Social Security benefits boost matches inflation

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — America's 45 million recipients of Social Security and Supplemental Security Income will get a 2.8 percent increase in benefits next year to keep up with inflation.

That will mean an average $19 increase in monthly checks. A major organization representing the elderly complained that younger Americans with disabilities and many older persons still will lose ground to rising health care costs.

The Social Security Administration announced Friday that the average benefit for retired persons would rise from $679 to $698, effective Jan. 3. Maximum SSI payments — which go to poor people who are aged, blind or disabled — will climb from $446 to $458 for individuals, and from $669 to $687 for couples Dec. 30.

The annual cost-of-living adjustments, which began in 1975, are designed to keep inflation from eroding the value of benefits.

"This latest increase ensures that Social Security will continue to provide inflation-adjusted economic security to millions of senior citizens who depend on it in their retirement years," said Social Security Commissioner Shirley S. Chater.

But because it reflects the overall increase in the inflation rate, the 1995 increase will be the third smallest in 20 years. For the last four years, prices have been rising at the lowest rates in three decades.

The Labor Department reported Friday that the 0.2 percent increase in its September-Consumer Price Index meant prices were rising at a 2.8 percent annual rate for

Death of hostage threatens peace effort in Mideast

The Associated Press

BIR NABALA, West Bank — Israeli commandos stormed an isolated safe-house where Islamic militants were holding a soldier hostage Friday, but the raid ended in tragedy when the soldier was killed along with three of his kidnappers.

One Israeli commando was killed and eight others wounded in the raid, which occurred about 90 minutes before the 9 p.m. Israeli time deadline kidnappers had set for killing Cpl. Nicholson Waxman, a 19-year-old Israeli-American.

One of the kidnappers was captured along with an accomplice who rented the hideout for the radicals just north of Jerusalem in the village of Bir Nabala, part of the Israeli-occupied West Bank and only two miles from Waxman's home.

The Islamic group Hamas had kidnapped Waxman Sunday, demanding the release of their jailed spiritual leader, Sheikh Ahmed Yassin, and 200 other prisoners.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, who won a share of the Nobel Peace Prize earlier in the day, said Waxman had been killed by his captors.

Rabin said he ordered the operation after he got firm word Friday morning that the hostage was being held in this West Bank village.

Until then, he said Israel was certain the soldier was held in Gaza, a Palestinian self-rule area, and he had put intense pressure on PLO leader Yasser Arafat to win his release.

"I would say that I would be happy to give back the Nobel Peace Prize to bring back to life both of the soldiers who fell," Rabin told reporters at a late night news conference at the Defense Ministry.

The raid came even though Dr. Mahmoud Zahar, a top Hamas political leader, had just agreed to postpone the execution deadline by 24 hours. When he received news of the raid, a grim-faced Zahar stormed out of his Gaza City home, brushing aside reporters.

Gen. Ehud Barak, the chief of staff, said Waxman had been shot in the neck and chest after his hands and legs were tied either during the raid or just before.

The kidnapping snarled the peace process and spoiled the award of the Nobel Peace Prize on Friday to Rabin, Foreign Minister Shimon Peres and Arafat for last year's peace treaty.

Otter killer threatens fossil beds hunting

By William Brock
Times-News writer

HAGERMAN — A frolicsome river otter that was among the earliest animals in the Hagerman Valley was killed by a shotgun blast a few days ago — and Tom Brungard wants to know why.

"I found her floating in the water and, at first, I didn't know what it was until I pulled her out," said Brungard, a pump operator for the Bell Rapids Irrigation Co.

"Then my gut just turned," he said. "I couldn't believe someone could do that."

Last year, an entire family of river otters lived near the pump station, Brungard said, "but the others disappeared, and she was the only one that stuck around."

Someone — possibly a duck hunter at the Hagerman Fossil Beds National Monument — destroyed the otter with a well-aimed shot, said the monument's chief ranger, Don Willhite.

"It was pretty senseless," Willhite said. "They represent an element of freedom, and they play an important role in the river system."

The Hagerman Fossil Beds National Monument is somewhat unique within the National Park Service because hunting is allowed along the river within the monument. The park service may reconsider that policy if more, equally senseless acts occur, Willhite added.

The National Park Service will offer a reward for information about the otter killer, but no dollar figure had been set by Friday, Willhite said. More information is available from Ranger James Ward at 837-7193.

Killing an otter is illegal in Idaho, said Carl Nellis, supervisor of the Idaho Department of Fish and Game's regional office in Jerome. Nellis said he'd like to know who "offed" the otter — so he can issue a Fish and Game citation that could put the perpetrator in jail for up to six months.

U.S.-Iraqi checkmate takes dangerous turn

Knight-Ridder News Service

WASHINGTON — What seemed like a successful checkmate for President Clinton against Iraq's Saddam Hussein a week ago is turning into a more confused and subtly dangerous confrontation.

True to style, the Iraqi dictator is saying one thing, but doing another. And he is playing the United States against its U.N. allies with strategic finesse.

U.S. intelligence sources detected this week that more than 10,000 Iraqi troops have halted their retreat from the Kuwaiti border, despite Saddam's earlier promises to move them more than 100 miles away.

In response, Clinton has been forced to continue the expensive buildup of American forces in the Persian Gulf while continuing a dialogue with allies who have their own reasons to prefer a negotiated settlement with Iraq.

"Let there be no mistake: The United States will not allow Iraq to threaten its neighbors," Clinton said at a White House ceremony Friday.

Defense Secretary William Perry said in Kuwait that the United States is prepared to commit more troops to the Persian Gulf and take "military action" if provoked. About 30,000 U.S. ground troops and 500 U.S. warplanes already are on their way to the Gulf.

But the halt in the Iraqi retreat could give Saddam some leverage: As long as he can keep the White House guessing, U.S. troops will remain on alert at great expense to the Pentagon.

"The pause in the troop removal will create a negotiating climate where the U.S. can't leave quietly or halt the buildup," said Tony Cordesman, a national security scholar at Georgetown University. "Saddam can put pressure on the U.S. in terms of our resources."

And, as the U.S. military fights a war of wits with Iraq, Saddam is attempting a diplomatic end-run around the United States by talking with the Russians first.

Depending on how forcefully Russia decides to lobby on Iraq's behalf, the strategy could cause a damaging rift among Security Council allies.

ICA: Reject both Gem attorney general candidates

Walton

By Frank E. Lockwood
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Citizens Alliance Chairman Kelly Walton is asking voters to reject both candidates for state attorney general on Nov. 8.

Republican Al Lance and Democrat Mike Burkett have both denounced the ICA's anti-gay Proposition 1, saying it is unconstitutional and will cost millions to defend in court.

Earlier this week, both candidates attended a press conference. Lance, the Starchase steps with the Bergquist, chairman of the No On One Coalition. That appearance caught Walton's eye, and "ticked him off," he said.

The conservative political activist was especially unhappy with Lance — a fellow Republican. "If a Republican thinks he's got the conservative vote in his back pocket and he can slap them around any time he wants, he's got another thing coming," he said.

By encouraging the 65,000 Idaho voters on his mailing list to reject the GOP candidate, Walton said his organization can "throw" the election to the Democrats — and "teach somebody a lesson in the process."

Friday, Lance's campaign manager, Eric Cawley, said he's surprised that Walton favors a "friend of Bill and Hillary" over a member of the GOP.

"Mr. Walton is gravely mistaken

Weather summary

A snow advisory was in effect for the east central mountains and southeast highlands of Idaho about 6:00 p.m. Friday night.

A winter-like storm system arrived in northern Idaho Thursday night and reached southeast sections of the state Friday afternoon.

It dropped precipitation of around .25 inch, including several inches of mountain snowfall in the north and central mountain areas. Rain moved into the Magic Valley early in the afternoon accompanied by brisk winds at times but tapered off in the early evening.

Rainfall reports included Muller 42 inch; Moscow 41; Coeur d'Alene 37; Lowell 22; Rexburg 26; Challis 03 and Grangeville 08.

Temperatures plummeted around 10 degrees in some locations with the storm's arrival. The coolest reports were from the central mountain valleys with lower 40s common. Southeastern valleys were in the middle to upper 40s and the rest of the state was mostly in the lower to middle 50s.

The highest temperature in the state Friday was 65 degrees at Jerome. Bovill reported the lowest at 26 degrees.

Elsewhere in the nation Friday, the highest temperature was 91 degrees at Lakeland and Miami, Fla.; Truckee, Calif., reported the lowest temperature at 23 degrees.

Stage set for Aristide's return

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP)

The United States prepared the stage Friday to raise the curtain on Haitian democracy, setting up risers, platforms and a bulletproof shield for returning President Jean-Bertrand Aristide.

Haitians marked the final hours before Aristide's arrival with mourning, vengeance and joy, flocking to an anniversary Mass for a martyr of the democracy movement.

"What time is it? Justice time!" the Rev. Gerard Jean-Juste roared to applause, referring to the U.S.-led movement to turn back the clock on three years of brutal military rule.

In the Aristide stronghold of Cite Soleil, crowds descended on a police station, trashed it, then chased down a policeman and ripped off his clothes. Several policemen fled by jumping onto a boat at the wharf.

"They were criminal police," declared Odilbert Oculet, a resident of the slum district. "They used to arrest people and bring them there at night, put weights on their bodies and throw them into the sea."

In Cite Soleil, as throughout the capital, Haitians worked furiously to sweep away the old, strapping banners and paint murals. One mural brought to the Haitian and U.S. flags and a rooster. The rooster is a symbol of Aristide's grassroots movement, known as Lavalas-Creole-for-tor-rent.

Near an orphanage founded by Aristide in 1986, a paint-spattered 16-year-old sauntered down the street boldly crowing like a rooster. Asked why, Saty Genser exclaimed: "Joy! Because we are coming from misery to life."

Hundreds of Haitians danced in front of the National Palace and army headquarters, trying their former oppressors to do to beat them up and taunting them with reminders that Aristide would be back on Saturday.

Haitian soldiers watched from behind rows of concertina wire, laid out Thursday by U.S. troops to protect them from their own people.

American officials and soldiers in camouflage uniforms checked access to the palace and the airport where Aristide is to arrive.

Hundreds of GIs stood on corners near the palace, rolled through near by streets in Humvees and Bradley Fighting Vehicles or thundered in military helicopters above the white-domed airport.

20,000 American soldiers played a big role in finally forcing the three military clan leaders out — one to the Dominican Republic, and two to Panama. Some built sandbag pillboxes on the palace roof and at the airport to protect the populist Aristide, whose return is violently opposed by some members of his military.

"If they test us," said a military spokesman, Col. Barry Willey, "they will regret it."

Secretary of State Warren Christopher, Jesse Jackson and most members of the black Congressional caucus will accompany Aristide back from Washington. American advance personnel built platforms and podium and set up the security for Aristide.

Russia and France are more willing to set a timetable for lifting the four-year economic embargo against Iraq, while the United States and Britain refuse to make concessions to Saddam: China, the fifth permanent member of the Security Council, is generally opposed to sanctions and would lean toward Russia and France.

Saddam told Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev Thursday that he would recognize the new borders of the Security Council, but he would not agree to the removal of U.N. economic sanctions.

Kozyrev has agreed to press Iraq's case before the Security Council by calling for an end to at least the oil embargo in six months.

But the idea already has been rejected by the White House because it falls short of meeting all the conditions for lifting sanctions that the United Nations set down in 1991 as part of the agreement for ending the Persian Gulf War.

Kuwait also rejected the proposal. Kozyrev, who traveled to Kuwait Friday to deliver the news personally, proclaimed that he had brought "good news" for Kuwaitis.

"Iraq has declared that he recognizes the territorial border and sovereignty of Kuwait in accordance with Security Council resolutions on this subject," Kozyrev said. "I presume that a page in the hard relations may be turned."

While thanking the Russian envoy, the Kuwaiti government said the agreement would only encourage Iraq to violate future U.N. resolutions.

Benefits

The 12 months ended Sept. 30, The Social Security and SSI adjustments are calculated each fall from the CPI increase over the previous four quarters.

The American Association of Retired Persons acknowledged the adjustment permits many beneficiaries to keep up with inflation and remain financially secure.

"Without this small annual adjustment, Americans of all ages who rely on their Social Security income would face economic hardship," contended Horace B. Deets, the association's executive director.

Only the benefits adjustments of 1.3 percent in 1987 and 2.6 percent last year are smaller than the 1995 increase. Benefits had shot up 14.3 percent in 1980 and 11.2 percent in 1981 when inflation was flaring.

The Social Security Administration gave these examples of how the 2.8 percent increase will affect average monthly payments:

- Aged couple, both getting benefits, up $32 to $1,178.
- Widowed mother and two children, up $37 to $1,365.
- Aged widow or widower, living alone, up $18 to $665.
- Disabled worker, spouse and children, up $30 to $1,118.
- All disabled workers, up $18 to $661.

If he believes throwing the election to our opponent will further his cause, it only shows how desperately out of touch he is with conservative Idaho values," Cawley added.

Burkett's campaign manager, Rep. Jim Hansen of Boise, was also critical of Walton's announcement.

"I don't think it is good form to be encouraging people not to participate in democracy. I would be surprised if very many people take his call seriously," he said.

Hansen said the fact that two "candidates who are very different" have united against Proposition One should send voters a message.

Boy wouldn't steal, dropped from window

CHICAGO (AP) — Despite his brother's frantic effort to save him, a 5-year-old boy was dropped to his death from the 14th-floor window of a housing project because he wouldn't steal candy for two older boys, police said.

The suspects, ages 10 and 11, could get up to five years' probation if convicted. Police said they admitted the killing.

"It's truly mind-boggling," said prosecutor Kay Hanton. "Every day you think you've seen as bad as it's ever going to get here and something like this happens."

Police said Eric Morris plunged to his death after a desperate struggle Thursday night at the window of a vacant apartment on the South Side.

Justice Department broadens probe of Cisneros' payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department has found the allegations that Housing Secretary Henry Cisneros misled the FBI about how much he paid a former lover specific and credible enough to warrant additional investigation, Cisneros' lawyer announced Friday.

The decision to open what is known as a preliminary inquiry gives the Justice Department 90 days from now to decide whether to ask for the appointment of special prosecutor to conduct a full investigation.

For the last 30 days, Justice investigators were trying to decide merely whether the allegations were specific enough to warrant an inquiry.

"It doesn't at all surprise us given the limited nature of the language in the statute," Cisneros' lawyer, Cono Namorato, said of the decision. "We remain very confident the investigation will go nowhere."

Investigators have been looking at whether Cisneros understated the amount of the payments during background interviews with FBI agents as part of his nomination to be HUD secretary.

Cisneros, who is in Oakland, Calif., for a community development symposium, relayed a statement through his lawyer.

"While I had hoped that this matter would end during the first stage of the inquiry, given the limited scope of that stage I understand why it has moved into the next phase. I have made mistakes in judgment in my personal life, but I have always adhered to the law."

"I have not allowed this matter to distract me from my duties. My lawyers will deal with this matter while I continue to focus on the housing problems of our nation's communities."

The inquiry centers on taped conversations between Cisneros and his former lover, Linda Medlar, in which they fretted over whether his nomination would be derailed once FBI agents learned of the payments.

The issue now is not whether assistance was provided to Ms. Medlar, the propriety of such assistance or the secretary's disclosures about those matters," Namorato said.

The focus of the investigation appears to be the details of the timing and amounts of the assistance.

Medlar sued Cisneros for fraud and breach of contract in July, alleging he reneged on a verbal agreement to pay her $4,000 a month until her teen-age daughter graduated from college. She sought $250,000 and unspecified punitive damages.

Officials charge rafters in blasting of Arizona rapids

PHOENIX (AP) — White-water rafters confronting Quartzite Falls on the Salt River could swallow their fear and take the plunge, or get out and carry their boats around it.

Eight men, prosecutors say, took a third route. They dynamited it.

The widest rapids on the river has been reduced to a mild-thrill ride.

A federal grand jury Thursday charged a river guide and seven other men with conspiracy and destruction of federal property by means of an explosive.

"We kind of viewed this as an act of eco-terrorism. It's irreparable damage," said Forest Service spokeswoman Joyce Hassel.

Prosecutors won't comment on the motive, but one river runner speculated it may have been frustration over the times that sometimes form at the put-in point, where rafters take their boats out of the water and start hiking. Or worse: "It's like these guys were too lazy or too incompetent to run this rapid or go around it," said Gail Peters, who is Arizona director for the environmental group American Rivers and has rafted the Salt.

"It's an icon on the river that they've destroyed," Peters said. "Personally, I hope they get the book thrown at them."

Conspiracy carries up to five years in prison and a $250,000 fine. Destruction of property is punishable by 20 years and a $250,000 fine.

The rapid spanned the bottom of the Salt River Canyon in the Tonto National Forest about 100 miles northeast of Phoenix. The sheer, red and brown cliffs form an attraction sometimes known as the Little Grand Canyon.

Teen receives 40 years for killing mother

POTTSVILLE, Pa. (AP) — A teen-ager who opened fire with a shotgun after finding his mother in a sexual threesome that included a 15-year-old friend of his was sentenced to up to 40 years in prison.

Vandon Tricamo, 15, shot and killed his mother, Karen Seidel, 41, and his friend, Danny Rotermel, and wounded the third member of the ménage à trois, Marsha Lux, 32.

Tricamo said he opened fire last fall because he "couldn't handle" his feelings. "I felt confused and I just wanted everything to stop," he said Thursday at his sentencing.

Reagan HUD official receives probation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top housing official in the Reagan administration was sentenced to three years' probation Friday for conspiring to conceal $50,000 in kickbacks and lying.

I make no excuses for my behavior. What I did was wrong," Joseph A. Strauss haltingly told U.S. District Judge Harold H. Greene in a voice choked with emotion.

Strauss, who had served as special assistant to former Housing and Urban Development Secretary Samuel R. Pierce Jr. from 1981 to 1983, was one of 16 persons convicted in the HUD scandals of the Reagan administration.

Religion

Homosexuality, Christianity

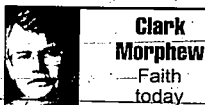

They are not mutually exclusive, preacher White says

God values churches that reach out

The length of time it takes a congregation to find a new pastor is in direct proportion to its ego level.

St. Martha's by the Cornfield, for instance, is a historic congregation in a small town in the Midwest. The faithful pastor of these humble people decided he would retire at age 70. It was a real blow because the good man had been chief theologian and holy man there for almost 30 years.

So the president of the 500-member church called the bishop and asked her to send out some candidates. "We want young people," she told the bishop. "Most folks don't care if it's a man or a woman, as long as the candidate can preach pretty well and can live on our salary."

Clark Morpew
Faith today

So for three consecutive Sundays, a candidate would come to the church, lead the liturgy, preach a sermon and then meet with the entire congregation — after a heavy potluck lunch, of course. All three were under age 30, straight out of the seminary and itching for a nice congregation just like St. Martha's.

On the fourth Sunday, members had a congregational meeting, discussed the three candidates and took a vote. The second candidate won, the meeting was adjourned and the fourth potluck lunch in a month was cheerfully consumed. The job was done, and it only took a few hours of concentration.

Contrast that situation with the search for a new senior minister at the Church for the Holy, Uncutious and Good (CHUG) in an affluent suburb at the edge of a major city in the western United States. For a year, CHUG has been involved in an intense self-examination, looking into every aspect of its ministry. Now the congregation has carefully selected a search committee. Here's the plan:

The search committee will spend a year visiting congregations in the area in hopes of discovering the best preachers. Congregational members can suggest names of clergy they know. The search committee will then travel to watch those pastors preach and return with a tape recording and a full report. When the 10 best preachers are identified, the search committee will do a full investigation on each candidate: how they handle money matters, their criminal records and their reputations as a counselor.

Then each candidate will be brought in for an interview, and each will be asked to submit a 10-page, double-spaced essay on "Why I Want to Serve the Church for the Holy, Uncutious and Good." By the time three years has passed, the search committee should have a candidate to present to the congregation.

Obviously, CHUG has an inflated idea of how important the congregation is in the general scheme of things. To be sure, the church has a good deal of money and a healthy endowment fund that would keep the church going even if there were no people sitting in the pews.

The congregation's church building is beautiful and debt-free. The congregation has a highly competent staff, which runs a host of programs for members of the church.

But there is a dark side to this ego-buzzed congregation. For one thing, the church has not grown in 10 years. There is virtually no evangelism work being done in the community. There are no programs that would bring in the least, the last and the lost. It should come as no surprise that CHUG is known in the community as a church-club church with a cold heart and a closed mind.

The lesson here is simple. There is only one measurement of a congregation that should count for anything. Does the congregation speak the Gospel in word and deed to a hungry and needy world?

When Jesus was asked by the Zebedee boys to tell them who was greatest among his followers, Jesus said it was the person who was a servant first and who did not aspire to a position of power.

The same should go for churches. It would be my opinion that God does not care how much money a congregation has, how many members belong to the country club or whether the worship space is stately and well-kept.

But the Almighty does treasure congregations that reach out to their neighbors, regardless of color, wealth, married status, sexual orientation or political power. And one would assume that God values churches that preach the Gospel to all the world.

That's all that counts in this business of religion. All the rest is chaff and will be carried away by the winds of change as the years pass.

Gay minister Mel White speaks about Proposition 1 at a public gathering Friday at the First United Methodist Church of Twin Falls.

By Frank E. Lockwood
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Mel White is a preacher and a former ghost writer for Jerry Falwell and Pat Robertson. He's also gay.

White says homosexuality and Christianity are not mutually exclusive — a message he's taken nationwide via Larry King Live and 165 radio interviews.

"I've never felt more in the center of God's will," White says, rejecting criticism that his message defies scripture.

Friday, White visited Twin Falls, stopping to campaign against Proposition 1, the anti-gay rights initiative. He was met by 25 local residents who joined him for a brown bag lunch, including one minister who questioned his pro-gay theology.

Philip Nixon, of St. Ignatius of Antioch Orthodox Mission, said White's interpretation of scripture conflicts with the Apostolic Faith that guides his church. He also questioned White's interpretation of church history.

White conceded that his theology could be flawed, but asked Christians to hear his message.

"This is a man who spent his lifetime caring for the biblical truth, caring for the history of the church, and is betting his life (that he's right)," White said.

The gay apostle picked apart scriptural injunctions against homosexuality — from Leviticus to the writings of the Apostle Paul. He also denied that Sodom was destroyed due to homosexuality.

Sodom was destroyed, he said, because its residents were inhospitable — locking strangers out, leaving foreigners to die in an inhospitable desert.

White blasted the Idaho Citizens Alliance — and members of the Religious-Right who take a stand against homosexuality.

"They are the real Sodomites. They're leaving gay and lesbian people outside the gates. Proposition 1 is about putting them outside the gates."

Nixon wasn't convinced. He said gay Christians are "making God in their own image" and seek to "redeem sin" to remove the stigma of homosexuality.

But he listened politely as White spoke. "I don't have a problem with loving people who are homosexual. It's an affliction of the human soul under sin and death," Nixon said afterwards.

At a press conference, White said he had struggled with his homosexuality since age 12 or 13, when he wanted to hold hands with Boy Scouts instead of girls.

But, believing homosexuality to be wrong, he sought refuge in a heterosexual marriage.

"They told me quite incorrectly that all a gay man needs is to marry a good woman," White said. "That was one of the healing reparative theories."

After 25 years of marriage, counseling, shock treatments and even a suicide attempt, White was unable to shake his sexual orientation.

White said he finally accepted his sexual orientation and embraced life. He came out of the closet, and became pastor of the Cathedral of Hope in Dallas, Texas — a pro-gay church with 14,000 members.

His family, including his ex-wife, supported the move.

"We're a family that was living under a terrible misinformation and we have escaped it with grace and with love and with, I think, a model of efficiency," she said.

White White's family has embraced his lifestyle, Pat Robertson and Jerry Falwell have been less enthusiastic. Falwell no longer speaks to him — and refuses to appear on television with him.

Now, White campaigns against his longtime evangelical companions, skewering them at every opportunity.

He also blasts men like Kelly Walton, who chairs the Idaho Citizens Alliance.

"They go in and they waste the land. They go in and ruin families, break up churches, they wreck houses," he said. "I know these guys — they don't care if they win or lose — they only want to use these measures to create political clout."

White also criticizes fence-sitting churches, that refuse to tackle the issue head-on.

"The gay churches are booming at the same time the anti-gay churches are booming. It's these poor folks in the middle who are trying to do right by everybody, who are going down the tubes," he said.

He also warned that the Religious Right will use ICA's impale in Idaho to seize additional political power.

Robertson, he said, has already built a 1.3-million-member conservative organization.

"They want theocracy — and until God comes, they know what's best for the rest of us."

Filer church goes international on craft day

By Denise Turner
Times-News writer

Craft sale

The International Crafts Sale will begin next week at the Filer Mennonite Church, 109 Fifth St. Hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday and Friday and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Oct. 22. For more information, call 326-5150.

"Our international sale does two things," said this year's local organizer Lois Husley. "It brings beautiful international gifts to the Magic Valley, and it helps create jobs in the countries where these crafts are made."

The philosophy behind the idea: "Hands that are working don't have to hold begging bowls."

The Filer church has been hosting a SELFHELP crafts sale for the past 12 years.

Among the many items being featured in this year's sale are handcrafted pottery from Peru, weavings from Ecuador, carved wood from India and jewelry from Indonesia, as well as linens, brass and baskets. Cottage industry craftspeople represented range from quilters to woodworkers to candlemakers to weavers.

The crafts are purchased from cooperatives, widows' groups, fledgling businesses and refugee camps in some of the world's most impoverished countries.

All craft sale workers are volunteers and are not raising funds for their own churches. The churches sponsoring such sales must pay their own expenses.

A variety of handmade items from other countries will be displayed at the Filer Mennonite Church crafts sale.

Evangelical Lutheran head touts multiculturalism

The Associated Press

LEWISTON, Idaho — The United States is no longer a predominantly Christian nation nor a Caucasian one, says the head of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America.

But the 5.2 million-member church is 98 percent Caucasian with a diminishing membership that has been content to let its pastors do its evangelistic work. Bishop Herbert W. Childstrom said Tuesday in addressing the Eastern Washington-Idaho Synod biennial Bishops Convocation in Lewiston.

Childstrom is nearing the end of his second four-year term as president.

The church has its strengths, and it has its challenges, he said. Human sexuality, from premarital sex to homosexuality, is at the forefront.

Everyone favors strengthening the family.

Encouraging young people to live by moral standards and speaking out against sexual abuses. But opinions differ when it comes to people who plan to marry but bring a sexual relationship beforehand.

"We find that almost 100 percent of those who come to be married already have a sexual relationship,"

Childstrom said. "That's difficult for pastors to handle."

They counsel against it as harmful to a stable future relationship, but the church is more interested in a person's future than their past, he said.

"So we keep sounding the warning but on the other hand, we don't drive them out."

The issues of homosexuality or adultery are not likely to be settled for a long time, he said. Scripture may forbid it, but it also metes out punishment such as death.

Before he leaves office, Childstrom wants to visit as many of the 65 synods as he can, reminding people the church must be more aggressive in becoming multicultural.

"Most people in America don't realize we're not a Christian nation," he said. "We have the trappings, but Christians are a minority. The influence of the church has been great, but our culture is becoming increasingly secular. That makes the work of the church increasingly difficult."

The Evangelical Lutheran Church in America is a separate denomination from the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod. Both denominations are represented in the Magic Valley.

'Most people in America don't realize we're not a Christian nation ... Christians are a minority.'

— Herbert W. Childstrom, head of Evangelical Lutheran Church

Mail call in Moscow brings news, pictures from Magic Valley

By H.R. Weixel
Times-News correspondent

MOSCOW—A bag of KLM mail arrived at the Moscow airport as hundreds of Americans waited for couriers to deplane and claim baggage that contained mail from home. Although there was a hushed silence among the crowd, the anticipation could be seen in the faces of those who needed to hear from relatives and friends in the United States.

Then there was the long bus ride across the giant city of Moscow. After traveling 40 minutes, we arrived at our hotel that housed the Co-Mission teams who have been teaching morals and ethics in Russian schools. The mail bags were unloaded and cities where teams are located called out.

Chelyabinsk, our city, was among the last to be announced.

The courier who brought our mail bags from America said, "You have more mail than anybody else."

I had to buy an extra bag."

He began calling out names of our team and the letters flew into anxious hands. What a joy as he called "Weixel" 227 times!

There were letters in those bags from all across the Magic Valley, as Times-News readers quickly responded to our request for pictures of Jesus. We estimate we received about 10,000 stickers showing the life of Jesus. This is the number we estimated we needed after the crowds of children in Chelyabinsk pleaded, "America show us Jesus. We want to see Jesus."

As we return from Moscow, we must set up a distribution system for the little stickers so that every child receives one. This may seem unnecessary from the American view. Here in Chelyabinsk, it is of utmost importance.

We have a concern that, as the children hear the report that the Jesus stickers are here, we could experience another near-not as the crowds of

In the mail

H.R. Weixel reports that letters with pictures of Jesus and maps of the United States were received from California and Indiana; in addition to Idaho.

In some of the envelopes were 127 packages of Kool-Aid—just the amount the Weixels needed to change the color of their water from a dull grey-brown to bright colors like red, orange and even blue.

"Because we can't buy envelopes over here, we will re-use the ones received from the United States," boys and girls struggle to get their picture of "the God of America," the God they once believed did not exist in Russia.

We will put a little 12-year-old boy in charge of the distribution project. His name is Denise (pronounced Weixel wrote, "The stamps will be given to the young people attending the English Bible Club that meets every Saturday. We carefully pulled off Scotch tape and strapping tape that was on some envelopes and will put that to good use. We thank God that now we have everything we need."

Those wishing to correspond with the Weixels or send letters to them may contact the Missionary Board of the Church of God, P.O. Box 2498, Anderson, Ind. 46018-2498.

Denise), This name is used for both boys and girls. Denise was the first student at our school to greet us as we walked the three miles into Siberia where School #94 is located.

He said he wanted us to show him Jesus, and all we had to fulfill his request was a small sticker with a picture of Jesus holding a lamb. He took the sticker that day and sent us to the school to announce, "Jesus is coming!"

Denise is an orphan being raised by his aged grandmother. His mother died two years ago during a seizure. His father is gone.

Denise is a son of a rebel in school, always getting into some kind of trouble. He has been teachers chase him out of classrooms (he runs faster than they do, so they soon give up the chase).

Denise is small for his age, and the older boys often tease him.

The little lad has been a good friend to us, always greeting us with the one English word he knows, "Hello."

He follows us wherever we go, often holding Pastor Weixel's hand as if to let everybody know they are best friends. He often tells the others he is in charge of the Americans.

He is interested in baseball and told us, if he could learn to play baseball, he would be the best player in the school. When we get back to America, we plan to find a way to send Denise a real ball, bat and catcher's mitt so he won't have to use across branch and tennis ball and barchand every catch he makes.

When we ask the boy if he wants to know more about Jesus, he gets a troubled look on his face and says, through our interpreter, "I've been thinking about it, but I have to see who he is."

We know, as little Denise hands out the thousands of pictures of Jesus, it will be somewhat like Jesus feeding the thousands of people with a few fish and loaves of bread. Denise will be giving what the people of the Magic Valley have freely given to meet the needs of the people in Russia.

H.R. Weixel of Jerome, along with her husband, the Rev. Elroy Weixel, is serving on a mission team in Russia. She will be sharing her experiences in a column each Saturday.

Haiti churches await Aristide's return

By Charles J. Hanley
The Associated Press

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti—Whether in rage or Ralph Laurens, Haitians heard the same Gospel last Sunday in their crowded slum chapels and comfortable hillside churches.

"Give away all that you have to the poor," Jesus tells the rich young man, "and come follow me."

Same passage, but different messages. In the slums, a message of hope. In the upland enclaves, one of fear.

The rise and fall and resurrection of President Jean-Bertrand Aristide, the poor man's priest and deposed president, has been the most dramatic chapter in the 30-year story of "liberation theology," the struggle by Roman Catholic clergy and lay activists to reshape Third World societies.

Aristide's triumphant return to power today will turn a new page in that story—either to peace within the deeply split Haitian church, or to deeper division and rancor.

"There are two churches in Haiti really: the church of the rich and the church of the poor. That's what Aristide must reconcile," said Canadian priest Rene Giroux, a slum pastor.

Haiti is as Catholic as it is poor. It is a place where church bells wake the roosters on Sundays; where bright slum murals show technician Christs breaking the chains that enslave the people.

In such a country, the Aristide story becomes almost a parable—of a fiery young priest who presses the people's case against repression; of a brave pastor who survives assassination attempts; including one that kills a dozen parishioners; of a defiant cleric expelled from the Salesian order for preaching "class struggle"; of an unlikely candidate swept to the presidency in an election landslide; and of a hapless president chased into exile by a military coup.

Aristide comes home under the protective wing of the U.S. government, which forced Haiti's military leaders to surrender power. But the people who adore Aristide feel their savior is not the U.S. Army's "Pe Ti Lè" or "Little Father Aristide."

The "Ti Legliz"—Little Church—is the Haitian model of liberation theology. It developed around hundreds of young activist priests, brothers and nuns and more than 1,000 groups of faithful who met to discuss applying the Bible to everyday life.

The message was justice: social and economic reform in a land where the tiny elite flew in Miami, New York and Paris to shop, while the masses lived in the most desperate poverty in the Western Hemisphere.

After decades of dictatorship and bloody repression of democrats, the Little Church offered the only strong voice of dissent inside Haiti.

Some of the Vatican's favored hierarchy of 11 bishops favored reform. Some conservatives opposed it. But almost all seemed to recoil from Aristide's open bid for power, which violated the Vatican policy against priests in politics.

When Aristide was elected in December 1990, the political schism widened. He was vilified as a "Bolshevik" in a sermon by Archbishop Francois Ligonie of Port-au-Prince, whom Aristide denounced as "zealous servant" of the old Duvalier family dictatorship. A pro-Aristide mob burned down a historic church and threatened Ligonie.

After the Haitian military overthrew Aristide in September 1991, the bishops peaked the Vatican's ire by recognizing the new regime as the only nation to do so.

The cold war within the church became solidly entrenched, and some experienced observers believe it is not about to thaw.

Missionaries

Several young men have been called to serve or returned from serving missions for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Elder Jeffrey Paul Gourley, son of Kent and Susan Gourley of Jerome, will serve for two years in the Arizona Tucson Mission. He will speak in sacrament meeting at noon Sunday at the Jerome 6th Ward chapel, 26 N. 100 E., and will enter the Mission Training Center in Levan, Utah.

Wednesday-Arizona house is planned for 6 to 9 p.m. Sunday at the Gourley's residence, 526 E. 16th.

Gourley is an Eagle Scout and a 1993 graduate of High School, where he was active in football and track. He attended the College of Southern Idaho for one year, where he was a member of the track team.

Elder Gregory Lynn Thompson, son of Mary Ann Sweet and Kenneth Thompson, both of Twin Falls, will serve for two years in the Spain Malaga Mission. He will speak in sacrament meeting at 10:45 a.m. Sunday at the Twin Falls 6th Ward chapel, 667 Harrison St., and will enter the MTC Oct. 26.

Thompson is an Eagle Scout and a 1993 graduate of Twin Falls High School, where he was a co-valedictorian. He graduated from the College of Southern Idaho in 1994 with top honors and is active in soccer, city softball and church basketball and softball.

Elder James Dodds, son of Terry and Cathy Dodds of Twin Falls, will serve for two years in the England Bristol Mission. He will speak in sacrament meeting at 11 a.m. Sunday at the Twin Falls 15th Ward chapel, 3857 N. 3500 E. (Kimberly Stike Center), and will enter the MTC Wednesday.

An open house is planned for 8 to 10 p.m. today at the Dodds' home, 3114 Woodridge Drive.

Dodds is an Eagle Scout and a 1994 graduate of Twin Falls High School, where he was active in soccer and track.

Elder Brian N. Anderson, son of Wayne and Joy Anderson of Twin Falls, will serve for two years in the California Roseville Mission. He will speak in sacrament meeting at 12:45 p.m. Sunday at the Twin Falls 8th Ward chapel, 667 Harrison St., and will enter the MTC Wednesday.

Anderson graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1993, where he was active in band and pep band. He was a member of the band at Amalgamated Sugar Co. and the Sizzler. His grandparents are Grant and Katherine Felman of Twin Falls and Luneta Hansen of Rupert.

Elder Brian Rasmussen, son of Lynn and Mary Ellen Rasmussen of Twin Falls, recently returned from serving two years in the North Carolina Charlotte Mission. He will report on his mission at 11 a.m. Sunday at the Twin Falls 1st Ward chapel on Elizabeth Boulevard.

Rasmussen graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1991 and attended Dixie College in St. George, Utah, for one year before his mission.

Elder Todd McQueen, son of Brent and Jennie McQueen of Twin Falls, recently returned from Portugal Porto Mission. He will report on his mission at 12:30 p.m. Sunday at the Twin Falls 7th Ward chapel, 847 Eastland Drive N. McQueen graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1991, where he participated in band and track. He attended Ricks College in Rexburg for one year before his mission and plans to continue his education there with winter enrollment.

Biregional Women's Conference set for Oct. 22

RUPERT—A Burley-Rupert Biregional Women's Conference will be held from 10 a.m. to noon Oct. 22 at the Rupert LDS West Stake Center, 36 S. 100 W.

Elaine L. Jack, general Relief Society president, and Anne Clark Pingree of the general Relief Society board will speak.

The conference theme, "Lift Up Thy Heart and Rejoice," is taken from the Doctrine and Covenants 25:13. All women ages 18 and up are invited, and the conference is open to both members and non-members.

Leadership sessions for ward and stake Relief Society presidencies and priesthood leaders will be held Friday evening and again Oct. 22 before the conference begins.

CROP walkers will walk for hunger

TWIN FALLS—CROP walkers for world hunger will meet at 10 a.m. today at the National Guard Armory on the College of Southern Idaho campus. Those who wish to walk the 6.1-mile track down a sealed-off route through town may sign up right before the walk.

The event, sponsored by an international relief organization called Church-World Service, is celebrating its third year in Twin Falls.

Lifeline Ministries will counsel youth

JEROME—Lifeline Ministries, a team of 12 young adults, are at the First Church of God, 131 E. Ave. F, through Sunday to counsel youth on drugs, alcohol, self-esteem, peer pressure and other concerns.

Admission is free, and no appointments are necessary. For more information, call Pastor Bob Lucas at 324-4523.

The Rigginses to perform gospel music

TWIN FALLS—A special program of old-fashioned gospel music will be presented by evangelist Jim Riggins and his wife, Barb, at 10:30 a.m. Sunday at the Cornerstone Baptist Church, 315 Shoup Ave. W.

Nursery care will be provided. The public is invited to the free service.

Unitarians will discuss Proposition 1

TWIN FALLS—Jen Ray, outreach director for the No On One Coalition, will be the guest at 10:30 a.m. Sunday as the Unitarian Universalist Fellowship begins a monthly series of discussion forums.

Ray will outline ways Magic Valley citizens can become involved in the campaign against Proposition 1, which is on the Nov. 8 ballot.

Discussion sessions on topics of current interest will be held the third Sunday of each month at a member's home. All interested people are invited. For meeting location or more information, call 734-6551.

Low inflation dampens Social Security pay raise

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON—The country is enjoying solid economic growth and modest price increases, fresh reports indicate, but the low inflation has a downside: 45 million recipients of Social Security will see their checks go up just 2.8 percent next year.

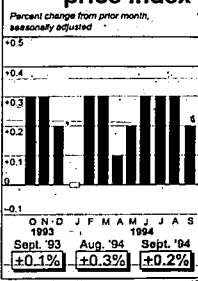

The automatic increase for Social Security and Supplemental Security Income will be the third smallest on record — just above the 2.6 percent boost benefit recipients got this year.

Next year's increase, which will show up on Social Security checks on Jan. 3, will translate into an average monthly gain of just $19. Since 1975, the government has adjusted annual benefits based on the September-to-September change in the Consumer Price Index, the most widely followed inflation measure.

In three reports Friday, the government said consumer prices rose just 0.2 percent in September, retail sales climbed by a similar amount but

Credit card

Knight-Ridder News Service

People are using credit cards at a record clip this year, racking up debt faster than in any other year since the late 1980s.

And while consumer spending is a powerful engine that drives economic recovery, this year's torrid pace might be just the thing to convince the Federal Reserve next month to raise interest rates for a sixth time this year.

So far, consumers are racking up credit card debt about 20 percent faster than in 1993.

The average credit card balance — money carried over monthly on which interest is calculated — also is up to $1,505, a 3.3 percent higher than a year ago.

Vatican limits communion for remarried

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican reaffirmed Friday that Roman Catholics who divorce and remarry may not receive communion unless they get an annulment or abstain from sex with their new partner.

A letter to the world's bishops, issued Friday and approved by Pope John Paul II, seeks to stamp out the growing practice, particularly in the United States, of allowing some remarried Catholics to receive communion if they believe the breakup of the first marriage was not their fault.

The sharp stance by the Vatican could be another blow to the Church's standing in the West, where divorce rates are high and church membership is declining.

But the president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops of the United States said the letter was a clarification of church teachings and not intended to alienate divorced Catholics.

The letter gave two specific cases in which a remarried Catholic can receive communion: a church annulment of the first marriage or if the remarried person repents for having broken marriage vows and abstains from sex with the new partner.

"If the divorced are remarried civilly, they find themselves in a situation that objectively contravenes God's law. Consequently, they cannot receive Holy Communion as long as this situation exists," wrote Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger in the nine-page letter. Ratzinger heads the powerful Congregation of the Doctrine of the Faith, watchdog of church orthodoxy.

The letter said the ban on communion also extends to divorced Catholics who live with their new partners outside of marriage.

"Pastors ... have the serious duty to admonish them that such a judgment of conscience openly contradicts the Church's teaching," wrote Ratzinger.

China opens 3rd pit of terracotta warriors

BEIJING (AP) — The last of three pits of terracotta warriors and horses near China's ancient capital of Xian was opened to the public Friday.

Emperor Qin Shihuang, founder of the Qin dynasty (221-207 B.C.), the official Xinhua News Agency reported.

The cave is believed to contain more than 1,400 pottery figures and chariots, including more than 100 warriors on horseback. Excavation began in March.

Middle East peace earns Nobel Prize

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli leaders Yitzhak Rabin and Shimon Peres shared the Nobel Peace Prize with PLO leader Yasser Arafat Friday, as the fragile process they forged over the past year threatened to unravel.

The co-winners had little time to savor the award. They spent the day struggling to defuse a worsening crisis over the kidnapping of an Israeli soldier by Islamic radicals who said they would execute him.

In the short term, the prize could provide extremists on both sides with a focus for opposition to the peace process.

Rabin and Peres faced protests from right-wing Israelis who said Arafat was a terrorist and claimed it was "shameful" to share a peace prize with a man who spilled so much blood.

Arafat's Islamic opponents accused him of betraying the Palestinian cause by striking the deal that established autonomy in Gaza and Jericho five months ago.

There was also controversy in Oslo, Norway, where Nobel Peace Prize Committee member Kari Kristiansen resigned, saying Arafat was unworthy of the prize because of his violent past.

"The prize is not for me," Arafat said in the Egyptian resort city of Alexandria. "It is for my people who suffered a lot, people who have been able to achieve the peace of the brave."

On Sunday, Muslim extremists killed two bystanders in central only to the West Bank.

Rabin declared Arafat responsible for the safety of Cpl. Nachshon Waxman, a 19-year-old Israeli-American dual citizen. Waxman's abductors had said they would kill him if Israel did not release their founder and 200 other prisoners by Friday night, but they extended the deadline by 24 hours following negotiations with the Israeli government.

Rabin remained clustered Friday in the Defense Ministry in Tel Aviv. Government spokesman Uri Dromi said his mind was not on the peace prize, adding: "This is no time for champagne."

Mourning's end can show who controls North Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — North Korea ends a 100-day mourning period for late President Kim Il Sung on Saturday with a ceremony that could reveal whether his son has seized the reins of power.

If Kim Jong Il fails to appear at the ceremony or assume power soon after, it will be a clear sign of a crisis in the communist state, Seoul officials say.

Most analysts believe Kim is in firm control of the country and his power is unchallenged.

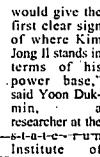

But his failure to appear in public since the July 30 funeral of his father has aroused speculation he may have health problems or face resistance to his assumption of power.

Kim, who was groomed as his father's successor for 20 years, has yet to become president and ruling party secretary general — the two pillars of power in Stalinist North Korea.

Kim, 52, stayed away from two major national events in the past week: a ceremony Sunday, marking the founding of the country's communist party and the inauguration Tuesday of the renovated tomb of Tangun, the mythical founder of Korea.

North Korean media claim that the 22 million population is firmly united around the son of their late leader.

'Roos' block traffic

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — One in three traffic accidents in the Australian capital is caused by kangaroos, police estimate.

Wildlife rangers say hundreds of the marsupials have been killed by cars, and other collisions occur when cars swerve to avoid them.

But local government officials have resisted calls for shooters to cull the kangaroo population.

Officials plan forum on feedlots, dairies

CASTLEFORD — Residents interested in the future of dairies and feedlots in Twin Falls County will be invited to a special forum to be held sometime in the next 45 days.

Late Thursday evening, the county planning and zoning commission agreed to have the Boise planning firm, Science Applications International Corp., moderate a forum on the county's livestock confinement ordinance.

SAIC is also working on a new comprehensive land-use plan for the county.

A group of Buhl and Castleford residents petitioned the planning commission Thursday for a public hearing on the county's dairy and feedlot law.

Dairies are an allowed use in any county agricultural zone. Dairy farmers fill out a permit application with the county and are required to have soil studies, waste management systems and water permits approved by various state agencies.

No public hearings are required if the dairy meets the requirements set by those local and state agencies. Rural residents also sign a document that waives their rights to nuisance claims against agricultural operations — including dairies.

Jury finds Buhl man guilty of DUI during accident

TWIN FALLS — A Buhl resident who drove a car into the side of a semitruck on a Twin Falls street, critically injuring three people, was drunk at the time, a Twin Falls jury decided late Thursday.

Brian Keith Rosenkrantz was convicted on two counts of aggravated drunken driving after a three-day trial. Rosenkrantz insisted his driving was not impaired by alcohol at the time of the collision, but the jury didn't believe him.

Jurors decided Rosenkrantz' blood alcohol content was above the legal limit after reviewing results of a blood test conducted at the hospital after the accident. The June 4, 1993, accident critically injured Rosenkrantz and two others: Pamela Wagman of Twin Falls and Joshua Peterson of Buhl.

Police had said Rosenkrantz was driving faster than 80 miles per hour — trying to elude them on Filer Avenue — when he crashed into the side of a truck.

Musician schedules piano workshop, class today at CSI

TWIN FALLS — James Cook will present a piano workshop and master class from 3 to 5 p.m. today in Room 133 of the Fine Arts Center at the College of Southern Idaho.

The workshop and class will emphasize the baroque and classic performance practices. Teachers who want their students to participate can call Margaret Vincent or Sue Miller at 733-9554, Ext. 2335, during the day or 734-5491 in the evening. Fees for the workshop are $10 for teachers and $5 for students. Students enrolled at CSI will be admitted free.

Cook and his wife Ruth will perform an organ and piano concert at 3 p.m. Sunday in the Fine Arts Auditorium. Admission will be a donation at the door, which goes to CSI music scholarships.

BLM closes rest area on way to Jackpot for winter season

Condie may plea-bargain DUI charge

Councilman's attorney says deal in works for client impaired by prescription drug

By Sean L. McCarthy
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — City Councilman Tom Condie won't go to trial on a charge of driving under the influence of drugs, his attorney said Friday.

Mark Stubbs, a Republican state representative and Twin Falls attorney, said he is working on a plea-bargain agreement for his client, Condie.

"It's not going to go to trial," Stubbs said Friday.

Condie, said Friday he had taken the prescription drug Fiorinal during the evening of March 19, 1994, hours before he was pulled over by Twin Falls city police officers.

Condie, who was elected to the council in 1987 and was the city's mayor from 1989-1991, says he has been taking Fiorinal on a regular basis since receiving serious head injuries in a car accident in March 1993. Fiorinal is "used to relieve" tension headaches. Its active ingredients include the depressant barbital (a barbiturate), aspirin and caffeine. Fiorinal preparations sometimes include codeine.

Physicians are instructed to warn patients not to drive while taking Fiorinal.

But Condie said Friday he was unaware that the drug could impair his driving. "The bottle I have does not say, 'Do not drive,'" he said.

At 2:55 a.m. on March 20, 1994, Twin Falls Police Officers Mike Hottman and Dan McAfee pulled Condie over as a suspected drunken driver. Hottman said in a court affidavit that Condie had traveled him on Washington Street North, traveling at 58 mph in a 35 mph zone with its bright headlights on.

Although the officers said they could smell no odor of alcohol on Condie's breath, they subjected him to a breath test and several field sobriety tests. Condie said "his speech was slurred and mumbling," and his "hand movements were clumsy and slow," Hottman said in his court affidavit.

Condie, 49, is Mormon and says he doesn't drink. The breath test verified that he had no alcohol in his system at the time of his arrest. But he failed all of his field tests, so the officers arrested him and took him to the county jail.

Tests of Condie's urine revealed traces of codeine and barbital — key ingredients in Fiorinal — in his system, Hottman said in his court affidavit.

"Whatever was in the urinalysis was identical to the medication bottle," Stubbs said. Stubbs said that Condie's regular dosage of Fiorinal had a much greater impact March 19 because:

• Condie, a certified public accountant, had stayed up late into the night to handle the increased workload late in the tax season, which ends April 15.

County OKs golf courses

By Sean L. McCarthy
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Though developers of a nearby private golf course objected, the county planning and zoning commission unanimously approved a preliminary permit for an 18-hole public course near Murtaugh Lake.

Robert Widmer received approval Thursday night for an 18-hole public golf course at 154 N. 4750 E. in Murtaugh on 128 acres near the southeast shores of Murtaugh Lake.

The commission also has OK'd plans for a new golf course south of Kimberly.

Its developer, Carl Feldhusen, wrote in a letter to the commission that approval of Widmer's course might lead to the failure of both ventures. Widmer disagreed.

Evoking the motto, "If you build it, they will come," Widmer said there's enough of a demand for golf in the eastern sections of the Hospital trims budget with staff reductions

By Julie M. McKinnon
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — In order to reduce Magic Valley Regional Medical Center's salary budget by $1 million, the equivalent of 36 full-time positions have been cut, with 18 employees declining to take early retirement, the medical center announced Friday.

Fewer than 12 people were actually laid off in the past four months, including three or four who have been notified of lay-offs, but are still employed at the hospital, said Administrator John Bingham. Bingham said almost half of the employees eligible for early retirement accepted the option from departments throughout the medical center, making it easier for administrators to cut $1 million in salaries.

"That's really been helpful to have more flexibility," said Bingham, adding that the other 20 eligible employees have until Oct. 31 to accept their whole retirement benefits early. "It's not like we came in and laid off 18 people and 18 took early retirement."

Some of the $1 million cut in salaries also came from people deciding to leave, employees combining jobs, full-timers going part-time, and mid-level managers becoming staff members, Bingham said.

Bingham said administrators will con-time looking for ways to save money and be cost efficient — including possibly laying off more employees and further changing staffing — in the next six months. In a newsletter given to employees Friday about the personnel reorganization, Bingham apologized for not announcing the changes Oct. 1 as originally planned.

"I wish I could say for sure that we have made all the changes we need to make and that no one else will be affected by decisions involving the reorganization of personnel," Bingham wrote. "Those that may be affected over the next six months ... will be notified as soon as possible, and we will try to make that transition as smoothly as possible and with as much support as we can give."

Blaine County debate focuses on Idaho growth

By Barbara Newert
Times-News correspondent

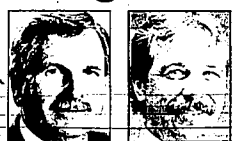

KETCHUM — The fast-paced growth in the Wood River Valley brings with it concerns over how state government legislates.

At the invitation of the Building Contractors of the Wood River Valley, candidates for state the Legislature met Wednesday evening to answer questions and air their viewpoints.

On hand were state senate candidates Republican Jon Mellen (Fairfield) and Clint Stennett, D-Ketchum; candidates for House seat 21A Democrat Wendy Aquilino of Ketchum and Republican John Koning of Wendell; and candidates for House seat 21B Republican Tim Ridinger of Shoshone and with Patrice Nafziger, D-Ketchum, unable to attend.

While all candidates say they, however Idaho's best interests at heart, consensus doesn't extend to how to achieve that goal.

Of interest to the building industry is the question of whether building contractors should be required to obtain a state-issued license. Supporters argue licensing would assure buyers that the contractor carries adequate workers compensation coverage, liability insurance and is bondable.

Mellen's position is "let the buyer beware" of who he is dealing with and what he is getting.

"I won't pass more bills," he said. Challenger Stennett said the biggest need for licensing is to guarantee contractors' carry workers compensation for their employees. It's the moonlighter who fails to do so who ends up injured and indigent, letting the people

Beautification plan for Twin Falls kicks off today

By Steve Crump
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A group of Twin Falls-area residents thinks our front porch is a fright. This morning, they'll begin the process of sprucing it up.

Members of the Twin Falls-Area Chamber of Commerce and various elected officials and volunteers will be on hand at 10 a.m. for the raising of a sign at the north end of the Perrine Bridge to formally kick off the Gateway Beautification Project.

When the work is finished on the first leg of the project sometime in 1997, there will be hundreds of trees and shrubs in the median and along the side of a 2.5-mile stretch of U.S. Highway 93 between the Perrine Bridge and Interstate 84.

"Every city wants to make an unforgettable first impression," Cathy Walworth, a member of the chamber's beautification committee, wrote in a brochure describing the project. "The entrances to Twin Falls could use some green."

The Perrine-to-I-84 leg is the first phase of three in the Gateway Beautification Project, which also envisions trees and shrubs along an 8.5-mile stretch of Kimberly Road east of Twin Falls, and a 9-mile section of U.S. Highway 30 from Rock Creek Canyon west to the Highway 93 intersection.

Nobody's quite sure what the total cost of the project will be, but the first phase will take about $325,000, Walworth said, including landscaping and installation of a drip-irrigation system. Most of the start-up money will come from a $260,000 federal and state highway beautification grant to the city of Twin Falls; the rest must be raised locally.

"We'll need about $65,000 in local money for the first leg and between $200,000 and $300,000 for the whole project," said Walworth, who is a correspondent and a gardening columnist for The Times-News. "We're going to try to raise it all at once so we don't have to nickel-and-dime people later."

If all goes as planned, the trees and shrubs along U.S. 93 will be planted in 1997.

The Jerome County commissioners aren't happy about the idea, although the trees will be on federal and state land.

"We opposed the application two years ago because we thought it was a waste of federal money to plant trees out there," Commissioner Veronica Lierman said. "And we were concerned about using water for trees that made be needed for agriculture."

Work on the second and third phases of the Gateway Beautification Project will begin in 1997, Walworth said.

"Only hardy trees, shrubs, wildflowers, grasses and ground covers will be used," she said. "A panel of local horticulturists will choose these varieties carefully so as to blend in with the natural flora. Plants will be grouped into natural-looking arrangements."

Once the roadside flora is in place, the city of Twin Falls will handle the maintenance, at a cost of $4,000 to $8,000 a year. Water will come from several sources, piped along Highway 93.

The fund-raising campaign officially starts today.

"We're asking individuals, organizations, professionals and business people to pledge funds for 'The Gateway Project,'" Walworth said.

Each sponsor will get his name on a plaque at the Buzz Langdon Visitors' Center on the south end of the bridge.

After the locals raise the initial $65,000, contracts will be put out for bid according to federal and state guidelines. The state will handle the bidding process.

Walworth said Twin Falls can apply for more federal money to help finish the project.

Whether some duties currently performed by registered nurses could be done by lower-paid licensed practical nurses or nurses aides. The medical center's administration said it could work in different departments will be strengthened and the practice of having nurses work only in one department may be eliminated, he said.

"The hospital is focusing on how to lower the cost of health care," said Bingham, adding that the new transitional care unit, where patients can be cared for at a reduced cost, has been successful. "That's the kind of cost savings that's going to come in the future."

The amount of money paid in shift differentials also will be modified and overtime pay and weekend differentials will be re-examined, he said in the newsletter. More services may be consolidated or contracted out, Bingham added.

The medical center had to cut back because of a decrease in the number of inpatients, but Bingham said that number has stabilized at about 50 a day in the 147-bed medical center.

"I think we may see a slight increase," Bingham added.

Candidates for Camas County clerk leave issues out of race

By Mick Normington
Times-News writer

FAIRFIELD — Both F.R. "Reddie" Bennett and his opponent, Margie McLeod, said they have no campaign issues in their race for Camas County clerk.

The only issue is they both want the job.

A look at F.R. Bennett

Republican
Age: 50
Education: attended Idaho State University
Occupation: County clerk for past 12 years

A look at Margie McLeod

Democrat
Age: 29
Education: attended Boise State University
Occupation: admission supervisor

Bennett has been county clerk for almost 12 years.

"Enjoy this job, and it's challenging at least times," he said.

Bennett, 50, attended Idaho State University to study math. That led to a job as a nuclear health physicist at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory near Arco, where he worked for 10 years. He later worked for Lawrence Radiation for five years.

He returned to his roots—his grandfather homesteaded on the western edge of Camas County, to take care of his ill father and has remained.

Democratic challenger McLeod attended Boise State University and is admission supervisor and intern business manager at Wood River Medical Center in Hailey and Sun Valley. She also worked as a finance counselor.

The 29-year-old McLeod has lived in Camas County almost three years.

Firing gun earns woman fine, jail time

RUPERT — A Rupert woman was sentenced to two days in jail and fined $150 after she pleaded guilty Thursday to a misdemeanor charge of discharging a firearm. Sharon Simpson, 42, was originally charged with felony aggravated assault for pointing a BB gun at a group of children who were waiting for a school bus on the morning of Sept. 12. Magistrate Larry Duff said the charge was reduced because the BB gun wasn't a deadly weapon, and evidence indicated that the children had been teasing her.

According to an affidavit of Rupert Police Officer Dan Bristol, nine children told police that Simpson drove by and pointed a gun at them, causing them to run behind a fence. They told police that she pointed the gun into the air and fired it, the affidavit said.

Man faces charge of lewd conduct

RUPERT — A Rupert man has been charged with lewd conduct with a pre-teen boy.

Luis Loya, 48, was assigned a public defender Friday in Minidoka County Magistrate Court. He is being held in the Mini-Cassia jail on a $10,000 bond.

According to an affidavit by Rupert Police Detective Terry Quinn, the boy was taken to Minidoka Memorial Hospital on Aug. 25 because he was bleeding from his rectum.

The boy required surgery, Quinn's affidavit said. The child told a doctor for the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare that Loya had committed the crime, and that it had happened before, the affidavit said.

Loya is charged with molesting the boy between July 1 to August 31, according to a criminal complaint.

New owners replace bar in Paul

PAUL — A new bar has replaced the Sports Shop Bar, the site of a drug raid last month.

"We've redone the place, changed the name and changed the clientele," said Paula Thuesen, who opened Plumber's Lounge Friday.

The owners of the Sports Shop Bar, Dennis and Alma Stutzman, were arrested Sept. 17 by Minidoka County Sheriff's Department after an undercover informant bought cocaine from them earlier that year, according to court documents.

A felony drug charge against Alma Stutzman, 38, has been dismissed, a Magistrate Court clerk said. Dennis Stutzman, 41, is charged with felony delivery of a controlled substance and felony possession of a controlled substance, according to a criminal complaint.

Dennis Stutzman is scheduled to enter his plea in 5th District Court at 1:30 p.m. on Oct. 24, a court clerk said.

According to an affidavit of Minidoka County Prosecutor Gara Newman, an police informant entered the bar on Aug. 6 and asked Dennis Stutzman if he knew where he could buy some cocaine.

Stutzman told him he would put a gram of cocaine on a beam above the urinal in the men's restroom, the affidavit said. The police informant slid $100 beneath a napkin at the bar for Stutzman, the affidavit said.

Oakley presents 'The Foreigner'

OAKLEY — Tickets are available for "The Foreigner," a comedy about a painfully shy British officer who overhears conversations because people assume he can't understand English.

Sponsored by the Oakley Valley Arts Council, the show starts at 8 p.m. on Nov. 3 - 5, 7, and 9 - 12. Tickets are $4 per person for the first four shows and $7 per person for the other nights, Clark said.

Reservations are required and can be made by calling 677-ARTS. The play will run at the Howell's Opera House in Oakley, she said.

"The Foreigner" was written by Larry Shue and was the 41st longest-running play on Broadway, Clark said. The setting is a rural fishing lodge in Georgia, where a pair of British officers are taking their vacation, she said.

The cast includes: Rob Mayer as Charlie, the foreigner; John Cramer as Froggie, his cohort; Kae Curtis as Betty, the lodge owner; and Amy Keizer, Cody Mullins, Cory Atkins and Chuck Gummerson as lodge guests.

Man says he's innocent of murder at labor camp

By Liz Wright
Times-News writer

BURLEY — A 21-year-old Texas man pleaded innocent Friday to first-degree murder in the shooting death of a man at the Cassia County Farm Labor Camp.

Alfredo Romayor remains in jail on a $35,000 bond. He had been held in the Mini-Cassia jail without bond before Friday's arraignment in 5th District Court.

Romayor's lawyer, James Amest, had argued for a lower bond, calling the state's evidence "as thin as a piece of toilet tissue."

The state's key witness had admitted using cocaine within an hour of the shooting, Amest said. No one had actually seen Romayor shoot a gun, and police have not found the weapon, he said.

Deputy Prosecutor Howard Smyser countered that Magistrate Roy Holloway had determined during a Sept. 23 preliminary hearing that the state had enough evidence to prosecute.

Smyser agreed to a bond, saying that he is not seeking the death penalty for Romayor, he said. But he feared Romayor might flee the state and return to his home in Eagle Pass, Texas, if allowed to leave jail.

Miguel Elizondo-Salazar, 22, of Mexico, died of a gunshot wound in the neck in the early morning of Sept. 2 at the camp.

The prosecutor's key witness,

Cathy Mousseau, testified during a preliminary hearing that Elizondo-Salazar had been driving recklessly around the camp that morning.

Romayor had brought a large black gun into one of the houses where they had been partying together, Mousseau said. The gun was loaded by someone, then Romayor left with the gun in his hand, saying, "he'd take care of them," Mousseau said. Later she heard gun shots. Five minutes later, Romayor returned without the gun, she said. Romayor told her the gun "went off," she testified.

Investigators have not yet found the bullet, the gun nor any eyewitnesses, Deputy Sheriff Loyal Egbert had testified.

Fracas puts Mormon seminary classes on hold

PANACA, Nev. (AP) — Mormon officials will suspend daytime seminary classes at Lincoln County High School effective Nov. 6, causing controversy that erupted after students were marked truant for attending the religion courses.

The announcement was made by A. Paul King, Mormon Church Education System area director, following a lengthy closed-door meeting at school district offices in this small southeastern Nevada town.

By the beginning of the second quarter, Mormon seminary students could be offered early morning classes before school instead, King said. The move will leave the school district free to research the legal details of off-campus religious instruction.

Debates may elude candidates

BOISE (AP) — Bonneville County Commissioner Edith Stanger, who is running against Republican Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa, says she is unlikely to have agreed to face-to-face meetings.

But Cenarrusa said Friday it isn't so. "I'm not going to be out of my office much until the election is over," said Cenarrusa, the state's chief election official. "There's too much work to be done here."

Stanger issued a news release earlier in the day claiming that Cenarrusa on an Idaho Falls radio talk show agreed on Thursday to a face-to-face meeting. Cenarrusa said if anything, it will have to be a telephone hookup, because he doesn't plan much travel in the next month.

Cenarrusa, secretary of state since 1967, has declined to appear with Stanger in the statewide televised debates sponsored by the Idaho Press Club and the League of Women Voters, saying he had scheduling conflicts.

Stanger's news release said she has agreed to appear at candidate forums in Salmon next Thursday and in Twin Falls on Oct. 27. Cenarrusa said he has a meeting scheduled with Citizens For Truth in Boise next Thursday and will attend a Republican congressional district meeting on Oct. 27.

U.S. toughens safety regulations for loggers

WASHINGTON (AP)

Loggers will have to wear hard hats and safety boots and end risky cutting practices under stricter safety regulations announced Friday for one of the nation's most dangerous industries.

The new standards, being expanded to cover 72,000 workers, should save more than 100 lives a year, said Joseph Dear, assistant secretary of the Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

"The injury and fatality incidence rates in the logging industry are among the highest ... in the country," OSHA said in publishing the new regulations in the Federal Register this week.

In 1992, 158 employees were killed in logging operations, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

Logging industry fatality rates are eight times greater than in the mining sector, the next closest industrial category, and 53 times greater than the manufacturing sector as a whole, the bureau said.

Almost half the logging injuries are due to employees being hit or crushed by falling trees.

Some of the new rules are simple, such as requiring loggers to come in out of the heavy rain and snow and to wear the hard hats their employers long have been required to provide.

The previous rules "identified the performance criteria that had protection was required to meet, but did not specifically require employees to wear it," OSHA said.

The new rules, effective Feb. 9, 1995, also address specific logging practices such as "domino felling," the partial cutting of several trees that are left standing and then pushed over with another tree.

"Domino felling is a dangerous practice that is prohibited," OSHA said in the new regulation.

Employers will be required to provide loggers with safety and first-aid training every three years. The new rules also mandate chain brakes on chain saws, use of seat belts on moving machinery and certain spacing between loggers and falling trees.

Dear said it marks the first significant strengthening of federal logging regulations since 1970.

The previous rules only applied to pulpwood logging, primarily smaller trees used to produce paper, while the new guidelines apply to all aspects of the logging industry.

Many of the new mandates already exist in state laws, especially in the Pacific Northwest and Rocky Mountains.

All state logging standards except Alaska's already dictate logging operations must halt when weather conditions are hazardous to employees, OSHA said.

The old OSHA standard identified electrical storms and high winds as examples of hazardous conditions, while the new rule expands that to include heavy rain or snow, extreme cold, dense fog, fires, mud slides and darkness.

Feds to check for licenses

LEWISTON (AP) — The Idaho Fish and Game Department and the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs agents will make a federal case out of not having a Nez Perce Tribe fishing license today.

Bureau agents will be patrolling the Clearwater River within the reservation when the steelhead season opens. Fish and Game Director Jerry Conley said those without tribal licenses could be ticketed.

He also said the state intends to fight the tribal permit in court if it comes that far.

"If tribal or federal action forces the matter into court the state will have no recourse but to raise all appropriate legal issues," Conley said.

The Nez Perce maintain they took action after the state ignored their rights as a sovereign nation and requests to boost economic development on the reservation.

Wreckage may be from WWII plane

SEATTLE (AP) — Wreckage spotted by a hiker on Mount Baker yesterday may be that of a Navy plane that disappeared with five people aboard while on a training or combat mission during World War II, the Navy says.

Human bones, engine parts, live ammunition, inflatable life rafts and carbon dioxide bottles were strewn across the site 7,500 feet up the 10,775-foot mountain. Nearby, embedded in ice for a half century, was the blackened body of the aircraft.

A dog tag found at the site gave investigators the best clue as to the plane's origin. The tag belonged to one of five crew members aboard a bomber or torpedo plane from Whidbey Island Naval Air Station that crashed in August 1943, at the height of World War II.

"During World War II, the continental United States was concerned about an invasion by the Japanese and submarine attacks along the entire West Coast," said Lt. Ken Exum of Naval Base Seattle. "These types of planes flew combat missions and anti-submarine warfare all up and down the coast."

Exum said Friday the wreckage was probably that of a PBV or a PV1 or PV2. A PBV, a 63-foot-long aircraft with a 104-foot wing span, was used for anti-submarine warfare. The PV series of planes were smaller. The PV1 carried bombs and the P2V dropped torpedoes.

Flight logs show a combat plane, with a crew of five, left the Whidbey base at Oak Harbor in August 1943 and never returned. But the records don't specify what type of plane it was, Exum said.

The plane was apparently on a training or combat mission when it crashed into Mount Baker, a snow-capped, dormant volcano about 50 miles northeast of the Whidbey base and 85 miles north of Seattle, Exum said.

When the plane was reported lost, the Navy told families of the crew members that everyone aboard was presumed dead. The Navy is now trying to locate surviving kin to advise them of the discovery.

Charles Eaton, a 55-year-old welder, was hiking in a remote area of the mountain last week when he came upon parts of the blackened wreckage near the edge of a glacier.

Sentence stands for man who killed wife

IDAHO FALLS — An Idaho Falls man convicted of killing his wife in 1991 has had his bid for a reduced sentence rejected, despite supporting testimony from his children.

Richard McCuskey, 49, was sentenced in January 1992 to eight to 20 years in prison for the March 10, 1991, stabbing death of Arlene McCuskey, 45. The sentence was reduced a few months later to seven to 19 years in prison.

Jerry Wolf, McCuskey's attorney, asked 7th District Judge Marvin Smith on Thursday to reconsider the original sentence. McCuskey's two children, who asked for leniency at his 1992 sentencing, said they hoped they could spend more time with their father.

Jobless mill workers face uncertainty

GRANGEVILLE — Workers who will be jobless with the Nov. 30 closure of the Ida-Pine mill at Grangeville told a public meeting they face an uncertain future.

"I'm breathing water right now. I'm very uncertain," said Jamie Russell, a single mother of three. Russell on Thursday said she worked her way out welfare and has been at the mill six years.

Dave Hake said he is checking for work with other mills, but his family is reluctant to leave their home.

It was for people such as Hake and Russell that the meeting, organized by the Grangeville Gem Team, was directed, Greg Seibert of the Idaho Department of Commerce moderated the meeting.

Waste cleanup case reaches settlement

WALLACE — An out-of-court settlement has been reached for the cleanup and removal of hazardous waste stored at the former Day Rock Mine and Mill.

The work agreed to by Inland Aqua-Tech Co. of Spokane will be overseen by 1st District Judge Craig Kosonen, who approved the settlement.

The material, generated by a laboratory at the site as well as at an Aqua-Tech's site in Spokane, includes toxic metals like mercury and lead, sodium cyanide and chemicals with volatile organic compounds.

Pollutant protection will cost Boiseans

BOISE — Keeping pollutants from pouring into storm drains and the Boise River will likely siphon off a few more dollars from property owners next year.

The $1 million-a-year project is designed to comply with federal clean water requirements. The Ada County Highway District and Boise City have until Nov. 1 to complete operating plans. They expect the cost to be passed on to taxpayers.

Highway staff engineer Dorrell Hansen said the program focuses on education and prevention — letting the public know pesticides and paint don't belong in the gutter.

Jury convicts trucker in teen's murder

PENDLETON, Ore. — A jury has convicted a California man of rape and aggravated murder for picking up a teen-age runaway in February 1981, forcing her to have sex and strangling her.

Former truck driver David Cornell Cox of Sacramento was convicted by a Pendleton jury in the murder of Naomi Marie McMahon, 14. He is to be sentenced Tuesday.

McMahon was killed in the sleeper cab of Cox's tractor-trailer rig after he picked her up as a hitchhiker. Her body was dumped in a culvert outside Pilot Rock.

Officials clear medical center after threat

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (AP) — A Coeur d'Alene medical building was evacuated and a bomb squad called in after a mentally disturbed man told physicians he had planted explosives in the parking lot.

Bomb experts were able to retrieve the device, which was apparently capable of exploding, a Coeur d'Alene police dispatcher said Friday morning.

The bomb threat at the W. George Moody Health Center was reported at 2:27 p.m. Thursday. Fire Chief Frank Sexton said. The building houses the Panhandle Health District, state forensics lab, mental health services and adult health and welfare.

Police Lt. Donald Jiran said a man carrying a handgun and wearing a bullet proof vest and wig approached mental health experts and said he had explosives in his van.

Wind music of the desert

Q. What do the writers mean by "the singing sands?"

A. Hot desert sands sometimes, in a low note as a windy day turns into a calm evening. The higher the temperature, the louder the note. Exact cause unclear.

The word "gust" also means "keen delight," the opposite of "disgust." But I'll bet you a small unspecified sum you've never heard it used that way, Gusto? Sure, but I mean just plain "gusts."

Sources not always inaccurate claim they have copies of church records to prove the Beer family in the English town of Sharnford named their son "Hot-tied." Fascinating, if not fiction.

Q. Can monkeys be housebroken?

A. Not so far.

Q. Who invented baseball cards?

A. Early cigarette makers. They needed cardboard stiffeners in their cigarette packs. The first stiffeners were made of paper. They wanted something of interest. What they got turned out to be of interest, particularly to youngsters.

If a family of cockroaches were stranded on a desert island, they'd want a good book, any book. That's all they'd need to survive indefinitely. The glue, the paper, they'd be nourishing enough.

Ex-ISU quarterback receives 35 days in jail

POCATELLO — Virgil Gardner, last year the starting quarterback on Idaho State's football team, has been sentenced to 35 days in prison on a misdemeanor charge of assault.

He admitted beating an undercover drug informant in May. Magistrate Lynn Brower sentenced Gardner on Friday, even though the former player didn't attend. Gardner also was ordered to pay nearly $2,400 in court costs and restitution.

Gardner completed 72 of 144 passes for 1,308 yards, 11 touchdowns and 10 interceptions. He also ran for 205 yards.

An attorney, Curtis Smith, said Gardner remained in Magnolia, Ark., where he is a student. Smith said Gardner is looking for a school where he can play football next year, which will be his final year of eligibility at any level.

"He has an opportunity to make something of himself," Smith said.

Boise Hawk personnel work the winter away in Hawaii

BOISE — Boise manager Tom Kotchman and former Hawks Demond Smith, Todd Greene, Mark Simmons, Ryan Hancock and Todd Blyleven opened the 1994 Hawaii Winter League season Friday.

Kotchman is manager of the Honolulu Sharks and has Smith, Greene, Simmons and Hancock on his roster, while Blyleven is playing for the Hilo Stars.

The four-team league plays a 52-game schedule that concludes Dec. 15.

Tarkanian wasn't partying when NCAA cleared him

LAS VEGAS — Former UNLV basketball coach Jerry Tarkanian didn't feel like celebrating when he learned the NCAA had cleared him and six other former UNLV staffers of charges stemming from an investigation of the basketball program.

"We said from Day 1 there wouldn't be a violation, but we went through four years of hell," Tarkanian told the Las Vegas Sun. "It just makes you sick to your stomach."

In addition to Tarkanian being cleared, former Rebels assistant Tim Gargiulo, Mark Warkentin and Ron Ganulin also were absolved of wrongdoing, as were former athletic director Brad Rothmel and former academic advisers Mike Alsop and Shelley Fischer.

Borah squeezes Bruins

By Larry Hovey
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It was basically your typical Twin Falls-Borah football game. For three quarters the Bruins seemed to have things going their way.

Then in a flash of fullback Todd Reppert and a crescendo of Twin Falls turnovers, the Lions took full control in the fourth quarter to claim a 28-20 decision.

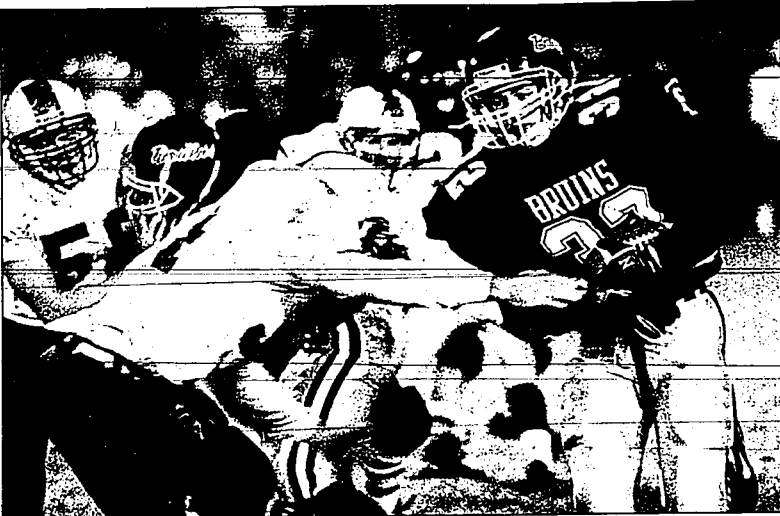

It was an object lesson that Twin Falls Coach Mark Schaal had tried to impress on his charges for three weeks: "Let 'em stick around long enough and they'll stick you."

That's exactly what happened. Twin Falls didn't take advantage of turnovers and good plays in the first three quarters, allowed Borah two easy touchdowns and had a fumble and two late interceptions to end a night of seven turnovers.

Twice the Bruins led by two touchdowns and were on top 20-7 at the final quarter opened.

Borah had just seen a 65-yard reverse run by Bob Gray nullified by a penalty when it started taking control of the scrimmage line midway through the third quarter.

Four minutes into the final period, quarterback Jake Anderson scored on a two-yard keep after Reppert paced the drive with his dives.

Borah's Jason Cantrell, left, moves in to tackle Rick Stanger of Twin Falls Friday.

A good kickoff return and a first down seemed to give the Bruins a chance to protect the six-point lead with six minutes left. But on a first-down run, Twin Falls fumbled at the Borah 29. Matt Smith recovering for the Lions.

Reppert ran three times for 19 yards and then Anderson kept and romped to the Twin Falls 14. Reppert plunged in from the five three plays after that.

Byron Mignancelli's third-straight point-after kick gave Borah a 21-20 edge.

Faced with the deficit, Twin Falls tried to turn to the air but Nate Crouch picked off a pass that went off a receiver's hands and he returned it 37 yards to ice it with 2:09 left.

Again Twin Falls made a little move, getting to the Borah 30 but Borah's Tom Schindele got another interception with 57

Jerome rolls to homecoming win over Burley

By Ron Gates
Times-News writer

JEROME — Quarterback Dan Walters threw for 318 of Jerome's 523 total offensive yards Friday to lead the Tigers past Burley 40-14 in non-conference football.

"It was a huge victory," said Jerome Coach Stan Richter. "We had to find out what we're made of against a comparable team. Our defense never let them get away from us."

Burley, mostly on the arm of Dru Nicely, racked up 313 yards of its own, but wound up on the short end of a 4-to-1 disparity in plays.

Probably the most telling of those strikes came with 6:59 left to play and Jerome — ahead 20-7 at that point — facing a third-and-nine situation at its own 6 yardline.

Walters, who found his target on 14 of 26 attempts, threw to Eric Fredericks along the far sideline for the clinching touchdown.

Not yet satisfied, Jerome's Tom Burnham forced a Burley fumble at the Bobcat 10 that went to fourth-and-goal at the 22 after a penalty. Walters converted that one as well with his second scoring strike of the night to Dan LeC.

Jerome's Dan Miller accounted for 99 of his game high 107 yards rushing before the break. His 1-yard run capped a nine-play, 80-yard drive after the Tigers received the opening kickoff, but both teams found ways to keep themselves out of the end zone until Walters

TWIN FALLS — If Ricks is the best competition the Scenic West Conference has to offer the College of Southern Idaho volleyball team, the Eagles better book their flight to Miami.

That's where CSI won its first-ever national volleyball title last year and where it must go again to defend that crown.

Ranked teams face off in crucial college contests

The Associated Press

Five matchups of ranked teams mark Saturday's college football action, and none will be watched as closely as No. 6 Auburn at top-ranked Florida.

Florida fans will be remembering how Auburn kept alive the nation's longest winning streak, now at 17, at their expense last season.

Voters in the CNN-USA Today coaches' poll will be watching to see if a team they can't vote for, namely Auburn, could possibly be the best in the country.

In-depth previews - B8

And Auburn boosters will be watching because this is as close as they'll get to a bowl game this year, what with NCAA probation and all.

"Any kind of season we have is based on the 11 regular-season games we have," Auburn coach Terry Bowden said. "There are no second chances."

Auburn is 6-0 and ranked in The Associated Press poll of sports writers. Florida is 5-0 and ranked No. 1 in both the writers' and coaches' poll.

Besides Auburn at Florida, the ranked showdowns are No. 2 Nebraska (6-0) at No. 16 Kansas State (4-0), No. 3 Penn State (6-0) at No. 5 Michigan (4-1), No. 22 Oklahoma (3-2) at No. 4 Colorado (5-0), and No. 14 Arizona (4-1) at No. 20 Washington State (4-1).

Other games have Baylor at No. 7 Texas A&M (5-0), Arizona State at No. 9 Washington (4-1), No. 10 Alabama (6-0) at Tennessee, Texas-El Paso at No. 13 Colorado State (6-0), Maryland at No. 15 North Carolina (4-1), Brigham Young at No. 17 Notre Dame (4-2), No. 19 Virginia Tech (5-1) at East Carolina, Hawaii at No. 21 Utah (5-0), Purdue at No. 23 Wisconsin (3-2), Temple at No. 24 Boston College (2-2), and Clemson at No. 25 Duke (5-0).

No. 8 Miami, No. 11 Florida State and No. 18 Syracuse have the weekend off. A Sunday night game has No. 12 Texas (4-1) at Rice.

Auburn kept alive its winning streak with a 38-35 upset of Florida last year, and Gators sophomore safety Lawrence Wright was the goat. An unnecessary roughness call against him put Auburn in position for

Estes hits his own target for near-record at Open

The Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — Bob Estes hit his target and in doing so, almost established a PGA record Friday in the second round of the $1 million Texas Open.

"I set a target score of 65 and birdied the last two holes to make it," Estes said after his 6-under-par jaunt over the tight, tree-lined Oak Hills Country Club course established a three-shot lead.

Estes, who was up at 1:30 a.m. ironing shirts in his hotel room, said he set the target to combat a possible meltdown after a spectacular opening round of 62.

"I've done it. Everybody's done it. You shoot a really good score, then come back with something around par," he said.

"I didn't want to do that. It's too early to start backing off," Estes said after completing 36 holes in 127, 15-under-par and a single stroke off the PGA Tour's record by Tommy Bolt in the 1954 Virginia Beach Open.

"If I did know that, maybe I would have set my target a little lower," Estes said.

As it was, he left Bob Tway a distant second at 67-130 with an unfavorable forecast looming for the weekend. The remnants of Hurricane Rosa is expected to produce possibly heavy rain and thunderstorms Saturday and Sunday.

Nick Price, winner of the PGA, the British Open and five tour titles this year, doesn't have to worry about the weather. He missed the cut at 72-140.

J.C. Anderson was in third at 64-131. Brian Kamm, who shot 67 for a total of 132 was fourth.

Sean Murphy, with a 65, Brad Bryant, 67, Australian Steve Rintoul, 68, and Steve Stricker, 68, shared fifth at 133 and were the only others within six strokes of the leader.

Pavin, Faldo and Ballesteros dethroned at championship

The Associated Press

VIRGINIA WATER, England — Former champions Corey Pavin, Nick Faldo and Seve Ballesteros shot magnificent rounds of golf — a combined 28-under-par — yet all three were beaten Friday in the second round of the World Match Play Championship.

Defending champion Pavin, who carded two rounds of 67 on the par-72 West Course at Wentworth, missed a 9-foot putt for victory at the 36th hole before losing to Vijay Singh at the 37th.

Ballesteros made 14 birdies — including seven 2s — but Ernie Els was even hotter as the third-seeded South African won 2 and 1 in a record-setting match that also ended the Spaniard's bid for a record sixth title.

Faldo, a two-time winner, had two eagles in rounds of 68 and 66, but the Englishman lost to Colin Montgomerie by one hole.

"The only thing that irritates me is that I had the match in my hands and I let it go," said Pavin, who blew four leads in his seasaw battle with Singh. "Vijay played well, and he took advantage of some of the mistakes I made coming in, and that's why he won. I made more mistakes than he did."

After missing his putt at the 36th that gave Singh the hole and tied the match, Pavin put his tee shot for the 37th hole in the rough at the par-4 37th. His 5-iron approach failed to find the green and presented a difficult lie.

A chip past the flag left the American with an 18-foot putt for par, which he missed, setting up Singh's 4-foot par putt for victory.

"That was a good win," said Singh, who beat Jesper Parnevik in the first round Thursday and will play Montgomerie in Saturday's semifinals. "I am very tired."

Els' opponent will be Jose Maria Olazabal, who overcame hip pain and beat Brad Faxon 6 and 4.

NHL dispute puts full season in doubt

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — With the start of the hockey season in limbo because of a labor dispute, officials in San Jose are nervously wondering whether the NHL All-Star Game will suffer the same fate as this year's canceled World Series.

San Jose, home of the Sharks, is scheduled to host the All-Star Game Jan. 21. Space in seven hotels has been reserved, and preparations continue for all the festivities surrounding the event.

But the ongoing contract dispute between players and owners has thrown an element of concern into those plans. NHL commissioner Gary Bettman postponed the Oct. 1 start of the season, saying he wanted significant momentum toward a collective bargaining agreement before play could begin.

He had hoped to begin the season Saturday. But an offer by players' was rejected by owners this week, further pushing back the schedule. No new negotiations are scheduled.

In New York, the league had nothing to say Friday about the labor situation other than to confirm that a formal policy regarding ticket refunds for canceled games would be issued Nov. 1 if no contract is worked out by then.

Seventy-five games had been postponed through Friday, but the NHL still would not say if any of them would be canceled by this weekend. Ten more games are on Saturday's schedule.

"It's being assessed on a day-to-day basis," said NHL spokesman Arthur Pincus, declining the league's often-used party line.

But the labor dispute could have various repercussions for the All-Star Game. Dean Munro of the San Jose Sports Authority said. The game could go on as planned, it could be postponed or it could be canceled so teams could play out the 84-game schedule.

"That's the $64,000 question," Munro said.

At this point, the NHL says the All-Star Game will be played as scheduled, and that no makeup games will be played during the All-Star break.

Mediator sets to join baseball strike fray

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bitter baseball strike came to the White House on Friday and President Clinton's new mediator held out no hope for a quick resolution.

"It is a dispute that can't be resolved easily, nor quickly," mediator W.J. Ury said after being introduced during a White House news conference. "In fact, what little bit that I do know about the things in the dispute, it will take considerable time and considerable effort."

Union head Donald Fehr, after a very short private meeting with Clinton and acting commissioner Bud Selig, said free agent filings will begin Saturday, the date called for in the labor agreement that expired last Dec. 31. Owners said week asked for a 45-day freeze on filing and signings, but the union told owners Friday that players won't agree to it.

"They have made it clear that if we don't agree to a freeze, they would do it anyway," Fehr said outside the Oval Office.

Fehr said management lawyer Chuck O'Connor sent the union a letter Thursday indicating that owners would attempt to impose the freeze and the union's No. 2 official, Eugene Orza, said the players would respond with more litigation.

O'Connor, however, said owners will allow the free-agent process to begin.

"We're not going to say to the players they can't file," O'Connor said.

Labor Secretary Robert Reich poses with former Secretary W.J. Ury, who has been selected to mediate the strike.

"What the 28 clubs can say is they won't be signing anybody until there is an agreement. We are not prepared to do that at this stage but we reserve the right to."

Approximately 167 players, including Greg Jeffries and Larry Walker, are eligible to file through Oct. 29. Orza said the players would attempt to delay filing while the challenge either through a grievance or an arbitrator practice charge with the National Labor Relations Board.

Penn State receiver fulfills dream in league battle with Michigan

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Freddie Scott always wanted to come to Ann Arbor and play before 106,000 fans in Michigan Stadium.

Saturday, Scott will get his wish. But he will be playing for No. 3 Penn State (5-0, 2-0 Big Ten) instead of the No. 5 Wolverines (4-1, 2-0).

Scott, the son of former Detroit Lions wide receiver Fred Scott, grew up in the Detroit suburbs. He went to high school at Detroit Country Day.

"It's a little strange because I know a lot of people who go to Michigan or went to Michigan or are just Michigan fans," Scott said. "It'll feel funny, but I can't spend too much time dwelling on it because I want to concentrate on helping our team win."

He remembers watching Michigan play when he was younger. His favorite player was wide receiver Anthony Carter.

"I always felt if I had a chance to play college football I wanted to play for Michigan," Scott said.

What changed his mind? "Growing up and learning to make my own decisions," he said. "I felt that coming to Penn State would be the best place for me to go. Everyone close to me supported me in my decision."

It was a tough decision. Michigan offered Scott a scholarship. But the Wolverines already had commitments from receivers Amari Towner and Mercury Hayes, both of whom were high school All-Americans. Besides that, Derrick Alexander (now a rookie with the NFL's Cleveland Browns) still had two years remaining.

Scott said that while he was being recruited by Michigan, he attended Ohio State in 1991 when Desmond Howard struck the Heisman pose after a punt return touchdown.

"That was something I'll always remember as one of the big-time highlights at Michigan, and being there to see it," Scott said.

Towner and Hayes are one of the top receiving tandems in the country. Together, they have accounted for 40 receptions and 750 yards with three touchdowns.

But Scott and Bobby Engram have been more effective for Penn State. Engram has 22 catches for 314 yards and three touchdowns. Scott has 21 catches for 499 yards and three TDs.

With their help, quarterback Kerry Collins has completed 68-of-98 passes for 1,220 yards and 11 touchdowns.

"Kerry's always had a lot of ability," Penn State coach Joe Paterno said. "He's very poised and very comfortable and I think he's getting better all the time. When he delivers the ball to people, they can run with it."

The Mitty Lions, with a 10-game winning streak, are slight favorites in the game that could determine the Big Ten champion, and perhaps the national champion.

But Paterno remembers that Penn State also was 5-0 last year, before losing 21-13 to the Wolverines.

"Last year at this time we were still struggling with the quarterback situation, so we're better there," Paterno said.

"They (the Wolverines) are a much better team this year, and I think we are a better team."

Michigan will rely on the running combination of Tyrone Wheatley and Tshimuna Biakabutuka. Each is averaging more than five yards per carry.

"You're not playing against one tailback, you're playing against two," Paterno said. "He (Biakabutuka) has a different style than Wheatley, but most of the time he's equally effective. They complement each other well."

Freddie Scott (31) hopes he can shine against the Michigan Wolverines as he did against Southern California. Scott grew up in suburban Detroit and always wanted to play at Michigan. Today, he'll get his wish.

Arizona looks to beat Cougars with the run

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) —

Arizona coach Dick Tomey thinks he has a clue to unraveling No. 20 Washington State's tough rushing defense.

"You've got to be able to run the ball against them," Tomey said as his 14th-ranked Wildcats prepared for their Pacific-10 Conference matchup Saturday at sold-out Martin Stadium.

"If it doesn't work, you've got to try again."

The Cougars (4-1 overall, 2-0 in the Pac-10) have allowed only two touchdowns this season and have allowed opponents just 56.8 rushing yards a game.

But Tomey said Arizona (4-1, 2-0) will need to establish a running game because Washington State's pass rush is also superb.

"You can't throw the ball against them," Tomey said of the defense anchored by ends DeWayne Patterson, Dwayne Sanders and inside linebacker Mark Fields. And they have an absolutely fantastic secondary that just won't give anybody anything."

Washington State falls far short of the high-powered offense that has been Coach Mike Price's trademark, but Tomey knows a win's a win.

"They understand what they've got," he said. "They've got an extraordinary defense. They're playing well enough to win on offense and that's all they need to do."

That's good enough for Cougars' fans, who have bought up all 37,600 seats in Martin Stadium. It is the first time the stadium has been sold out in two consecutive games.

Revenge has Gators chomping to face Tigers

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Only a victory over Auburn will do for Florida.

"We owe them one," defensive lineman Ellis Johnson said.

"They embarrassed us last year," center David Swain said. "We need to make up for that."

The top-ranked Gators have been seeking for more than a year over a 38-35 loss that damaged Florida's hopes for a national championship and fueled Auburn's bid for an unbeaten season.

Not even the Southeastern Conference title and the school's first victory in the Sugar Bowl were enough to remove the bitter taste of losing a game Florida dominated before unraveling in the second half.

The Gators, who get a chance to redeem themselves Saturday, set school records for most points (35) and yards (560) in a loss and are still annoyed by questions about whether they or Auburn, which was ineligible for the SEC crown because of probation, were the league's best team.

Auburn (6-0, 4-0), ranked sixth and still on probation, comes to Gainesville with a 17-game winning streak — the nation's longest in Division I-A — that Florida's Lawrence Wright takes personally.

An unnecessary roughness penalty against the sophomore safety set up the Tigers' game-winning field goal last year.

"It was all my fault," Wright said. "The call was made and I'll take the heat. But now, I have a chance to redeem myself. I'm just glad they haven't lost yet. I'm glad they're 17-0."

Florida (5-0, 4-0) enters the game hoping to extend a 17-game streak of its own. The Gators have beaten 17 consecutive SEC opponents at home and are 26-1 at Florida Field under coach Steve Spurrier.

Auburn, coming off its most impressive performance of the season against Mississippi State, is a 16-point underdog, primarily because Florida has outscored opponents by an average of 51-12 while the Tigers haven't been nearly as dominating.

"Some might label us a lucky team, but I choose not to use that word," Auburn coach Terry Bowden said. "Because of our style, we are not a team that scores big, gets ahead early and dominates. We have been, much more, a team that has to expect a 60-minute game and win at the end."

Nobody knows that better than Florida, which led Auburn 27-14 and had outgained the Tigers 386-104 at halftime last year. While the loss still bothers the Gators, Spurrier thinks it might have helped the team more than his players realize.

"When it first happens, you're upset, but who knows?" Spurrier said. "Did that loss to Auburn maybe help us beat Georgia? Or South Carolina? Or someone else down the road? Sometimes you can look back and maybe see where a loss can help a team achieve its goals."

The key matchup will be between Florida's high-powered passing attack, which has had its way against every team it's faced, and an Auburn secondary that has 11 interceptions.

The Tigers have forced 17 turnovers in their last three games and scored six defensive touchdowns. Florida's offense, meanwhile, has scored on 37 of 67 possessions, including 18 touchdowns passes by Terry Dean.

Quarterback is central for Wildcats, Nebraska

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State has a hot quarterback and Nebraska has a quarterback question.

Therefore, the 16th-ranked Wildcats have their best chance in years of beating the No. 2 Cornhuskers Saturday.

But the Huskers have the nation's top running attack, and that might be enough to offset the sharp passing of Clint Mays, who threw for a Big Eight record 489 yards against Nebraska last year.

"Not only are they No. 1 (in rushing), but they're 1-0 by miles," Kansas State coach Bill Snyder said.

Rain is forecast for the game, and that could be a complicating factor, as Kansas State, on a seven-game winning streak, tries to beat the Huskers at home for the first time since 1959.

Nebraska was ranked No. 1 for a week early in the season and has a shot at the national championship, but will have to overcome the loss of quarterback Tommie Frazier.

Frazier is out for the season with blood clots in a leg.

Brook Berringer, a Goodland, Kan. native who was recruited by Snyder, is expected to start, although he suffered a collapsed lung in each of the past two games.

If Berringer can't play, quarterbacking responsibilities will fall to sophomore walk-on Matt Turman, who mostly just handed off when he replaced the injured Berringer in last week's 23-3 defeat of Oklahoma State.

"I think our team is fine," coach Tom Osborne said. "It will complete no matter who plays quarterback."

Mays is on a roll, having completed 33-of-44 passes for 379 yards last week as the Wildcats (4-0) beat Kansas.

Mays is a big quarterback who stays in the pocket and throws accurately. He doesn't run well, but is nimble enough to step up in the pocket to avoid the rush.

May has not been intercepted in 166 attempts this year.

A victory would be another big step for Snyder, who has resurrected a program that for 93 years compiled the worst record of all Division I teams.

"I think the fact that we have been gradually improving week in and week out, the idea that you are playing at home... that might indicate a reason to be positive," Snyder said. "We have great respect for Nebraska, but by the same token, I think our players are confident they can play well in this game."

Oklahoma aims to bone up against No. 4 Buffaloes

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Oklahoma terrorized college football in the 1970s and 1980s with its yardage-devouring wishbone offense. Don't look now, but the "bone may be back."

At least Colorado thinks so. The No. 4 Buffaloes, who entertain No. 22 Oklahoma on Saturday night, expect to get a heavy dose of triple-option medicine.

During their off-week three weeks ago, the Sooners reintroduced more wishbone plays into their offense. Using the formation about one-third of the time in their last two games, the Sooners rushed for 334 yards against Iowa State and 244 against Texas.

Colorado (5-0 overall, 1-0 in the Big Eight) expects to see it more.

"When they went to that wishbone, they put more firepower in that lineup than you'll see on almost any team," Buffaloes coach Bill McCartney said. "If they had gone with the wishbone from the beginning, they'd probably be undefeated. They're extremely dangerous in it."

McCartney said the Sooners (3-2, 1-0) have the manpower to go to the three-back set.

"The fullback, Jerald Moore, has the size of a fullback but he runs like a tailback," McCartney said. "James Allen is one of the great backs in the country as well. He doesn't have the numbers, but you can see that he's a special talent. Along with Jeff Frazier, you've got a tremendous amount of potential over there."

They also have the coaching. Assistant coach Merv Johnson, who was there during the vintage wishbone years, is still there, McCartney said. "They know what they're doing."

How to Buy a Great Used Car

There are certain basic things you should look for when you examine a car.

1. Find out the previous owner's name.
2. Automatic Transmission fluid should be pink and not smell burnt.
3. Coolant shouldn't be rusty and no green stains on the radiator.
4. No oil spots around the engine.
5. Look for rust, especially in the trunk, wheel wells and rocker panels under the doors.
6. Look for new welds, ripply body work, panels that don't match.
7. Uneven tire wear may mean an alignment problem.
8. Make sure the car comes with a useable jack and lugwrench.
9. To check shocks and suspension push down and quickly release each corner of the car. It should not bounce more than 2 times.
10. Seats shouldn't be saggy or ripped. Make sure belts and controls work.
