Clinton tells crowd 'task will not be easy,' urges leaders to include opposition in future plans

Los Angeles Times

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — After six months as guardians of Haitian order, U.S. forces Friday formally turned over peacekeeping duties to the United Nations, opening a new and risky chapter in the Caribbean nation's fitful experiment with democracy.

Before a flag-waving crowd at the Presidential Palace, President Clinton joined Haitian President Jean-Bertrand Aristide in hailing the U.S. military's success in displacing a dictatorship and setting a democratically elected government on its course.

With the arrival of 20,000 U.S. troops last September, "the wave of violence was transformed to the wine of peace," declared Aristide, as he and Clinton stood partially shielded by bulletproof panels.

The two leaders' appearance in front of the whitewashed French Colonial-style palace in a color-splashed crowd of youths and adults made a striking tableau. Despite their mutual congratulations, lingering divisions floated near the surface, and there were repeated references to the instability of a country chronically torn by upheaval during its 191-year history.

"The task ahead will not be easy," Clinton said. "Democracy does not flow naturally like the rivers."

Democratically elected in 1990, Aristide was forced into exile by a September 1991 coup, and was restored to power only after the military leaders were forced abroad or underground by the American invasion last fall. Friday's ceremonies will give peacekeeping authority to a 37-country, 6,000-soldier U.N. contingent that is scheduled to remain on duty until February.

Clinton gently prodded the Aristide government to do more to include the opposition in the nation's new institutions.

President Clinton and Haitian President Jean-Bertrand Aristide look at a white bird that landed during welcoming ceremonies Friday in the country's capital Port-au-Prince.

Okinawa death rattle

Jerome World War II veterans H.D. Witherspoon, left, and Ron Loring share war stories on Friday in Jerome.

Valley veterans remember 'triumph of nihilism'

By Steve Crump
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Aboard the destroyer USS Brown, a perverse prayer was making the rounds.

"If one of those kamikaze (suicide planes) was going to hit us, we hoped it would happen soon," said Francis Truett, then a 22-year-old sonar operator. "So that at least some of us would get to go home."

Less than a half dozen miles away, Maj. Ed Elliott, the acting commander of an infantry battalion of the Army's 96th Division, dug what might have been his own grave and waited for the inevitable.

"I lost so many friends," said Elliott, then 31. "I just wondered when it was going to be my time, and when it didn't come, I wondered 'Why me?'"

The invasion of the Japanese-held island of Okinawa began 50 years ago today, the start of a three-month campaign that turned into the last great battle of World War II that involved Americans.

Back home, their mothers, wives and sisters were exulting over the fall of Hitler and the end of war in Europe, but the only things soaring over Okinawa itself were the crude satchel charges the Japanese liked to fire at aid stations.

Al Hepworth knows. One of them killed his brother, an Army medic like himself.

"I set down behind this pile of rocks and this radio operator came up and sat down," said Hepworth, then a 20-year-old corporal in the 96th Division. "I said, 'Say, let me listen to that thing for a while.' That's how I heard."

"I've never talked much about Okinawa," said Hepworth, now a retired farmer who lives near Jerome. "It's so hard."

Forty-nine thousand of the half million GIs, Marines and sailors who took part in the Okinawa campaign were casualties. Seventy-four hundred died.

Seventy thousand Japanese — seven-tenths of the entire garrison on the island —

'I lost so many friends.'

'Mother Time' rides herd on DST rules

Fort Lauderdale Sun-Sentinel

Most with daylight-saving time and you're likely to hear from Joanne Petrie, otherwise known as "Mother Time."

Petrie is the government's clock watcher, a U.S. Department of Transportation senior attorney charged with enforcing daylight-saving time. Most of the nation switches to daylight-saving time at 2 a.m. Sunday. In most places, the switch to DST, as it's called in the time business, goes like clockwork.

But a few times a year, Petrie comes across an alarming situation: a county commission that wants to extend or shorten the months of DST in their area. And that ticks off the government. "We have polite but firm conversations," Petrie said. "We don't want to have secret pockets of time out there."

Each state can decide whether to observe DST or not. But if a state decides to observe it, they must observe the DST standards set by Congress, which means clocks are set ahead on the first Sunday in April and back on the last Sunday of October.

Petrie said it's important for things such as court and transportation schedules that the country operate on uniform time. In fact, the Transportation Department has jurisdiction over time because time zones were started in the late 1800s by railroads seeking to coordinate schedules.

DST was first used in the United States as an energy conservation method in World War I — the added hour of daylight saves electricity and fuel in the evening. It was used again during World War II. DST has been used in most of the country since 1967.

Moving the clock hands ahead an hour gives people an extra hour of daylight in the evening. But it's not as though the daylight is actually saved. It's merely taken away from the morning hours, when most people are still in bed.

Even though it's largely taken for granted, some people still get wound up over DST. The last great time battle was fought in 1986, when Congress debated changing the DST starting date from the last to first weekend in April. Petrie — "Mother Time" — got 2,000 letters that year.

James Benfield, a Washington lobbyist, won the battle to have DST extended. Among his allies were a charcoal company, which saw the chance for people to have more barbecues; sporting gear companies, which saw an opportunity for more softball games; and convenience stores, which thought more women would stop after work to shop if it were still light out.

Players end strike; next step unclear

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Baseball players agreed to end their 232-day strike Friday after a judge ruled against owners in the labor dispute, but the clubs still had the option of locking out the athletes before Sunday's start of the season.

"Absent a lockout by the clubs, we can get real baseball on the field in a short period of time," union chief Donald Fehr said.

The 28-team owners did not appear to have the necessary 21 votes Friday to lock out the players. If there was a lockout, replacement players would be used to open the season.

Owners plan to meet Sunday afternoon in Chicago to consider their next steps.

The season is set to start with a Sunday night game in Miami between the replacement players who make up the New York Mets and Florida Marlins. A decision on whether to play that game will be made Saturday, said Rich Levin, a spokesman for acting commissioner Bud Selig.

In ruling against the owners, U.S. District Judge Souia Sotomayor ordered them to restore free agent bidding, salary arbitration and the anti-collusion provisions of the ballplayers' old contract.

Crime victims aid GOP efforts to repeal gun ban

Dallas Morning News

WASHINGTON — House Republicans on Friday launched their bid to repeal the assault weapons ban, trumpeting the stories of crime victims such as Texan Travis Neal who used guns in self-defense.

But Democrats on the House Judiciary Subcommittee on Crime declared the GOP's tactics as "legislation by anecdote" and accused Republicans of trying to gut all of the nation's gun control laws, including the hard-core Brady law that mandates a waiting period to buy a handgun.

The sometimes emotional hearing is the first in a series leading up to a House floor vote in May. The testimony included that of a Korean-American merchant robbed during the 1992 Los Angeles riots and a Michigan grandmother who wounded an assailant.

Idaho weather summary

A high pressure system resulted in sunny skies over most of the state. The exception was in far western Idaho, where a moist southwest flow produced high clouds.
Afternoon temperatures ranged from the upper 40s to the mid 60s, with the lowest reading in Spencer at 47 degrees and a high of 66 degrees in Lewiston.
Winds were less than 10 mph throughout the state.

Heavy rains fall along Gulf Coast; winds whip West

The Associated Press
Heavy rains drenched the Gulf Coast on Friday, and parts of northern New England got a dusting of snow.
Tallahassee, Fla., was soaked by 2.7 inches of rain in 24 hours. Mobile, Ala., and Biloxi, Miss., got more than an inch.
No major flooding was reported, but some roads and streets were under water Friday morning, from southeast Louisiana into the Florida panhandle.
Additional thundershowers along the central and eastern Gulf Coast were expected to produce up to 2 more inches of rain through the region.
In the Northeast, a low pressure system in the St. Lawrence River Valley and a frontal system produced scattered showers, with some light snow reported in the northern Appalachians and across northern New England.
Showers and snow flurries were reported in Upper Michigan.
In Southern California, Santa Ana winds gusting to between 30 and 40 mph in some mountain passes and canyons.

Weather facts

If you want a quick and dirty (literally) weather forecast, keep your eyes on the smoke coming out of the stacks.
The shape of the smoke is influenced by atmospheric conditions. If the smoke is going straight up, it means the air is fairly stable; don't look for any drastic changes in the weather. If the smoke is creating a looping effect or seems to be curling down toward the ground, however, the air is unstable and the weather is in for a storm.
If the smoke flows out horizontally, expect a hazy day with trapped pollutants; fog is also a possibility under the conditions.

Haiti

"You must move forward together, with tolerance, openness and cooperation," Clinton said.
Later, to underscore the point, Clinton met with conservative opposition members who are part of the newly formed commission set up to organize elections in June and December.
The official transfer of power came in an afternoon ceremony outside the palace. U.N. Secretary General Boutros Boutros-Ghali accepted U.N. responsibility, as soldiers from some of the 37 national contingents looked on.

Clinton's visit was the first by a U.S. president to Haiti since July, 1934, when Franklin D. Roosevelt officially marked the end of the Marines' 19-year supervision of the nation.

It also is the first time in 148 years of U.S. troop deployments in Latin America that the United States has backed a leftist-populist regime.
In a private chat with Aristide, Clinton brought up Tuesday's slaying of a former anti-Aristide spokeswoman, Michelle Durocher, which some witnesses have linked to Aristide's interior minister, Col. Mondesir Beaubrun.

Okinawa

perished, along with as many as 80,000 Okinawan civilians.
Military historian Gwynn Dyer has called Okinawa "the triumph of nihilism."
"Most of the casualties came along the Shuri Line, a string of ancient fortifications and limestone outcrops that spanned the southern neck of the island. It took the Americans two months and 32,000 dead and wounded to breach it.
"When enemy artillery shells exploded, the eruptions of soil and mud uncovered previously buried Japanese and scattered chunks of corpses," E.B. Sledge of the 1st Marine Division recalled for The Associated Press. "The ridge was a stinking compost pile. If a Marine slid down the muddy ridge, he was apt to reach the bottom vomiting. Fat maggots tumbled out of his muddy pockets, carried belt-baggin' us." The conditions taxed the toughest almost to the point of screaming...
"It was a strange psychology," said True, now a semi-retired electronics technician who lives in Twin Falls.
In a sense, the Japanese who occupied the 60-mile by 18-mile island took 800 miles southeast of Tokyo had won the psychological battle before the first shot was fired. Imbued with the suicidal warrior code of bushido, they had executed 18,000 American casualties on the island of two Jima by April 1.

Hidden in every American's mind was the specter of having to go through the same agony — only many times worse — when it came time to invade Japan.
If two Jima made the use of the atomic bomb on Japan plausible, historian Ronald Spector has said, Okinawa made it inevitable.
"The bomb saved many thousands of American lives," True said. "And I'm sure many thousands of Japanese too."
None of that meant much to Elliott and Hepworth by Okinawa campaign's end.
"You got the Japanese out with napalm," Hepworth said. "They wouldn't surrender."
"Ours was an outfit that had been through the fighting on Leyte (in the Philippines), so we had some combat experience," said Elliott, a retired career Army officer who now lives in Declo. "But the casualties were so bad that before long most of our unit was made up of replacements, guys who hadn't been in the Army long, much less in combat."
"It made me sick."
"My job was to get to a wounded soldier, patch him up if I could and get him out of (farm's) way," Hepworth said. "I did that almost without letup for three months."
"Near the end of the battle, my lieutenant came up to me and said, 'Hepworth, I'm recommending you for the Bronze Star.'"
"He got killed the next day."

Briefly

Military will probe ties to Guatemala

WASHINGTON — Deputy Defense Secretary John M. Deutch Friday announced a broad-scale investigation into the U.S. military's activities in Guatemala from the early 1980s to the present and promised to hold people accountable for their conduct if any wrongdoing is unearthed.
Deutch said the department had "secured all areas... where there's material available that bears on the subject in the Army and NSA (National Security Agency) and elsewhere." Officials said the investigation should be completed in one week.
The probe is one of several launched by government agencies this week after allegations arose of a possible U.S. role in the slayings of an American inkeeper and a guerrilla leader allegedly ordered by a Guatemalan colonel who was a paid CIA informer.

Nurses say plans threaten jobs, patients

WASHINGTON — Thousands of nurses marched from the Capitol to the White House on Friday to protest layoffs and hospital economy moves they contend are threatening their jobs and their patients' health.
The nurses, some clad in traditional white uniforms and caps, cheered speakers at a rally on the West Front of the Capitol who denounced hospital takeovers by for-profit chains and economy moves forced by managed-care plans.
Union leaders and other nurses' advocates charged that hospitals are replacing registered nurses with lower paid aides with a fraction of the nurses' training and skills.

1 auto strike settled, another continues

KOKOMO, Ind. — Striking workers at Chrysler Corp.'s only automatic transmission factory reached a tentative agreement with management Friday after a walkout earlier in the day that had threatened to close the No. 3 U.S. automaker's assembly plants.
"The strike is over, we'll try to get people back to work by 11 p.m.," union steward Jesse Hamm said Friday evening, nine hours after workers walked off the job.
Also Friday, employees walked out of a General Motors Corp. truck plant in Pontiac, Mich., taking down one-third of GM's capacity for building fast-selling full-size pickup trucks.
Both disputes involved efforts by the United Auto Workers to retain or add jobs in an industry that has cut tens of thousands of U.S. jobs in recent years.

Grammy-winning singer killed

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas — Grammy-winning singer Selena, the Madonna to many Mexican-American teen-agers, was shot and killed Friday at a motel. She was 23.
Her father said the suspect was once president of Selena's fan club.
The suspect, 32-year-old Yolanda Saldivar, held police at bay for 99 hours in the motel parking lot before surrendering. She had been sitting in a pickup truck with a gun to her head, Assistant Police Chief Ken Bling said. See Page A7 for early story.

who killed one of her employees.
Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kansas, also told a National Rifle Association official recently that he would like to send a repeal bill to President Clinton by this summer.
But Dole has been threatened with the "mother-of-all filibusters" by Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., author of the assault weapons ban. Clinton has also threatened to veto such a measure.
Recounting details as if the incident happened yesterday, Neel of Katy, Texas, calmly told how he aided Harris County Deputy Sheriff Frank Flores on Jan. 21, 1994.
Neel was on his way to a shooting range outside Houston, driving behind Flores, when the deputy pulled over a car in a routine traffic stop. The men in the stopped car, who were holding guns outside of Flores' view, ambushed the deputy.
Grabbing a Czech-made shotgun and a pistol with three 15-round clips, Neel opened fire on the men, who seriously wounded the deputy and began shooting at him before fleeing.
"There is no question I'd be dead and Deputy Flores would be dead" if the assault-weapons ban had been in place at the time of the shootout, Neel said.
Almost all of the crime victims who testified Friday used an assault-style weapon or high-capacity ammunition clip banned by the 1994 law.
The law has been criticized by gun control opponents, who contend it punishes law-abiding citizens and infringes on the Constitution's Second Amendment right to bear arms.

Senate stalls in spending debate

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — With just one week to go before the clock runs out on the GOP's first 100-day agenda, the Senate skidded to a bitterly partisan halt Friday, its debate over spending cuts ensnared in a complicated political imbroglio involving aid to the poor, the deficit-cutting, defense spending, tax loopholes for the rich and the high stakes of next year's presidential race.

"Only in the Senate could things get so Byzantine," lamented a Senate aide as Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., adjourned the gridlocked debate in disgust and went off in a huff to New Hampshire to pursue his presidential campaign.

Left behind in legislative limbo was a bill to cut $15 billion from spending programs this year, a GOP effort to scuttle President Clinton's Mexico aid package and a tax measure to help the self-employed purchase health insurance.

The spending bill was tied up in partisan "know-over" law must to cut from child care and educational programs aiding the poor, while the tax measure was paralyzed by a dispute over a loophole that allows wealthy Americans to dodge taxes by renouncing their citizenship. The Mexico bailout got sucked into the political maelstrom over the spending bill at the last minute.

Keenly aware that his presidential aspirations could be hurt by the appearance of a Senate in continual gridlock, Dole railed loudly at Democrats on the floor for their opposition to the spending cuts. On the floor, he also quietly fumed at some of his fellow Republicans for their last minute ambush of the Mexican bailout plan, which he supports.

But after two days of trying to loosen the Gordian knot that the Senate had tied itself into, Dole appeared only to pull-it-tighter by threatening to hold up other legislation, including a defense supplement urgently sought by the Pentagon, until the Democrats drop their opposition to the spending and tax measures.

Each side blamed the other for creating what they both conceded had become a parliamentary mess.

Debate on the spending cuts, which would divert money from current programs to offset the costs of disaster relief for California and to help reduce the budget deficit, stalled in its tracks on Thursday after Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., introduced an amendment that would block Clinton's plan to shore up the Mexican peso. The move appeared to take both the administration and Dole by surprise and Senate Democrats, angered by what they saw as a partisan move to embarrass Clinton, immediately threatened to filibuster it.

New witness casts doubt on O.J.'s alibi

Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — A surprise witness in the murder trial of O.J. Simpson testified Friday that he was walking his dog near Simpson's home on the night of the murders and that he did not see the defendant's car parked on Rockingham Avenue, corroborating the account of another important prosecution witness and sowing more doubt about Simpson's alibi.

Friday's witness, a neighbor of Simpson named Charles G. Cale, told the jury that he had driven by Simpson's house on the morning after the June 12 killings and had been surprised to see Simpson's car parked outside the gate on Rockingham. "Cale, a self-employed investor, said the white Ford Bronco 'very seldom if ever' had been parked on Rockingham."

Cale added that he had been walking his dog between 9:30 p.m. and 9:45 p.m. on the night of the murders and had come within about 60 yards of Simpson's home as he walked north on Rockingham. Cale said he was sure that he had not seen the car then.

Prosecution witness Charles Cale, a neighbor of O.J. Simpson, testifies Friday.

"Are you certain the Bronco was not parked near the gate at Rockingham that Sunday evening?" Deputy District Attorney Christopher A. Darden asked.

"I'm very certain," he said.

That is potentially important testimony for the Simpson prosecution because it supports the government's contention that the car was not on Rockingham when the murders were being committed two miles away. According to the prosecution, the crimes were committed at 10:15 p.m. and blood was tracked back from the crime scene into the Ford Bronco and ultimately to Simpson's estate — a frail that the government lawyers contend links Simpson to the murders.

Simpson has pleaded not guilty to murdering his ex-wife, Nicole Brown Simpson, and her friend Ronald Lyle Goldman.

Cale's account also is valuable testimony for prosecutors because it backs up the recollection of limousine driver Allan Park, who said he did not see the car when he arrived at 10:22 p.m. and because it could help discredit the testimony of Salvadoran housekeeper Rosa Lopez because she said the car had not been moved all evening.

Seeking to raise questions about Cale's account, Simpson attorney Robert L. Shapiro questioned him about the precision of his time estimates and attempted to suggest that Cale came forward months after the crime solely to bolster the prosecution's case.

Study: Virtual reality eases fear of heights

NEW YORK (AP) — This is how terrified Christopher Klock was of heights: While friends enjoyed the view from a glass elevator that rose 72 stories to a restaurant, Klock trudged up the stairs.

"Anything over a story and I'd get sweaty palms... and weak in the knees," the 21-year-old Atlanta college student recalled.

But that was before Klock entered a "virtual reality" world where he could get used to riding glass elevators, walking across bridges high above a canyon and gazing out from balconies — all without leaving the ground.

These realistic, computer-generated scenes can truly reduce a person's fear of heights, researchers report in the April issue of the American Journal of Psychiatry.

It's a high-tech twist on standard phobia treatment, which involves exposing people to frightening situations with support from a therapist so they can overcome their fears.

That can take a lot of costly therapist time if it means traveling from the office to high places. Some therapists won't do that. And doing such treatment in public places can compromise a patient's right to confidentiality, said psychologist Barbara Rothbaum of the Emory University School of Medicine in Atlanta, one of the researchers.

The study participants receiving therapy by way of virtual reality wore high-tech helmets to experience the virtual world.

The technique's effectiveness with fear of heights suggests it is also worth studying for more complicated problems, Rothbaum said. Vietnam veterans with post-traumatic stress disorder, for example, might fly over the jungle in virtual Huey helicopters to help them come to terms with war memories.

In the study, 10 college students who feared heights went through seven weekly sessions of 35 to 45 minutes each. With supportive comments from a therapist, they experienced riding a 49-story glass elevator, gazing from progressively higher balconies leading up to one on the 20th floor, and making their way across three foot-bridges up to 260 feet above a canyon river.

Drew Kessler, a doctorate student at Georgia Tech, demonstrates a computer-generated virtual reality headset used in treating acrophobia, the fear of heights, Monday in Atlanta.

"It was very realistic," Klock said. "Within about 20 or 30 seconds you felt like you were there."

Heist foiled at bank that is no more

COLUMBIA, Tenn. (AP) — A bank robbery was foiled because the bank was no longer a bank. But the holdup man still walked away with $127.

The bank had closed last August, but apparently no one had told the gunman who burst in Tuesday.

"He walked in here and said, 'Give me your money,' and I laughed," said Lea Ables, who was working at an insurance office where the bank once was. "I didn't think he was serious at first."

"He didn't sort of looked funny and asked, 'This ain't a bank anymore?'"

The gunman started to leave, then decided to rob two of the insurance workers. He escaped with $127.

U.S. increases pressure on Japan in trade dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — Turning up the pressure on Japan, the Clinton administration took the first step Friday in establishing a "hit list" of countries with the most harmful barriers against American companies.

Japan was one of 41 countries and four trading groups cited by the administration in its annual review of the most onerous trade barriers around the world.

The annual "Foreign Trade Barriers Report" is used as the basis for targeting countries in coming months for intensive negotiations aimed at removing the practices deemed objectionable by the United States.

If those negotiating sessions fail, the administration would have the power to impose trade sanctions equal to the damage being done to U.S. industries.

While countries from Argentina to Zimbabwe made this year's list, the potential negotiating targets will represent a far smaller group focused on areas where the United States is running the biggest trade deficits.

In that category, Japan led the list of citations, taking up 41 pages in this year's report. The 15-member European Union was next with 28 pages of U.S. criticism, followed by China with 19 pages of alleged trade abuses.

The administration this week resumed negotiations with Japan on the issue of autos and auto parts, which accounted for nearly 60 percent of the America's report $65.7 billion with Japan, and the report devoted a good deal of space to criticizing Japan in the automotive area.

"The U.S. government is strongly dissatisfied with the absence of progress in the auto and auto parts area," the report said. "Every effort will be made in the near future to encourage the government of Japan and Japanese companies to move forward" in renewing their voluntary purchase agreements for parts and lifting various barriers.

U.S. cuts pledge to feed countries

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has cut its promise of international food aid by nearly half through mid-1998, bringing a protest from European nations that have agreed to maintain their commitments.

The Clinton administration, after making an annual pledge of 4.47 million metric tons in December, quietly cut that to 2.5 million tons at a special World Food Conference meeting in London on March 13. A U.S. Commodities Credit Corporation official confirmed the decision Friday. The conference accepted the cut.

The reduction reflects increased pressure on the administration from Republicans in Congress to cut foreign spending.

Since 1974, countries agreeing to the international Food Aid Convention have been making pledges to provide food to the world's poorest nations. The goal was to ensure that at least 10 million metric tons a year goes to developing countries, but barely half that goal would be met with the latest U.S. reductions. A metric ton equals 2,200 pounds.

The commitment covers three years, beginning July 1. The 4.47 million-to-2.5 million level would have matched this year's U.S. pledge.

Try to catch jet with spiderweb

It's not easy to comprehend the extraordinary toughness of a spider web, but try this: If you could weave a web of proportionate strength, but as big as a fishnet, you could catch jet airplanes in it.

Word is szechuan pepper isn't really pepper. I don't care.

Historians say an estimated 30 million people were murdered or starved to death under the reign of Soviet Dictator Josef Stalin. He'd been a theology student in his youth.

In honorable fireplace, intarskarpine and fir snap, crackle and pop, a lot. Oak ash and elm don't, or not much.

It was Abigail Van Buren who said, "The best index to a person's character is (a) how he treats people who can't do him any good, and (b) how he treats people who can't fight back."

Q. When did stamp collecting get started?

A. In 1840, no doubt. That was when the world's first postage stamp was issued in the British Isles. About the same time tea caught up with coffee in popularity over there.

The French of long ago weren't all that fastidious. "Manure" came from an old French verb meaning "to work by hand."

Only primates can rotate their forearms.

Psychologists say TV viewers never see performers as mirror images of themselves.

Q. If you have a common cold, how long is it contagious?

A. Two days before the first symptoms show up until two days after. Or so say some medics.

Q. The knolls won't fight, you say. All right, why not?

A. Abnormally small adrenal glands. That's the current scientific assumption.

L.M. Boyd What's what?

Nation

Jeffrey Montgomery, president of the Triangle Foundation, has joined with other Detroit groups and the national Gay and Lesbian Task Force to plan a candlelight vigil Tuesday for the death of Scott Amedure, who was gunned down March 9, 3 days after he appeared on a taping of 'The Jenny Jones Show' to reveal his crush on another man.

Gays want to refocus debate from talk show to hate crimes

DETROIT (AP) — After the fatal shooting of a man who had gone on "The Jenny Jones Show" and revealed his crush on another man, much of the blame fell on talk shows — their topics, their ambush tactics.

But gay activists and others say the debate misses the point: It wasn't a talk show, but fear and revulsion toward gays, that got Scott Amedure killed.

A prosecutor said the man under arrest in the slaying, Jonathan Schmitz, had gone onto the show thinking the secret admirer he was about to meet was a woman, and he was "so humiliated when Amedure stepped forward that he shot him three days after the taping."

"There's such a willingness to buy into the fact that a same-sex attraction is so repulsive," that people now consider it a defense against murder charges, said Lester Olmstead-Rose, executive director of San Francisco's Community United Against Violence.

Amedure, a 32-year-old bartender, was shot in his suburban Detroit home on March 9. Schmitz, a 24-year-old waiter in suburban Detroit, turned himself in the day of the slaying, and the show was never aired.

Police said Schmitz told them that the experience on "The Jenny Jones Show" had "eaten away" at him. And Schmitz's lawyer, Fred Gibson, said: "My client is not a homosexual and takes great offense to anyone who says he maintains such a lifestyle."

"It is a sad commentary in our society that homosexuality has such a negative stigma and it does so for so many people," said Bob Steele, director of the ethics program at the Poynter Institute for Media Studies in St. Petersburg, Fla.

"Gay-rights activists also complained that Oakland County Prosecutor Richard Thompson only reinforced the notion that a heterosexual who finds himself the object of a gay man's affection might have reason to feel humiliated.

"The day after Amedure was slain, Thompson said, "In my view, 'The Jenny Jones Show' ambushed this defendant with humiliation. ... Had this not occurred, I don't believe this defendant would be facing these charges."

Hospital admits 3rd error

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A hospital where errors killed one patient and left another with the wrong leg amputated has admitted another mistake: nearly sterilizing a woman without her consent.

The woman, whose name was not released, had one of her fallopian tubes tied during a Caesarian delivery March 16 at University Community Hospital. The doctor stopped the procedure after an operating room staff member told him the woman didn't authorize it, the hospital said Thursday.

A woman can still give birth with one tube tied.

The mistake surfaced one day after federal officials warned the hospital it could lose up to $50 million in government health insurance payments because the two earlier errors showed "an immediate and serious threat to the health and safety of patients."

The threat of pulling Medicare — the government health insurance for elderly people — is the most serious action the federal Health Care Financing Administration can take.

The 424-bed hospital has until April 20 to start fixing problems with its respiratory care, surgical services, the governing board and the quality assurance program.

On March 3, a patient died when a hospital worker mistakenly shut off his ventilator. His death was reported as heart failure but when his body was examined, an autopsy found he had suffocated without the respirator.

Grammy-winning singer Selena killed in shooting

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Grammy-winning recording star Selena, idol of Mexican-American teen-agers, was shot and killed Friday.

The 23-year-old singer died at Memorial Medical Center in Corpus Christi, Assistant Police Chief Ken Bung said.

The shooting was reported shortly before noon at a Day's Inn motel, two hours later, the suspect held police at bay in the parking lot, sitting in a pickup truck and holding a gun to her head, he said.

Selena, whose full name is Selena Quintanilla Perez, won a Grammy last year for best Mexican-American album for her "Selena Live."

The lead singer for the band Selena y Los Dinos, Selena was one of the most popular figures in the style of music called Tejano. Her album "Amor Prohibido" went quadruple platinum with sales exceeding 400,000 in the United States.

She was nominated for a Grammy again this year for "Amor Prohibido."

AIDS vaccine shows results

NEW YORK (AP) — Monkeys vaccinated against one type of AIDS virus were partly protected from a different type, a small study found.

The result suggests that an AIDS vaccine for people might be able to protect against a wide variety of HIV, researchers wrote.

Rhesus macaques were immunized against HIV-1, the dominant type in the United States, and exposed to HIV-2, which is prevalent in West Africa.

Three of eight vaccinated macaques resisted HIV-2 infection during the six-month observation period, while all three unvaccinated animals became infected, researchers reported in the April issue of the journal Nature Medicine.

Operation Rescue moves next door to clinic

DALLAS (AP) — Taking up a battle front-line position in the late over-abortion, Operation Rescue is moving its headquarters next door to an abortion clinic — one that employs the woman who was at the center of Roe vs. Wade.

"It's a tremendous place. At the killing center, at the gates of hell, is where the church of Jesus Christ needs to be," said the Rev. Flip Benham, Operation Rescue's national director.

The Rev. Flip Benham, Operation Rescue's national director, talks to the media Friday outside his new offices—next door to an abortion clinic in Dallas.

Employees at A Choice for Women, a clinic that has been offering abortions at 9222 Markville Dr. since 1991, looked on in horror Friday as the militant anti-abortion group known for blockading clinics moved in at 9224 Markville.

The two now sit in offices side by side — separated only by a wall in the same two-story office building.

"I'm horrified. I'm sure it could escalate into a lot of violence," said Norma McCorvey, marketing director for the clinic. "My main concern is for our clinic and the Supreme Court ruling establishing the right to one.

On the sidewalk, Benham beamed as he helped move furniture. He insisted it was a coincidence that Operation Rescue rented space next to the clinic when the lease on the group's national headquarters elsewhere in Dallas expired.

"We did not orchestrate this," he said. "We are not smart enough or shrewd enough. It was almighty God."

Benham turned abruptly and grinned at McCorvey, who had come outside to watch. "Hey Norma! We're on for lunch today!" he shouted. "Don't forget!"

Benham admitted that being neighbors gives anti-abortion activists more access to clinic patients. The group already talked one woman out of an abortion Friday morning, he said.

"We couldn't come on this property, and now we are tenants of the property. And believe me, that's God," Benham said.

Air travel discounts spread to other lines

NEW YORK (AP) — Big airlines Friday began matching a Northwest summer fare sale that offers up to 50 percent discounts on some domestic flights, and American said it was expanding the promotion to all U.S. destinations.

Northwest introduced the discount Thursday and said the sale would last until April 7, a week from today. The fares may be the lowest travelers will see this summer, said Michael E. Levine, a Northwest executive vice president.

Friday, USAir Group Inc. and Trans World Airlines Inc. both said they would offer fares in markets where they compete with Northwest.

American, one of the biggest airlines in the country, said through spokeswoman Theresa Hanson it was applying the discounts "in all domestic markets, not just the ones where we compete with Northwest."

She also said American was extending the sale date by a week to April 14.

Other airlines didn't immediately respond to queries about their plans. Under the conditions set by Northwest, passengers must fly Tuesday, Wednesday or on Saturday afternoons between May 1 and Sept. 14 to get the full 50 percent discount-in-ities—where-it-is offered. Discounts will be less at other times.

A sample 50 percent fare is $318 for a roundtrip ticket from Colorado Springs, Colo., to Boston. A roundtrip from Los Angeles to Miami or New York to San Diego costs $338, a 49 percent discount.

Tickets must be bought 30 days in advance and require a Saturday night stay.

The airline also said it is substantially discounting fares in many markets to Canada and certain destinations in Mexico and the Caribbean.

Italian ambassador honors parents of slain boy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A California boy's parents were awarded Italy's highest civil decoration Friday for donating Nicholas Green's organs to seven Italians after bandits killed him on an isolated highway last September in Italy.

"Your name and the name of Nicholas have become synonymous with compassion, forgiveness and courage," said Italian Ambassador Boris Biancheri. At an embassy ceremony, he pinned on Reginald and Margaret Green identical Gold Medals of Civil Merit, describing them as "a small but significant award" being presented to non-Italians for the first time in memory.

Green said he was accepting the decoration not only in memory of his slain 7-year-old son but also in behalf of other organ donor families who receive less recognition.

"Maggie and I think Italy has reached the limit in what they can give us," Green said, recalling how the couple and Nicholas' 5-year-old sister, Eleanor, were acclaimed throughout Italy on a return visit in November.

"We have received from the Roman Catholic Church tributes accorded to people of the character of Mother Teresa," Green said. Last week, he added, a bell cast by Pope John Paul II's foundry was sent for a memorial planned in their home town, Bodega Bay, Calif.

"I'm an agnostic," he said, so such church honors are "pretty heavy stuff."

Green expects to be called as a witness at the trial of two suspects in the shooting, which happened while the vacationing family drove along a robbery-prone highway in Calabria, the toe of the Italian boot.

"I'm sure it will be a searing experience," he said. "It's important that if they are the people they should be punished, put away with a stiff prison sentence, to deter other people."

NBC rejects live coverage of Gingrich talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — NBC says it will cover House Speaker Newt Gingrich's prime-time speech next week based on its newsworthiness but will not carry the address live.

CNN earlier this week said it would cover Gingrich's proposed speech, which is designed to mark the completion of the "Contract With America" and look ahead to GOP efforts to balance the budget.

CBS said Friday it will carry the address inside a one-hour special report on Congress. ABC has yet to announce plans.

"If it turns out to be newsworthy we will deal with it in Dateline NBC," which airs shortly after Gingrich's speech is expected to conclude, NBC spokeswoman Heidi Pokorny said Thursday.

In addition, Pokorny noted that the "Today" show and "NBC Nightly News" would originate from Washington part of next week to coincide with the anticipated completion of the GOP "Contract With America."

Land Board preserves ranchers' leases

The Associated Press

BOISE — The state Land Board on Friday again rejected premium bids by the Idaho Watersheds Project for two state-grazing leases and voted to approve renewal of those leases with the Simplot Livestock Co. and the Swan Land & Livestock Co.

It marked the second and third straight times Halley environmentalist Jon Marvel and his organization have been denied the ability to remove from grazing stream areas that they believe have been seriously damaged by livestock.

"There doesn't seem to be any effort of management," Marvel said. "What is that we have to do to get a change out there in the way these lands are managed?"

Both decisions were unanimous by the five-member board although Gov. Phil Batt was not present for the second vote on the Swan lease in Twin Falls County. Essentially, the board held that the Public School Endowment Fund would benefit more in the long run from keeping the land in the hands of ranchers because of the overall impact the industry has on the Idaho economy.

Marvel argued that there would be no significant reduction in economic activity if the tracts were retired for a decade so the stream beds could be regenerated, and that the endowment benefited more because his premium bids were higher than either Simplot's or Swan's.

Both decisions are expected to be appealed to the district court as Marvel's first loss was last year. In that case involving a 640-acre Custer County tract leased by rancher Will Ingram, 5th District Judge

James May upheld the board, but the state Supreme Court is considering that decision and is expected to ultimately decide the Simplot and Swan cases as well.

But while the board agreed to 10-year renewals of both leases, it made rehabilitating-deteriorated conditions along Clover Creek on the Simplot tract in Owyhee County and House Creek on the Swan tract provisions of the deal.

"There is some work to be done," State Controller J.D. Williams said.

A major factor in the board's decision was the fact that the Watersheds Project was bidding on only lease tracts with streams when they are often the key part of a much larger grazing allotment because they provide water for the stock.

"They were allowed to bid only on the wet sections, cherry pick if you will," said

Simplot Livestock President Tom Basabe. "If our cows can't get a drink of water, then in my opinion those dry sections are going to lose their ability to generate money for the endowment."

But Deborah Kronenberg, the Watersheds Project attorney, suggested the tracts were either not critical to the ranching operations or the ranchers simply expected the Land Board to return the leases to them no matter how the auctions came out.

Marvel opened the Simplot bidding at $600 and the Swan bidding at $275. The ranchers responded by raising the bids the minimum $5 and then dropped out after Marvel rebid $630 on the Simplot tract and $400 on the Swan tract. Kronenberg pointed out that winning bids — which were rejected

Man hospitalized after fall into canyon

TWIN FALLS — Jerome County Search and Rescue teams and ambulance workers were busy for about 3½ hours Friday night assisting in a helicopter rescue of a man who fell in the Snake River canyon near Devils Corn.

Using axes and their hands, roughly two dozen workers cleared a path from a 75 square-foot area for a makeshift helipad, said Jerome County Sheriff George Silver III.

The victim was lifted out of the canyon by St. Alphonsus Medical Center's Boise-based helicopter; he was taken to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in Twin Falls, Silver said. No information was available on his condition Friday night.

According to emergency workers' radio broadcasts, some of the rescuers themselves were apparently retrieved from the canyon by the helicopter. The accident occurred about 1 mile away from roads in the area. The victim had been swimming in lakes with a female companion and climbing rocks, Silver said.

The rescuers began gathering at the scene at about 6:15 p.m., according to broadcasts. The helicopter signed off from the scene at about 9:35 p.m.

Ax attack in automobile ends with 2 arrests

SHOSHONE — Two hatchet-wielding men were arrested Friday evening after one of their traveling companions reported he had been robbed of $800, then beaten and dumped with another man by the roadside, according to a sheriff's deputy.

The men, in their late 30s, were driving their Oldsmobile Cutlass toward the city of Minidoka at about 7 p.m. when they robbed their two passengers, said Col. Tim Dudley of the Minidoka County Sheriff's Department.

One man had no money — but the other, a Rupert resident, had $800 on him, Dudley said. The men beat the Rupert man and dumped both of them out on the gravel road 600 North about two miles south of Minidoka, Dudley said.

The men threatened them with a hatchet, but didn't use it, Dudley said.

The pair were arrested at about 8:30 p.m. on Idaho Highway 24 just east of Shoshone by Idaho State Police and Minidoka County Sheriff's Department, he said.

The Rupert man was "bruised up, but he will be okay," Dudley said.

2 School Board seats open for contest in May election

TWIN FALLS — Monday is the first day for School Board candidates to declare their candidacy with the Twin Falls School District. Two seats, belonging to Vera Redman and Chairman Steve Tolman, will be up for re-election during the May 16 election.

Tolman, who represents the 4th District has announced he will not run again. Redman, from the 3rd District, remains undecided. More information is available at the district office at 201 Main Ave. W. in Twin Falls, 733-6900.

County planners will discuss canyon-rim building request

TWIN FALLS — County planners will be talking Monday night about whether they should allow R. Todd Blass to build a residential subdivision on 22 canyon-rim acres north of Filer.

The county planning and zoning commission tabled Blass' request last month amid concerns from his neighboring farmers. The commission won't decide on the zoning request before April 13. Monday night's meeting is a work session to review comments and zoning documents.

The work session is open to the public and begins at 7 p.m. Monday at the county office building, 246 Third Ave. E., Twin Falls.

Hispanic CSI students band together

By Karen Tolkinen Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Ask him if it's easy for a Hispanic student to attend college. Luis Ramirez will tell you no.

When he started at the College of Southern Idaho, he thought he was the only Hispanic student on campus.

"I was the only Latino student I saw," he said.

The first-year law enforcement student at the College of Southern Idaho has formed a club for Hispanic students because he wants to cut down on the dropout rate.

Citing a 3-year-old study, he said: Three in 10 Hispanic students will graduate from high school. Two in 10 will go to college. One in 10 will graduate from college.

Some of the 31 students in his club have money troubles — they might not be able to afford notebooks, gas to drive home or new shoes.

And some of them had to cross barriers at home to attend college.

"They pretty much had to beg to come to school because their parents are like, 'Why do you want to go to school?'" Ramirez said.

Hispanics make up 3.5 percent of the CSI student body. The number of Hispanic students dropped a bit over last year, according to figures released by the college in February. That could be because the college doesn't offer enough English-language courses and students activities geared toward ethnic groups, said Ken Campbell, director of institutional research for the college.

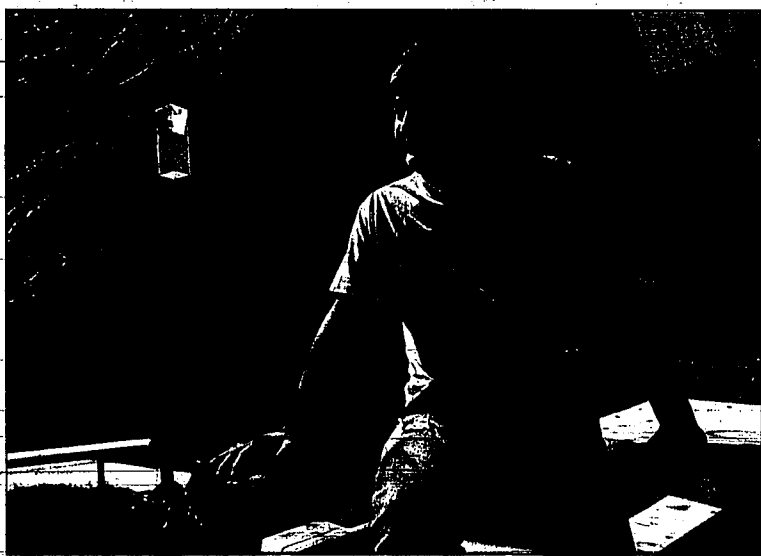

Ramirez said students sometimes feel discouraged from the student body when they first start school.

"I grew up in a place where Mexican was here, white was over there. We were segregated," he said. "They're exposed to so many different cultures, so many different people, that they're shy."

Sam Byrd, who directed the state Hispanic task force on education in 1991, said families and schools factor into a student's decision to go to school.

Racism and bigotry often turn students off of school so they never consider college, he said.

"Schools tend to have very low expectations of Hispanic students and tend not to have teachers who are bilingual or

College of Southern Idaho student Luis Ramirez has started a club for Hispanic students at the Twin Falls campus.

Mexican-American," he said.

And Hispanic parents who are poor or uneducated don't get involved enough in their children's education, he said. Hispanic families face a 30 percent poverty rate.

Ramirez hopes his club will counter factors which prevent students from entering and completing their college education.

He has worked not only at the college but with high school students. Most recently, club members gave CSI tours to Hispanic students from Wendell. They plan to intensify those efforts in the fall by meeting seniors and helping them with financial aid.

"That's something we desperately want to be involved in," he said.

Still, he said the task of helping fellow Hispanic students sometimes seems overwhelming.

"Are we going too far, are we going too fast, can we really do this?" he said. "Even if it's just one semester where they can take the time and opportunity to go to school, I feel they would have a better opportunity to get ahead."

Border agents focus on law-breaking aliens

By Liz Wright Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Another crop season is about to begin, but U.S. Border Patrol Agent Jerry Oloff won't be spending much of his time rounding up illegal-alien farm workers.

Instead, he is busy with deportation paperwork for an increasing number of aliens convicted of crimes and sitting in local jails.

"You've got to take care of the criminals," he said. "Otherwise they'd just be released back into society."

Meanwhile, dozens of reports and sitings of illegal workers from this year and others have been piling up on his desk at the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service office on Addison Avenue.

So far this year, Oloff has processed a constant stream of 60 to 70 cases of resident and illegal aliens convicted of crimes in 23 counties in southern Idaho; his caseload has nearly tripled in the past six years, he said.

His staff has dwindled to four agents from eight in the past decade. Oloff and his agents prepare reports on illegal convicts, then drive or fly them out of state for deportation court hearings, where judges decide whether to deport the criminals back to their homeland.

The changing focus of the agency has kept his office out of the public eye. A decade ago, the Border Patrol mostly focused on checking farms and businesses for illegal workers and investigating alien smuggling in Idaho and Utah, he said.

"We're not as visible as we were 10 years ago," Oloff said. "Simply because the majority of the work we're doing is in the jail and processing aliens here in the office."

Because of his limited time and staff, Oloff relies heavily on the cooperation of local jail officials to detain convicted aliens who have served their time.

Any alien is a target for deportation if he has been convicted of a crime, particularly a felony. Oloff estimates that about 20 percent of the potential deportees are involved on drug-related crimes.

The agricultural-Magic Valley-is-a-hub of illegal-alien smuggling, he said.

The activity picks up in early spring; this year the gated parking lot behind his office already contains about 15 cars, trucks and vans seized by his agents — vehicles that brought aliens across the Mexican border.

His office auctions about 40 to 50 confiscated vehicles every year, he said.

When Oloff and his agents have time, they embark on special operations to round up several hundred illegal workers each year in southern Idaho and Utah, he said.

But it's a job never finished — he estimates there are several thousand illegal workers in the Magic Valley alone during peak employment in summer months.

Employers who knowingly hire illegal workers can be fined up to $2,000 for each worker, $5,000 for the second offense and $10,000 for the third offense.

Most employers don't realize they are hiring illegal aliens because the aliens present them with false identification, he said.

The overwhelming majority of legal and illegal aliens in the Magic Valley come from Mexico to work in the fields. But they also come from other places, such as Pakistan, he said.

School counselor seeks better communication

By Karen Tolkinen Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Gang violence in the Magic Valley hasn't reached New Mexico's level.

But one woman wants to catch it before it starts.

Terry Smith Koehler, a counselor for the Twin Falls School District, says Magic Valley schools could learn from New Mexico, which started a violence-intervention plan two years ago.

Schools and social agencies could prevent violence by watching for children with violent tendencies and by improving communication between social workers, schools, the police and the courts, she said.

Paul Frick, director of the Snake River Detention Center, said he likes the idea.

"It's one of those concerns when we get a new kid," Frick said. "We need to know if he's in school, what school he's in, what his grade level is, what his courses are, and if he's been suspended from school we need to know what that was for."

"Perhaps one of the most dramatic examples of miscommunication between social agencies and the schools occurred last August, when the Department of Health and Welfare failed to notify Twin Falls High School officials that a sex offender was poised to enter school."

School officials found out about the offender, who participated in more than 200 sex acts with younger children, through a newspaper article and prevented the student from enrolling.

Two Health and Welfare officials admitted their department erred in not informing the school.

If Koehler's plan goes through, it will tackle the problem from the other direction. Often schools are reticent to talk about their students to social agencies because they're bound by different confidentiality rules.

"Some of the schools will not share any information at least on a formal basis," Frick said. "If the kid has been involved in burglaries or petty theft, the probation officer might feel it would be helpful to know what's going on in the school."

If representatives get together to talk about the communication gap, it might ease the situation and reassure schools that information will not be used improperly, he said.

There already have been some cooperative efforts between schools and social agencies.

In Shoshone, police, sheriffs, superintendents and social workers sign a confidentiality agreement so they can jointly discuss cases that might affect each organization.

And schools and agencies collaborate in offering courses to juvenile offenders and funding the School Companies program.

On Monday, a director from the New Mexico Center for Dispute Resolution will speak to representatives from social agencies around the area. There will be an informational meeting from 9 a.m. to noon and a planning session from 1 to 4 p.m. at the College of Southern Idaho's Aspen Room.

Koehler said she hopes the session will result in better communication and some plan for training teachers and social workers in violence intervention.

Bomb damages Forest Service office

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — A small bomb exploded at a U.S. Forest Service office, not hurting anyone but shattering several windows and damaging a wall and the unoccupied office of District Ranger Guy Pence.

Pence said he knew of no motive for the bombing, which occurred late Thursday while the office was closed and wasn't discovered until an employee showed up for work just before 7 a.m. Friday.

"If somebody had been sitting here, they would have been dead," Pence said as he surveyed his debris-covered desk which had faced the window sill where the bomb was placed. "I would hope this was directed at me."

Both the BLM and the Forest Service have been involved in "Sagebrush Rebellion" issues including increased fees for grazing livestock, mining on federal lands, and public access to lands under their control.

Asked whether there could be a link between the bombing and those controversies, Pence said he didn't want to speculate. "We can speculate forever and die this all sorts of things," he added.

The blast broke four windows, gouged a big hole in the sill, tore off some rock facing material and broke well-framing and sheetrock.

A computer terminal, telephone, and other items on top of Pence's desk, the desk itself and other office equipment were damaged. His baseball cap was shredded.

Sherriff Rod Banister said his office got about 30 calls at about 7:30 p.m. Thursday from people reporting a loud gunshot, but officers who checked the area didn't see anything at that time. Federal and local investigators declined to say what type of device was used, except that it was less powerful than a bomb that ripped a 3-foot hole through the roof of a Bureau of Land Management office in Reno in October 1993.

Debris litters the area outside the U.S. Forest Service office in Carson City, Nev., Friday afternoon after a bomb blast late Thursday.

The BLM bomb apparently was contained in a satchel or briefcase that was thrown on the roof of the building. There were no arrests in that case.

Pence also said the office routine prior to the explosion at the 1-story building, on Carson City's main street, had been normal and he wasn't aware of any threatening calls or confrontations — "but the definition of normal is a different definition these days." He also noted that a small Forest Service guard station north of Reno was broken into last week, but that appeared to be a burglary attempt. "It would be unfair to link them to this time," he added.

In related action, Elko Undersheriff Clair Morris said a small pipe bomb damaged a restaurant in Lamaille Canyon, on Forest Service land, but added, "It looks to me like more of a kid's prank than anything." Morris wasn't sure when that blast occurred, other than some time this week.

Ag chief vows to have 'loud, obnoxious' voice for farmers

WASHINGTON — Newly installed Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman Friday vowed to be a "loud, sometimes obnoxious voice" for agriculture and rural America as many in Congress and across the U.S. question the need for farm programs.

In a speech during a welcoming ceremony put on by Agriculture Department employees; Glickman called agriculture "a national asset" that is every bit "as important as the defense system," but which is "often taken for granted," or even attacked.

"It is my hope to be an active, loud, sometimes obnoxious voice both within the White House and throughout the country for the needs of agriculture and rural America," Glickman said. "There are a lot of loud, obnoxious voices out there on the other side."

But Glickman, who was confirmed by the Senate and sworn in Thursday, also said USDA should not be "blindly locked into the status quo."

While farm programs have been "successful," the federal government should continue what has been effective and "reform and change what has not."

While unveiling few details of the Clinton administration's plans for the 1995 farm bill, Glickman said a top priority should be simplifying farm programs and reducing the USDA paperwork load on farmers and ranchers.

In that regard, a farm program that relies less on "historical" acreage bases to determine what crops can be planted would be more flexible and probably involve less paperwork, he said.

However, in revamping farm programs for the 21st century, the federal government shouldn't begin by "dismantling" them, Glickman said, echoing some of his recent remarks.

Last week, Glickman told the Senate Agriculture Committee at his confirmation hearings that deep cuts in farm programs could damage the environment. He said he would emphasize in its decisions on Friday.

Currently only about 300,000 of the 1.8 billion acres of state grazing range is under a management plan.

Micron uninformed of building barriers

PROVO, Utah (AP) — State officials may have withheld important information from Micron Technology Inc. about Utah County's failure to comply with federal air regulations, The Daily Herald reported Friday.

An official of the state Department of Environmental Quality told the newspaper the Boise-based microprocessor manufacturer wasn't told that roads leading to its proposed Lehi facility cannot be expanded because the county's particulate pollution plan will not control PM10 pollution for a 20-year period.

The uninformed official said a Micron Technology executive called the DAQ and "wanted to know why they were lied to about conformity."

"They said they were never told about conformity, and that SR 92 was not a regionally significant road," the official told the newspaper.

Joseph Jenkins, executive director of the state Department of Community and Economic Development, said Micron was given all the relevant facts about Utah County's air pollution problems.

His efforts, however, have focused new attention on the need for approved environmentally sound management plans for all state grazing tracts — something the board emphasized in its decisions on Friday.

Currently only about 300,000 of the 1.8 billion acres of state grazing range is under a management plan.

The family of VIOLET LEGUINECHE would like to express our deep appreciation for all those who expressed their thoughtfulness during the loss of our loved one.

Twin Falls recreation to offer youth wrestling

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls school district and recreation department will be offering youth wrestling.

There will be six practices at the Twin Falls High School new gymnasium. They will be April 4, 6, 11, 13, 18 and 20. Kindergarten through second-grade students practice from 5 p.m. to 5:45 p.m. Third through sixth graders will practice from 5:45 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

The cost is $7 for children living within the city limits and $10 for students outside of the city limits. The registration for competition will be the last two days of practice. For more information call 736-2265.

Bronco tennis players earn Big Sky Conference honors

BOISE — Boise State's Kristian Widen and Gayle McManus have been named the Big Sky Conference men's and women's tennis players of the week.

Big Sky Commissioner Ron Stephenson announced the awards Tuesday.

Widen, a senior from Ekerö, Sweden, is on a five-match winning streak and won each of his three No. 6 singles matches at the U.S. WEST Cellular Tennis Classic in straight sets.

McManus, a freshman from Auckland, New Zealand, is on a four-match winning streak and is 17-7 on the year.

Reeves makes minicement of Kingdom backboard

SEATTLE — Big Country made a big mess out of a Kingdom backboard Friday.

Bryant Reeves of Oklahoma State's 7-foot, 290-pound center, shattered a backboard while doing a reverse dunk during practice at the Final Four.

"I don't know what happened," Reeves said. "It's just the way I grabbed the rim I guess, and the rest is history."

It was the fourth backboard Reeves has ruined. He broke one in Italy in the summer of 1993 while playing with a U.S. team that was touring Europe, then broke two in one week during the fall of 1993.

Rapper to tell of wrongdoing if black QB not named starter

MIAMI — 2 Live Crew rapper Luther Campbell has threatened to "tell all" about possible wrongdoing in the University of Miami football program if black quarterback Ryan Collins isn't named the team's starter.

"If he were white, being from Miami, he'd be God's gift to America," Campbell said. "If they don't start Ryan Collins, the University of Miami will get the death penalty. I will tell all. I will tell everything I know to the NCAA. If he doesn't go out there for the first play versus UCLA, I'll give you all the violations from 1986 to last year. As of now, I don't know anything. I'm stupid. But if Ryan doesn't start, Coach Butch Davis is going to wish he never took that job."

CSI splits twinbill with Ricks

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — The good, the bad and the ugly of the College of Southern Idaho baseball team all showed up for a doubleheader split with Ricks College Friday afternoon.

The good arrived early, with CSI pounding out 10 runs and Brandon Duckworth shutting down the Vikings for five innings.

That 10-0 run-rule victory on a perfect spring day atoned for Thursday night's 11-3 shellacking that opened the northern division race.

But the bad returned for game two as the Eagle bats went limp in a 5-1 loss. The problems that plagued his team throughout the preseason — poor hitting and an inability to capitalize on scoring chances — continue to trouble CSI coach Skip Walker.

"Oppunity knocked, but we just didn't take it," Walker said.

Clint Wyrick hit a one-out double in the first inning, but went no further. In the second, Tony Pezely led off the inning with a double, then took third a couple of batters later but couldn't score.

In the third, it was more of the same, as Viking pitcher Richard Wenger put the first two Eagles on, Erik Highland brought in CSI's only run with a base hit into right field and the Eagles looked ready for a big inning.

But a pop up, a liner to the pitcher that found a CSI baserunner caught between third base and home, and a strikeout ended the threat.

"They keep dragging the carrot in front of me," Walker said. "Everybody's going to do it, but they don't follow through."

CSI pitcher Bryan Gallagher struggled through 2½ scoreless innings before Walker brought in Rob Vael with two on and nobody out in the Viking third. He surrendered one run before getting out of the inning, and the teams battled to a 1-1 tie into the sixth frame.

Ricks second baseman Jamie Hardy hit Vael's first pitch of the inning over the left field wall to start a four-run rally.

Art Dillaway came on for CSI with two men on, but gave up two doubles — the first by Steve Farris brought in two runs — before getting the hook.

"That was a big hit for us," Ricks coach Jerry Schlegelmilch said of Farris' clutch two-bagger. "Until then it was a one-run game, and that's nothing against these guys."

Wyrick ended Ricks' run with the defensive gem of the day, gunning down a Viking runner at the plate from shallow center field.

In the opener, Ricks failed to score despite leading the bases in the first two innings.

"That was our worst game of the season," Schlegelmilch said. "We couldn't run, we couldn't hit, we couldn't hit, we couldn't throw."

The Eagles jumped on top with three runs on four hits in the second, then knocked out starting pitcher Adam Mattson with three more-in-the-Eagle.

Eagle first-baseman Trevor Davis capped a four-run outburst in the fourth inning with a two-run homer over the 386-foot mark in center field. That was more than enough for Duckworth, who gave up just four hits.

"Brandon pitched pretty well," Walker said. "But the jury's still out. We gave him a ton of runs today."

CSI goes to 16-16 overall, and 1-2 in the Region 18 Northern Division standings. They face College of Eastern Utah Monday and Tuesday. Ricks goes to 2-1 in the division and 20-10 overall despite playing all its games on the road.

Wednesday's home game against Utah-Valley will be cancelled, since the Viking field remains covered with four inches of snow. Ricks travels to North Idaho next weekend and will try to play a home series the following week-end against Treasure Valley.

"Maybe we better stay on the road. We're getting used to it," Schlegelmilch said. "Every Thursday we pack up our stuff and head out."

The tortoise vs. the hare in Cowboys-UCLA game

The Associated Press

SEATTLE — They are like the tortoise and the hare, Oklahoma State plodding its way up and down the court, UCLA making the same trip in overdrive.

Much of Saturday's NCAA tournament semifinal between the Cowboys and the Bruins depends on which team succeeds in dictating the tempo of the game. Slow and steady Oklahoma State would prefer a half-court defensive duel. Fleet UCLA wants a footrace.

"We like to run," Oklahoma State coach Eddie Sutton said Friday. "But if someone runs better than we do, we hope we can adjust and make them play our style of game."

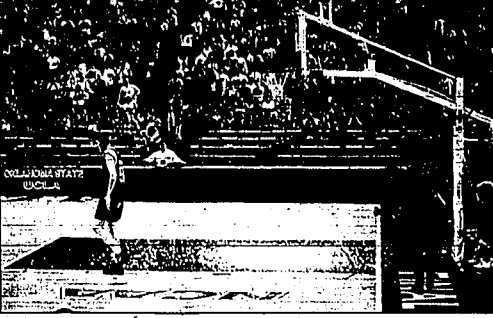

That means a disciplined, half-court defense and forcing the opponent to work hard for every shot. It worked wonders in the East regional against Wake Forest and Massachusetts, and now Sutton will try to apply it to UCLA's race-horse attack.

UCLA coach Jim Harrick thinks Oklahoma State's deliberate style is overrated.

"They were the third leading point-scoring team in the Big Eight Conference, so they don't play real slow," he said. "They play medium. I think to be a good basketball team you've have got to play fast, you've got to play medium, you've got to play all styles. A good team plays all styles."

The Oklahoma State-UCLA matchup is loaded with heavy-duty offensive players. The Cowboys emphasize the inside-outside game of Bryant "Big Country" Reeves and the 3-point shooting of Randy Rutherford. Ed O'Bannon is the centerpiece of UCLA's attack.

But if this game boils down to a test of tempo, the burden will be on the point guards, Andre Owens of Oklahoma State and Tony Edney of UCLA. That could be a fascinating chess game.

Bryant Reeves of Oklahoma State walks away from the backboard he shattered during practice Friday.

Strike ruling still leaves questions

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Will they lock out? Will they go back to the bargaining table? Will they go forward with replacement games?

Until the owners meet Sunday in Chicago, it's not clear what happens next in major league baseball.

It's unclear if Sunday night's season opener between the New York Mets and Florida Marlins will take place as scheduled at Joe Robbie Stadium.

It's unclear if and when the striking players will report to spring training.

There are many things that could happen from there, including that we may be back in spring training for about three weeks in Tucson, Colorado Rockies owner Jerry McMorris said. "But we may not be. Do you play the temporary players while the regular players get ready? There are some relatively tricky issues to work through."

Players have made an unconditional offer to return to work, ending their 232-day strike, the longest work stoppage in the history of U.S. sports.

Management's first decision is whether to accept the offer. The second decision could be whether to impose a lockout. At least three-quarters of the owners would have to agree on a lockout, and owners and management officials have said the pro-lockout faction didn't appear to have the necessary 21 votes needed to continue the work stoppage.

Despite the predictions, even owners probably won't know the answer until they meet in Chicago.

If owners lock out the union, they risk damages of more than $5 million a day if they ultimately lose their trial scheduled to start May 22 before an administrative law judge.

And they'll have to go through salary arbitration and sign fee agents anyway unless they get the injunction overturned by the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which has scheduled a Tuesday hearing on the owners' request for a stay.

Owners could start with replacements for three weeks while the real major leaguers are at spring training, but they would risk having to pay the regular players under the precedent established by the National Labor Relations Board following the end of the 1987 N.L.B. strike.

Owners also could push back the start of season by a few days or a week, giving the sides more time to negotiate an agreement.

Acting commissioner Bud Selig and union head Donald Fehr had a brief telephone conversation late Friday afternoon. Selig, according to one person on the players' side, said he wasn't in a position to respond either to the union's contract offer or the unconditional offer to return to work.

There was hope among some on the union staff that a bargaining session could be put together as soon as Sunday night, but others on the union staff thought that was a bit too optimistic.

Most recent champions collide on different roads

The Associated Press

SEATTLE — One of the last two national champions will have a chance to be the next national champion.

Arkansas, looking to become the second team to repeat since the days of the UCLA dynasty, will meet North Carolina, the team that failed to do that last season, in the second of Saturday's Final Four games.

Arkansas' attempt join Duke in 1991 and 1992 as a recent repeater is one of the success stories of the NCAA's tournaments. Only Duke and UNLV the season before even reached the Final Four as defending champion. North Carolina was gone in the second round the year after winning it all.

"You have to congratulate them for getting back to this level," North Carolina coach Dean Smith said Friday. "It's remarkable they have done what they have done."

The Razorbacks (31-6) had all five starters back this season, the first defending champion to do that since UCLA in 1967. That made a rough task nearly impossible.

"The expectations were so high and so unreasonable," Arkansas coach Nolan Richardson said. "Not only were we supposed to be No. 1, we were supposed to go undefeated and also win every game by 20 points."

The expectations for both are now focused on reaching the championship game. One very recent champion goes home, the other goes on to play the winner of the UCLA-Oklahoma State game on Monday night.

The Tar Heels (28-5) came in having won their four tournament games by an average of 13.7 points, the last a 74-61 victory over Kentucky in the Southeast Regional championship game.

Arkansas had a far different road, winning its four games by a total of 15 points, two in overtime and the last 68-61 over Virginia to win the Midwest Regional.

Stanford, UConn play in the other Final Four

The Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — Maybe they believed they were unbeatable. Maybe they believed they were destined to become only the second women's team to win the NCAA tournament with a perfect record.

Maybe they still do.

But there is no doubt the No. 1 Connecticut Huskies were shaken in the first half of their East Regional final against Virginia. Coach Geno Auriemma said Friday that his team may have realized its flaws at a terrible point in the season.

I would have loved to have beaten Virginia by 35 and come in here on a roll with my kids feeling like we had no weaknesses," Auriemma said. "The only weaknesses they would feel they have are the ones their coach tells them about everyday. But unfortunately that didn't happen, and we saw a side of ourselves we knew was there but we didn't want to see."

Auriemma hopes that uncertainty won't stifle the Huskies (33-0) when they meet No. 4 Stanford (30-2) in the second of Saturday's NCAA semifinals at the Target Center.

But he also is quick to point out that the Huskies rallied to beat the nation's 10th-ranked team. That's the part of the story Stanford coach Tara VanDerveer also remembers most. She says the close call might have come at a perfect time for Connecticut.

"Conches, for the most part, try to use every experience as an opportunity," VanDerveer said. "During the game you don't like a close game, but after the game you definitely benefit from it. I don't think you can expect to go through the NCAA tournament and win by 30 points a game."

Great Scott!!! Free throws give Magic 101-98 victory over the Jazz

The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — Dennis Scott's two free throws with 23.4 seconds left broke a tie, helping the Orlando Magic average a 12-point home loss with a 101-98 victory over the Utah Jazz on Friday night.

The Magic, who had lost nine of their previous 12 road games, got their biggest one of the season, handing the Jazz just their second loss at the Delta Center in 19 games and preserving the NBA's best record. Orlando lost to Utah 107-95 on March 14.

Shaquille O'Neal had 28 points and 11 rebounds to lead Orlando and had a key block in the final minutes. Aronie Hardaway added 21 points.

Karl Malone gave Utah with 26 points and 12 rebounds, and John Stockton had 20 points and 11 assists.

A basket by Horace Grant gave Orlando a 94-83 lead with 7:49 to play before the Jazz scored 11 unanswered points, tying the game on two free throws by Malone with 4:36 left.

After O'Neal hit two free throws — his only points of the quarter — with 2:08 remaining, Jeff Hornacek hit a technical free throw when Utah was assessed for using an illegal defense. Stockton went to the line with a chance to put the Jazz ahead but missed his second free throw. The Jazz got possession, but Adam Keefe's shot was blocked by O'Neal.

After Scott made his free throws, Malone had an open shot but passed to Keefe, who lost the ball. Anderson hit one of two free throws with 4.4 seconds left to seal the win.

Orlando led by nine at half-time and 11 in the third quarter when Horace Grant went to the bench after reagravating a right finger sprain. Malone scored nine straight points, capping the game with a 3-pointer as the shot clock expired.

Malone's free throw with 31.2 seconds left in the quarter pulled the Jazz to 79-76 before Brooks Thompson's 3-pointer gave Orlando a six-point lead going into the final quarter.

Celtics 100, Heat 99

BOSTON — Dino Radja took a pass from Sherman Douglas and scored on a dunk with 1.7 seconds remaining as the Boston Celtics beat the Miami Heat 100-99 Friday night.

Radja scored the deciding basket after Brad Lohaus had given Miami a lead with a 3-pointer with 6.6 seconds remaining.

Douglas scored 29 points and Radja 24 as Boston beat Miami for the fourth time in five games this season and moved ahead of the Heat in the battle for the eighth and final playoff spot in the NBA's Eastern Conference.

Glenn Rice scored 26 points and Khalid Reeves 22 for Miami. Kevin Willis added 20 points and 20 rebounds.

Knicks 101, Mavericks 90

NEW YORK — Derek Harper and John Starks hit two 3-pointers apiece as New York took control in the third period, ending the Mavericks' six-game winning streak.

The Knicks made seven of eight 3-point attempts in the third quarter — while, ironically, making only four of 15 from the side arc — in pulling out to a 77-58 lead.

Patrick Ewing had 18 points, 16 in the first half, to lead the Knicks and Harper added 17 points and six assists. Reserve Hubert Davis chipped in with 14 points.

76ers 86, Blazers 85

PHILADELPHIA — Clarence Weatherspoon hit a 17-foot jump shot with 2.3 seconds left to give Philadelphia the victory.

Dana Barros had 26 points and Weatherspoon 22 for Philadelphia, which won its second straight. The win was only the 11th at home against 25 losses. Jerome Kersey had 16 points and Buck Williams 14 points and 10 rebounds for the Trailblazers, whose road record fell to 19-20.

Cavaliers 98, Bulls 88

CLEVELAND — Chris Mills scored 24 points and Mark Price took control down the stretch as the Cavaliers overcame a 19-point first-half deficit.

Tyrone Hill had 20 points and 11 rebounds for Cleveland, which beat Washington at home for the ninth straight time. The Bulls left their sixth in a row.

Chris Webber scored 27 and Calbert Cheaney 22 for the Bulls.

Nuggets 107, Pacers 92

INDIANAPOLIS — Dikembe Mutombo scored 13 of his 22 points in the first quarter, sending Denver ahead to stay as the Nuggets snapped the Pacers' five-game winning streak.

Denver, battling Sacramento for the eighth spot in the Western Conference playoff, posted its first victory at Market Square Arena since March 13, 1988. Indiana had won six in a row since then.

The inside-outside offense of Denver proved too much for Indiana's defense as the Nuggets shot 60 percent from the field.

Spurs 118, Bucks 102

SAN ANTONIO — David Robinson had 26 points and 10 rebounds Friday night to lead the streaking San Antonio Spurs to their 10th straight victory, a 118-102 defeat of the Milwaukee Bucks.

San Antonio's victory, coupled with Orlando's win Friday night at Utah, pushed the Spurs a half-game ahead of the Jazz for the best record in the Western Conference. San Antonio trails Orlando by two victories for the league's best record, although both teams have 18 losses.

San Antonio's balanced attack featured six players in double figures, including Sean Elliott with 23 points and Avery Johnson with 19 points and 11 assists.

The Spurs tied a franchise record with 10 3-pointers. San Antonio has won 29 of its last 33 games and is 49-9 since Dec. 10. The Spurs' last loss was March 12 at Orlando.

The victory was San Antonio's seventh straight since NBA rebounding leader Dennis Rodman separated his right shoulder in a motorcycle accident March 19. Spurs coach Bob Hill said Friday that Rodman could return to the lineup during a West Coast road trip next week.

Rookie forward Glenn Robinson scored a game-high 31 points for Milwaukee and Vin Baker added 24 points and 14 rebounds.

Milwaukee led a game behind Boston for the final playoff slot in the NBA Eastern Conference.

Suns 106, Timberwolves 96 PHOENIX — Charles Barkley scored 13 of his 27 points in the fourth quarter, helping the Phoenix Suns come from behind to defeat the Minnesota Timberwolves 106-96 Friday night.

The Suns kept it close against the team with the NBA's third-worst record with poor free-throw shooting — 27 for 41 for the game.

It was Phoenix's 24th consecutive win over Minnesota, which has yet to defeat the Suns and will have to wait until next season to try again.

Kevin Johnson led six Suns in double figures with 15 points. He also had 12 assists.

Isaiah Rider led Minnesota with 21 points, Tom Gugliotta had 21, Sean Rooks 20 and Christian Leattner 17.

Leattner grabbed 12 rebounds and Gugliotta led 10, leading the Wolves to a 48-36 advantage on the boards that also helped keep the game tight to the end.

Barkley was the Suns' only double-figure rebounder with 12.

Tennessee, Georgia renew their rivalry

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — For many teams, playing Tennessee with its rich tradition and three national championships can be an intimidating experience.

For Georgia, it's just another game. Or so the Lady Bulldogs say.

Tennessee and Georgia have been playing each other regularly since 1980 and only Louisiana Tech has beaten coach Pat Summitt's Lady Vols more than Georgia, which has 10 victories in the 30-game series.

But the Southeastern Conference rivals have never met in the setting that will greet them Saturday — the semifinals of the NCAA Final Four, with both in Sunday's championship game going to the winner.

"We've never felt like Tennessee was better than Georgia," Georgia coach Andy Landers said. "We've been very competitive in the recruiting areas. We've been very competitive in the arenas that we've played in. "I think most of the people in this room that are familiar with Georgia-Tennessee understand that it's a great rivalry."

It's a rivalry that will reach another level in Saturday's game at the Target Center, which comes a little more than a month after the experienced Lady Vols hammered a sophomore-led Georgia team 83-61 in the regular-season finale.

Much has happened since that game, though, mostly on the Georgia side. After stumbling one more time, against Vanderbilt in the Southeastern Conference tournament, 12th-ranked Georgia (28-4) comes into the Final Four with the confidence and eagerness that would be expected from a young team.

"They have a great team," said Tennessee senior Nikki McCray, a first-team All-American. "We have an advantage because we're older, but they're hungry, just like we are, so it doesn't matter. We've just got to go out and play hard and play smart. I think that's going to be the key for both teams."

Briefly in sports

Sampson, Smith win college basketball honors

SEATTLE — Oklahoma's Kevin Sampson, this season's college basketball coach of the year, remembers his humble beginnings.

Oklahoma's 39-year-old first-year coach became a little better well known Friday when he was honored by The Associated Press. Maryland sophomore Joe Smith was presented the Adolph Rupp Trophy as the national player of the year.

Oklahoma had been picked to finish sixth in the Big Eight this season.

Sampson went to Oklahoma from Washington State, where he had coached the Cougars to a 103-103 record and into the 1994 NCAA tournament, their first berth in 11 years.

The 6-foot-10 Smith was selected Atlantic Coast Conference player of the year after averaging 20.8 points and 10.4 rebounds while shooting 58 percent from the field as the Terrapins finished in a four-way tie for first place in the league.

UConn sweeps 1st women's hoops awards

MINNEAPOLIS — Rebecca Lobo and Geno Auriemma have been an unbeatable combination at Connecticut this season. And an award-winning one.

Lobo was chosen the national player of the year in women's basketball and Auriemma the coach of the year by The Associated Press. The awards were presented Friday — the first time AP has given those honors to women.

Lobo's leadership on the floor and Auriemma's on the sidelines have taken Connecticut to a 33-0 record, the No. 1 national ranking and a berth in the Final Four against Stanford.

A 6-foot-4 senior, Lobo is averaging a team-high 17.1 points and 9.9 rebounds. She also leads the team in blocks at 3.6 per game and in 3-point assists (3.8).

Aoki continues leading tradition at The Tradition

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — Isao Aoki doesn't put like anyone else, and he also doesn't subscribe to the theory that winning one week leads to a letdown the next.

Aoki, considered the Jack Nicklaus of Japan, won the Senior PGA Tour's only back-to-back winner in 1994. And his 6-under-par 65 Friday in The Tradition, coupled with a victory Sunday in a PGA-recognized, but unofficial event near Tokyo put him in position for consecutive winner's checks again.

Aoki's 17-under 137 at the midpoint of the $1 million Tradition left him one stroke ahead of Lee Trevino and two up on Gary Player and Jay Sigel.

Agassi leads the way for U.S. in Davis Cup win

PALERMO, Sicily — Andre Agassi displayed his new attitude, "crazy" wardrobe and relentless game as he gave the heavily favored U.S. team an opening victory over Italy in the Davis Cup Friday.

He beat Andrea Gaudenzi 6-4, 6-4, 6-1 in just over two hours with such ease that even Agassi seemed surprised.

The heavy rain that interrupted Agassi's match for 90 minutes later postponed the second singles match between Pete Sampras and Italy's Renzo Furlan. The match will be played Saturday, along with the doubles. The final two singles are scheduled Sunday.

The decision by Sampras, the world's top player, and Agassi, No. 2, to join the U.S. team after long reluctance thwarted any ambitions that Italy might have harbored.

Vicario out, Martinez barely stays in at cup

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. — Arantxa Sanchez Vicario, the world's No. 1 player, made a painful exit from the Family Circle Cup, while defending champion Conchita Martinez made a forceful entrance into the tournament for the first time in her 10 years as a pro because of a painful right ankle sprain sustained a day earlier.

Martinez, the tournament's second seed, overcame her own woeful display of tennis to reel off 12 straight games and reach the semifinals with a 2-6, 6-3, 6-0 victory No. 6 Iva Majoli. Martinez will face fourth-seeded Natasha Zvereva in Saturday's semifinals.

Rain doesn't put McMoran away entirely

NEW ORLEANS — Dave Bar had the second round of the Freeport McMoran Golf Classic would be postponed because of the heavy rain that fell all night and much of the morning Friday.

The round wasn't put off entirely, just partially delayed. Still, the reluctant golfer shot a 68 to take a one-stroke lead to the clubhouse.

When play was called just before 6 p.m. CST, half the field was still out there, remaining 71 golfers will finish their second round Saturday.

Sharing the song in his heart Twin Falls musician ready to share songs, faith with audience

By Denise Turner
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — God spoke to Mike Kessler through a keyboard. No, not like Moses and the burning bush. But the results were similar. Moses set out to make a difference, and so has Kessler. Kessler's upcoming Palm Sunday concert is his first Christian concert. Here's how it happened.

The Cleveland-born Kessler studied music and theater-arts at California Polytechnic University and eventually started performing on the club circuit, playing keyboard and singing.

He spent the early '80s in Lake Tahoe, working as a professional musician. Then, he tired of the bar scene.

"Actually, on the club circuit, the main motivation is to sell liquor," Kessler said. Kessler took a job with ITT and was transferred to Twin Falls four years ago. In the meantime, he got married and became a father.

Kessler's wife, Chris, is almost finished with her master's degree in public administration from Idaho State University. They are parents to 2-year-old Sammy.

"When Sammy was born, the Kesslers made some crucial decisions about life. "My wife and I both renewed our faith — for Sammy and for all our sakes," Mike Kessler said.

Chris Kessler had been raised Lutheran. Mike Kessler characterizes his early Christian experience as "Methodist and Presbyterian" in and out. The couple settled on Our Savior Lutheran Church.

The church was in need of a keyboard, so Mike Kessler agreed to help shop for it. "I became really enthralled by the new technology in electronic keyboards," he said.

As Kessler explains it, the keyboard's sequencer is like a mini-recording studio. You lay down one track, like piano, and then put strings on top and add on from there, much like composing a piece of music.

"It does great sacred music," Kessler said. "I could see it as a way to attract new church members in the '90s." The electronic keyboard certainly made a difference for Kessler.

"It affected my life and changed it," he said. Kessler quit his job, which had often kept him on the road, and landed a sales position with Welch's music store. He's 44 now, and he spends a chunk of his days working with churches interested in using electronic music equipment.

His spare time is spent tending Sammy

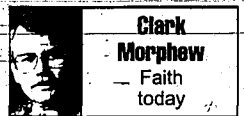

While shopping for a keyboard, Mike Kessler landed a position at Welch's music store where he is able to assist churches in purchasing music equipment.

New Age religion won't be going away

If it is becoming brutally clear that the so-called New Age religion, which has tantalized Americans for the past decade, will not soon go away.

We are dealing here with a religious public, apparently, that will devour just about any sacred-smelling morsel set before them, sort of like a goat at a garbage dump. This does not mean that I consider all New Age directives, techniques and paraphernalia to be unadulterated junk.

Some of this stuff actually works for people, and we should be careful not to throw the goat out with the refuse. Further, I do not want to demean the people who have found a niche in this market, who have discovered some long-lost religious secret that has made a profound difference in their lives.

Clark Morphey
Faith today

However, there is much about this movement, which claims to probe the depths of forgotten and ancient religions, that leaves a conventional person, such as me, wondering why otherwise reasonable people would want to open their chakras to New Age energy.

There! You see, I have already stumped you, because most people honestly don't know much about this religion, which has created itself out of the primordial heap of religious wisdom.

For instance, you are probably wondering, what are chakras? This is important if you want to understand the New Age religion. First, reportedly everyone has chakras; but some people don't know where they are or what their purpose is. You have seven chakras, and they are your pipeline to God and a kind of divine energy.

One explanation says the chakras are your body's batteries. When divine energy is allowed to flow into them, you become a supercharged dynamic every day of your life. The problem is, some of us are so earthbound we are unable to open ourselves to anything more exciting than the authorized hymnbooks that sit in the pew racks.

No wonder our religious lives are so ordinary. We've never gotten our chakras charged up. I confess, my chakras are not even balanced. They are out of kilter. New Ager have told me. That's why I can't get supercharged. My life just rolls along like the prairie in Iowa. At least that's the way it would look on a New Age scope.

Still, simply knowing about chakras will help you survive the New Age. For instance, let's say that a co-worker comments that you seem to be a bit depressed and that you ought to consider seeing a local guru who has worked wonders for all kinds of people. You've heard this pitch before, and you have no inclination to submit to a guru, even one who claims to be a swami.

So, you simply say, "My chakras are not open to that possibility at this point of divination. I'm into Presbyterian hymns at the moment, and I am truly charged."

Of course, your New Age colleague may be puzzled with this solution, but you will be left alone. That's the important thing. An old philosopher (I think it was Soren Kierkegaard) suggested that every person should be left alone to work out his or her salvation with fear and trembling.

Karma is the second thing you have to know about in order to survive the coming onslaught of New Age ideas. Karma is sort of like the impression you make when you walk in a crowded room. You've heard about people who draw the attention of everyone in a room, energizing the crowd as these gifted folk stride through the gallery.

That person could be you — if you learn to mold your karma, which is packed with all kinds of memories from your past lives. Some of those memories are negative, especially as you walk into a crowded room. At moments like that, you may wonder: Does anyone like me? Are all my zippers fastened? Did I remember to comb my hair?

The frightening thing is, some people claim they have reached the zenith of faith and wisdom. Don't believe it. That's how phony gurus box you in like a coyote in a canyon. When you hear someone claiming perfection, how like a banshee and run like a demon.

In concert

The Life of Jesus in Concert as sung by Mike Kessler is set for 7 p.m. April 9 at Our Savior Lutheran Church, 1708 Heyburn Ave. E. Refreshments will be served after the Palm Sunday evening performance. A free-will offering will be taken for Valley House.

and working up songs in his kitchen. He also plays percussion with the Magic Valley Symphony and performs dinner concerts at the Blue Lakes Country Club on weekends.

It's almost time for his Palm Sunday concert.

The concert is a chronicle of the life of Jesus, using music appropriate for each segment. In preparation, Kessler called a number of ministers and requested input and ideas. He also worked with the Christian Bookstore.

Eventually, Kessler chose music like "Joseph's Song," a ballad/prayer by Michael Card, "For Those Tears," right out of the hymnal, "Ten Thousand Angels," a traditional religious song and "The King is Coming" by Bill Oatner, among others. The music is knit together by narration.

Kessler is performing the concert to help raise money for the Valley House homeless shelter.

"I wanted to accomplish something for somebody," he said.

If all goes well, Kessler added, he would like to find other places to present his Life of Jesus concert and to raise more money for worthwhile causes.

"I'm just taking it step by step with my music," he said.

With his keyboard and his faith.

Magic Valley church plans Jews for Jesus program

By Denise Turner
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — What do the Jewish Passover and Jesus' Last Supper have in common? Less is common to Twin Falls to answer that question, and others.

Isaac is a representative of the evangelical Christian missions organization called Jews for Jesus. It's a group that is out to reach Jewish people for Christ.

"I'm a Gentile, but I'm interested in Jewish evangelism," said Isaac, in a phone interview last month. "My job is to walk Christians through a traditional, visual and interactive Passover Seder."

Using a display of traditional Passover items, "Christ in the Passover" is designed to enhance the Christian's understanding and appreciation of the Jewish background of Christian communion. Ancient and modern Jewish customs are discussed, with an

Public event

"Christ in the Passover," a presentation of the Jews for Jesus organization, is set for 7 p.m. Friday at the First Presbyterian Church of Twin Falls, 209 Fifth Ave. N. The event is open to the public.

emphasis on the aspects of redemption and Christ at Calvary.

"For the program, a table is set with representative foods, which are described but not eaten. The ceremonial Seder plate, the three-compartment pouch in which the matzo (unleavened bread) is kept, as well as the traditional cup of Elijah are included.

Jews for Jesus has presented this demonstration in more than 3,000 churches. It was written in 1956 by Moishe Rosen, the founder and executive director of the organization. The presentation was abstracted from the writings of the late Rabbi Leopold Kohr, who came to faith in Jesus in 1954 and died in 1936.

Rosen contends that some of the most important elements of Christian doctrine, such as the Trinity, the principle of substitutionary atonement and salvation through a personal relationship with the Messiah, are implied in the Seder, as observed by Orthodox Jews.

"The Christ in the Passover presentation is one way Jews for Jesus can help churches appreciate the Jewish roots of the Christian faith, though our primary ministry is to those who do not yet believe in Jesus," Rosen has said.

There are about 40,000 Jews believing in Jesus in the United States today, according to Isaac. A whole wave of young people were converted in the early 1970s, when Jews for Jesus first hit the scene, with a bang.

Currently, the organization has permanent branches in nine North American cities and more than 70 chapters in 30 states. The group's international branches are headquartered in Johannesburg, Buenos Aires, London, Ukraine and Paris.

The message: Jesus is the promised Messiah for both Jews and Gentiles.

"Gentile cultural trappings have often been confused with what the biblical religion teaches," Rosen said. "The Messiah was born in Israel, not Greece or Rome. His mother's name was Miriam, not Mary. And she was told by an angel, 'And thou shalt have a son and call his name Y'shua, for he shall save his people from their sins.' Y'shua is the Jewish way to say Jesus."

Added Isaac, "A lot of people understand the importance of Jewish people's history and culture, but I am looking to share how we reach Jewish people for Jesus."

Mixing God, politics worries national evangelical leaders

The Washington Post

In convention centers and church halls, magazines and seminars, influential evangelical Christians are warning that God's church has become dangerously intertwined with the earthly agenda of the Republican Party.

The backlash comes as conservative Christian organizations become increasingly powerful players in political wrangling over such apparently nonreligious issues as reforming welfare, cutting taxes and reducing the federal government's authority.

"To wrap ourselves in the flag of any one particular party is very dangerous," said the Rev. Don Argue, president-elect of the National Association of Evangelicals. "And there has been quite a movement that has identified evangelicals as part of the Republicans and part of the extreme right. Although evangelicals may hold some of these same positions, they are very, very reactive being identified with one particular party or political ideology."

Call it the Screwtop effect. In a tale by Christian writer C.S. Lewis a senior devil named Screwtop instructs his nephew on sure-fire ways to corrupt a Christian. One of the best, Screwtop advises, is to find one swept up in political "partisan spirit" and "gradually nurse him on to the stage at which religion becomes merely part of the cause."

former leader of the Moral Majority, cited Screwtop last week at a convention of Christian activists in Florida. He said the good works of the church "are compromised when the Gospel is politicized, when the pulpit becomes a tool of political organization." He received a standing ovation.

"The evangelical world 'is by no means monolithic," said Duane Litfin, president of Wheaton College in Wheaton, Ill. "You will find people who are clearly evangelical in their philosophy who are on the right wing of the left wing."

The term "evangelical" is often used erroneously as a synonym for conservative or fundamentalist. The label broadly refers to those who believe in a personal relationship to Christ — instead of through clergy or denomination — and are committed to spreading the Gospel among nonbelievers.

Some evangelicals believe fellow evangelicals have been the source of vicious attacks on President Clinton. In particular, many sources said they abhorred the Rev. Jerry Falwell marketing on his television program videotapes alleging Clinton had

Catholic group urges Disney boycott over priest movie

Knight-Ridder News Service

In this corner: a good-natured mouse with a high-pitched voice and a talent for entertaining American families.

His opponent: an irate Catholic watchdog group that smells a rat.

Tuesday, the national Catholic League for Religious and Civil Rights squared off against the Disney Co., calling on Catholics to boycott Disney products, theme parks and stock unless the conglomerate disavows a controversial new movie about sex, alcoholism and emotional despair among five Roman Catholic priests.

"Disney may think this is going to blow over in a couple of days," said Catholic League President William A. Donohue. "But we're not going to stop."

It's hardly a Mickey Mouse conflict. The row has been building since Friday when Miramax Films, a Disney subsidiary, released the movie, "Priest." Donohue immediately attacked the film as "an invidious stereotype of Catholic clergy." In a letter to Disney Chairman Michael Eisner, he threatened to blacken Disney's "Snow White image" if the company did not "formally disassociate itself from the film."

Enraged by what he called "a heated exchange" with John Dreyer, Disney's vice president for communications, Donohue went to the mat Tuesday. He organized a network of the league's 200,000 members, asking them to flood Disney's phone lines with angry messages. He also called in a Wall Street analyst to discuss a possible "stockholders' rebellion."

And he vowed to remind Catholics, and everyone else, of Disney's ties to "Priest." "Every single opportunity I get — radio, television, newspapers — I am going to say, 'The Disney-owned Miramax, the Disney-owned Miramax, the Disney-owned Miramax. . . I will never talk about this movie, ever, without mentioning Disney.'"

Dreyer did not return repeated phone calls Tuesday, but Mark Gill, chief spokesman for Miramax, said Donohue's attacks on Disney were misguided.

"By charter, Miramax is an autonomous corporation," said Gill. "All the decisions are ours; and they always have been. Gill said he had been in touch with Eisner's office "to keep them informed about what's happening," but added that the calls were a courtesy.

He dismissed Donohue's charge that Miramax and Disney were insensitive to Catholics. He noted that "Priest" had originally been slated for nationwide release on April 14 — Good Friday — but that Miramax changed the date after the Catholic League complained.

Landmark encyclical reaffirms pope's views on moral questions like abortion

Los Angeles Times

VATICAN CITY — The pope's men came in their black robes and red caps Thursday to proclaim the righteousness of John Paul II's impassioned call for the protection of life in these inauspicious modern times.

"This encyclical is a historic and highly significant response to grave attempts against human life," said Cardinal Alfonso Lopez Trujillo, president of the pontifical council for the family.

His cardinals were more circumspect, but Vatican analysts believe that the pope intends a landmark encyclical, published here Thursday to close the door to any future softening of church positions on moral questions concerning life and death that vex societies around the world. In a teaching addressed to the 950 million Catholics, Pope John Paul revisits his opposition to artificial birth control and population planning, and is particularly scathing in opposition to abortion and euthanasia.

"Causing death can never be considered a medical cure — conscientious objection to the right of all health workers, and above all, a duty for Catholic health workers," Cardinal

Fiorenzo Angelini, who oversees Catholic hospitals around the world, told reporters here Thursday.

Is the pope, speaking in a powerful, uncompromising analysis of the ethics of life and death called "The Gospel of Life"

'The encyclical is meant to be a precise and vigorous reaffirmation of the value of human life and its inviolability, and at the same time a pressing appeal addressed to each and every person ...'

— the pope's 'The Gospel of Life'

(Evangelium Vitae), invoking infallibility. "The pope says the encyclical is 'founded on Scripture.' ... It is not a formal act of dogma, but ... it is part of the faith that is transmitted to us," said Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger, the keeper of Vatican orthodoxy. The 50,000-word encyclical, four years in the writing, emphatically reiterates well-known papal policies on the safeguarding of life at every stage, from conception to natural death.

"The encyclical is meant to be a precise and vigorous reaffirmation of the value of human life and its inviolability, and at the same time a pressing appeal addressed to each and every person, in the name of God: respect, protect, love and serve life, every human life," writes the pope.

The document is celebration of Pope John Paul's conviction that there is only right and wrong on basic moral issues, no accommodating relativist middle ground.

"The pope is reaffirming with rigidity positions he has taken since he was a young priest, igniting influential currents in the church that oppose 'take it or leave it' Catholicism. The impact will make it harder for future popes to change," said American reporter Tad Szulc, author of a forthcoming biography of Pope John Paul.

Explaining why he wrote the encyclical, the 11th of his 17-year reign, the 74-year-old pope said he felt compelled to speak for the "culture of life," in the face of "attacks threatening it today."

In the encyclical, Pope John Paul warns against totalitarian societies that he says are sliding toward totalitarianism by legalizing morally unacceptable acts such as abortion and euthanasia.

Televangelist Schuller's show ends 4-month run in Boise

BOISE — Boise followers of televangelist Robert Schuller's Crystal Cathedral will rather take in the "Hour of Power" at home than on the silver screen.

The shows' ends its four-month run at the Cineplex Odeon Boise Towne Square Cinema on Saturday.

The weekly showing of films drew an audience of more than 50 when it started in December.

But the attendance had dwindled to less than 10.

"With 'Hour of Power' on television the local market, people still prefer to stay home and watch it in their home," said Ray Cotton, Hour of Power in Cinema director.

The movies failed to draw beyond people already familiar with Schuller's program.

"Many of the people attending were loyal to Schuller. Many of those were already connected with local congregations," said Gene Crewse, Mountain View Baptist Church minister who helped supervise the Boise test market.

Seattle man sees image of God in chunks of his marble floor

SEATTLE — Some people see God in the pattern of the clouds, the glory of a sunrise or the colors of a mountain meadow. Bob Lang sees him on a chunk of marble.

"I'm not a real religious person, and this is just weird to me," said Lang, who was cutting dark-green marble for a floor in his Shoreline area home when he noticed what appeared to be a human form in the marble's white veins.

As he studied it with a friend, details suggested themselves: The image of a risen Jesus Christ with a crown, a halo, a cross and a flaming sword.

In the months since he found the piece, Lang has gathered testimonials from clerics who acknowledge that believers may indeed see the image of Christ in the Chinese marble. He has offered glossy prints for sale, and admits he wouldn't mind making a buck off his discovery, at least to cover his expenses.

Some have expressed skepticism. Friday, the marble made its public Seattle debut at the International Gem and Jewelry Show running through Sunday at the Seattle Center Exhibition Hall.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

"The secret of success is consistency to purpose." - Benjamin Disraeli

"Keep your eye on the ball," is the admonishment given for almost any sport...

The bidding: North East South West. 1 NT Pass 1 Pass 2 NT Pass 3 Pass 4 All pass

Opening lead: Heart queen

BID WITH THE ACES

South holds: 9 8, Q J 10 2, J 9 6 3 2, K 8 7

ANSWER: Two diamonds. Take a simple preference to diamonds.

The first order of business for South is to recognize his own five trump winners...

To guarantee the game after drawing trumps, South should cash his diamond queen...

Everyone runs into patches of bad luck. But the winners find ways to minimize the damage.

How to Buy a Great Used Car
There are certain basic things you should look for when you examine a car.
1. Find out the previous owner's name.
2. Automatic Transmission fluid should be pink and not smell burnt.
3. Coolant shouldn't be rusty and no green stains on the radiator.
4. No oil spots around the engine.
5. Look for rust, especially in the trunk, wheel wells and rocker panels under the doors.
6. Look for new welds, tippy body work, panels that don't match.
7. Uneven tire wear may mean an alignment problem.
8. Make sure the car comes with a useable jack and lugwrench.
9. To check shocks and suspension push down and quickly release each corner of the car. It should not bounce more than 2 times.
10. Seats shouldn't be saggy or ripped. Make sure belts and controls work.
