Social Security freeze plan fades

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The White House abandoned consideration of a one-year freeze on Social Security benefits Monday after an outcry from senior citizens and congressional Democrats.

It seems more likely now that taxes will be raised on Social Security benefits to the well-off.

But as Clinton continued to struggle with elements of his deficit-reduction package, he declared a short-term stimulus package nearly complete. He also moved to extend a related program that provides extra benefits for unemployed workers.

Saying hard times remain despite improved economic statistics, Clinton announced he will send Congress legislation to prolong a program allowing the jobs to draw up to 26 weeks of unemployment benefits beyond the 26 weeks in the basic law.

He coupled the extension with a proposal to make it easier for permanently displaced workers to take advantage of job-retraining services.

"There are now 3 million jobs less in this economy than there would be if we were in a normal recovery," Clinton said.

During a picture-taking session with his economic advisers, Clinton said he made most of the major decisions on the economic-stimulus package he will unveil in a speech to Congress on Feb. 17.

"We're going to go back over it one more time," he said. The unemployment-compensation package is part of that stimulus program, which overall is expected to cost about $31 billion, divided between job-producing programs and business tax breaks.

The deficit-reduction part of the program was not as well along as the stimulus part. The administration backed away entirely from a proposal it earlier said it was considering — a one-year freeze on cost-of-living increases for Social Security recipients.

That proposal was denounced by senior citizens and Democratic lawmakers.

"I think it's very unlikely it's something the president wants to do," White House Communications Director George Stephanopoulos said Monday. Earlier, he had said the freeze was one of a number of items on the table.

"That's something he never wanted to do," Stephanopoulos said on ABC's "Good Morning America."

Environmental policy office set

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton began his reorganization of the White House on Monday by creating an office of environmental policy and promising to give it a voice in all decision-making, even in foreign policy.

"We are today changing the way government works," Clinton said, announcing he was shutting down the 24-year-old Council on Environmental Quality and replacing it with a White House office of environmental policy.

The new office would be headed by a cabinet-level position. Clinton said he would name the new director by the end of the month.

Late to bed, early to rise, Clinton barely shuts eyes

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — At his Cabinet retreat, it was late-night bowling and an early morning prayer service.

A White House reception for visiting governors ran past midnight, yet President Clinton invited several for a pre-dawn jog in a freezing rain.

Does this guy ever sleep? Indeed he does, promises White House press secretary Dee Dee Myers. Just not much. "He doesn't need a lot of sleep," says Myers.

And she ought to know. Campaign veteran like Myers have long known Clinton is a night owl. What's new is that as president he's trying to be an early bird, too.

History will note the pattern began on Day One.

It was nearly 4 a.m. the morning after his inauguration when Clinton ended his round of visits to inaugural balls and began his first night's sleep in the White House.

Just a few hours later he was greeting visitors in a White House open house, and his baggy eyes didn't go unnoticed. One woman said hello and then told Clinton he looked exhausted. Clinton nodded and assured her, "I'll get a good night's sleep tonight."

He didn't. That night, Zoe Baird's nomination as attorney general died in a storm of protest over her hiring of illegal aliens. Instead of getting his sleep, Clinton was popping in and out of aides' offices well past 1 a.m. keeping track of the Baird crisis.

It was a sign of things to come. "I'm 24 years old and I'm having a hard time keeping up with him," said Andrew Friendly, a personal aide to the 46-year-old president.

After the Cabinet retreat at Camp David, a few Cabinet members gambled jokingly to aides about getting only five hours sleep because Clinton kept them up.

And several White House staffers who have worked past-midnight reports seeing Clinton wandering about his new home, usually dressed casually and perhaps sipping a soda.

President Clinton and a Secret Service agent jog through a park in Washington, D.C., Monday morning.

Children, Hispanics most likely to fall below line in Magic Valley

By Craig Lincoln

Complete Idaho statistics - A2

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Hispanics were much more likely than whites to live in poverty when the 1990 Census was conducted, and children were more likely to be impoverished than the general population.

In Gooding County, 23.1 percent of children lived in households that fell below the federally designated poverty level, according to a Census Bureau report released Monday. The average for the nation was 13.1 percent and for Gooding County whites, 16.4 percent.

A Minidoka or Cassia county Hispanic was about three times more likely to live in poverty than a white resident of either of the counties.

The federal government defines a family of four as poor if it earns $12,675 a year. That figure includes only cash income, and not government aid such as food stamps and surplus commodities.

Idaho Migrant Council manager Andres R. Rodriguez believes the poverty rate for Hispanics will go down. He said many fall below the federal government's poverty level because they are new to the area, uneducated and farm workers.

"Things are looking more promising," Rodriguez said.

He said Hispanic families are settling down and building homes in the area. That means their children are more likely to finish their education — like he did.

Rodriguez's parents married and settled in the Mini-Cassia area in the early 1960s after years of migrant work.

"They decided that wasn't the life they wanted for their kids," he said.

His mother, who had a fourth-grade education, took a job in a food-processing plant. His father, who had quit school after the second grade, started a dairy with one cow.

Rodriguez finished high school, went into the military and then went to college. Now he

A man identified as Damacio Ibarra Torres, 40, is driven away in a police car after a shooting and hostage-taking at a Los Angeles hospital.

Hospital gunman surrenders

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — A heavily armed man yelling for pain medicine shot and critically wounded three doctors in a hospital emergency room Monday.

He then held two women hostage for several hours before freeing them unharmed and surrendering.

The man had told police negotiators he was a disgruntled former patient. "It apparently has to do with what he perceives to be poor medical treatment," Lt. John Dunkin said.

The shootings happened at Los Angeles County-University of Southern California Medical Center, familiar to millions as the model for "General Hospital" in the ABC-TV soap opera. It is one of the nation's largest hospitals, with more than 2,000 beds.

After the gunman surrendered, police recovered a .44-caliber magnum, a .380-caliber automatic pistol, a sawed-off rifle of unknown caliber and a hunting knife. Deputy Police Chief Robert Gil said Gil said he didn't know how the man got the weapons into the hospital.

Gil identified the gunman as Damacio Ibarra Torres, 40, of Los Angeles.

The gunman entered the walk-in emergency room at 1:40 p.m. MST and opened fire on a group of doctors sitting at a desk near the door, hospital spokesman Harvey Kern said.

Congress trying to write abortion rights into law

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Even with a new friend in the White House, many abortion rights supporters concede they will have to make concessions to win passage of a bill putting such rights into law.

But they have yet to agree on where and how much to give.

"There's a division in the ranks," says Rep. Charles Schumer, a New York Democrat and a co-sponsor of the Freedom of Choice Act. His view: "Five-sixths of a job is better than none."

But Don Edwards, D-Calif., the bill's chief House sponsor, says, "We're not going to weaken Roe. We would rather postpone it until we have the votes."

The idea behind the bill is to put the provisions of Roe vs. Wade into federal law, protecting against the possibility that the Supreme Court will reverse its landmark 1973 ruling that legalized abortion.

But the act would also create national standards, of sorts, for limitations that states could put on abortion.

Some restrictions now on the books in some states — such as 24-hour waiting periods and parental consent requirements.

"This bill goes way beyond Roe — it goes to a wide-open, no-holds-barred, abortion on demand," said Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah. "It flies in the face of at least 80 percent of Congress thinks."

Anti-abortion forces contend the measure also is out of step with the views of the majority of Americans. For example, polls show that many Americans, especially those who support keeping abortion legal, favor curbs such as 24-hour waiting periods.

That's why some abortion-rights supporters, including Schumer, think there needs to be compromise. Refusing to bargain means sure death for the bill, these lawmakers say.

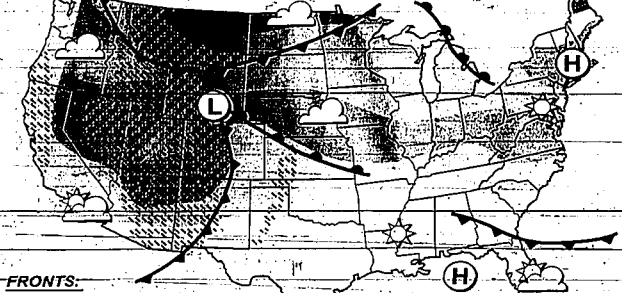

"If they throw down the marker on this, they're making a dreadful mistake," said Rep. Marge Roukema, R-N.J., another abortion rights supporter who thinks there should be a compromise.

But other abortion rights activists contend restrictions such as those in Pennsylvania are chipping away at the Roe decision and should be outlawed.

Weather summary

Satellite pictures revealed a Pacific storm system moving through Nevada with lowering clouds spreading into southern Idaho late Monday, the National Weather Service says.

Computer models indicated that the storm should remain east of Idaho with a chance of rain or snow moving into southern Idaho overnight.

Rain and occasional light snow moved into the Magic Valley Monday afternoon and continued falling through the night. Only trace amounts were reported in the Magic Valley and in other sections of the state.

Winds were easterly and added a sharp bite to 30-degree temperatures much of the day.

The warmest temperature in the state Monday was 52 degrees at Riggin and Lewiston. Stanley reported the coldest at 1 degree below zero.

Elsewhere in the nation Monday, the highest temperature was 79 degrees at Presidio, Texas. The lowest was 12 degrees below zero at Ely, Minn.

Storm soaks Southern California; snow across wide area

The Associated Press

A Pacific storm drenched much of Southern California with rain and dumped snow in the Rockies on Monday. Snow also was scattered over the northern Plains and the Great Lakes region.

By 11 a.m. MST, the storm had left 6 1/2 inches of snow at Kyle Canyon, Nev. It left up to 6 inches of rain in the California mountains and 1 to 2 inches west of the mountains.

Street flooding was widespread in Los Angeles, where one boulevard was under as much as 3 feet of water. Homes and underground garages in parts of Los Angeles were flooded. As much as 1 1/2 inches of rain also caused urban flooding around Las Vegas.

At 11 a.m. MST, rain extended over the central and southern Pacific coast, with rain changing to snow in the higher inland elevations. Rain also reached over the central Atlantic coast.

Snow showers were scattered over northwest Colorado, northern Maine, the Great Lakes and from the Upper Mississippi Valley into northeastern South Dakota. Freezing rain reached from eastern Nebraska across eastern Iowa to northwest Illinois.

Heavier rainfall during the 6 hours ending at 11 a.m. MST included 1.36 inches at Cape Hatteras, N.C.

The low temperature for the lower 48 states Monday was 12 degrees below zero at Ely, Minn.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Growing pressure to fill the attorney general's post made for a tense atmosphere at the White House Monday, with President Clinton threatening to fire leaders and rejecting women as the greatest criticism of "double standards" for female prospects.

Top aides were reminded to make sure they obey immigration and tax laws in hiring household help, and Clinton said, "I think everybody will do what they're supposed to do."

Clinton is expected to nominate an attorney general this week, and the White House is doing everything it can to accomplish that without further controversy.

"We need to get this behind us. Now," said one senior official, who asked not to be identified.

In the meantime, Clinton warned aides who have leaked details of the selection process to the media: Refusing to give recent disclosure, Clinton said: "If I knew who did it, they wouldn't be here."

The pressure has been rising since the withdrawal of nominee Zoe Baird, who came under congressional scrutiny for her involvement in a case involving illegal aliens in her household and did not pay taxes in connection with her employment until recently.

Federal Judge Kimba Wood then withdrew as a candidate last Friday. She, too, it was put, had hired an illegal alien as a babysitter — though unlike Baird she had paid the required Social Security taxes and broken no laws.

Wood's greatest problem was not being "officially forthcoming" when asked about the hiring in January. Also, her confirmation might have been hindered because of the flap created by Baird, officials said.

The Baird situation prompted the White House counsel's office to order that all senior officials make sure they complied with immigration and tax laws.

Clinton and Vice President Al Gore have done so, communication director George Stephanopoulos said.

Stephanopoulos also said the White House is considering a change in the law that requires employers to pay Social Security taxes on employes' income exceeding $50 in three months.

"If you have a babysitter once every three weeks and hire your next door neighbor to mow your lawn, technically you should be paying Social Security taxes," the spokesman said.

On Sunday, Commerce Secretary Ron Brown said he discovered in January that he should have been paying Social Security taxes for a three-hour-a-week employee. He has since paid the back taxes.

wants to finish his college degree and wants his children to go even farther.

"Right now, there are a lot of low-income families," he said. "Given time, given the system — if it works for the people — there will be time for changing those numbers."

The poverty rate for Magic Valley Hispanics ranged from 34.7 percent in Cassia County to 11.9 percent in Lincoln County. Camas County, with a population so small that sampling is difficult, reported no Hispanics in poverty.

Overall poverty rates in southern Idaho ranged from a low of 7.7 percent in Blaine County to a high of 17 percent in Gooding County.

"We're concerned," Gooding County Commissioner Don C. Morrow said of the figures, "but I don't think it's worse than other places."

Morrow said Gooding's new Avonmore West Inc. forces plant and other economic events have started mending the county's economy.

Gooding County also had the highest rate of childhood poverty — the Census Bureau said 23.1 percent of the children lived in households that fell below the poverty line. That's a statistic that Gooding County school Superintendent R. James Cobble doubts.

Other districts have a higher percentage of students getting free or reduced-price school lunches than Gooding, he said.

The lunch program is based on family income, and "it would seem those two statistics would fall in line," he said.

"I am surprised at those percentages," he said.

Snow puts school roof on ground

REXBURG (AP) — About 100 volunteers worked to shovel snow from the roof of Madison High School after part of the roof collapsed on about 1 p.m. Sunday. Crews have been on the roof shoveling for two weeks, said Principal Lane Hemming. But there was one section that was not cleared away over the foyer leading into the gymnasium.

Damage is estimated in the thousands of dollars, Hemming said.

GOP ponders higher cigarette tax

BOISE (AP) — Republican legislative leaders said Monday that the GOP majority may back an increase in the state cigarette tax, but that there's no sentiment for a general tax increase proposed by Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus.

House Speaker Michael Simpson said a three-cent increase in the 18-cent-a-pack cigarette tax to underwrite health district expenses might win approval if the districts get the additional $2.4 million for Andrus has also supported that proposal.

And Simpson said there could even be support for an additional increase in the tax to bolster financing for public works projects.

"People can vote for it because somebody else pays for it," Simpson explained.

But as members of the Senate Republican majority received a new version of the kind of new state budget that was possible without raising taxes, both Simpson and Senate President Pro Tem Jerry Twigg said they sensed a desire among their colleagues to live within available revenues no matter how tight that makes spending in the year that begins July 1.

Each of the 50 House Republicans has spent the last week going over the revenue and spending figures as well, and Simpson indicated some decisions should begin solidifying before budget writers begin making decisions next week.

"The only way they can determine if they want to raise taxes is to know what you can and can't do" for the $1.08 billion the existing tax structure is expected to generate in the new budget year, Simpson said.

"Everybody has a different interest," the speaker admitted. "But most members of our caucus are pretty cognizant of what they can and can't do. ... Everyone is dead set against taxes.

"On the other hand, they have to recognize that they have to vote for some budgets they may or may not like," Simpson said.

The latest budget option, dated Monday morning, is a significant change from the initial so-called theoretical budget GOP leaders began circulating two weeks ago.

But leaders again stressed that none of the components of the new no-tax-increase spending proposal has been endorsed by any lawmaker.

The plan retains the 2 percent state employee pay raise that Republicans appeared to be committed to approving, and that $18.4 million items the major addition to what Andrus called the state's unavoidable bills.

To make room for the modest salary hike, the proposal slashes equipment replacement for state agencies and additional cash to cover inflationary increases in operating expenses to barely half the $2.4 million called for by the governor.

Andrus had in effect eliminated new equipment purchases in the current budget, which put additional financial pressures on a number of state programs.

Nearly $4 million more is trimmed from the administration's budget blueprint for extraordinary spending demands like school enrollment increases and other adjustments.

The proposal also saves nearly $2 million by delaying the opening of the women's prison in Pocatello for six months until April 1994 and another $1 million by eliminating new cash to comply with terms of a court settlement on state services for emotionally disabled children.

And it provides a 5 percent increase in state aid to public schools that totals just under $52.9 million and compares with the governor's tax increase-enhanced proposal for $54.9 million.

Jokers tear into pantyhose campaign

NAMPA — State Treasurer Lydia Justice Edwards has been the target of barbs for complaining about defective pantyhose, but she might offer this advice: "Put a sock in it."

Justice Edwards said she has been on the receiving end of innumerable jokes since her appearance on "Donahue" last month. She appeared with consumer advocate Ralph Nader and others with claims of industry-based discrimination. "I am truly offended that so many have seen fit to make a joke out of this," she said. "They just don't seem to understand that this is a problem bigger than hose."

And in the case of pantyhose, she said, women are being cheated by a product with built-in obsolescence.

State likely to appeal patients' release

BLACKFOOT — Two State Hospital South patients with violent histories will be given their freedom, 7th District Magistrate Judge James Martsch has ruled.

Steven Gafford and Kermit Nielson both will be released on March 1, Martsch announced Monday. However, the state has until then to file an appeal.

Lynn Thomas, the state solicitor general, said his office had not seen the ruling. "But in a decision like that we would most certainly appeal." Thomas said the March 1 deadline would give him time to gather information about the decision. However, a stay of execution on the release order may be required until a ruling is reached on the appeal, he said.

Ruling will benefit mortgage holders

BOISE — Up to 10,000 Idaho mortgage holders will receive $769,000 in refunds or lower payments in a multistate real estate escrow accounts case, Attorney General Larry Echo Hawk has announced.

An agreement filed Monday was the result of a consent judgment in a lawsuit filed in federal court in New York.

Fleer Mortgage Corp. and Fleer Real Estate Funding Corp. have agreed to stop overcharging on mortgage escrow accounts of about $150 million for many of their one million mortgage holders in 26 states.

The Fleer entities have one year to recalculate mortgage payments and make refunds to eligible mortgage holders. They signed the agreement without admitting wrongdoing.

The savings could average about $75 per year for Idaho mortgage holders.

Occult overtones darken suicide case

COEUR D'ALENE — The occult overtones of the death of a Coeur d'Alene-area teen-ager has his family and friends questioning police conclusions Cole Davis committed suicide.

Davis, 14, died Oct. 29, 1992, near his home of a bullet wound to the head. Police took three months to close the case. The family has a private investigator looking into whether someone else pulled the trigger. Davis was forced to help.

Forensic tests support the original conclusion the boy committed suicide, Kootenai County Coroner Robert West said.

A black cape at the scene, cryptic notes left and a missing journal suggest his death had some ritualistic significance. Davis' favorite holiday was Halloween and he was involved in the Dragon-Lance role-playing game.

Police end inmates' 14 hours of freedom

WEISER — Two Washington County Jail inmates escaped for 14 hours before being recaptured by police.

Justin Peterson, 21, in jail on a burglary charge, and Trent Swisher, 20, being held for California authorities, left the jail through the basement of the courthouse in Weiser early Sunday morning, a sheriff's dispatcher said. They were recaptured at a nearby home about 9 p.m., the dispatcher said.

Hanford worries Panhandle residents

COEUR D'ALENE — Cataldo, Idaho, is miles away from Washington's Hanford Nuclear Reservation but some residents are worried radioactivity reached them anyway.

Art Norlen lives 150 miles away. But the Swede who has resided in the Cataldo area for more than 40 years is convinced he and his neighbors suffer from radioactive poisoning from Hanford.

Dozens of Cataldo residents have symptoms similar to those suffered in Russia, as well as Hanford "downwinders" in eastern Washington. That includes cancer, blood diseases, chronic fatigue and other afflictions.

Officials investigate deadly Boise blaze

BOISE (AP) — Investigators spent Monday looking for the cause of a fire at a Boise duplex that claimed the lives of an toddler and his younger brother.

Ada County Coroner Erwin Sontenberg said James Tuck, 6 months, was dead at the scene. Nathan Holler, 3, died at St. Luke's Regional Medical Center shortly after Sunday. "We suspect they died from smoke inhalation. We're going to verify that with tests," he said.

Several neighbors said they were unaware of the blaze until flames had engulfed the living room and kitchen of the one-story structure.

Assailant viewed himself as LDS prophet

PROVO, Utah (AP) — A man who threatened a Mormon Church leader with a bogus bomb at Brigham Young University told police he had a vision he was to become the faith's next prophet, a school spokesman said Monday.

Cody Ruby, 27, of Bakersfield, Calif., was jailed after holding what he claimed was a briefcase bomb near Elder Howard W. Hunter during a Sunday night fire-side address at the church-owned university officials said.

Hunter, 85, is president of the church's Council of the Twelve Apostles and next in line to succeed 93-year-old Ezra Taft Benson as head of the 5.5-million-member church. Like all church presidents, Benson is revered as prophet, seer and revelator.

Judy produced a three-page statement and demanded that Hunter read it, but Hunter refused, said BYU officials.

"He said police he'd had a vision eight months ago, that he was to be the next prophet," Harker said. He said Judy is believed to be a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of

On Feb. 1, Ruby was found in his car outside Temple Square in Salt Lake City and told the officers he had left a "present" for church leaders on Temple Square. Officers found a rifle, shotgun and 14 boxes of ammunition, said police Sgt. Don Bell.

The weapons were confiscated, but investigators had no cause to arrest him, Bell said. On Wednesday, Judy asked for the weapons back but was refused.

On Sunday, Hunter had just begun speaking to a crowd of 17,000 at the Marriott Center when a man rushed the stage and brandished what he claimed was a briefcase bomb and detonator.

The crowd began to sing a hymn. "We Thank Thee Oh God, For A Prophet," that and a stream of Mace shot at the assailant by someone in the crowd apparently distracted the man enough to allow a small group of students and Hunter's security guards to tackle him. The men all tumbled from the stage, and Judy was beaten by the crowd, Harker said.

Health care among few job booms

NEW YORK — In this year's recruiting season for college graduates, nurses are hot but aerospace engineers are not.

Companies hope to hire more college graduates this year than in 1992, but only a few fields are expected to benefit, college placement officers say. With many companies restructuring and eliminating jobs, there are fewer openings for job-seekers straight out of school.

Health care is one industry that is hiring, said Dawn Oherman, a Bethlehem, Pa. Jobs also are available in management information systems, for people who teach others how to use computers.

A focus on the environment has created openings for engineers, geologists, biologists, and chemists.

Texas lawyers hold off on abortion vote

BOSTON — American Bar Association delegates from Texas on Monday delayed their bid for a full membership vote on whether the organization should continue to endorse the right to abortion.

Texas state Bar President Harriet Miers said her group decided it will have a better chance of winning approval for a referendum at the ABA's annual convention in August.

The proposal would let the ABA's 370,000 members vote by mail on whether to return to the organization's previous neutral stance on abortion. The policy-making House of Delegates at the ABA's mid-winter meeting had planned to vote on the proposal Monday until the Texas bar withdrew it.

Staff wanted to protect Reagan

WASHINGTON — Ronald Reagan's chief of staff and secretary of state had been prepared to testify that his administration misstated facts about the Iran arms sales to protest the president from impeachment, the Iran Contra prosecutor asserted Monday.

Special Prosecutor Lawrence Walsh suggested in a report to Congress that Attorney General Edwin Meese "was warning the president's advisers that to disclose the president's knowledge" of a 1985 missile shipment to Iran "would expose him to a charge of illegal activity."

If Caspar Weinberger had gone to trial, former White House chief of staff Donald Regan was prepared to testify that he knew it was untrue when Meese stated in a Nov. 2, 1986, White House meeting that the president hadn't known about the Hawk missile shipment, Walsh said in an interim report to Congress.

Dr. Kevoorkian helps another kill self

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. — A multiple sclerosis patient committed what he called "suicide" with Dr. Jack Kevoorkian's help Monday. It was his 12th assisted suicide and third in five days.

Kevoorkian's lawyer denied that the retired pathologist, an advocate of doctor-assisted suicide, is stepping up his pace before a state ban on the practice takes effect March 30.

Elaine Goldbaum, 47, who was legally blind and needed a wheelchair, killed herself in her suburban Detroit apartment by putting on a gas mask and pulling a clip that released carbon monoxide from a tube, said the lawyer, Geoffrey Fieger.

IRS gives break to home work

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service said Monday that it will not apply a new Supreme Court ruling to taxpayers who claimed a deduction for business use of their homes before 1992.

The court, in a Jan. 12 decision, generally upheld the IRS position for determining whether a person's home is the principal place of business.

In making that determination, the court held, a taxpayer must consider the relative importance of activities conducted at each business location and the amount of time spent at each.

The law allows a deduction for certain expenses incurred in using a portion of a home exclusively and regularly as a person's principal place of business. The court case touched only the "principal place of business" test.

The IRS noted that its Publication 587, "Business Use of Your Home," was printed before the court decision. A new edition reflecting the ruling will be printed by the end of February.

However, the agency said that taxpayers who reasonably followed the old advice in Publication 587 in claiming a pre-1992 home office deduction will not be penalized.

GM sues NBC over fiery crash story

The Associated Press

General Motors Corp. sued NBC on Monday, alleging that the "Dateline NBC" program rigged two car-truck crashes to show that 1973-87 GM pickups were prone to fires in side impact crashes.

GM said it was the first time it had ever sued to protect its reputation.

"The 11 million households that viewed the program were never told that NBC used incendiary devices to try and ensure that a fire would erupt, seemingly due to the collision," GM Executive Vice President Larry Pence said.

"NBC acknowledged on its 'Nightly News' program Monday that it used the incendiary devices in the test crash.

The network didn't disclose that factor when it aired the show. Now, it became another factor — a spark from a broken headlight — caused the fire, NBC News President Michael G. Garner said.

The lawsuit was filed in an Indiana state court. GM asked for a jury trial.

The offensive by the world's largest automaker came four days after a jury in Atlanta found GM negligent over the "sidesaddle" fuel tank design of its older pickup truck models.

The jury awarded $105.2 million to the family of a teen-ager killed when the 1985 GMC truck he was driving was smashed in the side and exploded in 1989. GM is appealing the verdict.

Safety groups claim 300 people have died in side impact crashes in which fires resulted. Dozens of lawsuits have been filed, many of them settled out of court by GM.

Using videotape obtained from a fire chief and pictures from other witnesses, GM's Research and Development Safety Analysis, which conducted the Oct. 24 simulation used in the NBC show, attached model rockets to the bottom of a truck that was smashed by a Chevrolet Citation.

Just before impact, there were two plumes of smoke beneath the truck, which he said were the rockets being started by a remote transmitter.

Garner said that while a particular crash might not produce sparks needed to ignite a fire, NBC wanted to illustrate the danger that a gas tank rupture poses if there is some other heat source; and so it attached the rockets. But he said a broken headlamp would start the fire.

"We emphasize that GM does not claim that the sparking devices caused the fire," Garner said in a statement.

"Nothing GM said challenged the conclusion of the experts advising NBC that the fire was caused by the headlamp broken in the collision. Had the fire been caused by the sparking devices or anything else, NBC would have disclosed that fact in its broadcast."

Debit cards prompt concern

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government rules proposed on Monday could protect welfare recipients who use debit cards to draw their benefits, but experts said the regulations might open the way to fraud.

They warned that the proposal could derail more widespread use of "paperless welfare," now used by thousands of welfare recipients from New Mexico to Maryland.

People can use the cards to draw benefits and buy groceries; they save money on check-cashing costs and don't have to worry about their checks being lost or delayed by the mail. But they don't have the same protections against loss of their cards as regular bank customers.

The Federal Reserve Board now wants those protections extended to welfare recipients who receive their benefits electronically.

GUM store shares sold to Russians

MOSCOW (AP)—Russia stepped up the pace Monday of its ambitious plans to shed state-owned companies with sales of shares in the historic GUM department store overlooking Red Square and factories in Volgograd.

Newspaper advertisements for shares in Russia's most famous store attracted investors holding more than 100,000 of the government-issued privatization vouchers, said Yuri Samonov of the GUM board.

But at least some GUM employees were not impressed: Four cleaning ladies on a mid-morning break said they didn't know they could invest their vouchers in GUM, but didn't want to anyway.

"I wouldn't put my voucher in this place. There are plenty of other, better investments," said Konstantin Besosov, a member of a brigade of workers giving GUM a facelift.

The renovation includes cleaning up the creaked-glass storefronts and wrought-iron railings on the three-story building, built a century ago under the czars. If already counts Estece Lauder, Galeries Lafayette, and other foreign companies among its tenants.

The government aims to transfer into private hands this year all small- and medium-sized state-owned enterprises, plus 5,000 large ones. The sales would be the biggest transfer of state-owned property in history.

The government is encouraging citizens to use their vouchers, which have a face value of $17.50 each, to buy shares in the companies. The vouchers aim to promote investment but can be sold for cash, typically at less than face value. Each Russian was issued one voucher.

In Volgograd, a tractor factory, a beer brewery, a margarine producer, and an aluminum enterprise were among the state-owned companies put up for sale in the industrial city's biggest sell-off to date. The tractor factory—the city's biggest—made tanks during World War II.

Aikman leaves game early to catch flight

FORT WORTH, Texas — Super Bowl MVP Troy Aikman said today he slipped out early from the Pro Bowl because he had an early flight to catch from Hawaii to Texas.

Aikman, one of one of three NFC quarterbacks, mysteriously left Aloha Stadium early in the fourth quarter Sunday night, and even NFL Coach George Seifert didn't know why.

"I was on Cloud Nine until I left the game. I didn't realize it was going to be because of the fact that I had," Aikman told KSCS-FM radio station in Fort Worth. Aikman did a weekly call-in program with the station during the season. "The problem was I had an 8 o'clock flight that I had to catch," he said. "And I talked to some of the players. I had failed to tell the coaches that I had an 8 o'clock flight."

Expos make felder Walker team's highest-paid player

MONTREAL — Larry Walker became the Montreal Expos' highest-paid player when he agreed Monday to a $3-million, one-year contract.

The Gold Glove outfielder, who hit .301 with 23 homers and 93 RBIs last season, more than tripled his 1992 salary of $975,000. Walker and the Expos agreed midway between the $3.4 million Walker asked for and the $2.6 million offered by the club.

Bill Walton ripped rebounds off the rim, fired laser-like outlet passes, swatted away opponents' shots and hit cutting teammates with over-the-shoulder no-look passes.

They both left the NBA after the 1987 season and they both were selected to the Basketball Hall of Fame on Monday. Also to be inducted May 10 are NBA stars Walt Bellamy, Dan Issel, Dick McGuire and Calvin Murphy; Soviet Olympic standout Ulyana Semyonova and UCLA and Olympic star Ann Meyers.

Erving, the electric Dr. J, defied the laws of gravity with dramatic dunks that stamped him as a star, first in college at the University of Massachusetts and then in the old American Basketball Association. He was the Michael Jordan of his day, equipped with a dazzling assortment of moves that he brought to the NBA with the Philadelphia 76ers.

Walton, an All-American at UCLA and twice college basketball's Player of the Year, led the Bruins to two national championships and set a Final Four record when he hit 21 of 22 shots against Memphis State in 1973. He later helped Portland and Boston to NBA championships.

"It's very special," said Erving, recalling how he had not been expected to be a star until he grew 3 1/2 inches in college.

"That helped me out a lot. It prohibited me from ever taking anything for granted," Erving said. "It made me have realistic expectations, focus on my studies first, and have a more balanced approach to life and the realization that basketball is a game."

Erving also recalled his coaches and the millions of fans who with my family and friends touched me emotionally and spiritually. With their tears of sorrow... and of joy, I carry a feeling of oneness with them into these hallowed halls."

"I am very surprised," Walton said. "I loved every level of basketball from grade school on. It has been my life and I have had a fabulous time."

Jazz beats Magic with 4th-quarter run; Ewing shines as Knicks outlast 76ers

The Associated Press

SALT-LAKE CITY — Karl Malone had 23 points and 14 rebounds, and Utah used a 13-1 run early in the fourth quarter to beat Orlando 108-96 Monday night.

Jeff Malone scored 22 points and Tyrone Corbin, who made 10-of-12 shots, added 21 for the Jazz. John Stockton finished with 18 points and 15 assists for Utah, which averaged a 101-98 loss to Orlando on Dec. 22.

Shaquille O'Neal, the rookie sensation who broke a backboard support with a dunk Sunday at Phoenix, had 22 points and 11 rebounds for Orlando.

Scott Skiles scored 18 of his 25 points in the first half for the Magic, who were plagued by turnovers. O'Neal committed four of his team's 19 turnovers.

Pro basketball

Trailing by 11 points early in the fourth quarter, the Magic closed to 88-83 on Litterial Green's jumper and Nick Anderson's two foul shots and basket.

But a 13-1 Utah run pushed the Jazz advantage to 17 points with 4:38 to play and Orlando never threatened again.

Leading by six points at halftime, Utah opened the third quarter with two rare baskets by 7-foot-4 center Mark Eaton, who made O'Neal pay for leaving him alone in the lane.

Knicks 120, 76ers 115 OT
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Patrick Ewing scored a season-high 40 points, including 10 in overtime, as the New York Knicks beat Philadelphia 120-115 Monday night for their fifth straight victory.

Ewing made 17 of 30 shots from the field and six of seven at the foul line as the Knicks won for the ninth time in their last 10 games. Ewing's previous high this season was 35 points against Phoenix on Jan. 18.

Bullets 106, Rockets 100
HOUSTON (AP) — Larry Stewart, averaging seven points a game, scored 21 in 24 minutes as Washington beat Houston.

The Rockets, who had won five of their last six games against the Bullets, rallied from an 11-point, fourth quarter deficit to cut it to 104-100 with 13 seconds left. But Curtis Frazier then hit two free throws to seal the victory for Washington.

No clear favorite as A-1 Region III tourney begins

By Larry Hovey
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The certainty about Idaho's Class A-1 boys basketball this spring is that anyone could come out of it with the state title.

There isn't a dominating team. In fact, although a few have had some four to seven-game streaks — only to drop a couple straight when that was over.

"There's no doubt, someone could steal a state championship this year," agrees Twin Falls Coach Ben Allen. And his Bruins' chances are good with the exception that Twin Falls' history in the Region III since 1985 has been horrible: Highland and Pocatello have consistently sent Twin Falls and Minico home early.

Burley sneaked away with some top honors a couple of years ago but by and large, the old fourth district has been pretty picked on by the two Pocatello schools.

And that's exactly how it lines out for tonight's regional openers. Twin Falls will entertain Pocatello, a team it defeated twice during the season, while No. 1-seeded Highland will play host to the Minico Spartans.

The championship semifinals and first loser bracket game will be played Thursday night at the home of the higher seed.

What that means is, Highland, having won all six regular season games, will be home anytime it plays due to a convoluted theory held by three of the participating schools that everything is fair. At least that's how they voted. Twin Falls will be hosts for any game it plays against Pocatello and Minico. Pocatello would have home call on the Spartans, who, obviously, never get home.

Allen has a problem opening with Pocatello.

"I know we've beaten them twice but in my mind I have the idea that Pocatello's starting five might be as good or better than any school in the state," he said. "They have excellent athletes and with Cory Ioane one of the best, if not the best, A-1 player in Idaho, beating them three times is a tall order."

The other part that worries Allen is which Twin Falls team will show up. "When we're focused, intense and ready, we're a pretty good club. But like the other A-1 teams in the state, if we're down a little emotionally or mentally, we are vulnerable," Allen said. He added he didn't feel his Bruins showed much clan in their last couple of outings.

Dolphin runs into trouble

The Associated Press

ALABASTER, Ala. — Miami Dolphins running back Bobby Humphrey, arrested last week in Georgia on a cocaine possession charge, was not just above the knee Monday during an apparent argument in his car.

Humphrey, 26, was released from a hospital after treatment for the wound, which relatives said would not threaten his career. But the shooting came days after Humphrey's arrest in Georgia, raising a cloud over his professional future.

Humphrey played at Alabama, where he is the Crimson Tide's all-time leading rusher.

Alabaster police said Mark Petties, a former teammate of Humphrey at Alabama, was released after Humphrey declined to press charges in the shooting. Petties said he acted in self-defense.

The bullet came from a .38-caliber pistol, officers said.

Humphrey was arrested Jan. 31 at Columbus, Ga., on charges that included possession of cocaine.

Dolphins executives expressed concern about Humphrey and said they were keeping in touch with authorities in Alabama and Georgia while reviewing the two incidents thoroughly.

"We were distressed to learn of Bobby's shooting and our foremost concern was for all of our players, is for his overall health and welfare," said a statement from Dolphins president Tim Robbie and two team vice presidents.

They said the Dolphins will "do everything possible to assure that Bobby receives the assistance he requires."

Bobcats win; Indians fall to Jerome

By Jeff Hoskinson
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Burley Bobcats started down the road to a three-peat in convincing fashion and the Jerome Tigers put themselves into a position to play the spoiler Monday night in the opening round of the District 4, Class A-2 boys basketball tournament at the College of Southern Idaho.

A-2 tournament

The Bobcats opened the evening with an easy 80-39 win over the Wood River Wolves. The Tigers meanwhile had to fight to the end to take a 60-52 win from the Buhl Indians.

"I was a little concerned going in," Bobcats Coach Bill Covell said. "This team has no experience playing in the district tournament."

Tonight, the Wolverines will face the Indians in a loser out game at 6:16 p.m. with the Bobcats and Tigers squaring off at 8 p.m.

The Bobcats showed little sign of any inexperience in the first quarter. Chad Clark, who had 18 points on the night, got things going, bombing four three-pointers in the first eight minutes. Tom Ruffell and Bob Plotts each added two field goals and the Bobcats were off.

By the end of the first quarter, Burley held a 21-7 lead.

They extended that to 53-21 at intermission, thanks to 60 percent first half free-throw shooting.

Consistency through all four quarters

Minico's task is simply to contain the athleticism of Highland, which is more than augmented by excellent outside shooters.

Highland shows a great ability to get out on the gates fast. In both games against Twin Falls the Rams ran up double digit leads in the first quarter. The Bruins were able to get back into overtime at home but in Pocatello the Rams just kept going.

Minico has been improving under first-year coach Gordon Kerbs. Those 20-point defeats of December are turning into close games in February.

The Spartans might have a little surprise for the Rams since the teams haven't played since Dec. 29. Minico has come a mile since then and if Highland relaxes a little and the Spartans can stay away from those four and five-minute scoring hula, it could be interesting.

On child sex abuse front, hope glimmers faintly

The news from the child sexual abuse front has been good for a change:

Item 1: Twin Falls County Prosecuting Attorney G. Richard Bevan won his first child abuse conviction Saturday.

The victory was doubly significant—first because Bevan promised in last year's campaign to make child-abuse prosecution a priority, and second because the case was the first felony trial of Bevan's career.

The fact that Bevan's first conviction was in a child abuse case sends a symbolic message to the community. It suggests he takes that campaign promise seriously.

Of course, we mustn't read too much into the symbolism. It was only one case, and defendant Douglas D. Roberts of Kimberly is only one of many child abusers deserving justice's attention. But it's an encouraging start.

Item 2: Idaho Attorney General Larry Echoluk came to town last week to promote his new Child Abuse Resource Team. The idea shows promise of excellent results.

Echoluk's team offers local prosecutors the services of law enforcement, veterans and a former prosecutor, all experienced in bringing abusers to justice. They teach and advise local prosecutors about handling these tough and complicated cases.

We're delighted that Echoluk chose the Magic Valley as the site to try out his idea. People in this valley have become deeply concerned about child abusers escaping punishment—especially in Twin Falls County, which has developed an unhappy reputation as a safe haven for molesters.

Item 3: Thomas G. Phillips of Twin Falls may be on his way to prison at last. Cross your fingers.

Remember, Phillips? When we published a four-day series on Twin Falls County's sex abusers last month, Phillips was a central player. A chronic sexual predator, he has sometimes posed as a federal investigator to trick or coerce young women into having sex with him.

He was convicted in 1991 of molesting a 12-year-old girl. Three women testified at his trial that he had molested them when they were young. And since then, evidence has appeared suggesting he also molested his teen-age daughter, who hanged herself a week before his trial.

Despite all this, Phillips has never been to jail. He avoided prosecution for most of his deeds, and after his 1991 conviction he was freed on appeal.

Last week the Idaho Supreme Court upheld Phillips' conviction; unless a federal court agrees to become involved, 5th District Judge Daniel Mechl finally can give Phillips his punishment.

(Message to Mechl: We understand you prefer to give sex offenders psychological treatment instead of prison terms, but some of these guys deserve hard time. Slam-dunk this guy—Your Honor.)

These three events are pleasing to hear, but they do not constitute a solution, or even a trend. At most they are hopeful omens of change. It falls to prosecutors, police, social workers and judges to bring that change about.

The rest of us have a role to play too, reminding those officials occasionally that we care, and that we are watching.

Don't simplify rights issues

I read your editorial entitled "Don't help moralizers bring turmoil to Idaho." While I challenge some of the observations.

The piece stated, "On one side are gays and their liberal allies, pushing the agenda of expanded rights. On the other side is an emerging subgroup of conservatives." It is not as "black and white" as your editorial makes it out.

Earth Tribe Inc. is not a radical or liberal (left-wing) group. The group is non-political and seeks to be non-confrontational, but we are for human rights. It is dedicated to the constitutional guarantee of equal rights for all people. It is dedicated to excellent human relations that promote love, tolerance and respect for all human beings, while working to eliminate hate, prejudice and bigotry.

What's happening is not an issue of "special rights." It is an issue of "equal" rights and tolerance. It is an issue of standing up against hate and bigotry. And let's not forget there are other human relations areas besides the homosexual one that need our careful attention.

Let's not put those on the back burner. All areas of human relations are "equal" in importance.

If anyone is trying to turn the homosexual issues into a "cultural donnybrook," it could very well be the media.

An example is that the balance of reporting seems to be in favor of Kelly Walton and his ICA. Kelly Walton and ICA continue to get front-page coverage, with the bulk of content in the story also going his way, as if the human rights activists are contacted for a comment as an afterthought or some kind of lame attempt at "providing the other side of the story." Except for one reporter from a local television station, not one member of the media has contacted me (Earth Tribe) for a "comment."

Any coverage Earth Tribe has received has resulted from media release being sent to the media.

Meanwhile, inflammatory editorials like yours seem to turn issues like the homosexual one into an "us against them" fiasco, when it is actually an issue of equal rights vs. classism and the discrimination of classes of people.

Earth Tribe Inc. agrees the best thing Idaho voters can do is to refuse to sign the Idaho Citizens' Alliance petition.

If anyone really wants to defend some real family values, I hope those will be love, tolerance and respect for everyone.

Track down our 911 money

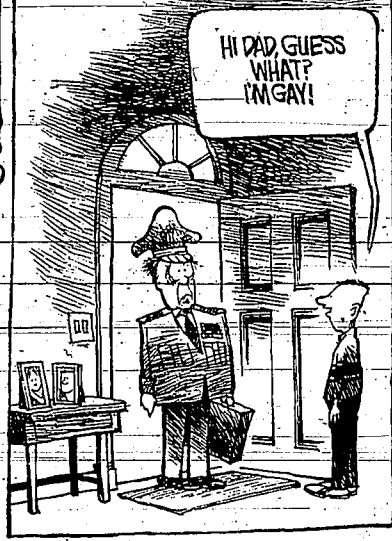

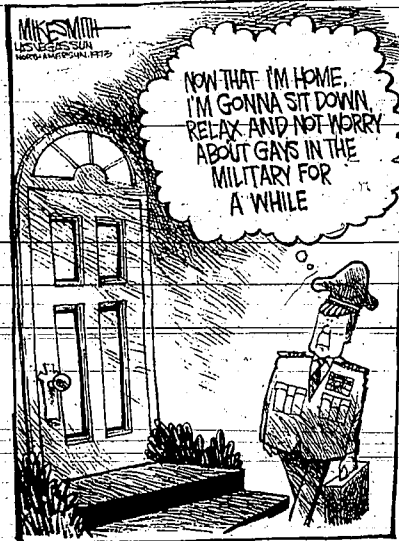

In the 1990 general election, the voters decided we needed a 911 system. Now we are into February 1993 and what do we have?

For more than two years, every person who pays a phone bill each month has been paying $1 into a Twin Falls County fund for 911. To this date, we do not have a 911 program, so don't you think it's time the county commissioners give us an accounting of what's happening to the money?

I think the media has a responsibility to investigate this and report to the public how much money has been collected these past months and, even more important, what disbursements have been made and to whom.

Remember, this concerns everyone who pays a telephone bill—not just the taxpayers.

E-911 plan concerns Twin Falls chief

Paul DuFresne Reader comment

During the past few months, considerable attention has been paid to the delays in our regional E-911 project. Last week, it was reported that some of the delay was due to concerns by area emergency service providers who felt uncomfortable with the proposed plan.

I am one of those who has had concerns, and I have presented them whenever I was asked and sometimes when I wasn't.

I have worked for more than three years to try to improve the emergency services for the city of Twin Falls, and I do support the establishment of an enhanced 911 system for our community. It will save time and lives during fire, police and medical service emergencies.

By the efforts of many members of this community and people in the other counties of the region, we were able to get the strong support from the voters to provide tax dollars to make this improvement to our emergency services. During the campaign to pass this tax, we began to discuss the possibility of some consolidation of services that could also improve their quality.

It was clear to those of us in this process that improvements and consolidation would be limited by what our current resources and the new tax would pay for.

It seems that this limiting factor has been forgotten in the planning for a regional E-911 dispatch center. This is one of the concerns that I have as a service provider.

As the plan is now presented, it would require each of the current dispatch agencies to maintain at least one qualified person in place to back up the single center and to handle day-to-day, after-hours, walk-in traffic. If the center has a fire, major power outage, iron lock or any number of other unforeseen emergencies, the plan calls for the E-911 and other calls to be sent to the current dispatch sites.

With seven dispatch sites in the region, this means at least seven stand-by positions. With vacation, training and other leave, it could take around 24 full-time people to staff these seven positions. Perhaps even more.

With the demand for personnel budgets to staff the center itself, this will simply not be affordable. Yet, it is the only backup that the plan provides for.

The plan also calls for a minimum staffing level of two dispatchers. Given just the call load and experience of the staff at our dispatch center, this seems to be too few to do the job, even during the lowest call-load periods. Should this be the case and additional staff is needed, then even more funding will be required.

Underestimating the real service need and failing to take into account the cost to maintain someone at each current site has me concerned about the financial viability of this plan.

But there are other issues that have added to my lack of confidence in the plan. It addresses the phone system and routing for E-911 calls in what would seem to be a very comprehensive and workable way. As the plan goes into other critical areas of dispatch and communication service, it lacks this degree of technical expertise.

The plan was developed without the benefit of first-hand experience or specific technical training and education in a number of critical areas. They include the design and implementation of multi-user radio communications systems, computer applications in emergency service systems, the management and administration of emergency communication functions and, most importantly, experience in critical incident management.

The plan calls for a director to manage and provide these elements, and the education, training and experience to do so successfully do not seem to be present.

As presented, the plan places immediate operational command and control in the hands of the center. The first critical period of an incident must be managed by those who have access to communications. Whether it is a major fire in Shoshone, a search and rescue operation in Gooding, a multi-car accident with injuries on Highway 93 or a hostage situation in Twin Falls, incident commanders and administrators will be more isolated from their communications command and control and dependent on the judgment of the person providing service.

The reality of this project is that the Joint Powers Board, made up of one commissioner from each of the region's counties and now a member of the Twin Falls City Council has the authority and responsibility to plan for and then execute the E-911 system to serve our communities. They have a plan currently before them that some of the members of the emergency service community lack confidence in.

The issues that I have raised all others that may come from other agencies in the region are real, valid and should be heard and addressed. I do not ask these questions to obstruct the project, as I have worked very hard to see that funding for E-911 became a reality and wish to see the system in place.

When the board feels that it has a plan that both meets the service needs of our region and is affordable, I support the effort to reach this point.

I also understand the board's need to have a qualified review of the plans that are presented to them. The issues are technical and do require a high degree of expertise on the part of those who advise the board on its decisions.

But for any plan and the system that it follows to be successful, the confidence of the emergency services providers in our region is critical.

A few tips to prevent burns

Each year, Shriners donate a concerted effort to bring a strong message to the public in order to reduce the injury of burns, especially to children, by spelling out during Awareness Week the ways burns can be prevented.

This year, the Awareness Week is Feb. 7 to 13. The Shriners of El Korah Temple are providing information by several different means to reduce burns to children. During the past school year, Noble Wayne Mohr of Buhl made nearly 500 visits to schools in southern Idaho in an effort to help reduce injuries to children.

In the United States, a burn injury occurs every 15 seconds, and almost 20 people die daily from burns. Approximately 1 million people require medical treatment for burn injuries, and one out of three of those victims are children. The United States has the worst burn problem of any industrialized nation. Studies show that 75 percent of all burns are preventable.

The Shrine offers the tips to help you and your family stay safe from burns:

• It takes only six seconds to receive a serious scald if your hot water heater is set at 140 degrees. Keep your hot water heater set no higher than 130 degrees. Always check the water before placing your child in the bathtub.

• When cooking, keep your children away from hot surfaces, hot liquids and other kitchen hazards. Keep pan handles turned inward so they cannot be reached by a toddler.

• Keep your children a safe distance from open fireplaces and open flame heaters.

• Develop a home fire escape plan and have the whole family practice getting out of the house through various exits.

• Install smoke detectors and change batteries at least once a year. The smoke detectors should be installed near the bedroom area, in hallways, the garage area and in any room which has a fireplace.

• Three Shriners' Hospitals for Crippled Children provide orthopedic and burn care free of charge to children under 18 years of age. The hospitals are maintained by Shriners membership.

Holiday plans go awry

Fat, dumb and happy? That was me. I had it all figured out in my mind. I'd take my wife out for dinner and a drink at a special place (for us) in Twin Falls for Valentine's Day. I'd planned ahead and was feeling pretty smug until this morning when my wife happened to look at the calendar and said, "Oh, Valentine's Day is on Sunday this year."

Start-over again; maybe drive 100 miles to Boise or Sun Valley for a comparable restaurant where we can have a drink with our meal.

Or, maybe I'll get her a box of chocolates and we'll stay home and watch TV.

Next year, it'll be on Monday; we'll just wait.

GOP: No property tax relief in sight

By Drew Silver
Times-News writer

BOISE — After Richard J. Daley won his first election as mayor of Chicago, one veteran alderman remarked that "Chicago ain't ready for relief yet."

On Monday, the Republican leadership of the state House and Senate all but admitted that the Idaho Legislature ain't ready for property tax relief yet.

After last year's elections, lawmakers agreed that despite voter rejection of the 1 Percent Initiative, providing some form of property tax relief would be high on the 1993 Legislature's agenda.

But in a morning meeting with reporters, Senate President Pro Tem Jerry Twigg said he made it clear to GOP senators that there won't be enough money in the state's General Fund to reduce property taxes without raising other taxes.

"If there's going to be any relief, it's going to have to be a shift," Twigg said. "Blackfoot Republican, said."

But Twigg, House Speaker Mike Simpson and other GOP leaders agreed that there was no consensus, and little enthusiasm, for raising sales or income taxes to pay for lowering property taxes.

"There may not be property tax relief this year," said Simpson, a Blackfoot Republican.

Nearly a month after Gov. Cecil Andrus unveiled his own ambitious plan to restructure Idaho's tax system, the Republican-controlled Legislature has yet to consider his proposals in detail or come up with an alternative.

Just about everyone involved in setting tax policy for the state agrees that the only way cities, counties and other local taxing districts can lower their levies is for some expenses — such as school maintenance and operations or local courts — to be shifted off the property tax and onto a broad-based state tax.

Trouble is, no one can agree where the shift should be, and most legislators would prefer not to raise any taxes at all.

If they hold out, they will be stuck with Andrus' projected 1993-94 revenues of $1.08 billion.

That may seem like a lot — a 6.3 percent increase over the current fiscal year's estimated revenues — but it won't be enough to pay for education enhancements, raises and retirement benefits for state employees.

Idaho Department of Co. relations, the medically needy program, and the host of other worthy causes lawmakers have trouble saying "no" to.

Also, the state's Permanent Building Fund is nearly tapped out, while $200-million-in construction projects — including the College of Southern Idaho's oft-delayed new library building — sit on architects' drawing boards.

Something will have to give.

Bill allows for sales tax to finance landfill

BOISE — A bill allowing local option countywide sales tax to finance landfill operations has been introduced in the Idaho Legislature.

But some members of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee opposed it and even the sponsor, Rep. Jim Kempton, R-Albion, said Monday he didn't like it. Kempton said he presented the measure at the request of state Treasurer Lydia Justice Edwards.

The bill would allow counties to impose a countywide sales tax, subject to voter approval. If 20 percent of those who voted for the tax sign petitions to stop it, a repeat election would be held.

The bill doesn't specify an amount but says any question submitted to voters for approval must state the exact tax rate, duration and purpose for which the tax is being collected.

Mayor Adair declares threat to airport after well goes dry

GOODING — Gooding Mayor David Adair declared an "imminent threat" at the city's airport Monday after a 350-foot well went dry over the weekend.

The imminent-threat declaration won't mean a slowdown in regular airport business, but will allow the city to apply for emergency funds from the Idaho Water Resource Board, which in turn plans to solicit money from the Bureau of Reclamation, Adair said.

Two businesses, High Range Aviation and Thomas Helicopters, operate from the airport. Adair said those businesses have begun hauling water in 50-gallon drums for toilet facilities at their operation sites. But a federal General Services Administration hangar project begun in January has been delayed by the water shortage.

Adair said the airport well is one of more than a dozen wells in the immediate area that have dried up this year. The airport well was originally 190 feet deep, but was drilled to 350 feet in 1991.

Adair said emergency funds would be used to drill a new, 16-inch, 550-foot well for the airport. The new well would also meet fire flow requirements for the airport.

State Senate approves bill having sex offenders register

BOISE — Convicted sex offenders would have to register with their county sheriffs under a bill unanimously approved by the Idaho State Monday.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Roger Madsen, R-Boise, would apply to people convicted of rape, sexual abuse, battery or exploitation of a child, ritualized abuse of a child, lewd conduct with a minor child, committing an infamous crime of a violent nature, forcible abduction, penetration by use of a foreign object, or possession of sexually exploitative material for other than a commercial purpose.

They would have to provide identifying information, including their address, birthdate, Social Security number and photograph, to the sheriff within five days of moving into a county.

The sheriff would forward the information to the Idaho Department of Law Enforcement in Boise, which would compile the records from all the counties into a statewide database of convicted sex offenders.

Madsen said requiring offenders to register would be both a deterrent and a law-enforcement aid.

No one spoke against the bill, which now goes to the state House.

Boy claims he was beaten by 3 others in rest room

TWIN FALLS — A 15-year-old Twin Falls boy told police that he was beaten Friday night by three teen-age boys in the rest room of a local bowling alley.

Ben Ragains said he was attacked by three boys while in the rest room at the Bowladrome at about 9 p.m.

Three of Ragains' teeth were knocked loose or completely out and had to be receded, according to a dentist's statement included in the police report.

The dispute apparently began at the nearby Twin Cinema, where Ragains and three friends were watching a movie.

They heard someone laughing behind them and turned around to look when they saw the three boys who later beat him. Police caught at least two of the suspects later Friday evening, according to a witness statement in the police report.

King Videocable raises most subscribers' prices

By Phil Sahn
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — King Videocable's seven subscribers to basic service cable television will pay less starting March 1.

They also will get six fewer channels for their money.

Most other viewers will pay $1.30 more a month to receive the same number of channels they now get, according to company General Manager Vince Thompson.

The readjustment stems from the Cable Television Consumer Protection and Competition Act of 1992, Thompson told the City Council on Monday afternoon.

Cost of basic service will drop from $17.15 to $14 a month, but the number of channels in the service will drop from 18 to 12. Because of the Act, King Videocable must restructure its stations, meaning six will be dropped from basic service, Thompson said.

Basic-plus service, which most customers subscribe to, will increase from $3.10 a month to $7.50. Customers who like basic and basic-plus services will pay $1.30 more a month, he said.

"This is the only increase we have budgeted for 1993," Thompson said.

Among the basic-service stations that will be moved to basic-plus are Music Television (MTV) and CNN Headline News. C-Span, the station that broadcasts the actions of Congress, will remain in the basic service, Thompson said.

"King Videocable is committed to providing the government channel," he said. As of Monday that the company had seven subscribers to basic services, with six others signed up to start it, he said.

After listening to Thompson, the council switched channels to Public Safety Director Paul Du Fresno, and the police department's plan to change the police reporting system.

Police officers now write reports of incidents and a records secretary types them into a computer, or the officers type it themselves. But this ties up the officers when they could better serve the city, out on the street, Du Fresno said.

So the department is considering changing to a dictation method of reporting in which officers could use a telephone or radio to call in a report. The report would be recorded with a hard drive on a computer or be digitally entered into a computer from the call.

A worker then would transcribe the report, thus saving the police officers' time, Du Fresno said.

The department might hire a full-time worker to transcribe the reports. Councilman Jim Vickers suggested that this person also could work as a receptionist for walk-in traffic to the police station when the enhanced 911 system comes on line.

Cost of switching to the dictation system is estimated at $9,870 with $746 in annual maintenance.

The worker who transcribes the reports would earn approximately $22,000 a year in salary and benefits. But this person would replace a sergeant who left the department in 1992.

The sergeant made approximately $12,000 a year more in salary and benefits than the secretary would make, according to department estimates.

Accidental shooting lands Jerome man in hospital

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A 19-year-old Jerome man was seriously wounded in an accidental shooting at his home Monday afternoon.

Michael Paul Jones, 515 West B Street, was being treated in the emergency room at St. Luke's Regional Medical Center in Boise Monday night.

An ambulance was called to Jones' home at 3:47 p.m. Monday, and emergency crews found him lying unconscious on the kitchen floor.

A slug from a .45-caliber revolver entered under Jones' left arm and was lodged in his back near the spine, the officer said.

Two of the victim's friends were in the house when police arrived, and one of them accidentally fired the shot, Jones said.

Investigators were still trying to determine which of the two actually fired the shot, but they confirmed that the shot was accidental, Jones said.

"They were playing around," the officer said.

After being shot, Jones stood up and walked into the kitchen, the officer said. When he bent over, the wound began to bleed heavily and Jones collapsed on the floor.

One of his friends had covered the wound and was trying to control the bleeding when help arrived.

"There was quite a bit of blood on the kitchen floor," Officer Jones said.

A medical team worked to stabilize Jones' condition at St. Benedict's Family Medical Center in Jerome before he was flown to St. Luke's.

Jones remained unconscious the entire time, although he appeared to mumble something as he was loaded into the helicopter, the officer said.

"I just hope this one doesn't turn out like the one in Cassia County," Jones said.

A 24-year-old Burley woman died Sunday after being accidentally shot while hunting near Almo.

Would-be renters flood Fawnbrook with calls

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — The company that manages the apartment complex for low- and moderate-income renters that is rising on Twin Falls' north end has received dozens of inquiries since it began taking applications Friday morning.

"Friday we must have had 20 calls," said Thomas Brenneke, property manager for the Fawnbrook Apartments, in a telephone interview Monday from Portland, Ore. "I haven't counted them today, but we've gotten a lot more."

"We had 25 applications packets, and they're gone," said Maya Hahn, field office supervisor for the Twin Falls office of the Idaho Housing Agency. "We've ordered more, but the calls keep coming."

Brenneke works for Guardian Management Corp., which will run the 96-unit complex for its developer, Pacific Housing Association. The project, which is scheduled to open in late April, is located off Pole Line Road, just west of the Target store.

It's the first major development of low- and moderate-income rental housing in Twin Falls in a decade, and it will open in a real estate market where the vacancy rate for rentals is between 1½ and 2 percent, according to local property managers.

Guardian Management is taking requests for applications through a voice-mail telephone number. Callers who leave a message at 734-1600 will receive an application packet in the mail, Brenneke expected a big response," he said. "We knew demand was good, but we didn't know how good."

Rents will range from $290 a month for a one-bedroom apartment, $350 for a two-bedroom to $400 for a three-bedroom. To be eligible, renters must earn no more than $12,390 for one person to $20,532 for a six-person household.

Trimester system hit at Oakley

By Moses Garcia
Mini-Cassia News Service

BURLEY — Oakley High School seniors are going to school more this year, and they like the idea.

That's what several seniors told Cassia County School Board members Monday when they visited Oakley to evaluate the school's new trimester program.

The trustees were pleasantly surprised to find students enthusiastic about the new program, which allows for a longer school year.

Seniors responded to the board's questions with comments such as, "The trimester made school more exciting" and "Less class loads, allowed for less homework."

Board members did note that some students were having difficulty adjusting to the longer class periods as a result of fewer classes held during the day.

In other business, the trustees said they wanted public and teacher comment on a proposal to have each elementary school's enrollment limited to two grades, rather than the traditional concept of each grades school having grades 1-6.

Ostler appoints new police chief

By HR Weixel
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — Jerome Mayor Gerald Ostler, who last month declined to break a deadlock by the City Council and choose a chief of police, will appoint one today.

"I don't have a unanimous (council) approval of my selection, but enough, so I'm going to make my appointment," Ostler said Monday night after he and council members interviewed three finalists for the job.

They are James Dahl of Huntington Beach, Calif.; Patrick Bermingham of Kimberly and Kent Heady of Wilder. A fourth finalist, Hal Dunn of Elko, Nev., withdrew before the interviews.

Dahl and Bermingham each got two votes from council members on Jan. 4, but Ostler refused to break the tie and the city reopened the application process, eventually attracting 11 candidates.

The council will vote on the mayor's appointment at its next meeting on Feb. 16.

The new chief will succeed George Silver II, who was elected Jerome County sheriff in November.

BLM says 'no' to mining decorative rock

By Michael Hoffner
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — The Bureau of Land Management has denied a Boise company's application to mine decorative lava rock from a dry channel of the Big Wood River north of Shoshone. International Stone Inc. sought permission to remove up to 200 tons of the water-sculpted lava from a section of the streambed dubbed by the BLM as "Fossil River" for its unique rock formations. An environmental assessment released by the agency in December had recommended rejecting the application. The BLM described the channel as "a great natural wonder" deserving protection.

"It is the bureau's responsibility to protect areas that have special public values such as the water-carved rock formations found in portions of the Big Wood River," said Mary Gaylord, BLM's Shoshone District manager. "We want to protect these values for the benefit of the public," she said. The 12-mile stretch of riverbed the BLM wants to protect was carved by the icy waters of an ancient river, according to BLM geologists Terry Maley and Peter Oberlander. In their field report on Fossil River they described the channel as "a deep and narrow canyon filled with a myriad of soft sculpted forms." Many of the water-worn boulders look like abstract sculptures, they reported. "Although some resemble animals and some have the shape of recognizable objects such as donuts, they are all unique."

In 1992, the Shoshone District initiated a "minerals withdrawal" on the Fossil River stretch which would close the area to mining "silently." But before the withdrawal was completed last summer International Stone had staked 14 claims along the channel. The BLM now plans to contest those claims to prevent any mining alteration in the river channel, according to Gaylord. Chris Katsanos, general manager of International Stone, declined to comment on the denial of his firm's minerals sale application or the threatened challenge to its claims. "At this point in time our attorneys are studying the situation and we'll make our response to the BLM," he said. International Stone has 30 days in which to appeal the Shoshone District's decision on the minerals sale to the BLM's Board of Land Appeals. Contesting the mining claims will likely occur in federal court. The precedent for invalidating a BLM mining claim because the mineral to be mined was part of a "great natural wonder" dates back to 1900 when the South Dakota Mining Co. lost its claim to mine staurolite, stigmatites and gemstones from a cave located on public lands.

Weyyakin requests to be part of Sun Valley

By Stephen Schowengerdt

services the city feels it will have to provide once the project is completed.

SUN VALLEY — The Weyyakin Home Owners Association, a Ketchum annexation target, wants to become part of Sun Valley instead.

An emergency meeting of the Sun Valley City Council was held Monday morning to deal with the request from property owners in the subdivision south of Ketchum and to instruct the city's Planning and Zoning Commission to prepare to take public comment on the request. That meeting is scheduled for Feb. 26 at 9 a.m. in Sun Valley City Hall.

According to Weyyakin board member Susan Carter, property owners were polled last week on the annexation question and they indicated a strong desire to join Sun Valley. The Weyyakin board conferred after the poll and then instructed Carter to inform Sun Valley City of their desire to be annexed. Weyyakin is one of five parcels targeted for annexation by Ketchum in a move to surround Sun Valley Co.'s River Run area.

The Sun Valley Co. has proposed a $10 million expansion project for River Run that is now before the Blaine County Planning and Zoning Commission. Ketchum would like to see the River Run land-annexed to the city some day because of increased Weyyakin Home Owners Association President R.G. Reeder told the Ketchum City Council on Jan. 28 that the city has too many problems to be attractive to them right now.

"We think it is reasonable that you get your house in order for people that live now in Ketchum before" further annexation consideration," he said.

"Our annexation process is still proceeding," said Ketchum City Administrator Jim Jaquet. "We are still working on an annexation agreement with the Idaho Foundation for Parks and Land (owners of Reinheimer Ranch) and talking to Robert Smelick, who is a landowner in Weyyakin."

The Reinheimer-Ranch parcel is the key to Ketchum's annexation plan. It separates Ketchum on its southern border from Weyyakin Subdivision, Mortgage Row and Kendall Properties, Sun Valley Camping Resort and Gas Company Right-of-Way, plus the Pothier and South Blady Estates Subdivisions.

Smelick owns about five acres of undeveloped property in Weyyakin subdivision that has already been approved for 19 units by the county, Ketchum and Sun Valley City.

Ketchum's public hearings on their annexation plans continue Feb. 17.

2 face felony drug charges after raid
TWIN FALLS — Two Boise-area residents appeared in Magistrate Court Monday to face felony drug charges stemming from a Friday afternoon raid.

Tommy Huerta, 25, is being held in lieu of $150,000 bond while he waits for a Feb. 19 preliminary hearing on seven felony counts.

Huerta is charged with delivery of a controlled substance, two counts of possession of a controlled substance, delivery of a controlled substance when children are present, and three drug tax stamp violations.

His common-law wife, Maria R. Lopez-Chavez, 31, was released on her own recognizance after being charged with aiding and abetting possession of a controlled substance and aiding and abetting possession of marijuana.

Vandals damage several vehicles
TWIN FALLS — Vandals damaged several vehicles parked across the street from the United Methodist Church in Twin Falls Saturday night.

Nine radio antennas were bent and another was broken, and the windshield wipers on two vehicles were broken on Fourth Avenue East near Shoshone Street, according to a Twin Falls police report.

A man living on nearby Fifth Avenue North reported similar vandalism to this vehicle. There were no suspects, according to a police report.

Backyard clothesline thief should be pressed into irons

DEAR ABBY: Put me at the top of the list of those who never thought they'd be writing a Dear Abby letter, but your response to the person whose clothes were constantly being stolen off the clothesline in her back yard was so far off base, I had to write.

BLM says 'no' to mining decorative rock

By Michael Hofferber
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — The Bureau of Land Management has denied a Boise company's application to mine decorative lava rock from a dry channel of the Big Wood River north of Shoshone.

International Stone Inc. sought permission to remove up to 200 tons of the water-sculpted lava from a section of the streambed dubbed by the BLM as "Fossil River" for its unusual rock formations.

An environmental assessment released by the agency in December had recommended rejecting the application.

The BLM described the channel as "a great natural wonder" deserving protection.

"It is the bureau's responsibility to protect areas that have special public values, such as the water-carved rock forms found in portions of the Big Wood River," said Mary Gaylord, BLM's Shoshone District manager.

"We want to protect these values for the benefit of the public," she said.

The 12-mile stretch of riverbed the BLM wants to protect was carved by the icy waters of an ancient river.

according to BLM geologists Terry Malley and Peter Oberlindecker, in their field report on Fossil River they described the channel as "a deep and narrow canyon filled with a myriad of soft-sculpted forms."

Many of the water-worn boulders look like abstract sculptures, they reported.

"Although some resemble animals and some have the shape of recognizable objects such as donuts, no two are alike. Each one is unique."

Weyyakin requests to be part of Sun Valley

By Stephen Schwengert
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — The Weyyakin Home Owners Association and Ketchum annexation target wants to become part of Sun Valley instead.

An emergency meeting of the Sun Valley City Council was held Monday morning to deal with the request from property owners in the subdivision south of Ketchum and to instruct the city's Planning and Zoning Commission to prepare to take public comment on the request.

services the city feels it will have to provide once the project is completed.

Weyyakin Home Owners Association President R.G. Reeder told the Ketchum City Council on Jan. 28 that the city has too many problems to be attractive to them right now.

"We think it is reasonable that you get your house in order for the people that live now in Ketchum before a further annexation consideration," he said.

"That meeting is scheduled for Feb. 26 at 9 a.m. in Sun Valley City Hall."

According to Weyyakin board member Susan Carver, property owners were polled last week on the annexation question and they indicated a strong desire to join Sun Valley.

The Weyyakin board conferred after the poll and then instructed Carver to inform Sun Valley City of their desire to be annexed.

Weyyakin is one of five parcels targeted for annexation by Ketchum in a move to surround Sun Valley Co.'s River Run area.

The "Sun Valley" Co. has proposed a $10-million expansion project for River Run that is now before the Blaine County Planning and Zoning Commission.

Ketchum would like to see the River Run land annexed into the city some day because of increased undeveloped property in Weyyakin subdivision that has already been approved for 19 units by the county, Ketchum and Sun Valley City.

Ketchum's public hearings on their annexation plans continue Feb. 17.

Fino trial testimony focuses on unknown 2nd suspect

By Eric Goodell
Mini-Cassia News Service

RUPERT — An unknown second suspect — a running man with long, brown hair — was a prominent figure in the first day's testimony in the Jerry Fino murder trial.

Nine witnesses testified Monday. The four who spent the most time on the stand all had been near the Ripert Ace Hardware store at about 10 a.m. April 13, when Randy Walker was killed at his pawnshop across the street.

Fino, an 18-year-old Rupert Hispanic charged with first-degree murder, is a black hair. Some of the witnesses said they saw a brown-haired, Caucasian man at the scene, though there were discrepancies as to where he ran when he left the pawnshop.

Doris Hoch said she went to the hardware store that morning to buy a ball. Her father, pickup's license plate. While attaching the ball, she heard a scream, she said.

"Looking up, she said she saw a man chasing a woman, customer Beulah Knutsen, near the door of the pawnshop. Knutsen was able to get inside her car parked in front of her store.

Her attacker, described as a Caucasian with long, dark brown hair, started to run back toward the pawnshop, then changed directions and ran back toward B Street east of the pawnshop, she said.

Hoch also said she saw Walker come out of the pawnshop, his shirt covered with blood, and fall near the pawnshop entrance. She was the first person to come to Walker's aid, she said.

"He said 'help me,' and groaned," she said. Walker was taken to Minidoka Memorial Hospital, where he died.

Rupert resident and former insurance salesman, Tom Pierce testified he was also one of the first to try to help the fallen Walker, and she said he saw a Caucasian man chasing Knutsen.

Pierce said the man ran into the intersection of Fifth and B streets near the pawnshop, then ran back toward the shop, may have looked in the window, and then ran southeast along the building.

"I'm another witness, Kristine Combs, a Boise resident who was an employee of Ace Hardware at the time, said she saw what looked to be two men running from the direction of the pawnshop door. One went toward B Street, while the other ran off southwestward, she said.

Another customer, Jerry D. Fredrickson, said he saw a man and woman, and at first said they looked like a father chasing a child. Knutsen is about five feet tall.

Though none of Monday's witnesses testified to seeing Fino at the murder scene, Prosecutor Tom Watkins tried to demonstrate that Fino could have slipped unseen from the pawnshop after the murder.

Watkins questioned Hoch and Pierce, asking what direction they had faced as they helped Walker. Both said the pawnshop door had been behind them.

Defensive attorney Randy Stoker successfully objected to Watkins asking the witnesses whether anyone could have slipped out of the pawnshop while they were helping Walker.

Testimony Monday morning included people who knew Walker personally, as well as a woman who said she was at the pawnshop minutes before the killing occurred.

Joyce Purvis said she went to the pawnshop sometime between 9:30 and 10 a.m. to try to find a ring her daughter had pawned. Upon pulling her car up to the shop, she said she saw a man with dark hair sitting in a large yellow car.

Police later told her the car belonged to Walker.

Purvis said Walker let her into the shop, she tried unsuccessfully to find the ring.

The man was still sitting in the car when she left, Purvis testified. Upon learning about the murder, she said she went back to the pawnshop and told police about the incident.

Jim Evans, owner of the Burley Pawnshop, was the first person to testify. He knew Walker while the two were working at the Idaho State Penitentiary.

Evans lent money to Walker to start the Rupert Pawnshop about two years ago. He said Walker didn't let people behind the pawnshop counter.

Watkins said during his opening statement Friday that Fino's fingerprint had been lifted from a countertop. The fingerprint was pointing outward, apparently indicating Fino was behind the counter when it was made, Watkins said.

Testimony will continue this morning.

Minidoka still working on wet roads situation

By James Prichard
Mini-Cassia News Service

RUPERT — Minidoka County commissioners have told the Minidoka Highway District supervisor and the county sheriff to discuss how their departments will enforce road-sprinkling laws.

The Highway District's Jesse Miller and Sheriff Paul Frees will also meet with the three-member citizens committee appointed last month to make recommendations to the commissioners.

"They will report back to us," Commissioner, Feb. 22. On Monday, Miller and Frees will also meet with the committee met with commissioners and talked about the ordinance, which some farmers have called unfair and unequally enforced.

The county laws call for fine spraying water on roads, damages the asphalt and the road base.

Under state law, the offense is punishable by a $50 fine on the first offense, a $100 fine on the second, and a $50 fine on the third. The county ordinance calls for a fine of up to $300 on the first offense and a mandatory $300 fine on all subsequent offenses. A six-month jail sentence is also possible.

The laws are targeted primarily at the county's farmers — a sore point with many of them, who say that some residential lawn-sprinklers are just as guilty.

Most of the discussion centered on the amount of the fines and the county's enforcement of its ordinance. The county had planned to amend its version to include agribusineses as well as individuals for prosecution.

Veal Taylor, a farmer on the citizens' committee, said the county should be more lenient with unfertilized roads. "It should issue more warnings and impose smaller fines — steps that would make the county's message perfectly clear to most violators," he said.

Burley woman accidentally shot
ALMO — The Cassia County Sheriff's Department isn't saying much about a 24-year-old Burley woman who was accidentally shot to death Sunday afternoon while rabbit hunting in the Almo area.

According to the police report, Elizabeth Jane Barker, 1601 Miller Ave., was pronounced dead at Cassia Memorial Hospital in Burley.

Detective Kelly Hutchinson said he couldn't release any information concerning the incident, because he was too busy investigating a rape that occurred Thursday afternoon near Declo.

$1,000 of items stolen from house
RUPERT — An estimated $1,000 worth of items were stolen from a G Street house over the weekend.

According to a report filed at the Rupert Police Department, someone broke into the 510 S. G. home of Gloria Vidler overnight Saturday. The thief got in by removing a bathroom window screen and breaking the glass.

Taken were two stereos, two pairs of speakers, a vacuum cleaner, two clocks, a leather jacket, several pairs of shoes, several cassette tapes, three lamps and a large, framed photograph of Marilyn Monroe.

Fishing equipment reported stolen
BURLEY — A Burley resident says someone recently stole about $700 worth of fishing equipment from his boat.

Kenneth Larry Barnett, 2933 Lara Lane, said four tackle boxes including tackle, fire extinguisher and fish finder were taken. He said there were some suspicious-looking people had been in his neighborhood lately.

He said the theft took place within the past three weeks.

Pink ladies sponsor baked food sale
BURLEY — The Cassia Memorial Hospital pink ladies will have a baked food sale from 2-4 p.m. Friday at the hospital giftshop.

8 people injured in traffic accident
BURLEY — Eight area residents, including six in one car, suffered minor injuries Saturday afternoon during a traffic accident at a Burley intersection, officials say.

According to the Cassia County Sheriff's Department, Cesar Lopez Amaro, 28, Burley, failed to yield the right of way to a pickup driven by Spencer Emery Barrus, 17, Burley, at the intersection of West Ninth Street and Oakley Avenue.

Three passengers in Amaro's car were treated and released at Cassia Memorial Hospital: Ebon Cesar, 5; Pantaleo Aguilarr, 24; and Felipe Porillo, 32. Two other passengers, Fernando Alvarez, 27, and Angie Lopez Chavez, 2, were injured but were not taken to the hospital.

All five are Burley residents.

Both drivers were injured but weren't taken to the hospital, records show.

Tyler Hansen, a passenger of Barrus, was also injured but not taken to the hospital.

There was an estimated $3,500 damage to each vehicle.

Amaro was cited for inattentive driving, no driver's license and no insurance, deputies said.

Cassia commissioners discuss wheat grain bug

By Moises Garcia
Mini-Cassia News Service

BURLEY — Cassia County commissioners have received word that California will allow cereal grain imports from Idaho because of an infestation of cereal leaf beetles in parts of this state.

California officials fear infestation of their own state's cereal grain crops.

Gordon Edwards, Cassia County's weed supervisor, said the infestation began in Utah and was brought over the Idaho border into the Raft River area. Farmers and hunters who live in the Tremont and Logan areas may have brought the insects with them to the Shilbitt area in hay intended for their animals.

Edwards also said action may be necessary to contain the annual mustard plant, which is currently spreading north from Utah.

The State Farm Bureau and Idaho Agriculture Department are also concerned with the improper disposal of toxins in landfills, currently stored in farms throughout the area, he said.

Edwards also told commissioners that many local farmers may still store chemicals such as DDT on their land. The commissioners agreed to support for a proposal that would create various pick-up points spread throughout the county to properly dispose of unused chemicals.

In other business, commissioners voted unanimously to grant tax exemption status to Intermountain Health Care for property, furnishings and medical equipment used in Cassia County's planned new medical center.

"I feel IHC, at times, has gone beyond its call to provide care for the people in Cassia County," Commissioner John Adams explained.

Commissioners also discussed a proposal to provide funds for outlying emergency medical technician units in next year's budget.

The EMTs will use the funds to obtain and dispense vaccinations for hepatitis, which they currently cannot afford. The outlying units include Oakley, Declo, Raft River and Almo-Elba area.

Sydney Omarr Horoscope

IF FEBRUARY 9 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You are dynamic, creative, a natural humanitarian, willing to fight when cause is right. You'll be involved in communication, resorts, travel agencies, the overcoming of distance, language barriers. Major domestic adjustment takes place this year, could include change of residence, marital status. February and November will be memorable for you in 1993.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You'll learn that "subliminal" thoughts attract each other. "Is not necessarily me. Focus on experience, lessons learned, accommodating yourself to changing conditions of residence, marital status. February and November will be memorable for you in 1993.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Attention revolves around style, creativity, personal magnetism, sex appeal. Some will say "You appear different. I believe I am seeing you for the first time!"

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Long-range prospects come into crystal clear focus. You get news of a long journey. Check flight schedules, verify information with travel agency.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Many will be surprised as you wave "goodbye" to status quo. Focus on initiative, inventiveness, participation in pioneering project. Relative duties being confused but won't be. "I'm not a mathematician."

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Adhere to orthodox method, procedure. Family member would like you to be "caught in the middle" of money dispute. Rise above temptation - stand tall for principles.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Diversity, display humor, let others know you regard "stuffed shirts" as fair game. Lunar position accent: music, public status.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Rebuild on more suitable base - advise close associate. "It is time to move!" Secret arrangement comes to light, at first annoying, finally amusing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You'll be dealing with astounded individuals likely to have these letters, initials in their names: E. N. W. Communicate feelings, let others know you are not without feelings. Virgo: wit and wisdom, ability to get to heart of matters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You'll know at last, "I no longer stand alone!" Attention revolves around design, harmony, music, public status. Events occur in manner to help you arrive at major goal. Taurus represented.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Look behind scenes, let people know you will not stand still for unsubstantiated reports. Define terms, outline boundaries, streamline procedures. What you seek is revealed in newspaper status.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Focus on power, authority, intensity, ability to meet deadline. Attention also revolves around "behind scenes" status. Financial status of self who would be your mate or partner. Don't fear truth!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Long-standing, long-term completion. You'll receive credit long overdue. Emphasis also on wider audience, secret of universal appeal.

Ex-Frito-Lay exec moves to Coors

The Associated Press

GOLDEN, Colo. — A former Frito-Lay Inc. executive with expertise in product marketing on Monday became the first non-Coors family member named president and chief operating officer of Coors Brewing Co.

W. Leo Kiely III, 46, takes over March 1. He replaces Peter Coors, who has been promoted to chief executive officer of the Golden-based subsidiary of Adolph Coors Co.

"In the world of business, the secret dream is to run a business," Kiely said. "This is a very exciting business to be a part of."

Kiely will be responsible for overseeing the day-to-day operations of the brewery, facing Peter Coors' deal with strategic, financial and legislative issues.

Kiely's appointment was part of a restructuring of the 120-year-old Coors that began last year with the spinoff of its technology companies into ACX Technologies Inc.

"This is a momentous occasion for us," Peter Coors said. "The appointment today provides us with the kind of world-class, innovative leadership that ensures our place at the forefront of the brewing industry through the 1990s and into the next century."

— Peter Coors said he had no misgivings about turning over the reins of the brewery to an outside. "I do it with great ease and confidence," he said. "I guess it feels great because we have a new executive in our organization that has the skills and the talent to be a tremendous help to the company."

Kiely said, "What the Coors family did impress me with is everybody in the family has the best interest of the brewery at heart."

Coors started a nationwide search for a new president after Peter Coors became CEO in June. Kiely came to the company's attention in December and formally accepted the job Friday.

Kiely said it would be premature to say what changes he would make, but two issues that facing the brewery are dry-beer products, which are struggling industry-wide, and the Coors brand, which has been declining for a decade.

Coors officials declined to comment on the salary and benefits package offered to Kiely.

Kiely resigned as a division president for Frito-Lay in December about a decade after he joined the Plano, Texas-based company as a vice president of brand management.

He also worked for the Coastal Group, a division of Seven-Up, Wilton Spang Co. and Procter & Gamble Co.

Collectible card market shows signs of stress

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Fear not, Honus Wagner, you're still worth $451,000. But sorry, Jose Canseco — your baseball card may never achieve the lofty heights of a '56 Mickey Mantle or a '51 Willie Mays.

The sports card market, a sure-fire investment winner in recent years, is showing signs of topping out. Topps Co., the best-selling company, has announced its expects a net loss this quarter. Its first in the red since 1982. The value of its stock has dropped by about half in two months.

The parent company of another major card-market player, Fleer Corp., also suffered a drop in its stock-market prices, losing 1 1/2 percent of its value the day after Topps' announcement. It has since rebounded somewhat.

The double dip was a rarely-seen baseball pitch for the $1.3 billion collectible card industry, which ran wild over the last decade.

"It's just a matter of supply and demand. There's more companies, and those companies print a lot of cards," said Robert Lifson, president of Robert Edwards Auctions Inc.

"What does it mean? Since 1982—20 major manufacturers have joined the card market. A full set of Topps Baseball cards, purchased last summer for $12, is worth $150; any one of the 1993 cards "is not a sure thing." Lifson warned.
