Arms control talks inch forward

Los Angeles Times
GENEVA — U.S. Secretary of State Lawrence S. Eagleburger and Russian Foreign Minister Andrei A. Kozyrev said they made progress Monday but were unable to reach final agreement on a historic arms control pact that would reduce Russia's and America's nuclear arsenals by two-thirds.
Eagleburger and Kozyrev, joined by Russian Defense Minister Pavel S. Grachev, scheduled another meeting Tuesday in what shapes up as a last-chance attempt to complete the accord before President Bush leaves office Jan. 20.

"We're making progress," Eagleburger told reporters before serving as host to the Russian delegation at a dinner. Asked if he remained confident that agreement could be reached, Eagleburger said, "I can't tell you. We will work as hard as we can."

A senior State Department official said Eagleburger planned to return to Washington late Tuesday, whether or not an agreement has been reached. "We are getting right down to the end of the process," the official said.
The official said negotiators narrowed the gap on all three remaining disputed issues, although none was settled Monday during a long, one-on-one meeting between Eagleburger and Kozyrev and in later negotiations between arms control experts.

As the talks began Monday, a seemingly optimistic Kozyrev told reporters: "I'm ready to bet a bottle of whiskey and say that we will do such work here which will make it possible for our presidents' to sign a treaty early next month."
Eagleburger had said earlier that chances of agreement were better than even, although he said he did not know how much better.

Forces secure final target

The Associated Press
MOGADISHU, Somalia — Tens of thousands of Somalis cheered and blew conch shells Monday to celebrate a promise by rival warlords to end their quarrel and reunite the capital that their armies had destroyed.
In the interior, U.S.-led forces wrapped up the first phase of their mission to get food to the starving by taking over Belet Huen, the last of eight hubs for the distribution of food and medicine.
For the first time in more than a year, Mohamed Farrah Aidid and Ali Mahdi Mohamed appeared publicly together at a mass rally of their followers and reaffirmed their pledge to end the division of the capital into spheres of influence.
But amid the smiles, promises and slightly off-key marching clan bands, the Green Line demeantation that Aidid and Ali Mahdi said had been torn down was still a highly dangerous place.

Several journalists were harassed or fired upon by gunmen in the area. Not far from the rally, outside Mogadishu airport, U.S. Marines killed one of three bandits who tried to rob a Visnews television crew.
The security problems that forced the foreign intervention continued to plague Mogadishu. Visnews cameraman Jimi Matthews and soundman Leon Malherbe, both of Johannesburg, said they were confronted by three armed Somalis as they approached the gate of the international airport.
Matthews snatched one of the bandits put a pistol to his head and demanded his camera while another fired a rifle at Marines.

U.S. shifts carrier group to confront Iraq

The Associated Press
WASHINGTON — As a U.S. aircraft carrier steamed toward the Persian Gulf, the United States issued a fresh warning Monday that it is prepared to respond to any additional Iraqi intrusions into no-fly zones over that country.
After a U.S. fighter plane shot down an Iraqi MiG flying below the 32nd parallel on Sunday, the carrier Kitty Hawk was dispatched from Somali coastal waters to the Persian Gulf, Pentagon officials said.
The Kitty Hawk had been transferred from the Gulf area to waters off Somalia as part of the buildup of U.S. forces in Somalia earlier this month.

The carrier normally has about 70 combat aircraft aboard along with a crew of 5,500. The officials said the carrier was expected to arrive in the next day or two.
State Department press officer Joe Snyder said the Iraqi flight into the no-fly zone was "part of a pattern of an Iraqi challenge" to the United States and the United Nations.
He cited Iraqi harassment of U.N. weapons inspectors and against humanitarian operations in Kurdish areas of northern Iraq.

"These actions appear aimed at testing the resolve of U.N. officials as well as the U.S. and coalition allies in enforcing U.N. Security Council resolutions on Iraq," Snyder said.
He said U.S. and allied forces remain on alert and capable of enforcing these resolutions.
Meanwhile, the Iraqi army daily Al-Qadassiyah called the Sunday incident "blatant aggression and a flagrant provocation" by the U.S.-led allies.

Filer man pleads guilty to slashing his ex-wife's throat in January incident

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — A Filer man avoided trial for attempted first-degree murder Monday by pleading guilty to a lesser charge in the January throat slashing of his ex-wife.
Gary Wickel, 47, pleaded guilty to a charge of aggravated battery with a deadly weapon, and could spend 30 years in prison for attacking 44-year-old Sandra Souza at the mobile home they were sharing north of Filer.
The maximum sentence for either crime is the same — 30 years in prison — said Twin Falls County Chief Deputy Prosecutor Dan Mink. There is no minimum sentence.

"If it had been anything less, we wouldn't have done it," Mink said. "The victim's goal was to put him in jail for as long as she could, because she's afraid of him."
The prosecution was ready to take the case to trial if necessary, but avoiding trial means sparing the couple's 14-year-old son the trauma of testifying again, he said.
Souza declined to comment on the case Monday evening.
Fifth District Magistrate R. Barry Wood will sentence Wickel after the state completes a routine background investigation, which usually takes four to six weeks, Wickel has remained in the Twin Falls County Jail since his arrest.
Wickel had been living with Souza for several months when the two began fighting Jan. 20. Their son told police that he saw Wickel pull a folding knife from a drawer in the bedroom.

He cut the telephone cord and held the knife blade to Souza's throat. The boy told police he heard his mother scream as he ran out of the house to the neighbor's where he called for help.
Wickel was arrested at the house without incident by Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies and Filer police.
Souza had followed her son next door, and police found her lying there, bleeding from the gash in her throat.
She survived the attack and regained her voice in time to testify at a preliminary hearing in July. Souza said then that Wickel had been drinking earlier that day.

Greetings in the mail from IRS

The Associated Press
WASHINGTON — Pity the poor letter carriers.
Just as they empty their mail bags of holiday greeting cards and packages, Uncle Sam is about to fill them with income tax forms.
The Internal Revenue Service said Monday that more than 107 million federal income tax packages will go in the mail starting Saturday.
But the IRS added that many letter carriers will find their loads lighter later in the year. It expects 14 million taxpayers will meet the April 15 filing deadline by using tax preparers who return forms electronically, rather than by mail. That's 3 million more than last year.
Still, it will cost the IRS about $19 million in postage to deliver the forms and another $12 million to print them. That's an average cost of 30 cents a package.
Most taxpayers should receive their Form 1040, 1040A or 1040EZ by the end of this week or the first part of next week, although a few may get them earlier, thanks to local postmasters who jump the gun.
Earlier this month, the IRS mailed over 11 million postcards to farmers and self-employed taxpayers who used a paid preparer last year. The postcard includes a pre-printed label and tells taxpayers to take the card to their preparer who will have the necessary tax forms.
The IRS said it expects returns from

Gem environmentalists laud Babbitt

The Associated Press
POCATELLO — President-elect Bill Clinton's choice of Bruce Babbitt as Interior secretary is drawing high praise from Idaho environmentalists while raising wonder what effects it will have on their livelihood.
"I think he's an excellent choice," said Trish Clair of the Idaho Conservation League. "He's a Westerner and comes from a state with a lot of Bureau of Land Management land."
As interior secretary, one of the agencies Babbitt will oversee is the BLM and its thousands of acres of grazing land in Idaho. Ranchers are unsure how the former Democratic Arizona governor and current director of the League of Conservation Voters will implement grazing policies. But they say they are optimistic and willing to work with him.

"It's obvious from his past notions that he doesn't quite understand our grazing system and what goes into it," Idaho Cattle Association President Bob Collet said. "We would hope that we could work with him and show him some of the facts and the truth."
Whether stockmen pay enough to graze their animals on federal land is a point of conflict with environmentalists.
"Basically, ranchers are good land managers," Collet said, pointing out they spend a great deal of money on reseeding range, building water projects and fencing.
"They have to take care of the land or they won't remain in business."
Congress this year considered whether to raise the grazing fees. The measure did not pass, as Republican Sens. Steve Symms and Larry Craig, along with Democratic Rep. Richard Stallings, voted against the hike.

Grazing on BLM land costs far less per month than paying for keeping herds on private ground.
Eastern Idaho Sierra Club board member Ralph Maughan thinks Babbitt will support an incentive-based grazing fee formula to reward responsible land managers.
"The low fee now keeps it low for everybody, whether they do a good job or not."
Under the plan, fees would be raised to a rate comparable to what ranchers pay for private land grazing. But those who manage responsibly would receive grazing discounts.
"In theory that sounds like it's got some merit," said Bert Brackett, past president of the Idaho Cattle Association.
"There are some problems — the record keeping for one thing. And being able to implement it fairly from state to state and district to district would be a challenge."

Weather summary

The Magic Valley continued to enjoy the benefits of being between two strong weather systems Monday.

Slicks cleared in late morning as the storm moved eastward and another approached from the west, pressing against a stationary front along the continental divide between Idaho and Montana.

Temperatures climbed into the 40s and low 50s under the sunshine, but remained cooler beneath clouds to the northward. There were blizzard warnings out for a time during the day in the panhandle counties, where several inches of overnight snow were followed by strong winds.

The warmest temperature in the state Monday was 54 degrees at Emmett. Salmon reported the coldest at 3 degrees.

Elsewhere in the nation Monday, the highest temperature was 81 degrees at Brownsville and McAllen, Texas. The lowest was 19 below zero at Glasgow, Mont.

foot at the town of Mount Shasta and 9 inches at Westwood, Chester and Mineral.

Heavy snow in California's Sierra Nevada was accompanied by wind up to 70 mph at higher elevations.

In Utah, 18 inches of snow fell overnight just south of Brian Head ski resort, more than 12 inches in the Long Valley Junction area, and 8 inches at Orderville, the weather service said.

Six or more inches of snow was reported in parts of southwestern Colorado, the weather service said.

Snow advisories were in effect through Tuesday for the mountains of Southern California.

A strong high pressure system over Saskatchewan helped spread cold air and wind across the northern Rockies and northern Plains.

By early afternoon, wind chills across Montana were low as 57 below zero at Glasgow, 55 below zero at Havre and 55 below zero at Kalispell.

In North Dakota, Grand Forks Air Force Base reported a wind chill of 63 below zero and Jamestown had a wind chill of 61 below zero.

Heavy snow, rain hit West; ice glazes wide areas in East

The Associated Press

An intense low pressure system off the Washington coast produced heavy snow and high wind in parts of the West on Monday while sleet and freezing rain iced highways in the East.

In Washington, 6 inches of new snow fell during the morning at Spokane with 4 to 5 inches over much of the northeastern part of the state. Other reports included 7 inches near Lake Umbagog, 6 to 8 inches at Satus Pass, and 5 inches at Wenatchee, the National Weather Service said.

Four to 6 inches of snow fell overnight and during the morning across northern Idaho.

Heavy snow hit parts of northern California, with rain at lower elevations. More than an inch of rain fell in 24 hours at several locations along the coast.

Heavier rainfall fell for six hours up to 10 a.m. PST included 2.04 inches at Crescent City, Calif., and .97 of an inch at Shelter Cove, Calif.

In the northern California mountains, 13 inches of new snow was reported at McClure on Monday with about a

Governor faces theft charges

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. Guy Hunt was indicted Monday by a grand jury on charges of taking $200,000 from his inaugural fund for personal use. He reported to the county jail, saying, "I'm going to fight."

The 13-count felony indictment included charges of theft, conspiracy and ethics violations. It said Hunt conspired with his inaugural fund accountant, Gene McKenzie, and two former aides.

The grand jury said it had returned four indictments, but the others weren't immediately available. A lawyer for McKenzie said the accountant also had been indicted, but didn't have details of the charges against him.

Hunt went to the Montgomery County Jail on Monday to be booked and fingerprinted, then was released.

"I'm totally innocent," he said as he left the jail. "I'm going to fight. I'm going to serve my term."

Hunt became the first Republican elected governor of Alabama in more than a century when he was voted into office in 1986. He was narrowly re-elected to a second four-year term in 1990.

State law prevents Hunt from seeking a third consecutive term in 1994.

The indictment didn't specify what Hunt allegedly did with the $200,000. Hunt has said he had a campaign debt from a losing race for governor in 1978 and mortgaged some property to keep from going bankrupt.

Earlier, his press office issued a blistering statement calling the case a political concoction by a Democratic attorney general against Alabama's first Republican governor this century. But the statement later was withdrawn.

Hunt, a Republican, remains in office. Under Alabama law, public officials charged with crimes retain their offices until conviction.

He was the eighth state governor this century to be indicted while still in office.

Hunt's monomaking preaching trips and other financial matters had been under scrutiny for months.

George Beck, one of the governor's attorneys, said Hunt would plead innocent at a Jan. 20 arraignment.

"I think there's some basic misunderstanding about the accounting for these funds," Beck said. "Hunt did not expend any funds without first getting the advice of an accountant and an attorney."

McKenzie, who reported to the jail with Hunt, did not comment.

Alabama Attorney General Jimmy Evans, who has been directing the grand jury for more than six months, also did not immediately comment.

The grand jury met initially in June to review whether Hunt violated Alabama's ethics law by using state aircraft on trips in which he accepted nearly $10,000 in offerings for his service as a Primitive Baptist preacher. It later expanded its investigation to cover other matters involving Hunt and his administration.

Heist nets $8 million

NEW YORK (AP) — Robbers sneaked up on an armored truck company's unarmed security guard as he watched television, tied him up and looted more than $8 million from the vault, the FBI said Monday.

The guard, who was working alone, got his legs free after about 20 minutes and triggered an alarm, which brought police.

and Pakistani soldiers manning the gate, about 50 yards away.

The Marines returned fire, killing one of the Somalis. Malberce said a bullet scraped his arm.

In a similar incident, gunmen tried to steal camera equipment from a three-man CNN crew. A U.S. Marine patrol passed by but refused to stop, saying it wasn't their mission to get involved, the journalists said. Italian soldiers finally came to the crew's rescue.

Los Angeles Times correspondent Ken Freed was shot at while trying to determine whether the Green Line area was indeed safe Monday.

A pickup truck carrying that Associated Press staffers was rammed from behind by threatening gunmen near the site of the Aidiid-Ali Mahdi talks. Bystanders said the gunmen were Arab because U.S. Marines had confiscated some of their weapons Sunday.

Civil war, drought and years of political unrest have produced a mass famine that has killed more than 350,000 Somalis and put 2 million more at risk of starvation. The rivalry among followers of Aidiid, Ali Mahdi and other warlords has plunged the country into even greater chaos and despair.

Aidiid and Ali Mahdi had pledged on Dec. 11 to dismantle the demarcation line within 48 hours, but the warlords do not always control their own sub-clans.

Still, tens of thousands of Somalis lined streets and clambered atop the roofs of gutted buildings to watch Ali Mahdi and Aidiid clash each other, give thanks to Allah and talk for about 20 minutes amid buildings their armies had destroyed.

The clash was symbolic for foreign troops. On the 20th day of their mission, 240 American and Canadian troops swooped in helicopters into Belet Huen, near the Ethiopian border, to seize the food distribution center targeted by Operation Restore Hope.

"We passed the word yesterday that anyone that has a weapon parallel to the ground is a threat and will be dealt with," said Lt. Col. Carl Matlock, the Canadian commander of the operation.

Hundreds of Somalis watched as 200 members of the 2nd Battalion of the 87th Infantry Regiment, based in Fort Campbell, Ky., and 40 Canadian soldiers landed in Belet Huen aboard 10 UH-60 Blackhawk helicopters.

The troops flew into Belet Huen's dirt airstrip from Bell Dogle, a town about 100 miles west of Mogadishu that has become the operation center for the U.S. Army's 10th Mountain Division, based in Fort Drum, N.Y.

The IRS again has several toll-free telephone numbers that taxpayers may call for additional forms or for assistance.

Additional forms and publications are available by calling 1-800-829-3676 Mondays through Saturdays.

For help in filing them out, taxpayers should call 1-800-829-1040 Mondays through Fridays during regular business hours. More than 18 million taxpayers used this assistance last year, the IRS said.

Taxpayers will find few changes in their forms this year, although there are some significant differences in compiling some of their returns.

The personal exemption has been raised by $150, to $2,300 for most taxpayers, their spouses and children. However, high income earners may have to reduce their exemptions if their adjusted gross income exceeds a certain amount.

The standard deduction for people who do not itemize also has been raised. For a single taxpayer, it's now $3,600, up from $3,400 last year; for heads of households, it's $5,250, up from $5,000.

The standard deduction for a married couple filing jointly has been raised to $6,600 from $5,700, while the deduction for a married couple filing separately now is $3,300, up from $2,850 last year.

NASA starts aggressive effort to fix antenna

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Engineers warned the Galileo spaceship's jammed main antenna in sunlight Monday as they began a last-ditch attempt to fix a glitch that threatens the craft's mission to Jupiter.

The engineers will start "hammering" the stuck antenna on Tuesday by pulsing its drive motors on and off thousands of times until Jan. 19, or possibly longer if the repair effort runs into difficulties.

"Our actions will be by far the most aggressive thing we've ever done with the antenna," said Bill O'Neil, project manager for the $1.4 billion mission at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory. "There's no way of predicting if this will be successful," O'Neil said. "My hopes are high. I'm confident we're doing 'the very best thing we can do.'"

Galileo was released from space shuttle Atlantis in 1989 and launched on a roundabout six-year voyage to Jupiter. It is supposed to start orbiting the solar system's biggest planet on Dec. 7, 1995, and spend two years studying the planet and its moons after sending a probe parachuting through the atmosphere.

NASA officials have estimated the spacecraft will fail to achieve about 30 percent of its scientific goals if the main antenna dish fails to fully open and Galileo has to dribble pictures and data back to Earth through a much smaller antenna.

Engineers first tried to open the antenna dish on April 11, 1991. It should have opened so that it looked like a 16-foot-wide, upside-down umbrella made of gold-plated wire mesh. But some of the antenna's 18 ribs stuck to a central tower, preventing it from opening fully.

Justice Department files suit enforcing ADA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department on Monday filed its first court action to enforce the Americans with Disabilities Act, charging the California operators of an accounting review course with discrimination against students with hearing impairments.

The civil complaint was filed in U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia against Becker CPA Review of Encino, Calif. The company offers review courses for accountants preparing to take the national certified public accountant exam.

Portable balloon hangar collapses again

RENO, Nev. — What vicious winds didn't do to thwart plans for a Wednesday launch of the first nonstop around-the-world balloon flight, the storm that followed completed?

For the second time in six weeks, winds to 50 mph leveled the inflatable dome housing the craft at the Reno Stead Airport north of Reno.

Erin Porter, a spokeswoman for the Earthwinds Hilton project, said nobody was hurt when the portable hangar collapsed on Sunday and, unlike an earlier incident, the craft itself was undamaged.

Project supervisor and pilot Larry Newman said the dome would not be used for the liftoff. Newman had hoped to lift off on Wednesday, but a forecast of unsettled weather the rest of this week has pushed that back to at least the weekend.

Deputy replaces Gore in U.S. Senate

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Gov. Ned McWherter on Monday selected his deputy, Harlan Mathews, to replace Vice President-elect Al Gore in the U.S. Senate.

McWherter's selection of Mathews, a Democrat, ended weeks of speculation since the Nov. 3 election. Gore will resign Jan. 2, and take the oath of office as vice president at the Jan. 20 inaugural. There were four years remaining on his term.

The seat will be part of the 1994 general election and again in 1996, to put the election back on its normal six-year cycle.

Clinton postpones vacation for work

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — President-elect Clinton, pushing to get caught up on paperwork, on Monday postponed for one day his trip to a South Carolina resort island for a week of reflection and recreation.

"He's still going through a lot of stuff ... and he decided he didn't want to go down there exhausted," said spokesman Jeff Eller.

Clinton and his wife, Hillary, and daughter Chelsea had been scheduled to take off for Hilton Head Island, S.C., Monday evening. But the president-elect was holed up in the governor's mansion here and had not ventured outside by early afternoon.

Clinton often goes jogging through the streets of the state capital in the morning.

Walsh may call on Weinberger to testify

WASHINGTON — Iran-Contra prosecutor Lawrence Walsh is considering calling Caspar Weinberger before a federal grand jury to testify about others in the scandal, including President Bush, according to sources close to the investigation.

Walsh said Monday that he would return shortly to Washington, but refused to say what his plans are. Yet the sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said that he is likely to call former Defense Secretary Weinberger and ex-CIA official Duane Clarridge as witnesses before a grand jury here.

Both men received Christmas Eve pardons from Bush for allegedly lying about their knowledge of the arms-for-hostages deals.

Expert believes Russia can pay loans

WASHINGTON — Russia has failed to make $95.7 million in payments on U.S. government backed loans used to buy grain and farm equipment, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

Camron Bruemmer, deputy director of public affairs, said the department had received word that Russia missed additional payments totaling $27.4 million. That was on top of $68.3 million already in arrears to six U.S. and foreign banks.

Agriculture Secretary Edward Madigan has said he believes the Russians have the ability to repay the loans. "Our position is we still believe this will be resolved," Bruemmer said.

U.S. to buy plutonium from Russia

WASHINGTON — The United States will buy Russian-produced Plutonium-238 for use as a power source in U.S. spacecraft, the Department of Energy has announced.

The contract provides for the United States to purchase up to 40 kilograms over five years.

The total cost would be $57.3 million if the full amount is purchased, department spokeswoman Mary Kayne Heinze said Monday. Included is an initial purchase of five kilograms of material at a cost of $6 million, she said.

AIDS roll will grow fast Jan. 1

ATLANTA (AP) — Thousands more Americans will have AIDS — officially on Friday, when a new definition goes into effect. Activists and doctors are bracing for a higher demand for treatment and social services as more of those infected with HIV, the virus that causes AIDS, are added to the ranks of those with AIDS. "The systems are already overwhelmed," said John Kappers of the National Association of People With AIDS. "All of the services are already strained and on the edge." Under the new definition, 90,000 Americans are expected to be diagnosed as having AIDS in 1993, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. That compares with an average of 50,000 a year under the previous standard. Since 1981, about 242,000 Americans have been diagnosed as having AIDS and 160,000 have died. The CDC adopted the new definition after activists charged the agency was ignoring AIDS symptoms peculiar to women and intravenous drug users. Under the five-year-old definition, those with HIV were diagnosed as having AIDS when they developed blood infections, the skin cancer Kaposi's sarcoma or any of 21 other indicator diseases most common to men. The new definition adds pulmonary tuberculosis, recurrent pneumonia and invasive cervical cancer, diseases more common to women or IV drug users. More important, the CDC says, is a fourth new indicator: a dip in the level of the body's cubic centimeter, called CD4s, to 200 per master immune cells, called CD4s, to 200 per a healthy person. About 1 million Americans are infected with HIV, and up to 190,000 are estimated to have CD4 counts below 200, said Dr. James Buchter, acting deputy director of the CDC's AIDS division.

Bush warns Serbian leader of possible intervention in fighting

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — The United Nations Monday sent more peacekeepers to try to contain Bosnia's war amid warnings by President Bush of intervention if the Serbs provoke violence in other Yugoslav republics.

In Geneva, U.N. Secretary-General met with leaders of the former Yugoslav republics. Despite agreement that the Balkans were threatened with conflagration, there were few concessions for peace. Bosnia's president indicated he was preparing a new military offensive.

The contingent of 33 U.N. military observers and soldiers sent to the republic of Macedonia was the advance force of the first preventive U.N. operation — one aimed at keeping violence in Bosnia from spilling over.

A force of about 800 troops eventually will be deployed, mainly along Macedonia's northern border with the Serb province of Kosovo. Massive unrest has been predicted if persecution of Kosovo's 1.7 million ethnic Albanians continues.

Like the Macedonian deployment, the warning by Bush, contained in a letter released to The Associated Press on Monday, was meant to prevent war's spread. The letter, sent last week to Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic said the United States might help enforce a ban on Serbian flights over Bosnia, and would respond if U.N. troops in Bosnia were attacked.

Palestinian families appeal to U.N.

JERUSALEM — Families of Palestinians deported by Israel appealed Monday to U.N. envoy James Jonah to help bring their men home.

The emotional meeting with about 50 relatives in the West Bank town of El Bireh capped a day in which Jonah heard Palestinian leaders demand the immediate return of the deportees, and a bereaved Israeli father plead for an end to violence.

Americans sabotage Norwegian ship

REKEFIJORD, Norway — An American environmentalist group sabotaged a whaling ship in the Arctic Circle to protest Norway's decision to resume commercial whale hunting, the group said Monday.

Police said the 71-foot Nybraena, used in hunting whales for research, was found nearly full of water Sunday at its berth in the Lofoten islands.

The Sea Shepherd Conservation Society, based in Los Angeles, said four of its activists sabotaged the ship on Saturday as "a Christmas gift to the whales of the North Atlantic."

Big dynamite blast triggers quake

HONG KONG — Workers leveling a hill in China triggered an earthquake after detonating dynamite with almost as much force as the atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima.

The 12,000 tons of explosive rocked the earth with an impact measuring 3.4 on the Richter scale, said Stephen Chang of Hong Kong's Royal Observatory.

There were no reports of damage or injuries from the man-made quake, which sent tremors as far away as Hong Kong, 27 miles from the blast, and in Macao, 18 miles away.

Muslims, Hindus assail holy site plan

NEW DELHI, India — Muslim and Hindu groups on Monday criticized Prime Minister P.V. Narasimha Rao's plan to build both a temple and a mosque at a disputed holy site in northern India.

The fundamentalist World Hindu Council vowed to block any mosque construction in Ayodhya. The group's supporters tore down a 430-year-old mosque in the northern town on Dec. 6, and built a provisional temple honoring warrior-god Rama.

Cultists deflate tires, create melee

MANILA, Philippines — Religious cultists convinced that flat tires were the key to salvation deflated tires on scores of buses and cars Monday, paralyzing traffic throughout the city. Police arrested 32 people.

Terrified motorists abandoned their vehicles and fled for cover as armed police chased the cultists, who swarmed through the stalled traffic deflating more tires. Other cultists flagged down buses and then let the air out before drivers could stop them.

The mass deflating appeared to have been well planned.

Broncos expected Reeves out

The Associated Press

DENVER — Following weeks of speculation, no one was really surprised that Denver Broncos coach Dan Reeves was fired Monday.

Reeves' contract was not renewed by owner Pat Bowlen and the coach announced his own firing at a news conference. Each man said the decision was based on management of the team and Bowlen's decision to take a more active role in running the club.

Broncos running back Reggie Rivers said the decision did not come as a surprise, since rumors of the firing swirled for so long. But, he said, he was shocked at how fast Bowlen made his decision known.

The Broncos ended their season Sunday, losing to Kansas City 42-20 and finishing

San Francisco quarterback Joe Montana, returning to action after two years, eyes downfield Monday during second-half action against the Detroit Lions in Candlestick Park. Montana was 15 of 21 for 126 yards.

Montana returns in top form

The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Now that's some backup quarterback.

Joe Montana, returning from a nearly two-year absence in an unaccustomed relief role, led three fourth-quarter scoring drives Monday night and helped the San Francisco 49ers pull away for a 24-6 victory over the Detroit Lions in the year's final regular-season game.

Playoff puzzle — A8

He brought the crowd to its feet with TD passes of 9 yards to Brent Jones and 8 yards to Amp Lee as San Francisco closed with its eighth straight victory. "I didn't think I'd be so nervous," Montana said. "I was being too cautious. Once I settled down, I got a lot more confident."

Montana, sidelined since the start of last season because of a torn right elbow tendon, played the "second half" in relief of starter Steve Young. Both sides had to cope with a slippery field and many conditios.

The game had no postseason implications because the 49ers (14-2) already had wrapped-up a first-round bye and home-field advantage throughout the playoffs. Detroit, which reached the AFC Championship game last season, finished at 5-11.

The 49ers, who led only 7-6 after three periods, pushed the margin to four when Mike Cofer kicked a 37-yard field goal with 13:18 to play.

The 49ers began to put the game away after Don Griffin's interception of Andre Ware's pass gave San Francisco the ball at the Detroit 26.

Montana, who finished with 15 completions in 21 attempts for 126 yards, scrambled 16 yards for a first down. Lee gained a yard and Montana threw an interception before finding Jones over the middle with 11:21 remaining.

Montana took the 49ers 76 yards in nine plays for the third score of the period. He found Lee open over the middle with 1:15 remaining. "It's been awhile so I figured I'd be rusty," Montana said. "I just tried to tell myself not to be over-cautious. I just didn't want to make a big mistake."

San Francisco offensive coordinator Mike Shanahan said Montana played remarkably well for being away from the game for so long.

"I think it's very tough for a person to come in and perform as well as he did under these kinds of conditions," Shanahan said.

Coach George Seifert declined to say whether Montana had displaced Steve Bono as the team's No. 2 quarterback heading into the playoffs.

Young, Sharpe pace All-Pro picks; Kennedy tabs most defense votes

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Steve Young and Sterling Sharpe, a passing combination any team would envy, were the leading vote-getters for The Associated Press' 1992 All-Pro team announced Monday.

Young, in his first season with the unchallenged regular quarterback for the San Francisco 49ers, received 78 of 80 votes cast by a national media panel. Sharpe, the ace receiver of the Green Bay Packers who broke Art Monk's NFL mark with 108 receptions, got 76 votes.

Joining Sharpe at receiver was Jerry Rice, Young's pass-catching partner at San Francisco. Considered the premier receiver in the game for a half-decade, Rice made the team for the sixth time. "Any time you make an All-Pro or all-star or Pro Bowl team, it shows people appreciate you and respect you as a player," Rice said.

One other 49er, tackle Harris Barton, made the All-Pro squad.

The leading vote-getter on defense was Seattle tackle Cortez Kennedy, named on 71 ballots. "Once a game is over, I want the player who was across from me to say, 'Cortez gave it all he had. He's a hell of a player.' That was my goal."

Also selected were outside linebackers Pat Swilling of the New Orleans Saints and Sal 'The Barber' Maglie pitches for the Brooklyn Dodgers in the first game of the 1956 World Series against the New York Yankees.

'The Barber' Maglie dies

Brushback pitcher played for Yankees, Giants, Dodgers

The Associated Press

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. — Sal "The Barber" Maglie, the menacing-looking pitcher who earned his nickname for giving batters close shaves with his brushback pitches, died Monday of pneumonia. He was 75.

Maglie died at the Niagara Falls Memorial Nursing Home, where he had been confined since May 1987 following a stroke, nursing home spokesman Timothy Gleason said.

A curveball specialist with pinpoint control, Maglie was the loser of Don Larsen's perfect game in the fifth game of the 1956 World Series. His skill was working the inside part of the plate, which he called his "bread and butter."

When he pitched for the New York Giants, he was the nemesis of the hated rival Brooklyn Dodgers. But when his career was winding down in 1956 at age 39, he joined the Dodgers and helped pitch them to the National League pennant during the last 10 weeks of the season.

He won nine of 11 games for Brooklyn, including a no-hitter against Philadelphia on Sept. 25. In the 1956 World Series, he won the opening game against the New York Yankees, but lost 2-0 to Larsen while allowing just five hits.

Maglie's best years were with the Giants. In 1950, he led the NL with an .818 winning percentage on an 18-4 record. He pitched four consecutive shutouts, including 45 straight scoreless innings, just 1 1-3 innings short of Carl Hubbell's NL record at the time.

In 1951, Maglie led the league with 23 wins, while losing six as the Giants won a memorable three-game playoff against the Dodgers, capped by Bobby Thomson's "Shot Heard 'Round the World."

Back-to-back fumbles cost Cowboy his job

IRVING, Texas — If you lose two fumbles in the same quarter, you're a candidate for a quick cut from Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson.

Backup running back Curvin Richards knows all about it.

Richards, a 5-foot-9, 195-pound fourth-round draft pick in 1991, got the ax Monday, a day after scoring a touchdown and losing a fumble that cost the Cowboys a touchdown in a 27-14 victory over Chicago.

One Richards miscue was picked up by Chris Zorich and returned 42 yards for Bears touchdown.

Tommie Agee will back up Emmitt Smith for the Cowboys' playoff game on Jan. 10 at Texas Stadium. The Cowboys are expected to activate Derrick Gainer, formerly of the Angeles Raiders, off their practice squad. Gainer was a free agent.

Johnson said of Richards: "I want to go into the playoffs with people I can count on. I can count on Tommie Agee. I think Curvin understood. He can play in this league. My advice to him on his next stop would be to concentrate better and take a more serious approach to the game."

Idaho City skiing offers day of services with no charge

IDAHO CITY — Jan. 9 is Cross Country Idaho's Free Ski Day and skiers can part at a Park-N-Ski lot for no charge, use cross country ski equipment for free and be treated to gratis refreshments.

The Whoop-um-Up ski area is 18 miles north of Idaho City on Highway 21 and has trails for all levels of skiers. They will also have a sledding hill for children.

Gold Fork and Banner Ridge ski areas are a few miles north of Whoop-um-Up, and are better suited for intermediate to advanced skiers. All three areas will offer free parking and equipment.

The Nordic Voice volunteer group will have instructors available to help with equipment, ski tips and serving refreshments.

LSU junior guard returns to team; will suit up tonight

BATON ROUGE, La. — Junior guard Jamie Brandon has rejoined Louisiana State University's basketball team, nearly two weeks after he quit in frustration over his lack of playing time, the school announced Monday.

Brandon, a former starter who was used sparingly after averaging 10.5 points per game last season, will dress for Tuesday night's game in Baton Rouge against Northwestern State, said a news release quoting coach Dale Brown.

Cowboys rate best chance for title

By Dave Goldberg
The Associated Press

We know that no team with the rushing champion has ever gone to the Super Bowl, something Emmitt Smith and Dallas Cowboys will try to rectify in the next few weeks.

But the more pertinent questions hang over the most wide-open NFL playoffs: Is a decade of offensive floundering, not strength, just about to end?

Can Buffalo, San Diego, Houston and Pittsburgh win with backup or banged-up quarterbacks, emulating Jeff Hostetler's victory two years ago?

Can Minnesota win with an itinerant quarterback from Southern California? (Could the Raiders have made the playoffs if they'd gone all year with Vince Evans?)

Can Kansas City win with a career hot-and-cold quarterback who needs to stay hot for four games? Or can he "hot" for them?

Can Philadelphia, 3-5 on the road this year, win three road games to carry them to Pasadena?

Can the San Francisco secondary cover enough to win the AFC?

Can any AFC team even challenge the winner from the NFC, which has won the last eight Super Bowls? Four NFC teams seem stronger than any AFC team.

Here's a team-by-team ranking going into the playoffs:

1, Dallas
Fewest weaknesses, the top rating. The secondary is still suspect, but less so with the emergence of rookie Kevin Smith and the acquisition of Thomas Everett. Yes,

NFL playoff bracket

no defenders made the Pro Bowl, but that only proves that Dave Winfield had forced a unit in which the whole is greater than the sum of its parts.

Smith, Troy Aikman, Emmitt Smith, Jay Novacek and a good line make the offense hard to contain. The biggest question is experience — in a Houston game with the Oilers, do San Francisco's four Super Bowls make the difference? Or are these the 1981 Cowboys and Niners we remember?

2, (or 1a if you'd like) San Francisco
Home field never matters that much to the Niners, who win everywhere. They rank behind Dallas here simply because of other than Don Griffin, there's nobody in the secondary.

The other problem could be on the offensive line, where Harris Barton has to get healthy. There's been no depth there for four years, but Barton's injury is the first. It could be fatal.

3, Philadelphia
The kind of team that runs a hot streak, like the 4-0 start, particularly if the defense gets revved and Randall Cunningham is allowed to be Randall again. Still, the loss of the late Jerome Brown in the middle of the defensive line showed up late against the Oilers and the offensive line remains less than championship caliber.

One of those teams, however, that can score on defense and turns games with it.

4, New Orleans
The Eagles haven't won a playoff game since 1980. The Saints have never won one. So something has to give when they meet Sunday.

The question here is Bobby Hebert. He couldn't get the Saints in the end zone when he needed to in two games against the 49ers, which is why they're playing this week and the Niners are off.

The defense? None better, which gives them a shot to get the way.

5, Buffalo (with Jim Kelly)
Maybe not being home with hypercritical fans is a good thing.

Injuries don't help — Kelly's a question mark and Bruce Smith, Shane Connor, Derrick Taylor and Cornelius Bennett have all been banged up. Surprisingly, until Sunday night, the defense has held up better than the past two years.

And maybe that 27-3 loss in Houston was to be expected. The Bills lose their final game every year, which usually just don't mean anything.

6, Houston
Maybe, if the Oilers can win Sunday at Buffalo.

That's a big if. The run-and-shoot is not made for the climate at Rich Stadium.

Talent's there, but the consistency isn't and the system seems wrong.

7, Kansas City
Defense (see above) if it plays like it did against Denver Sunday. How else can you explain 42 points with an offense that gets 220 total yards and drives just once beyond midfield?

Dave Krieg, who can get very hot, needs to have three straight games. If he gets very cold, as he also can, the Chiefs are gone in one.

8, Minnesota
Defense again.

But it's difficult to see Sean Salisbury getting any games. If he gets very cold, as he also can, the Chiefs are gone in one.

9, Washington
The coaching and the experience are there.

And losing to Vince Evans and the Raiders at RFK Saturday demonstrated clearly that this is the rule, not the exception — you just don't repeat in the NFL.

10, Pittsburgh
Yes, the home field in the AFC. But Buddy Brister can't carry a team through the playoffs and Neil O'Donnell is still hurting. If, say, Kansas City comes to visit the first week, they could be in for a tough time.

11, San Diego
No respect because of a last-place schedule, although they certainly have first-place players: Junior Seau, Leslie O'Neil, Anthony Miller and Ronnie Harmon, who dropped a pass that cost the Bills a playoff game in Cleveland three years ago but was a quiet star this year. They move up if Stan Humphries plays, but can you really get to the Super Bowl with Bob Gagliano? Jeff Hostetler, he isn't!

12, Miami
Dan Marino isn't Jeff Hostetler either; he's a lot better. But the offense has gone ... (well, in this case make it north). How else do you explain a total of five points in the last two games over the Jets and Patriots (combined record 6-26)?

And are Marco Coleman, John Offord and Mark Higgs healthy for the playoffs?

Florida State's Bob Sura goes high over Maryland-Baltimore County's Emmanuel Fasaye for a rebound Monday in Tallahassee.

Seminole's Kennedy records 250th win

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — San Cassell scored 31 points and No. 18 Florida State gave coach Pat Kennedy his 250th career win with a 109-80 victory Monday night over Maryland-Baltimore County.

The Seminoles (7-3) of the Atlantic Coast Conference played without their second-leading scorer, Doug Edwards, who dislocated a finger in pre-game warmups and could be out for up to two weeks.

Edwards, a 6-foot-9 forward who's averaging 18.6 points a game and leads his team in rebounding, hurt his left index finger while attempting to block a shot during warmups. X-rays were scheduled for Tuesday morning to see if there was a fracture.

47-38 at the half, had cut the lead to 69-62 on a Skip Saunders' 3-point shot at the 11-minute mark. But the Retrievers could manage just three points over the next five minutes.

The game was sloppy and tight in the first half, as the teams combined for 23 turnovers and Maryland-Baltimore County repeatedly cut its deficit to two points. Cassell scored 19 of his points in the first half to keep Florida State ahead.

received 47 first-place votes and 1,607 points from a national panel of writers and broadcasters. Kansas (8-0) had the other 18 No. 1 votes and 1,569 points.

The only change in the Top Ten order was directly related to the only team to change its position last week. Oklahoma (7-1) dropped from ninth to 15th after a first-round loss in the Maui Invitational to Brigham Young, the newest member in the Top 25.

Arkansas and Georgetown each moved up one spot from last week to round out the Top Ten.

UCLA led the Second Ten and was followed by Syracuse, Purdue, Georgia Tech, Oklahoma, UNLV, Michigan State, Florida State, California and Nebraska.

Maglie

During those years, if I wanted a ball game, I wanted Sal Maglie pitching," Irvin said. "He was a money pitcher. He had that great curve ball. And when you started looking for the curve, he would come in with the fastball, keeping you Maglie had three types of curve — a slider, a big roundhouse curve, and a sharp breaking one. Once, Irvin recalled, he used each of them to strike out Pee Wee Reese three times in a game. "Pee Wee said to Sal, 'I'm glad you didn't have a fourth kind of curve ball because you would have struck me out four times,'" Irvin said.

Salvatore Anthony Maglie was born at Niagara Falls on April 26, 1917. He worked a pipe-fitter before signing a contract for $275 a month with Buffalo of the International League and pitched six minor league seasons before making it to the major leagues with the Giants in 1945.

But in 1946, he jumped to the newly formed Mexican League, signing a contract with Puebla for $5,000. It was there, under manager Donlin, that the former big league pitcher, that Maglie mastered his craft.

All the Mexican League jumpers were suspended from professional baseball in the United States until baseball commissioner Harry Wertz lifted the ban on July 31, 1950. Maglie rejoined the Giants in 1950.

From 1950 through 1952, Maglie won 59 games while losing 18. In 1954 he helped the Giants to the pennant with a 14-6 record. But trouble by a bad back, he was waived out of the NL on July 31, 1955, and sold to the Cleveland Indians for $25,000.

Bullets stop losing streak

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Porvis Ellison connected on 1 of 2 free throws with 5.7 seconds left as the Washington Bullets broke a nine-game losing streak with a 97-96 victory Monday night over the Atlanta Hawks.

Pro basketball

The Bullets led by 13 midway through the fourth quarter, but needed Ellison's free throw to overcome a four-point play by Paul Graham that tied the score with 25 seconds left.

The teams traded the lead seven times in the second half before Washington took a 92-79 lead with six minutes remaining in the fourth period.

Duane Ferrell pulled the Hawks to 94-92 on a short jumper with 43 seconds to play.

Ellison then sank a pair of foul shots with 31 seconds left for a four-point lead before Graham shocked the Bullets with a 3-pointer and free throw.

After he was fouled by Jon Koneak, Ellison missed the first of two foul shots before sinking the second to break the tie.

Harvey Grant led the Bullets with 25 points, while Ellison scored 21 points and Tom Gugliotta had 18 points and 13 rebounds. Graham paced the Hawks with 29 points and Ferrell scored 20.

Jazz 114, Timberwolves 95

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Karl Malone scored 21 points and John Stockton had 13 points, 20 assists and seven steals Monday night as the Utah Jazz used 15- and 13-0 runs to hand the Minnesota Timberwolves their seventh consecutive loss, 114-95.

The Jazz scored 15 straight points in the final 3:48 of the third period to extend a 75-66 lead. Malone had 18 points and 11th loss in 12 games as Minnesota has yet to win in nine games at Salt Lake City.

Jay Humphries matched his season-high with 14 points and Jeff Malone had 17 for Utah, which has won seven straight home games after a 1-4 start at the Delta Center.

Michael Williams led Minnesota with 19 points, followed by Doug West with 18. Christian Laettner and Chuck Person, the Wolves' leading scorers with 19-point averages, had nine and eight points, respectively.

Washington's Harvey Grant, right, knocks the ball away from Atlanta's Mookie Blaylock during second-half action Monday in Landover, Md. The Bullets' Michael Adams looks on.

Cavaliers 98, Pistons 89

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Mark Price hit three baskets and passed off for three others during a 12-0 run at the start of the fourth quarter, lifting Cleveland over Detroit.

The win was the eighth in nine games for the Cavaliers, while the Pistons lost for only the third time in their last 14 outings.

Price had 28 points and 12 assists and Larry Nance 27 points and 11 rebounds for Cleveland. Terry Mills and Joe Dumars each scored 25 points and Dennis Rodman grabbed 18 rebounds for Detroit, playing without Ish Thomas because of a death in the family.

Nets 104, Hornets 103

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Chris Morris scored 26 points and Kenny Anderson had 13 points, 11 rebounds, and 11 assists for New Jersey against Charlotte.

The Nets used a 16-5 spurt in the third and fourth quarters to turn a 73-69 deficit into an 85-78 advantage. Morris and Drazen Petrovic, who finished with 22 points, each had five points in the decisive half.

The Hornets pulled to 89-86 on Larry Johnson's fadeaway jumper with 7:51 left. Johnson and Alonzo Mourning each scored 27 points and Mourning added 15 rebounds.

Magic 110, Bucks 94

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Shaquille O'Neal had 21 points, 14 rebounds and five blocked shots and Orlando outbounced Milwaukee 61-30.

Dennis Scott scored 25 points, including five 3-pointers to boost his league-leading total to 60, for the Magic, which has won five of six games.

Heat 107, Lakers 96

MIAMI (AP) — Harold Miner scored 12 of his 18 points in the fourth quarter, and Miami overcame an 18-point deficit to earn its first win ever over Los Angeles.

The Heat, now 1-10 against the Lakers in franchise history, took their first lead of the game, 96-84, with 6:11 left on a layup by Grant Long, who finished with 21 points.

Warriors 106, Spurs 105

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Chris Mullin scored 42 points, including a go-ahead jumper with 8.2 seconds remaining, and the Golden State Warriors handed John Lucas his first loss as San Antonio coach, 106-105 Monday night.

Mullin hit a career-high 19 field goals in 31 attempts for the Warriors, who snapped the Spurs' four-game winning streak since Jerry Tarkanian was fired, including three with Lucas as coach.

Barkley helps Suns blaze hot path across Pacific

Barkley Bulls at 19-7.

PHOENIX (AP) — The streak is showing. Watching Charles Barkley play with ex-coach-turned-broadcaster Cotton Fitzsimmons during Sunday night's 129-88 rout of the Denver Nuggets, the streak showed.

Watching Barkley give a hearty hello to fellow multi-millionaire Ryno Sandberg during the pregame shootaround, the streak showed.

Watching coach Paul Westphal smile halfway through the third quarter after somebody made fun of his Looney Toon-inflected tie, the streak showed.

You can study the statistics that list the Phoenix Suns and individual players among the league leaders. But you only have to look around to see it. "We have a lot of people that can run the floor and we just all complement each other," said Richard Dumas, the Suns' latest hero. "I think that's why we're enjoying so much success right now."

The Red Sun is the talk of the NBA having won a franchise-best 13 in a row — the league's best streak this season — and will take the NBA's top mark into the new year.

The Suns are 20-4 going into Wednesday night's meeting at home against Houston. The next best record is the Chicago Bulls at 19-7.

"The best team in basketball won't be decided until June, right?" Barkley said. "If they want to give us the championship trophy today, that would be great. I'll take it. But right now we're the best team in the latter part of 1992 and there ain't no trophy for that. We've got a long way to go."

That's why the team is relaxed. It knows the season is young and that they're just on one of those runs.

"We're getting better with every game," forward Cedric Ceballos said. "But we know we gonna get heat eventually. If we're playing like this late in the season, that's different."

Ceballos is one of the reasons for the streak, making 56 percent of his shots, good enough to fourth in the league, and grabbing 10 rebounds. He had 11 against Denver last week and 12 more against the Nuggets on Sunday night.

But Dumas, in his first year with the Suns after sitting out a year for violating the league drug policy, has sparkled of late. He led the Suns with 27 points in 27 minutes on Sunday and is averaging 15 points a game in his five reserve role appearances since joining the Suns mid-streak on Dec. 16.

And he is the first to admit that he's out of shape. "I've still got to work hard to get in better condition," Dumas said, shrugging when asked if he knew when he would be 100 percent.

"We have no doubt at all about Richard's basketball ability," Westphal said. "There's nothing he can't do. Believe it or not he's not it shape yet. I've been saying all along he's going to be one of the great players in the NBA."

All the while, the Suns have been playing without point guard Kevin Johnson, out with a hamstring pull and a strained groin.

Athletes scramble for tax breaks

NEW YORK (AP) — The new year brings a new fear for athletes, companies and other multimillionaires.

Anticipating higher personal income taxes and reduced corporate deductions under the Clinton administration, people and companies are finding ways to cash in now to avoid a bigger tax bite in 1993.

The moves range from accelerated year-end bonuses to the exercise of stock options by chief executive officers to multimillion-dollar signing bonuses for baseball free agents.

President-elect Clinton has backed raising personal income taxes to 36 percent from 31 percent for individuals earning $150,000 or more and families earning $200,000 or more. He has also endorsed a 10 percent surtax on income above $1 million.

Clinton has supported eliminating corporate tax deductions for executive pay exceeding $1 million. Corporations now can deduct all compensation from corporate taxes as a normal business expense.

That means a busy season for tax planners, financial consultants and accounting departments. Though tax law changes are only a possibility, the impending arrival of Democrats in Washington has prompted a rush of planning.

Baseball's stars were prominent tax strategists. Pitcher David Cone received a $9 million signing bonus to join the Kansas City Royals — half the value of his three-year contract.

First baseman Mark McGwire and outfielder Ruben Sierra received signing bonuses of $7 million and $6 million, respectively, in their five-year, $28 million contracts with the Oakland Athletics.

Tax considerations weren't the only issues for baseball players. Agents said bonuses could ease the pain of lost pay if there's a strike or lockout next spring.

Cougar quarterback uncertain whether he'll leave school early

TUCSON, ARIZ. (AP) — Will he go or will he stay?

Washington State quarterback Drew Bledsoe said Monday he will spend time with friends in Walla Walla prior to deciding whether to opt for the riches of the National Football League or spend another year in college.

Bledsoe said he will make his decision public at his parents' Yakima home just prior to the Jan. 6 declaration deadline.

The 6-foot-5, 225-pound Pacific-10 Conference Offensive Player of the Year will lead Washington State (8-3) against Utah (6-5) in the Weiser Lock Copper Bowl Tuesday night.

Bledsoe, a potential No. 1 pick in the NFL draft in April, told reporters that other factors will influence his decision more than the National Football League's new salary cap.

Bledsoe's father, Mac, has been trying to determine what effect the new contract will have on such things as signing bonuses and other incentives that may fall outside the cap, he said.

"The thing is, I don't think that will have any impact on my decision," Bledsoe said. "I've known all along that they were going to come to an agreement before this year's draft, and so this year and next year, all things are going to be equal as far as salary cap, the draft and everything."

What it may come down to is whether he will continue to play at the college level, where the game is still fun, or turn professional, where business decisions influence the game, he said.

"I know what's going to happen if I stay at WSU next year," he said. "I don't know what's going to happen if I go into the NFL."

The uncertainty over the new NFL salary plan and the early deadline for making his decision might sway him to return to school, said Bledsoe, who insisted he has not made the choice.

Bledsoe said he plans to spend New Year's with relatives and friends in Walla Walla because "Walla Walla's a kind of place where I can just sit down and just get away from everything and just be myself."

Despite the potential loss of millions of dollars that formerly came with being a top draft pick, Bledsoe said the rewards would come later.

"That's the big thing," he said. "I think the money initially for rookies is not going to be as big, but down the road it's going to turn into huge money where you'll probably see some contracts like you see in baseball."

Bledsoe also said he likely would not test the new agreement in court. "I doubt it. The money's not that big an issue with me," he said. "Even with the salary cap ... it's still a hell of a lot of money."

NOTICE TO THE Stockholders of the Twin Falls Canal Co.

You are hereby notified that the regular meeting of the stockholders of the Twin Falls Canal Company will be held on Tuesday, the 12 day of January, 1993. The meeting will be called to order by the Directors at 9:00 a.m. in the Fine Arts Auditorium at the College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls, Idaho.

A director from District 3 will be elected for a three year term. Stockholders may cumulate votes on this ballot.

Notice is given that a stock vote will be taken on a complete set of restated By-Laws which propose reorganization of the Company's By-Laws which were adopted early in the 1990's. The new By-Laws will eliminate unnecessary provisions, validate certain company practices that have evolved, authorize certain board actions, and generally authorize modern required business practices. An affirmative vote of 2/3rds of the stock voted as proxy. Director's meeting requirements are liberalized. The draft clarifies that By-Laws can be amended only by the stockholders. Copies of the full text of the proposed amendments are available for stockholders to review at the Company Office, 163 Second Avenue West, Twin Falls, during regular business hours.

Serb siege keeps Yugoslav soccer champs from travel

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Coach Fad Muzurovic and FC Sarajevo, two-time Yugoslav soccer champions, are in the market for international matches. The only problem is they can't leave the city to play games.

Sarajevo has been under siege since Serb forces first attacked the city in April. Since June, few people have been able to get out to territory still held by the newly independent government of Bosnia-Herzegovina.

Sarajevo, one of the city's two first-division teams, was in Belgrade on April 4 for a game against Red Star when the war began.

Twelve of the team's 25 players — all of them Serbs — chose not to return to the beleaguered city.

Muzurovic, a Muslim, went home because he reflected the ethnic mixture that made Sarajevo the melting pot of the former Yugoslavia.

"Our team is made up of Muslims, Croats and Serbs," said FC Sarajevo president Mohammed Grano. "We ended up nine players from our junior team to get back up to our full number."

The team's manager, Svetozar Vujovic, is a Serb, and there are several Croats on the board of directors.

The Yugoslav League came apart during the 1991 season after war broke out between Croats and Serbs in Croatia. Sarajevo was then in a fourth place, with a chance to gain a spot in this season's UEFA Cup.

Psychiatrist Radovan Karadzic, leader of the self-proclaimed Serbian republic of Bosnia, served as the team's psychologist for eight years until 1989, when he became a member of the Bosnian parliament. U.S. Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger has named Karadzic as one of 10 men who could be tried for war crimes as a result of the fighting in Bosnia-Herzegovina.

"He was a friend of the manager. I don't think he was very good as a team psychologist," Muzurovic said. "They fell asleep whenever he gave the pep talks."

Madrona extension should not hurt student interests

City Engineer Gary Young and city planners are right when they say Madrona Street should be extended from Filer Avenue to Stadium Boulevard through the Twin Falls High School campus.

And the Twin Falls School District should pay for it.

The tab for the project, designed to take some of the additional traffic off Locust Street when the new auditorium and gym are completed, will be up to $120,000.

The district contends that if it has to pay the bill, the funds will have to come out of money earmarked for furniture and furnishings for the high school, the expanded Robert Stuart Junior High School and the South Park elementary school.

It also contends it was blind-sided by the City Council, which didn't raise the issue of the Madrona Street extension before the bond issue election last May.

It's unfortunate that the money has to come out of the bond issue, but this is, after all, a problem the district is creating.

The 2,000-seat auditorium is going to make a bad traffic situation worse.

We've long argued that the high school campus is a lousy place for a new auditorium. The campus is already crowded, has inadequate parking and creates bottlenecks for traffic trying to get on and off Filer and Locust. Traffic control consists of one stoplight.

The Madrona Street extension could significantly relieve that congestion. As a side-benefit, it could provide northern Twin Falls what it badly needs - another north-south corridor.

The City Council bears some responsibility, for changing the rules in the middle of the game. Before they went to the voters last May, the district and School Board members clearly thought they had an understanding with council members that they wouldn't have to pay for extending Madrona.

If that's true, this is the second time in two years that the city's commitments have turned out to be worthless.

In 1991, City Planning Director LaMar Orton told the regional juvenile detention committee that the Q Bar on Addison Avenue East was properly zoned for the center. But after the board bought the building, the council overruled Orton.

The Madrona Street episode yields two conclusions. First, although the school district rightfully should pay for the street improvement, students shouldn't pay the price in inadequate furnishings. The district should find the street money elsewhere in its budget.

Second, the city should make sure its officials don't make commitments they can't keep. Promises requiring City Council authority should only be made after the council takes a vote.

Time for a new auditorium for schools

In December, concerned heads of households have two primary worries: They want all of their family to have a merry Christmas. They are also concerned about financial plans for the new year and the future.

Practically all the items advertised recently in your newspaper were for Christmas gifts. We want to propose a gift you can give your family and the community that will have lasting value. A steering committee is striving to expand the seating capacity of the new high school auditorium. We are not sure that high school students would value their own seat at performances, assemblies and other presentations as highly as a racy convertible, but we do believe that in a short time they will come to appreciate what you have finally provided for them.

Many Twin Falls School District patrons seem to be puzzled about the campaign to expand the seating capacity of the newly authorized performing arts auditorium. These same people need to make financial plans for next year and the future.

The new 1,036-seat auditorium was included in a very successful school bond issue approved in May. After an unsuccessful vote in 1991 for a much larger proposal, Superintendent Terrill Donich undertook a thorough survey of the taxpayers - primarily parents - of each school in the district. Parent, student and School Board response was strong.

Following these discussions, new plans were prepared. These plans included a new elementary school, new classrooms at the high school and Robert Stuart Junior High School, an additional physical education gymnasium and the performing arts auditorium for the high school.

Why an auditorium? When the high school was built in 1949-1950, the auditorium was omitted, apparently for reasons of economy, but supposed to be added soon. Somehow in the years to follow, "soon" never arrived, so assemblies and student government sessions were held in the gym. Bands, orchestras, choir and musical groups had to perform in the gym or in the expensive, hard-to-reserve College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Building. Plays, dramatic groups, and declamations ended up in the cafeteria. There was general agreement that now was the time for the needed auditorium.

At first, the school board planned to include an auditorium with 600 seats. The performing arts groups at the high school and in the community asked for 1,500 to 2,000 seats. The most vocal patrons argued that the facility should be large enough to at least provide a seat for each student and faculty member.

The School Board was concerned that a larger auditorium could possibly cause the failure of the bond election. A compromise was reached and a 1,000-seat auditorium was included on the ballot after several groups agreed to raise the remaining money to expand the auditorium through a separate fund-raising effort.

With the 1,000-seat auditorium, the School Board had stated that the tax levy for schools would not increase - it would not be greater but would extend for a longer period.

The vote was a great turnaround from 1991 - a positive "yes" by a 74 percent margin. Post-voting surveys indicated the new elementary and the auditorium to be the most popular elements.

The $1,800,000 provided by the bond issue will allow only 1,036 seats. We believe 1,500 seats are necessary and the space for them should be built. We should not be short-sighted or allow another 40 years to pass without a satisfactory facility. The stage, curtain, electrical system and other components do not need to be larger. Only entrances, aisles and floor space for seats would have to be increased. The architect's estimate for each seat unit would be $1,000 and the cost for 500 more seats would be $500,000.

A substantial amount has already been pledged, approaching $275,000. We understand many other pledges are being made. Businesses are assisting through advertising and through their employees' time.

More donors are needed to reach our goal. We hope everyone will participate. Each donation of $100 will be acknowledged in a permanent display.

Now is our best opportunity to build this auditorium with the adequate size of 1,500 or more seat units. The steering committee hopes that you agree and will join us with a pledge and contribution. If you act by Dec. 31, you can divide your gift over three tax years - 1992, 1993 and 1994. Contributions should be made to: Twin Falls Schools Foundation, P.O. Box 1182, Twin Falls ID 83303-1182.

If you have any questions, please call any member of the steering committee: Ron Belliston, Dennis Brown, Curtis Eaton, Ken Edmunds, Julie Fanselow, Maggie Fortner, Shawna Fuller, Larry Larson, Maria Larson, Robin McCracken, John Roper, Carl Snow, Laird Stone, Ruth Turner and Lee Wagner.

Retired Twin Falls merchant John W. Roper is a member of the steering committee for the Twin Falls High School auditorium expansion. Other members of the steering committee contributed to this article.

A salute to better politics minus the politicians

Before the old year ends, let me salute some folks who made politics better than it would otherwise have been in 1992.

I'm not talking here about politicians, although many of them - winners and losers, Democrats, Republicans and Perotists alike - did their parts.

I'm thinking, instead, of people who were not trying to be elected or get someone else elected but instead were out to improve the workings of our democracy.

Let's begin in Corvallis, Ore., where week after week, for as much as 21 hours a day, a cadre of volunteers and college interns manned the phones and answered the mail at the offices of Project Vote Smart. Launched and directed by the indefatigable Arizonian named Richard Kimball, Operation Vote Smart aimed to satisfy the voters' demand for impartial and factual information about the people seeking office in their states.

With foundation and membership funds of $1.5 million - about what George Bush or Bill Clinton would pull in at one fund-raiser - Kimball's Center for National Independence in Politics answered 209,000 calls to its 800 number requesting information on the policy positions, professional backgrounds and financial supporters of congressional and presidential candidates.

It also distributed more than 300,000 "voter self-defense manuals" containing much the same kind of information and 50,000 teacher/student study guides on the campaign, and assisted hundreds of local reporters with factual information on the candidates they were covering.

A second successful voter information project came out of the Jefferson Center, a Minneapolis-based organization, and was centered in Pennsylvania. Called the Citizens Jury project, it assembled a pair of 18-member "juries," representative of the population mixes in Eastern and Western Pennsylvania, to cross-examine the rivals in the Senate race - Sen. Arlen Specter (R) and challenger Lynn Yekel (D) - on their records and approaches to education, health care and the economy.

Like real juries, the voters' panels rendered verdicts, for the most part favorable to Specter, and later in the campaign evaluated the candidates' ads as well.

The Citizens Jury project, co-sponsored by the Pennsylvania League of Women Voters, drew substantial media coverage, both print and electronic, with some newspapers running lengthy excerpts from the jurors' questioning of the candidates.

Both of these projects showed how voters can assert their legitimate role in the campaign process - and not let it be controlled entirely by the candidates' and their media consultants.

In Charlotte, N.C., the local newspaper, the Observer, working with the Florida-based Poynter Institute and station WSOC-TV, developed its own approach to voter empowerment. The Observer's "Your Vote in '92" project began last January, before the campaigns geared up, using a poll to determine the issues its readers cared most about. From then on, the paper geared its coverage to those concerns.

The Observer literally carried voters' questions to the candidates, at every level from the presidency to township commissioner, and reported the answers, meantime driving home the message in many ways that on Election Day the voters would have the final say.

The results were impressive. Voter turnout in Mecklenburg County, the paper's home base, increased by almost one-third over 1988 - substantially more than it did statewide or nationally. And editor Rich Oppel says, "We received more positive comments on our campaign coverage than I can ever remember receiving."

Many other newspapers - without the radical format redesign of Charlotte - solidified their coverage of issues and improved their service to readers through "ad-watch" boxes, truth-squadding the media campaigns, and other devices. Radio and television also became more serious and substantive in everything from the superb campaign-trail reports on National Public Radio to MTV's "Rock the Vote" effort to bring the election to young people and young people to the ballot box.

But nothing was more important in the electronic campaign than October's extraordinary eight-day series of debates - three presidential and one vice presidential. And the only reason they happened was that the bipartisan, privately funded Commission on Presidential Debates was ready, once the Bush campaign had finally stopped its delaying tactics, to make them happen. In its speed in setting up the debates, its skillful handling of the question of Ross Perot's participation, and its gutsy insistence on breaking out of the tired old format of press-gang questioning, the commission emphatically proved its worth.

The huge and growing audiences for the four debates showed the public hunger for substantive politics. And, happily, this year, thanks to many more groups than can be mentioned here, that appetite was served.

David S. Broder writes for the Washington Post.

Thanks for great ski experience

Some friends and I recently spent a few days of cross-country ski in the South Hills near Magic Mountain. What a terrific experience! We suffered no hardships, as the hut was fully stocked and there was even cut wood for the stove. The snow conditions were excellent and we found many places to tour and back-country ski within a short distance from the hut. The trip couldn't have been any better.

My sincere thanks and congratulations go to the High Desert Nordic Association and especially to Dennis Kincaid of Kimberly for providing such a special cross-country skiing opportunity. Most people seem to think that all of the best skiing is up north. Not true.

Mini-Cassia deserves 1 hospital

No matter what Rupert City and Minidoka County officials and Minidoka Memorial Hospital people explain to maintain the present hospital, anybody with common sense thinks combining Mini-Cassia hospitals in a central area would benefit the people of this community.

Purchasing a of a $450,000 CAT scanner for MM Hospital and another one for CM Hospital is this small area is wasteful. The county hospital has no conscience of wasting tax money.

If a joint hospital is established, the duplicated expenses can be used for more expanding service, and we can compete with Twin Falls hospital and Poacello hospital.

I have questions regarding services provided in Rupert hospital.

On Nov. 2, 1991, a 6-year-old Heyburn boy, struck by a car while riding his bike, was taken to Rupert hospital. Did emergency physicians call a local surgeon? Did they call a surgeon from Twin Falls and did he come? I understand a surgeon is needed to be present in life-threatening conditions.

On Dec. 12, 1991, a 17-year-old Rupert girl was taken to Rupert hospital after her car was broadsided by a pickup. Did emergency physicians call a local surgeon? Did they call a surgeon in Twin Falls and how long did she wait for a surgeon coming from Twin Falls?

What I fear most is to be taken unconscious to the Rupert hospital. If I am conscious, I must go to the Burley hospital. Does Minidoka County ambulance go to Cassia Memorial Hospital?

Rupert hospital people claim that most residents of Stripps County want to keep the present hospital according to their survey made several years ago.

Since then the situation has changed and so have people's minds. People like a large hospital with more complete service. Can the Rupert hospital compete with a new $16 million Burley hospital?

The Rupert hospital's survival depends on people of Minidoka County. Taxpayers have the right to decide on this matter.

Voting by Minidoka County people on combining Mini-Cassia hospitals is the best solution. KIM F. BELLISTON

DEQ issues boil water order for Hollister

TWIN FALLS — Residents of Hollister have been advised by the state Division of Environmental Quality to boil their drinking water.

"We'll send them a letter, call it a drinking water advisory," said Greg Misbach, supervisor of prevention and certification of the Twin Falls DEQ office, Monday night. "We're advising people to boil their water and add chlorine."

Misbach said recent water samples showed high levels of total coliform bacteria.

He declined to speculate on the source, but in the past the town has had problems with its redwood storage tank.

Hollister residents should boil all drinking and cooking water for five minutes and then add two drops of chlorine bleach per quart of water and let the water stand for 30 minutes before consumption.

The boil-water order will be in effect until further notice.

Community Work Center inmates give toys to needy

TWIN FALLS — Staff members and inmates from the state's Community Work Center in Twin Falls provided toys, warm clothing and a food basket to a needy Twin Falls family for Christmas.

Work center inmates also volunteered to shovel the sidewalks at the Twin Falls Care Center after a recent snowstorm.

The work center, located on Washington Street South, opened earlier this year and houses convicted felons who are nearing parole dates or having trouble maintaining their probation.

Kimberly schedules hot dog, Christmas tree roast Saturday

KIMBERLY — A group of business and city officials here have come up with a different way to get rid of those Christmas trees: Roast hot dogs.

Kimberly City Councilman George McAdams said that a hot dog roast is scheduled to start at 3 p.m. Saturday at the Kimberly High School football field. The idea is to have residents bring their Christmas trees, light them on fire and roast hot dogs in the flames.

Falls Branch Independent Meat has donated the hot dogs, and the Chamber of Commerce, the Lions Club and others have chipped in for the trimmings.

"It's kind of a community event," he said.

Employees leave Buhl City Hall

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News writer

BUHL — The city of Buhl is getting out of the old and preparing for the new a little early this year as employees move out of the doomed City Hall building.

Buhl residents approved a $875,000 bond issue in June to pay for a new City Hall to be built on the site of the current dilapidated 72-year-old structure.

"Everybody's partially moved out," Mayor Ted Pence said Monday, adding that it may take a few more days to clear the rest of the building.

The city police department set up shop in the old city warehouse in the 200 block of Ninth Street South Monday, and the fire department also will operate there.

"It will be a little tight for a while," Police Chief Ron Romero said, but the year-long stay in the warehouse will be well worth it once the new city hall is up, he said.

"We're looking forward to it," Romero said.

The city clerk and license bureau offices have moved to the Pioneer Floors and Interiors building at 917 Main St.

In all, about 15 city government employees and up to 45 firefighters will be moved to make way for the new building.

Bids from companies wanting to clean up the asbestos in the old building will be opened Jan. 7, Pence said. Once the asbestos — a cancer-causing material often found in the insulation and tiles of many old buildings — is removed, the building will be demolished and the rubble carted away.

"We want to put it down and burn it and haul it away as soon as we can," Pence said.

The white-with-red-trim building, located at the corner of Broadway and Locust streets, had been condemned as unsafe. More than 75 percent of Buhl voters approved the bond issue.

Blaine seeks federal money for jail tour

The Associated Press

HAILEY — Blaine County authorities are applying for federal dollars to cover a two-state jail tour, the latest step in an effort to expand the Hailey jail.

Up to five county officials could join the junket put together by jail consultants. It will acquaint Blaine County with the latest penal technology.

The tour, tentatively set for Jan. 19-21, will include one jail in Utah and three in Colorado.

'It's an excellent way to start the planning process and to see what's out there.'

— Consultant Dennis Liebert of Boulder, Colo.

"It's an excellent way to start the planning process and to see what's out there," said consultant Dennis Liebert of Boulder, Colo. "They will be able to pick and choose what best fits their jail philosophy."

Federal funding is available through the National Institute of Corrections, a division of the U.S. Department of Justice.

"They will pick up everything for at least two people," Sheriff Walt Fleming said, while his office will foot the bill for the rest.

A $4.6 million bond intended to finance a new jail failed in 1990. County officials have regrouped and are considering their options.

In October, Liebert and his colleagues completed a master plan outlining the jail's requirements. It called for a 57-bed jail and changes to the Blaine criminal justice system.

Among them is the establishment of a criminal justice council to oversee local legal operations. It will include the sheriff, judges, police chiefs, prosecutor, and county attorneys. Appointments will be made next month.

Prosecutor: Sex abuse cases will be priority

TWIN FALLS — If Twin Falls County has been viewed as being lenient in prosecuting sex-abuse cases in the past, the county's new prosecutor vows that will change.

"It's as if it were no longer," G. Richard Bevan said.

Bevan, who will succeed K. Ellen Baxter on Jan. 11, proposes establishing a new protocol between the prosecutor's office and Health and Welfare under which he or his deputies would get involved with a sex-abuse complaint as soon as the department receives it.

That way fewer cases will be dismissed before prosecutors review them, and that will ultimately lead to a greater number of prosecutions, he said.

Baxter blames Health and Welfare for a big decrease in sexual abuse complaints her office has filed in the past four years. But department officials say their referrals to Baxter have increased, not declined.

If nothing else, the disagreement shows a communication lapse between the two agencies. The larger issue is whether that breakdown has resulted in child molesters escaping prosecution.

In an eight-month investigation, The Times-News found many cases where sex abuse allegations led to no prosecution. The newspaper also found several cases that apparently slipped through the cracks even after charges were filed.

In one case, 5th District Magistrate Judge Charles Brumback dismissed a case against alleged child molester James Ross after a deputy prosecuting attorney made a procedural mistake. Eight months later, the case has not been refiled.

The newspaper also found in reviewing 77 sentences by 5th District Judges Daniel Mechl and Daniel Hurlbutt that child molesters rarely went to jail or prison for their crimes. Treatment and probation were most often their penalties.

Baxter said the prosecutor's office is getting fewer referrals because of high turnover in Health and Welfare staff handling sex abuse cases.

Deputy Prosecutor Tracy Post said the new Health and Welfare social workers handling sex abuse cases are right out of college.

Ed VanDusen, the new program manager for Health and Welfare's Family and Children's Services in the Magic Valley, agreed that burnout and high turnover can affect how smoothly the department runs. He said social workers carry case loads that are too large to handle. It's a national concern, he said.

To solve the problem, Oregon allows social workers who handle sex abuse cases to retire early. Florida gives the same workers 5 percent more in salary than other social workers and Hawaii gives these workers pay incentives, VanDusen said.

They do it because handling sex-abuse cases is a gut-wrenching, low-morale job that

Case studies of 3 men convicted of sex crimes

The one who got away

He went to jail, not prison

3-time loser on the loose

By Kirk Mitchell

TWIN FALLS — The second time Thomas Earl Shouse was convicted of molesting children, 5th District Judge Daniel Mechl decided not to send him to prison.

"I made a mistake in that case," Mechl said.

Two and a half weeks after the judge placed Shouse on five years of intensely supervised probation for lewd and lascivious conduct with a minor in 1989, Shouse left town. He hasn't been heard from since.

"He's obviously very dangerous and it is my fervent hope that he is caught as soon as possible," Mechl said.

Shouse, now 43, had been sexually abused by his grandfather, three sisters and mother since the age of 7, according to court records.

Mechl said he wanted to end the generational cycle of abuse. Shouse could not be reached for comment.

Mechl said he took a chance with Shouse because he had never received therapy.

But in so doing, the judge put an ex-con with a clear history as a sexual predator back on the street.

When Shouse was a teen-ager, he ran away from a home where his grandfather hit him with a paddle with a nail sticking out of it and hospitalized him by hitting him with an ax.

Shortly after running away from home, Shouse was sentenced to reform school for theft, where he was repeatedly raped, court records say.

TWIN FALLS — What do you do with a problem like Robbie Joe Lundin?

A four-time sex offender in trouble with law since he was 13, Lundin pleaded guilty last year to fondling a 10-year-old girl.

Psychologists recommended sending him to prison. But 5th District Judge Daniel Hurlbutt thought a suspended sentence and psychological treatment might reform the 21-year-old Lundin.

The case shows the lack of consensus among professionals who deal with child sex abusers. While some would argue a repeat molester such as Lundin should be locked up where he can do no more harm, others are less willing to consign young offenders to a penal system that offers no therapy.

Contacted at the Twin Falls County jail through a jailer, Lundin declined to speak about his case.

Children have been accusing Lundin of molesting them since 1985.

Committed to the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, he was sent to the Idaho Youth Ranch and then to Nampa Boys' Group Home in 1989. He was transferred to the Emancipation Home a year later, court records show.

In February 1991, Twin Falls County Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter charged Lundin with lewd and lascivious behavior with a minor under 16.

Six months later, after Lundin already had confessed that

TWIN FALLS — When David Thompson forced 14-year-old Adam Pishl into his car at knifepoint, Thompson was already a three-time loser on child sex-abuse charges.

He also was on probation, and Adam's mother says he shouldn't have been.

"There's no one on the face of the earth who could understand this," Kathryn Pishl said.

Adam escaped from Thompson by fleeing from the car at a stoplight. But Thompson's case exemplifies what can go wrong in trying to rehabilitate sex-abuse criminals in a state with no meaningful in-prison treatment program.

Fifth District Judge Daniel Hurlbutt, who had sentenced Thompson to supervised probation for molesting a 6-year-old girl in 1986, said the prison system had failed Thompson.

Hurlbutt said he wanted to give therapy a chance, and he ordered Thompson into a program run by Boise psychiatrist Dr. John W. Stoner.

He also ordered Thompson to take Antabuse — a prescription drug that causes a person to become violently ill when he drinks.

Thompson never received the drug.

That angers Hurlbutt, who said that Thompson may never have gotten into trouble had the Antabuse been administered.

Had Hurlbutt imprisoned Thompson for the maximum five years, he would have been released at age 41 in 1991.

 few people and up making a career of. VanDusen said, Idaho lawmakers should consider offering the same incentives to its caseworkers, he said.
 Bevan has already met with VanDusen. "I think he is the kind of a guy I can work with," Bevan said.
 The prosecutor plans to rely on Idaho Attorney General Larry Echolf's new Children's Sexual Abuse Unit for support and advice handling sex abuse cases, which is the unit's mission.

Bevan said he may also consider taking some child sex abuse cases to a grand jury on a limited basis to protect kids.
 He said he ran for office partly because he didn't think fighting child sex abuse was a high enough priority in the prosecutor's office. "I think it should be re-filled, he will do so, he said.
 And though he thinks treatment should be considered for child abusers, he said it's difficult to reform a pedophile.
 For now, he's looking for someone to prosecute these cases.

Post and Deputy Prosecutor Barbara Blacklock, who together have prosecuted all child sex abuse cases during the past year, will take their knowledge with them when they join the Kootenai County prosecutor's office in January.
 Bevan is now seeking their replacements, but the new attorneys will not necessarily have experience with sex abuse cases.
 "It comes down to who is capable and willing," he said. "It might even come down to me handling them for the first year."

 After he was released, the victim of sexual abuse turned abuser. According to Idaho Department of Corrections records, he would eventually molest nine girls, ranging in age from 7 to 12. The molestations occurred during brief periods when he wasn't doing time in Idaho, Oregon and Kansas for offenses ranging from burglary to robbery.
 Shouse served seven years in the Idaho State Penitentiary after he was caught molesting a 12-year-old neighbor girl.
 While in prison, Shouse met a female inmate from Twin Falls. When released on parole, he went to live with the woman and her three daughters.

ages 3, 8 and 10. Within three months, he was molestating all three girls, according to court records.
 Twin Falls police arrested him six months later, and prosecution charged him with three counts of lewd conduct with a minor under 16. Each count could have brought a life prison sentence.
 "Prosecuting Attorney K. Ellen Baxter struck a deal with Shouse. He dropped one count in exchange for his guilty plea on the remaining two counts, and she recommended to Mechl that Shouse be given three to 15 years in prison.
 The judge said she did not seek more prison time for Shouse because, based on Mechl's track record of sentencing, that would have been futile.

 Mechl gave Shouse a three-to-12-year-prison sentence and sent him to the North Idaho Correctional Institution at Cottonwood, which is a prison facility run like a boot camp.
 "Conditioning to deviant behavior in this case is extreme," a Cottonwood report said.
 Although the report contained a minority opinion that recommended probation for Shouse because jailing molesters often increases the likelihood they will not receive treatment, it also estimated the odds of Shouse molesting another child.
 The odds were 70 percent.
 "I'll be doubly careful on some guy like this" in the future, Mechl said.

Newspaper publisher chairs public transportation committee

BOISE — Built newspaper publisher Robert Bailor will chair a four-member committee of Magic Valley residents that will look at public transportation needs and make recommendations to the Idaho Transportation Board.
 The other members are Jeff Chumrine,

Anthony Macias and William Schaffer. Sixteen seats will be charged with looking into public transportation needs and translating the information, including input from the public, into recommendations.
 Starting next month, the regional committees will meet three times a year to identify specific needs. They will report to the statewide Public Transportation Advisory Council and Division of Public Transportation.

 The meetings also will be used to report on progress being made toward goals.

 He had fondled a 10-year-old girl, Baxter offered him a plea bargain.
 If Lundin would plead guilty, she would recommend a suspended sentence, Lundin agreed.
 But Hurlbut didn't have to abide by the plea bargain. So on Aug. 19, he sentenced Lundin to five years in prison — with Lundin's actual fate to be determined after a trip to the North Idaho Correctional Institution in Cottonwood.
 The Cottonwood facility is a state prison. It is a "boot camp" where Lundin — like many sex offenders — would undergo therapy, counseling and evaluation.
 On Jan. 31, 1992, a Cottonwood evaluation team recommended that Hurlbut send Lundin to prison.

 "Chances are very poor that he will be successful if placed on probation," the evaluation said.
 At Lundin's March 16, 1992, status hearing, Baxter recommended that he be sent to prison. The Cottonwood evaluation convinced her Lundin was too dangerous for probation, she said.
 Hurlbut didn't agree.
 He suspended Lundin's prison sentence and placed him on 10 years' probation on condition he serve one year in the Twin Falls County jail, pay court costs, participate in therapy and attend substance abuse meetings.
 The judge retains jurisdiction in the case, which means he can still send Lundin to prison after he gets out of the county jail, Hurlbut said.

But that's unlikely because Lundin is doing well, Hurlbut said.
 Lundin did not receive the treatment he needed in the state youth facilities where he was sent, Hurlbut said.
 "If he had received meaningful treatment, would the latest incident ever have happened?"
 Hurlbut could put Lundin in prison — where prisoners do not receive treatment — a maximum of 15 years and he would come out a young and even more dangerous man, he said.
 As it stands, Lundin is receiving counseling and is a responsible worker, Hurlbut said.
 "He's now considered very low risk of re-offending," he said.
 Lundin is scheduled to be released from jail in March.

 The judge said Thompson would have been more hardened and dangerous than ever because molesters don't receive treatment in prison.
 "But Kathryn Pishl doesn't buy that explanation," she said.
 She thinks giving Thompson therapy while he remained free was too dangerous.
 "If you are going to rehabilitate them, fine, but people need to be protected," she said. "I definitely feel there was a miscarriage of justice."
 In 1966, Thompson, then 17, was sent to the Idaho State Industrial School in St. Anthony for lewd conduct with a child.
 By June 1968, he was back in Twin Falls looking for a job.
 "I walked all over town and I couldn't find one," he wrote in an affidavit dated June 11, 1968. "So I started back to my car and I saw this little boy by the Safeway store and I decided to take it out on him."
 "I stopped him and asked him to come with me. We went behind Lincoln (Elementary School) and I took his pants off. I played with his privates and I said for him to suck me."
 He started crying.
 "Then two men came out and caught me. I tried to lie my way out of it but it didn't work."

 Thompson spent the next 13 years in the Idaho State Penitentiary.
 He was back in Twin Falls, living in the migrant labor camp on March 1, 1980, when he saw a 6-year-old girl walking past his home. Thompson invited the girl in and then molested her. The incident was reported to police.
 Later that same day, another girl in the labor camp told police Thompson had molested her three times.
 Thompson was charged with two counts of child sexual abuse. But on April 29, Twin Falls County Prosecuting Attorney K. Ellen Baxter signed an order dismissing one count against Thompson in a plea arrangement under which Thompson agreed to plead guilty to the remaining count.
 Baxter said she made the deal because local judges tend to give the same sentence for multiple charges as they would for just one count.

Three months into his probation, Thompson was in Boise to visit Stoner one day when he began drinking beer and wine.
 Adam Pishl was on his way to buy a bicycle intertube when Thompson asked him to help him start his car.
 Thompson asked the boy to turn the car ignition on as he worked on the engine under the hood, but when Adam climbed into the car, Thompson also climbed in and then pulled out a 12-inch blade.
 "I don't think there is any doubt what he intended to do," Kathryn Pishl said.
 Adam escaped, memorized the license number on Thompson's car and called police.
 Fourth District Judge Alan Schwartzman sentenced Thompson to an indeterminate life sentence for kidnapping and being a persistent violator.
 Thompson, now 43, declined to comment about his case from his prison cell.

RUPERT - While Minidoka County's outgoing elected officials used Monday's County Commission meeting to voice their goodbyes, some incoming officials took the opportunity to express their expectations.

Commissioners-elect Larry Harper and John Rensburg III, each of whom has attended the past several commission meetings in preparation for taking office next month, said they look forward to the challenge of the job.

Harper will replace Lyle Barton, a two-decade commission veteran who decided not to run for re-election; Rensburg defeated incumbent Clarence Bliem in the November general election. Bliem missed the meeting due to illness.

Harper and Rensburg will join Commissioner Norman Seibold on the new board on Jan. 11. All three men are Republicans.

"It's my desire to listen and learn as we work at this," Rensburg said. He said he expects to "get along very well" with the county's other officials and employees. Sheriff Ray Jarvis, who was ousted from office by Rupert Police Chief Paul Fries, wished the commissioners-elect good luck and added, "Don't forget the employees. You're going to be faced with some gut-wrenching choices, but don't forget the employees in the courthouse."

Restating a comment made earlier by Barton, Jarvis joked: "I'm going to be like Barton. I'm going to stick my head in the door every once in a while just to harrigue you guys."

One of the highlights of his tenure as sheriff, he said, was the construction of the Mini-Cassia Criminal Justice Center in Burley and the Mini-Cassia Juvenile Detention Center in Rupert - jointly operated facilities which house offenders from both counties.

He called the current commission "the most aggressive he's worked with."

Barton told the department heads, "I have really enjoyed everybody and enjoyed this 20 years on the job. You're very much appreciated."

Outgoing Prosecutor David Haley said he is trying to wrap up as many cases as possible before Gara Newman is sworn in Jan. 11.

Newman, the county's public defender, ran as an independent and defeated Haley, a Republican, in November.

Commissioners choose new county defender

By James Prichard
Mini-Cassia News Service

RUPERT - As public-defender-turned-prosecutor Gara Newman prepares to assume her new post in Minidoka County, county commissioners have decided who will take over her old one.

Commissioners on Monday authorized a two-year contract for Burley attorney Douglas Whipple to serve as the county's next public defender.

The contract will pay Whipple $74,000 per year, from which all his associated expenses must be paid. Commissioners selected him from among five applicants for the job.

Newman, who has represented hundreds of clients during her six years as public defender, was replaced by Prosecutor David Haley (in the November general election, she will assume the post on Jan.

11. Commissioners will meet in a special session with Jerome County Magistrate Roger Burdick at 10:30 a.m. Monday, Fifth District Judge J. William Hart recently appointed Burdick to determine the process by which the county will choose a special prosecutor to work in place of Newman when a conflict of interest arises.

Newman will be prohibited from prosecuting defendants she has represented as legal counsel. When this occurs, another attorney will be brought in to prosecute.

It is up to Burdick to decide who will become the county's special prosecutor and how that person will be compensated. The special prosecutor could be recommended by either Newman, the county or the court, and be paid either a flat sum annually or on a case-by-case basis.

Both Haley and Assistant Prosecutor Rick Bollar said they would accept the job if it is offered. Bollar is leaving office to accept a partnership in the Rupert law firm of Goodman and Duff, and his position also must be filled in the near future.

Heart attack may have led to accident, death

Mini-Cassia News Service

BURLEY - A 41-year-old Burley man who was killed early Sunday morning in a traffic accident may have suffered a mild heart attack which led him to lose control of his car and slam nearly head-on with another vehicle, law officers say.

According to the Cassia County Sheriff's Department, Jess Alvin Kemsley, driving a 1988 Plymouth, was westbound on Highway 30 near the intersection of Highway 81.

The vehicle veered into the oncoming lane of traffic, nearly hitting a traffic light pole on the southeast corner of the intersection, and began to turn south onto Highway 81. It then collided with a Dodge Colt driven by Kerry Reed Bell, 36, Heyburn, which had begun to turn east onto Highway 30 from Highway 81.

L. Jim Higgs said that he received a pathological report Monday that showed Kemsley likely suffered a heart attack. Witnesses said the Kemsley vehicle was traveling about 50 mph at the time of impact.

Bell and his two passengers, Rhonda Rae Bell, 33, Heyburn, and Patricia Marie Herbst, 33, Heyburn, were taken to Cassia Memorial Hospital in Burley. Kerry Bell was treated and released while the other two were admitted, but have since been released. Kemsley was taken to Cassia Memorial but died shortly afterward, deputies said.

None of the four involved in the 1:20 a.m. accident were wearing seatbelts, law officers said.

Childless man leaves fortune to waitress

CHAGRIN FALLS, Ohio (AP) — Widowed, childless and past 80, Bill Cruxton wanted his $500,000 fortune to make a difference in someone's life. A 17-year-old waitress who had been kind to him seemed the perfect choice.

When he died last month, he left the bulk of his estate to Cara Wood, the Kenton High School senior who befriended him during the 13 months she worked part-time at Dink's Restaurant.

Cora Bruck, Cruxton's 86-year-old sister and his only living relative, has challenged the will, which designated enough money to pay for her funeral. She says it doesn't represent his true intentions. "Mr. Cruxton's longtime friends all agree this was not the same guy," said Mark Fishman, Bruck's attorney. "The Bill Cruxton that they knew was a very conservative and down-to-earth guy. This is the last thing they would have expected from the true Bill Cruxton."

But employees and patrons at Dink's, a diner in this Cleveland suburb, knew Cruxton as a lonely man who appreciated the attention he got from Wood.

"Cara is just a good kid," said Dennis Zolotshak, co-owner of the restaurant. "She was just a typical junior in high school, yet she took the time to do things for Bill."

Cruxton's wife of 40 years, Gertrude, died of cancer in 1989. He soon became a regular at Dink's, eating lunch and dinner there every day. The employees and customers became his family. If he was late for a meal, Cara would call to make sure he was OK. "You could tell when Bill came in," Cara said. "You'd hear him shuffling down the hallway, and everybody would say, 'Bill's here.'"

Cruxton was popular among the patrons, and he would often spend the evening visiting tables to table, Zolotshak said. But whenever Cara was working, he'd make it a point to sit in her section.

Seventeen-year-old Cara Wood befriended Bill Cruxton, an elderly and frequent customer at Dink's Restaurant in Chagrin Falls, Ohio, where she worked for 13 months.

"He knew that Cara's dad had died," said Maggie North, 18, a waitress at Dink's. "I think he felt like he was a father figure. I know he bought her some gifts and things. I think he was lonely."

Cara, a self-described tomboy whose greatest passion is playing soccer, quit the restaurant in September because of conflicts with her soccer team's schedule. But she kept in touch with Cruxton, running errands for him and helping him around the house. Because of his poor eyesight, she often helped him read his mail and pay his bills.

Cruxton, who was 82, died of a heart attack on Nov. 9. His estate included a $141,000 home, $200,000 in U.S. Treasury notes, $45,000 worth of jewelry, two cars, $21,000 in cash and assorted other valuables.

He accumulated his wealth as the owner of a piano and organ moving company, which he sold in the 1970s. He was active in Republican politics in Moreland Hills, the nearby town where he lived.

Cara is making plans to go to college, regardless of whether she gets the money. She wants to major in business. "I was working to pay for college, but we weren't living out of a box or anything," Cara said. "I still get an allowance from my mom."

Friends say they've noticed no change in Cara since she was named in the will.

Couple's anniversary becomes gift to needy

DEAR ABBY: This letter is long overdue. George and I celebrated our 50th wedding anniversary last April and we used a suggestion we read in your column.

We had a lovely party at the Chicago Corinthian Yacht Club, and our invitations read:

"Your love and friendship is the only gift we need. However, if you wish to bring something, please make it an item of non-perishable food that will be donated to the needy."

Abby, it worked!

We had a heavy carload to deliver. The people at the party were amazed at the quantity of food we brought in. We thank you for publishing that suggestion and hope you will continue your wonderful column for a long time.

— JANE LEONARD, SKOKIE, ILL.

DEAR JANE: I'm pleased that you used my idea for your 50th wedding anniversary celebration. May you and George enjoy many more anniversaries.

When all is said and done, all we really have in the end is the pleasure we receive from that which we give away.

DEAR ABBY: During the holidays, blood banks around the country face the task of providing transfusions for the many hospital patients who depend on our community blood supply. The need is so great, and you have been such a stalwart friend, Abby, that we are asking you to remind your readers once again that the need for blood never takes a holiday.

Perhaps you can also remind your readers that giving blood is safe: You can't get AIDS or any other disease from GIVING blood! It's simple and usually takes 30 to 40 minutes from registration through post-donation juice and crackers. And, most important, giving blood saves lives!

Last year, more than 4 million

Dear Abby
Abigail
VanBuren

Americans received blood transfusions.

Sadly, only about 5 percent of those able to donate actually give blood.

Here in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, we need more than 700 units of blood every day, including Christmas and New Year's!

Abby, Americans have so many blessings to celebrate. Why not celebrate the blessings of good health by sharing it? This holiday season, visit your local blood center and give the gift that lasts a lifetime: Give blood.

WILLIAM F. HELLER, CARTER BLOOD CENTER; WILLIAM V. MILLER, M.D., WADLEY BLOOD CENTER; HAROLD KAPLAN, M.D., PARKLAND BLOOD CENTER

DEAR ABBY: The first thing I look for in my newspaper is the obituary column. When the cause of death is listed as cancer, I always wonder if the deceased had been a heavy smoker.

I wish that very important fact would be included in the write-up. Am I the only person who wishes it were?

— LONG ISLANDER

DEAR LONG ISLANDER: I'm sure you're not. But unless the deceased had requested that it be included in his/her obituary, which is highly unlikely, that "very important fact" will remain a mystery.

Abby's family recipes are included in her cookbook! Send a long, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $5.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Cookbooklet No. 1, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

With unruly youngster, strike when iron is cold

By John Rosemond
"Knight-Ridder News Service

Q: Every time — and I do mean every time — I take my 4-year-old son into a store, he quickly finds some reason to create a disturbance or throw a tantrum. I've tried everything from rewards to spankings to get him to behave himself, but nothing has worked. Besides leaving the store and taking him home — which isn't practical because I'd never get any shopping done — do you have any suggestions?

A: I suggest you leave the store and take him home. Bear with me, however, because what I have in mind won't require that you sacrifice your shopping — not much, that is. This problem actually presents you with an ideal disciplinary opportunity. With relatively little time and effort, you cannot only take positive control of your son's public behavior, but also establish an entirely new disciplinary "tone" in the relationship, one that will take you effectively out of the reward/punishment "rut" in which you're stuck.

As it stands, your son begins to misbehave in a store and you react. Your response to the problem is, in other words, after the fact and no doubt flooded with anger and frustration.

The elements of reaction and emotion characterize a disciplinary style that's bound to fall flat on its face time after time. To turn your son around, you're going to have to first turn yourself around. You need to respond to his misbehavior proactively — before the fact. I refer to this as "striking while the iron is cold."

A proactive response will enable you to remain in control of yourself and your emotions. As a result your self-confidence — the essence of effective discipline — will shine through.

In this case, the proactive response of choice involves what I refer to as "making dry runs." Plan a trip to a store when you have no shopping to do. On the pretense of having to make a purchase, undertake the excursion as you normally would, taking your son along.

Before you enter the store, however, stop outside and calmly inform him that should he create a disturbance, no matter how small, you will immediately take him home where he will not only spend the remainder of the day in his room, but also get to bed one hour early.

Now, instead of dreading an in-store disturbance, you're hoping for one.

When it happens — and it will, believe me — you simply say, "You've just told me that you want to go home, so let's go." Take his hand, lead him immediately out of the store, take him directly home, and do exactly what you said you were going to do. Do not, under any circumstances, give him a second chance or renegotiate the consequences, regardless of what he might promise.

Now you have your son's attention. Instead of getting flustered when he misbehaved, you responded with calm, purposeful resolve.

Having taken him by surprise, you can expect a dramatic reaction on his part. The will, in all likelihood, wail and tell you he doesn't want to be your child any longer and wail some more. Just say, "I'd be upset, too, if I had to spend the rest of the day in my room."

Over the next few weeks, plan as many unnecessary excursions to the store as you can, taking the same approach each time. Within a month, your son should be a model shopper.

In the meantime, you may have to sacrifice one or two necessary shopping trips as well.

If that happens, just remember there's a price to be paid for everything. In this case, however, the payment plan is virtually painless.

Q. Does anybody know why we shed tears when we're emotionally upset?

A. One debated theory: Under stress, the human body produces chemical secretions, glandular kickers, to enable it to cope. Their overflow releases through the tear ducts. Shedding tears, it's thought, relieves the body of such activators built up during stress.

Consumers regain prominence

WASHINGTON — The consumer pushed the U.S. economy into a sustainable recovery in the last half of 1992 and will likely remain there for support at least during the first half of 1993, analysts said.

"Consumers will lead the way" in 1993, said Fuji Securities in its weekly economic commentary.

Available data for October and November has consumer spending rising at an annual rate of about 4 percent in the 1992 fourth quarter, following an already respectable increase of 3.7 percent in the third.

This would be the first time since the recession began in July 1990 that consumer spending has increased significantly for two consecutive quarters. The recession ended in March 1991, according to the National Bureau of Economic Research.

The fourth-quarter spending rate could be even higher given that holiday sales, which appeared to pick up right before Christmas, with anecdotal evidence that malls were again crowded in the two days following the holiday.

Analysts say it is a very real given that this year's holiday selling season was the best in four years, with some estimates for year-over-year sales increases as high as 8 percent or more.

Prior to the last half of this year, spending had eased, rising 1.5 percent in the third quarter of 1991 and 5.1 percent in the second quarter of 1992, but dipping 0.3 percent in fourth quarter of 1991 and 0.1 percent in the second quarter of 1992.

"That's over," said Dan Friele, an economist with NationsBank.

The key to sustaining spending in the new year will be employment gains, and the fundamentals look good for that, he said.

Inventories are in "a lean position going into the new year" and the only option for businesses "inclined to rebuild inventory levels... is to start adding people," he said.

The employment picture for December is expected to show modest improvement in the nation's labor markets, with economists surveyed by Knight-Ridder Financial News forecasting a rise in non-farm payrolls of 80,000.

The expected increase in December payrolls, which is scheduled for release by the Labor Department Jan.

8, would follow a jump of 105,000 in November.

Friele and other economists said they expect increases in spending next year to be in line with growth in the gross domestic product. Friele, for example, forecast a rise of 3.1 percent in 1993 GDP and 3.0 percent in spending.

Other indicators due for release over the next couple of weeks will provide further confirmation that consumers have become looser with their wallets, economists said. "We are beginning to see evidence that car sales have nipped up a notch" from an annual rate of 6.1 million or 6.2 million units to 6.4 million, said John McAuley, an economist at the Economic Forecasting Services.

The annual rate of sales from the Dec. 11-20 period, he released last week, was 6.2 million units, but economists surveyed by Knight-Ridder expect sales for the Dec. 21-31 period, due out Jan. 6, to run at a 6.7 million pace.

Late rally among blue chips kicks market slightly up

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The stock market finished mixed Monday following a late climb among blue chip issues.

After rising 12.70 points in an abbreviated Christmas Eve session, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 7.02 Monday to 3,333.26.

Declining issues narrowly outnumbered gainers by 6 to 5 on the New York Stock Exchange, with 992 up, 817 down and 587 unchanged.

The market recovered late in the day after low prices failed to prompt heavy selling, said William Dodge, chief investment strategist at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc.

Short-term T bill rates rise

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Interest rates on short-term Treasury securities rose on Monday's auction to the highest level in two weeks.

The Treasury department sold $12.4 billion in three-month bills at an average discount rate of 3.22 percent, up from 3.16 percent last week. Another $12.4 billion was sold in six-month bills at an average discount rate of 3.38 percent, up from 3.32 percent last week. The three-month bill rate was the highest since they sold for 3.26 percent on Dec. 14. The six-month bill rate was the highest since they averaged 3.64 percent, also on Dec. 14.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

"The wrong way always seems the more reasonable."
— George Moore.

It seemed reasonable for East to defend the way he did. Actually he made things easier for South. Look over the play to see if you can spot where East went wrong.

Against South's precarious game, West opted to try for a ruff and led a heart. With filmy chances at best, South won dummy's king and crossed the first hurdle by leading a trump to his 10, forcing West's ace. West persisted in hearts to South's ace, and the two top trumps cleared the suit. A club was led to dummy's queen, which surprisingly won, and it was time to take stock. Since West had two black aces, surely East had the diamond ace. So South led a diamond from dummy, which was West's king. South's diamond seven was followed by the nine, eight and 10, and East exited safely with the diamond ace, South ruffing. The rest was easy. West had shown four major-suit cards and East had shown three diamonds. Clearly the clubs were 3-3, and South had no problems with clubs, losing only to West's ace.

Well played indeed. But where did East go wrong? He erred when he won the diamond 10 instead of the ace. Had he farsighted with his ace and led the club 10, South would have surely been deceived. He would have placed West with seven diamonds, giving him only the A-x in clubs. With that holding, South would have played a low club to drop the ace (obligatory finesse), and in the process he would have dropped his game.
