More state land lease battles loom

By Drew DeSilver
Times-News writer

BOISE — State land leases in Twin Falls and Cassia counties may be next on the Idaho Watersheds Project's auction list.

Jon Marvel, the Hailey architect who founded the Watersheds Project last year, said the state Land Board's refusal Tuesday to grant his group a controversial land lease in Custer County wouldn't deter the Watersheds Project from future battles over sensitive state lands.

On a 4-1 vote, the Land Board returned the 10-year lease to Challinor rancher Will Ingram, even though Ingram had refused to bid against the Watersheds Project at a Jan. 28 auction.

Marvel won the auction with a $30 bid. But Ingram appealed to the Land Board, saying that letting Marvel's group lease the land would unduly interfere with a 20-year-old grazing management plan covering tens of thousands of acres of state and federal land in central Idaho.

"I'm disappointed," Marvel said after the Land Board's action. "I think the entrenched power of the livestock interests is what swayed this."

Marvel said he hadn't decided whether to appeal the Land Board's decision in court. But he did say the Watersheds Project would continue bidding on certain state land leases as they come up for renewal.

Land in Twin Falls, Cassia, Owyhee, Bingham and Clark counties are targets for future Watersheds Project bids, he said. One-tenth of the leases on the state's 1.9-million acres of endowment land expire each year.

The Land Board's decision came after nearly two hours of testimony and discussion that drew far more interest than usual from state officials, the press and the public. Nearly 150 people jammed the board's meeting room, and more waited outside.

The board is composed of Gov. Cecil Andrus, Attorney General Larry EchoHawk, State Auditor J.D.

From Russia with faith

Viatcheslav Ananitch became a Mormon in 1991 as a Russian resident. As a missionary he is going door-to-door in Twin Falls.

The saint from Petersburg

'Hello, I'm Elder Ananitch; I'm a Mormon missionary'

By Denise Turner
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Last August, Viatcheslav Ananitch began packing up his life. That's when Ananitch received the call, from the spiritual leaders of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Salt Lake City, to leave his home in St. Petersburg, Russia, and enter the Missionary Training Center in Provo, Utah.

Now he's Elder Ananitch, and he's the biggest surprise to hit Twin Falls doorsteps in a long time.

"Hello, I'm Elder Ananitch, and I'm a Mormon missionary."

Doors are not slammed in his face, Ananitch said. In fact, people are curious, intrigued by his Russian accent. They invite him in and ask him about his journey from there to here.

It's a story worth telling.

Born and raised in St. Petersburg, Ananitch grew up in a country undergoing great change. After he graduated from high school, he spent nearly five years studying to be an engineer. His dad is a factory supervisor.

Ananitch was 22 in August 1991, when the Mormon Tabernacle Choir arrived in St. Petersburg to present a concert at the Philharmonic Hall. Ananitch's family agreed to house a Mormon couple from Spanish Fork, Utah. The timing couldn't have been better.

Ananitch had been searching the New Testament for six years, trying to fit together the pieces of a disjointed spiritual life.

"Glenn and Margaret Rowland, who stayed with us, introduced me to the Book of Mormon and invited me to the concert," Ananitch said. "The concert was so wonderful that the people in the seats were crying, even though they couldn't understand the words."

Ananitch was baptized shortly after that. His mother, brother and girlfriend also joined the church. So far, his father is not a member.

"The LDS Church in St. Petersburg is growing fast," Ananitch said. "About 2 1/2 years ago, we had 70 members; now there are more than 1,000."

Ananitch was drawn to the Mormon Church because of its pure ideas, he said, and because of its emphasis on family values and on improving oneself. When he was called to mission in the United States, he never looked back. His brother is a missionary in Ukraine.

Toting guns into schools fast way out

By Kirk Mitchell
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls High School students carrying knives or guns to school may now be immediately suspended and possibly expelled, according to a district policy passed Tuesday night.

The School Board amended a disciplinary policy that gives high school administrators discretion to take immediate action against students carrying weapons on school property. The board would have to decide whether to expel the student, however.

The previous policy required administrators to take less severe steps if students were "cooperative," including detention and short-term suspension before considering long-term suspension or expulsion.

The board's action came as a result of an urgent request by high school administrators, Superintendent Terrell Donich said.

School leaders "feel a zero tolerance policy regarding weapons, i.e. guns, knives, brass knuckles, nunchucks, bats or toy weapons used to intimidate, needs to be enacted now," said a letter to the School Board from Principal Carl Snow and other high school administrators.

The letter pointed to a recent incident at Minico High School in which a student was arrested for carrying a loaded gun in his backpack.

"We have reason to believe weapons are on our campus — some have been confiscated," the letter to the board says.

Donich said the district has seen an increase in the number of students bringing weapons to school.

If the school's weapons policy is not strict enough the results could be tragic, Donich said. He said he would rather have a policy that was too severe rather than not strict enough.

However, board members added a clause that gave them discretion to select a punishment for students that is appropriate based on the situation.

Board member David Sass said he would not like to see his son suspended if he mistakenly drove Sass' truck to school that had a hunting rifle in it.

Board Chairman Steven Tolman said the high school administrators must redefine what it means by weapons.

In other business the board tabled a decision to name the new elementary school in South Park.

Office sees soaring deficit under Clinton health plan

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In a setback for the White House, the non-partisan Congressional Budget Office said the Clinton health plan would drive the federal deficit $74 billion higher over the next six years, not cut it by $56 billion as billed.

In its long-awaited look at the White House proposal for paying for universal coverage, the CBO also concluded Tuesday that premiums would be 15 percent more expensive and should be listed as part of the federal budget.

Republicans cheered the CBO's 81-page analysis, saying it demonstrated that President Clinton was proposing "a massive new entitlement program," as Rep. Bill Archer of Texas put it.

"This is not a market-driven solution. It is a massive intervention by the federal government," charged Archer. He and other Republicans applauded the CBO for resisting White House arguments that most of the plan's costs should be left off budget.

Democrats put their own spin on the numbers. House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt said it confirmed that Clinton's plan "is generally on target" and would cut the nation's health bill by $150 billion in the year 2004 alone — a 7 percent savings.

Clinton, after making an appeal for health reform to workers at a General Motors pickup plant in Shreveport, La., said the CBO deficit figures were "not a problem."

"We'll fix that," said the president. "That's a Washington policy wonk deal. No serious person out here in the real world would be so troubled by that."

But it was a blow to Clinton's contention that his plan can cover every American by 1998 without imposing any major, broad-based new taxes. Clinton has repeatedly sold health reform as key to getting the $4 trillion deficit under control. Three major business groups turned their backs on the Clinton plan in the past week.

CBO Director Robert D. Reischauer, a Democratic economist clearly uncomfortable with the news he was bringing, sought to play down the deficit numbers. But he said the Clinton Health Security Act would add $74 billion in red ink through the year 2000 and a total of $126 billion from 1995 through 2004.

Still, Reischauer said that is only a small fraction of the deficits the government ran up in the past decade and is likely to run up in the next 10 years.

18 years after accident, woman speaks to parents

Goldman

The Associated Press

HAGERSTOWN, Md. — Ben and Jack Goldman used to talk to their daughter every Sunday at a home for the mentally retarded.

Those conversations abruptly stopped 18 years ago when Carol Goldman had a seizure, hit her head and stopped talking.

Until last week.

"I held up one finger and I said, 'What is this?' She said 'One,'" said Mrs. Goldman, who had raced to her daughter's room after a therapist told her Carol had spoken.

"I said 'Who am I?' and she said, 'Mom.' It was like the blood rushed out of my head. I pointed to him (Jack) and she said, 'Dad.'"

"We went bananas!"

Carol, 42, learned to walk and talk, to dress herself and make her bed, but never read above a fourth-grade level.

Carol was living at a home for the retarded in Albany, N.Y., when she suffered the seizure. After three months in a coma, she was transferred to the Western Maryland Center, a state-run hospital for rehabilitative and chronically ill patients.

Over time, she became more responsive.

"She could shake her head yes or no, point to words on a communication board," Goldman said. "We knew she had memory because we would ask her questions about the family, but she never spoke a word."

But no one was prepared for her to begin speaking again after 18 years.

"Although rare, there have been previous cases where sudden improvement has occurred, but it is very unusual," said Dr. Carl Escher, administrator at Western Maryland Center.

Ron Pike, director of social work at the center, said doctors can't explain Carol's progress. He suspects that changes in medication might be responsible, but said doctors have no definitive explanation.

"It's just incredible. Nobody can figure it out," said Mrs. Goldman.

Budget cuts spill blood, Bentsen says

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton's Cabinet tried to promote his budget to Congress Tuesday as a tough document that spills "blood on the floor."

Republicans accused the administration of squandering a golden opportunity to cut even more deeply.

"We've cut spending and we've cut it a lot," Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen told the House Budget Committee, one day after President Clinton unveiled a $152 billion spending plan for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

"This is a tough budget. There's a lot of pain in it, a lot of blood on the floor," Bentsen said.

Accompanying Bentsen at the witness table, Alice M. Rivlin, deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget, said the budget embodies "unprecedented fiscal discipline."

"Let me not mince words: this is the toughest budget any president has ever presented to you," she said.

Rivlin's boss, budget director Leon Panetta, and Laura D. Tyson, chairwoman of the White House Council of Economic Advisers, made separate appearances to defend the budget.

Republicans responded with scorn. "It certainly sounds like morning in America again," said Rep. Jim Kolbe, R-Ariz., in a reference to Ronald Reagan's 1984 campaign advertisements, which were mercilessly lampooned by Democrats.

"I have to think you must be economic Superwoman," he told Bentsen and Rivlin.

Republicans said the Clinton budget is silent on how to pay for the president's expected welfare reform proposals and offers no way of offsetting tariff losses expected to result from a recently concluded world trade agreement. And they said the administration was missing a chance to push through further spending cuts that couldn't be done during the recession. What cuts Clinton does propose are used to offset increased spending elsewhere and the budget does no more than stay within the bounds of the deficit-reduction package approved last summer, they said.

Meanwhile, the Congressional Budget Office dealt a blow to the budget by saying Clinton's health reform plan would drive the deficit up by $74 billion over the next six years, not cut it by $58 billion as the White House had forecast.

CBO Director Robert D. Reischauer also said Clinton's mandatory premiums for employers should be included in the federal budget. Clinton had put them off-budget as a strictly private transaction.

The administration projects the deficit will drop to $176.1 billion in fiscal 1995, the third consecutive annual decline and the lowest level since 1989.

"It is the most consistent deficit reduction that we have seen in over 40 years and I think the American people have been waiting a long time for budgets that in fact would require this kind of discipline," Panetta told the Senate Budget Committee.

Answering Republican critics, he said, "Welfare reform ... will be fully paid for ... Likewise the legislation to implement the GATT trade treaty will be sent to the Congress with the revenue losses fully offset."

Rep. Christopher Shays, R-Conn., complained the deficit projections are dependent on interest rates staying low and pointed out the Federal Reserve already had begun increasing short-term rates after five years of falling rates.

"If interest rates start to go up, all your projections fall by the wayside. It just blows my mind you're playing such a dangerous game. We need to cut more," he said.

Rep. John Kasich of Ohio, ranking Republican on the House budget panel, derided the administration for repeatedly touting the fact that it was proposing to eliminate 115 programs. The eliminations, he said, will shave only about $700 million

Clinton pitches health-care proposal

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — President Clinton struck back Tuesday at critics' charges that his health-care plan would give people less choice and more government.

"Don't fall for all this rhetoric," the president told a friendly crowd of nearly 2,000 factory workers on the floor of a General Motors truck plant.

Clearly sensitive about insurance industry ads critical of his plan, the president challenged "these ads of these folks that are so desperate to keep the system we have now."

"They say, 'Oh, the president wants to have the government take over the health care system.' It isn't so," he insisted. "What the president wants to do is to keep the system we've got now and give it to everybody."

Clinton also took several swipes at a rival plan sponsored by Rep. Jim Cooper, D-Tenn., though he didn't single Cooper out by name. He criticized any proposals that he said would try to "make insurance more affordable but would not guarantee coverage for all."

"Others say, 'Well, we make insurance companies cover everybody,'" he said. "Yeah, well, you can get insurance now. We have universal access now — if you've got $10,000 or $15,000."

The president is trying to regain momentum for his health-care plan after an onslaught of criticism from business groups that particularly disdained his proposal to make companies pay most of the premiums for their workers' health coverage.

Clinton was introduced at the GM plant by United Auto Workers President Owen Bieber, President Clinton urges autoworkers to disregard 'rhetoric' about his health plan Tuesday in a Louisiana truck plant.

who said the union backs Clinton's plan enthusiastically, and by GM chief executive officer Jack

Smith, who spoke by satellite hookup about a need for health-care reform without specifically endorsing Clinton's proposal.

"It is time for us to listen to the enlightened business leaders like Jack Smith and the enlightened labor leaders like Owen Bieber who say the time has come for everybody to have some responsibility for health care," Clinton said.

Clinton, speaking to workers with some of the best health benefits in the country, told his audience that others should have the same security. "What if you had a dream of starting a small business and you were willing to risk giving up working here, with all the security that it has?" Clinton asked them. "If you had a sick kid and you did that, you couldn't insure your family."

Painting insurance companies as the villains of the current system, Clinton declared, "Our approach completely outlaws insurance company discrimination" against people who have pre-existing medical conditions.

The Health Insurance Association of America is running a series of ads that suggest Clinton's plan would result in a mushrooming federal bureaucracy while limiting patients' choices in selecting medical care.

Clinton countered that the failings of the current system were due to insurance companies "writing thousands and thousands of different policies, charging old people more than young people, and saying who cannot get health insurance. We ought to stop it."

He said rival health-care plans in Congress would limit workers' choices in selecting health coverage.

'Blue-collar' law school denied credit

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A David vs. Goliath fight between a little law school near Boston and the nation's largest organization of lawyers stirred a drowsy American Bar Association convention Tuesday.

The Massachusetts School of Law, casting itself as a blue-collar David, lost an uphill battle over its attempt to gain ABA approval.

But the school's legal war against the 375,000-lawyer group rages on, with "antitrust violations" as the rallying cry.

"We seek to offer high-quality education to minorities, to the least privileged in American society," MSL Dean Lawrence Velvel told the ABA's policy-making House of Delegates.

"A small number of law school deans, professors and law librarians are operating a cartel that controls the ABA's accreditation process and has abused the ABA's monopoly power," he said.

But ABA leaders disagreed. "This is not a close case," said District of Columbia lawyer Pauline Schneider, who chairs the ABA law school accreditation committee. "MSL's claim of a special mission is invalid. There are many other schools meeting such a mission."

A University of Minnesota law dean Robert Stein urged the delegates to reject MSL's appeal, stating that the ABA standards for accreditation "do not abate diversity or innovation."

Radiation tests used low doses, scientists say

WASHINGTON (AP) — A panel of scientists told lawmakers Tuesday that with few exceptions radiation experiments on humans in the 1940s and '50s appear to have involved doses that would leave no long-term health problems.

The panel of scientists and physicians, all experts in the use of nuclear medicine, testified before the House Veterans Affairs Committee, which is examining whether veterans were improperly used as subjects in human radiation experiments in the early years of the Cold War.

Veterans Affairs Secretary Jesse Brown said his department was conducting a wide-ranging search of records and has determined that VA hospitals participated widely in the use of radioisotopes for research, diagnosis and treatment.

The hospitals were required to follow established health protection guidelines "and we are aware of nothing to indicate that these standards were not strictly observed," said Brown. But he said the research was not yet complete.

Oil slick keeps surfers out of the water

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — An oil slick from last month's major spill has spread to two internationally renowned beaches, causing surfers to abandon waves and hikers to lament lost business.

About 200 cleanup workers headed to the northwest beaches Tuesday to join a 144-member force that arrived Saturday. They are trying to clean up tar balls and oil globs soiling a 20-mile stretch of coastline about 65 miles west of San Juan, said Coast Guard spokesman Chris Haley.

Wind-driven currents carried the slick to the northwest, the slick originated from about 750,000 gallons of heavy oil that spilled from the Morris J. Berman barge.

Talbott grilled on Israeli support

WASHINGTON — Strobe Talbott, President Clinton's choice for the No. 2 post at the State Department, insisted in Senate hearings Tuesday that he is a staunch supporter of Israel but had deviated from that support in past writings critical of the Jewish state.

"I have always believed that the U.S.-Israeli relation is unshakable," Talbott said at a Senate Foreign Relations Committee confirmation hearing.

Talbott was grilled by Democrats and Republicans about his writings as a Time magazine reporter before he joined the administration last year. Questions focused particularly on a 1981 article in which he suggested that American Jews had political influence far beyond their numbers and that Israel had become an "outright liability."

"I certainly don't feel the way I did 13 years ago on this," Talbott said in the issue of Israel's strategic importance. "I simply changed my opinion."

North takes name from court records

WASHINGTON — Senate hopeful Oliver North purged his name from court files detailing his efforts to suppress the prosecutor's final report on the Iran-Contra scandal, sources familiar with the matter said Tuesday.

A three-judge panel of the U.S. Court of Appeals released hundreds of pages of previously secret court documents filed in December by former President Reagan and former Attorney General Edwin Meese III seeking to block the Jan. 18 release of the prosecutor's report.

But North's name was absent from the court files. One court document had black ink blotting out the name of a third party seeking to suppress the report. The name was North's and it was blacked out by court officers at the request of North and his lawyers, according to the sources, who have closely followed the seven-year investigation of the scandal and who spoke on condition of anonymity.

In addition, said the sources, North's lawyers removed from court files their secret motions seeking to stop release of the report.

Judge dismisses Tailhook charges

NORFOLK, Va. — A military judge Tuesday dismissed charges against three Navy aviators in the Tailhook scandal, rejecting the testimony of the Navy's top admiral and accusing him of trying to manipulate the investigation.

The decision by Navy Capt. William T. Vest Jr. means the Navy would have to start from the beginning if it intends to pursue the cases stemming from the 1991 Tailhook aviators' convention against Cmdrs. Thomas R. Miller and Gregory Tritt and Lt. David Samples.

Vest said administrative action could still be taken against the three officers. All three, who maintain their innocence, said they would reject administrative punishment. Robert Rae, an attorney for Tritt, said the two-year statute of limitations for such discipline has expired.

Vest concluded that Chief of Naval Operations Frank B. Kelso II, the Navy's highest-ranking admiral, used "unlawful command influence" to "manipulate the initial investigative process and the subsequent (discipline) process in a manner designed to shield his personal involvement in Tailhook 91."

FCC extends cable TV revenue freeze

WASHINGTON — The Federal Communications Commission is extending the freeze on cable TV revenues to May 15 while it conducts a review of the prices charged for service.

A revenue freeze imposed last year during implementation of new rules was due to expire Feb. 15.

But an outcry last fall over changes in how cable companies bill customers — which resulted in charges that many people received higher bills — led the agency to reconsider its rate rules.

Cosmonaut greets comrades from shuttle

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Discovery's history-making cosmonaut exchanged greetings with his comrades on Russia's Mir space station Tuesday as the spacecraft zoomed around Earth half a world apart.

"I hear you loud and clear. Can you hear me?" Sergei Krikalev asked the three Mir men. As his words were translated from Russian into English for the benefit of American TV viewers, laughter erupted aboard Mir.

"Sergei, why are you speaking English to us? Have you forgotten Russian?" one Mir cosmonaut asked jokingly. He was assured Krikalev indeed had spoken in Russian.

Discovery was 210 miles over the South Pacific and Mir was flying at about the same altitude over the Caribbean when the crews linked via the airwaves for ABC's "Good Morning America."

"We have flown for a long time with Sergei," Mir cosmonaut Valery Polyakov said in Russian. "I just wanted to wish him successful work among his American colleagues and a safe return to Earth and a safe landing and future meetings."

Krikalev, who has spent more than a year on Mir, is the first Russian cosmonaut to fly on a NASA shuttle. Several other joint shuttle flights are scheduled in coming years. American

All this is supposed to lead to a joint space station by 2001.

Discovery's commander, Charles Bolden Jr., said this flight has confirmed "what I knew in my heart all along, that people are just people no matter where they happen to come from."

'Have you forgotten Russian?'

ronment. Had it gone as planned, the experiment could have produced high-quality film needed for faster computers.

Other experiments also had to be scrapped because of the crew's inability to release the satellite, including shuttle plume tests intended to help prepare for planned shuttle-Mir dockings. Discovery's pilots were supposed to fire the shuttle jets near the Wake Shield, just before retrieving it, to see how the blasts would affect the satellite.

The astronauts and Krikalev managed to conduct one Wake Shield study Tuesday as planned. The satellite was hoisted on the end of the shuttle robot arm to measure electrical charges created by the craft.

The crew also spent the day conducting medical and radiation experiments sponsored by both the United States and Russia.

Krikalev hopes to talk to the Mir cosmonauts again before Discovery returns to Earth on Friday, via the shuttle ham radio.

Telescope gets picture of threatening comet pieces

WASHINGTON (AP) — The refurbished Hubble Space Telescope, looking close to home, has photographed 20 comet fragments that will smash into the planet Jupiter next July with the force of 100 million hydrogen bombs.

The photographs, released Tuesday by the Space Telescope Institute, show that the 11 largest pieces are 1 1/4 to 2 1/2 miles in diameter. They appear on the pictures as dots of lights in a string.

"Come July 19 this year, those 18 to 20 objects will hit Jupiter with the force of about 100 million megatons," Hubble project scientist Ed Weiler told a hearing of the Senate Appropriations subcommittee that oversees NASA.

These objects are about 2 to 4 kilometers across," Weiler said. "The significance of that is that the best theory of what destroyed the dinosaurs on Earth about 70 million years ago was that just one object about this size came in to the atmosphere and messed things up."

To laughter, Weiler said: "We heard every dinosaur on Jupiter is trying to get out."

The comet, named Shoemaker-Levy for its discoverers, broke up in the summer of 1992 from the tidal forces of Jupiter when it passed the gaseous planet. Its expected demise when it crashes into the Jovian atmosphere has excited astronomers around the world who never before have observed such an event.

The Hubble will continue to make periodic pictures of the comet and will be trained on Jupiter for the big event. Galileo, another NASA satellite, also will be trained on the biggest planet in the solar system.

N. Korea fortifies complex

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Facing the possibility of U.N. sanctions, North Korea is fortifying and staging defensive maneuvers around its main nuclear complex, a South Korean security official said Tuesday.

North Korea, meanwhile, accused the South Korean leadership of "sword brandishing" and bringing Korea to the "brink of war."

North Korea is suspected of developing atomic weapons. It denies this, but has blocked foreign inspectors from its nuclear facilities.

In a meeting Tuesday of security-related ministers in Seoul, national security adviser Chung Jong-uk said intelligence reports show North Korea is conducting defense training around its main nuclear complex at Yongbyon, 60 miles north of the capital, P'yongyang.

Chung said North Korea also has fortified its underground military facilities at Yongbyon, but he said there's no sign North Korea is trying to provoke a confrontation.

Wednesday's edition of the Chosun Ilbo newspaper quoted an unidentified high government official as saying South Korea has increased surveillance of North Korea "to be informed of possible military maneuvers ahead of time."

The stepped up tension comes less than two weeks before the International Atomic Energy Agency votes on whether to refer North Korea's continued refusal to allow nuclear inspections to the U.N. Security Council for possible international sanctions.

"In case dialogue and efforts fail, the government must take all necessary measures to safeguard national security and survival and to win public confidence," South Korean President Kim Young-sam said Tuesday.

Kim faulted what he called exaggerated reports from the United States that he said could aggravate tensions on both sides of the Korean Peninsula.

He said North Korea must not be isolated and the appearance of confrontation should be diminished to avoid cooling last-minute hopes for a peaceful resolution of the crisis.

South Korean Foreign Minister Han Sung-joo said the nuclear impasse can still be solved through negotiations with North Korea.

"Slight progress has been made through IAEA-Norea Korea negotiations," Han said, without elaborating. However, he said, if North Korea continued to block inspections, sanctions were inevitable.

Han was to depart for the United States on Wednesday, a week earlier than expected, for talks with Secretary of State Warren Christopher on the nuclear standoff.

An expert on North Korea who visited P'yongyang last week said the Communist country seemed tense and ordinary citizens seemed worried about an outside attack.

"North Koreans do not want a war with South Koreans," said Stephen Linton, a New York professor who accompanied evangelist Billy Graham to North Korea.

North Korea's official Korean Central News Agency said, in a dispatch monitored in Tokyo, "It is a foolish dream for the South Korean war maniacs to overpower our republic by military force."

China launches 2 satellites with rocket

BEIJING (AP) — China successfully launched two satellites Tuesday with a newly developed rocket designed to lift heavier loads.

The new Long March 3A can launch a 2.5-ton satellite well beyond the 1.4-ton capability of the standard Long March 3 model, Xinhua News Agency said.

China is reportedly developing another rocket, the Long March 3B, to be used to launch satellites manufactured abroad. It will be able to put a 4.8-ton satellite into space.

China has aggressively entered the international launching business in recent years as a way of earning hard currency.

Japan announces economic recovery plan

TOKYO (AP) — Seeking to jolt Japan out of its worst recession since World War II, the government on Tuesday announced its biggest economic recovery package ever.

But a bitter trade battle with the United States threatened to steal the spotlight. The long-awaited $140 billion economic stimulus package includes $54 billion in tax cuts, plus major public-works spending and measures to promote investment.

"At a time when our economy is struggling, it will help the recovery blossom," Prime Minister Morihiro Hosokawa said of the plan's centerpiece, the tax cut.

The nation's chief economic planner, Manae Kubota, told reporters the package was expected to lead to economic growth of at least 2 percent in the coming fiscal year beginning April 1.

The measures were welcomed in financial circles, where players for months have sought government steps to spur the economy. They were announced after markets had closed for the day Tuesday in Tokyo, but word that the package was imminent boosted stock prices.

The recovery plan, announced three days before Hosokawa is to meet President Clinton in Washington, was also expected to be well received by U.S. officials. The Clinton administration wants Japan to get its ailing economy back on track in order to boost demand for American imports and bring down Japan's huge trade surplus.

But any satisfaction in Washington over the stimulus package is likely to be overshadowed by a trade dispute that threatened to boil over on the summit's eve.

The two sides were holding final talks in Washington in an attempt to reach an accord before Friday's Hosokawa-Clinton talks.

Charity helps Vietnamese

HANOI, Vietnam (AP) — An American charity has donated 50 wheelchairs and 694 artificial limbs to handicapped children and adults in the Mekong River delta region of Vietnam.

The charity — the Virginia-based Vietnam Assistance for the Handicapped — gave the items to the Can Tho Rehabilitation and Functional Center in Can Tho province, 100 miles southwest of Ho Chi Minh City, the state-owned Vietnam News said Tuesday.

The organization donated another 50 wheelchairs and 200 prosthetics to the Thu Duc Rehabilitation Center in Ho Chi Minh City. The newspaper gave no date for either contribution.

Bombing range would have too many negative effects

The "kill the messenger" reaction to the Idaho Fish and Game Commission's bombing range opposition is indicative of how little logic is on the side of range supporters.

Fire the commission for trying to protect Idaho wildlife? Isn't that its job?

Last week, breaking ranks with the man who appointed them, the commissioners voted to oppose a state-owned bombing range proposed by Gov. Cecil Andrus. A draft environmental impact statement on the range "fails to adequately protect the unique biological resources" of the Owyhee desert, the commission said.

The commission complained that, among other problems, the document failed to settle who would pay for mitigating any damage that the jet jockeys might inflict on wildlife and habitat.

Response from the governor's office and three state legislators has been disturbing on a couple of counts.

On Monday, Dave Jett, the governor's point man on the range project, explained exactly who would bear the mitigation costs: Idaho taxpayers.

"This is a state-owned range," Jett said. "That's the whole point."

Yes, that is exactly the point. Andrus invented it as a gift to the Air Force — a way for the military to control a chunk of Idaho without the headaches of owning it. And now we find that state ownership includes responsibility for sweeping up after the flyboys.

Also Monday, three state legislators who represent the Mountain Home area called for a house cleaning at Fish and Game. Director Jerry Conley should resign, and Andrus should fire all six commissioners, they said.

In our view, the commission's break with Andrus is an honest and courageous attempt to do its job. Demanding the commissioners be fired is merely a way of ignoring the valid concerns they raise.

The commissioners, along with other range's opponents, are right. This bombing range proposal, acknowledged by the Air Force to be unnecessary, would have too many negative effects on wildlife, recreation and nearby residents. It's a mistake.

Today is the last day to mail written comments on the draft EIS. We encourage concerned Idahoans to write to one of these addresses:

Parents less, less involved

I found the letters from Marilyn Boss and Ken Shevlin in The Times-News on parental involvement in school interesting and to the point. However, from my experience, I find parents have little choice.

When I began teaching in the early 1960s, we had parents who had time to assist the schools in solving student problems. Over the following 20 years, parental involvement became less and less available.

In the '60s, one parent was at home and could be contacted anytime. Now parents both leave before the bus and return after the students have come home. Many commute many miles. This is necessary because we have too many high-salary employees in Boise and Washington making rules to tell the parents how to teach.

As both parents have become involved in production for tax paying, we have lost their support as teaching aides. Observe what responsibilities we have allocated to schools in the last 30 years — driver training, drug abuse, environmentalism, gun control, nutrition, sex education. All of these were once taught by parents.

My philosophy is: If we teach students to be responsible, to read, to write, to speak, to think and listen, they will be prepared to assume their roles in society and assimilate the knowledge to do so.

Given more time at home through fewer rules and taxes, parents will assume their responsibilities and students will be well-educated.

Wildlife belongs to all residents

It is really disgusting the tactics the Idaho Department of Fish and Game will use in trying to make itself look good. In this particular case, it was Commission Chairman Wes Rose's "put-down" of a petition that was circulated by a group in southeastern Idaho. According to Rose, the petition was flawed because "a preliminary computer search revealed less than 25 percent of the sample had bought a license to hunt or fish since 1990."

From page 4 of "A Vision for the Future," a Fish and Game publication: "The fish and wildlife resources of Idaho belong to the residents of the state," and "...these resources will be managed for the recreational and other legitimate benefits that can be derived primarily by the residents of Idaho."

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game is instructed by law to "preserve, protect and perpetuate" the wildlife of Idaho for "all residents." Buying or not buying a license to hunt or fish does not affect the validity of the signatures on that particular petition nor the ones that have been distributed by Sportsmen for a Better Idaho.

David Hecklander, a Gooding School teacher who writes a column for The Times-News, had an article in the Feb. 3 edition called "Participate and be counted." A quote from his article: "Preserving our shooting and hunting opportunities may well hinge on the ability and willingness of sportsmen to present an organized front of support."

David goes on to talk about joining a "local" shooting club to help demonstrate the number of hunters and shooters in the state. And that is an important step, especially from the social aspect and to help improve your skills.

However, in order to have "real political clout," all sportsmen and women, regardless of their pursuits, need to come under the "umbrella" of a statewide coalition that will represent "all" sportsmen.

Sportsmen for a Better Idaho is already organizing statewide and currently has members from Lewiston to Idaho Falls. But to be truly effective, we need members from every community and the support of the "independent local clubs" — archery, trap and skeet, muzzle loaders, snowmobilers, horsemen's groups, etc.

Changes are taking place. Let's make sure they are the changes we want.

Take part in health care debate

In a few weeks, Congress will return to Washington to take up legislative proposals to reform our nation's health care system. As we make our 1994 New Year's resolutions, let's resolve to become more personally active in the debate.

Let's pledge to urge our elected representatives to enact a health care plan that covers everyone, that maintains quality, that is affordable and that includes prescription drugs and long-term care protections for those with disabilities and their caregivers. Americans of all generations have a huge stake in the future shape of our nation's health care system.

We've all got to get involved in health care reform. And this time, let's get it right. We can't afford not to.

An American Association of Retired Persons health care reform video can be obtained by calling 678-7723. This tape is available to any organization or group interested. It is a VCR T-120 tape. It has all the latest information on it. Write or send a postcard to the Idaho State Senate, State Capitol Building, Room 351, Boise, ID 83720. All telephone trees are to be activated on the tree. Who gets Lottery money?

When are the citizens of Idaho going to wise up? The Lottery that was jammed down our throats has not been a profitable venture for Idaho, as promised by the politicians at its conception, except for the bureaucracy that operates it.

As the record shows, $10.5 million has been dumped into the games with only $800,000 returned to the schools of our county. Now it wants an additional $1.4 million to pay for Instant Automatic Payoff machines.

If the Lottery Commission can pay $1.4 million for this type of expenditure, then we should have a complete accounting of just where all the $10.5 million is being spent. We need to know who is getting the big money and why. If the Lottery is as great as the politicians keep telling us that it is, let's have a detailed audit for all to see.

All Idaho would be better off if we would fund our own school expenditures and dump the politicians and the gambling interests that are running the Lottery.

In answer to Rep. Kathleen Gurnsey, R-Boise, it is true that a statewide ballot approved the Lottery by a close vote. However, only after powerful gambling interests proclaimed that "with the Lottery, all our funding problems for our public buildings and schools would be paid for by the Lottery income."

This has not been the case, and if a statewide ballot were to come up for vote now, knowing what we know today, the Lottery would be defeated soundly.

Ranchers good stewards of land

This letter responds to Susan Doyle's of Feb. 2. She is letting us know how grazing is unbeneficial to the land, and it seems she has come to her opinion partly from the public land auction dispute between Will Ingram and Jon Marvel.

I am a fourth-generation farmer. As with most farm families, we have to be good stewards of the land in order to stay in business.

I realize that in ranching, some of the businesses have to utilize public land, and I don't know of a ranching family in my area that does not practice good stewardship in order for them to stay in business. This good stewardship has increased the number of antelope in the desert southwest of my home. This is just one of the pluses that have come from the ranchers in our area. It is my opinion that no one, unless they have witnessed these changes over their lifetime, has the right to say that these people add no benefit to the land.

Now to get to my point. I've lived in southern Idaho all of my life. Each summer, my family and I would spend some time at my grandfather's cabin in Stanley, We, of course, drove through the W. River Valley. For the first several years, it was a scenic drive with lots of wild game along the way. There was good snow and winter range for the big game. Now a majority of this area is under concrete and housing. Most of this is thanks to the recreation in the valley. Skiing is one of these activities, which I enjoy, but it is also a business that utilizes public lands.

I am not against this use of public lands, but in my opinion, the clearcuts for the ski runs can promote erosion which can produce sediment into the streams and rivers.

As for Jon Marvel being an architect, I'm sure in some ways he profits from the economic growth of the valley, which is undeniably linked to the continued use of public land. Yet this use of public land is unquestioned by people like him and Susan Doyle. I'm not expert on the business of skiing or architecture, but I know the economic health is better from them; but in my opinion, the environmental health has fallen. I think Jon Marvel's time could be better spent revamping some problems around his own area rather than pointing a finger at others.

Don't allow industrialization

Protect the area east of the municipal golf course from light industrial development. The area is inhabited by deer. This area has a gentle slope that allows the deer to come out of Rock Creek Canyon and feed.

On a regular basis, I have observed them from Blake Street and DeLong. The most recent was Feb. 4 as the sun set over the golf course. I watched five head of mule deer move slowly out of the brush and into the undeveloped clearing next to the golf course to feed.

I feel that those deer deserve more than littered parking areas for 250 cars and small businesses with Dumpsters blowing the daily paperwork into their canyon home.

If you must develop this area, make it multiple family dwellings for elderly retired couples that don't need parking lots but single parking for their golf carts. Open your eyes! Retirement condominiums next to the golf course would be a much better use of this land next to Rock Creek Canyon.

Article told of experiences well

To Steve Crump:

I just wanted you to know that I enjoyed the article you wrote about some of my experiences at Anzio. I thought you told the story well. Also, I was surprised at how many people read and told me about it. Some were ex-servicemen and others were not. I even got a dinner invitation. Keep up the good work.

It was gratifying to hear and know that there are still people today who appreciate what sacrifices were made by the men who served in World War II and who fought to defeat such an extreme ideology.

Group should divert attention

I'm frequently given cause to wonder where the funding for the "Right to Life" movement comes from. I think that it is not from some tax-exempt account, since most of the unwanted children they would dump into this world will immediately become tax-supported and remain so until they are old enough to work, join a gang, sell drugs, hold up a convenience store or whatever. Please note that those who do not work continue to burden the taxpayer in one way or another.

I see on TV that hundreds of abandoned, unwanted Romanian babies are almost without emotion because they are unwanted. They see no future for these children.

Since the Supreme Court orders that the "Right to Life" movement can no longer block entry to abortion clinics, perhaps it should unite with another group and use its picket signs in a different area.

By picketing gun dealers, it could claim that it is keeping guns out of the hands of bona fide children, thereby saving their lives. Remember, guns don't kill children, children do! Here it might get a little more support, especially from the police.

Consider the number of teen-age drivers killed, maimed or turned into vegetables each year. A splinter group could picket the agencies which issue licenses to drive for the same reason. This action might also receive some police support.

Senseless fox killing inhumane

It is not my general practice to write letters of complaint; however, the picture of Jim Lee and those pathetic fox carcasses on the front page of the Outdoors section on Feb. 3 so sickened and incensed me that I felt compelled to express my outrage and disapproval of such inhumane practices.

Surely, calling in harmless, beautiful wildlife that is endangering no one by such means as lures cannot be deemed sporting. And for The Times-News to obviously approve of such behavior is beyond my comprehension.

With human predators such as Jim Lee, soon we will have no wildlife to observe and enjoy. Then where will the likes of Mr. Lee get their kicks? I would hate to think!

Budget hawks take scalpel to Andrus' spending plans

BOISE (AP) — Conservatives took control of the legislative budget committee Tuesday, cutting back on the recommendations of Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus.

Whether general tax money or cash from other sources is at stake, the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee was slicing its scalpel.

As the committee began drawing the state spending blueprint for the fiscal year that begins July 1, the solid conservative bloc scaled back the retiring governor's recommendations for the administration budget office, the state Liquor Dispensary, the insurance fund and the underground storage tank program.

It was the first clear display of the shift in the committee's balance resulting from the departure of moderate Republican Sen. Herb Carlson of Eagle. Carlson was appointed to the Industrial Commission, and conservative Sen. Stan Hawkins of Ucon took his place.

Without Carlson, House Appropriations Chairman Kathleen Gurnsey's moderate Republican colleagues shrank to two — Reps. Hod Pomeroy of Boise and James Lages of Moscow. Now, even allied with the six Democrats, the moderate bloc can muster just nine votes to the conservatives' 11 on the 20-member panel.

"It certainly is a concern," Gurnsey said after the opening budget-setting session. "They're pretty much anti-spending."

Repeatedly on Tuesday, conservatives held firm in checking increased state spending. Their tight-fistedness reflected concern that the vibrant economic activity producing near-record increases in general tax receipts is about to cease, leaving the state facing huge deficits like it did in the early and mid-1980s.

Although economists have projected continued growth for the next several years, many on the committee remain worried that state revenues will be overextended. They view with alarm a drive to accommodate demands on spending from the federal government, the criminal justice system, disgruntled property taxpayers and citizens seeking long-ignored program improvements.

Only once were moderates able to head off conservatives and then only through compromise. Instead of completely rejecting financing for 20 new employees to handle increased participation in the state insurance fund, the committee approved 13.

The fund, which handles worker's compensation coverage for 75 percent of Idaho's covered employees, is financed solely from premiums paid for the coverage. The agency receives no general tax revenue.

But the committee again rejected the proposal to build a $4 million warehouse for the state Liquor

Dispensary, which also involves no general tax money but funnels millions of dollars of liquor receipts into the general tax fund.

Boise businessman Fred Bagley, who currently leases warehouse space to the dispensary for $216,000, has been campaigning for two years against the construction project. Critics of the warehouse plan never fitted its opposition. Their objections ranged from undermining any efforts to privatize the liquor sales operation to disbursing the $4 million for the project to cash-hungry local governments, which get the rest of the excess dispensary profits.

Supporters of the warehouse claimed it would save the dispensary $3.6 million over the next 30 years. But even Gurnsey's pitch for operating the dispensary on sound business principles had no effect on must-opposing conservatives, who usually espouse running government like a business.

"When you're in business, it's more effective and efficient to own the facility you're operating from," she said.

That same majority also refused to open two new outlets in Boise to accommodate the rapid population increase in southwestern Idaho.

"I think they're just flexing their muscles," Gurnsey said.

But she acknowledged the moderate bloc will have to begin lobbying select committee members — depending on the issues — if it wants to put together a coalition that can win some budget battles.

Ricks' students need bishop to sign

REXBURG — Ricks College is making it more difficult for students to remain enrolled if they fail to live up to a moral conduct code set by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Students returning to the junior college in the fall must get their Mormon bishop's signature on an endorsement form. Computer registration will be blocked until the form is completed.

The endorsement previously was required only from new students. The change is part of an effort to reduce enrollment at the church-owned college and free space for students who adhere to the code, which prohibits gambling, pornography, smoking, or drinking alcohol, coffee or tea.

The school has set a target enrollment of 7,500 students, but it has exceeded that number for the past six years. More than 8,200 were enrolled last fall and almost 7,800 currently are enrolled.

Federal study OKs Shelley dam

IDAHO FALLS — A new federal study recommends approval of the controversial Idaho Falls proposal to build a dam and hydroelectric project on one of the last free-flowing stretches of the Snake River.

The final environmental impact statement for the proposed Shelley Hydroelectric Project recommends that the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission license a $30 million dam, seven-megawatt power plant and reservoir west of Shelley. It would be located about a mile upstream from the site of a larger hydro project the city originally proposed.

"We're quite excited about it," City Councilman Mel Erickson said Tuesday. "I have felt we've been given a natural resource, and I feel we should develop it."

But Idaho Falls environmentalist Jerry Jayne said the staff's recommendation was a "bad decision" based on a study that did not adequately consider the option of not proceeding with the project.

Claim blames state for paralyzing fall

MOSCOW — The state of Idaho and the University of Idaho were responsible for a student's three-story fall that left her paralyzed, attorneys for the woman said in a claim.

The claim, received Monday at the Secretary of State's office, is the first step toward filing a lawsuit for damages against the state. It contends the state and university are responsible for damages suffered by Regina Coghlan, her parents and two brothers.

The claim contends each has been damaged "in sums in excess of $500,000," but does not give a specific amount. The claim does not elaborate on how the state and university were responsible for the fall last August.

Coghlan was paralyzed from the waist down when she fell from a sorority's third floor fire escape after being served alcoholic beverages at two fraternities.

Number of Idaho HIV cases drops

BOISE — The number of Idahoans diagnosed with the virus that causes AIDS dropped 16 percent last year, preliminary state figures show.

In 1993, 56 people were diagnosed as HIV positive, compared with 67 in 1992.

But public-health officials cautioned against concluding that AIDS is waning in Idaho. The raw data could prove misleading, they said Monday.

"We need to spend the next couple of weeks figuring it out," John Glaza, AIDS program supervisor for the state Department of Health and Welfare, said. "I think it's critical that we know."

The federal government last year loosened its definition of the fatal illness. That was done to counter criticism that federal officials were ignoring AIDS symptoms peculiar to women and intravenous drug users.

Wife arraigned in husband's stabbing

KELLOGG — Nancy Phiergo, 39, was arraigned in Magistrate Court on charges of second-degree murder and the use of a deadly weapon in the commission of a felony following the stabbing death of her husband.

Magistrate Neil Walter set Phiergo's bail at $250,000 and she remained in custody at Shoshone County Jail on Monday.

Police were called to the Phiergo's Kellogg apartment Saturday evening and upon arrival found Jon Phiergo, 48, unconscious and bleeding. Kellogg police Chief John Crawford said, Phiergo was taken to Shoshone Medical Center, where he was pronounced dead.

During her arraignment Monday, Phiergo stared at the floor and rubbed a shaking hand on her forehead. As Walter read the complaint against her, she spoke only to say "Yes, I do," when asked if she understood the charges against her and "Yes, I did" when asked if she had consulted with an attorney.

Darrington, Stubbs well-traveled legislators

BOISE (AP) — Sixty-six of Idaho's 105 legislators spent more than $113,000 on out-of-state travel last year, according to conventions all over the United States and as far away as Guam.

Some leading lawmakers defend the expense, but others question whether it can be justified.

"It totally grates my soul," House Democratic Floor Leader James Stoicheff of Sandpoint said. "These superb and must-attend conferences would have zero attendance if we all had to pay our own way."

Stoicheff said legislators and other state officials live better on state business than they would on a personal vacation.

"You've got to behave like that money isn't coming out of somebody else's wallet," he said. "You've got to act like it's coming out of your own wallet."

House Appropriations Chairman Kathleen Gurnsey, R-Boise, takes an occasional out-of-state trip, but she agreed that legislative travel may be out of hand.

"I think there's some good that comes out of it, but there's no way you can justify the amount," she said. "People ought to at least make a report about what they learned."

San Diego was the favored destination for lawmakers last year. It attracted 17 members of the House and Senate to the National Conference of State Legislatures' annual meeting, according to state auditor's office records.

A dozen legislators flew to Washington, D.C., for a variety of 1993 conventions, and a Las Vegas gathering of the Council of State Government also attracted 10 Idaho lawmakers.

Other conferences were held in San Francisco; Vancouver, British Columbia; Phoenix, Ariz.; Austin, Texas; Raleigh, N.C.; Jackson, Miss.; and Lexington, Ky.

Senate President Pro Tem Jerry Twigg, R-Blackfoot, was among three legislators who flew 6,000 miles to Guam for a convention of the Western Legislative Conference. Twigg's trip cost taxpayers $1,371.

But he said he spent his own money to continue on to Korea on a trade mission where he made contacts with Korean officials interested in buying Idaho products.

"Was that a cost-effective trip for the state of Idaho? Yes," Twigg said.

Rep. Dorothy Reynolds, R-Caldwell, and Sen. Bruce Sweeney, D-Lewiston, also flew with Twigg to Guam. But Sweeney paid his own airfare, and none of those three qualifies as the Legislature's top traveler in 1993.

That was Sen. Denton Darrington, R-Declo.

The part-time schoolteacher billed the state $6,178 for a half-dozen trips to Washington, D.C., San Diego and Portland. Darrington is an officer of the National Conference of State Legislatures and was busy setting policy for the group's lobbyists in Congress.

He makes no apologies for his travel expenses.

"Do you want the people from New York, Florida and Texas running the show all the time?" he asked. "I... have made a difference in establishing NCSL policy."

Rep. Mark Stubbs, R-Twin Falls, No. 10 on last year's travel expense list, said the conferences are no vacation. He cited his trip to New Orleans for an American Legislative Exchange Council conference.

"It was hot, everybody was sweating and the air conditioning didn't

Panel OK's election-day voter sign up

BOISE (AP) — A House committee approved a bill that would permit election-day registration and, for the first time, registration by mail.

The House State Affairs Committee gave the measure unanimous approval Tuesday and sent it to the full House for a vote.

Although the legislation represents a radical change from past registration practices, there was no opposition. Sponsors said the proposal is an effort to avoid having to meet all requirements of a new federal voting law.

Canyon County Clerk Ned Kerr said the federal law would require a full-time election clerk in every county.

Deputy Attorney General Michael Stoy said if Idaho has to meet all requirements of the federal law, the Department of Health and Welfare would have to send out more than 300,000 notices to its citizens about their rights to register and vote and how to file complaints against the agency.

The new federal law "would require all of our frontline workers to become registrars," Stoy said.

Ben Yursua, chief deputy in the secretary-of-state's office, said the new federal voter registration law is in effect, but if Idaho adopts its own changes, it won't have to meet all requirements of the federal law.

Mail registration would go into effect in 1995, but people could register as late as this year's general election day, Nov. 8.

Rep. Alan Lance, R-Meridian, said he was concerned that people could vote absentee and then register and vote again on election day. State attorneys said that would be voter fraud punishable by up to five years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Group warns of smelter cleanup cost

KELLOGG (AP) — The Silver Valley may be saddled with major, ongoing expenses to maintain a lead-free environment around the Bunker Hill smelter, an eight-member local task force warns.

"As proposed, the cleanup will be much different than what was promised at the beginning of the Consent Decree negotiations," Bunker Hill Superfund Task Force chairman Duane Little wrote.

The letter, posted to Gov. Cecil Andrus on Friday, was signed by all eight members of the task force, a group formed nine years ago to help design the smelter's cleanup.

Court overturns man's sentence for assault

BOISE — A Blaine County man must be sentenced on a charge of assaulting his former girlfriend because he was forced to make damaging statements at his sentencing hearing, the Idaho Supreme Court says.

Randall F. Wilkins was sentenced to five to 10 years in prison for assault with intent to commit a serious felony. His former girlfriend testified that Wilkins put a gun to her neck and threatened to kill her.

The Supreme Court ruled unanimously Tuesday that Wilkins must be sentenced. The district judge ruled Wilkins waived his privilege against compulsory self-incrimination when he pleaded guilty. But the Supreme Court held that the man was forced to testify at sentencing about matters that went beyond the circumstances of the case.

The court also violated Wilkins' psychotherapist-client relationship by forcing testimony from a psychiatrist about conversations he had with Wilkins, the Supreme Court ruled.

Buhl Chamber of Commerce seeks opinions on city plan

BUHL — The city's Chamber of Commerce will hold several information sessions to get residents' opinions about the city's proposed comprehensive plan.

The first meeting will be 7 p.m. tonight at City Hall. Issues in the plan to be discussed are population and growth, economic development and land use.

The public is welcome.

Police suspect abuse caused injuries to 11-month-old boy

TWIN FALLS — An 11-month-old boy was taken into the Department of Health and Welfare's custody Monday night after his mother brought him to the emergency room of the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, an official said.

Sgt. Bob Gauthier of the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Department said he was called to the hospital around 7:30 p.m. Monday. The baby had a broken bone, bruises and contusions. His mother said he had injured himself while playing with some equipment.

Gauthier said the child's injuries indicated the child had been abused.

The boy's siblings remain with his mother, Gauthier said. The case has been turned over to the Twin Falls Police Department.

No arrests have been made. An investigation is continuing, Gauthier said.

Jerome chamber will discuss growth at noon meeting today

JEROME — Growth will be the topic of the Chamber of Commerce meeting today.

School consolidation bill dies

The Times-News and The Associated Press

BOISE — A Senate-passed bill giving school districts another way to handle consolidation was defeated in a House committee.

The House Education Committee voted 11-6 Tuesday to hold the bill indefinitely.

Though the measure would have had statewide impact, witnesses on both sides said it was drawn up because of possible consolidation of the small Murtaugh and Hansen districts in the Magic Valley.

Current law allows adjoining districts to vote on consolidation and later on whether to issue bonds for new facilities.

A bill sponsored by Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, would have allowed both votes at the same time. Both districts would have had to approve consolidation and any bond proposal would have to receive an overall two-thirds supermajority.

Opposing Sen. Denton Darrington, R-Doon, said residents of the smaller Murtaugh district feared if the measure became law it would allow the larger district, Hansen, to pass a bond over Murtaugh's objections.

"My preference is to leave the law like it is," Darrington said. "It's more orderly and it protects the rights of the minority."

Noh said the legislation would "gently encourage" consolidation.

But Pat Funk, Murtaugh resident, said the questions of whether to consolidate and Plant manager Cal Jensen says cuts at Moore Business Forms and Systems in Jerome will be in administrative and front office personnel.

Jerome plant to slash work force

By Mick Normington
Times-News writer

JEROME — Moore Business Forms announced Tuesday it will lay off 57 workers — or one out of every four employees — as its parent company consolidates.

The Moore Business Forms plant now employs 205 workers, making it one of the largest employers in Jerome County.

The company will cut the 57 jobs gradually over the next 11 months, said Plant Manager Cal Jensen. No manufacturing jobs will be cut; instead, the company is cutting administrative and front-office positions such as accountants, secretaries, order processors, print composers, and others.

The Jerome plant's annual payroll will be cut from $5 million a year to $4 million a year, he said.

Jensen said the jobs probably wouldn't be brought back.

But if the company's restructuring plans are successful, Moore's sales will increase, and the company will expand its number of manufacturing jobs, he said.

Moore is reconfiguring its entire corporate structure.

Beginning this month, Moore plants in Iowa City, Iowa, Nacogdoches, Texas, and Monroe, Wis., will become "hub" plants, where most of the company's administrative and front-office employees will be headquartered. Moore will build up those three operations and cut staff at its "satellite" plants, like Jerome.

The jobs cut in Jerome will be moved to Iowa City, and Jensen said the Jerome employees who lose their jobs will be able to apply and compete for those jobs in Iowa City.

The employees at the Jerome plant were told of the cuts and changes in a series of company meetings Monday, Jensen said. Moore hired the Salt Lake City employment recruiting firm of Drake, Bean, Morin Inc. to counsel laid-off workers and help them find other jobs.

Counselors were at the Jerome plant Monday and will work with employees all this week, Jensen said. They are also conducting "career workshops" to help employees make their next career decisions.

The company is also giving severance paychecks to workers who may be laid off or early retirement packages to workers who qualify. But Jensen said almost none of the employees whose jobs will be cut qualify for early retirement.

Moore manufactures paper documents and forms used by various businesses.

The Jerome plant has been in operation since 1973. The plant is the third-largest printing operation in the state.

Changing to the "hub" and "satellite" plants system follows a reorganization in December of the company's sales and marketing divisions.

Moore is headquartered in Lake Forest, Ill., and is a wholly owned subsidiary of Moore Corp. Ltd. of Toronto, Canada.

E911 manager: City pullout too hasty

By Sean L. McCarthy
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The man responsible for setting up a four-county emergency-dispatch center says the City Council acted hastily when it pulled out of the regional E911 project Monday night.

"We are totally legal ... and we're proceeding based on that," E911 Project Manager Al Sandner said Tuesday.

"I think the City Council is doing all of the citizens in Twin Falls a great disservice," Sandner said.

The council voted Monday evening to ask for Twin Falls County to withdraw from the regional E911 project with Gooding, Jerome and Lincoln counties.

That vote was prompted by a letter from the Magic Valley Chiefs of Police Association asking the respective county commissions to abandon the regional concept.

Jerome Police Chief Jim Dahl, one of seven who signed the Jan. 25 letter, said the regional concept, though workable, has dragged on long enough.

"It's been going on for three years. Something needs to be done," Dahl said.

In a letter sent to the police chiefs Monday

Twin Falls 5th-fastest growing city in Idaho

By Mick Normington
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Population in the Magic Valley grew by 4.8 percent — or 6,555 people — in two years.

According to population figures compiled by the Idaho Department of Commerce from the U.S. Census Bureau, Twin Falls was the fifth fastest-growing major city in the state in growth from 1990 to 1992.

But smaller cities such as Hailey, Filer, Gooding, Jerome, Hansen, Paul and Wendell led the Magic Valley in percentage change in population.

With a 9.8 percent increase in population, Blaine County, at 14,883, was the fastest-growing county in the state. By comparison, Ada County's population grew by 8.5 percent.

The county's real growth has been in Hailey, which saw its population rise 15.3 percent to 4,252 people. Hailey Mayor Steve Kearns said the growth is helping the economy but straining the city's infrastructure; the city needs to expand its sewer system.

The growth in Blaine County is split between wealthy out-of-state residents moving into the Ketchum-Sun Valley area and long-time residents moving to the more affordable cities of Hailey and Bellevue, said County Commissioner Leonard Hartig.

While Hartig and other county officials have been preparing for the past five years for the growth, the population growth is causing real estate prices to rapidly rise and for traffic to become more congested, he said.

The population growth in other counties includes:

Dowd goes after county job

By Sean L. McCarthy

TWIN FALLS — One month after she left city office, former City Councilwoman Pam Dowd wants to be a county commissioner.

Dowd has announced she will challenge incumbent James Fraley for the Republican nomination from the 3rd District.

Dowd

Dowd almost chose to move and run for Commissioner Norma Blass' 1st District seat instead.

"I had given a lot of thought to it," Dowd said Tuesday. "I looked at a lot of houses in the past three months."

She cited personal reasons for staying at her Capri Drive residence in the county's eastern district. But she had to return to the political arena, she said.

"I'm still interested in the issues that are affecting the county," Dowd said.

One such issue is the proposed four-county "enhanced" 911 system, which prompted Dowd to present her frustrations with the regional E911 board to the SUN VALLEY — When ski-filmmaker Warren Miller first arrived in Sun Valley in the winter of 1946, he was nearly broke.

Over the next four decades he returned many times to include scenes of Bald Mountain in many of his 500 films.

Miller is being honored this week by the Sun-Valley Historical Society, the Sun-Valley Ski Club and Sun Valley Co. for his lifetime contribution to the world of skiing.

A member of the Ski Hall of Fame, Miller has been making ski films for 45 years, his distinctive voice narrating films that include some of the world's best ski talent and displays of dauntless human spirit.

In the search for freedom that drives Miller, he says, whether it's skiing free powder or helping a handicapped child discover her potential.

City Council delays canyon rim moratorium effort again; hearing set Monday

By Sean L. McCarthy
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The City Council was forced to delay its effort to place a moratorium on canyon rim development Monday evening because it had failed to allow for public comment.

The public will have a chance to comment on the proposed moratorium at 4 p.m. Monday at City Hall. If enacted, the ordinance would prohibit "issuance of permits for zoning or subdivision of any land adjacent to the Snake River or Rock Creek canyons for a period of 120 days."

Consultant Lee Nellis has been authorized by the council to develop a master plan for development near and along the canyon rims within the city's jurisdiction. The council wants to enact the moratorium to wait for the completion of that master plan.

"We have a sensitive area along the canyon rim," said Councilman Jeff Gooding.

The council and the city planning and zoning commission are concerned about developers approaching the city with plans for subdivisions and commercial development before such a plan is developed, Gooding said.

The planning commission already has recommended a six-month moratorium, he said.

City Attorney Fritz Wondolich advised the council Monday that it needed to give public notice that a moratorium is under consideration.

Under state law, a city can adopt interim ordinances while a plan is under consideration. Cities also can adopt moratoriums of up to 120 days if there is "imminent peril to the public health, safety, or welfare."

In either case, however, the council must give at least an "abbreviated notice of hearing," Wondolich said.

Dowd

City Council Monday evening. During her four years on the council, Dowd said the E911 board often kept the council in the dark about how the project was proceeding.

Even now, she says, board members are slow to provide her with information about the board's activities during the past 3½ years.

"I would recommend that the whole issue be revisited with the public," she said.

She also wants to bring her council experience to the county level to a proposed county landfill and to juvenile issues, she said.

"Whatever the issue, voters would know that she would devote extensive time and research to the issues before reaching a decision, she said.

"They knew if they had me they'd have me full-time," she said.

• Camas County — 755 people, up 3.9 percent.

• Cassia County — 20,159 people, up 3.2 percent.

• Elmore County — 20,570 people, down 3 percent.

• Gooding County — 12,030 people, up 3.4 percent.

• Jerome County — 15,684 people, up 3.6 percent.

• Lincoln County — 3,425 people, up 3.5 percent.

• Minidoka County — 20,167 people, up 4.2 percent.

Twin Falls County grew by 4.5 percent to 56,000 people and was one of the fastest-growing counties in the state.

Twin Falls city saw its population swell by 7.6 percent, 2,093 people to 29,684. That made it the state's fifth-largest city, pushing it ahead of Lewiston.

"If you're a person who has lived here all his life, then it's 'big growth,'" said Kent Just, executive vice president of the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce. "But if you're just looking at the numbers it's not that big, and it's manageable."

Still, he said the growth is more than he and the chamber expected.

Based on the growth seen in the Commerce Department's study, the population of Twin Falls may now be around 31,000, Just said.

Dave McAlindin, Twin Falls economic development director, said Twin Falls is experiencing annualized growth of 3.38 percent.

Perhaps more important is that the population of the eight-county area of the Magic Valley rose from 136,831 to 143,103 people — an increase of 4.6 percent.

Just added that growth throughout much of the Magic Valley can be attributed to good years recently for the farmers in the area.

"The money's flowing here," Just said.

The state's population rose by 5.9 percent to 1,066 million. Boise paced the state in growth with 7.8 percent growth to 135,506 people.

day, Marvin Hempleman, E911 chairman and Twin Falls county commissioner, wrote that the E911 board still intends to pursue a regional system.

"We will get all these temporary delays dealt the purpose that we have before us," Hempleman wrote.

Judge Ted Wood of Idaho Falls ruled in January that state law does not provide for inter-county E911 systems.

Legislators in Boise are drafting a bill that would allow the project to proceed, Sandner said. Regardless, Wood was incorrect in ruling that a service area cannot include multiple counties, he said.

"The judge interpreted (the service area) to be smaller than a county, but it doesn't say that," he said.

A June 1992 letter from the State Tax Commission informed Sandner that the E911 board was exempt from the state sales tax as a "political subdivision of Idaho" authorized by state law.

That judgement supports the regional concept, Sandner said. State law defines a 911 service area as "an area other than a whole county in which the residents have voted to establish a consolidated emergency communications system."

Voters in the four counties approved a November 1990 measure that imposed a $1 monthly surcharge to fund such a system in each individual county.

State law explicitly provides for other regional systems; the section on "regional" solid waste districts immediately follows the Emergency Communications Act.

However, the Emergency Communications Act speaks of the need for E911 systems to be "consolidated," "county-wide" or in "any part or parts of the county."

Not once does the act mention the word "regional."

search for freedom," 69-year-old Miller said in Sun Valley this week.

He arrived the first time with a friend in the winter of 1946-47. With little money in his pockets, they set up camp in the Sun Valley parking lot. Miller survived on rabbit, goat and Ketchum-soup, a tomato soup made out of hot water and catsup.

Otto Lang, then head of the Sun Valley Ski School, gave Miller his first job teaching children to ski on Dollar Mountain.

As chance would have it, Miller also taught Charles Percy, chief executive of Bell and Howell, and struck up a friendship. When Percy learned that Miller had been filming California surfing and Idaho ski pictures with an 8mm camera, Percy loaned him a 16 mm camera, which he used to film skiers during his lunch-break.

Miller spliced together some footage, he got ski clubs to sponsor showings along the West Coast, and he was off and running.

Of the more than 500 films Miller has produced over the years, his most outstanding sequence for him is one he did of a March of Dimes girl, Tracey Taylor, he said. As part of a celebrity ski race, she had posed with the celebrities, who then thanked her back in the wheelchair.

Miller approached 11-year-old Taylor whose legs were both in casts because of a crippling bone disease. "It turned out her legs were as big as my thumb, she had no knee joints, and an attitude that was unbelievable," Miller said.

She weighed just 32 pounds, he said. With her mother's permission, Miller let her ride on his back as he skied down a race course, telling her she was a winner as they crossed the finish line.

Miller used her in one of his films. He said he thought she was special and could show that handicapped people can do everything that others can — perhaps just not as well.

He sent her to a Colorado ski school for the handicapped. When he called her about a week later, she wasn't in the house.

The 1988 Olympics were on, and her mother told him her brothers had set up a slalom course in the street to run with their skateboards. And Tracey was out there running the Olympic luge in her wheelchair.

"She's a hell of a person," Miller said as tears came to his eyes. "The world is full of people like that, and I've had the privilege of sharing those people with people like ourselves."

Miller will be at the Sun Valley Opera House at 4:45 p.m. Wednesday to talk with children and sign autographs. Following the autograph session, his latest release, "Black Diamond Rush," will be shown. Admission is $5.

ents to Buhl to visit a brother of Norma's. The family ultimately stayed in Buhl and raised their family in Buhl and Twin Falls. Norma and Chad moved to Boise in 1967. From that time until Chad's death in 1976, they were very active in lodge work. After Chad's death, Norma continued to be an active, valued member of her lodge fraternities. She will be greatly missed by her friends and sisters of her lodge affiliations.

Norma was a member of Boise Basin Court No. 3, Order of the Amaranth Inc. and Past Royal Master. She was a member of Kerni Court No. 55, Ladies Oriental Shrine of North America and past high priestess of that body. She was a member of Adah Chapter No. 8, Order of the Eastern Star and the Ladies Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Norma loved bowling, was secretary-treasurer of the El Korah Bowling League and traveled throughout the Northwest attending Shrine's bowling tournaments.

Survivors include two sons and daughters-in-law, Tom and Kay-Lynn Thompson of Meridian and Bill and Gail Thompson of Boise; six grandchildren, Tammie, April, Melissa, Katie, Jason and Matt Thompson; three brothers, Howard and Dean Hopkins, both of Pocatello; and one sister, Karen-Dee of Jerome. She was preceded in death by her parents, her husband, Chad; and a daughter, Connie Jo.

The funeral will be held at 1:30 p.m. Friday, Feb. 11, 1994, at Sumner's Funeral Home, Boise Chapel, with the Rev. Gary Smith of the Red Rock Christian Church officiating. Services will conclude at the Dry Creek Cemetery in Boise. The Ladies of Kerni Court No. 55, Ladies Oriental Shrine will also perform chapel and graveside service.

The family suggests that memorial contributions may be made to the Shrine's Hospital for Crippled Children.

Frances Taylor Tate

She was born Jan. 4, 1907, in Salt Lake City, the daughter of George and Frances Ellen Young Taylor. On June 28, 1940, she married Joel A. Tate in the Salt Lake City LDS Temple. She graduated from the University of Utah and taught elementary school for several years.

Mrs. Tate was an active member of the LDS Church, where she served as Relief Society president and served a 3 1/2 year mission with her husband in Berlin.

Survivors include her husband, Joel A. Tate; her daughter, Barbara Tate (Barbara) Tate of Blanding, Utah; one daughter, Nancy Ellen (Paul) Dredge of Arlington, Mass.; nine grandchildren; two great-grandchildren; two brothers, Haris-R-Taylor and Perry Taylor; and two sisters, Georgiana Lees and Louisa Bergstrom. She was preceded in death by one brother, Hyde Taylor.

The funeral will be held at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 10, 1994, at Cottonwood Mortuary, 4670 Highland Drive, Salt Lake City. Interment will follow at the Salt Lake City Cemetery. Friends may call from 8 a.m. Monday and from 2:30 p.m. on Thursday at Cottonwood Mortuary.

A memorial service will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 12, 1994, at the Twin Falls LDS 8th Ward Chapel, 667 Harrison St. Local arrangements are under the direction of White Mortuary in Twin Falls.

Eugene A. Miller

KIMBERLY — Eugene A. Miller, 64, of Kimberly, died Monday, Feb. 7, 1994, at the Twin Falls Clinic & Hospital.

He was born Nov. 27, 1929, in Bend, Ore., the son of Daniel Albert and Wilma Adeline Lambing Miller. He grew up and attended schools in Kimberly. On Dec. 17, 1948, he married Lorraine Ivel at the home of Marion Dudley Whittle in Kimberly and the marriage was later solemnized in the Idaho Falls LDS Temple.

Gene and his family lived in Jerome from 1958 to 1962; and then moved to Ketchum where he owned the Phillips 66 Station. He was in Ketchum, Gene was president of the Chamber of Commerce, served on the Wagon Days Committee and was named in "The Outstanding Young Men of America."

He also served in the Sun Valley LDS Branch Presidency and was currently a high priest in the Hansen Ward in 1977, Gene, Lorraine, and son, Skip, moved back to Kimberly where he worked for Clarence Hollifield and then worked for 15 years for the College of Southern Idaho Maintenance Department.

Gene loved fishing, race pigeons, camp and Dutch oven cooking. His fish fries were famous and enjoyed by many family members and friends. His family was his pride and joy.

Survivors include his wife, Lorraine Miller of Kimberly; one daughter, Lynn (Stan) Bird of Kimberly; three sons, Al (Julie) Miller of Twin Falls and Greg (Rose) Miller of Kimberly; eight grandchildren; two predeceased great-grandchildren; and one sister, Mildred (Ray) Babcock of LaPine, Ore. Gene is also survived by many friends who loved him.

He was preceded in death by his parents.

The funeral will be held at 1 p.m. Friday, Feb. 11, 1994, at the Kimberly LDS Stake Center, 385 N. 350 E., with Bishop Kent Allin officiating. Interment will follow at the Twin Falls Cemetery. Friends may call from 4 to 8 p.m. Thursday at White Mortuary in Twin Falls.

Burley boosts garbage rates

By Liz Wright
Times-News writer

BURLEY — City Council members this week raised sanitation rates by 15 percent.

Starting March 1, residents will pay $6.25 each month — up from $5.50 — for a single garbage can full of trash. They will pay $9 up from $7.80 for two 90-gallon garbage cans, city attorney Bill Parsons said.

Council members had considered the increase since an independent auditor last month revealed a deficit of $17,825 in the city's sanitation budget, resulting from the unexpected costs of hauling to buy a new garbage truck last year, City Clerk Bud Bringer said.

The rate increase will generate about $34,000 for the remainder of this year and $60,000 next year, Bringer said.

In other business the council:

• Voted to keep Earl Simpson as the manager of the Burley City Golf Course — but with a new contract.

Simpson's new contract with the city restricts to eight the number of "scrambles" a year — allowing only four on weekends and four on weekdays.

A scramble is a tournament involving teams of golf players. Citizens have complained that too many scrambles have often closed the entire course to individual golfers, Councilman Derlin Taylor said.

Scrambles are now restricted to nine holes, they must conclude by 2 p.m. and must be scheduled a week apart.

The new contract also calls for higher permit fees for private golf carts to $150 from $100. They also lifted a cap on the number of private carts allowed on the course to 15 from 10.

• Authorized city attorney Bill Parsons to file a civil suit against Tony Rocha, who owns a junkyard on Third Street in the east end of Burley.

Parsons said Rocha has ignored the city's efforts to get him to clean up some of the gutted auto bodies, which residents complain about. He said the only alternative is to sue to force the removal of all the cars.

"He neither responds to my letters nor does anything about it — and he gets the letters I might add," Parsons said.

The city will sue Rocha for being a public nuisance. Parsons also advised neighbors of Rocha's that they could sue Rocha for being a private nuisance to each of them personally.

• Agreed to reimburse city employees $1,937 for an increase in their health care insurance deductible.

City Council member Derlin Taylor said the council had approved a higher deductible in November that increased the cost to $500 from $300. The deductible took effect during December.

Taylor said it was not fair that city employees had to pay higher insurance rates through Blue Cross of Idaho at a time when they were spending money buying Christmas presents.

About 15 to 18 employees were affected. They spent anywhere from $2 to $200 to cover the costs of the new deductible, Bringer said.

Fire damage may continue to hamper TV cable channels

By Liz Wright
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Some television cable programs may continue to flicker on and off this week after a fire damaged one of the city's main cable and power lines Saturday.

Workers fixed the remainder of damaged lines Tuesday morning. But they may not have spotted all of the hidden problems, Charlene Pickett, office manager of TCI Cable Vision of Idaho Inc. in Burley said.

About 1,500 television viewers found themselves without weekend cable programming after a fire broke out Saturday evening. Dawn Hatch, the cable company's general manager said.

The fire that started about 7:20 p.m. in a garage at 1301 E. 13th St., burned a woman's car and melted the cable line and power line that sends cable to homes throughout the city, Burley Fire Department Capt. Craig Thompson said.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation, Thompson said.

Hatch said cable television channels went blank from about 7:30 to 11 p.m. Saturday. Programming continued to flicker off and on Sunday.

"A lot of that damage is hidden. I'm not sure whether we'll need to repair it more or not," Hatch said.

The black-out of prime time shows, including sporting events and a Clint Eastwood movie, drew ire from some residents. Others, including Debbie Bingham of Burley, enjoyed a weekend without cable television. She had her son read to her from "Huckleberry Finn" instead.

"I guess that's what's wrong with our kids. When they're in front of the boob tube all the time, they're not used to reading to their parents," Bingham said.

Sustainable development conference set tonight

By William Brock
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The term "sustainable development" has been creeping into the language in recent years and — though not everyone agrees what it means — a conference on the subject will kick off at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the College of Southern Idaho.

"We're hearing a lot about it, and people attach a lot of different meanings to sustainable development," said Dick Gardner, director of the Idaho Rural Development Council, which is co-sponsoring the event.

The conference agenda defines sustainable development as: "Meeting the environmental, economic, and social needs of the current generation without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs."

Thursday's sessions at the Weston Plaza Hotel will focus on Idaho's water, energy and forest resources — as well as ways to manage economic, population and infrastructure growth.

David Harrison, of the University of Washington's Northwest Policy Center, will be the keynote speaker at Wednesday's evening kick-off in CSI's Aspen Building. Idaho Gov. Cecil Andrus will deliver the luncheon address on Thursday.

In Idaho, the issue of sustainable development sometimes comes to a boil when environmental activists clash with loggers and miners, or when water users are asked to cut back so migrating salmon can find their way upriver.

These are things that affect not only us, but our children and grandchildren as well," added another conference co-sponsor, Kent Lavery of the Idaho Conservation League. "Hopefully people will begin to realize that the economy and the environment can coexist."

To achieve that, "we need to get people to define sustainable development in their own terms," Lavery said. "A lot of these issues get polarized between people in traditional industries and 'environmental groups,'" Gardner said. People who work in land-based industries have a deep love for the land — but that love is sometimes clouded by more immediate concerns, such as earning a living, he said.

From another perspective, environmentalists are often seen as "caring more about animals and fish and trees, rather than human needs," Gardner said.

The challenge, Gardner added, "is to bridge that gap and remind us of the Idaho that we all care about."

The registration fee for the conference is $10. For more information, call Ron Shopbell at 733-9554, ext. 268.

Rupert man injured in pickup crash

HEYBURN — A Rupert man was seriously injured Monday when he was thrown from his pickup crashed near 300 South.

Robert Fernandez, 22, of Rupert, is in stable condition at Minidoka Memorial Hospital.

According to an accident report, Fernandez was driving east on 300 South at about 2:30 a.m. when his car ran off the left shoulder of the road, through a fence and into a ditch. The car flipped and spun, ejecting him. Fernandez was not wearing a seat belt, the report said. The report said Fernandez had been drinking, but no test was given to him.

Estimated damage to the 1988 Nissan King Cab was $10,000, the report said.

Girl hurt when car forced off road

BURLEY — A 17-year-old Burley girl was injured Sunday when an unknown driver forced her car off the shoulder of the road.

Kami Ann Whiting was treated for injuries at Cassia Memorial Hospital and released Sunday.

Whiting told police she was driving north on Hiland Avenue at about 12:30 a.m. when a small blue car in an oncoming lane pulled into her lane and headed straight toward her, according to an accident report.

Whiting went off the right side of the road and landed in an empty canal less than a mile south of Burley, the report said. The accident resulted in about $6,000 estimated damage to the 1984 Mercury, the report said.

Police have no further description of the blue car and nothing is known about its occupants, the report said.

Idaho GOP to celebrate Lincoln Day

BURLEY — Idaho Republicans will celebrate Abraham Lincoln's birthday with a series of statewide events between Friday and March 3, according to Randy Smith, chairman of the state Republican Party.

Nineteen counties, including Cassia County, will host Lincoln Day events for the Republican Party.

Cassia County's celebration will be at noon Feb. 16, at the Burley Inn.

Sarajevo: City of Olympics, death and rage

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Ten years after welcoming the world's finest athletes to the 1984 Winter Games, Sarajevo marked the anniversary Tuesday by laying to rest more of its war dead in the shadow of the wrecked Olympic stadium.

The stadium, now a base for French peacekeepers, has been ruined by shelling in a 22-month war that has killed more than 200,000 Muslims, Serbs and Croats. The Bosnian capital is a shell of its former self, ringed by Serbian gunners in the hills who fire on their enemies below.

The shelling Saturday killed 68 market-goers and injured 200 others.

So, it was perhaps no surprise that Sarajevo observed the anniversary of its Winter Games with more funerals and rage at the Serb gunners who "have broken the Olympic record in murder."

In the shadow of Zetra stadium, where the Olympic flame was lit Feb. 8, 1984, 20 victims of the market massacre were laid in graves hacked from the hard-scrabble ground of a former soccer field.

The stadium has been struck by Serb shells, many fired from cannon and mortar emplacements set up on ski slopes and bobbed runs on the Olympic heights surrounding the city.

At a commemorative ceremony in the national theater, a girl's choir called "The Snowflakes" — named for Sarajevo's Olympic emblem — lip-synched to "The Flame is Still Alive," the city's Olympic theme song.

The mood, among the 100 Sarajevoans in attendance was dignified but dignified. The building's facade was battered by shelling, but its baroque gold and velvet interior is intact.

Yeltsin earns $290 a month

MOSCOW (AP) — President Boris Yeltsin's monthly wage — including a bonus — is about $290.

Of course, he does get such perks as cars, houses and a personal staff. Like all government workers, Yeltsin got a raise Jan. 1. He now makes $30,000 rubles a month, his chief of staff, Sergei Filatov told the ITAR-Tass and Interfax news agencies on Tuesday.

At 21 times the minimum government wage with a bonus for what Filatov called a "special regime of work and length of service," the presidential paycheck is the highest of any Russian civil servant.

The pay of all civil servants went up Jan. 1 thanks to an order Yeltsin issued before the December parliamentary elections. It boosted the minimum wage for government workers to 14,620 rubles a month.

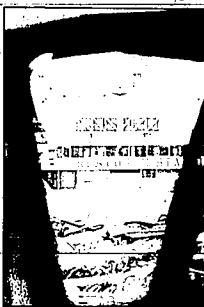

Russia has no official minimum wage, but the government's lowest rate is the benchmark for salaries in the rest of the economy.

Watch out, embassy warns Americans

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The U.S. Embassy said it takes the latest threat by Islamic extremists against foreigners in Egypt "very seriously" and urged Americans to be alert.

The warning was faxed by the embassy to American companies in Cairo on Tuesday. A copy was made available by one firm to the Associated Press.

The notice said the embassy has no information Americans were specifically targeted. Monday, an extremist group renewed its threat against foreigners.

Framed through the window of a wrecked car, Sarajevo's Olympic flame looks down on the wreckage left by shelling.

riding across our former Olympic fields, we are guilty only because we are Bosnians," said Mayor Mutamed Kreseljajovic.

He bitterly invited mayors of other Olympic cities to visit "the city of love and death. ... The biggest Olympic paradox in the world."

It's doubtful dignitaries from such host Winter Olympic cities as Albertville, France (1992); Calgary, Alberta (1988); Lake Placid, N.Y. (1980); and Innsbruck, Austria (1976) could relate to what's happened to Sarajevo.

Dozens of former Yugoslav Olympic team athletes are now fighting on the Bosnian Muslim side, said Izudin Filipovic, head of the Bosnian Olympic Committee. Five are fighting with the separatist Serbs, he said. About 10 Bosnian athletes are competing next week in the 1994 Winter Games in Lillehammer, Norway. "They have to fight three battles — to defend their country, for their athletic performance, and for their lives," Filipovic said.

Alija Izetbegovic, the Bosnian president, has promised his forces would hold fire during the games. The Bosnian Serb leader, Radovan Karadzic, made a similar promise two weeks ago, but his forces kept firing into the city. "During their Olympic truce, the Serbs have broken the Olympic record in murder," said Samir Hadzic, 29, who lost one of his best friends in the market shelling.

Sweetheart salad says, 'Honey, I love you'

Dietary needs different for men, women

Relax, George Bush. You shouldn't have let the media hype get to you. It is probably more vital that your wife and daughters like broccoli than it is that you do.

Although the centuries-old debate about differences between men and women rages on, answers from experts are surfacing about variations in nutritional needs among sexes.

Results are emerging from the tens of thousands of men and women being studied in long-term research projects like the Women's Health Study, the Nurse's Health Study and the Physician's Health Study.

Maureen Evans-Grover
Nutrition

According to Environmental Nutrition, a newsletter about diet, nutrition and health, although both men and women can benefit from eating less fat and more fruits and vegetables, there are differences between men and women that change with each decade of age.

A woman's skeleton reaches peak bone mass by the time she is in her mid-30s. The years prior to this are her last opportunity to build calcium stores that help protect against osteoporosis later in life.

The National Institute of Health suggests that women over 25 set calcium goals at 1,000 milligrams per day. For women under 25 and for those pregnant or breastfeeding, experts recommend as much as 1,500 milligrams a day. Typically, women in this age group get only 400 milligrams a day.

Best calcium sources are nonfat milk, yogurt, low-fat cheese, broccoli, kale and calcium-fortified orange juice.

Another critical nutrient for women prior to their mid-30s is a B vitamin folic acid, which helps protect fetuses against neural tube defects, a common U.S. birth defect. There is also evidence that folic acid may decrease a woman's risk of developing cervical cancer.

All women of child-bearing age should get 400 micrograms of folic acid. The average woman consumes half that much.

Good sources of folic acid include green leafy vegetables, legumes, citrus fruits, wheat germ, nuts, whole grain bread and fortified cereals.

Men through age 45 are more likely than women to develop hypertension. High blood pressure increases the risk for heart disease, the No. 1 killer in men. Maintaining a normal weight and getting adequate amounts of calcium, potassium and magnesium can help keep blood pressure in check.

Foods to include: low-fat dairy products, whole grains, dried beans and fruits, especially bananas and orange juice.

Around age 40, men and women both begin to lose bone mass. In women, bone loss accelerates a year immediately before and for about 10 years after menopause. Recent studies suggest post-menopausal women can reduce bone loss as much as 50 percent by increasing daily calcium intake.

This is also a period when men tend to gain weight. Fat tends to accumulate around the midsection, which increases the risk for heart disease, stroke, high blood pressure and diabetes. Losing weight can significantly reduce blood pressure and lower cholesterol levels.

Adding fiber to the diet is also important during this period of life. The average American male gets about half the daily 20 to 35 grams of fiber recommended by the National Cancer Institute. An adequate fiber intake protects against constipation, hemorrhoids and diverticular disease. Insoluble fiber — found in whole grains, fruits and vegetables — may reduce the risk of colon cancer.

Beans, oat bran, fruit and vegetables contain soluble fiber, which studies suggest helps reduce cholesterol levels.

Maureen Evans-Grover writes on nutritional issues. She has a bachelor's degree in journalism and a minor in nutrition. Her column appears once a month in The Times-News.

A romantic Valentine's Day meal for two at home on a Monday? You might think it impossible, or unbearable, on the first day of the work week. Not so, with a little help from your honey — your kitchen's honey, that is! You can treat your honey to a special meal at home without spending a lot of time in the kitchen.

The result is Sweetheart Salad: a delectable combination of sautéed red pepper, onion and mushrooms, just-warm spinach and chicken slices marinated in a no-fat sweet and sour honey dressing. To minimize the effort on Monday, slice the chicken and whip up the dressing on Sunday night, and marinate overnight in the refrigerator.

Your sweetheart will enjoy this creation of love because of its fabulous taste. But that's not all. Its low-fat, balanced ingredients make for a healthful meal. And that saves plenty of room for a decadent Valentine treat, such as Double Chocolate Honey Ring or Cranberry Pecan Pie. Both honey-sweet desserts can be made on Sunday and served in a flash on Valentine's Day, so you can spend your precious time with your Valentine.

Honey of a Dressing

1/3 cup red wine vinegar
1/3 cup honey
1 teaspoon dried oregano, crushed
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon ground pepper
1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper
Combine vinegar and honey; mix well. Stir in remaining ingredients.
Makes about 1 cup.

Sweetheart Salad

6 ounces boneless, skinless chicken breast, sliced into 2x by 1/2 by 1/4-inch strips
1/2 cup Honey of a Dressing, divided
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1/2 cup each thinly sliced sweet red pepper, onion and mushrooms
4 quarts packed spinach leaves
1/2 cup sliced radishes
Marinate chicken in 1/4 cup dressing at least 2 hours or overnight, refrigerated. Drain and reserve marinade. Heat oil in non-stick pan and stir-fry chicken until juices run clear. Add pepper, onion, mushrooms and reserved marinade; stir fry 1 minute. Add spinach leaves and toss in pan until barely wilted. Add radishes and toss to mix.
Makes 2 servings.

Double Chocolate Honey Ring

This sweetheart salad can be the centerpiece of a tasty Valentine's Day meal.

1 cup honey
3 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 cup unsweetened cocoa powder
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 cup dairy sour cream
1 cup semi-sweet chocolate chips
1/2 cup chopped nuts
White Chocolate Glaze recipe follows (optional)
Additional unsweetened cocoa powder (optional)

Cream butter in large bowl with electric mixer. Gradually add honey, beating until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition.

(Mixture may appear slightly curdled.) Beat in vanilla. Combine flour, 1/2 cup cocoa, baking powder, salt and baking soda in small bowl. Add dry ingredients alternately with sour cream to batter mixture. Fold in chocolate chips and nuts. Pour batter into greased 12-cup fluted tube pan. Bake in preheated 325 degrees oven 50 to 55 minutes or until wooden toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in pan on wire rack 10 minutes. Remove from pan and cool completely on wire rack. Glaze with White Chocolate Glaze and sprinkle with additional cocoa, if desired.

White Chocolate Glaze

Makes 12 servings.
2 ounces white chocolate
2 teaspoons milk

Melt chocolate in top of double boiler. Stir in milk. Drizzle glaze over cake with spoon.

Cherry Pecan Pie

2 cups fresh or frozen cranberries
1 cup orange juice
1/2 cup honey
2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons cold water
1/4 teaspoon orange extract
1 (9-inch) baked pie shell with fluted rim
Pecan Topping (recipe follows)

Combine raspberries, juice and honey in medium saucepan. Cook, covered, over low heat 15 minutes if using fresh cranberries or 20 minutes if using frozen berries. Cool. Puree cranberry mixture in blender; return to saucepan. Combine cornstarch and water in cup. Stir into cranberry mixture. Bring mixture to a boil over high heat and cook until thickened. Stir in orange extract. Cool; then pour into pie shell. Spoon Pecan Topping evenly over cranberry mixture. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven 20 minutes or until top is bubbly. Cool on wire rack. Serve at room temperature or chilled.
Makes 8 servings.

Pecan Topping

1/2 cup honey
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 1/2 cups pecan halves

Combine honey and butter in medium saucepan. Cook and stir over medium heat 2 minutes or until mixture is smooth. Add pecan halves and stir until well coated.

Church brings 'Touch of Class' to fund-raiser

By Joan Bean
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — "A Touch of Class" is the theme for St. Edward's Catholic School's 10th annual prime rib dinner, set for Feb. 12.

Not only will there be fine china and linen on tables decorated with black top hats and red roses, but the food is going to be prepared by top chefs and cooks in the Magic Valley.

This will be the first fund-raising event served by the Sawtooth Chapter of the American Culinary Association, which formed last May. Eric Eitelwold, its newly installed president, said members who have volunteered to participate are looking forward to working together on a community project.

"One of the philosophies we have is charity begins at home," he said, "and we want to help out local groups."

Here's a partial list of people who will be preparing the dinner:

Eitelwold, certified chef de cuisine, and his wife, Susan, certified pastry chef and member of the U.S.A. team that came in fourth at the 1992 Culinary Olympics in West Germany. The couple owns the Metropolis Bakery Cafe.

Darrel Handley, executive chef of the Blue Lakes Country Club.

Bernard Johans, chef of the Depot Grill.

Larry Motzner, certified executive chef, member of the American Academy of Chefs, and culinary educator at the College of Southern Idaho. (Some of his students will help, too.)

'Getting it organized is a lot of work, but it's fun. We're very excited.'

— LuAnn Harney, food service supervisor

Pasquale Lampo, chef of the Plateau Room at Cactus Pines in Jackpot, Nev.

Kirt Martin, chef at the Beacon Club.

LuAnn Harney, pastry apprentice at the Metropolis Bakery Cafe. Harney is also St. Edward's School wellness coordinator and food service supervisor.

Everyone is working together on this, from planning the menu to putting the meal together, Harney reported.

"Getting it organized is a lot of work, but it's fun," she said. "We're very excited."

St. Edward's sixth through eleventh grade alumni will help serve the food.

Frank Harney, LuAnn's husband, is helping organize the work-staff and installing the sound system for background music during the dinner. He said the school has only one fund-raising activity a year to help with operating expenses.

There will be door prizes, plus a silent and a live auction.

All of the items have been donated by area businesses.

"It would be great for a Valentine's Day date, because it's on the Saturday night before," Frank Harney said.

ANNE ARNDT/The Times-News

LuAnn Harney, a junior member of the Sawtooth Chapter of the American Culinary Association, is among the chefs preparing food for St. Edward's School prime rib dinner. She is also the food service supervisor at the school where she enlists the help of students, including Caitlin Harney, left, Lindsey Wagner, Rachel Arkoosh and Megan Delmore.

A social hour with hors d'oeuvres will begin at 6 p.m. at St. Edward's Parish Hall. Dinner will be served at 7 p.m. The cost is $35 per person. Tickets are available at Java Blue, Kurt's Pharmacy, Dick's Pharmacy, Price Hardware and St. Edward's School.

Sexy writing assignment deserves hot reply

DEAR ABBY: I challenge your advice to "On the Spot," the 60-year-old journalism student whose professor asked him to write an essay on the first time he made love.

If he doesn't parlay this opportunity into an "A," he doesn't deserve to write for the local newspaper.

As a 60-year-old retired college professor and aspiring writer, I would advise "On the Spot" to create an essay that would shock, dazzle and leave Miss Overactive Libido in a sweat, clamoring for the sequel. I would also show it to my wife so she, too, could enjoy a laugh.

If questioned regarding the truthfulness of the story, he should reply: "Of course it's true; if you don't believe me, ask my wife. She was there!" (When I wrote it, that is!)

- A CREATIVE WRITER IN L.A.

DEAR CREATIVE WRITER: Meet a Floridian with a cute sense of humor:

Dear Abby
Abigail
VanBuren

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column about a teacher who asked her students to write an essay on the first time they made love. A pupil - a 60-year-old male - told her it was so long ago, he could hardly remember the first time.

Well, my grandson, who is now 15, asked me the same question when he was 9 years old.

My reply: "Rusty, I am so old, I can't even remember the LAST time."

- HAROLD T. JACOBS, BONITA SPRINGS, FLA.

DEAR HAROLD: Mercifully, the memory is the SECOND thing to go.

DEAR ABBY: We have a problem that may seem trivial, but on a daily basis the situation is annoying. At our place of employment we have an employees' break room where many of us eat lunch. It is a short lunch break for most of us, so we like to have some pleasant conversation and enjoy our lunches. Most of us bring our lunch.

We have a woman with whom we work who talks incessantly about food. No matter what we bring, when we heat it in the microwave she says,

"Mmmm, that smells good. What do you have today?" Frequently, she asks for details concerning what is in the food. Abby, this is absolutely every item we bring!

Some of us have even stopped going to the break room or stopped eating lunch. We hate to be rude and not answer her, but she is actually rude to continually ask us about every detail of our food. Please do not use our names or city. Just sign us ... FED UP IN THE BREAK ROOM

DEAR FED UP: For you and your co-workers to stop going to the break room (or eating lunch) for this reason is childish. Why don't you simply tell this woman that you find her incessant talk about food irritating, and to please curb it?

DEAR ABBY: Did you make any New Year's resolutions for 1994?

- NOSY IN FLAGSTAFF, ARIZ.

DEAR NOSY: No. Last year I made only one: I resolved to make no more New Year's resolutions.

The "back to basics" trend seen in American home furnishings and fashion applies to cooking too. Cooking teachers say that more people are requesting basic cooking classes than ever before.

Simple subjects — how to make soup, how to roast meats, how to roll out pastry, to name a few — are more popular than those in gourmet cooking, they say.

With that in mind, here's a quiz to test your basic knowledge of cooking. Find out whether you too need a refresher course. After answering the questions, check the answers and score box.

Keep the beat for chess pie filling

By Candy Sagon
The Washington Post

For the sixth time in two days, I was dumping an entire pie into the garbage.

Six times I had carefully made a flaky crust from scratch, six times my KitchenAid had beaten together the filling, six times I watched through the oven window as the pie refused to set.

My goal had been simple: a lemon chess pie. For all you cake-eating Yankees, a chess pie is a grand old Southern tradition — a sweet, custardy pie with enough sugar, butter and eggs to choke a horse. Imagine pecan pie without the pecans and you get the basic idea.

Southerners have been making chess pies for eons, undoubtedly because they require few ingredients and little time. They're also incredibly sweet, a characteristic Southerners prefer in both their women and their desserts, and which might be used to describe me EXCEPT WHEN I'VE HAD TO DUMP SIX PIES IN THE TRASH.

My problem was the filling. I kept separating. No matter how long I baked it, the bottom inch would set, the top would remain liquid and I would end up pitching the whole thing in the sink.

I was following a recipe someone had given me. Although I had eaten dozens of slices of chess pie when I was living in Texas, I had never actually made it myself.

Why make it if you could go over to a friend's house and enjoy a slice with a cool glass of iced tea and a good hour or so of visiting?

Why make it if the dingy little diner near work served up perfect, buttery-colored wedges once a week or twice, if you could convince the owner that blood-sugar levels had fallen dangerously low? But it had been two years since my last slice, and I had decided to make a pie.

The recipe directions for the filling said to beat the ingredients. So I dumped them all in the electric mixer, cranked it up to beat speed and let 'er rip. After a minute or so, I poured the filling into the crust and put it in the oven.

The second time I did the same but let the mixer beat the filling even longer. "Maybe I'm not combining it well enough," I thought.

The third time I put in a load of wash while the mixer droned on. The fourth and fifth time the mixer hit warp speed, and my children learned some new words.

The sixth time... well, let's just say my husband put away all the sharp instruments.

But I did finally make a chess pie. I did it by hand, stirring the ingredients quickly and being rewarded with a pie that had a sweet, solid, lemony filling. I ate two slices in celebration.

What I had done wrong was to beat the you-know-what out of the filling. The chess pie recipe I finally found in a 40-year-old Texas cookbook by Helen Corbit admonishes, "Do not make this with a mixer."

The Pammy Turner Baking Book by Marion Cunningham says the same, recommending a fork for stirring. Overbeating adds too much air and causes the filling to separate. Southern-cooking expert Nathalie Dupree eventually explained to me.

That's the technical explanation. What I like to think is that chess pie is an old recipe that refuses to be dragged into a new world. It must be made by hand the way it was when that was the only way to do it.

Cooks today shouldn't assume that pressing a button is always the best way to make something. Besides, a fork and bowl are much easier to clean than that darn mixer anyhow.

What's in a name is delicious

The Washington Post

(8 servings from one 9-inch pie)
Why is it called chess pie? There are two popular theories. One is that it was stored in an old piece of Southern furniture called a chess pie, a cupboard with perforated tin panels (to let air circulate while keeping bugs out), and that "chess" is a variation of "chest." The other story is that when asked what kind of pie it was, the cook shrugged and answered, "It's chess pie."

- 4 eggs
1 1/3 cups sugar
Pinch of salt
4 tablespoons buttermilk
2 tablespoons cornmeal
1/2 cup melted butter
Zest of 1 lemon

- 1/2 cup lemon juice
1 partially baked 9-inch pie shell

In a medium bowl, beat the eggs lightly with a fork, then beat in the sugar with a fork or a whisk.

Mix in the salt, buttermilk and cornmeal. Then pour in the melted butter in a steady stream, combining until smooth. Finally, mix in lemon zest and juice just until incorporated.

Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven for 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 325 degrees and bake until custard is set, about 30 minutes.

Why do women gain weight at menopause?

By Carole Sugarman
The Washington Post

Nutritionists are counseling more of them — in fact, lots of them. They are the growing numbers of menopausal women in this aging society who are trying to cope with the cultural demands to stay young, thin and cheerleader-like.

But many find it hard to be rah-rah, given the physical and hormonal changes that occur, the conflicting advice they get and the lack of public discussion.

"Menopause still has that aura of mystery about it," says Edie Hogan, a dietitian who advises menopausal women. "Every woman kind of keeps it to herself."

What may be difficult to hide, however, is weight gain. A study of 500 women conducted in 1992 by Judith Wurtman at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology showed that 70 percent of thin and normal-weight women put on weight during menopause, as did 90 percent of overweight and obese women. Why? There are no good studies that answer that question, said Wurtman, although there are a number of theories.

For one, women who are taking hormone replacements may find they retain more water, a consequence of the progesterone in the tablets, according to C. Wayne Callaway, an endocrinologist and associate clinical professor of medicine at George Washington University. In addition, Callaway says, he has found higher weight gains among women who take higher doses of hormone replacements than may be necessary.

Heather Johnson, an obstetrician/gynecologist with the Women Physicians Association in the District of Columbia, said women on hormone-replacement therapy should put on no more than 5 pounds; if they gain more, it may be from other factors, such as inactivity or slowing metabolism.

Weight gain during menopause may also have psychological roots, said Callaway. Mood changes may lead to overeating, he said. Plus, writes Ann Louise Gittleman in "Supernutrition for Menopause," "weight gain during and after menopause may also result from negative attitudes about aging and perceived loss of sexual attractiveness."

Comfort food, something creamy, rich and sweet, is often a solace.

And there are some physiological theories too. According to Gittleman, women use up extra calories in the process of ovulation. So when they stop ovulating, they may be left with up to 300 calories per day that are no longer being burned.

Dietitian Colleen Pierce said there is evidence weight gain may be the body's attempt to replace the estrogen it's losing. Estrogen is manufactured in fat cells, she said.

But mostly, Pierce has found that weight gain in the menopausal women she counsels results from a lifetime of chronic dieting. "These are the women who have been historically dieting forever, and now all the things they did in the past aren't working at all. They have a sense that they have lost control, and if they're having hot flashes, it's also making them feel out of control," she said.

What's more, a common complaint among women going through menopause is that they lose the ability to concentrate, Pierce added. "And trying to lose weight takes a tremendous amount of energy."

Pierce advises her clients to "not worry about weight." Instead, she suggests, focus on eating healthfully, which often results in weight loss.

Following a low-fat diet with plenty of fruits and vegetables, grains, lean meats and low-fat dairy products has the added benefit of helping women deal with other health issues associated with female aging: increased risk for heart disease, breast cancer and osteoporosis.

"For many women, hitting 50 is the beginning of a very productive time," Pierce said. That's all the more reason that they "be well-nourished — so they can enjoy it."

Hot milk cake warms you up on cold winter days

- 2 cups flour
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder

Add butter to milk and heat to boiling.

Turn off heat.

Beat thoroughly and add to the hot milk.

MATSHULAT'S WHIPPED CREAM FROSTING

- 1 cup milk
4 tablespoons flour
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 teaspoons vanilla

Mix flour and milk in saucepan and cook, stirring constantly, over low heat until thick. Cool.

In a mixing bowl cream the butter and shortening.

Add sugar and mix well. Add the cool paste mixture to the creamed mixture along with the vanilla. Beat until smooth.

Cookin' with Crazy Sam by Crazy Sam Higgins

In the beginning, the Man Upstairs invented tomatoes. That shows right there that He was a serious cook. And He scattered the seeds down in the Lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas where the land is so rich and fertile, that if you stuck your finger in the dirt it would sprout roots.

RO*TEL® figured out long ago how to take a handful of those valley grown tomatoes and green chilies and stir 'em up together to add a double helping of flavor to any meal you ever locked a lip on. They'll flat open your eyes. Clear, your head, jump start your heart. And make you glad you're hungry.

RO*TEL SPAGHETTI SAUCE

|---|---|
| 2 Tbsp. olive oil | 1 can (10oz.) RO*TEL® Diced Tomatoes with Green Chilies |
| 2 med. onions, chopped | 2 Tbsp. dried basil |
| 4 cloves garlic, minced | 2 Tbsp. dried oregano |
| 1 can (28oz.) whole peeled tomatoes, cut-up | 1 Tbsp. sugar |
| 1 can (6oz.) tomato paste | 1/2 cup white wine (Optional) |
- In a 3-quart saucepan, over medium-low heat, cook onion and garlic in hot oil until onion is tender, stirring occasionally. Stir in remaining ingredients.

Convenience, cookies top trends in annual Quaker Oats contest

Convenience and cookies were the top two trends in the Fourth Annual Quaker Oatsmeal Recipe Contest, and both figured prominently in the $10,000 Grand Prize-winning recipe, Peanut Butter 'n Fudge Filled Bars.

The popularity of cookie baking is supported by the fact that nearly half of the total number of contest entries were cookie recipes; totals for the other two categories, desserts and breads, were almost evenly divided.

The trend towards streamlining from scratch baking was observed in all three contest categories with the emphasis on the use of convenience products. Among the most popular convenience products used were: biscuit/baking mixes, sweetened condensed milk, frozen whipped topping, canned pie fillings, packaged pudding mix, quick-rise yeast, hot roll mix, frozen bread dough and prepared ice cream toppings.

For Paula McLargue of Richmond, Ky., a mom, part-time teacher's aid and the Grand Prize winner, convenience plays an important role in her baking and is the primary reason why she bakes bar cookies instead of drop cookies — they're quicker. To further streamline her winning Peanut Butter 'n Fudge Filled Bars, McLargue used the same oatmeal-peanut butter dough to make both the bottom crust and the topping. The rich, peanut-fudge filling calls for just four ingredients — sweetened condensed milk, semisweet chocolate pieces, peanut butter and chopped peanuts.

The idea for her winning cookie came naturally. McLargue's 17-year-old son loves chocolate chip cookies and butterscotch brownies. She loves oatmeal cookies and peanut butter, and all of the ingredients for this blue ribbon cookie are ingredients she regularly keeps on hand. After family members at a potluck dinner pronounced the cookie a winner, she decided to enter it in the Quaker contest.

In addition to the $10,000 Grand Prize, three $2,000 first prizes, three $1,000 second prizes and 25 Quaker heritage cookie pins were awarded in the Quaker contest.

These tasty peanut butter and fudge bars were made with oats.

PEANUT BUTTER 'N FUDGE FILLED BARS

2 cups firmly packed brown sugar
1 cup (2 sticks) butter or margarine, softened
½ cup plus 2 tablespoons peanut butter, divided
2 eggs
2 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt (optional)
2 cups Quaker oats (quick or old fashioned, uncooked)
One 14-ounce can sweetened condensed milk
One 12-ounce package (2 cups) semisweet chocolate pieces
2/3 cup chopped peanuts
Heat oven to 350 degrees. Grease 13 by 9-inch baking pan. In large mixer bowl, beat brown sugar, butter and ½ cup peanut butter until light and fluffy.

Beat in eggs. Add combined flour, baking soda and salt; beat until well mixed. Stir in oats; mix well. Reserve 1 cup of oat mixture; set aside. Spread remaining oat mixture evenly into prepared pan. In small saucepan, combine milk, chocolate pieces and remaining 2 tablespoons peanut butter. Cook over low heat until chocolate is melted, stirring constantly. Remove from heat; stir in peanuts. Spread mixture evenly over crust in pan. Drop remaining oat mixture by teaspoonfuls evenly over chocolate mixture. Bake 25 to 30 minutes or until light golden brown. Cool completely on wire rack. Cut into bars.

Makes 32 bars.

Valentine's Day confections can warm someone's heart

Surprise that special someone with a true gift from the heart — homemade Valentine Stained Glass Hearts. To get this stained glass look, The Sugar Association used a simple sugar cookie dough shaped into a heart with another heart cut out of the middle and filled with crushed red candy.

VALENTINE STAINED GLASS HEARTS

½ cup butter or margarine, softened
½ cup granulated sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 1/3 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
Red hard candies, crushed (about 1/3 cup)
Frosting (optional)
Dough needs to chill from 3 hours to overnight.

Cream butter and sugar in a mixing bowl. Beat in eggs and vanilla. Sift flour and baking powder together. Gradually stir in flour mixture until dough is stiff. Cover and chill.

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Roll out dough to ¼ inch thickness on a lightly floured surface. To prevent cookies from becoming tough and brittle, try not to incorporate a lot of flour. Cut out cookies using a large heart-shaped cookie cutter or use a sharp knife and cut around a heart pattern. Transfer cookies to a foil-lined baking sheet. Using a small heart-shaped cookie cutter, cut out and remove heart design from center of each cookie. Fill the cut out sections with crushed candy. Bake 7-9 minutes or until cookies are lightly browned and the candy has melted.

Do not overcook. When done, slide foil off baking sheet. Carefully loosen cookies from foil when cooled. If desired, pipe decorative borders with frosting around edges. Makes about 2½ dozen medium cookies.

Try this hearty chicken dish on a chilly winter day

CHICKEN ALLA CACCIATORA

1 3/4- to 4-pound chicken
2 tablespoons olive oil
½ cup white wine
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 med. red onion, peeled, sliced
1 red pepper, seeded and sliced
8-ounces fresh mushrooms, sliced
1 28-ounce can whole tomatoes in thick tomato puree
½ cup chopped fresh parsley
2 tablespoons chopped fresh basil or 2 teaspoons dried basil

thick tomato puree
½ cup chopped fresh parsley
2 tablespoons chopped fresh basil or 2 teaspoons dried basil

Cut chicken so the legs, thighs and wings are in separate pieces. Separate the back from the carcass of the chicken. Then, with a sharp knife, cut through the ribs to separate the ribs and wishbone from the breast. Cut the breast into two pieces. To cut down on fat, remove the skin from the chicken. In a large, heavy pot, heat olive oil over medium heat. Turn heat to medium low and add chicken. Sprinkle chicken with salt and pepper. Add the wine, turn up the heat to medium high, and cook until the wine bubbles.

Add garlic, onions, peppers and tomatoes with juice. Lower heat and simmer about 45 minutes. Add mushrooms, parsley and basil, and cook another 15 minutes.

Did you get through the whole list without looking at the answers? Good. Here's how to score.

Award yourself two points for every correct answer. Add an additional two points for the extra credit question. No partial credit!

The highest score was 50 points.

If you'd scored between 40 and 50, you'd probably be welcome in any home kitchen. But take a night off and treat yourself to a dinner at a four-star restaurant. (Maybe give the chef a little advice.)

Did you get between 35 and 40 points? You can be proud of what you know, and you don't have to feel guilty about asking for a new food processor or any piece of kitchen equipment. You deserve it.

If you only rated 25 to 30? Not to worry. Sign up for a cooking class in your area and spend a few more minutes perusing the food section. Your score was what? 20 to 25? You need a copy of "The New Basics" cookbook. Better get "The Joy of Cooking" too. If you already have them, try reading them once in a while, and don't be afraid to try cooking. You may find you like it.

If you scored below 20, please let someone else do the cooking. (You wouldn't want to embarrass yourself.)

ANSWERS

Be fair. Don't read these answers until you've tried all the questions. Then check your score.

1. E.
2 and 3. 1 with D; 2 with A; 3 with

E; 4 with B; 5 with C

4. False. But you can substitute a mixture of ¼ teaspoon baking soda and ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar for each teaspoon of baking powder called for in recipes.

5. D.
6. A boil, which is reached at 212 degrees. The water temperature of a simmer is between 135 and 165 degrees. A rolling boil is useful in reducing liquids or cooking pasta. A simmer is used to poach delicate foods and tenderize tough ones. Do not allow a simmer to become a boil.

7. That people use a fork and spoon to eat, although most Thai restaurants also provide chopsticks. Before the reign of King Rama I in the 1780s when Thailand was opened to the West, Thai people used only long-handled flat spoons to eat. As royalty and nobles adopted the fork, the people followed suit. Chopsticks were never native to the country but many President. Chinese use them.

8. A. Fats and sweets, eat sparingly; B. Dairy, 2 to 3 servings; C. Meats, 2 to 3; D. Fruits, 2 to 4; E. Vegetables, 3 to 5; F. Grains, 6 to 11.

9. Dried beans are a vegetable, with meat. Even though they are a vegetable, rich in carbohydrates and fiber, they also have a large amount of protein, like the other foods in the meat category, and often can be substituted for those foods.

10. — A. The Blue Shamrock
B. Monk's Cafe
C. The Brick
D. Peacock Stop

11. False. Both have about 13 grams of fat. However, the olive oil has much less saturated fat, about 2 grams versus 5 grams for lard.

12. False. Usually "the smaller the better" is true, but there are exceptions. To add to the confusion, peppers such as the jalapeno have recently been bred to be larger and milder. For consistency of heat, try the serrano chili pepper.

13. False. Honey should not be fed to infants under the age of 1. Honey contains small amounts of botulinus spores that can make babies ill. Older children and adults can tolerate these small amounts.

14. False. For the greatest volume, beat egg whites when they are at room temperature. Be sure no traces of yolk remain and always use a metal or glass bowl rinsed clean of all fat and grease.

15. False. Recent studies have shown that the cooking method and temperature influence the percentage of alcohol that cooks away. More than half the alcohol can remain in dishes such as chicken with wine or peas poached in wine. However, if the recipe is boiled or flamed, much of the alcohol cooks away.

16. C and D are fictional.
Aunt Jemima, a smiling symbol of Southern hospitality, was a purely imagined trademark of the late 1800s, dreamed up after a flour mill owner watched a minstrel show. She was first "brought to life" during the Chicago World's Fair in 1893, her part played by the maid of a local judge.

Although she has sold more than 55 million cookbooks in her 70 years, Betty Crocker is a made-up name and character. Her genesis came about after Gold Medal flour had a mail-in contest promotion. So many cooks sent in questions with their entries that Betty Crocker was "hired" to answer them.

As for the others:
It's said that Duncan Hines never baked a cake in his life, at least professionally. Rather, he was a restaurant reviewer who came to prominence in the 1930s.

Hector Boiardi, a native northern Italian, owned a restaurant in Cleveland in the 1930s where customers came and went through the kitchen. It became customary for Boiardi to send them home with extra sauce as they left and, at some point, he abandoned the restaurant and the traditional spelling of his name in favor of a commercial company.

Fannie Farmer was the proprietor of the Boston Cooking School in the late 1800s and early 1900s.

Uncle Ben was a Texas rice farmer with a reputation for the quality of his product. When a British scientist was looking for a way to market converted rice in the United States, Uncle Ben's name came up. Uncle Ben died by the time the rice was ready to be packaged, but the name was used anyway. A Chicago restaurant maître d' named Frank Brown posed for the still-familiar picture.

Col. Harland Sanders, owner of a service station in Kentucky, started serving homemade food to hungry customers, including a very popular fried chicken that he spent nine years perfecting. A new interstate highway caused the demise of the station, so he franchised Kentucky Fried Chicken. In 1976, he was named the second-most recognizable celebrity in the world.

17. C.
18. Sugar and water.

19. True. Flour can vary depending on the variety of wheat, the time of year it is harvested and the atmospheric conditions in which it is stored and used. This explains why pie crusts and cookies sometimes bake differently.

20. C.

21. A calorie is a unit of energy-producing value in foods, according to "The International Dictionary of Food & Nutrition." The calorie commonly referred to in food literature is technically a kilocalorie (1,000 calories). The caloric value of a food does not refer to its nutrient content but to the heat released in the metabolism of the food in the body.

22. Although canned goods can be kept for many years in a cool dark place with no safety problems, they should be consumed within 1 year for best taste and texture, say most manufacturers.

23. B.

24. Nitrates are used to retard the growth of bacteria and microorganisms, though they also help preserve color.

St. Patrick's Run set for March 12 at park

HAGERMAN — Entries are being taken for the fourth annual St. Patrick's Fun Run/Walk slated for 10 a.m. Saturday, March 12 at Malad Gorge State Park.

Race options include 3.5 or 5.5-mile runs or a 3.5-mile walk. Race day registration begins at 8:30 a.m. The entry fee is $15 and includes a T-shirt and postcard party.

To guarantee having a shirt ready on race day, entrants must preregister by March 8. Entry forms are available by contacting Malad Gorge State Park at 837-4505.

Awards will be given to the top three male and female finishers in each event and to the top three finishers in each age group.

The postcard picnic is held at Hagerman City Park and features smoked trout, pasta and potato salad, fruit, frozen yogurt, fruit juice, wine and beer. A drawing for door prizes will be held after the awards ceremony.

Tarkanian wins court battle; UNLV must pay his legal fees

LAS VEGAS — Former UNLV basketball coach Jerry Tarkanian won his latest battle with the school when a judge ruled the university system must pay $250,000 of his legal fees.

The ruling by District Judge Myron Leavitt comes despite Tarkanian having made his request five days late.

"There can be only one conclusion," Leavitt wrote in his decision. "The refusal to pay coach Tarkanian's legal expenses was willful and unreasonable and that the defenses asserted by defendants to avoid payment ... were done to harass him."

Tarkanian was in San Diego and could not be reached for comment.

"We are very pleased, and we are very pleased for our attorneys, because they have worked hard on our case," Tarkanian's wife, Lois, said Monday. "It lays some groundwork for understanding what has been done to us."

Tarkanian, who resigned in June 1991, filed a separate lawsuit in September claiming that UNLV administrators and university regents conspired with NCAA investigators to ruin his college basketball career.

Leavitt listened in testimony during a three-day trial that ended Friday before ruling Monday on the former coach's request for payment of legal costs.

The defense of Burley's Tom Bowcutt is too little, too late as Rob Welch of Twin Falls scores in the second half.

Bruins bash Bobcats

Twin Falls evens score with 67-48 win

By Larry Hovey
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It was Brady Trenkle in the first half and Rob Welch in the second Tuesday night when the Twin Falls Bruins evened up the season with Burley 67-48.

Trenkle hit 17 of his 18 points in the first half as the Bruins mounted a 32-19 lead. Then Welch connected on four straight 3-pointers in the third quarter to blow the Bruins out of reach.

The Bruins remain at home Friday night, hosting the Borah Lions, and then travel to Jerome for the season finale Saturday. Burley has a Thursday date with Mountain Home.

Trenkle scored 10 points and John Krahn had a backward three-point play as Twin Falls broke a 6-6 tie to run into a 19-6 first-quarter lead. It was pretty well over after that.

"If you don't score you can't win and we didn't come close to running an offense all night," said Burley coach Bill Cowell.

More prep games — D2

Bruin coach Ben Allen said Burley's psychology on Trenkle might have backfired.

"Coach Cowell has never paid a lot of attention to Brady out front, just kind of letting him do whatever he wanted and I think that bothered Brady," said Allen. "But tonight, he just stood up and took the shot and it was going in. Trenkle responded well early and Welch picked it up in the third quarter."

"We did a little better job of getting the ball inside tonight — not a lot but when we did we made them pay a little," Allen continued.

Despite the early lead, Allen said he didn't relax until well into the second quarter.

"I thought this would be a close game and if Robbie hadn't hit those four straight 3's in the third quarter, it probably would have been," he said.

Valley coach would prefer slower game

By Mike Maller

HAZELTON — Excuse Valley Coach Rod Malone if he'd rather see his team score 50 points as 60 in the Valley versus Lewiston West Side in the Class A-3 state girls basketball tournament Thursday.

Malone would prefer to see both teams taking their time, walking the ball up court and setting up on offense when they meet in the first round at 9:15 p.m. Thursday at Lewiston High School.

Class A-4 tourney previews — D2

"If it's a high-scoring game, it's going to be a pretty long night for us," Malone said. "As long as we keep our heads, West Side likes to get up and down the court pretty fast. We don't want to get into a running game with them. We really need to hustle back on defense."

The Valley coach saw West Side defeat Challis in a playoff game Saturday and noted that they did a good job with full-court pressure.

The press has caused the 23-1 Vikings some problems this season.

"It has at times, but I hope we've got all of our kinks worked out of it," Malone said. "We have several pretty good ballhandlers."

Highly touted, Valley matches up well with the Pirates, 15-7. But should the Vikings advance in the tournament, they will likely be looking up to their opponents.

"One of the keys throughout this tournament is going to be rebounding," Malone said. "We're going to have to get good position. That was the key to our last couple wins."

Offensively, West Side relies on the scoring of forwards Jamie Hatch, a 5-8 junior, and 5-9 senior Melissa Fuller.

Valley hopes to have balanced scoring. Seniors Mandy Schwartz and Holly Henry have paced the Vikings with about 11 points per game each.

More Olympics — D3

LILLEHAMMER, Norway — Before Alberto and Katarina arrive, long after Nancy and Bonnie go home, the enduring legacy of the Lillehammer Olympics is its breathtaking, groundbreaking venues.

From the architectural majesty of the speedskating hall at Hamar, to the view of the Gudbrandsdalen valley from atop the ski jump at Olympic Park, to the pioneering hockey rink at Gjøvik, the stars of the 17th Winter Games will perform against a spectacular backdrop.

The unique venues have already proven popular tourist attractions among the natives, said Lillehammer Olympic Organizing Committee head Gerhard Heiberg. The rest of the world — about 100,000 people each day, along with the athletes — will start checking the sites out this weekend.

The good-looking Games did not come cheaply to this tiny Scandinavian town; organizers spent $1 billion preparing for the 16-day Olympiad, which begins Saturday.

Most of the attention has focused on the venues at Hamar and Gjøvik, where cutting-edge technology created two of the most memorable Winter Games sites ever.

The Hamar Olympic Hall, which relocated its main entrance to avoid conflict with a surrounding bird sanctuary, was created with glue-laminated timber — a new process that created the world's longest wooden beams, more than 300 feet each, to support the roof.

Each beam is created with the wood from more than 1,000 trees, reflecting "traditional Norwegian craftsmanship and architectural design," said Heiberg.

Viewed from a distance, the hall resembles an upside-down Viking ship — hence its name among the locals, Vikingskipet. Viewed from inside, skaters say, it is a place where world records could fall.

"It is the fastest ice in the world," U.S. speedskater Dan Jansen said flatly. In December, the snake-bitten skater set a snail-eclosed world record there for the 500 meters.

Just as impressive is the 5,300-seat Gjøvik Olympic Cavern Hall, which was more suitable for bats than hockey sticks.

Buhl may not be in dark about opponent's tactics

By Mike Maller

BUHL — Even if Buhl will go into its first game at the Class A-2 girls' state basketball team as blind about its opponent as most teams do, the Indians should have one edge over most.

According to the scouting report given to Coach Joe Shepard, Bonners Ferry, the squad Buhl faces at 9:15 p.m. Thursday, plays a lot like District 4 rival Burley.

The word on the 16-7 Badgers is they like to trap full-court and fall back into a zone defense. They have a quick guard in senior Kelly Meeker who shoots 3-pointers well. They like to push the ball up the floor.

"They sound similar to Burley," Shepard said.

The 17-4 Indians won three of four games from Burley this season, including a 65-58 decision that ended the district tournament.

Buhl's success at district came from excellent shooting and the ability to get the ball where it was needed, as demonstrated by Amber Satterwhite's 10 assists in the finals.

Bulldogs won't take back seat to Malad

By Mike Maller
Times-News sports editor

KIMBERLY — If being the only team at the Class A-3 state girls' basketball tournament without a record better than .500 means Kimberly will be overlooked by someone, the Bulldogs will take it.

A combination of a young team, a tough nonconference schedule and a balanced league left Kimberly 12-12. But the Bulldogs won't take the back door into the gym to play 13-8 Malad at 4:30 p.m. Thursday.

"We felt all year long we were pretty talented," said Kimberly Coach John Miller. "Our record isn't indicative of how we've been playing lately. I think our kids feel right now that they can play with anybody there."

Malad is a deliberate team that looks to senior post player Annette Mustos to carry the scoring load.

"We'll be trying to do some different pressing things to keep them away from the basket longer," Miller said. "If they're going to beat us, hopefully we're going to make them beat us from the perimeter."

The game should feature contrasting styles. Kimberly will run whenever possible. The Dragons, who won state last year, will walk.

While Malad will look mainly to one player for scoring, the Bulldogs have Laura McKinlay, Tracy Arrossa, Erin McEwen and Chanda Stark all averaging between eight and 11 points per game. And point guard Gina Mickelson led the team in scoring during a district tournament game.

"We're going to play up tempo offensively," Miller said. "Defensively, I want to keep the ball out of Mustos' hands or make her work to get the ball."

Outside of Malad, Miller expects to see mostly fast-paced basketball at Lewiston High School during the tournament.

"The whole thing is probably going to be up tempo," he said. "There's going to be a lot of scoring. I think that's to our advantage."

Murdock leads Bucks over Rockets

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Eric Murdock scored 28 points and led Milwaukee players in double figures Tuesday night as the Bucks stunned Houston 106-98.

The Bucks, blown out 115-94 on Saturday by Seattle, the team with the best record in the NBA, held their own with the Rockets, who have the second-best record, now at 33-12.

Pro basketball

Milwaukee, with a record of just 14-33, played its best game of the season in winning for just the sixth time in 23 home games. The Bucks led 73-68 after three quarters and used a 12-2 run, including five points from Ken Norman, to stretch their lead to 91-79 with 4:58 remaining.

Kenny Smith's 3-pointer with 1:01 left pulled Houston to 101-95, but the Rockets, who were led by Olajuwon's 27 points, couldn't recover. Murdock hit four free throws to ice the victory.

Spurs 110, Bulls 90

SAN ANTONIO — David Robinson had 31 points, 14 rebounds and 10 assists — his NBA-best fourth triple-double of the season — as San Antonio defeated Washington for its eighth straight victory.

Michael Adams scored 25 points and Calbert Cheaney 18 for the Bulls, who were victimized by a 19-0 second-half run that sent them to their 18th loss in 23 road games this season. Vinny Del Negro scored 21 points and Willie Anderson 16 for the Spurs, who matched their longest winning streak of the season.

San Antonio led 69-67 late in third quarter before breaking the game open with an 11-0 run to end the period. The streak included two tip-ins by Dennis Rodman and a 3-pointer by Del Negro.

The Spurs stretched the run to 19 points by scoring the first eight points of the fourth quarter for an 88-67 lead with 9:57 to play.

Cavaliers 112, Nets 104

RICHFIELD, Ohio — Mark Price scored 26 points for Cleveland and stifled a late New Jersey threat by making four foul shots in the closing seconds.

The win, the Cavs' 11th in 15 games, moved them two games over .500 for the first time this season.

Cleveland played without flu-stricken Brad Daugherty for the second straight game, but John Williams filled in at center with 18 points.

Kenny Anderson led the Nets with 22 points, while Derrick Coleman had 19 points and 15 rebounds.

Cleveland built a 15-point lead in the third quarter and still led by 11 with six minutes left in the game before Johnny Newman scored five points during a 7-0 run that made it 102-98 with 3:22 left. The Nets got within four again on Newman's short jumper with 1:24 to go, but Price's free throws down the stretch kept New Jersey from getting any closer.

Jazz 96, Nuggets 95

DENVER — Jeff Malone's 18-footer from the corner with 12 seconds left squelched a wild Denver rally and gave Utah a 96-95 victory Tuesday night.

The Jazz led 94-86 in the final minute, but Rodney Rogers hit three 3-pointers in a space of 8.8 seconds, giving the Nuggets a 95-94 lead with 20 seconds left before Malone's winning jumper. Denver stole two inbound passes by Karl Malone, leading to the second and third of Rogers' 3-pointers.

After Malone's basket, Rogers tried another shot, but it was blocked by Tyrone Corbin. LaPhonso Ellis got the rebound for Denver, but lost control and time ran out after a wild scramble under the basket.

Karl Malone scored 24 points and John Stockton had 22 points and 12 assists for the Jazz. Rogers, who made all four of his 3-point attempts, led the Nuggets with 23 points, while Ellis scored 18 points and Robert Pack 17.

Mavericks 108, Timberwolves 105 (OT)

DALLAS — Doug Smith scored five of his 20 points in overtime Tuesday night, including a key tip-in with 31 seconds left, and the Dallas Mavericks defeated Minnesota 108-105, their fourth victory over the Timberwolves this season.

The Mavericks are now 4-1 against Minnesota, including 3-0 at Target Center in Minneapolis, but they are 1-41 against the rest of the NBA.

Smith's follow shot gave Dallas a 103-99 lead after his three-point play with 2:10 remaining in overtime put the Mavericks ahead 99-94. Jamal Mashburn hit three free throws in the game to overtime. The Mavericks added two foul shots with 3.6 seconds left to seal the victory and hand the Timberwolves their sixth consecutive defeat.

Jackson and Mashburn scored 24 points each to lead the Mavericks. Doug West had 24 points and Michael Williams 20 for the Timberwolves.

Blue Devils beat Jackets, 66-63

ATLANTA (AP) — Marty Clark and Eric Meek came off the bench to give Duke a spark and the second-ranked Blue Devils rallied from a 12-point deficit to down Georgia Tech 66-63 Tuesday night.

The Blue Devils (17-2, 8-2 Atlantic Coast Conference) used a 26-6 run over an 8-minute span to take a 46-38 lead with 14:42 left. Meek and Grant Hill each scored eight points and Clark seven during the burst.

Two 3-point baskets by Fred Vinson helped the Jackets (12-9, 3-7) take a 58-57 lead with 5:31 to play. But Chris Collins then hit a 3-pointer from the corner and a fastbreak layup to give the Blue Devils a 62-58 lead with 4:16 left, as the Jackets were never able to overcome.

Clark finished with a season-high 17 points and Meek had a season-high 10 points and also had 10 rebounds. Hill added 13 points and Cherokee Parks 12.

Travis Best and James Forrest each scored 18 for the Jackets, who lost for the fourth time in five games.

College basketball

After Collins built the 62-58 lead, Tech chopped away on a free throw by Best and a rebound basket by Forrest, before Clark and Parks countered with baskets for Duke for a 66-61 lead.

Best closed the scoring on two free throws with 1:11 to play. Best and Drew Barry each missed 3-pointers in the final 11 seconds, sandwiched around a missed free throw by Collins with eight seconds remaining.

West Virginia 78, No. 8 Temple 71, OT

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. — Pervious Greene scored six of his 27 points in overtime and West Virginia topped No. 8 Temple 78-71 Tuesday night.

West Virginia (14-5, 7-3 Atlantic 10) overcame a 13-point deficit in the final eight minutes. Temple (16-3, 9-2) had won 10 in a row since losing to West Virginia 49-47 on Jan. 6 in Philadelphia.

Temple led most of the game, stretching its lead to 58-45 with 7:42 remaining. West Virginia went on an 18-2 run for a 63-60 lead with 22 seconds remaining.

Temple's Rick Brunson tied it with a 3-pointer from the top of the key with 13 seconds left, sending the game to overtime. The Mountaineers took the lead for good in the extra period at 73-71 with 1:13 left on Zain Shaw's 3-pointer from the right side.

After leading 35-30 at the half, Temple used a 9-2 run midway through the second half to extend its lead to 13. But the Mountaineers were able to hold Temple scoreless for nearly seven minutes and took their first lead 60-58 when Greene connected in from 15 feet out. During the West Virginia run, Greene scored nine points.

Aaron McKie was sharp in first half for Temple, scoring 22 points on 7-for-12 shooting, including including 4-of-6 from the 3-point line. The Mountaineers played him more closely in the second half, and he finished with 28.

Brunson added 22 points for the Owls.

No. 11 Michigan dunks No. 12 Indiana

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — It was a sweet return Tuesday night for Jimmy King and Ray Jackson. Chris Webber loved it, too.

With King and Jackson back in the Michigan lineup from one-game suspensions and Webber rooting from the end of the bench, the No. 11 Wolverines beat No. 12 Indiana 91-67 and took sole possession of first place in their Big Ten showdown with the Hoosiers.

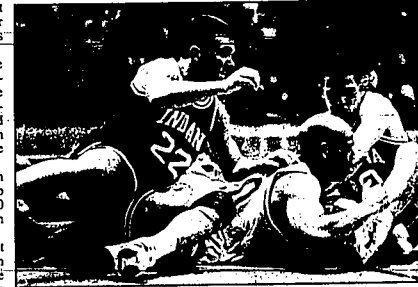

King scored 17 points and Jackson 13 for the Wolverines (16-4, 8-2), who never trailed. Jalen Rose scored 20 points for Michigan and Juan Howard had 19 points.

"From our perspective, it's about time we beat Indiana," Michigan coach Steve Fisher said. "We've played them close before, but close doesn't matter. This was a big win."

"We haven't won the Big Ten title in eight years, and we'd like to do it. That's a goal we set each season."

It was Bob Knight's 70th game as coach of the Hoosiers (14-5, 7-3). As fate would have it, the only one of the previous century games he lost was No. 500, a 72-60 loss to Michigan on Jan. 24, 1988.

"I thought Michigan played really well," Knight said. "We just didn't play as well as we could have. Obviously, that's why it wasn't as good as a game as you would have thought Michigan's defense held Indiana's

Alan Henderson hit 18 points and Damon Bailey to 17.

But it was the offense that won this game. The Wolverines shot 63 percent in the first half and finished with 54 percent. It was the first time this season the Hoosiers have allowed an opponent to shoot 50 percent or better.

The Hoosiers, who came in riding a four-game streak of shooting 50 percent or better, shot 40 percent.

The other key was keeping Indiana away from the free throw line. The Hoosiers frequently make more free throws than their opponents take. But in this game the Hoosiers were 14 of 21 from the line, the Wolverines 16 of 21.

Women's figure-skating finals likely to be most-watched event

LILLEHAMMER, Norway (AP) — Yes, CBS would like Tonya Harding to compete. Soap opera plus detective show plus "High Noon" on ice add up to record ratings.

But even if Nancy Kerrigan skates without her rival, the network's coverage of the women's figure-skating finals Feb. 25 is a good bet to be the most-watched Olympic telecast ever in the United States.

"A lot of people would be interested in seeing both of them skate, the drama that goes with it," said Mark Harrington, CBS Sports' vice president for the Olympics. "But if she doesn't come, it will still be a great night of skating."

Among the CBS legions in Lillehammer — more than 700 strong — opinions are divided as to Harding's chances of competing.

Harrington said he's stopped guessing: "The story's taken so many twists and turns."

The women's figure-skating final traditionally is the most watched Olympic event, summer or winter. The record Olympic Nielsen rating, according to CBS Sports senior vice president Richard Gentile, is for the 1988 Games in Calgary, when Katarina Witt won her second gold medal.

CBS posted a 27 rating in 1992 with Kristi Yamaguchi's gold in Albertville, and 30 this year seems easily within reach.

But Harrington and his colleagues don't want to make projections, fearing they might create unrealistic expectations about Super Bowl-level ratings in the 40s.

"We're going to have a big story no matter what," said Verne Lundquist, who will handle the skating play-by-play. "But what happens if Nancy falls in her short program (Feb. 23), and suddenly she's struggling just for a place in the top five? You can feel America go, 'Oh my God.'"

"That's the fear we all have," CBS hopes the Harding-Kerrigan drama will fuel interest in other events, rather than distract from them.

"There will be more emphasis and talk about the Olympics in general," Harrington said. "There are going to be some of the great stories that are going to burst on people suddenly when the Games start."

He cited the Olympic comeback of 1988 gold medalist Brian Boitano and the contrasting quest for gold by U.S. speedskating stars Bonnie Blair, a three-time winner already, and Dan Jansen, stymied in three past Olympics.

But there is no question what event will take the spotlight, and not everyone thinks the public fascination is healthy.

Lundquist said his CBS colleague and analyst, 1984 gold medalist Scott Hamilton, is fed up with the furor.

"He's very sorry that something like this has intruded in his sport, and I'm sympathetic to how he feels," Lundquist said Tuesday. "But as a journalist, it's a great story."

The saga has not altered CBS Sports' plans for coverage of the skating event itself. But off-the-ice developments have prompted extra deployments by the network's news division, Harrington said.

At no point has CBS been tempted to alter its programming schedule and show the skating final live, he said. It starts at 7 p.m. local time, or 1 p.m. in New York, but CBS won't show it until the prime-time broadcast from 8-11 p.m. EST.

"A lot more people are going to be able to watch it then," he said.

"The Olympics are a unique event. Even if people already know the result, they want to see the competition, the excitement and drama. The ratings outcome hinges on how many people tune in who normally wouldn't bother with figure skating. Harrington doesn't know how big that group is, but he says the public fascination stems in part from the jarring nature of the attack on Kerrigan."

"It's never happened before," he said. "Figure skating is not a violent sport, it's not hockey. It's a sport that emphasizes grace and elegance."

'94 Games break major marketing records; raise more than $525 million

LILLEHAMMER, Norway (AP) — Lillehammer has proven that small can mean big at the Winter Olympics — big bucks, that is.

The Lillehammer Games have broken virtually every major marketing record for a Winter Olympics, pulling in more than $525 million through television fees, sponsorships, licensing programs, ticket sales and other projects.

The achievements are especially notable for a country that endured a severe recession in recent years and has a population of only 4 million people.

"It's clear now you don't have to be one of the giant countries to host a financially successful Games," Chief Pundt, the IOC's marketing chief, said Monday.

The sale of television rights accounts for the biggest slice of Lillehammer's revenue — $355 million, including $295 million paid by CBS. The total represents an 18 percent increase over $290 million in rights fees for the 1992 Winter Games in Albertville, France.

A record 100 nations are televising the Lillehammer Olympics, compared with 86 in 1992. The IOC estimates that a cumulative worldwide TV audience of 10 billion people will watch the Games, topping Albertville's 8 billion mark.

Other records include:

- $110 million generated by international and national sponsorships.
- $170 million in retail sales of licensed Olympic products.
- $20 million in ticket sales.
- $15 million in royalties from international sales of 100 million in Olympic coins.

Even a small-scale auction has turned into an enormous success. The daily sale of a T-shirt with the number of days left until the opening of the Games began as a lark. The shirts have so far raised almost $400,000.

One reason for the marketing success: The Lillehammer Games are the first Winter Olympics held in a different year than the Summer Games. From now on the Olympics will be on a staggered schedule, alternating every two years between summer and winter events, mainly to boost interest in the Winter Games.

"The fact that you're not going to have two Olympic Games in a single year is a factor" in Lillehammer's record marketing efforts, Pundt said.

The trend seems set to continue for the 1998 Winter Games in Nagano, Japan. Last month, CBS bought the Nagano broadcast rights for $375 million.

Pundt said Lillehammer's success story was largely due to its licensing program, which he called "the best there's ever been."

There are 1,000 official licensed products ranging from clothes to children's games, goat cheese, jewelry and cowbells. In 1990, the Lillehammer Olympic Organizing Committee projected total income from licensed product sales at almost $3 million. Today, the figure is expected to reach $15 million.

The biggest-selling items have been Olympic pins. LOOC estimates that 10 million pins worth $60 million will be sold by the time the Games end Feb. 27.

The licensing efforts are highlighted by designs based on historic Norwegian symbols and images, including pictograms derived from a 4,000-year-old rock carving of a skier.

Olympic officials cite one major threat to their revenue-raising efforts: "ambush marketing." That's IOC-speak for cases where companies try to pass themselves off as Olympic sponsors.

The IOC, which has gone to court against ambush marketers in the past, is monitoring the situation closely in Lillehammer.

"It's never so sign so far of ambush marketing, but the nature of the game is to hide in the bushes before you make your ambush," Pundt said. "I hope we don't have to use our deterrent forces, but we are ready if we have to."

The IOC is adamant about guarding its marketing programs, which will generate total revenue of more than $2.5 billion for the 1993-1996 cycle.

But the IOC continues to hold out against one commercial venture which could bring in hundreds of millions more in revenue. The Olympics remain one of the only major sports events that ban stadium advertising.

"I hope we can hold out forever," Pundt said. "Our goal is to differentiate the Olympics from the other sports events. The best way is to be invisible."

"You should not have to search among the billboards to find the athletes."

Organizers of these environmental correct Games took pains to outline the "green measures" factored into construction of each venue. The bobbed and luge tracks, about 10 miles north of Lillehammer, were installed flush with the terrain.

The beauty of each venue is enhanced by the snow-covered surroundings — a near record 51 inches have fallen this winter. From the top of the 120-meter ski jump — about 1,000 feet above downtown Lillehammer — the view is spectacular, taking in 19th century buildings and frozen Lake Mjøsa.

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Dallas owner Jerry Jones said Tuesday that the new Jacksonville franchise could be severely penalized if it tries to hire away Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson.

The Florida Times-Union said the Jaguars met with Johnson last week in Miami and the coach expressed interest in joining the expansion organization.

"If Jacksonville contacts him, it's very much against the rules and the club could be subject to severe penalty," Jones said.

Jaguars owner Wayne Weaver denied a meeting took place.

"We've had absolutely no contact with Jimmy Johnson — personally, by phone or by contacts," Weaver said from his office in Connecticut. "There is no validity to any of it."

The Times-Union stood by its story.

"We've been on top of this situation from the start," sports editor Joe DeSalvo said.

Jones said the NFL told Jacksonville that Johnson has five years remaining on his contract with the Cowboys and there are "no outs."

Johnson's contract pays him about $1 million per year.

Olson inks $1.5 million deal with Braves

NEW YORK (AP) — After 1½ months of searching, reliever Gregg Olson found a new team on Tuesday, agreeing to a $1.5 million, one-year contract with the Atlanta Braves.

Olson, 27, tore a ligament in his right elbow midway through last season and pitched only eight innings after the All-Star break. He had 29 saves in 35 opportunities last season before being placed on the disabled list Aug. 9. He then was activated Sept. 22 but made just one appearance and finished 0-2 with a 1.60 ERA.

"Adding a pitcher of Gregg Olson's caliber to our bullpen provides us with as strong a pitching staff as we've had in Atlanta," Braves general manager John Schuerholz said.

"We are most optimistic that Gregg will return to the productive form he displayed prior to his elbow injury at mid-season. We are confident that if he does, he will help to give us the strongest bullpen we've ever had."

Orthopedist Dr. James Andrews said last month that Olson wouldn't need surgery, and Braves orthopedist Dr. Joe Chandler gave a similar opinion on Monday.

Of the salary, $1 million will be paid on opening day and $500,000 during the remainder of the season. He can earn $2 million in performance bonuses: $25,000 per appearance from 1-40 and $50,000 per appearance from 41-60.

In arbitration, first baseman Kevin Maas lost his case against the New York Yankees and will be paid $425,000 rather than $490,000. He made $225,000 last season, when he hit .205 with nine homers and 25 RBIs.

Five players settled, leaving 31 remaining. The biggest deal went to Milwaukee outfielder Greg Vaughn, a $12 million, three-year contract that could be worth as much as $13.65 million.

Vaughn, who led the team with 30 home runs and 97 RBIs last season, made $1,177,500 in 1993. He was slowed by a right shoulder injury during the second half of the season and had just 11 homers and 29 RBIs after the All-Star break. He wound up hitting .267.

The 28-year-old gets a $300,000 signing bonus, $2.9 million this season, a minimum of $4.8 million in 1995 and a $1.5 million salary increase to $4,775,000 if he has 550 plate appearances this season, and his 1996 salary would increase to $5,675,000 if he has 550 plate appearances in either of the next two seasons.

Houston right-hander Pete Harnisch settled at $3,205,000, a raise of $1.38 million. Teammate Tom Edens, another right-hander, settled after his Monday hearing at $475,000, a raise of $150,000.

Outfielder Marquis Grissom and Montreal agreed at $3.56 million, more than double his $1.5 million salary last season. Colorado outfielder Dante Bichetti settled at $2.8 million, nearly four times his 1993 salary of $725,000.

Catcher Tony Pena, not wanted back by Boston, agreed to a minor-league contract with Cleveland. He would get a $400,000 major-league contract if he made the team.

Also, the Mets signed shortstop Rey Ordóñez, who defected from Cuba last summer, to a minor-league contract.

Rich get richer with new draft

The Associated Press

The Dallas Cowboys just won their second straight Super Bowl, beating the Buffalo Bills, who were in the game for a record fourth straight time. The New York Giants went from 6-10 to 11-5 and forced the Cowboys into overtime of the final regular-season game to win the NFC East.

Yet the Cowboys, Bills and Giants are big beneficiaries of the NFL's new compensatory draft choice system. Set up to help the poor teams, it's more likely to help the rich get richer.

For example, five of the seven extra second-round picks in the draft on April 24-25 will go to teams that made the playoffs, including two to Buffalo. The six teams that get the extra second-rounders — the Vikings, Cowboys, Giants, Bills, Rams and Chargers — were a combined 57-39 and only the Rams, 5-11, were below .500.

The NFL concedes the imbalance.

"The stronger teams generally had a deeper pool of talent to lose," says Harold Henderson, the NFL's director of labor relations. "In many cases, those top teams promoted their own developing players to starting positions rather than sign other clubs' veteran free agents."

Under the rules set up when free agency took effect last year, teams that lose veteran free agents get compensatory draft choices depending on the salaries of the defectors and their performance. But high salary doesn't always mean performance. And at non-skill positions, performance is often measured by games started.

That turned out to work to the advantage of good teams.

The Cowboys, who will get the 16th pick in the second round, and the Giants, who will get No. 17, are the two best examples.

The Cowboys signed no free agents — they were prohibited under the rule that restricted the league's final four in 1992 from signing a player unless they lost one, a rule no longer in effect.

But they lost only backup quarterback Steve Beuerlein and Kelvin Martin, their third wide receiver and punt returner. They replaced Beuerlein when Bernie Kosar was cut by Cleveland and rookie Kevin Williams took Martin's place.

The Giants lost more and gained more. But the losses were either aging players ably replaced by younger backups or free agents.

Stocks end mixed; investors lack direction

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Stocks ended mixed in quiet trading Tuesday as investors worried about rising interest rates and tried to find their footing following last week's sharp drop in share prices.

Smaller capitalization stocks moved sharply higher, led by technology issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 0.29 to 3,906.03.

But advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 11 to 9 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 318.06 million shares as of 4 p.m., down from 346.68 million in the previous session.

Stocks traded in a narrow range, moving between positive and negative territories with little firm direction.

Investors were still uncertain after Friday's 96-point drop in blue-chip stocks followed by Monday's almost 35-point jump in the Dow average, said David Holt, director of technical research at Wedbush Morgan Securities.

Bond prices fell again Tuesday, pushing up credit market interest rates. That is often seen as a negative for stocks because it raises the cost of borrowing for companies and makes share prices less attractive.

Stocks abroad recovered from the previous day's sharp losses. In Tokyo, the 225-index Nikkei Stock Average gained 1.2 percent, while in London, the Financial Times-Stock Exchange 100-share index rose 0.6 percent. Stocks jumped 1.3 percent in Frankfurt and rose 0.6 percent in Paris.

In Mexico, the stock market surged 2.0 percent to new all-time highs.

The Associated Press

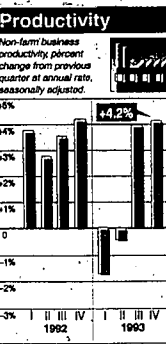

WASHINGTON — The productivity of American workers rebounded strongly in the last half of 1993, and analysts said it continues to power economic growth while keeping inflation low.

But these economists acknowledged that much of the progress is the result of record numbers of employees being laid off while many of those still with jobs are working longer hours to pick up the slack.

The Labor Department reported Tuesday that nonfarm productivity shot up at a seasonally adjusted 4.2 percent annual rate from October through December, fastest in a year including the third quarter's 4 percent rate.

But declines of 0.4 percent in the second quarter and 1.8 percent in the first slowed productivity growth for the year to just 1.6 percent, little more than half the 3.1 percent advance in 1992, which had been the biggest in two decades.

Stephen S. Roach, an economist with Morgan Stanley

Source: U.S. Dept. of Labor

& Co. in New York, said the rebound is evidence the economic recovery continues to be "productivity-led."

"Productivity gains over the 11 quarters since the recession began averaged 2.5 percent an annual rate, accounting for about 90 percent of the GDP growth during same interval," he explained. "In past business cycles ... over the same 11 quarters, productivity accounted for just 55 percent of GDP growth."

The GDP, or gross domestic product, is the total output of goods and services within the United States and the broadest measure of the economy's health. Productivity is defined as output per number of hours worked.

Output in 1993 rose 3.7 percent, including a 6.6 percent annual rate of advance in the final three months, which was the largest gain since a 7.2 percent jump in the second quarter of 1987.

Hours worked increased 2.1 percent, the first annual gain since 1990, but included a 2.3 percent growth rate in the fourth quarter.

As a result, unit labor costs rose just 1.9 percent in 1993, from 2 percent in 1992, and actually fell 1.2 percent in the fourth quarter and 0.4 percent in the third.

"That's the first two consecutive (quarterly) declines since the second half of 1962, more than 30 years ago," Roach said. "On a year-over-year basis, costs are up only 1.3 percent. That tells me that inflation is under superb control."

Labor costs typically represent about two-thirds of the cost of a product.

Still, although the fourth-quarter advance in hours worked included an 0.8 percent increase in the average work week, it also included a 1.5 percent increase in employment.

Manufacturing productivity jumped 5.3 percent in 1993, up from a 4.3 percent advance in 1992. That included an 8.2 percent surge at factories that make long-lasting goods such as automobiles and appliances.

In the fourth quarter, manufacturing productivity soared by 7.8 percent, up from 3.1 percent in the third quarter.

Total business productivity, including farming, increased 1.3 percent last year, down from 3.3 percent a year earlier. It rose 4.8 percent in the fourth quarter, up from 3.3 percent the previous three months.
