Weaver case costs FBI deputy job

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Under pressure from Congress, FBI Director Louis J. Freeh removed his friend Larry Potts as the bureau's deputy director Friday because of controversy over Potts' role in a deadly 1992 FBI siege in Idaho.

That public debate, fanned by a continuing Justice Department investigation and impending congressional hearings, had left Potts "unable to effectively perform his duties as deputy director," Freeh concluded.

Freeh acted just before two House subcommittees opened joint hearings next Wednesday into another deadly FBI siege,

Billionaires blitz Sun Valley

Secret's out on summer camp for wheeler-dealers

By Frank E. Lockwood
Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — An East Coast investment banker abandons the poor, the tired and the huddled masses of New York each July for the chance to breathe free in Sun Valley with billionaire business magnates.

This year, Herbert A. Allen has flown in some of the biggest names in telecommunications, entertainment, sports and high technology for four days of schmoozing, sales pitches and sun. The retreat is supposed to offer an escape from the big city — and reporters. In the past, participants have been asked not to speak to the press.

At this conference, the richest man in the world, Microsoft founder William H. Gates III, worth $12.9 billion, can rub shoulders with Earth's second-richest man — investor Warren Edward Buffett — who's worth $10.7 billion. Or cut deals with Disney CEO Michael Eisner, Portland Trailblazers owner Paul Allen and CNN founder Ted Turner. In between, there's time for flyfishing, river rafting or foosball — a pastime Paul Allen enjoys.

While waiting for a Sun Valley Lodge elevator Friday, the billionaire Eisner owner called the gathering "an amazing group of leaders... It's really unmatched anywhere in the world anytime during the year as far as I know."

Herbert Allen's jets — dozens of them — ferry Hollywood moguls to Blaine County, where they rub shoulders with Silicon Valley's giants and the monetized elites of Wall Street. Men such as Fay Vincent, the former commissioner of baseball, also attend.

"I love Sun Valley and I love coming here," said Vincent, who has been attending since the mid-1980s.

For years, Herbert Allen's conference was one of the best-kept secrets in America — and a great place to cut multi-million-dollar deals.

But an article last fall in Vanity Fair helped end that anonymity. This year, reporters from USA Today and the Wall Street Journal are on hand for the 13th annual Sun Valley Conference — but they're barred from participating. And many guests remain reluctant to speak, citing a "press embargo."

Vincent

Friday, Turner and Intel President Andrew Grove talked business while dining outside the Sun Valley Inn. Afterwards, Turner said he's having fun. But what does Sun Valley have that Atlanta doesn't?

"I don't know. Nice cool weather," he said, before heading off. Lunch finished, Grove put on a helmet, hopped on a bicycle and prepared to glide away. But he paused to read USA Today's article on the conference, entitled: "Media moguls schmoozefest."

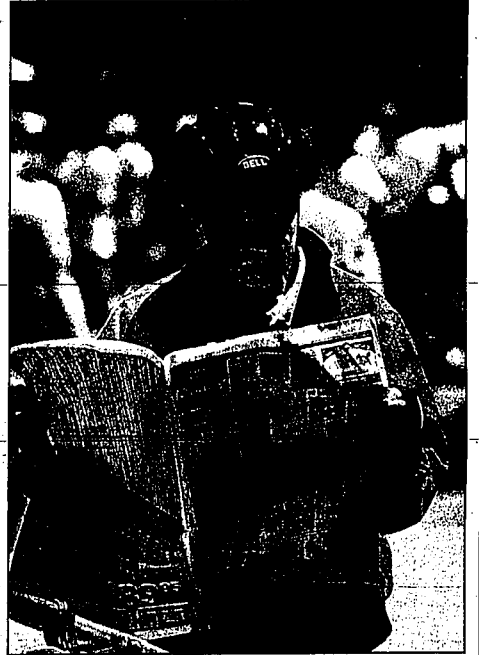

"We might have to go rural Montana next year," Grove said. Then, he pedaled away.

Herbert Allen's 100-plus guests dress casually and attend presentations by executives from Intel and Disney and Time-Warner. And sometimes, they get freebies: The Warner Bros. Store sent out gift bags filled with T-shirts, videocassettes and copies of the "Batman Forever" soundtrack.

While most guests seemed happy to be in Sun Valley, actress Jane Fonda — wife of Ted Turner — was in a sour mood. She snapped at a photographer and gave a lecture on the proper way to interview Jane Fonda.

Why is Fonda in Idaho? "Because my husband is here. That's it," she said.

The Sun Valley Conference continues today with a presentation by Microsoft Corp. at the Opera House. This evening, guests will get a chance to watch Olympic skater Katarina Witt perform.

Gingrich: Legalize drugs or adopt tough penalties

The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — The nation ought to "quit playing games" on illegal drugs and either vote to legalize them or adopt penalties severe enough to get rid of them, House Speaker Newt Gingrich said Friday.

"I'm sick of being told we don't know how to do it," Gingrich told a meeting of the Republican National Committee.

He said those who import "commercial quantities, large quantities ...

to sell them to our children" should get the death penalty, and those who purchase illegal drugs should be required to perform two days of public service a week for at least a year.

Gingrich spoke at the GOP summer meeting along with Republicans contending for the party's presidential nomination. The speaker has said he doesn't expect to run but has declined to rule it out.

To force the question on illegal drugs, he said he "would be prepared" to put it on the ballot in November, either legalize it or get rid of it, but quit playing the games that enrich the evil, strengthen the violent, addict our children and make us look pathetic and helpless."

White House drug policy adviser Lee Brown issued a statement calling Gingrich's proposal "a simplistic silver bullet."

Gingrich is guilty of "political hypocrisy," Brown said, for "suggesting this defeatist alternative of legalization" while congressional Republicans try to cut funds for treatment and prevention programs.

Asked later by reporters about his idea for a ballot measure, which only some states allow, Gingrich said it could recommend that Congress enact "a decisive program that has the kind of sanctions I'm talking about, or let's legalize it." He said sanctions would have to be "very Draconian, very real steps."

Brown denied Gingrich's contention that Clinton has presided over the first upswing in drug use since the Reagan administration.

Poll: Affirmative action splits U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — Although attacks on racial preferences in hiring are increasingly politically popular, Americans are widely divided on the fairness of affirmative action programs, according to an Associated Press poll.

In the poll, 48 percent say affirmative action makes hiring and promotions less fair, compared with 39 percent who say it's more fair. The rest are not sure.

Belief in the programs' fairness ranges from 53 percent among blacks and 50 percent among Democrats, down to 37 percent among whites and 28 percent among Republicans.

Among all 1,000 adults in the poll taken July 7-12, 59 percent think laws are necessary to protect minorities from discrimination in hiring and promotion. And 72 percent think affirmative action programs are at least somewhat effective in getting jobs for minorities.

Fast polls by the AP and others have found up to 80 percent of Americans oppose giving blacks and other minorities preference in hiring to make up for past inequities.

Proposals to eliminate such programs have come both at state levels and from some of the nation's most powerful politicians, including House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., and GOP presidential candidates including Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan.

"At an NAACP convention in Minneapolis Thursday, first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton renewed

Clinton ready to defend race hiring programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton briefed leaders of black and women's groups Friday on his five-month review of affirmative action programs, indicating he will not retreat from preferences based on sex or race in hiring, education and promotions.

Clinton likely will expand the category of federal set-aside programs to include businesses that locate in poor areas, even if they are owned by whites, an administration official said. Currently such programs reserve a percentage of contracts only for minority-owned firms.

"My impression is he's convinced that affirmative action is a high principle that America cannot afford to abandon," the Rev. Joseph Lowery, head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said after meeting with Clinton.

Myrtle Evers-Williams, chairman of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said Clinton told them "he stands firm on his lifetime commitment to affirmative action and equal opportunity."

She said he made his statement with enough strength and conviction that "we are certain that we can be in total support of President Clinton."

After weeks of delay and conflicting signals, Clinton is to make a major address on affirmative action Wednesday.

The president once was expected to declare many preference programs no longer useful, but he now appears ready to offer a vigorous defense of affirmative action as a tool to promote equality.

'Racist' picnic blasted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin condemned a law enforcement picnic where racist slogans were displayed and said "all appropriate action possible" would be taken against any department officers involved.

"I think it was absolutely reprehensible," Rubin told Sen. Carol Moseley-Braun, D-Ill., at an unrelated hearing of the Senate Banking Committee on Friday.

"We totally condemn it and we will take all action within our purview to deal with the people there," he said.

Last month, John W. Magaw, director of Treasury's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, ordered an investigation into whether ATF agents organized and helped coordinate a "whites-only" "Good Ol' Boys Roundup," held May 18-20 in the Tennessee hills.

The Washington Times, quoting unnamed law enforcement officers, said the gathering included the sale of T-shirts with Martin Luther King Jr.'s face behind a target, O.J. Simpson in a hangman's noose and white police officers with a black man sprawled across the hood of their car under the words "Boyz on the Hood."

Rubin said preliminary indications were that "a very small percentage" of the 300 attendees at the picnic were ATF agents but added, "Even if one was, we condemn it."

Moseley-Braun said, "When you have a rotten apple in the barrel it's important it doesn't contaminate everything else." She suggested the department might launch an internal review to determine whether a racist climate within the ATF led to the picnic.

Rubin said he would consider that "We are very conscious of the need to be totally non-discriminatory in everything we do," he said.

Gingrich will give ethics testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Newt Gingrich will testify July 27 in the ethics committee's inquiry into his book deal.

Media executive Rupert Murdoch and two of his lobbyists also will testify this month, but the committee did not release the dates in an announcement Friday. Murdoch owns publishing company HarperCollins, which made the book deal with Gingrich.

The three lobbied Gingrich last Nov. 28 on foreign ownership rules for broadcast companies, shortly before the book arrangement was negotiated.

Panel urges risky baboon transplant for AIDS patient

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — At the fearful behest of an AIDS patient's mother and sisters, government advisers recommended Friday that the man be allowed to get a bone marrow transplant from a baboon — even though they fear it will kill him.

"This is wonderful," said Kim Getty, as she raced to telephone the news to her brother Jeff at his San Francisco home.

Scientific advisers to the Food and Drug Administration weren't so optimistic: They warned that the experiment not only will likely kill Getty but must be carefully controlled to ensure that diseases the baboons carry don't spread to humans.

"This probably will hasten his death, not prevent it," said Dr. Hugh Auchincloss Jr. of Massachusetts General Hospital.

But if Getty, who is 38, accepts the risks and the doctors follow strict precautions, the panel said, the operation should go forward to prove whether baboons, who don't get AIDS, hold a key to fighting the fatal disease.

The FDA usually follows advisory committee recommendations. Officials indicated a decision could be made in several weeks.

"This is a unique opportunity to actually study the risks" of cross-species transplants, or xenotransplantation, said FDA biologics chief Dr. Philip Noguchi.

Baboons do not get HIV-1, the type of AIDS virus most prevalent in the United States. Dr. Suzanne Ildstad of the University of Pittsburgh plans to inject baboon bone marrow into Getty.

MIA still troubles family

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — For nearly 27 years Army Staff Sgt. Dallas Pridemore's disappearance has aggrieved his loved ones and puzzled the Pentagon.

"It would be nice to kind of know what actually happened," his brother, the Rev. David Pridemore, said from his home in Marietta, Ga.

Now, new information uncovered in a military investigation may shed some light on the fate of the man who vanished in Vietnam at age 27.

Dallas Pridemore is one of 2,202 military personnel the U.S. government lists as missing in action from the war. He is one of 55 MIAs who was known to be alive in Vietnam when he vanished. The Pentagon, which released the short list this week, calls them "discrepancy cases."

The Green Beret's family knew almost nothing about his disappearance until six months ago, when they heard from an investigator for the Pentagon's Joint Task Force-Full Accounting.

The Honolulu-based task force tries to locate MIAs or their remains in southeastern Asia. It has never found a living MIA.

"We don't suspect any Americans are alive and being held against their will in southeast Asia, but we can't rule out the possibility," Army Lt. Col. David Fredrikson, task force spokesman, said by telephone Thursday.

He refused to discuss the case further.

the father were taken out of town and killed.

David Pridemore said the family was told his brother and three or four other American soldiers went to the village of Cu Thien Thiet in the Gia Dinh province of South Vietnam on Sept. 9, 1968. He may have gone to see a Vietnamese woman he was dating.

The woman or her father — or perhaps both — were involved in the drug trade or some other illicit activity, Pridemore witnessed something he shouldn't have, and he and the other soldiers were taken out of town and killed.

The task force is trying to learn what the other soldiers knew about the disappearance.

Pridemore's relatives often think about him, but they are convinced he is dead. They have little contact with private MIA groups that research the disappearances.

"I used to think that he still could be alive," said his sister, Hettie Cooke, 49, of Atlantic City, N.J. "Now, in my heart, I don't."

Judge delays trial on same-sex marriage

HONOLULU (AP) — A judge postponed a trial in which the state must prove it has a compelling interest to keep same-sex couples from marrying, to give lawmakers a chance to consider the ban.

Circuit Judge Kevin Chang Thursday postponed the September trial until after the 1996 legislative session to give lawmakers time to consider recommendations from a commission that will study the issue.

In 1993, the state Supreme Court ruled the state's ban on same-sex marriages amounted to unconstitutional gender discrimination and the sent the case back to the lower court.

Deputy Attorney General Steven Michaels told Chang that decisions made at a trial this fall could be invalidated if lawmakers change the law in its session, beginning in January.

Yeltsin sets elections as hospital stay extended

MOSCOW (AP) — President Boris Yeltsin set the date for parliamentary elections from his hospital room Friday, but questions about his health persisted after aides said his stay would be extended.

The elections will be conducted Dec. 17.

Yeltsin will remain at the Central Clinical Hospital, where he was rushed Tuesday with acute heart trouble, through the end of next week, top aide Viktor Ilyushin told reporters.

Ilyushin said Yeltsin's schedule through July 26 would be postponed, including a two-day visit to Norway.

"Doctors demand persistently that Boris Nikolayevich spend longer recovering after his unexpected hospitalization," Ilyushin said in an interview with Russian television channels. "There are many events ahead until the end of the year that will require serious psychological and nervous tension."

Earlier, the Kremlin had predicted the 64-year-old Yeltsin would be released Monday and would stick to his schedule. Ilyushin said the change did not reflect a worsening of the president's condition.

"It wouldn't be right to say the Kremlin office has just moved into the building of the Central Clinical Hospital, but the president is aware of all the vital and acute issues which require his attention," Ilyushin said.

Yeltsin's symptoms, as described by the Kremlin, indicate he probably has a form of heart disease called unstable angina, in which the arteries narrow, restricting the flow of blood to the heart. Press reports have been skeptical of the Kremlin's health updates.

The first photograph of the hospitalized Yeltsin was released Friday. It showed the president, wearing a tennis shirt, sitting impassively at a desk with papers in front of him and four telephones to the side.

Naina Yeltsin told reporters Friday her husband was working and signing documents. She criticized the press for spreading "fairy tales" about Yeltsin's health.

Ex-official denies blame in peso crisis

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The man often blamed for aggravating Mexico's economic crash has broken eight months of silence to fight what he called "a disinformation campaign."

Pedro Aspe, who left office as Mexico's treasury secretary three weeks before the crisis began, denied that he alone was responsible for delaying the Dec. 20 devaluation of the peso.

Critics have argued a devaluation a month earlier would have been less damaging than the one just before Christmas that almost halved the value of the peso and pushed the economy into a recession.

Aspe had not commented on the crisis until Friday's publication of a column in the Mexico City newspaper Reforma and, slightly condensed, in the Wall Street Journal.

"I believe I have a political, professional and above all moral duty to help arrest the disinformation campaign that is affecting our country," Aspe wrote.

Mexican and U.S. newspapers have claimed top officials met Nov. 20, before President Carlos Salinas de Gortari left office, to discuss how to cope with the flight of $1.65 billion in capital the previous week. The peso had touched the bottom of a trading band officials had promised to defend.

The group included Salinas, President-elect Ernesto Zedillo, Finance Secretary Jaime Serra Puche, security chief Arsenio Farrell, Central Bank president Miguel Mancera and Luis Tellez, a key aide to Zedillo.

Aspe disputed claims the group agreed that dwindling foreign reserves made a small devaluation of the peso necessary.

The reports claimed that Aspe, who backed a stable peso, threatened to resign. That allegedly forced Salinas to back away from the devaluation out of fear the sudden departure of Aspe would scare investors into pulling billions more out of Mexico.

Cholera found in Ukraine city

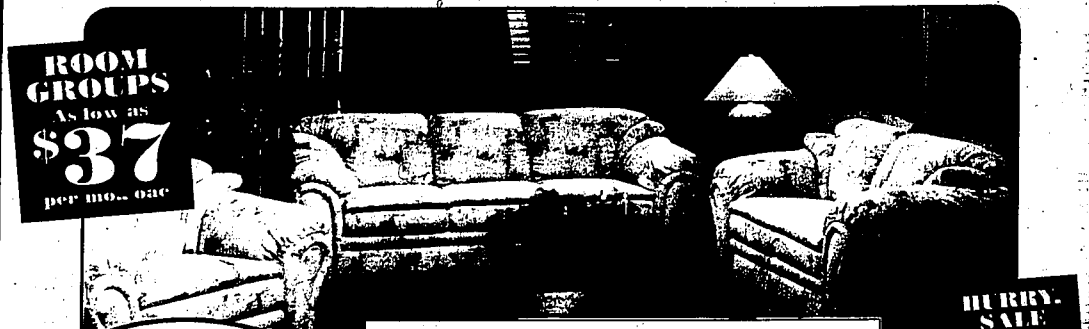

KHARKIV, Ukraine (AP) — Cholera-causing bacteria has been found near Kharkiv, Ukraine's second-largest city where a burst sewage pump contaminated several rivers with hundreds of thousands of tons of raw fecal matter.

Officials said Friday that the bacteria was in the Lopan River north of Kharkiv, a city of 1.5 million in eastern Ukraine. The officials reported no new cases of the intestinal disease, which can be fatal if not treated.

Ukraine has been fighting a cholera outbreak in the Nikolayev and Kherson regions since early June. Three people have died.

The sewage crisis in Kharkiv began on June 28, when heavy rains damaged the city's main sewage pump and sent 600,000 tons of untreated sewage into several rivers, including the Lopan — one of the city's water sources.

Liver eventually outgrows brain

Q. Isn't the liver the largest of the human internal organs?

A. Only in the grownup. In the child, the brain is bigger. Wits have fabricated a whiffy that the liver outgrows the brain in the teen years because that's when the liver works more and the brain less. But you needn't believe it. Forty-two men were executed at Atlantic City, N.J. in 1935 for appearing in public wearing bathing suits without tops.

Q. Why do astronomers call the Milky Way "spade"?

A. They say its gravity tears up litter galaxies that come too close.

Twenty thousand of its own teeth are not too many to expect a shark to replace in its lifetime. An elephant gets several new batches: Why weren't humans gifted with more than two sets? Do we have to do everything for ourselves? Never mind that's marginal. If your forebears were of modest means in the 1870s, they probably paid about 12 percent of their incomes for living quarters, and maybe 50 percent for food. How does that compare with your outfit today?

Walton eyes high cost for new measure

The Associated Press

BOISE — Hang on to your wallets. Kelly Walton, state chairman of the group pushing a second round of battles over an anti-gay initiative, says the rerun will be more expensive.

"I think both sides are going to raise more money this time," Walton said Friday. "We are going to get outspent, I can guarantee it."

He was interviewed for KTVB's "Viewpoint" program which will be telecast Sunday morning.

Proposition One, the anti-gay-rights initiative pushed by Walton and his Idaho Citizens Alliance, failed by just 3,073 votes out of about 408,000 votes cast in the last election.

It was expensive. No On One, which opposed the initiative, spent $562,739. Walton's Stop Special Rights group spent $192,778, or just over $750,000 for the two main groups.

Walton

But this time, Walton said the financial backing will not come from his family's Heyburn construction company, Walton, Inc.

The company listed $88,059 in cash, loans and in-kind donations, but Walton said a lot of the in-kind contributions were for office expense and did not represent out-of-pocket spending.

When asked if Walton, Inc., would finance the campaign again, Walton said, "That's a negative. The chairman and the board of directors of the company were very explicit with Kelly Walton, no more checks."

Walton said the new initiative, titled the "Family and Child Protection Act," will be clearer than the 1994 version. He said his group's exit polling indicated 20 percent of the people were confused, voting not thinking they were voting against homosexuals.

"When you get those kinds of figures in exit polling, it's really encouraging to do it again," he said.

Walton said the Idaho Citizens Alliance has no plans to make an effort to take over the Idaho Republican Party, even though party leaders have been reluctant to take on the alliance's agenda of moral issues.

Besides the anti-gay initiative, the Idaho Citizens Alliance also will be gathering signatures for initiatives to restrict abortions, allow public funds to be spent on private schooling and to make it optional, not mandatory, that school boards negotiate with teacher unions.

Walton said that's just a matter of convenience, because the other projects will be managed by other groups.

"We have no designs to take over the Idaho Republican Party," Walton said. "We've bitten off enough right here to chew on for quite a while."

But Walton said his group might go after "several Republicans" in next May's primary elections because they won't push the Idaho Citizens Alliance agenda.

"We want the central values debated and we want people in there who would do it," he said.

His group also will look at putting up or backing candidates in any primary election for an open legislative seat.

"We feel that we are very close to being able to influence very heavily any open seat in a Republican primary in this state," he said.

Buhl woman is killed when car makes turn

TWIN FALLS — A Buhl woman died Friday night after the car she was riding in apparently turned in front of another car.

Two children and three adults were traveling eastbound on South Park West when the driver apparently made a turn into a driveway and went into the path of a westbound car, said Cpl. Dave Benefiel of the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Department.

Neither driver was injured in the 6:30 p.m. accident one-tenth of a mile west of Grandview Drive, but another passenger in the eastbound car was taken by ambulance to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, Benefiel said. The other two passengers were privately transported to the hospital, he said.

The accident still was under investigation Friday evening.

Search and rescue teams come out twice but discover nothing

TWIN FALLS — Two missions launched by separate search and rescue teams Thursday night in the Snake River Canyon yielded nothing.

At Shoshone Falls, a woman reported to police that she thought two people might have gotten stuck on the cliff rocks below the concession stand at the falls overlook. But no one was found, according to Deputy Matt Clawson of the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Department.

Meanwhile, Jerome County searchers were not able to recover an empty black trunk or ice cooler that was reportedly dumped in the Snake River and became lodged in some rocks in the current just west of the Perrine Bridge.

At least 4 Republicans seek to replace McRoberts in Senate

TWIN FALLS — At least four Republicans are seeking to replace Joyce McRoberts in the Idaho Senate.

McRoberts is resigning at the end of this month to take a job with the state Department of Health and Welfare. And already, would-be replacements are lining up.

• State Rep. Doug Jones of Filer, who has served in the House of Representatives for 10 years.

• Rex Reed of Filer — a farmer who is active in civic organizations.

• Roy Raymond, a Twin Falls car dealer and GOP fund-raiser.

• Gerald Tews, a farmer, rancher and GOP activist.

GOP precinct committeemen will gather on Aug. 3 in Twin Falls to choose three nominees for the job. Gov. Phil Batt will then select one of the three finalists.

Shrine Circus plays 2 shows Sunday at county fairgrounds

FILER — The Shrine Circus returns to the Magic Valley Sunday with two performances at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds.

There will be tigers, elephants, jugglers and clowns in the three-ring show.

Show times are 1:30 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. Tickets are $8 for adults, $5 for kids under 12, and they're available at the gate or at the Maverik Country Stores in Twin Falls.

Willis company buys 800 acres in Camas County

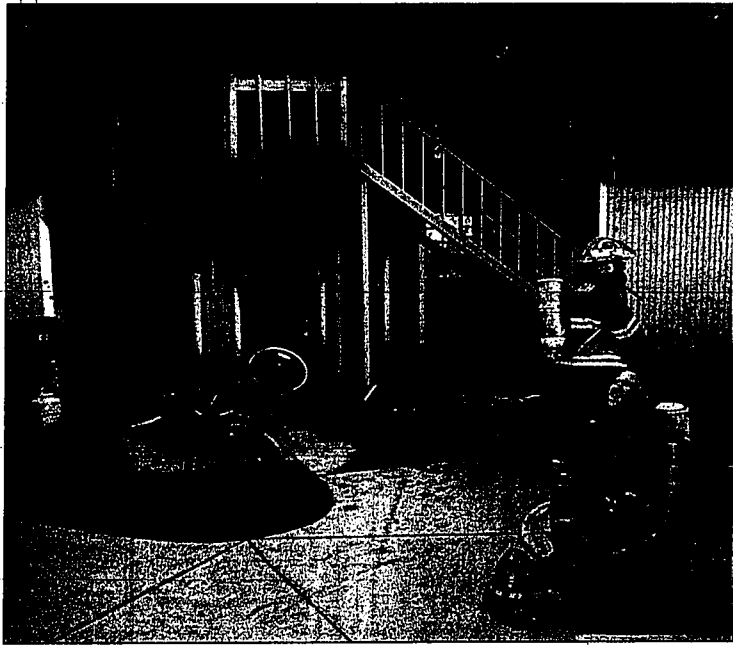

FAIRFIELD — Valley Entertainment Inc., the company owned by movie star Bruce Willis, has purchased 800 acres in Camas County near Fairfield.

Willis spokesman Joe McAllister said there were no immediate plans for the land north of Idaho Highway 21 near the Blaine County line, but development of a private airport at the site is a possibility.

Meanwhile, Willis' crews in Hailey continue to remodel the Liberty Theatre and work is under way on a Main Street commercial building to be known as the E.G. Willis Building.

Battling a blaze at the Falls Apartments takes its toll on firefighter Sean Irwin Friday in Twin Falls.

Grease fire ruins 2 apartments

By Julie M. McKinnon Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Flaming kitchen grease injured one man Friday night at Falls Apartments just before a fire in his ground-floor apartment drove three men to jump from a second-story window.

Ted Russell, 34, injured his foot with the pan of grease, said his roommate, David Killis. Neither man was in the kitchen when the fire started, a shaken Killis said at the scene as emergency personnel helped Russell.

"I thought (at first) it was just the barbecue going," said Killis, adding that he ran into the kitchen when he saw smoke. Russell was taken to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

Eleven city firefighters responded Friday to the 6:45 p.m. Quinney Street fire that caused an estimated $60,000 in structural damage to two apartments in one of the six-unit buildings, said Battalion Chief Bill Windsor of the Twin Falls Fire Department.

Upstairs from Russell's and Killis' apartment, James Argo and two visitors — Joe Yarbro and Joe Pellini of Jerome — broke out a second-story window screen after people yelled at them to get out of the building, Pellini said.

"We looked out the window, and smoke was coming up (the sliding glass) door," Pellini said. Yarbro said he hurt his back during the fall.

All of the downstairs apartment was damaged, and the upstairs apartment also was damaged from flames and smoke, Windsor said.

"If you get a flame that high, it just melts everything, even if it doesn't reach," he said.

Argo said he moved into the apartment two weeks ago, and a roommate was scheduled to arrive Friday from Nevada to move in.

"This is going to be quite a surprise for him," Argo said as firefighters worked nearby.

Firefighters had the fire out in 20 minutes, Windsor said.

"I'm glad I didn't live in that one — that would be horrible," said Jilyn Muir, who lives in a complex building across the lawn. "Can you imagine coming home from work and your apartment's not there?"

Wendell council mulls zoning change

By Steve Koehler Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — The City Council authorized an ordinance that would change zoning from residential to commercial on property in the southeast corner of town.

Mr. and Mrs. John Geiger, 432 S. Pocastello St., requested that two lots between their house and J & B Steel Rule Dies, 447 S. Boise St., be changed from residential to commercial zoning. The Geigers want to build an auto repair business on the site.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Espinoza, 430 S. Pocastello St., opposed the zoning change in a letter read at the public hearing on the issue just before the council meeting. The Espinozas objected to the appearance of cars awaiting repair and said the city should do more to clean up the town and keep commercial and residential sections separate.

The Espinozas' letter was the only objection to the Geiger proposal at the public hearing. The ordinance requires three readings and approval by the council before the zoning change becomes law.

Fire Chief Red Orr proposed that the city levy fees to individuals rescued from vehicles by the fire department. Orr said the truck used for rescues was bought by the firemen and donated to the rural and city departments, and that the rescue equipment was purchased by grants.

The fees would pay for operating the rescue unit and new equipment, not now part of the budget, he said. Victims could pass on the fees to their insurance company, he said.

The council will ask the city attorney for a legal opinion on the proposal.

In other matters:

- The council granted a request from Fred Jackson, 300 1st Ave. W., to pipe irrigation water across the street to his property line. Jackson said he and two neighbors wanted the water and would assume the expenses for piping water from the new connection.
- The council tabled a request for a variance from Marvin Moorhead, 425 5th Ave. E., who wants to build a garage inside the seven-foot setback of the alley. Mayor Lynn Nelson spoke on behalf of Moorhead, who was not at the meeting.
- Librarian Vivian Maltz announced that the library received $250 in donations from attorney Robert W. Bartlett II, Judge Roger Burdick and the 5th District Bar Association. The money will be used to buy law books.
- Nelson read an ordinance to vacate a portion of Boise Street between 7th and 8th avenues east.

Planners slow growth at Kanaka Rapids site

By Sean L. McCarthy Times-News writer

BUHL — Is there enough water in three geothermal wells south of Kanaka Rapids to irrigate and serve a community larger than that of Castelford or Bliss?

Kanaka Rapids developers say yes, their neighbors say no, and the county planning and zoning commission isn't sure.

That uncertainty led the planning commission to delay approval of 50 new homes for the aggressively marketed Snake River Canyon community northwest of Buhl. The commission tabled the matter with a 7-1 vote Thursday night.

Planning Commissioner Patti Wiersma of Buhl said the water issue needed to be resolved before the development could expand. "Whether (the neighbors are) right or you're right," Wiersma told developer Carlo Ferreira, "I want to know before I vote."

Ferreira tried to assure the commission that Kanaka Rapids Ranches has a legal right to use geothermal water flows of up to 8.6 cubic feet per second from three wells on the property. One cubic foot per second equals 449 gallons per minute.

Ferreira's development partners, Collins Brothers Corp. of Las Vegas, Nev., are in final negotiations with the Idaho Department of Water Resources for a geothermal license.

"We abide by all of the regulations, and we will continue to abide by all of the regulations," Ferreira said.

Also on IDWR's southern regional manager, said Friday that it will be months before the department determines the final legal water right for Kanaka Rapids.

Marked by usually dry ravines and bluffs of low sagebrush, the 114-acre section called The Bluffs has blueprints for 50 homes, each with a view of the Snake River less than a mile away. The homes would sit about 300 feet higher than the rest of Kanaka Rapids Ranches.

When fully developed, the 600-acre community that bills itself as "the place to live" would include 191 homes.

It also would support a population larger than Bliss, Castelford, Hollister, Murtaugh or Rogerson. Its population also would eclipse that of the small towns of Acquia, Dietrich, Malta, Minidoka or Stanley.

But the nearest conveniences would remain in Buhl four miles away. The community also would support a sewer to city sewer or water lines. Homes would get their domestic and irrigation water from three wells — and dump their waste into individual septic tanks.

Feds open Redfish to fishing

The Associated Press

STANLEY — The National Marine Fisheries Service on Friday approved an Idaho Department of Fish and Game request to open a two-week kokanee salmon fishing season at Redfish Lake.

The catch-and-keep season with a limit of six fish per day, opening today and continuing through July 31, is designed to reduce the number of kokanee competing with endangered Snake River sockeye salmon in the lake.

Fish and Game has released 69,000 juvenile sockeye into the central Idaho lake near Stanley from the sockeye captive broodstock program, and another 30,000 are planned for release in the fall.

The kokanee catch rules require that any fish with the adipose fin missing must be released immediately — it may be a hatchery fish — and there is no harvest season for bull trout in Redfish Lake.

Redfish Lake, the Idaho sockeye's only remaining spawning ground, has been closed to fishing for the look-alike kokanee since 1992. So kokanee numbers have exploded, and biologists for the state and the Shoshone-Bannock Tribes now want to reduce the population by 80 percent to reduce competition with sockeye for food.

The bright red kokanee will be moving into Fishhook Creek, a tributary to the lake, to spawn during the next two weeks. If that goes unchecked, it could mean another 100,000 baby kokanee migrating into Redfish Lake next spring.

"Basically we want fishermen to catch some of these kokanee before they spawn in Fishhook Creek and make more mouths to feed," said Sharon Kiefer, Fish and Game's anadromous fisheries coordinator.

There are two forms of sockeye in Redfish Lake, an outmigrating form and residual sockeye, which reside year-round in the lake. Residual sockeye and kokanee look alike. But while sockeye spawn in beach areas of the lake in October, adult kokanee move into Fishhook Creek in August to lay their eggs.

Participation of Friday's decision by the Fish and Game, the Fish and Game Commission met by conference call Thursday to approve a kokanee fishing season from the state's end.

Nellie A. Boutler... Nellie A. Boutler, 78, of Millbrae, Calif., and formerly of Hagerman and Wendell, died Tuesday, July 11, 1995, at her home in Millbrae.

Bob and Barbara have lived in Mesa, Ariz., during the winter months since his retirement. Bob loved to play shuffleboard, bowl, play pool and square dance. Barbara of Buhl; two daughters, Myrna Rae Nelson of Bountiful, Utah, and Sandy Sue Eckert of Buhl; a son, Robert Lynn Lapray of Buhl; four brothers, Jay Lapray of Castlerock, Wash., Lytle Lapray of Ivan, Utah, Glen Lapray of Logan, Utah, and David Lapray of Salt Lake City, Utah; one sister, Pearl Clark of Clarkston, Utah; and seven grandchildren.

Both Bressler and Warner acknowledge nobody can do anything for the guide industry this year, but they're hoping to change the way the river is managed in future years.

Martha was a friend to all that crossed her path, and more to those around her. She always lived for the moment and for tomorrow. Her husband and her mother, both died of cancer. She was a devoted wife and mother.

He was born May 13, 1920, in Trenton, Utah, the son of Samuel and Bessie Josephine Lapray. He attended schools in Richmond, Utah. He married Barbara South on Jan. 23, 1941, in Logan, Utah. They then formed in Trenton before moving to Castleford in 1948. In 1951, the family sold the farm in Castleford and moved to Buhl. While in Buhl, Bob formed a partnership with Andy Anderson, Andy & Bob's Motor Co. The partnership sold Allis-Chalmers tractors, combines, related farm equipment and Ford cars and pickups in 1952. The partnership was sold after 40-plus years in business.

He was also active in civic organizations and served as president of the Lions Club.

Teens caught distributing white supremacist fliers, then released

IDHAHO FALLS (AP) - Idaho Falls Police briefly jailed a 19-year-old Amnon man and then released him and a 15-year-old boy after the two were caught passing out white supremacist fliers. Jeremy Wilcox was booked into the Bonneville County Jail after he and a companion were caught Tuesday afternoon putting fliers on the windshields of automobiles in a parking lot. But Wilcox and the boy were released a short time later after prosecutors and police reviewed Idaho's malicious harassment statute and determined no law had been broken.

They would have to articulate a hateful message, plus urge imminent violence," Oddo said. "I personally believe the opinions expressed in the handbill are ugly and reprehensible, but this is the United States of America. People have the right to express unpopular points of view."

The fliers passed out Tuesday profess support for the Holocaust and cite the works of David Lane, who is serving a prison sentence for the June 1984 murder of Denver radio talk show host Alan Berg, who was Jewish. Lane sends pamphlets to supporters from his jail cell condemning homosexuality and abortion as part of a Zionist conspiracy to eliminate the white race.

Fishing guides: High water ruins business

IDHAHO FALLS (AP) - Fishing guides say extremely high flows on the Snake River in eastern Idaho are wiping out their business, and they want Gov. Phil Batt to do something about it. "They don't know what the governor can do, but will send Batt a letter soon outlining concerns, and hoping for changes in the way river flows are controlled," said Joe Bressler, chairman of the eastern Idaho chapter of the Idaho Outfitters and Guides Association.

Burley celebrates 50 years of peace

On the march

The unveiling of the Veterans' Memorial during the Remembering World War II Commemoration Friday drew salutes from young and old. The two-day celebration of the 50th anniversary of the end of World War II kicked off in Burley with a parade honoring local veterans. Remembering World War II continues today at the Cassia County Fairgrounds with historical displays and nostalgic entertainment.

Cassia vets recall their time of service

BURLEY — Rod McKay pulled a fuming, 50-year-old photograph from a plastic sack to tell the tale of his liberation from a Japanese prison camp at the end of World War II.

U.S. Air Force veteran McKay, 81, sat on a park bench Friday afternoon at the Cassia County Fairgrounds, sharing war stories with U.S. Merchant Marine veteran Wallace Wilcox, 73.

Cassia County's veterans commemoration celebration got under way Friday with a parade, the unveiling of a veterans' memorial and festivities at the fairgrounds. It continues today.

The two, who met Friday, compared war photos. McKay, a Hailey native who made a life in Mididoka, had a few tucked away in his sack, while Wilcox was prepared with a thick photo album.

McKay showed a picture of himself with 21 other American soldiers and one Scottish soldier the day they were freed in August 1945. McKay had been a prisoner since he was captured in May 1942 at the surrender of the Philippine Islands.

He was paralyzed with emotion and rendered speechless when he finally was hauled aboard a U.S. ship waiting for him in Tokyo Bay.

"You just couldn't talk. When emotion sets in, it's really something," he said.

Behind the soldiers in the photograph is a "battered" Japanese flour mill. The men had been held there for a few months since the prison camp near Kawasaki had been bombed by American planes.

Across the top of the flour mill, the prisoners had used flour and water to write in big, white letters: "Three cheers for the U.S. Army and Navy. Come after us."

But when McKay reached into his plastic sack again, he discovered that he didn't have his copper spoon. A fellow prisoner who had worked in the industrial factories, had pounded the spoon for him, when he said chopsticks were too difficult for eating rice, and he had been eating with his hands.

"We were like hogs. Everyone of us," McKay said.

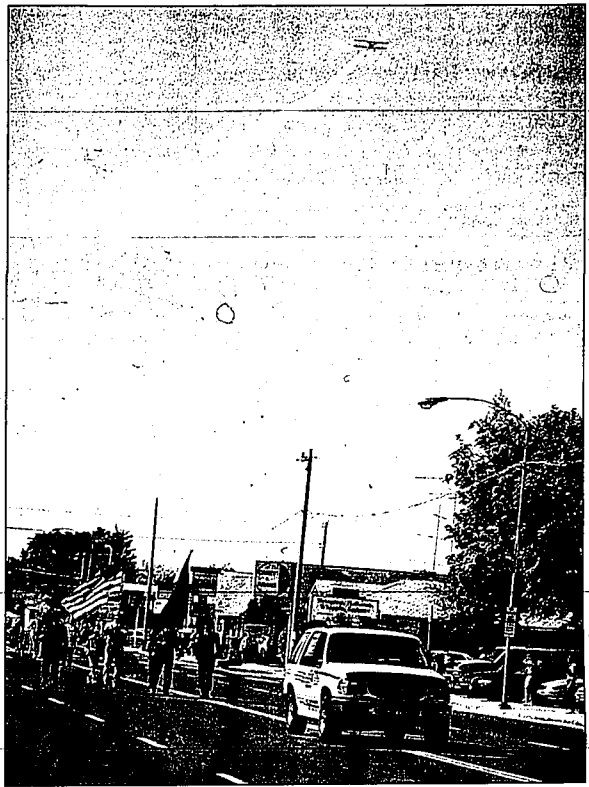

With McKay's story told, Wilcox began to page through his photo album, passing pictures of ships on fire and aircraft falling from the sky. He included pictures of dead soldiers — American as well as Japanese.

It wasn't until one day when Wilcox's ship tied up at a Japanese beach where 4,700 dead Japanese soldiers were floating in and out with the tide that he realized the enemy was human, too.

"That's when I realized that was somebody's kid — that was somebody's husband," Wilcox said.

"People ask, 'Why do you keep those pictures.' Well, it's part of war," he said.

Wilcox, who is from Utah and has lived in Rupert for 43 years, traveled 256,000 miles on the sea in ammunition delivery or soldier transport missions in the Pacific Islands and north Africa.

Consulting engineer Dale Riedesel said the density would be about three acres per home, much greater than the one-acre minimum lot proposed in the county's comprehensive plan for rural residential housing. This will "protect the natural vegetation," Riedesel said.

Added Ferreira: "The majority of this land is in its indigenous native state of vegetation."

But neighbors questioned the expansion of Kanaka Rapids. John Hoffman said the property seems dense to him, since the 50 homes will be built on only 22.8 of the 114-acre tract. Hoffman also pointed out that the homesites had been penciled in for the few areas where vegetation already exists.

Rex Fairchild, who lives downhill from the bluffs, said he wondered how sheriff's deputies could respond to any trouble at the community. Fairchild also said he opposed increased traffic and water use in that area.

"There are a lot of unanswered questions," he said. "To me, it just doesn't make sense."

Linda McClymonds said she understood the development's common area to remain as pasture, but the developers have said it might be home to a recreational center. McClymonds said the developers would use more water than they proposed.

"When you have a community room, you have to have bathrooms — and that means more septic tanks," she said.

River Road resident Robert Lunty asked how that would affect the area's water use. Lunty said the water pressure in his well has dropped from 86 pounds to 52 pounds in a test taken two months ago.

Ferreira said Kanaka Rapids has not had as many problems with its wells.

He contended that the community — which already has approval for 141 homesites — is built with high standards. "We have maintained some of the highest property values in the valley," he said.

Still, planning commissioners said they wanted to know more about how the additional subdivision would affect Buhl and the Melon Valley.

Commissioner Erick Mikesell of Twin Falls said the developers would have to disclose those socio-economic impacts before receiving the county's approval. Planning Commissioner Kacey O'Connor Buhl agreed.

"I feel like I would rather see some of these issues resolved," O'Connor said.

The only planning commissioner to oppose the delay was Jon Johnson of Twin Falls. Johnson said the developers would need to meet the state requirements anyway if they wanted to build the subdivision.

Drawdown opponents lose before hearing

LEWISTON — The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers plans to begin increasing flows from Dworshak Dam Monday, three days before a federal judge is slated to consider temporarily halting the proposed drawdown. "We are going to lose a few days, but they shouldn't be able to do anything to affect us too severely before Thursday," said Orofino Chamber of Commerce executive director James Grunke. The federal plan calls for dropping the reservoir by as much as 80 feet below full pool. Grunke contends last summer's 110-foot drawdown cost the Orofino area millions of dollars in lost commerce when boaters could not put their boats in the reservoir. The flow from Dworshak on the Clearwater River could increase from 1,300 cubic feet per second Monday to nearly 15,000 cfs, said Russell George, chief of the Army Corps of Engineers' Reservoir Control Center in Portland.

Forest Service: Rain erodes burned areas

BOISE — Forest Service officials fear about the effects of erosion on 1994's Boise National Forest burns are coming true. Summer thunderstorms are ripping up gullies and trails on some of the 214,000 acres destroyed last year. Hikers and bikers are cautioned to expect missing trail sections, washed-out foot bridges and fallen trees and rocks on paths. "People are going to need to observe additional cautions using the trails," staff officer Wayne Patton said Thursday. Idaho City District Ranger Hal Gibbs said at least 70 miles of trails are affected. Repairs will take two or three years, he said, because of budget limitations.

Trucks will bypass dangerous highway

LEWISTON — One of the country's largest transportation companies plans to circumvent Idaho's main north-south highway, which could mean the loss of significant highway dollars for the state. Swift Transportation Co. has announced it no longer will route its trucks along U.S. Highway 95 between Lewiston and Council because of safety concerns. For their part, state Transportation Department officials say they have no immediate plans to rebuild the road, but will talk with Swift about its concerns. Swift's Lewiston safety director, Jack Morris, wrote in a June 29 letter to the state the company will drive its trucks through other states to avoid the 180-mile stretch. "We've run that highway for years and years, but now it's a hazard to drivers and the motoring public," Morris said.

Controller uses prison money as cash reserve

BOISE (AP) — State Controller J.D. Williams has diverted $4.1 million that was earmarked for construction of a 500-bed prison to cover a cash shortfall in the state budget for the year that ended June 30.

Williams

Williams said with Friday's action, which was authorized by the state Board of Examiners last month, state government would carry a little more than $15,000 in unobligated cash into the current budget year.

Gov. Phil Batt intends to ask the Legislature in January to reimburse the Permanent Building Fund with $4.1 million from the state Budget Reserve Fund, which contains more than $32 million, the controller said.

Jerry Wray, chairman of the Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council, has said any money taken from the prison construction project would have to be restored by the Legislature before Feb. 15 to keep the work on schedule.

The cash shortfall, which totalled about $5.1 million, was the first notable amount of red ink the state has experienced since mid-1992. Administration budget director Dean Van Engelen said on Friday that cash left unappropriated by lawmakers last winter was used to cover the first $1 million before the building fund money was applied.

The Board of Examiners had authorized the transfer of up to $10 million from the building fund to cover the expected difference between revenues and the forecast on which spending decisions were made.

The administration's chief economist, Michael Ferguson, said the problem was the result of weakness in both the sales and individual income taxes, which together account for more than 85 percent of total state revenue.

The decline in tax collections measured against projections began in January when figures began showing that the holiday sales period was not as strong as anticipated. A cash surplus that totalled more than $20 million at the end of 1994 steadily dwindled.

Prisoner walks away from work detail

IDAHO CITY (AP) — State and Boise County authorities are searching for a state prison inmate who walked away from a work detail near Idaho City.

Timothy Dove, 31, was chopping wood when he was last seen about 10 a.m., Thursday.

Boise County Sheriff Mike Butler said Dove was not considered dangerous. He was serving a two-year sentence on an insufficient funds conviction in Bingham County, and was scheduled to be released in December.

Dogs were being used to track him. Butler said no vehicles had been reported stolen, but Dove may have had outside help.

Ex-senator pushes endangered species bill

LEWISON (AP) — Former U.S. Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, is chairman of the National Endangered Species Act Reform Coalition, which supports Washington Sen. Slade Gorton's bill to overhaul the act.

The coalition represents Boise Cascade Corp., Coeur d'Alene Mines Co., Idaho County Light and Power, Idaho Mining Association, Idaho Power Co. and the Wild Irrigation District in Idaho.

"The big things in the Gorton bill are things we had in our agenda," McClure said Thursday in Washington, D.C.

The Whittington Republican's bill would require the Interior secretary to set a conservation goal that change from full recovery of the species to protection of just the current population.

The measure also would place limits on the act's application to private property, increase states' roles for consultation and allow for more public participation.

Gorton's measure has 15 co-sponsors, including Sens. Larry Craig, Bob Packwood of Oregon, Craig Thomas of Wyoming, Conrad Burns of Montana and Orrin Hatch of Utah.

McClure said environmentalists are off-base in charging Gorton's bill would gut the act.

"It preserves the protection of the species," he said, adding it would no longer allow the act to be used for other objectives.

McClure said the priority placed on rewriting the act by U.S. Sens. John Chafee of Rhode Island, Dirk Kempthorne and House Resources Committee Chairman Don Young of Alaska tells him that it is likely to happen in this year's Congress.

That does not mean the Gorton bill will be passed as it is introduced, he said.

"I'm sure Dirk Kempthorne will have something to say about that," McClure said.

Kempthorne heads a Senate subcommittee in charge of rewriting the Endangered Species Act. The Idaho Republican plans to write his own bill after the subcommittee finishes its round of public hearings.

"When all that is done, it will be my expectation that most of our concerns will be addressed," McClure said.

He also is a lobbyist for Potlatch Corp., Idaho Power Co., FMC Corp., Pegasus Gold Corp. and Asarco mining companies.

He said he believes President Clinton will sign the resulting bill because he will be faced with either letting the act expire or accepting legislation with some things that he dislikes.

'It (the Gorton bill) preserves the protection of the species.'

— former U.S. Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho

Farmworkers endure trying season

BOISE (AP) — Life for migrant farmworkers in Idaho is never easy, but the forces of man and nature have combined to make this summer unusually trying.

A wet spring meant no paycheck for weeks. Population growth has taken up the space of cheap housing and wages are staying flat.

The wet spring means few forest fires, and that has cut into the extra income many earn on fire crews.

As the hiring season approaches its midpoint, workers such as Manuel Ayala fear they will have nothing more than some pocket change to take home this fall.

Ayala travels to Nampa each spring from Morelia, Mexico; his wife stays behind, caring for their children and promising creditors

Ayala will return with enough money to cover the bills. Most summers, he brings home $3,000 for the winter. Not this year.

Losing the migrant labor force would hurt Idaho, dearly. About 40,000 seasonal workers help bring in the crops; agriculture makes up more than one-third of the state's economy.

A stream of workers comes to Idaho because there usually is a steady supply of work and housing. But not this year, said Humberto Fuentes, executive director of the Idaho Migrant Council.

Each year, the agency offers workers cash and food to sustain them until their first paychecks. This spring's rains drained its food bank much earlier than usual.

An Idaho farm worker earns $4.25 per hour, with no overtime, no worker's compensation insurance and no raise in sight — even though the Treasure Valley cost of living has increased by about 3 percent a year since 1992.

Housing in area migrant camps is filled with workers who have taken year-round jobs in meat-processing plants.

Ayala and eight men spent 15 days searching for a place to sleep. They finally found a two-bedroom duplex in Nampa for $1,000 a month.

Idaho is one of 11 states that does not require worker's compensation coverage for field workers. An attempt to change the law failed to pass the Legislature last winter, for the seventh time in 25 years.

Twin Falls, Minico split Legion twinbill

By Brad Bowlin
Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — Relvy Salinas came within a couple of pitches of being Twin Falls' iron man Friday in a Legion baseball doubleheader with Minico.

Salinas, playing second base, helped starting pitcher Brian Neace out of a jam early in the first game, then came on in relief as the Cowboys won 8-6.

He tried to play the same role in the nightcap, relieving starter Dale Bum in the sixth with a 7-7 tie, but a wild pitch and a passed ball allowed the eventual winning run to score for Minico, leaving Salinas 1-1 on the day.

"We played pretty well today," Twin Falls coach Don Hornback said, after watching his team move to 8-10 in league play. The Pokes will try to even their mark against Minico against Rexburg's Upper Valley today at 4 p.m.

As they were Friday, today's games will be played at the Twin Falls High School field due to a broken sprinkler at Frontier Field.

Salinas started the Cowboy offense in the opener with the first of three hits. After Greg Schelhaas walked, Andy Heyer hit a one-out double to score Salinas.

A walk loaded the bases, and pinch runner Jeff Hancey scored from third on a passed ball before Neace gave himself a 3-0 lead with a smash too hot for the Minico third baseman to handle.

Neace, who is coming back from a thumb injury, struggled with his control. Minico had trouble hitting his good stuff, and managed only one run in the second despite four walks.

Salinas helped end that major threat by going deep to the hole on a Jed Mingo grounder and throwing to Neace at first base for the third out.

It was Salinas again in the third doing it with the bat, stroking a double that scored Wes Bauer from first and keeping the Cowboys out front, 4-1.

Luke Mickelson crushed a two-run homer on an inning later with two outs to provide what appeared to be a comfortable push, but those control problems returned for Twin Falls.

Five walks, a hit batsman, a passed ball and a sacrifice fly by Mingo moved Minico within 6-4 and forced Hornback to put Salinas on the mound.

He hit the first man he faced on the foot, pushing across another run before getting the first of five strikeouts to end the inning.

In the fifth, Heyer reached when he was hit by a pitch, then moved to second on a wild pitch and scored on Willie Bird's two-out single down the left field line.

Minico got that one back quickly when Twin Falls' center fielder misjudged a Dan Price fly ball and Price ended up on third. He scored on a Justin Dayley single to make it 7-6.

Salinas led off the Cowboy sixth with a single, moved to second when Schelhaas walked, then scored on Heyer's double to tie the wall in left center.

"We just didn't get the hit when we needed it," Minico coach Russ Wright said, noting that his team left 12 men on base. "We played a good fundamental

Indians battle 6-run deficit to win

SHOSHONE — The Shoshone Indians were in danger of being swept by the Marsh Valley Eagles in American Legion baseball here last night, losing game one, 14-7, and trailing 9-3 in the third inning at press time.

In the opener, Shoshone seemed to be in good shape, leading Marsh Valley, 7-4, going into the sixth. But after the Eagles exploded for seven runs in the sixth and three in the seventh, the Indians found out that no lead is safe in Legion baseball.

"If you don't play with these guys the whole game, it's over," said Shoshone Coach Tony Bozzuto of the 34-10 Eagles.

Marsh Valley sent 11 batters to the plate in the sixth. Jake Barron managed two hits and two RBI's in the inning, and two Indians errors paved the way for seven runs.

"We fell apart," said Bozzuto of the sixth inning. "We played very good ball for five innings, then we lost concentration and got down on ourselves."

Devin Gudenuau was responsible for three of Shoshone's seven hits.

In game two, Spence Bennett of Marsh Valley had a pair of two-run doubles to push the Eagles to an early lead. Danny Higley's two-run second-inning double put two Shoshone runs on the board.

Colbert beats the heat; pulls out front

Lee Trevino reacts to a fairway shot on the 18th hole at the Senior Players Championships in Dearborn, Mich., Friday. Trevino is tied for second with J.C. Sneed.

The Associated Press

DEARBORN, Mich. — The sweltering heat didn't slow down Jim Colbert on Friday as he shot a tournament and course-record 9-under-par 63 to take a four-stroke lead here Friday through the Senior Players Championship.

Colbert, who won this senior major in 1993, chipped in for an eagle on the par-5 17th and was at 11-under 133 for 36 holes, with Lee Trevino and J.C. Sneed tied for second.

Trevino shot a 67 Friday, while Sneed had a 68 at the 6,876-yard TPC of Michigan.

Defending champion Dave Stockton and Kermit Zarley went another stroke back at 138 after firing their second consecutive 69s.

Course-designer Jack Nicklaus, Dave Eichelberger, Iso Aoki, Rocky Thompson, Raymond Floyd and Bob Murphy, the Senior PGA Tour money leader, were all tied at 139.

Nicklaus, Murphy and Aoki each had a 68 on Friday, Thompson a 69 and Floyd and Eichelberger shot 70s.

None of the first-round leaders — Jerry McGee, Bob Charles and Bob Zimmerman — remained close to the top after their opening-round 68s. McGee and Charles followed with 73s, while Zimmerman, despite getting as low as seven under for the tournament through 10 holes Friday, limped home with a 74.

Colbert began the day, on which temperatures topped the 100-degree mark, at two under. He birdied four of the first seven holes en route to a front-side 31.

He added three more birdies and the eagle on a back nine marred only by a bogey on the par-3 15th. He missed the green with his 3-iron tee shot and failed to get up and down. Still, he completed the best score ever posted in five years at the rugged TPC of Michigan.

"It's a great kick to shoot a 63 on a Jack Nicklaus golf course in a major senior tournament," Colbert said. "I did expect to play well after the way I played yesterday and then the way I practiced. That meant I thought a 68 would be good, but expectations kept going up after each birdie."

The oppressive heat forced him to ride in a cart far more than he usually does, but Colbert liked how he felt in other ways.

"My swing's pretty good at the moment," he said. "I can just go out there trying to play golf. It's not like (playing partner) Stockton, where he's thinking about the swing with the driver on every tee. You can't think about the shots and your strategy when you're worrying about your swing."

Trevino — who has twice finished second at the Senior Players' Championship and tied for third last year — started as quickly as Colbert, with birdies on Nos. 2, 3, 5 and 6 to go under for the tournament. Like Colbert, he bogeyed the 192-yard 15th, but picked up birdies on both backside par-5s to stay within four shots of Colbert.

"I tried not to make the heat a problem out there," Trevino said. "There's never any plus side to having heat like this unless you live in Alaska in December. You just have to be very careful, almost like you do when you're playing in the rain."

Sneed played steady, making four birdies without a bogey.

Scores move up in Kelly's Invite

TWIN FALLS — With one exception scoring moved up among the letters in the final round of Kelly's Invite Friday, but Virginia Underhjem claimed title.

Underhjem moved from a 73 on Thursday to 77 but her closest competitors Stephanie Fraley and Whitney Lewis, both 79s and couldn't make up any ground.

The biggest jump was made by Shaughn Robinson, who came back with a 5 Friday to share second place in gross with Lewis at 154. Fraley actually was second gross but her handicaps gave her first place in net.

Dodger Martinez throws no-hitter

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Ramon Martinez threw the first no-hitter of the season Friday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Florida Marlins 7-0.

Martinez was perfect through 7 2/3 innings, then walked Tommy Gregg on a 7-2 pitch. He struck out eight and threw 114 pitches in completing the first no-hitter by a Dodgers since Aug. 17, 1992, when Kevin Gross beat the Giants.

In the ninth, he struck out Charles Johnson, got Jerry Browne on a grounder to second and then Quilvio Vera's lead to Roberto Kelly in left to end it.

Martinez was helped defensively in the fourth inning when Chuck Carr bashed a bunt past the mound. Second baseman Delino DeShields made an off-balance throw to get Carr.

In the sixth, Johnson's grounder was fielded nicely by third baseman Tim Lincecum, who threw him out. Terry Pendleton sent a long shot to the gap in right-center in the eighth and rookie Todd Hollandsworth ran it down at the warning track.

Martinez, 27, was the fourth pitcher to take a no-hitter into the ninth inning this season. His younger brother, Pedro, who plays for the Montreal Expos, pitched nine perfect innings against the San Diego Padres on June 3, but the game went into extra innings with the score tied 0-0.

Dip Roberts broke up the perfect game with a leadoff double in the 10th after Montreal had gone ahead 1-0 in the top of the inning.

Indians

CLEVELAND (AP) — Carlos Baerga drove in the only run in the first game and hit one of Cleveland's three home runs in the nightcap as the Indians swept a doubleheader from the Oakland Athletics, 1-0 and 7-6 Friday night.

The Indians, winners of 12 their last 16 games, improved their start in franchise history to 48-21. Oakland has lost nine of 12 overall and eight straight against Cleveland.

American League

In the opener, four Cleveland pitchers combined on a five-hitter with Alan Embree (1-0) getting the victory over Ariel Prieto (0-2). The shutout was Cleveland's major league-leading eighth.

Manny Ramirez and Jim Thome also honored for the Indians in the second game, helping Charles Nagy (8-4) to his fourth consecutive win. Ron Darling (2-5) took the loss.

Twin Falls-Flame split opening games

DENVER — The Twin Falls Flame split its opening games in the Nike Triple Crown National Soccer tournament Friday.

The Flame dropped a 3-1 decision to David Shok of Davis, Calif. Oscar Santos provided the Twin Falls goal.

The Flame rebounded to beat the Rock Island Robots in finals 3-2 in the afternoon as Robert Moffitt, Justin Hicks and Santos came up with a goal each.

Twin Falls will play Englewood Express of Colorado and Clinton Pride of Oklahoma Saturday.

Reds snap 9th-inning tie for win

CHICAGO (AP) — Benito Santiago lined a pinch single to break a ninth-inning tie Friday, lifting the Cincinnati Reds to a 5-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

With Barry Larkin on second base and two outs, Mike Perez intentionally walked Reggie Sanders. Randy Myers, an All-Star reliever with 21 saves, then came on to face Hal Morris.

National League

But Reds manager Dave Johnson summoned Santiago, who walked a 1-1 pitch to center field to score Larkin, who reached with his third single and stole second.

Ace Jack Burkett (2-0) pitched a scoreless eighth for the victory, and Jeff Brantley finished his 16th save.

Braves 6, Padres 2
SAN DIEGO — Javier Lopez hit a three-run homer and Tom Glavine threw eight strong innings for his fourth straight victory.

He led Atlanta to its eighth win in 12 games this month. The Padres have lost 12 of their last 17.

Lopez homered to straightaway center field off Andy Benes (2-6) in the sixth for a 5-0 lead.

The game was promoted as "Opening Day II" and drew a crowd of 17,027, 24,934 fewer than the real opening night crowd of 41,961 against Houston.

Expos 8, Phillies 2
MONTREAL — Rondell White, hitless in his last 13 at-bats, went 4-for-5 with two RBIs and Pedro Martinez allowed six hits over eight innings.

White, who had only one hit his last 20 at-bats, had a two-run single in the fifth and scored twice.

after the fifth inning. The score was 2-1 going into the eighth, but Tom Goodwin got an infield single, Wally Joyner walked and Hamelin hit an 0-2 pitch into the center-field seats for a 3-1 cushion.

Baltimore got an unearned run in the eighth to close to 5-2, and Hamelin hit a two-run shot off Armando Benitez in the ninth.

Baltimore starter Ben McDonald (2-5), taken off the disabled list before the game, allowed two hits and one earned run in six innings.

Red Sox 5, Rangers 2
BOSTON — Tim Wakefield got his fourth win in his last four starts and Chris Donnels drove in two runs as Boston beat Texas.

The win increased Boston's AL East lead to four games over Detroit, which lost to California. Texas fell out of a tie for the AL West lead with the Angels.

Wakefield (8-1) struck out a season-high seven batters but walked four, matching his season high. He lacked his usual sharpness, throwing 130 pitches in 6 1-3 innings.

His ERA increased from 1.61 to 1.70, still the best in the league.

Roger Pavlik (5-5) took the loss for Texas.

Twins 11, Yankees 4
NEW YORK — Pedro Munoz drove in four runs and Brad Radke won his third straight start in Minnesota's victory over New York.

Munoz had a sacrifice fly in the first inning, a two-run double in the fifth and an RBI single in Minnesota's five-run sixth.

Radke (6-7) allowed four runs on nine hits in five innings, raising his record to 3-0 in July.

Every Twins starter except Rich Becker had at least one hit as Minnesota rapped three Yankees with their 17 hits, including three each by Munoz and Marty Cordova.

Sterling Hitchcock (3-6) lasted into the fifth for the Yankees. He allowed five runs, four earned, on seven hits.

Brewers 8, White Sox 7
MILWAUKEE — Greg Vaughn hit a 444-foot homer and tied a career-high with six RBIs as the Milwaukee Brewers built a six-run lead and then hung on to beat the Chicago White Sox 8-7 Friday night.

Vaughn, who entered the series with a .190 batting average before getting a season-high three hits Thursday night, found a second ground in the first, a three-run homer in the third and a two-run triple in the fifth.

The triple gave Milwaukee a 7-1 lead and Chicago catcher Jason Berg (4-8), who surrendered eight earned runs on five hits and five walks in 4 1-3 innings, B.J. Surhoff's sacrifice fly off reliever Jose DeLeon made it 8-1.

Richky Bonds (5-7) surrendered five runs in the sixth and reliever Michael Ignasiak gave up three hits and walked a batter before getting a team's first hit with Milwaukee clinging to an 8-7 lead.

PAYSANDU, Uruguay (AP) — Against first-stringers and backups, the United States dominated Argentina for one of the biggest victories in American soccer history.

The United States stunned Argentina 3-0 on Friday night to win its group in the American Cup. While Argentina is one of the favorites in the championship of South America, the Americans — invited along with Mexico to fill out the 12-team field — are considered outsiders.

But the U.S. team, on goals by Frank Klopas, Alexi Lalas and Eric Wynalda, was opportunistic in handling Argentina's first loss of the tournament. Both teams advanced to the quarterfinals from Group C.

"This game fits in the top, alongside Cobi Jones said, referring to the World Cup victory over Colombia last year.

In the second round, the United States, which also beat Chile and lost to Bolivia, will face Mexico on Monday, Argentina, a two-time World Cup champion, faces the other pre-tournament favorite, world champion Brazil. The winners will meet in the semifinals.

While Argentina did not start all of its regulars, it substituted liberally and had mostly first-stringers on the field in the second half. By then, the United States led 2-0.

"I was most proud of the way we played in the second half," Emtman said. "We played three of our best players, but we answered that with a goal," said coach Steve Sampson, who may have solidified his position as head of the U.S. team with the strong performance.

"That was critical for us. It allowed us to gain even more confidence.

"As far as games are concerned, this has to rate as one of the best in U.S. soccer history. This is only the second win in South America since 1930."

Emtman: I want a little respect

ANDERSON, Ind. (AP) — Defensive lineman Steve Emtman said Friday night his contract problems with the Indianapolis Colts are a matter of respect, not dollars.

Emtman also said he was uncertain if he would rejoin the team (Robert Irsay) doesn't think I can play football any more," said Emtman, the No. 1 overall pick in the 1992 draft. "I feel like I've given too much to this organization to be treated the way I've been treated."

"The Colts told Emtman on Thursday he had to accept a $1.3 million salary reduction for the upcoming season within 24 hours or be placed on the waiver list. The deadline was delayed until Saturday.

"Maybe I should go on the waiver list and see if someone still thinks I can play football. And if they don't want to pay me $2 million, I'll be a free agent and see what I'm worth," Emtman said Friday night.

On Friday, Bill Tobin, the team's director of football operations, said NFL officials told the team it was not necessary to place Emtman on the waiver list Saturday to resolve the team's salary cap situation.

Steelers promise to get tough on rookies

PITTSBURGH — The Pittsburgh Steelers, accused by agents of offering below market value for their draft choices, are promising to get even tougher if their unsigned rookies don't agree to terms by Monday.

The Steelers have only two of their 10 picks under contract, the lowest number they have ever signed with training camp so near. The Steelers open camp for their rookies, free agents and some veterans Monday.

"We are virtually at our rookie camp with the offers we have out there," director of football operations Tom Donahoe said. "If everyone took our offer, our ($2.46 million) rookie pool would be exhausted. If we have to come up on some deals, those dollars would have to come from somewhere else."

Donahoe is particularly upset that negotiations have gone slowly with first-rounder Mark Bruener, a tight end counted on to replace Eric Green. The Steelers have offered Bruener a four-year, $2.8 million contract that includes about a quarter of their total 1995 rookie pool.

Court: NFL rule does not discriminate

CINCINNATI — A federal appeals court upheld the NFL's television blackout rule Friday, concluding it does not discriminate against the hearing-impaired.

The 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals supported a lower-court ruling that the blackout rule does not violate federal law that prohibits discrimination against the disabled.

A hearing-impaired man in Cleveland sued the NFL, the Cleveland Browns, NBC, ABC, CBS and their local affiliates in 1993 over the rule. Home games are not aired locally if they are not sold out 72 hours in advance.

Thomas Stutenborough, managing director of Self-Help for Hearing Impaired Persons, contended that the rule violates the Americans with Disabilities Act and other federal laws because the hearing-impaired have no other way to monitor games.

Judge Boyce Martin Jr. wrote in the appellate decision that the disabilities act applies to accommodations in public places, not to broadcasts of football games. Judges Eugene Siler Jr. and Charles Joiner concurred.

Seles to play in U.S. Open next month

NEW YORK — No matter whether she slips into the draw as a wild card or is seeded at the top as she once was, Monica Seles will be making the biggest move toward recovering her lost career when she plays in the U.S. Open next month.

On Friday, Seles, who hasn't played a match since she was suspended in 1993, entered the Grand Slam tournament she won in 1991 and 1992 and then skipped the next two years while recovering from physical and psychological wounds.

"We couldn't be happier," said Page Crossland, director of communications for the U.S. Tennis Association. "We were anticipating it. We've been waiting for her and we're delighted."

It has not been determined whether Seles will be seeded, have a ranking that would put her in the main draw, or be granted a wild card.

"The only thing we know is that she has applied for entry and it was received today," Crossland said.

"All the questions about seeding will have to be determined by the tournament director. The main thing right now is that she's coming. There's going to be a lot of excitement here over her."

Officials tour sinking Olympic dorms

ATLANTA — State officials toured Olympic Village dormitories Friday with a consultant they hired to tell them what, if anything, to do about two buildings that have settled more than expected.

The consultant did not reach a conclusion and had not been expected to do so this early, but the state continued to declare that the dorms were safe.

"We didn't learn anything today to be alarmed about, nor did we see anything in the field that led our consultant to be alarmed," said Doug Rewerts, vice chancellor for construction of the University System of Georgia.

"This point, we feel fairly positive that we don't have a structural problem, although we may possibly have some future cosmetic problems. We might see cracks in the Sheetrock that we'd have to patch or something."

The dormitories are being built at Georgia Tech. The first guests will be some of the thousands of athletes competing in the Olympic Games next summer. After that, the dorms will house students from Georgia State.

Graf's lawyers respond to charges

BERLIN — Wimbledon champion Steffi Graf's lawyers on Friday said investigators are ignorant of her tax situation, and the world's top-ranked woman player said she trusted her father's management of her financial affairs.

Graf, and her father, Peter Graf, are suspected of tax evasion, German newspapers reported this week. Authorities confirm that investigators searched the Graf family villa in Bruehl May 23 and seized documents, but have not spelled out the nature of suspicions.

Graf, one of Germany's most popular sports idols, said in a statement issued by her public relations agency, Advantage International, that she chose to keep her residence in Germany and understood her responsibility to pay German taxes.

"From the first day of my career, I hired my father to handle my financial affairs and I trust that he did so correctly," she said. "Therefore, I was very surprised when this tax issue arose. I have always intended to fulfill all of my tax obligations."

Other German sports stars have taken residence in Monaco, a tax haven, to avoid Germany's high taxes.

Barkley aims for governor's office

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — NBA star Charles Barkley apparently has his mind set on running for governor, despite Republican attempts to persuade him to start his political career with a congressional race.

After meeting with Barkley this week, State Republican Party chairman Roger McConnell said the Phoenix Suns player resisted a suggestion that he challenge U.S. Rep. Earl Hilliard in the 7th Congressional District. Hilliard, a Democrat from Birmingham, is the only black member of Alabama's congressional delegation.

"My gut feeling says he's thinking more toward governor," McConnell said. "He doesn't seem that interested in the congressional race."

Barkley, a native of Leeds, has said several times that he is interested in running for governor.

French rider wins stage on Bastille Day

MENDE, France — Laurent Jalabert supplied his own fireworks on Bastille Day with a French victory in the 12th stage of the Tour de France, while Miguel Indurain remained the overall leader.

Friday marked the anniversary of the storming of the Bastille prison in Paris on July 14, 1789, setting off the French Revolution that toppled King Louis XVI. The event is celebrated throughout the country.

Jalabert took off with almost 125 miles left in the 138-mile leg from St. Etienne to Mende, a relatively flat stage.

He was part of a group that gradually built up an advantage of more than 10 minutes on the field, including Indurain, who appears to be on his way to a fifth consecutive Tour title.

Jalabert broke away from the remnants of the original group with 2.5 miles to go and won easily. "It was perhaps suicidal but we succeeded," Jalabert said. "We made some good fireworks today."

Italians Massimo Podenzana and Dario Botto, no threat in the overall standings, were second and third in the stage, less than a minute behind Jalabert.

Indurain closed the gap enough so Jalabert couldn't take the overall lead. Indurain finished eighth in the stage, 3:41 behind, in a trio with two other top contenders, Marco Pantani of Italy and Bjarne Riis of Denmark.

Bartholomew takes charge of weather-delayed Open

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)

— What the heck, thought Jean Bartholomew. If no one else wants to win the 50th U.S. Women's Open, why not me?

With her competition collapsing around her, the unheralded Bartholomew carded nine straight pars Friday to tentatively claim the lead in the weather-delayed second round of the Open.

Bartholomew, a veteran of the European and Japanese tours, was three under par through 13 holes of her second round when darkness halted play.

Seven players were just one stroke behind, and all had finished their rounds.

In the clubhouse at 2-under 138 were Tammie Green, first-round leader Jill Briles-Hinton, Pat Bradley, Annika Sorenstam, Dawn Coe-Jones, Dale Eggeing and LPGA Tour rookie Letia Lindley. Green shot a 70 Friday, and Briles-Hinton had a 72. Bradley and Sorenstam both had 71s, while Coe-Jones, who is six months' pregnant with her first child, had a 70. Eggeing and Lindley both shot 68s.

Bartholomew and 26 others were to conclude their rounds Saturday morning, beginning at 6:45 a.m.

"It was a long day, a test of your patience," Bartholomew said. "The pin positions were tougher today, and I was just praying for pars."

At mid-afternoon, play was stopped for 1 hour, 45 minutes because of lightning, with about half the field still on the course.

At that point, four players were tied for the lead. Kris Tschetter had just chipped in for birdie on 10 to get to three under. She was tied with Green, Val Skinner and Bartholomew. Green had played nine holes of her second round. Skinner had played six and Bartholomew five.

Play resumed with about three hours of daylight left.

Tschetter faded on the back nine, losing four strokes on three holes. She bogeyed 14, double-bogeyed 15 and bogeyed 16 to fall go one over.

Jean Bartholomew of Garden City, N.Y., reacts after saving par on the third hole during the second round of the U.S. Women's Open Friday. Bartholomew leads after the second round.

Green, runner-up in this event a year ago, got to three under with a birdie at No. 9 but also dropped two shots on the back nine. Skinner birdied her first hole and then ran off five pars before bogeying twice.

Only Bartholomew, a 1989 graduate of Duke, who entered this tournament with low expectations, survived the specter of the Broadmoor East course. Bartholomew, 28, the 1988 New York state amateur champion from Garden City, N.Y., went to four under with an eight-foot birdie putt at No. 10, but gave the shot back with a three-putt on 12.

Vaughn bruises left eye in fight

BOSTON (AP) — Mo Vaughn, the major leagues' home run and RBIs leader, sustained a bruised left eye when he was assaulted at a nightclub, the Boston Red Sox said. He missed his first game of the year-Friday night-against Texas.

The incident occurred as Vaughn was defending his girlfriend at the club after Thursday night's 9-8 loss to the Rangers. Red Sox manager Kevin Kennedy said.

The team said the unidentified girlfriend also was assaulted. Neither the team nor Kennedy identified the nightclub or said how many assailants were involved. Kennedy said no teammates were with Vaughn.

According to a report by Boston police, Vaughn was involved in an altercation with 26-year-old Theron Davis about 1 a.m. Friday at The Roxy, an upscale dance club in the city's theater district.

PGA's new star rises to top of Busch Classic

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Jim Gallagher Jr., one of the rising stars on the PGA Tour, moved to the top of leaderboard Friday after two rounds of the Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic.

Gallagher shot a 6-under-par 65, matching the best score of the first two rounds, to reach the midpoint of the $1.1 million event at 8-under 134.

Blaine McCallister's 67 and Jim Carter's 69 left them one stroke off the lead, and Steve Pate's 66 and Jim McGovern and Ted Tryba 67a to join Scott Hoch and Fred Funk in a group at 136.

Don Reese also shot 65 Friday and was one of nine players at 137. Kirk Triplett, who was eight under after 15 holes, bogeyed 16 and was penalized two strokes for putting from the wrong marker on the 18th green. He's also at 137.

Gallagher, who made a 12-foot birdie putt on 18, had moved from a peak at five under with an eagle on No. 15.

"I was trying to land the ball on the green and it came out a little soft," he said of the sand wedge from 20 feet. "But it hit the fringe hard and released really well. I was surprised it rolled as far as it did."

Gallagher made a similar shot two weeks ago on his way to winning the St. Jude Classic in Memphis, his second victory of the year. He's also finished second twice and is sixth on the money list with $832,038.

"A win here could get me on the Ryder Cup team," said Gallagher, who currently stands 11th in the rankings. "One spot away from an automatic berth for the International event. That was one of my goals at the start of the year."

Carter, who smuck onto the leaderboard late Thursday with a bogey-free 66, followed with a center-shot 69 that included two birdies and five bogeys on the 6,797-yard River

Course of the Kingsmill Golf Club. He capped a three-birdie string by chipping in from deep grass on the par-3 5th, but also three-putted twice. All of his bogeys came in two stretches after he had pushed his score to 10 under.

"That stuff happens," he said after closing with three straight bogeys. "The finish is discouraging, but I'll learn from it. It'll probably help me on the weekend, so maybe it's just an investment."

Carter's best finish this year was a tie for 12th at the Phoenix Open in January. He was third in the Pebble Beach National Pro-Am in 1989, but spent most of the last five years trying to rebuild his career.

"I just wasn't hitting it good enough to be on the tour," he said, lost my confidence. It's a long way to fall and a long way back.

"I've played lots of good golf, but just haven't had good finishes. With two days to go, I'm in good position. Now I want to have a real solid round Saturday and at least have a chance with nine holes to go on Sunday."

Money Economy rebounds without Fed help

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — After months of bad news, the economy appears to have gotten a second wind.

There was a healthy rise in retail sales in June, factory production increased for the first time in five months and consumer prices were up just 0.1 percent.

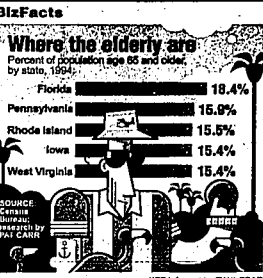

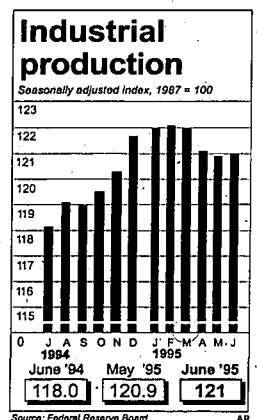

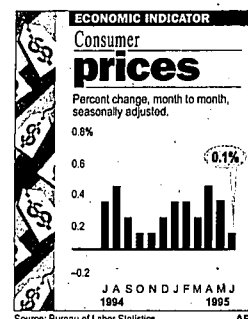

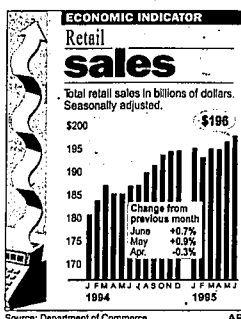

The reports released by the government Friday showed the economy was starting to perk up even before the Federal Reserve cut interest rates last week to guard against a recession.

"This is the best of all worlds," said Eugene Sherman of M.A. Schapiro & Co. in New York. "Economic activity is doing better than believed with even brighter future prospects and inflation is well contained."

Industrial production was up 0.1 percent in June, a modest gain but still the first one since January. In addition, retail sales jumped a strong 0.7 percent, indicating consumer activity, which accounts for two-thirds of the economy, was reviving.

But the increased economic activity did not spur higher inflation. In fact, consumer prices rose just 0.1 percent in June, the smallest increase since last November, as moderation in clothing and food prices offset a second sharp jump in energy costs.

Financial markets, however, reacted negatively to the new data, believing the reports make further interest rate cuts less

Briefly in business

Industrialist buys 5% of Boise Cascade Corp.

BOISE — Idaho industrialist J.R. Simplot is known for his shrewd investments and has purchased a 5 percent stake in Boise Cascade Corp. for $80 million.

The investment now is worth nearly $105 million — 31 percent more than he paid — based on Thursday's closing price of $44.624. He paid between $34 and $41 a share. Simplot said he is not trying to take over the company but just saw an opportunity and took it. "I think it's a sleeping giant, and the stock was cheap," Simplot said Thursday.

Delta decides not to file for London route from Utah

SALT LAKE CITY — Delta Air Lines has decided not to file for a nonstop flight from Salt Lake City to London because the company believes the route would lose money.

Delta officials said Thursday that an analysis by the company indicates the flight would result in losses of more than $15-million-the first-year-and at least $5-million annually in subsequent years.

Markets shudder on economic news

CHICAGO — The Dow Jones Industrial Average closed down 48.86 at 4708.82 Friday after sliding as much as 38 points in early trading amid worries that strong June retail sales data will make the Federal Reserve reluctant to lower interest rates again soon.

Stock market traders also fretted early in the session about a decline in new orders for semiconductors, reported late Thursday by the Semiconductor Industry Association.

Although semiconductor and other computer stocks slipped early in the session, most turned higher by midday. Intel Corp. closed up 1 1/2% at 75, while Texas Instruments closed at 154 1/2, Microware Corp. up 3/4 at 103 1/2 and Compaq Computer up 2 1/2 at 48 1/2.

"There were two excuses to generate at least a little selling pressure, with the retail report and book-to-bill," said Greg Nicke, Kemper Securities in Chicago. "It's very managed to snap back to a degree."

North Idaho furniture plant struggles in 1st year

POST FALLS — When Harpers Inc. announced it would open a 500,000-square-foot furniture plant here, it was touted as a much-needed boost to the local economy.

A year later, the plant employs fewer workers than expected and has posted operating losses.

Gov. Phil Batt toured the north Idaho plant Thursday, greeting workers and praising Harpers' contribution to the area's economy. The plant employs about 425 workers in production of office furniture.

However, Harpers originally estimated it would employ about 600 workers. In addition, the most recent quarterly financial report from parent company Kimball International Inc. shows sales and orders down for its steel office furniture division — Harpers.

Jasper, Indiana-based Kimball said in the March 31 report that it expected operating losses on its steel furniture line to continue into the 1996 fiscal year, which begun this month. Poor performance was blamed on production inefficiencies at the new Idaho facility and price competition.

Meanwhile, all other Kimball production lines showed improvement during the first nine months of fiscal 1995, Kimball said. The company also makes pianos, wood furniture and cabinets.

No Kimball executives were available Friday to comment on Harpers' performance. Kimball spokesman Jack Schneider said.

The plant's efficiency has been hampered by mechanical and other problems. Technicians took nearly a year to get its furniture-finishing system working properly. The problem was made worse by power outages and smoke from local grass burning last year that set off smoke alarms and tied the system for hours at a time, General Manager Greg Davis said Thursday.

He said the plant has improved its efficiency and performance since the beginning of this calendar year.

Firm markets sliced apples that stay fresh

YAKIMA, Wash. (AP) — Bill Elkins envisions a day when every child's lunch box will contain a package of packages to school apples that he says stay juicy and fresh for nearly two weeks. "Kids love them," said Elkins, a sales representative for Global Fresh, a Yakima company. "My daughter took a bunch of packages to school for sharing and did a third-grade market research for me, telling me how many kids ate all their slices, how many used the caramel dip, how many just ate the slices." The single-serving packages of pre-cut apple slices will begin testing in the secret western Washington, starting next week. A box of five pouches, each containing six slices of a Granny Smith apple, will sell for $2.79. Each serving pouch contains two ounces of apples. The secret to Apple Wedges is a "patented process that uses an all-natural ingredient — nothing chemical or artificial about what we do — that retards the spoilage of the apple," Elkins said Wednesday.

Tech firm to settle

NEW YORK (AP) — Packard Bell Electronics Inc. has agreed to spend up to $1 million and change its warranty policy to settle allegations it deceptively sold new computers with substandard used parts, a newspaper reported. Packard Bell admitted no wrongdoing in the proposed settlement, which received preliminary approval June 29 from California Superior Court in Los Angeles.

TRINITY SITE, N.M. — Ground zero of the atomic age is marked by a modest lava stone obelisk. "Where the World's First Nuclear Device Was Exploded on July 16, 1945," its plaque reads.

The absence of the word "bomb" is appropriate. The scientists who built Fat Man, as the bulbous object was known, referred to it as "the gadget." Or, "the thing."

Ground zero usually is open to the public just two days a year, once in spring and once in fall. On July 16, a caravan of the curious will queue up for an extra look inside White Sands Missile Range on the 50th anniversary of that explosive moment that forever changed war, politics, science and our culture's psychology.

The artificial sun that rose before dawn that morning gave birth to apocalyptic nightmares of "duck and cover" and the Cuban missile crisis. It also promised "peace through strength" and energy "too cheap to meter."

The atomic bomb imposed a stern restraint on military escalation and yet spawned artistic outrage that gave us Dr. Strangelove, "The China Syndrome" and cartoon character Homer Simpson as a hopelessly inept nuclear-power-plant operator.

Scientists overnight became both Prometheus and Dr. Frankenstein, lavishly funded and warily mistrusted, unlocking secrets we still are not sure we want to know.

"A person on an airplane told me I had sold my soul to the devil," remarked Mike Sohn, the current project manager for computational physics at the Los Alamos weapons laboratory in New Mexico. "I don't believe that. We have maintained the peace."

The United States ultimately spent $350 billion building nuclear weapons, or almost twice as much as it has spent on space exploration in the same period. The additional money spent on machines to deliver the warheads and on other arms of the Cold War — basically, the U.S. military budget — was enough to pay the cost of reconstructing every building and road in the country: $13.5 trillion.

The nuclear standoff arguably bought time that led to the Soviet Union's collapse without a World War III. But our grandchildren will still be paying for cleaning up the resulting nuclear-waste mess.

Thus Trinity, as that first test explosion was code-named, was, arguably, the single most important event of the 20th century.

The plutonium fuel of the bomb, probably a sphere about the size of an orange, was made at Eastern Washington's secret city of Hanford, the product of 51,000 workers laboring for 27 months. The flash at 5:29:45 a.m. released four times the heat of the interior of the sun, created a pressure of 100 billion atmospheres

THE TRINITY TEST

In 1939, scientists succeeded in splitting atoms and recognized that the energy released could be made into a powerful weapon. Convinced that the Nazis were developing an atomic bomb, the U.S. government in 1942 authorized a concerted effort to produce their own bomb. The Manhattan Project was organized to accomplish this goal. Hope plants were built around the country to produce uranium and plutonium, fissionable materials needed for the bomb. These materials were shipped to Los Alamos, N.M., where the Manhattan Project built the weapons research laboratory, led by physicist Robert Oppenheimer. The first experimental explosion of an atomic bomb, nicknamed Trinity by Oppenheimer, took place July 16, 1945, near Alamogordo, N.M.

The Implosion Bomb

A subcritical mass of plutonium is surrounded by a shell of high explosive. The detonation of the explosive compresses the plutonium so that it forms a supercritical mass, initiating an explosive chain reaction. The splitting of an atom (fission) releases neutrons that then split other atoms, releasing an enormous amount of explosive energy.

Chains reaction
Each time a nucleus splits, more neutrons are released. Some are captured by other nuclei, or lost in the case of an atom bomb.

The formation of the fireball
During the first four seconds after detonation.

"I am become death, the destroyer of worlds."

An ancient Hindu text, the Bhagavad Gita, describes the atomic bomb as a "cosmic fire" that will destroy the world.

At precisely 5:30 a.m. on Monday July 16, 1945, the atomic age began. While hundreds of Manhattan project members watched anxiously, the device exploded, vaporizing the lower 8000 tons of the 10,000-ton tower. The blast leveled the grass and the surrounding area, and the equivalent of 15,000 to 20,000 tons of TNT. The nucleus of the Trinity test meant that the atomic bomb could be used for use against Japan.

How much have we tainted earth, wind and water?

Seattle Times

SEATTLE — Judith Jurji says she thinks the atomic bomb made her sterile.

Specifically, Jurji says she thinks radioactive emissions from Hanford's plutonium-producing nuclear reactors fell onto Eastern Washington pastures, were consumed by dairy cows and then concentrated in milk.

Jurji's parents grew up on dairy farms before her father went to work at Hanford nuclear reservation as a construction supervisor. They drank a lot of milk. And six of 10 family members have had thyroid disease.

The thyroid tends to concentrate iodine-131, an isotope that can cause many problems, including—in Jurji's case—the inability to have children.

"I feel like my life has been very, very damaged," said Jurji, 50, who now lives in Seattle and directs the Hanford Downwinders' Coalition. "I feel particularly betrayed because my dad worked there and we were told it was so safe."

Her belief that she was harmed by radioactive fallout is one shared by 3,000 members of the Downwinders' Coalition, mostly Eastern Washington residents who lived downwind from Hanford's plutonium plants that emitted radioactive gases into the atmosphere, primarily in the late 1940s and early 1950s. Thousands more live in states such as Utah and Nevada, downwind from atmospheric bomb tests.

Scientists initially minimized the health threat of fallout and pollution. While medical boards have steadily reduced recommended low-level radiation exposure levels, there is no consensus today on the consequences of Cold War-era fallout.

The Committee of International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War has estimated atmospheric fallout from weapons testing has caused 430,000 additional cancer deaths.

At the other extreme, bomb physicist Edward Teller was asked how many deaths can be attributed to fallout and replied, "Nobody," arguing that concentrations were not severe enough to affect health. Teller is skeptical that nuclear waste is a serious health threat. A third of the Department of Energy's budget goes to cleanup and, "probably the number (of lives) saved thereby is zero."

Trying to straddle these extremes are policy-makers. In the clearest admission of responsibility to date, Congress has passed legislation allowing people who lived downwind from the atmospheric testing in Nevada from 1951 to 1963 to file-for-up-to-$50,000-compensation. Please see RADIATION/E2 and was seen 250 miles away.

Officials told New Mexicans that an ammunition dump had exploded, and a story accepted in that era's patriotic secrecy.

The matter-of-fact willingness of our brightest minds to build such a bomb remains haunting. In the pre-dawn darkness, the assembled physicists slathered on sunscreen in anticipation of what they were about to unleash, then took shelter in bunkers and trenches nearly six miles away.

The flash lit the surrounding mountains brighter than the noon sun. The roar broke windows at a distance of 120 miles. In a single instant, scientists had released energy equal to all the bombs dropped on London by Nazi Germany's Luftwaffe during the Blitz.

"I am become death, the slayer of worlds," murmured physicist J. Robert Oppenheimer, quoting a Hindu text.

Scientist Isidor Rabi, who won a betting pool on how big the bang would be by guessing the equivalent of 18,000 tons of TNT (it was measured at 18,000), opened a bottle of whiskey and poured it among the assembled scientists. Each took a swig.

"Now we are all sons of bitches," said Trinity director Kenneth Bainbridge as he watched the column of fire and dust climb several miles in the sky.

The heat was so intense that it vaporized the tower holding the bomb and melted the sand underneath into a green glass dubbed "Trinitite." A mile away, exposed rock surfaces were heated to 750 degrees. At 10 miles, the heat still felt like the open mouth of a fireplace, witnesses reported.

Despite bulldozing away the fused sand, the radiation levels today, half a century later, are still 10 times that of the background radiation levels found in nature from radioactive rocks and cosmic rays.

Joe McKibben is an 82-year-old retired Los Alamos physicist who made the final decisions to drop the bomb after it was suspended in its tower. He was the last to leave the Trinity site before the explosion.

McKibben, who still lives in the town of Los Alamos, spent the final night at ground zero to ensure the night wasn't tampered with. Mattresses had been laid at the tower base as a precautionary move in case the bomb fell, and at 2 a.m. McKibben lay down to get some sleep. He was awakened by a pre-dawn lightning storm that "spattered him with rain."

He closed the switches at the base of the tower, drove 800 yards to a relay station and threw switches there, then came back to the tower. Because of the storm the test was pushed back an hour, to 5:30 a.m. Communication was difficult because scientists were using the same radio frequency as a nearby Voice of America station. Finally, he made his final connections and drove to his bunker about two miles away. Photo floodlights were turned on inside to allow cameras to record the final countdown.

"Then the bomb went off."

"I had a photo flood on, but suddenly realized there was a lot more light coming in the back door," he recalled. "It was very brilliant outside." He threw one more switch to trigger instruments measuring the blast, then rushed outside 13 seconds after the bomb ignited. "I ran over and took a look at it. It was a ball of fire, brilliantly colored and highly turbulent. The color was somewhere between red and purple."

"What was he thinking?" I felt we had been successful in our project. I knew the war would soon be over."

Four hours after the explosion, the cruiser Indianapolis steamed out of San Francisco Bay bearing a bomb nicknamed Little Boy. It was headed for the bomber base on Tinian Island in the South Pacific. The bomb was loaded on a Boeing B-29 and dropped on Hiroshima, Japan, on Aug. 6. Little Boy was not quite as powerful as Fat Man; it exploded with a force of about 16,000 tons of TNT.

After its delivery, the Indianapolis

Why was the bomb dropped?

In April 1945, the Allies were preparing a controversial plan for a two-phase invasion of Japan. Use of the atomic bomb and Japan's subsequent surrender in Aug. 1945 prevented the invasion from taking place.

President Harry Truman had four alternatives for ending the war.

was torpedoed by a Japanese submarine and its crew was spilled into the water. More than 500 of them drowned or were devoured by sharks.

Plan of a copy of Trinity's Fat Man, again fueled with Hanford plutonium, were delivered by air to Tinian, assembled and dropped on Nagasaki, three days after Hiroshima, exploded with the power of 22,000 tons of TNT.

Because of the chaos and obliteration following the bombings and uncertainty about attributing cancer deaths to radiation, estimates of deaths from the two bombs range from 115,000 to 340,000. If the latter is correct — and it is closer to the historical consensus — the two "gadgets" killed more Japanese than all the Americans killed in all the battles of World War II.

They also ended a war that had, with conventional weapons, already claimed at least 40 million people. In just one horrific example, the Japanese army is estimated to have massacred as many as 200,000 Chinese civilians in Shanghai in 1937.

More than 3,000 people came to what the Spanish explorers called the lomo del Muerto — literally, the Journey of the Dead, a reference to the harsh route from El Paso, Texas, to Santa Fe, N.M., on April Fool's Day this year. Their mood neither festive nor dour, just curious. Visitors were directed to a dirt parking lot by military police. A grill was set up to sell hamburgers. The National Park Service erected an awning and sold books representing a range of opinion about the nuclear age. As the day warmed, cotton-ball clouds popped from a tau blue sky.

The site was as empty and unremarkable as it must have seemed in 1945. It was so lonely then that the troops stationed there won an award for the lowest venereal-disease rate in the U.S. Army.

Desert vegetation has long since reclaimed the blast zone. Brochures advised of the lingering radiation, but added that it remains below background levels. There was no lingering sense of menace.

Families posed for snapshots at the obelisk. Visitors looked for tiny scraps of trinitite the bulldozers had missed, obeying the admonition not to remove them.

Some posed beside casing of Fat Man, the bomb itself, set on a trailer near the obelisk. A cyclone fence circled both, with photographs of the explosion's sequence hung on the fence. Forming a shuffling line, people examined the photographs one by one. The bulk of the explosion divided into microsecond.

The Rev. Steve Caldwell and 20 people from St. Charles' Episcopal Church in Albuquerque gathered by the fence away from the main crowd and consecrated the ground. "It seemed a fitting thing, to do, to celebrate an important place in peace and war," said Alex Zimmerman, a lay member. And the bomb? "I think it was necessary. I'm thankful we were the ones who did it, and not the other side."

That view was typical of most of the Americans present. We interviewed an Albuquerque physicist, a B-26 bomber instructor and a Guadalcanal veteran who fired pipes with asbestos at the nuclear labs in Los Alamos.

The pipe fitter, 72-year-old James Garrison, sometimes chatted with Oppenheimer, the lead physicist on the code-named Manhattan Project. "He was a nice guy when he fired pipes with asbestos at the nuclear labs in Los Alamos."

THE ACES ON BRIDGE Bobby Wolff. It is a matter of regret that many long men's expectations turn out to be well-founded. —Edgar Watson Howe. Today's hand was played in a world championship match between the seven. You see any possible way for South to avoid losing three hearts and a diamond? Hint: Imagination and a bit of luck will help. In the Precision System, the one-diamond opening is reserved for strong hands. This system aberration helped South stand his vulnerable game. West led the diamond queen, dummy ducked and East played the seven. Cleverly, South fished with the five, hoping for a diamond continuation. He didn't get it, but it didn't matter. West shifted to a club to dummy's king and trumps were drawn in two rounds. When South's diamond king brought the 10 from East, South's hopes rose. He led his diamond deuce and when West followed, he inserted dummy's nine. (Surely, West would not have led the queen from Q-x-x.) The nine held, one of South's heart losers was in the diamond ace and the defenders got only two hearts and a diamond. Moral? There are two, one for each side. When you play an artificial system, you should expect occasional difficult results and for deceiver, when you are in a hopeless situation, don't go quietly. A bit of obfuscation may often cover a poor score to a good one.
