimum reason to growl; He escaped what would be illegitimate."

By grace of a fortunate vowel.

DEAR ABBY: I enjoyed your column in which you advised, "If you are curious about a person's nationality - ask." Here is how I stuck my foot in my mouth:

In 1977 I was traveling by train in France. Seated in my compartment was a nicely dressed elderly Oriental gentleman. Carefully enunciating every word, I asked, "Do they drive as poorly in the Orient as they do around here?"

He replied in perfect English: "Beats me. I'm from San Francisco."

—LARRY MCCANN, SEAFIELD

DEAR ABBY: My problem may seem petty, but it's important to me. I have a lovely set of wind chimes hanging from a tree in my yard that is equal distance from my neighbor's house. Yesterday morning I noticed that my wind chimes had been taken from the tree and placed on a lawn chair in my yard with a note from my neighbor: "Sorry, but your wind chimes make it impossible for me to hear the birds sing." What is your reaction to this very rude act?

—LIKES MY WIND CHIMES

DEAR LIKES: Your neighbor was presumptuous to have taken down your wind chimes. She should have spoken to you immediately on discovering that your wind chimes were a nuisance.

What teen-agers need to know about sex, drugs, AIDS, and getting along with their peers and parents is now in Abby's updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." Chess rivals settle for draw in Game 2

SVETI STEFAN, Yugoslavia (AP) - Bobby Fischer battled Boris Spassky to a draw Thursday in the second game of controversial rematch.

Fischer offered a draw after Spassky's 59th move. Spassky played white in today's game. Four hours into the match, grandmasters said Fischer had eked out a slight advantage. Fischer held it knight, a bishop, a rook and four pawns. Spassky had two bishops, a rook and three pawns.

"There is absolutely nothing wrong with his position," Petrussov said of Fischer. He said he expected the game to end in a draw.

But noting Fischer's slight advantage, he said, "If he's the old Bobby, he's going to try to win."

The first player to win 10 games wins the match.

It is Fischer's first public chess match since he defeated Spassky in 1972 to become the first and only American world champion.

Three years later, Fischer was stripped of his title by the International Chess Federation for refusing to defend it against Anatoly Karpov under the federation's ground rules. Fischer would not acknowledge the decision and went into seclusion.

The herald, 49-year-old Fischer still considers himself world champion. In deference to him, the organizers hung a banner over the chess board proclaiming the match as the "World Chess Championship," although it is not internationally recognized as such.

Spassky is no longer among the world's top-ranked players, but is still considered talented enough to provide a fair test of Fischer's skills.

The opening game lasted six hours. Fischer had insisted there be no adjournments.

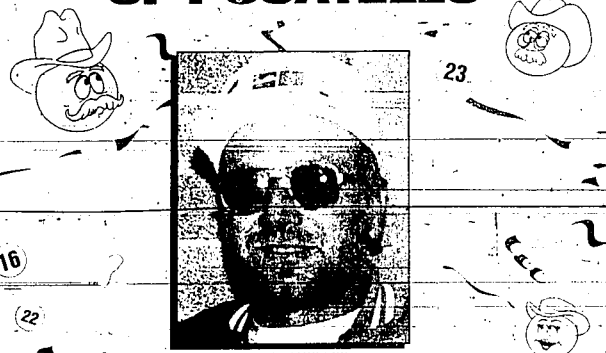

The first person to take 10 games wins the match and $3.35 million. The loser gets $1.65 million. Games are to be played four days a week, on Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday in this plush Adriatic resort - a few score miles from the battlefields of Bosnia-Herzegovina.

It took Yugoslav millionaire Jedyimir Vasiljevic, and the encouragement of Fischer's 19-year-old Hungarian girlfriend, Zita Rajcsanyi, to lure Fischer out of retirement.

Vasiljevic, a Yugoslav nationalist, has tried to make the match an elaborate spectacle in order to show the world that his country is surviving its international condemnation.

However, turnout has been disappointing. Only about one-quarter of the expected 800 journalists - and but a handful of the world's 300 or so grandmasters, nearly all Yugoslav - have come to cover or watch the match.

Leave unoriginal '3 Ninjas' to under-10 movie crowd

By Kevin Thomas
Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD Cross, "The Karate Kid" and "Home Alone" give a nod to "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles," and you get "3 Ninjas," a lively, good-looking kiddie action comedy best left to those under-10.

Although their attention may wander, parents can be grateful that there's no violence, as well as as fun in this Disney release, for martial arts is presented as a matter of defense rather than aggression, emphasizing that it is a matter of mind and spirit as well as body and requiring resourcefulness and discipline.

Victor Wong, that old and marvelous character actor most fondly remembered in Wayne Wang's "Dim Sum" and "Eat a Bowl of Tea," stars as a grandfather who teaches his three appealing little grandsons (Michael Tetro, Max Elliott Slade and Chad Power) the ancient ways of the Japanese ninja warriors.

Their often-absent father (Alan McRae) looks a bit askance at his father-in-law's mystical faith in ninjia training, but he soon has reason to be grateful to him. Wong's sole regret as a teacher is having once taken on as a pupil a man (Rand Kingsley) who turns out to be the movie's bad guy, a ruthless arms dealer who winds up taking hostage the three little ninjas.

In adapting a story by Kenny Klem, writer Edward, Emanuel cleverly establishes that the boys actually have an opportunity to call the cops but choose to take on Kingsley's minions themselves, a way of proving the validity of their grandfather's teachings to their father.

But then Emanuel undercuts himself by having Kingsley send in a trio of punks - every other nasal word out of their mouths is "Pude" - to snatch the youngsters, even though he's seen with his own eyes the three boys' formidable martial arts skills. Why not send in his own champion "martial arts" henchman (Tori Tanaka) at the outset when so much is at stake? Presumably, Disney hopes very young audiences won't notice this implausibility, which director Jon Furutani wisely does not dwell on. Surely, the studio is also hoping that youngsters won't notice just what a derivative film "3 Ninjas" frantically is. Rated PG presumably for mild violence.

Three brothers, from left, Rocky, Tum Tum and Colt defend themselves against a trio of kidnappers and an evil ninjia master in '3 Ninjas.'

New Columbus movie nothing but incorrect

Los Angeles Times

Capsule reviews

The following are capsule reviews of movies now showing in the Magic Valley. Ratings are by the Motion Picture Association of America and the Los Angeles Times. Opinions are by Los Angeles Times critics.

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS - "THE DISCOVERY" (PG-13)
Let's hope Ridley Scott's "1492" is better than this mega-claptrap starring George Clooney as C.C. de Gama and Marlon Brando as Torquemada. (Brando has keys to Charles Laughton-style for about 10 minutes of screen-time.) Not only is it politically incorrect, it's also humanly incorrect, historically incorrect and cinematically incorrect.

HP "BEYOOON" IN VEGAS (PG-13)
Director Andrew Bergman ("So Fine," "The Freshman") is funny the way other people think they're funny. He stars Sarah Jessica Parker as the prize between a reluctant boyfriend (Nicolas Cage) and a big-time Vegas showgirl (Michelle Pfeiffer, James Caan) who thinks she looks just like his dead wife. Ciddidly, she archly, daringly abused and featuring a hoard of Elvis impersonators and twenty of the songs that made the King famous.

DIGSTOWN (R)
Three expert actors slickster James Woods, fighting machine Lou Gossett Jr. and fatcat-hive Bruce Dern - don't fumble the ball in this right cross and double-cross boxing comedy, adapted from Leonard Rabinow's "The Digstown Ringers." Director Michael Ritchie and company give it a sometimes slapdash feel - there are curious holes, skips and loose ends throughout-but the dialogue snips and there are rousing moments in the climax: a one-against-10 boxing match. It's a sometimes-pleasing entertainment.

SINGLE WHITE FEMALE (R)
Bridget Fonda and Jennifer Jason Leigh deserve better than this PG-13 front-bell scenario. Fonda plays a suddenly single career woman who takes in a roommate played by Leigh, only to discover the roommate is a grade A looney. There are stray moments early on that show off the talents of the two actresses but it all devolves into a slash and gore fest.

DEATH BECOMES HER (PG-13)
A Robert Zemeckis-directed black comedy that frequently forgets its supposed to be funny, this Ronald Grayish tale of two engaged-to-be rivals (Meryl Streep and Goldie Hawn) will go to stay young and beautiful is proof that just because an idea is audacious doesn't mean it's good. The film's elaborate "Terminator 2" type special effects are quite impressive.

BATMAN RETURNS (PG-13)
This eagerly awaited sequel is, for better or worse, the product of director Tim Burton's mad imagination. His dark, melancholy vision is undeniably something to see, but its effect is oppressive rather than exhilarating and, with the notable exception of Michelle Pfeiffer's splendid work as Catwoman, it straggles almost all of the enjoyment out of this movie without half trying. A proverbial feast for the eyes that leaves you hungry for something, anything more.

'Honeymoon in Vegas' opens in 1st at box office

LOS ANGELES (AP) - "Honeymoon in Vegas" debuted as the most watched weekend movie, earning $7.3 million at box offices nationwide.

"Unforgiven" finished second with $5.7 million, according to figures released by Exhibitor Relations Co. Inc. "Pet Semetary II" premiered in third with $4.8 million.

The David Lynch movie "Twin Peaks: Fire Walk With Me," based on the TV series, debuted to lukewarm ticket sales, making $1.8 million for eight places. "Christopher Columbus - The Discovery" plunged 52 percent in its second week, dropping from fifth to 11th.

Here are the estimated top ticket sales Friday through Sunday, according to Exhibitor Relations, with distributor, weekend gross, number of theaters, states, average per location, total gross and number of weeks in release.

Figures are based on actual receipts and projections where actual figures were not available. One location can include several screens. Complex theaters, states are generally not disclosed, the true number of screens.

1. "Honeymoon in Vegas," Columbia, $7.3 million, 1,637 locations, $4,471 per location, $7.3 million, one week.

2. "Unforgiven," Warner Bros, $5.7 million, 2,078 locations, $2,721 per location, $55.1 million, four weeks.

3. "Pet Semetary II," Paramount, $4.8 million, 1,852 locations, $2,605 per location, $4.8 million, one week.

4. "Single White Female," Columbia, $4.6 million, 1,744 locations, $2,642 per location, $29 million, three weeks.

5. "Death Becomes Her," Universal, $2.7 million, 1,846 locations, $1,455 per location, $46.4 million, five weeks.

6. "Rapid Fire," 20th Century Fox, $2.3 million, 1,829 locations, $1,274 per location, $9 million, two weeks.

7. "A League of Their Own," Columbia, $2.1 million, 1,575 locations, $1,309 per location, $97.2 million, nine weeks.

It's time again for the summer Oscars

By Jay Boyar
Orlando Sentinel

This has been a wonderful summer for humanity. I mean, for movies, well, that's another story.

In fact, the movies have been so dismal that I almost dramatic pause - canceled the seventh annual Summer Oscars!

At the last minute, I decided to bow to tradition by announcing my awards for the summer's best efforts.

So let's zip through the rules and go for it.

Rule No. 1: Feature films are eligible if they opened in mid-May through the end of August.

Rule No. 2: Eligible movies must have played for at least a week.

Rule No. 3: The decisions of the judges are final.

BEST ACTOR

Has there been a better performance this summer than Gene Hackman's portrayal of the brutal Sheriff Little Bill Dagggett in "Unforgiven"?

Some might consider it a supporting performance, but when I think about how completely Hackman commands the screen, I have to call him a star.

Also worth mentioning in this category are Eric Stoltz of "The Waterdance," James Woods of "Digstown" and the ever-resourceful Tom Hanks (1988's winner in this category for "Big") of "A League of Their Own." And let's not forget Morgan Freeman's quietly authoritative performance, also in "Unforgiven."

BEST ACTRESS

We have a tie!

One winner in this category is an obvious choice: Michelle Pfeiffer in "Batman Returns." Has there ever been a slinkier, sexier or funnier Catwoman?

Pfeiffer, incidentally, is our first two-time Summer Oscar winner, having taken this category in 1988 for her hilarious performance in "Married to the Mob."

Annabella Sciorra of "Whispers in the Dark," also in the running were Meg Ryan of "Prelude to a Kiss," Miranda Richardson of "Enchanted April," Geena Davis (last year's co-winner in this category for "The Edge") and Jennifer Jason Leigh and Bridget Fonda of "Single White Female."

Bennion donates $100,000 to ISU

POCATELLO — The recent donation of $100,000 by Idaho businessman Sam Bennion to the Idaho State University athletic department will do triple duty, according to athletic director Randy Hoffman.

The football offices in Holt Arena, which encompass a total of 1,720 square feet, were remodeled and refurbished with $30,000 of the gift. And interest earned from the remaining $70,000 will be used to fund athletic scholarships in memory of Bennion's grandson, Matthew, who died in his sleep at age 10.

For the past 40 years, Bennion has sponsored the annual Bennion Banquet that honors Idaho State's student-athletes. Bennion is founder and chief executive officer of V-I Oil Co., a major independent gasoline retailer and the nation's twenty-second largest propane distributor.

KSKI radio to broadcast Seattle Seahawks football

KETCHUM — KSKI Radio will again broadcast the Seattle Seahawks games. KSKI is part of the largest geographic radio network of any team in the national football league (sixty stations in five states).

KSKI-AM will not carry the Wood River High School football games this fall.

Allegations of underage players won't be looked into

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. — There are no plans to investigate a Philippine team accused of using underage players to win the World Series last weekend, a Little League official said Thursday.

Spokesman Dennis Sullivan said no one within Little League had lodged a complaint against the Zamboanga City team, which defeated Long Beach, Calif., 15-4 on Saturday.

"If a protest comes through our organization, at that time, we'll look at it," Sullivan said.

Allegations surfaced Wednesday in a Philippine newspaper column, which suggested several players exceeded the age limit of 12 by several years. Philippine sports officials denied the allegation.

Magic Valley Amateur has a favorite

By Larry Hovey
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Not since the days of Perry Hanchey has the Magic Valley Amateur had a more prohibitive favorite than this year.

The buzz on the eve of the three-day tournament at Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course concerns the return of homegrown Tracy Frank to the amateur ranks after several years as a professional.

Although the championship flight includes some collegiate players, former champions and likely contenders, the nod goes to Frank because he probably is the only one in the field that could post three straight 62s.

And on that point, Greenskeeper Keyin Packard, who won this title in 1976, said due to conditions, he will continue to water greens throughout the weekend rather than go with the usual practice of letting them dry out to recede and make them easier to play.

"One thing that will do will give Tracy a chance to shoot three straight 58s," said Packard with a laugh, referring to Frank's ability to hit greens and put on the course he learned the game.

Frank received official word from the USGA Monday that his amateur status was back. His last professional action came on Aug. 28 two years ago.

"I like amateur golf and I like tournament golf," said Frank of his reasons for returning to the amateur ranks. "As an amateur, you can play in a tournament somewhere close to home any weekend of the year. I plan to play in a lot of them."

Last Professional Mike Hamilton turned out the entry at 212 this year, noting "we have to leave the 30 or more on the waiting list, but the tournament runs a lot smoother with 212. You don't have those long waits at the turn."

"I really don't think I'm going to run away from this championship fight," said Frank of this year's entries.

A couple of Burleyites who would give their eyeteeth to beat him are former champions Terry Spackman and Glenn Blackley.

"Frank's getting a ton of ink already and he's still not cleared for amateur play," laughed Spackman earlier this week.

The collegian contenders should be Boise State's Dave LeBeck, Washington's Rafael Lutz, Sun Valley, and Kade Wilson of Bull, although Albertson's College has had him spending more time on basketball than golf.

High schoolers Alan Beaux, Boise, and JJ Astorga, Twin Falls, could make a splash.

Among the return winners are Packard, brother Jim Packard and Jim Purves along with Jason Meyerbacher, Twin Falls.

Two other possibilities are Lynn Reiersgard of Jackpot and former professional Bob Adamson of Kimberly.

The tournament will be divided into eight flights and based totally on gross scores, said Hamilton, "because most of the flights have only one or two strokes difference."

He said debriefs for all flights will be play Saturday and Sunday with the traditional steak and omelet coming off Saturday night at the clubhouse.

Sackman stuffs Filer

Gooding wins, despite emotional swings of team

By Mike Maller
Times-News sports editor

GOODING — Expected to dominate the Canyon Conference volleyball race this season, Gooding opened league play with a 15-8, 15-6 win over predicted runner-up Filer Thursday.

More volleyball - D2

The Senators, dealing with the Wednesday death of teammate Jennifer Kayle and the subsequent lineup changes, struggled at times.

"It's what we're going through," said Gooding Coach Joleen Toone. "We think we're all right, then, in a few minutes, we're all crying."

Senior Carol Sackman helped the 2-1 Senators along, serving the last four points of the first game and five points that broke open the second contest. She added several key blocks and spikes during her turns at the net.

Filer, 0-2, had a few bright moments early in both games, leading 4-3 in the first and 4-1 in the second.

The Wildcats, who play mostly sophomores and juniors, are also learning a more complicated offense from new coach Ed Richards than they have run in the past.

"I have a lot of young kids. It's going to take some time," Richards said. "I was real impressed with our net game. We blocked their big hitter real well. If we get better every match, we'll be there."

Sackman's serve turned an 8-6 lead in the second game to a 13-6 runaway. In the first, the Wildcats got back to within 11-8 on Telinda Cowger's stuff of a spike by Tara Reinke, the area's best hitter. But Sackman finished out the game with her serve, assisted by a booming kill from Reinke off a perfect set from Dusty Pence.

"They'll definitely get better," Toone said. "Ed's an excellent coach. He will definitely have them ready. It will be a much closer match in Filer (when the teams meet again Sept. 29)."

Carol Sackman of Gooding tries to hit over the defense of Filer's Carla Coon Thursday night.

Gundy passes Sooners over Texas Tech, 34-9

The Associated Press

LUBBOCK, Texas — Cale Gundy threw for a season record 341 yards and two touchdowns and also ran for a score as No. 15 Oklahoma defeated Texas Tech 34-9 Thursday night.

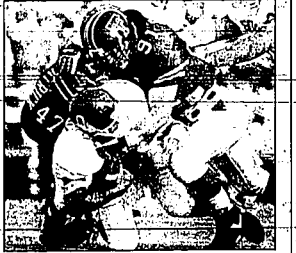

Gundy, protected by an offensive line comprised of four huge underclassmen, completed 22 of 38 passes on the way to breaking the school yardage mark of 329 he set in the Gator Bowl last year against Virginia.

Gundy's 1-yard keeper early in the fourth quarter put the Sooners in charge at 27-9 in the teams' season opener.

Kerby on Rasheed made sure Oklahoma's once-proud ground attack wasn't forgotten, rushing 11 times for 73 yards, but in keeping with the tone of the game, his touchdown came on a pass from Gundy.

Oklahoma's defense struggled with passes on the way to breaking the school yardage mark of 329 he set in the Gator Bowl last year against Virginia.

The Sooners grabbed the momentum with 1:40 left in the half. Please see SOONERS/D2

Bengals will soon be prowling

Unless the guess here is missed badly, Idaho State's football program is in for a big change.

Expect it to be for the better and that the Bengals will leave the dormatery of the Big Sky Conference in the near future.

The reason is the new coach, Brian McNeely, a 32-year-old redhead who apparently has all the enthusiasm and drive that one so young and tonorially equipped is reputed to have.

Larry Hovey Sports

"I'm not a better coach than anyone else. But take a player and build his self-esteem and confidence and he's going to play better," McNeely says of restoring the rebuilding program largely with the last coach's recruits.

"McNeely contradicts a couple of long-standing 'reasons' that ISU has fallen on hard times in football.

Concerning the first, he notes "there's no doubt we have the resources available to be competitive or win in the Big Sky. If money was the only consideration, we would be competitive."

On the second, he says "People say you can't recruit to Pocatello against cities like Boise, Missoula and Reno. That seems to be the thinking in Idaho."

"Now I'm from Kansas and I don't understand that thinking. People say Pocatello is isolated and not close to anything. But I'm sitting in Kansas looking at a map of Idaho and I'm asking myself 'what's home close to?' Ontario, Oregon?" In two and one-half hours from Pocatello, you can be in the Salt Lake metropolitan area. In five hours in Denver.

McNeely said recruiting is largely a matter of being things to sell and then selling them.

"Idaho State has shown its academics are very good," he said as an example. "I can sell that."

He added that over the last several years, ISU has consistently had more football players graduate than the other state schools.

"In Idaho thinking, University of Idaho is the old traditional school, Boise State has the great facilities and Idaho State simply has accepted being third. We've found in the short time we've been here that simply does not have to be."

"When we signed (Capital Hallback) Alan Alamiz last spring, everyone in the state was amazed. They couldn't see him selecting us over Idaho or Boise State. But we were able to show him advantages he'd have here."

McNeely said landing a few top recruits over the next couple of years would do a lot to alter the thinking of Idaho's collegiate pecking order.

The other thing McNeely knows is that the Bengals have to be interesting to compete for fans and the amusement dollar.

"We know that we cannot throw 65 times a game and win in this league

Owners ask commissioner to step down

The Associated Press

ROSEMONT, Ill. — Baseball owners overwhelmingly asked Fay Vincent to resign Thursday, a move the commissioner immediately rejected.

By an 18-9-1 vote, owners adopted a resolution stating they had no confidence in Vincent, who was elected to a 4½-year term on Sept. 13, 1989.

"We did not discuss what you're going to do if he's not going to resign," said Chicago White Sox owner Jerry Reinsdorf, a leading Vincent opponent.

Vincent, who on Aug. 20 sent the owners a letter saying he would never resign, affirmed his decision after the meeting. He did not attend the meeting, remaining in New York because he said its purpose was unlawful under the Major League Agreement, which governs baseball. It says the commissioner's term can't be shortened and his power can't be diminished.

"I believe strongly that a baseball commissioner should serve a full term as contemplated by the Major League Agreement," Vincent said. "Only then can difficult decisions be made impartially and without fear of political repercussions."

New faces, high hopes for Big Sky football

The Associated Press

The Big Sky Conference opens its 30th season Saturday, with two new football coaches hoping to revive sagging programs.

Tim Hysell, making his debut at Montana State 26 years after graduating from the school, takes the Bobcats to Sacramento State. The Division II Hornets started MSU on the road to a 29 record last season with a 19-17 victory at Bozeman and Hysell hopes a victory at Sacramento will signal better things this year.

Bowl troubles - D3

It's his first game as head coach at any level.

"They are an excellent football team. I don't think they'll change very much scheme-wise" from last year, Hysell said. He said Sacramento quarterback Aaron Garcia, who transferred from Washington State, could play at the Pac-10 Level.

"It will be interesting to see not only how our players react to this game, but how our coaches react," Hysell said.

New Idaho State Coach Brian McNeely also hopes for a good start at home against Mesa State, another Division II school. The Bengals won last season, but it turned out to be one of just three victories ISU chalked up.

Injuries, indictments, inclement weather rain on college football

The Associated Press

Injuries, indictments and Hurricane Andrew have taken their toll on Miami, the NCAA has taken Notre Dame's best defensive player, and burglary charges against quarterback Garrick McGee may have taken away Arizona State's only hope against Washington.

When the nation's top three college football teams open their seasons Saturday, it won't exactly be business as usual.

Top-ranked Miami, which moved its practices to Vero Beach following Hurricane Andrew, will be missing its best runner and receiver when it visits No. 23 Iowa.

Fullback Stephen McGuire still hasn't fully recovered from knee surgery and receiver Lamar Thomas, recently indicted in a financial aid scandal, is sidelined until his court case is resolved.

Injuries have also riddled Miami's offensive line, which will have only one starting starter. Backup offensive linebacker still a two-touchdown favorite over the Hawkeyes, who were beaten 24-14 by North Carolina State in the Kickoff Classic.

They call this place Quarterback U. and Defensive Line U. You can also call it "Adversity U.," defensive end Rusty McDearis said.

Arizona State may be forced to use fourth-string quarterback Troy Rauer against No. 2 Washington if McGee remains suspended. He was suspended Tuesday after being charged with burglary, but could be reinstated while his case is pending.

Even with McGee, the Sun Devils would have a tough time against Washington, which went 12-0 last season and shared the national championship with Miami.

The Huskies have so much talent that their backup quarterback, Mark Brunell, was the 1991 Rose Bowl MVP.

"Last year was incredible, but I want more now," cornerback Walter Bailey said. "I'm hungry for another 12-season."

Third-ranked Notre Dame shouldn't have any trouble against undermanned Northwestern even without star linebacker Demetrius DuBoise, who is under a two-game NCAA suspension for accepting a $600 loan from a Seattle couple with ties to Notre Dame.

The Irish have beaten the Wildcats 11 straight times, including a 48-0 rout last time they met in 1976. Saturday's game will be Chicago's 50th anniversary. Notre Dame's first appearance there in 50 years.

"Notre Dame has All-Americans stacked up like club sandwiches," said first-year Northwestern coach Gary Barnett. "They have the most dominant offense in college football."

In other Top 25 games Saturday, it's Duke at No. 4 Florida State, No. 7 Texas A&M at LSU, No. 8 Penn State at Cincinnati, Vanderbilt at No. 9 Alabama, No. 10 Syracuse at East Carolina, Utah at

No. 11 Nebraska, Colorado State at No. 12 Colorado, Ball State at No. 13 Clemson, No. 14 Georgia at South Carolina; Louisville at No. 17 Ohio State; Appalachian State at No. 18 N.C. State; San Jose State at No. 19 California; No. 21 Mississippi St. at Texas; Southwestern Louisiana at No. 22 Tennessee; and Maryland at No. 25 Virginia.

Florida State starts the season with a new quarterback and a new conference.

The Seminoles, a former independent, are favored to win the Atlantic Coast Conference crown in their first year as a league member. But coach Bobby Bowden says it won't be easy, citing N.C. State's win over Iowa as the latest example of ACC power.

"I think N.C. State made a statement over the weekend. The resurgence of football in the Atlantic Coast Conference," Bowden said. "People cannot seem to realize that a national champion (Georgia Tech) came out of the ACC two years ago. Several other schools were number one in the nation like Virginia."

Charlie Ward, the point guard on Florida State's basketball team, will be the point man at quarterback for the Seminoles. He replaces Casey Weldon, who was a second-team All-American last season.

"I've never felt as good about a quarterback who's never played," Bowden said. "He's a natural leader."

NCAA bowl alliance already appears ready to crumble

The Associated Press

The ink is barely dry on the contract, and already there are signs of a crack in the new bowl coalition.

At issue is whether the Fiesta Bowl can bid for a marquee matchup if it doesn't get a No. 1 vs. No. 2 national title game on Jan. 1.

Fiesta director John Junker says yes. The heads of the Orange, Sugar and Cotton bowls, say no.

Those four bowls get the first shot at the top teams in the alliance pool, which includes Notre Dame and the champions of the Big East and Atlantic Coast conferences.

When the alliance was first announced, officials said the only way the Fiesta could get a national championship game was if the No. 1 and No. 2 teams were available. Otherwise, the Orange, Sugar and Cotton would pick before the Fiesta.

However, Junker insists the coalition contract contains a provision that would allow the Fiesta to get a 1-3, 2-3, 1-4 or possibly 2-4 matchup under certain circumstances.

All parties agree that the contract permits teams to pass up an invitation to an alliance bowl if they can make more money in another game. But the "bidding wars" disagree on whether that means the Fiesta can compete for a potential title game that doesn't involve the top two teams in the polls.

"We didn't set this thing up to have a bidding war," said Jim Brock, executive vice president of the Cotton Bowl. "This is supposed to be an equal partnership where everybody does what's best for the coalition," Junker says. "It's a minor matter that won't come up very often. At the same time, no one is making it clear that the Fiesta reserves the right to aggressively pursue any teams if it makes financial sense."

"That's always a possibility," Junker said. "If the market dictates 1 vs. 2 in our game, then we'll try to get it."

That's exactly what happened at the end of the 1988 season, when the Fiesta boosted its per-team payout to $3 million to get No. 1 Notre Dame and No. 3 West Virginia. Could it happen again under the bowl alliance?

Sugar Bowl director Mickey Holmes says it's highly unlikely.

According to Holmes, the nine-year coalition deal includes a rule that would prevent a bowl from dramatically boosting its payout one year and then scaling it back the next.

"The contract is reviewed every three years," he said. "After each three-year period, a bowl must guarantee a payout that's at least as much as its highest payout in the previous three years."

Translation: If the Fiesta boosted its payout to $5 million one year to get a 1-3 game, it would have to permanently increase its offer to that level when the coalition contract came up for review.

"So it might happen once, but it won't happen twice," Holmes said.

Bowl alliance members plan to hold a conference all on Friday, and the "bidding war" issue is bound to come up.

Receiver might not be well-received after holdout

The Associated Press

Michael Irvin and Andre Stepienski remained locked in contract stalemate with the Dallas Cowboys on Thursday as other team members camped at their remaining hotels with the regular season fast approaching.

"I'm tired of hearing about the negotiations," said Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson as he entered final preparations for Monday night's opener with defending Super Bowl champion Washington.

"It's a distraction. It's not their business and I have my business. My business is getting ready for the Redskins with the players under contract."

Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said he has offered Irvin $3.6 million and $1.25 million a season. The receiver, who wants $1.4 million, said through his agent Steve Endicott, "I'm not taking it."

Stepienski, the team's starting center, wants $750,000 a season for two years. Dallas has offered $650,000 a season for three years.

"We'd like to have both players on the field against the Redskins," Jones said. "Both players have their offers and it's up to them now. It doesn't look good for either one of them."

"They can play if they want to play. The offers we gave them are good offers. It's ridiculous not to take them."

While Irvin and Stepienski continued their holdouts, Atlanta receiver Andre Rison, Cincinnati tackle Joe Walter and Miami linebacker David Griggs agreed to terms. New Orleans also finalized deals with general manager Jim Finks and coach Jim Mora on three-year contract extensions.

Rison, a two-time Pro Bowl selection, reportedly was offered $700,000 for this season. Atlanta attempted to trade him to Houston for cornerback Kris Dishman and a draft choice, but the deal fell through Wednesday.

Owens also returns to the defensive backfield that gave up just 89 yards per game passing last year.

Senior Jeremy Myers, at 5-9, 170 pounds, will retain his spot at offensive guard and defensive down lineman.

Joining him at guard will be 153 carries out of the 1-formation offense.

Colson to regain his spot.

Walter, a fixture at right tackle since joining the Bengals in 1984, reportedly will earn at least $600,000 a season. He's expected to play in the team's opener in Seattle on Sunday.

The Bengals waived defensive end David Grant, a starter last season before he was sidelined with a knee injury in early December.

Finks and Mora joined the Saints in 1986 after Tom Benson purchased the team. Terms of the contracts were not disclosed.

"Notice how relaxed he was during training camp?" Benson joked about Mora. "He already knew he had a contract."

New York Giants second-year coach Ray Handley wasn't relaxed Thursday, moving practice from a grass field adjacent to Giants Stadium into the 77,000-seat facility to prevent spying on the team.

Handley also barred the media from attending practice for the first time since he replaced Bill Parcells as coach 16 months ago.

"It's a little bit of a situation," Handley said. "I have a few things different, and I want complete concentration. Anything that happens, I don't want to get out. I want the concentration solely on the game."

He seemingly didn't want anyone to know which quarterback — Jeff Hosteter or Phil Simms — will start. Hosteter missed two exhibition games with injuries.

Buffalo's James Lofton enters Sunday's home game against the Los Angeles Rams 55 yards from breaking Steve Largent's career receiving record of 13,089 yards.

"I wanted to play 12 years, initially. Last year was my 14th," said the 36-year-old Lofton, one reception away from the 700th of his career.

"Four years ago I wanted to play two years, so I guess I'm still kind of on the two-year program."

Denver enters Sunday's home game against the Los Angeles Raiders with a depth problem at receiver that got so severe during Wednesday's practice that quarterback John Elway was lining up in a three-point stance and running pass routes.

"We ran out of guys," Elway said.

"The thing I'm worried about now is who's going to catch it. Everybody's getting hurt."

In other games Sunday, the New York Jets are at Atlanta, Cleveland at Indianapolis, Detroit at Chicago, Minnesota at Green Bay, New Orleans at Philadelphia, Pittsburgh at Houston, Cincinnati at Seattle, Kansas City at San Diego and Phoenix at Tampa Bay.

Shoshone returns 3 starters from 7-3 team

Coach Tim Chapman will have a lot of new faces in the starting lineup this year. The Indians will have only three starters covering five positions returning from last year.

Fortunately, the returning starters include last year's leading rusher 5-9, 155 pound Tony Owens.

As a junior Owens rushed for 700 yards and 12 touchdowns on 5-10, 180 pound junior Lance Kerner.

Chapman's biggest area of concern is at quarterback. Three sophomores, Ray Helgeley, Danny Hickey and Ben Myers are all battling for the starting position.

The Indians have some strengths to offset the lack of experience with a young team, Chapman said. Zach Shetter, a 5-8, 150 pound junior is a "quick and hard runner" who will help Owen at running back.

Besides Kerner and Myers, the team will have "good quickness and some size on the offensive line," Chapman said.

Larry Jensen, 5-10, 175 pounds, Jeremiah Sage, 5-8, 170 pounds and 6-0, 250 pound Kerry Pudgeit will help on the line.

Buhl coach sees improvement for gridders

Coach Clark Muscat is optimistic his team will improve on last year's 1-8 record. He will have seven players returning to their starting positions and many others with varsity experience to help the team.

Senior Brian Chivers, 5-11, 170 pounds will return to the quarterback duties. Chivers will try to improve on his 1145 yards on 101 complete passes, but cut down on his 21 interceptions. Chivers will also return to his role as a linebacker in the 4-4 defense.

Also returning to dual position duties are seniors Kim Williamson and Wyatt Howell. Williamson, at 6-0, 170 pounds and Howell, 6-4, 190 pounds will both play offensive tackle and down linemen on defense.

Junior Ron Hunsaker, 5-10, 180 pounds returns as starting center for the multiple set offense. Robert Lowry, 6-0, 165 pounds will return to lead the defensive backfield.

Bryan Watt, 5-10, 190 pounds and Casey Yost, 5-9, 180 pounds, both juniors, will make up half of the starting linebacker core.

Muscat feels a team strength is the good mix of juniors and seniors with previous varsity experience.

He also believes the offensive line, despite its youth and lack of size, should open better holes for the running backs than last year's line.

Raft River volleyball squad needs time

A little short on size and experience, Raft River should show good improvement in other areas to reprise its 15-7 record of 1991.

Tori Lee, a 5-5 middle hitter and setter, and 5-6 outside hitter Julie Harper are the only seniors and returning starters for Raft River.

"With only two seniors, I will be putting out a young team. They will need some seasoning," said Trojans Coach Dennis Lee. "I'm not going to have a lot of size, but my team will be quicker and better at handling the ball. We will have good passers and diggers this year."

Juniors Tara McFarland, Denise Spencer, Mandi Jensen, Ester Campbell, Shanda Nyse, Stacy Jones and Karen Wright move up to the varsity from the JV ranks.

Stock market settles for small gain after erratic session

The Associated Press
NEW YORK Stock prices bounced around erratically Thursday, closing with a small gain as investors waited on the latest news from the Federal Reserve.
 The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks finished with a 1.59 gain at 3,292.26. The average had climbed 24.05 points Wednesday.
 Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 5 to 4 on the New York Stock Exchange. Big bond volume came in an estimated 21.47 million shares as of 4 p.m. (D-I) on from 18.20 million in the previous session.

The Department of Commerce reported Thursday morning on the employment situation in August.
 Retailing stocks were mixed as the industry issued sales reports for August showing modest gains that were hampered somewhat by a late Labor Day. Wal-Mart Stores rose to 57 3/4. The Limited gained to 23 1/4 as its most active NYSE issue, Gap, fell to 40 1/4. Sears Roebuck was unchanged at 22 1/2.

Oil service and drilling issues were mostly flat. Following reports that damage from Hurricane Andrew and gas facilities in the Gulf of Mexico was more extensive than previously believed, Halliburton rose 1 to 34 1/4. Schlumberger 1/2 to 67 1/4 and Baker Hughes 3/4 to 24 1/4.

But oil stocks posted broad losses. Exxon tumbled 2 to 62 1/2. Texaco rose 1/4 to 60 1/4. Allstate-Richfield 1/2 to 143 1/2 and Chevron 1/2 to 22 1/2.
 Goodyear Tire & Rubber rose 1/4 to 63 1/2. The company said it would raise the price of its 7.5 percent Oct. 1, ending higher priced materials.
 Among technology issues traded in the Nasdaq over-the-counter market, Intel rose 1/2 to 62 1/2; Microsoft 1/4 to 76 1/4; Sun Microsystems 1/4 to 27 1/4; and Borland International 1/4 to 43 1/4.
 Citicorp dropped 1/4 to 16 1/4 in a generally weak banking group following news reports that an examination was highly critical of its mortgage lending operations.
 Fluor Corp. rose 1/4 to 40 1/4. The company reported earnings for the quarter ended July 31 of 45 cents a share, against 54 cents a share in the like period a year earlier, which included a 15-cent nonrecurring gain.

Producer breaks new ground hoping to break abuse cycle

By Jerry Buck
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Oscar-winning producer Arnold Shapiro is breaking some new ground with his latest documentary, a discussion of child abuse that will be televised on several commercial networks at the same time.

Shapiro says he chose the subject because child abuse is often the root cause of child violence.

"Victims of child abuse either act out their rage on society or on themselves," he said. "We're all affected because it costs $5.3 billion every year just to investigate reports of child abuse and neglect."

In an unprecedented move, Shapiro's one-hour documentary, "Scared Silent: Exposing and Ending Child Abuse," will be televised simultaneously on CBS, NBC and PBS. ABC will repeat the program two days later. In another first, a toll-free hot line will be shown three times during the program.

The program will not be on the Fox network because it does not telecast after 10 p.m. or on cable because of the logistical impossibility of arranging for the simulcast in each time zone.

"Scared Silent" is also being distributed to Canada and other countries.

The program's goal is to break the silence that has enabled child abusers to escape detection through the fear of the victims.

Oprah Winfrey, herself a victim of child abuse, is host of the special. Winfrey was the first and only choice as host because child abuse was known to be one of her major causes.

She points out in the documentary that most child molesters are family members or close friends, rather than strangers. A number of cases are discussed by the victims and the perpetrators to illustrate the three types of abuse.

Although full names are not revealed, there are no hidden faces. They all speak candidly, often in graphic detail. Shapiro says that although he found many of the cases they investigated shocking and unbelievable, he did not want to drive any potential viewers away by showing pictures of battered children.

"Child abuse affects more people than AIDS," Shapiro said. "We needed to reach as wide an audience as possible. That's what I came up with the idea of the simulcast in prime time. The networks received the program first, but I asked them to run fewer commercials than usual."

"I really think—and don't mean to sound overdramatic—that 'Scared Silent' can save lives. I think people will see this and become aware of things they hadn't recognized on a conscious level. Maybe a perpetrator will see it and realize the harm he is causing. Millions of children are being abused every day and it will continue as long as people remain silent."

Fall season kicks off with a confusing start

By Deborah Hastings
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Don't listen to the 'Big Three' networks. The 1992 fall television season does not begin this fall. Pay no attention to CBS and its announcement that the season officially opens Sept. 14. Likewise, ignore ABC and NBC and their official shared start date of Sept. 21.

On the bottom line, that by Labor Day, nearly all of the networks will have broadcast a mixture of series premieres and original episodes of returning programs, an overlap that reflects the ever-changing business of television in the '90s.

Led by Fox Broadcasting Co., which began debuting its schedule in the middle of summer, the Big Three have followed suit in a confusing array of series premieres that span more than two months.

"I don't quite know what to make of it," said Peter Tortorici, CBS' vice president of programming. "The reason there's a fall season is there's a big available audience come September and marketers want to get people into the stores to buy their products."

Audience or no, the networks have been forced to start their seasons early, primarily because of competition between themselves.

Due to the confusion, the bulk of new programs still remain to be seen this month. What follows are highlights of the so-called fall schedule, which contains 36 new series, another that has switched networks and one more that has traded networks and redesigned its plot.

Of the lot, 20 are comedies, 13 are dramas and the rest are reality and audience-participation series. All times are Mountain Daylight Time unless otherwise noted.

Fox

Fox has the largest number of new shows, thanks to expanding its weekly prime-time schedule to seven nights. The network's debuting programs further ground its image as the "Don't Trust Anyone Over 30" broadcaster.

"Madre Place," the twentysomething answer to July 8 and is seen Wednesdays at 7 p.m. And "Heights," a one-hour drama about a young rock band, debuted Aug. 27 and moves to its permanent home on Thursdays at 7 p.m. after repeating its premiere episode Sunday at 8 p.m. EDT.

Fox's reworked Sunday schedule begins Sept. 13 with "Flying Blind," starring Corey Parker as a recent college graduate, at 9 p.m. On Sept. 27, the rest of the new line begins at 6 p.m., with "Great Scott," starring Toby Maguire as a daydreaming high school freshman, "The Ben Stiller Show" at 6:30 p.m., with actor and filmmaker Stiller playing the host of weekly-TV variety show, and "Wooops," a comedy series about life after a nuclear holocaust, at 9:30 p.m.

The 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Sunday Fox block remains the same, with "In Living Color" followed by "Roc," "Married... With Children" and "Herman's Head."

Fox's newest sketch comedy series, "The Edge," premieres Saturday, Sept. 19, at 8:30 p.m. "Likely Suspects," an audience-participation whodunit, debuts Friday, Sept. 11, at 7:30 p.m. "Martin," starring comedian Martin Lawrence as a Detroit radio personality, debuted Aug. 27 and is seen Thursdays at 6:30 p.m.

On Oct. 27, Fox launches its Tuesday prime-time schedule with "Class of '96," a college drama, at 7 p.m. "Key West," starring Fisher Stevens as a New Jersey native who wins the lottery, begins at 8 p.m.

ABC

ABC has the fewest number of new programs. Special previews of its eight new shows began Aug. 25 with "Covington Cross," an hour-long 14th century drama about a knight, his castle and his rebellious grown child. ABC will show the premiere twice before running it a third time Sept. 19 in its permanent time slot of Saturdays at 7 p.m.

"Going To Extremes," the newest show, from Josh Brand and John Falsey, who created "Martin on Exposure" and "I'll Fly Away," premiered Sept. 1 on ABC. The medical school comedy-drama is seen Tuesdays at 9 p.m.

"Delta," starring Delta Burke as a would-be county singer, debuts Sept. 15 at 9:30 p.m., then moves two days later to its permanent 7 p.m. Thursday slot.

"Hangin' With Mr. Cooper" is about a neighborhood basketball star who teaches at his old junior high school. It premieres Sept. 22 at 7:30 p.m.

It's followed an hour later by "Laurie Hill," a comedy about an overworked doctor who also is a wife and mother, at 8:30 p.m. The program, from the creators of "The Young Years," moves a day later to its permanent time slot of Wednesdays at 8:30 p.m.

CBS

CBS has 10 new series, two of them from NBC. "The Golden Girls," stars Bea Arntz, who was "Golden Palace," and premieres Sept. 18 at 7 p.m., where it launches CBS' revamped Friday night schedule.

The Carroll O'Connor drama "In the Heat of the Night" moves to CBS with its season premiere on Wednesday, Oct. 28.

"Love and War," the new half-hour comedy from "Murphy Brown" co-creator Diane English, debuts with a special 60-minute episode, Sept. 14, on EDT. Monday, Sept. 21. And "Hearts Afire," the newest offering from "Designing Women," producers Harry Thomason and Linda Bloodworth-Thomason, debuts Monday, Sept. 14, at 8 p.m. with a special 60-minute episode.

"Hearts Afire joins the Monday lineup at 7:30 p.m. timeslot; "Love and War" settles in at the 8:30 p.m. slot: Bob Newhart returns to series television with "Bob," a 30-minute comedy, on Friday, Sept. 18, at 8:30 p.m. Newhart moves to 8:30 p.m. the following week.

"Designing Women" moves from Mondays to Fridays at 8 p.m., and "Major Dad" also moves from Mondays to a 7:30 p.m. slot on Fridays, where it follows "Golden Palace."

Finishing Fridays is "Picket Fences," a new drama about small-town life from former "L.A. Law" executive producer David Kelley. The series' two-hour pilot premieres Sept. 18; the show then occupies its regular 9 p.m. slot the following week.

NBC

NBC has nine new programs and the heaviest dose of reality series.

"NBC's problematic 6 p.m. time slot, which competes against CBS' much-loved '60 Minutes," now is occupied by back-to-back reality series, "Secret Service" and "I Witness Video" debuted Aug. 16.

Friday nights will see an "Unsolved Mysteries" spinoff titled "Final Appeal," beginning Sept. 18 at 7 p.m., followed by the real-life calamity series "What Happened?" at 7:30 p.m., beginning Sept. 25.

NBC's new comedies include "Mad About You," starring Helen Hunt and Paul Reiser, which debuts Wednesday, Sept. 23, at 8:30 p.m., and "Rhythm and Blues," starring Roger Kabler as the new white disc jockey at a soul radio station in Detroit, logs in at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

"The Cosby Show," Theo gets his own TV series with "Here and Now," starring Malcolm-Jamal Warner, beginning Sept. 19 at 7 p.m. Also on NBC's Saturday schedule is "Out All Night," starring singer Patii LaBelle as a Los Angeles nightclub owner. Its premiere immediately follows "Here and Now."

Want quality family entertainment on videos? Look no further

Debby Boone

Families will have new choices in quality family videos this fall with the debut of Family Channel Video in September. The home video company, an alliance between The Family Channel and Pacific Arts, will release six titles, three for rental and three for sale. According to a press release, rental titles are "Rin Tin Tin: The Paris Conspiracy," "Last Train Home," and "The Legend of Prince Valiant: Voyage to Camelot." Titles for sale are "Maniac Mansion: The Love Collection," "What! What! Squire: Windosill Gardens," and "Squire Rushnell's Kingdom Chums: Original Top Ten." "Families want high quality entertainment and retailers know there's a need for fresh, good programming serving the family market," said Terry Botwick, vice president of original programming for The Family

Channel. Joining in on the September debut is singer, actress, author Debby Boone, spokesperson for the video company. "Debby's name is synonymous with family and family values," said Tim Robertson, president of the Family Channel, "and we're certain she'll be a tremendous help in getting the titles of our home videos out there before the public."

The new line showcases the foundation of the Family Channel's phenomenal success — quality family entertainment — and includes several of The Family Channel's most popular original productions of comedy, action/adventure, drama, fantasy, animation, child development and inspirational entertainment. The videos are set for release on Sept. 16. Contact your local video store for more information.
