DALLAS — Ross Perot plunged back into the presidential race on Thursday, setting up a three-way struggle with President Bush and Bill Clinton.

He said the major parties haven't tackled the nation's major economic problems but "we can fix anything."

Declaring his candidacy in the final month of the campaign after pouring out in mid-July, the Texas billionaire declared, "Not only is government a mess, politics is also a mess." He suggested he was the one to set things right.

Perot made the announcement at a packed—sometimes raucous news conference, saying he was in the race to win despite his meager standing in national polls.

"My objective is not to commit political suicide," Perot said.

Still, even though Perot once had support rivaling Bush and Clinton, recent polls show he is distant third. A national tracking poll by Cable News Network and USA Today released on Thursday gave Perot only 7 percent support, compared to 52 percent for Clinton and 35 percent for Bush.

Even so, his entry, coupled with the prospect of a series of October debates, had the effect of injecting uncertainty into a race that Clinton has led consistently since July.

Perot said he would run an issues-oriented campaign. Top aides said Perot would concentrate heavily on paid advertising and television appearances.

With Perot's impact on the electoral landscape still uncertain, both Bush and Clinton camps greeted the development with little wariness.

Clinton, campaigning in Wisconsin, said, "I don't worry about things I can't control." Of Perot's participation in debates, Clinton said: "I'm open to anything... I wouldn't rule it out."

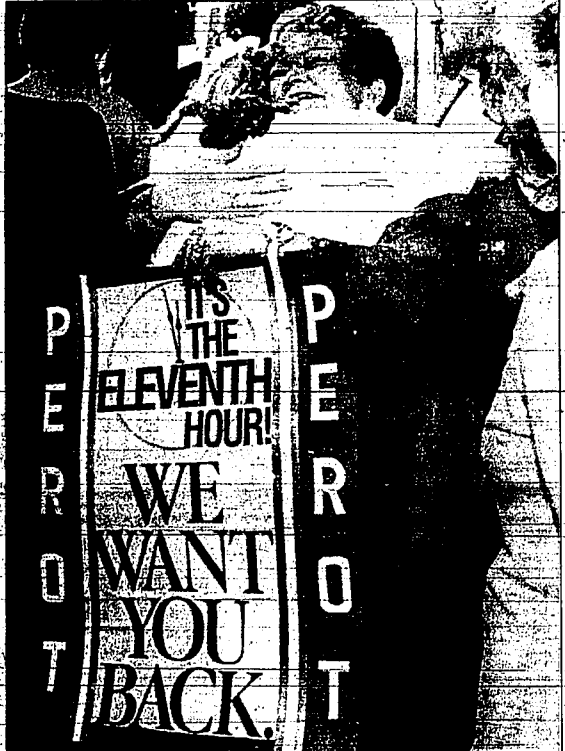

Bush spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Perot "deserves" to have an opportunity to run but that the president would continue to focus his attention on Clinton as his major foe. He said Bush's offer to include Perot in the debates stands.

Perot got back in the game 11 weeks to the day after he abandoned the race, saying he believed he could not win and did not want to be a disruptive influence on the campaign.

To his volunteers, Perot said on Thursday: "My decision in July hurt you. I apologize. I thought I was doing the right thing. I made a mistake. I take full responsibility for it."

Decision evokes glee, dismay in Magic Valley

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Connie Heddens is still a believer, but Chris Talkington says he's had enough of Ross Perot. The two, early supporters of the Texas billionaire's maverick bid for the presidency last spring, were not surprised to learn Thursday afternoon that Perot is back in the race.

"I couldn't be happier," said Heddens, a Ketchum resident who was the unofficial coordinator of the petition drive in the Wood River Valley to get Perot's name on the Idaho ballot. "He's a wonderful, straightforward man who would make a fine president."

Heddens remained a Perot supporter long after the Texan canceled his plans in July to seek the presidency.

"I was surprised—yes—when he decided not to run," she said. "But I know there were reasons we were not told. Now he's in the race, and I'm going to do whatever I can to help him get elected."

Talkington, a Twin Falls

businessman and former mayor, was more skeptical.

"I don't like a quitter," he said Thursday. "He put forward his program, then he got out of the race, and the month after he got out, he spent all kinds of money on his campaign. I think it looks very suspicious."

Talkington, who also collected signatures for the Texan, said Perot's double switch only serves to make people more cynical about the political process.

"The people I have coffee with are fed up with the whole process," he said. "Without exaggeration, I can't recall a higher level of hostility to politics and politicians."

Perot can't win, Talkington said, but he can be a spoiler.

"I'll like a lot of people this year," he said. "I don't know who I'm voting for, but I know who I'm voting against."

Heddens, on the other hand, has no doubt what she'd do on Nov. 3.

Texan returns weaker but as wild card with impact

Analysis

WASHINGTON — In the heady days of May, Ross Perot was a potential president.

Now, he's likely no more than potential spoiler, but nonetheless a wild card who could reshuffle the deck in the campaign's closing weeks.

The Perot Factor was reintroduced to presidential politics Thursday, 11 weeks to the day after the Texas billionaire abandoned plans to run, saying he had concluded he could not win.

Now, with 33 days to Election Day, Perot is back in the race, with even slimmer odds of winning. Indeed, 72 percent of respondents in a new CNN-USA Today poll said there was "no chance" they would vote for Perot.

Many analysts view his re-entry as a selfish attempt at redemption by a political novice who failed to realize what he was getting into months ago and now wants to heal a wounded ego.

The reasons he gave for withdrawing from the race are as valid now as they were then, so I see no other rationale for re-entering," said political science professor Emmert Buehl Jr. of Ohio's Denison University. "It's obvious he would like to be crowned rather than go through an election."

Whatever his motivation — or chances — Perot has the potential to affect the race even if he never leaves third place.

Jury convicts Twin Falls man under new Gem stalking law

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A 32-year-old Twin Falls man is the first local resident convicted under Idaho's new law against stalking.

A six-person jury deliberated about two hours Wednesday night before finding Jeff C. Laws guilty of willfully, maliciously and repeatedly following or harassing Kay McBride.

He will be sentenced Monday afternoon on the misdemeanor charge, which carries a maximum penalty of one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

McBride signed a citation in July and claims Laws has been following her and harassing her at work for more than three years.

Although the state's new law, modeled on that of other states, went into effect July 1, activity that happened before that date can be considered in the case.

Laws and McBride both work at Universal Frozen Foods. She said he frequently would follow her on his bicycle as she drove to work and would be in the parking lot when she was there.

Laws also frequently drove his car past

McBride's home on Taylor Street, sometimes as often as four times per day, City Attorney Fritz Wondolowski said.

McBride kept a running log of the times she spotted Laws, and her son testified that he read several notes and letters that she received from Laws.

Laws, a husband and father of two, said he was doing nothing wrong when he used Filer Avenue to drive from his home on Ostrander Street to turn errands on Blue Lakes Boulevard.

"There's nothing wrong with driving down a public street," he said from the witness stand Wednesday.

He also said he was merely riding his bike for pleasure on the mornings when McBride saw him on her way to work.

Wonderlich said that Laws continued to bother McBride after being warned by his employer, the police and a male relative of McBride to stay away from her.

Stalking laws were enacted by more than a dozen states in the wake of several high-profile cases of people being harassed, and sometimes assaulted or killed, by ex-spouses or would-be

Abortion 'gag rule' takes effect — for now

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration's so-called "gag rule," forbidding most workers in presidential veto on the issue and a federal judge was considering ordering the government to halt enforcement.

Under the rules, abortion could be discussed only with a doctor, who could advise seeking an abortion only if it was considered medically necessary.

U.S. District Judge Charles Richey had said he planned to decide Thursday whether to issue an injunction against the government. Richey had issued a similar order in May that was lifted in July by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

As the day wore on, however, an administration source, speaking on the condition of anonymity, said it was unclear when Richey would rule.

Nevertheless, the government was not optimistic about getting a favorable ruling from Richey.

Congress last summer voted to nullify the administration rules, but President Bush vetoed that Thursday to override the veto.

The issue now goes to the House, where an earlier attempt to override a presidential veto fell a dozen votes short.

The administration says the purpose of the rule is to make sure that medical advice on abortion is given only by people with the proper training.

Weather summary

The National Weather Service says Idaho has broken more temperature records.

A ridge of high pressure over the northwest maintained warm air circulation, bringing Boise a previous record high of 94 degrees. The old mark of 87 degrees was set two years ago Thursday.

Satellite photos showed some high clouds spreading up into the Gem State.

Temperatures ranged from the high 70s and 80s to the mid-90s across Idaho. Pocatello and Twin Falls also broke records for high readings.

Variable clouds were over the Magic Valley all day but no precipitation was reported. Winds were light to moderate from the east or south.

The warmest temperature in the state Thursday was 97 degrees at Hagerman. Stanley and Ketchum reported the coldest at 28 degrees.

Elsewhere in the nation Thursday, the highest temperature was 108 degrees at Lake Havasu City, Ariz. The lowest was 11 degrees at Wisdom, Mont.

West sizzles while frost, snow white Northeast

The Associated Press

Unusually warm weather prevailed Thursday across much of the nation west of the Rockies.

Frost settled on pumpkin patches in parts of the Northeast while an early snow fell in Vermont.

The mercury soared into the 90s and lower 90s in the Northwest and Great Basin. By midday, temperatures were in the 70s and 80s across much of the West. The Southwest deserts baked in temperatures that reached the 90s or exceeded 100 degrees.

Showers and a few thunderstorms fell over the Florida Peninsula and the Pacific Coast. Dry weather prevailed across the rest of the nation.

Snow fell in Vermont overnight as much of the nation east of the Rockies awoke to chilly weather. Saint Johnsbury received nearly an inch of snow, the earliest measurable snowfall ever for the area. In central Ohio, heavy frost and a low of 26 degrees were reported south of Mansfield.

Temperatures dipped below 40 degrees across much of the Northeast, with freezing temperatures in parts of New York state and New England. A dozen cities reported record lows for the date, including 30 degrees at Albany, N.Y., and Hartford, Conn., 31 degrees at Binghamton, N.Y., and 37 degrees at Asheville, N.C.

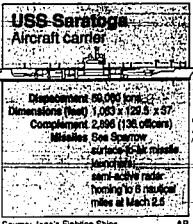

Missiles damage Turkish vessel

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. aircraft carrier fired several missiles at a Turkish destroyer with missile fire Thursday during a NATO exercise in the eastern Mediterranean.

The missile set the vessel ablaze, Pentagon officials said.

Initial reports from the scene indicated there were some deaths but eventually turned out to be false. The Saratoga launched two Sea Sparrow missiles and apparently hit the Turkish destroyer with both missiles, said the official, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The Sea Sparrow missile, which is 6 to 7 feet long, is a scaled-down version of the Sparrow, which is used on fighter aircraft such as the F-14 and F-15. It is modified for use on board surface ships so that it could be launched against attacking vessel's aid.

The Turkish ship was not immediately identified, and it was not known how many crew members were aboard.

Pentagon spokeswoman Maj. Katherine Ingram said the accident occurred about midnight local time (4 p.m. EDT) in the Aegean Sea, an arm of the Mediterranean between Turkey and Greece. The two U.S. and Turkish ships were about three miles apart at the time.

"It was an accidental launching," Ingram said.

Both ships were taking part in "Display Determination," an annual NATO exercise consisting of vessels from the southern-NATO region, the Pentagon said. The exercise usually involves the United States, Turkey, Greece and Italy.

U.S. Navy officials have been dispatched to the Turkish ship to assess damages and injuries to Turkish allied crew.

The Saratoga is a conventionally powered aircraft carrier.

our country," she said. "He's a hard-headed businessman, and he'll do what's right."

Like Talkingdon, Heddens found Perot's prescription for cutting the federal budget deficit and restoring public confidence in government attractive. But unlike her Twin Falls counterpart, she still thinks Perot can get to the White House and make it work.

"Some people who were sitting on the fence now have a real choice," she said.

Mention thrills Kansas girl

AUGUSTA, Kan. (AP) — Nine-year-old Adriane Caggiano had a special reason to be thrilled with Ross Perot's announcement Thursday that he was entering the presidential race.

"He took my advice and got back in," the fifth-grader declared.

In his news conference, Perot cited Adriane as one of a number of young people who have written him. He quoted her as writing: "My name is Adriane Caggiano. I am nine years old, almost 10. I wish you would really run for president, and I wish I could vote. I think everyone should get to say things they would like to see they done. I just don't think a small group of people should decide for a whole bunch of people."

Adriane couldn't remember everything in her letter, but was sure she wrote to Perot about what she says is the No. 1 issue in the campaign — the economy.

Impact

First, Perot could help President Bush in the short term just by shaking up a race that had been stagnant for more than a month, with Democrat Bill Clinton well ahead — by 17 points in the CNN-USA Today poll. Debates, still being negotiated, offer a second vehicle to stir the campaign dynamics.

"Anything that tosses this race up in the air and is an unknown is a good thing for Bush," said Republican pollster Bill McInturff.

It may take a while to assess Perot's broader impact, but there are obvious things to watch and both campaigns have reason to worry.

Perot has never disguised his disdain for Bush and already is preparing to launch television advertisements. With a personal fortune and no spending limits to worry about, Perot could affect the race if he decided to attack one candidate and leave the other alone.

"For all the uncertainty about Perot, we know one thing: he doesn't care for George Bush," said Andrew Kohut of Princeton Survey Research.

And despite his comfortable lead, over Clinton pretexts a natural tightening of the race as the election draws closer.

If that happens, Perot could prove the difference in many states.

Clinton now leads in Ohio, for example, but if it is a GOP-leaning state and spring surveys showed Perot drawing more support from

"With Perot as the joker in the deck, it could make a critical difference in Ohio," said Buell.

The reverse is the case in some other states, particularly in the South, where surveys show Perot draws more from Bush.

"It certainly boosts the chances of Clinton carrying Texas," said University of Texas as professor Walter D. Burnham, who studies voting behavior.

As he rejoined the race, Perot said he was running to win. But it's hard to find an analyst who thinks he can.

"The last week has been a charade," said independent California pollster Mervin Field, who believes Perot is now reduced to protest candidate, a view shared by many other analysts.

Senate approves nuclear arms treaty, aid to Russia

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate on Thursday slammed the door on the Cold War by easily approving the most complex nuclear arms treaty ever written, then voting for military aid to promote democracy in Russia.

As Congress rushed to complete its work before abandoning Washington for the campaign trail, lawmakers also played out veto fights with President Bush on abortion and policy to ward China, and struggled to complete spending bills needed to run the government.

Approval of the Strategic Nuclear Arms Reduction Treaty came on a vote of 93 to 6, belying the decade of distrust and struggle that dominated its negotiation.

In some ways, the treaty is an anachronism.

— the Soviet Union — no longer exists, but four independent republics, Russia, Ukraine, Belarus and Kazakhstan, have assumed the treaty responsibilities.

And while the document calls for the two sides to cut their nuclear arsenals by about one-third, work is already progressing on deeper cuts, made possible by the evaporation of superpower tensions.

Still, the Bush administration and other START backers said it marked an important milestone in arms control and provided the framework on which a safer world can be built. It was the first treaty limiting offensive strategic arms to be ratified since Moscow and Washington began negotiating in 1969.

Its approval came as both former superpowers are struggling with massive debt created in part by a half-century-long arms race, which Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Claiborne Pell called "a foul's game."

"Finally, at last — we have taken a positive, even revolutionary course," the Rhode Island Democrat told the Senate.

Approval came after a two-day debate, most of it warnings from a band of hawks that the treaty leaves the way open for Russia to modernize and maintain unlimited amounts of non-deployed weapons. Voting against ratification were Sens. Larry Craig, R-Idaho; Jesse Helms, R-N.C.; Ernest Hollings, D-S.C.; Robert Smith, R-N.H.; Steve Symms, R-Idaho, and Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo.

The foreign aid spending bill, approved 87-12, included $417 million in technical, development and humanitarian aid for any former Soviet republic that meets human rights, democratic and economic reform tests.

It also would create a five-year,

$10 billion program of loan guarantees for Israel to be used to absorb a flood of immigrants from the former Soviet Union and other countries. And it would provide a $12 billion infusion of new lending for the International Monetary Fund, some of which could go to Russia.

At the same time, Bush extended his string of successful vetoes. The Senate, for the second time this year, fell short in an effort to override the president's rejection of conditions on renewal of China's normal trade status.

The 59-40 vote was well below the two-thirds majority needed to reverse administration policy toward Beijing. Bush's longest-running foreign policy dispute with Congress.

In another veto fight, the Senate voted 73-26 to override Bush's rejection of a bill striking down restrictions on abortion counseling at federally funded clinics — what opponents call "the gag rule." But the House was expected to fall short of a two-thirds vote when it took up the override attempt.

Elsewhere on Capitol Hill, negotiators worked feverishly to complete spending bills and to draft a tax bill that could pass muster at the White House.

The new fiscal year began Thursday with most departments operating under a short-term spending bill.

Bush opposes a Senate measure extending two tax increases on high-income taxpayers. The increases would finance expanded individual retirement accounts and tax incentives for bright locales.

Congress sent Bush a $23.3 billion bill financing the departments of Justice, Commerce and State. The House approved a $22.6 billion measure for Treasury and the Postal Service and a $36.4 billion bill for Transportation. Senate passage would send both bills to President Bush for his expected signature.

Early Thursday, House-Senate negotiators approved a compromise energy bill designed to bolster the nuclear energy, encourage more efficient lights and make the electricity industry more competitive.

Clinton pans Bush on policy

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Democratic presidential nominee Bill Clinton accused President Bush on Thursday of defending potentates and dictators instead of "the mainstream pro-democracy tradition of American foreign policy."

"No American foreign policy can succeed if it neglects our domestic needs, and no American foreign policy can succeed if it slights our commitment to democracy," Clinton told a university-sponsored world affairs conference at the ornate Pabst Theater.

"The president often takes a lot of credit for communism's downfall, but fails to recognize that the global democratic revolution actually gave freedom its birth, the Arkansas governor noted. "It simply does not seem at home" in the mainstream pro-democracy tradition of American foreign policy.

Clinton said Bush seems to prefer "a foreign policy that embraces stability at the expense of freedom, a foreign policy built more on personal relationships with foreign leaders than on consideration of how those leaders acquired and maintain their power."

"But in a world where freedom, not tyranny, is on the march, the policy of pure power politics simply does not compute."

Besides, he added, smiling, "Individual leaders come and go, even in the United States, I hope."

Clinton said he wasn't advocating "reckless crusades to force U.S. ideals on other people."

"The real danger is that in a time of wrenching, sweeping change, under President Bush we will cling to tired, outdated notions that do not work and cannot inspire," he said.

"I am committed to maintaining a strong and ready defense... but power must be maintained by clear purpose," Clinton said. "Mr. Bush's ambivalence... about supporting democracy, his eagerness to defend potentates and dictators, has shown itself time and again."

"I believe Mr. Bush's neglect of our democratic ideals abroad could do as much harm as his neglect of our economic needs at home," he said.

Clinton was campaigning in Milwaukee and Madison, joined by Sen. Al Gore, his vice presidential nominee, for an hour's radio call-in program on "Rockline," broadcast on more than 150 radio stations and, by satellite, on campus television stations. With Ross Perot poised to resume active third-man candidacy, and debate negotiators bargaining on terms for televised campaign confrontations, Clinton said, "I'm going to run my race and I'm going to engage Mr. Bush."

"I think my fight is with George Bush," he told reporters, Perot notwithstanding.

In the Milwaukee speech, Clinton said there was "no more striking example of Mr. Bush's indifference to democracy than his policy toward China."

Killer charged in slaying of Secret Service agent

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dogged police work by a detective who tracked a former schoolmate resulted in murder charges Thursday against a convicted killer in the slaying of a Secret Service agent 12 years ago.

The June 4, 1980, shotgun slaying of 26-year-old Julie Cross marked the only time that a female agent has been killed in the line of duty.

District Attorney Ira Reiner credited the determined work of Detective Richard "Buck" Henry, who first arrested Andre Stephen Alexander in 1972 on a robbery charge and found he had gone to school with him.

Six years later, Henry, then a detective, was investigating a triple murder he linked to Alexander. During that case, Reiner said, the detective put together clues that tied Alexander to the Cross killing. Reiner declined to give extensive details of how the case developed because an unidentified suspect remains at large.

Henry was the first police officer at the scene of the Cross slaying. She and her partner, Lloyd Bulman, were in an unmarked car with her service revolver drawn, Reiner said. Somehow Cross was disarmed, Reiner said, and "Alexander reached into the agent's car, took their shotgun and fired two blasts at Cross, killing her."

Bulman also was shot but survived. Alexander, 40, already is serving a life sentence stemming from the triple murder case.

Cross had worked for the Secret Service for less than a year when she was slain, and had been in Los Angeles for only a week. Before that, she was a San Diego police officer. When she was slain, she was one of only 24 women in the Secret Service, which then had 1,500 agents.

Court affirms guilt of Marine, but judge sets sentence aside

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Sgt. Clayton Lonetree, the first Marine ever court-martialed for spying, has had his 25-year sentence set aside by a military appeals court because he may not have gotten adequate counsel.

The U.S. Court of Military Appeals affirmed Lonetree's conviction in 1987 of passing secrets to the KGB after becoming romantically involved with a Soviet woman while serving as a U.S. Embassy guard in Moscow.

Prosecutor: Couple drowned child.

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — A couple obsessed with trying to rid their 5-year-old daughter of demons drowned her in a bathtub during an attempted exorcism and buried her on a Mexican beach, a prosecutor says.

Marcos Escamilla Morales, 56, and his wife, Beatriz Irene Morales, 47, are charged with the November 1978 murder of their daughter, Lisa.

In opening arguments Wednesday, Deputy District Attorney Lew Rosenblum said the girl's parents began to believe she was possessed by demons after Lisa pushed her sister down a flight of stairs.

"They constantly referred to her as the evil one, the devil," he said.

Despite earlier claims that Lisa had been privately adopted, Mrs. Morales' attorney has conceded that Lisa died at home. But he has argued that there is no evidence of a murder or who did it.

Catching a few winks

U.S. Forest Service firefighter Flex Thompson takes a quick catnap Wednesday after spending the night on the fire line of the Cleveland fire in California's El Dorado Forest near Kyburz. In the background fellow Forest Service firefighter Kurt Thiel relaxes. The fire started Tuesday and has destroyed more than 26 structures and covered 16,000 acres.

Poll shows majority in military support policy barring women from direct combat

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — Most members of the armed forces say they support the military policy that bars women from direct combat roles, a presidential commission was told Thursday.

A poll conducted by the Roper Organization for the commission also showed that four of every 10 service people think assigning women to combat would harm national security.

This included 63 percent of Marines and 53 percent of those in the Army, but only 43 percent of Navy and Air Force personnel.

However, in response to more specific questions, only 49 percent said women should not be assigned to ground combat, 30 percent said they should be barred from combat aircraft and 29 percent said they should not be on fighting ships.

The results were presented to the Presidential Commission on the Assignment of Women in the Armed Forces, which is examining laws and policies that bar women from direct combat.

Congress created the commission at the same time that it repealed a prohibition on women in combat aircraft.

Women now make up about 11 percent of the armed forces.

Paul Jones, director of defense force management for the congressional General Accounting Office, which is studying the performance of women in the Gulf War, said their performance appraisals were "highly positive although expectations had been generally low."

Jones said restrictions on putting women in forward positions were unwisely applied and when they were applied "may have impeded the most effective use of human resources."

The Roper poll said 98 percent of the military who served in the Gulf War rated the performance of men in their unit as excellent or good, but only 61 percent gave similar ratings to the women.

More than eight out of 10 Air Force personnel and two-thirds of those in the Navy gave excellent or good ratings to the women, but only 48 percent of soldiers and 44 percent of Marines did so.

Nevertheless, 96 percent of those in all services said the performance of their unit as a whole was excellent or good.

The poll showed that 19 percent believed women in the military should be required to take non-combat assignments while a third of them believed women should be given the assignments only if they volunteered for them.

Fifty-two percent of the military personnel believed that young women should be drafted in a national emergency.

The survey was done by mailing 8,000 questionnaires between July 20 and July 23.

The Roper organization said 4,442 completed questionnaires were received and tabulated.

The margin of error for the poll was plus or minus 4 percentage points.

Bush nominates new inspector general of Navy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush has nominated a three-star admiral to take over as the Navy's new inspector general, the Pentagon announced on Thursday.

Vice Adm. David Bennett, if confirmed by the Senate, would succeed Rear Adm. George Davis, who is to be reassigned.

Bennett, a native of Urbana, Ill., holds the position of commander of the Navy's surface fleet in the Pacific based in San Diego.

Last week, acting Navy Secretary Sean O'Keefe announced he planned to reassign Davis in the Navy's botched investigation of the Tailhook sex abuse scandal. Two other top admirals were removed from their jobs as well.

O'Keefe acted after the Pentagon's inspector general issued a report slamming the Navy's own investigation.

Gene linked to blood pressure may aid treatment, prevention

NEW YORK (AP) — Scientists for the first time have linked a human gene to the most common form of high blood pressure, a finding that may eventually help treat and prevent a disease afflicting more than 50 million Americans.

"This is a major advance that will help us understand one of the most common chronic conditions in the United States," said Dr. Claude Lenfant, director of the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute.

The institute helped fund the study, which dealt with "essential" hypertension. The condition accounts for about 95 percent of all high blood pressure. Scientists believe that multiple genes and environmental factors play a role in the disease, which can lead to heart attacks and strokes.

Dr. Victor Dzau, director of the Cardiovascular Research Center at Stanford University, said he found the evidence for the gene's role "compelling, but not proven."

Even if the gene does not raise hypertension risk, the finding gives scientists "very specific directions" on where to seek such a gene, said Dr. Theodore Kurtz, a cardiovascular geneticist at the University of California, San Francisco.

"It's a very exciting result and it has major implications for our understanding of the genetics of high blood pressure and cardiovascular disease," Kurtz said Thursday.

"People were skeptical for years that we'd even be able to begin to isolate a single gene that might be related."

Scientists said the study is the first in humans to directly link essential hypertension to a gene, rather than through some proxy like proteins in the blood.

The work is reported in Friday's issue of the journal Cell by Dr. Jean-Marc Lalouel of the Howard Hughes

Key findings

The Associated Press

- Siblings with relatively severe hypertension tended to inherit the same version of the angiotensinogen gene more often than expected by chance.
- Two variants of the gene appeared more commonly in hypertensive people than in other people.
- Among people with hypertension, one of the variants was associated with higher blood levels of angiotensinogen.

Lalouel said he suspects the gene may predispose people to hypertension related to eating salt. If so, tests for the version of the gene that promotes hypertension may one day let doctors identify susceptible people early, so they could cut back on salt and avoid the disease, he said.

Kurtz said followup research might also help doctors tailor drug therapy to individual patients.

Lalouel said it is not clear what percentage of essential hypertension might be related to the gene, and noted that the studies included only people of western and northern European descent. He said scientists also must examine other groups, such as blacks, who have higher hypertension rates than whites do.

NCAA slaps Orangemen

The Associated Press

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — The long-awaited NCAA sanctions against the Syracuse basketball program came down Thursday, lighter-than-expected because of the school's cooperation in the investigation.

The Orangemen are banned from 1992-93 postseason play and the school's entire athletic program was placed on two years' probation as violations were also found in the women's basketball, football, lacrosse and wrestling programs.

The NCAA said the penalties were less than the minimum for major violations because of Syracuse's cooperation in its probe. The NCAA Committee on Infractions stopped short of banning Syracuse from live television appearances, but did assess

'But for their cooperation, their penalty would have been much greater.'

— David Swank, NCAA committee member scholarship and recruiting penalties.

"But for their cooperation, their penalty would have been much greater," said David Swank, dean of University of Oklahoma Law School and chairman of the committee. Syracuse chancellor Kenneth A. Shaw said the university would accept the penalties.

Basketball coach Jim Boheim said his players were disappointed when told of the penalties Thursday morning. "But this class (of seniors) has been to the last three tournaments and they're going to have to accept it. There are a lot of kids, a majority of kids, who go to college and don't get to go to three NCAA tournaments," he said.

Syracuse is the first member of the high-profile Big East basketball conference to be sanctioned by the NCAA.

The conference's athletic directors will meet Oct. 6-7 at Providence for their regular fall meeting at which time they will vote to decide whether Syracuse can participate in the conference postseason tournament.

"It is my personal position that Syracuse should be allowed to participate," commissioner Mike Tranghese said, referring to the 1993 Big East tournament.

NFL suit seeks free agency, damages for all players

NEW ORLEANS — One former and one active pro football player filed a suit Thursday seeking unspecified damages and an injunction requiring the NFL to grant unlimited free agency.

John Fourcade, a New Orleans Saints quarterback from 1987 through 1990, was joined in his U.S. District Court lawsuit by Maurice Hurst, a former Southern University cornerback who was drafted in 1989 by the New England Patriots. Both live in New Orleans.

In addition, Fourcade and Hurst filed the class action lawsuit on behalf of all former and active players who they said "have not and never will receive a competitive market value for their services and are denied the freedom of movement available to employees in any other industry in the United States."

The suit follows a federal judge's decision to grant free agency to Pro Bowl tight end Keith Jackson and three other players.

Long John Daly continues hot streak at Southern Open

PINE MOUNTAIN, Ga. — John Daly, who last week won the B.C. Open for his second PGA Tour victory, shot a 5-under-par 67 on Thursday, his fifth consecutive round of 67 or better, for a share of the first-round lead in the Southern Open.

Using his length off the tee to shrink the 7,057-yard, par-72 Mountain View Golf Course at Callaway Gardens, Daly shot nines of 34 and 33 to grab a share of the lead with Ed Humenik, Kelly Gibson, Ed Fiori and rookie Robert Friend.

"Keeping my swing as slow as I have, even last week, has really paid off," said Daly, who pocketed $144,000 for last week's victory, his first since winning the 1991 PGA. "I've just been hitting so many more greens than usual. This is probably one of the most solid first rounds I think I've played all year. I just hope to keep the tempo going."

Despite miscues, Bruins beat Meridian

By Larry Hovey
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Basically, it just got down to the point that Twin Falls couldn't make enough mistakes to lose. The defense saw to that.

With just 78 seconds left, Bruin tackle Jim Shields sacked quarterback Gabe Hacks to second Twin Falls' fifth straight win Thursday night, 27-17, a decision over offensively-potent Meridian.

Looking like anything but an O-4 team, Meridian pushed the ball up and down the field against the Bruins, but the defense arose on two critical occasions to win it. The high profile play was Shields' but just as important was cornerback Rob Studebaker knocking away a seven-yard halfback pass in the end zone on the last play of the first half.

For Twin Falls it was a matter of mistakes and miscueulations. And the injury list grew longer as top rusher Josh Amundson didn't play in the second half after sustaining a head injury covering a punt. Another junior, Kolin King, missed a lot of play with a knee injury.

But just as importantly was the sudden emergence of Ian Jensen and Toby Lapp with some excellent blocking that let the Bruins score the deciding touchdown and waste time throughout the fourth quarter.

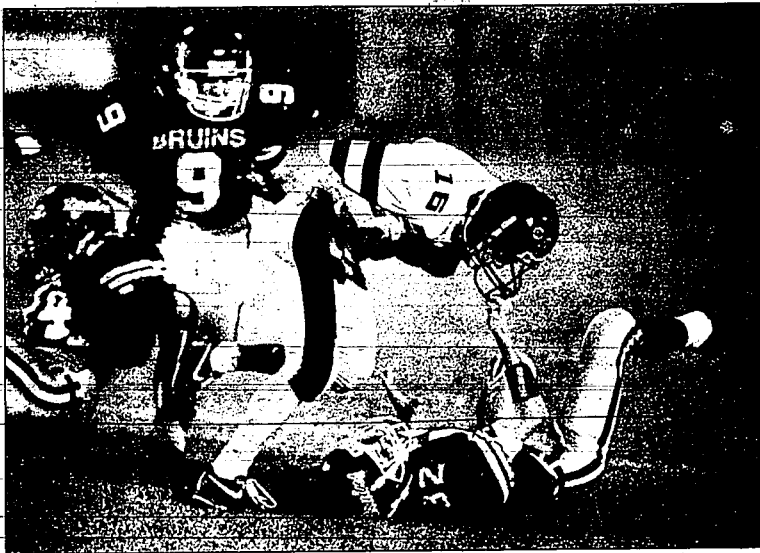

"We didn't take them seriously. We played with zero emotion," Coach Jon Jund said. "We told them that Meridian was not a great defensive team but one of the best offensively. We could see it coming in practice all week."

Heading the list of major mistakes were five major penalties, all against the defense after making plays for sizeable losses — and four of them were committed by the same defensive end.

The other problem was turnovers. Greg Starley, filling in for the injured Nate Geilman, was out for the year due to possible head injuries, threw two interceptions and Jensen fumbled the ball midway through the final quarter when Twin Falls was trying to piece together time-killing first downs.

Meridian turned that into its second touchdown.

"Oh, yes, we made our share of mistakes. But we had some happy moments, too," Jund said. "I thought both Lapp and Jensen had some good moments running the ball. We always felt the defense that an offensive turnover is a major challenge to them and the defense rose tonight. We had a lot of good moments. It's just that some of the mistakes were so glaring they seemed much larger."

Carl Moody of Twin Falls grabs the face mask of Meridian running back Travis Brown on Thursday. At left are Twin Falls' John McClusky and Jason Ringenberg.

A little green didn't help the Bruins in the late first half. Taking the ball over on their own 28 with 2:14 left, it seemed a good time to get into the lockerroom with a 14-0 lead, especially after a holding call on first down moved the ball back to the Twin Falls 18.

But Twin Falls threw three straight times — killing less than a minute and when Ron Hopkins returned the punt to Twin Falls' 23, the defense was pressed.

Meridian, which had lost two touchdowns on penalties earlier, got one first down to the Bruin 6 and Studebaker eventually came up with the defensive play that ended that threat.

It was on that punt that Amundson was injured, taking just about all of Twin Falls' offensive punch to that point.

"It appears that he has just been shaken up," said Jund. "We think he'll be all right for next week. But we thought that about Geilman; too, and he wasn't allowed to come back."

Up to that point, Twin Falls had ground out its 14-0 lead. Amundson carried six times for 44 yards and caught a pass for 21, as the Bruins rolled 83 yards in 14 plays.

Amundson then recovered a punt muffed by Meridian at the Warrior 14 and overcame a major penalty — the Bruins scored on a six-yard drive by Jensen. John McClusky kicked both points after.

The second half opened in four punts before Hopkins sprung another long return, going 34 yards to the Twin Falls 10. On fourth and one, Hacks sneaked over — Twin Falls replied immediately with a ground attack that was surprising. Juncen carried for times for 21 yards and Lapp then broke clear up the middle to romp 44 yards to the Meridian 10. Starley capitalized on that with a one-yard snake on third down. But McClusky missed the point after, leaving the door open.

Meridian zipped to the Twin Falls 15 before the Bruins held on fourth and six. Then came the fumble that gave Meridian its final touchdown — a 14-yard pass from Haws to Dan Rydahl.

Twin Falls was in time management big time after that but couldn't resist a long pass. Matt Hoskins picked it off, giving Meridian its final chance. But Shields stuffed that on fourth and six.

Huskies need big win to stay on top

Washington coach says play each game, ignore the polls.

The Associated Press

Surely, the Washington Huskies will learn that reaching the top is easier than staying there.

Considering they took over the No. 1 ranking last week by doing nothing, the Huskies already have a dilemma — an opponent.

Make that two.

— First, there's a 20th-ranked Southern Cal. the Huskies' opponent on Saturday in a crucial Pac-10 game.

Then, there's the winner of the showdown between No. 2 Miami and No. 3 Florida State.

Armed with the knowledge that Miami's 8-7 victory last week over Arizona dropped the Hurricanes (3-0) to No. 2, the Huskies must realize that just winning probably won't keep them on top. It will probably take an impressive victory to hold the ranking.

It's an issue coach Don James won't address. "Play each game as if it comes and let the poll take care of themselves," James said.

Gators lose — A6

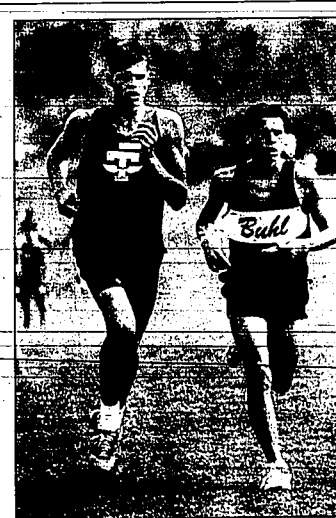

Meanwhile, Miami is pinning its hopes on quarterback Torretta, who has known both success and failure against the Seminoles (4-0). That, wide receiver Lamar Thomas insists, is a plus.

He knows what to do and what not to do when it comes to this game," Thomas said.

The Hurricane quarterback was intercepted four times when Miami twice last year. But, after being picked off twice last year, Torretta engineered a pair of fourth-quarter drives that gave Miami a 17-16 victory and eventually a share of national honors with Washington.

In other games Saturday, it will be Iowa (1-3) at No. 4 Michigan (2-0-1); Texas Tech (2-2) at No. 5 Texas A&M (4-0), No. 18 Stanford Buhl's Scott Hansen keeps pace with Andy Lyda of Twin Falls in Twin Falls Classic cross-country meet at the Canyon Springs Golf Course.

Lyda holds; Hansens pace Buhl

By Mike Maller
Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — Andy Lyda kept his cross-country winning streak alive by the slimmest margin yet against Buhl's Scott Hansen in the Twin Falls Classic at Canyon Springs Golf Course Thursday afternoon.

Meanwhile, the Hansen brothers, Scott and Andy, kept the Buhl Indians on pace for a team state championship.

Lyda stretched out his long legs over the final 300 yards to beat Scott Hansen by nine seconds for the individual boys championship.

Andrew was third, 25 seconds behind Lyda; and Chris Branchflower of Wendell fourth.

"Lyda has a lot longer legs," Scott Hansen said. "It's downhill (the last quarter mile) and he strided out. He's a great strider and a good finisher."

Lyda has now won all six of his meets this season. His goal for his senior year is to go undefeated on the way to a state A-1 championship.

By Brad Ellis Times-News writer

EDEN — The Declo Hornets felt fortunate to have escaped Eden with a 14-12 victory Thursday after a tied-up Valley team felt one yard short of tying the game in the final seconds.

The Declo defensive line stuffed Valley's Matt Childs one yard from the end zone on a two-point conversion attempt that should have tied the game with 41 seconds left.

Valley moved within two points after Phillip Shutte and Jed Wyatt connected on a fourth down and 12 touchdown pass from Declo's T7-yard line. Wyatt's touchdown put the exclamation point on the game.

The Vikings took control of the ball on their own 21-yard line with 13 minutes left in the fourth quarter. Valley drove to Declo's 34 before the Vikings facing fourth down and 14 yards to go.

Mississippi State busts Florida's repeat hopes

Orlando Sentinel

STARKVILLE, Miss. — Someone, quick, stick a toe on the them Gators: Florida's chances of repeating as Southeastern Conference champion are as good as dead after Thursday night's 30-6 loss at Mississippi State.

And it was Florida's (former) Heisman Trophy candidate, Mississippi native Shane Matthews, who committed the fatal miscues in front of 38,886 at Scott Field.

Playing his first college game in his home state, Matthews — from Pascagoula — gambled several times under pressure and paid the price, throwing a career-worst five interceptions, two of which led to Mississippi State points in the fourth quarter.

It got so bad that when Matthews was replaced late in the game by Terry Dean, "We want Shane! We want Shane!" "I just think it up all over," said

"It felt real-good-just because everybody was doubting me the whole season — until that game," Torretta said. "I don't think you can have a better feeling."

Torretta doesn't have to worry about gaining the respect of Florida State's Bobby Bowden. "The thing that concerns me the most is Torretta," said Bowden, whose Seminoles had won 16 in a row before the 1991 loss to Miami.

Running

Continued from A5 have some energy at the end," Lyda said. "He's having a very good year."

But Lyda says Lyda will not run against each other at any more meets this fall. At the rate the Hansens have been closing the gap on Lyda, that might be good for his undefeated hopes.

Lyda started the beginning of the year about 30 seconds behind him," Scott Hansen said. "Every time it comes down about five or seven seconds."

Teamwise, the Indians placed all five scoring runners and their sixth runner in the top 35, including Casey Cran in the top 15.

The fact that Buhl routed a number of A-1 schools, as it has done all season long, didn't impress Indians Coach Joe Greif. "We were a little sluggish, actually," he said. "I think the heat (about 90 degrees) kind of got on them."

Elko, Nevada took second in the boys' team scoring. Highland was third. Twin Falls, helped by John Ruppert's eighth place finish, edged Rigby by one point for fourth place.

"I was really proud of the boys. They finished a lot higher than I anticipated," said Twin Falls Coach Larry Lyda. "The girls, I thought would place better. They've done a lot better in their last few events."

The Bruins were seventh in the girls' meet. Highland, with two runners in the top 10, took first, followed by Madison, Bonville and Elko.

Freshman Christine Kohler of Idaho Falls won a sprint over the last 100 yards to defeat sophomore Heidi Galbraith of Sugar-Salem by five seconds at 20:30. The field looks to be the same for the next few years with seven of the top 10 girls' numbers being freshmen or sophomores.

Raquel Wynne had the best finish for Elko at No. 11.

Thursday was the first time this season for the Nevada school to run against this competition. The three-hour drive from Elko was attractive compared to the seven-hour bus ride to a meet near Lake Tahoe last weekend. "We had no idea what the competition would be," said Elko Coach Diana Pawelek. "We didn't know if we'd win or if we'd be left behind. We do know we're pretty good for Nevada."

Both the boys' and girls' teams from Elko appear to have good shot at top four finishes at state.

In the junior varsity boys' race, Jed Miles of Preston won in 18:38. Jared Benedict of Madison was second and Benji Jay of Wood River third. Preston topped Madison for the team.

Twin Falls blazed fifth and Elko sixth.

Two Falls Coach Gene Seem top 5 — 1. Highland 78, 2. Madison 115, 3. Downey 148, 4. Elko 166, 5. Idaho Falls 170.

Boys' team top 5 — 1. Highland 78, 2. Madison 115, 3. Downey 148, 4. Elko 166, 5. Idaho Falls 170.

Boys' team top 5 — 1. Burly 72, 2. Elko, New 70, 3. Highland 117, 4. Twin Falls 101, 5. Rigby 102.

Boys' team top 5 — 1. Andy Lyle, Twin Falls 182, 2. Scott Hansen, Idaho Falls 218, 3. Jerrold Daniels, Hagerman 218, 4. Shemar Bohan, Bonville 223, 5. James 224, 6. Andrew Hansen, 17:20, 7. Hayden, 21:54, 8. Nathan Hedrick, Pocatello 22:40.

Boys' team top 5 — 1. Burly 72, 2. Elko, New 70, 3. Highland 117, 4. Twin Falls 101, 5. Rigby 102.

Canseco, La Russa trade shots off field

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Jose Canseco and the Oakland Athletics sounded more like the Trumps than baseball people these days.

"If he had never said anything, I never would have," Oakland manager Tony La Russa said. "But I don't want our fans getting only one side of the story."

Before the A's 7-3 loss to the Texas Rangers and Canseco on Wednesday night, La Russa uncharacteristically took half an hour to address charges Canseco made the previous night.

"We not only supported him, we protected him, and we humiliated ourselves to do it," La Russa said. "I would tell half-truths in order to keep things private."

La Russa added that one word summed up his feelings about Canseco's subtext: "Betrayal."

"You're talking about betraying Canseco? That's not how the organization for 10 years."

Of the charges the team lied for him, Canseco replied: "That's obscene. That's ridiculous."

On Tuesday night, Canseco admitted to lying to Oakland teammates of never accepting him. He said he was labeled as lazy even when he was in too much pain to play. And he spoke with bitterness about his uncer-monious trade to Texas Aug. 31. "First of all, I was never accepted over there," Canseco said. "They alienated me from the time they had all the clichés."

The problem seemed solved when Canseco was pulled from a game in late August and told he had been traded to Texas for outfielder Ruben Sierra and pitchers Bobby Witt and Jeff Russell.

In days following the trade, Canseco criticized La Russa, and he stepped up the verbal attack on Tuesday night, when he returned to the Oakland Coliseum for the first time since the trade.

"No matter how hard I worked, that (laziness) will always be my label," Canseco said before the game. "I can look anybody in the eye, including Tony, and tell them I was playing even when I was dying in pain."

Canseco would cite specific instances where Canseco had problems with the team, but said Canseco was an example of what's wrong in the major leagues. "It is something that goes on a lot in baseball. A lot of organizations protect a player so the public doesn't hold the player accountable," he said.

Canseco said he was especially stung by the implication that he didn't play to his full ability.

Eagles look to hold down Wildcats

The Associated Press

Last year Weber State won 63-59 at home. But Eastern Washington is better this season, and the Eagles are hosting, the Wildcats in what promises to be the most exciting Big Sky Conference football game of the week.

'Our defense is playing well, but playing well against Weber State might be holding them under 50 points.'

— Dick Zornes, Eastern Washington coach

Saturday's other Big Sky games include Montana (1-3 overall, 0-1 league) at Boise State (2-2, 0-1), and Northern Arizona (2-2, 1-0) at Montana State (2-2, 0-1). In other games involving conference teams, Idaho (3-0, 1-0) hosts NCAA Division II Cal State-Northridge, and Idaho State (2-2, 1-1) hosts NAIA Division II Central Washington.

Even though Eastern Washington (2-1, 1-0) is tied for 20th in this week's NCAA Division I-AA rankings, head coach Dick Zornes said the Eagles will have to stiffen to stop Weber State (2-2, 1-1).

"We got into a shoot-out last year and got beat; and we got into a shoot-out two years ago and got beat. We have to control the tempo of the ballgame to have a chance to win it," Zornes said. "Our defense is playing well, but playing well against Weber State might be holding them under 50 points."

Actually, the Wildcats are averaging almost 32 points per game behind Division I-AA's top passing offense and senior quarterback Jamie Martin, last year's I-AA player of the year and ranked-second in total offense this year.

As a team, Eastern Washington leads Weber State and is second in the Big Sky to Idaho in total offense, averaging more than 449 yards per game. The Eagles also are averaging 31 points per game and are third in the league in passing yards on the strength of quarterback Mark Tennessee.

The sophomore is second in the Big Sky to Idaho's Doug Nussmeier in passing efficiency and trails only Martin and Nussmeier in total offense, where he ranks fifth nationally.

Eastern Washington, coming off a road victory over Montana, also has the advantage in rushing defense. The Eagles are second in Montana State in scoring defense and total defense. Weber State ranks last in rushing, pass and scoring defense and fifth in the eight-team league in total defense.

Elsewhere, both Boise State and Montana have their backs against the wall. Each has one Big Sky loss, and the only time the league title was won by a team with two conference losses was 1982 — by Montana.

"It's a huge game for both teams in the sense that we both have the one conference loss," said Boise State head coach Skip Hall, whose team snatched a six-game road losing streak last Saturday at Stephen F. Austin. "We need to look at winning out. If we want to be in the conference and they probably feel the same way."

The Broncos and Grizzlies have split their annual series since 1986 with each team winning on its home field. The only time Montana won in Bronco Stadium was 1978, but head coach Don Reed said the Grizzlies bring new determination to Boise after losing in Missoula last week.

"We're better than we have played to date — I believe that," Reed said.

In Moscow, No. 5 Idaho used a week off to recuperate from a number of injuries and should have trouble this week against Cal State-Northridge. The Vandals practiced just four times last week after clubbing Weber State.

Philadelphia offense should best Dallas

The Associated Press

They've had two weeks to hype it in Philadelphia and Dallas, two weeks to make it this year's Super Bowl. The Century, for example, mentions the number of times Al. Frank and Dan hyped it on LAST-MONDAY-night's game.

Too bad it's only one of two games of the Century THIS WEEK. Miami and Buffalo have been awesome in their last game, the 30-0 clobbering of Denver, in which they held the Broncos to 82 yards. The Cowboys didn't sleepwalking through Phoenix at home.

Dallas won this one last year over Kevin Moran's head punt return that effectively put the Cowboys in the playoffs and the Eagles out.

That was against a Philadelphia team without Randall Cunningham and Herschel Walker, but with Keith Jackson, who went south to Miami. Despite Jackson's loss, the Philadelphia offense is finally balanced, thanks to Walker, and receivers, Calvin Williams and Fred Barnett.

Kansas City (plus 1) at Denver
Not since 1982 have the Chiefs beaten the Broncos at Mile High Stadium. That includes seasons when the Broncos were bad and the Chiefs good and vice versa.

The jinx ends here, against the Broncos, whose offense is so ridiculed that even John Elway can't save them.

CHIEFS, 20-9

Brett says he nearly quit baseball last year

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP)

George Brett almost called it quits more than 100 hits shy of the milestone.

The Royals have a $2.5 million option on Brett's contract for next season, with $1 million buyout, but they haven't indicated their plans.

"I've always said I'm not going to play the game of baseball for money," Brett said. "I've always said I'm not going to play the game of baseball if I don't have fun."

"It's not as much fun as it was from 1976 through 1985. Those were the glory years, when I was hitting .300 every year, and we were in the playoffs almost every year. But ever since the 1985 season, we haven't sniffed the World Series or playoffs. So, definitely, some of the fun has been taken out of the game."

"Sometimes, I just feel like I'm overmatched against some pitchers, and I never felt that way before. It's not a good feeling."

A good feeling would be a first-ballot election to the Hall of Fame, a prospect greatly enhanced by reaching the 3,000 mark. But Cooperstown isn't as close as Brett present concern, although he's happy to be in that position.

"I haven't thought about it," he said.

"Hopefully, with the 3,000 hits now, I've put another candle on the cake. But it's something that I really have no control over."

Brett got four hits despite the sore shoulder. He feared might be further damaged when he swung and cause him to miss his goal of getting his 3,000th hit this season.

He took a few cuts on the batting tee before the game, decided he would play, then doubled off Julio Valera in the first inning.

Now that the Kansas City Royals' star has his 3,000 hits, the big question is how much longer he'll play.

"I don't know," Brett, 39, said after he got four hits in his first four at-bats against the California Angels on Wednesday night to become the 18th major leaguer to reach the 3,000-hit plateau. "I want to enjoy this for a while and go back to Kansas City."

Was he concerned that fans in Kansas City, where the Royals play on the first weekend of the season, didn't get to cheer the milestone at a home game?

"If the people there are upset, that I got the hit out here, then they're not really true fans ... he said after arriving Thursday at Anaheim.

"And obviously, the 19,000 people here last night didn't feel like I cheated them."

He'll take whatever bows are appropriate this weekend, but it won't get out of hand, Brett said. And regardless of fan reaction, he can't still play the far west next season.

"I'm not going to play the game and make a circus out of it," he said. "It's been too good a game to me to make a mockery of. I'm going to play as long as I can, and I'll be glad to help the team win."

Discouraged earlier this season when he was hitting .150 and the Royals lost 16 of their first 17 games, Brett considered retiring right then and there.

Kansas City Royals slugger George Brett celebrates with teammates in the clubhouse after garnering his 3,000th career hit against the California Angels Wednesday.

But Kansas City manager Hal McRae, among others, talked him out of it.

Two considerations will figure heavily in his decision for next year, and beyond: whether he believes, and can still play at a high level, and whether he believes he will still enjoy the game.

"I want to go out on my terms," Brett said. "I don't want to go out like Harmon Killebrew did."

Killebrew played his final major-league season with the Royals in 1975 after a Hall of Fame career with Minnesota.

"I remember as a kid watching Harmon Killebrew play, and he was one of the best players in baseball," Brett recalled. "But the Harmon Killebrew I played with was not one of the best players in baseball."

"[Harmon was on second base, a guy had to hit a triple for Harmon to score. And I don't want to do that.]"

"I know I'm not the player I was five years ago or 10 years ago. But I still think I can help this team win some ballgames, and I still think I can play better than most players."

"But at the same time, I don't play myself. And once I feel that I'm embarrassing myself, then it's time to quit."

Lakers' deal reportedly nets Johnson about $20 million

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Magic Johnson signed a $14.6 million one-year contract extension with the Los Angeles Lakers on Thursday, the largest single-season salary in team sports.

A source, speaking on the condition he not be identified, said the deal guaranteed Johnson $10 million through the end of the 1994-95 season, when Tuesday announced he was returning following a one-year layoff, already was under contract for this season and 1993-94 at $2.5 million per year.

The Lakers released a statement Tuesday announcing the deal, which gave no details of the dollars. A source close to the negotiations revealed the terms to The Associated Press. Johnson, 33, retired on Nov. 7, 1991, after he was diagnosed as HIV positive; but came back to play for the gold medal-winning basketball team at the Barcelona Olympics.

Johnson's one-year salary in 1994-95 surpasses the $9.4 million average that Patrick Ewing of the New York Knicks will earn under an extension he signed last November for the 1995-96 and 1996-97 seasons.

Ewing's extension, when added to his current contract, guaranteed him $33 million over six years, or an average of $5.5 million per year.

Shaquille O'Neal, this year's No. 1 pick in the NBA draft, signed with the Orlando Magic for $40 million over seven years, or an average of $5.7 million per year.

Johnson will average about $6.5 million a year.

Ryne Sandberg of the Chicago Cubs has the largest contract in baseball at $28.4 million for four years, an average of $7.1 million per year.

Bills defy experts, Redskins follow form

The Associated Press

The biggest surprise after the first quarter of the NFL season was the Buffalo Bills, who in the aftermath of two straight Super Bowl losses were supposed to slide back into the pack.

Instead they are arguably the NFL's best team, with Bruce Smith back in form and the rest of the talented group playing better than ever.

"The first time I talked about the Super Bowl was right after we got back in January," says coach Marv Levy. "I don't think it's come up at all this year."

Until, presumably, last January.

In any case, here's a look at the NFL after its first quarter.

Denver on Sunday. Can it beat Buffalo? Not right now.

Playoff teams: Buffalo, Houston, Kansas City, probably Denver (3-1) and Miami. Beyond that? Bill Cowher has Pittsburgh inspired and the collapse of the Jets and Raiders gives the Steelers a decent shot.

Three class teams right now: Dallas and Philadelphia in the East and San Francisco in the West. The Eagles and Cowboys meet Monday night in a battle of undefeated teams.

Washington (2-1) is playing like most teams play after the Super Bowl — big and fast.

Mark Rypien, who has just three TD passes in three games, is playing back to his 1989 and 1990 form — writing under a pass rush — and the hoobirds are still an RPK because of streak make the playoffs along with the Eagles and Cowboys and even the Giants can challenge for a wild-card if they win all four of the relatively easy upcoming games.

The Central is a muddle, but emerging from the pack, Tampa Bay (3-1) is a nice little comeback story, but the Bucs will probably fade some: Mike Ditka keeps the fading Bears (2-2) competitive and the Lions (1-3) have the firepower to get back in the race if they get some help.

Minnesota (2-1) seems to be coming out of the pack. Tampa Bay (3-1) is a nice little comeback story, but the Bucs will probably fade some: Mike Ditka keeps the fading Bears (2-2) competitive and the Lions (1-3) have the firepower to get back in the race if they get some help.

Herschel Walker, Philadelphia; Jim Kelly, Buffalo; Steve Young, San Francisco; John Elway, Denver.

Coach of the year: Keith Rotee, Philadelphia; Sam Wyche, Tampa Bay.

Rookie coach of the year: Dennis Green, Minnesota; Bill Cowher, Pittsburgh.

Offensive player: Steve Young, San Francisco; Michael Irvin, Dallas; Barry Foster, Pittsburgh; Jim Kelly, Buffalo.

Defensive player: Henry Jones, Buffalo; Neil Smith, Kansas City; Clyde Simmons, Philadelphia; Chris Doleman, Minnesota; Santana Dobson, Tampa Bay; Tim Harris, San Francisco.

Offensive rookie: (by default) Ricky Walters (San Francisco), who spent all of last season on injured reserve. Plus Carl Pickens, Cincinnati.

Defensive rookie: Santana Dobson, Tampa Bay.

Best old quarterback: Phil Simms, Giants.

Most surprising quarterback: Rich Gannon, Minnesota.

Best young quarterback: Brett Favre, Green Bay.

Worst young quarterbacks: Todd Marinovich, Raiders; Browning Nagle, Jets.

Best old receivers: James Lofton, Buffalo, Art Monk, Washington.

Best receiving trio: Anthony Carter-Cris Carter-Hassan Jones, Minnesota.

Best special teams player: Mel Gray, Detroit.

De Klerk appeals to Freedom Party

PRETORIA, South Africa — President F.W. de Klerk appealed Thursday to the Inkatha Freedom Party to return to talks on ending apartheid, saying there could be no settlement without the black group's participation.

Inkatha and allied black groups broke off talks this week, setting back hopes for the swift resumption of constitutional negotiations that collapsed in May.

De Klerk appeared to make a breakthrough last weekend when he held talks with ANC President Nelson Mandela on resuming negotiations on a new constitution.

But as the ANC decided to return to talks, Inkatha leader Mangosuthu Buthelezi pulled out, saying the government and the ANC were trying to sideline other groups.

Toxic waste found dumped in Somalia

MOGADISHU, Somalia — An investigation has turned up no evidence of toxic waste dumping in Somalia, a United Nations consultant said Thursday. The allegation was first made by the agency's top U.N. environmental official.

Meanwhile, the United States flew more than 20 tons of rice, corn and cooking oil to the western Somali town of Belet Huen, the first flight there since a stray bullet struck a cargo plane nearly two weeks ago. A U.S. relief official said the Americans would not provide development aid to Somalia unless leaders agreed to the deployment of 3,000 more armed U.N. troops to protect humanitarian efforts around the country.

Party reduces power of trade unions

BLACKPOOL, England — The opposition Labor Party took another step away from its left-wing roots Thursday, reducing the power of trade unions to influence party policies.

Party leaders have worked to tone down Labor's hard-left image in order to wage stronger challenges to the governing Conservative Party, which has won the last four national elections.

Delegates to the party's annual meeting voted 4.4 million to 103,000 on Thursday to reduce the unions' voting bloc at party conferences from 87 percent to 70 percent. The decision increases the voting strength of ordinary party members.

Court wants Gorbachev to testify

MOSCOW — The Constitutional Court on Thursday issued a new demand for Mikhail Gorbachev to testify in a trial on the fate of the banned Communist Party, hinting it may bring him to court by force.

The court's resolution warned Gorbachev that "as a Russian Federation citizen, he has no right to evade the law."

The 13-man panel last week summoned Gorbachev and several other former Soviet officials to testify. Almost all the others have agreed to appear. Gorbachev refused, saying the trial "may aggravate the social and political situation in the country."

The court is trying to rule on the legality of President Boris Yeltsin's decree last year that banned the party. If the ban is overturned, it could seriously damage Yeltsin's authority.

Mortar attack kills 1, injures 10

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — A mortar attack killed one person and wounded 10 in Sarajevo Thursday, and heavy fighting flared elsewhere in Bosnia-Herzegovina.

Meanwhile, new reports emerged of "ethnic cleansing" and massacres. In northern Bosnia, the International Committee of the Red Cross mounted a massive convoy of 35 buses and ambulances to evacuate more than 1,500 prisoners released from a Serb-run detention camp and escort them to safety in Croatia.

Vouchers distributed

MOSCOW (AP) — The Russian government on Thursday began distributing vouchers that will give its 148 million citizens a chance to share the wealth by taking ownership in state businesses built over seven decades of communism.

The privatization program, the centerpiece of President Boris Yeltsin's economic reforms, opens up more than 6,000 state-owned shops, factories and other businesses to private investors who can buy into them at auctions with vouchers and rubles.

Despite a government advertising blitz, the program was immediately best by confusion over how to get vouchers, how to use them, what companies would become available and when they would be put on the auction block. It was too early to predict its success or failure.

The cream-colored vouchers have a face value of 10,000 rubles, or about twice the average monthly salary. They were presented a bewildering array of options to a people taught that private ownership meant exploitation. Many Russians, perplexed and suspicious, were expected to sell their vouchers instead of becoming investors.

Britons summon German

LONDON (AP) — Relations with Germany were further strained Thursday after officials summoned the German ambassador to explain a Bundesbank document rejecting any role in the slide of the British pound.

The statement, published in the Financial Times newspaper, included a strong denial of British complaints that the bank encouraged a Sept. 16 run on the pound with hints that the currency was overvalued.

The government-run Bank of England claims "leaking" the Bundesbank document was a breach of protocol.

The currency crisis has pushed German-British relations to one of the lowest points since World War II.

The pound and other European Community currencies have suffered because of high German interest rates, which make the mark more attractive.

"We do not entirely recognize this (German) version of events. Moreover, we believe that dialogue between central banks should take place in private," the Bank of England said in a statement.

The Foreign Office requested a meeting with the German ambassador, Baron Hermann von Rittberg. The Financial Times said the document was made available by the German Embassy in London.

Man dies in accident from head injuries

CASTLEFORD — A 46-year-old Castleford man died Wednesday evening after an automobile accident in western Twin Falls County.

James Rodney Sander was flown from the accident scene to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center by helicopter but died from severe head injuries, said Gene Turley, Twin Falls County chief deputy coroner.

Sander was riding in a car driven by Gregory Mason near Castleford at between 3:30 and 4 p.m. when Mason swerved to avoid another car and lost control of his vehicle, Turley said.

Sander was thrown from the car, Turley said. Mason suffered a broken leg and other injuries.

He remained at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in stable condition Thursday.

Twin Falls County Democrats to open election headquarters

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County Democrats will open their fall election headquarters Monday and have a "grand-opening-celebration" two days later.

The headquarters, at 117 Shoshone St. N., will be open from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. weekdays and from noon to 4 p.m. Saturdays through Election Day.

The celebration on Oct. 7 will include appearances by U.S. Senate candidate Richard Stallings, District 23A state House candidate Gary Robbins, and other Democratic candidates.

Starting Monday, people interested in volunteering for any aspect of the Democratic campaign can stop by the headquarters office or phone 733-3924.

State, federal, local groups to sponsor riparian cleanup

TWIN FALLS — State and federal agencies and the local Prairie Falcon Audubon Society will sponsor a cleanup day Saturday to help improve riparian areas in the Shoshone Creek drainage of the South Hills.

Volunteers on Saturday will help build a fence around a small chain of beaver ponds at Electric Spring.

The ponds and nearby aspen hillsides, which provide food and building materials for beavers and other wildlife species, will be fenced to eliminate livestock grazing.

According to Don Oman, Twin Falls district ranger, this set of beaver ponds has been an attraction to cattle grazing in the area because there is no other good nearby source of water.

Anyone interested in helping should meet at the Sawtooth National Forest office at 2547 Kimberly Road East at 8 a.m. Saturday.

Participants should bring a lunch, drinking water and work gloves. Rides will be coordinated at the work site.

Further information can be obtained by phoning Oman at 737-3200.

Sawtooth National Forest lifts ban on chainsaws and vehicles

TWIN FALLS — Fire restrictions limiting the use of chainsaws and motorized vehicles off roads and trails between the hours of 1 p.m. and 1 a.m. in the Sawtooth National Forest have been lifted.

According to Randy Richter, fire management officer for the SNF, the hours for chainsaw and motorized vehicle use were reduced for about a month with Stage II fire restrictions in effect.

Stage I restrictions are now in force, Richter said.

They prohibit open campfires outside of developed recreation sites and allow smoking only within an enclosed vehicle, building or developed site.

People can obtain a special permit to build campfires outside a developed site. Permits are available at SNF offices in Twin Falls, Burley, Fairfield, Ketchum, Stanley, and the Sawtooth National Recreation Area Headquarters north of Ketchum.

TWIN FALLS — The presidential election this fall comes down to a choice between "probably the most respected of all world leaders" and "a draft dodger and anti-military socialist."

So said members of a team of high-ranking state Republican officials, who flew into Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional Airport Thursday morning to stump for George Bush and Dan Quayle and Bush Democratic nominees Bill Clinton and Al Gore.

"We have a stark choice," GOP national committeeman Blake Hall of Idaho Falls said. "On the one hand we have George Bush, who believes in individuals. On the other hand we have Bill Clinton, who believes in government."

Li Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter praised Bush for negotiating a free trade agreement with Canada and Mexico, which he said would open new markets in those countries for Idaho's agricultural products.

"Already we do $33 million in business with Mexico and $165 million with Canada," Otter said. "So this idea that the North American Free Trade Agreement is going to jeopardize jobs is totally false."

GOP national committeewoman Cindy Moyle of Burley praised Bush for "confronting Saddam Hussein in the Persian Gulf, resisting efforts by Third World nations to impose ridiculous environmental policies in the United States, and fighting for a real economic growth package."

Other Republican notables at the news conference/rally were state GOP chairman Phil Batt, state party finance chairman Roy Eiguren, Secretary of State Pete Cenarusa and state Treasurer Lydia Justice Edwards.

Besides Twin Falls, the group stopped in Idaho Falls, Pocatello, Boise, Lewiston and Coeur d'Alene.

Alone in the crowd of 50 or so Republicans at the airport was Carol Boast Robertson, Twin Falls County coordinator for the Clinton/Gore campaign.

Near the end of the news conference, Edwards spotted Robertson defiantly holding up a Clinton/Gore sign and addressed her directly, saying she might change her mind if she knew Bush had appointed more women to high administrative positions than any other president.

Under Clinton, on the other hand, Arkansas ranked 32nd in senior women appointees, Edwards said.

"Women may flirt with the idea of voting for Clinton," she said. "They may even have an affair with him. But on Nov. 3 (Election Day), I hope they won't bring him home to meet Mother."

Robertson said she didn't appreciate Edwards' "not-so-subtle reference to the rumors of marital infidelity that have dogged Clinton's campaign. She called the remarks 'character assassination.'"

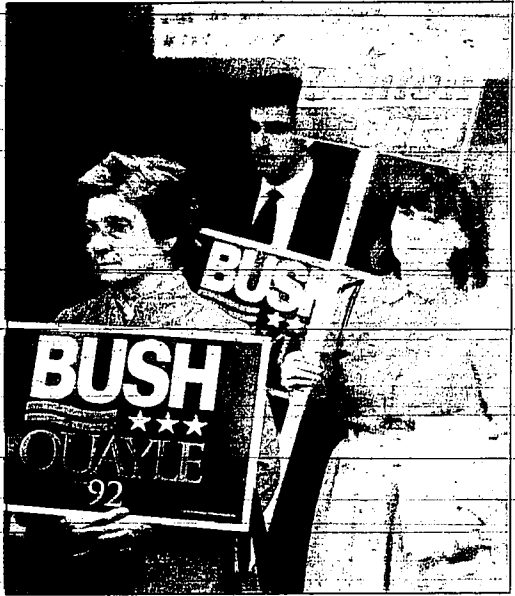

"It appears they ran out of things to say about Bush's record," she said. "It's the politics of blame."

In Boise, the state Clinton/Gore campaign called the fly-around an attempt to distract attention from polls showing Clinton and Bush virtually tied in Idaho, historically one of the strongest Republican states in the nation.

Earlier this week, a poll taken for KTVB-TV in Boise showed Clinton slightly ahead of Bush, 41 percent to 40 percent. When independent Ross Perot was included, Clinton led with 37 percent to Bush's 35 percent and Perot's 15 percent.

"The Republicans know they're on the ropes even in Idaho," said state Clinton/Gore campaign director Jonathan Foster. "This is traditionally a state the Republicans can count on. They know that if Bush is behind here, things are even worse nationally."

Hall, however, said the trip was planned months ago and had nothing to do with the poll.

The Republican rally at the Twin Falls airport attracted Bush supporters, like Laverne Koutnik, left, and Carol Robertson who came with a Democratic point of view.

Debt, depression dogged novelist who shot himself

By Kirk Mitchell
Times-News writer

DECOLO — The Wendell man who apparently shot himself to death early Wednesday was a debt collector who had fallen into debt and a Western novelist who made unsubstantiated claims about his political views.

Kenneth Redenius, who died from a single shot to the head from a .44-caliber revolver in his ex-wife's Decolo apartment, was distraught over his recent divorce, Cassia County Sheriff Billy Crystal said Thursday.

Redenius, 55, was found dead by Cassia County deputies who responded to a call about 4 a.m. His estranged wife, 37-year-old Alicia R. Pereyra, was found in the same apartment, suffering from a head wound.

"Pereyra was released from Cassia Memorial Hospital in Burley on Thursday, Crystal said. She could not be reached for comment.

Sheriff's investigators suspect Pereyra was struck by the same bullet that killed Redenius, Crystal said, but the sheriff added he has not ruled out the possibility that the two were wounded by separate bullets.

Redenius, who lived on a ranch between Wendell and Jerome with Pereyra until they divorced three months ago, owed people money and had, twice, made vague comments that he would commit suicide, said Lionel Harms, a friend of Redenius who lives in Wendell.

Redenius operated a collection agency, Private Investigation Agency, with offices in Reno and Elko, Nev., Crystal said.

The company collected bad debts for casinos, Harms said. Redenius was the subject of a profile in The Times-News last November. In that story, he claimed he had published four novels and that he had sold screenplays to ABC-TV and MCA Universal Studios.

Only one title by Redenius, "McMaster's Horses," published by Dorchester Publishing Co. of New York City, is on several general reference lists, said Linda Parkinson, reference librarian at the Twin Falls Public Library.

She said other books Redenius said he wrote might have been published by a small vanity press. Vanity presses are companies that publish book-length manuscripts for a fee paid by the author.

A Universal Studios spokesman said Thursday she had no record of any screenplay written by Redenius. ABC officials did not return a phone call.

Judge rules defendant wasn't forced to talk

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Police did not force Donnell "Bud" Stradley to tell his version of what happened the day his girlfriend's 2-year-old daughter died in January, a judge ruled Thursday.

The decision by 5th District Judge James J. May means prosecutors can use statements Stradley, 28, made when his first-degree murder trial begins next month.

"There has been no showing of coercion or of the defendant's inability to understand his Miranda rights," May said.

Twin Falls County Public Defender Mike Wood had asked that statements Stradley made to police during a Jan. 22 "interrogation" at the Twin Falls police station be suppressed.

During that interview, Stradley first told police that Amanda Hostetter began crying after a puppy knocked her down, former city police detective Ron Robertson said.

After Stradley repeated that story a couple of times, Robertson and fellow detective Jack Freeman said they didn't believe him and told him medical evidence showed a puppy could not have caused Amanda's death. Stradley then told police that he had been playing with the child, swinging her to and fro when he tossed her about 10 feet toward a waterbed, Robertson said.

According to Stradley's story, Amanda landed short of the waterbed, striking her abdomen on the bed's wooden corner. A pathologist testified in May that a severe blow to the abdomen killed Amanda.

The police intimidated Stradley and arrested him without probable cause or an arrest warrant when they appeared on his doorstep two days after Amanda's death, Wood argued.

Stradley went with the detectives voluntarily and was told more than once that he was free to go at any time and that he had the right to remain silent, Twin Falls County Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter said.

Williams will quit Congress if he can't cut federal deficit

By Drew DeSilver

TWIN FALLS — Democratic congressional candidate J.D. Williams is giving himself five years to cut the federal budget deficit in half.

If he can't do it, he won't run for re-election to a third term.

Williams, state auditor who is vying with state Sen. Mike Crapp for the open U.S. House seat, will announce what he calls

"an unprecedented pact" with 2nd District voters at news conferences today in Twin Falls and Pocatello.

His "contract" is similar to a candidate's pledge being sponsored by a group called Lead or Leave. That pledge gives candidates four

Company hopes to offer low-cost charter flights to Salt Lake City

By Craig Lincoln
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A company that charters low-cost flights plans to start daily service in December between Twin Falls and Salt Lake City.

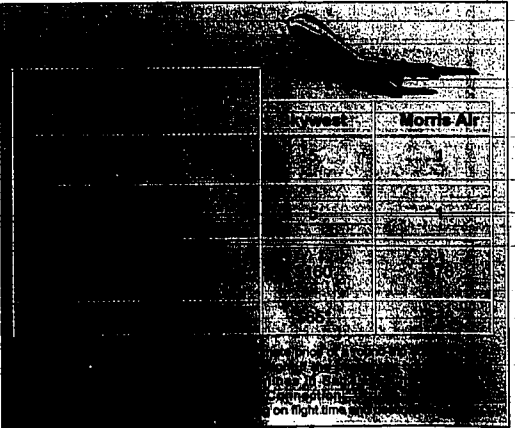

Morris Air Service of Salt Lake City hopes to offer flights as low as $78 for a round trip if tickets purchased at least 14 days in advance, Sales and Marketing Manager Elizabeth Brown said. Morris plans one flight each day.

The company will be competing with SkyWest Inc., which offers $160 round-trip tickets under the same terms, but also has five flights each day and connects with Delta Airlines flights out of Salt Lake City.

A SkyWest flight that connects with Delta in Salt Lake City costs about $65 round trip, said Revenue Analyst Kathy Snow of SkyWest.

Competing with Morris Air is a familiar prospect for SkyWest. In other SkyWest airports that Morris Air started serving, the competition turned out to be beneficial, SkyWest Vice President of Market Planning Steve Hart said.

Buhl School Board looks to committees to help make improvements decisions

By Bertila L. Redfern
Times News correspondent

BÜHL - Board members will look toward committees to help them make decisions on several building improvement projects.

Meanwhile, board members agreed to set up other committees to provide guidance on still more projects.

At its meeting Tuesday, board members received a proposal from Honeywell, regarding facility upgrades, operational improvements and lighting and energy savings.

Scott McClure of McClure

Engineering also addressed the board about a similar issue with a different twist.

McClure discussed the school conducting an energy audit. He said it was possible the school could receive matching government funds to help pay for the audit and the upgrades.

In another matter, Pete Anderson of Meyers Anderson Architects gave board members the bids for finishing the high school track.

The board decided to have its building committee go over the several proposals and make a recommendation to school officials.

Two other issues also surfaced at the meeting Tuesday, including a policy regarding using materials for school that contain asbestos and a possible dress-code for students.

Superintendent Gene Pyles was asked by the board to set up committees to study both matters and report to the board.

In other business:

- Board members approved their financial audit for the 1991/92 school year.
- Mike Burr conducted the audit, and he cautioned the school district about its slightly low fund balance.
- Burr said it is usually recommended that a school district have enough money in their fund balance to be able to operate for two months.

Currently, the district has $228,000 in the fund balance, which is only enough to carry the district through two thirds of one month.

- A teacher from each school was elected to the 1992 district Teacher of the Year.
- Kindergarten teacher Charlene Maxton, was selected for the elementary school; Helen Brown, who teaches physical education, was selected for the middle school; and Janice Weidner, an English teacher, was chosen for the high school.

Andrew victims do without 'luxuries'

Ojga came back today. She didn't come for three days and I thought we had lost her. She is my best translator. We want to feature her in an interview with the media. She will be an interesting subject with a sharp wit and keen insight on human nature.

We visited one tent city that was just a medical center. It was very large and had everything up to an operating room. Many people are just now getting treatment for injuries suffered during the storm.

One little girl was getting the cast on her leg replaced. She was very stoic and didn't smile. I have all had illnesses and go to the clinics that are in a school gym.

When I get home every night, I got sit on the dock to unwind. Last night, I watched a shark patrol an area close by. I met a girl from Cuba at my hotel who is paying her own way to come and help. She translates for people and tries to speak with their particular accent. She says people don't accept her help otherwise.

Ruth Young, the manager of the Sawtooth Chapter of the American Red Cross, is in Florida helping victims of Hurricane Andrew. She has agreed to share her observations with Times-News readers. She faxed this handwritten account from Homestead, Fla.

Woman files suit against sheriff's office for assault

MOSCOW (AP) - A Spokane, Wash., woman has filed suit against the Latah County sheriff's office and a former deputy over her sexual assault while in the Latah County Jail.

The civil lawsuit contends former deputy Norman Van Ness Jr., 24, threatened her while she was jailed for grand theft on Sept. 24, 1990, saying "things could get worse" for her if she refused his sexual advances.

Van Ness initially was charged with committing an infamous crime against nature, a felony, in connection with the incident. But he pleaded guilty on Nov. 14, 1990, to a misdemeanor charge of unnecessary assault by a peace officer.

Magistrate Brent Hamilton ordered Van Ness to serve 18 days in the county jail. He also was on probation until last January.

The woman's civil complaint contends the sheriff's office "acted without reasonable care in hiring, training and supervising Van Ness, and that officials failed to supervise or protect the plaintiff while she was an inmate."

Brother, mother of gunman killed by deputy in hostage incident arrested

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) - The brother and mother of a gunman killed by a sheriff's deputy in a hostage incident were arrested Thursday after driving cross-country in search of their relative's estranged wife, authorities said.

Water C. Weaver, 46, and Pearl Weaver, 71, both of Morrisville, Penn., were held without bail Thursday night in the Kootenai County Jail, the county sheriff's department said in a statement.

Water Weaver was being held on a felony probation warrant out of Pennsylvania, and Pearl Weaver was held for investigation of possession of a stolen weapon.

Morrisville police on Tuesday alerted north Idaho authorities that the Weavers were headed by car to Kootenai County, reportedly looking for Charlotte Weaver, 37, the estranged wife of Robert Weaver.

"If he had said he didn't want to go, he didn't have to go," Baxter told the judge.

"At the police station, Stradley read and signed a form outlining his rights, but Wood used psychological evaluations to argue that his client would do anything to avoid conflict with authorities.

"He simply is easily overcome ... and has very little will to resist pressure whatsoever," Wood said.

He called Ketchum psychologist Dan Luntz into the suit's interview room. Stradley's intelligence and his ability to withstand pressure.

Stradley's intelligence rates in the lowest 9 percent of normal adults, and his "passive-dependent" personality makes it nearly impossible for Stradley to stand up to authority figures in a stressful situation, Hamilton said.

It is unlikely that Stradley would feel free to leave the same interview room with two detectives sitting there, he said.

"Stress affects him so badly ... Bud is so disabled in some situations he can't function at all," Hamilton said.

Baxter pointed out that Stradley had been in the same interview room or a similar room in connection with another police matter twice before

Ernest E. Willoughby
KIMBERLY - Ernest E. Willoughby, 81, of Kimberly, died Wednesday, Sept. 30, 1992, at his home following an extended illness.

He was born July 18, 1911, in Jacksboro, Tenn., the son of Robert Sherman and Jennie Grosse Willoughby. On Sept. 3, 1932, he married Wilso Warmsham in Lyons, Kan. The couple farmed in Missouri for a short time before making their home in Englewood, Calif., where he worked for North American Aviation. In 1943, they moved to Murtaugh where they farmed until 1947, and then purchased a farm south of Kimberly. Mr. Willoughby farmed there until his retirement in 1971, and then moved to Kimberly.

Survivors include his wife of 60 years, Wilso Willoughby of Kimberly; one daughter, Marie of Eagle, three granddaughters, Cheri (Mrs. Larry) Hartley and Kim (Mrs. Mike) Winkle of Twin Falls, and Pam (Mrs. Kurt) McCloskey of Eagle; four grandchildren, Scott and Steve McCloskey, of Eagle; and Jessica and Amanda Hartley of Twin Falls, and two sisters, Addie Boggs of Bonita Springs, Fla., and Linda Lusk of Knoxville, Tenn. He was preceded in death by one daughter, Janet Wain.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday at the Kimberly Funeral Chapel. Friends may call from 4 to 8 p.m. today at the Kimberly Funeral Chapel.

James R. Sander
CASTLEFORD - James Rodney Sander, 46, of Castleford, died Wednesday, Sept. 30, 1992, as the result of an automobile accident.

He was born Dec. 14, 1945, in Denver, Colo., to Ragnar and Jennie Tun Sander. He lived in Arizona for many years and moved to Idaho in 1930, where he worked with his brother. He was currently working for the Three Creek Road District.

He is survived by a son, James Ragnar Sander, and a daughter, Jody Parker, both of Arizona; two brothers, John Sander of Twin Falls and Jerry Sander of Buhl; five sisters, Judy, Jennie and Janice, all of North Carolina, Joyce of Arizona and Johanna of Minnesota; and three grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his parents and a sister.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Monday at the Farmer Funeral Chapel in Buhl. Burial will follow at the West End Cemetery in Buhl. Friends may call from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday at the funeral chapel.

Although estimates of the deficit vary, Williams sees $400 billion as his benchmark. If the deficit is not down to $200 billion by January 1998 - that is, midway through what would be Rep. Williams' third term - he says he won't seek re-election.

Williams says he chose five years, rather than lead ... or Leave's four, because "I believe that is a reasonable period for making progress on this problem."

Pat Miller, a district coordinator with Lead ... or Leave, called Williams' promise "interesting."

County bills federal agencies for standoff

BONNIBR FERRY — Boundary County is sending bills totaling about $76,000 to federal agencies to cover costs associated with an 11-day standoff that ended in the summer last month of fugitive Randy Weaver.

Commissioner Chris Evershades said the bills were to be passed along to the FBI on Friday. Spokesman Ron Van Vranken of the FBI's Salt Lake City office said officials were still trying to figure out when bills would be paid.

Commissioner Low Smith said the bills include more than $15,000 in reimbursement for law enforcement overtime, more than $9,000 for rebuilding a bridge across the creek to withstand the weight of military vehicles brought to the site.

The largest single bill was $25,000 for services provided by the North Bench Fire Department.

Smith said the county considers the federal government responsible for the bills and expects to be paid.

8 apply to succeed district judge Trout

LEWISTON — Eight people have applied to succeed Linda Trout as 2nd District court judge at Lewiston, including Nez Perce County Magistrate David C. Gray and William Stiglmom.

Trout was the first judge of Lewiston from 1991 to 1992 and as a magistrate from 1983 to 1991, was appointed by Gov. Cecil Andrus in August to be the first female member of the Idaho Supreme Court.

Also applying for the district judge job are Lewiston lawyers Kurt Merica, John Steiner and Dean Wullensaber, Idaho Law Enforcement Deputy Director Robert Monte MacConnell, Coeur d'Alene lawyer Ida Leggett and Boise lawyer Bruce Bistline.

All applicants will be interviewed by the Idaho Judicial Council Nov. 9.

Group tries to block reconstruction

OROFINO — "Power politics" by a special-interest group in Boise threatens plans to rebuild Orofino's State Hospital North and could undermine community mental health care, hospital administrator Marvin Lambrecht claims.

"There's a misconception out there that we are increasing the capacity of State Hospital North," Lambrecht Wednesday told the Orofino Chamber of Commerce.

The misconception, he said, is being fueled by the Boise chapter of the Alliance for the Mentally III. He said they told him they will attempt to introduce legislation blocking planned construction of a new hospital there.

The alliance contends Orofino is far too isolated for families to visit patients, and community-based care would be much better.

FAA awards county grant for terminal

COEUR D'ALENE — The Federal Aviation Administration has awarded Kootenai County a $920,000 grant for a reconstruction project at the Coeur d'Alene Air Terminal.

The grant will allow the county to merge two renovation projects at the airport and save up to $30,000, county administrative director Dave Bruce said.

Estimated project costs are $1 million. Work includes runway and taxiway reconstruction, electrical improvements, a new taxiway connector and safety lighting.

U of I votes to end lobby membership

MOSCOW — The Idaho Student Lobby representing the state's public universities is in jeopardy after nearly two years of operation.

In a 11-2 vote Wednesday, the University of Idaho Student Senate rejected a resolution to continue membership in what senator Daniel Whiting called an "ineffective, bureaucratic mess."

Senator Richard Rock contended UI students have wasted more than $4,000 on it in that time, and the operation is hindered by any one school having veto authority over its agenda.

Earlier Wednesday, Russ Weddon, lobby executive director, said the group's "budget is now in limbo largely because the senators vividly recall the improprieties of the former director, Charles D'Allesio."

State wants more work centers for prisoners

'BOISE (AP) — The state Department of Corrections wants to open more community work centers outside the prison system where inmates can start making their way back into society.

"Our plan is to eventually have one in each of the seven judicial districts, in all of the state's population centers," Corrections Director Richard Vernon told an advisory panel Thursday.

He presented the department's six-year construction plan for the state, Permanent Building Fund Council.

The panel is hearing spending requests from state agencies and later will send a recommendation to Gov. Cecil Andrus.

The spending requests are for the fiscal year starting next July 1.

Vernon told the panel the most pressing needs are at "the farm," a minimum security area of the main state prison complex south of Boise.

What started as a small facility where prisoners could help with farm work to benefit the prison has turned into the state's second-largest institution, Vernon said.

When a new 190-bed unit is finished in about a year, its capacity will be about 450 inmates, larger than any prison except the main prison, Vernon said.

The spending request included $110,000 to upgrade the electrical system at the farm, $388,000 to expand the kitchen and $316,000 for a new administration-medical building.

But Vernon said next in priority is $700,000 to fund the fifth community work center. The third work center is nearing completion at Twin Falls. The fourth center has been funded.

Vernon said the department is looking at locations in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho Falls and Boise.

The fifth center, which hasn't been approved by the Legislature yet, probably will be in a community which doesn't get the fourth center, he said.

The spending plan for fiscal year 1995 lists $735,000 for the next center and the 1996 proposal asks the same amount for another center.

After the farm proposals and the fifth work center, the department's request seeks $2.9 million for a 100-bed geriatric unit-hospital at the main prison.

Vernon said the prison has a lot of older prisoners with special medical needs. An 82-year-old man recently died at the prison, he said.

Council member Bob Peyron asked if Vernon has considered the possibility of putting geriatric prisoners elsewhere instead of constructing a new building.

"We've looked at nursing homes ... but unless they can be paroled, it wouldn't be any cheaper," the director said.

Often older prisoners are sex offenders who can't be released and must simply live out their lives behind bars, he said.

The department's request covers $7.1 million in spending for the next budget year, $18.4 million for fiscal 1995, including $14 million for two new 96-bed wings added to the maximum security prison and $3.6 million for fiscal 1996.

State liquor agency plans own warehouse

'BOISE (AP) — Officials of the Idaho Liquor Dispensary say the state could come out more than $17 million ahead over the next 35 years by building its own liquor warehouse rather than continuing to rent a privately owned facility.

Dean Summers, superintendent of the agency that runs 50 state-owned liquor stores and nearly 100 contract outlets, and assistant superintendent James Baugh appeared before a state panel Thursday seeking approval of a plan to spend $3.6 million to build a liquor warehouse.

The state now pays $156,000 a year to rent 52,000 square feet of space from Fred Bagley, a former state senator from Ada County. The rental agreement started in 1970 when the agency was renting 40,000 square feet of warehouse space and 7,500 square feet of office space for $44,000 per year.

The building has been expanded since then and the rent has gone up to $156,000 per year.

Summers and Baugh told the Permanent Building Fund Council if the current building must be expanded to keep up with demand, they project by 2026, the state will be paying $910,000 per year in rent.

They estimate by paying for a new building, the operation will save nearly $16 million in rent and by 2027, the facility will appreciate $5.6 million in value.

The Legislature last year approved $550,000 to buy a six-acre building site in westside County, near Emerald and Five Mile. The officials went before the council seeking approval to spend $160,000 in the state budget that starts July 1, 1993, for architectural and engineering and $260,000 for parking lot work and landscaping.

The organization plans to erect the building in fiscal year 1995, which starts July 1, 1994, at a cost of $3 million with another $100,000 for furniture, fixtures and equipment.

State legislators, including Rep. Ruby Stone and Sen. Ed Osborne, Boise-Republicans, have voiced opposition to the project. But Kathleen Gurnsey, R-Boise, co-chairman of the Legislature's budget committee, supports it.

Council member Sen. Denny Davis, D-Coeur d'Alene, asked Baugh how much would be lost in property taxes if the state vacated the privately owned building for its own facility.

"The property taxes will continue to be paid on that building (Baugh's property), even if we aren't there," he responded.

Summers said the agency plans to switch in 1993 from a system where it has a lease agreement of liquor to one where it acts like a bonded warehouse, with far less investment in inventory. That will generate a one-time cash flow of about $8 million, of which $3.9 million could cover the cost of the new warehouse.

Pianist plays to all sizes of crowds

By Denise Turner
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Pianist Laura Spitzer has already been featured on ABC and NBC national news as well as in magazines like Time and Reader's Digest, but she's not resting on past laurels. This weekend, she will blaze her new trails by way of Twin Falls.

Season tickets, Master's Class - B7

"I guess I'm sort of on a mission to bring classical music to as many communities and schools as possible," Spitzer said in a recent phone interview. Occasionally, she performs in large auditoriums, like she will this Sunday, but much of the time she veers off the beaten path.

Since 1984, Spitzer, 39, has traveled more than 60,000 miles through rural America in her truck, Steinway in tow. She got the idea while she was living in Nevada.

Spitzer had already completed her undergraduate studies at the Mozarteum in Salzburg, Austria, where she graduated with distinction. She had also toured with the Austrian Ensemble for New Music. Upon her return to the United States, she set out to earn her master's degree in piano performance from Baltimore's Peabody Institute.

"When I moved to Nevada, after I please see SPITZER/B7

Laura Spitzer says she's sort of on a mission to bring classical music to as many communities and schools as possible.

Spitzer to perform with symphony

Laura Spitzer will perform with the Magic Valley Symphony at 3 p.m. Sunday in the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium.

Admission to the concert is $5 for adults or $3 for students and senior citizens. Tickets are available at Jud's Bookstore, Welch's Music, CSI Bookstore, Andrew's Hallmark, Warner Music, Music Center, West One Bank in Jerome or at the door.

A reception honoring Spitzer and the symphony will be held in the Eagle's Nest in the CSI Taylor Building immediately after the concert.

Briefly in the arts

Oktoberfest changes downtown into village

TWIN FALLS - "Gemutlichkeit" (let's all get together and have fun) is the operative word from this year's Oktoberfest planning committee.

Downtown will be transformed into a German village from 2 to 7 p.m. today and 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday. A street dance is set for 7 to 11 tonight.

The weekend event will feature German and ethnic foods, continuous live music, handmade arts and crafts, pony rides, a petting zoo and a scarecrow contest. Among the bands performing are the Keith Kopp German Band, the Christmann German Band and D.J. & Friends Honky Tonk Band. The Bob Nori Band will play for the street dance.

Also taking the stage will be Lori Head's School of Dance, the Handy Huddler Cloggers, singer Marla Garrett, Fiddle Six and accordionist Lamont Williamson. An evening of improvisational dance is scheduled to take place at 7 p.m. Saturday in front of the Metropolis.

Country Showdown's Idaho final set for Elkhorn Resort

SUN VALLEY - The Idaho final of the True Value Hardware/GMC Truck Country Showdown will be held at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Showplace Salon at the Radisson Elkhorn Resort.

Stations sending finalists to the Radisson Elkhorn Resort include KQFC in Boise, KUPI-FM in Idaho Falls, KART in Jerome and KRCL in Lewiston. Travis Johnson of Twin Falls is the finalist sponsored by KART Radio in Jerome.

Artists from throughout Idaho vie for the Showdown title, a $1,000 cash prize and the opportunity to advance to the regional level. Each contestant is hoping for the kind of success enjoyed by Sweethearts of the Rodeo, whose Showdown win launched their career with Columbia Records.

The winner of the Idaho Showdown will go on to the regional competition later this year and then, in January 1993, the televised national final. Averaging the national winner is the grand prize of $50,000, a 1993 Yukon from GMC Truck and a recording contract.

Little Theatre's cast for 'A Bad Year for Tomatoes' set

TWIN FALLS - The Magic Valley Little Theatre has announced the cast for its fall production, "A Bad Year for Tomatoes."

Cast members are Lori Van Rinsum, Jean Hovey, Tami Birch, Cathleen Flores, Larry Larson, Jerry Green and Pete Van Wyke. Bruce Whitehead is director.

The lighthearted comedy farce, written by John Patrick, will be performed Nov. 5-8 at the Turf Club, with opening night proceeds being donated to the Twin Falls High School Auditorium Fund.

Museum may have dug up 6 lost silent Walt Disney films

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands - The Dutch Film Museum has unearthed what it believes are the only surviving copies of six early Walt Disney films, silents made between 1923 and 1927, spokesman Rene Wolf said.

The films, each lasting five to 10 minutes, are among 15 short Disney films discovered recently in the museum's Amsterdam archives where they apparently lay unnoticed for decades, Wolf said.

"As far as we've been able to ascertain no one, not even the Disney archives in Los Angeles, has these six titles," he added.

Walt Disney Co. spokesman Frank Lomanto said the Burbank-based company was unaware of the find and had Wolf said Disney worked personally on the films as part of an "Alice-in-Carrolland" intended as sequels to his earlier "Alice in Wonderland," based on the book by Lewis Carroll.

"Four more of the 15 titles are valuable finds as they appear to be more complete copies than any held elsewhere," Wolf said.

The 35mm black-and-white films, with titles like "Alice in the Big League," "Alice The Firefighter" and "Alice's Day At Sea," are captioned in Dutch and would have been shown in movie theaters in the Netherlands in the 1920s, Wolf said.

They are an early example of combined live action and animation, featuring a young actress playing Alice superimposed on a cartoon background. Disney later rejected this approach in favor of fully animated films starring the cartoon characters like Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck for which he is most famous.

Typical family doesn't exist in diverse TV land

By Jerry Buck
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES - It's difficult to find a typical American family on television these days.

The reason is because more than ever television reflects changes in family life in this country and the variety of family groups.

"Television is more realistic and more reflective of the diversity within our culture," says David Poltrack, CBS senior vice president for planning and research. "The families of 'Leave It To Beaver' or 'Ozzie and Harriet' were typically white, middle-class families. Two parents, two children and a dog. The families of television today represent almost every different configuration of family unit, as well as reflecting the black population and other minorities."

The most popular family of the 1980s was the Huxtables, a black, middle-class family on "The Cosby Show." The most popular family of the 1990s is the Connors, a struggling blue-collar family portrayed on "Roseanne."

"What's the typical family? The Thatchers on ABC's 'Life Goes On,' a white family whose son has Down syndrome? The Winslows on ABC's 'Family Matters,' a black family headed by a policeman? The working newblends on NBC's comedy 'Mad About You?' The Russos on NBC's 'Blossom,' suffering the aftermath of divorce and an older brother who is a recovering substance abuser?

Television has changed, and so has the family. One in eight families today is headed by a single parent. Among blacks only about one in three families was headed by two parents, according to the U.S. Census Bureau.

"I think television reflects family values from top to bottom," says David Jacobs, executive producer and creator of CBS' "Knots Landing." "On shows like 'thirtysomething' and 'Knots Landing' there are happy marriages, there are troubled marriages, there are broken marriages. I think when television does a farcical approach to marriage as in 'Married ... with Children,' it's obviously a farce."

The reflection of family values came under attack last May when Vice President Dan Quayle criticized the out-of-wedlock birth on CBS' "Murphy Brown." The assault on television increased at the Republican National Convention, and although the Republicans have backed off somewhat, Quayle continues to flog Hollywood on the campaign trail.

"I would hate to think that anyone would make decisions on how to raise their family based on a sitcom," says Danny Jacobson, executive producer and co-creator of "Mad About You." "It's hard for me to believe there would be that much effect. As far as family values go I don't think that 'Murphy Brown' is going to be the ruination of any family."

Low Hunter, a professor of screenwriting at UCLA, writer and former network executive, says he thinks the portrayal of families has become more cynical.

"I think the audience has become more anesthetized to what they see and hear," Hunter says. "Kids hear the f-word more than 24 times in an average R-rated movie, and don't tell me they're not getting it. I went to a meeting about responsibility in motion pictures, television and records last night. They played a record that was absolutely unbelievable. You can't even print the title."

Peter Chernin, president of Fox Entertainment, said in an address to a cable convention in San Francisco last month that it would "be arrogant and cynical of us - and a grievous mistake - to turn a deaf ear" to Quayle and the issue of family values.

He says that while Quayle is tuned to a legitimate concern of millions of Americans, he feels his approach is simplistic.

"I think via television you can deal with morals and values in a much more sophisticated, relevant way than he does," Chernin says, adding that the Fox Network has made a "huge leap from the insipid, whitebread world of '50s television." He says he thinks "The Simpsons," a show criticized by President Bush, is one of the most moral shows on television.

Poltrack says CBS found in focus-group sessions last May that "Murphy Brown" is the character people most

KKVI decides 'Civil Wars' pushed nudity limits

By Terrell Williams
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS - The stars of "Civil Wars" will have to put their clothes on if they want to be on KKVI Channel 35 television.

Station manager Dick McMahon previewed this week's episode of "Civil Wars," then went on the air at 9 p.m. Wednesday to tell viewers that the ABC show would be replaced this time by an episode of "Highway To Heaven."

"There was a lot of publicity about it," McMahon said Thursday. "We elected to take a look at it and make a decision."

This episode of "Civil Wars" contained a scene with a full body side shot of a nude woman, he said.

"We got a lot of viewers calling us all the time, saying, 'Why do you let this stuff through,' so last night, we just took the position that we weren't going to show it, especially since it was available on another channel (KIVI) here in town," he explained. "We decided to do something else."

KKVI immediately got more than 30 telephonic calls of protest, McMahon said.

"People were saying we had no right to dictate what they see, that it's censorship, and things like that," he said. "By this morning, we're getting many more compliments on that decision."

About 40 calls on Thursday were in favor of pulling the show, he said, noting that an additional three-complaint calls were registered.

"It was not censoring because it was available on Channel 30 (from Nampa)," McMahon emphasized. "We went on the air at 9 and said, 'We're not going to show it but here's where you can see it.' That's an important point."

As manager of KKVI since it began almost four years ago, McMahon said he will continue to reserve the right to decide what the station will air. He could not say if increased nudity is a new trend in television. But, McMahon said, this episode was pushing the old limits.

"It was kind of a breakthrough as far as what the network was doing," he said.

Spitzer

Continued from B5 graduated from Peabody, I applied for some grants," Spitzer said. "I found there were sprouts of arts councils in small towns and people would say, 'We would love to have you, but we don't even have a good piano.'"

The solution, Spitzer decided, was to take along her instrument. So she took a crash—figuratively speaking—course in piano moving and hit the road. For her efforts, she was honored with the 1986 Nevada Governor's Arts Award.

Spitzer eventually moved back to her home state, where she is pursuing doctoral studies at the University of Southern California and serving as assistant-lecturer-of-keyboard studies. But her dream of taking music to rural communities has remained intact.

Last February, Spitzer invented a new and unique course entitled self management/touring. "Music students graduate without the slightest idea of how to make a living performing, so they don't," Spitzer said. "I'm teaching them to book their own tour schedules." She added, "There are students out there dying to find places to play to get ready for recitals, and there are towns dying for performers."

Spitzer's passion for music developed early on. She was inspired by her mother, a piano teacher. "As a young child, I thought my mother sounded so mysterious and adult playing the grand piano," Spitzer said.

These days, when Spitzer books rural concerts—she travels with a small concert grand built in 1888. "It's exquisite," she said. "It has more wisdom than I do."

In Twin Falls, Spitzer will play "Rhapsody on a Theme by Paganini" by Rachmaninoff, in addition to several solo selections. The symphony will play "Charade" by Muczynski and "Symphony No. 40 in G Minor" by Mozart.

Typical

Continued from B5 admire, relate to or identify with. She replaces Bill Cosby, who remained most popular.

"The public is looking at positive role models versus negative role models," Poltrac says. "The public does not perceive Murphy Brown as a negative role model. But they do perceive Al Bundy of 'Married... With Children' as a negative role model."

Understand that on 'Married... With Children' they are making fun of these people, but my kids think they're cool. It's not so much Al Bundy as it is the kids. Kids see the promiscuous daughter and gross son as cool. Kids don't make the distinction.

Bob Myer, a former executive producer of ABC's "Roseanne," says such shows as "The Cosby Show" and "Roseanne" helped bring back the nuclear family to television after a long flirtation with surrogate families.

"Roseanne" is the most realistic portrait of a family ever presented in a comedy series. It ignores politics and the big soap-box issues so many producers find irresistible to concentrate on the small matters that bring a family closer together or drive them apart. Unlike many family shows that concentrate on precocious children, "Roseanne" is told from the viewpoint of the parents.

Poltrac says "The Cosby Show" was a major breakthrough in 1984 because the black middle-class family at the show became the ideal

• Winets—of the symphony's youth soloist competition will perform with the symphony on Nov. 24.

• George Rosenberg, the founder of the Northern Nevada Concert Orchestra, will conduct the symphony on March 5.

• Celebrated puppeteer and TV star Shari Lewis (with Lamb Chop) will present a special family concert with the symphony on April 20. This concert is expected to be sold out early.

Season tickets for all four concerts are priced at $18 for individuals, $64 for a foursome, $79 for a family (two adults and up to six children) or $50 for a fan club membership. Various business memberships are also available. For information, call Doris Wilks at 733-2382.

Pianist to perform for school children

Pianist Laura Spitzer will perform for several groups of Twin Falls school children at 9:30 a.m. Monday in the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium. In addition, she will conduct a Master's Class from 1 to 3 p.m. Monday in Room 121 of the CSI Fine Arts Building. Those interested in playing for Spitzer or those who would like to audit the class may call Ted Hadley at 733-1079.

family to whites as well as blacks. In polls conducted by CBS, the Huxtables, played by Cosby and Phylicia Rashad, were the most popular characters on television and the most admired.

"You had the white population saying these black characters were role models they admired or related to," Poltrac says. "It was a major breakthrough. Before that black families were more representative of the white person's view of 'black America.'"

Jack of all trades brings poetry to Twin Falls

By Denise Turner
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — When Jack Prelutsky comes to Twin Falls this weekend, he will bring along his rich flights of imagination that have turned turning children into poetry lovers for more than 20 years now.

Prelutsky's children's favorites have won everything from School Library Journal awards to New York Times Best Illustrated Book honors. Some of his best known titles are "The New Kid on the Block," "Something Big has been Here," "The Queen of Eene" and "The Headless Horseman Rides Tonight."

Program set for Saturday

Jack Prelutsky will present a program at 1 p.m. Saturday at Judi's Bookstore. After the program, he will be available to autograph his books.

More Poems to Trouble Your Sleep

Prelutsky was born in Brooklyn in 1940. After high school, he enrolled in Hunter College, but soon left "to become a frog collection. He lives in Olympia, Wash., with his wife Carolyn. When he is not writing poetry, Prelutsky can often be found singing tenor with opera companies and choruses. He also likes bicycling, woodworking, playing racquetball and cooking. An avid gamer, he is currently devising several board and computer games which he hopes to see produced.

He wrote for his own amusement, but a friend read the poems and urged Prelutsky to show them to a children's book editor. His first book, "A Gopher in the Garden," was published in 1967. Today, Prelutsky works out of a studio in his house, near his beloved

Horoscope

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Focus on intensity, responsibility, legitimate opportunity to hit financial jackpot. You'll be provided with promotional plans, budget, limited rundown of one who would be partner.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): All stops out — sky is the limit. Relationship serious result in partnership, marriage. Long-distance call verifies views.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): —Stress independence, originality, willingness to participate in "dating" project. You'll be enlightened concerning whereabouts of young person, possibly family member.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emotional responses dominate scenario. You'll question yourself concerning love: By late afternoon you regain sense of direction and become clear regarding motivation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): What appears to be lows will boom during your favor. You'll have more room, "private space." Harmony restored at home. Celebration, previously postponed, could take place tonight. Yay!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23): Steer clear of one who is superficial, obnoxious. Let others know you mean business. Check durability of goods. Get guarantees in writing. Revise, review, remodel.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Check Libra message. Scenario features gain via written word, flirtation, invitation to travel. Emphasis also on better display for product, talent.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Gift received, brighten, living quarters, represents genuine touch of affection, esteem. Unusual dining experience will be accompanied by music.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Get rid of superfluous material, unnecessary expenses. "You'll receive" information previously withheld, contains data required for progress. Those who counted you out will have red faces.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): What was lost will be replaced by "something more valuable." Older individual leads benefit of experience, confides, "I'm much attracted to you!" "Yes!" "I'll have luck in matters of finance and romance."

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Scenario features universal appeal, wider audience, search for "soul mate." Promotional due accompanied by apology for delay. Superior admits, "Could I have done it without you?" Vindication!

Q: Did you ever come up with that name for the national organization for roadheads?
A: It's RASP — for "Redheads are Special People." Did I tell you Thomas Jefferson was a redhead? So was Ned.

'Mohicans' revives heroes with principles

By Rita Kempley
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — "The Last of the Mohicans" is a rapturous revision of the schoolroom classic, following the trail blazed by "Dances With Wolves" and more recently "Unforgiven."

A rousing frontier saga drawn from James Fenimore Cooper's "Leatherstocking" tales, it looks back with loving on the savage Eden of 18th-century America, a lush old-growth wilderness from which mountains rise like sleeping giants wreathed in cloud. Painstakingly, breathtakingly, re-created by director Michael Mann, this landscape makes room for principles greater than the circumference of their belts — lean, smoldering, woody-scented men.

Set in the 1750s during the French and Indian War, "The Last of the Mohicans" looks not only at the glorious possibilities of the New World, but at the violent collision of cultures that marked the beginning of European domination of the continent.

The explosion brought about a sturdy hybrid represented by Hawkeye (Daniel Day-Lewis), the European-born adopted son of the patriarch Mohican Chingachgook. That's not to say that Day-Lewis's portrait of Hawkeye isn't just a little bit Hollywood. A cross between John and romance-novel cover boy Favio, the cerebral Britisher seems to do for big hair what Don Johnson did for beard stubble in Mann's designer cop drama, TV's "Miami Vice."

Part modern romance, part historical re-creation, the story no longer has much to do with Cooper's original, which Mann blames for depicting, racist and shallow — especially when it came to his characterization of Native Americans. Credited with the concept of the noble savage, Cooper would scarcely recognize Chingachgook, wonderfully played by American Indian movement leader Russell Means. The story is based more on Randolph Scott's 1936 film of the same title, but Hawkeye has evolved from a celibate colonialist into a corset-popping proto-democrat.

Twentieth Century Fox

Daniel Day-Lewis stars as Hawkeye, a frontiersman raised by a Mohican chief, in 'The Last of the Mohicans.'

Not that the movie points the drum for political correctness. Mann will have none of that buffalo bull. With the help of co-screenwriter Christopher Crowe, he's populated the film with cruel, jealous, lusty, vengeful, worldly, proud, wealthy humans who happen to have sharp cheekbones and tobacco-colored skin. Neither as cuddly as the tribes of "Dances With Wolves" nor as bloodthirsty as those in "Black Robe," they are nevertheless ruthless in combat.

Day-Lewis finds a dynamic myth in Madeleine Stowe, who plays Cora Munro, the cultured daughter of the English officer in charge of Fort William Henry. Newly arrived in the Colonies, Cora and her younger sister, Alice (Joshi May) are rescued from a Huron war party by Hawkeye, his handsome brother Uncas (Eric Schweig) and Chingachgook, who hear their screams from a camp in the woods nearby.

The three that accompany the women to Fort William Henry (re-built based on period documentation), which they find besieged by the French and their Huron allies. The small party slips through enemy lines into an "Apocalypse Now" of the period.

Despite the heroic efforts of the British and their Mohawk allies, the fort falls to the French when Col. Munro (Maurice Jarvis), surrenders to Gen. Montcalm (Patrick Chabeau). Montcalm's terms are generous: The British simply abandon the fort, return to their homes, and fight no more. But Montcalm hadn't counted (or had he) on the actions of his ally, Magua (Wes Studi), the Huron war captain who plots the massacre of the retreating troops, their women and children.

Review

Many of the scenes, the massacre among them, are not for the squeamish; tomahawks-and-knives leave especially gruesome wounds. Sculpting is also graphically depicted, as is a particularly nasty form of heart surgery reminiscent of "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom."

There is spectacular scenery: North Carolina's mysterious Smoky Mountains, which protect one of the nation's last two old-growth forests, stand in for the New York wilderness Cooper described. Of course, the movie's all the more poignant simply because that rugged paradise doesn't really exist anymore.

In the real world, there are tacky souvenir shops and cheap mementoes down below. Mann's major achievement is that for two hours or so, he and his characters seem to have forgotten all that. They've thrown themselves into the project with urgency of a bucket squad at a barn fire. Mann, who's best known for such urban crime dramas as "Vice" and "Manhunter," is equally at home whether the chase concerns a cigarette boat or a bighorn caracal. He brings the same tight pacing action and style to "The Last of the Mohicans," an attempt to resurrect and redefine the American hero.

Larson Arts plans to feature 3 local artists periodically

By Denise Turner
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Handmade paper, impressionistic oils and three-dimensional variations are the featured attractions at Larson Arts artistic open house.

Larry and Marj Larson have decided to feature three local artists in house every two or three months. The first showing opens tonight, with Virginia Carter, John Horejs and John McClusky in center stage.

"The performing arts are so important in this valley, and we want to make the visual arts just as important," said Marj Larson. "With these showings, we hope to expose people to different kinds of art, a sampling of various artists."

The Larsons carry a wide variety of works by each artist featured, but all new works will be brought in for the shows. Carter's new display will center on "art to hold in your hand." Her artistic booklets, fashioned from handmade paper, often incorporate elements of American Indian culture and folklore. She has designed one that tells the story of the Larson Arts studio. Prices for Carter's work range from $250 to $500.

McClusky specializes in impressionistic oil paintings, generally on stretched canvas unframed. He is considered a master of landscapes, florals and still life, and his works are priced anywhere from $200 to $10,000.

McClusky began designing intricate three-dimensional birdhouses as an extension of his work as a graphic artist. He will be showing six new pieces today, with prices generally ranging between $50 and $200.

The art show will begin with an open house from 5 to 9 tonight at 132 Main Ave. N. The public is invited to come meet the artists. Graze Escape is in charge of the wine tasting.

Library starts new series of fall programs

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — It's a "Family Affair" as the Twin Falls Public Library launches a new series of fall programs for adults with an open house, set for 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday.

Library personnel have dubbed the Tuesday night program "A Family Affair" and will be offering a tour of the library and a "fashion show" of favorite children's titles — everything from playing fashions (sports books) to evening wear (bedtime stories). The Library Foundation is heading up the free evening, which will end with punch and cookies.

The free programs for adults, titled "Eye on Heritage," are scheduled to begin Oct. 20 with "An Affair Taking Off," the subject of discovering Idaho/Pacific Northwest authors. On Oct. 27, Rebecca Horn will present a program titled "Adopting Idaho/Pacific Northwest History to Oral Story."

On Nov. 10, the Desert Sage Quilters of Magic Valley will emphasize the importance of mending old quilts and creating new ones. Elizabeth Jacob will lead a program on using old photos and new photographers to continue visual history on Nov. 17. All four programs will run from 7 to 9 p.m. and no registration is required.

The library continues to offer free story-telling programs for children, too. "Mother Goose on the Loose," featuring fingerplays and songs for toddlers, is set for 11 a.m. Wednesdays during the next four weeks. Each child must be accompanied by an adult. To register, call Children's Services at 733-2964.

Other special events on the library's calendar include "Candlelight Tales," a family storytime at 7 p.m. Tuesdays starting Oct. 13 for six weeks and "Friday Favorites," a program of picture books, stories, songs and fingerplays for preschoolers. "Friday Favorites" starts at 10:30 a.m. Oct. 9 and runs for seven weeks. Drop-ins are welcome at both programs.

Brooks takes top honor at country awards

By Dan DeLuca
Knight-Ridder News Service

Garth Brooks, the crossover king who has extended country music's reach to the top of the pop charts, was the big winner at Wednesday night's 26th annual Country Music Association Awards show, which was broadcast live on network TV from the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville, Tenn.

Brooks took home the Entertainer of the Year award for the second year running and also won the best-album award for his 9 million-copy selling "Ropin' the Wind."

The always emotional Oklahoma-born star was seen crying in the audience when his hero, George Jones, was presented with a plaque inducting him into the Country Music Hall of Fame, and Brooks barely held back the tears when he brought his wife, Sandy, to the stage to accept the Entertainer of the Year honor. He thanked his 4-month-old daughter, Taylor, and declared that "music and artists are gonna come and go, but it's family, that's what it's all about."

Vince Gill, another Okie who co-hosted the show with Reba McEntire, was also a big winner. He won the Male Vocalist of the Year award, also for the second year in a row. "Now I know how Michael Jordan feels to repeat," he said — and shared Song of the Year honors with veteran songsmith Max T. Barnes for their composition "Look at Us."

Barnes accepted the prize with the quip, "You might give yourselves a hand. I think you've got great taste. Jones, the gray-haired crooner who is widely acknowledged as the greatest living country singer, accepted his award from Randy Travis, one of a seemingly endless array of new male stars who owe him an enormous stylistic debt. Jones also sang his newest single, "I Don't Need Your Rockin' Chair," with an all-star array of backup singers. Beefcake sensation Billy Ray Cyrus won Single of the Year honors — presented by the bizarrely debonair Lyle Lovett — for his innately catchy monster hit "Achy Breaky Heart." And Mary-Chapin Carpenter was a surprise winner in the female vocalist category.

The CMA show is always the most crisply efficient of broadcast live award shows, and despite a closing production number of "Put a Little Love in Your Heart," featuring Dolly Parton and a gospel choir, Wednesday night's show was no exception.

Among the many performance highlights were Gill's sweet and pure version of his current single, "I Still Believe in You," and Trisha Yearwood (who was a surprise loser to "Stacy" Bogauss in the Horizon Award category) sang a stately "Walkaway Joe," with ex-Eagle Don Henley on grainy backup. And for her hit "I Feel Lucky," Carpenter entered the crowd and used Lovett and Marty Stuart as her comic and romantic foils.

Fiddler Mark O'Connor took home the Musician of the Year award for the second year in a row. AlD Stuart won the vocal award for "The Whiskey Ain't Workin'" in his duet with Travis Tritt. Platinum-selling Wynonna Judd opened the show with a glossy take on her current single, "No One Else on Earth," but she was shut out of winning any award.

Quiz on homosexuality may clear up misconceptions

DEAR ABBY: A cousin and I has a difference of opinion. It has to do with common misconceptions about homosexuality.

I recall that you ran a true-false quiz dealing with this subject several years ago, and I would like to enlighten him. Would you please run it again?

— HIS COUSIN IN GALVESTON, TEXAS

DEAR COUSIN: I'm happy to run it again — and I hope it helps to shed a little enlightenment where needed.

How much do you know about homosexuality? Mark the following statements true or false:

1. Homosexuals commit more crimes than straight people. (True or False)
2. Everyone is born straight, but some become gay because they have been seduced by a gay person early in life. (True or False)
3. You can always tell homosexuals and lesbians by the way they act dress and talk. (True or False)

4. With the proper therapy and motivation, a gay person can become straight. (True or False)
5. Boys raised by domineering mothers and weak (or absent) fathers usually turn into homosexuals. (True or False)
6. Gay people can never become mothers or fathers. (True or False)
7. Homosexuals are more inclined to molest children sexually than heterosexuals. (True or False)
8. If a person has one or two sexual experiences with someone of the same sex, he is gay. (True or False)
9. The American Psychiatric Association stated that homosexuals are "sick." (True or False)
10. Homosexuals can be legally married to each other under the law in the United States. (True or False)

Perhaps I was wrong to be so upset over this, but the next time she asks to borrow a book from me, what should I say?

DEAR FAN: Say, "After you returned the last book, I let you read and I saw how badly it had been abused. I promised myself that I would not lend you another." Period.

DEAR READERS: Bertrand Russell, British philosopher (1872-1970), wrote: "You should never spank a child before he is 11. And after that it is too late."

By popular request, Abby shares some of her favorite prize-winning, easy-to-prepare recipes. To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: More Favorite Recipes by Dear Abby, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

DEAR ABBY: A few weeks ago, I loaned one of my favorite books to a friend.

When she returned it, the cover had been badly torn and taped together. She didn't even apologize.

Fischer, Spassky agree to draw

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Bobby Fischer drew with Boris Spassky on Thursday in the 13th game of their $5 million chess rematch.

"After the 45th move the two players agreed to a draw."

Spassky's victory in Wednesday's game narrowed Fischer's lead to 3-3. That remained unchanged after Thursday's draw which does not count in the scoring system. Their next game will be Saturday.

Perot dives on bad economic news, Perot concerns

Dow Jones

NEW YORK — The Dow Jones industrial fell 17 points to close at 3254 in moderately active trading Thursday after weak U.S. economic data undermined early trading.

The impudence of Texas billionaire Ross Perot's decision on a presidential bid Sept. 19, after an identical rise the previous news conference held just after the market closed — contributed to a choppy market through the afternoon.

The object uncertainty tied to a presidential bid — the House of Representatives until January is probably anathema to the stock market, many traders said.

Perot re-entered the race for the presidency shortly after 2 p.m. MDT.

The National Association of Purchasing Management rattled the early market by announcing that its index of economic activity fell to 49.0 percent in September from 53.7 percent in August. The drop below 50 percent was the first since January 1992. A reading below 44.5 percent implies economic contraction.

Adding insult to injury, the government announced that August construction spending tumbled 0.8 percent — despite low interest rates and the lowest mortgage rates in 20 years.

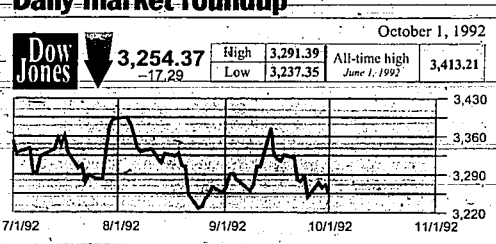

Moreover, initial state unemployment claims rose another 15,000 in the week ended Sept. 19, after an identical rise the previous week.

The data were hardly reassuring ahead of Friday's employment report, which is expected to suffer from the loss of summer job programs and new joblessness related to damage to businesses in Florida and Louisiana from Hurricane Andrew.

The U.S. Treasury bond market began rising sharply immediately after the purchasers' report at 8 a.m. MDT, and surged over a full point by midafternoon on the grim economic news.

But stocks — which often follow moves in bonds as long-term yields fall, rather than the economic data itself — were hit by two bouts of index-arbitrage self-programs between 10 a.m., when the purchasing managers' data was released, and 10:30 a.m.

Daily market roundup

The market struggled to recover some of its midmorning losses, but when the rally faded a few points shy of neutral, new futures-related self-offs swayed the Dow to new session lows in the last two hours of trading.

"People appeared to spend much of the day positioning for Friday," said chief trader Jack Baker at Furman Selz.

On Friday, the September unemployment report could conceivably trigger the Federal Reserve to reduce interest rates, and the policy-making council of the German Bundesbank will meet.

The unlikely events of both a Fed ease, based on a grim September employment report, and a German rate cut by early next week, were viewed by traders as the best possible scenario for the stock market.

But few had faith enough buy stocks in anticipation of such a development.

"If we saw U.S. rates and German rates come down over the next few days, a rally to Dow 3350 would be a given," said Baker. "But if we don't get even a Fed ease, I could see the market right back down to Dow 3175," he added, referring to the early April lows.

At the close, the Dow stood at 3254.37 down 17.29, while declines outpaced advances on the Big Board by a 4 to 3 ratio on moderately active volume of 203 million shares, expanding from 184 million on Wednesday.

Jobless claims increase again

WASHINGTON (AP) — A widely watched barometer of American industry dipped back into recession territory in September while the number of Americans filing first-time claims for unemployment benefits rose for the fifth straight week and commercial construction activity plunged to the lowest level in eight years.

Analysts said the batch of dismal business statistics Thursday showed that the already-weak economy stumbled further as the end of summer, adding to President Bush's election woes.

The bond market rallied on all the bad news, bolting what the Federal Reserve will be forced to cut interest rates for the 25th time since 1989. Many expected the Fed's next rate cut could come as soon as Friday following release of an unemployment report that is expected to show the jobless rate jumped last month, perhaps back up to an eight-year-high of 7.8 percent.

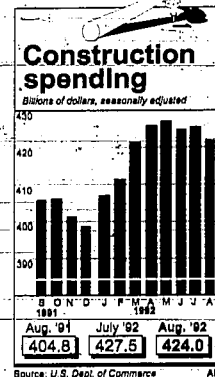

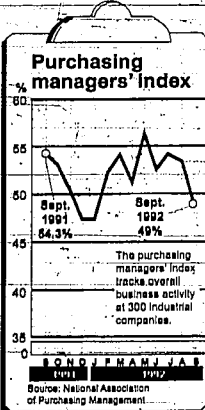

"The Fed's job is to prevent the economy from spiraling down and that job has become a lot more urgent," said Sung Won Sohn, chief economist at Norwest Corp. of Minneapolis. "It looks like a wheel is coming off the wagon."

Many economists believed the Fed would cut its discount rate, the interest that it charges other banks, from a current 3 percent, down to 2.5 percent, the lowest level it has been in 33 years.

Analysts were also looking for the central bank to reduce its target for the federal funds rate, currently at 3 percent, to 2.75 percent. The funds rate is the interest that banks charge each other on overnight loans.

Cuts of that magnitude, if they occur, could be expected to trigger the lowering of a variety of business and consumer loans.

First Fidelity Bancorp of New Jersey, a large regional bank, did not wait for the Fed to act. It announced Thursday that it was cutting its prime lending rate from 6 percent down to 5.5 percent, becoming the first bank in the country to drop this key rate in three months.

If other banks follow suit, that would put the benchmark for many business and consumer loans at its lowest level in two decades.

Analysts said that all three economic reports Thursday depicted a weaker-than-expected economy.

The National Association of Purchasing Managers said its widely followed index fell to 49 percent in September, down from 53.7 percent in August. It marked the first time the index has been below 50 percent, considered the trigger point for a recession in manufacturing, since last January.

The survey of 300 purchasing executives showed that factory output grew at a lackluster pace, manufacturing employment was down and the level of new orders fell sharply in September.

The Labor Department reported that the number of Americans filing new claims for unemployment benefits rose by 15,000 in the week ending Sept. 19, to 429,000, the highest level in six weeks.

Analysts said the fifth straight weekly increase in laid-off workers showed a significant deterioration in labor markets and may mean that Friday's unemployment report will be even worse than expected.

Analysts were already braced for a bad number, reflecting the combined impact of a bad economy and several special factors last month, including Hurricane Andrew, the end of a temporary summer job program and a strike at General Motors.

"A major deterioration is taking place in the labor market," said Elliott Platt, chief economist at Donaldson, Leitch & Janette. He said the weekly jobless claims would be even worse were it not for the fact that many laid-off workers are applying for special emergency benefits that are not counted under the regular program.

If these newly unemployed were also counted, the weekly claims figure would probably be up to 439,000, Platt cautioned, pushing the number of newly laid-off workers back to levels not seen on a sustained basis since last winter.

In the report on construction spending, the Commerce Department said that overall activity dropped 0.8 percent in August to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $42.4 billion.

"It was the biggest setback in nine months and was led by a huge 9.4 percent plunge in spending on offices and other commercial buildings. Activity in this depressed area fell to the lowest point in eight years.

A new survey of business executives said they believe the economy will remain stalled—at least through the end of this year.

The American Business Conference, composed of chief executives from mid-sized companies, found that cutbacks in defense contracts, cautious consumer spending and spreading weakness in overseas markets were all having an adverse impact on their firms.

"Our survey reveals an economy caught in a disinflationary squeeze with little room for momentum for expansion. This is not an environment where new jobs are created and new investments made," said Barry Rogstad, president of the business group.

Credit legislation dies in Congress

Knights-Ridder News Service

An important piece of consumer legislation died last week.

The bill in Congress was designed to address some of the problems that plague the credit-reporting industry. But after amendments were added to weaken the measure, it was withdrawn by its sponsor, Rep. Esteban E. Torres, D-Calif.

Consumers have complained for years that credit reports often contain inaccurate information and that credit-reporting agencies are slow in correcting bad data.

Others have complained that some employers use credit reports as one way of judging job applicants.

The Consumer Reporting Reform Act of 1992 was to address those issues. Here are some of its key points:

- It would have put more pressure on lenders to provide accurate information to credit-reporting companies.
- Credit-reporting companies would have been required to address consumer complaints within 30 days.
- The cost of a credit report requested by a consumer would have been capped at $8.
- Employers who want a job applicant's credit report would have been required to notify the person first.
- Consumer groups said the laws were needed because the credit-reporting industry had been slow to police itself, ignoring people who complain about inaccurate data.
- The credit-reporting industry did not openly oppose the bill, but it fought to weaken it.
- The bill was withdrawn after the industry succeeded in adding one amendment. In effect, the amendment would have killed any state laws that were more stringent than the federal rules.
- Faced with that choice, consumer advocates urged Torres to withdraw the entire bill. They said they would try again next year.

As interest rates remain low, many people have left low-paying bank accounts in favor of bonds and other fixed-income investments.

This strategy is not without risks. If interest rates begin to move up, those who invested in bonds could lose some of their principal if they need to sell the bonds before maturity.

Another danger is that the company that issued the bond could default on the loan. Or, if the company gets into financial trouble, the value of the bond could fall.

Those are just some of the factors to consider before investing in fixed-income products. But for those who understand the risks, bonds can be an excellent part of a higher-yield portfolio.

For more information, T. Rowe Price, the Baltimore mutual-fund company, has a free pamphlet called "The Fundamentals of Fixed-Income Investing." It can be ordered by calling (800) 638-5660. But if you call, your name may be put on a mailing list to receive unsolicited sales material.

Rejoice, delinquent debtors. The federal government says that bill collectors, for the most part, are much less abusive than they used to be.

So far this year, the Federal Trade Commission has gotten about 2,000 complaints about bill collectors who said they were illegally harassed by debt collectors.

That's down from about 4,000 complaints a year in the late 1970s.

Third-party bill collectors are governed by the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, which is enforced by the FTC. Since 1978, about 30 companies have been fined a total of more than $1 million for violating the law, officials said.

Among other things, the law prohibits debt collectors from calling a person at home before 8 a.m. or after 9 p.m., using ethnic or racial slurs, or calling consumers at work after the collector has been asked not to do so.

The law also restricts collectors from making illegal contacts with "third parties," such as relatives, neighbors or employers. In addition, collectors cannot make false statements or threats that civil or criminal action will be taken against the consumer, that wages will be garnished or property seized, or that the consumer will be arrested.

The Fair Debt Collection Practices Act applies only to third-party collectors — the independent companies that are hired by creditors to collect delinquent accounts. It does not apply to collectors employed directly by a lender.

However, some states have debt-collection laws that are much tougher than the federal standard.

States that don't have local laws are governed by the federal rules.

To get a free copy of the federal laws that govern bill collectors, write to FTC, Public Reference Branch, Room 130, Sixth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue N.W., Washington, D.C. 20580. Ask for Fair Debt Collection Practices.

Test scores may be falling at American schools, but not at the Internal Revenue Service. When the agency tested its telephone counselors this year with a series of tax-related questions, the average score was 88 percent, a vast improvement from 1989, when the average score was just 63 percent.

The IRS was embarrassed several years ago when word leaked that some of its taxpayer-assistance reps were giving incorrect information to people who called for help. Since then, the agency has worked to correct the problem.

What's more, the agency's rates have improved. It may be hard to sustain that success without additional money for training, says the General Accounting Office, the research arm of Congress.

Bank is 1st to lower prime rate since July

NEW YORK (AP) — A large regional bank cut its prime rate to 5.5 percent, the first bank in the country to drop the key rate in three months.

The move by First Fidelity Bancorp of New Jersey coincided with a widespread easing in the U.S. economy. If other banks follow First Fidelity's lead, that would put the prime rate at its lowest level in 20 years.

First Fidelity, the nation's 23rd-largest bank, said the rate cut applied to all its 523 branches in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

The prime rate is used by many banks as a benchmark for a wide range of other loans, including consumer auto, credit card and home-equity loans. A drop in the prime can make borrowing more affordable to millions of consumers.

Other banks didn't immediately follow the move by First Fidelity, a bank that historically has not taken the lead in interest-rate adjustments. But when one big bank changes lending rates, it always raises the pressure on others to do likewise.

Paul Levine, a spokesman for the Lawrenceville, N.J.-based bank, said it was bank policy not to comment on the reasons for interest rate adjustments.

The last time banks changed their prime rate was July 2, when they lowered it a quarter percentage point to 6 percent. The drop today, if it spreads, would put the prime at its lowest level since the summer of 1972, when it stood at 5.25 percent.

Wal-Mart strikes deal on land for new store

LEWISTON (AP) — Wal-Mart officials have struck a deal to buy 13.5 acres which will be the site of a new store in Lewiston, employing about 250 people.

The store has made the agreement with Lewiston developer J.J. Streibick for the site at the top of Thain Grade, Streibick said Wednesday.

Streibick declined to discuss terms of the sale, but Nez Perce County assessor's records show the property is valued at $111,055, or about $8,350 per acre.

County Assessor Daniel Anderson said the price Wal-Mart paid was likely considerably more than $8,350 per acre, because that valuation is based on unimproved property.

The company declined comment, although a spokeswoman did say, "We are pursuing a site in Lewiston."

A 96,000-square-foot Wal-Mart store is under construction west of the Palouse Empire Mall in Moscow, and should be open for business in January.

based Civil Land Consultants firm working on the store, Steven Wilson, said Wednesday he could not predict when construction would begin.

Previously, when Wilson outlined plans at a Lewiston City Council meeting, he said the store would be open by next spring.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

Most human beings have an almost infinite capacity for taking things for granted.

— Aldous Huxley

If South had been asked the chances of finding a 3-2 diamond split, he would have answered accurately. "About 68 percent." However, he didn't ask himself about probabilities. He had eyes only for dummy's imposing six-card suit headed by the A-K-Q. And that's not all. He didn't even wonder why West had led the suit.

Dummy's diamond ace won, trumps were drawn and a second diamond was led to dummy's king. South's hopes were dealt a severe blow when West discarded; South could no longer bring in the diamond suit. So he cashed one more high diamond and led a club to his king. That lost to West's ace and South held himself to only nine tricks.

How does South survive the bad diamond break? By taking out some no-cost insurance.

Instead of drawing three rounds of trumps, South should cash only the ace and king. Next, he leads a low diamond toward dummy's honors, and West is quick. If he ruffs, the diamond suit will run to produce an overtrick. And if West doesn't ruff, dummy wins and a low diamond ruffed high produces the same result. Dummy's trump-10 provides the entry and South wins the same 11 tricks.

The odds of finding a 3-2 break are constant. They do not vary according to the "solidity" of the suit.

Betty Cohen, head of TBS' new Cartoon Network, hopes nostalgia will keep baby boomers and their kids tuned in.

TBS aims for kid-at-heart with latest adventure

By Marc Rice
The Associated Press

ATLANTA — Fred, Bugs and Yogi were out to prove they're more than kids' stuff when Turner Broadcasting System Inc. launched its around-the-clock cartoon channel aimed at baby boomers and their children.

The Cartoon Network debuted yesterday on the premise that nostalgia will keep adults-tuned in after the tois are tucked in for the night.

"Everyone assumes that it's going to be for kids, which is true. (But) we have more adults watching than we think," said Betty Cohen, a TBS executive vice president and head of the new cable network. "Because these adults grew up with the same cartoons, people get really nutty when the theme songs come on."

Cohen said demographic studies show 46 percent of the viewing audience watching cartoon on cable television are children ages 2 to 11; the rest are adults.

Atlanta-based TBS started planning for the cable network — the company's fifth — after last year's $320 million acquisition of the Hanna-Barbera ani-

Just the facts

- Launch Date: Oct. 1.
- Programming: Blocks of shorts and half-hour features drawn from 8,500 titles owned by TBS, including cartoons from the Hanna-Barbera, MGM, Warner Bros. and Paramount studios.
- Target audience: TBS research says 46 percent of the cable television cartoon audience is children ages 2-11; 44 percent is adults.
- Other major Turner networks: TBS Superstation, Cable News Network, Headline News, Turner Network Television.

mation library. Combined with Turner's existing stockpile of MGM, Paramount and Warner Bros. cartoons, the company owns more than 8,500 animation titles.

That gives Turner plenty of options. Daffy Duck and Jetsons to play with.

Finding an audience may be less of a challenge for TBS than finding a place for the network on the nation's crowded cable systems, he said.

"You have a situation where the parking lot's full on cable, and more and more cars are trying to squeeze in," said Barry Sherman, chairman of the telecommunications department at the University of Georgia.

"The number of systems set to carry the network at its launch still is being finalized.

Cohen, a former Nickelodeon promotions director who helped Chairman Ted Turner launch the TNT network, said the company has a bullish about the uncertain climate in the cable business.

"Everyone in the industry knows we're launching at a difficult time," she said.

In addition to the limited space on cable systems, she said, operators are cautious because a bill to regulate cable, vehemently opposed by the industry, is moving through Congress.

"But we did a very cautious business plan. We own all this programming from now until the end of time, so we can afford to have a small launch and a slow and steady growth," Cohen said. "And, Ted is in it for the long run."

Stations circumvent children's act, groups charge

The Washington Post

Public interest groups Tuesday charged that a year after the Children's Television Act of 1990 went into effect, "a significant number" of commercial TV stations aren't treating their responsibilities seriously.

A report compiled by the Center for Media Education and Georgetown University Law Center's Institute for Public Representation examined broadcast license renewal applications from 58 stations in eight states.

The report found that a small number of new syndicated live action magazine news shows had appeared in response to the act, but that nearly 60 percent of them were scheduled between 5:30 and 7 a.m. in the sample markets.

Surveyed were 15 ABC, 13 CBS, 12 NBC and eight FOX affiliates, plus 10 independent stations in Arkansas, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, Mississippi, Ohio and Tennessee. To respond to new licensing renewal requirements, many broadcasters have merely inserted "pro-social" content or "educational moments" into entertainment programs, the report charged.

One station inserted time targets of program descriptions that put the best face on its cartoon shows. For instance:

For "Bucky O'Hare": "Good-doer Bucky fights off the evil toads from aboard his ship. Issues of social consciousness and responsibility are central themes of program."

The president of Action for Children's Television, the National PTA and the National Education Association recommended closer scrutiny of broadcasters by the FCC and congressional oversight hearings into broadcasters' compliance.

Ethical dilemmas are not necessarily insoluble, but they do require a great deal of painful deliberation. In "Desperate Choices: To Save My Child," Joanna Kerns stars as Mary Ellen Robbins, a mother whose stepdaughter has been diagnosed as having leukemia and needs a bone-marrow transplant. Because of the sensitive circumstances that surround her illness, the family is forced to make a painful decision.

"We have one son together, who is the only compatible donor for her for a bone-marrow transplant," Kerns explains of her character, "but my son, a year prior, had to go under-and-anesthetic (after-an-automobile accident) and he almost died on the table (because) he had such a reaction to the anesthetic. And my character believes that it's this anesthetic that caused the reaction, and she's sent to death." The Robbinses then become involved in a court battle to determine how both children will be protected.

Kerns is pleased that her character's motivations are complex.

"The reason I wanted to do this role is that you're actually rooting against her at various points in the movie," Kerns says, "because you want it to be OJ. You want to believe that doing this will make her (the stepdaughter) better. Well, there's no guarantee that it will. It will give her a better chance, but it's still a choice."

Kerns, who starred as Maggie Stover on ABC's "Growing Pains," remembers that show fondly but is pleased to be producing and working on different projects.

"It's beginning to happen now, but it's been years," Kerns explains. "It's been years of getting something almost to the point where they'll do it, and then they say no. You know, it's like anything else," she laughs. "It's an overnight 20-year success."

Desperate Choices: To Save My Child airs from 8 to 10 p.m. MDT Monday on K3BAS, KIFI and other NBC affiliates.

Keaton: A political liability in HBO film

By Jerry Buck
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — A presidential hopeful finds his candidacy in jeopardy when the woman he loves becomes an issue.

A page from this year's political scene? Perhaps. But it's also the plot of the HBO movie "Running Man," which debuts Sunday.

"Diane Keaton" in her first television movie, portrays Aggie Snow, the fiancée of candidate Hugh Hathaway, played by Ed Harris.

Things get messy when the media discovers Snow appeared as a teen-ager in a forgettable 1960s war protest film, semiretired and engaged in sex while wrapped in an American flag.

"The movie was put together—last fall—and we filmed it in June," said Keaton, who added that the idea was actually conceived prior to the 1988 election.

"I'm sure that it's more topically relevant in an election year than it is a few years ago," she said. "But the real issue is about whether she should lie about her participation in this film. Should she lie to protect the man she loves?"

The movie also features Ed Begley Jr., Ben Masters, Robert Harper, Brandon Maggart and Russ Tamblyn.

Michael Lindsay-Hogg directed from a script by Carole Eastman.

Maniac Mansion

The creative talent behind this series continues to follow George Lucas' mandate to produce a sitcom unlike any other. In a season with parody, physical comedy, satire and amiable loquaciousity, will Dr. Fred Edison succeed in reversing tragic experiments of the past? Maniac Mansion, starring Kathleen Robertson and Joe Flaherty, begins its third season at 5 p.m. MDT tonight on The Family Channel.
