Babbitt seeks hike in range fees

Environmentalists term proposal 'a small step,' ranchers say they saw it coming

By N.S. Nektentved
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Though unfamiliar with specific details, local ranchers were not surprised by a proposed federal grazing fee increase announced Monday that would more than double current fees.

"We've known it's been coming for a long time," Jerome rancher Jim Meeks said.

The Interior and Agriculture departments Monday announced a proposal to increase grazing fees on 270 million acres of public lands managed by the Bureau of Land Management and the Forest Service.

The increase to $4.28 from the current $1.86 rate per cow per month would be phased in over three years, beginning in 1994.

The proposal delivers on President Clinton's promise that taxpayers will be treated fairly when it comes to the use of their natural resources.

Utah reaction — B3

Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt at a Monday news conference. Environmentalists were encouraged by the proposal.

"It's a step in the right direction," said Linn Kinnearson of the Idaho Conservation League. "But it's a small step."

Sen. Larry Craig blasted the proposal as "another assault on the livelihood of the West."

"People should pay for the use of federal land," Craig said. "But beyond a certain level, you're going to start putting people out of business."

The administration will enact the fee hike through a change in Interior and Agricultural Department regulations, though Congress could supersede the action with legislation.

Secretary of the Interior Bruce Babbitt said Monday the grazing fee hike treats the taxpayer 'fairly' in the use of natural resources.

Public skeptical as Clinton travels U.S. to sell new economic plan, poll shows

The Washington Post

CHARLESTON, W. Va. — Having persuaded a reluctant Congress to pass his economic package by the slimmest of margins, President Clinton left Washington Monday to try to convince the American people his plan will help, not hurt, them.

But he public is skeptical of the package, expressing doubts that it will help the economy or curb budget deficits, according to a Washington Post-ABC News poll taken following passage of the plan by Congress Friday night.

While Clinton has made progress in convincing a majority of Americans his plan means the tax burden, two out of three express agreement with the Republicans' contention that the package is too heavy on taxes and does not cut government spending enough.

Overall, 48 percent of those sampled from Friday through Sunday night said they disapprove of Congress' version of the Clinton economic plan, while 43 percent approve. Eight days earlier, as the final, intensive partisan debate was beginning, the public divided evenly, with 48 percent approving and disapproving of the proposal.

The same doubts surfaced when people were asked to gauge the impact on the economy and future deficits of the complex budget reconciliation bill. They divided almost evenly on whether the plan would help or hurt. But those who doubted the plan would help were much more intense in their feelings. For every person who thought the plan would help greatly there were three who said it would do a great deal of harm.

Clinton defended the package as "a first, but major step to regain control of our economic destiny" during a boisterous rally on the steps of the state capitol here.

Clinton's passionate defense marked the next phase of the administration's public relations offensive, which aides said was necessary to counter what the president claimed was a "withering fog of misinformation" about the plan during the debate in Congress.

The president appealed for an end to the bitter partisanship that marked the budget debate.

"We cannot have every great issue of the day decided on the basis of partisanship," he said. "I've decided to do a week-long tour of New Hampshire for a primary still four years away," he said, a reference to the unusual amount of presidential politicking underway among Republicans.

Andrus OKs waste shipments

The Times-News and The Associated Press

BOISE — An agreement between the Navy and Gov. Cecil Andrus will allow nuclear waste shipments into Idaho to continue in spite of a federal court injunction.

But the shipments will come at a reduced rate.

Andrus Monday agreed to accept 19 additional shipments of spent reactor fuel from the Navy over the next 23 months in exchange for firm government commitments to address the state's environmental concerns at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

More than a week of heated negotiations produced a deal that was significantly less than the nuclear Navy had demanded and more than the Andrus administration wanted to give up.

But the governor said it preserved the integrity of the June 28 federal court order banning additional waste shipments to Idaho until a comprehensive environmental study is completed of waste management operations at INEL.

"As Idaho has said all along, we will continue to support the federal government's legitimate research and development projects and its genuine national security concerns," Andrus said. "We didn't give very much."

The Navy agreed to drop its campaign for a congressional exemption from the ban — a campaign site officials were concerned about losing. The federal government also agreed not to appeal the order issued on June 28 by U.S. District Judge Harold Ryan — an appeal the state was confident of winning.

"I think we got the best deal we can get," Andrus said.

Ryan's approval of limited resumption of waste shipments was likely, but officials also expected the judge, who harshly criticized federal conduct during the lawsuit, to quickly reimpose the total ban if any deadline in the environmental timetable is not met.

But the Snake River Alliance — statewide critics of the Energy Department — criticized the agreement.

"The nuclear navy has never planned to do anything with its radioactive waste but please see INEL/A2

Josh Peterson visiting grandparents

BUHL — Josh Peterson's mother didn't expect her 11-year-old to experience one of this century's strongest earthquakes when he visited Guam with his grandparents.

"You worry about the plane crashing," Lindy Abshire said.

Josh flew to Guam on July 31 to be with grandparents, Ron and Judy Peterson, who work for the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Sunday, a quake registering over 8.1 on the Richter scale shook the U.S. territory.

Cars tumbled from bridges and buildings, but no deaths or serious injuries were reported, said Joe Terlaje, director of Guam's Civil Defense, according to the Associated Press.

"I was relieved that everyone was safe," Abshire said.

The vacation promised to be exciting even before the quake — it was Josh's first trip on an airplane and his first overseas.

"His grandpa and grandma thought it would be a nice adventure," said his dad, Ron Peterson. "He's enjoying it and having a good time."

The earthquake has already caused over $100 million in damage to homes and hotels, according to the Associated Press. The tallest hotel stands 11 stories high.

Five hotels sustained major damage and will probably have to be taken down, and several bridges were declared unsafe.

Everybody was worried, but his son was having a good time, Ron Peterson said.

"He's safe," he said.

Abshire was glad that no one was killed by the earthquake. Peterson is scheduled to come home Aug. 21. He'll be a sixth grader at Buhl Middle School in the fall. Guam is still recovering from last summer's Typhoon Omar, which caused $250 million in damage.

Weather summary

An upper level low pressure system moving northeast from southern California spread clouds into the southern sections of Idaho Monday, but the rest of the state was under sunny skies.

The warmest temperature in the state Monday was 95 degrees at Caldwell. Stanley reported the coldest at 33 degrees.

Elsewhere in the nation Monday, the highest temperature was degrees at 111 degrees at Lake Havasu City, Ariz., and Truckee, Calif., and West Yellowstone, Mont. reported the lowest temperature at 32 degrees.

Storms spread across South, East; Minnesota hit hard

The Associated Press

Rain and storms were scattered across the South, the Midwest and the East Coast on Monday, with locally severe weather over northern Minnesota.

At midday, showers and thundershowers extended from eastern Texas over the central and eastern Gulf of Mexico coast over the mid-Mississippi Valley, the upper Great Lakes, and the southern Atlantic Coast states; and over New England and the northern half of the Atlantic Coast.

Early in the day, in north-central Minnesota, high wind blared a mobile home, killing two occupants, at the town of Littlefork, just south of International Falls, the Koochichewi County sheriff's office said.

A tornado knocked down power lines and trees and damaged a farmhouse near Gully, in northwestern Minnesota, the Polk County sheriff's office reported. More than 5 inches of rain caused street flooding at Hallock and Karland in Minnesota's northwest corner, the Kittson County sheriff's office said.

Clinton approved CIA operation to back Shevardnadze

Nevada

WASHINGTON - President Clinton secretly approved a CIA operation in the republic of Georgia where a U.S. diplomat was killed Sunday, the clandestine U.S. program was designed to support an embattled Eduard Shevardnadze's civil war struggle in the former Soviet state, according to administration sources.

The operation, including the deployment in Georgia of U.S.-Army Special Forces as security advisers, this spring, was confirmed in the aftermath of the assassination of an American described as a U.S. Embassy officer from Moscow detached to Shevardnadze June 3. Killed by a single shot was Fred Woodruff, 45, of The Huton, Va., who had been scheduled to return home in a few days, U.S. officials said.

NATO OKs bombing plan

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) - NATO approved plans Monday for bombing Bosnian Serbs unless they lift the siege of Sarajevo. But the allies agreed the first strike must be authorized by the U.N. Secretary-General.

The agreement, which was prompted by a U.S. call for action, moves the alliance a step closer to taking the first offensive action in its 47-year history.

The plan could be ready to strike within 48 hours.

"Now it is up to the Serbs whether the air attacks will take place," said Stephen O'Connell, the U.S. assistant secretary of state for European and Canadian affairs, who attended Monday's emergency meeting.

He said "final operational details of air strikes could be ready within 24 to 48 hours."

The plan was approved at a meeting of the 16 North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations, the alliance said in a statement that it approved plans to knock out Bosnian Serb military positions across Bosnia-Herzegovina, especially around embattled Sarajevo. The plan calls for the sorts of targets that have been bombed, but did not name specific targets.

Other details were not made public. Officials said the final details would likely be discussed in the next few days.

The allies asked their military strategists to "prepare on an urgent basis" with identifying possible bombing targets with U.N. commanders in Bosnia.

Japanese Cabinet promises stability

TOKYO (AP) - After unseating a party that governed nearly four decades, Japan's new coalition promised continuity, not change, as it installed its Cabinet on Monday.

New ministers, meanwhile, opposed trade and tax concessions sought by the Liberal Democrats.

Prime Minister Morihiro Hosokawa named an unprecedented three women to his 20-member Cabinet, chose a non-politician as justice minister, and created the new post of minister of political economy.

But all important posts in Hosokawa's new administration went to former members of the Liberal Democratic Party, which lost power in elections last month because of rampant scandals.

And just as the Liberal Democrats had divided up Cabinet jobs among the party's factions, so did Hosokawa seek to satisfy all seven coalition partners by giving each party leadership portfolios, according to the party's strength.

"I take pride in having built what I think is an excellent Cabinet," Hosokawa said after Emperor Akihito swore in the ministers at the Imperial Palace Monday.

INEL

Naval Reactors Facility after it has been removed from the naval reactor program.

The rest of the shipments come from buses scheduled to be closed or shipyards with no additional on-site storage.

Any additional shipments would require a declaration of national security by Defense Secretary Les Aspin approved by Ryan but subject to state consent.

In return, the government promised to complete the environmental study by June 1, 1995. "We will attempt the best a firm deadline."

It also agreed to speed up moving waste now stored in an aging INEL facility of questionable safety to a more modern one and to accelerate the solidification of 10 million gallons of highly radioactive liquid waste now stored at INEL.

But the signatures were barely dry on Monday's agreement when Navy Secretary John Dalton announced that Aspin would seek Ryan's approval to alter the agreement to include two dozen or more containers now stored on a barge off the Virginia coast. The Navy claims that area must be cleared for the refueling of the USS Nimitz.

This type of statement is the very reason I think the federal judge has to be involved in making these decisions and that they not come from inside the Beltway," Andrus said late Monday.

Grazing

Babbitt produced charts showing that fees for grazing on private lands range from $5.53 a month in Arizona to a high of $14.83 in Nebraska. The average is about $10 a month, compared to the less than $2 federal fee.

But the proposed fee increase ignores the difference between private and public grazing land, Meeks said. It costs ranchers more to graze on public land than on private land.

Typically, leased private grazing land includes fences, water and supervision, he said. And forage on irrigated pasture tends to be better, with more protein than range grasses, especially in late summer.

But the biggest expenses for ranchers are in fence and water-system maintenance and in moving cows from pasture to pasture and gathering them in at the end of the season, he said.

He wouldn't mind the fee increase if the BLM would take over water and fence maintenance and herding, he said.

In addition to higher fees, the proposal includes some policy changes. The agency has proposed it would retain the title to all future permanent range developments on public lands. But that would not include existing developments.

The proposed changes would not affect the $42,000 pipelining the Star Line Cattle Association recently installed on its BLM grazing allotment.

"We're not done paying for it yet," Meeks said.

The proposed changes include guidelines for minimum conditions to ensure ecological health of grazing lands.

The Forest Service already has such guidelines, but they are not always enforced, Kincaid said.

"We want a commitment, not more promises," he said.

Babbitt said grazing permits will take into account how a rancher has managed the land. Permits can range from a few years to up to 10 years, he said.

Proposed new advisory boards would include a variety of interests from ranchers to wildlife managers to environmentalists.

Babbitt called the higher fees and new controls a reasonable compromise between protecting the land and assuring that ranchers remain on the land, according to the Associated Press.

Ranching is "a difficult enterprise that rarely leads to huge profits," but this preserving an important part of the western economy and western culture," he said.

But the Idaho Cattle Association disagrees.

The proposal would put two of the Idaho ranchers out of business, and devastate the environment in the process," ICA director Bob Sears said.

The association would support a 20 to 25 percent increase in fees proposed in legislation introduced in the Senate Friday, he said.

Kirk Bloodsworth, right, shown with his father, Curtis, is savoring freedom after spending nine years in prison for a crime DNA testing later showed he did not commit.

Ex-con savors new freedom after arrest

CAMBRIDGE, Md. (AP) — Bloodsworth, 32, said freedom is "a million times better than I ever perceived it to be." "I used to dream about this, being free. And it's not even close to my dreams. It's so much better," he said. He still has nightmares about prison and said he hyperventilated in a movie theater because he felt closed in. He keeps the windows and doors open at his father's home, where he now lives. He works with his father's wholesale seafood distribution business. Since his father spent about $100,000 over the years for his defense, money is a little tight. "We're not starving to death, but I want to help him get that back on track," Bloodsworth said. He harbors no grudges against old acquaintances who never sent so much as a card while he was incarcerated but who are welcoming him home now.

Alleged madam enters innocent plea

LOS ANGELES (AP) — As strobe lights flashed and thousands watched the live television broadcast, reputed madam Heidi Fleiss pleaded innocent Monday to running a high-priced prostitution ring catering to Hollywood's elite. Fleiss, wearing a thigh-high, taupe-colored dress and spiked heels, navigated her way through a gauntlet of reporters and photographers that had dogged her every move from her Beverly Hills home to a downtown courtroom. "It's shocking," defense lawyer Anthony Brooklier said of the mob of journalists. "There must be 200 reporters and 200 photographers out there."

though police refuse to disclose the names in her address book and she isn't talking. Authorities have also refused to unlock the client list of Fleiss' former lover, director Ivan Nagy, who was arrested last week for investigation of running his own call girl ring. "They're individuals of substance from all walks of life, including the film business," Capt. Glenn Acker, a spokesman for the Los Angeles Police Department's vice unit, said of the names. Municipal Court Judge Abraham Kahn ordered a Sept. 10 hearing. Fleiss was asked if she would waive her right to a speedy trial and answered in a soft voice: "Yes."

The judge refused a prosecutor's request to raise her $100,000 bail to $135,000. "My client is a virtual prisoner in her house since the publicity started in this matter. I have no doubt she'll make all court appearances," Brooklier said. Seated behind Fleiss in the courtroom were Victoria Sellers, daughter of the late actor Peter Sellers, and a woman named Bonita Money. Both said they were friends who came to lend support to Fleiss. Money made news earlier this year when she was involved in a night club scuffle with Shannen Doherty, the "Beverly Hills 90210" television show.

Reputed madam Heidi Fleiss pleaded not guilty to five charges Monday.

Kawakaze and Shigure. The first three were carrying some 950 soldiers and supplies.

The Japanese continued to send the "Tokyo Express" to Kolombangara with reinforcements even after Munda on New Georgia fell. The heavy damage suffered by three American cruisers on the July 13 left the U.S. Navy without heavy ships to intercept the enemy convoys.

So reliance was placed on Cdr. Frederick Moosbrugger, who had the three destroyers of his Destroyer Division 12: Dunlap, Craven and Maury. All were over 1,500 tons and built in the late 1930s. Dunlap, Moosbrugger's flagship, carried five 5-inch guns and a dozen 21-inch torpedo tubes while the other two ships had four more torpedo tubes and one less 5-inch gun. Moosbrugger also had under his command the three destroyers of Destroyer Division 15: Lang, Sterrett and Stack, all of the same class as Craven and Maury.

Organized as Task Group 31.2, the six destroyers sortied from Purvis Bay at midday on Aug. 6. They had daylight air cover from Russell Island. Instead of moving up the Slot into Kula Gulf, the group sailed west of New Georgia and entered Vella Gulf from the Solomon Sea between Kolombangara and Vella Lavella.

Moosbrugger divided his group into two columns about 2 miles apart. Destroyer Division 12 was slightly ahead of Destroyer Division 15, the latter under Cdr. R.W. Simpson in Lang.

Moosbrugger had trained Destroyer Division 12 in night-to-torpedo attacks guided by radar. If enemy warships were encountered, Destroyer Division 12 would make the initial attack. If only barges were encountered, Simpson's Destroyer Division 15 would sink them with gunfire while Destroyer Division 12 remained on the alert.

Just before midnight, Dunlap's radar spotted four Japanese destroyers at 10 miles — Hagikaze, Arashi, But there were none. The enemy was taken completely by surprise. The American "fish" sliced into the Japanese column. Hagikaze and Arashi each took a hit. Kawakaze took two. All six American destroyers opened fire on the flaming enemy column. Destroyer Division 15 added a few more torpedoes to the onslaught.

The three stricken Japanese destroyers were hit again and again until one by one they exploded and sank. Shigure fired a few torpedoes and shells before running away. No hits were scored on any U.S. ships. Fifteen hundred Japanese soldiers and sailors were lost, many refusing rescue from the water by the American ships. Japan concluded that the Tokyo Express was too expensive and canceled all future runs.

Just before midnight, Dunlap's radar spotted four Japanese destroyers at 10 miles — Hagikaze, Arashi,

Wounded girl travels to Britain

LONDON (AP) — Irma Hadzimiratovic, the badly wounded 5-year-old Bosnian girl whose evacuation was delayed by red tape, flew from Sarajevo to London Monday for treatment that could save her life.

A team of surgeons was standing by at London's Great Ormond Street Hospital for Sick Children as Irma arrived from the Bosnian capital. She was evacuated with the help of the British government.

The little girl, severely wounded in the abdomen and spine during a July 30 mortar attack on the Bosnian capital, had come to symbolize the plight of Sarajevo's victims and the U.N. red tape that keeps many of them in the city.

Her evacuation was made possible by the tremendous media attention that her Sarajevo doctor, Edo Jaganjac, focused on her case.

Irma's condition had deteriorated while doctors and U.N. officials negotiated for almost a week on her evacuation from a hospital in Sarajevo, where treatment is hampered by fuel and supply shortages.

Jaganjac blamed the United Nations for delaying her removal, and personally contacted reporters after he said he came to a dead end with the world agency.

Kr. Kemal Custovic, a neurosurgeon, said two of Irma's vertebrae were shattered by shrapnel and she had developed meningitis.

Irma Hadzimiratovic, 5, was moved Monday from a Sarajevo hospital to receive medical treatment in Britain.

Serbs fall back from post

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Bosnian Serbs withdrew from a contested mountain outside Sarajevo on Monday, but U.N. peacekeepers encountered problems taking over a more strategic peak from the Serbs.

The Serb withdrawal came as NATO officials met in Brussels, Belgium, edged closer to possible air strikes against Serb positions in an effort to prevent the fall of the Bosnian capital.

Stalled peace talks among the Serbs, Croats and Muslims were scheduled to resume in Geneva, probably Tuesday, after Bosnian President Alija Izetbegovic returned on Monday. Izetbegovic had made his return to the stalled talks contingent on Serb withdrawal from Mount Igman and Bjelasnica.

U.N. spokesman John Mills said in Geneva that the Serbs had withdrawn from Mount Bjelasnica before noon and had taken down the Serb flag.

But Cmdr. Barry Frewer, spokesman for U.N. forces in Sarajevo, said there was no evidence to indicate Serbs withdrawing from Igman.

Mount Igman is considered the more strategic plateau because it was the 1981 clandestine weapons supply route for Bosnian government forces. Frewer said a Serb withdrawal from there would take several days.

Mills said 150 French peacekeepers and engineers "encountered obstacles" — such as mines and unspiced people blocking the way — as they moved to positions on Igman to monitor the Serbs' withdrawal.

U.N. cuts back on relief work after Americans die in ambush

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — U.N. relief agencies' movements in Mogadishu on Monday, a day after four American soldiers died in an ambush, U.N. officials blamed on a fugitive warlord.

The military dismissed a statement by supporters of Mohamed Farrah Aidid disclaiming responsibility for the attack Sunday in south Mogadishu. Aidid is blamed for the deaths of a number of peacekeepers in Somalia.

The United Nations' insistence that Aidid's followers were to blame indicated the 77-nation coalition may be gearing up for retaliatory actions against his militia.

"This was clearly done by organized militia: Asstid's front bandits, the only people shooting at us are Aidid's people," said U.N. military spokesman Maj. Don Stockwell.

He said the explosives that ripped apart an American all-purpose Humvee vehicle, killing all four occupants, were part of a sophisticated device detonated as the U.S. patrol passed by.

It was the deadliest attack involving U.S. forces since they arrived in Somalia last year, and the third ambush on peacekeepers, since Wednesday.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Michael McCurry said the United States would "respond to protect our peacekeepers" and to ensure that humanitarian work can proceed. But he did not say what the response would be.

U.N. forces ordered a halt Monday to "non-mission-essential ground traffic," Stockwell said.

The order mainly affected low-priority humanitarian work. Troops still escorted food convoys to 22 distribution sites, but 10 other feeding points were unguarded. Helicopters ferried U.N. civilian personnel between their compounds across the city.

But 48 armored cars were also unloaded at the Mogadishu harbor that officials said will be used for patrols on streets where 30 peacekeepers have died and 165 have been wounded since June 5.

U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali said Monday that the attack would not thwart the U.N. aims of providing humanitarian assistance, political reconciliation and re-establishment of Somali political institutions.

U.S. diplomat dies from gunshot

The Washington Post

MOSCOW — An American diplomat was killed Sunday night in the former Soviet republic of Georgia by unknown gunmen who fired on his car on a village road outside the Georgian capital, Tbilisi.

Authorities were unsure Monday whether the slaying of diplomat Fred Woodruff, who was on temporary summer duty in Georgia, was a random act or had some political motivation. Georgia is embroiled in separatist rebellions that have turned the mountainous republic into a huge armed camp.

Woodruff, 45, was returning from what authorities said was a sightseeing excursion with the security chief for Georgian leader Eduard Shevardnadze when a group of armed men attempted to force their car to halt, officials in Tbilisi said. The car sped on without stopping, and the gunman fired, hitting Woodruff in the head and killing him. Shevardnadze's security chief, Eldar Guguladze, escaped unharmed, according to Georgian Interior Ministry officials.

The U.S. Embassy in Tbilisi issued a statement condemning the "senseless and tragic shooting" of Woodruff, who arrived in June for a temporary assignment in the embassy's political affairs section. Woodruff, who lived in Herndon, Va., with his wife and three children, was scheduled to return to the United States on Aug. 20.

Since the collapse of the Soviet Union nearly two years ago, violent crime has spiked out of control in most of its former republics. Moscow has seen dozens of contract murders this summer, including several involving foreigners and foreign businesses. In the Far East city of Vladivostok Monday, five people were killed in a local-market-by-grenade attack that police said was part of a gangland dispute.

WHY A LARGER COMPANY CAN OFFER YOU BETTER $59 GLASSES

More and more people are discovering the outstanding eyewear value we offer. That's why we're selling more eyeglasses and contacts than ever—at over 130 stores from Alaska to Arizona.

Of course that's good for us. But we'd like to take a moment to explain why that's also good news for you:

OUR VOLUME BUYING CLOUT

While a small store may order its frames and lenses by the dozens, we buy ours by the thousands. That enables us to buy the latest frame designs and lenses at very attractive prices. They cost us less, so we're able to sell them for less.

That's how we can sell a pair of glasses, complete with frames and single vision plastic lenses, for $59. Additional pairs, same visit, same prescription, only $39. Most bifocals $90 more a pair.

Your choice isn't limited to some bargain bin, either. Choose from over 400 frames in the latest styles by Renaissance, REM, St. Moritz, Zimco, Converse, Enrico Biaggi and more.

OUR-CENTRALIZED LABS

What is the most important aspect of eyeglass quality? The lenses.

While many smaller companies send some lenses to outside labs for grinding, our size enables us to operate our own labs, employing the latest computerized lens-grinding technology and strict quality controls.

That means we have complete control over our quality. How many small shops can say that?

THOROUGHLY TRAINED PROFESSIONALS

Our employees attend comprehensive, on-going training programs where they learn a wide range of ophthalmic skills needed to fine tune your glasses to precisely fit your prescription.

They know which styles of frames will look best on your face, as well as how to adjust those frames to your face for the greatest comfort.

They will also ask you questions about your lifestyle and eyewear needs to help select the frames and lenses ideally suited for you.

Getting less doesn't have to mean getting skimpy service. Our service is as good as anyone's—at any price.

Serbs play game to avoid U.S.

By Barry Schweld
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Bosnian Serbs once again are playing a clever cat-and-mouse game with the Clinton administration, pulling back just enough from Sarajevo to damage U.S. chances of getting the European allies to give final approval to the use of air power to protect beleaguered Muslim civilians.

Analysis

Even as NATO officials consider options prepared by military planners, Bosnian Serbs on Monday retreated as agreed from one mountain overlooking Sarajevo, but resisted yielding a major weapons supply route to U.N. peacekeepers.

Their confusing semi-cooperation reinforces European reluctance to confront the Serbs with air power, and hampers the renewed drive by Secretary of State Warren Christopher to use force if the siege of the capital of Bosnia-Herzegovina is not lifted.

Christopher sent letters to all 15 NATO allies Friday night and followed up with a round of telephone calls on his return to Washington on Saturday. His pitch included a warning that NATO's role in post-Cold War Europe would be shaped by how the allies respond to the Serb stranglehold on Sarajevo and other Bosnian enclaves.

At the same time, in Geneva, outgoing U.S. mediator Richard Barrow insisted the Serbs and Croats redraw their proposed map of Bosnia to make it acceptable to the Muslim-dominated government.

Senior Clinton administration officials said they were confident that once NATO approved the use of force the Europeans would not shy away from implementing it if the siege continued or the negotiations failed.

However, the United States did not insist on immediate implementation, and in the meantime the Serbs have continued their year-long strategy of retreating on one front and advancing on another.

"There is no question the United States is very conscious of Serb behavior," the State Department spokesman, Michael McCurry, said.

Moreover, he said Washington had made it clear to the Serbs that they face the likelihood of NATO force if they do not lift the siege of Sarajevo, permit relief to get to those needing it and negotiate in good faith.

Bosnia's Muslim president urged an attack to show that "Americans mean business."

"There is now a dilemma among the Serbs whether to negotiate or achieve a full victory," President Alija Izetbegovic said Sunday in Geneva. "If there are no air strikes, they will go for the victory."

Threatened with the possibility, the commander of the Serb nationalist army in Bosnia, Gen. Ratko Mladic, said Sunday night he would make a "phased withdrawal" from positions on two strategic mountains south of Sarajevo if U.N. forces took control of the area.

On Monday, a U.N. report in Geneva said the Serbs had withdrawn from Mount Bjelasnica and taken down the Serb flag. But peacekeepers encountered obstacles on Mount Igman, the last clanking weapons supply route for Bosnian government forces.

The fate of the capital, under siege for 16 months, hung in the balance.

During the siege, and even before, the Serbs succeeded in frustrating both the Bush and Clinton administrations.

Economic sanctions against their patrons in Belgrade, threats of war-crimes trials and public condemnation did not stop the Serbs' advance.

In May, after long deliberation, President Clinton approved a "lift-and-strike" strategy and sent Christopher to Europe to sell it to the allies. It called for lifting the U.N. arms embargo against the Muslims and selective bombing of Serb artillery positions.

Hillary advocates hospitals working together on costs

Orlando Sentinel

ORLANDO, Fla. — Hospitals would be freed from some antitrust restrictions under federal health-care reform so they can collaborate on cost-cutting measures, first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton said Monday.

Speaking to the American Hospital Association convention in Orlando, the first lady was warmly received as she offered a glimpse or two into the administration's much anticipated health-care reform plan.

"We must all take responsibility and we must all contribute," she told 4,000 hospital administrators from throughout the United States and Canada. "We will have to eliminate the all-too-prevalent state of mind that there is a free lunch, that there is a free ride, that there is something for

Clinton

SS general of all Americans. The goal, she said, is to extend coverage to the 40 million Americans who do not have it, though she didn't specify how the system would be financed.

Clinton said the Justice Department is looking at guidelines "for mergers, networks, joint ventures, purchasing nothing." The president's wife, who led a health-care task force earlier this year, said the White House plan will build on the country's employment-based insurance system, which provides coverage for about 85 percent of all Americans.

Hospitals that provide the same services in the same area can now be accused of price-fixing or other monopolistic practices if they work together, said Christopher Rolle, an Orlando health care lawyer.

"Some may say it (relaxed antitrust laws) will give other providers an advantage in the marketplace, and others will think it's good idea," Rolle said. "The point is, in order to establish a large integrated system, they are going to have to relax antitrust laws to make it work. Without that, it would be like building a car without any brakes."

Richard Morrison, chief executive officer of Florida Hospital, said relaxed antitrust legislation could lead to opportunities for sharing equipment, which could lower hospitals' operating costs.

Clinton drew applause from the crowd by promising to ease hospitals' paperwork burden, which she said is responsible for hospitals hiring four administrators for every doctor.

World Cleanup follows killer Bret

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Venezuelans in hillside shantytowns ringing Caracas began clearing away mud and debris Monday following a devastating tropical storm that killed at least 150 people and left thousands homeless.

The sun was shining over the battered slums, and Tropical Storm Bret was breaking up as it moved off the northwest coast of Colombia, the U.S. National Weather Service reported today from Miami. But Bret could gain strength before moving over Central America, the agency reported.

In the border town of Maicao, in northeastern Colombia, a 22-year-old woman was electrocuted Sunday afternoon when winds from the storm hurled an electricity pole and high tension wire onto a house.

The weather service said Colombia dropped the tropical storm warning for the coastal Guajira peninsula.

Libya will compensate relatives

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — A senior Libyan official said Monday his country is willing to pay compensation to families whose relatives died in the bombings of Pan Am Flight 103 and a French jet in Niger.

Ibrahim el-Beshari, Libya's delegate to the Arab League, told Egypt's state-run news agency that Tripoli has made strong overtures toward trying U.N. demands. He did not elaborate and could not be reached at the Libyan Embassy or his home for further comment.

His remarks come just days before the U.N. Security Council is to review sanctions imposed against Libya in April 1992.

Belgium swears in new king amid pomp, protest

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Albert II was sworn in Monday as king of Belgium during a solemn ceremony in which he took the oath of "Long Live the King!" and one cry of protest.

Albert, 59, became the sixth monarch since Belgium gained independence from Dutch rule in 1830. In keeping with tradition, he was not crowned but simply pledged allegiance to the constitution.

Moments before the new king rose, tense and shaking, to take the oath, representatives Jean-Pierre Van Rossem of the radical ROSSEM party shouted "Long live the European Republic."

The protest was quickly drowned with shouts of "Long Live the King!" from other members of the audience.

Bridge collapses, hurls 60 into river

URSULO GALVAN, Mexico (AP) — A bridge collapsed under the weight of a crowd leaving a week-end church service, injuring at least 60 people who were hurled into a river, authorities said.

Divers searched Monday for two missing children, and officials appealed for small boats to assist the effort on the Acopan River, about 30 miles south of the port of Veracruz, the Red Cross said.

Spokesman Jorge Vicente Gomez said about 40 of the injured were taken to the Red Cross hospital near this town.

There's nothing like a nice friendly, reliable, trainable, obedient, four-year-old spayed female who'll fit right in for someone. She is a beautiful white cat with black markings including black "eye lines" and a black chin. Abandoned by a former homeless owner, she is available for adoption at the animal shelter 439 6th Ave. W., call 736-1292. There is also a wonderful Shetland cow available to join the right home, and other dogs, cats and kittens. If you love a pet, check the animal shelter first thing.

In choosing new judge, look for balanced view

Nothing boils the average citizen's blood as much as a story about someone who gets off easy after committing mayhem and monstrosity. Judges should get tough, right? We're tired of these guys getting light sentences or going free on technicalities, right?

Not so fast. If that average citizen winds up in the defendant's chair (and it can happen to anyone), then those technicalities become important. If our present focus is on the line, we want a judge who doesn't automatically assume that the badges are always right.

In short, a judge is not a cop or a prosecutor. His job is not simply to put bad guys away, but to uphold the rights of defendants, victims and society at large.

We make the point because a new judge is about to be chosen for Jerome County. In court jargon, the vacant job is for a magistrate — a lower-court workhorse who handles a wide range of crucial matters: misdemeanors, traffic, preliminary hearings for felonies, juvenile cases, search warrants, lesser civil cases and the like.

Jerome County gets only one magistrate. (The new one will replace Magistrate Roger Burdick, who is moving up to a district judge job.) So this person will be vitally important to how justice is done in the county.

The 5th District Magistrates Commission — a group of officials from around the Magic Valley — will choose this new judge from a pool of nine applicants. We'd like to offer the commission an idea: Look closely at candidates whose records suggest they might tilt too far to the side of cops and prosecutors.

We say this because several of the candidates have backgrounds in criminal prosecution. After working to put defendants in jail, how gracefully will they move to the neutrality of the bench? For instance, candidate Maurice Ellsworth just finished a stint as U.S. attorney in Boise. He headed the Justice Department office that zealously (and ineptly) prosecuted white separatist Randy Weaver. The vindictiveness of that prosecution raises a question about Ellsworth's prospective temperament on the bench.

Then there's John Horgan, in his third term as Jerome County's prosecutor. Róckne Lamimer, now in private practice, formerly was chief deputy prosecutor for Twin Falls County. And R. Monte MacConnell is deputy director of the state Department of Law Enforcement — a lawyer helping administer a police agency.

We don't intend to impugn these men's suitability for the magistrate's job. They're honorable fellows, and most have experience in defense as well as prosecution.

Besides, plenty of prosecutors have turned into excellent judges.

But the habit of viewing defendants as society's enemies is not always easily broken. We urge the Magistrate Commission to probe all the candidates carefully, to learn how deeply they are committed to a level legal playing field.

Why give gays special rights?

I would like to respond to the Lewiston Morning Tribune editorial reprinted in the July 19 Times-News.

It is sad to think that so many people are blinded to the actual facts behind the homosexual agenda. If it were only a matter of equal rights, they would have nothing to be upset about because they enjoy the same rights as any other American enjoys. What they are really looking for is "special rights," and for what or that matter, why? Why should anyone get special rights for a behavior? A behavior these people have freely chosen.

If we Americans give special rights to homosexuals, then we are signing on OK for them to recruit our children into this lifestyle. I have worked with many homosexual people, and these people have only supported what I know to be fact. They have to recruit, because they cannot reproduce! I have also heard speeches made by renowned leaders of the homosexual organizations around the country, and they address other sexual deviant groups such as the Satanist, Marxist groups and the North American Man Boy Love Association as minorities.

Are these the kind of people we are going to add to the true minorities of our country? If so, what's next, special rights for pedophiles, drug addicts, alcoholics, child abusers or any other chosen deviant lifestyle? It is time to open our eyes to what's really going on around our nation. Don't let these people blind us with a lot of intimidating words like discrimination, hate, bigotry and witch-hunts. We will have the American right to stand up, as parents, against what we feel is wrong or unhealthy for our children. If special rights are given to this group of people, we will be giving up this right. So don't be so easily fooled by the left.

I personally will support the Idaho Citizens Alliance, for the ballot initiative that is coming up and for any other initiative in the future that defends the most important people in my life and their future depends on the decisions I make right now.

Is committee anti-family?

I would like to respond to the July 25 letter from the Idaho Citizens Alliance, headlined, "Support Human Rights."

Personally, I didn't know Steve Thompson had a stand. From what I read, he quit his position because he couldn't have his own way. For some reason, I thought "human relations" was his stand. But that's another story.

The part of the letter that interested me was where the network condemned the Human Relations Committee for not standing against the Idaho Citizens Alliance. Then in the same letter, it stated that they felt like there were more important issues to address than the "No Special Rights" campaign. Evidently, that was it. Human Relations Committee felt that way. It was enough of a problem that Thompson resigned over it. Did it cross the network's mind that the Human Relations Committee may have realized this is a political battle that has nothing at all to do with discrimination?

Understanding that the Human Relations Committee was not created to hassle politics but to deal with actual human relations, it becomes easy to see how they formed their decision.

What kind of five-member group is this Idaho Citizens Network that disapproves the importance of the "No Special Rights" campaign (the future of our state). Then in the very next paragraph, it discriminates against certain groups of people by calling them names and making false accusations about them. Doesn't it know that discrimination and hateful name-calling is what the network says it is trying to battle?

Has the Idaho Citizens Network done anything about these "more important issues"? Or, just maybe, is it another anti-family group rising up in the name of Steve Thompson and the fire left, whose sole purpose is to do it all can hurt the only pro-family, strictly political group in Idaho, which is the Idaho Citizens Alliance? ### We can't afford taxes for school

Once again, the editorial board has missed the point of the last school levy.

The issue of "triple dipping" has been very much overplayed. No one is against paying teachers a reasonable salary. But there are a number of other issues which have caused the school levy to be defeated.

17. "We are tired of being taxed to death." We just finished approving a large bond issue for the school district and the county for the landfill. The county wants more money for a juvenile detention center. Clinton wants to raise income taxes and gas taxes. The state is once again considering raising the sales tax. The assessed values on our homes are increasing each year. Now the school district wants more money.

Where is it all going to stop? For one, have both in my pockets. The message that the taxpayers in this county are trying to get across to Congress and every other taxing authority is that we cannot afford to pay any more taxes. We want cuts to be made in a responsible manner! This brings up the next issue that your editorial missed. Priorities! How is it that we place $100 for teachers and administrators, spending this donation to the auditorium fund. The PTO make a donation to the auditorium fund. The funds donated by the PTO were funds that had been raised to cover the cost of crossing-guard salaries.

This sounds like the scare tactics used when the 1 percent initiative was being voted on. The first round of cuts was to be the police force and fire department. How ridiculous. However, if this isn't a scare tactic to convince us voters to go for the levy and the district really does mean to make these cuts, do we really have the right people in the leadership of our school district? Do these people really have the best interests of our children in mind? I don't think so.

Also, why is the school district cutting crossing guards? My understanding is that the district told the parent/teacher organization that they had money in the budget to cover the crossing guards when they convinced the PTO to make a donation to the auditorium fund. The funds donated by the PTO were funds that had been raised to cover the cost of crossing-guard salaries.

We need to send a message to the school district. Get your act together and get your priorities straight.

Kind young people do exist

On Wednesday, Aug. 5, I took my day care children on an outing to the park and then to Pizza Hut for lunch. I had eight children with me, ranging in age from 2 to 8. When we went in, there were three crossing guards behind the counter taking all of this in. The waitress advised me as to what would be the least expensive and yet get you all enough to eat. After ordering, we all got up to go into the restroom to wash our hands before eating. The young men made a comment about us leaving, and I explained that we were only washing up. The young men left shortly thereafter.

Imagine my surprise and delight when the waitress informed me that one of them had left $10 to be applied toward my lunch. When I say these were young men, I am saying that they were college age, not 40, 60 or 80. With so much talk of "inconsiderate young people" today, I really feel that he should be commended for his compassion.

I would also like to express my gratitude to the young waitress, June, that helped to see to all of our needs and made us feel so welcome. With eight children, she could very easily have made it a miserable meal. Let's all try to remember that there are many kind, considerate young people in our world and that they deserve as much respect as we expect from them.

CATHY REITZ
Twin Falls

Stand up for our children

We have a serious problem with how the legal system is considering releasing a child molester back onto the streets of our communities. The undisputed facts are that two young boys made had sexual interaction with an adult male. An additional horrendous fact is that the adult male knew he carried the AIDS virus. Whether or not the boys were molested against their will, it is still against the law to have sexual contact with a minor. And it should be (if it isn't already in this state) against the law to willfully have sexual interaction with a contagious deadly disease.

Obviously, when these incidents occurred, this adult male was not concerned about the legality of sexual contact with a minor, nor was he concerned about the morality of giving the deadly AIDS virus to young children. How can a person with such a lack of concern for other people be allowed to walk free in the streets of our community?

Yes, he will be told to stay away from children, but who will take the responsibility of making sure he sticks to this restriction? He has not shown concern in his past about anything but meeting his own needs, and now the system is gambling that he will act differently because he is "on probation."

"Anyone who is familiar with the probation system will know that just because someone is "on probation," it doesn't mean that they will change the behavior that landed them there in the first place. It is a gamble. Children will be the losers if these gambles don't work out, like Jerome and the local 4-year-old. What is the system saying to other child molesters?

Who will explain how the legal system is supposed to work to the children and their parents if this man violates his probation? Who will take this responsibility? Who wants to stand up and say, "I will be responsible for his behavior." Who is willing to guarantee the safety of the child? Who is willing to face the parents? Whoever you are, stand up and speak out. If you don't exist, then for the love of the children, keep him behind bars.

Overtaxing the rich, dead.

President Clinton propagandizes against the rich, depriving them of legitimacy, and the Democrats are willing to violate the law to punish them. The Democrats have singled out the rich — and the dead — for unconstitutional retroactive taxation and are legislating this prohibited act.

Clinton's tax increase, misleadingly termed a deficit-reduction plan, is a blatant assault on Article I, Section 9 of the Constitution, which explicitly forbids retroactive law. Moreover, it is contemptuous of all legal precedent.

The Supreme Court has permitted some retroactive taxation, but new taxes have never been permitted to have an effective date prior to the date that the specific increases were first proposed in Congress. (Retroactivity has been judged permissible based on the reasoning that appropriate notice is given once the taxes are approved.) The Jan. 1, 1993, effective date on Clinton's tax increase, however, is prior to the proposal of the new taxes.

In the case of estate taxes (transfer taxes), there is no precedent for retroactivity. Clinton's increase taxes the dead, who do not have the option of retaining their wills, retroactively. Clinton's retroactive estate tax increases reflect his intentions since the laws that guide him can be retroactively overturned after his death. This strikes at the heart of the testator's right to bequeath his property. U.S. tax rules are already the most grasping of any in the world, and now we are reaching back beyond the retroactivity?

The Democrats and the Democrats could single out "the rich" and estates for special tax burdens without violating the Constitution. Why, then, the retroactivity?

The answer is simple. Clinton and the Democrats know that higher marginal income tax rates will not raise the predicted revenues if they are prospective. In order to raise revenues, the higher tax rates have to be applied to income that is already earned.

Paul Craig Roberts

tax rates retroactive, the Democrats are avoiding the relative price or disincentive effects that stymie revenue raising measures.

Now that the Democrats have learned that only retroactive tax rate increases succeed in raising revenues, the next tax increase will be made retroactive two years. Then five years. Indeed, since the United States is in the clutches of a governing class that is utterly contemptuous of both legal precedent and the Constitution, there is nothing to prevent the next Clinton tax increase from being retroactive to the beginning of the republic. If notice requirements are no longer to be observed, the 1913 income tax can be made retroactive to the founding of the country and all personal wealth can be confiscated.

The Clinton tax plan is not just bad economic policy. It is constitutionally illegal and destructive of the polity. It signifies the government's complete breach of faith with the people. This bill will accelerate the growing perception of the federal government as a grasping parasite on the people's backs.

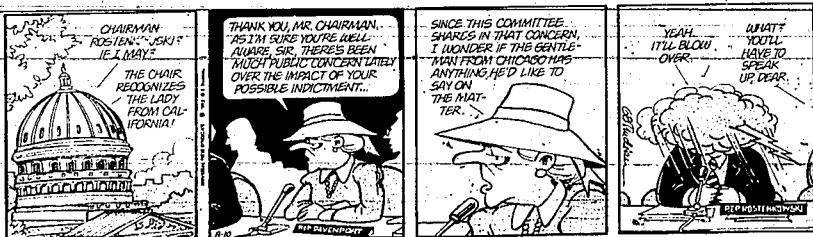

Paul Craig Roberts, former assistant treasury secretary, is chairman of the Institute for Political Economy in Washington. He wrote this article for the Los Angeles Times.

Study: Fraud costs college program millions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's largest cash aid program for higher education is being defrauded of millions of dollars by schools that claim benefits for students who don't attend or are ineligible, according to government documents and investigators.

In schools as disparate as orthodox Jewish academies in New York and a Wisconsin trucker-training facility, Education Department documents describe widespread abuse of Pell grants.

Department officials acknowledge the program has lacked oversight.

"There is fraud and abuse in the program that we have to get on top of," said David Longanecker, assistant secretary for post-secondary education.

The allegations have spawned a federal grand jury investigation of at least three dozen orthodox Jewish schools in the New York City area, according to sources familiar with the case, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Some of the Jewish schools have received Pell grants in the names of students who are not attending classes or did not have a high school diploma.

Education Department enforcement reports show.

And Sen. Sant Nunn, D-Ga., says a subcommittee he chairs has uncovered evidence that some students were given kickbacks — paid either to attend a school or to allow their names to be used on Pell grant applications.

"There's no real monitoring of the federal funds," said Kenneth Gribetz, the district attorney in Rockland County, N.Y., who handled one case now under federal investigation.

"It's like Santa Claus came to town and just gave out money," Gribetz said. "A good program for needy people could be killed by inadequate supervision."

Last year the government distributed $4.7 billion in Pell grants to assist some 3.8 million of America's neediest students — an average of $1,763 each. Some 6,300 schools nationwide are eligible to participate.

Cystic Fibrosis drug improves quality of life

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP) — The first new drug therapy for cystic fibrosis in 30 years won unanimous approval Monday from a Food and Drug Administration advisory committee.

The drug, domase alfa, was found in a pivotal study to reduce infections and to improve the quality of life for stable cystic fibrosis patients over age 5.

The drug's manufacturer, Genentech Inc., reported that domase alfa reduces lung infections by breaking up the thick mucus accumulation that is the major complication of cystic fibrosis.

Genentech, which conducted the study on more than 900 patients over a six-month period, is applying for a license to market domase alfa under the brand name Pulmozyme.

The committee's approval is not binding on the FDA but the agency usually follows the recommendations.

An FDA team that reviewed the Genentech study told the committee that domase alfa appears to give significant short-term benefit for cystic fibrosis patients. But the FDA experts are concerned about how the drug could affect patients after years of use.

"It is unknown what affect the long-term use will have on morbidity and mortality," said Dr. Michael J. Sevka, an FDA medical officer.

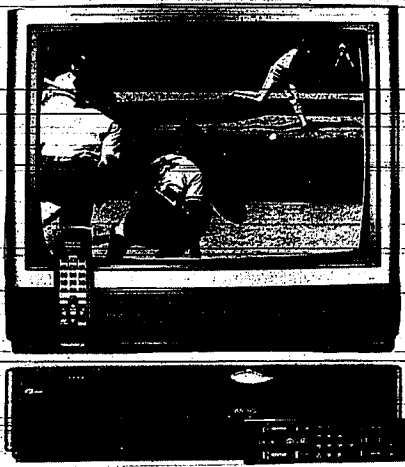

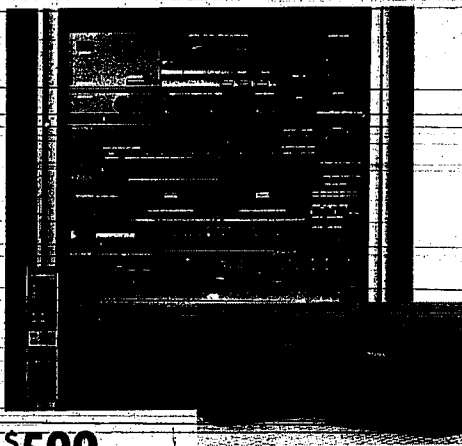

Cystic fibrosis is the most common lethal inherited disease among Caucasians. It affects about 30,000 Americans and usually first appears in early childhood. There is no cure.

The disease is caused when a baby inherits a flawed gene from each parent. The disorder causes the buildup of dense mucus in the walls of the breathing airway and in the digestive tract. The clogged airways lead to frequent bacterial infections and eventual damage to lung tissue.

Missouri man dies in I-84 rollover

SUBLET — A 72-year-old Missouri man died Monday morning when the car his wife was driving tumbled over on the interstate south of Sublet.

Margery Wade, 69, of Ray Town, Mo. was driving east on I-84 when she dozed off just before 11:30 a.m., Idaho State Police dispatcher Gloria Hackworth said.

Man admits role in dairy robbery, awaits sentence

TWIN FALLS — One of four men charged with the February robbery of two Buhl-area dairy workers pleaded guilty Monday to attempted robbery in a plea agreement with prosecutors.

Stacey L. Fox, 21, of Twin Falls remains in the Twin Falls County jail in lieu of $50,000 bond. Felony charges of robbery, second-degree kidnapping, conspiracy and grand theft will be dismissed after Fox is sentenced.

Fox and three others were charged with a Feb. 25 attack at the H and H Dairy. One dairy worker told sheriff's investigators he was tied up at gunpoint and another said he was robbed.

Fox told 5th District Judge Roger Burdick that he was the man who tied Jaime Ramos with baling twine while another man pointed a gun at the dairy worker.

Fox's 24-year-old brother, James, is in jail awaiting arraignment on felony charges stemming from the robbery. Ronald Lehmann of Buhl has pleaded innocent to charges he was involved, and Steve Lehmann was charged last week.

Stacey Fox faces a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison. Prosecutors have agreed to recommend that he be placed on probation after completing a rehabilitation program.

Twin Falls sets final hearing for comprehensive city plan

TWIN FALLS — The city Planning and Zoning Commission will conduct its final public hearing on the comprehensive plan tonight.

The hearing starts at 7 p.m. in the City Council chambers in City Hall. The public is invited to attend the hearing and offer comments.

Jerome School Board to tour half-built school today

JEROME — The Jerome School Board will conduct a tour of the partially built Horizon Elementary School before its meeting tonight.

The public is invited to come along at 7 p.m. at the school site north of Forsyth Park. The business meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the Middle School Library.

Completion of the building is scheduled for December, but an extension was granted by the board because of severe weather last winter. The original contract required the school to be completed in time for school opening in August.

Judge Burdick to speak at chamber of commerce

JEROME — The Jerome Chamber of Commerce has scheduled a luncheon tribute for 5th District Judge Roger Burdick. The judge will be guest speaker at the meeting.

The luncheon will be held Wednesday noon at the Riata Inn, 220 West Main Street. Reservations can be made by calling the Chamber of Commerce office at 324-2711.

Government committees conduct hearing Thursday

TWIN FALLS — Interim committees on local government and taxation will hold a combined hearing taking public input on optional forms of county government and issue dealing with taxation. The meeting will take place at noon Thursday in Room 108 of the Aspen Building on the College of Southern Idaho campus.

School Board will consider when to conduct $400,000 levy vote

By Kirk Mitchell
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The School Board will decide tonight when to hold a $400,000 levy election.

Board Chairman Steve Tolman has said election will likely be on Sept. 7 or 8.

The proposed levy is designed to reinstate many of the cuts in programs and personnel that board members said they would have to make following the June 22 defeat of an earlier levy.

The 3 percent salary increases that were part of the earlier $840,000 levy will not be included in the next one.

The board voted to hold the second levy at a special meeting in July.

In other business, the board will vote on a new contract between the district and teachers.

However, the vote will be part of the consent calendar. Typically consent calendar agenda items are passed without discussion.

The district and the Twin Falls Education Association reached a tentative agreement last week. Terms were not disclosed.

Superintendent Terrell Donich declined to discuss the terms of the agreement pending approval of the contract by the board.

The board voted last month to use

$145,000 in unexpected state revenue to raise salaries for district employees by 1 percent.

Tonight's meeting will take place at 7 p.m. at district headquarters, 204 Main Ave. W. Tonight is the first time in a year that a regular board meeting will be held in the downtown at building.

The board has held meetings for the past year at Perrine Elementary School, but several people complained that they could not hear board members.

The School Board voted last month to hold all future board meetings in the downtown building, except on special occasions when popular issues would attract large crowds.

City will leave ditch uncovered

By Phil Sahm
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A ditch running through Thomas Park on the city's east side will remain uncovered despite concerns of a few area residents.

City Manager Tom Courtney said Monday that "20 or more" people phoned the city with concerns about the uncovered waterway.

"We've had a number of calls from people expressing concern," Courtney told the City Council on Monday.

The park, the city's newest, sits in a floodplain near Carriage Lane south of Addison Avenue. The open waterway is a central part of the park's design.

Up on the roof

Steelworkers John Williams, left, and Richard Satterjee combine efforts Monday afternoon while working on the construction of a decorative roof section at the new Wilson-Bates building on Pole Line Road in Twin Falls. Work at the site has been going on for about three months, with a grand opening scheduled for Sept. 15.

Twin Falls City Council tables Trans IV — again

By Phil Sahm
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Trans IV must wait a little longer before the City Council decides whether to help fund a fixed-route bus service.

Jim Vining, the bus service manager, and representatives of business and social service agencies urged the council to help expand area bus service.

"There seems to be some confusion about the extent of our request," Vining told the council.

Trans IV recently won a federal grant to buy six new buses and start fixed-route service in Twin Falls. But to collect the $407,000 grant, the non-profit bus service must raise $101,000 in local matching money.

This need brought Vining to the Twin Falls City Council on Monday, asking for $40,000 to help buy four buses and $36,000 a year to help fund fixed-route service in Twin Falls.

The council will wait until Councilman Gale Kleinkopf returns from out of town before voting on Vining's request. Vining first approached the city after being awarded the grant in March.

The $40,000 can be phased in over several years, and the first $36,000 might not be needed in the coming year. But Vining said he needs a commitment from Twin Falls and other area cities and counties to get the grant money.

The Twin Falls County Commission promised to ante $10,000 for the bus service. The same amount that the city has been giving to Trans IV. Vining has asked Buhl, Kimberly, Filer, Wendell and the cities and counties of Gooding and Jerome for another $18,000.

"This (city funding for a fixed-route service) would be taking a step in the direction that we need to. I think it's something we really have to consider, especially the way we're growing."

— Tom Condie, city councilman

Vining received a mixed reaction from council members Monday.

Councilman Tom Condie said that after encouraging Trans IV to apply for the grant last fall, the city should follow through with funding. But he also said the city should consider a fixed-route service in light of how fast the area is growing.

"This would be taking a step in the direction that we need to," Condie said. "I think it's something we really have to consider, especially the way we're growing."

Condie said he'd rather see the city spend money on Trans IV instead of a matching grant for bicycle routes in the city.

Councilwoman Pam Dowd said she has received numerous phone calls in support of Trans IV. She also said that state Transportation Department officials in Boise told her the city's chances of getting grant money to build bike paths are a low priority.

"Trans IV is a sure thing. It's already granted," Dowd said.

Amalgamated Sugar workers cast votes on new pay contract

By Stefano Esposito
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Employees from each of Amalgamated Sugar Co.'s four factories voted Monday whether to accept the company's new three-year contract.

Amalgamated's "firm and final" offer called for a 2.5 percent raise for each of the three years, as well as an increased employee outlay to meet rising health-care costs.

Twin Falls Local 283 President Karen Griggs, who has been involved in company negotiations since May, said neither she nor anyone else is pleased with Amalgamated's offer. It asks employees to give up too much, she said.

"Nobody's happy with it," Griggs said. "It's a very concessionary contract offer. Everything is very regressive."

Griggs' concerns stem partly from the company's health-care proposal, which she feels would put an unnecessary heavy burden on workers.

Currently, Amalgamated's medical plan does not require beneficiaries to pay a monthly premium. In addition, workers receive 100 percent coverage for in-patient and out-patient hospital care.

Should workers vote to accept the company's offer, they would be required to pay 20 percent of all claims, including costs for prescriptions.

Griggs argued that employees' judicious use of medical services does not warrant such a large cut in benefits.

"Our claims per employee are less than the national average...." Griggs said. "Our people have been very prudent in the way they use the insurance. What I'm saying is that our employees have not been abusive to the insurance in any way."

According to Griggs, workers are already losing one-half of a percent in monthly wages as a result of a clause in the present contract. Workers agreed to the wage reduction in the event that medical claims exceeded a base figure.

The clause went into effect at the beginning of August 1992, when claims rose above the base.

Twin Falls Plant Superintendent Vic Jaro, contacted by phone Monday, would not answer specific questions about the company's position on health care, but suggested rising health-care costs is one of Amalgamated's main concerns.

"I think the rising cost issue is the primary factor," Jaro said. "This (contract) was an attempt to try and address some of those very important health care issues — the cost mainly."

Following Monday's vote, ballots were scheduled to be taken to Boise and results were expected at noon today.

Although the ballot states that a reject vote is a strike vote, Griggs said workers would not necessarily walk out Wednesday morning.

"If (a reject vote) gives the inter-factory council the authority to call a strike if they see fit," Griggs said.

Reprimanded Minidoka County teacher offers resignation

By Kirk Mitchell
Times-News writer

RUPERT — A Minidoka County School District teacher who was recently reprimanded for embarrassing students has offered to resign contingent on undisclosed conditions, the superintendent says.

Brent Pierce, a permanent substitute teacher last school year, gave Superintendent Michael Bishop a letter of resignation Thursday, Bishop said.

Bishop declined to discuss Pierce's conditions pending a decision by the School Board. The board will meet in executive session on Aug. 17 to discuss the matter.

If the board does not accept Pierce's undisclosed conditions, Bishop said he has a recommendation for the board on whether to offer Pierce a teaching job for the next school year.

He declined to say what that recommendation would be. Pierce was a fourth-grade teacher at Acquia Elementary School when 17 students told school officials in the spring of 1992 that Pierce had either touched them in ways that made them feel uncomfortable or they had seen other girls touched.

Pierce was later charged with five counts of sexual abuse involving his students. Former Fifth District Magistrate Judge Bob Workman dismissed the charges in July, ruling that no evidence was produced at his preliminary hearing indicating criminal behavior.

The Idaho Department of Education subsequently investigated the allegations and recommended that a teachers' review panel revoke Pierce's teaching license.

The three-member panel instead recommended that the Idaho Board of Education give Pierce a letter of reprimand concluding that he violated the Code of Ethics of the Idaho Teaching Profession by "subjecting students to unnecessary embarrassment."

Pierce would not comment Monday.

Briefly

Bellevue council will discuss budget

BELLEVUE - The City Council will meet at 7 tonight at City Hall to discuss the 1994 budget. The council's regular Thursday meeting was changed to tonight to accommodate city staff.

The council will review the mayor's budget recommendations and hear a presentation by the city's planning and zoning commission regarding the proposed Foothills subdivision. The next council meeting will be held on Aug. 26.

Red Cross seeks $100,000 in Idaho

TWIN FALLS - Idahoans are trying to raise $100,000 for Midwest flood relief through the American Red Cross.

Financial contributions only may be given to local Red Cross chapters.

People may also donate used Levi's to collection points at Albertson's in their area; Red Cross receives 70 percent of the proceeds from the sale of the Levi's.

The Red Cross has raised $41,000 statewide so far. Twin Falls residents have given $2,700.

Contributions may be sent to the Sawtooth Chapter of the Red Cross at 778 Siroshone St. E., 753-6464. Deadline is Aug. 31.

Ketchum man to head Perot group

KETCHUM - Real estate entrepreneur Latham Williams has been elected Region 5 coordinator for the Idaho chapter of United We Stand America, the "citizens' watchdog" group founded by Ross Perot.

Region 5 comprises Blaine, Camas, Cassia, Elmore, Gooding, Jerome, Lincoln, Minidoka and Twin Falls counties.

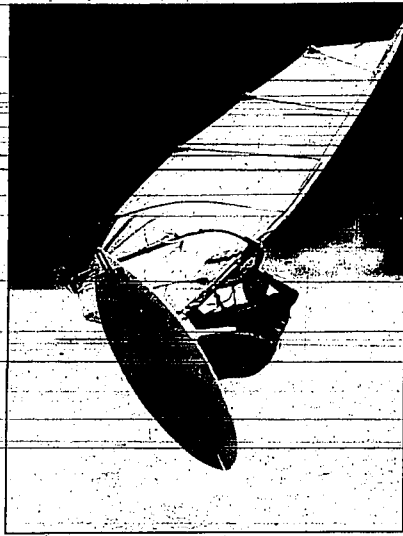

Williams said his first priorities as coordinator would be to build UWSA's membership base and organize the members for effective political action.

"Our political power to effect change is going to be directly related to the number of members we have, so that will be important," he said.

As a regional coordinator, Williams also sits on the Idaho chapter's board of directors. The board will hold its first meeting Aug. 14.

Railroad reopens track after fiery train collision

Journal of Commerce

Alhambra, Torrance and Santa Fe Railway was set to reopen one track of its transcontinental main line at Seligman, Ariz., Monday but said a second track will remain closed until fire-damaged debris from a Sunday derailment and collision of two trains is removed.

"It depends on how fast we can remove derailed equipment and rebuild the track," Mike Martin, a Santa Fe spokesman, said Monday. The line is used by 46 Santa Fe trains daily. Since the mishap, the railroad has re-routed priority trains across the Arizona and California Railroad, according to Frank D. Monier, A&C's superintendent. Non-priority Santa Fe trains are being delayed in California and West Texas, Martin said.

A&C purchased a 190-mile parallel east-west line from Santa Fe two years ago. Both rails connect in Cadiz, Calif., 219 miles west of Seligman.

The collision occurred after nine doublestack cars of an eastbound Santa Fe train consisting of four locomotives and 63 stackcars derailed on an upgrade six miles east of Seligman, Ariz., at 10:40 a.m. MST Sunday.

Some of the doublestack cars of the Chicago-bound train that originated in Los Angeles overturned, dislodging containers, Martin said. The derailed cars were then struck by a 77-car westbound intermodal train headed for Los Angeles from Chicago.

The impact derailed the last of the westbound train's four locomotives and its first doublestack car, injuring four crewmen, spilling intermodal containers across the right-of-way and sparking a fire that destroyed 15 locomotives and heavily damaged three locomotives. A brakeman riding in the second locomotive jumped from the train, suffering serious burns and a dislocated shoulder. A second brakeman was briefly hospitalized with bruises. Two others were treated at the scene. The locomotives of the eastbound train were not involved in the crash. The fire, sparked by leaking diesel fuel that ignited, destroyed one locomotive and heavily damaged two others, according to Ron Barren, a fire management dispatcher in Arizona's State Land Dept. "We've definitely lost one locomotive. Two are heavily damaged and they may or (may) not be salvageable," Martin said. "Damage to the stack cars alone amounts to $540,000."

Agency will halt Camas grazing Park

HAMER (AP) - Livestock grazing on the Camas National Wildlife Refuge in eastern Idaho has been reduced by half this year and will end completely in December.

The 11 ranchers, who graze cattle on the refuge met last week to draft a letter appealing the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service decision.

The agency advised them in a June 18 letter, less than two weeks before grazing was to begin, that their 4,000 animal unit months would be cut in half. An AUM is the amount of grass a cow and a calf or one horse or five sheep eat in a month.

Some of those permit holders think federal officials are using an environmental lawsuit as an excuse to end grazing on the 10,600-acre refuge in Jefferson County. But Fish and Wildlife officials said they already were reviewing activities when the lawsuit was filed last October.

In a July 13 letter to permit holders, Fish and Wildlife said the reason for the reduction and late notice was that this year's grazing "had to be consistent with the position being proposed by the Fish and Wildlife Service in negotiating a settlement of a lawsuit filed by the National Audubon Society and others against the service on the issue of compatibility of grazing. We did not have the information on this position until June 18."

Reed Sanders, whose family has grazed cattle on Camas since it was created in 1937, finds that hard to swallow.

"It was a simple way for them to say they didn't want grazing in here," he said.

The ditch runs 20 inches deep and 36 inches wide, with water from 4 to 18 inches deep, Courtney estimated.

A committee of area residents that worked on the park design signed off on the idea of leaving the ditch uncovered. These residents have not changed their minds, said committee member Brent Jessel.

"The consensus of the neighborhood committee was to leave it as planned," he said.

But one area resident, Phyllis Feusahens, who lives about four blocks from the park, said she's not part of this consensus.

"Water drains children like a magnet. Any aesthetic value of a pretty little stream running through a park is lost in the risk to the children,

Feusahens said. Older children are likely to go to the park without their parents, and this worries Feusahens. "Maybe it's just a small ditch, but you can bet it's going to be lined with kids."

Tom Stout, who also served on the neighborhood committee, said slopes leading to the ditch will be graded in a "V" shape and seeded with grass. The ditch will sit in a notch in the bottom and keep sediments flowing during high runoff.

Replacing the ditch with pipe would cost an estimated $20,000 to $25,000. During spring runoff, pipes can become jammed and create problems, Trout said.

Councilman Jim Vickers said the ditch sounds like a good one to pipe. When children play in the park they're bound to wind up near the ditch, he said.

But given the maintenance and problems that pipes can create, Vickers conceded it might be better to leave the ditch open. "By piping it we're going to run into more problems."

Parents will have to watch their children at the park.

"There's a responsibility with parents," Mayor Howard Allen said.

Twin Falls resident Clyde R. Thomsen donated land for the park, and the city eventually will spend $250,000 to $300,000 developing it.

Obituaries

Lowell Ruby
GOODING - Lowell Ruby, 62, of Gooding died the morning of Hill City, passed away Sunday, Aug. 8, 1993, at his residence of a lingering illness.

Lowell was born Feb. 24, 1931, in Hallow, the son of Leslie and Blanch Ruby. Lowell was married to Evelyn Faye Mink on March 17, 1954, in Gooding. They ranched at Hill City until his health forced him to retire in 1988. They then moved to Gooding where they have since resided.

Lowell is survived by his wife, Evelyn Faye Ruby of Gooding; one daughter, Sandra Miller of Fairfield; two sons, Terry Ruby of Eden and Bret Ruby of Haber City, Utah; his parents, Leslie and Blanch Ruby of Wendell; one brother, Kenneth Ruby of Wendell; two granddaughters and two grandsons.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday at Demary's Gooding Chapel, with the Rev. Harold Hight officiating. Burial will follow at the Hill City Cemetery, near Hill City.

The family suggests donations be sent to the Gooding Senior Center, 4620 Overland Road No. 211, Boise ID 83705.

Rhyan DeWald
TWIN FALLS - Rhyan DeWald, 80, of Logandale, Nev., and formerly of Twin Falls, died Wednesday, Aug. 4, 1993, at his home.

He was born Feb. 23, 1913, in Wilcox, N.D., to Rev. Harold Hight and Elsie DeWald. On March 1, 1942, he married Elsie Marie Kennedy in Hawthorne, Nev.

Mr. DeWald grew up in North Dakota, Canada and Idaho. In 1941, he moved to Hawthorne to start in the construction industry which allowed him to travel throughout the United States. In 1951, he started work at the Nevada Test Site until he retired. After spending several years in Portola, Calif., he moved to Logandale in 1991. His early church activity was in the Lutheran Church. He enjoyed music and working with his hands.

Survivors include his wife, Elsie of Logandale; his son, Bruce of Las Vegas; two granddaughters, Mrs. Tim (Toni Marie) Ford and Mrs. Jon (Tina Michelle) Bowman, both of Las Vegas; two grandsons, one brother, William and wife, Carol; and four sisters, Mrs. Ronald (Emma) Kovan, Mrs. Pauline McCoy, Mrs. George (Burt) Denton and Mrs. Frieda Wolfe, all of Twin Falls. He was preceded in death by two brothers, Adam and Theodore.

The funeral will be Saturday at the Medical Arts in Logandale. Interment will be at the Logandale Cemetery.

Allan R. Compton
BUHL - Allan Ray Compton, 45, of Buhl, died Monday, Aug. 9, 1993, at his home after a battle with cancer.

He was born Feb. 24, 1948, in Twin Falls, to Herman and Mary Compton. He married Terry Dudley on Feb. 14, 1969. He was employed at the Green Giant Co. for the last 17 years. He was a member of the Idaho National Guard for 20 1/2 years.

He is survived by his wife of Buhl; two sons, Allen S. Compton, Brent L. Compton, Daniel L. Compton and Travis E. Compton, all of Buhl; four grandchildren, Heaton, Cameron, Ethan Allen and Allison Sloan; father, Herman Compton of Buhl; two brothers, Robert Compton of Buhl and Gary Compton of Bobbs; and two sisters, Mary Ann Sultona of Kansas and Chris Wilson of Missouri. He was preceded in death by his mother.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 12, at the First Christian Church in Buhl. Burial will follow at the West End Cemetery in Buhl. Friends may call from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Farmington Funeral Chapel in Buhl.

Fredrick Senten
CASTLEFORD - Fredrick (Fritz) Senten Jr., 80, of Ukiah, Calif., and formerly of Castleford, died Sunday, July 25, 1993, at the Ukiah Medical Center of natural causes.

He was a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Faith Lutheran Church. He served in the U.S. Navy during World War II.

He is survived by his wife, Irene, and a son and daughter-in-law, Michael and Dawn, all of Ukiah; sisters, Opal Crain of Florissant, Colo., and Ella Suhr of Paul, brothers, Roy of Castleford and Dan of Oregon, and two grandchildren, Matthew and Jessa.

A memorial service was held July 29 at the Ukiah Faith Lutheran Church. Memorials may be made to the Faith Lutheran Church, 1913 S. J. Street, Ukiah, or to the American Cancer Society.

Trans IV

But Mayor Howard Allen took a different view. Buying into the bus service for $36,000 a year would be the same as the city going into the transportation business, Allen said.

"This is not something he wants to do. The city of Caldwell is shutting down its bus service because it's losing money," he said.

Councilman Jim Vickers wondered if Twin Falls is big enough for a fixed-route system. Vining said that's why he has proposed a smaller route.

If the city were to fund Trans IV, it could raise the money from property taxes, take it away from another item in the proposed budget, or tap into a reserve fund. To raise the money from property taxes, the council would have to increase the tax rate projected in this year's budget.

While some council members are reluctant to fund Trans IV, business people and social service workers see a clear need for fixed-route service.

Twin Falls' businessman Dan Brizez urged the council to help fund the service. "It's all part of planning for the future that needs to be addressed at this time," he said.

Jeff Crumrine, director of Magic Valley Rehabilitation Services, said Trans IV is critical to the "full use of the community for the people we serve."

A fixed route, probably would double or triple the number of hearings for people who use the rehabilitation service, Crumrine said.

Cheryl Juntunen, director of the South Central District Health Department, estimated that 20 percent of the health district's clients depend on the bus service. "I strongly urge you to look at this," Juntunen said.

Representatives of other agencies - Health and Welfare, aging and adult-child programs - said that with agencies far-flung throughout the city, a fixed route would help those who use these agencies get to where they need to be.

Grant to buy buses and set up fixed routes might not be available in the future, Brizez said.

F.S. manager retires from dead-end job

COEUR D'ALENE — Former Priest Lake District Ranger Al Colotzi has retired from a "dead-end" job in a Forest Service which is not adjusting to a new era in the ecosystem.

Budget cuts, promotion freezes and lethargy have taken the enjoyment out of a career Colotzi said he loved.

"I am not leaving the Forest Service bitter, but disappointed that my career has to end this way," he said. Representatives from the timber industry and environmental groups agreed he will be missed.

Since November, he has overseen the new job of ecosystem management for the Idaho Panhandle National Forests in Coeur d'Alene. Ecosystem management means looking at the forest as a whole, including timber, wildlife and watersheds.

Critics say his job was not working and was created to get him out of the region district because he is environmentally moderate.

OSHA cites construction company

SEATTLE — A Boise construction company has been cited for $50,000 in penalties because of scaffolding problems, U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration officials say.

The "willful citation" was issued against Somnines Builders, Inc., said Ryan Kuchmichiel, OSHA area director.

The citation said standard guard rails and toeboards were not installed at open ends of metal scaffolds more than 10 feet above the ground. Lack of guard rails exposed employees to falls of 17 and 38 feet.

Utah tops U.S. in ratio of dependents

SALT LAKE CITY — Utah leads the nation in the ratio of working-age residents to dependent children and retirees, state figures show.

The Governor's Office of Planning and Budget reports that Utah has a dependency ratio of 100 working people to 82 dependents, leading South Dakota, Idaho and North Dakota.

The national average is 100 workers to 62 dependents. Natalie Gochour, director of the budget office's demographic and economic analysis section, said the ratio of workers to dependents has worse consequences for Utah.

"We have to support 28 more dependents for every 100 workers. That stresses the tax system as they provide services to dependents. That has serious implications for public education funding," she said.

The figures indicate that 36 percent of the state's population is under age 18. About 8.8 percent of residents are over 64.

Group: Keep kids from 'adult' books

SPOKANE — A citizens group wants to restrict children's access to sexy books and other adult-theme materials at the public library.

The Coalition for Better Community Standards wants the library to require a parent's permission before children can look at such items, group spokeswoman Penny Lancaster said.

The group also would like citizen involvement in the selection of "adult" material for the library, she said.

"We are not talking about Huck Finn. We are talking about extremely explicit material," Lancaster said last week.

Toni Saville, manager of collections for the library, said the Library Board has set a policy of open access to material for everyone. It is up to parents, not the library, to guide their children, she said.

Weather stops search for missing plane

SALT LAKE CITY — Thunderstorms were expected to curtail the southern Utah search Monday for a home-built airplane missing since Saturday afternoon, a Civil Air Patrol official said.

Twenty-one CAP pilots have been looking for the single-engine Glasair since the pilot radioed the Salt Lake Air Traffic Control Center at 2:23 p.m. Saturday and said he needed to land at the nearest airfield.

The pilot gave his position as 125 miles south of Price and east of Lake Powell, but his transmissions were scratchy and it was not clear whether he was referring to Price, in eastern Utah, or Bryce National Park west of the lake.

Tribe reopens juvenile detention center

FORT HALL — Shoshone-Bannock Tribal authorities have reopened their five-bed juvenile detention center to handle an escalation in juvenile crime on the eastern Idaho reservation.

"The gangs are growing here too," said Donald Davis, police chief on the Fort Hall Reservation.

Designed to hold juveniles for up to 28 days, the center was built more than two years ago but has been open only sporadically because of financial constraints.

"The increase in crime helped Davis to convince the Tribal Business Council to underwrite the center's operations for 11 months beginning on Monday. But it is up to the chief to find a permanent source of financing after that.

New water guidelines hard on small systems

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Jeanie Peery's headache over stricter drinking water standards at her Post Falls mobile home park is about to become a migraine.

The owner of Chief Selkice Mobile Park already is paying about $1,800 a year to test her small water system for 70 contaminants. Now the state says it is forced to change new fees to back up the federal Safe Drinking Water Act.

But Idaho officials say that if they do not regulate drinking water, then the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency will.

To maintain regulatory control over its drinking water program, Idaho must adopt evolving minimum federal requirements. To pay for enforcing those rules, Idaho will charge all water systems, even tiny ones like Peery's. The estimated $1.2 million statewide total raised starting in October would pay the operating costs of the program.

"It's maddening," she said. "These people can't afford to pay any more money."

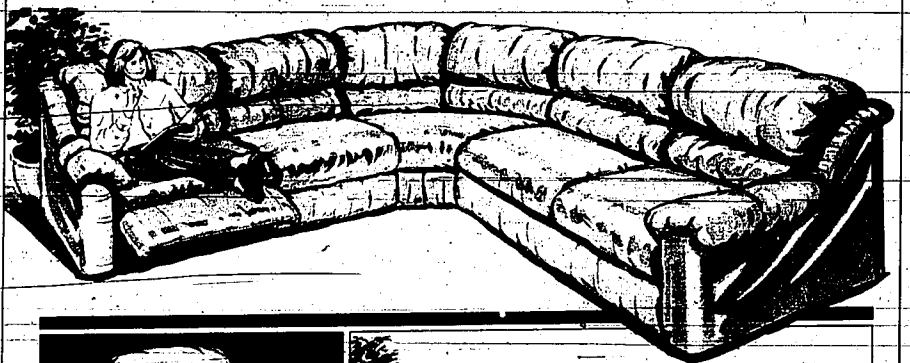

"If things keep going up, we'll have to sell. But I don't know who would want to buy it. There's nothing in my books. It's in the red."

The new fees will total about $125 a year for Peery, but she and other small water systems already pay almost $1,800 annually to comply with federal regulations.

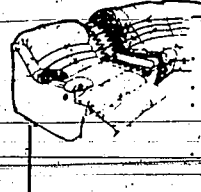

Steve Tanner, who heads northern Idaho's drinking water program for the state Division of Environmental Quality, said it is important for the state to maintain regulatory control, because the feds offer no flexibility like waivers to water systems, allowing them several years between expensive tests.

The war over chores

Battle over tasks at home escalates as women work

Knigh-Ridder News Service

Denise Uhlman Kirkland and her husband, Ron, have been happily married for five years. The Philadelphia couple clearly enjoy each other's company.

"I truly feel he is my soul mate," she says. "If you take away the household chores, I've never regretted a day."

"Oh, is there a problem with the household chores?"

"Something like dirty dishes or laundry should not be a priority," she says firmly.

"She pushes, then adds, "Unless you need clean underwear."

And therein lies the problem.

The laundry. The dishes. The cooking.

The bathrooms. The putting away. The cleaning up. The household tasks.

So many couples still argue about clearing the table or putting dirty laundry away or cleaning the toilet. Who does what? Is it divided equally? Is it divided at all?

Call it, as one magazine already has, Chore Wars.

The carping about cleaning up has become more prevalent as more women work outside the home. Clearly, spouses have always complained about spouses. OK, it's mostly women complaining about men — not doing enough in the home.

But it's getting worse now.

"There is no more time in the day than there was when wives stayed home, but there is twice as much to get done," wrote University of California at Berkeley sociologist Arlie Hochschild in her 1989 book, "The Second Shift." The title refers to the first shift women work at their jobs and the second shift at home.

Add work in and out of the home, and women work 15 hours more a week than men do, Hochschild concludes, leading to increased frustration on the part of many women.

"There is no more time in the day than there was when wives stayed home, but there is twice as much to get done."

— Arlie Hochschild, sociologist and author

"The national data says that the proportion of women in the workforce is going up, an women working and having kids is going up. Two-income families are not going away," says Louise Lamphere, an anthropology professor at the University of New Mexico and the coauthor of "Sunbelt Working Mothers: Reconciling Family and Factory" (1993, Cornell University Press).

Jane and Tom Huesser of Washington Township, Pa., are one of those two-income families. Both worked before they married nine years ago, both still work. He's a salesman, she's an office manager for a physicians group. Each is 34, and they have a 6-month-old son, Tommy.

Her father died when she was 10. She grew up with one brother and four sisters in Washington Township.

"When we were kids, my mom did everything," she says. "As we got older, the girls helped. My stepfather put up panelling, cemented the patio. My baby brother? He got off the hook. We still call him the 'king'."

"None of it fazed my mother. She doesn't believe men should do anything in the house. She didn't expect my stepfather to do anything."

If the woman wants the responsibility, and does the chores, no difficulty arises, Lamphere writes. But if the woman has the responsibility only in her husband's eyes, then anything the man does is just helping out — but it is still his job.

In her book, Lamphere says it's important to distinguish who has responsibility for the chores.

When Jane Huesser married, she did not want to run the house the way her mother had. She assumed that her husband would "have the same housecleaning habits as me. He was a bachelor. He must know how to do things. He would want to do them."

Not exactly.

His refrigerator usually held beer, milk, ketchup, mustard, ice cream and leftover food.

frequently gray or green.

"The refrigerator was a science project," she says.

After 12 months of marriage, I started nagging him to pick up his clothes. I did all the housework the first and second year, and I was pretty aggravated on Saturday mornings when I had to clean the whole house. He worked every Saturday."

She says he "responded by not responding. He said, 'I'll pitch in for a couple of days.'"

Tom sits quietly, listening to the litany.

She began to notice how other couples lived. There were men who helped around the house. She made a list of the chores and said, "Pick out what you want."

She says the list changed everything. He doesn't remember the list at all. Then the baby came along and prompted a revised list — one he remembers.

Tom's parents were divorced when he was little, and he grew up in apartments. He lived in apartments as an adult. He lived simply. "Take 15 minutes to clean," he says.

When he married, he saw no reason to cook. "She could do it a lot better than I could."

He took care of the dogs, the car, house repairs. He worked 60 to 80 hours a week. "Our upstairs-in-the-first-house was one-bedroom. I vacuumed, cleaned the stairs."

Were the chores divided? "No, 'divided' wasn't the word. 'Help' was the word."

"If she says if they are both working outside the house, it's only fair that they both work in the house. Sure, he's more of a basement kind of a guy than a kitchen guy, but he's trying."

Rena Sherman says it doesn't matter how household tasks are divided as long as the participants are happy about it.

Some couples, come in with a husband to say about his wife: "I work more hours than she does so she should do it."

When that happens, Sherman helps them both count the hours that they work "and then I let them decide if it is equitable."

Some couples come in with marital difficulties, and in the course of counseling, household tasks come up. Others come in with it as the "presenting issue."

Laughter at funeral alters church status

DEAR ABBY: After reading your columns about laughter at inappropriate times, I had to write.

I am now 37. As a child, I was forced to go to a Catholic school from first grade through the eighth. I was also an altar boy.

I will never forget the time we were in the middle of a funeral service and the mourners were within a few feet of me near the casket. One of the mourners was a man who was a very heavy breather, and every time he exhaled, his nose made a whistling sound. After about 10 whistles, I started to laugh. Finally, I was laughing so hard I started to shake. The incense burner I was carrying had chains, and the more I shook, the more the chains rattled.

Needless to say, I was severely chewed out by one of the kindly nuns, who kicked me out of the altar.

Reading about all of the other people who went on laughing jags during funeral services made me realize I wasn't so bad after all!

— PHIL S. EVERETT, WASH.

DEAR PHIL: Thanks. Here's another one to add to the collection:

DEAR ABBY: My grandfather's funeral service was held at his residence—because Grandpa had been a U.S. Marine. He was 97 when he died, and had a military funeral. Some shots were fired as a part of the ceremony.

This scared the wits out of Grandpa, who was sitting on the folding chair. Grandpa fell off the chair — then one of the little kids yelled, "Gee ... they shot Grandpa!"

— AN UNFORGETTABLE FUNERAL

Dear Abby Abigail Van Buren

DEAR UNFORGETTABLE FUNERAL: Considering the number of random shootings that make the evening news these days, it's a wonder the entire funeral party didn't hit the ground.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I invited his parents out for dinner to celebrate their wedding anniversary. There were just the four of us. We made reservations at one of the very best restaurants because we wanted it to be an exceptional evening. My husband ordered a fine wine for the dinner, and champagne with dessert.

Everyone was in a good mood and the conversation was lively. It was a perfect evening — until the waiter brought the check to the table and handed it to my husband since he was the host. Well, his mother grabbed the check out of his hands and gave it to his father!

Abby, my husband and I have fairly good incomes, and paying that bill would not have been a hardship. He didn't want to make a scene, so he let his father pay for what was going to be our anniversary gift.

Please print this so other parents of children will realize how unfair it is to take over the party when they were invited as guests.

— THWARTED IN NEW YORK

DEAR THWARTED: It isn't easy for parents of adult offspring to realize that their children are no longer youngsters and deserve to be treated as adults. Thank you for an important reminder.

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Unit of the American Cancer Society has planned its annual "Jail and Bail" for 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday and Friday at the Municipal Jail.

The arrest begins by someone calling the American Cancer Society hotline at 733-3734, 420-2051 or 420-2050 and requesting the apprehension of their boss, spouse, or politician, or other co-worker or friend. The caller pays a tax-deductible arrest fee of $15. A volunteer visits the arrested, seizes a warrant, explains the situation and takes him/her off to jail. With telephone and books provided by the American Cancer Society, the jailed make pledge calls to friends, relatives and co-workers to earn their bail.

The goal of the Jail and Bail is to provide a way to raise money for the American Cancer Society, create a greater public awareness of the society's goals and purposes and to provide visibility and community support for local citizens, businesses and others who participate in the event.

Feltman, Greenwood card aces at Jerome

JEROME — Steve Feltman of Twin Falls and Dick Greenwood of Jerome each fired a hole in one last week at Jerome Country Club.

Feltman used a 7-iron to ace the 151-yard, par 3 seventh hole. Witness were Bruce Thomason and Irene Daisewick.

Greenwood's 4-iron led to an ace on the 184-yard, par 3 12th hole. Witnesses were his son Ben and Bill Berry.

Wendell fund-raising event to help Trojan baseball team

WENDELL — Fathers and sons in the Wendell area are encouraged to take part in a baseball game Saturday that will benefit the high school baseball program.

The event features the high school-age sons playing their fathers at 6 p.m. at McGinnis Park in Wendell. Entry fee is $10 and admission for all ages is $2.

Interested person should contact Doug Rex at 536-6269.

Buhl sets Thursday meeting for all volleyball players

Idahoan qualifies for U.S. Amateur Golf Championship

BUTTE, Mont. — Travis Thompson of Hayden Lake, Idaho, fired a 3-under-par 140 to win a 36-hole qualifying event Monday and a berth in the 93rd U.S. Amateur Golf Championship in Houston on Aug. 24-29.

Thompson, won by five strokes over Dave Cassell of Butte and Kelly Gilligan, the 1993 Montana state amateur champion from Great Falls.

Cassell and Gilligan shot 142s, and Cassell then won a six-hole playoff to claim the first alternate spot. Cassell will represent the section at the Houston tournament if Thompson is unable to compete.

The tournament drew 12 contestants with handicaps of 3 or better from the western United States and Canada.

Californian leads U.S. Women's Amateur event

CHULA VISTA, Calif. — Heidi Voorhes had six birdies in 4-under-par 69 Monday and held a four-stroke lead after the first round of the U.S. Women's Amateur Championship.

Voorhes, 20, from Valley Village, Calif., started her round on the 6,330-yard San Diego Country Club course with consecutive birdies and finished it with one of her two bogeys.

Leta Lindley, of Carlsbad, Calif., and Kelly Pittman, of Statesboro, Ga., finished at 73, while former champions Anne Sander, of Santa Barbara, Calif., and Carol Semple Thompson, of Sewickley, Pa., finished at 77 and 81, respectively.

DETROIT — The Baltimore Orioles stretched their winning streak to eight games Monday night and crept to within a half-game of first place with a 4-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers, all because of a couple of guys who would not quit.

Catcher Mark Pary, who had to be talked out of giving up on baseball at the end of spring training, broke a scoreless tie with a two-run home run in the fifth as the Orioles took over sole possession of second place in the crowded American League East race.

If they make it to the playoffs, it will be — in at least a small way — because Pary was not the retiring type.

He was crushed by the club's decision to option him to the Triple-A Rochester Red Wings at the end of training camp, but he listened when Manager Johnny Oates and teammate Rick Stultiff advised him to give the game one more chance.

This year's volatile Mets not a big happy family

Knight-Ridder News Service

NEW YORK — The exit said Shea Stadium, but the polite young men out on the field didn't look like those infamous outlaws, the Mets. They were laughing and chatting and taking videos. They were holding their babies and playing catch with their children. Bob-By Bonilla's big-five-fiving his daughter. Bret Saberhagen, limping around on one crutch, was tossing a ball to his little towhead son.

Turns out Sunday was Family Day at Shea. The Mets had cleared out of one of the more oedipal clubhouses in baseball history and were having some fun.

So there were no tabloid headlines to be made. None to be added to the collection: Bonilla threatens to take reporter to the Bronx; Coleman injures Gooden with 9-iron! Saberhagen admits throwing firecracker under reporter's Coleman won't talk about throwing firecracker at child! The mysterious bleach-spraying episode! Saberhagen throws fit, throws a box of golf balls, shatters a plastic water gun, tosses a stuffed animal.

The cellar-dwelling Mets, holding at a mere 30-122 games behind the Phillies, can barely make it through a day without some bit of awful news.

Monday, Saberhagen had arthroscopic surgery on his left knee and is expected to be sidelined for about a month. Vince Coleman is expected to surrender to police in Los Angeles to face a felony charge after throwing an explosive device that injured a 2-year-old girl.

And there is talk around Shea that punishment could come down this week for the player who sprayed bleach on reporters in the clubhouse.

No one in the clubhouse tries to put the best face on this season.

"It is an awful situation ... basically, what it boils down to," said Mets pitcher Frank Tomana, who wants out.

The manager of the Mets, Dallas Green, can point to one overriding reason that the Mets are in this condition. The team, he said, was put together by business people. If it as if the Mets were built like a rosterserie team. Add all the past statistics together and you should come up with a good lineup. But Green knows it doesn't work that way.

Talks could result in 'economic revolution'

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — When baseball owners meet this week at Kohler, Wis., they will hear a call for revenue sharing and a salary cap — a call tantamount to economic revolution for their sport.

And the fallout from these proposals could have a profound impact on the rest of the season.

Donald Fehr, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, talked last month of a possible strike by the union in September, just before owners receive about $250 million in postseason television income. Adopting a plan attached to a salary cap, which the players have strongly opposed for some time, would nullify the union's resolve.

"I don't know what will come out of their meeting," Fehr said. "We've got a lot of questions with no answers. They've talked about a partnership with the players for a long time. We've yet to have any."

The proposal is certain to spark a lively debate, but Ravitch has argued for some time that big-city franchises must share revenues with small-market teams for all to flourish.

For example, the New York Yankees have a local cable television contract that pays them an average of $40.5 million a year while teams like Seattle and Milwaukee make only a fraction of that from local broadcast rights.

"There are legal issues, conceptual issues, arithmetical issues," Ravitch said. "So it's very complicated. There's been an immense amount of data shared with the clubs over four or five months of intense work."

Richard Ravitch, president of management's Player Relations Committee, will put the cap and revenue sharing plan on the table at the session that National League president Bill White has said "could be the most important meeting in the history of baseball."

Although the contract doesn't expire until Dec. 31, owners reopened provisions relating to free agency, salary arbitration and the minimum salary. However, there have been no negotiations since January. In September, Ravitch is scheduled to present the owners with his proposed package for the players.

Paul Molitor of the Blue Jays, a member of the union's executive subcommittee, said the players remain dubious.

"I'm not very optimistic about the proposal they're going to make," he said. "Putting a cap on salaries just gives money back to the teams that give up money to the small markets from their local revenue."

Right now, though, Green feels hamstringed.

"Before, you made a move instantaneously," Green said of acquiring — and dismissing — players. "Now you've got to check with 15 lawyers and 15 other guys, and check with the Players Association."

Green has talked about how he would like to flush a couple of guys off his team, how he is worried about how all the clubhouse acrimony will affect the younger players. The team needs to build around.

"If you're not involved, you keep your head down, whether you're a rookie or a veteran, no matter who you are," said rookie outfielder Jeremy Burnitz, who hit a grand slam and had seven RBIs the other day. "If you don't, you could be asking for trouble."

New-look 'Skins stymie old-look Browns

Young calls injury irritation

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Washington Redskins opened their exhibition season Monday night with a new coach, some new quick-pass plays and showed the form that brought them a Super Bowl trophy two years ago, beating the Cleveland Browns 41-12.

Aikman returns - B9

Quarterback Mark Rypien, coming off a 37-yard touchdown pass in the Redskins' first exhibition game, looked like he did two years ago. Completing 8 of 12 passes, including one for a touchdown, he gave the Redskins a 14-0 lead on their first two possessions before retiring for the night.

Traditionally, a dump-back passer, Rypien had little trouble with the new extra-back, quick-timing routes borrowed from the Dallas Cowboys and San Francisco 49ers.

The plays were added by rookie coach Richie Petitbon.

With starting center Jay Hilgenberg sidelined with a sprained knee, the Browns were plagued by fumbles throughout the night. Turnovers on fumbles and interceptions stopped their last four drives of the game.

Former Tampa Bay quarterback, Vinnie Testaverde completed 10 of 15 passes for 108 yards as Bernie Kosar's backup for the Browns. Kosar completed 10 of 11 passes for 39 yards before he was removed. Rypien's 8-yard touchdown pass was to Washington Redskins running back Brian Mitchell dives into the end zone for a first-quarter touchdown against the Cleveland Browns Monday.

Ricky Sanders. Backup quarterback Cary Conklin also contributed a touchdown with a six-yard pass to Mark Stoltz, a backup receiver struggling to make the team. He helped his prospects Monday night, returning two punts a total of 83 yards. Brian Mitchell, Robert Green and rookie

Reggie Brooks each added touchdowns for the Redskins and Chip Lohmiller had field goals of 32 and 47 yards. Fullback Tommy Vardell scored all of Cleveland's points with 1- and 4-yard runs. He also finished the game as the Browns' top rusher with 57 yards on 14 carries.

The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Steve Young sees it as an irritation, a minor setback.

"It's kind of like a ballerina with a stubbed toe," Young said.

She can't dance. Young can't pass. Just how long Young will be sidelined by a broken thumb on his passing hand is open to question. But there's a chance the San Francisco 49ers may have to start the regular season without last year's MVP and passing leader.

He got the injury, described as a hairline fracture in the tip of his left thumb, during the first quarter of the San Francisco 49ers' 27-0 exhibition win Sunday over the Los Angeles Raiders at Stanford Stadium.

"At this moment, if I had to throw, I wouldn't be able to grip the ball," said Young, who hurt the thumb when it struck the helmet of hitting linebacker Aaron Wallace as he finished his follow through to a pass.

So far now, the team whose quarterback depth was once the envy of the league finds itself with only one healthy, tested player at the position. Steve Bono.

Joe Montana was traded to Kansas City in the offseason.

Young, who is the league's highest paid player, insists he'll be back in plenty of time. Please see YOUNG/B7

Lopez: Motherhood priority over golf

Chicago Tribune

CHICAGO — Nancy Lopez talked Monday about golf and motherhood. She indicated that some day soon she'll have to select between the two careers.

Lopez left little doubt about what her ultimate decision will be. "I will leave golf," she said. "I will have an old Hall of Fame star, but I grow weary of the travel, life on the pro tour, the hotels, the success, gets old."

"I don't like to leave home," Lopez said. "I'd like to be a full-time mom."

Lopez is in Chicago with her three daughters — Ashley, 9; Erin, 7; and Tomi, who will be 2 in October. Her sons' nanny will take them to museums, movies, 2006 and parks this week while their mother plays in the LPGA Chicago Challenge.

Lopez is playing her first tournament in the Chicago area since the 1981 U.S. Open at La Grange Country Club. That was before she married former baseball star Steve Garvey and the couple began rearing their family.

Jackson faces weapon charge

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Four

teen-agers testified Monday that Jim Jackson of the Dallas Mavericks waved a gun at them as they were riding in a car last winter.

Jackson appeared before Franklin County Municipal Judge Steven Hayes with his attorney, Bill Mabe.

The 27-year-old former Ohio State basketball star was charged with one count of aggravated menacing, one count of carrying a concealed weapon in a motor vehicle and four counts of disorderly conduct.

Jackson, he could be sentenced to 11 months in jail and fined $2,250.

The teen-agers testified they were driving down a Columbus street Dec. 30 when they spotted Jackson's car. The four said that as they tried to get Jackson's attention, their car swerved but never left the road.

Jackson, who is 6-foot-10, 200 pounds and has a mustache, pointed a handgun toward the car and shouted obscenities.

Washington defeats Pernfors in ATP round

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Mikael

Pernfors, unsettled by his recent victory at the Canadian Open, lost 6-4, 6-2 Monday to Maljavi Washington on a quiet opening day at the ATP Championship.

The Canadian Open victory moved him to No. 37 in the computer rankings and made him a celebrity again.

"I was not yet comfortable with that, either," he said.

"Three weeks ago, nobody cared about what I did on the tennis court," he said. "Now everybody cares."

"It's a lot more hectic. People are calling me at the hotel room all the time. I've got to deal with that."

Pernfors also found himself dealing with a weak first serve Monday, which let out on the defensive all match.

"I was able to put pressure on him," Washington said. "He was not really able to do anything to hurt me."

Volkov guessed about 220 athletes participated in the event, which included a 1.5-kilometer swim, a 40-kilometer bike ride and a 10-kilometer run.

Several finishers qualified for a championship triathlon to be held in Hawaii next month.

Fahrenbach posts top time in Burley Spudman triathlon

By Eric Goodell

BURLEY — Bryan Fahrenbach topped the field in Saturday's Lion's Cup Spudman triathlon in Burley.

The nationally known endurance event had fewer participants than usual this year because of a couple of factors. But the event, in its seventh year, went well, according to Dennis Peterson, parks and recreation director.

"It seemed we handed out as many trophies as ever, but there were probably fewer participants in the different divisions," Peterson said.

Fahrenbach, a top finisher in last year's race, posted a time of 1 hour, 46 minutes and 13 seconds.

Kathy Morrell was the top women's finisher with a time of 2:05:03.

Brent Lee of Burley finished 12th overall with a time of 2:00:30.

Peterson guessed about 220 athletes participated in the event, which included a 1.5-kilometer swim, a 40-kilometer bike ride and a 10-kilometer run.

Several finishers qualified for a championship triathlon to be held in Hawaii next month.

Fifteenth seed Maljavi Washington returns a shot from unseeded Mikael Pernfors Monday during their first-round match of the ATP Championship. Washington won 6-4, 6-2.

Elbow surgery likely for Charlton

Seattle Times

ARLINGTON, Texas — Seattle Mariners closer Norm Charlton, expected to undergo elbow-tendon replacement surgery this week, likely will not be back until next season's All-Star break.

could be throwing off the mound in March or April," Griffin said.

But a decade ago his chances of even pitching effectively again would not be nearly as good as they are today.

He worked for John. He went on to pitch nearly 2,000 more innings and earn 124 of his 255 career victories.

Trainer Rick Griffin, however, said it appears that Charlton tore the ulnar collateral ligament in his left elbow during his ninth-inning outing last Saturday night.

Among them are Joe Sambito, former Mariner Matt Young and Mariner reliever Dwayne Henry. Mariner farmhand Kerry Woodson had the surgery six weeks ago.

Griffin said if the diagnosis is confirmed, the Mariners tore the ulnar collateral ligament in his left elbow during his ninth-inning outing last Saturday night.

Henry was out from July 1982 until 1984 spring training. He has appeared in 23 big-league games since.

Thrown ball injures Reds coach

SAN FRANCISCO — Cincinnati first-base coach Jose Cardenal was injured Monday when he was struck in the head by a thrown ball during batting practice prior to a game against the San Francisco Giants.

Holman, 25, fractured his frontal sinus cavity Sunday night against the Texas Rangers.

He was scheduled to be examined by an ear, nose and throat specialist and undergo a CAT scan and, for their tests, administrators said.

A CAT scan proved negative and Cardenal was released from the hospital. He returned to the team hotel to rest.

Holman was hit in the seventh inning with a line drive off the bat of Mauro Diaz.

Cardenal lay motionless for about five minutes before being lifted onto a stretcher and taken off the field incart, a doctor at his side.

Players and fans watched in horror as the ball ricocheted off the pitcher's head and landed in the Rangers' dugout. Holman clutched his head with both hands as he dropped to the mound.

He was conscious and coherent as he left the field but was transported to San Francisco General Hospital as a precaution, team officials said.

Team officials said Holman was alert and conscious when he arrived at the hospital. Seattle manager Lou Piniella said blood later came from Holman's nose but that the pitcher remained alert.

Cardenal didn't see the ball coming and it wasn't immediately known who tossed the ball.

Gwynn, McLemore earn top awards

NEW YORK — Tony Gwynn's 2,000th career hit earned him National League Player of the Week honors for Aug. 28.

Cardenal was "accidentally" hit in the head by a swing bat during a drill three years ago.

Mark McLemore was the American League Player of the Week.

Seattle pitcher OK following beaming

ARLINGTON, Texas — Seattle Mariners rookie right-hander Brad Holman was listed in good condition Monday night at Arlington Memorial Hospital, one day after being hit in the forehead by a line drive.

Gwynn, the star right fielder of the San Diego Padres, tied the major league record with his fourth game of the season with five or more hits when he went 6-for-7 last Wednesday. He batted .560, with 14 hits in 25 at-bats, scored eight runs and drove in four. His single on Friday night against Colorado got him to 2,000.

A decision will be made Tuesday about how long Holman must be hospitalized, an Arlington Memorial administrator said.

McLemore, an outfielder with the Baltimore Orioles, led the AL with 13 hits and 23 total bases.

'Ryan's Express' scorched many

Dallas Morning News

ARLINGTON, Texas — The legacy of Nolan Ryan will not be that he pitched so long. The wonder was that he spent so much time on the mound in the strike zone, particularly when he didn't have one.

two damn good ones. And, not the same speed, either.

outside of his hand, with the tips of his index finger and thumb touching, forming a circle.

Ryan went more than half his career with two pitches: a 95-plus mph fastball and a curve. Scouting reports were simple: a curve in the vicinity of the strike zone usually was unhittable, as he proved on five occasions.

Ryan's off-speed pitch hadn't been effective with the Mets or the California Angels because it wasn't far off-speed. Biting coaches say a change-up must be 10 mph slower than the fastball to fool a batter. Ryan's wasn't. He couldn't "slow it down enough" or disguise it so that it looked like a fastball when it left his hand.

Ryan worked on the "circle change" for at least four years before it began to feel comfortable. By the time he had command of it, he was a different pitcher.

He got his 4,000th strikeout on July 11, 1985, on a wicked 0-2 curveball against the New York Mets' Danny Heep.

They, in 1981, Joe Nuxhall, a Cincinnati Reds broadcaster and former pitcher, showed Ryan how the Reds' Mario Soto threw his changeup. The secret for Soto, who had the best changeup in the league, was his grip. Soto allowed the ball to slide to the

The possibility seemed ludicrous. Ryan was 38 by 1985. He had thrown five no-hitters, four of them a decade earlier, when his fastball still hung around the 100-mph barrier.

"But if he didn't get his curve over," said Claude Osteen, the Rangers' pitching coach and a former opponent, "we had a hell of a chance of winning, because he was going to put men on base."

"We gave him enough time and waited on his fastball."

Teams waited and, generally, won. Even a 100-mph fastball is hittable, eventually. Hitting is turning. Forget the curve: wait on the fastball, and put the trigger a little earlier than usual.

Ryan eventually came up with a remedy by the mid-1980s, of course.

Teams waited and, generally, won. Even a 100-mph fastball is hittable, eventually. Hitting is turning. Forget the curve: wait on the fastball, and put the trigger a little earlier than usual.

Aikman resumes practice

The Associated Press

Troy Aikman has the medical go-ahead to resume practicing in pads and pants next Saturday's exhibition game between Dallas Cowboys and the Los Angeles Raiders.

However, coach Jimmy Johnson and offensive coordinator Norm Van Brocklin continue to indicate they want Aikman on the sidelines until the final exhibition game, Aug. 27 against the Chicago Bears.

The Super Bowl MVP has been working out without pads recovering from back surgery.

"I'm very excited," Aikman said after watching his team produce a 13-13 tie with the Detroit Lions in their second exhibition.

While the Cowboys were in London for the American Bowl, Aikman flew to Los Angeles for a checkup by Dr. Robert Watkins, who performed surgery on a herniated disk in the quarterback's back June 19. Watkins gave Aikman clearance to resume workouts.

"Sure I'll feel better after I take that first hit," said Aikman, who threw in pads for the first time last week. "But with the way I feel and having the clearance from doctors, there's no reason not to be really optimistic."

The Cowboys need him. In six quarters, backup Hugh Miller has led in offense to only 13 points while throwing three interceptions.

"Hugh's done a good job. But without Troy, we were lacking some firepower," Johnson said.

The Cowboys will be without hold-out running back Emmitt Smith. During Sunday's game, they lost defensive back Kenneth Gant for about a month with a dislocated shoulder.

No matter which exhibition game Aikman plays in, it will be several games earlier than doctors had predicted.

Watkins had said Aikman could miss 12 weeks, meaning two regular-season games. But Aikman had pledged to return in no more than eight weeks. His return Tuesday comes seven weeks and three days after surgery. "I know a lot of people are surprised,

Irregular heartbeat hospitalizes New York Giants' guard Roberts

MADISON, N.J. (AP) — A mixture of an over-the-counter decongestant and cold water may have triggered the irregular heartbeat that forced New York Giants lineman William Roberts to leave an exhibition game Saturday, his doctor said Monday.

Dr. Jeffrey Borer said he did not consider Roberts' condition life-threatening, adding that it is not uncommon for people with irregular heartbeats to have such episodes occasionally.

Roberts had to leave Saturday's exhibition game in Cincinnati in the third quarter when his heartbeat increased rapidly; the third time in two years that he has experienced the problem.

"It seems unlikely he has an underlying problem that would cause greater difficulty than we've seen," Borer said in a telephone interview.

Borer said Roberts would be monitored over the next week or so, adding he might return to the field within the next two weeks.

"It's a non life-threatening condition," Borer said. "The problem is it rendered the heart less effective as a pumping device."

White Giants coach Dan Reeves also sounded optimistic that Roberts would be able to play again, he said the team would not take any chances when it came to the health of the 31-year-old guard. He said Roberts would not play Saturday against Pittsburgh and probably would miss the following week's game against the New York Jets.

"Certainly I think everyone is sensitive (with) the Reggie Lewis death," Reeves said, referring to the Boston Celtics captain who recently died after being diagnosed with a heart abnormality.

"Just the fact it is someone's heart, you want to make sure you are not doing something to jeopardize his life or his career."

Roberts' problem is an irregular fibrillation, which is not the same condition that led to Lewis' death two weeks ago.

After Lewis' death, Roberts said he would continue to play and did not believe his condition was at all similar to the basketball player's.

"I don't feel any stress on me," the 1990 Pro Bowl selection said. "Maybe that's just how I am. When it's your time to go, it's your time to go no matter what happens. Life has to go on."

NFL training camps

but I haven't done anything I didn't think I could do," he said.

David Fulcher, described by general manager Mike Brown as "the best strong safety who has played for the Bengals," may have become one of the first of many casualties of the off-season era when he was released by Cincinnati.

Team spokesman Al Heim said Fulcher was released because he wasn't playing well in preseason and had bursts in his foot. However, on a team known for Pro Bowlers, a three-time Pro Bowler, was due to make $1,033 million this season.

Officials of many teams predict that next year, when the salary cap takes effect, a lot of high-priced veterans will be released and forced either to retire or play at lower salaries.

The Bengals still have not signed star running back Harold Green as well as tight end Mike Anderson, defensive end John Copeland of Alabama. They are trying to fit Copeland under the rookie salary cap, which is separate from the one on veterans, which does not apply this year.

Falcons

Defensive end Pierce Holt practiced Monday after his right elbow was diagnosed as a case of tendinitis. Dr. John Garrett said X-rays to see if there were chips in Holt's elbow proved negative.

Wide receiver Steve Broussard, suspended for missing a curfew, also practiced.

But the Falcons' last unsigned player, linebacker Dan Connor, who said Saturday he would sign a contract and report to camp, did not show up. There also was no sign of wide receiver Andre Rison, linebacker Jessie Tuggle and offensive lineman Chris Hinton. All three have stayed out of camp, attempting to renegotiate their contracts.

Broncos

The 23-7 victory over Tampa Bay produced some pleasant problems for Denver coaches.

Before training camp, the team did not expect to keep both Muhammad-Oliver and Frank Robinson, but each intercepted two passes Saturday and coach Wade Phillips says he now might keep both.

"They have been so-so in camp so far, nothing outstanding," Phillips said. "But both Frank and Muhammad had outstanding games. They made outstanding plays, and that's what you're looking for — guys on your team that can do that."

Last season, the Broncos kept eight defensive backs on their final roster, and they likely will carry the same this season.

"You have to try to keep everybody who can play good for you," Phillips said. "You can cut down from another position if you have to."

Giants

The Giants, already short on the defensive line, were left even shorter when rookie defensive end Michael Strahan sustained a sprained foot ligament that could keep him out three months. If Strahan, the team's top draft choice, is placed on injured reserve, he would be out for the season.

The defensive line, which lost end Leonard Marshall to free agency, is without starters Eric Dorse and Erik Howard, both of whom have bad backs and Mike Fox, who is unsigned. Strahan started Saturday's 27-16 win over the Bengals at right end with two second-year players: Stacey Dillard and Keith Hamilton.

Guard William Roberts, meanwhile, remained hospitalized for tests after the irregular heartbeat he felt during the game went back to normal.

Dolphins

The contract offer of $650,000 to unsigned running back Bobby Humphrey will be reduced unless he accepts a deal by Tuesday. Humphrey wants nearly twice that much.

"It's not going to stay the same if he doesn't get into camp," general manager Eddie Jones said.

Humphrey's agent, Hycell Brooks, declined to speculate on Humphrey's reaction.

Humphrey, accidentally shot and arrested on drug charges in separate incidents during the offseason, is the team's lone unsigned player.

Linebacker John Oshoff, defensive end Larry Webster and defensive tackle Mike Golic returned to practice Monday after injuries.

Cards' Chandler still in running for starting post

FLAGSTAFF (AP) — Phoenix Cardinals quarterback Chris Chandler missed two practices Monday and likely will miss another today, but that will not affect his status in the competition for the starting job, coach Tom Runyan said.

Chandler, another free agent Steve Beuerlein, suffered a sprained left ankle when he was tackled after completing a pass in the Cardinals' 24-13 exhibition victory over the Los Angeles Rams Saturday.

Chandler also has been bothered by tendinitis in his right shoulder for about two weeks, caused when he altered his throwing motion because of a sore right index finger.

"He had a hard time throwing the ball. That was very apparent in the ball game. It's nothing alarming. He has some soreness in his shoulder and we want to give him a couple of days off," Runyan said.

"I could throw, but it would just never get better," Chandler said. "Cardinals team physician Dr. Russell Chick just said to rest it while I was resting my ankle. He told me to take some time."

Chandler should return to practice Wednesday and be part of a three-quarterback rotation for the Cardinals' game in Chicago on Saturday.

Beuerlein will start, followed by Chandler and second-year quarterback Tony Stappa. Hugel said.

Bruno, Lewis battle for belt in 1st all-British heavyweight bout

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Bruno is the most popular boxer in England. On Oct. 1, he'll try to prove he's also the best.

When Bruno meets WBC champion Lennox Lewis in Wales, it will be the first all-British heavyweight title bout in history.

Bruno, however, doesn't consider Lewis a countryman because the London-born champion moved to Canada when he was 12 and represented Canada when he won the gold medal at the 1988 Olympics.

"He's not British," Bruno said Monday at a "High Tea" news conference to hype the bout at Cardiff Arms Park, which is usually used for rugby and soccer matches.

"Nobody cares about Lennox Lewis in England. Not the one who's famous. I have homes named after me. I have theaters and children and dogs named after me. I even have a flower named after me. Lewis is a nobody. When he flew back to London after getting the title, only four people showed up to greet him."

Lewis, who became WBC champion

Betty Hendricks of Indianapolis supports boxer Mike Tyson at a rally in Indianapolis Monday.

King pleads for Tyson's freedom

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The debate over Mike Tyson's fate left the quiet chambers of appellate judges and spilled onto the street Monday.

Though Tyson has been granted bail with the state, Appeals Court judges' support was unanimous among some 200 people who stood outside the capitol to hear boxing promoter Don King plead for his freedom.

Mike Tyson, who did not commit the crime he was convicted of, King said standing beneath a "Justice for Mike Tyson" banner as he addressed the crowd from atop the Statehouse steps.

The flamboyant promoter compared the 2-1 appeals judgment with the 1981 court Dred Scott decision upholding slave laws. He predicted that just as the now-reviled Scott ruling fell, Tyson's conviction too would collapse.

"It could not stand because the wheels of justice had to move," King said.

He assailed Tyson's accused Rhode Island beauty-consortant Nicole Winington, whom Tyson lawyers accused of fabricating the rape story in the hopes of suing the millionaire boxer.

"She lied in order to protect herself and at the same time she destroyed another human being," he said.

Washington has continued to stand by her story. She has filed a civil suit against Tyson in federal court.

King praised Judge Patrick D. Sullivan, the lone dissenter, as a man who "stood tall for justice." Sullivan argued the jury should have heard testimony from three late-arresting defense witnesses who might have challenged part of Washington's story.

King said Tyson should have been freed on appeal, but he denied him soon after he was sentenced in March 1992 to six years in prison.

"They're going to make him do the time whether or not he did the crime," he said.

Tyson remains at the Indiana Youth Center about 20 miles west of downtown Indianapolis while appeals attorney Alan Derbowitz appeared to ask the state Supreme Court to hear the case.

The Tyson case has been punctuated throughout with appearances by King, who took charge of his boxing and managed the young boxer's career after he collapsed under the rape charge.

King of supporters, similar to those who greeted Tyson every morning of his trial, broke into chants of "Free Mike Tyson," and later, "Modest must go," in reference to Harrison County Prosecutor Jeffrey Modest.

In December when the organization stripped Riddick Bowe, said he's more British than Bruno.

"I've boxed more British fighters than he has," Lewis said. "He has never even boxed for the British title."

To underscore the all-England theme, "Pomp and Circumstance" was played as "palace guards" rolled out a red carpet for the fighters, who then posed with a woman dressed as the queen.

"This is an historic event in England," said Dan Duva, Lewis' promoter.

About 40,000 fans are expected to attend the 12-round fight, which will be televised live in the United States by HBO. The bout will start about 7:30 p.m. in New York, which is 12:30 a.m. the following morning in Wales.

Both fighters said the late start won't bother them.

"I'm training late at night, so it won't make any difference to me," Bruno said. "And it won't matter to Lewis either, because when I hit him, he won't know whether he's in Wales, Canada or New York."

This will be Bruno's third shot at the heavyweight title. Bruno, 36-3 with 35 knockouts, lost title bids to Tim Witherspoon in 1986 and Mike Tyson in 1989.

"He's a loser," said Lewis, who is 23-0 with 19 knockouts. "And he's jealous of me because I'm a winner."

If Lewis beats Bruno, he will make his next defense against Tommy Morrison next March in Las Vegas. But the fight the public wants to see is Lewis against Bowe, who holds the WBA and IBF versions of the heavyweight crown.

Lewis, who beat Bowe for the gold medal in Seoul, said he hopes a rematch will take place after the Morrison bout.

"I think the American public is sick and tired of seeing Bowe fight a bunch of bums," Lewis said. "It's about time he stepped into the ring with a real fighter."

Lewis will earn about $6 million, while Bruno will get $1.5 million plus a share of the gate.

HOT VALUES ON TIRES FOR WHATEVER YOU DRIVE!

Z800 PLUS

It was 5 years ago we introduced the Z-800, our 60,000 mile tire. We sold over 2-million with fantastic results - tremendous customer satisfaction.

Now, today, I'm proud to introduce the all new Z-800 PLUS. In my mind, this is the best radial tire made in the world today.

It's why we give it our new 60,000 mile guarantee. Try a set for 30 days. If you don't agree - return 'em, we'll give your money back.

Sydney Omarr Horoscope

IF AUGUST 10 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You're independent, stubborn, creative, impulsive, sexual, possess abundance of sex appeal. Father exerted much influence. You are an original thinker, courageous, controversial. In September you'll be on more solid emotional-financial ground. Important that you read between lines; study fine print; do research; and if these things you do, September will be memorable, profitable.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You recently lamented, "If only I had the money!" Funds become available, it now is up to you - you could travel, write. Love relationship "spotty" but exciting.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Cycle remains high focus on family relationships, sale or purchase of property. Romance, music in your life tonight - you'll be happy. The odds were against it but it did happen to me!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Gift received from "unknown admirer." You may have seen a copy but actually the secret is "unknown." Be discreet, be vulnerable to love. Cupid's arrow hits - it hurts so good.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Spotlight on business affairs, academic, intense relationship ability to overcome obstacles. Wish is fulfilled, you could hit jackpot in finance and romance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Accent universal appeal, obtain better display for product, talent. Taurus Moon coincides with legal action, promotion, production, fulfillment of major ambition.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Answer Yes, it's time for fresh start in new direction and, yes, different kind of love on horizon. Taurus Moon highlights travel, publishing, participation in exciting mission. Go for it!

Rome took its time taking reins

Rome didn't become the capital of modern Italy until pretty late, actually 1870. Same year, New York City's "Tavern" - a tavern - reopened on Broadway at 9th. Shegwin-Williams Paint Company went into business in downtown Trenton, and the Smith Brothers' Item 7134-C in "our Love and War man's file: When a single woman says her love life is "uncomplicated," she means "it's married."

Sudan's pyramids outnumber Egypt's pyramids. And what do we know about them? Nothing.

"Home, Sweet Home" wound up with the curious distinction during the Civil War as the only song popular both in the North and in the South.

Beak coffee beans is a quartar and pestle. Knead in animal fat. Roll the mix into balls. Eat same for nourishment and stimulation. This is how certain early African warriors did it. History suggests it works best just before you go on the attack.

Some people live to be at least 100 years old on Okinawa as on the major islands of Japan.

L.M. Boyd What's what?

Q. You said the original calypso started out as some sort of code. Like what?

A. African slaves in the fields of Trinidad were forbidden to talk but forbidden to sing. So in the French-Creole dialect called patois, they sang to each other constantly - stories, warnings, gossip, complaints, whatever.

"Bimonthly" means "every two months." "Bimonthly" also means "twice a month." Sometimes you can figure it out.

If the mother needs help with the kids, the father tends to stay with her to give that help. If she doesn't, he doesn't. This is a scientific claim about all animal species: "The mate is usually monogamous, if the female is reliant, and usually polygamous, if the female is self-sufficient."

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Attention revolves around public image, credibility, legal decision, marital status. Divorced, recent different modes of transportation, laugh at your own foibles.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Individual you thought was "on the other side" will actually be at your side. Lovers' quarrel should not be blown out of proportion.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Lang-avastral message arrives - spells freedom to travel, to participate in exciting, creative endeavor.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on intellect, more potential, understand once and for all that you are special, don't be afraid to be dubbed "an elitist." You'll be involved in art, music, literature.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You might feel as if playing active role in "spy" mystery. Focus on trips, visits, special invitations, be at your site.

Emphasis on communication, publishing, advertising.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF... "He that is too secure is not safe." - Thomas Fuller... West's opening lead gave South a one-over-the-table trick score, but it paid big dividends. It made South so confident about his game that he failed to see what eventually hit him. West's fourth-best spade went to South's six, and declarer saw more than enough tricks to make his game. Thanks to the accommodating lead, South could count four spades, four clubs, one heart and perhaps two diamonds. It was the "perhaps" that did him in. South started the clubs at trick two, West ducking two rounds. South carelessly led a third club, and disaster struck. West won and obliterated dummy's heart, queen with a coning, putting South in an impossible position. He was forced to take his heart ace and could cash four black-out winners, but that left him one trick short. To make his game in comfort, South must change counts after cashing two clubs. He cashes dummy's king and queen of spades to get them out of the way and then leads diamonds. If East wins the first or second round and leads a heart, South must change to a trick, winning two clubs, four spades, three diamonds and one heart. If East holds up two rounds, South will cash out to make nine tricks for game.
