Snow! Snow! Ho! Ho! Oh-Oh!

The Times-News and Mini-Cassia News Service

TWIN FALLS — Another winter storm blew through the heart of the Magic Valley early Thursday, closing schools in nine different districts and glazing highways from Hammett to Sublett.

An outlook for more snow and continued cold mean a good chance for a white Christmas.

South-central Idaho woke up with three to seven inches of snow Thursday morning and a National Weather Service advisory for more during the day, tapering off overnight.

Cold air out of the north is expected to keep the Magic Valley unseasonably cold over the coming week to 10 days, said Bill Calkin of the National Weather Service station in Kimberly.

Another storm bringing more snow is expected Saturday, he said.

Winter and its dangerous driving conditions are here. But the Idaho State Police and sheriff's offices in the eight Magic Valley counties reported no serious accidents, despite dozens of slide-offs and fender-benders.

As of Thursday night, Interstate 84 was wet and icy from Glenns Ferry to Twin Falls, with a broken snow floor from Twin Falls to Burley and a snow floor from Burley southeast to the Utah border.

Snow also covered U.S. Highway 93 from Jackpot to Shoshone, but snowfall was lighter on the northern edge of the valley.

Wind-blown snow that drifted over north-south roads forced closure of schools in Elmore, Gooding, Lincoln.

Clinton fills HUD, VA cabinet posts

The Associated Press

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — President-elect Clinton added ethnic and racial diversity to his Cabinet Thursday, naming former San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros to his top housing slot and a black Vietnam veteran to head the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Clinton said he was appointing men who "have lived the issues they will now address."

Clinton made history with the appointment of Jesse Brown, executive director of the Disabled American Veterans, to head the VA. With Brown's selection, two blacks are on track to join the Cabinet for the first time.

Cisneros, recognized nationally as a leader for Hispanics, will head the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

to the country's economic ills. "I hope it will all be done before Christmas because... I've got a lot of very tough policy decisions to make and there are hundreds of people which have to be hired in the second and third tiers of the departments," he said.

Chicago banker William Daley, a key Clinton political ally and the brother of the city's mayor, was considered a front-runner for transportation secretary. Daley met with Clinton on Wednesday night.

Others apparently in line for top jobs were Mississippi Rep. Mike Espy for agriculture secretary and Arkansas Health Director Joyceelyn Elders for surgeon general.

Sources said former South Carolina Gov. Dick Riley had accepted Clinton's offer to be education secretary despite misgivings about moving to Washington. But Dwight Drake, his law partner, said "he's still thinking about it."

Clinton's appointments on Thursday also included Hershel Gober, director of Arkansas' Department of Veterans Affairs, to be Brown's top deputy at Veterans Affairs. Gober, 55, spent 20 years in the military.

Bush signs trade accord

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush signed a historic treaty Thursday ending barriers to free trade with Canada and Mexico and predicted that all of Latin America eventually would join the world's largest and richest trade bloc.

Bush said the agreement not only would help the weak Mexican economy but, contrary to critics' assertions, would create more American jobs than it would cost. More broadly, he said, the deal would help solidify democratic institutions throughout the Americas.

"If we are equal to the challenges before us, we can build in the Americas the world's first completely democratic hemisphere — just think about that," Bush said. "Think of the importance. Think of the example for the rest of the world."

Speaking at the headquarters of the Organization of American States, Bush called the North American Free Trade Agreement "the first giant step towards fulfillment of a dream" — a free-trade zone encompassing the entire Western Hemisphere, including Central and South America and the nations of the Caribbean.

Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney and Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari also signed the 2,000-page agreement in ceremonies in their capitals Thursday.

Navy jet fighter crashes

Searchers press hunt for pilot late into frigid night

By Brad Bowlin Times-News writer

BERGER — A California-based Navy fighter jet crashed Thursday morning shortly after leaving the Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional airport, and search crews continued to look for the pilot deep into the night.

Sheriff's deputies and search-and-rescue crews were concentrating on a snow-covered stretch of desert southwest of Berger near 2900 North and 2250 East, about 7½ miles from the airport.

Sometimes between 5:30 p.m. and 6 p.m., officials received word that the pilot of a search plane had spotted a flare and "a large crater."

Ground crews moved in and located the wreckage of the downed F-16N fighter as the search aircraft circled the site. The jet's pilot, who could have ejected before impact, was not found.

The unnamed F-16N, from San Diego's Miramar Naval Air Station, was returning home from a routine training mission when radio and radar contact was lost at 10:20 a.m. shortly after takeoff, said Doug Sayers, public affairs officer at Miramar.

The rugged terrain and fresh snow made access difficult, and search crews went in with 4-wheel drive vehicles and snowshoes.

A single pair of boot tracks led deputies about one and a half miles east of the crash site. One deputy reported seeing blood on a depression in the snow where someone had laid down.

A medical helicopter from Pocatello and tracking dogs from Ketchum were on their way to the scene Thursday night. Security helicopters from the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory and aircraft from the Idaho National Guard with night-vision capability were also called to the scene.

Emergency response teams from Boise's Civil Air Patrol and Mountain Home Air Force Base also responded.

Three F-16 jets from Mountain Home Air Force Base flew over southern Twin Falls County early in the afternoon, but found nothing and returned home, Twin Falls County Sheriff's Deputy John Barsness said.

Those jets were equipped with electronic monitoring equipment to pick up any electronic distress signals being sent by the downed jet, Sayers said.

A local CAP airplane also began searching closer to the ground while ground crews gathered at Rodgerson with snowshoes and 4-wheeled drive vehicles.

Navy officials would not release the name of the pilot or his hometown, but he was described as six feet tall, 200 pounds and 39-40 years old. The Navy told local officials the pilot was wearing a flight suit.

Mercy mission makes headway

The Associated Press

BAIDOA, Somalia — Pushing into the starving countryside Thursday, U.S. Marines tossed chocolate to wailing children along the muddy road while a Cobra attack helicopter provided air cover against marauding bands.

In some villages, many of the ragged and hungry appeared too weak to even greet the troops.

Even as Operation Restore Hope reached new areas and got new commitments of foreign troops, there were fears that when the Marines move on the looters will move in.

And chaos continued in the areas the Marines have yet to reach.

In the southern city of Bardera, which the Marines are scheduled to reach late in their mission, gunmen burst into a Red Cross center for severely malnourished famine victims late Monday and opened fire. Nine patients were wounded, including two children.

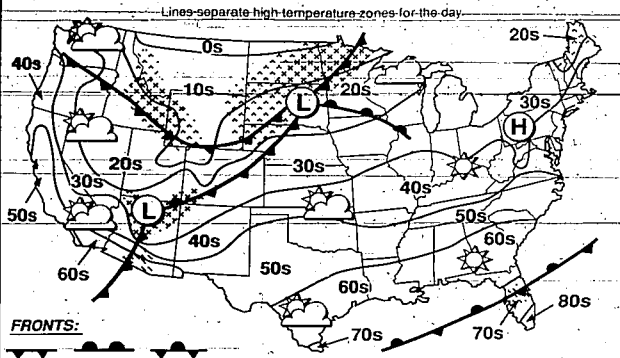

"What kind of evil is it that would produce this?" asked American Red Cross head Elizabeth Dole, who visited Bardera and Baidoa on Thursday.

Camas Prairie and Wood River Valley: Today and tonight partly cloudy. Areas of night and morning fog. Highs around 20. Lows -10 to -20. Saturday fair skies in the morning with local areas of fog. Increasing clouds in the afternoon. Highs in the upper teens.

Extended forecast: Southern Idaho — Sunday and Monday mostly cloudy. A good chance of snow. Lows in the single digits to around 20. Highs in the 20s and lower 30s. Tuesday partly cloudy. Areas of morning fog. Slight chance of snow showers. Lows single digits to the teens. Highs in the 20s.

Northern Utah and Nevada: Utah — Winter storm warning for today, with periods of snow and colder with areas of heavy snow. Snow decreasing later in the day. Northerly winds 10-20 mph. Highs, mid- and upper 20s. Tonight and Saturday partly cloudy and colder with a slight chance of snow. Lows near 10. Highs mid- and upper 20s.

Weather summary

Highs in the 20s. Today's coldness has been offset by snowflakes. Brisk, north winds. Highs in the mid-20s to low 30s. Tonight clearing and colder. Lows 5 below to 15 above. Saturday mostly sunny in the morning. Increasing clouds north in the afternoon. Highs in the upper 20s and 30s.

A Pacific storm system moving through Idaho brought about a foot of new snow to the upper Idaho panhandle, but there were some low valleys that only saw a few stray snowflakes.

Snow depths reported Thursday afternoon ranged from about 1 to 7.5 inches from the mountains in central Idaho generally down into the south and southeast.

It was still snowing at Burley, Idaho Falls, Malad City, Pocatello, Hailey and Soda Springs in late afternoon.

In the Magic Valley, snow depths were from two to six inches in the 20s.

The warmest temperature in the state Thursday was 38 degrees at Riggins and Emmett. Ketchum reported the coldest at 6 degrees below zero.

Elsewhere in the nation Thursday, the highest temperature was 82 degrees at Naples, Lakeland, and Fort Meyers, Fla. The lowest was 20 below zero at Alamogosa, Colo.

Snow falls across West, rain drenches East once again

The Associated Press

Snow fell across the mountains of the Northwest on Thursday and rain fell along the East Coast, creating a threat of flooding in New England.

A strong low pressure system over Washington state and the northern Rockies produced snow, wind and rain over parts of Washington, Oregon, Idaho, northern California, northern Nevada, northern Utah, western Montana and western Wyoming.

In southwestern Oregon, 14 inches of snow fell by midday at Reno, with 11 inches at Klamath Falls.

In Idaho, Coeur d'Alene had 10 to 12 inches of snow by midday, with 10 inches at Idaho City and 8 inches at Anderson Ranch Dam, the National Weather Service said.

Snowfall in western Wyoming included 4 inches at Pinedale and 6 inches in the foothills just east of Pinedale, the weather service said. Casper reported wind gusting to 71 mph.

Winter storm watches were in effect for Friday for all of Utah and northern Arizona.

A low pressure system moving toward the northeast across the central and northern Atlantic Coast states spread rain from northern Florida to Maine.

The rain was expected to combine with melting snow from last weekend's storm to create a threat of flooding in parts of New England, the weather service said.

Heavier rainfall during the six hours up to 11 a.m. MST included 1.04 inches at Albany, Ga., and .61 at Binghamton, N.Y.

flight suit and had no winter clothes.

"These guys are trained better than anyone in the world," Sayers said.

Training runs from San Diego to Idaho are not uncommon, Barsness said. The pilots sometimes make instrument-guided trips and simulate instrument-guided landings at Twin Falls, he said.

This particular jet left San Diego Wednesday afternoon and landed at the Twin Falls airport, Sayers said.

The F-16 is a tactical fighter that comes in single- and double-seat models. Sayers said he was unsure how many seats the downed jet had, but was certain only one pilot was on board.

The Navy uses a small number of F-16s for air combat training missions, in which they oppose F-14 and F-18 aircraft which are the types usually flown by Navy pilots.

U.S. Air Force fighter

F-16 Fighting Falcon

Type: Air-combat fighter. Built: 1974 to present. Armament: One 20mm cannon, up to six AIM-9 Sidewinder air-to-air missiles, or 11,000 lb. weapon load. Max. Speed: Mach 1.95. Crew: One pilot.

General Dynamics first tested the F-16 in 1974. It has become one of the world's most formidable air-combat fighters, combining a respectable amount of armament with highly capable avionics and an exceptional airframe and engine. The F-16 pioneered "fly-by-wire" technology, where a computer monitors the pilot's movements and translates these into instructions which control the plane. The result is an unmatched air-combat plane, combining agility with performance.

Jerome, Minidoka and Cassia counties, although all districts expected to hold classes today.

"In the last few years, there's been very few times school has been closed," Cassia County superintendent Norman Hurst said. Hurst ordered Burley and Declo schools closed, although weather conditions allowed classes to be held as usual in Malta and Oakley.

"We will hold school where we can hold school," Hurst said. All other Magic Valley schools were expected to be back in session today. In spite of all the white stuff, critical mountain snowpack in mbst basins still lags behind the average for this time of year.

The Upper Snake River Basin, where most of southern Idaho gets its irrigation water, still is at 84 percent of the average.

The Big Wood-Big Lost river basins are about 83 percent of average.

But the Oakley-Salmon Falls basins are 166 percent of average. Other southern Idaho basins, including the Owyhee and Bruneau, have lots more snow than normal this time of the year.

But all those figures still could change quickly this early in the winter.

The Magic Valley is doing well. Already the area has gotten more than the average December precipitation, with 1.46 inches — that's .37 inch above the average. Since the water year began Oct. 1, it has gotten 2.9 inches — .61 above average.

New bihoshad also was reported in the southern port of Kismayo, and tension built in the capital, Mogadishu, which is divided between clan warlords.

In Baidoa, a Cobra helicopter crashed, and several armed personnel carriers, Humvees and tanks guided the relief convoy out of town and up the potholed path that passes for a road.

The Marines and French Legionnaires escorted food to Bonkey and three other villages within 30 miles of Baidoa. It was the first CARE convoy to the villages since Dec. 3, when gunmen ambushed a convoy on the road and held with 460 sacks of food.

But shortly after the Marines left Bonkey, men in a pickup truck stole 15 bags of food, CNN reported.

CARE spokesman James Fennell in Baidoa said he had not heard of the incident, "that sort of thing does happen."

Fennell said Marine officials met Thursday night and discussed the possibility of setting up Marine patrols to stay with the food a little while after it has been dropped off to secure away food caches.

In Baidoa, a thin woman wrapped in a bright shawl squatted outside her hut and snarled reporters, saying she was too hungry to talk.

Another woman, Fatima Mabile, said she was glad to get the relief food. "If we didn't get this food, I would go to sleep without eating," she said.

Ravaged by malnutrition, Mabile, 30, looked more like 60 and was blind in one eye.

Clinton: U.N. could pressure Bosnia

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — President-elect Clinton expressed frustration Thursday with the "bleeding catastrophe" in Bosnia and said any increased military pressure should be exercised through the United Nations.

At a news conference called to announce further domestic policy cabinet appointments, Clinton found himself fielding a wide range of foreign policy questions, on subjects ranging from Bosnia and the Mideast to Somalia, Russian unrest and Mexican trade.

Clinton said he understood the reluctance by Britain and other NATO partners to send American warplanes to shoot down Serbian aircraft violating a flight ban over Bosnia-Herzegovina.

"They have soldiers on the ground so I am sympathetic with that. I think we just have to go back to the table. I think we ought to give the administration a chance to see what can be done," he said.

"Anything we do over there ought to be done through the United Nations."

He urged Serbs to turn out the government of President Slobodan Milosevic if Sunday's elections. He said they "could do more than anything" to end the war already in a "looming catastrophe."

Clinton pledged to "do whatever I can to embrace... the fragile-Mideast peace talks when he takes office in January."

He said he was concerned that Israel's deportation of 400 fundamentalist Palestinians in retaliation for mounting Muslim violence "may go too far and imperil the peace talks."

Still, "I share the anger and the frustration and the outrage of the Israeli people" at violence directed at them, he said.

On the political upheaval in Russia, which led to the ouster of Prime Minister Yegor Gaidar, Clinton said that keeping democracy alive in the former Soviet Union is "a very important issue to me."

"I'm going to do what I can to keep Russia moving in the right direction," he said.

Clinton said he couldn't be more specific now, given severe U.S. budget restraints. But, he said, "I think those folks are going through a terribly tough time... have given a thought to what we might do over and above what we have already done. Sen. Gore and I have spent a lot of little-ink about this."

Clinton's news conference coincided with signing ceremonies in Washington, Mexico City and Toronto on the three-way North American Free Trade Agreement.

Asked about the pact, which he supported with reservations during his campaign, Clinton said, "What happened today is not inconsistent with what I said during the campaign."

Clinton has said he wants Congress to pass legislation to guarantee that the agreement won't result in environmental degradation and to protect American workers' jobs.

He said he hoped to meet with Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari "perhaps before I take office" on Jan. 20.

Police concerned about author of Santa letter

SEATTLE (AP) — Despite doubts cast on the authenticity of a desperate letter to Santa, police said Thursday they still hope to find the writer, who asked Santa for food, a job for his father and to be taken to heaven.

Police said even if the letter is bogus, there are families in the situation it describes who need help.

"We've always left the option of a hoax open and it very well could be a possibility, but we have no reason to believe it is a hoax at this time," said Liz Zenonian, evidence officer for the Port Angeles Police Department.

The letter was dropped in a downtown mailbox last week in the depressed timber town 63 miles northwest of Seattle. Postal officials gave the letter to state Child Protective Services, which passed it to police.

"We're treating it as a real possibility (of being genuine), because we know there's families out there that are living in their cars in the woods — children that fit the description of Thad, not only in our area but in other areas throughout the United States," Zenonian said.

Zenonian and Clallam County Under-sheriff Joe Martin say police and deputies have exhausted all leads in the search for Thad. The next step is to distribute posters, asking Thad to call "Santa's helpers" at the sheriff's office, Martin said.

Two handwriting analysts asked by The Associated Press to look at copies of the letter said it didn't appear to have been written by a child. Martin said the sheriff's office may ask for their own handwriting analysis of the letter.

Aide says new administration will strive to curb nuclear proliferation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Clinton's foreign policy advisers are weighing new U.S. efforts to curb the spread of nuclear weapons, one of the advisers said Thursday.

Clinton regards the danger of nuclear proliferation into regional conflicts and among unstable governments as a major issue, "requiring a much greater level of American attention," said Samuel R. Berger, the president-elect's transition coordinator for national security issues.

"We are looking at various initiatives that the United States can undertake in the context of multilateral institutions to strengthen the global effort to slow the spread of nuclear weapons," he said. They include beefing up the U.N. International Atomic Energy Agency, which has been pressing Iraq to dismantle its weapons program.

Berger was asked at a National Press Foundation briefing if the Clinton administration would try to use U.S. influence to create a nuclear-free zone in South Asia, where rivals India and Pakistan both are regarded as having weapons capability.

The spread of weapons of mass destruction to "countries with regional rivalries and unstable regimes may (be) ... the most serious security threat to the United States" in the post-Soviet era, Berger replied.

During Clinton's talks with foreign affairs experts the past 18 months, "if there is one issue ... that emerged in his mind as requiring a much greater level of American attention, it's the issue of nuclear proliferation, not just in South Asia — across the board," Berger said.

President Bush and officials of his administration have been pressing for proliferation among the gravest problems of the post-Cold War era. Clinton becomes president Jan. 20. He may name his top security officials such as secretaries of state and defense and national security chiefly by the middle of next week, said Berger, who under President Carter was deputy director of the State Department's policy planning staff.

The transition team has experts preparing "a series of fairly in-depth option papers on 12 to 15 international issues that are of the greatest importance and will be immediately facing the new president on Jan. 20," Berger said.

The issues range from Bosnia and the former Yugoslavia to Russia, Cambodia, Vietnam and China, he said, not identifying them further.

Flu season strikes earlier than last

ATLANTA (AP) — The flu hasn't hit Americans as early or as hard as last year, but federal health officials said Thursday it's still too early to tell if this will be a mild flu year.

"You just can't tell with flu when it's going to pop up," said Lynnette Brammer, a flu specialist for the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Last year, the United States experienced a flu epidemic, with outbreaks that began around the country in October, two months before flu season usually begins. The winter bug was at its peak by Dec. 14, 1991, and the majority of patients were hit by Type A, the worst strain.

This year, the first U.S. outbreak was reported the week of Dec. 5 in a high school in Washington state.

About 170 of the 1,450 students, or almost 12 percent, became ill.

Less than 25 flu cases have been reported in 10 other states and no other outbreaks have been reported yet, the CDC said. After Washington, Oregon appears to have the most flu cases so far, with nine patients identified, the agency said.

Almost all the cases, including those in Washington, are Type B, or Panama flu, a milder strain than the Type A Beijing flu that ravaged the nation last year.

But Americans aren't free from the threat of Type A. It is circulating in other countries, including France, Sweden and the Netherlands, although apparently at low levels.

Type B also is circulating worldwide. It caused outbreaks in two schools in Japan and one in Sweden this fall and sporadic cases have been identified in six other countries.

The CDC had urged Americans to get their flu shots early this fall to prevent another epidemic, but there's no way to know if that helped.

Brammer said. There could be a weaker virus this year, or one that will hit hardest in January and February, generally the worst flu months.

The CDC still wants people at highest risk — the elderly and those with chronic health problems or weak immune systems — to get vaccinated if the disease surfaces in their communities. Although it takes two weeks for the vaccine to become effective, it could ward off repeat attacks, Brammer said.

She emphasized, though, that there probably are many flu viruses that haven't been reported to the Atlanta-based agency.

Kuwaiti leader thanks Bush

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush received thanks from Kuwait's departing ambassador Thursday and an invitation to visit the Middle East emirate "as soon as your time allows."

"Somebody I want to do that, I tell you, I really do," Bush told Ambassador Saad Al-Sabah at a farewell meeting in the Oval Office. "It's a wonderful, wonderful invitation."

The envoy expressed "our deep sense of gratitude for your support, your leadership and the liberation of Kuwait."

Bush praised the diplomat's role in building the international coalition that drove Iraqi invaders from his homeland in 1991.

Reporters on hand for the start of the meeting wanted to know if Bush was going to Africa, not the Middle East.

Poll: public split on gays in military

NEW YORK (AP) — President Clinton's campaign promise to lift the ban on gays in the military is an issue on which the American public has any consensus, according to an Associated Press poll.

Only four percent in the national survey of lesbians and gay men should be allowed to join the armed forces, rather than being strongly opposed to that view, a third say they might change their minds.

Only five percent say the military should forbid homosexuals, according to the one in six who say they might change that view. 37 percent remain as committed opponents to lifting the ban.

Twelve percent said they weren't sure or would not answer the question.

Americans also are split on how to treat those in uniform who are discovered to be homosexual: 44 percent say the military should continue discharging homosexuals, 18 percent say that practice should be reversed.

The margin of sampling error is plus or minus 3 percentage points for the poll of 1,005 adults by ICR Survey Research Group of Media, Pa., part of ABC Consultants.

The poll was taken Nov. 18-22, shortly after some influential senators and military leaders urged Clinton not to lift the ban. Clinton has set no timetable for doing so, but his promise has been kept in the news by court cases in which gay servicemen are seeking reinstatement.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney says he does not consider gays a security risk, and that they are welcome to join in civilian jobs at the Pentagon.

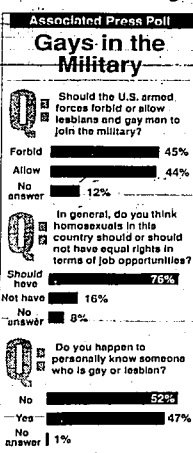

"But the military's different because you have forced association," Cheney said recently.

The Court of Appeals decision that forced gay military chiefs to lift the ban, openly gay lifestyle into our military units would have a detrimental impact upon the cohesiveness of the military and combat capabilities."

Some analysts suggest that opposition to gays in the military is declining because homosexuals are increasingly open about their sexual orientation, so more people know a gay friend, relative or co-worker.

In the poll, 47 percent say they personally know someone who is gay or lesbian, or are themselves. Almost all the rest, 52 percent, deny knowing someone gay. Hardly anyone said they were uncertain.

Among those who know someone gay, 55 percent say the armed forces should allow homosexuals, but 55 percent of those without a gay acquaintance say the armed forces should forbid homosexuals.

U.S. trade deficit improves sharply

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's trade deficit improved dramatically in October as American exports, helped by the demand for commercial aircraft and gold, hit an all-time high, the government said Thursday.

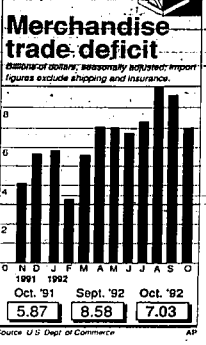

The Commerce Department said the October deficit of $7.03 billion was the best showing since June and was 18 percent below September's deficit of $8.58 billion.

White House administration officials hailed the record exports as vindication of their trade-opening efforts, private economists warned that the good news was not likely to last given pervasive weakness in America's major overseas markets.

"The long-run trend in trade is still adverse," said David Wyss, an economist at DRI-McGraw Hill in Lexington, Mass. "Our demand for foreign goods is going up faster than their demand for our goods."

Analysis noted that two-thirds of the $1.5 billion increase in export sales came in just two categories: sales of civilian aircraft, which were up $527 million in October; and sales of gold, which rose by $420 million, reflecting a big shipment to Britain.

Economists said civilian aircraft

"This was something of a one-month wonder," said Robert Dederick, chief economist of Northern Trust Co. in Chicago.

The $7.03-billion October trade deficit was the smallest since a $6.69 billion imbalance in June.

Exports climbed to a record $39.19 billion, 3.4 percent higher than September, while imports dipped a slight 0.5 percent to $46.22 billion.

The trade deficit is the difference between imports and exports.

In addition to civilian aircraft and gold, other big export gains were registered by telecommunications equipment, up $329 million; tobacco, up $92 million; and wheat sales, up $136 million.

Overall, farm exports totaled $3.66 billion in October, a gain of just $10 million over September as soybean sales fell.

On the import side, America's foreign oil bill rose during the month, climbing by 3.4 percent to $4.83 billion in October as both the volume and the price rose. Crude oil prices climbed to an average of $18.15 a barrel, up from $17.86 in September.

Commerce Secretary Barbara Franklin, however, said that the new trade figures "give us good reason to cheer this holiday season as U.S. companies continue to benefit from President Bush's efforts to open markets."

Franklin is leading the first high-level U.S. economic mission to China since the 1989 crackdown in Tiananmen Square in an effort to pressure the Chinese to drop barriers to American goods.

American ran up a $2 billion trade deficit with China last month, second only to the U.S. deficit with Japan.

The Japanese deficit surged to $4.96 billion in October, the highest level in four years.

Jay Goldinger, a trade analyst at Capital Insight in Beverly Hills, Calif., said that he expected Clinton to focus a great amount of attention on U.S.-Japanese trade problems, especially given that he chose Laura Tyson of the University of California at Berkeley to head his Council of Economic Advisers. Tyson, an expert in international trade, has urged a tougher stance in opening markets.

"The Japanese have given a lot of lip service to opening markets but haven't done much," Goldinger said. "Clinton is not going to be happy about that, and Tyson is a strong signal of change in this area."

In another economic report Thursday, the Labor Department said that new claims for unemployment benefits rose for the first time in four weeks in early December, climbing by 22,000 to 347,000.

But economists said the increase for the week ending Dec. 5 reflected the fact that laid-off workers had one more day to file applications than the holiday-shortened previous week and that the overall trend still reflected a gradually improving labor market.

Profits at S&Ls set record for full year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Profits at the nation's savings institutions through September already have set a record for a full year but trouble spots remain in the industry, the government said Thursday.

Earnings totaled $1.7 billion for the July-September quarter at the country's 1,954 private-sector S&Ls and $4.05 billion for the first nine months of the year, the Office of Thrift Supervision said.

Already, total profits surpass the $3.9 billion record for all of 1978.

Only 19 institutions with fewer than $27 billion in assets remain on the agency's expected-to-fail list. But there are 236 with $151 billion on a list of problem institutions receiving closer scrutiny.

"The bottom line is while there continue to be problems in the thrift industry, the nature and magnitude of those problems are much smaller than in the past," said Jonathan T. Fischer, acting director of the agency.

Fifty-nine institutions have failed this year. Fischer said he could not predict the number of failures next year but said it could be fewer.

"I wouldn't want to say the industry has stabilized ... but this industry today is so much stronger than it was a few years ago," he said.

One remaining problem area is California, where roughly one-fourth of the industry's loans are made. It's been hard hit by defense industry cutbacks and unemployment.

"There's still weakness in California. I wouldn't characterize it as spiraling down, but there is a lot of uncertainty, particularly in Southern California," he said.

Fischer cited two reasons for the industry's record profits. One was, the very wide spread between interest paid on deposits and interest earned on investments. The other was the transfer of private institutions to government control.

Economists cautioned that this year's record profits may diminish as the gap between deposit and loan rates narrows, as expected.

"While the industry has returned to profitability on a cyclical basis, over the long haul I just don't see how it can remain profitable," said economist Paul Getman of Regional Financial Associates of West Chester, Pa. "It's getting harder and harder to earn money just originating and holding mortgages, unless you take a lot of interest rate risk."

But Martin Regalia, chief economist of the industry's trade group, the Savings & Community Bankers of America, said thrifts are much better positioned to withstand interest rate changes than in past years.

High court ruling assures cases will not be retried

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York state's highest court refused Thursday to apply a jury selection rule retroactively, sweeping aside prosecutors' fears that hundreds of cases would be overturned and have to be retried.

The Court of Appeals acknowledged in a unanimous decision that ruling otherwise would have caused chaos in the state's already overburdened court system.

The court had ruled in October that a defendant in a minor drug case could be retried because defendants have a right to be included in so-called jury conferences held among judges, lawyers and prospective jurors.

The conferences, also called sidebar, are often held to give potential jurors, some privacy when they are asked, for example, if they have ever been the victim of a crime.

Holding such conferences without defendants present had been considered relatively routine, leading to prosecutors' fears that if the court applied its decision retroactively it would open the door for mass retrials.

But the new jury selection rule will apply only to cases after Oct. 27, when the Court of Appeals handed down its original decision.

The Court of Appeals said it recognized that most, if not all, criminal cases currently on appeal would be reargued on the basis of the jury selection ruling if its decision was made retroactive.

A woman views the many original pieces of artwork that have been featured in the pages of 'Mad' magazine at Christie's auction house in New York Wednesday.

Alfred E. Neuman, material from Mad magazine on auction block

NEW YORK (AP) — The Park Avenue auction, where the elite vie for classics by Picasso and Van Gogh, is going lowbrow.

Alfred E. Neuman, the gap-toothed poster boy of passivity, goes on the block this week.

"What, me worry?" kid — along with archival material from 40 years of Mad magazine — is up for bids today at Christie's, which usually deals in upper-crust collectibles.

"This is an area unto itself. Compared to the Van Goghs, this is certainly not in the normal scheme of fine art auctions," said Joshua Arfer, head of Christie's Collectibles Department. "But it's lots of fun."

In a pre-sale show, hard-core Mad fans mingled with folks from Madison Avenue and Wall Street in checking out the items, expected to fetch nearly $500,000 for the magazine's coffers.

There was a bit to take in.

You've got your movie parodies:

"Star Bleech," "The Odd Father," "201 Min. of a Space Idiocy," and the ultimate Barbra Streisand flick, "On a Clear Day You can See a Funny Girl Singing 'Hello Dolly' Forever."

(Some celebrity parody victims inquired about the sale, Arfer said.)

You've got your television parody: "Loused Up in Space," "Mission: Ridiculous," "The Flying Nut."

You've got your cheap laughs: the bumbling bandit who robs the eye bank with predictable results.

And there's all the featured artists from the "usual gang of idiots": Don Martin, Sergio Aragones, Dave Berg, Al Jaffe, Antonio Prohias. Most of the items date back to Mad's vintage 1966-75 era, when the magazine's circulation was more than 2½ million. Today, its circulation is about 1 million.

All of the artwork is in excellent condition, and most of it runs twice the size it appeared in the magazine.

What are the big ticket items here?

First off, there's Alfred E. — in assorted incarnations: with Paul Newman and Robert Redford in a "Butch Cassidy" parody, with Mia Farrow in a "Rosemary's Baby" shot, as Batman, with Madonna, as "Bad" era Michael Jackson, with "Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice" (yes, in the same bed).

Most of these are original cover art, expected to sell from $2,500 to $5,500.

Pieces from Martin's "One Day In ..." series are expected to sell for up to $850. Prohias' acclaimed "Spy Vs. Spy" series are estimated at $350. Jaffe's "Mad Fold-Ins" are priced as high as $850. Berg's "The Lighter Side Of ..." cartoons will go for about $400.

"There are some pretty outrageous covers," said Arfer, thinking specifically of "The Finger" front page (yes, THAT finger). "You wouldn't have seen this stuff at an auction 20 years ago, that's for sure."

Thieves steal charity's toys

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Thieves smashed a window and carted off $5,000 worth of toys collected for needy children, but the Salvation Army said Thursday it should be able to salvage its holiday toy giveaway.

As news of the toy grab spread, businesses and individuals pitched in to make up for the loss, said Fred Musgrave, Salvation Army area commander.

"We're getting a lot of calls. We have faith it will work out," he said. The response could produce more toys than Musgrave had before.

"I sure hope so," he said. "We were going to be short."

Donations were up slightly this year, but the number of families registered for the toy giveaway jumped to 2,247, up 110 percent over last year, said Musgrave's wife, Miriam, who coordinates women's services for the Salvation Army branch.

The toys were stolen early Wednesday after someone threw a chunk of concrete through a window. A grocery cart was left outside after it apparently was used to haul stacks of toys and other gifts to a waiting vehicle.

Police had no leads.

Another bank files notice of Russian default; total now $46 million

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sixth bank has filed notice with the Agriculture Department that Russia has defaulted on U.S.-guaranteed loans, a USDA spokesman said Thursday.

Before the latest default, Russia was $44.5 million in arrears to five private banks on loans used to buy U.S. grain and other farm products.

Russia was in jeopardy of defaulting on an additional $2.6 million owed by late Thursday to three of the banks. The department is waiting a day after the defaults to confirm them.

Spokesman Roger Runnigen said the default notice received late Wednesday was unexpected. The other five banks have been notifying the department of overdue payments 10 days after they become late, but the sixth bank filed its notice on the ninth day.

Russia has been missing payments on its $8.5-billion government-backed loans almost daily this month, USDA has suspended its export credit guarantee program until its payments are current. The suspension means Russia cannot tap $114 million in available credits. Meanwhile, a delegation of officials from Ukraine has been in Washington to discuss its credit guarantees with USDA. The department is scheduled on Feb. 1 to release $130 million in credit guarantees.

'Festive' mood sours over U.S. failure to disarm gunmen

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — The festive mood that greeted the arrival of U.S. forces is starting to sour over the failure of the foreign troops to disarm gunmen. — AK-47 automatic rifles, have reappeared in the dust-choked streets of the capital within a few hundred yards of American positions.

U.S. and French soldiers have stopped searching cars for weapons at their checkpoints, a policy adopted as many U.S. troops moved inland to open the road for food convoys to Baidoa, where thousands face starvation.

In doing so, they have disappointed many Somalis who counted on the Marines to end the chaos that has paralyzed this society. In the eyes of some influential Somalis, the Marines are weakening their deterrent credibility.

"When the Marines arrived, the bandits either took to the bushes or buried their weapons," said Sheikh Ali Haj Yusuf, a Muslim religious leader and clan elder allied with the nation's top warlord, Gen. Mohamed Farah Aidid.

"But when they realized that the Marines were not going to confront them, they have been digging up their guns. Now, no one dares to go in the streets after 5 p.m. for fear of being robbed by these bandits," he said.

Nods of agreement came from a half-dozen other elders of the half-Somali clan gathered in a one-room office with a shabby green rug. A straw prayer mat was rolled up in the corner. The elders waved away swarms of flies that filled the morning air. In a country short of food, the usual glasses of sweet tea were missing.

"They don't fear the Marines and are starting to pass by them with guns and even technical vehicles," said Haji Mohammed Abdalle, referring to the battle chorists of the teen-age gunmen — pickup trucks mounted with belt-fed machine guns.

The elders proposed that U.S.

Countries with troops in Somalia

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — Following is a list of nations and the number of troops they have contributed that are now in Somalia in the American-led coalition. The figures were provided by the United Nations command's joint information bureau but do not include Thursday's arrivals. The total force eventually will number about 40,000.

officials open offices and pay "small sum" to people to turn in their weapons. They maintained that ordinary people would comply and the Marines could confiscate weapons from those who do not.

The proposal has some support among relief agencies. "I'm pushing the idea of food for guns," said Ian MacLeod, spokesman for the United Nations. "We should provide an incentive to give up guns and then if they don't come forward they would face having their guns confiscated."

U.S. officials have said the only mission of the U.N.-mandated force is to assure delivery of food to the famine-stricken areas.

Robert Oakley, the U.S. envoy who has been trying to work out a political settlement between Aidid and his rival warlord Ali Mahdi Mohamed, has said the United States will try to disarm factions through negotiations and not by force.

Clan elders and religious leaders are the closest thing this country has to a judicial system. They have vast influence in settling disputes within their own tribal networks but say they lack the power to disarm the militias.

Germany decides to join effort

BONN, Germany (AP) — In a historic policy reversal, Germany announced Thursday it would send 1,500 troops to Somalia to help with the U.N.-sponsored relief operation.

German Chancellor Helmut Kohl said the troops would be sent in about two months, after the U.S.-led military mission has secured peace, and would help distribute food.

Germany has stayed out of past international military missions, including the Persian Gulf War, arguing its constitution bars deploying troops outside NATO territory. No German troops have been deployed outside NATO territory since World War II.

But in announcing the decision to send troops to Somalia, Kohl said Thursday, "This is hugely important for Germany's image in the world ... Germany cannot stand on the sidelines."

Germany was sharply criticized for not joining the U.S.-led allies in freeing Kuwait from Iraqi occupation.

Earlier this week, a German magazine quoted H. Norman Schwarzkopf, the retired U.S. Army general who commanded Operation Desert Storm, as saying Germany should stop hiding behind its constitution.

The opposition Social Democrats said Thursday they might challenge Kohl's decision in Germany's highest court.

"It is the first time since the end of World War II that German soldiers are to be sent to other parts of the world, and this is without a clear legal basis," said Björn Engholm, national leader of the Social Democrats.

The constitution is far from clear on the issue.

It contains a clause intended to keep the army from becoming a threat in the post-Nazi era. It says "apart from defense, the armed forces may only be used to the extent explicitly permitted" by the constitution. Another clause says Germany can enter into "collective security systems."

For decades, successive Bonn governments have interpreted the phrasing as meaning they couldn't send troops to non-NATO areas.

But Kohl has been scolded for testing the constitutional restraints. Germany has a warship in the Adriatic helping NATO vessels monitor a U.N. embargo against Serbia.

Children's groups want action from Clinton

WASHINGTON (AP) — One out of every five American children lives in poverty, and President-elect Clinton must carry out reforms allowing parents to give their children a better life, the Children's Defense Fund said Thursday.

Among the fund's suggestions were to raise the minimum wage, guarantee health care and housing assistance for poor families with children, offer income tax credits and increase the federal government's share in funding education.

"The federal government has to become a strong partner ... in seeing that our country is healthy again," said fund President Marian Wright Edelman. "There are certain things America is going to have to do."

The fund, formerly chaired by Hillary Clinton, tied its recommendations to its annual report, "The State of America's Children." The report found that 14.3 million American children — one of every five — lived in poverty in 1991, the highest number since 1965. The majority were white children living in rural areas or suburbs with at least one employed parent.

The report also said the median income of young families headed by a parent under age 30 fell 32 percent between 1973 and 1990. About 2.7 million children were reported abused or neglected last year, and 429,000 were in foster homes, group homes or institutions.

"We are in danger of becoming two nations — one of First World privilege and another of Third World deprivation — struggling against increasing odds to coexist," the report said. "What are the true values of a wealthy, democratic nation that lets infants and toddlers be the poorest group of citizens?"

"This study is another wake-up call, and we need to take action now," Edelman said. "We need to work to care for the family support system that all children deserve."

The fund also called for stricter gun control measures, to "keep deadly weapons out of the hands of children and adolescents and those who prey upon young people."

Edelman, a close friend of Mrs. Clinton, said she is confident that the president-elect will pay close attention to the initiative her group is proposing.

"Nobody has gotten any specific promises, (but) we've been getting a very responsive hearing," Edelman said. But she made it clear that she would take Clinton to task if she finds he's not doing enough.

Party level rises

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic Party's lead in the national polls has risen to its highest point since the 1988 election, according to a new survey by the Pew Research Center.

The survey, conducted Oct. 27-30, shows Clinton leading Bush by 10 percentage points, 47 percent to 37 percent. This is the largest lead since the 1988 election, when Clinton led Bush by 10 percentage points, 47 percent to 37 percent.

The survey also shows that Clinton's support has risen among voters in all major demographic groups, including men and women, whites and blacks, and those who are married and those who are single.

Clinton's support has also risen among voters in all major geographic regions, including the Northeast, the Midwest, the South, and the West.

The survey also shows that Clinton's support has risen among voters in all major political affiliations, including Democrats, Republicans, and Independents.

The survey also shows that Clinton's support has risen among voters in all major income groups, including those with annual incomes of less than $10,000, $10,000 to $20,000, $20,000 to $30,000, and more than $30,000.

The survey also shows that Clinton's support has risen among voters in all major education levels, including those with a high school diploma or less, a bachelor's degree, and a graduate degree.

The survey also shows that Clinton's support has risen among voters in all major marital statuses, including those who are married, those who are single, those who are divorced, and those who are widowed.

The survey also shows that Clinton's support has risen among voters in all major racial and ethnic groups, including whites, blacks, Asians, and Hispanics.

The survey also shows that Clinton's support has risen among voters in all major religious groups, including Protestants, Catholics, Jews, and Muslims.

The survey also shows that Clinton's support has risen among voters in all major age groups, including those aged 18 to 29, 30 to 49, 50 to 64, and 65 and older.

The survey also shows that Clinton's support has risen among voters in all major gender groups, including men and women.

'Festive' mood sours over U.S. failure to disarm gunmen

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — The festive mood that greeted the arrival of U.S. forces is starting to sour over the failure of the foreign troops to disarm gunmen.

First pistols, and now AK-47 automatic rifles, have reappeared in the dust-choked streets of the capital within a few hundred yards of American positions.

U.S. and French soldiers have stopped searching cars for weapons at their checkpoints. A policy adopted as many U.S. troops moved inland to open the road for food convoys to Haidoa, where thousands face starvation.

Can GOP reclaim the political center?

Editorial

We're not No. 1! (And we're darned proud of it)

If you travel out of state much, you've surely had the conversation: "You're from Idaho? You grow a lot of potatoes there, right? And isn't that the state with all the Nazis?"

Idaho seems stuck with a national image as a backwoods breeding-ground for racist thugs. Naturally, we who are proud of our state regard that image as undeserved, and our resentment was sharpened by a monitoring group's report this week.

Klanwatch, an Alabama-based organization that keeps tabs on hate groups, reported two such groups active in Idaho. That compares with 10 in Oregon and eight in Washington.

Furthermore, Idaho's groups were not among the most active ones nationwide; those were located in Florida, Colorado, Georgia, California and Illinois. And, of the 25 murders blamed on hate groups last year, none occurred in Idaho.

So why is Idaho left holding the public-relations bag?

The main reason seems to be the highly publicized activities of The Order in the 1980s. That episode gave Idaho a reputation that is proving tough to shake — as bad reputations always are.

Living down a reputation is especially difficult when new events reinforce old perceptions. That's what happened this summer, when federal marshals laid siege to the mountain cabin of white separatist Randy Weaver.

And it doesn't help that neo-Nazis all over the country still cherish a dream of building an Aryan homeland in our corner of the world. (They're nothing if not persistent.)

All of this is both frustrating and damaging. Conceivably, a reputation for racial and social intolerance could hamper recruitment of employers to build Idaho's economy.

What can we do? For starters, we can set out our stallers straight on what kind of place Idaho is.

"Yes," we'll say sweetly, "we do grow potatoes — the best anywhere. But we don't have nearly as many Nazis as you do."

More important, we can keep reminding the hate groups that their sick dogmas are not welcome here. Whenever they show their faces, we should let them know that the Aryans' prospective "homeland" is already home to decent people who won't stand still for seeing it ruined.

Now the soul-searching begins.

Republican style

Robert L. Turner

A group called the Republican Majority Coalition delivered itself to the world on Tuesday in the media age's version of a maternity ward — a Washington press conference.

RMC members, including retiring Sen. Warren Rudman of New Hampshire, portrayed themselves as pink-cheeked harbingers of the next generation of politically viable Republicans.

Critics saw them as wrinkled rereads from a failed past who have a hard time differentiating themselves from Democrats.

The latter point is sometimes true. Yet that should create more justification rather than less for the work of a group such as the RMC.

Bill Clinton, despite conservative Republican denials, has pulled the Democratic Party toward the political center, often with the help of the Democratic Leadership Conference, upon which the RMC is partially patterned.

Many Republican conservatives would rather do philosophical battles with the most liberal wing of the Democratic Party, a fight that encourages clearer, more satisfying definitions. Several spokesmen for religious right groups and others kept up that cry this week.

But if the GOP cedes the center to Clinton and company, it may find in a long exile with calamity for the Democrats its only hope of success.

The real partisan battle has already been joined. It is to define and capture the center, and Clinton has won the first engagement.

RMC members are volunteering as front-line troops for an army already in retreat. If regular Republicans have any sense, they will support the effort.

As usual, however, the fraying began almost immediately.

Martin Mawyer, president of the Christian Action Network, called the RMC "politically absurd" and said, "I don't think it is right to reject the fundamental beliefs of the party simply to expand membership."

And Ralph Reed, executive director of Pat Robertson's Christian Coalition, said the strict anti-abortion plank in its members, who had a considerable role in making sure it stayed there this year.

The RMC sought mightily to portray itself as seeking to expand the party rather than confront its own right wing, but the founding members, including Sens. John Chafee, Nancy Kassebaum and Arlen Specter, included on their letterhead a description of the RMC as "the coalition to take back our party" — apparently from the Republican far right as much as from Clinton and the Democrats.

Meanwhile, many conservatives fume and bluster. They point to 1968, when, despite the Goldwater disaster of 1964, conservative Richard Nixon was nominated over moderate Nelson Rockefeller and went on to win the White House. But 1968 was dominated by civil rights and Vietnam. It is not likely to be a model for 1996.

The need for a new, coherent Republican language is clear. Last month, The Wall Street Journal gave L. Brent Bozell 3d, chairman of the conservative Media Research Center outside Washington, space to blast the press for letting the liberal Clinton assume a moderate label. Yet now the Heritage Foundation is saying that Clinton in his campaign made better use of conservative approaches than did President Bush.

Republicans like Rudman, Weld and, in a different way, Jack Kemp are looking toward innovative approaches and new definitions for Republican moderates. The effort is tough but also pressing. It deserves support.

Every student needs a seat

The accomplishment of already receiving more than $300,000 in contributions for the development of an auditorium to seat the whole student body truly shows Twin Falls' stand on education.

Yet, some may still not fully understand the importance of raising the additional $200,000 which is needed to seat every student. Building an auditorium with 1,000 seats may give the performing arts an environment for learning and performing, but it will fall short of the true purpose, which is to provide educational opportunities for every student. Assemblies and speakers for the student body cannot take place without an auditorium with sufficient seating. Even one seat short of the amount needed is one too many.

The remaining goal can only be reached with the efforts of everybody. Please contribute to this very worthwhile cause by donating as much as you can and help the school and community that has given all of us more than we'll ever be able to repay.

Donations can be sent to The Twin Falls School Foundation, P.O. Box 1182, Twin Falls, ID 83303-1182.

New program pleases teacher

I have been a teacher at Sawtooth Elementary School for 11 years. I have always felt that I was a good teacher, one that was concerned about my students and willing to work hard to improve my weaknesses.

Recently, our school district has adopted a program known as ODDM. Now, it seems I am working even harder than ever. But I have never been more excited about being a teacher. Why? Because I have experienced some incredible and rewarding results.

This program has given me the tools that I needed to allow success for even more of my students and to provide extra challenges for those who were already succeeding. The teachers have opened their doors in a new spirit of sharing and working together. We have a new vision to provide a quality environment and education for everyone. I support and appreciate the district's efforts in this endeavor.

If anyone has concerns or questions about any aspects of ODDM, I would love to share with you why I personally have never been more proud to be a member of my chosen profession.

Local pharmacies offer service

Quality control is not unique to mail-order pharmacies.

Do you remember the last time you had a question about your medication? You or your doctor very likely phoned your personal pharmacist for advice about your case history and record of pharmaceutical use from his prescriptions, from those of other specialists attending you and from your record of non-prescription drugs. Do you suppose you would get the same service from an anonymous mail-order drug house in another state?

The Magic Valley pharmacists are responding to the Nov. 25 Times-News article extolling the virtues of mail-order pharmacies. We are your local medication experts. We are interested in your total medication program, not just filling prescriptions for high-volume maintenance drugs.

Your personal pharmacist will welcome all questions concerning any aspect of your medications. Ask us about interactions of your prescriptions with non-prescription medications, with foods and with other medical conditions. We are here to answer questions about your drug therapy or your children's.

We are your neighbors, we pay local taxes, support our schools and charities and spend our psyches in the Magic Valley. Unlike mail-order pharmacists, we are even paying our fair share of the landfill fees!

What about hunger at home?

This whole letter is concerning the troops being sent to Somalia.

Do we really need to do this? Does USA stand for the United States of America or does it stand for U Save All? This is a real question.

Again, thousands of troops are being sent away from their families. But for what? Granted, there's millions of hungry people over there and many more dead. But you have to draw a line somewhere. The families of the troops going away are going to suffer more. Maybe it won't be starvation, but it will be loneliness and tears.

What is Christmas without a close family member nearby? What about the little kids that ask where Mommy or Daddy is? What can you tell them? You can't lie, for little kids can see lies within the eye. To me, it seems that the United States of America feels that they need to help everyone in need.

Is the government saying, "Now let's see how many troops we can lose and how many things we can help or destroy. We need to have this done by dinner tonight. I'm having my favorite — beef stew?" No. The government is saying, "It's all part of the job. Forget your family; you need to worry about other people's families."

But what strikes me as particularly odd is that the starving or the homeless in its own country. We have people dying on the streets, and the government says we that we have no money or time to help our own starving people yet they send thousands of troops to Somalia for six months or up to a year.

Don't get me wrong. I'm all for us helping the starving, but needing DNA samples for identification tells you that something is going to go wrong. I have a loved one that I forget possibly be over there, and I want him home with no scratches so that I know he escaped the political system unharmed.

For those of you who read this letter and have a loved one going to Somalia, keep your heart light for the government may just not realize that we live people that need to be helped. Maybe they'll realize it after we lose a couple of hundred people.

Help end Somalia's anguish

I think that we should be sending troops to Somalia. We have more than they do. Somalia, people die by the hundreds every day, and probably if we wait too long, Somalia will die by the thousands every day. So we must do this to stop the killing, feeding, dying and hunger.

Bible condemns homosexuality

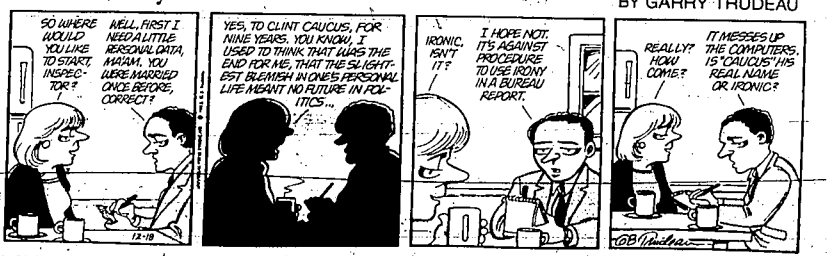

I appreciated very much last week's letter from someone letting us know that God loves the homosexual. I agree: God does love the homosexual. He states in John 3:16 that he loved us so much he sent his son here to die for our sins.

However, God does not love the act of homosexuality. He states in his word, "Thou shalt not lie with mankind as with womankind: it is abomination," and, "If a man also lie with mankind as he lieth with a woman, both of them have committed an abomination." And, "And likewise also the men, leaving the natural use of the woman burned in their lust one toward another; men with men working that which is unseemly and receiving in themselves that recompense of their error which was meet."

Limits on Indian gambling among items considered by transition team

CARSON CITY (AP) — Nevada Gov. Bob Miller pressed for limits on Indian gambling expansion during a meeting Thursday in Washington, D.C., with President-elect Bill Clinton's transition team.

After the three-hour session, Miller said he told transition team leaders he opposes recent court interpretations allowing some tribes to set up gambling in states where such gambling isn't allowed on on-reservation land.

"Our view is that the legislation was intended to give the tribes the same rights and privileges as everyone else, but not exclusivity," the governor added.

Similar concerns were voiced by the other governors at the meeting, including Cecil Andrus of Idaho, Mike Sullivan of Wyoming, Roy Romer of Colorado, and Booth Gardner of Washington.

Rich Bechtel, who runs the Western Governors' Association office in Washington, D.C., said the governors and Clinton representatives also discussed ways of resolving the gambling issue, possibly by building on trust generated by water agreements with Indians. The governors met with Vernon Jordan, chairman of the Clinton transition team, and two deputy team directors. The Nevada governor arranged the meeting two weeks ago at another transition session in Las Vegas.

Miller also voiced his opposition to a high-level nuclear dump that the federal Department of Energy wants to build at Yucca Mountain in southern Nevada. He said the governors described the project "as a good example of a process driven by politics and not by science."

The transition team also heard the governors' concerns about congressional proposals to boost grazing fees on public lands and to change the 1872 federal mining law.

"On issues affecting mining and ranching, the federal government needs to take into consideration the views of miners and ranchers and not just make an arbitrary decision," Miller said.

The said proposed changes in the mining law could impair the mining industry's ability to dig up public lands. And he said the grazing fee increases could put some ranchers out of business.

Miller said the meeting to discuss the regional meetings was "positive and upbeat," adding, "We have a president coming into office who not only understands state issues but who has also indicated a desire to receive input from the West on federal issues."

Execution set for March 3

PHOENIX (AP) — The state Supreme Court on Thursday ordered a March 3 execution for John Brewer, who has insisted he wants to die for the 1987 murder of his pregnant girlfriend.

A Cocoonino County Superior Court judge on Nov. 23 granted Brewer's requests for permission to represent himself and for dismissal of an appeal which Brewer said his previous lawyer filed against his wishes.

Convicted triple murderer Donald Eugene Harding on April 6 became the first person to be executed in Arizona in 29 years.

The next execution scheduled is for Randy Greenawalt on Feb. 17. Greenawalt, 43, was sentenced to die for the slayings of four people during a 1978 crime spree following a prison break with convicted murderer Gary Tison.

Environmentalists call for conservation search for additional water sources

LAS VEGAS (AP) — An environmental group is urging the Clark County Commission to reject a $2 billion water import plan, and to push for conservation efforts instead.

Officials of the Las Vegas Valley Water District say increased conservation is a good idea, but Southern Nevada must continue its search for additional water sources.

The water district wants to build a pipeline to import water from rural areas of Lincoln, White Pine and Nye counties. The forer began in October of 1989 when Southern Nevada officials filed an application with the state to acquire all unallocated water rights in the three counties.

State official in running to head Social Security Administration

The Associated Press

Gov. Cecil Andrus confirmed on Thursday that Stan Kress, the one-time Democratic legislator and congressional candidate who has overseen Social Security disability determinations in Idaho since 1979, is among the finalists to head President-elect Clinton's Social Security Administration.

Andrus

But during a break between meetings with Clinton transition team members in Washington, Andrus said there was no indication when the incoming president would fill those kinds of second-tier jobs in the administration.

During the meetings, however, Andrus emphasized that "if the president's programs are going to be enacted they're going to be drafted, drawn up and carried out by the professional employees in the federal government, and what you have to do is make sure you're second-tier people are qualified and have Bill Clinton's programs at heart."

Andrus, who served in the cabinet of former President Jimmy Carter as interior secretary, also said he urged the Clinton team to clean out all the Bush-Reagan appointees it can from the federal bureaucracy.

that," her said. "That's why we in America have elections."

Kress, 49, has been in charge of the state run but federally financed disabilities determination unit since 1979, the year after his second unsuccessful challenge to Republican Congressman George Hansen in the conservative 2nd District of southern and eastern Idaho.

An active Democratic partisan, Kress served one term in the state Senate in 1975-1976 before falling just 1,900 votes of unseating Hansen, who last week was convicted on 45 counts of federal bank fraud. The rematch in 1978 was not even close. Hansen won by over 20,000 votes.

Then-Democratic Gov. John Evans immediately appointed Kress to head the disabilities determination unit, and he was one of the few appointed officials Andrus kept on when he regained the governor's chair in 1987.

Kress, reportedly one of four people being considered by the president-elect, would become the highest-serving Idahoan in the Clinton administration if he were chosen far to run the Social Security Administration.

Andrus said much of his discussions with Clinton aides focused on the desire of western governors to have a voice in every issue that deals with their region of the nation as well as the need to make sure the bureaucracy, as much as possible, is manned by people committed to the policies of the new president.

The governor specifically targeted Bonneville Power Administration Director Randy Hardy as someone to be replaced, harshly criticizing the utility campaign to pressure Democrats to keep Hardy on despite his obvious GOP ties.

Show profiles Utah fugitive

FARMINGTON, Utah (AP) — A Utah fugitive who vanished before trial on child sexual abuse charges will be profiled on "America's Most Wanted," Fox Broadcasting officials have confirmed.

Donald Raymond Persson, a former psychologist in the Davis School District, is charged with raping and taking nude pictures of a 10-year-old California girl at his Bonanza home.

Fox spokesman Jack Breslin said the program is scheduled to air on Jan. 15. "America's Most Wanted," which airs locally at 7 p.m. Friday on KSTU Channel 13, features interviews and re-enactments of alleged crimes.

Viewers are given a telephone number to call if they have information for law enforcement officials on the whereabouts of the fugitives featured.

Last month, a correspondent and film crew taped the segment on Persson, 53, who disappeared in September just days before his trial.

Deer, elk migration closes motorized travel

BELLEVUE — With deer and elk migrating to their winter ranges near the Wood River Valley, the Bureau of Land Management has closed several areas to motorized travel, including snowmobiles.

The closures include Martin Canyon east of Bellevue, the south slopes above East Fork, the West Bellevue Allotment, the Big and Little Beaver areas and portions of the Blue Hills.

Big game animals can be extremely stressed at this time of year due to cold temperatures, snow, and scarcity of food, according to Scott Anderson, BLM's acting area manager.

"It is during this time of stress that harassment of the animals can be complete, their energy reserves to the extent that they may not survive the winter. The animals congregate on historic winter ranges and these areas should be avoided by motorized vehicles in order for the animals to survive," Anderson said.

The BLM plans to monitor and enforce the closures with regular patrols. Skiers or people on foot are not affected by the closures, but are advised not to approach the wintering big game animals.

Free maps of the closure areas and more information is available from Rick Vander Voet or Joe Russell at the BLM's Shoshone District Office, 400 West F St. in Shoshone, or by phoning 886-2206.

Albion, 10 others ask PUC for 12-cent per line surcharge

BOISE — Eleven small telephone companies, including Albion Telephone Co., have asked the Idaho Public Utilities Commission for a 12-cent per line surcharge for people on local rates.

The Idaho Telephone Association, which made the request on behalf of the small companies, said the extra money would cover the cost of the companies' payments for the state's telephone relay service for people with hearing and speech impairments.

The deadline for public comment is Jan. 13. The PUC said it may not hold a formal hearing on the request.

Habitat for Humanity plans benefit dinner for Jan. 24

TWIN FALLS — A benefit dinner has been scheduled to raise money for the fledgling Habitat for Humanity of Magic Valley.

The Blue Lakes Rotary Club is sponsoring the dinner on Jan. 24 at 8 p.m. at the 33-333-33-dinner-raising effort to get Habitat's efforts off the ground.

Habitat is an international organization that builds homes for the low-income who need shelter. Recipients of its aid help build the homes and pay for them with a reduced-interest mortgage.

Habitat for Humanity International has offered to match the money if the local organization's goal is reached. If all goes well, the first home will be started April 1.

For information on the dinner, call the Valley Christian Church, 733-3222, the Rev. Ed Pangburn, 734-6470, or Doug Fisher, 733-7590.

Stallings, Symms offices closed permanently last week

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley residents used to seeking help from the field offices of Rep. Richard Stallings and Sen. Steve Symms will find those doors permanently closed.

Requests for help are being turned over to Republican Sen. Larry Craig's staff instead, until Rep.-elect Mike Crapo and Sen.-elect Dirk Kempthorne get their offices going.

Democrat Stallings, who leaves office Jan. 5 following his loss to Kempthorne, moved out of his Capitol Hill office Dec. 10.

"It's a very awkward time," said Stallings' chief of staff Gary Catron. Much of the equipment in each office has been removed. "We don't have any resources at this time."

Stallings' and Symms' field offices closed last week. Their constituent caseloads have been turned over either to Craig or Democratic 1st District Rep. Larry LaRocco, depending on where the person lives.

Republican Symms, who will end his 20-year congressional career next month, has also closed his Capitol Hill and Idaho offices.

Stallings will be replaced by Idaho Falls Republican Crapo, and former Boise mayor Kempthorne takes over Symms' seat.

Board buys Milner Butte site

Regional solid waste district hopes land 12 miles west of Burley will fit the bill

The Times-News
TWIN FALLS — The remote site on Milner Butte that planners hope will fit the bill for a new regional landfill will change hands soon.

The board of directors of the Southern Idaho Regional Solid Waste District voted Thursday to buy the 480-acre site 12 miles west of Burley for the six-county consortium's first regional landfill.

The purchase price from the Pickett Cattle and Sheep Co. is $500,000.

"The sale is basically complete except for a couple of conditions," said Terry Schultz, director of solid waste district.

Hydrological information required by the state Division of Environmental Quality could be submitted as early as January, Schultz said, the first step toward building a landfill that will meet federal landfill rules that go into effect next October.

The district retains the option of buying a 500-acre site on Burley Butte, seven miles east of Milner Butte, if for some reason the Milner Butte sale can't be completed. Neighbors of the Burley Butte site, located just 4.5 miles west of Burley, have objected to putting a landfill there, however.

Part of the agenda will be negotiations for a site on Bureau of Land Management property in Lincoln County for a second landfill.

The proposed landfills are different than the one being discussed by Twin Falls County, which left the solid waste district earlier this year.

South Blaine wants out of Wood River fire district

By Michael Hofferber
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Eighty-nine of southern Blaine County's largest landholders are petitioning for secession from the Wood River Rural Fire Protection District.

Petitions bearing 132 signatures of local ranchers, retiree voters, and absentee landowners favoring secession have been submitted to the Blaine County Board of Commissioners, which must rule on the request this month. A special meeting of the commission has been set for 10 a.m. today in the Blaine County Courthouse to address the issue.

"This petition is to withdraw from the Wood River Rural Fire District. That's what the commissioners must decide," said Daryl Rogers, spokesperson for the secession movement.

Rogers said the landowners want out because their tax assessments for the district are "astronomical" — about $182 per $100,000 of assessed value — while service to outlying areas at the south end of the county remains poor.

The district's fire station in Hailey is too far away to help the residents' property insurance ratings.

"Our insurance rate is unprotected," Rogers pointed out. "It's either that or some companies will not insure out here."

Many landowners are also upset because the district has been taxing landowners based on total property value rather than the appraised value of structures only. Rogers, who lives on the Hillside Ranch, said he is being taxed on the value of the entire 1,800-acre ranch, including the woods.

"It's being taxed as if it had houses all over it," he explained.

Responding to the secession threat, the fire district's board has offered to change the tax structure to exempt unimproved properties from taxes.

"Too little, too late," Rogers responded. He said the unfairness had been ignored too long, and the general consensus of the landowners is to go through with the withdrawal.

The petitions submitted to the commissioners represent 67 percent of all the landowners and 77 percent of all the market values in southern Blaine County, Rogers figured.

Not all residents in the area agree with the secession. Janet O'Crowley of Picoabo said she was opposed to the idea.

"We need fire service here, and the closer the better," she said. "And we need the EMTs too."

O'Crowley described the secession petition as an effort by "silver-plated" landowners to avoid paying taxes. While the wealthy owners may be able to write off their fire losses, many area residents would not be able to replace their homes, she pointed out.

If the landowners' petition is approved, those whose names are included will be dropped from the fire district. Those who did not sign will remain.

"There could be isolated blocks that would remain in the Wood River Rural Fire District," said County Commissioner Tom Blanchard. Fire calls from the area could become "a nightmare" as dispatchers try to determine whether or not a burning structure is in the district before sending fire crews to the scene.

If there were 100 percent unanimity among the landowners in the withdrawal area, Blanchard said he could back the secession. Since 25 percent or so have not signed, the commissioner who represents southern Blaine County said his vote would hinge on legal arguments to be presented Friday.

Under the Idaho State Code for deannexations from special districts, the county commissioners must make a finding as to whether "the area is better off under deannexation. If so, the deannexation is approved. Blanchard questioned the definition of "area." Does it refer to just those lands owned by the petitioners? Or does it refer to the south Blaine County community as a whole? Will deannexation make either area better off?

New plan for ski area sparks ire

By Stephen Schowengerdt
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — Wally Huffman, general manager of Sun Valley Corp., gets emotional when he talks about the proposed River Run base facility.

"I've been working on this development since 1973. For 19 years, he told the Ketchum City Council Wednesday after a presentation by architect Jim Ruscetto, of Ruscetto, Latham and Blanton, on the fantastic particulars of the proposed facility.

"Thank you for the fantastic presentation," said Mayor Dan Hamilton. "I can say that I will support this 100 percent if it is built in Ketchum, but I'll oppose it 100 percent if it is in the county."

The heated discussion that followed didn't necessarily surprise anyone.

"This type of intense commercial development cries out to be within a city," said Ketchum City Administrator Jim Jaquet. He backed the comment up with the city's ability to provide police, fire and other services.

"We're not likely to request annexation in any city," said Huffman.

"But this type of development is not consistent with the Blaine County master plan," said Jaquet. Hamilton concurred.

"It is consistent," said Huffman. "The county master plan specifically speaks to the River Run development."

The plan calls for a 30,000-square-foot skier dining lodge, a 15,000-square-foot skier services building, a 16,000-square-foot, two-story maintenance building and a 9,000-square-foot storage building for equipment used on the mountain.

The skier day lodge will provide food service, ski shops, skier locker rooms, ski school offices and locker room, apres ski and dining facilities. The skier services building will house ski shops and other ski-

Kimberly School Board, teachers toast inaugural master contract

By Julie Fanslow
Times-News correspondent

KIMBERLY — Toasting the occasion with cider and holiday cookies, the Kimberly School Board on Thursday ratified the first-ever master contract between the district and its teachers.

The contract, already approved by the teachers, will mean a small raise and one-time bonus for Kimberly's 72 instructors.

The agreement also provides for another raise in the 1993-1994 school year — but only if the Idaho Legislature, pressed with varied demands, finds additional money for education in its upcoming session.

There were congratulatory remarks before the board's vote, but almost no discussion of the contract itself.

"We pretty well discussed it for three hours Saturday morning," said board Chairman Bev Shevemaker, referring to a contract study session the board held last weekend.

Although the contract covered a wide range of items including leave policy, grievance procedures and teachers' rights, salary appeared to be the main concern of most staffers.

Kimberly ranks in the bottom ten of about 110 Idaho districts in teacher pay, with salaries ranging from $16,728 to $28,967.

At the same time, Kimberly School District taxpayers are among the top five in the state in terms of tax burden, primarily due to the district's low-assessed valuation and lack of commercial activity.

The new contract will boost pay about 1 percent during the current school year, according to Paul Rosenberg, a middle school teacher and president of the teachers' union.

The raise will actually go into the part of each teacher's compensation called the "fringe pool," out of which instructors can help pay their insurance premiums. The contract raises that figure from $160 to $197.50, Rosenberg said.

In addition, teachers who taught in the district during the 1991-1992 school year will receive a one-time bonus equivalent to 1 percent of their salary, Rosenberg said.

Hagerman isn't making streets safe, parent charges

By Terrell Williams
Times-News correspondent

HAGERMAN — When a child was hit and injured by a car in Hagerman last week, Leonn Urte got mad.

The city, he told the Hagerman officials this week, is not doing enough to make streets safe for children.

"This accident was just a warning," Urte said. "This is very serious to me because I lost a son."

On Dec. 8, according to a police report, a juvenile ran from between two parked cars in downtown Hagerman into the path of a moving vehicle. The child sustained minor injuries.

The Hagerman Concerned Citizens Committee, gave the council a list of five questions, asking what the city is doing to provide police protection at schools when students are crossing streets. He asked what changes the city is prepared to make as a result of the accident last week.

"Does the City Council understand that it takes a loaded semi-truck over twice the distance to stop as a car when both are doing 35 miles per hour?" he asked. "Has anyone here ever had their child killed in a pedestrian/vehicle accident, especially involving a truck?"

Urte said Mayor Jim Martin made campaign promises to do something about protecting children in the streets. Traffic, especially trucks, go too fast through Hagerman, Urte said.

"All we have had for a year is tip service," he said.

But Councilwoman Mary Temple said this is the first time Urte has come before the council with his concerns.

"I don't know why you think you're being put off," she said. "Until you come to the council, we don't know how you feel."

Temple asked Urte what he wants the city to do.

Urte said he is asking the council what they can and will do. He charged that the city's policeman, Curt Kancaster, does not patrol at the schools when students are coming and going.

Rest area may move closer to Cassia

By Eric Goodell
Mini-Cassia News Service

BURLEY - A new rest area might be in store for Cassia County.

A Wednesday Mini-Cassia Transportation Committee meeting, it was announced that state officials are considering whether to move the Juniper Rest Area, currently just over the Cassia County line in Oneida County on Interstate 84.

"There has been talk of relocating it in Cassia County closer to the Cottrell area," committee member Bill Schaefer said.

It might be several months before the state Department of Transportation makes a decision on the rest area location, he added.

Schaefer said the move would be beneficial because radio communication is sometimes unreliable in the more remote area.

"Communication is sometimes a problem. They need to look at both telephone and radio communications to the area," Schaefer said.

If the rest area is moved, it also would provide the Mini-Cassia Chamber of Commerce a better opportunity to provide tourist information to travelers.

In fact, the new chamber would have the responsibility to provide such information, Schaefer added.

Schaefer was currently named the executive director of the newly formed chamber.

Schaefer said state officials are currently revamping rest area facilities, such as the rest area between Burley and Twin Falls.

In other action, it was announced that work is continuing to replace Downard Bridge near Deelo. Bids on the project will be opened soon, Schaefer said.

Jerome OKs new insurance policy

By H.R. Walzel
Times-News correspondent

JEROME - City Council members are pretty pleased with their insurance agent right now.

Prescott & Craig Insurance of Jerome had advised the council of a $17,000 savings that would result if the renewal date for the city insurance policy was changed, an offer the council accepted.

The new insurance policy would also give the city 100 percent replacement coverage for city equipment.

The $17,000 had not been designated for a special purpose, but would be put in the general fund, Mayor Gerald Oster said.

"This is an unexpected windfall, and added to the $38,000 savings we got from Blue Shield, we're really pleased with our insurance companies," Oster said.

A contract to have garbage picked up in the city was awarded to P.S.L. Waste Systems of Twin Falls at a cost of $71,557. The contract was about $5,000 less than last year.

In other business, the council reviewed a letter from the Jerome Civic Club stating, "Our city is littered with trash and abandoned vehicles. Let's clean up the junk."

Tabled adopting a new ordinance governing use of city parks. Oster told the council he was not entirely satisfied with the portion of the ordinance that limited assemblies to 200 people without a permit.

"Some family reunions could have that many or more, and that's not what we're trying to control," he said. The intent of the ordinance was to govern commercial uses of the parks, he said.

Approved an appeal from the Huber Feed Service for a special use permit to construct a grain storage tank. The approval was granted provided Tom Huber, owner, pave the alley between his business and the EE-DA-How Specialties cheese plant, sweep grain from the alley at least once a week, and spray for pests that have been hatching in spilled grain and then migrating into the cheese plant. Huber could be charged with a misdemeanor if he fails to comply with the provisions, Council President Elza Hall said.

Approved hiring Mark Korse as a firefighter/engineer at a salary of $1,532 per month. The council also appointed Rose Earl and Craig Kerbs as volunteer firefighters.

Heard a report from Fire chief Jim Auelaire that the Idaho Utility Commission would allow unvented gas heaters to be installed in buildings effective Jan. 1.

Announced that City Hall would close at noon on Dec. 24.

Santa's correspondent

Rupert's link to the North Pole still gets teary-eyed answering childrens' letters.

By Eric Goodell
Mini-Cassia News Service

RUPERT — Maybe the only outward similarity between Sherril Miles and Santa Claus is that both have a twinkle in their eyes.

But inside, Miles really is Santa. She's the one who answers the letters addressed to Santa Claus, the jolly old man at the North Pole.

Miles, the administrative assistant to the Rupert public works director, var-untended six years ago to answer the numerous letters flowing into the city's post office. Letters dropped off at Santa's house on the Rupert Square are also forwarded to Miles.

The number of Santa letters she received the first year might have been enough to overwhelm her.

"We got 50 to 60 letters the first year, but I sat and personally answered them all," said Miles.

But in recent years, the letters have tapered off, and this year so far Miles has received eight.

Letters range from the humorous to the ones that prompt moist eyes, Miles said. Occasionally, she said, she gets a list of gift wishes "as long as your arm."

Answering each letter requires some tact, she said, adding she never guarantees Santa will bring a gift.

"I never promise them that they'll get that bicycle or Nintendo game," she said.

To the little boys and girls who ask for numerous presents, Miles likes to point out that there are many other boys and girls who don't receive anything for Christmas.

"I stress that Santa does the best he can, but he can't get everything," she said.

Letters are sometimes received that are sad, "real tear jerkers," Miles said. "Someone wrote that their mom is really sick, and they don't want anything but to have their mom get better."

ERIC GOODSELL/Mini-Cassia News Service

Sherril Miles displays just one of the letters she has received this year that was addressed to Santa Claus. Miles, who works in the Public Works office, has penned answers to childrens' letters for six years.

It really touched my heart."

She said she answered the letter, which was received several years ago, by saying Santa, Mrs. Claus and all the animals at the North Pole were praying for the recovery of the girl's mother and urged her to have faith that everything would turn out alright.

"What else can you say," Miles asked.

On two occasions, Miles wondered if the child writing the letter might have been abused, and she has asked the police to help her investigate.

She added filling in for Santa sometimes requires a creative mind.

"I write about how the sender are doing and that the elves are finishing up their toys," she said. "It's fun to write them and to be a little creative. It makes you want to believe in yourself."

She said she hopes that children enjoy receiving her Santa letters.

"I hope they get a kick out of it," she said.

Ex-Paul principal's suit set for June 14 actively leaving Peterson unemployed.

PAUL — A June trial date has been scheduled in the case of a former Paul Elementary School principal who has sued the Minidoka County School District for removing him from his position.

The lawsuit filed by ex-principal Paul Peterson will go before U.S. District Judge Harold L. Ryan on June 14 in Boise.

It would be avoided if attorneys for both parties reach an agreement at a planned March 1 settlement conference, according to a court spokeswoman.

Peterson's administrative contract expired at the end of June. In meetings with Superintendent Michael Hefley and the district's board of trustee Peterson — who is Mormon — refused to take on the possibility that he and his wife, Priscilla, might remove their children from the county school system this year and educate them at home.

Instead of renewing his contract, the board offered Peterson a contract at the same daily pay rate to teach elementary school within the district. The offer was refused, ef-

Peterson is now working as a truck driver, and his wife is educating their school-age children at home, according to attorney Fred Hahn, who is representing Peterson.

Bishop said earlier that Peterson's contract was not renewed because both Bishop and the school board felt Peterson would be an ineffective leader if he was to home-educate his children, rather than have them attend county schools, or private institutions.

Hahn said the lawsuit contends that by not being offered another contract as Paul Elementary principal, Peterson's Constitutional rights to freedom of religion, speech and association were violated; that the action went against Idaho law, which states that under certain conditions, parents may choose to educate their children at home; and that Peterson suffered emotional distress as a result of the matter.

Brent Perry, who served as joint assistant principal of both Paul and Heyburn elementary during the past two years, is the new Paul principal.

Planners OK gravel mining operation

RUPERT — The Minidoka Planning and Zoning Commission has issued a special-use permit allowing a gravel mining operation in the western part of the county.

Richard Construction Co. requested the permit, according to county Building and Grounds Supervisor Paul Aston. The operation is to be located at 609 North 850 West, Aston said.

In other business, the commission elected Kenneth Dick on Wednesday to replace John Kensing III as commission chairman. Kensing resigned last month to prepare to take his seat on the Minidoka County Commission.

Planning commission members elected Kelly Runyon as vice chairman.

Keep snow clear from mailboxes

RUPERT — Rural residents in the Mini-Cassia area are being urged to keep their mailboxes clear of snow.

Snow piling up around the mailboxes has delayed carriers in their deliveries, according to Rupert Postmaster Ole Turner.

$2,000 in tools reported stolen from pickup

RUPERT — A Burley man says $2,000 worth of tools and other belongings are missing from his pickup that was recently involved in an accident and was towed.

Bhane Kyle Holley said he went to pick up his belongings Tuesday from the wrecked pickup at Don Brown Towing and some of the belongings were missing, according to the Cassia County Sheriff's Department.

Included in the missing items is a $1,000 hammer set.

Back end of vehicle burned Wednesday

RUPERT — The back end of a vehicle burned Wednesday night when gasoline leaked from a fuel line and ignited the car.

According to the Cassia County Sheriff's Department, Richard Emet Gornstam of the Burley area said he and his brother were driving south on Polvane Road when their vehicle quit running.

He said he noticed the fire and pushed the car into the snow in an attempt to put out the blaze.

Wendell choir schedules holiday concert tonight

WENDELL — The Wendell Junior/Senior High School Christmas Choir Concert is set for 8 tonight in the Wendell Elementary School multi-purpose room. The concert will feature Christmas music. Admission is free.

Wood River Valley singers, dancers to tell classic tale

KETCHUM — "The Promise," an annual Christmas musical production, will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Sunday and Monday at the Presbyterian Church of the Big Wood.

The 35-member choir is composed of the church choir along with community members to form the Big Wood Choir. They are joined by the Sun Valley Children's Choir and dancers from the Ballet School Foundation and the Footlight Dance Centre.

Patty Parsons directs and solos in the production, along with soloists Cindra Palmer, Laurie Herman, Judith McQueen and Dan Swanger.

"The Promise" retells Henry Van Dyke's classic Christmas tale, "The Other Wise Man." The performance will also feature the music of Michael W. Smith and Amy Grant.

With limited seating, early arrival is encouraged. Nursery and toddler care will be provided. The performance is free, but donations will be taken. For more information, call 726-5123.

New Ketchum theater plans premier weekend opening

KETCHUM — The first professional performance at the new nexStage Theatre is also the world premier of "The Bluebird, A Christmas Musical."

Staged by the Sun Valley Repertory Co., the Christmas musical based on "The Bluebird of Happiness," portrays a selfish, young girl and her brother who are taken away by the fairy Berylune on a magical journey to find the bluest bluebird. What they find on their quest, however, is the true meaning of Christmas and happiness.

The play opens at 8 p.m. Sunday and runs through Dec. 30, with no show Thursday.

All seating is reserved, with premiere seating at $20 for adults and $15 for children 12 and under. General seating is $15 for adults and $10 for children.

Tickets may be purchased by calling 726-3706 or by stopping in at the nexStage Theatre on Main Street between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Playscript by Joel Beard and composer Richard Isen of New York created this original play by commission of Kevin McCauley.

Of the 27 actors in the play, principal actors include Rachel Anestad (Myrtle), Gary Gould (Tylo), Eve Hart (Fairy Berylune), Lisa Halpern (Tylo the cat), Andrew Hixon (Tylo the dog), Stacy Brown (Light), and Marilyn Teitge (Mother Ty).

Nadine Snyder of the Ballet Foundation choreographed the dancing sequences.

Calendar features artworks, poetry by Northwest artists

TWIN FALLS — The 1993 Northwest Poets and Artists Calendar is now on sale, and entries are being accepted for the 1994 edition.

The competition is open to residents of Alaska, Montana, Idaho, British Columbia, Oregon, Washington and Northern California. Jury-selected works receive awards, are exhibited and appear in more than 12,000 deluxe, award-winning, full-color wall calendars.

Artists may submit work in any medium. Poets should submit poems of 20 lines or less, in any style or form. All entrants should submit work on a wide range of subjects. The calendar has no theme, serving, instead, as a showcase of top northwest talent.

Postmark deadline for guidelines and entry forms (specify poet or artist) is Jan. 30, 1993. Send a stamped self-addressed envelope to 15626 Pl. Monroe Drive NE, Bainbridge Island, Wash. 98110. For more information, call (206) 842-4215.

To order the 1993 calendar, send $10.95, plus $2 postage and handling, to Calendar, Bainbridge Island Arts Council, 261 Madison Ave. S., Bainbridge Island, Wash. 98110.

Dennis Sonius spent four weekends constructing a train that spells the word 'Nool' on his front lawn.

Dazzling displays

Holiday scenes light up valley homes, faces

By Denise Turner
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Santa's already arrived — on the Sonius family's front lawn.

He's riding in a train that spells out the word "Nool," and Rudolph is peeking out one of the train windows. Christmas lights are beckoning the duo to the roof of the Sonius home, at 1050 Trotter Drive.

Dennis Sonius spent four weekends constructing the brightly colored wooden display. Woodworking is his hobby, sandwiched in between the work weeks he spends as principal at Morningside Elementary School.

"Dennis wanted to make this year's Christmas display animated, with wheels turning and Santa waving, but he ran out of time," said Sonius' wife, Nancy. "Last year he made reindeer that bobbed up and down and wagged their tails."

Every Christmas, Dennis Sonius creates a new outdoor decoration.

"He always tells me he thinks the neighbors are tired of the old one," Nancy Sonius said. "I think he kind of competes with his brother in Pocatello, who strings several thousand lights on his house every year."

Nancy Sonius is in charge of the home's interior, where she decorates with homemade gingerbread houses and theme trees outfitted with items from her teddy bear collection. She does a lot of Christmas baking, too, in preparation for the arrival of the Sonius children, two sons in college.

Each year, Nancy Sonius said, her husband invites all the teachers from his school to drive by and see his new Christmas scene.

'The care he takes results in a beautiful display, his way of saying Merry Christmas to his many friends and neighbors east of Twin Falls.'

Here are some other Christmas must-sees, many of which were brought to the attention of The Times-News by area residents who nominated their favorites.

• 355 Sage St. in Kimberly: Several neighbors wrote in to describe the angels, Santas, trees, and Nativity, complete with Christmas music. One called it the home that "has it all." Another talked about the bright cheery display that "gives you the feeling of Christmas and the spirit of the holiday."

• 545 Third Ave. E. in Twin Falls: Bessie and Allen Parrott decided to create a southwestern Christmas at their house this year. They asked a friend to paint a big cactus, poinsettias and a howling coyote on their front window.

The artist added a Spanish holiday greeting, Feliz Navidad, and the Parrotts added a spotlight and a bunch of red pepper lights. "We're senior citizens and we can't put up a lot of lights," Bessie Parrott said, "but people are calling us on comment on this year's decoration."

• 2069 Rancho Vista Drive in Twin Falls: Neighbors wrote about the colorful lights and how much they enjoy looking at the display through their window.

• 291 Tyler in Twin Falls: The manger scene dominates the landscape here. The people who wrote to describe the house talked about "the smiles and eyes of all the children as they pass by." The note was signed, "All the neighbors."

• 3767 N. 3300 E. in Kimberly (three miles east on Kimberly Road from East Five Points; then ¼ mile south): "Each December, my father decorates his country home with many strands of colorful lights," Phyllis Feusahrns wrote. "The care he takes results in a beautiful display, his way of saying Merry Christmas to his many friends and neighbors east of Twin Falls."

• 228 Seventh Ave. E. in Twin Falls: The manger scene and shepherd are surrounded by light. "It's next to the Catholic Hall," wrote Marge Mayer. "It just seems to fit that area and express what Christmas means."

• 546 Pierce in Twin Falls: Here's another display filled with light. Santa and his sleigh are lending the way.

• 925 Cypress in Twin Falls: Candles, an angel, Santa and a star are outlined in light.

• 596 Pierce in Twin Falls: Here's another display filled with light. Santa and his sleigh are lending the way.

• 1924 Candleridge Drive in Twin Falls: White lights and Santa Claus make this home, on a cul-de-sac, easy to see from the street.

1668 Primrose Lane in the Meadowbrook subdivision in Buhl: BYU takes center stage at this home, in a display perched on top of the house. The white lighted "Y" is 15 feet tall. The "B" and "U" stand 12 feet high. A football hangs between the prongs of the "Y," representing a field goal. Joyce Wells wrote in to say she thinks it's a "cute way to support your favorite team for the Aloha Bowl." She added, "The big family room window is done in blue and white, and you can see it from almost 1/2 miles away."

• 1285 Twin Villa Loop in Twin Falls: Neighbors wrote in to tell of the endearing Santa and reindeer on the roof. One resident said, "We are unable to decorate outdoors this year due to illness, and their cheery display is a source of joy and Christmas spirit."

• 1244 Twin Villa Loop in Twin Falls: "Ehrhard made all the figurines and animals and painted them," wrote Fern Nielsen, describing the home of Erhard and Addie Dolse. "It depicts the fall meaning of Christmas." The display features a complete Nativity scene.

• 825 Oregon St. in Gooding: This is a grandfather-grandson project. Grandson is only 3, but he helped build a shed to hold the Nativity scene. Lights, 2,755 in all, line the house, fence and windows.

• 720 Ninth Ave. N. in Buhl: Santa brought along his reindeer and his elves in this holiday display.

• 1553 Hunt Road in Jerome: Hundreds of lights outline this display.

Holiday songs ran counter to the times

By Art Thomson
Arizona Republic

You know Dasher and Dancer and FDR and Joe McCarthy, war bonds and A-bombs and Sputnik and Elvis in the Army. — But do you recall all the Christmas songs these two generations reflect? (But your two front teeth you don't.)

While your mind is prancing through the decades, remember that lyrics of popular Christmas songs don't always mean anything about what was going on in the world when they were written.

The best-selling Christmas song of all time, Irving Berlin's "White Christmas," is the antithesis of the war-torn world of the time it was written (1954).

And "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer" was no reference to Churchill's lead war dog, having nationalistic offshoots leading to a ban in 1949. — The war-time song was written.

Christmas special filmed in Sun Valley features skating greats Witt, Boitano

Patricia Witt and Kitty Carruthers perform in Sun Valley for a Christmas special airing Saturday.

The Times-News

SUN VALLEY — Turn on your television sets at 7 p.m. Saturday to catch "Disney's Christmas Fantasy on Ice."

The one-hour Christmas special was filmed on and around Sun Valley Co.'s Outdoor Ice Skating Rink in November.

The show features such skating greats as Katarina Witt, Brian Boitano, Scott Hamilton and Peter and Kitty Carruthers.

Thirty local children also appeared in the film, singing in a horse-drawn sleigh at the ice rink.

Families and children alike are waiting to see if their child got "yes" in the editing process or if they made it on national television.

"It was the biggest production I've ever seen here," said Shannon Chesyan, publicity director for Sun Valley Co. The 60-minute special will air on Channel 11 in Twin Falls and on Channel 11 and Channel 2 in the Wood River Valley.

PRELUDE TO A KISS 2 stars. (1992) (Fox) $94.98. 106 minutes. Alec Baldwin, Meg Ryan, Kathy Bates, Ned Beatty, Patty Duke. An extended commercial for Molson's Ale masquerading as a romantic comedy. The stars brandish bottles of the stuff at every opportunity. An engaging first half done in by a sappy supernatural plot turn involving a switch of personalities. PG-13 (profanity).

MUSIC AND DANCE:

THE BLACK SABBATH STORY VOLUME 2 - 1978-1992. (Warner) Reprise $19.98. 50 minutes. The later years of the British heavy-metal band. Songs include "Neon Knights" and "Zero the Hero."

CHICAGO - AND THE BAND PLAYED ON (1992) (Warner) Reprise $19.98. 60 minutes. A look back at the career of the pop band. Songs include "Beginnings" and "Color My World."

LIONEL RITCHIE - BACK TO FRONT (1992) (PolyGram) $19.95. 60 minutes. Anthology of the singer's biggest hits. Songs

CLASS ACT 3 stars. (1992) (Warner) $94.99. 100 minutes. Christopher Reid, Chris Martin. High school version of "Trading Places" with Kid 'N Play as bookish nerd and street hoodlum whose academic records accidentally get mixed up on the first day of their senior year. Though entirely predictable, the film is so visually inventive for its first hour that it has the feeling of an original story. PG-13 (profanity, sexual candor). (Available on videocassette.)

TOUCHSTONE $94.95. 101 minutes. John Ritter, Carol Burnett, Christopher Reeve, Michael Caine. Michael Frayn's hit play is a satirical celebration of force, where the manic action onstage is triumphantly upstaged by Elvis was only 13 in 1948, when Billy Hayes and Jay Johnson wrote the Christmas, The King later produced the most popular recording of the time.

Underdog Harry Truman won the affections of the American people that year and went on to defeat the more popular Dwight D. Eisenhower in the most debated political upset in history. Mohandas K. Gandhi was assassinated by a Hindu extremist, the Soviet Union banned all land traffic to Berlin, and McDonald's was franchised.

In 1950, when "Frosty the Snow Man" reared thump-et-y thump thump over the hills of snow, something far different was resounding in Korea. North Korea invaded South Korea, and U.S. ground forces entered the fray. China got into the war, and U.N. troops were forced to retreat.

In 1951, with the U.S. troop buildup in Korea at 250,000 and FBI boss J. Edgar Hoover warning that Communists were going underground, Americans were ready for something to remind them that Christmas was around the corner.

Meredith Willson did, with his hit, "Beginnings to Look (A Lot) Like Christmas."

Tommy Connor wrote a musical tribute to the fathers who reconstruct their appearances on Christmas Eve. "I Saw Mommy Kissing Santa Claus," recorded by 12-year-old Jimmy Boyd, took a different side of Jolly Old St. Nicholas.

And while Santa was stealing a kiss from Mom, President Truman was ordering the seizure of steel mills to avert a strike. Truman ultimately decided not to seek re-election, and retired Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, a Republican, won the presidential election in a landslide.

Like most of the only immensely popular American personality, the beloved Lucille Ball appeared pregnant on her TV show, and Jack Webb started gathering the facts — just the facts — as the legendary TV series "Dragnet" debuted.

In 1957, he was still in the White House, the Soviets were testing missiles powerful enough to reach the United States, and the influence of rock-and-roll was dominating.

"Jingle-Bell Rock" reached the top of the Christmas-music chart that year — a half century after "Jingle Bells" was written by James Pierpont.

The Soviets were still ahead in the space race in 1958, but the U.S. Army had perhaps a greater victory, snaring Elvis Presley that year.

The faint sound of drums draped in millions of ears as "The Little Drummer Boy" beat a path to the top of the best-seller song list.

The Kingston Trio was hot, the world hung its head in sorrow at the death of Pope Pius XII and Pope John XXIII was elected.

New pop and novelty Christmas tunes poured out of publishing houses from the '50s to the '70s. But few had the compositions of the '40s and '50s were never matched in their ability to catch Americans' fancy.

"When Gene Autry recorded "Rudolph," I don't think he had any knowledge that it would become part of the common culture of Christmas. University of Arizona song historian Follet said, "He recorded it at a time when virtually every artist could record a new song. There was more of an emphasis on the song than on the performance."

Michener at 85

With more than 35 books, the legend doesn't look back

NEW YORK (AP) — "I'm a storyteller," says James Michener, seated in a chair by the window, a glass of water in his hand and a cane to his left.

It sounds as if he means his career. BUT Michener's best story is his life. He tells it well.

In a pin-striped suit and best-his posture ramrod straight, he looks more like the Navy lieutenant commander he once was than the best-selling novelist he became.

Now 85, Michener is in the twilight of his career. With more than 35 books behind him and America's highest civilian award, the Presidential Medal of Freedom, Michener could be forgiven if he just took it easy.

James Michener has written more than 35 books, and his latest epic, 'Mexico,' is on the best-seller lists. — AP photo

But for Michener, age seems just a minor inconvenience. He's just back from two trips, one to Antarctica and one tracing the voyage of Christopher Columbus from Genoa, Italy, to San Salvador.

His latest epic, "Mexico," has been on best-seller lists. Michener began the book in 1961; he abandoned it and the manuscript was thought to have been lost.

In the kind of twist that marks some of his books, a cousin found the missing manuscript during an exhaustive search last year of Michener's Pennsylvania home.

Michener finished "Mexico" and recently has handed in another book to his publisher. He has no desire to slow his prolific pace.

"Everything I ever did in my life I enjoyed," says Michener during a recent interview with his wife and cousin.

Michener never sought a job or asked for a raise or promotion. It always came to me.

Michener is one of the most successful writers of the 20th century, happily married for 37 years. He gives the impression of a charmed life. But tell him that and he flinches perceptibly.

"You must remember I was a founding," he says abruptly. "The only years were incredibly difficult. I had a very tough time."

He is then silent for a minute. He looks up. "But I'm a pretty tough guy."

Michener's childhood was given shape in his recent autobiography, "The World Is My Home." He says he doesn't like to dwell on his past. In fact, he doesn't even know too much about it.

Michener has spent his life obsessively chronicling the history of states, countries and epochs from top grades in school and was a star athlete as a teenager. But his interest in writing was kindled by jealousy from many of the people with whom he grew up.

Michener ran afoul of his high school principal when he was 14. Despite his academic record, the principal told him he should study to become a plumber.

A few years later, when Michener won a full scholarship to Swarthmore College, the same principal visited Mabel Michener and told her Michener shouldn't go.

"He told her that I would do badly and bring shame on the school," Michener says, a rare moment of bitterness seeping into his voice.

Michener finished Swarthmore and he smiles, "everything came easily after that. I had all my negatives pretty early."

The war changed his life.

"I represent a lot of people my age who when they were in the world never be the same people again," he says. "We were driven in upon ourselves. It drives you back to the fundamentals. We weren't going back to be the routine dodos we were before."

Michener "stumbled" into writing and began by getting up at 4 a.m. to write before going to work. Discipline, he says, is the key to his success. He does most of his research himself.

Michener says he has made his peace with those who see him as a commercial rather than literary writer.

"I have been a popular writer but the public made me that, not the books," he says. "I don't know if they see the whole picture."

Michener's childhood was given shape in his recent autobiography, "The World Is My Home." He says he doesn't like to dwell on his past. In fact, he doesn't even know too much about it.

Michener has spent his life obsessively chronicling the history of states, countries and epochs from her two sisters in Bucks County, Pa. He doesn't know how he got to her. He never asked.

In those days we never talked about those things," Michener says. "When you have a childhood like mine and you survive, it gives you strength. The hell of it is, many don't survive."

Michener has no quarrel with the woman who raised him, Mabel, whose surname he took. He calls her "incredibly loving."

But he says growing up as an abandoned orphan of unknown parentage in a small rural town, in the first quarter of the century was hard. Food and money were scarce. Michener wore only hand-me-down clothes until he was 14. Fathers in town wouldn't let Michener enter their daughters.

Michener always had a strong sense of self-preservation. He got

For children, books more precious than toys

By Beth Danjop Knight-Ridder News Service

Granted they aren't hyped on Saturday morning commercials (though they ought to be, if we wish to nurture a new generation of readers).

They don't break. They don't go out of date. Well cared-for, they can be passed from one generation to the next. Indeed, books as Christmas gifts might not elicit the resounding squeals of glee that other presents may, but this is a mother's guarantee: Long after the trendy toys are in the garage, ignored or unused — or even unusable — the books will still be a source of pleasure to the child on your gift list.

This year, there is an unusual number of high-quality books for giving — well-written, beautifully illustrated volumes that are certain to be long-lasting remembrances of this holiday season.

This marvelous volume of 25 stories from 19 countries comes to us from Oxfam, a 50-year-old international organization offering aid to people in developing nations. The stories — fables, fairy tales, folk yarns — are beautifully illustrated, each by a different artist.

"Peace on Earth: A Book of Prayers from Around the World." Collected and illustrated by Bijou LeTord. Doubleday, $18. All ages.

This is a tender book, sweet to look at and a sweet to read. The poems selected by Bijou LeTord are prayers of praise. Some are traditional folk poems; others are taken from the Bible. LeTord's watercolor illustrations are delicate and pale, just as sweet as the poems she has selected.

"Home." Edited by Michael J. Rosen. Charlotte Zolotow. $16. All ages.

porch or the magical flower garden that bursts into bloom; it's the mysteries of the closet or the attic or the refrigerator. This is truly an inspirational little book with wonderful writing and illustrations.

"Where's My Teddy." Jerry Althorough. Candlewick. $14.95. Ages 2 to 4.

This is one of the sweetest and most appealing new books to be published this season for very young children. It comes from a new publisher specializing in bringing high-quality children's books from England to America. It has a simple, rhyming text — a boy named Eddie has lost his teddy, Freddie — and illustrations bound to keep young children rapt.

"Carnival Time." Vivian Saffari. Illustrated by Kazu. Simon & Schuster. $14. Ages 2 to 4 (possibly for beginning readers, as well).

A first book for both author and illustrator, "Carnival Time" is lovely and simple. The text is minimal, but the subject is different from that of most children's books. Thus there are balloons and clowns and experiences that might be new but nonetheless mesmerizing. Most books aimed at very young children depend on clear, unembellished pictures, and these are quite different in that respect, more art than illustration.

"How to Hunt Buried Treasure." James Dean. Illustrated by Bruce Kelly. Houghton Mifflin. $15.95. Ages 8 and up.

This book is bound to occupy hours, and provide lots of enjoyment for young treasure-hunters. It is not simply a how-to book — though there's plenty of advice in it. "How to Hunt Buried Treasure" is full of historical anecdotes and adventures told in a charming fashion. It also expands the idea of what treasure is, more than money buried in the sand.

"Fairy Tales from Hans Christian Andersen." Compiled by Russell Ash and Bernard Highton. Chronicle. $16.95. All ages. (Can be read aloud to younger children.)

Not all children should pass by without Hans Christian Andersen's fairy tales, and this edition is especially fine. The stories are the classics — among them "The Little Mermaid," "The Little Match Girl," "The Ugly Duckling."

"Home is what you take away each time you leave the house," writes Michael J. Rosen in this superb collection, a fund-raising effort for Share Our Strength, a hunger relief organization. For "Home," 30 distinguished children's authors and illustrators waived their royalties, and all proceeds go to aid homeless children.

"Home" is an anthology of writings about an idea — the meaning of home — revealed in glimpses. For children especially, home is that special space under the back of the magical flower garden that bursts into bloom; it's the mysteries of the closet or the attic or the refrigerator. This is truly an inspirational little book with wonderful writing and illustrations.

Holiday books capture magic of Hollywood

By Vance Durgin Orange County Register

With the holidays nearing, it's once again the season for book about Hollywood, the movies and movie stars — just in time for your film buffs on gift lists — we know you're out there.

This year, book buyers' choicestable book about Hollywood that's had nearly as much media play as Madonna's recent metal-covered effort to some intelligent biographies, and a long-awaited book that answers those unanswered questions about "Casablanca" (Who really wrote "Here's looking at you, kid?")

Here's the best of what's out there for buff and non-buff alike:

A DAY IN THE LIFE OF HOLLYWOOD: Collins Publishers (224 pages, $45)

This latest in the popular "Day in the Life" series of coffee-table books is the product of 75 top photographers who turned their lenses on the film capital for 24 hours on May 20. The 150,000 images that resulted were pared down to 225 that are supposed to capture the essence of time/fun.

Whether or not that essence is in these pages is surely in the eye of the beholder, but there can be little argument that the images themselves are strangely fascinating. A huge foldout aerial view of the Chinese Theater storecourt, printed within a panoramic view of the Orpheum's auditorium is only the beginning. We get to see stars and agents at work, technicians at play and craftspeople turning fantasy into reality. Tourists looking for stars and wanna-be's looking for fame.

MARLENE DIETRICH: LIFE AND LEGEND: by Stephen Bach; William Morrow & Co. (626 pages, $27); BLUE ANGEL: THE LIFE OF MARLENE DIETRICH: by Donald Spoto; Doubleday (333 pages, $24)

Of two new Marlene Dietrich biographies, Stephen Bach's "Marlene Dietrich: Life and Legend" clearly is the work of choice. The product of six years of research and writing, Bach's book may be the definitive biography of the star. Bach even learned German so he could conduct interviews in that language — all the better to get closer to his subject.

ROUND UP THE USUAL SUSPECTS: THE MAKING OF CASABLANCA — BOGART, BERGMAN AND WORLD WAR II, by Aljean Harmetz; Hyperion (402 pages, $24.95)

Aljean Harmetz, who explored the making of "The Wizard of Oz" in an entertaining book a few years ago, gives "Round Up the Usual Suspects" the same care and attention in research and writing. Bach's book that's really worthy of the movie, one of Hollywood's most enduring.

PLEASE DON'T DRINK AND DRIVE

It's Nobody's Business

"It's nobody's business what I drink. I care not what my neighbors think. Or how many laws they discover. I'll tell the world 'I'll have my glass.' Here's one man's freedom and the correct. My rights to drink are unassailable."

So he drank in spite of law or man. Then got into his old tin can. Stepped on the gas and let it go. Down the highway to and fro. He took the curves at fifty miles. With bleary eyes and a drunken smile.

Not long till a car had tried to pass. Then crash, a scream and breaking glass. The other car was upside down. About two miles from the nearest town.

The man was clear but his wife was caught. And he needed the help of that drunken son. About two miles from the nearest town.

And heard the scream and saw the blaze. But too far gone to save a life. By helping the car from off the wife.

The car was burned, and a mother died. While a husband wept and a baby cried. And a drunk sat by — and still some think it's nobody's business what they drink.

Soap mags buck downward trend

NEW YORK (AP) — Like sand through an hourglass, magazines devoted to daytime soap operas suddenly have begun to flood newsstands at a time when many publications are folding.

Some of the "firing" books found now are those which include features, photo spreads, favorite recipes and other creative items among the stars of the 11 daytime serials.

In recent years, the hard-line magazine industry has lost a number of established magazines. Comme ça Va folded earlier this year. Men's Life, So Did Men's Life, Time, Egg and Memories, Family Media Inc., which published Discover, Health and five other magazines, folded in 1991.

Counter to the trend, soap magazines were growing in number. There are now seven magazines devoted to soap operas, five of which were begun in just the last four years.

Magazines devoted to daytime soap operas have grown in recent years while others types of magazines have faltered.

The magazines range from the guiding light of all daytime periodicals, glossy Soap Opera Digest (circulation 1 million) to recent upstarts, such as the National Enquirer's Soap Opera Magazine (circulation 350,000).

The others include Soap Opera Weekly, Soap Opera Illustrated, Soap Opera Update, Episodes and the venerable Daytime TV. Daytime TV began publishing in 1970 and has a circulation of 180,000. It also publishes seven special editions during the year.

It just exploded," said Lynn Leachy, editor-in-chief of Soap Opera Digest, which began publishing in 1975. "We were a well-kept secret for awhile. Then other people compare it to what kind of market this was."

The company which publishes Soap Opera Digest, K-III, was among the first to catch on. They have since started up Soap Opera Weekly (circulation 500,000) and characters are almost like members of their family."

Three months after ABC started advertising its brand new "Episodes" on television in 1989, circulation reached 1 million, a record for the magazine publishing industry, Abrams said.

The magazines aren't exactly bold and beautiful. Some are TV-Guides sized and printed on slick paper; some look like full-size magazines and others are sold at supermarket checkout stands.

Topics covered in the magazines sound as if they come from another world.

Movies offers audience chance at editing

NEW YORK (AP) — It's billed as the world's first interactive movie, a 20-minute film so revolutionary that some compare it to the first talkie, "The Jazz Singer."

Al Jolson's famous words in the 1927 movie were: "You ain't heard nothing yet." The motto for "I'm Your Man," the world's first interactive film, might well be: "You ain't seen nothing yet."

The film offers audiences the chance to choose from 68 plot lines and determine the fate of the characters and the film's ending.

"After 85 years, movies have told people to sit down, be quiet and watch," said Bob Bejan, 32, who developed the idea with partner, Bill Friedman, 38.

"This is the first thing that says, 'Don't just sit there!'"

The film's premiere was scheduled for Wednesday night in New York City. It stars A. Whitney Brown of "Saturday Night Live," Jack Beamer, Richard Hewitt and soap opera actress Colleen Quinn.

The creators describe the film as a "boy-meets-girl story that gets a little wacky." They promise romance, humor and life-threatening situations.

Bejan, a former Broadway dancer, TV single writer and commercial director, developed the concept partly as a way for upright, cubicle- and computer-bound yuppies to interact.

"It's also a social game," Bejan said. "Everything in technology of our culture has made us isolationist. It's great that we've progressed to the point where you can be alone in your little cubicle in this zone where no one can get to you. But it's also good to connect."

Loews Theaters specially equipped one of its Manhattan theaters for "I'm Your Man" and will be opening seven more Interfilm theaters during the next eight weeks — in Baltimore, Chicago, Houston, Boston, New Jersey, Washington, D.C., and Levittown, N.Y.

Tickets cost $3.

Using high-tech devices at each seat, the audience can push buttons to state preferences at designated plot junctures. The majority rules.

"Anybody who's ever played a video game or seen a movie will enjoy it," said Bejan. "It's squarely in between. The audience makes all the choices. You're literally making the experience you're watching."

Bejan, who wrote and directed the movie, said he expects a lot of shouting in the audience during vote breaks. Results are instantly tallied and displayed on the screen and the film moves ahead in the chosen direction.

"It acts like an icebreaker," Bejan said.

"Barriers between people break down. It's time to remember that interacting with the person next to you is important. When the lights come up at the end of this movie, instead of a bunch of strangers it's a group of people who all know each other."

"It has the potential to be an even more radical break than 'The Jazz Singer,'" said Art Simon, a film historian who teaches at New York University. "There was a certain level of audience passivity that never changed from the silents to the talkies. But with all the arguing and debating going on in the theater with this, the whole level of participation changes."

"I'm Your Man," produced for $370,000, was shot on Kodak Super 16mm film and transferred to instant access, laser disk technology — allowing for what the filmmakers call immediate, seamless changes on screen.

In 30 percent of test screenings, the audience chose a nontraditional ending: the bad guy won, Bejan said.

Five-on-six more of the short movies are planned, and a full-length feature could be ready in two years. "We have to get people used to it," he said.

"I'm Your Man" is not the first to offer audiences versions of the same story.

Three different prints of the 1985 movie "Clue," were shipped to theaters so audiences saw different endings, depending on when and where they saw the film.

Party guest opens mouth, inserts foot.

DEAR ABBY: Last week at a dinner party, I was asked what my husband does for a living. I replied, "He's a podiatrist."
"The questioner looked at me rather smugly and said, "Oh, so he's not a real doctor!"

Dear Abby
Abigail VanBuren

Abby, I wish to inform your readers that my husband and all podiatrists are "real" doctors.

My husband earned a pre-med degree from a major university, then he completed four years of medical school, which placed emphasis on the leg, ankle and foot. He then completed two years of a hospital residency in his specialty.

Today, he is a highly skilled foot and ankle surgeon. He admits patients to hospitals and prescribes medications. The only difference between my husband and an M.D. are the letters at the end of his name - podiatrists are D.P.M.s, which means "Doctor of Podiatric Medicine."

There are many diabetics in our community who might have lost their limbs to amputation-were it not for the highly specialized skills of my husband.

Please let your readers know this, as I am speaking for many.

FOOT DOCTOR'S WIFE
DEAR WIFE: Since some people may not know what a podiatrist is, the next time you are asked what your husband does for a living, say, "He's a surgeon."

He has earned that prestigious title.

DEAR ABBY: Whenever my mother-in-law buys my 4-year-old daughter a pretty dress, she says (to me), "When Elaine grows out of this, I want you to send it to her little cousin in Tacoma."

On one particular occasion she asked, "If I buy Elaine that doll we saw in the window yesterday, will you see to it that she gives it to so-and-so (another relative) when she's finished with it?"

I guess it never occurred to my mother-in-law that I might want to give these things to someone else after Elaine has outgrown them.

"Am I overreacting? Or is it OK to give a gift and tell the recipient what to do with it when it's time to dispose of it?"

BURNED UP IN BREMERTON

DEAR BURNED UP: No. Once a gift is given, it belongs to the recipient to do with as he or she chooses. To instruct the recipient to give it to so-and-so is a gift with strings attached, which is not much of a gift.

DEAR ABBY: I am having a very annoying problem. I am receiving advertisements for junk mail for obscene, pornographic literature.

I have written to stop in the "hasn't" helped. I also went to my local post office to see if the people there could stop it, but they said to just throw the mail away and sooner or later it would stop being sent. It just keeps coming.

Please! Tell me how I can stop it.

HAD IT IN REDWOOD FALLS, MINE

DEAR HAD IT: You see you are alone. People from coast to coast are plagued with junk mail of all kinds. Many have been helped.

Rolling Stones reap new life out of individual projects

By Gary Graff
Knight-Ridder News Service

Mick Jagger has just completed a new solo album.

Keith Richards recently released his record, has played some shows in Argentina and is looking toward January for some North American concerts.

Ron Wood also has an album out and is playing a tour of U.S. clubs.

Add Charlie Watts is lying low after releasing his third jazz album, "A Tribute to Charlie Parker."

With the warm satisfaction of their 1989-90 world tour still glowing in their souls — and, presumably, in their bank accounts — the Stones are rolling along these days.

A few years ago that was reason for worry. It might have been seen as a chink in what many consider to be the world's greatest rock 'n' roll band.

But that's no longer true. The individual Stones, who plan to reconvene in March for a new album and tour, say these busman's holidays are reasons for celebration rather than concern. They're musical elixirs that keep the Stones fresh, involved, vibrant — and ready to play together again.

"I used to think that one of the most important things about the Stones was that they stuck together and did their thing and that's it," guitarist Richards, 48, explains. "We reached that point where you realize you can't stay inside there all the time."

"This way, I can look forward to going back there. I know everyone's been playing. It gives the Stones a chance to do something else: to forge ahead instead of catching up to our past. In order to keep the Stones together — at this stage, we need to work outside of them as well."

Wood, who began releasing solo albums before he joined the Stones in 1975, agrees. Making those records, "keeps your clips together, keeps the hands and throat going. When the Stones do get together, we'll all be fired up from having done our own projects. We'll be more ready to play together again."

And unlike the mid-'80s, when the Stones were gathering moss and seemed on the verge of quitting, the Stones' future seems secure.

"Oh, they'll do it again," says Bernard Fowler, a backup singer on the Stones' last tour who appears on Richards' "Main Offender" and co-produced Wood's "Slide on This." "I think they've been buzzing since their last tour. They're ready to go out and do it again."

No one is happier about this renewed commitment than Richards. The musician most loyal to the Stones, his dedication to the band kept him alive through sometimes debilitating drug addictions during the '70s.

When Jagger decided to start making solo albums during the mid-'80s — at the expense of a hoped-for Stones tour — it was Richards who cried foul. He engaged his childhood friend and songwriting partner in an angry verbal battle that was waged mostly through the press. Things became so bitter that the end seemed inevitable: bassist Bill Wyman used the past tense when he spoke about the Stones to the European press.

— Even as his own solo debut,

"Talk Is Cheap," flopped critically in 1988, Richards' tone was not entirely joyful. "I felt like I had failed," he says. "I couldn't keep my band together."

With the Stones a going concern again, Richards says, "Main Offender" was an easier album to make. "Before, he explains, "there was this horror that if I started doing solo albums, every time I wrote a song I'd be putting myself in a conflict of interest — do I keep it or give it to the Stones? I didn't want to put myself in that position. "Now I have an easier time balancing the two."

A few rough spots loom on the horizon. One is Jagger's solo album, "Wandering Spirit." Though it has garnered quite a bit of favorable advance word, its release has been delayed until Feb. 9.

Richards may crack that "I much prefer not going head-to-head with Mick," but a February release with all its attendant promotion nudges awfully close to the Stones' March start-up plans. Nonetheless, "if Mick says, 'I need a couple of weeks,' so what?" says Richards. "Of course, he'll get it."

The bigger problem is Wyman, a founding Stone and the band's designated historian. The 56-year-old bassist, who recently endured a bitter divorce from his 19-year-old wife, Mandy, has told British reporters that he was through with the Stones.

Richards and Wood surmise that it has something to do with a fear of flying. "On the last tour, he went as many places by car as possible," Wood remembers. But they promise only limited sympathy for their compatriot.

Stones produce long list of solo works

Knight-Ridder News Service

Though they've only recently become comfortable with extraband careers, the Rolling Stones have produced a library of solo albums that dates back to bassist Bill Wyman's "Monkey Grip" in 1974. It even includes the posthumous release in 1971 of original guitarist Brian Jones' "Brian Jones Presents the Pipes of Pan at Joujouka."

- output by the current Stones' lineup:
MICK JAGGER:
"She's the Boss," 1985
"Primitive Cool," 1987
KEITH RICHARDS:
"Talk Is Cheap," 1988
"Main Offender," 1992
RON WOOD:
"I've Got My Own Album to Do," 1974
"Now Look," 1975
"Gimme Some Neck," 1979
"1234," 1981
"Slide on This," 1992

Mariah Carey, Michael Jackson, Kris Kross lead music nominees

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Mariah Carey, Michael Jackson and pop duo Kris Kross topped a list of nominees announced Tuesday for the 25th Annual American Music Awards.

Winners of 25 awards in six categories — pop-rock, country, soul-rhythm and blues, adult-contemporary, heavy metal-hard rock and rap-hip-hop — will be announced Jan. 25 during an ABC-TV special from Los Angeles. Bobby Brown, Gloria Estefan and Wynonna will be hosts of the three-hour show.

Carey got six nominations to lead the list of nominees announced by Pat Benatar and Eddie Money during a news conference at the Beverly Hills Hotel Jackson and Kris Kross got five nominations apiece.

Country music's "Achy Breaky Heart" sensation Billy Ray Cyrus got four nominations and Garth Brooks, Genesis, Vanessa Williams and the groups Arrested Development and TLC each got three nominations.

Other multiple nominees included Michael Bolton, Boyz II Men, Brooks & Dunn, En Vogue, Vince Gill, Jodeci, Patti LaBelle, Reba McEntire, Pearl Jam, Red Hot Chili Peppers, Pearl Jam and Wynonna.

Winners will be selected by the public through a national sampling of approximately 20,000 record buyers. The sampling takes into account geographic location, age, sex and ethnicity.

Names of nominees were based upon calculations involving year-end sales and air play data. The information was supplied by a music industry trade publication, Radio & Records, and SoundScan Inc., a computerized point-of-sale tracking system that compiles sales data from more than 10,000 record-retail outlets.

In addition to a variety of performances, the show will also feature presentation of the non-competitive Award of Merit for outstanding contributions to music. Past winners include Bing Crosby, Irving Berlin, Ella Fitzgerald, Elvis Presley and Paul McCartney.

The complete list of categories and nominees included:

Trolls make big hit this Christmas

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Tarah Foster knows what she wants for Christmas, and it's not pretty. It's one of those wide-eyed, stumpy dolls with a big nose, big ears and colorful hair that stands straight up — a troll.

"They're neat because some of them are weird, but in a different way they're cute," said 11-year-old Tarah.

An ugly but endearing face and a modest price have made the troll a megastar in the toy world, where good looks obviously aren't everything.

Toy watchers say nostalgia did for the troll what movies and television cartoons do for toys like Batman and Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles. Trolls were introduced to the United States about 1960, and were playthings for children who are parents today.

In her bedroom in the Pittsburgh suburb of Plum, Tarah has about 60 trolls, some of them attached to earrings and hair bands. Her mother, Marie, 36, had a few trolls herself as a child.

Retail sales of trolls and troll paraphernalia could reach about $700 million this year, toy analysts estimate. They were the top-selling toy in the United States this year, said the trade magazine Playthings.

Many trolls sell for under $10, which means parents can keep their children happy and stay within their budgets.

Trolls have changed along with the times. Thirty years ago, their clothes were simple felt tunics or loin cloths. Today's trolls come in all shapes and sizes with a variety of costumes and accessories.

Tarah Foster, 11, has hundreds of trolls in her Plum, Pa., home. Toy-watchers say nostalgia did for the troll what movies and television did for other hot toys, such as Batman and Ninja Turtles.

At the Fun Services gift shop in Monaca, the shelves are filled with trolls ranging from 1 inch to 2 feet tall and accessories such as key chains, magnets, jewelry and slippers.

Trolls come in all ages, making them popular with grown-ups, too. There are baby trolls in diapers, teenagers with boom boxes, middle-aged trolls with graying hair and even elderly trolls.

Trolls are outfitted for every sport, nationality and occupation, including the priesthood. There's even a male dancer troll with tiny briefs and a tie.

Trolls got their start in Scandinavia where for centuries they were depicted as wart-nosed, supernatural "cave-dwellers" in folklore. Danish artist Thomas Dam carved a friendly-looking troll for his daughter in the 1950s and eventually began manufacturing them in the United States in the early 1960s.

No one knows exactly who took off, but many say the troll's homeliness is what made it attractive.

Homely dolls have won hearts before — Remember Cabbage Patch Kids dolls? Dam coined the phrase "they're cute."

...ing parents of their youth

'We're always products of what we grow up with.'

John Cimino, shopper

To satisfy the need, children's items are being marketed to parents. Remember the Blythe doll?

Does the 40-power Earth and Space telescope look familiar? Back memories? How about the Uncle Milton's Lascramm? Am I making sense?

Could there be anything more nostalgic than the Tootsie Roll Aerial Ladder, the toy truck with a shiny new coat of bright red paint and a long, white ladder that could reach the sky?

Yes. Rarely. And Joan Cimino had her eye on the Hoopz, but snubbing doll "You know what? Not for me." I'm taken by you.

She bought the Tootsie Roll grandchild, the Tootsie Roll Grandchild, the Tootsie Roll Grandchild, the Tootsie Roll Grandchild.

"We're always products of what we grow up with," she said.

And that would explain the products we buy, like those hideously cute dolls, the creatures with the gravity-defying hair.

As with many other things, when it comes to buying toys, it's easier to figure out what you don't want. "I don't want anything that makes noise," Greene said.

Shopping for childrens' gifts becomes easier

By Evelyn Petersen Knight-Ridder News Service think your child should have or not have.

Q. Looking at all the toys available this season is mind-boggling. Can you give me tips to make my shopping for the kids easier? —K.L. Mt. Seneca, Mich.

A. Here are some tips on shopping for kids:

- Think about your child's personality and interests before you shop. Write down your ideas so that you won't walk into a store and become overwhelmed by the myriad of choices or intimidated by the promotions.
- Don't allow peer pressure or ads to sway your decisions. Focus on what you can afford and what you Don't give your kids anything and everything they want. Teach them about delayed gratification. In real life we do not get all good things immediately just because we want them. Children need to learn this.

If money is tight, be honest and explain this to your kids; find alternatives, and make some of the gifts. Protecting them by keeping them ignorant of budgeting realities is not in their best long-term interest. Learning to cope with financial restrictions is a life skill.

Try to buy open-ended toys and activities that are failure-proof and that grow with the child. Art and construction materials increase motor, thinking and creative skills. Gifts such as blocks, Legos, Tinkertoys, Lincoln Logs, paints, crayons, paper, clay, board games and books are tried, true and timeless.

Think about gifts that will allow your child to make gifts for others for next year's birthdays and holidays. Hobby- and craft stores offer wonderful ideas for every age group. Children need to experience personally the special joy of making and giving to others, whether it is a made-up story or poem, a scribble drawing, baked goods or something hand-crafted.

Buy toys that fit your child's age, skills and interests — gifts that are developmentally appropriate.

Agex listed on the toy packages may be very helpful. Happy holiday shopping.

Annual cowboy poetry gathering set

ELKO, Nev. — Plans are nearly complete for the 1993 Cowboy Poetry Gathering to be held in Elko, Nev. Jan. 26-31.

The events include a Cowboy Music Concert on Jan. 27, which will feature Michael Martin Murphy; western swing duo, Bud and Geri Isaacs (creators of the pedal steel guitar); Liz Masterson, cowgirl swing singer; Harry Jackson, world-famous sculptor and singer; and others.

Jan. 28 will be an evening with Will Rogers, as portrayed by actor, Lance Brown of Chicago. Jan. 29 and 30 evening concerts of music and poetry are nearing sell-out capacity, though there are plenty of tickets left for cowboy dances set for 9 p.m. both nights.

A special show is scheduled for the Sunday family matinee at 1:30 p.m. Jan. 31, featuring the humor and harmony of the Riders in the Sky, along with the Australian entertainer, Jim Haynes. Tickets for all performances range from $10 to $15 and in most cases are reserved seating. Tickets can be purchased with a Mastercard or Visa by calling 1-800-748-4464.

Also included in the gathering are exhibits of cowboy crafts and art and dances.

For those who come early in the week, there is an array of workshops designed for the ranching enthusiast. Writing, ranch and country cooking, rawhide braiding, photography and land-use workshops are just a few of the offerings taught by experts in each field.

Tickets are still available to most shows, and daytime passes can be purchased to attend concurrent sessions. Motel rooms always become available in January in Elko and the nearby town of Wells. The Elko Chamber of Commerce (702-738-7135) is keeping track of room availability in Elko.

New York critics honor satire on Hollywood

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Player," an insider's lampoon of the Hollywood film industry, was honored as best picture Thursday by the New York Film Critics Circle, which also gave Emma Thompson her third best actress award in a week.

Robert Altman won best director for "The Player" in the 58th annual voting. Thompson was honored as best actress for her role as an Edwardian-era Englishwoman in "Howards End," the film adaptation of the E.M. Forster novel. Earlier in the week, she received the D.W. Griffith Award and the Los Angeles Film Critics Association award as best actress for the performance.

The New York critics named Denzel Washington best actor for the title role in "Malcolm X."

Gene Hackman won best supporting actor for his turn in Clint Eastwood's "Unforgiven." Miranda Richardson was best supporting actress for her work in "The Crying Game," "Damage" and "Enchanted April."

Jean Lapine won best cinematographer for "The Player." Best screenplay went to Neil Jordan for "The Crying Game" and best foreign language film was "Raise the Red Lantern."

Best documentary was "Brother's Keeper" and best new director, with Allison Anders for "Gas Food Lodging."

The Film Critics Circle was established in 1935 and is the longest-standing organization of professional film critics in the country.

Sydney Omarr Horoscope

IF DECEMBER 18 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, January and October will be your two most memorable, productive, profitable months in 1993. You are dynamic, creative, impulsive. Before this month is finished you will have made valuable contacts, far and wide. Decision is imminent concerning possible change of residence, marital status.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You'll be "testing the waters." Focus on balance, partnership, credibility, public image. Product supposedly durable proves flimsy. Ask for and receive refunds. Love relationship back on track by tonight.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Focus on pressure, deadline, responsiveness, commitment made in past that sneaks up and "bites you." Means don't feel past obligation will merely disintegrate.

CANCER (May 21-June 20): Long-range prospects become crystal clear. Libra Moon highlights creativity, style, romance, dealings with young persons. Long-distance call might contain invitation to meet in person.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Review legal decision relating to division of property. Attention revolves around home, family, physical attraction, declaration of love.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Check Cancer message. Assent the unorthodox elements of a surprise. Refuse to participate in "wild goose chase." Valuable relative is sincere but possibly sincerely misinformed.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Cyclic high, scenario features romance, personality, personal magnetism, sex appeal, coachable, undergoes metamorphosis, becomes steppingstone toward goal. Information previously withheld becomes available.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): At first you might feel, "I missed the boat!" But then you'll realize you did not miss, you are ahead all the way. You'll be invited to present views in writing. Do so and prestige surges upward.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Scenario features music, gifts, romance, commitment relating to justice, family, marriage. Libra Moon coincides with fulfillment of major aspiration. Means you'll feel very good. Taurus involved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your instructions will be followed. This despite efforts of envious individual to disparage your character. The culprit will soon be brought to justice.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Lunar aspect coincides with travel, publishing, unique mission, ability to raise morale of those who resent to be kept in the dark. Investigate import-export opportunities. Enlarge horizons.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Check accounts, be aware of inventory, let others know you don't intend to be kept in the dark. Investigate import-export opportunities. Enlarge horizons.

'Forever Young' fails to take flight

By Stephen Hunter - The Baltimore Sun

In "Forever Young," Mel Gibson plays a test pilot but the movie never gets off the ground.

Review

The subject, unusually enough, is true love, blind love, heroic love, ironically celebrated. That's a value that has all but vanished from American films, where everything has an attitude, though quite possibly "Forever Young" cranks the pendulum back to the past with such maniacal eagerness it comes to seem a little nuts. In fact, the true love that is the center of "Forever Young" is so mindlessly radiant it all but blows away the rest of the movie. It's almost sick, but the movie never notices.

It opens in 1939, with Gibson, in an Errol Flynn pompadour, busily taking a prototype B-25 bomber through its paces, then dashing off to be with his girlfriend, played by Isabel Glasser. Though their relationship seems like a normal girl-boy thing of its era, unconsummated and respectful, the movie insists on finding in their banal patter and romantic play a love beyond the ages, a love that transcends death.

If the movie, rated PG, seeks to make the point that love from an era where nobody slept together until saying "I do" is more-binding-than-love from an era where nobody sleeps together until saying "I do," it fails to do so vividly enough to make a difference.

When Glasser is put into a supposedly irreversible coma, a depressed Gibson agrees to undergo a cryogenic experiment that will let him sleep for a year, like a stalk of frozen broccoli, so that he will get over his grief. But whether he sleeps for a night or a year or 50 years, it'll still be only the next morning when he wakes up, right?

The next morning, of course, is 50 years later, by subterfuge only hastily and haphazardly sketched. So this romantic '30s guy is thawed into the beginning of the loveless, bleak '90s, still missing his true love. Where does the movie go from here? Into a tailspin, that's where. It crashes and burns.

Daniel (Mel Gibson) and Helen (Isabel Glasser) confide in each other in the romantic comedy 'Forever Young.'

The screenplay, by Jeffrey Abrams, can't develop a consistent idea to sustain the momentum, so the movie just seems to stagger around, hunting for something to be about. It isn't very interested in the contrasts between eras, and director Steve Miner only plays a throwaway game or two in which Gibson runs clung-to-a-jacket into modernity—seven-unit, all-digit phone numbers, for example.

Next, the plot dumps Mel into dysfunctional modern family (abandoned mom with two young sons), where his old-fashioned dutifulness makes him attractive, although mother Jamie Lee Curtis' willingness to have him sleep on her couch seems pretty irresponsible to me.

This peters out quickly enough and so the movie wanders into another completely bogus area, becoming something like a chase, as the FBI, the Air Force and concerned scientist Joe Morton try to track him down for the "scientific secrets" he holds. Another dud: A lot of feckless running and chasing that makes all but no sense. Gibson is one-night's sleep removed from being a captain in the Air Corps in an era when the legitimacy of authority was unchallenged and J. Edgar Hoover was a national hero. He would run from the FBI? I don't think so. He would run to the FBI!

Things get looser still. By plot convenience too absurd to detail, a nice, fully loaded B-25 happens to be standing around on the runway — there's maybe 13 of these airplanes left in the world, and one of them just happens to be where he can get a hold of it! — and he and a child steal it for one last romantic journey. Critical ethics will not permit me to disclose the destination of their flight but in a 30 seconds over Tokyo, I'll tell you that.

Still, the movie's big happy ending left me a little sick in my stomach: What he gives up — a life — for what he gets hardly seems the stuff of dreams.

Gibson seems a little goofy throughout. He needs attitude, edge, danger, to undercut his baby-doll beauty and bring him to life, as the makers of the "Lethal Weapon" films know and the makers of this one do not. He's like a sloppy, blue-eyed, big-footed puppy, always running around trying to win some attention. As for Curtis, she's just OK, and nobody else shines.

Actually, the movie's performance in the movie is turned in by that wonderful old plane.

Miner may intend it to be a symbol for the kind of things they don't make 'em like anymore, just as films know and the makers of this one do not. He's like a sloppy, blue-eyed, big-footed puppy, always running around trying to win some attention. As for Curtis, she's just OK, and nobody else shines.

Star Gibson keeps exploring his limits

By Barry Koltrow Orange County Register

The definitive test for measuring star power is neither box-office figures nor Nielsen TV ratings. It has nothing to do with magazine covers or how many times you've appeared on "Oprah."

As any jaded Hollywood veteran can tell you, the only true test is how silly the "Tonight Show" staff acts when a star drops by for a visit.

And judging by the staff's reaction to a recent visit from Mel Gibson, who stood by to promote his film "Forever Young," the popular actor must be the biggest star in the world.

How else could you explain the two dozen or so staffers milling at the stage entrance when Gibson's limousine pulled up? Is it normal for the hallway outside the star's dressing room to resemble a scene from "The Day of the Locust?" Don't these people have work to do? How often does the show's host, Jay Leno, run down to the makeup room and greet his guests? And is it customary for staffers to line up for autographs when the star is getting his hair fixed?

Isn't these people supposed to be professionals? Don't they deal with big stars every night of the week? You would think they would be blasé by now.

Here's the difference — this is Mel Gibson. The star, who graciously signed every autograph and returned every wave and greeting, handles it all like it happens every day, which it does. It comes with the territory of being perhaps Hollywood's biggest sex symbol, and Gibson, in his words, just "goes with the flow."

"I didn't used to be very nice," Gibson said as he changed from his T-shirt and jeans into an expensive sport jacket and slacks for the "Tonight Show" taping. "I was craved over all this attention. But then about the time I turned 30 I decided to lie back and enjoy it."

Gibson, 36, has been hovering at these lofty heights since the first of the three "Lethal Weapon" films. But he has enjoyed some measure of stardom since 1979, when he thrilled action-movie fans in "Mad Max" and fayed movie-sensitive moviegoers in "Him," in which he played a retarded handyman.

That ability to play both ends of the spectrum, action hero and romantic lead, pop star and thinking-man's actor, has propelled him to the forefront of this generation of actors. In films such as "The Year of Living Dangerously," "Tequila Sunrise" and "Hamlet," he has shown unusually wide range for a movie star. "But I'm proud that I've been able to do both kinds of films. A lot of people get stuck in their careers, not because they can't do both, but because they won't do it."

"It's easier to remain safe in one film's territory, to get complacent and comfortable and not want to take a risk. But I find that so boring and not a heck of a lot of fun. I'd rather go out and test myself."

In "Forever Young," Gibson returns to the romantic-comedy genre after his third foray into "Lethal Weapon" territory last summer. He plays a test pilot in 1939 so despondent after a tragedy that he agrees to be a guinea pig in an early cryogenics experiment. When two kids accidentally thaw him out in 1992, he is chased by inquisitive government scientists and a few unsettling memories.

"This movie reminds me a lot of some movies they did in what they call the Golden Age of Movies in the '30s and '40s," Gibson said. "There's a real innocence and charm to the script, and it was a big fan of those movies when I was a kid."

"I was always inspired by those movies, which were on the TV when I was growing up, and I admired those guys, like Spencer Tracy and Cary Grant, who starred in those films. They could do it all."

"Gandhi"-like epic for people of color in the process. Marvelously acted by Denzel Washington in the title role and an excellent supporting cast. ... ALADDIN (G). This musical successor to Disney's "Beauty and the Beast" does more than expand the visual boundaries of mainstream animation and its possibilities for extravagant humor. It offers Robin Williams, who brings his nimble wit and lightning-fast comedy to the character of the Genie, in what may be the role of a lifetime — the late Howard Ashman contributes some brilliant lyrics, and the whole combination ends up appealing not only to the smallest child but the hippest adult. Aren't we lucky to have it now?

'Distinguished Gentleman' showcases Murphy; 'Home Alone 2' seems vacant

Los Angeles Times

The following are capsule reviews of movies now showing in the Magic Valley. Ratings are by the Motion Picture Association of America and the Los Angeles Times. Opinions are by Los Angeles Times reviewers.

THE DISTINGUISHED GENTLEMAN (R). The funniest movie Eddie Murphy has made in quite some time, this tale of a con artist who gets himself elected to Congress, because that's where the money is, is still something of a compromise. The wisecracking Murphy audiences prefer has to fight for space with the suave leading man the actor himself favors, and the film's tone fluctuates between a knockabout farce and less energetic satire.

THE BODYGUARD (R). Kevin Costner and Whitney Houston star in this muddled, often unintentionally hilarious thriller about — you guessed it — a bodyguard and his pop star client. A lot of talent has gone into this jamboree but it doesn't add up to much. Costner is turning into a stolid performer and Houston is impassive. So much for chemistry.

HOME ALONE 2: LOST IN NEW YORK (PG). If you don't remember the original high-grossing "Home Alone," don't worry: This zealous sequel is an attempt to almost exactly duplicate it. The result, unfortunately, plays like an over-elaborate parody of the first film, reminding us why we liked it without being able to duplicate its appeal. Tim Curry, however, is very funny in a brand new role.

MALCOLM X (PG-13). What is surprising about this three-hour-and-21-minute biography is not how very accomplished a piece of filmmaking it turns out to be but rather how careful and classical in tone it is. Director and co-writer Spike Lee has tried and succeeded in moving a controversial sociopolitical issue into the heart of the American sociopolitical mainstream, creating a Lack of sponsorship nixes gambling vote

TRENTON, N.J. — A bill that seeks a referendum on legalized sports betting at Atlantic City casinos was not voted on Thursday after sponsors realized they didn't have enough votes for passage.

Assemblyman Robert Singer and state Sen. Louis Bassano, sponsors of the proposed constitutional amendment, asked that the bill be held after the Assembly Appropriations Committee listened to 2½ hours of mostly negative comments.

The state Senate on Monday voted 21-16 for the bill, the minimum needed in that house. The Assembly must approve it before Jan. 12, or it becomes a dead issue for 1992.

Indiana freshman guard quits, says he 'didn't fit'

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Guard Malcolm Sims, the only true freshman on fourth-ranked Indiana's basketball team, has decided to transfer, the school said Thursday.

"Malcolm said he did not feel he fit into our style of play," coach Bob Knight said. "He said he would prefer more set plays and a chance to play his game."

Sims had been used sparingly in Indiana's first eight games.

'Patient' Aussies grab championship lead

Craig Parry of Australia tees off at hole No. 4 Thursday during the first round of the World Championship.

'Hard, fast fairways, tricky winds, those are conditions we play in a lot.'

Australian golfer Craig Parry

Montego Bay, Jamaica — Craig Parry led a patient pack of Australians into first-round control Thursday at the World Championship.

Parry, winner of three titles in his homeland this year, took two shots off par with a 68 and dismissed the difficult conditions as "very much like what we see at home."

"Hard, fast fairways, tricky winds, those are conditions we play in a lot," he said, and called his effort "a good round, not a great one."

But it was by three shots the best of the elite, 28-man field gathered for the non-aligned tournament that closes the 11½-month pro golf season with the largest purse in the game — $2.7 million. The winner gets $550,000.

Australians Greg Norman and Peter O'Malley shared second at 71 on the toughened, lengthened — to 6,920 yards — and revamped Trivall Golf Club course, with British Open champ Nick Faldo and Mark Roe, both of England.

"With conditions like this, patience is the name of the game," Norman said.

"You know you're not going to hit every shot perfect and you just have to be patient."

"You know you're going to make some mistakes, and you just try not to make the big mistakes, mistakes that lead to 6 or 7 or 8 or 9."

And there was a lot of that going around in this fretting, frustrated field of stars.

Fred Couples, the Masters champion and leading earner on the American tour, was among the four players who carded "8's."

Couples' came on the fourth hole.

"I drove it into the right rough and didn't get it out and then ..." he let the sentence trail off. "It was just bad."

Australian Open champ Steve Elkington also had an 8 on the par-5 fourth. Christy O'Connor Jr. of Ireland had one on the eighth and Jeff Sluman on the 14th.

Auburn nabs younger Bowden

New coach takes over 'troubled program'

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Terry Bowden, son-of-Florida-State's Bobby Bowden, was named head football coach at Auburn Thursday.

Bowden, coach of Division I-AA Samford the past six years, replaces Pat Dye, who resigned Nov. 25 three weeks after the NCAA accused the program of nine rules violations.

Orange Bowl preview - D3 Silver Bowl preview - D4

The announcement was made by Auburn's sports information office shortly after The Associated Press reported the hiring. He appeared at a news conference later in the day.

The 36-year-old Bowden takes over a troubled Auburn program that has declined the past two years after winning four Southeastern Conference titles in the 1980s. The Tigers went 5-5-1 this year after going 5-6 the previous season.

The NCAA began investigating the school after former-player Eric Ramsey produced tapes that allegedly showed he was given money and gifts from coaches and boosters while playing at Auburn.

Dye denied any wrongdoing, but resigned on the eve of the Auburn-Alabama game.

Bowden has a 65-35-1 record in nine seasons as a head coach. He was 19-13 in three years at Salem College in West Virginia before coming to Samford, where he was

NFL labor situation unchanged

Parties speak, but make no progress

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue and negotiators for the league's players spoke by telephone Thursday without setting a date for the next session that could end the league's five-year-old labor impasse.

The only real activity on the day was a conversation between Tagliabue and Jim Quinn, the attorney in several lawsuits filed by players against the league and the chief negotiator in the talks that have reached the brink of an agreement and then stalled.

NFL preview - D3

NFL spokesman Greg Aiello said Quinn and Tagliabue had agreed to meet soon to discuss the developments at two days' of owners' meetings in Dallas after the two sides had agreed on what they said was "the framework" for an agreement.

After meeting with representatives of all 28 teams on Wednesday, Tagliabue said considerable progress had been made in bridging the gap between the two sides.

But Quinn said the players were unwilling to make any major concessions and were willing to take their chances in court, where U.S. District Court Judge David Doty must approve any settlement — or make a ruling on the motions pending before him.

"If they've got 10 things to change in the agreement, I don't think he's going to get anywhere," Doug Allen, assistant executive director of the NFL Players Association, said Thursday.

All this stems from meetings last week that resulted in the framework for a deal that would bring unrestricted free agency and a salary cap to the NFL for the first time. Last September, a jury sitting before Doty in Minneapolis threw out the NFL's limited Plan B free agency system.

Heavyweight boxing champion Riddick Bowe listens to a question during a news conference Thursday.

TVKO, Bowe team for 6-fight package

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — In the battle of the network checkbooks, HBO and its pay-per-view partner, TVKO, knocked out Fox Network to win heavyweight champion Riddick Bowe.

And it might cost them only $100 million or so of Time Warner's petty cash.

Bowe agreed to a six-fight package with HBO and TVKO on Thursday that Seth Abraham, president of Time Warner Sports, said carries "a nine-figure potential."

The first fight is scheduled for Feb. 6 on HBO after Bowe and his manager, Rock Newman, decided to pass on Fox's $3 million offer to fight as part of the network's alternative programming "Newman listed a number of potential challengers including Alex Garcia, Michael Dokes, Alex Stewart and Francesco Damiani for Bowe's first defense and said it might be held in New York's Madison Square Garden.

"Every champ wants to fight in his home town," said Bowe, who grew up in Brooklyn, N.Y.

Would he accept less to fight there also elsewhere?

"Maybe," Bowe said.

He can afford to be charitable with the package HBO and TVKO put together for him. The deal calls for two fights on the cable outlet and four on pay-per-view. "It can't be worth less than $50 million," Abraham said.

Abraham said it would be difficult to put an exact dollar amount on the value of the whole package because that would depend on the response to the pay-per-view bouts. However, he added, 900,000 homes bought the Bowe-Evander Holyfield title fight, making it the fifth highest grossing pay-per-view

Insurance protects prospects Michigan players worth millions

The Associated Press

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — If Chris Webber never dresses for an NBA game because of injury, he's still worth $2.7 million under an insurance program available for student athletes.

Based on 1993's NBA draft, Michigan sophomores Webber, Jalen Rose and Juwan Howard have obtained million-dollar disability insurance policies approved by the NCAA under the Exceptional Student Athlete Disability Insurance Program.

College basketball - D2

"There are two reasons the NCAA got involved in this," said Mike McNeely, director of operations for the NCAA. "No. 1 is our attempt to discourage involvement of agents. If an underclassman has an agreement with an agent, he would lose his eligibility if we found out ...

"No. 2, to provide a student-athlete with a low-cost alternative to insurance coverage. Student-athletes usually can't afford to get insurance through Lloyds of London, where you have to come up with the money up front."

American Specialty Underwriters Inc. of Woburn, Mass., underwrites the NCAA program.

The insurance program was created in October 1990. It is available to student-athletes who are projected to be chosen high in the NBA, NFL and major league baseball drafts.

Webber, who is expected to be drafted first or second if he decides to leave school after this season, has the highest policy of $160,000.

Rose and Howard each is believed to have over $1 million in insurance.

Giants' fans ask: Should Ray stay or should he go?

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — If you thought things couldn't get any worse for the New York Giants, guess again.

Never mind a five-game losing streak that has ended the Giants' playoff chances, bickering between players and coaches in questions concerning whether quarterback Jeff Hostetler should return to the lineup for two meaningless games.

Here's the latest sideshow: the reported firing of Ray Handley at the end of the season and the rumored re-hiring of former coach Bill Parcells.

Parcells originally was scheduled to work the Chiefs-Chiefs game as an analyst for NBC-TV. But Ed Markey, the network's director of sports information, said Parcells was taken off the game a month ago by executive producer Terry O'Neil.

FSU coach praises Nebraska's conservative approach

MIAMI (AP) — Nebraska coach Tom Osborne's conservative offense won an endorsement Thursday from his counterpart in the Orange Bowl on New Year's night, Florida State coach Bobby Bowden.

Unpredictable weather in Nebraska makes a ground attack the Cornhuskers' best bet, Bowden said.

Osborne, completing his 20th season as Nebraska's coach, said the weather in Lincoln is the reason he has been reluctant to rely more on the pass.

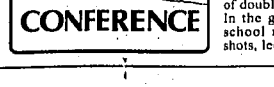

While muscle has helped the Huskers win nine Big Eight Conference titles under Osborne, lack of diversity hurts them in bowl games.

Osborne said he doesn't know if you've ever been to Nebraska, but toward the end of October and in November it sometimes gets a little chilly, and your fingers get a little cold.

Orange Bowl, he's going to face a team that's wide open and throws the ball like a mad dog, Bowen said. But he can nullify that with a ground game that keeps us from getting the ball.

Osborne said. 'But it doesn't do much good to throw it all over the place and not go to a bowl game.'

Glavine, Atlanta agree on 4-year, $20.5M pact

ATLANTA (AP) — Another week, another multi-year contract between the Atlanta Braves and a National League Cy Young Award winner. This time it's Tom Glavine and the Braves agreed Thursday for a $20.5 million, four-year contract with a club option that could make the deal worth $25 million over five years.

Glavine, who earned $2,975,000 last season, is the only pitcher in the major leagues to win 20 games in both 1991 and 1992. The 26-year-old left-hander would have been eligible for free agency after the 1993 season, but said he was seeking security and a long-term deal now.

"Basically, Tommy wanted to stay with the Braves," said his agent, Ben Woolf. "He left very strongly about a year ago, but we expose the team gets on national television and the organization. Put all that together, it just came down to Tommy wanting to stay in Atlanta. It was my job to see that he wasn't shortchanged. It was very, very fair."

Glavine was visiting his family in Massachusetts on Thursday and couldn't be reached immediately for comment.

"The signing of Tom Glavine to this contract is a demonstration of the Braves' commitment to winning now and in the future," general manager John Mauerbach said. "Tom has been a key performer in our two previous championship seasons, and we're pleased that he will remain a Brave for years to come."

Bedrosian joins Braves

ATLANTA (AP) — Steve Bedrosian, who last year pitched in the major leagues since 1991, agreed Thursday to a minor league contract with the Atlanta Braves, who invited him to spring training.

Bedrosian, who pitched for the Braves from 1981-1985, was released by the Minnesota Twins in November 1991. The 36-year-old has a 70-73 record in 10 seasons with 184 saves and a 3.39 ERA in 608 games.

He won the 1987 NL Cy Young Award when he had 40 saves for the Philadelphia Phillies.

"This was a strong temptation for Tommy to play out his option (and become a free agent after next season). And if he had another year like the previous two, God knows what money would have been offered," Woolf said.

"But that was tempered by him wanting to be with Atlanta."

Minnesota lures Winfield

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Dave Winfield, a native Minnesota who helped the original Blue Jays win the World Series, has agreed to a two-year contract with the Twins. The Associated Press learned Thursday.

The Twins called a news conference for today and a source within the organization said Winfield's signing will be announced in a general manager Andy MacPhail declined comment. Winfield now has his agent, Jeff Klein, could be contacted.

Winfield, 41, apparently turned down more lucrative offers to finish his career near his native St. Paul, Minn. The former University of Minnesota baseball basketball star fills the designated hitter position after when the Twins chose not to resign Chili Davis.

Winfield also might play some outfield for the Twins, as he did for the Blue Jays in road World Series games.

Winfield

It will be Minnesota's second major signing in two weeks.

On Dec. 4, Kirby Puckett agreed to a $30 million, five-year contract to remain with the team.

Otherwise, the off-season hasn't been kind to the Twins, who have lost John Smiley, Greg Gagne and Davis.

The Twins are hoping that the addition of Winfield will bring as much success as the 1991 addition of Morris, another St. Paul native.

Morris won 18 games and led the Twins to a World Series victory in his only season in Minnesota. Morris then became a free agent again and agreed to an $10.85 million, two-year contract with Toronto, where he played alongside Winfield.

NHL owners make it clear what they expect from commissioner

The Baltimore Sun

The reason former NHL President John Ziegler lost his job was that he couldn't produce what the owners wanted, now just before Christmas, the owners have installed their first commissioner — 40-year-old Gary Bettman — whom they fully expect to deliver what Ziegler couldn't.

What do the owners expect Bettman to do?

"Bring the NHL the same kind of popularity enjoyed by the NBA, where Bettman has been working as the league's senior vice president and general counsel."

Reach a collective bargaining agreement with the NHL. Players, association that will keep contracts under control, much the way Bettman orchestrated the complicated salary cap structure in the NBA.

"Instead of fighting over how to divide up a small pie, we have to grow the pie," Bettman said during a "Hockey Night in Canada" interview.

Expand television exposure.

All these things have been in demand for a long time. But Washington Capitals' General Manager David Poole said there is no way anything less can be expected from the new guy who says bravely, "I'm looking forward to a tremendous challenge."

"It's a big job," said Poole. "A very big job. And all those good reasons why I think he's the best job, so they have to be part of the job description. One of the biggest things he faces is the collective bargaining agreement next season."

Finally, he's going through it right now, baseball is facing it and we're facing it. That's three of the big four

NHL notes

Remember Dave Schultz, the Philadelphia Flyers enforcer who set the NHL record for penalty minutes at 472 in 1974-75? He's 43 and coaching hockey at Malvern Prep, a private school outside Philadelphia. He says he wants to coach the Flyers to their next Stanley Cup, and to do that he has to get some experience — and a new reputation.

"My reputation precedes me," Schultz told The Philadelphia Inquirer. "People watched me and said, 'What an animal — must not have any brains in his head.' It's a hard reputation to overcome."

When Detroit rallied for a come-from-behind victory over the Capitals on Nov. 20, Red Wings Coach General Manager Bryan Murray said "the fella sorry" for his brother, Caps Coach Terry Murray. Now Bryan Murray may be in need of the sympathy. His team is 2-6-1 over its past nine games and he seems to have a near mutiny on his hands.

Last Thursday, The Detroit Free Press carried a story in which a reporter asked an anonymous player if the Red Wings were trying to get Murray fired.

"Yes," the player was quoted as saying.

In the same story, Detroit superstar Steve Yzerman was quoted as saying, "The chemistry...the makeup of our team has to change. We have eight centermen as forwards. Guys are playing out of position and everybody wants to beat cleanup."

As general manager, Bryan Murray is obviously taking more heat than he would be if he was just the coach.

Reds' official calls for Schott's dismissal

CINCINNATI (AP) — Darrell Rodgers, a black minor-league pitching coach for Cincinnati Reds' front office, said Thursday that club owner Marge Schott should be punished if racial-slash allegations against her are true.

"It's hard to talk about allegations and what all they're proven correct. But if they are...some sort of punishment must have term should happen."

Rodgers said from his home in Norman, Okla.

Rodgers said he wouldn't advocate too harsh a penalty because "she understands the implications of the situation."

"She's trying to make amends and make the situation better," Rodgers said. "It's not like she's some hard-hearted person who does things callously and doesn't understand there's a potential to hurt people."

Depositions in a lawsuit by a fired employee included allegations that Schott called former Cincinnati players Dave Parker and Eric Davis "million-dollar f---ers."

Schott has denied the allegations, although she has admitted to and apologized for using racial epithets. She did not return a telephone call Thursday.

Rodgers, 30, became only the second black in the Reds' 40-person front office when he was promoted Wednesday. The other black works in the ticket office.

Reds general manager Jim Bowden said Thursday that Rodgers' promotion to assistant for baseball operations was not a reaction to complaints about Schott's remarks.

"Darrell Rodgers was not hired because of his race,

Schott

He was the best-qualified person," Bowden said.

The job, put Rodgers in the Reds' inner circle as a top assistant to Bowden. He will be involved in all facets of the front-office baseball operation, including player personnel decisions and contract negotiations.

Bowden said he had been planning to promote Rodgers since May, when Rodgers told him he was interested in eventually becoming general manager.

Tyrone Yates, a black City Council member who has been among Schott's critics, said Thursday that Rodgers' promotion is constructive.

But he added, "It's a public relations move in order to undercut the efforts by major league baseball and the public at large that think Mrs. Schott should be suspended from ownership for a period, as well as heavily fined and having to increase her minority hiring."

Parker questioned Schott's motivation for promoting Rodgers.

"She's still a racist," Parker said in Thursday's Cincinnati Enquirer. He did not return a telephone call seeking independent comment.

Baseball's executive council has appointed a four-person committee to investigate Schott's alleged statements. The council could suspend Schott, fine her up to $250,000, reprimand her or do nothing.

Florida quarterback will undergo tests for high blood pressure

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Florida quarterback Shane Matthews is undergoing tests for high blood pressure and could face surgery after playing in the Gator Bowl Thursday.

The senior has had high blood pressure for years, Spurrier said.

after undergoing tests at Shands Hospital. Team physician Dr. Richard Sharma said Matthews is scheduled to return to practice Saturday and should play when the 41-ranked Gators (8-4) face No. 12 North Carolina State (9-2-1) Dec. 31 in the Gator Bowl.

Bowling Green in national spotlight

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Bowling Green, which has some respect by almost everyone, is in the center of this year, could win some national recognition by beating Nevada in Friday's inaugural Las Vegas Bowl.

Bowling Green kicks off the major college bowl season with a chance to move into the national rankings for the first time with a win over Nevada.

"Cracking the top 25 would be a great milestone for Bowling Green," coach Gary Blackney said. "It would be an opportunity for us to enhance the prestige and status of our school and conference on a national scale."

The Falcons, champions of the Mid-American Conference, nearly beat Ohio State in their second game of the year, trailing 7-6 at halftime before losing 17-6.

"The game was a milestone for the Ohio university, which often is overlooked because of its powerful Big 10 neighbors."

"Even though we didn't beat Ohio State, we win hearts and respect in Ohio," Blackney said. "Because of where we are, situated between Ohio State and Michigan, people still opt to pass by us and go to those games."

Bowling Green also has a unique opportunity to become a historical footnote in the game against the Big West champion Wolf Pack.

The Falcons, who won the final California Bowl last year, now have a chance to win the first Las Vegas Bowl. The Las Vegas Bowl replaced the California Bowl this year as the best of the same matching the Big West and Midwestern Conference champions.

"It's been a motivating factor for us all year," Blackney said. "I told the kids in August that we could come back from winning the first California Bowl to winning the first Las Vegas Bowl."

Bowling Green (9-2) is a 5-point favorite on the underground betting line for the game, which is expected to draw a crowd of about 20,000 to the 32,000-seat Las Vegas Sports Bowl. The game will be televised by ESPN, beginning at 8 p.m. EST.

Nevada (7-4) will have the challenge of holding off an offense that averaged 377 yards a game, including 227 in the air behind quarterback Erik White. And the Wolf Pack will have to do it without free-safety Xavier Kirby, who was suspended for missing two final exams. Kirby led the Wolf Pack with five interceptions.

"You really hope when you have a negative you can turn it into a positive," Nevada coach Chris Ault said of Kirby's suspension. "It gives some kids who haven't had a chance game a piece of the action to play in the biggest game of the year."

Nevada has a potent offense of its own, and the ability to change between two quarterbacks.

Senior Fred Gatlin, who has thrown for 831.2 yards and 63 touchdowns in his career, will start, but Ault won't hesitate to go to junior Chris Vargas should Gatlin be ineffective.

Vargas, who has started five games, threw for more yards (2,094) and touchdowns (13) than Schott in 1991 (1,234, 10).

Vargas has led Nevada on some dramatic comebacks, including a game-adding 17th quarter which he rallied them from 19 points down with five minutes remaining to a 48-47 win.

"It's great to be on a team where you have two quarterbacks," said Brian Reeves, who was second in the nation with 81 receptions for 1,114 yards.

"When one isn't getting it done, you've got another guy—you can bring in to get it done," said Ault, though, would prefer to do without the dramas.

"These comebacks are killing me," he said. "I started the season 45 years old and now I'm 70. It's exciting and fun, but we'd rather get ahead and stay ahead."

The bowl game caps the first Division I season for Nevada, a perennial Division I-AA power under Ault.

Guns 'vanish' with troops' arrival

Roadblocks, ruffians also disappear mysteriously

New York Daily News

BAIDOA, Somalia — At the Bikiin restaurant, over spaghetti with camel meat sauce and a $5 can of Pepsi, the talk was mostly about guns — specifically, where they all went.

Until Wednesday morning, Baidoa without guns was as unthinkable as Baidoa without flies. But when the city awoke, 530 Marines had come to town, and it was plain that the only guns the Marines wanted to see were their own.

Suddenly all the civilian hardware disappeared. For the first time in years, waiter Ashraf Nuree marveled, there wasn't an AK-47 in sight.

Gone were the roadblocks. Gone were the gunmen. Gone were the menacing demands for cigarettes, food, money, even matches and mineral water.

The Marines' commanders insist that their mission is to safeguard food deliveries, not disarm ruffians — a message reinforced Wednesday by Secretary of State Lawrence S. Eagleburger, who said, "We will disarm (gunmen) as we go in to deliver food, ... but the fundamental purpose is to keep people from starving to death."

Yet the mere presence of the heavily armed Marines seems to have had the desired effect. No guns. A relieved, even joyful populace.

"Ma-reeni, ma-reeni," Baidoa's kids squealed gleefully as the Americans and 140 French paratroopers rumbled through the streets of a once-dangerous town they never even had to work up a sweat in securing. The arrival of the troops promised smooth, fast delivery of precious food to the tens of thousands of desperately hungry people who have flocked to this former fargery's market town.

Ten military vehicles delivered food to an orphanage in a symbolic convoy led by Maj. Charles Wilhelm, commander of Marine forces in Somalia. And relief planes began landing at the Baidoa airfield almost at once.

"Today's the day we get on with the rest of our lives," said Jasic Clevenger of the International Medical Corps. "It's a great day."

Baidoa needs 330 tons of food every day to save its people, said Paul Mitchell of the United Nations World Food Program. Starting on Sunday — when 20 Marine-escorted relief trucks will lumber up the now-safer highway from Mogadishu — that's what it's going to get.

By early next week, a fleet of 100-U.N. tractor-trailers are expected to be in daily convoy service.

In the past, Mitchell said, the United Nations had been forced to deal with a single trucking cooperative — controlled by Gen. Mohamed Farrah Aideded, Somalia's top warlord — that was free to charge vastly inflated fees.

Now, he said, "there'll be only one player, and it'll be us."

Somali truckers, he laughed, "are going to squeal like stuck pigs."

With the armed protection of their food convoys and warehouses, relief agencies are rid of bandit gangs that routinely hijacked shipments of rice, wheat, oil and other commodities — even sorghum, which is not in short supply.

"We lost a load of sorghum," says Bill Bergquist, who runs the Catholic Relief Services' operation here, "because we accidentally ran into a CARE convoy that was being robbed. The gunmen decided to take our load, too."

The World Food Program, the United Nations' food aid agency, said it would fly in 20 trucks and trailers to speed delivery in surrounding towns. It could roll as early as Saturday or Sunday, but not until the Americans say the roads and warehouses are safe.

At the Dehrel camp, where about 600 people, many of them orphans, are fed twice a day by the Red Cross, the mood was upbeat.

"It is not for us," said a painfully thin Munnar al-Sanar, "because we are fed. It is good for others outside, in the country, who cannot get food because of the looters."

As Nuree, the waiter, ladled spaghetti at the Bikiin — outside whose door sit two Russian anti-tank guns, souvenirs of the days when the Soviet Union invested a lot of money and manpower in Somalia — he worried that the guns of Baidoa probably haven't disappeared forever.

Probably they have just been stashed out of sight until the Americans leave, he said.

Bush might make trip to visit with U.S. troops

The Associated Press

Fitzwater, asked about a NBC News report that Bush might go to Somalia, "would say only, 'Nothing's scheduled.'"

WASHINGTON — President Bush is considering the possibility of a Christmas visit to Somalia in support of the U.S. troops fighting the famine there, a senior administration official said Thursday.

But the official, who insisted on anonymity, said there are "a lot of obstacles," including scheduling and security problems, that could keep the presidential visit from occurring.

The purpose of the trip, the official added, would be "to bring cheer to the troops ... and thank them for what they're doing there."

Christmas, one White House aide added, "is the natural time" to do that. However, Bush has five weeks left in office and the trip could occur at any time.

Bush and his wife, Barbara, spent Thanksgiving 1990 with U.S. troops in the Saudi desert preparing for the war two months later to drive Iraqi forces out of Kuwait.

Bush ordered 28,000 U.S. troops into the lawless East African country two weeks ago to restore order and stop the looting of relief supplies. An estimated 350,000 Somalis have died since a coup in January 1991 threw the country into chaos.

Song-leading Marine has fan club

Knight-Ridder News Service

'They are more afraid of a stick than a weapon.'

— Lance Cpl. Frank Hartman, USMC

BAIDOA, Somalia — Lance Corporal Frank Hartman of Mackinac City, Mich. has something other U.S. Marines in Somalia do not — a fan club. And it has taken to following him everywhere.

Hartman became an instant hero Wednesday turning a routine stint of guard duty in the famine-plagued city of Baidoa into a Christmas sing-along for hundreds of curious and later adoring young Somali children.

Hartman learned one of those lessons not found in the training manual on Wednesday. He found out that a few choruses of "Jingle Bells" and a short stick are mightier than a M-16 rifle for disciplining a mob of curious Somali children.

Sometimes it's amazing what a little good will and good humor can create in the middle of a crisis.

In the space of a few short hours Hartman became a hero to Baidoa youngsters, an international media star and probably the most applauded and popular American soldier in Somalia since U.S. forces landed in Mogadishu on Dec. 9.

It seems that after a tense beginning the relationship between rescuers and those in need of rescue is finally beginning to blossom.

The 21-year-old Michigan native was among 470 U.S. Marines and French Legionnaires who occupied Baidoa at down Wednesday, once known as "The City of Death" because of its high death rates from starvation and civil war.

Immediately, Hartman was assigned one of the more trying jobs around the U.S. military line of defense: keeping Somali youngsters clear of the airport gates. The Marines wanted to guard against military and media vehicles hounding children crowding around the gate.

Somalia children always seem to gather into crowds in a flash when their curiosity is challenged. Like kids everywhere, they can just as quickly become unruly.

At first, Hartman and his fellow Marines tried to contain the youngsters by pushing them back gently with their M-16 assault rifles.

In one of the oddities that two years of civil war and terror have produced in Somalia, the children of Baidoa have become so used to men with guns that they tend to ignore them.

Then, by accident, Hartman discovered the more traditional way of disciplining Somalia — a stick.

"They are more afraid of a stick than a weapon," he said. Hartman kept the youngsters pushed back by striking a stick on the pavement just short of their toes. That made them jump backward. The kids also thought the game was fun.

Hartman created another game for them. In Baidoa's humid, 90-degree weather in a country that has never seen snow, he began teaching the youngsters to sing "Jingle Bells."

"It was the first Christmas song I thought of," he said acknowledging that the holiday has little meaning in Somalia, a country that is more than 95 percent Muslim.

Hartman began by singing a few words of "Jingle Bells," then getting the Somalia-speaking children to sing back the words in halting English.

"They catch on quickly," Hartman said as more than a hundred kids repeated the words of "Jingle Bells."

As the media hordes began to press in on Hartman, he moved off to the side of the gate entrance. The mob of kids moved with him.

In Pied Piper fashion, everywhere that Hartman went, his fan club was sure to go. He no longer had to chase the children from the gate, he simply had to walk a few paces away and they followed.

He and the Baidoa kids became the day's most popular media act, performing "Jingle Bells" over and over for journalists and television cameras.

A Somali man walks past a Marine personnel carrier on a Mogadishu street Wednesday, a common sight in Baidoa now also.

Surgery, not sentimentality for this American

The Baltimore Sun

BAIDOOA, Somalia — Ramon

Pollock, lately of the University of Maryland dental school, has been here for months stitching up the wounded and maimed, the victims of Somalia's brutality.

He came out from Baltimore to do this work without a surgeon's certificate, although he did study at Howard University to be a physician's assistant. And, more helpful, he worked in the emergency room at the District of Columbia hospital.

Pollock, 28, does not allow fine points to get in his way. He has disdain for bureaucrats who impede his work. And he does not like the Marines who have finally come out here to make life a little safer, a little easier in this town in the heart of the Somali famine zone.

He also does not much like being asked by other people the really difficult question everybody in his position eventually comes around to asking themselves.

Why did you come out here? Why did you interrupt your career at the University of Maryland Dental School after completing the first year to come to this blasted place?

"I don't know, just something to do," he replied laconically.

Then, with just a touch of impatience: "What do you want me to say? That I came out to help these people?"

Pollock likes to talk tough. He is slim, handsome in a clean-cut military way in hospital greens, close-cropped, neat. He talks like a Marine with lots of loose profanity, and in fact he was one for a while.

But that's a sore point with him. It's also one that suggests the nature of the man: extremely individualistic, determined far beyond average, unforgiving of people and institutions when they fail to keep their promises.

When Pollock signed up for the Marine Corps, he was 17. He enlisted, he said, with a promise he would be trained in a specific kind of work. He was not.

Most young men would have put their heads down and served out their enlistment. Pollock decided he was going to un-enlist.

"I wouldn't put on the uniform. Wouldn't work," he said.

The consequence was a general discharge under honorable conditions by the time he was 19. It is the kind of document you do not show off. People who have them often wind up working as sweepers in car washes, or laboring in other unpromising fields.

But Pollock is one of those people who obeys his own sense of personal integrity, rather than accepting the code of the corps, any corps. For him, the discharge was not his failing. He left the Marines and put himself through physician's assistant training at Howard University.

Then he enrolled at the University of Maryland Dental School, where he began studying to be an oral surgeon. Then, after a year, and moved by some sentiment he does not care to disclose, he does not himself understand, he asked for a leave of absence and signed up with the California-based International Medical Corps.

"I'm a surgical assistant, but here I work as a surgeon," he said. His workday runs between 10 to 14 hours. He has something of a reputation with his colleagues.

Angela Guerrero, the International Medical Corps administrator in Nairobi, has heard of him, but never met him. "He has the highest admiration of everyone here (in Baidooa)," she said. "People even like to come to watch him work, his surgery is that good."

But Pollock is not a surgeon. "No, he's not," she says with a smile. But in Somalia it's the skill that counts, not the credentials. His colleagues agree he has the former, if not yet the latter.

Though Pollock will not admit with any degree of seriousness that he really did come all the way out here to help these people, just ask him if he's looking forward to leaving.

"I'm dreading June, when I go home." Some tough guy.

Little harm in khat, Somalis' prime drug

Boston Globe

It has been blamed for turning Somali youths into drug-trafficking men so skilled that they are unthinkingly blasting themselves back into the 19th century.

But contrary to Western reports from Somalia, khat does not make its users highly aggressive or violent, according to doctors, field workers and specialists in East African culture.

It does suppress their appetites and induce a sense of well-being, according to the scholars and observers, who caution that abruptly halting the supply of khat, as is occurring now as a result of the U.S. incursion into the country, may enrage and depress a large number of Somalis.

An estimated 75 percent of Somali males use khat regularly, and for many it is their only relief from hopelessness and chronic lack of food.

"It is everywhere, literally everywhere," Steve Hertenby, a project manager for the International Medical Corps who recently finished 10 months' work in Somalia, said. "There are going to be a lot of really pissed-off 14- and 16-year-olds walking around with AK-47s if the supply is cut."

"I don't know that physical withdrawal will be all that bad, but the psychological effect — wow!" Hertenby said in a noting that the medical corps' Somali colleagues and guards routinely chew khat at work. "For a lot of people, it is the only thing they have to look forward to during the day. If you have nothing but your khat and your tea and they take away your khat, you're going to do something."

The khat plant, the botanical name of which is Catha edulis, is a perennial shrub. Users chew the leaves and young shoots, which must be fresh because the chemicals that give khat potency begin to break down only 24 hours after harvest.

Most of the khat consumed in Somalia is grown in the highlands of neighboring Ethiopia and Kenya. Throughout the two years of war and chaos that have devastated Somalia, supplies have flowed without interruption, mostly in small planes from Nairobi, Kenya, that land at K-50, an airstrip built for the khat trade 30 miles west of Mogadishu.

Lester Grinspoon, a psychiatry professor at Harvard University who is an authority on illicit drugs, described khat as a stimulant with a chemical structure and effect to amphetamine but with a potency more like that of strong coffee than of speed or cocaine, with which it is being compared by Western journalists and military personnel in Somalia.

Khat's effects, Grinspoon said, include appetite suppression; increased blood pressure, body temperature and pulse rate; and initially heightened sexual desire, which is followed over the long run by decreased potency, nervousness and heightened feelings of anxiety.

It is a deeply rooted social and cultural tradition in that area, just like with coca chewing in Central and South America," Grinspoon

Somali stimulant

Recent news reports have shown gun-toting Somalis chewing on plant leaves described as an exotic drug.

The plant, called khat, has been used in the region for centuries. Some facts:

Approximate size of adult leaves

What is it: Khat (Latin name, Catha edulis) is a small shrub found in East Africa and the Arabian peninsula.

How used: Fresh leaves and stems are chewed; stimulant effect is lost when leaves are dried.

What it does: Reduces appetite; increases alertness, energy, talkativeness, heartbeats; induces mild euphoria and self-confidence; relaxes bronchial muscles.

Folk remedy: For asthma, chest ailments, cough, diabetes, flu, lethargy, stomach ailments.

Safety: High doses may induce hyperactivity, manic behavior or psychosis; minor withdrawal symptoms.

KRT Infographics

said. "People use it to ease the pain of not having enough food."

He said depriving chronic users of their khat would have effects similar to those experienced during withdrawal from amphetamine dependency. "One would be very irritable," he said, "the depression could be quite serious, and one would recover one's appetite."

Khat must be chewed over a period of hours to produce its effect, and Grinspoon said that just as in the case of coca leaf use in South America, drug-induced psychosis is unlikely because "you can't take it in fast enough."

The first written account of khat chewing was made more than seven centuries ago in "The Book of Compound Drugs," by Nagub Ad Din, who described the plant as a cure for melancholy and depression and said it was useful for easing the atmosphere on social occasions.

Khat remains primarily a social drug, with elaborate protocols for its use parallel to the customs surrounding the coffee ceremony in parts of Ethiopia.

Bonnie Holcomb, a New York-based anthropologist who specializes in traditional societies, said the use of khat "is primarily associated with Muslim ritual, often used at weddings, funerals and ceremonies at which fasting is taking place."

Buildup means home is where your cot is MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — Senior Airman Kevin Rhoden stood shaving, his mirror attached to the door of a Humvee. His wash basin, on the right fender, was the bottom half of a plastic half-gallon Arrowhead Spring Water bottle.

Past his right shoulder was a decrepit gray, white and blue, Dornier 228 passenger plane of the defunct Somali Airlines, surrounded by dozens of cots.

"They could at least have brought in tents to set up a camp," the 22-year-old airman from Fort Pierce, Fla., said Tuesday. "To take showers we've been dumping water over our heads from five-gallon bottles."

"Rhoden has lived in a hangar at Mogadishu International Airport since 18 hours after the first wave of more than 3,600 U.S. Marines, soldiers and airmen arrived for Project Restore Hope.

Following the Dec. 9 landing, Rhoden's outfit installed the generators and electrical systems that made the airport operational for nighttime landings to keep the reinforcements coming.

Such a rapid buildup, in a city where civil warfare and banditry destroyed most usable buildings, has meant that U.S. soldiers have had to stay in airplane hangars, warehouses, office buildings, even in the destroyed compounds of the former U.S. Embassy and the Mogadishu International School.

"We're living in pretty primitive conditions, but we're doing what we can to solve that," said Marine Col. Fred Peck, spokesman for the U.S.-led forces.

He spoke of plans to augment MREs — the "meals ready to eat" made famous in the Persian Gulf crisis — with fresh fruit and vegetables from neighboring Kenya. Showers were installed Monday for people billeted at Mogadishu International Airport, he noted.

"That was a big hit. "I took my first shower in a week last night. It was wonderful — all two minutes of it," said Air Force Capt. Rocco J. Dryfka, 32, of Milwaukee. "I'll never complain again, about anything. They gave me a shower."

Dryfka's cot, under a mosquito net, is in the same hangar as Rhoden's.

Living conditions are actually far better than those of most soldiers, especially at war. But many of the American troops in Project Restore Hope are veterans of the Gulf conflict, in which conditions were far less rugged.

One such veteran, Tech. Sgt. Carmen Spivey, 32, of Cleveland, said this is the first time he has had to sleep beneath an airplane's wing.

"Conditions here are not even close to Desert Storm," he said.

"Jeez, I'd go back in a minute," said Rhoden, 22, who was stationed in air-conditioned comfort in Doha, United Arab Emirates.

Environmental agency fines Gem Air Guard

The Associated Press

The state environmental agency has imposed a $9,000 fine, subject to negotiation, on the Idaho Air National Guard for alleged violations of hazardous waste rules.

But a military official disputed that the claim is in part correct, the problem was taken care of immediately.

The Division of Environmental Quality alleged Thursday that the guard violated hazardous waste storage rules during a Gowen Field construction project. The state claims contaminated soil dug up during construction was improperly stored in uncovered piles.

The agency said the Air Guard can ask for a conference to resolve the allegations.

After the proposed fine was announced, Brig. Gen. Ralph Townsend, Gowen Field commander, said, "The contractors did not follow the instructions given them. They were told to fence around the contamination site before doing any work in the area." The Idaho National Guard, though not responsible for the disturbance, responded immediately to correct the situation."

The Division of Environmental Quality also announced a $7,000 fine, also subject to negotiation, on Safety-Kleen Corp., Pocatello, for alleged failure to follow terms of its hazardous waste permit.

The agency said the permit requires the company to maintain and follow a plan for handling hazardous waste spills. When a spill occurred last month, the company's contingency plan was not carried out properly, and Safety-Kleen failed to recover spilled solvents as required by its plan.

The division said it has reached agreement with Idaho Asphalt Supply Inc. to clean up hazardous waste at its Post Falls site. The company will assess the extent of contamination and clean up the site.

Nelson Construction Co., Boise, agreed to a $5,000 fine. It will pave roads at its Boise plant and submit an operation-and-maintenance plan designed to minimize air emissions.

Hispanics to appeal
remap plan

NAMPA (AP) — The Idaho Hispanic Caucus will appeal a federal court decision handed down this week upholding the 1992 Idaho legislative reapportionment plan.

Humberto Fuentes, a caucus spokesman and executive director of the Idaho Migrant Council in Caldwell, said caucus members will meet next week in advance of the appeal to the U.S. 9th Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco.

After the Legislature approved a legislative remapping plan in February and it was signed into law, Hispanics filed a court challenge. They argued it improperly diluted their voting strength and also that of Indians.

A panel of three federal judges, including Senior U.S. District Judge Marion Callister of Boise, upheld the plan and said it ignored the minorities got full consideration when the plan was drawn up.

Based upon precedent set in a 1986 U.S. Supreme Court case involving North Carolina, voter discrimination complaints must show that a minority group is large and geographically compact to the point it makes a majority in a single-member district. The judges ruled the Idaho Hispanic Caucus case did not reach that threshold point.

"They took a conservative, safe approach to the problem," Fuentes said. "There are other cases they could have reviewed, but they didn't want to upset things."

Fuentes said Hispanics are not looking for any representation out of the ordinary. "All we want is to share some of the power and be a part of the system," Fuentes said.

Boise resident Jesse Berain became the first Hispanic to serve in the Legislature in many years when he beat Democratic incumbent John Gannon to win an Ada County House of Representatives seat in last month's general election.

The 1990 census put Idaho's Hispanic population at 52,927, just over 5.2 percent of the state's population, although Hispanic leaders contended it should have been up to 50 percent higher because many Hispanics weren't counted.

But the court decision noted that in just one of Canyon County's 47 voting precincts there is a Hispanic majority, and it's just over 52 percent.

Fuentes expects Canyon County to lead the way in Hispanic representation.

"We are going to forge that change one way or another," he said.

Defense wants prosecutor off murder case

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — The Blackfoot lawyer assigned as special prosecutor in the double murder charges against William Gray should be dismissed because he has a potential conflict of interest, Gray's lawyer says.

Defense attorney John Radin asked 7th District Court Judge Ted Wood on Wednesday to remove Thomas Moss as special prosecutor. Wood took the request under advisement. Moss is the part-time Blingham County prosecutor.

Radin said Moss can't be objective and has an interest in putting Gray behind bars because he has private clients who want Gray convicted.

Deputy Bonneville Prosecutor John Slesick, who is working with Moss on the case, said Moss has nothing personal to gain from a conviction. He said Moss did not volunteer for the job but was chosen as special prosecutor because of his experience with capital murder cases and his knowledge of the Gray case.

Gray, Jackson, Wyo., was arrested in April and charged with first-degree murder and burglary in the 1989 shooting deaths of his wife, Betty Lou Gray, and her friend, Leoda Roundy, at Roundy's Bonneville County home.

Before Gray's arrest, his children, Jeffrey Gray and Sara Hoffman, sued their father, contending he caused their mother's death. Moss represented the children in that suit. It was settled when criminal charges were brought against Gray.

Now, Radin wants Moss barred from prosecuting Gray in criminal court.

Fast-food patrons show no signs of virus

BOISE — None of the estimated 1,100 people who received free shots last week to prevent the possible spread of hepatitis at a local fast-food restaurant has shown signs of being infected by the virus.

The Central District Health Department offered the shots to people who had eaten at a Wendy's restaurant on State Street in Boise on Nov. 27, Nov. 28 and Dec. 4 after an employee was diagnosed with hepatitis A.

People who showed up to get the shots were asked about symptoms, which include fever, loss of appetite, nausea, fatigue and headaches.

Former BSU president runs for mayor

BOISE (AP) — Former Boise State University president John Keiser has announced he will run for Boise mayor in 1993.

"I wouldn't do something like that if I didn't intend to win," Keiser, now a Boise State history professor, said Wednesday.

He said he would not seek the interim mayoral position that will open up in early January when Mayor Dirk Kempthorne resigns to become a U.S. senator.

Keiser drew strong support from local residents when he was fired by the state Board of Education 15 months ago after 13 years as BSU president. Board members said he had failed to keep them informed on key issues.

Uof I officials impose cost-saving plan

MOSCOW — Low employee turnover, the weather, more students and a holdback of state funds are forcing University of Idaho officials to take cost-saving measures to avoid a deficit in June.

University officials imposed a hiring freeze on some vacant faculty and staff positions three months ago and cut all operating budgets by 2 percent to comply with a holdback order from Gov. Cecil Andrus. The cut amounted to $555,800 of the school's general education budget.

Along with higher enrollment, larger utility bills caused by recent cold weather and smaller-than-expected savings as a result of relatively low employee turnover, the reduction has the school facing a $690,000 budget gap, university officials said Wednesday.

Montana officials want editor returned

GRANGEVILLE — Montana officials want Idaho County Free Press editor Harry Vanhorn returned to Montana to face felony theft charges.

Carol Smith of the Montana governor's office confirmed Wednesday that extradition procedures have begun for Vanhorn, who is living in Grangeville and has been editor of the weekly Free Press since November.

Smith said Vanhorn is resisting extradition, which means Montana officials will have to go through the office of Idaho Gov. Cecil Andrus to have him arrested and returned. The process may take as long as a month.

Body was likely that of homicide victim

WESTMOND — A frozen body found beneath roadside snow near Westmond probably was that of a homicide victim, authorities said.

Booner County Sheriff Chip Roos said the body of a 30-year-old white man was found Wednesday by a woodcutter about 10 miles south of Sandpoint. Roos said it appeared the victim had suffered a wound to the torso.

Later, the sheriff declined comment on possible weapons involved but confirmed foul play was likely. The victim was identified, he said, but his name was being withheld pending notification of relatives.

Roos said the body may have been at the scene one to two weeks, and it could take until Friday to thaw the body enough to conduct an autopsy.

Rankin unveils latest property tax initiative

LAWISTON (AP) — Tax activist Ron Rankin has unveiled his latest One Percent Initiative, including some changes to avoid cutting "essential services," eliminating property tax exemptions or raising other taxes.

Rankin of Coeur d'Alene said Wednesday that the new version is aimed at countering criticism of the last One Percent Initiative, a property tax limitation measure that Idaho voters overwhelmingly rejected last month.

Rankin

But the Idaho attorney general's office contends the newest model, which would be on the November 1994 ballot if Rankin can round up 32,000 valid signatures, contains most of the old flaws.

"The fundamental problem with the One Percent ... is the inability to implement the limitation without totally dismantling the system of property taxation under which we have operated since statehood," Deputy Attorney General Frank Walker wrote in an opinion.

Rankin was required to submit the initiative for legal review, but not to adhere to the attorney general's opinion.

"The AG's comments are not really of that much interest since they are biased and self-serving," Rankin said.

The new One Percent Initiative, like its predecessor, would limit property taxes to 1 percent of market value. In the past, state Tax Commission analysts have said that could "slice" annual revenues to schools and local governments by $148 million to $192 million.

But the new version includes some of the changes Rankin suggested he was considering near the end of his failed campaign for the last ballot measure:

- It would allow approval, by a two-thirds majority of those voting, of bond issues and special tax levies. The 1992 version required approval by the virtually impossible standard of two-thirds of all qualified voters.

- It would prohibit increasing the property tax to 1 percent of market value in areas where the tax rate now is below that level.
- It would require cities, counties and taxing districts to maintain fire, police and emergency medical services at a level no less than those in effect on Oct. 1, 1994. If cuts are required, local officials would be directed to look at "less essential activities."

- "This is to prevent the disappearing ambulance," said Rankin, referring to a television advertisement used by the successful anti-initiative coalition Idahoans Against 1 Percent.
- It would lock the Legislature into maintaining the sales and income tax rates in effect as of Jan. 1, 1993. It also would bar repeal of the homeowner's exemption or production exemptions for agriculture and timber.

It would direct the state to cut "less essential" programs to preserve public school funding without increasing taxes.

Rankin reiterated his stand that expansion of the property tax base would make up for the lost revenue without raising other taxes, curtailing school spending or eliminating tax breaks.

"If in fact, after growth, after all of the other things, there aren't sufficient funds and not enough to cut, then the local taxing districts can take it to the voters," he said.

Yeltsin says Russia, China can cooperate militarily

BEIJING (AP) — Russian President Boris Yeltsin, on his first visit to China, said Thursday that the two nations have "great prospects" for military cooperation.

Officials in his entourage said Russia would sell fighter jets and anti-aircraft weapons to China, but would not renew their 1950s-style alliance.

Yeltsin also said he would consider whether the Chinese model of economic reform is suitable for Russia. Huffing from a steep climb along the 2,400-year-old Great Wall, he flashed the thumbs-up when asked how negotiations were going.

Yeltsin's three-day visit marks a warming of bilateral relations, which went from close alliance in the 1950s to armed border conflicts and ideological clashes in the 1960s and 1970s.

Relations were normalized by then-Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev in 1989, the last time a Kremlin leader toured China.

Chinese leaders have privately denounced Yeltsin and Gorbachev as traitors to communism, but publicly they are pursuing good relations in hopes of buying more advanced weapons and technology from Russia.

The visit also gives Yeltsin an opportunity to size up China's economic revival at a possible turning point in Russia's own market reforms.

Under pressure from hard-liners in the Russian congress, Yeltsin this week replaced his reformist acting prime minister, Yegor Gaidar, with an old-guard industrialist, Viktor Chernomyrdin. State lawmakers say Russia should adopt the Chinese model of market reforms combined with strong political control.

Yeltsin told reporters at the Great Wall that China's economic revival was "a very interesting model based on the idea of reform without shocks. It's a socialist economy, but also a market economy."

Asked whether it would be appropriate for Russia, he said, "Let us analyze that."

The visit began Thursday with a formal reception by Chinese President Yang Shangkun at the Great Hall. It will end Saturday with a tour of a special economic zone in southern Guangdong Province.

In between, the two sides are to sign 21 agreements, including a declaration of friendship, an agreement to build a nuclear power plant in China and a credit line to Russia worth $18 million to $36 million.

Yeltsin said talks also would touch on the 2,500-mile Chinese-Russian border.

"I think to raise the level of trust, we will start negotiations to pull back troops from the border, on both sides, and to reduce their numbers," he said. China and the former Soviet Union clashed over the border in 1969. Although only a tiny part of the boundary is still disputed, both sides have large numbers of troops guarding the border.

Because of the border tensions, the Soviet Union limited arms sales to China in the 1960s. This year, it has sold $1 billion worth of weapons to Beijing, including 24 Su-27 fighter jets.

Russia's deputy prime minister, Alexander Shokhin, told reporters that Russia would sell defensive weapons systems, fighter jets and anti-aircraft systems to China. But he said Russia will not sell offensive weapons.

Recent Russian press reports have said China wants to buy Kilo-class submarines, satellite parts, ground-to-air rockets and possibly even an aircraft carrier.

Before going to the Great Wall, Yeltsin met for about an hour with his Chinese counterpart, Yang called for a "new era in relations."

Russian Foreign Ministry spokesman Sergei Yastrebzhsbky denied that the two countries were approaching a new alliance.

"Russia has no enemies and no need to participate in any military-political alliance," he said.

"China is a priority partner for us, and the level of relations between our two countries will be special," he added.

Russian President Boris Yeltsin walks up the winding Great Wall of China north of Beijing Thursday. He arrived in China Thursday for a three-day visit.

Serbs say no-fly policy won't work

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Any Western move to attack Serb aircraft over Bosnia would only deepen Serbian determination and provoke a backlash against U.N. peacekeepers on the ground, Bosnian Serb leaders say.

But officials in Sarajevo say a clampdown on the Serb flights would make a difference militarily and would represent a statement of world support for the Muslim-led Bosnian government.

The Serbs have flown about 300 sorties over Bosnia-Herzegovina in violation of an October U.N. Security Council ban, according to Western reports.

NATO this week debated whether military might should be used to stop the flights. On Thursday, NATO foreign ministers said they would be willing to enforce a ban. The United States has volunteered its jets.

The independent Belgrade daily Borba said this week that enforcing the ban on Serb flights could put the hands of hard-line President Slobodan Milosevic, who is running for reelection Sunday against Yugoslav Premier Milan Panic.

Milosevic has used Western threats of military force to back his claim that the world is ganging up on the Serbs to keep them from creating a united nation.

Opinions vary on whether U.S. air patrols would hamper Bosnian Serbs' ability to fight.

A pilot in Serbia told The Associated Press that most of the flights since the ban was imposed October had been helicopter sorties to evacuate the wounded.

Muslim and Croatian media, however, charge that Serb planes are bombing and strafing their positions.

Even helicopters flying in ammunition or evacuating wounded are "a great support system for the Serbian army," said Mustafa Hajralovic-Talijan, commander of the Bosnian Army's First Corps in Sarajevo.

If the ban were enforced, "at least the people would see that the world is doing something," said Ejub Ganic, a member of the Bosnian presidency.

Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic, in a letter to British Prime Minister John Major and U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali, warned of a backlash against U.N. troops.

"U.N. troops on the whole territory of Bosnia would be proclaimed enemies. In that case the influence of my government would be limited. Sorts of the U.N. units could find themselves under attack," said the letter, quoted Thursday by the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug.

Millions die around world from preventable diseases

MEXICO CITY (AP) — More than 4 million children could be saved from death each year if the world spent $25 billion to give its poorest youngsters food, clean water and health care, UNICEF said Thursday.

The U.N. Children's Fund cited several countries, especially Mexico, for making strides in helping children. But the agency also said about 13 million children, particularly in Africa and Latin America, will die this year from malnutrition and three preventable diseases — pneumonia, measles and diarrhea.

"It happens every day, and it happens quietly in poor communities throughout the developing world," it said.

In its annual State of the World's Children report, UNICEF said the spending target would halve the hunger problem and sharply reduce the death toll.

"This amount, $25 billion, is less than Europeans spend on wine each year, less than Americans spend on beer and less than the Japanese spend on business entertaining," James P. Grant, UNICEF's executive director, said in the report, which was released in Mexico City.

He said the goal is to save children at risk from the famine-wracked Horn of Africa to the unsettled nations of eastern Europe to the sprawling urban slums in Asia and Latin America.

Wars over the last decade killed more than 1.5 million children, dislabeled more than 4 million and left more than 12 million homeless, the report said.

The report said annual child deaths have dropped from about 16 million in the 1980s, thanks primarily to aggressive immunization. Less than 20 percent of the world's children were immunized in the 1980s and now 80 percent are, it said.

Despite the gains, the worldwide recession has cut into aid from wealthy nations, the report said. "Much of the developing world is today facing its worst financial famine of modern times," it said.

It said two-thirds of the $25 billion will have to come from developing nations themselves, suggesting that money be taken from the military and other programs. A third of the funds could come from aid from donor nations, it said.

Grant praised several nations for actions stemming from the 1990 World Summit for Children, at which world leaders called for halving child malnutrition by 2000 and controlling childhood diseases.

"Mexico, in particular, has made a determined start," UNICEF said.

Marriage-like contract for homosexuals

OSLO, Norway (AP) — The government proposed a law Thursday that would allow homosexuals to cement their relationships with a contract similar to the one that legalizes marriage.

The minister of children and families, Grete Berget, said she hoped Parliament would adopt the law next year.

It would allow homosexuals to register their partnership with a notary public, in much the same way that heterosexual couples do in a civil ceremony.

The homosexual couples would have the rights and obligations of a married couple, except for adopting children and being married in a church.

Berget noted at a news conference that homosexuality was illegal in Norway just 20 years ago.

Other Scandinavian countries already recognize homosexual relationships. In 1989, Denmark was the first country in the world to allow homosexuals to marry. Danish homosexuals marry in civil ceremonies, but may not adopt children.

Australia to take queen out of oath

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — Australia chipped away another link with Britain Thursday when the government announced it would drop all reference to Queen Elizabeth II from its oath of allegiance.

Lawmakers to practice what they preach

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Lawmakers in India are being told to practice what they preach. To force them to set an example in the world's second-most populous country, a proposed law would disqualify federal and state legislators if they have more than two children while holding office. A proposed constitutional amendment, prepared by the Health and Family Welfare ministry, will soon be sent to parliament for approval. The Statesman newspaper reported Thursday.

World trade deal deadline slips away amid U.S. pessimism

GENEVA (AP) — Trade negotiators said Thursday that chances of concluding a world trade deal to boost the global economy were remote and that a Christmas deadline for broad political consensus would almost certainly be missed.

As the European Community's executive commission tried to stifle a French rebellion, U.S. officials said Paris' objections could block the most ambitious attempt ever made to cut barriers to world trade.

The negotiator, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the deallock would not be solved soon.

Arthur Dunkel, head of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, scheduled a high-level meeting Friday to "take stock of the current situation."

The meeting was originally scheduled for Dec. 23 in the hope that negotiators would be in a position to announce political consensus on the 103-nation trade accord, crowning more than six years of tough bargaining.

The talks, known as the Uruguay Round for the nation where they started, are meant to cut trade barriers in traditionally protected areas like farming and textiles and to set new rules for opening markets to services like banking.

It has been estimated that a liberalization package would lead to annual income gains for the overall world economy of nearly $200 billion by 2002.

The talks originally were scheduled to be wrapped up two years ago but were blocked by deep divisions between the United States and European Community nations over farm subsidies. Last month's deal between the two trade giants to cut subsidies boosted hopes that an overall accord was finally in sight.

However, optimism has faded rapidly in the past week as new obstacles have appeared in a whole variety of sectors.

The U.S. negotiator said he saw no way to reach a general agreement by year-end, which Dunkel hoped would be followed by two months of sorting out final details.

The European Community's chief negotiator, Hugo Paemem, said at a news conference that it was still possible to reach a final accord by March. "But, of course, the political will has to be there," he added.

The U.S. administration's special negotiating authority from Congress expires at the end of February. It is unclear whether incoming President Clinton will seek to renew that authority or whether he will try to renegotiate the entire package—a process that could take years.

Some negotiators said privately that the Feb. 28 target was unrealistic because of the hardening French position.

France has so far blocked approval of the community's farm subsidy accord with Washington and maintains that in the meantime the commission has no right to resume the international negotiations.

Bodies wash up along island coast

MAUMERE, Indonesia (AP) — Hundreds of bodies have been washing up along the coast, a rescue official said Thursday, apparently from an island swept clean by a weekend earthquake and tidal waves that killed nearly 2,500.

Fears of disease rose as 10 cases of cholera were reported in the town of Maumere on Flores island, where decomposing bodies and animal remains are still pinned under destroyed homes and buildings.

Shops were open Thursday in the town of 40,000 in eastern Indonesia, and residents lined up to buy food at double or triple the usual price.

The stench of rotting flesh was strong, causing some people to cover their faces. Rescuers complained about the lack of equipment needed to remove trapped bodies.

"We are hungry and weak and we are not supermen, so don't expect us to carry and remove those heavy objects, although we would like to very much," said one rescue worker, Agus Rachmat.

The earthquake and tidal waves killed more than 1,000 people in Maumere and most of the 1,000 people who lived on Pulau Babi, an island off the Flores coast about 1,000 miles east of Jakarta. The tidal waves were caused by undersea landslides set off by the earthquake.

A rescue official, Felipe Fernandes, said he saw bodies drifting off Tanjung Bunga village on Flores, and that at least 600 have been recovered from coastal areas since Wednesday.

Hendrik Fernandez, the governor of the province that includes Flores, said the drifting bodies might have come from Pulau Babi, which one rescuer described as a "ghost island." The discovery of the bodies probably won't raise the overall death toll, however.

All survivors have been evacuated from Pulau Babi.

Dr. Herminus Man, a local health official, said at least 10 Maumere residents had cholera. "We fear there may be more victims because the hospital is partly damaged and there is not enough clean water and medicine," he said.

Cholera is spread by contaminated water and food. Severe cases cause rapid dehydration that, if untreated, can lead to death within hours.

Magazine reports French movie star was Soviet secret agent

PARIS (AP) — Michel Simon, a French film star who died in 1975, was a Soviet secret agent before and during World War II, a French news magazine reported this week.

In an article three weeks ago, L'Evenement du Jeudi had quoted a KGB colonel, Igor Prelin, as saying a famous French actor had worked with Soviet intelligence agencies in the 1930s and '40s.

In its latest edition, the magazine said the actor was Simon, a star since his leading role in Jean Renoir's 1932 "Boudu Saved From Drowning."

The magazine's article was written by Roger Falgot and Pascal Krop, co-authors of a book on the French secret service.

They said Simon, born in Switzerland, was recruited by the Soviets after helping establish the Swiss Communist Party in the 1920s.

Watches those prices during holidays

Knights-Ridder News Service... Many shoppers take it at face value that the merchant is telling the whole truth. You could, in fact, be totally wrong by buying the 'sale' price.

Donald Lichtenstein, Director of the College of Business, University of Colorado... Many shoppers take it at face value that the merchant is telling the whole truth. You could, in fact, be totally wrong by buying the 'sale' price.

Many shoppers finally have figured out that credit card issuers are aggressively courting you because American consumers have finally wised up to that revolving credit is costing them more than it's worth.

So, on garde shopper! Donald Lichtenstein, a professor in the College of Business at the University of Colorado, studies the effects of advertising on shoppers' spending habits, and he says you need to be especially price sensitive during the holidays. "Don't let the spirit of Christmas get in the way of smart shopping," he said.

The especially wary of "reference ads," which compare a higher price to a lower price. A reference ad might, for example, say "Seen elsewhere for $79.95; our price $59.95."

Spending cash is cheaper: You may be earning 3 percent or less on money sitting in your savings account but be paying around 18 percent interest for items purchased with your bank card. With interest charge accounts, the interest may be as high as 23 percent or more.

"It's no real bargain to buy your Christmas gifts and have a bill come due in the new year that can't afford to pay off," said Paul Richard, the NCFE's director of education.

Dow up 14 despite 3M slide; IBM stabilizes

New York — The Dow industrials rose 14 points to close at 3269 Thursday as the stock of International Business Machines, whose sharp losses have weighed down the industrial index for two days, finally showed signs of price stability. Although Dow component Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing took over the mantle of downward leadership, falling as much as 3% to a session low of 99, the loss had no more effect on the broad market than severe losses in IBM and Goodyear had on Wednesday, traders said.

IBM announced that its company announced that its earnings per share would likely arrive below analysts' estimates. 3M said earnings should be $1.27 per share in the fourth quarter. The previous Wall Street consensus was around $1.37, according to First Call in Boston, a subsidiary of Thompson Financial Services. Strategist Jack Condon at Rothschild said, "overall, white stocks on the Dow average continue to play musical chairs regarding which one gets bludgeoned the most on any give day, the broad market has been remarkable in that it has been stable to higher irrespective of the damage to big glamour stocks."

Broad indexes posted respectable gains throughout the session, although major averages fell short of record closes. An IBM bounce as much as 1% to a session high of 53% after plunging nearly 17 percent after battery of bearish corporate announcements on Tuesday.

This kind of action suggests that the market wants to move higher, and that a decent rally lies not too far off," he said. Strategist Hugh Johnson at First Albany agreed.

Nevada casino winnings rise

CARSON CITY (AP) — Nevada casinos won $522.5 million from players during October for a 7.7 percent increase, enthusiastically welcomed by Gov. Bob Miller as another sign of an improving economy.

The increase reported Friday by the state Gaming Control Board compares with a September gain of 3.8 percent, an August increase of 3.4 percent, and a July jump of 12.2 percent.

"It's certainly better," Miller said of the increase.

But it's being compared to the worst month of last year. So in terms of real growth it's very minimal. But at least it's not the same as last year.

A lower take in gaming and sales taxes, state budget mainstays, had forced Miller to announce $173 million in cuts in state agency spending.

But Miller chief of staff Scott Craigie said the revenues are coming up again.

While a remaining fiscal year deficit should be lower than the $17 million projected by the governor, Craigie said Miller still plans on a "hold-the-line" 1993-95 budget, with little or no new state agency spending above current levels.

For the fiscal year to date, taxes collected by the state from casinos total $152.6 million, 5.6 percent more than in the same period a year earlier.

The gaming taxes are based on fiscal year-to-date revenues totaling just over $2 billion for the resorts, up 7.2 percent over the same period in 1991.

A breakdown of the October revenues shows that Las Vegas Strip clubs accounted for $233.1 million of the October revenues, for a 7.9 percent increase. The September win was $219.9 million, up 0.4 percent.

Elko County clubs set pace

CARSON CITY (AP) — Here are major details from the state Gaming Control Board's latest report on October winnings by Nevada's casinos:

• STATEWIDE: Casinos showed a 7.7 percent gain in winning $522.5 million from gamblers in October. That compares with a September take of $508.8 million for a 3.8 percent increase compared with the same month a year earlier.

• LAS VEGAS STRIP: Las Vegas Strip clubs accounted for $233.1 million of the October revenues, for a 7.9 percent increase. The September win was $219.9 million, up 0.4 percent.

• DOWNTOWN LAS VEGAS: Downtown Las Vegas clubs accounted for $62.9 million of the October revenues, for a 6 percent increase. The September win for the downtown clubs was $59.5 million, up 5.3 percent.

• RENO-NORTH TAHOE: Reno-North Tahoe clubs showed October winnings of $82.8 million, up 10.4 percent. The September win was $83.6 million, up 1.5 percent.

• STATELINE: Clubs on Tahoe's south shore collected $34 million from players during October, for an increase of 17.6 percent. The percentage gain was the highest for the month compared with other areas of Nevada. In September, the win was $32.3 million, up 6 percent.

• ELKO: Clubs in Elko County took in $13.3 million during October, for an increase of 16.2 percent. In September, the win was $13.6 million, up 14.8 percent.

New nonstop flights link Salt Lake, Detroit

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — In a move that airport officials call a boon to the state, Northwest Airlines has added two daily nonstop flights linking Salt Lake City and Detroit.

Northwest added flights to Detroit because it is the carrier's second-largest hub. The largest is Minneapolis-St. Paul. "This is part of a new strategy by upper management to expand in the West," said Patrick Beckstead, manager of station operations.

The newest flights, which started Tuesday, have Salt Lake City departures at 7:30 a.m. and 2:15 p.m.

Louis Miller, director of Salt Lake City International Airport, said he and other airport officials are pleased with the development.

"We view it as very significant," Miller said. "The more air service you have in an airport, especially nonstop service, the more it increases the community's attractiveness for convention activity, for tourism, for business expansion or possible relocation."

Although there now are only six daily Northwest flights in Salt Lake City, the airline itself is the nation's fourth-largest carrier. Salt Lake City International Airport currently has nonstop service to 67 cities on a total of 254 commercial airline departures daily.

Shopping

to month, on average about $1,650, McKinley figures that costs you about $300 a year in interest. You might actually do better if you tucked that $300 in your pocket to do your Christmas shopping with.

"The danger of using credit cards is that you plan overspend," Richard says. "We are trying to get consumers to be realistic and to focus more on activities rather than gifts for the holidays."

Richard says you can get through the season saner and richer if you make a plan, write a shopping list and set a budget. If you choose to use your credit card, plan to pay off the balance in full before interest charges kick in.

He also suggests:

- Shop for bargains, and set aside money now to pay for gifts.
- If you write a check for a purchase, record the check and subtract it from your account balance immediately.

• Instead of giving money, especially to younger children, give a U.S. Savings Bond. It costs one-half of its face value (a $25 bond costs you $12.50), it will not be spent immediately, it encourages savings, and because it pays interest and is not fees until it is cashed in, it's a gift that keeps giving.

Meet Your Match

What a fantastic way to meet someone with whom you share things in common (whether it be card playing, outdoor activities, or dating). You'll find all types of people - tall, short, energetic, young, old, friendly - searching for a perfect match.

It's easy! All you do is write an ad describing yourself, your interests and/or the type of person(s) you would like to meet. No names, addresses, or phone numbers will appear in the ads to maintain confidentiality. Simply wait for the responses to be forwarded daily, and choose who you would like to contact.

Reading the section daily will increase your chances of finding an intriguing ad that sounds like it may describe your perfect match. Then, you can respond by writing to the box number. All correspondence is handled with the strictest confidence by the Times-News.

Bob Hope

Just like Santa Claus, this entertainer is usually on the go bringing laughter and cheer when Christmas rolls around. This year, with help from Shamu the whale, he'll be raising the cash for the San Joaquin Valley Food Bank by selling a holiday show during this week. See Page 5.

CHRISTMAS FIESTA

Bob Hope starts entertaining at sound of jingle bells

By Jerry Buck
The Associated Press

LOS-ANGELES — Bob Hope, like Santa Claus, is usually on the go bringing cheer and laughter when Christmas time rolls around.

Hope began doing Christmas shows when he was on radio in the 1920s and '40s, and World War II found him heading for military bases to entertain the armed forces. He was in Germany for the Berlin Airlift in 1948, in Korea in 1950 when he switched to television.

Between 1964 and 1972 he traveled every Christmas to Vietnam. In 1983 he was in the Middle East, in 1987 he was in the Persian Gulf and in 1990 he was in Saudi Arabia for Operation Desert Shield.

His NBC Christmas special this year will be broadcast Saturday from San Antonio. While he's there he'll also entertain service personnel at bases around the Texas city.

"I guess for 48 years I didn't do anything but military bases," said Hope, who will be 90 next May 29. "We can probably get a big audience in San Antonio. They've got four bases there. Dolores and I will sing 'Silver Bells' as we stroll along the San Antonio River."

The Christmas show will also feature country-singer Clint Black, comedian Rita Rudner and The Associated Press All-American Football Team.

Last year the servicemen turned the tables on Hope. On Christmas Day one person from each service showed up at his doorstep to wish him a Merry Christmas.

"They said you're not going overseas this year so we're here to entertain you."
"They were all in uniform and we invited them in. Somebody in San Diego thought it would give me a kick, and it did."

His first Christmas show on television was broadcast from New York on Dec. 24, 1950. His guests were Lily Pons, Robert Cummings, Arthur Treacher, Robert Maxwell, Betty Bruce and Eleanor Roosevelt. He left afterward to entertain in Korea.

He entertained at Christmas time in such places as Alaska, Greenland, the Azores and Italy. The Vietnam tradition began in 1964.
One year, after arriving in Saigon, the tour's Barney McNulty was late getting Hope's cue cards off the plane.

"I said to get Barney in the convoy, or he'd get lost," Hope said. "It held us up a while finding the cards. I was riding with the general. We were going to the Brinks Hotel. A few blocks from the hotel there was a lot of commotion. The general sent a sergeant ahead to see what was the matter."

"He came back and said the hotel was on fire. A timing device had been set to go off on our arrival. That would have been the end of Bob Hope. Barney saved us because he was late."

The live audiences for the Christmas shows depend on where Hope is. Sometimes he's played for as many as 12,000 service personnel. Often he's played for an audience of 100.

"We always go to the hospitals," he said. "I've stood in front of a bed and done things for just one person. We'd break them up in the hospitals. We'd come in loud: 'Okay, everybody up!'"

Top military officials salute entertainer

SAN ANTONIO (AP)

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and other military leaders paid tribute to comedian Bob Hope, describing the veteran of numerous shows for U.S. forces as a morale-boosting hero.

"A hero is a leader not necessarily by rank, but by example," Cheney said. "You have been more than an entertainer and a great morale-boosting hero to America's fighting men and women. You have been a true hero."

Bob Hope
Military honors

Cheney and representatives of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines, honored the 89-year-old Hope at Kelly Air Force Base on Saturday during the taping of Hope's Christmas television special.

The special, titled "Bob Hope's 4-Star Christmas Fiesta," is to be broadcast 7 p.m. Saturday on K38AS and KFI. Guests include Clint Black, Rita Rudner and Texas Gov. Ann Richards.

Jerry Colonna would sing loudly. They loved it because all they heard were soft things. They went wild when we talked like that."

Hope said he may include in this year's show a clip from a Christmas program made during peacetime.

"John Wayne was making a movie in Phoenix," he said. "I wanted him for our Christmas show. I called him and flew to Phoenix to tape his appearance. We sat in front of a fire and sang 'Have Yourself a Merry Little Christmas.' We did a few jokes."

Hope said he has no plans to slow down. "George Burns is 97," he said. "I saw him do 50 minutes and knock 'em dead. I think the vaudeville life is pretty good. When I started I didn't want to do TV at first. Then I went on Ed Sullivan's show and was convinced. They kept making me offers and I finally accepted."

"For a while I had five-year contracts. Now they're open ended."

What does Bob Hope want for Christmas this year?
He grinned and said, "A few paws on the golf course, that's all."

CBS kicks off this week's holiday shows with shew-in

What better way to celebrate a really big holiday than with a really big show?

Bob Newhart takes time out from his CBS series, "Bob," to host the two-hour special, "Holiday Greetings From 'The Ed Sullivan Show.'" Newhart is no stranger to "The Ed Sullivan Show," having appeared on it numerous times.

"Holiday Greetings" is the third in a series of retrospectives of the memorable CBS variety series, which aired from 1948 to 1971. The latest special mixes new performances with old clips.

"Holiday Greetings From 'The Ed Sullivan Show'" airs at 8 p.m. MST Sunday on KMVT.

Here are the highlights of more holiday shows airing this week:

Technology explosion

As industry expands, many expect viewers and their sets to become more intimate

By Lynn Elber
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — The vaudeville gag goes like this: One resort guest is asking another about the rooms, the service, the food — the lousy food. "Yes," replies the other guest. "And such small portions."

Welcome to the big-portion world of 500-channel cable television, coming sooner than you may realize to a nearby television set. More channels won't necessarily mean just more of the same. But will it mean better?

Aim a newly empowered TV remote control and you may be able to choose from hundreds of pay-per-view movies, dozens of college football games.

Or switch on a baseball game and — click — call up a player's stats in an on-screen box. Or — click again — get an on-screen list of future home games and a stadium seating chart. Then buy tickets, all using your remote.

Try this scenario: You've missed your favorite soap opera for a day and a new character has popped up. Point your remote at him, and you discover it's John, Mary's new lover. Like his suit? Go ahead and order it via your TV.

These are among the possibilities of so-called "interactive" television, an outgrowth of mega-TV technology. It means many viewers and their sets are likely to get a lot more intimate.

"I think there will be a substantial fraction of (cable) subscribers served by 1995-96," said Richard Green, president of CableLabs, the industry's research and development consortium.

It's TV your way, promoters say, personal TV — not this cookie-cutter programming, this just-sits-there-but-doesn't-reflect-the-REAL-You. But, as always, buyer beware. All those choices, all that fulfillment, comes at a price, as yet uncertain, which could end up ballooning your monthly cable bill.

The industry moved a big step closer to this brave new world with the announcement that the nation's largest cable operator, Time Warner Entertainment Inc., was installing digital technology for 1 million customers as early as 1994.

Digital, as opposed to the current analog technology, is what could allow cable TV to speed down its 500-plus lane freeway — if, of course, consumer demand is there, and if cable, computer and other industries move aggressively to meet it.

"The image of the (cable) industry will change," Green predicted. "Right now, the image is entertainment, video provider ... the same stuff like at the video store. The image will change to more of a high-tech, digital provider of a wide range of services," including education.

Information services now available through personal computers also may be offered over cable.

Steering you through the mind-boggling array of choices will be on-screen video TV guides, several of which are in development. One, InSight Telecast, will be tested in homes next summer and may be marketed within two years for the $1-or-so weekly cost of published guides.

Besides providing a grid schedule, similar to those now in print, they will perform such magic as organizing a list of a week's worth of movies and series on TV by genre and giving capsule plots.

Wart of Tele-Communication's digital folly helped fan excitement at a cable industry convention in Southern California that already was attitudinal with the possibilities — and the profit potential.

"You can tell the way people use TV they want more interaction with it — they sit there clutching the remote, pressing the button," suggested one panelist, clearly a pop psychology devotee.

Another optimist suggested the emergence of a new viewer hybrid: the Super Couch Potato. And still, like a third, starting-ey, envisioned a monthly cable tab "that ends up looking like a long-distance bill, which is what I hope it ends up."

Such prospects drew nervous murmurs from audiences, even these industry-friendly ones. A wiseguy pantomimed opening a cable bill, then threw his hands up and exclaimed: "What's this? $362!"

But, hey, let's give the future a chance. After all, some 200,000 Canadians already are friends with interactive TV through a system called Videoway, which says it's showing a profit.

Don't we have the stout heart of our neighbors-to-the-north? Are we lacking the pioneer spirit needed to fork over more green stuff, keeping us in the front ranks of the international TV market?

Bring on those 500 channels. Praise the Lord, and pass the remote control.

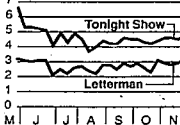

It's up to CBS to win Letterman from NBC

CBS woos Letterman

CBS has offered talk show host David Letterman an 11:30 p.m. time slot, where he can take on the popular "Tonight Show."

Rating since May 25:
7.5 million of households

Letterman's deal would:

- Earn him $14 million a year
 - Give him ownership of the show
 - Let him produce a second late-night show following his own

Network's offer to Letterman only highlights increasingly intense late-night competition

By Jonathan Storm
Knight-Ridder-News-Service

Nobody's circling the wagon's yet, but you can't say they're not looking over their shoulders.

"Whatever happens, happens," says Jay Leno, asked about the prospect of competing, man to man, against David Letterman. "When you go against a worthy competitor ... you'd like to win. But if you're going to get beaten, you'd like to get beaten by the best."

Last week's news that CBS had offered Letterman its 11:30 p.m. weeknight slot threw another boulder into the already roiled waters of late-night television.

Late night was once the most stable segment of the TV day — Johnny Carson won; everybody else lost. But now this marketplace where more than $300 million is spent on advertising each year has become intensely competitive.

As the entertainment-show hosts bickered after Carson's retirement, ABC's news program has slipped into first place, by one measure, and Arsenio Hall's once red-hot syndicated program has cooled into a third-place tie with CBS's lightly regarded package of potboilers.

Under new management, NBC's "Tonight Show" floundered, with Leno struggling in Carson's shadow. "Obviously, he was the king of this thing," Leno says. "He was getting huge numbers."

"You have a lot more competition now. You have cable ... We're up against our own kind ... We're up like 'Cheers' and 'Taxi' that air opposite 'Tonight' on many indepen-

NEW YORK — The colorful fight for David Letterman's favor is CBS' black-and-white affair, with NBC emerging as NBC's sole rival to carry the talk show — host's weeknight series.

During months of speculation, ABC, Fox and major independent producers had been mentioned as contenders to lure Letterman from NBC, where his popular "Late Night" has been a fixture for 10 years.

"We have entered the formal negotiating period with Letterman as a result of his representatives coming back to NBC with what they feel is the best of his alternative offers," NBC spokeswoman Betty Hudson said.

Sources who spoke on condition of anonymity said CBS was that alternative.

Under Letterman's contract, NBC

dent stations.) You just try to do what you can."

Hall, a TV Christopher Columbus, has tried to hold on to the new, young late-night audience he discovered four years ago. But hundreds of other entertainers have followed explorer's path to grab at the big cash pot — including Whoopi Goldberg, Rush Limbaugh, "Studs" — and they are all vying for that audience.

"The landscape is so littered that it's difficult to know exactly who's beating whom. After 11 p.m., bed-time is the real ratings winner, so that a show that wraps up early ("Nightline") should have better numbers than one that stays on later ("Tonight") if one that starts even later ("Late Night With David Letterman").

If Letterman, an established late-night star already, gets that earlier 11:30 p.m. slot, the thinking goes, he could really clean up — all other things being equal.

But other things are not equal. "I think if you check Variety last week, there was a headline, 'Tonight Show' annihilates 'Nightline,'" Leno said. "It was talking about our first half-hour." The story referred to the week that ended Nov. 20 and indicated that in the time period that the two shows shared (roughly) 11:30 p.m. to midnight in the East. "Tonight" was named "win" at about $40,000 more households.

But for the week that ended Nov. 27 — the latest for which figures are available — the first half-hour of "Tonight" finished tied with "Nightline." "Tonight" didn't lose very many viewers, but nearly 650,000 additional households tuned to has about four weeks to make a counteroffer. Hudson would not comment further on the negotiations.

Published reports had CBS offering Letterman at least $14 million a year, double what he makes at NBC, and promising him the time slot opposite "The Tonight Show," which precedes his show on NBC.

The New York Times reported that the CBS deal would give Letterman ownership of the show and let him produce a second late-night show following his own.

Snaring Letterman would elevate CBS from its current low rated late-night crime dramas. Previous forays by the network into the talk show arena, most recently with game show host Pat Sajak, failed to stand up to Johnny Carson.

A CBS spokesman would not comment on the offer, nor would a CBS spokesman in Los Angeles-based Creative Artists Agency, which represents Letterman.

"Nightline."

Throw in "The Arsenio Hall Show," which starts anywhere from 10:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. in various cities, and a comparison of apples to apples is impossible among the big late-night players.

But at least we can compare these shows with themselves, can't we? Not really.

Part of the answer emphasizes the painful problem of trying to pick a late-night winner by ratings alone. College students, a significant portion of the late-night audience, return home in late spring to watch TV in their homes, where Nielsen monitors viewers. In the fall, they watch in dorms, where there are no Nielsen boxes.

This "hidden" younger audience drives ad-time, salespeople crazy at the networks and at such syndicators as Paramount, which handles "Arsenio."

The salespeople argue that lots more people watch late-night than the programs — especially such "younger-skewing" shows as "Letterman" and "Arsenio" — get credit for. People who buy time on the shows, however, do acknowledge their reach, showing more than $75 million a year on "The Tonight Show," $50 million on "Letterman" and $30 million on "Nightline."

Complicated medication deals make it more difficult to estimate "Arsenio's" sales, but the star (and part-owner) of the show alone earns more than $20 million annually, it has been reported.

All My Children

Dimitri pieces together "Ted's" background. He learns that "Ted" was missing since he was 8 years old and was "found" by his mother at a Christmas-time working at Nola's vineyard. Nola presses "Ted" about memories of his missing years. Later "Ted" is concerned when Nola becomes ill. Dimitri's testimony at the custody hearing scores points for her side until she finds that Junior is missing. Meanwhile, Miami tells Junior in the park with "Ted" and brings the boy to the courtroom. "Ted" goes to Wildwood. Adam is awarded temporary custody of Junior. Hayley sides with Dixie, but Charlie convinces her to pretend that she's Adam's ally. Mimi and Derek stand up to fellow officers to help move Natalie and Trevor into their dream house before Christmas. Taylor tries to take advantage of the tension between Mimi and Derek. Timmy asks Santa for a Mimi Christmas but really hopes that a miracle will bring back his mother's eyesight. Opal goes into labor on Christmas Eve during a snowstorm.

One Life to Live

Asa collapses after he and Blair have a blow out. Max and Lana begin to make love, but Lana is afraid of Max's health, and that something bad will happen. Blair doesn't help Asa—instead, she leaves him on the floor to die. Cassie and Andrew, still locked in the department store, plan many ways to get out of their trances. Bo gets ready to jump off the ledge. Sloan tries to save Bo, and talks to him about Sarah and about the war. Bo is saved. Cain asks Asa what happened, and Asa, who is still in Blair's arms, admits he put Addie away. Blair leaves Asa. Bo must go for psychiatric evaluation. Andrew and Cassie's party begins, as they try to get their loved ones to make amends. The Buchannans spend Christmas together, and all try to get Leo. Kevin and Rachel exchange gifts. Andrew gives Cassie a family jewel. Lana looks to the stars to determine when she and Max should get together. Mimi and Nikki are together on Christmas, and put their differences aside.

Loving

Ceara is accidentally shot and killed at the airport by Butler. Butler is arrested and taken away. Leo and Ava believe that the silver night mare is over, but then Leo is arrested. Jeremy is devastated over Ceara's death. A manipulative Clay tells Trisha and Trucker he is afraid that Casey might kill her. Ally believes that Casey is in love with her, almost makes love to him, but can't, because she doesn't want to hurt him, or trap him with her pregnancy. Ally goes to a woman's clinic, but decides not to make a decision on her own. Ally tells Fabio she is pregnant. Stevie freaks out at the Alden Christmas party and accuses Clay of trying to kill her. Cooper tells Isabelle he is marrying Hannah immediately, and Isabelle tells him that Ally is pregnant with his kid. Kate arranges for Ava to see Leo in jail.

General Hospital

Felicia's murder trial is adjourned until after the holidays when Monica makes her court appearance. Nearly fatal carbon monoxide overdose. The pressure building, Mac explodes at the courthouse, throwing Ryan against the wall in front of a news-thirty media. Bill-and-Holly moment. The Christmas Story? A conceptual art collector, whom they question about the missing Port Charles art pieces. Behind his back, they snoop for clues, but come up with no conclusions. The Christmas Story? Is Jenny's aid in her sorrow. With a gift of cash from her sister Julia, Brenda treats Jagger to a lavish Christmas celebration. Dr. Hardy maintains his position, reading "The Christmas Story" to the children in General Hospital, while families gather for the holiday. The General Hospital party is almost marred by the custodial tension between Tiffany and Bobbie over little Lucas.

Santa Barbara

Kelly and Connor arrive at a cabin outside of Aurora, Illinois. She is suspicious of Connor when she finds a picture of a pretty woman and Connor with "Connor and Molly" written on it. They're snaked in and when he goes to gather firewood, Kelly calls his mother and she flatly says "Connor murdered Molly." Connor explains Molly was his sister and that his family blames him for her death because while he was undercover on a drug bust, Molly caught a bullet meant for him. Mason discovers Grace stole the Capwell candleabra, and she wants her out of the house. Jodie and Mitch arrive with Christmas gifts for B.J. and Sawyer. Ted and Lily are growing closer. C.C., after having a realistic dream, makes his way to the mission where he encounters the bum (he saw in the dream) and helps him decorate a Christmas tree.

Days of our Lives

Lawrence is thrilled to receive a phone call from the missing Nikki, but an appalled Vivian gets Nikki to hang up before Lawrence's detective has time to trace the call. Following Colonel Brand's arrangements, Vivian and Nikki climb into a limousine to go the airport, but Vivian is in for shock when she realizes the chauffeur is none other than Bob Carly and Lawrence is speechless on Christmas Day when Nikki shows up on Lawrence's doorstep with Sue. Connor is having a job interview with Miranda Miller in a phone interview, and Suzanne agrees to publish the novel. Billie manages to land a job at a department store makeup counter. Victor gets into a argument with a customer and is fired on her first day. She takes solace in some L'Oréal pills that Cash gives her—capsules that happen to be laced with poison.

The Young and the Restless

Nikki tells Jack that Victoria and Ryan have both found jobs. Danny, Cricket and Silva keep trying to figure out what Michael is up to. Victoria tells Ryan she got a job, that makes him feel some. After a holiday experiment at the Chancellor residence as Mrs. Estler and Rex prepare the guest list, Victoria is still stumped at Nikki's invitation for Christmas dinner. Victoria says that she and Ryan will be there for Christmas Eve. Lauren tells Brad that she thinks they should take Paul's advice and be careful because of the custody decision still pending. Neil tells Drucilla she should call her mother just to wish her a Merry Christmas. Lillie Bell is happy and touched to hear from Drucilla. Victor recalls Victoria's childhood but is pulled from his thoughts by a singing phone. Nicholas pleads with him to join them for Christmas Eve and Victor is touched but makes no promises.

The Bold and the Beautiful

Stephanie and Taylor decorate the house for the Christmas party and Stephanie tells Taylor she invited everyone in the family, but Brooke doesn't want to go. Taylor tells Taylor about her admission of still being in love with Ridge. Eric thinks it's time everyone talk about Brooke's pregnancy, since the ramifications will affect the lives of Ridge, Taylor, Eric, and Brooke herself. Stephanie explains there was a man in her life but it's over now. Bill tells Karen that Thorne was reluctant to speak with his and Karen's future. Stephanie is in the fever when Brooke enters uninvited. Stephanie asks what she's doing here and Brooke states it's a family party and she's family. Stephanie reminds her she wasn't invited. Brooke asks Maria to leave, take her coat and Stephanie is furious. The next day, Eric tells Ridge Brooke never came home last night. Brooke is at the cabin looking at the snow falling outside and feels completely alone.

A Knight in shining amour returns to 'All My Children'

If you had any doubts about Michael E. Knight's enormous popularity, you should have seen the turnout for the press conference held recently to officially announce his return to "All My Children" in the role of Tad...well, he'll be known as Ted for awhile. Remember the last time we saw Tad in the environs of Pine Valley, he was hitchhiking a ride to Oh, yes, he was thought drowned by all his loved ones and was suffering severe memory loss. He didn't even know his name was Tad.

Soap studs

John N. Goudas

"Knight left "All My Children" two years ago and headed to California for prime time and movie work but there was little of either. He made a couple of films ("Date With An Angel" and the upcoming "The Good") and did some of the episodic TV ("Murder, She Wrote" and "Grapevine"), but the pickings were lean. Although he got a few nibbles from the West Coast soaps, he felt this was a good time to renew his bonds with "All My Children." The producers and writers were ecstatic and he did, so he's come! Michael back to the fold with open-ended storylines.

They have come up with a terrific way to get Tad back to Pine Valley: he has business dealings with Dimitri whom he never met as Tad, and it will take some time before he runs into anyone who would recognize him as Tad. He is thoroughly convinced he is Ted, a man who was kidnapped when he was 8 and then miraculously showed up at the vineyards where the boy's mother (played by Barbara Rush) calls his return an act of God.

This is definitely the type of soap plot that keeps viewers glued to their set and Knight's popularity in the role will only enhance the highly charged tear jerker that will be played out over a few months. A big change in Michael's life is his recent marriage to actress Catherine Hickland, who portrayed Jenny/Julie in "Capitol" and Courtney in "Texas," two soaps which are now defunct. Catherine accompanied her husband back from California to New York, where "All My Children" is produced. When asked if his wife will be appearing in "AMC," Michael said it was a possibility but he wouldn't know how to react playing love scenes, for instance, with his own wife.

In any case, Tad/Ted will have his hands (and arms) full when he finds out Brooke and he have a son, old flame Dixie is in a terrible state of mind and his mothers will become rivals for his affection. Move over, fellas, Michael E. Knight is back where he belongs.

All My Children airs from 11 a.m. to noon weekdays on KKKV.

Forrester never cast as Buck Rogers

By Bettelou Peterson Knight-Ridder News Service

Q. Settle a dispute: Was Eric Forrester, of "The Bold and the Beautiful," the star of "Buck Rogers in the 25th Century," which co-starred Erin Gray? A. John McCook is Forrester and has been since "B and B" debuted in 1987. Before, that he spent five years, 1975-1980, as Lance Prentiss on "The Young and the Restless."

Q. The lines of "Buck Rogers" in the 1980-81 series was Buck Rogers—in the

Q. Could you tell me something about "General Hospital"? Antonio Sabato Jr. and where I can write him?

A. Sabato was born in Rome, Italy, and grew up in Italy and the U.S., where he went to high school.

He's worked in TV and movies in Europe and in TV and video in the U.S. (He was Janet Jackson's love interest in her music video "Love Will Never Do Without You.") He's single, has a ranch in Wyoming and an apartment in Marina del Rey, Calif.

Write: ABC-TV, 2040 Avenue of the Stars, Los Angeles, Calif. 90067.

Q. Is Don Hastings, of "As the World Turns," the same Don Hastings who was on "Capt. Video" in the 1950s? If so, what's his address?

A. It was Hastings who was the Video Ranger on "Capt. Video" in 1949-55.

He was 15 and he was TV's first teen idol. When the series ended, he did a few TV shows before he landed his first soap opera role as Jack Lane in "The Edge of Night" when it debuted in 1956.

He left in 1960 to join "As the World Turns" as Bob Hughes and he's been there ever since.

For its 20th anniversary, HBO gives Crystal

... and Gibson, and Goldberg, and Streisand, and more blockbusters

By Kenneth R. Clark
Chicago Tribune

NEW YORK — Michael Fuchs, chairman and chief executive officer of HBO, was about to celebrate the 20th anniversary of his pay cable service by doing what just a few years ago would have been unthinkable.

He was on his way to recently to the premiere of "Stalin," an HBO production with Robert Duvall in the title role. But the premiere was not to be held in New York or Los Angeles; it was to be held in Moscow, before an audience of Russia's political, cultural and academic elite.

Here we have a psychological profile of this monster, and we're showing it to the Russians!" Fuchs said.

"It's one of the thrills of this job. Your people do the hard work; they kill themselves. You just have the idea and when it comes on the screen it's fabulous because it comes to life."

The movie, the first American film ever to premiere in what used to be the Soviet Union is indicative of how far HBO has come from the days when, Fuchs said, "original programming consisted of the Pennsylvania Polka Festival and a few standup comedy routines."

Fuchs said the biography of Josef Stalin was one of several he was determined to do from the first day he came to HBO and assembled his sports and original programming team, but the concept was easier than the execution. "No one really believed in original programming then," Fuchs said.

"We were talking about it and we felt like communists walking into a capitalist convention. Everybody said we were crazy. There was such an inferiority complex in cable at the time that for cable to compete with the broadcasters was thought impossible."

The Fuchs, who took over HBO's top spot in 1984, was right is a matter of history.

HBO has gone, in terms of annual revenue, from $529 million in 1982 to $1.36 billion last year, and projections for this year are pushing $1.5 billion.

Another $75 million came in last year from the sale of service to back-yard and hotel satellite dish owners.

The network's home video division took in $5.3 million in 1989 and $9.5 million last year, and, while the division is small compared with major players in the industry, its revenue has helped finance original HBO specials, movies and series. Fuchs said the service spends as much or more on them than the networks spend on their own.

HBO original biographical movies, with subjects ranging from Edward R. Murrow to Josephine Baker, have become a Saturday night staple that has dated network audiences out of all proportion to HBO's comparative size.

Meanwhile, "adult" series such as "Dream On" draw audiences from ABC, CBS and NBC, where standards and practices codes leave them with no equivalent.

In the blockbuster department, HBO's one-time October exclusive, Michael Jackson's "Dangerous Tour" from Bucharest, Romania, outrated all three networks in homes where HBO was available.

In short, while the networks have become founts of red ink in recent years, HBO just gets healthier and healthier. "Saturday nights are our best nights," Fuchs said. "We beat the networks every Saturday night. It has become a terrible night for them and I'm sure we have a fair amount of impact. If you were ranking single sources of problems for the networks' Saturday night, HBO would probably be the major problem."

"If you look at the three commercial networks and take away the operating revenues from their O-and-O's (owned and operated stations), we will earn more money 'n' '92 than the three networks combined," Fuchs said.

"What kind of odds do you think you could have gotten on that bet five years ago?"

CBS regains ratings lead

By Lynn Elber
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — CBS grabbed the TV ratings lead back from ABC on the strength of such veteran programs such as "60 Minutes" and "Murder, She Wrote" and a treme movie starring Paul Duke.

CBS had a 13.0 average rating the week of Dec. 7-13, followed by ABC with 12.6 and NBC with 10.6, according to figures released Tuesday by A.C. Nielsen Co. Each ratings point represents 931,000 homes.

ABC lost the lead it held the previous week when "Roseanne" and the premiere of "The Jackie Thomas Show" ranked first and second, respectively.

Disney, ABC strike TV movie deal

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Walt Disney Television has a deal with ABC to provide up to five TV movies to the network for the next two seasons.

The first project planned is "A Family Promise," written by Anna Sandor, whose credits include the Emmy Award-winning Hallmark CBS' newsmagazine "60 Minutes" and the detective series "Murder, She Wrote" were the top two shows.

The CBS movie "A Killer Among Friends," starring Duke as a woman dealing with her daughter's murder, ranked fourth.

Two sitcoms, an ABC repeat of "Home Improvement" and CBS' "Murphy Brown," were tied for fifth, followed by the ABC newsmagazine "PrimeTime Live," "Monday Night Football" on ABC and the network's "20/20" newsmagazine tied for eighth, followed by a rerun episode of ABC's sitcom "Full House."

In the network news contest, ABC was first with an 12.2 average rating, followed by CBS with 10.9 and NBC with 10.8. ABC's "World News-Tonight" ratings, boosted by coverage of, were the highest since the beginning of the Gulf-War ground battles in February 1991.

Hall of Fame TV movie "Miss Rose White."

Dean Valentine, executive vice president for Walt Disney Television, said the deal represents the company's intention to produce TV movies as well as the sitcoms it now turns out, including "Blossom" and "Home Improvement."

Networks agree to tone down violence

By Matt Marshall and John Lippman
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The three major television networks, after years of criticism that they glamorize violence, appear to be ready to clean up their act.

In an unusual joint letter sent by ABC, NBC and CBS to Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., who has pushed hard for legislation to curb television violence, the three networks have agreed to issue a uniform set of guidelines for depiction of violence on the air.

Although those guidelines are not expected to be notably different from the standards already in place at each network, the agreement is significant because it pressures others in the television industry, including cable TV and the burgeoning syndication market, to take similar steps.

In recent years, network officials said, the three major broadcasters have moved away from the kind of high-violence programs once symbolized by such hits as "The A-Team" and "Hill Street Blues." Instead, cable television and syndicators, which have looser standards than the networks, frequently show programs that are more violent in nature.

So far, other segments of the TV industry have not signaled their intention.

The letter nonetheless represents a victory for Simon. "You will see a difference in the 1993 programming... next fall," Simon predicted at a press conference last week.

In the letter, the three networks said they will "limit the depiction of violence" in entertainment programs.

Although Simon hailed the agreement as "a first big step," he conceded that the "lacked teeth" because they could not be enforced by law, and are subject to loose interpretation.

Network producers, responding to the agreement, said the guidelines would have little or no effect on their programming.

"I don't see why we'd really have a problem with any of that," said Walton Green, co-executive producer of NBC's "Law and Order." Green said other programs currently running on TV would not be affected either because they "have backed away from showing people being beaten up at random and woman being abused just for the affect." He said only shows in the 1970s such as "Starsky and Hutch" were excessively violent.

Still, the networks because of their high visibility and longtime association with the issue, believe that they have to lead the way if the television industry is to sign onto some industry-wide guidelines curbing violence on TV.

"It is not insignificant that the three networks, who cannot agree on the color of the sky, have gotten together on this one issue," said a senior network executive who asked not to be identified.

Simon, who authored an antitrust exemption that allows TV broadcasters to collaborate on industry-wide standards on violence, said the agreement outlined several broad areas where the networks can reduce the harmful effects of TV on audiences.

The guidelines include banning repeated depictions of violence for its own sake, prohibiting the glamorization of violence, banishing excessive gore or suffering and barring violence that is especially shocking or stimulate the audience.

Each network previously had its own set of guidelines, and the new voluntary standards represent their consolidation — with the overall effect of slightly stricter rules for all.

Simon's TV Violence Act, passed by Congress in 1990, exempted the television industry from antitrust limits for three years to allow self-regulation of violence. The law, which called for common standards among all broadcasters, includes the cable industry.

ABC, NHL expected to enter deal

By Mike Kiley
Chicago Tribune

CHICAGO — Now that the National Hockey League has brought two new major markets into the picture, it plans to widen the focus and announce a TV deal with ABC this season.

It's not huge — just one regular-season game-and-four-Stanley Cup playoff games in the first two rounds, according to Chicago Blackhawks owner Bill Wirtz. However, that is a step toward a bigger network contract and a sign of things to come.

The official announcement is expected in a couple of weeks, giving the league another momentum-builder after last week's post-expansion decisions during its annual December meeting in Palm Beach, Fla.

"ESPN will do the other games, but it's good to see ABC getting into some games," Wirtz said. "Hopefully, the package can grow."

The NHL will split up 26 teams in the next season or two with the addition of Miami and Anaheim. Personally, Wirtz can't see how the two clubs could possibly form management teams in time to open in 1993-94 and wouldn't be surprised to see them delay until 1994-95.

"But that's what they wanted to, to try for next year," he said. "We'll have to know whether they can do it by the end of January."

Besides the need to start making the schedule for next season, the league would also have to start setting up another expansion pool for a draft that would precede June's regular amateur draft.

Wirtz said the first-year Ottawa Senators, apparently on their way to being the worst team in the NHL, won't be cheated out of the No. 1 pick in June. "That wouldn't be fair," he said.

Wirtz also hinted that realignment might be in order and that it may land Winnipeg in the Norris Division. This is a policy shift for him.

The scenario is that Tampa, now in the Norris, would be split to the Patrick Division with Miami.

"That would put them all in the same time zone," Wirtz said. "We've got to look at these geographic factors. Do what's simple, not complex."

"I've never had any objection to Winnipeg. They don't draw too well, but I'd be willing to consider them in the Norris."

Despite his insistence that the Jets don't bother him, the Hawks have not been eager to welcome Winnipeg into their division. The Jets call the Smythe Division home at the moment, but Anaheim is headed for the Smythe with other West Coast clubs, including Los Angeles.

If both Florida clubs go to the Patrick, the NHL could shuffle one of the current Patrick teams into the Adams Division, another one where the teams are in the Eastern time zone.

That would leave seven teams in each Wales Conference division, while six teams would make up the Norris and Smythe divisions in the Campbell Conference.

Feel a little down when your team loses? It's normal, researcher says

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—When your team loses, do you feel like a loser? You're not alone, according to a researcher at Indiana University.

Social-psychologist Edward Hirt, a self-described sports nuts, has studied how fans who identify strongly with a basketball team often experience a temporary plunge in self esteem after their team loses.

Hirt studied 87 male and 80 female students — all serious men's basketball fans — at Indiana University for his study, which was published this month in the Journal of Personality and Social Psychology, along with data from the universities of Wisconsin and Alabama.

The students watched televised Indiana games, then were asked to answer written questions and perform a series of simple tasks, such as throwing balls at a target.

They also viewed slides of people of the opposite sex and rated how they thought those people might react if the student asked him or her out for a date.

Using complex mathematical computations, the researchers determined that fans who had just watched their team lose had lower self-estimations of how they could perform the tasks. And fans who had just witnessed a victory estimated their abilities higher than a control group that had not watched a game.

Also, people in the "win group" were more confident about landing a date."

— Researcher Edward Hirt

Hirt cautioned, however, that the effects "were on people's expectations of themselves," not on how they actually performed.

Hirt became intrigued with sports allegiances as a child. When his beloved Milwaukee Brewers would lose, he would go into a funk.

"My parents would say, 'What are you so upset about? They're a bad team, anyway,'" Hirt said.

"So many people form these allegiances," Hirt added.

Social psychologists call it "BIRGing," which stands for Basking in Reflected Glory.

That's the tendency for some people to identify with successful teams by wearing hats and sweat shirts and saying things like "We won." But when their favorite team loses, such fans distance themselves by saying, "They lost."

Hirt had a word of encouragement for BIRGing fans whose teams are losing.

"It's really important to realize there's a long season ahead."
