Andrus decries Gem water ruling

By Drew DeSilver
Times-News writer

BOISE — Gov. Cecil Andrus said Thursday that he will not order groundwater irrigators in southern Idaho to shut off their pumps, despite a recent state Supreme Court decision.

Andrus told a luncheon meeting of the Boise Rotary club that the ruling could devastate Idaho's agricultural economy and throw tens of thousands of water rights into turmoil.

"It just scares the pants off me," he said. "Are we going to shut down some of the richest agricultural land in all the world? Heavens, no."

On Wednesday, the Idaho Department of Water Resources mailed more than 9,600 notices to groundwater users in the Snake River Plain Aquifer, warning them that their pumps may have to be shut off this year if senior rights holders whose water supplies run short demand all the water they're entitled to.

The warnings were sent to agricultural, industrial, municipal and commercial water users.

But Andrus said that as long as he's governor, those warnings will not come to fruition.

"You're talking about 1,642,000 acres of irrigated cropland, and no one in his right mind is going to issue those orders — at least, not for the next eight or nine months," he said. "There has to be a different resolution to this."

Later Thursday afternoon, Andrus met with top legislative leaders for 45 minutes. They agreed to petition the Supreme Court for a rehearing on its Feb. 23 ruling.

The petition will ask the justices to clarify certain elements of their decision that apparently are quite problematic," Andrus spokesman Scott Peyron said.

The high court's unanimous decision came in a lawsuit against Water Resources Director Keith Higginson by Alvin and Tim Musser and Butch Morris. The Mussers lease to Morris Lincoln Elementary School sixth-graders Sara Sligar and Chase Bolyard, along with their schoolmates, are selling value cards to raise money for computers.

Card-toting kids cashing in

By Mick Normington
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Students at Sawtooth Elementary School are going into business to hire a teacher.

Sawtooth students, along with students at Perrine Elementary School and Lincoln Elementary School, are selling Liberty Value Cards as their fund-raiser. The plastic cards cost $12 and offer discounts at local stores such as Domino's Pizza, Babel's Cleaners, and Sodbuster Restaurant and Bakery.

When selling started this week, Sawtooth students sold 450 cards immediately. They will continue selling the cards until Thursday.

At Sawtooth, the Parent Teacher Organization is running the card sales to raise money to hire a full-time computer instructor.

Sawtooth Principal Randy Rutledge said his school can't afford to hire a computer instructor for more than a few hours a week.

Lincoln students have sold 331 cards this week, said Parent Teacher Association Co-President Karen Sligar. Money raised by Lincoln students will go toward computers for the school, she said.

At Perrine, money from the cards will go to teachers for field trips and school supplies. The Perrine PTO is also collecting money for new encyclopedias and playground equipment, said Debbie Dlouhy, fund raising chairwoman.

Tower Enterprises of Logan, Utah, runs the discount card system.

Under the program, the school parent associations get to keep $3.50 from each card sold. Tower Enterprises keeps the remaining $6.50 from each card and supplies the students with prizes and incentives.

Top-selling students can get digital watches, candy and be in drawings for stereo equipment. And top selling classes can get pizza and ice cream parties.

"I looked at probably 30 fund raisers. And on this one the return was greater," said Nancy Strand, president of the Sawtooth PTO.

She also said this is a new idea for Twin Falls, so it should be popular for a while.

Whitewater affair could sap Clinton's effectiveness

By Tom Raum
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Americans so far have tended to give President Clinton the benefit of the doubt on questions of judgment. But the spectacle of top White House aides testifying before a grand jury brings the issue of trust to the fore and could undercut his administration's ability to perform.

Clinton has been able to spring back from crises before, ranging from gays in the military to a $200 Hollywood haircut to the firings of the White House travel office staff.

And even now, White House strategists were considering ways for him to clear the air — including a possible joint TV appearance with Hillary Rodham Clinton.

But Whitewater could prove a harder ordeal for Clinton to overcome than his previous challenges.

Questions of Clinton's character have always lurked close to the surface. But until now, his activism on issues Americans deem important generally has helped keep such questions at bay.

At least one new poll suggests more than a majority of Americans believe Clinton did something illegal or unethical in the Whitewater affair.

The investigation entered a new, more serious stage as the first of ten administration officials nothing incriminating about a subpoena and no one stands accused of wrongdoing, the development played into hands of Republicans who are seeking to draw a comparison between Whitewater and the Watergate scandal of two decades ago.

And the affair threatened to take a toll on Clinton's effectiveness, eroding his political capital and making his relations with Congress more difficult.

"It's bound to drain time and energy from the president's agenda," said Larry Sabato, a University of Virginia political scientist. "And it will chill personal relations to some degree within the White House. People are afraid to talk to one another about forbidden subjects."

The Whitewater affair was spinning out of control at a time when Clinton was having a hard time anyway moving the centerpiece of his second year, his overhaul of the health-care system.

The growing affair also threatened to undermine Mrs. Clinton's work. No longer can she

Sarajevo schoolgirl demolishes theories

WASHINGTON — Children in Sarajevo don't see themselves as Serbs or Croats or Muslims. 13-year-old Zlata Filipovic told U.S. lawmakers Thursday.

"We just knew that the war came, that any moment we can be killed," she said.

Zlata, whose diary is being published worldwide, left some long-described war's injustices and gently rejected some of her pet theories.

Rep. Chris Smith was so impressed with Zlata's testimony before the congressional Helsinki Commission that he urged her to run for office when conditions improve in Bosnia.

But Zlata, sitting at the massive witness table in a schoolgirl's navy blue sweater and white blouse, said all she wants is to go to school, maybe attend a university, get married and lead "just a normal life."

Zlata said her source of strength was the love that family members and friends had for each other. "I have the strength which my par-

Snow turns to rain in latest storm to strike East

The Associated Press

The latest storm to hit the East started with snow, then changed to heavy rain Thursday, creating slushy and icy conditions. It was dry in most of the rest of the country.

In New Jersey, Newark reported 1.82 inches of precipitation Thursday morning. That included 1.36 inches of rain between midnight and 10 a.m., which broke the 1983 rainfall record for the date of 1.1 inches.

Philadelphia and Chicago Falls, Mass., each had .85 inch of snow in a six-hour period ending in the afternoon. Throughout New York state, the snow was not as heavy as the 8 to 12 inches forecasters had anticipated. Snowfall totals generally topped out at 3 to 7 inches before the precipitation turned to freezing rain. Some areas of the Hudson Valley received more than 2 inches of rain after the changeover.

Rain extended across the Atlantic Coast, from southern Maine to north-central Florida, with scattered storms from the middle Atlantic Coast to southeastern Georgia. Strong southerly winds also blew in ahead of a cold front that was slowly crossing the Atlantic Coast region Thursday, while blustery northwest winds prevailed behind the front.

Lingering snow showers were over the upper Ohio Valley and the lower Great Lakes region Thursday afternoon, bringing 4 to 6 inches of snow along a band about 100 miles wide from Cincinnati to Cleveland.

A few rain and snow showers associated with a cold front crossing the central United States were over southern Wisconsin, eastern Iowa and extreme southeastern Minnesota. A few rain showers were also over the northern and central Pacific Coast region; and the northern Plains.

The wind was brisk over most of the northern Plains, and northwesterly winds prevailed behind a cold front crossing the central Plains and the middle Mississippi Valley. Temperatures during the day remained in the 20s and upper teens from North Dakota to upper Michigan, while readings reached the 80s across the Florida Peninsula.

Temperatures were in the 30s over southern Alaska, while readings across northern sections were 10 to 20 degrees below zero.

Weather summary

A cold front and an upper level storm wave moved across Idaho Thursday, bringing cloudy skies and showers of rain or snow.

Boise reported 1.5 inch of rain from showers by 3 p.m., and rain showers were reported over the Raft River Mountains near Malta. Showers also crossed the Magic Valley around 6 p.m.

Craig schedules salmon meeting

WASHINGTON — Sen. Larry Craig has scheduled a March 21 meeting with the National Marine Fisheries Service, the Bonneville Power Administration and other agencies on the water demands of the government's salmon recovery program.

The Idaho Republican opposes a Fisheries Service biological opinion issued last month that calls for adding 11.5 million acre-feet of water a year to the Snake and Columbia river systems during the next five years to help migrating salmon smelts move through a series of slackwater reservoirs to the sea.

Craig said Thursday that he wants some detailed answers to his questions before the plan is finalized. He said Fisheries Service, BPA, Army Corps of Engineers and Bureau of Reclamation officials will attend the meeting in his Washington, D.C., office.

AIDS cases more than double in '93

ATLANTA — The number of new AIDS cases unexpectedly more than doubled last year under a broader definition of the disease and boosted by a sharp increase in the number of infections among heterosexuals.

The federal Centers for Disease Control had projected 1993 AIDS cases would jump 75 percent from the first year of the new definition. It actually increased by 111 percent, from 49,016 in 1992 to 103,500 in 1993, the agency reported Thursday. Last year, the CDC expanded its definition to include those infected with HIV who also have a severely suppressed immune system, tuberculosis, recurrent pneumonia or invasive cervical cancer.

Democrats push spending plan along

WASHINGTON — Democrats began mustering a $151-trillion spending plan through the House Thursday while lawmakers rejected a conservative budget that would balance the budget by 1999 with massive spending cuts.

The Democratic package, reflecting most of President Clinton's priorities, would squeeze the 1995 federal deficit to $175.3 billion, the least red ink since 1989. It would trim defense spending and shift money from agriculture and hundreds of other programs to job training and scores of administration-backed initiatives.

Passage of the Democrats' plan was virtually certain today.

More U.S. troops for Macedonia

WASHINGTON — The Clinton administration is preparing a plan to add several hundred U.S. troops to the 300-man force in the former Yugoslav republic of Macedonia, thereby freeing Scandinavian troops for duty in Bosnia, U.S. officials said Thursday.

The idea is to help respond to U.N. commanders' calls for more help in Bosnia while also maintaining President Clinton's policy of keeping American ground troops out of the embattled country until there is a solid peace agreement.

The troops would be drawn from Germany and replace Swedes, Norwegians, Finns and Danes who are in Macedonia.

an 1892 water right at the Martin-Curran water tunnel, a spot where the Snake Plain aquifer flows out of the wall of the Snake River Canyon.

Last year, the Mussers and Morris attorneys didn't receive their full water rights because groundwater pumps had taken their water farther up the aquifer. The Supreme Court upheld a ruling by 5th District Judge Daniel Hurlbutt that Higginson must administer groundwater and surface water together, or conjunctively, and strictly according to the Idaho Constitution's doctrine of prior appropriation — summarized as

"Water Resources had argued that it should be able to consider whether senior rights interfered with the 'full economic development' of groundwater resources, and that groundwater pumps were entitled to 'reasonable' pumping levels."

If the Mussers and Morris don't receive their full water rights this spring, they can make a "call" — that is, formally demand that Higginson take steps to ensure they get their water. If that happens, Water Resources said in its notice, it may have to begin shutting down pumps.

Clive Strong, natural-resources chief in the attorney general's office, said his staff is working with Andrus and the Legislature to decide just what issues to raise in the petition for a rehearing. The petition must be filed by March 21.

But Andrus noted in his talk to the Rotarians that "with a 5-to-0 (Supreme Court) decision, I don't know how much good a rehearing will do."

The Water Resources Department estimates that at any given time, about 3.4 million acres of Idaho farmland are irrigated, although enough water rights have been granted for close to 4 million acres.

Of that total, Water Resources spokesman Dick Larsen said, between 1.2 million and 1.6 million acres use groundwater, although estimates vary. Nearly all the state's groundwater-irrigated land is in the Snake Plain aquifer.

Water Resources is trying to write less-dramatic remedies for surface vs. groundwater conflicts. A public information meeting on new state water rules will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday at the Weston Plaza in Twin Falls.

Public hearings on the rules will be March 24 at the Grange Hall in Gooding and March 25 at the National Guard armory in Rupert. Both public hearings will begin at 1 p.m.

Andrus said that, despite his opposition to a mass shutdown of wells in southern Idaho, he recognizes that the aquifer cannot support its current level of water withdrawal.

"We have studied so many strands into Mother Nature, to the point where we have more obligations than water," he said.

White House officials face grand jury

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a politically charged atmosphere, White House officials testified before a federal grand jury about the Whitewater affair Thursday.

In addition, the administration gave investigators an attache case full of subpoenaed documents.

The leadoff witnesses were two of Hillary Rodham Clinton's senior aides: chief of staff Margaret Williams and press secretary Lisa Caputo. President Clinton's communications chief, Mark Gerstein, also was ready to testify.

Seven other administration officials under subpoena were allowed to delay their appearances.

While not accused of wrongdoing, the officials were subpoenaed in a probe of whether the White House intruded improperly in investigations of the Clintons' interest in the failed Whitewater land deal and its ties to a collapsed savings and loan.

The unusual drama of White House officials being ordered before a grand jury created a storm of attention at the U.S. District Courthouse. Throngs of photographers, cameramen and reporters staked out courthouse entrances, and special prosecutor Robert Fiske had to be helped through the pack by federal marshals.

A dozen demonstrators who described themselves as members of conservative groups milled with posters reading, "Shred No More," "Fess Up," "Please, All Documents," and "Stop the Coverup."

The grand jury testimony began with Williams, Mrs. Clinton's chief of staff. She spent two hours in the third-floor grand jury room and, on the way out, stopped for a moment before the press.

"You can't come out of anything like this and not have a fairly healthy respect for the process," Williams said. "I'm really encouraged to be participating in something where the finding of fact is important, as opposed to innuendo and rumormongering and gossip and sensationalism."

"I'm going back to work," she said, ignoring shouted questions.

The president, in New York for a series of appearances, complained to one audience, about people in Washington "using extreme words to characterize conduct or activity or positions. The other politicians do it, the media do it, always trying to twist it like taffy to the nth degree."

The president was accompanied by Bruce Lindsey, a close confidant who was among those subpoenaed.

On Capitol Hill, Republicans kept up their demands for congressional hearings but, at the request of Fiske, said they would agree to a delay so prosecutors would get first crack at critical witnesses.

Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, said congressional hearings could begin by "the middle of May at perhaps even June first." Democrats are resisting the hearings, accusing the GOP of merely trying to make political hay at Clinton's expense.

The subpoenaed documents were delivered to the grand jury by White House deputy counsel Joel Klein, associate counsel Marvin Krislow and Chris Cerf, general counsel for the White House Office of Administration.

About 1,000 pages of notes, letters, memos, phone logs and newspaper clippings related to Whitewater were collected in a week of searching by 400 White House employees. Duplicates made up at least half of the packet, an administration official said.

"The White House did not exercise executive privilege to withhold any documents," Klein said, but he refused to say whether the president or first lady turned over any material.

Klein merely said that the Clintons had complied, meaning they either had no documents covered by the subpoena or had turned them over.

Between 30 and 50 employees provided documents to Fiske. The papers were culled from a much larger batch of documents submitted by the staff and withheld down by the counsel's office under the direction of Fiske's aides.

Across the administration Whitewater cast a shadow.

Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen said he had had to rent a warehouse to store documents that might be wanted.

"We've been holding back our trash to the point that I've had to use a warehouse ... to hold the overflow," he told a congressional panel.

There are 15 special investigators and internal auditors going through our files on my floor alone.

Attorney General Janet Reno was questioned about Whitewater at her weekly news conference. She acknowledged being alerted when the Justice Department was asked to conduct a criminal investigation of the Madison Guaranty Savings and Loan, an Arkansas thrift with ties to the Clintons.

FBI agent testifies in Ames spy case

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — The CIA knew that Aldrich Ames paid $540,000 cash for his home and had foreign bank accounts years before the FBI began investigating him as a spy for Moscow, an FBI agent testified Thursday.

Plato Cacheris, defense attorney for Ames, a 31-year veteran CIA officer, extracted that information while cross-examining FBI Special Agent Leslie Wiser Jr. in federal court. He also got Wiser to admit the government does not know how much money is in the foreign accounts and has never seen any Russians give money to Ames or his wife.

But the government introduced part of a nine-page letter typed with spy jargon and seized from Ames' home that discussed the difficulties in putting money for the Ames in the "CS" bank. Wiser concluded the instructions came from the Soviets in 1989 and referred to Ames' account at Credit Suisse bank in Switzerland.

Prosecutors persuaded Judge Claude Hilton to renew an order barring Ames and his wife, Rosario, from spending any of their assets in 11 foreign and domestic bank and brokerage accounts.

Hilton also agreed to order the couple to transfer up to $2,245,311 from foreign accounts to court custody here so it can be forfeited if they are convicted.

That's the minimum prosecutors allege the couple made in nine years of spying; they put the maximum above $2.5 million.

But Assistant U.S. Attorney Mark Haller acknowledged "we don't anticipate all the property put together is ever going to come close to the $2.5 million they received from the Russians" because "the defendants have squandered tremendous amounts of money that will never be recovered."

Hilton denied defense requests to let the Ames pay living expenses for their 5-year-old son, Paul, who is staying with relatives and friends because the couple has been denied bail.

Cacheris asked Wiser if the CIA had known when it conducted a background investigation of Ames in 1989 that he had paid cash for his Arlington, Va., home.

"Yes sir," Wiser responded, adding that he was not certain whether it was 1989 or 1991 but believed it was the earlier date. Wiser also said, however, a polygraph test was administered at the time. Government officials have said Ames was polygraphed in 1991.

Cacheris, suggesting Ames hadn't concealed his wealth, asked when the CIA knew Ames had foreign bank accounts.

"1990, 1991 or maybe 1992," Wiser replied.

Government officials have said the CIA began hunting for a Soviet agent in its ranks in 1985. The FBI was brought in to help in the early 1990s as the search narrowed, but Wiser testified earlier that the FBI investigation of Ames was not begun until May 12, 1993.

Few disabled who recover give up benefits, return to work

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of Americans who are no longer disabled continue to receive federal benefits because Social Security fails to check their health, Congress was told Thursday.

Lawmakers said the Social Security Administration has ignored a 1980 law that requires the agency to conduct "continuing disability reviews" of the millions of people who collect a monthly disability check from the federal government.

"Big dollars are slipping away," said Rep. Amodeo Houghton, R-N.Y.

Members of the House Ways and Means subcommittee on Social Security also attacked the agency for spending money Congress intended to be used for the disability program on pay raises instead, which Congress also required.

According to Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Texas, only 1 percent of all disability recipients give up their Social Security benefits because they have recovered.

"They get on the rolls and they ride into the sunset until their maker calls and they're laid to rest," Pickle said during a hearing on Social Security's decision to virtually abandon disability reviews. He accused the agency of disregarding the law and said the situation had degenerated into "a horrendous crisis."

According to the General Accounting Office, Social Security's failure to conduct the proper number of reviews from 1990 through 1993 will result in an accumulated loss to taxpayers of $1.4 billion by 1997. At least 30,000 ineligible persons may be on the rolls, said June L. Ross of the GAO, the congressional watchdog agency.

Under the law, Social Security is supposed to conduct 400,000 to 500,000 reviews every year of ill or injured workers who collect disability insurance.

Pickle said the agency has done fewer than 50,000 in each of the last three years. As many as 1.1 million recipients are now due to have their cases reviewed, but Social Security is now checking the health of just 45,000, according to Pickle and testimony from the agency.

The agency is also supposed to review disability cases on the rolls of Supplemental Security Income, a welfare program, but that requirement is not written into the law.

Combined, the two programs provide $50 billion a year in disability benefits to 7.5 million persons.

To qualify for benefits, a person must have an illness or disabling condition expected to last at least a year or result in death. But some medical conditions improve over time with therapy, medicines or surgery.

Social Security's deputy commissioner, Lawrence H. Thompson, said the agency decided several years ago to focus on processing a flood of applications for disability benefits at the expense of the reviews.

Only 6 percent of all recipients reviewed are ultimately kicked off the rolls, Ross said. But the agency still saves $6 for every $1 spent.

Thompson said Social Security has mailed questionnaires to 92,000 recipients asking them about their health. Based on the responses, the agency will conduct full medical workups on about half the total.

He said Social Security is "chipping away" but not solving the problem.

Legislation pending in Congress sponsored by Reps. Andy Jacobs, D-Ind., and Jim Bunning, R-Ky., would allow Social Security to use some of the money it saves from conducting reviews to conduct more reviews.

Navy secretary 'embarrassed' by sex charge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Navy Secretary John Dalton declared himself "embarrassed" Thursday by allegations of unpunished sexual harassment in the military and disavowed any link to the Pentagon's policies against abuse.

Dalton's comments before the Senate Appropriations defense subcommittee came a day after four women, representing the four military services, told a House committee they were sexually harassed and punished or put in dead-end jobs for complaining.

They said the harassers went unpunished or got mild reprimands.

"Reading those statements made my blood boil," Dalton told Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa.

"Mr. Secretary, those allegations were not exactly news," Specter replied. "The essence of the complaint is that their grievances were not taken seriously."

Dalton described a "traffic light" strategy in which Navy personnel are educated on the kinds of comments and behavior that cross the line of propriety. But he added that more must be done to ensure allegations are treated seriously.

"I'm not pleased with the level of progress," Dalton said. "If those comments we heard yesterday are any indication, I'm embarrassed by it."

Former Health Secretary Joseph Califano testifies on Capitol Hill Thursday before the Senate Finance Committee which was holding hearings on health care.

Study claims smoking leads to other drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Young people who smoke cigarettes are many times more likely than others to use drugs, says a study by a private organization that wants higher taxes on tobacco.

Former Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. presented a study on smoking and drugs to senators Thursday, and urged them to raise the 24-cent cigarette tax by $2 a pack. He said the increase would not only help pay for health reform but also curb smoking and, by extension, drug abuse.

"This tax is essential to put cigarettes beyond the means and lunch money of most elementary and high-school students," Califano told the Senate Finance Committee.

Califano, who now is president and chairman of Columbia University's Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse, cited statistics from the center's new study on teens, smoking and drugs.

According to the study — based on figures from the National Institute of Drug Abuse's National Household Survey on Drug Abuse — smokers between the ages of 12 and 17 are 23 times more likely to use marijuana and 12 times more likely to use heroin than those who have never smoked. They are 51 times more likely to use cocaine and 57 times more likely to use crack.

A 12-year-old who smokes is 30 times more likely to have used illicit drugs than a 12-year-old who doesn't smoke, according to the analysis.

The Coalition on Smoking OR Health, which includes the American Heart Association, the American Lung Association and the American Cancer Society, is also urging a $2-per-pack tax increase.

The Clinton health plan would raise the tax by 75 cents a pack.

Hemispheric summit will be in Miami

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clinton administration has selected Miami as the site of a hemispheric summit meeting to which more than 30 leaders will be invited in December, an administration official said Thursday.

The official, asking not to be identified, said Miami won out over alternate locations because the high-visibility festivities will be a political plus for President Clinton in an important swing state.

Clinton lost Florida by a narrow margin to President Bush in 1992.

The formal White House announcement of Miami as the summit site is expected on Friday.

The major themes of the summit will be environmental issues as well as the possibility of expanding the North American Free Trade Agreement to other hemispheric countries. NAFTA encompasses Canada, the United States and Mexico.

The summit also will celebrate the advent of democratic rule to virtually all hemispheric countries since 1979.

The conclave will attract hemispheric leaders from Canada to Argentina, including the independent nations of the Caribbean. According to current plans, the heads of government from Cuba and Haiti will not be invited because they are not democratically elected.

The decision to host the summit in Miami was first reported in today's editions of the Miami Herald.

Texas nighttime law under fire

HOUSTON (AP) — The Wild West has left a dark legacy in Texas. It includes rodeos, cowboy boots and a law that lets homeowners open fire during the night to defend their lives and property.

But the recent fatal shootings in Houston of a Scottish businessman and an auto-repossession man have raised questions about Texas' self-defense statute, which lets homeowners use deadly force at night even to counter minor offenses like theft or criminal mischief — such as egging a house.

In New York, by comparison, deadly force to counter property crimes can be used only to prevent an arson or burglary.

"Compared to most states, it is very harsh," said Robert Schuwerk, a University of Houston Law Center professor. "Most states take the view that property is a much lesser issue than a self-defense type of issue."

On Jan. 7, Andrew De Vries, a visiting businessman from Aberdeen, Scotland, was fatally shot during the night by homeowner Jeffrey Agee. De Vries and a colleague had been out on the town and were being driven back to their hotel when they detoured to get out of the car, police said.

The two started knocking on doors in Agee's upscale West Houston neighborhood. De Vries rang Agee's doorbell twice, hiding each time Agee came to the door, then jumped his backyard fence and banged on glass doors.

Agee, fearing for his family's safety, shot De Vries. Last month, a grand jury cleared him because of the self-defense statute.

On Feb. 25, also during the night, Tommy Dean Morris was shot to death while legally trying to repossess the car of Jerry Casey Jr., who was three days late on a payment.

The nighttime deadly force law is expected to be Casey's defense, which has outraged Morris' family.

"If you were behind on your payment, wouldn't you know it? He knew the car was being repossessed. He saw that it was being towed, that it wasn't being stolen, but he fired anyway," said Morris' widow, Donna, now a single mother to four children.

The case has yet to reach a grand jury, which must decide whether to indict Casey.

While declining to comment on the specifics of the case, Harris County District Attorney Johnny Holmes defended the statute.

"What if Agee shot a two-time ex-con for burglary? Or a kick burglar? No one would be concerned with the law," Holmes said.

Senator insists he did not falsify expenses

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Dave Durenberger pleaded innocent Thursday to charges of falsifying his Senate expense account to collect $3,825.

Durenberger has denied any criminal wrongdoing, and said in a statement Thursday: "I am absolutely confident that I will be exonerated in a trial and I look forward to vindication."

His lawyer asked U.S. District Judge Stanley S. Harris to transfer the case to a federal court in Minnesota. There was no immediate ruling on that.

Durenberger said "not guilty" when asked how he pleaded to the charges. Harris allowed him to remain free on his own recognizance.

Durenberger, R-Minn., is charged with making false claims to the Senate and with conspiring to make false claims. If convicted on both felony counts, he could face up to 10 years in prison and a $500,000 fine.

Durenberger, who is leaving the Senate after this year, was formally denounced by Senate colleagues in 1990 for the condominium deal and other alleged financial improprieties.

His indictment by a federal grand jury on Feb. 25 marked the second time Durenberger was charged in the case. Identical counts were dismissed in December because a judge said the original grand jury was improperly exposed to material gathered by a Senate committee. The second grand jury did not see that Senate testimony.

Prosecutors say Durenberger and two friends — attorney Michael Mahoney and businessman Paul Overgaard — hid the senator's ownership in a Minnesota condominium so he could collect $3,825 in Senate reimbursement for staying there.

The indictment said the three men back-dated documents to make it appear that the condominium was sold to Overgaard in 1987 several months before it actually was.

Mahoney and Overgaard also had been charged in the original indictment. The cases against them were dismissed after they refused to postpone their trial while authorities considered whether to charge Durenberger again.

In asking Harris to transfer the case to Minnesota, Durenberger's attorney, Thomas C. Green, said in court papers that virtually all the defense witnesses live there and should not be required to travel to Washington for a trial.

Green also noted that the original case had been sent to Minnesota and that a federal judge there had already ruled on a number of pre-trial issues.

Trial for Gooding murder postponed

GOODING — The March 28 trial of one of two men charged in the September double murder of a Gooding couple has been postponed.

A new trial date for Robert Terry Johnson has not been set. Gooding County Prosecutor said Thursday. Johnson's attorneys had requested the delay and a change of location for his trial because of news media coverage of the killings. Brown has said.

Johnson is charged with two counts of first-degree murder in the deaths of Connie Marie Allen and Ricky Lee Mangum. The couple's throats were slashed. Allen was raped and a small amount of money was taken from their rural Gooding County home on Sept. 14.

Johnson and his cousin, Thomas Robert Peterson, were charged with the murders in October. Peterson pleaded guilty Feb. 28 to two counts of first-degree murder.

As part of his guilty pleas he agreed to testify against Johnson. He also escaped the death penalty in exchange for a fixed life sentence in prison, but has not yet been formally sentenced.

Johnson and Peterson were 24 at the time of the killings. Mangum was 33, and Allen was 31.

Forest Service asks public for opinion on grazing plan

FAIRFIELD — The Forest Service is seeking public comment before it rewrites part of the Camas Management Plan for grazing.

The rewrite will take the 1987 Land and Resource Management Plan's section on livestock grazing and tailor it specifically for the 16,000-acre Wardrop portion. The proposal also seeks to break the 53,590-acre Camas grazing allotment into three smaller units — the Wardrop, Willow Creek and Soldier Creek — for individual management.

The Wardrop portion is located seven miles northeast of Fairfield in Camas County. The area is contained within Hunting Unit 44 and includes the Wardrop, Sampson, Cannonball and Basalt creek drainages.

The four-unit rest-rotation system was approved in 1976, but concerns have arisen over unsatisfactory stream-bank conditions and protection of sensitive plants.

For more information about the Wardrop Management Plan, call John Shelly at the Forest Service's Fairfield Ranger District, 764-2202. Written comments should be mailed to P.O. Box 189, Fairfield, ID, 83327. Comments should be received no later than April 15.

Twin Falls woman, 41, receives fraud phone call

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls woman was the victim of an apparent fraud scheme last week when someone called and convinced her to give out her checking account and social security numbers over the telephone.

But after giving out the numbers, the woman alerted bank officials and closed her account.

The 41-year-old told police she received a phone call Friday afternoon. When the caller asked if she had applied for a MasterCard last year, she said yes, according to a Twin Falls police report.

The caller said she had been approved for the card but must pay a $129 fee. The money could be taken from her checking account, the caller said. Bank officials said the call sounded like a fraud scheme and they closed the woman's account, according to the report.

Fair board OKs spending, welcomes new member

FILER — The Twin Falls County Fair Board has appointed a new member to represent the east end of the county.

Marvin Norris of Hansen will serve a six-year term, county Commissioner Jim Friley said Monday. Norris takes Terry Cummins's spot on the board, who has in turn replaced Gene Schiffer on the board.

The board also has approved spending up to $5,000 for a computer and software to handle the finances. Fair Manager Cindy Demoney said Wednesday.

In an executive session, the board voted to make an offer on some property owned by Sarah Leonard east of the fairgrounds. Demoney said. Leonard's land could be used for expanded facilities and parking areas, Demoney said.

But no transactions have been made, she said.

Hard-rock mines bring state little

By William Brock
Times-News writer

'Of the millions of dollars being made on hard-rock mining in Idaho, none of it comes back in the form of royalties.'

—Mike Medberry, Ketchum mining activist

TWIN FALLS — Idaho collected $2.14 million last year from mining leases on public lands, but a mining reform activist says the amount is a pittance.

"It's great to get income," said Mike Medberry of Ketchum, "but the state should be getting 10 to 20 times as much as it's getting."

Nearly all the money Uncle Sam paid to Idaho last year was collected from phosphorus mining leases, said Michael Baugher, a federal Minerals Management Service spokesman in Denver. The amount is determined by a formula, which in rough terms equals 2 to 5 percent of the value of the extracted minerals, he said.

"This amount seems to be an industry standard," Baugher said.

"This amounts to a huge subsidy for the destruction of public lands," Medberry said. He pointed out that the federal government gets nothing from hard-rock mining.

"If they can afford to pay it for phosphates, they can certainly afford to pay it for gold," he said. "Of the millions of dollars being made on hard-rock mining in Idaho, none of it comes back in the form of royalties."

The culprit, Medberry insisted, is the federal Mining Law of 1872. The crucial flaw is that the 122-year-old law conveys a right to develop, rather than permission to lease, he said.

But federal mining reform may soon be on the way, said Stephanie Hanna, an Interior Department spokeswoman in Washington, D.C. Both houses of Congress have passed hard-rock mining reform bills, she said.

The House bill calls for an 8 percent smelter royalty, while the Senate bill — introduced by Sen. Larry Craig, R-Idaho — seeks 2 percent of the net profits.

The Interior Department supports the House bill, Hanna said, "because we believe this is a much fairer return to the American taxpayers for mineral extraction on public land."

"They don't have as much concern about Western jobs and the balancing act that's involved," said Craig's spokesman, David Fish. "If they could put on Western glasses and put themselves in the shoes of western people, they'd support our bill."

The higher royalty may generate less revenue by forcing some mining firms out of business — and others to flee to foreign nations, Fish said.

Until Congress acts, the Mining Law of 1872 remains in force, Hanna said. The law was written to promote settlement of the West, she said. Miners were drawn by the idea of getting mineral rights without having to fork over part of their earnings to Uncle Sam.

Deputy court clerk appeals her firing

By Sean L. McCarthy
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A fired county employee said Thursday that she and her attorney are trying to get her job back.

"We have appealed it," deputy clerk Rose Solano told The Times-News Thursday. "My attorney has advised me not to say anything else."

Solano was fired Monday after a closed-door disciplinary hearing Friday. Her immediate supervisor, Chief Deputy Clerk Sherri Broyles, resigned Monday.

Solano's attorney, Lisa Barini-Garcia, said she may attempt to have the appeal open to the public. "County taxpayers would be interested to learn what goes on in the county clerk's office," Barini-Garcia said.

Both Broyles and Twin Falls County Clerk Bob Fort denied any connection between Broyles's resignation and the deputy clerk's firing.

"I believe she resigned under pressure," Barini-Garcia said. Broyles will continue working in the clerk's office in a part-time position, Fort said.

At the appeal hearing, both the deputy clerk and the county clerk would have the opportunity to call witnesses and present evidence.

Fort's written notice of termination said the deputy clerk was fired for negligence, incompetence and the careless loss of county property.

Because her client's competence is in question, Fort may be called as a witness at the appeal hearing, Barini-Garcia said.

"Under Idaho law, everything a deputy does is in the name of the clerk of the court," she said.

Barini-Garcia maintained Thursday that her client has been singled out for problems that should have been corrected, or at least sighted, by her supervisors.

The county still has not indicated what was done in violation of county policy, Barini-Garcia said.

"My client is a quiet woman and maybe they just thought she would go away," she said.

Federal law forbids landfill extension

By Sean L. McCarthy
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — If Twin Falls County gets another extension to open a new garbage landfill at Hub Butte, the extension won't come from the state Department of Health and Welfare.

"Federal law ... does not allow anyone to grant extensions to the deadline that (Environmental Protection Agency Administrator) Carol Browner set," said Joe Nagel, administrator of the state Division of Environmental Quality.

But that does not mean the county has to close its landfill April 9, Nagel said Thursday.

The county could choose to maintain its existing landfill and monitor the groundwater underneath the garbage to comply with federal regulations, he said.

Nagel and state Health and Welfare director Jerry Harris met with Twin Falls County Commissioner Carl Jim Friley in Boise Wednesday to discuss the county's options.

The county might want to persuade Idaho's congressional delegation to pass a simple and narrow amendment on its behalf, Nagel said.

"That's the one (option) I would pursue if I were in their predicament," he said.

Friley was to meet with Gov. Cecil Andrus Thursday to see if the county has any other options. County Commissioner Marvin Hempleman said Thursday.

To comply with stricter environmental regulations, counties must either open new garbage landfills or monitor their existing landfills by April 9.

The county cannot afford to spend the money necessary to monitor its existing landfill, Hempleman has said.

However, the county also cannot acquire the land at Hub Butte from the federal Bureau of Land Management until the April 15 closure of a public comment period on the land transfer.

"We're going to go to the region if nothing else happens," Hempleman said.

A multi-county garbage landfill is under construction at Milner Butte in Cassia County for the Southern Idaho Regional Solid Waste District.

Transportation and miscellaneous costs for taking Twin Falls County's trash to Milner Butte may cost the county $1 million per year, Hempleman said.

Local historian honored in Jerome

By H.R. Weixel
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — A Magic Valley woman was selected as Jerome's citizen of the year and three men received awards for their lifetime achievements in the valley. Virginia Ricketts was designated the 1994 citizen of the year by Dave Asher, representing the Elk's Lodge. Well-known for her work to preserve Idaho's history, Ricketts is a member of the Jerome Historical Society and the Idaho Farm and Ranch Museum organization.

She served as city clerk in Jerome for seven years and has been curator of the Jerome Historical Museum. She has been active in obtaining legislative action to preserve historical sites.

"Virginia Ricketts is also the number one basketball fan in the valley," said Tony Martien, representing the College of Southern Idaho.

Thomas P. Mahan, 1993 citizen of the year was introduced by LeRoy Craig and recognized for his contribution to the state of Idaho on the board of directors for the Idaho Youth Ranch.

Receiving lifetime achievement awards were John

Ricketts

Hosman, former Jerome mayor; Earl Jensen, retired businessman; and Walter C. Bentzinger, implement dealer who has supported community projects and is involved in building the Idaho Farm and Ranch Museum at the crossroads of Interstate 84 and U.S. Highway 93.

Barbara Hosman, chamber of commerce executive secretary, also was honored. Special guests were Mike Glen, Ken Just, and Susie Ward representing the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce and Jules Harrison, Twin Falls businessman.

New chamber officers were introduced by Becky Curtis, outgoing president and Neil Allen, newly elected president. Linda Ekren will serve as president-elect and Laurie Harber, vice president. Serving with the officers on the board of directors are Ken Moore, Linda Hadam, Eugene Fredericksen, Buzz Zimmerman, Ed Robertson, and Pat Malone.

Bill will salvage buyers from unsafe vehicles

By Drew DeSilver
Times-News writer

'There are some very unsafe vehicles out there.'

—Randy Hansen, car dealer

BOISE — Some used cars are more used than others. But in Idaho, it can be hard to tell.

Twin Falls car dealer Randy Hansen found that out the hard way last year, when he inadvertently sold a Chevy Blazer that had been totally rebuilt.

Now — after paying the irate customer $2,800 — Hansen wants to tighten Idaho's vehicle-title law so people will know when they're buying a so-called "salvage" vehicle.

"There are some very unsafe vehicles out there," he said. "To have a vehicle that is sold to a junkyard as junk, rebuild that thing and not even tell anybody about it — that's just not right."

State Rep. Mark Stubbs, R-Twin Falls, is sponsoring a bill that would require any vehicle that has ever been declared salvage to have a "branded" certificate of title indicating that fact.

The House is scheduled to vote on Stubbs' bill today.

A vehicle is declared salvage when it's been so heavily damaged that it would cost more to fix than the vehicle is worth in spare parts. Auto rebuilders sometimes can restore such vehicles to running order, but they are worth far less than undamaged vehicles.

Idaho vehicle titles don't necessarily indicate whether or not the vehicle has ever been declared salvage — especially on out-of-state vehicles. That's how Hansen got burned.

Last winter, someone offered Hansen a used Blazer as a trade-in. The new paint job and other evidence of repairs made Hansen's workers suspicious, but the Idaho title was clean. So Hansen accepted the Blazer and later sold it to a Californian passing through town.

But when the man returned to California and tried to register the Blazer there, he learned that it had been declared salvage in Washington state. Furious, he phoned Hansen and demanded compensation.

"He said, 'You dirty, rotten good-for-nothing crooks,'" Hansen recalled. "Our reputation with that customer was badly damaged."

Hansen said that, according to the Idaho Transportation Department, 2,000 rebuilt salvage vehicles are sold in Idaho every year.

Idaho is known as a state where it's easy to "wash" a vehicle title, Stubbs said, and many car dealers fear that "a flood of flood-damaged vehicles" from the Midwest may be headed for Idaho.

Under his bill, rebuilt salvage vehicles also would have to sport a "repaired vehicle" or "reconstructed vehicle" decal, depending on the amount of damage sustained.

Stubbs said he began working on the bill at Hansen's request. Since then, Hansen said, it has been endorsed by the Idaho Car Dealers Association, the Independent Automobile Dealers Association, the attorney general's office, and representatives of the banking and insurance industries.

Some rebuilders have criticized the bill as unfairly singling out their business. But Hansen said it is meant only to give potential car-buyers needed information.

"If it's rebuilt nice, and it's clean and safe, and the consumer wants to buy a salvage vehicle, he should be able to," he said. "But the guy who buys the vehicle after him also deserves that same consideration, and so do the financial institutions involved."

Mayor forecasts growth, perhaps more crime for Twin Falls

By Mick Normington
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The forecast for Twin Falls is continued growth and a healthy city government, with possibly more crime on the horizon.

That was the message Mayor Gale Kleinkopf and City Council members Howard Allen and Chris Talkington brought local business leaders Thursday morning at the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce and industry's annual luncheon. Kleinkopf said he remembered the city's economy and population growth in 1983 when he was elected mayor. He recognized then that no growth meant a decline in the quality of life. He said the city's efforts then to attract new development and to improve the quality of life have resulted in growth. He said the city's arrival years ago by the Beasom Manufacturing Co. and Precision Tile Co.

now on their way here. Kleinkopf said the city is paying more attention to population growth in Twin Falls, which is now at about 4 percent. Talkington said the level of crime will rise in Twin Falls, as it is nationally, and is the city's primary concern. "Crime prevention has to be the long-term priority of the city. So much of the police force's time is dedicated to crisis intervention," he said.

Property crime is growing in Twin Falls, Talkington said, and he noted that a petition is circulating to ask the council for more police officers to patrol neighborhoods. Talkington also said every school needs a uniformed police officer-in-it, particularly the crowded O'Leary Junior High School. And while the city's financial balance sheet is sound, Allen said the Twin Falls police and government agencies are strained during the daytime when out-of-town people come to the city to work and shop. These visitors don't pay property taxes to support the city governments but use its services; for instance, one-third of all traffic accidents in town are caused by non-Twin Falls residents. Allen said a .5 percent city sales tax would raise $3 million to $4 million, which could help pay for many federal mandates and some infrastructure problems. Chamber Executive Vice President Kent Just said the city needs a 1 percent sales tax to ease the tax burden on property taxes. But he said he doubts the state Legislature will ever approve such a tax shift. Allen also asked the 45 business leaders in the audience how many would like to see the 4-year-old plans for the "enhanced 911" regional emergency response system scrapped and started over. About one-third in the audience raised their hands.

Board looks at Jerome school plans

By H.R. Weisel

JEROME — Architectural plans for a new facility for Jerome high school students who are pursuing agricultural-related vocations was presented to the School Board this week.

Alvin Chojnacky, chairman of the vocational-agricultural committee, presented plans for a 10,400-square-foot building, greenhouse and machinery storage yard on the high school campus for about $450,000. The board will not decide on the plans until March 16.

The new facility would house classrooms, science lab, computer room, welding, metal and repair shop, and storage areas, architect Jay Christopherson, of Christopherson Architectural Alliance from Providence, Utah, said.

But paying for the facility would depend on the outcome of legislation that could fund up to 35 percent of a bond issue, Superintendent Jim Cobble said.

There would be three possibilities for funding — a long-term plant facility levy a bond or a short-term 2-year override levy, he said. Itemized costs and state approvals would be required before the board could put the issue before the voters, he said. A special meeting is planned for March 16 at Horizon Elementary School to make a decision on the proposal.

High school vo-ag students now are bused across town to an annex at the middle school for their classes. A special meeting is planned for March 16 at Horizon Elementary School to make a decision on the proposal.

In other business: Business manager Mike Gibson reported a sidewalk leading to the newly built Horizon Elementary School would have to wait until June. Estimated cost of the two-block sidewalk on East 10th Street could be as much as $38,000, he said.

With volunteer labor and donated supplies, the cost could be reduced to $10,000, he said.

The board accepted the resignations of Karen Freely, Curriculum and Staff Development Director, and Juvenile Clezzie, English teacher.

The board changed its monthly meeting time to 8 p.m. The board approved changing the bus route near the North Rim Fairways Subdivision so children wouldn't have to wait near the highway.

Obituaries

John L. Pope

HAGERMAN — John L. "Dick" Pope, 88, of Hagerman, died late Tuesday, March 8, 1994, at the Twin Falls Clinic & Hospital.

Dick was born Sept. 6, 1905, in Trenton, Ill., the son of Elijah C. and Mary Maude Pope. He was raised in Trenton and from there he moved with his family to Longview, Wash., where he worked in the lumber mills. In March 1927, the family moved to Hagerman, where they built and operated the Rock Lodge. Dick worked for Morrison Knudsen, Idaho Power Co. and the Idaho State Highway Department before going into farming. He married Lola S. Kiser on Sept. 28, 1933, in Hagerman. Dick and Lola operated a fruit and vegetable business on Billingsley Creek in Hagerman for 49 years.

He was a 50-plus year member of the Hagerman Valley Grange. Survivors include his wife, Lola Pope of Hagerman; three daughters, Betty J. Bruner of Meridian, Bonnie A. Pope of Twin Falls and Donna K. and her husband, Rick Hoverson of Boise; four grandchildren, Rodney Baker of Jerome, Debbie Hoverson of Boise, Cathy Skidmore of Santa Cruz, Calif., and John Hoverson of Reno, Nev.; and three great-grandchildren, Dillon and Jordan Baker of Jerome and Christopher Skidmore of Santa Cruz, Calif.

The funeral will be held at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, March 12, 1994, at the Christian Center in Hagerman, with the Rev. Jim Davis officiating. Burial will follow at the Hagerman Cemetery. Friends may call from 3 to 8 p.m. today at Reynolds Funeral Chapel in Twin Falls.

Dorothy M. Matlock
DECEASED — Dorothy M. Matlock, 78, of Declo, died Tuesday, March 8, 1994, at the Mindokka Memorial Hospital in Rupert.

She was born March 7, 1916, in Declo, the daughter of Carl and Lillian Curtis Behr. She attended schools in Declo. She married Clarence Sanford Matlock on April 24, 1933, in Burley.

She was a member of the Assembly of God Church and enjoyed gardening and flowers. She is survived by her husband, Clarence of Rupert; two sons, Lewis Matlock of Twin Falls and Cecil Matlock of Rupert; one sister, Bernice Placone of Boise; two brothers, Lewis Behr of Spokane, Wash., and Chester Behr of Twin Falls; seven grandchildren; and 16 great-grandchildren. She was predeceased in death by her parents and one son, Chester Matlock.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday, March 12, 1994, at the Hansen Mortuary Chapel in Rupert, with Pastor William Linberry officiating. Burial will follow at the Pleasant View Cemetery in Burley. Friends may call from noon until the time of the funeral on Saturday at the funeral chapel.

Murder suspect may lose evidence

By H.R. Weisel
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — Convicting or clearing a man of a 24-year-old murder hinge on the palm print of a hand scheduled to be amputated and disposed of next week.

A suspect in the unsolved murder, Samuel Owens Barnett, 61, was found in Stockton, Calif. He is paralyzed and has had his legs amputated. Because of a bone infection, he now faces the amputation of one of his arms.

"It was supposed to come off about a week ago, but I decided to get a second opinion," Barnett said in a telephone conversation Thursday. He expects to get the second opinion next week, he said.

Barnett is a suspect in the murder of Reuben Stohler, who was found stabbed to death in his home south of Jerome in 1970.

One of the first people on the scene after the murder was 19-year-old George "Pec Wee" Silver, the milkman. Now Jerome County Sheriff, Silver has assigned Deputy Dan Chatterton, to reopen the investigation.

Going through old documents, the names of three men who left the Twin Falls area near the time of the murder, were found. One of those three was Barnett.

Now law officers want to know if Barnett's palm print would match a print found on the victim's car located in Des Moines, Iowa, after the murder.

But the comparison must be made before the amputation, Silver said. A Jerome deputy would have to be sent to Stockton to get the palm prints, with Barnett's approval, Silver said.

"I didn't murder anybody. I didn't do it. They can send a detective here, and I'll give them all the hand prints they want. I know I didn't do it," Barnett said.

But even if the palm prints match, it is unlikely that Barnett would be incarcerated because of his physical condition, Silver said.

"There would be no way we could take care of him," he said.

Chatterton has been trying to locate two other men named in the old documents and declined to release their names because it "could hinder the case. They could run, and we'd never find them," he said.

Andrus says base will close if training range is turned down

BOISE (AP) — Mountain Home Air Force Base will be shut down within three years unless his proposal for an Owyhee County electronic warfare training range is approved, Gov. Cecil Andrus predicted.

"I honestly believe that if we do not present one-of-a-kind Air Force base and training center, Mountain Home will be on the base closure list by 1997 and there will be tumbleweeds blowing down the runways," Andrus said in remarks prepared for Thursday's Boise Rotary Club meeting.

The governor said he developed the 25,000-acre split training range plan as insurance for Mountain Home Air Force Base — the state's second-largest employer — since Idaho has so little political clout to defend its interests as Congress considers future recommendations from its Base Closure and Realignment Commission.

"We have probably closed most of the dogs, and there's going to be more bases closed," Andrus said. "We don't have the political protection that we really need. The way we stay off that list is to have a good story to tell."

The Air Force is scheduled to issue its final environmental impact statement fall. But the Andrus-appointed Idaho Fish and Game Commission last month announced it opposed the plan because of its potential impact on wildlife, including bighorn sheep and antelope.

Opponents contend the Air Force does not need the proposed range, and that it would harm the southwestern Idaho high desert's fragile environment.

State horse riders meet to keep land open

By Terrell Williams
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Horse riders from across the state will gather here Saturday to help make sure that public lands stay open for recreational horse use.

About 18 Idaho clubs will be represented at the Back Country Horseman convention at the Turf Club on Falls Avenue.

The public is invited to the convention, which begins at 8 a.m. with a continental breakfast and registration.

Speakers include Ed Waldrop of the U.S. Forest Service, Jerry Young of Young Museum, Nancy Taylor of Access 90 riding for handicapped persons, Chuck Wells from the State Department of Game and Conservation, and Dallas McKinney, an actor and riding enthusiast.

Other convention activities include club reports, directors meetings, a silent auction, a

Cost is $40 per person, which includes breakfast, lunch and banquet dinner.

Member Jeannie Bottinger of Jerome said Back Country Horseman is a national organization with chapters in six Western states.

"We do volunteer work for the Forest Service and the Bureau of Land Management to keep the trails open for the equines," she said.

Members also ride for fun and are informed of political issues that affect horse riders or owners. In addition, the back country riders are educated on proper trail and campsite use.

Bottinger said the objective of the BCL organization is to perpetuate the Western horse heritage through monitoring public agencies that manage back country areas, and also to provide volunteer service to the back country lands.

Paperwork lets criminal leave again

The Times-News

JEROME — For the second time delayed paperwork has foiled the attempt of Jerome County to bring the great-uncle of a missing Challis girl back to Jerome on a probation violation.

Robert Paul Crane, 44, was scheduled to be returned to Jerome from Arizona on a parole violation. He had been ordered by the court to appear March 9 for transport to Jerome.

Crane reported to the Lapham County jail Monday morning, but the documents signed by Gov. Cecil Andrus did not arrive until that afternoon.

"We almost had him, the paperwork arrived just after he left the courthouse, so now he's out again," Jerome County Sheriff George Silver III said.

Idaho authorities had tried to bring Crane back to Jerome from Colorado in late 1993. But after a filing deadline was missed, Crane was released from a Colorado jail and disappeared. He was arrested in Parker, Ariz., on his probation violation when he was found sleeping on the ground on private property.

Crane is a relative of Stephanie Crane, 9-year-old Challis girl who disappeared in October. Crane had been a suspect, but was cleared when his alibi was checked out by FBI agents.

Crane, on probation for a 1988 Jerome County drunken driving charge, failed to contact his probation officer. A bench warrant was issued June 22, 1989, for his arrest.

Mining

"That was back in the days when miners were using sluice boxes and pickaxes," Medberry maintained.

"It's anachronistic and hideously out of touch with today's mining practices" — which rely on enormous earth-moving machines and cyanide-leaching pits, he said.

Hardrock mining aside, all states are entitled to a share of the mineral revenues collected from federal lands within their boundaries. Most of the land on which the mining occurred in Idaho was managed by the Bureau of Land Management or the U.S. Forest Service, Baugher said.

For the majority of federal lands, half of the mineral lease revenues go to the state, 40 percent goes to the Reclamation Fund for water projects and 10 percent goes to the U.S. Treasury, according to a Minerals Management Service news release.

In 1993, 37 states qualified for mineral lease revenue money. The big winners were Wyoming — with $197 million — and New Mexico, with $141 million. Most of the money was generated by oil and gas leases, Baugher said.

At the other end of the revenue spectrum, Georgia ranked in $50.67 from federal mineral leases last year, while Indiana netted $98.73. "We're the largest non-tax revenue generator in the federal government," Baugher said.

Landfill company vows to pay bills

By Liz Wright
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Faced with the threat of foreclosure, a Boise-based landfill company says it will begin paying unpaid contractors' bills of more than $500,000.

Checks will start arriving in 30 to 60 days to 10 companies that have filed liens against Dispose-All Inc., said John Matheny, project manager of Dispose-All Inc.'s private landfill at Burley Butte.

"We fully intend to pay the liens in full plus interest," Matheny said Thursday. "I've been in contact with some of the lawyers in town and hopefully convinced them not to foreclose until 60 days."

Private lenders won't give Dispose-All any more money until the landfill is finished and state officials grant the company its operating permit, Matheny said.

Once that is done — expected about mid to late April — payments will begin, Matheny said. The company may make incremental payments to some people and pay others all at once.

"Everybody will get a good portion of their money," he said. Lawyers for the 10 companies said this week they had not received any payments from Dispose-All since filing liens totalling $578,275.50.

LIZ WRIGHT/The Times-News

Construction of Dispose-All Inc.'s private landfill at Burley Butte is nearly complete. The company expects to be ready for truckloads of trash by mid to late April.

Neither the company nor its president, Doug Lomow, had talked to the companies since the liens were filed between November and February, the lawyers said. The lack of communication spurred Rupert lawyer Robert Nielsen to decide to foreclose against Dispose-All at the end of this month.

Nielsen filed a lien Dec. 30 for $10,952.50 for his client, Monte Bailey, owner of Lazy B Enterprises of Burley. Dispose-All paid part of the lien in early February. Nielsen said Thursday he has not been contacted by Dispose-All and still plans to foreclose. Under foreclosure the landfill would be sold and the money would go to pay the liens. But if approached by Dispose-All with a promise to pay, Nielsen said he might reconsider. "We'll work with anyone as long as it's not just an empty promise," Nielsen said. In early December, Dispose-All paid off three liens totalling $33,405.

Burley boy, 16, injured in 3-car accident, released from hospital

The Times-News

BURLEY — A 16-year-old boy was seriously injured in a three-car accident Tuesday when his pickup hit the car ahead of him, pushing it into oncoming traffic. Daniel Scott Crumley, of Burley, was treated at Cassia Memorial Hospital and released that night.

According to an accident report, Crumley failed to pay attention as he drove north on Overland Avenue at 3:45 p.m. He rammed a car that had stopped for a left turn into a driveway between 18th and 19th streets. The driver, Robert Hamblen Jr., 31, of Burley was struck head-on by a Department of Corrections vehicle.

Both Hamblen and the other driver, Gordon Edwin Halverson, 49, of Hansen, were unharmed. A citation is pending against Crumley for inattentive driving, the report said.

US West sells 4 local phone lines

By Mick Northington
Times-News writer

RUPERT — US West Communications is selling 11 of its rural Idaho telephone exchanges, including four in south-central Idaho.

The sales must be approved by the Federal Communications Commission and the Idaho Public Utilities Commission and could take eight to 12 months to complete.

The exchanges include: The "862" prefix exchange in Oakley with 441 customers sold to Project Mutual Telephone Cooperative of Rupert.

The "766" prefix exchange in Malad with 1,294 customers sold to Albion Telephone Co. of Albion.

The "527" and "767" and "554" in the Arco area with 1,201 customers sold to Albion Telephone Co.

The "774" prefix exchange in Stanley with 174 customers sold to Midvale Telephone Exchange of Midvale.

Los Angeles-based US West announced its intentions in November to sell off many of its small rural exchanges to concentrate on urban areas and on entering the race to develop technology for the "information superhighway."

Terms of the sales haven't been released yet. Under terms of the sale, the buyers must maintain current phone rates for at least the next three years and continue providing long distance service and emergency 911 service. So the sale affects only local calling.

The smaller phone companies have been negotiating the sales with US West for the past four weeks, said Charlie Creason, manager of Project Mutual Telephone in Rupert.

Creason said his cooperative wants to buy the Oakley exchange to become bigger in the Mini-Cassia area and more efficient.

Project Mutual Telephone was founded in 1916 and now has 6,500

'The only change the Oakley subscribers will experience is that they will become joint owners of their local telephone company.'

Charlie Creason, Project Mutual Telephone manager customer-owners in the Rupert, Paul, Minidoka and Arco areas.

"The only change the Oakley subscribers will experience is that they will become joint owners of their local telephone company," Creason said.

As a nonprofit cooperative, Project Mutual Telephone takes any extra money made from operations and gives it back to subscribers as dividends. During the past five years, subscribers have received below-average phone rates and been refunded $340,000, he said.

For Albion Telephone, its purchase of the Malad exchange will almost quadruple the size of the company's customer base. Albion Telephone Assistant Manager Rich Redman said the company can handle the billings for the new customers, but will have to hire new technicians in Arco and Malad.

Albion Telephone has 950 customers in southeast Idaho and northern Utah. The company was founded in 1929 and is owned by the Redman and his family.

Besides taking over the Stanley exchange, Midvale Telephone will also add service to other areas of central Idaho that don't have phone service, said Manager Lane Williams. Midvale Telephone was founded in 1909 and has 710 customers with five exchanges in Idaho, Oregon and Arizona.

Firm may withdraw liens against county-owned transfer sites

By Liz Wright
Times-News writer

BURLEY — A Bellevue excavation company owner says he may withdraw his liens against two garbage transfer sites owned by Minidoka and Cassia counties.

Ray Castle, owner of Ray's Excavation, said he will try to resolve his dispute with the general contractor hired to build a regional landfill on Minner Butte.

The liens were filed because Starr Corp. of Twin Falls didn't fully pay Castle for work done on two transfer stations for the new landfill, he said.

Castle said he plans to meet with the company to try to negotiate payment. If they can't agree, he may hold the contractor's insurance bonding company responsible for paying him, he said.

Glenn Arrington, general manager for Starr Corp., said last week he thinks both sides can resolve the dispute. Minidoka County prosecutor Gara Newman vowed to contest the liens if Castle tries to foreclose on county property. But if he succeeds, the counties' property would be sold and proceeds would go to pay Castle's bills.

County property can't be held hostage to a dispute between private contractors, Newman said. But Castle's lawyer, Edward Simon, has said he filed the liens against county property because the counties hired Starr Corp. to build the landfill. Last week, Castle said he would foreclose in early April. Starr Corp.'s refusal to pay him the remainder of his bill left him no choice, he said.

Castle filed the mechanic's liens in November on one against Cassia County for $29,156.78 for work on the transfer site in Oakley and the other against Minidoka County for $8,007.82 for work at a site in Paul.

Last month Bob Mogensen, operations manager for Starr Corp., said his company filed Castle last fall because he charged too much and some of the work he'd done wasn't properly authorized. Castle said he was forced to accommodate unforeseen problems at the work sites. Castle said he sent a letter warning the company of the extra cost.

Castle said he assumed that some of the work didn't need to be authorized because a company supervisor observing the work didn't tell him otherwise.

Give citizens a peek inside juvenile justice system

A legislative plan to make some juvenile-crime convictions public doesn't go far enough for our taste, but it's a good start.

Idaho's juvenile-crime system works on the belief that miscreants under age 18 shouldn't be handled like adults. It keeps their cases confidential, so they won't be branded as criminals before they've had a chance to grow up.

The problem is society has changed since that system began. Nowadays, juveniles commit more than their share of vicious, violent crimes. Some teenagers commit a career's worth of crime long before they are old enough to buy beer.

So it makes sense to treat them the worst ones, anyway — more like adult criminals.

On Wednesday the Idaho House passed a bill to allow disclosure of young criminals' names, their offenses and the outcome of their cases, if the miscreants are 14 or older. The bill, written in part by Rep. Mark Stubbs, R-Twin Falls, now goes to the state Senate.

What the bill doesn't do is just as important as what it does. It doesn't open juvenile trials to the public; the process would remain confidential until after a young rascal has been proven guilty. And it doesn't subject young outlaws to grown-up punishment.

We wish it did, at least in some cases. But Stubbs, a lawyer, makes a good case for a moderate approach. He says the present system works in 90 percent of the cases. He simply wants to provide accountability.

"Before we gut the system entirely, let's try this," he said this week.

Fair enough. Perhaps Stubbs' proposal goes far enough, for now. Though people still wouldn't be able to see how the juvenile court machinery works, at least we could see the end product. That's more than we see now.

In practical terms, we would be able to learn whether crimes like last summer's drive-by shooting on Blue Lakes Boulevard ever result in punishment. Under the current rules, that information is secret forever.

So Stubbs' bill is definitely a step in the right direction. The Senate should join the House in passing it.

Bombing range necessary

With your kind permission, I would like to limit this to one subject this time. I would like to cover in more depth the reasons for the expanded exercise range in Owyhee County.

I speak as a long-time retired soldier who, by virtue of his long period of service under different situations, saw many examples of why we need this expanded area. I am well aware that our military is the best equipped and trained force in the world today, and I really hope it keeps on that way.

One thing I would like to bring forth is that, even if they think they are perfect, our air crews can always benefit from an extra flight or two. This is based on memories of times strikes were made in the past and several hundred yards from the target, right on the ones calling for close support.

For the people on the Duck Valley Reservation, I have had the pleasure of serving with many outstanding Indians in my time. Sadly, I have also known a few that were not worthy of comment, but about the same number of other biker types were there too; so we can call it a draw.

One thing I remember especially about the Indians is that when we were called to active duty in 1940, most of our transportation was by foot. Anyway, the 163rd Infantry Regiment from Montana consisted of old vets. It made quite a name for itself later, but the thing that sticks in my mind was, while marching, it had a marching tune, "Alouet," that you could hear all over the area.

To get back to the present and the need for training areas, you used to have warrior clans that handled the bad share of your fighting. But now there are in the past and were replaced by modern-day mercenary warriors of which I was and, being retired, and still on the payroll, still consider myself as one.

In the good old days, a pony could cover a few miles and still be in condition to fight. Now, aircraft, the modern pot, cars in an hour what it took the pony days to cover. I ask you to think what might be if these new war ponies failed to keep the old United States of America free and we were occupied by another country. Would you still have your reservation and life as you know it or would it all be wiped out?

CSL team got raw deal in Utah

I listened to the College of Southern Idaho/Salt Lake Women's game played in St. George, Utah, on KLIH with Logan Tusov calling the game.

I have never heard of such a rotten deal the Eagles were dealt. The timekeeper let several seconds tick off before starting the clock. He said he pushed the button but it didn't start. What a cop-out. The extra time allowed the Bruins to go the full length of the floor, take a shot which was missed and a rebound shot put up as the buzzer went off. The basket was good and the Eagles lost by one point.

If the timekeeper did push the button and the clock did not move, a whistle should have sounded and the clock reset and tested.

After that, the 13 seconds should have started.

With the officials of Scenic West in attendance, they should have questioned the out-of-control game. Perhaps it is time to question the integrity of the referees and Scenic West officials.

You can bet your bottom dollar the 13 seconds would be replayed if the shoe was on the other foot.

As Larry Hovey put it, many funny things happen in Region 18 games played in Utah. I hope the many boosters and fans of the CSI Basketball teams pick up their paper and start writing letters to get this injustice fixed.

How about it fans?

Don't blame bikers for trouble

I'm writing about the Honker's Bar feature in the paper on March 6. I took offense to Honker's Bar's statement: "When we started here, there were fights, bikers and drugs." I'm sorry, but the bar has more fights between the cowboys than anyone else.

I'm a female biker who frequents Honker's. With that kind of statement, what does it really tell me? I don't fight with bikers; drugs, just go out to listen to good music. Putting bikers between fights and drugs doesn't make me feel accepted like I thought I was. Not all of us are like they portray on shows.

No one can tell me that cowboys, cowgirls, factory workers, farmers, weekend buckaroos and college kids don't fight or do drugs. These are the Chapman's descriptions of some of their customers, not mine. Since the word biker isn't on their list from the paper, does that mean we aren't welcome?

Bar owner's quote out of line

In response to your article regarding Honker's Place:

Honker's Place is a nice establishment — somewhere you should be able to go, no matter what your lifestyle is and feel welcome and comfortable. But I find it hard to believe that, after reading some of the statements from Mrs. Chapman, bikers could feel welcome.

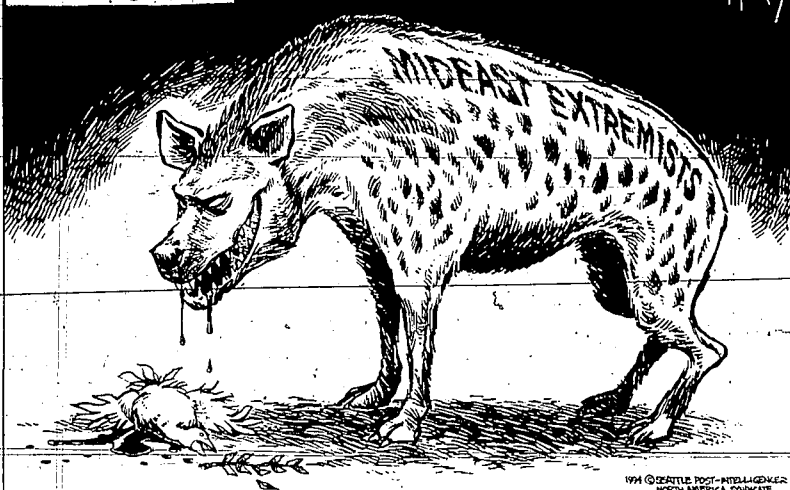

I know several bikers that frequent Honker's Place. They do not cause fights or do drugs. One of these bikers, a close friend of mine, has also been a part-time employee of Honker's. I shouldn't have to tell you how upset and betrayed she felt after reading Mrs. Chapman's statement regarding bikers.

With Mrs. Chapman's obvious dislike for this lifestyle, I wonder how long bikers will continue to go into Honker's Place? And knowing Mr. and Mrs. Tucker, I wonder if their feelings regarding the lifestyles of their customers are the same as Mrs. Chapman's?

Is she really "indispensable" after making such obviously prejudiced statements about her customers?

Kimberly Mays can change her mind like any other teen-ager

It was only six months ago that Kimberly Mays, then 14, stood up in court and swore on a Bible that she thought her birth mother, Regina Twigg, was "weird."

She would, she said, rather lose her driving learner's permit than spend 10 minutes in the Twigg family's company. In southern Florida, this is about the most dramatic statement a teen-ager can make.

"On a happiness scale of one to 10, how would you judge your life before the Twiggs came into it?" her attorney asked.

"About 9.5," Kimberly said.

In the back of the courtroom, Robert Mays smiled paternally. He had raised Kimberly from infancy, after his child and the Twiggs' baby were mysteriously switched in a tiny hospital in rural Florida.

This was the famous Switched-at-Birth trial, billed as a great battle for children's rights. Boil it down to the most accessible stereotypes, and you had a loving adoptive parent haunted by the Natural Mom from Hell, who cared not a whit about the child's true welfare.

Kimberly won her right to "divorce" her biological parents, to general public acclaim. Now we learn that she's run away from home and gone to live with the family that Twiggs' Bob Mays is said by his family to be "all torn up" but otherwise incommunicado.

Do not take this as a blow to the cause of children's rights.

For all the peculiar overlay of baby-switching, Kimberly was basically the subject of a traditional child custody case as practiced in American courtrooms.

She appeared to have a surplus of loving parents. But poke any of these adults hard enough, and something unsatisfactory popped up. Pick away at the bad parts, and you started wondering if anybody was actually suited to raise a child.

Regina Twigg was a sympathetic figure on paper, the product of a horrific childhood who had raised eight children with very little money and a great deal of affection. She showed unending devotion to the sickly Arlena, who died at age 9 and turned out to be the Mays' biological child.

But in the battle over Kimberly, Regina Twigg seemed — well, weird. She wrote letters to the Mayses' hometown paper over phony signatures, calling Robert Mays a kidnapper. She appeared on talk shows, calling out to Kimberly over the airwaves. She held an impromptu reading of her own bad poetry in front of the courthouse.

Worst of all, she and her husband, Ernest, photographed badly. They were working-class poor. Ernest never talked and Regina sounded like a screech owl. They had a whole passel of kids and a messy house.

"Look at the clothes the Twiggs wear," Kim told one of her many, many court-appointed psychiatrists. They're rags. ... They got the clothes from Goodwill. They got lice."

(That was, of course, before everybody went to court and won multimillion-dollar settlements from the hospital's insurance company.)

Bob Mays is attractive, owns a boat and lives a sunny Florida lifestyle. He and his daughter were inseparable during the trial. On the witness stand, he kept glancing at him lovingly. He had a cool manner that went over well on television.

Poke him and it turned out that Mays has been married three times. His first wife, who Kimberly believed was her mother, left him and moved back to her parents' home while she was dying of cancer. Mays said it was the stress of the disease, but he had taken up with another woman before he became a widower.

His second wife said Mays had a hot temper and a heavy hand. After their divorce, Mays refused to let her see Kimberly. Later, when the Twiggs entered the scene, he sabotaged their visits, too.

The trial psychiatrists could not agree on anything. One said Regina Twigg was severely disturbed, and cited the fact that she kept changing her hair color. Another said she had the same score for mental stability as your average commercial airline pilot.

The only clear and consistent voice in the trial was Kimberly's. She loved only Bob Mays, who was the best father in the world. She wanted nothing to do with her birth parents.

"I want them out of my life," she said, fiercely.

Her allegiance seemed carved in stone, her emotions steady and clear.

Six months later she is with the Twiggs, who are rumored to have left town for a trip to the depths of the Ocala Forest. Given the number of TV trucks bumping into each other around the family compound, this sounds like an excellent idea.

The hope is that Kimberly is troubled by nothing worse than the fluctuating emotions of a 15-year-old.

If so, this story will be a beacon of hope for every parent whose teen-age child has announced "I hate you," and demanded to be allowed to live with a better family.

KKVI censorship ridiculous

Well, KKVI is at it again. It decides that the "Roseanne" show is too much for the community so it censors it. KKVI is this community's self-proclaimed moral value setter. I find this hard to believe, however, after watching daytime TV — in other words, the soap operas. I saw an episode on one of the soaps where a young girl was trying to seduce her stepfather, I believe his name is Dimitri. I guess since this show was not censored, KKVI is telling girls that it is all right to seduce their stepfathers.

Then on another soap, Luke and Laura have returned and, for quite a while, KKVI and some radio stations were advertising that Luke had turned out to be a pick lock when he was 9 and he learned all right. So I have to believe that since KKVI would not show anything to the public that would be harmful that it (KKVI) is saying that if you become a sneak thief that will be all right.

Christopher stresses commitment

TOKYO (AP) — After pointedly telling Japan's prime minister, "Great nations keep their commitments," Secretary of State Warren Christopher was trying today to convince private business leaders that trade concessions were in their interest.

Christopher met Prime Minister Morihiro Hosokawa and Foreign Minister Taro Aso in Tokyo, then said, "I think they understand better tonight that I feel at least there is an issue of credibility in carrying out agreements."

In an effort to reach beyond the Japanese government and bureaucracy, Christopher planned to lay out U.S. views of trade disagreements with Japan in a speech Friday to an influential business group, Keizai Doyukai.

"If they'll permit an outsider to be heard, I think it may be helpful," he said.

The group's membership includes Japanese businesses that tend to support eliminating barriers to foreign goods.

After his speech, Christopher was to fly to Beijing for difficult discussions with Chinese leaders on human rights.

In Tokyo, during a 30-minute news conference at the U.S. Embassy, Christopher said his discussions with the Japanese were "straightforward and, I believe, candid."

"I can't say that we reached any breakthroughs," he said.

The Kremlin, Nixon exchange words

MOSCOW (AP) — The Cold War between the Kremlin and Richard Nixon continued Thursday, with Russian officials criticizing the former president's timing and a top Nixon aide accusing Boris Yeltsin's spokesman of lying.

Nixon, who as president was noted for constructive engagement with the Soviets, has been criticized from almost all sides in this trip to post-Communist Russia. Even ultranationalist Vladimir Zhirinovsky was reportedly bad-mouthing him and casting doubt on a meeting they had planned.

But there were hints of a détente with Yeltsin.

The brouhaha began Wednesday when Yeltsin angrily canceled his scheduled talks with Nixon, took away the bodyguards and limousine he had loaned him and ordered other top government officials to snub him as well.

Yeltsin was punishing Nixon for meeting with top opposition leaders, including Yeltsin's Enemy No. 1, former Vice President Alexander Rutskoi, and the leader of the Russian Communist Party.

Yeltsin's action meant that Nixon would be shunned by Russian government officials, leaving him to spend his time with opposition leaders.

Protesters hurl stones, burn tires

HEBRON, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Palestinians still angry two weeks after a Jewish settler massacre Muslim worshippers attacked the main Jewish enclave with stones and burning tires Thursday.

Israeli troops answered the attack, which occurred after a curfew was briefly lifted, with bullets and tear gas. Sixteen Palestinians were wounded, one seriously, and two dozen were treated for tear-gas inhalation.

Some of the protesters yelled "settlers out!" and others set tires ablaze and rolled them toward army positions. Protest also erupted near the Tomb of the Patriarchs where the massacre took place.

Troops protecting the Beit Hadassah settler compound fired tear gas, live ammunition and rubber bullets into groups of Palestinians, some hurling stones with slingshots.

The PLO has demanded that Beit Hadassah and several other settlements be evacuated to reduce tensions and clear the way for resumption of Israel-PLO peace talks.

Palestinian sources said Thursday that PLO leader Yasser Arafat and Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin were expected to meet in Washington within two weeks to try to get the talks back on track.

Israel rejected a pitch by Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev to gather all parties to the Middle East peace talks in Moscow, with Rabin and Foreign Minister Shimon Peres saying they had to focus on the agreements already signed.

But Kozyrev is due in the region Saturday bearing a message from President Boris Yeltsin to Israel and Aid convoy fails to reach needy Muslims

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Stymied for days by Bosnian Serbs, a U.N. aid convoy Thursday gave up trying to reach 19,000 desperate Muslims trapped by roaring artillery in the town of Maglaj.

The failure, coming amid a general improvement in aid deliveries, was a demoralizing setback for the U.N. relief effort in Bosnia and it demonstrated that Serb forces can still stop deliveries at will.

"Once again the Bosnian Serbs have succeeded in delaying and preventing delivery of humanitarian aid," said Peter Kessler, a U.N. relief agency spokesman in Sarajevo.

"We cannot afford to have a major convoy stuck for four days out in the field when we could deliver aid to someplace else," he said.

The U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees, Sadako Ogata, issued a statement in Geneva condemning the interference with the convoy.

"In the past few weeks, the delivery of humanitarian aid has improved over most of Bosnia-Herzegovina, but Maglaj stands out as a stark exception," she said.

Maglaj has been surrounded by Serb and Croat forces for most of the past nine months. Bombing by artillery has continued despite a month-old cease-fire between Serbs and the Muslim-led government in Sarajevo, 50 miles south.

The convoy of 10 trucks, carrying 92 tons of supplies, got within a few miles of Maglaj, but Serbs manning the last checkpoint warned that they could not guarantee its safety because of fighting ahead.

The trucks were returning to a U.N. aid depot at Zenica in central Bosnia.

50 die in landslide

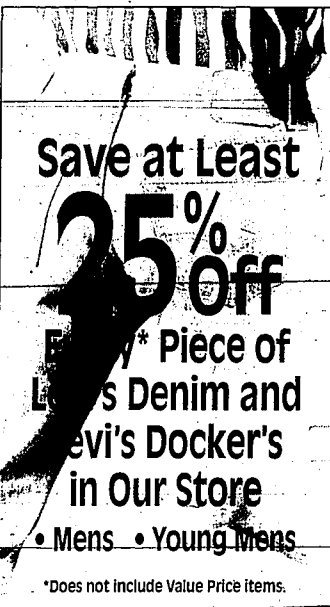

MOSCOW (AP) — A landslide buried a village in Kyrgyzstan under 20 feet of dirt and killed about 50 people.

Tusui, a village in the south of the former Soviet Central Asian republic, was decimated before dawn Wednesday, the Interfax news agency reported Thursday.

Workers were having difficulty digging out the bodies.

Lowman-Stanley road remains shut

BOISE — It will be next week before Idaho Transportation Department crews can clear hundreds of tons of snow, trees, rocks and mud from Idaho 21 between Lowman and Stanley, a department official said.

About 10 individual avalanches have blocked the highway since Feb. 23. Workers hope to get the highway, which is the main recreation route from Boise to Stanley, open by the beginning or middle of next week, Steven Hutchinson, transportation department assistant district engineer, said. Warm temperatures, heavy wet snow and rain over the past month have created prime avalanche conditions.

Agency sues over Indian adoption

BOISE — Idaho Legal Aid Services Inc. is suing the state Department of Health and Welfare to make it obey a federal law requiring states to give preference to American Indian tribes and families in adoptions of Indian children.

Health and Welfare officials haven't read the complaint, but say it isn't necessary because the department has shown progress in complying with the Indian Child Welfare Act of 1978.

"In many cases, people handling cases for the state aren't aware of requirements of the act," said Robert McCarthy, director of Legal Aid's Indian Law Unit. "There are 30 pages of administrative rules on adoptions (in Idaho), and they don't mention Indians."

Embattled mayor to take case to voters

HAUSER — Hauser Mayor Gary Mallon is willing to take his chances to see if he can weather a recall election.

A recall petition was submitted Feb. 25 by former Hauser City Council member Bill Williams.

Once the signatures were validated, Mallon had five days to decide whether to step down from office or to have the issue decided at the polls. Mallon chose not to resign.

An election will be held May 24. City registrar D.J. Nall said she's inquiring of the Idaho Secretary of State's office to find out how the election will be run.

Measure would tighten river protection

BOISE — The Senate Resources and Environment Committee has approved a bill to give part of the Boise River a three-year "breather" from the pressures of population growth.

The bill also would require the Idaho Water Resources Board to schedule public hearings before issuing permits for any projects that might alter the river's character.

The committee's 9-2 vote in favor of taking the bill to the Senate floor on Wednesday did not include the committee's recommendation that the bill pass. The bill would designate as a recreational river for three years the section of the Boise River from Lucky Peak Dam to the confluence of the Snake River at the Idaho-Oregon border.

Gritz says he has no supremacist plans

LAS VEGAS — Retired Army Green Beret James "Bo" Gritz says he has no plans to operate a white supremacist boot camp on his north-central Idaho property despite what some human rights groups claim.

Gritz said he bought the 200-acre overlooking Clearwater River near the town of Kamiah because it is a good spot for a summer retirement home. Gritz told the Las Vegas Sun he will keep his Sandy Valley home, 40 miles southwest of Las Vegas, and live there during the cooler months. Gritz said he is selling much of his Idaho property in 10- and 15-acre increments, but he says he does not know who is buying the lots.

Bill hands indigent responsibility to state

BOISE (AP) — A Republican leader of the Idaho Legislature has introduced a bill designed to end the long deadlock over medical programs for poor people.

The bill would require the state, instead of the counties, to take responsibility for the medically indigent claims.

Gov. Cecil Andrus said he hasn't read the bill but probably won't like it.

"If that's the one that repeats all of the county liability, I'm not prepared to accept that. That's quite a chunk of money."

Some officials estimated that "chunk of money" could be $50 million.

In a hurry-up meeting Thursday of the House Ways and Means Committee, Rep. Tom Loertscher, R-Idaho Falls, won introduction of a proposal relieving counties of the responsibility for paying bills for indigents.

The bill proposes to start a full medically needy program, which would cover certain qualifying individuals. In general, the qualifications would match federal guidelines.

Loertscher's bill said that would cost $18.7 million per year, about two-thirds from the federal government and $5.9 million in state general funds.

But the Division of Financial Management said the actual cost could be much higher, close to $50 million, because the state would have to pick the bill for people not qualifying under the medically needy program.

A task force estimated that cost at $44.7 million in 1991 when it recommended starting the program.

The legislation also repeals the law creating the catastrophic care fund to help counties pay major medical bills.

When the fund was created, counties were to pay the first $10,000 of major medical bills for indigents, with the "cat" fund picking up the rest.

It was funded the first year. But since then, Andrus has vetoed appropriations for the fund since then because the Legislature failed to carry out its agreement to start the medically needy program. The "cat" fund would be abandoned as of July 1 under the Loertscher bill.

Officials said the medically needy program would not cover children people between the ages of 18 and 64.

Budget writers revive emergency cash help

BOISE (AP) — Legislative budget writers Thursday again approved emergency money to replace the Insurance Department's failing computer system.

The emergency funding also would retain enough auditors to assure adequate monitoring of the industry's financial health.

It was the second time the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee had to consider the budget request and the second time that Republican Sen. Dean Cameron, a Rupert insurance agent, had to concede that he acted too quickly in twice blocking it.

The Senate, at Cameron's urging, killed the original $284,000 request because he again raised complaints that the auditing staff was needlessly harassing insurance companies. He acknowledged he was getting the allegations from an insurance company.

"The department has taken away some of the fears that I had,"

Cameron said. "They could not tell me a lot about their examination of a particular company, but they assured me they were not going beyond their responsibility."

Cameron, a committee member, had the same complaint when he tried to block the appropriation a month ago. It was only after a bipartisan subcommittee checked out the need for the money that he agreed to drop his opposition.

About $150,000 of the cash will go to replacing the computer system, which is the backbone of the department's licensing and regulatory function. Without it, all license and fee processing would have to be done by hand. Suppliers have refused to continue servicing the existing system.

The other $135,000, which the committee reduced to just under $115,000, will keep the eight contract auditors on the job so the department can complete a regular schedule of insurance company examinations.

Leapin' lizards!

After 10 years, Dilettantes go back to their show of shows

By Steve Crump
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "Tomorrow" turned out to be 10 years away, but no matter. Annie's back, and she brought some old friends.

Jim Latham, who played Daddy Warbucks in the Dilettantes of Magic Valley's 1984 production of "Annie," has returned, and so has Buck the dog — Sandy to you.

Shows set

The Dilettantes of Magic Valley will present "Annie" on March 18, 19 and 20 and March 24, 25 and 26 at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Building auditorium. Curtain time is 7:30 p.m. except for March 20, when there will be a 2:15 matinee. Tickets are $7 for adults and $6 for students and senior citizens, and $5 for the matinee.

Tickets are available at the Dilettantes' booth at the Magic Valley Mall, and at the door on a space-available basis.

An opening-night gala, including show tickets, a cocktail hour, a steak-and-shrimp dinner, transportation to the show, a dessert bar and a dance, will be held at the Turf Club at 5:30 p.m. next Friday at a cost of $25. For information, call the ticket booth at 733-1533.

opens. "Ten years ago, they had to add an extra show."

"It's a real family show," said Latham, who came back from Hawaii, where he usually spends the winter, just to do the play. "Ten years ago, when we did the play, it was packed. I think the Dilettantes grossed $37,000."

The last production came on the heels of a big-budget Hollywood treatment of "Annie," starring Albert Finney, Carol Burnett and Aileen Quinn, but the current production's director, Bruce Whitehead, doubts it's lost much of its appeal to kids and their parents.

"It's a good story with strong characters and it appeals to people," he said.

The source of that appeal, Latham says, is largely the tender-hearted, tough-as-tacks 10-year-old with the fire-engine red curls, a character born in a Depression-era comic strip by Harold Gray and refined into a Broadway play 25 years ago by Thomas Meehan and Martin Charnin.

Ten-year-old Natalie Hobbs fits her to a tee, Whitehead said.

"You look for a kid with a strong voice, and Natalie has that," he said. "I could see when I first heard her "Seems like a whole different show," said Latham, 55, a veteran of a quarter century of Dilettantes' productions. "The only actors back are myself, Buck and Art Frantz, and he was my butler last time."

Frantz, a Twin Falls City Council member, is Franklin Delano Roosevelt this time.

"I still get so, tell him what to do," Latham said. "Hell, Daddy Warbucks has more money than the government."

Annie will begin her encore performance on Friday, March 18, in the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Building auditorium. The show will run March 19, 20, 24, 25 and 26, with a matinee on the 20th.

"It's by far the most successful production the Dilettantes have ever done," said Lori Van Rinsum, president of the organization who plays Miss Hanigan — the tipsy tyrant who runs the orphanage where Annie is ensconced as the play

Natalie Hobbs, age 10, plays Annie in the Dilettantes production of the popular stage musical, which cast members describe as a 'real family show.'

audition that she would be a great Annie."

Daddy Warbucks and Miss Hanigan are characters drawn with a broad brush, but they're on stage to help tell Annie's story, Latham said.

"Whether this play works or not depends on the kid," he said. "And this one's great."

Annie is at the head of a class of 15 orphans, and working with the kids who play them has been at the heart of the two months of rehearsals, Whitehead said.

"Kay Ellen Baxter (former Twin Falls County prosecuting attorney) has taken the kids under her wing and worked with them," Van Rinsum said. "They're terrific."

Good enough, Latham says, to cut his winter vacation in half.

"I still remembered the lyrics," he said. "Wouldn't have missed doing this again for the world."

Buck - Sandy to you - makes 2nd stage showing

By Steve Crump
Times-News writer

'He's great with kids, does what he's supposed to do, and most importantly, he looks cute.'

— Bruce Whitehead, musical director

TWIN FALLS — The smell of the greasepaint and the roar of the crowd ain't nothin' to an old show dog like Buck.

Buck, after all, has been there before, as a puppy a decade ago for the Dilettantes of Magic Valley's first production of "Annie."

"He had to get used to being called Sandy," said Susan Pollard, owner of the 12-year-old soft-coated-shepherd terrier.

"I guess he'll have to get used to it again."

In the intervening 10 years, Buck has lived a dog's life, but when the Dilettantes' board of directors decided last year that "Annie" was to be their production this year, it didn't take long to cast Sandy.

"He's great," says director Bruce Whitehead. "He's great with kids, does what he's supposed to do, and most importantly, he looks cute. Doesn't say much though."

Pollard can't remember Buck ever uttering an "Annie," Sandy's trademark, but that's OK. He can handle a dozen kids dancing around him, Daddy Warbucks bellowing at the top of his lungs and the blast from orchestra pit.

"Well, we'll see next week," Pollard said.

"The first time he was on stage, he got pretty scared when the band started up in the first rehearsal."

Pollard is delighted to be a stage mother again, but she credits Debbie Morton, a veteran dog trainer, with getting Buck back into stage shape.

"She puts in a lot of hours with Buck," Pollard said. "She's done a terrific job with him."

Apart from the pats and scratches he gets from Natalie Hobbs, who plays Annie, and the other kids in the cast, fame hasn't seemed to faze Buck much.

"I went to see him when I got the part," said Jim Latham, Daddy Warbucks again. "Didn't remember me at all."

Willis

Willis & Co. play Elkhorn tonight, Saturday

By Steve Crump
Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — The Wood River Valley's most famous actor has become the Wood River Valley's most famous rocker.

Bruce Willis, who lives near Hailey, and his band, The Accelerators, will play gigs at 9 p.m. tonight and Saturday at the Showplace Saloon at Radisson Elkhorn Resort.

"They play once in a while in clubs and bars, but they've been working in a studio," said Mark Leonetti, manager of the Showplace Saloon. "I

'We think it's great. Bruce and his band are building a reputation as musicians...'

— Mark Leonetti, Showplace Saloon know they've been in Whisky Jacques (a popular Ketchum nightclub) once."

Most of band's previous public appearances have been impromptu affairs in small clubs.

Leonetti is expecting a crowd tonight and Friday in his club, which holds 180 customers.

"We think it's great," Leonetti said. "Bruce and his band are building a reputation as musicians, and we're delighted they're going to be here."

Tickets are $10 apiece at the door, but they can be reserved in advance with a credit card by calling 622-4511.

Willis, who will turn 39 next week, has lived in the Wood River Valley with his wife, actress Demi Moore, and their children since the late 1980s.

Riley still rockin' Harper Valley PTA

The Times-News

JACKPOT — "I wanna tell you all a story..." With those seven words, Jeannie C. Riley hit the big time. Her "Harper Valley PTA" has sold 8 million records internationally since its release in 1968. The tune was followed up with hits such as "The Back Side of Dallas," "Country Girl" and "There Never Was a Time" and with appearances on TV shows such as "Phil Donahue," "Hec Haw" and "Nashville Now."

Riley's autobiography, "From Harper Valley to the Mountain Top," is the singer's account of a return to the God her granddaddy preached about along the dusty highways of her native West Texas.

Riley

Riley and her husband, Mickey, live in Franklin, Tenn.

In recent years, Riley has recorded two gospel albums: "Wings to Fly" and "From Harper Valley to the Mountain Top." For her efforts, she received double nominations for Dove Awards. These days, Riley likes to write songs and tour the country, appearing at fairs, rodeos and conventions with her band "Red River." Her daughter, Kim Riley Coyle, sings backup for her.

Tickets available

Jeannie C. Riley will perform two shows a night today through Sunday and Tuesday through Thursday at Cactus Petes Resort Casino in Jackpot, Nev. The 8 p.m. show is a dinner show. The 11 p.m. show is a cocktail show. Dinner show prices tonight and Saturday start at $15.95; $10.95 on Sunday. There's a $7.50 cover charge tonight and Saturday; $5 on Sunday. For reservations or more information, call 1-800-821-1103.

Artist displays craft

The Times-News

KIMBERLY — Kimberly artist Virginia Carter has always been interested in the culture of the American Indian. This month, the results of that interest are being displayed in an exhibition of folk art in Old Town Alexandria, Va. "I remember that, as a child, I wished to be an Indian girl so I could wear a white leather dress and feathers in my hair," Carter said. "I find now that a lot of my handmade paper work concerns the American Indian culture and customs."

Carter's other piece being displayed in the "Vigil" exhibit is "Snow Curtains," a wall sculpture with curtains, teepee and small animals.

Perry House Galleries, one of the largest in the Metropolitan Washington area, is exhibiting more than 200 two- and three-dimensional works by 42 artists through March 27.

The works are representative of four Native American tribes and of national or ethnic folk art traditions. Carter has been working in hand-made paper since 1985. She has developed a technique for using watercolor monotype or transfer onto wet pulp and/or onto wet papers.

Educated at Utah State University and the College of Southern Idaho, Carter has shown her work in Idaho, Utah and California and also at an international exhibition in Berlin, Germany. Larson Arts in Twin Falls carries her works.

'NBA Jam' scores big

By Roy Bassave
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

Formats: Sega Genesis, Super Nintendo, Game Gear.
Price, manufacturer: $69 to $74.
Recommended ages: 8 and up.
How the game works: The wait is over for the millions of kids and adults who have played Midway's NBA Jam in the arcade. Now this slam dunk of basketball games is the same, but has a few twists. In the arcade version, the game is divided into four quarters of three minutes each plus a 24-second clock. You also get to choose digitized likenesses of 54 NBA superstars from all 27 teams, all with turbo-charged action that includes incredible slam dunks such as the Tomahawk Jam, the Helicopter and the Windmill. For one to four players.

has never been a game harder to turn off. The SNES graphics and sound are much better than Sega's, but the players are slightly bigger in the Sega version. Game play is about the same but I prefer the SNES version.
Tip: There are hidden codes for more players — even President Bill Clinton. To get special characters, select "YES" to enter your initials, but instead input the first two letters of the character's code. Clinton's is "ARK," so click on "AR." Then place the cursor over the third letter "K" but don't enter it. Next, for SNES, hold down the "L," "R" and "Start" buttons and press "X" for Clinton. For Genesis, hold down "Start" and press "A" for Clinton.
The Verdict: Is it in the game? Nope, it's in the game!

Poet, novelist Bukowski dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fans left flowers, food and notes Thursday at the home of Charles Bukowski, the streetwise poet, novelist and screenwriter who died of leukemia at age 73.

"My God, it's like he was a rock star," Bukowski's wife, Linda, said of the fans who arrived throughout the day to pay homage at the couple's San Pedro home.

Bukowski died Wednesday at San Pedro Peninsula Hospital with his wife and his daughter, Marina, by his side.

"He was a great master to his people. The devotion his readers had to him was as if he was a spiritual man," Mrs. Bukowski said.

Bukowski's works, reflecting a lifetime of drinking and mental labor, included short stories, novels, screenplays and more than 1,000 poems. His writing was gritty, hard-edged and frequently pornographic.

He wrote the screenplay for "Barfly," a critically acclaimed 1987 movie about two drunken-and-out-of-control characters that starred Mickey Rourke and Faye Dunaway.

The movie was based on a period in Bukowski's life, and he told People magazine in 1988 that he had to drink to be creative.

"Unless I'm entertained," he said, "nobody's going to be entertained." The drinking sent him to the hospital with a bleeding ulcer at age 36. His first stop after leaving the hospital was a bar. In the 1950s, Bukowski's works were published in magazines and as 200-page pamphlets.

Joanne and Dennis Franz of "NYPD Blue" arrive at the 20th annual People's Choice Awards earlier this week in Culver City, Calif. Franz plays a detective in the show, which son honors as best and best new series.

'NYPD Blue' earns America's acclaim

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP) — The television drama "NYPD Blue" was a double winner Tuesday night at the 20th annual People's Choice Awards, and "Frasier" and "Grace Under Fire" tied for favorite new TV comedy.

"Jurassic Park" was the favorite movie and Garth Brooks was the favorite male musical performer. "NYPD Blue" won for best TV dramatic series and best new TV dramatic series.

Tim Allen and Roseanne Arnold were chosen as best male and female TV performers. The program, hosted by Paul Reiser of the sitcom "Mad About You," included a special tribute to producer-director Steven Spielberg, whose films include "Jurassic Park" and "Schindler's List."

Winners of the People's Choice Awards were determined by a Gallup Poll of more than 4,000 people nationwide who were asked to list their favorite music, TV shows and movies.

CBS broadcast the show with a 7-second tape delay in the East. It wasn't live because during last week's live airing of the Grammy Awards, Bono of the rock group U2 swore on stage. The word was censored when a tape of the show was played in Western time zones.

The People's Choice winners were:

TV COMEDY SERIES: "Home Improvement," ABC.

TV DRAMATIC SERIES: "NYPD Blue," ABC.

NEW TV COMEDY SERIES: (tie) "Frasier," NBC; "Grace Under Fire," ABC.

NEW TV DRAMATIC SERIES: "NYPD Blue," ABC.

MALE TV PERFORMER: Tim Allen.

FEMALE TV PERFORMER: Roseanne Arnold.

MALE PERFORMER IN A NEW TV SERIES: Kelsey Grammer.

FEMALE PERFORMER IN A NEW TV SERIES: Bren Butler.

MOVIE PERFORMER: "Jurassic Park," Universal.

MOVIE PERFORMER: "Mrs. Doubtfire," Touchstone.

DRAMATIC MOTION PICTURE: "The Firm," Warner.

ACTOR IN A COMEDY MOTION PICTURE: Robin Williams.

ACTRESS IN A COMEDY MOTION PICTURE: Whoopi Goldberg.

ACTOR IN A DRAMATIC MOTION PICTURE: Tim Cruise.

ACTRESS IN A DRAMATIC MOTION PICTURE: Julia Roberts.

A star shines for Davis in 'Angie'

By Kenneth Turan
Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD — Stardom is a ladder with many rungs, and "Angie" announces Geena Davis' arrival at the top. An unapologetic star vehicle whose every moment is crafted to showcase her various abilities, this is much a corporate as a motion picture, a trumpet call to the world insisting that attention be paid.

It's not that Davis, always a fluid, engaging actress, has lacked for attention up to now. "The Accidental Tourist" won her an Oscar, "Thelma & Louise" earned a second nomination and "A League of Their Own" was a considerable hit. But while those were roles, the actress took hold of and made her own, "Angie" is a part specifically tailored to demonstrate what she can do.

And as Ms. Scaccapensieri, a feisty Italian-American resident of the Bensonhurst section of Brooklyn whose unexpected pregnancy brings on the usual journey of self-discovery, Davis gets to do a lot. She laughs and cries, talks dirty and acts sexy, lashes out in anger, and whispers in repentance. Plus she wears big earrings and participates in an unusually hectic delivery room scene that is the film's comic centerpiece.

As a vehicle to display Davis' talent, "Angie" (MPAA rated R) can't be faulted, and neither can the actress' pumped-up performance as a woman in the process of harnessing her emotional strength. Brash and irresistible, Davis is as assured as she's ever been, displaying a believable Brooklyn accent and taking every advantage of the scenes laid on for her specific pleasure.

When "Angie" is considered apart from its lead performance, however, the results are much more mixed. As directed by Martha Coolidge ("Rambling Rose") and written by Geena Davis is Ms. Scaccapensieri, whose unexpected pregnancy brings on the usual journey of self-discovery in a film in which she excels but which itself seems too mechanical at times.

Todd Graff from a novel by Avra Wing, "Angie" is too much the standard women's picture, overlaid with a laundry list of uninspired soap-opera dilemmas.

Abandoned at age 3 by a free-spirited mother she's never heard from or forgotten, Angie, in her early 30s, is a Brooklyn working woman whose life has settled into a not unpleasant routine. She and best friend Tina (the feisty Aida Turturro) spend their days working in Manhattan. At night

Angie goes to movies like "Cliffhanger" with the good-hearted Vinnie (James Gandolfini), a plumber who's been her boyfriend since ninth grade.

But when Angie finds herself pregnant, very little stays the same. Vinnie, a stand-up guy, is ecstatic and eager for an immediate wedding, but Angie is not sure she wants to get married at all. Her pregnancy has brought to the surface a raft of discontents — submerged dissatisfac-

Letterman, 'Mad About You's' Hunt win honors

LOS ANGELES (AP) — David Letterman and Helen Hunt were named funniest lead performers in series television and Meg Ryan and Robin Williams were cited for movies at the 8th Annual American Comedy Awards.

Letterman, star of "Mad About You," and Letterman, star of "Late Show With David Letterman," were saluted Sunday at the Shrine Auditorium. A broadcast date for the program was not announced.

Williams won for his role in the hit film "Mr. Doubtfire." Miss Ryan was honored for "Sleepless in Seattle."

Lifetime achievement awards went to Dick Van Dyke and Elaine May.

Honors for TV specials went to Tracey Ullman for "Tracey Ullman Takes on New York" and Billy Crystal for his work as host of the "65th Annual Academy Awards."

Julia Louis-Dreyfus of "Seinfeld" and Rip Torn of "The Larry Sanders Show" were honored as television's funniest supporting actress and actor.

The funniest supporting actress and actor awards for films went to Lily Tomlin for the movie "Short Cuts" and to Charles Grodin for "Dave." Margaret Cho and Carrot

Directors recognize Spielberg

Los Angeles Times

Steven Spielberg added the Directors Guild of America Award on Saturday night to the growing array of accolades given to him for his epic motion picture "Schindler's List."

The directors' honor suggests that Spielberg and the movie may take home Oscars when they are awarded by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences on March 21.

Although other outcomes are possible — Oscar ballots were only mailed to academy voters Friday — history is on Spielberg's side. Only three times since the guild began giving awards in 1949 has the winner of the guild's prize failed to also win the Oscar for direction. And typically, academy voters also give the Oscar for best picture of the year to their best director winner.

The last time there was an exception was 1985 and it involved Spielberg. The guild prize went to him for directing "The Color Purple," but the Oscar went to Sydney Pollack for "Out of Africa."

A directing Oscar for the prolific Spielberg, the world's most commercially successful director, would be his first.

The Directors Guild prizes for feature film, television and advertising were awarded in a dinner ceremony at the Beverly Hilton Hotel and in New York, Spielberg was present in Beverly Hills to accept his award.

"Schindler's List" was voted best film of 1993 by the major critics groups and won the Golden Globe best drama prize.

'Guarding Tess': Grumpy old women

Los Angeles Times

Movies playing in the Twin Falls area this week. Ratings are by the Motion Picture Association of America and reviews are by the Los Angeles Times.

"Guarding Tess" (PG-13). The pairing of Shirley MacLaine as a cranky presidential widow and Nicolas Cage as the Secret Service agent in charge of her detail is an inspired one, and director/writer Hugh Wilson has the appropriate light touch, but this chamber comedy takes an unexpected turn that undercuts its strengths. (Twin Cinema, Jerome Cinema)

"Lightning Jack" (PG-13). Paul Hogan writes and stars in this comedy Western about an outlaw who takes a store clerk (Cuba Gooding Jr.) hostage. But soon they're an unlikely pair on a tear. Beverly D'Angelo also stars for director Simon Wincer. (Twin Cinema, Jerome Cinema)

"Ace Ventura: Pet Detective" (PG-13). Every body movement and facial tic of Jim Carrey (of "The Living Color" fame) is so broadly exaggerated here, he becomes goofy Jim Varney look-alike. A movie centered around a man's presence as Carrey's sounds like it could be hell, but his starring debut proves surprisingly capable of provoking unexpected giggles. The movie is uneven, but his cartoonish inhumanity is nearly heroic. (Twin Cinema)

"Black Check" (PG). Lame Disney kids' film about a type who finds a blank check and uses it to shelter himself. The presents before the inevitable moralizing sets in. (Jerome Cinema)

"Blue Chips" (PG-13). Nick Nolte plays a college basketball coach who crawls the line into corruption. Not nearly all it should be, but full of glancing anecdotal moments that make you realize why you love sports — and sports movies — in the first place. Shaquille O'Neal plays a blue chip college prospect, and he towers over Nolte — no mean feat. (Motor-Vu Drive-In)

"The Chase" (PG-13, general release). A no-brainer with Charlie Sheen playing a wrongly convicted bank robber who spends most of the movie speeding away from the cops. Kristy Swanson co-stars as the heinous kidnapper. (Twin Cinema)

"8 Seconds" (PG-13). Weak-kneed bio-pic about the late great bull-rider champion Lance Frost, played by Luke Perry (who looks more like Woody Guthrie here). Strictly for bull-riding fans. (Twin Cinema)

"Greedy" (PG-13). As a satire it's wildly uneven and heavy-handed, but it affords a wonderful major role for Kirk Douglas as wily old scrap metal tycoon whose overly caricatured relatives vie with each other for his favor. With Michael J. Fox, Nancy Travis and Olivia d'Abo as the film's likable, essentially decent types. (Twin Cinema)

"Grumpy Old Men" (PG-13). Walter Matthau and Jack Lemmon play a pair of long-time feuding friends who square off over the same woman (Ann-Margret). It's a cantankerous romp without much wit or point. (Twin Cinema)

"My Father, the Hero" (PG). Gerard Depardieu is enjoyable trying to get his mouth around the English language in this otherwise tepid farce about a 14-year-old on vacation with her dad (Depardieu) who pretends he's her lover to get a boy jealous. Smarmy premise. (Jerome Cinema)

"Mrs. Doubtfire" (PG-13). Robin Williams can't help but be funny in this situation born in high-concept heaven: divorced dad disguises himself as a nanny to spend more time with his kids. But the rest of the film, though unobjectionable enough, underlines Williams' recent desire to appear in warm, cuddly and terminally bland motion pictures. (Twin Cinema)

"On Deadly Ground" (R). Steven Seagal makes a lively if precisely directorial debut starring as an oil rigger who discovers his villainous employer (a deliciously nasty Michael Caine) is cutting corners to the extent of endangering the environment. Although one could wish Seagal had delivered his message with a less heavy hand, he is on target in his sentiments and quite possibly will be reaching audiences who never thought about the environment before. (Twin Cinema)

'The Fugitive' arrives on local video shelves

The Times-News

New videos this week in Twin Falls video stores:

"The Fugitive" (PG-13). Forget the TV series. "The Fugitive" is the classic tale of the innocent man, wrongfully accused, who can only exonerate himself by catching the real culprit.

The film owes more to Hitchcock than to the Emmy-winning '60s episode on which it is very loosely based. Rather than try to duplicate the show's location-hopping scenario, screenwriters Jeb Stuart ("Die Hard") and David Twohy have created a tightly focused drama set almost entirely in Chicago.

"The Good Son" (R). Directed by Andy Davis, it's fast, furious and very intense. It gets off with a bang and just keeps rolling. Except for a protracted finale, this is crackjack filmmaking.

The movie immediately gets us involved in the character of Richard Kimble (Harrison Ford) in a brisk, efficient pre-credit series of scenes. The good doctor is called away to emergency surgery on his way home from a fund-raiser with his adoring wife. Later, he arrives home just in time to wrestle with a one-armed man who has brutally murdered Kimble's wife (Sela Ward). Her 911 phone call seems to implicate her husband, who also stood to inherit a vast fortune. Kimble is sentenced to death for her murder before the credits roll.

On his way to prison, Kimble survives a bus crash and train wreck, and is soon on the run. U.S. Marshal Sam Gerard (Tommy Lee Jones) arrives on the scene, and takes charge of the fugitive's capture. The chase is on.

Kimble's narrow escape to Chicago is as harrowing and gripping as most thrillers' final scenes. And the story never lets up on the tension or the momentum.

"The Fugitive" is highly suspenseful, in large part due to a well-constructed plot. But much of the emotional tension comes from the pressure on the dynamic and well-matched adversaries. Kimble is a man with nothing left to lose. He's desperate, driven to avenge his beloved wife's murder, and very smart.

Also, unlike the dogged but dull Indiana police lieutenant played by Barry Morse in the TV series, is also a man obsessed.

"The Fugitive," unfortunately, is one of those movies that doesn't know when to stop. It takes us too long to end either. Despite the extra 15 minutes that mute our enjoyment, "The Fugitive" gives us quite a run for our money. (Knight-Ridder Newspapers) (Great-American Video, Video West)

McEwen ices sweep of Region 18 honors

TWIN FALLS — Amber McEwen, a transfer from University of Hawaii, took a lot of ornamental hardware out of Region 18 and National Junior College Athletic Association during a one-year stay at College of Southern Idaho.

McEwen was named to the all-region regular season women's basketball first-team and earned first team all-tournament honors at last week's finals in St. George. Last fall, McEwen was voted the MVP when CSI won the regional volleyball championship and then became national all-tournament as the Eagles took the U.S. crown.

Walker reaches cup on 17th hole at Muni in 1 stroke

TWIN FALLS — George Walker of Twin Falls Monday became one of a select few to score a hole-in-one on the 17th hole at Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course. Against a stiff breeze, Walker used a driver for his first ace on the par three, 189-yard hole. Gordy Gates witnessed the feat.

Doctors find fractured ankle while repairing golfer's leg

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — After undergoing surgery for a broken left leg, pro golfer Phil Mickelson was discovered to have a hairline fracture of the right ankle, his agent said Thursday.

The right foot and lower right leg were placed in a cast after Mickelson was determined to have a fracture of the right tibia near the ankle joint, Steve Lay of Cornerstone Sports, Inc., said.

The injury was discovered after Mickelson began walking with crutches following surgery to his left leg, which was fractured in a skiing accident last week. Doctors inserted a steel rod in the left femur to stabilize the bone. That leg was not casted, the agent said.

Illini forward arrested for speeding, DUI after game

URBANA, Ill. — T.J. Wheeler, a forward on the Illinois basketball team, was arrested early Thursday on charges of speeding and drunken driving.

Police said Wheeler, 22, of Urbana, was stopped at 1:50 a.m. CST after an Urbana police officer clocked his car at 65 mph in a 40 mph zone.

The arrest came hours after the Illini beat No. 20 Minnesota 90-75 in their final home game of the season. Wheeler scored seven points.

Authorities said Wheeler failed three field sobriety tests and refused to take a breath test at the police station. Under Illinois law, that results in automatic suspension of a driver's license for six months for the first arrest.

POCATELLO — Day one at the Idaho High School Wrestling Championships is a game of numbers.

Individually, the only sure thing after the first round is that a defeat means no state title this trip. Team scores will change, but usually provide a reliable barometer of overall strength.

In the case of 97 District 4 aspirants who competed in Thursday's opener, three locals had byes - 57 who lost can gain no higher finish than third.

Minico advanced nine of 17 wrestlers and trails only Sandpoint in Class A-1. District champions Buhl (A-2) and Declo (A-3) advanced six and five, respectively.

"We wrestled pretty well," said Spartan head coach Brad Cooper. "I thought we'd get 130 though and I was hoping for 152 and 160."

Spartan senior Paul Fries, again the 171-pound favorite, nearly became an early upset victim as he did in 1993.

Down 4-2 five minutes into the match against Borah's Brock Nelson, Fries rallied.

All-star Lightfoot leads Idaho past Montana, sets up game with Bengals

The Associated Press

BOISE — Two-time Big Sky Conference player of the year Orlando Lightfoot showed why Thursday night, just as Montana coach Blaine Taylor was afraid he might. Lightfoot scored 29 points to lead Idaho to a 74-63 quarterfinal victory over Montana, but got some critical help from teammate Deon Watson in shutting off a furious second-half Montana rally.

"Orlando is very streaky. When he gets on a streak he takes some shots I would not have, but he makes them," Taylor said. "I was fearful that Orlando would take things into his own hands, and he did."

The victory sent Idaho into a Friday night semifinal against second-seeded Idaho State, which earned a first-round tournament bid at Idaho's expense last week. The Bengals beat Idaho on the Vandals' home floor, 66-63, in their regular-season finale.

Montana made stellar efforts in both halves to overcome Vandal leads, but Lightfoot and Watson wouldn't let the Grizzlies get all the way back. After Montana closed to within six at 58-52, Watson, playing with four fouls, sank a layup and three jumpers and Lightfoot added a basket to make it 68-53 and put an end to that Montana run.

"We really thought that we could come back and we did," Taylor said, "but playing from behind and making three or four runs it became pretty tough."

Lightfoot, who made his baskets in bunches in both periods, said he didn't feel any added pressure from the playoffs at Boise State University's Pavilion.

"It's never easy. If we are going to win, we're just going to have to get the job done," said Lightfoot, who was 3-for-9 from

Cougars avenge losses to Utes in WAC tourney

The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — After two late-regular-season losses, Russell Larson fell behind his Brigham Young teammates but had something to prove.

The 6-foot-11 Cougar center chose archival Utah to make his point, scoring 28 points in a 96-65 rout of the Utes Thursday that earned BYU a spot in today's Western Athletic Conference tournament semifinals.

"We wanted to prove that even after two losses, we could play with any of the good teams in the WAC, and beat the best teams," Larson said, recalling setbacks last week to league champion New Mexico and Texas El Paso.

Larson was nearly perfect, hitting 12 of his 14 shots in the third-seeded Cougars (20-8) eliminated No. 6 seed Utah (14-14).

Minutemen ride early run to victory

The Associated Press

AMHERST, Mass. — Massachusetts didn't wait until the final seconds to beat Temple this time.

The ninth-ranked Minutemen opened the Atlantic 10 championship game with a 24-3 competitive round since his Nov. 7 suspension by No. 12 Temple on the way to a 70-59 victory Thursday night and their third straight league title.

The first two times the teams met this season, Massachusetts (27-6) came away with one-point victories, both times on shots by Mike Williams. One was a 10-foot jumper with three seconds left at home; the other was a 25-foot banker with eight seconds to play in Philadelphia.

This time, Williams got the Minutemen going with a 3-pointer eight seconds into the game. The junior guard also had an answer when the Owls opened the second half with an 11-0 run to get within three, hitting consecutive 3-pointers to make it 41-32 with 15:39 left.

After Temple (22-7) closed to 41-36, it was Williams' three-point play that capped a 5-0 run to make it 46-36.

Williams finished with 21 points, while Lou Roe had 17 and Dana Dingle 10.

Temple got within six points twice, but never closer despite a heroic effort by Aaron McKie, who finished with 33 points.

Daly returns to PGA just 2 shots behind leaders in Honda Classic

The Associated Press

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — John Daly celebrated his return to the PGA Tour on Thursday by shooting five birdies in a 2-under-par 69 that placed him near the lead after one round of the Honda Classic.

"It feels great to be back," golf's biggest hitter said following his first competitive round since his Nov. 7 suspension by commissioner Deane Beman. "It seems like it's been forever since I played. After being out so long, I had no idea what to expect."

What he got was an excellent round. He was two shots off the pace, set by Masters champion Bernhard Langer of Germany and Brandel Chamblee, both closing with 67s.

"I didn't expect to hit it as well as I did," Daly said. "If I keep on hitting the ball like I am, there's no telling what I can do."

Daly, 27, was suspended last fall after failing to complete play a pro-am round at a tournament in Hawaii, the third such incident in six months.

"I didn't expect to hit as well as I did."

— John Daly

Daly leaped into national attention in 1991, when he won the PGA championship as the ninth alternate, his wraparound swing and huge drives becoming his signature.

He became an instant folk hero and won again in '92. But his personal life became a shambles. Paternity and palimony suits were threatened, filed and dropped. He was charged with a felony after trashing his own house and assaulting his wife. He was tossed off a commercial flight after a drunken incident in Denver.

He was suspended pending the successful completion of an alcohol treatment and rehabilitation program, which was accomplished early in 1993.

Now, completing a second suspension, he's back again after spending the better part of four months working on his game.

And there were only a couple of spots of rust evident in the first 18 holes. He missed a couple of short putts early in the round, hardly unexpected after such a long break. Each miss cost him a bogey.

"On the 17th tee, he said he lost his concentration for a moment and hit a 3-iron over the green on the 21-yard hole. 'I wasn't comfortable,' he said. 'I should have backed off from the shot. Too much club. I should have gone with a 4.'"

But he came right back with a display that was vintage Daly, and a delight to the largest gallery of the day.

He needed only a 2-iron second shot to reach the green on the 585-yard, par-5 finishing hole and two-putted from 30 feet for the birdie that gave him a place among the leaders.

Like Daly, Langer is coming off a long break. However, his was self-imposed and included a two-week bout with flu. "After four weeks off, I didn't know what to expect," he said. "My game actually improved, picked up as conditions got tougher."

John Daly finishes Thursday's round at 2 under par, just 2 shots off the pace in the Honda Classic.

Indians hammer Chisox, 16-0

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — Albert Belle had three home runs and five RBIs, and Michael Jordan's hitless streak grew to 0-for-12 as the Cleveland Indians beat the Chicago White Sox 16-0 Thursday in game featuring eight homers.

Exhibition baseball

Wayne Kirby, Eddie Murray and Omar Vizquel also homered for Cleveland. Ron Karkovics, who had three RBIs, and rookie Drew Benson connected for Chicago.

Belle was 4-for-4, Jordan was 0-for-2. Belle's first two homers were two-run shots off Jason Bere in the first and third innings. After a single in the fourth, Belle hit his third homer of the day, a solo shot off Chris Bushing, in the sixth.

Vizquel's homer was a three-run shot off Bushing, who gave up three home runs in the span of four batters in the sixth inning.

Braves 8, Dodgers 0

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Atlanta's Tony Tarasco, bidding for the starting job in left field, went 4-for-4 with three RBIs, and Greg Maddux pitched three shutout innings.

Tarasco, batting .409, got help from Deion Sanders, who went 3-for-3 and struck three runs as the Braves beat Orel Hershey.

Cardinals 3, Royals 2

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Erik Pappas drew a decisive bases-loaded walk from Kansas City's Mike Loynd in the ninth inning.

St. Louis went ahead 2-0 in the second behind Rick Sutcliffe, who squeezed home the second run. Mike MacFarlane homered for the Royals.

Phillies 8, Red Sox 4

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Tony Longmire homered, singled in a run and began a four-run Philadelphia outburst in the seventh inning with a walk.

Tommy Greene, who has not allowed an earned run in six innings this spring, permitted only one baserunner.

Vaughn hit his fourth homer for the Red Sox, who got four strong innings from Roger Clemens.

Reds 7, Tigers 5

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Steve Lake's double and a bases-loaded walk by Detroit's Mike Gardiner keyed a three-run Cincinnati ninth inning.

Willie Greene, fighting for the Reds' starting job, hit a three-run homer off Tim Lincecum in the second.

California Angels' Damion Easley, left, gets spiked by San Francisco's Barry Bonds who is caught stealing third base Thursday in Tempe, Ariz.

Mets (ss) 8, Expos 4

PORT ST. LUCIE, Fla. (AP) — Kevin McReynolds and Fernando Vina had three hits each to lead a split squad of Mets.

Vinardubled and scored in the first inning, and drove in two runs with a fourth-inning single.

Mets (ss) 12, Astros 8

KISSIMMEE, Fla. (AP) — John Cangosi went 4-for-4, and Quirova Vera had three hits and four RBIs to lead a 17-hit attack as the rest of the Mets beat an error-ravaged split squad of Astros.

Jim Lindeman added three hits and Jeff McKeight three RBIs for the Mets, who scored six runs in the first inning.

The Twins started their comeback when Chip Hale scored on a sacrifice fly by Shane Mack in the third inning, then took the lead with a five-run fourth against Wakefield, leading the fourth in the inning.

Twins 8, Pirates 7

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Minnesota's Denny Hocking had three hits and two RBIs, and his two-run double helped the Twins rally from a 5-0 deficit against knuckleballer Tim Wakefield.

The Twins started their comeback when Chip Hale scored on a sacrifice fly by Shane Mack in the third inning, then took the lead with a five-run fourth against Wakefield, leading the fourth in the inning.

Rockies 8, Padres 4

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Armando Rendon, trying to become the opening-day starter, had four shutout innings as Colorado beat up San Diego's Andy Benes.

Andres Galarraga and Ty Van Burkleo homered for the Rockies, who got four runs and eight hits in three innings against Benes.

Reynoso, rebounding from a poor initial outing Saturday, allowed just two hits and struck out five.

Mariners 11, Brewers 1

PEORIA, Ariz. (AP) — Rookie Keith Mitchell's grand slam keyed a six-run fifth-inning, leading Seattle to its 14th straight victory over two springs.

Randy Johnson, the Mariners' opening-day starter, winner Greg Hibbard and Bobby Ayala combined on a seven-hitter as Seattle's spring record rose to 6-0.

Blue Jays 10, Rangers 9

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — Domingo Martinez had five RBIs, and Toronto rallied from a five-run deficit to win with a ninth-inning comeback by Texas.

Tilson Brito doubled home two runs and Martinez singled in four-run seventh. Martinez had a two-run double in a four-run eighth.

Giants 8, Angels 7

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Former Angels Rich Monteleone and J.R. Phillips helped San Francisco hand California its sixth straight exhibition loss.

Phillips homered to start the seventh inning. Monteleone got the final out for the Giants.

Athletics 6, Cubs 0

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — Mike Witt extended his scoreless spring training streak to seven innings, and Mike Bonin and Craig Paquette supplied the offense.

Witt allowed just two hits — the only ones he's given up this spring — and struck out four.

Yankees 9, Orioles 7

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Danny Tartabull and Don Mattingly had two-run homers, and New York rallied to down Baltimore. Tartabull's first homer of the spring came with two outs in the seventh inning and Randy Velarde added with a leadoff double. It gave the Yankees an 8-7 lead.

Marlins 6, Astros (ss) 2

MELBOURNE, Fla. (AP) — Ron Tingle continued his bid to earn the backup catcher's job with Florida when he homered in the Marlins' victory over a Houston split squad.

Olaunwon, Rockets hand Sonics rare loss

HOUSTON (AP) — The defense that kept the Houston Rockets stop the Midwest Division all season put them back in first place again.

The Rockets held Seattle to just 20 points in the second half Thursday night and overcame an early 14-point deficit to slip past the SuperSonics 87-82.

The victory gave Houston a .002 percentage-point lead over San Antonio in the Midwest Division. The loss for Seattle snapped a six-game winning streak.

"In order for us to win, we had to raise our intensity on defense," said Hakeem Olaunwon, who led the Rockets with 23 points. "When we do that, the offense takes care of itself. Aggressive defense in the second half was the key."

"We just stacked off. That's all I can say," said Gary Payton, who paced the Sonics with 19 points. "We didn't play at all like we did in the first half. Our plays were disrupted because we didn't follow through. Our shots just stopped falling."

At one point, Seattle went 5-11 without a field goal and was whittled for a pair of illegal defense violations. Houston capitalized with a late 8-0 run to take the lead for the first time.

For the game, the Sonics shot just 36 percent. They were without Ricky Pierce, sidelined with bone spurs, and Nate McMillan, suffering from an abdominal strain.

The third quarter, our passing decisions gave us a chance to get back in the game," coach George Karl said. "In the fourth quarter, it became a power game and we had a lot of guys who had played a lot of minutes so it was tough on us."

Rookie Sam Cassell sealed the win for Houston with four pressure free throws in the final seconds. "That was my first time to be in this kind of situation, but it was my first time in the NBA to do this," Cassell said.

"He's a very cool rookie," Olaunwon said of the Rockets' No. 1 draft choice from Florida State. "In fact, Sam and the whole bench saved the game for us while I was out."

The Rockets made their comeback in the third period without Olaunwon for most of the time. Olaunwon picked up his third and fourth fouls early in the period and was sent to the bench.

CSI jumps on Ricks errors for win

ONTARIO — Three of the four Ricks errors were critical Thursday afternoon, allowing College of Southern Idaho to claim a 3-2 victory in the first round of the Valley Invitational.

A dropped third-strike gave CSI its first run in the bottom of the first inning and Tyrone Brown scored on a double by Devin Chavez. A throwing error led Chavez score the second run.

The Eagles posted the winner-in-the-third when Brad Beck drew a walk, was sacrificed to second and scored when Sam Garman's bonuser drew a second-base error.

After a runner Art Dillaway base-two-hit shutout going into the sixth but saw Rick Strickland homered after an opening walk.

For LPGA's Estill, practice pays off

TUCSON, Ariz. — Michelle Estill, profiting from dedicated offseason practice, shot a career-low 65 Thursday to take the first-round lead in the Ping-Welch's tournament.

First prize in the $425,000 LPGA event is $63,750 — three times what Estill made last year after finishing no higher than 27th and missing the cut in her last six tournaments.

Estill's 7-under-par round left her with a three-shot cushion until late starters Jan Stephenson, Sherri Steinhilber and Donna Andrews tightened things up.

Andrews had an eagle on No. 2, holing 106-yard wedge shot, but couldn't overcome the effects of two bogeys and was tied with Steinhilber at 66.

No one matched Estill's flawless round on the 6,243-yard Randolph North Golf Course. She started with a birdie on the first hole, carded six more in the next 11 holes, and finished with six consecutive pars.

"It was just like it was my turn," Estill said. "Everything just went in. The golf gods were with me today, so they say."

She said she had a 15, 14, 12 and 8 feet and saved par with an 8-foot putt on No. 16, a 490-yard par-5, after leaving a 60-foot birdie attempt short.

Coach ends term with Flyers in a fizzle

CINCINNATI — Jim O'Brien's coaching career at Dayton ended Thursday with one of his worst defeats.

Saint Louis, which had provided O'Brien with one of his few joyful moments this season, sent him to the locker room for the last time with his head down. The Billikens had little trouble beating the uninspired Flyers 80-46 in the first round of the Great Midwest Conference tournament.

The Flyers played with little emotion, then quietly parted ways with their coach, who stayed for the last three games after being fired.

"Coach didn't say much to us," senior John Richter said. "I think he said yes to us seniors, and that's pretty much it."

There wasn't much to say after Saint Louis (23-4) turned it into a rout early. The Billikens went ahead 49-16 at halftime as the Flyers (6-21) offered little resistance. Dayton had more turnovers (18) than points or shots taken (17) at the intermission.

"If it had been a horse, they would have shot it at halftime," said assistant coach Dave Bollwinkel, who substituted for O'Brien at the post-game news conference.

Skating officials OK Harding for world championships

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The U.S. Figure Skating Association reluctantly cleared the way Thursday for Tonya Harding's participation in this month's world championships.

The association said it would not indefinitely delay a federal judge's ruling that it should not punish Harding for her involvement in the attack on Nancy Kerrigan.

The USFSA said even if an appeal were successful the disciplinary process couldn't be completed before the world championships begin March 22 in Chiba, Japan. That process includes a finding by the special investigative panel and possible appeals to the association's executive committee and an arbitrator.

The only potential obstacle to Tonya Harding's participation is the criminal investigation into the Nancy Kerrigan attack.

Right now, skating for us will be Michelle Kwan and Tonya Harding. The USFSA executive director Jerry Lane said, "We think we'll be well represented. We hope they both do."

The only potential obstacle to Harding's participation is the criminal investigation into the Kerrigan attack. If Harding is indicted before she is to leave for Japan, it would be up to Oregon judges whether she would be allowed to leave the state. Otherwise, she would be allowed to compete even if she was under indictment, Lane said.

The chief prosecutor in the case, Norm Frink, said a grand jury could issue indictments in the Kerrigan case next week. The deadline for the grand jury's report is March 21. "Anything's possible," said Frink, chief deputy district attorney of Multnomah County. "We're aiming to report no later than the 21st. Other than that, we're not making any comments."

He declined to comment on a report in The Oregonian newspaper that it was up to Multnomah County whether to charge Harding because Wayne County, Mich., authorities and federal investigators had bowed out of the case.

The USFSA panel has found reasonable cause to believe Harding was involved with or knew of the plot to attack Kerrigan, who was struck above the right knee with a metal police baton in Detroit just before the U.S. Figure Skating Championships. Harding won the event in Kerrigan's absence. U.S. District Judge Owen Panner issued a temporary restraining order Wednesday blocking the figure skating hearing on the grounds that Harding has not had time to prepare a sufficient defense. The association said it may appeal the judge's ruling later.

"I am frustrated and concerned about the continued delays," association president Claire Ferguson said. "It detracts from our ability to run the organization and the prolonged legal proceedings are expensive and could ultimately take money away from those areas of the sport which really need it."

Big East schools applaud expansion

NEW YORK (AP) — The day after the Big East expanded to 12 full-time members, most of the people involved in the conference were getting ready for the league's postseason basketball tournament.

It was hard to find anybody who didn't speak of the addition of West Virginia and Rutgers in positive terms Thursday, one day after months of expansion speculation ended. Temple and Virginia Tech were told they could remain as football members only.

"What would have been bad about 14 (members) is it gives you two separate conferences," Syracuse basketball coach Jim Boheim said. "Now you have one league."

The Southeastern Conference has 12, the Big Eight has 12 and the Big Ten has 11 but will end up with 12. Twelve was the best solution and to me it was the only solution."

It was expanded or break up the four Division I-A football schools — Syracuse, Boston College, Pittsburgh and Miami — had threatened to leave and form their own conference with the four schools that had joined them in a Big East basketball conference three years ago.

The presidents of the schools took the matter over about a month ago, and they made their decision in a meeting on Wednesday.

"We had a view of where the league was going in the future, and we had a view," said Frank Rizzo, the athletic director at Georgetown, one of the six basketball schools. "It didn't go exactly the way we wanted and it didn't go exactly the way they wanted, so it really is a true compromise."

The expansion needed seven votes, so half of the basketball schools — Georgetown, St. John's, Providence, Villanova, Connecticut and Seton Hall — had to approve it. The final vote was 7-3.

"If they fell a vote short, the changes would have been drastic. It was worried, but I felt certain some people in strong positions were pushing for it," Boheim said. "I think in the long run it might be the best thing to happen for all these schools, even those most opposed to it."

Despite reservations, Georgetown basketball coach John Thompson is going along with the change.

"I didn't have faith in the presidents at all. I was very concerned about it because I didn't know what was going to happen," Thompson said.

"I don't know that the presidents of colleges are that astute about athletics, to tell you the truth. I support it because the decision has been made. I had my views and still do, but by the same token for me to beat a dead horse is a stupid thing. The fight's over. The time is now to pull us together and make the league work."

Boheim has no problem with the presidents' decision not to split into divisions.

"It will work to your advantage sometimes and work against you others, and probably balance out over the years," he said.

He also noted that Syracuse was called a football school throughout the process.

"(Penn State football coach) Joe Paterno used to label us a basketball school and I didn't think much about it. I don't think much about the other way either," he said. "I know who pays the bills."

WAC expansion talks end without decision

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Athletic directors from the Western Athletic Conference ended two days of meetings here without a recommendation to the league's presidents about possible expansion of the 10-team WAC.

Commissioner Joe Kearney said Wednesday the athletic directors are to meet with their respective presidents between now and WAC meetings in Tucson, Ariz., at the end of April.

"The first issue is whether the presidents want to expand," Kearney said. "Second, there has to be a timetable set. Then, the third thing to do is who they want to talk to."

He said the head of the WAC Presidents Council, Hawaii President Kenneth Mortimer, will be the only one to comment publicly on any official action.

"Expansion was discussed, but anything on expansion has to come from Dr. Mortimer," said University of New Mexico Athletic Director Rudy Davalos.

Nevada-Las Vegas and Tulsa are the latest rumored additions if the WAC goes to 12 teams. The media have speculated on such schools as Texas-Christians, Houston, Rice, Southern Methodist, San Jose State, Nevada-Reno, Tulane, Memphis State, Louisville and Cincinnati.

Kearney said athletic directors discussed a number of scenarios with different schools, "but we didn't have any kind of recommendation."

Kearney, who is retiring June 30, has hinted the men's and women's basketball tournaments will return to Delta Center in Salt Lake City in 1995. The WAC is in the second year of a two-year contract with Delta Center, with an option year in the deal.

Kruk's cancer ripples through clubhouse

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Confidence replaced concern in the Philadelphia Phillies clubhouse Thursday as players talked about John Kruk's recovery from testicular cancer.

"It was a little shock to everybody because nobody knew it was that extensive. You hear the word cancer and it's a scary word," catcher Darren Daulton said. "What he has seems to be, percentage-wise, very curable and that's a positive."

Kruk, who had a cancerous testicle removed Tuesday night in Philadelphia, was expected to return to Clearwater Thursday to undergo additional testing Friday.

The tests involve a CAT-scan of Kruk's chest, abdomen and pelvis to determine whether the cancer has spread. Even if it has, doctors believe it can be treated with radiation and that the chances for a complete recovery are nearly 100 percent.

The team physician, Dr. Phillip Marone, has said doctors expect Kruk to be able to return to the lineup in two to three weeks.

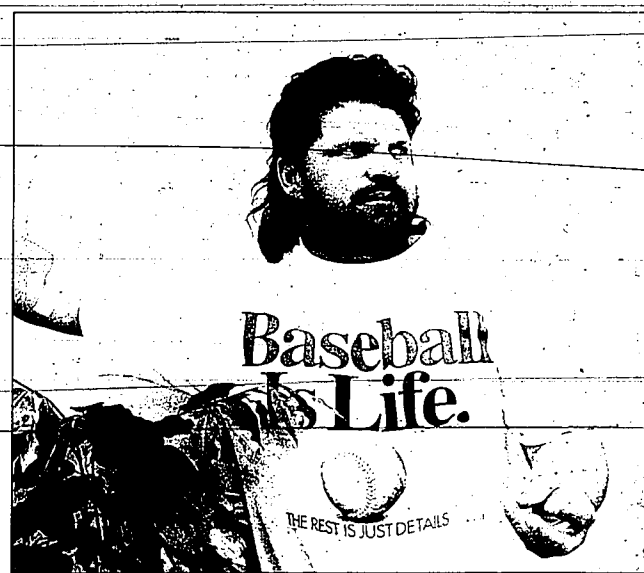

While most of the Phillies made the 25-hour drive to Fort Myers to play the Boston Red Sox in an exhibition game Thursday, several of the team's regulars stayed behind to work out at Jack Russell Stadium.

Most spoke cautiously about Kruk's situation.

"We're going to wait until we hear some more news on the tests before I jump the gun on anything," third baseman Dave Hollins said. "I don't really know what's up. Give me another day."

Daulton stressed the positive, saying Kruk is fortunate that doctors operated to remove a pool of blood from his scrotal sac, leading to the cancer discovery. Kruk had experienced pain since Mitch Williams hit him with an errant throw last summer.

"If there's any positives about it, No. 1, it's real. That's what has it," Daulton said. "If he hadn't gotten it checked, it would have still been in there and they wouldn't have known about it."

Phillies first baseman John Kruk talks to reporters Monday in Philadelphia about what he said was a groin injury that occurred during a game last year. On Wednesday doctors removed a cancerous testicle from the all-star. He is expected to make a full recovery.

"The biggest concern now is making sure that it hasn't spread over any part of his body," he said. "If they found out that it's negative, then the next thing to do is get him healed up and get him back in uniform with the rest of the club."

Daulton echoed the comments of several players: "It just puts baseball secondary and you're concerned about the guy's health and his life." Reliever Doug Jones and catcher Todd Pratt expressed optimism.

"It's sad that it had to be the big C word," Pratt said. "But from what we know, it sounds pretty positive."

Pratt said he didn't think Kruk a career 300 hitter, would have much trouble getting back into baseball after the layoff.

"I don't think the two weeks are going to hurt him," he said. "I mean John can get out of bed half asleep and hit his two line drives a game. He's a natural hitter."

Not having Kruk in the clubhouse during that time "is like a loss in the family," Pratt said. "John is one of the cornerstones of our lineup and the team."

Strawberry predicts 'great baseball' ahead

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Darryl Strawberry says he's happy, his feels great, and the Los Angeles Dodgers can count on him for a big season.

And for those looking for controversy, his message was clear: Look somewhere else.

"You're going to see some great baseball," Strawberry said at the Los Angeles Dodgers spring training facility. "I will play good baseball this season. I'm back to where I'm healthy. I'm going to have fun."

"Now's now. To be able to start fresh means more than to look back on the negative side."

The negative side has been pretty dominant for Strawberry in the last two years, at least from a public perception. He said it all revolved around his physical condition.

"You have to realize, I missed a lot of baseball," he said. "I don't doubt myself, all I needed was to be healthy. My thinking is forward. I'm not concerned about anything that's happened. My main concern is about playing and doing my job."

The country's going down the tubes; people are concerned about things that aren't important. There are people out there who have major problems. I have minor problems and people focus on them because I'm a sports figure."

Strawberry's "minor problems" started in 1992 when his back first began bothering him. He played only 43 games that season before undergoing back surgery on Sept. 15.

Last spring, the back problems continued. Strawberry wound up playing in only 32 games — 20 in April — before being placed on the disabled list June 18. He remained there the rest of the year.

But he made news. He showed up late for back rehab in Chicago and got chastised. He showed up late for back rehab in San Diego, got benched and swung at a water cooler. He showed up late for back rehab in Los Angeles and got fined.

In September, Strawberry was arrested for allegedly hitting his girlfriend. The charges were never filed.

The charges later married. After the season, he joined his teammates for a series of exhibition games in Taiwan and Japan. In a conference call with reporters in Los Angeles that was broadcast live, he said, "Let it burn. I don't live there anymore," when asked about the Southern California fires.

He later said he was just kidding, but the public relations-conscious Dodgers placed him on special waivers in the aftermath. However, nobody chastised him so he's back with the Dodgers.

But the controversy continues. The New York Daily News recently reported that Strawberry may be indicted for tax evasion for failing to report more than $300,000 in income from signing autographs at baseball card shows.

Still, Strawberry insists he will be able to concentrate on baseball this season.

"You've got to learn to keep your head up through tough times," he said. "I can play, that's the bottom line."

Strawberry, 31, has proven he can play. From 1983-90, while playing for the New York Mets, he averaged over 21 homers and 90 RBIs a season. For the Dodgers in 1991, he hit 28 homers and drove in 99 runs despite missing some time because of an injured left shoulder.

lied for a 5-4 lead, then needed help from the timekeeper when the official told the crowd the Borden had a stallion point when Eric pushed his opponent off the mat after time ran out.

"Now that it's over and I won it's okay," said Fries. "But it sure got me down when I thought we were going into overtime."

The Indians' 19 points left them in fourth place behind perennial powers Snake River and Sugar-Salem and District 3 champ Weiser. Declo, half of its 20 points coming on pins, stands third. Oakley, who has a quarter championship semi finalists has 16 points and a share of sixth place.

"If we're going to win at state, we might as well do it with pins," smiled Declo's Kelly Kidd. "We can use the extra two points."

None of Thursday's breakthroughs came against a seed wrestler, however. Bartley's David Bowen (103) and Jeremy Brookshire (112) outpointed foes with 20 or more wins to their credit.

Jake Cheney (119) of Gooding, Declo 119-pounder Kevin Clark along with Ron Hunsaker of Buhl and Burley's Spencer Turpin, both in the 171-pound classification, also turned the trick.

Only three of the 28 of area grapplers seeded among the top four slipped into the losers bracket.

Minico Junior Wes Kunzler, the No. 3 seed at 125, and Wendell's Phil Wert, fourth at 152, dropped decisions while Burley's Ruben Van Tassel (140) lost his third consecutive submission, spanning two years.

Wes (Kunzler) was ahead with five seconds to go. Cooper noted. "But he got caught in a grapple (5-point scoring move) and lost."

Defending state A-1 heavyweight champion Geoff Fries was the only one of five Twin Falls Bruins to survive the early cut. Pierce pinned Couer d'Alene's Carl Kunz in 3:30.

"I think there was a little gremlin up there that helped drop a couple of those shots for me," he quipped.

For the game, BYU shot 54 percent to Utah's 42 percent. The Cougars also enjoyed a 31-14 rebounding advantage, led by Larson's seven boards.

Utah coach Rick Majerus, whose squad had lost two previous games this season by just five points, made no excuses for the defeat. "I say they're the best team in the league and Larson is the best player, bar none. They deserved to win. They kicked our butt in every way."

While Larson worked inside for the Cougars, Randy Reid earned the perimeter, scoring 26 points on 7-for-10 shooting, including 3-for-6 from 3-point territory. Kurt Christensen had 14 and Kenneth Roberts 12 points for BYU.

Fresno St. 88, Texas-El Paso 66

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Carl Ray Harris scored 29 points, leading Fresno State's Western Athletic Tournament-record 13 3-pointers, as the Bulldogs eliminated Texas-El Paso 88-66 Thursday.

Harris was 5-for-7 from 3-point territory, and FSU (19-9) was 13-of-21 as a team from long distance.

In Friday's semifinals, the second-seeded Bulldogs will play No. 3 Brigham Young, a 96-65 victory over Utah in an earlier game Thursday.

FSU's 3-point proficiency bettered the WAC league team mark of 11 set by Wyoming in 1989 and New Mexico last year. Both those record-setting games were against the Miners.

Antoine Gillespie led UTEP (18-12) with 22 points, while Ralph Davis added

Belinda blasts Pirates

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Manager Jim Leyland is puzzled by former reliever Stan Belinda's biting criticism of the Pittsburgh Pirates, saying Belinda was given respect — and every chance to be the closer.

Belinda, now with the Kansas City Royals, said Leyland intentionally slighted him for months after he allowed Francisco Cabrera's pennant-winning, two-run single in Game 7 of the 1992 NL playoffs in Atlanta.

He said Leyland bypassed him in the clubhouse and didn't talk to him until last spring, forcing the reliever to shoulder the blame all winter. Belinda also said he has learned more about pitching since being traded to the Royals last July 31 than he ever did in Pittsburgh.

"I'm all excited," Belinda told the Kansas City Star. "I feel like a rookie. I'm learning all these new things. I'm really learning how to pitch now. Before I was just a thrower — here it is, country hardball."

Most of all, Belinda said, the Pirates and Leyland never showed him any respect.

"I'm old school," Belinda told the newspaper. "If you don't show me any respect, I don't show you any respect. ... He just wanted people to feel sorry for him. For him not to say anything to me that night shows me that he had no respect for me. And you can't do that as a manager."

"I had all winter to sit on it, thinking to myself, 'What is this guy doing to me? Does he want to ruin me?' If I'd been one of these guys that let it pull me down, what would have happened? Another Donnie Moore situation?"

Moore, a former California Angels reliever, committed suicide several years after giving up a momentum-turning homer to Boston's Dave Henderson in the 1986 AL playoffs.

Leyland, told of Belinda's remarks before the Pirates-Twins exhibition Thursday, said he always supported Belinda and doesn't know why the reliever is so acrimonious toward Pittsburgh.

"If I didn't respect him, why did I pitch him in the game that clinched (the division) ... why did I pitch him in Game 7?"

Leyland said, "We gave him the ball, to me, that shows respect."

Leyland was whisked off to a postgame news conference moments after Game 7 and said he talked briefly to only a couple of players in the dugout runway. Most of the Pirates hid out in the trainer's room or shower and wouldn't talk to reporters, although Belinda did.

"I sort of took the fall for the three years that we lost — on just one pitch," said Belinda, who still lives on a central Pennsylvania farm about two hours from Pittsburgh.

Belinda also accused Leyland of publicly supporting Bobby Bonilla, Barry Bonds and Andy Van Slyke when they slumped in the playoffs, but not him.

Canadian bumps vets in Iditarod

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Veteran mushers Martin Buser and Charlie Boulding were bumped, at least temporarily, from the top two positions in the Iditarod on Thursday when Canada's David Olesen breezed in and out of Ophir without taking his 24-hour mandatory layover.

Olesen pulled into the ghost town about an hour after midnight with 13 dogs. He left about two hours later for the 60-mile run to Cripple, which is the halfway point in the 1,100-mile sled dog race between Anchorage and Nome.

Following Olesen out of Ophir was defending champion Jeff King, who earlier had dropped to seventh place. King checked out of Ophir at with 16 dogs.

King, who took his 24-hour layover in Tokona, told a radio reporter along the trail he was pleased with his showing.

"I'm happy with my team and I'm happy with my decision to stay in Tokona," said King. "We were able to rest through a gorgeous day, feels like we've had two nights sleep."

"The speed of the dogs was still up," when I started my 24, and that's a good sign."

Buser and Boulding arrived in Ophir on Wednesday, Buser clearing the checkpoint at 9:14 a.m. Boulding showed up more than three hours later.

Boulding said he made a critical error back in Nikolai that cost him the lead. The two-time Yukon Quest sled dog race winner said hesitation over where to jayover wiped out his two-hour lead, prompting him to let up on his dogs.

S&Ls raking in billions of dollars instead of hemorrhaging billions

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Profits of savings and loans slipped slightly last year — $5.1 billion — but it was a far cry from the industry's bad old days of multibillion-dollar losses.

It was the third consecutive year of profits for the industry after four years — from 1987 through 1993 — that saw it hemorrhage more than $30 billion.

The 1,669 institutions that have managed to survive the S&L crisis earned profits of $1.19 billion in the first three months of last year, an improvement from the $1.06 billion earned in the fourth quarter of 1993.

The Office of Thrift Supervision said Thursday.

Although the full-year earnings declined from 1992, they were roughly equivalent because the latest year's profits came from smaller industry.

The return on assets — a standard measure of profitability — was 0.65 percent for both years, about half the return on assets experienced by commercial banks last year.

Robert Davis, chief economist of the Savings and Community Bankers of America, said the return for S&Ls was lower than for banks because S&Ls were left with a bigger overhang of problem loans from the 1980s.

He said the stability in the return for S&Ls masked a dramatic improvement in the industry's financial strength and ability to weather future problems.

At the end of 1993, problem assets such as delinquent loans and reposessed real estate totaled $17 billion, down from $25 billion a year before.

And the industry continued to build its capital, which acts as a cushion against future losses. It was 7.1 percent of assets at the end of 1993, up from 6.4 percent a year earlier.

Even though their earnings are the same, their balance sheets are improving," Davis said.

Ninety-nine percent of S&Ls are at least adequately capitalized, the thrift office said. It said 101 institutions were still considered to be problems, down from 203 a year earlier.

Davis predicted the industry's earnings will continue to improve as it closes the books on more and more of its problem loans.

However, economist Warren Heller of Veribanc Inc. in Wakefield,

Mass., said earnings probably would erode.

Much of the profitability of the past two years has been driven by the unusually wide gap between short-term interest rates on deposits and long-term interest rates on loans.

That gap already has started to narrow and will continue to close this year, although not dramatically, Heller said.

"I think institutions can weather mildly rising rates ... but I just don't see any mechanism by which they're going to be able to earn at the same rate as they have the last two years," he said.

Thursday's report did not include the 63 failed S&Ls that are under the control of the Resolution Trust Corp., the government's S&L cleanup agency.

Whitewater rumors trip Wall Street

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Stocks slumped and interest rates rocketed higher in rumor-ridden financial markets Thursday.

Speculation about potential political problems ahead for the Clinton administration intensified when rumors related to the Whitewater affair swirled around Wall Street.

The Dow Jones industrial average lost 22.79 to 3,830.62 after recovering from a deficit of nearly 40 points.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index fell 1.56 to 3,577.22, and the Standard & Poor's 500 stock index dropped 3.16 to 463.90.

The Nasdaq Stock Market's composite index retreated 3.96 to 789.09. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index shed 2.04, closing at 464.75.

Declining issues swamped advances in the NYSE by about 13 to 6 where trading volume swelled from the previous session. Volume on the Big Board's floor came to 333.4 million shares as of 4 p.m. EST, up from 309.7 million on Wednesday.

The sell-off in stocks coincided with a sharp deterioration in the bond market as nervous traders responded to the Whitewater rumors and inflation concerns by bidding down prices, which pushed interest rates up. Near the end of trading, the Treasury's bond yield came down more than 1 1/2 points, driving up its yield to 6.96 percent from 6.83 percent late Wednesday.

CHANDONOR NO. 2441 AN ORDINANCE OF THE MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF TWIN FALLS, IDAHO, AMENDING SECTION 4-1.1 OF THE TWIN FALLS CITY CODE BY ADDITION OF THE UNIFORM BUILDING CODE, 1991 EDITION, AND PROVIDING FOR AN EFFECTIVE DATE. IT BE IT ORDERED BY THE MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF TWIN FALLS, IDAHO:

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

"It is better to lose the saddle than the horse."

Italian proverb.

Test yourself with the play of today's spade slam. Cover the East-West cards and plan the play after West's lead of the diamond king.

NORTH 24-A
A Q 7 5
K 9 4
A Q 10 7 3
WEST
K 9 7
K Q 10 2
J 8 6 2

The main threat in today's layout is overconfidence. The slam looks too easy. A typical careless approach is to win the diamond ace, draw trumps and run the clubs. However, when East discards on the club ace, this horse won't run and South must fall back on the heart finesse. It loses to West's king. West returns a diamond and South must lose another heart trick.

SOUTH
K 10 9 8
A Q 5 2
A 7
K 5
Dealer: South
The bidding:
South West North East
1 Pass 4 Pass
2 Pass 5 Pass
3 Pass 6 All pass

Had clubs split 3-3, the slam would have made with an overtrick. Against a 4-2 break, 12 tricks are easy after a club ruff (two heart discards) and a losing heart finesse. What beats the slam is the bad luck in both hearts and clubs, plus the failure to take a finesse that "can't lose."

BID WITH THE ACES
South holds:
NORTH
1 NT
2 NT
ANSWER: Three no-trump. The one-no-trump response promises 6-9 HCP and this hand is in the maximum range.

After drawing trumps and cashing the club king, South should lead a club to dummy's 10 when West follows low. If it loses, dummy's clubs are high and there is no need for the heart finesse. When it holds South enjoys two discards and the defenders get only one heart trick.
