Rental lack squeezes homeless

By Steve Crump
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls' taut rental housing market is fast turning into a crisis for the city's growing number of homeless families.

"We've had seven families this winter who've lost their homes to fire," said Ruth Young, office manager for the South Chapter of the American Red Cross. "As far as I know, none of them have found housing yet, and one family is still living in a motel."

"It used to be that when the holidays rolled around, the homeless disappeared," said Cyd Dillon, Millicounty specialist for the South Central Community Action Agency. "Not this year."

Stephen Feldman, a Twin Falls property manager and real-estate agent, estimates that the agency rate for rental housing in Twin Falls is between 15 and 2 percent.

"For people trying to find a house to rent, it's almost impossible," Feldman said. "The upshot is that people who are evicted or who lose their housing for other reasons are on the street."

"There's one guy who has to keep going back and forth between here and (the Helping Hand Mission) in Burley because he's applied for IHA housing and he's waiting to get in," said Jim Biers, social services director for the Twin Falls Salvation Army.

Dillon said her agency was helping 360 homeless individuals of families months before the holidays. Across town, the Salvation Army helped 24 people in December — six single men and seven families.

907 homeless individuals were reported in the Magic Valley from January through September. Although single men make up the largest group, a growing number are families, Biers said.

"We're getting some newcomers, people who've given up on wherever they were living and just got in their cars and left," Biers said. "But we're also seeing too many people who've lost their jobs and been evicted."

"What concerns me is the number of first-time people we're losing."

Bush sees suffering, lauds American troops

The Associated Press

MOGADISHU, Somalia — President Bush, wending his way among Somalis too weak to move and children about to die, said Thursday it was "just too emotional" to witness the suffering of this ravaged African country.

The president, in a New Year's Eve visit to the east African nation, praised the 18,000 American troops deployed throughout Somalia, saying they were performing their task of alleviating its misery in a "brave" way.

Bush was given a graphic display of the dangers of their mission when rival clans shelled each other with mortars in the western suburbs of Mogadishu Thursday night.

Flashes from the shelling lit up the sky as Bush spent the night on a U.S. Navy ship offshore. Col. Fred Peck, the Marines' spokesman, said the battle, apparently over an ammo cache, was the first firefight but it "is definitely the largest" since U.S. forces arrived Dec. 9 to aid relief operations.

Peck said he was unaware of any changes in Bush's plans to return to shore today for further inspections of efforts to save the starving.

Soon after arriving from Washington, via Saudi Arabia, Bush was taken to a private hospital, school and food center about 18 miles outside Mogadishu.

The clatter of his helicopter was almost drowned out by the chant of children and their parents shouting repeatedly, "Welcome Mr. Bush. Welcome Mr. Bush."

A group of children dressed in colorful rags handed him a purple bougainvillea branch, and he was then led through a maze of whitewashed walls covered with plastic sheets and tattered cloth to the hospital's school.

Bush entered a school, made of corrugated tin, to be greeted by dozens of children sitting quietly on the sand floor. Outside a sign read "We need peace and education." Another sign said, "We Somalis never forget George Bush."

There were no desks or chairs, only several tattered school books.

"I thought I had the most respect for the before-how-and now it's even greater," Bush said of the U.S. troops. "It's the best of America."

Security for Bush's 44-hour visit was a daunting operation. Marines seized weapons caches, took over one building from which snipers could target the former U.S. embassy and packed its 55-acre compound with machine gun pits.

Arms treaty signing switches to Moscow

The Associated Press

ABOARD U.S.S. TRIPOLI
President Bush and Russian President Boris Yeltsin will hold their arms reduction summit in Moscow this weekend instead of the Black Sea resort of Sochi.

White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater said Yeltsin called Bush and asked that the location be changed because of bad weather in Sochi.

Fitzwater said there would be no changes in the summit schedule outside of minor changes owing to the longer flight time from Somalia, where Bush is visiting American troops, to Moscow.

Yeltsin and Bush are to meet for two days over the weekend to sign a historic nuclear arms control agreement.

Fitzwater had no details on the weather in Sochi, but the Russian news agency Tass reported from Moscow that the nearby Georgian region of Abkhazia was experiencing its biggest snowfall since 1949. It said heavy snow has been falling for three days.

keeping force was believed involved in the fighting, which broke out about two hours after sundown.

Maj. Ken Roberts, a U.S. military spokesman in Mogadishu, said in an interview with CNN that the fighting occurred five to six miles from U.S. positions and involved 30 caliber machine guns, small mortars, light artillery and small arms. He said the fighting was between "warring factions."

Flashes from mortar explosions and occasional streaks of tracer fire could be seen by reporters near the port and airport, where the U.S. troops of Operation Restore Hope are based.

Bell-bottoms reappear in crystal balls

In trendspeak, they're "crystal-balling it."

Some predictions for 1993

The Associated Press

Every year fortunes are made and bets laid on predictions that may or may not come true. It's always a gamble.

But here Edward Cornish, president of the World Future Society, offers a few of his best guesses for 1993.

HEALTH: Fetal brain tissue transplants will be more widely used in treating Parkinson's Disease. Advances expected in genetic treatment for alcoholism, mental illness and other maladies.

SOCIETY: There will be no letup in violence in American cities. People will want to bulletproof their automobiles.

Bill Clinton's baby-boom cohorts will applaud, analysts say, as he moves their priorities to the top of the national agenda. The postwar generation surprised the and homes. Flak jackets may be worn increasingly in high-crime areas.

WORK: The home-based option will gain in popularity as a result of improved telecommunications and the strains of traffic, crime and child care.

LEISURE: Electronic entertainment will be bigger — and more time-consuming — than ever. The number of games and specialized TV programs will surge with plenty to suit every taste.

FOOD: The line between food and medicine will continue to blur. People will insist more on ingredients that are healthful as well as tasty. Iron-free products will be the rage, owing to new links between iron and heart attacks.

No, you've not heard the last of Family Values. They're just being reshaped, the traditional nuclear mold altered to fit the shortage of time and cash. Policy-makers predict 1993 will find help on the way.

"I think we're going to see a good deal of attention paid to child issues and children's problems," said Nicholas Zill, executive director of Child Trends, a nonprofit research organization.

Much of the push-will likely come from Hillary Clinton. First Lady, First Spouse, First Mate, we've yet to find out. Long a children's rights advocate, she'll no doubt play a key role in the new administration.

As well a lot of women. A year ago, '90-one was talking about Susan Faludi's "Backlash" and the state of feminism in the '90s. Well, it looks like the Year of the Woman has extended to '93, with a new crop of female law-makers and executive appointees.

Along with the focus on children, a whole host of social issues will take center stage. Activists like Ralph Nader, executive

Fresh snow storm shapes up across West

Another snowdrift took shape in the West Thursday, already buried under one of the worst storms in years. Arctic air marched eastward from the Plains, bringing frigid temperatures and snow squalls to the Great Lakes. Morning fog hung over much of the East Coast again, while skies were generally clear in the Southwest and southern Florida.

The low pressure system responsible for this week's heavy snowfall in the Northwest promised more of the same today. Winter storm warnings were in effect today for mountain regions of Oregon; Northern California and Nevada.

Arctic air in the Plains moved southeast, ending a spell of mild, moist weather in the middle Mississippi Valley and Great Lakes.

A winter storm watch was issued for tonight and Friday for parts of Michigan as the extremely cold air crosses the upper Lakes.

A cold front stretching from New York to Louisiana was expected to drive temperatures down from New England to the Gulf Coast, bringing heavy rain in spots and snow and ice in northern New York and New England.

Work with Clinton, judges told

WASHINGTON (AP) — Judges must work with the incoming Clinton administration and the new Congress to improve the federal court system, Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist said in a year-end report Thursday.

"The central challenge is to blend ... sometimes conflicting perspectives into a responsible policy that will best serve the national interest," Rehnquist said.

Rehnquist, the nation's highest-ranking federal judge, reaffirmed "the judicial branch's commitment to work closely with the other two branches of government in dealing with challenges facing the judiciary."

Cuban pilot may face hijack charges

MIAMI (AP) — A Cuban pilot who flew his commercial airliner to freedom Thursday how he secretly gathered up relatives and friends, loaded air cargo and talked his way to the United States.

But 47-year-old Carlos Cancio Porcel still has a problem — U.S. officials are considering filing hijacking charges.

Cancio said that even if he goes to prison in the United States, the flight would be worth it because his wife, children and other relatives were among the 48 defectors on the plane.

"I know that my family is all right is enough — the family is ahead of everything," the red-eyed, exhausted pilot told reporters.

The Cuban American National Foundation has hired a lawyer to represent Cancio and any others who might face charges, said the group's chairman, Jorge Mas Canosa. Mas said he left confident after talking to State Department officials. "I think nothing is going to happen," the State Department said it has never assured anyone charges won't be filed.

Cancio, a pilot since 1965, said he first began thinking about defecting about a year ago.

Homeless

Local real estate agents say the city's rental housing stock has not grown fast enough to accommodate the demand. Other factors, including Eastern European immigrants and College of Southern Idaho students, have made the situation worse.

"I don't see it getting better any time soon to tell you the truth," Feldman said. "There is some rental housing under construction, including the development near Target, but that's going to be absorbed very quickly."

"It used to be you could get someone into a house for an apartment for $150 or $200," Dillon said. "Now that's a joke — you're lucky to find a place for $275, and then they want first and last months' rent and a utility deposit."

"To somebody with three kids who's working at the Maverick, that's pretty hard," Biers said.

Dillon's office offers use of its telephones to the homeless, and maintains a network of tipsters to let it know when housing opens up.

"It's not at all unusual for someone to get a tip about a vacancy that hasn't been advertised, show up and already have five or six people ahead of them," he said.

"There's not much out there, and what's available is often not in a part of town people want to live," Feldman said. "I tell people that if it's completely acceptable to grab it because you're not going to get a second choice."

Feltrmann said people considering a move to Twin Falls often call him months in advance, looking for housing, but he can't offer much encouragement, unless they are in the market to buy a home.

"One advantage of this market is that it's forcing some people without a lot of money to do what they should do," he said. "And that's buy a home. There is a lot of financing available to people who don't have a lot of money. Some people are surprised how cheaply they can get into a house."

But Biers says that often isn't an option.

"I deal with people every day who have a house, but when heat and rent," he said. "And a lot more are one paycheck away from the street."

Future

Director of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights felt certain economic opportunity, race and class issues should be the focus of the year's work.

"I will get their year (or four) in the sun," Now, for the first time in 12 years, you have two branches of government committed to equal opportunity issues, he said.

So long as it doesn't cost too much, consumer confidence was up pretty dramatically in December. But pessimism is still there, he said. There are jobs open, or that the employed feel secure.

"The economy will tell the tale of '93 — nearly everyone predicts a recovery, but not many are predicting a boom. But, for the most part, Carl Steinmann, chief economist at Management Horizons in Columbus, Ohio, says you will see a combination of all these things.

Frugal is in. Staff Marketing directors like Ken Gurn of Tavener-Oller and Associates in New York see it in things like the phenomenal growth in in-home diagnostic tests, non-prescription drugs, and non-prescription products.

"Rather than going to the doctor's office and paying $50 and getting a prescription that costs $25 or $30 if only everyone lived in Russia. But in the year to come, people will continue to die. Many of them from AIDS, which will by the end of 1992 strike between 300,000 and 400,000 people, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

There's something new — the CDC and the medical community is continuing to shift to preventive health care through improved diet.

He said, "people can now go for a $15 a can of the same product that will do fine."

Nickels and dimes shouldn't be as big a concern as many in the ever-expanding over-$5 set, however.

"The older folks are sitting pretty and will continue to do so," said Diane Crispell, executive editor of American Demographics magazine.

"They've got their pensions, Social Security, and their security."

Things are less sure with the baby boomers. Will this generation born between 1945 and 1976 finally move out of the house? Again, it seems to depend on the economy.

The way things are looking, experts say, they will actually strive out on their own. Lead that Mom and Dad? After spending on this recession, Crispell said from Ithaca, N.Y., the twenty-somethings might even start getting married, buying homes. That's what everybody is waiting for.

Sidney Levy, a psychologist and professor of behavioral science at the Kellogg Graduate School of Business, suspects Americans won't stay down long. Or rather, they can't.

"We're basically an optimistic people. It's un-American to be depressed too long," he said. "Things are going to get more whimsical. Think people will be increasingly interested in things that assure their frivolous, colorful lives."

Long's positive there'll be a craze for powdered condiments. But, then, he was off last year on the boom in powdered water. And he's given up predicting politics (In the '92 election, he said "the election would be between former Emper-Percy."

Tragedy isn't a popular prediction. The Old Farmer's Almanac forecasts for Sept. 7 through 11: Possible on-shore hurricane. For Oct. 18-22, heavy rain, central, and north. From Feb. 1-15, possible hurricane.

Last year, they predicted for Aug. 30: "Possible hurricane south."

On Aug. 27, Hurricane Andrew hit.

Too ominous? Consider this: In fashion, an industry insider confides, the BIG trend will be "ball bottoms. Ball bottoms are it. That I can say with definite confidence."

Now THAT'S scary.

Bush visits refugees at camp in Somalia

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — But other than a few banners and Home to about 4,000 people, the Lafoole refugee camp visited by President Bush Thursday looks like just another rundown patch of misery. The camp is a tangle of mud-brick hovels, some of which are home to bedridden families. The hospital building is a battered concrete block. Children in rags wander barefoot. "It's a name says it all, Lafoole, the Plunge of Bones," said one of the physicians. "But despite the name, Lafoole is an example of the fruits of Somalia's and relief agencies' efforts to relieve the suffering that has wracked the country." Just two doctors and six nurses care for the 40 or so patients in the hospital and scores of out-patients living in nearby hovels. Dr. Hawa Abdou, one of the physicians, said that starvation only a few months ago. That has dropped to one or two a week. The mood at Lafoole also is improving. Dr. Hawa said the arrival of foreign troops gave new hope to refugees that the warfare would soon end.

Powell: 1 command needed during crises

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff believes the military services should operate under a single command when dealing with regional crises, according to Pentagon sources. The sources said Wednesday that Gen. Colin Powell is recommending that such forces be consolidated under the U.S. Atlantic Command in Norfolk, Va. — and not necessarily be commanded by a Navy admiral, as is the case now. The report, ordered by Congress, also envisions the use of command participation in United Nations peacekeeping missions and overseeing disaster relief efforts, said the sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity. The report has gone to Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and commanders around the world for their comments. It is to be written every three years to provide an updated review of the roles and missions of the armed services. However, Powell's latest version lacks the sweeping revisions endorsed by President-elect Clinton and key Democrats in Congress, sources said. It contains recommendations on the redistribution of certain types of military assets but no major realigning of the military branches, said one source. Cheney has told reporters he might let his successor in the new administration deal with the issue. Powell sent it to Congress. President-elect Clinton's nominee for defense secretary, House Armed Services Committee Chairman Les Aspin, D-Wis., has called for far more cuts in defense spending than Cheney and Powell want, including reducing the size of the Army from 12 to nine divisions. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, has recommended consolidating the air units of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps under the Air Force. The draft report turns that and several similar suggestions aside, said one source. Powell has defended the current air defense structure, saying each service's air component served the nation well in the Desert Storm war with Iraq. Instead, the source said, the draft holds to Powell's long-stated view that duplications should be eliminated in such areas as basic flight training and support functions.

9 hurt in derailment

STEVENSVILLE, Mich. (AP) — An Amtrak train with more than 200 people aboard jumped the tracks Wednesday night not far from where vandals left debris on the track two days before, authorities said.

Nine people were slightly injured. The Pere Marquette was about 60 miles east-northeast of Chicago on its route to Grand Rapids when it derailed. All four passenger cars and the engine went off the track and landed-tipped-at an angle.

The cause of the accident was under investigation. CSX Transportation, which owns the track, reported that the train appeared to have struck something, but it wasn't clear what, Amtrak spokesman Clifford Black said. He testified the number on board at 217, but Pat Kelly, another spokeswoman, said there were 240 people on the train.

Pete Simclair, Van Buren County deputy coordinator of emergency management, said someone left debris Monday on the same track 20 miles east of the accident site in an apparent attempt to derail trains.

After more than an hour of waiting in a drizzle near the crash site, passengers were taken by buses to a school where they were fed until other buses were rounded up to take them to Grand Rapids.

Couple accused of leaving kids alone released on bond

CHICAGO (AP) — A couple who left their two young children home alone while they vacationed in Mexico were released from jail Thursday after posting bond.

David and Sharon Schoo walked quickly out of the Kane County Corrections Center into an awaiting station wagon. Neither responded as a swarm of reporters shouted questions at them.

The couple was arrested Tuesday at O'Hare International Airport as they returned from a nine-day vacation to Acapulco. Each posted $5,000 Thursday on a $50,000 bond.

Their lawyer, Gerard Kepple, said the Schoos would not return to their home but would be taken elsewhere to shield them from the extensive media coverage that the case has drawn.

Authorities say the Schoos left their 9-year-old and 4-year-old daughters to fend for themselves in a comfortable Tudor-style home in rural St. Charles, a western Chicago suburb.

Kepple said Wednesday that when the facts are known the case would turn out quite differently from people's impressions of it.

David Schoo, 45, is an engineer with a local smoke-alarm manufacturing company, System Sensor. Mrs. Schoo, 35, is a homemaker.

West Virginia apartment fire injures 8

MARTINSBURG, W. Va. (AP) — A fire in an apartment building injured eight people including a man who was on fire when he rolled down the stairs trying to escape, officials and witnesses said.

The blaze was reported about 11 a.m. Wednesday on the second floor of the brick building, which included four apartments above a used furniture store, said fire Capt. Phil Martin.

Bosnians harass U.N. chief

(SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina) — U.N. Secretary-General Boutros-Boutros-Ghali was jeered and spat at on the streets of this besieged city Thursday when he appealed to Bosnians to give peace talks more time to work.

Many residents are enraged by Boutros-Ghali's opposition to Western moves toward military intervention in Bosnia. On Wednesday, he sent a letter to the U.N. Security Council expressing his "grave concern over the growing momentum for military action in the area."

Western nations on the council, led by the United States, are pushing toward using warplanes to make sure Serbs honor a U.N. resolution barring them from military flights over Bosnia.

Boutros-Ghali said his one-day visit was to show solidarity with Sarajevo's people who have been surrounded by rebel Serbs for nine months. Wearing a blue peace-keeper's helmet, he emerged from a Russian-built Antonov plane that landed despite freezing fog at Sarajevo's U.N.-controlled airport Thursday. The airport, often caught in cross-fire between Bosnian government forces and Serb besiegers, was calm.

Boutros-Ghali was taken downtown for talks with Bosnian leaders and a tour of the devastated city.

As reporters looked on, the deputy president of Bosnia's Muslim-led government, Ejup Ganic, told Boutros-Ghali that U.N. help had come "much too late."

"We share your frustration. We share the horror that has happened to our country," Boutros-Ghali responded.

But he insisted on continuing to negotiate, he said. "Only through negotiations will we be able to find a solution."

Outside, about 50 protestors chanted: "Boutros, out! Boutros out! Ghali, fascist! Ghali Hitler!" The group jeered and spat at Boutros-Ghali's white U.N. car as it sped away on a tour, passing Sarajevo's once-prized national library and stopping at a badly damaged hospital.

Czechoslovakia ceases to exist

BRATISLAVA, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Czechs and Slovaks spent a final, nostalgic day Thursday in a common state that anchored Central Europe from Germany to Ukraine but began fraying soon after the end of communist rule.

The division of Czechoslovakia into the independent Czech Republic and Slovakia at midnight came with a complete absence of the violence that plagued the country's 74-year existence in one of the most troubled neighborhoods.

As a peaceful reassertion of national identities in the post-Communist world, the split offered an alternative to the hatreds, howling jeers and the bitter, demagogued incitements, the former Soviet Union and Yugoslavia.

Polish miners near solution to protest

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The government signed an agreement Thursday with representatives of more than 300,000 striking coal miners that raised hopes of ending the 18-day protest.

The agreement, reached after 16 hours of negotiations, still has to be approved by the strike committee in Silesia. Leaders indicated the action could be called off by Monday.

The agreement calls for a quick bailout of indebted mines, additional state subsidies and a commitment to seek credits for restructuring.

3 die in suicide pact

TOKYO (AP) — Five teen-age girls leaped from the top floor of an eight-story apartment building Thursday in a suicide pact, and three died, police said.

One of the survivors, who were hospitalized in a serious condition, told police that the girls jumped after talking paint thinner fumes. "She gave no reason but said, 'We thought we wouldn't be afraid of dying if we were high,'" said Osamu Nemoto, a duty officer at the state police headquarters in Mito, 60 miles east of Tokyo.

Editorial

1992 wasn't exactly a banner year — for anything

1992 is over, and not a moment too soon.

Such a year it was — an exciting, exhilarating, exhausting, confusing, through-politics-and-human-perversity. If it had lasted another month, we couldn't have stood the strain.

This was the year when America embraced family values — and elected Bill Clinton.

This was the year when America demanded change in its federal government — and then re-elected a herd of incumbent congressmen to shake things up.

This year voters drove a president from office because he couldn't end a recession — and then learned from economists that the recession had ended in 1991.

This year Idahoans turned thumbs down to casino gambling — but nearly 80,000 of us gambled our votes on a Texas billionaire who wanted to be president without going into politics.

For the Magic Valley, it was a year when people who normally wouldn't think much about landfills thought about them — for one point, Twin Falls County commissioners could have fattened their budget by taxing the sale of tar-and-feathers.

Around the world, it was a year of needless tragedy and heartache. The "New World Order" that seemed so glorious in 1991's Desert Storm was powerless to halt "ethnic cleansing" in a hell-hole called Serbia.

Closer to home, police in Los Angeles were equally powerless to stop a different kind of ethnic cleansing. Rioters — enraged because white policemen had been acquitted of beating a black motorist, expressed their political disenchantment by destroying Korean-owned businesses.

Another criminal case — the Amanda Hestler murder — focused the Magic Valley's attention on child abuse. That case's unsatisfactory conclusion left many local folk unhappy with our legal systems, but we refrained from looting anything. In 1992, both the U.S. Air Force and motorcycle stuntman Robbie Knievel encountered resistance to their plans to bore holes in southern Idaho's skies. In both cases, significant numbers of local residents recognized the need to guard local interests from those who would exploit our hospitality.

Such a year. Dan Quayle was the cultural elite. TV cameras greeted Navy Seals on the beach in Somalia. Anybody here from out of town? A hurricane in Florida. A jailbreak in Jerome. Yet another neo-Nazi kook in north Idaho.

It was a year when we in the news business never ran short of raw material. And neither did Jay Leno.

And now it's over. We can't tell whether the world is a better place or a worse place than a year ago. It's certainly an older place, and God willing a wiser one.

While Clinton brings in lobbyists, party will reign in its righteousness

The embryonic Clinton administration is already illustrating a paradox: Some of its early responsibility is a reason for giving it responsibility. Thus the 1992 election may do for Democrats what the 1952 election did for Republicans — force them to temper their righteousness.

In 1952, Republicans, losers of five consecutive presidential elections, were, with Joe McCarthy and others in Congress, demonstrating that prolonged absence from executive power tends to corrupt a party. The Eisenhower presidency soon made congressional Republicans more circumspect.

Soon now Democratic responsibility for the executive branch may make congressional Democrats less judgmental and acerbic.

Many of the people whom candidate Clinton exoriated as "influence peddlers" — Washington lawyer-lobbyists — are being hired by president-elect Clinton. A Clinton aide is referring to them sardoniously as "implementers." Clinton, the candidate of "change," has changed the nomenclature.

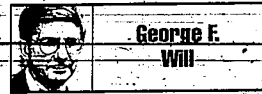

We are now told that these "implementers" are crucial to Clinton's promise to break governmental "gridlock." They know how to get things done around here.

A lawyer-lobbyist (Vernon Jordan) is running the transition; another (Ron Brown) will be Commerce secretary; a third (Mickey Kantor) will be trade representative. And these three are just the best-known of the many of their breed now burrowing into the administration. But worry not.

A Washington Post news story reports that this is not merely acceptable, it is desirable.

This page-one headline — "Scorned During Campaign, Lobbyists Now Seen Essential" — is followed by this headline over the inside "jump" portion of the story: "Lobbyists Bring Expertise to President's Team." Again, imagine similar Post headlines describing similar uses of "influence peddlers" — sorry, "implementers," by a Republican transition, a transition that was, say, using someone who lobbies for airlines and local transit authorities to organize the Transportation Department as Clinton's transition is doing.

The Post's story focuses on "superlobbyist" Howard Paster, who before joining Clinton's transition (and presumably joining Clinton's administration, as liaison with Congress)

George F. Will was manager of the Washington office of what the Post calls the "public relations and lobbying giant Hill and Knowlton, whose clients span most of corporate America." The Post sardoniously reports: "No administration can get Washington's sternest ethicists may moralize about Clinton's embrace of the 'implementers' ... But the fact that Clinton's team is drinking so deeply of Washington's political culture is neither surprising nor entirely dismaying. It was predictable and may be sobering.

thinks done without people like Paster. An equally serene academic, wielding in Clinton's defense the fallacy of the false alternative, says, "You don't want a government made up of clerics and academics."

Anyway, the Post reports, in the last 12 years the lack of harsh criticism drove many Democrats into lobbying. They had so few other opportunities "to work in public policy."

One thing political refugees could do was lobby party members in Congress, and many joined them or founded their own.

It was, of course, unthinkable that they could seek employment beyond the Beltway, out in what is known as America — perhaps in governments in the provinces or, in particularly desperate cases, in the private sector, producing something other than influence.

Washington's sternest ethicists may moralize about Clinton's embrace of the "implementers" — although most of the ethicists are Democrats and are too busy just now for their usual bouts of indignation. But the fact that Clinton's team is drinking so deeply of Washington's political culture is neither surprising nor entirely dismaying. It was predictable and may be sobering.

interventionist government. Intervention in economic and social relations does not merely propitiate interest groups, it creates them. Some of them organize to defend benefits sometimes bestowed without having been requested. This is a selfish government, whereby government supplies a program, thereby increasing the supply of groups making demands.

Interest groups drawn to Washington like iron filings to a magnet, resist revitalizing federalism by devolving responsibilities to states. Such devolution would inconvenience interest groups. They prefer "one-stop shopping" (the phrase is from Michael Horowitz of the Manhattan Institute) in Washington to shopping in 50 capitals.

The "invasion" of so many of these suddenly (since Nov. 3) "rehabilitated" former "influence peddlers" (now "implementers") into the new administration merely reflects this fact: The Democratic Party is devoted to implementing the agenda of interest groups. And the invasion may have the agreeable effect of dampening Democratic sanctimony — about "greed" (as in the decade of), "corporate America" (the grasping nature of), "conducive of interest" (a.k.a. "slazee").

And that may be just part of power's chastening effects on Democrats. In 1993 the mere existence of a Democratic administration may give Congress second thoughts about revising the expired independent counsel law.

Does Clinton really want to live by Lawrence Walsh's standard that "withholding information from Congress is tantamount to lying"? Does a Democratic Congress want to feel obligated to scrutinize all statements made by fellow Democrats in the executive branch in order to enforce such a standard?

Clinton's embrace of "implementers" (Jordan, Brown, Paster, et al) who represent what Clinton unit recently called "entrenched power and money" in Washington may not be pretty. But it may presage an abatement of his party's unattractive righteousness which recently has become inversely proportioned to its executive responsibility.

Goertzen not violent person

I've known Bill Goertzen for about five years, and I've never known him to be a violent person. As long as I've known him, he has always had the greatest respect for the law.

We both have something in common. We are both 100 percent American veterans. Knowing that he would be very stupid to raise his hand to one police officer, let alone four.

This makes me very concerned. If I had trouble with my daughters and the police, what would happen to me?

I think the policeman acted too quickly, as if Bill was a violent person, as if they were told that he was and not taking the time to check him out before they acted forcefully.

Communism threatens youths

Communism may have lost the power as a nation it once had, but its threat of undermining American youth remains.

The use of our Constitution to uphold "the right of anything anyone wants to do, except for the right to uphold decent standards and a belief in a supreme being, has become ludicrous.

It is about time people learned if they are going to live like there is no tomorrow, they had better be able to take the consequences of their behavior. How does one do that without the realization of a power beyond oneself?

Perhaps if people in general realized that true Christianity is tolerance flavored with love, forgiveness and compassion, they would not be so indifferent and alarmed when the subject is mentioned.

Insecure people want everyone to look through the same keyhole — theirs. In Jesus' day, the Jewish "elite" could not stand any restraint to be acknowledged. They would lose their power over people. Insecurity breeds lust for power.

Scientists, geologists and astronomers trace our planet's happenings back through the ages with the theory of the Big Bang, and then they say, "In the beginning," is mankind so presumptuous as to believe there was no great power behind that huge explosion?

To the people who would desecrate all that is good, beautiful and sacred, I would say if life began in the sea as we have been taught and as it slowly evolved, all of the sea was not washed off. Who was it said, "But for the grace

Start your new year off right

Several weeks prior to the holidays, my family and I were talking about the wonderful traditions of Christmas. One of our most cherished memories was when our family and friends would bundle up in our warmest clothes and go to the post-season community hot dog roast.

I like many of us, my budget allowed us a small cut Christmas tree, but having a minor problem, and this was one avenue that brought close family and community fun.

With this goodwill in mind, we decided to recreate this feeling. The excitement was infectious. More and more people volunteered to help, stating they, too, remembered these family bonding. What an opportunity to continue to share this benevolent feeling.

Two weeks later, Kimberly Nurseries announced they would match used Christmas trees. Before this was only other reuse was to put them in our trash to be dumped in the landfill.

Because action was already in motion, we decided to continue the plans for a free community hot dog roast. The event will be held at 3 p.m., Saturday, Jan. 2, at the Kimberly High School football field.

We want to start our new year spreading goodwill. Thank you for your intentions, and all things will be considered in the seasons to come. We are always looking for positive, constructive suggestions. For future consultations, we do need names. I am certain, with your attitude, you have done many positive things for your community.

Movie depicting rugby team's crash in Andes debuts in Boise

BOISE — "Alive," the story of a South American rugby team whose plane crashes in the snow-covered Andes Mountains, will premiere at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Cineplex Odeon 8th Street Marketplace Theater in Boise.

Prior to the movie, Touchstone Pictures, Frank Marshall Productions and Paramount Pictures will host a benefit reception, complete with champagne and hors d'oeuvres, with cast members, including Ethan Hawke and Vincent Spano, and filmmakers in attendance. The reception is set for 5 to 7 p.m. at Boise Convention Center, 500 W. Front.

Both events are open to the public, with all proceeds going to the Peregrine Fund Interpretive Center. The Peregrine Fund is a nonprofit organization that focuses on birds of prey for the conservation of nature.

Tickets to Thursday's event are $35 each. They may be obtained at the Sandpiper or Piper Pub and Grill in Boise or by calling the Peregrine Fund at 362-3716.

Closing credits of 'Malcolm X' make for fascinating reading

HOLLYWOOD — In the annals of end credits, few have been as interesting as those of "Malcolm X" — they may not hold the record at nine minutes, but it may look that way once moviegoers have sat through three hours plus on the life of the Black Muslim leader. More than 1,200 individuals (including 400 names and businesses are listed, and 26 songs are credited).

But for anyone interested in "X's" checked-in history, the myriad of "thank you's" offers something of a cryptic synopsis.

Among the names listed are nearly a dozen nods to various higher-ups in the Islamic faith and to officials of the Saudi Arabian government who allowed him to film in Mecca, the Muslim holy city. No mention, however, is made of Nation of Islam leader Louis Farrakhan, whom Lee met with before production began on the film.

Of legal note, there is a three-line credit listing amateur video cameraman King Holliday for use of his Rodney King footage.

Latest 'Beverly Hills Cop' provides lesson on sequels

HOLLYWOOD — When Hollywood Sequel hits back in the film school, the case study on "Beverly Hills Cop III" will be an interesting read, involving one of the biggest players in town and a handful of wanna-be actors.

In no particular order, the latter are Eddie Murphy, Don Simpson, Jerry Bruckheimer, John Landis, and Paramount Pictures. As to the former, it's Mr. Sequel himself, producer Joel Silver of the "Die Hard" and "Lethal Weapon" series. He is the player who after nearly a year's involvement, said, in essence, "I'm outta here."

But what distinguishes this sequel saga over others is how the deal fell apart for the two people who wanted to work together — Murphy and Silver — yet was finally made between the two who no one ever thought would work together again — Murphy and Landis. Also none of the original major filmmakers, except for Murphy, will be involved in No. 3.

Shoshone youth parlays electronics interest into radio jock job

GOODING — Most kids his age listen to the radio, but Cody Tews sits on the other side of the controls.

A discjockey at age 14, Cody earned his FCC license last April and signed on with radio station TNT-1480 AM Dynamite Country in Gooding.

Headphones in place, Cody sits in the control room amid the strains of "The Streets of Bakerfield." He leaned to record music early on and he punches in a recorded announcement when he is too busy to take the microphone live.

"We used to have to introduce every song," Cody said, "but now everything's automated."

"Cody slips in a tape selected from a stack labeled 'Current #1.' Another group of songs labeled gold (as in solid) is filed nearby. The Deejay must type the commercials into a computer.

...people do stop me and ask, 'Cody, is that really you on the radio?'"

— Cody Tews, 1480 AM, Gooding

At the top of the hour, Cody connects with his audience.

"You are listening to 1480 TNT country," he says. "We will get right back to your favorite music after this."

Cody works summers at the station and is on call during the school year. His on air handle is "Captain Cody." It fits, according to the station's owner.

Weldon "knows of any other Deejay this young anywhere around," said Arlis Trammer, who co-owns TNT with his wife, Mo.

"Cody's so good at this that we can leave him with the station and know it's in good hands."

Of course, even those who are most successful have their frantic moments.

"I've forgotten to flip the switch and the music I was meaning to play never made it on the air," he said. "I've played the wrong commercials, too." It's part of learning the trade.

Cody's an electronics enthusiast who has always been interested in radio. At home, he has a shop filled with electronic equipment and manuals. Someday, he wants to be an electrical engineer.

No one in Cody's family shares his fervent interest in electronics.

Sometimes we have to call people and say, 'Could you come over because Cody asked a question we can't answer,'" laughed Diana Tews, Cody's mother.

At Shoshone High School, where Cody is a freshman, the young teen's interests are more diversified. He's in Natural Helpers and FFA, and he is president of his class.

He also serves as chairperson of the Wood River Youth Board, all while maintaining As and Bs in his studies.

"The kids at school don't treat him like a celebrity," Cody explained, and he doesn't receive any fan mail. "But people do stop me and ask, 'Cody, is that really you on the radio?'" he said.

TNT's main audience is in the Wendell-Gooding area. Some listeners live in Hagerman, Bliss, Fairfield and Jerome.

Cody, himself, commutes to the station from his family's farm 11 miles north of Shoshone. When he gets his driver's license, it will be a lot easier, said his mom/chauffeur.

Meanwhile, Cody continues to spin those country tunes. His personal favorite is the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band's "Fanning the Drum." But Cody himself seldom fishes in the dark.

"I know I have a young voice right now for a Deejay," he said, "but if you want something, you have to go for it."

Critic's top 10 films of '92 — and then some

Commentary

From the sublime to the unwatchable: 1992 was a year like many movie years, full of unforeseen comebacks, marginal work from once-reliable filmmakers, formulaic junk, terrific pictures from unexpected sources and other surprises.

Among the cinematic mainstream pleasures such as Robert Redford's meditative family drama, "A River Runs Through It," and Spike Lee's revelatory biography, "Malcolm X," shared shopping-mall marquee with sloppily sequels like "Pleasantville" and bottom-of-the-barrel drags like "Kuffs."

But few years are remembered for such in-one-month-and-out-the-next fodder. In-the-long-run, it's enough that 1992 gave us such movies for the ages as "Unforgiven" — Clint Eastwood's tragic

Western about a man who struggles to escape his violent nature, and "The Best Intentions," Billie August and Ingmar Bergman's Swedish masterpiece about an uneasy marital truce between an exceptionally strong-willed couple (the maddeningly beautiful, in my opinion).

More than ever, it was difficult for American movies without stars, $40 million budgets or studio backing to find an audience.

At year's end, the widely praised "Gas Food Lodging" had grossed just over $900,000 at the domestic box office, while such already-forgotten marginal stuff as "Consenting Adults" and "Captain Ron" topped $20 million.

Video and cable will, of course, help connect these movies with those who might have appreciated them in theaters. But it's difficult to imagine that anything as gripping and provocative as "One False Move" can have the same impact on a 21-inch screen.

What follows is a list of the best and worst movies I saw in a theater during the past year.

- Hart's 10 best of 1992:
- 1. "The Best Intentions"
- 2. "Proof"
- 3. "Raise the Red Lantern"
- 4. "Unforgiven"
- 5. "The Player"
- 6. "Howards End"
- 7. "A River Runs Through It"
- 8. "Flinging"
- 9. "Malcolm X"
- 10. "One False Move"

The 10 next best: "Glengarry Glen Ross," "Where Angels Fear to Tread," "Bob Roberts," "Falling From Grace,"

"Husbands and Wives," "At Play in the Fields of the Lord," "Mississippi Masala," "The Crying Game," "Cabeza de Vaca," "Aladdin."

- Hart's 10 worst of 1992:
- 1. "Frozen Assets"
- 2. "Mom and Dad Save the World"
- 3. "Who Killed the Babbie Jesus"
- 4. "Snakes in the Clouds"
- 5. "Kuffs"
- 6. "Out on a Limb"
- 7. "Lethal Weapon 3"
- 8. "Boomerang"
- 9. "Man Trouble"
- 10. "3 Ninjas"

DICTIONARY AND OTHER ACHIEVEMENTS

Funniest first half hour: Goldie Hawn and Meryl Streep battling over the nerdy Bruce Willis in "Death Becomes Her."

Most tasteless, ill-timed comic relief: "Bob Roberts."

Controversy, little substance mark rock music scene

Commentary

Sister Who? This was Bill Clinton, future president of the United States, speaking at a sensitive and high-profile meeting of Jesse Jackson's Rainbow Coalition, ripping rapper Sister Souljah.

She was the forceful speaker who had earlier suggested — to make up for centuries of racism — a week to kill white people.

Clinton's response to Souljah's remarks developed into a brilliant political strategy.

He managed to reassure Americans that he stood against racism of all types and assert himself over the power-broking Jackson without losing his coalition of African-American voters.

Sister Souljah — whose 1992 debut album, "360 Degrees of Power," was a seemingly endless and decidedly un-funny sermon about race relations — earned a front-page picture in the New York Times and a cover story in Newsweek.

For this, she serves as a perfect symbol of the Year in Rock, 1992: Much Ado About Nothing.

It was a year the musicians stood up to make forceful statements that won them huge headlines and national attention beyond the usual rock 'n' roll publicity. It was a year the highest-profile performers decided to back their strong sound bites with weak and uneven works of art.

Remember?

MADONNA'S "SEX": Dirty pictures for $49.95 and the book's cover fall off for no extra charge. An annoying new album called "Erotica."

Yet she dominated headlines, sparked bookstore rushes and ignited public-library controversies all over the world.

"ICE-T'S 'COP KILLER': A powerful song about police brutality misinterpreted by pundits who demanded it be removed from the rapper's first-ever speed-metal album, "Body Count."

"Anyone who ever listened to Randy Newman believes Ice-T's defense that the song's 'cop killer' is a narrator, not the rapper himself."

SINEAD O'CONNOR: Irony of the year: At the Bob Dylan Tribute Concert, fans booed her off the stage because she had earlier ripped up the Pope's picture on national television. But O'Connor never followed up her strong — and not as ridiculous as critics made out — political statements with strong music.

Her Dylanfest song was flimsy and her album of lounge tunes, "All I Not You Girl," flimsier.

BILL CLINTON: Not technically a musician (unless you count the saxophone thing), but somehow the "Rock 'N' Roll President." He likes Elvis. He appears on MTV. He likes Fleetwood Mac's decidedly sappy "Don't Stop."

KE$ha supported his running mate's wife — Tiger Gore — on the "record warning label" issue rockers and their fans have questioned since the mid-'80s.

So much for "attention-getting. Wouldn't the world be a better place if? Please see MUSIC/B2

Mel Gibson and Danny Glover in "Lethal Weapon 3," playing Los Angeles cops who are easily (sample cue dialogue: "You have the right to remain unconscious"). Warner Bros. released the movie just weeks after the L.A. riots.

Most gratifying trends: The roommate-comedy-psychiatrist/maddy-from-hell thriller, "Home Alone 2" in which the burglars from the first film head for New York and land, there just in time to run into... oh, never-mind. Did you expect this thing to make sense? I didn't think so.

Most discouraging trend: The box-office failure of such (such family movies as "Ferry Gully" and "Newsies" and Disney's reissues of "Pinocchio" and "The Great Mouse Detective." Certainly "Aladdin" and "Sister Act" have been successful, but there appears to be a market for only one or two family-oriented blockbusters at a time.

Good movies that were released too early and will be forgotten at Oscar time: "Where Angels Fear to Tread," "A Midnight Clear," "Mississippi Masala," "Falling From Grace," "Crumb," "Ferry Gully," "Newsies," "My Cousin Vinny."

Most impetuous account: Grand Depardieu vs. Columbus, speaking English and sounding French while (trying to locate his character's accent in Ridley Scott's "1492: Conquest of Paradise").

Most useful movie magazine: Entertainment Weekly, which consistently comes up with the most topical reviews (including movies on television, videocassette and laserdisc) and the most interesting background stories.

Best popcorn movies: "Universal Soldier," "Shining Through," "The Waterboys," "The Untouchables," "Warriors of the Magic Mountain," "Department of Redundancy Department," "Pet Sematary II," "Ace: Iron Eagle III," "Alien 3," "Home Alone 2," "Lethal Weapon 3," "Home-1-2-3-Up-the-Midway," "Batman Returns," "Wayne's World" (which already feels like "Wayne's World 2").

More is Less: "Home Alone 2," which runs 15 minutes longer than the original, and "Lethal Weapon 3," which runs eight minutes longer than the first film and five minutes longer than the second one.

Music

the following trends hit CNN and the talk shows with the same voracity as the Steved Madonna War For Publicity?

ALTERNATIVE: Nirvana and U2, both of whom played tiny clubs not so long ago, released new singles that sold millions of copies in 1992.

Nirvana especially blurred the definition of "alternative" music: alternative to what? Fans wondered.

The Lollapalooza tour, which began in 1991 as a big-selling Youth Event, turned into a trendy mad party, showcasing dark bands like Ministry and Jesus and Mary Chain and popular bands like Pearl Jam and the Red Hot Chili Peppers. But, sales or not, some of 1992's best music came from this movement—Sugar Cane and Mary Chain, Sonic Youth and so forth—and next year's Alternative to be fun to follow.

RAP: Quietly, bands like Arrested Development, Basqued, the Disposable Heroes of Hiphopism, and the Roots dominated the year, with the albums that brewed funk, folk politics, spiritualism, reggae and blues into their rap stew.

They proved, again, that rap is no music's most rapidly evolving style.

The year ended with a mature, traditional rap work, Ice Cube's "The Predator," whose rich, funky beats lived up to its "I-told-you-so" posturing about the Los Angeles riots.

WOMEN: Across the board, the political year of the Woman extended to popular music.

Mary Chapin Carpenter, indeed an Ivy League approach into country-rock, the "girl" group movement, a spate of no-holds-barred trash bands led by women, spawned terrific albums by L7, Babes in Toyland and others. Funky popsters like The Verve and Neutralizer dominated the charts; other gems came from Michelle Shocked, PJ Harvey, Suzanne Vega, k.d. lang, Emmylou Harris, Iris, DeMott, 10,000 Maniacs and others.

COUNTRY: Country musicians smile when they say "Garth Brooks," because they know the rest of it. With his string of times open-commercial sales dunes, the year for the rest of them—Wynonna Judd, Alan Jackson, George Strait and his-lar movie, Chris LeDoux, to name a few.

Some 1992 country albums: Emmylou Harris' "At the Ryman," Mary Chapin Carpenter's "Come On and Move," and L7's "Sister Planet." "This One's Gonna Hurt You" proved rock 'n' roll and country come from the same place.

OLD PEOPLE: Just kidding! (Some of the highlights came from music's oldies who've done their own thing amid decades of tacky trends: Lou Reed kicked off the year with "Magic and Loss," a moving portrait of friends who died of cancer. Bruce Springsteen's second album, "The Ghost of Tom Sadow," opened his hapless chapter so far with two albums, the excellent "Lucky Town" and the first-filled "Human Touch."

Neil Young and Bob Dylan came out slugging in his fall with albums "Down Where the Spirit Takes Me" and "Where the Grass Grows Higher Than Your Feet." "Been to You"—that sound remarkably like the two trend-ignores have always sounded.

Even ex-Beatle Ringo Starr, ex-Beatle George Harrison, and ex-Beatle Mac Linsley Buckingham and so forth put out admirable, if not exactly revolutionary, records.

But the most bemusing 1992 comment about rock 'n' roll belonged to the Wall St. Journal, which ran a front-page article titled "Rock is slowly fading as tastes in music go off in many directions."

Sure, the music industry was at least as fragmented in 1992 than it had ever been.

But what's wrong with that? Maybe there's no Beatles. Elvis or Pink Floyd to define rock 'n' roll for all time.

But it's sure fun to pick your spots and come up with your own definition.

Irish rockers top '92 concert draw

The Associated Press
Irish rockers U2 and their multimedia "Rattle and Hum" tour led a concert industry that rebounded in 1992 after hitting bottom the previous year, an industry newsletter reported.

U2's 73-city tour of the United States grossed $67 million, making it by far the top concert money-maker of 1992 and the third most successful tour on record, the newsletter Pollstar reported.

"The Grateful Dead" was second with $31.2 million. Guns N' Roses and Metallica in a joint tour, Neil Diamond and Bruce Springsteen were the other biggest concert draws in 1992.

"It was a rebound — not necessarily a strong rebound — but a rebound that was very tricky," said Ben Liss, executive director of the North American Concert Promoters Association.

"Ticket sales were up 21 percent over 1991 to about $1.1 billion," Pollstar said. But that was still below the 1990 level of $1.1 billion, said newsletter editor Gary Bongiovanni.

More popular acts on the road, ticket discounts and fans more comfortable at spending money accounted for the improvement, the experts said.

"Starting from the recession in 1991, concert promoters angered several artists by releasing a list of the acts that cost them the most money. There's no such loser list this year because business is better," Liss said.

U2, touring in support of their successful "Achtung Baby" album, used a high-tech stage set that incorporated satellite television transmissions and multiple video screens for a spoof on the media's impact.

The presentation did not overwhelm the music but enhanced the music, Liss said. "People responded very well to that."

Only the Rolling Stones' tour in 1989 and the New Kids On The Block tour of 1990 grossed more money than U2, Pollstar said.

U2's 73-show tour of the United States in 1992 sold $67 million worth of tickets, the third most successful tour on record.

Concert draws in 1992
The Associated Press	$31.2 million
Neil Diamond	$28.4 million
Bruce Springsteen	$27.7 million
Genesis	$27.6 million
Elton John	$27.5 million
Metallica	$23.3 million
Eric Clapton	$22.7 million
Hanmer	$22.5 million
Grateful Dead	$31.2 million
Guns N' Roses/Metallica	$31.2 million

The Grateful Dead would have taken in much more money if Jerry Garcia's illness hadn't forced the cancellation of a series of shows, Bongiovanni said.

Garth Brooks finished only 14th on Pollstar's list with $18.5 million in ticket sales, but he played a lot of smaller cities and had fans camped out for tickets, Bongiovanni said.

"Brooks kept tickets priced at $18 and probably built up more good will among fans than a humble boy from Oklahoma will ever need," he said.

Some of the biggest tours provided evidence that the concert industry hasn't fully recovered from hard times. Genesis had a lot of open seats at several stadium shows and a promoter in Phoenix even offered two-for-one ticket promotions to get rid of Springsteen tickets, Bongiovanni said.

In pockets of the country, particularly Southern California after the Los Angeles riots, promoters had a tough time selling tickets, he said.

Promoters are optimistic for 1993, when tours are planned for Paul McCartney, Aerosmith, Sting, Bobby Brown, Bon Jovi, Van Halen, Robert Plant, Springsteen and Diamond.

'A Few Good Men,' 'Aladdin' pace picks

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — The courtroom drama "A Few Good Men" and the animated musical "Aladdin" received a leading nomination for the 1993 Golden Globe Awards.

"A Few Good Men" captured such prestige nominations as best dramatic picture, best dramatic actor for Tom Cruise, best supporting actor for Jack Nicholson, best director for Rob Reiner and best screenplay for Aaron Sorkin.

"Aladdin" received nominations for best musical or comic picture and best original score for Alan Menken. It also has three nominations for best original song — "The Mouse," "Howards End," "The Player," "Scents of a Woman" and "Unforgiven" — had four nominations each. The 50th annual Golden Globe Awards will be presented Jan. 23 as voted by about 70 members of the Hollywood Foreign Press Association.

Also nominated for best dramatic picture were "The Crying Game," "Howard's End," "Scents of a Woman" and "Unforgiven." The other selections for best musical or comic movie were "Enchanted April," "Honeymoon in Vegas," "The Player" and "Sister Act."

Unlike the Academy Awards, the Golden Globes have several separate categories for dramatic and musical or comic movies, Academy Awards nominations are to be announced Feb. 17.

Joining Cruise for best dramatic actor nominee were Robert Downey Jr. for "Chaplin," Nicholson for "Hoffa," Al Pacino for "Scents of a Woman" and Denzel Washington for "Malcolm X."

The other dramatic actress picks were Mary McDonnell for "Passion Fish," Michelle Pfeiffer for "Love Field," Susan Sarandon for "Lorenzo's Oil," Sharon Stone, "Basic Instinct," Emma Thompson, "Howards End."

Sydney Omarr Horoscope

IF JANUARY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are destined to meet a vibrant, attractive, original thinker who possesses pioneering spirit. During this year, you can expect major domestic adjustments that could include change of residence, marital status. Burden is lifted, you'll have greater degree of self-expression, you no longer will feel as if "standing on edge." During remainder of January, define terms, ascending procedures.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Terms defined in crystal-clear manner, you emerge "on top" following vigorous "battle." Individual who betrayed you pleads for "second chance." No double trouble. Enough is enough!

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Decisions previously withheld become "visible." Key is organization, preparation, firmness, and consistent material. Make clear that you do mean business. Private confidence will prove beneficial.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Focus on future projects, travel plans, ability to gain wider audience. Aries Moon highlights realization of hopes, wishes. You'll have best of both worlds.

CANCER (June 21-July 21): You'll be in the company of "big wigs." Don't denigrate your own capabilities - you feature a top-notch intellect. Make fresh start, recent independence, originality. You represented.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Intuitive intellect serves as accurate guide. Focus on the unorthodox, elements of timing, surprise. Lunar emphasis on publishing, travel, communication - search for "good mate."

VIRO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Creativity, experiments, "test the waters." Concern over body image is not justified. Popularity zooms upward, social activities will accelerate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23): Personal relationship is "rocky," but potential. Emphasis on public image, credibility, legal matters.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Pleasant surprise due in connection with basic routine, permanent issues, employment. Water notices received - concerning "change of venue."

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Money picture brighter due to transaction involving Scorpio. Focus on family, home, decoration, remodeling, reunion. Mutual instrument from an astrologer. Love relationship goes from cool to torrid.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Project set in close quarters - someone wants something of value from you but doesn't expect to pay the price. Individual you trust wants to release your presence.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Key is to organize, to check sources to obtain funding from individual who long ago said "never say 'no' anymore." Just ask! Relative involved, short trip featured.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): More people are drawn to you, fascinated by your apparent psychic powers. Money flows in - be aggressive, take initiative, and eschew false modesty.

'Hoffa' portrays title character as a man of single dimension

By Kenneth Turan
Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD — Jimmy Hoffa never drove a truck for a living but turned the Teamsters into the largest and strongest union of its day. He trafficked with thugs but used a sophisticated grasp of the intricacies of trucking industry economics to consolidate his gains.

Movie review

A devoted family man who never developed champagne tastes, he disappeared on July 30, 1975, probably a victim of organized crime. He was a complex, contradictory personality whose life might have made an exceptional movie. It hasn't quite.

"Hoffa" (rated R for violence and strong language) is a very impressive piece of work in a number of ways. Dark, sinister and brooding, it uses Jack Nicholson's convincing acting, Stephen H. Burum's panoramic cinematography and Danny DeVito's polished, energetic direction to create a stark, brassy epic of union history. But that is only half the story.

For "Hoffa" turns out to be as misdirected as it is passionate, as one-note-dramatically as it is potent. Chiefly, it is a take-it-or-leave-it biography that distills all the conventions of the form. It ends up outsmarting itself, an attempt at myth-making that succeeds only in leveling the object of its affections.

David Mamet wrote the "Hoffa" script, and it is a classic, elegant piece of work, displaying the grace with spoken language that marked "Glengarry Glen Ross" but troublesome in terms of structure and character development. With a score by the conventional signposts of biography, "Hoffa" offers us a single date for any of its actions, and except for the briefest glimpse of the Detroit News, not a single city is named as a location.

Danny DeVito (left) co-stars with Jack Nicholson in Hoffa, DeVito's movie of powerful Teamster boss Jimmy Hoffa, whose turbulent career is followed over the sweep of four decades.

The same kind of contempt for the standard issue is displayed in the development of Hoffa's character, that in a word, doesn't.

Aside from the fact that this simplistic portrayal does a disservice to the real man (who, though you wouldn't know it, could outfigure any CPA), its lack of dramatic arc makes the film increasingly tedious to watch. All the audience is left with are snapshots of repetitive tough-guy behavior, a scenario that is too limited to hold anyone's interest for a 2-hour-and-20-minute length. During "Hoffa's" first hour, however, these problems are not very visible or very troublesome. Though the film opens in the 1970s with the union leader and close (albeit fictional) associate Bobby Claro (DeVito) waiting for a meeting in a restaurant parking lot, the story soon shifts into flashback and shows us

Hoffa's start as a firebrand organizer of fearful truckers. America's turbulent, violent labor history has been rarely touched by film (John Sayles' 1987 "Menace" was an excellent exception), and DeVito takes full advantage of that setting.

Always a director with a feeling for the dark side, he and cinematographer Burum create a vivid, compelling portrait of large-scale class warfare, from angry confrontations in rainstorms to apocalyptic pitched battles with management goons.

Though he has a weakness for showier shots than he really needs, DeVito emerges here as a director of impressive visual scope and flair. Helping him quite a bit is Nicholson's strong performance, flat Midwestern accent and all, as the choleric union leader.

Ex-hairdresser becomes big-time director

LOS ANGELES (AP) — He first worked as a hairdresser in a New Jersey beauty parlor. Ten years ago he was accused of homicide in a TV sitcom. Today Danny DeVito is the director and co-star of a $50 million movie.

All this from a bald, five-footer who seems to lack the likely power person in the film business. But after directing only three movies, DeVito can call his shots at any studio, as director as well as actor.

How did it happen? It helps that he has appeared in a number of successful, fortune hunter in "Romancing the Stone"; as Arnold Schwarzenegger's twin brother in "Twins"; as the insidious Penguin in "Batman Returns."

As director, his movies have included the twisted comedy melodramas "Twist Momma From the Train" and "The War of the Roses." His latest is "Hoffa," a big-budget biography filled with strong drama and vast crowd scenes.

"My main man Dan" is what Jack Nicholson, who stars in "Hoffa," calls DeVito. Their friendship goes back to 1975 and "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." They also appeared together in "Going South," which Nicholson directed, and "Terms of Endearment."

The public's image of DeVito, 48, was established during his five-year run as Louis DePalma, the blustery, malevolent dispatcher in the comedy series "Taxi."

A different view of DeVito himself is offered by Joe Roth, who hired him for "Hoffa" while heading 20th Century Fox production (Roth has since moved to Disney).

"He's a very warm, dedicated guy, able to go through every emotion to get the job done. He's completely loyal and dedicated. Yes, he can explode on occasion, but only when someone on the picture has fouled up badly. It's only about trying to make a better film."

DeVito's achievements in the movie business certainly could not have been predicted during his growing years in the summer resort of Asbury Park (N.J.). After graduating from Catholic high school, he went to work in his sister's beauty parlor.

He admits to harboring secret desires to be an actor early on. "I'm a big movie fan. Sometimes I'd go two-three times a week. I used to think, 'I can do that.' I didn't admit it because established DeVito in the comedy movie.

DeVito met Rhea Perlman, who was an inch taller, in New York in my friends 1970. They lived together until I would think 1981. They now have three children: Lucie Chet, 9, Gracie, 7, and Jake, 5. With Perlman working in "Cheers" and DeVito busy with his own projects, can they maintain a private life?

"Y O U R E going to be a movie star?" "T. a. x. i. . . . No, I don't think you can even think about that," he replies. "We spend as much time as possible with the kids, who are now the focus of the relationship. That's our biggest dilemma, trying to keep every weekend free for them and trying to get home from work in time to put them to bed. We've been doing OK."

'Few Good Men' No. 1 again; weak business for 'Hoffa,' 'Chaplin'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "A Few Good Men" took first place at the box office for the third straight week, but the new biographical film "Hoffa" and "Chaplin" did only modest business in their Christmas weekend debuts.

"A Few Good Men" grossed $13.6 million and "Aladdin" was second figures released by Exhibitor Relations Co. Inc.

"Tommy Alone 2: Lost in New York" was third with $9.1 million, "The Bodyguard" was fourth with $8.8 million and "Forever Young" brought in $7.7 million for fifth place.

"Hoffa," which cost $42 million and "Trespass," a new drama with Tom Cruise, Cuba Gooding Jr. and Ice Cube, was sixth with $6.4 million for seventh place.

In eighth with $4.2 million was "The Distinguished Gentleman" and in ninth was "Leap of Faith" on $4.1 million.

Magic Valley

Around the valley

Weather, New Year's festivities don't mix

TWIN FALLS — Mother Nature chose the most treacherous driving night of the year to make travel nearly impossible in parts of the Magic Valley Thursday.

As if the annual deluge of drunken drivers wasn't enough for police to handle, winds blew snow across roads, reducing visibility and adding to the already icy conditions, especially south and east of Twin Falls.

Even police cruisers were having trouble staying on U.S. Highway 93 between Twin Falls and Jackpot. The Idaho State Police was discouraging travel in that direction.

Twin Falls County sheriff's dispatcher Paula Gietzen said officials in Jackpot warned against traveling there "unless you've got chains and a lot of time."

Many east-west secondary roads in southern Twin Falls County were drifting with snow. Chains were recommended for anyone trying to reach the Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional Airport.

Conditions weren't much better to the east, the ISP reported. Interstate 84 from the highway exit leading to its junction with Interstate 86 was littered with cars and trucks that had slid off the road or rolled over, a dispatcher said.

There had been no serious injuries reported by early Thursday afternoon, but officials were bracing for the worst as New Year's Eve traffic began to pick up.

"I want everybody to stay home tonight," Gietzen said.

Need help on your taxes? Dial state's toll-free number

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho State Tax Commission has a free way for you to get state tax information.

The commission recently installed a toll-free telephone number, 1-800-972-7600, for Idaho residents who need help. Taxpayers can order tax forms, ask about refunds or get answers to tax questions by dialing the number.

Commission employees will answer phones from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Environmentalists will have work cut out for them in '93

LEWISTON — Some environmentalists fear the Idaho Legislature's 1993 session will pass measures to weaken federal and state environmental controls.

"I think we're going to be playing a lot of defensive battles in protecting the environment," said Mike Matheson, Ketchum public lands director for the Idaho Conservation League.

"It's hard to predict what kind of crazy ideas might come out of this Legislature," he said. "I hope reason will prevail, but I have no great expectations."

Finance reports for state campaigns show Idaho's four largest timber industry contributors spent more than $91,000 on Republicans, who won big majorities in the Idaho House and Senate.

Only $15,500 went to Democrats, and much of that was spent in Democratic primaries pitting pro-industry candidates against others more environmentally oriented.

Campaign financial forms completed through the Dec. 2 reporting deadline show Timber PAC, Polatch Corp., Boise Cascade Corp. and Plum Creek Timber Co. collectively spent $121,498 on Idaho campaigns. That includes $7,400 to Idahoans Against 1 Percent, $7,000 to the Idaho Business PAC, $91,398 to Republicans, including $34,425 to state and local GOP organizations, and $15,500 to Democrats, including $1,200 to party organizations.

Looking for entertainment today? Watch Freeze on Skis

TWIN FALLS — If you're of a mind to watch a little mid-winter water-skiing, turn up at Shoshone Falls about noon today.

The Magic Valley Jaycees will hold their annual Freeze on Skis fund-raising event, designed to raise money to the Wishing Star Foundation.

Participants have collected pledges for the marathon-format event. Spectators are welcome.

A year of epic events

Water, drought, death not divine news, but it tops our '92 list

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — 1992 was a year christened in blood, baptized in fire and embroiled in controversy over water.

The year began with the death of 2-year-old Amanda Hostetler in Twin Falls, a death that stunned a community and raised questions about how well our children are protected.

Unfortunately, hers was not the only death to appear in the headlines. Magic Valley law enforcement investigated seven illegal killings in 1992.

Fire brought national attention to the Wood River Valley when lightning fires took more than 60,000 acres and scorched several homes.

While the lack of water dominated the news, battles over what to do with what little remains also raged.

Private citizens, utilities, environmental groups and government agencies continue to squabble over how best to protect endangered salmon runs, clean up the Snake River and provide for future energy needs while protecting existing water rights.

Voters made news in 1992 as well, turning out in record numbers to elect a new senator and show their support for decided legislative issues.

Local elections changed the face of law enforcement in many counties for years to come, as four new sheriffs were elected along with a handful of new county commissioners.

In state issues that will have local impact, Gov. Cecil Andrus appeared to win a few rounds in his ongoing battle with the federal Department of Energy over storage of nuclear waste at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

The governor also grabbed local headlines in April when he offered his proposal for a new Air

Top, shrinking water supplies forced Salmon Tract farmer Shirrel Silvester to spread his water thin and simply abandon some of his poorer acres. Left, after Amanda Hostetler died of internal injuries in her Twin Falls home, an ironic message remained on the door. Below, Jerome County Sheriff Larry Gold lost his reelection bid after becoming entangled in several controversies in 1992.

Festival of Trees falls 10% short of '91 fund-raising mark

By Steve Crump
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Festival of Trees, the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center Foundation's major annual fund-raising event, took in about 10 percent less than last year, Director Larry Baxter said Thursday.

The festival, which sells donated, decorated Christmas trees to benefit the Southern Idaho Regional Cancer Center, earned about $65,000 during the Dec. 3-6 event. Baxter estimated that was 80 to 85 percent of the final figure, since some support comes from foundation grants, which have not been counted yet.

Last year the event raised $80,000, and after the bills were paid, earned about $55,000 for the foundation's programs.

"We'll have enough money to pay the bills and to support the QRUs and the center center," Baxter said. Attendance at the festival, which was held in the old Mode building in the Blue-Lakes Shopping Center, was down from about 13,000 last year to 11,000 this year.

"We didn't do as well as last year, but I'm very confident, very happy about this year's event," Baxter said.

Baxter said cold weather was probably the biggest reason for the drop in attendance.

"We sold everything, and the festival was a success, so I'm happy," said Donna Wuthrich, co-chairwoman of this year's festival. "United Way of Magic Valley also fell short of its goal, raising about one-third less than it did last year, but Wuthrich said she didn't know if there was a connection.

"I don't like to compare," she said. "I'm satisfied if we had items left over I'd feel differently, but we didn't."

The festival had about 40 trees donated this year, about one-third fewer than in 1991, but Wuthrich said that wasn't as significant a factor as it seems. "We had a lot of decorated items donated that we sold, including a playhouse," she said. "To me the quality of the trees is more important than the quantity, and we had some very nice trees this year."

Tax reductions available to hundreds

By H.R. Weixel
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — Property tax reductions are available to hundreds of Jerome County residents who in the past have failed to take advantage of the tax break.

About 460 property owners received tax reductions last year under the Circuit Breaker program. Deputy County Assessor Bonnie Tolman said.

"But there are many, many more who are eligible but just don't come in and apply for the program," Tolman said.

The state pays the county the amount of the tax reduction allotted to eligible taxpayers.

Property owners who may qualify for tax reductions must meet the following requirements:

- Owned and resided in Jerome County home through 1992.
- Household income was $16,510 or less in 1992 after deducting non-reimbursed medical expenses.

The property owner also must qualify under one or more of the following categories as of Jan. 1, 1993:

- Age 65 or older.
- A widow or widower.
- A veteran with at least 10 percent service-connected disability.
- A pension for a non-service-connected disability.
- Disabled as recognized by Social Security Administration.
- Blind.

An orphan under age 18.

Former prisoner of war or hostage.

Applicants can apply for the program between Jan. 1 and April 15 at the Jerome County Assessor's office in the courthouse. Information can be obtained by calling 324-7507.

Those eligible for the Circuit Breaker Program can also receive a 50 percent reduction in the landfill fee included on tax bills.

Parents of teens killed in wreck sue county

REXBURG (AP) — The families of teen-agers involved in a REXBURG-area collision that killed three have sued Madison County and the husband of one of the victims.

JoAnn Abramowski of Rexburg was making a left-hand turn on March 19 when her vehicle was hit by Louis Laughlin of Girie, who was speeding, the Idaho State Police report said.

Laughlin, 18, was injured and killed three have sued Madison County and the husband of one of the victims.

The collision killed Mrs. Abramowski and her passengers, 15-year-old Amy Furniss and 14-year-old Todd Mackay. Crystal Groslik and Don Hogner Jr. were injured.

may have killed him. The suspects are missing and are believed to have fled to Mexico.

On Aug. 31, the body of Sacramento Aquilar, 46, was found beside a road in eastern Gooding County. Jeffrey Thomas, 21, of Gooding County is charged with murder, but denies shooting Aquilar. A trial is set for April 6.

Thus, 1992 ended much the way it began—for farmers who hope their prayers will be answered in the form of more moisture in 1993.

On Aug. 6, the hills around Hayden and Bellevue exploded in flame as lightning touched off fires in the boggy grass and timber.

The R-6 Fire and its brethren scorched 20,000-plus acres and destroyed several homes and buildings before being brought under control.

The new businesses cropping up like mushrooms on Blue Lakes Boulevard North were the most obvious sign of that economic growth. Two new hotels, a discount store, car dealerships moving from downtown and the promise of more development further transformed Twin Falls' commercial corridor.

The arrival of Wal-Mart and a new Kmart store in Rupert signaled the beginning of a discount store war there.

Jerome County jail. Although Cisneros was captured in 11 months later, troubles for Gold continued to mount, and he lost to independent Police Chief George Silver in the November election.

In Twin Falls County, the sheriff's race was more amiable—at least on the surface—but hotly contested. Four men vied to replace Sheriff Jim Munn, who is retiring after 13 years in office.

Courthouse security chief Wayne Toutsley, an independent, edged Republican Cal Edwards by just 398 votes.

The year's final week brought the Magic Valley's biggest snowstorm in years—a hopeful sign that 1992 may someday be known as the last year of the drought.

Here is a look back at the stories and issues that shaped 1992:

Another hope, Kevin Atkinson, 38, of Pocatello, has been charged with killing Samuel W. Thurmond and is set to stand trial March 22.

On June 8, Juan Ramos, a 21-year-old Mini-Cassia farmworker, was shot and killed outside a bar in Burley.

A 17-year-old illegal immigrant, Abel Larios, pleaded guilty to voluntary manslaughter and was sentenced to eight to 16 years in prison.

Drought

The Magic Valley endured its sixth straight year of below-normal water levels.

The irrigation canals that supply water to farmers and ranchers were shut off earlier than usual, and ditch riders released water on a rotating basis.

In spite of that, Idaho's farmers produced the state's second-largest potato crop ever.

On Aug. 6, the hills around Hayden and Bellevue exploded in flame as lightning touched off fires in the boggy grass and timber.

The R-6 Fire and its brethren scorched 20,000-plus acres and destroyed several homes and buildings before being brought under control.

As soon as the ground had cooled, public lands officials began efforts to seed the barren hillsides.

Drugs

The drug war's big guns seemed somewhat muffled after suffering a major defeat early in the year.

Charges against 28 of 39 Twin Falls County residents indicted by a grand jury in 1992 were dropped or dismissed by District Judge Daniel Hurlbut in May.

Hurlbut ruled that deputy prosecutor Frank Nichols "misused the grand jury process." Two more indictments were later dismissed.

Spurred by the firing of popular police chief Cal Nevada, voters ousted Pam Ritzen, Ed Simon and Larry Young by narrow margins.

Murder

Descriptions of a 2-year-old child's bruised body lying dead in a hospital emergency room inflamed the community, which demanded answers to who had done it and how it happened.

Nearly a year has gone by since Amanda Hostetter's death, and the answers to those questions still remain unclear.

On June 22, the dismembered body of 61-year-old Benito Ruiz-Carabeo of Burley was found stuffed into garbage bags and dumped in rural Lincoln County.

But his tour was cut short when a pump in the river by agriculture and other users, clogged the intakes on the Governor's boat.

A year-long study of the Snake River between Milner Dam and King Hill was released in March by the University of Idaho's research and extension center.

Politics

Local Republicans fared much better than their national counterparts as voters turned out in record numbers for the Nov. 3 election.

Local voters chose Congressman Richard Stallings over Boise Mayor Dirk Kempthorne in the race to replace retiring Senator Steve Symms; but the Republican Kempthorne swamped his opponent in the statewide polls.

Sports

The biggest sports news of the year was old but as the College of Southern Idaho men's basketball team brought home a third trophy from the national tournament. The Golden Eagles ended 1992 with a 15-0 record and a number two national ranking.

There were plenty of major water issues—in addition to the lack of it—to choose from in 1992. The plight of the Snake River was one of the most vivid in the year.

The funeral will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Jerome LDS 2nd Ward Chapel, with Bishop Alfred J. Nickla conducting. Burial will follow at the Jerome Cemetery. Friends may call from 9 to 9:45 a.m. on Saturday at the church.

Arrangements are under the direction of the Hove-Robertson Funeral Chapel in Jerome.

Wanda F. Carter

JEROME—Wanda Fay Carter, 59, of Jerome, died Wednesday, Dec. 30, 1992, at St. Benedict's Family Medical Center in Jerome.

She was born April 24, 1933, in Jerome, the daughter of Joe and Fern Richardson Rasch. She and Fern married in 1951. She worked as a cook in various restaurants in Nevada and California. In 1949, she joined the Navy and was later discharged in 1951. In 1950, she married Max Francis Thyrle in San Francisco. Max worked as a bus driver and a fare collector for the City of San Francisco.

Max is survived by his son, Steve Owens of Jerome. He was preceded in death by his wife and one sister.

The funeral will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Jerome LDS 2nd Ward Chapel, with Bishop Alfred J. Nickla conducting. Burial will follow at the Jerome Cemetery. Friends may call from 9 to 9:45 a.m. on Saturday at the church.

Arrangements are under the direction of the Hove-Robertson Funeral Chapel in Jerome.

Although the sense of loss can never be diminished, a tour of the funeral home before you have to make funeral arrangements will provide a familiarity with the facilities and the process that would be encountered.

This also provides an opportunity to have questions answered without having to contend with the stress of grief.

We invite any club, organization, class or individual to contact us about a tour or speaking engagement.

Idaho Traffic deaths decline

BOISE (AP) — Idaho could enjoy a 9 percent drop in traffic fatalities from 1991 to 1992, but that trend may end if the state's population explodes without a subsequent increase in highway patrolmen, state officials say.

Idaho's fatalities for the year stood at 240 on Thursday morning, down about 9 percent from 263 in 1991, said Marie Bishop, highway safety manager for the Idaho Department of Transportation.

That also was lower than the 244 deaths in 1990, but an increase from 238 the year before. The highest numbers in recent history were 331 in 1980 and 293 in 1981. Transportation will continue to study the aspects of each death and publish its findings later in 1993, she said.

"We're encouraged by the reduced fatalities," said Col. Ron Moore, deputy director of the Department of Law Enforcement. "People aren't drinking and driving quite as much and the overall seat belt is up," he said. "There seems to be a little societal change."

The Idaho State Police visited 26,000 school children from kindergarten to six-grade in 1992, teaching them to encourage their parents to drive safely.

Moore said there still are plenty of people drinking and driving in Idaho. To combat intoxicated drivers on New Year's Eve, every available trooper would be on the highways.

Although the icy roads may reduce the number of fatalities because many collisions are at slow speeds, Moore said statistics have shown half or more of all the deaths occurred in vehicles traveling under 35 mph.

Three of the six deaths over the Christmas weekend involved icy roads.

Women typically play lottery

MOSCOW (AP) — The typical Idaho lottery player is a woman between the ages of 25 and 44, with a middle income range who has not graduated from college, a University of Idaho economist says.

She may also spend time at home watching game shows and soap operas, often visits the grocery store and buys a $1 lottery ticket on impulse.

Whether those impulsive players tend to be impulsive shoppers is the topic of a study by UI economics associate professor Linda Morris. Although her findings could have huge implications for marketing the lottery in this state, the Idaho Lottery Commission is not footing the bill.

The National Science Foundation is funding the project. Risk-taking behavior is an area the foundation is interested in.

In the early stages of the project, Morris received a $17,000 foundation-planning grant in August, 1991. She will write an in-depth proposal for a larger, two-year grant in the months ahead. That study could begin in September.

Based on data from the Lottery Commission, the profile of Idaho players parallels those found in other states with one exception: more women play the Idaho lottery than men.

According to national statistics, more men play. And they tend to choose games with big stakes, like the multimillion-dollar Powerball. Women tend to stick to the lower-stakes games like the instant scratch-off games.

Manager of state office suspended

ST. MARIES (AP) — The manager of the state Department of Employment office in St. Maries has been suspended for 30 days pending a personnel investigation. Department spokeswoman confirmed on Wednesday that Morris Bentley, manager of the four-person office since June 1985, was suspended Dec. 22. He has worked for the department since 1978.

Because it was a personnel issue, no further information can be released, Employment. Department spokeswoman Eileen Cavanaugh Bruce said. She said the suspension was not a disciplinary action, but she would not elaborate.

Bentley could not be reached for comment Wednesday.

Ex-judge agrees to plea bargain

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — A former Moses Lake, Wash., judge arrested last summer on Lake Coeur d'Alene for hounding while intoxicated and obstructing an officer has agreed to a plea bargain. In exchange for his guilty plea, Larry W. Larson will receive no jail time and a withheld judgment. Kootenai County Prosecutor Bill Douglas said Wednesday.

Andrus, Babbitt to meet

BOISE (AP) — Gov. Cecil Andrus said he expects to meet next week with Bruce Babbitt, President-elect Clinton's choice for Interior secretary. The governor also said Wednesday that he has been in touch with the office of Commerce Secretary-designate Ron Brown to discuss who will head the National Marine Fisheries Service in the Clinton administration.

Andrus, Interior secretary under President Jimmy Carter, said he plans to have a wide-ranging discussion with Babbitt, the former Democratic governor of Arizona who ran unsuccessfully for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1988.

"Bruce and I have known each other a long time," Andrus said. "He called me and said he'd like to visit with me."

Although Andrus said the meeting would take place next week, one of his aides said it might be in mid-January because of previous commitments. Among the issues Andrus said he would discuss with Babbitt is the U.S. Fish-and-Wildlife Service, which is largely responsible for implementing the Endangered Species Act.

Free Christmas Tree Disposal

The City of Twin Falls, Twin Falls County and Kimberly Nurseries in a joint effort to reduce waste ordinarily deposited in a landfill and to recover an organic mulch resource will accept Christmas trees at 125 6th Avenue West from December 26th to January 11, 1993. The trees will be chipped into mulch by Kimberly Nurseries as a donation to the community in the interest of environmentally sound waste management.

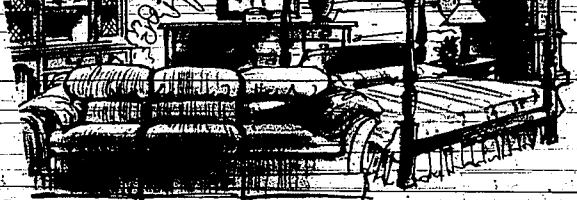

Trees need to have all ornaments, wire, lights and plastic bags removed.

If you have any questions call Sherry Jeff, Sanitation Inspector, at 736-2264.

Baylor upsets Arizona

The Associated Press

EL PASO, Texas — Record-setting Hunker Melvin Bonner caught two touchdowns, passed and Baylor beat No. 22 Arizona at its own defensive game Thursday, presenting coach Grant Teaff with a career-ending 20-15 victory in the Hancock Bowl.

Teaff, doused with ice and huddled at midfield by the jubilant Bears, is leaving the sidelines to become the school's athletic director. He ended a 21-year coaching career in Waco with a record of 128-105-6.

Bonner, who finished with a 116-yard record 165 yards on 5 receptions, wrecked an Arizona defense that was No. 2 in the nation this season while giving up an average of just 9 points a game.

Bonner caught a 61-yard scoring pass off a halfback option throw from reserve Brandell Jackson and shook loose on the sideline for a 69-yard TD run.

Arizona got a 7-yard scoring run from quarterback George Malaululu and field goals of 22 and 20 yards by Steve McClaurhin.

Bonner burned All-Pac 10 cornerback Keshion Johnson on both of his scoring plays. A beaten Johnson fell down at the Arizona 40 on the Jackson-to-Bonner connection with 4:30 left in the half. With 14:10 left in the game, Johnson was unable to wrap up Bonner on the sidelines, allowing him to streak untouched into the end zone in put the Bears in front for good.

Bonner also bailed out the Bears after Baylor (7-5) stopped an Arizona (6-5-1) drive at the goal line early in the fourth quarter.

With the ease of the football touching the goal line and Baylor facing a third-and-10 situation, Bonner found a seam in the Wildcats secondary and pulled in the pass from quarterback J.J. Joe for a first down.

The Bears got out of the trap, and Baylor converted two fourth-quarter fumbles by Arizona sophomore back Chuck Levy into field goals of 32 and 35 yards by Trey Weir.

Arizona's George Malaululu scores in first half.

Ducks fall to Demon Deacons

Wake Forest rallies from 19-point deficit

The Associated Press

SHREVEPORT, La. — Wake Forest coach Bill Doolley said his Demon Deacons would need a mistake-free game in the Independence Bowl to beat Oregon.

He was wrong. Wake Forest committed six turnovers to sporadic Ducks in a 19-point deficit, then rallied for a 39-25 victory Thursday, sending Doolley into retirement with the school's first bowl win since 1946.

"Credit Oregon's defense for our poor first half performance," Doolley said. "But we came in at halftime and settled down and said, 'Hey, let's play like we're capable and execute.'" In the second half we played error-free football, and we won.

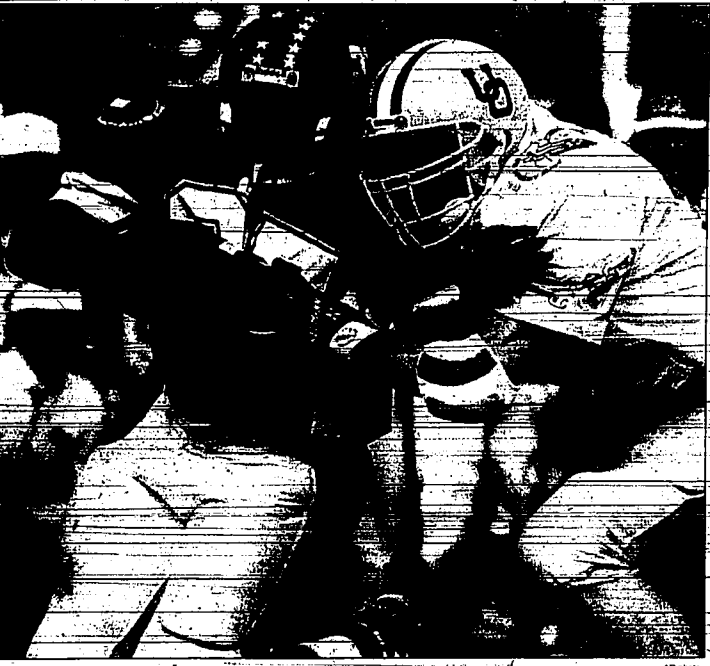

Wide receiver Bobby Jones hit Todd Dixon with a 61-yard touchdown pass with 12:02 left in the game to give the Deacons the lead for good. They scored 49 unanswered points in 13:35 to become the third team to win the Independence Bowl after failing at the half.

"It was two different football games today. We won the first one and they won the second one, they just scored more points in the second one," said Oregon coach Rich Brooks.

"We came out in the second half and got outplayed. They kicked our lances all over the field."

Dixon caught five passes for 166 yards and two TDs to earn offensive player of the game honors. Herman O'Berry, who forced two fumbles, recovered them both and ran one 24 yards for a touchdown. He also had an interception — was the defensive player of the game.

Oregon led 29-10 with 9:43 left in the third quarter, and the Wake Forest offense wasn't moving the ball — they had a net gain of minus-7 in their last six possessions.

Wake Forest's John Leach fends off Oregon safety Eric Castle to set up the first score of the game.

Sugar Bowl: Miami has nothing to hide

The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — By what you hear from Alabama's defenders, you'd think Miami playbooks are selling as fast as programs in the Sugar Bowl.

"We know they hurry a few drive plays early, just to see if they work. I'm sure they're working on those shovel passes, too," All-America end Eric Curry said.

"They're not going to run straight ahead against us much," he said. "They're going to try those quick passes to the outside and some slants."

Miami's offensive players, meanwhile, hold no secrets. Rather than hide the game plan or hint at trick plays, they agree with Alabama's assessment.

"We're not going to change. We're going to do the things that work for us," quarterback Gino Torretta said. "We saw how Florida was successful against them, and those are some of the things we do."

About all that's left for New Year's night is to see who will win one of the best bowl matchups ever when No. 1 Miami plays No. 2 Auburn — namely, the "Flutie game" — puny offense against the Crimson Tide's powerful defense.

In all sports, they say defense wins games. It's been true this season for Alabama (12-0), never more so than in its last game when Antonio Langham returned an interception for a touchdown in the closing minutes for a 20-21 victory over Florida in the Southeastern Conference title game.

Alabama led the nation in rushing and total defense (194 yards per game), and was second in points allowed (9.1) and pass defense.

"I just hope we can score," Miami coach Dennis Erickson said.

Chargers looking for revenge

The Associated Press

The last time San Diego and Kansas City met, Chiefs linebacker Derrick Thomas sneaked Stan Humphries four times in the first half as the Chargers lost 16-14.

That was Nov. 8. This time, San Diego hopes to be ready. After all, it's the playoffs.

"I definitely don't think I'll be out on an island like I was that first half," Chargers tackle Harry Swoyne said. "I think we'll have to throw some different things at him, and sometimes I won't be singled up on him."

That loss at Kansas City was San Diego's only one after an 0-4 start. The AFC West champion Chargers finished 11-5 and the wild-card Chiefs 10-6.

They met Saturday in the first of two AFC first-round playoff games.

The other Saturday game has NFC wild-card Washington (9-7) at NFC Central champion Minnesota (11-5).

On Sunday, it's all wild cards: Houston at Buffalo in the AFC and Philadelphia at New Orleans in the NFC.

In the next round of the playoffs, Pittsburgh in the AFC and San Francisco in the NFC will play the wild-card team with the worst record. Miami in the AFC and Dallas in the NFC got the other survivor.

Pittsburgh and San Francisco are guaranteed the home-field advantage as long as they keep winning.

So, if Kansas City wins, the Chiefs play Pittsburgh. If Chiefs lose, Pittsburgh plays the Houston-Buffalo winner. The Steelers can't play San Diego in the second round.

Cross-country champ undergoes surgery

DURHAM, England — World cross-country champion Lynn Jennings of the United States underwent emergency surgery today for removal of her appendix.

Jennings, the Olympic 10,000-meter bronze medalist, began to experience stomach pains upon awakening today. Staff at the hotel where she was staying after flying in Wednesday from Boston, alerted the local hospital.

Carol Thorburn, the hospital's support services manager, said Jennings returned to the ward from the operating room at midnight, and she is comfortable.

Elway makes sure Reeves departs on friendly note

DENVER — The stormy 10-year relationship between John Elway and Dan Reeves has ended on a respectful note, with a handshake and wishes of good luck for the future.

The top-ranked quarterback and his former coach met Wednesday for 15 minutes as Reeves was cleaning out his office, two days after he was fired.

"I just went in and told him my thoughts as far as our relationship, that he was responsible for a heck of a lot of my success and I thanked him for it," Elway said.

"I told him that even though it's kind of a tough situation here right now and it's tough times, I'm sure that he'll move on and wherever he goes he's going to be successful."

Bengal felyer Carl Pickens returns a punt 95 yards against Green Bay.

Top offensive rookie hopes for better year

The Associated Press

CINCINNATI — Carl Pickens will be upset if he has another season like the one that earned him Associated Press Offensive Rookie of the Year honors.

Except for two moments — a 95-yard punt return and a clutch 22-yard touchdown catch — the Cincinnati Bengals receiver had an unremarkable first year.

"Basically, there's only been two big plays the punt return and the catch," Pickens said. "That's basically the only thing that I've done."

It was good enough to let him edge New Orleans' Vaughn Dunbar by two votes for the offensive rookie honors announced Thursday, but not good enough to satisfy Pickens. The second-round draft pick from Tennessee was overwhelmed by the competition.

"It's just been a long season," he said. "It's been rough having to come in and try to learn and be competitive and keep my head up and continue to go forward."

Progress came haltingly for Pickens, who failed to hold a starting job as a receiver and lost his job as punt returner near the end of the year. But he's not too upset that he didn't do too much.

"There's nothing really to be frustrated about," he said. "Coming in, I didn't know what to expect. Last year, we only won three games, so I didn't come in expecting to outdo the conference or even go to the playoffs."

"I didn't really set any goals because I didn't know how much playing time I was going to get. I didn't even know I was going to be returning punts. These things happened unexpectedly, so I've just had to go with the flow."

Texas A&M could be first 13-0 team without title

DALLAS (AP) — Imagine going 13-0, beating Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl and not winning a national championship. Impossible?

Not if you're from Texas A&M.

The fourth-ranked Aggies, 6-point underdogs despite their record, can become the first team to go 13-0 and not win the national championship.

The only team to win 13 games in a season were Nebraska in 1971 and Brigham Young in 1984, and they were both national champions.

They were the Sugar Bowl showdown between unbeaten No. 1 Miami and No. 2 Alabama will likely produce the national champion.

The Aggies would have to leapfrog Florida State if the third-ranked Seminoles defeat Nebraska in the Orange Bowl.

Cotton Bowl

A&M coach R.C. Slocum said the Aggies deserve national title consideration if they defeat the Fighting Irish, but he cautions it won't happen unless there's a million-to-one miracle.

"Notre Dame is a good enough challenge for us, and if we beat them and go 13-0, then we'll let the chips fall where they may," Slocum said. "I'm not going to lobby for it. I would just hope the voters would look at the job we've done."

Both Slocum and Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz have called for a game playoff to be played after the bowl.

If A&M wins the Cotton Bowl and goes

13-0 and doesn't win the national title, then they have every right in the world to complain," Holtz said. "There should be a championship game after the bowls."

Notre Dame linebacker Demetrius Dubose said: "If A&M beats us, they should be national champions no matter what happens in the Sugar Bowl because of the tough schedule we've played. Of course, we plan on keeping that from happening."

The fifth-ranked Irish (9-1-1) came into their sixth Cotton Bowl under something of a cloud when Florida State was passed over by the selection committee.

The Cotton Bowl was criticized for not going along with the spirit of the new bowl coalition and matching the third-ranked team versus the fourth-ranked team.

"I understand we were not wanted here by a lot of people, but we will play well and you can mark it down," Holtz said.

In last year's Sugar Bowl, there were complaints and jokes that the Fighting Irish didn't belong.

The running joke was: What's the difference between Cheerios and Notre Dame? Answer: Cheerios belong in a bowl.

Using the perceived slight as a motivator, Holtz and the Irish defeated Florida 39-28.

Holtz also has other motivators he can use to spoil A&M's bid for a perfect season.

A&M freshman quarterback Corey Pugh broke an oral commitment to attend Notre Dame, making Holtz furious.

"I'm going to win against the Fighting Irish on Jan. 1 and rammed," I'm sure coach Holtz will have the defense coming after me. But it's not going to distract me from doing my job."

A&M and Notre Dame only had one common opponent, Bill Walsh's Stanford Cardinal.

The Aggies edged Stanford 10-7 in the Disneyland Classic to start the college football season with Jeff Granger at quarterback. Notre Dame lost to Stanford 33-16 in the fifth game of the season at South Bend.

The Irish rallied from that loss with six consecutive victories.

Another Holtz motivator could be the 1988 Cotton Bowl in the first meeting between the two schools' history. The Aggies routed the Holtz-coached Irish 35-

Rose Bowl: Huskies look for redemption

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Beaten by Washington State and Arizona in two of their final three regular-season games and hounded by off-field problems that marred their Rose Bowl preparations, the Washington Huskies will try to make it up to themselves on Friday.

The Huskies think they owe it to themselves to beat Michigan in the Rose Bowl in order to regain some of their lost respect.

"We need to win this game to show people that we can still win outside linebacker Jaime Fields said. "It's a chance for us to show people we can still be a good team, especially with all this adversity."

After going 12-0 and winning the USA Today-CNN coaches' national championship last season, the Huskies were jolted back to reality after a 22-game winning streak broke 16-3 at Arizona on Nov. 7. On Nov. 21, they were embarrassed by Washington State 42-23 in a snowstorm at Pullman, Wash. In their regular season finale, the Huskies then were forced to go on the 47-minute Hines to defend themselves as allegations surfaced that the Washington football program was out of control.

Washington's problems began with the Billy Joe Herbert loan case. Last season's Rose Bowl co-MVP quarterback was ruled ineligible for obtaining $50,000 in loans in violation of NCAA rules.

The Huskies' troubles snowballed. Former defensive linebacker Danianke Smith was arrested on a charge of selling cocaine on the Washington campus.

In a blockbuster revelation, former Washington players, including one-time tailback Steve Weathersby, said they received thousands of dollars in cash and other benefits, including summer jobs requiring little or no work, from Huskies boosters Herb Mead and Jim Kenyon.

Dr. William Gerbrüding, Washington's president, ordered the hiring of the in-house, high-powered investigative team of Mike Glazier and Rick Evrard to look into the Huskies' football program. Glazier and Evrard are former NCAA investigators.

"With that troubled background, coach Don James and his assistants have tried to prepare the Huskies for a New Year's Day game. It hasn't been easy, Fields admits.

"It was kind of hard because everything was coming down," Fields said. "But we did it. We hung together as a team and got ready to play Michigan."

"One of our senior starters for the No. 9 Huskies, Fields is one of the reasons why the Huskies (9-2) are favored by 2 points.

Colorado again faces rocket named Ismail

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Kicking to the Rocket almost cost Colorado its national championship title two years ago. Do the Buffaloes dare kick to the Rocket's little brother?

That Fiesta Bowl strategy likely will be determined by the condition of the turf at Sun Devil Stadium on New Year's Day — or by the whim of coach Bill McCartney.

Quincy Ismail, Syracuse's mercurial wide receiver and kick returner, poses coverage problems for any opponent. So did his brother, former Notre Dame standout Rughub "Rocket" Ismail.

When McCartney played Notre Dame in the Orange Bowl two years ago, the Buffs' kicking philosophy was "don't kick to the Rocket." But leading 10-9 with less than a minute remaining and facing a fourth down near midfield, Colorado punted to Ismail.

McCartney ordered the kick, reasoning that trying to angle a punt out of bounds might result in a short kick or a shank, giving the Irish good field position. Ismail sprinted 91 yards on the return for an apparent touchdown, but it was nullified by a clipping penalty, and

Orange Bowl: Cornhuskers scare no one

MIAMI (AP) — The Nebraska Cornhuskers are finding out how hard it can be to get respect when you've lost five consecutive bowl games.

"When you think of Nebraska, you think of Miami or Oklahoma or something like that," linebacker Travis Hill said. "We're not even given a chance to win."

The 11th-ranked Cornhuskers (9-2) have been facing an uphill battle as they prepare for their Orange Bowl meeting with No. 3 Florida State (10-1).

"We're supposed to lay down for them," Hill said. "Not even the press in Nebraska is giving us a chance to win."

The odds makers agree. They installed Florida State as a 10-plus-point favorite after the bowl pairings were announced, and the line has fluctuated little as Friday night's game approaches.

Such is life for a team that's gone well within the Big Eight but has had off-the-field problems piling up. Nebraska is making its 24th consecutive bowl appearance, but the Cornhuskers' last postseason victory was a 30-15 triumph over Louisiana State in the 1987 Sugar Bowl.

Nebraska has lost in its last three Orange Bowls, including a 22-0 shutout by Miami in the 1992 game.

That kind of track record has set the stage for some Florida State trash-talking aimed at the Cornhuskers.

Florida State linebacker Marvin

Jones went as far as likening himself to a shark and Nebraska's blood.

"They didn't even want to play us," Nebraska quarterback Tommie Frazier said. "They wanted to go to the Cotton Bowl and play Texas A&M. They're showing us they don't have any respect for us."

"At first, sure, we were disappointed not to get a shot at Texas A&M," Florida State fullback William Floyd said. "But we're over that and now we're excited and happy to be playing Nebraska."

Floyd suggested the Cornhuskers need to lighten up a little bit.

"I don't think they're loose enough to be around their opponent," he said.

Floyd said he and several teammates tried to get acquainted with some of the Cornhuskers earlier this week. The Nebraska players they met seemed very uncomfortable and several wouldn't even look the Seminoles in the eyes during their visit, Floyd said.

"Football games is a football game, and a personal life is a personal life," he said. "You've got to know how to draw the line between them."

Nebraska linebacker Trev Alberts said the Cornhuskers' demeanor shouldn't be construed as meaning they're unfriendly.

Instead, Alberts said, it's their way of taking a serious attitude in their bid to break the postseason losing skid.

"We're here on business. We're not here to have fun," he said.

the relieved Buffs earned their first national championship.

Quincy Ismail, nicknamed "Missile," doesn't return punts, so that bit of history won't be repeated. But he is a dangerous kickoff returner, having logged five of the top 13 kickoff yardage games in SEC since history.

Ordinarily, Colorado would attempt to counter such a threat by having strong-legged Mitch Berger try to boom his kickoffs through the end zone.

"With Berger kicking off, he figures to knock three out of four deep enough where they probably wouldn't get a return," McCartney said Thursday.

However, the chewed-up field at Sun Devil Stadium — the middle of the field is mostly sand — combined with the matter-kickoffs and long field goals are most likely to be affected because of the unstable footing.

"So, now, do we kick to him?" McCartney pondered.

Citrus: 'Air Georgia' set to bomb Ohio St.

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The tendency to concentrate on another star player may have hurt Georgia an advantage when the favored Bulldogs meet No. 15 Ohio State in the Florida Citrus Bowl on Friday.

Sophomore Eric Zeier has given the Bulldogs a dimension they didn't have for most of Vince Dooley's 25-year coaching career — a passing game.

Dooley's successor, Ray Goff, decided two years ago following a 4-7 season that the Bulldogs needed to change their offense.

Zeier decided to be a part of the new "Air Georgia" when the coaching staff promised they would open up the offense.

As a freshman last season he passed for 1,984 yards and seven touchdowns after gaining the starting berth halfway through the season.

"This season he passed for 2,248 yards and 12 scores, but was overshadowed by the Heisman Trophy bid of tailback Garrison Hearst.

Zeier ran for 1,547 yards and set a Southeastern Conference record with 21 touchdowns. He eventually finished third in the Heisman voting.

It's natural that the Buckeyes, a 4-point underdog, would have as their priority No. 1 trying to stop Zeier from Atlanta's Wayne McDuffie, a former assistant to Bobby Bowden at Florida State to run the new offense.

"His scheme appeared exciting to me," said Zeier, who had the advantage of going through spring practice with the Bulldogs before his first season.

Georgia still averages more yards on the ground than under 23 teams in the air (215), but the combination keeps defenses more honest than they were when Dooley's teams tried to run opponents into submission.

Zeier had only four passes intercepted as a freshman. He had 12 picked off this season.

He knows why.

"We're throwing the ball downfield a lot more," Zeier said. "You look at last year and you see guys dropped balls for interceptions."

"This year we checked off a lot more," he said. "At the beginning of the season, three or four interceptions were the rest of it."

McDuffie is high on his young quarterback.

"The key to playing quarterback is simple," McDuffie said. "Throw to the open man. Eric does that. He just has such great vision."

Georgia (9-2) finished second in the SEC's Eastern Division. Ohio State (8-2-1) was the runner-up to Michigan in the Big Ten.

The 1 p.m. meeting Friday will be the first between the schools.

Ohio State has lost three bowls in a row since stopping Texas A&M 28-12 in the Cotton Bowl in 1987.

Like Georgia, the Buckeyes also have a history of living with the running game.

Robert Smith, slowed by a cracked rib and sprained left ankle during the season, averaged 5.8 yards per carry while leading the Buckeyes with 707 yards.

Boston College works on mental preparation

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Concentration, focus, intensity. Those are the characteristics Tom Coughlin credits for his success and they're the elements the Boston College coach is stressing to his players as they prepare for Friday's Hall of Fame Bowl against Tennessee.

Coughlin said he talked to the team about mental preparation. He wanted to replace the fired Ray Handley as coach of the New York Giants, telling them to focus on the bowl game and to ignore everything else.

"They're here because of what has been accomplished," he said Thursday. "I've been most of my life in an assistant coach's role, trying not to be a distraction to anyone, and I don't want this to be a factor in this game. I want them to play very well in the game and to be proud of that."

Coughlin repeated Thursday he had not been formally contacted by the Giants, for whom he worked as receivers coach from 1988-90, and said he would not expect to be contacted before the bowl game.

"The Giants are a class organization and they would not think to disrupt the preparations of the Boston College football team," he said, adding he will try not to think about the rumors until after Friday's game.

Coughlin talked to his players at practice Wednesday about the speculation, which he admitted is not all bad.

"It's good for Boston College to not only be in a bowl game but to have this type of exposure," he said.

"I think it's a very positive reflection on the people at Boston College."

The Eagles had a short walk-through Thursday.

If Washington wins, the Redskins play San Francisco in the next round. If the Redskins lose, they play the Oakland Raiders in the 49ers. The only team the 49ers can't meet in the second round of the playoffs is Minnesota.

Swayne was left alone against Thomas until the Chargers made some halftime adjustments. Thomas also caused two fumbles, recovering one, to set up 20 points as Kansas City's defense collapsed.

Humphries dislocated his left shoulder in a season-ending victory over Seattle and is listed as questionable for the game, although he has practiced this week.

"I'm afraid that Stan's hurting and he might need to go through the game without being touch. Swayne said it hurt, but he might be back on the field. The other guys, who had a bad execution and watch every step we take, even after the ball is thrown."

The Vikings have activated their leading receiver, Chris Carter, for the playoffs. Carter spent 46 weeks on the practice squad with a broken collarbone.

Because Hassan Jones also has been hurt, the Vikings had been playing with only three receivers on the roster. Jones, who has a bad back, isn't expected to play on Saturday.

The Redskins admit they are not the same team that won the last Super Bowl, and you only have to be able to add to figure it out. Last year, the Redskins scored 485 points. This year, they scored 400. All year, we have been here, we miss a play there, and we're not scoring points," quarterback Mark Rypien said. "No question, it's been frustrating."

The Redskins escaped from the Metrodome with a 15-13 victory in Week 7 during the season, but they had the price, especially Rypien, he was sacked twice and hit nearly a dozen other times, and he was so woozy he started calling plays that weren't in the Washington playbook.

"They strive on putting pressure on you and you just have to hang in there and make the plays," Rypien said. "You can just expect to get hit when you play these guys."

Sugar

The Hurricanes had no trouble for most of the year, especially after Torretta was put in shotgun formation to offset Miami's young offensive line. In the last six games, Miami averaged 42 points and 501 yards.

"We've been getting to quarterbacks all year, so I don't see why this should be any different," said John Copeland, Alabama's other All-American defensive end. "I hope I get to sack Gino Torretta. It be able to tell my grandkids that I hit the Heisman Trophy winner."

Torretta has had excellent preparation and what he might see from Alabama at the Superdome.

"Unlike many teams, where the first-string offense faces the second-string defense in practices, Miami's first units work out against each other all the time."

John Klayton, what kind of defense Alabama has because I haven't played them," Torretta said. "But I do know I face a great defense every day."

Miami's defense was third in points allowed (11.5), fifth against the pass and eighth in rushing and total defense (271 yards per game).

"They say that defense wins championships, and that's true," Miami linebacker Jesse Armstrong said. "Our offense had some problems early in the season, but they always knew they could count on the defense. They knew we weren't going to let us lose."

Alabama's run-oriented offense is not as explosive as Miami's pass-crazy approach. All week, the Hurricanes have called the Crimson Tide one-dimensional team that could not pass.

"We're going to make you throw the ball," Miami defensive coordinator Sonny Lubick said. "We'll go up there with an eight-man front, if that's what it takes."

The key to Miami's defense is the senior linebacking trio of Armstrong, Michael Barrow and Darrin Smith.

Barrow was an All-American and played his best in the biggest games. All year, we have been here, we miss a play there, and we're not scoring points," quarterback Mark Rypien said. "No question, it's been frustrating."

The Redskins escaped from the Metrodome with a 15-13 victory in Week 7 during the season, but they had the price, especially Rypien, he usually have problems turning the corner.

Alabama's offensive game plan is simple — run the ball straight at Miami. The Tide rushed for 209 yards per game and scored 26 of its 39 touchdowns on the ground.

"I don't want to give away our game plan, but you know we're going to try to work inside the tackles," Alabama center Tobie Sheldy said.

"We have to be patient, more than anything," he said.

Rookie

The expectations begin next year. The Bengals (5-11) will be well into their rebuilding, and Pickett will become either a big part of the offense or a bust.

"I'm going to set my goals: make certain amounts of catches and touchdowns and try to be one of the top five or six in different categories, among the top receivers in the league," he said.

The Bengals expect the same.

"We think he has a very bright future and he continues to learn the offense and the defenses," coach Dave Shula said. "He has shown the ability to make spectacular plays. I believe he'll just get better."

He's going to be measured against the two best moments of his rookie year.

The first was Sept. 20 in a 24-23 loss at Green Bay. He made the mistake of fielding a punt on his own 5-yard line, but turned it into a highlight-film moment by weaving 95 yards for a touchdown.

The second was his touchdown catch against the Chicago Bears that sent the game to overtime and eventually a 31-28 win on Nov. 8. The 6-foot-2 Pickett outjumped 5-foot-9 Lemuel Stinson to catch a 22-yard touchdown pass from Boomer Esiason that tied the game with 59 seconds left.

"That was probably the Bengals' best moment of the year, the only time they rallied in the closing minute. And all the credit went to Pickett."

"It was strictly one-on-one, and he went up and took the ball away from a defensive back," Shula said. "It couldn't have been at a more crucial time in a ballgame for you, and he was able to deliver."

Suns have makings of champion team

PHOENIX (AP) — Charles Barkley has a new zest for the game. Kevin Johnson is healthy again and the Phoenix Suns are close to becoming the team Barkley envisioned when he was asked to trade to a contender.

"The biggest difference, I think, is that this team is a lot hungrier than any of the ones I was with in Philly," Barkley said after the Suns scored 78 second-half points Wednesday night in a 135-110 win over Houston.

"I got to the Sixers after they had done it all," Barkley added. "There just wasn't much else to accomplish. But this team has a win-it-and-we-wish-it-real-bad."

An NBA title is nearly the only honor which has eluded Barkley, a six-time All-Star and the top scorer for the Dream Team at the Barcelona Olympics.

After Phoenix acquired him, Barkley said he no longer cared about personal goals.

So far, however, he's ahead of his career averages at 25.9 points, 13.4 rebounds and 4.8 assists a game, and the Suns (21-4) have won 14 in a row.

The streak lasted all of December and tied Phoenix with the 1971 Los Angeles Lakers for the third-best monthly record ever. The Lakers were 14-0 in November 1991 and went 16-0 the next month.

Boston's 15-0 in December 1959 is the second-best record for a month.

The Suns hit season highs in points, steals (16) and assists (36) in Johnson's third game back from a groin pull and out-rebounded the taller Rockets 48-43.

Barkley, Johnson and Dan Majerle each scored 21 points. Barkley also had 17 rebounds and 10 assists, his 13th career triple-double and second this season.

Perhaps more to the point, the talent surrounding the best player in the league is so good that the Suns are generating more offense in less time, a sort of nuclear reaction in hoops.

'He's a totally different ballplayer. He has a new team, a new arena, fantastic teammates. He has all a guy could want.'

—Hakeem Olajuwon, on Charles Barkley

Barkley played only 35 minutes, Johnson 36 and Majerle 40.

"When I get doubled and can't pass to a guy who's making his shot... that makes the double-team hesitate a bit. It makes my life a whole lot easier," Barkley said.

"I think my job is going to be a lot easier than it has been the last four years," said Johnson, whose late-season injuries have been blamed for the team's early play-off exits. "I won't have to play 40 minutes. I won't be having the ball up the court every time, and I won't have to be involved in every play."

It was a convincing performance to the Rockets.

"He's a totally different ballplayer," said Hakeem Olajuwon, who came into the NBA in 1984, the same year as Barkley. "He has a new team, a new arena, fantastic teammates. He has all a guy could want. There's all this new energy."

"They're looking at a championship if they do it right."

Johnson has played in just seven games this year and seemed to be in form for the first time. He hit 10 of 13 shots and also had 10 assists.

"He's a deadly weapon we try to take advantage of," said Barkley, who in late June missed Johnson as the key to exploiting his ability.

Ex-Washington GM revitalizes Chargers

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Three years after taking over as general manager, Bobby Beathard has left his mark on the San Diego Chargers. Based on Beathard's past, that could mean a Super Bowl in San Diego's future.

First, though, Beathard has to get the "Smartest Man in the NFL" label that was stuck on him while he was GM at Washington and the Redskins were playing in three Super Bowls in the 1980s.

"It's pretty embarrassing," Beathard said as the Chargers prepare for their first playoff game in 10 seasons.

"To stick that label on anyone is not fair."

Beathard almost felt more comfortable when he was down at the other end of it. "Beathard said, referring to last year's 4-12 record, 'You hate to lose, but the only good thing is that it'll go away fast.'"

Head coach the man who hired Beathard struggles to find another description.

"How can I go against that?" owner Alex Spanos said. "My God, look at what he's done in three years. People will tell you that I'm impatient. I expected it in less than three years, but it's better now than later."

Of the 47 players on the active roster who will face the Kansas City Chiefs on Saturday, only 10 were here when Beathard took over on Jan. 3, 1990.

Beathard is the fourth Chargers GM since Spanos bought majority interest in the team in 1984. What Beathard inherited was a team in shreds. The Chargers had just completed their second straight 6-10 season and hadn't been to the playoffs since 1982.

Beathard said the team had to get rid of problem players, players who weren't committed to winning, and players who simply weren't good enough.

"It's not anything you can do overnight," he said. "We almost had to get worse before we got better."

They did, by going 6-10 yet again in 1990 and bottoming-out last season.

The holdover players are a fine bunch, including Pro Bowlers Leslie O'Neal, Gill Byrd and Anthony Miller.

But Beathard has scoured the NFL free agent ranks, picking up players like all-purpose back Ken Riggins, left tackle Harry Swane, punter John Kidd, kicker John Carney and safety Darren Carrington.

Beathard also has drafted picks at Washington, he's kept a few here, taking linebacker Junior Seau in his first draft and adding free safety Stanley Richard in his second. With the sixth pick in 1990, he took quarterback John Friesz.

But two moves Beathard made this year helped and San Diego's decade of decline. On Jan. 2, he hired head coach Bobby Ross from Georgia Tech to replace the fired Dan Henning. On Aug. 13, he sent a third-round pick to Washington for Sean Humphries to replace Friesz, whose left knee was blown out in the exhibition opener.

After a 0-1 start while Humphries learned the system, the Chargers won 11 of 12 games to claim the AFC West championship.

Beathard likes to compare Ross' situation to that of Joe Gibbs, whom he hired at Washington as head coach in 1981.

Reds' Schott asks for time to respond

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds owner Marge Schott has asked baseball to give her until Jan. 25 to respond to preliminary findings in the same investigation of alleged racial slurs, her lawyer said Thursday.

Robert Bennett said he received the report just before Christmas. He said it appeared to be a preliminary report that could be further modified.

He declined to discuss its contents.

"We've asked for until Jan. 25 to respond, which is an eminently reasonable request, given Christmas and the Reds are closed," Bennett said. "But I know they're anxious as we are to amicably resolve this thing."

Bennett would not comment on a possible settlement on predict when baseball would make an announcement on its findings.

"I can't be discussing in the press what my negotiations are or what I hope they will be," he said.

Baseball's ruling 14-member executive council is meeting in Cincinnati. The four-man committee it appointed Dec. 1 to investigate Schott's alleged use of slurs.

Baseball's owners are to meet Jan. 11-13 in suburban Dallas.

"I'm going to see what I can do," Bennett said of Schott. "I don't know what my plans are."

Bennett has said baseball has assured him that before a decision is rendered, he can respond to the game's findings with Schott present. That could be either in front of the executive council or its investigating committee.

Baseball could suspend Schott for up to $250,000, reprimand her or do nothing.

"A woman who answered the phone Thursday at Schott's home said the owner was not present. Schott did not return a call to her office."

Calls to the baseball commissioner's office and the National League in New York were not answered. Baseball officials are taking a holiday break until Monday.

Schott has denied many of the allegations against her and said she is not a bigot. She has admitted the use of words objectionable to some, but has said she was not sure they were offensive.

Several civil rights leaders have demanded that she quit or be ousted from baseball for her alleged remarks.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson plans to meet with baseball's owners Jan. 12. Jackson spokesman Frank Watkins said, Jackson organized a protest Dec. 7 at baseball's winter meetings in Louisville, Ky., to accuse the game's owners of racism for not promoting many blacks into its executive ranks.

Jackson is threatening to organize pickets at selected ballparks for baseball's season opener in April unless he sees progress by then.

Bowl picks: No. 2 Alabama will fade before powerful Hurricanes

By Rick Warner
The Associated Press

Alabama fans, take heart. Sure, Miami is No. 1, has a 29-game winning streak and is gunning for its second straight national championship, third in four years and fifth in the last decade.

But remember this: The last four times No. 1 has played No. 2 in a bowl game, No. 2 has won. And the trend started when No. 2 Alabama beat No. 1 Penn State 14-7 in the 1970 Sugar Bowl.

Yes, the same Sugar Bowl and same Superdome where No. 2 Alabama (12-0) will play No. 1 Miami (11-0) on New Year's night.

In 1979, Alabama needed an incredible game plan to get to the fourth quarter to beat Penn State. The Crimson Tide will need another tremendous defensive effort to defeat Miami, which is trying to become the first national championship since Alabama in 1957.

Both teams have great defenses, so should be a low-scoring game. Alabama led the nation in rushing and total defense, and was No. 2 in points allowed and pass defense. Miami was third in points allowed, fifth against the pass and eighth in rushing and total defense.

"Both defenses have great talent, but they use different systems," said Miami quarterback Gino Torretta, who is trying to become the first Heisman Trophy winner since Pittsburgh's Terry Bradshaw in 1973 to win the national championship.

"They do more guessing than we do."

The guess here is that Miami will wear down Alabama, score three touchdowns and complete the greatest 10-year run in college football history.

The Hurricanes have a mediocre ground game, but average 310 yards through the air. And Torretta, who has 10 touchdowns and the power to lead pass rush of Alabama's All-American defensive ends, Eric Curry and John Copeland.

Alabama's offensive strength is running the ball, but the Tide won't be able to do it consistently against Miami. That will force them to pass more than usual, playing into the hands of Miami's talented linemen and secondary.

After close calls against Arizona, Florida State and Penn State early in the season, the Hurricanes have found their stride. They've averaged 501 yards and 42 points in their last 10 games—all one victories, except for a 16-10 victory over sixth-ranked Syracuse.

In contrast, Alabama has struggled in two of its last three games, giving up a season-high 21 points to Mississippi State and Florida. The Gators had the Tide on the ropes in the Southeastern Conference championship game until Antonio Langham came to the rescue with a 27-yard interception return.

There will be no such miracle against the Hurricanes, who are 8-point favorites vs. Miami 21-10.

OTHER NEW YEAR'S BOWLS

Cotton — No. 5 Notre Dame (minus 4) vs. No. 4 Texas A&M

Both teams are on a roll. Aggies also are on a mission, out to prove the pollsters wrong. TEXAS A&M 27-24.

Orange — No. 3 Florida St. (minus 10) vs. No. 11 Nebraska

Seminoles are 9-0-1 in last 10 bowl games; Nebraska has lost five straight bowls by combined score of 62-69. FLORIDA ST. 42-28.

Rose — No. 9 Washington (minus 2) vs. No. 7 Michigan

Huskies lost two of their last three games and are beset by off-the-field problems. Michigan has an even bigger burden — representing the woolly Big Ten against the powerful Pac-10. WASHINGTON 24-17.

Fiesta — No. 6 Syracuse (minus 3) vs. No. 10 Colorado

Buffaloes have lost eight of last nine bowl games; Orangemen unbeaten in last five postseason appearances. SYRACUSE 31-21.

Citrus — No. 8 Georgia (minus 4) vs. No. 15 Ohio St.

Georgia's high-octane offense vs. Ohio State's stingy defense. Buckeyes may be able to stop Eric Zeier or Garrison Hearst, but not both. GEORGIA 24-14.

Blockbuster — No. 13 Stanford (even) vs. No. 21 Penn St.

The Genius (Bill Walsh) vs. The Legend (Joe Paterno). Should be mind-boggling. STANFORD 17-14.

Hall of Fame — No. 17 Tennessee (minus 3) vs. No. 16 Boston

Johnny (Majors) has gone marching back to Pittsburgh, leaving the hands of Phillip Fulmer. No problem. Fulmer was 3-0 as interim coach when Majors was recovering from heart surgery. TENNESSEE 31-28.

Last week: 4-0 (straight); 2-2 (spread). Season: 17-52 (straight); 107-101 (spread).

Changes possible for hapless Timberwolves

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota Timberwolves President Bob Stein said Thursday that he can't predict the future. So he wouldn't say how long Jimmy Rodgers will continue coaching the troubled team.

"To make one of those votes of confidence, you have to see the Timberwolves drop their eighth straight game, 118-92 to the New Jersey Nets, and fall to 5-19."

"As far as predicting the future, that's never productive," Stein said. "He's the coach, and I'm the owner. I can't blame him for everything that's going on."

Wednesday's loss was Minnesota's most decisive home defeat since the team entered the NBA in 1989. The announced crowd of 18,032 was the smallest in Target Center history. The Timberwolves' 19 losses have come by an average of 14.4 points.

After Wednesday's horrible Dallas Mavericks who visit Target Center on Saturday, Minnesota may be in time to have the NBA's worst record for the second straight season.

All this comes in a season that opened with great optimism. The Timberwolves hired general manager Jack McInnis, a proven winner. He acquired Chuck Person and Mitchell Williams, and drafted Christian Laettner. And said:

The team played well during the preseason. "Nobody likes to lose," Stein said. "You like to lose big even less. And losing big consistently, you like even less. Everybody here's upset. Nobody's happy with the way the team's playing. Jimmy no less than the rest of us."

After Wednesday's loss, Rodgers quipped said he was ready to start from scratch and that no body — not Laettner, not Person, not Williams — was guaranteed a starting spot.

"As far as personnel positions are wide open. Regardless of what the names are or who the people are, we've got to see people re-establish that they belong out there on the floor," weather are a bad fit. BILL S. 27-3.

Pro picks: Vikings, Saints, Chargers, Bills

By Dave Goldberg
The Associated Press

So Washington gets one last shot to win its NFL title — through the back door.

In fact, before Saturday's game with Minnesota at the Metrodome, the Redskins ought to thank the Viking collectors for late-heating Green Bay fans Sunday to let them in.

Strange game, this, in which the Vikings are favored by 3 1/2 points in the dome field plus a half in the half for Sean Salisbury over Mark Rypien.

But the dome field in this case has been good to the Skins, as in last January's Super Bowl and again last Oct. 25, when the Redskins won 15-13 on the Chip Lohmiller field goals.

Lohmiller may be the wild card in this wild-card game.

He was five-for-five in that first game; is eight of eight there in his NFL career and 40 for 45 lifetime — that's where he kicked in college.

On the other hand, there's the Mark Rypien duel with Salisbury. The latter is hotter. Rypien has more experience. But while he's played well in the first meeting, in which he was hinged up playing behind a makeshift line, he's not a Super Bowl-caliber quarterback under pressure.

He'll also be missing Ricky Sanders and Desmond Howard, making the posse about 60 percent effective.

Try this...
VIKINGS 15-13

PHILADELPHIA (plus 3)

Like all the games this weekend, this one's a rematch — the Eagles won 15-13 on opening day in Philadelphia. But that's so long ago, it might as well have been last season.

This is a defensive game in more ways than one — the two defenses rank among the best in the league. And both teams are defensive about their playoff records — the Saints are 0-3 lifetime, all in the last five.

years, and the Eagles are 0-4 since going to the Super Bowl in 1980.

This is one in which the home field advantage is probably a real one. The Eagles were the NFL's only unbeaten team at home this year, but went 3-5 on the road and the discrepancy is more than won-loss — they give up 23 points a game on the road, 9 points a game at home.

So, all things being equal...
SAINTS, 23-9

KANSAS CITY (plus 3) at San Diego

The Chiefs' optimism from Kansas City's playoff loss last week to beat a team three times — the Chiefs won 24-10 in San Diego, then 21-6 in later. That first win kicked off San Diego's 0-4 start, the second one in Kansas City is the Chargers' only loss since they were 0-4.

This one probably rides on the health of Stan Humphries.

The Chiefs can run on up the middle, and the Chargers can run there. But if you force San Diego into passing situations, you get what happened to John Elway last week — six sacks, three touchdowns by the defense.

On the other hand, you have San Diego's defense against Kansas City's offensive offense, which got over the middle on its own just once last week. The Chiefs' margin of 42 points against on 220 yards tells you what you need to know.

If both continue playing the Chiefs may do it again. Against Humphries?

Who says...
CHARGERS 16-14

HOUSTON (minus 3) at Buffalo

Only in the NFL can a team that won 27-3 play the same team the next week and come in as an underdog. The Chiefs' margin of last week may be it — the difference between playing in the homogenized atmosphere at the Astrodome and the refrigerated atmosphere of Rich Stadium, where 80,000 fans will all be in the mood to cheer Warren Moon or Cody Carlson, whichever one Jack Pardue decides to start.

If it's Carlson, it's an interesting matchup — two of the game's best backup quarterbacks. "Don't be too concerned," says Carlson. "I'll play, particularly with a week to prepare."

And remember Houston's playoff record. Five years in, five years out by the second round — in places like Denver and Buffalo.

No, the run-and-shoot-and-lead the team played well during the preseason.

"Nobody likes to lose," Stein said. "You like to lose big even less. And losing big consistently, you like even less. Everybody here's upset. Nobody's happy with the way the team's playing. Jimmy no less than the rest of us."

After Wednesday's loss, Rodgers quipped said he was ready to start from scratch and that no body — not Laettner, not Person, not Williams — was guaranteed a starting spot.

"As far as personnel positions are wide open. Regardless of what the names are or who the people are, we've got to see people re-establish that they belong out there on the floor,"

New year's prescription: 1 day at a time

DEAR READERS: My New Year's column has become an annual tradition since 1973. These New Year's resolutions are based on the original credo of Ab-Abon. I have taken the liberty of using that theme with some variations of my own:

Dear Abby
Abigail VanBuren

Just for today I will live through this day only and not set far-reaching goals to try to overcome all my problems at once—I know I can do something for 24 hours that would appall me if I thought I had to keep it up for a lifetime!

Just for today I will be happy. Abraham Lincoln said, "Most folks are about as happy as they make up their minds to be. He was right. I will not dwell on thoughts that depress me. I will chase them out of my mind and replace them with happy thoughts."

Just for today I will adjust myself to what is. I will face reality. I will correct those things that I can suggest and accept those things I cannot correct.

Just for today I will improve my mind. I will not be a mental loafer. I will force myself to read something that requires effort, thought and concentration.

Just for today I will do something positive to improve my health. If I'm a smoker, I'll make an honest effort to quit. If I'm overweight, I'll eat nothing I know to be fattening. And I will exercise myself.

Just for today I will have a program. I may not follow it exactly, but I will have it, thereby saving myself from two pests: hurry and indecision.

Just for today I'll do something I've been putting off for a long time. I'll timely write that letter, make that phone call, clean that closet or straighten out those dresser drawers.

Just for today better I speak. I will ask myself, "Is it true? Is it kind?" and if the answer to either of those questions is negative, I won't say it.

Just for today I will make a conscious effort to be agreeable. I will look-as-good-as-I-can, dress becomingly, talk softly, act courteously and not interrupt when someone else is talking. Just for today I'll not try to improve anybody except myself.

We know so much more about nutrition and how to exercise and sensible living can extend life and make it more enjoyable, so just for today let's all take good care of our equipment and celebrate many more happy New Years.

Just for today I will have a program. I may not follow it exactly, but I will have it, thereby saving myself from two pests: hurry and indecision.

One and all: a happy, healthy new year!

Seniors provide love to premature infants

By Jane Glenn Haas
Orange County Register

A wince face scrunches in worry. Sobs start slowly, soft hiccupps of distress escalating into wails of despair.

Mothers worldwide recognize the signal to cuddle, to touch, to rock, to hold.

For fragile babies born prematurely or with serious medical problems, volunteers at Children's Hospital of Orange County, Calif., open their arms to provide these physical sensations of love when natural mothers aren't around.

"We're the extra arms for mother when mother can't be there," said Marilyn Williams, 65. "So many of these mothers have to work, take care of other children or their husbands; they just can't be here all the time."

"We try to fill the gap," Williams settled into the upholstered blue rocking chair by an infant and took a turn settling Samuel Garrison, 6 days old, who relaxed the tiny fist scrunched toward his blue stocking cap.

In another nursery, Judy Young, 48, looked at a sleeping baby who had not left the hospital.

"Since premature babies are usually kept until around the time of their normal delivery, some of our babies can be here for quite a while," said Catherine Keohane, social worker at the hospital. "This rocking and touching is an important human experience for them."

It's important for the "cuddlers," too. Most of them are the age of older women with grown children or grandchildren.

Williams, a retired teacher, mother of six and grandmother of 11, has been cuddling for two years. Before attending to Samuel, she had rocked a little girl for almost two hours while the child slept peacefully. "She was cranky before I picked her up, then she fell asleep in my arms. I didn't want to move her."

Williams said, "Besides, I was enjoying it."

More than 40 people have entered the Cuddler Program since the hospital began it two years ago. Requirements go beyond empty arms and an inborn parenting instinct, said Paula G. Smith, director of the hospital volunteer center.

Cuddlers also must be part of the hospital's volunteer program for at least six months.

They also must complete a four- to five-hour orientation class designed to lay out ground rules and teach techniques such as how to pick up a baby from an incubator when the infant is attached to medical equipment.

For Young, a hospital X-ray technician before she married and had her own family, cuddling the hospital infants is fulfilling a commitment made years ago.

"I always said when I had time to volunteer, I would come back to a child's hospital," she said. "The mood is always upbeat. Children are so wonderful."

Keohane selects infants for the Cuddler Program who need the comfort of extra human contact.

Holding, rocking, talking and singing to infants enables them to develop sensory skills of tracking voices, objects and faces, she said. Researchers say warmth and nurturing are critical to a child's development.

"Nurses just can't take the time to do this type of cuddling," Keohane said. "That's why these volunteers are so important."

More than 350 critically ill newborns are treated at the hospital each year.

Each baby has its own preferred cuddle routine, Williams said.

"Some want to be rocked, some patted. Sometimes we walk with the baby. Sometimes it's a combination of rocking, cooing and patting." Said Young, "Can you think of a better way to spend four hours?"

In the Company of Darkness

Helen Hunt talks to Steven Weber in a scene from this CBS movie. Find out why Hunt relishes the role on Page 2.

Escape from New Year's Day games with a family favorite

Instead of men on the gridiron, The Family Channel of All-You-Its-Saints and "Airing the Family Channel of All-You-Its-Saints," airing the men of the Ponderosa today from noon to 10 p.m. respectively. "Bonanza: The Lost Episodes" marathon. "Bonanza" fans and "football" fans can look forward to a full-afternoon-to-episodes from the beloved, long-running series, including "Collaboration," "The Brass Box," "The Debt," "Devil on Her Shoulders," "The Dilemma," "Found Child," "The Other Son," "The Lonely Runner," Meredith Smith Story," and today from noon to 10 p.m. respectively. Aired on NBC from 1959 to 1973, "Bonanza" was about a prosperous family of rugged widower Ben Cartwright (Lorne Greene) and his sons Little Joe (Michael Landon), Hoss (Dan Blocker) and Adam (Percell Roberts) and relied on stories about the relationships of the Cartwright clan and characters played by weekly guest stars.

Naivete of character pulled Hunt into role

By Jerry Buck

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Helen Hunt relished her role as a rookie police woman in the CBS movie "In the Company of Darkness." In the "Company of Darkness," because her character was naive enough to be manipulated by the killer she was investigating.

"She thought if she worked hard enough, she was good enough, she could neutralize the evil in this other person," Hunt said of the movie, airing at 8 p.m. Tuesday on KMTV. "She is pulled into this other world and a bizarre friendship with this man."

Hunt stars as Gina Pulasky, who goes undercover to trap a suspected serial killer, played by Steven Weber of NBC's "Wings." But he is so charmingly deceptive, she drops her guard.

The actress is regularly seen as the glamorous young executive involved to Paul Reiser in the Wednesday night NBC comedy "Mad About You." In one of her last television movies, she played a schoolteacher who persuaded several students to kill her husband in "Murder in New Hampshire: The Pamela Smart Story."

"In the Company of Darkness," Hunt's character obtains a job in a fast food place, working beside the suspect who immediately latches on to her. She learns that, like herself, he comes from a dysfunctional family. Her mother was an alcoholic forcing her to become a surrogate mother.

"If he'd been simply the stereotypical evil person, she would have said, 'Oh, he's evil.' But he played it almost like a child who was wired wrong," Hunt said. "That allowed her to be off guard and be sucked in by him." Weber combed his hair for ward to achieve an appearance like a demented elf.

"Sometimes, he'd run his hands through his hair and pull it back, and I'd say, 'Oh, you are a handsome guy,'" Hunt said. "I'd be there in my greasy braun hair and have a bra strap showing."

To take a break during the filming in Chicago, the two appeared together in something altogether different.

"Steven and I went one night to Second City," she said. "They put us on stage and we improvised. We went back many times after that. They were so incredibly generous in letting us work with them."

"It was a wonderful way for us to blow our minds at the end of the day, we could get rid of all that evil and darkness. In so many TV movies, I'm in every scene. It's exhausting, mentally exhausting. It was good to get back to improvising. I'd spent 10 years studying improvisation and had rarely had an opportunity to practice it."

Hunt literally grew up studying acting and doing childhood roles. Her father is Gordon Hunt, an acting teacher and theatrical director. Her uncle, Peter Hunt, won a Tony for directing "1776" on Broadway and has directed television productions. She appeared in four series as a child.

"I was never a big success as a child actor, so it wasn't that hard for me to make the transition to adult roles," she said in her dressing room trailer during a break from "Mad About You." "Sometimes, I didn't get a role because they thought I seemed too old. It actually got easier for me as I got older. And sometimes I'd take myself off the market and study."

Hunt said she had not been planning to do a series when she became involved in "Mad About You." She met Reiser because she had been sharing a home with Elizabeth Berkley ("Amadeus," NBC's "The Powers That Be"), who was a friend of Reiser's wife.

"Paul called me and said he had a script he'd like to send me," she said.

"I read it and met with him and said what I would want her to be in the show. Luckily, that's what Paul and producer Danny Jacobs wanted. I liked the idea that the humor would come from putting a magnifying glass on a marriage, and not because of a lot of wacky characters running around."

'Major Dad's' Archer shows women, Marines a successful combination

By Jerry Buck

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Beverly Archer chose what some might call an unusual role model for an actress when it came to creating her character on CBS' "Major Dad."

"I took it from John Wayne," she says. "He's the only Marine I can remember."

"She's the best Marine on the base," Archer says of Gunnery Sgt. Bricker. "I think the diving instructor is the one who is the best. But the personal stuff is fun to play. She has a wild sex life. But the crux is that she's incredibly efficient as administrative chief of the commanding general's office."

The idea of a tough, non-sensually assertive Marine who happens to be female came from Rick Hawkins, an executive producer of "Major Dad," Archer said.

"When Rick mentioned it to the Marines while training, the show they fell on the floor laughing."

One aspect of her character is very male."

The series stars Gerald McRaney in the title role as Maj. John D. McGillis, Shanna Reed as his wife, Polly, and Marisa Ryan, Nicole Dubuc and Chelsea Herford as Polly's three daughters.

The role as a gunnery sergeant is the first character with overt romantic involvement for Archer, who is noted for her prissy, schoolmarm-type roles in such recent TV shows as "Nurses" and "The Nanny."

"We've Got Each Other," "Spencer" and "Mama's Family." Archer says Gunn has a "mocha-style feminine side."

"She treats relationships the way a man would," she said. "It's 'I want, baby, thank you ma'am.' It's the stereotype of the Marine with a girl in every port, which is difficult to carry off in a sitcom. She had a 28-year-old boyfriend, but he mentioned the 'I' word as soon as he said he loved her. She couldn't deal with it."

Archer joined "Major Dad" in its second year.

The role was handed to her by a planner by Rick Hawkins, she said. "He'd produced 'Mama's Family' during three of the four years I was in it."

"He had a very clear concept of Gunny. He sent me a two-page character analysis that had me on the floor. What interested me was that she was 180 degrees from both on 'Mama's Family.' Not to disparage people, but it was very perceptive of him to realize I could play a different character."

Archer knows her way around scripts. She wrote for such shows as "Mama's Family," "All in the Family" and "Working Girl," and was story editor on the latter.

"I started writing because I figured out 'Mama's Family' I'd never work again," she said. "Which is, what, every actor thinks. I have a half-baked theory that every actor should try writing. Then maybe we'd all stop bitching and saying, 'My character would have been...'"

A bad snowstorm forces them to spend the night in an abandoned cabin, and their proximity heats up an otherwise frigidly cold evening. Paul and Julia have to regret about making love on New Year's Eve, and Ned tells Paul that he's welcome to court Jenny. At the opening of the spa, however, Ned and Paul come to blows over Jenny. Tracy's attitude towards Paul hardens and she rehires Marco to keep tabs on him.

The Bold and the Beautiful

Sheila tells Tracy she'd be interested in volunteering in the pathology lab and wonders if it would be possible. Tracy tells her she'll get Sheila a security clearance form and that she'll call her back with a security check. The doctor tells Brooke the baby is slightly jaundiced and he suggests they delay the paternity blood test. Eric tells Sheila that he will definitely proceed with the divorce if he discovers he is not the father. Sheila tells Eric that Stephanie tells Brooke to stop using her pregnancies and her children to get what she wants—namely to steal Ridge away from Taylor.

Living the life of Marty Saybrooke

Susan Haskell is celebrating her first anniversary playing Marty Saybrooke this week on "One Life to Live."

"In many ways, the year just flew by," she said.

The Canadian-born actress admits the past year was one of adjustments, first to working at a more accelerated pace in daytime after having done most of her acting in syndicated series ("My Secret Identity") and in films ("Strictly Business").

"I really like playing Marty, because she's not boring in the slightest," Susan says. "She has so many shadings. First, there's the fact that she has lupus (auto-immunity of the skin). Marty copes with it, but every now and then it makes her very weak. I think it's interesting because it gives you a physical problem to play. It also had a drinking problem and chooses all the wrong men. In fact, she doesn't really know how to deal with men. I think she's looking for a father figure and says, 'I want an relationship' before she realizes what she has done."

The character of Marty also knows how to be manipulative when she has to, but she seldom thinks but a situation before jumping into it. "I've been described as overly aggressive, but Susan sees that as a defense mechanism."

"She's very bright but terribly lonely. I think one of the things people who need more love—than most people—are willing to give another human being without becoming totally drained."

Susan is nothing like the character she plays. She describes herself as being self-reliant, and unlike Marty, she has left a loving family who support her every decision.

Susan began as a model and still does some modeling when she has the time.

"I think models who become actresses and put down their modeling days are not being fair. Modeling afforded me the opportunity to make good money and travel. I worked in Australia and Europe and I couldn't have afforded to go there on my own if I was modeling."

Susan's mother, Marilyn, an actress in Canada, encouraged Susan in her pursuits. Susan's sister, following in her mother's footsteps and has done some modeling and TV commercials.

Susan says playing Marty, who has never really known love, that it is so truly loved, makes her appreciate her family all the more.

One Life to Live, airs from 11:00 a.m. weekdays on KKLV.

What happened to AMC's Natalie?

By Beitelou Petersen Knight-Ridder News Service

Q. Many of us who watch "All My Children" wonder what happened to Natalie and why she left the show. A lot of us have stopped watching since she was replaced.

A. Kate Collins, who played Natalie, quit or was fired, but some sources believe she has been put forward. Melody Anderson, who replaced Collins, was a regular on "St. Elsewhere" and "L.A. and the Fair-Play."

Q. Who plays Stan Carpenter in "One Life to Live"? This is the second part he has played. I think it's Dick Cavett but my husband says "Nah." Could it be one of the Smothers' Brothers? My husband says "Nah" to that too.

A. It's Rex Thimmes, a soap opera veteran. He was Bill Brewer in "General Hospital," 1963-66. Allyn Crow in "70, 30, 60" in 1985. But he may be best known for his prime-time series "The Invaders," 1967-68. His other prime-time series: "The Long Hot Summer," "The Psychiatrist," "From Here to Eternity" and "Eaton, Cook, Cavett, by the way, was once OJ'L.N.T." last spring as a radio personality known as "The Law Guy."

Q. The man who plays Dylan Lewis on "Living the Life of Marty Saybrooke" is Robert Englund, who plays Freddie Krueger? They have the same last name.

A. No, no, bill he does have famous relatives. Morgan-Englund is the son of actresses, Charles and Susan Englund. He was George Englund. He studied acting in college in Colorado and at New York's Circle in the Square and did theater, before he landed on "Light" in 1989.

Q. What is the background of Michael Nader of the "ABC daytime series" "All My Children"?

A. The veteran performer, who got into acting while attending Santa Monica City College, began his career in a light way, appearing in several teen party movies in the 1960s and on the original "Gidget" TV series (ABC, 1965-66). After starting at New York's Actors Studio and the Herbert Berghof Studio, he began to emphasize stage work, something he still does when he has time. Nader's time has been limited the past few decades; however, having become a familiar TV face in "As the World Turns" (as Kevin Thompson, from 1976 to '78), "Bare Essence" (1983), and especially in ABC's prime-time series "Dynasty" (as Farnsworth Dexter, from 1983 to 1989). He then was in "The Untouchables," "The Great Escape" and "Lucky" in addition to his character of Dimitri, playing on "Sometimes I Love You" of Susan Lucci, on "All My Children."

Q. Tell me why a Madeline Trent "Sunn Barbara" where can I write to her?

A. Madeline Trent is one of the lawyers of "One Life to Live" time. She has more previous and usually plays a woman that's daytime. Write: 20th Century/Fox, Box 900, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90213.

Q. I really need to know where I can send my letters to the stars of "One Life to Live."

A. Write ABC, Box 77, W. 60th St., New York, N.Y. 10023.

Hepburn discovered cancer by accident

Q: How did Audrey Hepburn know she had cancer? What's the real story?

A: Audrey checked into L.A.'s Cedars-Sinai Hospital in November for what she thought was a blood problem. She was found in Africa—while touring the continent on behalf of UNICEF. The finding was more serious: Instead of an infection, a malignancy was found. Robert Wilders, for many years the 63-year-old actress' live-in lover, downplayed the situation. The surgery went well, he said. No further treatments are scheduled, according to general checks, outside of him. 2

Q: We hear that Lynda Carter is trying to make a TV comeback as "Wonder Woman" to raise money for her husband's legal bills. What's the story?

A: Lynda Carter, who played Miss World-USA in 1973, made her TV splash in "The New Adventures of Wonder Woman" back in the '70s. The series, instantly earned a passionate Carter following in syndication. But when she and Lynda is now married in Washington—attorney Robert Altman, who with partner Clark Clifford is caught up in the BCCI banking mess. The legal bills are indeed piling up. Lynda's lawyer is completing work on the new "First Thing in a Bottle"—the first feature since before the "Wonder Woman" series. She says that she wants to be taken as a "serious actress." Lynda's lawyer is completing work on the screen return and her husband's legal woes are downplayed. As for a return as Wonder Woman, Carter seriously suggests that, at 42, she's "old enough to play Wonder Woman's mother."

Q: We hear that Cindy Crawford is tired of being a fashion model and is ready to give it up. Can that be true?

A: Surprisingly, it's Cindy, at the ripe age of 26, saying she's getting out of the modeling business and giving her all to TV. Cindy's had big success with her "House of Style" interview show on MTV, but she's looking to return to the cable channel in terms of overall popularity. She now talks of becoming the next "Diane Sawyer"—and even of evolving over time into a Barbara Walters. Cindy is now skipping some high-paying fashion runway assignments in favor of the tube. Her many male fans hope, however, whatever Cindy's ambitions, she continues posing for those sexy pin-up catalogues.

Q: Former President Reagan and President-elect Bill Clinton met after the election. You're the one to ask: how did they get along and any other tidbits? They got along extremely well. It's no secret that Nancy and Ronald Reagan were never impressed with the Bush presidency. Clinton made it clear he appreciates the former president's role as a former president and planned to see him again. Reagan advised Clinton to make full use of Camp-

David, the presidential retreat, as it's the only place he can have complete privacy. Clinton seemed delighted when Reagan gave him a gift of red, white and blue jelly beans. The former president joked that he was "keeping" them for himself from becoming a cigarette addict during his presidential years.

Q: Now that he and actress Winona Ryder are no longer an item, who is his cute little John-Jay Depp seeing these days?

A: It's hard to keep up with Depp's social schedule. Since my Hollywood spies say Winona dumped Johnny, not the other way around, it appears he's been in a period of safe, romantic, respectful-for-some-time. Anyway, Depp is no slouch. He's been seen at several high-fine Hollywood restaurants lately with actress Lili Taylor.

Q: What's this about Diane Lane, that sexy-looking actress on the comeback track, claiming she's been celibate for some time. Can that be true?

A: It's hard to say if it may sound genuine. Diane's last screen persona, there was a lengthy period. —Diane says it lasted for two years—when she was "celibate." It happened after a disastrous love affair with actor Tom Cruise. She says to make matters worse, she ballooned to 130 pounds on a fragile, 5-foot frame. "But that's past," Diane dropped the excess weight, got married to handsome, big-time actor Christopher Lambert, and got her career in high gear again. In the new "Chaplin" flick she portrays one of Hollywood's greatest sexpots, actress Paulette Goddard. Charlie Chaplin's third wife.

Q: We admire actress Kathleen Turner, who keeps in such great shape as a forty-something mother of a young daughter. How does she do it?

A: Kathleen, married to recording studio executive Jay Weis and the mother of a 5-year-old daughter, Rachel, concedes to being only 38. But you, young lady, better continue to look terrific, as we'll soon see in the upcoming spy caper flick, "Undercover Blues." She had to master martial arts for her role opposite Dennis Quaid, and that didn't hurt her already splendid figure. Kathleen, who is an accomplished cook, is philosophical, though: As she moves toward her 40s, she figures she'll have to choose between a "nice face" and a "slim rear" or a "nice face" and an oversized backside.

Q: Isn't calendar boy Fabio that really gay? He's been in the news lately for his love for women, although he doesn't have a steady girlfriend at the moment. The muscular, 220-pound essence of beefcake adumbrates a dancer's having a "nice face" and a "slim rear" or a "nice face" and an oversized backside. 1

ing calendar — as many as 200,000 were sold in a month, he says. Fabio gained fame by gracing the covers of countless romance novels, and is getting ready to pen three pulse-racing novels of his own.

Q: We hear that Roberta Flack has a new record album out. Where and when can we buy it?

A: Don't hold your breath. Sure, Roberta recently out a singing album that sounds pretty promising—it's titled "Stop the World" and includes such intriguing ditties as "Chinatown," a hit in Japan. Turns out, though, that she's actually making a bid for the Japanese market, not for U.S. consumption. The idea is to have American pop stars record tunes originally done by popular Japanese rockers. —Diane Lane's companies—movie-babe partner, June-Charles and Rita Coolidge—are cashing in along with Roberta, making big bucks—working Japanese pop tunes in English. —Sawyer's new movie, "The Edge of Love." 1

Q: Isn't Bruce Willis green with envy over the great success his actress-wife, Demi Moore, is enjoying? Is this a source of marital friction?

A: There's been speculation in Hollywood for some time that that may be true. After all, Willis seems mired largely in big-screen action adventures. His 30-year-old wife of five years, meanwhile, is starting the choices part of opposite Toni Cruise in "A Few Good Men" and opposite a lusty Robert Redford in the upcoming "Indecent Proposal." But Demi is flattered by the women's suggestions. The two careers are competitive. She sees hers as totally separate from his. That's true, but when you think about it, that may be the problem.

Q: Do you think the supposed romance involving Daryl Hannah and John F. Kennedy Jr. is for real?

A: I believe that where there's smoke, there could well be a romance. After the humiliating incident in which Hannah was physically abused by her former boyfriend, JFK Jr., was there for her. Then when David's ex-girlfriend, Chicago real estate migrant Jerry Weis, died, JFK Jr. was there for her again. The couple, was seen at the Wexler memorial service at Chicago's Drake Hotel and they reportedly had eyes only for each other. JFK Jr. needs some personal good fortune at this stage of her life, and I'm betting that President John Kennedy's only son is 1

Q: Is it true that Ringo Starr, the former Beatle, is still playing with a drinking problem?

A: No question that after a fourth period, marked by alcohol abuse, Ringo has gotten himself sober. He's still sober. —Star is now a grandfather with more than a splattering of gray in his beard. Professionally, his recording career is being activated yet again with an album of new songs titled "Time Takes Time." Ringo says he particularly likes one track from the album, "Weight of the World," which includes a line about "I've got all the crosses I can bear." Star says he now lives in the present, not in the future or in the past, with his drinking problem behind him. Besides, he adds, "I'm just getting older." 1

Q: Isn't Marilu Henner of TV's "Evening Shade" some sort of sex freak whose marriage is in trouble?

A: It's true that Marilu, who once was linked with '70s disco king John Travolta, believes that playing soccer with Elizabeth Berkley is her "relationship with ET." —Shue and sister Elizabeth, grew up in South Orange, N.J. Both started acting in their teens, but he was more interested in playing soccer. When he did at Durham. After graduation in 1989, he taught school and played soccer in Zimbabwe. In 1990, he returned to the U.S., headed for California to see his sister and later to the "Melrose" spot not long after.

Q: What's this about Candice Bergen living apart from her husband, Dick Bergen?

A: Bergen, 46, has for the last dozen years been married to French movie director Louis Malle. They have a 7-year-old daughter, Chloe. There's no question that the couple's marriage is unhappy. Her Murphy Brown work keeps her largely in Los Angeles, a city Malle detests. He prefers living in Paris most of the year. But Bergen's friends swear that she's not getting stronger, rather than diminish their marriage. Candice may have a strange marriage, but it seems to be working. 1

Q: Tell me about Richard Thomas. I love watching him in reruns of "The Waltons." I never see him anymore. How old is he now?

A: Thomas was 41 on June 12. He has concentrated on theater and TV. I love watching him in reruns of "The Waltons." I never see him anymore. How old is he now? 1

Q: We recall an incredible show in the 1970s called "Banana Splits." When did it originally air, and were the characters' names and who played them?

A: "The Banana Splits Adventure Hour" was on NBC, 1968-70. The names of actors in the animal suits... playing... rock... roller... Drooper... Snorky... Bingo and Fleecy... were never recorded for posterity.

Q: Where does cable's Weather Channel broadcast from? I've seen an address in New Jersey for some material they were offering but I'd like the headquarters.

A: Write: The Weather Channel, 2600 Cumberland Parkway, Atlanta, GA 30339.

Q: When did the original "You Bet Your Life" first run?

A: The original version, with Groucho Marx, premiered on NBC in 1950 (it had started on radio 1951 years earlier) and ran until 1961. There was also a syndicated 1980 edition hosted by Rudolph Hackett.

Q: I'm really curious about Andrew Shue, who plays Billy on Fox's "Melrose Place." How old is he? What's his background? Is there any relationship with Elizabeth Shue?

A: Shue, and sister Elizabeth, grew up in South Orange, N.J. Both started acting in their teens, but he was more interested in playing soccer. When he did at Durham. After graduation in 1989, he taught school and played soccer in Zimbabwe. In 1990, he returned to the U.S., headed for California to see his sister and later to the "Melrose" spot not long after.

Q: The first episode of this season's "Knobs Landing" was dedicated to the memory of Larry King. What a shock. He was one of my favorites on the show. A very talented part of the series and only 35. What happened?

A: In the months before he died, Riley, who was 39, had attributed his loss of weight to kidney problems. But after his death in 1992, his doctor and wife revealed the kidney failure was a complication of AIDS.

Q: I've become a John Jay admirer—and would appreciate any information on him, professionally and personally.

A: —Tesh: 39 —was born in Garden City, N.Y., studied music and communications at North Carolina State University but left school to work for at Durham, N.C. TV station. He went off to Orlando, Fla., to work for a radio station before joining CBS Sports in 1981. He joined "Entertainment Tonight" in 1986. Meanwhile, he's also done a lot of composing, much of it for the "60 Minutes" sports events (he has an affinity for music for the Pan American Games). He hosted "One on One" for NBC daytime and covered Wimbledon and the Summer Olympics for NBC. He's back on NBC daytime in June co-hosting a talk show with another "ET" host, Lecca Gibbons. They'll both stay with "ET." —Tesh married second wife Connie Seligson last April. 1

Responsibilities amaze Gumbel

By John Nelson
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Greg Gumbel not only can do the work of three announcers, he will.

CBS Sports announced that Gumbel will replace Dick Stockton as its No. 2 baseball play-by-play man next season, then take over for Tim McCarver and Paula Zahn as prime time host of the 1994 Winter Olympics at Lillehammer, Norway.

"I'm so amazed at the kinds of responsibilities I'm given—and that same thinking people would trust those things to me," Gumbel said.

Gumbel, 46, co-host of CBS Sports' "NFL Today" show with Terry Bradshaw, will work as analyst-Jim Kaat on baseball.

I lived five blocks away from Griffith Stadium, in Washington, D.C., when my dad was going to law school," Gumbel said. "That's where I saw my first baseball game."

"It's one of the more difficult sports to do because the national interest in the event is as much as it does in basketball and football, but it's my No. 1 favorite, simply because I don't think there's any better 1-on-1 competition in sports than a batter against a pitcher."

CBS Sports president Neal Pilson said Sean McDonough and McCarver would continue as the network's lead broadcast team. Gumbel has done play-by-play for both the New York Yankees and Seattle Mariners, and has broadcast the College World Series for CBS.

CBS Sports senior vice president Rick Gentile said the decision did not reflect any dissatisfaction with Stockton, who has been CBS' No. 2 baseball announcer the past three years. "Dick will continue to be with CBS Sports in several capacities, including the NFL, NCAA basketball and the Olympics," Gentile said. "We're talking with Dick right now about those roles. This was an opportunity for us to take advantage of Greg's versatility."

Greg Gumbel

Pilson said Stockton would not have any part in CBS' baseball coverage, "and that's about all I can tell you on that."

Gumbel will work solo as prime time Olympic host. Pilson said. Last February, in Albertville, McCarver and Zahn as prime time co-hosts, and their work was roundly praised by critics.

"We were very satisfied with the job they did and felt as the Games went on, they got better," said Mike Pearl, CBS coordinating producer for the Olympics. "The role they obviously were experiencing for the first time. We just felt that this time, given the type of programming we have and our expectations from Albertville, it was better to go with a single host concept."

Gumbel was a co-anchor of CBS' weekday morning broadcast "Front Street Live" and Pilson said it was that work and his job on "NFL Today" that earned him the solo anchor position at Lillehammer. CBS will televise about 120 hours from Lillehammer, more than 50 of them in prime time.

Gumbel joined CBS in 1988 after working for CBS Sports' "Cavaliers Network" and ESPN. He still does play-by-play for selected local telecasts of the Cleveland Cavaliers and is a co-host with John Madden of CBS' "SportsCenter" halftime and pregame shows.

"I feel that I've been very fortunate since I came to CBS with the kinds of assignments I've received," Gumbel said. "My goal over the years has been to improve as a broadcaster, and one of the ways you do that is to do different things."

PBA hopes it rolls strike with king-of-hill challenges

By Matt Florio
Knight-Ridder News Service

DETROIT — Bowling fans will get two tournaments in one starting with ABC's second telecast of the winter tour.

In response to ABC's request last year for a format change that might add excitement and increase player recognition, the Professional Bowlers Association is adopting a king-of-the-hill challenge, match that will follow the title match for each tournament on the 16-week schedule.

"The winner of the season-opening tournament, the Jan. 9 AC-Delco Open in Torrance, Calif., will advance to the televised finals of the second tournament, the Phoenix Open. The Phoenix winner will meet the AC-Delco winner in the king-of-the-hill challenge. As long as the king keeps winning, he keeps coming back the next week."

To accommodate the challenge match, only the top four players, rather than the traditional five, will advance to the televised finals, which will then take three matches rather than four to produce a tournament winner.

The impetus for the format change started last season with 30 different bowlers, many of them first-timers, fumble the show, making it difficult for ABC to build player recognition.

"We think this format will help create the recognition, plus add the excitement we're looking for, particularly if someone gets a streak going," said PBA commissioner Mike Connor. "The challenge match will pay $5,000 to the winner, but the PBA is looking at a bonus plan, probably through insurance, for repeat winners.

"We'd like to offer something that will add to the incentive," Connor said. "We thought of doubling the prize each week if someone repeated until we realized that if the same person did win every week, he'd be shooting for $40 million the last week. But we will have something appropriate."

Should the previous week's king of the hill win the next tournament, the most recent previous winner will be standing by to accept the AC-Delco champion is one of the four Phoenix Open finalists; the backup king of the hill will be Dave Ferraro, 1992 PBA player of the year, or Marc McDowell, 1992 earnings leader.

Whatever happened to Joe Garagiola?

STATS: Born Feb. 12, 1926, in St. Louis; Mo. Attended public schools; married Anne Ross in 1949; three children.

IN EARLY YEARS: Garagiola (and buddy Yogi Berra) were discovered as teen-age sandlot players. Garagiola was signed by the St. Louis Cardinals at 15, then taught batting practice for a team during summer vacations. After high school, he played in the Army. He joined the Cardinals in 1946. A shoulder injury helped end his career and in 1954 he retired and started in broadcast-in-St. Louis. He wrote "Baseball—Is a Funny Game" in 1960. After he moved to New York, joined NBC radio and TV and covered major league baseball for NBC, 1966-1968. He was on "Today" in 1969-73, then did "The Baseball World of Joe Garagiola" for NBC.

FAMOUS FOR: His baseball expertise, his gentle humor and what his bosses on "Today" called his "ability to ask the questions viewers wanted to hear." IN RECENT YEARS: Garagiola, from 1990 to 1992, he did Angels games on cable and hosted a Kansas City radio sports talk show. When he rejoined "Today" in 1990, the producers hoped it would stop the show's skid after Jane Pauley left. He quit in February 1992, saying he was tired of commuting from his Phoenix home.
