Twin Falls officer: Feds shot 1st

By The Associated Press and The Times-News

Statement halts Weaver trial

BOISE — The murder-conspiracy trial of white separatist Randy Weaver and Kevin Harris was interrupted Friday to allow defense attorneys to interview a Twin Falls state trooper about information crucial to the trial.

Idaho State Police Capt. David Neal told the defense team Thursday night that a federal marshal involved in the Aug. 21 shootout at Weaver's remote Panhandle cabin admitted firing first, defense attorney David Nevin said.

"The whole case turns on the question of who shot first," Nevin said. Nevin claimed prosecutors had the information for three weeks, but failed to turn it over to the defense as required by law. His allegations prompted U.S. District Judge Edward Lodge to adjourn the trial and admonish the attorneys about future delays.

"I'm very disturbed about what has happened here," Lodge said even before the jury was called into the courtroom. "It's totally inexcusable what I have to do today, which is delay the trial."

Assistant U.S. Attorney Ron Howen denied any questionable tactics on the government's part. But Nevin said Howen learned of the marshal's statement during a break in testimony late in April and only revealed the information to the defense Thursday.

A defense attorney's call to Neal confirmed the information, which goes to the central issue of who fired the first shot in the battle that killed Deputy U.S. Marshal William Degán and led to the death of Weaver's wife and son.

Neal was with a crisis unit called to the night scene when Deputy U.S. Marshal William Degán was shot and killed. Weaver, 45, and Harris, 25, are charged with his murder.

Arkansas travel agent out the gate

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Stunned by the uproar over its firing of seven travel office employees, the White House late Friday severed ties with the politically connected Arkansas travel agency that had been hired to take over the operations.

The sudden move came after the disclosure of a memo showing that President Clinton's 25-year-old cousin had proposed taking over the travel office three months before its staff was fired and she was named to help oversee the operations.

The memo also had showed that the cousin, Catherine Cornelius, had recommended the hiring of World Wide Travel, a Little Rock company that later was hired without competitive bidding after the firing of the travel staff. In her memo, Cornelius had complained that the old travel office staff was inefficient and "overly progressive." White House communications director George Stephanopoulos said World Wide Travel had voluntarily withdrawn from further service, effective Monday.

He said the move "should end any possible perception that their selection ... was based on a prior personal or business relationship with members of the campaign staff who now work at the White House."

Stephanopoulos said travel services were being turned over to American Express Travel Office, a vendor approved by the General Services Administration.

Further, the White House acknowledged that Clinton's Hollywood friend, Harry Thompson, had mentioned to the president that friends in the airline business had been turned away when asked if they could bid on White House charters.

The disclosures were a new irritant for the Clinton White House, already pained by press attention to the firings and accounts of the president's hairent by a Hollywood stylist who regularly charges $200.

"There seems to be some sort of obsession with side issues," Stephanopoulos complained at a press briefing that was dominated for the third straight day by questions about the firings.

Clinton also defended the firings, saying "the decision was made based on striving to end inefficiency and mismanagement." At a photo opportunity, Clinton noted there had been press complaints about the costs of charters.

"Do you think it's fine to have no-bid plane rides?" he asked. He said that the use of competitive bidding for a White House trip on Saturday would save the press 25 percent in charter costs — or about $8,000.

While the White House charters press planes, the media pay the charges.

In a counterattack, the White House released a Justice Department statement saying that the FBI had been in touch with auditors who reviewed the travel office.

Legislators press school case defense

The Associated Press

BOISE — Legislative leaders reaffirmed their pledge for a vigorous defense in court of the state's financial commitment to public schools while moving toward replacing Attorney General Larry Echolf with a private law firm to handle the case.

"This case is more than just a legal case, it's a public relations case," House Speaker Michael Simpson, R-Blackfoot, said. "We need someone on our side who can say, 'Hey, there's another side to the story. There has to be an advocate there to respond to the political side of it.'"

The Legislative Council on Friday also declined to immediately set up a special working group charged with reassessing the state's entire educational system in a bid to stave off the courtroom confrontation over the amount of cash Idaho funnels into its classrooms.

The council of party leaders, which oversees legislative operations when lawmakers are not in session, agreed that it had little choice but to aggressively fight the 28 school districts that claim the more than $800 million being spent on schools each year is inadequate to provide the thorough education guaranteed by the state constitution.

In March, the state Supreme Court upheld the way the state does out the money, but it directed a district court judge to decide if there is enough money in the pot to begin with.

Some lawmakers like Simpson believe the issue may actually how the money is being spent rather than how much money there is. But others, including Andrus and the attorney general, maintain there is no question more money will have to be spent and the estimates have run into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Although a consensus was reached on Thursday with Gov. Cecil Andrus and other state leaders, Republican legislative leaders expressed concerns that a working group could actually undermine their contention that the constitutional mandate already is being met.

The council put off a decision for several weeks while Simpson and Senate President Pro Tem Jerry Twigg investigate more closely the positive and negative aspects of that approach.

TV moguls pledge less violence in programs

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Television executives, under pressure from Congress to reduce violence in programs seen by children, pledged Friday to work harder to reduce depictions of mayhem that often are imitated by young viewers.

At a Senate hearing to discuss the issue — the second congressional proceeding of its kind in eight days — Howard Stringer, president of the CBS Broadcast Group, said that the three major networks had adopted an initial set of guidelines last December.

"We have stepped forward," he said. "But we must do more, and we will."

Warren Littlefield, president of NBC Entertainment, told the hearing chaired by Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., author of the 1990 Violence in Television Act:

"NBC has gotten the message. We have been and will continue to take steps to scrutinize with even greater intensity the depiction of violence on television."

The network executives clearly were aware of congressional threats to impose government restraints if the industry itself fails to solve the problem.

Echoing his two colleagues, Thomas S. Murphy, chairman of Capital Cities/ABC Inc., testified: "The fact that we do a lot to regulate the depiction of violence does not mean that we cannot do more."

Simon commended the major networks for a set of standards they handed him last December.

Dog survives 100-foot fall down Snake canyon wall

By Brad Bowlin Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Darrin Whitaker's dog found out Thursday what visitors to Shoshone Falls have been saying for years: It's a long way down.

Whitaker's 2½-year-old black Labrador, Jolly, survived a fall of about 100 feet when he jumped over a rock wall at the park Thursday evening.

Whitaker took his family to see the falls, which have been turned from a trickle to a torrent by the first abundant water supply in years.

While walking on a path behind the park concession stand, Jolly apparently heard the water, but a low rock wall prevented her from seeing how far away it was, Whitaker said.

He let go of Jolly's collar, and the dog bolted over the wall. Whitaker looked over in time to see her free-falling down the precipice.

"I thought, 'Oh my God,'" Whitaker said. "I knew she was dead."

But a second glance revealed Jolly walking around, trying to climb back to the top. Whitaker scurried down as far as he could go, then lowered himself with a rope to his frightened and sore companion.

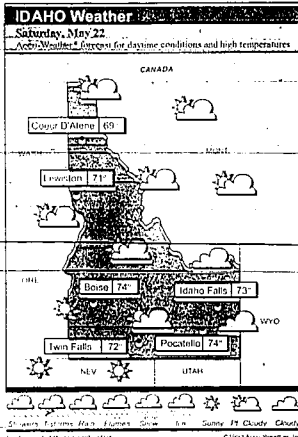

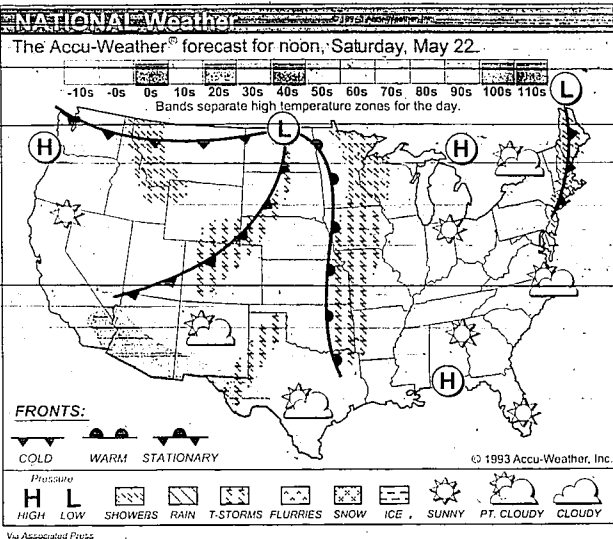

Whitaker returned to his pickup for more rope, which he used to hoist Jolly over a 10-foot stretch that was too steep for her to climb. A trip to the veterinarian Friday revealed no major injuries, Whitaker said.

Record lows bring shivers to Southern regions

The Associated Press

Rain and storms were scattered from the West Coast to the Ohio Valley on Friday, and record lows hit parts of the Appalachians and lower Mississippi Valley.

During the afternoon, showers and thunderstorms were scattered over the northern-Pacific Coast, much of the Rockies, the southern Plains, sections of the Great Lakes and the Ohio Valley.

Some thunderstorms produced small hail, generally only a quarter of an inch in diameter, in parts of Kentucky and Wyoming.

The showers and thunderstorms over parts of the Great Lakes and Ohio Valley resulted from a weak low pressure area located just north of Lake Erie.

Showers and thunderstorms over the Rocky Mountains were produced by a frontal boundary extending from eastern Montana to eastern New Mexico.

A flood watch was in effect for much of Utah with rivers running high because of melting snow.

In Idaho, flood warnings remained in effect for the Portneer River at Pocatello and for Henry's Fork of the Snake River near Rexburg, which were running at or near flood stage.

Cool air moved across the lower Mississippi Valley, the Ohio Valley and the middle Atlantic Coast states.

Record lows for the date included 36 at Asheville, N.C.; 39 at Bristol, Tenn.; 38 at Calicoe Rock, Ark.; 40 at Greenville and Spartanburg, N.C.; 37 at Huntington, W.Va.; 45 at Huntsville, Ala.; 38 at Raanoke, Va.; and 35 at Youngstown, Ohio. Heckley, W.Va., tied its record of 35.

Light snow fell during the afternoon at elevations of 5,000 feet and above in parts of the mountains of North Carolina.

Friday morning's low for the lower 48 states was 27 at Bradford, Pa.

Briefly

Clinton pessimistic over Balkans

WASHINGTON — President Clinton expressed pessimism Friday over finding a long-term solution to ethnic conflict in the Balkans and pledged not to send American soldiers into a "shooting gallery."

Instead, allied foreign ministers were convening in Washington to consider short-term measures designed to put pressure on Bosnian Serbs.

Secretary of State Warren M. Christopher said the discussions Saturday involving Russia, Britain, France and Spain would include establishing safe havens to shield displaced civilians.

However, Christopher indicated the allies would permit Serbian territorial gains to stand for the time being if the bloodshed could be halted.

But despite Clinton's appraisal — and his exclusion of U.S. ground troops from any peacekeeping role — the United States, Russia, Britain, France and Spain accelerated consideration of short-term measures designed to pressure Bosnian Serbs to agree to a cease-fire and to halt their attack on Muslims in Bosnia.

Venezuelan president will stand trial

CARACAS, Venezuela — The Senate ordered President Carlos Andres Perez to stand trial on embezzlement charges and suspended him from office on Friday.

Ottavio Lepage, president of Congress and the Senate, automatically took over presidential duties. He was sworn in by the new Senate president, Enrique Olayo, and ordered the red, blue and yellow presidential sash of office less than an hour after the Senate impeachment vote.

He will govern from 30 to 90 days while Congress picks an interim president.

Perez's own Democratic Action party voted for a trial in what appeared to be a unanimous show-of-hands vote in the 49-member Senate. Party president Pedro Paris Montemayor said the party believes Perez will be found innocent.

Park Service in historian's charge

WASHINGTON — After failing to enlist actor Robert Redford or television anchor Tom Brokaw to head the National Park Service, the Clinton administration has selected historian and museum director Roger Kennedy.

The White House announced Friday that President Clinton picked Kennedy, 60, director of the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of American History, as director of the nation's 367 parks and national monuments and historic areas.

"With a record of public service dating back to World War II, Roger Kennedy is more than up to the job of safeguarding these precious resources," Clinton said in a statement.

Gem scores dip but experts unworried

BOISE (AP) — Idaho public school students say their scores slip this year on standardized tests, but state education experts said the limited decline was insignificant.

"We'd have to look at scores over two or three years before we would begin wondering about trends," said Sally Tiel, the state coordinator for guidance, assessment and evaluation.

Sixth grade scores on the Iowa Test of Basic Skills stood exactly in the middle nationally at the 50th percentile on the vocabulary, reading, spelling and mathematics components. That was down from the 51st percentile in 1992.

The sixth grade overall score was unchanged at the 53rd percentile as was the score for social studies at the 68th percentile while the science score rose a notch to the 77th percentile.

The eighth grade results on the basic composite of the Iowa Test of Basic Skills dropped into the nation's lower half, slipping two notches from last year to the 48th percentile. The overall score for eighth graders was the 53rd percentile, down from the 54th percentile last year.

Unchanged from last year were the eighth grade scores for science in the 71st percentile and social studies in the 63rd percentile.

High school juniors take Tests of Achievement and Proficiency and their scores were also off. The basic score fell one spot to the 66th percentile while the total score was off two spots at the 66th percentile.

The eighth and 11th graders also underwent a writing assessment, but based on the results of the past several years education officials decided to raise the standards, making it impossible to compare this year's results with those of 1992.

Trial

Prosecutors had claimed throughout the trial's first five weeks that Harris had shot first, and Howen maintained on Friday that Neal had not indicated that Inspector Arthur Roderick admitted shooting first.

"We are being ambushed and need time to regroup," defense attorney Gerry Spence told Judge.

"Maybe later I'll have motions to dismiss on prosecutorial misconduct."

Lodge agreed with defense motion to adjourn so a defense attorney could interview Neal. The officer was in Boise Friday, so the defense attorney planned to interview him there rather than drive to Twin Falls, Nev. said.

The trial is scheduled to resume Monday.

"This is a very embarrassing situation," the judge said. "I expect both sides to take stock in what has happened here and make sure it does not happen again during this trial."

Spence also said Howen had failed to provide him with notes written Aug. 25 by another federal marshal involved in the shootout. In the notes, Deputy U.S. Marshal Larry Cooper said the first gunshot he heard on Aug. 21 was from the kind of gun carried by marshals.

Cooper testified during the trial's opening days that the first shot he heard was from the gun Harris was carrying. Howen said he had received the notes from the FBI on Thursday and turned them over to defense attorneys this morning.

Howen said he had been inundated with such new information since the trial began and had been trying to come up with rules requiring him to share it with the defense.

"Over the last few weeks I've received more and more information and tried to disclose it to counsel," a visibly shaken Howen said. "I feel I have disclosed things and acted accordingly in this case."

The spontaneous fire fight occurred as the team of marshals led by Roderick was trying to surround the cabin in preparation for another scheme to lure Weaver away from the others to arrest him on an 18-month-old fugitive warrant.

Weaver had isolated himself with his family and Harris at the cabin only eight south of the Canadian border after being spotted for a February 1991 trial on a weapons charge.

The shootout, in which Weaver's teen-age son also died, triggered an 11-day siege of the cabin. Weaver's wife, Vicki, was killed on the second day by a federal sniper. Weaver, Harris and Weaver's three daughters surrendered after then Populist Party presidential candidate Bo Grizz served as an intermediary and an agent arranged for Spence to defend Weaver in court.

records and that "additional criminal investigation is warranted."

The White House also released the report from Peat Marwick auditors, who alleged "significant accounting system weaknesses," including discrepancies in reporting $18,200 in checks from a petty cash account. The report was turned over to the FBI.

The seven-member staff was dismissed Wednesday, accused of financial mismanagement. White House officials had said the charges were based on an audit performed late last week as part of Clinton's effort to improve efficiency in government.

Yet, a memo written in Feb. 15 by Cornelius and another White House staffer, Charissa Cardia, outlined changes similar to those instituted this week.

The memo was released by the White House after it was leaked to reporters, triggering a new uproar about the firings.

White House officials emphatically denied any connection between the memo and the firings.

U.S. sees continued troubles in Mideast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clinton administration, completing a review of U.S. policy in the Persian Gulf, does not foresee improved ties with Iran or Iraq unless their governments undergo dramatic changes, a senior official says.

The policy, laid out in a speech by Martin Indyk, special assistant to the president for Near East and South Asian affairs, calls for continued U.S. isolation of these two countries through economic and military sanctions.

To contain both countries, the United States must thwart Iranian and Iraqi efforts to obtain weapons, maintain the U.S. military presence in the region, and rely on friends like Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Israel, Turkey and the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council as a counterweight, Indyk said. He spoke Tuesday to the private Washington Institute for Near East Policy but the text was made available Friday.

"The current regime in Iraq is a criminal regime, beyond the pale of international society, and in our judgment, irredeemable," he said, laying to rest speculation generated by President Clinton that the United States was softening its stand toward President Saddam Hussein.

Nor will the United States be satisfied with any successor government to Saddam, unless it stopped violating the human rights of its citizens and complied fully with all U.N. resolutions governing the destruction of Iraq's arsenals of mass destruction, he said.

To underscore its rejection of Saddam, the United States has decided to provide stronger backing to the coalition of Iraqi opposition groups known as the Iraqi National Congress, Indyk said.

Turning to Iran, Indyk said the United States would not normalize its relations with that Islamic government "until and unless Iran's policies change, across the board."

He cited five areas in which Iran was mounting a dangerous challenge to the United States and the West: it is the foremost support of terrorism worldwide, it is trying to derail Arab-Israeli peace talks, it is seeking to subvert friendly Arab governments, it is buying weapons to establish its military dominance over the Gulf, and it is seeking to acquire nuclear weapons and the ballistic missiles with which to deliver them.

Commission eyes more base closings

WASHINGTON (AP) — An independent commission tentatively added more than two dozen installations Friday to the Pentagon's list of bases to close or realign. New targets included Navy shipyards in Virginia, California and Maine.

The panel cautioned, however, that its actions are preliminary and the final decision will come July 1.

"It doesn't mean our minds are made up," said Jim Courter, chairman of the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission. "It means our minds are open. We are not rubber stamps for the Pentagon. It's one gigantic puzzle."

The commission's new shipyard targets were Norfolk, Va., Long Beach, Calif., and the Portsmouth shipyard in Kittery, Maine. The Navy previously recommended shutting down the Charleston, S.C., and Mare Island, Calif., shipyards.

The commission also added Army forts Gillett and McPherson in Georgia and Army facilities at Fort Lee, Va., Fort Monroe, Va., and Marcus Hook Reserve Center, Pa., to the list previously advanced by the Pentagon.

A part of a fourth Army facility, the annex of the Presidio of Monterey in California, also was tacked on. The panel previously had added the main part of the presidio — home of the Army's Defense Language Institute to the list.

Also added for further consideration were naval air stations in Imperial Beach and Miramar, Calif., and Oceana, Va.; the Corpus Christi, Texas, Navy training station; and naval bases in Ingleside, Calif., Pascagoula, Miss., and Everett, Wash.

Also, the Navy shipping parts control center in Mechanicsburg, Pa.; the Navy electronics center in Portsmouth, Va.; Navy reserve air stations in Johnstown, Pa., Martinsburg, W.Va., and Chicopee, Lawrence and Quincy, Mass.; the Navy service weapons center in Louisville, Ky., and the Navy air station in Memphis, Tenn.

Murder-suicide hits small town in South Dakota

HOSMER, S.D. (AP) — A man shot his estranged wife and two of their children to death Friday in their front yard, then fled with his 1-year-old son, shot and wounded the boy and killed himself, authorities said.

The first shootings occurred across the street from the elementary school where the oldest child attended kindergarten. Carl Swanson had been talking with his estranged wife, Donna, 25, outside the family's home when he fatally shot her and their two oldest children, Tabatha, 6, and James, 3, said Michael Hogan, Edmunds County state's attorney.

Swanson's body and his wounded son, Joel, were found in his car about three miles south of Hosmer, a farming community about 230 miles northwest of Sioux Falls, said Capt. Tom Berheim of the South Dakota Highway Patrol.

Joel was listed in critical condition in a Minneapolis hospital.

"Apparently, wife and kids were having a conversation with the husband, kind of out in the front yard. And he shot the wife, he shot the two older kids, took the younger one with him, and drove several miles out of town and shot himself and the youngest one," said Chief Deputy State Attorney General Larry Long.

"I understand only after the fact there were protection orders in place. They had separated before and there was a protection order; they separated again in September 1992 and there was a protection order then," Hogan said.

Some Somalia vets treated for malaria

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 40 U.S. Army soldiers and Marines at bases across the country have come down with malaria since returning from duty in Somalia, officials said.

All are being treated with a drug that is designed to eradicate the parasite. More than 20 cases of malaria have been diagnosed at Fort Drum, N.Y.

Sessions defends himself at meeting

WASHINGTON — FBI Director William Sessions met with Attorney General Janet Reno on Friday and argued his defense against a criminal ethics report. Reno said afterward that they discussed Sessions' conduct and she would now review the whole case, according to Justice Department spokesman Carl Stern.

Reno had said she would meet with Sessions before deciding whether he should be fired because of the allegations in a report by the Justice Department's Office of Professional Responsibility. He is halfway through his 10 year term.

Judge rules against administration

WASHINGTON — A federal judge held the administration in civil contempt Friday and threatened heavy daily fines because officials failed to show guidelines to protect millions of computer documents from the Bush White House.

U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey gave the White House and the National Archives until June 21 to put new guidelines into place for preservation of the computer tapes and existing damaged back-up tapes. Thereafter, Richey said in an order, he will impose daily fines of $50,000 the first week and double them each week thereafter. $100,000 a day the second week and $200,000 a day in the third week.

Senators, Perot want changes in plan

WASHINGTON — Two more Senate Democrats and Ross Perot voiced some support Friday for a bipartisan effort to change President Clinton's deficit reduction plan by adding spending cuts, killing its energy tax and easing levies on the rich.

Nebraska Democratic Sens. James Exton and Robert Kerrey stopped short of fully endorsing the proposal released Thursday by four senators, two Democrats and two Republicans.

But by complimenting the alternative and criticizing Clinton for seeking "excessive tax increases," they added to the uncertainty in Congress just days before a House vote on the heart of the administration plan.

Perot also praised the rival budget plan. In a written statement, the former independent presidential candidate called it a "major breakthrough" that could eventually lead to a better budget cutting plan.

Admiral punishes 3 for role in scandal

WASHINGTON — The admiral reviewing 120 cases of alleged misconduct arising from the Navy's Tailhook convention scandal has disciplined three more lieutenants for indecent exposure at the gathering of aviators.

Vice Adm. J. Paul Reason issued letters of admonition Thursday to a lieutenant and two junior grade lieutenants and docked $1,000 from each officer's monthly pay, the Navy said.

The punishments are being meted out as part of a case-by-case review of allegations against 120 officers that Reason, commander of the Atlantic surface fleet, is conducting in Norfolk, Va.

Inmates switch to smoking vegetables

GREENSBORO, N.C. — County jail inmates fighting a ban on tobacco are still smoking, but they had to try a new leafy plant: collard greens.

"Yeah, I smoke greens. They send them up for supper," said Shelton Locklear, 27, jailed as a habitual felon since February. "We didn't have anything else to smoke, so we dried them out and tried 'em."

On March 15, the Greensboro jail went smoke-free. Inmates had to quit cold turkey. Since then, tobacco has been smuggled into jail and sold at black-market prices.

More contaminants found at plant

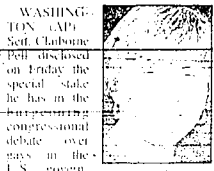

HARTFORD, Conn. — Stratford residents knew that a manufacturing plant left asbestos behind when it closed its doors after operating in town for 70 years. Now, they found other contamination.

The state on Thursday argued that all children under age 6 in Stratford be tested for lead poisoning, after finding dangerous levels of lead, PCBs and asbestos at seven sites, including a park and ballfields at a junior high school.

Gov. Lowell P. Weicker Jr. said he would seek up to $5 million from the state's Superfund to allow the sites to be immediately covered with topsoil, and for additional tests at sites where material from the former Raymark Industries plant was dumped.

Fighting over gays continues in Senate

Achtenberg

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Carl LeCompte of South Carolina on Friday disclosed the special state he has in the burgeoning congressional debate over gays in the U.S. military, and family duty services.

His daughter, Julie, is president of the Rhode Island Alliance for Gay and Lesbian Civil Rights. Pell told the Senate: "I would not want to see her barred from a government job because of her orientation."

The Rhode Island Democrat, at the Senate floor to endorse the embattled Roberta Achtenberg, a lesbian San Francisco city supervisor whose nomination to a sub-Cabinet post has generated opposition from conservative Republicans.

"I have a personal reason for supporting this nomination," Pell said. "I believe we should strive to let simple standards of fairness and equal treatment be our guide in examining all nominees first come first served."

His statement caused a stir, as did Maine Col. Fred Peck's disclosure to the Senate Armed Services Committee. Pell, however, wanted to argue for allowing homosexuals in the government service, whereas Peck said he believed the military was no place for his son Scott.

Pell's statement was believed to have been the first he has said publicly in the Senate about his daughter's sexual orientation.

Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, immediately took the floor to thank Pell for his remarks. Achtenberg's nomination to head the law housing and equal opportunity office at the Department of Housing and Urban Development was approved by Riegle's committee 11-0-1.

"We can't entertain the notion that people ought to be denied service in our government... by virtue of some test that one of another person might apply, based on their personal orientation or values," Riegle said.

A Senate vote on Achtenberg's nomination is scheduled for Monday, and Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole told reporters Friday he expected that she would be confirmed. He said expected no more than about 20 votes against her.

Conservative Republicans, led by South Carolina's Jesse Helms and Mississippi's Trent Lott, have spent a considerable amount of time denouncing Achtenberg on the Senate floor in recent days.

Miss Philbin died May 7 in Huntington Beach, said Martha Hernandez, spokeswoman for Calvary Cemetery in Whittier, where Miss Philbin is entombed.

Stocks rise despite pessimism; doomsayers may have helped

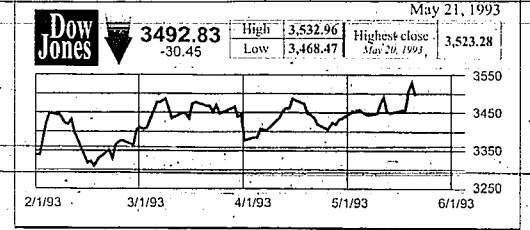

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Stock prices have once again shown they can climb the proverbial wall of worry despite an army of naysayers.

"The market never does things when we want them to," said Edward Collins, head of bond trading at Daiwa Securities America, as stocks reached new highs this past week.

The view that the market is overpriced may be reasonable, Collins said, "but it's not going to correct until we least expect it. That's what makes you a little bit nervous about it."

Last Wednesday, the Dow Jones industrial average rose 55.64 points to a record 3,500.03. On Thursday, the index added another 23.25 points, setting a new all-time high of 3,523.28.

Stocks pulled back on Friday, largely because of technical factors tied to the expiration of futures and options contracts. The Dow average finished the session at 3,492.83, down 30.45 for the day, but up 49.82 on the week.

"Broad-market indexes also posted gains for the week. The American Stock Exchange's market value index set three new records: The index closed on Friday at a record high of 432.86, up 5.40 for the week.

The NYSE composite index rose 2.93 for the week, closing on Friday at 246.27. The Nasdaq composite index added 17.92 for the week to reach 694.29.

In the contrary ways of the stock market, one reason the Dow average rose so sharply was that many people had bet that it would go lower.

A survey of 130 investment advisers by Investors Intelligence newsletter, for example, showed that bullishness has fallen to 32.1 percent; the lowest since October 1991.

Traders have taken this trend to mean that many investors have already sold, and that the market is therefore poised to push higher.

But the market is subject to extraordinary cross-currents.

The bearish investment advisers are primarily concerned that rising inflation will push interest rates higher, which could choke off corporate earnings and stall stock growth.

That view is supported by the fact that commodity prices are going up. The behavior of gold, viewed in many circles as a barometer of inflation, has been rising.

Inflation concerns receded somewhat this past week after Federal Reserve declined to raise short-term interest rates. But a sharp rise in money supply, reported on Thursday, reignited them and helped send bonds and stocks lower on Friday.

Sydney Omarr Horoscope

IF MAY 22 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You are "explosive" — many claim you are a "loose cannon." You broke from family tradition, possibly, were separated from one or both parents at relatively early age. You possess extraordinary ability to perceive future; you are better at helping others than when it comes to utilizing talents for personal gain. You'll make fresh start in new direction in June — love figures prominently.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Clash of ideas stimulates; could lead to significant relationship. Focus on teaching, learning, investigating; being vulnerable to ideas and love. Short trip plays key role.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Financial picture bright, emphasis on beautiful surroundings, remodeling, sale or purchase of property. Favor's from Mars; status figures prominently — you'll answer question, "Why am I here?"

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Separate truth from wishful thinking — you'll "see through" individuals who know price of everything, value of nothing. Protect self in emotional climates. You'll be at right place at exact time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Power play day — focus on egalitarian, intense relationship, investment of time and emotions. Hospital visit helps cheer loved one. Claudine arrangement lends spice, builds odds for success.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Suddenly you get what you want, circumstances favor your efforts, events transpire to bring you closer to goal. You'll wear attitudes, important people who declare, "You're what it takes!"

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Love relationship prospers. Stress enthusiasm, inventiveness, original concepts, daring. Gemini moon highlights leadership, prudence, direction, sobriety.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Intuitive intellect dominates — refuse to be caught in middle of family financial dispute. Temporary change of scene proves beneficial. Emphasis on publishing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Barden is fitted, this Saturday night is marked for fun and frolic. Good news concerning health of one you love; that person also receives cash bonus. Your own "love life" will be restored.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Restrictions lifted, legal conflict settled, marital status spotlighted. Check references, do research, get back on solid financial-credentialed ground.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You'll be missing, "I really didn't know I had the writing talent!" Focus on changes, travel, variety of experiences.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): What you need is close enough to be found in your own home. Could be compact, self-care; get from loved one. Don't equate delay with delay.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Don't tell all empathic mystery, intrigue, plan out. Answers are found behind scenes. Family member knows plenty, keeps mum. Secret meeting becomes clear.

Dynamite disposal forces evacuation

CHUBBUCK (AP) — About 350 people were evacuated for several hours as two explosions experts from Utah's Tropic Army Depot helped neutralize a 25 pounds of volatile dynamite found in a wooden shed. Evacuees were allowed to return to their homes and businesses Thursday night after the dynamite was hauled away in a 5-ton truck filled with dirt and buried in a gravel pit. Archie Moon, the shed's owner, told authorities he was going to use the dynamite on a mining claim he was working with his son. The dynamite, which was about 8 years old and beginning to crystallize, was stored in a cardboard box. It was discovered by Jim Ball, who was trimming trees for Moon.

Kootenai real estate values jump

COEUR D'ALENE — Fueled by interest in moving to northern Idaho, Kootenai County's property values soared for the third consecutive year, again for the biggest increase ever. Countywide, assessed valuation increased $502.9 million, an 18.93 percent jump, Deputy County Assessor Mike McDowell said. More than half that increase — $314 million — was generated by market adjustments, or increases in the value of existing property. The remaining $188.9 million was generated by land splits, new subdivisions, new construction and increases in the value of timber and agricultural land. Still unknown is the new valuation of utilities within the county, McDowell said.

Water pistol lands man in county jail

GARDEN CITY — Marvin Olson of Garden City was using a toy gun to squirt water at some neighbor kids when he saw the barrel of a real pistol pointed at him by a city police officer. Moments later, he was in handcuffs and on his way to the Ada County Jail for questioning Thursday. Olson, 36, was released about 40 minutes later, upset but not charged with any crime. He said he never should have been handcuffed, but did not acknowledge if he would take any legal action against the police. Garden City Police Lt. James Bensley said officers were responding to a call at 11:30 a.m., from a concerned resident about a man threatening people with what was believed to be a semiautomatic weapon.

Foul play eliminated in patient's death

BLACKFOOT — Police have ruled out foul play in the apparent drowning of State Hospital South patient, but one hospital employee has resigned following the incident, and an outside consultant is being brought in to evaluate hospital procedures. Although police said Thursday there was no criminal intent in the death last weekend of Shirley Hummer, 49, of Fayette, their inquiry found she had been left alone in a hot bathtub for more than two hours before she was found unconscious.

Tribes, lawmakers patch up differences

BOISE (AP) — Representatives of four Idaho Indian tribes met with state legislators Friday to begin patching up frayed relations. The first meeting of the Legislature's reinstated interim Committee on Indian Affairs immediately took up such issues as Indian education and ways to improve communications between the state and the tribes. Ray Givens, an attorney for the Coeur d'Alene Tribe, said Indian relations with the state — strained by disagreements over reservation gambling, fishing rights and Coeur d'Alene claims to ownership of Lake Coeur d'Alene — might not have deteriorated so much during the past year if the legislative panel had been in place. "There really is no way to describe the state-tribal relations over the last year other than as a total, unmitigated disaster," Givens said. The Legislature reauthorized the interim committee last winter but refused to provide money for a permanent state Indian affairs commission proposed by Gov. Cecil Andrus. Lawmakers also did nothing to help the tribes with economic development. State officials promised assistance last year while campaigning for an amendment to the Idaho Constitution banning casino gambling throughout the state, including Indian reservations. That ban is being challenged in court. Julia Davis, vice chairman of the Nez Perce Tribal Executive Committee, said the Climbun administration has given Idaho tribes more attention and consideration than their own state. But she called for reconciliation. "This is a new day. We need to see more communication. We need to work together," Davis said.

Father pleads not guilty to death of son

CALDWELL (AP) — A Nampa man has pleaded innocent to first-degree murder in the death of his 37-month-old son and to injuring his year-old son. Andrew Barral, 18, was ordered to stand trial Nov. 29 on the murder charge after entering the pleas on Friday. He faces a possible death penalty upon conviction. Third District Judge Jim Doolittle set Dec. 27 for Barral's trial on the charge of felony injury to the second toddler.

State may use new gun law against student

POST FALLS (AP) — Prosecutors may charge a high school freshman who brought a 9mm pistol to school under a new state law prohibiting students from carrying guns on campus, police said.

Kootenai County Prosecutor Bill Douglas will determine if the 15-year-old boy should be tried under the law, which took effect in March. Douglas' secretary said Friday afternoon that no decision had yet been made.

If convicted of the misdemeanor, the Post Falls High School student could face up to 120 days in a juvenile detention center and a $1,000 fine, police Sgt. Pete Marion said Thursday.

The boy hid the unloaded gun in the waistband of his pants, covered it with his jacket and took it to school May 13, Marion said.

The boy apparently planned to sell the Chinese-made semiautomatic pistol to another student for $50, Marion said. He told police he bought the gun from a friend for $45.

Several students who saw the boy with the gun at school reported them to school officials, who called police, Marion said.

Sarajevans decry talk of 'safe zones'

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Residents of this city that has suffered more than a year of siege think talk of "safe zones" in a new Western peace initiative means Serbs have won the battle to divide the republic.

Reactors from Washington and other Western capitals said Friday the United States and Russia were moving toward allowing Bosnian Serbs to keep territory they seized in the 13-month war, and drawing Britain and France into the plan. International forces would guard "safe havens" for Muslims in the fraction of Bosnia-Herzegovina that the government controls.

President Clinton later expressed reservations about the "safe havens" idea, suggesting he opposed formal boundaries along ethnic lines. "I don't want to see the United States get in a position where we're recreating Northern Ireland, Lebanon or Cyprus or anything else," he said.

But Clinton still seems alone in favoring some form of military intervention against the Serbs.

With the United States refusing to go it alone and the "safe havens" idea championed by France and other European nations, Sarajevo intellectuals fear the West is moving toward simply establishing ethnic ghettos in a European country a half-century after the Holocaust. "These 'safe zones' are only ghettos," said Josip Engel, a Jew married to a Muslim. "It is a policy of determining where people can live on the basis of ethnic origin. It is only going to be more and more painful in the future."

Bosnian Serbs call for truce, then attack

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Bosnian Serb forces ignored a non-aggression pledge by their leaders and pressed Friday to expel Muslim-led government troops from northern Bosnia.

U.N. officials said Breko was attacked by Serbs seeking to expand a corridor to link Serb-held lands.

Bosnian radio reported artillery attacks on Maglaj further south near an important Serb weapons depot.

Bosnian Serbs have repeatedly rejected a U.N. peace plan because it would require them to cede half of the 70 percent of Bosnia they hold. Also, they would be forced to give up their dream of linking with Serbs in Croatia and Serbia to form a "Greater Serbia."

In central Bosnia, occasional clashes were reported between Muslim-led government and Bosnian Croat forces, former allies in the ethnic war with Bosnian Serbs that has left more than 138,000 people dead the past year.

The Serb attack on Muslims near Breko began Thursday. The day before, the self-styled Bosnian Serb parliament declared that its forces had ceased "all military operations."

In Washington, President Clinton expressed doubts Friday about new peace efforts.

Clinton's skepticism contrasted with Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev, who said Washington and Moscow were "very, very close" to a new agreement but needed to consult European leaders.

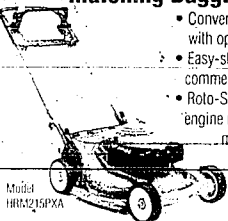

British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd left Friday for New York, where he is due to meet U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali and Secretary of State Warren M. Christopher.

Bellevue forms improvement district

BY DEBORAH SHIMKUS
Times-News correspondent

BELLEVUE - After more than a year of discussions and public meetings, city officials made a financial commitment last week for all Bellevue residents to help pay the city's $375,000 share of the cost for the town's downtown redevelopment project.

The city council unanimously passed a local improvement district ordinance that creates local improvement districts to improve Main Street from Gannett to Spruce Streets, and enables the city to issue bonds to raise the money.

The district will affect property owners in the city. There are approximately 560 property owners, according to Project Engineer Willie Teuscher.

Each property owner will be assessed about $200, with the option of spreading payments over a 20-year span. Those properties which front Main Street will be assessed an additional $24 per linear foot that abuts improvements on Main Street or a side street, he said. That works out to about $1,700 to $2,000 per property on Main Street, Teuscher said.

The city is still waiting for money from the Idaho Transportation Board and the Department of Commerce to complete the project. One million four hundred thousand dollars has been committed from the Idaho Department

Pesticides threaten more than weeds

By N.S. Nokken
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Those chemicals with the exotic-sounding names may make the lawn green and weed-free, but if not used properly they can kill you.

The best way to prevent problems with home and garden pesticides is to follow the instructions on the label, said Bob Vodraska, Twin Falls County extension agent.

If the label is gone - don't use the chemical. But don't pour it out on the ground or down the drain either.

According to the Environmental Protection Agency, about 70 million pounds of pesticides were applied to the nation's lawns, including golf courses, in 1991.

These chemicals can cause serious health and environmental problems. Pesticides can enter ground water through spills or improper disposal or indirectly through leaching.

Applying the chemical at the wrong concentration, in the wrong manner or at the wrong time can debilitate trees, burn the lawn or destroy the neighbors' crops, Vodraska said.

And if humans are exposed, they can suffer a range of effects, from mild headaches to permanent disability from nerve or organ damage.

Some chemicals also cause cancer, and reproductive and developmental effects.

Many home pesticides are the same chemicals used in agriculture, but they are used in lower concentrations, which makes them less hazardous to handle, he said.

"It can still get you in trouble," Vodraska said.

If the label calls for protective clothing, then protective clothing must be worn to prevent problems, he said.

If a quart of product works well, that doesn't mean 2 or 3 quarts will work better, he said. It might, in fact, be worse, and it would be a violation of federal law.

Old or left-over pesticides should be discarded properly, Vodraska said. The best way is to use it up - according to the label. But if the label is missing or the user has questions, check with a county extension agent, a garden center or a chemical dealer, he said.

The most common pesticides used around the home include 2,4-D for dandelions, Diazinon and Sevin for insects, Malathion for insects and for aphids on roses, and Roundup against any live plant.

"Whatever you spray that on, it's going to kill it," he said.

Rupert man files suit to halt landfill

Mini-Cassia News Service

RUPERT - The landowner who has apparently allowed a house-based trash hauler to begin bulldozing Burley Butte for a private landfill is trying to halt a public landfill in court.

An attorney for Howard and Mary Conrad of Cassia County has filed a motion in 5th District Court in Rupert to dismiss a judicial confirmation petition from the Southern Idaho Regional Solid Waste District.

The Conrads own the Burley Butte site where Disposal All of Boise is building a landfill.

Dispose-All has tried to persuade a number of counties in the solid waste district to use its landfill.

The petition states that the solid waste district is not a political subdivision of the state as defined by Idaho Code and therefore cannot petition for judicial confirmation.

The latest move to force the solid waste district to hold bond-issue elections before it can borrow money is apparently separate from an earlier challenge by 10 residents of Gooding, Lincoln, Jerome, Blaine and Minidoka counties.

The solid waste district wants to borrow money to build a landfill on Milner Butte.

The district also plans to build transfer stations in Blaine, Gooding, Lincoln, Jerome, Minidoka and Cassia Counties to put trash into trucks, before taking it to the landfill.

Under Idaho Code, counties don't have to hold elections on bond issues for "ordinary and necessary" expenses.

The cost of the landfill is estimated at $7.5 million, with another $3.6 million for the transfer sites. It will cost another $3.5 million to close old landfills in the six counties, required under federal rules.

The district wants to borrow $14.6 million. The judicial confirmation hearing is scheduled to be heard 3 p.m. Monday at the 5th District Court in Rupert.

Kids dive into their courses

By Analise Taylor
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Friday afternoon, Ray Parrish introduced his wife's second-grade class to the world of scuba diving and the various forms of life that live under the ocean.

"Have you ever wanted to fly?" Joannie Parrish asked her second-grade class at Bickel Elementary School.

"Well, scuba is like flying under water," explained Ray Parrish, a scuba diving enthusiast.

After assuring the children that not many fish in the ocean are dangerous, not even sharks, Parrish showed the children a set of shark's jaws, a puffer fish and a porcupine puffer fish.

Parrish's demonstration was part of the Outcomes Driven Developmental Model (ODDM), a new teaching method that has created some controversy in Twin Falls.

"It's a way of teaching children to use higher learning skills to reach their full potential," Joannie Parrish said.

Kenna Arrington, another second-grade teacher, has also been involved with the program. In fact, she and Parrish have begun team-teaching their science class.

"We have combined cooperative learning with team-teaching," Parrish says.

This year the classes have discussed plants, weather, dinosaurs and the ocean. The two classes learn together and do projects together.

To Mrs. Parrish, cooperative learning fosters higher learning and improves social skills.

"They have to come up with the answer on their own, and then it is affirmed by the text," she said.

Arrington said the children thought only sharks lived in the ocean, and so they began watching films on aquatic life. They created an "Under the Sea" mural and added different plants and animals to it each week.

During the month-long project, the children learned about the topography of the ocean, shells and creatures in the ocean.

"Science has been the students' favorite class this year," said Mrs. Parrish.

Both teachers agreed that ODDM encourages teachers and students to work together and is a change of pace for the students.

Arrington added that ODDM teaches kids responsibility.

But Oil of Olay and the Ladies Home Journal did, and this month the Mountain Home dance instructor is featured with four other women as a winner in the magazine's "I Look Great For My Age" contest.

"I didn't really take it very seriously until I got back there and they told me they had 4000 entries," English said. "It was just kind of a fluke. I never thought I'd win."

She was so skeptical, in fact, that when a Ladies Home Journal representative called her early last January, she thought someone was pulling her leg.

"My daughter was home from college last year, and she filled out the contest form," English recalled. "She said, O.K. Mom, you be a good girl and mail this in."

of Transportation, according to Teuscher.

"We just don't know when Bellevue will get it," he said. Similarly, the Department of Commerce has indicated its commitment of $400,000, but cannot officially allocate the money until the next quarter, he said.

"I have no doubts that we will get the rest of the funding," Mayor Dennis Wright said.

All funding is expected to be in place and project bids completed so the project may begin early in the summer of 1994, Teuscher said. If for some reason the city does not receive the state funding and the project cannot be completed, the ordinance passed last week will not go into effect, Teuscher said.

In other business, the city council accepted the resignation of Alderman Hetty Morgan, who is moving to Hatley. The mayor will appoint a replacement for her council seat. In the past, it has been customary for the mayor to appoint the person who received the next highest number of votes in the last election, Wright said.

"I don't see any reason to break that path," he said.

The last election was in April, with highest Doubtful receiving the next highest votes. Doubtful had served as the city's mayor prior to Wright. A final decision will be made by the next council meeting, Wright said.

"I didn't really take it very seriously until I got back there and they told me they had 4000 entries," English said. "It was just kind of a fluke. I never thought I'd win."

She was so skeptical, in fact, that when a Ladies Home Journal representative called her early last January, she thought someone was pulling her leg.

"My daughter was home from college last year, and she filled out the contest form," English recalled. "She said, O.K. Mom, you be a good girl and mail this in."

"After I mailed it, I really forgot all about it. When the magazine called, I thought someone was playing a trick on me. But then I realized that no one else even knew about it."

When the folks from Oil of Olay and Ladies Home Journal, co-sponsors of the contest, looked at the pictures of English in her southern Idaho back yard, she more than made the grade.

"My son took one of the pictures of me sitting with our two dogs," English said with a chuckle. "He said anyone could win a wrinkle contest posing with two Shar-Peis."

English, who is single, has three children, one in a Mountain Home high school, one in college in California and a dance-teaching caregiver in New York City.

Cassia County Commission will meet

BURLEY — The Cassia County Commission's regular bi-monthly is scheduled for 9 a.m. Monday at the courthouse.
On the agenda are department head hearings and discussion of mile-post signs in the morning.

In the afternoon, county weed supervisor Gordon Edwards will talk about meetings he attended in Washington, D.C. A tax deed hearing and a meeting with City of Rocks landowners are tentatively scheduled.

Commission sets zoning meeting

BURLEY — The Cassia County commissioners will hold a public hearing on an amended zoning ordinance 8 p.m. June 7, at the Burley High School auditorium.

Commissioners recently held hearings to gain general input on their plan, which divides the county into zones for residential, agriculture, prime agricultural, multiple use, historical preservation, industrial, commercial and office-zones.

The commissioners amended the ordinance after hearing the comments. The ordinance provides for numerous and wide-ranging changes to all aspects of land use and planning in the unincorporated areas of the county, including administration, special use and livestock confinement. A copy of the proposed amended ordinance is available at the courthouse.

Burley woman reports 2 guns stolen

Two guns were recently reported stolen from a Burley residence. Deborah Weech, 1450 Oakley Ave., told Cassia County Sheriff's deputies that she was recently cleaning out a cabinet and noticed a .38 caliber revolver and a starter pistol missing.
Value is estimated at $260.

Residence reportedly burglarized

BURLEY — Several items were reported taken from a Burley household earlier this month, deputies say.
According to the Cassia County Sheriff's Department, Frieda Flowers, 1718 Albion Ave., said pool cues, hub cap, two burners, a thermos and a cabinet full of milled cars were taken.
Loss is placed at $395.

Car keeps Burley students in class

By Eric Goodell
Mini-Cassia News Service

BURLEY — A small blue 1980 Honda has increased attendance and been a major source of enthusiasm at Burley High School.

The car donated by Keith Cotton, owner of Keith's Klean Kars in Burley, was the major prize for the school's Renaissance program.
"We've had a great response this year," Assistant Principal Steve Jensen said.

Cotton, when approached by Jensen about three years ago about giving away a car, decided to arrange the prize so it could be won by any student.

Students can earn four tickets per week if they aren't tardy or absent. They can pick up extra tickets for performing "beyond the call of duty," Cotton said.

The car give-away is done during the second semester. During that time, absences always go down. This year, absenteeism has been cut in half.

At the end of the year, a ticket is drawn and the winner is named.

During a boisterous assembly Friday afternoon, Cotton gave away the car. The popularity of Cotton was evident as he received loud applause.

"I'm glad to see I'm more popular than Mr. Jensen," Cotton joked.

Sophomore Kent Yost of Burley was the lucky recipient. Yost, 15, said he has a driver's license, and was eager to drive the vehicle.

"Students love it," Cotton said of the program. It's his third year of giving away a car that has a value of at least $2,000.

Cotton said it sometimes has been a sacrifice to donate the car, but it has been worth it. The Renaissance program, which is implemented in many area schools, rewards students for good behavior and good grades.

There are 35-40 businesses participating in the Burley High program, Jensen said.

The car give-away is done during the second semester. During that time, absences always go down. This year, absenteeism has been cut in half.

Jensen attributes that to partly the car and partly to a new attendance policy.

He said there was a great demand for tickets this year. "I've had to make them three more times this year," Jensen said.

Officers: Removal of numbers poses problem

By Eric Goodell
Mini-Cassia News Service

BURLEY — Removal of social security numbers from the face of driver's licenses might prevent people from gaining private information about people, but it could also have drawbacks, law enforcement officers say.

To protect privacy and provide greater security, the 1992 Idaho Legislature voted to use a different code on driver's licenses rather than Social Security numbers.

If a license was lost, the Social Security number could be used to access bank accounts and personal information, officials say.

Lt. Jim Higgs of the Cassia County Sheriff's Department, however, sees at least one disadvantage to the new procedure.

"The old driver's licenses have helped us in identifying wanted persons," he said. Several people have been apprehended primarily during traffic stops because of the Social Security number on their driver's licenses, he said.

Theresa Ortega of the driver's license department in Cassia County said she has had several people say the new system is a good idea. Previously, some people said they were hesitant to have their Social Security number on their driver's license, she said.

"We had a lot of people who didn't want them on there," she said. Mainly for convenience reasons, some other people say they like having the Social Security number on the licenses, Ortega said.

Higgs and Ortega said they haven't heard of any area cases in which someone accessed personal information by learning someone's Social Security number.

Jane Caviness, drivers services manager for the Department of Transportation, said she hadn't heard of any such cases either but said it could happen.

"It's a concern," she said.

An alpha-numeric, computer-generated numbering system will take the place of the Social Security number on the license; so that the new number cannot be mistaken for a Social Security number and will not resemble the numbering system of other states.

The new driver's license coding system consists of two letters at the beginning, followed by six numbers and a final letter.

Because driver's licenses are renewed every four years, there will still be some cards with the Social Security number or an alternate nine-digit system until all cards have been renewed. An individual can change to the new numbering system before the renewal date by purchasing a duplicate license.

Filer considers school staff reduction

By Bertilia L. Redfern
Times-News correspondent

FILER — A staff reduction has been under consideration in the Filer School District recently.

But board members didn't take any action at their meeting this week after hearing a recommendation from Superintendent James Fisher.

Fisher reported on a committee's recommendations Tuesday evening, and said the group met on three occasions to study the issues.

The committee suggested the sixth grade remain in Hollister, with only Hollister's special education students transferring to Filer. The committee also agreed on not replacing the social studies teacher at the high school, and on the change in the administrative position to head teacher at Hollister.

But board members accepted the resignation of another high school teacher this week.

And Fisher said some juggling in schedules to cover math classes, rather than replacing another position, should probably be considered, before making the decision on reducing staff.

Fisher also said the board is obligated to offer a one-year leave of absence to any interested staff members, when considering a staff reduction.

Fisher will get a letter out to all teachers regarding interest in a leave of absence. And he will get the committee together again, to reassess recommendations, with the newest developments in staff.

In other business:

• Vicki Leach gave board members an update on the gifted and talented program in the Filer schools. Her update included presentations from two students involved in a mentor program. This program gives students an opportunity to work with people who are in professions of interest to students.

• A networked computer program for the high school, science and music equipment, locks and lawn sprinklers will be purchased.

• Roof repairs and remodeling the agriculture classroom will also take place now that the levy has been passed.

• Taxes will increase 62 cents per $1,000 assessed market value.

Man who took OSHA to court dies at age 77

POCATELLO (AP) — Ferrol G. "Bill" Barlow, a Pocatello plumbing and heating contractor who won a court challenge of warrantless inspections by a federal agency, died late Thursday at a Pocatello hospital. He was 77.

Barlow, a former Pocatello City Council member, refused to allow an Occupational Safety and Health Administration inspector onto Barlow's Inc.'s premises without a search warrant in 1975.

The resulting legal action led to a 1978 U.S. Supreme Court ruling that found OSHA's warrantless inspections unconstitutional.

Barlow was an ardent member of the John Birch Society and was known locally for his conservative convictions. One of his sons, Rusty Barlow, formerly served in the Idaho Legislature.

Lightning ignites fire at Utah refinery

NORTH SALT LAKE, Utah (AP) — Firefighters and ambulances rushed to a petroleum refinery Friday night after a bolt of lightning ignited a brief but spectacular fire.

South Davis Fire Capt. Paul Richards said a crude oil off-loading area at the Crysen Refinery was struck by lightning about 6:30 p.m., near where a tanker truck was transferring its load to a tank.

The result was a bright orange fireball that billowed into the sky, followed by clouds of black smoke visible in north Salt Lake and south Davis counties.

The driver of the truck, whose name was not immediately available, sustained some burns but did not appear seriously injured, Richards said.

About 25 firefighters were at the site within a few minutes of the lightning strike, quickly extinguishing the blaze.

Death makes history come back to life

It hadn't occurred to me that if we want to look honestly at history, we will have to face the terrible specter of death itself.

But when I stood recently on Civil War battlefields near Richmond, Fredericksburg and Petersburg in Virginia and saw the rolling fields where tens of thousands gave their lives, I was absolutely struck by the enormity of it all.

I walked in the Union cemetery at Fredericksburg where 15,000 men are buried. Simple tombstones — just a name, the date of death and the state the soldier called home. Nearly half of the graves have no identification.

Clark Morphew Faith today

More than 100,000 men died at Fredericksburg during just a few days of fighting. At the Wilderness battlefield outside Fredericksburg, the fighting was so fierce that sparks from bullets meeting in the air set the dense forest on fire and hundreds of men died as they were raced through the woods' engulfing entire regiments.

At the Fredericksburg battlefield, just west of the original town, a slaughter of Union soldiers took place that is possibly unequalled in Civil War history for sheer brutality. Confederate troops under Robert E. Lee had positioned themselves behind a thick stone wall at the top of Marye's Hill. Instead of fleeing over the top of the hill, Union infantry would have to cross in order to reach the Southern line. Nobody thought such an assault would ever be made.

But Gen. Ambrose E. Burnside, who presided over other disasters at Antietam and Petersburg, was determined to break the Confederate hold on Marye's Hill. He sent a wave after wave of soldiers running over the open field up the hill, firing as they made their way through the wall of bullets.

Nineteen brigades made assaults, and no Union soldier got closer than 50 feet from the stone wall. Finally, a Union officer commanding the First Minnesota Regiment, which was next in line to make the assault, told Burnside he would not "murder" his men. And with that, the suicidal battle of Fredericksburg came to an end.

So, I spent three days on those battlefields pondering and sometimes brooding about death. I wanted to do it. For 50 years, the Civil War has been a passionate interest of mine. It all started when I ran across the memoirs of my great-grandfather, Eli M. Hutchinson, who fought in obscure battles in Louisiana and Alabama and not only lived to tell about it, but lived to be fit!

When I finished with the Civil War, I went on to Norfolk, Va., which was destroyed in the Revolutionary War. It was Sunday, and I worshiped at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in the heart of the downtown district. If you look carefully at the east wall of this tiny but beautiful church, you can see a rusted cannonball stuck in the wall near the roof.

The touch cannonball was lodged there on Jan. 1, 1776, during the bombardment of Norfolk by British ships. The city of Norfolk was leveled, but St. Paul's church, which was built in 1739, still stood, a lasting symbol of peace.

When I stepped out of St. Paul's Church after a satisfying worship hour, I was surrounded by ancient graves, some dating to the 1600s.

One grave read: "Jane Perry, Nov. 1, 1792, Aged 29 years, Lived Much Beloved, Died Much Lamented."

Another simply stated the date of the man's death, his name and, underneath the inscription, a faint but discernible skull and crossed bones. Down the street from St. Paul's church was the memorial built for Gen. Douglas MacArthur, a huge building which is buried and much of his war memorabilia is displayed.

And then I went to the beach, on the Outer Banks of North Carolina, a beautiful strip of narrow land called the Hatteras National Seashore. When I walked up over a small dune and stepped out on the beach, I saw piles of sand strewn with the shells of sea creatures: conch, mussels, clams, all arranged in piles as if a slaughter had taken place. You may wonder if all this death and destruction raised my skepticism. To be truthful, I have never been one to shrink from this topic. In reality, we are literally surrounded by death every day. That's healthy, because a person's theology of death can inform all of life.

And by looking at history, by reviewing the deaths of others, we become aware of the intrinsic value of such things as honor, patriotism, love and mercy. Most people die well, with courage and dignity. For the majority of people, it's the living that gives us trouble.

When will Christ come again?

Many years ago, a very clever British writer chose to insert, near the end of a television show, the words, "We're in and Woo is in! The end is near! The end is near!" Viewers were always challenged to guess where those clues would be.

Today's world seems to be filled with folks who deem themselves clever enough to figure out God's clues to the end of all things. Some appeal to mathematical geniuses, calculator in hand, Bible at the ready, forgetting the timing in the Hebrew language and ignoring the words of Christ himself. "You know neither the day nor the hour wherein the son of man cometh" (Matthew 25:13, King James version), these folks steadfastly insist they know the exact time of the end of all things.

Clergy Corner Baldwin Camin

St. Paul, the apostle, needed to speak rather harshly to a group of believers who had put on white gowns and gone to await Christ's return on a mountain top. He insisted they get back down to earth and get on with the business of being active believers in the world.

Although the words of Paul, by inspiration of God, are "eschatological," filled with the urgency of all things, Paul seeks to encourage believers to share the love and works of Jesus with the world rather than scare the world into mending its destructive ways. He even calls the gospel the power of God into salvation. Some wordsmith once said that "God never means to scare the hell out of people but rather to love them out of it." (Much is to be said for that observation.) In the Gospel of John, we learn that "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son" (John 3:16).

The end is certainly near! There is no question. The daily death of thousands by "natural causes" speaks to us of termination. Doctors have been known to say that "Grandma simply got old and wore out." It would seem to be valid that this can be said for other things as well, like cars, dishwashers, snowblows and sprinklers. It certainly can be applied to the rest of the world.

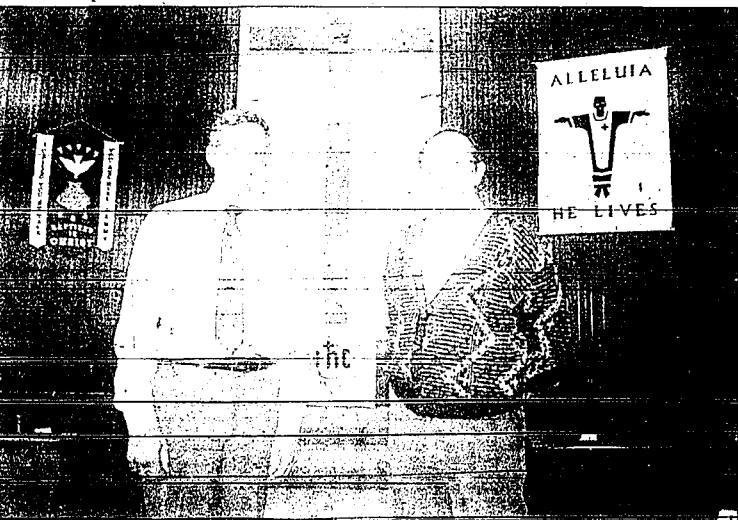

Sooner or later, the end of all things will come. God in his grace is delaying the end for some very good reasons. He gives us signs in the sun, the moon and the stars. He directs our attention to wars and rumors of wars. He cautions us through the appearance of false prophets — so that we might be encouraged in our zeal to share the saving gospel of Jesus Christ.

We so often hope for and pray for miracle drugs to cure the world of its ills. But we also note that having "conquered" one disease, another appears in full vigor and destruction. We go on to be challenged again and again only to find that we did not gain ultimate victory.

It is only through the grace of God, demonstrated in Jesus Christ's life and death for us, that victory is ours. Hear the words of the triumph, "O death, where is thy sting?" O grave, where is thy victory? ... But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ" (1 Corinthians 15:55, 57, King James version).

The problem of knowing the exact time of the end is an exercise in frustration. Seeking to be more clever than the very son of God diverts energy from the real purpose of life among us. It is a "missing of the mark." It seems

Our Savior Lutheran Church Pastor Dan Reike, left, and Valley Christian Church Pastor Ed Pangburn stand before different congregations, each week in the same church.

Working together

2 Magic Valley churches give new meaning to the word 'share'

By Denise Turner Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Sharing is a principle taught in most churches, but two churches in town practice what they preach in a somewhat unusual way.

Valley Christian and Our Savior Lutheran churches share a building.

The 21,000 square-foot facility sits on a newly landscaped corner of Heyburn Avenue East. A split sign welcomes visitors.

"I think the main reason for the shared facility was economic in the beginning," said Pastor Dan Reike, who has been the minister of Our Savior Lutheran Church for nearly two years. "The arrangement went into effect 18 years ago."

Pastor Ed Pangburn, of Valley Christian Church, has been serving his congregation for four years.

Sacramentally, the two churches have differences: the Lutherans use real wine for the Lord's Supper; the Christian church ministers candidates for baptism. And the two congregations meet and conduct business independently. But, when the churches need to work together, they generally manage to do so without incident.

"Pastor Ed and I get along very well, and there is a good sense of cooperation among the people," Reike said. "There have been minor frictions, but they have been truly minor."

Mostly, the churches work together through a co-op committee, made up of

'Pastor Ed and I get along very well, and there is a good sense of cooperation among the people. There have been minor frictions, but they have been truly minor.'

— Pastor Dan Reike of Our Savior Lutheran Church

representatives from both congregations. This committee is responsible for handling the nuts and bolts operation of the plant facility. Costs are shared 50/50, women from both churches decorate the sanctuary together and a year's worth of events are carefully mapped out on the churches' calendar.

Occasionally, even the best laid plans develop hitches.

"We were having our Mother Daughter Banquet in the fellowship hall at the same time a group from Valley Christian had planned to set up the tones for one of their functions," Reike said. Somehow, the two groups were able to cooperate enough to please everyone.

It's like that on Sunday morning, too. One congregation moves in while the other moves out — the Lutheran church meets for 8 a.m. and 11 a.m. worship services in the sanctuary. Then, when the Christian church gathers for worship at 9:30, the Lutherans occupy the Sunday School classrooms. The Christian congregation has Sunday School at 10:45.

Each year, one church has the option of switching worship times, and the other has to comply.

If this is beginning to sound confusing, multiply that by 430 Lutherans and 250 Christian church members.

"Actually, we are currently going through a detailed study and long range planning process," Reike said. Due to recent growth surges, the churches could end up in separate facilities after all.

Meanwhile, the two pastors share an office manager and avoid all forms of competition.

"Our people don't cross over from one church to the other," Reike said. "They are loyal to their own congregations."

Valley Christian legally owns the portion of the church that contains the fellowship hall. About 128 feet of the church lot belongs to Our Savior Lutheran. An imaginary dividing line runs down the middle of the church narrow.

It's a unique arrangement — and one that has worked for almost two decades.

"I know of one other church in Caldwell that shares a facility," Reike said, "but it's definitely not that common."

Valley Baptist Church set to begin operations at ex-Christian Center

By H. R. Weikel Times-News correspondent

HAGERMAN — "God did it" is the slogan going around the Hagerman Valley as the former Christian Center building opens its doors for worship and fellowship.

The Valley Baptist Church has purchased the building and will hold its first Sunday School classes and worship service Sunday. Pastor Richard Rhodes from the Gooding Southern Baptist Church will speak.

"Some real concerned valley citizens just got together when we heard it was for sale because we couldn't see the building being used for anything but a church," said Gene Milden, who helped organize the new church. "God blessed us just a few people got up and purchased the building. The price was $150,000, but, when we offered $100,000 cash, they accepted our offer and even gave the pews which weren't in the original proposal.

Milden said he hopes the church will be a center for Christian youth activities in Hagerman. The building has a large gymnasium and seating for about 150 people.

People are coming from a large Southern Baptist Church in Kentucky to help with landscaping and refurbishing. They will also help with the Vacation Bible School.

The opening service will be held at 11 a.m. Sunday. A new paint job and brighted cross-stair parol of the work already done.

Dr. James Hightson, director of Southern Baptist missions in Boise, will serve as interim pastor. A pulpit committee will be organized to search for a permanent pastor and youth leader.

Brandie Burton of Rialto, Calif., lines up her putt on the 18th green at the LPGA Lady Keystone Open Friday in Hershey, Pa. She sunk the 8-footer to preserve her lead in the tournament.

Burton preserves lead with gutsy rough shot

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Brandie Burton had four birdies, but it was a par-saving gamble on the final hole that preserved her lead Friday in the opening round of the LPGA's $400,000 Lady Keystone Open. Burton carded a 68, and led upstart Jen Meyers, Tina Barrett and Julie Larsen by one stroke after her 4-under-par performance at the 6,348-yard West Course at the Hershey Country Club. Burton's problem came on the 401-yard 18th, when she cut her tee shot into the trees and tried to hit out with a 3-iron. The ball hit a branch and landed in the right rough. "I had to make a difficult decision," Burton said. "I could go to the middle of the green or I could take a chance and go over the trap." "I've always been an aggressive player. I decided to go for it."

With 154 yards to the hole, Burton hit a 7-iron and cleared the trap by a couple of feet. She drained an 8-foot putt to save par and her lead. Meyers had four birdies and a bogey, 70, her first LPGA tournament. She plays in the Futures Tour and received a sponsor's exemption to play in this tournament. Larsen, who sank a 45-foot putt for an eagle on the 451-yard 16th, hasn't won the tournament in her two years on the tour. Barrett's only tour victory came in 1989. She had three birdies in four holes after 12 straight pars. Betty King and Val Simmet were two strokes behind Burton. King needs two wins to qualify for the Hall of Fame. Career money leader Pat Bradley and Beth Daniel were among six players at 1-under.

Waite grabs Kemper lead; Kite moves in POTOMAC, Md. (AP) — Grant Waite shot a 4-under-par 67 at the Kemper Open to put himself in an unprecedented position Friday on top of the leaderboard after the second round of a PGA tournament. Waite's 9-under 133 total at the halfway point gave him a two-shot lead over Tom Kite, who had six birdies en route to a 65. Kite, making the cut for the first time in four tournaments since a back injury in March, twice saved par with some brilliant putts.

Waite took a one-shot lead into Friday's play, then moved 7-under with birdies on Nos. 2 and 8. He took a bogey on the par-3 9th hole after overshooting the green off the tee, but rebounded with birdies on two of the next three holes. He finished with five pars around a birdie on No. 16.

"It was a pleasing day on the greens," Kite said. "I haven't been able to work as hard as I would have liked. ... I had no idea what to expect." Kite took five weeks off with two herniated disks before returning last week for the Byron Nelson Classic, where he finished only two rounds. Kite is the only player among the top seven on the leaderboard who has won a PGA event.

Thompson skims ball through trap in seniors event

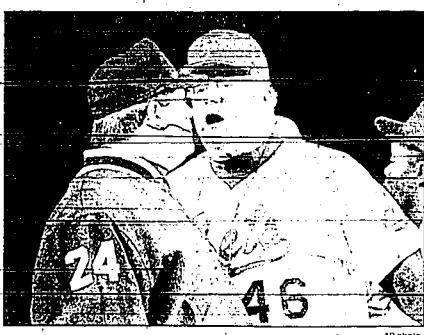

MALVERN, Pa. (AP) — Despite six birdies by Rocky Thompson in his opening-round 65 Friday at the Bell Atlantic Classic seniors tournament, it was a par that most thrilled him. Thompson, two strokes ahead of Bolt Charles and three ahead of defending champion Lee Trevino and Jim Cullum, finished his second shot on the 488-yard par-5 14th into the rough, under trees. His only hope: punch the ball into a trap and hope it skipped through the bunker onto the green. It worked. Two hops through the sand, and it trickled into the green. Two putts later, he had his par. He birdied the next two holes. "That ball was screaming into that bunker," Thompson, 53, said with a chuckle after his 5-under-par round at the Chester Valley Golf Club. "If it goes too high, it flies over the green and out into the street," said Thompson, winner of two Senior PGA Tour events in four years. He was wireless on the PGA Tour. "I was more thrilled with that par than any of the birdies," he said. "It was a gutsy shot."

Mets manager jumps into job

NEW YORK (AP) — New manager, Old result. The Dallas Green era started Friday night with a loss, as the Atlanta Braves beat the Mets 4-2. New York's 19th loss in 24 games.

National League

Green was hired as the Mets' 45th manager Wednesday night after Jeff Torborg was fired with the team last at 13-25. "I haven't been fired yet," Green joked after the game. It didn't help the Mets that 1992 Cy Young Award winner Greg Maddux (4-3) was sharp, pitching a six-hitter. He retired 18 consecutive batters until the ninth, when free Orsula singled with one out and eventually scored on Bobby Bonilla's sacrifice fly. Maddux struck out five and walked none in his first complete game with Atlanta. Green's Mets came out aggressive in the first inning, scoring on Eddie Murray's RBI grounder. But the Braves came back with two runs in the third against Eric Hillman (0-2) with the help of movie sloopy ball. Mark Lemke singled and Maddux walked before Hillman's throw to third. Chris Nixson's sacrifice was too late to force the runner at third, leading the bases with no outs. Howard Johnson thought Lemke was out and was glee when he bunted third-base umpire Jerry Layne, causing the quick-tempered Green to get into his first argument as manager of the Mets.

New York Mets manager Dallas Green argues with third base umpire Jerry Layne after Atlanta baserunner Mark Lemke was called safe at third. Third baseman Howard Johnson was ejected after he bumped Layne while arguing the call.

Felix nearly cost Florida the game by dropping a flyball to the top of the cleft, then batted a 5-3 to the right, two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth. Benito Santiago smiled against Paul Asencio (1-1) with two outs, and Felix followed with his sixth home run. Erick Mattman (2-1) pitched one inning, and Benji Harvey pitched a scoreless ninth for his 13th save in 14 chances.

Hill (5-0) gave up both runs, walked six and struck out three, working out of a bases-loaded jam in the fifth by getting John Kruk to hit into a double play. Roberto Mel Rojas pitched two hit relief in his sixth save. Danny Jackson (2-2) allowed four runs and seven hits in 6 2/3 innings, struck out five and walked two. Cardinals 10, Pirates 8. PITTSBURGH (AP) — St. Louis blew a 7-2 lead as Lee Smith allowed home runs to Orlando Hernandez and Lloyd McPherson, then won on pinch-hitter Gerald Perry's two-run single in the 11th.

Marlins 5, Cubs 3

MIAMI (AP) — Reel holder Junon

Expos 6, Phillies 2. PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ken Hill won for the first time in four starts, allowing two hits and 6 1/3 innings.

Henderson rallies A's past White Sox, 12-11

CHICAGO (AP) — Rickey Henderson hit a three-run homer in the eighth inning, then hit a two-run triple and scored in the ninth Friday night, rallying the Oakland Athletics over the Chicago White Sox 12-11. The A's trailed 10-4 in the eighth, but Henderson's fourth homer highlighted a five-run burst.

American League

Blue Jays 11, Twins 2

TORONTO (AP) — Jack Morris, making his first start since returning from the disabled list, pitched seven strong innings and the Toronto Blue Jays hit four home runs in beating Minnesota's Dwight Gooden, but a three-run homer from free batter pinch-runner Willie Stankovic, and Darin Jackson followed with a home run, leaving the Blue Jays a 2-1 lead in the sixth. Roberto Alomar and Pat Borders also homered for Toronto, and Paul Mulino drove in three runs. Morris (2-4), who had been out with tendinitis in his shoulder, allowed two runs on five hits. He struck out five and walked none. Jim Dwyer (1-3) was the loser.

Reimer's first career grand slam highlighted a sixth-inning rally that carried the Milwaukee Brewers past Baltimore. Jaime Navarro (2-3) won his second straight start as the Brewers ended a three-game losing streak. He improved his career mark against Baltimore to 8-1. John Baha added a solo homer and Bill Spiers and Eric Vanlanen each drove in two runs. Chris Hoyle and Brady Anderson homered for Baltimore, which has dropped seven of 11.

Each bullpen allowed six runs in the final six innings. ... as the Cardinals loaded the bases in the 11th against Paul Wagner (1-1) ahead of Perry's two-out single.

Oakland trailed 11-9 in the ninth when Dave Sosa came down a line out walk from Roberto Hernandez (0-1) and Mike Boddick singled. With the runners gone, Henderson tied it with a triple, and he scored on Brent Gates' sacrifice fly. Kelly Downs (2-2) was the winner and Dennis Eckersley pitched the ninth for his seventh save.

Indians 10, Tigers 5

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jeff Treadway hit a three-run double and Albert Belle and Cecil Fielder matched majestic home runs as the Cleveland Indians beat Detroit. The Indians ended Detroit's three-game winning streak and improved to 11-7 on the road. Fielder reached the upper deck in left on the top of the fourth with his seventh home run, estimated at 430 feet, but Belle duplicated the feat in the bottom of the ninth when his major league-leading 14th home run landed within a few feet of Fielder's blast. Belle equaled a career high with four of Cleveland's 18 hits.

Brewers 9, Orioles 3

BALTIMORE (AP) — Kevin

Mike Bielecki (4-3) was the winner and Cliff Young pitched a 2-1 inning for his first career save. The Indians scored four in the first against Bill Gault (3-0) (1), pinning for the first time since he hit on the right knee by Harold Reynolds' one-hopper Sunday.

Robin Ventura homered twice and drove in four runs for the White Sox. Dave Henderson and Terry Steinbach hit home runs for Oakland.

Red Sox 7, Yankees 2

BOSTON (AP) — Wade Boggs went 4 for 4, but the Boston Red Sox spoiled his return to Fenway Park by defeating New York. Boggs, the hitting star of the Red Sox for 11 seasons before moving to the Yankees, this winter as a free agent, received a mixed reception from the fans. Half gave him a standing ovation and half booed. John Doherty (3-2) inflated the Yankees to one run on eight hits in seven innings. Mo Vaughn hit a two-run homer off Melillo Perez (2-3).

Royals 2, Mariners 1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Phil Hottel hit a two-run homer in the seventh, ending Randy Johnson's scoreless streak at 20 innings, and rallying the Kansas City Royals over Seattle. Hovey Pulliam pitched an error by third baseman Mike Blowers to start the seventh and Hottel hit the first pitch for his fourth home run. Blowers lost in his first start since losing a no-hitter in the ninth at Oakland on Sunday.

Phillies 2, Pirates 8

PITTSBURGH (AP) — St. Louis blew a 7-2 lead as Lee Smith allowed home runs to Orlando Hernandez and Lloyd McPherson, then won on pinch-hitter Gerald Perry's two-run single in the 11th.

Marlins 5, Cubs 3
