A game of 'ruining' lives

Clinton friend slams capital, FBI, GOP, himself before his suicide

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In a despairing note, White House attorney Vincent Foster lamented before his suicide that he was not cut out for a Washington where "ruining people is considered sport."

He also criticized the news media and accused the FBI and Republicans of lying about an investigation.

Foster's note was found torn into more than two dozen pieces in his briefcase after his death. It was revealed to the public Tuesday.

The note combines self-criticism with sharp accusations, some of which have prompted Justice Department inquiries.

"I was not meant for the job or the spotlight of public life in Washington," he wrote. "Here ruining people is considered sport."

"I made mistakes from ignorance, inexperience and overwork," he said. "I did not knowingly violate any law or standard of conduct."

Of concern to the Justice Department is a line that the "Users Office plotted to have excessive costs incurred, taking advantage of Kaki and HRC."

"Kaki" apparently is Kaki Hockersmith, a Little Rock, Ark., interior designer who was helping Hillary Rodham Clinton (HRC) decorate the White House residence. Ms. Hockersmith did not immediately return telephone calls to her office and home. The usher's office has broad responsibilities, ranging from upkeep of the White House to food services and tours.

Foster's comments about the White House travel office fiasco have also prompted Justice Department attention.

"The FBI lied in their report to the AG," Foster wrote, a reference to an FBI report to Attorney General Janet Reno on how it handled the White House travel office matter.

Foster said White House officials did nothing improper or illegal in the matter in which travel office employees were fired and a White

Babbitt tells Idahoans he'll listen

The Associated Press

BOISE — Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt said Tuesday planning federal grazing fee increases aren't "cast in stone" and he'll listen to what Idahoans say about them.

Babbitt and Dale Robertson, U.S. Forest Service chief, said they plan a fall hearing in Idaho before pushing ahead with plans to boost the federal grazing fee from $1.86 per animal-unit month to $4.28 over a four-year period.

"I'm not hellbent to put these across in the middle of the night," Babbitt told a Boise news conference. "We're going to take it slow, steady, deliberate."

He said at best it will take 18 months, per-the largest tax increase in American history, the administration is now proposing the largest increase ever in grazing fees for our livestock producers," said Sen. Dirk Kempthorne. "The West is getting hit by higher gas taxes, higher income taxes and now this proposal. I just hope the secretary doesn't announce that these fees will be retroactive."

But both of Idaho's U.S. senators said they don't like the idea and predicted the increases could force many Western ranching families out of business.

"On top of the largest tax increase in American history, the administration is now proposing the largest increase ever in grazing fees for our livestock producers," said Sen. Dirk Kempthorne. "The West is getting hit by higher gas taxes, higher income taxes and now this proposal. I just hope the secretary doesn't announce that these fees will be retroactive."

Gov. Cecil Andrus asked the federal officials to have consideration for sheep ranchers. He said while cattlemen are enjoying high prices, the same is not true for sheep producers.

Twin Falls worker faces bribery charge

By Phil Sahm
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A former Twin Falls city building inspector was charged Tuesday with accepting a bribe.

Vern Edward Shaver, 57, faces up to a $1,000 fine and one year in the Twin Falls County Jail if convicted of the misdemeanor.

He could not be reached for comment Tuesday afternoon and the person who answered the phone at his home said Shaver was in Boise this week.

Details of the case have not been available because personnel matters are protected under Idaho law and not subject to scrutiny.

City Economic Development Director Dave McAlindin confirmed last week that a building inspector had been fired on July 15, but he would not say why. He would not comment Tuesday on the charges against Shaver.

City Manager Tom Courtney said only that Shaver is no longer a building inspector with the city.

Twin Falls County Prosecuting Attorney G. Richard Bevan said last week he was investigating allegations about a city building inspector. City officials had asked Bevan to look into the issue to avoid a conflict of interest, he said.

A court file on the case was not available Tuesday because Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies had not yet served Shaver a summons.

Shaver can file a grievance with the city of Twin Falls to protest the firing. But officials will not say if he has done so because this, too, is a personnel issue, they say.

President defends, signs budget package into law

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Clinton offered a ringing defense of his economic package as a White House bill signing ceremony Tuesday, lambasting the substance and partnership of the budget debate, and describing his program as "a new direction for our nation" after 12 years of Republican economic.

"We are taking the steps necessary and long overdue to revive our economy," Clinton said. "To renew our American dream, to restore confidence in our own ability to take charge of our own affairs."

The president paid special tribute to the Democrats who risked their political careers to support a package that enjoys at best mixed public support, and complained that "if you tried to do the right thing, people would say wrong things about you and cloud the debate with a fog of misinformation."

But for the second day in a row, Clinton appealed to members of both parties to put

Health care plan may include controls; battle plan forms

WASHINGTON — President Clinton's health care reform plan "will not require any broad-based tax" and will aim to keep costs down by limiting insurance company rate increases and controlling the prices charged by drug companies.

The White House said Tuesday.

In a 47-page "Health Care Update" distributed to Democratic members of Congress, the White House also stated flatly that Clinton will require all working Americans to carry health insurance and share the cost with their employers.

"We'll ask everyone to contribute," it said.

Although the document did not specifically say so, administration sources have said the so-called employer mandate cor and bickering," he said. "If some of us have to make hard choices while others stand aside and hope that the house collapses, nothing will in the end get done."

The ceremony had a festive air, with the Marine Band playing marches and other music as members of Congress and other invited guests assembled on the South Lawn at midday to celebrate the biggest legislative victory of Clinton's young presidency.

The package would reduce the estimated deficit by $200 billion over five years and contains about $24 billion net in new taxes and $255 billion in projected spending cuts. The tax increases include a 4.3-cent-a-gallon increase in the gasoline tax and higher personal income tax rates for families earning more than $180,000 a year. The program also contains a number of spending initiatives the administration said will cut down "the investment deficit" from the 1980s.

Japan makes trade 'priority'

Knight-Ridder News Service

TOKYO — Reducing Japan's huge trade surplus with the United States is a "major priority," Morihiro Hosokawa said Tuesday at his first news conference since becoming prime minister, but setting specific import targets is "inappropriate."

The new prime minister said Japan's relationship with the United States lay at the core of the country's foreign policy.

He said he hoped to travel to the United States to meet with President Clinton in September, if he can take a break from the next regular session of parliament to attend the U.N. General Assembly in New York. Otherwise, he said, he'd like to take part in an Asian forum, Clinton is to host in Seattle in November.

The diverse coalition government Hosokawa heads will be over-whelmingly concerned for the remainder of the year with passing legislation to reform Japan's notoriously corrupt political system.

Should he fail to move the reform-laws through parliament by year's end, Hosokawa indicated, he is prepared to step down from office.

Hosokawa, 55, a onetime journalist, handled the news conference with aplomb. He artfully dodged a number of softball questions tossed his way and evoked a few chuckles when asked why he didn't have on the red and gold lapel-pin customarily worn by all members of the National Diet, Japan's parliament.

"I don't like badges," he replied with a faint smile.

Although his style was fresh and personable, what he had to say was essentially a continuation of policies Japan has followed for 38 years.

Pope clashes with policy in Jamaica

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — In a preview to what he might expect when he addresses American youths in Denver, Pope John Paul II got a mixed review Tuesday when he exhorted young Jamaicans to eschew birth control.

The government estimates that 37 percent of Jamaicans use contraceptives, and the nation's family planning program is considered a model for the developing world.

That policy clashes with the pope's adamant stand against birth control, which he reiterated Tuesday at a meeting of young Roman Catholic lay people at St. George College, a Jesuit-run school in Kingston.

The Jamaicans' church brethren in America have similar reservations about church policy on birth control and other issues. These misgivings are expected to come up when the pope arrives in Denver on Thursday to celebrate the church's World Youth Day.

In Kingston on Tuesday, John Paul urged Jamaicans to reject the "easy road" to drugs, violence and casual sex.

And speaking on an island of frequent, deadly armed robberies — many blamed on Jamaicans deported from the United States, Canada and Britain — he lashed out at "the road of self-indulgence, crime, cynicism and escape from responsibility."

Typhoon wallops Japan, S. Korea

TOKYO — Typhoon Robyn, packing winds of up to 90 mph and dumping heavy rain, killed at least six people as it tore through southwestern Japan and skirted South Korea's coast Tuesday, police said. The typhoon touched off mudslides and floods in Japan, killing at least two people and injuring 37. Five more were reported missing and presumed dead.

In South Korea, rains inundated farms and left hundreds homeless. Winds and rains unleashed landslides that killed three in rural areas near Ulsan, 192 miles southeast of Seoul, police said. One man was killed in high winds in the southern port city of Pusan.

Police said three others were presumed dead or missing in floods and landslides in southern provinces.

TAIPEI, Taiwan — A Chinese man who threatened to pour acid over passengers on an Air China jet unless he was flown to Taiwan gave himself up on arrival in Taipei on Monday. None of the roughly 150 people on board was hurt.

The hijacker, a 30-year-old businessman, said he would rather die in a free country than live under Communism. He was arrested and faced trial in Taiwan, where hijacking carries a death penalty not likely to be imposed on a Chinese defector.

The airplane and its other passengers and crew returned to China 2½ hours after landing at Taipei International Airport, police said.

Fellini off 'guarded' list after stroke

ROMA, Italy — Federico Fellini's doctors took the movie director off the guarded list on Tuesday, a week after he suffered a paralyzing stroke.

Fellini, 73, was receiving physical therapy, but his condition remained serious, doctors said in a statement issued by the hospital in this Adriatic resort that is Fellini's hometown.

Fellini collapsed Aug. 3. Doctors diagnosed a stroke that caused paralysis to the left side of his body, including his face, arm and leg.

A CAT scan Monday showed no additional brain damage since the stroke.

Accident injures 2, clogs Highway 30

TWIN FALLS — A two-car collision west of Twin Falls sent two people to the hospital and closed three lanes of U.S. Highway 30 Tuesday evening.

A car driven by Rebecca Fritz, 19, of Bull was westbound on the highway when a pickup driven by 23-year-old Robert Simon of Twin Falls drove into the highway at the intersection of 2700 East Road, Idaho State Police Cpl. Jeff Kalbfleisch said.

Fritz and a passenger were taken to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center. No report on their conditions was available Tuesday evening.

Simon was not injured. He was cited for failure to yield, Kalbfleisch said.

Eastbound traffic was detoured from 5:51 p.m. until 6:45 p.m., and westbound traffic was limited to one lane at the accident scene, one mile west of town.

School board postpones setting date for $400,000 levy election

TWIN FALLS — The School Board agreed Tuesday to postpone a decision on when to hold a $400,000 supplemental-levy election.

Clung scheduling difficulties, Superintendent Kerll Donich suggested board members wait until Aug. 19 to decide when the levy should be held.

Chairman Steven Tolman said the details of the levy have not yet been finalized. He said board members would determine specifics between Aug. 19 and 26.

Tolman suggested, however, that levy items would include most of those previously cut from the budget when voters rejected an $840,000 levy in June. The 3 percent salary increases that were part of the failed levy will not be included in the upcoming election.

F&G to release wild sockeye salmon in Redfish Lake

STANLEY — Wild sockeye salmon captured and raised by Idaho's Fish and Game Department, will be released Thursday to ancestral spawning grounds in Redfish Lake.

Gov. Cecil Andrus will speak at the 1 p.m. event, and he will be joined by representatives of state and national environmental groups, including Charles Ray of Idaho Rivers United and Jim Maddy, executive director of the League of Conservation Voters.

The fish are part of a group of 40 endangered sockeye salmon captured in the Salmon River in 1991. Idaho Rivers United petitioned Fish and Game to release the fish in the natural spawning area.

The Salmon River sockeye were declared an endangered species in 1991.

Twin Falls Park sees reduced hours because of construction

TWIN FALLS — Access to the Twin Falls Park will be limited as road construction is completed and work begins on a new power plant at Idaho Power Co. facility.

The road to the plant was widened to allow construction equipment to reach the site. Paving is to be completed later this week.

During construction, the power plant access will be limited to hours between 6 p.m. and sundown on weekdays and 8 a.m. to sundown on weekends and holidays. Construction is expected to be completed in the spring of 1995.

The $42.4 million project involves a 43.5-megawatt power plant in addition to the existing 9-megawatt plant.

Gooding GI helped save horses

Lipizzaner Stallions perform tonight in Filer

By Steve Crump
Times-News writer

GOODING — When the Royal Lipizzaner Stallions strut into the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds in Filer tonight, Ellen Boyer will have a more than passing interest in the ghost-white Austrian steeds.

Her husband, Bill Boyer, who died in 1986, had a lot to do with their being there.

In the waning days of World War II, Sgt. Boyer was a 22-year-old tank commander with a reconnaissance unit of the 2nd Cavalry Regiment, which was sweeping eastward through Austria toward its border with Czechoslovakia and an eventual link-up with Soviet troops, who were advancing westward.

It was late April 1945, and the German army was weeks away from surrender. One day, Boyer encountered an Austrian with an interesting story to tell, Ellen Boyer said.

The man said he was the groom for a herd of pedigreed mares and foals called Lipizzaners, which had been bred for generations by Austrian nobility in the northern Italian town of Lipizza. The Lipizzaner stallions — the show horses — were being kept in a town in Upper Austria that had been overrun by Gen. George Patton's Third Army a few weeks earlier.

Bill used to rodeo a little when he was a kid, so he knew how to handle horses," Ellen said. "He was put in charge of the mares and foals for a while, but no, I don't think he ever saw a show."

Boyer, who had joined the Idaho National Guard when he was still a student at Gooding High School, served with Patton's Third Army from shortly after D-Day until the German surrender.

"He was in a cavalry unit, but it was all tanks by then," Ellen said. "After the war, he used to ride once in a while until we moved to town and we couldn't keep a horse."

Boyer worked for Idaho Transportation Department for 36 1/2 years until his retirement in 1983. The Boyers had two sons; Bill had three children by an earlier marriage, including his namesake, who still lives in Gooding.

Bill Sr. passed up one chance to go to Europe after he retired because the memories were still too painful, Ellen said.

"He didn't talk much about the war, but when his unit scheduled a reunion in Europe, he decided to go," she said. "But by the time it was held, he was too sick to travel."

Ellen says she'd like to see the Lipizzaners.

"I might go if I can find someone to go with," she said. "Bill loved horses."

At a Tuesday-night town meeting in Twin Falls, Rep. Mike Crapo said he would prefer the deficit gradually be eliminated by reducing the budget of every federal program except Social Security by 5 percent with annual increases of 1 percent.

Crapo attacks Clinton plan

By Drew DeSilver
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Even though Congress approved President Clinton's deficit-cutting package last week and Clinton signed it into law Tuesday, U.S. Rep. Mike Crapo is continuing to attack the plan.

At a "town meeting" Tuesday night, the Republican-leaning Clinton plan for its reliance on new taxes and fee increases and said he would have favored either an overall freeze on federal spending or across-the-board budget cuts.

Crapo, speaking to about 55 people at the KMYT-TV Community Room, also said he would vote against the proposed North American Free Trade Agreement and said the pact should be sent back to the drafting table.

gresses to do the hard work of making the cuts.

"What we did last week doesn't bind us to anything but this year's part of the plan," Crapo said. "I don't believe (the future cuts) will happen."

Crapo then ran through several no-tax alternatives to the Clinton plan, which relied on either deep spending cuts, budget freezes, or a combination of the two to gradually eliminate the budget deficit.

His preferred option, he said, would be to reduce the budget of every federal program except Social Security by 5 percent, then permit annual increases of 1 percent until the budget was balanced. Under such a plan, the deficit would be eliminated about the year 2000, he said.

"Experience has shown us that every time we go in to cut the budget by targeting specific programs, it dies," Crapo said, citing a GOP alternative to Clinton's plan that was voted down by the House of Representatives.

"I think there's 5 percent that any good manager could cut out of any federal budget and not impact services," he added. "And if you do it across the board, nobody can come in and beef about it and say someone else should take the cuts."

Earlier in the day, Crapo told a group of Jerome dairy producers that he opposed NAFTA because it would put most Idaho commodity producers at a competitive disadvantage. NAFTA, negotiated by the Bush administration, would remove trade barriers between the United States, Canada and Mexico.

Trade negotiators are now wrapping up several "side agreements" to NAFTA that are intended to address concerns about differing environmental standards and labor laws. But Crapo said he didn't think those agreements would address all of his concerns.

"For that matter, I'm not sure the side agreements would have the same legal force as the treaty," he said.

Although Crapo said he supports the general idea of a free-trade zone, he said the three countries should go back to the negotiating table and either change NAFTA to address environmental, health and other concerns, or start from scratch and draw up a completely new agreement.

State officials to hammer out funding of Triumph cleanup

The Associated Press

State officials will meet with legislators in Boise Saturday to talk about funding preliminary stages in what could be a long and expensive cleanup of a central Idaho mining site.

Land Department Director Stan Hamilton told Tuesday's state Land Board meeting he will meet with legislative leaders to get authorized to spend $100,000 to $250,000 on work toward cleaning up the Triumph Mine site.

The mine near Hailey hasn't been worked for nearly 30 years. But it left behind tailings the federal Environmental Protection Agency says are contaminated with arsenic and lead which pose a potential health hazard. It's been proposed for the federal Superfund list.

The state's involved because about 20 acres of the tailings are on state land owned by the state.

The state received only $641 for the original mine easement, but Hamilton told the Land Board it could cost $5 million to $7 million for the cleanup.

At its last meeting, the Land Board voted to move quickly with cleanup with hopes of avoiding long, costly legal battles over Superfund listing. A new motion Tuesday continued that plan, although Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa continued to object that the state was moving too quickly in accepting Superfund listing.

The board talked earlier about taking charge of the project rather than letting the federal government do it at an enormous cost.

"There's no question in my mind that if EPA goes through the full route, it will cost at least $15 million," Hamilton said.

"The handful of Triumph residents don't want Superfund listing, contending there's no proven health hazard. Triumph resident Donna Rose was allowed to repeat those claims to the board Tuesday, her fifth appearance before the panel of state officials."

She said independent studies have shown that the Triumph site scores under the total needed for inclusion on the Superfund list.

Gov. Cecil Andrus and Cenarrusa sparred briefly on whether she should be allowed to testify again. Cenarrusa said as far as he was concerned, Triumph residents are the experts and should give input to the Land Board.

"The people at Triumph have made a thorough study of this," he said. "I can tell you one thing, I am going to listen to her (Rose)."

Amalgamated workers accept 3-year contract

By Stefano Esposito
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Union workers at the Twin Falls sugar factory voted to strike Monday, but they were out-numbered by workers at larger Amalgamated Sugar Co. factories, who voted to accept a three-year contract.

Notification that the contract had been accepted came shortly before noon. Twin Falls plant Superintendent Vic Jaro said.

No vote count was available.

Twin Falls Local 283 President Karen Griggs said Tuesday evening that workers in the Twin Falls and Nyssa, Ore. plants voted to reject the contract offer.

"It's the worst contract in our entire history at Amalgamated," Griggs said.

Factories in Mini-Cassia and Nampa voted to accept Griggs' offer.

Contract negotiations began in March. A federal mediator was called in two weeks ago when talks stalled over a disagreement on health care.

However, negotiations came to an abrupt end Tuesday when Amalgamated made a "firm and final" offer.

That offer, which workers accepted Tuesday, upset some local union representatives because it substantially reduced employee health-care benefits.

Under Tuesday's terms, workers' benefits included 100-percent coverage for inpatient and outpatient hospital care. The new contract requires employees to pay 20 percent of all claims, including costs for prescriptions.

Jaro said the offer was based on an expectation that health-care costs would rise.

"Everything is based on the history for this particular company," Jaro said. "All you can go from is what it's costing the company one year to the next."

Jaro said he got just how much more Amalgamated anticipates spending on health care this year compared with last year.

Despite disagreements between workers and Amalgamated, Jaro said this session of negotiations was one of the best he has participated in.

"Even though there have been differences of opinion, there was a real desire to understand positions and to reach solutions," he said.

Jaro said he thinks people on both sides of the table are pleased that negotiations have finally come to an end.

"When you get into contract negotiations, I think people are relieved when it's over and you have a contract and you can get on with the job at hand."

The final date has been established to make the agreement final, but Jaro said the contract signing "normally takes place very soon after the vote."

City may create canyon-rim zoning district

By Phil Sabun
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The city Planning and Zoning Commission recommended Tuesday that the city create a canyon-rim zoning district and set aside money to buy scenic views to the canyon rim.

The recommendations came as amendments to a new master plan for the City Council to consider.

While recent discussion has focused on the Snake River Canyon rim, the amendments also include rim land on Rock Creek Canyon.

"I get the feeling ... that the biggest issue of concern with the plan is how it has addressed that canyon area," said Commissioner J. Francis Florence.

A 100-foot setback for building on the canyon rim received a lot of discussion among the commissioners Tuesday night.

The city already has a 100-foot setback, but that can be waived to 50 feet if builders show a geologist's report saying that it is safe to build that close to the rim.

Vaccination for hepatitis B is a shot in the arm for health

DEAR ABBY: Please encourage parents to have their children vaccinated against hepatitis B. Both the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and the American Academy of Pediatricians recommend that all newborns, infants and teenagers be vaccinated against this serious liver disease. Most people who are infected are unaware that they have hepatitis B and can pass it on to others: mothers to their newborns; family members living in the same household with a carrier or chronically infected person; sex partners; and by those who share needles, razors or toothbrushes.

This disease is easier to catch than AIDS. It may lead to cirrhosis and cancer of the liver. An estimated 500,000 new cases occur each year, adding to the pool of 1 million carriers already infected who can pass the disease on without realizing it.

A safe and effective vaccine can stop the spread of this disease and will provide protection for as long as 10 to 20 years. The three injections can be given along with other routine immunizations and cost about the same as the measles vaccine.

Please encourage your readers to let their doctor know they want their children immunized. They'll be glad they did.

THELMA KING THIEL-PRÉSIDENT, AMERICAN LIVER FOUNDATION

DEAR READERS: My office checked with Ron Halbert, M.D. (director of the immunization program at Mission City Clinic in Sepulveda, Calif., and assistant director of the Preventive Medicine Residency Program at UCLA), who said:

"Concerned parents should discuss this with their child's pediatrician. Although the CDC has recently recommended universal vaccination for hepatitis B, some pediatricians in small towns and rural areas may be slower in recognizing the new guidelines than doctors in larger cities."

DEAR ABBY: After reading about people with unusual names, I had to write and tell you about mine. It's Elizabeth A. Virgin. When people meet me for the first time, they usually smile, but I've had a lot of fun with my name, which never fails to provoke some kind of comment.

I have three sisters and one brother—here's a family favorite: When our mother went to the doctor to find out if she was pregnant, the doctor got up and walked over to the window and searched the sky. Mother asked, "What are you looking for?" The doctor replied, "I'm looking for an angel." Mother asked, "Why an angel?" The doctor replied, "Because you're a Virgin about to give birth."

When my sister Mary went to college, one of her professors was calling roll on the first day of class. He said, "Mary Virgin? What an unusual name. Do you have any sisters or brothers?"

My sister replied with a straight face, "Well, there's Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James..." That's when the professor backed off.

I'm a practicing Catholic and I mean no disrespect when I make jokes about my name, but with a name like Virgin, we girls had to develop a sense of humor.

—ELIZABETH A. VIRGIN

DEAR ELIZABETH: My hat is off to you and your sisters; my condolences to your poor brother, who is destined to be a Virgin for the rest of his life.

Plan fits goals of Andrus-DOE deal

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A plan announced last week on the future of nuclear fuel reprocessing facilities at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory could dovetail with the deal the state just struck with the federal government on radioactive waste activities in eastern Idaho.

Taken alone, the transition plan seems to confirm that the government wants to turn the INEL into the world's nuclear waste dump. It is faced with references to waste management and storage in the new mission for the Idaho Chemical Processing Plant.

But it also would shift the plant's purpose to developing new ways to environmentally improve management of the millions of cubic feet of hazardous and radioactive waste now stored at the site. And Monday's agreement could give that aspect much greater weight in reconfiguring operations at the plant, where the government ceased reprocessing spent fuel from the nuclear reactors last year.

The deal Gov. Cecil Andrus struck with the Navy calls for the state to accept 19 new shipments of nuclear waste over the next two years in exchange for accelerated action to reduce state concerns about environmental damage from decades of waste storage at INEL.

"The agreement is part of our game plan anyway," said Westinghouse Idaho Nuclear Co. President Bill Moffit. "If anything, it will help ensure we get the money required to accomplish it."

The preliminary transition plan would keep the plant's work force stable at 1,800 for the next 29 months. The future may now include a new billion-dollar facility for turning nuclear waste into glass or ceramic for long-term storage.

Andrus said construction of that facility and another are not locked in under the deal, but he was optimistic they would eventually be built.

Judge won't release Weaver

BOISE (AP) — A federal judge has refused to release white separatist Randy Weaver pending his September sentencing on relatively minor charges from the 12-week trial in which he was acquitted of conspiracy to murder a federal marshal.

U.S. District Judge Edward Lodge said Weaver's failure to show up for a July 8 trial on charges he belied his conviction in Degam's death. Harris was immediately released from custody after the July 8 verdict.

Weaver's failure to appear in 1991 led to the 18-month surveillance of his isolated northern Idaho cabin that climaxed a year ago in a shootout and subsequent 11-day siege in which his wife and 10-year-old son and Deputy Marshal William Degam were killed.

Weaver, 45, and Kevin Harris were acquitted of murder and conspiracy in Degam's death. Harris was immediately released from custody after the July 8 verdict.

Tape chronicles jail disturbance

GUNNISON, Utah (AP) — A four-hour video of a prison disturbance at the Central Utah Correctional Facility chronicled how a handful of prisoners incited their fellow inmates.

"I was watching it live, and we were recording it," said Warden Fred Van Der Veur.

Prison officials reviewed the videotape which recorded the Monday disturbance, then held a debriefing session Tuesday.

"The rest of the institution is back to normal protocol," said Van Der Veur. "The involved inmates were moved to another section and are on lockdown."

from cell doors using broom handles and compound equipment.

During the period, when the prison was closed, the inmates were confined to 3:10 p.m., many inmates went from displaying obvious anger to despondency as they waited for the reaction of prison officials.

The video identified two men as the primary instigators of the disturbance, which officials said started after a routine cell check uncovered a makeshift knife. Paul Payne, 19, and Eric Thomas Daniels, 23, were transferred to the Utah State Prison in Draper on Monday.

Daniels claimed responsibility for the weapon. He was the cellmate of Jeffrey C. Eaton, 24, who was set for parole Tuesday. Payne is serving time for aggravated robbery, kidnapping, theft and aggravated assault out of Carbon County. Daniels was sentenced to the facility for two counts of forgery, both second-degree felonies, out of Salt Lake County.

Eaton, whose parole has been held up, had served time for auto theft.

Despite the appearance of a water-soaked war zone, the compound sustained only minimal damage, Van Der Veur said. The inmates burned their sheets in order to activate the sprinkler system.

"It looks messy, like when you clean your garage," the warden said. "But the facility functioned exactly as designed."

As SWAT teams readied to storm the compound, the video showed that inmates threw down the section door with a large metal shower door taken from its hinges on the second tier of the compound. Van Der Veur said the inmates' move forced the SWAT team to take a different strategy.

State decides against fining Caldwell store

CALDWELL (AP) — State environmental officials have decided not to impose fines on the Maverik Country Store in Caldwell for groundwater contamination that occurred when one of its drivers accidentally pumped fuel into the city sewer system in July.

The mistake forced the evacuation of nearly 200 people from their homes for three days.

The state Division of Environmental Quality has given Maverik a consent order to do the cleanup, which includes long-term clean up of the groundwater.

NOTICE OF TAX INCREASE FOR TWIN FALLS COUNTY

The College of Southern Idaho Junior College Taxing District has proposed to increase its annual budget by an amount of ad valorem tax revenues that exceeds one hundred and five percent (105%) of the ad valorem tax revenues certified for its annual budget during the previous year by three and zero tenths percent (3.0%) or its ad valorem tax rate by zero and three tenths percent (0.3%) which will increase its property tax revenue by eight and zero tenths percent (8.0%).

The following schedule is an estimate of what this change may mean to a taxpayer:

|   | Last Year's Taxable Value | This Year's Estimated Taxable Value | Last Year's Actual Taxes | This Year's Estimated Taxes |
|---|---------------------------|-------------------------------------|--------------------------|-----------------------------|
| FOR A TYPICAL HOME OF $50,000 TAXABLE VALUE LAST YEAR      | 50,000                    | 55,903                              | $86.80                  | $97.66                     |
| FOR A TYPICAL FARM OF $100,000 TAXABLE VALUE LAST YEAR     | 100,000                   | 102,210                             | $173.60                 | $178.56                    |
| FOR A TYPICAL BUSINESS OF $200,000 TAXABLE VALUE LAST YEAR | 200,000                   | 229,885                             | $347.20                 | $401.61                    |

All citizens are invited to attend a public hearing on the increased budget request or increased tax increase. The public hearing will be held at the College of Southern Idaho, 315 Falls Avenue, Twin Falls, Idaho in the boardroom of the Taylor Administration Building at 5:30 p.m. on Monday August 16, 1993.

CAUTION TO TAXPAYER: The amounts shown in this schedule do not reflect tax charges that are made because of voter approved bond levies, override levies, supplemental levies, or levies applicable to newly annexed property, or levies applicable to newly created taxing districts.

3 accused in death of Californian

CALDWELL (AP) — Three Adon County men have been accused in the slaying of a Californian man and wounding of his two companions during a gun and knife attack southeast of Nampa.

The Canyon County Sheriff's Department said farm laborer Santiago Haro Nunez, 22, of Crosti, Calif., died at Mercy Medical Center early Monday after being shot in the back. His two companions were hospitalized overnight and released on Tuesday.

Facing charges were Effen Garcia, 31, his brother, Margarito Gomez Garcia, 36, both of Kunia, and Francisco Ramirez, 41, of Meridian. The three made their initial court appearance on Tuesday.

Food facts

Cantaloupe leads field for Colorado's top food

Trount and Rocky Ford cantaloupe are picking up votes as the effort to name the first Colorado State Food picks up steam. Coloradans like which took place on neglected to name an official food or fruit or vegetable resulting in a culinary-identity crisis from the mountains to the plains.

One Colorado native suggested that cherry jolly was "the only choice." Another recommended "the Snocone" because the shaved ice dessert looks like the Rocky Mountains. Virginia Feather of Albuquerque, N.M., suggested the Denver Biscuit. She says it's a combination yeast and quick biscuit that you bake in a Dutch oven, and perhaps serve with a Denver omelette.

Industry produces broccoli that Bush might even like

They've finally made broccoli that broccoli haters could love. Mann's Broccoli Cole Slaw is a fresh-packaged mix featuring julienne fresh broccoli stalks — euphemistically labeled "hearts of broccoli" — with carrots and red cabbage. It's got a nice crunchy texture, mild flavor, all those good vitamins and it's easy. Besides cole slaw, it works great in stir-fries, lasagna and salads, and finally creates a demand for all those broccoli stalks they've been throwing out. Look for it in your produce section.

Put your creative skills to test! Firm seeks ice cream ideas

Unfortunately, you missed National Ice Cream Day, which took place on June 18 across America. To make up for it, make a fresh fruit pie and serve it warm, a la mode with a big scoop of ice cream. It's times like this it would be nice to work at Ben & Jerry's, where employees may eat up to three pints of Cherry Garcia or whatever flavor they want each day.

And, while on the subject, Edy's Grand Ice Cream is searching for just that and will fly the top 15 flavor finalists out to San Francisco for a "taste-off." Finalists will also receive a year's supply of ice cream (conveniently awarded in gift certificates).

Entries must include a description of the flavor with the added ingredients, have a suggested name and include entrant's name, address and phone number with each idea. There is a children's category for those 12 and under. Call 415-652-8187 for information.

Sugar-free candy-free of sugar but not the calories

Is "sugar-free candy" really sugar free? Yes, if you're worried about tooth decay. No, if you're interested in total calories.

The ingredient list (for a bag of mixed hard candies) includes sugar, corn syrup, sweetened condensed milk, apples, pineapples, oranges, molasses and raspberries. They all mean sugar. Other label words that would indicate sugar include honey, corn sugar, maple syrup, maple sugar, invert sugar and any word ending in "-ose" such as sucrose, dextrose, maltose or fructose.

The sugar-free candy information is given in grams. Fifteen grams of candy contains 60 calories. There are 7.5 servings per container. There are 15 grams of carbohydrate per serving.

Both candies contain 112 calories per five pieces or 1 ounce.

The ingredients list shows that the primary item is "lycasin (a maltitol syrup). Ingredient words ending in "-ol" indicate a sugar alcohol.

We're much more familiar with mannitol and sorbitol, which we find in sugar-free chewing gum and sugar-free mints. These sweeteners earn their sugar-free status because they do not promote tooth decay the way regular sugars do.

Buy parmesan cheese fresh, ungrated or buy sawdust

Here's a tip from a food expert. While cooking fish at the recent Aspen (Colo.) Food & Wine Festival, Italian food expert Marcella Hazan exhorted the assembled foodies to always use freshly grated parmesan cheese.

"Do not use Reggiano Parmesan that is already grated," she said. "Buy sawdust. It's cheaper."

NUTS

Go a little nutty with grandma's chicken soup. Peanut Chicken Soup, above, gives this old stand-by a nutty flavor and texture. Vegetarian Indonesian Gado Gado, below, makes a tasty, healthy addition to any dinner menu.

about nutrition

For just peanuts, you can add protein, lose fat

Many dietitians are recommending we add peanuts for flavor and texture to our diets. Peanuts and peanut butter are a good high-protein substitute for red meats or dairy products. Did you know that a 2-tablespoon serving of peanut butter has less saturated fat than a hamburger, hot dog, bologna or cheese sandwich? And it has no cholesterol, while the others do.

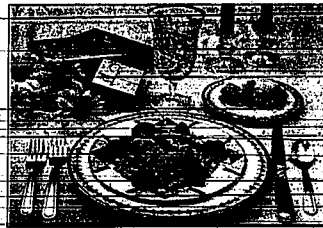

A new study conducted by researchers at Loma Linda University found that consumers who ate nuts more than five times a week were 50 percent less likely to have heart attacks.

The favorable fatty acid profile of many nuts is one possible explanation for such an effect. Peanuts are high in monounsaturated fat and contain vitamin E, which has been shown to reduce artery-plaque buildup — a major contributing factor in heart attacks. Of course, no food is a miracle food. And certainly peanuts make no outrageous claims. But eating healthy doesn't sentence you to a life of bland foods. On the contrary, you can jazz up your mealtimes with a host of creative and tasty dishes featuring this nut of choice.

All of these recipes contain less than 300 calories per serving and less than 30 percent fat to adhere to the U.S. Dietary Guidelines.

PEANUT CHICKEN SOUP

- 2 teaspoons peanut oil
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1/2 cup chopped green-bell pepper
- 1 teaspoon chopped garlic
- 2 cans (16 ounces each) whole tomatoes, unsalted
- 1/3 cup unsalted creamy peanut butter
- 1/2 teaspoon black pepper

- 1/2 teaspoon crushed red pepper
- 6 cups chicken broth
- 1/2 cup brown rice
- 1 1/2 pounds chicken breast, boned, skinned and cubed
- chopped parsley, garnish

In large soup pot heat oil over medium high heat; add onion, bell pepper and garlic. Cook and stir about 5 minutes until tender. Add tomatoes with juice, breaking tomatoes up with fingers. Stir in peanut butter, black and red pepper until peanut butter dissolves. Add chicken broth, bringing to a boil. Add rice. Reduce heat to simmer; cover and cook about 40 minutes or until rice is tender. Add chicken meat; cook 10 minutes longer. Serve each bowl of soup with a sprinkle of parsley.

INDONESIAN GADO GADO

- 1/2 cup thinly sliced onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 teaspoon peanut oil
- 1 tablespoon low sodium soy sauce
- 1/4 teaspoon crushed red pepper
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1/2 cup chicken broth
- 1/2 cup unsalted creamy peanut butter
- 2 cups cooked rice, chilled
- 1 cup cooked pea pods
- 1 cup julienne red bell pepper
- 2 cups cooked broccoli florets

In a saucepan, cook and stir onion and garlic in oil over medium heat 5 minutes. Stir in soy sauce, red pepper, lemon juice, ginger and chicken broth. Bring to boil. Whisk in peanut butter; reduce heat to simmer and cook 5 minutes. If too thick, dilute with more broth. Cool to room temperature. Toss 1 cup sauce with rice, pea pods and bell pepper; arrange on platter with broccoli. Serve with remaining sauce.

Yield: 6 servings.

Nutritional information per serving: Calories — 187; sodium — 288 mg.; cholesterol — 0 mg.; and total fat — 6.3 g. (30 percent calories from fat).

Fixing meals for 2 means keeping light, cook says

By Joan Bean
Times-News correspondent

CASTLEFORD — Beverly Gandiaga changed her style of cooking after her three children left home. She and her husband, Henry, are now eating lighter meals.

"When you raise your family you cook what they like," she says. "I used to have a lot of meat and potatoes and gravy."

But, even though the family diet once contained more fat and calories, Gandiaga always tried to make sure her family had lots of vegetables, fruit and salads. Gandiaga doesn't do a lot of linking anymore. "When I do, Hank says 'Where are you taking that?'" she says. "Once in a great while I'll break down and bake him something."

Gandiaga uses a common sense approach to reducing fat, cholesterol and calories in her cooking. She sometimes puts a bit of margarine on vegetables, but generally doesn't use any.

Instead, she dresses up flavors with herbs. Once or twice a week, she serves broiled or pan-fried fish. Chicken breasts also go under the broiler. Sometimes, she removes the skin; sometimes not, according to whether or not there has been a lot of fat in the diet that week. Steaks are broiled or barbecued.

Because both Gandiaga and her husband enjoy lamb, she broils the chops and roast leg of lamb. And every once in a while she fixes a lamb stew, even though it's higher in calories.

Gandiaga's children live nearby, and when they come for dinner, she fixes the dishes they like best. The following are a few of the recipes she uses. The first was given to Gandiaga by her friend, Marlene Gueary.

ROAST LEG OF LAMB

- Serves 10
- Start preparations the night before:
- 1 tablespoon crushed thyme
- 1/2 tablespoon crushed rosemary
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 4 large cloves garlic, put through garlic press or chopped and minced fine
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- Mix together and rub on a medium to large leg of lamb. Refrigerate overnight. Put lamb in a shallow roasting pan on a wire rack and roast at 350 degrees for about 3 hours. About 1/2 hour before you figure roast will be ready, test for done-

Embossed wallcoverings hide the results of shoddy workmanship, house's age

New York Daily News

While there's much to be said for the charm of living in an older house, there are some drawbacks — the walls, for example. No sooner, it seems, does a fresh coat of paint dry on old plaster walls than cracks start to appear.

You can just live with it, or, if you're not a fan of the poor workmanship shown by your painter, (if you were the painter, however, railing won't make you feel any better.) Or you can sand the cracks, tape, spackle and paint again, which may prove to be only a stopgap until the cracks appear somewhere else in the room.

Another possibility is wallcovering. However, if there are bulges as well as cracks in the walls, ordinary wallcovering won't do the trick.

There is still another option — an embossed wallcovering called Anaglypta.

Developed in the late 19th century in England, the wallcoverings, which are white and meant to be painted, were created to simulate the carved paneling and intricate ceiling work found in the mansions of the aristocracy.

Today, Anaglypta and an even heavier version, called Lincrusta, are manufactured by Crown Berger Ltd. in England and available in wallcovering stores throughout the U.S.

While Lincrusta is actually a linoleum-type product and should be applied professionally, the lighter-weight Anaglypta can be hung by the average do-it-yourselfer. Lonny Root, a member of the National Guild of Professional Paperhangers, explains that the product expands slightly when wet.

"Measure the width of the paper, apply a clay-based wallpaper paste to the paper and wait a few minutes," he advises. "Measure several times and when the paper stops growing, it's time to hang it. Apply more paste to the walls and when it is almost dry, position the Anaglypta using a paperhanger's brush. The paste on the paper will reactivate the paste on the walls and insure tight seams when adjoining strips are hung.

It's common problems that plague plants

"When you hear hoofbeats, look for horses, not zebras."

This old saying reminds us that, most of the time, we're working too hard to identify a problem as something exotic, while it's really something fairly common.

Green Thumbprints
Cathy Walworth

When I took Master Gardener training in Washington state, the extension agent who taught some of the classes warned us that homeowners would come and ask for "something to spray it with," a magic spray that would make their problems go away. But it was necessary to ask a lot of questions about where the sick plant lives, how much sun it gets, how it is watered, what, how, and when had the owner fed it, and more.

One professor after another told us that, most often, plant problems are cultural — those caused by the homeowner. And it's true.

A lady called me with a problem with her apple tree. She said she'd shown a leaf to someone who told her it might be fireblight. I asked for more information: What did the blossoms look like? How do you water it? Do you see any signs of mildew? Spider mites? What do the twigs, branches and trunk look like? It's impossible to make a diagnosis over the phone. And darn hard to make one based on limited information and one leaf. But this homeowner had heard a report on the radio about infected trees in another state and was alarmed. Fireblight is a serious bacterial infection that you don't want in your apple trees.

Fireblight is a blight in twigs and cankers. It starts out in the spring flowers when bees spread it. The infection goes down the shoot into the bark of larger limbs and causes dark, sunken cankers. The blossoms, and later the leaves, will suddenly wilt and take on a burned look.

The infected areas need to be pruned out, the pruners (and the cut) cleaned after every cut with a bleach solution and the debris burned or put in the trash. Protection would have been in the form of spraying with a copper or streptomycin every four to five days.

The trees in this question had beautiful blossoms this spring. And the twigs, branches and trunk of the tree looked fine, the owner said. She had been pruning out affected areas and burning them. The trees were deeply watered every seven to 10 days. Copper had been used twice in the spring.

It doesn't really sound like these trees have a blight. From what I was told, I wondered if the owner was seeing a burn caused by the wind. Sometimes, even though we water thoroughly, a warm, constant wind will strip moisture out of the leaves faster than the roots can send it up, and the leaves are burned around the edges. It happens to three of my trees every year.

When I finally dawned on me what was happening to me, I started squirting the leaf canopy with the hose once or twice a day. The burning stopped. I told the woman what I had done, and that she could try it on one tree — a small gambler, but definitely worth it, she said.

It's impossible to make a diagnosis over the phone, but lots of times the culprit is just a couple of horses — hardly ever zebras.

Cathy Walworth is an avid Twin Falls gardener. Write to her in care of The Times-News.

Pair of golfers card aces in Twin Falls

TWIN FALLS — The long and the short of it has posted holes-in-one at two Twin Falls golf courses in the past couple of days.

Dale Henman ended 77 years of waiting with his first ace on the par three, 155-yard third hole with wood at Twin Falls Municipal. John Stromberg, Rod McMillen and Jim Lindsey watched.

Meanwhile, 14-year-old Shane Perkins got into the club early at Canyon Springs, using a seven-iron on the par three, 145-yard eighth hole. Dustin and Michael Ericson confirmed the shot.

Jerome volleyballers meeting planned for Thursday

JEROME — Any Jerome girl in grades nine through 12 interested in playing volleyball this fall is asked to attend an organizational meeting Thursday at 6 p.m.

The meeting will be at the high school and players will be issued physical forms and consent forms.

Questions should be directed at Coach Brent Clark, 837-6497.

Coaches, officials are urged to attend state rules meeting

TWIN FALLS — All prospective officials and high school coaches should attend the state rules meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday at Twin Falls High School.

District Commissioner Ed Peterson said all prospective officials must attend this meeting. It serves as the best way for coaches to learn any new rule changes or interpretations.

White Sox, Phillies swap pitchers Thigpen, DeLoon

CHICAGO — The Chicago White Sox traded Bobby Thigpen, baseball's single-season save leader, to the Philadelphia Phillies on Tuesday for pitcher Jose DeLoon.

Thigpen, 30, has been ineffective and lost his closer job since he set the major league record for saves with 57 in 1990. This season, Thigpen is 0-0 with one save and a 5.71 ERA.

DeLoon, 32, who pitched for the White Sox in 1986-87, was 3-0 with a 3.26 ERA in 27 games, including three starts. He has a career record of 78-113 with a 3.72 ERA.

League slaps Robin Ventura with suspension for incident

NEW YORK — Robin Ventura of the Chicago White Sox was suspended for two games by American League president Dr. Bobby Brown on Tuesday for charging the mound and fighting Texas pitcher Nolan Ryan in a game on Aug. 4.

UI picked to take Big Sky crown

The Associated Press

BOISE — Idaho's Vandals, Big Sky Conference football champions for five of the last eight seasons, have been picked as the preseason favorite to do it again.

The league said Tuesday both a poll of conference football coaches and also a poll of reporters covering the league predicted Idaho will repeat as champions.

Fifth-year Coach John L. Smith has the league's top returning quarterback, Doug Nussmeier returning. The Vandals, 9-3 last season, 6-1 in Big Sky, tied with Eastern Washington for last year's title but lost 33-20 to McNeese State in the first round of the Division I-AA playoffs.

Nussmeier, Montana free safety Todd Ericson and Idaho State linebacker Kevin Kempf were picked as the preseason players of the year. Nussmeier was projected as the league's top offensive player. Ericson on defense and Kempf as top newcomer.

Coleman faces arraignment

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Vinny Coleman, the New York Mets' outfielder accused of throwing an explosive that injured three fans, was scheduled for arraignment this morning, authorities said.

It was unclear when he planned to surrender.

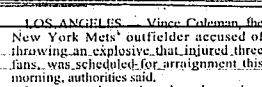

Coleman faces a charge of unlawful possession of an explosive device.

Fire Department arson investigators handling the case said discussions with Coleman's attorney on the time and place of surrender were still going on Tuesday afternoon.

Coleman's surrender was being arranged by his attorney, Robert Shapiro, said Suzanne Childs, spokeswoman for the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office. Shapiro was out of his office and could not be reached for comment, a receptionist at his law office said.

Coleman, on an unpaid leave of absence from the Mets, is not expected to contest the charge, Shapiro said last week when prosecutors announced they were charging Coleman with a felony.

Formal arraignment will be sometime after 9:30 a.m. MDT in Division 30 of Municipal Court, at the Criminal Courts building in downtown Los Angeles. Childs said Tuesday.

Coleman

Prosecutors have said the explosive was similar to a military M-100 and had the equivalent in power of a quarter-stick of dynamite. Conviction under the law carries a penalty, ranging from probation to three years.

Coleman issued an apology for the incident several days after it occurred, saying he had no intention of hurting anyone. His attorney has said he expects Coleman to take full responsibility for the action.

The incident occurred July 24 in the player's parking lot at Dodger Stadium, when the explosive was thrown from a car driven by Dodger Eric Davis. Also in the car was Mets player Bobby Bonilla. Davis and Bonilla were not charged.

Davis has said Coleman threw a firecracker about six feet from the car, and a crowd of people was much further away. Fans said Coleman lobbed the device from the car.

A 2½-year-old girl sustained facial injuries, and the Los Angeles Fire Department said an 11-year-old boy had a bruised leg and a 33-year-old woman was treated for an ear injury.

Mirer's contract draws attention from NFL

The Associated Press

KIRKLAND, Wash. — Although Rick Mirer has a contract that guarantees him wealth "up to and including the end of the world," it also promises him riches even if the Earth keeps spinning while he's sitting.

His contract, which has drawn the suspicious eye of commissioner Paul Tagliabue, also contains a $3 million bonus if the Seahawks improve even a smidge on their 2-14 record of last year.

"I know there's some weird stuff in there," Mirer said Tuesday after Seattle's morning practice. "I haven't seen it, I just signed some stuff, so I could get out here. It's supposed to be taken care of by the people above me."

Paul Tagliabue Looking at Mirer's deal

Mirer's agent, Marvin Demoff, was out of town and unavailable for comment Tuesday.

Mirer, the No. 2 pick in the 1993 NFL draft, could earn a $3 million bonus if he leads the team to win more than two games this year — all or without him behind center.

The clause is one of at least 20 in Mirer's contract that could trigger the $3 million bonus.

"The basic issue has to do with the rookie salary pool," said Greg Atchis, spokesman for the NFL office.

The Seahawks had $2.36 million to spend on their 1993 rookies. Base salaries, pro-rated signing bonuses and incentive bonuses count toward that pool.

Mirer's base salary is $1,244 million for 1993. His contract did not come with a signing bonus.

And the clauses that would trigger the $3 million in bonuses supposedly would not count against the rookie pool. That's because under the labor agreement between the NFL and its players, incentives "written for leading the club in any official league statistical category" don't count.

Don Allen, the assistant executive director of the NFL Players Association, said he didn't see how the contract could be overturned. If Tagliabue nullifies the contract, the Players Association could appeal the decision and send the case to arbitration.

"It's clear we would win," Allen said.

The package will pay Mirer up to $7.7 million over the first three years and as much as $15.7 million over five years. Mickey Loomis, Seattle's executive vice president, would not comment on the details of the contract.

When the Seahawks agreed to terms with Mirer 10 days ago, Demoff said, he expected the contract to receive league approval shortly after.

"As far as I know, we're just waiting on the people in the (commissioner's) office to do their job," Mirer said. "It's the last thing on my mind. I've got to get ready to go."

The NFL office is also reviewing the contract of New England quarterback Drew Bledsoe, the No. 1 pick overall. Bledsoe's agent, Rich Steinberg, cut a six-year, $14.493 million deal with the Patriots last month. The contract, which is built around loopholes in rookie salary cap and pool restrictions, is renegotiable based on playing time in the first three years.

The 75th PGA Championship: PGA Championship: Expect the unexpected

The Associated Press

TOLEDO, Ohio — Fluky winners pop up at the PGA Championship more than at golf's other major tournaments, some of the best players in history flop, and strange stuff happens particularly at the Inverness Club.

Put them all together when play starts Thursday, toss in a couple of days of rain that made the already lush course even softer, and there are the makings of another wild weekend.

This is not the time to bet the mortgage money on any of the favorites, neither the hot golfers of the moment, nor the proven champions of the past.

Of all the majors, Jack Nicklaus says, "The PGA is often the hardest to win, not only because of its strong fields, but because of a factor very few people besides the players seem to take into consideration.

"The better the course conditioning and the weather, the easier scoring becomes for golfers below the top echelon, so the harder it is for the best players to 'separate' themselves."

If the Masters, U.S. Open and British Open are distinguished for producing worthy champions who stand the test of tough courses, the PGA winners list is studded with one-shot wonders and players who seemed to come out of nowhere.

John Daly was such a player when he came ripping out of the field to take the PGA two years ago. Before him there were Wayne Grady, Jeff Sluman, Bob Tway, John Mahaffey and David Graham.

On the flip side, Arnold Palmer, Tom Watson and Seve Ballesteros never won a PGA.

Palmer will try again at age 63, but Ballesteros is staying away this time. Watson would love to win this one at last — he lost in 1978 at Oakmont in a playoff with Mahaffey. But Watson is likely to be preoccupied with making his choices to complete the 12-man U.S. Ryder Cup team that is to defend the Cup against Europe in September in England. The first 10 U.S. players qualify via the points system, and Watson will name the other two Monday after surveying the field here.

If recent form and personal incentives were the determining factors, Greg Norman would have to rank as the favorite. Norman won the British Open last month with a record score and made seven birdies on the back nine Sunday for a 65 to finish third in the Buick Open, two strokes back of winner Larry Mize.

Norman also saw the chance to grab a PGA title "stolen" from him in 1986 at Inverness by the bunker shot Tway sank on the 72nd hole — the first time anyone ever won a major that way.

That shot by Tway is only one of many uncanny occurrences at Inverness over the years.

It's a pretty course, tall trees casting shadows across the long fairways, but there's nothing especially exciting or beguiling about the layout with its parallel holes. It may be it is the simplicity of its setting that brings out the bizarre in major tournaments, including four U.S. Opens and that 1986 PGA.

Inverness was odd from the start, when it was designed in 1903 as a nine-hole course. Trouble was — oops! — they put in only eight holes. That goof-up was remedied soon enough, and in 1919, the club hired famed designer Donald Ross to modify the existing holes and add a new nine to make a complete course. A year later, the job barely done, Inverness played host to its first U.S. Open and began its storied history of weird but memorable moments.

Harry Vardon, the greatest player of the time with six British Opens and two U.S.

Aikman back at full speed for Cowboys

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Super Bowl MVP quarterback Troy Aikman worked out in pads Tuesday with the Dallas Cowboys; the first time since offseason surgery. "They gave me guys a spark," coach Jimmy Johnson said. "He was sharp, just like he's been for the first week or two of throwing without pads."

NFL training camps

Aikman, far ahead of his recovery schedule after undergoing surgery for a herniated disc on June 19, took most of the snap with the first unit in seven-on-seven drills.

He hopes to be ready for the season-opener against the Washington Redskins on Sept. 6. Johnson hasn't decided when Aikman will appear in his first exhibition game; he's not likely to play when the Cowboys entertain the Los Angeles Raiders on Saturday.

Bengals

A new defensive scheme cost David Fulcher his job and might make Cris Dishman's job easier.

Fulcher, a former All-Pro safety, was cut by Cincinnati earlier this week, apparently making room for rookie Lance Gunn of Texas, a seventh-round draft choice. Bengals coach Dave Shula said Fulcher was too slow for the team's system, which has been developing since Shula and defensive coordinator Ron Lynn were hired before last season.

Fulcher, 28, went to the Pro Bowl three times. He has been hampered by injuries in his right foot this year. "We're making moves on defense that will put more speed on the field for us," Shula said.

Oilers

The defensive change in Houston has Dishman, another former All-Pro, smiling about Buddy Ryan's presence as coordinator.

"It's not the same," Dishman said. "We're getting help with the free safety, and even some help from the linebackers. It's not like the old days when we were on an island."

Dishman hopes the new defense will give him chances for big plays again after missing six interceptions and recovering three fumbles in 1991, then slipping in both categories last year, when opponents avoided him. He'll be playing man coverage much of the time, exactly he wants — even if it means accepting responsibility for a mistake.

Steelers

Don't look for a backfield of AFC rushing champion Barry Foster and Tim Worley anytime soon. Offensive coordinator Ron Erhardt says it won't happen, even if Worley wishes it would.

Worley, suspended last season for violating the NFL's drug policy, took advantage of Foster's training camp holdout to run for 48 yards in two carries in two exhibition games. But Erhardt has no plans to move Worley to fullback and bench fullback Merrill Hoge.

Dallas' Troy Aikman re-suspended working out at full speed Tuesday for the first time since undergoing back surgery in the offseason.

"Worley can't play fullback; I don't think," Erhardt said. "I don't know if he can handle the blocking that we have the fullback do. Worley is a runner and that's where we'll play him."

Falcons

First-round draft choice Lincoln Kennedy, the 335-pound offensive lineman from Washington, missed Tuesday's practice sessions because of a hairline rib fracture. Kennedy was injured in practice Monday and the hairline fracture showed up on X-rays. Team trainers said his availability would be evaluated day to day.

Besides Kennedy, 13 players watched workouts Tuesday because of injuries, including punter Scott Fulghame (pulled groin) and center Jamie Dukes (toe).

Jets

Terance Mathis, a fourth-year receiver-kickoff returner, will miss up to four weeks following arthroscopic surgery for torn cartilage in his left knee.

Mathis missed several practices last week with tendinitis. He played in Saturday night's loss to Pittsburgh, catching the Jets' lone touchdown on an 8-yard pass from "Browning-Nagle." But he was tight on Sunday and tests revealed torn cartilage.

"If you want to look at the good side, it happened early in training camp," coach Bruce Coslet said. "He's a very valuable part of our team. He's a unique guy because of his extreme quickness."

Giants

Guard William Roberts' latest episode with an irregular heartbeat has left him frustrated, not afraid. "I'm not scared or frightened or anything," Roberts said after watching the Giants practice Tuesday.

Dr. Jeffrey Borer, Roberts' heart specialist, said Roberts probably expects a second atrial fibrillation because he had taken an over-the-counter decongestant and then drank cold water at halftime of Saturday's game at Cincinnati.

Mets pitcher apologizes for incident

NEW YORK (AP) — Bret Saberhagen was identified by the New York Mets on Tuesday as the player who sprayed bleach on two reporters in the clubhouse July 27.

The team said the pitcher will contribute one day's pay, $15,384.62, to a charity or charities designated by the New York Chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Saberhagen, on the disabled list after knee surgery this week, also will miss a number of days to be determined when he returns from his injury in about a month.

College coach says witness unsure if Jackson had gun

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State basketball coach Randy Ayers testified Tuesday that one of four people accusing basketball star Jim Jackson of waving a gun at them admitted he wasn't certain Jackson had a gun.

Ayers said a relative of Ronald Sidney Jr., 20, called him, then Sidney got on the telephone.

"He said he thought he had seen a gun," but was not certain, Ayers testified.

Jackson, 22, is charged with one count of aggravated menacing, one count of carrying a concealed weapon in a motor vehicle and three counts of disorderly conduct. One count of disorderly conduct was dropped Tuesday.

Jackson, who appeared before Franklin County municipal judge Steven Hayes with his attorney, has denied having a gun. The ex-Ohio State star plays for the Dallas Mavericks.

Ayers said such behavior would have been out of character for Jackson.

Earlier Tuesday, a night-vision expert testified that it was too dark to see what Jackson was holding the night of the alleged incident.

Bernard Abrams, a Columbus optometrist, said he reached that conclusion by recreating the scene of the alleged disturbance.

New D.C. coach pleased after 1st preseason game

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's just an exhibition game. No big deal. Richie Pitblow told everyone beforehand. But a 41-12 romp by his Washington Redskins over the Cleveland Browns was a smashing opening act for the 35-year NFL veteran making his coaching debut in the shadow of Joe Gibbs.

"To be perfectly honest, we weren't surprised," Pitblow said afterward. "We were coming off three good weeks of practice, and if we hadn't played good, I would have been disappointed."

With a new two-back offense emphasizing short quick timing passes in contrast to their traditional pound-the-line and throw-long-on-third game, the Redskins racked up 387 yards on the Browns and took advantage of fumbles and interceptions to dominate play Monday night.

"We're changing philosophies a little bit and doing some new things; it's exciting," quarterback Mark Rypien said.

Rypien, looking more like the Super Bowl most valuable player he was two years ago than the lowest rated quarterback in the NFC of last season, completed 8 of 12 passes for 123 yards.
