Twin Falls ponders 2 landfill plans

By Phil Sahn
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE — Twin Falls County may want no part of the Southern Idaho Regional Solid Waste District, but the city of Twin Falls might.
Mayor Howard Allen told the district board of directors Friday that the city wants its sanitation inspector to keep going to the district's monthly meetings. The city needs more time before deciding whether to go with the county or the regional district, he said.

Mayor says best, cheapest setup will be choice of city officials

After speaking to the board, Allen also said that if getting the best deal for city taxpayers means contracting with the regional district, the city might just do it. "I would think that the regional concept is viable. ... It might just be the best thing for the city of Twin Falls," he said.

The city of Twin Falls produces more than half the county's garbage. If the city were to contract with the district instead of staying with the county, landfill costs would rise dramatically for rural Twin Falls County residents and for the county's other cities.

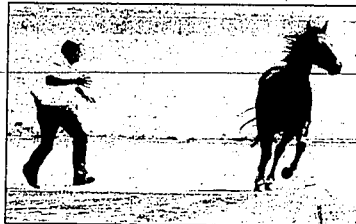

The county has no cost estimates right now on costs of a single-county landfill.

Spooked steed

MIKE SALSBUURY/The Times-News

A runaway horse creates a "treacherous situation" Friday afternoon on Interstate 84 near the south edge of Wendell. According to Gooding County Sheriff Robert Aja, he was chasing the horse, it was grazing in a pasture near the freeway when it jumped a fence after being spooked. Noise from a parade in Wendell could have caused the horse to bolt, he said. Aja and Wendell police officers gave chase, forcing the animal from the freeway after it crossed all four lanes of traffic.

Harris pleads innocent in Degan death

The Associated Press

BOISE — The second of two men charged with killing a federal marshal in a northern Idaho shootout pleaded innocent Friday.
The two are scheduled to be tried together starting Oct. 26.
Kevin Harris, 24, entered his plea before U.S. Magistrate Larry Boyle to a first-degree murder charge that carries a possible death penalty. Boyle advised him that if he is found guilty, a jury will decide his sentence — death or life imprisonment.
Harris is to be tried with Randy Weaver, 44, a white separatist who is charged with aiding and abetting Harris in the slaying of Deputy U.S. Marshal William Degan, of Quincy, Mass. Weaver pleaded innocent Thursday.

They are to be tried before U.S. District Judge Harold Lodge, the chief judge of the district. Attorneys on both sides said they doubted the case would be ready for trial in just five weeks.

"The mouse," he added down in a field west of the Twin Falls Gun Club Thursday night, and Friday morning Fish and Game heard no more of him. "We didn't go looking for him this morning because we have meetings and everybody's getting ready for sage grouse season (which starts today)."

Meandering moose meets sad end

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS. — The young bull moose that led Idaho Department of Fish and Game officers a merry chase Thursday apparently met its end Friday evening.
It was reportedly struck by a car and killed on U.S. 30 at the west edge of Twin Falls about 9:30 p.m. Further details were not available.
The moose, probably a tourist from mountains south and east of Burley, was hit with three rifle-propelled tranquilizer darts during his getaway in northwest Twin Falls Thursday afternoon. "They didn't so much as buckle his knobby knees. They were afraid to shoot him with another tranquilizer," said Stu Murrell, public information officer for the Fish and Game office in Jerome.

The NRO's mission is "to ensure that the U.S. has the technology and spaceborne and airborne assets needed to acquire intelligence worldwide ..." the statement said.
It named the agency director — Martin

Perot may become November spoiler

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Ross Perot's name was submitted Friday for the 50th state ballot — Arizona — in an extraordinary feat that could "make the Dallas billionaire a spoiler in certain states even if he stays on the presidential sidelines."
Just by appearing on the ballot, non-candidate Perot could play a role in key battleground states, where drafting a percentage point or two from President Bush or Democrat Bill Clinton could swing electoral votes from one side to the other.
Bush could be hurt if Perot ends up being a factor in Southern states such as Texas and Florida, considered part of the Republican base. The two states together control 57 of the 270 electoral votes needed to win.

"It creates a bit more of a strategic problem for Bush," said Republican pollster David Hill. "He does have to spend a little more time protecting his base."
The Perot vote could take votes away from Clinton, too, since both men tend to attract support from voters who are angry with Bush.
Perot is unclear on Perot's potential vote, but suggest he can draw down Bush's support by 5 to 8 percentage points and Clinton's by 7 to 10 percentage points — margins that could be crucial in a tight race.

Super-secret satellite supervisors slip into half-light

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — For 32 years it didn't officially exist, its name a whispered shadow, its budget a black hole.
When necessary, officials referred to it as "the entity" or "the office."
On Friday, bowing to relentless congressional pressure, the Pentagon revealed the existence of the super-secret agency that buys and operates the nation's spy satellites and its other airborne espionage systems.

Don Atwood, Deputy Secretary of Defense, today announced the declassification of the existence of the National Reconnaissance Office, as recommended by the Director of Central Intelligence," said a laconic, four-paragraph statement.
The NRO's mission is "to ensure that the U.S. has the technology and spaceborne and airborne assets needed to acquire intelligence worldwide ..." the statement said.
It named the agency director — Martin

C. Faga — and its two deputy directors, and provided a coded Pentagon address and a telephone number.
Other information about the agency is still a secret, the statement said.

Is it?
The NRO's existence was one of the worst kept secrets in Washington. In 1973, a Senate report first revealed the name in a public list — too late for government censuses to delete.
The name has since appeared in numerous books and articles. The secrecy has only challenged outside experts to explore its mysteries.

One of these experts is Steven Aftergood of the Federation of American Scientists, who estimates the NRO's budget at $5 billion a year. He said the agency was established in 1960 and is located in room 4C958 of the Pentagon.

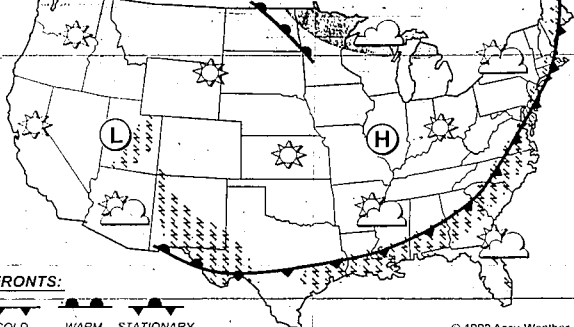

Rep. George E. Brown Jr., a California Democrat, resigned his seat on the House Intelligence Committee in 1987 after publicly naming the NRO on the House floor and causing a furor.

Weather summary

The National Weather Service says high pressure will produce generally fair weekend weather over Idaho.

A Canadian cold front that dropped south into Montana and Wyoming trailed enough cold air over Idaho to keep temperatures from warming appreciably Friday.

Skies over Idaho were fair with temperatures ranging from the 40s in the mountains to the 50s at lower elevations. Winds over the state were light and variable at most places.

Overnight lows ranged from the middle 20s to middle 30s in the mountains to the middle 30s to middle 40s in the lower elevations. The warmest temperature in the state Friday was 81 degrees at Malad. Stanley reported the coldest at 20 degrees.

Elsewhere in the region Friday, the highest temperature was 110 degrees at Palm Springs and Imperial, Calif., and Lake Havasu City, Ariz. The lowest was 15 degrees at Wisdom, Mont.

Thunderstorms drench central sections of nation

The Associated Press

Thunderstorms scattered rain across the central portion of nation Friday. High winds swept parts of the Plains and the Northeast. Dry weather prevailed elsewhere.

Meanwhile, a new hurricane formed Friday in the Atlantic. Bonnie, the second named storm of the Atlantic hurricane season, was hundreds of miles northeast of Bermuda and posed no immediate threat to land. Its top sustained winds barely exceeded the hurricane threshold of 74 mph.

By afternoon, showers and thunderstorms were scattered from the central Gulf Coast to the lower Great Lakes; along the southern Atlantic Coast; and across Arkansas, Kansas, and Iowa.

Thunderstorms developed in warm, moist air ahead of a cold front crossing the nation's midsection.

Heavier rainfall for the six hours ending at 2 p.m. EDT included more than 2 inches in Pensacola, Fla.; 1.75 at London, Ky.; and 1.26 at Melbourne, Fla.

High winds swept across parts of Kentucky to the Great Lakes and New England. Skies were dry across the rest of the nation but hazy in the Northeast.

Temperatures were in the upper 80s and lower 90s across much of the Southeast. Readings were in the 80s into New England.

Snake River August flow drops to record low

BOISE (AP) - The Snake River's flow dropped to its lowest level last month since records starting being kept in 1911.

The U.S. Geological Survey reported Friday that the average flow of 3.4 billion gallons per day in the river during August broke the previous record low of 3.7 billion gallons per day set in June.

The previous record low for August was 3.8 billion gallons per day in 1924. Average August streamflow on the Snake River is about 7.2 billion gallons per day.

Rival campaigns exchange charges of debate-dodging

The Associated Press

'We're going to be in East Lansing ... ready to debate. If the president's ready, he can show up.'

— George Stephanopoulos of Clinton's staff

No one was blinking in the great debate debate Friday. Democrat Bill Clinton assailed President Bush for passing up a faceoff next week in Michigan, while the White House said the stumbling block to debates was Clinton's refusal to negotiate.

"I've listened to all their macho talk, but when it comes time to go man to man, plan to plan, where is he?" Clinton demanded at a rally at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque.

The Arkansas governor accused Bush of "hiding from an honest discussion ... of a record he'd like to make here." He said Bush was "good at one thing, he is a great debater." He vetoed the first debate.

Clinton's double-barrelled assault included a radio ad that started running Friday across Michigan, an important battleground state that would have been the site of a Sept. 22 debate proposed by a bipartisan commission.

"The American people have a lot of questions. Bill Clinton is ready to answer them. So why won't George Bush debate? He says he doesn't like to lose," he said.

Bush strategist Charles Black said the president wasn't backing out of anything. "There's nothing to cancel when there never was one," Black said of the East Lansing event. "That would imply a process we haven't started," he said.

Despite the apparent impasse, top advisers to Republican Bush and Democrat Clinton insisted Friday that the two candidates were "virtually certain to debate."

Asked the likelihood on NBC's "Today" program, Black and Clinton communications director George Stephanopoulos gave the same answer: 100 percent.

"We're going to be in East Lansing on the 22nd, ready to debate. If the president's ready, he can show up," said Stephanopoulos. "We'll see you sooner or later," Black responded.

The build-up for the Michigan debate began during the primary season, when the commission recommended East Lansing as the first of three debate sites. Clinton agreed to the plan in June when it was clear he'd be the Democratic nominee.

But the Bush team, unhappy with the single-moderator format, later proposed direct negotiations with the Clinton campaign.

If he didn't hear from Clinton officials by Friday, said Bush campaign chairman Robert Teeter, "we will assume you do not wish to debate."

Clinton plans a rally Tuesday in East Lansing followed by a televised town meeting that evening in Detroit to substitute for the debate Bush has declined to attend. The Democrats in the meantime are trying with the new ad to stimulate a perception that Bush is ducking debates.

The ad said Bush won't come to Michigan because "he wants a panel of reporters to ask questions, instead of having an open exchange between the candidates."

The narrator recounts a litany of economic woes and campaign "ifs" you believe the debate about America's future should begin next Tuesday in Michigan, call the Bush-Quayle headquarters ... and tell George Bush, it's time to debate. "It gives a phone number for the call."

Aides said the campaign may run the radio spot in other states as well. This year is unusual in that both candidates appear to need debates. Clinton needs them for the usual reason - to bridge a possible stature gap between a challenger and a sitting president. But Bush needs them, too, because he is trailing Clinton by about 10 points in national polls.

The latest, a Wall Street Journal-NBC poll of 1,506 registered voters published Friday, found Clinton leading Bush 51-41 percent.

Clinton made a particularly strong showing among women - 54 percent favored the Democrat compared to 36 percent for Bush. The poll, with an error margin of 2.5 points, showed men split evenly between the two candidates.

Miss America finals tonight

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) - Crowds cheered and yelled encouragement as this year's 50 Miss America contestants waved and blew kisses Friday during their annual pre-crowning parade along Atlantic City's boardwalk.

The Miss America Pageant Parade has been held since 1921 on the night before the new pageant queen is crowned.

A cool ocean breeze jostled contestants' hats and flowing outfits as they rode along two miles of boardwalk atop convertibles. They obliged and lit up their legs as members of the crowd shouted, "Show us your shoes."

The parade also featured floats and marching bands. Veterans of the Vietnam War and the 2nd Marine Division Band from Camp Lejeune, N.C., received a long standing ovation as they marched by.

Atlantic City Gov. John W. Hight was the grand marshal but couldn't attend because of relief efforts in the aftermath of Hurricane Iniki. His wife, Lynne, replaced him.

Before the parade, the contestants spent much of the day rehearsing for today's final competition, which will be broadcast live by NBC-TV. Television talk show hosts Regis Philbin and Kathie Lee Gifford will be the emcees.

Philbin and Gifford said they were impressed with the contestants.

"Just their educational backgrounds is enough to impress me," Philbin told a news conference. "They're smart and they're articulate."

"And they're firm," quipped Gifford.

Three nights of preliminary competition ended Thursday, leaving the initial seven judges to cast their votes for the woman they believe should succeed Carolyn Sapp of Hawaii as Miss America.

A panel of celebrity judges will be brought in Saturday to grade the semi-finalists, who compete again in evening gown, swimsuit and talent competitions. Forty percent of a semi-finalist's preliminary score will be carried over to today.

Moose

Kvale said Craig Kvale, one of the Fish and Game wildlife specialists who chased the moose throughout the neighborhoods north and west of the College of Southern Idaho campus Thursday.

"But I'm sure if he had caused more problems, we would have gotten some calls," Kvale said.

The Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office said it, too, had heard nothing of the moose on Friday.

U.S., Japan ink trade accord

WASHINGTON (AP) - U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills signed a trade accord Friday with Japan that is expected to boost exports of U.S. farm products, particularly corn.

"Over the next three years, we expect that the package of concessions we have just won from Japan will add an estimated $75 million to $95 million in extra sales for U.S. farmers," said Agriculture Secretary Edward Madigan.

Madigan said much of the new growth would go to corn producers, but significant gains are expected for some processed dairy products.

Landfill

because it hasn't found a site.

Twin Falls County Commissioners Norma Blass and Jim Fraley voted Thursday in favor of the county withdrawing from the solid waste district. Commissioner Murvin Hempleman voted for the county to stay in the district.

Friday, Allen said the vote to withdraw might have been premature.

"They couldn't possibly have had all the facts to arrive at that decision," he said, "if it was political pressure again, it was wrong. I have a slight feeling it was."

Blass and Fraley both said they didn't like the county getting only one vote on the district board while contributing the most trash and money to the landfill.

But Friday, commissioners on the district board said that worry was misplaced.

As the district plan formed the past three years, and Twin Falls was chosen as the site for a landfill, the county carried a lot of weight in the decisions, Lincoln County Commissioner Jerry Nance said.

"They were a long way from one vote," he said.

As the largest contributor, Twin Falls got its wish in choosing the site-rejected Hansen Butte site and in what kind of trash transfer system the district would use, Blaine County Commissioner Tom Blanchard said.

"Twin, as the host county, got consideration. We focused on Hansen Butte because Twin wanted to," Blanchard said.

Briefly

State legislator Reid dies of heart attack

LEWISTON — Rep. Harold Reid of Craigmont, the Idaho legislator with the most seniority, died Thursday of a heart attack. He was 76.

Considered the dean of the Idaho House and one of its experts on tax law, Democrat Reid served 16 terms, or 32 years. His last election, in 1990, set an all-time record for legislative longevity.

But the 1992 reapportionment plan forced him into a Democratic runoff in an altered district against freshman Rep. June Judd, D-St. Maries, who won the May 26 primary election.

Reid experienced some discomfort at his home and, at about noon, was taken by ambulance to St. Mary's Hospital at Cottonwood. He died at about 3 p.m.

Gov. Cecil Andrus said Reid was "a true citizen-legislator whose overriding desire was always to serve the best interest of his constituents." Andrus called his death a "tragic loss to his family, and his many friends on both sides of the political aisle."

Police use nails in net to stop stolen truck

SODA SPRINGS — State Police trained last week in how to use a new technique to stop cars involved in high-speed chases — and then the next day used the process with great success.

Area ISP officers trained in a new spiking system. It uses hollow, pointed nails attached to netting. The spikes enter into the tires of a vehicle, flattening the tires slowly, lessening the chance of a crash.

ISP Cpl. Dennis Abrams said the next day, a pickup truck gassed up at a station west of Moppell, then drove off. That led to a 60-70-mile chase through Georgetown, Soda Springs and Lava Hot Springs.

About 300 yards past the spot where the spikes were placed, the stolen truck's tires went flat and two 16-year-olds from Colorado were taken into custody.

Group says Gritz represents neo-Nazis

COEUR D'ALENE — Populist candidate Bo Gritz represents a party that is a haven for Klansmen and neo-Nazis, says a human rights group with the backing of two Idaho leaders.

Gritz insulted veterans by giving a Nazi salute. He also chose an Oregon campaign manager that ridiculed homosexuals, compared racist skinheads to young Marines and once shared a political ticket with former Louisiana Klansman David Duke, the KKK's national task force on Human Relations said during a press conference Thursday.

"His connections are questionable," said Russell Wright, a member of North Idaho College's Human Equality Club, which hosted the press conference.

Gritz's campaign staff rebutted information collected by the task force.

"Gritz has a deep dislike for Nazis," Charlie Brown, national chairman for the America First Coalition, responded from his Middleburg, Fla., office. The candidate's father, a World War II pilot, was killed by Nazis, Brown said.

Bonneville to see new solid waste facility

IDAHO FALLS — Bonneville County has awarded a $2.3 million contract to a Chubbuck construction company to build a solid waste facility that will help the county extend the life of its planned new landfill.

B & C Construction will build a transfer station on the northern edge of Idaho Falls. It's expected to be ready next summer. It will be a dumping point for garbage haulers and county residents, who no longer will take waste to the county landfill themselves.

Garbage will be sorted and compacted, and then hauled by trucks to a new, federally approved landfill. Recycling bins will be available for voluntary use by residents.

Candidate accused of almost sexist charge

LEWISTON — Christine LaRocco is going after her husband's election opponent, contending Republican Rachel Gilbert came close to making a sexist charge.

"I really think she attacked the wrong person this time and I am pretty shocked and disappointed that a woman would make these kinds of charges," Mrs. LaRocco said Thursday from Washington, D.C.

She made that statement one day after Gilbert accused U.S. Rep. Larry LaRocco, D-Idaho, and his wife of "milking" the political system.

The issue involved Larry LaRocco's post as northern Idaho field representative at Moscow for then-U.S. Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho. To work on Church's unsuccessful 1976 presidential campaign, Larry LaRocco took a leave of absence from the Senate staff. Christine LaRocco filled in between February and June of that year.

Commission looks into leaks at new jail

CALDWELL — The Canyon County Commission wants to know what's causing cracks and leaks in floors at the new county jail.

The commission this week ordered new core samples from the concrete second floor of the Caldwell jail. It was scheduled to open in January, but Commission Chairman Walter Opp said because of the ongoing problems, it will be at least another 90 days before it can be placed into service.

Opp said the core samples will be sent to a consulting engineer for laboratory tests and the commission will get a recommendation on how to deal with the leakage problem.

Citizens to meet about localized gambling

SILVER VALLEY — Shoshone County residents can air their feelings on local option gambling at a Sept. 29 town meeting in Wallace.

But county Commissioner David Dose says the issue puts a bad light on the Silver Valley.

According to a release from a group calling themselves "Citizens for Local Option," a committee was formed to find ways to increase the tax base without raising the taxes in Shoshone County.

County commissioners Don Hayman and Bill Seaton recently signed a resolution placing an advisory question on the Nov. 3 general election ballot relating to an amendment to the state Constitution on local option gambling.

Citizens will be allowed to indicate whether they approve or disapprove localized gambling. The results will be sent to the Legislature.

Medical center may become nursing home

SILVERTON — The board of trustees for the Henry L. Day Medical Center would like to convert the 29-bed hospital into a nursing home.

The board announced Thursday that it had signed an agreement with Kirkwood Architects and Associates in Spokane, Wash., and Valley Vista Care Services to develop a proposal.

"I think it's a nice use for the facility," board chairman Fred Manthey said. "Senior citizens in this area have expressed an interest in this type of facility."

State board opposes 1% Initiative

MOSCOW (AP) — The state Board of Education is formally opposing passage of the "One Percent Initiative" to limit property tax funding for schools.

"I think the impact could be devastating to both higher education and public education," board member Diane Bilyeu of Pocatello said Thursday before the board voted 6-1 to approve a resolution against the measure.

Board member Keith Hinckley of Blackfoot was abstaining.

Board member Joseph Parkinson of Boise, dissenting, saying he is not comfortable with the board taking a public position because it could alienate taxpayers the board must count on for their support.

But board member Rary Mosman of Moscow said he feared the board's silence about the initiative could be misunderstood.

"We are supposed to lead in the area of education," he said.

Boise State University interim President Larry Selland, University of Idaho President Elisabeth Zinser and North Idaho College President Robert Bennett urged the board to take a stand.

"I really think a message from the state board is critical as we work with our constituencies," Selland said.

But Ronald Rankin of Coeur d'Alene, a leading proponent of the initiative, said the board has no credibility with the public, so its stance against his measure does not worry him.

Dinner for candidates moved

MOSCOW (AP) — The state Board of Education has decided to move a dinner for the five Boise State University presidential candidates from Boise's exclusive Arid Club to the BSU campus.

Despite the fact that invitations to Thursday's event already have been sent and Boise State will have to find someone to cater it, the board voted 4-1 Friday to move the dinner and reception from the Arid Club.

About 40 community, business and BSU alumni and foundation leaders are invited. The board is invited to the reception, but not to the dinner, said board President Karl Shurtliff, who cast the lone dissenting vote Friday.

Shurtliff, a Boise attorney, said he decided not to invite the board to the dinner, but will attend himself.

Board member Colleen Mahoney of Lewiston, saying she risked being called "a bleeding heart liberal," contended it was not appropriate to hold the dinner and reception at the exclusive club, which for years allowed only male members and still has only a handful of female members.

Trout takes oath as Gem high court justice

BOISE (AP) — Linda Coppel Trout has officially become the first woman on the Idaho Supreme Court.

The former 2nd District judge from Lewiston took the oath of office from Gov. Cecil Andrus during a ceremony Friday at the Supreme Court.

"She will bring sensitivity and understanding of the law, a compassion that will only improve upon this distinguished court," Andrus said before administering the oath of office.

Trout, 40, was sworn in privately on Sept. 1 and already had been working with the high court, hearing oral arguments with the four other justices last week in eastern Idaho and this week in Boise.

"I'm extremely flattered and pleased and continue to be amazed at the honor that's been bestowed on me," she said, thanking Andrus for choosing her last month from among 10 Idaho judicial circuit nominees.

Trout has been in the state for more than 10 years to come to work very hard to justify that trust and confidence.

Trout's uncle, Boise lawyer Robert Coppel, said the new justice's mother and father, a longtime Boise pediatrician, would have been proud of her accomplishment. And he said like Sandra Day O'Connor on the U.S. Supreme Court, Trout would be a pioneer for future women justices.

"More will follow. There has to be more," Coppel said. "I'm sure Justice Bristine will tell you that when you

As a result, the state's higher education institutions are more likely to take "the major hit" in their budgets, Vickers said.

LESC would lose $1 million under this scenario, he said, and eliminate 20 to 30 employees and up to three programs.

The college could increase student fees substantially to make up for this cutback, but that would hurt adult students coming back to school and disadvantaged students, Vickers said.

Board members scolded president

MOSCOW (AP) — Two days of tense meetings came to an emotional conclusion when several state Board of Education members criticized board President Karl Shurtliff for his outspoken and "radical" ideas.

Board member Colleen Mahoney of Lewiston told Shurtliff Friday she was tired of reading newspaper accounts of his controversial speeches to Idaho business groups.

"She said she would stop it and start discussing his ideas with the board."

"At some point, do you intend to make recommendations so that we have an opportunity to discuss it?" Mahoney asked.

Diane Bilyeu of Pocatello also told Shurtliff his ideas are stirring up people around the state and making the board look bad.

"There is a fountain right here," Bilyeu said. "You owe that to this board."

Shurtliff's ideas for creating a community college in Idaho Falls, merging administrations at the University of Idaho and Lewis-Clark State College and consolidating Idaho's four education colleges should be discussed by the board before they are presented to the public, Bilyeu and Mahoney said.

Shurtliff, a Boise attorney, has been proposing these ideas in speeches before business groups for several months. He presented them to the Moscow Chamber of Commerce on Wednesday.

Shurtliff said he always prefaces his remarks with a disclaimer that he is presenting his own ideas, not those of the board. And he refused to poll board members before he makes a public speech.

Justice Stephen Bristine is well known in Idaho's legal community for his frequent, lengthy, often scathing dissents from majority opinions.

Trout also acknowledged the help of her husband, Lewiston attorney Kim Trout, who will be moving his practice to Boise, her sister, a professor of medicine at the University of Arizona, and her colleagues on the bench in Lewiston, where she was a magistrate from 1983 until becoming a district judge in 1990. She also was trial court administrator for five years. She fills a position on the Supreme Court left by last spring's resignation of Larry Boyle, who became a federal magistrate.

Andrus said after Boyle's resignation that he wanted to appoint a woman to fill the vacancy, in part because there are some things "men don't have the genes to judge."

Chief Justice Robert Baker thanked Andrus for appointing Trout, joking that the governor had "solved our genetic problem."

Baker also said Trout's appointment brings the high court into what he considers a more favorable balance — another court. With Boyle, there had been three Pocatello High School graduates and two Boise High graduates on the court. With Trout, Boise High School has a 3-2 advantage.

Idahoans back nuclear project

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — About 400 eastern Idahoans turned out to reaffirm their support for a nuclear rocket testing program the U.S. Air Force is considering for the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

For the most part, they gave their unqualified support to the Air Force's Space Nuclear Thermal Propulsion Program at the final public hearing for the project Thursday night in Idaho Falls.

No one questioned how many jobs they could expect from the rocket tests, how much nuclear waste the project would generate or why the Air Force plans to spend $800 million on the project.

"Several people even criticized environmentalists opposed to the project."

Signs of normalcy start to emerge in Kauai

WAILUA, Hawaii (AP) — Blinking sweat from his eyes, Bernard Duarte yanked at pieces of drywall piled high in a horse trailer he had towed to a temporary garbage dump. The 40-year-old furniture store owner, his wife and the rank smell of decomposition settled like dew. Duarte, 57, his wife and 7-year-old boy worked hard, tossing what used to be pieces of their house into a tree-hugger to work.

During the devastation wrought by Hurricane Iniki was beginning, to say the least, but it was not just to be able to get on with cleanup.

"We had a greenhouse," Duarte said. "The whole yard is a mess. This cost a lot of money."

A week ago Friday, Hurricane Iniki blew out of the Pacific and landed on a Hawaiian paradise. Now, rubble and sounds of reconstruction fill Kauai's coastal landscape.

On Friday, a light breeze flapped the bright blue tarp used to patch up shattered roofs. Bulldozers rumbled through splintered neighborhoods. Businesses hoisted "open" signs. Schools got ready to reopen, possibly next week, and primary elections were to be held on schedule Saturday.

With almost no power and low water pressure, Kauai was a long way from recovery. But with each small step, islanders took heart.

"It's been interesting how we've seen the problem and live more with it," said Mayor JoAnn Grunwald. "You don't have a sewage problem until you get the water back. You don't see the roads and you have a water problem."

Help for those problems also was coming from Washington. On Friday, Congress planned to rush to President Bush a bill to aid natural disaster relief.

At the Big Save grocery next door, generator-powered cash registers were ringing briskly as customers waded through dimly lit aisles.

Election booths were set up in the county building ready for Saturday's primary elections for congressional and state offices, although it was unclear how many residents still cared to vote.

"It kind of took a back seat," said John Hunt of Poipu, a town 15 miles southwest of Lihue.

Meantime, Kashi Kobayama, who runs a small liquor and tobacco store on the main highway to Kapaa, said his customers were developing a taste for warm beer. Katsuyama, 82, decided to open Tuesday, even though he has no electricity.

"People who want cigarettes, they're desperate," he said.

"They used to complain that the beer is not cold enough. Everybody drinks warm beer now."

Senate restricts policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Friday challenged the Bush administration's policy on nuclear weapons testing, endorsing strict curbs on the underground explosions and a total ban beginning in 1996.

On a 55-40 vote, lawmakers added the restrictions to a $274 billion Pentagon budget bill for the year beginning Oct. 1. Differences with a House version remain to be resolved before the measure can be sent to President Bush.

The action highlighted a sharp difference between Bush and Democratic presidential candidate Bill Clinton, who told an audience of workers at Sandia National Laboratories in Albuquerque, N.M., on Friday that he supports a comprehensive ban on nuclear weapons testing.

Even as the Senate acted, the Energy Department detonated its fifth test of the year at the Nevada test site. With a yield of less than 20 kilotons, the blast was designed to test reliability of equipment in a nuclear environment.

In other action on the Pentagon bill, opponents of the B-2 stealth bomber fell short in their effort to further cut the program as the Senate ratified plans to build a fleet of 20 of the radar-evading aircraft.

The 53-45 vote to provide $2.7 billion for the program in the coming year came as senators rejected arguments to make sharper reductions in the defense budget in recognition of the end of the Cold War.

"This is not a friendly world," argued Sen. John Warner, R-Va., senior Republican on the Senate Armed Services Committee. "There are many areas that are growing unfriendly day by day."

In August, administration officials said they would recommend a veto of any bill containing the restrictions because they would call into question the safety and reliability of the U.S. nuclear arsenal.

Sen. testing opponents, led by Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., said continued testing makes little sense in a world wishing to reduce nuclear arsenals and where nuclear tensions have abated with the disappearance of the Soviet Union.

"The American public has told us loud and clear that they want testing to end," despite the administration's contention that it is needed to guarantee the safety and effectiveness of the U.S. arsenal, Hatfield said.

Letters containing support, checks flood Homestead

HOMESTEAD, Fla. (AP) — The message from H. Ross Perot was brief and written in a man's scrawl, surrounded by large hearts. Dear Florida — We're praying for you. We love you.

These Auburn, Mass., came these words of hope: "Don't give up, look to the future as you're leaving. Dream new dreams and you'll find your way."

A widow from Santa Monica, Calif., enclosed $100, explaining it was "love from a stranger who cares."

The letters were among more than 400 notes of encouragement and support from around the world that have arrived at city hall since Hurricane Andrew ripped through town.

Most of the letters contained checks and cash, ranging from a $6 private donation to a $1,500 check from a company, said municipal spokeswoman Ann Marie Gohard. The average donation has been $50 to $100, she said.

"They're gratifying to read," she said. "They're all very encouraging. They say they know it may take awhile to rebuild but they give a lot of hope."

A woman in Holland wrote: "The sun is always coming up in Florida. When we were there, I remember the name. The sunshine state. Let the sun shine in your city."

Many of the letters were sent directly to City Manager Alex Muro, who appeared on national television after the disaster and was interviewed by scores of newspapers and magazines. People seemed to be touched by his optimistic declaration that "there is always a tomorrow" and his belief that the area will rebuild.

"The way you answered the TV cameras was one of the finest and most caring I have ever heard in my entire life," an Iowa resident wrote. "Your attitude will no doubt help many lives. Our love is with you across the miles."

Other people were moved by Muro's account of how his 12-year-old son lost his treasured baseball card collection, one of countless tiny tragedies caused by Andrew.

A Boston woman sent Muro some baseball cards from her husband's childhood collection, explaining, "These cards may not come close to replacing those lost by your kids, but perhaps they'll bring some diversion during a tough time."

A 13-year-old boy from Jacksonville wrote Muro saying he has collected cards for six years. "I have many doubles of my cards and I would be glad to send many to you. If you or he could possibly write back telling me his favorite player and team, I'll mail him some of my cards."

But it was a letter from San Angelo, Texas, that may have offered the best advice:

"Do us a favor and don't look ahead too much to see how far you have to go. Once a week maybe, look back and see how far you have come. For the rest of the time, there's a Texas saying: 'Head down and keep pulling.' That's not very glamorous, but it sure as hell gets the job done."

Schlafly's son says he's homosexual

CHICAGO — The eldest son of conservative activist Phyllis Schlafly acknowledged Friday he is homosexual, but said he backs most of his mother's political positions, including opposition to same-sex marriage.

"I hold her in very high esteem," said John Schlafly, 41, a business attorney who lives with his parents in the Mississippi River town of Alton. "I think she's doing good work."

Phyllis Schlafly, who has six children, said she supports her son, "lovingly and to the love him," she said. "What else is there to it?"

"I'm not going to comment on his life," Schlafly said in a brief statement. The disclosure came two weeks ago in a New York weekly magazine, which exposed his homosexuality without his approval.

Astronauts receive long-distance call

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Endeavour's astronauts tested an in-flight system intended to provide hospital-quality care in space and an extra-long distance call from Tokyo on Friday.

Japanese Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa called to congratulate the seven-member crew as the Japanese-sponsored SpaceLab mission neared its end. The crew includes Mamoru Mohri, Japan's first professional astronaut.

Endeavour is scheduled to land at Kennedy Space Center at 7:10 a.m. Sunday after eight days in space. Scientists from around the world are gathered at the spacecraft, eagerly awaiting the shuttle's return so they can see how their animals fared in weightlessness.

United States, Mexico sign tax treaty

WASHINGTON — The United States and Mexico signed a tax treaty Friday designed to eliminate double taxation and prevent tax avoidance by multinational companies doing business in both countries.

The pact also is aimed at reducing the overall tax on investment income flowing between the two countries. It provides for cooperation between U.S. and Mexican tax authorities.

The agreement is subject to ratification by the Senate and by the Mexican Congress.

Draft record Storm northeast of Bermuda approaches hurricane status

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical Storm Bonnie swirled to life Friday and was approaching hurricane strength northeast of Bermuda.

Forecasters said the second tropical storm of the season posed no immediate threat to land.

At 11 a.m. EDT, Bonnie's center was near 34.5 north latitude and 57.7 west longitude, or about 450 miles east-northeast of Bermuda.

The storm was drifting east-northeast at 7 mph in the open North Atlantic.

subject of GOP TV ad

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a sign of mounting Republican worries, the Bush campaign has taped a TV ad slamming Bill Clinton's draft record.

In the ad, not yet on the air, "Good Morning Vietnam" disc jockey Adrian Cronauer accuses Clinton of lying.

Clinton has denied that he has lied about his Vietnam draft status. And his campaign communications director, George Stephanopoulos, dismissed the proposed ad as "a sign of desperation."

"It's negative politics, exactly what you would expect," Stephanopoulos said. "They can't talk about the record."

Democrats have been expecting the Bush camp to air negative advertising aimed at Clinton in an effort to cut down his lead in the polls. But the Bush campaign has kept its plans under wraps.

Such ads, if aired, would represent the first negative television spots from either the Clinton or Bush camps in the fall campaign.

It also appeared that an independent group known as 1988 TV attacks on Democrat Michael Dukakis would soon aim ads at Clinton. Floyd Brown, head of the Presidential Victory Fund, said he would announce plans next week.

Senate to appeal Hastings reversal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate will fight a federal court's reversal of former Judge Alex Hastings' impeachment, the chamber's lawyer said Friday, as senators insist that they gave Hastings a fair trial.

"I think that was an outrageous decision," Sen. Sheldon Whitehouse, D-R.I., said of U.S. District Judge Stanley Sporkin's opinion Thursday that overturned Hastings' 1989 impeachment. "It was an unconstitutional intrusion by that judge into proceedings of the Senate."

Sporkin ruled Hastings did not receive a fair Senate trial under a procedure that appoints a 12-member committee to hear evidence.

United States suspends airlift to Somalia

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The United States temporarily suspended its airlift to a town in southern Somalia Friday after a bullet struck one of its planes and a gun-toting mob threatened U.S. troops unloading the cargo.

Two other flights were canceled to the southern town of Belet-Huen, but U.S. flights continued elsewhere, officials said. They delivered 78 tons of maize meal on six flights to the town of Baidoa, and 13 tons of cereal for malnourished children to the northeastern Kenyan town of Wajir.

The American planes did not know they fired the bullets that struck their C-130 plane but that a hit the aircraft's right rear near the tail.

None of the six crew members, six ground crew members and three Red Cross workers on the plane was injured, said spokesman Marine Warrant Officer Hartman Slate, 32, of San Antonio.

Iraqi troops spotted trying to build road

ABOARD USS RANGER — The commander of U.S. reconnaissance flights over southern Iraq said Friday that Saddam Hussein's troops appear to be trying to avoid detection but are still building a road to reach rebel-inhabited marshes.

"They are bunkered down as though they are trying to avoid being seen or trying to avoid being attacked," Air Force Lt. Gen. Michael A. Nelson told reporters on his first visit to this carrier in the Persian Gulf.

The seven-ship battle group commanded by the USS Ranger, out of San Diego, replaced the USS Independence on Thursday.

Iraq has made no apparent attempt to challenge the "no-fly" zone below the 32nd parallel, established Aug. 27 to protect rebel Shiite Muslims from air attacks by Saddam's forces.

Belgian duo takes lead in balloon race

ROTTERDAM, Netherlands — Belgian duo Bertrand Piccard and Wim Verstacten picked up a stiff tail wind Friday and surged ahead of the Americans to take the lead in the first trans-Atlantic balloon race.

Americans Richard Abruzzo and Troy Bradley dropped 80 miles behind the leaders to second place after starting the day with a 10-mile lead over Hoffman.

Holland was holding third place, Britain fourth, and Germany was trailing 150 miles behind Belgium.

After two days, the leaders had covered a quarter of the 3,000-mile crossing and finally hit fast oceanic air flows about 160 miles east of Newfoundland, according to the tracking center at Rotterdam's Zestienhoven Airport. The Belgians were averaging 42 mph.

Judge investigating murder charge shot

BOGOTA, Colombia — Gunmen on Friday shot and killed a judge who had been investigating a murder charge against fugitive druglord Pablo Escobar. Caracol radio network reported.

Miriam Roxio Velez, 38, was one of Colombia's so-called "faceless" judges, who try drug trafficking and terrorism cases. The identities of these judges are supposedly kept secret as a security precaution.

Caracol said Velez had been investigating the 1986 murder of Guillermo Cano, the publisher of Bogota's El Espectador newspaper. Escobar is charged with ordering Cano's killing.

Heavy fighting rages in Bosnia suburbs

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Heavy fighting raged for a second day Friday in the western suburbs of Bosnia's besieged capital, and peace talks in Geneva appeared to stumble at the starting line.

The intense shelling closed the perilous road connecting the airport with downtown Sarajevo. Bosnian government forces said 30 soldiers were killed while repelling a Serb attack on Stup, a suburb near the airport and U.N. headquarters.

The heavy fighting was viewed as an effort to strengthen bargaining positions in the Geneva negotiations.

Fred Couch, the Bosnian Serbs' leader, Radovan Karadzic, said he was ready to stop the fighting against Croats in Bosnia, but held out no prospect of a peace deal with the republic's Muslim-led government.

Underground explosion blasts gold mine

YELLOWKNIFE, Northwest Territories — An underground explosion ripped through the Giant Yellowknife gold mine Friday morning, police said, and there were reports seven people were killed.

CICD Radio in Yellowknife reported seven people were dead but a spokesman for the Royal Canadian Mounted Police would not confirm the figure except to say there had been an explosion and that there appeared to be fatalities.

Fred Couch of the Canadian Association of Smelter and Allied Workers Local 4 told the Canadian Press news agency that miners were told by the Royal Oak company there were seven dead.

Russia to reveal 'tragic' POW information

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia will disclose "tragic information" next week about Americans killed in the Soviet Union during World War II, an official investigating POWs said Friday.

Vladimir Kozlov, deputy head of the Russian-American Bilateral Commission on POWs, said the information will be presented when the panel holds a week-long meeting that opens Monday in Moscow.

"Documents concerning two Americans executed in Soviet prison camps during the war also will be given to U.S. officials, Kozlov said. He refused to describe any details in advance.

"There's evidence, and new tragic information about the fates of several people who were here at different times, especially during World War II," Kozlov said in an interview with The Associated Press.

He also said that some of the documents to be released next week will provide more information about U.S. pilots who were shot down or taken prisoner during the Cold War.

Gen. Dmitri Volkogonov, a reformist military historian who co-chairs the commission, said in an interview published today that the two executed Americans had been serving prison sentences for espionage.

Volkogonov told The Moscow Times, an English-language newspaper, that Russians on the commission would make public telegrams between Josef Stalin and Mao Tse-tung about exchanges of American prisoners during the Korean War.

The commission was founded last spring by President Bush and Russian President Boris Y. Yeltsin. The other chairman is Malcolm Toon, a former American ambassador to Moscow.

So far the commission has produced little concrete information about the status of POWs, although it did publish the names of several dozen American civilians who came to the former Soviet Union after being caught in Eastern Europe at the beginning of World War II.

Kozlov said the commission also would be able to provide the first names of a group of Americans it had earlier reported had disappeared on Soviet territory during World War II.

European currency crisis could continue indefinitely

LONDON (AP) — The strong aftershocks of Europe's currency crisis abated somewhat Friday, but Britain injected more uncertainty into the financial markets by saying it is in no hurry to rejoin the European exchange rate system or to support a unified Europe.

Prime Minister John Major said in a television interview the pound won't return to the exchange rate mechanism until the system is run "in the interest of all the countries of Europe" and not skewed towards national interest in any individual country.

Britain withdrew the pound from the exchange system Wednesday night after trying in vain to support the currency against the powerful German mark.

Britain blamed high German interest rates for pressuring the pound, and accused Germany's central bank, the Bundesbank, of helping to drive sterling out of the exchange rate, which is designed to maintain stability among European currencies.

The Bundesbank lowered two key rates a fraction of a percentage point on Monday. But the drop was smaller than hoped, prompting disappointed investors to sell off the pound and other European currencies.

The high interest rates made investments in the German mark more attractive. Conversely, the pound, and other currencies are less able to compete if they are backed by lower rates.

IF SEPTEMBER 19 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You are independent, creative, sensual, romantic, studious. Leo, Aquarius persons play significant roles in your life. You are an original thinker, you lead rather than follow, many persons categorize you as "rebelleins." You'll travel in October, gain via written word, could also kindle sparks of romance. Spiritual values surface in December. Finics involved.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Emphasis on activity, creativity, humor, putting forth efforts in best possible light. You'll articulate feelings, clash of ideas brings you close (time destined to play major role in your life).

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Attention revolves around art, music, literature, significant domestic adjustment. Serious consideration is given to residence, marital status. Financial picture brightens.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Cycle high, terms will be defined in your favor. See people, places, situations as they actually exist. Clientele arrangement will work to your advantage. Pisces, Virgo persons play roles.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Credit is received, should have been your own three months ago. Accept actuals, don't permit false pride to deter progress. Focus on organization, responsibility, intensified relationship.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Long-range prospects clarified. Focus on travel, wider audience, correspondence involving participation in import-export activities. Many of your aspirations are transformed into realities. Aries involved.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent independence, style, pioneering spirit. Lunar position highlights leadership, promotion, production, added prestige. Creative juices stir, emotions dominate. Accept challenge of new assignment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Teach and learn, rise above petty quarrels, accusations. Former adviser might play "Beneficial Arnold" role. Protect self in clinches, get promises, instructions in writing. Cancer native involved.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Diversity, experiment, add to wardrobe, get rid of fears, doubts concerning "the way I look." You'll be just fine, you'll entertain and inspire others. Check records, including accounting methods.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You'll be given "key" enabling you to open doors, previously shut tight. Individual who seemed "mysterious" appears by your side, offers to volunteer, focus also remains on reputation, marriage.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What appeared to be a loss will be recuperating in your favor. By tonight, optimism begins to bloom. Emphasis on employment, basic issues, pet ownership. You'll exude personal magnetism, sea appeal.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): News received concerning "local distributorship." What you seek is close to home, replies to souvenirs, giveaway program. Your contributions rewarded, enthusiastically accepted. Taurus in picture.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Follow through on lunch, psychic impressions honed to razor sharpness. You'll learn more about basic values, including property and home. Romance teeters.

Officers use monitor to track, stop stalkers

LITTLETON, Colo. (AP) — With domestic violence increasing, authorities are experimenting with an electronic system that sets off an alarm when a stalker approaches his victim.

Under a three-month program adopted by Arapahoe County, a known offender wears an electronic ankle bracelet that triggers an alarm if he goes near the person he is accused of harassing.

The alarm sounds on a receiver near the victim and a simultaneous signal goes to a communication center, which alerts police. The victim has a "panic button" on the receiver if the abuser disconnects the bracelet before coming near her.

The first offender was fitted with a bracelet this week, said District Attorney Robert Gallagher.

"We are in the midst of a revolution, and the revolution is rapid intervention," said Michael Lindsey, co-founder of Third Path, a program for male batterers.

The county is the first jurisdiction to try such a device, according to the manufacturer, Bodyguard Technologies of Boulder. Eventually, dozens of counties may wear the bracelets.

The program is limited to domestic violence situations. Offenders are given the option both at pretrial hearings and upon conviction of wearing the bracelet, going to jail or posting bond.

An increase in stalking incidents, with often tragic consequences, has spurred authorities to try new approaches.

Similar bracelets have been widely used for monitoring convicts sentenced to home detention, but never as warning devices for potential victims, Arapahoe County officials said.

Police and battered women's shelters in Boston are supplying "panic buttons" to domestic abuse victims so they can summon help with an electronic signal, but no bracelets are involved. Similar buttons, which work like medical alert systems, have been distributed in Tampa, Fla., and Cambridge, Mass.

In Colorado, the Legislature this year approved a bill to discourage stalkers after a woman was gunned down in Fort Collins on the steps of a police station by her ex-boyfriend and another woman was killed on a downtown Denver street by her estranged husband, who then committed suicide.

Anti-stalking bills also have been enacted in other states.

Activists hail Arapahoe County's fledgling bracelet program as a behavior modification tool, but say it will not be foolproof.

"It's a very specific program aimed at breaking an obsession," said Lindsey. "The bad news is, at this time nobody can stop a first-degree murder case."

Officials went to work on the project after the county's domestic violence rate skyrocketed in the past two years. The sheriff's department handled 372 cases in 1991 and 634 cases during the first seven months of 1992.

Barbara Shaw, executive director of Project Safeguard, which aids battered women, said the best part of the program is it is community-based and sets off a coordinated response.

"We were really afraid this would be another widget that got out there on the market and people would use it however they wanted to use it," she said. "It had to be part of a larger intervention."

Working with Lindsey, Shaw, court and sheriff's officials, Bodyguard Technologies put together a program that called for counseling of the victim and the perpetrator, said Pat Patterson, a company spokeswoman.

The victim also receives training in how to handle the offender when he comes near, knowing the police are on the way, Lindsey said. Although Lindsey said he can't divulge exactly what tactics are taught, he said "it's how to barricade, how to buy time."

Offenders also will undergo treatment while wearing the bracelet — a "stabilizing" program to discourage obsessive behavior, followed by counseling.

"The bracelet system should improve police response time when a 911 call is received, Lindsey said.

"This call is not just another domestic call. Because of all the training, everybody will know they have a hot call," he said.

Warehouse fire destroys millions in unique parts

TACOMA (AP) — Unique manufacturing parts possibly worth several million dollars were destroyed in a three-alarm warehouse fire of suspicious origin near the Tacoma Dome Thursday.

Meanwhile, two more suspicious blasts were reported Thursday night and early Friday in Seattle and south Snohomish County. That brings to at least 31 the number of suspicious fires in Snohomish and King Counties since Aug. 6.

Seattle police were seeking a man seen running away from a fire reported shortly after midnight in a house scheduled for demolition in the city's Northgate area. Another fire about two hours earlier damaged a small chiropractic clinic in the Espey area of south Snohomish County near Edmonds.

Fires also gutted two Seattle businesses earlier this week, and investigators from local agencies and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms were looking into the possibility that those fires are linked to a rash of arsons last month at churches, homes and other sites in Lynnwood and elsewhere in Snohomish County.

In Tacoma Thursday evening, more than 75 firefighters battled the blaze at a warehouse adjacent to the city's historic Freight House Square. The fire, which began shortly before 5 p.m., was controlled within 90 minutes. No significant damage was done to nearby retail shops, and no injuries were reported.

The warehouse and its contents appeared to be a total loss.

"Man, it's millions and millions of dollars, I'm telling you," said Dan Janiga, superintendent of Woodcrafters of Tacoma, across the street from the warehouse. Janiga said his company built some of the hundreds of unique patterns stored in the warehouse. The patterns are used to cast industrial pumps, generators and other parts for companies such as General Dynamics, General Electric and Westinghouse.

Bill aimed at DUI drivers

CARSON CITY (AP) — "Falling-down drunks" would face more severe DUI penalties under a bill proposed by state Sen. Bob Coffin, D-Las Vegas.

Coffin said the most serious accidents are caused by drivers who measure 0.15 or above on blood-alcohol tests. A person in Nevada is considered to be driving drunk with a blood-alcohol level of 0.10.

Several bills have been submitted for the 1993 Legislature's consideration to lower the legal limit to 0.08. But Coffin wants to set up a new class of penalties for what he terms "the falling-down drunk who is still able to get behind the wheel."

requested for drafting in the past week, already has the backing of Sen. Lon Nevin, D-Sparks, who chairs the Senate Transportation Committee.

A study by the Legislative Counsel Bureau shows that statewide DUI arrests from January through March totaled 3,458. The average blood-alcohol level was 0.172.

A first offense carries a mandatory two-day jail term or 48 hours of public service, a fine of up to $1,000 and substance abuse school.

A second offense results in a mandatory 10-day jail term and a $2,000 fine. A third offense carries a mandatory prison sentence.

Economic issues not handled well by Bush, Clinton

Knight-Ridder News Service

WASHINGTON — Among those who worry about the U.S. economy shimmer a cynical but half-serious hope.

Maybe George Bush and Bill Clinton are just kidding. Maybe all the empty slogans, side issues and fantasy programs are just for show and, once in office, the winner will put all that away and actually do something about the economy — specifically the federal budget deficit.

Saying one thing and doing another isn't exactly what the founding fathers had in mind, nor is it very likely to happen. But it strikes some people as the only way someone truly committed to solving the country's most basic economic problems ever will get into office.

As former federal budget director Charles Schultz said, "A majority of voters, while deploring the deficits, seem disposed to punish candidates who support any of the painful measures actually needed to end them."

But as the 1992 campaign has intensified, so has an effort by prominent American corporate leaders, world agency officials, even private physicians to shift public and political attention away from short-term, sometimes irrelevant political issues to deeper questions of government prudence and support for tomorrow's economy. A sample from just the last few weeks:

• A big-name business and academic group called the Council for Economic Development, whose members include the top executives of Ford Motor Co., Prudential BankAmerica and others, put out a call for more forward-looking economic policies, starting with a tax increase and a serious assault on the deficit.

• The country's second largest doctors' organization, the American College of Physicians, took the unprecedented step of proposing caps on doctors' fees, a step that would temper the single most important force behind the recent and sudden leap in the federal deficit — health care costs.

While everything from defense cuts to welfare are blamed for the deficit, government health care expenditures have roughly matched the entire increase in the deficit in the last dozen years, and in the next five years, health care costs are expected to go up even faster than the deficit.

• Paul Tsongas, the former senator and defeated Democratic presidential primary candidate, joined with retiring Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., and one-time Commerce Secretary Peter Peterson to form The Concord Coalition, a greatly organized and funded "break through the gridlock of politics-as-usual to tell the truth about our economic predicament."

• The International Monetary Fund, an agency that seeks world financial stability, spoke to the United States as it might lecture some small country with bad economic management, warning it to start fixing its economy by raising taxes and cutting its deficit.

• Following elaborate public presentations of economic policy by both Bush and Clinton, commentators in the media, the universities and elsewhere dissected those proposals and found them generally inadequate, fragmentary, unclear and at times unsupported either by arithmetic or common sense.

• Alice Rivlin, an economic-policy scholar at the venerable Washington research organization, the Brookings Institution, published a book suggesting the federal government reduce its drain on American resources by relinquishing most of its domestic roles to the states, offering more accountability to voters and more fiscal responsibility, because deficits at state levels are illegal.

Nearly every formula for turning things around calls for reducing the debt, which is depriving private Americans of access to tens of billions of dollars in investment capital. The options: less government spending, tax increases to pay down the debt and control over those rising health care costs.

But in this campaign season, Americans and their politicians are mostly talking about the more urgent, close-range problem of the recession.

In a recent Knight-Ridder/CNN poll, more than a third of Americans questioned said the recession was the country's most important problem, but only one in 11 mentioned the deficit. Their priorities might be understandable, but when it comes to judging government performance and candidates' ideas, they aren't necessarily appropriate. As many economists and other policy analysts argue, while there is a great deal more the federal government could be doing about the country's uncertain economic future, there isn't much it can do about the current economic slump, beyond the Federal Reserve's lowering of interest rates.

In the words of Alfred Tuchfarber, who runs the Institute for Policy Research at the University of Cincinnati, "The economic forces that cause ... recessions are really more powerful than government's ability to cope."

Inevitably, all economists don't agree. Robert Solow of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and a group of more than 70 economists earlier this year proposed ignoring the deficit temporarily and launching a $50 billion federal spending program to enliven the economy, much as the Japanese currently are trying to energize theirs.

But unlike the United States, the Japanese government has money to spend.

Rivlin, former head of the Congressional Budget Office, said, "I think there's much too much focus on magic solutions, as if something could be done quickly. The proper role of government is to do things to make the country long-term competitive."

And on that front, analysts tend to say government is limited mostly by the degree of courage and political persuasiveness of its leaders, current and potential.

"The one thing we know already about the 1992 election," said political theorist William Galston of the University of Maryland, "is that neither candidate will make a strong effort on the deficit."

Bush has spoken of huge spending cuts but provided details of only smaller ones. He also has promised a broad-based tax cut — not the most direct route to deficit reduction, the Wall Street Journal figured he could make his program add up only by finding another $40 billion to cut in the next presidential term, a larger cut than ever suggested, or accomplished, before.

Bill Clinton's plans to cut spending in some areas are counteracted by big proposed increases in others, and he has described a middle-class tax cut. To do everything he wanted, the Journal calculated, he would need another $35 billion in the next four years with no apparent source.

And neither candidate has a consistent health care program that experts know likely to stop the rise in costs.

It is hardly surprising, said Sandra Shaber, a Washington consumer behavior specialist at The Futures Group, that "what you see in the public opinion polls is a feeling of concern that nobody is in charge and nobody knows what works any more."

Some confusion is to be expected. The United States is entering a new era of redefined world economic relationships and domestic challenges, a time when:

• Overseas interest rates, consumer attitudes in other countries, even the weather on the other side of the globe can have a more direct impact on the U.S. economy than ever before.

• The end of the Cold War has altered, perhaps forever, the powerful engine of national defense that once drove investment and development in everything from the aerospace industry to the interstate highway system.

• American productivity growth has stagnated and might not improve significantly until more of its workers are trained and educated enough to compete on cost and quality with a global labor force.

BATTLING THE DEBT

Who's at fault

Congress and the president blame each other for soaring deficits. The budget last balanced under President John F. Kennedy for fiscal year 1964. Since 1980, Congress passed eight budgets with lower deficits than the president proposed, five with higher ones.

The deficit is the difference between expenditures and revenues. Graph shows forecast spending and deficits. Actual amounts were higher due to such factors as emergency appropriations and changes in interest rates.

REVENUE vs. SPENDING

Fiscal year is Oct. 1 to Sept. 30. Budgets are set a year ahead, i.e., FY 93 budget is being set now.

Where the money goes

More and more money goes just to pay interest on the national debt. In 1992, gross interest will take about 38 percent of federal income (excluding Social Security).

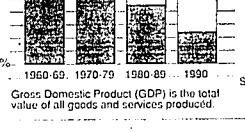

(Interest amounts shown are not Gross payments, some higher.)

SOURCES: Office of Management and Budget; Congressional Budget Office; General Accounting Office; Research by SUE ELLYN SCALETTA

How it hurts

Savings of individuals, businesses and government make up the pool of money available in the economy for those same entities to borrow. As the government takes up more, less is available for private or business loans to stimulate the economy. The pool shrinks more because people save less.

Fudging the picture

Social Security and Medicare are taxed separately from federal income taxes and raise large annual surpluses to cover future growth. The "unified" budget now reflects those revenues — which may not be spent for any other purpose — with the regular federal budget, masking the extent of the deficit.

1993 projected: -$446 billion

How bad is it?

To pay off the $4 trillion national debt would take a stack of $1,000 bills 256 miles high.

Hansen pleads innocent to new fraud charges

BOISE — Former Idaho congressman George Hansen and a business associate have pleaded innocent to a new fraud indictment returned by a federal grand jury.

In an arraignment that didn't start until after 5 p.m. Friday, Hansen and John Scoresby, Idaho Falls, pleaded innocent before U.S. Magistrate Mikel Williams to a 49-count indictment that alleges they engaged in a check-kiting scheme involving millions of dollars.

Trial is scheduled to begin Nov. 9.

Both men face up to 30 years in prison and a $1 million fine if convicted. They remain free on personal bond.

The indictments claim Hansen, Scoresby and a third man, Rupert-area farmer Brad Johnson, exchanged more than 200 checks between March and November of 1990, totaling more than $21 million. Neibaur pleaded guilty to writing bad checks earlier and was sentenced to probation.

John Runft, Hansen's attorney, filed objections to the previous indictment, alleging it was vague and did not specify any actions which would prove Hansen and Scoresby intended to defraud anybody.

Federal attorneys said they took the Hansen-Scoresby case to the federal grand jury, but the panel didn't return a new indictment until late Friday afternoon.

Blood types O negative, positive sought by Red Cross

TWIN FALLS — Type O negative and O positive blood is in short supply, and the local Red Cross chapter is hoping to make up that deficit in a blood drawing here Monday and Tuesday.

"At the moment, we are importing blood to Idaho," said Ruth Young, office manager of the Sawtooth Chapter of the Red Cross.

Type O blood is among the most common varieties.

The blood drawing is scheduled for the First Presbyterian Church, 205 5th Ave. N., Monday from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. and Tuesday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Barbecue at Canyon Springs will benefit leukemia victim

TWIN FALLS — A benefit barbecue for a Twin Falls girl who is suffering from leukemia will be held today at Canyon Springs Golf Course.

Proceeds from the barbecue will go to help the parents of Ciera Lucas pay for medical treatment.

The barbecue, which will feature trout, corn, salad, roll and desert, will begin at 2 p.m. at the golf course and last until about 3:30.

Banks accept contributions to aid hurricane victims

TWIN FALLS — Three Magic Valley banks are accepting contributions for disaster relief for the victims of Hurricane Andrew.

Donations can be left at Magic and Wood River valley branches of Key Bank, West One Bank and First Interstate Bank.

The Sawtooth Chapter of the American Red Cross is trying to raise $15,000 as its share of relief efforts for the residents of southern Florida and Louisiana, who lost their homes to the most expensive natural disaster in American history.

Fossil tours of season scheduled for this month

HAGERMAN — The final two tours of the Hagerman Fossil Beds National Monument will take place this month.

People wishing to make reservations should do so soon. Each tour is limited to 25.

The next tour of the fossil beds is set for today. It includes a visit to the quarry where the state fossil, an extinct Hagerman Horse, was discovered. A park ranger and a paleontologist will discuss the history of the site.

Those with reservations should arrive by 8:45 a.m. at the National Park Service office in Hagerman located across from the high school along scenic U.S. Highway 30.

The tour will last till noon. It involves dusty trails and one fairly steep climb, and participants should dress appropriately.

Tour of the Oregon Trail in the Monument is set for Sept. 26. Those with reservations should meet at the National Park Service office in Hagerman by 1:45 p.m. Visitors will tour the rutted route of the pioneer wagons as they climbed the grades out of the Snake River Canyon.

For reservations, call the park service at 837-4793.

CSI in line for 5% funding increase

The Times-News

MOSCOW — The Collage of Southern Idaho will get about a 5 percent increase in state funding next year if the Legislature approves the recommendation of the Idaho Board of Education.

The higher education budget passed by the board Thursday night for the next school year comes close to the school's request, CSI President Gerald Meyerhoeffer said Friday.

"I think the board was very aware of there may be limited revenue this year," Meyerhoeffer said. "With the 1 Percent Initiative out there, there's a lot of uncertainty."

The 1 Percent Initiative, which will be on the November ballot, would limit property taxes to 1 percent of market value if approved by a majority of voters. Local, state and school officials say they stand to lose millions of dollars in tax revenue if the initiative passes.

CSI gets about 54 percent of its revenue from the state academic and vocational appropriations.

The school's board of trustees approved a budget for $12.5 million last month for the current school year, a 4.2 increase over last year's budget.

State support of the school increased by $154,550, or 3.9 percent, this year.

The board Thursday also ordered the priorities for construction on the campuses of the state's four four-year schools and its two junior colleges.

The new CSI library, long sought by the school, was placed fifth on a list of building priorities the board will turn over to the Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council, Meyerhoeffer said.

"We're behind projects at the U of I, BSU and ISU, but at least we're on the list," he said.

Meyerhoeffer said he could not say when the building might be authorized.

The board approved a 11.6 percent increase for higher education Thursday, or about $228.67 in state money.

Full slate highlights park dedication

By Phil Sahn

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Canoe races, boat rides to Pillar Falls, hot dogs and, of course, speeches will mark the dedication of Centennial Waterfront Park this morning.

The Twin Falls Rotary Club raised money to buy almost seven acres at the water's edge in the Snake River Canyon. A citizens' steering group helped draft the rules for the park, which opened in late June.

Now it's time to dedicate the park.

The festivities will start at 9 a.m. with 45-minute boat rides to Pillar Falls, said

Blaine Billman, who helped organize the trips. Billman said 12-person boats will ferry people to the falls. Life-jackets will be provided.

The boat rides will last until 3 or 3:30 that afternoon. The rides are free, but those who want to offer a donation for the park are encouraged to do so, Billman said.

At 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. local canoeists will demonstrate the craft and give lessons at the park dock. At 2 p.m., they will hold a race.

State Sen. Jaycee McRoberts will officially dedicate the park at 11 p.m.

After that, speakers from the Bureau of Land Management, Idaho Department of Fish and Game, Rotary Club, Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce, Twin Falls County Parks and Recreation Department and the Idaho Centennial Commission are slated to say a few words, said Donna Bach of the Rotary Club.

Twin Falls minister Ray Doan will offer the invocation and blessing.

The Centennial Waterfront Park lies in the Snake River Canyon in Twin Falls by the Perrine Bridge.

To get there, take the road that leads to the Canyon Springs Golf Course. At the second curve, a dirt turnout marks the gate of the park.

A dirt road leads to the parking lot.

Evidence in Stradley trial to be covered in hearing

By Craig Lincoln

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A motion to keep some evidence out of Durrell "Bud" Stradley's trial is scheduled for hearing early next month.

Stradley is charged with first-degree murder in the death of a 2-year-old girl in January. Public Defender Michael Wood, who is defending Stradley, wants some evidence kept out of Stradley's trial.

He didn't specify at a hearing Friday what evidence he will argue should be legally barred from trial.

If convicted, Stradley faces a minimum of 10 years in prison without parole and may face the death penalty.

Stradley

hearings, Stradley said he tossed the girl more than 10 feet toward a waterbed, but she landed on the corner of the bed, apparently causing the fatal injuries.

But prosecutors say that even if that scenario is true, a 1991 amendment to Idaho law allows them to seek a murder conviction.

Also on Friday, 5th District Judge James May denied several of Wood's pre-trial motions. Wood wanted the charges dismissed, wanted prosecutors to be more specific about what Stradley did to violate the law, and for notice from prosecutors if they intend to seek the death penalty.

Wood argued the law Stradley is charged with violating is too vague to be understood by the average citizen.

"A person of ordinary intelligence could not know that a playful toss onto a bed could lead to a first-degree murder charge," Wood said.

Stradley's trial is scheduled for later this year. He was living with Jodie Hostetter, Amanda's mother, in a small Twin Falls house when the incident occurred.

Hostetter is appealing a prison sentence she received after agreeing to a bargain that 5th District Judge William Hart rejected. Hostetter pleaded guilty to one felony charge in return for a sentence of two years' probation.

Hart said that wasn't tough enough and gave her a three- to nine-year prison sentence.

Raise for politicians doesn't seem likely

The Associated Press

BOISE — It isn't likely that the 105 people who begin service in the Idaho Legislature next year will get a pay increase.

Members of the Citizen Commission on Legislative Compensation say they're not in favor of increasing current compensation.

"There's a strong sentiment to keep a thumb on things this year," said new commission member Roy Raymond, Twin Falls.

The committee decides how much lawmakers get in new terms that start in December. In a roundabout process designed to shield legislators from having to raise their own pay, the recommendations become law when the new terms begin. If the Legislature does not reject the proposals within 20 days of the start of the session, they stand.

Three of the last five recommendations from the citizen commission have been turned down by the Legislature. But the 1991 session accepted the raises, stirring a big political fuss.

Chairman C. Tim Hopkins, Idaho Falls attorney, said in an understatement the commission received "highly visible comment" after it approved 82 percent increases in compensation last time around.

Pointing to committee member Jim Kerns, state AFL-CIO chief, Hopkins said, "We are the only survivors on this commission after the savanna that occurred after the last recommendations."

The House voted to reject the 82 percent increase. But the Senate State Affairs Committee killed the House resolution, in effect ratifying the raises.

Survey: Beer is No. 1 drug used by Kimberly students

By Julie Fanselow

Times-News correspondent

KIMBERLY — Alcohol is the major drug of choice among Kimberly students, but educators fear inhalants and hallucinogens are gaining ground.

At its meeting Thursday, the Kimberly School Board heard the results of a survey conducted last spring among district students in grades 6, 8, 10 and 12.

Leslie Kaiser, middle school counselor, said 210 Kimberly students completed the American Drug and Alcohol Survey last school year. The same survey has been filled out by 650,000 students across the United States over the past five years, and it has a 2 percent margin of error.

Among its findings:

- Seventy-eight percent of the 1992 senior class had tried alcohol. Although that is lower than an 88 percent figure nationwide, Kaiser said the Kimberly percentage was "pretty high. We've got a problem."
- "In our area, beer is almost considered soda pop," said Superintendent John Garner. "That's a real concern because we know kids can get just as drunk on beer and do damage to themselves and others."

- Seventy percent of the seniors and 9 percent of sophomores surveyed reported trying a hallucinogenic substance. Nationally, 10 percent of seniors had tried such a drug.
- Last year, we heard lots of kids talking about mushrooms and LSD," Kaiser said.
- The survey showed that 5 percent of seniors had used an inhalant as a drug, compared to 18 percent nationally. But Kaiser said recent events in the Magic Valley show inhalants' popularity may be on the rise.
- Sixty-four percent of sixth-graders and 70 percent of eighth-graders said they perceived alcohol is readily available in Kimberly. Among sophomores and seniors, more than 60 percent of each class said they thought marijuana was readily available.
- Kaiser said the results reflected what has long been suspected in Kimberly and other small towns in Idaho: No community is immune from substance abuse.
- "I think the whole Magic Valley is about the same," she added.

The survey will be used to determine what teachers, counselors and community members

New attendance policy in Filer

By Beritila L. Redfern
Times-News correspondent

FILER — School Board members took another step closer to approving an attendance policy for the district after studying earlier versions.

After making several changes, trustees approved the final reading of the policy. This was the third time the policy has been presented for approval. It could take effect in October.

It addresses excused absences, tardiness, truancy, scholastic probation, and the disciplinary action taken in the event of truancy or probation. It also explains the appeal process that is available for parents.

The policy specifies that parents will be notified by phone or certified letter immediately following verification of the truancy. Parents will also receive written lessons in seven minutes placed on probation immediately.

Truancy, poor grades and excessive absences can get a student on scholastic probation. During probation, the student will undergo testing to ascertain their fitness to remain in school.

In other business:

- Board members approved the financial audit for the 1991/92 school year. The audit was presented by Paul Nielsen of McMillen and McPhee.
- Full activity fee set at $10 for high school activities will be increased this year. An individual activity ticket will now cost $50.

Castleford chosen for program

By Diane Schorzman
Times-News correspondent

CASTLEFORD — The Castleford School District is one of only five schools that have been picked nationwide to participate in a pilot program called "Earth Time."

The school district was recommended by the State Department of Education, said Principal Kelly Murphey, adding, "quite a pat on the back" for Castleford.

The program involves students in science research, requiring them to do hands-on projects, such as conducting an energy audit of the school. The curriculum includes about ten lessons in seven project areas, said Murphey, including chemicals, nutrition, and other programs.

Students and teachers will participate and then analyze the program and report back to the program's headquarters. The program also is being introduced this week in Los Angeles.

reported that the school has received several donations, including $800 from the Nestle Chocolate Co. for the Reading Is Fundamental program, a $7,000 energy grant, and a used pickup from U.S. West Communications.

The board approved a cooperative agreement with the Buhl School District that will allow up to five Castleford students to participate in the Buhl wrestling program at no cost. If the total number of Castleford students involved exceeds five, then the agreement will be renegotiated.

Alice S. Anderson Merritt

SHOSHONE — Alice Sophia Anderson Merritt, 91, of Shoshone, died Thursday, Sept. 17, 1992, at the Twin Falls Clinic & Hospital following a sudden illness.

Alice was born Feb. 9, 1901, in Thatcher, Idaho, the fourth child of Andrew Henry Anderson and Hannah Elvira Jones Anderson. The family moved to Jerome in 1924 and to Dietrich in 1926. She married George Marler Merritt on Oct. 13, 1928. Mr. Merritt died in 1932. She was a member of the American Legion Auxiliary in Jerome and Dietrich, moving the last time to settle in Shoshone. They celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in 1978 in Shoshone. As well as being a housewife and mother, Alice also operated a cream station for a few years while George served in the Army. She later helped George with his wrecking yard business. Alice enjoyed gardening and was a member of the Shoshone High School. She was a member of the Golden Eagle Booster Club and the Shoshone Booster Club. She loved watching her grandchildren and great-grandchildren play high school and college sports. She was a member of the American Legion Auxiliary in Idaho and Oregon and enjoyed visiting with her lifelong friends at the Shoshone Golden Years Senior Citizens Center.

She is survived by her children, Dora Perron of Shoshone, Gertrude Peterson of Springfield, Ore., and George LaVern Merritt of Twin Falls; three brothers, Louis Anderson, Bill Anderson and Homer Anderson, all of Shoshone; two sisters, one deceased, Mary of Shoshone and Vera Meservy of Taylor, British Columbia, Canada, her grandchildren, Fred Trenkle, George Merritt and John Merritt, all of Twin Falls; Kathy a galder, and Judy Higley, both of Shoshone; Marcel Carlom of Springfield, Ore.; Dorine Ellis of Arroyo, Ore.; and James Peterson of Beaverton, Ore.; and 25 great-grandchildren. need to emphasize in local drug education efforts, she said. The survey will be repeated every few years to see if usage patterns change.

In other news, the board heard from district auditor Mark Holmstead of Holmstead & Hyatt in Twin Falls. Holmstead commended the district for keeping an orderly set of books and said that, after two years running in the red, the district finished the last school year with $153,000 to carry over into this year.

Members of the Kimberly Education Association said Thursday they don't want to seek money from these reserves in their quest for salary increases.

Instead, negotiators Connie Parkson and Paul Rosenberg said they intend to examine the rest of the district's financial records to see if money is available elsewhere.

"The KEA met with the district Wednesday night, and talks continue to proceed well, Parkson said. "As long as talks are going smoothly, we're going to keep plugging along," Rosenberg added.

Kimberly teachers are negotiating what is apparently their first-ever master contract.

The school district has made a salary offer, but teachers have not yet decided whether they will accept the package or make a counteroffer. The next negotiating session is set for Wednesday.

The board also passed a resolution stating strong opposition to the proposed 1-Percent Initiative, which the board believes would result in an immediate loss of at least $100,000 to the Kimberly schools and curb local control of schools.

Finally, the board heard from members of the Kimberly Youth Association, which hopes to lease land behind the new middle school for a sports complex.

The group wants to construct three ball fields, including one suitable for high school and American Legion baseball. Plans also call for rest rooms, a concession stand and underground sprinkler system.

Association officials say they could start work on the fields with $200,000 and complete the project for about $400,000.

The association has begun a community fund-raising campaign, and the school board decided to hold a workshop to assess the district's role in the plan.

expenses up until the withdrawal date.

Each of the five other county commissions likely will vote on resolutions to agree to the request on Oct. 13, so that's the soonest that Twin Falls can leave the district.

Commissioners from the five other counties — Jerome, Lincoln, Blaine, Minidoka and Cassia — said Friday that they doubted Twin Falls would be able to get the other commissions to let it leave.

"The general feeling on the board is if someone says 'I'm out,' then he's out," Seibold said.

Lincoln County Commissioner Jerry Nance agreed.

"I don't think they'll have any trouble," Nance and Montgomery said that Twin Falls County's withdrawal wouldn't affect the district's plans.

"We're going to move on and we're going to leave a district. The only losers are the residents of Twin Falls County," Nance said.

Montgomery said the district remains viable.

"It hurts Twin Falls a lot more than it hurts us," the commissioners said they would consider letting Twin Falls County back in the district if it means saving money and Twin Falls' search for a landfill site proves futile.

Blanchard said the regional solid waste district has a strong plan and is moving forward with it.

"Meanwhile," Gooding County has asked to join the district. When the commissions of the other counties vote on letting Twin Falls County out, they also will vote on a separate resolution to let Gooding County in.

Gooding had considered trucking its garbage to Elmore County, but when that didn't work out asked to join the district. The more counties that belong, the less the landfilling costs, so it's likely the other counties will welcome Gooding.

Irrigation board OKs last watering

By James Prichard
Mini-Cassia News Service

RUPERT — In a reversal of a 10-day-old decision, the Minidoka Irrigation District's board of directors decided Friday to allow all its users one irrigation utilizing up to 1,500 acre-feet of water before the end of the harvest season next month.

That decision, which went immediately into effect, came during a special board meeting organized by James Cotten, who said the board's Sept. 8 decision allowing only crop farmers to irrigate their fields discriminated against cattle farmers like himself.

Cotten said after the meeting he was pleased with the board's decision, which he deemed "fair."

The 70-acre farm, located just southwest of Rupert about a half-mile from the Snake River, needs district water in order for his pastures to provide feed for 40 head of cattle and 40 calves, he said.

The board should never have given preferential treatment to the area's sugar beet, potato and onion farmers in the first place, Cotten said.

"We all pay the same rate for the water," he said, which is $23.50 per acre this season. The MID is a cooperative owned by each of the 1,500 users, who elect the five board members.

In addition to the one-irrigation limit imposed upon farmers, low-pressure sprinklers on the system are required to water in maximum 12-hour sets, according to Kent Fletcher, a Burley attorney who represents the MID in legal matters.

Fletcher said an analysis of the district's current water situation revealed there is little natural water flow right now, but still enough water to allow one more irrigation per user. That should allow farmers to get their crops in without suffering crop loss due to dry conditions.

About 23,000 acre-feet of water remains stored within the system, he added. At current usage levels and with the new restrictions in place, it is estimated the district will run out of water on Oct. 2.

Water is supplied from April through the end of October under normal circumstances, Fletcher said.

There are 77,000 irrigable acres within the district, he added, and water is regularly delivered to about 90 percent of that acreage.

Fifty-two people attended Friday's meeting at the MID office.

BLM opens new office in Burley

Mini-Cassia News Service

BURLEY — Employees of the Burley District BLM office won't be cramped any longer. They have a large, new office.

"We were getting really cramped and crowded," said Carol Edwards of BLM public affairs.

The new offices are located at 200 S. 50 E. in Cassia County, just east of the department's old location. An open house was held Friday to give the public a chance to tour the new facility.

The new offices are about 9,300 square feet, significantly larger than the old offices of about 4,400 square feet, said Mary Bagley, associate district manager.

Bagley said the Bureau of Land

Management is separating into resource areas and divisions, with the divisions being administration, resources and operations.

Resource areas include the Snake River Resource area, along with a detached resource area in Malad.

There have been lots of improvement projects underway on the 1.4 million acres of ground the district administers, including fencing and water projects, Bagley said.

The district has about 50 employees. In addition, about 45 people are hired during the summer to fight fires.

"That's a big program in the summer," said Edwards.

Area residents face drug charges

Mini-Cassia News Service

RUPERT — Four area residents are facing drug-related charges following their arrests by local law enforcement agencies.

According to records on file at the 5th District Court, those arrested include:

• Richard Allen Free, 36, 1518 K St., Rupert; delivery of a controlled substance (marijuana).

• Free's wife, Kathie L., 35; delivery of a controlled substance (marijuana).

• Gary Roger White, 48, Highway 25 and 940 West; possession of a controlled substance (marijuana) with the intent to deliver.

• Julianna Goin, 22, 125 West 50 South; two counts of delivery of a controlled substance (marijuana).

Court records allege the Frees sold quantities of marijuana to a police informant from their home on three occasions: on May 12 and 14, and on June 30, the date the couple was arrested by Rupert police.

In White's case, Heyburn police allege that 21 marijuana plants, two poppy plants, two bags of marijuana and various related items were confiscated from his residence on Aug. 3, court records show.

Information provided by the court did not detail the circumstances of Goin's arrest by Rupert police.

All four defendants are scheduled to be arraigned on the felony counts at 1:30 p.m. Sept. 28, in the courtroom of Judge J. William Hat.

Revival comes through Jesus, prayer, penance

Betty Graham wrote in 1971, "The situation of the organized and institutional church today is desperate. We are losing the battle for the souls of men through materialism and secularism, and unless the trend is radically reversed, the institutional church may well go into an obsolescence."

At the end, here spoken of more than 20 years ago, "The Great Awakening and growing today" leaving the church deficient, weak and visionless. Many world-wide, Spiritually, churches are dying.

"How can this be happening? God wants us in a situation related to His will. We have lost any sense of God through philosophy — after the rejection of elements of the world, and not of the Church." Ephesians 4:17, 23 tells us to "walk as if other gentiles walk, in the vanity of your mind, but to be renewed in the spirit of your mind, so that your minds need reviving in order to know God's will."

"What is revival? Webster's dictionary defines

Michael Heller
Clergy's corner

it as "a bringing or coming back into use, being, etc.," "restoration to vigor or activity." Ephesians 5:14, 15 says it's time to wake up.

In the Bible, the word "quick" or "quicken" means to live or make alive. God wants to "quicken" the church from its dead state.

How then can we have revival? What would be the steps to take? First of all, we learn in 2 Chronicles 7:14 that we must humble ourselves. Notice that it is a command. It's something we are told to do. If God has to do it, you won't like it. Isaiah 57:15 says he wants a contrite and humble spirit in us. He wants our hearts broken or bruised over sin.

Secondly, there must be prayer. We must go to our knees in prayer more than once a week. Daniel of the Bible prayed three times daily. He needed God and he knew it. Do you?

Then thirdly, we must repent. What does God have against us? It's sin. Our hearts are in the wrong place. James 4 makes this clear.

If we want revival, we must turn back to Jesus, our first love. Revelations 2:4; We must repent and let him into our life. Revelations 3:20, I will ask, are you willing?

Only you can answer that question. If your answer is yes, then don't delay. Call upon the Lord right now!

Missionary

Two young men from Twin Falls have been called to serve two-year missions for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

- Elder Brian Thomas Hansen, son of Craig and Carol Hansen of Twin Falls, will serve in the Mexico Puebla Mission. He will speak in sacrament meeting at 9 a.m. Sunday at the Twin Falls 11th Ward chapel, 847 Eastlund-Drive N., and will enter the Mission Training Center in Provo, Utah, Wednesday. An open house is planned for 6 to 8 p.m. Sunday at the Hansen residence, 2580 Pineridge Circle, Hansen graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1992.
- Elder Brian Rasmussen, son of Lynn and Mary Ellen Rasmussen of Twin Falls, will serve in the North Carolina Charlotte Mission. He will speak in sacrament meeting at 2:50 p.m. Sunday at the Twin Falls 1st Ward chapel on Elizabeth Boulevard. Hansen graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1991 and attended Dixie College in St. George, Utah, for one year.

Angels on their shoulders

Heavenly messages offer comfort amid today's trying times

The Associated Press

Heaven can't wait. Times have gotten so bad that guardian angels are coming up in individual lives with increasing frequency. A people are more receptive to the heavenly forces than ever before, say leaders of angel-related organizations and businesses.

In the past year, guardian angels have moved from bins in the back of Catholic bookstores to the check-out counter at card shops, florists and drugstores. There are five mail-order companies specializing in angel-related goods, and the Golden, Colo.-based Angel Collectors Club of America has seen its membership in 1992 swell by 200 to nearly 1,000.

Want to contact your own angel? Check out the upcoming Ballantine book, "Ask Your Angels" or another new self-help book, "Guardians of Hope: The Angels Guide to Personal Growth."

The world is in a lot more trouble than it's ever been. People are recognizing their own sense of powerlessness, said Helen Freeman of Mountaintop, N.C., editor of the AngelWatch newsletter. "We're not the only race of intelligent beings around. There is another race — and we call them angels."

The widespread belief in angels, Gallup Polls have found that half of the nation, including nearly all patterns of teen-agers, believe in the heavenly beings.

The Bible is filled with hundreds of references to angels, in roles ranging from guardians of individuals and churches to messengers of God's word as in the famous passage in the Gospel of Luke when an angel announces to Mary that she will be the mother of Jesus.

A large pair of wings are the first item that makes an impression on visitors entering Sally Allen's Angels For All Seasons store in Denver. Customers can eat angel food cake sitting in wing-backed wicker chairs, or look up to see cupids sitting in the skylights above.

The store opened last September, and did a "phenomenal" $150,000 in business the first four months. She is now planning to open up other shops of angel collectibles in an airport and a mall.

But what people coming into her store are mostly looking for is hope, Allen said.

"We have a lot of people who have lost children, who they themselves are dying," she said. "Basically, it's a gathering of people who are trying to get back to God."

For the true believers, it is no coincidence that angels are becoming more prevalent in an age when humanity seems to need divine help to solve such ills as homelessness, hunger and the destruction of the environment.

On information is that this is coming from the angelic realm as well as from the human realm," said Anna Daniel, one of the authors of "Ask Your Angels."

"I would say that we are at a crossroads in human civilization," she said. "If we don't move up in consciousness, to put it mildly, we are going to hell in a handbasket."

Sally Allen poses in her Angels for All Seasons store in Denver earlier this month.

Her book, written with co-authors Timothy Wylie and Andrew Ranner, includes claims of angels directly intervening in people's lives, including helping a man survive a direct fall on an ammunition dump in Vietnam and a woman's escape from death when the ion hurtling toward her windshield suddenly disappeared.

Others involved in the angel movement have their own stories to tell. Freeman said she first saw her guardian angel at age 5 after her grandmother died. A figure "bathed in this incredible light" spoke to her from the foot of her bed telling her not to be afraid. "Your grandmother is not in a cold and dark grave. She is happy in heaven with God and her loved ones."

"I know that my experience was real because since that day, I have never been afraid of death," she says. "Even churches that teach in the existence of angels great reports of miraculous intervention with the mix of openness and skepticism they bring to other supernatural claims, such as appearances of Mary or cures attributed to saints."

"We would say, yes, there are angels, and you may have had an angel intervene for you, but we don't know that," said Deacon Chris Baumann, a spokesman for the U.S. Catholic Conference.

But many who have cast their lot with the angels say it has become easier to believe in the heavenly beings as the limitations of high technology in solving societal ills have become evident.

"Our age is a scientific age," said Marilyn Webster of Marilyn's Angels, a mail order company in Riverside, Calif.

"We came to realize this didn't get us where we wanted to go so there is more of an interest in spiritual things."

Gospel services begin this month

TWIN FALLS — A series of hour-long, non-denominational gospel services is set to begin this month in two Magic Valley areas. Dottie Nichols of Oregon and Carolyn Jacobson of Montana will minister from the Bible at 4 p.m. Sundays, this Sunday through Nov. 1 at the Anderson Camp recreation hall, located just off Interstate 84 at Exit 182.

The series is also set for 7:30 p.m. Thursdays, this Thursday through Oct. 29, at the Wendell Senior Citizens Center, 105 W. Ave. A. The service set for first week in October will be held on Friday, Oct. 2, instead of Thursday.

Nichols and Jacobson are part of a worldwide fellowship. They travel to various areas in the Northwest to minister from the Bible. The two women have been ministering in the Magic Valley area for approximately a year.

For more information, call 733-8508.

Methodist men plan October conclave

TIGARD, Ore. — A United Methodist Men's Conclave, sponsored by the Oregon-Idaho and Vancouver District of the Pacific Northwest conferences of the United Methodist Church, is set for Oct. 9, 10, and 11 at the Tigard United Methodist Church. Men from Idaho, Oregon, and southern Washington are invited to attend.

The theme of the conclave is "Celebrate the Diversities of the United Methodist Church." Bishop William W. Dew Jr. will deliver the featured address Saturday evening.

Robert Edger, president of the Clairmont School of Theology in California, will serve as moderator, and the Rev. James Wenger-Monroe, Metropolitan District superintendent, will deliver scriptural statements during the four plenary (decide) sessions planned for the conclave. The plenary sessions will focus on the four relationships in the following sequence: man, A Man and His Community; A Man and His Community; A Man and Himself; and A Man and His Family.

The first session on Friday evening will feature David Corner, of the Adjunct Staff of UMMI and UMMI president for the Pacific Northwest Conference. The featured speaker at the second session Saturday morning will be the Rev. Rodney Page, director of the Ecumenical Council for Oregon.

Cindy Klette-Francis of Seattle will speak about man's relationship with himself from a woman's point of view at the third session Saturday afternoon, and the fourth session Saturday evening will feature Bob Miller, morning disc jockey from KEX Radio and Fred and Phyllis Cowan who work with a marriage encounter group.

The event will also feature workshops on Drug Rehabilitation and Substance Abuse, UMMI leadership training, a special choir clinic and Conversations in Diversity. A program by the young thespian artists of the Aloha United Methodist Church will be presented during the Saturday noon meal, which will be prepared by the Rockwood UMMI. The Saturday evening sack fry will be prepared and served by the Pleasant Home UMMI.

Special portions of the conclave are under the direction of Dave Golden, director of music at Christ's Church in Portland. Special music will be provided by the choirs of Hughes Memorial Church and the Korean United Methodist Church, both in Portland.

Other special events of the weekend include the Gene Albertson Memorial Golf Tournament, hosted by the Rose City UMMI, and the Classic Bowling Tournament, sponsored by the Montavilla UMMI. Part of the tournament fees will be donated to a scholarship fund for a divinity student from the Northwest.

For more information, contact Norm Klette, 1315 NE 157th Ave., Portland, OR 97230; or call 503-255-0618.

Lutheran Church Missouri Synod: Study in confusion

There must be something about rising to leadership in the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod that makes a person enjoy a good fight.

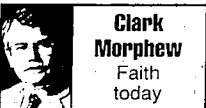

Since 1975, the 2.3 million-member denomination has been scrapping about doctrinal purity, the alleged sin of "fingering" with other Lutherans and "sharing on the far" even mentioning it as the ordination of women.

This last issue has the white male leadership of the Missouri Synod flogging with fear. Why? Who knows. But one can speculate that they are worried that strong women will take over the leadership of the denomination.

And why won't they pray with other Lutherans? Because some Lutherans are liberal, and praying with them might taint the so-called doctrinal purity of the denomination.

Who are the doctrinally pure? It's no secret — the ultra-conservatives are doctrinally pure, and the moderates (supposedly there are no liberals in the Missouri Synod) are left-leaning heretics who misinterpret Scripture on purpose.

With all of this squabbling, it is a wonder that a moderate cleric has been president of the denomination for the past dozen years. The Rev. Ralph Bohlmann was regarded as an able leader, but he was considered soft on praying with other Christians and even softer on the ordination of women.

So synod conservatives decided to oust him from the church's highest post during the synod's national convention this summer. They tried the same thing three years ago, but because of a lack of among conservatives, the move failed.

But this summer they got him. By a narrow margin, the 1,200 delegates convention elected the Rev. Dr. Alvin Barry, an ultra-conservative who was trained for the ministry in the Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod. The Wisconsin Synod considers itself more conservative than the Missouri Synod.

Bohlmann has since left office, but before heading for a much needed vacation, he fired off one last salvo to the clergy of the denomination.

In strong words, Bohlmann tells his brother clergy that the conservatives hide behind a screen of doctrinal purity but really are only interested in political power.

"Groups associated with this network often portray themselves as interested in doctrinal concerns," Bohlmann said, "as being Lutheran united for biblical truth, or, in more recent years, as confessional Lutherans."

"They frequently call themselves conservatives," Bohlmann noted, "even when the issues are not particularly theological. For many of the leaders of this movement, particularly in recent years, the primary issue has not been doctrinal, but control of the synod."

Bohlmann said the political activity leading up to the convention "was nothing short of astonishing — and most of it was sinful." Bohlmann expressed amazement that media reports, including Missouri Synod publications, ignored the behind-the-scenes maneuvering.

Then he takes on Barry, the new president, accusing him of selling out to the ultra-conservatives and actively seeking the office, which is a no-no in church politics.

"I do not for one moment doubt Dr. Barry's sincerity in saying that he is only in God's pocket and no one else's," Bohlmann writes. "But the fact remains that he is deeply indebted to this political network and could not avoid its influence on his decisions even if he wanted to."

Bohlmann also says he cannot condone the intense politicking that went on with the consent of Dr. Barry. In church politics, Bohlmann said, the office should seek the man, rather than the man seeking the office.

"This method of getting elected to high office in religious organizations is alleged to be divine politics, which allows the Holy Spirit to pick the winners."

Bohlmann closes the letter by saying he is not pessimistic about the work of the Missouri Synod during Barry's three-year term. And he wishes the new president the blessings of God.

But one has to wonder: How many people in the Missouri Synod are pessimistic about the future of this 2.3 million-member denomination?

If the fights continue all through Barry's term, that will make exactly 20 years of denominational hostility.

But if you hear the faint, raspy sounds of death, it's probably not the Missouri Synod that is passing on. More than likely, it is the mission.

Clark Morphew is an ordained clergyman and a writer for the St. Paul (Minn.) Pioneer Press.

Judge upholds newspaper's right to refuse controversial ad

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The right of the Deseret News to refuse to run an ad the newspaper said depicted the crucifix as Jesus has been upheld by a 3rd District judge.

Judge Homer F. Wilkinson ruled Tuesday that the state's civil rights act cannot be applied to a newspaper.

The decision "simply affirms what we've always understood," said Deseret News publisher Wm. James Mortimer. "A publisher has the right to establish the content of his publication."

In the fall of 1990, Israel K. Malpao, a Polynesian leader of the World Peace Movement of America, sought to place the ad that the Deseret News said pictured Malpao as Jesus. The ad urged people to call and join the movement.

The Salt Lake Tribune ran the ad with the photo, but the Deseret News published only the text.

Mortimer said he rejected the full advertisement because Malpao pictured himself as Jesus Christ, not because of the religious message or content of the ad, which ran twice in the Deseret News.

Your ad was not in good taste and could be offensive to our readers," stated a letter from the Newspaper Agency Corp. to Malpao. The NAC handles advertising, printing and distribution of The Tribune and the Deseret News. The cost of the ad was returned to Malpao.

Mini-Cassia church news

Spiritual renewal week planned

RUPERT — Rupert United Methodist Church will conduct a spiritual renewal week from Sept. 27 to Oct. 1, featuring the Rev. Thomas L. Butts Jr.

Butts

Butts has lectured at colleges and universities throughout the country, including the school of theology at Harvard and Yale. He is a frequent speaker at United Methodist churches nationwide and has been the summer guest minister at Christ United Methodist Church in New York City.

Butts will address the congregation during worship services at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Sept. 27, and during Bible study classes and daily worship services Sept. 28 through Oct. 1. Bible study classes run from 10 to 11 a.m. and daily worship begins at 7:30 p.m.

Spiritual renewal week is conducted regularly by the church as a way to get members more involved in church activities, according to a church spokesperson.

Presbyterian church school begins

BURLEY — Church school at the First Presbyterian Church, 2100 Burton Ave., is now under way. Initial registration took place Sunday.

Church school for children and adult worship services are held at 11 a.m. each Sunday, while adult church school is at 9:30 a.m. Pam Hoffbauer and Terrie Shockey teach kindergarten through second grade, and Sandra Clayville and Leanne Leback teach third through fifth grade. Teen teachers are Janet Howarth and Darla Carlson. Nursery is also provided during worship services.

Construction combines Acequia LDS

ACEQUIA — All three Acequia wards of the LDS church will attend services in Rupert next spring while the Acequia chapel undergoes $750,000 worth of remodeling and expansion.

According to Mark Kuntler, public affairs director of the Rupert LDS Stake, the project calls for refurbishing the existing portion of the building with paint and new carpet and modifying the heating plant. The chapel will be made more efficient, and a wider, less lengthy chapel will be constructed. The old chapel will be converted into a primary chapel and classrooms.

The project should be completed within seven months by Harris Construction of Pocatello, Herb Poteet, high counselor of the Rupert LDS Stake, will oversee the project.

Trinity Lutheran completes renovation

RUPERT — The public is invited to view the major renovation of the Trinity Lutheran Church, 909 Eighth St., at an open house set for Sept. 27 from 2-5 p.m.

The church has completed a major renovation to expand its entryway, construct new offices and bathrooms and add a multipurpose room.

The project, which began in May, has involved the laborers for Christ, a non-profit organization formed to help Lutheran congregations add to existing structures or build new churches and schools. In addition, the project has involved hundreds of hours of volunteer labor.

A formal dedication of the new facility will take place at 3 p.m. Nov. 8.

Presbyterians aid in relief efforts

BURLEY — Emergency relief efforts are under way in the hurricane-ravaged areas of southern Florida, Louisiana and the Bahamas, said Marilyn McKim, outreach chairperson of the First Presbyterian Church in Burley.

Through its outreach ministry, Presbyterian World Service, and in cooperation with ecumenical partners worldwide, the Presbyterian Church USA is also responding to the tragedy in Somalia by supporting flights of supplies.

McKim said local Presbyterians are responding to hurricane-ravaged areas by assisting in efforts to send southeastern Idaho produce. The Presbytery of Kendall Church in the World Land in southeastern Idaho has helped $500 to be donated to the Red Cross to help defray costs of transporting potatoes to hurricane-affected areas.

Organization of ministries of presbyteries in the affected areas are being helped with funds from the One Great Hour of Sharing offering, taken annually in churches nationwide.

In Somalia, the One Great Hour of Sharing offering is being used to fund supplies and security for children's feeding centers.

Individuals and groups interested in cooperating with the Presbyterian church and worldwide ecumenical efforts to relieve the suffering in Somalia may contact local Presbyterian churches for more information.

Henry, McKim attend workshop

BURLEY — Burley Presbyterian Pastor David Henry and Marilyn McKim, outreach chairperson, learned about caring for inactive church members when they attended a day-long workshop Sept. 12 at the Grace Lutheran Church in Pocatello.

Scott Perry of Vermont and a Stephen Ministries presenter conducted the workshop, "How to Set Up an Inactive Member Ministry System in Your Congregation." For the past 10 years, Perry has had a close association with Kenneth Haugk, the author of "Caring for Inactive Members: How to Make God's House a Home."

Training skills, organizational administration and orientation to a specific curriculum were the three main goals of the workshop. Some of the topics covered included causes of church inactivity, reasons for an inactive member ministry, processes in developing an inactive member ministry and involving the entire congregation in the ministry.

Study: Older folks feel neglected

The Associated Press

Many older Americans find no sanctuary in their houses of worship because of benign neglect that abandons them at heaven's gate, a study has found.

Nearly half the people age 65 and older interviewed in a Holy Cross study of 200 Christian worshippers said they would like to attend church more often, but find they're "stuck at home because of a lack of transportation, among other obstacles."

The study disputes the disengagement theory that says aging naturally leads people to withdraw voluntarily from religious and other social activities. It also questions whether religious institutions are doing enough to search for youth, may be sacrificing an important part of their congregations while also leaving those older members to face death alone.

"In a word, the life of the older individual, as well as religious institutions, are being neglected," says C. A. Ainlay, Royce Singleton Jr. and Victoria Swiger reported in the Journal for the Scientific Study of Religion.

The three researchers, all sociologists at Holy Cross College in Worcester, Mass., found little support for the notion that individuals purposely abandon social activities, including church life, with age.

For the older person, the social and spiritual life of a congregation actually helps give purpose and direction in their later years, including coping with the prospect of death, the sociologists wrote.

"Greater involvement reduces feelings of meaninglessness, makes health problems understandable, and helps stave off death itself," the researchers wrote.

In one-hour interviews with a random sample of 200 Christians age 65 and older in Worcester, 46 percent of survey respondents said they would like to attend religious services more often.

Nearly a third of the respondents listed a lack of transportation as the main reason they do not attend church more often. Thirty-seven percent of respondents cited health problems and poor weather.

"What we're not doing is we're not getting these people into the churches," Ainlay said in an interview. "It becomes particularly tragic because what we, of course, find is that people want to be there."

Monsignor Charles Fahey, a professor of aging studies and senior associate of the Third Age Center at Fordham University in New York, said the survey's findings ring true for him.

"From a pastoral point of view, this would be the lived experience," he said. "Those churches and synagogues that do reach out, older people do participate."

Many sociologists of religion say the relatively scant attention paid to the elderly results from benign neglect, not deliberate policy.

My sense of it is, it is an act of omission more than anything," Swiger said.

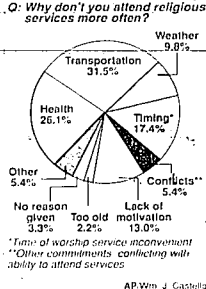

Some churches may unintentionally discourage older people from attending services by focusing their ministries on the homebound through breadwinners, rather than organizing transportation to bring them to church, Ainlay said.

Lacking easy access to church can be disruptive, one gerontologist suggests.

People adjust to aging largely by continuing lifelong patterns, and

Church attendance by older-Americans

The poll reflects the opinion of 200 Catholic and Protestant respondents. The total percentage adds to more than 100% because several respondents provided more than one answer.

AP/Wm J. Castelli

church attendance and participation as part of that, said Robert Atchley, director of the Scripps Gerontology Center at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio.

And despite the graying of the large baby boom population of Americans, most religious organizations see their future in recruiting younger members, and divert their resources accordingly.

Fahey at Fordham also blamed a "certain quiet apathy."

"It's an apathy of neglect," he said. "Rather than lead into the culture, churches are generally caught (up) into the broader culture that tends to ignore older persons, at best."

Yet with older people disproportionately represented among the faithful, religious institutions take the lead in the graying of America. One survey found more than a quarter of parishioners in the average Roman Catholic church are over age 65. In light of this, sociologists say, the vitality of congregations will be threatened if they neglect older members.

"What is particularly ironic now is that as churches look for elders, or church leaders, they're looking for young people," Ainlay said. "The true church elders are excluded."

And in forsaking older members for the lack of effort it requires to get them to and from church, the institutions endanger their own spiritual health, said Atchley, the gerontologist in Ohio.

"There are two ways to look at this, Atchley suggested.

Elder testifies before Senate committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — An elder of the Mormon Church testified today that a 1990 Supreme Court decision threatens the free exercise of religion in the United States and called on Congress to reverse it.

Elder Dallin H. Oaks, a former justice of the Utah Supreme Court, told the Senate Judiciary Committee that the federal court's decision, in a case involving the religious practices of native Americans, gave government far greater authority over the free exercise of religion than ever before.

In a case involving the consumption of peyote, a hallucinogen, in religious ceremonies, the court dropped the legal principle that government could intervene in religious practices only when it had a "compelling interest" for doing so and there was no less restrictive way to accomplish its goal.

The court instead declared that

Vandals make holes in cathedral glass

CARLISLE, England (AP) — Victorian stained glass in Carlisle Cathedral's great east window has been damaged by rock-throwing vandals, a church official said Friday.

The 14th century glass depicts the Last Judgment, and was damaged in an attack last weekend, treasurer Ellis Amos said.

"Stones and other missiles were thrown at the window on Saturday night, probably after the pubs turned out, and it will cost at least $16,000 to repair," Amos said.

The window cost $170,000 to restore in 1982-1983. It is the outstanding treasure of the cathedral, where novelist Sir Walter Scott was married in 1797.

Bruin win ends Lions' era

By Larry Hovey
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "As far as the Twin Falls football program goes, after 33 years there are no more 'nevers' concerning the Borah Lions."

More games - B8

Jon Jund and his Bruins became the first home team to walk out of Bruin Stadium (old Lincoln Field before that) with a decision over the Lions, taking a 34-14 victory Friday night. Until last year Twin Falls hadn't beaten the Lions in a regular season game.

Twin Falls used a defense that held when it had to and an offense most akin to a manufacturing team since it blanked out much of the time but flashing brilliantly at others.

Junior running back Josh Amundson put the kick in the offense, romping for 180 yards in 18 carries and particularly dominating when Twin Falls needed first downs and the clock running in the second half.

Borah went down hard. The Lions went to old SIC football from the mid-second quarter through the third. They got behind their bigger line and smashed off tackle and inside. For a while it worked, particularly the first effort, but Twin Falls' line then started responding and for a quarter and a half it was trench war fare.

But then Amundson and the Bruins hit for a couple of touchdowns to make the last few minutes a matter of running out the clock.

For those first three quarters, however, Borah had all the phases — most plays, most yards — but also fewest points as 14 points in a 90 second-span of the second quarter sent the Bruins ahead for the night.

It was the third quarter when Borah really tested the Bruins. Twin Falls had the ball just five plays for nine yards, throwing in two penalties, an interception and a fumble.

But the defense was well schooled in Lion trickery and twice smuffed fourth-down attempts to maintain the lead.

Penalties shut down Jerome

By Jeff Haskison
Times-News writer

JEROME — Two major penalties in the closing minutes of the game spelled doom for the Jerome Tigers Friday night.

Both penalties set up quick scores by the Mountain Home Tigers, lifting them to a 43-28 non-conference win. "It's a big win for us," said first year Tiger Coach John Srolicek. "When you beat a good team like Jerome, it makes it a big win."

The first penalty, a late hit called on Josh Bay, came midway through the final quarter after Steve Van Gorder dropped an Albert Longhurst pass. After the 15-yard penalty, Cortina Johnson scampered 18 yards to pull the Tigers to within one point of Jerome.

Mountain Home converted a two-point conversion to take a 29-28 lead.

The second costly penalty came on Jerome's next possession. On a first down, the Tigers were called for a hold after Bay had rushed for a five-yard gain. On the subsequent play, Tigers quarterback Aaron Bay overhrew Joel Bingham and was picked off by Van Gorder.

Two plays later Gino Garza rambled 45 yards to paydirt and a 36-28 Mountain Home lead. "We had a let down," said Jerome Coach Eric Anderson. "It was because they had us stymied. We couldn't shut down their offense."

Orioles win coin flip for possible playoff

NEW YORK — Baltimore would be home for a one-game playoff if the Orioles finish in a tie with Toronto for the American League East title and Minnesota would be home against Oakland if there is a tie in the AL West, league president Bobby Brown said Friday.

Coin tosses held Friday also determined that Toronto would be home for a playoff game against Milwaukee.

In the event of a three-way tie in the AL East, Baltimore would play at Milwaukee Monday, Oct. 5 and the winner of that game would be at home against Toronto the following day. All playoff games to break two-way ties would be played Oct. 5.

Lindros takes ice today in game against Nordiques

PHILADELPHIA — Eric Lindros was an off-the-ice headache for Quebec for more than a year.

He gets his first chance to deal the Nordiques on-ice headache Saturday in his NHL exhibition debut for the Philadelphia Flyers.

In training camp, the 19-year-old Lindros has made a head-banging impression with strong bodychecks, even though he says he has held back a little against some veteran teammates.

"Oh, boy," coach Bill Dineen said. "I think Eric's going to be given a lot of room on the ice. He's so big, I don't think there'll be too many guys who'll want to get too close to him."

Wing Claude Boivin, one of the Flyers leveled in practice by the 6-foot-4, 235-pounder, said he's a "strong guy."

Linemate Mark Recchi said Lindros' aggressive style is more comparable to Mark Messier than Mario Lemieux.

"It's a reckless abandon," Recchi said. "I enjoy that part of it." Lindros said about checking. "You want to go all out here but there's that respect thing for your teammates."

Perkins, Arkansas State pursue 1st score

The Associated Press

Did Notre Dame-Michigan leave you fit to be tied? Maybe a dose of Florida State-North Carolina State or Florida-Tennessee will help.

Not yet ready for the annual conference rivalries to dominate?

There's something for just about everyone this weekend as college football moves further into the full-blown championship chase, but still offers a few expected laughs, conference rivalry renewals and other games of note.

One game of note will be at Jonesboro, Ark., where Perkins is fast learning that away from big-time college football, the best way to get noticed is to get beaten badly.

After two games, the opener against Toledo (49-0) and last week against Oklahoma (61-0), Perkins' team has been outscored 110-0. This week, Northern Illinois will help Arkansas State open its home season, and Perkins is hopeful.

"We have a chance to win this game," he said. "We match up better with Northern than we did last week. That's not meant to be degrading of Northern Illinois. It's just that they don't have the size and speed of Oklahoma."

White Perkins' team would just like to score, some top-25 teams face being dismissed from the title picture if they lose.

No. 12 Nebraska, for example, carries a reputation of losing big games into Seattle against the second-ranked Huskies. It's a game both teams need to win.

"Maybe if we can win this one, it will change some minds about what type of team we have," said tailback Derek Brown, who leads the Cornhuskers' ground game that's leading the nation — by 11 yards — with a 44.5 per game average.

The Huskies own a 16-game winning streak, including a 36-21 victory at Lincoln, Neb., last season. But they've struggled this year, allowing 182.5 rushing yards per game in victories over Arizona State and Wisconsin.

"You can't beat Nebraska kicking field goals," Huskies wide receiver Joe Kralik said. "We're going to have to put some points on the board."

Aussie gains Hogan lead

The Times-News

BOISE — Jeff Woodland of Queensland, Australia shot a 5-under-par 66 at Hillcrest Country Club to take a 1-stroke lead after the first round of the Ben Hogan Boise Open golf tournament Friday.

Woodland led a group of four at 67.

Twin Falls Municipal pro Mike Hamblin finished the first round at 1-over 72.

The leading Idaho pro was Ron Praeck of Boise at 70. Jeff Thomsen of Boise had a 74. Doyle Corbett of Sun Valley shot 79 and Gary Schroeder of Idaho shot 81.

Out for the season

Atlanta catcher Greg Olson rolls over after he broke his ankle in a collision with Houston baserunner Ken Caminiti in the fourth inning Friday at Atlanta. Olson lay face down for about 10 minutes before being placed in a neck brace and carried off the field on a stretcher. Caminiti was out at the plate.

Olympian rewards change, yet remain the same

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Al Oerter and Dave Johnson's Olympic experiences are as different as the eras in which they performed and medaled. At the same time, their perspectives are virtually the same.

Oerter, a four-time Olympic gold medalist, competed when athletes had little funding. Johnson, a bronze medalist in the 1992 decathlon, competes in an era with big financial offerings.

Oerter competed when even the star Olympians were amateurs. Johnson competes when few amateurs have a shot at becoming star Olympians.

And Oerter competed in one event when the Games themselves were everything. Johnson in 10 events tied together as one when "the Games are everything ... as long as you win."

Given their different frames of reference, Oerter and Johnson are surprisingly similar, especially when relating to their Olympic ideals.

"I grew up in the Games when they were truly games," Oerter, 56, said at an Olympics fund-raiser Thursday. "There were no heroes. You didn't bring an ego out on the field. You didn't have a sack of chemicals back in the dorm.

"You truly competed because you loved it. Winning was nice, but it wasn't all there was."

Johnson, 29, stepped into the stadium at Barcelona this summer already a celebrity, courtesy of Reebok's "Dan & Dave" ad campaign. And when Dan O'Brien failed to qualify at the U.S. Olympic trials, Johnson was the decathlon favorite.

"Obviously I was there to win a gold medal," Johnson said. "Everyone's goal when they step into a competition like that is to be the best."

Johnson didn't win gold or silver at Barcelona. A stress fracture of the right foot slowed him throughout the competition and he wound up third. To those who say his bronze medal was disappointing, he says they're missing the point of the Games.

"I look back on it and I won a bronze medal on a broken foot," he said. "Even if I'd taken last place, I still would have won

Jays stomp Rangers; Reds move closer

TORONTO (AP) — Dave Winfield hit a three-run homer and Jimmy Key (11-13) pitched seven shutout innings Friday night, leading the Toronto Blue Jays over the Texas Rangers 13-0.

Major leagues

Devon White hit a two-run homer and a two-run double for the Blue Jays, who increased their AL East lead to 4½ games over Baltimore. Winfield hit his 431st career homer and increased his RBI total to 1,700, both tops among active players.

Kevin Brown (19-10) gave up eight runs — four earned — and seven hits in 3 2/3 innings, his shortest outing since Sept. 29, 1991.

Brewers 12, Orioles 4

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Rookie Cal Erbes (9-11) tied a Brewers record by winning his eighth straight start, and Milwaukee moved within a half-game of second-place Baltimore.

Kevin Seitzer drove in four runs for the Brewers in his seventh game behind Toronto with 15 games left. Greg Vaughn hit a three-run homer in the first off-Rick Sutcliffe (16-13) and Seitzer hit a three-run double in the third.

Tigers 10, Red Sox 3

DETROIT (AP) — Lou Whitaker led his career-high with five RBIs and Cecil Fielder hit a two-run homer as Detroit won its 10th straight game in 10 games. Whitaker hit a three-run homer in the second and added a two-run double in the eighth for the fifth five-RBI game of his career.

Royals 3, Yankees 2

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Mike MacFarlane hit two doubles and rookie Emilio Rodriguez (9-5) won the sixth in seven decisions, allowing two runs and four hits in seven innings.

George Brett singled leading off the fourth off Scott Kamieniecki (5-12), leaving Brett 15 hits shy of 3,000 with 16 games to go this season.

Tigers relief, bring back long-time broadcaster

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Tigers have re-signed broadcaster Ernie Harwell, ending the biggest public relations disaster in the club's history.

The beloved Harwell, 74, was the Tigers' broadcaster for 32 years before being fired after the 1991 season. Rick Rizzz and Bob Rathbun were hired to replace him in the radio booth.

About a month ago, Mike Iltch purchased the club from Tom Monaghan and went to work immediately trying to bring Harwell back. "We have worked out an arrangement we felt everybody would be comfortable with, including our fans," Iltch told reporters Friday. "We've had seven meetings over the past few weeks. We've never over this in great detail. He made it clear to me, and I made it clear to him, that this is a good fit."

Harwell's new deal calls for him to join Rizzz and Rathbun, who have four-year contracts with the Tigers. Under the new format, Rizzz will handle innings one, two, eight, nine and all extra innings. Harwell will handle innings three, four and five. Rathbun will handle six and seven.

White Sox 8, Indians 7

CLEVELAND (AP) — Ron Karkovic drove in three runs and stole home on the front end of a double steal, and George Bell and Tim Lincecum homered for the White Sox, who have won four straight.

Pirates 5, Phillies 2

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Barry Bonds joined father Bobby as a multi-time member of baseball's 30-30 club by hitting his 30th homer and the Pittsburgh Pirates' 30th RBI Friday night in a rain-shortened 5½-inning game.

Rookie knuckleballer Tim Wakefield (6-1) survived five walks and a two-run Phillies' error (mistake) to remain unbeaten in home in five decisions.

The Pirates retained their four-game lead in the NL East over Montreal.

Bonds, who has hit 10 homers since Aug. 21, also has 36 stolen bases.

NEW YORK (AP) — Dwight Gooden was guaranteed the first losing record in his nine-year big-league career as Montreal beat New York.

Gooden (8-13), who is scheduled to make just three more starts for the remainder of the season, gave up four runs on nine hits in seven innings. The 27-year-old right-hander had never finished less than five innings before.

Mark Gardner (12-8) got the win by pitching 1 2/3 scoreless innings in relief of Bill Knauer, who was making his first start for the Expos since being obtained from Cincinnati.

Wid Cardenas hit a three-run homer, his first big-league home run, in Montreal's six-run eighth inning.

Astros 13, Braves 3

ATLANTA (AP) — Scott Servais and Craig Biggio each drove in two runs during a five-run third inning as Houston handed Atlanta its worst loss of the season.

The Braves also lost catcher Greg Olson for the rest of the season and the post-season. Olson sustained a fractured right ankle in a jarring home plate collision with Ken Caminiti in the fourth inning.

The Astros pounded Braves starter Charlie Lefford (12-7) for eight hits and six runs in 2 1/3 innings. Houston hit around in the third, scoring five times as Pete Incauglia's run-scoring single, Servais' two-run double and Biggio's a two-run single.

Jeff Bagwell had four of Houston's 18 hits in support of Pete Hamisch (8-10).

Cubs 9, Cardinals 7

CHICAGO (AP) — Andre Dawson, Ryne Sandberg and Derrick May homered to help Chicago beat St. Louis after wasting a five-run lead.

Chicago, which led 6-1, fell behind 7-6 when the Cardinals scored four runs in the seventh, capped by Geromino Pina's two-run single. But Dawson, Sandberg and May hit home runs to tie the game in the bottom of the inning off Bryn Smith (11-1) with his 21st homer. Steve Buechele then singled, Bob McClure relieved and May hit his eighth homer on the first pitch.

Reds 4, Padres 2

CINCINNATI (AP) — Barry Larkin had a pair of RBI triples to help Cincinnati take a higher bid to second place behind San Diego.

The Reds opened a 2½-game lead over the third-place Padres by virtue of another solid start by rookie Tim Lincecum (3-1), who was his last three games. The right-hander allowed two runs and six hits over 6 1/3 innings of his fourth major-league start.

Bob Dibble pitched the ninth for his 21st save. Dibble, who was involved in a clubhouse scuffle with manager Lou Piniella on Thursday night, was hooded when he was introduced to start the game.

Cincinnati went ahead to stay with two runs in the third off Bruce Hurst (14-9) on Larkin's second run-scoring triple and Reggie Sanders' double.

Volatile Dibble tells Piniella he's sorry

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds haven't given up the fight — they've merely moved it.

Manager Lou Piniella wrestled Rob Dibble in the clubhouse Thursday night after the reliever suggested Piniella had misled reporters about the condition of his pitching shoulder.

The two met with controlling partner Marge Schott and general manager Bob Quinn for a half-hour Friday to repair the rift. There will be no suspension for Dibble, who apologized to Piniella for his remarks.

The tussle developed after Dibble told reporters, "Lou's full of (it)," using an expletive. "I might have said that," Dibble said Friday. "It was wrong on my part. I'm apologizing for that and I apologized to Lou."

"Piniella wasn't apologetic when he met with reporters Friday. I sort of lost my cool. It's just that simple. It happened. When my integrity gets questioned, it's not that easy of a situation to deal with."

He said there would be no repercussions for the temperamental reliever, who's been suspended by the National League three times in the past two years for on-field outbursts. This was his first run-in with a member of his own team. "I don't hold any grudges. I never held a grudge," Piniella said. "When you're with a team player for seven months, sometimes things can go awry. I've never had a doghouse since I've managed. When something happens, it's over with. Forget it."

Filipino Little League official blasts Americans

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The Philippines' senior Little League baseball official claimed Friday that the Americans stripped his country's team of the world championship because they failed to stand to lose to Filipino players.

The World Series final. But officials acknowledged later that only six of the 14 players were from Zamboanga.

Thursday, Little League officials stripped the Philippines of this year's World Series title and gave it to Long Beach, Calif., because the Filipino team used ineligible players in winning the competition at Williamsport, Pa.

The others came from teams more than 500 miles from Zamboanga. "Our Philippine League defeated the American players in their own homeland," said a spokesman in their national. "I, who also announced his resignation from Little League, Americans in Williamsport just could not take it at the hands of the Filipinos... why Little League Baseball International acted the way it did is beyond reason."

Tigers

Continued from B6 Jerome made a game of it in the third quarter after trailing 21-12 at intermission.

In the third quarter, Jerome completely shut down Mountain Home allowing them only 17 yards of total offense.

The Tigers scored on their first possession of the second half and added a second score on their third possession.

Mountain Home 0 21 0 33 —43 Jerome 6 6 13 12 —28 J — Hester 9 pass from A. Day (kick blocked) M — Van Gorder 29 punt from Longhorn (Hester kick) L — Lee 22 pass from A. Day (kick blocked) M — Gertz 4 run (Hester kick)

Spencer Lee got the first points on a 22-yard field goal to close the gap to 21-15. The game tying score came on a 10-yard pass from Aaron Bay to Spencer Lott.

Continued from B6 "What was happening in the first half was our defensive ends were not closing down, we were being so outside-conscious."

draw play into a 70-yard romp. The third quarter saw Borah run 23 plays to Twin Falls' five. But twice the Bruin defense stopped fourth downs.

The Bruin offense didn't start clicking until the late first quarter, when Josh Borah partially blocked a Borah punt. A 26-yard pass from Nate Geilman to Greg Starkey carried to the Borah six and two plays into the second period Geilman sneaked across from the one. John McCluskey hit the first of four conversions.

A fumble exchange early in the last quarter saw McCluskey clinching 64-yard march. Amundson got 58 of those on six running plays, scoring from the eight.

Three plays after the kickoff, Geoff Pierce recovered a Borah fumble. The Lions scored on the first play Geilman and Jason Ringenberg hooked up on the second Burah run.

After Borah bounced right back with a 66-yard scoring bomb to Jason Strawn, Twin Falls wound it up when Amundson romped 17 yards with 2:59 to end it.

But it must have been de-heating for Borah seeing all that work and effort offset immediately. Amundson, getting a springing block from Ringenberg 10 yards upfield, tumbled a

The game may prove costly, however, as quarterback Geilman sustained a neck or head injury and running back Jan Jensen hurt a leg. Geilman (enraged off on a stretch) was mostly a precautionary thing because he broke his jaw last year, "I don't know," said Geilman. "I don't know if it's a muscle pull or not."
