Heavy weather heads eastward with rain, hail, snow

The Associated Press

Showers and thunderstorms hit the Gulf Coast Tuesday while parts of the Midwest and most of the East Coast braced for another blast of wintry weather.

Moist air flowing off the Gulf of Mexico produced thunderstorms, hail and heavy rain. In Mississippi, large hail fell at Gulfport, Biloxi, Bay Springs and Stringer, and a tornado was spotted near Vancleave, the National Weather Service said.

Meridian, Miss., received 2.1 inches of rain. 1.18 fell at Strevport, La., and Mobile, Ala., reported an inch. Flash flood watches were posted through the night in northwestern Alabama and southeastern Tennessee.

A storm system developing across the south central United States was expected to bring rain, strong thunderstorms and some heavy snow to areas east of the Rockies.

The weather service forecast substantial snow from the mid-Atlantic states into southern New England, and heavy rain across portions of the southern Appalachians.

Lows in the 30s.

Elko County — Mostly sunny and unseasonably warm today. Highs 60 to 70. Tonight partly cloudy. Lows mostly in the 30s. Thursday partly cloudy. Highs in the 60s.

Weather summary

March came into Idaho like a lamb Tuesday, with fair, sunny skies and warm temperatures.

High pressure across the state will continue through Thursday, with more fair skies and warm temperatures.

Highs in the middle 50s and 60s were expected statewide again today.

Afternoon skies across the state Tuesday were at least partly sunny across the state. Temperatures ranged from the low 40s in the mountains to the mid-60s in the southwest and south central valleys.

Winds were mainly from the south and west, with speeds of 5 to 15 mph.

Some light precipitation was reported in the north, southwest and southeastern sections of the state. Reports included Grace, 60 inch, Coeur d'Alene, 0.3, Bear Lake State Park, 0.7, Lowell, 0.1, Mullan, 0.2, and Grandview, a trace.

The highest temperature in the state Tuesday was 71 degrees at Payette. Ketchum reported the lowest at 19 degrees.

Elsewhere in the nation Tuesday, the highest temperature was 88 degrees at Monrovia, Calif.; Newport, Vt., reported the lowest temperature at 10 degrees below zero.

Winter storm warnings were posted through Wednesday across parts of Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and eastern Pennsylvania. Storm warnings were posted through Thursday for parts of Ohio, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and New York and all of New Jersey and southern New England.

Coastal flood watches were posted through Wednesday across North Carolina and portions of the Florida panhandle.

Moist air pushed ahead of a cold front over the eastern Pacific kept the Oregon and Washington coasts wet. Quill, Ore., was hit by 3.12 inches of rain since Monday morning, with 1.14 inches falling Tuesday morning.

A ridge of high pressure over the intermountain region kept it mostly sunny and warm in the western United States. Midday temperatures ranged from the 40s and 50s in the Rockies to the 80s across parts of Southern California.

Pendleton, Calif., reached 69 degrees, breaking its record for the date of 63 degrees in 1968.

'Aladdin,' Houston lead awards

NEW YORK (AP) — Awards voters will always love Whitney Houston — at least this year.

And the magic carpet for the music to "Aladdin" was riding high again at Tuesday night's 36th annual Grammys.

For her single "I Will Always Love You," Houston took the award for best pop female vocalist and record of the year, which she shared with producer David Foster.

The album of the year Grammy went to the soundtrack to the movie, "The Bodyguard."

Just three weeks ago, she collected eight trophies at the American Music Awards for the single and the soundtrack.

"I think everyone can dig and understand "I Will Always Love You," she said backstage.

Dolly Parton, who wrote the torch song two decades ago, presented the Grammy to Miss Houston.

The single, has been one of the fastest-selling in music history, and the movie soundtrack has sold more than 10 million copies.

The "Aladdin" soundtrack received four Grammys before the telecast began. During the CBS-TV special, "A Whole New World (Aladdin's Theme)" won for song of the year, a prize that went to the composers, Alan Menken and Tim Rice.

Peabo Bryson and Regina Belle won the award for best performance by a duo or group for singing "A Whole New World (Aladdin's Theme)."

The other awards for "Aladdin" best musical album for children, and best instrumental composition written for a motion picture or for television. The theme song also won as best song written for a movie or TV.

The percents have gone up a lot over the past couple of weeks, Becker said, "but we're not up to where we should be yet."

Some drainages rose as much as 16 percent, while the Brunau-Jarbridge

The figures will decline if temperatures rise and skies remain clear, Becker said.

No new data on expected streamflows are available, but the reservoir system in the Snake River drainage is nearly full. The high water levels are due to last year's reduced irrigation demands.

Tax

would be extended to a dizzying array of services, from A (advertising agencies) to not quite Z (zoo brokers).

Among the services that would be taxed: farm-labor contractors, dry cleaners, barber shops, tattoo parlors, pest-control services, dating agencies, auto repossessors, hair-weaving and scalp-treatment services, Christian Science lecturers — and bronzing baby shoes.

Walter Balzer of Gem State Trophies said Tuesday that it costs $40 to $50 to get a pair of baby shoes bronzed — more depending on the mounting. The tax bill would add $2 to $2.50 to that cost.

Flying lessons would also be subject to sales tax. It costs $75 an hour at Sun Valley Aviation in Hailey for a Cessna 172 airplane and an instructor. The tax on that would be $3.75.

Pest-control services would be included as well. A thorough "termite job" could run anywhere from $600 to $800, said Fred Spence of Snake River Pest Control in Heyburn. That would mean a tax of $30 to $40.

Spence doesn't think much of the tax bill, at least as it applies to his business.

"It have concerns when it starts affecting the health and welfare of the people — black widow spiders, cockroaches, mice," he said. "Will this make it more expensive for low-income people? It's like taxing groceries."

In fact, the bill would repeal the "grocery-tax credit" for people making over $20,000 a year. The credit, intended to compensate in part for the sales tax on food, is $15 per person exemption on the state income tax.

And the transportable property taken off the personal property tax would also lose its "production exemption" from the sales tax.

Bob Jones, manager of B.J.'s Washub in Twin Falls, said he's not sure whether he'd come out ahead or behind under the bill.

"It could work great, because my property tax would go down and I'd pass the (service tax) on to the customers," Jones said. "But I'm a customer too. When I took my car to the garage or got my clothes dry-cleaned or called the plumber out to the house, I'd have to pay."

percent, the first decline in nine months.

The fourth-quarter GDP surge was fueled largely by a consumer spending spree encouraged by low interest rates, and a better-than-expected rise in exports that is not likely to be duplicated soon.

The administration and many private economists continue to predict moderate growth this year of around 3 percent to 3.5 percent and a similar rise in inflation, only slightly worse than last year's 2.7 percent jump in the cost of living.

Despite jitters on Wall Street and in the bond markets, the latest government reports show inflation in check.

An inflation index tied to the GDP rose at an annual rate of 1.3 percent in the fourth quarter, the smallest gain since 1 percent in the summer of 1992.

The government said GDP grew at an annual rate of $93.8 billion in the final three months last year, $20 billion more than estimated a month ago.

Exports shot up at a 20.5 percent annual rate, outpacing a 16.2 percent gain in imports. But analysts expect weaker American sales abroad this year.

There was a $4.7 billion increase in consumer spending, which expanded at an annual rate of 4.6 percent, the best showing in a year. Consumer spending accounts for two-thirds of total economic activity.

Study links UV rays with amphibians' decline

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A finding that the sun's ultraviolet radiation is killing the eggs of dwindling frog, toad and salamander species supports fears about the weakening of the Earth's ozone layer, researchers said.

The finding comes in an Oregon State University study that is the largest field test to date on the effects of increasing UV-B, a type of ultraviolet radiation that also has been linked to skin cancer.

The study, published Tuesday in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences, documents what scientists have suspected, said Bob Wiese, assistant director of conservation and science at the American Zoo and Aquarium Association in Bethesda, Md.

"Amphibians have been documented in a decline for many years now. There have been a number of different reasons given for the decline, and UV-B has been one of those that has been put forward over and over again," he said.

Oregon State researchers Andrew Blaustein and John Hays also found that the declining species have a limited ability to repair damage from the natural radiation, which alters the structure of the creatures' DNA, the genetic building blocks of life.

"Showing damage to an animal means there probably will be an effect on him," Blaustein said.

The study "shows the suspicions were right. It implies that being out there in the sun is not good for you," said biologist David Wake, an amphibian expert at the University of California, Berkeley.

One early skeptic was George Rabb, director of the Brookfield, Ill., Zoo and president of the Species Survival Commission of the

will move to Russia

CAVENDISH, Vt. (AP) — Nobel Prize-winning author Alexander Solzhenitsyn made a rare public appearance to say an emotional thank you and farewell to his neighbors of Cavendish, his home in exile.

"You forgave me my unusual way of life, and even took it upon yourselves to protect my privacy," he told residents gathered for their annual town meeting Monday. "For this, I have been truly grateful throughout all these years; and now, as my stay here comes to an end, I thank you."

Solzhenitsyn said he and his wife, Natalia, plan to return to Russia at the end of May, but that his sons would continue to live in Cavendish.

He and his family have lived in Cavendish, a south-central Vermont town of 1,300, since 1976, two years after his 1974 expulsion from the Soviet Union. Monday's meeting was believed to be only the third time he has appeared in a public event in the town.

The 75-year-old author spoke movingly of his gratitude to Cavendish on Monday. The crowd of more than 200 who gathered for the traditional town meeting at the school gym gave him a standing ovation.

"Our children grew up and went to school here, alongside your children," he told residents. "For them, Vermont is home. Indeed, our whole family has felt at home among you."

Frogs, toads and salamanders might be the first victims of a decline in the earth's ozone layer, according to a study by Oregon State University researcher Andrew Blaustein, shown here at Lost Lake in the Cascade Mountains of central Oregon.

International Union for the Conservation of Nature.

"Clearly we've got to pay more attention. I think the evidence is enough to warrant our alarm," he said of the study.

Rabb stressed that other factors also are contributing to the disappearance of amphibians, including loss of habitat and use of agricultural chemicals.

Some species of amphibians are in decline worldwide, including the Cascades frog in Oregon, the natterjack and crested toads in Britain, salamanders in Mexico, the crested toad in Puerto Rico, the gastric brooding frog in Australia and many others in Asia and Africa.

Researchers have theorized that amphibians might be most vulnerable to ultraviolet rays because they lack hair, hide or feathers to shield them. And their gelatinous eggs lack the protection of leathery or hard shells.

The Oregon study was conducted at the same time as a Canadian study that provided the first long-term documentation of an increase in UV-B radiation and a decrease in the ozone layer outside Antarctica.

The thinning of the ozone layer is caused in part by chlorofluorocarbons, chemicals used in refrigeration, air conditioners and aerosol spray cans.

The two studies were done at the same distance north of the equator, so the UV-B levels were likely similar in both regions.

The Oregon researchers collected thousands of amphibian eggs from three different species for laboratory analysis. They also shielded clutches of eggs in the wild from various levels of UV-B radiation.

Two species, the Cascades frog and the Western toad, showed up to a 25 percent increase in hatchlings when their eggs were protected from UV-B radiation.

First lady's brother kicks off Senate bid

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Hugh Rodham kicked off his bid for the Senate Tuesday amid questions on his brief experience in the voting booth.

"We've got our work cut out for us, I guess," said the president's brother-in-law, who is seeking the Democratic nomination to challenge Republican incumbent Connie Mack in the general election.

Records show the younger brother of First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton didn't register to vote in Dade County until 1991, in time to become a delegate to the convention where Bill Clinton received the Democratic presidential nomination. Rodham moved to Dade in 1980.

"I wasn't energized until I saw some candidates who introduced change on the national level," Rodham said.

"It takes a lot of energy when you don't believe in the system, when you think the system has let you and your country down by electing the people that they were."

"Ask the people of my generation what they think of the political polls who went through the 1980s, especially for the Republican administrations," continued the 43-year-old Rodham. "They had no hope and desire to participate because they didn't think it would make a difference."

Rodham quit his job as an assistant Dade County public defender on Monday.

Drug hailed as 'big' step in treating Lou Gehrig's disease

BOSTON (AP) — An experimental new drug appears to be the first to slow the fatal progression of Lou Gehrig's disease, the illness that until now has defied all attempts at cure.

The medicine, called riluzole, is not a cure. But a study financed by the maker of riluzole found it seemed to delay crippling symptoms and death.

"Survival almost doubled in some patients. That's just unheard of," commented Dr. Jeffrey Rothstein of Johns Hopkins University, who is co-directing another large study of the treatment.

Rothstein described riluzole as "a big, big step" in the treatment of Lou Gehrig's disease.

A drug that has any effect would be noteworthy. At present, there is no treatment for the illness, formally known as amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, or ALS. Victims' life expectancy has changed little since the disease killed Gehrig, the Yankees' first baseman, in 1941.

The disease is rare, but has had prominent victims, including U.S. Sen. Jacob Javits, actor David Niven and singer Dennis Day.

ALS is a nerve disease that robs people of muscle control, resulting in weakness and wasting. Eventually, victims lose all control of the muscles, including breathing and swallowing. Survival averages three or four years, although some victims live with the disease for decades. About one or two cases are diagnosed for every 100,000 people in the United States annually.

The latest study was financed by the French pharmaceutical firm Rhone-Poulenc. Rorer, which developed riluzole (pronounced rill-you-zoll). It was conducted by Dr. Gilbert Bensimon and others from Hôpital de la Pitié-Salpêtrière in Paris and was being published in the March issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

Whether this drug will turn out to play a major role in the illness remains to be seen. Some experts are skeptical and worry that the initial study's seemingly positive findings could have been a statistical fluke.

"We don't know how it works, and quite honestly we don't know if it works," commented Dr. Stanley Appel of Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

He said he feared the study will raise false hopes that "could set patients back emotionally and physically."

Doctors expect Rothstein's separate study, involving 559 patients worldwide, to settle the question. Until then, the best information is the encouraging but confusing results of the French study involving 155 patients in France and Belgium.

In that comparison study, doctors found the treatment reduced deaths by 39 percent after one year and 20 percent after almost two years, when the study ended.

The medicine is not approved for routine use anywhere in the world and is available only to patients taking part in carefully controlled studies.

The primary reason for skepticism about riluzole is the fact it only seemed to help those whose disease began in their brain stems, not their spinal cords. Experts believe ALS is the same disease no matter where it begins, so this difference in the drug's effect is hard to explain. The disease strikes first in the brain stem in about one-quarter of cases.

In an unusually negative editorial in the journal, Dr. Lewis P. Rowland of Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center in New York said the result "runs counter to clinical logic." He worried that the apparent benefit in patients with brain stem disease was due to something other than the drug.

However, Dr. Arnold Gale of Santa Clara, Calif., medical information officer for the Muscular Dystrophy Foundation, said he believes riluzole is an important development.

Money will bear 2 new signatures

WASHINGTON — More than a year into the Clinton administration, new names are about to be imprinted on U.S. currency.

Mary Ellen Withrow was sworn in Tuesday as the nation's 40th treasurer, and she and Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen soon will place their signatures on crisp new bills.

Bentsen, who previously has said he can't wait to give some souvenir bills bearing his autograph to his grandchildren, joked about how long he has waited to have his name on the nation's greenbacks.

"I've been very patient about this. I've waited 405 days," Bentsen told a swearing-in ceremony for Withrow attended by her family and friends from Ohio. Bentsen said about $4 billion in notes have been printed since he took office, enough to extend from Washington to his home in Texas 279 times if placed end to end.

New rules in place for chemical plants

WASHINGTON — Chemical plants will have to sharply reduce the release of toxic pollutants into the air under regulations issued Tuesday by the Environmental Protection Agency.

EPA Administrator Carol Browner called the new rules "a landmark for public health" that will reduce the amount of toxic air releases from chemical plants by 88 percent below 1990 levels.

Anticipating the new requirement, which stems from the 1990 Clean Air Act, major companies already have moved toward the reduction goals. The companies have three years to meet the requirements.

"This is the most far-reaching effort ever taken to reduce air toxics," said Browner, because it attacks "the single biggest industrial source of toxic air pollution in America — emissions from chemical plants."

Muslims, Croats work on peace details

WASHINGTON — Bosnian Muslims and Croats worked on the final details Tuesday of a U.S.-brokered agreement, aiming to establish a federation that could move Bosnia a significant step closer to peace.

Croatian Foreign Minister Mate Granic said that he and Muslim officials "are just now in the final stages of negotiations."

The agreement would bring together two of the three parties in a bloody two-year ethnic conflict that has cost the lives of more than 200,000 people.

Missing from the equation are the Bosnian Serbs who have gained military control of 70 percent of the former Yugoslav republic.

However, in another promising step, Serb leader Radovan Karadzic announced in Moscow an agreement to end the airfield at Tuzla in Bosnia and said the first relief plane to the city would be Russian. The Serbs are under threat of NATO air strikes if they refuse to allow opening of the airport by next Monday.

Arafat 'indispensable' to Mideast peace

WASHINGTON — Praising Yasser Arafat as "the flag and 'The Star-Spangled Banner' all wrapped up into one person," Secretary of State Warren Christopher promised Tuesday the Clinton administration would play a new and active role in arrangements for Palestinian self-rule.

Christopher told a House Appropriations subcommittee that Arafat was "indispensable" to peace in the Middle East and that the PLO leader had assured him in an early-morning telephone conversation he "needed a little time" but intended to send Palestinian emissaries here.

The aim is to reopen talks with Israel on implementing an agreement to turn over day-to-day control of the West Bank city of Jericho and Gaza to the Palestinians.

A senior U.S. official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said a PLO emissary still to be named would come here today and meet with Christopher Thursday.

Judge sends spy case to grand jury

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Accused spy Aldrich Ames, a Soviet handler told him in 1989 he had earned $2.7 million for his CIA secrets, then dangled the promise of a "beautiful piece of land" in Russia as a further payoff, a government witness said Tuesday.

A federal magistrate, after listening to the government's espionage case against Ames and his wife, ruled there was sufficient evidence to send the case to a grand jury. Magistrate Barry R. Poretz ordered the couple held without bail.

Poretz said that there was an unacceptable risk that the couple would flee the country if allowed to post bail. He said Ames, if freed, would pose a danger to the nation because he possessed valuable intelligence information.

The government's leadoff witness, FBI Special Agent Leslie G. Wiser Jr., said the alleged payoff was "at least twice as much as was paid to any other spy or spy network that I know of."

Wiser said that by 1989 Ames apparently had received $1.8 million and the Soviets apparently had invested some of the total for Ames in bonds. A document found in a box in Ames' home indicated he was being paid a "salary" of $300,000, Wiser said.

Ames and his co-defendant wife, Maria del Rosario Casas Ames, sat grinning, wearing jail garb, as Assistant U.S. Attorney Mark Hukewer argued that they should remain in jail without bond pending trial.

Alabama ices beers for being too strong

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Miller Icehouse is being sent to the doghouse, and other ice-brewed beers could join it.

The Alabama Alcoholic Beverage Control Board began sending letters to brewers Monday, telling them to remove from stores any new beers that contain more than the 5-percent-alcohol-allowed by state law.

Miller Icehouse has an alcohol level of 5.5 percent, spokeswoman Susan Henderson at company headquarters in Milwaukee, ice-brewed beers are chilled until some of the water freezes, and then the ice crystals are filtered out.

Henderson said this was the first time she has heard of a state ordering the beer off shelves.

She said Miller would comply with the agency's requirements.

Accused spy Aldrich Ames is taken from U.S. District Court in Virginia, after a magistrate ruled to send the case to grand jury.

Ames occasionally chewed on a pen during the hearing and appeared to be taking notes.

In opposing Mrs. Ames' release on bail, prosecutors said they had evidence that she and her husband still had an estimated $1 million stashed in foreign bank accounts throughout the world — much of it "beyond the reach of the government in this case" but available to Mrs. Ames "from a home telephone should she be released on bond."

The Amesess were charged last Tuesday with conspiracy to commit espionage. They are accused of selling secrets to the Soviet Union and then Russia for eight years.

If convicted they could face a maximum penalty of life in prison. William Cummings, the attorney for Mrs. Ames, said she intended to plead innocent. Her husband's attorney said last week he would fight the charges against him.

Wiser testified that FBI agents discovered a financial record dated May 1, 1989, in a box in Ames' home study. The document, which was admitted as evidence, began, "Dear friends, your balance sheet is $2,705 million...."

The government also presented as evidence five photographs found in the Ames home with a note that Wiser said came from Russian handlers referring to the pictures as "this beautiful piece of land along a river bank which is yours forever."

The note said the photos did not show nearby housing because they were nearby housing because they knew Ames would want to build his own "dacha" or summer house. It was not immediately clear from Wiser's testimony the exact location of the riverbank real estate.

Wiser also said FBI agents found at the Ames house a nine-page 1989 letter to Ames containing a "to do list" from the KGB indicating Ames had exposed at least one Soviet-bloc diplomat who spied for the CIA but then disappeared.

FBI agents also found computer disks in Ames' residence containing more than 100 classified CIA cables, in violation of CIA rules against keeping such material at home, Wiser testified.

The KGB letter indicated that Ames had disclosed the identity of an Eastern European internal security official who was cooperating with the CIA and went by the code name "GTMotorboat," Wiser said.

That official met with Ames in Italy and furnished him with top-secret documents for the CIA. At one point, "GTMotorboat" returned to his homeland promising to meet again with Ames, but he never returned and the CIA has made many attempts to locate him without success, Wiser told the court.

Asked if the letter made it apparent that Ames had disclosed the individual's identity, Wiser said, "It's clear to me."

Ames was assigned to the CIA station in Rome from 1986 to 1989.

In a 35-page affidavit made public last week, the FBI said it had found evidence in Ames' computer records that in 1989 he had exposed a Soviet counterintelligence officer who was secretly collaborating with the CIA.

Mosque massacre: the Israeli army's account

The army says Baruch Goldstein alone was responsible for about 40 Palestinians killed and dozens more wounded at the Ibrahim Mosque, but many questions remain. Following is the account according to the Israeli army.

Two Israeli soldiers at Muslim entrance, overwhelmed with fleeing Palestinians, fire shots in the air to try to disperse people.

Israeli guard commander, alone at his post because four soldiers have not shown up, tries to get into the prayer hall through three entrances after being pushed back by fleeing survivors.

Israel releases prisoners in effort to resume talks

HEBRON, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Israel released more than 500 Palestinian prisoners Tuesday to coax the PLO back to peace talks suspended after the Hebron-mosque massacre.

Officials said another 500 will be freed by the weekend. Palestinians scoffed at the gesture. "I think the Israelis are releasing us now to make the Palestinians happy. This is not a real step for peace," said prisoner Wael Salameh, 38, said when he arrived in Hebron, where dozens of Muslim worshippers were slain by a Jewish settler Friday.

That was the PLO line, too. Samir Ghosheh, a member of the PLO's ruling Executive Committee, dismissed the release as "irrelevant to the real issue of providing protection for our people." He called it "cosmetic surgery" to dampen the violence that has swept the occupied territories and parts of Israel since Friday's massacre.

The PLO won't resume peace talks with Israel unless "certain guarantees are provided" to protect Palestinians living under occupation, he said.

But, amid intense diplomatic maneuvering, there were signs that these may now be forthcoming. "Israeli sources were optimistic that the suspended talks will resume after Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's government offered a new package of concessions that go partway toward meeting PLO demands."

Western and Arab diplomats in Tunis, the PLO's headquarters, said Israel's concessions include strengthening a Palestinian police force being deployed under the Sept. 13 PLO-Israeli peace accord in what will be self-rule areas in Gaza and the West Bank town of Jericho. Israel also would disarm settlers in those areas.

Officials said the government also has offered to allow international observers into the territories for the first time since Israel captured them in the 1967 Mideast War. The PLO wants a multinational protection force.

Israeli officials indicated the observers would be empowered to supervise Israel's military withdrawal from Gaza and Jericho and oversee the handover of authority to Palestinians.

Gad Yaacobi, Israel's U.N. ambassador, told Israel radio: "They won't have a military presence or have the power to interfere." He said the man died at a hospital.

Israel has ignored U.N. Security Council resolutions demanding it withdraw from the occupied territories.

Israeli couple shot near settlement

JERUSALEM (AP) — Soldiers accidentally shot an Israeli settler couple in the occupied West Bank on Tuesday and the man died of his wounds, a settler spokesman said.

Israeli radio reports initially said the shooting near the West Bank settlement of Ariel was an ambush. The occupied territories have been tense and violent since a Jewish settler shot and killed dozens of Palestinians on Friday in a mosque in Hebron.

Shai Bazak, a spokesman for the West Bank settlers' council, said the man and woman from Ariel — both about age 30 — were shot by soldiers, "in a tragic error." He said the man died at a hospital.

Bosnian Serb leader allows aid

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Nudged by their Slavic brethren in Russia, Bosnian Serbs sought to disarm NATO firepower Tuesday by agreeing to open Tuzla's airport to aid flights.

An airlift to the Muslim city in northern Bosnia like the one that's helping feed Sarajevo could provide food and humanitarian assistance to hundreds of thousands of people.

Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic, who had opposed opening the airport because he believed arms could be smuggled to the Muslims who control the airfield, made the concession "following talks in Moscow with Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev."

Washington was pleased: "I think the Russians are trying to further the peace process. I think they're trying to be helpful," said White House Press Secretary Dee Dee Myers.

NATO had threatened to open Tuzla's airport by force. Bosnian Serbs got a taste of NATO's resolve Monday when U.S. F-16 planes shot down four Bosnian Serb fighter jets violating the U.N. no-fly zone.

It was the first time in NATO's 44-year history that the alliance had engaged in combat.

In related developments Tuesday, The Muslim-led government and Croats reportedly are close to signing a preliminary agreement in Washington to create a federation. The United States has spearheaded efforts to push the former allies back together.

The United States proposed the Muslims and Croats form one entity combining the territory they control in Bosnia. The next step would be to induce the Bosnian Serbs, who have captured about 70 percent of the former Yugoslav republic, to agree to a two-republic state.

Under the U.S. plan, the federation of Muslims and Croats, where a cease-fire appeared to be holding for the fourth day, would seek economic ties with Croatia.

The head of the U.N. operation in former Yugoslavia, Yasushi Akashi, flew by helicopter to Tuzla from Vitez, central Bosnia. Akashi said he needed 4,000-5,000 more U.N. troops to enforce the Muslim-Croat cease-fire. The frontlines appeared to be quiet despite reports of sporadic gunfire.

Serbs were reportedly continuing attacks on the northern enclave of Maglaj. The United Nations planned to send a convoy Wednesday to Maglaj; the last to reach the 19,000 people there was October.

Gen. Rasim Delic, commander of Bosnian government forces, said many of the Serb artillery pieces pulled out from around Sarajevo were targeting Maglaj.

Yeltsin discounts effect of opposition's amnesty

MOSCOW (AP) — President Boris Yeltsin said Tuesday the freeing of his hard-line enemies under a parliamentary amnesty posed no danger of a revolt, and he insisted he was firmly in control of the country.

Yeltsin was trying to limit the political damage from the amnesty, which has thrown his administration into confusion and made him appear weak.

He also is facing a coal miners strike and a dispute with Washington over spying that threatens to chill relations with the United States. "At this time, I don't see any real danger to civic accord and I fully control the political situation," he told parliament leaders at the Kremlin.

The State Duma, the lower-house of parliament that contains many Communists and extreme nationalists who oppose Yeltsin's reforms, passed the amnesty a week ago. It was a political attack on Yeltsin, barely disguised by rhetoric about the need for national reconciliation.

While the president's staff was still considering a legal challenge to the amnesty, it was suddenly carried out Saturday.

Yeltsin

Former Vice President Alexander Rutskoi, former parliament speaker, Russian Khasulov and other hard-liners walked out of the Foforovo Prison, where they were held for inciting the street battles that terrorized Moscow last October.

On Tuesday, the second half of the amnesty law was carried out. The Supreme Court dismissed the treason trial of the leaders of the 1991 Communist coup that briefly toppled former Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

A dozen alleged conspirators — including former KGB Chairman Vladimir Kryuchkov, Soviet Defense Minister Dmitry Yazov and Vice President Genady Yanayev — had faced a possible death penalty if convicted.

They accepted the amnesty while continuing to declare their innocence.

Another painful lesson on culture of victimhood

Steven J. Cook of Philadelphia is feeling a lot better about himself.

His psychiatric treatment has been so successful, in fact, that the former seminarian is not even sure anymore that Cardinal Joseph Bernardin sexually abused him nearly 20 years ago, as he charged in a lawsuit in November.

He might, he now says, have made it up during hypnosis.

Imagine the cardinal's relief. After watching a reputation earned in 45 years of pastoral work destroyed by Cook's allegations last fall, he now finds out Cook dreamed the whole thing.

Cook, a former drug addict, was encouraged in those fantasies by the culture of complaint that pervades our society. It says that, no matter what you do, it's not your fault.

If you're a failure, you're better as a victim of circumstances — or, better still, someone made you do it: an authority figure or a parent, or, perhaps, a priest.

Cook incriminated Cardinal Bernardin through memory enhancement techniques, a popular psychiatric practice that seeks to unlock repressed memories, usually of sexual abuse.

Psychiatrists and counselors who use it say it allows victims of such abuse to uncover the truth they could never admit any other way. The American Medical Association says it's baloney.

Whatever use memory enhancement may have for digging up long-buried memories, it's also infamous for planting false ones.

As the McMartin Preschool case in California illustrated eight years ago, psychiatry is a notoriously blunt instrument when it comes to criminal justice.

In that case, teachers and staff members were charged with a series of horrific sex crimes against children. But their stories — and the criminal cases — eventually fell apart when it became apparent the kids were telling the investigators who interviewed them what the adults wanted to hear.

Trouble is, like Cardinal Bernardin, everybody who worked at the McMartin Preschool was convicted in the public eye the minute the allegations were reported.

Unlike the McMartin case, Cook's lawyers didn't have to prove there was probable cause to charge Bernardin with a crime. In the hope of a big settlement from the church, they simply dropped a lawsuit on the prelate.

And because he's public figure, the media did the rest.

Wherever the cardinal goes, whatever he does in the future, he'll be under a cloud. Say, aren't you that priest who got in trouble for molesting a teen-ager?

Ironically enough, while we were preparing this editorial for publication, a similar case surfaced with a Magic Valley connection. The Catholic Church of Idaho is being sued over alleged acts of a priest who once worked in Rupert and Burley.

Regardless of that case's merits, the priest involved is likely to be subjected to the same unfair presumption of guilt that has caused Bernardin so much pain.

That presumption is all the more insidious because there are clergymen and teachers, grocers and doctors, firefighters and circus clowns, who do sexually abuse kids. And for children who are victims of those people, there's a need to heal.

But the need to help them never justifies creating new victims among innocent people unfortunate enough to be the villain of somebody's perverted imagination.

The McMartin case taught prosecutors to be wary of evidence prompted from a witness. We should demand the same standard from psychiatrists and from lawyers looking to cash in by trashing an honest man's reputation.

Why language police flourish in society

Russell Jacoby

In the continuing political correctness controversy, a giant paradox leaps to view: The effort to rid language of violence and abuse gathers strength as society becomes more violent and abusive.

Language gets better as society gets worse. Almost everywhere incidents of racism, shootings and rapes increase. This is not cause and effect, as if improved language causes social regression, but may be the reverse: A deteriorating society may accelerate efforts to sanitize communication.

Political correctness is a retreat masquerading as an advance. Stymied by vast social ills, some individuals, especially students and professors, feel impelled to ferret out racist or sexist comments.

If we cannot reform society, goes the implicit reasoning, we can at least clean up objectionable language and abusive gestures. Racism seems intractable, but racist comments, jokes and perhaps research might be eliminated.

After all, aren't words becoming more real all the time? During and after work, we are inundated by words: chatter, memos, images, commercials, news, sound bites, recordings, messages, print-outs, mail. Our view of reality has shifted accordingly.

Nowhere is this symbolic world embraced so strongly as on college campuses. Even ambiguous or complex talk can be examined, monitored — and altered; this is less possible with an economic reality. Who offers a linguistic solution to homelessness?

But for English professors, the world is a text; for law professors, it is a statute. Almost every school that passed a speech code had its own law school, where the code was hatched. Law schools produce law professors who produce laws for schools. On the campus, people watch their language and gestures. Outside its boundaries, racism and violence thrive.

The language reformers are guilty, however inadvertently, of shifting attention. Distinguished urban universities are often a stone's throw from major ghettos; Columbia University, Boston University, the University of Chicago and Yale University border on urban wastelands — and Harvard, MIT, UCLA and Berkeley are not much farther away.

Conservatives are more than happy to avert their eyes from social ills and join in the word games. Indeed they are the original players, having always preferred targeting ideas and opinions to indicting social and economic realities.

Edmund Burke in that classic of conservatism, "Reflections on the Revolution in France," charged that the ideas of philosophers gave rise to the French Revolution.

Two centuries later Burke's tilt still shapes conservative thinking: Corrosive realities re-code before corrosive ideas. It is not justice but new ideas of justice that bring about discontent. It is not riots but political correctness that obsesses conservative political intellectuals today.

Before conservatives turned up as defenders of free speech on campus, they distrusted as too dangerous the unmanipulated expression of opinion.

William F. Buckley's first book, "God and Man at Yale," is subtitled "The Suppressions of Academic Freedom." Dinesh D'Souza, the conservative critic of political correctness, once penned an adoring biography of Jerry Falwell. The politically correct of the left and right share a cultural schizophrenia: Words excite them, not reality. The classic example was the response of the National Rifle Association to the song "Cop Killer" by rap singer Ice T.

Many thought that the song promoted violence against law-enforcement officers and should be withdrawn; others believed that no matter how offensive the lyrics, they fell squarely under First Amendment protection. The NRA issued statements and took out newspaper advertisements offering "full legal and financial resources" to any police or their kin "shot or killed by someone shown to be influenced by this incitement and provocation."

This is the same organization that opposes curbing the sale of so-called "cop-killers" ammunition, banning lethal assault weapons and requiring strict gun registration. Words, not guns, are the menace.

Few can doubt the increasing and catastrophic amount of violence in American society. Everywhere in urban America the locks get bigger, the gates higher, the alarm systems more sophisticated.

Yet the left and right prefer to talk about talk, litigating, suing and pressing charges. "Aren't those lyrics too violent?" asks the NRA member on the way to the gun shop.

"Wasn't that joke racist?" asks the literature professor as she glides past the devastated inner city in her Volvo.

Russell Jacoby is the author of "Dogmatic Wisdom: How the Culture Wars Divert Education and Distort America" to be published in April by Doubleday. He wrote this article for the Washington Post.

Teachers better off than others

This letter is in response to one written by Mari Calhoun on Feb. 21. We do care about you. The Times-News is only concerned with how taxpayer dollars are spent. Throwing money at the education system will not make it better. Our state shouldn't be competing with other states. Our kids are as smart and educated as any, and if we do it cheaper, then maybe other states should look at us.

As you stated, you are sick and tired of people saying you only work nine months a year. Let's call a spade a spade. How many days does your contract call for? And these are all days — never swing shifts, never the midnight shifts, never weekends, never between Christmas and New Year's and never holidays. If you feel like you want or need an extra job, you are able to obtain it. You were honest in stating your salary, but did you include insurance, the low-priced lunches, etc.? We're sure you are a very dedicated teacher, but will more money make you more dedicated?

As for a college graduate coming straight from college and earning $25,000, ask around, see if this is really true. There may be a few, but the majority can't even find employment.

Teachers are very important to our children but the most important person is the parent, and they can't pay the taxes required for huge raises. Teachers say they want more parent involvement, but how can a parent be more involved when they are both working more hours just to pay the taxes required to implement these raises for your so-called meager earnings?

We're losing our children because of less parent involvement and you want to worsen the situation by the parents being home even less. Ask your students' parents how much their raises were this year, and they work 1 1/2 months, usually without insurance, for their salaries. It's no wonder we're given away so much responsibility to our school system. Parents don't have the money or time for all our governmental costs and more parental obligations too.

Idaho needs more state police

Please — we need more Idaho State Police. Educating drivers, traffic safety, motorist assists, tickets, criminal interdiction and aid to the other law enforcement agencies, accidents, monitoring hazardous material on state highways and commercial vehicle safety are just a few of the Idaho State Police duties.

Ten counties that the Idaho State Police covers in District 4, based in Twin Falls, have 25 officers to carry out duties at 2.5 officers per county. How about vacations and emergencies? From 3 a.m. to 6 a.m., officers are on call but not on patrol. Officers must weigh the safety of continuing that pursuit vs. the safety of discontinuing it. There are times when an officer may choose to crash cars during pursuit. He must outgrow the harm that could result from discontinuing the chase. Our Idaho State Police officers all hold high-risk jobs, and they should draw the pay for it. Better pay and benefits will attract and hold a better ISP force. How many people out there think one officer is enough for an accident? Have you seen one lately?

Idaho has an influx of out-of-state people moving into the state. This alone takes heavy manpower to handle that is available. Take a look at our crime rate. There were 80,000 new registrations from 1992-93, and remember, the Idaho State Police does lots more than being a road warrior.

Everyone should call 1-800-626-0471 and tell them to give us more Idaho State Police officers. Let's make our state a safer place to drive and live in. You owe it to yourself and family to live in an environment of adequate protection.

Declo parents didn't jump coach

In the Sports section of the Feb. 20 Times-News, it stated that I had "tendered my resignation after being jumped by three sets of Declo parents following a loss at Gooding." I would like to set the record straight.

I did submit my resignation after the Gooding loss — due to a variety of factors — but never was I jumped by three sets of parents.

Every coach deals with things on and off the court. I have enjoyed the time I have spent working with some great kids. I will always support Declo athletics and appreciate the years I've spent coaching.

Government will control people

I am concerned about the future. Not about the usual things, though. Not the ozone or AIDS.

I am concerned about guns. To read that last sentence, you would think that I am against them. Quite the opposite. I am worried about them because we soon may not have any. Why? Read on.

We soon may not have any guns because of laws similar to the Brady Bill. The Brady Bill puts a five-day waiting period on the purchase of all handguns. If you can wait five days for a gun, why not 100 days? Why not forever? The laws and bills will get worse if we don't do something now.

I think that this is something to be worried about because if the people have no arms to defend themselves with, the government would have total control of the people and the things that they do and say. They, the people, could not defend themselves against an oppressive ruler(s). The Revolutionary War was won simply because our forefathers were armed. If we were ever in that situation again and we had no arms, we would most certainly lose. The right to keep and bear arms is vital if this country wants to keep her freedoms.

You may be saying, "But guns only cause violence. What about the people who are robbed at gunpoint?" If those people had been armed, those would-be bandits would be licking their wounds in the local hospital. Isn't that better than the defenseless lying dead in the streets?

That is why I am concerned about guns — or rather, the lack of them. Shouldn't you be too?

Perot supporters exercise power

I am always pleased to see another hysterical editorial about Ross Perot and United We Stand America. We must be doing something right.

You don't appear to be overly interested in the facts, but I will present them anyway. "Disciples of Ross Perot" is hardly appropriate, given that a fair number of our members did not vote for Perot. Rather, they see him as a true patriot that has the gumption to stand up and say what needs to be said. Joining him are millions of Americans across the country — independent people — that would take offense at being called a disciple of anything but our Constitution and the American way of life.

As for Perot's desire to "run the country," it is always a pleasure to see a major media outlet that is used to telling us what to think squirm under the weight of thousands of Americans that no longer believe what they read.

As LWUSA continues the process of empowering Americans, there is bound to be some resistance from those that presently hold power. Instead of politicians, the media and the bureaucrats "running the country," we are beginning to see the people take their rightful place in having a say as to how the greatest country on this earth should operate.

Solve crime against great people

Twenty-four years ago, I stayed in the home of Reuben and Lena Stohler, at which time I did their chores while they were away several days on vacation.

The Feb. 26 article concerning the murder of Reuben in September 1970 brought back many memories. I still have the clippings from this Times-News front-page article concerning this tragedy.

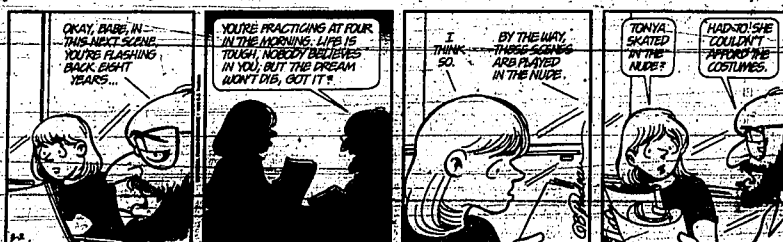

The Stohlers were two very kind and gentle people.

Sweden, Finland enter European Union

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Sweden and Finland agreed on membership terms with the European Union Tuesday, opening the way for them to join the trade bloc by the end of the year.

Diplomats said the 12-nation union wrapped up negotiations with Finland several days after the completion of all-night bargaining with Sweden that at times appeared near collapse.

"This is a historic day," Sweden's European affairs minister, Ulf Dinkelspiel, smiled.

Sweden was the first of four candidates to conclude a deal with the European Union.

Austria continued negotiations, while Norway suspended discussions for a week after failing to resolve differences over fishing rights in its rich North Sea waters.

Citizens of the four countries would have to approve membership in referendums before they could join by the Jan. 1 target date.

About 340 million people now live in countries of the European Union, an organization that unlike the NAFTA free-trade zone, provides for eventual monetary and political union and EU citizenship.

The four nations would be the first to join the union since Spain and Portugal in 1986. The group was founded by six nations in 1957.

Bargaining with Sweden was held up by Swedish demands that its financial contribution to the union be phased in over time. Poorer nations of the group objected to joining Sweden, a rich nation, a break on its membership dues.

To end the impasse, the EU offered a package of financial compensation.

Final details of the membership agreement were not immediately available.

EU negotiators reportedly gave in to Finland's demand for special assistance for its farmers, who contend their harsh climate and long distances from consumer markets put them at a competitive disadvantage.

The talks with Austria have been held up over its insistence on retaining strict limits on truck traffic on Alpine roads through 2004.

Sweden agrees on membership terms with the European Union

The union has offered a three-year waiver of its truck rules, with an option of extensions adding up to seven years.

Russians arrest defense official for espionage

MOSCOW (AP) — A senior defense industry official was caught spying for Britain and passing secret information on Russia's newest weapons to the West over the past year, the government announced Tuesday.

The arrest of the unidentified man occurred Jan. 15, said Alexander Mikhailov, a spokesman for the Federal Counterintelligence Service. He said the suspect, a top official "with a military-industrial complex's organization," confessed 10 days later.

In London, the British Foreign Office had no comment.

The case was the latest wrinkle in an espionage scandal that began last week when U.S. authorities arrested a CIA official for allegedly spying for the Kremlin.

Release of details in the Russian case came one day after Moscow ordered an American diplomat to leave the country in retaliation for the U.S. expulsion of a Russian diplomat over the CIA case.

The U.S. arrest of Aldrich Ames, a CIA counterintelligence official, and his wife on charges of spying for the Soviet Union and then Russia in exchange for at least $2.5 million has strained relations between Moscow and Washington.

Russians have countered that the United States and other Western nations continue to spy on Russia despite the end of the Cold War. And announcement of the spy case weeks after the fact undermines the new assertiveness of President Boris Yeltsin's government in dealing with the West.

The new tone apparently results from Yeltsin's attempt to counter gains by Communists and nationalists in December's parliamentary elections. They have accused him of being too lenient in defending Russia's interests abroad.

If convicted of treason, the Russian official could face the death penalty.

Plane engine breaks loose on landing

TOKYO — The wing of a Northwest Airlines jumbo jet caught fire Tuesday during a landing at Tokyo New International Airport.

All 247 passengers and crew members evacuated the plane unharmed, police and airline officials said. The plane was Northwest's Flight 18 from Hong Kong.

White smoke swirled around the plane after it veered off the runway, but the fire appeared contained to a section of the left wing above the outside engine. The engine hung down, touching the grass.

A police official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the fire began when the engine broke loose and landed along the runway. He said investigators had not determined why it tore away.

The airport, at Narita, 40 miles northwest of Tokyo, was closed briefly.

Negotiators discuss future in Vietnam

HANOI, Vietnam — U.S. and Vietnamese negotiators reported progress Tuesday in the first major talks in more than 20 years aimed at eventually establishing diplomatic relations between the two former enemies.

The talks centered on details of the opening of liaison offices by Vietnam in Washington and by the United States in Hanoi, and on American financial claims against Vietnam stemming from the war.

After two days of talks here, part of the 13-member U.S. delegation headed home Tuesday with no announcement on when the next session would be held.

"We've been making progress," said James Hall, director of the State Department's Office of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia Affairs, and the leader of the U.S. delegation in the Hanoi negotiations.

Talks continue to avoid Zulu boycott

Before the meeting started, Buthelezi had said the African National Congress president was wasting his time. But the central committee of Buthelezi's Inkatha Freedom Party indicated a deal was still possible, and the chief was upbeat when the two leaders broke for lunch.

"Everything's going on very well, very well indeed ... it couldn't be better," Buthelezi said.

The ANC is favored to win the April 26-28 election and lead the first post-apartheid government. Buthelezi says a new constitution drafted by the ANC and other groups would allow the ANC to govern unchecked and trample the rights of Zulus and other minorities.

Mexican agency changes vote system

MEXICO CITY — Apparently trying to placate a rebellion, the agency in charge of organizing voting in this year's election announced an extensive reform of Mexico's fraud-ridden system.

The reform was agreed upon Monday by the nine political parties fielding candidates in the Aug. 21 presidential election.

The Zapatista National Liberation Army, which took over several towns in southern Chiapas state in a New Year's Day uprising, has demanded either the resignation of President Carlos Salinas de Gortari or reforms to make the electoral process credible.

A news release from the Federal Electoral Institute, a semi-autonomous body within the Interior Department, did not mention the rebellion, but said the reforms aimed at "achieving what all Mexicans want — an objective, clean and transparent election process."

Missile interceptor test fails again

JERUSALEM — A test launch of Israel's troubled Arrow anti-missile missile was aborted Tuesday because of a ground equipment malfunction on final countdown, the Defense Ministry said.

It was the seventh test of the system, funded jointly by Israel and the United States. Only one has been considered successful.

The ministry said that a target missile was launched from a secret facility in Israel. But the Arrow interceptor launch was scrapped because of a "malfunction is believed to have occurred in the ground support equipment."

Israel began developing the Arrow in 1988 with the United States, which has paid 72 percent, or $461 million. The 1991 Gulf War, when Iraqi Scud missiles hit Israel, underlined the need for a functioning anti-missile system.

Milking machine electrocutes 46 cows

MAIDSTONE, England — A farmer accidentally electrocuted 46 of his cows with a faulty milking machine Tuesday morning.

Only eight of William Murdoch's specially bred herd survived when he turned on the electric milking machine, which was attached to the cows' teats.

"All of a sudden the cows started jumping back," Murdoch said. "We realized something awful was happening and we turned all the power off, but by that time it was all too late. ... I've lost almost all my cows."

Electric faults in milking machines have killed cows before but not on this scale, according to Mark Ensell of the National Farmers' Union, who examined Murdoch's equipment along with electric company officials.

Idaho Lawmakers tap surplus for building

The Associated Press

BOISE — Gov. Cecil Andrus came under bipartisan attack Tuesday from legislative budget writers still angry that he circumvented them two years ago to build the $11.2 million state law enforcement complex.

"We've got to get on top of who builds the buildings," Republican Sen. Stan Hawkins of Ucon told the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee.

The committee voted 13-7 to take another $11.2 million from the dwindling state surplus to pay back the State Insurance Fund for the complex west of Boise. The decision will save the state over $10 million in financing charges.

The Law Enforcement Department paid a price for the building controversy as the committee's Republican majority took a hard line on its operating budget, denying Democratic accusations that it was being punitive.

"I'm going to reduce as much as possible to balance things out," GOP Rep. Robert Geddes of Preston said.

While the committee acknowledged paying the building off now made good business sense, it still voted to strip more than $400,000 from the governor's general tax spending recommendation.

Around the valley

Bill would allow CSI to hike tuition in fall

BOISE — The College of Southern Idaho could raise its tuition as early as this fall, if a bill approved Tuesday by the Senate Education Committee becomes law.

The measure, sponsored by Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, would raise the maximum community-college tuition for area residents from $450 a year to $950 a year. The maximum yearly increase also would rise, from $20 to $50.

CSI is now bumping up against the current tuition ceiling, college President Gerald Meyerhoffer said. If the ceiling is raised, the college would consider a tuition boost for the 1994-95 academic year, he said.

CSI's student government is on record as supporting an increase in tuition.

The size of any tuition hike would depend largely on how much state money CSI receives this year, Meyerhoffer said. The Legislature's joint budget committee probably will take up the community college budget later this week. Noh's bill now goes to the full Senate.

Task force meeting to focus on special child-care unit

TWIN FALLS — A regional child protection task force will meet tonight to discuss the potential for providing the Magic Valley with a special child-care unit.

The public meeting begins at 7 p.m. at the state Department of Health and Welfare building on Pole Line Road.

Much to residents' dismay, City OKs street extension

TWIN FALLS — Elm Street North will be extended south to Lawndale Drive.

That much Lawndale residents could be sure of after a confusing City Council meeting Monday in which council members questioned not only what they were voting on, but also whether they could vote on the matter at all.

The city has approved a construction agreement with Melco Inc., Feb. 7, allowing for Elm Street's extension from Cheney Drive to Lawndale.

Protests from Lawndale residents prompted the council to reconsider whether Elm Street needed to be extended just yet.

After several motions were passed and then withdrawn, the council voted 5-2 to continue funding the Elm Street project. City Councilmen Chris Talkington and Tom Condie voted in the minority.

Senate axes bill allowing schools to set impact fees

BOISE — The state Senate on Monday overwhelmingly turned down a proposal by Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey, to let school districts impose impact fees on new residential development.

Peavey's bill attracted just seven votes, with 27 senators voting against it.

The measure would have allowed districts to impose fees of up to $250 per square foot on new residential construction within the district.

Peavey argued that impact fees were a valuable tool, both for managing growth and helping it pay for the public services it necessitates.

But opponents said the fees would stifle growth and burden Idahoans moving between houses, not out-of-staters moving in.

Regulation of ostrich farms awaits Andrus' signature

BOISE — Ostrich farms would be subject to state regulation under a bill passed unanimously by the Idaho House Monday.

The measure, sponsored by Rep. Celia Gould, defines ostriches, emus, rheas and cassowaries as livestock; gives the state Agriculture Department responsibility for supervising the breeding, raising and marketing of the giant birds; allows rules to be issued to prevent diseases among the birds; and authorizes inspection of farms where they are raised.

It also establishes a property right for domestic ostriches and other "ratties," so that if one of the birds escapes and lays an egg on someone else's property, the owner of the bird would still own the egg.

The measure already has passed the Senate and now goes to Gov. Cecil Andrus for his signature.

U.S. Army Capt. Bruce Evans spends the afternoon with his daughter Lauren while attending the CSI baseball home opener Tuesday at Frontier Field. Evans, who is a resident trainer for the local Idaho National Guard tank battalion, said he also works as a volunteer assistant coach for the Golden Eagles.

Jerome P&Z issues permits for 2 firms

By R.R. Weikel
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — Two companies that bring 38 new jobs to Jerome have gotten the go ahead from the county planning and zoning commission.

Building requirements in the Magic Valley and the need for manufacturing plants between Boise and Pocatello that can also supply the Sun Valley-Ketchum areas made the Jerome locations "attractive and good" for both companies, said Forrest Hymas, Jerome Economic Community Coordinator.

A. C. Houston Lumber Inc., with corporate headquarters in Las Vegas, Nev., and Gem State Truss, Inc. of Meridian, were granted "special-use" permits to construct the plants wherein they would manufacture roof and floor trusses in Jerome County.

The Houston plant will be located on 12 acres adjacent to Moore Business Forms and Systems in the city impact zone. City water and sewer lines are available at the site, according to city records. The property would be annexed into the city, Hymas told the commission.

Construction of the plant, which will employ about 20 people, should be completed by June, Houston operating manager Jim Davis said.

The Gem State plant will be located on five acres along Highway 93 near the Jerome County landfill.

Gem State Truss is owned by John Hubbard, John Haight and Scott Hudson.

"This is a family-type business," Hubbard said. The company plans to hire about 18 people, he said. It decided to locate in Jerome County "because of the demand in the area and the good

Juvenile detainees under watchful eyes of county

By Sean L. McCarthy
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The state Department of Health and Welfare handed over control of the county's juvenile detention program to county officials Tuesday.

Paul Frick, former director of the Minidoka area's youth lockup, now runs Twin Falls County's eight-bed facility at the county fairgrounds in Filer.

"He'll be in there at 8 in the morning and we'll have a smooth transfer," said Linda Wright, 5th District trial court administrator.

"We're trying to have (the kids) not even realize that a transition has taken place," Wright said Monday.

The transition from state to county management, has gone smoothly, Frick said

Tuesday afternoon.

"The state made it easy for us and worked with us," he said.

Frick took two weeks to prepare for Tuesday's transfer of power at the Filer lockup, and said he would not change policies drastically in the short term.

"It's hard for the kids because they realize there's a big change occurring," he said. The county appointed Wright, County Commissioner Norma Bless and 5th District Judge J. William Hart to a policy board responsible for performing the district's juvenile justice system.

Hart replaced Twin Falls County Magistrate Judge Melvin C. Edwards, who stepped down from the board for personal reasons.

Lesbian kiss too risqué; station axes 'Roseanne'

By Mick Northington
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — KKVJ-TV's management Tuesday refused to air a "Roseanne" episode in which a lesbian character kissed the heroine.

"Depictions of homosexual behavior at 8 p.m. on a Tuesday night isn't something we'd like to include in our programming," said station General Manager Dick McMahon.

In the episode, actress Roseanne Arnold was kissed by actress Mariel Hemingway, who portrayed a lesbian character.

"There's no sexual activity unless you consider that sexual activity. I guess it's all in the eyes of the beholder," McMahon said.

The decision not to broadcast the show was made after McMahon and other company officials watched the episode on closed-circuit TV Tuesday morning.

KKVJ and four other Ambassador Media Group TV stations, owned by former Republican U.S. Sen. William Armstrong of Denver, refused to air an older "Roseanne" episode instead.

Harry Neuhardt, general manager of Armstrong's KPVI-TV station in Pocatello, also announced his station wouldn't show the episode.

McMahon said he would have considered showing the episode later at night, but ABC doesn't allow such programming delays. Still, McMahon said he did nothing, and didn't know about a recent episode of "Roseanne" in which the adult characters smoked marijuana in their home.

Off screen, Arnold has been fighting with her network, ABC, for months to get Tuesday's episode broadcast. The show "Roseanne" which is often among the most-watched programs on television, features lesbians among its regular characters.

This is the third time in recent months that McMahon has pulled a show.

Since September, KKVJ has refused to broadcast the popular 9 p.m. show "NYPD Blue," which featured profanity and brief nudity. Also last year, McMahon didn't broadcast an episode of "Civil Wars" in which Hemingway's nude silhouette appeared.

ABC affiliate KIVI-TV in Nampa aired Tuesday's episode of "Roseanne." The Nampa station also showed "NYPD Blue."

McMahon said he didn't get protests of

A setback too many; developers scrap rim plan

By Sean L. McCarthy
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Local comedian Danny Maröth and developer Devoe Brown decided Monday that they can't fight City Hall.

They withdrew a request that the City Council reconsider their proposed residential subdivision along the south rim of the Snake River Canyon.

The developers simply did not want to fight a lengthy legal battle with the city, said their attorney, Gary D. Slette.

"My clients' decision to withdraw these matters at this time is precipitated by their personal frustration, rather than a passive acquiescence to the decisions resulting from the city's review process," Slette wrote in a Feb. 28 letter to the council.

"I'm not going to force the issue," Brown said in an interview Tuesday.

"I've lived here in Twin for 40 years and have had a good working relationship with the city."

The development group, DMC Productions, has decided to scrap development of its 20.44 acres on Canyon Rim Road northwest of the city, Slette said Tuesday.

"They've dropped their option on it," he said. "If the city was going to single them out and treat them differently, they were going to have no part of it."

Brown said development of the land "was not feasible" without building homes close to the canyon rim.

DMC wanted to build 25 luxury homes near and along the canyon rim above the city's wastewater treatment plant.

Four of the homes would have been built between 50 and 60 feet from the rim, with views looking east toward the Perrine Ridge.

But three times — twice by the city planning and zoning commission and once by the City Council — the city rejected DMC's request to build within 100 feet of the rim.

The council rejected DMC's request by a 3-3 vote Feb. 22.

'Good news' — Air Force base getting more planes, workers

By William Brock
Times-News writer

MOUNTAIN HOME — It's still a candidate for closure, but the Mountain Home Air Force Base will be getting a little bigger following a Department of Defense announcement that 12 new fighters and 315 military personnel will be arriving over the next year.

The 366th Composite Wing will also be getting six B-1B long-range bombers, but those planes will be based at Ellsworth Air Force Base in South Dakota. The bombers cannot be kept with the rest of the wing at Mountain Home because of inadequate facilities.

As of Tuesday, 70 planes were assigned to Mountain Home Air Force Base, said a base spokesman.

"This is good news, and it's something we're excited about," said Capt. Christina Austin, 366th spokeswoman. "It's definitely a sign that Mountain Home is an important national asset."

However, Austin cautioned that Mountain Home could still be closed as part of a sweeping military base closure campaign.

"That's a completely separate process," she said.

Of the new fighters, six will be F-15Cs that will arrive later this year. F-15Cs are single seat, air-to-air fighters that provide defensive support for other, more vulnerable airplanes.

There are 15 F-15Cs already stationed at Mountain Home.

The other six fighters will be F-15Es, which are scheduled to arrive in early 1995. F-15Es are two-seater, fighter-bombers and there are 13 of them already stationed at Mountain Home.

In addition to 315 full-time military personnel, Mountain Home will be getting a few new civilian employees, Austin said. The new arrivals "will be phased in over a period of time," she added.

Problems at Boise blood bank won't affect Magic Valley flow

By Mick Normington
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — With federal officials ordering the Boise American Red Cross blood center to shut its operations problems or fix them, blood coming to the Magic Valley is being tested in Denon.

Federal Drug and Administration officials in November found 40 problems during a surprise inspection of the Boise Red Cross blood bank. The FDA had found other problems in the past at the Boise center.

In one case, a man said he had hepatitis, but his blood still got into the system, according to FDA.

National Red Cross officials are reorganizing the Boise office, said Boise Red Cross spokeswoman Trudy Sullivan. And the Boise office will be closed Monday and Tuesday for retraining its staff.

With the new precautions and support from national Red Cross officials, the Boise Red Cross will continue to supply blood to Magic Valley hospitals.

And with those precautions, hospitals don't need to take additional measures to test blood coming from Boise, said Dr. Harold Hansen, medical technologist and coordinator of the blood bank at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in Twin Falls.

The Boise Red Cross supplies blood to local medical facilities such as:

- Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in Twin Falls;
- Twin Falls Hospital and Clinic;
- Cassia Memorial Hospital and Medical Center in Burley;
- Minidoka Memorial Hospital in Rupert;
- St. Benedict's Family Medical Center in Jerome;
- Gooding County Hospital;
- Wood River Medical Center in Hailey and Ketchikan.

If the Red Cross officials find more problems while the Boise office is shut down next week, the organization can supply Idaho hospitals from elsewhere in the nation, Sullivan said.

"It will have no impact on your service. No patient will go without blood," she said.

FDA inspectors found the Boise Red Cross deficient in its equipment, record keeping, and supervising.

In one case, a blood-donor who answered "yes" on a questionnaire that asked if he had tested positive for hepatitis still had his blood drawn. A week later, the Red Cross called the donor, questioned him and then recalled his blood. Tests found it to be safe, however.

"We made a mistake in one of our layers of protection. That was just one of the layers," Sullivan said.

As a result of the FDA problems, Carolyn Lyons, a Boise nurse who was in charge of operations at the center, resigned Saturday. Her boss, Dr. Gerald Giordano, the Red Cross' chief for Western states, has stepped in to temporarily run the Boise office. He is also starting an "independent-quality assurance team" in Boise to prevent such problems in the future.

Also, testing of blood donations in Idaho has been transferred to Detroit.

The Boise Red Cross processed about 85,000 pints of blood last year, which were distributed throughout Idaho.

Fish & Game employees feel threatened by Andrus over range

The Associated Press

BOISE — Some Idaho Department of Fish and Game employees opposed to a state-owned Air Force training range in the Owyhee desert feel threatened by Gov. Cecil Andrus, a chief proponent of the project, a public employee group charges.

But Andrus replies Fish and Game was instrumental in creating the range proposal to address wildlife concerns.

Jeff DeBonis, director of Public Employees for Environmental Responsibility, on Tuesday said his group has spoken with Fish and Game employees in the wake of hearings over the draft environmental impact statement on the 25,000-acre range, split north and south of the Owyhee River Canyon.

Public Employees for Environmental Responsibility is composed of thousands of Forest Service, Bureau of Land Management and other federal workers, as well as state employees largely involved with land and resource oversight.

The Idaho Fish and Game Commission also recently announced it could not support Andrus' proposal because of the potential damage to wildlife from jet traffic, flares and aluminum radar chaff dropped from the Air Force planes.

Fish and Game personnel felt Andrus' plan was unfair, it was uncalculated and it was illogical," DeBonis said.

"He was muzzling the employees and publicly castigating (Director Jerry Conley) and the commission. The employees felt that. They were humiliated."

DeBonis also charged Fish and Game biologists could not present their research data that the range should be located elsewhere, possibly east of Idaho Highway 51 running from Bruneau to the Nevada border.

The Fish and Game Department was asked to develop and did develop an alternative for the Air Force range that meets wildlife concerns," said Scott Peyton, spokesman for Andrus.

"Fish and Game and its employees have been involved with every phase of the review of the proposal that originated at Fish and Game."

I fail to see where that is rough treatment by the governor," Peyton said.

DeBonis, a former Forest Service employee of 12 years, said Andrus' conflict with former Bureau of Land Management Director Jim Baca over the range was only a partial reason that Baca recently was forced out.

DeBonis said state BLM directors are often tied in with resource groups such as cattlemen and their opposition largely resulted in Baca's departure.

"If you get crossways with the cattle industry, your time on the job is short," DeBonis said.

He said BLM employees are demoralized by the Baca incident and intend to write a letter to Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt in the next few weeks to notify him of their qualms.

DeBonis said his group is a way for them to voice their fears without putting their names and their jobs on the line.

Judge stops UP brakemen strike

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A federal judge on Tuesday ordered brakemen and conductors to end a strike against Union Pacific Railroad, an action that came over a rule requiring workers to drive company cars in rail yards.

About 4½ hours after the walkout began, U.S. District Judge Thomas Shanahan signed an order prohibiting the United Transportation Union from striking before a court hearing Thursday. Union Pacific, in turn, cannot enforce the work rule at issue, the judge said. An undetermined number of workers joined the walkout, the Omaha-based railroad said. Pickets were reported at Fort Worth, Texas; Little Rock, Ark.; Poplar Bluff, Mo.; and outside the company's headquarters.

The union said strike centered on a work rule that requires its members to drive company-owned vehicles while staying in radio communication with engineer-only operated trains.

Railroad spokesman Alex Tice called the issue "baffling," saying he was unaware of any instance where the rule had been required workers represented by the United Transportation Union to drive company vehicles.

Navajo official objects to naming of Hantavirus strain after canyon

The Associated Press

The chairman of a Navajo tribal health committee says the National Centers for Disease Control should rethink its decision to name a lethal strain of hantavirus after Canyon del Muerto, or Canyon of the Dead.

"It should be called something else entirely," said Genevieve Jackson, head of the tribal Health and Social Services Committee, which she said is one of several tribal groups that would have to approve the name.

Canyon del Muerto is part of Canyon de Chelly National Monument, Ariz., on the Navajo reservation, and is near where one of the early cases of hantavirus was identified last year, CDC spokesman Bob Howard said last week.

"We don't want it (the illness) called Muerto Canyon or anything like that with a Navajo connotation," Jackson said.

"It's unfairly being connected to the Navajo, when it's actually been around a lot longer than when it was found here," she said.

Howard said the name Muerto Canyon Hantavirus was chosen after consultation with tribal officials. But Jackson said the tribe was not consulted.

Wilson Hunter, a Navajo park ranger at Canyon de Chelly, has said Navajos objected to the canyon's name even before officials proposed naming the hantavirus for it.

Canyon del Muerto was named for an 1882 Smithsonian Institution expedition that found ancient Indian graves. But the subject-of-death is taboo in Navajo culture.

The hantavirus was first identified last spring in the Four Corners area, where Arizona, New Mexico, Utah and Colorado meet.

It causes severe respiratory distress, and some of the first cases last year were among Navajos. The tribe criticized the media and others for the perception the disease was a Navajo one.

Hantavirus cases since have been found in 17 states — including one dating back to 1975 in southern New Mexico, according to figures released last week by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in Atlanta.

Kent Taylor, a CDC spokesman, said Tuesday there have been 60 cases in all and 36 deaths. Federal officials say 30 patients were white, 26 Indian and four Hispanic.

CSI marks tuition money for expansion

By Mick Normington
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — With enrollment up about 7 percent this semester — from more older students — the College of Southern Idaho has more tuition money than expected.

And on Monday night, the CSI Trustees voted unanimously to designate some of that extra money to expansion on the campus. The trustees moved $150,000 into CSI's plant and facilities fund.

The new Center for New Directions has been earmarked to replace that extra money, said Mike Mason, CSI's dean of finance. The center was planned to help working mothers, but will include programs for other adult students returning to school.

And adult students are why CSI is growing.

"The majority of our growth has been older students. And the real growth has come from the 20- to 24-year-olds," said Ken Campbell, director of institutional research who monitors enrollment figures.

From fall of 1992 to fall of 1993, the number of "traditional" students under the age of 20 decreased by 4 percent.

But CSI's enrollment grew by 9 percent in the fall. That growth came from 20- and 21-year-olds, up 28 percent; 22- to 24-year-olds, up 18 percent; and 30- to 34-year-olds, up 13 percent.

Also, male student enrollment was up 14 percent, and female enrollment was up 6 percent.

Over the past five years, enrollment is up 39 percent at CSI, Campbell said.

CSI had 4,061 students enrolled in mid-January. But not all classes had started by that time, so that number should be higher.

To accommodate that growth, CSI is building.

The new 100-bed dormitory that should open this fall is already booked, said CSI President Gerald Meyerhoeffer.

Also, the CSI trustees accepted the bid Monday from the Astro-Tec contracting firm to build a planetarium dome atop the museum. For $119,000. Construction on that should begin in October and finish in May 1995.

The trustees also decided on limestone panels for the new library, construction of which should begin in July or August and take 14 months to complete.

Obituaries

Robert T. Rockwell

He was born Jan. 23, 1926, in Coburg, Ore., the son of John Sidney and Ruby Harris Wittman. Tom grew up in Oregon where he met his future wife, Doris Gohmert. He was serving in the U.S. Navy Reserve during World War II when he and Doris were married on Feb. 7, 1945, in San Diego, Calif. They moved to the state of Washington shortly after they were married. They also lived in New Mexico for a number of years and for the past 17 years, they had lived in Idaho.

Tom loved Idaho and enjoyed fishing, hunting and the outdoors. He also took several courses at different colleges and institutions.

Survivors include his wife of 49 years, Doris Rockwell of Twin Falls; two sons, Robert Thomas (Anita) Rockwell Jr. of Avalon, Calif., and Richard Paul Rockwell of Twin Falls; four grandsons, Robert Thomas Rockwell III and Donnie Rockwell of Tacoma, Wash., and Paul and David Rockwell of Twin Falls; one great-granddaughter, Ashley Rockwell; one great-grandson, Dakota Rockwell of Tacoma, Wash.; one sister, Joan Beck of Coresoged, Calif.; an aunt and uncle, nieces, nephews, cousins and many friends.

A graveside service will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday, March 3, 1994, at the Twin Falls Cemetery, with the Rev. A.C. Sloan and Robert P. McMullen officiating. Friends may call from 4 to 8 p.m. today and from 9 to 9:30 a.m. on Thursday at White Mortuary in Twin Falls.

Earl K. Evans

TWIN FALLS — Earl Keith Evans, 87, of Twin Falls, died Saturday, Feb. 26, 1994, at his home.

He was born June 15, 1906, in Salt Lake City, Utah, the son of William Cushman and Lucy Rossiter Evans.

Survivors include one daughter, Janet Sullivan of Greenleaf, Idaho; one grandson, Dustin Daniel; and two sisters, Marjorie Hogue of Murtaugh and Marlan Bruno of Richland, Wash.

Cremation will take place at White Mortuary and funeral services will be held at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls. Arrangements are under the direction of White Mortuary in Twin Falls.

the "Roseanne" episode, as he did with "NYPD Blue."

But Dr. Wayne Wright of Twin Falls, president of the Idaho-Family Forum, said he was happy about the decision not to show "Roseanne."

"We appreciate KKKV's sensitivity to community standards. As they did with 'NYPD Blue,' they let community standards rather than some liberal program director in Hollywood decide what would be seen in the Magic Valley," Wright said.

"We don't accept homosexual activity as a normal lifestyle, nor do we think TV should portray it that way," Wright said.

Juveniles

County commissioners voted in December to end their contract for state management because the county wanted local control of its juvenile detention, diversion and probation programs.

The policy board's main concern has been to keep the youth lockup running until a new six-county facility is built in the Twin Falls Industrial Park, Wright said.

Scheduled for completion by September, the 12-bed facility will hold juveniles arrested in Blaine.

Camas, Gooding, Jerome, Lincoln and Twin Falls counties.

For now, eight of the 10 state employees at the Filer lockup are shifting to the county payroll, and Frick has hired two replacements.

The next task for the policy board will be to "write and implement policy" for the existing and future lockups, Wright said.

Those policies probably will not differ much from Health and Welfare, at least in the short run, "but it will be ours," he said.

"Having to go down Blue Lakes Boulevard with our product was one reason we decided not to locate in Twin," he said.

The company will landscape its property at the intersection of High-

The permit was contingent upon the company planting trees and shrubs in accordance with advice from the U.S. Soil and Water Conservation Service.

State works on new Snake bridge

DECOLO — The Idaho Transportation Department has resumed construction work on a replacement for the 38-year-old Downard Bridge over the Snake River between Decolo and Rupert. Crews from Idaho Construction Co. of Kimberly began working on the bridge Feb. 21. The $1.68-million project is scheduled for completion by Sept. 1. The new, 1,123-foot concrete bridge will be wider, higher and built on a flatter angle than the old Downard Bridge.

CSI spreadsheet course begins

BURLEY — The College of Southern Idaho Mini-Cassia Center is offering a one-credit class in Lotus 1-2-3, a popular spreadsheet program. The five-week class is set for 7 to 10 p.m. Mondays, beginning this Monday. David Hartman will instruct the course. He will help students discover how this integrated package can help them develop financial spreadsheets for home and office accounts, manage databases and give them the capability to produce pie charts, line and bar graphs and other types of business graphics for reports and presentations. Pre-registration is required. For more information, call 678-1400.

Desert Art Guild meets Thursday

BURLEY — The Desert Art Guild has planned its regular meeting for 1:30 p.m. Thursday in the conference room at the Burley Library. Anyone wanting to learn to cut mats is asked to bring a picture and a piece of mat board. Mat cutters will be available. All interested people are invited. Compiled from staff reports.

Health officials wage battle against hepatitis in schools

By Liz Wright
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Public health officials in the Minidoka County have stepped up their efforts to combat the spread of hepatitis A following a recent outbreak. Four children and possibly a fifth have been stricken with hepatitis A in Minidoka County, prompting school and health officials to warn about it's possible spread.

Health officials don't know where the children became infected with the virus that inflames the liver, but they have diagnosed four cases since January — two children who attend a day-care center in Rupert and two children at Heyburn Elementary School, said Nancy Kunau, Minidoka County School nurse. Children often don't have any symptoms, making it difficult for health officials to isolate the virus and prevent others from contracting it, said Cheryl Becker, nurse epidemiologist at South Central District Health Department in Twin Falls.

"You may have several cases in a day care and not know it," Becker said. The hepatitis-A virus can spread from person to person through the feces of the infected, Kunau said. Unlike hepatitis B, which is transmitted through sexual contact and blood, hepatitis A is spread by ingesting the virus, as in contaminated food and drink or other means. Kunau said the best way to stop the spread is simple — wash hands before and after meals and after going to the bathroom.

She also discourages schools from allowing homemade treats at school functions. She recommends people buy individually wrapped treats instead.

But school officials are not likely to ban homemade treats, Kunau said. The statewide outbreak concerns health officials, who normally see about 20 cases a year, Becker said. Since the beginning of the year, 25 cases have been reported in Ada County and four in Twin Falls County as well as Minidoka County, Becker said.

"This is definitely not epidemic proportions, but it has popped up around the state. We seem to be seeing a few more cases and we're not sure why," she said. "People can infect others ten days before feeling sick and one week after feeling sick," Kunau said. Two weeks to 45 days after a person is exposed they may experience symptoms of the illness. Symptoms range from nothing at all to severe vomiting, abdominal pains, fatigue and jaundice, Kunau said.

All four children who diagnosed with hepatitis A had some sort of contact with each other and their families, Becker said. Health officials are investigating a fifth child who does not have symptoms but may have the virus, Becker said.

On Jan. 19 and 20, health officials administered gamma globulin shots to the kindergarten class and teacher and to the day-care center employees and children, Becker said. Gamma globulin boosts the body ability to fight off viral infections. While it is not a vaccine, it may have prevented the spread of the disease or lessened the symptoms, Becker said.

Parents who contract the illness from their children tend to suffer worse symptoms, Becker said. Often the children are diagnosed only when the parents fall ill, Becker said.

The virus lasts outside the body for 40 to 50 days. There is no medicine to cure it once it is contracted, Kunau said.

To help stop the spread of hepatitis A, Kunau recommended that people:

- Wash their hands after using the toilet or putting diapers on children.
- Wash their hands before preparing ing or eating food. Discourage children and adults from putting nonfood items in their mouths. These items may be a source of the virus.

Charges dropped against man charged with assaulting sailor

By Liz Wright
Times-News writer

BURLEY — A magistrate judge Monday dropped the charge against a Paul man accused of aggravated assault in the barroom slaying of a U.S. Navy enlisted man last December.

"Magistrate Roy Holloway wrote in an opinion issued Monday that the state lacks sufficient evidence to prosecute Jesus Villanueva, 22. Two weeks ago Holloway dismissed an identical charge against Villanueva's brother, Javier, 21.

A group of people had attacked Shaun Marriott, 23, as he was helping another man out of the bar last December. While Marriott was on the floor, someone cut him with a broken bottle. Only one of a dozen witnesses to the attack at the Riverside Inn Dec. 23 testified that she saw who cut Marriott's throat, Holloway wrote.

That witness, Shauna Reno, described the man who had eluded Marriott's throat as short and heavy-set, unlike Jesus Villanueva, Holloway wrote.

He added that Villanueva was not with the group of people from Arizona who witnesses said had initiated the brawl.

"The court finds it's more probable than not that the defendant was not involved in inflicting injuries upon Mr. Marriott," Holloway wrote. "It is more likely that the individuals responsible for the aggravated battery ... were the two individuals from Arizona or the people that were with them in the group."

Prosecutor Steven Bywater said he had not seen Holloway's opinion yet, but he will discuss it with Marriott and his family before deciding whether to refile the charges.

Bywater said he will need stronger evidence if he refiles. When he initially filed the aggravated assault charges, he felt he had enough evidence from witnesses indicating that the Villanueva brothers were involved in the attack on Marriott.

"I can't believe personally that that many people would be in a bar and not see what happened," Bywater said. "I think people who know things aren't telling us or lying about things."

Lawmakers OK health care changes

BOISE (AP) — Legislation drastically changing operations of Idaho's two largest health insurance providers, Blue Cross and Blue Shield, has cleared the Idaho Legislature and is on its way to Gov. Cecil Andrus.

The House Tuesday voted 65-2 for a bill requiring the two companies, which cover 70 percent of the people in Idaho with health insurance, to become mutual insurance companies by next January.

"It means a lot of money to the state treasury — up to $7 million. The companies will start paying the same 1.6 percent insurance premium as other companies, giving up their preferred legal status.

In exchange, the "Blues" no longer will be under the restriction to invest only in certificates of deposits and treasury bills.

Control of the two organizations will shift from the doctors and hospitals that set them up to the thousands of policyholders who depend on them for medical coverage.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield will not be under strict regulatory control of the Department of Insurance and the Andrus administration's regulatory attempt to force them to provide open enrollment and adopt community rating.

Those requirements only can be imposed by the Legislature on mutual and other traditional insurance providers.

"This is a significant change," said Rep. Mark Stubbs, R-Twin Falls. "It is being done in response to our request to providers for change."

Firth man sentenced in brother's death

BLACKFOOT — A Firth man was sentenced to 15 years to life in prison for killing his brother and paralyzing his wife.

Norman-Joe Alford, 45, pleaded guilty in November to second-degree murder and battery with intent to commit a serious felony for the Feb. 12, 1993 shootings. He originally was charged with first-degree murder but reached a plea agreement with Bingham County Prosecutor Tom Moss.

Seventh District Judge James Herndon Tuesday ordered Alford to serve concurrent sentences of 15 years to life in prison on the murder charge, 15 years on the battery charge, and up to 10 years on each of two counts of using a weapon in the commission of a felony.

Alford claimed he shot the pair after catching them having sex in the kitchen of his home, but his wife denied it. Philip Alford had been living with the couple and their four children.

Bill aims to cut lumbering interference

BOISE — Vandalism, trespassing and disturbing the peace aimed at disrupting timber sales could become felonies in Idaho, punishable by up to $5,000 fines and up to five years in prison.

The House Judiciary, Rules and Administration Committee on Tuesday recommended passage of a bill that would make conspiracy or soliciting someone to interfere with lawful forest activities a felony. The full House could vote on it by the end of the week.

Sponsoring Rep. Alan Lance, R-Meridian, said the bill is aimed at groups such as Earth First!, whose members disrupted a central Idaho logging operation last year.

Idaho County and U.S. Forest Service officers made more than 50 arrests. Since the charges were minor, most received only small fines and short jail sentences.

If the charges are elevated to felonies, out-of-state residents could be extradited to Idaho. Lance said defendants can't be extradited now for misdemeanors.

Businesswoman to join education board

BOISE — Northern Idaho businesswoman Judith Centa Meyer was appointed Tuesday to a five-year term on the state Board of Education.

She replaces Roberta Fields of New Meadows, whose term expired Tuesday.

"Judith Meyer is an outstanding person who will make a tremendous contribution to the educational system of Idaho," Gov. Cecil Andrus said in a statement announcing the appointment. "She has a lifelong commitment to education and a unique understanding of the needs of business because of her experience in private enterprise."

Meyer is a partner in Parkwood Business Properties in Coeur d'Alene, an office and industrial park development and management firm she founded with her husband, Steve, in 1975.

She will resign her position as a North Idaho College trustee when she is confirmed by the Idaho Senate.

Wife to face retrial in husband's death

COEUR D'ALENE — Judge James Michaud has called a retrial of Patricia Gallagher's first-degree murder case, but County Prosecutor Randy Day still has the option to halt the trial before it goes to the jury.

The judge declared a mistrial Feb. 18 after the jury deadlocked at 11-1 for acquitting the Boundary County woman accused of shooting her husband, Jim, to death as he slept in the couple's Hall Mountain home last September.

At the time the mistrial was declared, Day vowed to refile charges and try the case again if the judge decided to throw the case out of court despite pleas by the defense attorneys.

The judge will hear arguments from the defense Thursday at 3:30 p.m. regarding motions for dismissal of the case and acquittal of Gallagher.

Transient sentenced for sex with teen

COEUR D'ALENE — A transient has been sentenced to 10 years in prison for having sex with a 15-year-old Post Falls girl.

First District Judge Gary Haman on Monday said Kelly Silvonon, 29, has a history of criminal offenses and mental problems that warrant the two years fixed, eight years indeterminate, prison sentence.

Silvonon was charged with lewd conduct after a Kootenai County sheriff's deputy spotted him having sex with the girl under the U.S. Highway 95 overpass last September.

Public Defender Jonathan Hull said Silvonon's past record, which includes a number of petty thefts, an aggravated battery and a burglary conviction, "are the product of living on the streets" and that Silvonon should be given a chance to get help to change his life.

Molester ordered to serve prison time

COEUR D'ALENE — A man accused of molesting a 15-year-old girl, then attempting to arrange the murder of the victim's father, has been sentenced to 15 years in prison.

Timothy Dale Lawrence, 34, will serve at least five years behind bars before he is eligible for parole.

Citing the defendant's past felony convictions, 1st District Judge Gary Haman on Monday went beyond the recommendations of the state in handing down the sentence.

The state asked for an eight-year sentence with five years fixed. In exchange for a guilty plea Jan. 31 to one count of lewd conduct, the state agreed to drop three lewd conduct charges and a solicitation to commit murder count.

Andrus' daughter joins consulting firm

BOISE — Former Boise mayoral candidate Tracy Andrus, the daughter of Gov. Cecil Andrus, is closing her downtown dress boutique to begin a career in political consulting and bid development marketing.

Andrus is joining the Boise consulting firm of Jackson/Beaumont-Marketing Inc. as one of three partners. The firm's name was changed on Tuesday to Forbes/Beaumont & Andrus.

"The opportunity to be a partner was too good to pass up," Andrus said Monday. "I'm tired of retailing. I want a new challenge."

Andrus, 38, who has been running the up-scale Andrus-Shane shop since 1986, lost the Boise mayoral race to Republican Brent Coles last November. She said she had been thinking about quitting the retail business for more than a year.

"I said all along, if I were to win I would sell the store or close it," she said.

Teen charged as adult in killing attempt

AMERICAN FALLS — A 16-year-old American Falls boy was charged as an adult with attempted murder after another teen-ager was shot in the face.

Gary W. Feliciano was sitting in a handgun to shoot at a vehicle in which Shawn Peterson, 15, was a back-seat passenger Monday afternoon, Power County Prosecutor Henry Boomer said.

Boomer said the shooting occurred after an argument between Feliciano and other teen-agers in a car. Bullets were fired through the front of the car and one struck Peterson in the face.

The boy was hospitalized in Pocatello after surgery.

Feliciano, who recently moved to American Falls from Detroit, remained in custody Tuesday.

Largest fire in decades levels Lewiston buildings

LEWISTON (AP) —

Investigators picked through the rubble of downtown buildings destroyed Tuesday in a spectacular early morning fire.

Arson investigators from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms from Spokane, Wash., sought clues to the cause of the largest fire in decades to strike this city's historic downtown district.

Flames were seen on three floors of the four-story brick Weisgerber Building as firefighters arrived shortly after 3 a.m., Fire Chief Thomas Tomberg said.

There were no injuries. People living in apartments in the Weisgerber Building and an adjacent building escaped after being awakened by a man who was working late in an office.

A brick wall was all that remained of the Weisgerber Building, which was later knocked down for safety. Bricks from the building's front facade spilled onto Main Street.

Crews from as far away as Pullman, Wash., joined others from the Pottlatch Corp., Asotin County and Clarkston, Wash., in fighting the two-alarm fire.

Mike Estes was working at his computer business on the Weisgerber Building's third floor early Tuesday when he heard a crashing noise. When he went to investigate, he smelled and then saw smoke in a hallway, Estes said.

Estes said he rushed outside and flagged down a passing motorist to call the fire department, then ran to a building next door where people were living.

"I knew there were people sleeping in this building next door, so I went over there and I started pounding on the door and I made them wake up, and then I went up and helped them get out," Estes said.

"And by then, the smoke had started to fill this building and the whole thing went up ... just lickety-split, in no time. I couldn't believe it."

EchoHawk urges cooperation to clean up environment

expensive feuding between polluters, governments and Indian tribes has kept Idaho from addressing its most serious environmental problems, Attorney General Larry EchoHawk said.

The Democratic candidate for governor told about 100 people Monday at the Northwest Conference on Natural Resources Damages that mining companies too often are forced into court when the federal Superfund process requires them to pay huge sums to clean up their predecessors' environmental messes.

"Much of the money that should be used to remedy situations is paid to lawyers and consultants," EchoHawk said. "We're all tired of endless litigation and mind-boggling regulations that slow down restoration. We must stop fighting and instead learn to work together."

But Howard Funke, an attorney for the Coeur d'Alene Tribe, said no one was paying attention to heavy metal contamination from a century of mining in the Coeur d'Alene Basin until the tribe filed lawsuits in 1991.

The tribe is suing the state for ownership of Lake Coeur d'Alene, contending it is in a better position to force a cleanup. The tribe also is suing several mining companies and a railroad for damages.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE - BOBBY WOLFF

"Patience is a bitter plant but it has sweet fruit."
German proverb.

The bidding should have led East to the best defense but he wasn't patient enough to use the information. He made sure of winning three quick tricks, vainly hoping West might win two.

South ducked the spade lead in dummy and East took his queen. Back came a spade to dummy's blank ace, assuring East of at least another spade trick. South led clubs from dummy and the defense was finished. If East won and cleared spades, he could not enjoy a long spade. And if East ducked to West's club king, West had no spade to lead. The defense took two spades and two clubs, and South was happy to take his game.

South's unforced bid of one no-trump and a look at dummy should have told East it was foolish to hope for two defensive tricks from West. The best he could hope for was one king, and it had to be the right one.

Instead of winning his spade queen at trick one, East should win with his nine. South would win his 10 and start clubs, but West would win and knock out the spade ace. East's spades become established while he still has the ace of clubs, and patient defense earns a plus score.

Indiana stops Portland streak

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Rik Smits had 24 points and 13 rebounds, his fifth straight game with double figures in both, as the Indiana Pacers ended the Portland Trail Blazers' six-game winning streak Tuesday night, 106-94.

Pro basketball

Reggie Miller scored 20 points for the Pacers, who have won three straight games, eight in a row at home and 13 of 15 overall.

Indiana took control in a wild third quarter when the Blazers were called for two technical fouls and had their radio analyst, Mike Rice, ejected from press row by referee Steve Javie.

The Pacers wiped out Portland's last lead, 51-50, with a 10-0 run that included a technical on Cliff Robinson, who led the Blazers with 17 points. Robinson objected when a foul call on Dale Davis was changed to a blocked shot, and Rice was ejected after complaining to Javie.

The Pacers put together an 8-0 run late in the period, which ended with Indiana ahead 81-70. During that run, Portland coach Rick Adelman was called for another technical.

Hawks 102, Timberwolves 99
ATLANTA — Danny Manning in his home debut for Atlanta, hit a 12-foot jumper with eight seconds left, salvaging a victory over comeback-minded Minnesota.

The Hawks, who led by 28 points in the third period, still had a 94-69 advantage going into the final quarter, but Chuck Person's 3-point shot with 28 seconds left closed the Timberwolves to 100-99. The Hawks then worked the ball to Manning for the game-saving shot.

Bullets 109, 76ers 103

PHILADELPHIA — Pervis Ellison had season highs of 25 points and 12 rebounds as Washington beat Philadelphia, ending the Bullets' six-game losing streak and extending the 76ers' loss skid to 10.

The Bullets trailed 54-47 at halftime, but outscored the Sixers 34-21 in the third period, connecting on 16 of 23 shots. Tom Gugliotta led the Bullets with 10 of his 19 points.

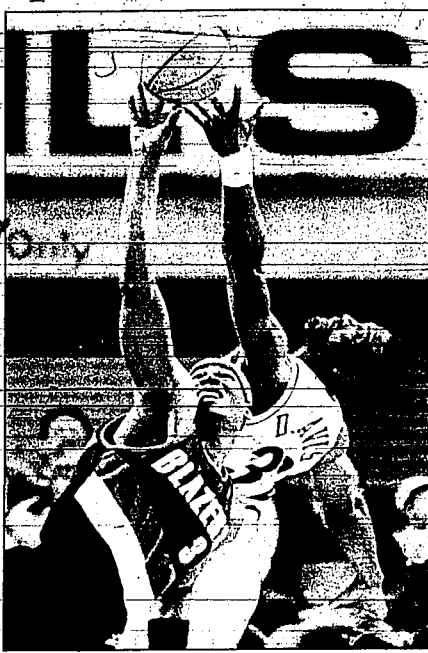

A three-point play by Orlando Woolridge brought the Sixers to 99-97 with 2:44 left, but Adams and Ellison converted six of eight throws in the last minute as Washington pulled away.

Rockets 97, Magic 85

HOUSTON — Hakeem Olajuwon scored 26 points and Sam Cassell had all 16 points in the second half as Houston held off Orlando, snapping the Magic's seven-game winning streak.

The Rockets quickly took the lead and led 50-37 at the half, aided by the Magic's cold shooting.

Orlando hit 50 percent in the third period.

Portland Trail Blazers forward Clifford Robinson tries to pick off a pass intended for Indiana Pacers forward Dale Davis during the first quarter in Indianapolis Tuesday.

but did little to cut into Houston's lead. The Rockets led by at least nine points throughout the fourth quarter.

Heat 110, Bucks 102

MILWAUKEE — Glen Rice scored 25 points, including 16 in the first quarter, and Grant Long had a season-high 22 as Miami won five games over the .500 mark for the first time in franchise history by defeating Milwaukee.

Long, who had 12 rebounds, scored 14 points in the third quarter as the Heat increased their 58-47 halftime lead to 91-74.

Miami took its biggest lead at 91-70 on Bimbo Coles' layup with just under a minute left in the third quarter.

Vin Baker scored 26 points and Todd Day 23 for the Bucks, who got as close as eight points in the final period.

Nets 108, Pistons 98

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Chris Morris continued his tear from 3-point range by hitting a team-record six as New Jersey overcame a slow start against Detroit.

In the Nets' 31-point second quarter, Coleman hit three straight baskets to get the team going and Morris made three 3-pointers, helping New Jersey pull ahead to stay.

NCAA, black coaches begin mediated talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Black Coaches Association and the NCAA, with an assist from federal mediators, finally began talking to each other Tuesday night.

"The two sides spoke by conference call for 26 hours, although none of the participants would say what was discussed."

"The parties had a frank exchange of views and planned to schedule another session to continue the talks," said Ron Tomalis of the Justice Department's Community Relations Service, which is mediating the dispute.

Taking part in the conference were four of the nation's top black coaches, five NCAA leaders and three mediators. The NCAA and the BCA twice tried to meet face to face but were unable to do so because of the Olympics and scheduling conflicts.

The coaches threatened in January to disrupt Division I-A games to protest higher academic eligibility standards and reduced scholarships. The NCAA's rules on academics, scholarships and other grievances by the coaches cannot be changed until its session next January.

Also on an agenda set by Gail Paggett, the Justice agency's associate director and chief mediator, was the complaint that NCAA restrictions on contacts with potential players inhibit the coaches in their efforts to act as role models in inner city neighborhoods.

Tomalis declined to say when the two sides would try to talk again, and whether it would be in person or by conference call. He said both sides and the mediators agreed to not comment on the various disputes.

Indiana defeats Illinois, 82-77, after 50-point loss

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Bob Knight was selective in whom he talked to Tuesday night and his players weren't talking at all after No. 17 Indiana responded from a 50-point loss to Minnesota two days earlier with an 82-77 victory over Illinois.

"Sometimes you lose the battle to win the war," Knight told ESPN. "We had no chance so what difference does it make to try and make a comeback and push everybody to the limits. (Damon) Bailey was sick and run down and he asked to come out of the game. So many people are supposed to know so much. To paraphrase Winston Churchill, 'Never have so many thought they knew so much as they knew so little.' We accomplished tonight exactly what we tried to do on Sunday."

Indiana had a 42-33 advantage off the boards this time. Bailey, who had 22 points, made all 12 of his free throws as the Hoosiers must the Illini pay for fouling Indiana (18-6, 11-1 Big Ten) hit 26 of 31 free throws, compared to eight of 20 by Illinois (15-9, 8-7). Deon Thomas, a 74 percent free throw shooter for the season, missed eight of 12.

Henderson, who didn't score and was pulled early in the loss at Minnesota, had 20 points, 11 rebounds, four blocks and four assists. The only problem he had was at the free throw line where he accounted for all of Indiana's misses.

Indiana also got a big boost from the return of Pat Graham who had missed two games with a foot injury and returned to score 21 points.

Kiwanne Garrison had 22 points to lead Illinois, which trailed by 16 with eight minutes to play and then made it close with 3-pointers in the final minutes.

No. 18 Syracuse 71, Miami 69

MIAMI — Lawrence Moten's three-point play with 42 seconds left Tuesday night helped No. 18 Syracuse hold off Miami 71-69, the Hurricanes' 15th consecutive loss.

The Hurricanes, winless in 17 Big East games this season, led 69-67 until Moten made a layup as he was fouled by Jamal Johnson. Moten, who finished with 18 points, hit the free throw. The Hurricanes (7-18) missed two shots that could have won the game or forced overtime.

Steve Edwards missed an off-balance shot as the last clock wound down in the first 10 seconds. J.B. Reasender of Syracuse (20-5, 12-5) grabbed the rebound and was fouled by Johnson. Reasender hit the second of two free throws with 73 seconds left. Steve Frazier's 10-foot shot with two seconds remaining bounced off the rim.

Syracuse let a 33-27 halftime lead slip away and trailed Miami for much of the second half. The Hurricanes took the lead early in the second half but lost it and then rallied from a 45-39 deficit to lead 55-48 with 9:22 remaining.

No. 23 Boston College 95

St. John's 76

BOSTON — Bill Curley scored 30 points, and grabbed 11 rebounds in his final home game Tuesday night and No. 23 Boston College ended its first St. John's 95-76 for its first 20-win season since 1984-85.

Fellow seniors Howland Easley, Maleski Hunkley and Gerrod Abovian combined with Curley to score 68 of Boston College's first 78 points.

Boston College (20-8, 11-0 Big East), which last made the NCAA tournament in 1985, shot 57 percent in the first half en route to a 52-38 halftime lead.

St. John's (11-15, 5-12) closed the gap to 11 in the opening minute of the second half before a 16-4 Boston College spurt over the ensuing 4:43 gave the Eagles a 64-45 lead.

Curley needs five points to become the second player in school history to surpass 2,000 in his career.

Charles Minfield paced the Redmen, who have lost five straight, with 25 points.

Despite club-record 12 straight losses, Celtics haven't given up

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics, who went 1-11 for February with a club-record 12 consecutive losses, gave a strong vote of confidence Tuesday to coach Chris Ford.

"His job performance has been evaluated," said Dave Gavitt, the team's director of basketball operations. "He comes out with an A-plus as far as I'm concerned. I know Red (Auerbach) feels the same way."

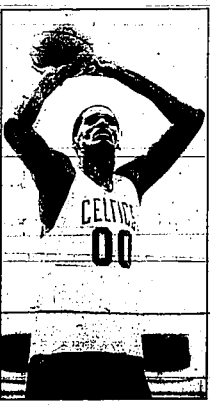

Gavitt said he would recommend a contract extension for Ford but wasn't sure when.

Gavitt acknowledged the woeful performance of the NBA's most successful franchise. "But it was not for lack of effort, and neither the coaches nor players have given up," he blamed the losses on the cyclical nature of sports.

"The four dominant teams of the '80s — the Sixers, Celtics, Pistons, Lakers — wouldn't make the playoffs if the season ended today," Gavitt said.

Things never got this bad in the 1978-79 season, when the Celtics went 29-53, a franchise low. And unlike the 1979-80 season, there is no light at the end of the tunnel in the first of the Bird era.

With their loss Sunday to another NBA giant going through bad times, the Los Angeles Lakers, the Celtics dropped to 20-53. Watching from the stands at the Forum was Sidney Wicks, a member of the last Celtics team before the Bird era.

Boston Celtics captain Robert Parish takes a shot during practice Tuesday at Brandeis University in Waltham, Mass.

The Celtics have 27 games remaining and are in better position for a lottery pick than a playoff bid.

On Wednesday night the Celtics play the Cleveland Cavaliers at Boston Garden, site of 608 consecutive sellouts dating to Bird's arrival.

"We've got to keep a positive attitude," said center Robert Parish, the final connection to the glory days. "It's us against the world."

The Celtics were prepared for a difficult season following the retirement of Kevin McHale and the death of captain Reggie Lewis. A corps of young players, including top draft picks Dee Brown and Rick Fox, has failed to stem the tide. What's more, the Celtics have few tradeable assets.

"We don't have guys that people are going to give us first-round picks for," said Auerbach, who made trading an art form while helping to hang 16 championship banners in the Garden rafters. "Take our ballclub and find a way to win. That's many first-round picks could we get?"

But change is nothing new for any team, including the Celtics.

"We've had our bad years before," Auerbach said. "When (Bill) Russell retired, we went through some tough times. But then we got Dave Cowens, and soon we're back in business."

The main problem, Auerbach said, is the salary cap, which wasn't around when he was able to swing deals.

"We have to be honest with our fans," Gavitt said. "There aren't many minutes out there. This is going to be a slow process."

Clinton honors Super Bowl champs

WASHINGTON (AP) — This year, the White House didn't roll out the AstroTurf for the Dallas Cowboys. But then again, the Super Bowl champions didn't come out in full force either.

It was a small, albeit stellar, squad of Dallas players who showed up Tuesday at President Clinton's invitation for the traditional ceremony honoring the NFL champion.

Quarterback Troy Aikman, running back Emmitt Smith, receiver Michael Irvin and defensive tackle Russell Maryland represented the team, joined by owner Jerry Jones and coach Jimmy Johnson.

"I think that it is just the beginning of what will doubtless be years and years and years of stunning achievement if they can just keep their goals high and not let the team, joined by the president during a brief ceremony in the Roosevelt Room."

"Coach Johnson, your team has a knack for coming to the White House."

It's a knack the Cowboys will repeat if Jones has any say in the matter.

As he handed Clinton a copy of the Lombardi Trophy given to the Super Bowl winner, Jones said: "We'd like to put on this trophy 1993 Super Bowl champions, 1994 Super Bowl champions, and we're going to leave a little space open."

Jones also presented the president a first-sized replica of the Cowboys' diamond-studded Super Bowl ring.

"If you can find someone else it fits and it's to the Dallas Cowboys," Jones told his fellow Arkansans.

Clinton admitted to "a bit of parochial pride" that the team is owned by a native of Arkansas. The Arkansas ties don't end there. Johnson, like James, played on the 1964 national championship Arkansas team.

A year ago the entire team was greeted in the East Room, which had been decorated for the occasion with a vast expanse of AstroTurf complete with hash marks. A fake goal post hung between the ornate portraits of George and Martha Washington.

This time, the Cowboys chose to bring only a few players. And Clinton received them in a much smaller Roosevelt Room, which was free of Cowboys' paraphernalia.

Jones said he wanted an "intimate" ceremony this year. But he conceded that with 23 of his players free agents — many cross-country to visit other teams — scheduling conflicts arose.

Their absence from the White House "should not be an indication that a large percentage of those veteran players that we had last year won't be on this team in the '94 season," Jones said.

"I think that the strength that we have for the '94 season is that we probably are going to be able to keep our continuity with this young, talented team more than any team in the NFL."

PGA commissioner will step down

MIAMI (AP) — Deane Beman, who has presided over a 20-year period of enormous growth and prosperity — and controversy — has decided to step down as commissioner of the PGA Tour.

Beman announced Tuesday he will not seek an extension of his contract, which runs through December, 1995.

"He has done a tremendous job. He has given us a period of growth and prosperity that was unbelievable a few years ago," said Peter Jacobson, a former player-director on the PGA Tour's Tournament Policy Board.

"He will be missed. I don't think the players will realize what a great job he has done, nor how much he will be missed, until he leaves. The first thing I will say to him is: 'Don't go. We need you.'"

Beman's announcement was made on the 20th anniversary of his appointment as successor to the late Joseph C. Dey, the Tour's first commissioner.

"I have a strong desire to return to "civilian" life; and if the old bones are willing, I expect to play some competitive golf," Beman said in a letter to the policy board dated March 1.

The 55-year-old Beman, a former U.S. and British Amateur champion, said he hopes to compete in some Senior Tour events.

Tournament policy board chairman Richard J. Ferris said a selection committee already has been appointed. Beman said he will step down when his successor is named.

"I'm shocked, surprised," said golfer Doug Tewell, whose career spans Beman's tenure. "There have been players with him and against him. My greatest surprise is in my own reaction: it is one of remorse and regret that he is leaving."

Andrew Magee said Beman "has done a tremendous job. Since I've been out here the purses have doubled and tripled. He's done nothing but put food on my table."

In Beman's 20-year run, four purses grew from $8.2 million to more than $103 million this year.

Beman, however, said his greatest point of pride is that "no sport is more respected for its integrity, the players, and the players' conduct, are the envy of every other sport."

Jacobson also took note of some of the controversies that have surrounded Beman's administration: the multi-million dollar suit over square-grooved clubs, a highly critical series of articles in Golf Digest, a lengthy dispute with leading European players over playing rights and responsibilities on the American tour.

"We don't have a lot of big problems," Jacobson said. "So the little problems are blown up, expanded into bigger problems. He's taken a lot of cheap shots."

Curtis Strange, a two-time U.S. Open champion, said "I think he's just had enough. Hey, he's human, just like the rest of us. I think he just wants to get out and go play some golf."

Baltimore team to be named CFL Colts

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Colts are back — sort of. Jim Speros, owner of the Canadian Football League's new Baltimore franchise, announced Tuesday that his team would be named the "CFL Colts." He said the nickname would likely please backers of the "old Baltimore Colts" while enabling him to avoid a legal battle with the NFL.

"I did this for the fans of Baltimore," Speros said. "There has been an issue working NFL properties out of the name, and in our minds this seems to clear up any confusion. Our official name is the Baltimore CFL Colts, so there will be no misconception of who we are and what league we're playing in."

Although the official name is the CFL Colts, Speros noted, "I can't control what the media calls us."

"I'm sure we'll be known as the Baltimore Colts," he said.

The NFL's Baltimore Colts left town in March 1984 and became the Indianapolis Colts. When Speros first indicated that he wanted to name his team the Colts, he was warned by the NFL that he could face a lawsuit over the moniker.

CFL commissioner Larry Smith, on hand for the news conference, said Speros' final decision should appease the NFL.

"We think we have a compromise that is very positive for the fans of Baltimore," Smith said. "At the same time, we have to live with other people in the business world — namely the National Football League — and we want to make sure we can coexist in harmony with them."

However, NFL officials couldn't say Tuesday if they can live with the CFL Colts.

The NFL properties had had discussions with Mr. Speros and frankly, we were anticipating more discussions, so we were surprised by today's announcement," said Joe Browne, director of communications for the NFL. "We will review it," Browne said before leaving New York.

While the name may be the similar to Baltimore's old NFL team, the logo is not. Speros displayed pictures of four possible helmets, all of them featuring the profile of a horse's head against a silver background. The old Baltimore Colts' and now-defunct Indianapolis Colts, have a blue horse's shoe on a white helmet.

Knee ligament rip sidelines ChiSox pitcher Players union chief says strike definite possibility

The Associated Press

Chicago White Sox pitcher Jose DeLeon will be sidelined three to six weeks with a knee injury.

He hurt himself during fielding drills Monday, sustaining a partial tear of the medial collateral ligament of his left knee.

The 33-year-old, right-hander pitched only 10 innings with the White Sox last year. He spent the bulk of the season with Philadelphia, going 3-0 with a 2.26-ERA.

To bolster their staff the White Sox to signed right-hander Scott Sanderson to a minor-league contract. He split time last season between California and San Francisco.

White Sox reliever-Roberto Hernandez, who saved 38 games last season, was one of 17 players to agree to one-year contracts. Hernandez said his contract has a base salary of $275,000. He made $125,000 last season.

Boston Red Sox manager Butch Hobson was hit in the head by a foul ball during batting practice at Fort Myers, Fla., and was treated with smelling salts after experiencing dizziness.

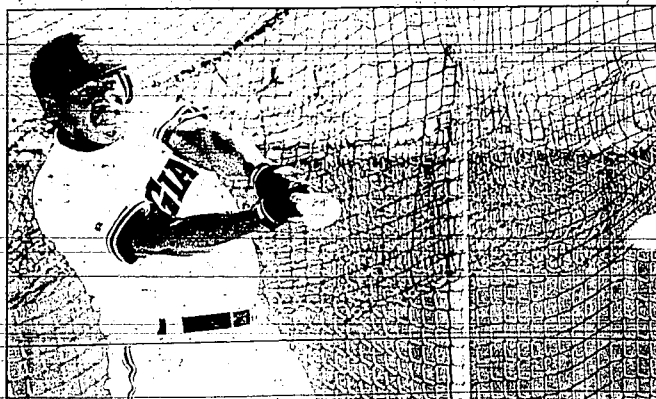

Hobson was being interviewed near the dugout when a one-hopper grounder by Ruben Rodriguez struck him above his left ear. "It hit me in the head, I'm all right," joked Hobson, who then continued the interview.

But he began feeling dizzy and was sent to the clubhouse. Hernandez said after the team's spring training was feeling better, but still appeared wobbly.

Meanwhile, Lou Gorman, Boston's executive vice president of baseball operations, said the team is at an impasse in contract talks with pitcher Aaron Sele. Gorman also said there have been little progress in discussions concerning first baseman Mo Vaughn.

Red Sox officials say that if deals are not agreed upon by Thursday, they will renew the contracts of their unsigned players.

Negotiations on a labor agreement with baseball owners apparently will be difficult and a strike later in the season is a real possibility, union chief Donald Fehr said.

Fehr began his 28-team tour of spring training camps, meetings for nearly two hours with the Montreal Expos in West Palm Beach, Fla.

The two sides haven't met formally since Jan. 25, 1993. The next meeting is scheduled for Monday in Tampa, but Fehr does not expect a proposal at that time. He said a possible strike is several months away.

Michael Jordan, admitting the daily press briefings on his progress are starting to wear on him, won't find any solace Thursday. But he is looking forward to an intrasquad game at Sarasota, Fla., where he might face Chicago White Sox teammate Jack McDowell, the American League's Cy Young Award winner.

"I think I'm well equipped with fundamentals they have been teaching me," Jordan said. "I'm ready to see if I can excel at it or do well at it or do some of that in live action."

American League home run king Juan Gonzalez, met the reporting deadline by showing up to the Texas Rangers' training camp in Port Charlotte, Fla. Gonzalez, bolstered by a $30.7 million, five-year contract, said he hopes he has recovered from his back problems.

"I want to be able to play every day," he said. "I want to play hard. And I want to win. I want a ring this year."

Knuckleballer Tim Lincecum, whose struggles last season resulted in a trip to the minors, did little to show the Pittsburgh Pirates he has returned to his rookie form.

Wakefield, 8-1 in 13 starts as a rookie in 1992 plus two victories over Atlanta in the playoffs, allowed three runs on one hit and five walks in two innings in an intrasquad game at Bradenton, Fla. Wakefield, 6-11 last season, allowed a three-run homer to rookie outfielder Mike Cudding.

Major league exhibition games start Wednesday, with San Diego playing Seattle at Peoria, Ariz. Minnesota plays Pittsburgh on Thursday at Bradenton, Fla.

Thirteen major league games are on tap Friday. On Saturday, the New York Yankees and Montreal become the last teams to make their spring debuts.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Negotiations on a labor agreement with baseball owners apparently will be difficult, and a strike later in the season is a real possibility, players union chief Don Fehr said Tuesday.

Fehr made his comments as he began his 28-team tour of spring training camps, meeting for nearly two hours with the Montreal Expos.

In the meeting, Fehr said he reviewed what has happened in the last couple of years, discussed the new television contract, antitrust hearings, revenue sharing and the lack of a commissioner. Lesser issues such as licensing and pensions also were discussed.

"What we know is that a year ago the owners rejected the agreement and set the stage for bargaining," Fehr said. "We haven't had a proposal yet and it'll be sometime after March 7 before we get outlines from (owners representative) Dick Ravitch. So we really don't know what is at issue."

The two sides haven't met formally since Jan. 25, 1993. The next meeting is scheduled for Monday in Tampa.

"It'll be preliminary. I don't expect a proposal," Fehr said.

"What we do know is that the owners have done a number of things which could be construed as pretty militant. They've passed a revenue-sharing proposal which requires the players to accept lower salaries in the form of salary cap without consulting us."

"They told the players to 'stick it in their own mouths.'"

Another problem, Fehr said, was the lack of a commissioner. In the past, if there was a difficulty with negotiations which affected the best interests of baseball, the commissioner would get involved.

Players union chief Don Fehr said Saturday negotiations on a labor agreement with baseball owners will be difficult.

"That power has now been taken away from any subsequent commissioner, and so looks like we're in for a very rough, long negotiation," Fehr said.

"I hope that's not true, but it does not look encouraging from where I sit," he said.

Asked if the strike issue was the utmost on the minds of the players, Fehr said there was no way to tell yet.

"But if the suggestions we have now turn out to be the case, then the 'strike' issue is going to be salary cap," said Fehr. "If that's true, it's going to be a very hard issue to come to grips with."

If there were to be a work stoppage, when would it occur?

"Too much, much too soon to speculate about that," Fehr said. "Hopefully, it won't come to pass. But it won't be for months yet."

BoSox pitcher hopes to use both hands

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Greg Harris stood on the mound, his right foot on the pitching rubber and the ball in his right hand.

Suddenly he pivoted and fired a pickoff throw to first base with his LEFT hand. In an instant, he had switched hands with the ball in order to make the pickoff move more effective and deceptive.

It was just a simulated pickoff during Red Sox pitcher's fielding practice on a spring training morning, but the sleight of hand was a potent symbol of what the ambidextrous Harris someday hopes to accomplish — pitching both as a lefty and a righty.

Harris has spent parts of 13 major league seasons as a right-handed pitcher. He appeared in a team-record 80 games for the Red Sox last season, all as a righty.

But he longs to also pitch as a lefty in the majors, and says he is confident his switch-pitching ability could be effective. He would switch to his left hand to face left-handed batters.

The point is it's for one batter, he said. "I haven't done this to make a joke out of the game. I'm serious about it."

Harris, 38, who also has pitched for the New York Mets, Cincinnati Reds, Montreal Expos, St. Diego, Texas Rangers and Philadelphia, has a six-fingered glove with webbing in the middle that can be worn on either hand.

He said he has been clocked at 80-81 mph left-handed, as opposed to 85-86 mph with his right hand. He throws a fast fastball and a breaking pitch with either hand.

Managers and pitching coaches in the past have refused to allow Harris to throw left-handed, and new Red Sox pitching coach Mike Rorick is not much more sympathetic to Harris' desire to be an ambidextrous pitcher.

He does a pretty good job throwing right-handed, Rorick said. "It's not like I have a closed mind to it. But right now I'd have to have better reasons why he should pitch left-handed than I've heard so far."

Harris said he will not bring the matter up with Rorick or other team officials, but clearly is hoping the interest in his unusual talent will lead to an opportunity to switch pitch in a spring training game.

"It's normal for me in the off-season. I always use both hands. Physically, I'd be able to do it, no problem," he said. "To me, throwing left-handed saves the right. I used to do it in the minors to give the right arm a break."

Harris, who led all American League relievers with 12.1-3 innings pitched last season, three batting practice with his left hand while pitching for the Texas Rangers in 1986 — but never got a chance to throw left-handed in a game.

So he continues to keep the left arm in shape and sometimes runs in a pickoff stance with that arm during practice while waiting for a chance to pitch with both arms in a game.

Special treatment toward Jordan angers some major league players

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Michael Jordan's crack at the major leagues apparently isn't too popular with some baseball players.

"I know a lot of baseball players don't want to see him make it because it will be a slap in the face to them," said former Kansas City Royals third baseman George Brett.

"The guys that I've talked to that have been around the White Sox camp say it's a joke. You have all these guys that had great years and all they are is a side show for Michael," Brett said Tuesday in an interview after promoting a new golf league for current and former athletes.

Brett's comments come a day after Seattle pitcher Randy Johnson promised to give Jordan some tight pitches should they ever meet. The 6-foot-10 Johnson also said he was going to ask the NBA SuperSonics for a tryout, adding that he could probably block a 235-pounder on the basketball court better than Jordan can hit a baseball.

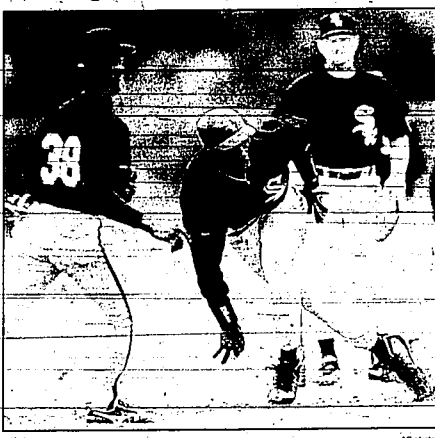

Brett talked about Jordan at the Governor's Club golf course, which is less than 10 miles from where Jordan played basketball for the University of North Carolina.

Brett, a future Hall of Famer with more than 3,000 hits, is considered one of the best pitchers in baseball history. He changed his batting stroke when he broke into the major leagues, cutting down his swing and going more to the opposite field — a method that produced a dozen "no-hitters."

"He's just a human," said Jordan hit in person, but believes the former Chicago Bulls All-Star just was going through some growing pains.

"It gets to a point where when you are negative the bad good you do have the negative thoughts going through your mind. You don't worry about your fundamentals," Brett said. "Michael is going through a point right now where he has so many things going through his mind."

"OK, where is your weight, on the ball of your feet? Where's your hands? Where's your head? Are you striding in too much? You can't hit if you're thinking about all those things," Brett added. "He has a lot of things he has to learn about the game of baseball before he can become a player."

Brett said it's unfair to compare Jordan's situation with that of his former Royals teammate, Bo Jackson, who also played in the NFL with the Los Angeles Raiders.

"I played with a guy by the name of Bo Jackson who was a Heisman Trophy winner, who said he was going to go play baseball and everybody laughed at Bo. Well, we all know what Bo did in his baseball career."

"Michael Jordan is definitely a world-class athlete like a Bo Jackson," Brett said. "But the one thing I think that Bo has an Michael is that Bo played college baseball and Michael just played high school baseball. I think there is a big gap between that."

One of Jordan's big tests comes Thursday in an intrasquad game at the Chicago White Sox camp in Sarasota, Fla.

"It's going to be a lot harder than he thinks it's going to be," Brett said. "If you get three hits out of every 10 times up, you fail seven times. If you hit 300 you are a superstar."

But he's not a baseball player and you shoot 30 percent you don't have a job."

Ranger doesn't think Jordan can swing it

The Associated Press

Kevin Brown has joined a growing list of major leaguers who figure Michael Jordan is a bit confused about his future as an athlete.

"Jordan is probably finding out right now it's harder than he was expecting," the Texas Rangers pitcher said Tuesday. "I don't think he'll make it."

Brown will pitch Friday when the Rangers and the Chicago White Sox open their exhibition seasons at Sarasota, Fla. Jordan, the former NBA superstar, is trying to land a spot in the Chicago outfield.

"He's just another guy with a big strike zone," Brown said with a burst of laughter. "I'm not shooting baskets. I'm doing what I can do."

Baseball notebook

Kenny Rogers, who also may work against Jordan, says he is in the way.

"There are too many guys who have been in the minor leagues a lot of years who deserve a chance and never got the chance," Michael's getting," Rogers said.

Roda Manager Davey Johnson knows that at 6-foot-5, 248 pounds, third base prospect Tim Costo has the size to hit for distance. Cincinnati will need that to replace power hitter Chris Sabo, who signed in the offseason.

Johnson has already told Costo to pull the ball and forget about hitting outside pitches to right field.

Red Sox Frank Viola, coming off arm surgery, said he felt fine after 10 minutes of throwing batting practice. Viola, who had surgery on his left elbow near the end of last season, had been restricted to bullpen work.

"It's a big relief," the 33-year-old Boston left-hander said. "After 11 years without an injury, I don't care what type of surgery, it's always in the back of your head."

Pirates Outfielder Darren Reed, hoping to forget an injury-nickled 1993 season, was named to the Pittsburgh Pirates' intrasquad game. Reed missed all of last season with the New York Mets because of a knee injury and is in camp as a non-roster player.

Former NJ outfielder becomes AL president

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Leonard Coleman, the head of baseball's marketing staff the past two years, was unanimously elected National League president on Tuesday and will immediately replace Bill White.

White's election as league president in 1989 was considered a breakthrough following widespread criticism of baseball's lack of money hiring in its front office. Coleman, like White, is black, and becomes the highest-ranking black official in U.S. professional sports.

"I'm extremely proud of my African-American heritage," said Coleman, a former semiprofessional player in New Jersey. "I'd like to think I was appointed, and Bill was appointed, based on leadership abilities."

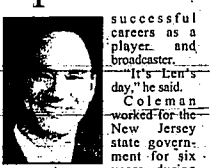

Coleman, 45, was given a four-year term. He came to baseball with a varied background, unusual for an industry where much hiring is done through an old-boy network. He is on the boards of the Metropolitan Opera and Seton Hall University, and is a friend of Archbishop Desmond Tutu.

In other business, the American League president last season, Bobby Brown had a malignant tumor removed from his prostate Feb. 14 and should make a full recovery. And owners of both leagues will appoint an expansion committee on Wednesday that is to report its findings by the summer.

While fans in St. Petersburg, Fla., and Phoenix may find that encouraging, baseball committees consistently have failed to meet their deadlines. Many owners say expansion can't be considered until there is a new labor agreement, which won't happen until the second half of this season at the earliest.

White, 60, intends to retire from baseball and return to his home in Pennsylvania. Two years ago, he expressed frustration at his experience as league president, saying: "I deal with two groups who I know are racist and bigots ... I'm bitter, I'm mad."

White, who has refused most requests to talk to reporters during his 4-year, 11-month term, refused comment Tuesday about his tenure as NL president, which followed successful careers as a player and broadcaster. Coleman worked for the New Jersey state government for six years during the 1980s and then became a finance banker for the firm Kidder, Peabody & Co. from 1988-92. He pledged to be more open than his predecessor.

"I intend on being open and having communication with the media."

Coleman, the 14th NL president since the league formed in 1876, was elected by the committee of 30 members of the National League in December 1993. Coleman attempted to increase its low fan base among minorities.

He had the title of executive director for market development. He helped put baseball programs on black and Hispanic college campuses and established inner-city baseball and softball programs.

He said he didn't believe that changes to the Major League Agreement passed by owners in January would hamper his job.

"The administrative duties of the president stay intact," he said. "The only difference is you're reporting directly, theoretically, to the commissioner."

Former New Jersey Gov. Thomas Kean appointed Coleman head of the New Jersey Department of Energy in 1982, then named him commissioner of the state's Department of Community Affairs in 1986.

From 1976 to 1980, Coleman worked as a missionary in Africa for the Episcopal Church. He was president of the Greater Newark Urban Coalition in the early 1980s.

Coleman, born in Montclair, N.J., received an undergraduate degree from Princeton and graduate degrees from Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government and Graduate School of Education.

AL head recovers from cancer

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — American League president Bobby Brown had prostate cancer surgery last month, and doctors told him the tumor was completely removed.

Brown, 69, was operated on Feb. 14 at New York Hospital and was released four days later. AL spokesman Phyllis Merhige said Tuesday after the league's quarterly meeting.

Doctors told Brown there were no indications the cancer had spread and he should make a full recovery.

Brown played for the New York Yankees in the 1950s and succeeded Lee MacPhail as league president in 1983. The search committee for a new president has begun interviewing candidates and hopes to elect a replacement by the league's June meeting.

The next president will be the AL's seventh since it was formed in 1900.

Slow down? Not this food writer

It was almost funny to read the headline "Columnist slows down," since I didn't get a chance to read the article for another 10 days.

Yes, I've loved writing this column. For the first five years, it was a weekly and then every other week the last five years. With various other stories, there's a total of more than 375 articles and literally thousands of recipes.

Nancy Joy Jones
Valley cooking

You have shared our lives, lives that really live up to the joke about life beginning when the dog dies and the children leave home. Friend and husband has taken me to the ends of the earth and, luckily, brought me back so I could share my adventures with you.

I hope to keep sharing these with you. I just have reached the point in life where I'm not home enough to cook and try out everything thoroughly.

I think there is someone out there in the Magic Valley who is cooking up a storm and could share the rewards of those labors with you.

But I'll be here every now and then sharing some incredible recipes and adventures with you.

This recipe is the perfect one to take to a potluck or have on hand for weekend guests. It's a real delight.

SPAGHETTI SALAD

- 1 24-ounce package vermicelli noodles (thin spaghetti)
- 2 6-ounce cans small deveined shrimp, drained and rinsed
- 2 medium tomatoes, chopped
- 1 cucumber, chopped
- 1 small can pitted black olives, halved
- 1 small onion, finely chopped
- 1/4 cup sweet relish
- 1 8-ounce bottle french dressing
- 1 1/2 cups mayonnaise

Boil spaghetti according to package directions. Rinse with cold water and cut through several times with knife. Add the shrimp, tomatoes, cucumber, olives and onion.

Mix the mayonnaise, relish and french dressing together in a separate bowl. Then mix well into other ingredients and season with freshly ground pepper, maybe some Lawry's salt and a sprinkle of garlic salt. Refrigerate overnight.

I can't tell you exactly how many this serves as it's usually gone after the first day.

This next recipe I picked up at our annual February convention of the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association. It was in a recipe booklet put out by the avocado people. It serves 12 generous portions, so you might keep that in mind and save it for a get-together.

FISH TACOS

- Vegetable oil for frying
- 4 cups flour
- Salt and pepper, to taste
- 8 6-ounce red snapper fillets
- 2 6-ounce cans tomatoes
- 2 cups shredded green cabbage
- 3 medium tomatoes, diced
- 3 ripe medium avocados, diced
- Zesty Guacamole (recipe follows)
- Refried beans, optional
- Spanish rice, optional
- Lime wedges, optional

Heat the oil to 375 or use a deep fat fryer. Season the flour with salt and pepper. Cut the fillets lengthwise into 2-ounce portions and coat them in the seasoned flour.

Fry the tortillas in the oil 3 to 5 seconds per side, just to soften and heat through. Drain on towels. Fry the fish until it begins to flake and has browned about 3 to 5 minutes.

Place one piece of fish in a tortilla and garnish with the shredded green cabbage, diced tomato and diced avocado. Serve with refried beans, spanish rice, lime wedge and Zesty Guacamole.

- Make the Zesty Guacamole this way:
- 3 large, ripe avocados
- 1/2 cup finely diced tomatoes
- 1/3 cup thinly sliced green onion
- 1/4 cup minced cilantro
- 1 tablespoon finely diced serrano chili
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- Salt to taste

Seed, peel and mash the avocados. Add remaining ingredients.

Enjoy!

MAGIC...

The word alone conjures up mystery and intrigue. Harry Houdini popularized magic in the early 1900s with his death-defying feats of escape.

Magicians, such as Harry Blackstone Jr., and David Copperfield, have awed audiences worldwide with levitation and grand illusions of disappearance.

Now, Nabisco is unlocking some recipes to mesmerize your family and friends. It's easy to be a kitchen magician with these delicious desserts. Best of all, there's no slight-of-hand necessary to make them disappear!

HOCUS POCUS CAKE

- 13 Oreo Chocolate Sandwich Cookies, finely rolled (about 1 cup crumbs)
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1/4 cup all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 3 eggs, separated, at room temperature
- 1/4 cup water
- 1 (1-ounce) square unsweetened chocolate, melted
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 3 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa
- 3 cups softened ice cream, any flavor
- 1 cup prepared whipped topping

In small bowl, mix cookie crumbs, sugar, flour, baking powder and salt; set aside.

In large bowl, with mixer at high speed, beat egg yolks until thick, about 5 minutes. At medium speed, gradually blend in flour mixture alternately with water, melted chocolate and vanilla. In medium bowl, with mixer at high speed, beat egg whites until stiff; fold into batter. Spread batter into foil-lined and greased 15 1/2 by 10 1/2 by 1-inch baking pan. Bake at 375 degrees for 10 to 12 minutes or until toothpick inserted comes out clean.

Immediately invert cake onto cloth towel sprinkled with cocoa; remove foil. Cut cake lengthwise into thirds; remove 2 pieces to wire rack to cool. Roll up cake and towel from short edge; cool. Unroll cake and remove towel; spread with 1 cup ice cream. Re-roll cake encasing ice cream. Stand roll on edge on center of serving dish. Spread 1 cup ice cream on each remaining cake piece. Wrap 1 piece around center roll on dish with ice cream to ward center of roll; repeat with remaining cake roll. Frost side of cake with whipped topping. Freeze until firm, about 4 hours. Let soften at room temperature 5 minutes before serving. Garnish as desired.

Makes 8 servings.

MYSTICAL CHOCOLATE CHEESECAKE

- 35 Oreo Chocolate Sandwich Cookies
- 1/4 cup margarine, melted
- 2 (8-ounce) packages cream cheese, softened
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 1/2 cups semisweet chocolate chips, melted
- 1 cup heavy cream, whipped

Finely roll 25 cookies; coarsely chop remaining 10 cookies and set aside. In medium bowl, mix finely rolled crumbs and margarine; press on bottom and 1 inch up side of 9-inch springform pan; chill.

In large bowl, with electric mixer at high speed, beat cream cheese, sugar and vanilla until smooth and creamy. Beat in melted chocolate all at once; fold in chopped cookies. Gently fold in whipped cream. Pour into prepared crust; chill 4 hours. To serve, remove side of pan; garnish with additional cookie halves if desired.

BLACK CAT CUPCAKES

- 38 Oreo Chocolate Sandwich Cookies
- 1 (18 1/2-ounce) package devil's food cake mix
- 1 (1-pound) can chocolate frosting
- Black string licorice, gum drops, semisweet chocolate chips and black licorice whip

Coarsely chop 14 cookies. Prepare cake mix batter according to package directions; stir in chopped cookies. Spoon batter into 24 paper-lined 2 1/2-inch muffin cups. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes or until toothpick inserted comes out clean. Remove from pans; cool on wire rack.

Make cat faces on each of the remaining 24 cookies: using some frosting, attach 4 (1 1/2-inch) licorice strings for whiskers, 2 gum drop pieces for eyes and 2 chocolate chips for ears. Let set at least 30 minutes.

Frost cupcakes with remaining frosting. Stand cat faces on edge on each cupcake. Place 3-inch piece licorice whip on back half of each cupcake for tail.

Makes 24 cupcakes.

ABRACADABRA PARFAIT

- 21 Oreo Chocolate Sandwich Cookies
- 1 pint chocolate ice cream
- 1 cup hot fudge sauce
- 1 pint vanilla ice cream

Whipped topping, for garnish

Finely roll 13 cookies. Scoop 1/3 cup chocolate ice cream into each of 6 (8-ounce) parfait glasses; layer each with 1 tablespoon fudge sauce and 1 tablespoon cookie crumbs.

Top with 1/3 cup vanilla ice cream, remaining fudge sauce and cookie crumbs. Freeze until serving time. To serve, garnish with whipped topping and remaining cookies.

Makes 6 servings.

VANISHING PEANUT BUTTER SQUARES

- 29 Oreo Chocolate Sandwich Cookies
- 1/4 cup margarine, melted
- 1 (8-ounce) package cream cheese, at room temperature
- 1/4 cup confectioner's sugar
- 1/2 cup creamy peanut butter
- 2 tablespoons milk
- 1 cup heavy cream, whipped

Finely roll 20 cookies. In small bowl, mix cookie crumbs and margarine; press on bottom of 8 by 8 by 2-inch baking pan. Chill.

In large bowl, with electric mixer at high speed, beat cream cheese and sugar until light and fluffy; beat in peanut butter and milk until smooth. Fold in whipped cream; spread evenly over prepared crust.

Chill 4 hours. To serve, cut into squares; garnish with remaining cookies.

Makes 9 servings.

If it's not fresh, it's not at the Rim Top Deli

By Denise Turner
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Gene and Cindy Eller opened their Rim Top Deli in the Magic Valley Mall almost four years ago. It's a story of two home-town kids and a successful business that's a tribute to their home town.

Everything about the Rim Top Deli is local.

Family owned and operated, perched inside a world of franchises and chains, the restaurant is known for its home-spun foods.

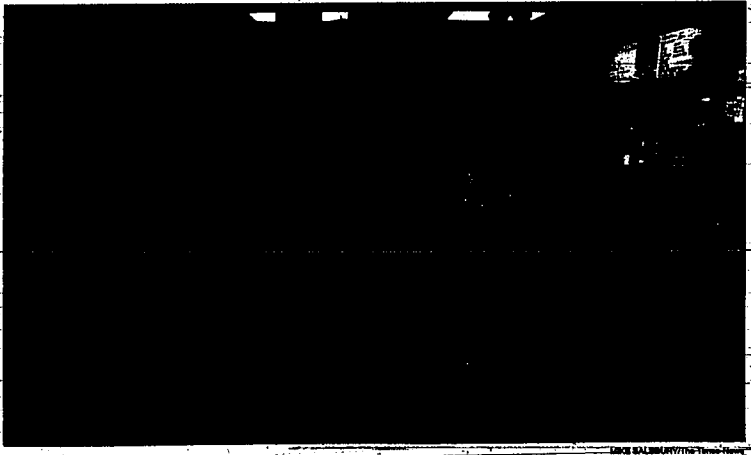

Armed with recipes from relatives, including Gene Eller's mother, Elaine (who once made salads for businesses), the Ellers were always sure that people would like their menu items. But they also knew that opening a new restaurant in a mall can be a nerve-racking endeavor.

"The first year was scary, Cindy Eller said, "but now we have four employees."

The Ellers, themselves, work long hours at the deli, too. And all three of their kids help out.

"We open in the morning so people who work in the stores or people on their way fishing can stop and buy their lunches," said Eller, who was in the construction business for 20 years before he decided to go deli.

When he did, he researched his new trade.

Symptoms vary for Alzheimer's, aging

DEAR ABBY: According to a Gallup Poll conducted for the Alzheimer's Association in 1993, one out of three American adults says they know someone with Alzheimer's disease, and one in 10 say a relative has it.

With physicians now reporting an increase of "early onset" cases of people in their 40s and 50s, distinguishing signs of Alzheimer's disease from normal aging is of utmost importance.

To assist people in recognizing the symptoms of Alzheimer's disease, and to encourage them to see their doctors for a proper diagnosis, the Alzheimer's Association has launched a major educational campaign that includes public service announcements, educational materials and community outreach.

A free brochure outlining the warning signs of Alzheimer's disease, titled "Is It Alzheimer's? Warning Signs You Should Know," is now available by calling the Alzheimer's Association's toll-free number: (800) 272-3900.

Dear Abby
Abigail
VanBuren

Thank you, Abby, for your help in getting the word out.

ED TRUSCHKE,
PRESIDENT, ALZHEIMER'S
ASSOCIATION

DEAR MR. TRUSCHKE: I found your brochure to be very informative, as will many of my readers. Sometimes people will relate to: "Your wife always misplaces her keys. But last Tuesday, she couldn't remember what they were for." "Your grandfather likes to take daily strolls around the neighborhood. But four times in the past month he got lost, and couldn't find his way home without help from a neighbor." "Your favorite uncle can't remember your name, or the names of your husband or children."

Everyone has a bad day once in a while, but someone with Alzheimer's can exhibit rapid mood changes - from laughter to tears, or calm to tears to anger - for no apparent reason. Also, a person with Alzheimer's will put things in inappropriate places: an iron in the freezer, or a wristwatch in the sugar bowl.

The memory loss, confusion and disorientation described in these examples are common symptoms of dementia - the most common of which is Alzheimer's disease. However, depression, nutritional deficiencies, drug interactions or intoxication, and thyroid imbalances can cause similar symptoms.

The same symptoms are also associated with stroke, Huntington's disease, Parkinson's disease, Pick's disease and AIDS.

It is important to consult a physician if you recognize these symptoms. Sometimes they are reversible with a physician's care.

Briefly

Effective living focus of talk

TWIN FALLS - Martin Seidenfeld will conduct a workshop on "Habit for Effective Living" from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Thursday in Room 113 of the Desert Building at the College of Southern Idaho.

Seidenfeld is the president of the Human Resources Corp. in Boise. He has 25 years experience as a clinical psychologist, university professor, organization consultant and seminar presenter.

The workshop will cover strategic life planning, managing the time of your life, gaining interpersonal power, communicating more effectively and developing creative interdependence.

Cost is $59, which includes lunch, breaks and class materials. Registration may be accomplished by calling the CSI Continuing Education Division at 733-9554, Ext. 270. Class starts Thursday, March 3.

CSI offers kids communication

TWIN FALLS - The College of Southern Idaho Child Development Program is offering a one-credit course on developing communication skills in children.

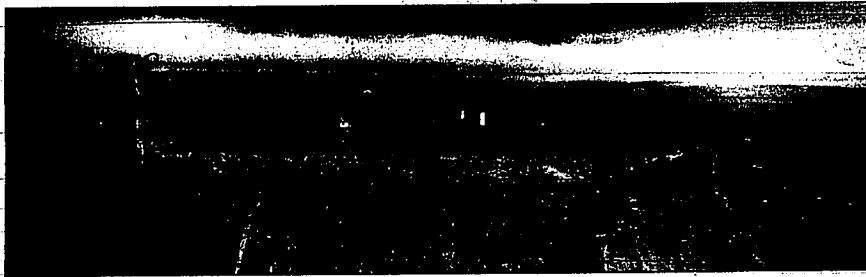

The class is set for 4:30 to 7 p.m. Thursdays, this Thursday through April 28, in Aspen 150. Cost is $45.

Mary Michener, M.S., will teach skills in encouraging and enhancing verbal and nonverbal communication in children. The material will focus on children up to age 8 and children of any age who have speech problems. Michener is owner of Michener and Associates Inc., speech specialists and therapists.

For more information, call 733-9554, Ext. 147 or 148.

What's a phone call worth?

To a rancher who's still a long way from home at the end of the day. To a farmer who needs to know the price of grain. To a traveling salesperson who can't wait for the next phone booth to make a call. To a teenager whose car has broken down.

A phone call can make all the difference in the world.

From almost anywhere.

You'll discover that CommNet Cellular is unique in its dedication to providing cellular service across an eight state region, all the way from the mountains to the plains.

And as part of the MobiLink Network, not only is your entire service guaranteed, you'll find it easier to make and receive calls from virtually anywhere.

Perhaps it's about time you had cellular service.

To make this thought more attractive, we are offering two cellular phones at special prices.

authorized CommNet Cellular Representative to find out more.

It's worth a phone call.

IF YOU HAD RECEIVED THIS AD IN YOUR MAILBOX YOU WOULD HAVE THROWN 75% OF IT AWAY.

That is a silly way of stating what is a documented fact. 75% of all advertising mail meets a sad end.

In the trashcan.

Of the 25% that we keep, most we don't even read at that time. We set it aside, to come back to. Or to forget about completely.

Three times as many people would prefer to receive their price and cost information in their newspaper. There, it's all together in one neat package. Complete and ready for comparison.

When people turn to their paper, they turn there with interest. Which means that's where your advertising message needs to be.

With all the choices available, it's difficult deciding how best to advertise your business.

On average, 5.06 percent of the third-class mail decoy pieces sent by the U.S. Monitor program failed to reach the addressee during the second quarter of 1993. The average delivery time was 9.29 days, which was actually an improvement over the first quarter test. Results were varied by types of mail—letters, flats and catalogs.

Non-delivery of third-class catalogs deteriorated sharply from 2.74 percent to 4.16 percent, according to Direct Marketing News in an Oct. 11 story.

U.S. Monitor is a national firm based in New York City which codes mail pieces into 35 markets to monitor postal efficiency.

With all the choices available, it's difficult deciding how best to advertise your business.

YOU GOTTA BE IN THE PAPER.

Home/garden

Grow less grass, save more water

Cathy Walworth Green thumbprints

How often do you water? Once a week? Every other day? For how long? Twenty minutes per sprinkler phase?

Your answers show how well you are taking care of your little corner of the world, as well as the rest of it.

Gardeners everywhere like to think they are being good stewards of their worlds, big and small. The little plot of ground we call ours is filled with plants that depend on us to provide their needs. Being responsible caretakers, we do our best to use resources wisely — and if we hear one more thing about conserving water, we might collectively scream.

Most homeowners water their lawns with little thought to when and how much the grass really needs, much less to how much grass they really need. Grass, like you, only wants a drink when it is thirsty. And then it wants a good, long pull on the water bucket. That will do it till next time it gets thirsty.

Did it ask your lawn if it needed a drink before you watered it last? If it isn't your habit to do so, you're probably not only giving it too much water too often (not to mention wasting the water), you're causing the roots to form thatch, as well.

If that isn't bad enough, you probably are growing more grass than you really need, anyway. Grass is probably the biggest water-guzzler on your property. Do you use that grass for something? Like a play area? If not, consider cutting down the lawn area.

Replace grass with wide, curving beds of interesting plants that are drought-tolerant once established and provide you with more interesting colors and textures than plain old grass.

Try a little sedum like "Autumn Joy" or "Dragon's Blood." They both have ground-hugging habits, bright foliage and occasional flowers. They spread all by themselves, crowding out weeds as they go, and are trouble-free.

Another, or Thrift, as grandmothers called it, is a shy little plant that grows in neat mounds and produces flowers of pink, rose or white. It is a perennial, so it will come back year after year. Much more interesting to look at than grass.

Dwarf Chinese Astilbe is a little charmer that will give you four-inch high mounds of pretty little leaves and lilac pink flowers that grow to be 12 to 15 inches tall. Astilbe likes to be divided every four or five years and is drought-tolerant once established. She would like her spent flowers cut off after blooming, but other than that, she asks little of her caretaker.

There now. That wasn't so bad, was it? We didn't say one thing about conserving water.

Cathy Walworth is an avid Twin Falls gardener. Write to her in care of The Times-News.

This hand-forged rail with bronze cap decorating a home in Nashville, Tenn., was made by Herndon & Merry, which remodels old cast-iron and wrought-iron pieces into usable pieces.

Nashville firm builds strong business in wrought iron

The Associated Press

When America was young and the village blacksmith plied his trade under the spreading chestnut tree, wrought iron was the stuff of necessity. Today, wrought iron is more the stuff of luxury.

When country singer Tammy Wynette wanted decorative wrought-iron gates for First Lady Aerie's "her palatial estate" in Nashville, she called in Herndon & Merry of Nashville.

This unusual company with a national clientele is among the small number of firms specializing in making and restoring wrought-iron and cast-iron objects. The business has changed considerably since 1959 when Bill Merry started the firm with partner Cecil Herndon, who is now retired. The original trade was making and installing ordinary metal railings, fences, gates and similar items. These bread-and-butter jobs have been phased out in favor of more grandiose projects.

For example, they restored the driveway gates at The Hermitage, the home of President Andrew Jackson in Hermitage, Tenn.

Herndon & Merry also counts among its clients for ornate wrought-iron gates and so-called estate fencing country music stars

—Keith Merry, Herndon & Merry

Eddy Arnold, Crystal Gale, Wayne Jennings and Ronnie Milsap. The electrically controlled gates offer security while staying true to the Merry-Merry style.

The secret today is on the unusual, both in original gates, railings, fences and architectural ornamentation designed by Merry, and in new furniture and decorative accessories incorporating old wrought-iron items.

Herndon & Merry opened Garden Park Antiques in 1987. Keith Merry, Bill's son and an enthusiast of iron antiques, runs the division which has an inventory of more than 3,000 old iron items. There are gates, window grates, garden ornamentation, cast-iron urns and benches, old fencing and baluster pieces. Most of these are reconditioned and incorporated into new items, such as planters, wall decor, tables and garden decor.

"We don't copy antiques; we incorporate them," says Keith Merry. "For example, we might get a garden gate made in 1875 — or a grille — turn it on its back and make it a coffee table with a glass top or a console."

The company also markets baker's racks, planters, lamps and garden furniture and ornamentation. The one-of-a-kind items vary widely in price, ranging from $200 to $350 for a planter to more than $2,000 for large baker's racks.

The old iron, much of it in poor condition when it arrives, is refurbished in the Herndon & Merry workshop — and forged — on the grounds, where fabricators, blacksmiths, cutters and other craftsmen ply their ancient craft.

In addition to Keith Merry and 20 employees, the entire Merry family is involved in the business. Bill Jr. is the business manager and oversees the workshop. Kevin is a blacksmith and specializes in finishing. Bill Sr.'s wife, Monica, handles billing.

A growing consumer interest in unique accessories has helped make the antiques division an important part of the company, accounting for about 40 percent of total sales within a typical year are over $1 million. Showrooms in Los Angeles and Atlanta market the items to the decorator trade and the company also does business with out-of-state consumers who visit the showroom in person.

Quality, strength of trash bags vary

The Washington Post

When faced with upward of 20 brands, how does a customer decide in which box of plastic bags to take out trash or leaves? Consumers Union has attempted to answer this question by evaluating plastic bags in terms of price, strength and resistance to punctures.

The practically of various handle styles and the ease with which a bag fits into the container for which it was designed were also noted.

When the overall results were in, the Hefty Steel-Sak (8 mil), although susceptible to tearing, topped the list for the tall kitchen-bag category. For trash, it was Glad (1.3 mil) with a drawing line that led the pack. Lady Lee (1.2, 1.4) and Hefty Cinch Sak (1.3) rated first and second as the lawn and leaf bags of choice.

The extensive test results were published in the February issue of Consumer Reports. The article evaluates kitchen, trash, and lawn and leaf bags separately.

In order to reach their conclusions, Consumers Union laboratory staff put 55 plastic bags, including name brands and generics, to the test. One test involved filling each bag, then dropping it onto a cement sidewalk from a height of six feet to determine whether it split open.

"More than 90 percent of the bags passed that test," landing essentially intact, says Rana Arons, spokeswoman for Consumer Reports. The report found that Ultra Good Sense and Renew trash bags split open repeatedly. Another test involved dragging bags stuffed with wet towels along a concrete path to see whether they tore.

Arons says an informal study determined that price and strength are most important in consumers' purchasing decisions. But for some shoppers, it may not be the price, thickness or handle style that clinches the sale. In recognition of this, Consumer Reports included comments about each brand, addressing such details as whether a bag has been partially recycled.

Try these tips for around the home

The Baltimore Sun

• Fill up bare corners with plants. Either group three or four smaller plants together or place a large fern on a stand.

• When painting the interior of your home, avoid trendy colors that become dated quickly. Remember, dark colors make rooms appear smaller.

• Avoid scraping ice from the windshield of your car. Slip a portion of a paper shopping bag under the wipers that are pointing straight up. The next morning, simply remove bag and windshield should be clear.

Cookin' with Crazy Sam by Crazy Sam Higgins

The people of the rural Southwest have always been a superstitious lot.

They believe that if a rooster crows at night, it'll rain before morning. And a woman had better stir a cake batter in only one direction, or the cake will spoil for sure.

They swear that plants that grow underground, like potatoes, should be planted in the dark of the moon. Makes them laster.

Well, the best potatoes I ever ate had something even more going for them—RO*TEL® Tomatoes and Green Chiles. RO*TEL gives mashed potatoes a taste that'll open your eyes. Clear your head, jump start your heart. And make you glad you're hungry. And luck has nothing to do with it.

MOONLIGHT MASHED POTATOES

3 med. potatoes (about 2 lbs.), 1 can (10 oz.) RO*TEL diced tomatoes and green chiles, 1 can (8 oz.) dairy sour cream.

Place potatoes in a large saucepan in enough water to cover them. Cover and heat to a boil. Cook 20 to 25 minutes or until tender. Drain. In a large bowl with an electric mixer on low speed beat potatoes, sour cream and RO*TEL until smooth. Sprinkle a 2-quant casseroles dish with PAM. Spoon mixture into dish. Bake at 350° for 25 minutes; sprinkle with cheese. Bake an additional 5 minutes or until cheese melts. Serves 6.

IF MARCH 2 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You are emotional, family-oriented, sensitive, psychic, have innate knowledge of food, from its preparation to restaurant-management. You have gourmet appetites—tasting youth's mother has more influence than did father. Current cycle highlights independence, fresh start in new direction, return of enthusiasm, spark of love rekindled.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Partnership or marriage or both strengthened despite "static" from people who have moved better to do. Make public appearances, pronouncements.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Obtain hint from Aries message. Legal affairs command attention, should not be pushed aside. Diversify, explore, open lines of communication.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Things get dual despite "interference" from individual who knows price of everything, value of nothing. Check references, signatures.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Emphasis on writing, communicating, protecting self in emotional clinches. Get thoughts on paper, be aware of skills.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Domestic issues dominate—teach, agreement, budget, sale or purchase of art object, luxury item. Moon position highlights home, building material, security, family relationships of level.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You get proverbial "second chance." Correct errors, define terms, streamline procedures. Short trip involves "restless relative."

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Deadline exists, get priorities in order, focus on involvement with persons in "reversible position." Missing agendas located, financial affairs get organized. Cancer native involved.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Reach beyond the immediate, your capacity for work and love are "unlimited." Cycle high, trust your own judgment, heed inner voice. You'll be right place at crucial moment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): What was withheld will be revealed to your advantage. Recent "ghost story" proves more amusing than frightening. Stand tall, make fresh start, be vulnerable as love versus fear. Enlightenment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Focus on marital status, public appearance, ability to overcome moods that depress. Tonight you'll celebrate—wine, food, music involved. Family reunion proves more amusing than frightening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Odds overcome, you win despite minor injury. Focus on diversity, versatility; ability to laugh at your own foibles. Scorpio moon represents leadership, promotion, production, financial gain.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Roadblock underpins metamorphosis, is transformed into steppingstone. Focus on communication, publishing, getting message across in dynamic fashion. Money owed you will be paid within 48 hours.

Candy-like cookie around a chocolate kiss wins 36th Pillsbury Bake-Off

Orange County Register

SAN DIEGO — Next time you think your kitchen is too crowded and chaotic, consider the stamina of Mary Anne Tyndall.

Weathering the chaos of hundreds of onlookers and the occasional butlinis, plus the scurrying media swarm and, for good measure, game-show host Alex Trebek, Tyndall stood in the middle of the Hotel Del Coronado's Grande Hall, faced an unfamiliar stove and turned out three batches of her Fudgy Bonbons.

They earned her $50,000 and a kitchen makeover at the 36th Pillsbury Bake-Off Cooking & Baking Contest held last week.

Tyndall, 49, a former teacher from Whiteville, N.C., won for her combination of chocolate- and nut-laced dough, wrapped around a chocolate kiss. The cookies are cooled then drizzled with melted white chocolate.

Tyndall, the mother of a son and daughter who are in their 20s, as well as a 5-year-old daughter, said she was "flat-out floored" over her win. Although she entered five recipes to the Pillsbury contest, said this is her first contest.

"I don't know anybody who's been to the Bake-Off," she said. "I don't know of anybody who knows of anybody who's been to the Bake-Off."

Tyndall and five of the other 99 finalists overcame comparable chal-

How she did it

FUDGY BONBONS

1 (12-ounce) package (2 cups) semisweet chocolate chips
1/2 cup (1/2 stick) butter or margarine

1 (14-ounce) can sweetened condensed milk (not evaporated)
2 cups Pillsbury Best All-Purpose or unleached flour

1/2 cup finely chopped nuts, if desired

1 teaspoon vanilla extract
60 milk-chocolate candy kisses or white-and-chocolate striped candy kisses, unwrapped

2 ounces white baking bar or vanilla-flavored candy coating
1 teaspoon shortening or oil

Preliminaries: Heat oven to 350 degrees.

Procedure: In a medium saucepan, combine chocolate chips and butter; cook and stir over-low heat until chips are melted and smooth. Add sweetened condensed milk; mix well.

In medium bowl, combine flour, nuts, chocolate mixture and vanilla; mix well. Shape 1 tablespoon (use measuring spoon) of dough around each candy kiss, covering completely. Place 1 inch apart on ungreased cookie sheets.

Bake at 350 degrees for 6 to 8 minutes. Cookies will be soft and appear shiny but become firm as they cool. Do not overbake. Remove from cookie sheets.

Storage: Store in tightly covered container.

Yield: Makes 5 dozen cookies.

But when he subsequently learned that the panel of judges, made up of food editors from newspapers and magazines across the nation, had named her bonbons best of the six — and worthy of an additional $40,000 plus a $10,000 kitchen makeover from Sears — he sang a different tune.

"Oh, it's her money," he said, beaming. "I'm leaving the decision up to her."

I think lutefisk, with melted butter, tastes a lot like lobster, but my friends, too squeamish to try it, have their doubts. I've also heard relatives' stories of cooking lutefisk and stinking up the house, or that it has to be cooked just right-to-be-perfect. It sounded way too complicated for me — an amateur cook at best.

Anyway, here I was in Grand Forks buying a couple of microwaveable Michael's Classic Lutefisk Meals from Earl Wright, a right of Alaska Midwest Seafood Inc. of Fargo, N.D.

Wright said the dinner has been on sale for only a few weeks. It's produced by Mike's Fish and Seafood of Glenwood, Minn. To Wright's knowledge, it's the only microwaveable lutefisk dinner on the market.

I got the first case they produced, and it's been selling pretty well," he said. "I've heard no bad comments about it. It's real good for there's only one person in a family who likes lutefisk. They can just pop it in the oven, I've had some people buy eight or 10 of them."

Where to get microwave lutefisk: Each Michael's Classic Lutefisk meal costs $3.99. They're made by Mike's Fish and Seafood Inc., Highway 55, Glenwood, Minn., 56334, phone (612) 634-5146.

Course eyes learning disabled

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — "The Learning Disabled or Attention Deficit Child: A Special Challenge" is a three-session course planned by the Scottish Rite Learning Clinic and the College of Southern Idaho.

The course is designed to increase parental awareness and skills in living and working with young people who have learning disabilities and/or attention deficit disorders.

Angela Eames will present the program. Eames is an academic specialist from Lenker, Michener and Associates Inc. and a teacher with an Idaho certification in elementary education; advanced exceptional child, consulting and reading endorsement.

Eames will cover recognizing early warning signs; experiencing a simulation of a learning disability; fostering independence at home and school; developing positive home/school relationships; realistic expectations and self-esteem in both parent and child; and discussing relevant school laws and homework issues.

The class is set for 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesdays, today through March 23 in Shields 116. Cost is $10.

For more information, call Eames at 734-3914 or the CSI Continuing Education Office at 733-9554, Ext. 270.

"I buy Falls Bread (Independent Meat) here in Twin because their operation is so clean and good," said Eller, who specialty slices and trims. "All of our meat is at least 95 percent lean."

Everything's made fresh in the salami bar, too, with no preservatives. "One last two health department inspections have been 100 percent," Gene Eller said.

All this — and sandwiches named after area landmarks.

Like Pillar Falls (provolone), salami, ham, Swiss and provolone) and Shoshone Falls (ham, turkey, roast beef, pastrami; American, Swiss and provolone) and Canyon Rim (ham, turkey, roast beef, Swiss and American). All of the above come with a choice of bread and sell for $3.99 to $4.99. Each one is plenty big enough for two.

Those who prefer a half sandwich may choose their own meats, cheeses and toppings. There are also soup and sandwich, salad and sandwich and soup and salad combos.

The Eilers prepare 15 varieties of soups under three a day. Special favorite is a cream of broccoli, potato and bacon, vegetable beef barley, chicken-noodle and clam chowder.

It's no lye: Microwave lutefisk dinners are here

By Dale Stensgaard

A recent ad in the Grand Forks (N.D.) Herald caught my eye. It told of a quick and easy fresh frozen seafood conducted by Alaska Midwest Seafood Inc. in the Kmart parking lot.

Being of Norwegian descent, guess what I was drawn to ... the lobster, crab, shrimp, salmon, walleye, halibut, pollock, tuna?

Nah.

In a little box in the ad, right above the pickled herring, was "New microwaveable lutefisk dinners."

Lutefisk, as you may know from the special attention it has received during the Winter Olympics in Norway, is cod preserved in lye. Miami Herald-columnist Dave Barry, reporting from Lillehammer, recently called

I knew I had to try one of the microwaveable lutefisk dinners, unlike that less-than-intrigued Bismarck (N.D.) Tribune reporter who covered a lutefisk supper a couple of years ago but then chickened out on actually tasting the stuff.

I've liked lutefisk since I was a little kid, but haven't eaten it much in recent years.

And Scandinavians aren't the only people who eat food that has been processed with lye.

That Southern delicacy, hymnitis, is sometimes made by using lye but not bleach, according to the Random House Dictionary of the English Language.

I think lutefisk, with melted butter, tastes a lot like lobster, but my friends, too squeamish to try it, have their doubts. I've also heard relatives' stories of cooking lutefisk and stinking up the house, or that it has to be cooked just right-to-be-perfect. It sounded way too complicated for me — an amateur cook at best.

Anyway, here I was in Grand Forks buying a couple of microwaveable Michael's Classic Lutefisk Meals from Earl Wright, a right of Alaska Midwest Seafood Inc. of Fargo, N.D.

Wright said the dinner has been on sale for only a few weeks. It's produced by Mike's Fish and Seafood of Glenwood, Minn. To Wright's knowledge, it's the only microwaveable lutefisk dinner on the market.

I got the first case they produced, and it's been selling pretty well," he said. "I've heard no bad comments about it. It's real good for there's only one person in a family who likes lutefisk. They can just pop it in the oven, I've had some people buy eight or 10 of them."

Where to get microwave lutefisk: Each Michael's Classic Lutefisk meal costs $3.99. They're made by Mike's Fish and Seafood Inc., Highway 55, Glenwood, Minn., 56334, phone (612) 634-5146.

Sandwich lovers can switch spreads and lower fat

The Washington Post

Like a little tuna with your mayonnaise sandwich? Can't eat a ham on a bun without sneezing as much butter on it as it takes to bake a pound cake?

This isn't one more admonition to slip sliced turkey or grilled vegetables between bread instead of bologna or salami. You've heard that one often. What you may not realize is that well-intentioned sandwiches can become nutritional disasters.

"Some people feel hotter-than-hell eating a tuna-fish sandwich," says Robyn Flipse, a nutritionist in private practice in Ocean, N.J. But that's not necessarily a high-weight or prudent sandwich," she says.

It's not uncommon for cafeterias to mix a half-cup of tuna with two tablespoons of mayonnaise, says Flipse. And that means almost 25 grams of fat just for the mayonnaise. Plus, many carryovers and hungry brown baggers pile sandwiches with far more than a half-cup of tuna, and if tuna packed in oil is used, that's 15 to 25 more grams of fat, depending on whether the tuna was chunk light, chunk white or solid white.

So a "virtuous" tuna sandwich could contain 50 grams of fat. The recommended maximum is 65 grams a day for an adult consuming 2,000 calories per day.

The obvious alternative is a reduced-calorie or fat-free mayonnaise dressing. Basically, the mayonnaise shelf comes down to three choices: Regular, which no matter what oil it's made from, contains about 100 calories and up to 12 grams of fat per tablespoon; reduced-calorie, with slashes of calories as fat in half, or non-fat, which provides only 12 calories per tablespoon and no fat.

Note that mayonnaises labeled "cholesterol free" are no great advantage, since a tablespoon of regular mayonnaise contains only 5 milligrams of cholesterol. (Health groups advise eating no more than 300 mg per day.)

sandwiches, too, and there is a $2.69 lo-cal sandwich (40-calories-a-slice bread, lo-cal Italian dressing, lettuce, sprouts, tomatoes, turkey and provolone).

The Eilers' croissant dishes are becoming increasingly popular, as are their meat and cheese or veggie party trays.

Extras include soft pretzels, chips and brownies. Delivery is available on large group orders.

The Eilers are happy with their new venture, they said, so much so that they are beginning to think of expanding. They might open a second restaurant. That's not definite, yet, but one thing is for sure. Any restaurant owned by the Eilers will have that home-town touch.

Dow sinks 22 as U.S. bonds swoon

Knight-Ridder News Service

NEW YORK — The Dow industrials sank 22 points Tuesday to close at 3809, their lowest finish in nearly two months, as the U.S. Treasury bond market swooned on new economic data that reinforced market fears that the Federal Reserve could boost short-term interest rates for a second time, following its Feb. 4 action, much sooner than many investors have expected.

The U.S. 30-year Treasury bond, down 4/32 as stocks opened, extended that loss to more than 1 1/2 points by mid-afternoon as long yields surged as high as 6.794 percent from a session low of 6.649 percent.

This latest in an extended series of bond losses rebounded fears that the accelerating uptrend in yields is not merely a periodic "hiccup," as many economists have suggested, but a more relentless pattern that could eventually cripple the U.S. economic recovery and send stock mutual funds, as well as individual investors, buyers scurrying back into the safety of federally insured savings accounts.

At 8:30 a.m. EST, the government announced that it has strongly revised upward its initial estimate of fourth-quarter gross domestic product to 7.5 percent annual rate increase from the original estimate of up 5.9 percent.

Economists had generally expected an upward revision to 6.8 percent. The news initially sent the 30-year bond down nearly half a point.

Stocks weathered the first slide in bonds because, once the credit markets examined the details of the GDP revision, the inflation readings were quite reassuring.

The fixed-weight price index edged to a 2.3 percent rise instead of the 2.2 percent original uptick. And the implicit price deflator was unreviced at a reading of up 1.3 percent.

It was not until 10 a.m. that stocks were undermined by a second, more serious tumble in the bond market, after the National Association of Purchasing Management announced an alarming increase in its pricing component for February, which surged to 67.0 percent from 59.8 percent.

Federal Reserve rejects compromise on turf war

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Advocates of simplifying the bureaucracy that regulates banks have failed so far in their efforts to entice the Federal Reserve into going along.

Federal Reserve Board member John P. LaWare said Monday the administration's latest offer to guarantee the Fed a role in overseeing the 20 largest banks in the country, isn't good enough.

In testimony scheduled Tuesday before the Senate Banking Committee, Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen will outline the latest refinement of the administration plan. It would allow the Fed to examine 10 of the nation's 20 largest banks each year plus a cross-section of smaller banks, amounting to 5 percent of the industry, according to a senior administration official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

It also would ensure the Fed retained independent power to take action against unsound institutions, the official said.

However, in an interview, LaWare said the plan wasn't acceptable because it did not allow the Fed to retain its power to write rules for banks and their holding companies and because it threatened the demise of the dual banking system, which both states and the federal government have the power to charter new banks.
