House passes school funding bill

By Drew DeSilver
Times-News writer

BOISE — A sweeping change to the way state aid dollars flow from Boise to local school districts is on its way to Gov. Cecil Andrus, following its approval Wednesday by the Idaho House. The measure passed on a 50-20 vote — a far wider margin than most observers had predicted. It rewrites the complex formula that determines how much money individual school districts get from the annual state aid package. The bill sets statewide-staffing standards for schools, and allocates nearly 90 percent of the annual state aid package for salaries and benefits.

Dime-a-pack hike on cigarettes — C4

The measure also:
• Encourages districts to lower their class sizes in grades 1-3, by lowering the "attendance divisor" for those grades from 23 to 20 over three years.
• Encourages districts to raise more money locally through property taxes, by raising the "equalization factor," or assumed local contribution, to .4 percent from .36 percent.

• Guarantees all school districts that their state support in the 1994-95 school year will be at least 8 percent higher than their current support.

• Contains special allocations for classroom supplies, technology, school-reform efforts and school safety.

All Magic Valley representatives voted for the bill except Twin Falls Republicans Ron Black and Mark Stubbs.

Senators strive to keep tax relief plan afloat

By Drew DeSilver

BOISE — State senators worked feverishly Wednesday to plug leaks that threatened to sink a mammoth property-tax relief bill.

A vote on the bill, which would eliminate property taxes for school maintenance and operations (M&O) and shift at least $127 million in school M&O funds to the state budget, is likely this afternoon. Senators on both sides of the aisle predicted that vote would be much closer than the House's 60-9 rollover of last Friday.

The amendments adopted by the Senate late Wednesday afternoon attempt to fix the way property-tax replacement money would be distributed from the state to the 113 local school districts.

Study links magnetic fields, cancer

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Utility workers with heightened exposure to magnetic fields had three times the risk of one kind of leukemia than those with less exposure, a study found.

Previous studies have found similar results, but one expert called the new work the best study so far. The study's authors, however, cautioned that the result does not show that the magnetic fields caused the leukemia.

The study covered 20 years and more than 220,000 men. It found an association with acute myeloid leukemia and weaker evidence for a possible association with a brain cancer called astrocytoma.

Buhl's beloved behemoth, Kanaka, dies at 80

By William Brock
Times-News writer

BUHL — Break out the hankies — extra-large if possible — because the Magic Valley's oldest and most celebrated sturgeon has entered the great fish pond in the sky.

"Old Kanaka," a magnificent 10-footer who tipped the scales at 600 pounds, passed away Monday. He was 80.

The announcement was made by a publicist with Clear Springs Foods, where Kanaka had been performing daily since 1990.

A private burial was held in the Crystal Springs area, said Kanaka's longtime admirer and company president, Larry Cope.

As the weather warms, the leviathan will probably be safe from grave robbers, he added.

"He was truly an impressive animal,"

Cope remembered. "He was as good-looking as a sturgeon can look — and they don't have a lot going for them in terms of beauty."

Kanaka's rise to piscatorial prominence began shortly after he was "discovered" in 1928. History credits a fellow named Otis Syster with taking the fished wonder from the Kanaka Rapids on the Snake River.

A mere 2-foot-er at the time, Kanaka was just another pretty face. He spent his early years in a pond at the Syster Ranch, near the Buhl golf course.

Then, in 1957, Kanaka got his first major break and was invited to appear in a display pond at the Snake River Trout Co. He was 5 feet long at the time.

Kanaka's years at the Snake River Trout Co. in Buhl were happy ones, insiders con-

Water issues could delay adjournment

The Associated Press

BOISE — Legislative leaders said Wednesday the effort to adjourn the 1994 session this week could stall over work on water issues.

The Idaho Supreme Court earlier this year upheld a district judge in affirming the state's "first in time, first in right" priority for water rights. The Legislature has been rushing since then to change state water laws.

Water experts said the ruling, if strictly applied, could mean cutting off some upstream irrigators if supplies run short.

The House Ways and Means Committee Wednesday approved two more bills and a resolution on water matters. Rep. Golden Linford, R-Rexburg, said two more measures were being prepared.

All were to be the subject of a Thursday hearing before the House

Resources and Conservation Committee.

Depending on what happens at the hearing, the House could decide to recess for a couple of days and work on the water bills with less haste, said Majority Floor Leader Bruce Newcomb, R-Burley. Another option would be to end the 1994 session this week with plans to convene a special session on the issue, he said.

One of the new bills extends a moratorium on new wells and other water development in southern Idaho for 32 months. The moratorium is scheduled to expire in April of 1995. The new bill would extend the moratorium until the end of 1997.

Newcomb said the Legislature plans an intensive study of Snake River Basin water flows, particularly into and out of the underground aquifer.

Spill from sugar plant fouls Rock Creek

By William Brock
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Up to 12,000 gallons of wastewater from the Amalgamated Sugar Co. spilled into Rock Creek Tuesday afternoon when a settling pond sprang a leak.

Fortunately, a vigilant workman spotted the breach stemmed the flow with a backhoe, said Mike McMasters, prevention officer with the Department of Environmental Quality in Twin Falls. The leak was fixed in about 90 minutes, added Ed Bulgin, the company's chief engineer at the corporate headquarters in Nampa.

"We were lucky on this one," McMasters said. "There could have been a tremendous environmental problem in Rock Creek."

"This is pretty nasty stuff that needs to be managed and contained."

Similar spills into Rock Creek have happened before, McMasters said, but Tuesday's accident was Amalgamated Sugar's largest ever. The company is located about five miles from the Snake River along Rock Creek, he said.

"The creek ran was visibly fouled after the spill," McMasters said, noting that the water was brown.

Water samples were taken Tuesday, but the lab results won't be known for about two weeks, McMasters said. Depending on the outcome of those tests, the company could be cited and face a fine of up to $20,000.

The maximum fine is unlikely, he added, because Amalgamated Sugar corrected the problem immediately.

The wastewater from the plant's beet-washing process contained a lot of dirt, as well as some organic material, and possibly even small amounts of pesticides, McMasters said. The dirt could silt up the creek and make life hard on fish and other aquatic creatures, while the organic materials could diminish the creek's oxygen content, he said.

About 60,000 gallons poured through the breach, but most was captured and contained elsewhere in the company's network of settling ponds, McMasters said. He estimated the loss into Rock Creek at 9,000 to 12,000 gallons.

"It wasn't a tremendous volume of material," McMasters said, "but Rock Creek isn't flowing that high right now."

'Old Kanaka' attracted continued attention from visitors to his home in a fish pond at the Clear Springs Foods facility in Buhl.

China will go with Korea resolution

WASHINGTON (AP) — China will permit the U.N. Security Council to approve a resolution urging North Korea to open its suspect nuclear sites to international inspectors, South Korea's foreign minister said Wednesday.

But the minister, Han Seung-joo, said the resolution would impose "minimum requirements," and the State Department spokesman said it may be a month before another, tougher resolution is presented to the council.

The International Atomic Energy Agency in the meantime will evaluate data collected during inspections in March to determine whether North Korea has an active program to develop nuclear weapons, department spokesman Michael McCurry said.

Such a finding would have "grave consequences," he said.

Han, talking to reporters after a 50-minute meeting with Secretary of State Warren Christopher, said "the Chinese are on board in the sense of discussing the form and contents of a Security Council resolution."

Though this means "there will be minimum requirements" in the resolution, "I think it is unlikely the Chinese will veto the kind of resolution we are working on right now," Han said.

China has urged a go-slow approach toward North Korea, with whom it has close ties. Christopher, mindful of China's power to kill any resolution, has decided to stage the resolutions in a way that would give North Korea more time to accept international inspectors before risking U.N. economic sanctions.

"I think we're very much in a unified position with respect to the United Nations Security Council," Christopher said.

"We are going to be urging a resolution there. One thing I would stress is that we're consulting very closely with all the parties, including the Chinese, about the best way to encourage the North Koreans to take the steps that the international community wants them to take."

Han lined up his government with the United States in trying to pry open suspect North Korean nuclear sites. But he said there were "some differences in emphasis" with China.

Reporting to Christopher on talks in Japan and China, he said "the Chinese have been emphasizing the importance of dialogue." The goal, he said, should be adoption of an "effective and realistic" resolution by the Security Council.

President Clinton was briefed by his national security assistant, Anthony Lake, en route to a golf club outside San Diego.

Lake said U.N. Ambassador Madeleine Albright was meeting with Chinese, British, French and Russian diplomats in New York "to work through a resolution that can take care of some of the Chinese concerns and still come up with a very firm international position."

Lake said that could lead to "broad talks" with North Korea about its future and the nuclear issue.

"Korea is a very serious issue but it is very important that we not overreact to North Korean rhetoric," the White House official said.

In fact, he said, North Korean statements have been less belligerent recently. "We simply have to be very firm and very steady and not overreact," Lake said. "That's the course we're on."

North Korea has threatened to turn South Korea into a "sea of fire." According to U.S. military analysts, the strategy is to annihilate U.S.-allied defenses before reinforcements could arrive.

Gen. Gary Luck, U.S. commander in South Korea, told Congress this month that U.S. forces would have no more than 24 hours warning before such an attack and that an all-out war could kill 400,000 U.S. and South Korean troops.

"The primary objective of North Korea's military strategy is to reunify the Korean peninsula under North Korean control within 30 days of beginning hostilities," states a publication on the North's military strategy issued by the Defense Intelligence Agency.

Asia scholar Susan Shirk said in an interview that "the reality" is that China's neighbors are less focused on the nuclear threat and more focused on the long-term stability of the Korean peninsula.

This 3 million-year-old skull confirms scientists' suspicions that a previously found skull fragment belongs to human ancestors.

Long lost cousin of 'Lucy' discovered

NEW YORK (AP) — Call him Lucy's long-lost cousin.

His recently unearthed skull reveals that Lucy and her prehuman kinsmen walked the Earth 3 million years ago, at least 150,000 years earlier than previously shown.

Lucy is perhaps the most famous representative of Australopithecus afarensis, the oldest-known species in the evolutionary branch that led eventually to humans after splitting off from the apes.

Her remains — about 40 percent of a 3.2 million-year-old skeleton — were found at Hadar, Ethiopia, in 1974.

Now, scientists have found nearly by the most complete afarensis skull so far.

The skull, that of a male, is about 70 percent to 75 percent complete, including the lower jaw. It is only about 3 million years old — 200,000 years younger than Lucy.

But the skull is similar enough to a 3.9 million-year-old skull fragment found earlier in Ethiopia for scientists to now say the older fragment was indeed a member of the same afarensis species, researcher William Kimbel said.

Previously, the oldest well-identified remains of afarensis dated to about 3.6 million to 3.75 million years ago.

The skull was among 35 fossil specimens unearthed at Hadar between 1990 and 1993. The finds are reported in today's issue of the journal Nature by Kimbel and Donald C. Johanson of the Institute of Human Origins in Berkeley, Calif., and Yael Rak of Tel Aviv University.

The findings confirm that the nearly 300 specimens found so far at Hadar represent just afarensis rather than two species, as has been suggested, the researchers wrote. Moreover, they add to evidence that afarensis changed little over 900,000 years, they wrote.

Two other Nature papers deal with the origins of anatomically modern humans.

One genetic analysis supports the idea that modern humans arose in Africa. In the other, the idea that modern humans appeared in a single area rather than in multiple regions. The study could not identify the area.

CNN faces contempt charge over tape use

MIAMI (AP) — CNN was charged with criminal contempt Wednesday for broadcasting tape recordings of ousted Panamanian dictator Manuel Noriega's prison conversations.

Cable News Network was charged with "knowingly and willfully" disobeying an order from Noriega's trial judge by broadcasting translated excerpts of conversations between Noriega and his attorneys' staff.

The case, long in the review stage, is a constitutional showdown over freedom of the press and free trial rights.

CNN attorneys pleaded innocent, and U.S. District Judge William Hoewer scheduled a three-day, nonjury trial to begin July 11.

"CNN welcomes the opportunity for Judge Hoewer to hear all the evidence in this matter and believes it will not be found to have violated any of the court's orders," said CNN spokesman Steve Haworth, reading a company statement in Atlanta.

If convicted, the company would face a fine, with the judge holding the sole discretion over the amount. No individuals are named in the case.

The charge was filed by Robert Dunlap, a former federal prosecutor, appointed by Hoewer to review the tapes issue after the U.S. attorney's office dropped out in 1991 to avoid an appearance of conflict.

Nina Vinik, legal director of the American Civil Liberties Union in Florida, called the criminal charge inappropriate but said CNN was wrong in broadcasting the tapes.

"It's our position that criminal sanctions against the press are not an appropriate means to dealing with this kind of problem," she said. "But absolutely the stuff was privileged and should never have been disclosed, and the person or persons responsible for that disclosure should certainly be pursued."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. William H. Natcher, best known for an unmatched streak of 18,401 consecutive House votes that he ultimately advised others to shun, was remembered Wednesday as a throwback to a more collegial, dutiful time in American politics.

The mannerly Kentucky Democrat and 40-year congressional veteran died of a heart failure Tuesday night in Bethesda Naval Hospital near Washington. He was 84, and had spent most of the last several weeks in the hospital.

"His death was peaceful and in the company of his family and friends," said a statement from his office.

Natcher rose two years ago to the chairmanship of the House Appropriations Committee, which controls one-third of the $1.5 trillion federal budget. Before that, he chaired that panel's health subcommittee, using his post to fatten the budgets of the programs he most cherished — education for the handicapped and biomedical research.

But the trim, white-haired gentleman — and he was polite to the point of seeming eternally formal — was most noteworthy not for what he did in Congress, but for how civility and anachronistically he did it. The tributes reflected that.

"Some may think that Bill Natcher's death marks the end of an era in politics. I hope not," the vacationing President, Clinton said in a statement.

He died in Coronado, Calif.

"In an age when many view politics cynically, he never ceased to honor the people who sent him to Washington by honoring the institution in which he served," said House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash.

"His concern for our country was graced by a personal civility and fairness of manner that made working closely with him one of the high honors of my congressional career," said House Minority Leader Bob Michel, R-Ill.

Unfailingly clad in a starched white shirt and dark, three-piece suit, whatever the season, he looked and acted like a lawmaker from a long-vanished epoch.

He handled much of his own legislative work and constituents' mail, hired an unusually small staff of a

Report criticizes school manager

WASHINGTON (AP) — A company hired by the city of Baltimore to run 11 public schools has fallen short of its promise, a teachers union charged Wednesday, citing falling test scores and a rising ratio of students to teachers.

Education Alternatives Inc. is not doing the job it was hired to do, said Greg Humphrey, executive assistant to the president of the American Federation of Teachers.

"The letter grade we'd give is an incomplete," Humphrey said at a news conference.

"Their contract calls for better schools and they do not have better schools," said Loretta Johnson, co-president of the Baltimore Teachers Union, which has been highly critical of EAI.

But Nat Herrington, a spokesman for the Baltimore school system, said the union is embarking on a national campaign to discredit school privatization and is using out-dated information to manipulate the media.

New legislation allows buyouts

CORONADO, Calif. — President Clinton signed legislation Wednesday allowing the government to offer its workers buyouts of up to $25,000 if they resign of their own.

"The new law is part of an effort to pare the federal work force by nearly 12 percent over five years."

"After all the rhetoric about cutting the size and cost of government, our administration has done the hard work and made the tough choices," Clinton said in a statement.

The law should reduce federal employment by 272,900 by the end of fiscal 1999, dropping the size of the federal bureaucracy below 2 million for the first time since 1965 and to its lowest level since 1950.

Gore carries pledge of help to South

PIEDMONT, Ala. — Carrying a promise of federal help to the tornado-swept Southeast, Vice President Al Gore in the ruins of a country church Wednesday called the preacher couple whose daughter died in the rubble "a lesson in grace."

The series of tornadoes Sunday that killed at least 44 people in Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee, North Carolina and South Carolina left the darkest mark here at the Goshen United Methodist Church, headed by the Revs. Dale and Kelly-Elm. At least 20 worshippers, including the Revs. 4-year-old daughter, died when the church roof collapsed during Palm Sunday services.

President Clinton, vacationing in Southern California, declared Alabama a major disaster area Wednesday, making federal financing available to affected individuals and local governments.

Tariff hike hits Japanese film firm

WASHINGTON — A Japanese film company accused of selling its products at unfairly low prices in the United States was hit with higher-than-expected punitive tariffs on Wednesday.

In a preliminary ruling, the Commerce Department said it was imposing anti-dumping penalties of between 321.23 percent and 360.95 percent against color negative photographic paper sold in the United States by Fujifilm Photo Film Co.

The case was just the latest in a series of trade disputes between the United States and Japan, but it will be the first in which punitive tariffs actually go into effect.

Former Nazi returns to Germany

WASHINGTON — A retired glassworker who served as an armed Nazi SS guard at two World War II concentration camps has left the United States permanently to live in Germany, the Justice Department said Wednesday.

German prosecutors have said they would open a new investigation if the admitted camp guard, Peter Mueller, 70, of Longmont, Colo., wound up back in Germany.

Mueller left Dulles International Airport Tuesday night for Frankfurt, Germany, after learning the government had begun action to deport him. Justice's Office of Special Investigations announced: His ultimate destination is Worms, Germany, according to the office, which hunts Nazis in this country.

Justices focus on 'in custody' meaning

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court's famous Miranda ruling requires police who question criminal suspects in custody to warn them first about their right to remain silent and have a lawyer present.

The justices focused Wednesday on one aspect of the 1966 landmark: When is someone "in custody?"

Robert Stansbury, convicted and sentenced to death for the 1982 murder of a 10-year-old girl, was confronted at his home by four policemen late at night shortly after the crime.

It's unclear whether he knew the officers had their guns drawn when they invited him to accompany them to the Pomona, Calif., police station to answer questions about the girl's disappearance.

Once at the station, the officers took Stansbury to the jail portion of the building. They questioned him in a room reached by walking through several locked doors.

About 30 minutes of questioning went by before the officers read Stansbury his so-called Miranda rights.

He then asked for a lawyer and was arrested.

Stansbury's lawyer, Robert

Westberg of San Francisco, told the justices during an hour-long argument session that all those circumstances add up to an unconstitutional custodial interrogation.

If so, Stansbury's conviction — based in part on answers he gave police — might have to be invalidated and a new trial held.

But hold on, state deputy attorney general Aileen Bunney told the high court.

Stansbury was "never told he was under arrest, never handcuffed, never booked, never told he wasn't free to leave," before his arrest, Bunney said.

She noted that the California Supreme Court concluded a reasonable person would not have considered himself in police custody — not free to leave.

The "reasonable person" test is the one the Supreme Court has long used to determine whether someone was in custody.

But Justice Anthony M. Kennedy voiced skepticism about the California court's repeated references — "I court's" repeated references — to police officers' conclusions that Stansbury initially wasn't a suspect and therefore wasn't in custody.

Court hears arguments over schools

WASHINGTON (AP) — The constitutional separation of church and state allows creation of a public school district to accommodate an insular Hasidic Jewish community's beliefs, the Supreme Court was told Wednesday.

"We believe that is part of the spirit of accommodation" of religion allowed by the Constitution's First Amendment, attorney Nathan Lewin argued for the school district for disabled children in the New York village of Kiryas Joel.

But a lawyer for state school board officials said the district's creation violated the amendment's concurrent ban on government establishment of religion.

"New York state has offered its arm to these individuals to be able to run a school district," attorney Jay Worona told the court. "The purpose is ... segregation along religious lines."

Lewin asked the court to overturn a New York court ruling that said the district unconstitutional — created a "symbolic union" between the government and the Satmar Hasidic sect.

School district officials also hope the court will use the case to throw out its longstanding test for interpreting the separation of church and state.

The court ruled in 1971 that laws or government practices are unconstitutional if they have a religious purpose, primarily advance or promote religion or excessively entangle government and religion.

Marauders under siege as units attempt to split Japanese division

Knight-Ridder News Service

The withdrawal of the Japanese 18th Division from Lt. Gen. Joseph Stilwell's first trap had yielded a large area of northwest Burma in March, 1944.

If the retreat continued, the Irrawaddy Valley would be open. Stilwell could push down it to Myitkyna and get behind the 15th Japanese Army, then engaged in a major offensive into India. Thus Maj. Gen. Shimichi Tanaka had orders to hold at all costs.

Stilwell's plan was to again use Merrill's Marauders (the 5307th Composite Unit) to penetrate behind enemy lines and cut the 18th Division off from its supply base at Kamaing, while the 22nd Chinese Division, spearheaded by Col. Rothwell Brown's 1st Provisional Tank Group, pushed the Japanese from the front.

The terrain Merrill's men would have to cross to get around the Japanese right flank was the worst so far encountered. Jungle-covered mountains cut crazily by streams. It took a superhuman physical effort, made worse by short rations and growing cases of malaria and dysentery.

The Marauders were split into two groups. The 1st Battalion was to lead the 113th Chinese regiment of the 38th Division on a shallow move to establish a roadblock at Shaduzup only 5 miles behind the lines. The 2nd and 3rd Battalions were to make a deep penetration and cut the road at Inkanghaw about halfway between the 18th Division and Kamaing.

Lt. Col. William Osborne's 1st Battalion moved down the Chongun Hka river March 27, 1944. During the night, the battalion crept up to the Japanese camp at Shaduzup and waited for dawn to attack. With fixed bayonets, the Marauders overran the enemy position as the Imperial soldiers were preparing breakfast.

"Surprise was complete, and the enemy scattered. The roadblock was established and turned over to the Chinese to hold."

The Japanese, however, preferred to bypass the roadblock rather than fight. The 1st Battalion then marched to the aid of the other two Marauder battalions who were being heavily counterattacked.

Col. Charles Hunter led the two battalion task forces to Inkanghaw, but the village was too strongly held to be captured. The Japanese sent counterattacks units from both the 18th Division (north) and the Kamaing garrison (south). Still under orders to avoid heavy casualties, Hunter pulled back from the Kamaing road and into the hills.

The Japanese pursued. If the Marauders pulled back too far, the Japanese could turn the left flank of the advancing Chinese. Hunter was told to hold at Nhpum Ga. The 2nd Battalion took a position on a ridge near the only local water hole. The 3rd Battalion held a nearby clearing that could be used for airdrops. No more "hit and run." It was now "stand and fight."

On March 28-29, the enemy attacked the 2nd Battalion from the south but were repelled. The Japanese shifted to the east and north on the 30th, but again without success. Then on the 31st, they attacked from all sides. The 2nd Battalion held but lost the water hole and was cut off from the 3rd Battalion.

The month ended with Hunter preparing to counterattack to break the siege, the 1st Battalion racing to help and the Japanese bringing up reinforcements to overwhelm the Marauders.

Guatemala mob injures Alaskan

GUATEMALA CITY — An Alaska woman caught up in hysteria over rumors that Americans are stealing children was transferred to a hospital in the capital Wednesday after suffering severe injuries at the hands of a rural mob.

The condition of Diane Wentz, 52, was described by her physician as "rather bad."

The State Department warned Americans on Wednesday to exercise caution in traveling in Guatemala because of "the hysteria that has come about."

Ms. Jung was the third foreigner known to have been attacked in Guatemala in recent days over rumors that children are being stolen. Some versions allege foreigners are taking children to sell body parts for transplant operations.

Israel cuts forces in Gaza Strip

GAZA CITY, Occupied Gaza Strip — The forest of antennas and military tents that sprouted up in downtown Gaza are gone, a sign of Israel's preparations for an imminent pullout.

Hisham Abdel-Razzak, the top PLO official in Gaza, estimated that the Israelis have removed about 70 percent of their equipment from Arab towns in the Gaza Strip and will be ready to withdraw immediately once an agreement is signed.

"Their withdrawal will be much quicker than anybody expects. It will take place in a matter of hours," Abdel-Razzak said Wednesday.

A Defense Ministry official confirmed that the army had reduced its presence by as much as 90 percent.

Acids reduce bird reproduction

NEW YORK — Acidic pollution is harming reproduction of wild birds in a Dutch forest and perhaps elsewhere by making them produce defective eggs, a study suggests.

The acid reduces amounts of calcium in the soil, leading to a reduction in the soil's population of snails, which need calcium, researchers said. With fewer snail shells to eat, the birds known as great tits have been getting much less calcium in their diets, which led to their laying more thin-shelled, porous eggs that fail to hatch, researchers said.

In Thursday's issue of the journal Nature, researchers in the Netherlands report that the birds from a forest west of Arnhem produced fewer defective eggs.

10 French sailors die in sub mishap

PARIS — Ten French sailors died in an accident aboard a submerged nuclear-powered attack submarine off Toulon, the Defense Ministry said Wednesday.

The ministry said all the deaths occurred in the Emeraude's turbo alternator compartment, where two steam-powered turbines produce electricity.

The accident did not affect the submarine's nuclear equipment and "in no way puts into question either the nuclear security of the vessel or the environment," said a ministry spokesman, whose name could not be used under French rules.

Officials gave no other details on the accident aboard the Emeraude, which is one of France's most modern attack submarines. A news conference was scheduled for later today.

Austria set to join European Union

BRUSSELS, Belgium — The European Union concluded membership talks Wednesday with Austria, clearing the way for it to join the 12-nation union in January. Sweden, Norway and Finland were set to follow later in the evening.

The EU overcame a major obstacle to accepting new members Tuesday when they settled an acrimonious dispute over voting rules.

Enlargement of the EU has been delayed a month by opposition from Britain and Spain over changes in the group's voting rules, which they claimed would weaken their veto power over union decisions.

Communist ties may reduce ANC impact

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Paul Todd is young, white and liberal.

He supports the end of apartheid, and he'd like to give the ANC a chance to govern.

But he won't vote for it in April's election.

"The more I hear about state intervention and nationalization, the more I think the ANC and the Communist Party are one and the same," said Todd, who runs a Johannesburg sporting goods business.

In the closing weeks of the election campaign, the National Party has been pounding the front-running African National Congress for its ties with South African Communists.

Full-page newspaper ads show a salivating wolf marked by a hammer-and-sickle walking beneath a sheepskin with the ANC logo.

"What lies beneath the ANC?"

PRI adjusts to new leader

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Most of Mexico's longtime ruling party ruled behind its new presidential candidate Wednesday, but some Mexicans criticized the selection as undemocratic.

Party branches from throughout Mexico bought newspaper advertisements in support of Ernesto Zedillo, 42, the overwhelming favorite to be Mexico's next president.

The new candidate spent a quiet day at the headquarters of the Institutional Revolutionary Party, or PRI, accepting congratulations from party loyalists.

"It is a day of hope because the PRI has chosen an exceptional Mexican as candidate," said Treasury Secretary Pedro Aspe, who had been considered a potential candidate.

The party spokesman's office said officials had not yet decided when to officially file Zedillo's candidacy with the Federal Electoral Institute. The previous candidate, Luis Donaldo Colosio, was assassinated March 23 during a campaign appearance in Tijuana.

But opposition parties said Zedillo's selection by a tiny group of party leaders showed the PRI had failed to become more democratic.

Zedillo "is perhaps more than ever the presidential candidate of continuity," said Cuauhtemoc Cardenas, the Democratic Revolution Party candidate who many believe was cheated of the presidency by fraud in 1988.

Peace negotiator Manuel Camacho Solis, who led most recent opinion polls as a replacement candidate, sent a lukewarm endorsement of Zedillo.

Camacho, a former Mexico City mayor, earned wide recognition during negotiations to try to end the rebellion in southern Mexico. But his failure to endorse Colosio outraged many PRI loyalists and eliminated him from consideration as the replacement candidate.

more equitably among the black majority.

Hoping to reduce the ANC's expected wide victory margin in the April 26-28 election, President F.W. de Klerk's National Party has been highlighting the number of Communists on the ANC's election ticket. The party claims that 28 out of the ANC's top 50 candidates for Parliament are present or former Communists.

"The ANC is linked to hard-core socialism which has failed throughout the world," de Klerk tells his rallies.

"I'm not afraid of the South African Communist Party — they're pushovers. But they are dangerous because they occupy key positions in the ANC."

The ANC says it has only 16 Communists in its top 50 posts, and only 27 among its 200 MPs and Parliament candidates, who are ranked by order of seniority and will earn seats depending on how much of the vote the ANC wins.

Many of the Communists are high enough on the ANC list to be assured of Parliament seats. Communist Party leader Joe Slovo, for example, is the ANC's No. 4 candidate.

Historically, the Communists were among the staunchest and most radical foes of apartheid among whites. Some gave their lives or spent decades in prison.

That is one reason why ANC leader Nelson Mandela refuses to repudiate the Communist Party or to distance himself from people such as Cuban leader Fidel Castro, a friend of the ANC for decades.

Yet fear of communism doesn't need much encouragement in a country whose neighbors include Mozambique, Angola, Zambia and Zimbabwe.

What makes surgeon general think Americans' sexuality being repressed?

"Society," says the surgeon general, "wants to keep all sexuality in the closet." Which makes one wonder: What society is Dr. Joycelyn Elders living in? Surely hers is an interesting sensibility if she lives in today's America and frets that there is insufficient thinking and talking about things sexual.

This is a society in which parents can hardly watch television with their children without wincing in which a walk past a magazine rack is a walk on the wild side, in which before or after the steamy soap operas have got the afternoon television audience panting, on come Geraldo, and Montel and Sally. "Next, bisexual grocers and the lingerie they love!"

Someone should send the surgeon general some tapes of the "shock jocks" now flourishing on radio — Howard Stern and the rest. That would assuage her anxiety that sexuality is being "repressed" by "Victorian morality" in an America that needs "to be more open about sex."

George F. Will

The surgeon general should be gratified by the out-of-the-closet television commercial for little Hyundai automobiles. In it, two women speculate that men who buy big cars are compensating for their small penises. Observing the driver of a large car, one woman says "He must be compensating for a shortcoming?" Of the man who drives up in a Hyundai, the other woman says,

"I wonder what he's got under the hood."

A columnist for Ad Age notes that, in the argot of advertising, this is an ad campaign based on "penis-length positioning."

Imitation really is the sincerest form of television: Last Monday two consecutive CBS comedies, "Murphy Brown" and "Hearst Afire," featured penis jokes. Given that such is now the stuff of mass entertainment and advertising, it is a mystery what the surgeon general thinks is left back there in the recesses of the nation's sexuality closet, and why she wants it — whatever it is — out.

You may well think the river of national life is silting up rather rapidly with sexuality in all its permutations — gays in the military, gays in the St. Patrick's Day parades, Bob Packwood, Michael Jackson, Madonna, MTV,

"dule rape" seminars for freshmen, and so on, and on. But the surgeon general, in an interview with The Advocate, a magazine for homosexuals, indicates that she thinks the nation is suffering from sexual reticence.

In the process of endorsing adoption of children by homosexuals, and embracing the fiction that 10 percent of young people are homosexuals, she says "sex is good, sex is wonderful." Verily it can be, but Elders' effusions are not exactly all that the nation just now needs to hear from its principal public health official.

The New York Times reports a resurgence of what it delicately describes as "commercial establishments where people meet for sex." It means places like the Adonis theater, a cinema on Eighth Avenue between 43rd and 44th streets in Manhattan. The city is estimated to have about 50 similar establishments where people go for sex, often for anonymous sex with multiple partners.

The city government knows that it will have to care for many of the more than 80,000 "AIDS orphans" — children whose mothers died of AIDS — that the nation will have by the end of this decade. The city closed the Adonis in January because not all sex is good and wonderful.

When used by advanced thinkers like Elders, the phrase "in the closet" means "unliberated." But would be liberators like Elders have a problem, there being little remaining in the way of laws or mores from which anyone can be liberated. Sure, in some cities children who are not yet in the sixth grade are denied information about anal intercourse, but such minor imperfections in American liberty make for an uninspiring agenda for sexual liberators.

It really is no longer daring to say, as Elders did to The Advocate, "I feel that God meant sex for more than procreation," and of course Elders has a right to construe God's will as she pleases. But can someone explain why a government official, and particularly this one, is favoring us with such thoughts? Where in the job description of the surgeon general does it deal with the duty to issue public lamentations about America's sexual repression? Repression is what she implies by her remarkable judgment that American society — has she seen Calvin Klein underwear ads? — "wants to keep all sexuality in the closet."

Idaho. Famous for potatoes, cutthroat trout and high technology.

For those of us who live and work in Idaho, the natural treasures that surround us are obvious. Endless acres of White Pine. Pristine mountain streams. And herds of wild Appaloosa.

Still, there are other treasures, perhaps less obvious but no less valuable. Like the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory. The INEL is world renowned for some of the most important scientific accomplishments of this century, including the first use of nuclear fission to produce usable electricity.

For people all across Idaho, the INEL means thousands of jobs and opportunities. It infuses millions of dollars into the state economy. Now, the Lockheed Idaho team and the great people of Idaho are ready to work together to help the INEL be, for all of us, a living symbol of the pride of Idaho.

Duke sets NCAA standard

The Associated Press

RALEIGH, N.C. — Duke has set an extraordinary possession standard for college basketball. Three teams will take that as their challenge starting Saturday.

The Blue Devils surprised coach Mike Krzyzewski's expectations this year by making it to yet another Final Four. Two more victories will give Duke its third national championship in four years.

Arkansas, Arizona and Florida are after their first titles, and the Gators are in the Final Four for the first time.

"Certainly, there's a tremendous amount of respect for Duke, not only their success, but the way they go about things," Florida coach Lon Kruger said during a conference call Wednesday. "They've got a program there that could be a model for everyone." Florida (29-7) takes the first shot at the Blue Devils (27-5) in the second of two semifinal games Saturday at the Charlotte Coliseum. Arizona (29-5) plays Arkansas (29-3) in the opener (5:42 p.m. EST). The winners go after the championship Monday night.

Arizona and Duke were at the 1988 Final Four in Kansas City, Mo. At that time, it was Lute Olson's first trip with the Wildcats — he had been there with Iowa in 1980 — and Krzyzewski's second.

"It's an unbelievable accomplishment when you look at the fact that to get there, you've got to win four games against outstanding teams and great pressure in every game that they go into," Olson said.

"There have been some years when I think everybody expected they would get there, and there have been some other years when it's taken just an unbelievable coaching job and effort by his kids to get there. It's not something that's going to be very easy for anyone to match."

Nolan Richardson lost to Duke in the 1990 Final Four semifinals in Denver. That was Richardson's first trip, the fourth for Krzyzewski. Five more trips, including this year's two-hour bus ride to Charlotte, have followed for Duke.

"I think it's incredible any time a guy can get to the Final Four and be able to win four games," Richardson said.

BYU assistant takes Utah Valley post

OREM, Utah — Jeff Reinert, assistant coach at Brigham Young University for the past three years, was appointed basketball coach for Utah Valley State College Wednesday.

Reinert replaces Duke Reid who left the position due to health. Reid had a heart attack and surgery a year ago.

In other scenic West Conference news, College of Eastern Utah announced Wednesday that Leon Carter, its 6-10 center for the past two years, has verbally committed to San Diego State.

Former U of I basketball coach takes Utah State job

LOGAN, Utah — Kermit Davis, former University of Idaho and Texas Tech head basketball coach, will be joining Larry Eustace's staff at Utah State University. Davis has left his head coaching job at Chippola, Fla., junior college. He reportedly will be bringing at least two transfers with him.

Adult golf lessons offered in Twin Falls next month

TWIN FALLS — Professional Mike Hamblin and Tommy Sanderson will conduct day and evening golf sessions for area adults next month.

All classes will be limited to 10 students and two instructors. Evening schools will run April 12-15 and April 19-22; day schools April 12-14 and April 19-21 and weekend sessions April 9-10 and April 23-24.

More information is available by calling the Twin Falls Municipal pro shop at 733-3326.

Anderson aces 11th hole at Blue Lakes Wednesday

BUHL — Dave Anderson of Ketchum took advantage of a nice spring day to do some traveling and make some personnel history.

Anderson made his first hole-in-one with a 5-iron at Clear Lake Country Club's par-3, 200-yard 11th hole.

Ketchum's Dave Cropper witnessed the shot Wednesday.

Fuchs gets hole-in-one at Jerome Country Club

JEROME — Dick Fuchs used a rare wood (a 9-wood) to make a rarer shot (a hole-in-one) at Jerome Country Club over the weekend.

Greg Kadlec, Bernard Bodmer and Cal Jensen watch Fuchs convert his tee shot on the par-3 185-yard sixth hole.

RUPERT — Minico High School's girls amassed 88 points to win their own invitational track quadrangular Wednesday afternoon.

Skyline, whose girls finished with 644, swapped victories with the Spartans. The Grizzlies prevailed 94-81 over Minico on the boys' side. Twin Falls and Madison wound up third and fourth, respectively, on both sides of the ledger.

"I felt pretty good about today," said Minico Coach Wes Patterson. "The girls were solid and our boys finished second — a close second."

Distance ace Jenny Mortensen claimed the 3200-meter run, then returned to pace a 1-2-3-5 Spartan domination of the open 800.

Villanova tops NIT, 80-73

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Villanova completed an amazing turnaround from its dreadful 1992-93 season, winning the NIT championship Wednesday night with an 80-73 victory over a much more experienced Vanderbilt team.

The Wildcats, who finished with a 20-12 record after going 8-19 last year, rallied from a 15-point halftime deficit and won going away despite great outside shooting by Vanderbilt's Frank Secker.

The Commodores (20-12) self-destructed in the second half, scoring just three points in the last four minutes after being tied 70-70.

For Vanderbilt, ex-Duke guard Billy McCaffrey scored just five points, 16 below his average, including none in the final 20 minutes.

broke a 60-60 tie 1:22 later with his sixth of the game.

Villanova went ahead 73-70 with 3:22 left on Hayes' third 3-pointer of the half, and the game stayed scoreless until 56 seconds remained, when Alvin Williams made a foul shot after an intentional foul on Bryan Milburn on a breakaway.

Ron Wilson made two free throws with 26 seconds left, but Secker hit another 3-pointer with 15.1 seconds left, making it 76-73. Eberz made two free throws with 13 seconds left and Williams scored a breakaway layup with three seconds left to wrap it up.

In the consolation game, Doremus Bennerman scored 51 points as Siena (25-8) beat Kansas State (20-14) 92-79.

Bennerman, who scored his last 19 points from the foul line and excited to a standing ovation, broke the tournament scoring record of 132 points set by Reggie King of Alabama in 1979. The senior guard finished the tournament with 174 points, an average of 34.8 per game.

Switzer hopes for little change as head coach

The Associated Press

IRVING, Texas — First, Barry Switzer got Jimmy Johnson's goat. Then, he got his job.

Switzer, nearly unbeatable in college but untested in the NFL, replaced his longtime nemesis as coach of the Dallas Cowboys on Wednesday. He said he wouldn't tinker with a team that won two straight Super Bowls.

"There won't be any changes," the 56-year-old Switzer said. "I hope the Cowboys don't change. Jimmy and I are a lot alike. We've always been motivated and able to communicate to our teams. I just hope I can be compared to what Jimmy did."

Switzer, who won three national championships at Oklahoma but left amid scandal in 1989, got the job a day after Johnson stepped aside and ended his stormy five years under owner Jerry Jones.

It was the mere mention of Switzer's name in a bar tirade by Jones that infuriated Johnson to the point that he walked away from a chance to lead the team to a record third straight Super Bowl victory.

"Get ready to watch the Dallas Cowboys be the best in the NFL," said Switzer, who was Jones' freshman football coach at the University of Arkansas.

"We have a job to do and we're gonna do it, baby!"

Switzer will retain every coach on Johnson's staff, including offensive coordinator Ernie Zampese and defensive coordinator Butch Davis.

"It's the greatest coaching staff in the NFL," Switzer said. "I competed against some of them. I just ask them to give me a chance. Just let me garner their respect."

Switzer and Johnson were assistants at Oklahoma, where Switzer dubbed Johnson "Jimmy Jump-Up." They were rivals when Johnson became head coach at Oklahoma State, losing every year to the Sooners the five seasons he was there.

After Johnson moved to Miami, he handed Switzer his only loss three years in a row, including the 1988 Orange Bowl for the national championship.

A year later, Switzer resigned after a scandal at Oklahoma that included NCAA probation, three players charged with rape, another charged with shooting a teammate and the starting quarterback indicted on cocaine-related charges.

"I get to work with 50 professionals now," Switzer said. "I don't miss the hassles with the NCAA and recruiting."

But he did miss being out of football. "I give my commitment of loyalty, of excellence, of total commitment of making this program what it has been in the past and what it will be in the future," Switzer said.

Johnson was diplomatic in his response to the news that Switzer replaced him, saying it is strictly Jones' decision.

New Dallas Cowboys head coach Barry Switzer, left, and Cowboys owner Jerry Jones walk to a news conference where Jones announced Switzer as the new coach.

Johnson helps college cause

The Associated Press

Jimmy Johnson helped debunk the NFL establishment's attitude that a mere college coach can't succeed in the pros. Now Barry Switzer will try to follow in Johnson's footsteps.

Will he do it by installing the wishbone at Texas Stadium?

Go back five years.

When Johnson went from the University of Miami to Dallas, there was hoisting, some of it open, about college coaches coming to the NFL.

"There are no East Carolinas to beat up on here," said Buddy Ryan, then coach of the Philadelphia Eagles, noting the college tendency to schedule passies on whom to run up the score for poll purposes.

It took Johnson a couple of years, but he proved he could beat the Redskins, Eagles, Giants and Cardinals (and, of course, the Buffalo Bills), often with the same ease with which the Hurricanes beat East Carolina (and Notre Dame).

That and the success of other ex-college coaches in the NFL should make at least one aspect of the transition easier for Switzer.

Not only did Johnson coach the Cowboys to two NFL titles, but Dennis Green in Minnesota and Bobby Ross in San Diego have upgraded the image of college coaches, so much so that Tom Coughlin was hired by Jacksonville from Boston College as the Jaguars' first head coach.

Five others: George Seifert's only head-coaching experience before the NFL was at Cornell; Bill Parcells' "Mr. Air-Force," Bill Walsh's at Stanford, and Sam Wyche's at Indiana.

But Green, Ross, Coughlin, Seifert, Wyche and Parcells had been NFL assistants. And Jack Pardee coached the Bears and Redskins before going to the University of Houston, then back to the Oilers.

Johnson came in with no NFL experience at a time when the most recent examples of a college coach going pro were Darryl Rogers, 18-40 at Detroit between 1985-88 and Ron Meyer, 54-52 in stormy tenures with New England and Indianapolis.

Johnson also bore the burden of succeeding Tom Landry, an NFL icon.

But players took to him quickly.

"With Jimmy, the bottom is getting the job done," Tom Rafferty, a center who had been through the wars with Landry, said at Johnson's first camp. "We all like that."

Rafferty is long gone.

But Switzer inherits players who have had even more success under Johnson, many of them ranked at owner Jerry Jones for letting Jimmy go. Moreover, Switzer probably will have to accept most of Johnson's coaching staff — March 1 is the cutoff date for signing assistants currently employed by other teams.

He indicated that he will indeed keep them.

Glenns Ferry boys, Raft River girls lead meet

By Vin Capriello
Times-News writer

GLENN'S FERRY—Senior leadership by members of Glenns Ferry's boys track team enabled the host Pilots to outdistance six other teams Wednesday at their invitational meet.

And the depth of the Raft River girls proved to be the difference as the Trojans outscored Glenns Ferry 156-105.5 for the team title.

The Pilot boys got off to a strong start, capturing 83 points before the running events started. Jared Solosabal earned shot put and discus victories, and Russ Farris and Eddie Rainford captured first place in the long jump and pole vault, respectively. Farris later finished first in the 100-meter dash in 11.6 seconds.

"Our kids did a great job," Pilot mentor Brent Taylor said, making special mention of seniors Joe Solosabal, Blake Farris, Rainford, Jason Thomas and Mike Bryant.

Taylor added that while the Pilots cleaned up in the field events, the best is yet to come. "The thing about it is we have some guys who haven't been in the field events yet who will score some points," Taylor said.

Other notable individual performances on the boys' side came from Kimberly's Jordan Beard, who won the 800- and 1,600-meter runs and anchored the Bulldogs' victorious medley relay team that also included Shawn Annis, Luke Mickelson and Russell Watson. Beard was clocked in 2:11.9 and 5:03 in the open events, adding a 2:14 split in the medley.

Jessica Bingham of Carey was a triple winner as well, winning the triple jump, high hurdles and low hurdles.

Ginger Barton of Carey was the top performer of the day in the girls' meet. She had a quartet of victories in the 100-, 200- and 400-meter dashes, and she anchored the Panthers' winning 4x400-meter relay team. Her performance boosted Carey to a third-place team finish. Kimberly was fourth.

Barton ran an especially strong relay leg, holding off a late charge by Kimberly's Autumn Giles. The Bulldogs finished second to the Panthers in that relay, and also were runners up in the medley and winners of the 4x100-meter relay.

Filer, Wood River split games

HAILEY—The Filer Wildcats came up with a six-run seventh inning to overhaul Wood River 13-12 in the opener of a prep double-header Wednesday but the Wolverines rebounded for a 6-3 nightcap decision.

Wood River appeared to have the opener well in hand, Tom Rushion hitting a three-run homer to start it in the first inning.

But Filer came up with the rally, Dave Cowger starting and ending the inning with the decisive RBI.

In the nightcap—held to five innings by darkness—Wood River scored five runs in the first two innings and stay in front.

Boston turns cold against Pacers

Boston Celtics forward Rick Fox, right, gets fouled by Indiana Pacers forward Ken Williams during the first half of their game at Boston Garden.

BOSTON (AP)—If you can't beat them, at least make them freeze.

After Indiana defeated Boston 103-99 Wednesday night, assuring the Celtics of a losing record at home for the first time in a quarter-century, the Pacers found only one working shower in the visitors' locker room at ancient Boston Garden—and it had ice-cold water.

"It's freezing. That's a damn shame," snapped Byron Scott, preparing to head out into a wintry night of 39 degrees and chilling winds.

Other Pacers players loudly cursed the Boston Garden, which is to be torn down at the end of next season.

Rick Smith had 21 points and five teammates also scored in double figures for the Pacers, who won at Boston Garden for the first time since Nov. 24, 1990.

Antonio Davis and Reggie Miller added 16 points for Indiana, which ended a four-game road losing streak. Dale Davis had 13 points and 20 rebounds.

"I've watched Boston play, and they certainly aren't the team they were in the past," said Indiana coach Larry Brown, who got his 700th pro coaching victory. That total includes 230 wins in the NBA.

Rick Fox had 28 points and 11 rebounds for Boston, which has lost five straight at Boston Garden. Dino Radja added 23 points and Jimmy Oliver had 16.

Indiana has won 20 of 29 games and held 13 of its last 14 opponents under 100 points.

The Celtics have lost 21 of 25. They had won three straight games, all in overtime, entering the contest—and nearly reached overtime for what would have been an NBA-record fourth straight time.

The Celtics are 14-21 at home with six games remaining. Their last losing record at home was in 1969-70, and they had only three other losing home records in club history.

Nets 11, Heat 101

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP)—Kenny Anderson scored nine points in a 21-7 spur at the end of the third quarter and New Jersey Nets moved ahead of slumping Miami in the standings by handing the Heat their sixth straight loss, 111-101 Wednesday night.

The victory was a season-high eighth straight at home for New Jersey (37-32) and moved them into sixth place in the Eastern Conference, a half-game ahead of the Heat (37-33).

New Jersey dominated inside, holding a 71-42 advantage on the boards as Miami played without Ronny Seikaly, who was sidelined for the second straight game with an ankle injury.

Derrick Coleman led the Nets with 25 points and 11 rebounds. Anderson also had a double-double with 19 points and 13 assists. Nets center Benoit Benjamin and Jayson Williams had 14 and 12 points, respectively, and forced Heat center John Salley to foul out early in the final quarter.

However, the game had been decided by then.

Piazza's homer puts Dodgers over Yanks

By The Associated Press

VERO BEACH, Fla.—Mike Piazza hit his ninth homer of the spring and Chan Ho Park pitched four effective innings as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the New York Yankees 4-1 Wednesday.

Piazza, the 1993 NL Rookie of the Year, put the Dodgers ahead for good in the second with a solo shot off Jimmy Key. Piazza, tied with Boston's Mo Vaughn for most home runs in spring training, also hit an RBI double off Paul Gibson in the eighth.

Braves 3, Marlins 0
MELBOURNE, Fla.—Greg Maddux improved to 5-0 this spring, pitching three scoreless innings as Atlanta sent Florida to its eighth straight loss.

Maddux, hoping to win his third consecutive Cy Young this season, has a 1.96 ERA in 23 innings. He also singled and scored the Braves' first run in three games.

Red Sox 1, Cardinals 0
FORT MYERS, Fla.—Roger Clemens tuned up for his seventh straight opening day start by allowing two hits in six shutout innings as Boston beat St. Louis 1-0.

Clemens (4-0) struck out three and walked two. He's scheduled to start Monday against Detroit.

Boston's run came in the second off Jim Neidinger on two-out singles by Greg Blosser, Bob Zupic and Lee Tinsley.

Rangers 7, Twins 0
PORT CHARLOTTE, Fla.—Kevin Brown prepared for his opening day start with five scoreless innings and kept Texas Wednesday, leading Texas over Minnesota.

Brown, who will pitch April 4 in New York against the Yankees, allowed two hits and no walks.

Canebo hit his sixth homer of the spring, a two-run shot in the fifth inning. Falmier hit a solo shot, his fifth in the fourth inning off Mike Trombley.

Mariners 7, Cubs 2
PEORIA, Ariz. (AP)—Jay Buhner hit two home runs, including a grand slam, and Seattle won its team-record 18th game of the spring, beating Chicago.

At 18-9, the Mariners have the best spring record in the majors. Seattle surpassed its 1991 mark of 17 wins in the exhibition season.

Randy Johnson, Seattle's opening day starter in Cleveland on Monday, gave up two runs in six innings; Sammy Sosa batted for the Cubs.

Blue Jays 1, Tigers 0
DETROIT (AP)—Randy Johnson pitched the first of his first season's games.

4 NCAA teams go for Final glory

Duke makes a habit of Final 4 Gators football takes back seat

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Remembering where he's been has helped Mike Krzyzewski appreciate where he and Duke are going.

The Blue Devils are making a habit of trips to the Final Four much the way UCLA did in the 1960s and early 1970s. Duke's seventh trip in nine years comes on Saturday, when it faces Florida in the second game of the semifinals in Charlotte.

Duke

If Duke wins, it gets a chance for a third national title in four years on Monday night against the winner of the Arkansas-Arizona semifinal game. Asked about how many Final Fours it took him to be satisfied, Krzyzewski had a simple answer.

"One," he said. Duke had three players from the 1978 team that went after the championship against Kentucky when Krzyzewski arrived in 1981. The Blue Devils made the NIT that year, but had to scrap to get 21 wins in the next two seasons.

This run of postseason prominence began in Krzyzewski's sixth season at Duke, in 1986, when the freshman class he recruited in 1982 turned a struggling program into a contender. In 1984, the Blue Devils took a first-round loss, then lost to Boston College in the second round the next year.

"The thing is, it's interesting ... to think back to '84, or before because I do, and that's why I appreciate each one we've been to," Krzyzewski said.

Once the Blue Devils started the next mission was to win the title. It got to be a long journey.

After missing the 1987 trip to New Orleans, Duke helped celebrate the 50th anniversary of the NCAA championship in Kansas City, but Kansas and Danny Manning tossed them out of the party. In 1989, Duke lost Robert Brinkley in the first half of the semifinal game against Seton Hall. Danny Ferry couldn't do it by himself, and Duke missed out again.

The Bobby Hurley era began in 1990, and it continued the Final Four experience. While he had established himself as the on-court leader, it was Nevada-Las Vegas that denied the Blue Devils in the finals.

Hurley took Duke back to the championship in Indianapolis in 1991, and he helped the Blue Devils and their agonizing quest for the crown with victories over UNLV and Kansas.

Hurley and Christian Laettner helped Duke make it consecutive titles when it beat Indiana and Michigan in 1992. It was a milestone, but not one that Krzyzewski leans upon.

"I don't think back to '92. I think back to coaching at Army," Krzyzewski said. "I think back to playing at Army when playing in the NIT was marvelous, and I try to feel those feelings about what it would have meant to me to have this opportunity."

With all those chances behind him, Krzyzewski is still aiming at more. It's a monotony he can live with. "It would never be old hat," he said. "If I would, then that means I'm not thinking about the right things."

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — For a change, hardly anybody is paying attention to spring football practice at Florida.

Former Gators basketball coach Norm Sloan once said there are three seasons at the Southeastern Conference school: football season, the first time, and this football-crazy town is excited.

Campus bookstores are doing brisk business in t-shirts and other NCAA tournament-related apparel, and students, fans and the community as a whole are gearing up for Saturday's national semifinal game against Duke. And, Kruger's phone hasn't stopped ringing since the Gators won the East Regional.

"I've heard from people I don't even know. Even after they remind me of how I know them, I don't know them," the coach said. "But we still have a good conversation. It's good to hear people feel good about what you're doing. It sure beats the alternative."

All the calls haven't been for the coach. His 10-year-old son Kevin, who sits on the bench and frequently is seen on television during Florida games, has received several requests for interviews that were denied.

"It's fun, it's exciting. It's what it's all about," daddy Kruger said of the attention the team, which leaves for Charlotte on Thursday, is getting.

"It's what these players have worked for. We want them to experience the right amount of the Final Four atmosphere," Kruger added. "But you have to be careful, obviously, to not allow it to become such a distraction that all of a sudden their preparation is different from what it has been throughout this season."

For advice on how to handle the exposure and increased demands on players' time, Kruger turned to some of his friends who have been through the experience.

"Where that fine line is, I'm not sure. I have the answer. It's the first time for us (as coaches) as well. We talked to various people and have gotten different ideas about their experiences, yet we've got to kind of balance that with what we feel will work best with the personality of our team."

So far, the players are loving it. They've signed autographs on their way to practices, mugged for photographers and happily answered the same questions over and over.

"It's been different," Dametri Hill, the Gators' 6-foot-7, 290-pound sophomore center said. "It feels weird in a sense, but nice, too."

Junior Dan Cross grew up in Carbondale, Ill., admiring Illinois and Kentucky, two schools where basketball players receive more attention than football players.

Arizona eyes Corliss as biggest problem

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — He runs like a guard, rebounds like a center and shoots like a small forward.

Arizona coach Lute Olson has this problem: What to do about Corliss Williamson of Arkansas?

The 6-foot-7, 245-pound sophomore forward has scored 20 or more points in eight of his last nine games.

The Wildcats (29-5) meet Arkansas (29-3) on Saturday in Charlotte, N.C., in the opening game of the Final Four.

The winner advances to the national championship game. Monday night against Florida or Duke.

Olson said it's not easy trying to figure out the best way to counter Williamson.

"He runs it like a guard," he said Wednesday. "So it's really going to put a lot of pressure on our big guys to make the transition on he can really hurt you. The other thing is he can't shoot. He's strong and has a great touch on his shots."

Earlier in the week, Olson said he'd start 6-foot-8, 200-pound Ray Owes, the Wildcats' leading rebounder (8 per game) against Williamson.

"I think Ray will do a great job, but this is one he'll have to step up big time," Olson said.

The coach said he hadn't decided whether to try doubling down defensively on Williamson. That worked in holding Louisville all-American center Cliff Rozier to five points last week.

Olson said he thinks his players are up to the challenge of handling Williamson.

Usually, he said, a defense can be designed to deny some move by an opposing player. Williamson, a second-team all-American, is something else.

"The thing with him is that he can take it both ways, he can power it through you, he can shoot the jumper," Olson said. "... So it's his versatility that creates the problems."

Earlier, Olson likened Williamson to a young Charles Barkley. But Wednesday, he agreed with Arkansas coach Nolan Richardson's comparison of Williamson with Larry Johnson of the NBA's Charlotte Hornets.

"There are a lot of similarities," said Olson, whose team faced Johnson while he attended

UNLV. "After he (Richardson) said that I got to thinking about it because Johnson was such an all-around player that just didn't have any weaknesses, and that's what it appears with him (Williamson) also."

Richardson, speaking by conference call Wednesday, said when playing someone as powerful as Williamson, "you're going to have to give him something," with the likely result either a basket or free throws. This year he's averaging 20.1 points and 7.5 rebounds a game. What's more, he's become one of the Razorbacks' best free throw shooters.

"Corliss pound-for-pound is probably the strongest kid in the university," Richardson said. "I've never seen a football player who can lift what he lifts with his legs."

Arkansas' Scotty Thurman drives past team manager Ryan Hogue during practice Wednesday in Fayetteville, Ark.

Razorbacks to break Final 4 failure streak

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — This year's crop of Razorbacks hopes to break the Arkansas tradition of failure in the Final Four when it meets Arizona on Saturday.

Arkansas (29-3) is winless in four previous semifinals. Only Houston has made more trips — five — without bringing home the national title.

The Razorbacks don't have to match the Cougars' futility. "That will be something we'll try to use to catapult us into the championship game," forward Corliss Williamson said.

"This team has made a lot of history this year, and hopefully we can make some more out there."

Houston made the Final Four in 1967 and 1968, and 1982-1984. Arkansas' previous trips were 1941, 1978 and 1990. Each time it was the underdog — most recently with a talent-laden team led by sophomores Todd Day, Lee Mayberry and Oliver Miller against Duke.

This time, Arkansas finished first in the college basketball poll and is favored to win it all. The Razorbacks were ranked No. 1 for nine weeks, twice as long as any other team.

"There's a difference in our program today than four years ago or any of the others," UA Athletic director Frank Broyles said. "Today, the fans and the players expect to win against anybody we play. The '90 and '78 Final Fours, we were just excited about getting to it. This focus is different."

In 1941, All-American John Adamed led the Razorbacks to the national semifinals, where they lost 64-53 to Washington State. The Razorbacks lost in the 1945 semifinals 68-41 to Henry Iba's Oklahoma State team.

Three Triplets — Sidney Moncrief, Ron Brewer and Marvin Delph — led Arkansas to the Final Four in 1978. The Razorbacks lost to eventual champion Kentucky 64-54 in the semifinals then beat Notre Dame 71-69 in the consolation game.

Arkansas was a surprise finalist in 1990 after slipping through the Midwest Regional without meeting the top three seeds — Oklahoma, Georgetown and Purdue.

Four years later, Richardson is the first coach to guide the Razorbacks to two Final Fours, and the first to be favored.

"We're not settling for making it to the Final Four," guard Clint Daniel said. "We're not settling for trying to get to the championship game. We're trying to win a national championship."

Minico

Continued from B1 century and triple jump and placed third on 200 meters. Donna Bennett duplicated that feat in the distance events.

"I don't remember when we ever beat Twin Falls with the girls," Patterson said. "I think that's a first, but I can't be sure. I've only been here 16 years."

Skyline and Twin Falls divided the boys relays, but Minico managed a double winner there in hurdler Mitch Goodwin.

A pair of triple winners combined with sophomore sensation Ben Bennett to provide 80 of Twin Falls' combined 117 points.

Nancy Emery beat all comers in the 100, 200 and 400. Josh Amundson doubled in the short sprints before taking the triple jump in a pair of borrowed shoes.

"I wasn't going to jump. I thought I'd save it all for the track," said Amundson. "I didn't jump last week because of tendonitis in my knee from basketball. I didn't want to bring my chance into a lead they would not relinquish on the curve, then returned for his second 400-meter open triumph in as many meets."

"He loves to compete. Boy does he love to compete," said Twin Falls Coach Duane Starn. "We're not finding too many with his kind of courage. He looked like he was losing it on the curve, then he put it all together again."

Holyfield looks to regain title

HOUSTON (AP) — Heavyweight Evander Holyfield isn't taking next month's title defense against Michael Moore lightly, but the WBA and IBF champion clearly has his eye on a bigger prize.

"I still have a goal — to be the undisputed champion of the world again," Holyfield said Wednesday during a break from training for the April 22 bout against Moore in Las Vegas.

"What's first is Michael Moore, and I have to take this fight very seriously and go through Michael Moore and not around him."

If Holyfield can get past Moore he is hoping to unify the heavyweight crown this fall against WBC champion Lennox Lewis.

"If everything goes OK, which I think it will (against Moore), then he'll go right to Lewis," said Shelly Finkel, Holyfield's manager. "But right now, we're just taking it one fight at a time."

The Holyfield camp didn't want to fight Moore, the No. 1 contender in both the WBA and IBF. They wanted him to step aside to allow a Holyfield-Lewis bout, but the two boxing associations insisted on the mandatory title defense.

'What's first is Michael Moore, and I have to take this fight very seriously and go through Michael Moore and not around him.'

— Evander Holyfield, heavyweight boxer

Moore, a 26-year-old left-hander with a 34-0 record and 30 knockouts, said last month he wouldn't have conceded his right to fight Holyfield even if the WBA and IBF had allowed it.

He had stepped aside so that Holyfield could become the champion again by winning his rematch with Riddick Bowe on a majority decision last Nov. 6.

Finkel and trainer Don Turner, who took over last month after Holyfield split with veteran trainer

Emanuel Steward over money, said they've never seen the heavyweight in better mental and physical shape for a fight.

"He's feeling great. He looks great. Relaxed," Finkel said. "I told him last night, 'This seems like the calmest camp you've had.'"

Holyfield said he has been sparring against two left-handers. He has not faced a southpaw since 1986.

After a sparring session Wednesday, Holyfield said he felt confident despite his challenger's reputation as a powerful puncher.

"All heavyweights can punch," he said. "It's just the point of being there to be hit. I don't look forward to being hit. I hope that if he does get a shot in, I'll be able to take it and I'll be able to give some as well."

Defense in fought Bowe — November, Holyfield predicted victory. Now Holyfield and Finkel are more cautious in that regard.

"There's nothing incidental (about the fight)," Finkel said. "This fellow can punch. He's undefeated."

Twins see double with Winfield

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — When the Minnesota Twins decided to bring Dave Winfield home last season, little did they realize they'd be getting two players for the price of one.

There was Big Dave Winfield. He was a confident run-producer, winner and impact player. He had four RBIs in his second game, carrying the Twins to a 6-1 win over Chicago. He batted .522, homered three times and drove in six runs from May 10-16 to win AL player of the week honors.

And he strode to the plate in the ninth inning on Sept. 16, got his 3,000th career hit — off Oakland's great Dennis Eckersley — and came around to score the tying run in a game the Twins would win four innings later.

When the Twins desperately needed a superstar to help them break an eight-game losing streak in April, he failed to drive in a run. In May and June, when the Twins desperately needed a future Hall of Famer to help them snap out of eight- and nine-game skids, he failed to hit a home run in 125 consecutive at-bats.

Most of the season, he batted under .200 with runners in scoring position. He had 76 RBIs, his lowest full-season total since 1976. He needed eight-game season-ending hitting streak to raise his batting average to .271. He often looked helpless against even mediocre pitchers, drawing only 15 walks while leading the team with 106 strikeouts.

It was a 2-for-1 deal the Twins could have done without.

As the 42-year-old Winfield readies for his 22nd season, the Twins now realize they got no bargain when they agreed to pay him almost $4.5 million for 1993 and 1994.

Adding the 12-time All-Star didn't help them in the standings.

The Twins' went 71-91 in '93, one of their shoddiest seasons ever.

And adding the St. Paul native and former University of Minnesota star didn't help them at the gate. The Twins had their second-worst attendance in seven years, and only 14,654 fans showed to watch him become the 19th player ever to reach the 3,000-hit milestone.

"Obviously," Twins general manager Andy MacPhail said, "we needed more from our veteran players who have historically produced."

Will Big Dave Winfield give them more in 1994? Or will Old Dave Winfield look even older in the middle of their batting order?

"All I know is that I still feel good physically and mentally," Dave Winfield, Minnesota Twins, is that I still feel good physically and mentally," he said. "I know I need to be more consistent. I just want to play my normal game. I want to demonstrate that I can still make a major contribution."

This isn't the first time Winfield's career seemed to be winding down. He missed all of 1989 with a back injury, but returned the following year and got stronger each succeeding season. In 1992, he became the first 40-year-old to drive in 100 runs and helped Toronto win its first World Series.

Coming back from such a serious injury is difficult. But it is any more difficult than turning back the hands of time?

Even during his 1990 comeback, Winfield rarely looked as furly as he did for long stretches of 1993. He rarely looked so... old.

Last year at this time, Winfield talked confidently of playing out his two-year contract with the Twins and then playing at least two more seasons.

This spring, he had simpler goals. "I'll play it by ear," he said. "We'll just have to see how I feel about the way I'm playing and about how this team — or another team — feels about me."

Grand jury will receive extortion case

AMHERST, N.Y. (AP) — The case against a Russian man accused of trying to extort $150,000 from Buffalo Sabres star Alexander Mogilyov was sent to a grand jury today.

After a 40-minute hearing, Amherst Town Court Justice Sam Marstin ruled there was enough evidence for a grand jury investigation against Sergey Fomitov.

Fomitov helped Mogilyov defect from the Soviet Union and join the Sabres in 1989.

Mogilyov testified for about 30 minutes and said Fomitov followed him to a restaurant and threatened him after a Sabres practice last Friday.

Mogilyov said Fomitov demanded the money and hinted that he had a gun.

"He said 'I know in sports how important legs are,'" Mogilyov said. "I knew then he was threatening me, maybe to stab me in the legs or shoot me in the back or shoot me in the legs."

Fomitov's attorney, Robert Riordan, said Mogilyov was lying. Riordan said Fomitov was down on his back and was just trying to borrow money from Mogilyov.

Fomitov felt that Mogilyov owed him money because the Sabres had renegotiated Mogilyov's contract in 1992, Riordan said. When Mogilyov first signed with the Sabres, he gave Fomitov 7.5 percent of his $1 million contract. Fomitov thought he deserved more money because of the new deal Mogilyov had signed, Riordan said.

Fomitov was being held on $100,000 bail.

Jerome man arrested on 2 counts of theft

JEROME — Charles Lewis Andrus, 60, was arrested Monday on two counts of grand theft from the Jerome Gas and Oil Co. Andrus has worked for 11 years delivering bulk gas to the Jerome area.

Andrus admitted he had taken at least $16,000 by having checks written to himself and not turning the money in, Jerome County Deputy Dan Chatterton said.

Apparently, he serviced one account for 10 years, and Jerome Gas and Oil has no record of ever serving that person, Chatterton said. "We don't know yet how much Andrus got."

Some of the thefts may have occurred so long ago that the statute of limitations would prevent prosecution, he said. The two counts of grand theft were for $324.84 and $309.75. Andrus was arraigned Tuesday and released on his own recognizance. A hold was placed on Andrus' real property, cars and other assets. His preliminary hearing was set for at 3 p.m. April 6.

Coliform bacteria found in Kimberly water

KIMBERLY — City residents are advised to boil their water for five minutes — or add two drops of chlorine bleach per gallon — before drinking it.

The announcement was made Wednesday by Ken Story, city maintenance supervisor. The health advisory stemmed from a recent test of the city's water supply, which revealed the presence of coliform bacteria, he said.

City officials began to increase the level of chlorine in the 250,000 gallon storage tank.

A water test Tuesday for coliform bacteria proved negative, Story said. If Wednesday's sample also proves negative, then the drinking water alert will be lifted, he said.

Shoshone residents collect 110 signatures for recall

SHOSHONE — Opponents of Lincoln County Sheriff Steve Southwick have collected 110 signatures more than needed for a recall election, said the Lincoln County clerk.

Petitioners gathered 507 signatures of registered voters and need 397 to force a recall election, Clerk Dana Sturgeon said Wednesday.

By law, Southwick was given five days to resign after the petitions were handed in Friday, or face the recall, she said. If Southwick does not resign by Friday close of business, Sturgeon will call for a recall election May 24.

At least 818 people — 20 percent of registered Lincoln County voters in the 1992 election — must vote to recall him before Southwick loses the job.

Wednesday night, Southwick said he would not resign and that many people still support him.

Southwick's opponents say he has ignored taxpayers, refused to live within the budget given by the Lincoln County Commission, promoted his personal agenda by filing suit against the commissioners and ineptly handled investigations.

2nd county commissioner won't run again

JEROME — A second county commissioner has decided not to run for another term.

Don Peterson, Jerome County commissioner from District 3, has announced he will not seek re-election May 24.

Peterson said he needed to give more of his time to his family. Jeronice Lierman has also said she will not be in the race for her commissioner seat.

Idaho seeks public comment on transportation

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Transportation Department is sponsoring an open hearing today for the public to comment on anything and everything that needs to be done for transportation in the next 20 years.

The Transportation meeting will be held 3-7 p.m. at the Weston Plaza, 1350 Blue Lakes Blvd. N.

Public input will be incorporated into a five-year outline for construction projects and a 20-year list of goals and guidelines for statewide transportation.

Fired deputy clerk has felony record

By Sean L. McCarthy
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A convicted pawn-shop burglar worked for the county clerk for 24 years, handling money paid on traffic fines. Rose Solano was hired as a deputy Twin Falls County clerk in 1991, nine months after she got off probation for breaking into a Twin Falls pawn shop and stealing about $20,000 in merchandise, according to county records.

Solano was fired recently amid allegations that she had been negligent in reporting money missing from the clerk's office. She appealed that dismissal Wednesday.

At age 18, under her maiden name of Rose Mary Munguia, Solano pleaded guilty to second-degree burglary in September 1988, according to documents on file in Twin Falls County's court records office.

"I decided to break in somewhere for fun," Munguia admitted in a July 7, 1988, police statement. "I picked out this place because it was small and didn't look like it had any alarms."

Records show that Munguia plea-bargained down from a first-degree burglary charge. Fifth District Judge Daniel Mechl sentenced her to two years' probation and a three-year suspended jail term.

Eight months later, Mechl sent her to the county jail for 60 days for violating probation. She had been arrested for leaving the state without permission.

Mechl finally released her from probation Dec. 11, 1990. By then, she had married and changed her last name to Solano, according to Elko County, Nev., records.

The county hired her Sept. 16, 1991. As one of two traffic court clerks, her job involved accepting payments to the county such as traffic fines and bonds for truck-weight violations.

Traffic court clerks always work in pairs, said County Clerk Bob Fort. They also are "cross-trained" to share duties with the other traffic court clerks in the office, Fort said.

Money missing from traffic funds apparently prompted Solano's firing, according to her lawyer, though county officials have not accused Solano publicly of stealing money from the clerk's office.

Rose Solano returns to the closed-door appeal of her dismissal held Wednesday morning in the county commissioners' office.

Appeal hearing goes into 2nd day

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Five-and-a-half hours of closed-door testimony was not enough Wednesday for three "ordinary citizens" to decide the fate of a fired county employee.

The appeal of traffic court clerk Rose Solano's dismissal will continue at 10 this morning in the Twin Falls County commissioners' office.

The commissioners designated Jerome County Clerk Cheryl Watts, Twin Falls City Finance Director Gary Evans and Judy Robinson, an executive at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, to hear Solano's appeal in place of the commissioners.

"We just wanted to stand away from it totally," Commissioner Marvin Hemphill said.

The commissioners chose the three because they are "ordinary citizens" with expertise in financial and personnel matters, he said.

No one would comment after Wednesday's proceedings.

Kindergarten meetings begin

By Maria Stafford
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Speakers generally opposed a plan Thursday night to put all Twin Falls kindergartners in the same school this fall.

"It's only a year, and they say kindergartners are adaptable, but I think it's the most important year," said Alayne VonWagoner, parent of a youngster who would enter Perrine Elementary School this fall. "We need to give them the benefit of a more positive school experience."

VonWagoner spoke at Perrine during the Twin Falls School District's first community hearing on how to change boundary lines after the new Oregon Trail Elementary school opens in South Park this fall.

Another hearing will be held 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. tonight at Lincoln Elementary School, 650 Second Ave. North.

One option for new boundaries calls for Bickel Elementary School, near downtown to be converted to a kindergarten center. Opponents to the option spoke against busing, bus transfers, splitting up families among schools, and the increased cost of transportation.

Under the kindergarten center plan — dubbed Option 3 — most existing district borders would move south, and divide current Bickel students between Oregon Trail and Morningside.

It would cost an estimated $60,000 to transport students to their new schools, according to figures released by Superintendent Terrell Donicht.

That expense is too high, said David Marsh, parent of Perrine students. "Where is the extra money going to come from? The well is going to start running dry here."

People also aired concern about the safety of the old Bickel building.

Most speakers seemed to favor Option 2, which would leave Perrine's boundaries largely unchanged and cost

Intersection at center of tourism boost

By Mick Normington
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — More of the tourists who zip by on Interstate 84 are bound to pull over thanks to developments in Jerome and Twin Falls.

This was the message that rural tourism officials with the Idaho Department of Commerce heard Wednesday at the Canyon Springs Inn.

Ralph Peters of the Jerome Historical Society said his group is slowly assembling a historical park northeast of the intersection of Interstate 84 and Highway 93. The newest addition will include antique tractors and the old Wendell Post Office.

His group has spent five years working on the 100-acre park and may take another five years to complete it, he said. "We've just got to keep hacking away at this until we can get some real money," Peters said.

June 11 will be the park's "live history day." He said the event attracted 2,000 people last year, and he expects more this time.

Greg Seibert of the Commerce Department said the intersection of I-84 and Highway 93 is one of the busiest traffic areas in the state but is barely used to attract tourists.

"This intersection is probably the market intersection for Region IV," Seibert said.

Steve Thorson, a developer with TRF Pacific Inc., said his proposed 500-acre Crossroads Ranch commercial development on the northwest corner of the intersection should also attract tourists.

And to the south, Twin Falls is trying to establish a new park system. Economic Development Director Dave McAlindin said the city is trying to plan for a park system from Shoshone Falls west along the Snake River Canyon and around to Rock Creek Canyon along the west and south sides of the city.

Cleaning up Rock Creek Canyon is also part of the Old Town Redevelopment Plan that includes bringing new businesses to downtown Twin Falls.

McAlindin said part of the redevelopment are tentative plans for a new hospital, office building and more businesses downtown.

The tourism officials are touring the Magic Valley this week to get ideas on how local nonprofit and commercial tourist operations can work together to increase the number of tourists here.

Stohler's murder still unsolved

By H.R. Weixel
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — A 24-year-old unsolved murder mystery has started a nationwide search for suspects in its case.

The Jerome County sheriff's department is looking for several people who may have been involved in, or have information about, the stabbing death of Jerome dairyman Reuben Stohler, found dead in his home Sept. 13, 1970.

One of the suspects, Samuel Owens Barnett, was interviewed last week in Stockton, Calif.

"He denied knowing anything about it. But he did admit to a lot of violent crimes and to hurting people," said investigating officer Deputy Dan Chatterton. "But he said 'There are some things you take to the grave with you. You never sit on a guy and you keep your mouth shut,'" Chatterton said.

Police are looking for Jack Wharten and Lenard Slender for questioning, Jerome Sheriff George Sliver III said. The two men were partners with Barnett in roofing and painting jobs in the Magic Valley in 1970. Both disappeared shortly after Stohler's murder.

One key piece of evidence in the case is a palm print on the Stohler's car, which was found abandoned in Des Moines, Iowa, shortly after the murder.

Comparisons with Barnett's palm prints are "inconclusive at this time because they were in bad shape," Chatterton said.

Barnett, who already has had both his legs amputated because of a bone infection, scheduled to lose one of his arms shortly. But he agreed to let Chatterton take his palm prints.

Barnett was paralyzed from the neck down when shot by a man in Salida, Colo., shortly after the Stohler murder.

The investigation also has turned up palm prints of Wharten in California police files. Slender's palm prints were found in FBI files, Chatterton said. These prints are being analyzed by Boise crime officials.

Wharten, who is estimated to be 58, was described in 1975 as 5 feet, 9 inches tall, 211 pounds, with brown hair and hazel eyes.

Slender is 45 to 50 years old, 5 feet 11 inches tall, and in 1966 he weighed 200 pounds. He has blond hair and brown eyes. Slender has also used McNeil as a last name.

Silver said police also are looking for a former wife of Barnett whose first name is Vonda. Her maiden name was Clark. Her current married name is unknown, Chatterton said. Vonda is described as about 35 years old, Caucasian, possibly living in the Washington or Oregon area.

"The case isn't solved yet. We're not done, there are more people who have information and we'll run them down," Silver said.

Anyone with information pertaining to the case is asked to contact the Jerome County Sheriff's office at 324-8844. The callers can remain anonymous.

Gary's Westland expands again with Dick Dey buyout

By Mick Normington
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — After a month of kicking tires, two local car dealers have struck a deal.

Gary Storer announced Wednesday that he had bought Dick Dey Oldsmobile Buick Inc. He held a news conference at his Gary's Westland Motor Co. showroom on Blue Lakes Boulevard North, but he said Dey was feeling too emotional to attend.

In a written statement, Dey said he sold because his sons didn't want to take over the dealership.

Storer said he sought out Dey and bought the dealership for cash, but wouldn't say how much.

"It was quite an emotional thing because it's been in their family for about 20 years. They're classy people," Storer said.

Dey has been selling cars in Twin Falls for 30 years. In 1972, he became a partner in the Buick dealership and became sole owner in 1977.

Storer, 52, has been in auto sales for 33 years. He came from a car sales family in Ogden, Utah, and set up shop in Twin Falls on Main Avenue East in 1968.

In 1980, Storer built his main showroom on Blue Lakes Boulevard North. Others soon followed. He started the Car Mart used car dealership in 1991; and last year he opened Gary's Westland Hyundai and North Blue Lakes Boulevard.

The acquisition makes Storer the second-largest dealer in Twin Falls, based on auto sales recorded with the Idaho Auto Dealers Association last year.

With the 32 employees from the Dey dealership, Storer now has 110 employees — making him one of the 20 largest employers in Twin Falls.

"It's a high for me to say I have 110 employees working for me," he said.

Storer said he's happy to pick up Dey's Please see BUYOUT/C2

Jerome could get major hotel

By Mick Normington
Times-News writer

JEROME — The proposed 500-acre Crossroads Ranch may be the site of the largest hotel, stockyard, convention center, and industrial park in the Magic Valley.

The Crossroads is attracting a lot of attention from potential tenants and other users, said developer Steve Thorson of TRF Pacific Inc.

A local bank is interested in putting a branch at the Crossroads, Thorson said, and he's talking to a major hotel developer.

"We started talking 200 to 400 rooms but it could get bigger than that," he said.

But he won't name names. Thorson spoke to farm officials with the state Commerce Department Wednesday.

The Crossroads' livestock auction yard would have a $1 million sanitation system to keep animal odors from reaching other nearby Crossroads tenants.

"We're not going to put in a $1 million environmental system if we don't think it will work. We're not going to put in a first-class hotel next to a live-stock yard if we didn't think it could work," Thorson said.

In addition, Crossroads would have an arena with 2,500 to 4,000 seats for conventions, country music concerts and rodeos. Horse-show planners are already calling, he said.

And he said he's talking to light manufacturing companies and agriculture-related retailers about setting up stores and plants at the site.

He is also trying to get local food processors, particularly the cheese plants, to set up stores at the Crossroads.

But all this development and any construction must wait for Thorson and TRF to clear two hurdles.

First, Thorson said he's awaiting a traffic study of the area to find out how the Crossroads will affect the local roads, highways and neighbors.

Then he must apply to the Idaho Agriculture Department for permission to move the Shoshone livestock auction yard license to the Crossroads site. The three other livestock yards in the Magic Valley have been protesting Thorson's efforts.

Thorson said he should go make his formal application in April.

"After those hurdles are passed, Thorson said TRF will try to get local investors to put up money for the development. And he said if he can't get local money then TRF has a track record of funding big commercial projects.

TRF President Robert Parks couldn't be reached for comment, and his office referred questions to Thorson.

Corlett joins Hailey council

By Raymond D. McAlpin
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — New Hailey City Councilman Bill Corlett is owner of the Different Drummer, but by most accounts he's not expected to step off the beat.

Corlett's one-year tenure on the city's planning and zoning commission ended Monday when he was sworn in by Hailey Mayor Steve Kearns during the City Council meeting.

He replaces former Councilman John Carson who quit earlier this month. Corlett says he takes a more conservative approach to issues than Carson.

Corlett described his predecessor as having broader concerns. Perhaps, in time, his would be also, he said.

City Councilwoman Beaver Burke has worked with Corlett when she served on the planning and zoning commission and began working with Carson when she was elected to the City Council.

"I think it was a wise move to bring in a businessman to replace a businessman," she said. "I think in terms of sensitivity, both men are very sensitive. I don't see the chemistry of the council changing."

"Policy by policy, Bill will probably be more like me, that everything should be weighed," she said.

Carson has always been a strong presence on the council.

Two years ago, he was a leading voice in lifting some of the restrictions on home occupations. He was a firm believer in minimal government intervention, a view former councilman Joe Maccubillo said.

Last summer, Carson was also a strong voice for finding some dilapidated ground to allow day-care facilities in the general residential areas rather than requiring them to get conditional use permits. That issue is currently before the council.

Corlett has so far shown a practical approach to issues, seeking out hard facts.

When the planning and zoning commission discussed the impact of McDonald's restaurant on the city, Corlett did not hesitate to request traffic pattern analysis of the changes the restaurant would bring to Main Street.

EchoHawk: Senate panel violates open meetings law

BOISE (AP) — Attorney General Larry EchoHawk advised Democratic members of the Senate tax-writing committee on Wednesday that a closed-door session earlier in the week on the proposed property tax reduction bill probably violated the open meetings law.

In a letter to Democrats John Peavey of Carey, Terry Haun of Emmett and Tim Tucker of Porterville, EchoHawk said further investigation was needed to determine whether any action should be taken with respect to the violation.

But he said the violation would not have any effect on the validity of the bill to provide the largest property tax cut in Idaho history.

That House-passed bill has run into trouble in the Senate because of the severe financial problems it causes either school districts or the state.

The Local Government and Taxation Committee met behind closed doors in the office of President-Pro Tem Jerry Twigg on Monday to discuss the tax bill with leaders of both parties.

Twigg came out of the session assured that he had the votes to get the bill to the full Senate for floor action. There had been some speculation that the measure, a top priority of House Speaker Michael Simpson, might have been bottled up in the committee.

"Based upon our quick and limited investigation of the facts," EchoHawk wrote, "there appears to have been a violation of the open meetings law. Because we have not had an opportunity to fully investigate the facts, it is inappropriate to discuss at this time what action, if any, will be taken with respect to the violation."

Peavey, Haun and Tucker asked for the investigation even though the EchoHawk pointed out in his two-page letter that each member of the Legislature is responsible for compliance with the open meetings law, not just the chairman of committees or legislative leaders.

State awards money for transfer project

BOISE (AP) — Sage Earth Science of Idaho Falls is the first recipient of a grant and a $500,000 state program to help eastern Idaho take economic advantage of the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

Gov. Cecil Andrus announced Wednesday that the company funded by two INEL employees was awarded up to $25,000 for construction of a Rapid Geophysical Surveyor.

A Rapid Geophysical Surveyor allows the quick, cost-effective collection of magnetic field data used in mapping buried waste sites and locating underground storage tanks, as well as other subsurface metal objects.

Fired

Jim Whitehead, whose agency is auditing clerk's office funds, has said the IBI will not investigate individual employees until the audit is completed. County officials have not disclosed how much money they think is missing.

But Solano's lawyer, Lisa Barini-Garcia, said a state investigator privately confronted Solano with a statement to the effect of, "We know you did it."

Barini-Garcia said she thinks Solano's criminal record has no relevance to her firing. If anything, Solano's criminal record made her a more scrupulous employee, Barini-Garcia said.

"I would be very careful to stay above reproach and I think she did that," Barini-Garcia said.

Barini-Garcia contends county officials knew or should have known about her client's criminal record.

But Linda Wright, the former county clerk who hired Solano, denied knowing about Solano's record before hiring her.

Wright, who resigned as clerk two years ago to become 5th District trial court administrator, declined to comment further. She said her boss, Administrative Judge J. William Hart, had told her not to discuss the matter while Solano's appeal is pending.

Solano had worked part-time in the clerk's office before becoming a full-time employee in September 1991, Barini-Garcia said. She said the deputy clerks who worked alongside Solano should have recognized her from her court appearances, Barini-Garcia said.

"I recognized her," she said. Barini-Garcia was working in the public defender's office in the county courthouse when Solano was convicted and when she was hired.

But Barini-Garcia said she felt no obligation to tell Wright that she had hired a burglar to receive traffic fines.

"I figured they knew what they were doing when they hired her," Barini-Garcia said. "Her conviction went through the clerk's office."

If Solano were applying for a county job today, she would be required to fill out an application form asking whether she had ever been convicted of a criminal offense.

Before April 1993, however, each county department had its own application forms and procedures, according to Rene Robbins, the county's human resources officer. Solano apparently never filled out a formal job application, Barini-Garcia said.

Wright would not comment on what the clerk's office policies were in 1991. Robbins and Hart said they did not know.

Under current rules, if an applicant has a criminal record, the county takes into account the relevance of the criminal offense, Robbins said.

"She said an applicant for a deputy clerk's position probably would not be disqualified for a drunken-driving conviction, for instance. But the county has no standard policy on hiring convicted felons, she said."

"You have to look at each individual person, each individual case. You can't make generalizations," she said.

She said she could not disclose where other convicted felons were on the county payroll.

Senate narrowly OKs cigarette tax

BOISE (AP) — A dime-a-pack increase in the state cigarette tax to finance anti-substance abuse programs in public schools narrowly won final legislative approval on Wednesday.

The Senate voted 18-17 to send the $7.7 million tax hike to Gov. Cecil Andrus over objections that the bill opened the way for cigarette distributors to make a significant windfall profit without the state collecting any additional revenue.

"If it's a problem, we'll live through it," Sen. John Peavey, D-Caldwell, said.

Opposed by the tobacco industry, backers of the increase won their slim majority by highlighting what they called a multibillion-dollar industry advertising campaign to draw young people into smoking. They used ads circulating in the "Joe Camel" character to emphasize the need for a state counterattack.

"There are so many people quitting smoking that the tobacco industry has to recruit 3,000 children a day to replace them," Democrat Sue Reents of Boise said. She cited statistics that the industry is spending $150,000 a day in Idaho on advertising.

"We need to do our job in establishing public policy that encourages our young people not to smoke," Reents said.

The state currently spends only about $6 per student for substance abuse education. The tax hike will push that figure to $33 per student, just $2 short of the national average.

The industry denied that its advertising targeted young people, and warned against using the tax as a way to effect a social policy of ultimately banning smoking.

They also cautioned that raising the state tax from 18 cents to 28 cents a pack would reduce the revenue it generates. At 28 cents, the Idaho tax would be higher than the taxes in Utah, Montana and Wyoming, opening up the prospect that border residents would buy cigarettes in those states.

But more importantly, it widened the gap with the Indian reservation smoke shops that charge no tax. The bill's critics claimed that from 1992 to 1993, overall cigarette sales in Idaho dropped 1.5 percent while reservation sales rose 1.5 percent.

Republican Jerry Thorne of Nampa, chairman of the Senate tax-writing committee, said the loss sales because of the increase could reduce total annual state revenues from cigarette sales by $10 million.

"This may seem mercenary but after all, why increase a tax that costs us tax?" Thorne said. "We should look at it for what it is — a tax increase, a tax increase that costs us money."

He also pointed out that under the law, distributors buy tax stamps ahead of their delivery of cigarettes to retailers and if the tax is increased, the lower-valued old stamps can be used up without any penalty.

Since the bill does not take effect until July 1, Thorne said distributors have three months to stock up on old stamps that can be used after July 1 and they can pocket the dime increase in the retail cost that will inevitably occur.

But he lost his bid to sidetrack the bill so that problem could be fixed. Tax-hike supporters called that an attempt to kill the measure and defeated Thorne on an 18-17 vote. "We have to invest a little bit in these kids," Peavey said. "An ounce of prevention is worth pounds and pounds and tons of cure. This will get into those classrooms and teach kids not to get hooked."

Judge voids Coeur d'Alene's impact fees

COEUR D'ALENE — In a major victory for builders and developers, a 1st District judge has voided Coeur d'Alene's impact fees.

In a 21-page court document, Judge Craig Kosonen ruled that Coeur d'Alene acted outside the law in imposing fees that have generated more than $300,000 to finance the impact of new development.

Coeur d'Alene began charging impact fees a year ago and adopted permanent fees in November — the first Idaho city to do so. The action followed a $40,000 study of infrastructure needs.

But Kosonen ruled in favor of the Idaho Building Contractors Association, which sued the city on behalf of builder Rod Underhill.

In his decision, the judge held that impact fees were a tax not authorized by the state Legislature. The city had it imposed the fees under its authority to collect regulatory charges.

Senk's calls to area legislators and the state treasurer's office during the past year paid off on Monday with successful votes in both houses to restore Green's name. The measure is on the way to the governor for a signature.

The wording will read: 1891 Emma Edwards Green — Paul B. Evans revised 1957.

Evans was a Caldwell artist who updated the seal in 1957. His changes included narrower waists on the woman representing Justice and the miner and placing farms and cities beneath the mountains in the center shield. When he updated it, he included his name on the design.

INEL employees to vote on union

IDAHO FALLS — U.S. Department of Energy employees at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory will vote April 7 on whether they want to be represented by a labor union.

The International Federation of Professional and Technical Engineers reached an agreement with the INEL and the National Labor Relations Board last week on details of the election.

About 370 employees are eligible to vote on exclusive representation by the union. About 160 Energy Department employees signed a petition requesting the election.

Blackfoot man dies when trailer burns

BLACKFOOT — A Blackfoot man was killed when his camp trailer caught fire, possibly because a propane gas stove was left on.

Roger Vincent Thomas, 40, may have died of smoke inhalation in the fire reported about 1:30 a.m. Wednesday, Blackfoot Police Chief James Jackson said.

Blackfoot Fire Chief Parley Wynn said investigators were still trying to determine the exact cause of the fire. He said damage to the trailer was limited to its interior.

Study: Money needs to be spent to rehabilitate roads

BOISE (AP) — More than half of Idaho's highways could have deficient pavement in the next 10 years unless more money is spent on rehabilitation, according to an Idaho Transportation Department study.

The agency's continuing review of pavement conditions found that 38 percent of Idaho's 5,000-mile highway system now has deficient pavement, up from 18 percent in 1986, the state Transportation Board was told Monday.

"This is an alarming trend that needs to be addressed," board Chairman John X. Combo said. "But the resources the board and the Transportation Department have available to address this problem continue to shrink."

Combo cited the state Senate's recent vote to overturn Gov. Cecil Andrus' veto and "enter an ethanol fuel tax credit that will divert up to $2.4 million a year from the highway distribution account by 1997. Lawmakers also recently removed $10 million from the Transportation Department budget that was targeted for pavement rehabilitation, he said.

In addition, the Federal Highway Administration will divert $1.1 million in 1995 and another $2.2 million in 1996 from air quality and roadway construction funds to safety projects because Idaho does not have a motorcycle helmet law.

"These actions combined with reduced funds from the federal government and Idaho's tremendous growth makes it a difficult challenge for the Transportation Department to keep our roadway surfaces in good shape," Combo said.

Factory orders

Drop in February aircraft sales causes decline in factory orders

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A sharp drop in military and commercial aircraft sales in February caused the first decline in orders to U.S. factories since last summer.

But analysts said a closer look at Wednesday's report by the Commerce Department discloses underlying strength in the manufacturing sector of the economy.

Orders to U.S. factories fell 1 percent in February, breaking a six-month string of advances, the department said. Orders for both durable and non-durable goods totaled a seasonally adjusted $269.9 billion, down from $272.6 billion in January.

"I would urge people to focus on details of this report," said Marilyn Lufkin, an economist with Donaldson, Suckin & Jenrette Securities Corp. in New York City. Excluding the highly volatile defense and aircraft orders, she said, "it was the eighth increase over the last nine months."

Orders for non-defense capital goods excluding aircraft rose 4.9 percent in February. These orders often are a barometer of business plans to expand and modernize.

Economists for Merrill Lynch & Co. said they are encouraged that new orders for computers and communications equipment, possibly a better indicator of manufacturing growth, rebounded in February after a January drop.

The stormy weather here in much of the nation also may have caused disruptions that held down February orders, analysts said.

Prior to February, orders had risen every month since a 1.9 percent decline last July.

Inventories in February rose 0.3 percent to $380 billion, the second straight increase and matching the rise in January.

The small increases in inventories likely will reinforce economic growth and manufacturing employment in coming months, analysts said. The buildup may have been caused by weather disruptions, not an underlying drop in demand, they said.

The backlog of unfilled orders fell 0.3 percent to $445 billion, the 11th decline in the last 12 months.

Stocks fall sharply

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The stock market ended sharply lower in volatile trading Wednesday, once again taking its toll from bonds and extending its losses for a fifth consecutive day.

The Dow Jones industrial average tumbled 72.27 points to 3,626.75, the lowest level since Nov. 4. The best-known barometer of the stock market's health has lost 8.8 percent since its high of 3,978.35 reached on Jan. 31, and more than 242 points in this most recent decline, which began on March 24.

Declining issues swamped advances by about 6.1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board totaled an extremely heavy 390.06 million shares of 2 p.m. MST, up from 287.31 million in the previous session.

Several times during the session the Dow and other major market indexes traded in a technical recovery, moving higher only to be washed lower again in waves of computer-guided program trading.

Twice the Dow average fell more than 50 points, triggering the so-called "uptick rule," which places restrictions on a form of computerized trading known as index arbitrage. The curb was created after the 1987 stock market crash.

Indeed, while 402 NYSE stocks hit new lows for a 52-week period, only four issues reached new highs.

Sneezing habits hereditary?

Q. Do you inherit the tendency to sneeze a lot?

A. Possibly. Or learn it early. Researchers in Sweden found that 64 percent of the people who sneeze overmuch are the offspring of parents likewise known for their sneezing.

Q. When did Americans first grow tobacco commercially?

A. In 1612. Virginians say the money they stole from the colonies. That was the year the Japanese first made it official policy to kick the Christian missionaries out of Japan. And a shipload of men and women started the first English settlement in Bermuda.

Q. In an in-vitro fertilization, how many times does the single cell have to divide before it's implanted in the mother?

A. Standard practice — 32 times.

Q. It was Plato who said: "Every king springs from a race of slaves, and every slave had kings among his ancestors."

Q. What made the white whale in "Moby Dick" white?

A. Barnacles, probably. Herman Melville patterned Moby Dick after a real whale called Mocha Dick, and the orcas think the aged Mocha Dick was so encrusted.

Most tourists from Finland to this country go straightaway to Lake Worth, Fla. No other city nationwide has a greater proportion of Finnish-Americans.

Sydney Omarr Horoscope

IF MARCH 31 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You broke free from parental supervision at relatively early age — you continue to be considered a rebel, a loose cannon. You are independent, creative, dynamic, members of opposite sex have often dubbed you "irresistible." Current cycle highlights accelerated social activity, fashion, style, wardrobe, travel.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): What appeared nebulous 24 hours ago will become realistic. Involves hopes, travel, expansion of interests, return of love. Focus on demolishing current material for purpose of rebuilding.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Money that had been "missing" is recovered. Optimism replaces ennui — reading material provides "missing link." Flirtation or chance meeting results in clash of ideas, serious relationship.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Attention revolves around flowers, music, family relationships, possible change of residence—marital status, legal agreement dominates, read between lines.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Outline boundaries, let others know, "This is as far as it goes!" Be firm, don't back down from principles. Sagittarius moon high—high basic issues, diet, nutrition, fitness, health.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Favorable lunar aspect coincides with style, creativity, personal magnetism, sex appeal. Focus on power, authority, ability to meet "close deadline."

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You're on solid ground, let others know, "I am available for overseas and so is my product!" Emphasize universality, refuse to be limited by those who lack faith.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Imprint style, stand tall for principles. Allow yourself to be "vulnerable to love." New project could vault you to fame and fortune. Short trip involves relative seeking legal document.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Those who "counted you out" will be amazed — you make remarkable comeback, financially and otherwise. Focus on payments, collections, evaluation of personal possessions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Moon in yours, "borrowed material," intuitive intellect, instinctive knowledge of "where the action is." Everything goes your way — you'll have good fortune in making a name for yourself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Scenario features galleries, institutions, hospitals, theaters. Feeling of being "closed in" is temporary. You'll soon have "wings of an angel."

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You'll be active, involved in project, relationship grows strong, you'll feel important and you are "the main event." You win friends, influence people, you help individual who helped you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Family member returns, "borrowed material." Focus on distance, language, possible journey. Key is to disseminate information via publicity, advertising.

10th annual Science Camp deadline nears

The Times-News

MOSCOW - The 10th annual Science Camp for eighth-, ninth- and 10th-graders is planned for June 12-24 at the University of Idaho.

The two-week summer camp is designed to expose students to different fields of science and engineering. Campers will complete projects in computer programming, water chemistry, hazardous waste and bridge construction. They will also participate in field trips and recreational activities.

Cost is $350, which includes room-and-board, activity fees and supplies. It does not include travel to and from the camp. Socially and economically disadvantaged students are encouraged to apply. Scholarship assistance is available. Applications will be accepted through April 15.

Students interested in the camp should write to Margrit von Braun, College of Engineering, University of Idaho, Moscow, ID 83844-1011, or call Yvonne Bordenave at the College of Engineering at 208-885-6438.

The Idaho Science Camp is jointly sponsored by the U.S. Department of Energy, National Aeronautics and Space Administration, GTE, University of Idaho College of Engineering, National Science Foundation/ASSIST and numerous private sponsors.

Optimists to hunt eggs

The Times-News

JEROME - The Jerome Optimist Club has planned an Easter Egg Hunt for 11 a.m. Saturday at the Gayle Forsyth Park on Eighth Avenue East, with the start signaled by a siren from the fire department.

The event is for children up to age 10. Participants will be divided into two age groups and will be directed to the appropriate location upon arrival. Twenty-five gold eggs will be hidden with the 5 and under group. Those who find the gold eggs will receive an Easter basket. Some gold eggs will also be hidden with the 6 to 10 group and will be worth a $50 savings bond. Candy will be given to all participants.

Ridley's IGA has donated the eggs. The staff at St. Benedict's Family Medical Center will cook them and the patients and staff at the Long Term Care Unit will color them.

For more information, call Rick Bernsen at 324-3357.

Enrichment classes to begin

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - Registration is being taken now for enrichment courses offered by the College of Southern Idaho Continuing Education Division.

A Dog Obedience class is set for 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays, April 12 to May 4, on the grounds east of the Expo Center.

Cost is $25. For more information, call Donna Staley at 733-1462.

A Beginning typing/keyboarding class is planned for 9 a.m. to 10:45 a.m. Saturdays, April 16 to May 14, in Aspen 131. Cost of the five sessions is $25.

Registration may be done in the Taylor Building Records Office. For more information, call 733-9554, Ext. 270.

Openings remain in YFCA camp

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - The Spring Break Day Camp program at the Magic Valley YFCA still has some openings.

The program is available from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. April 4-8. Cost is $50 for the week and includes all planned activities, such as skating, movies, swimming, etc. Enrollment is limited.

For more information or to register, call 733-4384.

Problem of 'basically': People use it too much

DEAR ABBY: I am a linguist who teaches English at a university in California.

Language has always fascinated me, and one phenomenon that I have noticed recently is the overuse of the word "basically." Have you noticed this?

Dear Abby
Abigail VanBuren

At an international conference for English teachers I attended last year, I kept a running tally of the times I heard the word "basically." Within one 50-minute session, one presenter used "basically" 12 times. I told my mother about it, and she wrote the following poem:

BASICALLY

I've heard things described from A to Z

And they always start out, "basically."

It's basically good, or basically bad.

It's basically happy, or basically sad.

It's swept through the nation like a great big flood

"Basically" is basically in everyone's blood.

When you get down to basics, basically for me

I hear it and tune it out automatically.

Basically has become a boring refrain

Basically, "basically" drives me insane.

- SICK OF BASICALLY IN FRESNO

DEAR SICK: I, too, am sick of "basically." Overusing a word indicates a limited vocabulary. I nominate "for the most part" as an acceptable alternative for "basically."

DEAR ABBY: My problem is one I rarely see addressed in your column. I have a daughter who is 15 years old and in kindergarten. She has been taught not to talk to strangers. Unfortunately, strangers don't seem to want to leave her alone. We cannot go to the grocery store without some man - usually older - speaking to her or touching her.

Last summer, we had a frightening experience when a strange man grabbed her and tickled her roughly. I took my hysterical screaming to get him to let go of her, and then he acted like I was a nut.

When I try to explain to these men that my daughter is not allowed to talk to strangers, they invariably say, "It's all right; I'm a grandfather!" (As though that ensures he's not a pervert.) How am I supposed to act? Perverts don't wear signs to identify themselves. So how do I know who is O.K. and who is not?

- MURIEL D. IN WASHINGTON

DEAR MURIEL: You are rightly disturbed when strangers approach your daughter, but please remember that older people were brought up in a time when violence was not so widespread and children were taught to be friendly.

Most strangers mean no harm, but because there is no way to know who is harmless and who is not, you must continue to teach your daughter to be wary of all strangers. You must also teach her how to respond to strangers and how to fight back and get away if necessary.

For Abby's favorite family recipes, send a long, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $5.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Cookbooklet No. 1, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

CSI plans chess tournament

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - The Southern Idaho Scholastic Chess Tournament is planned for Saturday.

The event will be held in the basement of the First Baptist Church, Ninth and Shoshone streets. Registration is from 8 to 9 a.m., and the tournament of five rounds in the Swiss system will last until approximately 3:30 p.m. Entry fee is $5. Bring a sack lunch; drinks will be provided.

Trophies will be awarded to first and second place winners in the elementary, junior and senior high divisions. The top two finishers will go to the state tournament in April.

Achievement certificates for first through third places in each section will be awarded, and all who play will receive a participation certificate.

Parents and spectators are welcome. For more information, call Barry Eacker at 733-6186.

Prominent Montana cattle breeder killed; FBI involved

HOBBS, Mont. (AP) — An internationally known breeder of Black Angus cattle was found dead on his central Montana ranch Tuesday.

A man who worked for the victim was in custody on a murder warrant from Orange County, Calif.

Authorities identified the victim as Wayne Stevenson, 51, who was reported missing Sunday evening after going to feed cattle.

"From the onset of the investigation, foul play was suspected," said Judith Basin County Sheriff Steve Knecht.

The body was found about 2:30 p.m. MST on Stevenson's Basin Angus Ranch, one of three sprawling ranches operated in the area by the victim, his brother Keith and their children.

Cause of death was unknown pending an autopsy, the sheriff said.

"His death will send shock waves through the industry," said a spokesman for the Public Auctioneers in Billings. "It's the biggest Angus cow-calf operation in America," said Bob Cook.

"Everybody in the livestock business knows Wayne Stevenson. There won't be a place in central Montana big enough to hold everybody at the funeral," Cook said.

Fergus County Sheriff Gene Couch confirmed Tuesday night that a man was being held in jail at Lewistown and had worked on the victim's ranch.

A booking slip at the jail identified the man as David Llamas-Blake, 33, and said he was booked Monday afternoon with bond set at $250,000 on the California murder warrant.

Knecht said that during the investigation, Stevenson's disappearance, the outstanding warrant for Llama-Blake was found. No other details were released and he would not say if the ranch worker was a suspect in Stevenson's death.

A spokesman for the FBI in Salt Lake City, Ron VanVranken, said the agency was "taking a close look" at the Stevenson slaying but wouldn't release any information about the incident.

There was no official comment whether Stevenson was abducted or whether anyone in the family received a ransom note.

Wayne Stevenson was a past president of the Montana Angus Association and a member of the Montana Stockgrowers Association.

His brother Keith once served as president of the American Angus Association.

The Stevensons are considered among the premier Angus breeders in the nation and have sold their cattle across the country and overseas.

At their 33rd annual Stevenson/Basin Angus Production Sale Dec. 7, the ranchers sold 446 bulls and 495 head of registered cows, heifers and commercial heifers for $2.7 million.

"Without a question it was the most successful purebred sale, probably the most successful in all of America," said Cook, whose father-in-law was the auctioneer.

The sale drew more than 1,000 people from 23 states and Canada. Survivors include Stevenson's widow, Marian, daughter Valerie Carr and sons Doug and Clint.

Stevenson and his wife and Doug and Sharon Stevenson owned and operated one of the largest registered purebred Angus ranches in the United States. Another son, Clint, runs the nearby Diamond Dot Angus Ranch. Keith Stevenson operated the Stevenson Angus Ranch. The family also has a joint marketing corporation.

Washington's 'telephone terrorist' still dialing from behind bars

Seattle Times

EVERETT, Wash. — Not cops, not court orders, not even incarceration can keep Sandy Carter from reaching out and touching someone.

The man a Superior Court judge called a "telephone terrorist" apparently has outmaneuvered jail guards and made illegal phone calls from behind bars, according to court papers filed this week.

Carter, 23, was sentenced in December to three years in jail for placing calls so frequently and on systems so sophisticated that people could not get through to 911 in Snohomish County and Everett or to Snohomish, Wash., police for up to an hour at a time. For the next decade, he is forbidden from contacting 100 people and businesses identified as his victims, some of whom disconnected their phones to avoid him.

Today, Carter is scheduled for a hearing in Superior Court on an unusual "motion to modify telephone restrictions," in which the prosecution is asking that his phone calls be limited to his lawyers.

Ken Schiffer, Snohomish County deputy prosecutor, recommended that Carter serve his time in the local jail — just a block from the courthouse — rather than prison because it would be easier to supervise his access to phones. Under court order, the jail staff was required to dial for Carter and find out if the person on the other end of the line wanted to talk to him.

"I was hoping that would be the end of it," Schiffer said, "but knowing Sandy."

The prosecutor's worst fears came true.

Carter would ask the guards to call an acquaintance in Arizona and confirm the person wanted to speak to Carter. But the guards didn't realize the acquaintance had a three-way calling system and was forwarding Carter's calls to other numbers. Prosecutors and jail staff members say they don't know how many unauthorized calls Carter placed and to whom, or whether the calls were harassing.

Authorities discovered the Arizona helper — whose identity is unknown — from a letter Carter wrote to a woman named Stephanie. Carter was trying to obtain a local telephone number with three-way service in order to sneak even more calls by the jailer, according to the letter. The jail had been monitoring Carter's mail for security reasons and intercepted a letter in which he offered to pay Stephanie to set up the system.

"There won't be any harassment or illegal acts that I will ask you to do," Carter wrote.

Rising coastline projects evidence of major quake

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The ground is rising in the Pacific Northwest, another sign that a huge earthquake is building up beneath it. In a study about to be published, a team of Oregon and Washington researchers have measured what geologists call the "uplift" of the coastline and found it to be rising at an unusually fast rate.

It certainly points to the possibility of a major quake," said Clifton E. Mitchell, a University of Oregon graduate student who helped write the report for the Journal of Geophysical Research.

The study was done by Mitchell and Oregon geophysicists Ray Weldon and Paul Vincent, along with Mark Richards of the University of Washington.

The researchers drew on highway and railroad surveys and combined that data with ocean floor measurements to determine that the Northwest coastline is rising about 10 times as fast as expected.

The effect is something like a giant pizza crust being bent by the edge of a huge plate of dense rock sliding against it and wrinkling it. Seismologists call the process "subduction."

It occurs as the section of the Earth's crust under the Pacific Ocean known as the Juan de Fuca plate moves eastward and downward beneath the North American plate under Washington, Oregon and Northern California.

The problem, Mitchell says, is that the upper crust that forms the three states is more like an overdone pizza crust that will eventually crack when it is wrinkled enough by the plate of rock pushing against it.

When that happens, a massive earthquake is likely.

"Of course, there is no way to accurately predict when it will happen," Mitchell said.

The evidence is especially strong because it was drawn from two independent sources, he said.

Moderate tremor shakes Alaska area

PALMER, Alaska (AP) — A moderate earthquake struck southwest of Anchorage Wednesday morning but there were no reports of injuries or damage.

The quake's preliminary magnitude was measured at 5.1 on the Richter scale. It struck at 5:30 a.m. MST and was centered near the Kenai Peninsula, about 55 miles northwest of Homer or 140 miles southwest of Anchorage, said Wayne Jorgensen of the Alaska Tsunami Warning Center in Palmer.

Actor Reynolds taken to hospital

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Burt Reynolds fell ill on the "Evening Shade" TV set Wednesday and was taken by paramedics to a hospital.

The actor was taken to North Hollywood Medical Center about 10:20 a.m. MST, said Bob Collis of the city Fire Department. Collis said the problem was described as chest pains, but a spokesman for the actor described it as dizziness and nausea.

Reynolds, 57, was conscious and undergoing tests, said hospital spokeswoman Tricia Spellman.

On the Studio City set of his CBS series, Reynolds complained he was dizzy and nauseated, said Reynolds publicist Joe Sutton.

"It could be a 24-hour virus. Reynolds is prone to or stress that Reynolds has acknowledged in his life over the past year," said Sutton. He gave no other details.

Reynolds and Loni Anderson recently reached agreement on a divorce settlement following a bitter public spat. He was also devastated by the death of his former girlfriend Dinah Shore.

YOUR OPPORTUNITY TO HELP KEEP IDAHO MOVING

The Idaho Transportation Department is sponsoring a series of public meetings on the future of transportation in Idaho. Your thoughts and ideas about all types of transportation for the next 20 years — for aviation, rail, bicycles, pedestrians, public transportation and highways — are important to us.

Your comments will be used to draft two documents:

- the five-year program — the outline for constructing projects in the near future, and
- the 20-year plan — the long-range road map for projecting and protecting our transportation investments

We can't create a plan that best serves your needs and the needs of all Idahoans if we don't hear from you first. Help us meet the challenge!

Ruling gives hope of logic, miracles

Some good news on the wildlife scene in Idaho.

The judgment rendered Monday in a case giving Idaho a say in the total management of its anadromous fish resource could well be considered a victory for logic and just plain justice. But considering all the political, social and economic ramifications that have been thrown at Idaho's major fish runs, this is a miracle.

While this writer has never been a major Cecil Andrus fan, the feeling here is that he's done two things in his final year as governor that will create a warm spot in my heart — for whatever that's worth. This salmon victory is the result of many hundreds and thousands of hours of work and frustration endured by an untold number of people.

The guy who put the clout in the battle was Andrus.

Idaho Department of Fish and Game has fought, sued and counter-sued, cussed and discussed for the past 35 years without being able to do much more than keep the status quo.

Larry Hovey
Outdoors

That status quo has almost taken us out of the anadromous fishing picture.

The stonewalling first thrown at Idaho by Washington and Oregon and then compounded by commercial interests — particularly the Lewiston Port Authority — within the state itself should never have been experienced logically.

The Columbia River Compact was the major bugaboo for years. The Senate refused to re-examine that pact, which gave Oregon and Washington carte blanche over any and all of Idaho up and downstream migrants.

And this stonewalling became even more pronounced when the state fully understood that the hydroelectric dams were the cause. Rather than mitigate for those losses, Washington and Oregon drew its management even tighter to harvest as much of the resource as it could.

In reality, perhaps the one biggest single thing that may have started moving things toward Idaho was the Boldt decision — although it certainly wasn't immediately evident.

Boldt ruled that under the various U.S.-Indian tribe treaties, hunting and fishing rights were held "in common," and that was interpreted as the Indians get half and the rest get half.

It had, of course, a stormy reception throughout the non-Indians world (it even affected Great Lakes fishing). But in retrospect, it said, for the first time, that Washington and Oregon white eyes no longer had total say over anadromous fish management in the Columbia River delta.

Fishery Service and other federal, state and local agencies — all with axes to grind.

The renderings of those groups have been absolutely assinine.

Consider the service pontificated in its last major decision that rapid downriver migration would have no major impact on survivability and the nine lower Snake and Columbia river dams were not provably responsible for bringing anadromous fish to endangered and threatened status.

God love federal Judge Malcolm Marsh who paid particular attention to that bit of insanity.

He said the fisheries service plan was flawed because it was "too heavily geared to the status quo that has allowed all forms of river activity to proceed" without significant regard for the survival of the fish.

This put a supposedly learned, professional fish management agency in the same group as the ignorant Idaho Republican governor aspirant who last week said he favored installing a pipeline to whisk the fish to the ocean — and, it is presumed, back. It read like he wanted to do that without water.

The same group said barging the fish, ala the Army Corps of Engineers, was the answer — even though 15 years of experience proved it a complete failure.

Judge Marsh noted the federal government has taken on what the establishment, minor improvements and adjustments when the situation literally cries out for a major overhaul.

"Instead of looking for what can be done to protect the species from jeopardy, NMFA and the action agencies have narrowly focused their attention on what the establishment is capable of handling with minimal disruption," Idaho Attorney General Larry

The release of live-trapped, wild pheasants will augment an intensive pheasant study in Gooding and Bingham counties.

A study for the birds

Idaho seeks help for dwindling pheasant numbers

By Larry Hovey
Times-News writer

JEROME — Are pheasants really out of Magic Valley's outdoor picture?

There is considerable opinion around that it's over. But the Idaho Department of Fish and Game is preparing a 10-year study to attack the problems from several different directions.

The truth is, although many states have put together studies of one kind or another, no one has really spent the time and money to see what specific things might bring a remnant population off the ropes and back into prominence.

Sister experiments will be run in Gooding and Bingham counties. A great many factors and their possible influence on pheasant populations already are in the study's mix.

The plan is flexible enough to allow for deviation, back tracking or simply new "left field" probes.

If the department can rebound pheasants into anything close to their former status in Magic Valley's hunting scheme, it will be a major accomplishment.

The conditions couldn't be more stacked against a recovery.

After being one of the nation's best pheasant producers for years, Magic Valley's population declined steadily in the 1950s when new and cleaner farming practices came into use. These steps took away the traditional ditchbanks that were major pheasant producers and protectors.

After the addition of sprinkler irrigation allowed landowners to plant "fence row to fence row," eliminating a lot of overwinter and nesting habitat.

Fall plowing became a major player in the continued decline, demolishing winter cover and for all practical purposes-making biological deserts out of field for four to five months a year.

All in all, Magic Valley's pheasants were living a very precarious life when Mother Nature applied the knockout punch.

It happened in three of four winters. The major hit came in 1981-82 when area pheasant harvest dropped from the 200,000-plus area. There was one rather mild winter but very little rebound.

Then in 1983-84, the longest and cruelest winter struck, exposing the birds and other wildlife to snow-covered ground from early November into March with several major wind storms and unusually cold temperatures.

When the following winter proved just about as bad, it didn't make any difference. Magic Valley's pheasant population was thoroughly ensnared as a "remnant" resource.

Although the next five winters were considered excellent for survival, all the other factors that control population prevented any rebounding.

As the department began compiling its list, it was obvious some major steps had to be taken to level the uphill battle pheasants faced.

Although it was unanimously agreed that lack of habitat was the major cause, pheasants had fallen into a Catch-22 position.

All in all, Magic Valley's pheasants were living a very precarious life when Mother Nature applied the knockout punch.

First, it would take millions of dollars to secure — through purchase or lease — suitable land for nesting, overwintering, etc., enhancement. The only two sources available were volunteer groups, like Pheasants Forever, and the state upland hunting stamp.

The vicious cycle of money was predictable: the fewer pheasants, available to hunters, the fewer hunters in the field with a resulting decline in pheasant stamp revenues. The poorer the hunting, the less likely Pheasant Unlimited banquets would reach figures attained by Ducks Unlimited.

At a time when pheasants needed more money than ever before, there was less available.

Without money for obvious habitat enhancement, relief for the beleaguered brood stock has to come from other directions.

A major one — particularly since the advent of the fox in Magic Valley over the last 20 years — has been predation control.

Previous state nesting studies have shown up to 67 percent of nests out of hayfield have fallen to predation. Of course, just about every nest in an alfalfa field is destroyed in the early June cutting.

Predation became a major player when pheasant numbers plummeted. A hen pheasant and her nest may evade detection in the middle of a 40-acre weed patch but has little chance of eluding day and night, land and air enemies in a fence row 10-foot wide.

Foxes, coyotes and avian predators are daytime problems with the former-two joining with skunks, feral cats, etc., at night.

Additional problems are caused by the move of city dwellers into a "country manor" because they immediately buy big dogs and cats and turn them loose. The Gooding County nesting study conducted by Tom Maeder, blamed "house pets" for destruction of perhaps nine of the 46 nests found destroyed — and that's a total of 64 under surveillance.

Predators, then, were nominated to become the first "study intensive" subject. Their absence would provide a statistical bias factor for destruction of perhaps nine of the 46 nests found destroyed — and that's a total of 64 under surveillance.

The department has announced plans to make major efforts into removing predators in the experiment area.

At the same time, part of the study looks at predator habitat — from the reverse standpoint of how to make an area less appealing to the top of the food chain.

The plan calls for removal of any physical entity that could provide shelter and attraction to predators. This could be large rock piles that would harbor mammalian predators. There is probable evidence that magpies are a factor in pheasant populations. Things like removing Russian Olive trees might make an area less attractive to magpies.

Large trees, particularly those with dead snags, are preferred by raptors and other avian pests such as crows. Removal of roost trees could reduce avian density in special instances.

On the expensive side, the department is

Federation gets land for turkeys

The Associated Press

ATLANTA — America's 4 million wild turkeys have a lot more land to call home, thanks to agreements between a preservation group and the nation's biggest lumber companies.

The National Wild Turkey Federation says half of the land owned by major timber products companies — some 34 million acres — is covered by the agreements, which allow the federation to manage the tracts to help turkeys.

The land is owned by nine companies, with the latest addition also the largest — a 6.2 million-acre commitment from Georgia-Pacific.

In addition, the federation is planning to run seminars for company employees, teaching them how to recognize, save and improve habitat essential for turkeys.

The agreements allow hunting on the land managed for turkeys, federation spokesman Ron Brenneman said. They also cover size and positioning of clearcuts, protecting areas around streams from chainsaws, seeding wildlife foods into areas that have been cut over and managing stands of hardwoods as wild turkey habitat instead of cutting those trees and planting the areas in pine.

'The agreements also mention the possibility that where populations have done real well, they would allow trapping of birds to be moved to start new populations.'

— Ron Brenneman, spokesman for National Wild Turkey Federation

Hardwoods, such as oak, provide essential food for turkeys, deer and a wide variety of other wildlife. Pines provide little such food.

"The agreements also mention the possibility that where populations have done real well, they would allow trapping of birds to be moved to start new populations," Brenneman said by telephone from federation headquarters in Edgefield, S.C.

Other companies that have entered agreements with the federation are Anderson-Tully, Crescent Resources, Hancock Timber Resource Corp., International Paper, Packaging Corp. of America, Temple Industries, Westvaco and Willamette Industries.

The agreements are the latest in the long effort to restore wild turkeys, which were nearly wiped out by habitat destruction and hunting. Market hunting decimated populations between the Civil War and World War I.

A 1949 report on the Eastern and Florida turkeys found they survived on only 12 percent of their range and had been wiped out in 19 states.

Today there are an estimated 4 million turkeys, and there are spring turkey hunting seasons in every state but Alaska. That's half the estimated 7 million-10 million birds that roamed the country in the 16th century.

Much of the rebound is due to trapping programs that moved birds from areas where they survived into good habitat where the birds had been wiped out.

Brenneman said management of huge tracts of land, such as those owned by timber companies, for turkeys is one way to ensure their continued survival.

Off-road vehicle group opposes agency action

POCATELLO (AP) — A national off-road vehicle users group contends the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation is unfairly denying motorists access to trails on the north shore of the Snake River at Massacre Rocks.

A ban on motorized access to a popular network of sandy trails along the river has been in place since 1974, but the Bureau of Reclamation started enforcing it for the first time last spring.

Discovery of hundreds of prehistoric archaeological sites among the area's basalt cliffs during a recent agency survey prompted the action.

But Clark Collins, executive director of the BlueRibbon Coalition, said Bureau of Reclamation regional director John Keys is biased against off-road motorists.

Keys announced last week that National Park Service rangers would help enforce the closure. Fences put up to block access were repeatedly torn down last year and motorists continued to illegally use the trails.

"Mr. Keys and the Reclamation is not discriminating against anyone," said Eliene Salenik, project manager for the agency's pending plan aimed at protecting the 4,000-acre area.

"We have a legal responsibility to protect those cultural resources out there. The survey indicated motor vehicles were damaging those sites."

The agency intends to release a plan by midyear for enforcing federal laws that require it to protect the area's archaeology. Officials are reviewing public comments on five management alternatives, from enforcing the existing trail closure to allowing motor vehicle use on some trails.

The agency's study of the area, Salenik said, showed that motor vehicles damaged archaeological sites everywhere they traveled in the area.

The Shoshone-Bannock Tribes consider the entire area sacred, and tribal leaders have urged the agency to keep motorists off the trails.

'We have a legal responsibility to protect those cultural resources out there. The survey indicated motor vehicles were damaging those sites.'

— Eliene Salenik, U.S. Bureau of Reclamation project manager

Significance to native religions is a factor the government is required by law to weigh in deciding whether to allow motorized access to the trails, Salenik said.

The BlueRibbon Coalition wants the Bureau of Reclamation to consider a new alternative that opens all the trails initially, then evaluates each trail to see what impact motorized use has on archaeological sites.

But Salenik said the previous study already showed it would be difficult to allow motor traffic on any trails.

"I hope Clark and his group would take this information and look at how to take care of the land instead of destroy it," said Hobby Hevewah, a Shoshone-Bannock tribal business council member.

"They can go in the desert and conquer it if they want," he said. "There are millions of acres open to them. But this area is sacred to us."

Oregon studies steelhead spawning habits

MAPLETON, Ore. (AP) — The big steelhead in the net swiped its powerful tail defiantly across the surface of the water, drenching Gary Dale's face and eyes with the cold water of Whitaker Creek.

It was as if the fish were seeking a measure of revenge for this rude business of being trapped in a cage, netted, measured, marked, shoved in a dark plastic tube, trucked downstream and released to swim up the Siuslaw River all over again.

And this wasn't the first time its instinctive drive to reproduce had been interrupted this way. A thin piece of orange plastic sticking out of its back provided proof it had gone through all this at least once before.

Dale and other employees of the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife fish research program have trapped hundreds of steelhead in 10 different tributaries of the Siuslaw River this winter. Fish with hatchery fin clips are marked with plastic "spaghetti tags" and transported back down the Siuslaw above Mapleton and released again. It's all part of an extensive research the state is conducting on the homing instinct of winter steelhead and on factors that cause some fish to "stray" into streams where they are not wanted.

That straying factor is about to force a sharp reduction in the number of hatchery steelhead smolts released in the Siuslaw River basin, as well as in the Smith and Siletz rivers and more than a dozen other coastal waterways.

The Oregon Fish and Wildlife Commission last month approved the cutback in hatchery releases and several other management "strategies" designed to increase compliance with the state's Wild Fish Management Plan.

Adopted in 1990, that widely misunderstood plan has only one purpose: to protect the genetic diversity of Oregon's native fish species.

While anglers use the term "winter steelhead" to identify any sea-run rainbow returning to its home stream between November and April, biologists say there are actually 64 distinct winter runs of steelhead in coastal waters from the Umpqua River north to the Columbia. (The Columbia itself serves as a watery highway for 24 different winter runs of steelhead, and one summer run.)

According to the Fish and Wildlife Department's "1994 Biennial Report on the Status of Wild Fish in Oregon," the 26 winter steelhead populations found between the Umpqua and Nestucca rivers are the most depressed on the Oregon Coast.

That report said the Siuslaw, Smith, Siletz and South Umpqua rivers are the waters that are most drastically at odds with the wild fish policy goals. All four have a "high number of genetically dissimilar hatchery fish competing with declining numbers of wild fish for available natural spawning habitat."

Briefly

Steelheaders banquet set tonight

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley's third annual Idaho Steelhead and Salmon Unlimited banquet will be held tonight at the Turf Club.

A no-host cocktail hour begins at 6 p.m. with dinner to be served an hour later.

The project, designed to develop funding for perpetuating steelhead and salmon fishing in the state, will include thousands of dollars worth of door prizes, raffles and auction items. The $35 ticket includes membership in ISSU.

Elk foundation plans seminars

TWIN FALLS — Although the 1994 Magic Valley Chapter of Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation banquet has been sold out, the public is invited to participate in several outdoor seminars slated for April 30.

Stacy Gebhardt, McCall, will hold a horse and mule packing clinic free of charge at 1 p.m. A hunting and calling seminar by Wayne Carlton, Colorado, will begin at 3 p.m. and requires a $10, per individual fee.

Special exhibits and displays also will be open at the banquet site — Weston Plaza on Blue Lakes Blvd. N. — from 1 p.m. on.

The evening festivities begin with a no-host cocktail hour at 3 p.m. with the banquet and auction starting at 6 p.m.

Tickets for the Carlton seminar may be obtained by calling Sherm Pope at 734-3533.

Valley ice fishing gone this year

JEROME — Ice is going out on Magic Valley reservoirs and trout fishing has been sporadic.

Fred Partridge, Magic Valley region fishery manager for the Idaho Department of Fish and Game, said Magic, Roseworth and Salmon Falls reservoirs are pretty much ice free but may have some patches left. Impoundments in higher elevations, such as Fish Creek, have more ice "but I wouldn't go ice fishing anywhere there's ice left for safety reasons."

Partridge said field checking has shown trout fishing to be "relatively good at times" but still rather quiet.

Utah wildlife officials vote to reallocate unfilled cougar permits

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Utah wildlife officials have voted not to increase the number of cougar permits this year, but they do plan to reallocate unfilled, existing permits.

Prompted by dwindling deer herds and an increasing number of cougars, the Utah Wildlife Board met in emergency session.

"At issue was whether to increase the number of hunting permits for the big cats this season to limit their impact on the state's deer."

Written public comment was polarized, but the board voted after much discussion to keep the number of permits the same while reallocating existing permits that remain unfilled.

The board also voted to allow the Utah Division of Wildlife Resources to extend its current hunting season in specific areas to protect deer herds.

Deer numbers were cut dramatically by the extended drought followed by last year's harsh winter.

For this year's cougar hunt, there were 660 tags issued. About half of those tags have been filled. Records show that 95 of all cougars are taken between January and March, and that only 15 percent of the total harvest comes after March.

The board turned down a motion by member Kay Kimball to add 79 permits to six southern units this year. Instead, the committee asked the division to look at reallocating some existing permits.

Wildlife Resources Director Bob Valentine said the decision to reallocate will allow the division to "contribute to the solution in potential hot spots, where we have a large predator base and small deer numbers."

He said about 150 hunters will receive the option of using their permit to hunt in another unit. The board will meet in August to set the season and permit number.

Pheasants

entering into lease arrangements with landowners and public land managers for establishing of vegetative habitat.

Some of these, like bush and tree shelterbelts — in the 10 to 20-row realm — will take time. These would be the ultimate winter cover.

More easily installed would be food plots — probably grains that would be allowed to stand near the best possible winter and escape-ment cover for easy access by birds.

The standing stalks would provide further protection from avian predation as a pheasant pecked out a few kernels.

The department expects an early expenditure of $80,000 for cornfields that would be left through the winter — a food and winter cover source.

Another phase will be examination of how the mortality of pen-raised pheasants compares with the more difficult project of trapping and translocating wild birds.

Some of that already has been tried in Gooding County and the results have been satisfying. Birds caught and released in late winter proved to be very active nesters the first spring.

But all of this can be accomplished only in small areas and replication on a Magic Valley-wide basis would be economically impossible.

The best possible scenario would allow establishment of management intensive sites at critical geographical points.

In good times, these "brood" areas could provide stocking of surrounding agriculture lands. In bad times, they would maintain populations at a level something above the remnant status currently endured and that would encourage quicker restoration.

Hovey

Echohawk said. Not surprisingly, the verdict hasn't been as well received in all places as it has here.

"The decision turns us in the opposite direction from the way our region has been heading in pursuit of a comprehensive salmon recovery plan," said Bruce Lovell, executive director of the Columbia River Alliance, which represents labor, industry and agriculture.

No duh, fella. The only thing interesting about that statement is the phrase "comprehensive salmon recovery plan." That was — and is — the farthest thing from their collective mind. No salmon equal no problem.

He added another bon mot. The ruling will affect electric interlopers as well as communities economically dependent on the river for irrigation, recreation fish and wildlife.

The first part is debatable, the second part is totally the opposite. One can't imagine Stanley, Salmon, Challis, Mackay, etc., finding the economics of this decision anything less than providential. Few spend more money than vacationing fishermen.

And one final major pat on the back for Judge Marsh — he has set April 8 to review the progress the fisheries service has made to comply with this order.

For now, be content to say that Judge Marsh is the man of the hour. Governor Andrus is the man of the year and the brow-beaten soldiers in the Idaho Fish and Game Department and anonymous fishery department get the second half of the century persistence award.

The certainty that the opposition will be appealing Judge Marsh's decision. The hope here is that they have the same 35 years of frustration and twice the expense Idaho's salmon friends have fought through. They deserve a little of the hell they foisted on us.

And do you think they'll be a little happy at the Magic Valley Idaho Steelhead and Salmon Unlimited banquet at the Turf Club tonight?
