Senators start Packwood probe

The Associated Press
WASHINGTON — The Senate ethics committee, under heavy pressure from women's groups and congressional leaders, said Tuesday it has begun a preliminary inquiry into sexual harassment allegations against Republican Sen. Bob Packwood of Oregon.

Committee chairman Terry Sanford, D-N.C., and Vice Chairman Warren B. Rudman, R-N.H., both leaving Congress in January, said in a written statement that they had instructed the panel's staff to gather information as quickly as possible. The inquiry results will be presented to the full six-member committee, which then will determine whether to proceed with a formal investigation. Packwood, 60, who has checked into an undisclosed alcohol treatment program, has agreed to cooperate.

The committee's announcement brought a quick positive reaction from a coordinator for Oregon women's organizations, which have been pressing for both the investigation and the resignation of Packwood — who just was re-elected for a fifth term.

former Oregon Supreme Court Justice Betty Roberts, who lost a Senate race to Packwood in 1974, said, "It's very positive that they're taking this seriously. It probably will be a very long investigative procedure. To begin it now is very appropriate."

Jerome school chief quits post, education

By H.R. Welkel

JEROME — The superintendent of Jerome schools resigned effective Tuesday to pursue other goals outside the field.

The superintendent, Mr. Brown, said the board discussed how to handle district business without a head administrator. School principals and administrative staff will be included in future discussions. A search for a new superintendent will begin at once, Williams said.

Brown

Brown, whose district finally won passage earlier this year of a $3.9 million bond issue to build a new school and end controversial split sessions, left with six months remaining in the school year.

He asked for a mutual release of liabilities and $10,000, which was approved by the board. "The board would not comment on the circumstances surrounding the resignation," said Robert Williams III, attorney for the school district.

Rupert farmer tells jury that he trusted Hansen

By Drew DeSilver
Times-News writer
RUPERT — Rupert farmer Brad Neibaur denied Tuesday that he had any intent to defraud Idaho banks when he traded hundreds of $100,000-plus checks with former congressman George Hansen.

Neibaur said he felt he was making a series of short-term loans to Hansen, with whom he had business dealings since the mid-1970s. But eventually he was forced into bankruptcy when the Bank of Commerce of Idaho Falls sued him for more than $2 million, claiming he had to make good on checks issued by Hansen. Neibaur said he settled for $250,000.

Atomic door opened in 1942

The Associated Press
CHICAGO — Fifty years after the world's first self-sustaining nuclear chain reactions, researchers who helped open the atomic door gathered Tuesday at the University of Chicago to discuss the breakthrough.

Dr. Albert Wattenberg, professor emeritus of physics at the University of Illinois, helped create the first self-sustaining nuclear chain reaction.

At the urging of a Chicago-based federal official, work on the first reactor, Chicago Pile-1, was moved to Illinois. Nine hours a week, scientists unloaded, cut and drilled 400 tons of graphite and laid the bricks by hand, said William J. Sturtevant, then a graduate student. He helped develop monitors, power supplies and a purity test for uranium.

The reactor suddenly shut down. A safety device, set too low, had slammed a rod into the pile. "That afternoon, Wattenberg perched over the pile with three jugs of cadmium solution to douse the pile in case of danger. George Weil slid out a cadmium rod while Fermi calculated nuclear activity. Finally, Fermi ordered the rod pulled further out and predicted the reaction would continue. Five minutes later he declared, "The reaction is self-sustaining." The watchers cheered.

Storm threatens to bring snow to northern Rockies

Wind gusting to 40 mph caused drifting snow across the Nebraska Panhandle early Tuesday, cutting visibility to near zero and prompting authorities to close about 50 miles of state highway between Gering and Kimball.

Freezing rain and light snow were scattered across the upper Mississippi Valley. Snow also fell over eastern and southern North Dakota, northern Indiana, and along the lower Great Lakes.

Local advisories were posted for ice-covered roads in northeastern South Dakota, and snow and freezing rain in northern Minnesota. In Wisconsin, the weather service said, freezing rain was scattered over the eastern Texas Gulf Coast and the central Atlantic Coast states. Snow was scattered over the central Appalachians.

The heaviest snowfall reported during the six hours up to 7 p.m. EST was 1 inch at Beckley, W.Va.

Tuesday morning, the low for the lower 48 states was 3 below zero at Alamosa, Colo., and Kemmerer, Wyo.

U.S. blasts manipulation of currencies

(WASHINGTON) — In parting shots on foreign trade, the Bush administration on Tuesday accused China and Taiwan of manipulating their currencies to gain unfair advantages and argued that a sluggish world economy would send America's trade deficit rising rapidly this year and next.

The administration's gloomy assessment was that the merchandise trade deficit, which shrank in 1991 to an eight-year low of $65.4 billion, would hit $75 billion this year and exceed $100 billion in 1993.

The forecast represented a reversal from a report just six months ago when the administration was so confidently predicting that the trade deficit, which has been declining for the last three years, would show further improvement.

The new assessment blamed the change on "weaker demand than previously foreseen in Europe and Japan."

Under a 1988 law, the administration is required to provide Congress with a report on the country's trade prospects and name countries unfairly depressing the value of their currencies.

Training, command errors led to firing

The Washington Post

The instant after the USS Saratoga fired two fatal missiles at a friendly Turkish destroyer Oct. 23, this chilling conversation was recorded over one of the aircraft carrier's command channels.

"What do you mean, 'Birds away'?" demanded a senior lieutenant in the carrier's Combat Direction Center.

"I thought you said this is real world," replied a recently awakened pilot officer.

"I never said this was real world," the lieutenant responded. "I'm exercising. It's all an exercise."

The colossal misunderstanding, which killed five Turkish sailors and nearly sank the destroyer, was the result of a systems breakdown in training and command and control in one long-neglected department aboard Saratoga, according to a Navy report released Tuesday.

Saratoga's air operations — the 100 sorties a day at the heart of its carrier mission — were described as exemplary. But the group responsible for the little-used Sea Sparrow missile launcher was so isolated aboard Saratoga that the Navy command called its members "organizational orphans."

The Navy findings will cost Capt. James M. Drager, once considered a sure bet for admiral, his career. Though a Court of Inquiry found Drager played no direct role for the mishap it said that as Saratoga's skipper he was accountable for any lapse of safety.

The admirals — two command and two lieutenant and two senior pilot officers — were held more directly to blame for the tragedy, which took place four minutes after midnight during a NATO exercise in the Aegean Sea. But the Navy found no willful wrongdoing and rejected Turkish demands for a court martial. All six will receive non-judicial punishments in a Navy hearing known as a mast.

"I might have told jurors that he often had Hansen's money before 1990, and always had been repaid. But when Hansen asked him for another loan in March 1990, Neibaur told him he had started that year's farming and didn't have a lot of cash on hand."

"Then, Neibaur said, Hansen proposed a new kind of lending relationship."

"For each check Neibaur made out to Hansen's firm, Ideal Consultants, Neibaur said Hansen gave him a check for the same amount plus $1,000 interest."

Economic signs positive, but experts remain wary

WASHINGTON (AP) — New reports Tuesday showed the government's chief economic forecasting agency — construction — spending and manufacturing all up strongly.

But economists, fooled by previous signs of recovery, weren't ready to celebrate yet.

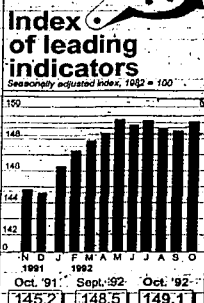

The Commerce Department's Index of Leading Economic Indicators rose 0.4 percent in October, the biggest gain in five months. The department also said construction spending in October advanced robustly for the second consecutive month, reaching the highest level in two years. And a widely followed private report showed American manufacturing surging in November.

"You can feel the corners being turned all over the place. Everything seems to be coming together," said economist David Seiders of the National Association of Home Builders.

But economist Laurence H. Meyer, a St. Louis-based consultant, said, "We want to be a little bit cautious. We've had periods where the data has been as good as October's before ... and it did not mature into a recovery."

The economy lapsed into recession in July 1990, analysts have been burned twice by prematurely predicting a return to better times, once in mid-1991 and again early this year. But each time a dip or a stall in activity prevented the recovery from attaining a self-sustaining recovery.

Of the index's 11 forward-looking indicators, the most positive was a 13.7 percent drop in average weekly unemployment benefit claims, the steepest since December 1992.

Meanwhile, George Stephanopoulos, a spokesman for President-elect Clinton, said no decision has been made about whether the improving economic outlook would cause Clinton to scale back a planned short-term economic stimulus package.

"We're encouraged by the news we've seen over the last several weeks and we hope it continues," Stephanopoulos said. "But ... we just can't tell yet whether or not we're going to have a real, long-sustained recovery with job growth and income growth."

Five other indicators in the leading index, designed to predict economic conditions six to nine months in advance, were positive. Two were neutral and three were negative.

The other positive indicators, from biggest to smallest, were:

- An increase in the average work week of manufacturing employees.
- A jump in unfilled orders at factories, a sign that manufacturers are not as easily keeping up with new orders and may need to hire soon.
- A rise in orders for business equipment and buildings.
- An increase in orders for consumer goods and the materials that go into them.
- A small gain in building permits.

The neutral indicators were the University of Michigan's consumer sentiment survey and the inflation-adjusted growth in the money supply.

The drags on the index were:

- A decline in the prices of raw materials, a sign of stalled demand.
- A drop in business-delivery times, showing companies aren't having trouble keeping up with demand.
- A fall in stock prices as measured by the Standard & Poor's 500.

The various changes left the index at a seasonally adjusted 149.1, up 2.7 percent from a year ago. But, since May, the index has been virtually flat.

Meanwhile, a separate report showed construction spending rising 1 percent in October to $429.3 billion, at a seasonally adjusted annual rate. The strength came in single-family home construction, spurred by low mortgage rates.

And the National Association of Purchasing Management's monthly index rose to 55.0 percent, a big jump from the 50.6 percent level of October.

Postal Service records surplus

WASHINGTON (AP) — Increased business and less spending on staff helped the U.S. Postal Service finish 1992 in the black, according to final accounts for the year released Tuesday.

The agency, which had been expected to break even for the year, ended 1992 with an operating surplus of $474 million, postal controller M. Richard Porras told the service's board of governors. Fiscal 1992 ended Sept. 18.

The operating surplus did not include one-time costs of about $1 billion to pay for a major restructuring, including six-month pay bonuses for some 47,000 workers who agreed to take early retirement. The staff-reduction program and other major changes were initiated when Postmaster General Marvin Runyon took office in July, including earlier reductions, the postal workforce is 688,615, down 60,346 from a year ago. Runyon said his aim is to eliminate the deficit of $2 billion that had been anticipated for fiscal 1993. He has promised to hold stamp prices at their current levels at least through 1993.

While the cost of the early retirement program will probably push the agency back into the red for 1992, the staff reductions are expected to save the agency $1.5 billion annually starting in 1993. Automation and other cost-cutting efforts are also underway, officials report.

Meanwhile, mail business improved in the final quarter of 1992, boosting income for the agency, Porras said. The first office handled 166.2 billion items in fiscal 1992, up 0.4 percent from the 165.2 billion pieces handled the year before.

Senator: Agencies withhold material

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican leader of the Senate panel investigating Americans missing from the Vietnam War charged Tuesday that federal agencies have been withholding documents from the committee.

Sen. Bob Smith, R-N.H., said he wants to subpoena the documents before the committee goes out of existence Jan. 3.

"We have hundreds of questions yet to be answered, thousands of documents that this committee has not seen and that this government refuses to provide," he said at the opening of four days of hearings.

Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., chairman of the Senate Select Committee on POW-MIA Affairs, said that while he has been at times "somewhat distressed" with the Pentagon's level of cooperation, he was satisfied with the overall efforts.

"Any document we ought to have, we got," he said. "The (committee's) effort thus far has been extensive and extraordinary and the response has been extensive."

The documents Smith wants include 60 boxes of intelligence reports from the National Security Agency, operational files from the Central Intelligence Agency, do-briefing reports from returned prisoners of war and more than 500 Defense Intelligence Agency reports claiming POWs have been alive in captivity in Vietnam and Laos as late as 1989.

Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, said that while the committee has worked for nearly a year trying to find out what happened to U.S. servicemen who didn't return from Vietnam, "our attempts have been frustrated by prejudgments." He blamed the Pentagon, saying, "the mindset to debunk (reports of sightings of POWs and MIAs) is alive and well."

Investigation rules out weather, mechanical problems in crash

HARLEM, Mont. (AP) — Weather and mechanical problems aren't suspected in the fiery nighttime collision of two military cargo jets during an airborne refueling mission, apparently killing all 13 aboard, authorities said Tuesday.

Nine bodies had been found by midafternoon, said Col. Dick Fanjoy, vice commander of the 43rd Air Refueling Wing at Minot Air Force Base in Great Falls.

In another Air Force crash Monday night, a B-1B strategic bomber, went down and exploded in western Texas during a training flight. The fate of the four crewmen was unknown. The crash was the fourth of a B-1B, designed to deliver nuclear bombs, since September 1987.

The wreckage of the two C-141B cargo planes was strewn over 21 square miles of the north-central Montana prairie about 30 miles south of the Canadian border.

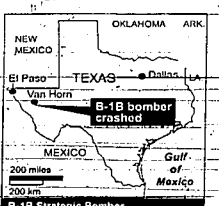

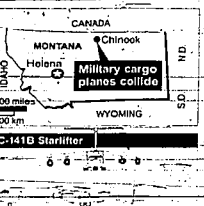

The planes crashed late Monday while on a training mission with two other C-141Bs and a Washington Air National Guard KC-135 tanker, said a Ray Mancell, spokesman for McCord Air Force Base near Tacoma, Wash., where the transports were based.

"A great, big piece fell out of the sky. It looked like a meteorite," said Brenda Mohr, a teacher from Turner, northeast of the crash area.

The KC-135 had finished refueling the cargo planes before the collision, said Lt. Col. Jose Jimenez, spokesman for Fairchild Air Force Base near Spokane, Wash., where the tanker is based.

An Air Force investigation of the collision began with questioning of the crews of the two other C-141s, said Master Sgt. David Jones of McCord.

During refueling the four planes would fly in formation below the

Clinton likely to adopt cautious approach toward Russia, Yeltsin

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Bill Clinton takes office as America's 42nd president, he is expected to continue to do what President Bush did: a nuclear-arms and diplomatic approach toward Russia. But the Clinton administration is expected to pursue a "bold strategy" toward Russia. The Clinton administration is expected to pursue a "bold strategy" toward Russia. CHANGING DIRECTIONS

Another in a series

Clinton hopes for an early summit with Yeltsin in Moscow. But the incoming administration is not encouraging that idea. Clinton hopes for an early summit with Yeltsin in Moscow. But the incoming administration is not encouraging that idea.

"This is a high-risk period," said Sen. Richard Lugar of Indiana, a senior Republican on the Foreign Relations Committee. "Awesome nuclear weapons remain ... still in place, still on alert."

The senators criticized the Bush administration for backing away from action on pressing matters such as arms control, trade and development of free markets and democracy.

One sign of the magnitude of the problem Clinton will face is the raucous parliamentary session that opened Tuesday in Moscow with a close vote defeating an attempt to start impeachment proceedings against Yeltsin.

The embattled Russian president is struggling to hold off attempts by conservatives to trim his power and reverse his free-market economic reforms.

During the presidential campaign, Clinton criticized Bush, for failing to recognize quickly enough the need to offer Yeltsin "a helping hand."

But a Clinton foreign policy adviser, speaking only on condition of anonymity, said the program finally put together by the Republican president and passed by Congress "is not materially different from the program Clinton put forward. It's the same order of magnitude. It's been supportive of it."

The U.S. aid package was part of a $24-billion Western effort. But very little of that was in direct financial assistance. Most of the U.S. contribution was in the form of agricultural credits to help Russia purchase U.S. commodities.

In addition, Congress approved a $2-billion increase in the U.S. contribution to the International Monetary Fund along with $1.5 billion toward a $6 billion international fund to prop up the ruble. The ruble stabilization fund exists only on paper and won't come into play until the Russian economy shows signs of turning around from its current inflation rate of more than 250 percent a year.

Even on the eve of the Russian parliamentary session, Bush and Clinton issued similar statements of support for Yeltsin.

A White House statement said that Bush "will not waver" in support of the Russian government. Clinton sent a telegram to Yeltsin, saying, "Let me reaffirm my support for your efforts to further democracy and economic reform."

Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev said in a recent interview that the Yeltsin government expects "a new agenda with the Clinton administration."

Kozyrev said that in conversations with Clinton since his election, Yeltsin "tried to outline from the very beginning ... the necessity of a bold strategy."

The foreign minister said Russia needs more financial assistance from the United States and added that "a Third World Russia with a first-class nuclear arsenal" was far more dangerous than a prosperous democratic country with a free market economy.

Strauss said in a recent CNN interview that Clinton must convince the American people that assistance to Russia "is not a foreign aid program." He said a special envoy, who would report directly to the president, should have the authority to grant U.S. government agencies "and find what can be pulled out" for assistance to Yeltsin's government.

'Song Isl: nd Lolita' draws 5 to 15
A 15-year-old girl named Lolita was sentenced Tuesday to 15 years in prison in the "Long Island Lolita" case for shooting the wife of a man she claimed was her lover. The judge said she was "a striking stick of dynamite with the fuse lit."

Before being sentenced for assault, the teen-ager apologized to the victim, who was sitting nearby, and then accused the victim of sexual abuse in the triangle shooting outside the couple's Long Island home on May 19. Mrs. Buttafuoco, 37, was partially paralyzed from a head wound.

Near tears at the trial, Fisher accused Joey Buttafuoco, 36, of urging Lolita to shoot his wife after the two allegedly began an affair. A news conference later, he called Fisher "an absolute liar right from the start." He rejected Fisher's apology, calling her a pathological liar who "if roughly, disgusts me."

Louisiana to seek abortion-law review
Baton Rouge, La. — Louisiana said Tuesday it will ask the Supreme Court to review the state's strict anti-abortion law, despite the court's rejection of a similar law in Guam.

Attorney General Richard Leveaux admitted the prospects for high court approval were slim but said he had a legal obligation to defend Louisiana's laws.

The Supreme Court earlier Monday, justices voted against reviewing Mississippi's law.

USDA suspends Russia from program
WASHINGTON — Russia was suspended for the second time in two weeks from an Agriculture Department export credit program Tuesday, because it is again behind in repaying U.S.-backed loans.

USDA officials said Agriculture Secretary Edward Madigan said he was confident that Russia would make late payments and be reinstated.

USDA spokesman Kayser Reinigen said the department was notified late Monday that two banks that Russia was in default on loans to the former-Soviet-Union debt-USA then ordered suspension.

Refrigerator-incentive receives OK
WASHINGTON — The Justice Department said Tuesday it will not challenge a plan by a group of utility companies to offer $30 million to any company that develops a more efficient refrigerator with energy-efficient refrigerators.

The incentive program poses no significant threat to business competition, said acting Assistant Attorney General John W. Clark.

Yeltsin survives impeachment bid; reforms meet stiff opposition

MOSCOW (AP) — President Boris Yeltsin survived an impeachment attempt by hard-liners at the rosy opening of Congress on Tuesday, and then proposed a compromise to trim presidential powers but continue market-reforms.

His proposal drew strong opposition, including from some supporters. Early votes indicated that neither Yeltsin's supporters nor opponents had the strength to pass either of his ideas, leaving them groping for middle ground that would avoid a stalemate.

Yeltsin urged lawmakers to resist the champions of "hard-line Bolshevism" who threaten to "divide the society, to set the executive and legislative branches against each other in a final clash, to weaken the state and breed chaos."

His proposal was aimed at generating momentum for his economic reforms by preventing the Congress of People's Deputies, dominated by hard-liners elected before the collapse of the Soviet Union, from hobbling the more radical Cabinet.

Hard-liners want to slow the economic changes and drop acting Prime Minister Yegor Gaidar, the architect of the reforms. Gaidar was scheduled to speak Wednesday.

In an hour-long speech in the Grand Kremlin Palace, Yeltsin accused lawmakers of putting "their own ambitions, careers, demagoguery" and cheap political effects above the truth, the interests of the people and the state.

Outside the Kremlin, several hundred demonstrators carrying red Communist hammer-and-sickle banners pushed through a police line and endured zero temperatures to chant anti-Yeltsin slogans as lawmakers crossed Red Square.

Hundreds of pre-reform-era miners also shouted at deputies as they entered Spassky Gate.

Yeltsin's compromise proposal drew sharp criticism from the 1,041-member body. Even reform lawmakers said prospects were slim for the plan, which would preserve many of the sweeping powers Yeltsin has held since the failed hard-line coup in August 1991.

The Congress opened in tumult Tuesday as an obscure Siberian lawmaker, Ivan Fedoseyev, challenged Yeltsin's signing of a pact with Belarus and Ukraine on Dec. 8, 1991, ending the Soviet Union and founding the Commonwealth of Independent States.

Fedoseyev wanted Russia's Constitutional Court to rule whether Yeltsin's actions "give reason for his impeachment."

Even reform lawmakers said prospects were slim for the plan, which would preserve many of the sweeping powers Yeltsin has held since the failed hard-line coup in August 1991.

The Congress, meeting for the second time since it was elected in 1991, is dominated by former Communists, who make up 80 percent, or 915, of the members, but it also included his foes from a solid core of opposition.

His proposal hit a snag quickly. Deputies laughed when Yeltsin said he would seek an extension of his powers.

U.S. plane hit; relief flights held

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — The humanitarian airlift to Bosnia was suspended Tuesday after a mysterious fire struck part of the loading system of a U.S. Air Force transport plane on its landing approach to Sarajevo.

Bosnia's president meanwhile urged "decisive stands" by Islamic states to aid his country, while Muslims and Croats voted for independence in February and then disintegrated into civil war against the republic's Serbs.

One C-130 Hercules that was shot in the tender while approaching the Bosnian capital was able to land safely, unloaded its relief supplies and return to Zagreb, Croatia, said Peter Kessler, a spokesman for the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees.

Kessler said the airlift to the Bosnian capital, encircled by Serb forces, was likely to remain suspended at least through Wednesday while U.N. liaison officers investigate the source of the shooting.

Twenty flights carrying food, medicine and other relief supplies were scheduled to land Tuesday in Sarajevo, but only 10 arrived before the airlift was suspended.

Earlier, Bosnia's army command had bombed the Serbs' shelling the airport runway overnight "with the intention of destroying the radar system" and thus stopping the humanitarian flights.

Serb forces, backed by Serb-dominated Yugoslavia, captured more than 70 percent of Bosnia-Herzegovina.

Arrests solve firebomb case, Germans say

BERLIN (AP) — German officials said Tuesday they had captured two men responsible for the country's worst case of neo-Nazi violence, a firebombing that killed a Turkish grandmother and two girls.

Two right-wing extremists have been charged with murder, attempted murder and arson for confessing to the Nov. 23 attack in the northern town of Moelln, said Alexander von Stahl, the country's chief federal prosecutor.

Moving to counter a three-month spate of violence by right-wing groups, officials have banned a neo-Nazi political party and expanded federal anti-terrorist operations in the past week.

Justice Minister Sabine Leutheusser-Schaubinberger said in Bonn on Tuesday that a new target would be dozens of neo-Nazi and skinhead hate-music bands.

"Whoever distributes right-wing extremist and neo-Nazi texts and makes them available to the rightist fringe, organizers and Jews can't count on leniency," the justice minister said.

The bands, with such names as Disturbing Force, are regularly featured on television documentaries about the rightist troubles. Critics say their racist rants set to punk and heavy metal music may have inspired some attacks.

Rightists have made nearly 1,800 attacks that have killed 16 people in Germany this year.

Belfast bombs leave 27 people injured

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Two bombs that exploded within hours of each other in a busy downtown shopping center left 27 people injured, police said Tuesday.

The Irish Republican Army in a telephone call to a Belfast organization said it planted the device that exploded in a stairwell of an office building in the Ann Street pedestrian mall, causing injuries and damaging shops.

A second bomb went off six hours later in the aftermath of an electrical components shop on nearby Omeau Avenue that caused no injuries. There was no immediate claim of responsibility. Police said two youths left a package on the counter of the Edgar Lowe store and fled.

Lesson from working poor: Make education a priority

With a touch of compassion, it can be moved by Sunday's story of Sonny and Emily.

But you also can't escape the story's stated moral: The surest way to avoid poverty is education.

Sonny works 60 hours a week. He and Emily supplement their income with food stamps, Medicaid, federal surplus food and the Project Share utility subsidy bill.

But you and Emily (they asked that their children be withheld) are part of the 10 million American class known as "the working poor."

Despite trying every trick in the book, their more affluent neighbors in Twin Falls often much harder, these folk cannot escape their state of the American Dream.

But the picture explanation for this trend is far too complex to be analyzed here. But the little picture explanation is that to command a decent salary in the modern economy, one must be well educated.

Sonny and Emily are unhappy. He left school in the 11th grade. In the ninth, they compounded their misery by conceiving four children in rapid succession.

Without high school diplomas, and with small children to care for, what chance can they have for economic mobility?

More Twin Falls residents certainly should be a priority for people like Sonny and Emily. And we should do what we can to help.

More important, though, is to make sure educational opportunities remain available to everyone. Those include:

• Good public schools that prepare students for the workplaces of the 21st century.

• Vocational and academic programs at the College of Southern Idaho.

• Nationally competitive degree programs at Idaho's four-year universities.

• Specialized programs such as the Magic Valley Alternative School, for students who otherwise would drop out.

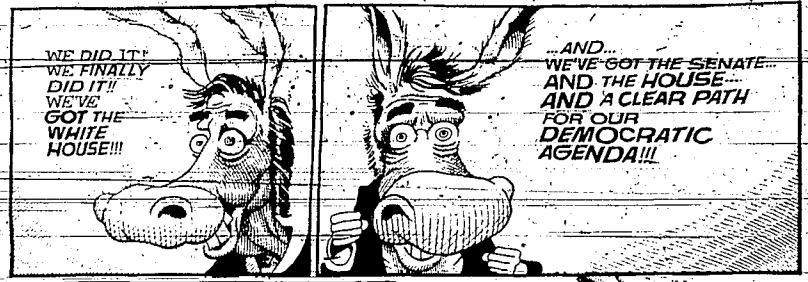

• And, high school equivalency programs for dropouts who want to correct their mistakes.

The best way to help parents understand the connection between education and financial security. Parents, if your kids are thinking about leaving school, we invite you to show them Sunday's newspaper.

Keeping youngsters in school is good for the kids and for society too. Publicly supported aid to Sonny and Emily costs taxpayers thousands of dollars a year. Getting them on their feet would benefit everyone.

That they happen yet. To their credit, both Sonny and Emily are working toward high school equivalency certificates. Once finished, Emily hopes to study nursing at the College of Southern Idaho.

The climb will be hard, but in a few years Emily and Sonny may be much better off than they are now. If that happens, education will be the reason. We wish them the very best of luck.

'Malcolm X' important to see

In times when the world cries out for peace and people are starving for understanding, we as a community are faced with a problem. How can these things ever take place in a world where people fear one another? No, we are not trying to address our congressmen, teachers, parents or religious leaders, but instead, our theater owner, Mr. Roper.

Mr. Roper, the greatest cause of fear and prejudice is ignorance. When one is raised without exposure to other cultures, the only basis for forming an opinion about those cultures is information from the media. We are all aware that for a story to be newsworthy, it is usually negative. Opinions formed on news events that make the news will usually be negative. Although Twin Falls is not as diverse as many parts of our country, there are many here who wish to be informed about and familiarized with other cultures. To deny our community the opportunity of learning about other cultures is wrong.

There have been many critically acclaimed, widely distributed films that we have not had the opportunity to see. Movies such as "Sarafina," "The Power of One" and, most recently, "Malcolm X" have not been made available. These are movies that tell of the experiences of African-American people and their strength in overcoming oppression.

We would like the choice to increase our understanding of this important part of our culture. Please consider this when choosing your movie agenda. HILARY BROWN Twin Falls And seven other signers expected it to open in mid-January. A short time later, Roper called back to say that, as a result of our conversation, he has arranged for the film to open here on Friday.

Reporter appreciates hat

Human kindness never ceases to amaze me.

In my rush to report on the fire that demolished several buildings in Shoshone Thanksgiving evening, I neglected to dress warmly enough.

I jumped out of my car with my camera and while fumbling with the controls in near sub-zero weather, a woman approached me and said, "What are you doing out here without a hat? Here's mine, put it on, I don't even need it back."

To that woman in Shoshone, whoever you are, I thank you. This reporter is grateful. CHAR ALEXANDER KKVJ-News Twin Falls

Highway death raises questions

My wife died at the death of Jay Barron on April 26. She had been in the hospital for several days and was in a coma. She died at 5:30 a.m. on April 26. Sheriff Steve Southwick went to the Barron home and told my daughter and son-in-law, Glenn and Jay Barron Sr. Their son had been in a truck and possibly two trucks while walking with the truck. He advised us, the family, not to see the truck. We, of course, thought we had no choice.

Monday, April 27, on the news, we heard there was to be an autopsy. Tuesday, April 28, the body was in Twin Falls when we went to make the arrangements for the funeral. Jay Sr. asked, for his own peace of mind, how the body was. The coroner said the body was fine with the exception of two locations that had to be sutured - one under his left arm and one on his right thigh. The coroner said the suture was not scratched, and the coroner thought Jay's left arm was broken, which, by the autopsy, proved it was a dislocated elbow. Jay had no broken bones and no visible bruises.

There were several questions that came out of the coroner's inquest from the Idaho State Patrol report. What happened to the three transcripts from the witnesses they interviewed? Why weren't any of the vehicles checked the morning of the accident? Why didn't the state police know that they impounded an out-of-state truck in Idaho and arrested the driver that Tina Barron had already fined herself in as the driver on driver at 3:30 p.m. April 26?

On April 28, Sgt. Mike Nauman had an inquest. The Times-News had a "ISI still on the loose" article that killed Shoshone. The FBI were still searching for a tractor trailer rig and alcohol was involved.

Then Sgt. Mike Nauman chose to not come to the coroner's inquest even though he was subpoenaed. Why?

Don't be the poor losers

Re: Times-News, Nov. 19, "Council calls 'Punch Police chief'."

I have read all 14 of our councilmen in high school. It is beyond belief they would cast a vote on a man of so fine a character and proven public servant as Paul Frick. Is this an aberration or are all of us who have supported you in the past been that bad a judge of men?

That four otherwise intelligent men would not only alienate the hundreds of thousands of county citizens - independents,

Democrats and Republicans who supported Paul Frick and Gura Newman - doesn't make sense. The time for condemnation and to support the winners for the benefit of all is here.

Is this a ploy of sore losers? Could this ill-advised action be that you were "set up" parties for the "good of boy" cabal that deluded themselves their man was a show-in and were flabbergasted at his defeat by, of all things, a woman?

Can I tell for sure from where I sit on the corral fence and am not going to wade through the you-know-what for a closer look at what you are up to, but it does look a bit like blatant chauvinism.

I legally? Can I tell from here whether it was ignorance or gross arrogance that four of the mill men would presume to act as judge, jury and prosecutor on so sensitive a legal matter as civil rights and First Amendment protection.

The Supreme Court has ruled that unless it can be proved beyond a reasonable doubt and after due process of law that an employee was actively campaigning on the job, you have violated his or her civil rights. That any man putting elected official is personally liable; tax money cannot be used in defense. Good luck chaps; have a nice day.

'Singing Bridge' is missed

The "Singing Bridge" across Rock Creek Canyon to south Twin Falls is no more. Those of us who delighted in its song, played by rubber tires against its steel mesh deck, will miss her more than we can say.

Other bridges of like construction have survived with loads as heavy as railroad trains for more than a hundred years. What happened to this one? Was it really unsafe? Or had it been poorly maintained and neglected?

Was it destroyed to make way for development in south Twin Falls and the traffic that would generate? Did the State Highway Department just have extra money and time and need some place to spend it and something to do? Could not other bridges have been built beside it?

Couldn't it have been dismantled rather than to suffer so ignominious a fate? These questions may never be answered to everyone's satisfaction. Needless to say, she resisted the efforts of many men to blow her up and pull her down.

But she is gone; a victim of our Western notion that anything old has to go even though we are the youngest part of our

Keep South Hills free of mines

This is in regard to the proposed mining in the South Hills by Atlas Precious Metals.

Please do not let this senseless destruction of a beautiful forest be carried out.

The Third and Fourth Fork areas and Washstrom Hollow are excellent trails and camping areas for people to get into and still get a taste of nature.

Doesn't anyone realize how little of nature is left? We still have new generations of people who have never been able to experience being in an open environment. And more who will be born who may never have the chance. Because a few greedy people would rather fill their pockets than preserve the wilderness for everyone.

Please don't say that it's only 12 little holes, because that is just the beginning. There is also the destruction caused when they build their access roads. And if they find even a small amount of precious metals, then there is strip mining or pit mining, which will forever ruin the South Hills for the benefit and greed of a very few.

There is an 1872 mining law which I understand could allow Atlas to go ahead with this. Come on, that law is more than 100 years old. People then didn't realize how devastated this planet would be now.

What wilderness have we left has to be protected. Can anyone imagine how the earth will be when it's all torn up? Don't say this is only a small area, because it's one small area here today, or more somewhere else tomorrow and on and on.

In 1970, Theodore Roosevelt said, "The nation behaves well if it treats the natural resources as assets which must be turned over to the next generation, increased and not impaired in value."

Equal rights not for children

This is in response to the article in the Oct. 26 edition of The Times-News on Mrs. Clinton's stand on children's rights.

We found this opinion very disturbing because we have been studying the Fifth Amendment, which clearly states, "Honor thy father and thy mother." We find this in direct opposition to the stand of Mrs. Clinton.

We believe that children are uniquely and wondrously made, but do not yet have the knowledge and experience to govern themselves as suggested by Mrs. Clinton. That is why children are given parents to train them and teach them to be kind, obedient and to respect citizens. Giving children equal rights would undermine this process.

Twin Falls needs a new judge

To Dee-Mason Bennett who is sitting in jail thanks to our honorable Judge Brumbaugh, I know exactly how you feel. I have been before this judge three times on divorce matters and each time, I had all the proof I needed but when I got my day in court, I could have been talking to a brick wall.

It was plain to see the judge already had this case closed. The only way to change "Bromwich" is to elect a new judge.

It is my near-of-vote him off the bench the next time his term is up. I know what I'm going to do. Wake up, Twin Falls, and get the jerk off the bench.

Christmas belongs in schools

A question for the atheists who say we shouldn't sing Christmas carols in schools: Why in the world are you celebrating Christmas and enjoying all the fun and goodies connected with Santa Claus if you are going to ignore the reason we celebrate Christmas in the first place?

In spite of your thoughtless ideas, I am going to appreciate the lovely Christmas carols and the story of Christ's birth through this beautiful season and remember him always. Here's hoping all of you who are clear-thinking, honest and appreciative will enjoy doing the same.

Support Valley schools

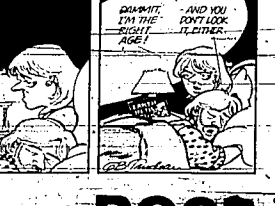

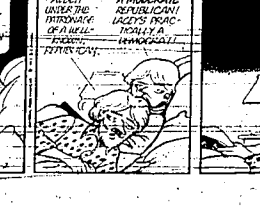

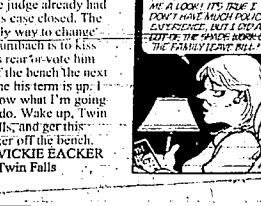

On Friday, Dec. 4, we in the Valley School District have the opportunity to make a difference for our students by voting yes for the proposed bond.

This proposal is about kids; it's about providing a good educational environment and investing in the future. Yes, we are being asked to make a sacrifice to make this school happen, but I truly feel the plan is the best value for the district and the best for the students. This is worth doing.

Please vote "yes" on Friday. The polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Invest in the future.

Donate for auditorium

It is gratifying to live and work in a community with high standards in providing facilities for public education. The most recent evidence has been the response to requests for assistance in providing additional seating for the voter-approved auditorium to be built on the grounds of Twin Falls High School.

To date, donations and pledges have surpassed $300,000 toward our goal of $500,000 to have this long-awaited facility built large enough to satisfy the needs of the high school student body, our school district and community for the foreseeable future. If our goal is met to finance this expansion of seating, our opportunities and options will be much greater and more flexible.

I have often expressed my feelings about participation in the arts as a "lifetime sport." This expansion will be mutually beneficial for our schools and community; they reflect the values of each other.

We urge you to take this opportunity to join with other businesses, foundations and individuals who have made their contributions.

Donations made before the end of 1992 and those in January 1993 would qualify for tax deductions for both years. Additionally, pledges may be paid over a two-year period.

The School Board has set the deadline of Jan. 15 for pledges to meet our goal, as the board will be meeting at that time with the architectural firm to make final determination of the seating capacity of the auditorium.

Though time is short, there has been generous support in the relatively short period of time this committee has been formed, and we solicit support at this critical juncture. Large and small donations are welcome. Names of donors for amounts of $100 and more will be engraved and hung in a permanent place in the auditorium building.

Your donations and pledges may be sent to the Twin Falls School Foundation, P.O. Box 1182, Twin Falls, ID 83303-1182. Please don't hesitate to call me if there are questions I might answer.

opportunity to give our community a present that will pay off well into the future.

The drive to add 500 seats to the planned Twin Falls High School auditorium has gotten off to a great start, with more than half of the $500,000 goal met. Our committee is now looking to everyone - families, individuals, businesses and service organizations - to help get us over the top by donating whatever they can. At this point, every little bit will help.

A 1,500-seat auditorium will benefit Twin Falls and the entire Magic Valley in countless ways. Every student and staff member at the high school will be able to gather together for speakers, motivational assemblies, school plays and concerts and other events.

Twin Falls will finally be able to attract events to town that we've previously had to forgo due to lack of a suitably sized auditorium. These big events - such as state high school music and speech conventions - will mean an economic boost to our hotels, restaurants and other businesses.

What's more, auditorium contributions are eligible for state- and federal tax credits that could substantially cut your tax bill next April 15. You can even spread your contribution over two to three tax years for additional tax savings.

This is a rare opportunity to help build something that will benefit our children and our town for years to come. Donations can be made in care of the Twin Falls School Foundation, P.O. Box 1182, Twin Falls, ID 83303.

Chatterton a fine officer

Concerning the article on Nov. 24 about Dan Chatterton:

"I have had the opportunity to deal with Dan on several police matters, and I must say I was shocked to read about the way our own police force is treating Dan.

Dan was very polite and courteous on every occasion I had to deal with him. I would be very honored to be a character witness for him if he ever needs one. Dan, I believe in what you're doing. Keep on the good work.

had a lot of pack rats but not the ranch. Well, one took up residence in my barn. So I goes to town to the feed store and ask if I could get some poison to get rid of that darn old rat. This here guy said you can't do that. And I asked him who he was and he said 'Who?'

He said he was an environmentalist and I would have to catch that darn old rat and turn him loose somewhere else. So I took Old Nipper, my dog, and go to the barn. We no more than get in the barn and I close the door and Nipper spots that darn old rat. Well, I say 'c'm and Nipper starts running that darn old rat.

All of a sudden that darn old rat started for me. Well, I turn to get out of the way and put one foot in this here bucket and fall end-over-end. While I am laying on the barn floor, that darn old rat ran up my pants leg. Well, what a sight this was, me kicking one leg trying to get that bucket off and kicking the other leg trying to get that darn old rat out of my pants leg.

All the time, Old Nipper was nipping at my leg instead of that darn old rat. All of a sudden, the bucket flew off my foot and landed right on Old Bossy's head, knocking on her horns. Also, about the same time, that darn old rat went flying out of my pants leg and landed on Old Bossy's back. Old Bossy still came up, she let out a loud grunt and started to run around the barn with Old Nipper in hot pursuit. I jumps up, puts my old hat on my bald head, picks up a pitch fork and starts after Old Bossy, that darn old rat and Nipper.

Well, Old Bossy must have had enough of this as she headed for the door. Too bad the hole was shut. That old door went flying out into the barn yard, hinges and all. Old Bossy gets outside and that darn old rat jumps off her back and heads for my pick 'em up truck.

Well, I has taken me two days to catch Old Bossy and get the bucket off her head and another day to fix the barn door. And I think Old Nipper thinks that darn old rat is still in my pants leg as every time he passes me, he bites my leg.

And that darn old rat lays on the dashboard of my pick 'em up truck taking in the sun. If I could find where this environmentalist lives, I sure will give that darn old rat a new

Aid workers say military muscle needed in Somalia

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — Relief officials on Tuesday urged the United Nations to quickly authorize more military muscle to guarantee that aid reaches hundreds of thousands of starving Somalis.

But as the U.N. Security Council debated whether to take up a U.N. offer of a force of 30,000 to deliver the food, some of the officials worried that an influx of foreign troops could spark retaliation against foreigners.

Somali gunmen will loot that their livelihood — looting relief goods and protecting relief workers is threatened.

"This is a very complex situation with very tough, proud people divided into competitive clans," said Brigitte Doppler of Doctors Without Borders. "None of the relief agencies know how their programs will work under military mobilization."

But without security, said Per Hammstedt of U.N. Operation Somalia, the relief operation is pointless.

"Why should we stay here when the food is looted and we can't even bring it out of the harbor?" he said.

By U.N. estimates, at least 300,000 people have died from the combined effects of drought and warfare this year and another 2 million are threatened.

As much as half the 200,000 metric tons of food delivered to the Horn of Africa nation have been stolen by bandits. At least 12,000 metric tons — enough for about 36 million meals — are stored at port warehouses but cannot be delivered because of banditry in the area.

Rival clans responsible for much of the looting have crippled a U.N. plan to dispatch 4,200 peacekeepers to get aid to Somalia's hungry. Only about 500 U.N. troops have been deployed, and they have only taken control of Mogadishu's airport.

On Monday, U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali recommended using military force to guarantee food deliveries.

South Korea (AP) — South Korea has sought to complete a building under construction on a mountainside nuclear complex, intelligence sources said Tuesday.

One source said the concealed site is a weapons-grade plutonium plant.

The Western and South Korean sources told The Associated Press that new U.S. satellite photographs show recent construction outside the Yongbyon nuclear plant.

South Korean and Western officials believe the hard-line Communist regime is trying to conceal an atomic bomb program at Yongbyon. Despite denials by North Korean leaders and a partial opening this year to international inspectors, satellite photos show a side road to the new site off a main road into Yongbyon has been blocked. Trees have been planted at the turnoff to hide it, the sources said.

One South Korean source said a one-story structure at the site is suspected of housing a reactor to produce weapons-grade plutonium.

The new construction had been detected by the time the International Atomic Energy Agency made an inspection of the Yongbyon plant in November, but the agency's inspectors were not yet aware of it and were not shown the site, the sources said.

In Vienna, Atomic Energy Agency spokesman David Kyd said the agency had heard "nothing at all" about new construction at Yongbyon.

The remote Yongbyon complex, with more than 100 buildings, lies 60 miles north of the North Korean capital, Pyongyang. The intelligence sources said the significance of the new construction lies in its proximity to suspicious nuclear facilities.

Perez scoffs at prospects of 3rd coup

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — President Carlos Andres Perez vowed Tuesday to stay in office and stay the course of his economic austerity program despite widespread discontent that contributed to two coup attempts.

"There will be no new coup in Venezuela," he told a news conference four days after loyalist forces crushed an uprising. Perez repeated that he would not permit re-constitutional elections scheduled for December 1993 to be moved up.

"I have said no," he said. "The future of institutional government in Venezuela depends on fulfillment of the terms of the constitutional mandate."

Allegations of corruption and the government's failure to use Venezuela's immense oil wealth to improve the lives of its people have led to widespread demands for Perez, 70, to step down.

At the news conference, Perez was asked about similarities between Venezuela and Chile in 1973, when the late President Salvador Allende's and economic "miracle" ignited calls that he step down. A subsequent coup led by Gen. Augusto Pinochet resulted in 3,000 deaths and 17 years of rightist dictatorship.

"We know the mistakes that were made back then. We know what happened," said Perez, who was a leading opponent of the Pinochet regime. "My presence in the government has been a guarantee of democratic stability."

Perez said the armed forces had given "absolute proof of loyalty" during the two coup attempts so far this year.

In fact, 500 officers, including a brigadier general and two vice admirals from the joint chiefs of staff, were among those arrested in last Friday's coup attempt, which left 232 people dead.

GOODING — Telephone Relay Service for the deaf and hearing impaired came to Idaho Tuesday.

From her Boise office Tuesday morning, Marsha Smith, the president of the Idaho Public Utilities Commission, telephoned Bill Andrews, a member of the Idaho Council for the Deaf and Hard-of-Hearing, to formally inaugurate the system.

The TRS system, which went into service statewide Tuesday, is designed to allow hearing-impaired people more direct use of telephones.

Application letters for P&Z post due at city offices Friday

TWIN FALLS — City residents who want to fill an opening on the city Planning and Zoning Commission are asked to send a letter to Lamar Orton at the city of Twin Falls offices.

The letter should state the applicant's interest in the position and background. Those who apply must be city residents and have resided in Twin Falls County for five years, Orton said.

The opening starts Jan. 1 and the term runs for three years.

Interviewing for the position starts Monday, Dec. 7, so letters should be in no later than Friday, Orton said.

Letters can be sent to Orton at P.O. Box 1907 in Twin Falls.

Idaho Power allots $42 million for Twin Falls powerhouse

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Power Co. expects to spend more than $42 million to build a new hydroelectric powerhouse at Twin Falls.

Construction is expected to begin next year on the 42-megawatt facility, which will operate in tandem with the existing 57-megawatt megawatt plant.

The utility will ask the Idaho Public Utilities Commission to include a maximum $50.8 million cost of construction in the company's rate base, upon which it is allowed to earn a profit. The difference between the ceiling and the cost estimate is meant to allow for unexpected costs and inflation.

Idaho Power also plans to double or more what it spends on energy conservation and alternative energy programs next year.

The $10 million budgeted represents several new projects, including high-efficiency shower-heads, irrigation conservation, commercial lighting and solar photovoltaics.

Solid waste fee topic at Good Morning breakfast table

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce's Good Morning Twin Falls breakfast this Friday will be devoted to the controversial issue of Twin Falls County's new solid waste fee.

Colleen Galt, the $50 per household fee was suspended by the Twin Falls County Commission last week, although the commissioners said they would not refund the money already collected.

The fee is intended to help build a new landfill needed to comply with federal standards.

The commissioners will be on-hand to discuss the fee and possible solutions to the county's solid-waste problem.

The breakfast is scheduled at 7 a.m. in the Oak Room in the Canyon Spring Inn. Ticket information can be obtained by phoning 733-3974.

Ketchum poised to rehire Nevland

By Stephen Schiowengardt
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — The one-session-old Ketchum Council will consider rehiring former police chief Cal Nevland during tonight's meeting at Ketchum City Hall.

The firing of Nevland last July led to the eventual recall of three City Council members during a recall election on Nov. 3.

Nevland filed a wrongful-dismissal lawsuit against the city seeking $300,000 prior to the recall vote.

The day after the vote, Mayor Dan Hamilton said he would recommend that Nevland be reinstated.

'I've felt all along that (Nevland) was unjustly terminated. ... I'll stand behind whatever decision this council makes. It is a very capable council.'

Mayor Dan Hamilton

Nevland

"That's what this recall was all about," Hamilton said. "I've felt all along that he was unjustly terminated."

Nevland has said he would be happy to drop his tort claim "if things work out."

If the council should decide not to rehire Nevland, Hamilton will make a recommendation from a list of 74 applicants for the job.

"This item is on the agenda because I've received calls from the council members saying they want to deal with this issue and get it over with," Hamilton said Tuesday.

"I'll stand behind whatever decision this council makes. It is a very capable council."

The council is also expected to deal with the so-called "At-Will" ordinance, also known as ordinance No. 576.

It was passed by the previous council and vetoed by Hamilton, who was overridden.

It classifies city officers who are appointed to their department-head positions as at-will employees who can be terminated for no reason.

Witnesses: Infant's life filled with love, abuse

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Dorell "Bud" Stradley loved 2-year-old Amanda Hostetler like she was his own daughter, according to several witnesses who testified for the defense in Stradley's murder trial Tuesday.

"You could see that Dorell cared about Amanda and Amanda cared about Buddy," said the child's godmother, Kathy Riggs of Murtaugh.

Stradley, 29, is accused of killing Amanda in January by tossing her onto a wooden bed frame from 10 feet away.

Over the past two days, defense attorneys have called 13 witnesses who know Stradley, including children he has cared for, in an attempt to show him as someone who loves children.

"My opinion is that he would do anything to make them laugh, including stand on his head," said Diana Romans, whose 4-year-old daughter has spent much time with Stradley.

Stradley moved in with Amanda's mother, Jodie Hostetler, in September 1991, and assumed much of Amanda's care, said Angie McCullough of Twin Falls.

He fed Amanda, changed her diapers, played games with her and treated her "like she was his own daughter," said McCullough, the sister of Stradley's former wife.

Through his own questioning, Chief Deputy Prosecutor Dan Mink pointed out that none of the witnesses was present on Jan. 20 to see how Stradley treated Amanda before she died.

Stradley is charged under an Idaho law that does not require prosecutors to prove that he intended to kill Amanda. Any aggravated battery that results in the death of a child younger than 12 is first-degree murder.

The image of Stradley as a loving father-figure contrasted sharply with many witnesses' description of abusive behavior by Amanda's mother.

On Monday, Greg Graff of Richmond, Utah, said Jodie Hostetler would slap Amanda in the face and knock her down, then literally throw her into her bedroom and shut the door.

Graff lived with Hostetler off and on.

Faulty wiring caused Shoshone fire

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE — Faulty electrical wiring caused the Thanksgiving Day fire that destroyed three buildings in Shoshone, the city's fire chief said Tuesday.

Henson's Market, on the corner of Rail and South Apple streets, went up in flames Thursday evening and the fire spread to the adjacent watermaster's office and a coin-operated laundry.

The wiring in the 107-year-old brick and stone building had been changed several times, and it appeared some of the wiring was welded directly to a conduit, Fire Chief Boyd Alexander said.

Floor lights attached to that wiring were left on during the night and the fire apparently began about 30 minutes after the store's owners left at 6:30 p.m. that night, Alexander said.

An investigator from the state fire marshal's office was in Shoshone over the weekend looking into the fire's cause. He will prepare a full report that will be available in a few days, Alexander said.

Valley K-12 plan to face voters Friday

By Mychel Matthews Goodman
Times-News correspondent

HAZELTON — Twenty months of investigation and brainstorming by the Valley Education Improvement Committee will end this Friday when voters in the Valley School District decide if kindergarten through twelfth-grade students should be taught under one roof.

School officials are hoping voters will give the district the go ahead to replace several outmoded school buildings with a new, more modern facility.

If passed, the Valley K-12 plan would unite all 630 students at the current site of Valley High School at a cost of $43 million — just about the maximum the district can levy or five per cent of the district's total assessed property value.

If the bond issue passes, homeowners with a house assessed for property purposes at $40,000, will pay $95 more a year, figuring in a homeowner's exemption.

On agricultural property assessed at $100,000, the annual increase would be $116.

Two thirds approval is needed to pass the proposal.

Steering committee chairman Mark Okelberry acknowledged that the district will go from carrying no debt to maximum debt that may be paid for some to swallow. The committee has emphasized the low 6.15 percent interest rate on the bond.

The proposal calls for the existing high school building to be gutted, leaving only the bearing walls. Separate wings for elementary, middle school and high school would then be built, more than doubling the current size of the building.

The three wings would physically separate the younger and older students.

Idahoans appointed by Bush polish resumes, seek jobs

States News Service

WASHINGTON — Just months after ending one of the fiercest standoffs with a fugitive in federal law-enforcement history, Idaho's U.S. marshal, Michael Johnson, must now look for a new job.

Johnson's ouster from the $110,000-a-year position, has nothing to do with his job performance, most noted for the showdown that put white supremacist Randy Weaver behind bars in July. He's just one of about 3,000 Republican appointee nationwide who'll be replaced by President-elect Clinton early next year.

Only about two dozen Idahoans are political appointees in the Bush administration. Most federal workers — 2.4 million of them — are career employees whose job security doesn't depend on patronage.

Some Idahoans freshening up their resumes, Johnson, a former Ada County commissioner, faces his departure from his Boise outpost matter-of-factly.

"I knew what the rules were when I took this job," he said. "It's been set up that way since George Washington. I didn't expect them to change it for me."

Johnson has spent 20 years in politics and law enforcement, having served 88 Ada County coroner and a deputy sheriff before he was elected to the Ada County Commission as a Republican in 1982. It has taught him the immutable fact about transitions of power.

"The spoils go to the winner," he said.

Johnson was appointed U.S. marshal by President Bush in 1989. He'll likely have about six more months before the new administration gets around to replacing him, probably through the recommendation of U.S. Rep. Larry Laffoon, who has become Idaho's highest-ranking — and only — elected Democrat in Washington, D.C.

Getting tapped to be Idaho's 26th U.S. marshal out of a long list of worthy candidates is a matter of fate and fortune, Johnson explained.

"The main stars and sun all have to line up to get this job," he said.

They may line up for Johnson's deputy marshal, Ron Evans, who heads a list of potential candidates for the job, according to the Associated Press.

Others on the "AP" list include outgoing

Canyon County Sheriff Gary Putman of Caldwell, outgoing Latah County Sheriff Ken Buxton of Moscow, outgoing Madison County Sheriff Lionel Koön of Rexburg, former state prison warden Darrol Gardner of Idaho Falls, Pocatello Police Chief Jim Benham and Bannock County Sheriff Bill Lynn of Pocatello. All are except Evans, Putman and Benham are Democrats.

Another Idaho federal appointee has few signs more certain than stargazing to divine whether his job as U.S. nuclear waste negotiator is secure.

David Leroy, a Republican former attorney general and lieutenant governor, has not heard whether the Democrats in the White House will want a new person in his job — or whether they'll renew funding for the post.

"Our activities have been pretty much nonpartisan," said Varr Nelson, Leroy's spokesman. "We just really don't know if it's still uncertain what direction it will take."

Leroy, who lost a close race for governor to Democrat Cecil Andrus in 1986, would clearly like to stay at this post, Nelson explained. He argued that the government would be well-served to keep his boss in place.

"We're at a very critical moment," Nelson said, citing pending long-term agreements on nuclear waste and storage. "It would be beneficial if the program could be continued."

Other Bush appointees who work in Idaho and will be job-hunting soon include Michael A. Farris, area director of the Farmers Home Administration, Trent L. Clark, state director, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, and U.S. Attorney Maurice O. Ellsworth.

If any Idahoan understands the fickle nature of political power, William Hansen does. The son of former seven-term Republican Congressman George Hansen, he has spent many years exploring Washington as a congressional brat and subsequently as a Republican bureaucrat.

"We first moved to Idaho when I was 5 years old," he recalled. "I've been back and forth between Idaho and Virginia since then."

Currently Hansen trades on his Capitol Hill connections as the legislative liaison for the Department of Education. He looks for

Condo construction underway at golf course

BLANCHARD (AP) — Construction has started on a $8-million condominium development at the Stoneridge Golf Course near here, a spokesman said.

Twenty-three condominium buildings will be built between 1993 and 1998 with timeshare units to be marketed in the spring, project spokesman Mike Van Horne said Monday.

The five-year expansion plan also includes development of more than 200 residential lots, Van Horne said.

Blanchard is in Bonner County, 35 miles northeast of Spokane, Wash.

"The recreation industry is getting bigger and stronger every year," Van Horne said.

"And our location is particularly attractive because costs are really getting high around Coeur d'Alene and Post Falls."

Proposed ISU-Mormon land trade generates questions

POCATELLO (AP) — A potential land trade between Idaho State University and the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints is generating some criticism in Bannock County.

The trade, in the works for six months, involves the swap of the Mormon Church's campus institute for land across from the college's library, a small parking area and the old Whitler School.

Hearings could be held before year's end, and it has generated some grumbling both on and off campus because it would leave the Mormon operations more centrally located.

Ken Tinney, university relations director, said the church initiated the proposal and that the administration would listen closely to public opinion in the matter.

"Debate has by no means reached the intensity of the controversy over whether a monument bearing the Ten Commandments should remain on the Court House lawn."

But it has focused on the issue of separation of church and state. And Mrs. Frank Hughes, who has watched the city of Pocatello evolve since 1912, says the land trade "ought to really set off" those who oppose the Ten Commandments monument.

"I don't think the church should be on the campus," she said. "It gives an unfair advantage to that outfit."

A survey of university employees found overwhelming opposition to the trade but on the grounds that the school was giving away more than it was getting in exchange for the Mormon institute for the Whitler School drew overwhelming support.

Idaho State junior Richard Hansen said he was not too concerned with the institute being on campus.

during June and July 1991.

Before moving into a small house on Fourth Avenue East, Stradley and Hosteler lived with Kim Parker and her husband.

Parker said from the witness stand Tuesday that she saw Julie Hosteler lift her daughter off the floor by her hair and throw her into a bedroom.

"Amanda would go to bed before she went to Julie if she was hiding, because she never got anything from Julie," Parker said.

Julie Hosteler's former stepmother also painted contrasting pictures of Stradley and Hosteler when a doctor told them at the hospital that Amanda was dead.

Julie rubbed her head, then sat down and started calling relatives, Fern Berry said. She only began crying when her father arrived, Berry said.

Stradley cried the entire time, she said.

A couple of days later, at Stradley's parents' house, the pair was planning Amanda's funeral service.

"She acted more like she was planning a party rather than a funeral for her daughter," Berry said of Hosteler.

Mink asked Berry if he knew Hosteler well enough to know how she reacted to stressful events. Berry replied that she did not.

"I don't think anybody understands Julie," she said.

Hosteler is now free on bond while she appeals a three- to nine-year prison sentence for felony child abuse. She pleaded guilty earlier this year to the charge in exchange for a second count being dropped and immunity from further prosecution.

More defense witnesses will testify Wednesday with Stradley expected to take the witness stand on Thursday.

Each wing would have separate restrooms, restrooms and lunch periods would be staggered.

A common area would unite the schools, lunchroom and kitchen, and a gymnasium, computer center and double-sized gym would be accessible to all students.

Having considered all the options, the committee, school board and administration have concluded that a K-12 school would most efficiently and economically solve the problem facing the school district.

Eden and Hazelton elementary school buildings are both more than 70 years old and do not meet present safety codes. Outdated heating systems, overcrowded classrooms, poor ventilation, and inadequate kitchen and lunchroom facilities also fail to meet state guidelines, officials said.

Further handicap accessibility of the buildings does not meet requirements ordered by the Americans with Disabilities Act. Compliance must be made by 1995.

Okelberry said many remedial options were reviewed, including consultation with other high schools.

The concept was dropped when it received a poor response from the other districts.

Okelberry acknowledged the consultation "won't be quick in every place or every situation."

department's progress in making college loans more widely available and in finding innovative solutions to school management.

He accused parties involved directly into the hands of parents and teachers, rather than relying on the disburbing power of middle managers.

Hansen is worried that President-elect Clinton's policies will not have the moderation he says the Bush administration strove for, but wished the new administration much success.

"I've been through this quite a bit, growing up in politics," he said. "You get used to winning and losing."

But now he considers the most important mission to ensure a smooth transition of power.

"It's a testament to our democracy that we can have a friendly takeover put through gracefully," said Hansen, who was given a direct role in introducing the new team to the bureaucracy.

"Everybody's got to change jobs from time to time in life," he said. "I think that's healthy."

He is now putting out a wide net, in searching for a job. While Hansen will likely continue to make a living on Capitol Hill, he cannot lobby the Department of Education for a year, under federal ethics restrictions.

Hansen confessed that it would be nice to know for certain where he will be working next year.

"The anxiety level gets a little high," he said. "I've got five children."

But the upheaval has not soured him on government, he said.

"Politically we've got our chance to change things again in four years."

Judge denies lawyer's request to lower Fino's bail

By Eric Goodell Mini-Cassia News Service

BURLEY - Fifth District Judge George Granata denied a request Tuesday morning to lower the bail for murder defendant Jerry Fino from $150,000 to $80,000. Minidoka County Prosecuting Attorney Duane Haley said Fino's family would be able to meet a bail of $80,000, but that the amount of $150,000 was too high for them. Fino, until several months ago, was being held without bail until Stoker pleaded that Fino should have a chance to post bond. Stoker argued that bond should be set at about $10,000, while Haley requested it be set at $500,000. Granata said a $150,000 bond would be persuasive enough to dissuade Fino from leaving the area. The $15,000 amount that Fino's family would need in order to obtain a $150,000 bond is too costly for the family, Stoker said. "I guess (Fino) will have to stay (in jail) until we work something else out," he said in a later interview. Bail bondmen normally require 10 percent of the bail money in cash. During the conference call, Haley was granted permission to have the Idaho Attorney General's Office prosecute the case against Fino. The attorney general's office won't charge legal fees to Minidoka County, but the county must agree to pay the related expenses incurred by the lawyer, or lawyers provided by the office. Those expenses will include about six weeks of lodging and restaurant costs, and long distance telephone charges, Haley said. Haley, during the November election, lost his bid to secure a term as prosecutor, losing to Gara Newman, who is currently serving as public defender. Because Newman met with Fino once while she was public defender, she cannot prosecute the case because of a conflict of interest. Fino's trial is scheduled to last four weeks.

Rupert casts vote for merger

By Eric Goodell Mini-Cassia News Service

RUPERT - Members of the Rupert Chamber of Commerce have voted on merging with the Burley Chamber, but the results won't be announced till Dec. 19. Geri Rogers, a worker at the Rupert Chamber, said the ballots received from the vote are contained in a large box now at the chamber office. The last day to turn in completed ballots was Monday. The Chamber Board is expected to count the ballots at its Monday board meeting, and results will be announced publicly at the joint chamber meeting Dec. 10 at the Rupert Elks Club, Rogers said. The results of voting within the Burley Chamber will be announced at the same time. That chamber will vote Monday, said executive director Bill Schaefer. If the two chambers decide to merge, there are several issues which must be decided upon, Schaefer said. One of the most obvious, he said, is deciding upon a location for the chamber office, or whether two offices would remain in operation. Evenmally, Schaefer said it might be in the best interest to locate a chamber office close to an Interstate 84 exit so workers would have the chance to inform more travelers of the attractions within the Mini-Cassia area.

Fifth District Judge William Hart swears in Larry Duff as the next magistrate in Minidoka County as Duff's wife, Mary, and a grandson stand watch.

Duff takes oath; residents meet justice 'face-to-face'

Mini-Cassia News Service

RUPERT - Larry Duff was sworn in as the new magistrate in Minidoka County Tuesday following a brief presentation at the county courthouse in Rupert. Duff is replacing Donald "Bob" Workman, who recently resigned from the position. Fifth District Judge William Hart, who swore in Duff, reminded the large crowd attending the ceremony of the importance of the magistrate judge.

"This is where people come, face-to-face with justice," he said. The case burden for magistrates is increasing, Hart said. Since 1982, the number of filings has risen 26 percent to 6,074 cases filed in 1992, Hart said. Because of the large number of cases being filed, it gets more likely each year that a particular individual will be called into the courtroom, Hart said. Duff graduated from law school in 1962 and has practiced law in the Rupert area ever since.

Truck accident that dumped fuel costly

RUPERT - The diesel fuel spill that occurred Monday morning when a 10-wheel truck failed to negotiate a curve along a Minidoka County road caused thousands of dollars in damage, officials said. According to an accident report on file at the Minidoka County Sheriff's Department, Warren Wesley Fowler, 64, of Twin Falls was trying to make a left turn onto 100 North from Highway 30 at about 8 a.m. when he locked his brakes and started to slide on the snow-packed road. The truck fell into a canal after sliding into a headgate owned by the Minidoka Irrigation District. Several gallons of diesel fuel spilled from the tank. Gordon Stewart of the Eastern Ene. Department said the department was called in case the truck caught fire. Damage to the truck was listed at $1,500. Damage to the MID headgate and power equipment was estimated at $2,500.

8-year-old injured in 1-vehicle wreck

RUPERT - An 8-year-old passenger was taken to Minidoka Memorial Hospital in Rupert Saturday afternoon following a traffic accident, deputies say. According to the Minidoka County Sheriff's Department, Lisa Marie Hayward, 24, of Idaho struck a sign along the road after following a vehicle pulling a trailer that didn't have proper back lighting. Hayward tried to pass the vehicle, but veered and hit a sign after the vehicle began to turn left. Hayward's passenger, Derrick Gomez, who reportedly suffered minor injuries, was taken to the hospital by private vehicle, but his condition was unavailable from the hospital until 10 a.m. Damage to Hayward's vehicle was listed at $3,000. Hayward was cited for passing at an intersection, deputies say.

Rescuers save engineer trapped in mine cave-in OCOTILO WELLS, Calif. (AP) - The engineer of an underground mine train was rescued Tuesday after being trapped more than seven hours inside his locomotive by 200 tons of gypsum ore that caved in around it. Leroy Witherspoon was conscious when he was rescued from the U.S. Gypsum Co. mine, said Lt. James Burns of the Imperial County sheriff's department. He seemed in good spirits and was obviously glad to be out, company spokesman Matthew Goring said. "He's in shock, but from what we understand, his vital signs are very good and he received no life-threatening injuries." Witherspoon, 34, of El Centro, suffered fractures in his left arm and right leg, and was being checked for other injuries, said Susan Simpson, spokeswoman for Pioneer Memorial Hospital in Brawley. The mine train pulls hopper cars of gypsum, a soft material used to make plaster and wall board, out of the mine. The locomotive was about 30 feet from the entrance when the mine collapsed. "The locomotive ran into the doors of the loading chute and the ore came down on him," said sheriff's Lt. Ken Koon. In addition to the already mined ore falling from the chute, part of the mine also collapsed. Goring said the company was unsure what caused the accident and would investigate. The Occupational Safety and Health Administration and the U.S. Bureau of Mines also will investigate, Koon said. A brakeman on the locomotive was able to climb out shortly after the mine collapsed. He was treated at the hospital for cuts and shock and released, Simpson said. Rescuers dug to within 10 feet of Witherspoon, but then stopped to shore up the mine because they feared it would collapse again, Burns said. Burns said Witherspoon, a 14-year employee of the Chicago-based company, had plenty of oxygen and was not in danger of suffocating. The engineer talked with rescuers by radio while they tried to reach him, he said.

Housing study calls attention to affordability problem

BLACKFOOT (AP) - Idaho is still coping with the dire lack of affordable housing underscored in a study by the Idaho Housing Agency a year ago. But officials say the Comprehensive Housing Affordability Study has focused attention on the problem and ignited efforts to find solutions. Federal, state and local agencies are working together to find economical ways of easing the housing crunch, said Susan Astin of the Idaho Housing Agency. "And the emphasis has spawned some nontraditional partnerships, like agreements between banks and nonprofit groups, agency spokesman Dennis Lopez said. Some communities, like Idaho Falls, are looking at zoning changes that would reduce the width of residential lots, making new homes more affordable by cutting pavement costs. Some are making concessions on impact fees charged developers to make housing cheaper. Strides are being made in the area of shelter for the homeless as well. Family Assistance in Transitional Housing, a group working to provide homeless families with shelter and a second chance, has received a grant to buy a small housing complex in eastern Idaho. And the Salvation Army is studying the prospect of opening a homeless shelter. While only tentative first steps

Jury set for Baldwin trial

IDAHO FALLS (AP) - The prosecution and defense agreed on a jury Tuesday for the state trial of Idaho County Sheriff Randy Baldwin, who was caught in a Nampa drug sting a year ago. But further proceedings on the burglary and handgun charges were abruptly delayed after defense attorney Keith Rouk raised questions about the legality of the way the case has been handled. Seventh District Judge Ted Wood scheduled arguments on those procedural questions for Wednesday morning. The jury trial, moved to eastern Idaho because of heavy publicity in the Canyon County area, was expected to last seven days. Baldwin, 38, of Grangeville, was arrested last Dec. 20 at a house in Nampa, where local police and federal drug enforcement officers had set up a sting based on reports that Boise drug informant Lamont Duane Jack and a "sheriff friend" were selling drugs and cash from drug dealers. Baldwin and Jack both were arrested in the sting. They were charged with state and federal drug and theft crimes. Idaho County Sheriff's Lt. Patti VonBergen also was arrested, but charges against her later were dismissed.

Statement by suspect can't be used

BOISE — The Idaho Court of Appeals won't allow a statement made by a man accused of molesting a young girl to be used in his criminal case. The court on Tuesday overturned a 7th District Court ruling and held that even though he was warned about his legal rights in an interview with Bonneville County detectives, Milton McLean did not receive a similar warning before he made a statement to his probation officer.

That statement was later used against him in questioning by a detective at the court said. McLean entered a conditional plea of guilty to two counts of lewd conduct with a minor. He was on probation from an earlier crime when he told his probation officer about his alleged sexual activity with a minor.

Agency may help protect Cougar Bay

COEUR D'ALENE — A local group seeking to block development on Cougar Bay may get part of $4.2 million in federal land acquisition funds to help buy the environmentally sensitive property, a federal official said.

Eric Thomson, operations manager for the Bureau of Land Management in Coeur d'Alene, said Monday that the agency will cooperate with efforts by Friends of Cougar Bay to prevent construction there.

Cougar Bay is on the northwest side of Lake Coeur d'Alene about three miles south of Coeur d'Alene. A Honolulu developer has been given building permits to build three homes on the northwestern part of the bay.

Scout leaders want judge disqualified

BOISE — Boy Scout leaders charged with misdemeanors after a sexual-molestation case were tried to a tree at a McCall-area camp have asked the magistrate be disqualified from the case.

Defense attorneys on Monday requested that Magistrate Daria Williamson be disqualified, although no reason was given, a Valley County court clerk said Tuesday.

The incident allegedly involved Scoutmaster Timothy D. Williams, 43, Middleton, who tied the boy to the tree, and Scoutmaster Richard Hammond, 41, Caldwell, who tried to punish the boy, court records say. Hammond is state district manager of probation and parole in the Idaho Corrections Department in Caldwell.

Fight over wife allegedly led to murder

OLDTOWN — An Oldtown man has been charged with first-degree murder for the Sunday morning shooting death of a friend's husband.

Howard F. Limerburg Jr., 36, was ordered held without bond Monday in the Blaine County Jail at an initial appearance before 1st District Magistrate Debra Heise. He is accused of killing Eddie Lee Howell, 35, also of Oldtown, during a fight over Howell's wife.

Bonner County sheriff's deputies found Howell dead in his driveway south of Oldtown. Limerburg was arrested at the scene and injuries recovered a .357-caliber revolver.

Forest Service considers canyon center

LEWISTON — The Forest Service is studying whether to build a Hells Canyon interpretive center in the Lewiston-Clarkston, Wash., area.

Results from a $100,000 feasibility study commissioned by the federal agency are expected in January, a Forest Service official said Monday.

The Forest Service is seeking local financial participation in the project, and Nez Perce County commissioners were given a brief outline at their meeting Monday.

Pocatello faces air quality problem

POCATELLO — Most people who have lived in Pocatello during the winter know there are days when breathing the air triggers coughing and walking through it makes the eyes water.

Those are facts of life in the valley. Pocatello is considered a "non-attainment area" because of air pollution.

Serve Body manages an Environmental Protection Agency program to reduce pollution. By next Nov. 15, state and Idaho and local governments must have programs in place to cut air pollution or risk losing federal funding.

Idahoans Against 1 Percent faces big bills

The Associated Press

A broad-based coalition's successful effort to defeat Idaho's One Percent Initiative is more than $80,000 in debt.

"Idahoans Against 1 Percent" spent about $276,000, much of it on television commercials highlighting the potentially dramatic impact opponents said the property tax limitation measure could have had on local government budgets.

Now the coalition owes $55,000 to the Idaho Education Association, which had loaned it $100,000 besides a $45,000 contribution, and another $40,000 to Goddard Claussen/First Tuesday, a political consulting firm.

"Idahoans Against 1 Percent has about $15,000 on hand, leaving more than $80,000 to be raised.

"We're putting an action plan together," said Lou Esposito of Boise, Coeur d'Alene, First Tuesday and campaign manager for the coalition that helped defeat the initiative in the Nov. 3 election.

Shirley Mix, executive director of the Association of Idaho Cities, said the group already has cleared each of its 183 members to put up $25 to raise $4,500.

"We're just trying to be good members of the coalition and help retire the debt," she said.

Idaho Education Association President Richard Chilcote said the IEA loan to Idahoans Against 1 Percent was money well spent because "the schools in the state would have been damaged should the One Percent have passed."

But Idaho Property Owners Association President Ron Rankin, of Coeur d'Alene, who promoted the tax initiative and is launching a second drive aimed at the 1994 ballot, said the debt was indicative of coalition members.

"What it points out is all of these bureaucrats have no problem spending taxpayer money, but when it comes to their own, they're as cheap as IACI (the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry)," Rankin said. "They don't have any problem getting their hands 'in' somebody else's pocket, but they sure keep their own zipped up."

According to the coalition's last financial disclosure report, as of Oct. 19, IACI had contributed about $200. Other major donors included the Idaho Hospital Association, $20,000; Idaho Power Co., $5,200; the Idaho Association of Realtors, $5,250; Oco-Ida Foods, $5,000; and Politech Corp., $5,200.

Besides cash, the coalition received thousands of dollars worth of volunteer work and in-kind contributions. But Esposito said some coalition members may not have recognized paid advertising's role in the campaign.

"Those things take cold, hard cash," he said.

New bill would prevent censorship of students

BOISE (AP) — A Pocatello lawmaker plans to introduce a bill in the legislature next session to bar public school administrators from censoring student publications.

"What we're afraid of is that principals will decide to censor something not because of the content but because of the administration in not a good light," Democratic Rep. Millie Flandro said Monday.

A similar bill last winter was opposed by the Idaho Association of School Administrators and died on the House floor. But the 1992 measure covered all aspects of student expression while Flandro's new bill is expected to apply only to publications.

Flandro said a recent decision by Boise High School Principal Blossom Turk highlighted the need for a law prohibiting principals from censoring student newspapers and magazines. Turk banned a review of pop singer Madonna's new album because she said the subject was inappropriate for students.

"We have some real strong feelings that schools have some responsibilities that are fairly clear," said Mike Friend, executive director of the Association of School Administrators. "We feel that there needs to be a balance between the curricular aspect of it and the freedom of speech aspect. I'm hopeful that a balance can be reached."

Flandro said there should be guidelines to avoid libelous or obscene material, but publication advisers and students should determine whether an article steps over the line.

Barbara Croshaw, director of the Idaho Journalism Educators Association, said censorship arises each year as a problem for some of the state's high school journalists.

"Most of the problems that we have in the state come from the Boise Valley," Croshaw said. "We said student journalists need to have the freedom to determine what appears in their publication under the supervision of their teacher advisers — so they can learn journalistic responsibility and ethics."

Suspect hospitalized

MOSCOW (AP) — A former student charged with killing her newborn son in a University of Idaho dormitory is being treated for "severe regression, suicidality and depression," a doctor said.

Megan Heber, 19, was sentenced to be arraigned on a second-degree murder charge Monday before U.S. District Judge Jett Bengtson. But Dr. David Gasman said in an affidavit that he was still providing mental health care to Heber at Redding Specialty Hospital in Redding, Calif.

Illegal-drug stamp finds no buyers

MOSCOW (AP) — Proponents of Idaho's Illegal Drug Tax Stamp Act praise it as a reliable way to collect tax on drug sales, while critics charge it skirts the U.S. Constitution.

Either way, no drug dealers have bought the stamps in the last three fiscal years.

The law requires dealers to pay taxes on the drugs they sell. In addition to charges for selling illegal drugs, they can also face penalties and lose assets for not buying the stamps before the bust. The act has been upheld by the Idaho Supreme Court.

Why would a dealer be foolish enough to buy a stamp and risk being caught dealing drugs? None have in the last three fiscal years, the Idaho State Tax Commission says.

But critics charge the stamping commission cannot reveal their identity.

Prosecutors and tax officials like the law, adding it helps reduce the cost of enforcing drug laws. Defense attorneys view it as just another way to slap penalties on people charged with illegal drugs.

Stuffers need not be filling

Christmas was never the same — not after you discovered nutritious stuffing at the local health-nut hangout. (You'd be amazed at the variety of carrot- and yogurt-covered food items marketed these days.)

No, Christmas was never the same — no longer the 500-calorie, 5-pound Christmas weight gain, sugar headaches or holiday lethargy. What a shame, huh?

Maureen Evans-Grover
Nutrition

For many of us trying to live healthier lives, the holidays pose increased exposure to those fatty and high-calorie foods that are more easily avoided the rest of the year. It would be nice to place all the blame on others. After all, it is your neighbor's fault that she makes such irresistible toffee, divinity and fudge every December. If your mother just wouldn't insist on mailing a box of her divine sugar cookies, then the thick, dripping with homemade sour cream frosting every Christmas ... not to mention Santa who never forgets to slip that tub of Almond Roca in your stocking Christmas morning.

It is time to change this habit of giving unhealthy holiday gifts. I propose that we form a club, the Give Healthy Gifts (GHG) club. Membership costs no money, only a little bit of time, effort and creativity.

For your family's Christmas stockings, instead of a tub of Almond Roca, why not fill it with plain popcorn or low-fat caramel popcorn, stuffed in a brown paper sack and tied with a holiday ribbon. Popcorn makes an excellent low-calorie, high-fiber treat. A cup of air-popped popcorn has only 29 calories, so that even if you ate 8 cups of the stuff, you wouldn't exceed the calories in a large handful of peanut M&Ms.

For caramel popcorn that's only 89 calories a cup with only 4 grams of total fat, follow this recipe: Pop ½ cup raw, popping corn in a hot-air popper, which will make about 11 cups of popcorn. In a ½-quart saucepan, bring 5 ounces water and 2 tablespoons brown sugar to a boil. Reduce to a simmer and cook for 10 minutes, or until the mixture thickens. Remove from heat immediately and quickly pour over the popcorn, stirring continuously.

For the neighbor who might appreciate a healthy Christmas treat, make a bean soup mix from dried beans or other dry soup mix and write the cooking instructions on a holiday card. Package in recycled jars or in a soup bowl and decorate with Christmas stickers or ribbons and bows.

For the group at the office that always talks about their new and improved exercise and eating habits around the pop machine, make a large pot of hot cider for all to enjoy in the break-room the week before Christmas. The hot cider will be a warm and refreshing change from sugary soda drinks. Also, be sure to include several sticks of cinnamon in the boiling pot and the smell will bring out the Christmas spirit of even those grinchers in your office.

And finally, who can forget the son, daughter, niece or nephew who is away at college, serving in the armed services, or in a church mission? A welcome treat would be low-fat muffins or bread sticks. (Hint: The oil content in any muffin recipe can be decreased by half or more usually. Just experiment.)

To make these items festive, place the muffin in a disposable muffin tin, tied in a ribbon with wooden spoons attached, or tie together a set of three or four bread sticks in a holiday ribbon.

The ideas for the Give Healthy Gifts club members are only limited by the ingredients in your kitchen and the imagination in your head.

Kinder, gentler parties replace glitzy galas

By Pat Dailey
Chicago Tribune

Holiday-minded hosts can breathe a little easier this year. The recent glitz entertaining on his passed. Caterers no longer are heroes; expensive spreads and matching china are strictly optional, and costly shows of excess are passé.

The trend now is strongly in favor of parties that are noticeably more relaxed, warmer and more personal. A spate of new cookbooks, titled for the holiday, entertaining frenzy, touts the new no-nonsense attitude. Four of them soft pedal the extraneous details such as invitations, flowers, guest lists and decorations. Instead, they acknowledge that the heart of parties lies in the food. The authors of these books make it their mission to make the food easy, yet appropriately festive.

photographed book filled with year-round party menus. Altogether, there are 20 party plans and menus, such as an Easter egg hunt and bridal shower for the spring and a summer ice cream social.

The season suggests turning first to the Christmas Open House or the Cookie Exchange menu. Both are stylish yet quite manageable. Tips and shortcuts included with each menu help with the planning. The recipes, such as white Christmas fruit punch, currant and sage-glazed corned beef and chocolate macadamia nut balls, are appearing as well as easy to prepare.

In "Rose's Celebrations" (William Morrow, $25), author Rose Levy Beranbaum also takes the stance that life is a party, or at least offers an endless succession of reasons to have one. This, too, is an all-seasons guide to entertaining that follows the calendar.

Starting with a New Year's toast of oysters with huître blanc, Beranbaum, author of "The Cake Bible," makes an effort to unravel any mystique that hovers over special events. Her mixed bag of recipes, offered for 28 occasions, range from easy and simple foods like cherry pie and orange cranberry cake to more elaborate extravaganzas such as artichoke flowers filled with truffled pate. She offers few details for planning parties, and doesn't always have a menu or a theme, but her recipes are well written and concise.

Barbara Kafka, a veteran food writer and cookbook author, has assembled a thorough list of festive foods in her newest book, "Party Food" (William Morrow, $25). Kafka notes that this book is all about entertaining with a more casual attitude. "People have stopped doing things that make them uncomfortable. You either give it (entertaining) up or you find another way to do it," she explained.

With that in mind, she offers a large collection of recipes that can be used for any type of gathering. Mixed in with elaborate fare such as patés, terrines and rich inclusions of seafood are many recipes that require minimal cooking skills, because Kafka hopes to inspire more cooks to try.

The Quesnell clan: 'Tried and true tradition'

By Joan Bean
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS, S. — Weekends and evenings this time of year, Valerie Quesnell's kitchen fills with the aroma of cookies in the oven and candy on the stove. Valerie, along with her children, Matthew and Elizabeth, work together to create holiday goodies.

"I enjoy doing it, and it has been part of our tradition to do this," she says. "The children have always enjoyed it, and they've helped me from the time they were pretty small."

Matthew, 17, and Elizabeth, 13, have had cooking experience in 4-H club. And Valerie Quesnell, who was a home economics teacher for 21 years, has also been their 4-H leader. So, among them, there is no lack of culinary know-how.

Usually they start on their cookie and candy making two or three weeks before Christmas. Quesnell says she has about seven or eight tried and true traditional recipes they follow, "and I kind of like to try something new each year."

For successful candy making, Quesnell says it is important to watch for scorching; stir constantly and not use the highest heat.

"I think sometimes people get in too big of a hurry," she says. And she suggests using a good candy thermometer, or to know the stages (what happens when a little of the mixture is dropped into cold water).

"Actually that's what I do," she says. "It seems like I had more trouble with the thermometer. But, I think you just have to have done it a few times, and recognize the stages."

temperature of candy mixture, put a drop of it into cold water. If it forms a soft ball that doesn't fall apart, but flattens out when you pick it up, the temperature has reached 234-240 degrees. When the ball is firm and holds its shape, the temperature is 242-248 degrees. A hard ball, 250-268 degrees, will hold its shape, but still be pliable. The soft cracked stage is when the ball will separate into hard threads that will bend, but are not brittle. The temperature at this stage is 270-290 degrees. When it has reached the hard cracked stage at 300-310 degrees, it will separate into hard and brittle threads.

Gift eases budget pressure

Earlier this year, the Volunteers Against Violence were chosen by the Junior Club of Twin Falls as a recipient of project funds. At the shelter here in Twin Falls, volunteers run a 24-hour Crisis Line for victims of abuse and sexual assault. The shelter has 10 beds and serves eight counties and last year helped 667 women and children.

The shelter just recently received a check for $2,797.87 from the money raised at the "Bite of Twin Falls." This amount is $1,300 more than the original pledge. The generous donation is very appreciated. It has made it possible to repair a leaky basement and be able to serve more clients.

Thanks to the Junior Club for sponsoring projects such as the "Bite of Twin Falls," and also to the community for continuing to support the Junior Club in its projects.

Valley life Use common sense — don't horse around!

DEAR ABBY: With reference to the letter in your column about the child who was killed instantly when a horse kicked her in the head:

Dear Abby
Abigail VanBuren

Abby, you have no idea how incredibly "tough" some people are when it comes to horses. I know, my family owns a horse farm. . . . Once, some people asked permission to take some pictures of our colts — a pair of totally untrained yearlings. I said "yes" thinking they would simply point the camera at the colts, quickly take a picture or two, and leave.

The next thing I knew, each of these idiots had set a small child on the colts — and then stepped back to take pictures. I was paralyzed with fear, knowing that young horses are unpredictable — but fortunately, the colts were so surprised that they just stood there until the people finished and took the kids off.

Since then, I manage to stand between the visitors and the horses. — ARIZONA

HORSE BREEDER: Unfortunately, most people consider all horses to be friendly, obedient, trained "pets." In reality, they are unpredictable and possibly dangerous. Whoever coined that phrase "horse sense" did not know much about horses. Horses have been known to run INTO a burning barn.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for printing the tragic letter about the 2-year-old child who was killed when a horse kicked her in the head. (Her mother was driving by a pasture, spotted some horses, and stopped so her child could "pet" the horse.)

I was heartened that you noted that this could easily have been a cow, and even though the young mother was trespassing on private property, the owner of the horse was liable for injury (in this case, the death) of the child.

I, too, love horses, and live near a public bike trail. Since this trail opened, we have had people park in our yard, climb the fence, pet the horses, feed them candy, jump up and down on the fence, break branches off our trees and shake them at the horses!

I came home one day to find a stranger pitching hay over my fence. He said he thought the horses "looked hungry." Why do you ever hear about off our trees and shake them at the horses!

Another day, a young mother set her 15-month-old child on the fence (with the child's legs inside) and both were patting my horse on the head!

"Abby" my horses are gentle. However, an animal is an animal, and by nature very unpredictable. One of my horses is more than 17 hands high, but nothing deters some people from petting him.

A prominent Lexington horse breeder lost a court case when a man climbed his fence to pet some thoroughbred stallions. The man was severely injured and sued the breeder.

Despite the signs posted "PLEASE DO NOT PET THE HORSES! the breeder lost the case.

— NO NAME, PLEASE
DEAR ABBY: We will soon have a new president. This reminds me of the wonderful story told about Harry Truman, when he became president in 1945.

It seems that Mr. Truman asked Eleanor Roosevelt, the widow of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt, if she had any words of wisdom that might help him during his presidency.

Mrs. Roosevelt replied, "Mr. President, I can't tell you how to succeed, but I can tell you how to fail: Try to please everybody."
— OTTO KERSTNER, LONG BEACH, CALIF.

"Keplers" is a collection of Abby's most memorable — and most frequently requested — poems and essays. To order, send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby's "Keplers," P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Life seen as hard has been beautiful in eyes of beholder

She's been challenged, but you wouldn't know it. She doesn't speak of it. She just smiles her warm, deep smile, and talks softly about a life that others might see as one of hard work and cruel disappointment.

Lucille S. DeVine
Aging

She doesn't see it that way. She sees it as a life of beauty.

Pauline Palomino, 74, was raised in Irvine, Calif., one of nine children of Mexican-American parents. Her father was a foreman for the circus association, and the family lived in a close-knit ranch settlement.

"We were so happy," Pauline recalled. "We had kerosene lamps; when electricity came in, that was exciting. We raised chickens and rabbits. If anyone needed help, we were right there."

One evening a week, her father drove the older children in a Model T Ford. "My sisters and I went to dances in the American Legion Hall while he shopped for groceries. At 11 p.m., there he was, at the door to take us home."

Sometimes the girls took the streetcar to Los Angeles on Sundays and filled with soldiers from a nearby Army Air Corps base. "People were so respectful in those days," she recalled. "We had no fear."

She remembers the 10-cent admission to the movie theater; the symphony orchestra playing concerts in the park. That's where "she met Davey Palomino. They married, had two sons; and David went off to World War II.

He returned from the South Pacific disabled and spent most of the years until his death in hospitals.

At 15, Pauline had gone to work in a packing house, grading oranges. Later, with her sons to support, she worked in a cannery and then in a factory, soldering circuit boards. She worked nights when she couldn't get a baby sitter.

Her last job before retirement was as a nurse's assistant in a convalescent hospital.

"A hard life? Not in her eyes. She is serene. . . . For the past eight years, she has been a volunteer at a senior center. She bakes her famous pineapple upside down cake for bake sales, helps fourth-graders at a nearby school. "As you get older, you are bound to get some aches and pains, but if you dwell on that, you soon feel sorry for yourself," she said. "I am busy. I love my work. I read my paper from one page to another. Watching television is a waste of time."

Her wish: "that young people today knew what a beautiful life we have. A life she considers abundant. A life for which she is grateful."

Lucille S. DeVine, the writing coach for The Orange County Register, writes a weekly column on aging.

Cover your head! It's a bird, it's a plane, it's ... falling luggage!

The Association of Flight Attendants — hants — estimates that items falling from the overhead storage bins on aircraft may account for at least one passenger injury every day, and documents recently filed in a Michigan lawsuit lend support to the claim that such injuries are fairly frequent.

cently by United Airlines Inc., in connection with a lawsuit, briefcases, metal luggage carriers and other items fell on passengers in 429 incidents over a three-year period. The tally was restricted to Boeing 737 aircraft, which account for 40 percent of the airline's jets.

According to the incidents listed, briefcases, carry-on bags and metal luggage carts are the most common objects to fall on passengers.

But the document also records seven incidents each of passengers being struck by falling computers and tennis rackets, six cases of blows by falling cans and two incidents each of passengers who were struck by typewriters, camcorders and strollers tumbling out of overhead compartments.

Blows were registered to the tops of heads, to temples, jaws, cheekbones, mouths, necks, shoulders, chest, arms, hands, wrists, ankles, and Achilles tendons.

In some cases, items fell as passengers were slowing luggage. In others, they fell as flight attendants or passengers opened bins.

In a few, the bins popped open of their own accord.

Pulasker's client, Geraldine Margolis, is claiming damages for injuries suffered aboard a United aircraft in August 1991, when a falling metal luggage carrier tumbled out of the overhead compartment and struck her.

The incidents were detailed in answers to questions by Michigan attorney William Pulasker.

Safety tips enable holiday shoppers to foil robbers

Attention shoppers — Your shopping days until the holidays are numbered. Just 23 shopping days remain, until Christmas. This holiday season while you are shopping, plan ahead to ensure your safety and to reduce the risk of theft. Malls and shopping centers generally add additional security personnel during this busy shopping season. But consumers need to watch out for themselves, too.

ton Police Division; all in Newport News, Va. Prepare a mental itinerary for your shopping expeditions. Assembling Dos and Don'ts under each section. Here's what needs to be included.

- WHEN ARRIVING AT THE MALL:
- Don't park by an oversized vehicle, which reduces others' visibility of you. Should you need help, you want others to have an unobstructed view of your situation. Don't park in a dark, secluded area.
 - Don't leave packages in clear view in the car when you go from store to store. Slow bags out of view in your vehicle's trunk.
 - Do park as closely as possible to where you are going.
 - At night, park directly under a light, whenever possible, but always in a well-lit area.

- Be aware of what's going on around you. If someone, or something strikes you as suspicious, find another parking space.
- Make sure you lock your car doors and windows when you leave the car.

WHILE YOU ARE SHOPPING:

- Don't perch your handbag on your shoulder, so that it swings freely, making it an easy target.
- Don't hang your handbag on the bars of your child's stroller.
- Do keep your handbag as close to your body as possible. If possible, carry a handbag instead of a shoulder bag. Slip the handbag handles up over the arm.
- If you do shop with a shoulder bag, carry it in front of you with the strap across your chest. Wearing a waist purse — a little purse on a belt — is another sensible way to carry essentials.

Put money away before leaving the sales counter and then keep your purse zipped or snapped closed. Men should keep their wallets tucked securely out of sight. Don't step away from parcels such as shopping bags.

Keep parcels with you at all times when shopping. Ship shopping bag handles up over the handles.

WHEN YOU ARE READY TO LEAVE MALL:

- Don't leave the mall or store alone.
- Do wait for a group of people exiting the mall or center and go along with them, unless you have come shopping with a friend.
- Don't stand by your car fumbling for your keys.
- Have your car key firmly in hand, ready to unlock your car. Look under the car and in the back seat before unlocking the door.
- Once in the car, lock your door.

Troubled Teens - Signs Often Appear in School
One of the first indications a child or adolescent is experiencing emotional or psychological problems is a sudden change in school performance.
Many such problems interfere with the young person's ability to concentrate and rob them of motivation. Because young people lack the vocabulary and experience to understand and articulate what they are feeling, indications they are having difficulty usually appear in the form of behavioral changes, especially at school.

Party

their hands at home entertaining. You just need one of two successes to keep on with it," she said.
"Fast" continues to be one of the buzzwords of the kitchen, and perhaps never more so than during the holidays. "Fast & Fabulous Hors d'Oeuvres" by Michele Braden (Collier Books, $16) is subtitled "A Survival Guide for Today's Busy Entertainer." Braden offers a sophisticated and diverse collection of 350 recipes which can be used as appetizers, cocktail food or even as the mainstay of the party meal. With each recipe, she includes do-ahead hints, simple ideas for flashy presentations and time limits that cut down hours of course into main courses.
Here are some holiday recipes adapted from two books.

HOT BUTTERED RUM CIDER
A winter warmer, adapted from "The Celebrations" by Rose Levy Beranbaum.
Preparation time: 10 minutes
Cooking time: 5 minutes
Yield: 4 servings
4 teaspoons each pure maple syrup; dark brown sugar; unsalted butter
1/2 cup lemon juice
1/4 lemon, quartered, seeded
4 thick orange slices
16 whole cloves
2 and two-thirds cups apple cider
4 cinnamon sticks
1. Put equal parts of the syrup, butter and rum in each of 4 large mugs. Squeeze a quarter of a lemon into each mug. Put 4 cloves in the rim of each piece of orange. Add them to the mugs.

2. Heat the cider until it is just below boiling. Add to the mugs and stir with a cinnamon stick. Serve hot.
CRANBERRY PECAN POUND CAKE
This recipe is adapted from "Parties" by Melanie Barnard and Brooke Dujay. A classic pound cake contains no leavening agents.
Preparation time: 15 minutes
Cooking time: 1 hour 20 minutes
Yield: One 10-inch Bundt cake
1 cup chopped pecans
1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1 cup chopped pecans
1/2 cup cake flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup (2 sticks) unsalted butter, softened
2 cups granulated sugar
5 large eggs
1/2 cup each: sour cream, orange flavored liqueur
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
1/2 cups cranberries, coarsely chopped
Confectioners' sugar for top of cake
1. Heat oven to 350 degrees. Generously grease a 12-cup Bundt pan and dust the inside with flour. Spread the pecans on a baking sheet and toast in the heated oven until they are light brown and fragrant, 10 minutes. Set aside to cool. Stir together both flours and the salt on one side.
2. Beat the butter with an electric mixer on high speed until creamy. Add the granulated sugar and beat until light and fluffy, 2 minutes. Add the eggs, one at a time, mixing well after each addition. Mix in the sour cream, liqueur, vanilla and orange rind.
3. Stop the mixer and add the dry ingredients. Mix on low speed just until combined. Fold in the pecans and cranberries.
4. Transfer batter to prepared pan. Bake until a toothpick inserted in the center comes out clean, about 1 hour and 20 minutes. Cool in the pan for 10 minutes. Loosen from the sides of the pan with a small knife. Invert onto a wire rack to cool completely. Wrap airtight. Cake is best served a day or two after "making." Dust with confectioners' sugar before serving.

Gifts

1 package (15 ounces) prepared pastry sheets for 2-crust, 9-inch pie
1 egg, beaten
sugar
Preheat oven to 375 degrees. In bowl mix raisins, pecans, jam, peel and cinnamon; set aside. Place 1 crust on lightly floured surface; sprinkle top with additional flour. Roll to 1/16-inch thickness; with 3-inch round cookie cutter, cut out circles of dough.
Gather up scraps of dough; press them together and reroll to cut additional circles. Brush tops of circles with egg white; place a scant 1/2 teaspoon raisin-pecan mixture on each. Fold dough over to form half-moon shapes. Press edges gently with fingers, then press together with sides of a fork.

Brush crescents with egg; sprinkle lightly with sugar. Cut two short slits in top. Repeat with remaining ingredients. Place crescents, spaced apart, on greased baking sheets; bake about 15 minutes until crisp and golden brown. Remove to racks to cool. Store in airtight container up to 2 weeks.
Makes about 3/4 dozen crescents.
Prepared pie crust sheets are available in the refrigerator case of most markets.

1 tablespoon grated orange peel
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons butter, melted
1 egg, beaten
2 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup raisins
1/2 cup coarsely chopped pecans
Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Combine ingredients in order listed. Mix just until blended. Pour into greased 9-by-5-inch loaf pan. Bake for 50 to 60 minutes or until top is nicely browned and pick inserted into center comes out clean. Cool in pan 10 minutes. Turn out of pan onto rack to cool completely. Wrap in plastic wrap or foil.
Makes 1 loaf (9 by 5 inches)

2 1/2 teaspoons cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon cloves
1/2 teaspoon allspice
1/2 cups raisins
1/2 cup chopped walnuts, pecans or almonds (optional)
3 cups sifted powdered sugar
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
3 tablespoons milk
Bring honey to a boil in large heavy saucepan. Let cool. Blend in the granulated and brown sugars. Add unbeaten eggs, one at a time, and beat well. Stir together flour and spices. Gradually add to egg mixture, beating well after each addition. Stir in raisins and nuts. Spread dough into a well greased jellyroll pan. The dough will be quite stiff and hard to spread. Get it as smooth as you can. Bake at 350 degrees for 20-25 minutes.
For the icing, blend the powdered sugar, lemon rind and milk. Spread on cooled, uncut cookie. Cut into bars, squares or diamonds.
They're really quite easy to make and do not entail a lot of time," she says. "And they're really small good, especially if you put them in a tin."

fork for this. These crystals can make the candy grainy, so they should be removed before they get into it. Quesnell uses sideways swipes around the pan two or three times while the candy is heating up.
Back when Valerie and Mike were newly married she used to make caramels for Christmas. They would last until almost Easter. "And now with the children - this is kind of their favorite - it seems like we're lucky if we still have some around on New Year's Day."

1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup butter
1 can evaporated milk
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 cup walnuts, coarsely chopped
Combine sugar, corn syrup, butter and milk. Bring to boil in a heavy saucepan. Wash down the crystals from the sides of the pan with a pastry brush dipped in water.
Boil to 235 degrees. This will take about 2 1/2 hours. Watch carefully. As it reaches this temperature, the mixture could scorch. Then add vanilla and pour over nuts, which have been scattered over the bottom of a well-oiled 8-by-8-inch pan. Let stand 24 hours. Turn out in one piece onto waxed paper and cut into 1 inch squares using a sharp knife. Keep dipping knife in hot water. Wrap in waxed paper.
Quesnell says these are quite a job to cut and wrap. She usually softens the caramel a little in the microwave, or holds it over a burner just long enough to get a little heat on the bottom, before removing from the pan.

Poinsettias: More than just a pretty face

We know that all plants take in carbon dioxide and give out oxygen, but NASA, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, says some plants "vacuum" the air of a space station of carbon dioxide.

...and trichloroethylene. If you don't have those things in your home, you say? If your house contains permanent press clothing, kitchen cabinets, carpeting, paper towels, facial tissues, detergents or dry cleaner bags, you breathe these chemicals every day.

Formaldehyde is found in particle board, plywood, foam insulation, every bag, room deodorizers, wallpaper, facial tissues, paper towels, and permanent press fabrics. It's even in gasoline, inks, dyes, paints, plastics and rubber. It is used to make detergents, pharmacuticals and dyes. Trichloroethylene is used in dry cleaning, but can also be found in printing inks, paints, lacquers, varnishes and adhesives.

Redbook magazine printed an article by Joel Rapp in September that offers a healthy solution to household air pollution. Some of the best formaldehyde fighters are poinsettia, azaleas, aloë vera, date palm, dieffenbachia, philodendron and spider plants.

Benzene gets honked in the presence of, chrysanthemums, bamboo plants, and plants; dracena Janet Craig (the solid green ones) as well as the variegated dracena Warneckii, dragon plant, snake plant and spatiphyllum.

Trichloroethylene is topped by spider plants, F. Joseph, English ivy and palms.

Rapp recommends "Assuming you have an 8-foot ceiling, figure on two or three plants in 8- or 10-inch pots for every 100 square feet of floor space." Whoot! "In way behind in my houseplants. And it's the holiday season. Seems to me the best thing I can do for my good health is to buy a bazillion poinsettias."

Rapp even gives a little decontaminating advice: "In a 15-by-21' family room, for instance, you might have a pot of English ivy on a round table and two or three larger plants — dracena, palm, or dieffenbachia, for instance — on the floor. An 12-by-15' kitchen would benefit from two 8-inch hanging baskets. If the light is bright, spider plants would be a good choice; if it isn't use philodendrons or pothos instead."

Be sure hand-me-downs are lead-free

By Kathleen Kelly, Knight-Ridder News Service

We eat with our eyes and minds as well as our other senses. That's why many families will take cherished hand-me-down dishes from the cupboard to set the holiday, use a mood-setting Mexican pottery bowl to hold salsa, and tortha chips, or pour maple syrup from a cleverly shaped pitcher purchased at a flea market.

For several years doctors, environmentalists, scientists and government agencies have warned us that some tableware may be contributing lead, a heavy metal to the diet. Lead-based paints remain the most prominent cause of lead poisoning, but lead-containing china, glazes, decorations on tableware and lead crystal have the potential of causing lead poisoning.

Lead affects the nervous system, kidneys and blood cell production. It can cause hypoproteinemia, fatigue, loss of appetite and impaired mental capacity in adults, according to "The Good Health Book by Reader's Digest" (Random House, $27).

"It is especially dangerous to fetuses and children, because it causes mental retardation. What was thought to be a low lead level a few years ago is unacceptable today, according to scientists. That means the levels of lead leaching from dishes and crystal are cause for concern — and caution.

At least one taker of lead crystal for years-made baby bottles from which lead can leach into milk, formula, all kinds of juices and even water. They are no longer manufactured, but there is danger that the "rizy" baby bottles could be handed down from generation to generation.

Here are some of the other high-risk items that might be leaching lead into food and drink:

• Old china made before lead was recognized as a hazard. Lead can leach through glazes that are cracked, crazed or chipped. Most fine china produced by leading manufacturers does not leach lead, but even its glaze can be weakened by repeated heavy-duty cleaning in a dishwasher.

• Handcrafted stoneware, pottery or china — domestic or imported — may be made with lead glazes or not fired at a high enough temperature. When purchasing handmade pottery from an artisan, inquire if any lead has been used in the glaze.

• Highly decorated, multicolored jarred surfaces may have high levels of lead. Be wary of glazes on inside surfaces, such as turkey platters.

• Decorations on top of the glaze may contain lead. When fingers are rubbed across the decoration you may feel the added color, or you may see the brush strokes that were painted atop the glaze.

• A dusty or chalky gray residue on the glaze after the china has been washed shows that lead is leaching from the glaze. Pieces with this residue, called corrosion, should never be used.

considered a high-risk item because liquors, liquors and juices may be stored in them.

Food never should be stored in lead crystal, but it is not considered dangerous to serve beverages from lead crystal decanters or drink from lead crystal glasses or goblets occasionally.

After the meal, return the remaining liquid in the decanter to the original bottle or a safe storage container. Lead crystal usually is fired at a high temperature, which prevents lead from passing into foods and liquids at a rapid rate.

Don't panic if there are any of these kinds of dishes in your home. Use them with care or only for display, or check them for lead content before continuing to use them. A swab on the market can be used to test surfaces for lead content. If you are suspicious of dishes or crystal, the simple-to-use swabs are available in hardware departments and stores. A four-swab lead-check kit sells about $14.

Lead poisoning from tableware is rare, and it can be prevented.

"If your children seem chronically fatigued or if they often have abdominal pains you can't account for, tell your pediatrician that you are concerned about their blood levels of lead. In its early stages, lead poisoning is treatable and can be reversed," advises "The Good Health Book."

Lead crystal decanters could be

CSI downs Western Wyoming

By Larry Hovey
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Offensively it was a night that College of Southern Idaho could have lost. But defensively, the Golden Eagles again swarmed in the second half to wrap up a 98-67 victory over Western Wyoming Tuesday night.

With a third of the second now gone, the Eagles are 10-0 and on the eve of their first "must" road wins in the Scenic West Conference — a title chase that leads to regional and possible host designation.

The Eagles will play North Idaho in Coeur d'Alene Thursday and Ricks in Rexburg on Saturday.

CSI trailed most of the first half as it waddled out of synch on offense, winding up with a season-high 17 turnovers. The Eagles fell behind 9-6 on the scoring of Dayo Holloway and Dewey Edwards and basically stayed behind until Danny Poulton's fastbreak basket gave them a 27-25 lead with 3:34 left in the half.

Still, CSI could manage just a 41-36 halftime advantage.

But in the first six minutes of the second half, the Eagles outscored Western Wyoming 18-2, and the worrying was over.

CSI Coach Fred Trenkle said one of the few good things about the game was "although not much" was going right, "our defense was still consistent. And it got tighter as the game progressed.

The Eagles were credited with 19 steals for the game — 15 in the second half — and Wyoming was guilty of 28 turnovers.

"I told the guys at halftime, when you're not mentally ready, you can get beat. Anyone can beat you if you overlook an opponent. I don't feel we overlooked Western Wyoming that much because we knew very little about them coming in. But we didn't seem to have an emotional edge either," the coach said.

"I didn't feel for the night that we got anything done (working against changing defenses)," he continued. "But if we learned a lesson, it will be all right."

The Eagles got some offensive pop out of the post position as Taj MacFarlane, high with 11, Aaron Bell with 8 and Sandro Varejo with 4 came up with 23. That's probably the best from the post this year.

Meanwhile, sophomore Clayton Johnson damped in 26 to lead all scorers, and Ray Ross added 15.

Byrd awaits surgery; still in stable condition

NEW YORK — Dennis Byrd of the New York Jets remained in stable condition at Lenox Hill Hospital Tuesday awaiting surgery following his spinal cord injury.

Byrd was scheduled for pre-operative evaluation for the surgery, which will be performed Wednesday by Dr. Patrick O'Leary and Dr. Martin Camins.

Byrd, who was injured when he collided with teammate Scott Merescu during Sunday's game against Kansas City, has partial use of his upper extremities and has had some involuntary movement in his legs.

PGA adopts tougher rules for slow play on pro tour

PALM HARBOR, Fla. — The PGA Tour Policy Board on Tuesday adopted tougher, more stringent guidelines involving slow play on pro golf tour events.

"The players said, 'Make it tougher, and we did,' commissioner Deane Beman said after a meeting of the tour's policy making body.

The new guidelines, he said, are subject to ratification by the Policy Board early next year and cannot go into effect prior to the Open in March.

The new guidelines reduce from 45 to 40 seconds the time a player is allowed over a shot.

Report indicates Auburn will pay Dye $1.1 million

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Former Auburn coach Pat Dye will receive more than $1.1 million over seven years as part of the settlement he reached with the university for his resignation, The Birmingham News reported Tuesday.

Dye, 53, resigned after 12 years as Auburn coach in the wake of NCAA charges accusing his football program of nine rules violations. The resignation settlement was signed Nov. 25 by Dye and Auburn president William V. Muse.

The News, which obtained a copy of the resignation agreement, said the pact states Dye believes publicity about the case prevented a fair resolution of the charges and that Dye "vigorously denies any wrongdoing on his part."

Jerome's Jayson Burnham grabs a loose ball, but is tripped along the way by Tyrone Hutchings of Mountain Home.

Jerome falls, 51-45

By Mike Maller
Times-News sports editor

JEROME — A surprise defense by Mountain Home fouled up an inexperienced Jerome Tiger offense and led to a 51-45 win by the visitors Tuesday.

The game was the first varsity action for Jerome's entire lineup, which had the only two players returning with limited experience out of Tuesday's lineup.

Mountain Home, 2-0, spread out on offense, putting a couple 6-4 players on the wings to confound Jerome's passers.

"That's a tough way to start a new season with 1-3-1 extended pressure," said Jerome Coach Jim Slaughter.

Jerome ended up with 24 turnovers, most coming on intercepted or errant passes.

Against a stronger Mountain Home squad, Jerome had troubles getting going close to the basket except for 6-4 junior Chris Williams, who twisted and leaped to clip in 15 points.

What worked best for Jerome was 20-foot jumpers. Led by senior guard Jeff Robison's 5-for-7 performance, Jerome canned seven of its 13 attempts outside the 3-point range.

"We got three kids that can light it up out there," Stauffer said. "If we can get the right situation, we're going to try to light it up out there."

Point guard Jeff Wong added a pair of 3's to finish with 10 points.

Cubs, Astros sign Guzman, Drabek

Doug Drabek rejected a $19.5 million offer from the Pirates.

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Two more premier pitchers signed four-year contracts Tuesday, with Doug Drabek going to the Houston Astros for $19.5 million and Jose Guzman going to the Chicago Cubs for $14.35 million.

The deals, which came a day after John Smiley's $18.4 million, four-year contract with the Cincinnati Reds, leave Greg Maddux, David Cone, Greg Swindell and Chris Bix as the top available free-agent pitchers. And they appeared to show a strong market exists for the top pitchers despite indications salaries may drop for middle- and lower-level free agents.

In Tuesday's other signing, infielder Scott Fletcher and the Boston Red Sox agreed to a $1.2 million, two-year contract. Also, Cincinnati claimed first baseman Tommy Gregg on waivers from the Atlanta Braves and Gregg agreed to a one-year contract worth $375,000. And the San Francisco Giants fired manager Roger Craig and hired Bob Quinn as general manager. Quinn was fired by the Cincinnati Reds last month.

Houston said Drabek's deal was prompted by a change in owners. Drayton McLane's purchase from John McMurrian was finalized on Nov. 2.

"This is the most significant acquisition this club had made in quite some time, possibly a decade," Astros general manager Bill Wood said. "Hopefully we'll be able to get back together soon for another announcement or announcements, depending on how things break."

Houston is thought to be interested in Swindell, also represented by Randy and Alan Hendricks. Drabek said it was important for him to sign near home.

"When the new management took over, I could tell from the Woodlands the excitement that was building and the planning for the future," Drabek, who lives in the Houston suburb.

Drabek, who earned $4.5 million last year, said he was "excited."

Tarkanian files lawsuit against NCAA

The Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — Former UNLV basketball coach Jerry Tarkanian has filed a new salvo in his long-running battle with the NCAA, charging the organization conspired to drive him from college coaching.

Tarkanian, who resigned from UNLV last season and now is coach of the NBA's San Antonio Spurs, filed suit in state District Court Monday, seeking damages in excess of $10,000.

The state lawsuit mirrors a suit Tarkanian filed in U.S. District Court last December. That suit was filed when the NCAA sought to overturn a Nevada law requiring that the NCAA be forced to provide due process in any disciplinary actions within the state.

In June, U.S. District Judge Howard McKibben sided with the NCAA and struck down the state law. Tarkanian's lawyers then withdrew their suit.

Tarkanian and the NCAA fought a 13-year legal battle over the due process issue after the NCAA suspended Tarkanian for three years' probation in 1977, and ordered the coach suspended for the same period of time.

All-Big Sky team

The Associated Press

BOISE — Two key members of the Idaho Vandals' league-leading offense were the only unanimous selections to the Big Sky All-Conference offensive football team announced on Tuesday.

Sophomore runningback Sherridon May, whose 1,111 yards on the ground led the league, and senior wide receiver Yo Murphy, who led the Big Sky with more than 1,100 yards in receptions, this fall, were joined on the first team by junior quarterback Doug Nussmeier and junior tackle Jody Schupp.

Eastern Washington, whose only conference loss was to Idaho, also put four players on the Big Sky's all-conference offense.

Wide receiver Tony Brooks, a junior, joined three members of the Eagles offensive line — senior center Jimi Schmidt, junior tackle Trent Pollard and sophomore guard Harold Fox.

None of the 1992 all-conference offense made the team in 1991. Weber State quarterback Jamie Martin, who finished out his career last month as the league's all-time passing leader with over 12,000 yards, was named to the second-team after making the first team in both 1990 and 1991.

Reinke drops in 20 as Gooding defeats Trojans in Wendell, 45-33

WENDELL—Tuesday night, Tartan went to court.

Tam-Reinke, known more for her volleyball abilities, showed she can do the job on the basketball floor. Reinke netted 20 points as Gooding edged in a Canyon Conference battle.

There were two big factors in the outcome of the game. Besides Reinke on the court, Wendell only managed two points in the third quarter after pulling within two at the half.

Katdie Cheney added 10 for Gooding. The Senators also won the junior varsy contest.

Glenns Ferry 51, Buhl 40

BUHL—The Indians started slow and never could recover as the Glenns Ferry Pilots surprised Buhl 45-33 in a non-conference battle Tuesday.

Kristie Blown led the Pilot squad with 17 points. Glenns Ferry took an eight-point advantage in the first quarter and took the lead to double digits at the end of the game as Buhl was forced to go for 3-point shots to tie.

Lynette Stahlecker had 16 points for Buhl.

Bliss 35, Shoshone 28

BLISS—The Bliss Bears started off with a 6-point lead and led the whole way in their 35-28 win over Shoshone. They gives Bliss a 3-0 Conference record.

Olivia Perrella had six steals and scored 14 points. Carma Wood, Kim Victor, and Bridget Steinhack each had six rebounds. Ben Coates dia-

Butler also praised the team for their tough defense.

Kimberly 54, Declo 44

KIMBERLY—The Bulldogs were tied at the third quarter with Declo, but they had a big fourth quarter with 24 points, which resulted in a 54-44 win. Their conference record is now 2-2.

Kimberly Coach John Miller complimented the entire team for their effort. He noted that the Bulldogs' bench was deeper, giving them fresh players to take Declo's players wearing out.

Hansen 25, Hagerman 24

HANSEN—The Hansen Huskies had a second tie with the Hagerman Pirates. Jimmie Schwanewald was fouled and made a free throw, giving the Huskies a 25-24 win.

Hansen Coach Terry Dowd credited his team's defensive effort with getting the win. Their record is now 1-3.

Valley 48, Filer 18

HAZELTON—The weather wasn't the only thing that was cold at the Valley-Filer game Tuesday. The Wildcats didn't score in the first quarter and only had two in the first half as the Vikings clubbed the Wildcats 48-18 in a Canyon Conference game.

Thanks to a tough defense by Valley and a cold streak by the Cats, Valley had an early lead in the breakaway, based on the great victory. Every player for Valley scored in the contest.

2 emerge as favorites for BSU coaching position

BOISE (AP) — Miami assistant head-football coach Gregg Smith and Portland State head coach Rocky Allen have emerged as favorites for the head coaching job at Boise State University.

Smith, who declared his interest in the job last week, arrived in Boise on Monday for an interview before the 22-member search committee.

Smith began his career at Idaho's Bull Head School, where he had a 29-13 record as head coach and won the 1978 state championship.

He joined Dennis Erickson's first University of Idaho staff as a graduate assistant in 1982 and has followed Erickson to Wyoming, Washington State and now Miami.

The packaged Hurricanes are set for a Jan. 1 bowl game for the national championship, probably against Alabama in the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans, Ala., on Jan. 14.

Allen's Portland State team finishes Pittsburg State of Kansas this Saturday in the NCAA Division-II semifinals. He said Monday that he has talked to Boise State athletic director Gene Blemmeyer, but didn't report that he was in a hurry for an interview last weekend.

Linebacker close to spine injury

NEW YORK (AP) — As he stop the run, met Mustier at the line, watched the replays of Dennis Byrd.

"I jumped on the pile at the goal line and collided with a teammate, then 'me,' Noble said. "I hit the guy and 'helping' motionless on the field. Green' here on 'My head was on his chest. My body slumped against his chest. I felt like I was being hit by a train. My body slumped down. My body felt like it was being crushed. It was almost and hips hit the ground. My head and feet were in the air. It was like a bear. The handoff went to Brad Mustier. At that moment, Brian Noble was Mustier and the Packers, passed to, at great risk, his body courted and of his control, I heard a pop and then excruciating pain," he said. "I felt I had snapped my back."

For the next few minutes, Noble was lying on the ground at Lambeau Field, unable to move. It is the most frightening feeling a football player can experience, "I had no feeling in my legs," he said sadly. "At the time, it was the scariest moment of my life."

Separate paths lead to same place for Crimson pair — opponent's backfield

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Eric Curry and John Copeland took different routes to Alabama, just as they take different routes to the quarterback.

They keep winding up in the same place, though.

For now, it's usually the opponent's backfield. After the season, it will be All-America teams and a host of All-Star games. Next year, it will be the NFL.

"I feel me and John are the best 1-2 tandem in the nation," Curry said Tuesday.

Few would argue with Curry, and not just because of his imposing 6-foot-6, 265-pound frame.

He and Copeland are the anchors of one of the best college defenses in the history of the second-ranked Crimson Tide (11-0) has allowed only 8.0 points per game and is on the verge of becoming the second team in NCAA history to lead the nation in all four major defensive categories.

NFL scouts say both players are certain first-round picks, though they probably will play different positions in the pros.

Alabama coach Gene Stallings said Copeland is built more along the lines of an NFL tackle, while the taller, leaner Curry is certain to remain an end.

"We're actually very different," said Curry, a finalist for the Lombardi Award as the top defensive lineman in the country. "I'm more of a pass rusher, more of a finesse player. John is a more aggressive player. He's better against the run."

But they get the same results.

Copeland has 9.5 sacks, 20 quarterback pressures, five passes broken up, three forced fumbles and two recovered fumbles.

Curry's line is nearly identical: 10.5 sacks, 25 quarterback pressures, one pass broken up and two forced fumbles.

"I would definitely be scared to be a quarterback against our defense," safety Chris Donnelly said. "I don't feel sorry for them but I pity them."

Alabama quarterback Stan White was the victim last week. He was sacked five times in Alabama's 37-0 Thanksgiving Day victory. Late in the game he was crushed by Copeland after delivering a pass and suffered a separated shoulder.

"I fell for him," Donnelly said.

"Curry didn't," he said.

"That's what we work hard in practice for. To get to the quarterback," Barker said.

Alabama quarterback Jay Barker said he talked with White on the telephone after the game.

"He said he had never faced two better defensive linemen in his whole life," Barker said. "They're so big and strong. And when Stan tried to roll out, Eric would catch him from behind. That just shows his speed and ability. Stan should be able to get away from a guy who's 6-6, 260 pounds."

Philadelphia gains confidence, should beat Vikings

The Associated Press

Say this about the Philadelphia Eagles: there's always a subplot to their games.

This one involves Herschel Walker, who left Minnesota this spring for the Eagles and the Vikings immediately got better. In fact, if they beat the Redskins on four at Stadium Sunday, they will clinch the NFC Central title.

The Eagles' win could qualify the same about their playoff hopes.

After losing at San Francisco last Sunday when they came up an inch short on four downs (according to the officials) or were jobbed (according to coach Rich Kotite); they're playing for survival. They lead Green Bay by a game for the final NFC wild-card spot, but they've lost to the Packers, so they can't afford to finish in a tie with them.

Philadelphia is favored by 5½ points over finally playing well at San Francisco.

"I don't believe in moral victories, but we played against the best offense in the NFL and we were down there ready to score in the end," Kotite said. "The important thing is that we can play with anybody in the league."

The Vikings, meanwhile, finally didn't need defensive touchdowns — Sean Salisbury gave them some punch at Minnesota against the Los Angeles Rams last Sunday.

But the Eagles at home aren't the Rams. Incentive.

EAGLES, 20-10.

Miami (plus 7½) at San Francisco

San Francisco (minus 4½) at the A's

Jets, Patriots and Colts, you're in for a shock when you venture outside. The Dolphins got a shock last week at New Orleans.

Shock No. 11, although San Francisco's secondary isn't well suited to Dan Marino.

49ERS, 34-10.

Dallas (minus 4½) at Denver

If John Elway doesn't play, forget it. If Elway does play, remember that his shoulder hurts.

Dallas can wrap up the NFC East, the Browns can wrap up the AFC playoff COWBOYS, 24-17.

Kansas City (minus 2½) at Los Angeles Raiders

All of a sudden, the Chiefs are where they're supposed to be — in first place in the AFC West. They may finish there, but not the Raiders' stand.

RAIDERS, 12-7.

Atlanta (plus 10) at New Orleans (Thursday)

The Saints are making a big thing about this being their third game in 12 days for the Falcons.

More relevant: Jerry Glanville's teams rarely play well on the grid after big home wins.

SAINTS, 34-10.

Detroit (plus 3½) at Green Bay

The Packers won't 27-13 at Pontiac.

What makes anyone thinks that they'll win any worse at Milwaukee.

PACKERS, 27-13.

Washington (minus 6½) at the New York Giants

The Redskins are playing for a playoff berth.

The Giants won the first meeting 24-7, but are playing like they want to ensure that Ray Handley is fired.

REDSKINS, 18-10.

Chicago (plus 11) at Houston (Monday night)

Have the Bears gone this far south? Literally.

OILERS, 27-9.

San Diego (minus 4½) at Phoenix

Once more the fruits of the last-place schedule for the Chargers.

And the quasi home-field advantage — there may be more people who make the trip from San Diego to Tempe than locals who venture out to see the Cards.

CHARGERS, 23-9.

Seattle (plus 13½) at Pittsburgh

Whaddoes winning do for the Seahawks? It cut 16 points off the opening line, but it won't cut 1½ yards off Barry Foster's

SEALED LETTERS

New York Jets (plus 17½) at Buffalo

The Jets will get a 9-3 tieup who get victory at home for losing one game.

BILLS, 34-3.

Cincinnati (plus 10) at Cleveland

A "one-guy" game.

Both teams tend to be unpredictable. But with David Klingler still leaning his job up.

BROWNS, 19-7.

Indianapolis (plus 1) at New England

Be careful gun.

Is the Scott Zolak magic gone?

COLTS, 7-6.

Los Angeles Rams (minus 1) at Tampa Bay

For those who care.

RAMS, 47-13.

Last week, 6-8 (spread), 10-4 (straight up).

Season (81-84-2 (spread), 114-53 (straight up)).

Bob Quinn was fired by the Cincinnati Reds last month.

Giants fire Craig, name new GM

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Even though their purchase isn't official, the new owners of the San Francisco Giants put their mark on the franchise Tuesday when they fired manager Roger Craig and hired Bob Quinn as general manager.

Peter Magowan, head of the group that has agreed to buy the Giants from Bob Lurie, took the first major step toward revamping the team he saved for the city. He told the 62-year-old Craig he will be replaced, and also hired CBS executive Larry Baer as executive vice president.

Baseball owners are scheduled to vote on the $100-million sale to Magowan and other San Francisco investors at their winter meetings next week at Louisville, Ky.

Craig's future had been unclear since Lurie proposed selling the Giants to a group of Florida investors. That deal was rejected by National League owners last month; it was widely expected that Craig, who has a year left on his contract, would be fired by Magowan's group.

"He was extremely practical," Magowan said. "You couldn't have asked for a better response for someone who has been in a difficult position, not knowing what his future would be."

Craig, who became manager in September 1985, led the Giants to an 807-804 record and the 1989 National League pennant. But San Francisco finished 72-90, 26 games out of first place in the NL West last season.

Craig, who couldn't immediately be reached for comment, was hired by Al Rosen, who resigned as general manager Nov. 20.

"This was not an easy decision to make, as Roger has contributed so much to this organization over the last seven years," said Magowan, adding that Craig would be offered another job in the organization. "Roger is not only a fine manager, but an extraordinarily fine person as well."

The man responsible for finding a new manager is Quinn, fired as general manager by the Cincinnati Reds last month. He said he will set up an interview with Giants coach Dusty Baker as soon as possible and mentioned he had drawn up a short list of candidates already with other organizations.

"Naturally, you'd like to have a manager by the winter meetings, but I'm not going to set that kind of timetable, because I want to be as thorough in this process as the ownership team was" in selecting a general manager, Quinn said.

Quinn also pledged to resurrect the Giants' depleted farm system and follow the lead of the Astros in focusing on development.

"I just say I feel the San Francisco Giants are a better club than what we saw on the field last season," he said during a news conference at Candlestick Park. "I did an SSSD, guy, scout, draft, sign and develop. I was born, bred and raised on the importance of scouting and player development and to that end I want to commit myself immediately to finding the best personnel available to help restructure our scouting and player development department."

Panel forms to investigate Schott

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's executive council, responding to allegations that Marge Schott, made statements offensive to minorities, appointed a four-person committee Tuesday to investigate the Cincinnati Reds owner, the Cincinnati Reds announced.

The 11-member council met for about one hour in a telephone conference call and decided to appoint the committee to investigate the alleged racial and ethnic remarks attributed to Schott.

American League president Bobby Brown, National League president Bill White, California Angels executive vice president Jackie Autry and Pittsburgh Pirates director Douglas Dufault will be on the panel. Milwaukee Brewers owner Bud Selig, the executive council chairman, said NL lawyer Robert Kheel will be the counsel for the probe.

The committee has been asked to conduct its investigation thoroughly and with all appropriate dispatch, the commissioner's office said in a statement. The committee is to report its findings to the executive council, which assumed the power of the commissioner when Fay Vincent resigned Sept. 7.

The Schott probe will be the third major investigation for major league baseball since 1989. Cincinnati Reds manager Pete Rose was banned for life in 1989 for gambling and New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner agreed to what amounted to a lifetime ban the following year after his $40 million payment to a known gambler, Steinbrenner is due to be reinstated on March 1.

The Rose and Steinbrenner probes took many months and became multimillion-dollar investigations. Officials said the Schott probe will be quicker.

"Whether or not they will be ready or not next week for our meeting in Louisville remains to be seen," said one council member, speaking on the condition of anonymity. "They'll try to be, but they won't sacrifice thoroughness to save the time."

The council is scheduled to meet Monday at the start of the winter meetings.

"It's important for us to make sure there is due process," said another council member, also speaking on the condition of anonymity.

Owners said the committee will read depositions and probably would interview Schott and Sharon Jones, a former Oakland Athletics employee who has accused the owner of saying, "I'd rather have a trained monkey working for me than a nigger." Schott also has been accused of a poor record on minority hiring and of making derogatory remarks about Jews and Asians.

Athletics Congress likely to change its name

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — "What's in a name? Plenty of confusion if it's The Athletics Congress."

That's why TAC, the U.S. governing body for track and field, long-distance running and race walking since 1979, may soon be known as USA Track & Field.

"I'm stopped so often when I speak to people and I say I'm the executive vice president of The Athletics Congress, and they say, 'The Athletics Who?'" Larry Ellis said Tuesday at TAC's annual convention. "With the USA Track & Field name, when you say, 'U.S.A.," it has that Olympic aspect."

While "athletics" is a common name for track and field in other parts of the world, it apparently is too broad for the American public, TAC's name last frequently "twisted" into "The Athletics Conference" or "Track Athletics Conference."

Barring last-minute opposition from the likes of long-distance runner and race walkers, the name change will be approved by the 500 delegates before the convention ends Saturday.

"I think it will pass," said Ellis.

the former Princeton coach who is running unopposed to replace Frank Greenberg as TAC president. Greenberg's two-term, four-year limit ends Saturday.

TAC will not only have a new name and new leadership, but possibly a new approach to drug testing and a new direction to take into the next century.

Butch Reynolds, the 400-meter world record holder who was barred from the Olympics because of a positive drug test two years ago and took his appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, is expected to address the Athletics Advisory Committee on Friday.

"That's to provide an opportunity for athletes who had not been completely informed of the situation to state their views," committee chairman Radious Guess said.

But it's not the only reason. The committee is to take up the inconsistency and fallibility of drug-testing procedures, worldwide, and Guess said will send a request to the convention delegates that they vote to suspend the "contamination rule."

Under that rule, any athlete competing against a suspended athlete also can be suspended. When Reynolds was allowed to run in the U.S. Olympic trials because of a U.S. Supreme Court ruling, the International Amateur Athletic Federation threatened to invoke the rule, placing the Olympic status of all U.S. 400-meter runners in jeopardy.

"The IAAF finally agreed to waive the rule for the trials only. Reynolds finished fifth and didn't make the team in the individual race but did qualify as a relay alternate. Nevertheless, he was barred from the Games."

"If the U.S. federation accepts the request, it would then take the proposal to the London-based IAAF. Guess said alternatives could include longer suspensions for those who compete knowing they've failed a test or fines for meet directors who also know.

Reynolds currently has a $40 million lawsuit against the IAAF before U.S. District Court Judge Joseph Kinarey in Reynolds' hometown of Columbus, Ohio. Evidence has been heard, and Kinarey is expected to rule soon, perhaps this week.

In other convention business, the National Track and Field Hall of Fame will induct five new members. They are Indiana coach Sam Bell and late ex-Southern California coach Jesse Mortensen, plus Olympic gold medalists Giarle Greene, Charlie Jenkins and Arch Williams.

Winner of the Jesse Owens Memorial Award, the sport's best performer of 1992, will be announced at a banquet Friday. Candidates are Lynn Jennings, a 10,000-meter bronze medalist in the Barcelona Olympics; Jackie Joyner-Kersey (gold in the heptathlon, bronze in the long jump); Carl Lewis (long jump and relay gold); Gwen Torrence (two golds and a silver in the sprints and relays); Quincy Watts (400-meter gold), and Kevin Young (the world's first sub-47-second runner in the Olympic 400 hurdles).

Lasers may become part of pentathlon

LONDON (AP) — The shooter pauses, to concentrate, adjusts a piece of equipment, steps forward, raises the pistol — and fires a laser beam at the target.

Sensors score the shot, informing a computer, which provides a ranking table for competitors, officials and spectators.

Welcome to the thoroughly modern world of modern pentathlon. Although laser shooting won't be introduced by another two years, it is expected to replace the 1996 Atlanta Olympics as part of a package of radical change to the sport.

Criticized as expensive to stage, with few competitors, and unsuitable for television coverage, the sport faced being kicked out of the Olympics.

So last week in southern France, the International Modern Pentathlon and Biathlon Union, known from its French initials as the UIPMB, agreed in principle to laser shooting, shorter competitions and fewer competitors in a package of radical change.

Modern pentathlon was created by the founder of the modern Olympics, Baron Pierre de Coubertin, who wanted the winner to be recognized Olympic Champion of Champions. Modern pentathlon has appeared in every Olympics since its debut in 1912.

Competitors swim 300 meters, ride an unfamiliar horse over a show-jumping course, shoot a .22-caliber pistol on a 25-meter range, fence every other competitor, and run a 4,000-meter cross-country race. It was designed to simulate the ordeal of a soldier ordered to deliver a message.

BEFORE YOU IGNORE PROJECT SHARE, TURN YOUR HEAT OFF FOR A WEEK.

Then try to stay warm. Try to keep your kids warm. Pretty soon that's all you can think about. Staying warm can become even more important than eating. And that only makes things worse. And more dangerous. YOU HAVE YOUR CHOICE IN HOW MUCH YOU HELP. Project Share is a program administered by the Salvation Army which helps less fortunate families make it through once-in-a-while home heating emergencies. But it needs you to succeed. Just add exactly $1, $5 or $10 to your monthly Idaho Power bill payment and it will go to those people who really need help paying for heat. Every nickel of it. The Salvation Army's administrative costs for Project Share are covered through other contributions. As is this ad. And Project Share is fuel blind. Any type of heating fuel qualifies for Project Share assistance: oil, natural gas, coal, propane, and wood, as well as electricity.

THEY'LL BE WARMER FOR IT. AND SO WILL YOU. Please, give to Project Share. It's an important program that helps people in your own neighborhood. And if you have any doubts about whether the need is real, we invite you to experience for yourself not having heat. It'll open your eyes. And, we hope, your heart.

Technical stand-off' pushes Dow down, ends 4-day surge

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Blue-chip stocks fell in a technical sell-off Tuesday, but the broader market managed to put in a mixed performance. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks shed 10.80 points to close at 3,294.36, snapping a four-day winning streak. Advancing issues evenly matched declining ones on the New York Stock Exchange. Volume on the floor of the big board came to 239.02 million shares as of 2 p.m., up from 237.44 million in the previous session. Stocks were poised for a sell-off following declines overnight in Asian markets. In addition, analysts said the market's rally over the past several weeks had left traders itching for an opportunity to take profits. The Dow opened lower and then flirted with positive territory before resuming its decline. But the broader market was far more resilient. Smaller issues surged in over-the-counter trading. The Nasdaq index rose 0.49 percent to close at a new record for the fifth consecutive session. Traders were greeted with several reports pointing to a recovering economy. The government said its Index of Leading Economic Indicators jumped 0.4 percent in October while construction spending advanced 1 percent to the highest level in over two years. The National Association of Purchasing Managers' monthly index put in a far better-than-expected run in November. Cyclical issues rose in response to the data, reflecting a brighter outlook for industries like steel, autos and aluminum, which do best in a strong economy. Among them, Ford rose 4 1/2% to Alcan Aluminum was up 4 1/2% and Alcoa added 1 1/2%.

Still, an improving economy raises the issue of rising interest rates. The specter of higher rates cast a pall over interest-sensitive stocks like bank issues. Banc One lost 1 1/2% to 6 1/2%. Morgan fell 1 to 6 1/2%. Chemical Bank was off 1/2 to 3 1/2% and Chase Manhattan fell 1/2 to 8 1/2%. Retailing was perhaps the hardest hit sector, with the stocks of major store chains declining after the board. Among them, Kmart fell 1 1/2 to 26 1/2.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

A sharp tongue is the only edge tool that grows keener with constant use.
 -Washington Irving.

Most players regard the Blackwood Convention as a tool to enable them to get to slam. They have the cart before the horse. Properly used, it's a tool best suited to keep them out of slams that will not make.

Look only at today's South hand and choose your bid after North forces to three hearts over your opening of one heart.

Those who have the cart before the horse jump to Blackwood after hearing North's forcing jump raise. Why not? They have to HCP, and partner promises 13-15 HCP; surely the partnership has enough points to be in slam.

North will respond to show one ace, and the guessing game begins. Should South bid slam or hang on short? If he pushes on, in this case, he has no luck and West takes the first two club tricks. If he hangs one short, North will surely turn up with a control in clubs, and an easy slam will be missed.

The solution is that one should refrain from using Blackwood until he is sure he can use the information he gets. In today's case, the number of aces won't suffice; South must know whether he has two quick club leaders. To find out, he cue-bids his controls in spades and diamonds, inviting partner to bid the slam only if he can control the club suit.

The secrets of successful slam bidding, as well as other topics, are covered in a 60-minute VHS videotape featuring Audrey Grant and me. It is available for $26.45 from TAPES, Box 831861, Richardson, TX 75080-1861.
