Verbal budget skirmishes heat up

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Democrats accused Republicans of championing spending cuts that "don't match the values of the American people" as lawmakers warmed up Friday for next week's debate over sweeping GOP budget-balancing plans. Republicans gave as good as they got, with House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., accusing Democrats of offering nothing but criticism and calling that "totally irresponsible adolescent behavior." GOP Sen. Charles Grassley of Iowa sported a pipe, magnifying glass and double-billed houndstooth cap like Sherlock Holmes as he made a show of searching in vain for a Democratic alternative. "They do not have a plan," he said. "All we've seen from them is retreat when it comes to making tough decisions." The Republicans, meanwhile, had two plans for eliminating federal deficits, one each approved Thursday by the House and Senate budget committees. With about $1 trillion in spending reductions, each promise to erase the red ink that has swamped federal ledger books for 26 years and to produce tiny but historic surpluses in 2002. The full House and Senate planned to debate their measures next week, and the partisan attack lines used Friday were rehearsals for the political grappling that is likely to consume Washington for months. Vice President Al Gore and a trio of Democratic congressional leaders belittled Republican plans to coax savings from Medicare, student loans and the earned income tax credit for the working poor, while simultaneously proving tax cuts for the well-off.

"The values represented in these plans don't match the values of the American people," Gore declared. "It is just wrong to turn the Medicare program into a piggy bank to pay for tax cuts," said Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., who also chairs the Democratic National Committee. Gore repeated the Clinton administration's offer to seek budget compromise if the GOP would abandon its quest for lower-earned levies for the rich and cuts in education and would agree to reinvigorate Medicare. Please see BUDGET/A2

CSI grad longs for African home

By Karen Tolkinson
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Thousands of miles from his family in Zaire, nursing student Kalemta Komoto draws strength from a wooden cross on a leather strap and from pictures of Jesus in his tiny white-walled bedroom. Komoto is well aware that blacks are a rarity in Idaho.

Despite the state's reputation, though, he has never met a white supremacist. Komoto, a 27-year-old student from Zaire, jokes that he would like to. Underneath the joke, however, is a strain of seriousness. He gestures to the picture of Jesus above his bed.

"I'm being white, I don't have anything against whites," he said. "I could sit down with a KKK and express my love to him even if he expresses his hatred to me."

Komoto was among 574 students who graduated from the College of Southern Idaho Friday night.

In his two years on campus, Komoto gained a reputation for helping others, said international student adviser Gettaime Bluck. Among CSI nursing graduates, a male nurse is a rarity. But patients were impressed with him, Bluck said.

"People don't see many nurses like him, but they were impressed by his compassion and his caring and concern," she said. "You don't expect that from a large man. He looks more like a basketball player than a nurse, but he is very, very kind."

At a mall once, a friend noticed people staring at him and asked if it bothered him.

He said it did not. "I'm tall and huge so people look at me," he told her. "Second of Kalemta Komoto, of Zaire, and his classmate Steven Luke share a laugh at an instructor's expense before graduation ceremonies at the College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls on Friday evening.

all, I'm handsome." He laughs, telling this. He gets asked a lot if he plays basketball. He doesn't. He plays soccer and a little softball. Komoto, 27, is no stranger to the United States. He lived here for five years as a child while his father pursued a doctorate in economics. They returned to Zaire when he was 12. Living in Africa gave him a homeland and a culture he could relate to, Komoto said. He left Zaire again in June, 1992. His country, ruled by a dictator and torn by riots, is so poor that most people don't have telephones or eat more than one meal a day. Most people bar their windows to keep thieves at bay, although once they broke his family's window with a long bamboo pole and pulled out clothes through the bars, Komoto said. He sends money home regularly from his paychecks as a janitor and as part of the grounds maintenance crew at the Idaho State Quality Assurance Lab on campus. The last time he sent money, his mother or had just told his brothers and sisters to go to bed because there wasn't enough food. They were able to go to the market that night, he said. He doesn't often talk to his family. He got letters in April and last talked to them in March, on the telephone. Media reports have sensationalized an outbreak of the Ebola virus, which rapidly kills people after infection. But Komoto said he's not worried about the outbreak. His family hasn't mentioned it at all on the phone or in letters. Getting a two-year nursing degree is only the first step in Komoto's plan for his future. He wants to complete the medical training interrupted in 1989 after 11 cuts closed down his university. He'll work for a year at a Phoenix hospital and then try to get into medical school. He didn't hesitate when asked if there was one thing in the world he could have, what would it be? "I have my family with me," he said. "I miss them. Sometimes I cry like a kid."

Health workers try to contain deadly Ebola virus

The Associated Press

KIKWI, Zaire — Fear of contagion laced the grief of relatives who kept their death watch Friday in a cemetery where authorities handed over victims in coffins sealed to stop the spread of a dreaded virus.

Two small boys in the crowd of about 50 people pulled T-shirts over their faces as a misguided attempt to protect themselves from the deadly Ebola virus that swept through Kikwi.

A sealed coffin arrived from the fenced-in hospital 100 yards away, and the boys, who were carrying palm fronds, were warned not to wash or touch the body as their African traditions demand. Medical experts from the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention arrived in Kikwi from Atlanta on Friday to begin work to contain the virulent disease. A group of journalists, who had received permission from the Zairian government, accompanied the doctors on their flight to the city of 600,000.

Kikwi, a sprawling hodgepodge of cement block houses set in lush green savannah, is the scene of the first major outbreak of the Ebola virus in 16 years. Dozens of people have died there in recent weeks from the disease, which starts like malaria with headache and fever. Then "diarrhea and vomiting begin. Death comes within days in 80 percent of cases as blood pours from the victims' bodies, rivers of red slipping from their eyes, ears and noses. There is no vaccine or cure.

About 20 people infected patients and hospital staff exposed to the virus, were in the 350-bed hospital where the epidemic began and which has been cleared out to keep the Ebola virus from spreading. The hospital, painted a bright blue, has been under quarantine like the rest of Kikwi since early this week. But there are no guards or soldiers posted around it, and one microbiologist said he feared the virus would spread like wild fire because people were walking into the hospital to visit their dying loved ones.

Ultimate friend sacrifices job so family man keeps working

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — For eight years, tenant advocates Larry Wood and Rafael Sencion shared an office. When the city cut their funding, Sencion, a married father of two, agreed to be laid off in place of his friend, a bachelor. "There's no way to repay him," Wood said Friday. "He's a true friend. No, he's actually more than that. He's part of my family now." Sencion, a 39-year-old immigrant from the Dominican Republic, and Wood, 37, worked side-by-side, helping poor people in single-room-occupancy hotels get needed repairs and avoid eviction. When word came in November that four people at the 12-person West Side SRO Law Project would lose their jobs because the office had lost one-third of its city funding, Wood knew he was in trouble.

Layoffs would be made by seniority. Wood, with two months less on the $33,000-a-year job, would go. Sencion would stay. But Wood's wife, Lori, was seven months pregnant at the time. The couple also had a 3-year-old daughter. "Larry, you're about to have a baby," Wood recalled his friend telling him. "You can't lose your job right now." "It was an enormous relief to me to know I wouldn't have to do the whole job search thing and worry about medical coverage," Wood said. "It gave us the peace of mind we needed at a very critical time." Law Project director Elizabeth Cane said "it was an extraordinary thing, but not coming from Rafael. He's extremely modest and selfless and ... looks at the larger picture. This just made sense to him."

Larry and Lori Wood and children Micah, 3, and Forrest, 4 months, have the best of friends in Rafael Sencion, center, who gave up his job for Wood.

Plains, Gulf Coast endure heavy storms; snow falls on West

The Associated Press

Thunderstorms battered the Gulf Coast and Plains on Friday while snow fell in the mountains of the West.

President Clinton declared three south Mississippi counties disaster areas, making them eligible for federal dollars for the cleanup. Up to 3 inches an hour in the region triggered flash floods.

A powerful small tornado touched down near Reddick, Fla., damaging small buildings and a vehicle, and golfball-sized hail fell at Bunkie.

Severe thunderstorms churned through central and eastern Nebraska and central Kansas.

Gusty winds blew from the Mojave Desert across the Southwest into west Texas, where gusts reached 82 mph at Guadalupe Pass.

Snow advisories and winter storm watches were posted for mountain areas from northern Utah and Colorado through western Wyoming and southwestern Montana. Snow also was reported at Elko, Nev., and Payson, Utah.

The Great Lakes, Ohio Valley and the Appalachians were expected to remain dry and mild.

A few showers were forecast to drift across the coastal Northeast, while rain and thundershowers were likely to linger in the Southeast.

Along with heavy rain that could cause more flooding, high winds, hail and tornadoes were possible.

Rain, thundershowers and mountain snow were expected from Montana to northern Arizona and New Mexico.

Ahead of the storm, there was a risk of severe thundershowers across the Plains from the Dakotas and Minnesota into Texas.

Hot, dry, windy weather was forecast for most of the Southwest, while the West Coast was expected to be fair to partly cloudy. A few showers were likely along the California coast to the Sierras.

Texas congressman says Waco events staged to push gun control

—WASHINGTON (AP) — One of Congress' staunchest opponents of gun control suggests in an article in "Guns and Ammo" that the government went after the Branch Davidians near Waco, Texas, to whip up support for a ban on assault-style firearms.

Administration officials swiftly condemned the stand taken by Rep. Stenerson, R-Texas, in the magazine's June issue.

Stockman wrote that the 80 cult members who died during the April 19, 1993, fire that began after the FBI started a tear-gas operation following a lengthy standoff.

"These men, women and children were burned to death because they owned guns that the government did not wish them to have," he wrote in the magazine, which has a circulation of nearly 600,000.

"Waco was supposed to be a way for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms and the Clinton administration to prove the need for a ban on so-called assault weapons," Stockman wrote.

Congress passed that ban as part of last year's crime law, and Stockman is trying to repeal the ban.

"White House spokeswoman Gin-

Terzano called Stockman's allegation "outrageous and absurd."

"In the current climate, it might be best for people to refrain from inflammatory remarks that endanger the lives of law enforcement officers," said Justice Department spokesman Carl Streib.

Gun-control advocate Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., said, "For somebody to believe that the Waco debacle was organized by the federal government to help pass gun laws is as loony as a statement as I've ever heard a congressman make."

Simpson lawyer tries to blunt impact of testimony about DNA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — O.J. Simpson's defense struggled Friday to blunt the damaging testimony of the state's star DNA witness, launching a scattershot attack with claims of evidence planting, contamination and a mystery killer.

But the judge disallowed many of attorney Peter Neufeld's questions and the week ended with jurors being told to disregard a key defense assertion that a telltale smear of blood on the steering wheel of Simpson's Bronco contains the DNA calling card of an unknown murderer.

Neufeld also tried to cast molecular biologist Robin Cotton as a scientific hired gun, but his testimony bought by prosecutors fell on a dead day.

But some legal analysts said Neufeld failed to soften the stark impact of Cotton's prosecution testimony, which calculated astronomically high odds that Simpson was the source of blood found at his Bronco, at his mansion and in his Bronco.

She told jurors that Simpson was the one person in more than 170 million who has the DNA found in a drop of blood near the bodies of his ex-wife and her friend and added figures suggesting that Nicole Brown Simpson was the only person on Earth with the same DNA type found in blood on a pair of Simpson's socks.

"It's a classic situation where the witness looks smarter than the lawyer," said Loyola University law professor Laurie Levenson. "The problem is when you get into side issues, you begin to look desperate."

Neufeld offered a variety of defenses Friday: that police contaminated blood samples before they were sent to Cotton's Central California Laboratory; that conspirators planted blood in Simpson's Bronco or, in the alternative, some other killer drove the Bronco.

The judge squelched Neufeld's spurious theories, saying that the origin of Bronco blood tests by her Maryland laboratory after the June 12 murders of Ms. Simpson and Ronald Goldman.

Justice Lance Ito said such defenses were outside Cotton's expertise — DNA testing.

"If somebody else ... touched Mr. Simpson's blood and touched Nicole Brown Simpson's blood and touched that steering wheel, would that be consistent with the stain you found on the wheel?" Neufeld asked.

Prosecutor George Clarke objected, and Ito ordered jurors to "disregard the implication of the question."

He also upheld objections to Neufeld's questions laying out Simpson's defense to scientific evidence that Simpson's and Ms. Simpson's blood were on the steering wheel.

"Assume that Mr. Simpson cut himself in his home and walked out to the Bronco to get something from his car and bled in his own Bronco," Neufeld said before he was stopped by an objection.

Ito also refused to allow Neufeld ask Cotton about laboratory procedures used by the Los Angeles Police Department, which collected blood evidence, packaged it and shipped it to her lab for analysis.

Budget

only as part of more sweeping reforms in the country's entire health-care system.

Until such bargaining occurs, the leaders gave no indication that they would offer alternatives of their own. Some rank-and-file Democrats were expected to present plans on their own, including separate groups of conservatives and liberals in the House.

House Budget Committee Chair, man John Kasich, R-Ohio, was hoping to attract Democratic support anyway and was courting conservatives. Conservative Rep. Mike Parker, D-Miss., was the only Democrat to support Kasich's package at the budget committee this week.

The Republican House and Senate plans rely heavily on coaxing savings from Medicare and Medicaid and from benefits for farmers, veterans, and students. Hundreds of programs would be eliminated, from the Commerce Department to aid to libraries, and hundreds of others would be slashed.

Lobbyists on both sides of the question were already launching a series of attacks.

Senior citizens' groups attacked plans to slow the growth of Medicare. The giant health-insurance program for the elderly and disabled is the biggest single component of the House and Senate deficit-reduction packages.

"These cuts are unprecedented in scope and clearly go beyond the boundaries of reason," said Martha A. McSteen, president of the National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare.

But the National Federation of Independent Business, the country's largest small business group, hailed the House plan for its spending reductions and tax cuts.

"This can set the stage for unprecedented new waves of American entrepreneurship and provide hundreds of thousands of jobs," said Jack Faris, the association's 3rd president.

While the two sides parried, House and Senate bargainers reached tentative agreement on reductions in this year's budget that would be much smaller — but nearly as contentious.

As part of a bill that would draw about $16 billion of already enacted money from scores of programs, negotiators agreed to erase $5.5 million from the budget of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting.

the next two years instead of far deeper cuts the House had sought. They also agreed to cut a $1.3 billion program providing home-heating aid to the poor by just $319 million. The House had voted to eliminate it.

Final agreement on the overall measure remained elusive, however. In one lingering disagreement, lawmakers remained at odds over language by Rep. Tom DeLay, R-Texas, that would block enforcement of parts of the Clean Air Act.

In addition, the measure would trim education programs by $948 million, more than double what the Senate approved last month. As a result, Ranti Schmelzer, spokeswoman for Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., would not rule out that Democrats would try to kill the measure by filibuster.

Police arrest biochemist linked with McVeigh

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A biochemist who might have been traveling with bombing suspect Timothy McVeigh immediately after the blast was arrested Friday in Arizona, the Justice Department said.

Federal marshals arrested Steven Garrett Colbern on a federal firearms charge when a hotel owner recognized him as a guest at his hotel after agents showed his picture around Ganman, Ariz.

Ted Tonilli, who owns the hotel in the town about 20 miles southeast of Bullhead City, Ariz., said the man had been in town a month or so, apparently working at a gold mine.

Justice Department spokesman Bert Brundenburg gave no other details on the arrest.

Shortly after agents visited him, Tonilli spotted Colbern buying a newspaper in front of a store down the street and pointed him out, he said. Agents and marshals approached him, put him on the ground and frisked him, taking what appeared to be a knife, Tonilli said. Also Friday, the death toll in the Oklahoma City bombing rose to 168 after a man died in the hospital of injuries sustained in the blast.

Colbern, 35, was described in a news release from Upland, Calif., police as "Steven Garrett Colbern, AKA John Doe No. 2."

However, federal authorities had no immediate comment on whether Colbern could be John Doe No. 2, the elusive, dark-haired suspect in FBI sketches distributed shortly after the April 19 blast.

official, a witness told investigators that a brown pickup that appeared to be traveling in tandem with McVeigh's car pulled over in front of McVeigh's vehicle, waited and then moved on.

"It might have been someone traveling with McVeigh or it might have been someone who was speeding, heard the siren and thought he was being pulled over until he saw there was another car stopped," said the official, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Authorities are checking to see if the pickup shows up in a videotape produced by a camera in the Oklahoma police car, the source said.

McVeigh and his Army buddy Terry Nichols have been charged with the bombing and could get the death penalty.

Lynda Willoughby, manager of The Mail Room, where McVeigh picked up his mail in Kingman, Ariz., said federal marshals have been by in the past few days, asking her if a box there was ever in the names Steven Colbern, Bill Carson or Steven Garrett. She said no one had gotten mail under any of those names.

Willoughby said investigators showed her a photo of a dark-haired man with bushy eyebrows. She said she did not recognize the man.

Earlier, Willoughby said a man who came in to pick up McVeigh's mail was a rough match for the man in the John Doe 2 sketches.

Babbitt fined over 1988 run for president

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt has agreed to pay a $21,000 penalty to settle charges he accepted excessive contributions during his unsuccessful 1988 presidential campaign.

The Federal Election Commission announced an anti-campaign contribution agreement Friday, ending a matter that was discovered when Babbitt's campaign was audited several years ago.

The commission concluded that Babbitt's campaign accepted two dozen donations that exceeded the maximum $1,000 limit set by federal law and inadvertently failed to account for some of its funds on its official spending reports.

Babbitt, a former Arizona governor, unsuccessfully sought the Democratic nomination for president in 1988, which ultimately was won by then-Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis.

A spokeswoman for Babbitt said Friday that the interior secretary agreed to the fine simply to put the matter behind him.

The excessive contributions were discovered during Babbitt's audit and referred to the commission's enforcement division.

The commission ruled that Babbitt's presidential committee: improperly accepted for free a $10,000 mailing list that had been purchased previously by Babbitt's gubernatorial campaign. The commission concluded it was an improper in-kind contribution and that the presidential committee should have paid fair market value for it.

Accepted 24 donations from individuals that were over the $1,000 limit. The amount in excess of the limits was just over $7,000.

Understated campaign receipts by $156 and disbursements by $170,635 on his 1988 campaign reports to the commission. The commission said the misstatements were inadvertent.

Congressman apologizes over debate comments about gays

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Randy "Duke" Cunningham wasn't invited to the news conference called Friday to condemn his comments about "homos in the military."

But he showed up anyway, silently absorbing the criticism of his fuming fellow lawmakers, and then took to the microphone.

"To me using that short term was not wrong, but if it is offensive then I apologize and will not use it again," the California Republican said at the news conference called by the Human Rights Campaign Fund.

The conservative lawmaker caused a furor on the House floor Thursday during a lengthy debate on water pollution, when he objected to a pro-environment amendment and said it was championed by "the same people that would put homos in the military." Numerous Democratic lawmakers called for an immediate apology, but Cunningham refused. That refusal prompted the Human Rights Campaign Fund, the nation's largest lesbian and gay political organization, to call a news conference and invite sympathetic lawmakers to attend. Standing outside, with the Capitol dome behind them, Democratic lawmakers lined up one by one to condemn Cunningham's words. They made references to the bombing in Oklahoma City, to racism, even to the Nazis, and said Cunningham had made a bad atmosphere worse.

"One of the things I suggest we should all be thinking about is the power of words. Words really matter in this world," said Rep. Gerry Studds, D-Mass., who is openly gay.

Cunningham appeared at the edge of the crowd while his fellow California, Democratic Rep. Maxine Waters, was tearing him to shreds. She didn't pause.

"Duke Cunningham, who's standing right here, has been racist, has been homophobic, has been outrageous and has disrespected his colleagues," she said.

Cunningham wasn't given an opportunity to speak until hearing from seven more lawmakers and Peter Larson, a member of the Lesbian and Gay Congressional Staff Association, who said he was there to give a human face to those Cunningham referred to as "homos."

Military sets harassment complaint standards

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon on Friday unveiled dozens of policy changes designed to hold military officers accountable for sex discrimination within their commands.

The military services are already enacting many of the 48 changes, but top Pentagon officials found during a yearlong study "a number of instances in which things went wrong."

From failure to respond quickly to harassment complaints to ignorance of a discriminatory mood within individual commands, the problems pointed to the need for solutions aimed at the top ranks.

"The key to success is holding commanders accountable," said Air Force Secretary Sheila Widnall, co-author of the report that was presented to Defense Secretary William Perry on Friday. Perry will issue formal directives by the end of the month embodying the report's recommended changes, former Deputy Defense Secretary John Deutch said in a memo.

The new policies will emphasize to top commanders the importance of communicating anti-sexual harassment guidelines down the chain of command. The goal, Widnall said, is to prevent the breakdown of unit cohesiveness and to promote fairness for individuals.

Despite the breadth of the policies, the study found no chronic problems in coping with sexual harassment.

"Our general conclusions are that most of the time we deal with these policies pretty effectively," said Edwin Dorn, the undersecretary of defense for personnel and co-chair of the study. "But as we looked at this, we found a number of instances in which things went wrong."

Those included harassment complaints that took too long to resolve, commanders who failed to notice a climate of sexually loaded and demeaning conversation among subordinates, and instances of reprisal, which Dorn called "one of the most insidious aspects of dealing with harassment."

Theft, suspect also applies for a job

PITTSBURGH (AP) — He wanted a job application — and all the money from the cash register.

Detectives found it easy to identify a suspect in a restaurant robbery: He used his real name, address and Social Security number to apply for a job there only minutes earlier Thursday.

"It was stupid. Very, very stupid," said Detective Earl L. Johnson, who was eating lunch at the Eat 'n Park with his partner when the robbery occurred.

The man — whose name wasn't immediately released — filled out an application and left, then returned, grabbing a undisclosed amount from the cash register, police said.

Johnson and his partner chased the robber unsuccessfully. The suspect later turned himself in.

President Clinton works the crowd at Shevchenko University in Kiev, Ukraine, Friday.

Clinton honors dead in Ukraine

KIEV, Ukraine (AP) — At the edge of a forested ravine where Nazis slaughtered thousands of Jews, President Clinton stopped to remember the horrors of World War II and caution that "humanity is capable of the worst, just as it is capable of the best."

With his wife, Hillary, Clinton paid a somber visit Friday to the place known as Babi Yar, where more than 30,000 Kiev Jews were herded and machine-gunned by Nazis in just two days in September 1941.

From 1941 to 1943 during the German occupation of Ukraine, Babi Yar became a killing field. More than 150,000 people were massacred, most of them Ukrainian Jews, but also some Soviet POWs, Ukrainian nationalists and Gypsies.

"In the quiet of this place, the victims of Babi Yar cry out to us still," Clinton told a hushed audience. "Never forget, they tell us, that humanity is capable of the worst, just as it is capable of the best."

"Never forget that the forces of darkness cannot be defeated with silence or indifference. Never forget that we are all Jews and Gypsies and Slavs."

In a gesture of respect, Clinton placed a stone at the foot of a 10-foot-high monument, one of two monuments at Babi Yar. He wore a blue yarmulke. Mrs. Clinton, her head covered with a print scarf, left a bouquet of jing-stemmed white lilies.

Clinton also passed with bowed heads at a black statue at the edge of the ravine, depicting a few figures, rising, twisted, as if in torment.

Clinton said later he was overwhelmed by the visit. "I wish every American could stand on the edge of the ravine and look down," he said.

Concluding a five-day trip marking the 50th anniversary of the defeat of Nazi Germany, the president also visited a park overlooking the Dniro-River to place a wreath at an eternal flame honoring Ukrainian war dead.

Along with the solemnity of the war remembrances, Clinton brought a message of hope to the 32 million people of this nation, struggling with lost jobs and lower wages inflicted by economic reforms in the conversion to capitalism.

Speaking in a city where a worker's average wage is $25 a month, Clinton told thousands of students at Shevchenko University. "Your efforts will not be in vain because the course is right even if the path is difficult. ... You and your children will reap the harvest of today's sacrifices."

Over the course of this year, 90 percent of small Ukrainian enterprises are expected to become privately owned and 8,000 of the largest firms will be privatized.

Clinton also offered security assurances to Ukraine, 3½ years after its vote to declare independence helped speed the breakup of the Soviet Union.

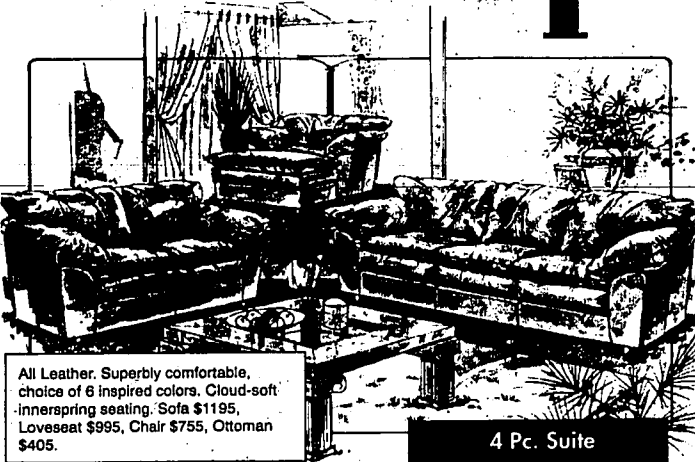

"You should know this: As you build your future, the United States will stand with you," Clinton told the students, who cheered in response.

"For America," he said, "support for an independent Ukraine — secure in its own borders — is not only a matter of sympathy, it is a matter of our national interest as well," Clinton said.

Food prices spur inflation

Knights-Ridder News Service

CHICAGO — Increases in food and transportation prices pushed up consumer prices for all urban consumers a seasonally adjusted 0.4 percent in April, the Labor Department said Friday.

The April gain was the biggest since August and follows a 0.2 percent rise in March.

Excluding the volatile food and energy sectors, which gives a clearer picture of underlying inflation, consumer prices rose 0.4 percent, compared with a 0.3 percent rise in March. Price increases in April were widespread, only dropping in the apparel category.

Food prices rose 0.7 percent in April, after remaining unchanged in March. The April food price gain was led by a 7.5 percent jump in fresh fruit and vegetable prices. Lettuce prices soared 11.3 percent in April, their biggest gain on record, a Labor Department analyst said if lettuce prices had been unchanged in April, the CPI would have risen only 0.3 percent.

Transportation costs rose 0.7 percent. Within that category, new automobile prices rose 0.6 percent in April, and air fares soared 3.4 percent. Gasoline prices rose 0.6 percent.

Consumer energy prices rebounded in April, rising 0.4 percent after falling 0.5 percent in March.

The rise in consumer price index was partly exaggerated by special factors, including a jump in food and transportation prices, analysts said.

However, it does imply good deterioration in the inflation outlook to cut the chances of a near-term Federal Reserve easing move, they said.

"This is a little more than people had expected," noted Robert Dederick, an economic consultant for The Northern Trust here, referring to a rise in the "core" CPI rate excluding food and energy of more than 4.0 percent for the year to date.

"This is a warning that inflation is not dead, and unless the economy has a meaningful slowing, the pressures will remain on the upside," he said. It also "clinches the case" for the Fed, "setting us up for a no-change decision" in monetary policy, he said.

Panhandle mine buys Alaska project

The Associated Press

COEUR D'ALENE — Coeur d'Alene Mines Corp. is diving deeper into gold production by buying out its development partner in a large Alaska project.

Denver-based Echo Bay Mines accepted Coeur d'Alene Mines' $32.5 million offer for Echo's half of the Kensington gold mine.

After recouping the cost of buying the other half, Coeur d'Alene Mines will pay Echo Bay a scaled royalty on 1 million ounces of future production.

Thursday's announcement occurred the same day Coeur d'Alene Mines reported first-quarter 1995 earnings, its lost $3.2 million last quarter, or 20 cents a share, compared with a loss of $2.6 million, or 17 cents, in the first quarter of 1994.

Low precious metals prices were to blame, said Tony Eberle, senior relations chief. The company earned $4.70 for each ounce of silver produced last year, compared with $5.28 for the same period last year.

The Kensington purchase puts the company in control of nearly 2 million ounces of gold reserves.

Kensington, located near Juntura, continues its permitting process and could be up and running in two years. It could produce 200,000 ounces a year for the silver-based company that mines only 37,000 ounces of gold last quarter.

Higher silver prices by the company pondering whether to reopen its two silver mines, the Coeur and the Galena.

Dollar may alter course

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The dollar extended its global rally Friday for the fourth straight day, hitting a 10-week high as the German mark, as speculation grows that the United States will act to cut its budget and trade deficits.

Foreign-exchange analysts viewed the dollar's resilience as evidence of a turnaround in market sentiment toward the ailing U.S. currency, which has been under constant selling pressure for months.

"The dollar has been undervalued for most of the year," said Randolph Donney, director of capital market research at Pegasus Economic Group in New York. "Now we've gotten some encouraging news and that's really helped." Donney said the dollar was quoted at 1.4475 marks, up from 1.4320.

U.N. peacekeepers may shoot to kill

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Pushed by Bosnia's combatants to choose between getting tough and getting out, the United Nations Friday told its beleaguered peacekeepers to shoot to kill to protect themselves.

Although all peacekeeping missions are told they can return fire to protect themselves, troops often withhold fire depending on how assertive the United Nations is trying to be in protecting its mission. Friday's blunt instructions signaled that peacekeeping missions were likely to stay.

France in particular had been threatening to withdraw unless the mission took a stronger posture. The instructions were issued a day after a sniper shot a French soldier in the head near Sarajevo's notorious "Sniper Alley."

A withdrawal of the 24,000 U.N. soldiers in Bosnia almost certainly would draw in the NATO alliance to protect them while they were moved out. It also would lead to a scramble by Bosnia's armies for U.N. military equipment and to a new fighting.

In response to the new instructions, a U.N. crew fired a single rifle shot after a Serb anti-aircraft round struck near their armored vehicle by the Jewish cemetery, a front line where there was heavy fighting Friday.

Bosnian Serbs said two women were killed by government snipers in Sarajevo's Lakovica. Serbs shelling killed a woman in a northern Sarajevo suburb, and snipers wounded a girl in the western suburb of Dobrinja.

Aid officials meanwhile reported the northwest corner of Bosnia.

Two French U.N. peacekeepers watch for snipers from an armored personnel carrier after hearing shots on Sarajevo's notorious 'sniper alley' Friday.

where government forces and 200,000 civilians are surrounded, was facing catastrophic food shortages. A Red Cross convoy reached the area Thursday, but the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees has not been there with food since April 5.

And problems occurred as the U.N. commander in Bosnia, British Lt. Gen. Rupert Smith, reminded his troops that they "should not hesitate to use force when targeted by either warring party," said spokesman Lt. Col. Gary Coward.

"Soldiers shoot to kill," Coward said. "I think we are doing the right thing at the right time."

Smith's message to his soldiers was bolstered by the five-nation

Contact Group — the United States, Russia, Britain, France and Germany — which has been leading the effort to find a solution to the 3-year-old Bosnian war that has left 300,000 people dead or missing.

Meeting in Frankfurt, diplomats from those countries called for a "robust" implementation of the U.N. mandate.

After a meeting in Paris at which U.N. officials requested clearer instructions on how to respond to attacks, U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali ordered a "fundamental review" of his mission.

The U.N. mission in Bosnia is complicated by vague Security Council resolutions, a lack of military muscle to accomplish its mission, and the need to temper its military responses to further peace negotiations.

When the United Nations called in NATO airstrikes against Serbs last fall — a move responded by detaining hundreds of peacekeepers. On Monday, U.N. officials decided against calling in air power to punish Serbs for a mortar attack on a Sarajevo suburb that killed 10 people.

U.N. spokesman Alexander Ivanko in Sarajevo said Friday that attacks on peacekeepers appeared well-coordinated.

"There are too many of them, too often," Ivanko said. Although peacekeepers cannot always determine who is firing at them, most appear to be from the Serb side, he said.

France, with the largest contingent of peacekeepers in Bosnia, also has suffered the heaviest losses — 36 soldiers killed. Last month, two French peacekeepers in Sarajevo were shot and killed by snipers on one weekend, prompting the government to announce it was considering pulling out.

French Foreign Minister Alain Juppe discussed the possibility of allowing peacekeepers to use more force with Boutros-Ghali on Thursday.

Concern about limiting the Bosnian war has been, particularly high in recent weeks as the civil war in neighboring Croatia threatened to reignite.

The Croats last week retook a piece of land known as western Slavonia, the most vulnerable of four Croatian regions seized by Serbs in the 1991 Croatian war.

Cosmonauts take repair spacewalk

MOSCOW — Two cosmonauts completed a six-hour spacewalk Friday, temporarily leaving U.S. astronaut Norman Thagard alone on Russia's Mir space station.

Mission Commander Vladimir Dezhnev and Flight Engineer Gennady Strekalov moved a solar battery and cables to prepare the station for a new laboratory module and a June linkup with the U.S. shuttle Atlantis, said Vsevolod Lutshev, spokesman for the Russian Space Center just north of Moscow.

Thagard monitored their progress from inside the Mir orbiter. A physician, engineer, pilot and astronaut, Thagard is also the first American to fly aboard a Russian space station.

Friday's spacewalk was the first of four planned from the Mir this month. The next is scheduled for Wednesday.

Russian centrist takes on extremists

MOSCOW — Home Minister Viktor CHEROMYRIN Friday was unanimously elected leader of a new centrist political movement, intent on defeating extremist forces at parliamentary elections next December.

"If we don't organize ourselves, others will — those who can't govern not only the country but even themselves," CHEROMYRIN said at the founding congress of the movement called Russia Is Our Home.

CHEROMYRIN said his movement would unite economic and political forces supporting stability and market reforms, those "who don't want new upheavals or revolutions, who have grown tired of disorder and lies."

Ecologically minded rebels release pair

BOGOTA, Colombia — Two Swedish engineers released by ecologically minded rebels after five months in captivity lost weight but were in good spirits, a spokesman for their company said Friday.

The Swedish ambassador said the engineers, Danny Applegate and Lars-Erik Forberg, were ready to return to work.

They were freed Thursday in Fuzara, 225 miles northwest of Bogota, by rebels seeking to halt construction of the Swedish-owned Skanska hydroelectric plant.

Transit strike throws Italy into chaos

ROME — A 12-hour strike by bus, tram and subway drivers caused chaos in Rome and other central and southern Italian cities Friday.

A day earlier, transport drivers struck in Milan and other northern cities. The two-day protest was over pension and contract disputes.

The transit workers have threatened further strikes over stalled contract negotiations, possible cutbacks and other issues.

Arafat government extends deadline

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip (AP) — Yasser Arafat's government extended the deadline for Islamic clerics to remove anti-PLO propaganda from mosques and to stop criticizing it in sermons.

Chief prosecutor Khaled Kidieh said the date was moved back from Friday to Sunday, the end of the four-day Muslim holiday Eid al-Adha.

But he was vague about what measures would be taken against violators. Islamic military leaders say they will not comply with the order.

Fighting increases as Yeltsin lets Chechnya truce lapse

SHALI, Russia (AP) — Russian warplanes and artillery blasted a region south of Grozny on Friday after an oil-violated truce expired in the breakaway republic of Chechnya.

Planes bombed the hills outside Shali, 15 miles southeast of the capital, and the sound of bombardment further away rolled down the Caucasus Mountains like distant thunder.

Artillery pounded the hills every few minutes, early Friday, interspersed with the grating whoosh of GRAB rockets that carpeted the mountains in bursts of orange flame.

Fighting intensified almost immediately after Russia's two-week unilateral truce ended at midnight Thursday.

Russian troops killed at least three Chechen rebels near Shali, Russian news agencies quoted Defense Ministry officials in Grozny as saying.

Trucks carrying ammunition and fuel sped through Shali to Russian positions around Serzhen-Yurt, a rebel stronghold further south that was the target of a Russian artillery attack the previous day.

As many as seven Russian servicemen and 12 rebel fighters were killed in fighting around Serzhen-Yurt, the Interfax news agency reported.

Around the valley

Husband serious after car falls into canal

GOODING - A man was in serious condition Friday and his wife was in stable condition after their car overturned in a canal Thursday.

Lyle Adams, 71, of Gooding, fell asleep Thursday while driving on Idaho Highway 46, according to Idaho State Police dispatchers.

Adams' car went through a guard rail and landed upside down in a canal. Friday, Lyle Adams was at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, and his wife, Betty, 67, was recovering at Gooding County Memorial Hospital.

Postal carriers out today to gather food for food banks

TWIN FALLS - Twin Falls mail carriers will collect food donations as they drop off mail today as part of their annual food drive.

Food items should be non-perishable such as dried, canned and packaged products and left by the mailbox before normal mail delivery time. All food will go to food banks. Last year Idaho post offices collected 230,000 pounds of food for charities.

Ex-Twin Falls officer fined for running red light

TWIN FALLS - A former Twin Falls policeman paid a $45 fine after a judge found him guilty last week of running a red light that led to an accident last spring.

Ronald Farnsworth was found guilty by Cassia County Magistrate Roy Holloway last week of failing to observe and obey a traffic light, a misdemeanor traffic violation.

State police investigators said Farnsworth was driving out to quell a domestic dispute April 30, 1994, when he ran a red light and crashed into Danielle Walmer, of Twin Falls.

She complained of injuries, but was not listed as a patient at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

Farnsworth said he had slowed, with his patrol lights flashing, and sped up when it looked like other cars were yielding to him.

Capt. Lodge declined to say whether Farnsworth was disciplined. Farnsworth left the department several months ago to work for the Idaho Bureau of Narcotics.

CSI instructors receive cash awards during graduation

TWIN FALLS - Two College of Southern Idaho faculty members received $1,000 awards Friday night during the graduation ceremony.

Assistant math professor Jim Dawson and vocational education teacher Ben Bartlett both received the awards through the CSI Foundation and First Security Bank. CSI instructors are chosen each year for the awards.

Rock Creek cleanup canceled; Johnny Horizon Day still on

TWIN FALLS - The official cleanup effort sponsored by the Rock Creek Brigade will not be held today as previously reported.

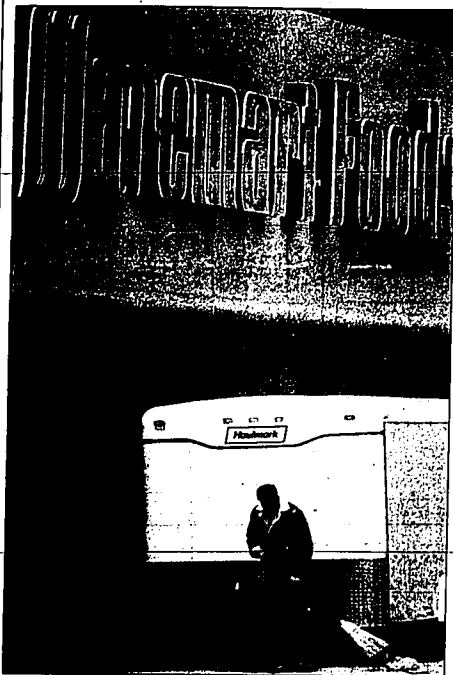

Robin Seastrom, leader of the volunteer brigade, said the brigade does not want to interfere with the county's Johnny Horizon cleanup, which is being continued today because of repeated rainy Saturdays.

Seastrom said the brigade will be back in action Saturday, May 20, underneath the Old Town Bridge.

The brigade is part of the nonprofit Old Town Corp.

Maintenance worker Tom Koblerowski sweeps in front of the new Walmart store recently constructed on Blue Lakes Boulevard North in Twin Falls.

Walmart project nearly completed

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - Walmart plans to open June 5 its new $7.5 million grocery store, the largest such store in Twin Falls.

The new 65,000-square-foot grocery store is located on Blue Lakes Boulevard North next to Target department store.

While the old Walmart store on Kimberly Road has about 30,000 items in its 38,000-square-foot leased building, the new store will have between 45,000 and 50,000 items, said Bill Long, president and chief executive officer of Boise-based Walmart.

"They'll be a lot more items and products for people to choose from,"

Long said Friday.

Long said the new store also will have:

- A Bank of America branch.
  - A video rental.
  - A bakery.
  - A Fargos Pizzeria.
  - A service deli with hot and cold foods.
  - A Western Union office, where money orders and notary service will be available.
  - A "much expanded" produce department.
  - A "much expanded" non-food health and beauty aids department.
- The Kimberly Road store will close the evening of May 31, Long said.

Failed shooting draws charge

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS - A Twin Falls man was charged Friday with felony aggravated assault after his wife told police he squeezed the trigger as he held an unloaded gun at her neck.

The wife, Margarita Nevarez, was treated Thursday night for a broken wrist, black eye, and scrapes and bruises, according to an affidavit written by Twin Falls Police Officer Brian Lee.

She told police her husband, Ernesto, 36, had come home early from work and he was angry and jealous because she got home later from a meeting. Ernesto Nevarez struggled with her and placed her in a headlock, then put a semi-automatic pistol to her neck and squeezed the trigger; the gun was not loaded, the affidavit said.

Margarita had recently asked for a divorce; the affidavit said. Bail for Ernesto Nevarez was set at $25,000, and he appeared in court with his own lawyer.

Channeler faces charge of hiring hit against woman

By Liz Wright
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - A jailed spiritual "channeler" and former sushi chef was indicted Thursday on a charge that he paid a fellow inmate to kill his ex-girlfriend.

The murder never happened; the proposed hitman has remained in custody since being shot in the buttocks last summer during a failed gun-shop burglary.

The channeler, Jack David Peel, 48, has been in jail since being charged with kidnapping and shooting the woman, Connie Price of Twin Falls. He won a mistrial in that case this week after new evidence surfaced.

Thursday, he pleaded innocent to the new charge - solicitation of first-degree murder - several hours after a grand jury's indictment.

Amalgamated fined in deaths

The Times-News and The Associated Press

TWIN FALLS - Amalgamated Sugar Co. has agreed to pay a fine of $176,000 and spend the same amount to increase safety at its Twin Falls factory where an employee was killed in a work-related accident Feb. 16.

Michael Davis, 29, of Twin Falls, died in an accident after his arm became trapped in conveyor belt machinery located underneath a sugar silo. Davis, a member of the cleaning room, appeared to be alone in the work area when the accident occurred.

The agreement is part of a settlement with the Occupational Safety and Health Administration over safety violations disclosed during the investigation into the death of a worker at the Nampa factory last summer.

Amalgamated has also agreed to pay a $200,000 fine and spend the same amount to improve safety at its Nampa factory.

Juan Torres, 48, of Nampa died Aug. 24 after he was buried inside a sugar silo where he was removing hardened sugar from the walls.

In February OSHA proposed fines of $425,000 against Amalgamated for serious safety violations, including failure to provide adequate personal protection equipment, lighting and rescue and emergency equipment.

The proposed fine of $425,000 was among the largest for industrial safety violations in Idaho in 12 years.

Even though the agreement reduces the proposed fine, it also requires the company to remedy serious safety problems, said Ryan Kuehmel, area director for OSHA. "I think it's good for the employees because the problems will be corrected, and that's what we're after," Kuehmel said Friday.

Amalgamated officials said the company is committed to a safe work environment at all of its plants.

Trio vie for seat on Blaine County School District

By Barbara Newert
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY - A nurse, an engineer and a former school teacher are vying for a seat on the Blaine County School Board.

Voters will decide Tuesday whether Janet Askew, Scott Basolo or Larry Thorngren will represent Zone 3 - the Hailey-Belevue area of Blaine County.

B.J. Miller is not seeking re-election.

Janet Askew, 41, was raised in Buhl and has lived in Hailey for 7 years. She has two children in the public school system.

With a bachelor's degree in nursing from the University of Utah, Askew has been a nurse for 19 years, and is now conducting breast cancer screenings for the Wood River Medical Center.

"I want my children, and every child in the community, to have a good education, and I believe parents should be involved," Askew said. "This is my way of being involved."

Askew has been instrumental in formulating the For Kids After School Program at Belevue Elementary School and obtaining grants to get it off the drawing board. She has also been an active volunteer in the schools.

Askew said she is pleased to see parents involved in Blaine County's design of the Outcomes-Driven Developmental Model and supports the basic (ODDM) philosophy. "The basic philosophy is sound and useful, but we'll have to adapt it to our physical setup," Askew said.

She sees the board's role as persisting in efforts to secure the county's fair share of state funding.

In addition, Askew is not comfortable with allowing prayer - except silent prayers - in school.

And Askew adheres to zero-tolerance of violence. The community will need to evaluate what level of discipline is appropriate if weapons are brought to schools, she said.

Scott Basolo, 33, grew up in Hailey where he served as student body president of Wood River High School in 1979. With engineering degrees from the University of Idaho, he has just started his own business - Basolo Engineering - in Hailey.

Basolo became involved with School Board affairs during his involvement as co-founder of the Wood River Sports Complex on the high school grounds.

"Kids are our natural asset and resource," Basolo said, "and it's easy for them to get pushed under the carpet."

Vote at middle school

Voters can go to the Wood River Middle School between noon and 8 p.m. to vote for the school board members for the Zone 3 vacancy. Howie Royal of Carey is the sole contender for Zone 2, so no election will be held for that position.

Bliss, Gooding, Hagerman races - B3

Basolo said he would like to serve on the school board to offer his engineering expertise to school planning decisions and his insight from working with kids over the years.

Basolo sees the district's number one deficiency as a lack of funding, and he would lobby the Legislature in the community and for funds to return to the county.

"The best way to improve on a dull good system is to get a more equitable distribution of state money," Basolo said.

The district's ODDM philosophy appears to be a good system, but Basolo said it should be monitored so students don't fall through the cracks, particularly bright students.

Growing up in the Wood River Valley, Basolo continues to be amazed at the changing demographics of the county, and he does not anticipate a slow down of incoming students.

Such growth places a burden both on the school system and the community, and Basolo stressed the need for protection of the quality of life, especially open park space within the communities. Basolo said the school district should not be expected to fill that need alone.

Basolo said prayer and religious study is critical in the lives of children, but he said schools were not the place to teach it. Perhaps a moment of silence would be workable to allow kids to pray, but any type of organized prayer by teachers would be wrong, Basolo said.

Larry Thorngren, 54, grew up in Arco and has lived in the Wood River Valley for the past six years.

With a master's degree in biology from Idaho State University, Thorngren has taught high school for 20 years - 17 of those years in Boise and three years at Wood River High.

Sherwood says agents deserve death penalty

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho founder of the United States Militia Association suggested on Thursday that the death penalty be considered for the federal agents involved in the confrontation in Waco, Texas, and the Idaho Panhandle.

"On the Idaho Public Television program 'Dialog,' Sammie Sherwood said the same fate would await any American who killed another person."

Sherwood again criticized the promotion of Larry Potts to deputy director of the FBI. Last month Potts was reprimanded for his handling of the fatal siege of white supremacist Randy Weaver's cabin on Ruby Ridge in northern Idaho.

"If you were to shoot someone or I was to shoot someone, the penalty for that would be death," Sherwood said. "Right now law enforcement officers at the federal level who shoot women and children at Ruby Ridge or at Waco or at any other place around the country, they're given promotion. We think they should be held according to federal law and state law and prosecuted thereafter and meet the proper fate."

Bonner County authorities are currently conducting their own investigation of lodging state charges against the agents involved in the 1992 siege of Weaver's remote cabin that left a federal marshal and Weaver's wife and son dead. Weaver and an associate were acquitted of all charges, including murder, in connection with the siege. With Ada County Sheriff Vaughn Killen who repeatedly questioned Sherwood's motives and challenged his assertions that the United States Militia Association was not an armed force, Killen quoted from one of Sherwood's books that the militia should be armed with artillery and tanks and asked Sherwood whether that fact was the case.

"We have the right to be," Sherwood said. "What we advocate is state defense forces under federal law and state law to be armed with that."

Sherwood said that "provides that these things be made available," and he maintained that kind of weaponry is available to militias in 17 states.

Sherwood reiterated his contention that without state sanctions his organization is intent on helping law enforcement authorities with domestic problems such as drug cultivation.

But Killen rejected the offer as well as a handful of state sheriffs did this earlier spring.

"I don't see, nor do I understand, the way you folks want to fill in this county," Killen said, citing the existence of the National Guard, sheriffs' offices and local police forces throughout the state.

Despite Sherwood's persistent offers in recent weeks to work with state and local officials, Gov. Phil Batt has essentially renounced the existence of the militia movement.

Fish and game commission votes against crane hunting

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Fish and Game Commission Friday voted against a hunting season for sandhill cranes this year because of public opposition.

"They had considered a limited season for about 200 greater sandhill cranes as part of a plan to control damage the birds cause to crops in eastern Idaho."

But conservationists worried the season had hurried through the proposal.

"The public input we received did not support a change of status for cranes from 'protected nongame,'" Commission Chairman Keith Carlson said.

The commissioners met at the Brownlee Wildlife Management

Area near Hells Canyon.

The board instructed Idaho Fish and Game Director Jerry Conly and his staff to work with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and Animal Damage Control Service to find ways to reduce crop damage by cranes.

Mike Tracy, spokesman for the Idaho Farm Bureau, said about six grain farmers in the path of the cranes flyway near Gray Lake are losing from $8,000 to $10,000 annually in crop sales because of the birds.

"The cranes stand 48 inches tall and migrate to the Rocky Mountain states, where they feed on grains and potatoes in the fall before returning to the Southwest."

Blackfoot man admits murdering woman

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Michael Clements, 44, pleaded guilty Friday afternoon to murdering an Idaho Falls woman and wounding her niece, who was his ex-girlfriend and trying to end their relationship.

Clements, Blackfoot, will be sentenced Aug. 21 by 7th District Judge Ted Wood, and could get life in prison.

He originally was charged with first-degree murder in the shooting death last August of a woman at Johnson-Hill, 35, in addition to other charges. As part of a plea bargain, Clements on Friday pleaded guilty to second-degree murder and attempted second-degree murder in the shooting of Lon Ann Oakes, 28. He also faces sentence enhancement for using a firearm.

Ex-sheriff accepts fee settlement from corruption trials

WALLACE (AP) — Former Shoshone County Sheriff Frank Crnkovich has accepted the county's offer to settle his claim for fees covering his successful prosecution suffered in Idaho during the early 1990s. They also failed to convict former Idaho County Sheriff Randy Baldwin on drug and theft charges even though he was found guilty of burglary in the act of burglarizing a drug house.

And in the highest profile case, federal attorneys failed to convict white separatist Randy Weaver and an associate in the slaying of a federal marshal at the start of the 1992 siege of Weaver's Panhandle cabin.

Crnkovich had denied the federal charges against him throughout and maintained the actions he took were within the scope of his official duties. Under state law, that requires the county to pay for his defense since he was acquitted or essentially free of the case. Federal prosecutors were stymied by a hung jury in the first trial in late 1991 and then lost the case outright at the retrial in March 1992.

Those two trials were among four high profile losses federal prosecutors suffered in Idaho during the early 1990s. They also failed to convict former Idaho County Sheriff Randy Baldwin on drug and theft charges even though he was found guilty of burglary in the act of burglarizing a drug house.

the taxpayers for fighting a case that we could lose," County Commission Chairman Sherry Krulitz said. She estimated the cost of fighting the claim would be $50,000 and a loss in court cost the bill to the county over $200,000.

The settlement, which is being formalized by the courts, was a compromise between the county's original offer of $70,000 and Crnkovich's demand for $130,000. It represents the actual bill for his legal defense without the $25,000 in interest since the acquittal.

But Crnkovich still faces the legal bills run up during his three-year battle over the original legal fees.

"It's going to be quite an amount," he admitted Thursday night.

The drawn out legal problems have already forced him to sell his Kellogg home, and he is now drawing early-but-reduced Social Security benefits and working in home construction.

Deadly scorpion subject of seminar

LAS VEGAS (AP) — The smallest and most venomous of the 22 known species of scorpions in Southern Nevada can climb up multi-story buildings, kill small animals and live 24 hours after being sprayed with a deadly chemical.

Pest-control technicians and agriculture officials are gathering here this week to discuss the latest techniques in combating the pest known as the bark scorpion.

The seminar is being put on Wednesday by one of the region's leading experts, Bert Lopez, an entomologist with a California-based biological control company.

"The more knowledge we can get controlling this dangerous and deadly pest, the better we can be prepared as summer approaches and the bark scorpion becomes an even bigger problem," said George Botta, manager of Idaho Pest Control, who plans to attend the seminar with several of his technicians.

The bark scorpion, whose scientific name is Centruroides exilicauda segment of the new county of Nevada. It rode in on nursery stock, trucks and other vehicles from New Mexico and other Southwest areas to which it is indigenous.

An adult is about two inches long, including the tail, and is light tan. It is an even greater threat than other scorpions because of its excellent climbing abilities.

"It can climb to second stories where other scorpions can't go," Botta said. "Its sting can kill a small child or ailing elderly person in 20 minutes."

"If I directly spray an insect, the chemical must be absorbed into the scorpion's skin and cap-take up to 24 hours to kill him."

The bark scorpion provides a good example of how a new county of Nevada. But its threat to humans far outweighs any value it has.

It is a solitary creature. The female gives birth to 18 to 20 live babies depending on the size of the eggs, which she rides on her back for a couple of weeks, Botta said. The mother then distributes her young at scattered sites around the area.

Harold was born Jan. 5, 1908, in Mackay, Idaho. He was of the Mackay Vador Ivo. He was the fourth of six children. He was educated in a country school through the eighth grade. His younger years were spent helping his dad hauling freight and building roads. He went to work for the U.S. Forest Service in 1922. Harold resided for a time at Lava Hot Springs, later moving back to the ranch on the Lost River. He worked for a sheep outfit, and started rounding up wild horses which were sold to the U.S. Army by rail from Ketchum.

Harold married Virginia A. Sowers on Oct. 4, 1937, in Halley. Harold worked mines and sawmills at Lost River, Salmon River and Big Wood River until 1940. He then opened a sawmill near Mackay

Judge Ito recalls family's travails in WWII camp
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lance Ito's parents never recovered what they lost in a U.S. internment camp during World War II. The judge's name reminds him of that.

His voice breaking as he discussed camps where 120,000 Japanese-Americans were held, Ito said. Lance was the name of a lawyer who sued the federal government to get back property his family lost during the war. The lawsuit failed.

Ito's middle name, Allan, was the name of a Hollywood minister who took care of one of his parents' homes after they were relocated, he said during a panel discussion Thursday with other Japanese-American judges.

Ito, 44, was born after the war to parents who met at the camp at Heart Mountain, Wyo.

When his parents came back from the relocation experience, they were unable to pursue their professions and their goals and education," the D.J. emphasized. Ito addressed the audience about 150, many of whom had lived in the camps.

"I have to tell you, I agree if it can happen to us, if it can happen to you, it can happen again," he said.

Ito became emotional and paused several times while describing his maternal grandfather, who became an insurance salesman after he was released. He later lost his job and committed suicide.

His parents once took him on a tour of the Nazis' Dachau concentration camp, a trip he said was "one of the most profoundly moving" of his life.

"My parents thought it was very important to share the other experience."

The session was sponsored by the Japanese American National Museum and the Jewish Federation Council of Greater Los Angeles.

Students work together to build electric car that covers 500 miles

MOSCOW (AP) — The electric-powered car tooling around Washington State University and University of Idaho was built by students with an eye to clean air and low maintenance.

Named the Joule, the shiny red car has been a three-year joint project between the two schools.

"The car we have now is basically a new car from the one we've had the past two years," said Carl Powell, a mechanical engineering major at Idaho. "We saw some design things in that vehicle that we wanted to change, so we decided to scrap the old vehicle and build this one."

High school students thought up the name, which is taken from a unit of measurement of energy.

"We held a contest with high schools in the state to name the car," he said. "And since Idaho is the gem state, we thought the name was very clean."

Powered by 28 lead-acid batteries, the Joule can be driven for only 40 miles before the batteries need recharging. But the students installed a second set of lead-acid batteries, powered engine in the rear of the car that can be started any time to charge the batteries on long trips.

A person could probably drive 500 miles depending on the size of the gas tank, said Brian Gordon, an Idaho mechanical engineering major. It is easier to reduce the emissions on the little engines, rather than the full-size engine.

The Joule has only one gear and runs quietly.

3 seek open seat on Hagerman board

By Terrell Williams
Times News correspondent

HAGERMAN — David Zollinger's departure from the Zone 3 seat on the School Board has created a three-way race among Shariene Taylor, Dan Maxwell and Greg Dean.

Board Chairman Pat Russell is running unopposed in Zone 2.

Shariene Taylor says she would like to be a School Board member to help better the education of her children.

"They are getting a good education now," she added, "Hagerman has always had a good program."

Taylor said her goal would be to enhance the student's opportunities by improving the curriculum.

"I definitely like helping the kids," she said. "Without a good education, anyone they just have no life. The job market is just way to hard out there. Sometimes it's hard for small schools to offer the things some colleges look for."

Class sizes should be kept small, she said. "When I went to school in Mountain Home, the classes were big and it was pay-to-get lost in a crowd," Taylor said.

Taylor works at Shopko and helps in farming operations, and she is director of Hagerman youth baseball.

An Idaho Falls native, she has lived in Hagerman 17 years.

Dan Maxwell, 40, says it is important to support local school and to take an interest in what is happening there. As a School Board member, Maxwell said he would look forward to working with the other board members.

"I think they have a good group of people right now," he said. "That's one reason I decided to run, is to work with them."

The main issue in Hagerman now is to get a new high school, Maxwell said. Other Magic Valley schools have had difficulty in passing bonds, he said, and Hagerman, too, might have a hard time.

"We've had several meetings to come up with this bond," Wright said. "Hopefully we can work out something that will be good for this area."

A Buhl High School graduate, Maxwell is a fish culturist for Rangen research hatchery in Hagerman. Born in Buhl, he has lived in Hagerman 11 years.

Greg Dean, 30, says he would like to improve the district by hiring good teachers and promoting good programs.

The main issue now, Dean said, is to pass the bond to get a new high school to replace the 75-year-old building still in use.

"We need a new school," he said.

"I think our citizens are willing to help pay for a school, but they don't want anything too spendy because they are on fixed incomes. But I think they'll support something that is reasonable."

Dean holds a bachelor's degree from BYU in agribusiness, and he is a field man for Amalgamated Sugar Company.

He was born in Arizona and has lived in Hagerman three years.

Between Nov. 1 and Jan. 5, Peel paid inmate Thomas David Martin an undisclosed sum to kill Price or have her killed, the indictment says.

Peel's plot involved maps of the victim's home, her phone number, and details of Price's life such as when she went to work and when she came home, said Twin Falls County Prosecutor Richard Hevan Martin, an escaped bank robber from New Mexico, so all could be charged with a crime, Hevan said.

Martin, 32, was shot in the buttocks by shop owner Floyd Hazen while trying to steal guns from Blue Lakes Sporting Goods last summer. He spent several months in the Twin Falls County Jail, but was in the Ada County Jail in Boise Thursday.

Martin was sentenced Wednesday to 150 months in prison after pleading guilty to robbing a New Mexico bank and theft of a firearm from a licensed gun dealer, said Carol Vaughn, clerk for U.S. District Judge Edward Lodge.

Hevan would not say how much Peel paid Martin, or how he learned of the crime. Peel could face up to 15 years in prison.

Hevan said he still plans to prosecute Peel again for first-degree kidnapping, aggravated assault and aggravated battery in connection with the September kidnapping and shooting of Price.

Peel, acting as his own attorney, told trial jurors before the mistrial this week that unidentified hypnotists in Colorado forced him to kidnap Price.

He was a mistrial after recent rains uncovered a pistol at the site near Buhl where he allegedly shot Price in the arm.

Fifth District Judge Roger Byrdick set Peel's bail at $200,000 Thursday on the new charge.

Wendell candidates seek opportunity, harmony

By Terrell Williams
Times News correspondent

WENDELL — Ronda Stouder and John W. Wright seek the Zone 5 seat on the Wendell School Board left by Vice Chairman Frederick Prins.

Incumbent Marsha Bennett is running unopposed in Zone 1.

Ronda Stouder, 30, says, as a board member, her goals would be to have teachers and students working in a stress-free and drug-free environment.

"I believe everyone affiliated with the Wendell School District should be treated with unconditional positive regard," Stouder said. "All children should have the right to equal educational opportunities and everyone's voice should be heard and respected."

Stouder said the most serious issue this year is limited funding in the district's budget. The tax dollars available must be spent carefully to fund needed programs so the students can get the best education possible, she said.

Stouder has two-year college degree in merchandising.

She has been project assistant at Head Start school, vice-chairman of Head Start policy council, area coordinator and parent contact for the Osteogenesis Imperfecta Foundation for the state of Idaho, member of state board for Infant and Toddler Coordination Council — a three-year appointment made by former Gov. Cecil Andrus.

Born in Pomona, Calif., Stouder has lived in Wendell 11 years.

John Wright, 40, said one of his goals as a School Board member would be to have the board, teachers and parents work together and have better communication, "so there's a little bit more harmony in there," he said.

Wright said he is running because he wants to get involved in the community. "My kids are all scattered throughout the school system and I have a chance to have some impact on their education and the future of Wendell," he said.

Wright said the most important issue for trustees will be to handle the long-term growth that is sure to come.

He has two years in junior college. He is a dairyman, board member of Twin Falls Reformed Church, committee member of Dairy Services extension services through University of Idaho.

Born in Artesia, he has lived in Wendell 15 years.

Bishop, Goolsby campaign for Bliss opening

By Terrell Williams
Times News correspondent

BLISS — S.H. "Shy" Bishop and Steve Goolsby are vying for the School Board seat vacated by Board Chairman Diane Butler.

Incumbent Allison Janis is running unopposed in Zone 3. Board appointee Tom Huffman is running unopposed in Zone 5.

If elected, S.H. Bishop, 44, will be the third generation in his family to serve on the Bliss School Board. He said he would like to help the district get a new school building, one that is insulated and more economical to heat and maintain.

With good planning and use of local labor, Bliss should be able to cut costs to make a new, larger school more affordable, he said.

Bishop said he knows the old coal-heated structure.

"I think I know more about that school building than anybody else," he said. "I've been all through it... in places that most folks don't even know exist."

I don't feel that it's economically feasible to modify that building to current standards. You'd be much better off to take the money and build a new building.

Bishop holds a degree in political science from University of Utah, and a master's degree in human resources, management and development from Chapman University in Orange, Calif. He is a retired Marine officer, farmer, warranty administrator for Roy Raymond Ford in Twin Falls, and he worked for Region IV Development.

Bishop has worked at Bliss school as janitor, maintenance man, substitute teacher and relief bus driver. He served on the technology committee that recently applied for and won a $22,000 grant for school computers.

Steve Goolsby said he wants to contribute to his community by taking a turn on the School Board.

"I think I'll bring a businesslike approach, but that they don't already have that," he said. "But I just think that I'm a reasonable person. I think things through and take a look at the whole picture before I make a decision."

Goolsby said the district's main issue now is to get funding for more classroom space. Options, such as building a new school, need to be studied and discussed among all

Bliss district residents, he said.

"It doesn't really matter what I would like to see," Goolsby said. "I'm there to represent the constituents. I'm sure they'll let me know... I'm pretty easy to find. Everybody knows me. I'm in town all the time."

A Bliss High School graduate, Goolsby owns a grocery store, restaurant, trailer park and laundry, all in Bliss.

Born in Mountain Home, he has lived in Bliss 23 years.

Declo Hills proponents appeal to BLM

By Jennifer Bunch
Times-News writer

DECLO Opponents of a land exchange that would close most of the Declo East Hills to the public are taking their fight to Boise next week to solicit the support of the Bureau of Land Management's new director.

Save the Declo Hills Coalition co-chairmen Fred Preston and Frank Gillette say they will meet with state Director Martha Hahn on Friday.

"We would like to invite her to come down here and take a look at the native environment in these hills," Preston said.

The coalition wants Hahn to see what it feels is important public recreational grounds, Preston said.

The coalition is opposed to the land swap between the BLM and Sam Skages, owner of Six S Ranch in Declo. Skages's land borders the Declo Hills.

School. He now works as a wildlife photographer in Hailey.

Thorngren said he feels like he has a lot of experience to offer the school board.

"When I came from the Boise School District here, it was like moving back in time," Thorngren said. "Wood River schools are good schools but I feel like they need to be excellent."

Thorngren supports a strong activities program, both in sports-related as well as academic competitions. Wood River doesn't participate in statewide academic competitions but should, he said, Thorngren said he would like to see a Rhodes Scholar out of Wood River.

After moving to Hailey from Boise, Thorngren said he thought he was coming to a well-financed school system but was not.

The lack of essentials, such as secretarial help, supplies, materials and up-to-date audio visuals, made his teaching job very frustrating, he said. Thorngren would like to take a look at imposing impact fees to support a new school, forecasting that the high school will need to be replaced before long.

Thorngren said he is neutral on issues of ODDM, but strongly believes in separation of church and state and prohibiting prayer in schools.

Thorngren has a lot of faith in kids and believes the district should set its standards high.

"Kids will rise to the expectations the schools have of them," Thorngren said.

Bonneville County workers face layoffs

IDAHO FALLS — Bonneville County officials are pressing the local judiciary to rescind some jail inmates to county work crews in a bid to avoid temporary layoffs of county employees next month. County Commissioner Roger Christensen said that unless the county cuts the number of jail inmates it's responsible for by 28 in the next three weeks, layoffs will have to take place.

Rising costs for housing inmates in other counties because the Bonneville County Jail is filled to capacity is at the center of the crisis. The $320,000 originally budgeted to pay for jail space in other counties was spent halfway through the budget year, and outside jail payments are now running about $75,000 a month, officials said. Cash siphoned from the sheriff's department and jail budgets will help, but Commissioner Bill Shurtleff said the county will still be about $150,000 short.

Redbook honors woman for service

BOISE — Teresa Kaiser, head of the Idaho Bureau of Child Support Services, is one of eight people who received Redbook magazine's First Annual Red Tape Award, noted in the June issue. A Redbook spokeswoman said Kaiser was selected for the dubious honor because her office requires parents who are not on welfare to pay legal costs involved in locating and recovering delinquent child support from their former spouses.

"Thanks to Kaiser, the state's custodial parents — almost all mothers — have had even more red tape thrown into the agonizingly slow process," Redbook spokeswoman Pamela Drown said. Costs can run as high as $400 for cases where paternity is contested, Kaiser said.

Rafters for use halt jetboats on Snake

LEWISTON — The Hells Canyon Preservation Council has opened a new front in the battle for control of the Snake River's most famous gorge by filing a lawsuit in federal court. The council and a group of rafting outfitters filed suit to force the U.S. Forest Service to implement its Snake River management plan in the Hells Canyon National Recreation Area. The plan is now on hold because of appeals.

The plan has its problems, said Ric Bailey, the council's executive director at Joseph, Ore., but it's better than none. The main goal of the court action filed Wednesday, Bailey said, is to get the agency to, impose limits on jetboat use on the Snake River in Hells Canyon.

Ex-teacher pleads guilty to sex charge

LEWISTON — A former Grangeville High School teacher has pleaded guilty to one count of felony sexual battery. Oscar Salinas, 30, will be sentenced July 27. He pleaded guilty to the sex count, while a second count, Bailey said, is to get the agency to, impose limits on jetboat use on the Snake River in Hells Canyon.

Salinas is accused of sexual involvement with a 17-year old female student. He has since been dismissed from his position as a Spanish teacher and boys varsity basketball coach at Grangeville High School. Idaho County Prosecutor Jeff Perry said a presentence report and a psychological evaluation of Salinas will be conducted before the sentencing. Salinas has been released from jail on his own recognizance pending sentencing.

Teacher pleads guilty to alcohol charge

BOISE — Timothy Shaw, a Borah High School teacher accused of having sexual contact with a student, has pleaded guilty to procuring alcohol for a minor.

That charge carries a maximum sentence of six months in jail and a $300 fine. But Shaw, 26, still faces trial on a second charge of having sexual contact with a 17-year-old girl last November. He has maintained his innocence in that case, but the convicted English teacher faces the possibility of life in prison if convicted.

Once Shaw's trial is over — whether he is convicted or acquitted — the state Professional Standards Commission likely will decide whether or not he will be allowed to teach in Idaho.

Volunteers work on Portneuf pathway

POCATELLO — Advocates of a bike and walking path along the Portneuf River are preparing it while the Pocatello City Council considers a comprehensive plan for the greenway.

Volunteers are preparing a stretch of the greenbelt off South Barnack Highway for an irrigation system and tree plantings. The Portneuf Greenway would entail bike and walking paths along 13 miles of the river from Fort Hall Mine Road to Simplot Park. Compiled from wire reports.

Fish die, Batt wants to know why

Batt

BOISE (AP) — Idaho Gov. Phil Batt questions the sense of using the state's water, if it means the death of endangered salmon due to gas supersaturation below the lower Snake River dams.

In a Friday letter to William Stelle, regional director of the National Marine Fisheries Service, Batt wrote Idaho agreed to offer up water to help the outgoing salmon runs, because the Northwest was blessed with a good snowpack.

The service oversees salmon recovery. But about 125 fall chinook kept in pens below Ice Harbor Dam had died from gas bubble trauma by Friday, reported the Columbia River Alliance, representing industries on the Snake and Columbia rivers. The pens are moored about seven miles down from the dam, allowing the gas to dissipate, the alliance said. "The salmon were being held there as a test whether the main run of fish was suffering from the same condition as divers have with the bends," Batt said. Idaho granted a variance on its dissolved gas standards at the service's request. Ice Harbor reportedly has a gas level of 128 percent of normal.

"I find it hard to believe that the Corps of Engineers and Bureau of Reclamation did not know that the volume of water arriving at Ice Harbor would require a larger spill and thereby cause a deadly gas level," he wrote.

He said he also found it implausible the two agencies drafted water from Idaho's Dworshak Dam to augment flows.

"The Dworshak water only served to compound the problems at Ice Harbor," he said. "It is my understanding that river flows will continue to be high for the next few weeks and additional Idaho smolts will be arriving at Lower Granite and the other downstream dams. It is critical that we not allow a repeat of last week's debacle to occur," Batt wrote.

Perot party will stay an informal group

BOISE (AP) — The disaffected Idaho voters who coalesced under the banner of Texas billionaire H. Ross Perot in 1992 have decided against turning their chapter of United We Stand America into a formal political party.

"The organization was having too great an effect as representatives of the 20 percent swing vote in United We Stand America to do so," Idaho Executive Director Platt Thompson said in a statement issued on Friday.

The Libertarian Party already has that status in Idaho with the Democrats and Republicans, but it has never had the kind of influence on state politics the way United We Stand America seems to have had in the past two elections.

While dissatisfaction with existing political leaders remains high, Thompson said the organization's members were increasingly optimistic that change is beginning, at least in part because of the issues they have pushed to the center of the public debate.

Five of the dozen national issues United We Stand America has as priorities — a balanced budget, term limits, congressional accountability, welfare reform and the line-item veto — were included in the Republican "Contract With America."

"Three short years ago the debt and the deficit really were the crazy aunt in the basement," Gary Allen said. "Today, the political debate of the decade rages in both the House and Senate as they work toward a balanced budget. We are largely responsible for that."

Thompson met earlier this week with several dozen United We Stand America stalwarts in Boise about forming a new party and had discussed the issue with supporters elsewhere in the state in recent weeks.

Board seeks temporary

U of I chief

MOSCOW (AP) — State Board of Education President Curtis Eaton says an interim president for the University of Idaho should be selected by month's end.

Eaton

Eaton said a list will be quickly compiled of potential candidates to fill the job. He said the job of Elisabeth Zinser is leaving in mid-July to become chancellor at the University of Kentucky so the board can review at its meeting in two weeks. "We'll either do it at the meeting or shortly thereafter," Eaton said. With the announcement of Zinser's new job being made Thursday, Eaton said no specific candidates for interim president had surfaced yet. But he said the person selected will "be someone with close ties to the university."

The interim president will likely oversee university operations for the 1995-1996 school year.

Rare birds found in U.S. for 1st time in 54 years

BOISE (AP) — A pair of aplomado falcons has been found in Cameron County, Texas, the first time the birds have been discovered nesting in the United States in 54 years, the Boise-based Peregrine Fund reports.

The young birds were released either in 1993 or 1994 as part of the fund's restoration project. The last reported falcon nest was in nearby Brooks County.

"The nest established by the two aplomado falcons is very exciting," fund vice president J. Peter Jenny said Friday. "You can only start restoring a species one nest at a time and we did not expect any released birds to nest until 1997 or 1998 at the earliest."

"The birds are using land ranching is also being used for cattle ranching. Basically, what is good for cattle is also good for aplomado falcons," Jenny said.

Aplomado is Spanish for dark grey. They are a medium-sized grey falcon with a distinctive white dash under each eye. They formerly ranged throughout the southwestern United States and Mexico.

The bird population declined during the early part of the century, then plummeted with the use of insecticides during World War II. The Peregrine Fund started the program in 1982 by discovering a remnant population in southern Mexico. The Mexican government allowed the fund to take 10 young falcons from 10 different nests. They were raised at the Boise facility. Since 1993, 26 young falcons have been released at Laguna Atascosa National Wildlife Refuge.

National Emergency Medical Services Week

During National Emergency Medical Services Week, May 14-20, we want to say "thanks" to the dedicated professionals who put their talents, abilities and training on the line to save others. Last year alone, our 24-hour emergency department delivered care to approximately 14,000 patients. Our ambulance department is the regional trauma center and coordinates with our hospital-based paramedic/ambulance service to provide care throughout the Magic Valley and northern Nevada. Our paramedics are specially trained to administer life-saving treatment at the scene, rather than trying to make it to the ER in time for the patient to be treated by a physician. It's a difficult job that deserves our appreciation.

OPEN HOUSE

To kick off EMS Week, you're invited to attend our fifth annual EMS Open House. We'll have displays of our emergency service equipment and local quick response units. Police, fire department, search and rescue, BARE, SAFE KIDS and E-911 representatives will be on hand to answer questions and give safety tips. There will be Life Flight and National Guard Guardian Medic helicopters on site and automobile extrication demonstrations featuring the "Jaws for Life."

Rupert Country Club men will play today

RUPERT — The Rupert Country Club men's golf association will feature a morning of golf beginning at 10 a.m. today. The men's twilight league got underway this week, with a record number of teams playing.

North Idaho College center will play for U of Portland

PORTLAND, Ore. — Luke Palumbus, a 6-foot-9 center from North Idaho College, has signed a letter of intent to play basketball for the University of Portland. Palumbus, a 1993 graduate of Lakeridge High School in Lake Oswego, averaged 10 points and 1.5 blocked shots per game last season as a freshman at North Idaho, compiled a 19-11 record and finished second in the regional tournament.

Prior to going to North Idaho, Palumbus spent one year at the Air Force Academy Prep School in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Montana's athletic director takes the same job at Oregon

EUGENE, Ore. — Bill Moos, Oregon's athletic director at Montana for the past five years, was hired Friday as head of the athletic department at Oregon.

Moos, 44, called the Oregon athletic program "one of the premier programs, not only in the Pac-10, but in the entire country."

"There are only a handful of programs that I would have left Montana for," he said.

Before taking the Montana job, Moos was on the staff at his alma mater, Washington State, for eight years as athletic director, director of development and associate athletic director.

He was an all-conference lineman for the Cougars in football in 1972.

Oregon State women's hoop coach resigns — for a price

CORVALLIS, Ore. — Aki Hill has resigned as Oregon State's women's basketball coach and, in a settlement announced by the university Friday, will receive $120,000 and a new job.

"I have a warm feeling for Oregon State, and this settlement allows me to move ahead with new plans for a new involvement with the university," Hill said in a statement released by the school.

Hill's resignation came after the university reported to the Pacific 10 Conference that it had discovered some rule violations in the women's basketball program.

Highland sweeps Twin Falls

Rams battle winds to take track meet

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — Even the wind couldn't slow the Highland Rams Friday as the Pocatello school swept the boys' and girls' divisions in a five-way track meet.

For the first time in several days, the Twin Falls High School track was dry, but stiff winds and cold temperatures made running difficult.

'I really fought the wind down the back stretch.'

— Wood River's Jenny Hobson, winner of the girls' 800-meter run

The Twin Falls boys finished third overall, behind No. 2 Jerome and ahead of Wood River and Nampa. The Bruin girls were second, just 79 points behind the Rams. Jerome, Wood River and Nampa finished out the standings as the athletes tuned up for next week's state-qualifying meets.

"I really fought that wind down the back stretch," said Wood River's Jenny Hobson after winning the girls' 800-meter run.

In fact, the freshman tied the personal best time of 2:33 she set last week — a remarkable feat considering the conditions. And Hobson finished second in the high jump, which she took up just three meets ago.

"I'm pretty excited about it," she said. Hobson also helped her team to second-place finishes in the medley and 4x400 relays. "I think I'm peaking at the right time."

Another Wood River runner that didn't seem to feel the wind was Ben Clark, who overhauled his Highland counterpart on the final leg of the 4x100 meter relay to keep the Wolverines' unbeaten string intact.

It was by far the closest race Clark and relay teammates Brent Bellon, Chase

BOOBY CHARLES/MANAGER/THE TIMES-NEWS

John Bullock, of Jerome won his heat in the 300 meter hurdles, but failed to finish in the top five overall. Despite windy conditions, several runners finished with fast times.

Monroe and Forrest Dick have been in this year, with only a fraction of a second separating the two top finishers.

Highland was disqualified in the event, however, when the anchor man spiked his baton after crossing the finish line.

Clark predicted a win at the Class A2 state tournament. Wood River will join Bull and Jerome in the district meet Thursday at the Tigers' track.

The state track meet will be at Boise State University May 26-27. Meljissa Oloff of Twin Falls hopes to bring home some hardware from Boise.

She broke the one-minute barrier for the first time this season in winning the 400-meter run in a time of 59.89 seconds.

The wind "pushes you to do your best," she said. Oloff also finished second in the 100- and 200-meter dashes Friday, and third in the triple jump, an event she took up this season after taking third at state last year in the long jump.

Boys team results: 1. Highland 119, 2. Jerome 97, 3. Twin Falls 87, 4. Wood River 84, 5. Nampa 82

CSI ends season with loss

By Larry Hovey
Times-News writer

ST. GEORGE, Utah — College of Southern Idaho's baseball season screeched to a halt Friday morning. Just 24 hours after handling Dixie 6-1, the Eagles dropped an 11-0 run-rule decision to the Rebels to drop out of the Region 18 baseball tournament.

This game nearly mirrored the previous night's 10-1 loss to Rebels. "But after saying all three-run homer to high-light a four-run first inning."

CSI's biggest threat came when the Eagles put two men on base in the bottom of the fifth inning, but they fell out on the game all. The defeat ended a long year for the Golden Eagles, who never mounted a string of offensive games. "It's just like it's been the last month of so. We couldn't get started and we couldn't find anybody who could throw strikes," said CSI coach Jim Walker. "I guess you'd say we did not handle adversity very well. We were not an overly talented team, but we did not get the best out of what we had, either."

"There's no doubt they were trying, and they feel bad about this," Walker added. "But after saying all that, this team still won 30 games."

CSI (30-27-1) started lefty Mike Young and he immediately ran into control problems. He gave up a walk to Scott Sudbury, a single to Brad Parker, and then a towering center-field homer to Al Shephard. He walked two more and gave up

Magic hold off Chicago for 2-1 lead

Knight-Ridder News Service

CHICAGO — Whether or not they win another game in this playoff series, the Orlando Magic Friday night earned the respect they had sought from the rest of the NBA.

On a night when this city was ready to ascend into the basketball version of nirvana, the Magic withstood a 40-point night by Michael Jordan to pull out a 110-101 victory behind 28 points from Shaquille O'Neal.

And that was with Jordan wearing No. 23 for the first time at the United Center — an occasion duly noted by 24,281 Bulls fans ready to blow the roof off the place.

The victory gave Orlando a 2-1 lead in this best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinal series. Game 4 is scheduled for Sunday afternoon here, but it is hard to imagine the series getting more dazzlingly competitive.

Down by double digits in the first half, the Magic roared back to take a four-point halftime lead and extended it to 77-67 halfway through the third quarter.

Now, again, it was Chicago's turn. Scottie Pippen and B.J. Armstrong raked jumpers from the outside to help the Bulls retake the lead at 81-80 going into the fourth quarter. In that stretch, Jordan contributed only a layup.

What followed was 12 minutes of high suspense. The Bulls moved ahead by 66-80 before consecutive dunks by O'Neal and Horace Grant started Orlando back. The Magic tied the score at 86, then fell behind again by five as Jordan turned a fastbreak layup into a three-point play.

But, suddenly, Nick Anderson was draining two three-point rainbows, one over Jordan and another after a missed shot by Dennis Scott. The Bulls rebounded back into Orlando's possession. As the second one fell — boom! — the score was tied again, this time at 99 with four minutes left.

In 1 minute, 38 seconds left, Anfernee Hardaway, who had been fouled by Jordan while attempting a three-pointer, canned 2 of 3 free throws to give the Magic a 103-101 lead.

At the other end, the Bulls got the ball to Jordan, but he lost it in the lane. It seemed to have been tipped from behind. Grant ended up with it, and he then made 1 of 2 free throws. Next, Pippen shot

Luyendyk, Brayton battle for pole

Los Angeles Times

INDIANAPOLIS — Now Al Unser Jr. knows how the rest of the field felt last year when the Penske held such a horsepower advantage at the Indianapolis Speedway.

This year it's the Buicks, or the Menards as Owner John Menard insists they be called.

Arie Luyendyk and Scott Brayton, in matching Luas powered by turbocharged V-6 engines — highly modified versions of the Buick stock block — built by Menard here in Indianapolis, are overwhelming favorites to win the pole when four-lap qualifying begins Saturday for the May 28 Indianapolis 500.

They have been at the top of the speed report every day since the track opened last Saturday.

The only questions remaining seem to be:

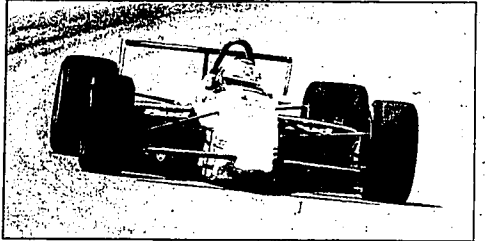

• Will predicted thunderstorms stay away?

• Will it be the Luyendyk or Brayton winning the pole?

• Will just one or both break the qualifying records of 232.618 mph for one lap and 232.482 for four, set by Roberto Guerrero in 1992, also in a Buick-powered car?

Both have consistently bettered Guerrero's speeds, Luyendyk running 234.913 on Friday and Brayton 234.656 on Thursday. Luyendyk will qualify in the fifth spot and Brayton in the 13th.

"The only difference between the two cars is the color," said Larry Curry, director of racing for Team Menard, whose owner runs a chain of Midwestern lumber-hardware stores.

Michael Andretti drives through the first turn at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. Thursday, Andretti is one of a handful of drivers to turn in one-lap speeds over 233 mph.

Only one other driver, Michael Andretti in a Lola-Ford Cosworth, bettered 233 during the week. He ran 233.724 Friday, but "I needed a low (drafting) help to do it."

Said Luyendyk, the 1993 winner who was on the pole two years ago in a Lola-Ford.

"We don't care who's on the pole as long as it's one of us."

Brayton, also a good qualifier who sat next to Pancho Carter in the front row in 1985, has put in close to 2,000 miles testing for Team Menard this year.

"The weather makes qualifying such a crapshoot," Brayton said. "It's going to be like a high-stakes poker game."

Golf analyst draws heat over remarks

Knight-Ridder News Service

WILMINGTON, Del. — Ben Wright, a CBS golf broadcaster for more than 20 years, was removed from Friday's TV coverage of the McDonald's LPGA Championship after he was quoted as saying that lesbians on the women's golf tour harmed the sport.

Wright, 62, also was quoted as saying: "Women are handicapped by having (breasts). It's not easy for them to keep their left arm straight, and that's one of the tenets of the game."

His remarks, which appeared in Friday's News Journal of Wilmington, brought both dismay and disbelief from members of the Ladies Professional Golf Association here for this week's tournament, one of the LPGA tour's premier events.

Some players doubted that Wright had made the comments. Others were incensed. Wright, in a written note to the players, denied having made the remarks.

CBS immediately went into high-alert damage control. Frank Chirkinian, the network's executive producer of golf, flew here to monitor the controversy. Chirkinian waved off a reporter, saying he had no comment, then said he felt the News Journal article had been a "setup."

Tournament results — 88

On Friday night CBS Sports president David Kamen issued a statement saying he conducted his own investigation into Wright's alleged comments.

"I believe that Mr. Wright made no statements that were disparaging or otherwise offensive to gays or lesbians or the LPGA," said Kamen, who added that Wright and CBS Sports have "been done a grave injustice in this matter."

Kamen said Wright would return for CBS' coverage of today's broadcast of the LPGA Championship's third round.

Wright was summoned to New York Friday to meet with CBS officials there.

On Thursday, Wright and other CBS broadcasters had reported on the tournament, being played at the DuPont Country Club, for The Golf Channel, a cable channel. CBS announced Friday night that Wright would be back on the air for the network's broadcasts of the rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Wright, who was unavailable for comment yesterday, was quoted in the article as saying: "Let's face facts here. Lesbians in the sport hurt women's golf. When it gets to the corporate level, that's not going to fly. They're going to a bunch game, and that furthers the bad image of the game."

Wright also was quoted as saying that lesbianism on the tour "is not reticent. It's paraded. There's a defiance in them in the last decade."

Before leaving for New York, Wright had a note distributed to the lockers of players here denying the comments. He accused the News Journal of "lies and distortions."

The article, by staff writer Valerie Helms-Breck, ran on the front page. Jerry Buckley, assistant managing editor of the News Journal, said:

"It's pretty simple: We stand by the accuracy of Valerie Helms-Breck's story. LPGA commissioner Charlie Mechem issued a statement saying that the association would not have a reaction to the 'alleged comments' until we know more about the facts."

Mechem went on to say that any suggestion that the issue of lesbianism was a problem on the tour "is totally at odds with the facts and our experience. In my four and one-half years as commissioner, I have never had one letter or one phone call from a sponsor, media representative or fan to suggest that this issue is a problem."

Rangers nuke Nordiques in OT

NEW YORK (AP) — Steve Larmer scored at 8:09 of overtime Friday night and the New York Rangers beat the Quebec Nordiques 3-2 to move within one game of clinching their first-round playoff series.

The Rangers took a 3-1 lead in the best-of-7 Eastern Conference series which they can wrap up in Game 5 in Quebec on Sunday.

Larmer scored the game-winner after carrying the puck into the Quebec zone. Larmer worked a quick-go and with Petr Nedved, who left a drop pass for him in front.

Larmer's first shot was stopped by goaltender Jocelyn Thibault, playing in his first Stanley Cup playoff game, but Larmer put it in the rebound.

The goal capped a three-goal comeback for the Rangers, who trailed 2-0 after one period.

Devils 1, Bruins 0 OT
EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Randy McKay scored on a give-away right in front of the Boston Bruins at 1:51 of overtime and Martin Brodeur came up with his third shutout of the series Friday night.

NHL playoffs

to give the New Jersey Devils a 1-0 victory and a 3-1 lead in their first-round playoff matchup.

The Devils overcame the best-of-7 series on Sunday night in what might be the final game at Boston Garden.

Brodeur was once again spectacular, stopping 37 shots and he also had some luck. Minutes before McKay's goal, a shot by David Shaw on a power play clanged off the crossbar and Brodeur later made a great glove save on Brent Hughes.

McKay innocently chipped the puck into the Boston end on the play leading to the game-winning goal and goalie Brian Lacher stopped the puck. Defenseman Jon Rohloff took it behind the net. As Mike Peluso challenged him from the left side, Rohloff came out to the right and lost the puck to McKay coming in from the circle. He simply chipped it past Lacher, who had 24 saves, including a game-saving one on Tom Cullen's front with 2:40 to play in regulation.

Flyers 4, Sabres 2

BUFFALO, N.Y. — Eric Lindros, playing in his first career playoff game, set up two goals and the Philadelphia Flyers beat the Buffalo Sabres 4-2 Friday night to take a 3-1 lead in the best-of-7 series.

Lindros, the outstanding third-year player who has missed four games with an eye injury, assisted on goals 1:42 apart in the second period.

Rod Brind'Amour, Brent Fedyk, Eric DeJardins and John LeClair scored for the Flyers, who led 4-0 after two periods. Buffalo got goals from Alexander Mogilny and Pat LaFontaine 37 seconds apart in the third period but was unable to recover from the deficit.

The Flyers are 10-0 in series when they have 3-1 leads, and the Sabres have lost all six series where they are trailing by the same margin.

Buffalo has advanced to the second round just once in the last 12 years.

Capitals 6, Penguins 2

LANDOVER, Md. — A goal-tending switch did nothing to change the Pittsburgh Penguins' luck against the Washington Capitals.

Sixth-seeded Washington can eliminate the third-seeded Penguins in Game 5 on Sunday in Pittsburgh.

Penguins coach Ed Johnston, desperate to turn things around in a series that had decidedly shifted in Washington's favor, started undemoted goalie Tom Hartnaso in place of Ken Wreggett. Hartnaso kept Pittsburgh within 3-2 through the opening 40 minutes, but was buried under a three-goal barrage in a five-minute span of the third period.

First, Paulini Kristich scored from the left circle off a pass from Pivonka to make it 4-2 with 18:10 to go. Joe Juneau put in a rebound of a shot by Steve Konowalchuk with 13:07 remaining, and 35 seconds later Peter Hendry gave Washington a four-goal cushion.

Detroit pitcher finally gets win

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Buddy Groom finally earned his first big league victory, winning in his 77th appearance Friday night by pitching the Detroit Tigers over the Texas Rangers 6-1.

Groom (1-1) was 6-0 in 11 starts and 65 relief outings in the majors. The Dallas native shut out the Rangers on one hit in 5 2/3 innings.

Groom overcame three walks in the first inning. He walked only more batters after that, and struck out two. John Doleary and Mike Heman finished with 3 1/3 innings of four-hit relief. Texas scored in the eighth off Doherty on a grounder by Ivin Rodriguez.

Detroit started the day with a 6.80 ERA after a combined shutout by Sean Bergman and Felipe Lira on Tuesday against Milwaukee. The Tigers won for the third time in four games.

Kirk Gibson went 2-for-4 and drove in two runs for the Tigers.

Brewers 14, Blue Jays 5
MILWAUKEE — Joe Oliver had four hits, and the Milwaukee Brewers scored 10 runs in their last two at-bats to break away from the Toronto Blue Jays 14-5 Friday night.

Tied at 4, Kevin Seitzer's RBI single started a five-run seventh. Jeff Cirillo homered during a five-run eighth.

Oliver had two doubles and two singles, and Jose Valentin had a triple, double and single. Darrell Hamilton had a two-run double and a suicide squeeze for the Brewers, who had 18 hits.

Devon White homered on the first pitch of the game from Ricky Bones, ending his scoreless streak at a career-high 15 innings.

After the Blue Jays scored three in the sixth to make it 4-11, the Brewers came back with five in the seventh.

Valentin opened with a double just beyond the reach of right fielder Shawn Green. Valentin took third on Pat Linstead's sacrifice and scored on Seitzer's single off Danny Darwin (1-1).

Twins 9, Athletics 5
MINNEAPOLIS — Rookie Scott Stohovich had three hits, and the Minnesota Twins beat the Oakland Athletics 9-5 Friday night to end a four-game losing streak.

Mary Cordova hit a two-run double during a four-run third inning that finished Dave Stewart (2-2). Kevin Tapani (1-1) pitched 6 1/3 innings and allowed four runs and nine hits.

Stohovich scored twice and drove in a run. Pedro Munoz doubled, singled and scored two runs for the Twins.

Mark McGwire hit his fifth homer and Stan Javier had a pair of RBI doubles for Oakland.

The Twins loaded the bases with no outs in their second before Scott Leticus' sacrifice fly and Pat Means' two-run double made it 3-2.

Minnesota made it 7-2 in the third on Cordova's two-run double, Stohovich's RBI single and Chuck

Yankees 12, Red Sox 2
BOSTON — Sterling Hitchcock limited Boston to two singles in seven-plus innings, and Luis Polonia had four hits and scored four runs Friday night, leading the New York Yankees past the Red Sox 12-2.

Hitchcock (1-2) struck out six and walked two. He gave up an infield single to Wes Chamberlain with two outs in the fifth inning, and left after Tim Lincecum singled to start the eighth.

Hitchcock, the Yankees' No. 5 starter, began the game with a 12.15 ERA. Earlier this week, owner George Steinbrenner said the left-hander needed to show improvement, further fueling trade rumors involving California's Mark Langston.

The Yankees scored four times in the eighth for a 6-0 lead, capped by pinch hitter Dave Silveria's three-run homer. New York added six runs in the ninth, highlighted by Randy Velarde's two-run double.

Polonia tripled, doubled and singled twice. Wade Boggs drove in three runs.

Mo Vaughn hit his seventh home run for the Red Sox. Lee Fintley had an RBI single, extending his AL-best hitting streak to 14 games.

Indians 3, Orioles 2
BALTIMORE — Dennis Martinez again defeated his former team, and Cleveland Indians beat the Baltimore Orioles 3-2 Friday night for their fifth straight victory.

Martinez (3-0) scattered seven hits in 6 2/3 innings. He left after being hit on the left wrist by Brady Argleron's grounder.

Martinez, whose 222 wins are the most among active pitchers, is 3-0 in four lifetime starts against the Orioles. He began his career with Baltimore, going 108-93 between 1976 and 1986.

Jim Thome homered and doubled as Cleveland won for the ninth time in 11 games. Thome, Tony Pena and Manny Ramirez each had a pair of hits, and an RBI for the Indians.

Kevin Brown (2-1) lasted eight innings, the longest outing by an Orioles pitcher this season. Baltimore lost its third in a row.

Angels 3, Royals 2
KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Spike Owen dropped a pinch-double over the third base bag with two outs in the ninth inning Friday night, giving the California Angels a 3-2 victory over Kansas City.

Billy Brewer (0-1) walked both Gary DiSarcina, the ninth-place pitcher, and Tony Phillips. Rusty Meacham then relieved Brewer and Owen, batting for Damon Eason, delivering his go-ahead hit.

Mike Butcher (4-0), the third of four Angels pitchers, got the last out in the eighth. Lee Smith worked the ninth for his league-leading sixth save.

Rockies bomb Marlins, 10-6

MIAMI (AP) — Vinny Castilla had two homers and six RBIs and Larry Walker homered for the fourth time in five games as the Colorado Rockies beat Florida 10-6 Friday night, keeping the Marlins winless at home.

The Rockies won their fourth straight game, while the Marlins dropped their sixth in a row and fell to 0-8 at Joe Robbie Stadium.

National League

Bill Swift (1-0) scattered six hits over five innings and left with a 6-2 lead. Florida scored four runs in the sixth to make it 7-6, but Walker's solo homer gave the Rockies a two-run shot of victory over the Marlins.

Bruce Ruffin pitched the final two innings and got his fourth save.

Florida starter Mark Gardner (0-4) led five innings, giving up six runs and nine hits.

Kurt Abbott had a solo home run for the second night in a row and Jeff Conine had a two-out, two-RBI double for Florida.

Cubs 8, Padres 4

CHICAGO — Sammy Sosa drove in three runs with a double and two singles as the Chicago Cubs beat San Diego 8-4 Friday night, sending the Padres to their ninth loss in 11 games.

With the Cubs trailing 2-1, Sosa sparked a four-run third by doubling in Ray Schatz and left fielder Steve Buechele's bounce, Caminiti's throw shipped past second baseman Rip Roberts into right field.

James Navarre (3-0) shut down the Padres, the NL's top-hitting team with a 3.07 average coming in. He allowed two runs and seven hits in seven innings, limiting San Diego to one hit during his final four innings.

Andy Benes (0-3) was chased after four-plus innings and his ERA rose to 9.00. He was tagged for seven runs — five earned — and seven hits while walking five.

Reds 5, Braves 4, 11 Innings

ATLANTA — Ron Gant, playing three homers and 11 RBIs.

Denver, already a haven for hitters, seems to be even better this year, particularly for left-handers who pull.

The Braves, the NL's top team with 350 feet, compared to 370 last season at High School Stadium.

Before Piazza's power surge, though, remember that a few days ago the Braves' lead in the standings was 350 feet, compared to 370 last season at High School Stadium.

Then again, there were this week's shenanigans at SkyDome, where the Yankees and Blue Jays played a three-game series that totaled 48 runs and 81 hits.

Atlanta Braves' third baseman Jose Oliva is late with the tag as Cincinnati's Delon Sanders steals third during the first inning of their game Friday. The Reds won, 6-4, in 11 innings.

For the first time against his former team, led off the 11th inning with a homer to give the Cincinnati Reds their sixth victory in a row, 5-4 over the Atlanta Braves on Friday night.

Gant, who was released by Atlanta before the 1994 season after he broke his leg in a motorbike accident, homered to left on a 1-1 pitch from Steve Bedrosian (0-2).

Jeff Brantley (1-0) drove in the Braves over the last two innings. Atlanta had runners on first and third in the 11th, but Jerome Walton pitched the final out.

Chipper Jones and Fred McGriff hit home runs on consecutive pitches in the fourth inning and Charlie O'Brien also homered for Atlanta.

Healing the case in Baltimore were Roberto Croe, the panel's chairman, along with Jim Jaffe and Theodore High. The panel, which probably will decide the case over the weekend, will not announce whether its decision is unanimous or split.

During the first 19 years of arbitration, all cases were decided by one arbitrator. During the collective bargaining this spring, owners proposed a switch to three-person panels. As a test, three of the 33 cases remaining are scheduled to be heard by panels.

Gomez's case is the first of the year. Normally, hearings take place during the first three weeks of February but they were delayed by the owners' refusal to go through arbitration. The National Labor

Fassero (4-0), the left-handed ace of the staff, allowed three runs and nine hits in six innings, striking out six and walking two. Jim Shaw pitched 10 1/3 third innings, minus and struck out three in a row in the seventh after entering the game with two on and none out.

The Expos collected seven hits off Jaseo Garcia (0-3), all of them for extra bases.

They ended the night with 10 hits, four Mets pitchers.

Bobby Bonilla homered twice for the Mets, hitting one from each side of the plate for the sixth time in his career.

Phillies 5, Astros 2

HOUSTON — All the tickets were free but almost half the seats were empty at the Astrodome on Friday night as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Houston Astros 5-2.

More than 54,000 free tickets were scooped up in a 6-hour run May 1, but only 30,828 people showed up to watch the Phillies improve to 8-2 on the road this season.

Scott Schilling (3-0) cooled off his pitching in Houston, allowing seven hits to a team that averaged eight runs per game on its recent nine-game road trip. Schilling struck out eight and walked two in 7 2/3 innings, and Heathcliff Slocumb pitched a perfect ninth for his sixth save.

Yvesouski, both figures were down from the opening day average, calculated by The Associated Press at $1,178,679. The average goes down during the seasons as veterans are placed on the disabled list and released, and low-salaried players are added to the roster.

The New York Yankees had the highest average at $1,827,539, followed by Atlanta at $1,738,396 and Toronto at $1,629,880.

In the AP's study of opening day salaries this year, Toronto was first at $1,780,482, followed by the Yankees at $1,668,233 and Atlanta at $1,617,571.

Stats show baseball scoring not up by much

Mike Piazza and the Los Angeles Dodgers go crazy at Coors Field. The Yankees and Boston Red Sox romp at Fenway Park. The New York Yankees and Toronto Blue Jays hold a scorefest at SkyDome.

So many runs are crossing the plate this season, it seems that it will take a calculator instead of a scorebook to keep track.

Robbins holds lead at Championship

Fort Lauderdale Sun-Sentinel

WILMINGTON, Del. Besides controversy over comments about lesbians attributed to CBS golf analyst Ben Wright, there was also golf at the LPGA Championship on Friday.

Wendell Smith, the day with tabloid television crews swooping into DuPont Country Club as Wright was recalled to network headquarters in New York, but order reigned on the course.

Playing at a soggy 6,384 yards, the course was supposed to favor big hitters. So far, it has. Kelly Robbins and Laura Davies, the tour's longest drivers, have overpowered the layout to take prominent positions on the leaderboard.

Robbins shot 3-under 68 after her opening to take the lead at the midpoint. At 8-under 134, Robbins holds a one-shot lead over Patty Sheehan, who also shot 68.

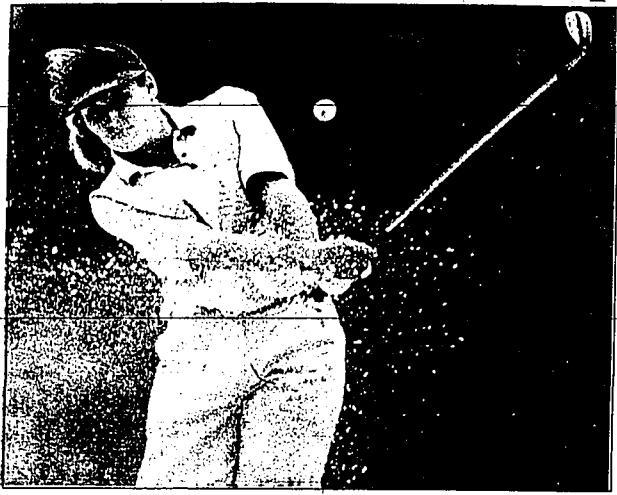

Davies, meanwhile, is tied for third with Barb Thomas, just two strokes behind Robbins. Davies, the defending champion who leads the tour with a 269-yard driving average, shot her second consecutive 68 on Friday. Thomas, who won her first tournament earlier this year in Hawaii, shot a bogey-free 68, the day's best round. Dottie Mochine and Becky Iverson are three shots off the lead.

"This is really no pressure," said Robbins, 25, who has won two tournaments but seeks her first major. "I feel like I'm playing some of the best golf of my career right now. I've been putting some good numbers on the board the last few weeks and I'm lucky enough to have been in contention."

Robbins, ranked second in driving average at 263 yards, came into the tournament with three consecutive top-10 finishes. She tied for second at the Sara Lee Classic last week, finishing fourth in the Sprint Championship and was runner-up to Davies at the Chick-fil-A Championship.

"I had just a real solid day out there and Robbins, who had four birdies and only one bogey, at the 35th hole, when she couldn't get up and down from a bunker. 'I didn't hit the ball as close as I'd like, but I'm fairly pleased I'm not trying to play as steadily as I possibly can.'"

If Robbins falters, you can bet Davies will be around to pick up the pieces. She shows no signs of slowing down after climbing stop the heap in women's golf. Davies, a powerful Brit whom Wright reportedly said "is built like a tank," won three tournaments and the LPGA money title in 1994. This year she has won twice, leads the money list with $319,465 and has finished top-10 in six of eight tournaments.

No place has Davies' prodigious power been more evident than on DuPont's 18th hole, a par-4, 299-yard dogleg left. The hole has tall trees along the left side and a creek that bisects the fairway about 270 yards from the tee.

On Thursday, Davies fished her drive over the trees to cut off the dogleg and elected to go from the gallery, when her ball landed smack dab in the middle of the fairway, 26 yards from the green. The ball went about 287 yards as the crow flies. "The trees didn't seem that tall to me," Davies said modestly. She hit her wedge approach to 60 feet and birdied.

On Friday, with the wind blowing to the right, she went over the trees again. She didn't get all of it this time, but she got enough, comfortably clearing the creek to leave herself with 110 yards. This time she settled for par.

Although Wright bemoaned the advent of power golf in the women's game in his comments published by the Wilmington News-Journal, Davies said the galleries seem to appreciate it. Friday's crowd was announced at 29,300, a dramatic increase from the 9,600 who turned out Thursday.

"Women's pro golf is moving forward, just like the men's game," Davies said. "People like to watch it. I think people like watching Kelly, Michelle (McGann) and myself — the big girls."

Judging by the success Davies and Robbins are having this week, McGann must be kicking herself for withdrawing on Thursday. McGann, of Riviera Beach, who won her first tournament last week, withdrew because of allergies that caused headaches and sinus problems.

McGann is ranked fourth in driving distance. Sheehan isn't as long as Robbins or Davies, but she knows how to hang back, especially in majors. The gritty Hall of Fame member's last two wins have come at major's last two U.S. Women's Open and the 1993 LPGA Championship.

Els moves into Byron Nelson lead

Fires sizzling 9-under par 61

G. Texas (AP) — U.S. Open on each course before the final two rounds at the TPC. Ernie Els, saying he was fortunate, birdied half the course in a 9-under-par 61 that gave him a share of the lead Friday at the Byron Nelson Classic.

The rangy South African did not make a bogey, was never in danger of making one and did not have a "5" on his card at the Cottonwood Valley course.

It went with an opening 69 at the TPC at Four Seasons for a 36-hole total of 130, 10-under par. He was tied with Robin Freeman who had a second round 65, also at Cottonwood.

"I don't know what happened to me," Els said. "It came into this event complaining about a slump that has plagued him since his U.S. Open triumph at Oakmont, Pa. last year."

"I felt very comfortable. I probably shape the shots the way I wanted," he said, and shrugged. "It was just one of those nice runs where you just keep going."

Sometimes you get the breaks, sometimes you don't. The breaks came my way today.

His big score has been bettered only 11 times in the history of the PGA Tour. Els did not harbor thoughts of a sub-60 score of 59 was never in the picture. I birdied the last three for 61.

Freeman also played without a bogey at Cottonwood Valley. Both he and Els had their opening rounds at the TPC at Four Seasons under the format that has the pros playing one round at Cottonwood. Masters champion Ben Crenshaw and England's Nick Faldo were at 137. Neal Lancaster, who won the storm-abbreviated, 36-hole version of this tournament a year ago, missed the cut for the final two rounds at 141.

The long-hitting Els largely overpowered Cottonwood. He was pin-high in 2 on both par-5's and only once had a club longer than an 8-iron to the par-4's. And he made some putts.

He played the front side in 3-under 31, capped a string of three consecutive birdies with a 25-footer on the 13th hole, then ran off three more in a row, ending with a 35-foot putt on the 18th.

"The hole looked like a bucket. I just hit it with a 1-wood and played like this at the Masters. I got off to a good start and the momentum just kept me going."

Freeman, who has yet to win in a five-season tour career, missed two putts of less than 6 feet and was putting for birdie on the first 10 holes.

"I can barely tell you I turned a 60 into a 65," he said. "The $1.3 million tournament is sponsored by GTE."

"I have to be more patient with my shots," he said. "I will watch Wayne Ferreira and will play Andre Medvedev in the semifinals. Brugnera will meet Goran Ivanisevic."

Ivanisevic beat Marc Rosset 6-1, 6-3, while Medvedev ousted Andre Gaudenzi 6-3, 6-2. Brugnera began his match against Agassi with a double-fault, but it was one of his rare errors on the slow clay court.

"It was very important for me to win and to play well, especially after the long break," he said. Agassi had six double-faults and 35 unforced errors.

"I was surprised by how pitiful my serve was," he said. "I wasn't closing off points, I was a little anxious, I was trying a bit too much to make good shots."

"He's moving well. He's hitting the ball well. I don't think he's off by much," Agassi said. Agassi felt the loss will not affect his preparation for the French Open, where he reached the final in 1990 and 1991. He has Wimbledon, U.S. and Australian Open titles but has yet to win at Roland Garros.

"Grant, if it would have been better for me to come here and win, but I'll be looking forward to playing him in Paris," Agassi said.

Briefly in sports

Murphy shoots for consecutive wins

CLIFTON, N.J. — Bub Murphy denied Raymond Floyd last week and it looks like he's intent on doing it again.

Murphy, gunning for his second straight senior tournament victory and third overall this season, shot a 7-under-par 65 Friday to grab a one-stroke lead after the opening round of the $950,000 Cadillac NFL Golf Classic.

Don Bies, whose best finish this year was a tie for 26th, used a new set of irons to get within a stroke of the leader while Floyd, the defending champion and the tour's leading money winner this year, was tied with Tom Wargo at 67.

Then Aoki and three others were at 68 on an overcast and rainy day in which the 6,816-yard Upper Montclair Country Club was seemingly in the mercy of the golfers, including 26 NFL players competing in their own tournament.

There were 32 rounds below par, and 18 below 70 on a day the average score on the par-72 course was 71.9.

Top hoops recruit commits to UCLA

LOS ANGELES — Tommy Prince, a 6-foot-5 swingman from Dominguez High in Compton who is considered one of the top senior prep basketball players in California, has signed a national letter of intent to attend UCLA.

Prince, the third player to sign with the national champion Bruins, committing during the early signing period were 6-10 forward-center Jelani McCoy from San Diego's St. Augustine High and 6-0 guard Brandon Loyd from Tulsa, Okla., Memorial High.

Prince, a left-hander, averaged 19.0 points and seven rebounds last season in leading Dominguez to the Southern Section Division II-A championship.

Wisconsin's Griffith enters NBA draft

CHICAGO — Rashard Griffith said today he would skip his junior and senior years at Wisconsin and make himself available for the NBA draft.

"Playing a tough conference like the Big Ten and because of my work ethic, I feel I am adequately prepared for the NBA," Griffith said.

Sunday is the deadline for declaring for the draft, to be held June 28.

The 6-foot-11, 270-pound Griffith withdrew from classes at Wisconsin on April 12. He has been unhappy with the Badgers' style of play. After a 13-14 record last season, Wisconsin fired Stan Van Gundy and appointed Dick Bennett the new head basketball coach.

Griffith averaged 17.2 points and 10.8 rebounds for the Badgers his sophomore season. He scheduled a news conference for today.

Griffith led Chicago King High to the state Class AA title in 1993.

Cuban boxers continue to impress
BERLIN — Three more Cuban fighters punched their way into the finals of the world championships Friday, but couldn't make take-away titles as they stranglehold on amateur boxing may be loosening.

Featherweight Raul Gonzalez, the 1992 Olympic silver medalist, became the latest big-name Cuban victim when he was stunned by little-known German Zoltan Luka by a 11-8 decision. It was a day when the Cubans were hit hard and often in their semifinal bouts.

World and Olympic champion Hector Vinent was floored, but won a lightweight bout. Light heavyweight Diosdado Vega also won, but got caught in a slugging match with Germany's Thomas Ulrich.

"The rest of the world is catching up," U.S. assistant coach Tom Couter said. "There are other countries that are grabbing some of those medals they used to win."

Agassi blows his cool, match in Germany

No. 1 player bounced from German Open in straight sets

HAMBURG, Germany (AP) — Leaving the court after losing to Sergi Brugnera, top-ranked Andre Agassi swore at a spectator and recalled the stabbing of Monica Seles on the same court two years ago.

After his 6-3, 6-1 loss to the Spaniard, Agassi was packing his bags and getting ready to leave court center when a spectator commented loudly on the bad quality of the match.

Agassi cursed the spectator and swore, "Are you gonna get a knife and (stab) me now," before returning to the main again. The incident was recorded by television cameras but it's unclear from the tape what verb Agassi used.

Agassi was referring to the April 1993 stabbing of top-ranked Monica Seles by a fan on the same court.

"Some guy didn't like me that much ... At least he had the decency to wait until the end of the match," Agassi said later.

The world's top-ranked tennis player, Andre Agassi, leaves the court after losing in straight sets to Spain's Sergi Brugnera Friday in the German Open.

Seles has not played since she was stabbed in the back by a spectator here during a changeover at a match at the women's tournament. Tournament officials said a security guard reported the incident involving Agassi and the spectator, but said they were not planning any action.

Agassi received a warning for making an obscene gesture in the last game of the match pitting the two players many experts think will reach the French Open final.

"I am disappointed. He played exceptionally well today and I just couldn't get a lead on him," Agassi said.

"I made some unusual errors. Maybe I had too much respect for his clay-court game, for his ability to court the court and to run down balls."

The Spaniard missed six weeks after undergoing surgery in February to repair torn ligaments in his left knee and has slipped to No. 12 in the rankings.

But Agassi felt the Spaniard was close to his best Friday.

"He's moving well. He's hitting the ball well. I don't think he's off by much," Agassi said. Agassi felt the loss will not affect his preparation for the French Open, where he reached the final in 1990 and 1991. He has Wimbledon, U.S. and Australian Open titles but has yet to win at Roland Garros.

"Grant, if it would have been better for me to come here and win, but I'll be looking forward to playing him in Paris," Agassi said.

Kiwi domination began last year

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The America's Cup almost certainly will be won by Team New Zealand today. In reality, the Kiwis probably wrapped it up last year in Auckland.

That's when they began work on Black Magic I, the incredibly fast sloop that has bedeviled Dennis Conner's borrowed Young America in taking a 4-0 lead in the best-of-9 series.

Conner's crew jumped into Young America just days after winning the defender finals aboard the slower Stars & Stripes. That left them one week to learn Young America's nuances before facing a formidable team that has lost only once on the water.

Not so with the Kiwis. When their 75-foot carbon-fiber racing sloop was taking shape in early 1994, the sailors were there, drawing circles where they wanted winch drums placed in the cockpit, and pointing out where they wanted other equipment.

It was an unusual harmony between sailors and designers, sides that don't always agree.

"That was very important, that sailors and designers can be friends, and we had benefited all along the way," Tom Schanckenberg, Black Magic I's design coordinator and navigator, said on Friday.

"It meant that when the sailors were sailing, they kind of felt they had a stake in it. They kind of felt they were sailing their own boat instead of one foisted on them."

That obviously has led to the huge discrepancy between Black Magic I and Young America.

The closest Young America has come is 1 minute, 51 seconds. The worst beating was 4:14. No other challenger yacht has so humbled a U.S. defender.

The art of Motherhood

Mother, daughter craft own celebration

By Denise Turner
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A mother and daughter have been hard at work for weeks, preparing to celebrate Mother's Day weekend in a rather creative way.

Mother Milly Meyer and daughter Carrie Berndt have been creating quilted wall hangings decorated with gardening angels and flowered tote bags and gold hair scrunchies and hand-stitched throw pillows and woven baskets.

Craft fair

The Mother's Day Craft Fair is set for 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. today at the Event Center on the grounds of the Reformed Church of Twin Falls on Polo Line Road.

Carrie Berndt said, "The Mother's Day Craft Fair at the Reformed Church of Twin Falls. The event is being sponsored by the church's youth groups. Berndt works with the senior high youth. Her husband, Chad Berndt, is the church's youth pastor."

This is the Reformed Church's first annual Mother's Day Craft Fair, and the church members decided to make it a city-wide occasion. Crafters from throughout Idaho have rented booths, expected to number at least 25.

"We will have everything from oil paintings and floral arrangements to hand-painted socks," Carrie Berndt said. "We will also have dolls and jewelry and plants."

A bake sale will be part of the craft fair, and the young people will sell lunch items like nachos and hot dogs at a food booth.

Jessica Nelson, 14, is one of the more than 400 church kids involved in planning the craft fair. She said she is hoping to raise enough money for church rafting and baking trips.

Gabrielle Davis, 13, added, "Working at the craft fair will be fun, too." Carrie Berndt has set goal of a $1,200 in proceeds. Her mother, who recently moved from St. Louis to Twin Falls to be near her children, is just centering her thoughts on turning out enough craft items to meet the demand. Whatever happens, both Meyer and her daughter know they are going to spend Mother's Day weekend. "For my mother and me, this is a big togetherness project," Carrie Berndt said.

Mormons involve patrons in church

It is a well-known fact that 80 percent of religious people do not offer help to their church beyond one hour of worship and a financial contribution.

The majority of the work is done by about 20 percent of the people. Likewise, the same 20 percent give most of the money the church needs to operate. Those people are the inner sanctum, the power brokers who have sacrificed time and money over the years.

That's the way things have been in most congregations for decades and, I confess, they are not likely to change. But just think how much more powerful religion would be if we could put that 80 percent to work on good, solid, helpful projects.

Clark Morprow Faith today

I know of only one denomination that has been able to mobilize most of its membership: the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (the Mormons). Here's the system, and let me tell you, it works.

When people join an LDS church or ward, they are assigned to a "calling," which is nothing more than a job they are responsible for: overseeing the Sunday school, for instance. Then the leaders of the church hold them accountable for that endeavor.

Grace Abigail, for example, has been a Mormon for three years. She is a day-care provider and spends from six to 12 hours a week at church, including the three hours of worship that every LDS congregation observes. One of her callings was setting up home-skills classes for women in the relief society. For a while, she oversaw the primary program and now volunteers as a counselor for 12- to 17-year-old girls.

Grace, her husband and four children decided to become members of the LDS precisely because of the opportunity to serve and the strong youth program. They had, shopped in every major Protestant denomination before settling in with the Mormons. They also liked this particular religion, Grace says, because the ward they visited embraced the entire family worship.

"I've always been one to be involved," Abigail says. "It's not that I was idle before I joined the church. But it's a different focus because there's a spiritual feeling about work with the church — it's like a spiritual boost."

The callings are chosen by the ward leadership of each ward who, Mormons believe, are able to spiritually discern who will do the best job. If a person doesn't want to take responsibility for that particular calling, they can decline, but most don't. And if the calling becomes too burdensome, they can opt out.

Phyllis Rogers, 51, a lifelong member of the LDS, says she has held a wide variety of callings over the years, has turned some down and begged others. But generally, she says, deciding to take a calling you've never done before teaches new skills, helps a person discover talents and introduces them to a wider circle of people.

When Rogers was 14, she was sent here to Finland as a missionary. She spent two years knocking on doors and trying to win converts to her church.

There are so many others. Mormons are not slackers. They take care of each other, and they find the time to study their religion and grow in-family harmony.

Paul Forcier, 30, is a Mormon from Wisconsin who was raised in the Catholic Church but became a Mormon 11 years ago. A few years ago, Forcier was diagnosed with cancer. Despite chemotherapy, a bone marrow transplant and a dozen hospitalizations (one that lasted 43 days), he has managed to spend 10 to 12 hours a week volunteering for his church.

"It becomes a way of life," Forcier says. "We do those things because they are aiding to us. I've never felt it was too much of a burden. It's just a sense of doing what's right."

The truth is, people like to serve others. It gives them a sense of well-being. They feel useful and good. Those feelings are right, and they have contributed to a better world.

Perhaps that's why the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has grown by nearly 4 percent every year since 1990 and now has a membership of 9 million. While other large denominations are dwindling, the Latter-day Saints build 300 to 400 new meetinghouses every year.

Service programs don't completely explain the LDS success. Mormons also aggressively evangelize. But in my mind, the real beauty is, LDS congregations are like extended families, where everyone pitches in and gets a job done.

Cults: How America views, deals with them

Los Angeles Times

NEW YORK — During a recent "Nightline," ABC-TV broadcaster Ted Koppel asked U.S. militia leaders why anger over the 1993 raid on Branch Davidians in Waco, Texas, could have triggered the Oklahoma City bombing.

Some answers were predictable: The FBI, several said, had barged into people's lives and used outrageous force. But there were also philosophical resentments — a belief that the right to be different had been denied.

"It would have been hard to make such an argument during the 51-day siege of Waco and its tumultuous aftermath. The public was bombarded with media images of David Koresh and his followers as crazed cult members bent on abusing children and killing federal agents. Americans, from President Clinton on down to the average person in the street, shared this unremittingly hostile view."

Now, two years after the bloody assault that left 84 dead, a different image of Waco is emerging. Critics are challenging the government's version of events; they also questioning the way America deals with armed dissident groups.

Could lessons from the Branch Davidian debacle help us cope with the Oklahoma City terrorist attack? The answers are provocative and disturbing.

"Our government should think twice before it cracks down on all militia groups and infringes on civil liberties," says Eugene V. Gallagher, a religious studies professor who has co-authored "Why Waco: Cults and the Battle for Religious Freedom in America" (to be published next fall by the University of California Press). "That's what happened in Waco ... public sentiment got whipped up and it led to an overreaction, a violent and precipitous intervention in their (Branch Davidians') lives."

Gallagher, who teaches at Connecticut College, and his co-author, James D. Tabor, a religious studies professor at the University of North Carolina, are hardly zealots. Quiet and sober-minded, they are biblical scholars who have examined the record and believe the Waco disaster could have been avoided.

"The reason it wasn't," they contend, is that federal agents — like most Americans — were uncomfortable dealing with intense religious beliefs, especially when voiced by people outside the mainstream. Koresh, who based his complex and intricate preachings on the Book of Revelation, was actually a sophisticated and persuasive communicator in his own world, says Tabor.

The book "Why Waco" seems destined to raise questions that go beyond the siege itself: America, the authors say, has learned nothing from the Texas confrontation and seems poised to repeat the same mistakes.

"This country should be true to its principles," says Gallagher. "We should listen to people in the militias. ... We should take them seriously and invite them into the grand public discussion. When you crack down on these people, they get defensive — and if they have guns, people get hurt."

...More important, he adds, it's time to end our use of the word "cult," which has negative connotations and diminishes people whom we feel strange.

America never saw the Branch Davidians as "hunted beings," says Gallagher. "These guys didn't just load up the station wagon every Sunday and go to a suburban church. They did it three times a day, and that intensity makes people uncomfortable. We need to do a better job of understanding."

Female clergy run into a stained-glass ceiling

The Associated Press

HARTFORD, Conn. — More than two decades after women started stepping into pulpits in significant numbers, they are encountering a stained-glass ceiling, a barrier that's keeping the ministry far behind other professions in work-place equality.

A study by Hartford Seminary finds that the percentage of female clergy has actually declined over eight years in denominations once at the forefront of women's ordination, such as the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), the United Methodist Church and the Episcopal Church.

In their survey of 4,900 clergy in 16 Protestant denominations, the most comprehensive ever done on women in ministry, researchers found clergywomen in general had stayed close to the career path they envisioned for themselves in seminary.

Women with the same goals, however, had to settle for lower-paying positions as assistants. Women also earned $5,000 less in annual salary and benefits than men with similar work experience.

When men and women ordained at the same time were asked about their present jobs, 22 percent of men were senior pastors of larger churches, compared to 6 percent of women, according to the study released to The Associated Press.

"Sexism is behind the fact ... the church won't accept women as senior pastors," said Adair Lummis, one of the study's authors. "Law and medicine are subject to secular laws, but women are hindered by affirmative action."

Women are still banned from pastoral positions in some religions, such as Roman Catholicism and Orthodox Judaism.

But various Protestant churches have permitted female clergy for more than a century, and women founded others, such as the Christian Science Church and the International Church of the Foursquare Gospel.

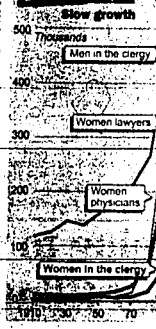

"It was not until the 1970s that women, powered by the feminist and civil rights movements, began donning religious robes in large numbers, as they also forged into other previously off-limits territory such as law and the military."

But the significant gains made by women in other professions have not been matched in the nation's church-

Examining overall clergy experiences, the researchers found the percentages of active clergywomen actually fell from 1986 to 1994 in the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), Episcopal Church, Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and the United Methodist Church.

One reason researchers say for clergywomen's stalled progress is a declining job market in mainline churches, which have lost millions of members in the last generation.

However, even that excuse is related to a basic bias against women in the pulpits in many churches, researchers said. And while churches opened themselves to women clergy in recent decades, no laws forbid them from discriminating in their hiring.

"You will have all these liberal-speaking people on the church governing boards who will say, 'Personally, I have no problem with a woman pastor ... but what would our older, wealthy parishioners do?'" Lummis said.

Never underestimate power of Mom

What do you get when you cross an octopus with a high-speed computer? You don't know, but it still can do everything a mother can! This pastor mother can personally testify that it isn't easy to hold together household, family and career. Many is an important biblical role model in the struggle.

Martha was a sister to Mary, Jesus, a close friend, stayed in their home in Bethany on numerous occasions. I remember a Sunday School picture with Mary sitting at the Jesus' feet listening to him. In the background, Martha was leaning against the kitchen door with a cold, angry look on her face. Her message is clear—Mary has chosen the right thing, and Martha was wrong.

But deep down inside, I feel that Martha's choice to go into the kitchen and prepare the meal was not only useful, but necessary. We have been taught that we should all be like Mary. Sit and listen. It's the spiritual thing to do. But someone needs to do the practical, useful, inglorious tasks of day-to-day life like the tasks seen as "women's work."

To better understand Martha, let's look at the Gospel of John. Lazarus is sick, so Mary and Martha send for Jesus. When Jesus finally arrives, Lazarus has been dead for four days. As Jesus approaches, Martha rushes out to greet him and says, "Lord, if you had been here my brother would not have died."

Jesus responds to Martha's substantial, passionate faith by saying, "I am the resurrection and the life..."

Martha responds with a confession...

Clergy corner
Rev. Rinya Frisbie

...of faith, saying, "You are the Christ, the son of God who has come into the world."

The early church understood that such a confession of faith was a mark of an apostle. The only other place in the New Testament where such a formula was used was in Matthew, where Peter says much the same thing.

We have to look at both of these Martha stories to get a complete view of an authentic, busy, active, woman. Martha did not give in to cultural expectations and did not accept the traditional feminine role as absolutely binding. In doing so, she stood beside Peter and experienced resurrection.

In "The Women Around Jesus," Elisabeth Moltmann-Wendel writes about an early church legend in which Martha, who served in the kitchen, was betrothed to life. She was a dragon, and Jesus restored her brother to life, "overcame a dragon. Early artwork portrays Martha with a conquered dragon at her feet."

There are days when I feel like I'm battling a dragon! There are days when I'm not sure I'll win the battle! It's difficult to be a mother today. Many times I've said that, to get through the day, I needed the eight arms of an octopus as well as the brain of a computer.

About Rinya Frisbie

The Rev. Rinya Frisbie is an ordained United Methodist minister. She is pastor of the Flier United Methodist Church and associate pastor of the Twin Falls First United Methodist Church—She has a bachelor of arts degree in sociology from Illinois Wesleyan University in Bloomington, Ill., and a master of divinity degree from the Uffs School of Theology in Denver, Colo.

Frisbie and her husband, the Rev. James Frisbie (senior pastor at the Twin Falls First United Methodist Church) have served churches in Oregon and Idaho since 1975. They came to Twin Falls after eight years in the Pocatello area, where they were the founding pastors of a new United Methodist congregation in Chubbuck.

They have two sons, Dane, 13, and Drew, 10.

Martha's message for women today is, "Be all you can be." Answer God's call on your life. Use your gifts, skills and graces to live life to its fullest.

Saying "Yes" to God may mean taking on new roles, or doing something that is not traditional. Like Martha, be women of action and of powerful faith—and experience resurrection!

Missionaries

The following young people from the Magic Valley area have been called to serve or returned from serving missions for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

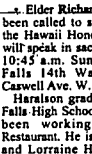

Sister Tins Incello Stanger has been called to serve an 18-month mission in the Indiana Indianapolis Mission. She will speak in sacrament meeting at 9 a.m. Sunday, at the Hansen Ward of the Kimberly LDS Ward building, 222 Birch S. She will enter the Mission Training Center on May 17.

She graduated from Hansen High School in 1992 and is the daughter of Kevin and Judy Stanger of Hansen.

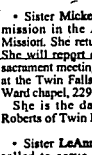

Elder Nate Kelsey has been called to serve a mission in the Mississippi Jackson Mission. He will speak in sacrament meeting at noon Sunday at the Wendell 2nd Ward chapel, 605 N. Idaho St. He will enter the Mission Training Center in Provo, Utah, on May 17.

Kelsey graduated from Wendell High School in 1994 and attended Spokane Community College where he played basketball. He is the son of Allen and Krista Kelsey of Wendell.

Elder Richard T. Haralson has been called to serve a mission in the Hawaii Honolulu Mission. He will speak in sacrament meeting at 10:45 a.m. Sunday at the Twin Falls 14th Ward chapel, 824 Caswell Ave. W.

Haralson graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1994 and has been working at La Casita Restaurant. He is the son of David and Lorraine Haralson of Twin Falls.

Sister Mickey Anne Roberts served an 18-month mission in the Arizona Phoenix Mission. She returned on April 25. She will report on her mission in sacrament meeting at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Twin Falls West Stake, 10th Ward chapel, 229 Park Ave. She is the daughter of Carol Roberts of Twin Falls.

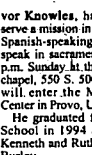

Elder Scott Brown has been called to serve a mission at the Australia Melbourne Vietnam-speaking Mission. He will speak in sacrament meeting at 11 a.m. Sunday at the Twin Falls 3rd Ward chapel on Elizabeth Boulevard. He will enter the Mission Training Center on June 7.

He is the son of Dennis and Valerie Brown of Twin Falls.

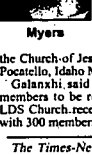

Sister LeAnn Myers has been called to serve a mission in the Campinas Mission. She will speak in sacrament meeting at 11:45 a.m. Sunday at the Murtaugh LDS Mission on Highway 30. She will enter the Mission Training Center on May 17.

She graduated from Murtaugh High School and Ricks College and is attending Utah State University. She received the Young Womanhood Recognition Award and is the daughter of Aileen and Peggy Myers of Murtaugh.

Brother Knowles has been called to serve a mission in the Australia Perth Spanish-speaking Mission. He will speak in sacrament meeting at 2:50 p.m. Sunday at the View 2nd Ward chapel, 550 S. 500 E. in Burley. He will enter the Mission Training Center in Provo, Utah, on May 17.

He graduated from Burley High School in 1994 and is the son of Kenneth and Ruth Ann Knowles of Burley.

Elder Galanxhi from Tirana, Albania, is serving a mission for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in the Pocatello, Idaho Mission in Rupert.

Galanxhi said a religion must have at least 300 members to be recognized by his government. The LDS Church recently reached that status in Albania with 300 members in five congregations there.

Doles stop going to worship at church that Clintons attend

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Doles and the Clintons, political rivals who once found common ground on Sunday mornings, no longer worship under the same roof.

Sen. Bob Dole and Elizabeth Hanford Dole have stopped attending the Foundry United Methodist Church, a mile north of the White House, where President Clinton and Hillary Rodham Clinton go to services about twice a month.

A friend of the Doles, declining to be identified, said the Doles considered the pastor of the 180-year-old church too liberal.

"The Doles have been attending several evangelical churches in the Washington area that more accurately reflect their Christian belief," he said, although Mrs. Dole remains a member of Foundry.

In addition to worshipping at Foundry, Dole was one of its financial supporters.

Senators are required to give to charity the payments they receive for making speeches and in 1993,

Clinton his financial disclosure forms show, he received $69,450 in such money and gave $13,000 to Foundry.

In 1992, he gave Foundry $8,000. Senate financial disclosure forms for 1994 have not yet been made public.

In his Foundry sermons, the Rev. J. Philip Wogaman often strikes a liberal note, embracing feminism, decrying intolerance toward gays, supporting health care reform.

A recent church newsletter criticized the GOP's "Contract With America."

A recent column by syndicated writer Cal Thomas was critical of Wogaman's "theological and political liberalism," which he said offered "moral nurture" for the Clintons' political views.

Wogaman said the article distorted his views and seemed to be using the Clintons' religion "as a way to oppose their politics."

Through spokesmen, Dole, the Senate majority leader and a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, and Mrs. Dole, president of the American Red Cross, declined comment.

This spring, in an interview, Mrs. Dole mentioned often seeing the Clintons at Foundry. But the president and his wife sat up front and the Doles sat near the rear, so they did not run into one another, she said.

Clinton is a Southern Baptist and still belongs to Immanuel Baptist Church in Little Rock, Ark., where he sang in the choir.

Friends say he worships at Foundry because he likes Wogaman and likes attending church with his wife and daughter, Chelsea, both Methodists.

Roy T. Cone, left, and his wife, Faon, center, of Houston strum along the 5th Annual Ukulele Jamboree earlier this month. Small, inexpensive and easy to learn, ukuleles have become the instrument of choice for seniors playing in church musical groups.

Ukulele players make joyful noise

BENTON, Ark. (AP) — The psalm says, "Make a joyful noise." But it doesn't say you should do it with a ukulele.

"This does not faze Southern Baptist ukulele bands in Arkansas, who bring spiritual and other music to nursing homes, retirement centers and hospitals. One band has appeared on a national cable television show, and has taken its act on the road to such places as Atlanta, San Antonio and St. Louis."

"We've booked a year in advance at all times," said Marise Paladino, a charter member of the state's first such ukulele band at Baring Cross Baptist Church in North Little Rock. About 150 senior adults, as Baptists call the over-55 crowd, strummed and sang at the recent 5th Annual Arkansas Baptist Ukulele Band Jamboree, held at Highland Heights Baptist Church.

Louis Criswell, minister of music at Baring Cross, started the ukulele band ministry eight years ago after a fellow music minister from Texas brought his band to perform at Criswell's church. The band has grown to 42 members.

"We've had some to drop out, move and some who have died," Paladino said. "But we've had others joining all along."

Roy T. Cone, who says the "T" stands for trouble, joined the church band 11 months ago and has "gone ukulele crazy."

"The most important gift we played last year was at the Texas Prison System" at Tarkenton, Texas, Cone said. "It took us longer to get in and out than it did to play."

The prisoners were touched by the band's performance. Some cried, he said.

Richard Rose, music minister at Highland Heights, used an overhead projector with lyrics and music and electric piano to lead jamboree goers.

Selections included traditional hymns such as "Amazing Grace," Southern gospel numbers such as "I'll Fly Away," and some contemporary Scripture songs, including "What a Mighty God We Serve."

Ukuleles have become the instruments of choice for senior adult ministries because they are small, lightweight, inexpensive and easy to learn to play. A ukulele can be purchased for as little as $30.

'Angel on the Blackboard' marks 100 years

"The Divine Beloved speaks to the soul in a whisper, but because the soul is waiting for a trumpet, it loses His command."

— Archbishop Fulton Sheen

The Associated Press

Neither before nor since has an American Catholic clergyman captivated the airwaves as Archbishop Fulton Sheen did in the middle of this century.

Despite competition from Milton Berle and with nothing more than a blackboard and a piece of chalk, the bishop garbed in a flowing cape reached some 30 million Americans of all faiths who watched his television program "Life Is Worth Living."

Cardinals would flock to this American Catholic prelate when he was in Rome. Among the famous Americans he converted to Catholicism were Clare Boothe Luce and Henry Ford II.

Then came the Second Vatican Council in the early 1960s. Sheen was less than enthusiastic about some changes in a church that was changing rapidly, and he gradually faded from public view. He died in 1979.

Now, on the 100th anniversary of his birth, a new book of his writings and television essays — "From the Angel's Blackboard: The Best of Fulton J. Sheen — A Centennial Celebration" — is being published by Triumph Books.

What the book shows, in an age when books about taking care of the soul top religion best-seller lists, is how timeless Sheen's words are, said Patricia Kossmann, the book's editor.

Born in El Paso, Ill., May 8, 1895, Sheen was ordained to the priesthood in the Diocese of Peoria in 1919. He received his doctorate from the University of Louvain in Belgium and taught philosophy of religion at the Catholic University of America. He began his broadcasting career in 1930 on the "Catholic Hour" on NBC. By 1940, the program's U.S. audience reached 4 million.

In 1951, then-Bishop Sheen was national director of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith and began his television series. At the height of its popularity, the prelate received as many as 9,000 letters per day.

Kossmann remembered being mesmerized by Sheen as a grade schooler while watching his Tuesday evening program with her parents. When she first met Sheen as an editor of some of his later books, she expected an imposing figure, but was surprised as many were meeting him in person to discover a polite, slightly built man.

"But on those eyes," she said, referring to the sparkling way Sheen would look out at his audience. "It was like he could read your soul."

Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen writes his favorite message on his best-known prop, a blackboard, on the set of his 1950s television show. Sheen's show, 'Life Is Worth Living,' reached some 30 million Americans of all faiths.

A common theme of Sheen's writings and broadcasts was encouraging people to recognize the sacred in their lives.

Courtesy is the homage of the heart to the sacredness of human worth and sanctity can be built out of patient endurance of a child's slugging of soap or one's inability to get rich, Sheen said.

"All of us would like to make our own crosses — tailor-made trials," Sheen wrote. "But not many of us welcome the crosses God sends. Yet it is in doing perfectly the little chores he sends that saints find holiness."

Judge orders parish to relinquish church

By Linda Ashton The Associated Press

SPOKANE, Wash. — A judge Wednesday ordered the parish at Holy Trinity Church to relinquish possession of the property to the Episcopal Diocese hours before the congregation converted to the Orthodox Christian faith.

The Spokane diocese asked Superior Court Judge Kathleen O'Connor to grant a temporary restraining order to prevent the ceremony from taking place on the 100-year-old church.

"We're not really downhearted about this. We anticipated it and we're prepared for it," said Virginia Worthington, a spokeswoman for the Rev. Robert Creech, leader of the schismatic congregation.

The Wednesday evening ceremony was subsequently moved to the Greek Orthodox Church of the Holy Trinity.

Visiting priests from the Antiochian Orthodox Church received the 212-member congregation into the faith and celebrated first communion.

The new church will be under the governance of the Antiochian Orthodox Christian Archdiocese of North America, which is under the jurisdiction of the patriarch of Antioch.

The split occurred last month when Creech and his congregation renounced the Episcopal Church, part of the worldwide Anglican Communion, as too liberal.

The congregation takes issue with the Episcopal Church's willingness to interpret doctrine to make changes such as allowing women to become priests.

Creech and his congregation contend that Creech and other tenets of the faith are revealed by God and not open to interpretation.

Russian boy follows in footsteps of Jesus

CHELZYABINSK, Russia — A hush hung over the crowd as young Russian boy stood up to speak about God.

His name is Antone Demitri Givovoy. He is 12 years old.

Antone stood confidently in front of the people. With his Bible held carefully across his chest, his dark eyes twinkling and a shy grin, he soon had his audience captivated.

One man whispered, "He sure knows what he's talking about."

The young lad advised the crowd that it would take many of them working together if the people of Russia were to once again learn to know and love the Lord Jesus Christ.

He told of Jesus calling his disciples. He asked about what Peter was like. He asked how many of the people they didn't need to know every thing there was to know about the Bible before being able to follow Jesus, "who lived and loved as an example for all of us."

The people leaned forward in their seats to hear more. Many were taking notes. In the crowd were teachers, a doctor, school directors and businessmen.

Antone opened his Bible to the fifth chapter of Matthew and read the Beatitudes. Then, he taught how to help children memorize a Bible verse.

Writing Matthew 5:5, "Happy are the gentle, for they shall inherit the earth," on the chalkboard, Antone asked everyone to read the verse together. Then he erased one word and had the adults read it again. He continued erasing one word at a time until all words were gone and the people were reading from a blank chalkboard. A rattle of satisfaction and accomplishment was heard from the crowd.

H.R. Weisel

Pointing his small finger at his audience, Antone then said, "But remember, you never read Bible verses to somebody, or tell a Bible story unless you and he are telling how they can use the verse or story in their lives — so now I will explain about Matthew chapter 5, verse 5 and how to use it."

He continued, "My mother has a pup in my brother and me because my papa is fat, but she is so gentle with us boys. We know what being gentle is by watching our mother. So you mother, remember that your children are watching you and will be just like you are. As a family, we have inherited the earth. That means we have been given everything we want and everything we need in this earth. You see, I don't need a bicycle because my best friend lets me ride his."

Every Sunday morning, Antone teaches at a children's orphanage in Chelzyabinsk. Then he takes a train and travels his across the giant city of St. Petersburg, where he teaches a large class of pre-school children. He has been faithfully attending his first grade education classes almost every day to learn more about his faith.

"Antone's 12 years old you know, his uncle once said, 'The same Jesus when he went in the temple and astounded the people.'"

H.R. Weisel of Jerome, along with her husband, the Rev. Elroy Weisel, is serving a mission term in Russia. She shares her experiences in a column every other Saturday.

A Russian shopping adventure

To go shopping in Russia is an adventure everyone should have. After being on this side of the world for about eight months, we got brave enough to decide we'd like to taste beef again.

We wandered through the outdoor market, where everything from lipstick to whole piglets is sold. Finding a big slab of red meat draped over a wood stump, we decided we should first watch how the local folks buy beef.

A man had hauled the butchered animal to the marketplace with a horse and wagon. A dirty canvas covered the slab. The horse had a curved yoke over its shoulders.

It wasn't long until an elderly woman spoke to the man and pointed to the beef. The man nodded and swung the carcass around on the stump. Eventually the two seemed to agree on what price the woman wanted.

What happened next absolutely astounded us. The same lady held the slab of beef with her hand along the line she wanted to cut. The man swung a long-handled ax high over his head and, with uncanny accuracy, brought it down within inches of the woman's hand.

He had chopped through meat and bone without a blow. Picking up the chunk of meat that had fallen to the ground, he put it on the scale. He had chopped off exactly two kilograms. We watched the same procedure several times. The meat man always missed his customer's hand and never missed the correct weight.

We were fascinated and decided to buy some ourselves. All went well. That night, we had some delicious steaks after we thoroughly washed the matter of course.

Mormon leaders withdraw request DENVER — Controversy over a request by the Mormon Church to join the Colorado Council of Churches in some capacity has prompted Mormon leaders to withdraw the application.

The council was set to discuss the request during the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints during a meeting today in Pueblo.

News of the Colorado Mormon leaders desire to join the statewide council spurred more than 50 calls of protest to the council's office.

At the heart of the controversy is the belief by some Christian groups that Mormons aren't Christians.

Mormon church leaders said in a letter to the council that now might not be the right time to pursue membership.

"This step might cause further dissension which would be counterproductive to your purposes and ours," the letter read. "The Spirit of Christ is not one of dissension and we have no desire to cause disagreement or divide the council."

The controversy has been hard on everyone, said the Rev. Lucia Guzman, the council's executive director.

Mormon leaders have said their request to become involved with the church council was part of their ongoing outreach efforts.

The church in Colorado has worked with other denominations on various projects, including help for the poor.

Estem group sues LDS church

SALT LAKE CITY — A self-esteem group has sued the Mormon Church for $189 million, blaming its lack of business on a general authority telling the flock to stick to gospel principles.

M. Russell Ballard of the church's Quorum of the Twelve had warned members against groups that "aimed to increase the self-esteem, raise self-esteem and enhance individual agency."

He said church members and leaders should not become involved in such groups.

Instead, Mormons should "anchor themselves in gospel principles and ... adopt wholesome practices that strengthen one's ability to cope with challenges," Ballard said during the April 1994 general conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

William and Jannette Bireley, owners of Life Management International, brought suit last week in 3rd District Court claiming Ballard's advice, though it did not mention their company, crippled their business.

Rectoer resigns amid controversy

McLEAN, Va. — The rector of St. John's Episcopal Church has resigned amid allegations his wife embezzled $2.2 million while she worked as the treasurer of the church's New York headquarters.

The Rev. Nicholas Cooke III made an announcement last Saturday during an emergency meeting with about 100 parishioners.

Ellen Cooke is accused of taking the money during her tenure at the church's national headquarters. She has not been charged with a crime.

Cooke's resignation came hours before the McLean church's 15-member elected vestry could hold a meeting to discuss plans for a full investigation of the allegations against his wife.

Mrs. Cooke resigned the New York parsonage last week under pressure. Episcopal Church Presiding Bishop Edmond L. Browning last week accused her of diverting church money into personal accounts, much of which was spent on jewelry, travel, tuition for her children, a home in Montclair, N.J., and a farm in Lancaster County, Va.

Cooke had denied any knowledge of his wife's alleged actions.

 This copolymer film allows hot air to escape from the attic and prevents air conditioning loss during hot summer weather. This version will fit all roofs, regardless of the pitch. It can be made from a full-size pattern which features step-by-step photos and instructions, plus a complete materials list. We also include a traceable pattern for the weatherstripping and letters. A decorative addition to your home.
