Panel passes 'employer mandate'

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Six months after President Clinton proposed a plan to reform the nation's health system, members of a congressional subcommittee cast the first votes on health care reform Tuesday, voting narrowly to require employers to pay for insurance for their workers.

The House Ways and Means health subcommittee, launching what will be months of voting in four major committees and dozens of subcommittees, voted on a slimmed-down alternative to the Clinton plan written by Rep. Fortney "Pete" Stark, D-Calif., the subcommittee chairman.

The subcommittee voted 6 to 5 against a Republican amendment to kill the requirement that employers pay 80 percent of the costs of workers' insurance. The provision, called an "employer mandate," is the key feature of both Stark's and the president's plan, and it will likely face dozens of similar challenges before the issue is decided.

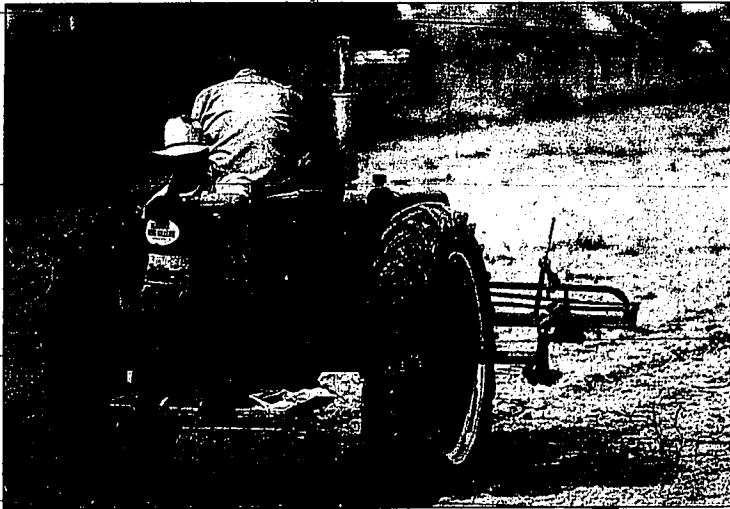

All but one of the Democrats on the subcommittee supported the employer payment provisions. Rep. Michael A. Andrews, D-Tex., joined four Republicans in favor of an amendment by Rep. Fred Grandy, R-Iowa, to strip the employer mandate from the bill.

"We should not put the burden of health care squarely on the backs of business, particularly small business," said Grandy. The employer mandate would destroy up to 1.2 million jobs, he said.

He argued that the nation should first try reform of insurance rules. But Rep. John Lewis, D-Ga., called efforts to kill the employer requirement "a dagger in the heart of the bill."

Stark said a bill without the mandatory provision "would draw a veto from the president" because the employer requirement is the only feasible way to achieve guaranteed coverage of all Americans — including the 39 million who lack insurance.

Preparation

With his 80th birthday on the horizon, Harold Sutterfield of Twin Falls said it was time to give up the practice of fertilizing his 2-acre field on foot. So, his younger brother, Roy, decided to give him a lift, on a kitchen chair fixed to the back of a tractor. The Sutterfields said the fertilizer is the first step in growing their much sought-after sweet corn.

Coyote hunting up in air

By William Brook
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE — Shooting coyotes from airplanes may be an old Idaho tradition, but aerial hunting of predators is on hold until the state Agriculture Department adopts new rules.

The Agriculture Department has revoked an aerial hunting permit for Bob Mathers of Wendell — and ordered that no more permits be granted.

Mathers' permit would have allowed him to shoot an unlimited number of coyotes from an airplane over the Bureau of Land Management's Shoshone District.

Mathers declined to comment on the matter, which he described as "not news."

The issue came to a head last week, on the eve of a threatened lawsuit by Ketchum attorney Debra Kronenberg. In an interview, Kronenberg said the department had violated Idaho law by not having a policy to regulate the issuance of aerial hunting permits.

Kronenberg acted on behalf of the Wood River Valley-based Committee for Rational Predator Management. The group, led by Kronenberg's boyfriend, Dan Casali, claims that private hunters shot at least 158 coyotes from airplanes in 1993; in 1991, the figure was 8.

Mathers' permit "was particularly troubling to us because it came in an area where we already had a pretty effective (predator control) plan; one that specifically restricted animal damage control activities to areas of high historic livestock losses," Casali said.

He said federal efforts to control coyote predation on livestock in the area were sufficient.

"If there's a demonstrated need, then a permit may be justified," he added. "If that's the case, the permit should be narrowly defined to meet

Committee endorses bill limiting state lease bids

The Associated Press

BOISE — An environmentalist is accusing lawmakers of tinkering with the procedure for leasing state lands so that only livestock producers can get the leases.

"It is nothing more than an attempt to prohibit the participation of most citizens of Idaho in the leasing of state land," said Jon Marvel, a Hailey architect.

But despite that testimony, the House Resources and Conservation Committee on Tuesday endorsed the bill setting up a new process for deciding who gets leases on state lands if there are competing bidders.

A vote by the full House could come later this week. The bill gives preference in lease renewals to ranchers who show they are following the land management plan filed with the state.

It's the Legislature's attempt to change a process used by Marvel last year in an ultimately unsuccessful bid for remove land from livestock grazing. Marvel wanted to show how a stream through the 640-acre parcel in Custer County could be improved if it were fenced and cattle kept out.

He told the committee his goal was to make sure state endowment lands are used to the benefit of education, not ranchers. Revenue from the lands is earmarked for public schools and the goal of their management is to maximize that cash return.

The Land Board first favored the bid of Marvel and his Idaho Watersheds Project but later reversed itself and granted rancher

Woman mimics Hemingway best

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — "Then she smiled," Bernice Richmond wrote.

"She did not have to smile. She did not have to lick her lips with that tongue, the kind that would not quit. What was she trying to do? Was this her way of being coy at 1 a.m., or was there a poppy seed caught in her teeth?"

Sound bad? You bet. Richmond became the first woman winner of the annual International Imitation Hemingway Competition.

Richmond, who owns a greeting card company in Westfield, N.J., said she used "divergent thinking" to mimic America's paragon of masculinity in a pithy passage titled "Here's To You."

"I can get into anybody's head," she said. The rules for the contest are simple: Send one really good page of really bad Hemingway. Be funny. Be Ernest.

"God only knew," Richmond's entry continued. "If there was a God. And if there was a God and He knew. He was not talking. And even if He did know and was talking, no one would have been listening. Not here. Not now."

Sunday sale of drinks on May ballot

By Sean L. McCarthy
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Shall the Twin Falls County Commission allow liquor by the drink sales on Sunday in Twin Falls County?

That question will be answered, oops or no oops, by county voters in the May 24 primary election.

"We will not miss it," County Commissioner Marvin Hempleman said Tuesday. Sunday liquor sales have been on county ballots at least twice before, most recently in 1990.

Due to an administrative mix-up, the November 1992 election ballots did not include the Sunday liquor sales issue. County Commissioner Jim Fraley said "oops" when he learned of the omission.

Hempleman and Twin Falls County Clerk Bob Fort said that the commission decided to put the question on the May ballot without any petition requirements to compensate for the 1992 mishap.

Legally, the question does not even need to go to a vote to gain county approval. Under state law, a county can allow Sunday liquor sales through an ordinance.

"We could just say yes or just say no," Hempleman said.

Because all three commissioners oppose the measure, they will not consider the ordinance without the support of county voters, he said.

"The commission will not make that decision on our own," he said. But even voter approval will not guarantee Sunday liquor sales, he said.

The ballot question is merely an "advisory" vote, meaning that the county commissioners can veto the voters' decision.

Stan Thomas, co-owner of the Rock Creek restaurant, and Mike Brock, manager of the Sandpiper Restaurant, are among those who have rallied for the right to sell liquor on Sundays.

Brock has said 1994's attempt will be a "low profile" campaign.

Party power wins

The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, one of Washington's premier power brokers, survived the toughest election challenge of his congressional career Tuesday to win the Democratic nomination for a 19th term.

Rostenkowski, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and a prime mover behind President Clinton's legislative agenda, was piling up a surprisingly strong 50 percent of the vote against four primary opponents. Pre-election polls had suggested a much closer race.

Spring springs a week early in some parts of nation

The Associated Press

Most of the nation enjoyed sunny skies and unseasonably warm weather Tuesday as winter gave way to spring a week early.

Rain fell on parts of the Northeast and Texas. In Hawaii, winds up to 60 mph knocked down trees and closed tourist attractions. About 20,000 West Maui residents lost power for more than an hour, the Maui Electric Co. reported.

Winds damaged 14 canyons in one Honolulu neighborhood, but no injuries were reported. Strong winds have battered the state since Sunday.

Weather summary

A strong upper-high-pressure ridge across Idaho Tuesday set the stage for another day of sunny skies and warm, record-breaking high temperatures.

Pocatello's 73 degrees set a new record for the date and 73 at Boise tied the record for the date both marks were set in 1934. Twin Falls set a record at 75, beating the 1934 mark by three degrees.

The main weather news Tuesday afternoon concerns warm temperatures, with record-setting 70s reported across southern Idaho from the Treasure Valley in the west to the upper Snake Valley in the east. Readings were in the 60s at valley stations across the rest of the state. Sunny skies prevailed with only variable high cloudiness reported. Brick breezes from the southwest, with speeds mostly 15 to 25 mph were also present in the valleys of southern Idaho, with light and variable winds elsewhere.

The highest temperature in the state Tuesday was 77 degrees at Rupert and Caldwell. Stanley reported the lowest at 9 degrees.

Elsewhere in the nation Tuesday, the highest temperature was 94 at Lake Havasu, Ariz., and Needles, Calif. Roseau, Minn., reported the lowest at 15 degrees.

On the mainland, a high pressure system over the central and western areas of the country raised temperatures nearly 20 degrees above normal in some areas. The mercury climbed in the 80s in the Southwest and into the 70s across much of the Gulf Coast and Southeast.

Elsewhere, a cold front made temperatures more seasonable in the northern and central Plains.

Rain and thunderstorms moved across south-central Texas and into southwestern Louisiana. Almost an inch of rain fell in six hours in Houston.

Light rain and snow fell on parts of the Great Lakes states. Rain and a few thunderstorms stretched from New York to Virginia.

Blaze cuts Los Angeles phone lines

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Emergency calls were blocked Tuesday when a fire at a switching office cut off a telephone service that routes up to 1 million calls an hour.

Outages apparently caused more frustration than life-threatening situations. With 911 service out, helicopters, fire trucks and police patrolled the city to look for emergencies.

The fire, caused by an electrical malfunction, broke out shortly before 1 a.m. at the downtown Pacific Bell building. As AT&T subcontractors worked on a unit that powers one of the West Coast's busiest switching offices, PacBell spokesman Gary Sanderson said.

Emergency service, knocked out in the San Fernando and San Gabriel valleys, was restored about 7 1/2 hours later. The fire affected mostly downtown customers trying to make local calls. Non-emergency service came around by afternoon.

"I can't even sign in. I can't get in to make reservations for our clients," said Mike Kobayashi, travel consultant at Karonaka-Samato Travel Agency. The company is so computer- and phone-dependent that it stopped using printed airline schedules.

At Haseko-Dunn, a property management company, spokeswoman Monica Butler read a newspaper because the phones were silenced.

N. Korea issues another threat

TOKYO (AP) — U.N. nuclear inspectors left North Korea on Tuesday without checking everything they wanted, and the Pyongyang regime threatened to halt inspections again over a dispute with Washington.

South Korean news reports said the inspectors were denied access to a radio chemical laboratory suspected of being used to extract plutonium, a key component of nuclear warheads. They also said inspectors discovered some seals on nuclear material containers were damaged.

North Korea stopped inspections of its nuclear facilities by the International Atomic Energy Agency a year ago, fueling worries it was trying to produce atomic weapons. The North Koreans denied working on such arms.

LaRocco wilderness bill draws fire at hearing

The Associated Press

Congressman Larry LaRocco was encouraged by the first legislative hearing on his new Idaho wilderness bill, despite criticism from the timber industry, environmentalists and recreation interests.

"After several years of work on this bill, I am delighted to begin moving it through the legislative process," the Idaho Democrat said after Tuesday's hearing in the House Subcommittee on National Parks, Forests and Public Lands. "The people of Idaho want this issue resolved, and I feel it's my responsibility to do that."

LaRocco predicted the subcommittee would approve some version of his bill, which now calls for setting aside 1.26 million acres of roadless land in Idaho's 1st Congressional District as wilderness. It also would designate 282,000 acres as "special management areas," where limited non-wilderness activities would be allowed.

In addition, the bill introduced Jan. 25 would release more than 3 million acres of roadless land in northern and western Idaho for multiple use according to national forest management plans.

But most of the groups at Tuesday's hearing opposed LaRocco's plan as protecting too much or too little land, not adequately protecting the state's timber jobs or not taking a broader "ecosystem" approach to wilderness.

The Idaho Conservation League's board of directors voted unanimously in January to "vigorously oppose" LaRocco's plan.

"Rep. LaRocco has attempted to take a much-needed leadership role on Idaho wilderness, but the National Wilderness System was created to preserve whole wildlands and wild waters," Conservation League President Michele Tac wrote recently. "Wilderness preservation doesn't work when only half a drainage or only the lower part of a stream are protected, as Rep. LaRocco proposes."

Idaho Conservation League lobbyist Melinda Harm said giving preference to current leaseholders "flies in the face" of the Land Board's mandate to obtain the highest possible return from millions of acres of state-owned lands by curtailing bidding.

The only committee members voting against the bill were Democrats Jim Stiochess of Sandpoint and Ken Robinson of Boise.

"It is illogical to say the only people who can lease 1.9 million acres are people who graze livestock," Robinson said. "It does interfere with the constitutional mandate to seek the highest return."

State Lands Director Stan Hamilton said if the bill becomes law, it will add another layer of administrative expense to the management of state lands. The department will have to determine whether a person or party who wants to lease grazing land is qualified under the bill.

Coyle's been a lot of tension over this," said Bruce Palmer, a state wildlife biologist based in Jerome.

"We don't have any input with the state Department of Agriculture," Palmer added. "They issue their permit and let the permittee go on their way."

"We'd rather see a federal agency that takes input on the way they operate their activities," Palmer said.

The intent behind the permits is to protect livestock from predators, but Kronenberg denounced them as rubber-stamp approval-for-sport hunters. Federal law prohibits sport hunting from aircraft, she said, "but this was carte blanche hunting anywhere, anytime."

"It's something people do for recreation," said Roger Woodruff, a state wildlife control specialist with the U.S. Agriculture Department in Boise. Aerial hunting of coyotes in Idaho has been going on for "umpteen" years, he added.

A federal animal damage control program has been developed for the BLM's Shoshone District, Woodruff said, noting that his agency only kills coyotes that are known to take livestock.

State-issued permits for aerial hunting are completely unrelated to federal predator control efforts, but the state permits are valid on federal lands, Woodruff said.

The upshot, Kronenberg charged, is an extremely complicated permit system.

"For the people who want a permit, there's no confusion," she said, "but for people who want to stop it, there's a tremendous amount of confusion."

Briefly

Shepherd heads county commission

MALAD — Civil engineer L. Wayne Shepherd has been appointed to replace D. "Toad" Bohm as an Oneida County commissioner. Gov. Cecil Andrus appointed Shepherd Tuesday to fill a commission vacancy created recently when Bohm moved from his district. Shepherd will serve the remainder of Bohm's term, until next January. Shepherd then plans to file for re-election. He has never held public office before, but he has worked with state and city governments on a variety of public works projects.

Ski area rezoning eases planning

WALLACE — Operators of the expanding Lookout Pass Ski Area now have one less governmental mountain to climb related to development. Shoshone County commissioners last week rezoned about 200 acres of U.S. Forest Service property that includes the ski resort. Under the old natural resource zoning, resort operators were required to obtain a conditional use permit from the county for development. Commissioners on March 9 rezoned the property rural commercial, negating the permit requirement. Under the new zoning, the resort operators will work directly with the Forest Service on development plans.

Recall plans must wait for 3 months

RATHDRUM — Attempts to oust two Rathdrum City Council members are futile because the officials are starting new terms, the city's attorney said. Rolife Watson said Monday under Idaho law city officials cannot be recalled until after serving at least 90 days. Council members Jack Hansson and Debbie Waddell were sworn in Jan. 11. Waddell is starting her second two-year term. Hansson was appointed to fill a vacancy in September 1992 and was elected to a four-year term in November. However, Watson said the three-month period begins at the start of the latest term. The drive to oust Mayor John Heistman, who is midway through his first four-year term, is possible, Watson said.

A dozen weapons found since Jan. 1

BOISE — Officials in Idaho's largest school district say they have confiscated more weapons from students in the past 2½ months than in the previous 18 years. In what he termed an alarming development, Interim Superintendent Tony Dennis told the Boise School Board Monday night that students have been caught with a dozen weapons since the year began. Most of the incidents were at junior high schools, he said. Dennis outlined a series of steps the district is taking to reduce the danger.

F&G considers policy revamp

COEUR D'ALENE — Idaho Department of Fish and Game officials are considering revamping a policy for employees using state property to move personal belongings. The issue ignited when the former Coeur d'Alene landlord of Fish and Game officer Mark Taylor complained he was using state-owned trucks to move himself out of a rental house. "It is clearly to me a violation of a code of ethics. That's stepping over the line," said Richard Burdette, Taylor's former neighbor and landlord. "We'll talk about it and get something in the policy," said Jerry Mallet, assistant Fish and Game director. "I can tell you I'll see that gets done so there's no confusion here and nothing that gives the appearance of being improper."

6 abuse victims meet with board

BOISE — Six women who alleged they were improperly touched by a teacher contend they were not allowed to air their charges during a closed Meridian School Board meeting. The women said they were victims of Jeffrey Dalling, a Meridian High School teacher now on administrative leave in the wake of a failed attempt to prosecute him. Sexual abuse charges for improper touching were dropped March 1 because Dalling's indictment last May was handed down by an Ada County grand jury whose term had expired. "We had a very emotional meeting with the School Board," Lesa Falfreyman Coleman, 24, said when the doors opened at 10:45 p.m. Monday. But she and the other women were unsure whether the meeting accomplished anything after the board adjourned to executive session to discuss matters of personnel and land acquisition.

Activist blasts U of I president

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Coeur d'Alene anti-tax activist Ron Rankin calls University of Idaho President Elisabeth Zinser a "left-wing, taxaholic eastern liberal" in a statewide fund-raising letter. Rankin, sponsor of the One Percent Initiative to cap property taxes, said the letter went out to as many as 20,000 households. He also threatened similar attacks on Idaho State University and Boise State University.

"We don't have the documentation on the others that we have up here," the Idaho Property Owners Association president said Monday. "This is just the start." Rankin accused Zinser of presiding over a university that has opposed gun ownership rights, promoted homosexuality and has become bloated with too much administration. He is collecting signatures in a bid to demand Idahoans receive preference for jobs in schools and colleges. And he wants legislators to cap state salaries at the governor's pay, $75,000. Zinser's salary is $124,550, tops on a list of 101 state employees who earn more than Gov. Cecil Andrus.

State Board of Education President Keith Hinkley of Blackfoot brushed off the letter as another of Rankin's antics. "You can go to any institution of higher learning and pick out cases where you'd find something to question," Hinkley said. "Certainly, I don't agree with some of the items he's singled out here. But on the other hand, I feel this is somewhat typical of the way Ron Rankin approaches his issues in trying to cast aspersions on other people."

Zinser has taken hits about her salary and the size of her administrative staff during five years in Moscow. And she said Monday that such criticism is fair. But she said Rankin's letter was distorted and aimed at raising money from people unable to verify its claims. Zinser learned of Rankin's letter through a southern Idaho social worker who found her 93-year-old client prepared to send Rankin $15. The client's monthly income was $600.

Woman complains of jail treatment

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — An investigation has begun into allegations of a woman who said she suffered a concussion while being booked into Kootenai County Jail. Bobette Bisher, 31, Spokane, Wash., has filed a complaint and said Monday she is considering a lawsuit over the incident following her arrest in Hayden March 8 for drunken driving.

Lt. Jeradine Riggs, a jail supervisor, said Bisher's allegations are being investigated. Riggs declined to comment on the allegations. Bisher said she was brought to the jail about 2:30 a.m. and remembers arguing with jailers about taking a breath-alcohol test. She said she awoke in a holding cell, bleeding, with two large bumps on her head.

Army alert for Muslim opposition

JERUSALEM (AP) — The army went on high alert to foil suicide attacks threatened Tuesday by Muslim fundamentalists on Jewish settlers, setting up roadblocks and clashing with Palestinians in Jerusalem and the Gaza Strip.

One Arab gunman was killed and a second wounded after ambushing a jeep.

The government also broadened its crackdown against anti-Arab Jewish extremists, hauling the founding father of the settlement movement, Rabbi Moshe Levinger, into court on a relatively minor two-year-old charge.

Thousands of right-wing supporters gathered in Tel Aviv to protest the government actions. They waved posters claiming Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin lacks the mandate to make concessions to the Palestinians.

The crowd booed opposition leader Benjamin Netanyahu when he called the Hebron massacre a crime but cheered when he said: "If we don't have the right to live in Hebron, we don't have the right to live anywhere in this country."

Demonstrators burned Palestinian flags and Israel television reported four people carrying anti-Arab Kach group posters were arrested.

Zhirinovsky says he should not be feared

MOSCOW (AP) — Former President Richard Nixon capped a politically charged visit to Moscow on Tuesday by meeting ultranationalist Vladimir Zhirinovsky, who swore the world has nothing to fear from him.

But the unusually conciliatory Zhirinovsky did warn of imminent political unrest in Russia and advised the United States not to get caught backing "radical democrats."

"Don't support the losers in the last elections, there's a future in it," Zhirinovsky said he had inscribed in a copy of his autobiography that he gave Nixon.

Reformers who support President Boris Yeltsin fared poorly in December's parliamentary election, while Zhirinovsky's party finished first.

"I don't want to be misunderstood by you," said the inscription in his autobiography. "The Last March South," that Zhirinovsky asked Nixon to give President Clinton along with a request for a meeting.

Zhirinovsky told reporters after his meeting with Nixon that his message to Clinton was, "Don't be afraid of me."

Russia registers low production

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia's staggering economy registered a new low last month when industrial production lagged a record 24 percent behind the level of a year ago. The decline in February output compared to year-earlier figures was the sharpest since the start of reforms in 1992, the State Statistics Committee said Tuesday.

There was a glimmer of good news: Last month's output rose 2.3 percent from January's depressed levels, and average daily production, adjusted for seasonal factors, increased 5 percent.

But the February decline compared to a year ago exceeded the previous record drop of 23.1 percent, set in January, the government statistics agency said.

Industrial production plunged 16.2 percent overall in 1993 after plummeting 18 percent in 1992. It fell 23.6 percent for the first two months of 1994, compared to the same period a year ago.

Inflation seen as temporary

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Led by surging food costs, inflation at the wholesale level jumped sharply in February.

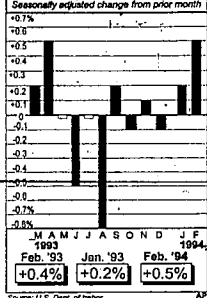

But analysts insisted the basic cost of living for Americans is only inching upward. Wholesale prices shot up 0.5 percent, the biggest jump in 10 months, the Commerce Department said Tuesday. But it attributed the rise almost entirely to higher energy costs led by soaring heating oil prices as thermostats were turned up to ward off winter's chill. "There's hardly any inflation there," said Michael Evans, head of U.S. Economics Inc. of Boca Raton, Fla. "The numbers were better than we expected. It's no secret, we had a cold winter. But the normal weather is back."

He said the report should ease pressure on the Federal Reserve Board to push interest rates up at its meeting next Tuesday. The Fed nudged short-term rates up a quarter percentage point to 3.25 percent in February, the first increase in five years.

In other news, the broadest measure billon imbalance in the final three months, the Commerce Department said. The report said the 1993 shortfall in the U.S. current account totaled $127.1 billion, the largest since a $127.2 billion deficit in 1988. An increase in the merchandise trade deficit accounted for most of the rise.

Also, the Fed said industrial production rose a modest 0.4 percent in February, slowed by the winter weather and California earthquake. It was the ninth straight advance.

A surge in automobile production accounted for most of the rise, offsetting declining factory production almost everywhere else.

In its survey of regional economic conditions released last week, the Federal Reserve Board said it found little evidence inflation is heating up.

Economists said Tuesday that since crude oil prices have dropped this month, volatile energy costs probably will decline in March as much as they rose in February.

The Commerce Department said the February increase in wholesale prices was due to a 2.8 percent increase for energy, the biggest advance since October 1990.

Idaho follows nation as bank profits soar

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The nation's commercial banks earned a record $43.4 billion last year, far surpassing the old record, and a top regulator said the industry's prosperity should continue this year.

In Idaho, profits rose to $1.39 billion from $1.23 in 1992, a 13 percent increase.

"It's very difficult to anticipate another record year... but I think we'll see earnings remain very solid," said Andrew C. Hove Jr., acting chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

FDIC said Tuesday that 1993 earnings marked a 36 percent improvement over the previous record of $32 billion, set in 1992, which was a 79 percent increase over the $17.9 billion earned in 1991.

In the fourth quarter, earnings totaled $11.1 billion, just shy of the $11.5 billion record set in the third quarter.

Analysts said banks could anticipate another good year in 1994 but in the long term, they face stiff competition from mutual funds and other non-bank rivals.

"They're eating the lunch of lots of banks, stealing their depositors... and sealing their loan customers with better rates and better service and more interesting products," said David C. Cates, chairman of Ferguson & Co., a consulting firm.

But 1993 was an extraordinary year for banks by almost any measure. Ninety-five percent of all banks reported profits, the highest share since 1980, and more than every third bank improved over 1992.

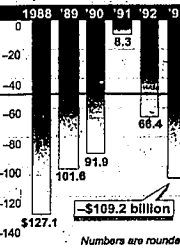

Return on assets, a standard measure of profitability, hit 1.21 percent, topping 1 percent for the first time since the FDIC began operating in 1934.

Loan losses totaled $17.5 billion, the lowest in six years. The industry's capital cushion exceeded 8 percent of assets for the first time since 1963.

U.S. current account

The current account balance, the broadest measure of the U.S. trade deficit, rose to its highest level in five years during 1993, as surging economies in Europe and Japan cut purchases of U.S. goods and an improving U.S. economy fueled American demand for foreign goods. ## Out-of-staters play big role in Idaho term limits fight

By Drew DeSilver
Times-News writer

BOISE — Most of the money raised by Idaho's term-limits campaign last year came from two out-of-state organizations; according to reports filed with the secretary of state's office.

Idahoans for Term Limits raised a total of $5,275 in 1993, the year it launched its effort to limit how long federal, state and local officials can hold office.

Of that amount, $2,500 came from U.S. Term Limits, a group based in Washington, D.C. that is backing term-limits efforts in eight other states this year. Another $1,000 came from the National Term Limits Association, a project of People's Advocate Inc., based in Sacramento, Calif.

Beau Parent, executive director of Idahoans for Term Limits, gave $650 to his own, cause, and Idaho Falls businessman Bill Shurtliff — who sits on the group's "board of advisors" — kicked in another $500.

Nearly all of the money raised — $4,571.04 — went to Parent for salary and expenses.

Idahoans for Term Limits is sponsoring an initiative that would prevent officials who have held office for a certain number of years from having their names printed on the ballot; the number of years varies with the office.

The same approach — restricting ballot access rather than flatly limiting terms — was used by backers of Washington state's term-limits initiative, which a federal judge has declared unconstitutional as applied to members of Congress.

Parent told The Times-News that the money raised and spent so far represents startup costs. As the term-limits campaign swings into full gear, Parent said, he expects most of the money will come from Idaho contributors.

But the national groups still will help. U.S. Term Limits has made a "challenge grant" to the Idaho group, Parent said, offering to match however much the Idahoans raised between early this year and Tuesday.

Parent declined Monday to say how much the group has raised so far in 1994. "We're where we want to be, but more than that I prefer not to say," he said. "You'll have to wait till our next report."

That report, covering January, February and March, is due April 30.

Parent estimated that the entire initiative campaign will cost between $75,000 and $100,000.

Palm prints of murder suspect found

By H.R. Weikel
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — The palm prints of a man about to have an arm amputated, and who is a suspect in a 24-year-old unsolved murder in Jerome, were found Monday among criminal records in French Camp, Calif.

The prints were taken in 1966 and have been sent to a Boise crime laboratory to determine if they match a print found on the victim's car, found in Des Moines, Iowa, after the murder.

The prints belong to Samuel Owens Barnett, 61, a suspect in the 1970 murder of Reuben Stohler, a Jerome dairy farmer who was found stabbed to death in his home.

In Colorado later the same month, Barnett was shot. He was paralyzed and eventually had his legs amputated as a result of the gunshot wound. His arm is scheduled to be amputated this month. Law enforcement officials had feared that the hand on that arm might match the palm print found on the murder victim's vehicle.

"Even if a match (of the palm print) might not be enough to charge Barnett. It would make him a suspect," said Dan Chatterton, Jerome County Sheriff's department investigating officer.

Barnett, however, is not the only suspect in the case. "We have a detective in California who is going to talk to Barnett, and know of a guy in prison in Arizona who knew something about this," Chatterton said.

Barnett said in a telephone interview that he had been in Twin Falls before the murder, but he said he had left before the murder took place.

"I left Twin Falls before the first of September and went to Butte, Montana, then to Idaho Falls and then to Colorado," he said.

Tracking the evidence and information available from the old files has been time-consuming, "but we're making progress," Chatterton said. A limited budget made getting some of the information difficult, he said.

"Associates of Barnett and Barnett himself used two or three names and Barnett used two social security numbers, so those people and criminal records are tough to find," Chatterton said.

According to law enforcement records, Barnett has an extensive and violent criminal record, stemming from 1950 to 1980 when he was arrested in Stockton.

Palm prints of another suspect living in Sunnyside, Calif., also are being obtained, Sheriff George Silver III said.

Anyone having information on roofing or painting jobs done by Barnett or his associates is asked to call the Jerome County Sheriff's office at 324-8844.

Chief clerk receives telephone threats

TWIN FALLS — The supervisor of a fired Twin Falls County clerk's employee has told police she received threatening phone calls.

In a report to the Twin Falls police, Sherri Broyles said two calls came early Sunday morning to her home. A third call came Monday afternoon to Broyles' office in the county judicial building.

The caller wanted Broyles to know that her family would be hurt if she "didn't stop this," according to the police report. Broyles said she did not recognize the male caller.

The Sunday calls came at 1:10 a.m. and 2 a.m. The Monday call came around 3:30 p.m., Broyles said.

Broyles, the chief deputy court clerk, would not comment on whether she thought the phone calls are related to the firing of Rose Solano.

Broyles supervised Solano in Twin Falls County court services. Solano recently lost her job after a closed disciplinary hearing.

County Clerk Bob Fort said Solano was fired for negligence, incompetence and carelessness of county property. Solano told The Times-News she will appeal her firing.

Broyles resigned after Solano was fired. She and Fort said the resignation was unrelated to Solano's firing.

Thief tries to take liquor, candy from Moose Lodge

TWIN FALLS — A booze and candy heist from the Moose Lodge apparently failed last weekend.

But a lodge official wrote in a complaint to the Twin Falls police that someone tried to take 40 bottles of liquor and several cases of candy bars sometime between last Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon.

When the Moose official entered the building at 835 Falls Avenue on Sunday afternoon, he found that the liquor and candy bars were missing.

The official wrote that the thief might still have been in the building when he entered. An upstairs room in the lodge had been dark, but when the man went downstairs and returned upstairs, he noticed that the room was light and the shelves had been drawn away from the window.

The man found the liquor bottles and candy bars outside the building.

Twin Falls man found with neighbors' stolen mail

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man was arraigned Tuesday on charges of grand theft and possession of stolen property by pilfering other persons' mail, according to 5th District Court documents.

Arnold Cemik, 27, 1239 Kimberly Road, faces a March 25 preliminary hearing on the charges.

According to Twin Falls police Detective Tim Miller's affidavit, mail belonging to five other tenants of the apartment building where Cemik lives was found in his apartment.

Among the mail was a money order that a former tenant was going to pay rent with, and a U.S. Treasury Department check for another tenant, Miller stated in the affidavit.

The apartment owner-manager reported seeing the mail in Cemik's apartment after entering it when he hadn't seen him recently. The manager said Cemik was two months behind on his rent, the affidavit states.

The manager, who said she had dated Cemik, went to the apartment wondering if he had left town, according to Miller's affidavit.

Besides the mail, a search of the apartment also turned up $206 in food stamps, a pipe and marijuana, the affidavit states.

Miller wrote that a Health and Welfare official said Cemik had not been issued food stamps and therefore was not supposed to have them.

Jerome mayor chooses Zimmerman as councilman

JEROME — The Jerome mayor has chosen Jeff "Buz" Zimmerman to fill a vacant seat on the City Council.

Zimmerman, 47, received a vote of approval from council members Dennis Moore, Eliza Hall and Charlotte Jacobson after Mayor Gerald Oster announced his appointment Tuesday.

Born in South Bend, Ind., Zimmerman came to Jerome at the age of five. He is a graduate of Jerome High School and the College of Southern Idaho, and he attended Boise State University.

Zimmerman has been director of Ridley's IGA store in Jerome for four years.

"Buz is a good guy. He will do well," store owner Jerry Ridley said upon hearing of Zimmerman's appointment.

He has also worked as director of Smith's Food King for eight years and as a Budweiser distributor in Twin Falls for three years.

Bill providing interpreters at public meetings dies

By Drew DeSilver
Times-News writer

BOISE — William Andrew wanted to attend a meeting of the Gooding City Council recently. But Andrew is deaf — in fact, he's president of the Idaho Association of the Deaf, as well as a math and government teacher at the state School for the Deaf and the Blind in Gooding.

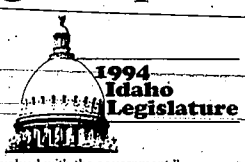

So, Andrew's daughter testified Tuesday, he went to the Gooding City Hall and asked if a sign-language interpreter could be made available. A city worker reportedly replied that "there was nothing pertaining to the deaf" on the agenda, and declined to arrange for an interpreter.

"My dad was going, 'How many taxes do I pay?'" LaVona Andrew told the House State Affairs Committee. "Like every other taxpayer, my father has the right to attend meetings and become involved with the government."

Gooding City Clerk Linda Wildman said the federal Bureau of Land Management of the alleged incident. In the three years she's been clerk, Wildman said, she can't recall anyone asking for an interpreter at a public meeting.

"We would get an interpreter for them if they asked," Wildman said.

But deaf people and their advocates used the Gooding case and similar incidents around the state to argue for a bill requiring public entities to pay for and make available interpreters at all public hearings and meetings, including court proceedings.

When interpreters aren't available, Janet Lancaster of Twin Falls said, deaf people cannot participate fully in public life.

The PTA has never given me an opportunity to be involved," Lancaster said through an interpreter. "They've either given me no interpreter or a crummy interpreter."

Lancaster told lawmakers her frustrations in arranging for an interpreter to work a January "town meeting" on health-care reform hosted by U.S. Sens. Larry Craig and Dirk Kempthorne.

She originally asked for two interpreters, because signing for extended periods of time can be tiring and damaging to the hands and arms. But the senators agreed to pay for only one interpreter for two hours, although they later extended it to three.

'Like every other taxpayer, my father has the right to attend meetings and become involved with the government.'

— LaVona Andrew, hearing witness

In contrast, Lancaster said, the Twin Falls City Council has provided interpreter services for about two years, following a recommendation made by an advisory committee on which Lancaster served.

"In fact, their example would be ideal for any city that is panic-stricken over this," she said.

Pet owners could face charges for creating a public nuisance

By Sean L. McCarthy
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — People who let their dogs and other animals create a "public nuisance" in county parks may be charged with a misdemeanor.

The county parks advisory commission has sent such an ordinance to the county commissioners for final consideration. The ordinance replaces a proposal to ban dogs from county parks altogether.

The revised ordinance was the result of four months of debate and haggling among dog owners, parks commission members and county residents.

Nuisance activities include the following, according to the parks commission:

- Running at large.
- "Molesting" park visitors.
- Unaccompanied waste left in the park.
- Urinating on park fixtures.
- "Frequent, continuous or untimely barking."
- Harming other animals.

The ordinance would apply specially to Rock Creek Park and Centennial Park, but could be applied to other parks at the discretion of the parks commission.

Misdemeanors are punishable by up to six months in jail and a $300 fine.

In other business Monday, two local entrepreneurs asked the parks commission if they could dock "a floating restaurant" at the county's Centennial Park.

Jeff Capps and Robert Myrland said the restaurant would weigh anchor once daily from Centennial, taking 10 to 15 dining passengers up the Snake River to Pillar Falls and back, according to parks employee Jimmy Nice.

Nice said the matter needs to be referred to the federal Bureau of Land Management, which holds lease with the county for Centennial Park.

Myrland and Capps could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

The parks commission also decided Monday to begin revisions on a master plan for the county's parks. The existing plan dates back to 1969.

Murder suspect caught in front seat

By Phil Sahm
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Police thought it unusual when they drove by Theisen Motors shortly after midnight Tuesday and saw a man waving at them from the front seat of a car on the lot.

When they found a loaded gun and burglar tools on him, the man was arrested, according to a Twin Falls police report.

Tuesday, Mark S. Carlson was arraigned on a charge of felony burglary and misdemeanor charges of carrying a concealed weapon and possessing burglar tools.

Carlson, 1470 Raniff Drive, Jerome, pleaded innocent to the misdemeanor charges, but court records showed no plea on the burglary.

In a Twin Falls police report, Carlson wrote that he saw two people "messing" with a Honda on the Theisen Motor lot at 701 Main Ave. E. Carlson wrote that he walked toward them to see what they were doing.

The two people retreated to a nearby alley, and when he walked up to the car, its door was ajar, Carlson wrote. He sat down on the car's front seat and that's when two police officers drove by.

"I flagged them down" by waving, Carlson wrote.

But after searching him, the officers found a loaded .357 Ruger handgun, wire cutters, pliers, an adjustable wrench, two cardboard cutters and a right-hand glove. Officer Matt Hicks wrote in an affidavit.

Carlson said he carried the loaded weapon for protection, according to Hicks' affidavit.

The officers also said they found a screwdriver under the front seat and that the car-stereo support was on the vehicle floor.

City audits treatment plant

By H.R. Weisel
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — An audit of the Jerome waste-water treatment plant has been completed, but results won't be released until next month.

Auditors, called in by the City Council to determine possible mismanagement, completed an inspection at the plant Friday.

The treatment plant was upgraded this year to handle increased waste from residential and industrial sources. Neighbors of the plant, located on the east edge of town, complained of strong odors coming from the sludge holding ponds.

"That problem was solved when we got all the equipment up and working," plant manager Bill Taylor said.

'The operators say if they put the sludge thickener on line it will smell. The manufacturers say it won't smell.'

— Larry Paine, city administrator

City administrator Larry Paine said he thought the auditors would find the plant operators reluctant to turn on a sewage sludge thickener.

"The operators say if they put the sludge thickener on line it will smell. The manufacturers say it won't smell," he said.

The auditors looked at management procedures, staffing, reporting, safety, training, standard operating and process control procedures, maintenance, sample collection, laboratory testing and quality assurance. Sludge management, pretreatment practices used by industrial businesses, and energy conservation were also audited.

"From my point of view, we have some technical problems we need to fix," Paine said. "And this audit should come up with some solutions."

Professional Services Group, from Houston, Tex., was hired by the city council to conduct the audit at a cost of $1,500. The audit company was one of three businesses the city had talked to about hiring a year ago when the council was considering hiring a private company to handle the waste water treatment plant. The proposal was rejected by the council.

3 road projects slow driving, Perrine will see more light

By Mick Normington
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Construction begins today on the widening of Idaho 25 between Rupert and Paul — one of three major road construction projects starting up.

Other projects slated to start soon include a new turning lane on Idaho 75 north of Hailey, and lighting installation on the Perrine Bridge near Twin Falls.

Workers from Bannock Paving Inc. of Pocatello have the $1.73 million contract to reconstruct Idaho 25 from today through late August. They will widen and resurface the cracked and rutted road on a 4.5-mile section. The half-mile section in front of Minico High School will be completely reconstructed. And drivers can expect delays due to the construction with lanes closed.

The reconstruction is necessary to rehabilitate the road and to help trucks turn onto the county roads along Idaho 25, said Scott Malone, engineer for the state Transportation Department.

Also, construction begins April 1 on rehabilitating the Perrine Bridge. Crews from Ralph E. Wadsworth Construction in Salt Lake City have the $570,000 contract to rehabilitate the bridge.

Work on the Perrine Bridge will last as long as late August, with one lane of the bridge closed for the summer.

The metal deck joints on the driving surface of the bridge will be replaced with new joints that will be covered in a rubber-like substance, said Bill Merritt, state engineer on the project.

The Perrine Bridge was built in 1976 and is one of the largest steel arch bridges in North America, spanning 993 feet.

Motture from the Snake River below the bridge is rusting the joints and support structure under the bridge, Merritt said. So construction crews will remove and replace rusted parts, paint the bridge, repair some of the older welds, replace the railings and add extra supports.

They will also add eight street lights to the Perrine Bridge. Street lights will be installed from Pole Line Road up Blue Lakes Boulevard and across the bridge.

Merritt said Twin Falls residents had asked the Transportation Department for lights on the bridge about four years ago.

Also, construction crews from Valley Paving in Bellevue will on May 1 begin constructing a new turning lane on Idaho 75 just north of Hailey.

Merritt said his $307,000 project should take two months to complete and will include widening the road for a one-mile stretch, which will service the Flying Heart subdivision. Flying Heart residents contributed $75,000 to the project.

Activist challenges conviction

The Associated Press

POCATELLO — Anti-nuclear activist Bill Chisholm of Buhl wants a fair-chance-to appeal his conviction for splashing red paint on a shipment of radioactive waste on its way to the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

Chisholm, 47, of Buhl, represented himself Tuesday in oral arguments before the three-judge Idaho Court of Appeals. He is challenging his conviction, and $360 fine on a charge of malicious injury to property, arguing that he was denied the right to present a "necessity defense."

Chisholm said he had no choice but to throw a bucket of paint on the trainload of spent Navy reactor fuel as it rolled through Pocatello in the pre-dawn hours of Oct. 23, 1991.

"My heart and soul, I felt like the federal government was coming down the throats of the people of the state of Idaho in an act of tyranny, and I had to do something," Chisholm told the judges.

The waste was on its way to the INEL's Naval Reactors Facility.

Idaho was waging a court battle against the federal government at the time. The state was trying to convince a judge to ban more than 250 scheduled shipments of Navy waste to the site until the government completes an environmental study of all radioactive waste at the INEL.

Nearly a year after Chisholm's protest, a federal judge ruled in Idaho's favor and ordered the government to conduct the study. The state then agreed last summer to allow the Navy to bring in 19 more shipments before the study is completed to satisfy national security concerns.

Chisholm wants his necessity defense to be heard by a 6th District Court jury. He argued Tuesday that he should be allowed to call expert government witnesses to prove his action was needed to call attention to the health and environmental threats he contends nuclear waste poses for Idaho.

Challis heads for boom as mines open

The Associated Press

CHALLIS — Central Idaho has a boom-and-bust economy hinging on mining, and it is headed into its boom cycle.

Only a year ago, Challis residents watched Cyprus Minerals close its Thompson Creek molybdenum mine near Clayton, which represented 60 percent of the local economy.

Today, the Cyprus-Coeat is gearing up for a new mining influx.

Thompson Creek Metals, a Denver company which purchased the Cyprus mine, plans to be in production by April 1. The mine, which Cyprus shut down in late 1992, was purchased by Denver businessman and former Cyprus employee E. Steven Mooney.

Construction at Hecla's Grouse Creek gold mine project north of Sunbeam also is on schedule.

By next fall, each mine will employ about 150 miners in Custer County.

"We haven't felt the impact would be anywhere near what it was the first time when Cyprus opened," said Custer County Commissioner Ted Strickler. "But I don't think we're going to be able to know what the impact's going to be."

'My concern is that we have people coming in here who can take care of themselves.'

The Cyprus mine opened in the early 1980s as hundreds of workers, and modular homes to house them, arrived in town. Many of the homes were shipped out because workers refused to purchase them. Now there is an extreme housing shortage.

"I get calls daily for rentals," real estate agent Peggy Wilson said. "It's a sad day. There just aren't any."

She felt so sorry for one man paying $900 per month for a motel room that she rented him a bomb shelter on her ranch.

Challis School Superintendent John

Brock also is trying to guess the impact of the coming boom.

"This mining game is new to me," Brock said. "We're looking for every conceivable way to find out who's coming when. There are so many variables, it's impossible to plan."

Brock had to lay off teachers last spring when enrollment dropped by about 90 students.

Some of those laid off by Cyprus and now working at Thompson Creek went as far as Alaska and Nevada to find work last summer. Schaefer said about half of the employees working so far are former Cyprus employees.

Beyond the housing problem, Strickler is concerned the upturn might attract more people than there are jobs available, and some might end up taxing the county's welfare programs.

"My concern is that we have people coming in here who can take care of themselves," he said.

The company plans to market 1 million pounds of molybdenum, a steel additive, per month worldwide.

Term limits

U.S. Term Limits has also offered to help defray the expenses of volunteer petition-circulators from the Idaho chapter of United We Stand America, the political-reform group founded by Ross Perot.

Under the plan, U.S. Term Limits would pay the volunteers 20 cents per signature. UWSA has not yet decided whether to accept the offer.

UWSA members, many of whom have experience passing petitions to put Perot on Idaho's 1992 presidential ballot — are doing most of the actual signature-gathering for the term-limits initiative.

According to Paul Jacob, executive director of U.S. Term Limits, the group has budgeted $5 million to assist state and local term-limits movements across the country, as well as lobby for term limits in Congress and educate voters about candidates' positions on term limits.

Besides Idaho, the group is supporting initiative campaigns in Alaska, Illinois, Maine, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Nevada, Oklahoma and Utah. It is also providing legal assistance to term-limits initiatives in Washington, Arkansas and Nebraska that are facing court challenges.

People's Advocate has also been involved in numerous term-limits campaign across the nation, as well as California's 1990 term-limits initiative. The group has also backed California measures to permit school vouchers, limit legislators' retirement benefits, and declare English the state's official language.

Sid Novaresi, president of People's Advocate, said the group would continue backing Idahoans for Term Limits, if it is asked to do so.

"We intend to support them with funds when necessary," Novaresi said.

Interpreters

and other governmental entities said it would be too difficult and expensive to have interpreters available at every meeting, whether or not any hearing-impaired people were attending.

"The city of Boise supports meaningful access, but we are not interested in providing that accessibility when it has not been requested and is not needed," said Boise city attorney Amanda Horton.

Lobbyists for local governments also cite the shortage of qualified interpreters in Idaho — most of whom, interpreter Valerie Sturm of Twin Falls said, live in the Magic Valley.

In the end, the panel voted to kill the bill, saying it went too far too fast.

"There definitely is a need, but this isn't the bill we need," said Rep. Jim Stoecheff, D-Sandpoint, who nonetheless called the Gooding incident "the most ridiculous thing I've ever heard."

He and other committee members encouraged cities and counties to work with members of the deaf community to come up with a bill they all could support.

It may be one of those bills that takes a couple of years to get all the nuts and bolts tied down," said Rep. Ron Black, R-Twin Falls. Black, who sponsored the bill on behalf of the hearing-impaired community, has been deaf in his left ear since birth.

Police enter wrong trailer

LEWISTON (AP) — Karen Stapp had just gotten out of bed and begun her morning routine when she heard a loud bang at her front door and then had a flashlight shine in her face.

"I had just gotten up and sat on the pot and that's where they found me," the 48-year-old Lewiston trailer park resident said. "I probably holed the wrong thing, I'm on the pot!"

Stapp lives in No. 18 in the trailer court. The police had a search warrant for No. 184, the home of an alleged drug dealer. "They said they were sorry," Stapp said Monday.

Bill withdrawn amid charges critics undermined it with lies

BOISE (AP) — Accusing conservationists of undermining his bill with lies, Sen. Denton Darrington-Tuesday-withdrew the legislation allowing companies to conduct internal environmental reviews and then keep the findings confidential.

"I thought this would be a useful tool," the Declo Republican told the Health and Welfare Committee. "But the paranoia got going and half truths and untruths were spread."

Opponents, including the state Division of Environmental Quality, claimed the bill would allow documents that might indicate environmental violations be hidden not only by private companies, but by government agencies like the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

1994 Idaho Legislature

John Ledger of the Division of Environmental Quality warned the bill could have prevented his agency from obtaining documents through the courts.

But Darrington called those charges exaggerated, maintaining the same information that is accessible now would remain accessible under his bill.

"I think it was in the best interests of all," Darrington said.

It was never my intention to give the industry a black eye. But, there are those who would sooner have police actions than cooperate."

Darrington and his allies said the bill would have encouraged businesses and government agencies to evaluate their compliance with regulations — something they are not inclined to do now because they do not want the findings made public.

Fortune cookies get a new age update

Don't be surprised if you start finding new-age messages in your fortune cookies. Keefer Court Food, a Minneapolis company, is taking fortunes on a great leap forward, to the 21st century. Instead of old fortunes that claimed to impart some wisdom from Confucius or would simply predict success in business or love, the new-generation fortunes offer a wide variety of messages and subjects. Recent examples: "You are ready for a paradigm shift," and "Seven days without laughter will make you weak."

Cook traditional corned beef thoroughly before serving

To help you avoid turning green on St. Patrick's Day, federal health officials remind you to properly cook the traditional corned beef before eating it. It should be piping hot — steaming — says the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Corned beef that is not served immediately after cooking should be divided into small pieces, placed in shallow pans and chilled rapidly, the CDC says. Before serving, it should be reheated to an internal temperature of more than 165 degrees.

Ireland trip awaits winning descriptions of Guinness

The contest sounds easy: Describe your perfect pint of Guinness stout and you may win your very own Irish pub. But the contest, sponsored by the Guinness company, has a catch. The week of May 15, the 10 U.S. finalists (age 21 or older) will be flown, all expenses covered, to Connolly's Pub in Cogh, County Cork, to compete (here's the catch) in a second set of contests, lasting a week. Among them are pint pouring (hitting the glass is recommended), darts and "other pub games," says a spokesman.

There's still another catch. The spokesman says the 10 finalists must also give "an oral essay." (No word on whether this will be after consuming a pint of Guinness, but it stands to reason.) A panel including reputable Irish publicans will judge; the winner will receive title to Connolly's pub.

If the grand prize winner can't take title to the pub, he or she may accept a substitute award of $107,000. Essays of 50 words or less must be postmarked by March 24 and addressed to Guinness Win Your Own Pub Contest, PMI Station, P.O. Box 3575, Southbury, Conn. 06488-3575.

Coffee goes the way of tea: It now comes in a small bag

In case you haven't noticed, the most convenient idea in coffee bags, which are just like tea bags only ... well, you know.

Maxwell House's Filter Pack Singles, for instance, are filled with a mixture of ground coffee and instant coffee. Another line, Cafe de Todd Gourmet Coffee Singles, is made entirely from ground coffee, with no instant; so it's more aromatic when you open the foil packet. Neither will replace espresso, but there are a lot of occasions (such as hiking) where you can't exactly carry an espresso machine.

In supermarkets ... Which has more caffeine — coffee or cappuccino? While ounce for ounce, espresso (used to make cappuccino) has about twice the caffeine of coffee, serving for serving, they're nearly the same, says McCall's magazine. Depending on the type of beans and manner of brewing, a cup of coffee contains 60 to 180 milligrams of caffeine; a serving of cappuccino (1.5 ounces of espresso plus 3 ounces of steamed milk) contains a 90- to 150-milligram wake-up call.

Mascarpone or fromage blanc — learn how to make cheese

If the idea of making your own cheese has ever occurred to you, you'll find this catalog fascinating. It offers kits for making simple things like mascarpone (the rich tiramisu cheese) or fromage blanc (for the luscious French dessert coeur à la creme), on up to hard cheeses like Cheddar, Stilton or even Swiss — complete with holes. (Hard cheeses require much more commitment; you've got to get a cheese press, which runs $199.95.) There are also starters and equipment for making yogurt, kefir, creme fraiche and buttermilk. "Catalog of Supplies for Cheese Making" catalogue is $1.50 from New England Cheesemaking Supply Co., 85 Main St., Ashfield, Mass. 01330-0085.

Magic Valley vineyards hit their stride

By Steve Crump
Times-News writer

GLENN FERRY — March dips its cup into the Snake River, and smiles.

It'll be months until the spindly vines along the river will yield Carmela Vineyards '94, but already the thermals are rising in one of the heat pockets that make winemaking in the Magic Valley possible.

"In some ways, it's like the winemaking areas of Germany, where they produce the great rieslings," says Scott Benham, chief winemaker at Carmela.

That's a tough sell on a day like today.

Not 50 yards from a row of vines lurks a knot of sagebrush as big as a pickup truck, and if the river has a spring flood in mind, it hasn't showed up yet. And yet, nine different varieties of grapes grow along its banks here. After they crush the grapes, they win prizes.

"In some ways it's the ideal place to raise to raise wine grapes," says Benham, a graduate of the agriculture school at the University of California-Davis, which is in the heart of the greatest winemaking area in North America. "It's not the Napa Valley, but it's a lot like (Eastern) Washington, where I grew up. I don't know what it's like to make wine anywhere else but in the desert."

Peter Schott has Carmela's chardonnay and cabernet sauvignon on his Boise restaurant's menu — on the top half, along with a riesling from Rose Creek of Hagerman and 17 other Idaho labels. He makes no apologies for showcasing Idaho wine, although he also sells 145 labels from all over the world.

"I'm proud to serve it because it's of an excellent quality," said the Austrian-born Schott, perhaps Idaho's most famous restaurateur. "But it's also an Idaho product, and that's important."

Twenty years ago, when I was in Sun Valley, everything we got was frozen and came from someplace else," he said. "But today you can buy everything from shiitake mushrooms to buffalo steaks to fresh creamery butter to wines that are produced right here in the state. That's important to me, because my customers don't come into my restaurant looking for continental cuisine. It's an Idaho restaurant, and they come looking for cuisine from Idaho."

"Our industry basically sells to Idahoans," said Brad Pintler, a Canyon County winemaker and chairman of the Idaho Grape Growers and Wine Producers Commission. "St. Chappelle (the Canyon County winery owned by the family of former U.S. Sen. Steve Symms) is in 35 to 38 states and three or four foreign countries, but the fact is that most Idaho wines don't have that exposure. Most of us depend on the tastes of Idaho wine drinkers."

How many oenologists, connoisseurs and just plain wine-sippers there are in Idaho is anybody's guess, but the state's production has doubled since the late '70s. There are now 13 wineries producing 750 acres of grapes.

That's less than the size of a big eastern Idaho grain farm, but most of the producers, like Carmela and Rose Creek, don't aspire to be Ernest and Julio Gallo.

"We're never going to be in the same league in terms of production as St. Chappelle, and we don't want to be," said Jamie Martin, winemaker and president of Rose Creek. "We want to be a good, small winemaker."

According to Schott, Rose Creek is well on its way. "I went down to visit them a while back, and I tasted a chardonnay that was wonderful," he said. "Wonderful, fruity clean taste — that's what good Idaho wines do so well."

Rose Creek is celebrating its 10th anniversary this

Scott Benham, Carmela Vineyards' chief winemaker, keeps track of the aging vintages at the Glenns Ferry winery.

Love in a cold climate

How can you raise wine grapes in Idaho's high desert?

Because grapes are tougher than they look, says Scott Benham, head winemaker at Glenns Ferry's Carmela Vineyards.

"Grape vines can handle temperatures down to minus-16, and they can handle cold weather over a long period," he said. "It's only when you get minus-30 that you start losing a lot of vines."

The grapes themselves are vulnerable to spring and summer frosts, but they tend to be planted in well-protected areas, Benham said.

"A lot of research goes into where you plant a vineyard in Idaho," he said.

Then again, the largest majority of Idaho wine grapes are white, which are harder than their red cousins. White grapes make a wine industry possible in the lower Rhine River valley of Europe, which is at the same latitude as Edmonton.

year, and it's achieved steady growth by doing a few things at a time.

"We're learning to make better wine all the time," Martin said.

Like Carmela, Rose Creek had some early success with wine critics, winning awards at competitions, earning a niche with distributors and some out-of-state markets.

But because of the unique geology of the Hagerman Valley, Martin is convinced the best is yet to come.

Rose Creek's vineyards are both sheltered and warmed by the lava flows of the Snake River Canyon, which makes for both a longer growing season and a unique distribution of heat patterns.

"I think our '93 riesling was the best we've ever had because of the cool summer," Martin said.

Volcanic soil, in which most Idaho vineyards are planted, makes for good drainage and a well-developed root system, Pintler explained.

"There's a distinctive taste to Idaho wines that's not quite the same as wines from anywhere else," he said. "It's fruity — not too sweet, but you can taste the grapes."

Tasting the grapes got Frank Hegy into the commercial wine business five years ago, with a winery south of Twin Falls. But South Hills Vineyard is more a work of love than commerce.

"It helps that I have a successful business doing Please see WINES/C3

We know. The last thing a teen-ager wants is for an adult to start yacking about nutrition and what you ought to be eating and blah blah blah. Boring!

So we'll restrain our urge to lecture and instead just share some information from experts that may be new to you — and to your parents. That way, the more you know, the smarter your food choices will be.

In talking with teens about food, a few things come up over and over again:

You tend to skip breakfast, either because you get up too late to eat it or it just doesn't appeal to you. Or you think it will make you fat.

You don't like to eat lunch at the school cafeteria — it's what little kids do, and you don't like the food.

You eat at McDonald's, Pizza Hut, Taco Bell, Burger King and other fast-food palaces or mall food courts a lot.

A lot of you are really concerned about being thin, and you may see yourselves as fat, even if you're not. Some of you are becoming vegetarians, not because of concerns about your health but as a statement about animal rights.

We'll come back to all of these issues later, with some notions and some tips. First, though, take a look at these facts on teens and growth.

Food is especially important between the ages of 10 and 18 because that's when your body is growing in high gear.

During puberty — the five- to seven-year span when your body changes from that of a child to that of an adult — you'll gain about 50 percent of your eventual adult body weight. The only other time you grew so fast were as a developing fetus inside your mother's uterus and during infancy, the first year of your life.

Figuring that she'd know more about the than just about anybody we called Sassy magazine senior writer Marjorie Ingall, who's in charge of the Body Talk column in the magazine.

something else," he said. "I think if you have to make a product, you don't do it as well as if you want to make it."

Hegy has two acres of his own grapes and buys the other grapes he needs from a grower in Kuna. He produced 1,200 gallons last year — less than half of what Rose-Creek and Carmela generated.

"We market the wine in Twin Falls and in gift shops throughout the southern part of the state, and we have some specialty customers, like Catholic churches," he said. "But it's very tough for me to get shelf space because I don't have a distributor."

He also doesn't have the rock sentinels of the Snake River Canyon looking after his grapes, as Rose-Creek and Carmela do.

"But I like to think we excel in making the wine."

Despite his modest production, Hegy produces five different kinds.

"It started as a hobby," he said. "I

Calcium really does grow stronger bones

Calcium is a critical nutrient when you're a teenager because that's when you're growing your bones. The stronger your bones are, the better they'll support you through the rest of your life and the less the chances you'll wind up with osteoporosis.

The two best ways to build strong bones are to eat enough calcium and get enough exercise.

Girls from 11 to 24 need 1,200 milligrams a day of calcium, an amount that "would take some planning," says Sheah Rarback.

For example, a cup of milk has 314 mg. An 8-ounce container of low-fat vanilla yogurt has 280 to 300 mg. A 1-ounce slice of Swiss cheese has 400. An orange (did you know?) has 52.

So you see that dairy products are a good source of calcium; skim-milk packs a lot of nutrients without fat. One percent milk is the next best choice. Or, eat nonfat or low-fat yogurt, (including frozen), ice milk or nonfat ice cream or lower-fat cheeses.

You can also drink calcium-fortified orange juice. (They have just come out with calcium-added Hawaiian Punch and calcium-added Sunny Delight drinks; nutritionists would say OJ is a better choice than a sugary fruit drink.)

Though Sassy gets a lot of letters from teens who are worried about being fat, says Ingall, 26, "We don't ever run-diet stories. Ever. Or exercise for the sake of exercise stories."

That would just feed the obsession, and it's easy enough for teens to get obsessive about their looks, comparing themselves with models and actresses and buying into the whole cult of thinness.

At Sassy, editors try to put looks into perspective and present exercise as something that you do for fun.

Here's what the experts say about some typical teen eating habits:

• Skipping breakfast: One big reason for not eating breakfast is that teens think it'll make them gain weight or make them hungry the rest of the day. No way! Eating breakfast has actually been linked to weight loss or weight control in studies.

Remember, says Rarback, that breakfast "doesn't have to be a bowl of cereal. It can be anything that's appealing." And eating something — a banana, a cheese sandwich, a slice of leftover pizza, even — "lets you make better food choices at lunch because you're not starving."

• Skipping lunch: Teens aren't exactly boosters of school cafeteria food, so those who can leave campus at lunch usually do, heading for whatever fast food place is closest or in favor of the moment.

If that's your usual lunch, stop and think for a minute about what you order. Consider this rundown from Rarback: Specialty burgers — double or triple patties of beef, cheese and creamy sauces — are very high in fat. Fast fattening options would be a plain burger (about 260 calories), a side salad with low-fat dressing or a baked potato (no melted cheese).

do it because I enjoy it, and because I have friend who enjoy it."

But Hegy's operation is very much the exception in that respect. Most of the other Idaho winemakers are looking at much bigger commercial possibilities.

"We think the Glens Ferry area and the Magic Valley area has a lot of potential for wine-making," he says. "We have the climate, the expertise and the grapes."

But Hegy says grapes, in general, are the biggest problem for Idaho winemakers.

"That's the concern I hear from other winemakers that I talk to," he said. "We just don't pay attention to the quality of the grapes like they do in some other areas."

"Ours is in industry with generally young vineyards," Pinter said. "We don't know yet how good we can be."

• After-school snacking: By 3 p.m., you'll be hungry, especially if you skipped lunch. So eat what appeals to you, suggests Rarback. "A snack is just something you eat between meals. It isn't defined by the type of food it is."

How about a yogurt? A shake you make at home with frozen yogurt, skim milk and fruit or chocolate syrup? Fruit? A cheese sandwich?

Talk it over with your mom, so she can buy stuff you'll eat. Maybe some ready-made fruit salad. Maybe leftover pasta that you can nuke and eat with some grated cheese.

Food is a better source of nutrients than pills are, but sometimes vitamins are a good idea.

Says Rarback: "Eating well is absolutely the first choice, the first recommendation, but if someone's going through a time when they're not eating well... then it might be an alternative. Take a multiple vitamin with "added iron."

But remember, it's not a substitute for food.

If you get a grip on fat in your diet, you don't have to make yourself crazy counting calories. To teach yourself more about it, check out one of the magazines that emphasizes lower-fat eating, such as Cooking Light (it focuses on fitness, too) or Eating Well.

Here are some other things to know:

- Turkey breast or chicken breast is a better sandwich stuffer than high-fat bologna or salami. Watch out for tuna salad, too; the mayo adds a lot of fat.

- Choose a low-fat or light dressing at the salad bar. A big ladle of blue cheese or Thousand Island can make a good-for-you salad into a fat-packed disaster.

Because of whistle-blower's law, no reason to run and hide

DEAR ABBY: My employer is being sued for sexual harassment, I, and at least a dozen other employees, must give a deposition very soon. We have discussed whether or not to tell what we have seen for fear of losing our jobs. Many of us would like to be the company atmosphere improve, but we are afraid to come forward.

The executives, from the top on down (including the head of personnel), have harassed some women and created a hostile environment here. The woman who is suing was terminated for refusing to have relations with some of the top male executives.

I have recently heard there is a law in Florida called the "whistle-blower's law," which supposedly protects an employee who has reported an employer for sexual harassment. Can you tell me if there really is such a law?

- FEARFUL IN FLORIDA
DEAR FEARFUL: I had never heard of the "whistle-blower's law," but my staff called the Florida Department of Labor and Employment Security Office in Tallahassee, and we told there is, indeed, such a law. However, I suggest that you talk with a lawyer before you blow any more whistles.

DEAR ABBY: Most fast-food places have a policy about pets brought into their establishment: It's OK if the pet is on a leash. My fiancé and I brought our pet iguana into an establishment in Chula Vista. He was on a leash and wasn't bothering anyone.

Dear Abby

This place had a sign up that said, "No dogs allowed unless accompanied by a disabled person," but it didn't say anything about other pets on a leash, so we assumed it was OK. When we walked in and ordered, nothing was said. It was like, "Let them order, take their money, and as soon as they sit, deliver the message about their iguana." We were told the other customers were feeling uneasy about our pet. We were asked to sit outside.

I saw this guy on television walking the streets and beaches of Los Angeles with an iguana on his shoulder, and people came up to him to pet it. So how come in San Diego we were given the cold shoulder because of our unusual pet?

- A.B. IN SAN DIEGO
DEAR A.B.: Even though some reptiles make good pets, they seem to frighten most people. The management was obviously concerned about its other customers when it objected to your unusual pet.

It's ironic that with all the people who have been nipped by fluffy, adorable little creatures, they haven't learned that looks can be deceiving and snap judgments based on appearances are unfair.

DEAR ABBY: My son, his wife and their two dogs joined our household. They looked after Princess, my cat, on the days I went to Los Angeles to visit my sister.

On one of those visits a year ago, my son called early one morning to tell me that my Princess had been killed by an unchained, unfenced dog from the neighborhood. What a terribly violent death for so loving a cat—then 8 years old.

I miss the communication and understanding—most of all the unconditional love—we shared. She was truly a gift that was snatched from me by those whose pets were allowed to roam freely.

Perhaps one day, the Rainbow

Bridge featured in that piece in your column will unite me and Princess.

Please pass me a tissue, Abby.

What to do when the house you want is too small, an antique?

The Associated Press

A historic circa-1670 saltbox with chestnut beams and wood paneling, a walk-in fireplace with a beehive oven AND a beautiful site: Who could resist such a delightful property?

Not Ed and Claire Orenstein, who fall in love with the house and its setting at first sight. For Claire Orenstein, living in a very old house feels like the most natural thing in the world.

"I could never live in a brand new house," she says. "My parents' house in England is 550 years old."

The couple bought the house in Fairfield County, Conn., even though it was too small for their needs. They remodeled extensively, retaining the charm while adding additional rooms and modern amenities such as a new kitchen.

"This was an old house and a young family that needed more space," says McKee Patterson, an architect in Southport, Conn. "The existing house was literally museum quality, so there was never any question about messing around with it."

Patterson suggested building an addition in a style compatible with the house and the detached gambrel-roofed garage. Since the garage looks like a barn typical of the 1820s, he designed a gambrel-roof addition of about 1,500 square feet. The new stone building is attached to the garage by a breezeway and stands in the space formerly occupied by a small structure that had once housed a kitchen. The stone for the new building comes from the building that was taken down. "Most old houses are small in scale, so a large addition can be out of scale and ruin the flavor of the old house," says Patterson. "In this project, the new structure is about 20 inches below the grade of the old house to keep the roof height low and yet permit rooms with fairly high ceilings of nine-and-a-half feet downstairs."

A 17th century saltbox house (left) is paired with a modern stone addition in Darien, Conn. The owners needed more space but didn't want to disturb the quality of the original house.

This strategem and the low-profile gambrel roof create the illusion that the two-story addition is no more than one story.

The new building houses three bedrooms, two bathrooms, a kitchen, a breakfast area, a laundry and mud room. There's also a small playroom for the family's two children.

Although stone construction is more costly than wood-frame construction, in this case it was a good idea.

"The clients wanted it, we had the stone, and a building of that period could easily have been built in stone," the architect says. "The stone gives the buildings a solid, sturdy anchored look."

The old house meets the new mainly at doorways and hallways, so there is no jarring sense of moving into an entirely different space.

In the new wing, exposed post-and-beam construction, oak plank floors, wood wainscoting in the hallway and plasterboard walls are in keeping with the historic period of the saltbox. "We took a few liberties with Mexican tile for the kitchen and modern lighting unobtrusively mounted on ceilings and under the kitchen cabinets," the architect says. "A few old lanterns function as decorative and utilitarian lighting and set the mood."

Now that the addition is done, Claire Orenstein is in the midst of decorating, with the help of her friend, Julia Durney, a designer in Brooklyn, N.Y.

Orenstein, who grew up in England, likes the mix of pine antiques and understated decor. She also appreciates the historic era of this traditional American building and so is blending the two into an amalgam of English and traditional American decor with a mix of English pine and American country furniture.

A good example is the furniture in the informal dining room. A long scrubbed pine table is surrounded by rush-seated chairs. A pine hutch displays blue and white walled pattern dishes and serving pieces. A tall case clock in the room is English but is the sort of piece that might well have belonged to an affluent Connecticut farmer in the 18th century.

Walls in the house are primarily painted white, although the Orensteins selected wallpaper for some of the smaller rooms. The color scheme emphasizes neutrals with sparks of color in each room. In the living room, for example, the accent colors will be red and gold. This room is planned as a formal space.

The antique paneling in the family sitting room and den is the dominant feature. Orenstein has selected a subtly patterned cream and pale rose linen fabric and beige carpets.

Window treatments are yet to be chosen. But Orenstein is in no particular hurry to complete the decorating. "This is the second home she is furnishing. The first taught her to go slow and mull over the choices before making decorating decisions."

"We are taking our time in decorating, so that five years from now we don't say, 'Oh, we made a mistake.'"

Insulation might reduce water-pipe noise

Q. Our second-floor toilet makes a lot of noise when it is flushed. You can hear water running down the waste pipe inside an interior wall. The noise is especially disturbing when we're dining. Is there any way to silence the noise? —T. Koesinger

A. The best time to control noises of this type is when a house is built. Special construction and insulation techniques can be used to eliminate or greatly reduce unwanted noises from bathrooms, recreation rooms or other noise sources.

Any retrofit steps, short of literally rebuilding the walls, are likely to have uncertain results, but here are a few ideas.

It might be possible to reduce the water-pipe noise by having a contractor blow insulation into the wall so the insulation surrounds the noisy pipe. This could be done by cutting a few relatively small holes in the wall to allow access for the insulation blower. The holes would have to be patched and the walls repainted, of course. To actually wrap the pipe with insulation would require tearing open the walls.

Do it yourself

An extra layer of gypsum board on the dining-room wall facing the pipe might deaden some of the sound. Again, the wall would have to be refinished and redecorated.

An alternative to a new layer of gypsum board is to cover the dining-room wall facing the pipe with Homasote burlap-covered board, a decorative panel available in several colors. Homasote is a fiberboard, made from recycled newspapers, that has excellent sound-deadening qualities. For information, call 800-257-9491.

Finally, if the noisy toilet is an old-style type that dumps about five gallons of water with each flush, installing a new toilet could reduce the noise by cutting the water flow in the pipe. A new toilet would also save a lot of water. Modern toilets use as little as 1-1/2 gallons of water per flush.

More information about the role of insulation in noise control, plus other noise-control tips, is available from CertainTeed Corp., a leading insulation manufacturer. A CertainTeed booklet, "Practical Tips for a Quieter Home," can be obtained by calling 800-782-8777.

Q. I'm thinking of having my bathtub reglazed. What should I look out for or ask about? —C. Roeder

A. First, make sure the work has a written warranty against peeling. Five-year warranties are available.

Second, ask the refinisher for the names of several previous customers and call them to see if they are satisfied. Find out how long the refinisher has been in business; at least five years is best. Finally, call the Better Business Bureau in your area to determine if there are any complaints against the firm.

Kids can have fun making Easter 'eggs' made of pound cake cut in egg-shaped pieces, frostings and sprinkles.

Cake adds sweet twist to eggs in a basket

This fun, easy way of welcoming springtime can be a delicate, delightful alternative to Easter's messy egg-coloring kits. Eggs in a basket allows kids to be the best bakers on the block, though no oven is needed.

Simply slice a Sara Lee Pound Cake horizontally into 1/2-inch thick slices. Then have the kids cut out egg-shaped pieces using an oval cardboard stencil and a plastic knife.

Decorate the egg-shaped cake pieces with frosting and candies, sprinkles, cereal, fruit, nuts or miniature cookies.

No baking is needed for this creative, great-tasting carnival of color—and kids love to prepare goodies for the family.

Eggs in a Basket are a perfect dessert for kids and a pleasure for adults because they are delicious, fun, and a piece of cake to make.

Actress buys Paris getaway apartment

Los Angeles Times

Emmy-winning actress Rue McClanahan—who played man-crazy Southern belle Blanche Devereaux in "The Golden Girls" and "The Golden Palace" sitcoms—has purchased a getaway apartment overlooking the Seine in Paris for slightly more than $1 million.

McClanahan, who was also a regular for years on the TV series "Mama" and "Family" and "Maude," appeared as the ruler-brandishing Mother Superior in the musical-comedy "Nunsense," which premiered Jan. 6 on A&E.

The Oklahoma-born actress is writing a book, described as an autobiographical comedy that will be titled "My First Five Husbands," and she has agreed to star in the Harbor Lights Entertainment comedy movie "Lisdonvarna," which will be filmed next summer in Ireland.

"She loves France—Paris is her favorite city," said a spokesman for McClanahan. "That's why she bought an apartment there as a place to get away from it all."

She purchased the 3,000-square-foot unit from a Dutch financier.

McClanahan also owns a small, three-bedroom Victorian farmhouse at Lake Arrowhead in the mountains of Southern California.

Her primary residence is in the San Fernando Valley of Los Angeles, on three acres she bought in 1988 for $2.5 million, including a house she then tore down. In its place, she built a 5,000-square-foot California ranch-style home at an estimated cost of $1 million.

Comedian Yakov Smirnoff has moved from Los Angeles to Branson, Mo., and has put his Pacific Palisades home on the market.

The house, which is on the Riviera Golf Course, is listed at $2,295,000. Built in 1951, the ranch-style house has three bedrooms plus maid's quarters in 3,300 square feet.

"We put in... a sandbox that looks like a sand trap in the back, so it looks like the yard is part of the golf course," Smirnoff said.

Looking to give your yard a new look? Start your work on paper

Whether your yard is a custom design left by the builder's bulldozer, or just a flat of plain-Jane grass, it's time to plot out something new on paper.

There are folks who do that sort of thing, called landscape designers. They are typically found in a nook somewhere in one of the local nurseries sketching like crazy (business is usually booming this time of year). But they will be happy to talk to you about a new look anyway. They will make an appointment to visit your little corner of heaven and take measurements.

After talking with you about what you want your landscaping to do for you, the designer will go back to his drawing board and draw a plan. The plan will reflect what kinds of plants you like and how much work you typically put into the yard, as well as functions—such as privacy screening, noise reduction, etc. This service is usually free. The unwritten contract is that you will buy all the plants you'll need at that nursery. If you plan to carry out the plan yourself, remember to focus on one "doable" corner at a time. The satisfaction of completion will fortify you to go on to another phase quickly. But if you find yourself overwhelmed with the entire enormous project, it's likely you'll never see it completed.

Cathy Walworth
Green thumbprints

Those who plan to let the professionals do the work all at once will need a written proposal, and/or signed contract before the work begins. Make sure all grading, soil amending and construction of walkways or other structures, as well as sprinkler systems, are covered in the contract. If you aren't familiar with the landscape contractor, ask for references.

Other chores:
• Fertilize existing lawns, trees and shrubs now. Either choose a fertilizer that lists iron, sulfur and zinc on the package, or buy iron sulfate separately and apply it at the same time. Our alkaline soils have little of those micronutrients, and what there is becomes unavailable to plants due to the alkalinity.

• If you have a crystal ball that says we won't have any more freezing weather, you can prune your roses back now. A hard freeze would cause the newly exposed tissue to die back some more. So if you do prune before the freezing is over, you'll want to cover the canes with something to keep them warm overnight.

Cathy Walworth is an avid Twin Falls gardener. Write to her in care of The Times-News.

Kruk will leave the Phillies spring training camp Wednesday and is expected to be in Philadelphia Thursday for routine tests that are necessary before the treatment can begin, team spokesman Larry Shenk said.

The month-long treatment will begin Monday at Thomas Jefferson University Hospital. Kruk is expected to be out of the lineup until mid-May.

Doctors had given Kruk the option of having the radiation therapy or waiting and then checking every two months to make sure he was cancer-free.

Robinson top selection to All-American team

The Associated Press

Purdue's Glenn Robinson, the nation's leading scorer, was a unanimous selection Tuesday to The Associated Press All-American basketball team, while California's Jason Kidd was named on all but one ballot.

They were joined on the first team by Donyell Marshall of Connecticut and Grant Hill of Duke, both three votes shy of unanimous, and Clifford Rozier of Louisville.

Robinson was the first unanimous selection since Duke's Christian Laettner in 1992. The 6-foot-8 junior forward averaged 30.3 points and 10.1 rebounds and shot 49 percent from the field, including 36 percent from 3-point range.

"This is a very deserving honor for Glenn because of all the players I ever coached; he's the best," Purdue coach Gene Keady said. "This guy can do it all and he's a great person besides."

Robinson, who led the Boilermakers to the Big Ten title, is Purdue's first first-team, All-American since Joe Barry Carroll in 1980.

"He's a great team player and he plays for his teammates and he proved that by staying here this season," Keady said, referring to the opportunity Robinson had to jump to the NBA after earning second-team All-American honors last season. "He's been fun to coach and we did a pretty good job handling all that pressure he had. We didn't have a problem with that."

Kidd's selection gave California a first-team All-American for the first time since Darrell Imhoff in 1960, which also was the last time the Bears reached the Final Four.

Kidd was selected to the first team by 64 of the 65 voters on a national media panel and finished with 323 points, two behind Robinson.

Huskymania rampant in Connecticut

The Associated Press

STORRS, Conn. — Nick Buonocore expects plenty of business at his campus doughnut shop Thursday when the Connecticut men's basketball team plays Rider in the opening round of the NCAA tournament.

Buonocore has been showing the men's games at the Sugar Shack since hooking up a satellite dish two years ago.

"There's always tension and there's cheering and booing of officials calls," he said. "Everything that basically goes on at the game."

Huskymania is rampant at Connecticut, especially in a year when both the men's and women's teams are capable of making the Final Four. The Lady Huskies are the top seed in the East Regional; the men are the second seed in their East Regional.

"Between the men and the women it's incredible," Buonocore said. "People are up. They're happy. They're positive. All people are talking about is the pairings and what's going to happen."

The women (27-2), ranked third in the country after winning the Big East regular-season and tournament championships, will face Brown (18-9) at home Wednesday night.

The men (27-4) are ranked No. 4 in the country and will face 15th-ranked Rider (21-8).

"You can really feel the anticipation and excitement on campus," said Rick Price, an economics student. "Everyone I know expects both teams to make the Final Four. That's what everyone is talking about."

The excitement isn't confined to the campus. The two teams have the whole state going.

"Wherever you go it's all anyone talks about," said Harry Hartley, president of the University of Connecticut. "I don't any other place where it's like this. Most other presidents I talk to say it's not like this for their men's team, and especially for women."

At the state Capitol, numerous legislators have asked House Speaker Thomas Ritter, D-Hartford, whether one of the large public hearing rooms with a big television can be opened for the games.

Unlikely turns into reality for Charleston

The Associated Press

CHARLESTON, S.C. — This is what Marion Busby and Thaddeus Delaney thought about all along.

They thought about it in high school and they thought about it in their dorm at the College of Charleston. Now it's all there before them: a spot in the NCAA tournament.

"We like to reach for the stars," Delaney said Tuesday.

Charleston, with a 24-3 record and a nation's best 16-game winning streak, is the unlikely entry in the 64-team field. It opens play against Wake Forest on Thursday in Southeast Regional at Lexington, Ky.

Busby, a 5-foot-11 junior point guard, and Delaney, a 6-8 freshman forward, played on the state championship teams at East-Central High School in Columbia.

Delaney was scouted by schools like Florida State and South Carolina. Busby was almost ignored by Division I schools two years earlier.

"The big boys looked, but they were afraid of physical presence in that he has a toothpick type body," Charleston coach John Kresse said. "We got into the picture early and there were no doubts that he'd be the cornerstone of our future."

Kresse, whose program jumped from NAIA to Division I in 1991, saw the leader he needed in Busby. He also saw an unselfish player able to put his goals behind the team's.

"I really wanted to see if I could help a team on the rise," Busby said. "Not that many people expected it from us that fast. But hard work pays off."

Brian Keswick of CSI is welcomed home after belting a three-run homer in the fifth inning of Tuesday's opener against Utah Valley.

CSI sweeps Utah Valley

By Mike Muller
Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho hitters came through with both knockout punches and well-placed jabs to floor Utah Valley State College 7-4 and 8-2 in non-league baseball games Tuesday.

Brian Keswick and Kumandee Miller hit the hardest, getting home runs in the first and second games, respectively.

Overall, the 15-6 Golden Eagles tapped away with hit-and-run plays, bunts and sacrifice flies as needed to keep scores coming.

"We had some guys really step up to the plate," said CSI coach Jim Walker. "It's the first time we've been consistent in situational hitting."

Keswick hit a drive over the Shopko sign on the fence to score three runs and break open a one-run game in the bottom of the fifth inning.

Sean Garman, who had struggled at the plate this season, followed with his second double and third hit of the game. He scored on an error after Duane Phillips' bunt single.

"His bat's really needed," Walker said about Garman. "I think he provided his own wake up call."

Miller added a 3-for-3 performance in the second game. His first at bat brought in two runs with a blast that cleared the Louie's Pizza sign in left-center field and one-hopped the tennis courts beyond.

He added a single to right and a double to the base of the Louie's sign.

The Eagle right fielder had been working to stay back and wait for pitches.

"It's really nice to see things like that," Walker said. "It's nice to see guys take a step up and learn in the game."

CSI capped the second game scoring in the sixth with back-to-back doubles by Eric Nygard and Aaron Brown followed by a single from Brad Beck and an RBI groundout by Eagle Highlander.

Eagle pitchers gave up 21 hits in 16 innings, but scattered enough to stay out of serious trouble and drop UVSC to 5-9. Christian Nickum earned the first game victory in relief of starter Brett Bibeau. Craig Peck came on in relief with two on and one out in the ninth and retired two straight hitters to gain a save.

Kevin Shafer started and went five innings in the second game for the win.

CSI continues its home stand with a single game at 3 p.m. Thursday against Dixie and a noon doubleheader with the Rebels Friday.

Braves release Gant; pay questions arise

The Associated Press

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — Injured outfielder Rob Gant was released by the Atlanta Braves on Tuesday, throwing his future in doubt and touching off a dispute about how much money the team must pay him.

Gant, coming off career-highs of 36 homers and 117 RBIs last season, broke his right leg Feb. 3 in a dirt-bike accident. The injury, which could sideline him until the All-Star break, came one week after he signed a $5.5 million, one-year contract.

"Since he is unavailable to perform as a result of this accident and, according to our doctors, will be rehabilitating for an extended period of time, we have decided to take this action," Braves general manager John Schuerholz said.

"This is an unfortunate and sad day for us, but nonetheless, this is our decision," he said.

By cutting Gant before 2 p.m. EST, the Braves were to owe him only 30 days' termination pay, $906,593.40. But Braves president Stan Kasten said the owners' Player Relations Committee had advised the team not to pay Gant at all.

Atlanta could argue that Gant violated his contract by putting himself at risk. Gant's agent, Eric Goldschmidt, said this week that he would ask the Major League Baseball Players Association to file a grievance if Gant was cut, meaning an arbitrator may decide how much the Braves must pay.

The union won't decide about filing a grievance until Gant clears waivers.

PRC has had interesting theories in the past, but fortunately, from the player's interest, the theories have been more interesting than sound."

Gant, 29, has averaged almost 30 home runs, 97 RBIs and 31 steals in the last four years. Without him, the Braves will try to win their fourth straight division title this season with either young Tony Tarasco, Ryan Klesko or Chipper Jones in Gant's spot in left field.

"I'm sad and upset," Braves manager Bobby Cox said. "He's going to be a tough guy to replace."

Any team can claim Gant off waivers until 2 p.m. EST Friday, but would have to pay him his full salary. If Gant is not claimed, he is free to work out a deal with any club at any price. That includes the Braves, and Schuerholz said Atlanta might think about signing him if he is healthy.

There was speculation that the two-time World Series champion Toronto Blue Jays, who only have Rob Butler and other youngsters in left field, would consider Gant, but general manager Pat Gillick said no.

"We don't have any interest," Gillick said Tuesday.

Gant was drafted by the Braves out of high school at age 18, and has spent his entire career with them. He broke into the majors in 1987 and has 147 homers, 480 RBIs and a .262 average.

"It is emotional for me thinking about not being a Brave. But I realize baseball is a business," Gant said earlier this week.

3 of Graf's challengers fall from Lipton event

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP)—Upsets eliminated Steffi Graf's three foremost challengers Tuesday at the Lipton Championships.

Two-time defending champion Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario, Gabriela Sabatini and Jana Novotna—seeded second, third and fourth—all departed in the space of less than three hours.

The quarterfinal results left only longshots to face Graf, winner of 29 consecutive matches and 51 sets in a row.

But the wave of upsets also brought a rare jolt for the women's tour, which in the absence of Monica Seles and Jennifer Capriati has been undercut by predictability and a lack of depth.

"I hope all of women's tennis gets maybe a little bit more recognized," said 17-year-old Californian Lindsay Davenport, who beat Sabatini 6-1, 6-2. "Maybe some more players will be pushed into the media and the public's knowledge."

The biggest stunner claimed second-ranked Sanchez-Vicario, who squandered five consecutive match points to beat Brenda Schultz-1, 6, 7-6 (8-6), 6-3.

"I have the match in my hands," Sanchez-Vicario said, "but it went away."

Novotna blew a 4-0 lead in the second set against Natalia Zvereva, who won 7-6 (7-5), 7-6 (7-4).

Zvereva will play Schultz in Thursday's semifinals. Davenport will face the winner of Tuesday night's match between Graf and Kimiko Date.

The top men weren't immune to upsets, either. Unseeded Australian Patrick Rafter beat eighth-ranked Michael Chang 6-2, 6-7 (2-7), 6-1.

Jim Grabb, ranked No. 185, beat Aaron Krickstein 5-7, 6-4, 7-5. Also advancing to Wednesday's quarterfinals were top-ranked Pete Sampras, No. 3 Stefan Edberg, No. 5 Jim Courier, No. 6 Goran Ivanisevic and No. 13 Petr Korda—each with a straight-set victory.

Sanchez-Vicario nearly was a straight-set winner. She led Schultz 6-1 in their second-set tiebreaker, but the Dutchwoman took the next seven points to force a third set.

The victory was the biggest ever for Schultz, ranked No. 32. She predicted the win in her diary.

"I wrote down last night 10 times, 'I am going to beat her. I am better. I am better. And I did it,'" Schultz said. "I am going to keep writing everything down."

Schultz, 6-foot-2, slammed 10 aces and won 18 points at the net to 10 for Sanchez-Vicario.

Majerle lifts Suns over Cavs, 119-106

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP)—Dan Majerle scored 34 points and the Phoenix Suns made 18 of 20 third-quarter shots Tuesday night in beating the injury-ravaged Cleveland Cavaliers-119-106.

Pro basketball

Cleveland played without all three of its 1993 All-Stars—Mark Price (back spasms), Brad Daugherty (back injury) and Larry Nance (bad knee)—and lost its third in a row since matching the franchise record with 11 straight wins.

Knicks 88, Pacers 82

NEW YORK—Patrick Ewing scored 26 points and Hubert Davis and Derek Harper made key plays down the stretch as New York extended its winning streak to seven games. The Knicks led 70-57 late in the third quarter before a 12-1 run put the Pacers ahead 76-74 with 5:03 left. Davis then kept the Knicks ahead with a three-point shot and Harper followed with a three-point play, making it 80-74 with 3:00 remaining.

New York's league-leading defense held the Pacers to six points in the last five minutes.

Heat 101, Bucks 94

MIAMI—Glenn Rice scored 14 of his 28 points in the fourth quarter as Miami won eight games over 300 for the first time in franchise history.

Three Miami players added double-doubles. Steve Smith had 27 points and 10 rebounds; Ron Riley had 16 points and 10 rebounds; and Brian Shaw had 14 points and 12 assists. Grant Long just missed joining the group, getting 14 points and nine rebounds.

Timberwolves 96, Sixers 87

MINNEAPOLIS—Stacey King scored six straight points in a 10-0 run early in the fourth quarter that helped Minnesota snap an eight-game losing streak.

King had 16 points and eight rebounds to lead a 59-27 first-half scoring advantage for the Wolves, who won for the third time in 23 games. Isaiah Rider came off the bench to lead Minnesota with 21 points. Reserve Thurl Bailey added 18 points, 14 in the second quarter.

Bulls 108, Magic 98

CHICAGO—The election of coach Phil Jackson, 51, lifted the Bulls to a 10-0 record in their first 10 games.

Philadelphia 76ers' Tim Perry goes up over Minnesota Timberwolves' Stacey King for two points Tuesday night.

Jackson sparked Chicago's 10-1 run at the end of the third quarter and the Bulls pulled away in the fourth.

Scottie Pippen scored 25 points, Horace Grant had 24, B.J. Armstrong 18 and Bill Wennington 16, including six in the game-winning run. The Bulls won for the third time in their last four games.

Rockets 105, Trail Blazers 99

HOUSTON—Hakeem Olajuwon had 41 points and the Houston Rockets outscored Portland 28-12 in the fourth quarter Tuesday night in a 105-99 victory that extended the Trail Blazers' losing streak to three games.

Olajuwon held Portland to six points in the first 10:30 of the fourth quarter, turning an 87-77 deficit into a 100-93 lead.

Chris Thompson had 24 points and 16 rebounds and Kenny Smith added 17 points. Olajuwon, who had his first game with at least 30 points since March 5, also had 13 rebounds, six assists, two steals and two blocks.

Heart attack, not Hodgkin's disease, kills Mantle's son, 36

DALLAS (AP)—Mickey Mantle always feared dying young because so many relatives did. Instead, it was his son Billy who lived only to age 36.

Mickey Mantle, 62, used to joke he would have taken better care of himself had he known he'd live so long. He questioned his mortality because Hodgkin's disease claimed his father, grandfather and two uncles.

William Giles "Billy" Mantle also had Hodgkin's, but it was a heart attack that took his life Saturday, said Dallas attorney Roy True, a close friend and adviser to the Mantle family.

"Like any other parent would do when they lose their child, it's probably the most difficult loss anyone suffers," True said. "That would be the same for Mr. and Mrs. Mantle."

True said Billy Mantle and his father had seen each other frequently over the past year.

Mantle's heart disease was in remission in October 1989 and shortly after he began suffering heart problems. He reportedly had surgery in 1992.

The 6-4 sophomore guard, considered an outstanding defender, led the nation in assists at 9.1 per game but the other numbers showed his all-around game: 16.8 points, 6.8 rebounds and 3.1 steals. He and third-team selection Lamond Murray combined to lead an injury-depleted Cal squad to a second-place tie in the Pac-10.

Marshall, who had 319 points, is the first Huskie to be named to the first team. The 6-9 junior forward led Connecticut to its highest ranking ever (No. 2) and the regular-season Big East championship. He averaged 25.8 points and 8.9 rebounds, and was named the league's player of the year and defensive player of the year.

Hill, a third-team last year and the national defensive player of the year, is the first straight first-team selection from Duke, two short of the record set by UCLA from 1971-75. The 6-8 freshman was the only senior on the first team after getting 37 points, and it was his veteran leadership that allowed the Blue Devils to win the Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season title.

He averaged 17.3 points, 6.5 rebounds and six assists and did everything the team needed, from directing the offense to taking over the game at both ends of the floor.

"He's been incredibly consistent," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "I think he's helped us become a basketball team in not trying to take too many shots and making sure we're available to do the dirty work and not just shopping the basketball. He's really as good of a team guy as we've had here."

That would include Lactner and Bobby Hurley, each a first-teamer the last two seasons and Hill's teammates as the Blue Devils won consecutive national championships his freshman and sophomore seasons.

Rozier got 26 first-team votes and 198 points to become Louisville's first first-teamer since Darrell Griffith in 1980. The Metro Conference player of the year the last two seasons, the 6-9 Rozier averaged 19.1 points and 11.2 rebounds to lead the Cardinals to the league title. He transferred to Louisville after playing as a freshman at North Carolina in 1991 when the Tar Heels reached the Final Four.

"It almost feels selfish to think about yourself, but any award an individual gets points directly at the team," he said. "You want to go out every night and try to help the team play as hard as you can. This means a lot though because it shows people appreciate you and makes you want to play harder."

The second team includes Jalen Rose of Michigan, Carlos Williamson of Arkansas, Khalid Reeves of Arizona, Eric Montross of North Carolina and Melvin Booker of Missouri. It was Montross' second year in a row on the second team.

The third team had Bryant Reeves of Oklahoma State, Curry, B.J. Tyler of Texas, Juwan Howard of Michigan and Damon Bailey of Indiana.

The three teams were selected on a 5-3-1 point point system.

Gant

At the time of Gant's injury, the Braves said he would be out for 3-5 months. His right leg, broken in two places, was examined by team orthopedic surgeon Joe Chandler on Monday, and no change in his condition was reported.

Schuerholz and Kasten called Gant shortly before noon with their decision. Then, they met with several players who are team leaders and Gant's friends.

"Being with Ronnie so long, I'm so used to looking over there to left field and seeing him, or seeing him batting ahead of me or behind me on the lineup card," David Justice said. "But the game is now, it's about money."

Gant's contract was the richest one-year deal in baseball history. He was eligible for free agency at the end of the season, and the Braves had indicated they might not have re-signed him at such a high price.

Gant hit .274 with 26 steals last season, helping the Braves win the NL West for the third straight year.

Connecticut

"There will be no House sessions during a UConn game," Ritter said. "That I can guarantee."

Huskies' season was traced to the arrival of coaches Jim Calhoun and Geno Auriemma.

Under Calhoun, who took over the men's team in 1986, UConn has been to the NCAA tournament three previous times, coming within Christian Laettner's last-second rebound of a Final Four trip in 1990.

Auriemma, in his ninth year, is taking the women to their sixth straight NCAA appearance. He led the women to the school's first Final Four spot in 1991.

Both teams knew the Huskies could captivate the state with a good team. But even he is baffled when the state grinds to a halt every time his team plays.

"The emotion for the program is overwhelming, at times," Calhoun said. "I mean, it's mindboggling."

His teams have one of the nation's best players in Rebecca Lobo, a 6-foot-5 junior center.

"I would like to see them both take home the national championships," Buonoire said. "But I could be happy with the Final Four. I think both are capable of doing it."

"If they get to there, I'm going to have my baker make extra doughnuts, and I'm going to have everything be self-service until I run out."

Charleston

Busby's worth was recognized this season when he was selected the Trans-America Athletic Conference player of the year after averaging 16.5 points a game.

Busby's teammates knew how Busby scorched Georgia Tech for 29 points, taking over the game down the stretch in Charleston's 84-67 victory in January 1993.

Eau Claire coach George Glymph, whose teams have won four state crowns the past six years, said he was gratified for both players, but especially for Busby.

"I tried to get (Georgia Tech coach) Bobby Cremins to take Marion as a senior," Glymph said. "So when he went back there and saw him score, Bobby must have realized what I was talking about."

While Delaney was wooed by top-notch basketball schools, Busby was in his ear talking up Charleston.

"He influenced me a lot and I really wanted to play with my former teammate," Delaney said. The two became roommates and Delaney says they talk a lot about the old, winning days at Eau Claire.

"I told him it could happen to us any year now and he could be a big part of it," Busby said. "I told him, 'All you have to do is come in and play smart and I'll take care of it.'"

While Busby's game is based on savvy and intelligence, Delaney's is power and maneuvering.

The 230-pound forward, a starter the past 15 games, has led the Cougars in rebounding 14 times in that span, including 17 boards against Central Florida, another TAAC school in the NCAA tournament. He shot 61 percent from the field this season while averaging almost 11 points a game.

Both players knew about Charleston's small-time reputation when they signed. They also knew the conference would not get an automatic NCAA bid until 1998.

"Mon and Tadeus knew the door was open for at-large bid and an NIT bid," Kresse said. "They have tremendous confidence in themselves and they proceeded to get the job done this year."

White Sox sink Yankees

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — American League Cy Young Award winner Jack McDowell, scratched from his previous start because of back spasms, pitched five innings Tuesday to lead the Chicago White Sox over the New York Yankees 6-5.

McDowell struck out four and didn't walk a batter in his second spring start. He allowed only one run on a wild pitch by Danny Tartabull on third in the fourth inning.

Chicago took a 4-0 lead in the second against Scott Kamieniecki. Dan Pasqua hit a solo homer in the fifth and Joe Mauer drove in a run with a triple in the sixth.

Oddities will greet players at Salt Lake City's new baseball park

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Call it an outfielder's nightmare, this brand-new baseball park with its own idiosyncratic personality.

Ballplayers on a dead run to snag the long ball at Franklin Quest Field will have to take into account a left-field wall with a sneaky design — the fence was deliberately built with a gentle curve that sweeps in a few feet before gliding back out again.

Right field has a short home-run porch of 315 feet and a foul line that actually crosses a few seats and guarantees trouble, especially for visiting fencers.

Centerfielders playing the new park will be covering vast, asymmetrical alleys. The left-center field is 375 feet from home plate, the right-center fence 385 feet distant.

The Salt Lake Buzz, worked here from Portland, Ore., by the park, have their home opener April 11.

It should make for some interesting, inside-the-park home runs," promises Craig Elliott, the ball park architect brought in from Kansas City to design the field.

Elliott and associates at the Salt Lake architectural firm of Valentiner, Crane, Brunjes and Ornyon have had their fun with the project.

"We kind of think it'll be the next prototype for minor-league ballparks," said Elliott, whose most recent previous project was a AAA field at about the same size in Virginia, where the Norfolk Tides play in the International League.

On a fast-track construction schedule, the $20 million park has sprouted this winter from the site where Derks stood for 46 years. At the behest of City Hall, designers sought to give Franklin Quest Field a combination of unique charm and historic character.

Workers are putting final touches on the stadium, which in addition to its odd outfield configuration has a number of other unique features. The infield is defined by sharp corners, rather than the smooth edges of a semicircle. Seating is in durable plastic chairs that have old-fashioned slat backs, keeping fans cool on hot days.

Indeed, the stadium is designed roughly after historic Camden Yards in Baltimore, where the Orioles played for generations. It has the same brick facade, the same open-beam construction, the same breezy concourse where fans can watch the game as they stroll in line for a hot dog.

"It's all functional and put together with the traditional feel of an old ball park," said Thomas C. Mabey, president of Saham Construction, which is building the stadium.

"There's nothing not to like about it," said Tommy Folker-White, general manager of the Buzz. The team has sold out a third of the stadium's 12,000 seats to season ticket holders.

Perhaps the most noticeable of the park's features, however, is the view to the east. Designers left the ballpark on the same axis as Debris, preserving what's regarded as the best left-field vista in baseball — the Wasatch Mountains.

That's one challenge coach Billy Tubbs can hold up to his players.

"Our guys are excited," he said. "Vanderbilt's a good team, a real solid team. Billy McCaffrey is an outstanding player."

Other evening contests, Murray State (22-5) at Bradley (21-7), Miami (19-10) at Xavier, Ohio (20-7) at North Carolina Charlotte (16-12) at Duquesne (16-12), Tulane (17-10) at Evansville (21-10), Texas A&M (19-10) at New Orleans (19-9), and Southern Cal (16-11) at Fresno State (19-10).

Seven more games will be played Thursday night as the tournament heads toward the final four at Madison Square Garden March 28-30.

Volcanoes (15-12) is making its 13th straight postseason appearance, including three of the last four NITs. The Sooners also have won at least 20 games for 12 straight seasons, but the only way that streak will continue is if they win the NIT.

Some games in NCAA women's expanded field hard to predict

The Associated Press

The NCAA women's basketball tournament says good-bye to first-round byes Wednesday night, thanks to an expanded 64-team field.

All 64 teams will be in action at 32 home sites of the higher seeds.

The one exception is in the West Regional, where 4th-seeded Florida will be at 13th-seeded Texas A&M because of a Rod Stewart concert at the Gators' arena in Gainesville.

"It is the one night that we won't be competing against the men, so there should be a lot of attention to our games," said Linda Bruno, the tournament committee chair and associate Big East commissioner. "Several games are already sold out."

While the first round should contain some lopsided results with No. 1 seeds meeting No. 16 seeds, each region also has some matchups that are difficult to predict.

EAST

Top-seeded Connecticut (27-2), the Big East champion, plays host to Ivy League winner Brown (19-9). The Huskies, who finished third in the AP women's poll, are a favorite to advance to the Final Four, where they last played in 1991.

Vanderbilt (23-17) entertains Grambling, the Southeastern Athletic Conference champion and one of the top players in Jessica Barr, but for the first time. Grambling has been scoring more than 100 points a game in recent weeks.

with Georgia Southern (21-8), the Southern Conference runner-up.

Ruigers (22-7), the Atlantic 10 winner and only school to best top-ranked Tennessee this season, will host Western Kentucky (23-9).

Minnesota (17-10), a first-time participant, will feature the Big Ten's top player in Cami Studdick when the Gophers visit Notre Dame (22-6).

The last game in the East will match St. Joseph's (19-8) at Old Dominion (24-5), the Colonial League winner.

MIDEAST

Tennessee coach Pat Summitt believes her top-ranked Lady Vols (24-1), the Southeastern Conference champion, will benefit from an early-round appearance against 16th-seeded North Carolina A&T (19-10), the Mid-East Athletic Conference winner.

"This group came out of the SEC with momentum and is ready to play, so perhaps it's better than waiting the extra days for a second round as we've done in the past," Summitt said.

Clemson (19-9) has tournament experience and the ACC's top player in Jessica Barr, but the Tigers should find Trans America winner Florida International (25-3), tough at home with point guard Andrea Nagy.

Louisiana Tech (26-3), the Sun Belt winner, should have too much experience for visiting Southern Methodist (18-8).

The same can be said about Mississippi (23-8), which hosts Indiana (19-8).

Southern Cal (23-1), the Pac-10 champion, should make some work of visiting Portland (17-11), the West Coast winner. Cheryl Miller, the ACC's top player in Jessica Barr, but the Tigers should find Trans America winner Florida International (25-3), tough at home with point guard Andrea Nagy.

In other games in the Mideast, George Washington (22-7), the Atlantic 10 regular season co-champion, will host AIA-Birmingham (23-5), the Great Midwest winner, while Metro Atlantic champion Loyola, Md., (18-10), will travel to Virginia (25-4), the regular season ACC winner.

Missouri Valley winner Southwest Missouri (23-5) will host Northern Illinois (24-5), the regular-season Mid-Continent winner.

MIDWEST

Top-seeded Penn State (25-2), the Big Ten co-champion with Purdue, will host 16th-seeded Fordham (21-8), the Patriot League winner.

The early opener should prevent the Lions from playing poorly in the second round, where they've lost at home two of the last three years.

Seaton Hall (25-0), the Big East runner-up, will make its tournament debut against visiting Vermont (19-10), the North Atlantic winner.

Performing NCAA champion Texas Tech (16-4), will host 15th-seeded Missouri (12-7), an upset Big Eight champion with the worst record in the nation.

"All year we've had to do things differently as a defending champion," Texas Tech coach Linda Stender said. "So, now we'll see how we handle the situation in the tournament, which will be different than in previous years."

Other Midwest first-round games will be Creighton (23-6) at Bowling Green (26-3), the Mid-American winner, while Kansas (21-5) will be at Stephen F. Austin (23-6), the Southland winner.

Mount St. Mary's (23-3), the Northeast Conference winner, will travel to Iowa (20-6), one of last year's Final Four teams, while Oregon State (17-10) will travel to Alabama (22-4).

WEST

Top-seeded Purdue (26-4), which features freshman Leslie Johnson, will host Big South winner Radford (18-11), while second-seeded Stanford (22-5) will host Mid-Continent winner Wisconsin-Green Bay (18-10), the Mid-Continent tournament winner.

An intermedia matchup will be Hawaii (25-4), the Big West regular season winner, traveling to San Diego State (25-4). The visiting Aztecs will make their first appearance in the field last year, benefited by the expansion to 64 teams.

Meanwhile, UNLV (23-6), the Big West tournament winner, will be at Montana (24-7), the Big Sky winner.

Boise State (23-5) visits Washington (20-7), while Santa Clara (21-6) travels to Oregon (19-8), and Marquette (22-6) will visit Colorado (25-4).

The second round, this weekend, will be on the home courts of Wednesday night's higher-seeded winners. The surviving Sweet 16 will advance to regional finals in the East at Piscataway, N.J., in the Midwest at Fayetteville, Ark., in the Southwest at Austin, Tex., and in the West at Palo Alto, Calif., on March 24-26.

The Women's Final Four will be April 2-3 at the Richmond Coliseum in Virginia.

USC coach expects best

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In her first year as Southern Cal women's coach, Cheryl Miller has displayed the same kind of flamboyance she once showed as a player for the Trojans.

She can be hot or cold — high-fiving players after a good play or glaring from the coach's box when someone makes a mistake or doesn't follow her direction.

"I expect nothing but the perfection," Miller said. "I expect nothing but the best."

The seventh-ranked Trojans (23-3), who won the Pac-10 championship, play host to Portland (17-11) Wednesday night in a first-round NCAA tournament game. Miller hopes it will be the first step toward a national championship.

It's no surprise that Miller has lofty goals. Now 29, she was a four-time All-American at USC during the 1980s, led the Trojans to two national championships, and played on a U.S. team that won an Olympic gold medal.

Miller was hired shortly before the start of the season, after Marianne Stanley left during a salary dispute that ended in an unsuccessful discrimination suit.

"I didn't come in to shake or separate the coaches' fraternity or sorority; that was not my intention whatsoever," Miller said. "I didn't come in to undermine anyone. I came in to help a bad situation out."

After four years as an assistant coach and seven years as a television broadcaster, Miller is still adjusting to being a head coach. It's also been an adjustment for her players.

MUSIC LOVERS TEND TO BE RADIO ACTIVE

They really can't help it. It's instinctive. The song fades away, the first few words of your commercial come on and -PUSH- your message is history.

Unfortunately for advertisers, radio listeners are a push-button, station-hopping bunch. Because it's the music, not your message, that matters to them most.

And how could you be certain to reach them anyway? Although nearly every household in the Magic Valley has a radio, less than 16% of them are actually turned on during the average quarter hour, 6 a.m. to midnight. Your ad dollars can only fall into the cracks of this extremely fragmented audience.

Newspaper advertising, however, is different. Newspapers let you show your product. Offer a coupon. And tell your story with no time restraints.

If you're currently advertising on radio, we'd like to change your tune. Call us at (208) 733-0931 and discover the power of the printed word.
