Big turnout looks likely Nov. 3

By Drew DeSilver
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The number of registered voters has reached record or near-record levels in the Magic Valley after a surge in registration last week.
In Twin Falls County, 31,257 people are registered to vote in the general election a week from today, County Clerk Bob Fort said. That's almost 4,000 more people than were registered on Sept. 22, Fort said.
"We even had a few in today trying to register, but of course we couldn't do that," he said.

The county's all-time registration record was set in 1980, when 32,879 people signed up. Voter registration across the state set records that year, due partly to Ronald Reagan's presidential candidacy and partly to a hot, close Senate race between Frank Church and Steve Symms.
In Jerome County, County Clerk Cheryl Watts said 8,500 people have registered to vote, an increase of 837 from Sept. 11.
"It was amazing how many people registered in so short a period of time," Watts said. "It just about swamped us."

The last-week rush broke the 1980 mark of "8,300-and-something," she added.
Gooding County has also exceeded its 1980 registration. A worker in the clerk's office said 6,960 people have registered this year, compared with 6,594 in 1980.
Here's how clerk's offices in other Magic Valley counties reported their registration levels:
• Blaine County: Deputy Clerk Marsha Riemann said not all the newly registered voters have been entered in their computer system, but as of Monday morning 9,986 people were signed up.

• Camas County: 596 registered voters.
• Cassia County: No estimate. Still entering newly registered voters into computer system.
• Lincoln County: 1,983 registered voters, up about 350 from the May primary.
• Minidoka County: The clerk's office estimates 9,400 registered voters, up from 9,116 in 1990 but down from 10,100 in 1988.
Both of this year's candidates for the U.S. Senate predicted Monday that increased registration, if matched by higher turnout, would be a key factor.

Gases taint colonial coffin air

The Associated Press

ST. MARY'S CITY, Md. — Scientists said Monday they may never know whether air drawn from a sealed, colonial-era coffin is old enough to be used to analyze changes in the atmosphere since the 17th century.

Tests on an air sample drawn Friday found an unusually high level of gases created by decomposition. They made it impossible to detect the presence of freon — a manmade chemical used since the 1940s.

If the air does not contain freon, then scientists will know it has been untouched by the industrial age.

Further tests will be conducted, they said.
"It is a distinct possibility that we may decide it is a real sample, but we may not be able to resolve it," said Henry Miller, chief investigator of the lead coffins project. "We may never be able to know."

Preserved 17th century air would provide scientists with a valuable research tool in determining how industrialization has affected the Earth's atmosphere.

The sample, tested by NASA scientist at the space agency's Langley Research Center in Hampton, Va., said he believed the excess gases were caused by decomposition.

He said he would try to determine what proportion were created that way.

The air was taken from one of three coffins believed to contain the remains of Maryland's founding family, the Calverts. The coffins were found beneath the ruins of the first Catholic chapel built in the English colonies.

Court rejects Nez Perce challenge to pamphlet

The Associated Press

BOISE — The Idaho Supreme Court has dismissed a challenge by the Nez Perce Tribe to the voter pamphlet explaining the proposed constitutional amendment banning casino gambling everywhere in the state.

The court's decision, announced Monday, was made in an extraordinary session on Saturday, just a day after the tribe filed its petition against the proposition.

The formal order was not released until late Monday. It indicated the tribe was free to resubmit the challenge to the amendment if voters approve it next week.

Bob Bostwick, a spokesman for the Coeur d'Alene Tribe, said "The timing appears to be what the court didn't like," Bostwick said. "This is just another in a long run of events when the state just gives us the cold shoulder and refuses to listen."

But backers of the amendment, who were advised of the court ruling as they appeared to ask to intervene in the dispute, maintained dismissal of the challenge underscores their claim that the question is not just reservation gambling but gambling statewide.

"This is a statewide issue that will decide whether casino gambling will spread statewide," said state Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, co-chairman of "Yes! We Want No Casinos."

The tribe claimed the explanatory voter pamphlet was "misleading, false and incorrect" because it failed to disclose that the reason the amendment was submitted to voters was because three Idaho tribes had initiated actions to open reservation casinos as allowed under a 1988 federal law.

Lawmakers convinced Gov. Cecil Andrus to call a special session in late July after tribal leaders took those steps.

Perot often alleges conspiracies

The Associated Press

DALLAS — Ross Perot's past is peppered with instances in which he made conspiracy allegations that turned out to be unprovable or false.

This time, he says, Republican operatives drove him from the campaign in July by threatening to embarrass one of his daughters. The charge has been stoutly denied by President Bush's campaign.

And, as before, Perot told offense when pressed for evidence.
"I am sick and tired of you all questioning my integrity without a basis for it," Perot told reporters in a surprise appearance at his campaign's daily news briefing Monday.

Perot repeatedly has raised allegations against competitors, clients, government officials and reporters as he built a multibillion-dollar fortune in the computer services business. He has even alleged assassination conspiracies against him and his family by enemies as varied as North Vietnam, the Black Panthers and Texas drug dealers.

In the last presidential debate, Perot repeated his account that in 1970, "The Vietnamese had sent people into Canada to make arrangements to have me and my family killed. The most significant effort they had one night is five people coming near my front yard with rifles."

Perot said Monday that a guard turned a dog loose on the intruders and it bit one of them. He declined to identify the guard, saying, "I don't have to prove anything to you people."

Dallas police say there is no record of any such event. Bill McGinnis, who headed the Dallas police intelligence operations at the time, told ABC News that "It did not happen. ... If five members of the First Baptist Church with rifles had come onto his lawn, we would have found out about it."

In his latest allegations, Perot also charged that GOP operatives tried to wiretap his Dallas office. But an FBI "sting" operation against Texas Bush-Quinn chairman Jim Oberwever turned up nothing. Oberwever says he sent packing the undercover agent who offered him tapes that were reportedly of Perot.

"At this point, there is no evidence that we have found that would indicate that any

Cassia County commissioners back off Burley Butte for site

By Eric Goodell
Mini-Cassia News Service

BURLEY — The Cassia County Commission on Monday backed off a proposal to allow a regional landfill near Burley Butte and suggested that a committee be appointed to find another site in a less-populated area.
"I know we are talking about dollars and we are talking about time," Commissioner John Adams said.
Adams proposed naming seven people to the committee, which would take a few weeks to look at other properties.

Opposition to a plan to place the 1,380-acre landfill eight miles west of Burley mounted last week, as neighbors of Burley Butte complained of the side effects of the project.

Terry Schultz, director of the Southern Idaho Region's Solid Waste District, promised Monday that the district would consider commissioning the study.

Adams and Commissioner Norman Dayley said they want to keep Cassia County residents as happy as possible. Dayley said if another site that meets strict landfill requirements can be found, it will show the district is justified in selecting the Burley Butte site.

Adams is a member of a regional solid-waste board, composed of commissioners from Blaine, Lincoln, Jerome, Gooding, Cassia and Minidoka counties. The Burley Butte landfill would serve Minidoka and Cassia counties, and perhaps the city of Twin Falls.

The commissioners said they believe the board will accept their request for a study.

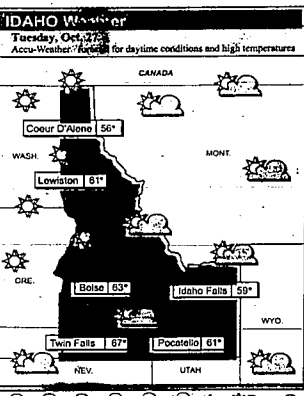

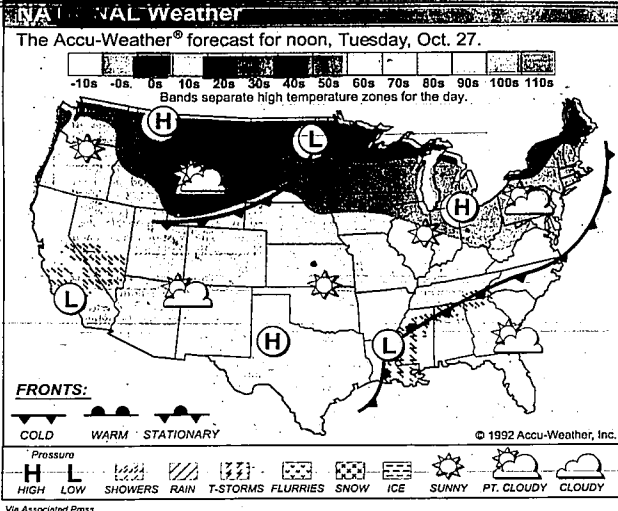

"The board is cognizant of our problems," Adams said.
Adams said transportation costs to haul garbage will increase if the county has to take it to a more distant location. Several people at last week's meeting, however, said they would be willing to pay the extra cost.

Most of the people who attend the meeting live within several miles of the planned landfill.

Howard Conrad, the owner of the Burley Butte site, advised the commissioners to "not wait too long," to decide whether to use the property as a landfill.

He said the site is likely the best place in the county for a landfill.

Weather summary

The National Weather Service says a few clouds will remain over Idaho today and storms will develop later this week.

Clouds increased over Idaho during the early morning hours Monday. A weak cold front also brought clouds to northern Idaho, while subtropical moisture moved northward from Nevada over southern Idaho and portions of central Idaho.

A few showers developed but only traces of moisture were reported at scattered locations across the Magic Valley and the southern part of the state.

Skies were partly cloudy to mostly cloudy over portions of southwest and south central Idaho on Monday afternoon, although the sun shone brightly at times.

A major change in the weather is expected by the end of the week as a strong Pacific weather system moves over the western United States. This system will bring a good chance of rain to northern and central Idaho late Thursday and to the entire state on Friday.

The warmest temperature in the state Monday was 80 degrees at Hagerman. Stanley reported the coldest at 19 degrees.

Elsewhere in the nation Monday, the highest temperature was 94 degrees at Waco, Texas. The lowest was 18 degrees at Bismarck, N.D.

Canadian reform plan fails

The Washington Post

OTTAWA — Canadian voters Monday rejected constitutional reforms aimed at ending years of tension between the English-speaking majority and French-speaking Quebec, dealing a major setback to efforts to preserve the country's confederation.

A non-binding referendum on the reform package was defeated Monday night in Quebec as well as Nova Scotia, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, according to unofficial returns.

The measure also was in peril in Ontario, Canada's most populous province, where, according to preliminary returns reported by Canadian television, the voting was even at 49.3 for each side.

Canadian television reported that Quebecers had rejected the reform package by 56.6 percent to 43.4 percent.

The only provinces solidly in the yes column were in the East, in Newfoundland, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, where the constitutional accord was signed two months ago at Charlottetown. Only returns from British Columbia were missing from a picture of coast-to-coast popular rejection.

The referendum had been placed as a province-by-province vote, rather than a single nationwide tally. Reflecting political reality, Prime Minister Brian Mulroney has said a no vote in even one province would "kill the deal" — and he made the consequences of such a defeat the centerpiece of his campaign for the referendum's approval.

"Although the vote is not binding, lawmakers in the provincial legislatures, which must approve the new constitution unanimously for it to take effect, are expected to follow their constituents' lead."

The provincial repudiation of the deal does not immediately mean the breakup of the Canadian confederation. But Quebec's leaders have said they would interpret a rejection as a mandate for some form of sovereignty within Canada.

In addition, the referendum's outcome could decide the future of Mulroney's political career.

The prime minister, a Quebecer, must call federal elections next year and decide whether to lead his Progressive Conservative Party's bid for reelection.

of the presidential campaigns, at least here in Dallas, have directed any dirty tricks at any other campaign," Buck Revell, agent in charge of the Dallas FBI bureau, told "60 Minutes."

Perot repeated the whittling allegation Monday, claiming he had GOP sources he could not name publicly.

Other examples of past allegations by Perot:

When his Electronic Data Systems Corp. lost a 1980 bid to manage the data work for Texas Medicaid, he charged that the state bureaucrat who had reviewed the bids had been influenced by the winning bidder, Bradford National Corp. Investigations by state and federal agencies turned up nothing, but in the interim EDS was awarded the work. Ultimately Bradford was paid by the state to drop its bid and EDS continued the work without further challenge until 1988.

Just as the Reagan Administration's investigation into whether U.S. POWs still lived in Vietnam, Perot attacked the Pentagon official, Richard L. Armitage, in charge of the matter. Perot's involvement included discussions with Daniel Sheehan, the head of the left-wing Christie Institute, which claimed in a federal lawsuit that Armitage was part of a criminal enterprise involving drug smuggling and money laundering. Armitage was cleared after an FBI investigation, and a federal judge dismissed the lawsuit as a fraud and fined the Christie Institute $1 million.

Displeased that the design contest he'd helped sponsor for the Vietnam War Memorial did not produce a remembrance for the war's survivors, Perot pressed for audits of the organization that raised money to build the memorial. A review by a criminal enterprise counting Office of up no inpropprieties.

When General Motors bought his stake in EDS in late 1986 for $700 million, moving him out of the company, Perot told reporters he was the victim of infighting at the company. He wanted to allow the money in escrow to allow the company to reconsider.

Outbursts may stall Turnout Perot, hinder Bush

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ross Perot's outbursts about alleged Republican smear tactics are likely to stall his resurgence in the presidential race, analysts in both parties said Monday.

If so, that would further complicate President Bush's tenuous comeback strategy, they said.

Perot had risen to 20 percent or so in several national polls and even higher in some states, including Michigan, Colorado and others where his surge came mostly at Bill Clinton's expense.

On Monday — even before an angry, combative Perot news conference in Dallas — pollsters and analysts in both parties said there was evidence that Perot's support had reached a plateau late last week in all but a few states.

After the extraordinary news conference, analysts predicted Perot would slide some in the polls. And they said that in a few states, any drop would benefit Clinton, who holds a commanding edge in electoral vote projections heading into the campaign's final week.

"We noticed in weekend polling the climb of (Perot's) favorites stopped," said Michael Sarpolus, chief of the Gallup poll. "He resurrected his image through the debates but even before the latest flaps he was leveling off to some degree."

One Bush aide early Monday had suggested Perot would serve as a spoiler in several large states. The same aide said "forget about it" after Perot's at times rambling midday attacks on the Bush campaign and the news media.

"If it looks to voters like Perot has flown off the hook, and creates the feeling we're uncertain but if he goes back to help Clinton," said Michigan pollster Ed Sarpolus.

Perot's rise had eroded Clinton's lead in Michigan last week to about 10 points. "Clinton was in my view nearing that danger point where things were uncertain but if he goes back up a little it will begin to lock in for Clinton," Sarpolus said.

Colorado is another state where Perot's rise was hurting Clinton. To a lesser degree, the same dynamics were detected in polls in Wisconsin, Iowa and West Virginia, as well as Florida, according to pollsters in both parties.

Still, Clinton entered this week with double-digit leads in more than 20 states, and leads approaching that level in a handful more. Bush, on the other hand, entered the stretch with leads in fewer than 10 states, many of them tiny when it comes to Electoral College votes.

Utility regulations

aim to cut acid rain

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency imposed long-delayed regulations on electric utilities Monday aimed at cutting sulfur dioxide emissions by half to control acid rain.

The acid rain regulations are a cornerstone of the 1990 Clean Air Act, which requires 110 of the country's dirtiest coal-burning electric power plants in 21 states to cut sulfur dioxide pollution roughly in half by 2010 with most of the reductions expected in the next eight years.

In announcing the rules, EPA Administrator, William Reilly predicted "a banner week" for clean air initiatives. He said the acid rain rules will be followed by a number of other air pollution control regulations that will be announced in the next few days.

Under the EPA rules announced Monday, each utility is given a maximum number of pollution credits, or allowances. If a utility reduces emissions beyond what the law requires, it may sell its leftover pollution credits to another utility that has not cut emissions enough. Market forces will determine the price of the pollution credits.

Reilly called the emissions trading concept "the most significant effort yet to harness market forces to improve the environment" and predicted it will reduce the industry's cost of compliance by $1 billion.

He estimated the cost of the acid rain provision at about $3 billion by the year 2010.

Foresters propose changes in Endangered Species Act

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's largest group of professional foresters will propose changes in the Endangered Species Act today to help protect private property owners.

The organization of 18,000 will also propose an independent review of the scientific reasoning behind decisions of whether to list species as threatened or endangered.

Top leaders of the Society of American Foresters said the initial decision on whether to protect a species should continue to be based on biological evidence rather than economic pain.

The foresters also said the government should do a better job of managing public forests for the good of entire ecosystems.

In remarks prepared for the group's annual convention in Richmond, Va., and released Monday, society president William Barton said the act is "one of the most controversial environmental laws, period — in our nation today."

"The Society of American Foresters believes the act must be changed to protect both the people of the United States and the plants and animals in jeopardy," said Barton, who is from Savannah, Ga.

"The Endangered Species Act must take into account human and economic needs, in addition to biological ones," he said.

Why don't polls all say the same thing?

NEW YORK (AP) — Days after

President Bush dismissed "flaky pollsters" for depicting his re-election prospects as remote, new polls showing a tighter race buoyed his supporters.

Bill Clinton's lead over Bush narrowed in samples last week from 3 to 19 percentage points. Polls showing a close race conflicted with state-by-state surveys depicting Clinton as dominating the electoral map.

Here, in question-and-answer form, is how several pollsters explain what's going on.

Q. Has the race tightened?
A. Yes, for now. Clinton's lead in voter preference on average across

Groups pan Congress' 'death money'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tobacco industry has given $1.7 million in campaign contributions to House and Senate members, consumer groups said Monday in charging that Congress' addition to "death money" has come at the expense of public health.

Senators collected $578,390 between Jan. 1, 1991, and June 30, 1992, while House members picked up another $1.16 million, said the report by Public Citizen's Health Research Group and the Advocacy Institute.

The report tracked contributions from tobacco industry political action committees as well as individual executives and lobbyists. The study did not count contributions to challengers or candidates for open seats, who generally collect far less PAC money than incumbents.

This report indicates why Congress has done extraordinarily little to combat the tobacco epidemic," said Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of the Public Citizen Health Research Group.

the nation shrunk as Ross Perot picked up support after the debates. But the polls can't tell whether this trend continues.

"People who are defectors tend to get loyal," said Andrew Kohut, who does polls for the Times Mirror Center for the People & The Press and U.S. News & World Report magazine.

Q. Is Bush gaining on Clinton?
A. Bush has been stuck in second, with his percentage of voter support in the low- to mid-30s in almost all the national polls for weeks. But the spread between he and Clinton is shrinking.

In-depth polls taken over four or five days and re-interviews with people polled before the debates show attitudes toward Bush have not changed much. But the attacks on Clinton's character have taken a toll, particularly among men, baby boomers and suburbanites.

Measuring whether negative feelings toward a candidate are taking hold is as important in predicting who'll win as is knowing who's ahead in October.

"You had mini-surges all over the place during the nine-day debate period. That's probably short-term," said Kathleen Frankovic, director of surveys for CBS News. She compared the effect to the "bounce" nominees get after conventions.

Q. Is the Perot phenomenon making the polls less reliable?

A. Perot shook up the polls by entering, pulling out, re-entering and conducting his campaign in ways so dramatically different from past candidacies that he forced voters to rethink their preference, and even their

Polls taken after debates

NEW YORK (AP) — Seven national polls taken in the same five-day period since the presidential debates seem at great variance.

Pollsters say each poll's margin of error and method explain some of the differences, along with voters who are not firm in their opinions.

Oct 20-23 CBS-NYT	37	42	17

Notes: Newsweek's poll of 755 registered voters has a margin of sampling error of plus or minus 4 percentage points. The margin is about 3 points for the other polls, which included at least 1,000 voters. The CBS News-New York Times poll is weighted to reflect the "probable electorate." The Washington Post and Harris polls are based on "likely voters."

The Time-Cable News Network poll has a 7-point spread between Clinton and Bush among registered voters, but included a smaller sample of "likely voters," who favored Clinton over Bush 38 percent to 35 percent. The largest Clinton lead is 19 points, in the NBC News-Wall Street Journal poll.

party affiliation. His campaign themes also make it easy for those polled to give his name as a "protest vote" they can cancel Nov. 3.

"We just don't know how committed people are to what they're saying about this very quixotic candidate," Kohut said.

Perot's support also varies in statewide polls. Even though he takes a smaller bite from Bush's support than from Clinton's nationally, he could cost Bush a battleground state such as Texas while leaving Clinton victories in states where the Democrat has a big cushion.

Q. Do the media pay too much attention to national polls when conducting each state's electoral votes determine who wins?

"The national polls don't tell you what's going to happen in Texas or (other) individual states, but they show you the overall direction of how voters are thinking," Kohut said.

"The national survey can be a mishmash of several conflicting regional trends, but on the other hand the overall conclusion that Perot's gaining support is true all over the country."

Prosecutor will head task force on Iraqi loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — J. William Roberts, federal prosecutor in Illinois, was named Monday by Attorney General William P. Barr to head a task force helping investigate an Italian bank's $5 billion loans to Iraq.

Since 1986 Roberts has been U.S. attorney for the central district of Illinois, with headquarters in Springfield.

Barr said Roberts "will make certain that every facet of this complex case will be vigorously pursued in the highest professional manner."

Barr on Oct. 16 named retired federal Judge Frederick Lacey a special prosecutor in the case of the Rome-based Banca Nazionale del Lavoro (BNL).

The attorney general rejected a request by congressional Democrats to authorize a court-appointed independent counsel to head the probe.

There are allegations the Bush administration covered up its role in the allegedly fraudulent loans and sought to conceal its involvement from Congress.

Prosecutors have charged the loans exceeded Iraq's credit limit and the money was diverted to build up Saddam Hussein's war machine.

Roberts will report to Deputy Attorney General George J. Terwilliger III and will provide his findings to Lacey, Barr said.

Aspen aims to clean up traffic, pollution

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Wanted: a car czar to rid this mountain resort of traffic jams and pollution. Ability to work miracles helpful.

City officials want to clean up the gritty air before it spoils the skiing season. Lee Cassin, Aspen's environmental health officer, says on some days, the town's air is dirtier than Denver's.

"People don't come to vacation in a pristine mountain valley to end up sitting in a traffic jam breathing bad air," said Brent Gardner-Smith of Aspen Skiing Co.

Keep casino gambling where it belongs: in Nevada

Some questions and answers about HJR 4, the anti-casino amendment: How will this amendment change Idaho?

It won't change Idaho at all. Idaho doesn't allow casinos now, and HJR 4 is simply an attempt to keep things the same. To keep casinos out of Idaho, vote "yes."

What's wrong with having casinos in Idaho? Plenty. Everywhere casinos open, a smorgasbord of social problems follows. Casino gambling is linked to crime, government corruption, compulsive gambling and degradation of moral values.

That last sentence sounds like a scare tactic. Is casino gambling really that bad? Statistics say it is. Nevada has about the same population as Idaho, but in 1991 Nevada had 575 percent more murders than Idaho, 343 percent more rapes and 1,277 percent more robberies.

After casinos opened in Atlantic City, N.J., crime tripled in four years. Gambling is addictive. In New Jersey, 13 percent of all prisoners are incarcerated for crimes related to compulsive gambling. According to Valerie Lorenz, executive director of the Compulsive Gambling Center in Baltimore, casinos in Idaho could help 9,000 Idahoans become compulsive gamblers.

Will Idaho still have a state Lottery if HJR 4 passes? Sure. Idaho voters created the Lottery in 1988, and that won't change.

But what's the difference between the Lottery and casinos?

The Lottery is a fairly low-key form of gambling. It's under tight control by the state. It doesn't create same social environment as casinos, with their seductive atmosphere of a 24-hour-a-day party.

Is HJR 4 aimed at Indian tribes? Yes and no. Indian tribes' desire to go into the gambling business on reservations is one of the reasons Idaho needs to clarify its anti-gambling policy.

But reservation gambling is just part of the potential problem. Gambling breeds gambling.

If casinos are allowed on reservations, it will just be a matter of time until the gambling lobby pressures the Legislature to give non-Indians the same "rights."

The foreseeable result is proliferation of video slot machines and other casino-style gambling throughout the state. (Lobbyists already have asked the Legislature to legalize video slots in bars and taverns.) Failure to pass HJR 4 could have a far-reaching impact on Idaho's lifestyle.

But won't gambling help Indian reservations develop their economies and create desperately needed jobs?

Gambling isn't economic development. It doesn't produce anything of value. It doesn't create wealth. It only transfers wealth from suckers to casino operators.

Instead of bringing money into a community, it sucks money out — often by taking it from people who can't afford to lose it. Money lost in casinos is money that won't be spent on the goods and services that fuel our prosperity.

As for jobs — yes, casinos hire people. But mostly the jobs offer low pay, few benefits and no security. Surely Idaho tribes can find a smarter way to develop their economies.

I enjoy going to Jackpot and playing the slots once in a while. If I vote for HJR 4, does that make me a hypocrite?

Absolutely not. Lots of people have fun going to Nevada. But that doesn't mean they want to bring Nevada home to Idaho.

We say, keep Nevada-style gambling in Nevada. Idaho doesn't need it.

Vote "yes" for HJR 4.

Election '92

HJR 4 would amend Idaho's constitution to prohibit gambling other than what already is allowed.

Aja won't lose retirement funds

It has been called to my attention that some of the citizens and taxpayers of Gooding County are being led to believe that if Sheriff Robert Aja is not re-elected, he will lose his state retirement benefits. This is not true. He will be able to draw it out in a lump sum, or if he chooses, he can have it paid to him on a monthly basis for life. Another option he has is to leave it in the fund until he reaches retirement age and then draw it at that time. In other words, he will receive the funds he has earned up to the time he leaves.

Some of the former employees of the Gooding County sheriff's office retired earlier than they had planned, while others resigned due to the fact that the working conditions under Sheriff Aja became too uncomfortable for them to remain. They had the same choices concerning their retirement that Sheriff Aja will have if he is not re-elected: He will not lose his retirement funds.

When Jim Jax resigned as a deputy for the Gooding County sheriff's department and took employment with the Gooding police department as a detective, many of us had worked with him when he was a deputy and in his present position with the Gooding police department. We all have the highest regard for him.

If Jim Jax is elected sheriff, he will be an excellent administrator. He will cooperate with the rest of the offices in the courthouse. He will be available to meet with the county commissioners when needed and he will cooperate with all other law enforcement agencies in the county, outside the county, within the county or outside the state of Idaho.

Jim Jax's formal education has taught him to be a gentleman. Throughout this campaign period he has insisted that we deal only with the facts and there be no mudslinging. The information I pass along with this writing can be considered facts. PAT JEFFRIES Gooding

We need people like Jax

As the election date is drawing closer and I keep hearing whispery shadowy remarks about the lives of Carol and Jim Jax, I would like to make this public statement.

I moved to Wendell 20 years ago with a teen-age daughter. She finished high school in Wendell when Jim Jax was a teacher. I found him to be a caring and excellent teacher with a sense of humor. His students liked and respected him. As I worked in Twin Falls, I called on Carol several times to help me out when my daughter needed someone there for her when I couldn't be.

Through the years, I've seen how Jim and Carol care and work for their community. I think Jim will make an excellent sheriff because of his experience with people of all ages, his character and his years in police enforcement.

I hope on election day when the voters of Gooding County enter the booth to cast their ballot, they will remember these qualities and vote for Jim Jax. We need people like Jim in our political system.

MARY L. BAKER Wendell

Bush has more to hide

I cannot remember a more negative and disgustingly dirty campaign on the part of the Republican Party. It has been our misfortune and embarrassment to witness a president act anything but with dignity and moral integrity and who still asks people to believe in his record, his promises and his motives.

He wants us to believe that the Congress is to blame for all of the improprieties throughout the federal bureaucracy. The fraud in HUD, uncovered two years ago, has not been dealt with. AID is operating overseas with his blessing paid for by the taxpayers while American manufacturers move overseas and workers lose their jobs.

He goes to bed with Communist China and gives them favored trade status with American tax dollars when he knows that they use slave labor enabling them to undercut American producers. Then he asks us to believe him over Bill Clinton.

Why were the investigators muzzled in the savings and loan scandals, costing the people millions of dollars in irrecoverable assets, due to the three-year time limit? Quite frankly, throwing the Iran/Iraq matter in on top of the heap, I think that George Bush has a lot more to hide than Bill Clinton.

Unless the American people come to their senses and exercise their right to vote, nothing will change because those in power don't want it to change. George Bush is much more concerned with the expansion of the one-world government theory than in rebuilding America.

Get out and vote! Get your neighbor to vote! Vote for a change! That is the only way we will retake our government from the political establishment.

J.A. "JIM" MARTIN Rupert

Cal Edwards shows he is a person who cares

Recently I had trouble replacing a bandage on an injury I'd just had stituled up at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center Emergency Room. It was evening and I didn't know who to turn to. Gave Cal Edwards a call. He was busy at home but came right over. He showed me exactly the right way and with what to properly redress the injury.

How many people would drop what they are doing to help a friend, neighbor or stranger? Not many these days. With all the uncaring government officials, isn't it time to vote for a down-to-earth humanitarian for sheriff? Like Cal Edwards, a person who cares.

PHIL ARNOLD Kimberly

Protest the way property tax money is being spent

About the 1 Percent Initiative, I am sick of hearing our fat cats crying about it. The last straw was Gov. Andrus and Sen. McClure teaming up to convince us to vote against the 1 Percent Initiative.

I am going to vote for it, as a protest to the way our bureaucrats spend my property tax money. Let's try a different approach. Let's kick out the heads of our four-year colleges. They are just figureheads only. With their ridiculous large salaries and many perks, including rent-free mansions with no taxes to pay, we would save over $300,000. That alone would educate many kids for one year.

About the State Highway

Department — who appointed the fellow who decides where the money is to be spent? Every year there is a rash of rook chuck eradication programs in the median. Now there's a new one. The top priority now is the rest stops; remodel, move or rebuild. Did he ever consider what North Dakota has done? Build them in the median so both sides can use the same one and eliminate half of them. Another waste, turn off half the lights on the freeways. We all have lights on cars. Maybe it would save Idaho Power enough electricity so there would be no need to raise our rates to run our irrigation system.

It doesn't matter if farmers make any money. If you're a property owner, you've got to pay under protest. If you don't, they'll get you anyway. The property owners carry the load. Now they are talking about putting another dam on the poor abused Snake River. I could make many more suggestions, but they might not look so good on paper. JOHN SPANBAUER ST Jerome

Don't let 1% put us in compromising position

Good drinking water, highways in our rural areas, free schools, libraries, parks, streets, animal control, hospitals, safe crematories, indigent care and occasionally a public golf course — these are all community services which the property tax supplies.

We get more for our property tax payment than any other tax we pay when you look at the preceding paragraph. It is collected locally and administered locally by elected officials who live in the taxing districts and can be held accountable.

People buying homes, with the mortgage payment also paying the tax, may not read the tax notices and realize the bargain they are getting. Homeowners pay the tax directly. People renting also contribute to this quality of life in the towns they live in although their contribution is hidden in the rent.

For those who pay the tax directly, it may be a hardship since it can be paid in only one or two installments. A few adjustments in the local government could make monthly payments possible if requested.

There are inequities which need to be addressed. Properties which are not kept neat and in good repair should not be subsidized by lower taxes. Improvements and good maintenance should not be fined by increased tax. We can go to work on this. Maybe taxes should be based on something other than "market value."

But in the meantime, let's not put ourselves in a position where police officers must be cut from the payroll at a time when crime is increasing in rural as well as urban areas. And I, for one, don't ever want to live in a town where dogs run rampant. Property taxes support quality of life. VIRGINIA ASH Rupert

Pheasants prove to be smarter than hunters

The other day Old Bossy, the cow, seemed a little nervous. Didn't know why until about 12 o'clock when down the road came one of those pick 'em up trucks with two men and a dog in it. Well, they seen this pheasant out by Old Bossy and they came to a halt in the middle of the road and jumped out.

Well, that old rooster pheasant took off and flew right over Old Bossy thinking he was safe. About that time I heard a kaboom! kaboom! That pheasant kept right on flying to some tall weeds. But Old Bossy's tail came up, she let out a loud grunt and she was off at full speed. The way Old Bossy was moving, she would be over in the next state before she stopped.

Well, these two men get back in the pick 'em up truck and come on down the road. They see some tall weeds in this here field by the house. They stop again in the middle of the road and take their dog and go to the weed patch. Well, all of a sudden that dog comes to a halt, it goes up and one leg starts to point. These men get all excited and they say fluff. Well, that dog jumps, the weeds move and I hear a kaboom! kaboom! Boy, out of those weeds come Old Tom, my tom cat.

Now I figure those two guys see four legs and one tail and figure that that thing was two pheasants. Well, Old Tom headed for the wood pile and he probably won't come out for a couple of weeks and when he does, I bet he stays out of tall weed patches.

Well, after all this I figure it must be pheasant season. I hate to tell these guys but the pheasants have all gone to town, as you see in town, all the pheasants have to worry about is the Fish and Game shooting them with a dart or being hit by a car.

JOEL BRADY Eden

Stallings assures a strong voice in U.S. Senate

There are too few of our elected representatives who study the issues and vote their consciences. Also, they are not restricted to any single political party. Locally, Laird Noh is a Republican who fairly and effectively represents all of his constituents. A Democrat who falls in this same category is Richard Stallings. I appreciate his willingness to take a stand on issues that are not always politically expedient or popular with special interests. Even though I may not always agree with him I know that his position is based on a need to compromise for the best interest of all concerned.

I have supported and worked for both of these men and I urge everyone to vote for Richard Stallings to continue to assure Idaho a strong voice in the Senate from a man who will listen to the people who voted for him.

S. GENE DAY Twin Falls

Correction

Part of a sentence was inadvertently omitted from Monday's letter from John Davis of the Committee to Write In Robert Aja for Sheriff.

The full sentence should have read: "Over the past five months, we have been forced to contend with such things as political signs being destroyed or defaced, finger gestures from those wearing opposing candidates' T-shirts, obscene phone calls from a gravelly-voiced older female making threats, spitting into the phone, and numerous other incidents."

The Times-News regrets the error.

America seems to have lost its character

We have allowed enemies to mold our opinions about many things, people and organizations. By doing so, America has lost its character, and we the people have lost ours.

American sovereignty is being abandoned by those who have taken oaths to support, honor and obey the Constitution. Presidents and Congress have pledged our full surrender to the New World Order. Congress has created monsters which will bring our industry to its knees in the form of control agencies such as the Environmental Protection Agency, Federal Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, Americans with Disabilities Act and endless others.

The government has discontinued protecting the sacred rights afforded us in the Constitution. They have assumed the role of "economy maker for the whole world."

Our government has become an all-risk insurance company for the world. They pay all losses, including those who pay no premiums. This is totally in violation of the Constitution.

Yes, America is doomed! The planners have bankrupt us spiritually, financially and morally. We have lost our ability to be self-sustaining and honest. We would rather allow our officials to steal the fruits of our neighbor's labor than work. We all call it compassion and feel it is justifiable.

Why do we not listen and study all candidates including Bo Gritz and see who believes in our Constitution and Bill of Rights given to us by our founding fathers? Who really is for America, land of the free, home of the brave?

Aja can't resolve problems of inmates

There have been several letters in The Times-News lately praising Sheriff Robert Aja. We would like to give the public another viewpoint. All is not smooth nor as it should be within the jail here as Mr. Aja seems to want you to believe. It seems he can't or won't listen to or resolve problems of the inmates he has assumed the care of.

His concern for substance abuse consists of one Alcoholics

Anonymous meeting per week, if there are (they sometimes do not). There is no drug abuse program at all and absolutely no educational or rehabilitative programs of any kind. A church person does come every other week and another once a week. Inmates do attend those meetings, but more is needed.

Inmates leave with a worse social attitude than when they entered, still in denial of their drug abuse and, as evidenced by calls from the Department of Corrections, bringing a bad attitude with them.

He hired unqualified staff, but they haven't much to work with. Many problems have not changed at all and certainly have not been reduced from where we sit. The only reason inmates apply for work detail is because they are allowed to smoke out there. Last but not least, the civil lawsuit has been settled, but the American Civil Liberties Union is still concerned and is still in-contact with inmates.

Can you maybe put yourself into our shoes for only one minute and try to understand? How ever doubtful you say it could be, you could end up staying here and those conditions could become yours or your loved one's.

This is another reason we appeal to you, the public. Visit. See for yourself. To do time and nothing else. This is wrong and needs correcting. This facility is part of the sheriff's job, just as arresting us was so we will write and write, expecting negative repercussions for this letter, but we have already no smoking, no TV, no privileges to lose outside of our rights as prisoners. So we write, hoping you will be mindful of our condition here. It is not a closed subject to us.

Nelson's outrage at candidate seemed phony

A message to Lynn Nelson: A gracious decline to accept Mr. Bennett's offer of chief deputy would have cost some class and won you some respect. Your outrage seemed phony and uncalled for.

The people who know Golden did not believe for a moment that he would just presume that whoever he picked for chief deputy would not have to be informed, just announce it in the newspaper and surprise the guy. Get real, Lynn!

I hope this letter will shed a little light on the matter for those who don't know Golden. He is not the fool you would have them believe.

Mr. Nelson, I think you should grow up and take responsibility for your actions.

Just go along with disagreeable things

Everyone, sooner or later, thinks of some act of violence or thinks of what ought to happen to someone else who had performed an act of violence. Perhaps a more universal type of violence would be a war.

The last conflict called World War II probably would immediately come to mind. Everyone has no doubt heard of the atrocious deeds of the enemy, and you yourself have heard the expressions of horror and what should happen to such people. "Isn't that awful?" they would say, and "I hope our Army kills all of them," or "They ought to line 'em up and shoot everyone of them!"

Just about every day, you will hear of someone doing something and it's a cinch there will be someone else to advise those who would listen of the bovine qualities of such persons and describing the punishment these rogues deserve.

The best thing, my friends, is just go along with all things we are inclined to call disagreeable and a product of what is commonly and disgustingly referred to in a polite manner as "bovine excrement." Or, in other words, if you get slapped on one cheek, please turn the other and let 'em slap that side also because you're going to get slapped around quite a bit before it's over, so you may as well get used to it and remember, no retaliation; you hear?

You must not think, "I'll burn his barn or I will slash his tires or vote against him," and you must, by all means, keep yourself under control, shake hands with him and hope to hell he will do the right thing and raise Social Security 10 percent next year.

Overall crime rate changed little in 1991

WASHINGTON (AP) — The crime rate in the United States varied little in 1991 from the previous year, a Justice Department report said Monday.

But the report by the Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS) said violent crimes jumped around 7 percent, mainly because of a sharp rise in simple assaults — a category that includes minor offenses.

Serious violent crimes — rape, robbery and aggravated assaults — were essentially unchanged in 1991 from 1990, the bureau said.

The new report estimates crime rates based on interviews with some 83,000 people in 42,000 households.

It follows by one day the latest FBI statistics that showed the amount of crime reported to police declined 2 percent in the first half of 1992, compared with the same period the previous year.

Some regard the FBI figures as less reliable than the BJS report, which isn't limited to crime reported to police. The Justice Department says fewer than 40 percent of major crimes are reported to police.

The BJS survey said U.S. residents 12 years old and up experienced 34.7 million crimes in 1991, compared to 34.4 million the previous year.

That included 6.4 million violent crimes in 1991 and 6.01 million in 1990. The rest of the crimes, primarily theft and car theft, were little changed between the two years, the report said.

The BJS survey does not measure murder rates. Murders are a tiny fraction of overall crime.

The FBI report released Sunday showed a 3 percent drop in the number of reported murders, a 1 percent decrease in robberies, a 4 percent rise in forcible rapes and a 6 percent increase in aggravated assaults.

These figures were based on comparisons of the first six months of 1992 and the first six months last year.

Here are some other findings of the BJS report: • The violent crime rate in 1991 was 11 percent lower than 1981 and the burglary rate was almost 40 percent lower than 10 years earlier.

• Only car theft has jumped substantially in the last decade, up nearly 28 percent.

• Violent crime peaked in 1981, with 35.3 victims per 1,000 people ages 12 or older. The figure for 1991 was 31.3 victims per 1,000.

• Blacks are far more likely than whites to be victims of violent crime.

Astronauts fire up furnaces, defend orbital work

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Columbia's astronauts fired up a pair of metal-melting furnaces and baked tiny strips of gold, silver and lead Monday after solving a cooling problem with the unit.

The crew of five Americans and one Canadian also photographed the glow from the upper atmosphere as the shuttle sped around the world halfway through its 10-day flight. "Every mission that we fly into space takes us one step closer to being able to operate in space and live and work here full time," astronaut Charles Lacy Veach said during a broadcast interview.

Veach defended the work being done aboard Columbia. Critics have argued a laser-reflecting satellite dispatched by the astronauts Friday could have been launched from an unmanned rocket and that the subsequent shuttle research is not worth the risk to humans or the nearly half-billion-dollar cost.

"It's hard to assign a dollar value to any one mission or a dollar return to any one event that takes place in space," Veach said. "But the cumulative effect of everything we're doing here is revolutionizing human life, and it's that simple."

As of midday Monday, the astronauts had melted 10 metal samples in two small middeck furnaces capable of being heated to 1,380 degrees Fahrenheit. After being baked, the specimens were cooled so they could solidify as quickly as possible.

Each of the 35 samples — in the form of 1/16-inch-long wires — consists of two metals, such as gold and lead or silver and lead.

Canadian researchers want to see how well various metals diffuse in weightlessness. Such knowledge could help metallurgists create better alloys on Earth, said Bruce Aikenhead, program manager for the Canadian Space Agency.

Friends, hobos mourn death of Roger Miller

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Roger Miller was mourned Monday by fellow singers, friends and hobos.

They recalled his down-home charm in the fingersnapping hit "King of the Road," the twangy "Dang Me" and the goofy "Can't Rollerskate in a Buffalo Herd."

Miller

"Out of his mouth would flow the most unusual yet appropriate lines you would ever hear," said Bill Boyd, executive director of the Academy of Country Music and a longtime friend. "He was fun to be around. I think Roger was most at home in front of a microphone entertaining people, whether it be five people or 5,000."

The nation's hobos also grieved the weekend death of Miller, whose 1965 song "King of the Road" gave rail-riders an anthem.

"When one of our brethren die, it's a sad thing," said Garth Bishop, publisher of Hobo Times for the 4,500-member National Hobo Association based in Los Angeles.

Miller, 56, who died of cancer Sunday at Century City Hospital, also wrote such hits as "England Swings," "Chug-a-Lug," "Do-Wacka-Do" and "Husbands and Wives."

The singer-songwriter's wife, Mary, and his son, Roger Dean Jr., were at his side when he died, said Elizabeth Thibault, the entertainer's publicist. Miller lived near Albuquerque, N.M.

Miller won 11 Grammy Awards as well as Tony Awards for the Broadway musical "Big River," based on Mark Twain's novel "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn."

Miller wrote 18 songs for "Big River," his first effort at writing for the stage.

The show, on Broadway for 2 1/2 years, won seven Tony Awards in 1985, including best musical score.

In 1966, Miller had his own NBC-TV variety show, "The Roger Miller Show."

Some of his other hits were "Kansas City Star," "Engine, Engine Number Nine," "Win the Summertime" and "Walking in the Sunshine."

Health organizations start heart ailment campaign

CHICAGO (AP) — More than a million Americans with the same heart ailment that has afflicted President Bush and Mother Teresa should learn more about it so they can obtain treatment if warranted, a doctors' group said Monday.

The ailment, atrial fibrillation, is the indirect cause of 75,000 strokes a year, up to half of which could be prevented with drug therapy, the American College of Chest Physicians said. "Based on what we now know, physicians should more actively pursue the diagnosis and treatment of atrial fibrillation," said Dr. Marvin I. Dunn, the group's past president.

And anyone who has been diagnosed with the condition but is not receiving drug treatment should revisit a physician to learn whether drugs are warranted, he told reporters.

The college has joined the National Stroke Association and the Alliance for Aging Research in mailing 105,000 packets of information on treating the disorder to primary care physicians nationwide.

Also, they have opened a toll-free nationwide hot line.

Atrial fibrillation occurs when the upper chambers of the heart vibrate instead of pump vigorously. That allows blood to stagnate and clot. If the clots break off and travel to the brain, they can clog vessels and cause a stroke.

Many doctors consider blood-thinning drugs too risky for most patients, but a review of five major clinical studies found that the benefits far outweigh the risks at low doses for most older patients, the doctors said.

Magic Valley teams miss volleyball change

It was a washout for the Magic Valley Saturday.

Burley, Filer and Raft River all failed in a bid to advance to the state volleyball tournament this week.

In American Falls, Burley took Bear Lake to three games before falling to the Bears 15-5, 10-15, 15-12.

The Bobcats had an 11-8 lead in the final game, but missed some serves and the momentum shifted to Bear Lake.

In Mountain Home, both Filer and Raft River tasted defeat.

The Wildcats were belted in their playoff game with Fruitland.

The Grizzlies walked Filer 15-3, 15-9.

It was much closer in the Raft River game with Midvale. The Rangers lost the first game to the Trojans and came back to win the final two games. Midvale advanced to the state tournament with a 8-15, 15-5, 16-14 win Saturday over Raft River.

Playoff times, opponents announced for A-3 teams

Two Magic Valley teams will host the first round while one hits the road in the Idaho State A-3 playoffs.

Canyon Conference champion Glens Ferry will get to host Fruitland in the first round.

The third-ranked Pilots, 8-0, will play the Grizzlies Friday night at 7.

The runner-up in the Canyon Conference, Gooding, 6-2, will have the late start Friday. Malba visits the Senators on another game Friday. That game will start at 7:30 p.m.

Kimberly will have the toughest test of the Magic Valley A-3 teams.

The Bulldogs, 5-3, will hit the trail to top-ranked Homedale, 8-0, this weekend. As of Sunday, the game was slated for 1 p.m. Saturday.

If all three Magic Valley teams win, two teams will get to host second round games while one team would go on the road. Glens Ferry and Kimberly, with first round wins, would stay home for the second round and the Senators, if they win Friday, will be on the road for their second round contest.

Molyneux aces 15th hole at Canyon Springs course

JEROME — Marvin Molyneux carded a hole-in-one with a 7-wood on Canyon Springs' 15th hole.

Witnesses were Charles Donnelley and Billy Williams.

Martin takes 1 on 4th hole at Twin Falls Municipal

TWIN FALLS — Ralph Martin used a 5-wood to card his first hole-in-one on the par-3, 152-yard fourth hole at Twin Falls Municipal Monday.

Witnesses were Cleo Shorthouse and Gideon Harr.

Oh, Canada!

Exuberant Jays fans welcome their heroes

The Associated Press

TORONTO — More than 250,000 Toronto Blue Jays fans climbed stop traffic lights, hung from windows and jammed traffic Monday to catch a glimpse of Canada's newest heroes.

Traffic was thrown into gridlock for much of the afternoon as screaming fans paid tribute to the World Series champions during a victory parade that crawled to the SkyDome.

More than 50,000 others — many of them teen-agers who skipped school for the day — crammed inside the covered stadium to thank the winners of Saturday night's 4-3 win over the Atlanta Braves that won the Series 4-2.

"We're watching real live Canadian heroes, even though they're American," said Joe Sheehan, who pulled his two children out of school to watch the parade. "They fought a war during the Series and came out with a victory for the whole country."

Police could barely contain the excitement. Thousands burst through police barricades to try to touch the players as they rode by atop convertibles.

Before daybreak, many began lining up outside the Dome and along city streets in the rain to get a good seat. Children were bundled into sleeping bags while adults wrapped themselves in Canadian flags.

Others scaled trees and traffic lights along the three-block parade route in the city's financial district. Dozens of children sat on top of their parents' shoulders, desperate for a peek at the champs.

Most were decked out in blue and white and clutched Canadian flags. Some traveled across the country, others from around the world to pay homage to their heroes. "I was raised on the Blue Jays and this is a dream come true," said Tom Martin, a Toronto native who flew in from Dublin for the week when he learned the Jays had made it to the World Series. "It was worth the trip."

Others weren't so sure. The crowds were so thick many spectators couldn't even see the Jays. "I hoped my husband taped this on TV so I can watch the parade when I get home," said one woman as she walked along the litter-strewn street.

Many of the revelers were teen-agers who skipped class or children allowed to play hockey from school for a glimpse of history in the making.

"It's an historic occasion they all wanted to share in," said Toronto teacher Kate Zaleski, who brought her Grade 4-5 class to the parade.

Bills down Jets on late Kelly toss

The Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — A Monday night against the New York Jets. How could the Buffalo Bills miss? They didn't, but just barely, as Thurman Thomas caught a 12-yard touchdown pass from Jim Kelly with 51 seconds remaining, lifting the Bills past their AFC East patsy, 24-20. Buffalo marched 75 yards in seven plays, using 59 seconds to earn its 10th straight victory over the Jets.

The late heroes spoiled a superb comeback by the Jets (1-6). Ken O'Brien, the man Jets fans love to hate, guided New York 65 yards on a 77-yard drive for a 20-17 lead, with Brad Baxter scoring from the 1 with 1:50 remaining.

Olympic stadium receives preliminary approval

The Associated Press

ATLANTA — A plan for a three-tiered, 85,000-seat stadium for the 1996 Olympics won the approval of an oversight committee today.

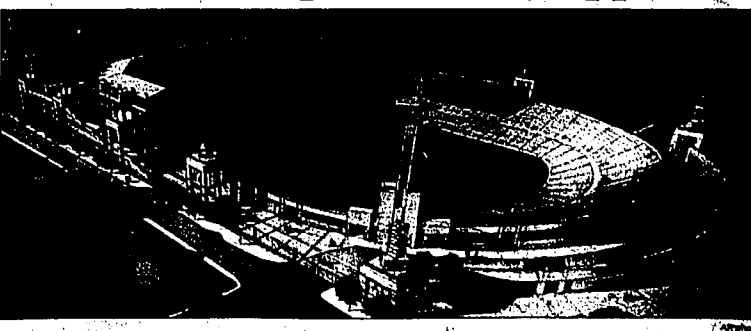

"I cannot think of any concern that has not been met," mayor Maynard Jackson said of the design for the oval stadium, to be built near downtown at a cost of $207 million.

The stadium features light towers, exterior staircases and an Olympic torch that will remain after the Games.

Some details still must be worked out, but construction is scheduled to begin next year, said Scott Braley, project manager for the stadium design. The lower portion of the building will be brown sandstone with the upper portion light green, Braley said.

The Metropolitan Atlanta Olympic Games Authority stadium committee, headed by Jackson, voted its approval, with the understanding that details will be discussed later.

The committee deferred action on construction strategy and project management until its November meeting. After the Games, the stadium will be

An artist rendering of the proposed Olympic stadium in Atlanta shows its light towers and three tiers at one end, converted to the home park of the Atlanta Braves, seating 45,000 to 48,000. "It won't look like that bowl that is there right now. It has far more detail and character to it," said Richard Monteith, executive director of the Olympic Games Authority.

Salary drive

Key Bucs, A's file for free agency; Boggs joins group

Newsday

Call it restructuring or scaling down or forced dismantling. The process appears to have resumed for the Pittsburgh Pirates and begun for the Oakland Athletics. Nearly one year after Bobby Bonilla took his first step away from the Pirates, Barry Bonds and Doug Drabek did likewise Monday and filed for free agency. Meanwhile, four of the 13 Athletics eligible for free agency — Mark McGwire, Ruben Sierra, Terry Steinbach and Jeff Russell — also filed.

Free agents listed — B2

Bonds, Drabek, McGwire, Sierra, Boston Red Sox third baseman Wade Boggs and Chicago Cubs pitcher Greg Maddux were the most attractive among 26 players who filed on the first day of the process, now in its 17th year.

Ninety-four other players are eligible for free agency.

The filing period runs through midnight Nov. 8. Players with the right to demand trades must make their demands during the same period.

Between now and Nov. 8, players who file for free agency may negotiate and sign only with their incumbent clubs. They also may speak with other clubs, but financial terms may not be discussed. Once the filing deadline passes, free agents may negotiate and sign with any club.

A free agent's most recent club has other exclusive rights but also faces some restrictions. By Dec. 7, it may offer salary arbitration as a means of reaching agreement on a new one-year contract. No club other than the incumbent has that right. If arbitration isn't offered by Dec. 7, the club loses rights to its former player until May 1.

The free agent has until Dec. 19 to accept the arbitration offer. If he does, he is considered signed, with his salary to be determined in arbitration, and he is not deemed to have used his free agency. If he doesn't accept the offer by Dec. 19, he is eligible to sign with his former club until Jan. 8. If he doesn't sign by then, he cannot sign with his former club until May 1.

Other players filing were pitchers Larry Anderson and Randy Myers of the San Diego Padres, Todd Worrell and Scott Terry of the St. Louis Cardinals, Greg Swindell of the Cincinnati Reds, Chris Bosio of the Milwaukee Brewers, Jose Guzman of the Texas Rangers, John Smiley of the Minnesota Twins, Dave Smith of the Chicago Cubs and Rick Sutcliffe of the Baltimore Orioles; catchers Benito Santiago of the Padres and Bob Melvin of the Kansas City Royals; second baseman Harold Reynolds of the Seattle Mariners; shortstop Spike Owen of the Montreal Expos; third baseman Rene Gonzalez of the California Angels; outfielders Glenn Braggs of the Reds and Cory Snyder of the San Francisco Giants and infielder Dale Sveum of the Chicago White Sox.

Ninety minutes after the love-in between the Toronto Blue Jays and their fans at SkyDome, the World Series champions announced they will not offer salary arbitration to Dave Winfield and Candy Maldonado.

The Blue Jays also will not pick up the options on pitcher Dave Stieb and Mark Eichhorn.

Those four players can file for free agency by the Nov. 8 deadline. General manager Pat Gillick said he wants to re-sign Winfield, Maldonado and Eichhorn.

Gillick said Stieb will be invited to spring training as a non-roster player if he doesn't sign elsewhere.

Stress of NFL coaching shifts in different ways

The Associated Press

What makes Mike mad? Why does Wyche get wacky? Who is responsible for Ray's rantings?

"The pressures on NFL coaches, whether they operate from their bosses, their players, the fans, the media or the opposition — some coaches consider all of those people the opposition — never cease. Their ability to deal with the stress usually affects how their teams perform.

This year, several incidents have brought those pressures into sharper focus. And brought the way the coaches handle them into the spotlight.

There was that bear of a man, Mike Ditka, verbally assaulting quarterback Jim Harbaugh on the sidelines. The Chicago quarterback had the audacity to call an audible, which turned into a Minnesota interception that turned the game around.

And Ditka's tirade drew national attention. "We're all under a microscope," said Ditka. "When you play pro sports you live in glass houses."

Meaning you have to duck flying glass. And those are just questions, something Giants coach Bill Parcells can't seem to handle.

Handley has had more run-ins with the New York media than Lawrence Taylor has had sacks — and Taylor is the career leader in that department. The coach has chased reporters and photographers from practices, which were open to local media when Bill Parcells ran the Giants. He's walked out on news conferences when he perceived the questions as too probing or touchy. He seems to pay more attention to the press than to game plans.

"I don't know what I really expected. It seems I draw attention wherever I do, so I just need to learn to live with it," Parcells says. "The media thinks they are on stage. They try to impress one another with the questions they ask."

Wyche rarely has had such problems, though he once barred USA Today's Denise Tom from the Bengals locker room because he doesn't approve of the NFL's policy allowing

Ditka cuts back on talks to reporters, apparently angry at press coverage

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) — In an apparent protest against recent media coverage, Chicago Bears coach Mike Ditka Monday canceled his weekly press conferences.

Bears' spokesman Bryan Harlan said that Ditka told him he wanted to discontinue the Monday conferences, in which he talks about the previous weekend's games.

Harlan said Ditka planned to keep his Wednesday press conferences, which deal with the upcoming game.

Ditka apparently was still angry over what happened in his press conferences last week.

It all stemmed back to his blowup in Minnesota on Oct. 4, when Jim Harbaugh called an audible and Todd Strick intercepted the pass and returned it 35 yards for a touchdown.

Ditka berated Harbaugh on the sidelines as what was a 20-0 lead turned into a 21-20 Vikings victory. In his press conference the following day, Ditka said he didn't regret blowing up at Harbaugh, "because the last thing I told him Saturday night was not to call an audible because of the noise" in the Metrodome.

The Bears had a bye the following week and Ditka skipped his Oct. 12 press conference.

The Bears defeated Tampa Bay 31-14 on

'To continue in an immature mode, like a 5-year-old brat, is no longer acceptable. The town is losing respect for you.'

— Jay Mariotta, Chicago Sun-Times columnist

Oct. 18. Late in that game, a pass from Harbaugh was intercepted by Darryl Pollard for long return.

At his press conference Monday, Oct. 19, Ditka was asked about his reaction on that interception in relation to the "audible" interception. That's when he unleashed an obscenity-laced tirade at the media.

End of press conference.

Some reporters on hand thought Ditka's temper tantrum had to do with preparations for Sunday's clash with the Green Bay Packers, the Bears' oldest rival.

The stress of playing the Packers, an unauthorized biography depicting him as a monster, probing media questions and the Bears' worst start since 1983 seems to be piling up on Ditka, a 1988 Heisman award victim whose history of thrown clipboards and slammed filing cabinets is well documented. "Ditka has endured strife and stress at virtually every point in his coaching," Copy News Service columnist Gene Seymour wrote.

He has blasted reporters on previous occasions and chewed out players many times before. But for some, the act is getting tiresome.

Chicago Sun-Times columnist Jay Mariotta last week tilted on the coach to change or quit. "To continue in an immature mode, like a 5-year-old brat, is no longer acceptable. The town is losing respect for you," Mariotta said.

The newspaper's readers were given a chance to vote by telephone on whether Ditka should quit.

More than one percent (5,438 to 3,468) of the callers gave thumbs down to the Bears' coach, the Sun-Times reported the next day.

Ditka refused to comment on the poll. Last Wednesday Ditka held another press conference and answered questions directly until someone asked about his reaction to the poll asking readers to answer if Ditka should remain or leave.

Ditka ignored the question and asked "Any more football questions?" There were none and that was the end of that press conference.

But he is a refreshing break from the mold, a man who has things in perspective, even though his game-time persona seems, well, somewhat out of whack. "It is just a game," said Wyche, now coaching the perennially underachieving Tampa Bay Buccaneers, a true test of one's ability to cope with stress. "I've gotten myself in plenty of trouble because I went ahead and acknowledged that that's the way I think.

"I think this should be one tremendous positive, a respite from the hard work, hard worries of the world outside the world of sports. And it shouldn't be life and death to people. It shouldn't be 'Kill the coach' when you lose a game. I mean, if you win, I will believe it. Winning isn't everything.

"If winning is the only thing, then implicitly what you're saying is any way that you can win is OK. If you have to cheat to win, you have a license, because winning is everything. I think making the winning effort is everything. There's a tremendous difference."

Making the winning effort involves, in the minds of most coaches, long workdays, little rest time and even less balance in their lives. Washington's Joe Gibbs has slept in his office rather than waste time commuting.

Dick Vermeil, who was a victim of classic burnout when he quit the Eagles in 1982, spent 20 hours a day on football. That doesn't leave much time for sleeping, eating or family.

"I don't think there are any clocks during the season," Cardinals coach Joe Bugel said. "During the season, there is no balance at all. It's one way. The family suffers. If you don't have an understanding wife and an understanding family, you're going to be in divorce court over and over again."

Which is why Mary Schottenheimer, one of the least paranoid of NFL coaches — and make no mistake, they all are P.A.D.s in parano — actually took a break last week. The Chiefs coach put aside the grind for one night, left Arrowhead Stadium early and went home because son Brian, a freshman quarterback at Kansas, and daughter Kristen, 22, were at his house.

"The kids were both home last Monday night. We were in Schottenheimer said, his voice cracking and his eyes misting. "I've had a nice hour or so we spent together. And I miss that. But I just happened to think last night as we were together, the four of us ... well, five counting the dog ... I thought to myself, 'Boy, it's nice to have them nearby so you can have an hour or so together.'" women equal access to the players. His running feud with commissioner Paul Tagliabue, his run-ins with game officials and his general irreverence earned him the nickname "Wacky Wyche."

CSI sleepwalks past Albertson's

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho hardly dominated Albertson's College of Idaho, but still managed to win 1-0 in a 15-14 non-conference volleyball sweep Monday.

"I thought we were kind of flat tonight," said CSI Coach Ben Stroud. "I don't know if we were looking ahead to Wednesday and Thursday of what the deal was."

Middle hitter Joanne Grasmic and outside hitter Liz Gilbert paced the Golden Eagles, now 29-8 overall.

"There wasn't much emotion, and they were kind of the same way," Stroud said. "It just seemed like when we needed to kick it in and get it done we got it done."

Treasure Valley visits CSI at 3 p.m. Wednesday and North Idaho College follows on Thursday.

If the Eagles, 3-0 in league play, win both, they clinch the first place in conference and guarantee a playoff berth for CSI. The Eagles would then need a win at Ricks Friday, Nov. 6, to be designated the host site for the regional tournament.

Browning Nage hurt his shoulder early in New York's TD drive when hit by Bruce Smith. O'Brien, a 7th-year starter who lost his job to New York this year, came in and took them from their 35 to the score.

O'Brien found Rob Moore for 9 yards. Blair Thomas ran for 6 and O'Brien's 45-yard rainbow was dropped in the end zone by Rob Moore, but James Williams was called for interference.

Baxter scored on the next play, leaving more than enough time for the 20-11 final defending AFC champions.

The Bills (5-2) got a 34-yard pass to Don Beebe to tie the Jets' 49. Beebe also caught a 19-yarder on third down to the 30.

Thomas ran for 18 yards, then Kelly found the versatile running back on two defenders in the end zone.

The Bills broke a two-game slide in which they scored only 13 points with a muddled no-huddle attack. The Jets continued their disastrous year, although they played their best game against their nemesis.

A mini-rival involving Stymie and Nagle erupted on New York's second possession.

Nagle, scrambling toward the sideline, completed a pass to Ken Whisenand and was hit by Smith. Nagle-trying to get up, but Smith wouldn't move. So Nagle pushed Smith, who then appeared to fall back on top of the quarterback.

The Jets tackle Iv Ertman then dived on Smith, drawing a 15-yard unsportsmanlike conduct penalty.

New York led 3-0 on Cary Blanchard's first-quarter 42-yard field goal.

No. 1 draft pick helps Colts start comeback

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Ted Marchibroda doesn't confuse progress with momentum.

The Indianapolis Colts are visibly better last year, notched its fourth victory on Sunday with a 31-20 surprise of previously unbeaten Miami. The game was a lot closer than the score, though.

The Dolphins, forced into four earlier turnovers by the Colts, still appeared headed for a winning touchdown in the closing seconds before rookie Steve Emtman snatched a pass by Dan Marino and returned it 90 yards for a TD on the final play of the game.

"It was in my hands, and I took off and ran," said Emtman. "That's all there was. I-was the goal line and I just ran. I was lucky enough to get some blocks, and I was there."

Emtman, the first player taken in the NFL draft last spring, also had five tackles, a sack and forced a fumble.

"I still made some mistakes," the 6-foot-4, 290-pound defensive end from Washington said. "I definitely wasn't a perfect game for me. The big plays were there, but like I said, I definitely didn't play a perfect game."

It was the Colts' first victory over a team with a winning record. This week, Indianapolis plays at San Diego (3-4), which beat the Colts 34-14 at the Hoosier Dome two weeks ago.

"I'm beginning to believe our football team is what you see. I'm not sure when we'll reach that consistency level," Marchibroda said. "We've won four games, and every one has been pretty much in the same fashion. So I have to believe this is our football team. We have to play 60 minutes with everything we have. When that ball club leaves the football field, they're totally spent."

Sunday's victory was a costly one, though, with rookie linebacker Quentin Coryatt likely headed for the injured reserve list and offensive lineman Bill Schultz and Ron Solt good possibilities to join him.

Coryatt, picked second in the draft behind Emtman, broke a wrist in the second quarter. Schultz hurt his leg and Solt injured a shoulder.

Running back Anthony Johnson (arch) and guard Randy Dixon (concussion) had lesser injuries and are expected to be ready for Sunday's game.

Quarterback Jeff George, who scored the go-ahead touchdown on a 1-yard run with 1:32 to go, said the victory showed the Colts are headed in the right direction, even if they still have a lot to prove.

"We showed we can come back in the fourth quarter and have the confidence to do so. Let's just hope it carries over," he said. "The team knows how to win now. We were tested, and we just want to keep it going."

The injuries, especially to the offensive linemen, brought back some unpleasant memories for George, who started behind 10 different starting combinations on the interior line a year ago.

"You're always concerned about it, when you see the linemen go down, so yeah, it has to be in the back of your mind," George said. "We don't want to go through something like we went through last year. So we just have to wait and see what happens — who's healthy and who's not — and go from there."

Loss drops Vandals just 1 notch; Boise State falls completely out

BOISE (AP) — Idaho's loss to top-ranked Northern Iowa dropped the Vandals only one notch to No. 3 in this week's NCAA Division I-AA football poll, but Boise State was knocked out of the rankings entirely.

The previously 16th-ranked Broncos (5-3 overall, 2-1 Big Sky) were beaten 51-26 at home by Division II Portland State but still managed to remain among 11 teams also receiving votes in the poll released Monday.

A third nationally ranked Big Sky Conference team, Eastern Washington (5-2, 4-1), beat league rival Northern Arizona and moved up to 19th from last week's tie at No. 20 with Jackson State.

The Eagles also improved from second to first in I-AA in rushing defense, now giving up just over 71 yards per game on the ground. And they trail only Idaho among Big Sky teams in total offense. The Vandals are the nation's best in that category, averaging more than 495 yards per game, while Eastern Washington is 14th in I-AA, averaging almost 417 yards.

Montana State, with its 29-17 loss to Montana last weekend, slipped from fourth to 11th nationally but still leads the Big Sky in scoring defense, allowing opponents less than 17 points per game.

The Bobcats also are second in the conference in total defense to Northern Arizona, which ranks 16th in I-AA, and second in the league to Montana in pass defense with three of the top four interception leaders in juniors Reggie Carthon, Morgan Ryan and Sean Hill.

But the Big Sky also has one of the nation's worst defenses: Boise State is last the league and ranks 80th among 88 I-AA teams in total defense, giving up 407 yards per game.

Besides having the nation's top offense, Idaho ranks third in the Big Sky behind Montana and Weber State but fifth nationally in passing offense.

The Vandals also lead the conference in rushing offense and scoring offense, where they rank fourth in I-AA with more than 39 points per game.

Among individual performers, Idaho still has the Big Sky's top running back, scorer and all-purpose runner in sophomore Sheridan May, its leading quarterback in junior Doug Nussmeier — again ranked second nationally in total offense — and two of the league's top four receivers in Yo Murphy and Walter Saunders.

Boise State's Mike Wilson continues to lead the Big Sky, but dropped from second to third nationally, in receiving, averaging 6.75 catches per game.

And the Broncos have the league's best punt return specialist in sophomore Kerry Lawyer — ranked third nationally with more than 18 yards per return — and the nation's top field goal kicker in senior Mike Dodd, who hit 15 of 20 on the season.

Grizzly quarterback earns honors

BOISE (AP) — Montana senior quarterback Brad Lebo gets offensive honors, while Eastern Washington University senior defensive end Tommy Williams and Weber State University junior linebacker Jantz Afulval share the defensive title as the Big Sky Conference players of the week.

Lebo, from Post Falls, led Montana in its 29-17 home victory over Montana State.

Lebo completed the first of 18-

20 passes he threw as the Grizzlies jumped out to a 22-0 first-quarter lead.

Williams, a Chicago native, helped Eastern Washington to a 15-9 road win over Northern Arizona. In that contest he had four-and-a-half quarterback sacks for losses totalling 17 yards.

The Eagles held the Lumberjacks to 235-yards total offense in the game, coming up with nine quarterback sacks. Williams was also credited with six total tackles, five of them solo stops.

Afulval, a 220-pounder from Ogden, Utah, guided the Wildcat defense in its 27-11 home win over Idaho State. In that game he had seven unassisted tackles and 10 assisted stops for a total of 17, including one quarterback sack and another tackle for a loss. Afulval accomplished all this after missing the last two weeks with a hamstring pull.

Midway through season, college teams watch bowl bids falter

The Associated Press

With five weeks left in the college football season, a number of powerhouse teams seem to be bottoming out, operating in the in-between area of a sport they once dominated.

Consider some records. A year ago, Iowa was 10-1-1, making its 10th bowl appearance in 11 years, and armed with 35 returning lettersmen. Now, the Hawkeyes are 3-5 after a 27-16 loss to Purdue on Saturday, tied with seven other teams for second place in the Big Ten and hoping to get rid of the other six to gain the conference runner-up's automatic invitation to the Florida Citrus Bowl.

"We're not down the drain," coach Hayden Fry said. "We're just like all those other folks not named Michigan. Everyone is taking turns whipping one another, other than Michigan."

"I think if we lose one more, our opportunity to go to a bowl game is really down."

And maybe out. Clemson was 9-2-1 last season, champions of the Atlantic Coast Conference for the 13th time. That made the Tigers 49-10-1 over the five-year period beginning in 1987 — third best in the country, behind only Miami and Florida State.

Beaten 20-6 by North Carolina State last Saturday, Clemson is 4-3 and out of the Top 25 in the first time since 1985 that the Tigers have lost three ACC games.

"I understand why we aren't ranked because we have three losses," coach Ken Hatfield said. "But I think

'It hurts a lot. When I came here, the program was on top of the world. Since I've been here, it's been all downhill.'

—John Morgan, LSU defensive tackle

this team has the capabilities to return to the rankings."

Arkansas, once a Southwest Conference powerhouse, decided it needed a new league and moved into the SEC. After the first game, the Razorbacks decided they also needed a new coach, dismissing Jack Crowe and replacing him with Joe Kines. They beat Tennessee by one point a couple of weeks ago for the lone bright spot in a 2-5 season.

UCLA, 9-3 last year and ranked No. 18 in the preseason poll, is 3-4 and languishing in the Pac-10 basement with an 0-4 league record. The Bruins also had their 245-game scoring streak ended in a 20-0 loss to Arizona State on Saturday.

Poised on the 1-yard line at game's end, it seemed UCLA would at least salvage a field goal to keep the scoring streak intact. Instead, Daron Washington fumbled and ASU recovered, clinching the shutout.

"I don't think it gets much worse than this," defensive end Mike Chialenski said.

Oh, yeah? He could be playing for LSU, once an SEC heavyweight, now 1-6 and bending under the burden of a five-game losing streak, the school's longest since 1956. The Tigers have locked up an unprecedented fourth straight losing season, making the current senior class the first in the school's 99-year football history to graduate without ever posting a winning record. "It hurts a lot," said defensive tackle John Morgan, one of the LSU seniors. "When I came here, the program was on top of the world. Since I've been here, it's been all downhill."

Oklahoma was 8-3 a year ago, averaging 30 points per game and No. 16 in the final AP poll. Now the Sooners are 3-3-1, and licking their wounds after losing to — of all people — Kansas, 27-10 on Saturday.

This is a team Oklahoma had beaten 26 of 28 times and usually by lopsided scores like 64-3 in 1986, 71-10 in 1987 and 63-14 in 1988. It was 4-1 last year and not pretty, which is why the Jayhawks were savoring Saturday's defeat of the Sooners, even if it wasn't a blowout.

The victory left Kansas ranked No. 18 at 6-1 and Oklahoma, ranked in all but two years since 1970 and in the first six polls this season, missing in action among the top 25.

"Things are changing," Kansas coach Glen Mason said. "In a lot of places, too."

Hall of Fame broadcaster Mel Allen, left, and Dodger broadcaster Vin Scully exchange memories after a memorial service for former Brooklyn Dodger broadcaster Red Barber.

Hall of Famers pay respects to Barber

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Boys of Summer gathered Monday to say goodbye to former Brooklyn Dodger broadcaster Red Barber.

Hall of Famers Pee Wee Reese and Duke Snider, Dodger president Peter O'Malley and former pitcher Ralph Branca joined broadcasters Mel Allen and Vin Scully and scores of Barber's friends and family at a memorial service.

Barber died last Thursday at age 84. The morning service was held in a downtown Episcopal church where Barber and his wife Lylah had been active for most of the last 20 years.

"If Red Barber had not appeared, he would have had to be invented," said former Florida State University president Stanley Marshall, who delivered the eulogy. "He was at the center of great moments almost from the beginning."

"Red's effect on his craft have been profound and lasting." While he was with the Dodgers, Barber did play-by-play of the first night baseball game and the first televised game. He was there for such events as Mickey Owen's missed third strike in the 1941 World Series and Jackie Robinson's breaking of baseball's color line. He was also behind the microphone when Roger Maris hit his record-breaking 61st home run for the Yankees in 1961.

In 1978, Barber and Mel Allen became the first broadcasters inducted into baseball's Hall of Fame.

"I turned to Red and said, 'The only reason I'm up here ahead of you is they did it alphabetically,'" Allen said Monday. "The good Lord decided to do it in reverse this time."

Scully, who was hired by Barber, said he has always kept his mentor's teachings in mind.

"I was in Toronto doing the World Series when I received the news of Red's passing," related Scully. "That night I was walking to the booth. I could honestly hear him. I really could hear him. He was saying, 'Vinny, don't you talk about me during that game. It's a World Series. People are going to be tuning in to hear the game, not tuning in to hear what you have to say about me.' He was in the booth that night, for sure, telling me, 'do the job.'"

Scully and Bob Edwards, host of National Public Radio's "Morning Edition," which until he became too ill included a weekly Friday spot by Barber, agreed that Barber was always prepared. "He was very, very meticulous," said Edwards.

'Red Army' keeps Jays supplied

By Bill Conlin Knight-Ridder News Service

Commentary

ATLANTA — Do you have anything to declare, Mr. Gaston? Only this World Series trophy, inspector.

What is the approximate value, eh? Anybody in Canada has to ask that question, you can't afford it.

The Commissioner's Trophy cleared U.S. and Canadian Customs in the pre-dawn hours Sunday and served for its new place of honor in the $500 million SkyDome.

Just as well.... The purged commissioner of major league baseball, Fay Vincent, who would have presented it to the first foreign World Series winner, was recovering from surgery that had nothing to do with the dagger stuck in his back.

Blue Jays president Paul Beeston should have received the trophy from a former used car salesman named Bud Selig — Kenosaw Molehill Selig, courtesy of New York Daily News writer Bill Madden. The Milwaukee Brewers' clueless owner helped lead an owners junta that forced Vincent's resignation.

The Bud Lite Trophy? Not bad... The Bud Lite Trophy going to a land wash in the product of the Labatt's Brewery, the corporation that owns 90 percent of the "ahem," world champion Blue Jays. The people who have spent enough money to make their team the kind of organization the Los Angeles Dodgers used to be.

But Selig was nowhere to be seen after America's Team went down, 4-3, in 11 Game 6 innings of a long night's journey into daze that meandered for four hours and seven minutes and left another TV audience numb to care. The honors were done by American League president

Bobby Brown. Same trophy, but now it's the "World Championship Trophy."

There were Rick Cronin, Jim Clancy, Mike Darr, Dennis DeBarr, Sam Whiting and Ron Fairly....

The Blue Jays' dramatically correct victory ended a long but unrelenting quest by a lot of great baseball men. The money might have been Canadian. But the label said "Made With Pride in the USA."

It was fitting that Jays vice president of baseball Al LaMacchia, a wartime pitcher with a lifetime, 2-2 record with the St. Louis Browns and Washington Senators, threw out the first ball before Game 4. Besides being the Jays' scout responsible for the Phillies' embarrassing loss of superstar George Bell in the 1980 Rule 5 draft, the shrewd Texan built a model farm system for longtime general manager Pat Gillick. And it has been Toronto's emphasis on the fertile Caribbean, where a dollar buys much more kullplayer than it does in the United States, that has made the Jays the envy of their peers.

"We get everything out of the Dominican Republic but pitchers," said Moose Johnson, a superb special assignment scout who was run off by the Phillies eight years ago after getting the 1980 scouting report that helped beat the Kansas City Royals. Johnson and Gordon Lackey handed Gaston and his coaching staff this year's report on the Braves. "The Dodgers are still king and they get most of the pitching. But we've got a helluva comp player and a good, competitive program down there. Hell, we've got four scouts in Australia; that's an up-and-coming baseball area. We just gave a ton of money to a teenaged kid from Brazil who throws in the mid-90s and has the best pitcher's body you ever saw."

We've always been progressive, and a lot of that stems from Al."

There were Pedro Garcia, Jerry Garvin, Juan Samuel, Bell and Al Sanchez — one MVP, three All-Stars, and Jeffery...

Once upon a time in America, the Phillies had a presence in the Dominican Republic and the Caribbean strong enough to produce Julio Franco, Juan Samuel, Bell and Al Sanchez — one MVP, three All-Stars, and a serviceable journeyman. Now they sign them as free agents or trade them.

"In 1982 we had a meeting and (then-farm director) Jim Baumer said we were cutting back our Latin American scouting," Moose Johnson said. "The first place we cut back was the Dominican Republic."

"I guess Samuel was the last top kid they got out of there."

LaMacchia scouted four years for the Phillies and 16 years for the Braves organization. The Blues ousted in a good World Series that fell well short of last year's seven-game Hitchcockian masterpiece between the Minnesota Twins and Braves. Yeah, he's the guy who scouted and recommended Dale Murphy on the first round, which was not quite a no-brainer. Murphy was not quite high school catcher who had trouble throwing the ball back to the pitcher. The Phillies passed on Murphy and took Lonnie Smith, the Poor Man's Mr. October.

There were Jerry Johnson, Dave Lomazczyk, Jim Mason, Dave McKay, Tom Murphy and Tim Nordbrook....

LaMacchia was the Blue Jays' scouting supervisor until 1984, when they rewarded him with a vice president. But in his heart, and in his function, Al always has been a scout.

Toronto's scouting staff is to major league baseball what the Red Army was to the global balance of power. Besides six top scouts at the Mosses and Bob Matlock of Gene Mauch Era pitching coach Al Widmar and Epy Guerrero, the great Dominican baseball man, has had good players since their first World Series flirtation in 1985. These guys have been there for the long haul. Their ballclubs has net won fewer than 86 games since 1983.

There were Doug Rader, Phil Roof, John Scott, Bill Singer, Steve Skogs and Hector Torres....

Dave Winfield, the game's 41-year-old Energizer Rabbit, broke the tense, overtime logjam with a two-run double, his first extra-base hit in World Series play, and proclaimed the Blue Jays. "The best team I've ever played for."

Got a problem with that, George Steinbrenner?

The Jays probably will get better over time. And next year, we could be finishing this thing up in SkyDome after Games 3, 4 and 5 in Montreal's dreared Olympic Stadium. Canada vs. Quebec, and, yes, world, we are serious.

In the beginning, in 1977, there were Otto Velez, Pete Vuckovich, Ernie Whit, Mike Willis, Al Woods and Gary Woods....

Fernandez heads to Mets for trio

NEW YORK (AP) — Four-time All-Star Tony Fernandez was traded Monday from the cost-cutting San Diego Padres to the New York Mets, who needed to shore up their infield despite his high price.

In exchange for the shortstop, the Mets gave up pitcher Wally Whitcomb and outfielder D.J. Dozier, along with a minor leaguer to be identified in December.

"Certainly, one of the major weaknesses we had in 1992 was our offense," said Jerry Husnick, the Mets' assistant vice president of baseball operations. "This is a vehicle that allows us to acquire a celebrity-type player without going into the free agent market."

Kennedy takes on challenge with Rangers

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Kevin Kennedy, who has never played or managed in the big leagues, accepted Monday the challenge of managing the Texas Rangers, a team with a 20-year history of never having made the playoffs.

Kennedy, bench coach of the Montreal Expos, was given two years to do what 12 managers ahead of him have never done. "I think being No. 13 is a good omen," Kennedy said. "I'm about winning. I expect to win."

Kennedy, of Tarzana, Calif., succeeded Toby Harrah, who was 32-44 after replacing the fired Bobby Valentine in July.

Harrah was offered another job in the Rangers organization, but general manager Tom Grieve said Harrah has yet to say whether he will stay with the club.

Grieve said Kennedy won't be given time to rebuild. "Our goal is to win the American League championship," Grieve said. "It's important to me to win next year."

Kennedy was a successful minor league manager in the Los Angeles Dodgers organization, posting a 533-373 record in eight years from 1984 to 1991.

IRS says voter guides don't violate law

By Drew DeSilver
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A local minister is concerned about voters' guides being distributed through area churches by two conservative Christian organizations.

But the Internal Revenue Service says that as far as it can tell, the brochures do not violate the laws governing churches' tax-exempt status.

The voter's guides are being distributed by the Christian Coalition, a national organization founded by televangelist Pat Robertson, and the Idaho Family Forum, an affiliate of the group Focus on the Family.

The "Family Values Voter Guide '92" issued by the Christian Coalition compares the positions of George Bush and Bill Clinton on 12 issues, from "Voluntary School Prayer Amendment" to "Increased Funding for SDI." It also compares the issue positions of senatorial and congressional candidates.

The "IFF Voter Guide" compares the positions of candidates for the U.S. Senate, U.S. House and Idaho Legislature on broadly similar issues, from "educational choice" to funding for the National Endowment for the Arts.

The Rev. Mike Bullard, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Twin Falls, said his church recently received copies of the IFF Voter Guide, along with a request to distribute them before election day, and a letter from the Christian Coalition offering free copies of its voters' guide.

Bullard said the timing of the voters' guide distribution, along with what he called the one-sided nature of the presentation, may mean they violate IRS rules on political activity by tax-exempt organizations.

"The common man intelligently reading (the Christian Coalition guide) would see that with one exception it's strongly pro-Bush," Bullard said. "They've chosen the issues to make Bush look good and Clinton look bad."

The Christian Coalition and Idaho Family Forum don't adequately warn churches that they may be violating the law, Bullard charged.

"If church people feel they need to break the law, that's one thing," he said. "But in that case, there's a responsibility to inform the participants of any legal considerations."

The IFF guide, and its mailing advertising it, don't mention the tax laws. However, the Christian Coalition material does state that its guide does not endorse any political party or the election or defeat of any particular candidate, and that the guide "is in full compliance with IRS guidelines governing voter education that may be conducted by 501(c)(3) organizations."

And Laurel Morgan, a spokeswoman for the IRS-Boston office, said both groups' guides looked fine to her.

"There does not appear to be a problem, as long as there's no endorsement," Morgan said. "They can't say 'Vote for George Bush' or 'Vote for Bill Clinton.'"

Wendell civics whizzes take aim at state title

By Suzanne Huxhold
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — A group of students at Wendell High School will be showing the big boys a thing or two this year.

Tiny Wendell High (enrollment: 397) competes with some of the largest high schools in Idaho for the chance to prove how much its students know about being good citizens.

The students are part of the Citizen Bee, a national competition sponsored by the Close-Up foundation and several Idaho businesses, including West One Bank and the Idaho State Journal of Pocatello.

Louise Harbaugh, a teacher at Wendell High who donates her time to coaching the kids on subjects such as U.S. history, economics, geography, government and political and current events, said the Bee is a way for students to have fun while they learn.

"It's interesting how much of the information they retain (with this program) as opposed to a regular history or civics class," Harbaugh said.

"It might be because of the fun and competition, but I think it's because this is something they really want to do."

The Citizen Bee is run much like a spelling bee; questions, both oral and written, are posed to the students by an expert panel and points are given for every correct answer.

Harbaugh said she and the Bee-team spend several hours every week preparing for the spring regional competition in Boise, and she tries to make the practice workouts as much like the real thing as she can.

"We do drill and grill for at least two non-hour-a-week," Harbaugh said. "I'll ask a question of the whole group, and if no one has that 'ah-ha' look on their face, I give them the answer."

All that quizzing pays off, though.

The team, which competes against behemoths like Borah and Boise high schools, has placed in the top 15 in regional competition for the past two years.

Harbaugh thinks this may be the year Wendell wins it all.

"We might win at state this year,"

MIKE SALSURBY/The Times-News

Harbaugh said. "We have some very good students."

If Harbaugh and her team finish first in the regional competition, they will earn a trip to Washington, D.C., where they will compete against other citizens for a chance at scholarships ranging from $2,000 to $12,000.

"Sill, the chance to rake in all that dough hasn't made for long lines at team workouts. Harbaugh said she had 10 students during the first session, but some dropped out after they found that this club meant business.

There are three core students on the team now, Harbaugh said — senior Preston Crawford and juniors Duroy Solomon and Bryan German — and others who drift in and out.

"That's OK, though, Harbaugh says. "I don't put any pressure on the kids," Harbaugh said. "If they come, they come. They're welcome any time."

And Harbaugh said the extra hours she spends every week, hours for which she is not paid, are worth it to her.

"This program benefits the children," she said, "and if you're not in education to benefit the children, you shouldn't be in education."

Tousley backing upsets deputy

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Last week's endorsement of independent candidate for sheriff Wayne Tousley by the Twin Falls Sheriff's Association was not quite as ringing as it sounded at first, and at least one deputy says there should not have been an endorsement at all.

"My intention is not to support or make any candidate look bad," Deputy Corey Evans said Monday. "My position is that an endorsement should not be made unless 100 percent of the employees voted for one person."

The association, which represents many employees of the Twin Falls County Sheriff's office, issued an endorsement of Tousley, an independent candidate, last week.

Tousley is running against independents Ted Badler and Jim Webb and Republican nominee Cal Edwards.

Ballots were sent last week to all 62 full- and part-time employees of the sheriff's office, including the jail and courthouse staffs, association president Dan Hall said.

Of those, 46 ballots were returned. Tousley pulled in 28 of those votes, with independent Ted Badler getting three. The remaining 15 ballots were noncommittal.

At an association meeting Thursday evening attended by 17 members, 16 people voted to issue an endorsement based on the votes, Hall said.

Evans said his understanding was that no candidate would get the endorsement without a full two-thirds (67 percent) of the employees.

Tousley received almost 61 percent of the ballots that were returned, but only 45 percent of all employees.

Some of the noncommittal voters have said privately that they will vote for Tousley but did not want to become involved in the political endorsement, Hall said.

Evans said he may vote for Tousley — he hasn't made up his mind. But it was wrong to create the impression that he has the support of every sheriff or even a majority of the people — in the department, Evans said.

Evans was notified of the meeting and

Cassia residents wary of losing control of Burley Butte landfill

By Kristin Anderson
Mini-Cassia News Service

BURLEY — Cassia County residents told public officials Monday night they feared losing control of a proposed regional landfill in the western part of the county.

About 150 people turned up for an information meeting about a plan to build a regional landfill at Burley Butte, eight miles west of here.

The purpose of the meeting was to explain the proposal, which would make the Cassia County site of one of perhaps two regional landfills in the Magic Valley, and the recipient of trash from a two-county area.

It came hours after the Cassia commissioners asked the Southern Idaho Regional Solid Waste District to agree to appoint a committee to look for alternative sites to Burley Butte.

"Everybody wants their garbage picked up and no one wants it to be put down," Terry Schultz, the director of the solid waste district, said.

Cassia County Commissioner John Adams named three other prospective landfill sites — one in Albion, one in Paul and one in the Declo area — but said they did not meet federal Environmental Protection Agency standards.

Schultz described the development plan, talked about how the landfill would operate and detailed the water surface protection and air quality measures would be needed.

He also spoke on the financial benefits of the landfill.

"If Cassia County built its own landfill, it would cost $1.3 million per year," he said. "If shared with two counties it would cost $816,000 per year. The regional plan would cost $508,000 per year."

Consulting engineer Philip Newton, who is responsible for the design and operation of the landfill, explained the physical aspects of the construction.

Newton said there would be two cells set up at the Burley Butte site. The first would cover 10 to 15 acres, and would have an eight-year life. The rest of the land would be used as farmland, he explained.

"There would be a buffer of a quarter-mile, so you wouldn't see or hear much of the landfill operation," Newton said.

The landfill would have a gate house and an administration building, and always have a working staff on hand, he said. It would be surrounded by wind fences eight- to 10-feet-tall to catch any litter and the landfill would only be visible from a few areas as it would be surrounded by foliage.

Attorneys prepare for Stradley murder trial

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — With the first-degree murder trial for Donnell "Bud" Stradley less than three weeks away, attorneys for both sides met to iron out the rules of combat Monday.

The routine pre-trial hearing offered a glimpse at the strategies that will come into play when Stradley's trial begins Nov. 12. Stradley, 28, is charged with the Jan. 21 killing of 2-year-old Amanda Hostetler of Twin Falls, who officials say died of a severe blow to the abdomen.

Jury selection won't begin until Nov. 12, but a pool of prospective jurors will be given numbers and instructions this morning.

Fifth District Judge James J. May said he does not plan to sequester the jury members until after the case is submitted to them, but Twin Falls County public defender Mike Wood may ask him to change his mind before Nov. 6.

The county's chief deputy prosecutor, Dan Mink, asked the judge to limit

Wood's case to the episode that led to Amanda's death. Specifically, he asked the Wood not be allowed to "shift the focus" of the case to the child's mother and her treatment of Amanda.

Jodie Ann Hostetler, 21, is currently appealing a nine-year sentence for felony child endangerment after pleading guilty in August as part of a plea bargain with prosecutors.

Stradley and Hostetler were living together in January, when according to police, Stradley says he was playing with Amanda and tossed her toward a waterbed. She fell short and landed on the bed's corner, causing the massive internal injuries that killed her, according to Stradley's story as told by police.

But Wood argued that the way Amanda was treated by her mother and previous injuries she may have suffered are important to the case.

Testimony from earlier hearings has revealed that Amanda's mesentery — a fan of fatty tissue that helps support the internal organs — was scarred and weakened from previous injuries, Wood said.

City shows off new promotional video

By Phil Sahm
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - The city has a new video showing off Twin Falls to companies and people considering moving here.

City Economic Development Director Dave McAlindin showed the video to the City Council at its Monday work session.

The video and two ads that the city ran in the Los Angeles Times earlier this year cost $14,000. But the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce paid the bill through its Business Plus fund, McAlindin said.

The video touts the city's "down-to-earth, honest people," recreation opportunities, retail business, the College of Southern Idaho and the Snake River among other aspects of the area.

McAlindin said companies and people relocating to Twin Falls can get the video.

"It's for folks who have shown an interest in the community and want to know a little bit more about who we are," he said.

McAlindin, city business people and officials will meet with representatives of a company today that is considering moving to Twin Falls. But he would not identify the company.

Also on Monday, the council talked about putting curb, gutter and sidewalk on Madrona Street North.

City Engineer Gary Young told the council that improving the street and running curb, gutter and sidewalk on the west side of the street for 2 1/2 blocks north of Falls Avenue would cost more than $130,000. Most of the cost would be in street construction, Young said.

Curb, gutter and sidewalk on the east side of Madrona would cost almost $17,000 for a half-block stretch North of Falls, Young said.

The council decided to weigh the costs for a while.

Councilman Jim Vickers suggested the city needs to weigh this project against others, such as sidewalks for the west side of the city near Robert Stuart Junior High School.

Jerome commissioners will decide whether to release jailbreak report

By H.R. Weisel
Times-News correspondent

JEROME - The Jerome County commissioners say they will announce Thursday whether results of a state investigation into the March escape at the Jerome County Jail will be made public.

Jerome County prosecuting attorney and the commissioners have denied repeated verbal requests from The Times-News since receiving the report Aug. 25.

On Monday, The Times-News made a written request for the document, which came after an investigator from the Idaho attorney general's office interviewed county employees and inmates present the night Gilbert Cisneros escaped through a window.

Commissioners Carl Montgomery, Jerry Ridley and Veronica Lierman met behind closed doors Monday to discuss the possible release of the report.

After about two hours, the commissioners decided to have the report further reviewed by Horgan and an attorney for the county's insurance carrier.

"So we're taking the three days the state law allows after receiving the Times-News letter," Lierman said.

Horgan said he does not intend to file criminal charges against anyone as a result of the report, but would not release any specifics about the findings, nor conclusions contained in the report.

"There are two things that are involved here," he said. "If we release it, there could be, and I emphasize 'could be,' the possibility of defamation of character, or if we don't release it, we could be withholding public information. It's a tough decision, either way," he said.

Stallings: Cut defense to trim deficit

By Drew DeSilver
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - The United States needs to divert resources from military spending to human needs, Senate candidate Richard Stallings told an audience of students at the College of Southern Idaho Monday.

Stallings, the Democratic candidate to succeed retiring Sen. Steve Symms, said that as a senator he would vote to cancel the Strategic Defense Initiative, eliminate the B-2 bomber and the Seawolf submarine, bring American troops home from Europe, and end registration.

"Each B-2 bomber costs $2 billion," Stallings told the CSI students. "The entire budget for the state of Idaho is just $1 billion. For one airplane we could fund Idaho for two full years. That's just nonsense."

Money from military savings should be used both to reduce the federal budget deficit and invest in education, health care, roads, bridges and other domestic needs, he said.

Many lawmakers are afraid to cut defense spending too much, Stallings said, because they want to preserve money with public service, and sharply criticized the Bush administration for proposing to cut back on government grant and loan programs.

"The president's plan would have denied access to universities and colleges to most middle Americans," he said. "You know as well as I do that (a college education) is the doorway into the future."

Stallings also came out in favor of raising the minimum wage to at least the official poverty level, and reiterated his support for a bill to ban companies from hiring permanent replacements for striking workers.

Too many companies already use temporary replacements to break strikes and destroy labor unions, he said.

"As long as strikes are legal and acceptable, why should be punish people for engaging in them?" he said. "That's absolutely wrong."

The four-term congressman from the 2nd District received his biggest round of applause when he came out strongly against the 1 Percent Initiative, the ballot measure that seeks to limit property taxes to 1 percent of market value.

The initiative would lead to higher tuition and fees for CSI students, fewer classes and programs at the college, or both, Stallings said. "I hope you would register en masse and vote against the 1 Percent, and do everything you can to convince your friends and the people in your communities to vote against it," he told the students.

He was born Jan. 6, 1916, in Pocatello, to James and Irene Reddy. After high school, Jim went to work for Union Pacific Railroad as a brakeman and conductor on the evening run between Pocatello and Butte, Mont. In 1935, he married Vera Young of Livingston, Mont. could have attended if he wanted to, Hall said, adding that he is the only person in the department who has complained about the endorsement.

A notice was printed on each ballot, but Evans said he completed his and turned it in without looking at the notice.

"A few people don't want to endorse anyone. They want to stay out of it," Hall said. "Everybody had a fair chance to participate."

But the endorsement made it sound like everyone in the department is actively supporting Tousey, and that just isn't so, Evans said.

There are people in the department backing each of the four men running for sheriff, but some chose not to vote, he said.

Judge rejects Rupert 'zoo lady's' countersuit

By James Prichard
Mini-Cassia News Service

RUPERT - A 5th District judge has rejected a Rupert woman's countersuit against the city of Rupert that claimed the city violated her civil rights by attempting to limit the number animals she keeps at her property.

In a decision released on Monday, Judge J. William Hart also rejected Myrtle Kelly's request for legal fees associated with the case.

Kelly, who lives at the intersection of Fifth and C streets in Rupert, sued the city earlier this year, claiming it had violated of her civil rights.

The city originally had filed suit against Kelly in November 1991, seeking a legal decision that would force the 70-year-old woman, known throughout town as "the zoo lady," to comply with a recently enacted city ordinance and remove most of the 40-plus dogs, cats and other animals she keeps at her property.

Rick Bollar, the city's attorney who successfully argued against the counterclaim during a hearing last month, said Monday the decision might clear the way for a settlement between the city and Kelly.

In his ruling, Hart wrote "there are insufficient facts supporting claims of either negligent or intentional infliction of emotional distress, and as such these claims do not reach a threshold where special dangers ... may be discussed."

In addition, because the city did not violate Kelly's civil rights, Hart ruled, she is not entitled to compensation from the city for her legal fees.

With the dismissal of the counterclaim, only the city's original claim remains to be settled. Both Bollar and Kelly's attorney, James Annest-of-Burley, said the basis for an agreement to settle that matter may be close at hand.

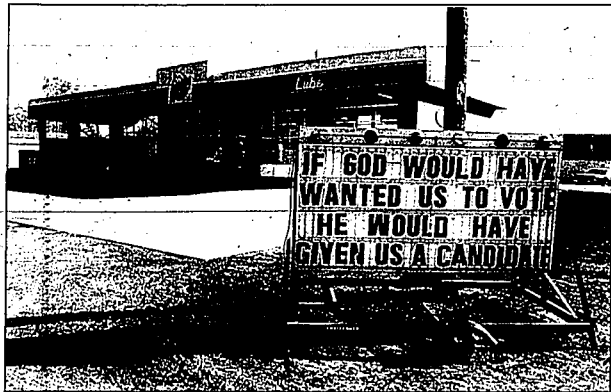

"As far as I know, we have reached an agreement in principle, [but] there are some minor things that need to be worked out," Annest said.

The primary obstacle, Bollar said, is that while Kelly agrees she should give up some of the animals in her menagerie, she is uncertain how many she would be willing to part with.

The Humane Society has not only agreed to take in and provide care for her animals, Bollar said, but the organization has lined up several volunteers to help clean up Kelly's property.

Tests conducted for the city showed high levels of nitrates in the soil, from years of exposure to animal waste.

Minidoka, Cassia counties see more people registering to vote

By Kristin Anderson
Mini-Cassia News Service

RUPERT - The Minidoka County Courthouse had some extra foot traffic during last month as 436 citizens registered to vote.

According to County Clerk Duane Smith, voter registration is up. "Usually between primary and general elections there is an average increase of 500 registered voters," Smith said. "Over 700 registered since primaries this year."

He said the increase probably was due to the 1 Percent Initiative and the presidential debates.

There also has been an increase of registered voters on a statewide level, Smith added.

When asked how current registration compares to the last presidential election year, Smith said more than 10,000 people were registered in 1988, but that number dropped off to around 8,400 after election was over.

According to last Tuesday's count, there are 9,010 registered voters.

Cassia County voter registration also has increased.

According to County Clerk Tim Hurst, there were approximately 8,300 voters registered in 1990. At present there are close to 9,200 voters registered.

He also attributed the increase in voter registration to the presidential elections and the 1 Percent Initiative.

Although a final count is not yet available, elections department secretary Marilyn Johnson of the Idaho secretary of state's office said she also believes voter registration is up from 1988 on a statewide level.

"Both ballot issues (the 1 Percent and gambling initiatives) have generated interest, and people seem to be showing a lot of interest in the local candidates," Johnson said.

Last Friday was the final day to register. According to the county clerks' offices, the final count of registered voters for Minidoka and Cassia counties will be available late Tuesday or early Wednesday.

The Rupert Police Department reported that Rafael Telly parked the vehicle in front of his residence at 312 Ninth St. Friday evening. When he left his house to go to work the next morning, the vehicle was gone.

He reported the theft at 6:44 a.m. Saturday. At 7:55 a.m., law enforcement officers recovered the vehicle near an irrigation canal off H Street. Police are still investigating the incident.

Man faces aggravated battery charge

BURLEY - A Paul man was charged with aggravated battery while using a deadly weapon or instrument early Sunday morning after he allegedly hit another man over the head with a wrench.

Julian Lee Rodriguez, 19, of Paul was also charged with destruction of jail property after he allegedly broke the windshield of a police car.

According to the Cassia County Sheriff's Department, deputies responded to a report of a fight at the Las Palmas Bar west of Burley. They said they saw Rodriguez hit 21-year-old Santos Ramirez Artega of Acquia over the head with a wrench.

Artega was treated at Cassia Memorial Hospital in Burley for a large gash on the head. Doctors said he suffered a fractured skull.

After they arrested Rodriguez, deputies said he kicked the windshield of the patrol car, breaking it. Destruction of jail property is a felony.

Hog farmer still seeks LCO permit from Minidoka County

By Kristin Anderson
Mini-Cassia News Service

RUPERT - A long-disputed case was brought before the Minidoka County Commission on Monday dealing with a hog farmer who has been denied a pounty livestock containment operation permit.

The Minidoka County Planning and Zoning Commission earlier denied Elton Hart an LCO permit due to non-compliance with environmental standards.

"We do recognize he has a problem in regard to solids, which we think is the source of complaint of the neighbors. The solid waste is supposed to be spread out on the farmland. So far that has not happened," Hart's attorney, Mark Ingram, said.

Ingram suggested to the board that since Hart has had a feedlot on the property since before 1978, the commission should grant him the permit with the stipulation that within 30 days, Hart would have to take care of the solid-waste problem.

Attorney Robert Nielsen, representing Hart's neighbors Mel Posey, Richard Swensen and Bob Grear, said Hart not only did not meet the environmental or zoning standards, but also was not in compliance with the zoning ordinance when he applied for the LCO permit.

"The definition of commercial livestock has been around much longer than 1978 and the prior ordinance prohibited use as Mr. Hart is using the property," Nielsen said. "He has gradually increased the use of his property to a point that it was a commercial feedlot. This is in direct violation of our zoning ordinance."

Deputy Prosecutor Rick Bollar's suggestion to table the issue was accepted and the case was postponed.

New polls show Perot team soars among voters in Idaho

The Associated Press

Independent presidential candidate Ross Perot staged a dramatic surge among Idaho voters during the first three weeks of October, according to two independent statewide polls released on Monday.

Perot's resurgence after re-entering the race last month came at a much higher political price Democratic Gov. Bill Clinton than it did to President Bush.

One poll conducted on Oct. 17 and Oct. 19-21 for KIVI-TV in Nampa found support for Perot among 609 likely voters jumped to 30 percent from 17 percent three weeks earlier. Perot drew his additional strength almost equally from Bush and Clinton.

But a second poll, conducted for KTVB-TV in Boise between Oct. 22-24, found Perot's support among 807 likely voters also

'Idaho now's on the way up. States like this are the backbone of the Perot backing. This is the diamond in the bracelet, as far as I know.'

— Admiral James Stockdale, vice presidential candidate nearly doubled from 15 percent to 28 percent, almost completely at Clinton's expense. "Idaho now's on the way up," retired Admiral James Stockdale, Perot's running mate, told a crowd of 300 or more during a rally at Perot's Boise headquarters Monday afternoon. "States like this are the backbone of the Perot backing," Stockdale said. "This is the diamond in the bracelet, as far as I know." The KTVB poll, conducted by the Washington firm of Political-Media Research Inc., showed Bush holding steady at 35 percent while Clinton plunged to 25 percent from 37 percent and a tie with Bush less than a month ago. The poll's margin of error was 3.5 percent.

The KIVI poll, conducted by Rich, Smith & Rich of Boise, showed Bush's support dropping to 32 percent from 38 percent last month and Clinton's support dropping to 26 percent from 33 percent.

With a margin of error of 4 percent, the survey results indicated an all but dead heat between the three top contenders for Idaho's four electoral votes in next Tuesday's balloting. Perot and Stockdale "have not written off the Pacific Northwest as the other candidates have," Idaho Coordinator Shirley Hamm told the crowd of enthusiastic supporters.

Stockdale, who began the day in New Mexico, talked with volunteers and two women who had worn his prisoner-of-war bracelet while he was held captive by the North Vietnamese, and then he headed for another campaign stop in Denver.

In the race for the seat of retiring Republican Sen. Steve Symms, GOP Mayor Dirk Kempthorne had another out-of-state dignitary stop in Idaho on his behalf. Virginia Sen. John Warner said Kempthorne offered a reasoned strategy for reducing the defense budget — not what he suggested was a meaty approach backed by Democratic Congressman Richard Stallings.

Kempthorne was not present for the session that also included Symms and soon-to-be senior senator, Republican Larry Craig. He was campaigning in Twin Falls. But in a race that many once heavily favored Stallings to win, Kempthorne was believed to be ahead going into the final week, and he was raising campaign contributions at a substantially faster clip than Stallings.

Tax Commission offers incentives

BOISE — The state Tax Commission is offering some incentives to people who should have filed tax returns but haven't gotten around to it. For instance, Tax Commissioner Coleen Grant said most who have never filed a return will be required to file no more than six years of back returns if they do so before the end of the year.

Normally, if our staff has to seek out non-filers, there is no limit on the number of years they're required to file," she said. Grant said penalties also will be excused for taxpayers who pay what they owe when they file their returns. Those who can't pay in full may set up a payment plan.

In addition, late filers don't have to worry about going to jail for their tardiness as long as the returns they file are truthful. Grant said some people are not even aware that they should file Idaho tax returns. That's especially true of Idaho residents who work in other states or out-of-state residents who work in Idaho.

Accident claims Canadian woman

IDAHO FALLS — A Canadian woman was killed in a one-car rollover on Interstate 15 about eight miles south of Idaho Falls, Idaho State Police said.

Virginia Sigurdson of Lacombe, Alberta, was a passenger in a southbound car driven by her husband, Wilfred Sigurdson, 64. It left the road shortly after 10:15 a.m. Sunday and hit a guardrail, throwing Mrs. Sigurdson out and rolling over her.

ISP Cpl. Eric Anderson said both people were wearing safety belts, but the woman's was improperly attached.

Health department seeks shelter

BOISE — The Central District Health Department will be without a permanent home for several months next spring. By March 1, the department, which serves four southwestern Idaho counties, must clear out of its current Boise headquarters.

But construction of its new home won't be done by then. "It leaves us trying to find a facility to rent for three or four months, and there's all kinds of difficulties with that," said Hucy Reed, who has announced his retirement from the department.

Reed fears having the department's services, which include immunizations and family planning, spread over several rented buildings across Boise.

That could create confusion for the public, he said. Reed said he hopes to find temporary quarters for the department before he leaves in mid-December.

Garden City Police investigate death

BOISE — Garden City Police are investigating the death of a convenience store clerk as a possible homicide.

The man, identified by the Ada County Coroner's Office as Jack Bainbridge, 53, was found in the parking lot of Jackson's Convenience Store at 9325 Chinden Blvd. early Sunday morning. Store property was strewn around the lot.

Police said Bainbridge had been involved in a struggle. Officer Bob Little would not comment on how he was injured or whether any store property had been stolen.

However, John Jackson, the store's owner, said a robbery did not take place. "They're listing it as a possible homicide because they don't have a cause of death," Bainbridge "wasn't beaten or shot or knifed or anything like that."

Judge maintains sex offenders' term

POCATELLO — A former Idaho State University music professor has lost his plea for release from a minimum three-year sentence for sex crimes involving a 14-year Pocatello girl.

Attorneys for Wayne Eastwood, 44, told 6th District Judge William Woodland that Eastwood's counselors and the mother of the girl he was involved with believe he should be freed from jail.

"I think it's a bunch of foolishness," Woodland said. Eastwood was sentenced in July to two concurrent 10-year prison terms for rape and lewd conduct and a three-year term for possession of sexually exploitive material. Woodland barred any parole consideration for the first three years.

The charges stemmed from his relationship with the 14-year-old daughter of a woman he was living with during a three-month period earlier this year.

Simplot, counties reach compromise

POCATELLO — The J.R. Simplot Co. and assessors from three southeastern Idaho counties have struck a compromise on the tax valuation of the companies phosphate slurry line and its support equipment.

The deal calls for Simplot to pay taxes on two-thirds of its $19.9 million in slurry lines and equipment in Bannock, Caribou and Power counties. One-third of the total value will receive a tax abatement because of its relation to pollution control.

Simplot had originally requested that 100 percent of the lines and equipment be exempted from taxes, a position Bannock County Assessor Diane Bilyeu called "ridiculous."

"There will be no court action, which will save Bannock County a lot of money," Bilyeu said.

Simplot installed the 87 miles of slurry lines in 1991 to carry ore from the company's Smoky Canyon Mine near the Wyoming border to its plant in Pocatello.

UI student says 1% plan will hurt college

MOSCOW (AP) — J. Richard Rock, a self-described fiscal conservative, signed a petition for the 1 Percent Initiative on the ballot in a Hayden Lake restaurant more than a year ago.

But a year ago, the University of Idaho Student Senate approved a resolution opposing the One Percent Initiative. Rock, a senior majoring in finance at the UI, wrote the resolution.

"I started seeing facts and figures about where the money would come from the schools," he said. "If the university loses $10.7 million, the options aren't pretty."

UI officials maintain fallout from the measure's passage would be "devastating." They estimate it could mean slashing enrollment by 2,900 students, a 96 percent increase in full-time student fees, eliminating $10.7 million worth of programs, cutting 250 positions or a 24 percent pay cut for existing employees.

Proponents of the One Percent Initiative, such as Ronald Rankin of Coeur d'Alene, call such figures "scare tactics."

They maintain Idaho's higher education institutions wouldn't necessarily suffer budget cuts if the initiative passes. Officials at the institutions assume lawmakers will shift state money to the public schools to make up for the property tax revenues that would be lost with the initiative's passage. Rankin and his supporters maintain that would force state lawmakers to be more responsible in spending state tax dollars.

"Some people think facts inconsistent with their position are scare tactics," said John Hansen, chairman of the state Senate Education Committee. "But I don't think it is scare tactics. It is their best estimate of what would occur with the passage of the 1 Percent."

He points out how much the state spends per student in its higher education system has dropped when it is adjusted for inflation.

"That is kind of alarming because we are facing the 1 Percent and a real tightrope over state dollars," said Hansen, 32-Idaho Falls. "Without the One Percent, there is very good reason to be alarmed about higher education (funding)."

Michael Dinoto, president of the UI's American Association of University Professors chapter, said some faculty members are scared they will lose their jobs. "If you don't get fired, your teaching load is going up."

Roy Mink, director of the Idaho Water Resources Research Institute based at the UI, said he fears passage of the initiative could force state agencies that finance cooperative research projects with the institute to drop them.

That would cut into support for graduate students and long-term research about water quality, drought and dwindling salmon runs in Idaho, he said.

The institute could be forced to rely more on federal funding and its agenda would be based more on what research federal agencies want, Mink said.

Richard Moore, chairman of Lewis-Clark State College's social sciences division, said he remembers the trauma of seeing tenured faculty members being laid off after voters approved a similar property tax limitation measure 14 years ago. The cuts broke the history, physical education and police officer training programs among others, he said. "The impact is still being felt almost 15 years later. ... The scar tissue has covered over, but there is still a scar."

LCSC officials say the initiative's passage on Nov. 3 could mean fee hikes of 18 percent for part-time and full-time students from Idaho and 20 percent for non-resident students or the layoff of 20 to 25 employees, elimination of one to three programs and cuts in student services, faculty development and equipment purchases.

Regulators find phone firms comply

BOISE (AP) — Three long-distance telephone companies that Idaho utility regulators said last month had failed to make required payments to the Idaho Universal Service Fund are now in compliance with state law.

Since July 1988, telephone companies operating in Idaho have been required to collect Universal Service Fund surcharges from long and long-distance customers. The money subsidizes several small phone companies so their rates do not rise more than 25 percent above statewide averages.

In September, the Idaho Public Utilities Commission completed an investigation of 14 long-distance companies that had failed to pay the surcharges or file required annual reports to the fund's state administrator.

The PUC found American Telecommunications Corporation of Richardson, Texas, qualified for an exemption from Universal Service Fund reporting requirements and ruled that Gem State Telephone of Coeur d'Alene and Payline Systems of Portland, Ore., have filed the necessary reports and surcharge fees with the Universal Service Fund administrator.

Teen allowed to withdraw guilty plea

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Rigby teen-ager Michael Book has been allowed to withdraw his guilty plea to first-degree murder in last year's shooting death of Danny Disney of Ammon.

Seventh District Judge Marvin Smith granted a motion Monday from Book's public defender, Steven Thompson, to withdraw the guilty plea. Smith scheduled Book to stand trial beginning Jan. 19.

Bonneville County Deputy Prosecutor Gil Gardner said last month that if Smith granted Thompson's motion, Book would stand trial on the original grand jury indictment charging him with first-degree murder and conspiracy to commit first-degree murder.

Book, 18, pleaded guilty to first-degree murder earlier this year.

Israeli leader says Arab attacks won't derail talks

A Jewish settler wearing a cardboard target holds up a sign reading 'Am I the next victim?' during a protest in the Occupied West Bank town of Hebron Monday.

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin on Monday accused Syria of abetting Muslim guerrillas who killed five Israeli soldiers with a bomb in southern Lebanon.

But he pledged to go on negotiating peace with the Arabs. Rabin said Syria was allowing Iranian weapons to reach fundamentalist Muslim guerrillas via Damascus and letting them operate in areas of Lebanon under Syrian military control.

He said it was "greatly puzzling" that Syria could "sit with us at negotiations, and on the other hand permit such activities."

Israeli warplanes, helicopter gunships and artillery pounded targets in southern Lebanon during the day and into the night in retaliation for the bombing attack Sunday in an Israeli-occupied buffer zone. It was the deadliest attack against Israeli forces in two years.

Israel's military command said its forces hit suspected guerrilla bases of the pro-Iranian Hezbollah, which is trying to force the Israelis from Lebanon and also wants to wreck the Middle East peace talks.

Security sources in Lebanon said targets in dozens of villages were hit. Lebanese police said the bombardment killed at least one civilian and wounded five.

Rabin made his comments during a briefing of parliamentary colleagues before delivering a policy statement to Parliament coinciding with the resumption of peace talks in Washington.

Earlier, some opposition lawmakers demanded that Israel respond to a surge in attacks on Israelis by recalling its negotiators from the U.S.-sponsored peace talks. But in his speech, Rabin declared: "We are continuing with the peace negotiations."

His address was broadcast live on radio and television to a nation reeling in shock and harping its demand for the bombing Sunday in southern Lebanon and another attack that killed one soldier in the occupied West Bank.

"Despite the hardships, despite the deeds of murder and terrorism," the government "is determined to make a serious effort to reach peace with" Arab states and Palestinians living in the occupied territories, Rabin said.

Coming on top of three other killings of Israelis the past two weeks, Sunday's attacks signaled to Israelis that they are no less vulnerable than before the June 23 election that brought Rabin and his moderates to power.

On Monday, as Rabin was in Parliament appealing to the Palestinians to disavow violence, a firebomb was thrown at an Israeli bus on the border between Israel and the West Bank, the army said. Arabs took him to a hospital suffering from burns and smoke inhalation, the army said.

Rabin addressed an impassioned appeal to Palestinians to accept his offer of limited self-government rather than holding out for full independence of the occupied lands.

The 70-year-old former general said some Palestinians "are still insisting on all or nothing, and if that's the case, they will end up with nothing."

"For 44 years you have been trying to ignore reality," he said. "See how awful your situation is. Stop for a moment and look what you have to come to."

Hard-line Israelis blame the surge in violence on concessions Rabin has made to generate Arab good will. They say concessions invite attacks by making Israel look weak.

Government officials portray the violence as a last-ditch effort by Arab extremists to torpedo a blossoming peace process.

Rabin repeated his offer of partial withdrawal from the Golan Heights to Syria "to secure and recognized borders."

"I stress: we are talking of withdrawal IN the Golan Heights, not FROM the Golan Heights," he said.

And "we will not draw maps" until Syria guarantees its acceptance of a full peace, a condition of progress in talks with other Arab states, Rabin said. "Up to this moment, Syria has not expressed readiness to fulfill these conditions," he said.

The Syrian negotiator in Washington, Mowaffiq Alfat, expressed concern about Rabin's statements on the Golan Heights, which Israel captured in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

"If Israel is not considering withdrawal, that means in other words that Israel is not considering peace," Alfat said.

France wins German support to demand U.S. farm concessions

LUXEMBOURG (AP) — France on Monday won backing from Germany to demand further American concessions over farm subsidy cuts, making it unlikely the dispute will be settled before the U.S. presidential elections.

At the same time, Britain and the top farm negotiator for the European Community tried to ease French fears about giving ground to the United States over a global trade accord.

The Franco-German alliance still holds, said French Farm Minister Jean-Pierre Soisson. His colleague, Ignaz Kiechle of Germany, also has demanded more U.S. concessions in the farm battle.

Earlier this month, President Bush told the European Commission, the trading bloc's executive agency, not to count on the United States to give any more.

As part of the Uruguay Round trade talks, Washington has demanded extensive cuts in subsidies for the EC's 9 million farmers, something France has opposed.

France had appeared to be isolated in its refusal to back down in the world trade talks, sponsored by the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. But on Monday, Ireland and Denmark appeared hesitant to proceed quickly. "I don't think we'll have a GATT agreement before the American presidential elections," Danish Farm Minister Laurits-Toennes said.

In a related development, the European Community denied its chief executive secretary arranged a deal with Bill Clinton to delay a world trade accord until after the presidential election.

Bruno DeThomas, spokesman for Jacques Delors, the EC's chief executive, described as "simply absurd" a report by the Sunday Telegraph of London that Delors had worked out an arrangement with Clinton to postpone any trade accord until after the Nov. 3 election.

The Sunday Telegraph, citing unidentified agriculture sources, said Clinton campaign officials contacted Delors two weeks ago when it appeared the trade talks would be successful. It said that Delors, a French Socialist, would prefer the Democratic Clinton as president.

Clinton denied the newspaper report Sunday.

The mood among the 12 EC agriculture ministers contrasted sharply with the upbeat spirits at the EC Commission in Brussels. The Commission negotiates the GATT accord for the member states.

"Things are going in the right direction," said Commission spokesman Nico Wegter. "There are good reasons to believe that they are really on the right track." The EC's trade chief, Frans Andriessen, postponed a trip to Asia to try to help break the deadlock with the United States.

"We're still working on the assumption that by Wednesday or Thursday the child might be born," Wegter said.

Commissioner Ray MacSharry said farm negotiations were continuing and that a Wednesday meeting with U.S. Agriculture Secretary Edward Madigan was still under consideration.

The dispute over farm subsidies is holding up an accord on a host of other issues, including textiles, telecommunications and financial services, under negotiation in the six-year-old GATT talks. World leaders have pledged to wrap up the discussions by year's end.

Britain, which holds the EC's rotating presidency, urged swift progress in reaching an EC-U.S. accord.

Croats, Muslims try to make up

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Fighting between Bosnia's Muslims and Croats subsided Monday before a meeting to try to patch over the differences fracturing their anti-Serb front.

Fighting also eased somewhat in Sarajevo between troops loyal to Bosnia's Muslim-led government and Serbs besieging the capital, although there was sporadic shelling and sniper fire throughout the day.

Much of the city remained without electricity after Serb gunfire knocked out one of two recently restored main transmission lines Sunday. Hospitals and bakeries were getting some of the available power.

The Muslim-Croat talks in Prozor, 30 miles west of Sarajevo, followed days of three-way fighting among Serbs, Croats and Muslims for pieces of Bosnia. Each side wants to strengthen its position before peace efforts intensify this week.

Zaim Baskovic, deputy commander of the Bosnian army, said late Monday it was "too soon to say" whether the Muslim-Croat negotiations offered much hope of reconciliation.

Bosnia's war began when Serbs rebelled against the majority Muslims and Croats, who voted for secession from Yugoslavia on Feb. 29. More than 14,000 people have died in the fighting.

Ex-Communists revive

VILNIUS, Lithuania (AP) — Voters fed up with a failing economy handed former Communists a surprise victory in Lithuania's first parliamentary election since independence, preliminary results showed Monday.

Lithuania, the first republic to break away from the Soviet Union, thus also became the first in which former Communists have scored a comeback in a popular parliamentary election.

The former Communists outpolled the Sajudis party that led the Baltic nation to independence last year. But neither party won an absolute majority of the 141-member parliament, and more than a quarter of the seats still must be determined in a runoff.

The vote was a stinging rebuff to Sajudis and President Vytautas Landsbergis, one of the party's founders. Landsbergis told reporters the political landscape "will clearly be different."

Former Lithuanian Communist Party leader Algirdas Brazauskas, who heads the newly-formed Democratic Labor Party, promised to seek better economic relations with Russia to reverse what he called Lithuania's economic disaster. But, he warned, "We do not promise mountains of gold overnight."

Nearly one-third of Lithuania's factories have shut down, fuel supplies are desperately low, and a long, hot summer destroyed many crops.

Brazauskas said he would continue with Landsbergis' plans to introduce a new Lithuanian currency, but would seek easier terms on implementing reforms from the International Monetary Fund. Sajudis worries Brazauskas would backtrack on privatization plans and prop up flagging state industries in the name of jobs.

Militants attack tourists

ASSIUT, Egypt (AP) — For the first time, foreign tourists are finding themselves targets in the escalating battle between Egypt's secular government and Muslim militants who want to create an Islamic state.

The fundamentalists' attacks on tourists are not widespread, and have not occurred in major tourist areas. But even so, officials are worried.

Tourism this year became Egypt's No. 1 earner of foreign exchange, contributing $3 billion to the country's economy. So doing damage to the tourist trade could be a potent weapon for the fundamentalists.

The attacks on tourists symbolize attacks against the security system and against the economy," said

No'oman el-Dab'eh, a law student who described himself as a moderate but appeared to have militant sympathies.

In addition, a distaste for foreigners' behavior could play a role. "Tourists are immoral. They drink alcohol. Their men and women mix freely. We are against all that," said Sheikh Mahmoud, a fundamentalist preacher and a member of the Islamic Group — el-Gama'at al-Islamiya — a loose national organization of militants.

"If they come here just to visit the historic spots, that's fine," said Sheikh Mahmoud, interviewed at his mosque near Assiut, 200 miles south of Cairo and a militant stronghold. "But they must behave themselves."

German Greens party founder buried

WUERZBURG, Germany (AP) — After eulogies by political friends and to the strains of "Amazing Grace" and "Ave Maria," Greens party founder Petra Kelly was buried Monday next to her half sister, who died of cancer at 10.

Among the 400 mourners were Kelly's mother, Marianne; her American stepfather, John Kelly; her stepbrother, John Lee; and her 87-year-old grandmother, Kunigunde Birle, who raised her.

The bodies of Kelly, 44, and her long-time companion and fellow anti-nuclear activist, Gert Bastian, 69, were found in their Bonn home a week ago. Investigators said Bastian killed Kelly with a single pistol shot to the head before taking his own life.

Kelly was laid to rest in a brown oak coffin covered by a marigold wreath, next to the grave of Grace Patricia Kelly, who died in childhood when her half sister was 22.

Kelly was born a Roman Catholic but left the church as an adult.

Lutheran pastor Joerg Zink, a friend and a co-founder of the Greens, conducted the service and called Kelly a "Joan of Arc of our days."

Several speakers said Kelly's death left too many questions.

"Did you really want to leave us without a salute to your grandmother?" asked Lukas Beckman, a Greens politician who had known Kelly for many years.

Leo Kopelev, a Russian-born author who knew Kelly from the peace movement, said he did not believe in a suicide pact.

"She could die like Martin Luther King, or like Gandhi, in a struggle, but not like this. I don't believe she or Gert could go without explaining it to their friends," he said.

Quebec 'No' vote could sink reforms

Key issues in Canada's referendum

Canadian voters Oct. 25 in a referendum to overhaul their national constitution, which all the provinces except Quebec have accepted. Key points in the agreement:

- Parliament
  - Create an elected Senate to replace the current appointed body
  - Expand the House of Commons, the lower house of Parliament, like in the U.S. House of Representatives, seats are allocated to the provinces based on population
- Native peoples
  - Recognize the governments of Native American and Inuit peoples within Canada, granting them the same status as federal and provincial governments
- Quebec
  - Recognize Quebec's distinct society, based on its French language, unique culture and civil law tradition
- Minorities
  - Protect English-speaking minority communities in Quebec and French-speaking communities outside the province
- Division of powers
  - Divide powers between the federal and the 10 provincial governments more efficiently
- Constitution's history
  - Since the Canadians revised their constitution in 1982, several attempts, including this agreement, have been made to garner support from the Quebecois. If the agreement is defeated, the Canadian federation, viable since the country gained independence from Britain in 1867, may be jeopardized.
- Referendum's importance
  - The vote is non-binding, but certain to affect the opinion of legislators who will vote later. To become binding, the agreement must be approved by both houses of Parliament and the provincial legislatures.

TORONTO (AP) — Canadians voted Monday in a constitutional referendum designed to appease cultural and regional grievances, but citizens in a single province could torpedo the package and the polls pointed to trouble in Quebec.

The package originally was put together in an effort to dampen separatist sentiment in French-speaking Quebec by granting that province special status and rights as a distinct culture. But it grew to include changes demanded by the less populous provinces and by Canada's aboriginal people.

Many Canadians complained about the complexity of the long reform document signed by Prime Minister Brian Mulroney and premiers of the 10 provinces on Aug. 28.

"It's kind of a confusing vote because I think there are a lot of people who don't know exactly what they're going to do," said Derek Harnett, who stood in the rain waiting to vote at a polling station in Newfoundland. "I'm still not sure what I'm going to do."

The referendum was really a non-binding plebiscite. The constitution can be amended only with approval of the federal Parliament and the legislatures of all 10 provinces.

But Mulroney said that if the package failed in any one province, the deal was dead. It would be "morally unacceptable" for a provincial legislature to pass the reforms after rejection by its voters, he said.

Consequently, the overall national vote in this nation of 27 million people was less important than results from individual provinces. The crucial test was in Quebec, the second most populous province, where candidates indicated a majority of voters would vote "No."

Polls also said the accord faced defeat in British Columbia and possibly in the central provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. The vote was too close to call in Ontario, the most populous province.

Mulroney maintained a confident air despite the poll results, predicting a "pleasant surprise" and victory for the "Yes" side. "My confidence is unshakable," he said after voting.

The key parts of the agreement signed at Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, recognize Quebec as a "distinct society" with the right to protect its French language and culture. It would guarantee Quebec a fourth of the seats in the House of Commons and a third of the Supreme Court's nine seats permanently.

At the demand of other provinces, the reforms would change the appointed Senate to a directly-elected body with equal province having six members. The less populated provinces have complained about the political dominance of Ontario and Quebec, which have more than half Canada's people.

The package also would grant aboriginal people the right to govern their own affairs.

Quebec separatists are hoping to use a "No" vote in the province to rekindle a campaign for independence. That would be something down the road, however, as the separatist Parti Quebecois is still in opposition and provincial elections are not due until 1994.

Foreign investors were jittery about the referendum and the possibility that Canada could unravel. The Canadian dollar fell nearly one-third of a cent Monday, dropping below 80 U.S. cents.

The Canadian dollar has been under severe pressure since opinion polls began to show the accord could be defeated in several provinces.

Battle rages over cold fusion claims

Japan, American utility company to spend millions on research

TOKYO (AP) — After more than three years of locking-horns, believers and skeptics remained at odds over the existence of low-temperature nuclear fusion as the Third International Conference on Cold Fusion wound up Monday.

But while the doubters dismissed some of the newest fusion claims, the Japanese government and a major American electrical utility group say they will spend millions for research into what they say is an exciting new phenomenon — but probably not fusion.

'It's unbelievable — a big jump in theory. Before concluding that he had found cold fusion, he should have repeated the experiment for another year or two and then submitted his results to a scientific journal.'

— Hiromichi Nakahara, professor of nuclear chemistry at Tokyo Metropolitan University

The 300 scientists at the five-day conference in Nagoya, western Japan, and a follow-up session in Tokyo Monday discussed claims by dozens of researchers that they had generated excess heat in experiments where special electrodes are used to run electricity through water containing "heavy" hydrogen.

While some are claiming the heat is caused by nuclear fusion, a notion flatly dismissed by most mainstream scientists, others say the heat must be coming from some other process.

long have sought to harness it as a source of energy.

No one, however, has found a way to make fusion commercially viable because it requires more energy than it yields. That's why the scientific world was shocked in March 1989 when two chemists, Stanley Pons of Utah and colleague Martin Fleischmann of England, claimed to have achieved low-temperature fusion that yielded excess energy.

Japan's trade ministry, which is planning to spend up to $25 million on such research over the next four years, has settled on calling it "new hydrogen energy."

Michael McKubre, whose research at SRI in Palo Alto, Calif., is funded by the Electric Power Research Institute, is equally cautious about naming the cause of the heat he is observing. EPRI has spent $4 million on McKubre's work and plans another $8 million.

Most scientists gave up on that when the chemists' results could not be repeated immediately, and they were criticized for going to the popular press before checking their data with other scientists.

Nonetheless, dozens of scientists around the world have continued to seek evidence of room-temperature nuclear fusion and, in recent months, several have been reporting excess heat, a possible sign of fusion.

But critics say other nuclear "products" like radiation or charged particles should also be present.

"At the Nagoya conference, a criticism similar to the one leveled against Pons and Fleischmann was made against Eichi Yamaguchi, a scientist at the basic research lab tied to telecommunications giant Nippon, Telegraph and Telephone.

While some are claiming the heat is caused by nuclear fusion, a notion flatly dismissed by most mainstream scientists, others say the heat must be coming from some other process.

Other scientists criticized at the Nagoya conference include some who said they had observed some elements transforming into others in the electrolysis experiments, a process that most think can only occur at extremely high temperatures.

"Initially, it was one miracle. Now, it's more and more miracles that they're claiming," said Doug Morrison, a Scottish physicist at CERN, a research center in Geneva, Switzerland.

Casablanca chosen over Bone for invasion

Knight-Ridder News Service

Another in a series

On Oct. 23, 1942, the first group of transports carrying African troops for the North African invasion sailed from Hampton Roads, Va.

A second group sailed from the same area the next morning. The fire support group, including the battleships Massachusetts, New York and Texas, left Casco Bay, Maine, the same day. They rendezvoused with the transports two days later.

On Oct. 28, the air group, consisting of light carrier Ranger and escort carriers Swanneck, Sarganton, Santee and Chenango, joined up from Bermuda. This armada was designated Task Force 34 or the Western Naval Task Force and was under the command of Admiral Kent Hewitt.

The mission was unprecedented. The task force was to cross the Atlantic and land 37,000 men under Maj. Gen. George S. Patton at three widely separated points on the Moroccan coast: Safi, 125 miles south of Casablanca; Mehdia 65 miles north of Casablanca; and at conducted over whether to include Casablanca in the invasion plans.

The British wanted to strike as far east along the African coast as possible. The ultimate Allied target was Tunis. The British did not want to give the Germans time to rush reinforcements into Tunisia. The British proposed three attacks inside the Mediterranean at Oran, Algiers and Bone, the latter point less than 150 miles from Tunis.

The American military planners wanted Casablanca. Not only did it have the best port facilities in northwest Africa, but it was outside the Mediterranean. The fear was that in response to the Allied landing, Germany would persuade Spain to join the Axis and attack Gibraltar, or at least allow German troops and aircraft to use Spanish territory to strike back on the British fortress guarding the entrance to the Mediterranean.

If Gibraltar were lost or neutralized, the invasion forces could only be supplied by Casablanca which was west of Gibraltar. Bone was also too close to German airbases which would give the Luftwaffe superiority over the beachhead.

The British discounted the Spanish threat, feeling that if Spain had not joined the Axis at its peak in 1940, it would not join now with the U.S. in the war and the Axis hard pressed by the British at El Alamein and the Russians at Stalingrad.

A choice had to be made because the Allies did not have the strength to attack everywhere. When the Combined Chiefs of Staff could not agree, the decision was bumped up to President Franklin Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill in September. Casablanca was finally chosen over Bone.

It was imperative that American troops lead the attack on all three targets. The French had been hostile toward the British ever since the Royal Navy had attacked the French fleet at Oran in July, 1940, in order to prevent the "neutral" Vichy regime from turning its warships over to the Axis.

The French would resist a British invasion, but it was hoped they would welcome a U.S. landing.

Low up 36 after morning uncertainty

Knights-Ridder News Service
NEW YORK — The Dow industrials rose 36 points to close at 3244 Monday, posting a three-week high and extending its series of consecutive gains to three days, on a late burst of index-arbitrage program buying.

Prior to the battery of buy-programs, which began around 2 p.m. Monday, the Dow had moved in a narrow range, supported primarily by a nearly 2-point gain in component Procter & Gamble, which Monday morning reported first-fiscal-quarter earnings at the top of Wall Street expectations.

Traders and analysts stressed that a growing preponderance of bearish market sentiment over the last few weeks has prepared the way for just such a rapid rally as was seen Monday.

Trading was cautious not only because of new weakness in the Treasury bond market, down 13/32 as term interest rates and resulting low carrying charges for arbitrage positions — the market has benefited from record high short interest on the New York Stock Exchange.

Economy expected to surpass 1990 peak

WASHINGTON (AP) — The economy is about to mark an important milestone — surpassing the level of goods and services that were produced in 1990 — but the good news may be of little comfort to President Bush's re-election effort.

Commerce Department report Tuesday will show output grew enough in the July-September period to top that.

not strong enough to make us feel good about where we are and where we're headed."

1990 peak, employment has not, and that may be the most important economic yardstick. The nation's payrolls in September had 1.9 million fewer employees than the 110.3 million record of June 1990.

Smale leads charge against Stempel

The Associated Press
John Smale, widely expected to replace Robert Stempel as chairman of General Motors Corp., once told a biographer he was "a dull fellow."

suggested getting dentists to endorse it. On Aug. 1, 1960, his 33rd birthday, the American Dental Association endorsed Crest and gave P&G permission to use the endorsement in advertisements.

Under his leadership, P&G expanded overseas and spent more than $3 billion on acquisitions, moved into over-the-counter drugs and other high-profit health-care products, cut its inventory, and shortened the time it takes to get products from development to market.

After that, Smale's ascent was fast. In 1967, he was a vice president; in 1972, he was named to the board, two years after that, he was president.

Home sales take dip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite declining prices and tighter mortgages in nearly two decades, sales of previously owned homes fell in September to the lowest level since January, a real estate trade group reported Monday.

Realtors' President Dorcas T. Reardon said sales dropped 0.9 percent to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.28 million. That was down from 3.31 million in August and the lowest since a 3.22 million rate at the beginning of the year.

GM

and as much as $4 billion this year. Auto industry experts said while Stempel left the company, GM's problems when he took over 27 months ago, was a product of a stodgy, slow-moving, consensus-oriented organization that hadn't changed much since the 1920s.

GM

In fact, Stempel's departure — which likely forestalled the board from asking for his resignation at a meeting next week — was GM's first forced departure since company founder William Crapo Durant's ouster in 1920.

GM

Stempel, the first engineer to chair GM, was the latest in a succession of mid-mannered insiders who rose to the top, most of them financial executives. Possibly trapped by his past, Stempel could not or would not take bold steps.

GM

It is possible Smale could take over, and a GM executive would be named chief executive for day-to-day operations. Those candidates include John F. Smith, the current president, who was promoted by the board in the April coup, and William E. Hoglund, who was made chief financial officer,

Youth isn't the compliment that all aged seek to find

DEAR ABBY: My eldest sister, "Thelma," died of cancer last June. A short time before her death, I took her for a treatment, and afterward we had lunch at a nearby cafe.

Dear Abby
Abigail VanBuren

The waitress offered me more coffee, then she turned to Thelma and asked, "And how about you, young lady?"

I could see that Thelma was deeply offended. She knew she wasn't young — she was 78 years old and had been fighting cancer for five years. She had lost all her hair because of the chemotherapy treatments and was very thin and frail.

Thelma had been a beauty until she fell ill. She was a talented artist and seamstress and had been active in community affairs. She refused to give up, and kept going until she just couldn't go any more. She made pretty scarves to cover her hairless head and wore gloves to hide her poor hands.

I resented that waitress thinking she was being complimentary by calling my sister "young lady."

Abby please tell your readers that not all senior citizens think being addressed as "young" is the ultimate compliment. What's wrong with "ma'am" or "sir"? It sounds more sincere and respectful.

Please print this for my wonderful sister.

—MISSING MY SISTER

DEAR MISSING: Please accept my sympathy at the loss of your beloved sister. Thank you for writing. I'm printing your letter. Many can learn from it.

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I'd be writing to you, but here I am. I have a husband who retired last year, and he is driving me crazy! He gets dressed only when he has to go out; otherwise, he stays in his pajamas until noon — and a lot of times until 2 or 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Then he gets back into his pajamas right after 6 o'clock supper.

In the summertime, he wears only the bottoms. It is very embarrassing when people drop in — he won't even put on his trousers. Are there other husbands like mine? And if there are any wives out there who know how to get their men to dress presentably around the house, I sure hope they write in and share their secret with Dear Abby.

—DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE: I don't know what your husband's attitude was toward retirement — but from the picture you are painting, he seems to have little incentive to get dressed and go out. This could be a symptom of depression, or possibly a physical problem. Tell your family doctor, and ask him to schedule an appointment for your husband.

If everything checks out A-O-K, perhaps you could explore some senior activities that would interest you both. These are supposed to be the golden years — don't let them tarnish.

DEAR ABBY: Last summer you printed a poem titled "Be the Best of Whatever You Are," and requested the name of the author.

That poem was written by Douglas Malloch. It was copyrighted in 1925 and published in 1926 by the Scott Dowd Co. in Chicago.

Douglas Malloch was my grandfather's brother. He was born in Muskegon, Mich., and spent most of his life in Chicago. He published numerous books of essays and poems, and was quite a well-known author in the 1920s and '30s. He was called "the poet who makes living a joy."

—CHARLES R. WICKMAN, MINNETONKA, MINN.

This one's for everybody, from teens to seniors! To purchase Abby's new booklet, "The Anger in All of Us and How to Deal With It," send a business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Anger Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

1940s hammered aluminum trays could be treasures

Q. I have some hammered aluminum trays and other tableware from the mid-1940s. How can I find out more about them?

A. Write to the Hammered Aluminum Collectors' annual membership and bimonthly newsletter are $20 ($12 for newsletter subscription only, or $2 a copy), available from Box 1346, Weatherford, Texas, 76086.

Q. Where can I get small witch ornaments to decorate a Halloween witches tree?

A. Witches trees, made from branches and twigs gathered when the moon is full, range from hole-centerpiece size to ceiling high. To order miniature witch or pumpkin ornaments, write to the Seraph Country Village, Route 20, Box 500, Sturbridge, Mass. 01566 (phone 508-347-2241), enclosing a stamp for a list of holiday ornaments.

Q. Where can I find information on Victorian tableware and services used for tea parties?

A. Information on 19th century tea parties is in "A Victorian Cup of Tea," by Frances Norton, available for $9.50 from the author, 1012 N. Wheaton Ave., Wheaton, Ill. 60187.

Q. Do you know where I can find information on ceramic whiskey pitchers embossed or printed with different whiskey brand names?

A. These pitchers, or "pub jugs," were given to tavern owners by liquor distributors to promote various brands of whiskey. The pitchers were used to hold water for mixed drinks. The Whiskey Pitcher Collectors Association of America offers an annual membership and bimonthly newsletter for $10 from Tom 'n' Duin, 19341 W. Tahoe Drive, Mundelein, Ill. 60060 (phone 708-566-9512). According to Duin, who founded the club in 1991, some of the older pitchers are quite valuable; others that are still being made sell for less than $10. For details about the club's annual show, to be held in Mundelein next summer, or to buy, sell, trade or find out the value of a whiskey pitcher, write to Duin, enclosing a photo or description of the piece and an addressed, stamped envelope for a reply.

Q. I found some old small-size copies of Hobbies magazine from the 1930s. Is the magazine still being published?

A. The magazine, renamed Antiques & Collecting Hobbies, is a favorite among collectors. Early issues of Hobbies were small in size but big in content, with informative columns on Native American relics, weapons, stamps, coins, matchbooks and curios. Today the magazine, published monthly, is available for $24 a year from Antiques & Collecting Hobbies/Circulation Dept., 1006 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60605 (phone 312-939-4767).

Write to Anita Gold at the Chicago Tribune, 435 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60611. The mail volume precludes a personal response.

Doctors Against Drugs sponsors speech contest for Red Ribbon Week

TWIN FALLS — In celebration of Red Ribbon Week, Doctors Against Drugs is sponsoring a speech contest for high school seniors.

The theme of the contest is "Yes to Life: No to Drugs," in keeping with the drug free theme of the week. It will be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday at O'Leary Junior High School, with JUMP Co. and Shoshone Positive Peer Group performing selected numbers. Winners of the contest will receive cash scholarships. The public is invited to attend.

Among other Red Ribbon

Week activities still to come is a free College of Southern Idaho Basketball Scrimmage, set for tonight in the school's gym. A Drug Free School Zone sign dedication sponsored by Amalgamated Sugar is set for 10 a.m. Thursday at Twin Falls High School, and King Video-cable Channel 10 is featuring various programs — on drug awareness throughout the week. Skywest Airlines is sponsoring a business decoration contest.

On Thursday and Friday, JUMP Co. will perform "Noah's Animals" at 7 p.m. in the CSI Auditorium. The CSI

Student Senate, which is sponsoring this year's show, will donate all proceeds to the Drug Impact Program. Tickets, priced at $3 each, will be available at the door. Or, call 733-9554, Ext. 221.

During Red Ribbon Week, Oct. 23-31, residents are asked to tie red ribbons onto their vehicle antennas or use them to decorate the outside of their homes. Red ribbons/buttons to wear are available at all Red Ribbon events. For more information, call Marcia Lanting at 733-6900 or Jill Chestnut at 737-2906.

Toll-free number makes it easier to inquire about VA benefits

BOISE — The Department of Veterans Affairs has launched a single, nationwide toll-free number to make it easier for veterans and their dependents to inquire about and apply for VA benefits.

The number, 1-800-827-1000, is now effective and can be dialed anywhere in the United States, Puerto Rico or the Virgin Islands. Dialing automatically connects the caller to the nearest VA regional office during normal working hours.

The VA has 58 regional benefits offices, at least one in each state, which process applications for veterans benefits and provide information and referral to veterans interested in VA medical care and non-VA programs for veterans. Prior to the new nationwide number, each regional office had its own toll-free number.

CSI offers class on children, reading

TWIN FALLS — A one-credit class on children and reading is set for 7 to 9:30 p.m. Fridays and 8:30 a.m. to noon Saturdays, this Friday through Nov. 14, in Canyon 202 at the College of Southern Idaho. Cost is $45.

Instructor Lana Donnelly will explore reading teaching methods, book selection, prevention of reading problems and what parents and teachers can do to improve reading and interest in reading.

Interested persons can register in the Taylor Building Records Office.

Children test, recommend 1992's new toys

Knight-Ridder News Service

MIAMI — All play is hard work for kids.

Just ask Latasha Hunter, the 5-year-old kindergarten student at the Center. A scarecrow will be the 5-year-old student Durcell Kids' Choice National Toy Survey. Their mission: Play with 30 new toys that will be available this Christmas and rate the top 10. It is a big responsibility, but it's important, Latasha said. "People can get a lot of ideas for their children."

That's exactly the hope of Durcell executives. The Bethel, Conn.-based company has been running the test for the past five years, spokesman Jim O'Leary said. Forty percent of Durcell's sales come during the holiday season and 20 percent of the battery maker's overall business is done at Christmas.

This year, more than 600 children in YMCA after-school programs across the country are involved in the survey. The kids voted a couple of weeks ago and results will go on a list of recommended Christmas buys. Parents and interested consumers will be able to get the list by calling a toll-free number — 1-800-BEST-TOYS — from Nov. 10 through Dec. 31.

Ruth B. Roubberg, an independent toy consultant, supervised the choice of test products.

The test toys do not have to be battery-operated, but there are some rules. Not allowed are licensed characters; violent, offensive or controversial toys; or toys with exclusive appeal to either boys or girls. And toys must be under $100.

"We try and pick things that have an appeal to children and would be approved by discerning parents," Roubberg said.

Like Doodle Dome, a spherical version of the beloved Etch-a-Sketch drawing toy, for $22. Or Snafu, $14.99, an obstacle course game where players are timed as they move a ball through a maze.

This year, many of the selections look a lot like toys that parents will remember from childhood. Fred Elkin, a national trend analyst, said parents want toys that are high quality and reasonably priced.

"Parents are very value-oriented this year," Elkin said. "There is a trend towards modern interpretations of time-tested concepts. Bright lights and slick gadgets won't work."

Maybe not for adults, but Latasha's favorite toy is My Pal 2, an interactive talking robot that asks kids to press colored disks on its chest and rewards correct moves saying, "Play again man" or "Cool shot, dude."

Latasha loves the $60 toy, even though the robot barks when she makes a mistake. The robot also barks when stored in its box, said YMC teacher Anita Harris. In fact, you can't turn the toy off, Harris said.

"It doesn't make any sense," Harris said. "But, Latasha said, 'It's cool.' And it's the kids' choice that counts."

Holiday craft classes offered for children

JEROME — Stephanie Taylor will be the instructor for Holiday Crafts for Kids classes for children third through sixth grade.

The first class will be held from 3:15 to 4:45 p.m. Thursday at the Jerome Recreation Center. A scarecrow will be the "Make and Take" item for this Halloween class. The fee is $5 plus materials of approximately $10. For more information, call the Jerome Recreation District at 324-3389.
