U.S. wary as Iraqi retreat slows

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Some Iraqi Republican Guard units heading away from the Kuwait border halted their retreat Thursday.

That prompted the Pentagon to rethink a hold it had put on the flow of U.S. troops to the Persian Gulf, senior U.S. military officials said.

"We don't like what we are seeing. They are clearly south of where we would like them to be," a senior military official, referring to the Iraqi troop movements, told reporters at the Pentagon.

Because of the latest development, a decision earlier Thursday by Gen. H. H. B. Ford Peay to slow the fast-paced flow of U.S. forces into the Gulf region will be under discussion, the official added. Peay is head of the Central Command and in charge of the Gulf deployment.

"The whole process of when and what flows is being reviewed," the Pentagon official said.

Marines of the 15th Marine Expeditionary Unit from Camp Pendleton, Calif., fire a wire-guided Dragon missile during an exercise in the desert north of Kuwait City Thursday.

Official said of the U.S. troop movement, "This looks as if it is another possible test of our resolve," said another senior Pentagon official, traveling with U.S. Defense Secretary William Perry in Jiddah, Saudi Arabia.

"This is one of the reasons why it is premature to talk about a pullout (of U.S. forces) immediately ... or why it's premature to talk about the troops not going in to full strength," said the official, speaking on the condition of anonymity.

He made the comments after Perry had a 90-minute meeting with King Fahd of Saudi Arabia.

In Baghdad, Saddam Hussein offered Thursday to recognize Kuwait as a sovereign state if the United Nations promised to ease a stifling embargo after six months.

The State Department responded that "such offers have been heard before" but have never been followed by the changes in Iraqi law that "would reverse Kuwait's annexation as Iraq's 19th province" in 1990.

A week after Saddam's attempt to intimidate the United Nations and Kuwait,

Don't fear epilepsy, children at Twin Falls school told

By Julie M. McKinnon
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Katie Mogensen has about 20 epileptic seizures a day, and sometimes they happen while she's at school.

And the 6-year-old Morningside Elementary School student needs the same thing in the classroom or on the playground as she does anywhere else: a reassuring pat until the seizure passes.

"I would like the kids to understand what is going on with Katie a little bit and not be afraid of it and support Katie," said her mother, Lori Mogensen of Twin Falls, who's taking Katie to St. Paul, Minn., on Monday for more tests to determine the cause of her seizures.

"Katie's seizures started when she was 18 months old, and she has almost constant seizure activity in her brain," said Lori Mogensen, adding that Katie was having 100 to 200 seizures daily. "When her seizures started, her development stopped."

"They have no idea why it started."

To help Katie's schoolmates understand how her seizures happen, Patricia McDaniel of the Epilepsy League of Idaho spoke to 30 kindergartners Thursday. McDaniel said she calls her message "social first aid."

People should calmly help epileptics having seizures by moving everything out of their way, placing a pillow under their heads and rolling them on their sides instead of panicking or laughing at them, McDaniel told students, at times with the help of puppets. McDaniel also stressed that usually epileptics are not

Pilgrims brave mud for vision of Virgin Mary, monthly word

The Associated Press

CONYERS, Ga. — Thousands of mud-coated pilgrims stood in a drizzling rain for hours Thursday to hear a message from the Virgin Mary.

About 23,500 pilgrims from around the world waited, praying aloud, listening to readings from scripture and waving white paper and white handkerchiefs as they sang "Ave Maria."

They gathered under umbrellas and tents to hear from Nancy Fowler, who says she communicates with the virgin on the 13th of each month when she appears on the ceiling of a room in Mrs. Fowler's farmhouse.

"Our lady was radiant," Mrs. Fowler said. "She wore a white veil and dress and she was beautiful."

Meanwhile, in Hollywood, Fla., hundreds of pilgrims flocked to the home of Rosa Lopez, who also says the Virgin Mary speaks to her on the 13th of each month.

During a 90-minute recitation of the rosary — in Spanish and English — broadcast into the roped-off street over loudspeakers, the sun broke through the clouds.

Onlookers dropped to their knees and stared at the blazing sun. Some reported seeing crosses in the sky, others a silhouette of Mary.

"I saw the Lord," said a sobbing Susan Butler, 26, of Boynton Beach. "What one person sees, another may not. If you believe, you'll see it."

In Georgia, Thursday's message was similar to those Mrs. Fowler has issued previously: Follow God or the earth will be plagued with war, famine, flood, and other suffering.

It was the fourth anniversary of the messages.

White House pledges tight Mexico border

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Clinton administration pledged Thursday to halt illegal immigration across the Mexican border and accused California's Republican governor of demagoguery on the issue in his re-election campaign.

A year and a half into the administration plan, new fences, lights, sensors, night-vision scopes and additional Border Patrol agents are being placed along the 2,000-mile border, Deputy Attorney General Jamie Gorelick told reporters.

Justice Department officials have even consulted the Pentagon's Center for Low-Intensity Conflict for advice on the most effective places to locate the new officers and equipment, she added. The first intense effort began last fall at El Paso, Texas, and last month in California south of San Diego.

"We expect we will be able to secure the entire southwest border during this program," she said. "We have a plan for the activities in El Paso and San Diego to meet up."

"We intend to close the entire border to illegal immigrants, a goal she acknowledged "many thought impossible."

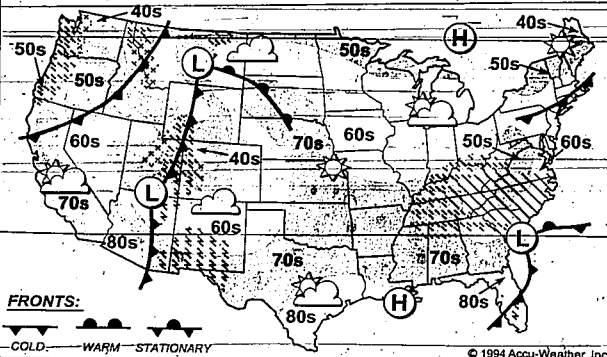

"I like to hear them talking this way," said Roger Braudemuehl, of Belton, Texas, a 30-year Border Patrol veteran who headed the agency as an assistant immigration commissioner from 1980-1986.

Heavy rains swamp Southeast again

The Associated Press
Heavy rain and strong winds battered much of the Southeast on Thursday, drenching already saturated ground and causing flooding in parts of Georgia and South Carolina.
The rains prompted gas force warnings from Cape Hatteras, N.C., to the South Carolina-Georgia border. A flood watch was posted for the South Carolina coast, and the northern and eastern parts of Georgia, where rain has fallen for several days.
School was canceled in Savannah, Ga., and Charleston, S.C., because of flooding caused by up to 14 inches of rain in two days. The storms also pelleted Sarasota, Fla., with hail the size of dimes.

Cooler with highs 60-65. Tonight showers and thunderstorms likely. Winds turning to the northwest and colder. Lows 40-45. Saturday showers likely. Breezy northwest winds and continued cold. Highs in the mid-50s. The ultraviolet index forecast for Friday is 3, a low exposure level.
Elko County: Partly cloudy today with a slight chance of showers north and east. A slight chance of thunderstorms near the Utah border. Highs in the 50s to mid-60s. Tonight mostly cloudy east with a good chance of showers. Snow level 5,500 feet. Lows in the 30s to lower 40s. Saturday cloudy east with a good chance of showers. Snow level 5,500 feet. Highs in the upper 40s and 50s.

Weather summary

Snow advisories are in effect for Idaho's northern and central mountains today with much colder and wet weather ahead for this weekend.
Columbia coast late Thursday was expected to reach northern Idaho early this morning and spread over the remainder of the state by this afternoon. The storm may reach 1 to 3 inches of snow at the higher elevations of the northern and central mountains.
Valley locations can expect a fair amount of rain or rain and snow mixed today. The wet weather will likely continue into Monday with much colder, below-normal temperatures statewide.
Clouds built up but then dissipated on several occasions over the Magic Valley Thursday. Winds over the area were generally light to moderate with mild temperatures.
The highest temperature in the state Thursday was 71 degrees at Malad. Bevil reported the lowest at 25 degrees.
Elsewhere in the nation Thursday, the highest temperature was 95 degrees at Coolidge, Ariz. Truckee, Calif., reported the lowest temperature at 14 degrees.

Rainfall totals for the six hours up to noon MDT included: 1.02 inches in Jackson, Ky.; .78 in Florence, S.C.; and .42 in Hickory, N.C., and Sumter, S.C.
Much of the heavy rain across the Southeast fell Wednesday night into early Thursday morning. Downtown Charleston, S.C., got 4.07 inches of rain from midnight to noon. More than 14 inches of rain fell in Chatham County, Ga., Wednesday and Thursday.
Elsewhere, threatening storm clouds stretched over the northern Rockies and the northern and central Plains. They were expected to drop snow on the Rockies. As a result, a winter storm watch was posted for the San Juan Mountains of Colorado.
Morning lows were in the 30s and 40s over much of the northern half of the nation and Rockies.

U.S. worries over Haiti security

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP)
To avoid "crowd hysteria," the U.S. military plans to carry President Jean-Bertrand Aristide by helicopter from the airport to the National Palace when he returns from exile Saturday.
"Right now, that's our plan, to help him," Lt. Gen. Henry Hugh Shelton, commander of U.S. Forces here, said Thursday, hours after Haiti's former army leaders flew to Panama.
Shelton said he feared that massive celebrations Saturday hailing Aristide's return after three years in exile would degenerate into a mob scene.
"All the leaders have stressed nonviolence ... but you get the crowd hysteria that starts to creep in occasionally, particularly if there are people who want to incite a riot," he said.

Meanwhile, Haiti's former army commander, Raoul Cedras, arrived early Thursday in Panama to begin his life in exile. But he won't be without income. The United States plans to lease Cedras' tax homes in Haiti for several thousand dollars in effect giving U.S. taxpayers' money to the one-time dictator.
Jean-Robert Martinez, a pro-Aristide senator, said late Thursday the money would be better spent on reparations for victims of the 1991 coup that ousted Aristide.
The United States is being extremely supportive of Cedras," Martinez said. "Is it exaggerated tolerance?"

Martinez, however, supported the plan to fly Aristide by helicopter from the airport to the palace, calling it "a measure of extreme security to prevent the president from going to the streets and provoking an uncontrollable crowd."
Shelton met with Haiti's new army commander, Maj. Gen. Jean-Claude Dupuy, for several hours Thursday to discuss security.
Shelton said the U.S. military wanted to avoid situations in which Aristide would be part of a procession or make impromptu speeches before crowds.

physically disabled or sick, and she tried to dispel other myths associated with epilepsy.
"If you break down that thinking, you also break down a potential prejudice," she said. "People look so weird when they have a seizure, and we don't want the children - and adults, too - to react inappropriately."
On Thursday, McDaniel also gave a talk to sixth graders because Katie's sister, Keri, is in that class and to fifth graders because one boy in that class has epileptic seizures. Since she started doing the puppet show and educational program three years ago, McDaniel has visited other schools in Twin Falls, Burley, Hazelton, Wendell and Gooding, as well as talked to adult groups.
One of every 100 people have epilepsy, McDaniel said, and there are 2,000 different types of seizures, some of which are uncontrollable.

So far, no one has been able to figure out why Katie has seizures or how to prevent them from happening so often, Lori Mogensens said. "If you look at Katie, she's 14 to 20 years old, has taken various medications and even stayed for seven months on a strict diet for epileptics," Lori Mogensens said.
"She's made some progress over the past 4½ years, but it's been very slow," said Lori Mogensens, adding Katie has some vocabulary and learning skills. "A whole lot's going in. We just don't get it out very easily."
"She has so much going on in her head that it just makes it really hard for her to learn," she said. "Other than that, Katie is a very happy little girl. She loves to run and play in the yard."
The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has advised against the use of one medication, helping Katie for potentially causing aplastic anemia, which can be fatal, Lori Mogensens said. So Monday the Mogensenses are going to Children's Hospital in St. Paul to see if the Minnesota Epilepsy Group can figure out the cause of Katie's seizures and determine if she's a surgical candidate, she said.

"They've got all the equipment, the technology to look for things maybe other people can't find," Lori Mogensens said. "We have to find something to stop this."

and with Iraqi forces still in the field, it would be wholly inappropriate to reward him by agreed to consider modifications to the sanctions regime," the department said in a statement.
The U.N., the United States and other nations have said repeatedly that Iraq must abide by U.N. resolutions before the sanctions will be lifted.
Also in the Gulf region Thursday, U.S. warships intercepted a Greek tanker suspected of trying to smuggle out an Iranian oil shipment. U.S. troops boarded the vessel and found the oil believed to be from Iraq, a violation of an embargo that halted Baghdad's crude exports more than four years ago, a Navy spokesman said.
At the United Nations, the United States proposed that Iraqi troops and heavy equipment near the Kuwaiti border be limited, a move that President Clinton praised as "very strong." But it is less strict than an earlier suggestion that would have barred all Iraqi forces from the area.

The latest development also could mute the expressions of pleasure that had come from top U.S. officials, when it had appeared that Iraq's Saddam Hussein had responded to America's military moves and pulled his forces back.
"Iraq heard our message," President Clinton declared earlier in the day. But Clinton had also warned the United States would not let down its guard.
A White House official, also speaking on condition of anonymity, said three Iraqi brigades, or about 3,500 troops, had passed near the town of Nazariyah. One of the units is heavily armed with tanks, he said.
"We're watching it very carefully," the White House official said, adding that the exact number of concern but that it's not a crisis mode.
Iraq's ambassador to the United Nations, Nizar Hadmond, said in a telephone interview that the Red Guard troops had pulled back to Nasiriya, about 30 miles north of Basra on the Iraq-Kuwait border.

I'm not sure where the brigades have stopped, but they are not in the same area which had created all the tension; they are up to the north," Hadmond said. "I don't know what the reason is behind this."
Earlier in the day, Peay had ordered 15,000 Marines from Camp Pendleton, Calif., to delay their deployment. Some Army and Air Force units were also told to remain on alert, but to hold off moving toward the Gulf.
But no cancellations of any deployment orders were issued, the Pentagon official added, noting that the timetable of the troops movements could be sped up yet again, given the latest change in the Republican Guard deployments.
At the height of the crisis, the Pentagon had envisioned sending about 63,500 soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines into the Gulf to face off against the 71,000 troops Saddam had massed on the border.

the sale of the building contingent upon the city using its own reserve funds for the purchase.
Mayor Gale Kleinkopf said he was confused about Tuesday's vote, particularly because the city already had agreed to buy the Graybill tract and because the sale is critical to the success of the Old Town plan.
Those plans, developed in January by the Hudson-Jelaco consulting firm, call for the city to acquire property near Rock-Creek Canyon and the Old Town Bridge for open space. McAlindin said Tuesday that the city is in the process of appraising much of the property between the canyon and the railroad tracks.

Doug Vollmer, a former mayor, appraised the Graybill tract at a value of $165,000 - $150,000 higher than the parcel's list price.
The city's agreement with Nye stated that the property would be sold for the list price or the appraised value, whichever was less.

"The city was supposed to complete the sale Aug. 1," but Haneey said Thursday that two different extensions have been filed to keep the deal from collapsing.
"Because of the delays," Mr. Nye has had other parties approach him interested in buying the property, but Nye has declined the offers in his wish to do business with the city, Haneey said.

War haunts Japan's Nobel winner

TOKYO (AP)—Novelist Kenzaburo Oe, whose dark musings on moral failure came to symbolize an alienated generation in postwar Japan, won the Nobel Prize in literature Thursday.

He is only the second Japanese author ever to do so.

The Swedish Academy, announcing the award, cited the 59-year-old author for his often disturbing works of fiction, in which "poetic force creates an imagined world where life and myth condense to form a dis-headlines, and the prime minister himself issued congratulations. The concerting picture of the human predicament today.

In Japan, news of the award to Kenzaburo Oe (pronounced Ken-za-bu-roh OH-eh) led evening newscasts and spawned banner headlines, and the prime minister himself issued congratulations. The only other Japanese to win a Nobel in literature was Yasunari Kawabata, in 1968.

Oe himself reacted with gentle self-deprecation: "Whenever I was named as a candidate, I always thought it was a joke," he told reporters outside his Tokyo home. "I never thought about winning the prize."

He said he considered the prize a tribute to Japanese literature as a whole rather than himself personally.

Government moves prop up ruble

MOSCOW—The widely fluctuating ruble recouped its losses Thursday after a confidence-jarring crash, but only after a costly blitz by a government bank with fast-dwindling reserves.

The Central Bank spent an estimated $100 million Thursday to prop up the ruble on the Moscow Interbank Currency Exchange.

The ruble closed at 2,994 to the dollar, up 742 points from Wednesday's finish of 3,736.

But the rebound did little to calm nerves in Moscow where the 845-point plunge Tuesday raised questions about Russia's economic stability and fears the weak ruble will spur inflation by making imports more expensive.

Study: Bacteria fights baby ailments

LONDON—Spiking baby formula with two kinds of harmless bacteria wards off diarrhea, a common ailment among hospitalized babies and a leading cause of death in developing countries, an American study says.

The findings suggest the good germs drive out bad germs that trigger disease. "This finding offers the potential for an easy, inexpensive and practical method for the prevention of diarrheal diseases around the world," said Robert Yolken, one of the investigators and a professor of pediatrics at Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine.

The study is to be published in Saturday's issue of The Lancet, a medical journal.

Police: Cult leader died with followers

GENEVA—His life was a contradiction. His death was shrouded in a bloody mystery that cost the lives of 52 of his disciples.

Swiss police said Thursday that Luc Jouret, the guru of the Order of the Solar Temple cult, was among the charred corpses found in an Alpine chalet last week.

The identification ended the international hunt for the 46-year-old Belgian homeopath. It also dimmed hopes of uncovering the reason behind the deaths of five cult members in Canada and 48 others in Switzerland.

Chief pathologist Thomas Kronpecher said Jouret's body — like others found in two chalets — bore no trace of bullet holes. By contrast, many of the victims found in a Swiss farmhouse had multiple shot wounds. Three of the dead in Canada were stabbed.

There are no witnesses to the tragedy. The cult's mastermind, Joseph di Mambro, its treasurer and Canadian branch leader are dead.

Haitian official may be plotting

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP)—A Haitian army commander who has eluded American control is reportedly organizing resistance to the U.S. intervention.

American commander Hugh Shelton said Thursday Lt. Col. Claudel Joseph, a leading strategist for the Haitian army who commanded the northern district before his soldiers got into a firefight with U.S. Marines on Sept. 24, was missing.

Lt. Gen. Shelton, commander of the 19,500 American soldiers in Haiti, stressed an "associated" press interview hours after former dictator Raoul Cedras left Haiti for exile in Panama that the United States has no indication armed training is under way.

Joseph resigned his commission in disgust after the Cap-Haitien firefight.

Espy predicament proves there are no free lunches

U.S. Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy contends he's done nothing wrong but still he resigned his post effective Dec. 31.

How many times do politicians have to get hit by a truck before they look both ways before crossing the highway? Most people understand that even the perception of wrongdoing is reason enough to avoid a particular situation.

Why did Espy believe that allowing Tyson Foods and Quaker Oats to pay for travel and gifts for him would be accepted by Americans?

The perception is that the officials at the major food companies, which face USDA regulations, were trying to influence Espy for "favorable conditions" in which to operate their businesses.

Espy has repaid more than $7,600 to individuals and firms for his travel and sports entertainment. Is the USDA so poor or is Espy so underpaid that he could not pay for his travel with government funds or by himself?

Whether Espy looked the other way for Tyson or Quaker is irrelevant. The perception exists that Espy was "on the take."

To government officials at every level: There are no free lunches.

American TV fails to reflect real sexual lives

A new survey offers a view of Americans' sex lives that might surprise anyone who believed the entertainment industry's depiction of normalcy.

Adultery? Multiple sex partners? Swinging singles? Myths, one and all. Monogamy is the rule for the vast majority of married people. More than 80 percent of Americans have had just one sex partner — or no partners — in the past year. Only 2.8 percent of men and 1.4 percent of women identified themselves as homosexual or bisexual, far below the often-quoted figure of 10 percent.

The study's authors say it is the most comprehensive and objective look ever at Americans' sexual practices. The scientifically selected random sampling involved interviews with thousands of people. It didn't rely on volunteers or prison inmates, as some previous works have done. Researchers from the University of Chicago and the State University of New York conducted the study.

The study seems to offer a more realistic view of American sexual habits than has been seen elsewhere in recent years, a view that is both appealing and traditional. Most people's lives never matched the silly excesses depicted on the tube. Now the study has indicated that those who live their lives modestly, faithfully and sensibly aren't alone. Thank goodness.

Terrorists need privacy, too

Pardon me, Mr. Terrorist, but would you mind signing this permission slip so your mind might be approved by the U.S. government knows you approve of my seeing on my abduction?

In effect, those are the bizarre rules the CIA, FBI and Drug Enforcement Administration initially laid down for journalist Terry Anderson. They said he would have to get the permission of his captors before Washington would turn over its files concerning his seven-year ordeal at the hands of Middle East terrorists. The reason?

Terrorists have privacy rights, too.

That stance was so preposterous that the government dropped it — yet still refuses to give Anderson the files. A lawyer said it's "likely" that other grounds for withholding information will apply to any existing records pertaining to these individuals. Such as? Whatever the explanation, it can't possibly be good enough to reject Anderson's reasonable request.

Letters

Thank you, U.S. Border Patrol

This letter is in regard to the Oct. 3 article, "U.S. Border Patrol begins major crackdown on illegal immigrants."

The border patrol is overcoming what U.S. Attorney Alan Bersin described as a "generation of neglect." The mission of the perennially overworked, underfunded agency has been synonymous with futility — critics have alternately decided the border patrol is "abusive and ineffective."

Border patrol officers have a bounty on their heads by heavy drug traffickers from Mexico and further south. They are also personally assaulted in the line of duty. These drugs are destroying the next generation of freedom fighters for the United States of America.

The abuse is against America and what she stands for. Drugs cause murders, rapes, etc. It's to the end of the line. All people who are in this country illegally need to be deported to where they belong as soon as possible.

People who illegally hire these people for cheap labor are selling out the United States of America. American jobs belong right here, so bring it back home and keep it home. You people who do illegal hiring are putting too many honest Americans out of work.

Los Angeles County has approximately 1 million illegal aliens alone, according to statistics. A new government study says out of seven states with the largest populations, nearly half a billion dollars this year was spent to imprison those convicted of crimes. Those states also spent $3.1 billion to educate undocumented aliens in fiscal 1993 and $422 million on their Medicaid costs, according to the analysis by the Urban Institute. The study commissioned by our federal government didn't calculate costs for each state.

How many crimes were committed in 1993-94 in Idaho by illegal aliens? How many were drug-related and how many abusive or violent? Also, when you hire your help illegally, think about the folks you're really hurting — that is while you count your few extra illegal bucks. The U.S. Border Patrol can better use $3.1 billion by exiting, not educating.

Keep up the good work, U.S. Border Patrol officers and families. There's not very many people who envy your tough and thankless jobs. I thank you all very much.

Maughan has youth, sense

Once again, election time is upon us and we must decide which path to take to make the right decisions in electing the right candidate for the job.

Running for Twin Falls County commissioner are Democrat Dennis Maughan and Republican Pam Dowd. I am personally acquainted with both candidates, and I highly respect both of them, but it is time to change the political balance of Twin Falls County.

Dennis Maughan has the youth, common sense, knowledge and the adaptability to tackle this job and make Twin Falls County a better place to live. He is also receptive to new ideas, is very open-minded and is not afraid to learn all aspects of county government.

I urge all registered Twin Falls County voters to join me in the upcoming election to vote for Dennis Maughan for county commissioner. The time for change is now!

Correction

The wrong town was named in the headline over a letter to the editor in Thursday's newspaper concerning the Minidoka School District.

The Times-News regrets the error.

GOP coup could impact U.S. economy

James K. Glassman

trader (though with a Western populist bent).

But, whoever is running the Senate, many of its economic committees have a tradition of bipartisanship. It's the House where the change to Republican control would have real impact.

For instance, Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, would take over Ways and Means Committee, where all tax bills must originate. Archer is a fierce advocate of cutting the capital gains rate by half.

While Rep. John Myers, R-Ind., is in line to head the Appropriations Committee in a GOP regime, he could lose his seat in November to a Democratic challenger. Myers's earlier opposition to Kasich's proposed budget cuts still ripples GOP leaders, and if he survives his Democratic foe, he could still lose his committee chair to someone farther down the ladder, such as Rep. Ralph Regula, R-Ohio.

Even more interesting are changes at the top of subcommittees, some of which have congressional power in the House. The most fascinating change involves a little-known freshman Republican from Michigan, Rep. Peter Hoekstra (pronounced, he says, as in fish "hook"). He's in line to chair the labor-management relations subcommittee, replacing Rep. Pat Williams, D-Mont., a former schoolteacher who's a strong supporter of labor unions.

Hoekstra, by contrast, holds an MBA from the University of Michigan and was an executive for 15 years with Herman Miller Inc., an office furniture company that's been in the vanguard of new management thinking. Hoekstra is a staunch foe of OSHA regulations, striker replacement rules and what he calls "antiquated labor law."

Hoekstra has big plans. "If this subcommittee does not become influential and powerful in rewriting our country's labor laws," he told me while he took a break from campaigning at a high school in Muskegon, Mich., "then our global competitiveness is going to suffer."

But just how likely is it that Republicans will gain seven seats in the Senate and 40 in the House? I think the odds cited by the Cook Report are about right: 50 and 33 percent, respectively.

Americans, after all, seem to like divided government. If the GOP takes either the House or Senate, then by 1996, one party will simultaneously have controlled Congress and the presidency for just six out of 28 years.

James K. Glassman writes regularly on financial affairs for The Washington Post.

Stennett seems accessible

I have tried at different times to work within the two major political parties. I have found real problems with the extremes in both parties. I am an Independent, as are many Idahoans that I have talked with. I have purposely distanced myself from partisan politics at local, state and federal levels. This year, several things are happening that concern me enough to get actively involved.

I was born in Camas County and have lived here most of my life. Jon Mellen lives in Camas County. I have been involved in several projects that are county as well as multi-county and nationwide. Jon has yet to talk to me about any of these projects or my concerns about local issues. Jon said several things during a candidate debate held in Gooding which prompts me to write this letter.

One of Jon's points was that "no matter what" he would support the Republican agenda. I guess I wonder who that leaves me, personally; also what does that do for cities and counties on funding issues? The projects I am working on with mayors, administrators and city councils in four counties and 12 communities require bipartisan efforts. The most productive legislation I have been involved in has been successful only because both parties leave their differences in the voting booth and work together on solutions to problems. Clint Stennett has done this very well while representing our district in the House.

Jon said he would be a "full-time senator." How does this get funded? Jon said a very important issue to him is the 10th Amendment. At the state level, a resolution can be done or, as I understand, Colorado has done, we can take on a very expensive battle with the federal government. Either way, I wonder if this is a front-runner issue at local level?

I recently read a letter containing allegations about Clint that has caused me some concern. It seems to me that the things that were raised were purely partisan politics, as usual. I don't believe this is needed, especially in local Idaho elections. I have worked with Clint for four years on city and county problems. Clint has always been very easy to contact, either at home or when Legislature was in session. Clint has always worked hard on the things we have been involved in together. Clint has always taken the time with me about the projects and issues I am working on.

For these and other personal reasons that I would be happy to talk about if asked, I would suggest voters in District 21 support my choice of candidate for the Idaho Senate, District 21, Clint Stennett.

I was shocked! Shocked to see that the soundly conservative Times-News is now pushing the radical feminist agenda.

On page 3 of the Oct. 9 Times-News, the following was asserted: "A 1993 report by the American Association of University Women showed that classroom teachers call upon boys far more than girls."

Christina Hoff Sommers, a college professor and author of "Who Stole Feminism," explained in that book that the facts are otherwise. Teachers chastise boys for classroom misbehavior ("Johnny, stop throwing spitballs!") far more often than girls. The request for recitation in class ("What is the square root of two, Jane?"), however, are approximately gender neutral.

Since we all know that little boys are made of "snakes and snails and puppy-dog tails," the fact that they act up more in class and, therefore, get chewed out more should come as no surprise.

The radical feminists' attempt to convert this into some sort of unconscious plot against women, however, should be fiercely resisted — despite the reluctance of many liberals to do so. While we're at it: The income gap between women and men is fast disappearing, despite what the radical feminists say and, in fact, there simply is none when comparing childless, well-educated women in the age group 27-34. (You can look it up.)

Batt stands steady in wind

I feel Phil Batt should be elected as governor of Idaho in the November elections for a number of reasons.

Batt is steady in his stand, not vacillating back and forth as the wind blows. You know Batt's position.

Batt is far more conservative than his opponent, who served on the Joint Finance and Appropriations Committee with me a total of four years and would have gladly spent double the money we had, thus greatly increasing taxes.

I am increasingly distrustful of what our state may be asked to oblige itself to by the amount of money donated to elect the opponent of Mr. Batt. What is the payoff from Hollywood and from the Clinton administration agency, and is that wanting to change our style of life?

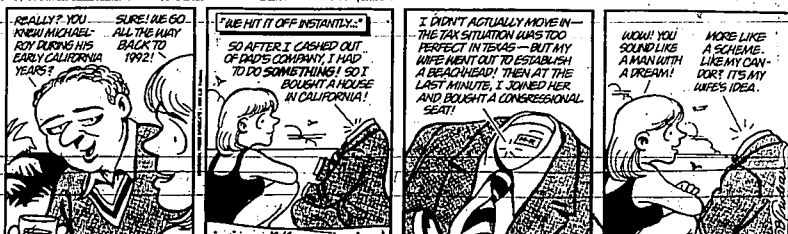

Batt has gone on record to use our water in Idaho for his benefit first and to reduce property taxes.

Batt's education policy has always been a high priority when he served in the Senate and will continue now.

Batt will not owe any unwelcome favors to out-of-state contributors asking for programs that could hurt our way of life or change our ability and freedoms.

2 teen-agers caught trespassing in garage

TWIN FALLS — A pair of teen-agers were arrested for trespassing Wednesday night after a Twin Falls man flushed the pair from his sister's garage, chased them on foot, lost them — then chanced across one of the culprits as he rode away on a bicycle.

A 15-year-old Kemmerer, Wyo., was arrested on the spot, according to police; a 17-year-old Twin Falls boy was arrested later at his home.

About 10 p.m., Richard Giesler dropped off his sister and her 5-year-old daughter at their home in the 700 block of Monroe Street. As he pulled into the driveway, he and his sister noticed a figure skulking out of the garage.

Giesler noticed a second figure hiding behind the car in a neighbor's driveway. He gave chase, but the pair split up.

Meanwhile, Giesler's sister had summoned police. Giesler joined the police, and began combing the neighborhood.

Shortly afterward, he spotted the 15-year-old riding away on a bicycle. The boy was arrested on the spot, while the older teen was arrested two hours later.

The pair later admitted they were intending to steal a bicycle from Giesler's sister's garage, police said.

Elmore County man shot in the back by his wife

MOUNTAIN HOME — An Elmore County man was shot by his wife with a 22-caliber rifle Tuesday afternoon, according to Elmore County Sheriff Rick Layher.

Dave Mizell, who lives about a mile west of Mountain Home, was apparently shot in the back, Layher said. The bullet missed Mizell's vital organs, but the wounded man was treated at both Elmore Memorial Hospital in Mountain, then St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise.

His wife, Laura Mizell, was arrested on a charge of aggravated battery with a firearm. She was arraigned in Magistrate Court Wednesday, then released on her own recognizance.

"We don't know at this point if there's going to be any more charges on her — or on him," Layher said.

Activist Chisholm schedules 'fun-raiser' for campaign

BUHL — Statewide-activist-and-local resident Bill Chisholm is staging a "fun-raiser" Sunday to raise money for his independent campaign for Twin Falls County commissioner.

Chisholm's fund-raiser will be held from 2 to 6 p.m. Sunday at the Cosmic Jolt, 120 S. Broadway, in Buhl. Music will be provided by the Bob Norn Band.

Chisholm is running against Republican Brent Reink of Filer and Democrat Dave Bailey of Buhl for the 1st District commission seat. Reink has served as interim commissioner since he was appointed in June to replace Norma Blass, who resigned.

Twin Falls County candidates have spent little on campaigns

TWIN FALLS — Little money has been spent so far on the contested races for county clerk and county assessor, according to pre-election financial reports filed with the county clerk's office.

In the assessor's race, Republican Gerry Bowden has raised and spent $560 of his own money toward the Nov. 8 election. Bowden is now a deputy county assessor.

His Democratic opponent, Rick Helsley, reports spending no money so far in his campaign. Helsley was a property appraiser for the county from 1987-1991.

Neither incumbent Clerk Bob Fort nor his independent challenger, former attorney Joe Stanzak, has spent any money on the clerk's campaign.

Craters of the Moon head will move to supervise Alaska park

ARCO — Jon Jarvis, superintendent of the Craters of the Moon National Monument, is moving to Alaska to supervise the largest national park in the United States.

Specifically, Jarvis has accepted a promotion as superintendent of Wrangell-St. Elias National Park and Preserve — which measures 13.2 million acres. He has been at Craters of the Moon since 1991.

Jarvis and his family will make their home in Glennallen, Alaska, which is about the same size as Arco. Jarvis has also worked in Virginia, Texas, Oregon and Washington.

Walk-in clinic to open at mall

By Julie M. McKinnon
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Primary Health Inc. of Boise plans to open by the end of January a walk-in clinic to treat patients with minor emergency ailments such as colds, sore throats, cuts and the flu. It will be open daily from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. in a leased building on Magic Valley Mall property.

"I think you have a growing market without a lot of primary care available," said Shane Kelly, Primary Health's chief executive officer. "There's been a problem in that region for some time."

Pre-construction work has begun on the clinic building off Pole Line Road, Kelly said. Primary Health may expand coverage into other areas of the Magic Valley with walk-in clinics, appointment-based practices or clinics with shorter hours, he said.

Meanwhile, a local physician group is opening on Oct. 24 a walk-in Quick Care Center at 570 Shoup Ave. W. as part of the Magic Valley Family Physicians, which is merging with the Pediatric Center to form the Physicians Center, said Patty Kleinkopf, administrator of Magic Valley Family Practice.

Kelly said the Primary Health clinic will be staffed by two physicians with "strong ties to the community." Primary Health will work to get a network of specialists in Twin Falls for referrals, he said.

"It will start in earnest the next few weeks," said Kelly, adding that the clinic will work with local specialists and hospitals and not send patients outside the area unless necessary. "That isn't practical or fair to the patients or fair to the community."

Primary Health employs about 40 primary-care physicians in clinics from Boise to the Oregon border and has a network of more than 70 specialists. They currently have six walk-in, full-service clinics-like the one planned for Twin Falls.

The Primary Health Clinic also will offer laboratory work, X-ray services, orthopedic casting, drug testing, medication management for hypertension and diabetes, and

The computerized system of the Snake River Basin Adjudication has helped Diana Delaney, chief deputy clerk for the SRBA, with her work on the water rights lawsuit.

Water court boasts computer efficiency

By William Brock
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It's been nearly six months since routine casework in the Snake River water court was halted by a judge's stay, but court personnel have remained busy, and the court is emerging as a national model for computerized efficiency, according to the judge.

"It may very well be the most automated court system in the United States," said Daniel Hurlbutt, presiding judge in the Snake River Basin Adjudication.

The SRBA is attempting to sort out the biggest water lawsuit in Idaho history — with roughly 150,000 individual claims.

"That's always been a critical aspect of this case, given the numbers," Hurlbutt said in a recent interview.

The computerized system allows attorneys and water-right claimants to file objections-and responses by telephone via "electronic mail" — which saves paper work and time for court personnel, the judge said.

In addition to providing time to improve the court's technology, the stay has also generated substantial savings. The court returned 48 percent of its $810,283 budget to state coffers in the 1994 fiscal year, according to figures supplied by court Administrator Dave Eggar.

"This year, the water court is expected to return more than half of its $854,200 budget. Next year's budget is expected to be about $950,000."

"I'm not here to protect budgets," Hurlbutt said. "Because of the stay, the court has been able to get by with only six full-time employees — four positions short of 'full' staffing."

Hurlbutt's court is not the only entity that spends money on the adjudication of water rights in the Snake River basin.

The Idaho Department of Water Resources maintains an adjudication bureau that investigates individual water claims. Last year, Water Resources spent 74 percent of its $3.3-million adjudication budget, according to department figures.

Claim investigation continues, but court work on individual cases — with few exceptions — has been at a standstill since Hurlbutt ordered the stay April 19. The stay was triggered by new statutes enacted by the 1994 Idaho Legislature, which threw the court into confusion.

"It will be lifted once the new laws are better understood," Hurlbutt said.

To that end, court staff has spent thousands of hours researching "basinwide" issues spawned by the new laws, Hurlbutt said.

"There's volumes of material represented by those issues," Hurlbutt said. "That's been the bulk of what we've been doing."

Hurlbutt's two "special masters" — essentially magistrates who hear individual cases on the judge's behalf — have been consolidating work on cases that were in progress when the stay was ordered. The special masters have also been attending continuing seminars, Hurlbutt said.

A third special master — who will focus primarily on "alternative dispute resolution" — will probably be hired when the stay is lifted, Hurlbutt said.

In the meantime, the court staff is organizing information on thousands of individual cases that will resume when the stay is lifted, Hurlbutt said.

Gooding County races take form

By Terrell Williams
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — Clerk candidate Helen Paoli leads the spending list of Gooding County candidates running for office in the November election.

The Republican challenger to incumbent Democrat John Myers, reported contributions of $3,457 and expenditures of the same amount in her campaign financial disclosure report.

The majority of Paoli's contributions were her own. Bob Jamison of Jerome Print Shop made a non-monetary contribution of $155. In amounts of $50 or less, Paoli's treasurer Gene Heller listed 93 contributions totaling $588.

Deputy elections clerk Denise Gill said

Wednesday that all nine candidates filed their reports on or before the Tuesday deadline. The reports, which include primary election figures, cover the period from Jan. 1 to the present.

Myers contributed $65 to his own campaign and spent $65. He is his own political treasurer.

In the races for county commissioner, District-1 candidate Republican Kim Vaughn had $362 in contributions, including $100 from Gary Osborne and $50 from Jim Scheettger. Treasurer John Infanger listed Vaughn's expenditure total as $127 with a balance of $235.

District 1 independent candidate Benny Fay Benjamin, who is his own treasurer, reported a self-contribution of $500. His expenditures total $457 with a balance of $42.

District 3 incumbent commissioner Republican William "Win" Hensley reported self-contributions of $318 and expenditures of the same amount. His treasurer is Billie Rae Hensley.

District 3 independent challenger Vernon Mason, acting as his own treasurer, reported zero contributions and zero expenditures.

Assessor candidate Republican Patty Bauscher reported a total of $1,923 in contributions and the same amount in expenditures. She won a primary race and is unchallenged in the general election.

County treasurer Republican Helen Faulkner and county coroner Dowell Delmar had no challengers this year. They reported zero contributions and zero expenditures.

Hagerman grows once again as building moratorium expires

By Terrell Williams
Times-News correspondent

HAGERMAN — Local carpenters can go back to work in the town of Hagerman.

The City Council has allowed a 120-day building moratorium to run out without renewing it. Last August, the council decided a ban on new building permits was necessary because the city could not supply water to any more homes or businesses.

But now, planning and zoning chairman Jerry Veendendaal said Thursday, work on the city's new water system is proceeding, so buildings should be able to get water hook-ups in the near future.

Councilman Gary Tussey said the building moratorium is no longer necessary. Building inspector Howard Winger said about three or four people have been waiting for building permits.

Mayor Jim Norwood said Thursday that he cannot estimate when the new water system will be completed. But, he said, bids for the distribution system and other remaining phases of construction are being opened this week and will be awarded as soon as the low-bid companies are cleared legally.

Meanwhile, the city's moratorium on new water hookups remains in effect.

In other business, the six-member planning and zoning commission has been working the past few weeks to update the city's comprehensive plan for growth. On Monday, the commission will meet with representatives of the Association of Idaho Cities to complete the work.

Tim Soran of Twin Falls, a VISTA program volunteer with the South Central District Health Department, said he will be leading a new outreach program for vac-inations throughout the Magic Valley.

Soran said his mission is to combat childhood diseases by promoting vaccination programs in small cities such as Hagerman. Soran said the state of Idaho ranks 32nd in immunizations, with only 60 percent of preschool children up-to-date on their vaccines.

"Epidemics can happen from this," he said. "It just spreads like wildfire. Whole communities can be devastated."

Vaccination will cost about $2 to $10 per person, thanks to a new federal funding act. Otherwise, he said, a vaccination would cost $40 or more.

Permits stalled by no-shows

By Sean L. McCarthy
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — When city planners say they need more volunteers to decide the fate of city zoning permits, they mean it.

Construction and new business within city limits hasn't yet begun to slow, but for at least one night this week, it came screeching to a halt because government regulators on hand to approve the necessary permits.

Businessmen had come from as far as Portland, Ore., and as near as Main Avenue to ask the city planning and zoning commission for permission to build a 400-foot-high motel, construct new billboards and serve beer and wine in city establishments.

But the planning commission was a virtual no-show.

For the first time in at least 16 years, the city planning commission could not conduct any business because it lacked a quorum of its members. Of the nine current commission members, only Kevin Dane, Tom Mikesell, Stephanie Crumrine and Bob Daigle showed up at City Hall Tuesday night to consider zoning permits.

Bart Cheyney had hoped to learn Tuesday whether he could put up new billboards above a building at 446 Shoshone St. W. The planning commission already had tabled Cheyney's request once in September.

Robert Myrland, meanwhile, wants to be able to serve beer and wine at his Up-town Buhl restaurant on Main Avenue. Myrland hasn't been able to serve any alcohol at his restaurant since it opened in May.

Neither Cheyney nor Myrland, however, had to fly in from Portland, Ore., as did a corporate executive with Shilo Inns. The hotel chain is looking to build a new 128-room inn on the corner of Boulevard North, behind the Jakes and Perkins restaurant that both are under construction.

Dave Forni, in charge of property development for Shilo Inns, flew to Twin Falls with an architect for Tuesday's meeting, but they were forced to return to Portland, Ore., without a permit in hand.

City Planning Director LaMar Orton said he cannot remember any time in the 16 years he has coordinated city planning that a commission meeting had to be canceled. City Engineer Gary Young can't remember it happening anytime in the past 19 years.

The planning commission has been operating two members short for the past few months.

Ken Edmunds, representing the city's impact area, has resigned because of personal conflicts, while impact-area member Rick Palmer moved out. The impact area is a belt outside of city limits that falls within city zoning jurisdiction.

Orton said Wednesday that the city will seek applications for those two positions next month. All other positions on the planning commission would be appointed for three-year terms beginning in January.

The developers shut out from Tuesday night's meeting, meanwhile, must wait at least three weeks to have new public hearings scheduled for their permits.

Their permits now will be considered on Nov. 8 — election night.

Mormon feminist given 2-week reprieve

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Feminist Janice Allred said Thursday she believes her Mormon bishop doesn't want to excommunicate her for apostasy.

Local church leaders deliberated into the early hours Thursday without reaching a final decision on how to discipline Allred for her article, "Toward a Mormon Theology of God the Mother."

"Instead, following an 82-hour disciplinary council, they placed Allred on probation while they consider other restrictions over the next couple of weeks."

The 47-year-old mother of nine said the conditions of probation include not parading of the sacrament, not holding a temple recommend (permission to go into a Mormon temple) and not giving talks or prayers in church. She will continue working in the church nursery.

Allred said Bishop Robert Hammond of the Edgewood Ward and his counselors are looking for ways to keep her from speaking out on the issue of a heavenly mother, and she is not willing to go along.

"My feeling is that they really didn't want to excommunicate me. And they wanted more time to negotiate with me," she said. "I told them I'm open to it and willing to work with them, but I'm skeptical that anything can be done."

Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints wards, or congregations, are administered by lay bishops. Hammond, who was leaving for Europe on Thursday, did not return telephone messages.

In her essay in Dialogue, an independent Mormon journal, Allred speculated that God is both the Father and the Son and that the Holy Ghost is the "Mother in Heaven," and has a coequal partnership with the Father. Allred wrote that her conclusions were her own, based on her interpretation of Mormon scripture, and were not church doctrine.

Allred supporters held a candlelight vigil, singing hymns, and giving remarks in front of an open microphone. Her husband, David, a physics professor at church-owned Brigham Young University, did not attend the hearing and declined to comment.

Allred said in her defense that she would not promise to refrain from writing or speaking about her theological speculations.

"If you punish me it will be because I refused to give up my freedom to believe, speak, and act according to my conscience. If you punish me it will be because I refused to deny my testimony of Jesus Christ," she said in a statement she read to Hammond.

Allred's initial summons to the council was issued Sunday by Edgemont Stake President Carl Bacon, a lay leader who supervises several wards. Bacon had Hammond hear the charges.

Since September 1993, at least seven high-profile feminists and academics have been excommunicated for alleged apostasy or public criticism of the Mormon hierarchy. Allred is the first to face a disciplinary council since Howard W. Hunter, 86, became president of the 9 million-member church on June 5.

Mormons believe their leadership to be divinely inspired. Supporters of the excommunications contend that failures to sustain and obey church leaders is a repudiation of the church's most basic beliefs.

Idaho plans trade mission to Mexico

The Associated Press

TWIN FALLS — Idaho businesses — including two from Twin Falls — will go on a trade mission to Guadalajara, Mexico, with Commerce Director James Hawkins this weekend.

"Guadalajara is destined to become a major food distribution for Mexico," Hawkins said Thursday. "Some of the best business opportunities for Idaho companies are in food distribution and storage, and communications."

Companies taking part include NordicAire, Boise; Herfort Communications, Post Falls; Wholesale Parts Co., Pocatello; Glavin Bean, Twin Falls; J.P. Wilson,

Twin Falls; Dari-Weis Marketing, Boise; H.J. Campbell Co., Idaho Falls and Rolling Hills Orchard, Emmett.

Each company will have individual appointments with business leaders in Guadalajara. The trade mission is being coordinated by the state departments of commerce and agriculture, the Idaho Mexico Trade Office, Guadalajara chamber of Commerce, Jalisco Agricultural Council and the U.S. consulate general at Guadalajara.

"These businesses know the time to become involved with the Mexico market is now," Hawkins said.

The group leaves Sunday and returns next Friday.

Shoshone-Bannock tribe members support Batt in governor's race

FORT HALL (AP) — Some Shoshone-Bannock tribal members say Idaho Indians would be better off with Republican Phil Batt than Democrat Larry EchoHawk, a Pawnee trying to become the nation's first Indian governor.

"I want Phil Batt to win because he's better for the Indians," Ellen Roy-Ashion of Native Americans for Batt said Thursday. "He's willing to talk with us and discuss things with us other than saying, 'No, it's going to be this way and no other.'"

EchoHawk is a former Shoshone-Bannock tribal attorney, and the Fort Hall Business Council has endorsed him. But Roy-Ashion said the tribe's governing body does not speak for members who remember EchoHawk's support for a 1992 state constitutional amendment to block casino gambling on reservations.

Batt also opposes reservation gambling but has called for negotiations to re-define the state's relationship with its Indian tribal governments.

"I go in with no preconceived notions at all except I believe gaming is the wrong way to go," Batt said Wednesday during a campaign swing through Idaho Falls.

EchoHawk campaign manager Stan Kress characterized Native Americans for Batt as a minority, citing the attorney general's 80-percent support from Fort Hall voters in the May 24 Democratic primary.

"My guess is the results will be very close to the same in the general election," Kress said. "Larry enjoys very good support from a large majority of the people and feels warmly toward them and wants to be as helpful as he can be to develop programs that will encourage and develop a good economic base on the reservation."

Roy-Ashion said EchoHawk's credibility with tribal members is low.

"There are a lot of people who do not feel that cultural tie with him," she said. "He doesn't know what it's like to grow poor. He doesn't know what it's like to grow up in a family that speaks Indian only. A lot of us feel there is no brotherhood tie with us."

Committee hears radiation horror tales

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A pregnant woman unknowingly fed radioactive milk in a hospital.

A child pulled out of class and ordered to drink strange liquids.

A serviceman ordered into a trench only a mile from an atomic blast.

Those were among the horror stories told to the President's Committee on Human Radiation Experiments during three days of hearings in San Francisco that concluded Thursday.

The panel was appointed by President Clinton in the wake of discoveries that thousands of Americans were subject to secret radiation experiments conducted over a 30-year period.

The stories are being aired at hearings around the country and will be made part of an official record assembled by the federal panel.

One of the most startling revelations in the San Francisco hearing came from Darcy Thrall, who showed a dog tag she received as a child during an apparent radiation test.

"I just want to get some answers, and that's why I'm here today," Thrall said. "I want to know what's been done to me and what I can expect to happen whether I have five years or 35 years to live."

Thrall's father worked at the Hanford weapons plant in southeastern Washington state, the country's main plutonium production site. She told the panel she was pulled out of her second-grade class in Richland, told to drink some liquids and then monitored periodically by doctors for the next six years.

She wore government-issue dog tags for years, but to this day does not know the reason for the experiment or whether it was responsible for the numerous health problems she has suffered, including hypothyroidism and chronic fatigue syndrome.

The panel members believe that as many as 600 experiments may have been conducted on humans since the dawn of the nuclear era.

"The light was so bright I had to cover my eyes with my hands, and I immediately got blisters from the heat. Then the trucks and equipment started showing up, and I was placed in a van and taken to a hospital."

— Israel Torres, who was exposed to an atomic bomb in 1957

"At our core, we are an ethics committee," said panel chairman Dr. Ruth Faden, a bioethicist at Johns Hopkins University. "We are very keen to hear from everyone who thinks they have something to help us with our charge."

The University of California at San Francisco was one focus for the panel.

Dr. Bernard Lo told the panel an internal committee is attempting to investigate UCSF experiments in which patients were unknowingly injected with plutonium, one of the most poisonous substances on earth.

Another target is the secret "Atomic Medicine Division" of the Veterans Administration, which may have been involved in exposing U.S. service personnel to radiation during the early post-World War II atomic-bomb tests and assessing the effects.

Two men involved in those tests testified before the panel in San Francisco.

In 1957, Israel Torres, then a 23-year-old Marine platoon sergeant, was ordered to lead a battalion into a trench at Yucca Flats, Nev., where they were told to kneel during the detonation of a weapon, nicknamed "Hood."

He said that when the shock wave from the blast hit, the trench began to collapse, and the wind nearly sucked them out into the open desert.

"The light was so bright I had to cover my eyes with my hands, and I immediately got blisters from the heat," said Torres, who lives in a small central town in California. "Then the trucks and equipment started showing up, and I was placed in a van and taken to a hospital."

Emma Craft's story, as relayed by her lawyer, San Francisco attorney Don Arbillit, is the subject of a class-action lawsuit filed against Vanderbilt Hospital in Tennessee and the federal government. She was one of 829 pregnant women given radioactive iodine during a cancer study.

It was only in the 1969 publication of a follow-up study in an obscure medical journal that Craft discovered she was one of those included in the study. The story detailed the death of her 11-year-old daughter, who died of a rare form of cancer.

"Her daughter suffered a slow, painful, gruesome death, and Emma always believed it was due to an act of God," Arbillit said. "It wasn't until much after that she believed only in this tragedy was due to intervention by humankind."

Rubin Hayes
BUHL — Rubin Hayes, 82, of Buhl, died Wednesday, Oct. 12, 1994, at the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in Twin Falls.

He was born May 16, 1912, at Gainsville, Mo., to William and Julia Pauline Hayes. He married Thelma Pauline Brewer on Oct. 4, 1937, at Mountain Home. He stayed active in farming all his life and he also worked as a ditch rider for a time. He was a member of the First Baptist Church in Buhl.

He is survived by a son, Warren and Olga Hayes of Bakersfield, Calif.; two grandchildren, Jeffrey Hayes of Laguna Niguel, Calif., and Susan Hayes of Bloomington, Ind.; a great-granddaughter, Ponda Jallow of Bloomington, Ind.; and a sister, Aileen Aages of Reno, Nev. He was preceded in death by his wife, Thelma, in 1992; four brothers; and one sister.

The funeral service will be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 18, 1994, at the Farmer Funeral Chapel in Buhl. Burial will follow at the West End Cemetery. Friends may call from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday at the chapel.

Say is lifted. Given the court's focus role — and the sheer number of claims — installing a computerized record system made good sense, said Egar, the court administrator.

By using electronic forms, rather than printed ones, the water court can save a significant amount of time and money, he said.

Last year, during a single week, the water court received 2,000 individual forms — but it took six weeks for clerks to enter the information into the court's records, Egar said.

Today, much of the information arrives by computer and phone lines, requiring only about four hours to process, he added.

"We're the only court in the country to have this kind of filing," Egar said. "There are courts all over the country watching us."

The center will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. weekdays and 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. weekends and holidays, Kleinkopf said. Two physicians are being hired to work at the clinic, which is part of the Magic Valley Health Network's efforts to keep patients in its local physician system, Kleinkopf said.

Egar was slated to speak about the SRBA's computerized record-keeping system at a court technology conference this week in Nashville, Tenn.

In addition to its efficiency, the computerized filing system was created on a shoestring budget, Hurlbutt said. Total cost: $40,000.

Egar has been the driving force behind the court's acceleration onto the information superhighway, but he's also focused time to tackle other chores. Specifically, he's organized a catalogue and index system for the SRBA's research files, and he's produced a users' manual to help people take full advantage of the court's new technology.

"We've tried to bring it down to a level that people can understand," he said.

Labor camp to stay open as long as possible

By Liz Wright
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Cassia County Farm Labor Camp won't shut down until all the farm workers leave or the bathroom pipes freeze, the camp's manager said Thursday.

"We'll stay open as long as we can," Don Mortensen said. "We're just trying to take care of the people while they are here."

The camp owners, the Cassia County Labor Association, originally planned to close the facility on Sept. 1, to avoid having to install heaters in each apartment to meet federal housing standards.

Federal housing code requires proper heating in the camp units when the temperature drops below 60 degrees. Some residents have said that they turn on their electric stoves and put blankets on the windows when it gets cold.

About 25 families are still living at the seasonal migrant workers camp because the potato harvest still is not finished, Mortensen said. Several farm workers may stay until Nov. 1 — maybe even later, he said.

Recent rains have delayed some potato harvests about a week, Mortensen said. The camp owners had moved the Sept. 1 date to Oct. 1, when Mortensen said he failed to give residents their 30-day notice of the camp's closure.

As soon as they're gone, we'll close," he said. "We're waiting for them to get going."

If the temperature drops low enough to freeze and burst the bathroom water pipes, the camp may close earlier than Nov. 1, he said.

The association, which consists of local beet farmers, was fined $7,700 this spring by the Department of Labor's Wage and Hours Division for failing to meet federal housing standards.

The camp is closing for good because the owners say they can't afford to maintain the facility to meet housing codes.

Migrant housing officials are trying to find a way to build a new camp. Participants include the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, the Idaho Migrant Council and the Region IV Development Association.

Simpson defense probes news team to find leak

LOS ANGELES (AP) — O.J. Simpson's lawyers subpoenaed two members of a TV news team, the police chief and his spokesman, to try to find the source of persistent news leaks that could hurt the defense.

The development Thursday came as jury selection in Simpson's murder trial was halted.

District Attorney William Hodgman was sick.

The panel of about 80 prospective jurors was told to return Friday morning.

Superior Court Judge Lance Ito scheduled for Friday afternoon a hearing on a defense request to find the source of the leaks that began the day after Simpson's ex-wife and her friend were killed.

Ito has threatened to ban TV coverage of the trial because of what he called false and irresponsible reporting.

"These leaks began on the morning of June 13, 1994, and have continued to the present," said a sealed defense motion, which itself had been leaked to reporters. "The material leaked to the media has included false, distorted and otherwise misleading evidence."

Defense lawyers said they want to know whether members of the Los Angeles Police Department are responsible for spreading false information. If so, they would seek sanctions against the prosecution.

The prosecution filed a motion under seal Thursday opposing any sanctions against prosecutors for alleged "intentional contamination" of the jury pool, presumably denying they were responsible for news leaks.

Those who said they received subpoenas to testify Friday included KNBC-TV reporter Tracy Savage and station general manager Carole Black.

KNBC said the station last month for story about DNA test results that he said was wrong. Savage later said her sources provided some inaccurate information, but that they wouldn't specify what was wrong with the story.

KNBC said Savage and Black would appear in court and invoke First Amendment protections as well as the California Shield Law, which protects reporters from being compelled to reveal confidential sources.

Cmdr. David Gascon, a police spokesman, said he also was subpoenaed. Defense lawyer Johnnie Cochran Jr. said a subpoena was served on Police Chief Willie Williams.

On Sept. 23, two days after KNBC aired its first report on the DNA tests, the police department said it had begun an internal affairs investigation and had tightened controls on information in the Simpson case.

The defense also has asked for an attorney general's investigation into the leaks.

Simpson, 47, is on trial for the June 12 murders of Nicole Brown Simpson, 35, and Ronald Goldman, 25. Although trial testimony is at least a month away, reports about evidence have surfaced regularly in the media, most of them linking Simpson to the crime.

"Those who deliberately leak false and highly prejudicial information on the eve of trial are capable of manufacturing false evidence against the defendant," the defense motion said.

District Attorney Gil Garcetti said no one in his office had been subpoenaed for the hearing.

Cassia County receives drought disaster area label from USDA

By Liz Wright
Times-News writer

BURLEY — U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Mike Espy has declared Cassia County a drought disaster area, making available federal low-interest loans for Mini-Cassia area farmers and ranchers, Gov. Cecil Andrus announced Wednesday.

"We've got a problem, as everyone knows, with the water situation in Idaho," said Dick Rush, state executive director for the federal Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Ranchers have been the worst hit by less than average moisture this year, said Steve Ulrich, county executive director of ASCS. Some streams and creeks on public lands have dried up entirely, he said.

Ranchers had to take their cattle off National Forest land several weeks early, said Twin Falls District Ranger Don Oman of the Sawtooth National Forest.

Cassia and Lincoln counties have been declared federal drought disaster areas; Minidoka, Blaine, Camas, Gooding, Jerome, Oneida, Power and Twin Falls counties are similarly designated because they border the water counties, according to a news release from the governor's office.

To qualify for the federal low-interest loan, a person must have lost at least 30 percent of his or her gross income this year, said Kent Gillespie, farm program loan specialist for the Farmer's Home Administration office in Rupert.

Gillespie said he hasn't helped anyone apply for a federal loan for the past five or six years. The state only handles about five applications per year, he added.

The loans have a 4.5 percent interest and must be paid back over seven years, Gillespie said. Farmers can use the loans such as repairing wells and paying off debts incurred as a result of the drought, he said.

In June, Cassia County commissioners asked Andrus to declare the county a drought disaster area after a farmer complained that one of his wells had dried up.

Under the state declaration, the Idaho Department of Water Resources has allowed Cassia County farmers to move their land from one part of their land to another. Irrigators still must apply for a water rights transfer. But the lengthy public notice and hearing process is waived, and the change can be approved immediately.

That emergency period expires Dec. 31.

Andrus requested that a county damage assessment report be made on the county's drought.

According to the Department of Agriculture, of 922 farmers and ranchers in the county, five have lost 80 to 89 percent of their forage or crop yields; 25 have lost 60 to 69 percent; 40 have lost 50 to 59 percent; 20 have lost 40 to 49 percent; and 832 have lost less than 20 percent of their yields.

Whether that translates into a loss of at least 30 percent of a farmer's gross income depends on how the farmer made up for the loss — for example, a rancher could sell animals or move someplace else for forage, Gillespie said.

Woman hurt in blast outside Seattle building

SEATTLE (AP) — A distraught 18-year-old woman was seriously injured Thursday when one of at least three small explosive devices she was carrying detonated outside the Federal Building, authorities said.

Investigators said the woman had been acting strangely and arguing with a male acquaintance shortly before she lit a fuse to a tubular explosive device she was holding.

The blast tore off the woman's right hand at the forearm. She also suffered injuries to her left hand and face, said Larry Zallin, a spokesman at Harborview Medical Center, where the woman underwent surgery.

Her injuries were not considered life-threatening. She was listed in serious but stable condition Thursday evening.

The explosion occurred about noon MDT in an outside stairwell on the south side of the Henry M. Jackson Building, between First and Second avenues. The stairwell is out of view of most passers-by.

No one else was hurt and there was no damage to the bustling 36-story building, which houses federal offices, such as the FBI, the Internal Revenue Service and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

Mrs. Lydia Geneva Widmer

Mrs. Lydia Geneva Widmer of Kimberly celebrates her 90th birthday today. Oscar Widmer purchased the Tobacco station and machine shop at Main and Highway 30 and moved the family to Kimberly, Idaho from No. Dakota in 1948. The gas station was leased a few years later and Oscar worked at his successful black smith and machine shop, located next to the station, until his passing in August of 1954. Lydia and the Eugene Widmer family reside on the property today. Lydia worked diligently at her home creating a lovely yard and gardens. During the time Highway 30 was a main thoroughfare, many tourists stopped at the station and took time to enjoy her flowers and trees. She loves to talk horticulture with passers by. During the wide days of Kimberly, Lydia was at the forefront of the PZZA craze and prepared pizzas at several of the then restaurants in Kimberly and Twin Falls. She also enjoys a good game of shuffleboard. Her children reside in all corners of the US. From Widmer Thomas of Pilot Mtn., NC, Vernon of Coeur d'Alene, ID, Norman of Luskville, KY, Kenneth and Eugene of Kimberly, ID, Donna Widmer Clinic resided in Fremont, CA, and Robert of Pleasanton, CA. Mrs. Widmer has eighteen grandchildren: Walter, David, Karen, Marla, Dawn, Vera, Val, Kurt, Erick, Tracy, Richard, Kathleen, Karen, Karl, Cameron, Corey, Kimberly, and Kristine. Seventeen great grandchildren: Melissa, Jeffrey, Vernon, Kent, Lydia, Eddie, Blaine, R.J., Shawn, Justin, David, Kristina, Ryan, Ashton, Justin, Kaitlyn, and Joseph. At her family and friends wish her a very happy 90th birthday.

Briefly

Fish advocates suggest new focus

LEWISTON — Conservationists say Idahoans should not focus on the proposed Nez Perce tribal fee on fishing for steelhead, but on saving the dwindling steelhead-run trout.

The tribe is charging a $10 fee this fall for anglers fishing for steelhead on the Clearwater River within their reservation.

"I know the reservation license is high on the emotional list right now but more importantly it doesn't matter what the fee is to fish the Clearwater if we don't have fish to fish for," said Mitch Sanchotena of Idaho Steelhead and Salmon Unlimited.

Sanchotena and representatives from Idaho Rivers United and the Idaho Fish and Game Department told a Lewiston audience Wednesday action is needed, in the form of lower Snake River draw-downs. Idaho's wild steelhead runs have already sunk to numbers lower than those for Snake River chinook runs when they were listed as "threatened" species a couple of years ago, they said. That was downgraded to "endangered."

ICA parent opens Ohio chapter

BROOKS, Ore. — The United States Citizens Alliance, whose state organizations are sponsoring anti-gay-rights measures on the November ballot in Oregon and Idaho, says it has opened a chapter in Ohio.

Ohio is the fifth state where the organization has formed a chapter, said Lon Mabon, chairman of the alliance, also known as the Oregon Citizens Alliance.

The Ohio chapter will focus its efforts on opposition to outcome-based education, which is designed to judge students on what they can demonstrate they know rather than on what courses they have completed.

In addition to Oregon, Idaho and now Ohio, the alliance has chapters in Washington and Nevada, Mabon said.

Audit points to 'unusual' transactions

SANDPOINT — An audit shows the Bonner County School District is $1.2 million in the red, and an auditor says some of the red ink can be linked to "unusual" transactions made by the former school board and business manager just before they left office.

Chairman Blaine Stevens said the board won't take up the deficit problem until a separate audit of the plant facility fund is complete Oct. 24.

Auditor Leonard Schulte told school officials they would have to check with lawyers to determine if there was anything illegal.

Schulte said the district lost $63,628 in potential interest income by selling a $250,000 note back to the developer who gave to the district as part of a land deal. The auditor said the deal was negotiated and approved by former treasurer John Windig, not the board.

EchoHawk vehicle found after theft

BOISE — It doesn't pay to leave the keys in your car. Just ask Larry EchoHawk.

Idaho's attorney general and Democratic candidate for governor joined the list of crime victims Tuesday night when someone stole his family's 1979 Chevrolet suburban.

The gray vehicle was parked in front of EchoHawk's house with the keys in it. A Boise police report said the vehicle was stolen around 10:30 p.m. Tuesday, said Lt. Jim Tibbs. A Garden City businessman reported finding the car Wednesday morning.

The suburban apparently was not damaged, but two wrenches and a screwdriver were taken, Tibbs said. Police had no suspects Wednesday.

Compiled from wire reports.

Silent moment sparks debate between pair

LEWISTON (AP) — Some teachers in the Cottonwood-based Prairie School District are holding a moment of silence in their classrooms at the request of some parents and community members.

The silent moment, however, is a point of contention between Idaho schools superintendent candidates Anne Fox and Willie Sullivan.

School Superintendent Wesley Rash said board members reached a consensus last month to allow teachers to hold moments of silence at the start of each day if they wish.

Cottonwood resident Annette Wemhoff, 30, was one of the parents who initiated the effort. She first read about it in a magazine called "Focus on the Family" and thought it might be something Cottonwood patrons and teachers would support.

"We just got to talking around and with in two weeks we had close to 300 signatures," she said. "The School Board sounded like they would go through with it if we pushed it."

A moment of silence, so long as the word "prayer" is not used can be used for contemplation, reflection or whatever purpose the student chooses, as long as it is not an administration-mandated prayer, Rash said. Last Friday, Republican Fox said the government has given schools "three minutes of opportunity" for prayer. She added teachers who refuse those three minutes should be fired.

Fox

The U.S. Supreme Court struck down a public school moment-of-silence law in the 1980s, ruling it was an attempt to reintroduce prayer into the schools.

Fox insists a new law makes the silent moment legal because "it is not teacher-led prayer — it's silence."

The American Civil Liberties Union and Democratic Sullivan said they have never heard of the moment-of-silence law. Sullivan said he is a religious person, but does not want the government dictating religious beliefs.

Canyon County crash kills 2 women

CALDWELL (AP) — A two-vehicle collision at a Canyon County rural intersection has claimed the lives of two women.

Cecelia McIntosh, 63, and her passenger, Florence Fuller, 76, died instantly in the Wednesday evening crash, the Canyon County sheriff's office said.

Samuel Zavala, 54, Caldwell, driver of the second vehicle, was treated and released at West Valley Medical Center. His wife, Francisca Zavala, 45, and son, Samuel Zavala Jr., 6, were in fair condition at the hospital Thursday.

McIntosh was driving south on a county road and investigating officers said after she stopped at a stop sign, she pulled into the path of an oncoming pickup truck.

Ruling may affect Idaho schools

LEWISTON (AP) — An Arizona Supreme Court decision over the state's responsibilities to finance education may pave the way for a similar action in Idaho, says an attorney for some local districts.

Copies of the Roosevelt Elementary School vs. Bishop case were sent to all the superintendents in Idaho last week by Robert Huntley, the former Idaho Supreme Court justice representing 22 districts suing over an alleged lack of adequate funding.

"It's exciting," Huntley said. "This is the first case in the nation that has said that the state's duty to equalize includes capital expenditures, such as facilities."

Huntley said the Arizona case sets a precedent, and should make the Idaho suit easier to prove.

"The Idaho Supreme Court is not bound by it but it is likely to be persuaded by it."

Rocky Newcomb inspects the door of an abandoned building in Oakley that he transformed into a prize-winning painting.

Bird in the hand and on the door

Burley artist takes flight in the wildlife art-world

By Steve Crump
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Sometimes opportunity knocks when nobody's home.

Rocky Newcomb knows. He discovered it on a scouting expedition with his camera — found in an abandoned building right on Main Street in Oakley. He took its picture, then turned that picture into a painting.

Now that painting is going to Sweden, as part of roving exhibit of some of the best contemporary wildlife art America has to offer.

An artist is always on the lookout for interesting subjects," said Newcomb, who teaches art at Declo High School. "And you never know where you'll find it."

Newcomb's subject was a door. "It was a pretty ordinary door, but it caught my attention," he said. "I loved the relationship of the rectangles. It was the kind of design (modern Dutch master Piet Mondrian used to paint). I just left out one of the panels and put a bird in its place."

The Leigh-Yawkey Woodson Art Museum in Wausau, Wis., which is sort of a combination Metropolitan Opera and Museum of Modern Art for bird painters, was enchanted when it saw a photograph of Newcomb's painting.

"Getting a piece accepted in the Leigh Yawkey Woodson Museum doesn't mean a lot financially, but it's a sign of acceptance," said Newcomb, 49, a Minico High School graduate who came home from California three years ago to pursue his art. "It's good PR."

Thanks to the Postal Service and its bird stamps, to the National Audubon Society and its ubiquitous calendars, and to the widely popular series of bird books by Roger Tory Peterson, bird art is a very busy subset of the burgeoning wildlife art business.

"There were 1,600 submissions from all over the world to the Leigh Yawkey Wood-

'It was a pretty ordinary door, but it caught my attention. ... I just left out one of the panels and put a bird in its place.'

— Rocky Newcomb, Burley artist son Museum, and they chose 100," he said.

"To be accepted is kind of a sign you've arrived."

Actually Newcomb, who came to Idaho from Nebraska at the age of 8 when his parents homesteaded on the north side, arrived as an artist quite a while ago. He regularly sells his works at galleries in Twin Falls and the Wood River Valley, and has displayed his paintings in Montana and Michigan.

Much of it is gouache, like the door painting. Gouache — pronounced gawsh — is a method of painting with opaque water colors mixed with a gum preparation. Newcomb likes it for its effect and the way it allows him to mix light and dark colors.

It's also ideal for painting a country of extremes.

"One of the reasons we came back to Idaho was the variety of things to paint here," said Newcomb, who spent 20 years going to college, teaching and painting in California's Orange County. "For someone who's interested in painting birds, it's a great place."

Newcomb and his wife, Cody, who also serves as his all-purpose business manager, regularly cruise the backroads and backwoods for subjects for painting. Most often, they've found them in unprepossessing places like Oakley's Main Street.

"I never found out who owned the building," he said. "Maybe someday I will."

Writer explores the life in near-death experiences

By Diane Burks
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — As a young girl, P.M.H. Atwater would play a "remembering" game with her father, Twin Falls police officer Kenneth Johnston.

He would stop her on the corner of Main and Shoshone after a stranger had passed by and he would ask her what the stranger was wearing, what color eyes he had, and maybe how he styled his hair. For Officer Johnston, it was a matter of survival.

"About that time we had our first child molestation case," said Johnston, now retired. The molester was later arrested because the victim remembered the car and a pair of dice hanging from the rearview mirror. "This was the reason I impressed on her to pay attention to details," he said.

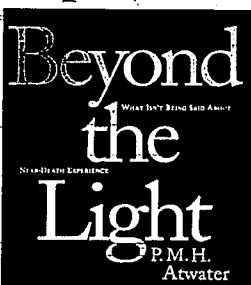

For his daughter, those powers of observation became invaluable after what she describes as three near-death experiences in 1977, following the complications of a miscarriage. They went down in a book, "Beyond the Light: What Isn't Being Said About Near-Death Experiences," published this summer by New York's Birch Lane Press.

"Death surprised me when it came to call," said Atwater — P.M.H. is her legal name; her nickname is Phyllis — who now lives in Charlottesville, Va. She spent 15 years trying to make sense of them.

Although a 1992 Gallup poll said 13 million Americans have had near-death experiences, few people are eager to talk about them, Atwater said. But she said she found and surveyed more than 3,000 survivors, and she used those interviews in her book.

As it did with Atwater, their brush with death surprised them, she said. All had a sense of floating outside their bodies or encountering a different sense of time and space, she said. Some had a pleasant or transcendent encounter; others went through a hell-like experience. Still others didn't experience anything.

P.M.H. Atwater's "Beyond the Light: What Isn't Being Said About Near-Death Experiences," is available for $16.95 through Waldenbooks in Twin Falls. For more information, about the International Association for Near-Death Studies, of which Atwater is a member, call (203) 528-5144, or write P.O. Box 502, East Windsor Hill, Conn. 06028.

"What may seem as negative of positive concerning any of these four types is strictly misleading," she said. "Value and meaning depend on each individual involved and his or her response to what happened, including the afterlife."

Most of the survivors claimed what happened to them was needed. Atwater said. They felt it was somehow ordered and as a result, they were given a chance to rectify some major character flaw or to fulfill an emptiness in their lives.

Even those who encountered only a light said it was a warm, loving embrace that gave them a sense of worthiness that changed their outlook and how they regarded themselves, she said.

Change in people who've had close encounters with death is dramatic, Atwater said. Survivors are typically more understanding, loving, generous and open-minded than they were before, she said. They also have a hard time readjusting to their surroundings as a result of a changed view of their reality and a different feeling of their physical selves.

Eighty to 90 percent of those she interviewed reported becoming more sensitive to light and better able to handle stress, said heated more quickly or had changes in brain function, Atwater said. More than 50 percent said they were in better health.

"The out-of-body phenomenon coupled with psychological and physiological effects show us that the near-death experience is both complex and dynamic," Atwater said. "In order to understand what seems to be proof of life after death, we're going to have to take a long, hard look at life as we know it. What we've been told so far is what we want to hear."

Atwater wants to see a large-scale clinical study to be undertaken by various professionals.

"The near-death phenomenon has been so trivialized," she said.

Idaho authors: They're less obscure than you think

By Steve Crump
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Quick: Name five Idaho writers.

Well, let's see, there's ah, Hemingway, of course, and ah, that guy Yandis Fisher who used to live in Hagerman, and that hot-shot mystery novelist from Bellevue, What's his name? Ridley? Yeah, Ridley Pearson.

Then there's ... Hinnim. Did Bruce Willis write anything?

Bill Studebaker is here to tell you that you haven't scratched the surface. Studebaker, head of the honors program at the College of Southern Idaho, and a friend, Boise editor/publisher Rick Ardinger, came up with a list of 28 pretty fair country writers from the Gem State and asked the University of Idaho Press to publish a collection of their essays.

The result is "Where the Morning Light is Still Blue: Personal Essays About Idaho," which Studebaker hopes will do for Idaho prose writers what "Idaho's Poetry: A Centennial Anthology" did for the state's poets four years ago.

"Nobody had done this kind of collection of prose by Idaho writers," said Studebaker, a poet who whose most recent published work is prose, "Backtracking: Ancient Art of Southern Idaho." "We thought it was time."

There are some of our surrounding states — Montana for example — that have done series of anthologies: poetry, prose, fiction," Studebaker said.

Finding enough writers to fill a book didn't take a lot of heavy lifting.

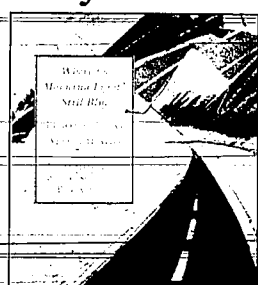

"We were looking for writers who could evoke a sense of place," Studebaker said. "We were looking for pieces that were positive. We looked at published works, at magazines, and we found what we were looking for. And we commissioned two or three pieces."

The result is long on evocation. "Where the Morning Light is Still Blue" shines Adipolips — now home to one Idahoan in three — and suburban creep in favor of the High Lonesome, with essays on Leadore, on a logging tug on the St. Joe River, on punching fossil saber-tooth cat teeth in the Owyhee Desert, and memorably, on teaching manners to a three-quarter ton cowman a muddy Jerome County barnyard.

Full half of the contributing authors aren't natives.

"That was a conscious decision," said Studebaker, himself an Idaho native. "We wanted the perspective of people who've come to Idaho from somewhere else; along with the people whose roots are here."

With the exception of A.B. Guthrie, it's Montana literary icon whose 1954 essay for Holiday magazine opens the book, nobody here is very famous — with the possible exception of Bill Hall, the Lewiston Morning Tribune editorial page editor whose humor column is carried by a couple of dozen daily and weekly newspapers statewide.

"My parents went broke in North Dakota during the Great Depression, and my uncle, who was going to college here, told them they ought to come out to Idaho," Hall wrote. "And they did. If it hadn't been for the Great Depression, I would have been born in North Dakota instead of Idaho. I have seen North Dakota. So, I am one of the few people you will ever meet who will applaud when somebody mentions the Great Depression."

The rest of the writers are academics, high school English teachers, scrappy small-town book publishers, assorted current and emigrant writers-in-residence and the occasional expatriate, who clearly wishes he weren't.

"Sometimes I think of going back," wrote New York freelance writer Janet Campbell Hale, a Coeur d'Alene Indian. "In a very real sense I have never left."

At heart, though, "Morning Light" is an attempt to explain why a state that was designed by committee, a state that's 70 percent owned by the federal government, a state that's about as sexy as a beet dump — why that state has sense, a grip on the imaginations of those who stay for long.

Idaho State University drama professor Leslie Leek said it best in an essay on her hometown of Dubois, which was named for a rabidly anti-Mormon United States senator whose name now graces a town that's three-fourths LDS.

"Realize that you could follow most any native of Clark County around all day and at some point, maybe about the time the sun is claimed by the Lost River Range, he or she would lean against the pickup door, the gate post, the screen door, and squinting with eyes already patterned with the view, would take a deep breath and let it out slow, and after a silence that's lasted so long you begin to lose heart, would catch you with the voice you've been waiting for:

"Yes," they say, "this is God's country."

Theater group to present play at Elks Lodge

TWIN FALLS — "The Hanging of Abner Martin" will be presented Oct. 21 at the Elks Lodge by the Flying Penguin Theater Group. Cocktails will be served at 7 p.m., with dinner and entertainment set to begin at 8 p.m. The theater presentation begins at 9:30 p.m. Cost is $20 per person. Tickets must be purchased by Tuesday and are available at LaRae's in downtown Twin Falls or by calling 736-7133 or 324-8356.

Daltrey, Entwistle plan performance at ISU

POCATELLO — The Who, or at least two-thirds of it, will perform Monday night at 8 p.m. in Idaho State University's Holt Arena. Vocalist Roger Daltrey and bassist John Entwistle will be there, but guitarist Pete Townshend, who wrote "Tommy," "Quadrophenia," "My Generation,"

"Won't Get Fooled Again," "The Kids Are Alright" and all the other Who hits, is sitting out this American tour. His son, Simon, is taking his place. Tickets are $17.50, and they're available at Ronnie's Western Wear in Burley or by calling the Holt Arena box office at 236-2831.

BSU postpones Eagles' concert once again

BOISE — In the long run, the Eagles will make it to Boise. Boise State University's Pavilion has postponed the group's concert for the second time, rescheduling it from Nov. 9 to Jan. 15 at 8 p.m. The Eagles were originally scheduled to play Boise on Oct. 21. Tickets for the Jan. 15 date will go on sale Wednesday. They're $77 for floor and mezzanine seats and $32 for the balcony. All tickets purchased for the earlier dates will be honored. For ticket information, call 385-1766.

Gary Stone's mural depicts Idaho from spring to summer to fall to winter and contains a number of hidden images.

Weekend open house features Kimberly artist's latest work

By Denise Turner
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Kimberly artist Gary Stone's latest work, a super-sized western mural, will be on display at an open house, set for 1 to 6 p.m. Saturday at the home of Dennis and Marie Dayley, on the river halfway between Declo and Burley (follow the signs).

The Dayleys commissioned the work, 26 feet wide and 8 feet high, for their home. "It was the best commission an artist could ever have," Stone said. "They told me to do what I do best."

Those who have followed Stone's celebrated career will not be surprised that he painted "everything that is Idaho." He's been painting Idaho for the past 25 years, he said, and it just falls out of his brush now.

His coffee-table book, "Stone by Stone on the Oregon Trail, Idaho Edition," was completed in collaboration with his wife, Bev. The Oregon edition of the book is due out in 1996.

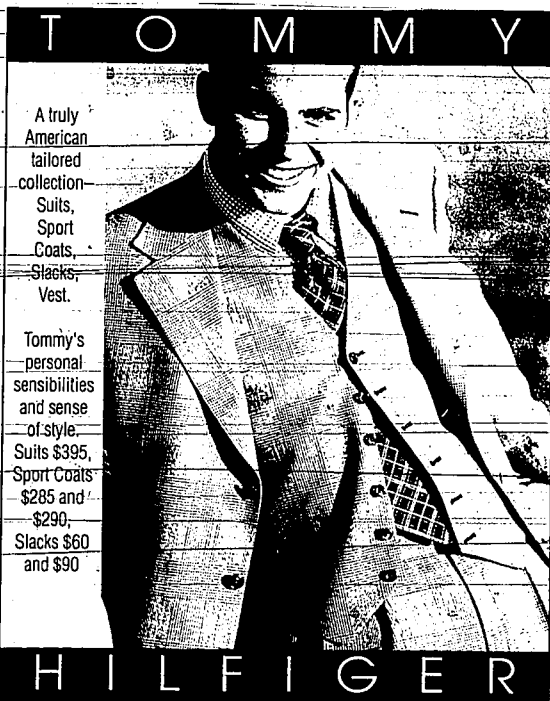

Stone began his mural-in-progress at the Twin Falls County Fair, where visitors were invited to watch him work.

"So many people have called since then to ask where they can see the final work that I'm glad we're having the open house," Stone explained.

The mural depicts Idaho from spring to summer to fall to winter. It's carved with a sandblaster, like a woodcut, and looks sort of like 3-D.

"There are hidden things in it, too," said Stone, who's known for his unique and scenic perspectives, "like a herd of mules being chased by Indians swimming in the river" — except you don't even see them."

Dolores O'Riordan, performing here at Woodstock '94, gives voice to The Cranberries' unique sound as the group's lead singer.

Cranberries' sound takes fruit

Alluring voice, mournful melodies highlight group's 2nd album

The Baltimore Sun

What put the Cranberries on the map wasn't the pop appeal of songs like "Linger," but the sheer pleasure of listening to Dolores O'Riordan sing.

It wasn't just the way her brogue stood out amid the other accents on the radio, though it would be hard to imagine an American making the second syllable of "linger" matter so; no, the most memorable thing about her delivery is its unvarnished emotionality. There's such a plaintive quality to her voice, such an alluring melancholy, that it's hard to hear her without empathizing with the heartbreak she sang about.

Maybe that's why the Cranberries' new album, "No Need to Argue" (Island 314 524 050), seems to have been built from her voice up: Never mind that it's Noel Hogan's guitar that generally defines the music's mood, or that Mike Hogan and Feargal Lawlor are as subtle and assured a rhythm section as any in alternative rock. All that takes a back seat to O'Riordan's warbling.

But that's as it should be, really. Despite the fact record companies like to market female-fronted combos by putting a pretty face way-out-front (often to the point of reconfiguring the group as singer-plus-accompaniment), O'Riordan's dominance of the album would be justified even if she weren't so photogenic.

Some of that has to do with the way she has sharpened her vocal skills since the band's first album, "Everybody Else Is Doing It, So Why Can't I We?" As before, she makes excellent use of the slight break between her upper and lower registers, using it to convey everything from a stifled sob ("I Can't Be with You") to a wail of bereavement ("Empty").

But her singing isn't quite the blunt-edged instrument it seemed an album ago. This time around, she softens and shapes the tunes in a variety of ways. "Ode to My Family," for instance, finds her decorating the melody with everything from quiversilver grace notes to tiny, yodel-like yelps, while "Twenty One" contrasts the breathy whisper of the refrain against the wordless ululation of the counter-melody.

Granted, there are a few echoes beneath the surface of her singing. "Ridiculous Thoughts" will remind more than a few listeners of Sinead O'Connor — particularly the way O'Riordan handles the phrase "Twister, aww!" — and "Zombie" is a little too much like early Siouxsie and the Banshees to seem entirely original.

To the Cranberries' credit, though, neither song makes that debt seem especially problematic. There's seldom so much artistic ambition to these songs to make originality seem an issue; mostly, all they seem to want to put across is a strong tune and a convincing amount of emotion. Even when the songs do take on "serious" topics — as in the anti-fac-tionalist "Zombie" — the general sense of the lyrics is too personal to be taken as some sort of statement.

That said, the group might consider occasionally addressing happiness in its songs. In fact, for a woman who just got married, O'Riordan seems obsessed with separation, betrayal and lost love; and you'd barely have enough songs for an EP.

Still, heartbreak has been quite kind to the Cranberries, so it's easy to see why O'Riordan would stick with her strengths. After all, anybody can sing happy songs.

Daughters receive little praise for cleanup

DEAR ABBY: The letter signed "Lost and Lonely," from the widow whose children cleaned out all her deceased husband's belongings "for her," brought tears to my eyes. And your answer really surprised me. You said the daughters spared her a "painfully heartbreaking task" - wrong!

They denied her the chance to heal. Sorting his belongings gives her a last chance to review old memories - or catch a whiff of his cologne on a suit coat, and choose who would most appreciate something which was his. With his passing, all his things belonged to her - and if she couldn't handle the sorting out, she could have asked for help. Then the kids would have been doing a good deed.

As it is, I think they overstepped their bounds. Grief is bad enough, but grief, emptiness and boredom compound the loss. The "kids" deserve a boot to the rear. And you? For shame.

- LINDA SKIPPER
DEAR LINDA: In my defense, that letter (and my reply) - a vacation, run - was written in the 1970s. I am 20 years wiser now. Give me a break.

You were not the only reader who resented the daughters' behavior - and my answer. Read on.

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing about that widow whose children "helped" by disposing of all her husband's belongings without her knowledge or consent. Grief counselors caution against prematurely discarding keepsakes or familiar objects used by the deceased. Disposing of them is painful, but it is an important part of the separation and grieving process. For many, it is another way of saying goodbye to a loved one. However, we may need to retain some tangible remembrance of the one we loved.

Certainly these children meant well; it is risky, however, to assume that we know what is "best" for others. In addition to losing her husband, this widow was denied the opportunity to distribute her husband's belongings in her own time, and in her own way.

Dear Abby
Abigail
VanBuren

Let's hope that the children who were so eager to help their mother will now show an equal attentiveness in the months ahead - Mom will need their emotional support.

Please print this letter in the interest of families who may find themselves in similar circumstances.

- E.G. PALM HARBOR, FLA.
DEAR ABBY: In regard to the adult children who cleaned out all their widowed mother's memories:

I would have been extremely resentful if anyone had gone through my husband's things and decided what to do with them. A homeowner, male or female, always needs tools. I am a 69-year-old female, and I do almost all my own repairs. I alone roofed my two-bedroom house. I removed two roofs in the process and applied tar paper, too. I purchased tools (i.e., Sanders, electric drills, hammers, gardening tools, etc.).

How dare anyone make those decisions for me - even if they think it's for my own good. It isn't!

- MAE HUTCHINSON, RICHMOND, CALIF.
DEAR MAE: Good for you! I admire your spunk and independence.

Not every woman (at any age) can put a roof over her own house!

DEAR ABBY: Recently you ran a letter from a widow whose family had disposed of her husband's belongings while she was visiting her sister.

When my husband passed away, it was a great satisfaction for me to give away his things to people who would appreciate them. His suits fit a dear friend's husband, and I was pleased when I saw him wearing them.

I kept his family mementos for our teen-aged son.

Abby, please tell your readers not to "spare" people in this way.

CHARLOTTE W. SNYDER, TRENTON, N.J.

Sydney Omarr Horoscope

IF OCTOBER 14 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You possess charm, intellectual curiosity, love of learning, desire and need for communicating with the public. You are romantic, peace-loving but will fight when cause is right. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons play significant roles in your life. You have unusual voice, are drawn to drama, music, the arts. Current cycle emphasizes commercial enterprise, direction, motivation, partnership, marital status. Travel, romance featured in December.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You might be singing. "Everything is going my way!" Focus on powers of persuasion, charm, humor. Emphasis also on entertainment, ability to make people laugh. Gemini plays key role.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Attention—focus on sound—career, business—accumen, dealings with people in executive positions. Bring source material up to date. Test reports, sharpen tools.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Lunation position highlights distribution of product, letting others know you are available as agent, sales representative.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Individual—representing you—talker about payments, percentages. By digging deep, you locate hidden resources. Spotlight on domestic adjustment, material status.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Element of deception requires investigation. Individual working behind scenes—has answers could be helpful. Focus on extraneous personality, intrigue.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent organization, responsibility, willingness to "work overtime." Focus also on fitness, diet, nutrition. Capricorn. Cancer persons in picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Aim for international market, gain wider audience. Love relationship involves travel, communication, chance to bid financial jackpot. Moon position highlights physical attraction, sex appeal.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Answer to question affirmative. Make fresh start in new direction. Spotlight—dependence, style, panache. Check structures, designs, architecture. Leo plays role.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Ask questions, satisfy curiosity. Cancer native asks favor, makes promise; intuition proves accurate, follow through. Recover sense of direction, communicate with family members.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Check Aries message. Focus on diversity, versatility, adventure of exploration. Money plays role, but not unlike local ad, you'll get credit long overdue.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You're in spotlight—make appearances, wear shades of blue. Take charge of your destiny, personality attracts members of opposite sex. Taurus individual declares, "We belong together!"

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Investigate various opportunities involving advertising, publishing, sales representation. Chance—meeting could "change your life." Special relationship begins with clash of ideas.

Historic origins of trauma

Q. "Trauma" is listed as the third leading cause of death in the United States. But I don't remember anybody ever being told "trauma" when I was a kid. How far back?

A. It first appeared in print in 1693. Same year the College of William and Mary was founded. No connection.

Imagine you, too, have referred to one little town or another as "podunk" without knowing "podunk" is an Indian word for "ground where the foot sinks in" or "marshy place."

Medical specialists say it's the red-haired individual who's most likely to become bald.

Q. How fast can a free-wheeling roller skate?

A. About 16 mph is tops.

Q. "Good amateur gardeners rarely get divorced," said your Love and War man. But he didn't say why?

A. From his various files: "Gardeners have to plant themselves somewhere before they find room to plant anything else, so they're more mature than most."

Q. How do the police statisticians know only a third of all crimes are reported? They don't say.

You can't cultivate truffles, sorry.

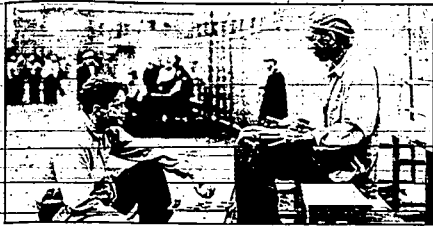

Q. How long does it take salt water to seep into the interior of drifting coconuts?

A. Unknown. They've drifted thousands of miles without it diluting their so-called milk.

Q. Does that international criminal police organization called Interpol have the right to arrest people?

A. No, it doesn't even have any official right to investigate. It's a private corporation.

L.M. Boyd What's what?

'Shawshank' gives flashback to old days

By Glean Lovell
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

Castle Rock Entertainment, the company that established itself with Rob Reiner's "Stand By Me," has another offbeat Stephen King adaptation on the loading dock. It goes by the unlikely (some will argue unmarketable) title, "The Shawshank Redemption" and features sturdy, understated performances by Tim Robbins and Morgan Freeman.

In contrast to King's grisly stock-in-trade "Shawshank" taken from the novella "Rita Hayworth and Shawshank Redemption" has nothing to do with telepathy, haunted hostels or supernatural curses. The magic, this time around, comes from the story's ultimately uplifting tone and from the amazingly assured direction of Frank Darabont, here making his feature debut after apprenticing on TV movies and exploitation screencaps ("The Blob," "remake," "The Fly II"). "Shawshank" is something of a throwback entertainment, the kind of dour, powerful prison saga in which Warner Bros. and James Cagney once specialized. Scenarist-director Darabont has lovingly crafted an old-fashioned yarn, a story that takes its good ol' time in the telling, but benefits mightily in the bargain.

Our story opens in 1947, with a sequence all too reminiscent of "The Fugitive" and a high-profile double-murder trial now unfolding in Los Angeles. Bank vice president Andy Dufresne (Robbins) is on trial for the shooting deaths of his wife and her lover. Courtroom flashbacks to the night in question pierce him at the crime scene. Alone with a motive, he had a gun and enough wits in his system to stoke his anger.

But he didn't do it, he maintains. He was framed. The evidence is circumstantial and misleading. The jury disagrees and sentences him to two life sentences at Shawshank State Prison in Maine. A singularly bookish and withdrawn individual, Andy is easy prey for the sadistic captain of the guards (Clancy Brown) as well as yard psychos, who repeatedly taunt and rape him.

"I wish I could tell you Andy fought the good fight," says narrator-fellow lifer "Red" Redding (Freeman) as we watch Andy get the worst of it. Narrow escapes and yard heroes, alas, are the stuff of Hollywood movies. Red goes on, and real life is a whole lot less forgiving, though you can always dream...

That, in a nutshell, sums up this film: "Shawshank" is a traditional picture that builds on the old Big House clichés (paternalistic but corrupt warden, kindly old trustee, etc.), but somehow always seems fresh and unpredictable. That we stick with the story and characters, over what will turn into a 20-year haul, says a lot about Darabont's compassion for Andy and Red and his attention to the mind-riding regimen of prison life.

Although it may start out like another episode in Dr. Richard Kimble's saga, "The Shawshank Redemption" is closer in tone and theme to the Paul Newman classic "Cool World and Luck." Like Newman's character, Andy becomes a cell-block legend; as he helps others with their education and taxes, he comes to symbolize something in short supply behind bars: hope. Robbins is fine in the role of the resourceful white-collar inmate, who saves the library and masterminds many of Warden Norton's (Bob Gunton) outside scams, but it's Freeman who really makes this film. His Red starts out cautious and sarcastic, a real survivor, but he grows before our eyes. He wants to believe what Andy already knows, and it's his voyage from cynical lifer to someone who has a chance on the outside that makes this film something special.

Try to see beyond that impossible title: "The Shawshank Redemption" is here to redeem a hitherto unremarkable movie classic and remind us that, yes, indeed, they do make movies like they used to. (R) (Twin Cinema)

O'Donnell, Aykroyd cop plea in 'Eden'

Los Angeles Times

Movies playing in the Magic Valley this weekend. Reviews are by the Los Angeles Times and ratings are by the Motion Picture Association of America:

"Exit to Eden" (R). Dopey fizzle of a comedy about a kind of "Fantasy Island" S&M club. Stars Dana Delaney as the all-too-serious headmistress, and Rosie O'Donnell and Dan Aykroyd as the cops who infiltrate the island. (Twin Cinema, Burley Theatre)

"Little Giants" (PG). A big treat, a warm comedy for all ages about two very different brothers (Rick Moranis, Ed O'Neill) who assemble equally different kinds of teams in a competition to determine which one will represent their small Ohio town in the Pop Warner junior league. With Shanna Waldron. (Twin Cinema, Jerome Cinema, Century Cinema of Burley)

"Wes Craven's New Nightmare" (R). This latest episode in the "Nightmare on Elm Street" cycle goes away by recycling movie-within-a-movie—or is it dream-within-a-dream—shenanigans. Better than most in the series, but clunky. (Twin Cinema)

"The Adventures of Priscilla, Queen of the Desert" (R). A gaudy and bawdy tale of a trio of drag performers trekking across the Australian outback to perform in the middle of nowhere. At its best when those outrageous performers are either talking trash or dancing up a storm, the Stephen Elphinstone film helped by a fine performance by Terence Stamp and hampered by a sizable strain of conventional sentimentality. (Magic Lantern Cinema of Ketchum)

"Clear and Present Danger" (R). Harrison Ford strikes again as CIA analyst Jack Ryan in the summer's most satisfying movie experience. Easily the best and most tightly wound of the three Tom Clancy novels brought to the screen. (Motor-Vu Drive-in)

"Corinna, Corinna" (PG-13).

Capsule reviews

Whoopi Goldberg and Ray Liotta star in this '50s drama about a widower with a 7-year-old daughter who takes in a maid. A sort-of romance ensues. Dab and Liotta, paired with a few graceful moments from Goldberg. (Ace Theatre of Wendell)

"Forrest Gump" (PG-13). Director Robert Zemeckis uses the story of a holy fool whose IQ of 75 doesn't stop him from succeeding in life as a way to examine the turbulent recent decades of American history through a gently cracked lens. (Twin Cinema, Jerome Cinema, Gooding Cinema, Ace Theatre of Wendell, Liberty Theatre of Halley)

"In the Army Now" (PG). An amiable if overly familiar service comedy that finds Paul Shore and a sidekick (Andy Dick), a couple of goofy guys trying to act cool, signing up for the Army Reserves. (Motor-Vu Drive-in)

"Only You" (PG). An implausible romantic comedy about true love and destiny, flimsy even by the elastic standards of the genre, that counts on the star power of Marisa Tomei and Robert Downey Jr. to compensate for a lack of originality, but it is not to be. Norman Jewison directs. (Twin Cinema, Jerome Cinema, Century Cinema of Burley, Magic Lantern Theatre of Ketchum)

"The River Wild" (PG-13). Though the scenes of white-water rafting on roller coaster waterways are exciting, the real thrill here is seeing Meryl Streep giving a rip-roaring performance as a former guide forced to protect her family from desperate murderers. Expertly directed by Curtis Hanson, Streep is convincing in both the physical and emotional sequences and gives her best performance in years. (Twin Cinema, Jerome Cinema, Century Cinema of Burley)

"The Specialist" (R). Sylvester Stallone and Sharon Stone star in this sub-par actioner about an explosive expert trying to blow up a Miami crime family. James Woods and Robert Downey Jr. relieve the tedium with some world-class scenery chewing. (Mall Cinema, Jerome Cinema, Century Cinema of Burley)

"Terminal Velocity" (R). Blithe-

entertaining, lightning-fast action-adventure with romance and comedy that effectively teams Charlie Sheen's cocky, daredevil sky diver and Nastassja Kinski's beguiling, resourceful woman of mystery. (Twin Cinema, Century Cinema of Burley)

"True Lies" (R). The stunts in this Arnold Schwarzenegger epic about a secret agent whose work is a secret to his family are once again state of the art. But even though writer-director James Cameron and company are also adept at the romantic spoof aspects of the story, the film suffers from a strain of crudeness and mean-spirited humiliation. 'Paper' brings all the news that's fit to see to the local video store

The Times-News

New videos this week in Twin Falls stores:

"The Paper" (R). Near the end of Ron Howard's "The Paper," an overwrought city commissioner jumps the columnist who's been skewering him with relentless exposes on parking enforcement, points a gun at the reporter and asks why he's being hounded.

Because, looming columnist Dan McDougal (Randy Quaid) says with cool abandon, the commissioner works for the city and it's "your turn."

It's that type of deadpan cynicism that helps make "The Paper" a high-voltage joy ride of journalistic fun. But woven into the laughter are some telling moments that mirror a few truths about the Fourth Estate.

Directing from a well-crafted screenplay by David and Stephen Koepf, Howard storms through 24 hours at the New York Sun, a scruffy daily that thrives on wharf-hum and lines with slammers (exclamation points).

It's an especially critical day for Henry Hackett (Michael Keaton), the wire over a story that could free two young men wrongfully charged with murder, and has a job interview with the highly respected Sentinel.

Adding more dynamics to Henry's day: wife Marty (Marisa Tomei) is about to give birth to their first child, his managing editor, Alicia (Glenn Close), wants him dead, and the paper's editor Bernie White (Robert Duvall) is having thoughts of mortality as he learns of a cancerous prostate.

Hey, no biggie. It's just a typical day in the life of a reporter.

The minutes tick away as the paper's deadline arrives for a story about two men wrongfully arrested for a double-murder. Hackett knows they didn't do it; Alicia wants to stick with the original headline about their arrest.

The incompetent police beat reporter has nothing, and McDougal doesn't seem to be getting anywhere with the feds. But Marty, a former reporter who's dying to get back into the game, gets the 411 from an old Justice Department source.

There's only one missing ingredient and Henry has to get that on his own. Howard keeps a brisk pace. The audience races through deadline pressure with Henry, and watches the creation of a breaking news story.

And yes, you do get to hear the almost mythic "Go the presses!" But Howard packs a few surprises with that one.

The filmmakers went to the New York Daily News and New York Post to research a big city tabloid, and learned well. Howard does indeed capture the frenzy and the passions, the pranks, the paranoia, the jealousies, the creative edge, the neurotic but intellectual curiosity, the intense camaraderie, and the sexual romps. Nothing is sacred in a newsroom, and everyone's fair game.

And he couldn't have a better cast: Performances are excellent all the way around. (The Associated Press) (Blockbuster, Video West).

"Backbeat" (R). To be fair, there is tragedy in this film about the genesis of the Beatles and the fifth member of the group, Stuart Sutcliffe, but it comes at the end and only lightly punctuates what is essentially a romping paean to youth and unbridled, raw artistic genius.

At its best, "Backbeat" offers a compelling picture of Sutcliffe (Stephen Dorff) and John Lennon (Ian Hart), the pair who, along with three others, started the Beatles in Liverpool, England, in 1960.

It's hard to imagine that there's anything fresh to mine from the story of the Beatles' rise as the century's biggest rock icons, but writer and director Iain Softley manages to find something new.

Sutcliffe's life and love form the film's centerpiece. He was an art school student when he was recruited by classmate Lennon to play in his band. Also in the group were Paul McCartney (Gary Bakewell), George Harrison (Chris O'Neill) and drummer Pete Best (Scott Williams).

The film begins with the fab five traveling to Hamburg, Germany, to revel in the thriving rock scene. It's never clear, however, just why the band sets its sights on Germany; the viewer is just tossed in as the band races off.

In Hamburg, Sutcliffe's interest in his music is ambivalent at best. He seems to be going along for the ride when he spots an enchanting woman in the crowd, photographer Astrid Kirchherr (Sheryl Lee). Suddenly, the painter in Sutcliffe has found his muse and he all but abandons the Beatles.

Kirchherr has been credited with giving the band its singular style and look. In the film, she cues Sutcliffe's hair in a long, floppy mop top. And as a member of the city's avant-garde, she was a natural magnet for Sutcliffe's artistic exploring.

Lennon emerges as a man who has the rare talent of making anger and hostility somehow funny and amusing, instead of caustic and harsh. Ian Hart gets the character real depth — a vulnerability and a sweetness — and makes Lennon's vitriol more palatable.

And just what is Lennon mad about? For one thing, he's seething with the prospect of losing his best friend to a woman he'd like to have for himself. This triangle becomes the most beguiling part of the film.

In the end, what seems to motivate Lennon more than anything is a pure driving ambition to become well, the legendary pop icon that he became.

Where this movie falters is in the weak portrayal of the rest of the band who appear as little more than stick figures with a few speaking parts and a lot of time clowning around on stage.

But if your expectations aren't too high, this film will delight you with its sheer boisterousness and love of rock 'n' roll. It's charming and it's a little bit sweet. (Associated Press) (Video West, Blockbuster)

Friends, family bury noted coach McGuire

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Hall of Fame coach Frank McGuire was buried Thursday as some of basketball's brightest stars sadly watched.

Frank made the finals again and the Lord's going to have a hard time handling him,” said the Rev. David B. Thompson, Bishop of the Diocese of Charleston, the celebrant at McGuire's service.

A host of coaches past and present were there to honor McGuire, including Dean Smith, Lou Carnesecca, Larry Brown, Mike Dunleavy and Bobby Cremins.

McGuire, 80, died Tuesday after a long illness. The native New Yorker had more than 550 victories and an NCAA championship in a 45-year career that spanned high school, three colleges and a year in the NBA. He retired in 1980 as the winningest coach in South Carolina history.

Soccer player seeks to leave team; coach kills him

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil — The president of a soccer club in northeast Brazil shot and killed a player who asked to be put on waivers after the team failed to give him three months of back-pay, news reports said Thursday.

Gilson Raimundo Veija, president of the CSE club in the city of Palmeira dos indios, 1,400 miles northeast of Rio, shot Cassio Barros da Silva on Wednesday in a bar during a quarrel.

Da Silva, a 25-year-old midfielder, approached Veija into the bar shortly after midnight Wednesday and demanded a release, the Rio daily Jornal do Brasil reported.

Veija reportedly left the bar, returned later with a revolver and opened fire.

Minico grabs soccer title; top-seeded TFCA goes home

GOODING — Goalie Steve Hansen's redemption was the difference between Minico as the Spartans knocked off host Gooding for the Southern Idaho Soccer League championship Thursday.

After giving up a game-tying score with less than 10 seconds left in overtime, Hansen shut down Gooding's top guns during a shoot-out reminiscent of Brazil's World Cup victory over Italy earlier this year.

"He's a good goal man — one of the best I've ever seen," Spartan coach Colin Marriott said after his team won the shoot-out 3-1.

Earlier in the day, the tournament's top-seeded, Twin Falls Christian Academy, lost to Bliss in the battle for third place. That means the Warriors will be on the sidelines when the state tournament begins on their home field next week.

Three teams from the Southern Idaho league receive berths into the state tourney. So, after posting upsets during the tournament's first day, the only thing left to be decided between Minico and the Gooding squad — which comprises players from the Idaho School for the Deaf and Blind and Gooding High School — was who would take home the SSSL trophy. Minico led 1-0 after a sloppily-played first half.

Gooding seemed to control much of the first period, keeping the ball in Minico's end of the field but finding few open shots.

"Gooding's taking 40 minutes to warm up," coach Joe Kren said to no one in particular as his team lost momentum late in the half.

Moments later, Minico's Chad Knight converted a throw-in into a perfect pass to streaking teammate Dallas Olmstead, who punched it in for the score.

Gooding came out aggressively in the second half, and caught a break when a foul resulted in a penalty kick 14 minutes into the period.

Jake Cheney hit a high, arcing shot into the far corner of the goal to tie the score and set up the dramatic finish.

With the score tied 1-1 at the end of regulation, the teams played two 5-minute overtime periods. Neither team scored in the first, but Minico forward Steve Bruus struck midway through the second.

From deep on the right side, he sailed one over Gooding goalie Summer Johnson's head and into the net.

Bruins hope to break Borah 'hex'

By Larry Hovey

TWIN FALLS — Over its football history, Twin Falls has had two teams that have caused particular pain — Borah and Highland.

Highland already has punctured Twin Falls' record this year and the Lions move into Bruin Stadium at 7 p.m. today.

The Bruins went 29 years — not playing every year — without beating the Lions. Since they left the Gem State Conference to go independent, however, the Bruins have beaten the Lions twice in six regular season tries and a couple other times in playoffs.

Still, Borah's excessive 28-9 decision last year against a good Twin Falls team indicates the Lions still have something of a hex.

Coach Mark Schaal says that has to end tonight.

"We have to win the final two home games and hope things fall as current records indicate to get into the playoffs and possibly host a playoff game," the coach said. "For that reason, I consider this the

Magic Valley's conference leaders are guarding against surprise, meaning a couple of 2-5 teams are playing the most important game of the high school football weekend.

That one brings the Wood River Wolverines to Buhl. Regardless of what happens with Jerome, the winner will be guaranteed at least the second Class A-2 berth from this area. That means the winner will open the post season in eastern Idaho.

The conference leaders are Glenns Ferry in A-3, Minutemen in A-4, 11 man and Carey in A-4 eight-man. Glenns Ferry invades Filer. Carey travels to Buneroff to play North Gem and Murteigh is home to Castelford.

A stumble by any of those leaders could put the loop standings back in a tie. Jerome, which tops the 3-team pack.

"biggest game of the year for us to date"

He said the key to victory would be continuing "to improve as we have the last two weeks. We gave the team Friday, Saturday and Sunday off and until 6 p.m. Monday and had a very good practice. I think we will be ready to play."

Schaal has great respect for the Lions, noting "they are a very aggressive team that likes to take gambles on both sides of the football. They run at you out of a full house backfield."

Fullback Todd Ruppert usually handles the ball on dives and quarterback Jason Anderson likes to run the option and isn't hesitant about keeping. When he pitches, it goes to tailback Rob Grey, whose 90-yard punt return with 36 seconds left beat Boise 18-13.

CSI seeks tourney host spot against Ricks, NIC

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — Even though her team has lost three of five matches with the College of Southern Idaho, Ricks volleyball coach Joann Reeve is afraid she hasn't seen the Golden Eagles at their best.

"That team hasn't been pushed as hard as they can. And they haven't stepped up to play like they can," Reeve said Thursday as her team prepared for tonight's matchup at the CSI gym.

"I believe that team will come to their own on a higher level than any of us have seen them play," Reeve said.

If true, that should be ample cause to worry for the Lady Vikings, who have posted a 2-3 record against the defending national champions this year. The Eagles, at 47-3, are well ahead of last year's 44-10 regular-season mark.

Tonight's match, which begins at 7 p.m., is the first between the archrivals that counts toward the Region 18 standings. And it will go a long way toward deciding who hosts the Region 18 tournament. If CSI beats Ricks and repeats the feat against North Idaho College Saturday night, the Golden Eagles will host the tournament, CSI coach Ben Stroud said.

North Idaho, 22-21 overall and 2-1 in Region 18 play, comes to town after a Thursday match at Treasure Valley.

Reeve watched her team beat CSI twice early in the season, but that was before the arrival of Paula Arujo and Katiene Simonetti from Brazil.

"Since those two freshmen showed up, CSI has nary a blemish on its record. The only other loss came to North Idaho, but that also was before the Eagles were at full strength."

"We have to play consistent and we have to play awesome to beat them," Reeve said. Her squad is considered to be the No. 2 team in Region 18's Northern Division, although they have lost to North Idaho.

Ricks' swept four regular-season matches from CSI last year and beat them in the first round of the regional tournament, only to see the Eagles storm through the losers'.

Wildcats outlast Wendell

By Larry Hovey
Times-News writer

WENDELL — It took two hours and 10 minutes to do it but the Filer Wildcats finally nailed down the second spot in the Canyon Conference final standings by nipping Wendell 19-17, 10-15, 15-12 Thursday night.

The victory means Filer will take on Glenns Ferry at 6 p.m. Monday when the district Class A-3 tournament opens in the Wendell gymnasium. Wendell, the fourth-place league team, will take on No. 5 Deelo in the tourney lid-lifter at 4 p.m.

Filer, abetted by terrible back row receiving by Wendell, appeared an easy winner when it rushed into a 14-4 lead in the first game. But Wendell's back row steadied and fought back when it was a matter of sideouts and spotty passing by both teams.

Wendell, with its reluctant hitter Lachelle Newton getting several points at the net, came back over the next 24 minutes to fashion a tie at 14. At that point there had been 10 points scored and 14 sideouts.

The final points were dramatic, however, with each team leading again before Filer won it 19-17.

Oilers tally another loss

The Associated Press

HOUSTON — The Cleveland Browns left the Houston Oilers red-faced on prime time television again.

Cleveland used trickery on a 2-point conversion and Vinny Testaverde's 25-yard touchdown pass to Mark Carrier for an 11-8 victory over Houston on Thursday night as the Browns reached 5-1 for the first time since 1965.

It was another embarrassing nationally televised moment for the Oilers, beaten 30-14 on Oct. 3 by Pittsburgh. The Oilers face another prime time date on Oct. 24 at Philadelphia.

The Oilers were within 28 seconds of their first shutout loss in 18 years in the AstroDome when Billy Joe Tolliver threw a 5-yard TD pass to Lorenzo White. When Tolliver completed a 2-point conversion pass to Haywood Jeffries, Houston trailed by the margin of Al Del Greco's missed 29-yard field goal attempt earlier in the fourth period.

Idaho schools switch conferences

The Associated Press

The Big West Conference invited Boise State, Idaho, North Texas and Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo to join the league on Tuesday and all but North Texas immediately accepted, commissioner Dennis Farrell said.

North Texas will announce on Monday its response to the invitation. Farrell said that it was "extremely excited" about the invitation.

For Boise State and Idaho, it means a move from the Big Sky Conference, which plays at the Division I-AA level in football, to Division I-A, effective with the 1995-1996 school year.

Idaho has been a member of the eight-team Big Sky since 1963, and Boise State joined in 1970. The remaining conference schools voted last month to continue competition at the Division I-AA level.

Mike Parent of Utah State, chairman of the Big West expansion committee, said the vote was unanimous to invite the four schools to join.

UNLV and San Jose State are leaving the Big West for the Western Athletic Conference.

Farrell said the Big West will have 11 football members when UNLV and San Jose leave and the league is looking at Central Florida or Northeastern Louisiana as prospective football members to make a 12-member, two division league.

The NCAA Council on Wednesday rejected Idaho's waiver from the attendance requirements that must be met before a team can move from Division I-AA to I-A.

Boise State has averaged more than 19,000 per game over the last four years, meeting the Division I-A requirement of at least 17,000. But Idaho's Kibbie Dome holds only 16,000, and attendance was under 12,000 last season.

Despite that, Farrell said Idaho will be participating in the Big West. "They are pursuing other avenues for achieving I-A status," he said. "We still are very confident they will obtain this status through a number of recent possibilities."

Farrell said Idaho might play all 1995 home games at Washington State's 40,000-seat stadium, just eight miles from Idaho's campus at Moscow.

ISU tailback poses stiff test for Bronco defense

By Dave Goins

Times-News correspondent

BOISE — Contain Alfredo Anderson.

The Idaho State University tailback may be the No. 1 headcase for Boise State University defensive coordinator Tom Mason as he prepares for Saturday night's Big Sky matchup in Pocatello.

The Broncos (6-0 overall, 2-0 Big Sky Conference) will tackle ISU (2-3, 1-2) at 6:35 p.m. in Holt Arena.

"We've got to make sure (Anderson) doesn't break long gains on us," Mason said. "You can't let him into the secondary. If he gets into your secondary, it's going to be a big gain because he's so dang quick. You've got to force him to run the ball inside and get your bigger people hitting him."

Anderson, the Big Sky's No. 3 rusher, will carry the football a lot more the rest of the season, ISU Coach Brian McNelly said.

Anderson, who rushed 20 times for 160 yards in last fall's 34-27 loss to BSU, had only 170 yards on 41 carries in 1994 prior to the MSU game.

"We didn't do a real good job of getting him the football before MSU, but that's primarily because we've been getting the wrinkles out of our defense. Alfredo will get the ball his share the rest of the season," McNelly said.

And it's likely that BSU halfback K.C. Adams will get his share of handoffs against ISU. Adams, a junior college transfer from Oakland, Calif., leads the conference in rushing with an average of 136.7 yards per game. Adams is also the league's top all-purpose yardage gainer at 201.8 yards per game and has the most touchdowns (11).

They have a lot of offensive weapons and are very strong and aggressive on defense," McNelly said.

Mason and Allen said they aren't taking the Broncos lightly despite the fact that BSU is No. 2 in passing defense and No. 3 in rushing defense.

"There's no question they'll be up for our game whether they beat Montana State or not," Allen said. "They'll give us all we can handle. We're off to a 6-0 start, but we're not taking all we have to do. We're not playing real smooth football."

Mason is paying attention to Anderson's rushing ability for 271 good reasons. The 5-foot, 10-inch, 170-pound sophomore from Miami, Fla., carried the football 41 times for 271 yards and two touchdowns the Bengals' 38-20 victory over Montana State last week.

Anderson set a new ISU single game record and earned USA Today's NCAA Division I-AA Offensive Player of the Week honors.

"I hope he doesn't have that kind of game against us," BSU head coach Rocky Allen said. "Our defensive line has been playing pretty damn new offense the rush, so we have to continue that and make sure he's not running north-south."

BSU's rushing defense has been an essential ingredient in the Bronco's 6-0 start — the best in school history. BSU's rushing defense is the Big Sky's third-best, allowing 92 yards per game. Idaho is No. 1 at 53 yards per game.

The Broncos figure to be a tougher challenge for Anderson than Montana State, which is allowing a conference-high 206.8 rushing yards per game.

Anderson — the Big Sky's No. 3 rusher — will carry the football a lot more the rest of the season, ISU Coach Brian McNelly said.

Anderson, who rushed 20 times for 160 yards in last fall's 34-27 loss to BSU, had only 170 yards on 41 carries in 1994 prior to the MSU game.

"We didn't do a real good job of getting him the football before MSU, but that's primarily because we've been getting the wrinkles out of our defense. Alfredo will get the ball his share the rest of the season," McNelly said.

And it's likely that BSU halfback K.C. Adams will get his share of handoffs against ISU. Adams, a junior college transfer from Oakland, Calif., leads the conference in rushing with an average of 136.7 yards per game. Adams is also the league's top all-purpose yardage gainer at 201.8 yards per game and has the most touchdowns (11).

They have a lot of offensive weapons and are very strong and aggressive on defense," McNelly said.

Mason and Allen said they aren't taking the Broncos lightly despite the fact that BSU is No. 2 in passing defense and No. 3 in rushing defense.

"There's no question they'll be up for our game whether they beat Montana State or not," Allen said. "They'll give us all we can handle. We're off to a 6-0 start, but we're not taking all we have to do. We're not playing real smooth football."

Tigers dump Wood River for district

By Brad Bowlin

JEROME — The Tigers averaged their only district loss of the season in the quick games Thursday night, toppling Wood River for the A-2 District 4 volleyball title.

"We got smoked," Wolverine coach Reamy Goodwin said after watching his team go down 15-10, 15-9.

"We got smoked."

difference tonight," Jerome coach Brent Clark said. The backbone of Elisabeth Krucker, Kim Burton and Mindi Thompson played its best game of the season, Clark said.

Jerome ended its regular season at 25-8. Wood River is 25-14.

"Our passing was so bad tonight," Goodwin said. "They served us to the court."

Burton did most of the serving damage in game two, scoring six times from the back line. Outside hitter Tonia Burke served for 11 rallies in the first game.

Wolverines out of their game plan, Goodwin said. Wood River depends on a good passing game to set up shots for their outside hitters.

Wood River downed Jerome in three games earlier in the season, and both coaches said their teams are evenly matched headed into the district tournament.

Things reversed in the second game when Wendell jumped ahead 7-1 on several Newton blocks and kills. Filser overcame the deficit in three before Wendell claimed the tying game.

The third game was another long series of ties with Wendell last holding an lead. After that Filser was either tied or ahead until the match reached 12-12.

Karla Coon then stepped forward to get the final three points with a block and two blasts.

HAGERMAN — The top seed in southside district play; Hagerman shut out Hansen's hope of adding a victory to their 2-1 record Thursday night in a four-game victory.

It was a real good game, on," Hagerman coach Susie Choules said.

Ranae Babington served nine points in the first game to lead the Panthers to victory.

The Hagerman junior varsity promoted its undefeated record to a victory in three games 15-1, 14-16, 15-6.

Murtaugh 6, 12

MURTAUGH — Solid hitting efforts by both teams created a close match between the Homets and the Red Devils in Southside Conference play.

"The scores may not reflect it, but it was a very close game," Murtaugh coach Shannon Hamblin said.

Oakley's Amy Archibald's hitting kept the Murtaugh defense on its toes.

But Debbie Buckley and Melissa Tolman's net-kills, each with three blocks and 10 kills, kept the ball on the Oakley side.

Murtaugh's JV battled back from a 1-15 first game loss to win the final two games 15-9, 15-1.

On defense, the Lions do a lot of stunting and put on pressure designed to "force you into bad decisions. Their tactics twist about 85 percent of the time. That makes it difficult for our offense, but on the other side, they're not giving us a chance to break a big play or two," Schaal said.

Schaal said the 35-point production and the shutout for three and one-half quarters against Meridian makes him believe the Bruins are getting considerably better.

"It is the mark of a good team to come out and play a Meridian, to let them stay in the game," he said. "We must do the same against Borah if the opportunity presents itself. The longer we let them stay in the game, the better chance they have of winning."

last week. Borah isn't considered a pairing team.

On defense, the Lions do a lot of stunting and put on pressure designed to "force you into bad decisions. Their tactics twist about 85 percent of the time. That makes it difficult for our offense, but on the other side, they're not giving us a chance to break a big play or two," Schaal said.

Schaal said the 35-point production and the shutout for three and one-half quarters against Meridian makes him believe the Bruins are getting considerably better.

"It is the mark of a good team to come out and play a Meridian, to let them stay in the game," he said. "We must do the same against Borah if the opportunity presents itself. The longer we let them stay in the game, the better chance they have of winning."

Hockey deadline looms

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Don't throw away those NHL pocket schedulers yet.

Brain-Burke, the NHL's director of hockey operations, said Thursday the league might be able to play a full 84-game season even if it is unable to start play Saturday, the deadline previously announced by commissioner Gary Bettman. But, Burke added, the deadline can't be extended too far.

"Nov. 1, as of that date, it would be very difficult (to play all 84 games)," Burke said.

Sixty-nine games have been postponed, with six more set for Friday and 10 on Saturday, Burke said the league can't extend the season into July because of arena commitments.

Burke, making the first stop in a tour of various NHL cities, said there's no other plan in place.

"We don't have a Plan B," he said. "We had hoped to have a deal in place by the 15th. At some point, we're going to have to look at a reduced schedule."

There's no chance for the NHL's first deadline being met. The sides haven't met since Tuesday, when the owners rejected the players' latest contract proposal, and no new talks have been set.

"We've resigned ourselves to the fact it's going to be a lengthy lockout," union spokesman Steve MacAllister said. "Right now, all is quiet. Nothing is happening."

Although Bettman and union head Bob Goodenow have agreed to keep the lines of communication open, Burke said it was "intolerable and inexcusable" that negotiations weren't ongoing.

Philippine boxers rule Asian Games

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP) — Philippine boxers went 3-for-3 in finals today, winning their nation's first gold of these Asian Games.

But the big medal haul was made by South Korea.

The Koreans outdid even the powerful Chinese for the day, capturing 10 gold medals — two each in judo, boxing and shooting and one each in women's basketball and handball, cycling and table tennis.

That wasn't quite enough to overtake Japan in the battle for second in the gold column. The two nations were tied at 48 after Japan won two each in judo and women's tennis, and one each in boxing, shooting and table tennis.

China's haul for the day was six, but it still had a runaway lead in golds with 112. The Chinese won two each in tennis and their native martial art of wushu, and one each in cycling and table tennis.

In total medals, Japan led with 219, followed by China's 165, South Korea's 143, and Kazakhstan's 63.

In the boxing ring, Uzbekistan joined South Korea and Kazakhstan as double winners.

Mansuro Velasco opened the Philippine blitz by outpointing Thailand's Pramuanak Phosavan 11-9 at light flyweight, Elias Recaido beat Japan's Eliaz Nakazono 16-8 at flyweight and light welterweight Reynaldo Galido stopped Usman Ullah Khan of Pakistan in 2:38 of the first round.

Senate candidate battles 'Big Dog' factor

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Democratic Sen. Herb Kohl and his Republican opponent have focused their campaigns on such issues as government spending, taxes, crime and President Clinton's record. But there's just no ignoring the "Big Dog" factor.

Less than a month before the general election, No. 1 NBA draft pick Glenn "Big Dog" Robinson is a holdout with the Milwaukee Bucks, owned by Kohl, a Wisconsin Democrat who is seeking his second term.

Robinson, the nation's leading college scorer with Purdue last season, reportedly is seeking an unprecedented $100 million deal from Kohl, who touts his congressional record as a fiscal conservative.

Kohl could score political points by bringing a top name to the Bucks, who haven't made the playoffs since 1991. But he's said a time-figure contract is out of the question.

"I'll tell you what. I'll take your contract and you can have my franchise," Kohl said during a campaign stop this week.

The Bucks, who opened training camp late last week, reportedly have offered Robinson a 10-year contract worth more than $70 million. A recent estimate placed the value of the entire Bucks franchise at $77 million.

Robinson is the biggest name drafted by the Bucks since Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. Robinson's shadow over the campaign has been acknowledged by Republican state Rep. Bob Welch, who trails Kohl in the polls.

In a campaign commercial, Welch holds a basketball and discusses Robinson.

"They say I'm the underdog in the U.S. Senate race — and when Herb Kohl signs Glenn 'Big Dog' Robinson, the Bucks, and Herb's campaign, will get a big assist," Welch says in the 30-second spot. "But this campaign is about your bucks, not basketball Bucks."

The kicker: "I hope Herb signs 'Big Dog.' Vote for me and the bucks stop here."

David Littig, a political science professor at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay, said

Purdue basketball star Glenn Robinson joins students at his alma mater, Roosevelt High School in Gary, Ind., for gym class. The NBA's top draft pick this season is reportedly seeking a $100 million deal with the Milwaukee Bucks.

The Robinson affair could hurt Kohl's campaign.

"My sense is that, with the hit baseball has been itself and with the Packers leaving Milwaukee, the people would be irritated if Kohl didn't get him," Littig said. "If it goes sour, and it looks like management doesn't have it together, then I think it can hurt him."

Kohl's image as a fiscal conservative wouldn't suffer if the senator approves a jaw-dropping deal to get Robinson, said John McAdams, a political science professor at Marquette University in Milwaukee. Kohl is the National Taxpayers Union's best-estimated Senate Democrat on spending votes.

"People aren't dumb, they can make distinctions," he said. "They know you've got to pay big money for star athletes."

On a mission to change America 'Balf' inventor says golf/baseball sport on verge of scoring big PITTSBURGH (AP) — Ah, there's nothing like the clack of the club and the challenge of a tough putt on a crisp fall day.

But it's not baseball. It's not golf. It's balf.

Mark Schuster, prophet and originator of the new sport, talks grandly of his fusion of baseball and golf. He's on a mission.

"We're going to change America," said Schuster, a computer technician from the Pittsburgh suburb of Crafton.

The sport's chief tool is the clat, a converted wooden baseball bat with the head of a golf putter inserted in the far end.

Balf's batters, dubbed "balfers," are called clatters. The nine-hole game is played on a golf course, which so far is still called a golf course. To tee off, players toss a golf ball in the air and swing away.

The rules are similar to golf's. The pace is about the same and you can play anywhere "they'll let you," Schuster said.

Miss the ball three times on the fairway and you add another stroke to your score. Land in a sand trap and you simply pick up the ball and bunt. Once on the green, clatters

'Nothing but prejudice to prevent the sport from really taking off.'

— Mark Schuster, 'balf' inventor use the putter to hole out.

Too weird? Remember, that's what they said about frisbee golf and arena football.

"Nothing but prejudice to prevent the sport from really taking off," Schuster said.

Right now, it's mostly just Schuster and a few friends. But he hopes that millions will take up the clat.

The game has been profiled in the "Wall Street Journal" and on Pittsburgh television. And Schuster said a guy wants to put a professional balf franchise in Mankato, Minn.

Schuster dreamed up the new game after succeeding at softball and failing at golf.

A second baseman for the Crafton Shoes (8-2) in a local fall league, Schuster can't keep up with the avid golfers from the insurance agency where he works.

"But there's no reason why I can't just balf along with them," he said.

Purists might shudder, but balf's originator said he views the game as an alternative, not a competitor, to golf.

Jim Enrick, manager of the Club at Nevillewood near Pittsburgh, said balfers would have to take their clats elsewhere.

Baseball bats on the fairways would violate traditional golf's equipment rules. But Schuster might be granted approval to putt with the converted bat, Enrick admitted he's intrigued by the new game.

"It's a little crazy, but I like it," he said.

So far, golfers on local courses where Schuster plays have been curious rather than furious. Some even want to learn the game.

But the prospect hopes to subvert at least one sacred golfing custom — the 19th Hole.

Golfers play 18 holes in four or five hours and drink for two hours in the clubhouse. His new nine-hole game will allow players to balf for two hours and drink for five.

"People don't talk enough any more. We're going to change that," Schuster said.

Mark Schuster lines up a putt with his 'clat' for his half golf, half baseball game.

Million-dollar winner seeks 1st victory on PGA Tour

Pro-golf

SAN ANTONIO — Bob Estes, yet to win in seven seasons on the tour, bried the last of his six career victories four years ago. He called his 63 on the Oak Hills Country Club course "my best round in a couple of years."

At 65 were J.L. Lewis, Bob Burns, rookie Steve Rimout, Steve Stricker and Brian Kamm.

Paul Azinger, however, didn't even get started. Azinger, attempting a comeback after successful cancer treatment, was forced to withdraw before the start of play.

He was stricken with back spasms Wednesday while warming up. They failed to respond to treatment and the former PGA champion was unable to meet his early morning starting time.

He hopes to play in next week's Las Vegas Invitational.

Estes, who has improved his earnings in each of his seven seasons on the tour, played without a bogey and one-putted 10 times. He scored his third runner-up finish of his career early this year and now has collected $1,653,606 — $520,560 of it this year — without winning a tournament. "I feel like I'm closing in on it," he said. He said he was not frustrated by the lack of victories, then he reconsidered. "Well, maybe a little bit. I'm not thinking too much about the first win because I expect to win more than one. The important thing is that I'm seeing progress in my game. I'm gaining on it."

Spaniard gains crucial win in World Match Play

VIRGINIA-WATER, England — A rejuvenated Seve Ballesteros avenged one of his most painful defeats Thursday when he beat David Frost in the first round of the World Match Play Championship.

Ballesteros, who was close to tears after he was routed by Frost 7 and 6 in the opening round here last year, had 13 birdies and shot bogey-free golf to best the sixth-seeded South African 8 and 2.

"I didn't have a bad day today," said Frost, who was 5-under for the day when the match ended at the 29th. "I simply ran into a brick wall and the wall wasn't going to move." He just didn't make any mistakes.

Wet weather halts LPGA World Championship

NAPLES, Fla. — Val Skinner walked off the eighth green and summed up a rainy opening day of the LPGA's World Championship of Women's Golf.

"We should have an Ethiopia Open," she said Thursday. "Anywhere in the world we go, we can cure a drought."

Each of the 16 players in the invitational field was still on the Naples National Golf Club course when the opening round was suspended after a third rain delay. Britain's Laura Davies, the tour's money leader, was 4-under-par when play was suspended. She and Skinner, who trailed by a stroke, were on the eighth green when play stopped.

At 2-under were Sherry Steinhauer, who had played 13 holes, defending champion Dottie Mochrie, through 11, and Donna Andrews, through eight.

New species of dinosaurs discovered

WASHINGTON — Bones from two new species of dinosaurs — a fleet-footed hunter and a long-necked grazer — have been found in Africa. They lived 130 million years ago in a lush, tropical paradise that is now the Sahara desert.

The new hunter dinosaur, about 27 feet long, was named Afrvenator abakensis, or "African hunter from In Abaka," referring to the area of Niger where the bones were found.

The second newly discovered African species was a 60-foot-long plant-eater that is still unnamed. It was a sauropod — akin to the brontosaurus — with a long neck and tail and a massive body. It was so big that its thigh bone was six feet long.

Judge allows Clinton health-care probe

WASHINGTON — The government said "the case is over" but the judge disagrees, keeping alive a lawsuit challenging the secrecy in which President Clinton's now-discarded health care plan was developed.

The Justice Department wanted U.S. District Judge Royce Lamberth to dismiss the case because, it said, all records of the task force committees that worked on the plan were made public last month.

But after hearing arguments for more than an hour Thursday, Lamberth ruled that the seven groups seeking task force records are entitled to present evidence to support their contention that the case was not made moot by release of the files.

Group links hunger, decline of values

WASHINGTON — Hunger is in steady decline in parts of the world but remains widespread in Africa and persistent in the United States, a study said.

Worldwide, nearly 800 million people in developing countries suffer from chronic malnutrition, said the Bread for the World Institute in its fifth annual report released Thursday.

"World hunger is rooted in a breakdown of humanitarian values," according to the organization, which lobbies for bigger anti-poverty programs.

Its report identified violence, political powerlessness, poverty, racial discrimination and environmental strains as the main causes of malnutrition.

In the United States, an estimated 30 million people, including 12 million children, cannot afford to buy enough food to maintain good health, said David Beckmann, president of the organization. That problem could be solved, he said.

Threats halt anti-tobacco TV ads

NEW YORK — Threatened with a libel suit by the chairman of R.J. Reynolds, three California TV stations have dropped an anti-smoking ad containing news footage of the nation's tobacco chiefs swearing before Congress that nicotine is not addictive.

A lawyer for James W. Johnston, the R.J. Reynolds chairman, said the ad makes it sound as if Johnston was lying to Congress. The lawyer demanded in a letter to California TV stations and to the state Health Services Department that the ad be pulled immediately.

Ken August, a spokesman for the California Health Services Department, said he knew of three stations that had stopped running the ad, including KABC, the ABC-owned station in Los Angeles. KABC officials did not immediately return calls for comment.

Study probes dyslexia

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Researchers studying three generations of families with reading disorders have found a genetic basis for dyslexia, a problem that keeps millions of people from ever learning to read well.

Experts said the study, to be published today in the journal Science, means that children with inherited reading deficits may be diagnosed early enough in life to help relieve problems at the start of formal schooling.

Researchers at four institutions combined data from two groups of reading disabled people, including sets of fraternal twins, to trace the reading problem to a gene located somewhere in chromosome 6. The study is the first to confirm that a complex trait like a reading disorder can be genetically linked.

"It has now narrowed it to a very small part of the human genome," said John DeFries, senior author of the paper and a senior scientist at the Institute for Behavioral Genetics at the University of Colorado in Boulder. "It now should be much easier to find the actual gene."

Reid Lyon, a director of research on learning disabilities at the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, said that the discovery by DeFries and his colleagues "is significant because it could lead to identifying children early who have this reading difficulty."

Lyon said that about 20 percent of all children are born with dyslexia, a condition that commonly includes the inability to distinguish separate parts of a word, an important skill in learning to read.

"Generally, there's no intervention for a student with dyslexia until about the third grade," Lyon said. "If schools wait until then, 70 to 80 percent will have the problem for the rest of their lives. We're losing millions of kids by waiting until the third grade."

Advocates make case for GATT

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Sen. Ernest Hollings, who stilled a vote on the GATT agreement, until after the November elections, suggested Thursday he didn't see what the rush is about, since the United States has until July to ratify the 123-nation trade agreement.

But in a hearing before the Commerce, Science and Transportation Committee, which the South Carolina Democrat chairs, advocates of the global trade agreement said the pact will boost U.S. trade and should be passed promptly.

The agreement "is a very good deal for the U.S. I strongly urge the Congress to pass it as quickly as possible," said economist C. Fred Bergsten, director of the Washington-based Institute of International Economics.

Bergsten said the pact, negotiated under the auspices of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, would be a boost for American consumers, and would increase the number of U.S. export-related jobs. He labeled arguments that it would destroy American sovereignty as "phony and incorrect."

But Kevin L. Kearns, president of the U.S. Business and Industrial Council, argued that the GATT implementation legislation, which would make the United States a member of a new World Trade Organization, would ultimately undermine U.S. power.

The WTO's final board of appeal has a one-country-one vote policy, and the United States' interests will often be outvoted, Kearns predicted. "We will be outvoted by the European Union 12 to one," he said.

Bergsten said decisions will rarely be made in such votes. "Rwanda is not going to outvote the United States. It doesn't work that way," he said, adding that here hadn't been votes under GATT since 1959.

Bergsten said the GATT agreement would give other countries the right to regulate against the United States if it did not follow trade regulations, but added, "Very few countries ever have or ever will retaliate against the United States."
