St. Louis serves as test mart

The Associated Press
ST. LOUIS — President Clinton test-marketed his blueprint for big tax increases and spending cuts in friendly Democratic territory Thursday, urging Americans to press Congress for "honest, tough, hard decisions" to fix the economy.

One day after announcing a tough economic plan, Clinton got a cheering welcome from several thousand people at Union Station, a shopping mall built in a historic train depot.

Jury finds Fino innocent of Rupert murder charge

By Eric Goodell

RUPERT — After 10 months in jail awaiting his murder trial, Jerry Fino returned home Thursday a free man.

Fino was found not guilty of first-degree murder of pawnbroker Randy Walker and attempted first-degree murder of pawnshop customer Barbra Knutson.

A 12-member jury deliberated for 1 1/2 hours, finding the 18-year-old Rupert man innocent of the charges.

Let's go see Jerry," one group of relatives exclaimed after flinging the doors of the courtroom open.

per ton. The proposed energy tax on coal would vary according to the coal's energy content, but would be around $5.57 per ton.

Taken alone that would be a significant amount. But savings on capital investments may balance out the higher costs of an energy tax, Jaro said.

Here are some of the highlights:

Clinton's proposed energy tax is only one part of a package that includes various tax incentives and assistance programs.

Clinton's plan may speed cleanup at INEL

TWIN FALLS — Plans to streamline the federal Energy Department's nuclear weapons budget may shift focus toward cleanup at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

The department estimates spending cuts in its defense programs would be $800 million in 1994 and $4.5 billion by 1998.

It's encouraging that the new department is starting out with more emphasis on cleanup and phasing out new weapons plants, she said.

Weather summary

The National Weather Service issued a winter weather advisory extending through today for southern and central Idaho.

Forecasters warned of snow and freezing rain, mainly above 5,000 feet elevation.

The NWS also issued a winter storm watch for the northern panhandle late Friday for increasing snow.

Temperatures statewide Thursday were in the 20s and 30s, except in the Magic Valley where readings reached into the low 40s.

Winds continued from the east and south but were light. Light snow Wednesday night left about an inch accumulation but much of that melted during the day.

The warmest temperature in the state Thursday was 43 degrees at Hagerman; PortHill reported the coldest at 7 degrees below zero.

Elsewhere in the nation Thursday, the highest temperature was 80 degrees at Comi Springs, Fla. The lowest was 34 degrees below zero at Wisdom, Mont.

Storm brings rain, snow to West while Midwest shivers

The Associated Press

A strong low pressure system steaked the Pacific Coast and dumped snow over the Rockies on Thursday.

Another storm brought snow and record low temperatures to the Midwest and Great Lakes region.

The Pacific storm, which was centered offshore and headed east, toppled trees and power lines in Santa Barbara.

Winter storm warnings were posted for California's San Bernardino Mountains, higher elevations of the Sierra Nevada and the Tehachapi Mountains.

The southern portion of the storm was expected to bring heavy rain to central and Southern California today.

Winter storm warnings also were posted for western Wyoming and the Colorado mountains.

In the Midwest, a temperature of 5 degrees and winds to 25 mph dropped the wind chill index over west-central Ohio to as much as 35 degrees below zero. Wind chills over southern lower Michigan were around 25 degrees below zero.

The temperature in Springfield, Ill., fell to 15 degrees below zero, breaking the 1936 record by 6 degrees.

At 11 a.m. MST, snow extended over the lower Great Lakes, parts of the Midwest, northwest Texas and the northern Rockies. Rain fell from southern Oregon to Southern California, changing to snow in higher elevations.

Temperatures around the nation at 1 p.m. MST ranged from 1 degree below zero at Riverton, Wyo., to 75 degrees at Fort Myers, Fla.

The low temperature for the lower 48 states was 24 degrees below zero at Brewster and Loup City in Nebraska and Jordan, Mont.

homeowners pay utility bills and make homes more energy efficient.

Federal Energy Department grants for insulating homes of low-income families and fuel subsidies for homes and schools would be increased by about one-third next year with an extra $66 million. Congress provided $185 million for it this year.

Clinton's program also includes long-term investments of about $3 billion over the next four years for energy conservation and research for energy programs, fusion research and improving the energy efficiency of federal buildings.

The president also wants $23 million more for so-called green programs - already funded at $5 million this year - to help industry convert to energy efficient technology.

Despite an anticipated decrease in energy consumption, the administration expects the energy tax is expected to generate $2 billion during 1997 when it would be fully in force.

Land and water

While curbing the nation's energy appetite, Clinton also hopes to raise revenue on the west by cutting the Interior Department's budget, raising grazing fees on public land and tacking a royalty onto hard-rock minerals.

Clinton hopes to shave $163 billion in Interior Department spending by trimming funds for Bureau of Reclamation water projects, such as dams and irrigation projects.

The bureau's Pacific Northwest regional director, John Keys, said he had seen the proposal or new budgets and was reluctant to comment on specific effects.

But the cuts most would likely come from the bureau's operation and maintenance budget, which funds wetlands work and obligations

Health care

Clinton proposes $38.4 billion in cuts from Medicare and Medicaid - mostly by reducing payments to doctors and hospitals. But that has been tried before and has not worked, said John Bingham, administrator of the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

The proposal would likely postpone resolving health care problems, he said.

Under the president's plan, hospitals would see Medicare fee increases cut by 1 percent in both 1994 and 1995, for $5.2 billion in savings over four years.

Bingham said Clinton's proposed changes in Medicare and Medicaid payments are temporary solutions.

"A more fundamental issue is what Hillary (Clinton) proposes doing," he said.

The president's wife heads a health care task force that is expected to propose sweeping changes in the country's health care system.

Bingham said some of the issues he hopes Hillary Clinton's task force will address include tort reform, so doctors are not forced to practice defensive medicine, and insurance reform.

Transportation

Clinton envisions gaining $147 million through highway tax cuts on federal lands. That's expected to bring in $320 million.

Imposing royalties on gold, silver and other hard-rock minerals extracted from federal lands would bring in an estimated $471 million.

Another 7 cents per gallon of gasoline may be a relatively painless way to raise money. Companies that ship potatoes, trout and grocery products out of the Magic Valley say the impact is uncertain but probably manageable.

"Seven cents isn't going to make a heckuva lot of difference, but it will have some bearing," said Gary Garmand, owner of the produce broker and trucking company Garmand Marketing Inc.

Universal Frozen Foods also is uncertain about the impact.

"Off hand, I don't think we can predict any impact on our business," Vice President of Operations Sam Lowman said.

President Larry Copé of Clear Springs Foods Inc. said the only certainty in his mind is that taxes will go up and, possibly, inflation also.

"I have some of the products that are," he said. "Obviously it's going to drive the cost of some products up."

Education

College of Southern Idaho president Gerald MeyerHoefter said Clinton's proposal to spend an additional $2 billion on the Pell Grant student aid program and for a new $5.8 billion student-loan program to be paid back through community service, would be a boon to the school's students and probably attract more.

"The Pell Grants help out students at the lower-end income, and that would be very helpful," he said.

Student financial aid has been harder to get in recent years, MeyerHoefter said, making it more difficult for many students to go to college. Those who do often graduate owing thousands of dollars.

"Too many students borrow so deeply that it really impacts their ability to pay it back after they get out of school," he said. "Any financial aid program tied to community service is going to let a lot of students stay in college without becoming deeply in debt."

MeyerHoefter estimated that up to two-thirds of CSI student receive some financial aid.

his family and myself," court-appointed defense attorney Randy Stoker said of the reading of the verdict. "I have maintained from the outset that I couldn't understand how the state was going to prove its case."

This is the first murder trial Stoker has won. He previously defended Jaime Chiribarron, who was convicted of killing his ex-wife in Jerome County.

Julian said he doubted that the son will stay in the area. The family moved to the Mini-Cassia area to find a small, country town where the life was "a little less complicated," he said.

"We didn't come here for this," Julian said.

Seven roses lay on the trampled snow and stairs Thursday leading to a Detroit home where seven children died in a fire.

Parents held in fire deaths of 7 children

DETROIT (AP) — Police on Thursday were holding the parents of seven children who died in a fire after being left alone in a house with barred windows, while investigators tried to learn what started the blaze.

The children, ages 7 months to 9 years, died from asphyxiation in Wednesday's fire in the two-story wooden house on Detroit's poor east side, said Fire Marshal Richard Millner.

Their parents, Sherree Williams, 34, and Leroy Lyons, 35, were held at police headquarters overnight and remained in custody Thursday, said officer Allene Ray. No charges were filed Thursday.

Police said they planned to send a report on the deaths to the Wayne County prosecutor's office by today.

Also Thursday, an investigator who spoke on condition of anonymity said neighbors told authorities they saw Lyons using a torch Wednesday to thaw pipes under the house's kitchen.

The area where he reportedly was working corresponded with where investigators believe the blaze began, the source said.

Capt. Jon Bozich of the fire department's arson section said he couldn't comment on the fire's cause other than to say it started in the kitchen and appeared to be accidental.

The children had been left unattended for at least 45 minutes, police said, adding that Williams told authorities she had gone grocery shopping.

The four boys and three girls were found in a bedroom in the opposite side of the house from the kitchen, where the fire was believed to have started.

A dresser had been pushed up to the only window without security bars in an apparent attempt by the children to escape. The window otherwise was too high for them to reach, said Battalion Chief Harold Watkins.

The deaths were hard on firefighters, Bozich said. "Firefighters really feel bad when the kids go," he said. "They're saying, 'Maybe if I went through a different door, I could have saved them.'"

Physician helps 2 kill themselves

WATERFORD, Mich. (AP) — Dr. Jack Kevorkian assisted two more suicides Thursday, bringing to 15 the number of people he has helped die since 1990.

Kevorkian, an advocate of physician-assisted suicide, has speeded up his work as a March 30 deadline approaches. On that date, a Michigan law making assisting suicide a felony carrying a four-year sentence takes effect.

Jonathan Grenz, 44, of Costa Mesa, Calif., and Martha Ruwart, 41, of Cardiff-by-the-Sea, Calif., died Thursday, said Waterford Township Police Officer Bill Himmelspach.

Grenz had throat cancer and Ruwart had duodenal cancer that had spread to her ovaries, said Geoffrey Fieger, Kevorkian's attorney.

Grenz's cancer forced doctors to remove much of his tongue and part of his neck, said Michael Schwartz, another attorney representing Kevorkian. Surgeons who operated on Ruwart in December said her prognosis was poor, he said.

Grenz and Ruwart inhaled carbon monoxide, the same method used in the other recent suicides, Schwartz said. He said he didn't know how long Kevorkian had been consulting with the two.

He said the patients, not Kevorkian, are the reason for the doctor's stepped-up activity as March 30 nears. Some fear Kevorkian, who has assisted six suicides this month alone, will be jailed and unable to help them if they wait too long.

"People are becoming more desperate," Schwartz said. "People who might not have contacted him are contacting him now out of fear and panic."

The suicides were the second and third assisted this week by Kevorkian.

Lawmakers seemed hesitant Thursday to try to move up the law's deadline, which would require a two-thirds vote in both the House and Senate.

Rep. Michael Nye, co-chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, cited a 1976 opinion by Attorney General Frank Kelley that questioned the constitutionality of moving up a law's effective date.

"I'd rather keep the law as clean as I can. It's going to go into effect in a few weeks anyway," Nye said.

Big-city police departments slowly open ranks to gays

LOS ANGELES (AP) — As some in the military fight to keep homosexuals out, police departments in many big cities are officially opening their doors.

Gay activists have taken note, hoping to use the growing police support as ammunition against those who oppose President Clinton's moves to lift the military ban on homosexuals.

Yet even in such cities as Boston and Los Angeles, which have strict anti-bias rules after years of traditional hostility, only a handful of police officers have come forward to say they are gay. In many other law enforcement agencies, especially those in smaller towns, homosexuality remains taboo.

Los Angeles police Officer John Smith is one of six on the 7,688-member force to go public with his sexual orientation.

"It was cumbersome for a while, but it's not anymore," said Smith, who made his homosexuality public in 1991. "You've still got some juvenile antics — there may be someone making a comment behind my back."

The city Police Department recently agreed to sweeping changes including efforts to recruit homosexuals, start a harassment hot line and increase sensitivity training.

Nationwide, numbers vary widely. In San Francisco, 138 of the city's 1,700 officers are openly gay, but in Boston just two officers out of 1,950 have said publicly they're homosexual.

Norman Hill, a 10-year Boston veteran who's gay, said he knows of several other officers who keep their homosexuality private.

Cities including Baltimore, Atlanta, San Jose, Calif., Detroit, Ann Arbor, Mich., and Phoenix have specific policies against gay bias.

Law enforcement agencies in recent years lost at least two lawsuits filed by homosexuals in state courts — one brought by a sheriff's deputy in Florida, and the other by a lesbian who tried to get on the Dallas Police Department.

The man got his job back. The woman won her lawsuit and the Dallas department's anti-gay policy recently was ruled unconstitutional, but she was disqualified from employment for unrelated reasons.

Activists credit grass-roots efforts for the changes in some police departments.

"The gay and lesbian community has made great strides in certain local areas," said David Smith, a Los Angeles gay activist.

A recent convert is former Los Angeles Police Chief Daryl Gates, who during his tenure refused to let officers in uniform recruit at gay events and made anti-homosexual statements.

On a recent radio talk show, Gates said most gay LAPD officers do good work. Last year, he filed court papers supporting naval Petty Officer Keith McInfield's lawsuit to have the military ban declared unconstitutional.

Gates called the ban "wrong and harmful" and noted similarities between police and the military.

Judge dismisses prospects over bias in beating trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Six of the first 12 prospective jurors quizzed for service in the federal Rodney King beating trial were dismissed for bias Thursday.

Three were minority members who insisted they could be fair.

The challenges for cause were lodged secretly at the judge's bench, but a lawyer said later the dismissals were based on prejudicial comments made during two days of questioning about the case against four policemen.

"I hope you don't feel we're depriving you of an experience you wanted to be a part of," U.S. District Judge John Davies told the excused prospects.

Those removed by defense challenges were:

- A black woman who said she had an open mind and the courage to face her community if she acquitted the four police officers on trial.
 - An Asian woman who said she watched the entire trial on TV and would have convicted three of the officers.
 - A Hispanic man who spends his free time helping police apprehend gang members in his neighborhood.
 - A young white man who said he felt that Sgt. Stacey Koon, a defendant, had "abused" Rodney King.
 - An older white man who reacted "with disbelief" to the acquittals and continues to feel that way.
- The government dismissed only one prospect.

Clinton & Co. take to the road; GOP decries plan

Lloyd Bentsen Tackles Congress

Leon Panetta 'Things have to change'

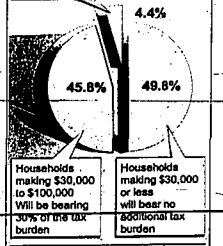

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton led his administration on a blitz across the map of America Thursday to enlist the nation's support for a pain-then-gain economic plan that he said would keep America's children from having to settle for a "lesser life." But even as Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen returned to Congress to urge legislators to cast "the vote of a lifetime" for Clinton's plan, a new release of fine print from the White House indicated the administration's deficit cutting to be less dramatic than first portrayed. Republicans, meanwhile, accused Clinton of mounting a propaganda blitz to sell old tax-and-spend solutions disguised in new clothing. Treasury Secretary Bentsen, a former senator, returned to his old haunts to defend the program before the Senate Budget Committee. He noted that ex-colleagues had predicted supporting the plan would call for "the vote of a lifetime," adding: "I couldn't agree more. But also think of it as a vote for your children, for their lifetimes, because that's what it's all about." Clinton's budget director, Leon Panetta, another ex-lawmaker, confronted a critic, Rep. John Kasich, R-Ohio, at a hearing of the House Budget Committee, which he used to chair. "Things have to change," Panetta told Kasich, "and your party has to confront the fact that if everybody is going to deal with deficit reduction, we mean everybody." Clinton brushed off questions about new deficit projections and set out for the Midwest to generate grassroots support that will be vital if his plan is to survive attacks by powerful interests, criticism by Republicans and reluctance by some fellow Democrats. In his maiden appearance before Congress Wednesday night, the president proposed raising taxes, directly or indirectly, for most Americans. His ideas would also cut spending in 150 programs but increase it elsewhere. And, to reinvigorate a soft economy, he would cut some business taxes and undertake a quick public works spending program. This amounted to "reinventing our government," Clinton told the lawmakers. Failure to take painful steps now, he said, would amount to "condemning our children and our children's children to a lesser life than we enjoyed." But the new figures from the White House showed that when full account is taken of the impact of spending increases and pro-business tax cuts, the four-year reduction in deficits would not add up to the half-billion dollars ballyhooed by the administration. Instead, there would be a net reduction of $325 billion. Whatever that bottom line, Republicans pledged a fight against the thrust of Clinton's proposal. Senate GOP Leader Bob Dole called it "very heavy on the tax side and very weak" on reducing spending. Former President Reagan said it resurrected "the failed liberal policies of the past." In The New York Times, Reagan said Clinton "has begun to sound like an 'old Democrat,'" not the "new Democrat" he campaigned as.

Burden of the new tax plan
President Clinton's stern new economic package will raise taxes on all American households earning more than $30,000.

Percentage of all U.S. households: Households making $100,000 or more will be bearing 70% of the tax burden

In addition:
Taxes on Social Security benefits for retired couples earning more than $32,000
The top tax rate will go up from 31% to 36%
A surcharge will be imposed on families earning more than $250,000

Federal workers say they'll share burden

WASHINGTON (AP) — With some grumbling, federal workers said Thursday they would be willing to give up a raise next year if the savings would really help President Clinton cut the deficit and stimulate the economy. Those interviewed generally expressed support for Clinton's plan to freeze their pay in 1994 and cut 1 percent from cost-of-living raises in each of the next three years. "I'll accept it ... as long as we get some results," said Peter VanderNati, a Federal Trade Commission economist whose comment typified the mood of federal employees as they arrived for work the morning after Clinton unveiled his economic plan. The view was not unanimous, and federal employees union leaders had harsh criticism for Clinton's plan. But two dozen federal workers interviewed at subway stops or in the office said that, while they were not happy about giving up a pay hike, they understood that Clinton needs to cut spending somewhere to reduce the deficit. "We've got to do something," said Fred Heineman, a Public Health Service physician. "They are going to have to cut expenses or take more 'back in taxes' so federal workers would end up paying either way. "I feel I have gotten pay raises at a time in the economy when people were being laid off and not getting pay raises," Heineman said. "I'm willing to sacrifice what it takes to get the country back on track," said Wallace Schaffer, who manages training programs at the National Institutes of Health in suburban Bethesda, Md. "Although she was not 'happy' with the news, government secretary

Melanie Spearman acknowledged that federal workers "kind of have it cushy" with virtually automatic cost-of-living raises. "In fact, the government has given its employees annual raises in 19 of the last 21 years. Over the past four years, they have averaged 4 percent annually. Some employees expressed concern about how the freeze would affect lower-paid federal workers. "Many are women, and minority women and minority women who are raising families and making less than $30,000," said a Social Security Administration manager who spoke on condition of anonymity. "I am concerned about the effect on them." Commerce Department official Dan Cook said he supports Clinton's overall plan but opposes the "extra sacrifice being asked of federal workers.

"The president always seems to have a little extra for the federal employees doesn't he?" Cook said. "We're being asked to bear the same sacrifices as the rest of the middle class, and we're being singled out as federal employees," said a Social Security Administration employee who declined to be identified by name. Predictably, the plan drew harsh criticism from public employee unions. "The proposed pay freeze asks these dedicated employees to pay more than their fair share," John N. Sturdivant, president of the American Federation of Government Employees said in a statement. In defense of the proposal, White House Press Secretary Dee-Dee Myers said government was not different from private employers.

But Ross Perot, whose anti-deficit campaign won him 19 million votes last November, offered cautious praise. He called the program "a good artist's sketch." He also foresaw fierce opposition. "In the next 90 days, lobbyists are going to collect more money than probably in the history of man, because that's the way the system works," Perot said. Determined to sell the long-term benefits of Clinton's approach while public opinion is still fluid, administration officials fanned across the country, scheduling appearances Thursday and Friday in 28 states. House GOP Leader Bob Michel of Illinois called this "the biggest propaganda campaign in recent political history."

Many of the Clinton salesmen returned to their home states to start out on friendly ground. For the most part, they flew coach class. Clinton, aboard Air Force One, flew to St. Louis to address a crowd at Union Station. The president also arranged a question-and-answer session Friday with the townspeople of Chillicothe, Ohio, and a visit to Hyde Park, N.Y., for a meeting with the people of the Hudson Valley.

Critics line up to blast proposal

The Associated Press
In swank restaurants and exclusive clubs, there is grumbling. In gas refineries and Fortune 500 boardrooms, they are fretting. Even the well-connected lobbyist is wondering: how bad will it be? The belt-tightening proposed by President Clinton would put the squeeze on a diverse range of industries and occupations, from the most modest worker to the giants of commerce. The most direct blow would be felt by firms with taxable income above $10 million, whose corporate tax rate would jump from 34 percent to 36 percent. Deductions for entertainment would be cut back or reduced, and write-offs for lobbying expenses dropped. But Clinton's plan also could rattle the already struggling defense industry and force higher costs on companies with large energy needs: transportation, steel, paper and aluminum makers. The most gloomy scenario posed by executives and analysts would mean plant closings and layoffs. "If we lose business, we have to cut staff: waiters, bartenders, dishwashers. The lowest-end people are the first to go," said Alan Stillman, a general partner of a five-restaurant group in New York, whose flagship branch is the Smith & Wollensky steak house. Stillman estimates his restaurants could lose up to one-fifth of its customers under Clinton's proposal to reduce the meal write-offs from 80 percent to 50 percent. "Among all the top-end restaurants in New York, you're talking about 3,000 to 5,000 jobs," he said.

In San Francisco, energy consultant Bruce Pasternack said gasoline refiners would face rising costs under proposed energy tax hikes. Crude oil needed in gas manufacturing would rise under the plan, which would add more than 7 cents a gallon to the price of gasoline by 1996. Pasternack said refiners may not be able to pass along all their higher costs. "It's not a big increase when you consider what some people were talking about during the campaign, but you are going to hear a lot of complaints," said Pasternack, a manager in the Booz, Allen & Hamilton consulting firm. Mobil Oil Corp. Chairman Allen Murray said the proposal "would discriminate against one form of energy — oil — versus others and therefore, against those ... dependent on oil products."

U.S. warns of Libyan arms plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department said Thursday Libya is expanding its chemical weapons capability in violation of a recently signed agreement to prohibit such armaments. Spokesman Joseph Snyder said the United States and other countries are taking steps to cut off outside supplies to the Libyan program. Libya is one of six countries on a U.S. list of nations alleged to engage in state-sponsored terrorism. The United States has accused Libyan agents in the 1988 bombing of Pan Am flight 103 over Scotland, which killed 270 people. The New York Times reported in its Thursday edition that Libya is building a subterranean chemical weapons plant capable of producing and storing poison gas. The underground factory remains disguised as part of a water project, the Times said. It is located about 40 miles southeast of Tripoli, not far from another facility which the United States also believes is capable of producing chemical agents. Snyder condemned the program and noted that the U. N. Security Council has imposed a mandatory ban on any weapon-related exports to Libya. He praised the German government for recent steps it has taken to curb such exports to the Libyans. "The United States calls on all countries to follow the German example in carefully scrutinizing exports of dual-use chemicals and equipment that have applications in the field of chemical weapons," he said. Last month in Paris, the United States joined scores of other countries in signing the agreement to ban chemical weapons.

Snow closes Jerome roads, schools again

JEROME — After spending most of January and thousands of dollars opening rural roads, Jerome County found many of them clogged shut again this week.

Schools have been closed for two days, making a total of 11 days students have been out of class in the Jerome School District because of snow conditions.

"We're taking one day at a time — never know how much drifting snow there will be," Betty Hyder, interim superintendent, said. "I don't recall when we ever had this many snow days. The most I remember is seven."

When students return to class, school days will continue to be lengthened by 30 minutes each day to meet state requirements for number of hours students must receive instruction per year.

Roads north of Jerome have been drifting shut for two days, with most north-south roads blocked.

Thomas McKay, Jerome County disaster services director, said county snow plows were out and "should be able to handle the snow the way it is now, but it's supposed to rain and then freeze. That will be a problem."

On Thursday, snow and wind also blocked roads — including U.S. Highway 93 between its junction with Interstate 84 and Shoshone — and closed schools in Jerome County's Valley School District, and in the Shoshone, Dietrich and Richfield districts in Lincoln County.

Hearing impaired now can easily contact consumer unit

BOISE — The hearing-impaired now have direct access to the consumer protection unit of the Idaho attorney general's office.

According to Attorney General Larry Echolf, the consumer protection unit now has a text phone — a TDD telecommunications device for the deaf. Hearing-impaired consumers can contact the agency by dialing 800-432-3345.

Jerome Democratic Women meet Tuesday at library

JEROME — The Jerome Democratic Women's Club will hold its monthly meeting on Tuesday, Feb. 23, in the Jerome City Library.

The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the meeting room. The featured speaker will be Kathy Boian of Shoshone, who will speak about pending legislation.

Further information can be obtained by phoning JoAnne Smith at 324-3261.

Brake failure causes wreck, sends 2 to Cassia hospital

BURLEY — A Hagerman motorist and passenger were injured Wednesday afternoon when the brakes of their vehicle failed.

According to the Cassia County Sheriff's Department, Suzanne Marie Dean, 35, was turning onto the off-ramp at milepost 208 of Interstate 84 when her brakes failed.

Dean said she turned off the engine, not knowing that the steering wheel locked in the direction of the turn, deputies said.

The 1975 Buick Skylark went off the ramp and through a fence, eventually coming to rest in a water field.

Dean and Edward Marion Dean, 31, Hagerman, were taken to Cassia Memorial Hospital in Burley where they were treated and released.

Oakley Elementary School plans carnival for Feb. 27

OAKLEY — Oakley Elementary School will be the site of the "Hands Around the World Carnival" from 5 to 8 p.m. on Feb. 27.

There will be a raffle, food booths and a variety of entertainment. From 5 to 7, pizza and submarine sandwiches will be served for dinner.

Pershing principal plans to step down at end of year

RUPERT — Pershing Elementary School Principal John Youren is leaving his post at the end of the school year.

In a letter of resignation submitted to the Minidoka County School District, Youren said he is leaving because his wife has accepted a new job.

District Superintendent Michael Bishop said Thursday that Youren's wife, a nurse practitioner, has accepted a job in Emmett.

Bishop said Youren's decision to leave is unrelated to the School Board's recent decision to rotate the district's elementary school principals at the start of the next school year.

Separate accidents close I-84 for nearly 8 hours

The Times-News

KING HILL — Two early-morning accidents in the westbound lanes of Interstate 84 blocked the highway for almost eight hours Thursday as Idaho Transportation Department crews labored to clean up diesel fuel, lighter fluid and paint that spilled from a tractor-trailer rig.

The separate mishaps involving the truck and a Greyhound bus took place within one mile and a few minutes of each other on an ice-covered stretch of highway about five miles east of Glens Ferry just after 4:30 a.m., an Idaho State Police dispatcher in Boise said.

About 20 people were injured when the bus slid off the right side of the highway into the borrow pit and rolled over on its right side, the ISP said. Most of the injured passengers were taken to Gooding Memorial Hospital, where they were treated and released.

But one passenger, 18-year-old Tana Morse, was flown by helicopter to St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise. Morse, who is pregnant, was listed in stable condition Thursday afternoon.

The other accident, which took place a mile farther east on a bridge that spans the Snake River, involved a Yellow Freight System Inc. truck that lost control and rolled over, the ISP said. The truck came to rest astride the bridge, blocking the highway.

The driver was not injured. The ISP blamed the mishap of excessive speed.

Westbound traffic was diverted on to U.S. Highway 30 at Bliss until Transportation Department crews finally cleared the road at about 12:30 p.m., state police said.

A hazardous materials team continued working to clean up about 300 gallons of diesel fuel and smaller amounts of lighter fluid and paint that spilled from one of the semis, ISP said.

The ISP dispatcher said investigations are continuing into both accidents. She did not release the names of the drivers.

Hansen student won't take part in lab exercise

HANSEN — Sophomore Jaime Lee doesn't want to cut up a frog in her biology class.

She doesn't plan to join her classmates in slicing lampreys, sharks, squid, worms or pigelets either.

The 15-year-old Hansen High School student opposes classroom dissection as "morally and ethically wrong" and has asked school officials to provide an alternative instead.

"I personally am not opposed to alternatives," Superintendent Richard Smith said.

But he worries about letting students "decide what they will and will not study."

"What if we did every class that way? What if somebody didn't want to study Greek mythology for whatever reason?" he asked.

Jaime and her parents aren't satisfied with the options they have been given so far, and plan to take their case to the School Board Monday night.

Since telling her biology teacher early in the school year that she won't participate in the dissections, Jaime has been at odds with school officials.

She was told she could take a different science class, such as chemistry, or sit out the semester in study hall.

Jaime said she enjoys biology and does not want to cut the class.

Rather than dissecting animals, she wants to study anatomy through textbooks, plastic models or computer simulations.

A Tuesday meeting among Jaime, her parents Jim and Linda, and school officials "was not productive," Smith said.

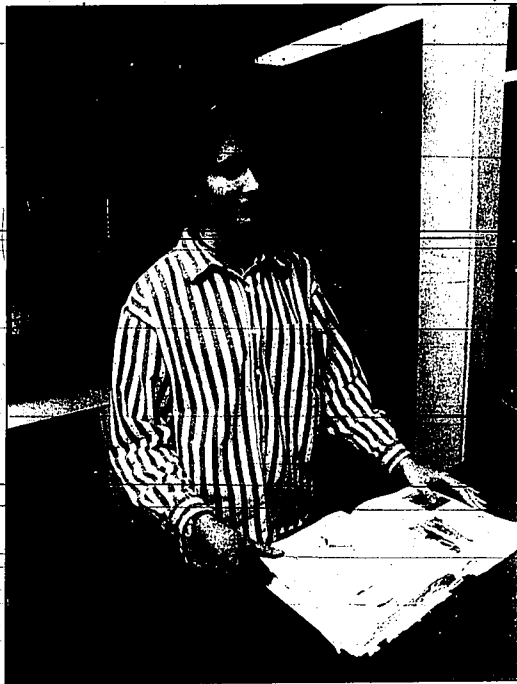

Smith acknowledges the conflict is rooted in their opposing belief systems.

"I don't know where she's really coming from," Smith said. "These animals were hatched and raised for that purpose."

For Jaime, the issue is simple: Killing animals just to cut them up in biology class is wrong.

"God didn't just put them on the earth to be killed for dissection," she said. "I have a strong respect for life."

TWIN FALLS — Several prominent local property owners are going to court to prevent Twin Falls County from raising money for a juvenile detention center without a vote.

"Certainly we need it," former Idaho House of Representatives speaker T.W. Stivers said of the long-delayed detention center. "But we need to go through the regular channels."

The regular channel for funding public projects is a bond issue election, he said.

The county commissioners hope to avoid a bond issue election by asking a judge to rule the detention center an "ordinary and necessary expense."

Stivers and 13 others have filed a motion asking a 5th District judge to deny the county's request. Judge Daniel Mechl is scheduled to hear the motion on March 1.

Under a law passed by the 1988 Idaho Legislature, counties do not have to seek taxpayer approval for such expenses.

Stivers, who owns a Twin Falls title insurance company, said ordinary and necessary expenses would include repairing damage from a flood in the Courthouse, but not a detention center.

Finding a place for juvenile criminals is required by the federal juvenile justice act, Commissioner Norma Blass said.

"It's something we don't have control over," Blass said. "We don't control the judges who decide where to put these juveniles."

The county has struggled to find a permanent juvenile detention center for more than three years.

Couple who lost home seek $300,000 in damages

By Phil Sahm
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Rogerson couple claim that negligence of the Bureau of Land Management and Rogerson Water Co. cost them their home in a fire last July.

Jerry and Sharon Adermann have filed a tort claim against the BLM, Rogerson Water Co., Twin Falls County and the village of Rogerson.

They seek $150,000 in damages from the BLM and $150,000 in damages from the other three parties.

The Adermanns' home caught fire July 30 after a grass fire burned out of control. The couple lost just about everything they owned and carried no insurance to replace their possessions.

They claim that the BLM erred twice in telling the Jackpot fire chief that the agency did not need help fighting the fire.

They also claim that when firefighters from several agencies in Twin Falls County arrived to fight the blaze, the water supply and pressure were not sufficient to fight the fire. This they blame on the Rogerson Water Co.

Neither BLM Burley District Manager Jerry Quinn nor Twin Falls County Clerk Bob Fort would comment on the claim Wednesday.

Ted Tiffany, of the Rogerson Water Board, said Wednesday that claims of not enough water or pressure are "totally untrue."

"If we were out of water, I don't know how we filled trucks for six hours," Tiffany said. "It's easy enough to prove that there was (water)."

Water charts and graphs show the water supply before, during and after the fire, he said.

According to the tort claim, the chief of the Jackpot Fire Department twice called the BLM in Burley to offer help.

Representatives of the Burley District responded by stating, in effect, that it was only a brush fire, and it was not necessary for the Jackpot Fire Department to lend a hand," the tort claim states.

"Because of the Bureau of Land Management's negligent denial of assistance from the Jackpot Fire Department, and misinformation to them, claimants' house was completely consumed by fire," according to the claim.

The Adermanns claim that the village of Rogerson and Twin Falls County are not ensuring that the water system had enough pressure and water, according to the tort claim.

Nevland returns to post, says 'enough is enough'

KETCHUM — Deciding enough is enough, former chief of police Cal Nevland signed a contract Wednesday afternoon that will allow him to return to work.

Nevland, who was offered the contract during a Jan. 20 City Council meeting, had been holding out for back pay, benefits, vacation and sick leave for the period of time he was absent from office.

Nevland was fired July 30. He will return to work Monday.

His ouster led to the Nov. 3 recall of three Ketchum City Council members — Pam Ritzau, Ed Simon and Lawrence Young.

"I feel like I was due some compensation in the form of back wages and benefits," said Nevland Thursday. "They disagreed so that's the way it is, and I've decided I'm coming back to work."

"There are a lot of people who stood up for me and supported me. When they fought that hard to get my job back the offer would have to be something pretty ridiculous to not go back.

"I'm not going back with a chip on my shoulder. I don't hate them for it, and I won't curse them for it."

"I do feel that if I had gone to court over this, a court would have given it back to me. I pushed for it because I thought it was appropriate."

The contract Nevland signed is an at-will employee contract that says he can be fired for cause or without cause. His salary is $38,400 a year.

"I'm an at-will employee because all city employees are at-will employees," Nevland said. "There is some talk of getting rid of the at-will provision for city employees, he added."

Committee will be able to cover auditorium cost, treasurer says

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — The treasurer of an ad-hoc committee that is raising money to expand the Twin Falls High School auditorium predicted Thursday that the group would have enough money to cover construction costs of a 1,500-seat facility.

"We have $415,000-plus in cash and pledges now, and I'm sure by the time the school district is ready for the money, we'll have enough," said Dennis Brown, a Twin Falls accountant. "The School Board has already turned the architect loose to design a 1,500-seat auditorium."

The committee was organized last summer in the wake of the approval by voters of a bond issue election to build, among other things, a 1,000-seat auditorium at the high school.

Arts and community groups thought that facility was too small, and offered to raise enough money — an estimated $500,000 — to expand it by half.

The School Board agreed, and the committee set an informal Feb. 15 deadline for itself.

By Feb. 2, the committee had raised just $388,201 in cash and pledges, but the School Board told Design West Architects to plan for a 1,500-seat facility.

"Feb. 1 was really the important date for us," Brown said. "Once we raised that much money, we got the School Board's commitment."

In the days that followed the board's decision, about $12,000 in cash and pledges came in, Brown said.

"We're getting all kinds of pledges and donations," he said. "We're getting the $1,000 to $1,500 range, but also $100 to $200 and less."

The committee won't need to turn the money over to the school district for a while yet. The auditorium is the final phase of the bond issue construction scheduled to begin later this year that will include an addition to Robert Stuart Junior High, a new elementary school in South Park, and a second gymnasium at the high school.

"We don't know what the contract cost (of the additional 500 seats) will be yet," Brown said. "It could cost less than we've already raised."

Governor's tax reform plan dies quietly in House subcommittee

By Drew DeSilver Times-News writer
BOISE — Gov. Cecil Andrus' tax restructuring package was killed quietly by a House subcommittee Thursday afternoon, but parts of it may yet be resurrected.
Andrus' plan to require quarterly income-tax payments from individuals is still viable, and some subcommittee members said they could accept some broadening of the sales tax base in exchange for property-tax relief.

Any chance of raising revenue for additional spending needs, though, probably has ended. That means the Legislature's budget-setters are locked into a $1.08 billion revenue program, which allows virtually no room for new programs.
"I don't think, especially in view of what we heard from Washington, D.C. last night, that there's any potential for raising taxes at the state and local level," said Rep. Con Mahoney, R-Idaho Falls, who chaired the subcommittee of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee.

In his report, the subcommittee recommended not adopting Andrus' package as a whole, but added that certain aspects of the governor's reform proposals (should be more thoroughly examined).
"The full committee (should) explore the possibility of implementing portions of the Governor's package as a more moderate and conservative way of improving tax policy in Idaho," the report said.
What portions those might be was deliberately left vague, with one exception: The panel said the full committee should consider Andrus' proposal to require individuals who are quarterly estimated payments on their federal income taxes to do the same thing on their state income tax. Andrus estimates that change would raise $50 million in one-time money, which he recommended using to refill the nearly empty Permanent Building Fund.

"A lot of people are after that one-time money," said Rep. Mark Stubbs, R-Twin Falls.
Construction projects across the state, including the college of Southern Idaho's new library, will be stalled unless the Permanent Building Fund is replenished.

Stubbs said the subcommittee made no other detailed recommendations because members disagreed on what parts of Andrus' complex, interconnected package were acceptable.
"We're going to leave that up to Mike," he said, referring to Michael Ferguson, Andrus' chief economist.
Ferguson said he would work with lawmakers to try to salvage what he can from Andrus' package.
"The governor has said from the beginning, 'Here's our proposal. If you have a better one, let's see it,'" he said.

Glenns Ferry-based bank talks about merger with West One

By Craig Lincoln Times-News writer
GLENN'S FERRY — Idaho State Bank may merge with Boise-based West One Bank three years after a Sun Valley man bought the troubled Glenn's Ferry bank.
Idaho State Bank Chairman Will Lauder confirmed Thursday that the two banks were talking.
"The current status between us is that we are discussing a merger between the banks," Lauder said. "I think these discussions are friendly discussions, but nevertheless, will probably extend into next week."

Lauder purchased Idaho State Bank in November 1989. At that time, the bank was plagued with lawsuits and Federal fraud indictments against two of its officers.
"The Idaho Department of Finance also declared the state-chartered bank's capital to be 'impaired,' a declaration that led the department to take a series of steps leading to Lauder's takeover."
Lauder had been an adviser to a New York investment firm and a stockbroker before moving to Sun Valley. After his takeover, the condition of Idaho State Bank firmied up.

"The bank has broken into the black and, although its safety rating was the lowest of all banks in Idaho at the end of September 1992, the rating was much higher than federal regulations require."
West One Bank is Idaho's largest bank with $3.4 billion in assets. It is a subsidiary of West One Bancorp.
Idaho's former Vice President of Communications Linda Blount-Strauss said she was unaware of any discussions between the banks.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Twin Falls LDS 6th Ward, 667 Harrison, with Bishop Jerry D. Holman officiating. Burial in the Portage Crematory will follow at the Twin Falls Cemetery. Friends may call from 4 to 8 p.m. today at White Mortuary in Twin Falls and from 11 to 1 p.m. on Saturday at the church.

Beatrice N. Bradic
HANSEN — Beatrice Nina Bradic, 87, of Hanson, died Thursday, Feb. 18, 1993, in Kimberly.
She was born Nov. 9, 1905, and married Nicholas Bradic. They traveled and lived in various states with Mr. Bradic's work. They retired in Twin Falls in the early 1960s. Playing bridge was one of the joys of her life and she presided over Duplicate Bridge for a number of years.
Survivors include her husband, Nicholas Bradic of Hanson; one nephew, Calvin Burd of Richfield, Wash.; and one niece, Jan Heinker of Ontario, Canada.
A memorial service will be held at a later date. Cremation took place at White Crematory and arrangements are under the direction of White Mortuary in Twin Falls.

Jacob F. Arrington
TWIN FALLS — Jacob F. Arrington, 105, pioneer resident of Twin Falls, died Wednesday, Feb. 17, 1993, at the Twin Falls Clinic Hospital.
According to Idaho 100: Stories From Idaho Century Citizens, Mr. Arrington was the oldest resident in Twin Falls.
He was born Oct. 19, 1887, in Reed Hill, Tenn., the fourth of 10 children born to LeRoy Madison and Priscilla Briesonide Arrington. This was at the time Grover Cleveland was president and Thomas Edison had just invented the first motor-driven phonograph. The price of a large loaf of bread was .5 cents and the average income was $421 a year. He also worked in the construction of the sugar factory and the original post office and was a bridge foreman in the construction of the short-lived street car line to Shoshone Falls. He also owned and operated one of the first grocery stores in Twin Falls. Several times he was selected to serve on a federal grand jury in Boise.

Betty M. Wageman
TWIN FALLS — Betty Mae Wageman, 48, of Twin Falls, died Wednesday, Feb. 17, 1993, at the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in War.
She was born March 18, 1944, in Kirksville, Mo., the daughter of Lloyd and Viola Marie Findling Leedom. She lived in Iowa for 10 years before moving to Twin Falls in 1957. On Oct. 21, 1971, she married Jim Wageman in Elk, Nev., and they have lived in Twin Falls and Filer since then.
She participated in all activities in which her children were involved, and enjoyed many different hobbies and crafts. She loved to help others in any way, and she took in children that needed special help.

Ila M. Hess
POCATELLO — Ila M. Hess, 74, of Pocatello, died Tuesday, Feb. 16, 1993, in Pocatello of an apparent heart attack.
She was born Oct. 18, 1918, in Goshon, Idaho, to David and Elva Sibbott Landon. She received her education in Upper Presto in Idaho and Portage Grade School and Bear River High School in Utah.
She was a member of the LDS Church.
She was married three times to: John Hans Knudsen, Melvin Mike Wadley and Charles "Chick" Hess, all of whom are deceased.
She spent all of her working years as a waitress. She worked at the Dede Ranch Cafe in Meland, the Highway Cafe in Downey, City Cafe and Stan's Grill in Blackfoot and at the Yellowstone Cafe in Pocatello where she retired.
After retirement, she enjoyed spending her time with her friends. Many hours were spent going for walks, playing cards and dining out with friends. Her alone hours were spent playing solitaire and crocheting algarans, hoodies and other such items for her many friends and family while watching her favorite television programs. It must be said though, that the highlight of her life was the time spent with her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.
She is survived by three sons, Larry Dee Knudsen of Farmington, Idaho; Bud Lee (Storia) Knudsen of Portage, Utah; and Dennis Gono (Carolyn) Knudsen of Twin Falls; two daughters, Andrea Kay (Spence) Williams of Blackfoot and Marsha (Chris) Wansley of Mountain View, Idaho; a son-in-law, Evlyn Balen of Pocatello; 15 grandchildren; and 26 great-grandchildren.
The funeral will be held at noon Saturday, Feb. 20, 1993, at the First Presbyterian Church, 1424 Hill. Bishop Bud Knudsen conducting. The family will meet with friends from 7 to 9 p.m. today at the Hill-Sandberg Funeral Home in Blackfoot and from 11 to 11:45 a.m. on Saturday at the church. Burial will be at the Portage Crematory.

Middle Snake River nutrient management program in a fix

By Drew DeSilver Times-News writer
BOISE — The nutrient management program for the Middle Snake River may be in jeopardy, as cash-strapped lawmakers try to pare every dollar they can from the state budget.

The state Division of Environmental Quality is seeking $667,100 to study how fish hatcheries, dairy farms, food processing plants and other industries along the Middle Snake reduce the amount of contaminants they send into the heavily polluted stretch of river.

In the most recent such controversy, Hardy's application for a discharge permit in Blind Canyon was denied by DEQ and upheld last month by a hearing officer appointed by the Idaho Health and Welfare Board.

Hardy had proposed to divert water from Box Canyon to neighboring Blind Canyon, where he wanted to develop a fish hatchery at the canyon's mouth.
Rep. Maxine Bell, R-Jerome, one of two Magic Valley JFAC members, said she would try to find money for the nutrient management program in a federal grant program that's expiring this year.
"If that doesn't work, Bell said, "I'll try to run a motion from the General Fund, but I don't feel there's much support for it."
Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, is that many lawmakers are upset with reports of unauthorized bonuses, unfilled positions and other suspect activities within state agencies, including DEQ.

The alternative, Buhl fish farmer and Idaho Aquaculture Association Executive Director Don Campbell said, is the imposition by the federal Environmental Protection Agency of a total management day load for the mid-Snake.
"That's a much more restrictive, and expensive, way of cleaning up the river," Campbell said, with costs estimated to be at least $100 million.
He added that the prospects for the nutrient management approach haven't been helped by the attempts of Boise developer Earl Hardy to scuttle the program.
Hardy's attorney, Boise attorney and former state senator Bill Ringert, reportedly has contacted some JFAC members and urged them not to fund the nutrient management program, Gurney said. She had spoken with Ringert, as well as program advocates.
Ringert was on vacation Thursday and could not be reached for comment.
Hardy owns the Rimview Trout hatchery and Box Canyon, both north of Buhl. He has been involved in several controversies involving water rights and water quality.

He said in the problems with DEQ, "we want to fund this program," said Cameron, the other JFAC member from the Magic Valley. "It's too important. I don't know where we're going to get the money from though."
Smith said nothing proposed by the Lees so far takes the place of dissection.
Linda Lee counters with a 1985 study cited in the Graham case that no significant difference in test scores by students who dissected and students who studied only textbooks and models received similar test scores.
The Lees say they will pursue the issue as far as they have to, because future students should have the option of not dissecting animals.
"I didn't create the problem," Jaime said. "It's been there all along. I just pointed it out."

"She's quite strong in her beliefs, and I can't question her beliefs," Smith said.
Neither Jaime nor her parents, who strongly support her stance, see themselves as radical animal rights activists.
Jim and Linda Lee both hunt, and the trophies hanging on the living room walls bear testament to their success.

He said the killing for food and other animal products like leather is quite different from slaughtering thousands of animals for classroom experimentation, they say.
"Our society is so immune to suffering," Linda Lee said. Students should not be forced to participate in the killing of animals, she said.

Jim Lee compares dissection to shooting a deer just to try out some new bullets, then leaving the carcass to rot.
Jaime admits she doesn't get much support from her classmates.
"They all say 'It's already dead, so what's the problem?'" she said.
She is not the first person to oppose classroom dissection.

Welfare will cover almost half that cost.
"The county has allocated $125,000 in current budget and $125,000 to borrow $640,000 more."
The county bought land in the city's industrial park for the center and plans to open construction bids next month.
"Bless said the county has received several commitments, and hopes that heavy competition for the job will drive down the price.

"Once the 18-bed facility is built, 12 beds will be available to other Magic Valley counties who must pay Twin Falls County for their use."
The Idaho Constitution requires that counties can only borrow money with the approval of two-thirds of the voters, except for "ordinary and necessary expenses."
Holding a bond election would be expensive, Bless said.
If the project is stalled again, the state could withdraw its $740,000 grant and leave the county in "an emergency situation," Bless said.

Under provisions of the grant, the project was to be up and running by now, but the state has been lenient because the county has been moving forward with plans for the detention center and necessary expenses."
Renting bed space in other detention centers and driving juveniles long distances is expensive, Bless said.

Sheriff considers Fino top suspect, despite verdict

By Douglas S. Jones
Mini-Cassia News Service

RUPERT — Minidoka County Sheriff Paul Fries says the acquittal of Jerry Fino leaves officials with no additional suspects in the Randy Walker killing. But Fries vowed he wouldn't let the matter drop.

"The case won't be closed," Fries said. Fino, 18, was found not guilty Thursday of the first-degree murder of pawnshop owner Randy Walker and attempted first-degree murder of pawnshop customer Beulah Knutsen. The jury deliberated 3 1/2 hours.

The sheriff said he still considers Fino the most-likely suspect and hopes further investigation will bring new charges against him.

"If there is new evidence and stuff we'll go to the attorneys and see if we can get the charges re-filed against Fino," Fries said.

Professor Myron Schreck, who teaches criminal procedure at the University of Idaho's College of Law, said he doubts that murder charges could ever be re-filed against Fino because of the U.S. Constitution's Fifth Amendment prohibition of double jeopardy.

"Double jeopardy refers to subjecting a person to a second trial for the same offense,"

Minidoka County adds up expenses of trial

By Eric Goodell
Mini-Cassia News Service

RUPERT — Officials aren't certain yet how much the Jerry Fino murder trial will cost the county.

On Thursday, a jury acquitted Fino, 18, of first-degree murder charges in the slaying of Rupert pawnshop owner Randy Walker and attempted first-degree murder of Beulah Knutsen.

Minidoka County Commissioner Norm Seibold said the bills for various services will probably slowly trickle into the commissioner's office.

Seibold said one of the biggest expenses would be the bill from Randy Stoker of Twin Falls, Fino's court-appointed attorney. The attorney's salary was not determined before his hiring, and after some dispute, the court set Stoker's salary at $100 per hour, his regular fee.

"This will be the first time we've had appointed council for such a lengthy trial," Seibold said. The trial took about two weeks, with an additional week devoted to jury selection.

But the county did receive one break. The state attorney general's office agreed to prosecute the case without charging a fee.

Seibold said the office is only billing the county for lodging and meal expenses.

Extra security was another expense, although that amounted to only about $300.

Doris Hoch of Rupert, who testified she went to the hardware store that morning to purchase a bolt for her pickup's license plate. While attaching the bolt to her pickup, she heard a scream, looked up and saw a man, described as a Caucasian with long, dark brown hair, chasing a woman with shoulder-length hair who several defendants go guilty, unless the defendant witnesses say they saw fleeing the pawnshop.

Knutsen, near the door of the pawnshop.

They include: Knutsen, who was attacked after entering Walker's pawnshop in Rupert and who described the man she saw as a Caucasian with long, dark, brown hair.

$400, Seibold said. Beefed-up security measures were evident at the trial, although a lot of law enforcement officers volunteered their time, said Seibold and Minidoka County Sheriff Paul Fries.

Seibold said commissioners wanted to get a good defense attorney for Fino, remembering Jaimi Charbonneau's murder trial that was appealed several times, creating a steep bill in Jerome County.

"That was, almost bankruptcy," Seibold said.

Seibold said the county's total solid-waste fee plan got to sit in the hot seat Thursday night.

Only 12 county residents turned out at the meeting at the College of Southern Idaho. But they did not hesitate to say they thought the one-time uniform $50 fee favors businesses and apartment and mobile home residents.

"How in the world did you come up with a $50 fee for a mobile home park with 80 people living in it?" asked Gene Shuff, "Is that fair?"

Shuff said he does not necessarily oppose the fee but only wants to pay his fair share.

Another man said that businesses in the Magic Valley Mall are getting off free because the fee for the whole mall is only $50.

"I have no objection to paying my $50, but I also feel that every business should pay too," he said.

Members of the waste fee committee said they asked the same questions in devising the fee.

"After countless 7 a.m. meetings, we came to the conclusion there is no one perfect system," committee member Brent Jessel said.

Several people in the audience said that the committee caved in to business interests. But the committee members said that businesses will pay more because of higher tipping fees.

Engineer Steve Freiburger cited Universal Frozen Foods as an example.

When the county commission sent oversight committee, to keep the audit free from party politics.

The main point of contention is whether the audits should be contracted out to the private sector, as Andrus wants, or left to the discretion of the oversight committee, as Newcomb prefers.

Newcomb's bill creates a legislative management systems analyst, who would be authorized to evaluate the performance of state agencies, boards and commissions, as well as cities, counties, school districts and other taxing agencies.

The audits would look at, among other things, how effectively programs are being administered; the cost-benefit ratios of programs; whether agencies are fulfilling legislative intent in administering programs; and whether programs are meeting the goals and agencies are living up to their mission statements.

The analyst and his staff would be supervised by a balanced, bipartisan Rupert resident and former insurance salesman Tom Pierce, who testified he was also one of the first to try to help the fallen Walker and also said he saw a Caucasian man chasing Knutsen.

Kristine Gibbs, a Boise resident who was an employee at the pawnshop at the time, testified she saw two men, one with brown hair and the other with black, running from the direction of the pawnshop door.

Jerry D. Fredrickson, another Area Hardware customer, testified he saw a man with brown hair chasing a woman who looked to be a small child. Knutsen stands 4-foot-11.

Also, within hours of the killing on April 13, police released three composite drawings of a suspect described as a white male; between 30 to 40, five-foot nine inches to six feet tall, 180-190 pounds, with long, brown hair.

Fino was 17 when arrested and is five-foot-eight inches tall, 150 pounds with short, black hair.

Fries who interviewed Knutsen shortly after the killing said he didn't remember her saying anything about a Caucasian with long, dark, brown hair.

When I asked her she did not describe a Caucasian," he said.

One of Twin Falls' oldest residents dies at age 105

By Terrell Williams
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Valene Crockett said her father, Jacob E. Arrington, never stopped planning for the next day.

Arrington also never stopped moving, leading an active life in construction and real estate and mowing his own lawn till he was 101.

A pioneer resident of the Magic Valley and one of its oldest residents, Arrington died of pneumonia Wednesday at age 105.

But Crockett said her father led a life of satisfaction, had good health and never took medications.

"He lived a very good life," she said. "He didn't abuse his body in any way. He used no alcoholic beverages and, of course, didn't smoke. He didn't drink a lot of pop or eat junk food."

Crockett, 64, said longevity runs in the family. Arrington's grandmother lived to be 102, and his sister, who just bought her second computer, is 95.

Born Oct. 19, in Tennessee in 1887, when Grover Cleveland was president and when Thomas Edison invented the first motor-driven phonograph, Arrington, one of 10 children, moved to Twin Falls in 1911.

Crockett said her father helped install the first water system in Twin Falls and worked on the construction of the feed and ice building, the old post office and the short-lived street car line between Twin Falls and Shoshone Falls.

At age 65, he began a new career in real estate and kept his license active until he was almost 90.

"He became an avid fisherman when he was 81," Crockett said. "And, after that, he built three houses at Magic Dam."

At age 86, he fell eight feet off the scaffolding of the third house he was building and, with two crushed heels, drove himself to the hospital in Twin Falls.

"It was predicted that he would never walk again, but he said he would go hunting that fall, and he did," Crockett said.

Arrington's hands were calloused from years of hard work, she recalled.

"With a smile, he would proudly say, 'Other men my age have soft, flabby hands. They just have no hands like at all,'" Crockett said.

Arrington was a devout Mormon who attended church regularly.

Crockett said her father's philosophy was, "Plan something so you can look forward to tomorrow."

"He was very outgoing and worked hard and loved people and loved life," Crockett said. "He lived life to the fullest."

Andrus, Newcomb butt heads on performance audits

By Drew DeSilver
Times-News writer

BOISE — House Majority Leader Bruce Newcomb says he wants performance evaluations of state agencies. Gov. Cecil Andrus says he wants performance evaluations of state agencies.

But it doesn't look likely that the Burley Republican and the Boise Democrat are any more likely to reach an agreement on the issue this year than they were the last two years.

The House State Affairs Committee on Thursday unanimously approved Newcomb's latest plan for systematically evaluating the efficiency and effectiveness of state agencies, known as performance evaluations or performance audits.

But, although Newcomb's bill is likely to sail through the House and the Senate, it will run smack into the big red "VETO" stamp Andrus keeps in his desk drawer for special occasions.

Both men agree that state government should be regularly assessed to see how well it's doing its job and what improvements can or should be made.

Where they differ is how to do that.

Newcomb's bill creates a legislative management systems analyst, who would be authorized to evaluate the performance of state agencies, boards and commissions, as well as cities, counties, school districts and other taxing agencies.

The audits would look at, among other things, how effectively programs are being administered; the cost-benefit ratios of programs; whether agencies are fulfilling legislative intent in administering programs; and whether programs are meeting the goals and agencies are living up to their mission statements.

The analyst and his staff would be supervised by a balanced, bipartisan oversight committee, to keep the audit free from party politics.

The main point of contention is whether the audits should be contracted out to the private sector, as Andrus wants, or left to the discretion of the oversight committee, as Newcomb prefers.

It was a glorious speech, but the details fall short

Does anyone remember a more moving presidential address to Congress?

President Clinton was masterful Wednesday night. He spoke in the phrases of a statesman rather than of a partisan politician. To his Republican rivals he offered conciliation. To taxpayers, he offered hope and the opportunity to participate in building a better future.

A beautiful speech. But the numbers — oh, dear, the numbers!

An Clinton's video fanned out to sell his program Thursday, its details were being exposed to sharp pencils and the glare of daylight. And what daylight showed was far less encouraging than Clinton's beautiful rhetoric.

The real numbers show that Clinton's plan would reduce the deficit by a projected $325 billion over four years — well short of the $500 billion his administration has been talking about.

And the bulk of the deficit reductions are the wrong kind. Rep. John Kasich, R-Ohio, ranking Republican on the House Budget Committee, delved into the plan's details and fished out this sobering revelation: In its first year, Clinton's plan relies on $36 billion in tax increases and only $2 billion in spending reductions.

When Clinton talks about shared sacrifice, alas, he appears to be asking taxpayers to sacrifice a far bigger share than the government will.

Early polls reflected the stirring nature of Clinton's oratory. In one poll, 74 percent supported his plan; in another the figure was 79 percent.

But that's not surprising. Clinton went on national television and talked about a lot of fine things he wants to do: summer jobs for inner-city youth; universal immunization for children; full funding for Head Start.

Describing exciting new programs while dodging hard decisions about deficit reduction is the easy way out. Just such an approach is what created, enlarged and sustained our monster deficit.

Clinton's plan has some much-needed elements, including a freeze on federal pay and higher taxes on the wealthiest retirees. But he sidestepped the politically treacherous (though fiscally essential) topics of reining in entitlements and pruning the bureaucracy.

No one can disagree with Clinton's basic assertion — that failing to act would condemn the next generations to "a lesser life and a diminished destiny."

Yes, act we must. But we also must act rightly. Taxing, spending, relying on the government instead of the private sector to be the agent of job creation?

There must be more spending cuts for Clinton's proposal to be credible. Otherwise, he's touting just another tax program. That's the bottom line, and all of Clinton's beautiful rhetoric cannot change it.

Thanks to medical personnel

My wife and I have lived in Twin Falls almost 22 years now, and my mother has lived here eight years. In that period of time, the three of us have had several major surgeries, have probably used the emergency ward at the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center eight to 10 times and have also had opportunity to use the ambulance and Same Day Services.

We feel that we need to say how grateful we are for the doctors, nurses and medical personnel we have in this community and how fortunate we are to have such a fine facility as the MVRMC. We have never had a bad experience there.

I was reminded of this about a month ago when I had major surgery at the MVRMC. I wanted to give a special word of thanks to the nurses on 3-N. They were especially caring and professional. They will not be soon forgotten.

We all complain about medical bills, but the TV said recently that Idaho has the lowest cost of hospital services in the nation, except for the state of Mississippi. All the more reason to thank the medical personnel of our community for the many things they do for us so well.

Clinton's actions akin to Johnson and Nixon

At the end of the worst first month of a modern presidency, there lingers, in fading echo, the word "covenant." That word, which epitomizes Clinton's relationship with government and citizenry, means, in a democracy, a solemn promise to keep promises.

George F. Will

The fraying of Clinton's covenant with the electorate is pertinent to this question: Which president does Clinton resemble? Not Kennedy, whose tax cut ignited a boom. Rather, Clinton resembles the two presidents of his politically formative years, Johnson and Nixon.

Clinton's conduct since the campaign marks his campaign as the most discontinuous since at least 1964, when Johnson disguised his intentions regarding Vietnam. Also, Clinton's plans for expanding government's graspingness and bossiness resemble Johnson's.

And Nixon's, whose administration oversaw explosive growth of the regulatory state. Nixon's wage and price controls (Clinton is contemplating control-by-edict of prices in the health care field) were the most radical extension of federal power into economic life since the 1930s.

One economic promise about which Clinton remains punctilious is one he should abandon — his promise to stimulate the economy, which is surging. What is breathtaking about Clinton's pork-laden stimulus package — fine-tuning tax credits, grants for state and local governments, Amtrak, road repairs — is its banality. For this you do not need to go to Oxford, you just need to have gone to sleep 20 years ago. His larger program — tax increases, defense cuts, domestic spending increases, "administrative efficiencies," proposed domestic cuts, most of which will not materialize — hardly amounts to "re-inventing government."

(The myriad tax increases now proposed are just hours of oeuvre for the administration, New York Times headline, Feb. 17: "2-Dozen New Taxes Weighed to Pay For U.S. Health Care.")

Evidence of Clinton's tepid enthusiasm for cutting spending: He talked for 61 minutes Wednesday evening without finding time to revisit his old endorsement of a line-item veto.

George Stephanopoulos, Clinton's spokesman, promises a "reversal of Reaganism." Reaganism was a 93-months of growth, low inflation, declining interest rates and unemployment, almost 19 million new jobs, exports nearly doubled, one-third increase in real GNP. Clinton may indeed keep his promise to reverse this.

Still, Clinton has worked one miracle: several million Americans overnight have joined the ranks of the rich. He says that the proof that he plans to tax mostly "the rich" is the fact that 70 percent of the increases will fall on families earning more than $100,000. Well, A mid-level kind nurse in the Northeast earns $49,000; if her husband is a New York City school principal, his starting salary was $69,776. Clinton says it is time such people paid for their opulence.

Japan's economy is reeling, Germany's growth rate has lagged behind America's since the 1970s and the U.S. is shrinking. Both Britain and France have double-digit unemployment. In spite of the Carter stagflation and Bush recession, real per capita after-tax income has increased 34 percent in 20 years — America's estimated 6 percent share of the world's total product is about what it was in 1965; and in 1938; and 1900.

Why, then, the rhetoric about decline? To stampede the public to accept more stimulus? But there is one real decline that Clinton's program should reverse: that of the GOP.

Conservatism's vitality is linked to the public's disgust with the political class. Clinton's multiplying apostasies, from his campaign themes and promises — from all that was supposed to define a "new Democrat" — are, to say no more, not calculated to enhance the reputation of the political class.

Consider again, Clinton's stimulus. If government raises $3 billion in new taxes and sends out an equal amount billions in "stimulus," the result is not, as Democrats see it, a wash.

Rather, the result is "progressive" because government has gained yet more ground in reducing the scope of private choice and increasing the permeation of life by politics.

That is the liberalism of "new Democrats," as of old ones. Will Congress cooperate?

Perhaps. But the House in which Clinton spoke Wednesday evening is composed of 435 members, all of whom did better than Clinton's 42.9 percent in November.

Fifteen of them ran unopposed, 104 won more than 70 percent of the vote; 252 got more than 60 percent; the average of those who voted against opposition was 63.1 percent, substantially better than even Clinton's 53.4 percent of the two-party vote. They may not defer to his political judgment.

All of them will face the voters again in 20 months. Most of them probably understand that if Clinton had said six months ago what he is saying now, he would still be living in Little Rock.

Wakeup! Save America!

We are watching and participating in the destruction of America as the conspirators complete its socialization, destruction of its industry and our enslavement.

Either we awaken to this fact or suffer the consequences. Our socialist, elected representatives have made no attempt to be anything from the producers to care for the non-producers. They are closing the doors on free America. They plan to do all of your thinking for you before.

No more commercial zoning

On Feb. 9, Planning and Zoning voted to change zoning on property at Pole Line Road and North Washington from residential to commercial. Do we really need more commercial zoning? I don't think so.

For every development, there is an empty building somewhere that will become an eyesore. I urge all residents of Twin Falls to become informed regarding planning and zoning at both the city and the county level. Zoning has an effect on all areas of the city, not just the immediate area under discussion.

Look around and decide if you favor the direction the city has taken. I, for one, do not like the look of Southern California sprawl that has developed. Make your opinions known. Call City Hall. Let's not throw what is left of Twin Falls away.

Bible clears up gay issue

Much has been written about homosexuals and the different opinions people have. I wish to comment on this one particular sin that's running rampant.

The Bible is our guideline to live by. God gave us certain rules so we wouldn't get hurt or hurt anyone else. In Leviticus 20:13, it says, "A man shall not lie with a man as with a woman."

If we do it, it is detestable. The first book of Romans talks against it, so how can some pastors say it's OK?

It's confusing. Can you imagine how confused an adopted child of homosexual parents would be with his or her own sexual identity? We pattern after our parents — son wants to be like Dad and daughter like Mom.

And if we allow gays to teach in our school system, how confused these students would be. We've all had teachers we've been influenced by.

Idaho Air National Guard will be sent to Middle East by April

BOISE (AP) — An Idaho Air National Guard unit with up to 100 personnel will be in the Middle East by April 1 to help enforce United Nations resolutions regarding the southern "no-fly" zone in Iraq.

Air Guard officials announced Thursday that elements of the 124th Fighter Group at Gowen Field have been requested for a 180-day rotation to support the Joint Task Force of Southwest Asia.

The group flies the McDonnell Douglas F-4G "Wild Weasel" — a specialty equipped fighter designed to hunt and destroy enemy surface-to-air missile sites.

U.S., French and British planes are enforcing aerial exclusion zones over northern and southern Iraq while U.N. inspectors determine whether Iraq is complying with cease-fire resolutions that ended the Gulf War.

Under the cease-fire terms, the Iraqis must dismantle and dismantle missiles and weapons of mass destruction and the facilities for developing and producing them.

"The Wild Weasel's mission is critical because they clear a path-through enemy territory for U.S. and coalition fighters and bombers should military action be necessary," said Maj. Gen. Darrell Manning, commanding general of the Idaho National Guard. "Idaho Guard air crews, ground support personnel and some of our aircraft will integrate into the active Air Force units already deployed in the region."

L. Darren Blagburn said "host nation sensitivities and operational security" prevent Air Guard officials from saying exactly where the Idaho personnel will be going or to which Air Force unit they will be attached.

The 124th Fighter Group's exact departure date also is not yet known, but Blagburn said not more than 100 officers, and enlisted personnel will be involved.

Both part-time and full-time Air Guard members will take part in the mission over the next six months.

"We will work with our members' families and employers to ensure the difficulties that arise due to this mission are kept to a minimum," Manning said. "We are always very concerned about our impact on the community and employers."

It will be the first operational deployment for the group since it was consolidated at Gowen Field in 1991 from various Air Force units throughout the country.

But Blagburn said some 124th Fighter Group personnel were activated and served in the Gulf War.

Teen pleads guilty to concealing weapon

MOSCOW — A Polish Junior High School boy has pleaded guilty in 2nd District Court in Moscow to misdemeanor for brandishing a weapon and concealing it during a recent handgun incident at the school.

A second junior high school boy Wednesday pleaded innocent to one felony count of grand theft and two misdemeanor counts for allegedly concealing the handgun before selling it to another minor.

The first boy is scheduled to be sentenced March 31 in juvenile court by Magistrate Stephen Callahan of Nezperce. A maximum 30 days of detention is possible on each count.

A trial for the second boy is to be held the same day at the Latah County Courthouse. In addition to a possible 30 days of detention for each misdemeanor, an additional 90 days detention could be imposed for the felony.

Company does research at Pend Oreille

BAYVIEW — A Maryland company has received a $16.1 million contract to continue operations at the U.S. Navy Research Center at Lake Pend Oreille.

Tracor Applied Sciences will provide maintenance, logistics and engineering support for the Large Scale Vehicle self-propelled model submarine and its support facilities.

K. Bruce Hamilton, president of the company, said Tracor will continue to support advanced submarine design and development programs by providing a means to test and evaluate various submarine component designs. Tracor has provided these services to the U.S. Navy since 1987. Alan D. Mason will continue to serve as on-site program manager in Bayview.

Memorial could change species act

BOISE — The Idaho House unanimously passed a memorial asking Congress to change the Endangered Species Act so that it takes economics into account.

The intent of the memorial passed Wednesday, which goes to the state Senate for approval, is to convince Congress that the activities of people should be given more weight when a decision is made to protect a species under the Endangered Species Act.

Environmentalists have long opposed such a provision, arguing it would substantially weaken the act's ability to save species from extinction.

Idaho Demos pan power company's plan

BOISE — New and old questions about Washington Water Power Co.'s proposed Rathdrum gas-powered generation plant have surfaced, with some Idaho Democrats calling "unquestioning acceptance or endorsement" of the turbine "irresponsible."

In a prepared statement Wednesday, nine northern Idaho Democrats stopped short of opposing the turbine project, but raised eight questions they said need answering before it proceeds.

Their concerns ranged from environmental to financial, and Sen. Barb Chamberlain — author of the statement — also questioned Rathdrum's industrial annexation of what had been designated by the county as agricultural land.

Lottery executive hits the jackpot

BOISE — Sept. 13, 1991, was Idaho State Lottery Executive Director Wally Hedrick's lucky day.

That's when Hedrick — who makes a regular annual salary of $55,161 — hit the jackpot when he was issued an $8.62 million bonus.

Hedrick's take was legally approved by the five-member Idaho Lottery Commission. It was also the largest amount given to any of the 2,071 state employees who received bonuses in fiscal year 1992 — which ended June 30.

A list released Tuesday by State Auditor J.D. Williams said those state employees were paid bonuses of $500 or more. In all, $1.4 million was paid out.

On Wednesday, Hedrick defended his place on the list, which showed 21 other employees in the lottery office were paid bonuses ranging from $501 to $1,000.

"We were trying to reward people for their hard work and we were trying to give a small stipend to everyone who worked for the lottery," Hedrick said.

Bonner County tries to ease jail jam

SANDPOINT — Bonner County is considering specially designed mobile cells to ease crowding in its jail.

Commissioners said they would decide next month on Sheriff Chip Roos's request for installation of a 12-bed portable cell for work-release inmates behind the courtroom.

Roos also asked that commissioners consider installing a set of portable jail units on county-owned property near the fairgrounds.

"We have to start looking at some serious options. We are pouring enormous amounts of money down the tubes operating the current facility," the sheriff said.

Keeton: Do something about river algae

By Terrell Williams
Times-News correspondent

Keeton

HAGERMAN — Teddy Keeton, a one-time candidate for state Senate, said if the algae has choked the Middle Snake River enough to stop Clay, Cecil Andrus' boat mid-stream, it's time for development on the river to come to a halt.

Keeton, along with up to 80 people, turned out Wednesday in Hagerman to plead for the halt of construction on the ailing river.

Keeton referred to an incident this summer when Andrus was inspecting the river with state officials.

Six members of the state Water Resources Board took testimony from 25 people, most of whom commended the board's draft of the Comprehensive State Water Plan for the Middle Snake River that recommends stopping construction.

"I was ticked to death with the support," board Chairman Dave Rydatch said. "It was nice to have some public support for one of our plans."

The board's draft plan covers 90 miles of the river from Milner Dam to King Hill. Rydatch said the board will meet to adopt or reject the plan on March 17. If adopted, it will go to the Legislature for a vote next year.

Meanwhile, he emphasized, temporary protection for the river will continue as passed by law.

L.B. Industries, a Boise developer, hopes to build hydroelectric plants at Boulder, Empire and Kanaka rapids, north of Buhl.

Bryan Ravenscroft of Hagerman was the sole speaker to voice support for hydroelectric development, Miss Hysteria, primarily due to the media, he said, makes the public think that every hydro bid is bad, he told the board.

Ravenscroft gave several examples to show how hydro projects have been environmentally beneficial to fish populations, have reduced sediment flowing into the river and have created jobs to help the economy.

But John Clifford said he has traveled all over the world and has seen what development can do to picturesque places.

"I don't want that to happen here," he told the board. "If a dam is put in a river, you can't just pick it up and take it out whenever it's convenient." Rod Rees of Glens Ferry said hydro plants cause irreversible environmental damage, and he criticized the efforts of developers to undermine the dam.

Catherine Wright said she, too, opposes any more construction of hydro projects.

"I support what you're trying to do to protect the river," she said. "Each dam that isn't put in will help a little bit."

Aldrich Bowler, who sells pottery from his home overlooking the river, said the scenic beauty draws many customers from far away. However, he said, the river is dying and needs to be taken care of.

Bill Smallwood, the author of a college biology textbook, said everyone has dreams that their children will be able to enjoy the river as their ancestors have.

"That river is a sick river," Smallwood said. "But there's hope for it."

Also, Richard Goutley, Bill Smallwood, Jim Luntz, Cal Butler, Rick Lauda, Richard Kelly, Ned Swisher, Jack Belk, Brad Minoa, Kelly Murphy, Mary Luacchie and Ron Folkings all testified against hydro development.

No smoking for staff, patrons of Filer schools

By Bertille L. Redfern
Times News correspondent

FILER — From now on, people will not be allowed to smoke while at Filer schools.

School Board members adopted a no smoking policy for Filer School District staff and visitors this week.

Smoking will not be allowed in any of the district's buildings, and it is banned on school grounds during regular school hours. People may smoke outside during extracurricular activities when classes are not in session.

Board members debated the issue before trustees voted 4-to-1 in favor of the new policy Tuesday.

One board member, Robert Foster, urged board members to ban smoking from school grounds, as well as buildings. Foster said this would better coincide with the drug-free policy the school currently enforces. But the rest of the board, along with several principals, felt such a policy would be difficult to enforce.

Foster asked how other school districts were handling the issue. Elementary Principal Wes Remaley said that Twin Falls and Kimberly school districts have only barred smoking in school buildings.

Board member Dave Ramsey said it might discourage attendance at activities if no smoking were allowed on school grounds. He added that second-hand smoke didn't pose the same problem out in the open as it does in enclosed areas.

In other business:

The board agreed to allow Filer High School students to participate in a three-year baseball cooperative with Buhl. The only expense will be to participating students who will have to pay an athletic fee. The cooperative contract does stipulate that only five students from Filer may participate, and the contract may be broken at any time by either party.

Two science field trips to the University of Utah were approved for Ed Richard's biology and chemistry students.

The board will donate $50 to the Salmon Tract Rural Fire Protection District and will allow school facilities to be used for raising funds.

New bingo bill requires contributions to charity

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Legislature is working on a new bingo law that would require "charitable organizations" to make substantial contributions to charities to run the games.

A subcommittee of the House State Affairs Committee made final revisions Thursday afternoon to legislation that will be sent to the full committee later. Rep. Bill Deal, R-Nampa, said the intent was to come up with a law that will allow legitimate organizations to hold bingo games and raffles but curtail commercial operations.

Earlier proposals limited the number of bingo sessions that could be held.

But the latest version has no limits on sessions, although it limits prize amounts.

Although committee members said there might be some last-minute revisions on the percentages, the bill requires charitable organizations to pay out at least 50 percent of gross receipts in prizes, 30 percent in contributions to the sponsoring organization and no more than 20 percent could be spent for operational costs.

"It will only allow the true charitable organizations to play." Deal said.

Sarajevans scrimp, steal, barter and borrow for food

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Sarajevans have learned to make cheese from milk powder and stretch their rice by eating it as a soup.

They enjoy black market meat without asking questions about what it is or how it died. The Sarajevo City Council declared a boycott of U.N. food a week ago in solidarity with starving Muslims in eastern Bosnia. U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees Sadako Ogata cut off most aid shipments Wednesday.

Lifestyles haven't changed too much in the past week. The city's 380,000 residents have always missed, if painfully, to supplement the 10 ounces of U.N. food aid allotted each person per day.

Mothers eat less so their children can have more. Communal cooking has come back into fashion, as has barter.

Women with babies trade canned fish for fresh milk. Single elderly women with extra rice cook with neighbors who have salt, oil and fuel.

Fardus Sultan, 18, said her cousin "puts bread in the mouth of her 7-month-old baby and lets him suck it to be satisfied." The mother cannot nurse, and the family has one box of baby powdered milk left.

Scima Semirovic, who lives with her family of eight, said, "We saved a bag of rice, and that's all we're eating. We mix a lot of water with a little rice, and we make a soup."

Tips on the creative use of ready-to-eat meals and other aid packets are swapped in Sarajevo as briskly as the ingredients.

Families who live on the edges of the city, although under near-constant shelling, continue to milk cows and collect eggs. They sell or trade what they cannot use, and occasionally the state butcher picks up a cow that died and takes it to the central market for sale.

"Dead Cow" has become the generic term for any meat available at the central market. It's rare — a household may get some every two weeks.

Sarajevans collect their U.N.-supplied aid packages by showing their I.D. cards at city-run distribution centers around the city.

Food is also gotten through bribery, connections, and theft. Soldiers can sometimes be seen standing behind a checkpoint, slipping a packet of food into a woman's open bag. Depending on whether or not she is a relative, money or cigarettes may change hands.

At the outset of the war, Sarajevo's stores, businesses and shops were systematically looted. Stacks of brand new plastic bags, bicycles, multi-packs of gum, rolls of toilet paper, or cosmetics now find their way to the metal tables of Sarajevo's central market.

They are mostly sold for cigarettes or German marks, the basic currencies for the purchase of extra food, fuel, imported liquor or other luxuries.

Ismeta Ahmedagic, 36, does the best business at the market. She sells a bitter, beer, tasting of barley from a speedy distillation, at two German marks ($630) per bottle.

That's twice what it sells for at the brewery, but the brewery is sometimes shelled.

While her customers drank and argued about the aid boycott, four mortar shells landed nearby, rattling the long metal table.

Canadian troops fire on mob

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — A sniper wounded an Australian soldier on foot patrol in a market Thursday, and Canadian troops killed one Somali and wounded two in a mob of stone-throwing protesters, officials said.

Meanwhile, Marine Col. Fred Peck announced that nearly 3,000 more American troops are to leave Somalia beginning next week.

U.S.-led forces have faced scattered violence since they arrived Dec. 9 to impose order and ensure that relief shipments reach people stricken by war and famine. Four Americans have died, including two Marines killed by gunfire. None of the other 22 nations in the coalition has suffered a fatality. No precise figures on Somalis killed are available, but the number is believed to exceed two dozen.

Peck announced Thursday that almost 3,000 American troops would leave Somalia starting next week, including 2,200 from the U.S. Army's 3rd Battalion, 14th Infantry based at Fort Drum in New York and other units.

The withdrawal will include 25 Army helicopters and four Marine helicopters and 250 Air Force personnel, Peck said.

That will reduce the U.S. presence in Somalia to about 15,000 troops and support staff.

The shooting incident involving Canadian troops occurred Wednesday in Belet Huen, 200 miles north of Mogadishu, Canadian Col. Serge Labbe said at a news briefing.

He said the Canadian soldiers fired two warning shots and two aimed shots after about 300 protesters threw stones at them. One Somali was killed and two were wounded.

A third Somali was injured, but Labbe said he believed it was unrelated to the shooting.

ANC agrees to govern with whites

SOWETO, South Africa — The African National Congress formally agreed on Thursday to govern jointly with whites and other parties for up to five years after the end of apartheid.

The announcement, following three days of meetings by the ANC's top leaders, was seen as an important compromise in the delicate black-white political negotiations.

But the ANC also tried to assure supporters it would hold the strongest share of power if, as expected, it captured the country's first all-race election.

Peruvian officers receive sentences

LIMA, Peru — A military court Thursday handed down prison sentences ranging from six months to eight years to 28 military officers who plotted a 1992 coup, their lawyers said.

Ret. Gen. Jaime Salinas Soto, who masterminded the plan to overthrow President Alberto Fujimori on Nov. 13 and replace him with his former vice president, received the harshest sentence: eight years and a $285,000 fine.

Another 27 retired and active officers received prison sentences ranging from six months to seven years, according to Enrique Gutierrez, a lawyer for one of the officers. Four officers were acquitted.

Murder of tourist yields 3 suspects

CAIRO, Egypt — Police have arrested three suspects in the murder and robbery of an American tourist, an Interior Ministry spokesman said Thursday.

Rita E. Arias, 63, of Coral Gables, Fla., disappeared on Feb. 5 after arriving at Cairo International Airport to join an archaeological tour.

Her strangled body was found two days later in the desert between Cairo and Suez, 80 miles east of Cairo.

Germany drops charge against guard

BERLIN — An attempted murder charge was dropped Thursday against an East-German border guard who was immortalized by photographs showing him pointing a pistol at men trying to flee over the Berlin Wall.

Former guard Capt. Karl-Heinz Becker was the eighth border guard to come to trial since Germany reunited and prosecutors began filing charges against security people who killed East Germans trying to flee to the West.

CSI cast looks beneath the surface in 'The Foreigner'

By Jim Wilkie
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Things aren't always what they seem in "The Foreigner," but director Tony Mannen says he expects the audience's enjoyment from the play to be obvious.

The success of another Larry Shue-written play, "The Nerd," two years ago and an experienced cast leave the College of Southern Idaho drama instructor confident about another popular production.

When choosing the latest CSI Drama Department play, Mannen says it was time for sophomore students to do a comedy.

"I like to give the kids a taste of everything," Mannen says. "The Foreigner" offers seven equally good parts for seven good actors, Mannen says.

Meeks' home and business for sinister reasons. A redneck, Owen Musser, plotting to steal Meeks' home out from under her, appoints himself county property inspector.

Michael Rowe says he enjoys being pushed to portray the clever and sometimes crazy Musser.

"If people walk out hating me then I've done my job," Rowe says.

Baker pretends to be a quick study and, by listening to other characters' troubles, he lifts the spirits of all the characters except the "xenophobic jerks."

"Charlie makes the good guys feel good about themselves. He's someone to talk to," Mannen says.

Richard Bramburger, who plays LeSueur, says Baker boosts the self-esteem of a dumb character, Elard Simms, by giving him credit for teaching him English.

"Charlie believes in Ellard so Ellard can believe in himself and grow," Bramburger says.

Similar cases of looking beyond the surface of a character continue throughout "The Foreigner."

Epitomizing this for Bramburger and other cast members is a line by Catherine Simms (Edie K. Aslett), used to describe Baker: "Nobody is like him. Nobody is like anybody."

Other members of CSI's production of "The Foreigner" include David Steinocker as Rev. David Marshall Lee, Scott Smith as Ellard and Jason Pope and Kyle Hays as townspeople. The assistant to the director is Laurel Zimmerman.

Exposure exceeds honor at Grammy time

By Harry Sumrall
Knight-Ridder News Service

The sequined bustiers and black leather pants have been pulled from the closet, the limos rented, the acceptance speeches drafted. Now all that's left is for the record business and its stars to gather at the Shrine Auditorium in Los Angeles for the 35th Annual Grammy Awards, set to air at 7 p.m. Wednesday on CBS.

Who is going to take home a Grammy this year? Could it be Eric Clapton, who dominated the initial balloting with nine nominations? Or, perhaps, U2, or k.d. lang, or Billy Ray Cyrus, or Celine Dion and Peabo

Bryson, or Annie Lennox or Vanessa Williams — all of whom are competing in one or more of the major categories.

Should we care? Or, more to the point, should they? After all has been said and won, what does winning a Grammy Award really mean?

The initial significance is obvious. There is the honor itself, the acknowledgment of musical excellence by one's peers — the singers, producers, musicians, composers and engineers who make up the 7,000 voting members of the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences. There also is the ego-boosting thrill of basking in the media attention and strutting for a moment before the 1.2 billion viewers from 110 countries who are expected to tune into the broadcast.

But what does winning a Grammy do for an artist's career, from public perception to the proverbial bottom line? That's a trickier equation to tabulate and one whose results don't always add up.

Does the name Christopher Cross ring a bell? In 1981, Cross dominated the 23rd Grammys show, winning in the three top categories — record, album and song of the year for his eponymous debut album and the single "Riding with the King." He also won a best new artist. Based on such a debut, Cross was predicted to be one of the major pop

African-Americans find more access to pop charts

By David Bauder
The Associated Press

It was one historic moment in music that passed with little notice.

For one week in January, the 10 most popular songs in the United States as measured on Billboard's hot singles chart were all performed by black artists. That never happened before.

Whitney Houston, Boyz II Men, Shallice, Bobby Brown and others accomplished something that would have been unthinkable in the days of "Your Hit Parade" and Pat Boone's remakes of songs by Fats Domino and Little Richard. This year's 35th annual Grammy Awards has two black artists, Vanessa Williams and Peabo Bryson, nominated for the coveted record of the year and song of the year prizes. And black artists, long shipped to the rhythm and blues categories, are a strong presence in the top pop categories as well.

Williams and Mariah Carey are nominated for pop vocal, female; Bryson and Celine Dion are nominated for pop vocal, duo or group, as is Prince and the New Power Generation; Bobby Short and Nancy Wilson are each nominated in the traditional pop vocal category. But a decade ago, Jackson had difficulty getting his videos played on MTV.

"It shows ... that black culture is really mainstream culture," said Jimmy "Jam" Harris, a producer known for his work with Janet Jackson and others. "There are as many white kids buying Arrested Development's music as black kids."

A new golden age for African-American artists has coincided with changes in who's buying singles today and how the popularity of songs is measured.

The musical diversity featured on the charts during that historic week in January — and subsequent weeks in which Madonna, elbowed her way into the Top 10 — argues against easy answers about one style of music leading the charge. Houston's ballad, "I Will Always Love You," is a cover of a song by country artist Dolly Parton. Rap music has been represented by Wreckx-N-Effect, PM Dawn and Arrested Development.

Boyz II Men and Shallice are part of a resurgence in vocal harmonies. Mary J. Blige, Bobby Brown and others play dance-oriented pop, music in the soul tradition with a nod to the sharp rhythms of rap. All have in common the hooks and accessibility that define a classic "pop" song. "My music — especially 'I Love Your Smile' — is very universal. It's a song that people of all ages and all colors can relate

Oscar nominees ready to reap rewards

By Barry Koltow
Orange County Register

Hours after he was nominated for a best director Oscar for "Scent of a Woman," Martin Brest found time for one whale of an understatement.

"All I can say is that it beats a poke in the eye with a stick," he said.

Those who were not nominated — such as directors Spike Lee and Rob Reiner and actors Tom Cruise and Tim Robbins — know exactly what a poke in the eye feels like after being snubbed by their colleagues in the running for the 65th annual Academy Awards.

Nominees were announced in a pre-dawn ceremony Wednesday in Beverly Hills, and winners will be announced during a nationally televised program March 29.

"Now that it's over, this is the coolest thing imaginable," added Brest, 41, whose nomination is his first. "I tossed and turned all night and was really shocked when they called my name. I had expected Al (Pacino) to get nominated (he also was nominated for supporting actor in "Glengarry Glen Ross"), but I didn't think I'd get nominated."

"Waiting for them to call your name is like waiting to get a bad biopsy report. I can't say it was very much fun."

"Scent of a Woman" also was nominated for best picture, as was "The Crying Game," "A Few Good Men," "Howards End" and "Unforgiven."

Stephen Woolley, producer of "The Crying Game," was reached in London moments after his low-budget film picked up its six nominations, behind only the nine Oscar nods garnered by the big-budget "Howards End" and "Unforgiven."

"I was hoping (director) Neil (Jordan) would be nominated (he was), but I was stunned when we were named in the best picture category," the producer said. "There is an old English expression — 'over the moon' — and that's how I feel right now."

"I am very grateful to American audiences for taking to the film so much, and I am equally grateful to the people in the industry who apparently liked the movie enough to vote for it."

"I think part of the reason people in the movie industry like 'The Crying Game' so much is that it is the kind of movie they can't make anymore."

Robert Rehm, president of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, and actress Mercedes Ruehl announce nominations for the 65th annual Academy Awards in Beverly Hills, Calif., Wednesday.

Hollywood has become such big business that there is no way to make a good $4 million movie anymore.

Woolley said the movie, in 239 theaters, will be expanded to many more theaters this weekend to take advantage of the six nominations.

"You never know if widening a film at this time will help at the box office, but you just hope it works," he said.

Warner Bros. reportedly plans to release 800 prints of "Unforgiven" this week for the same reason.

"We don't have any figures for what a nomination means to a film at the box office, but we do know it provides a real boost," said Deborah Hanauer of Entertainment Data Inc., a Beverly Hills-based firm that computes box office figures for movie studios.

"While we don't know exactly what a nomination means, we do know that a best-picture Oscar means about $30 million in additional revenue," she said.

Hanauer said a big surprise in this year's list of nominations for best picture was the inclusion of two independent films — "Howards End" and "The Crying Game."

But the industry observer said an even bigger surprise was the exclusion of Reiner when his film "A Few Good Men" was nominated for best picture and the inclusion of director Altman when his film "The Player" was not nominated for best picture.

Stoic Clint Eastwood, nominated in acting and directing categories, would not comment on his first nominations, but double-nominee Pacino said it "certainly made my day."

"An Oscar nomination is an enormous thing in an actor's life," he added. "To have two in one year ... what can I say? It is very uplifting and wonderful."

The nominations are Pacino's seventh and eighth of his illustrious career, although he has never won. Michelle Pfeiffer picked up her third nomination for "Love Field," and she said in a prepared statement that she was "thrilled to be included in such a group of fine actors and great women."

Her fellow nominees include Catherine Deneuve, Mary McDonnell, Susan Sarandon and Emma Thompson, considered the favorite because she has swept the best actress award in every critics group across the country.

Robert Downey Jr., who received almost unanimous praise for his portrayal of Charlie Chaplin in "Chaplin," said he was stunned by his first nomination in the best-actor category. The film itself got mixed reviews.

"It is a little too much for me to digest right now," he said through his publicist. "I'm proud and honored, especially for Charlie."

Downey, Eastwood and Pacino are joined by Stephen Rea of "The Crying Game" and Denzel Washington of "Malcolm X" for best actor.

Parton tests country tastes

By David Hinckley
New York Daily News

Dolly Parton's new song "Romeo" suggests that when it comes to checking out some good-looking action, it's Juliet's turn — and we're about to get a clue whether America is ready for that idea.

"Romeo" — the first single from Parton's "Slow Dancing With the Moon" album, featuring Dolly and four of her friends — fellow singers Tanya Tucker, Kathy Mattea, Mary-Chapin Carpenter and Pam Tillis — is discussing a good-looking hunk in ladies'-night-out language.

Sample: "I may not be in love, but let me tell you I'm in heat."

Now this would not be unusual if the genders were reversed. Guys are always singing about the impact of a cute chick on their hormones.

But Parton's tune has stirred some controversy, with several radio stations around the country reporting that women think it's great and men don't think women should talk like this.

"A lot of country fans are conservative," says Del De Montreux, music director at New York country station WYNY. "When we first played the record, we got some negative response from people who thought it might be a wee bit lewd."

Once that first shock wave passed, De Montreux says, the station has heard no complaints. But the best test may come now, since the "Romeo" video made its national TV debut on ABC's Billy Ray Cyrus special Wednesday night.

The video features the five women sizing up Cyrus, whom Parton calls "the cutest guy in the honky-tonk."

Parton calls the song "all in fun. It's sexy, not sexist." But she acknowledges not everyone agrees: "I guess some men think it's only OK if guys do this sort of thing."

De Montreux agrees with her. "If it were a bunch of guys ogling a woman, it would be OK. Maybe everyone isn't ready for Good Ol' Girls yet."

He also notes Parton has written about sexy guys before — back to 1977's "Here You Come Again": "Here you come again/Lookin' better than a body has a right to/And shakin' me up so ..."

Ultimately, however, "Romeo" will rise or fall as music, not as a novelty. "It seems to be doing very well so far," De Montreux says, but adds that it will be another few weeks before research determines exactly what kind of, er, legs it really has.

Naive, trusting lender's day in court yields a happy ending

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you about the letter signed "Practically Broke in Iowa." I also loaned some money to a friend, and after that I couldn't find him. He never answered my letters, and I couldn't get him on the telephone.

Dear Abby
Abigail
VanBuren

After three years, I took my family's advice. Even though this man had been a very good friend of mine, I took him to small claims court. I didn't think I had a chance of getting my money back because, like the man who wrote to you, I didn't have anything in writing. I was foolish, I know, but I really was naive and trusting, because we were such good friends.

So, sometimes a verbal agreement is just as binding as a written one. I didn't have a lawyer to represent me. I represented myself. Abby, I don't know what the laws are in Iowa, but I would advise that loaner who got taken for a ride to look into it. If you use my letter, please don't use my name.

Well, I got all my money back, plus court costs, plus interest on my money!

Sign me ... LUCKED OUT IN ILLINOIS
DEAR LUCKED OUT: Congratulations.

You lucked out with a sympathetic judge.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is actually more of a complaint - not one of major importance, but it has bothered me for years. I have been "Mrs. Dow" ever since my marriage 44 years ago, and in all that time, I have been called "Mrs. Dow," "Mrs. Dowd," "Mrs. Dowdy" and even "Mrs. Downey."

I was recently hospitalized, and two nurses insisted on calling me "Mrs. Dow." All my in-laws seem to have the same trouble. Everyone can say, "cow," "now" and "how," but they have trouble with Dow. Can a word with only three letters, pronounced just the way it is spelled, be that difficult? Thanks for letting me get this off my chest; I feel better now.

well-proportioned and not fat by any means. I did all the things you suggested in your letter: wore makeup, more feminine-looking clothes, large earrings, and let my hair grow longer. It didn't help; I still got, "May I help you, sir?" The only time I wasn't mistaken for a man was when I was pregnant.

When I meet someone, I make it a point to say, "My name is Mrs. Dow." Then I spell it, "D.O.W.," and they still can't get it right. I would think almost everyone has heard of the Dow Jones averages - statistics that show the trends of stocks and bonds traded on the New York Stock Exchange. Also, there's the Dow Chemical Co., founded more than a century ago.

—MRS. DOW IN FLORIDA
DEAR MRS. DOW: After this hits print, you may have less trouble. I hope so.

Harrowing 'Alive' perseveres on spirit

By Kathryn Bernheimer
Knight-Ridder News Service

"Alive" is an exciting, harrowing action film that just happens to be true, and just happens to be a testament to human endurance.

Review

This is a story not just of injuries and starvation, but of humor and despair, fear and resolve, false hopes and team spirit, stamina and stubbornness, prayer and cannibalism.

On Oct. 13, 1972, 45 people got on a chartered plane in Uruguay, bound for Chile. Most of the passengers were members of a college rugby team. The rest were friends and family along to see the game in Chile.

Pilot error, faulty control tower instructions and bad weather combined with a severe tailwind to crash the plane, its wings torn off and its tail section missing. Finally came to rest on a snow-covered volcano high in the Andes.

Twenty-nine were left alive after the crash, many badly injured. One pilot was killed instantly, another died soon thereafter. The only crew member left alive was shocked into insensibility.

The team captain Antonio (Vincent Spano) quickly took charge, aided by a team member who was a medical student. The chocolate and wine was rationed, the seat covers torn off for blankets, and the back of the cargo plane plugged up at night with tissues.

As the days went by, and some of the survivors died of their injuries, planes were heard overhead. Finally, one broke through the clouds, tipped a wing and flew into the mountain. The survivors spotted, the survivors gobbled up the last of the supplies and waited for rescue. It never came.

On the ninth day, they heard via radio that rescue was on the way and called off. On the 72nd day, the 16 who survived by eating the dead were rescued after two of the young men hiked 12 days across the mountains to Chile for help.

These are the remarkable facts, faithfully rendered in "Alive."

The movie, based on the book by Piers Paul Read, is interesting not only in how the men survived this ordeal but in why these individuals lived to tell their tale.

Although director Frank Marshall, working from a script by John Patrick Shanley ("Moonstruck"), does not flinch from the gruesome elements of the story, he has crafted a restorative and uplifting film about people facing not only a tortuous ordeal but a crushing emotional challenge.

"It's impossible — and we did it," Nando (Ethan Hawke) tells Roberto (Josh Hamilton) as he tries to convince him to hike for help, referring to all that the last 60 days entailed.

"Alive" credits the survival of 16 courageous souls to a combination of factors, "faith" being paramount. Solidarity, born of friendship and team spirit, is also portrayed as playing a vital role in their survival. Humor helped and positive thinking was key.

Andes crash survivors relive ordeal

By Dana Kennedy
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — When a plane carrying a rugby team crashed in the Andes, the 16 survivors watched their friends die, then ate them to survive. Now, the men who were self-described "spoiled boys" when they stepped aboard the plane in 1972, are reliving the experience.

Three of the survivors went to New York for the opening of "Alive," a $20 million film that spares none of the gruesome details.

"The film was a window of what happened — about the little things you take for granted, the silly things," said 39-year-old Roberto Canessa, one of the survivors. "When I drink a glass of water and I don't have to melt snow for it, I think — life is easy."

Canessa, a pediatric cardiologist, was accompanied by two other survivors, 43-year-old Nando Parrado, a television producer, and 39-year-old Carlos Paez, who works in advertising.

They are more than friends. Along with the other survivors in their native Uruguay, they consider each other family. Most live within a two-mile radius in a Montevideo suburb and their children attend school together.

Every year they gather to mark the crash's anniversary.

Canessa, whose 15-year-old son Hilario is named after the mountain range where they crashed, and Parrado are godfathers to each other's children. The three, who speak fluent English and use American slang, are quick-witted and upbeat.

Seated together on a couch in a Park Avenue hotel room, they are movie-star handsome and energetic, tapping their feet on the table and pacing around the suite when they get bored. All three finish each other's sentences.

"We know each other so well," said Parrado. "We get along very well. We have something that bonds us. It's a very special club."

That club was forged in a crucible that was so agonizing that "we all agreed when we were there that we'd exchange it for life imprisonment," Parrado recalled.

Twelve of the 45 passengers aboard the Chile-bound plane were killed when the aircraft crashed into the mountainside.

During the next 72 days, while they waited to be rescued, the survivors watched helplessly as their teammates and friends died. Parrado watched his mother and sister die. After 10 days their meager rations of jam, chocolate, wine and toothpaste ran out.

Two weeks after the crash, a brutal avalanche smothered others in the broken fuselage.

Many of the survivors lost half their body weight. With no other source of food, they were forced to turn to the frozen bodies that lay outside.

Breaking the taboo of cannibalism is what set apart the best-selling book, "Alive," by Piers Paul Read, on which the movie is based. The surviving rugby players became a modern Donner Party, the 19th-century pioneers who resorted to cannibalism to survive winter in the Sierra Nevada.

But the survivors are unapologetic about eating the dead. They said too much attention has focused on the cannibalism.

"The mountains and the arctic are the most hostile places in the world," said Parrado. "There's no biological way to survive."

Canessa, a medical student at life time, was the first to slice a piece of flesh from a corpse and eat it.

Parrado said the survivors are so well known in Uruguay that when they board planes, the pilot will announce that when it's time for the menus to be distributed, the survivors will get the "passenger list" instead.

But the jokes conceal a struggle of such dimensions that it's as if they can't trust anyone else to understand it.

"The joking is a defense mechanism," said Paez. "It's like joking at funerals."

But all three said that the cannibalism was not their ordeal's defining experience. When Canessa and Parrado walked the roughly 45 miles out of the mountains and flew back in helicopters to rescue the others, they all returned to civilization changed men.

They decided to try walking out after they heard on their makeshift radio that the search for them had been abandoned. Though they feared they wouldn't make it, they believed it was their only chance.

"When you get out there in the mountains you find out how little and fragile you are and it humbles you," said Canessa. "When the plane was sliding down the mountain, I thought, well the mystery of whether God exists is going to be answered for me. And it was. Life is an incredible gift."

Comedy kills desire to laugh

The following are capsule reviews of movies showing in the Magic Valley. Rating is by the Motion Picture Association of America and the Los Angeles Times.

Capsule reviews

NATIONAL LAMPOON'S LOADED WEAPON (PG-13) A parody of the three "Lethal Weapon" movies, and other cop-buddy banter, that's full of flat gags, spittle action, fat-patty satire and farting or bored-looking performances. Emilio Estevez and Samuel Jackson play the Gibson-Glover parts like condemned men who can't find their last meal; Jon Lovitz is a fast-food version of Joe Pesci. The "Weapon" is all style and no search for an inch of character and dialogue; unaccountably, writer-director Gene Quintano spends all his time sending up that inch. It's a near-complete bust, a comedy that kills your desire to laugh.

SCENT OF A WOMAN (R) Al Pacino gives a tour de force performance as a blind, retired Army lieutenant colonel in this compelling, re-tis time of the scholarship student from a nearby prep school who is hired to take care of Pacino for the Thanksgiving weekend and ends up accompanying him on a bender in Manhattan. Overlong and occasionally cornball, but full of affecting moments and wonderful acting.

SOMMERSBY (PG-13) Jodie Foster, who seems to improve with each picture, "is absolutely radiant" in this post-Civil War retelling of "The Return of Martin Guerre," and it is largely to her credit that the film's love scenes with Richard Gere work as well as they do. Unfortunately, this is a picture at war with itself, and an indifferent script and clichéd situations end up fighting that pleasant romantic combination to a standstill.

Maternal instinct stronger than sexual

Q. Which is stronger, the maternal instinct or the sexual instinct?

A. The maternal - if the scientist have it right. They also confirm what all know: Thirst is more urgent than hunger.

What do you feed your kakap? No kakap! Pity. It's a flightless parrot from New Zealand. If you get one, feed it what you feed your other parrots.

Any husband who writes to say her father wanted to give her a simple matted name, so she wouldn't be handicapped by being different. Her mother insisted she have a distinctive name, so she'd learn to emphasize individuality. They negotiated. Her name first and middle names, she says, are "Mary Carmical."

Any husband whose wife was unfaithful could keep the wife and live the lover. Or let the wife remain, if the lover could pony up whatever money the husband had spent on her. Such was the Love and War code - since and reasonably - among the five tribes of West Africa. Correspondents say, "However it's described in print, the wife usually is the decision maker."

ISU guard makes all-academic team

POCATELLO — Idaho State University senior Corey Bruce was voted to a place on the 1993 All-Academic District VIII basketball team.

Bruce, a biology major, has a 3.81 grade point average and has been accepted to the University of Washington medical school. He is a four-year letterman, two-year starter and averages 10.1 points per game.

Bruce

Joining Bruce on the All-District team are Santa Clara's Pete Eisenrich and Mark Schmitz, UC Santa Barbara's Michael Meyer, Gonzaga's Jeff Brown and Southern Utah's Richard Barton.

District VIII includes schools from Idaho, California, Alaska, Arizona, Hawaii, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, Washington and British Columbia.

The team is selected by members of the College Sports Information Directors of America. Criteria includes having a career 3.2 GPA and being a starting player or important reserve.

Boise Open funds will help students pursue college golf

BOISE — The Rocky Mountain Section PGA will award four $2,500 scholarships this spring from funds generated by the 1992 Ben Hogan Boise Open golf tournament.

Applications are available through guidance counselors and financial aid advisors at high schools, colleges, universities and local PGA professionals throughout the section, which includes parts of Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Nevada and Oregon.

Students must reside within the section boundaries to be eligible but may utilize the scholarships at the institution of their choice. Applicants do not need to be golfers.

The deadline for entries is March 12.

Jerome basketball tourney for girls begins next week

JEROME — The Jerome Recreation District fifth- and sixth-grade girls' basketball tournament will begin Saturday, Feb. 27.

For specific times, please call the district office at 324-3389. The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge.

WENDELL — Fresh off their first defeat of the season, the Wendell Trojans regrouped and showed all the confidence of champions, beating Gooding 63-52 to claim the District 4, Class A-3 tournament championship.

District 4, Class A-3

The win sends Wendell to the state tournament. Gooding must face a Boise-area school at 1:30 p.m. in Mountain Home for the right to play at state.

Trojan Coach Allen Kelsey was proud of the way his team rebounded after its four-overtime loss to Gooding Wednesday.

“We really rose to the occasion and showed a lot of heart. The big key was that we kept them off the line,” Kelsey said.

Wendell was able to turn the tables on the Senators, who hit 26 of 33 free throws Wednesday night while the Trojans had just five. In the rematch, Gooding hit 14 of 20

GOODING — Every season there is discussion as to which conference is better, the Northside or Southside. Thursday night the Southside proved that for this year they were the best.

The Murtaugh Red Devils, using a torrid second half, defeated the Carey Panthers 64-52 in the championship game of the District 4, Class A-4 boys' basketball tournament. The Castleford Wolves made it a clean sweep with an 82-59 win over the Richfield Tigers.

from the line, but Wendell sank 21 of 32. The Trojans tossed in 14 of 21 from the charity stripe in the fourth quarter alone. The Trojans took control of the game midway through the first quarter when senior Ryan Pope's 3-pointer launched a 13-3 run that put Wendell up 20-7 with five minutes left in the half.

Wendell had the lead out to 17 points in the second quarter before Gooding scored six straight to cut the halftime gap to 33-22. Gooding narrowed the lead to eight points at the beginning of the fourth quarter, but the Trojan defense allowed the Senators only four more field goals the rest of the way. Over the final 5:38 of the game Wendell shot nothing, but a string of 18 free throws, making 13 of them.

“We didn't get off to a real good start. We tried to come back a few times, but it wasn't to be,” Gooding Coach Rich Thompson said.

Bill Squires, who was so dominating for the Senators in their previous two games, still managed 14 points before fouling out with 2:33 left in the fourth quarter.

Keeping Squires off balance all evening was Pope who pulled down 16 rebounds to go with his 12 points, including two 3-pointers. But the player with the magic touch for the Trojans was junior Nate Kelsey.

Canadians sweep Alpine title; Street nabs 3rd place

The Associated Press

WINTER PARK, Colo. — If this were hockey, Canada's Cary Mullen would have picked up a goal and an assist on Thursday.

Mullen skied to victory over a flock of Americans to win the men's downhill, then produced a first-rate scouting report that helped teammate Lindsey Roberts win the women's race and complete a north of the border double in the U.S. Alpine Championships.

“We discussed the line over the second-to-last turn,” Roberts said. “There's a little roll and I just focused on absorbing the roll and carving the ski, instead of carving the ski and going over the roll. I just carved in the fall line before the last bump and I carried my speed all the way to the finish.”

It proved to be the difference for the 20-year-old Canadian, whose triumph completed a two-year comeback from a broken back and pelvis. She covered the 1.24-mile Mary Jane Arrowhead course in 1 minute, 15.98 seconds, 11 faster than Edith Thys of Squaw Valley, Calif., and 12 better than Picabo Street of Sun-Valley.

Street, the combined silver medalist in Japan, said the women endured a rocky ride. “It was really bumpy, especially at the bottom,” she said. “They slipped the course (to smooth the snow) but they ran 80 guys this morning and you can't slip away 80 guys worth of ruts.”

After getting sick on the return trip from Japan, Street was not her usual self. “I just gave myself enough room so that nothing would

Orlando rookie becomes 1st All-Star starter since Jordan

ORLANDO, Fla. — The closely cropped haircut was the giveaway. So Shaquille O'Neal, who routinely checks into hotels under assumed names, wore a wig to sneak past fans waiting in the lobby.

“Welcome to the world of the NBA's newest superstar, the Orlando Magic's 7-foot rookie sensation.”

“There's been unbelievable response to him,” said team official Alex Martins, who probably spends as much time on the road with the 20-year-old as anyone. “And the way he's handled being such an attraction is amazing, too. He has a great attitude about the media and fans. He considers it just helping the team win ... Our goal is to make the playoffs. Hopefully, we can.”

The maturity O'Neal has shown in handling his success on and off the court, where he has significantly enhanced his basketball income (seven years, $40 million) through lucrative endorsements, has been one of the refreshing stories of the season.

Despite his growing popularity and unprecedented measures the Magic have taken to try to make his life easier, O'Neal hasn't tried to hide from the public. The Magic routinely find between 100 and 200 fans awaiting their arrival at hotels. Fans have gotten so active in their attempts to reach O'Neal by telephone that he registers under an assumed name.

Storm tosses Buick; Haas birdies for lead

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — In a field of 157, only Jay Haas could break par Thursday in dreadful conditions that turned the first round of the Buick Invitational into something approaching low comedy.

Haas, 39, put a birdie-birdie finish on a 2-under-par 70 at the North course at Torrey Pines, the shorter and easier of the two courses used for the first two rounds.

No one else was better than 72 in a big contrast to all the low scores at the Bob Hope Classic last weekend, won by Tom Kite at 35-under.

And, if he had his way about it, Haas — who started his day's play from the 10th tee — wouldn't have broken par either.

When he was standing on the sixth tee, Haas inquired of a PGA Tour rules official: "Why don't you call it off and send us in?"

The official took no note of that suggestion, and Haas played in, making birdies on the 10th and 11th holes. "About the worst winds I've played in," the veteran of 17 seasons on the PGA Tour said later. "The conditions were marginal. If the greens had been about a foot faster, we couldn't have played. Just a little faster and the winds would be blowing the ball off the greens," Haas said.

As it was, winds gusted to 35 mph — higher in frequent squalls — and intermittent squalls with sheets of rain produced some scores that reached into the facial range.

For example, there was 76-year-old Jerry Barber. He struggled to 84. But he had a number of players in his rear view mirror.

Take Dave De Long. He had an 89. Or Mark Mason, who shot 90. "It would be very easy to shoot yourself out of the tournament," Payne Stewart said after a hard-won round of 72 that left him in a tie for second.

Jay Haas lofts a split pitch onto the third green Thursday at Torrey Pines Golf Course in San Diego.

John Cook, a $1 million winner last year, could testify to the accuracy of that assessment. He once had it two under par, then bogeyed five hole in a row and shot 77.

Stewart, a non-winner since his 1991 U.S. Open victory, shared second with Bobby Clampett, Greg Whisman and Kelly Gibson, wind strength. "I usually play No. 18 with a driver and 6-iron," he said. On this day, however, he played it driver, 1-iron, 6-iron.

Spring training opens with a drizzle

The Associated Press

The big day that baseball fans waited for all winter arrived Thursday, and not even a little rain in Florida and Arizona could dampen spirits: Spring training has started!

Pitchers and catchers from 15 of the 28 teams reported to camp in places like Vero Beach, Sarasota and Scottsdale, with the first official workouts planned for Friday.

Before breaking out the bats and balls, however, there was other business to attend to after a busy off-season in which players changed teams like never before.

In Bradenton, Fla., the Pittsburgh Pirates began preparing to win their fourth straight NL East title after losing the likes of Barry Bonds, Doug Drabek, Jose Lind, Danny Jackson, Roger Mason, Alex Cole and others. The Pirates hope new players in camp named Young Garcia, Martin, Backlund and DeLeon Santos can take their place. "Maybe they should hand out

'Whenever I meet someone new — which is almost everybody around here — I repeat their name three times to myself.'

— Steve Reed, new Pirates player

those little name tags to everyone, like they wear at conventions, that say, 'Hi, my name is ...' center fielder Andy Van Slyke said.

At least a lot of the Pirates know each other. In Tucson, Ariz., 63 players reported for the expansion Colorado Rockies' first camp; and they spent a lot of time making introductions.

"Whenever I meet someone new — which is almost everybody around here — I repeat their name three times to myself," said Steve Reed, who pitched 18 games for the San Francisco Giants last season.

"There are 63 guys here, and I'm the only guy from the Giants organization. Trying to remember each guy's name, all the way from reporters to the clubhouse guys to the front-office guys and especially my fellow players, well, it's difficult," he said.

The one pitcher who needs no introduction this spring is Nolan Ryan, who will be playing his record 27th and final season this year.

Ryan, 46, was not among the 32 players who reported to the Texas Rangers' camp on Thursday. He's expected at Port Charlotte, Fla., next week and will work out for the first time on either Feb. 28 or March 1.

In Port St. Lucie, Fla., New York Mets manager Jeff Torborg said he will approach this spring training with a looser rein, mainly because he knows his veterans better.

"Our practices will be about an hour shorter," he said. "And I'm going to watch the kids early. The veteran players I know."

Three of those young players, center fielder Ryan Thompson, second baseman Jeff Kent and catcher Todd Hundley begin the spring as starters for a team that finished a disappointing fifth in the NL East last year.

While pitchers and catchers are the only ones scheduled to be in camp this early, other players are showing up.

Dale Murphy, limited to just 18 games last season because of knee problems, joined 12 other Philadelphia players in a workout two days before the start of the Phillies' camp in Clearwater, Fla.

Bar Blyleven, back with his third stint with Minnesota, was an early arrival at the Twins' camp in Fort Myers, Fla.

"If it ends in spring training, it will be all right because I'll know I gave it all I could," Blyleven, 41, said.

"What I wanted to avoid was feeling good and wondering to myself: 'What if I had given it one more try?'"

Yankee, Pirate split on arbitration decisions

NEW YORK (AP) — Shortstop Raulo Velarde won his arbitration case against the New York Yankees on Thursday, and third baseman Jeff King lost his case against the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Despite the differing outcomes, both players doubled their salaries from last season. Velarde, who made $360,000 in 1992, was given $1.05 million by Robert Creo instead of the team's $600,000 offer. King, who made $325,000, was given $675,000 by In Jauffe instead of his $1,075,000 request.

Velarde hit .272 with seven homers and 46 RBIs for the Yankees last season.

The decisions gave owners a 9-5 lead with four cases remaining. Infielder Carlos Quintana, who didn't play last season, argued for $850,000 before Robert Light on Thursday. The Boston Red Sox offered $540,000, the same salary Quintana made last season, when he didn't play following a car accident. Montreal Expos outfielder Marquis Grissom asked Theodore High for a six-fold increase to $1.95 million from $300,000, while the team argued for his $1.5 million offer.

Boston reliever John Doherty and Seattle pitcher Erik Hanson are scheduled for the final two hearings on Friday.

Two players in arbitration settled their cases on Thursday. Outfielder Junior Felix and the Florida Marlins agreed to $1.25 million with the chance for $50,000 in performance bonuses. He made $640,000 last season.

Infielder Craig Grebeck and the Chicago White Sox agreed to $632,500, more than triple his $200,000 he made in 1992.

Among free agents, reliever Jeff Russell and the Boston Red Sox agreed to a one-year contract with an option for 1994. Russell can earn up to about $2 million in performance bonuses if he appears in about 60 games and is healthy for three-quarters of the season.

Boston's option is for Russell's 1993 earnings, and the option would become guaranteed if the pitcher achieves about 40 percent of his performance levels this season. The option would allow Russell to earn about $6.7 million over the two years of the contract if he reaches the performance levels in both seasons.

Russell was 2-3 with a 1.91 ERA and 28 saves in 51 games for the Texas Rangers last season; then was traded on Aug. 31 with Ruben Sierra to Oakland for Jose Canseco.

Russell was 2-0 with an 0.00 ERA and two saves for the Athletics.

Track OKs money for champions

NEW YORK (AP) — For the first time, U.S. athletes competing in the world indoor and outdoor track and field championships will receive prize money.

The money, to be given to medalists, will come from USA Track & Field, the national governing body for the sport.

USATF will get the funding from the International Amateur Athletic Federation, the world governing body. The IAAF has allotted $30,000 to USATF for the indoor championships March 12-14 at Toronto and $70,000 for the outdoor championships Aug. 13-22 at Stuttgart.

A USATF official said Thursday that gold medalists at the indoor championships would receive $5,000, silver medalists $1,500 and bronze medalists $500.

The number of athletes for whom the athletes had been asking, but is in line with the IAAF. Some of the world's top athletes have threatened to boycott both the world indoor and outdoor championships if sufficient prize money was not offered.

IAAF president Primo Nebiolo said he was pleased with USATF's prize money offer, which he noted was in line with last month's decision of the IAAF council to increase support for national federations.

"Any money for the athletes should be channeled through the national athletic federations, as in the case of the Olympic Games through the national Olympic committees," Nebiolo said.

"The IAAF understands the needs of these athletes, and it will continue its efforts to secure a stronger support for them in the immediate future."

The USATF official said the prize figures had not been decided for the outdoor championships.

The International Association of Athletics Representatives, which includes many of the top agents in the sport, had asked the IAAF to offer more than $10 million in prize money — for the outdoor championships and a lesser amount for the indoor championships. It asked for as much as $100,000 for gold medalists scaled all the way down to $5,000 for eighth-place finishers in each final.

The IAAF has steadfastly refused, saying only it would offer $1,000 for each athlete the national federations sends to the championships.

The USATF official said that if prize money exceeded $30,000 at Toronto or $70,000 at Stuttgart, the extra financing would come from USATF funds.

Inflation shows signs of return

The Associated Press
WASHINGTON — The worst increase in consumer prices in two years accompanied signs of a resurgent economy...

The Labor Department's Consumer Price Index shot up 0.5 percent in January, the biggest increase since January 1991.

Most economists dismissed the January price increase as a temporary aberration, but they warned that stronger economic growth and renewed consumer demand probably would force any reduction in price pressures.

Zandi of Regional Financial Associates in West Chester, Pa., "I think markets and most people should just shrug this off."

The bond market, which often retreats in the face of higher inflation, rallied Thursday. Traders credited by President Clinton's plan to cut the budget deficit pushed prices higher despite the inflation report.

Clinton and his Cabinet fanned out across the country Thursday to sell his plan, which calls for public works projects to create jobs this year as well as increases and spending cuts to reduce the budget deficit over the rest of Clinton's term.

Meanwhile, other economic reports showed U.S. industry and the job market improving in response to a Christmas-time consumer spending spree that carried over into January.

Satum, Buick, Infiniti, Honda among top buys

SAN JOSE, Calif. — Cars by Saturn, Honda, Infiniti and Buick are the best values among 1993 models. And, if you're shopping for a truck value, head to a Ford or Nissan dealer.

That's the word from IntelliChoice, the San Jose-based company that compares the long-term costs of owning a vehicle. The company calculates the initial cost, depreciation, insurance, state fees, fuel cost, routine maintenance and repair cost over five years to determine its best values in a many categories, ranging from subcompacts under $12,000 to the large pickup trucks.

conference in Los Angeles. Although dealers aren't discounting as much as they did in last year, 1993 is still a good time to buy a car, said Pete Levy, IntelliChoice's president. Many models have recently been redesigned, which means that they'll keep their value longer, he said.

Boeing to cut 27,000 jobs by middle of '94

The Associated Press

SEATTLE — Boeing Co., the world's leading airplane builder, Thursday joined the list of big American companies making profound work-force cuts with plans to eliminate 27,000 jobs nationwide by mid-1994.

Boeing spokesman Harold Carr said another 1,000 jobs were being transferred to another government contractor — Dyn McDermott — for management of strategic petroleum reserves in Louisiana and Texas.

Clinton faces tough selling job on plan

NEW YORK (AP) — After the uproar, a sober and unemotional question will emerge—Will the economic plan presented by President Clinton really cut the budget deficit and stimulate the economy?

John Cunniff Business. The Clinton plan has elements of that recipe, but it also has the bitter taste of the product cooked up in 1990.

More ominously, could it limit slow economic growth and widen the deficit in the manner of the 1990 tax increases, when the so-called budget summit negotiators promised to all but eliminate deficits by 1995?

Shandling anxious to do better job at Grammys

By Patricia Brennan
The Washington Post

"I've done the Grammys twice before, and I think I can do better," said Garry Shandling. "This year I plan on being really funny." As opposed to 1990 and 1991? You weren't really trying then, Garry?

"Well, Shandling fans know he really can be funny, and he gets another chance Wednesday night when he hosts the 35th annual Grammy Awards live from Shrine Auditorium in Los Angeles.

Shandling's shy, often self-deprecating humor is better showcased in his "Larry Sanders Show" on HBO cable service. And it's probably true that the series, which won him a CableACE last month, gets his best efforts.

He's spacing the Grammy Awards in between, hence production problems for the second season of "Sanders," which begins in late spring.

In fact, he's so busy preparing for new episodes to be shot in March, he says that he couldn't even find time to attend President Clinton's inaugural festivities.

"I was invited to perform at the inauguration, and I didn't have time to fly in, because I'm writing episodes for the next season," he said. (Later, Shandling, 43, remarked, "I just realized that I'm just a few years younger than the president. That depresses me.")

If Shandling continues to work the way he reportedly did on "It's Garry Shandling's Show," he'll be writing those episodes right up to the day they tape. After that, he was comedy writer before he was a stand-up comedian. Besides, real-life is providing him with almost continual material.

"The Larry Sanders Show" is a spoof of television talk shows combined with sort of a sitcom about what's happening backstage and in the life of the host. There's a lot about neuroses built around shrewd insights and shucky self-esteem.

In the HBO series, Shandling plays talk-show host Sanders, who is married to his second wife, Jeannie (Megan Gallagher). In the earlier "It's Garry Shandling's Show" on Showtime, the character was not only not married — neither is Shandling — but continually made his lack of luck with women the butt of many jokes.

Sanders' producer, Ariele (Rip Torn), stands only feet from the set and watches the show on a monitor. Jeff Tambor is his deferential announcer/sidekick, Hank Kingsley.

Artie is patterned mainly on Fred DeCordova, who produced "Johnny Carson's Tonight Show," and Hank is strongly reminiscent of Ed McMahon.

Guest stars appear both Sanders's guests and occasionally, as Dana Carvey did, as Sanders's sub. (Last season, as Sanders, watched from home, Carvey performed so well that he got an offer to do his own talk show on another network opposite Sanders.)

"Shambling gathered volumes of material for 'Larry Sanders' when he dubbed for Carson about four weeks a year, quitting in 1986 to create 'It's Garry Shandling's Show.'"

He has said he is at first employed working as a talk-show host but told The Post's Tom Shales that he began to find it "incredibly draining and somewhat limiting in the sense that you're really forced to talk to people that you would never talk to, or want to talk to, in real life."

When Tribune Entertainment offered him his own talk show in 1991, he turned it down. Dennis Miller left "Saturday Night Live" to take the opportunity, but his show was killed a few months after it premiered.

"I would not want to be starting a talk show now and go on opposite David Letterman," Shandling said. "I think somebody is going to suffer. You cannot, in my opinion, have Dave Letterman, Jay Leno, Chevy Chase and Arsenio Hall all on at the same time. That continues to prove how important Johnny Carson was. It was like a leader-leaving."

Shandling misses Carson's late-night presence so much that after Carson retired, Shandling sent him tapes of "The Larry Sanders Show" and asked him to appear.

The turmoil surrounding Letterman's leaving NBC for CBS has not only fascinated followers of the talk-show genre, but also provided grist for Shandling's mill.

"I do think it's beneficial to our show creatively in the sense that we do clip out all the articles about this," he said. He promised an episode early in the "Sanders" show's new season that draws on the Letterman-Leno-brouhaha—and the crowded late-night talk-show field.

"The Larry Sanders Show" has a commitment from HBO for 22 more episodes.

The 35th annual Grammy Awards airs Wednesday at 7 p.m. MST on CBS.

'Hearts Afire' stars say marriage won't extinguish romantic flames

By Gail Shister
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

The heat between "Hearts Afire" stars John Ritter and George Anne Landi is not just below the belt, they say.

"Our characters are in love," Ritter said recently at a gathering of TV critics in Santa Monica, Calif. "It's a romantic, passionate show for us. The title is 'Hearts Afire.' If we really wanted to be raunchy, we would call it 'Burning Organs.'"

Some advertisers and CBS stations are burning over the fact that John Hartman and George Anne Landi — Washington political workmates who live with his two sons — are not married, especially on a passion scene Mondays at 7 p.m. MST.

What to do? John and George Anne will get hitched during this month's ratings sweep. Peity creator Linda Bloodworth-Thomson had planned to do it anyway, she says, but later in the season. She and her husband-partner, Harry, have been awfully busy being major Friends of Bill.

Marriage, however, "will be an aphrodisiac for us," says new Post, a star of NBC's "Night

'Our characters are in love: It's a romantic, passionate show for us. The title is 'Hearts Afire.' If we really wanted to be raunchy, we would call it 'Burning Organs.'

— John Ritter

Court" for six seasons. "We're not going to lose any sexuality. That doesn't mean we won't get married without some real anxiety. George Anne is terrified by marriage. We won't rush headlong to the altar."

Ritter and Post, both married to actors in real life, did not just deny counterprogramming for the 17 tapes that are shown on TV every week. These are two people who are in charge and really in love. Maybe that isn't for kids. But it won't always be that bound-dog sex like in the beginning."

As a kisser, Post rates Ritter a 10 on a scale of one to 10. On Ritter's scale, Post is "a 5,000. She's the best. She melts my fillings."

The furor over "Hearts Afire"'s sexuality is nothing new to Ritter. He went through a similar backlash when he starred in ABC's 1977-84 sitcom, "Three's Company."

"Some of the greatest comedic and sweetest dialogue I've ever heard on TV has been about sex," he says. "Marriage and I aren't just kissing to be kissing. We're kissing, like that wonderful Leonard Cohen poem, to collide with a hungry, greedy body."

"No matter what kind of plague is in the United States, no matter what kind of person is in office or what kind of preacher is preaching from the pulpit, nobody is going to stop that kind of love from happening. TV can be a palette for all different shadings on that."

Post understands some viewers' discomfort with "Hearts Afire" being on "during children's hours. But she labels that discomfort "unhealthy."

"As Linda has said, this is just counterprogramming for the 17 tapes that are shown on TV every week. These are two people who are in charge and really in love. Maybe that isn't for kids. But it won't always be that bound-dog sex like in the beginning."

"Hearts Afire" airs Mondays from 7 to 7:30 p.m. MST on CBS.

2 'Cheers' actors sue over bar robots

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Norm and Cliff have gotten themselves into a bar fight. The actors who play the "Cheers" characters are suing over what they claim are robot copies of them placed in airport lounges.

The lawsuit was filed last month in Los Angeles federal court on behalf of actors George Wendt and John Ratzenberger, their lawyer, Patrick Freydl, said Wednesday.

The lawsuit against Host International asks that pairs of robots depicting two barflies be removed from Host airport lounges. Freydl said the robots seek unspecified compensatory and punitive damages.

The bars, similar to the setting of NBC's "Cheers" sitcom, are located in Detroit; Anchorage, Alaska; Minneapolis; St. Louis; Cleveland; and Kansas City, as well as in Christchurch, New Zealand.

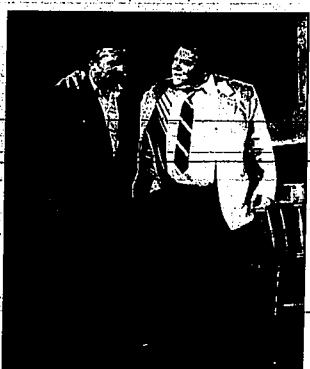

The robots, which perch on bar stools and exchange electronic chitchat, are named Bob and Hank.

Host is licensed to use the Cheers concept. But Freydl said, "It's our position that those robots infringe on my clients' rights of publicity. We have the right to control their own image and likeness in a commercial context."

Wendt and Ratzenberger also have artistic objections, claiming their performances are being exploited commercially, he said.

Wendt plays droll, beer-loving Norm Peterson and Ratzenberger is know-it-all postman Cliff Clavin on the popular, long-running series, which is in its final season.

Robert T. Souers, a spokesman for Bethesda, Md.-based Marriott Corp., which owns Host International, denied any wrongdoing Wednesday. "We believe our position will be upheld by the courts," he said.

Paramount Television, which produces the television series and granted the license to Host International, isn't involved in the case, Freydl said.

Lawyers are conducting pretrial discovery for the lawsuit, which was filed Jan. 12.

Jagger will perform solo on the special, hosted by Carvey and his sidekick Wayne, played by Mike Myers. The special airs Sunday at 8 p.m. MST on NBC.

ABC schedules kids special with Clinton

Clinton

NEW YORK (AP) — President Clinton will appear with ABC News anchor Peter Jennings in a live, Saturday morning children's TV show originating from the White House.

The 90-minute special is called "President Clinton: Answering Children's Questions."

"We're taking the president up on his promise to stay in touch with the American people and to continue the dialog he began during the campaign," Jennings said in a statement.

"And who better to begin with than America's youth, many of whom are living with problems this country is dealing with — problems like poverty, lack of health care, and racial tensions," Jennings said.

In addition to a "town meeting" audience of children in the White House, children at TV studios around the country will join by satellite, and young viewers at home will be able to join in.

The special also features Janet White, who plays the nerdy Steve Urkel on ABC's comedy "Family Matters." White, in character, will visit Capitol Hill and congressional leaders to illustrate how his bill becomes law.

The special is being produced by former "Morning News" producer Pat Roddy, who also produced previous children's shows about AIDS, prejudice and the Gulf War.

President Clinton: Answering Children's Questions' airs Saturday at 9:30 a.m. MST on ABC.

Australia's 1st lady appears in country's Vogue magazine

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Australia's first lady, Anita Keating, says she's "someone in between" Barbara Bush and Hillary Rodham Clinton. She's also 'in between' the pages of her country's next Vogue magazine.

In a demure six-page spread, Mrs. Keating, 44, poses in clothes by Australia's top designers. The mother of four is quoted saying she's not a homemaker like Mrs. Bush nor a career woman like Mrs. Clinton, but "someone in between."

Prime Minister Paul Keating has been campaigning hard to win the women's vote for the March 13 election.

Mormon-owned stations drop 'Fences'

By Scott Williams
The Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — Two Mormon-owned TV stations have dropped CBS' eccentric, small-town drama "Picket Fences," objecting to prime-time depiction of mercy killing, polygamy and teen-age orgasms.

Some critics say the stations' unusual action — pre-empting a prime-time series because of content — sets a dangerous precedent.

"Many people are concerned about what seems to them to be undue influence on the part of the Mormon church," said John Engstrom, TV critic for the Seattle Post-Intelligencer. "And a number of people are concerned about the very large issue of what they consider to be censorship."

"Picket Fences" stars Tom Skerritt and Kathy Baker as a married couple, sheriff and physician of fictional Rome, Wis., midway between Twin Peaks and Lake Wobegon.

It debuted in September to critical praise. It was voted best new drama by Viewers for Quality Television, but ranked 63rd of 114 shows in last week's ratings.

On Jan. 22, KSL-TV of Salt Lake City, said it was dropping the show until further notice. It cited episodes in which a nurse lusts "Killing Me Softly" during euthanasia and a man who danced with his wife's corpse.

KSL also objected to the Jan. 22 show, which depicted a teenage girl achieving an orgasm by herself in the back seat of a car, and focused on a suspected incestuous relationship that turned out to be a polygamous marriage among people calling themselves Mormons.

"The episode grossly misrepresents The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, which owns KSL-TV," said Bruce Reese, president of KSL. "We have worked with CBS to get them to change the show to eliminate the potential nationwide spread of this misperception and the enforcement of old stereotypes."

"They have declined to do so." On Jan. 28, KSL's sister station KIRO-TV of Seattle dropped the show.

KSL and KIRO have maintained that their decisions were arrived at independently.

Both are owned by Bonneville International Corp., which is wholly owned by the Corporation of the President of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Bonneville International, like the church, is based in Salt Lake City.

Executives of KSL, KIRO and Bonneville were at a CBS affiliates conference Tuesday and Wednesday in Washington, D.C., that also was attended by Tony Malara, CBS' executive in charge of affiliate relations.

Executives of KSL, KIRO, Bonneville and CBS' Malara did not return telephone calls this week seeking comment.

CBS' position is that "we're 100 percent behind the show," said network publicist Ann Morfogen.

Executives at ABC and NBC said it is extremely rare for an affiliate to pre-empt a prime-time series because of its content. KSL previously has chosen to pre-empt the short-lived series "Dirty Dancing" and "Doctor, Doctor."

There was little viewer reaction to KSL's decision to drop the show in predominantly Mormon Salt Lake City, but viewers in Seattle flooded KIRO's switchboard with more than 700 protest calls Friday.

Erica takes Leo aside and says she and Dimitri are in love. Dimitri overhears part of their conversation, labels them co-conspirators and storms off.

Days of Our Lives

After his plans to leave the country are grounded when he's confronted with Bo's evidence, Lawrence knows he must take drastic measures to save Nikki and confesses killing Lisanne. At a total loss when a fed-up Bo completely misconstrues her vague explanation, Carly finally gives up, twists off her engagement ring and gives it back to Bo. Marlena continues to have erotic dreams of John. Still unaware that Austin is Carrie's boyfriend, Sami flips when she overhears him say he's going to the party and manages to secretly figure Caroline's invitation for herself and John. Carrie is jolted back to reality when Austin volunteers that he's HIV negative. She decides she'd better go to the University Health Clinic for more information. A pressured Gus continues making threats to Austin, but Austin holds his ground. Billie finds Jack's manuscript ("In the Midnight Hour") and tries to convince him to sell it to make the money to pay back Tony Becker.

The Young and the Restless

Lauren receives a call from a mystery woman (Sheila). Jack tries to reassure a nervous Vicki that her mother will be OK. Rex berates his wife for running to John about Jill's desire to leave. When Lauren opens the door to a woman in disguise, Jack informs John that he is scheduled for a vasectomy tomorrow. John is ambivalent. Sheila removes her veil and says she has returned from the grave to make things right between them. Danny tells Cricket he's nervous about meeting Andrew Lloyd Webber. Lauren realizes that Sheila's here to blackmail her with the photo and asks her what it is she wants from her. Lauren blames Molly for the picture and demands she leave. As Danny gets ready to leave, Cricket tells him that this is a new beginning for him. Michael thinks over his plan and wonders what the tabloids will say about Cricket's death. Lauren tells Scott that she fired Molly and Scott wants an explanation. Michael watches Nathan guarding Cricket's door. Nina offers to stay, but Cricket says she's safer. Michael vows to be inside Cricket's apartment tomorrow.

The Bold and the Beautiful

Taylor assures Eric her marriage is secure, although she knows Brooke will use the baby as ammunition to get Rick. Brooke tells Charles she's ready to sign the divorce papers. Stephanie tells Jay she knows Sheila is his patient, but she also knows that this woman is trouble. Jack tells Taylor that he and Sally have become very close and he's having a great time. Eric doesn't want Ridge trying to talk him out of marrying Sheila, because he loves her. Macy tells Keith she's really falling for Sly and it's all due to the poems he writes. Macy comes out on the stage and sings "Poetry My Love." Brooke tells Eric that she's sorry that she and Taylor are together, but she won't really sure how he felt about her, but now she knows he really cares for her. Taylor tells Ridge Brooke came by to invite the two of them to dinner. Theme tells Taylor he's trying to get ahead with his relationship with Karen but he still thinks about Macy.

Susan Lucci's between daytime and primetime

It's that time again for Susan Lucci to shed the skin of "Erica Kane" Montgomery in "All My Children" and appear in a network TV movie as a brand new character. This season's Susan Lucci starrer is titled "Between Love and Hate."

Soap studs

John N. Goudas

Susan plays a wife and mother who feels so unappreciated by her workaholic husband (Barry Bostwick) that she takes an occasional lover when hubby is off on business trips. Her sexual prey is usually selected from among the staff of young men at the country club. This time, Susan's Vivian Conrad sets her sights on her young daughter's swimming instructor, Matt Templeton (Patrick Van Horn). Movie fans will experience a touch of déjà vu recalling Anne Bancroft's seduction of Dustin Hoffman in the 1967 movie "The Graduate," but this is 1993 and Ms. Lucci's character is far more aggressive in her frontal assault of the virginal young man.

"As much as I enjoy playing Erica," said Susan, "I look forward to doing other things and I always look for a part that will draw me in, parts that I would like to play. This movie is based on a true story and is a first effort by two writers from the South. My favorite playwright is Tennessee Williams and I saw some themes in this story which Williams often employed in his plays. Vivian is essentially trapped in a bad marriage but she stays because her husband has threatened to take away her little girl and she couldn't bear that. However, they have a somewhat open marriage. He goes his way and she goes hers, but the young man can't let it go when she says the affair is over and that's what generates the drama."

Susan said the producers saw hundreds of young actors for the part of Matt. When it was narrowed down to three, Susan screen-tested with each of them. "I say there was never any doubt in my mind that Patrick Van Horn was the perfect one."

Susan Lucci, Looks forward to playing other parts

"Patrick blew us all away with his test. He had the right combination of innocence and sexuality. He's very good looking but he isn't a traditional hunk, and I think that made the story more believable."

Susan also had praise for her Australian director, Rod Hardy, who comes from a strong stage background and insisted on four days of rehearsals (a luxury in TV film making). Also, Susan's husband, Helmut Huber, gets credit as associate producer on the film.

"My husband has always been great in advising me about projects and he's a good businessman so it's about time he took the credit for the work he always does on my TV movies."

Susan has the best of both worlds—daytime and primetime. She has been steadily and gainfully employed for 21 years, playing one of the most popular soap opera characters of all time. With "Between Love and Hate," she chalks up her ninth network TV movie.

"All My Children" airs weekdays from 11 a.m. to "Noon MST" on ABC. "Between Love and Hate" airs Monday at 8 p.m. MST on ABC.

'Picket Fences' star was on a soap

By Bettelou Peterson Knight-Ridder Newspapers

Q. The darling young policeman on "Picket Fences" was on a soap opera. Which one? Tell me about her. — E.S.W., Apopka, Fla.

A. Good eye: Lauren Holly, who plays Maxine Stewart in "Fences," spent three years as Julie Chandler in "All My Children." She was born in Bristol, Pa., and grew up in Geneva, N.Y., where her father was a college professor. Her mother taught at the University of Rochester (N.Y.). Holly attended Sarah Lawrence College in Bronxville, N.Y., and London's Academy of Music and Dramatic Arts.

She made her movie debut in "Seven Minutes to Heaven." She's married to actor/producer Danny Quinn.

Q. Settle this bet: Is the woman who played Becky Buchanan on "One Life to Live" the same woman who plays Jill on "Home Improvement"? — M. & M., Buffalo, N.Y.

A. Patricia Richardson, who is Jill, has never done a soap but has appeared on the prime-time series "Double Trouble," "Eishenhower and Lutz" and "F.M." Jill Voight and Mary Gordon Murray played it okay.

Anti-fan club focuses on Doherty's hissy fits

By Cheryl Leveabrown
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

How do they hate Shannon Doherty? Let them count the ways.

The I Hate Brenda newsletter, named after the 21-year-old actress's 1992 character, Brenda Walsh, has a unique editorial focus: Doherty's "seemingly endless runs of hissy fits," People magazine says.

Darby Romeo and Kerin Morataya started the newsletter as a joke last fall, faking bad press about the reportedly temperamental actress to friends. The first issue has sold about 7,000 copies, and the anti-fan club has spread the "I Hate Brenda" message with T-shirts and bumper stickers. And the Brenda backlash has a musical side, too. Romeo and Morataya came up with a rap song and are putting together a "Hating Brenda" album. A lyric: "I'm Brenda, I'm Brenda, I'm Brenda, I hate Kelly, I hate Dylan, I hate Donna, I hate David, I hate myself, I hate you!"

Sure, there are the occasional pangs of guilt, the club's creators say. "What if Shannon, like, read our newsletter and killed herself?" Romeo-tells-People magazine. "But then people call and tell me all these horrible run-ins, and I feel better."

Doherty's manager called the newsletter "pathetic." Aaron Spelling, the show's executive producer, dismisses it as a grab for media attention: "We are very surprised at this negative attack on Brenda. It certainly isn't the response we're getting from the fans of the show."

—Maybe so, but the Brenda-bashing/Shannen-slaming seems to have trend written all over it. Glamour magazine named the actress "Prima Donna of the Year" for 1992 for throwing a fit when only eight bottles of Evian water were provided on set during a TV movie shoot, not the 10 bottles she had specifically requested for hair-washing purposes. And Sassy magazine called her "Shannen Doherty, pathetic loser!"

Rivers happily at top again

Rivers

For Joan Rivers, happily at the top again, memories of the bottom are still vivid.

"The elevator smelled like peanuts," she said of a sleazy hotel that was her home during an early Boston run some 30 years ago. "It was in a tenderloin neighborhood. They rented by the minute."

To ensure that no part of her pristine, Barnard College-educated self would come in contact with such transient filth, she lined the bathtub with towels each night. "I'll never forget it. That was probably the low point."

That, and the boot she got from the Fox network in 1987; the subsequent suicide of husband and manager Edgar Rosenberg; her irrevocably broken relationship with mentor Johnny Carson; and the inevitable Hollywood black-listing that followed.

Though many a career has enjoyed great revitalization during public misery, Rivers' personal and professional problems were so complex — and so profoundly sad — that speculation was that the feisty, big-mouth comic would never make it back.

When she comes to the phone, there is no mistaking that voice. "So, how are you?" she says, just like an old friend. "What's it like here? It's freezing here."

Here, of course, is her beloved New York, the city to which she returned five years ago after Los Angeles had had enough of her, and vice versa.

"L.A. is a company town. All show business. Movies are everything. TV is second. So I never made the A-list."

"But New York is a mecca for everything, and I'm very much a part of it. It's so alive."

Joan Rivers speaks with a passion about her life and work that is absent during interviews with so many celebrities.

At somewhere near or around age 57 (there are several versions of her birthdate), she would seem to have reached a logical winding down point after almost three decades of international stardom. But in her mind, she's just getting started.

In addition to her Emmy-winning syndicated talk show, a weekly gossip show on USA cable, and touring stand-up act, Rivers also oversees three thriving enterprises she has created.

—The Joan Rivers Classic Collection is a costume jewelry line she designs and pitches on the QVC home shopping network; the line grossed $30 million last year. The company was recently purchased by Regal Communications and is now public.

—The Joan Rivers Classic Collection Catalogue is her mail-order clothing business, and will undergo a national expansion in the fall.

UNCONVENTIONAL

Carl had always thought retirement meant nursing home until he heard about BridgeView Estates. Not only did they offer beautiful private apartments with full kitchens, private parking and a dining room with a dance floor, but they also offered new experiences like learning a computer, oil painting, history classes... the list was long. So many things he never had time for, but longed to understand.

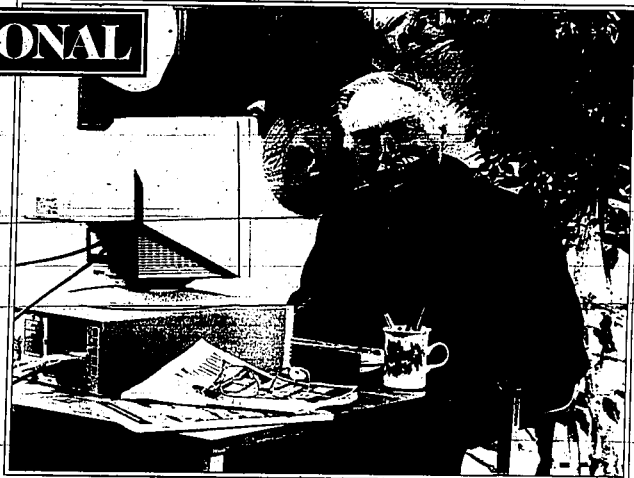

On the practical side he liked the unique idea of Assisted Retirement... right-in-the-village. And, the Health Care Center would be nearby if he ever had an emergency.

Well, it didn't take Carl long to put down a deposit and move. He's well on his way to becoming BridgeView's computer whiz. But it's the trip to Jackpot he's really looking forward to... something he says is delightfully... "UNCONVENTIONAL!"

TV talk show host Joan Rivers thanks departing passengers of a US Air flight from New York to Pittsburgh last Friday afternoon at Pittsburgh International Airport in Imperial, Pa. Rivers swapped jobs with a US Air flight attendant for one day as part of a contest on 'The Joan Rivers Show.' The contest winner, Jacque Kendall of Virginia Beach, Va., will host the show on Monday.

Swimsuit special features pure trash beautifully

By James Kendrick
The Hartford Courant

I'm of two minds when it comes to "Sports Illustrated Swimsuit USA: America the Beautiful" — HBO's video companion to Sports Illustrated's super-popular, annual swimsuit issue (to be broadcast Wednesday night).

It's a classic tug of war between my id and my superego — my libido and my still developing sense of morality.

My first instinct was to ignore the show, as I did last year. But then I thought, no.

No!

The magazine, after all, attracts an estimated 41 million readers (or peepers) — more than any other single magazine issue in America. And HBO's companion videos — this is the third so far — have done boffo business as well.

So I came up with a solution. Or maybe I should say a compromise. I wrote two reviews. One for the politically correct and morally-upstanding side of the audience.

And the other for their husbands and boyfriends.

But before I begin, let me just say that no, I don't want my little girl to grow up and be the next Kathy Ireland, Ashley Richardson, Rachel Hunter, Vendela, Stacey Williams or any of the barely dressed and truly stunning models featured.

As a matter of fact, I made sure my wife and daughter were miles away when I popped in my preview cassette the other day.

But as I say, I'm imperfect. But I'm also committed to serving my readers — no matter what life form — high or low — they may take.

But just so I don't offend anybody, we'll start with a politically correct, feminist-friendly review — before moving on to something a little more, um, basic for the locker-room crowd.

Politically correct:

This is supposed to be about fashion, right? So how come, most of the time, nobody's wearing any clothes?

Back buttocks, pillow-breasts, thinly veiled nipples — we got plenty. But if you expect these so-called documentarists to tell you anything about fashion or photography, forget it. Behind-the-scenes documentary, indeed.

It's trash, impure and simple. (Was that porn music we kept hearing on the soundtrack?)

The scenery and the photography, granted, are lovely. Martha's Vineyard, the snow-capped peaks of Alaska, paradisaical Hawaii, the far-out Florida Keys. The travel stuff was fine.

But give me a break, what's with the "Mod-a-Cum" gimmicks? If anything, the home videos and commentary supplied by the mega-models in question are far more offensive to women than the male-driven photo shoots. ("She's barbecuing her butt and what a nice butt it is, too.")

It was entertaining, however, to see Vendela throw a small fit and refuse to pose in the all-male modeling conditions. (What got into her, brains?) But no, I wasn't convinced that Ireland is deeply religious just because the camera caught her leaping through a Bible seconds before bump-and-grinding her unseen audience to girl-next-door ecstasy.

—Worst of all was a geeky segment involving a writer from Sports Illustrated and a bunch of models who got into one was going to read his article. ("The real fantasy," he slobbered, "is that anyone actually reads the swimsuit edition at all.") And if the average guy looks half as dumb as this guy when confronted with all these heavenly bodies — and they probably do — well, it won't be a man's world for long.

We give the whole show one star and that's being generous.

Politically incorrect:

Ow. The women are so stupefyingly gorgeous it hurts. So good-looking you'll make noseless. Fantasy island? You bet.

And what's wrong with being momentarily transfixed by breathtakingly attractive women? I don't expect my wife to look or act like Kathy Ireland. Why should I? She's married to me.

Besides, I thought Kathy Ireland was the girl for me I would have married someone who looked like an international supermodel — or, more likely, pursued someone like that until I realized it was hopeless, after which I would shoot myself in desperation.

Rachel Hunter, Vendela and Ashley Richardson are particularly fetching, playful and up for the big tease.

They know why they're making the big bucks and seem pretty happy about it. They don't seem like bimboes — well, not most of them — to me. They seemed like they were having fun.

Loved the gawking passersby at the various locations, too, including one woman who looked at one model's flawless frame and commented seriously, "She's got a little flab on her shoulder blades, see?"

We give it 3 1/2 stars only because we're afraid to give it four.

Turner, ABC bid jointly to air '96 Olympics

ATLANTA (AP) — Turner Broadcasting System Inc. and Capital Cities/ABC are discussing a possible joint bid to broadcast the 1996 Summer Olympics from Atlanta, officials with both companies confirmed Tuesday.

"We have determined we are interested in an Olympics package, assuming that it's financially feasible," Turner spokesman Gary McKillip said.

"ABC Sports has always looked for creative ways of doing business," ABC Sports spokesman Mark Mandel said. "We've done it in the past, worked with Turner in the past."

The Wall Street Journal reported Tuesday that the companies may televise the 1996 Games on four networks: ABC, ESPN, a sports channel that is majority owned by Capital Cities; and TBS and TNT, cable networks owned by Turner.

The four outlets could broadcast different portions of the Games simultaneously, giving viewers more choices of Olympic events to watch, the newspaper reported.

Neither company would confirm that report.

"Turner Broadcasting is currently in the process of determining if it has a role in the 1996 Olympics. Speculation on what that role might be is premature," McKillip said.

"We have had discussions with Turner Broadcasting and ESPN concerning a co-presentation of the Atlanta Olympic Games," said ABC Sports President Dennis Swanson. "However, it would be premature to speculate on any specific proposal at this time."

If the companies reach a deal, it would be the first time two networks have bid for the Olympics jointly. Neither company has set a deadline to submit a joint bid, McKillip and Mandel said.

Traditionally, Olympic coverage has been the property of a single network, although CBS farmed out pieces of the 1992

Winter Games to Turner and NBC. It set up a pay-per-view option with three cable channels for the 1992 Summer Games. CBS paid $543 million for the 1992 and 1994 Winter Games and NBC's price for the 1992 Summer Games was $401 million.

"ABC Sports enjoys a good working relationship with Turner Broadcasting that began with the presentation of the Pan American Games from Havana, Cuba in the summer of 1991," Swanson said.

"ABC Sports will also be partner with Turner Broadcasting in its presentation of the Goodwill Games from Russia in 1994. The conversations to work together in Atlanta comes as a logical extension of these cooperative efforts between our companies."

ABC broadcast the 1991 Pan Am Games on the weekends while Turner provided prime time weekday coverage. The two are splitting coverage similarly during the 1994 Goodwill Games in St. Petersburg, Russia.

ABC and ESPN also lined up a joint agreement with three other sponsors before bidding to host soccer's 1994 World Cup.

This time, Costas answers questions

By Sam Blair
Dallas Morning News

DALLAS — Bob Costas has won three Emmys and has been voted National Sportscenter of the Year three times by his peers. The star of the NBC Sports Group, he gave a virtuoso performance at the Barcelona Olympics last summer when he anchored 86 hours of prime-time coverage.

Also hailed for his late-night genre interview show "Later" with Bob Costas, and his syndicated radio show, "Costas Coast to Coast," he is equal-parts-journalist, broadcaster and clever conversationalist.

Here are excerpts from a recent interview with him:

Q: With your NBC contract expiring this year, you could be a free agent soon and receive some attractive offers. What do you hope to do during the next five years?

A: I can't say specifically, but I believe it's a pretty safe bet I'll remain involved in sports in some prominent fashion, but I'll also have some sort of project outside sports. Exactly what, I am not yet sure, because I haven't sorted it through yet. Q: Baseball is your favorite sport, and St. Louis is a great baseball town. If you have an opportunity to become the voice of the Cardinals in the next year or two, how would you react?

A: I don't think that's in the cards — no pun intended. First of all, I don't think they'll be looking for an announcer any time soon. I think Jack Buck will continue a while longer and he should be able to meet his own timetable. And his son, Joe Buck, is the best young announcer I've heard in many years. But even if they weren't set for a while, the timetable for that isn't right for me. I have a lot of things

I'd like to do on network television that probably will get my attention first. If I wind up doing local baseball, I see that happening many years down the road.

Q: Major League Baseball's new network contract with CBS reads with regard to the circumstances under which you have strong hopes of being involved with some type of network baseball coverage again in '94?

A: I'd like to broadcast baseball again, but I'm philosophical about the circumstances. If I'm not in for the next time around, I'll bite my time. I guarantee I'll broadcast baseball again before my career is over. I think there's a good chance I'll do it again as early as 1994, but that's not certain.

Q: Reflect a moment on your Barcelona Olympics experience.

A: That was the best professional experience I've ever had. The preparation was so thorough and so extensive that it was almost like an education, not just about Olympic sports but about the history of Spain, the culture of Catalonia and the city of Barcelona. The shared experience with hundreds of people all pulling on the same end of the rope each in their own way... it was a camaraderie there that was unlike anything you find in sports broadcasting, at least in the modern era. I think the relationships with people, more than anything, is what I'll be interested in remembering.

Q: Your favorite interview memories in sports?

A: We did two hours with Ted Williams on radio a few years ago that we have repeated three times because it was so many requests. He doesn't do many interviews, but he was a tremendous subject. I interviewed Arthur Ashe several times and always found Arthur to be very provocative. For Luthers, Jim Valvano always was a great subject.

Bob Knight, for whatever reason, is wary of the media, but he has done three interviews with me. Who can say why, but he likes me. I have gotten along with him since I was a kid doing Big Ten basketball in the '70s. The fact that he likes me allows me to ask him very tough questions that he would bristle at if they came from somebody else. He enjoys the sparring, the give-and-take. He also knows that I will not ambush him, that I'll give him plenty of advance notice and that I'll give him a chance to answer in full. He trusts the process, and therefore he is willing to let the interview take whatever course I think it should take.

Q: In your post-game interviews in the Olympics locker room after the Super Bowl, working in a different context and a very tight time frame, you asked Ken Norton Jr. about the absence of his father from the game. He said he only wanted to take care of his family, so you moved on to someone else. How would you have handled that with Ken Norton Jr. if you were talking on "Later With Bob Costas"?

A: I would have pursued it to the point that I thought it could be a legitimate topic. Probing for personal information with the average athlete would be inappropriate, but here you have the son of the former heavyweight champion. They are public figures. I would be interested and necessary in the details of their estrangement. I just think the public wonders if they can reconcile. I think that is a legitimate story, but it was not one to pursue in that post-game atmosphere. Such bodiam is not the place for "Later." I would have been there for three or four follow-ups that either would have yielded some information or finally left the audience satisfied that I had taken a full shot at it.

DON'T TALK TO STRANGERS

Police tell us a growing population means an increased chance of crime against children. Would your child go with a stranger if asked? Most parents would probably say no. This week we'll find out if that confidence is well-founded.

Join NewsCenter's Carolyn Holly and photographer Kristen Bergeron for this important three-part report. We'll alert you to potential danger, and tell you how to avoid it.
