Crapo piles up GOP PAC money

The Associated Press
IDAHO FALLS — Idaho freshman congressman Mike Crapo has received more donations from political action committees than any of his 47 freshman Republican colleagues in Congress in the first six months of 1993.
Crapo received $71,222 in donations from special interest committees, 90 percent of his campaign funds for the period.
Only eight members of the House's

Idahoan leads party freshmen in contributions for 6 months

110-member freshman class, all Democrats, had more political committee donations than Crapo.
Crapo, an Idaho Falls Republican, said he was surprised by the numbers himself. But he also said the numbers tell only part of the story.
"It's a little bit lopsided to look at just one report," he said.
He said he was concentrating on political committees for the first part of the year.
"If you take a snapshot of any particular period, you get that period's focused efforts and that's what this was," he said.

Police seek roommate in Gooding man's death

By Stefano Esposito
Times-News writer
GOODING — Police and sheriff's officers are searching for the roommate of a 48-year-old Gooding man who was fatally stabbed Wednesday night in a second-floor downtown apartment.
The victim's name has not yet been released as authorities notify his family. His roommate, a 23-year-old Hispanic male, also was not identified.
Police were called to 121 Second Ave. E. at approximately 9:20 p.m. Wednesday by someone who had apparently discovered the victim in the bedroom of the apartment, acting Police Chief Paul G. Brown said Thursday.
The victim died at approximately 10:30 p.m. at Gooding County Memorial Hospital, Brown said.
Six people were in the apartment above a used-merchandise store at the time of the stabbing, Brown said. When police arrived, the victim was the only person there. Four people were waiting outside, but the victim's roommate had fled.
"(The roommate) left in a vehicle belonging to one of the other occupants in the apartment," Brown said. "He abandoned it about a block from the apartment and fled the area on foot."
Brown described the roommate and the victim as "friends or acquaintances," who

On guard

Following her first day of school, fourth-grader Cassandra Swinney greets crossing guard Max Walton with a big hug Thursday at Kimberly Elementary School.

Crossing guard begins 7th year outside Kimberly grade school

By Mychel Matthews Goodman
Times-News correspondent
KIMBERLY — Max Walton will let nothing happen to "his kids" on their way to school.
"His kids" are the students at Kimberly Elementary School, where Walton, 65, volunteers his days as the school crossing guard.
"He knows all the kids by name," Principal Wes Remaley said.
On Thursday, Walton, a retired sheepherder, celebrated his seventh first day of school taking care of Kimberly kids.
"He's always glad to get back" after summer vacation, said Colleen Walton, his wife of 30 years.
He arrives at 7 a.m. every school day, just in time to make coffee for the teachers. Then, by 7:45, a few of his kids come straggling along on their way to school. For the next 45 minutes, and again in the afternoon, Walton makes sure his kids get safely through the traffic on Main Street.
Colleen Walton says her husband carries pictures of his kids in his wallet, and that he has a full photo album at home. Some of "his kids are almost grown now," she said.
Once the morning bell rings, Walton spends his time helping out around the school. "And sometimes I do crossword puzzles," he said, while waiting for his second shift to begin at 2:45 p.m.
"I eat lunch with the kids when I can afford it," Walton said. He and his wife live on his Social Security benefits.
Although the school district reimburses him for gas money to get him back and forth from his home in Murtaugh, Walton receives no pay for the time he volunteers at the school. His only gratuity is the pleasure he gets from his work.
"It's about the only thing I look forward to anymore," Walton said. "The kids are my pride and joy."

Buchanan joins trade pact foes

Journal of Commerce
WASHINGTON — Former presidential candidate Pat Buchanan said he and Ross Perot will lead separate efforts to drain off Republican support in Congress for the North American Free Trade Agreement.
In last year's Republican primaries, Buchanan led an unsuccessful effort to woo conservatives away from President George Bush with an "America first" platform that included opposing NAFTA.
Many of these disaffected conservatives made up the 19 percent of the electorate that eventually voted for Perot in the general election.
At a news conference Thursday, Buchanan, a conservative newspaper columnist and television commentator, used many of the same arguments that Perot has used against the trade pact — that lower wages in Mexico inevitably would result in losses of U.S. jobs and investment, for example.
But he also took a new tack, condemning the recently completed side agreements on labor and the environment as a surrender of U.S. sovereignty.
"An economic tie to Mexico," he said, referring to the agreement of Adolf Hitler through an agreement struck in Munich, Germany.

Sheik in court, flock in rage

The Associated Press
NEW YORK — Amid heavy security, Muslim Sheik Omar Abdel-Rahman pleaded innocent Thursday to concocting a campaign of bombings, kidnappings and assassinations in the United States.
His followers abroad threatened retaliation against Americans should he be harmed.
Fourteen co-defendants entered the same plea during a hearing at federal court in Manhattan exactly six months after the Feb. 26 World Trade Center bombing. The appearance was the radical Egyptian cleric's first as a defendant in the alleged conspiracy.
The courtroom was wall-to-wall with plainclothes officers outfitted with earphones and hidden weapons. Streets outside were lined with police and a police helicopter buzzed over the courthouse, in an indication of the fear that other members of the terrorist cell remain free.
"Whether or not we've identified the major players, obviously there's a concern that there may be others out there that we don't know about," said Matthew Fishbein, chief assistant U.S. attorney. "These are violent people who have demonstrated they successfully completed bombings and planned others."
Police Commissioner Raymond Kelly wouldn't discuss any of his department's Case files: Jackson told boy relationship 'in cosmos'

The Associated Press
LOS ANGELES — A 13-year-old boy allegedly molested by Michael Jackson claims the singer told him their relationship was "in the cosmos" and "meant to be" and that the boy could go to juvenile hall if it were revealed.
In investigative documents reviewed by The Associated Press on Thursday, the boy told Los Angeles County Department of Children's Services caseworker Ann T. Rosato that he and Jackson had a four-month relationship that started with hugs and kisses and escalated into sexual acts by what they contained.

Attorneys for the boy's parents did not return calls to their offices Thursday. A Children's Services spokesman said caseworkers are forbidden by state law to discuss cases publicly.
Weitzman also said he and Jackson's security consultant, Anthony Pellicano, met with police and Children's Services investigators to discuss the case. "Michael is continuing to cooperate with law enforcement. We agreed to keep on talking while they continue to investigate," he said.
The allegations by the boy triggered a criminal investigation of Jackson by the Los Angeles Police Department, and off-

Rain scattered across sizzling southern tier of states

The Associated Press
Rain stretched Thursday from Arizona to the southern Atlantic Coast, with sticky heat in the East and a cool start to the day in the Northwest.
Tropical Storm Emily became the first hurricane of this year's Atlantic season for 12 hours when its top sustained winds reached 74 mph. The hurricane, hundreds of miles off the Florida coast, lost strength early in the evening.
A tornado touched down near Pahokee in southern Florida, said the National Weather Service, which had no reports of injuries or major damage.
At midday, showers and occasional thunderstorms damped coastal states in the south Atlantic region, the central Gulf and the Texas Gulf, along with the upper Great Lakes; the central Appalachians; the upper Mississipp

Transistors suspected in craft loss

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A transistor blamed for a pre-launch breakdown on a weather satellite now lost in space may have caused the disappearance of Mars Observer, NASA said Thursday.
"If that theory is correct, the agency's Jet Propulsion Laboratory said, the $980 million mission is doomed."
NASA lost touch with both Mars Observer and the $62 million NOAA-13 weather satellite on Saturday, and NASA officials have said they doubt they will regain contact with the satellite.
The transistors are crucial for operation of computer clocks on both spacecraft. Neither spacecraft can operate without the clocks.
NOAA-13's launch was delayed from June until Aug. 9, partly because its clock had failed and had to be replaced.
An investigation blamed that breakdown on the failure of the same kind of transistor used in Mars Observer's two clocks, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said in a statement.
The transistors all came from the same lot, NASA said.
"NASA's statement tying the transistors to Mars Observer's disappearance one day after independent analysts speculated the spacecraft may have exploded."

center.
None spoke during the hearing; some greeted family members in the court by saying "Peace be with you" in Arabic.
U.S. District Court Judge Michael B. Mukasey said there may have to be at least two separate trials because there are more than 10 defendants and likely to be more than four months of testimony.
Defense lawyer Ron Kuby told the judge the evidence will prove "this conspiracy was a government conspiracy" a setup by a government informant who eavesdropped on conversations with investigators.
The indictment returned Wednesday charged the suspects with plotting a "war of urban terrorism" against the United States.
It also charged El Sayyid Nosair with the murder of Kahane, although Nosair was acquitted of those charges in the Nov. 5, 1990 slaying. And it detailed plans to attack U.S. military installations, murder FBI agents and seize hostages as bargaining chips to gain the release of jailed conspirators.
It marked the first time prosecutors had tied the whole package of a terror group that operated for at least four years prior to the Feb. 26 blast that killed six and injured more than 1,000 at the Trade Center.
The United Nations, a federal office building, and the Holland and Lincoln Tunnels also were targeted by the group, the indictment said.

Crapo

$45,000 to $50,000 on hand to start the next campaign.
Crapo is expected to seek re-election. He attended a fund-raising event in Twin Falls Thursday.
"My first priority in the district is just starting up," Crapo said. "You need to let the people in the district have a rest from the campaign."
About half of last year's $600,000 came from supporters in Idaho's 2nd Congressional District, and less than 50 percent from political committees.
Democratic activists were surprised that Crapo has raised so much in special interest donations in only a few months, and were concerned that he was getting the bulk of his money from special interests.
"For a guy who was going back to Washington, D.C., and be different — it looks as though Congressman Crapo got drawn in pretty quickly and is getting substantially into the politics of the past," said Bill Mauk of Boise, state Democratic Party chairman.
Crapo said his political donations have come from a variety of groups, and his political donations were relatively small. Political action committees can donate up to $5,000 to a candidate.
"There were a lot (of donations) in the $500 to $1,000 range," Crapo said.
Mauk said the heavy political committee donations say a lot about Crapo's priorities.
"It's a clear indication that he's spent a lot of his energy raising money (for re-election)," Mauk said.
To date, no Democrat has announced plans to run against Crapo next year. Democrats concede Crapo has a considerable head start in fund raising, but they don't think the edge is insurmountable.
It's unfortunate in many regards that our election process has become so damned expensive," Bonneville County Democratic Chairman, Fred Hoopes said.

on the other. It was a big bed," Brett Barnes of Melbourne, Australia, told KNBC-TV late Wednesday.
As friends and family rallied to Jackson's support, police expanded their investigation of Jackson to include his relationship with a total of at least four boys, the Los Angeles Times and KCAL-TV reported. Police declined to comment on the reports Thursday.
Jackson, who turns 35 on Sunday, postponed another concert in Thailand as part of his "Dangerous" tour until Friday because of acute dehydration, Marcar told reporters.
After the case files reviewed by the AP, the 13-year-old boy first met Jackson in February of this year when Jackson's car broke down and he sought help from the boy's stepfather, who runs a rental car company.
The relationship ended in June, the documents say.
The boy discussed the sexual allegations in three hours of sessions with therapist Mathis Abrams, who immediately reported the situation to Children's Services and Los Angeles police as required by law, the documents show.

Statehood arrests

Reno cautious about merging INS, Customs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Creating a border super agency by combining the Immigration and Naturalization Service with the Treasury Department's Customs Service is "premature," Attorney General Janet Reno said Thursday.

The INS, a Justice Department agency, "has so much on its plate right now," Reno told reporters of the idea raised by the White House's National Performance Review, expected to be formally announced Sept. 7.

Long faced "with management problems," INS has been hit recently with a spate of negative publicity over the improper admission into the United States of Sheikh Omar Abdel Rahman, charged Wednesday in the World Trade Center bombing, and its handling of Chinese arriving illegally by boat.

"I think it is imperative that we do everything we can to upgrade the management, allocate the resources in the Immigration and Naturalization Service and address critical problems in terms of asylum processing, in terms of all the issues that are of concern to Americans," said Reno.

While not foreclosing a merger, Reno said that for now, "that would be premature."

She cautioned against looking at agency mergers as "immediately synonymous with budget-cutting," noting that an NPR-proposed merger of the Drug Enforcement Administration and the FBI would initially increase costs.

Reno

Reno said she was still considering whether to endorse the DEA-FBI merger proposal, and she raised the possibility that her decision may come after the White House plan is announced. She wants advice from incoming FBI Director Louis Freeh, who won't be sworn in until Sept. 1.

"The NPR might come out with the proposal and I might have to tell the president, 'Look, I have reviewed it all and think for this reason it should be done this way rather than this way,'" Reno told reporters.

The DEA's 3,600 agents focus solely on the anti-drug fight, while about 2,300 of the FBI's 10,500 agents are assigned to that mission.

Reno said she was especially interested in hearing the views of two former DEA administrators who served previously in the FBI, Francis "Bud" Written and Jack Lawn.

Cigarettes steal 5 million years from citizens' lives

ATLANTA (AP) — Every cigarette steals seven minutes of a smoker's life — adding up to a staggering 5 million years of potential life that Americans lose to cigarettes — each year, government doctors reported Thursday.

"It's quite shocking," said Dr. Michael Eriksen of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. "All of us have loved ones that smoke and are patient and understanding and want them to quit. But realizing that is time being taken away from their life with you puts a new urgency on it."

The CDC counted 418,690 U.S. deaths in 1990 that were directly attributed to cigarette smoking, not counting cigars, pipes and smokeless tobacco. That amounted to 20 percent of all deaths in the United States that year — more than died from alcohol, drugs, car crashes and AIDS combined, Eriksen said.

And those premature deaths added up to 5.04 million years of life that cigarettes stole from Americans in 1990 alone, the CDC concluded.

Taking the calculations a step farther, the CDC compared the average number of cigarettes those dead smokers had puffed with the number of years they lost. It found that every minute spent smoking took a minute from a person's life. The average smoker takes about 7 minutes to finish a cigarette.

Nation of Islam chief castigates U.S. policy

He spoke to the World Conference of Mayors in the Henderson auditorium. The room was provided by the department's African Affairs Bureau.

Study shows lifting gay ban won't harm military

WASHINGTON (AP) — An independent study commissioned by Defense Secretary Les Aspin last April and made public Thursday recommended that gays be permitted to serve openly in the military — a conclusion Aspin eventually rejected.

The study by the Rand Corp., a research group with longstanding ties to the Defense Department, cost $1.3 million.

After President Clinton told Aspin last winter to prepare a draft executive order "ending discrimination" in the military on the basis of sexual orientation, Aspin ordered two reports, one by a group of senior military officers and the other by Rand. Neither report had been made public before.

The Clinton administration policy, announced July 19, was built on the recommendations of the officers' report, which stated that while sexual orientation is a private matter, openly declared gays should be barred from the military.

"All homosexuality is incompatible with military service," the officers' summary report, dated July 1, said. "The effect on combat effectiveness is not limited to known homosexuals."

The Rand report, by contrast, concluded that while concerns about the possible effects of permitting homosexuals to serve are not groundless, "the problems do not appear insurmountable, and there is ample reason to believe that heterosexual and homosexual military personnel can work together effectively."

Clinton faced unanimous opposition to lifting the gay ban from the six members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the president's most senior military advisers.

The Rand study said the scope of problems envisioned by critics of lifting the ban had been exaggerated. "Open homosexual military personnel are likely to be rare, at least in the foreseeable future," Rand said. "Homosexuals in the military will be under enormous informal pressure to stay in the closet," even without any explicit requirement to do so.

Liberal Democrats in Congress had demanded that the Pentagon release the Rand study before the House and Senate consider next year's defense budget, which includes language legalizing a restrictive policy on gays in the military.

NOTICE OF TAX INCREASE FOR TWIN FALLS COUNTY

Twin Falls County has proposed to increase its annual budget by an amount of ad valorem tax revenues that exceeds one hundred five percent (105%) of the ad valorem tax revenues certified for its annual budget during the previous year by sixteen and five-one hundredths percent (16.05%) percent of its ad valorem property tax rate by eleven and eighty-five-one hundredths percent (11.85%) which will increase its property tax revenue by twenty-one and five-one hundredths percent (21.05%). The following schedule is an estimate of what this change may mean to a taxpayer:

	Last Year's Taxable Value	This Year's Estimated Taxable Value	Last Year's Actual Taxes	This Year's Estimated Taxes
FOR A TYPICAL HOME OF $50,000 TAXABLE VALUE LAST YEAR	50,000	55,903	$185.30	$231.72
FOR A TYPICAL FARM OF $100,000 TAXABLE VALUE LAST YEAR	100,000	102,210	$370.60	$423.66
FOR A TYPICAL BUSINESS OF $200,000 TAXABLE VALUE LAST YEAR	200,000	229,885	$741.20	$952.88

All citizens are invited to attend a public hearing on the increased budget request or increased tax rates. The hearings will be held September 7 through 10, 1993, beginning at the hour of 10 a.m. each day in the office of the County Commissioners in the Court House, Twin Falls, Idaho. Comments concerning any increase will be heard and the proposed increase explained.

CAUTION TO TAXPAYER: The amounts shown in this schedule do not reflect tax charges that are made because of voter approved bond levies, override levies, supplemental levies, or levies applicable to newly annexed property, or levies applicable to newly created taxing districts.

Red Cross volunteer charged with fraud

DES MOINES, Iowa — A Red Cross volunteer was charged with writing $30,000 in flood-relief vouchers to buy clothing and other goods for herself, friends and family.
 Joan Tullock, 31, of Miami, who came here to work on flood relief, was charged Tuesday with first-degree fraud. She remained jailed Thursday on $13,000 bond.
 Dale Moritz, a Polk County sheriff's detective, said it appeared Tullock and friends used the vouchers to pay for clothing, furniture, food and possibly motel bills. Some of the items were recovered in Tullock's motel room, he said.
 The alleged fraud came to light over the weekend when a man and a woman went to a store, claiming they were flood victims. They tried to buy a big-screen television and other luxury items with vouchers worth about $7,000, said Jerry Knapp, a manager at the store.

Storm creates sticky mess for keepers

HARRISBURG, Pa. — A violent storm that wrecked an old oak tree that housed a huge colony of bees left 10,000 dead, another 40,000 homeless, and a pair of bee enthusiasts with a sticky situation.
 "I've never seen a tree that large, and so filled with honey," said 80-year-old Fred Gerber of New Cumberland, who estimated more than 100 pounds of the sweet syrup was packed in the log.
 With fellow bee hobbyist Eugene Fleming, 67, of Mechanicsburg he's worked this week to move the bees to a beekeeper's box.
 Loggers were summoned to get rid of the remains of the 100-foot, hollow oak on the grounds of a church in the suburban township of Silver Spring. If not for Gerber and Fleming, the surviving bees would likely be exterminated to protect the loggers.

U.S., Europe forecasters sign contract

WASHINGTON — U.S. and European weather forecasters have agreed to cover each other's backs when either side loses a major weather satellite.
 The agreement between the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and the European Organization for Exploitation of Meteorological Satellites isn't scheduled to take effect until 1995.
 But the United States has already borrowed a European satellite, which is replacing a failed American GOES satellite in monitoring hurricanes, tropical storms and other weather.
 The new agreement calls for the United States and the European weather agency to each keep two stationary satellites in operation, and for each to reposition its instruments to help the other in the event of failure.

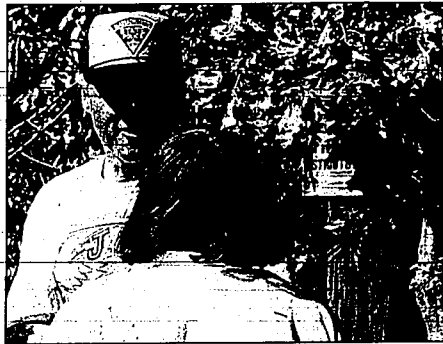

Police seek killer; skinheads want martyr

RIVERSIDE, Calif. — Police said race apparently wasn't involved in the fatal shooting of an 18-year-old last weekend, but a white supremacist leader was conducting a private investigation to keep the issue alive, it was reported Thursday.
 Joseph "Stickhouse" was shot in the head Saturday night after a scuffle between 70 alleged white supremacists who were leaving an unruly party and three youths, two of them Hispanic, police said.
 The three youngsters, two 16 years old and one 14, told police they just happened to be driving by a house in Glen Avon when a mob yelling "supreme white power" started smashing their car windows and trying to get at them.
 Tom Metzger, director of the White Aryan Resistance, said the killing raises racial implications that may not die down for some time. He will launch his own investigation and would reveal the results on his television show, his monthly newsletter and his telephone hot line.

Agents shoo press from Clintons' jog

By Merrill Horton
 The Associated Press

EDGARTOWN, Mass. — President Clinton is showing increasing signs of impatience with the ever-present pool of reporters and photographers in a roughly 15-person press pool that springs into action each time he leaves the compound.
 Secret Service agents ordered reporters to stay inside press vans, which are provided by the White House, when Clinton went jogging Thursday. He usually jogs without his wife, Hillary Rodham Clinton, but this time, she was with him.
 On Wednesday, the president bristled at being asked a question as he was going on a jog. Just a few moments later, an agent said, "The president wants it stopped."
 White House press secretary Dee Dee Myers said, "I think it was simply a snafu based on how quickly everyone was sort of running and jumping to go off and cover an unanticipated jog."
 "His feeling (Clinton's), I think, is that he has been treated quite respectfully by the press, generally, that he's gotten a good deal of space and arms-length," she said.

President Clinton talks to an unidentified woman before his Thursday morning jog with the first lady. The Clintons are vacationing on Martha's Vineyard off Cape Cod this week.

A 76-year-old tribal chief, Donald Malonson, can boast that he was the first islander to shake Clinton's hand when the president arrived here for his summer vacation.
 "I was very honored and I treated it as such," Malonson, head of the Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah) said in a telephone interview. "I'm not like some people who jump through hoops. We're all a low-key people naturally."
 Malonson was introduced to the president by Clinton's close friend, Vernon Jordan, and was the first in line to shake Clinton's hand at a cocktail party that Jordan threw for the president last Thursday, Rachel Ryan, grandmother of Malonson's wife, Patricia, was on Martha's Vineyard in 1874 when Ulysses Grant made a visit to the island.

Being a president's child is only slightly less awkward on a resort island than it is at the White House. The problem is compounded for 13-year-old Chelsea Clinton because she is an only child.

And going to dinner in a party that includes the president and former first lady Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis is a pretty heavy-duty social scene for a teenager. But at the Outermost Inn eatery Tuesday night, Chelsea had the company of Sam O'Sullivan, a classmate at Sidwell Friends School in Washington.

"She Didn't Ask For This!" declared a Boston Globe headline over a story quoting a number of teenagers as saying that they thought Chelsea has a difficult life and that they had no desire to change places with her.

Charity ruling angers veterans

WASHINGTON (AP) — A veterans group is out $500,000 to help Vietnam vets because of a retroactive decision to exclude it from a list of government-sanctioned charities.
 And federal workers who earmarked donations for the group will find instead that the money is going to another organization.
 "We're mystified. It doesn't make any sense to us," said Bill Crandell of the Vietnam Veterans of America, whose social service wing, the Vietnam Veterans Assistance Fund, was first given, and then lost, the right to receive funds from a federal worker charity drive.
 The VVA, with congressional support, is seeking a Justice Department review of the Office of Personnel Management's ruling that barred VVA from the 1992 Combined Federal Campaign.

 The campaign, conducted in the fall, gives federal workers a list of approved charities and asks them to check off donations to their favorite group. Last year it received 2.2 million pledges worth $199 million.

Prep griders take field Saturday

More prep previews — A7

High school football starts Saturday in the Magic Valley with three teams seeing action.

Buhl is the only area team to play a home game, with a 7:30 p.m. kickoff set in a contest with Mountain Home. Burley travels to Montpellier for a 4 p.m. matchup with Bear Lake. Shoshone visits Council for a 1 p.m. game.

Against A-1 Division II Mountain Home, Buhl will counter the Tigers' experienced and quick skill players with a strong returning line. The major concern for Indians Coach Clark Muscat is Mountain Home's returning quarterback and fullback.

"Their backfield and receivers have real good speed, and that's an area we're suspect on," Muscat said.

The teams set up the early season contest because of the new A-2 playoff system combining Districts 4, 5 and 6 that gives two Magic Valley teams an opportunity for postseason play and to eliminate conflicts for Buhl with the Twin Falls County Fair.

Both teams will only have had 10 days of practice to get ready for the contest.

"That's tough, but it's tough for both sides," Muscat said. "If we have to play a school that size, I'd rather it was early."

Burley nipped Bear Lake 20-18 last season and could be expected to improve on that. The Bears lost most of their key players to graduation. Burley returns most of its starters on both sides of the football.

"We have a lot of starters back. If they are ready to play as a team, we're going to do pretty well," said Bobcats Coach Bill Hicks.

The Bobcats will be hampered by the loss of three-year starter at middle linebacker Spencer Turpin, who broke a hand in practice and could be out as long as six weeks.

Keys for Burley will be the play of quarterback Bob Plotts and running back Kody Beck.

The Bear Lake contest should indicate if the Bobcats will take advantage of being a senior-dominated squad and get off to a fast start.

"I think we should be able to," Hicks said. "We're a lot further along this year than we have been in past years at this point."

Shoshone Coach Tim Chapman asked for an early season test to ready the Indians for Please see FOOTBALL/A6

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho Athletic Department will place on sale upper west balcony reserved basketball season tickets.

The tickets go on sale at 7:30 a.m. Monday, Sept. 13, at the Athletic Department Information Office on the north side of the CSI gym and remain available until 4:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 15.

The passes cost $75 and are good for 18 home games.

McKean 8th, Fairbanks 16th on NASCAR regional listing

SCOTT'S VALLEY, Calif. — Three drivers rank within 25 points at the top of the NASCAR Pacific Coast Region standings this week.

Steve Hendren of Santa Cruz, Calif., Robert Miller of San Jose, Calif., and Dan Obrist, of Protland, Ore., rank 1-2-3 respectively, each with 12 victories this season.

Darin Fairbanks of Twin Falls is next in wins at 11, but stands 16th overall after his second-place finish at Magic Valley Speedway Saturday. Eddy McKean of Jerome, with his win Saturday, holds the No. 8 position in the region.

UI offense gets handle on ball, bounces back from 2 defeats

MOSCOW — Rebounding from a sound beating in the first of two preseason scrimmages, the University of Idaho starting offense was much improved and moved the ball with more consistency in the second and final scrimmage held in the Kibbie Dome on Thursday.

After failing to get his team into the endzone in last week's scrimmage, UI quarterback Doug Nussmeier led a six-play, 75-yard drive by completing 3-of-4 passes for 53 yards on the first possession of the day which was capped by a Sherriden Day two-yard touchdown run.

"We were much better today," said UI head coach John L. Smith. "We cleaned up a lot of mental things. I was pleased with our performance."

Fed up with array of trouble, Mets give Coleman his walking papers

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Vince Coleman, facing a felony charge after throwing a powerful firecracker at fans, is finished with the New York Mets.

The Mets, fed up with an array of trouble this season, said Thursday the 31-year-old outfielder will not return to the club this season. Team president Fred Wilpon went even further, vowing Coleman will never play for the Mets again.

Coleman will remain on "administrative leave" — in effect, suspended with pay — until his arraignment Oct. 8 in Los Angeles on a felony charge of possession of an explosive device.

Coleman still has one year left on a four-year, $12 million contract, but Wilpon did not say how the Mets will get rid of him after the season.

"We have the right to act — release him, trade him or fight him on the contract," Wilpon said. "It's in the best interest of the Mets that he never wear a Mets uniform again, even if he is cleared of the criminal offense. He'll not play here again as a Met, with pay or without pay."

"The Mets have been beset by problems on and off the field in the worst season of the 32-year-old franchise.

Picked by some to contend for the NL East title, the Mets have the poorest record in the majors at 43-83 and are the only team to already have been mathematically eliminated from pennant contention.

Anthony Young's 27-game losing streak, the firing of manager Jeff Torborg and injuries to Howard Johnson, Sid Fernandez and other key players have been among the lowlights.

But there has been just as much turmoil in the clubhouse. Bret Saberhagen admitted putting a firecracker under a table where reporters were interviewing Young; in a separate incident, Saberhagen admitted he spayed bleach on writers.

Coleman contributed to the disarray when he swung a golf club and hit Dwight Gooden in the shoulder, knocking him out of a start.

But his latest antics landed him in court. Prosecutors in Los Angeles said he threw an M-100, which has the equivalent power of a quarter-stick of dynamite, from a car as he left the Dodger Stadium parking lot on July 24. A 2-year-old girl was among three people injured. Coleman has said he will not contest the charge.

Vikings avenge preseason loss, pound Steelers

The Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — Sparked by special-teamers Qadry Ismail and Fuad Reveziz, the Minnesota Vikings rebounded from their only exhibition defeat under coach Dennis Green with a 30-13 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers on Thursday night.

NFL roundup — A6

Ismail, Minnesota's second-round draft pick from Syracuse, had kickoff returns of 55 and 42 yards to set up 10 points, including a 51-yard field goal by Reveziz.

Reveziz, who missed the last two games with an ankle injury, added field goals of 34 and 26 yards and also provided several deep kickoffs as the Vikings kept the Steelers in poor field position most of the game.

Jim McMahon completed 12 of 19 passes for 110 yards and a touchdown in two-plus quarters of work as the Vikings finished the preseason at 4-1. They won their only exhibition under Green before losing last week at Kansas City. In Green's two preseasons, the Vikings have outscored nine opponents 246-69.

Gallagher gallops up on Edwards

The Associated Press

AKRON, Ohio — Jim Gallagher took advantage of a monster drive, birdied the final hole and tied David Edwards for the first-round lead Thursday in the World Series of Golf.

Gallagher and Edwards each had 4-under-par 66s despite the firm, fast fairways and quick, tricky greens that made the Firestone Country Club course play at its toughest.

"The golf course is so dry, I don't think anybody is going to run away with it," South African David Frost, tied for third at 68, said.

"The fairways are so hard, the ball runs through them into the rough. Coming out of the rough, you can't get the ball close to the hole."

"And the greens are spiking up so you're not going to see anybody making a lot of putts," he said.

Gallagher, however, turned the 18th fairway to his advantage, unleashing a 320-yard drive that set up a wedge to the green.

He got that shot to about 8 feet and made the putt that gave him a share of the lead before a personal gallery of 40 or 50 friends and relatives," he said.

Edwards also made the most of his opportunities. Playing in 94 degree heat more common in his hometown of Edmond, Okla., than northern Ohio, he got around without a bogey.

A lot of fairways, a lot of greens, not many chances to mess up," Edwards said. "On a golf course of this stature, that's the way I have to play. That's the only game I've got."

It was as good as any and better than most in the international 41-man field made up of tournament winners from around the world the last 12 months.

"Some of the game's top attractions couldn't even come close. Take the pairing of Fred Couples and Phil Mickelson as an example. Each shot 77 in the sweltering heat."

Ed Loveitt, pausing occasionally to wipe perspiration from his face and hands, walked the fairways with a frown, scowling and shaking his head in frustration. He shot 75.

And Paul Azinger, making his first start since winning the PGA, was equally exasperated with a case of the three-putts that ran his score up to 73, 3 over par.

On the 18th hole, John Huston found a way around the putting problems that were common to most of the rest of the field. He holled a 166-yard 8-iron shot for an eagle-2 and was in a group at 68 with Frost, fellow South African Fulton Allem and Masay Kuramoto of Japan.

Greg Norman was in a group at 69. Edwards, who qualified for this winner-only event with a victory in the Heritage Classic, is a short hitter — he ranks 171st in driving distance — on one of the tour's longest tracks, 7,149 yards and par 70.

FSU star keys in on title

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — Two-sport star Charlie Ward hit only one goal at the moment — winning a national championship in football.

"That's why I came here," the Florida State quarterback said.

The Seminoles have never won the national title, but they're ranked No. 1 in The Associated Press preseason poll for the third time in six years. The main reason is Ward, who set a school record for total offense last season with 3,121 yards.

Ward, who is also a point guard on the basketball team, is one of the preseason favorites for the Heisman Trophy. An elusive runner and strong passer, the 6-foot-2, 190-pound senior led the Seminoles to an 11-1 record and No. 2 ranking last season.

"It's good to see your name up there because you know the hard work is paying off," he said.

Coach Bobby Bowden, whose team opens its season Saturday against Kansas in the Kickoff Classic at Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J., said Ward's "biggest assets are his coolness under fire and his ability to deal with tough times."

After throwing eight interceptions in his first two games last year, Ward settled down and had a great season. He passed for 22 touchdowns, completed 56 percent of his passes and threw only three interceptions in his last five games.

"He never showed a lack of confidence or lack of poise," Bowden said.

Although it was his first year as a starter, Ward said he didn't panic after throwing four interceptions against Duke and having four more passes picked off by Clemson the following week.

"I'd say to myself, 'Oh, no, no another one,'" Ward said. "But I fought through it. I had something to do with a lot of touchdowns."

The only concern about Ward going into preseason practice was the strength of his left shoulder, which he injured during basketball season. But he has recovered from surgery and shows no signs of weakness.

"As long as I'm healthy, I think things will go well for me," he said.

Ward said he can't wait to play in the Kickoff Classic at Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J.

"I'm real anxious for the season to come," he said. "There's a lot to look forward to."

Marlin ace rides 2-out single to victory

MIAMI (AP) — Pitcher Richie Lewis, batting for only the second time in his major-league career, drove the Marlins to a 3-1 victory in the 13th inning with a two-out single Thursday as Florida beat Houston 5-4.

Walt Weiss was walked by Doug Jones (4-10) to start the inning. After two forceouts, Lewis readily walked to bring up Lewis.

He connected on an 0-1 pitch for his first major-league hit. Lewis (6-1) got the victory by pitching 1-2-3 scoreless innings.

The Marlins snapped a losing streak and ended Houston's four-game winning streak.

The Marlins stranded 17 runners, one more than the Astros.

Mets 7, Rockies 1

NEW YORK (AP) — Dwight Gooden, pitching on two days rest for the first time in his career, scattered four hits in eight innings and snapped a career-high four-game losing streak.

Gooden (12-14), who was ejected in the third inning of Monday's game against Cleveland after a 4-1 batter, struck out three and walked one. John Franco, making his first appearance since Aug. 2, worked the final inning and struck out two.

Edgar Murray doubled and hit his 20th homer, a two-run shot, off Jeff Kent and Todd Hundley, each drove in a pair of runs.
Greg Harris (11-13) allowed all six runs on eight hits in seven innings — He struck out six and walked two.

Orioles 9, Angels 4

BALTIMORE — Mark McLemore had four hits and drove in three runs Thursday and the Baltimore Orioles used a five-run eighth to beat the California Angels 9-4.
Harold Baines and Mike Pagliarulo homered for the Orioles, who trailed 4-2 in the seventh. Baltimore is 11-3 in its last 14 home games.

Chad Curtis went 3-for-5 with two RBIs and Eduardo Perez homered for California, which was attempting to win a second straight game for the first time this month. The Angels, who won the middle game of the three-game series Wednesday, have not won successive road games since June.

Brewers 5, Athletics 3

MILWAUKEE — Angel Miranda pitched eight shut innings and Juan Bell and Kevin Seitzer homered as Milwaukee completed its first-ever four-game sweep of the Athletics.

The victory gave the Brewers a five-game winning streak for the first time this season and extended Oakland's losing streak to seven games.

Miranda (3-3) gave up three hits, struck out eight and walked two. Mike Ignasiak relieved to start the ninth and gave up a three-run homer to Troy Neel.

Yankees 4, Indians 0

CLEVELAND — Sterling Hitchcock, promoted to the majors to make a spot start, held the Indians scoreless for seven innings as New York kept the pressure on first-place Toronto with their fifth win in seven games.

Hitchcock, starting in place of the injured Kammerdeik, spoiled Bob Ojeda's most effective outing since his comeback. The Indians starter matched zeros with Hitchcock for six innings, but he was replaced in the seventh and the Yankees quickly went ahead.

Hitchcock (1-0) gave up seven hits, walked three and struck out three. It was the first career win for the 22-year-old left-hander, who went 0-2 in three starts last September.

Stanley broke a scoreless tie with a two-run home run off Bill Werz (2-2) in the seventh, and the Yankees added two in the ninth on Danny Tartabull's bases-loaded single.

Royals 3, Twins 0

KANSAS CITY — Kevin McReynolds drove in two runs with a home run and a single and Mike Maignante pitched seven scoreless innings.

Making only his second start of the season, Maignante (1-1) scattered six hits, struck out two and walked none in recording his first win since Sept. 7, 1992. Jeff Montgomery got the final three outs for his AL-leading and career-high 40th save.

Red Sox 3, Rangers 1

ARLINGTON, Texas — Frank Viola allowed only four hits in 7 1-3 innings and Boston snapped a six-game losing stridak.

Texas tumbled back into third place in the AL West behind Kansas City and Chicago and had its four-game winning streak ended.

Viola (9-8), who won his fourth consecutive game, gave up a homer to Ivan Rodriguez but otherwise stifled the AL's hottest hitting club. Texas had scored 38 runs in its last four games.

The Red Sox jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first against Kevin Brown (10-10) who was starting after only three days rest because of injuries to Nolan Ryan and Charlie Leibrandt.

NFL teams crisscross country looking for talent to fill rosters

The Associated Press

Keith McCants landed in New England, Jon Vaughn went to the Patriots to Seattle, and Eric Jones from Phoenix to the Los Angeles Rams on Thursday as NFL teams continued to adjust their rosters with opening day nine days away.

McCants, the fourth overall pick in the 1990 draft, was claimed off waivers by the Patriots after being traded to Tampa. That means no other team in the league had a chance to put in a claim for the 265-pound defensive end-linebacker — the team with the worst record gets first crack at the waiver wire.

McCants was only part of the shuffling in New England, where new coach Bill Parcells has suggested that while he normally disdains the "bus station" approach of moving players in and out, he might have to practice it with the Pats, 2-14 last season.

The Patriots also signed offensive lineman John Earle, out by Kansas City and linebacker Jason Carthen, out by Buffalo. They released guard Steve Tappin, defensive end Tim Edwards and linebacker Arnold Aale.

Then they got an undrafted draft choice from Seattle for Vaughn, who started five games last year and was the team's leading rusher with 451 yards on 113 carries.

Preseason notes

Kelly's 1994 pay would increase from $5 million to about $3 million, and he would receive $2.75 million in each of the final two years of his contract, which expires after the 1996 season.

Colts

Quarterback Jeff George, who refused to report to training camp with Indianapolis and accumulated $144,000 in fines, was placed on the team's active roster, along with linebacker Duane Bickett.

Both reported last week, will accompany the team to Green Bay and are expected to play in the team's final preseason game Friday.

To make room for them, the Colts waived receivers Jason Johnson and George Thomas.

Broncos

Greg Lewis, who rushed for 644 yards the last two seasons, was released to make room for tackle Gary Zimmerman, acquired Monday from Minnesota. Zimmerman will be activated immediately. Lewis, Denver's fifth-round draft choice in 1991, got a late start on training camp because of knee surgery to repair a season-long basketball injury. He started five games for the Broncos in two years.

Raiders

The Raiders likely will be without first-round draft choice Patrick Bates for their Saturday night exhibition finale against the Los Angeles Rams. Bates, a strong safety, sprained an ankle in the Raiders' game at Dallas two weeks ago.

"I need him for the season, I don't need him for this game," said coach Art Shell. "I'm hoping he'll get one more week will make him better, than that's the decision I'll make."

Bengals

The Bengals signed defensive lineman Gene Hodge, who had been waived by the Minnesota Vikings. Defensive lineman Tony Savage was waived.

Double eagle lifts Coe-Jones to duMaurier club record

LONDON, Ontario (AP) — Canada's Dawn Coe-Jones double-eagled the fourth hole and shot a course-record 64 Thursday to take a one-stroke lead in the duMaurier Classic.

Coe-Jones sank a 4-iron approach from 179 yards on the 462-yard par-4 to get to the green in the final major of the season on the LPGA Tour schedule.
"I never saw it go in," said Coe-Jones, whose 8-under score matched her career best. "I knew it was going to be close if I got the right kick. I saw it bounce. The people by the green started screaming first. Then, of course, we had to scream."

Coe-Jones sailed the rest of the way, getting six birdies against one bogey on the 6,331-yard, par-72 London Golf and Country Club course.

She got as low as 9-under, but three-putted for bogey on the 17th, missing a 3-footer for par. She made a 6-footer for par on 18.

"I'm excited, don't get me wrong," she said. "But anyone who knows this game knows you've got it one day, the next day, you might not have it."
"It's a long way to go until Sunday. Nobody's handing me anything."

Coe-Jones' afternoon surge swiped the lead away from morning leader Betsy King, whose 65 featured five birdies, an eagle and a bogey. The American veteran is looking for her first victory in the duMaurier, the only major she hasn't won.

"I know it, you don't have to remind me," said King, who's just two wins shy of gaining entry into the LPGA's Hall of Fame. "I know that, too, Geez, you're reminding me of everything."

Michelle McGann and Fieken Fergon shot 5-under 67s. Dana Lofland-Dorman and Dottie Mochrie matched 66s, and Beth Daniel, Tammy Green, Tracy Kerdyk, Rosie Jones and Mary Beth Zimmerman were at 69.

Coe-Jones' double eagle wasn't the only crowd-pleasing shot by a Canadian player. Gall-Granger's 140-yard, 8-iron, 4-wood hole with a 7-iron on her way to a 1-under 71.

The shot landed about 10 feet from the pin and Graham said she didn't see it go in, but the crowd was obviously excited," she said.

"I almost gave the ball away to one of the kids in the gallery," she added. "I thought, 'Oh, no, I better keep this."

County government is broken; let's fix it

The legislative committee looking at reforming local government should take a gander at Twin Falls County's budget muddle. It's an enchanting specimen of blundering and unaccountability.

In the past 10 days, county taxpayers have been bombarded with a series of escalating predictions about next year's tax bills.

First, the increase was to be 5 percent. But then a "glitch" was found in the calculations. The next guess was 10.74 percent, more or less.

The current prediction is 11.85 percent. Stay tuned.

The ringmaster in this circus is County Clerk Bob Fort. As the county's chief budget officer, Fort is responsible for computing the budget and figuring out whether taxes need to rise to make ends meet.

Before taking over this $16 million task, Fort had been mayor of Filer and had run a print shop. His challenging new job (he was appointed last year to fill a vacancy in the elective position) is giving him some trouble.

One problem was a computer error of some kind. Another was a $3 million omission from the county's total assessed valuation.

The mixup wasn't clarified until a Times-News reporter went over the figures with a state Tax Commission official.

We don't want to cast too much blame on Fort. But the situation supports our long-standing contention that the Idaho Constitution saddles county government with too many bosses and too little expertise.

Just who is responsible for the county's budget and tax rate? Well, the commissioners do the voting. But first Fort has to do the computing. And before Fort can figure the tax rate, Assessor Dorothy Hamby has to calculate property value.

If all these elected officials (each one fully autonomous) collectively mangle the job, no one is answerable to anyone else for the screw-up.

Meanwhile, Sheriff Wayne Tousley (another autonomous electee) is publicly moaning that budget cuts decreed by the commissioners will devastate his department's effectiveness.

His complaint inspires another question: Who is responsible for the quality of county law enforcement?

Nominally, Tousley is. But if the commissioners cut his budget, can anybody blame Tousley when services deteriorate?

In other words, nobody's responsible.

The Legislature should look seriously at letting individual counties adopt a more efficient and accountable model.

In the case of a relatively large county, such as Twin Falls, we suggest creating a board of part-time commissioners who can hire a professional administrator and professional department heads. Stop electing nine autonomous bosses whose partisan popularity may be their main qualification for office.

As Idaho prepares for the 21st century, it's time county government shed its 19th-century management structure.

Balkan intervention: Not easy, but not impossible

The current negotiations in Geneva to save Bosnia into "ethnic states" for Serbs, Croats and Muslims are a ruse, disguising the real goal of Serbs and Croats: to extinguish Bosnia as a state and to kill or drive into exile all of its Muslim inhabitants.

America's abandonment of Bosnia's Muslims to the destruction programmed for them is as complete and as cynical an abandonment as that of the Jews in World War II. The notion that the United States and its allies are helpless to do anything about this human and political disaster is a palpable lie. It is as believable as the argument that European countries and America could do nothing to help the Jews in the 1930s, even while they were turning away from their shores shiploads of Jewish refugees from Nazi Germany.

To be sure, intervention in the Balkan tragedy is not cost-free. But the notion that putting a stop to so horrendous a human tragedy and to the profound damage to the international order that is now occurring in Bosnia is not worth some cost is probably in itself the most pernicious long-range consequence of this administration's distressing handling of the crisis in the Balkans.

It is only one of many myths about the Balkans - a myth used by this administration to justify its inaction - that the regular Serb militias are ferocious warriors who would exact a terrible toll on American forces. But from all accounts by those who have observed them, the Serb militias are comprised of criminals whose "heroism" expresses itself in the cowardly mass rape of women and young girls and the massacre of defenseless civilians.

It was clear to everyone that when, for but a brief moment, President Clinton sounded serious about taking even very limited military action, the brave Serbian warriors were suddenly sobered, and their leaders, Radovan Karadzic and Slobodan Milosevic, quickly turned reasonable and statesman-like, offering to stop their human turkey shoot. When President Clinton backed off and made it clear that no American military forces would be committed, however, the unrestrained carnage and "ethnic cleansing" resumed.

Another such myth, also encouraged by this administration, is that the ethnic hatreds in the Balkans are unique, and so deeply entrenched as to defy international intervention. In fact, as William Pfaff (in the Summer 1993 issue of Foreign Affairs) and others have noted, the ethnic hatreds in Bosnia are no different in kind from those anywhere else in the world, nor do they go back further into antiquity.

The worst of the Balkan hatreds is between the Serbs and the Croats, mostly due to the unrestrained Croatian massacres of Serbs during World War II. And yet, the Serbs and the Croats are now collaborating in the final chapter of the genocide of Bosnia's Muslims.

Perhaps the real shameful truth is that the West is indifferent to the fate of Bosnia's Muslims, at least in part, for the same reason it was indifferent to the fate of the Jews in the 1930s. There was something in Hitler's hatred of the Jews that resonated in residual antisemitism in Western culture. Similarly, there is something in the Serbian and Croatian demonization of Bosnia's Muslims - the fear of "a Muslim state in the heart of Europe" - that finds an echo in lingering Western prejudice.

However we rationalize our indifference to what is happening in the Balkans, its consequences will surely haunt us in the days and years to come. For what is at stake in Bosnia is not only indescribable human suffering but the idea of the universality of the civilized norms that are the foundation of our freedom and democracy. In Bosnia, on the threshold of an unfolding new world order, we have been offered the opportunity to reaffirm that fundamental truth, and we have failed the test.

Trans IV thanks supporters

We at Trans IV Buses wish to thank all the citizens of Twin Falls who appeared at the City Council's public meetings on Aug. 9 and 23 in support of increasing public transportation. Your overwhelming support was extremely gratifying to our organization. I am sorry that after making the effort to provide input at these public meetings, many of you were not allowed to express your opinion.

I would also like to assure you that we at Trans IV will continue to provide our services to the maximum extent possible within the confines of our current financial capabilities. We also pledge to continue our efforts to increase services through alternative funding sources.

We are extremely aware of the dramatic increased need for improved public transportation within our region and will continue to convey your message to those decision makers within our area of impact.

Again, thank you for the support.

Dairymen still plans project

It seems that despite what we have been led to believe, David Funk still intends to place a dairy on 3200 North near Rock Creek Road in the midst of eight family homes.

Yes, he has placed a dairy 3/4 miles south of the originally designated dairy site, but he retains the permit issued to him to place a dairy in this inappropriate location, and has filed a request with the Department of Water Resources to transfer water shares from Jerome County to Twin Falls County at this location.

It is completely a mystery to me how you can transfer water from Jerome County to Twin Falls County in a location where wells have gone dry in the last drought years.

A dairy cannot be called a normal agricultural operation. Our present regulations should be amended to classify a dairy as a commercial or manufacturing entity. This dairy placement would actually be a change of land use and should be treated as such.

Also to be considered is that such a dairy in such close proximity to family homes will most certainly violate the Idaho Code defining as a nuisance anything offensive to the senses from such an operation. This, of course, would include odors, insects, dust, noise, etc.

We Rock Creek homeowners have discussed this matter at length with the Health Department, Planning and Zoning and the Twin Falls County Commission. We are also opposing the water transfer.

We fully intend to pursue this matter and will not be intimidated.

All of us out here are concerned about contamination of our wells, insects, disease, drainage into Rock Creek and general ruination of the environment. All of the residents of Twin Falls County should be concerned. This situation isn't an isolated incident, and it is happening to you.

LaRocco supports secrecy

On Aug. 19, one of your readers wrote in extolling the many virtues of Congressman LaRocco, such as his courage, his beliefs, etc. Further, he was critical of your editorial of Aug. 6 condemning LaRocco's support for the president's deficit reduction bill.

On Aug. 17, the Wall Street Journal published a list of those congressmen that had refused to sign a "discharge petition" which, in effect, would have released Rep. Jim Inhofe's legislation which would partially cover the secretive nature in which Congress does business. Many good but controversial bills proposing legislation beneficial to the tax-paying public are buried in committee by the speaker (Tom Foley), never to see the light of day.

The only way to dislodge bills from committee without the speaker's consent is if 218 members, a House majority, sign a discharge petition. The list of those who sign to dislodge such legislation is kept secret. This secret list allows members to practice a form of hypocrisy: They can publicly support, even co-sponsor, a popular bill, popular with his or her constituents, while quietly and secretly withholding support from that document which would help it to become law.

Rep. Inhofe says it's time voters learned where their representatives stand. His bill to make the secret list public is, of course, buried in committee. Rep. Crapo has signed the discharge petition to release the bill for a vote. LaRocco has not.

Apparently one of the LaRocco beliefs your reader admires so much is his efforts to keep his and the Democratic party's true position on all legislation secret from their constituents. He may think he knows "Larry" as he puts it, but then how can he really be certain it's secret?

Valley QRU came in handy

I fully support the Valley Quick Response Ambulance unit in the Eden and Hazelton area, with the outstanding job it has performed over the past years. I have used its services and have always felt satisfaction.

It is very upsetting what the Jerome County commissioners and Jerome Emergency Medical Service Director Larry Wood are trying to do to change our VQRU system. Thanks to the crew who VQRA for all the local help it has shown in the past years.

Sometimes drivers get mad

This is a response to the letters we've been reading about the Magic Valley Speedway. We do agree with many things, like the flagrant. Sometimes it seems like he's not doing his job to his best ability, but he can't see everything at once and he's not the one that makes all the calls.

Sorry, Wally Johnson, but by your letter, we knew you weren't Eddy McKean. No. 88, fan. When you stated that none of your favorite drivers throw tantrums, you're wrong. Sometimes when Eddy loses, he puts his car away and leaves earlier.

He may not have gotten out and kicked and yelled and whatever else, but when Darin, No. 60, did this, he was mad and since you were a great driver once, you should know that getting mad and losing your temper happens in racing or any other sport.

How much money did you spend on your race car? Because any driver in their right mind would get mad. It takes a lot of time and money put into a race car. So Darin's still, has been and always will be a good driver.

One thing we didn't mention is that a couple of years ago, Eddy, No. 88, wouldn't sign a little girl's program while he was just sitting by his car. He was quite rude to her and she was almost to tears. We had to explain to her that Eddy, No. 88, was probably uptight about something. And as far as Darin leaving a race early, we're sure there must have been a better explanation than bad sportsmanship.

As far as good sportsmanship goes, we think the best sports are Bruce Quale, No. 11, and Wiley Godby, No. 41. The greatest we've ever seen is Bob Fort No. 23. No matter how many car problems he had, he was always there. We miss you, Bob! And as for Bruce Quale, he is just as sportsmanlike as Bob Fort was and we thank him for that.

You doing great job, Bruce. Keep it up.

Besieged Muslims cheer U.N. aid

MOSTAR, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — U.N. workers on the first aid convoy to reach this besieged city for four months and embraced Muslims living in the cellars of shattered buildings.

They emerged to cheer the longed for shipment of food and medicine that would help them through the next few days.

Thousands of Muslims thronged to the 19-truck convoy as it rolled into Mostar's Muslim enclave early Thursday, some smiling as they thought their ordeal had ended. Others banged on truck windows and asked for cigarettes and chocolate.

The Muslims, cut off for two months and under attack by Bosnian Croats, also welcomed the convoy for the protection it might offer from Croat shelling.

After unloading the drugs, powdered milk and food, the U.N. workers found themselves caught between Croats who had tried to prevent them from entering the city and hundreds of Muslims who mobbed the convoy to keep them from leaving.

"If you leave, they are going to massacre us," cried one Muslim woman. "Some carried signs reading: 'Why did the world forget us?'"

"You're our guarantee," read another sign carried by a Muslim who felt the presence of U.N. workers would deter attacks.

Raging soldiers fired into the air and moved a bus onto the road to block the convoy's exit.

Cedric Thornberry, a top U.N. officer for the region, threatened to stop all humanitarian aid to Bosnia unless the trucks were allowed to leave.

The day before, it was weeping Croat women who had blocked the convoy 10 miles west of Mostar and demanded the trucks be searched for arms.

"They are feeding the Muslims, who are then killing us," shouted Anica Golanac, 59, before the convoy negotiated past.

Before the war, Croats and Muslims lived together in peace in this southwestern city, each comprising about 42 percent of the population.

Croats now control most of the west bank of the Neretva River which bisects the city, and 55,000 Muslims have been forced into an enclave on the eastern bank. The U.N. convoy also dropped off 90 tons of relief supplies on the Croat side.

In the Muslim enclave, exhausted, bone-thin people are huddled 100 to a cellar for protection from shelling. Many buildings are riddled with holes from shellfire. Thousands of people have been surviving on meager handouts from three public kitchens.

"People are hungry," Emina Jakic said bluntly. She works in one of the kitchens, handing out mostly rice, mashed potatoes and on rare occasions vegetables.

For those wounded by shelling or sniper fire, prospects are bleak. Until the arrival of the convoy, the hospital had no medicine.

U.S. airdrops food to Mostar Muslims

6 months, 9 million meals later, U.N. air drops target Mostar

BERLIN (AP) — Since a U.S.-led air drop operation began six months ago, only 20 nights have gone by without humanitarian aid being parachuted to besieged Bosnian Muslims.

Mostar is the latest city to look to the skies for salvation.

The cities in need have shifted with the winds of war. First there were the eastern enclaves of Zepa, Gorka and Konjevic Polje, later the crowded refugee magnets of Srebrenica and Gorazde, which have received the bulk of air-dropped aid.

"No. 1 on the drop site list now is the target city where desperate Muslims are surrounded not by Serb fighters but by Croats."

Mostar got its first air drop on Tuesday night. 13,440 meals dropped from two U.S. Air Force C-130s, said military officials at the Rhein-Main air base near Frankfurt, where the airdrops originate.

U.S. Air Force officials say that more than 9 million meals and 144 tons of medical supplies have rolled out of U.S., German and French planes and plunged more than 10,000 feet to the wounded, hungry and weary since flights began.

The Mostar mission was a risky proposition because the only suitable drop site was the city's highly populated Muslim quarter, said Ron Redmond, a spokesman for the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees, which decides which towns get airdrops.

But agency officials could not get a land convoy through and were told that people there would start dying by week's end without food. On Wednesday, a 27-truck convoy entered Mostar after days of Croat delays.

Hundreds of thousands of Muslims in 19 towns have received supplies from the sky.

"The airdrops throughout this six months have been absolutely lifesaving for people in the eastern enclaves and elsewhere in Bosnia," Redmond said. "The agency has had an extremely difficult time getting into a lot of these communities by land, which leaves us with the only option, and that is to air drop."

In many cases, he said from Geneva, air drops were "the only assistance that these communities were getting."

Allied officials overseeing the air drops out of the Rhein-Main base say the packages are meant for all, regardless of ethnic group, but all so far have targeted the outgunned Muslims.

Ever since Operation Provide Promise was launched on Feb. 28, the Air Force has typically sent six C-130s each night and the Germans and French one C-160 each, said Petty Officer Kelly Williamson at Rhein-Main.

Rangers arrive to tense welcome

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — Sixty-five U.S. Army Rangers arrived in Mogadishu Thursday, facing angry crowds who built burning barricades in the streets and stoned U.N. peacekeepers searching for illegal arms.

The elite soldiers were the first of 400 Rangers due to arrive in the next two days to help U.N. forces restore order in this seaside capital and disarm bandits and militiamen.

There was speculation the U.S. force has another mission as well, capture fugitive warlord Mohamed Farrah Aidid, who is blamed for much of the violence that has hampered relief work for weeks.

Wearing Peppy, wide-brimmed bush hats, the first Rangers stepped off a military version of the DC-10 at Mogadishu's former international airport shortly after dawn. They had flown non-stop from the United States, refueling over the Atlantic.

Col. Danny McKnight, commander of the 3rd Battalion of the 75th Ranger Regiment, was asked if his troops, specially trained in night operations, had been sent to try to capture Aidid.

"Not that I'm aware of," he replied.

China-U.S. ties experience rough ride

By Dan Biers
 The Associated Press

BEIJING — Modern U.S.-China relations have been like a wild carnival ride, with twists and turns, ups and downs.

The past few weeks have brought yet another dip in the trust.

A quick succession of new clashes over human rights and arms proliferation, as well as tough talk on trade, have underlined just how difficult it is for the world's richest and most populous nations to remove roadblocks to better relations.

Trouble has been brewing around the globe in recent days.

In Washington, the Clinton administration imposed limited sanctions on Communist China on Wednesday, claiming it sold missile technology to Pakistan in violation of an international arms control agreement. Beijing called the sanctions "entirely unjustifiable."

In the Persian Gulf, a Chinese ship suspected by Washington of carrying chemical weapons material to Iran headed for a Saudi Arabian port for inspection. Beijing bitterly accused the United States of trying to play world cop by shadowing the vessel.

In Hong Kong, the Chinese government stripped labor dissident Han Dongfang of his passport after expelling him. The United States said it deplored the move and accused Beijing of violating Han's human rights.

Han's case seemed certain to add momentum to opposition in the United States to Beijing's bid for the Olympics in the year 2000 because of China's human rights record.

And in Beijing, several U.S. congressional delegations warned about China's growing trade surplus with the United States, relationship that covers a wide range of issues" despite rocky points such as the missile controversy.

Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., warns reporters Thursday that President Clinton would revoke China's trading privileges unless Beijing allows concerns over weapons exports.

Gaston Sigur, a former assistant secretary of state, said in a telephone interview from his Maryland home he did not view the technology sanctions as "any indication of serious deterioration (in relations) or an effort on the part of the United States to harm relations."

"I don't think the scuttling of the relationship is really in the cards," he said.

Trade and the development of China's booming economy are widely viewed as shared economic interests. Preventing North Korea from developing nuclear weapons is seen as a common political goal.

Analysis

Chinese officials from President Jiang Zemin on down have stressed in recent days the importance of cooperative relations to world peace and stability. They have urged continued talks to settle differences.

"As you know, the relations between China and the United States have traversed a tortuous course, and this course shows that dialogue is helpful... while imposing pressure is useless," Foreign Ministry spokesman Wu Jianmin said Thursday.

The U.S. Congress clearly agrees with the need for dialogue, witness the nine delegations in town this month. But it often seemed that the two sides are talking past one another.

Some of the delegations urged the release of specific political prisoners named in lists handed over to Chinese officials. They explained how important human rights improvements were to American people horrified by the televised scenes of the 1989 crackdown that left hundreds dead and many more imprisoned.

But congressmen said the Chinese seemed reluctant to discuss the issue and dodged answering specific queries.

Rep. Nancy Pelosi, a California Democrat who laid flowers and held up a banner in Tiananmen Square two years ago in honor of the 1989 pro-democracy activists, acknowledged after meeting top Chinese officials last week that she had no breakthroughs to report "except that the dialogue continues and that I think is some progress."

Unless further talks bring progress in China's human rights record, the Clinton administration has said it will revoke preferred trade status next June. If that happens, relations could plunge far further than where they stand now.

Russia extends life of some old bank notes

MOSCOW (AP) — The Central Bank announced Thursday that small denomination bills due to be withdrawn this month will remain valid until the end of 1993.

The ruling further softened the Central Bank's decision July 26 to invalidate all bank notes printed before 1993 in the hope of stemming inflation and soaking up rubles in circulation in former Soviet republics.

Russian President Boris Yeltsin said pre-1993 banknotes in denominations of one, three, five and 10 rubles — equal to one, three, five and 10 cents — will remain in circulation until the end of the year.

All larger notes, however, will be invalidated at the end of August.

2 black youths held in slaying of American Fulbright scholar

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police arrested two black teenagers Thursday in the killing of an American student, whose friends spoke of her devotion to the black majority and lauded her as a freedom fighter.

A mob of young blacks dragged the pleading Amy Biehl, 26, from her car in Guguletu township Wednesday and stabbed her to death.

The Fulbright scholar from Newport Beach, Calif., who planned to return to the United States today, was taking black friends home to the township when they were ambushed.

The two arrested youths, who are 17 and 18, were not identified, but the student wife of the militant Pan Africanist Congress (PAC) said they were members. Police said more arrests were expected.

African National Congress officials who worked closely with Biehl at the Western Cape lauded her as a "fighter for freedom" in South Africa.

Local ANC leader Allan Boesak said the killing would further damage race relations in the country and impair talks on ending white minority rule.

South Africa's first multiracial election is set for April 27, and Biehl was involved with "developing voter education programs for the townships."

Singiswa Bevu, who was in the car and witnessed the murder, said Biehl "wincing in deep pain" as the attackers slammed a brick into her face before stabbing her.

Bevu was stabbed in the hand when she tried to assist her. The other two passengers escaped unharmed.

When Bevu asked the mob why they were attacking Biehl, she said the youth replied: "Because she is a settler." Settler is how many radical blacks refer to whites.

Late Thursday, hundreds of friends and colleagues of all races held an emotional memorial service for Biehl at the university. Mourners, many weeping, sang a well-known South African freedom song, "Senzinza" (What Have We Done?).

Later, about 300 walked through the impoverished township where Biehl died. Some carried placards reading "Amy Fought For Women's Rights" and "Comrades Come in All Colors." All carried wreaths or single flowers.

"Wreaths were placed on the bloodstained spot in the road where she died."

Curious township residents watched the proceedings.

The U.S. Embassy joined the ANC and other groups in condemning the murder and called it "a deplorable and tragic event."

While the PAC condemned the killing, its student wing warned of more such attacks.

Biehl was one of few whites slain in township violence that has killed more than 15,000 blacks since the mid-1980s.

She graduated from Stanford University in 1989 and planned to begin a doctorate program at Rutgers University this fall.

Mother Teresa celebrates birthday in hospital

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Well-wishers sent birthday flowers Thursday to Nobel laureate Mother Teresa, who is recovering from malaria fever.

Mother Teresa turns 83 years old today, but friends and colleagues celebrated the birthday a day early.

"We got excited and decided to go ahead today," said Sister Joann at the New Delhi branch of Mother Teresa's order, the Missionaries of Charity.

The Indian Prime Minister, P.V. Narasimha Rao, and Princess Diana of Britain sent greetings.

More than a dozen bouquets of red roses were next to her hospital bed, and she had a handful of visitors, mostly priests and nuns from the Missionaries of Ghazni, doctors said.

Doctors said the Roman Catholic nun was feeling better and on her feet for the first time since she was admitted to the hospital Aug. 20. They said they had not decided when to discharge her.

Mother Teresa won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1979 for her work with the poor.

Man found guilty in rape trial

By John J. Harberth
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — After deliberating less than five hours, a Burley jury returned guilty verdicts Thursday on its counts in the kidnapping and rape trial of William Lonnie Bryant.

Bryant, 25, of Lacey, Wash., was convicted of one count each of robbery, aggravated assault, kidnapping, rape and infamous crime against nature.

He was arrested outside Boise Feb. 4, several hours after a Declo woman was kidnapped at gunpoint and forced to drive to the Raft River exit off Interstate 86 where she was sexually assaulted and robbed.

In addition, the jury issued special verdicts finding Bryant guilty of "enhancement" charges because a firearm was used in the commission of the crimes.

The jury, four women and eight men, also found that since the kidnapping was done for the purpose of rape or crimes against nature, it qualified as first-degree kidnapping.

As the verdicts were read Bryant showed little emotion, dabbing his eyes with a tissue.

Susan Bedke, the jury forewoman, didn't comment on the deliberations, but said, "It was hard on all of us."

Prosecutor Stephen Bywater said he was happy with the verdict and said he contacted the victim, who was also pleased.

Defense attorney Thomas Widman had no comment, but his co-counsel Dennis Weigt said the defense might appeal the court's decision and that an appeals court could overturn the verdict because investigators had not preserved some evidence from the crime. That could set the stage for a new trial.

The evidence in question was Bryant's gun, which was handled by several police officers after it was seized and was not examined for fingerprints.

The 9mm pistol had been the subject of debate throughout the eight-day trial.

The defense argued in two motions to dismiss the case that because the state failed to preserve evidence it denied the defendant a fair trial. Fifth District Judge Roger Burdick denied both motions.

In Bywater's final arguments Thursday, he said the defendant destroyed the fingerprints when he put the gun into his pants.

After the initial guilty verdicts were read, Widman argued that the enhanced charges should be dismissed since the victim never identified the gun.

Burdick denied the motion.

The judge set sentencing for Bryant for the week of Oct. 10. He remanded Bryant to the custody of the Mini-Cassia Detention Center.

Following the verdicts, Bryant was allowed to spend a short time visiting his wife and parents.

Members of Bryant's family, some of whom had been present throughout the trial, remained outside as the verdicts were read.

The victim and her family were not present.

State trooper escapes injury in rollover

TWIN FALLS — An Idaho State Police officer escaped serious injury when his patrol car flipped over south of Twin Falls Wednesday night.

Trooper Jeff Kalbfleisch, 26, of Filer was headed north on 2700 East Road near Nat-Soo-Pah when his car left the road on a curve, Capt. Dave Benefield of the Twin Falls County Sheriff's department said.

The trooper's car turned sideways and began to flip, when it hit an electrical pole's anchoring cable and rolled the rest of the way over, landing on its wheels, Benefield said.

Kalbfleisch was outside the car placing flares on the roadway when deputies arrived, Benefield said.

In his report, the deputy cites excessive speed as being at least partially responsible for the accident. A south-bound car had its headlights on high and may have temporarily blinded the officer as he approached the curve, Benefield added.

The accident cut electrical power to the area from the time of the accident shortly after 9 p.m. until about 3 a.m. The accident remained under investigation Thursday evening.

Private jet plane leaves runway, comes to rest in park

HAILEY — A small private jet plane ran off the north end of a runway at Friedman Memorial Airport Thursday afternoon, crossed Highway 75, and came to rest in Roberta McKercher Park.

Only the pilot and copilot were on board the Falcon 10 aircraft at the time of the incident. Neither were injured.

"On landing, the pilot reported they had a problem with the thrust reversers, and the aircraft went off the end of the runway and through a chain-link fence," said Lee Fryer, a duty officer with the Federal Aviation Administration in Seattle.

The pilot — from Jackson Hole, Wyo. — was en route from Great Falls, Mont., when the incident occurred.

Fryer said a representative from the FAA is investigating. Initial reports showed there was "leading edge" wing damage and some nose gear damage," he said.

Firefighters contain 80-acre range fire west of Hailey

HAILEY — An 80-acre range fire was contained at 8 p.m. Thursday after a helicopter, an airplane and two water-tanker trucks assisted 60 firefighters.

The fire 10 miles west of Hailey was first spotted from the Bell-Mountain fire lookout at 9:25 p.m. Thursday, said Bureau of Land Management dispatcher Frank Miller in Shoshone.

Forest Service crews from the Sawtooth Hotshots added BLM firefighters, Miller said. The fire was believed to be human-caused because no lightning had been seen, Miller said.

70-year-old Burley man wins Tuesday's Fantastic 5 lottery

BOISE — A 70-year-old Burley man won $183,760.50 in Tuesday's Idaho Fantastic 5 lottery drawing.

The man, who asked that the Idaho Lottery not release his name, bought his winning ticket at the Sinker Station on Main Street in Burley. He picked up his check Wednesday at the Idaho Lottery's Boise offices.

The man said he would use most of the money to pay bills, but would save some for a special treat or two.

"I'm going to go out and get a nite's big steak," he said. "We've been eating hamburger for too long."

Twin Falls prosecutor Bevan in search of new deputy

TWIN FALLS — County Prosecutor G. Richard Bevan is looking for a new deputy prosecutor.

Henry Madsen, who began working in the office shortly after Bevan took over in January, is leaving to take a job in the Kootenai County prosecutor's office in Coeur d'Alene, Bevan said Thursday.

Bevan said he has a couple of possible candidates to replace Madsen, but has not offered the job to anyone.

Twin Falls district projects continue

By Kirk Mitchell
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — South Park is closer to having its own school.

The School Board on Thursday night accepted a bid of $3.9 million from Idaho Falls contractor Bateman-Hall to build an elementary school in South Park.

The school will be completed by August 1, 1994, or in time for the beginning of school next year.

Bateman-Hall, also the contractor for the Twin Falls High School gym-classroom building, was one of eight contractors that bid on the elementary school.

Their bid was about $200,000 more than the district anticipated it would be, Superintendent Terrell Donich said.

Overall, the four district construction projects that were part of a $9.85 million bond issue in 1992 will be about $150,000 more than they were projected to be two years ago, Donich said. But investment returns on the $9.85 million will cover that overrun, he said.

Board members will decide at a later meeting whether to add or subtract six alternative elementary school construction items that include new classroom cabinets and adding enhanced audio-visual equipment.

The board also set Sept. 23 as the date for a bid opening on the $2.3 million Twin Falls High School auditorium, which is to be partially funded by private donations.

The other two projects that were part of the bond issue is the 10-classroom annex to Stuart Junior High School and the County Democratic Party to nominate Davis chairman

By Drew DeSilver
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Counselor David R. Davis is in line to be the next chairman of the Twin Falls County Democratic Party.

The outgoing chairman, Twin Falls lawyer Ken Pedersen, said Thursday he would nominate Davis as the Democrats' new chief at a special central committee meeting Aug. 30.

"I haven't heard about anyone nominating anybody else," said Pedersen, who announced his intention to step down five months ago.

He called Davis, a former director of the South Central District Health Department, "a very capable guy." Davis also is a former drummer for Pedersen's rock 'n' roll band.

Davis was out of town Thursday and could not be reached for comment.

Pedersen said he also intends to nominate Jeanne Meyer, owner of Hair Etc. Etc. beauty salon, as vice-chairwoman of the county party. She would replace Rosemary Bara, who is also planning to step down.

Pedersen has served as Democratic county chairman since June 1991. He served a previous two-year stint in that position that ended in May 1990.

One of the most critical tasks for the new chairman will be to rebuild the county Democratic Party's field organization. Only five precinct leadership spots are filled, Pedersen said. Those five make up the central committee that will elect the new chairman.

The central committee meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Monday at the Twin Falls County Office Building, 246 Third Ave. E. Following the meeting, Pedersen will host a reception for current and new Democrats at his home.

Bill Mauk, chairman of the state Democratic Party, and Alan Minskoff, the party's new executive director, will be special guests at the reception.

GOP House members oppose Clinton's ideas

By Drew DeSilver
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Despite the bitter partisan battle over President Clinton's budget plan this summer, congressional Republicans are not out to torpedo Clinton's Young presidency, two GOP House members said Thursday.

Idaho's Mike Crapo and Ohio's John Boehner said their opposition to many of Clinton's initiatives comes from principle, not partisanship.

"If President Clinton were pushing some of the things that he campaigned on, like a middle-class tax cut or a line-item veto, we'd be standing shoulder-to-shoulder with him," Crapo said. "But as you've seen, that hasn't been the case."

Some national polls have indicated that while Clinton's popularity has declined significantly since he took office, a sizeable segment of the public also views congressional Republicans as obstructionist.

Crapo and Boehner, in town Thursday morning for a Crapo fund-raiser, took pains to dispel that impression.

"You have a few really partisan people on both sides of the aisle, but by and large the daily battles in Congress are about ideas, about principles," said Boehner, a second-term congressman from southwest Ohio.

The next major issues facing Clinton and the Congress — including the controversial North American Free Trade Agreement and the administration's long-awaited health-care reform plan — will require more bipartisanship than was displayed during the budget battle, Boehner said.

"With NAFTA, you'll probably see more votes from Republicans than Democrats," he said.

Crapo has said he will oppose NAFTA when it is presented to Congress, probably later this year, because it would hurt Idaho agriculture, Boehner said.

Groups ask water court to reconsider decision

By N.S. Nokkenvred
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Four Idaho environmental groups have asked again to intervene in the Snake River Basin Adjudication.

The Idaho Conservation League, Idaho Rivers United, Idaho Wildlife Federation and the Northwest Resource Information Center want to make sure the court considers the "public trust doctrine" in the massive legal case.

Fifth District Judge Daniel Hurlbutt, who presides over the adjudication, ruled against the groups earlier this year. Tuesday the groups asked him to reconsider his decision.

"If you don't do it now, when are you going to do it?" said attorney Laird Lucas of the Boise office of the Land and Water Fund of the Rockies, which is representing the groups.

The adjudication will affect about 150,000 water rights in the Snake River Basin. When completed, the court will issue a ruling that declares valid water rights.

An adjudication of 87 percent of the state's water ought to consider the public trust, Lucas said. The groups aren't saying that any water rights are violating the public trust, but it should be considered, Lucas said.

The public trust doctrine is an English concept found in Roman law and ancient common law, he said. It is based on the idea that nobody can own certain fundamental resources. Water is one of them.

Unlike real property, water is not fixed. It supports fish, navigation and supplies a variety of uses. It is something in which everybody has an interest, Lucas said.

To serve those varied public interests, the state retains ownership of water and the river or lake and controls the use of water within its boundaries.

Water rights convey only the right to use water. They are not ownership rights, he said.

In other states, courts have ruled that the public trust can limit existing water rights.

Boise attorney Bill Ringert said the doctrine doesn't apply to water rights under Idaho water law.

Report: Water pumping reduces Bruneau springs

By N.S. Nokkenvred
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A long-awaited U.S. Geological Survey report released Thursday shows what has long been suspected: Groundwater pumping has reduced spring flows in the Bruneau-Grandview area.

"We know for a fact" that pumping has affected spring flows at the Indian Bath hot spring, said Jerry Hughes, Director of the USGS Boise office, which produced the report.

The dropping groundwater has dried up or reduced flows from hot springs that support the Bruneau hot springs mall, listed as endangered by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service earlier this year.

The report was delayed when an error in computing the rate of natural recharge in the aquifer was discovered in March. The error cast doubt on the snail listing, which relied in part on the report.

But recharge is not the issue, Hughes said. The report focused on the relationship between groundwater pumping and spring flows, he said.

Groundwater pumping has reduced the hydraulic pressure in the aquifer — and hence the level — he said. Hydraulic pressure is what forces water in a leaky bucket to squirt farther out the holes when there's more water in the bucket.

The increases in pumping in the 1960s and 1970s are reflected in corresponding decreases in spring flows, Hughes said.

The Idaho Department of Water Resources is confident that the report is solid and will serve as a foundation for determining options and alternatives to slow or halt the declining groundwater level, spokesman Dick Larsen said.

The department long has acknowledged that pumping has lowered the groundwater level in 1982. The department established the Bruneau-Grandview Groundwater Management Area to protect water rights from the dropping water level.

Listing the Bruneau snail may affect federal crop subsidies, price supports, deficiency payments and federal loan guarantees. But it also has made people pay attention to what is happening to the aquifer, Hughes said.

Over the long term — snail or no snail — the aquifer will continue to decline if the present trend continues, he said. The dropping water level will drive up the cost of pumping irrigation water and may drive some irrigators out of business.

Water Resources wants to get involved in Fish and Wildlife's snail recovery plan to see what can be done to reduce groundwater use or to slow the decline, Larsen said. Such a plan may help protect existing water rights as well as protect the tiny snail — less than one-fourth inch long.

Some of the options would include the Fish and Wildlife buying water rights, or the area could form a water district to control locally the administration of water.

Blaine school board OKs contract

By Jody Hinton
Times-News correspondent

HAILYE — The Blaine County School Board approved a $385,674 base bid for roofing Wood River High School.

Deterioration of the school's 19-year-old roof was accelerated by melting snow and heavy rains last spring. The contract was awarded Tuesday to Quality Roof and Tile of Boise, for installation of a rubberized roof.

According to Mick Williams, district director of buildings and grounds, the process involves installing additional insulation, followed by a rubber layer with heat-sealed seams. The roof is then covered with rock ballast.

Williams said this system allows expansion and contraction in hot and cold weather.

"Although the board approved the bid at $385,674, the roof apparently will cost less.

The district will save about $32,000 by using a lighter-weight rubber matrial, Williams said.

The board also approved buying an extended 15-year unconditional warranty on the new roof. With the warranty, the cost will come to $357,934.

The board granted permission for district officials to consider some alternatives offered by Quality Tile and Roofing to enhance the system and possibly reduce the cost while remaining within the necessary specifications.

The contract allows the company 75 days to finish the job.

Attorney to serve as public defender

JEROME — County commissioners have selected a Twin Falls attorney as public defender.

George Essma will assume the position Oct. 1 after receiving a unanimous vote from the commissioners on Monday.

Essma was low bidder, Chairman Jerry Ridley said.

Essma has been three other bidders. Lynn Dunlap, current Jerome County public defender, bid $60,000; Hyong Pak came in with a $55,000 bid; and Roger Harris bid $52,500.

"My professional reputation is going to be enhanced by this or drug down by this," Essma said in accepting the position.

John Horgan, county prosecuting attorney, said he approved of the selection. "We'll work with whomever they select and we'll do our part to keep the wheels of justice turning," he said.

USU football players charged with assault

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — Two Utah State University football players are again facing assault charges for their alleged involvement in the beating of a woman after an April party in Logan.

Logan City Prosecutor Scott Wyatt Wednesday filed charges of simple assault and resisting arrest, both class B misdemeanors, in Logan Municipal Court against both wide receiver Wendell "Shawn" Johnson, 22, and starting cornerback Efreem Haymore, 22.

Haymore and Johnson had been charged previously with aggravated assault, a second-degree felony, but the District Judge in Hatfield dismissed the charges at a preliminary hearing June 2 because of a lack of probable cause.

Johnson and Haymore were arrested April 25 after police found Barbie Beaton, 21, of Riverton, severely beaten at a Logan residence about 2 a.m. According to police reports, Beaton was battered and Mary McKelvey, 22, Sandy, was threatened with a gun by several black males after the males were exchanged at a barbecue.

Wyatt, who just last week received the transcript from the June preliminary hearing, said the new assault charges are based on witnesses' testimony at the hearing and other evidence.

Hantavirus concerns halt research

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) — A Northern Arizona University researcher has halted his exploration of ancient plant life because of fears of exposure to the deadly hantavirus.

Peter Koehler has been searching for ancient plant evidence by chipping at petrified pack-rat droppings.

Hantavirus, which has killed 20 people, mostly in the Southwest, is thought to be transmitted through deer mouse excrement.

The pack rat has not been blamed for the hantavirus but it does share its nesting site with the deer mouse.

"What I'd probably really want to put on a moon suit with the respirators and disposable clothing," said Koehler.

He has studied the plant life since 1988, taking rodent nests, that are entwined with droppings.

Since the hantavirus outbreak was reported in May, he has stopped collecting rat middens, excrement and plant life in compacted clods.

"Ultimately, I'm kind of out of it. It's not worth your life until this disease is more understood," he said.

None of the researchers on the project have shown any symptoms of the disease.

"I've often wondered how many people in this field would actually test positive for this hantavirus," Feiler said. "It scared us enough to stop working on this."

But R. Scott Anderson, an assistant professor of environmental science who oversees university midden research, said maybe the scientists have developed a defense.

"It's something to be concerned about, but I'm kind of wondering if we don't already have some sort of antibody," Anderson said.

However, he's still cautious.

"I think I'd like to know more about the virus before we take on any additional projects," he said. "You can't help but be concerned when there seems to be a relatively serious outbreak."

The evolution of an area's plant life can be researched by picking apart the feces from the midden piles which can stand several feet high and accumulate over thousands of years, said Eric Feiler, a graduate student. Graduate student Laura Ellison was midway through her thesis on animal species diversity in the Montezuma Castle National Monument area when professors and family members urged her to quit the research.

Governor blasts grazing fees

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Gov. Mike Leavitt blasted Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt's proposed grazing fee for federal lands, and said he and other western governors will soon propose a similar alternative.

Leavitt said Thursday morning at his monthly KUED press conference that Utah ranchers can't handle the more than $4-per-animal-unit fee to graze their cattle on Bureau of Land Management lands.

"I thought it was extreme and would damage to traditional livestock societies like ours," Leavitt said.

Leavitt said he will support a proposal that would set fees at less than $3 per animal unit and that would allow deductions for ranchers' contributions to management on BLM lands.

However, Leavitt spokesman Tim Sheehan said Thursday afternoon that members of the Western Governor's Association may not come up with a definitive proposal.

"They're not all in perfect harmony," he said.

The governors will meet in the coming months and try to agree on a proposal, Sheehan said.

Leavitt said his health-care task force should report its findings by the end of September so that his state health-care proposal can be ready by the next legislative session.

Leavitt also said he expects Utah's gas tax will have to be raised during his administration.

Every five or six years, the state has to bump up its tax to buffer the effects of inflation, Leavitt said. However, he wants to win any gas hike of more than 15 cents per gallon, as has been proposed by some legislators.

The governor also said he will insist the federal government pay its share for improvements to Interstate-15. "The federal government needs to step up to the mark and do its share," he said.

Leavitt said California Gov. Pete Wilson's proposal to close that state's borders to illegal aliens could have a big effect on Utah and other western states.

Leavitt said he supports the North American Free Trade Act negotiated by the Clinton administration in part because he believes it would provide Mexicans with greater job opportunities at home and less incentive to move to the United States.

He was preceded in death by his father.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 28, 1993, at the Parkview Cemetery in New Plymouth. Local arrangements are under the direction of the Shafter-Jones Memorial Chapel in New Plymouth.

Jack B. Crawford

POCATELLO — Jack B. Crawford Sr., 83, 401 Parkway, Pocatello, died Monday, Aug. 23, 1993, in Arco, while traveling from Ketchum to Pocatello.

He was born Jan. 19, 1910, in Vancouver, British Columbia, to Jack Bomis and May Lyons Crawford. He graduated from Weiser High School in Weiser, Idaho, and was employed by the Union Pacific Railroad Co. for 47 years as a telegraph operator and train dispatcher. He married Dorothy Carroll on July 2, 1930, in Pendleton, Ore.

He enjoyed all sports, playing tennis, boxing and track. He played on the American Legion World Series baseball team. Mr. Crawford was a member of the First United Methodist Church in Pocatello, B. O. City, and the First Baptist Church in Arco. He was a member of Old Timers Club No. 15.

He is survived by his wife, Dorothy, a son, Jack Bomis Crawford Jr. of Sun Valley; a daughter, Mrs. Carole (James) Lynn Linhart of Idaho Falls; two brothers, Harry Crawford of Park City, and Chester Crawford of Las Vegas, Nev.; a sister, Alice Kimball of Yakima, Wash.; and two grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held at 11 a.m. today at the Henderson Funeral Chapel, 431 N. 16th Ave. in Pocatello, with the Rev. B. Scott Harkness of the First United Methodist Church in Pocatello officiating. Memorials in memory of Mr.

Crawford may be given to the First United Methodist Church Memorial Fund in Pocatello.

Perry F. Houghtaling

SHOSHONE — Perry Franklin Houghtaling, 85, of Shoshone, died Wednesday, Aug. 25, 1993, at the Gooding County Memorial Hospital.

Perry was born Dec. 29, 1907, in Burley, Idaho.

He was the oldest of three sons born to Raymond and Laura Miller Houghtaling. Perry was orphaned at a very early age. Perry married Vera Faye Sims of Butler, Mo., on Aug. 1, 1929, in Saint Joseph, Mo., and they lived in the Butler area for 12 years. The sisters, Vera and her daughter, a wonderful family as Vera's parents treated him like one of their own. Due to Vera's health, they moved to the Jerome area, living on farms in the Jerome vicinity for 19 years before moving to the Shoshone area. After leaving farm work, Perry worked for the Wood River Canal Co. for 11 years.

Perry was a loyal friend and neighbor and loved to visit with his friends. Perry and Vera always had their home open to their many nieces and nephews who spent much of their young lives with them. Perry and Vera lost their only son, Philip Rex, who was killed instantly when struck by lightning at the age of 18 on June 5, 1952. This was a blow from which they never fully recovered. His wife preceded in death on May 9, 1993.

Perry is survived by two brothers, Don Houghtaling of Los Angeles, Calif., and Vern Houghtaling of Orange County, Calif.; and the sisters-in-law, brother-in-law, and the many nieces and nephews. He is survived by his wife, Vera, and his many neighbors who held Perry in high regard.

The funeral will be held at 3 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 28, 1993, at DeMurray's Bergin Chapel in Shoshone, with the Rev. Omer Johnson officiating. Burial will follow at the Jerome Cemetery. Friends may call from 1 to 7 p.m. today at the funeral chapel.

high school gym-classroom building are completed or nearing completion.

A remodeled science room at the high school is completed, said Mick Bausman, who coordinates all bond-issue building projects.

Construction on the high school's eight-classroom building will be done by Sept. 23, Bausman said. The gym will be ready by the end of 1993, he said.

Stuart officials have already begun lugging desks, books and supplies into the newly completed Stuart annex, Bausman said.

"The projects are looking really well," he said.

This year, the Stuart attendance boundaries shifted because of the addition of a new school.

Seventh- and eighth-grade students who live within a downtown triangle bordered by Washington Street, Addison Avenue and the old bank will attend Stuart instead of O'Leary Junior High School, where the eighth graders attended last year.

Ninth graders who live within the triangle can attend class at Stuart or O'Leary.

Milo C. McEntarffer

JEROME — Milo C. McEntarffer, 77, of Jerome, died Wednesday, Aug. 25, 1993, at St. Benedict's Family Medical Center in Jerome.

He was born Feb. 1, 1916, in Crete, Neb., and was raised and educated in Nebraska. He served with the Navy Seabees in the Philippines during World War II. Following his discharge, he married Bernice Bowman on Oct. 26, 1946, in Reno, Nev. They have resided in Oregon and Idaho.

Milo was a member of the Baptist Church and the American Legion. Survivors include two daughters, Edythe Nash of Jerome and Doris Hoch of Iowa; nine sons, Paul Taylor, Stanley McEntarffer and Ralph McEntarffer, all of Jerome, Robert McEntarffer of Tualatin, Ore., Dennis McEntarffer of Salem, Ore., Greg McEntarffer of Twin Falls, Carl McEntarffer of Chubbuck, Larry McEntarffer of Corvallis, Ore., and Donald McEntarffer of Crystal Springs, Fla.; two stepdaughters, Madeline Gable of Homotolu and Marie Smith of Wilsonville, Ore.; 39 grandchildren; and 22 great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his wife in 1991; three sons, Wesley and Fred McEntarffer, and Robert Taylor; and 13 brothers and sisters.

The funeral will be held at 10:30 a.m. Saturday at the Howe-Robertson Funeral Home in Jerome, with Pastor Greg Arno officiating. Cremation will follow. Friends may call from 8:30 a.m. until the time of the funeral on Saturday at the funeral chapel.

Carl J. Bennett

CAREY — Carl J. "AJ" Bennett, 70, of Carey, died Wednesday, Aug. 25, 1993, at his home in Carey after an eight-month battle with cancer.

He was born Nov. 6, 1922, in Carey, the son of Jonathan L. and Eva Johnson Bennett. He graduated from the University of Idaho as a teacher. He taught school in Oregon, San Jose, Calif., and Carey, and married Yolande Cantin while in San Jose. In 1950, they moved back to Carey to care for the family ranch. He continued teaching until 1973 and high school principal until 1975, until his retirement in 1980.

AJ's part-time interest in horses was really full-time. He spent 30 years raising quarter horses, and the past few years, also raised paints.

Surviving are his wife of 34 years, Yolande Cantin Bennett of Carey; one son, Bill Bennett of Los Angeles; one daughter, Sue Anne Bennett of Ketchum; two sisters, Phyllis Walker of Encinitas, Calif., and Elaine Cantrell of Salt Lake City; and two grandsons, Joshua and Cody Bennett. He was preceded in death by his parents, two sisters and one brother.

A graveside funeral service will be held at 3 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 28, at the Carey Cemetery, with Bishop Dennis Hennefer officiating. Burial will follow at the Carey Cemetery.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Hospice of the Wood River Valley, Box 4320, Ketchum, ID 83340. Arrangements are under the direction of the Wood River Funeral Chapel in Halley.

probably would help farm interests in his district and hurt manufacturing interests.

Both men are interested in reforming Congress' internal rules, including rules that limit how bills may be amended in the full House and that keep secret the names of congressmen who petition to remove a bill from committee.

While such rules may seem arcane and abstract to the average Joe, changing them is essential if Congress is to function effectively and regain people's confidence, they said.

"The institution isn't working the way our founders intended it to work," Boehner said. "It is not effective, it's not responsive, and it's not accountable to the American people. Until the institution begins to reflect the will of the people, we're not going to have any credibility."

Boehner, however, predicted that Congress was close to being "turned upside down," and that the "burns" — the old bulls who run the place — would be out of power.

Crapo added that the congressional reform movement was not simply a matter of minority Republicans chafing under the domination of the Democratic majority.

"Not only Republicans, but many Democrats are shut out of the system," the freshman said. "The system is effectively closed to all but one perspective."

"I cannot rationalize the public trust doctrine with water rights in Idaho," Ringert said.

But Lucas insists it applies. It has been widely recognized and embraced by the Idaho Supreme Court, he said.

Ringert, who opposes the groups' motion, said they are asking the court to limit all other water rights "because someone who doesn't have a water right wants to use the water."

Hurlbut questioned Lucas about the effect of periodically revoking water rights in the context of public trust. "That could make water rights so insecure that farmers would be unable to get annual operating loans, he said."

very important to the state and to the Magic Valley.

"We're not trying to upset that apple cart," he said. But other public interests ought to be considered, he said.

"What happens to fish or to people who recreate when all the water is removed?" he asked.

The groups also have challenged five individual water rights for the same purpose, to insure the court considers the public trust in the adjudication.

Prosecutors to study 'home alone' case

By Eric Goodell
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — The case of two sets of sisters found at home without adult supervision Monday, has been "re-generated," said the attorney for the mother of three of the children.

The five girls were in their grandmother's care, and were left alone only long enough for the woman to run errands, attorney Bill Manning said, according to the Associated Press.

"From what I see in my reports, (the mother) was never very far away either," Manning said. "The family has to me it was not a case of neglect, that the kids were left alone with the 11-year-old."

An anonymous call to the Department of Health and Welfare brought Cassia County sheriff's deputies to the home of Corina Reyes, 24, Monday.

Deputy Thomas Sellers declared the children in imminent danger and allowed the Child-Protective Services of Health and Welfare to put three of them, — ages 7, 5 and 4 months — in foster care. Two older, related sisters — aged 11 and 9 — were sent to their home nearby.

Sellers' report said the children looked as though they had not bathed for several days and that the house was dirty. Dirty diapers were piled up near the baby, who had just gotten out of the hospital, the report said.

Today, Cassia County prosecutors will begin looking at the case. Prosecuting Attorney Stephen Bywater and Deputy Prosecutor Howard Smyser have been occupied by a rape trial.

"So far, I haven't looked at the police report," Smyser said.

Authorities had not identified the parents of the two older children.

Mormon apostle reiterates link between church, school

PROVO, Utah (AP) — The Mormon Church won't expand its efforts to fund a secular university, or a religious one that doesn't pay dividends for the faith, a Mormon apostle said Thursday.

If religion and scholarship can't be successfully brought together at Brigham Young University, there is no way to justify a Mormon institution of higher learning, Elder Neal A. Maxwell told BYU's 1,300 faculty.

There is no reason for the little pay of the church to fund another secular university since, as taxpayers, they are already helping to fund useful systems of public higher education," he said.

Maxwell, by Utah's own help, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints if it achieves excellence, said Maxwell, chairman of the Executive Committee of the school's Board of Trustees, made up of high church officers.

"Academic excellence is not either academically or spiritually. A unique church deserves a unique university," he said.

The church subsidizes the school with roughly $160 million a year.

Maxwell's remarks, leading into a fall meeting at the nation's largest church-sponsored university, appeared to respond to questions about BYU's future and critics who contend it must become more secular in its approach to education.

Following a year in which academic freedom at BYU was widely debated, and the school terminated two faculty members — whose opponents spoke on forums and other issues were sensitive to church leaders, Maxwell described the ideal BYU faculty member.

"To seek and to maintain a consecrated, bilingual faculty — who speaks both the language of scholarship and also of faith — requires retaining and recruiting those with unarguably good scholarship and also with testimonies born of the spirit."

"Such individuals need never look anxiously over either shoulder," he said.

Maxwell defined a chain of command that runs through the church committee of education, the executive committee and then the board of trustees.

"Having so assured you as to my trust in this process, is it too direct to say that the Board of Trustees — who are genuinely solicitous of your advice and insights — prefers to hear from you through proper channels rather than on television channels?" he said.

Youth charged in death waiver hearing

RUPERT — A Minidoka County youth charged with shooting a 13-year-old girl to death last month has waived his right to a preliminary hearing.

The decision clears the way for Jeremy Harris, 16, to stand trial in the death of Brendy Theuson, 13. The Rupert-area girl was found dead at her house during the early morning hours of July 31.

She was shot once with a high-powered rifle, according to the Minidoka County Sheriff's Department. Burglary is the apparent motive, law officers say.

Harris, dressed in tan clothes and orange slippers, appeared before Magistrate Larry Duff at the Minidoka County Courthouse Thursday morning.

Duff bound the boy over to District Court for trial. Harris is being charged as an adult.

Man shoots self in eye with BB gun

BURLEY — A Burley man was admitted to the hospital Wednesday after shooting himself in the eye with a BB gun.

According to the Cassia County Sheriff's Department, Jose Rios, 21, was cleaning the gun when it fired as he was looking into the barrel.

The BB struck his right eye, hit the cornea and ricocheted into the orbit of his eye, he said to the news deputies.

Rios was admitted to Cassia Memorial Hospital in Burley for treatment, a hospital spokesman said. The extent of his eye injury was unavailable.

City of Rocks signs missing, vandalized

ALMO — Seven signs indicating directions to the City of Rocks near Almo were reported Wednesday to have been stolen or vandalized, law officers say.

Also, several days ago, three campsite stub boxes were either torn off or missing, according to the Cassia County Sheriff's Department.

Total loss is placed at $450.

Mini-Cassia/West Student files $58,000 claim against district

By Eric Goodell
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT — A 1991 school bus mishap has led to a $58,000 claim against the Minidoka County School District.

Superintendent Michael Bishop said an East Minidoka Junior High student was boarding a bus at the school on Oct. 28, 1991, "when the bus door closed on his right leg and injured his knee."

Bishop said the claim was unexpected because a settlement had been negotiated through the district's insurance carrier soon after the accident. He didn't have exact figures, but he thought the settlement amounted to "several thousand" dollars.

The new claim asks for $2,000 in past medical expenses, $6,000 in future medical expenses, $45,000 for pain and suffering and $5,000 in attorney fees.

The tort claim says the student, Jason Trammer, needs arthroscopic surgery to determine the extent of damage to his knee.

The claim also says Trammer still has pain and tenderness in the knee, which sometimes buckles.

Neither the boy's family nor their lawyer could be reached for comment Thursday.

The tort claim blames the school bus driver for closing the door. Bishop, however, said the bus driver said at the time that she had been standing up and facing the back of the bus. Statements at the time indicate a fellow student closed the door, Bishop said.

The tort claim says Trammer was able to get on the bus and make it home with the help of some friends.

The next day, the knee had swollen and he was taken to the Minidoka Memorial Hospital emergency room.

Bishop said the claim has been turned over to the school district's insurance carrier. If no settlement is negotiated, the claim could lead to a lawsuit.

Gas explosion rocks town

MOSES LAKE, Wash. (AP) — An explosion Thursday at an air bag inflator manufacturing plant produced a big boom and a plume of harmless gas, officials said.

No one was injured in the explosion at the Takata Industries plant, said Port of Moses Lake district manager David Bailey.

A statement issued by the company Thursday afternoon referred to the substance released as "gas generating propellant," but Bailey said the gas was mostly hydrogen.

The plume rose some 400 feet into the air and the explosion could be heard for miles.

"I'm five miles from the plant. I heard the explosion, and I could see the plume from my home," said Grant County Emergency Services director Sam Lorenz. "It was up there 300 or 400 feet when I got to the window."

Lorenz said plant workers reported the cloud was mostly hydrogen and nitrogen.

The blast occurred in a confined, re-enclosed area of the plant, Takata's statement said. The company said it was investigating.

Paul Jacobson, Takata administration manager, said the explosion involved a small amount of propellant used in air bag generators.

Las Vegas detective pleads guilty to extortion attempt

LAS VEGAS (AP) — A Las Vegas police detective, who resigned amid an investigation into allegations he tried to extort $50,000 from a Salt Lake City restaurant owner, pleaded guilty Thursday to federal charges stemming from the probe.

Rodrick Crawford Mathis entered the plea despite the fact he had yet to be indicted on the charges.

"It was wrong and I must now face the consequences," Mathis said. "If that means going to jail, that's what I'll have to do."

Mathis, 47, pleaded guilty to conspiracy, extortion and obstruction of justice, charges that could bring him a maximum of 30 years in prison when U.S. District Judge Philip P. Senterences him Nov. 19.

"He wanted to resolve it and he went to it without an indictment," said Assistant U.S. Attorney Daniel Schiess. "He was very remorseful and very willing to get it over with."

Mathis, a 25-year Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department veteran, said in court that the plan to extort $50,000 from businessman Jack Turner was proposed by Sandra Anderson, a confidential informant working for the undercover police detective.

Mathis offered to resolve money laundering allegations against Jack Turner, owner of a trendy Salt Lake City restaurant named after Utah Jazz announcer Rod "Hot Rod" Hundley, in exchange for the payment.

Prosecutors said Mathis detained Turner on suspicion of money laundering in April. Three months later, prosecutors said Anderson told Turner his legal problems could "go away" for $50,000.

Turner's attorney, Lam D. Leand, contacted the FBI, and agents arranged for a sting operation with money in marked bills to be delivered in two installments.

As Turner delivered the second payment of $25,000 to Anderson, FBI agents took her into custody.

Schiess said Anderson will be prosecuted for her role in the case.

But he said no decision has been made on whether to prosecute Turner on the original money laundering allegations.

Those allegations stem from an undercover operation in which Mathis, posing as an investor, offered Turner cash to invest in his business.

Turner reportedly accepted a check from Mathis for $200,000 even after being told it was laundered drug money.

Mathis, an intelligence detective who resigned earlier this month, apologized publicly for his actions and stressed that no other police officers were involved.

"I've brought embarrassment to an organization that doesn't deserve it," he said. "To everyone's hurt and disappointment, I'm sorry."

Only 1 person comments on plan to expand mine

By Eric Goodell
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — Only one person commented in this week's public hearing on the proposed expansion of the Black Pine Mine.

Operators of the mine, located in southern Cassia County near the Utah border, want to dig into additional ore bodies and remove a possible 10 million tons of ore and 14.3 million tons of waste.

The project would disturb 250 acres. Before authorization is given an environmental impact statement must be written and approved by the Forest Service, which controls the land.

After an overview of the plan was presented, Burley resident Nick Rockich was the only resident to comment.

He said he was concerned about revegetating the area after the mining is complete.

"It could be a serious problem," he said.

Larry Randall, Burley District minerals administrator, said people can submit written comments until Sept. 10 or talk to him at the Forest Service office.

A draft environmental impact study is expected to be completed in late September, Randall said.

The proposal would lengthen the mine's life-span by three years, to 1998.

Officials rule out foul play in 3-story fall

MOSCOW (AP) — Investigators have ruled out foul play in a three-story fall that left a University of Idaho sorority pledge paralyzed.

Regena A. Coghlan, 18, of Spokane, Wash., toppled from the three-story balcony of the Alpha Phi Sorority house on Aug. 19 while "heavily intoxicated," police say.

She remained in satisfactory condition Thursday at Deaconess Medical Center in Spokane, hospital officials said.

"We're quite sure the incident was not criminal," Moscow Police Capt. David Williams said.

But investigators from Moscow and the Idaho Department of Law Enforcement continue to search for those who provided Coghlan with alcohol.

"This is a high-profile case," Williams said. "We're putting a lot of resources into it."

Police have discovered, after talking to a dozen witnesses, that Coghlan was at three parties on the campus Greek Row the night of her accident. Each of the parties had a hosted bar, but police have not discovered who served the drinks.

Samples of Coghlan's blood were taken at Moscow's Grinnam Medical Center and police are trying to obtain a waiver to get a report on her blood alcohol content, Williams said.

Police also are trying to determine Coghlan's state of mind that night. Her best friend died two days earlier in a car accident in Boise, Williams said, and her father died about a year ago.

Tanya Tucker has left her wild ways behind, settling down to raise her two pre-schoolers, run a designer denim wear firm, help with charity work and continue her music career.

Tanya Tucker veers from country music's fast lane

By Denise Turner
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "Tell Me About It." That's the title of one of Tanya Tucker's hit songs, but it's also a pretty good way to begin an interview with her.

In the September issue of Redbook magazine — hot (!) off the press — Tucker fields questions about her children, her sex life and her reported bouts with drugs and alcohol. She's not afraid to answer the questions. Never has been.

"I'm supposed to have had more men than most people change underwear," Tucker told Redbook. Then she went on to comment about a string of males who "swirled in and out of her life as she parted and drank her way through each and every romance." The men on the list include Don Johnson, Merle Haggard, Andy Gibb and Glen Campbell ("the horniest man I've ever known.")

Tickets available

Tanya Tucker and Joe Diffie will perform shows at 6:30 and 9 p.m. Sept. 5 at the Twin Falls County Fair in Filer. Tickets, priced at $12, are available through the fair office, 326-4396.

Tucker, who's 34 now, has settled down, she told Redbook — thanks, in large part, to her experiences as a mommy. She's gone through rehab at the Betty Ford Center, and she's concentrating on raising her two pre-schoolers.

She's a single parent. (The father of her kids is actor and former West Virginia University quarterback Ben Reed, Redbook reported.) She's also a country music superstar.

With hits such as "It's a Little Too Late," "If Your Heart Ain't Busy Tonight" and "Two Sparrows in a Hurricane" (her tribute to her parents' 50-year marriage), she's fast becoming known for her sold-out shows. Grammy nominations and TV appearances have been part of the package.

In 1991, Tucker was named female vocalist of the year by the Country Music Association. She's nominated for the same award this time around.

On stage, she's often acclaimed for her husky vocals and playful sexiness. Off stage, she's known for living life her way.

Tucker's trek to stardom began when she was 9 and her father took her to Las Vegas to cut a demo record. That's where producer Billy Sherrill heard the voice, couldn't believe it came from a child and took her to Nashville.

The result: "Delta Dawn," a whirlwind early career and a cover on Rolling Stone.

Diffie brings No. 1 hits to Filer gig

By Denise Turner
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Joe Diffie wanted to be a chiropractor — but, instead of tending to backaches, he ended up singing about heartaches.

Diffie gave up his childhood dreams because of an early divorce and lack of money, he said last week in a phone interview. But his musical career is fast becoming a dream come true.

When Diffie rolls into Filer next weekend, he will bring along six No. 1 hits, including "If the Devil Danced in Emphysema Pockets," "If You Want Me To," "New Way to Light Up an Old Flame," "Is It Cold in Here?" and "Ships that Don't Come In."

He's also been nominated for awards like the Academy of Country Music's new male vocalist and the Country Music Association male vocalist. Earlier this month, he received a CMA vocal event of the year nomination for his participation in the George Jones hit "I Don't Need Your Rockin' Chair."

And he's only 34.

The former foundry worker was born in Oklahoma. He grew up in a family "attuned to country music," and he's never strayed far from his roots.

"But I grew up on rock, too, and it was something that fit right next to Buck and Merle," he said. "I think it's cool that so many younger people are beginning to discover the genre of music and to make it their own."

His current tour is called "Honky Tonk Attitude," named after his newest album. On the road, he totes along a special set, designed to turn his stages into rollicking country saloons.

"It's got lots of moving pieces," he said.

'Louie Louie'

The real lyrics reveal no mystery behind the legendary song

Chicago Tribune

If you can name that tune in three notes, it must be "Louie Louie," the quintessential party rock song.

"Louie Louie" occupies a special place in the pop-culture pantheon, says author Dave Marsh (Hyperion, $19.95), who celebrates the 1956 ditty that became a rock legend for its allegedly lewd lyrics.

The song launched a thousand covers, including 300 recorded versions by such performers as pianist Floyd Cramer, Motörhead and the Rice University Marching Owls.

Even more significant was the FBI's 30-month probe into the words, brainwashing youth of America, the fruitless investigation ("unintelligible at any speed," the agency finally concluded) went all the way to J. Edgar Hoover.

Marsh, a Playboy magazine rock critic and former Rolling Stone associate editor and writer, admits the song has little redeeming value thematically, lyrically or musically. But that didn't stop it from taking on mythic characteristics.

Richard Berry, the rhythm-and-blues singer/composer who first scrawled out the song on the back of a bag after hearing Rene Touzet's "El Loco Cha Cha," relinquished most rights to it (insofar as there was any) for a one-time record-industry's darker days) for $750.

Not bad, he thought, for a song that was an amalgam of sappy sea chanteys making the rounds in 1956. His version, first released as a B-side to "You Are My Sunshine," hit only 70 on Billboard's rating scale.

The song then ambled up the West Coast to the Seattle-Tacoma area. In 1963 the Kingstons scored (the No. 3 song of the year). Idaho's Paul Revere and the Raiders recorded it, too, but no, they did it neither first nor best.

The Kingstons' indecipherable recording would catch the attention not only of the FBI, but also of the Justice Department, the Federal Communications Commission, the National Association of Broadcasters, the U.S. postmaster and the governor of Indiana.

"[With the telepathy required to transcribe that word for word], it's no wonder the G-men failed miserably. Institutional ineptitude was also at play. It took a year for agents to contact the most obvious, central figures in the song's success.

Marsh reveals the ribald variations brought to the FBI's attention and clears the smoke: "Louie Louie" really is just an innocent song about a Jamaican sailor pining about the love he's left behind, addressing his remarks to a bartender named Louie.

The exhaustive research enlivens the song's saga, but Marsh's smug attitude does grate, particularly his repetitive remarks about uptight '60s G-men, teachers and radio types who "just didn't get it."

The book jobs the insidious racism that allowed record promoters and label bosses to misstate sales figures and withhold royalty checks of black talent. The reverent rendition of "Louie Louie" was atypical of the era's R&B whitewashing, in which marginally talented white performers would co-opt black music. Marsh writes:

"What becomes clear in listening to the Beatles' 'Woolly Bully' and the Castle is that (singer) Rockin' Robin Roberts and his merry men transmuted Berry's song so radically in part because he did put such personal feelings into the music. ... Exploring these emotions was central to the rock 'n' roll experience.

For that matter, Marsh concludes, anything viewed as subversive (especially something that spurs FBI conviction fits) must capture the essence of rock music."

PPV still seeks audience in Magic, Wood River valleys

By Steve Crump
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Pay-per-view may be the brave new world of cable television, but in southern Idaho, it's mostly undiscovered country.

Twenty-eight months after King Videocable's first venture into PPV, and a year after NBC's supplemental Olympic coverage fizzled, pay-as-you-go TV has yet to find an audience in southern Idaho.

"On some programs we do OK, but not all of them," said Vince Thompson, general manager of King Videocable in Twin Falls. "We don't just don't have a large enough audience yet for special events."

"Our only experience with it was the Olympics last year, and the response was pretty good," said Mike Reynolds, general manager of Sun Valley Cablevision. "Our reluctance to get into it, frankly, is that we don't yet have the technology to tie the billing into the converter. That's coming, though."

Since the George Foreman-Evander Holyfield fight in April 1991, King Videocable has offered more than a dozen sporting and other events by PPV, for one-shot fees of between $15 and $35.

"One event we had about six people sign up for," Thompson said. "For the fights, it's probably averaged between 80 and 180."

It's not exactly convenient to sign up for PPV locally. In addition to your one-time fee, which goes on your cable bill, you have to pick up a decoder at the King Videocable office and then return it.

"I'm sure when people find out what they have to do, that's discouraged some of them," Thompson said.

Technology will eventually make PPV as easy as a phone call or a couple of numbers punched into a remote control, Thompson said, but there are other obstacles.

Although ESPN and ABC will offer a package of pay-per-view football games this fall — neither King Videocable nor Sun Valley Cablevision will participate — there's strong opposition among the public and in Congress to making TV viewers pay for sporting events they used to get free.

"As far as regular-season games, I don't think a Super Bowl or a major league championship series will ever be offered on a pay-per-view basis," Thompson said. "I think those will stay with broadcast channels."

So-called "500-channel television" — made possible by technology that compresses eight channels in the space it now takes to transmit one — will make many more sporting events available, though, Thompson said, some of them through PPV.

"There are a lot of people in this valley who own satellite dishes, and a lot of people getting a lot of channels," Reynolds said. "But what we've found is that most of them are also our subscribers. So just because you own a satellite dish doesn't mean you're not a potential customer for pay-per-view."

The cable TV industry says about 80 percent of the PPV offerings outside metropolitan areas are being sold. Neither Thompson nor Reynolds expects that to change immediately.

"Most of what we'll be able to offer our subscribers on PPV is boxing and wrestling," Reynolds said. "I can't imagine many of them are going to sign up for wrestling."

Burley restaurant to offer country dancing lessons

The Times-News

BURLEY - Dust off those snakeskin cowboy boots, shake out that fancy fringed leather skirt or those perfectly faded jeans, and get over to the Nob Hill Restaurant to show them how the swing is done.

Pam Williamson, former U.S. national dance champion, is opening up a new dance floor in the Nob Hill restaurant. Starting Sept. 10, a live country-western band will play from 8 p.m. to midnight every Friday night.

Free line dancing lessons will be offered from 7-8 p.m. Admission is $5.

"We want it to be a place where anyone can come without feeling intimidated or crummy," said Lamont Williamson, owner of the Nob Hill. "You don't have to wear a suit."

An all-you-can-eat smorgasbord will be available for $5 as well as a well-stocked bar.

The restaurant is located in the Burley Elks Lodge, 1340 Oakley St.

Churchgoers hold worship in Klingon

RED LAKE FALLS, Minn. (AP) - The reading at St. John's Lutheran Church told the story of the Tower of Babel - in Klingon, one tongue God didn't include when he confounded the languages.

Klingons are the alien adversaries of those on the "Star Trek" starship Enterprise and they are imaginary, but that didn't stop Glen Procheel from planning a Sunday service in "Ihlingan," the Klingon language.

"Sometimes you have to use fiction to deal with the problems of real life," said Procheel, director of a two-week camp in northwestern Minnesota where the Klingon language is being taught.

"About 50 people attended Sunday's service. Procheel translated the Lord's Prayer and the Apostles' Creed into Klingon.

The term-Holy Spirit-presented-a problem, because Klingons aren't big on holiness, nor spiritual things. So Procheel constructed the term "herbivore alien" - or "New Birth," in Klingon - to describe the third person of Christendom's Trinity.

Procheel also translated the hymn "A Mighty Fortress is Our God."

And there was the story of the Tower of Babel, when God prevented Noah's descendants from building a tower to heaven by confusing languages; and the story of tongues of fire coming down on the heads of the apostles as they spoke in other languages.

Klingons spoke English in the original "Star Trek" television series, but for the movie "Star Trek III" in the mid-1980s, producers decided Klingons needed their own language.

The result is "as unlike any language we know on Earth as possible," said Procheel, a Spanish instructor at the University of Minnesota at Crookston.

The Rev. Roger Raebel, the church's pastor who played organ at the Klingon service, was pleased with the event.

"I think it flowed very solemnly. It was a worship service," he said. "As the church, we have to learn to speak the language of the children with the Gospel of Christ."

five days of fairs, music, art exhibits, picnics, auctions and performances beginning Thursday and continuing through Labor Day, Sept. 6.

Bellevue celebration will have postal cancellation

BELLEVUE - A special postal cancellation is planned for Sept. 6 in Bellevue commemorating the community's status as "Idaho's only chartered city."

Sponsored by the Bellevue Chamber of Commerce, the special postmark will be offered during the city's annual Labor Day Picnic from 1 to 4 p.m. at a booth in the city park. Pre-stamped envelopes with an emblem recognizing the city's 1883 territorial charter will be sold for $1 each.

Stamp collectors and other interested parties can also order the envelopes by writing to Postmaster, Bellevue Post Office, Bellevue 83313.

Trade journal honors local DJ service

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Sid and Paige Vanderpool, owners of Music Magic, Twin Falls, recently received the M3obile of the Month award from DJ Times, an international entertainment trade magazine.

Music Magic is a mobile disc jockey company. The Vanderpools won the award after gaining the distinction of being the "most mobile" DJ company. They've traveled as far as Lake Tahoe, Calif., and they regularly take trips to Boise and Pocatello to spin their discs.

"We have our own style. I've been doing this for 14 years," Sid Vanderpool said.

Music Magic is available for all kinds of events from private parties to school dances. They play music ranging from country western to rock to Portuguese.

Tucker

magazine. Since those early days, Tucker's never slowed down.

Her upcoming appearance at the Twin Falls County Fair is one among hundreds of 1993 on-the-road bookings.

Between shows, the singer returns to her hilltop mansion outside Nashville, Tenn., where relatives live nearby. In her "space time," she runs a designer denim wear company and participates in events like the National Cutting Horse Association's Futurity Celebrity Cutting Championship. (She took top honors in 1991.)

At Christmas time, Tucker personally delivers gifts to needy children; and, last year, she served as national co-host of the United Cerebral Palsy Telethon.

"I want my children to grow up in a beautiful, safe world," she has said. "I want that for all children."

Meanwhile, Tucker will continue to decorate that world with her music.

lights," he said. "It's really neat."

Diffie's new house is really neat, too.

It's in Franklin, Tenn., and, inside its 4,100 square feet are four bedrooms, four baths and a deck that tops a creek-and-golf course. The family moved in last month.

Diffie's wife stays home with their children, ages 2 and 4. His 8- and 12-year-olds live with his ex-wife.

It's hard to be away from home and family 225 days a year, Diffie said, but he passes the time writing songs.

"Songwriting is great therapy," he said. "You get to take all of your feelings and stick them on a piece of paper and look at them."

When asked if he will be doing much the same 10 years from now, Diffie replied, "In 10 years, I hope to be filthy rich and living in Jamaica."

Haggardt exhibit opens soon

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — "Never Ending June." A one-person exhibit by June Haggardt, opens Tuesday and continues through Sept. 30 at the Herrett Museum Art Gallery on the College of Southern Idaho Campus. The exhibit is the museum's 100th exhibit.

A reception for the artist is set for 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday at the museum.

Haggardt will exhibit a wide range of paintings and sculpture in a variety of media and techniques as well as prints and drawings.

She is a longtime resident of the Magic Valley. She graduated from Kimberly High School in 1940 and attended North Idaho College of Education in Lewiston, where she obtained a teaching certificate in 1942. She received a bachelor of arts degree from Idaho State University in 1965 and was certified to teach special education the following year.

Haggardt taught school in Rupert, Spokane, Wash., and Hailey before returning to Kimberly in 1962 to teach special education. She finished her teaching career in Twin Falls, teaching at Robert Sturari Junior High School from 1965 to 1979 and at Twin Falls High School from 1970 to 1987.

She enrolled in education and professional courses periodically and always took art classes whenever she was enrolled in college. Haggardt was one of CSI's first art students.

She started taking evening and summer classes in 1970 and has taken classes yearly since retiring in 1987.

She has participated in 22 of CSI's Cultural Field Trips to San Francisco and other art department studio and cultural field trips. Since retiring, she has concentrated on painting, ceramics and special workshops.

Regular museum hours are 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday, 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Wednesday through Friday and 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday. It is closed Sunday and Monday and observes college holidays.

Magic Valley artist June Haggardt will show a variety of her paintings and sculpture at the Herrett Museum gallery beginning next week.

Bogdanovich looses touch in 'Love'

Los Angeles Times

Capsule reviews of movies now playing in the Magic Valley. Reviews are by the Los Angeles Times and ratings by the Motion Picture Association of America.

"The Thing Called Love" (PG-13) Director Peter Bogdanovich tries a combination of "Nashville," "Striegs Door" and "Singles" with disappointing results. The story's about an aspiring songwriter (Samantha Mathis) who waitress at Nashville's famous Bluebird Cafe en route to stardom and gets involved with a couple of other Music City wannabes, played by River Phoenix and Dermot Mulroney. In "The Last Picture Show" and "What's Up Doc?," Bogdanovich handled these kinds of characters with quirky charm. Not any more. (Twin Cinema)

"The Firm" (R). As directed by veteran Sydney Pollack, the smoothly entertaining version of John Grisham's bestseller stars Tom Cruise and benefits from a script that does not overdo the book and put it back together in notably better shape. The story of a lawyer whose perfect job turns into inescapable nightmare. "The Firm" benefits greatly from an exceptional supporting cast, with everyone from Gene Hackman, Ed Harris and Wilford Brimley to Jeanne Tripplehorn and Holly Hunter giving on-target performances. (Twin Cinema, Jerome Cinema)

"The Fugitive" (PG-13) Dr. Richard Kimble (Harrison Ford) never stops to catch his breath, and neither would you if you fear some U.S. Marshall Sam Gerard (Tommy Lee Jones) was on your trail. A crisp and jolting melodrama that snags the tension playfully in "Doller" or Andrew Davis' superrealized version of the old TV show about the innocent man simultaneously fleeing the law and trying to find his wife's murderer on expectations. (Twin Cinema, Jerome Cinema)

"Hard Target" (R). The long-awaited English-language debut of Hong Kong action master John Woo stars as a loner who faces off against Lance Henriksen, a doll type who organizes hunts where men with more money than sense stalk and kill the human animal. The result is very much of a mixed bag, a servicable introduction to Woo's dazzling way with ultraviolence, but not up to the standards of his best work. (Twin Cinema, Ace Theatre)

"Heart and Soul" (PG-13). A Big Time Cute movie from "The City Slickers" team (director Ron Underwood, co-writers S.S. Wilson and Brent Maddock) about ecstasial chums, fate and finding the soul — or souls — within you, with Robert

Capsule reviews

Downey Jr. shining in the "All of Me" — a fun take of a cutesy yuppie, surrounded by four spirits seeking last-minute redemption. The rest of the cast — Alfre Woodard, Charles Grodin, Tom Sizemore, Kyra Sedgwick and specially David Paymer — are good, but the movie's jokes aren't especially visual, its romance dubious, its heart is on its sleeve and its soul in its pocket. (Twin Cinema, Ace Theatre)

"Jason Goes to Hell: The Final Friday" (R). The "Friday the 13th" franchise, wearing thin after eight bloody rampages, tries to tease up our interest by touting this outing, produced by series originator Sean S. Cunningham and directed by Adam Marcus, as the last for your favorite hockey-masked maniac, Jason. But who cares if he, or the series, goes to Hell? Only for incurables. (Twin Cinema)

"Jurassic Park" (PG-13). The poor little rich kid of the dinosaur's money and attention have been expended on making the film's half-dozen dinosaur species awfully impressive (though much too intense for small children) but very little has been done to make any of the puny human beings equally involving. In fact, when the big guys leave the screen, you'll be tempted to leave with them. Another case of $60 million worth of special-effects chasing two cents worth of characterization and story. (Twin Cinema)

"Robin Hood: Men in Tights" (PG-13). Mel Brooks' foray into Sherwood Forest has some wildly funny stuff but a lot of it seems scaled down for the kiddies. The movie is a caricature of the supporting cast, including Richard Lewis as King John and Brooks himself as a rabbi who dispenses bargain circumstances, is often funny. (Grand-Vu Drive-In)

"Rookie of the Year" (PG). A children's baseball fantasy-comedy that probably only children will be able to wholeheartedly embrace. Which is more implausible. The 12-year-old Thomas Ian Nicholas breaks his arm and makes a turning into a 105 mph fastball phenom or the Chicago Cubs breaking into the World Series? "Rookie," directed by Daniel Stern — who also pops up as a demented pitching coach — is on either, although, fittingly for a movie about a late-inning relief pitcher, it finishes strong. (Jerome Cinema)

nieszka Holland's version of how a pair of misanthropic children are made whole by the wonders of the natural world is too calculatedly pleased with itself to truly soar. A tip-top picture to take small children to, but more dicey for unaccompanied adults. (Twin Cinema)

"Sleepless in Seattle" (PG). This witty, warm, quip-happy Nora Ephron romantic comedy offers teddy bear Tom Hanks and live wire Meg Ryan — two players who click even when they share virtually no screen time — in an ultimate long-distance relationship: a Baltimore-Seattle bi-coastal dream romance triggered by a talk radio show, a kid Cupid (Ross Malinger) and endless discussions of Leo McCarey's shipboard classic "An Affair to Remember." A real charmer, it tells us what we don't believe about romance any more and makes us like it. (Twin Cinema, Jerome Cinema)

"So I Married an Axe Murderer" (PG-13). Mike Myers — who put heavy metal into comedy, and "no into the lexicon — shows up again, all grown up and facing the murderous frontier of marriage, in a comedy about fear of marriage, fear of sex and fear of commitment. Nancy Travis plays a butcher, and possible serial killer, who ensnares Myers' Frisco yuppie; director Thomas Schlamme seems stranded between two very different films, one whimsical, one wild and crazy. The fears may be justified, but not the movie. (Grand-Vu Drive-In)

"Surf Ninjas" (PG). Two brothers are surprised to learn they are princes of a "South Sea Island," where they help overthrow the dastardly Col. Chiswick with their surfing and martial-arts skills. Neal Israel directs Eric Ryes Jr., Leslie Nielsen, Tone Loc and Rob Schneider. (Twin Cinema)

Amanda Plummer falls under the spell of Max Von Sydow's Satan in Stephen King's 'Needful Things.'

'Needful Things' needs something

Devil sets up shop in small town, but is that funny or serious?

By Tom Maurstad
Dallas Morning News

Movie review

"Needful Things" is the latest reminder from Hollywood that you just can never tell about a movie. In this case, a great cast has been assembled to work on a promising premise drawn from a book by one of America's most popular authors. True, that author is Stephen King, but every once in a while his books-into-movies work; besides, this one has Max von Sydow, in all his regal enginess, playing the devil against Ed Harris' one good man. At the very least, that has to be worth some interest, generate a little fun.

No, actually, it doesn't. The title is the name of the shop of art objects and collectibles that opens in one of those rigorously quaint New England towns fresh out of a Peppercorn Farms commercial. The store is operated by a charming stranger (Von Sydow as Leland Gaunt) who arrives out of the blue one day in a gleaming black Mercedes. He's an elegant, friendly old man who has an otherworldly knack for possessing the special something a Mickey Mantle baseball card for a young boy, the Holy Grail for the resident priest that each townspeople desires in a way that burns like need.

Of course, that's the devilish thing about a needful thing: It satisfies one need while creating another. So when Gaunt starts dispensing miraculous little treasures to the good people of this favor-owed, and starts taking down names in his little black book, you know something wicked is in this way coming. The tricky part of owing a favor to the devil is that he never wants his car washed or some heavy boxes carried up to the attic; he wants you to play a nasty prank on one of your neighbors. And so most of this movie is spent watching the incidental evils pile up and escalate as everyone becomes suspicious of everyone else and the once-peaceful town explodes in rage and violence. At least, that's the theory of Stephen King, by way of screenwriter W.D. Richter and director Fraser C. Heston: Everyone's got a price, everyone's got a little spool of evil inside them just waiting to be unwound. Not particularly unprecedented insight on human nature, but even so, the filmmakers felt it necessary to stack the deck in the devil's favor by populating the town with a bunch of misfits so flamingly off-kilter they were verging on dementia long before Old Scratch pulled into town — you know, the sex-addicted reverend, the greedy, hate-mongering priest, or the boozing, horse-playing town official. Only Sheriff Alan Pangborn (Ed Harris) is good enough and true enough to stand up under temptation.

This sort of Faustian stuff has been providing fodder for centuries of storytelling, but director Heston never makes up his mind about what sort of story he wants to tell. On the one hand, he tries to make "Needful Things" a quietly eerie contemplation on the also ins and outs of evil, but then he sight gag and devilish double-entendre he can think of.

So while he demands that we take seriously Von Sydow as the devil, he demands that we do so in a way that we do so in an endless stream of punny one-liners. If he isn't making comments such as "you're drenched to the soul," then he is coyly cackling about how he has "a tendency to turn up the heat." By the climactic ending in which the town and the movie devolve into a series of fireball explosions that Rambo would admire, the whole enterprise is veering into parody. Indeed, if the movie had been played that way, it may very well have worked brilliantly, with its German-speaking, Mercedes-driving devil and its town where the lawyer is the one honest man while the Baptist preacher and the Catholic priest end up fighting in the street.

As it is, though, "Needful Things" is either a horror story too silly to scare, or a comedy thing in need of a few more laughs. (Mid-Cinema)

When you're hot, you're legend Jerry Reed

By Denise Turner
Times-News writer

JACKPOT - Jerry Reed recorded "When You're Hot, You're Hot" during his early days in Nashville. He hasn't cooled off yet.

On Wednesday, between shows at Cactus Petes, Reed was racing through the casino, cracking jokes and generally challenging everyone to play catch-up.

"I get up on a stage and have myself a blast," he said, amid boisterous chuckles. He's like that off stage, too. Has been all his life.

"I've known what I was going to do since I was 8," Reed said. "When I got a recording contract (at age 17), I thought I had lived the moon."

But life isn't exactly like that.

The son of an Atlanta cotton mill worker, Reed was, early on, faced with the prospect of finding his way in the grown-up world of entertainment.

"I started out thinking, 'Get out of my way and let me in and I'm going to own this before it's over,'" Reed

Tickets available

Jerry Reed will perform two shows a night on Sunday at Cactus Petes in Jackpot. Dinner shows are set for 8 p.m. Cocktail shows are scheduled for 11 p.m. Dinner show tickets start at $19.95 tonight and Saturday, with a cocktail show cover charge of $12.50 on Sunday. Dinner show tickets start at $14.95, with a cocktail show cover charge of $10. For more information or to make reservations, call 1-800-821-1103.

recalled. He added, "It was really cheap time real quick."

Luckily, young Reed surrounded himself with good management - and he was soon touring with greats like Johnny Cash.

Since then, he's turned out multiple chart-topping songs like "Amos Moses," "The Bird," "Guitar Man" and "She Got the Gold Mine, I Got the Shaft." He's also won two Country Music Association awards, a People's Choice award and a couple of Grammys.

He's been on TV shows such as "Glen Campbell's Good Time Hour," "Haw Haw," "The Tonight Show" and "Nashville Now." And he's appeared in the movies "W.W. and the Dixie Dance Kings," "Gator" and "Smokey and the Bandit" - I, II and III.

Today, at 56, Reed wears the titles of singer, guitarist, songwriter, actor and humorist.

Along the way, he moved his family into a home south of Nashville. Wife Priscilla Hubbard (Reed's real name) travels with him and sings backup. Two grown daughters stay clear of the music business, but an 8-year-old grandson is a "great drummer."

On the tour bus, Reed watches videos, plays gin rummy and catches up on his sleep. Off the road, at home in Brentwood, he pursues other interests. "That's where it's just me and ESPN," Reed said. "I live and die with my (Atlanta) Braves and Falcon." Reed's newest album is "Sneakin' Around." It's a duet, mostly instrumental, with guitarist Chet Atkins. Atkins is one of the many friends Reed has made in the music business. But, then, Reed is a people person.

"I've long since found out goals for the future are things that take care of themselves," Reed said. "I just want to hang out and have a good time with people the rest of my life."

Galleries show Western art as part of Wagon Days

The Times-News

KETCHUM - A half dozen art galleries in Ketchum will feature Western art next week as part of the 17th annual Ketchum Wagon Days celebration.

The American West Gallery, located at 620 Sun Valley Road, will display cowboy gear and vintage Wild West show posters from the 1920s through 1950s, including original western movie posters. (726-1133)

Broschofsky Gallery, located at Sixth and Leadville, will present works from Native American artists such as Albert Bliss, T.C. Cannon, Glenn La Fontaine, Fritz Scholder and Ted Villa. (726-4950)

Friesen Art Gallery, located in the 511 Building on Leadville Avenue, will offer E.C. Nowlin canvases, featuring the artist's lifetime association with Native American cultures. Monotypes by Eric Lindgren will also be featured throughout September in his first show in the area. (726-1174)

Gail Severn Gallery, located at 620 Sun Valley Road, features western landscape imagery of the West, featuring Idaho and Montana, by Bruce Parks. Catherine Rahm's glass sculpture, clearly evocative of her life near the sea, will be introduced. (726-5079)

Kaveash Gallery, located at Fifth and Leadville, will display the pastel landscape imagery of Peg Kaveash. (726-5253)

"I Can See By Your Outfit That You Are A Cowboy" is the theme for the Sun Valley Center's third annual art festival set to begin Sept. 3. Western artists will give demonstrations. Live music will be offered from 5 to 9 p.m. The gallery will be open through Labor Day weekend. Hours will be 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sept. 3 through Sept. 6. Hours for the rest of the month will be 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

An antique saddle exhibit from the Idaho Historical Society will be on display at the Sun Valley Center from Wednesday through Sept. 8. In conjunction with the cowboy showing, a traditional folk music and voice presentation is set for 7 p.m. Sept. 18 at the Sun Valley Opera House. "Horse Sense" features performances by musicians John Bishop and Richard Lawrence and poet Paul Zarzycki. Tickets are $8 for Sun Valley Center members and $10 for the general public and are available at the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities, 620 Sun Valley Road. (726-9411) grams in Wood River Valley schools and the Blaine County Senior Center.

The remaining 11 galleries of the Sun Valley Gallery Association have scheduled the following exhibits for September.

The Anne Reed Gallery at 620 Sun Valley Road is continuing its celebration of the Year of the Craft. The exhibit will feature non-functional chairs by furniture artist Don King, cast concrete furniture by Carolyn Braaksma and vessels by Michael Corey and Amy Sabrina. It will also include vases designed and created by Wood River Valley architects. (726-3036)

"Plain Air Painters" provides an opportunity to observe artists at work throughout the Wood River Valley. "Plain Air" or outdoor painting challenges the artist to capture the essence of time and place. Visitors can watch the artists at work Wednesday and Thursday. Call the Knoeland Gallery at 726-5512 for a complete schedule of work sites and events. Completed paintings will be on display through September at the gallery, located at 271 First Ave. N.

Larry Caultkins will exhibit creations made from recycled tin, mossy wood, bent nails and old signs at the Red Dog Gallery and Bluebird Supply, located in the 511 Building on Leadville Avenue. Caultkins also creates paintings on various weathered materials. (726-2602)

The River Run Gallery, 291 First Ave., will show new works from its regular group of artists, including Cic Goulet, Jean Richardson, Ken Carlson, Sarah McFarlane, Geoff Reed and local artists Michael Zapponi and Barbara Alderman. (726-8878)

Steve Snyder will display his black and white photographs at the Snyder Gallery, 131 W. Fourth St. (under Perry's restaurant), during September. (726-8100)

New work by Satava Art Glass, Lundberg Studios and Corraie Art Glass will be featured in "Three Glass Studios," the exhibit planned for the Roland Gallery, 601 Sun Valley Road. (726-6266)

The Stomington Gallery will present new works by local artist Joanne Catchpole. The work she exhibits displays a new approach as she has undergone an evolutionary process from detailed watercolors to acrylics. The gallery is located at 220 East Avenue. (726-4826)

Toneri Art Gallery, 620 Sun Valley Road, will feature the watercolors of Lynn Toneri. The exhibit will focus on a series of large scale originals inspired by Toneri's surroundings and travel. The gallery also presents a wide range of top contemporary artists working in a variety of styles and media. (726-4550)

The Boise Art Alliance, a newly formed organization of Idaho artists, will be showing work in all mediums through September at the Sleeping Bear Gallery and Artist Studios, 880 Warm Springs Road. (726-3059)

The Kinship Atelier Gallery, 200 So. Main, features floral and surreal paintings and sculpture by Joseph Kinship. During September, the show will focus on a collection of garden gnomes created by the artist in bronze and cast in iron. (726-8461)

African Fine Arts features art work by renown Zimbabwean sculptors, handwoven mohair tapestries from the Kingdom of Lesotho, ceremonial masks, jewelry, Zulu basketry and contemporary, and traditional wood and stone carvings. The gallery is located in the Colonnade, 601 Sun Valley Road. (726-3144)

All 17 member galleries have planned opening receptions to begin at 6 p.m. Sept. 3. Some artists may be in attendance at the receptions.

NOTICE OF TAX INCREASE

The Twin Falls Rural Fire Protection District Has proposed to increase its annual budget by an amount of ad valorem tax revenues that exceeds one hundred five percent (105%) of the ad valorem tax revenues certified for its annual budget during the previous year by six and one-tenths (6.1%) percent or its ad valorem property tax rate by twenty eight one hundredths (.28%) percent which will increase its property tax revenue by eleven and one-tenths (11.1%) percent.

The following schedule is an estimate of what this change may mean to a taxpayer:

	Last Year's Taxable Value	This Year's Estimated Taxable Value	Last Year's Actual Taxes	This Year's Estimated Taxes
FOR A TYPICAL HOME OF $50,000 TAXABLE VALUE LAST YEAR	50,000	56,150	$121.50	$136.83
FOR A TYPICAL FARM OF $100,000 TAXABLE VALUE LAST YEAR	100,000	105,700	$243.00	$257.57
FOR A TYPICAL BUSINESS OF $200,000 TAXABLE VALUE LAST YEAR	200,000	233,000	$486.00	$567.78

All citizens are invited to attend a public hearing on the increased tax rates. The hearing will be held September 9, 1993, 7 p.m., Classroom, 345 Second Avenue East, Fire Station #1.

CAUTION TO TAXPAYER: The amounts shown in this schedule do not reflect tax charges that are made because of voter approved bond levies, override levies, supplemental levies, or levies applicable to newly annexed property, or levies applicable to newly created taxing districts.

Stargazers dancers light up California

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Several members of the Stargazers Dance Co. from Nielsen's School of Dance in Twin Falls recently won awards at Hector's National Dance Carnival and Competition in Anaheim, Calif.

Stargazers dancers won 25 first- and five second-place trophies, including six who placed in the grand champion division by receiving one of the top three scores in each division.

Two grand champion numbers, a jazz production number by all 43 dancers who made the trip, and a solo of Nesha Glenn, 18, of Kimberly, were performed again in the Hector's Caravan Faculty Show — and honor given to the production numbers and solos with the highest scores.

The other four grand champion winners from the Stargazers were Blake Nielsen, 5, third place for a junior jazz solo; Jamie Nielsen, 13, second place for her senior lyrical solo; the Senior Stargazers for "L.C. Jazz Ho," a tap dance number, and the combined Junior and Senior Stargazers for an a capella tap production.

The dancers were judged in four areas: difficulty of the dance, technique, style and stage presence. Special awards were given for costumes, choreography and entertainment value, and the Stargazers directors, Willa Dean and Kim Nielsen, brought home trophies for best choreography and most entertaining dance.

In addition, the local dancers performed at the Carnation Plaza in Disneyland and spent an hour and a half with Disneyland choreographer Donna Berg, getting advice on performance quality, a mock audition and instruction on a dance routine used in Disneyland parades.

In addition to Glenn and to Blake and Jamie Nielsen, other members of the Stargazers are BreAnn Albrecht, Melani Anderson, Jamie Annett, Rylee Ashcraft, Jessica Bastow, Kristin Birrell, Kayla Bolwinkle, Tanaeae Bradshaw, Cristina Brooks, Sasha Cheyney, Amanda Cliff, Kirsten Fry, Audra Gabica, Karen Glenn, Cora Kiebert, Gina Hiebert, Amy Howa, Nikki Jackson, Julie Leir, Sara Lockwood, Lara Lyman, Annie Miller, Jennifer Miller, Tabitha Miller, Tara Moon, Chrissy McBride, Megan Mulberry, Brandon Nielsen, Reina Obenchain, Natalie Okelberry, Jessica Sass, Jennifer Siegel, Becky Sorenson, Jodi Sudweeks, Kindsey Taylor, Kayla Thompson, Michelle Williams, Stephanie Whitehead and Shyana Young.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van-Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am very much in love with a bachelor who lives alone in my building; I'm a divorcee also living alone. It all started out with a "good morning" when we were both walking our dogs. (He has two.)

Pretty soon, he asked me to walk his dogs while walking my own. Then he started coming in after work every evening for a drink. I invited him to dinner several times and we'd watch TV, play backgammon and neck a little. He seems to like me, but he has never invited me out. Meanwhile, I fell for him — but hard.

Two months ago, he said he was going away for the weekend, and I was sure he was going to ask me to go alone, but instead, he asked me to keep his dogs!

When he came back for the dogs, he spent the night with me. After that, I couldn't get him off my mind. Now he goes away every weekend and leaves his dogs with me, and when he comes back, he stays all night. He's driving me crazy. I told him I was in love with him, but he's never committed himself.

How can I get him interested in me? I feel like a 40-year-old teenager.

— 40 AND FOOLISH

DEAR FOOLISH: As I see it, your neighbor sleeps with you occasionally in exchange for your looking after his dogs. It's a good deal for him, but a dog's life for you. There's no way you can get him "interested" in you. Break it off now. The longer you wait, the more painful it will be.

DEAR ABBY: My sister and her husband have a French poodle they call "Zsa Zsa."

They have no children, but they treat this dog just like a child. Zsa Zsa sits at the same table with them, and they even had a furrier make her a mink coat and bow to match.

They take Zsa Zsa everywhere with them. (If a place doesn't allow dogs, they won't go there.)

Abby, they even GREL in front of "this" because they insist she is so smart, she "understands" every word they say.

Well, I just had a baby girl. We named her Karen Sue, and the last straw was their sending a baby gift with a card saying, "With love to my cousin, Karen Sue, from Zsa Zsa."

Just imagine, putting our child in the same class with their dog! Are they sick, or what?

SICK OF ZSA ZSA

DEAR SICK: No. As a former poodle owner, I can understand their feelings.

Don't judge them too harshly. Some poodles are almost human.

DEAR ABBY: My children are just average, but they are good kids. I have no outstanding beauties among my daughters, and while they do have friends, none of them is wildly popular.

My sons are average students, just fair in sports, but none of them ever made the team.

A relative of mine has outstanding children. They are popular, good-looking and get lots of honors — and he doesn't let me forget it for a moment. What can I say when he calls "It's me" and brags on and on about his kids?

— SLOW BURN

DEAR SLOW: Nothing. Just because a jackass brags doesn't mean you have to answer him.

Help monument search for fossils

HAGERMAN — The Hagerman Fossil Beds National Monument has announced that the public is invited to search for fossils Saturday.

Greg McDonald, park paleontologist, said that participants will help look for exposed fossils in a disturbed area of the monument as part of its ongoing program of inventory and monitoring.

During the experience, participants will learn about the geology and paleontology of the monument. All fossils collected will become part of the park's research collection — none can be taken home.

Anyone interested in participating in the program should meet at 8:45 a.m. at the monument office, 221 N. State St. The group will return to the office by noon.

Participants need to provide their own transportation and are advised to bring a vehicle that can handle dusty and possibly muddy, dirt roads. The trip will involve strenuous hiking on steep slopes, so boots are recommended. Those attending should bring plenty of water and be prepared for a variety of weather conditions.

For more information, call the monument office at 837-4793 between 8 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. today.

Jerome seniors plan public dinner

JEROME — The Jerome Senior Center has planned a community dinner for Sunday.

Roast pork, potatoes and gravy, Oriental mix vegetables, green salad, pie, rolls and drink will be served from noon to 2 p.m. Cost is $5.50 for adults and $3 for children ages 1 to 12. Anyone interested is invited to spend the afternoon playing cards.

The Times-News welcomes news of community events. Send material to The Times-News Valley Happenings, PO Box 548, Twin Falls 83303-0548. Please submit news at least a week in advance and include a phone number where you can be reached.

Habitat for Humanity fish fry, auction set Saturday in City Park

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Habitat for Humanity, the international group of volunteers that builds homes for people who couldn't otherwise afford them, will be the beneficiary of a fish fry and silent auction Saturday night at City Park.

The event, sponsored by the Blue Lakes Rotary Club, will also feature entertainment by the Bob Nora Band. It's scheduled from 5:30 to 8 p.m. Cost is $6.50 per person.

Tickets are available at Larson Arts and Irwin Realty.

Habitat for Humanity is nearing completion of its first local home, located on the corner of Fourth Avenue West and Blake Street, but it's struggling with dwindling resources and not enough volunteers.

The organization needs an additional $10,000 to $15,000 to complete its first project.

Habitat for Humanity builds or renovates houses using as much volunteer labor and donated materials as possible. When it's completed, the house is sold at no profit and no interest to a family too poor to get a mortgage loan.

The cost of the house is repaid over a fixed period, and the money from the payments is recycled to build more houses. In addition, the new homeowners receive financial counseling and learn to budget their money.

They're also required to participate in the construction and to help other prospective homeowners build their homes.

Idaho could learn lessons from neighboring states

The Associated Press

BOISE — Idaho has a boom-and-bust lesson to learn from some of its neighbors, a New York-based investment services company says.

The state has one of the fastest-growing economies in the nation in terms of population and job growth, Standard & Poor's Corp. said Wednesday.

It is wise to realize that growth eventually will end as it did in California and Washington, said Joel Ing, an analyst with S&P.

Writing in the company's Aug. 23 Creditweek Municipal, road building by people who buy and sell municipal bonds, Ing and Robert Emiston say in 1992, the state led the nation in employment growth at 4.6 percent.

The bulk of the new jobs were in services, trade and technology. Boise led all other cities with 6 percent job growth.

"But while the government has been open-armed in luring businesses to the state, growth that comes too standard-cost problems," Ing said.

He warned Idaho business and government officials to think how growth should occur without ruining Idaho's appeal with its good business climate, affordable housing, good schools and a high quality of life.

"The state can have some position in designing this and, hopefully, handling it," he said.

Idaho has been thinking about when its economic renaissance may end, said Karl Tuxler, deputy director of the state Commerce Department.

"While we're still very bullish, we are aware that there are potential segments of the economy that need bolstering, and we need to prepare for that," he said.

The department will hold conferences with federal and local officials over sustainable growth, balancing economic and environmental interests.

Much of the population influx to Idaho has been from California and western Washington as those areas became overdeveloped and expensive, the pair said.

Mortgage rates hit 25-year low

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Interest rates on 30-year, fixed-rate mortgages fell this week for the 11th time in 14 weeks, dipping below 7 percent to a 25-year low, the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. said Thursday.

The rate averaged 6.97 percent this week, down from 7.10 percent the previous week. The corporation began calculating its weekly average in 1971 but said the lowest average, compared to similar rates, was the lowest since 1966.

"Rates are lower now than they've been in 25 years because the economy was high and inflation is low," said economist Robert Van Order of the corporation.

He said he would be surprised if rates fell more than another quarter of a percentage point and said as the economy strengthens over the next year they probably will rise to around 7.5 percent but probably no higher than 8 percent.

The rate began the year at 8.07 percent and fell through mid-April and then began edging up as investors became worried about inflation. It hit 7.52 percent in mid-May but resumed falling again with the release of government reports showing inflation all but disappeared.

The average on 15-year, fixed-rate mortgages was a record low of 6.49 percent, down from 6.62 percent last week.

Harley-Davidson roars back with plant expansion

The Associated Press

YORK, Pa. — Hog heaven will become even more so with the announcement that Harley-Davidson Inc. is investing $80 million in a factory expansion. The expansion will increase annual production of Harley-Davidson motorcycles from 81,000 to 100,000, a record of 1996.

The $80 million will come from cash reserves and augment the $50 million Harley spends each year on capital improvements, the Milwaukee-based company said. No new hirings are planned for the 2,000-worker factory, which is located near York, Pa.

Horoscope

IF AUGUST 27 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You are dynamic, creative, controversial and almost always back the underdog. You are romantic, impulsive, headstrong. You are analytical, merciful, restless, capable of expressing yourself via words, verbal and written. Social activities accelerate this year, you'll travel in September, you'll add to wardrobe, you'll be more conscious of body image.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Practical matters get cleared; you're on way to what could become "glorious weekend." Focus on prestige, acknowledgment of talent.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Scenarios features movement, travel, inspirational messages; you'll be told, "You have writing skill, develop it!" Romance will not be a stranger.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Attention revolves around home, security, family, chance to increase income. Become familiar with accounting procedures, make certain you are not taken for granted - personally, professionally.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Delay should not be equated with defeat - partnership, marriage, spotlight. Intuitive intellect enables you to be at right place at crucial moment. Legal arrangement featured.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Attend to basic issues, accept challenge of added responsibility, be sensitive to time limitations. Relationship grows intense, is on verge of becoming "controversial."

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Long-range prospects-dominant -- reach beyond the immediate, stress possibility of activity overseas. Creative drive results in favorable attention, possible profit. Aries figures prominently.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Emphasize independence, style, creativity, leadership. Individual in your home, at first recalcitrant, now says, "I'm all for you!" Personal possessions worth more than anticipated.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Focus on trips, visits, elements of timing, surprise. Relative who had been away will now make presence known -- in dramatic fashion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Diversity, make copies of format, progress, materiality. More popular your contributions, efforts likely to result in success. Financial picture grows brighter as result. Play the game!

PISCES (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You're on solid ground despite bellicose individual who shouts otherwise. Cycle high, you'll be at right place, judgment and intuition will be your ally.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be discreet regarding confidential information disclosed during clandestine meeting. Written material involved. Change of venue could help cause.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): It was no daydream! You are going to get your wish - spotlight is on you! It will friends and influence people. Go to it with enthusiasm. Focus on life-style, residence, marital status.

Town named after spare change.

Q. How did the Kentucky town of Eighty-Eight get that name?
A. Eighty-eight cents was all the money Dabnie Nunnally could pull out of his pocket the day he named that place, he founded.

Q. Has David Brinkley ever plugged a movie?
A. Once. He recently recommended "Sleepless in Seattle." Said it was clean, charming and highly entertaining. Or words to that effect.

The blurb is not a sign of innocence, say the psychologists, but a sign of guilt.

Q. Is it true the starving Third World people have far less cancer than the over-fed industrialized society folk?
A. So it's claimed. They also have far fewer diagnostic tests.

Q. Who invented the striptease dance?
A. A Paris showman. Who contrived a comedy routine for sex appeal. He put a pretty dancer on stage and told her, Search your body as though you were trying to find a flea, taking off one piece of clothing at a time as you do so. The act went over well: But the stripper soon abandoned the flea-search bit, and just danced, slowly.

Q. I've read that some colonial battles were called because of rain. Why?
A. Wet flintlock rifle wouldn't fire. Listed in a file at land labeled "Jobst Jobs' Jobs" is an opinion of the wise John Ross Macaulay: "Not to enjoy life, but to employ life, ought to be our aim and inspiration."

Nothing beats a skunk for cleaning unwanted insects out of a garden, say the biologists. Pity you can't train a skunk, what? Like to weed.

What do you do with a pet bat when you go on vacation? "Not to enjoy life, but to employ life, ought to be our aim and inspiration." Nothing beats a skunk for cleaning unwanted insects out of a garden, say the biologists. Pity you can't train a skunk, what? Like to weed.

What do you do with a pet bat when you go on vacation? That's what I asked. An authority on bats replied, "Put it in the refrigerator. It will hibernate until you return."

Larroquette's show wages uphill battle

By Suzanne Gill
TV-Data Technologies

Survival may be an uphill battle, not only for John Larroquette's new character role for his show, as well. The tall New Orleans native was a four-time Emmy winner for his work as Dan Fielding on NBC's off-the-wall hit, "Night Court." Now he's playing an even more discolored character in even rougher surroundings—and he's got to do it opposite ABC's "Roseanne." Perhaps that's why NBC is airing a preview of "The John Larroquette Show" in its comedy-friendly Thursday-night lineup on Sept. 2. It's the least it can do.

Larroquette plays John Hemingway, a man who's lost his family and job during a 10-year bout with alcoholism. All he has left is his college degree, which, he's told, is enough to get him the job of night manager at a St. Louis bus station. It's a tough place to begin putting his life back together, but he's willing to give it a try.

The pilot begins at a meeting of Alcoholics Anonymous, where Hemingway steels himself for things to come with a darkly comic monologue. Reporting for work at the bus station, he meets the other souls who pass through there in the night.

Liz Torres plays Mahalia Sanchez, Hemingway's assistant who is an earth mother type. The heart of gold that beats beneath her brusque exterior is a TV cliché, but Torres brings so much energy to this hard-working single mother that she's missed as soon as she walks off camera.

There are gimmicks to spare in many of the regular cast's characterizations, including Gigi-Rose's predictable prostitute, Carly Watkins, who bears a striking resemblance to Larroquette's "Night Court" co-star, Markie Post.

Other regulars include Daryl "Chill" Mitchell as Dexter, the tough-talking young manager of the station's sandwich counter; Lenny Clark (remember CBS' "Lenny") and Elizabeth Berridge as police officers who come by for coffee; Chi McBride as Heavy Gene, the relaxing custodian; and John F. O'Donohue as Max, a bus driver making regular runs in and out of the station.

If Larroquette's arrival of Emmys are any measure, the actor hit his stride on "Night Court" and shows no intention to play to his strengths. Perhaps that is why, as executive producer of this new show, Larroquette has changed so very little. From the Dante-esque setting to the brief, tight vignettes (a PG-13 to the final twist that becomes a comic simply because it isn't tragic, "The John Larroquette Show" is almost exactly what you'd expect.

Harder tasks are the show's conflicting messages about alcoholism. On the one hand, it's easy to be sympathetic toward Hemingway as he struggles not to take a drink despite the fact that alcohol is available in his office, in the bus station lounge and even in a homeless drunk's repeated offers. On the other hand, the script calls for Larroquette to joke frequently about drinking as if it were something he could take or leave.

Though it doesn't show in the pilot, Larroquette is philosophical about Hemingway's struggle with the bottle, saying it represents a universal need to recognize that we must all take responsibility for our own success or failure. That insight could form the nucleus of a fine, bitersweet comedy for "Night Court." Unfortunately the show's tough time slot may stall it out before it can hit the open road.

New Nampa TV station will offer religious, family shows

NAMPA, Idaho (AP)—A new religious and family-oriented independent television station expects to be on the air by the end of the year in southwestern Idaho.

"We'll have an interdenominational programming mix emphasizing wholesome values that will be helpful for young and old," said William Hall, He's president of Hope Broadcasting Corp., and also pastor of the Seventh Day Adventist Church in Caldwell.

Hope Broadcasting said it hopes to offer Christian programming as an alternative to the sex and violence that has become standard on American television.

Hope Broadcasting was formed more than two years ago by local business people. An advisory board of local citizens, including pastors from several churches, will decide what is aired.

"It will be Christian and family programming," said David Ferdinand, Nampa businessman and a member of the advisory board. "We don't want any violence. It will be good alternative programming for the Treasure Valley."

Channel 22 will feature Christian talk shows, health programs and local events. Hall said. It also is considering carrying some local sporting events.

Hope Broadcasting plans to purchase a building in downtown Nampa, remodel it, and begin broadcasting by Thanksgiving. The first schedule is to be about six hours per night, starting at 6 p.m., with eventual plans for a 24-hour broadcast.

'Snowy River: McGregor Saga' airs

By Patricia Brennan
The Washington Post

Earl Hamner Jr., who created one of America's best-loved series based on his own family, is going all out with The Family Channel's first hour-long drama series, "Snowy River: The McGregor Saga" (Saturday-night, repeating Sunday).

"The Waltons" was set in Virginia's Blue Ridge Mountains during the Depression. "Snowy River" takes place in Australia in the latter part of the century. It has more action than "The Waltons," which won four Emmys, and it stars mainly Australian actors, but like Hamner's nostalgic "Waltons," it meets Family Channel's family-values standards.

The colorful series was inspired by A.B. "Banjo" Paterson's ballad about the brave Matt McGregor's famous horseback ride down a mountainside.

Hamner and Robert Chmielek, Family Channel's vice president of development and current programming, stressed that "Snowy River: The McGregor Saga" has nothing to do with a 1982 Australian movie, "The Man From Snowy River" or its sequel.

Both Hamner and Chmielek hope this one might be the Family Channel's first original-series hit. The cable service signed for 13 episodes of the Australian co-production.

Hamner said he is caught up with turn-of-the-century Australia for the same reasons he finds American pioneers fascinating: their spirit.

"Even though they were convicts and had been deported, they still had the same task our pioneers did, and that was to tame the land," he said. "They were the same group that came to America. And they were arrested for the smallest things—stealing a loaf of bread, for example, or speaking out against the crown. I think that's why 'Snowy River' works so well—it's got that pioneer spirit."

"Snowy River" is set in Australia's High Plains region. Widower Matt McGregor (Andrew Clarke) and his three children live on Langara, a 10,000-acre ranch in the foothills, and lease 50,000 acres in the High Plains for cattle and horses. That land becomes a source of conflict.

McGregor, whose father was expelled from Britain in 1852 after he campaigned for the right to vote, earned his own measure of fame some 25 years earlier when he rode a horse down an almost-vertical mountainside in a contest.

"He's now the patriarch of the station, Langara," Hamner said. "He's a very manly, handsome guy, sort of John Wayne or Clark Gable," and "he has three children."

Elder son Colin, 24, is played by Brett Climo, well-known in Australia for a series called "The Flying Doctors." During the first 13 episodes, Colin McGregor will marry, Hamner revealed. The family also includes 19-year-old Rob (Guy Pearce), a fun-loving cowhand, and 14-year-old Danielle (Joelene Crogmore), whom Hamner describes as "at that wonderful age where she's a tomboy one day and a lady the next."

Luke (American actor Josh Lucas) is the 19-year-old son of Matt McGregor's late brother, an English actress. Victoria Tennant guest in episodes 5 through 9 as widowed Anita Elliot Hargraves, Matt McGregor's former love.

Zimbalist's character brings about tragedy in 'Trade Winds'

By Jackie Hyman
The Associated Press

LOS-ANGELES—Ehren Zimbalist Jr. strolls into an Efram restaurant sporting a shock of white hair and a grin completely unlike his steely-eyed image from TV's "The FBI."

The star of the nine-year hit series is no longer gunning for felons behind the ferns. He's more interested in his role as a patriarch in NBC's steamy miniseries "Trade Winds," beginning Friday. It runs for five consecutive Fridays.

Set on the island of St. Martin in the Caribbean, "Trade Winds" is the story of two feuding families. It involves jealousy, forbidden love and a curse.

Zimbalist's character, Christoff Von Phillips, is a superstitious man who unintentionally brings about tragedy.

"The basis of this man's character is family, holding the family together," he said. The 74-year-old actor. "Some reference books knock five years off age—the rest of audio publicity in Zimbalist's early days in films).

Anita Morris, John Beck, Michael Michele and Michael McLafferty co-star in the miniseries. It was directed by Charles Jarrott and written by Hugh Bush.

Zimbalist won his role the old-fashioned way: He auditioned for it, in part to demonstrate how he would handle a German accent.

"I've always liked doing accents," Zimbalist said during a luncheon interview. "I have a certain knack for them."

"My wife's stepmother is a gorgeous German lady—she's American but she was born in Germany. I think most of the music of the speech I've gotten from her, I've been around her so long."

He said he likes playing a range of characters but avoids projects that glorify wrongdoing.

"I don't like to represent something I feel is going to lead young people into avenues they will not be happy if led them into, later in life," Zimbalist said. "I'm talking about a certain kind of integrity."

"So much of my life has been spent playing private eyes and public eyes, and I don't want people suddenly saying, 'What is he doing?' Zimbalist explained. "Betrayal" is one word (that comes to mind). I would hate to do that to people."

Another attraction of the role is to show Zimbalist can play something beyond his FBI agent persona.

"This town (Hollywood) thinks of you in terms of the last thing you've done," he said. "If you can't do it, its logical extreme, you would assume I was born an FBI agent."

Both of his sons began acting in the same ratings and worked their way to No. 1.

"Today none of them would have made it," he said.

After "The FBI," Zimbalist made pilots for two series, including a comedy costarring his daughter, Stephanie. Neither sold.

They did act together in her hit series, "Remington Steele." Zimbalist had a recurring role as a con artist who turned out to be the father of actress Brennan's character.

Zimbalist gave up an early interest in composing to act. He launched his career in the Broadway production of "The Rugged Path," starring Spencer Tracy.

His film and television credits include "Wait Until Dark," "Scraples" and "Hot Shots." Zimbalist recorded the voice of Alfred, the butler, in the cartoon "Bartman" series, which, he said, "has made me an idol in my little grandchildren's eyes."

He also portrayed Gen. Douglas MacArthur in a one-man stage show.

Letterman's CBS launch will receive top Bill-ings

By Eric Mink
New York Daily News

NEW YORK — TV's newest $14 million star, David Letterman, will launch his new CBS show Aug. 30 with an impressive wind of bills. Actor-comedian Bill Murray and singer-songwriter Billy Joel will be the guests on the "Late Show" premiere, executive producer Robert Morton confirmed late Thursday.

The move is a nod to tradition and continuity; Murray was Letterman's first guest when his NBC show, "Late Night," was launched on Feb. 1, 1982.

"Bill Murray is a good friend of ours," Morton said. "He was a guest on our first show for NBC, he was on our 10th anniversary show, and he's one of a handful of guests — like Steve Martin, Mary Short, Billy Crystal and Tom Hanks — who are the best of it."

Billy Joel, Morton said, "is one of those great performers who'll be very exciting to watch, especially in a theater like the Ed Sullivan."

Letterman's CBS premiere also will mark the opening of the newly restored Ed Sullivan Theater at Broadway and 53d Street. It was the scene of historic national television appearances by The Beatles and Elvis Presley, among countless others, on Sullivan's long-running Sunday night variety series.

Morton acknowledged that "an offer was made" to ex-Beatle Paul McCartney to appear on the Aug. 30 show, but a deal couldn't be worked out. "McCartney is still a possibility for the future," Morton said.

Robin Williams, John Mellencamp and 4-year-old geography whiz Jonathan Estrada will appear Tuesday; Spin Doctors, Wednesday; Martin Short, Thursday; and Debra Winger and Soul Asylum, Friday.

Earlier this week, NBC announced Jay Leno's "Tonight Show" would do battle with Letterman's launch on CBS with country superstar Garth Brooks and "Beverly Hills 90210" hostess Luke Perry as guests.

A spokeswoman for Paramount's syndicated Arsenio Hall show said it would be airing reruns the week of Aug. 30.

A Washington spokeswoman for "Nightline," ABC's 11:35 p.m. news program, said plans for the Aug. 30 show were still in flux. "We won't be doing the late-night TV wars or anything else entertainment related," she said. "It will depend on what's going on in the news at the time."

Goldie Hawn will be the first guest for "The Chevy Chase Show," which premieres at 11 p.m. on Sept. 7.

NBC said Wednesday that it will fill Letterman's old 12:35 a.m. time slot from Aug. 30 through Sept. 10 with reruns of the first two weeks of Letterman's shows from 1982. Letterman's replacement, "Late Night with Conan O'Brien," premieres Sept. 13.

The timing of those reruns, however, means that on Aug. 30, viewers will be able to see Letterman's new CBS premiere with Bill Murray at 11:35 and then switch to a repeat of Letterman's 11½-year-old NBC premiere with Bill Murray at 12:35.

NBC still won't say what Letterman can't do on CBS. In July, NBC President Bob Wright laid claim to Letterman's repertoire of "Late Night" bits and skits, calling the bag of tricks the network's "intellectual property."

Does that mean that on CBS Dave can never have a Top 10 list. Stupid Pet Trick or visit from the likes of Pet Boy? No one at "Late Show With David Letterman" seems to know.

In a recent interview, Letterman promised to revive some of his old exclusions (from NBC), he said. Letterman executive producer Peter Lasally agreed that "Late Show" is in the dark as to what from the past can and can't be used.

Macy asks Thome to call Angelitos. Anonymous and have them send someone over to see her. Sheila accuses Connor of using Brooke for her money and power. Taylor asks Ridge how he would react if it turned out she was infertile. Ridge tells Taylor that in that case, he would feel devastated simply because he knows how much she wants to have a baby and then assures her she'll become pregnant soon. Connor gives Brooke an engagement ring and asks her to marry him. While Sally is trying to cheer Macy up, she begins to cry. Ridge tells her that Macy's Miranda Act. Brooke tells Connor she's not ready. Connor is disappointed and tells her he's not going to follow her around like a puppy dog. Later, Karen tries to comfort Connor. Sheila snaps a picture of Karen and Connor embracing. The doctor tells Keith that Kevin is going to be fine.

Aisle see you on 'Daytime's Greatest Weddings'

Everyone loves a wedding, especially the soaps. Whenever a couple decides to tie the knot on one of the daytime dramas, the producers dig deep into the budget and go all out.

Soap studs

John N. Goudas

There have been solemn and beautiful wedding ceremonies and highly charged ones and even some that enlisted help. ABC has decided that fans who tune in by the millions whenever a duo makes the trip down the proverbial aisle might be interested in owning a video of some of the best weddings of their favorite soaps: "All My Children," "One Life to Live" and "General Hospital." The three videos will be available beginning Sept. 15, and if they are successful, you can probably look for more... perhaps "Daytime's Greatest Divorces" (of course, that would require more than one video cassette player).

Susan Lucci, who may hold the record on ABC soaps for the most marriages as Erica (she's been wedlocked eight times so far and there's no end in sight), hosts "All My Children's Greatest Weddings" and displays more than a winking sense of humor when she talks about all of Erica's marriages. The first one to Tom took place on Sept. 6, 1978, when Erica was still dew eyed and fairly innocent. Then in succession Erica donned the bride's veil (or a chic reasonable facsimile) for her nuptials—Adam in 1984; Mike, also in 1984; Travis in 1986; Travis in 1988; Travis again in 1990; Adam (again) in 1991; and Dimitri in 1993.

Viewers will get a hot out of seeing Erica making a daring prison escape, hanging onto a rope ladder from a helicopter when her marriage to Brad is being held up, interrupted. Then there's Cliff and Nina, who kept getting married over and over again—they tied the knot no less than four times (even Richard Burton and Liz Taylor did that far). Romantics will shed a tear or two when Tad and Dixie lock delectably into each other's eyes during their 1989 marriage.

Erica Szlezak, who has won three Emmys for her role of Viki Buchanan, hosts the "One Life to Live Greatest Weddings" video and lists all girlish talking about Viki's wedding and Dixie's in 1989 and then again in 1993 (1988). The one with the most weddings under her belt is Asa, played by Philip Carey. He's had six brides, most of whom were much younger than him.

What's that they say about the apple not falling far from the tree? Bo, Asa's son, has also racked up quite a few matrimonial matches himself. Bo has been hitched five times (twice to Liza). In fact, Bo, sporting a beard, tried to impersonate Prince Raymond in a ceremony in which the bride was Sarah, who caught on during the ceremony and still went through with the wedding. It's one of the lighter moments on the "One Life" video.

"General Hospital's" wedding marches are introduced by Jackie Zeman and Brad Maule, who play the married couple, Bobbie and Tony Jones, on the long-running soap. The first wedding shown finds Steve and Audrey at the altar (in black and white) during their February 1955 wedding. Then there's Scotty and Laura, the couple they couldn't keep apart. There's also Frisco singing to his bride, Felicia, during their second time down the aisle. Also, there's a very lovely—proposal scene, in which "best friends" Tony and Bobbie realize that they could graduate to the next level and become lovers.

However, the centerpiece of the "General Hospital" wedding video is Luke and Laura's marriage. This media event—and that's what it became—earned the highest ratings for daytime ever. The ceremony itself took place outdoors on location, and Genie Francis (Laura) couldn't keep the tears from falling throughout the entire wedding sequence. Most fans recall this wedding but now may remember the fight that Scotty (Laura's ex-husband) and Luke got into when the newlyweds were about to depart on their honeymoon? It's really a free-for-all. Once Luke decked Scotty, the couple climbed into their car and fled.

"What God has joined together, let no man put asunder"... until the next time.

Crossover has become popular on soap operas

By Bettelsohn Peterson

Q. On "General Hospital," there is a character named Marco Dane. He is played by the same actor who played Marco Dane on "One Life to Live" two years ago. How can that be when there is no contact between the two soaps?—A.B., Watertown, N.Y.

A. Now there is: Marco Dane. Crossover is an old prime-time trick: take a popular character from one show and use him/her on another. The soaps have gone into it heavily now. The latest is Debbi Morgan, Dr. Angie Hubbard on "All My Children," now doing the same character on "Loving." Gerald Anthony, who plays Dane, quit "OLTL" in 1986, returned in 1990 but left in a huff and shortly came back in an competing soap, "Another World." But ABC liked bad boy Marco, forgive Anthony and hired him so Dane could be "in" from gambling debts incurred on "OLTL."

Family's snowy ordeal movie deal

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — A California couple who became stranded in snowy Nevada mountains during a December trip to Idaho recently returned to the Gem State, this time by a different route and with a Hollywood movie deal tucked under their belts.

"I think it's pretty accurate. They had to dramatize it a little... so people would watch it," Jennifer Stolpa said of the movie that is to be filmed of the couple's ordeal.

Jennifer and James Stolpa, both 21, and their son, Clayton, who celebrated his first birthday this month, were in Idaho for a week-long visit, capped by a family return Aug. 14 at Kalle Curley Park in Idaho Falls.

Los winter, the Castro Valley, Calif., couple left their home in the San Francisco area on Dec. 29 to attend the funeral of a family member in Pasco, Idaho. Traveling through a severe blizzard, the Stolpa's pickup truck got stuck in the snow on an unpaved road in northeastern Nevada.

The family left the truck and walked for hours until it started to get dark, spending the night in a cave they happened upon. The next day, Jennifer Stolpa and the baby wrapped themselves in a sleeping bag and James Stolpa went to find help. He eventually stumbled into a road maintenance crew, and led search teams to the wife and baby about three days after he had left them.

The two-hour television movie about the ordeal is supposed to air on CBS in late November. So far, the script has been written, but it hasn't been cast or filmed, the Stolpas said.

Producers were hoping to shoot the movie in September and were scouting for a wintery set. They were considering New Zealand, Argentina and the Yukon in Canada, the couple said.

"We have our say about what's written," James Stolpa said. "If we don't like it, they might change it or we can work out some compromise." But overall, the couple has enjoyed working with Hollywood on the project.

Movie producers contacted the Stolpas within days of the ordeal, while they were still in the hospital recovering from frostbite. The baby had come through unscathed,

James Stolpa still doesn't know how far he wandered through the snow.

"We plan on going back up there to measure it out and everything," it's been estimated he covered about 30 miles. The weather was "snowing, windy, all-around nasty," he said.

Stolpa was in the Army at the time. He left the service in May, after about two years. Now, he and his wife are considering going back to school.

They also might go on the road to talk to groups about what happened to them and how the human body can endure, giving motivation and the will to survive.

"We'd tell our story with the underlying theme or inspiration and motivation," Jennifer Stolpa said.

The commotion around their ordeal has calmed down, they say. But it's always a topic of conversation.

"It's like our second last name," Jennifer Stolpa said.

"The Stolpas: The people who got lost in the snow," her husband agrees.

Show will not accept scripts

Q. Tell me how I can send a script to Jerry Seinfeld? I wrote a script for an episode. Tell me the going rate for scripts and what are my chances? — M.M.S., Oco Valley, Ariz.

A. Your chances are nil. Larry David, co-creator and co-executive producer of "Seinfeld," recently reported that the show has been deluged in scripts by Seinfeld fans, none of them usable. They go right to the dumpster. As David points out, it's a tough writing about nothing — the "Seinfeld" style — and even veteran professionals have a hard time.

Q. In "Seinfeld," Jerry had a girlfriend in one episode. She was played by Teri Hatcher. I know I've seen her before but where? — S.Z., Sterling Heights, Mich.

A. Hatcher's been a busy lady, Boat Memorial Army. She was a regular in the soap "Capitol" and in "MacGyver," "Karen's Song" and "Sunday Dinner," and has done TV guest roles, "L.A. Law," "Quantum Leap" and "Star Trek: The Next Generation" as a few.

Q. I've bet $20 that the killer in the CBS movie "In the Company of Darkness" is the same actor who plays Brian on NBC's "Hillbillys." — C.J.C., Lake Thomas, N.D.

A. Collect. Steven Weber is Brian and Kyle Timmer in "Darkness."

Report: Hannah, Kennedy to be wed; no date set yet

NEW YORK (AP) — It's not a question of when, but whether John F. Kennedy Jr. and Daryl Hannah will be married.

Kennedy-Hannah nuptials are set for this fall, as early as Sept. 11, according to the New York Daily News, which quoted Kennedy family sources.

Kennedy's mother, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, is already planning the ceremony, one unidentified source said. She wants the ceremony to be dignified without becoming a media feeding frenzy, the newspaper said.

Kennedy and Hannah, an actress, reportedly obtained a marriage license last month in California.

Burr reportedly seriously ill

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Raymond Burr, the portly actor best known as television's "Perry Mason" and "Ironside," was reported to be seriously ill at his Northern California ranch.

John Strauss, a longtime friend of the actor, said Tuesday the 76-year-old Burr has been ill for some time. He wouldn't disclose the ailment.

In addition to his role as the lawyer on the 1957-66 CBS series "Perry Mason," Burr starred for eight years as the wheelchair-using

3 claim to have seen Jordan 3 days after supposed death

WINNABOW, N.C. (AP) — A detective who investigated the death of Michael Jordan's father said it would take something dramatic, to convince him that James Jordan was seen three days after he was supposedly shot and killed.

Detective Mark Locklear of the Robeson County Sheriff's Department said he plans to interview a convenience store clerk and two other witnesses in the store who say they may have seen Jordan and the two suspects accused of his murder.

Helen Norris, 52, said she would "bet my life" she saw the three men at the DJ Mini Mart on U.S. 17 on July 26 or 27.

Authorities still believe the 36-year-old Jordan was shot in his red Lexus early July 23 near Lumberton after he had pulled off U.S. 74 to rest. The store is about 50 miles from Lumberton. "These people had the car for three days," Locklear told the Wilmington Morning Star. "We know they were doing a lot of traveling. It's reasonable that they saw the car and saw the suspects... The only thing we can't understand is Jordan being with them."

Larry Martin Demery of Rowland and Daniel Andre Green of Lumberton are charged with first-degree murder, conspiracy to commit armed robbery and armed robbery. The 18-year-old could face the death penalty.

Locklear said information from the suspects and corroborated by others places them in Robeson County on July 26.

Jordan's body was found in a McColl, S.C., creek on Aug. 3. Norris remembers a red car with gold trim pulling up to a gas pump around 9:30 a.m. on either July 26 or the following day. Gary Bennett, a bread deliveryman, said he remembered the incident occurring on the Monday after his 39th birthday, which would be July 26, the newspaper reported.

Norris said a man she identified as Jordan approached the counter while another man stood in the back of the store and a third man pumped gas.

"He asked if I was OK," she said. "I said I was OK but I'd be doing better if I was at home in the bed asleep." "I said, 'Are you?' and he said no. I said it'd get better as the day goes by."

Bennett said he barely looked up while he was in the store. He remembers three men coming into the store but said he remembers their ages and the one at the counter was wearing a hat.

Both Bennett and Norris said they remembered the car.

Introducing: Sega Channel

By Rachel L. Jones
Knight-Ridder News Service

The next time you're flipping through the channels in boredom, take heart. By early 1994, you'll be able to enter the realm of Hedgehog and the Chiki Chiki Boys just by turning on your TV.

The Sega Channel is the latest venture in interactive television, a form of programming that ushers viewers into the action on the screen. Sega of America Inc., Time-Warner Entertainment and TCI Cable have formed a joint venture to market the channel, to be available nationwide by next March.

TCI Cable subscribers who own a Sega Genesis machine will be able to choose from up to 50 games including 688 Attack Sub and Altered Beast, plus get previews of soon-to-be-released titles and game play tips. Programming will be updated monthly.

To get the "Sega Channel," subscribers will need a special cartridge to plug into their game machines.

Service will cost about the same as other premium cable channels, in the $12 to $15 range.
