Regional juvenile lockup in operation in Twin Falls

By Sean L. McCarthy Times News writer

TWIN FALLS - "It was just two bushes and a tree."

That was all the county needed to plant to move into the new Snake River Detention Center, according to city building official Jim Turner.

The opening of the long-awaited juvenile detention center was delayed a week by the lack of landscaping required for the city's occupancy permit.

occupancy permit of the tree satisfied the city's requirement. Turner signed an occupancy permit Monday afternoon allowing the county to transport its juvenile offenders from the makeshift eight-bed lockup at the Filer fair grounds to the new 12-cell facility at 2515 Wright Ave. in the city's industrial park. The transfer had already taken place Monday morning, said Paul Frick, the regional lockup director.

Seven kids – including six from the Filer lockup – were in their new cells by mid-afternoon. Another two juveniles held in Jerome, were expected to be sent to the Snake River lockup Monday, Frick said.

He said three additional youths held in the state's Youth Services Center in St. Anthony would be brought back to Twin Falls.

"It looks like we'll have 11 kids by the end of the night, maybe more," Frick said Monday aftermoon. "I expect (the lockup) to be full for quite a while."

Frick said the kids were anxious during the move from the fairgrounds to the Snake River lookup. They made jokes and did "usual kid stuff" along the way, he said, but their moods turned more somber and serious when they arrived at the new facility and were locked into their individual cells.

"It is so different from what they were used to at Filer." Frlek said."

Security and efficiency were more difficult to control at the open atmosphere of the fairgrounds building, he said.

Twin Falls County commissioners wanted to make the switch over to the Snake River lockup last week but lacked the necessary occupancy permit. That permit was contingent upon landscaping at the site, city officials said.

County Commissioner Brent Reinke fired off a letter to Turner the next day ask-

Health reform faces filibuster by conservatives

The new House alternative would fall well short of universal coverage, and is expected to shun both tax increases and hotly disputed requirements for businesses to pay a portion of their workers' health insurance.

According to congressional sources, the House alternative plan would make premium costs fully tax-deductible for the self-employed and employees of firms where insurance isn't provided.

Federal subsidies would be available for families with income up to 200 percent of the poverty level by 2004, said the sources, speaking on the condition of anonymity. That would equate to subsidies for families of four people with an income less than $29,600 a year currently.

A Republican attempt to finance a more generous plan by cutting spending in non-health programs was rejected, according toons ource.

Democratic leadership aides conceded the measure could threaten their efforts to pass a bill calling for universal coverage by 1999, and relying on tax increases as well as a requirement that employers pay 80 percent of the cost of coverage for workers and their families.

In the Senate, debate on Mitchell's bill is scheduled to begin today — 11 months after Clinton went before Congress to call for leath reform. Mitchell' and other Democratic leaders liken their package in importance to the birth of Social Security in the 1930 and Medicare in the 1960s.

Jury strikes $10 million 'blow for consumers'

Verdict in suit favors Wendell couple

By Frank E. Lockwood Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS – A Twin Falls County jury Friday handed down a verdict against an insurance company, awarding $10.1 million in damages for defrauding an elder two ways of the county was a surface of the county was a surface of the county of the contained intentional fraudulent misrepresentations. It awarded James Russel Walston, $3.800 for breach of contract damages and $120,000 because Monumental acted fraudulently, unfairly and in bad faith.

The jury also gave Walston, 80, punitive damages totalling $10 million. Walston's wife, Edna, died in 1991 after developing wife, Edna, died in 1991 after developing lung cancer.

Court clerks, said Monday it was the biggest punitive damage award handed down by a local jury in their memory, Fifth District Judge Daniel Meehl-presided over the four day trial.
Walston convinced the jury that Monumental used deception to self him a cancer insurance policy and then refused to pay when his wife became terminally ill.
This is the second time in three weeks that Idaho juries have punished insurance companies. In July, a Boise jury ordered Take Care, Administrative Services to pay a policy-holder $26.8 million dollars because it wrongly refused to pay for an organ transplant. In the earlier case, Take Care's advertisements also were misleading.

Lawyers for Monumental Life are expected to file an appeal within the next six weeks. Such appeals can be lengthy—often taking one to two years. But Walston, act tomey, Kenneth L. Pedersen, is confident the jury verificit will be upheld.

Monday, Pedersen called the verdict "a blow for consumers everywhere." It shows that "Idaho juries are not going to stand for his kind of misbehavior," he said.

The Walston's filed insurance claim forms, and walted for their cancer expense protection plan to kick in. It never did. Edna, passed away on July 11, 1991 – less than six months after buying the insurance. Monumental maintained that Edna was incligible for coverage because she'd had a post-mastectomy checkup within the past, five years, and some stitches had been removed from her chest within that timespan. That amounted to cancer treatment, the company insisted. Monumental refused.

Rules aim for safety. protection

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department issued regulations Monday aimed at protecting nearly 4 million workers, especially maintenance workers and auto mechanics, from exposure to asbestos.

The regulations by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration_require filth any worker_who may come across loose asbestos must be trained on how to avoid disturbing the material and in some cases be provided with protective equipment such as respirators.

The regulations, which also reduce the maximum permissible exposure of aworker to asbestos from 0.2 fibers to 0.1 fibers per cubic centimeter of air, does not.call for removal of the material or enclosing it.

OSHA rejected an appeal from the asbestos, which is used in automobile brakes, roofing tiles and certain mastics, be considered less of a health risk than loose asbestos found in insulation.

Instead_OSHA said it "is reaffirming its position that chrysotile is as dangerous as other forms of asbestos.

ing its position that chrysotile is as dangerous as other forms of asbestos" and that auto mechanics and others exposed to the material should be pro-

The regulation also:
Requires procedures to limit asbestos exposure to mechanics dur-ing automotive brake and clutch repair work. Asbestos is used in brake pads and clutches.
Establishes mandatory work prac-tices in construction and shipyard-work-to-reduce worker exposure to asbestos.
The agency estimated that 3.2 mil-lion workers in new construction, building renovation and maintenance and custodial work, and another 685,000 auto mechanics will be pro-tected by the regulation.

OSHA estimated the new rules will cost the private sector $361 million a year.

The regulations apply to buildings, that were built prior to 1980, when sprayed-on asbestos and loose, fiber-asbestos were used widely as an insulator on walls and around pipes.

The Army's special commandos have drilled thousands of troops in assault mapetyers.

All summer long the U.S. milliary has been rehearsing in anticipation of an order to invade Haiti. Haiti Army commander Raoul Cedras says an invasion is inevitable and his country must be prepared. Asked over the weekend about Cedras' comments, White House chief of staff Leon Panetta said, "I'd recommend he not test us."

But the American military has been doing plenty of testing of its own capabilities.

"We obviously have contingency-plans in place should the order the use of force and therefore, we exercise and train in a variety of ways and locations, to be ready should we be called upon,"

In mid-May, some 44,000 troops took part in an annual exercise along the East Coast dubbed "Agilte Provider," in which Marines Corps and Army forces stormed the shores of North Carolina and Puerto Rico. Pentagon officials said the maneuvers — using fighter jets and amphibious landing craft — had been planned for more than a year using a Middle Eastern scenario. The "Cobra" breakout had shairered the German left flank, leaving Field Marshal Hans Gunther von Kluge only two options.

The first, which he favored; was a righting withdrawal. The problem was that there seemed no end to such a retreat except the West Wall fortifications on the German border. The Scine river line or the old World War I battlefields could at best delay, but ont other the Allied advance.

The other option, favored by Adolf Hiller, was a counterattack using some of the armored units that were still facing the British around Caen, "The U.S. First and Third Armies some of the armored units that were still facing the British around Caen, "The U.S. First and Third Armies tooked vulnerable to a bold stroke westward aimed at Avranches, the corridor that. linked the advance to the rear supply bases in Normandy was only; 30 miles wide. assault on the State Board of Educa-tion to get out of the Big Sky Confer-ence and into the Big West. The Big Sky is in NCAA's Divi-sion 1-AA, the fintor leagues of col-lege sport. Big West is in Division I -same as Notre Dame and Miami. Imagine the possibilities: National exposure. Big-time television rev-enues.

exposure. Big-time television revenues.

But before tailgate parties supplant mutton bustin as our state's pastime, perhaps a reality check is appropriate:

• Why bother? The once-proud Big West has in recent years become the fixer-upper of Division 1 athletic conferences. Fully half the schools that played football in the league 10 years ago don't play there any more. Heck in the past decade, the Big Sky actually has a winning record against the Big West.

If BSU and Idaho are expecting a revenue windfall from moving up; they'll be disappointed. The real money in college football comes west footbalt teams don't get on hattonal television very often.

Ty deals for themselves, the rich have gotten richer and the poor have gotten nothing. And Big West football teams don't get on national television very often.

In basketball, there are some Top 25-caliber teams in the Big West, notably Nevada-Las Vegas and New Mexico-State.—But-UNLV.—the league's marquee program, is in a long, slow process of rebuilding its credipility and its prowess in the wake of Jerry Tarkanian's departure, and it doesn't get on national TV much anymore either.

Idaho and BSU would earn more in game guarantees than they do now, but probably not enough to offset the increased costs they'd incur.

Finally, moving up to the Big Westwill end BSU's and Idaho's chances of playing for a national football championship. No such championship exists, officially, in Division I.

onship exists, officially, in Division I.
Getting a benth in the NEAA-Basket-ball Tournament will be tougher in

The buzz is palpable wherever slightly smug Vandal fans and long-suffering Bronco loyalists gather these days. Idaho and Boise State at long last may be going prime time. The two institutions, backed by legions of loyal fans, alumni and boosters, are about to mount a full frontal assault on the State Board of Educawould fall upon-students in the form to get out of the Big Sex Confero of higher fees, and perhaps on the Most of the cost of such a stadium would fall upon students in the form of higher fees, and perhaps on the taxpayers as well. This in a town that's 10-miles away from Washington State University, where Martin Stadium holds 30.000 people and where the Cougars compete head-to-head with the Vandals for fans. That's a problem because the Moscow-Pullman-Lewiston area is home to only about 65.000 people.

That's a problem because the Moscow-Pullman-Lewiston area is thome to only about 65,000 people, and the Vandals can't fill the Kibbie Dome for football, now. Does anyone seriously think that bringing teams. Bike Pacific and Utah State to town is going to keep the new stadium from becoming-an-expensive white elephant before it even opens?

What about the Bengals? The State Board of Education is probably only a year or two away from having to make some hard decisions about I-daho State's rickety, scandal-plagued, money-losing football program. In effect, if BSU and Idaho go to the Big West, that decision will be made for it. The Bengals simply can't survive financially as a second-rate program in a rump Big.Sky Conference.

Maybe ISU football deserves to go.

maybe ISU football deserves to go the way of the flying wedge, but that's a decision that the state board-should give some careful thought. Since public money subsidizes all three of the universities' at lettic programs, letting Idaho and BSU-join the. #### McMurrian coverage biased

Let's talk about agendas.
In the July 31 paper, you said Donald McMurrian has his own agenda in supporting Proposition 1, i.e., publicity and headline grabbing.
Well, what syour agenda? Your paper has been so biased for so many years, I am beginning to wonder if objective journalism is gone forever. There are a few things I'd like to address in defense of Donald McMurrian.
Since when is it a nime and the statement of the st

McMurrian.

Since when is it a crime or character flaw to speak one's mind or take a stand on issues that one believes in? So it is beter to blindly follow one particular party, organization or religious institution and not ask questions?

I for one don't think so.

I for one don't think so.

Donald McMurrian is my father, and he taught me to always think for myself and to follow what my heart tells me is right. His agenda is to speak out for and help those who normally don't get a voice. He has worked to help get programs institute for grandparent's rights, the drug problem and health care. These all sound like Democrat concerns to me. He votes predominantly Democrat ticket and, whether he isn't involved in the "organized".

Democrat party, that doesn't make him Democrat party, that doesn't make him any less of a Democrat.

Your article tries to make it sound like he changes his views like the wind by no giving the whole story.

For example, yes, he was involved in the ldaho Green Party shortly, but your article failed to mention that the reason he left it was because he found out it had a gay-was because he tound out it had a gay-rights agenda. Your paper also said in a previous arti-cle that he was a member of United We Stand. This is another falsehood. And so what if he did vote for Ross Perot - so did a lot of other Democrats as well as Repub-liches.

licans. Your paper failed to mention the people involved in getting him to endorse this issue. I and my family can attest to the many phone calls entreating him to help their cause. With all the signatures on the petition to get the proposition on the ballot, it is ludierous to think that none of those signatures are Democrat voters.

Many believe my father is wishy-washy many believe my father is wishy-washy in his many various causes due to inaccurate and one-sided reporting, but at least has the courage to try to do symething about what he believes in instead of sitting idly by in the safety of conservatism like so many of us.

I may not necessarily agree with so many of us.

I may not necessarily agree with every thing he does, but I respect him for trying to make a difference.

I resent the biased picture your article paints of my father.

Give us some objective stories instead of poisoned wells.

Yet the number of births to young, unmarried mothers has soared. So has the toll of abortions. About 470,000 children are in foster care, a startling increases from 276,000 in 1986.

Unmarried mothers no longer face the so-cial stigma they did, and having a baby out-of wedlock is not only acceptable but can be fashionable. Babies who might have been

Meanwhile, misconceptions about adoption have grown—most of them anecdotal and some deliberately fanned by a few ubortion supporters, by opponents of interracial radoption and by those genuinely concerned but uninformed about the effects of adoption on children.

but uninformed about the effects of adoption on children.

The myth-perception is that adopted children turn out to be problem kids, that they never cease to feel rootless and estranged without their biological parents and that no amount of love and effort by adoptive parents can erase the psychological traums.

These concerns should be dispelled by a new, federally funded, four-year study by the Search Institute, in Minneapolis. It's called the largest ever done of adolescent adoptees and their, families.

The study concludes that most adopted adoptees and their families.

The study concludes that most adopted teens are "thriving," with no signs adoption has had "a negative effect on their identity development, mental health or well-being." In comparison with other students in a large public school sampling, the Search Institute found adoptees have slightly less problem behavior, with a lower incidence of binge drinking, sexual activity, vandalism, trouble with police, school absentecism and drunk driving and considerably less depression. They are not turning out to be maladusted, robbeth kids.

Adoption is too valuable to be left to the want acts. Social agencies should reassess and update the adoption services they can provide. Family planning groups should not automatically recommend abortion in cases of problem pregnancy, but should also offer the benefits of adoption and fully support a woman who chooses it.

State legislators should rewrite laws that keep too many children in long-term fostercare. They should insist on laws that protect he privacy of adoption records unless both adoptice and birth parent agree to make information available. Caseworkers should be quicker to recommend adoption when parents are abusing, neglectful or uninterested, Judges should be more willing to free a rehild legally for adoption when it is in the child's best interest.

Congress can also help by passing the Multiethnic Placement Act proposed by Sen Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, It would counter the permicious and racist bias of black social workers against transracial adoption by providing that if a same-race adoptive family cannot be found, a child can be adopted across racial lines rather than be stuck in long-term foster care. The measure is an amendment to two human services bills sow in House-Senate conference committee.

Rep. Chris Smith, R.N.J., has introduced an Omnibas Adoption, Act that would encourage adoption, offer tax incentives and provide legal help for birth mothers. The bill is stuck in several House committees and no action is likely soon.

It's not often a win-win-win solution, like. Adoption, is available for a social problem. We should cherish and encourage this one.

Whitewater a whitewash?

Whitewater a whitewash?

Someone, anyone, explain to me just what this past week's televised side show was all about. I'm referring to the Congressional Whitewash Hearing, Speedy Gonzales, his gavel and his 30-odd assortment of buffoons of all as he hung on his gavel, sprawling his hulk across his podium. He reminded me of a turkey vulture sitting atop his prey. How or through what political caper was he able to rise to such a high status as "chairman of the board"?

Then there were the poor fools on the other side of the aisle – better known as Republicans, only 20 in number. Where was their reasoning to surmise they stood a chance of being heard? If it wasn't Old Speedy cutting them short or Lord Cuttle using up their time, with his blah, blah, blah, CNN's commercial between the condition of the side of the aisle. You didn't have to be a Mississippi River Boat captain to see amount the bend on these Doomeschurey.

hearings. They sure must think we John Q's. are as stupid as they are. After all, Lord Cutler and (oh, he's Republican) Robert Riske, took down all fences when they gave notice of wrong doings, legally or criminally by King Bill and Lady H. Rodham.

What a price for some of the royal court are having to pay for being a Friend of --Bill's7 Isin (that right, Roger Altman?).

What is so amazing is how these witness-, Democrats or Friends of Bill's, are so able to have constipation of the memory sys-tem in one breath and diarrhea of the vocal chords in the next. Depending of course, on whose questions they were answering.

While the infection rate has leveled off in Western countries, the latest figures portray an epidemic that is raiging out of control in much of the world, especially Africa and Asia. In all, the World Health Organization estimates that about 17 million people have been infected with HIV, the AIDS virus. Three million of them got it in the last year alone, more than ever before. Sub-Saharan Africa is still the part of the world most dewastated by AIDS. About 10 million infected people live there. But the virus is now spreading fastest in Asia, and many fear a sweeping epidemic here.

Twin Falls woman faces homelessness as autumn nears

Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS - The bright orange sign says it all: "Eviction sale."
Katie: Humphries-has-lived-im-a-rented-house at 543 Blue Lakes Blud, for 16 years. Now she's selling her worldly belongings and staring into the void of homelessness.
"It's hard to part with some of this stuff, especially at yard sale prices," she said. A 100-year-old oak mirror that hung over her bed left for $50.
"Why do 1-still have this stuff?" she asks, gesturing toward infant clothes now two decades old. "I don't know." I'm emotionally attached to it; you know. I'm emotionally attached to it; you know. Ever since she moved into the weather-beaten Yellow house on Blue Lakes as a single mother, Humphries has goiten help with the rent from the Idaho Housing Agency.
Each year, in order to keep the state rent checks coming, Humphries was required to fill out paperwork and have her home inspected by a state employee.

And each year, she waited until the deadline for the paper-work had passed, and the inspector helped fill out the forms.

Forms.

Every year, Humphries said the housing officials told her that holding onto the forms a few days past the deadline was 'no big deal,' and it never a fafected her rent payments.

13-point list of demands that will keep the city on line with the regional project.
The list of requirements was passed by a 6-1 vote late Monday night.
Councilman Tom Condic east the sole vote against continuing with the regional E911 system.
The project would provide consolidated and computer-assisted emergency dispatching from a Jerome center to residents in Gooding. Lincoln, Jerome and Twin Falls counties.
The council also voted 6-1 to withdraw from a federally-funded bicycle route that would run through stretches' of downtown along Fourth Avenue.
Councilman Jeff Gooding was in the minority supporting the route.
In a separate 6-1 vote, the council approved grant money for another bike route in the southern part of town.

Woman, 48, killed in head-on collision

MINIDOKA COUNTY - A Hazelton woman was killed instantly and a Rupert man was critically injured in a head-on car accident Monday afternoon. Mary Greenwell, 48, was found dead at the scene after her car collided with another on Baseline Road in Minidoka County. Nathan Moller, 16, was in critical condition Monday evening at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center and was expected to be transferred to St. Alphonous Regional Medical Center in Boise, according to a hospital spokeswoman.

Greenwell was eastbound on Baseline Road and Moller west-bound. Moller was going up a slight hill, which was probably a visual obstacle, said Cpl. Jerod Sweesy of the Idaho State Police.

Moller hit his brakes at the top of the hill, skidded into the center of the road and collided with Greenwell, Sweesy deduced from evidence at the scene.

The accident is still under investigation to determine if negligence occurred, Sweesy said.

In Idaho alone, where dozens of mainly small fires were still burning, more than 3,000 firefighters along with the military personnel battled the eight major blazes.

Another 900 firefighters were still committed to the other fires in the Idaho City fire complex, which grew to 8,480 acres by Monday night. The 4,000-acre Rabbit Creek, blaze was the largest, along the North Fork of the Boise River. The Bear River fire had consumed 1,400 acres. "On both, we had to pull the crews away from them because of the extreme fire danger." Boise Forest spokesman Don Kass said. "It's the heat and the fact the crews couldn't tell if there was fire behind them." Kass said the Sunset lookout near Idaho Highway 21 on the summit between Idaho City and Lowman was evacuated as the fires were about 3% miles away, Kass said.

And, because of the wind, the Boise National Forest was unable to put retardant tankers into the air against the new Thunderbolt Mountain fire five miles north of Warm Lake. It grew to 100 acres by Monday night and threatened to explode with the continued heat.

I have a boyfriend who has been my bowling buddy since my husband passed away. We bowl at the same place. The problem is that he is very simgy. He takes me out to dinner in exchange for sex at my place afterward. (I feel like a whore; instead of money, he buys me dinner.)

I would dump him in a minute if I could find another bowling partner. I am very personable and have many friends, but he is the only bowler.

Fed seen keeping inflation modest

WASHINGTON — The U.S. inflation outlook remains relatively tame despite a recent rise in price pressures, because Fed rate hikes will keep inflation from getting out of hand, economists inflation from getting out of hand, economists said Monday.

The 4-cent rise in hourly carnings in July combined with the labor market being very close to capacity is a little bit troublesome but won't (actually) translate into higher inflation. Said Marityn Schaja, an economist at Donaldson, Lufkin, & Jénrette:

That's because expected tightenings by the Federal Reserve should slow the economy enough to keep those and other price pressures; including rising industrial commodity prices, from causing inflation to go much higher, they said.

"We think the Federal Reserve is succeeding in hitting a soft landing," said David Wyss, an economist at DRI/McGraw-Hill: "That means we should have only a very mild acceleration in ...

should have only a very mild acceteration inflation."

"According to economists surveyed by Knight-Ridder Financial News, the consumer inflation rate is seen rising to a median of 3.3 percent in 1995 from 3-0 percent in 1994. December to December. That compares with a 2.7 percent rate last year.

"In general, we're not terribly concerned about inflation-for at least the next-6 months or a year," said Kathryne Kobe, an economist at Joel Popkin

Said Naturylle Role, an economist among the economists ranged only from 2.9 percent to 3.1 percent for this year, estimates for 1995 ranged from 3.1 percent to 3.8 percent.

That compares with the Fed's July forecast that consumer inflation would range from 2.75 to 3.0 percent this year, and 2.75 to 3.5 percent in 1995. At 3.8 percent, ours "is an above-consensus inflation forecast and it dovetails with our notion that the economy is still growing faster than its potential growth rate," explained John Zachringer, chief economist at Loomis, Sayles & Co.

chringer, chief economist at Loomis, saytes & Co.

He and other analysts agreed, however, that the inflation rate shouldn't exceed 4 percent in the current business cycle. "Something like a 3.5 percent-to 4.0 percent annualized increases is really a very modest upturn in inflation." Zachtninger said. "I really don't think it'll get, worse than that cause the Fed's going to stop it."

In the short-term, higher gasoline prices are expected to contribute to a 0.3 percent rise in both consumer and producer prices in July.

BRIGHAM CITY, Utah — Baron Woolen Mill, which began as a Mormon cooperative and slid into bankruptey in 1991, reopened last year and has been painstakingly carving out a niche with designer rugs.

"It's getting better," said co-owner Marva Sadler. "Last year we really couldn't make anything. We were selling used merchandise from the provious owner. January was a bad month. But since then, we've been real busy."

The mill has been concentrating on making primarily designer rugs and selling them wholesale and through mail order, Sadler said.

There also are plans to crank out specialty throw blankets for universities and colleges. They il be wonderful for football, "Sadler said.

To do all this, the business plans to add two more employees to its staff of 20 to work on rebuilt equipment, looms-and other machinery-that-date-back to the turn of the century.

Baron already produces about 45 blankets a day, and with the, addition of two more looms that number should almost double soon.

'If you are out to beat a dog, you're sure to find a stick." —Yiddish proverb.

At rabber bridge, today's de-fense is straightforward. West must focus on beating the game. At duplicate. West has a different problem. Should be satisfy him-self with a one-trick set when many others are collecting two? When East wins his diamond ace and returns the queen, what strought west do?

Should West do?

At duplicate, if East has a third diamond, the game will go two down tor a better-than-average result. But what if East has only two diamonds? If West waits, declarer will make his game. West's club ace will be gone while South still has a diamond stopper and South takes nine tricks.

At rubber bridge, it's another matter. West is not concerned with down one or down two; he is concerned about not conceding
