ses Twin Falls food lab

The reviews from the University of Idaho, the Oregon Department of Agriculture and the Montana Department of Agriculture questioned the Twin Falls laboratory's testing procedures, staffing, quality control and reporting procedures, according to a news release announcing the temporary suspension from Gov. Phil Batt's office.

The nearly 2½-year-old laboratory checks commodities for pesticides, herbicides and residue from other potential contaminants.

The harshest peer review came from Gregory Moller, technical director of the Analytical Sciences Laboratory at the University of Idaho in Moscow, said Mike Everett, administrator of the agriculture department's division of marketing and development.

Moller said the problems are so serious that much of the information produced by the laboratory "would probably not withstand a serious challenge," the Associated Press reported.

"This may present problems for regulatory enforcement and the protection of the public health," Moller wrote in his review, of which The Times-News was only able to get a one-page summary on Monday.

Moller also said there were indications that tens of gallons of chemicals and solvents were poured down sinks at the laboratory instead of being disposed, according to the Associated Press.

In 1990, Moller participated in many of the discussions that resulted in the state's creation of the Twin Falls lab.

Match, who initiated the peer reviews of the controversial laboratory after taking office in January, said the peer-review reports raised "sufficient concern" to stop

Locals ask county board to stop dam at Auger Falls

By William Brock
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Opponents of the Auger Falls hydroelectric scheme implored Twin Falls County commissioners Monday to "show some local control" over the project's conditional-use permit — which they claim has expired.

But the commissioners' attorney said his legal research, thus far, indicates the permit may still be valid.

"It's up to us to determine locally what's going to happen with that river," said Twin Falls resident Don Zuck, who spent 16 years as chairman of the county's Parks and Recreation Commission.

"We would like the county to reconsider the conditional-use permit because a number of things have changed" since the permit was granted in 1991, added Liz Paul, a Boise-based staffer with the Idaho Rivers United conservation group.

"There was a very different climate in 1991," she said. Since then, business leaders and state officials have agreed that stagnant water in the Middle Snake River has become a major pollution problem.

Paul asked commissioners Dennis Maughan and Brent Reinke to hold a public hearing before granting a new conditional-use permit for Auger Falls. She and others insisted the permit should have expired after one year because the developer, Cogeneration Inc. of Salt Lake City, hasn't started construction.

The county's civil attorney, Ax Yewer, said his review of Idaho case law has shown that actual construction isn't necessary to keep a conditional-use permit alive; instead, developers need to show a vested interest.

Cogeneration President Steve Harmsen has spent a substantial amount of money to obtain state and federal permits for the Auger Falls scheme, and Yewer said Harmsen's persistence may represent diligent pursuit of the project.

'There was a very different climate in 1991.'

— Liz Paul, Idaho Rivers United

Harmsen is seeking to build a low dam across the Snake River less than three miles downstream of the Perrine Bridge; water would be diverted through a 1.7-mile canal to a powerhouse near the mouth of Rock Creek. If built, the project would generate 43.6 megawatts of electricity — making it Idaho's largest privately owned powerplant.

An ideal place to view the Auger Falls reach is from a dirt road that drops into the Snake River Canyon on the Jerome County side; the road skirts the western edge of the Jerome golf course before descending into the canyon.

An old concrete bridge spans the river downstream from the halfway point of the disputed reach, and rapids upstream of the bridge often lure whitewater kayakers, canoeists and rafters. Opponents of the Auger Falls hydroelectric project urged county commissioners Monday to take a long view of the future — and consider the area's tremendous potential for recreation.

"There's been a real change in interest in the Middle Snake by people who live here," said Twin Falls attorney Curtis Webb. "There's been enough changes to justify your looking at (the county permit) again."

Reinke agreed that efforts to preserve the area's "quality of life" have gained momentum in recent years.

"In the long term, you ought to take a look at that river for what it could be — not what it is now, but what it could be," said Buhl-area resident Ben Collins, who is an active member of the Magic Valley Fly-fishers.

'Get ready for Bosnia,' Pentagon tells 3,800 reservists

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon ordered 3,800 reservists to prepare for duty in the Bosnian peacekeeping operation Monday.

It also identified which U.S.-based Army and Air Force active forces will be sent to the Balkans.

Defense Secretary William Perry said he has directed 3,000 U.S. troops in Germany to move into Hungary as soon as possible. They will set up staging bases and road networks for the movement later this month of the main body of U.S. peacekeeping troops and their supplies into patrol areas of northeastern Bosnia.

At a Pentagon news conference, Perry made a renewed pitch for public support for sending American troops to Bosnia as part of a NATO-led effort to enforce the peace agreement reached Nov. 21 in Dayton, Ohio. Without U.S. ground troops in Bosnia, he said, the war would reignite. Perry said this was a crucial opportunity to make the peace take hold.

"We're not going in to fight a war," he said. "In fact, for two, and a half years, we have said that we would not send ground troops to Bosnia until a peace agreement is reached. That peace agreement is now in hand, and that is why we're preparing the forces."

At his Pentagon news conference, Perry for the first time spelled out which U.S.-based soldiers will be sent to Bosnia. Until now, the Pentagon has said only that most of the American contingent would be from U.S. bases in Germany.

Perry said soldiers from 22 Army units in 10 states have been notified. The biggest contributor will be Fort Bragg, N.C. It will send soldiers from a parachute infantry regiment, a training company, an engineer company, a military intelligence battalion, a psychological operations group, and a special operations signal battalion.

The nine other states contributing active-duty soldiers to Bosnia are Georgia, Vir-

Anti-government move gains strength

SPOKANE — Ona control, land-use regulations and taxes are fueling a growing hostility in the Inland Northwest toward the federal government.

Counties have threatened to seize control of federal lands. Armed possees vow to fight federal abuses of power. A Colville plumber preys for the president's death on the radio.

The movement is uniting different factions who share a common enemy, the federal government. Signs are everywhere, if Spokane newspaper reported.

The Washington secretary of state reports a surge of petitions from people asking to relinquish their U.S. citizenship and become sovereign residents of the Republic of Washington. There were 13 such requests between 1986 and 1992. Since then there have been 609.

Grant County deputy assessor who refuses to pay her federal income tax.

In western Montana, Noxon rebels turn their militia into a mail-order cottage industry, and county planners get death threats for trying to tell people what to do with their land.

Many in this broad movement call themselves "new patriots."

Distasteful of the U.S. government has always run deep here, where much of the land belongs to the government.

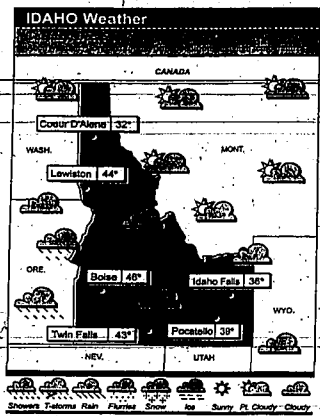

This is the land of Randy Weaver, of Libertarians, John Birchers, Earth Firsters and Aryans. It is also a center of the militia movement, which federal investigators suspect helped inspire the Oklahoma City bombing that killed 168 people.

Carl Raschke, an authority on subversive groups, said the anti-government refrain is loudest in rural Western states.

NATO vanguard reaches Balkans Lab

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — In a near-freezing drizzle that hinted at the winter ahead, the first NATO troops landed in the Balkans Monday by being set up on a peace mission that will bring 20,000 American soldiers into the Bosnia conflict.

"We'll be setting up the headquarters for the bigger force to come down," said Sgt. Matthew Chipman, of Beardstown, Ill., who arrived with Sgt. Todd Eichmann, of Kansas City, Mo.

"We realize it is a difficult mission, but I think we are as well trained now as any force," said Brig. Gen. Stan Cherkie, who visited the town of Kiseljak, 2.3 miles northwest of Sarajevo, on Monday.

Can GOP outflank Clinton on budget?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eager to boost pressure on President Clinton to cut a budget deal, Republicans are engaged in a long-shot strategy of trying to outflank the White House with a little help from some Blue Dogs...

Democrats favor balancing the budget in seven years if they oppose the GOP's $245 billion tax cut. They also object to the amount of savings Republicans would extract from Medicare, Medicaid, welfare and dozens of other domestic programs...

'We'll talk to anybody at any time about this, to be constructive,' said Rep. John Tanner, D-Tenn., one of the Blue Dogs. The Blue Dogs — formally known as The Coalition — have 21 members...

Minority Leader Dick Gephardt, D-Mo., said those numbers might not apply as the budget endgame approaches. Some Democrats who might otherwise vote for a GOP budget might not do so if a major defeat for Clinton were at stake...

First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton shows off the White House Christmas tree and other decorations in the White House Blue Room.

First Lady opens White House for holiday tours, reminisces

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hillary Rodham Clinton opened the White House holiday season Monday morning by peering into an artist's edible rendition of her childhood home on Wisner Street in Park Ridge, Ill.

In a Kelly green suit and colorful Christmas jewelry, Mrs. Clinton said her girlhood home's northern exposure was perfect for her and brother Hugh to play in the snow.

"If we built a snowman here, the snowman would be there until the bitter end of winter," she said.

The 70-pound home is made of gingerbread and icing. The first lady's bedroom has a big bed, a wooden trunk, a dresser and a colorful wall mural of sugarplum fairies.

At a U.S. air base in Baumholder, Germany over the weekend, Mrs.

Clinton said she was asked questions about the timing of the first deployment of U.S. troops to Bosnia just before the holidays.

"If we built a snowman here, the snowman would be there until the bitter end of winter."

—Hillary Rodham Clinton commenting on the ginger bread replica of her childhood home.

"A lot of the responsibility falls on the people left behind," she said. But she said the troops and their families expressed support for the U.S. military involvement. "I didn't hear complaints. They want to make sure they know exactly what's going to happen to them."

Mrs. Clinton said she and the President were exhausted from the European trip. They arrived home Sunday night to a White House sparkling with 32 elegant Christmas trees laced with ribbons of dusty rose and gold. Rich cranberry-colored drop cloths of velvet lay on parquet floors.

Students from all over the country designed the 3,500 ornaments, and volunteers worked around the clock this weekend to hang them.

More than 150,000 visitors will tour the White House in the next few weeks. Mrs. Clinton said she will try to be cheerful and energetic throughout the season.

"Flat shoes are a big help," she said. "But it's tiring, so you have to take a deep breath."

Colorado judge to hear bombing case

DENVER (AP) — A Colorado federal judge was appointed Monday to preside over the Oklahoma City bombing trial after the judge who had been assigned the case was ordered to step down because his chambers were damaged in the blast.

The 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals appointed U.S. District Judge Richard P. Matsch, who sits on the Colorado bench. The order from Chief Judge Stephanie K. Seymour did not indicate where the trial will be held.

The 10th Circuit ruled Friday that U.S. District Judge Wayne Alley of Oklahoma City should be removed from the case because his chambers were damaged in the April 19 bombing.

Alley formally stepped down from the case on Monday.

"The judge who succeeds to this case will have to bear a dreadful burden, and I wish him or her well," Alley wrote.

Alley's courtroom and chambers were across the street from the Alfred P. Murrah Federal building, when a truck bomb plattered the structure, killing 169 people. Alley was not at the courthouse, but one of his staff members was injured in the blast.

More Americans turning to healthy-heart lifestyles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are getting the healthy heart message about eating lean and monitoring their cholesterol levels. And the increased awareness is paying off with fewer heart attack deaths, federal officials say.

A cholesterol awareness survey released Monday by the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute showed more than 90 percent of Americans know about the risk of high blood cholesterol, and about three of every four adults have had their blood cholesterol levels checked.

The study found 79 percent of Americans know there is a "good" and a "bad" cholesterol, and 69 percent know the desirable total blood cholesterol level is below 200.

That is in sharp contrast to cholesterol awareness just nine years ago, when only 16 percent of Americans recognized the health consequences of blood chemistry.

More Americans also are choosing lower-fat options in their diet, such as using skim milk instead of whole milk or using margarine instead of butter, the survey found. The results suggest a slow but growing change toward more healthy eating.

Elevated levels of low density lipoproteins (LDL), the so-called bad cholesterol, are generally recognized now by doctors to increase the risk of heart attack. Increased levels of high density lipoproteins (HDL), the so-called good cholesterol, are considered beneficial.

Fortune boosts Forbes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Steve Forbes' late arrival to the presidential race with no major endorsements, no political experience and campaign employees in just four states.

What he does have is money. The action of the Forbes publishing empire says he's boosted himself into the ranks of second-tier challengers to GOP frontrunner Bob Dole on the strength of his sunny message of an American future filled with opportunity.

Others say he bought his status as a credible contender.

Joining the race in late September, unknown to rank-and-file voters, the multi-millionaire is making good on his vow to spend "whatever it takes" from his personal fortune — $7 million so far.

Forbes

His poll numbers have caught up with and in some cases surpassed those of others who have been campaigning for months, putting him in the clump of second-place candidates trying to catch Dole in Iowa and New Hampshire. Campaign officials say internal surveys show him virtually even with Dole in Arizona.

"It's the power of the message," Forbes says.

"The reason he polls so well is it's very hard to miss his commercials," says Tom Rath, senior adviser to former Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander's campaign.

"He should enjoy his 15 minutes because he's paid for them dearly," Rath added. So far, Forbes has campaign employees only in Iowa, New Hampshire, New York and Arizona — and no political organization beyond his professional operatives.

What he lacks in organization, he makes up for with saturation TV and radio ads in a dozen early primary states, and some national cable ads.

It is rare to watch TV in Iowa and New Hampshire without seeing the professorial, bespectacled Forbes opining on his flat tax idea, advocating congressional term limits or stressing his business background.

He targets Dole in negative ads on tax increases and term limits, a move that has rankled some party regulars who recall how Pat Buchanan's 1992 primary attacks weakened President Bush for the general election.

"Even the party people who don't intend to vote for Bob Dole don't want to see Dole attacked or criticized," said GOP consultant Mark Helme.

Dole and Gramm have both outspent Forbes, campaigning for a longer time period. And unlike Forbes, they must abide by campaign spending limits that are required of candidates who seek federal matching funds.

To supplement his own deep pockets, Forbes plans a series of fund-raisers beginning with a New York dinner expected to raise $1 million on Dec. 13.

But Forbes says he has more than money going for him. "If the ads didn't have a message, we'd be laughed off the air," he says.

His commercials promote his ode to free marketing. If government would remove regulatory and bureaucratic restrictions and drop taxes to a flat 17 percent, America's economy would run wildly into an expansion that will exceed that of any other great generation," Forbes said in an interview.

Court keeps Murphy lawsuit alive

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Enquirer faces a trial over its story about actor Eddie Murphy's illegitimate son and the boy's mother because the Supreme Court refused to kill an invasion-of-privacy lawsuit Monday.

The court let stand rulings that said a California jury should decide whether the tabloid newspaper's report — its accuracy unchallenged — was "newsworthy" and therefore legally unassailable.

In other matters Monday, the court:

Rejected Colorado's attempt to deny Medicaid-funded abortions for women impregnated by rape or incest by letting stand a ruling that forces states participating in the federal Medicaid program to pay for such operations.

Turned down a Minneapolis-based charter airline's challenge to federal requirements, to take effect Feb. 1, on the length of airline flight attendants' work shifts and minimum rest periods between flights.

Refused to hear the appeal of celebrity divorce lawyer Marvin Mitchellson, convicted in 1993 for failing to report almost $2 million in income on his federal tax returns.

Refused to reinstate a $275,000 "label award" won, and then lost, by an unsuccessful mayoral candidate against Fayetteville, Ark., newspaper, the Northwest Arkansas Times.

Heard arguments in the unusual case of a Georgia death row inmate who says he wants to be executed in a way that doesn't interfere with donating his organs. At issue is whether state prisoners can forfeit their right to appeal in federal court by willing too long.

The Enquirer's invasion-of-privacy troubles began when it reported in September 1992 that Murphy and Tammara Hood had a 2-year-old son named Christian Edward Murphy, and that the film star had accepted financial responsibility for the child.

Dontreae and Dalsey Harp, wife and mother of Marine Pfc. Rodrigo Harp who is accused of rape, and Barbara Cannon, mother of Pfc. Kendrick Ledet who is also accused, leave the courtroom where three servicemen are on trial for the rape of a 12-year-old girl in Okinawa, Japan.

Marine: I was forced to confess

NAHA, Japan (AP) — An American serviceman accused of raping a 12-year-old girl testified Monday that U.S. investigators dragged him out of bed before dawn and forced him to confess.

The testimony in a Japanese court by Marine Pfc. Rodrigo Harp, 21, followed charges by family members that the three servicemen accused of raping the Japanese girl were treated unfairly by the U.S. military, possibly because they are black.

The crime has galvanized local opposition to U.S. bases in Japan. American officials call them crucial to security in Asia. But on Okinawa, the southern Japanese island where 27,000 U.S. troops are stationed, residents want the bases closed, saying they cause too much crime and nuisance.

Outside Okinawa's Naha District Court, where the three servicemen are in trial, someone posted a note to the Americans: "If you have a piece of pride, get out of here," Harp, wearing a lumberjack shirt and slippers, admitted he helped plot the Sept. 4 abduction and rape of the schoolgirl in a rented car. But he said investigators from the U.S. Navy wouldn't listen to his full story. "When I told them that I did get into the back seat with the little girl, but did not rape her, they were forcing me to say that I did rape her," Harp, of Griffin, Ga., told the court in a clear voice.

Harp also said the U.S. investigators roused him from bed between 4 and 5 a.m. on Sept. 6, just a few hours after his arrest, to answer questions.

Harp's lawyer, Mitsunobu Matsunaga, said the testimony was critical to convincing the three-judge panel deciding the case that Harp's "confession" shouldn't be trusted.

The other two defendants — Navy Seaman Marcus Gill, 22, of Woodville, Texas, and Marine Pfc. Kendrick Ledet, 20, of Weycross, Ga. — are to testify at hearings later this month.

Gill has admitted to the most serious charge, rape causing injury, which carries a maximum sentence of life in prison. Ledet, like Harp, admits involvement but denies the rape.

Lawyer Matsunaga also sought to lessen Harp's sentence by calling his wife as a witness. Demitreae Harp described her husband as a gentle, hardworking man who was good with children. When she said she still loved him, the defendant put his head down and appeared to be crying.

Mrs. Harp also apologized to the victim and her parents.

According to the charges, the three forced the girl into a rented car after she stepped out of a stationery store where she had bought a school notebook, drove her to a remote sugarcane field, raped her and dumped her from the car.

Russian election campaign: No place for greens

MOSCOW (AP) — As one of the most polluted places on the planet, Russia seems like a country that might want a few fresh greens in parliament. But not a single environmental party appears on the Dec. 17 ballot. There is, however, the Constructive Environmental Movement, known by its Russian acronym KEDR (Cedar). Despite its name, it is a staunch advocate of nuclear power. "As far as I know, there isn't a single environmentalist in the party," said Nikolai Vorontsov, who is the real thing as well as a member of parliament. In fact, many KEDR activists are low-level nuclear industry bureaucrats. The international environmental group Greenpeace, an avowed foe of nuclear contamination, is openly skeptical about KEDR's close relationship with the nuclear power industry. KEDR didn't even bother to reply to a Greenpeace questionnaire sent out to the parliamentary contenders, said the organization's Moscow director, Alexander Knorre. Russia is afflicted with a staggering array of environmental problems:

radioactive wastelands, poisonous air, oil-seeped lakes and rivers, toxic dumps and aging nuclear plants, to name a few. It's clear that cleaning all that up would take a lot of time, money and energy and most parties give the environment no more than a nod in their platforms. Voters probably haven't noticed. They're more concerned with trying to make a living, and trying to make sense of how Russia has changed since the 1991 Soviet collapse.

"People are much more worried about their living conditions, crime, economic and political stability," said Knorre. "The environment is not a top of anyone's agenda." Even if it were, KEDR is an unlikely advocate. The party's own founder admits it isn't the slightest bit green. KEDR, put together by businessmen, first appeared on the scene in 1993. Despite flashy television ads, it attracted just 1 percent of the vote in the parliamentary race. Everyone thought it would vanish.

Fahd in hospital for 5th day

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — King Fahd was hospitalized Monday for a fifth day after being treated by a team of U.S. doctors. For what his court called a "temporary health emergency." The Royal Court said Sunday the king, who is in his early 70s and has had health problems for some years, is recovering from exhaustion and arthritis. But the disclosure Sunday that American doctors had been flown in to treat the king fueled speculation that his illness might be more serious. Fahd entered the hospital Thursday.

New state senator should choose between jobs

Our newest state senator is pushing his luck.

John Sandy has not yet served a day of an Idaho legislative session, and he's already thinking about moonlighting. Our advice to Sandy is: One new job at a time.

Sandy, R-Hagerman, was appointed this fall to replace former Sen. Joyce McRoberts (now the regional Health and Welfare boss). The job brings the usual challenges of political office, along with some special ones.

Most of Sandy's 22nd District is in western Twin Falls County. He lives in the small corner of "Cooling County" that is also part of the district. So he has had to scramble to put himself in touch with constituents - most of whom live in a county where he hasn't been a familiar face.

That's one special challenge. Another is taking over at mid-term. He'll spend his first session playing catch-up. Once the Legislature comes home, he'll barely have time to unpack before the Republican primary campaign, where he may or may not face opposition.

All of that is a big mouthful to chew. Yet now Sandy is an acknowledged candidate for state GOP chairman. His name is one of several that the party will consider in January to replace the departing Randy Smith.

Sandy says if he wins, he'll keep the Senate seat. He figures he can handle both jobs at once.

Maybe he can. But will voters in the 22nd District feel well-represented by a freshman senator who also is taking on statewide GOP leadership?

Voters will reasonably assume that the state chairmanship will take Sandy out of the district much of the time. Since his wife already lives in Boise, it's a fair bet he'll be there often on party business.

Being party chairman might be a good step in Sandy's political career. But it would be bad for the 22nd District. And it might be bad for the GOP. Republicans have controlled the 22nd District for as long as anyone can remember, but they don't hold a mortgage. An unelected, freshman senator paying only partial attention to the district is a unique opportunity for a Democrat.

So far, Sandy has made the right moves as a new senator. He has gotten out and talked to people, demonstrating that he intends to be an active senator. But he needs to decide which job means more to him.

U.S. school system has betrayed children

A report by the Department of Education about American public school students' ignorance of history is no surprise. Similar studies have shown a mostly discouraging trend for more than 20 years. But the response from those who are responsible for the deplorable intellectual and social conditions in schools, while not surprising, is a triumph of denial.

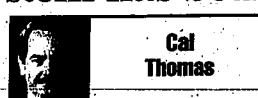

Government surveys asked 22,000 students in every state about their knowledge of American history. Half were found to be unaware of the Cold War and nearly six of 10 knew little or nothing about the origins of our republic.

This is at a time when the nation is spending more money on schools than ever, and unbelievably public education activists tell us that the reason students aren't learning is that we're not spending enough. Some might ask why we did a better job educating children in one-room schoolhouses than in pricey public schools. Taxpayers should wonder whether the problem lies less to do with money and more to do with what is being taught.

The modern education system has been front-loaded with elitist propaganda that does little to give students a firm foundation of knowledge that will prepare them for the modern world. One recent survey found that in many cases four periods of the school day are consumed by non-academic subjects, such as the environment, sex education, self-esteem, driver's education and physical education.

Even the good stuff has been polluted by the politically correct who believe it more important to study 14th-Century African kings than the Magna Carta or early American heroes like Paul Revere, Thomas Paine and George Washington. (Dead white males with European roots, you know.)

—Lewis Lapham, editor of Harper's magazine

zine, thinks the pathetic state of contemporary education is the fault of those who want to take us back to the days when children were taught differently - a period in which they were truly educated. He blames "political demagogues" for the ignorance of so many students. Writing in the New York Times, Lapham blames those who believe in the Bible for dumbing down the children, not those, like himself, who revel in their disbelief. He links such persons to a Harvard professor he says has "verified the sighting of intergalactic aliens."

Lapham has a tough case to make, given the fact that his secularist soul mates have succeeded through the courts in stripping the schools of any favorable references to God. (Blasphemy is protected by the First Amendment.) But he gives it a try.

"Against the vivid cries and promises of unenlightenment," writes Lapham, "we have little else with which to preserve and extend the world of civilization except the voices of experience." Right, and look what the "voices of experience" have produced. Lapham gets to the heart of the problem when he reveals his own focal point of faith: "Across all of the world's time zones, the adherents of one or another of the ancient superstitions wage their furious assault on what for the last 200 years has been known as the Spirit of the Enlightenment."

It is that spirit, beginning with autonomous man rejecting God and wisdom that does not come from the mind of man, that has produced more deaths at the hands of governments in this century than any period in history. Yet, while we're waist deep in the Big Muddy, the bigfools who brought us to this moment - those who believe in the perfectibility of humankind - say to push on, with ourselves in control.

No thanks. In "1984," George Orwell invented the "memory hole." All history, all books were to be put down this hole to erase a people's memory of their past so that totalitarian forces might move in and create a new history. That is precisely what the real enemies of education and of history have done in America. For them to blame people who believe in a Power higher and greater than themselves is like blaming gravity for killing me if I jump off a tall building. Resist the truth and you suffer the consequences.

Lapham's least favorite Book notes that "God is far wiser than the wisest man." Those who used to be in charge of American education believed that. Does Lapham judge Abraham Lincoln and Alexander Solzhenitsyn as ignorant because they read and believed the Bible?

The last Department of Education survey again proves the necessity of opening up government schools to competition. School vouchers and the freedom to choose have never been more needed. But Lapham and his associates won't easily surrender. We have to take back our children, at whatever cost, from a system that has betrayed them and the country.

Citizens don't have to take it

Mark Stubbs is correct when he says that public doesn't ask the right questions. Unfortunately, the answer to two important questions: "What about permanent storage of high-level waste?" and "What about cleanup of the 95 acres of buried waste?" will take many more years to get. Keeping further waste shipments out of our state was our "ace in the hole." It was our guarantee that the Department of Energy would make good on its promises to clean up the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory. It was also our guarantee that Idaho's INEL site would not become the nation's nuclear sacrifice zone.

Resumption of these shipments makes it difficult to enforce cleanup - we now have no leverage. We can no longer say, "Clean it up first." The fact that the deadline for the shipment agreement is 40 years in the future should be a red flag because it puts out DOE accountability for another generation to deal with. What kind of adults are we to leave this legacy?

Mr. Stubbs assumes that those people standing on the trucks are people who do not like our government. They are people who love the years of "love it or leave it" are over. You are dealing with an informed public who believes, "If you love it - it works to make it better!"

As taxpayers and citizens, we have a right to object to what we see as bad judgment by our leaders. We have a right to want to protect the future of our children. We are quickly leaving them the legacy of our $4 billion national debt. They don't need this too. Each concerned person should make a stand in whatever way you can. This is nuclear hankamit, and we shouldn't have to take it anymore!

the horses cars. Eye infections were also a problem due to the persistent flies.

The gnats were a nuisance to me as they were trying to get into my eyes and ears. On Nov. 1, I wrote to Sen. Laird Noh and sent copies to Commissioner Marvin Hempleman and Robert Stoltz, entomologist with the University of Idaho Research and Extension Center, asking for their help in controlling the gnat population in our area. Also, I want to hear from people who are concerned, and we need to send petitions requesting the county to extend the canal gnat treatment into November.

Vandalism ruins Christmas

Many of the residents on Capri Drive have chosen to share the joy of the Christmas season with the Magic Valley over the years. Visitors come from all over the state to see the lights. Many come repeatedly.

Yet this year may be the last for some of us. Some times, one of the thieves stole his horse from the yard and taken to Sawtooth School during the night. Lights are continually broken, strings are cut, and now the 6-foot, 2-inch king at 866 Capri has been stolen in the early morning hours of Nov. 29.

We have enjoyed the visions who come to share the spirit of the Christ child, the king of kings. You have shared your appreciation with us. If the king would be returned to 866 Capri and put in his rightful place, we will not prosecute. However, the culprits have been observed and their identities will not be kept secret long if the king remains stolen. Should the justice system choose to tap you on the fingers and say "naughty, naughty," we are not bound by the law to keep your identity secret, and once we obtain your photo to match the vehicle, they will be published and placed on bulletin boards across Magic Valley. I cannot believe parents are unaware of the antics of their kids. If parents allow their kids to keep the king or to deface him, they are as guilty as their kids.

The king was wearing a long dark blue robe and white cape. He was carrying a blue antique bottle as the presentation of his gift to the Christ child.

Christmas is the time of year when we all celebrate the birth of the Christ child. Too bad some people feel the need to steal the joy from others.

Independent Party offers hope

The Associated Press reported on Nov. 30 that the House of Representatives passed a lobby reform bill requiring lobbyists to disclose information about their dealings with our congressmen that has previously been secret. It's about time. People have been calling for this reform for many years.

What the wire service neglected to tell us though, another "sin of omission" that Molly Nink talks about, is that there was an amendment to the bill offered by Jim Trafficant that also banned foreign lobbying which was taken out before the vote. Foreign lobbying is that wonderful activity which allows lobbyists working for other countries to have access to and influence our lawmakers. It permits things to happen in this country such as the robbing of our natural resources by countries like Japan without proper compensation to our citizens.

I remember Bill Clinton promising before the election that he was going to put a stop to the practice. House members, if they removed the amendment because the Senate would never pass the bill with it included. What they don't want to talk about is the fact that our United States senators know that when they retire (with their six-figure pensions), the best way for them to further enrich themselves is for them to go to work as a for-sign lobbyist. They have the ability to go directly onto the House or Senate floor as an ex-member of Congress, and foreign governments will pay big money for that access. Republican or Democrat, it doesn't matter; probably about two-thirds of them will sell out our loyalty to big money and the establishment media will help to hide the fact. They are not going to vote to close this opportunity off from themselves.

This sad commentary on what our representative system has become is just another example of why we need a third major party. There is hope. The platform of Ross Perot's Independence Party pledges to reform this and other undesirable practices and to make our system again include the wishes of the majority of the American people.

Do right, don't do away with Regarding Robert "Swen" Johnson's letter of Nov. 29, "Tell senator how land is doing": "I like to enjoy Idaho also: But we need to be able to afford to live here and enjoy Idaho. If the environmental extremists hinder their way, no one will be able to afford to live here and enjoy Idaho. No one will be able to live anywhere and enjoy Idaho. Come on, give me a break; I will go along with toxic waste concern, but without jobs we won't have the income to enjoy anything. There is a world of difference between polluting our environment with toxic waste and the wise use of resources. I have seen what can be done and have participated in the rehabilitation of mineral-use areas. We can use our mineral resources and satisfactorily take care of the disturbance. Besides, show me the extensive areas of strip mining. I wonder if it's a small percentage of the total.

The clear-cut forests is another issue. They may not suit your aesthetic tastes, but what logging provides us with jobs, building materials, and can perform a necessary treatment for the land. Old-growth, even-aged timber stands invite disease, insect damage, and increases the risk of fire. Proper logging procedures can reduce these problems as well as improve wildlife habitat.

The same goes for grazing of public lands. The only tool we have for improving the grass-forb-ambush condition of our wild lands is primarily livestock grazing. We can't control the wildlife grazing, but we can control live-stock grazing. Modern technology has given us the tools to do all of these things properly, if we will. This is the only issue to do these activities properly, not to do away with them.

Magistrate awards custody to father

BOISE (AP) — An Ada County magistrate Monday awarded the father custody of two of the three children who survived what authorities said was the attempt by his ex-mother-in-law to murder them.

The grandmother, Susan Kathleen Stovern, has also been charged with the first-degree murder of the fourth, Ashley McQuillan, 5.

Magistrate Patricia Flanagan said investigations found that Phillip McQuillan, 25, had steady employment and living circumstances in Florida, where he lives with his new wife Tina and her two boys and had expressed a desire to take custody of Christopher, 4, and Alexandria, 3.

Flanagan said the children's mother, Jennifer Góngoly, 24, of Boise, did not oppose her ex-husband receiving custody.

And Flanagan added in her order, "the court finds that the mother of the children, Jennifer McQuillan, poses a threat to the physical well being of the children, and that she should have contact with them in a supervised fashion."

Neither the order nor the court file in the case elaborated.

Stovern was granted guardianship of Christopher in October 1991 and of Alexandria last June.

Flanagan did not resolve the guardianship of the fourth child, 10-month-old Sean Matthew, who is not Phillip McQuillan's child. McQuillan did ask to be granted custody of the baby as well.

Stovern faces a preliminary hearing Thursday on one count of first-degree murder and three counts of attempted murder. Authorities say Ashley was suffocated and Yalium was found in the system's of all four children.

Her neighbors told police that she had repeatedly expressed fear that her son-in-law would try to take the children away from her and apparently just snapped when she killed Ashley and drugged the others.

Study: Mass transportation poor choice for Yellowstone

JACKSON, Wyo. (AP) — Mass transportation probably never will replace private vehicles in Yellowstone National Park, but limited uses of it could help relieve some congestion, according to a federal study.

A bus system would not be heavily used unless it was mandatory, according to the study, prepared for Congress by a consultant for the National Park Service's transportation branch. But the study said a mandatory transportation system would be prohibitively expensive and would not allow travelers to drive across the park as part of a larger trip.

The study estimated that a park-wide transportation system would require 13,015 parking spaces on 145 acres and a fleet of 738 buses. It would cost $531 million to set up the system and buy equipment, and cost $73 million per year to operate, the study said.

"An average peak-season visitor would have to pay $58.48 to use the system if users paid all costs, it said."

"Because of the magnitude of the required investment, the impacts on natural resources of building large parking lots, the high operating and maintenance costs and the disruption of existing visitor-use patterns associated with a park-wide transportation system, this alternative was not carried forward into detailed analysis," the study said.

But the study also said several small-scale options exist to ease traffic congestion in some areas. One option would provide shuttle service from park entrances to major attractions, including Old Faithful.

Also promising, the study said, would be shuttle service around the Grand Loop, or segments of it — especially the Hayden Valley portion.

Inmate seeks new trial

BOISE (AP) — Condemned child murderer Gene Francis Stuart's attorney on Monday urged the state Supreme Court to apply retroactively a 1993 ruling in another case and order Stuart retried for the 1981 beating death of his girlfriend's son.

The high court, which has been considering another petition in the Stuart case for about nine months, took the latest appeal under advisement.

Pomerelle, Sun Valley plan to open this week

TWIN FALLS — Two weeks behind schedule, Pomerelle Ski Resort near Albion will open on Thursday and Sun Valley will follow suit 48 hours later.

Pomerelle, on Mount Harrison in Cassia County, got 18 inches of snow Sunday night, Manager Jody Burrows said. Along with manmade snow, it's enough to get skiers on the slopes, he said.

The resort's operating hours will be 9:30 a.m. until 4 p.m. daily, starting Thursday. Lift tickets are $12.

To the north, Sunday's storm left nine inches of new snow on top of Bald Mountain and seven in the Wood River Valley. Equally important, forecast overnight temperatures in the teens over the next few nights should allow the Sun Valley's $16-million-in-snow-making equipment to get to work.

Sun Valley spokesman Jack Sibbach said Monday that 65 acres of skiing will open Saturday on Mid and Lower Warm Springs. Access to the top of the mountain will soon follow, he said.

Sun Valley's lifts run daily from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tickets this weekend will be $32 a day, or $25 for a half day.

City drastically cuts areas considered for annexation

TWIN FALLS — The City Council drastically reduced Monday the area it is considering for annexation to Twin Falls.

At least nine residents at a public hearing protested the proposed annexations and the accompanying rise in property taxes.

The only areas still under consideration are: two small parcels west and northwest of Oregon Trail Elementary; the Grand-Vue Drive in Theater property; the area of residential land which includes Fawnbrook Apartments; and land near the Candleridge subdivisions. The council will hold a second public hearing in two weeks.

After protests from another string of residents, the council restricted the lighting, display area, signs and noise at a proposed car lot on Addison Avenue East. The council approved a commercial rezoning for the lot, but a development agreement must still be approved.

Jerome Comprehensive Plan draft ready for public review

JEROME — The draft of the Jerome Agency Comprehensive Plan is ready for public review, and comment. Open houses providing opportunities to review and comment on the plan are being presented by the Jerome Agency Comprehensive Plan Steering Committee and Citizens Subcommittees this week.

Events, planned for 4 to 8 p.m., will be held Wednesday at the Jerome High School and Thursday at the Eden Senior Center.

For those unable to attend the open house events, the plan can be reviewed at the Jerome School District office, Jerome Recreation District Office, Planning and Zoning Commission in the courthouse, Jerome, Eden and Hazelton City Halls and the College of Southern Idaho.

Prior to adoption of the plan, formal public hearings will be held during January.

Further information can be obtained by calling Mike Pepper at the Jerome Recreation District, 324-3589.

Prosecutors agree to drop charge against Sonneland

TWIN FALLS — Prosecutors agreed to drop one of two felony escape charges Monday against Ralph Sonneland in exchange for his admission that he escaped from the Twin Falls County Jail in October.

Twin Falls County Prosecutor Richard Bevan said the county plan was that Sonneland spend three to five years in prison for the crime. Sonneland dashed out of the emergency door on Oct. 12 and through tent barracks that have since been replaced with trailerhouse cells, authorities have said.

Law enforcement officers captured Sonneland two hours later in a nearby back yard, said Twin Falls County Sheriff Wayne Tomney. Sonneland, 27, was charged with felony escape in August for allegedly leaving the Twin Falls Community Center and not returning to jail one evening.

Idahoans visit INEL's successor

TWIN FALLS — Five Idaho lawmakers — including three from the Magic Valley — will fly south today to examine the nuclear waste dump in New Mexico that is supposed to start accepting tainted tools and supplies from Idaho four years from now.

Rep. Mark Stubbs, R-Twin Falls; Sen. Linda New, R-Kimberly; and Sen. John Sandy, R-Hagerman will descend 2,150 feet into the center of a vast salt deposit left by an ancient sea. Waste is supposed to be stored there beginning in 1999.

The site, the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant, was slated to open near Carlsbad in 1983, but a lawsuit by the state of New Mexico delayed the opening. Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary has set a new date for opening — 1998.

The lawmakers — as well as some from Colorado, Washington, New Mexico, Wyoming and Utah — will find out which steps the site has taken to gain approval for opening.

It has already submitted a draft application to the Environmental Protection Agency. Chances of opening on schedule are "very good" simply because for the first time in the history of the facility, the secretary of energy formed Carlsbad Area office to give us a direct link with Washington," said Donovan Mager, spokesman for the site.

Noh Sandy Stubbs

The Department of Energy wants a success story Mager said. "They haven't had a success story for a long time, and they want to show the people of this nation that they can successfully operate things," he said.

If they succeed in opening by 1998, their first shipments will come from Idaho in April of that year, half a year ahead of schedule, Mager said.

The site is good because the salt will eventually "encapsulate" and contain the nuclear waste, and "I would like to see if indeed it is ready to open," he said. "I'd like to hear from those people why it is not opened, and I'd like to hear them say yes, it will open and when."

The tour will show lawmakers what the site is doing to prepare for opening in 1998. Stubbs said, but will leave other questions unanswered. Lawmakers still don't know what will happen to the 1,133 highly radioactive spent reactor fuel shipments at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory. That waste is supposed to be shipped out by 2035.

The salt pits also don't take care of 2.5 million cubic feet of plutonium-contaminated waste buried in the desert above the Magic Valley's drinking-water supply. Plutonium from that waste has been found 240 feet below the site, nearly halfway to the aquifer.

But opening the New Mexico site could nudge the Department of Energy into opening a spent waste facility in Nevada, Mager said. And it could be an answer for some national and international waste.

"We've been building bombs for a long time and not taking care of the waste," he said.

Jerome dad will not be sent to jail

By Liz Wright

TWIN FALLS — A Jerome man was sentenced to three years' probation Monday for cracking the skull of his infant son with his forehead.

Keith Goodman, formerly of Twin Falls, told a judge he couldn't remember head-butting 6-month-old Joshua as the mother, Rita, napped nearby in a motel room on Dec. 14, 1994.

The couple has since separated and placed the baby up for adoption. "What I did, I am sorry for," said Goodman, 21. "I love him very much. I guard children with my life. I always have. Especially toward my son."

Twin Falls County Deputy Public Defender John Olson portrayed Goodman as young and ignorant about child rearing and cast the incident as "inappropriate playing."

Goodman had pleaded guilty to injury to a child.

Joshua suffered no brain damage during the incident and required no treatment for the skull fracture, Olson said.

Twin Falls County Prosecutor Richard Bevan countered by saying that Goodman had told an investigator he thought he'd do "a little head-banging," then later used a package of frozen potatoes to chill the swelling on the baby.

The child was screaming before and during the head-butting, Bevan said.

Fifth District Judge Daniel Meehl threatened to send Goodman to prison for one to three years if Goodman violates the condition of his probation under the Idaho Department of Correction.

Goodman also must pay for and attend parenting classes, health counseling, and complete a drug and alcohol abuse evaluation. Meehl said he would refer Goodman to a treatment facility if his estranged wife might need because of the incident, and may not have contact with any children under 5 years old unless approved by his probation officer, Meehl said.

Blaine principal receives top honor

HAILEY — The hallways swarmed with activity during lunchtime at Wood River Middle School.

On nice days students quickly exit to eat lunch and visit outside on the lawns. They race to boot up a computer to play a game or utilize the Technology Room to explore its many challenges. Or they may wander into an open classroom and find themselves discussing problems with a teacher.

Amid all this, Principal Chuck Turner takes turns with vice-principal Ray Grosvenor strolling the halls, keeping up with the kids and giving the teachers a needed break.

"We're like a big family," Turner says. "That doesn't mean things are smooth all the time, but we work things out."

That attitude and the successful transition of Wood River from a junior high to a bona fide middle school are what earned Turner the recognition as Idaho's Secondary Principal of the Year for 1995. Recently honored with a reception and workshop in Washington, D.C., Turner, 31, credits the honor to the district's support and his staff's hard work.

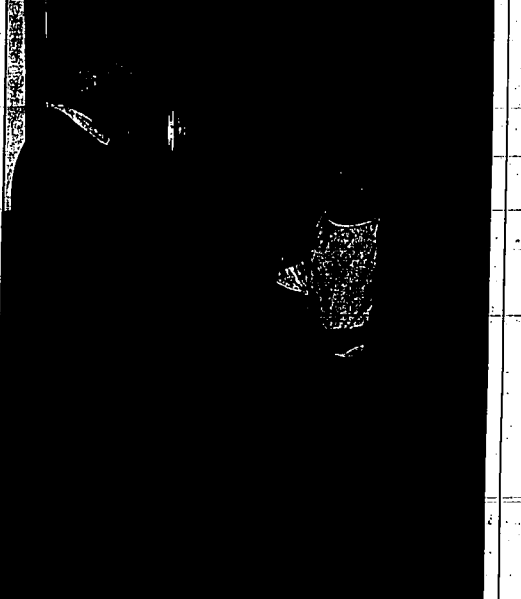

"They've never worked so hard," Turner says. Turner says he thinks he was chosen from a field of 45 candidates statewide because of his middle school's success and its excellence in programs such as health, media and technology.

But the most important measure of success can be achieved by looking at how happy the kids are, he says.

"This is an age when they really struggle. There's a lot of demands on their lives, on their hours during the day," Turner says. District Superintendent Phil Homer nominated Turner for the award and says Turner really went to work to change his own attitude to guide the conversion.

"Chuck has really turned the junior high into a middle school," says School Board Chairman Lynn Flickinger. "His willingness and enthusiasm spread to teachers and parents."

Retired Californian eyes Jerome sheriff post

JEROME — Jim Weaver was just a route cop when he stood at the scene of the Charles Manson murders in Los Angeles to prevent onlookers from peering in while detectives pieced together evidence.

Now living in Hazelton, he is running against Jerome County Sheriff George Silver III in next year's Republican primary on a platform of "putting the community back into the sheriff's department."

"I don't want to do anything unless the citizens come forward and tell us what is going on," Weaver said. "Law enforcement has to have citizens' input."

If elected county sheriff, Weaver said he would bring to the job 28 years' worth of experience on the Los Angeles Police Department.

He primarily wants to infuse the agency with the spirit of volunteerism by rallying senior citizens to the cause of protecting the community.

Seniors could help answer telephones, update crime trends and start a program of identifying property with Social Security number labels, he said.

"They are such an untapped reserve of people who want to be used to better their community," Weaver said. "Quite often they are forgotten, but they are very talented people."

He also would organize town meetings, rides with deputies and have citizens patrolling parked holiday parking lots and special events with radios and cellular telephones.

Weaver Silver

"I observed it while I was a police officer in Los Angeles," Weaver said. "It was very effective."

Weaver grew up in a family headed by his father, a southern baptist minister, and attended Hollywood High School.

Weaver said he served in many capacities during his tenure with LAPD, including juvenile crimes, narcotics, and drill instructor at the Los Angeles Police Academy.

He bought a small farm in Hazelton 13 years ago after visiting some friends in the town and "falling in love with the community."

When he retired recently from the agency, he moved with his wife, Karen, to the area for good. They have four sons and five grandchildren. He coaches Murtaugh High School football in his spare time.

BLM to keep Declo Hills land

By Jennifer Busch
Times-News writer

BURLEY — A Declo East Hills land trade will not go through, after approximately two years of negotiations.

The Bureau of Land Management announced Monday that Six S Ranch, owned by Sam Skaggs, no longer wants to trade away land it owns in Blaine County in exchange for BLM land next to the ranch in the Declo Hills.

"The Declo Hills land will be kept open to the public by the BLM, which will manage it for multiple uses, according to a BLM news release.

The BLM quoted a Six S Ranch statement as saying, "The decision to terminate the exchange at this point is in the best interests of the community."

Mary Gaylor, district manager for the Upper Snake River BLM districts, said in the news release she was sorry the trade would not happen.

"I am disappointed with this development as the BLM felt that a very workable solution to this complex and controversial land exchange proposal had been reached," she said.

The BLM has decided not to trade all of the Declo Hills land first proposed in the trade, but recommended keeping 3,500 acres open for public use.

Had the trade gone through, the BLM would have gained Six S ground in Blaine County that was deemed a key migration corridor for game, especially elk.

But the Declo Hills are a popular hunting, horseback and hang-gliding area, and the BLM received more than 2,000 letters protesting the original land trade. The original trade would have placed the Declo Hills land wholly under private ownership.

After a series of negotiations with representatives from the public and Six S Ranch, the BLM decided to trade the land with the stipulation that the ranch deed 3,500 acres of the Declo Hills land to Cassia County. The ranch agreed.

Members of the Save the Declo Hills Coalition, who fought to keep the land open to the public, have been working to set up a taxing district to manage the land under local control.

But the negotiations were stalled early last month when NEK ROKICH, a Burley physician breeder, appealed the BLM decision. The appeal could have stalled the trade for as long as two years.

Frank Gillette, co-chairman of the Save the Declo Hills Coalition, expressed mixed feelings Monday about the announcement.

"Canceling the trade assures that the land remains public, but putting it under local control would have been even better, he said.

"I would just like to have seen it in our hands," he said. "It would have been a better deal."

"Tom Dyer, Snake River resource area manager for the BLM, said in the news release that the 3,500 acres of public land will continue to be managed for multiple uses by the BLM.

"We will work closely with the Save the Declo Hills Coalition to help manage and control the recreation use that does take place on the Hills," Dyer said.

Cats invade Ogden campus

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Their caretakers call the cats that live on Weber State University's campus "wild," "feral" and "stray" because they don't belong to anybody and usually steer clear of people.

But these cats live unusually civilized lives. They are fed two kinds of cat-food every morning, sleep in beds of straw at night and have carpeted shelters, inside-down Styrofoam-coolers with small doors cut out) to get out of the cold.

The cats that can be caught are taken to a veterinarian who tests them for diseases, gives rabies shots and spays or neuters them at a discount price.

"We began taking care of the cats almost 20 years ago with a female we named C.C., short for Campus Cat," Karen Wimmer said. Wimmer is a graphic artist for Weber State's Communication Arts and Technology — or CAT, by coincidence.

Wimmer thinks C.C. was brought to campus and abandoned by her owner.

"She was the most intelligent cat I think I've ever seen. She would never let us catch her and so she was never spayed," Wimmer said.

Unspayed, C.C. had at least five litters, giving birth to Weber State's wild cat community.

"Now there are cat colonies outside the library, the gym, the social services building and the stadium," Wimmer said.

Wimmer is worried that with Ogden's new animal control ordinance, cat owners unwilling or unable to afford a license will start dumping their animals on campus. The ordinance requires cats to be either licensed or kept indoors when not on a leash.

Clit Byrne shares that worry. Nearly every morning for 17 years, Byrne has brought a bag of moist cat food to campus for their breakfast. Wimmer supplies dry food.

"They depend on me and I can't resist them," said Byrne, who for 22 years has worked part-time for Weber State reading textbooks for blind students.

But Byrne said he worries that the cat licensing law might bring more cats to campus, so many that efforts to contain the population won't work. He's afraid there will be too many to care for and that the school's administration will ban cats from campus.

"Right now, the administration has no official policy on the cats," said Craig Hall, vice president for administrative services.

The caretakers try to find homes for the feral cats.

New school puts Wendovers at odds

WENDOVER, Utah (AP) — For years, children on both sides of the Utah-Nevada border casino town attended the same schools. Now, the end of the cooperative education pact has the community unraveling.

While children on the Utah side of the border soon will be going to no-going, overmanned schools, students on the Nevada side will attend newer, better-equipped classrooms.

Utah parents, angrily accusing school officials of ignoring their concerns, are threatening a boycott that could cost the Tooele School District thousands of dollars in state funding.

"If that is the only way we are going to get their attention, let's do a boycott," says Jackie Rattiff, a mother of two of the just pulled out. We are scared and we want something done. We want to do whatever is best for our children."

The parents have scheduled a meeting Tuesday night with the Tooele board to ask for a new elementary school on the Utah side. Previous discussions have ended in impasses.

Since 1985, the Tooele County and neighboring Elko County, Nev., school districts have had an interdistrict district on the Utah side. Nevada side educated the elementary school pupils, and Utah took those beyond the sixth grade.

Anita F. Barker
Anita Fay Barker, 82, longtime Twin Falls resident, died Saturday, Dec. 2, 1995, of cancer.

She was born July 7, 1933, in Mankato, Kan., the daughter of Richard and Garnet Pruden. On June 16, 1976, she married Carroll Robert Barker in Elko, Nev. She worked for Idaho Frozen Foods for 18 years before retiring.

Survivors include two grandchildren, Jerry Van Hoosen of Kennewick, Wash., and Paula Nebecker of Kimberly, Ark.; three great-grandchildren; seven great-great-grandchildren; two brothers; and four sisters. He was preceded in death by his wife, parents, one son and one great-grandson.

Survivors include two grandchildren, Jerry Van Hoosen of Kennewick, Wash., and Paula Nebecker of Kimberly, Ark.; three great-grandchildren; seven great-great-grandchildren; two brothers; and four sisters. He was preceded in death by his wife, parents, one son and one great-grandson.

Anita had always wanted to be a good wife and mother—a goal she obtained many times over.

Survivors include her husband, Carroll Robert Barker; one daughter, Fawn LaRea Jenks; and two sons, Kenneth R. Jacobsen Lantz and Kenneth R. Jacobsen Lantz Jr., all of Twin Falls; 19 grandchildren; and aunts, uncles, nieces, and nephews. She was preceded in death by her parents; two sons, Richard Clyde Hall and Troy Quint Jacobsen; and one daughter, Uta Wava Jacobsen.

V. Earl Woodruff
V. Earl Woodruff, 74, of Buhl died Friday, Dec. 1, 1995, at his home in Buhl.

He was born Sept. 9, 1921, in Buhl, the son of William and Iva Wollanberger Woodruff. He was the fifth child in a family of six children. His parents came to Idaho in a covered wagon from Cheney, Wash., in 1913, and homesteaded in the Deep Creek area. He graduated from High School in 1939. He married Nadine Messley on Aug. 6, 1941, in Buhl. He was a farmer and dairyman in the Magic Valley area and was a member of the American Legion, No. 23, 1929, in Twin Falls.

Anita had requested cremation and memorial services will be held at 1 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 7, 1995, at White Mortuary in Twin Falls, with Pastor Dale Metzger officiating. Cremation took place at White Crematory.

He was active in 4-H for many years. He was a member of the First Christian Church and the Lucerne Grange. The love of his family, farming, and animals will be among our cherished memories.

St. Robert 'Bob' Anderson
BURLEY — St. Robert 'Bob' Anderson, 87, of Burley, died Friday, Dec. 1, 1995, near his home in Burley in an automobile/pedestrian accident.

Flowers may be sent to White Mortuary, but in lieu of flowers, the family suggests that memorial contributions may be sent to the Southern Idaho Regional Cancer Center, P.O. Box 405, Twin Falls ID 83303 where donations will be used to further cancer research.

He was active in 4-H for many years. He was a member of the First Christian Church and the Lucerne Grange. The love of his family, farming, and animals will be among our cherished memories.

Bob lived his entire adult life in the Burley area. He worked for the Idaho Department of Highways. He later worked for the Amalgamated Sugar Company, starting on the maintenance crew, retiring as a fieldman in 1973. He owned a small road grader and was often seen working farm roads, ditches and piling grounds throughout the Magic Valley area. He was well-known for his years as a volunteer fireman and member of the Cassia County Mounted Sheriff's posse.

Archie Van Hoosen
Archie Van Hoosen, 94, of Kimberly, died Saturday, Dec. 2, 1995, at the Mountain View Care Center in Kimberly.

Memorials are suggested to Glacioso Storage Foundation, research of a genetic liver disease, inherited by a great-grandson.

Bob is survived by his sweet heart, Dora, of 66 years. A loving family man, he is also survived by his three daughters; Mrs. Dallas Barbara Morgan of Boise; Mrs. Neal (Kenna) Wyatt of Burley; and Mrs. Dan (Tauna) Myers of Corrales, N.M.; a brother, Con Anderson and wife, Lucy of Burley; two sisters, Mrs. John (Beth) Prestidge of Salt Lake City, Utah, and Edna Cox of San Jose, Calif.; eight grandchildren; one grandchild, Crate Morgan; Alison Rydahl, Candace Kling, Robyn Jones and Robert Root. He is also survived by 24 great-grandchildren; and two great-great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his parents and 10 brothers and sisters.

He was born in Cozad, Neb., on March 1, 1901, to the late Elmer and Amy Van Hoosen. On Nov. 19, 1925, he married Bessie Nielsen in Grand Island, Neb. He enjoyed driving his cat in the Twin Falls area for many years and loved having his family visit him.

Reecie C. Evans
BUHL — Reecie C. Evans, 80, of Buhl, died Sunday, Dec. 3, 1995, at the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in Twin Falls.

She was born Dec. 14, 1914, in Vega, Texas, the daughter of John and Annie Finner. She married Angus Evans in Tees, N.M. Mrs. Evans was a member of the Methodist Church and the Order of Eastern Star. She was an artist and avid sportsman and musician, and loved to play bridge.

Utah native wins national rodeo crown

LAS VEGAS (AP) — A Utah State University senior beat 37 other women to win the 1996 Miss Rodeo America crown.

Tanya McKinnon, who is studying to become a large animal veterinarian, was crowned during weekend ceremonies at the Flamingo Hilton hotel.

The 21-year-old from Randolph, Utah, plans to put her studies on hold for a year while she travels to promote professional rodeo.

"I'm really looking forward to it," McKinnon said. "I love travel."

The title is not the first for McKinnon, who was crowned the 1992 High School Rodeo Queen while attending Rich High School in Randolph.

McKinnon grew up on a cattle ranch in northeast Utah, and still spends a lot of time on her family's 250-acre cattle farm.

Miss South Dakota Victoria French was second, while Miss Idaho Laura Hildreth was third in Saturday's contest, which coincided with the National Finals Rodeo.

Motor loses power, strands men on boat

AMERICAN FALLS (AP) — Two young men were cold and wet but triumphant after spending 24 hours stuck in a boat they were test driving on American Falls Reservoir.

First the motor on the 17-foot craft cut out and neither Brett Phelps of American Falls nor Lee Corbridge of Aberdeen could restart it. Then they noticed water coming in through a hole in the stern.

Phelps, 37, and Corbridge, 38, took turns bailing with small plastic cups for hours by the last people who used the boat, and Corbridge plugged the hole with rags.

The men tried to sleep in the bow Saturday night, but without much luck.

"We were or less just laid there and prayed," Phelps said Sunday. "We're usually not the praying type, but we found the time."

The temperature dropped to 18 degrees, and coversalls both men were wearing were wet from bailing.

Wendell volunteer group seeks help
WENDELL - Volunteering for Wendell Christmas Baskets, an organization that helps the needy, has been the highlight of Christmas for workers in a vast past and can be so once again.
 "It's an eye-opener for people," said Ethel German, organizer of the charity. "It made their Christmas to help the less fortunate."
 The group provides donated food, money and toys for the community's needy. The organizational meeting will be at the high school commons at 4 p.m. Wednesday.
 Those who know of a needy family are asked to contact German at 336-2100 on weekdays between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Donations must be brought to the high school office by Dec. 20. She asked that donations not be wrapped so that workers can categorize items before wrapping. Money can be sent to Wendell Christmas Baskets, PO Box 50, Wendell, ID 83355.

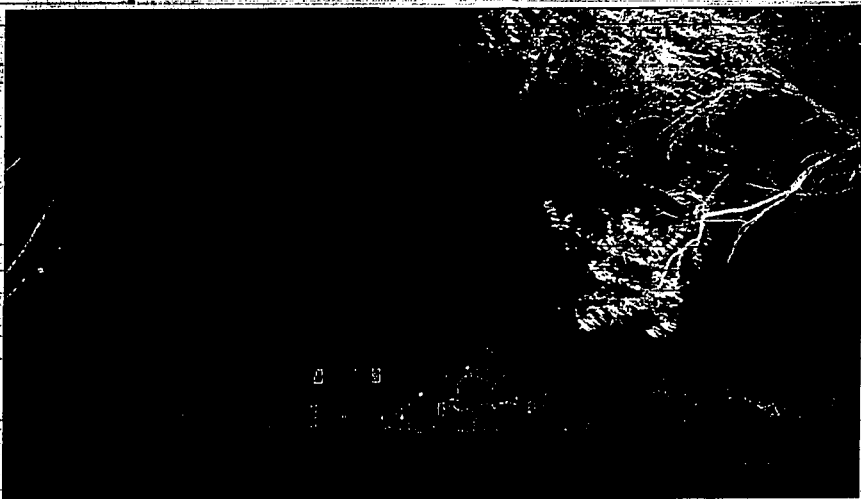

Hazelton man dies in horse accident
HAZELTON - A local man was killed Saturday when he was thrown from a horse.
 Warren Hart, 65, was riding a young horse near Hazelton when something apparently spooked the animal and it threw Hart, said Detective Gerald Brant of the Jerome County Sheriff's Department.
 Hart was going to help a friend move cattle, Brant said. He was dead at the scene of the accident.

Burglars take goods from King's BUHL - Burglars smashed in the glass front door of the King's store sometime Friday night and made off with more than $4,000 in merchandise, police say.
 Police were still investigating the incident and had no suspects Saturday, said Lt. Richard Floyd of the Buhl Police Department. The burglary could have occurred anytime between 10 p.m. Friday and 8 a.m. Saturday, he said.
 At least two people were involved and left behind small footprints, Floyd said. King's was missing stereo systems, BB guns, canisters, film, toys and other small items, he said. A safe had been opened, but apparently nothing was taken from it.

Crime Prevention group to meet
TWIN FALLS - The Twin Falls Crime Prevention Association will meet at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the classroom at the Twin Falls Police Department. Discussion will focus on various topics, including the Neighborhood Watch program, crime prevention seminars, the mall police station and other future activities. An election of officers will be held. The association is open to anyone living or working in the city or county of Twin Falls.
 For more information, call the crime prevention offices at the police department at 736-1334 or the sheriff's department at 736-4040.

Twin Falls, Buhl win drama honors
TWIN FALLS - Twin Falls and Buhl high schools finished second in their respective divisions at the Idaho State High School Drama Competition held over the weekend at Twin Falls High.
 Twin Falls took second to Boise High School in the "A" division. Boise's Capital High was third.
 In the smaller-school division, Buhl finished second to Sugar-Salem High School. Boise's Bishop Kelly High School took third place.
 Twin Falls' Dawn Johnson, Vanessa Peterson and Jason Hoppeck won first place in the serious ensemble competition, while Buhl's Nick Weaver, Joe Freeman and Thomas Howell were champions in humorous ensemble acting.
 Buhl also got a second-place finish from Lisa Niedermeyer in serious original acting and from Jennifer Rose in humorous solo acting.
 Oscar Melendez of Twin Falls was the runner-up in solo audition and Randy Starlin and Riekie Palmer of Twin Falls finished second in ensemble pantomime.
 Palmer also won a third place in solo pantomime, and Twin Falls' Christine Velasquez finished third in makeup.
 Buhl's Howell took third-place honors in solo audition, and Diana Peterson, Larry Avelar, Kelly Franson, Courtney Huddleston and Audrey Campbell finished third in serious original acting.
 Forty-three schools from throughout Idaho participated in the two-day event, sponsored by the Idaho High School Activities Association.

2 hospitals compete for ambulance contract

By Jennifer Bunch
 Times-News writer

BURLEY - The Mini-Cassia area's two hospitals have made bids to provide Cassia County with ambulance service.
 The bids were opened Monday during the Cassia County commissioners' regular meeting. Commissioners are scheduled to decide Dec. 18.
 Cassia Regional Medical Center's parent company, Utah-based Intermountain Health Care, offered service for $92,500 per year for the first two years and $96,200 per year for the second two years.
 Minidoka Memorial Hospital placed a joint bid with Bannock Regional Medical Center in Pocatello to provide ambulance service for $96,000 a year for four years.
 Commissioners will evaluate each proposal based on a 100-point system, according to Prosecuting Attorney Stephen Bywater. The bidders will be awarded points based on how they meet the requirements outlined by the county, he said.
 Randy Holm, administrator of Minidoka Memorial Hospital, explained in a telephone interview Monday that Minidoka Memorial joined a public hospital cooperative over the summer that includes Bannock Regional Medical Center and other public hospitals in care in outlying areas," he said.

 Kent Searle, a local volunteer emergency medical provider who plays a key role in coordinating the county's rural volunteer provider network, said volunteers rely each year on donations and sometimes receive grant money to keep their units operating. The county provides funds to purchase radio equipment, he said.
 But a countywide district would ensure that units had money for expenses such as insurance and equipment maintenance, as well as to purchase medical equipment and fuel, Searle said. A unit can operate on $3,000 a year, he said.
 "This might be one way, without spending a lot of money, to enhance the 911 system in the county," he said.

Truman Bradley, who filed a lawsuit against Cassia County and Intermountain Health Care last year with Burley lawyer Donald Chisholm, said by telephone Monday he had hoped a private company would provide the ambulance service.
 "What I was hoping would happen was the county would not have to spend any money at all," Bradley said.
 The ruling on the lawsuit declared void Cassia County's financial relationship with Intermountain Health Care in its new, privately owned hospital. Cassia County had agreed to give IHC $100,000 annually to purchase hospital equipment in exchange for ambulance service, according to former county commissioners.
 As a result of the lawsuit, the county has put the ambulance service up for bid.
 Before building Cassia Regional, IHC had contracted with the county to operate the county-owned Cassia Memorial Hospital, which now is closed.

Southeast Idaho.
 Minidoka Memorial would act as the primary service provider if it and Bannock are awarded the contract, Holm said. Bannock would provide air ambulance service and also help with community educational programs the county is requiring, Holm said.
 The county is requiring the ambulance service provider to offer training for volunteer emergency medical teams in Cassia County as well as public CPR and first aid classes, Holm said.
 In the IHC proposal, IHC itself would supply all the services required by the county.

Glenns Ferry plans Christmas activities

By Melanie Brown
 Times-News correspondent

GLENN'S FERRY - Glenns Ferry is gearing up for the holiday season with activities for young and old alike.
 The season kicks off with hayrides and the annual lighting of the community Christmas tree Wednesday. Anyone interested in a hayride should meet at 5 p.m. at the Glenns Ferry School parking lot. Bring your best singing-voice and carol with the other hayriders as the wagons roll down First Avenue to the site of the community Christmas tree for the lighting at around 5:15 p.m. Immediately following the tree lighting will be a dance at the Opera Theater, which will end at 6:30 p.m.

 Under the direction of Dorothy Nichols and accompanied by Joan Strum, the Community Choir will present its annual Christmas concert at 3 p.m. Dec. 17 at the Opera Theater.
 The middle/high school's annual Christmas concert will be held at 7 p.m. Dec. 20 in the multipurpose room at the middle school.
 Elementary school students will present a concert at 9:30 a.m. Dec. 22 that will consist of skits and songs and a performance by the fifth-grade band.
 The Opera Theater's fall drama students will perform "The Best Christmas Ever," a modern adaptation of Dickens' "A Christmas Carol," at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 22 at the Opera Theater.
 All events are open to the public and admission is free.

 them stay away from drugs and experimentation," Homer said.
 Turner says schools are being asked to do more and more each year in the way of social services and raising the nation's kids.
 "I not sure if I'm really comfortable with that, but I'm willing to do it if it benefits the kids," Turner said.
 The Blaine County School District is gearing up for yet another middle school transition.
 Right now the middle school houses 406 seventh- and eighth-grade students. Next fall, when the new middle school building is completed, 200 sixth graders will join the ranks.
 Turner looks forward to the excitement of the new building and the expansion of his family.

 All in all, Turner is proud of the award not only for himself, but for its reflection on the school district.
 Raised in Wendell and educated at the University of Idaho and the College of Idaho, Turner has taught in Blaine County since 1967 and considers himself a product of the community.
 "I think this (award) speaks well of Blaine County," he says.
 He does have one suggestion for a bumper sticker which says, "Sun Valley Isn't Idaho."
 "I would tend to add 'Thank God' to the bottom of that bumper sticker. I think we take care of ourselves up here, and (the award) is a good sign which shows people we do some things up here that are good for our kids."

Black scientists' inventions enrich the lives of everyone

DEAR ABBY: The column you published with the article by the late Sam Levenson about the contributions to medical science made by Jewish people set me to thinking. Perhaps it's time to remind your readers about the preeminent contributions made by African-American scientists.

It is, indeed, a free world. You don't have to like black Americans, but if you don't, I suggest you boycott blood plasma because the ways of preserving it were discovered by Dr. Charles Drew. You should also boycott the portable X-ray machine, truck refrigerator systems and the self-starting gasoline motor, invented by Frederick Jones; the control unit used in the pacemaker, chemical air filters, and many electronic devices used in radios, TVs and other electronic equipment, invented by Otis Boykin; the electric incubator, the automatic air brake and the telephone receiver, invented by Granville T. Woods; linoleum, fuel briquettes, peanut butter, synthetic rubber and synthetic marble; to name only a few of the discoveries and inventions of George Washington Carver; and practical incandescent lightbulb filaments, invented by Lewis Latimer. These are only the beginning.

Dear Abby
Abigail VanBuren

Yes, go on and boycott your air-conditioned cars, your long-distance and cellular phone calls, the subway and trolley cars. Refuse the gift-of-life-by-declining-to-accept blood-transfusions—and don't dare wear a gas mask because it, too, was invented by an African-American!

— Remain in the Dark Ages—Bury your head under that sheet. And—good riddance.

— ANNA WELDON, VAN NUYS, CALIF.

DEAR ANNA: Thanks for a thought-provoking letter. Many can learn from it.

DEAR ABBY: I didn't know whether to scream or cry when I read the letter you received from "His Mother," the woman whose 26-year-old professional son led to his friends about her academic and professional achievements, and then had the nerve to ask her to back up his lies when she came to visit. My heart goes out to that lady.

My mother was widowed when my sister and I were very young, long before single motherhood was common (1975 to be exact). Mom had only a high school education, but she managed to raise us and inspire us to get a higher education. She taught us tenacity and the value of a good work ethic. She did go to college—when I was almost out of school myself. I couldn't be more proud of her accomplishments if she were a CEO.

Today, I am a 24-year-old professional, but I would never dream of presenting my mother as anything other than a woman who overcame great odds and put forth her best in raising two children in a society that was not always supportive.

The son who felt he had to pump up his mother's accomplishments should think about how different his life might have been if she had been the woman he told his friends she was. I have seen too many career people (men and women) neglect their families to climb one more rung on the corporate ladder.

Please use my name; Mom and I have nothing to hide.

— D. CURTIS WILKINSON, SAN FRANCISCO

CSI to honor volleyball team with special night

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho Athletic Department and the CSI Golden Eagle Boosters will sponsor a volleyball appreciation night to honor the school's volleyball team, which won its third consecutive national title last month.

The event will be Dec. 7 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Magic Valley Mall in the food court area.

Fans will have the opportunity to meet the three-time national champions.

There will be posters, programs and T-shirts available for autographs and collectibles. The volleyball team posted a 63-0 record this year and has won 103 consecutive matches. Both teams set new national records.

Recreation district offers boys basketball for Jerome

JEROME — The Jerome recreation district will be offering several basketball programs.

A boys' youth and little league basketball program starts Jan. 6. All boys in grades 5th-9th living in the recreation district in Jerome, are invited to play. The fee is $10 a player and includes a T-shirt. There will be a girls' and boys' pee wee basketball league, specifically designed for 2nd-4th graders. The girls' practices and games will begin Jan. 4 and boys' practices and games will begin Jan. 6. Both will run for six sessions. The cost is $10 a player and includes a T-shirt.

The last basketball program being offered at the recreation district is boys' high school 3-on-3 basketball. Boys in grades 10th-12th, who live in or attend school in Jerome, are welcome. Games start Jan. 10 and run for six weeks. To register or for more information contact the Jerome Recreation District at 324-3389.

Lions victory opens playoff hopes

The Associated Press

PONTIAC, Mich. — The Detroit Lions can still think playoffs. With Scott Mitchell passing for three touchdowns Monday night, the Lions won their fourth straight game, a 27-7 victory over the Chicago Bears.

Lions coach Wayne Fontes was given a win-or-else ultimatum by club owner William Clay Ford four games ago. Now Detroit, playing with great confidence, is 7-6 and still alive, with a soft schedule ahead.

The victory also gave the Lions their first season sweep over Chicago (7-5) since 1983. The Bears, who have lost four of their last five games, haven't won a road game in December since 1987.

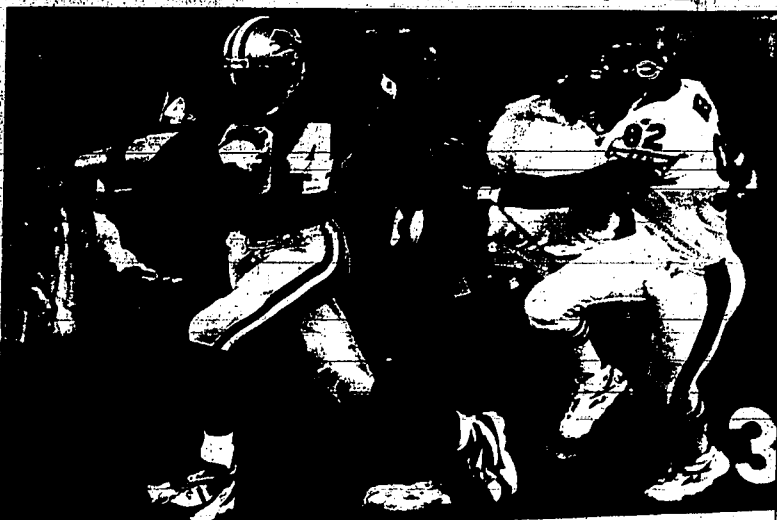

Detroit is 24-13 under Fontes in games played on or after Thanksgiving. Fontes is 19-6 in the final four games of the season.

Herman Moore, who scored the Lions' first touchdown, set a club record with 14 catches for a career-high 183 yards, breaking the team mark of 12 in a game shared by three others. Moore has 101 catches for the season.

The high-powered show by the NFL's top-rated offense was expected. But the Lions' defense also stepped up against the Bears, who went into the game with the league's No. 6 offense. Erik Kramer, who had been sacked only eight times in the Bears' first 12 games, was sacked four times by Detroit.

The Lions rolled up 419 yards while holding Chicago to 185 yards.

Kramer completed 21 of 33 for 140 yards. That gave him 2,217 yards for the season, breaking Bill Wade's 1962 club record. But by failing to throw a touchdown, Kramer was still two short of Sid Luckman's single-season club record of 28 in 1943.

Detroit Lions wide receiver Herman Moore (84) scampers down the sideline away from Chicago Bears' Barry Minter (82) for a first quarter touchdown Monday, leading the way to the Lions' 27-7 win.

Mitchell, who completed 26 of 38 passes for 320 yards, hooked up with Moore for a 374-yard touchdown, tossed a 4-yard of 26 touchdown passes. Mitchell, who completed 26 of 38 passes for 320 yards, hooked up with Moore for a 46-yard touchdown, tossed a 4-yard touchdown strike to Johnnie Morton and threw a swing pass that Barry Sanders turned into a 9-yard touchdown and a 21-0 halftime lead.

Smith retakes top rodeo spot

Jerome wrestler gets 3rd round boosted with 4.1 second time

The Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — Steer wrestler Mike Smith of Jerome reclaimed the lead in the world standings Sunday at the $3 million National Finals Rodeo. He downed his steer in 4.1 seconds to take the third round. Smith earned $12,670 for the win, giving him $79,119 in 1995.

Adam Carrillo, 16th in the Crown Royal world bull riding standings just three days ago, moved up to No. 2 Sunday night thanks to an 83-point ride aboard Harry Vold Rodeo Co.'s bull Sports Machine.

Carrillo won the third round of bull riding, topping Scott Breeding of Edgar, Mont., by one point. He earned $11,035 for the ride and pushed his season earnings to $75,276.

He trails standing leader Jerome Davis by just $700. No contestant from outside the top 15 has ever gone on to win a world championship. Only the top 15 contestants in rodeo events qualify for the prestigious rodeo.

The NFR is professional rodeo's most celebrated event. This year, 126 contestants gathered to compete for a handful of world titles.

In other events, bareback rider Clint Corey scored 83 points on Sankey Rodeo Co.'s Copenhagen William to win the third round and a check for $11,035. More importantly, perhaps, Corey vaulted ahead of three-time world champion Marvin Garrett for the standings. Each earned $9,698.

Garrett scored 68 points on 1994 PRCA bareback horse of the year Lonesome Me Skool of the Calgary Stampede. Despite the horse's credentials, Corey believes he drew the better horse.

Glen O'Neill of Australia, who won the second round of saddle bronc riding Saturday night with a 79-point ride, followed it up with an 80-point effort aboard Harry Vold Rodeo Co.'s Molly Brown last night.

O'Neill tied with Derek Clark of Colcord, Okla., to mark the rounder.

Shawn McMullan of Iran, Texas, roped his calf in 8.9 seconds to win the round and move into second place in the world calf roping standings. McMullan trails standings leader and 1991 world calf roping titlist Fred Whitefield of Hockley, Texas, by $14,869. Joe Beaver, a five-time world calf roping champion, slipped to third in the world standings. Team ropers Rube Woolsey of Dewey, Ariz., and Brock Harris of Gillette, Wyo., snubbed for their first paycheck of the NFR by roping their steer in 4.7 seconds. Woolsey and Harris won the round by one-tenth of a second, and each earned a check worth $7,920.

Bull rider Tuff Hedeman of Morgan Hill, Texas, competes during the third round of the National Finals Rodeo Sunday night in Las Vegas. Hedeman, who was ranked second in the world championship standings, scored a 71 and did not place in the round.

NBA referees vote to return to work

The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Locked-out NBA referees voted Monday night to go back to work and they could be on court officiating games this week.

They approved the owners' final contract offer 27-26 following a 4½-hour meeting.

NBA officials have been handling NBA games since the lockout began Oct. 1 amid complaints from players that they sometimes don't have games under control.

The NBA referees voted for the contract on the day the replacement crews were expanded from two to three officials. "Not everybody was totally pleased with the deal but the rank and file spoke," said Fred Slaughter, the attorney representing the officials.

"I'm in a majority. As soon as I can get hold of NBA officials, I think we will have a deal."

Slaughter said there were several main issues, including a pension plan.

"We feel this deal is OK for us now," he said.

Veteran official Mike Mathis, who was on the committee negotiating with the owners, said his group was split.

"You could say it was a good-news, bad-news situation if you want to," Mathis said. "We're all happy to be going back to work, but there are some veteran officials who feel this deal wasn't good for them. Obviously, there are some questions about pension and severance money we have to discuss."

Under the five-year agreement, first-year referees would make $75,000 this year and $99,000 in the final year of the deal. Veteran officials would be paid $211,000 this year and $278,000 in the final year.

The league has claimed the raises would make NBA official the highest paid in sports, but the referees said they would not.

"With our new deal we feel we'll be close to baseball but still well below where hockey officials are at. We'll never catch hockey officials," said Mihalak. Fifty-three of the 55 referees voted, with Jake O'Donnell and Jack Madden the absentees because of health reasons.

Paul Mihalak, a 26-year veteran official, said the absence of those two could have swung the outcome.

"This could have gone the other way," he said. "But we'll live with it."

Mathis said the referees could be working within a few days.

"All our guys need to take physicals in New Jersey," he said. "After they pass the stress test and physicals and a short briefing on the rules they should be ready to go."

Mathis said it does not appear that the referees will get retroactive pay for the games missed since the lockout began.

"There is nothing to indicate we will receive pay for the time we missed. Nobody walking out on this room feels that we will," he said.

Mihalak said the pension plan is a concern.

Per-game fee could boost softball costs

By Brad Bowlin Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — Players in the city men's softball league may bear the brunt of a fee increase designed to make the program pay its own way.

A new proposal suggested at Monday's meeting of the City Parks and Recreation Commission would charge softball players based on the number of games-on-their-team's schedule.

Men's league officials estimate the fee for city residents may climb from the current $40 to $65, while non-residents could pay $75, up from $45, to play next summer under the new proposal by coed league President Pat Labrum.

The volunteer panel is trying to agree on a proposal for the City Council, which must approve any fee increase. The commission put off a final decision until members can discuss the per-game-proposal with league officials.

Fees for players in the church, women's and coed leagues also would rise, but not as dramatically, under the per-game format.

"We'll have a lot less teams," predicted Twin Falls Men's Softball Association Treasurer Cory Ochsen. "As far as bringing in more money, I think the city's shooting themselves in the foot that way."

Ochsen, who was not at Monday's meeting, said the men's league could lose 20 percent of its teams if the fee goes up $25-$35 per player.

The city is considering raising fees for the 1,500-plus softball players for three reasons.

• The program currently pays only 80 percent of its cost to the city, with approximately $5,700 per year coming from tax dollars.

• Increasing maintenance and improvement costs won't be met without hiking fees.

• Some commission members would like to see the evening adult softball program removed from its home at Harmon Park and Frontier Field to allow youth baseball and softball programs — currently held during the days — to be held in the evenings.

Representatives from all the leagues appeared to agree on a modest increase of $7 for city residents and $12 for non-residents at a meeting last week. But Labrum pointed out Monday that the 50-team coed league paid the city nearly $5,000 more for using the parks last summer than the 30-team men's league, even though the leagues played almost the same number of games.

Hurt Haley says he is done with football Scores and stats

Dallas Morning News

IRVING, Texas. — Four-time Super Bowl winner Charles Haley said he has decided to retire from the Cowboys after medical tests Monday indicated he needs surgery to repair another herniated disk in his lower back. Haley careered over "on through" Haley, 31, told the Dallas Morning News. "I'm not depressed because I've had a good career and I did it my way."

Coach Barry Switzer said Haley complained of intolerable back pain when they met in the equipment room on Sunday's loss to Washington. The teary-eyed Haley reluctantly informed Switzer he could not continue.

Haley met with Switzer and Cowboys owner Jerry Jones on Monday after undergoing a magnetic resonance imaging test that confirmed damage to another disk. Haley is scheduled to go to Los Angeles this week to have the Cowboys' diagnosis confirmed with Dr. Robert Watkins, the surgeon who repaired a similar problem in Haley's back during the 1994 off-season.

Haley will charge $1.5 million to the Cowboys' salary cap in 1996 whether he plays another day. That is because of the $3 million signing bonus Jones paid him under terms of the four-year, $27 million contract the Cowboys provided after Haley postponed retirement plans.

"The indications I get from Charles is that he is in such pain and taking such a tremendous amount of pain-killing medication, that it doesn't surprise me he is discouraged about his future," said Jones. "But he is such a great player that we will be very patient with this. But one should question him thinking about retiring with the kind of pain he's been playing with."

"We would have to be in better physical condition than we are right now, no question," Haley, responsible for 10% of the Cowboys' 28 sacks this season, will be replaced with another player Hurvin McCormack and former first-round draft choice Shante Carver.

Celtics cool off heat in 2 OT

BOSTON (AP) — Doc Brown's lineup with 2:32 to play in the second overtime over Miami in the season opener for good and Rik Fox's two free throws with 59 seconds left were the deciding points in the Celtics' 121-120 victory over Miami that ended the Heat's five-game winning streak.

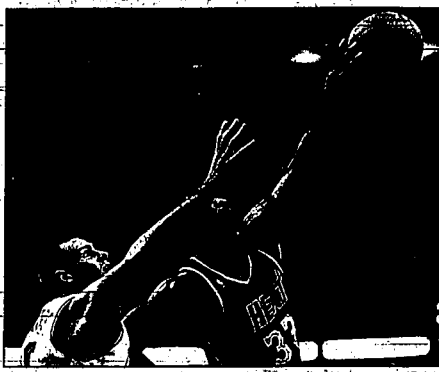

Alonzo Mourning had 36 points and 14 rebounds for the Heat in the game that was marred by a second-quarter fight between Boston's Perviz, Ellison and Miami's Kurt Thomas that had police and security personnel separating players and keeping fans off the court.

Dino Radja had 27 points for Boston, which snapped a two-game losing streak, while Brown had 20.

Billy Owens of the Heat was forced to leave the game with a 2.2 left in the first quarter after a collision with Boston's Todd Day. Team officials said Owens, the Heat's second-leading scorer at 17.1 per game, appeared to have a separated right shoulder and would be examined Tuesday.

Bimbo Collins' 3-pointer with 2:58 left in the second overtime brought Miami into a 117-117 tie. Brown's layup 26 seconds later gave the Heat a lead they never relinquished.

in the second quarter and were ejected. Ellison had a six-inch laceration inside his mouth that required two stitches, according to Celtics team doctor Arnold Scheller. Day's 3-pointer gave Boston a 109-106 lead 30 seconds into the first overtime, but Miami went on a 7-0 run, with Mourning scoring five points; to make a 113-109 lead with 1:15 left. Eric Williams' two free throws tied it with 27 seconds left to send it into the second overtime.

Nuggets 85, Pistons 82

DENVER — Terry Mills shot from beyond half court just after the buzzer was ruled no basket, and the Detroit Pistons remained winless on the road with an 85-82 loss to the Denver Nuggets Monday night.

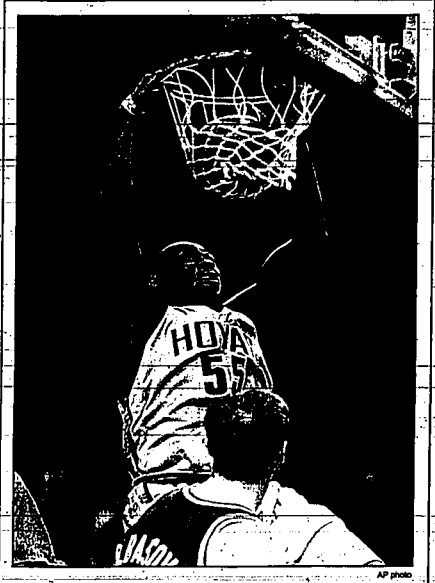

The Pistons, who fell 11 0-6 on the road, had two chances to tie the game in the closing seconds but fell short both times. Joe Dumars missed a leaping jumper with 2.2 seconds left, and Mills banked in a 50-footer after a missed free throw, but he did not release the ball before the buzzer.

The Nuggets, playing without leading scorer Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf, got big contributions from Bryant Stith and Dikembe Mutombo.

Stith scored 22 points and hit four decisive free throws down the stretch, and Mutombo followed up his triple-double Saturday with 15 points, nine rebounds and nine blocked shots.

Grant Hill had 23 points and Allan Houston added 21 to lead the Pistons, who hit 30 of 33 free throws to make up for 37 percent shooting.

The Nuggets, who have won five of their last six after an 0-6 start, weren't much better from the field, shooting just 39 percent.

Jayhawks knock Villanova from No. 1 post

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Kansas coach Roy Williams loves to fall back on those Carolina folk sayings when things are going well.

"Aw shucks. Gosh darn. These rankings don't mean a danged thing."

And he is right that they don't see this early in the season.

But the Jayhawks have played a brutal early season schedule and have come out on top. Ranked No. 1 in the preseason poll, they moved to No. 1 Monday after beating Utah, Virginia and UCLA while preseason favorite Kentucky was beaten by Massachusetts.

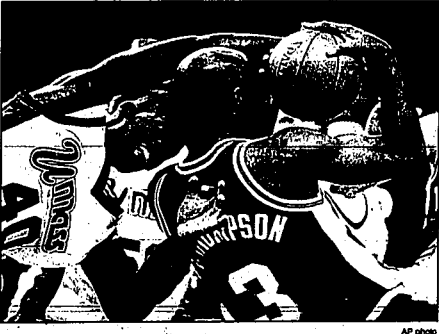

"I don't think there is that big of a difference between No. 1 and No. 2," Williams said Monday. "I will not approach practice any differently, and our kids will not approach practice any differently. It set us up in a difficult position. All we've talked about is these first three games."

"I set us up for a little bit of a let-down."

The Jayhawks lost the night they became a No. 1 team, and they lost two seasons. They don't play again until Thursday at Rice and a letdown would be a major surprise.

The nationwide media panel gave the Jayhawks (3-0) 53 first-place votes and 1,000 second-place votes, runner-up Villanova (5-0), which had four No. 1 votes and 1,519 points.

Massachusetts (3-0), which beat

Massachusetts' Ted Cottrell (40) and Florida's Brian Thompson (3) battle for the rebound Sunday in Landover.

Kentucky and Maryland this week, jumped from fifth to third. The Minutemen, who have beaten a top-ranked team each of the last three seasons, had four first-place votes and 1,476 points, 38 more than Arizona (5-0), which had two first-place votes and remained fourth.

Kentucky (2-1) dropped to fifth and the rest of the Top Ten remained the same: Georgetown, Memphis, Mississippi State, Connecticut and Wake Forest.

Missouri led the Second Ten and was followed by Iowa; North Carolina, Utah, Virginia, Georgia Tech, Cincinnati, Duke, Virginia Tech and Maryland.

Illinois, the week's other newcomer, was 21st and was followed by Michigan, Louisville, Stanford and Santa Clara.

Kansas has the experienced leadership of point guard Jaquie Vaughn and powerful inside bangers Scot Pollard and Raef LaFrentz.

Williams likes to play a lot of defense, and he is not afraid to throw into the mix, including freshmen Ryan Robertson, T.J. Pugh and Paul Pierce.

"Hopefully, our seniors and juniors who have been through it before will tell everyone to believe in the coach," Williams said. "It is a difficult game, and one that if we're not ready to play, it's a loss."

A gritty performance Saturday against UCLA in which the Jayhawks turned a 19-point second-half deficit into a 15-point victory may have proved the mettle of this team.

That loss knocked the Bruins, the defending national champions, from the rankings. The other team to fall from the Top 25 was Arkansas, the team UCLA beat in last season's title game. The Razorbacks, who were 25th, had rebounded the rankings last week, but lost to Michigan State in the Great Eight.

Santa Clara is ranked for the first time since Dec. 18, 1973. The other new team to poll this week was Illinois, which snapped Duke's 95-game home winning streak over non-conference opponents, a run which lasted over 12 years.

No. 14 Utah bites Bulldogs, 86-50

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Led by Keith Van Horn's 17 points, No. 14 Utah shot 58 percent en route to an 86-50 victory over Drake Monday night.

Men's college basketball

Utah (3-1) took an 18-2 lead, the last two coming on a Mark Rydych to Ben Melmeth alley-oop with 1:25 until half time. Van Horn had six of the early points on two dunks and an eight-foot jumper.

Drake (2-2) never came closer than 14 points the rest of the way.

Ken Maxey scored six points in a 10-5 run to make it 31-17, but the Bulldogs were down 42-23 at halftime. The Utes shot 65 percent in the opening half.

No. 6 Georgetown 83, Rutgers 52

LANDOVER, Md. — This time, Allen Iverson waited until the game was well in hand before he started auditioning for highlight films.

With some John Thompson-style discipline restored to Iverson and his Georgetown teammates kept their dunks simple and most of their moves under control as the sixth-ranked Hoyas pulled away to an 83-52 victory over Rutgers on Monday night.

But the crowd that came to ooh and aah didn't have to wait long. Georgetown's (6-1; 2-0 Big East) had the game won before the first half was over, and Iverson celebrated with a flying one-hander to make it 45-20 with 1:30 left in the first half. Iverson had 18 of his 21 points in the first half. Billy Gilligan had 17 points to lead Rutgers (2-2, 1-1).

No. 18 Duke 84, S. Carolina St. 64

DURHAM, N.C. — Greg Newton scored 21 points and Jeff Capel added 19 as No. 18 Duke shook off a sluggish start and ran away to an 84-64 victory over South Carolina State on Monday night.

Chris Collins added 18 points for the Blue Devils (5-1), who rebounded from a 75-65 loss to Illinois that snapped their non-Atlantic Coast Conference home-winning streak at 95 games. They did it against a team which lacked the depth to stay with them throughout the game, but nonetheless made it interesting for 20 minutes.

No. 21 Illinois 82, Kansas St. 56

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Jerry Hester scored 16 points as No. 21 Illinois, fresh off the weekend upset at Duke, overwhelmed Kansas State 82-56 Monday night.

The Illinois (4-0) used accurate outside shooting — 46 percent from the field, 48 from 3-point range — and aggressive full-court pressure to hold a double-digit lead throughout most of the game. The closest the Wildcats (3-1) got in the second half was 50-35 with 14:38 to go on a jumper by Anton Hubert.

A 3-pointer by Hester with 4:47 left gave Illinois its second 25-point lead, 77-52 and coach Lou Henson cleared the bench in the final minutes. The Wildcats managed only one field goal over the final four minutes and two free throws from Aaron Swartzendruber with 1 seconds remaining.

Tennessee moves to No. 2 in women's poll

The Associated Press

Tennessee leaped past Connecticut to the No. 2 spot Monday, and Louisiana Tech remained entrenched at No. 1 in The Associated Press women's basketball poll.

An impressive showing at the Kona Basketball Classic in Hawaii triggered Tennessee's well-timed surge. In the third week, routed Alabama-Birmingham in the first round, then beat two Top 25 teams — Purdue and Penn State — to win the championship.

Those victories capped a 4-0 week for Tennessee, which beat then-No. 10 Texas Tech 81-44 before leaving for Hawaii.

They weren't enough to get coach Pat Summitt's team to the top, however. Louisiana Tech received 34 of the 35 first-place votes from a national media panel to remain No. 1 for the third straight week. Tennessee got the five other votes for first.

Connecticut slipped to third despite beating two Top 25 teams during the weekend. Vanderbilt and Virginia remained Nos. 4 and 5.

Louisiana Tech had 969 points in the voting, Tennessee 915 and Connecticut 907.

While 13 teams among the Top 25 lost at least once in the past week, all but two were beaten by other ranked teams. That produced a lot of shuffling in the poll but no newcomers.

Georgia plummeted six spots to 12th after losing big at Virginia and was replaced at No. 6 by Penn State, which climbed six places. Despite returning all five starters from a Final Four team, Georgia is only 2-2. The Lady Bulldogs were beaten at Virginia 94-65 and also have lost to No. 23 Old Dominion.

Arkansas moved up two places to seventh and was followed by Colorado, Stanford and Purdue. Colorado was unchanged from last week. Stanford climbed two spots, and Purdue fell three places.

Texas Tech led the Second Ten and was followed by Georgia, Iowa, North Carolina State, Oregon State, Kansas, Duke, Wisconsin, Texas A&M and Alabama. The final five were Mississippi, DePaul, Old Dominion, Western Kentucky and North Carolina.

DePaul was the only other member of the Top 25 falling to an unranked team, losing to Auburn 72-62.

Louisiana Tech (5-0) did nothing to tarnish its No. 1 ranking, beating South Carolina 92-29 and earning a 76.3 victory over a Massachusetts team that had upset Stanford.

Tennessee, the national runner-up last season, has rolled on despite the loss of All-Americans Nikita McCarty and Dana Johnson. One reason has been the play of freshman Chamique Holdclaw, who had 27 points and 11 rebounds in an 81-63 victory over Purdue and 16 points in a 79-67 victory over Pat State.

After the Purdue game, Summitt said that at times Holdclaw was a "woman among girls." Holdclaw was the most valuable player in the Kona tournament.

Connecticut fell one place despite beating North Carolina State and Alabama to win a tournament at Richmond, Va.

Contract negotiations make everyone nervous

By Filip Bondy
New York Daily News

Commentary

The unsigned contract is sitting on an attorney's desk somewhere, another sports timebomb in a city that doesn't really want to hear about these things anymore.

Dave Checketts has offered Rangers president/GM Neil Smith a five-year extension, and word in the corridors is that it is worth from about $500,000 to $650,000 per year. That isn't nearly enough, and the Garden's new corporate management better understand that.

It is a lot of money in the real world. It is not a lot of money in the distant planet system of pro sports. At least a handful of NHL general managers earn more, including non-Stanley Cup winners like Pat Quinn and Harry Sinden. "Already there are hard feelings. Smith confides to friends that he is worried his ally, Checketts, won't be able to squeeze much more from IT/Cubevision. He is worried he will have to find a better offer in 1997, when his five-year pact expires.

There will be other offers, for sure. Then there will be a mess.

The Rangers chose Smith over Mike Keenan in 1994. They can't afford to lose both of them.

Smith wants to stay in New York. He loves the sound of police sirens outside his office. Everybody knows that, which doesn't help his leverage a bit. "Maybe I've hurt my own bargaining position, but I've got to be who I am," said Smith, who is very uncomfortable talking about this. "It helped me in the long run." Of all the personnel directors in this town, only Smith has won a championship and is fielding a team having a successful season.

Lou Lamoriello arguably has accomplished as much with fewer resources, but he has had greater job security and less pressure.

Lamoriello is a part owner of the Devils. Smith always knew he could become the next Phil Esposito, run out of town after a few deals gone sour.

Since Smith came over from the Red Wings organization in 1989, his Rangers are 246-181-61. The Rangers have had one bad season, 1992-93, when they didn't make the playoffs. Smith's tired his friend, Roger Neilson.

The next year, Smith brought the Stanley Cup to New York for the first time in 54 years. Since that June day when Mark Messier hoisted the cup, the Garden hierarchy has turned over completely, except for Smith. Checketts and Ernie Grunfeld were promoted. Bob Gukowski was fired. Pat Riley and Keenan left. Paramount dumped the Garden, the Knicks and the Rangers.

Smith is still working at his old job, president and GM of the Rangers, for the same pay.

Unlike George Young with the Bruins, unlike the basketball GMs around New York, Smith has made the big deals and changed his way of thinking along with his sport.

When Russia swung open its bench to the NHL at the turn of the century, Smith was ready. Christer Rockstrom had been scouting for years throughout Europe. Smith already had established a relationship with team executives in Moscow, who welcomed the Rangers as pioneers, not strip-miners.

Ducks all wet: Rangers cruise to 5-1 victory

NEW YORK (AP) — Luc Robitaille and Adam Graves each had a goal and an assist Monday night and the New York Rangers extended their home unbeaten streak to 10 games with a 5-1 victory over the Mighty Ducks of Anaheim.

Robitaille and Mark Messier scored insurance goals 55 seconds apart late in the third period in the Rangers' first victory in four games against the Mighty Ducks.

Darren Langdon also scored for the Rangers, but took a stick to the face midway through the second period and did not return. Sergei Nemchinov also scored with 19 seconds left in the game. Mike Sillinger scored the Ducks' only goal.

Guy Hebert had defeated the Rangers in the three previous meetings, but Anaheim went with Mikhail Shlepenov in goal. Shlepenov faced 44 shots and kept Anaheim in the game until the flurry of goals in the third.

The Ducks, 24th in the league on the power play, had the man advantage for 5:39 spanning the second and third periods, but could not score. Ulf Samuelsson was called on a double-minor for high-sticking, but Rangers goalie Mike Richter was not challenged. Richter stopped 25 shots.

New York Rangers Ray Ferraro tries to regain control of the puck in last night's action against the Anaheim Mighty Ducks. Ferraro was beaten striking (6-0-1). And as they have done throughout the streak, they scored first.

Cowboys need wins to play at home

By Dave Goldberg
The Associated Press

The Dallas Cowboys have spent the season talking about how important it is to be at home in the playoffs rather than in San Francisco. But now, with three weeks left, the Cowboys find themselves in a must-win situation.

Washington, winners of just four games, beat the Cowboys 24-17 on Sunday, the first time since 1987 the Redskins have swept Dallas. The result leaves the Cowboys with three losses, one less than San Francisco.

But if the 49ers win their final three and Dallas loses one (possible in Philadelphia next Sunday), then San Francisco suddenly has the home-field advantage on Nov. 20 win at Texas Stadium on Nov. 12.

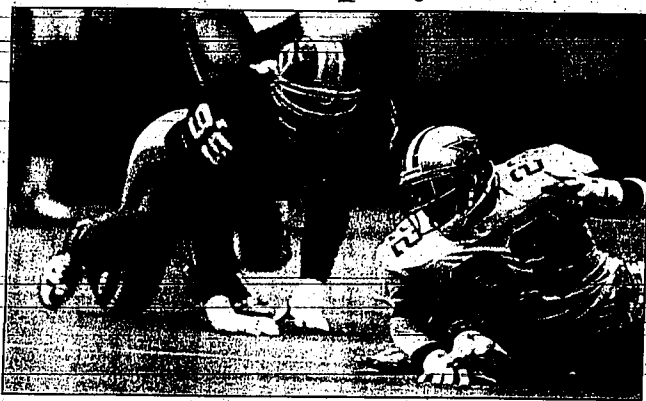

How did the Redskins beat the Cowboys?

"No one knows something," the Cowboys' Mark Tuinei said. "He knows how to play us. He taught Michael Irvin how to run, and showed Emmitt Smith where to run, and taught Troy how to throw. They play us differently than anybody else."

The Cowboys' schedule is a bit tougher - at Carolina, Minnesota at home, and at Atlanta. But the way the 49ers are playing, they should win them. Dallas' last three games are at Philadelphia, at home to the Giants and at Arizona.

If they don't win the last two, they don't deserve to be in the playoffs, let alone have home field.

But the Eagles will be angry after a loss in Seattle that may have happened because they were looking ahead to Dallas. Both Ray Rhodes (San Francisco's former defensive coordinator) and offensive coordinator (Green Bay) know the Cowboys well and Rodney Peete was Dallas' backup last year.

Dallas Cowboys' Emmet Smith (22) eyes the ball he fumbled in Sunday's game against Tony Woods (98) and the Washington Redskins in Irving, Texas. The Cowboys need to win their next three games to avoid playing the San Francisco 49ers away from home.

That's the formula for an upset. All this might have been different if Cowboys owner Jerry Jones had either kept Jimmy Johnson or divorced him immediately after the 1993 season. That might have allowed him to make Norv Turner his coach, although in truth Turner had committed to Washington during the playoffs.

So he settled for Barry Switzer, a change out of a job and pliable enough to allow Jones to play "Coach Jones." In each of the three losses this year, Switzer has been one step behind - to Turner twice and to Marc Trestman, San Francisco's offensive coordinator.

How serious can that get? Well, San Francisco has the tiebreaker. It also has a three-way tiebreaker if it ties Green Bay and Dallas at 12-4, although the Cowboys would still get a bye because they beat the Packers.

And if the Cowboys have a psychological block about the 49ers, playing them on the road won't be any easier. It might even be impossible.

"Why wouldn't we be focused?" a befuddled Switzer asked Sunday.

Maybe he should ask Jones.

COACHING DESPERATION: "We just had to find a way - any way - to stop the bleeding," Keith Byars, the Dolphins' fullback, said after Miami's 21-20 win over Atlanta.

Yes, there was an air of desperation to a game the Dolphins pulled out on a vintage Dan Marino touchdown drive that covered 72 yards in 1 minute, 37 seconds.

Three times - twice in the first half - Don ("this was the toughest week I ever had") Shula went for a first down on fourth down. He made it all three times. Twice Shula went for 2-point conversions and missed. He probably started that too early - when the Dolphins pulled to 14-9 in the second quarter.

But the Dolphins finally got a break because coach Lue Jones made an ill-conceived decision.

With fourth down a half-yard to go at the Miami 27 and less than two minutes left, Jones went for a first down instead of having Morten Andersen kick a 45-yard field goal that would have put the Falcons up by eight.

Eddie George wins Deak Walker award

IRVING, Texas (AP) - When Ohio State's Eddie George was announced last year as Deak Walker Award given to the nation's top collegiate running back, he learned a little about the prize and the man it is named after.

George never thought he had a shot of winning, and pretty much forgot about it. He hardly gave it a thought during a grueling off-season dedicated to making himself a faster, better runner.

Then, when the 100-yard games and highlight-film runs started piling up, George got a quick reminder of the trophy.

"In the middle of the season, my linemen teased me by calling me Deak Walker," says George.

George said Monday via satellite from the Ohio State campus after earning the honor.

But there was little time for George to talk. He had to rush to a Geology final that began 30 minutes later.

George, a senior, led Ohio State to an 11-1 record and a No. 4 ranking with 1,826 yards and 24 touchdowns, all but the rushing.

He was consistent, with 100 yards in every game and more than 200 yards three times, including a school-record 314 yards against Illinois.

Those numbers combined with hard work in the classroom, volunteer work at a cancer hospital and time spent in the kitchen.

He beat out Karim Abdul-Jabbar of UCLA, Tim Barber of Virginia, Tim Brown of Michigan, Warrick Dunn of Florida State, George Jones of San Diego State, Wasen Tait of Toledo and Moe Williams of Kentucky.

Although Troy Davis of Iowa State and Austin Johnson of Northwestern also are running backs and Heisman finalists, they weren't up for the Walker award because it goes to players within a year of graduating and both are sophomores. Walker himself was present for the announcement made at the headquarters of award sponsor CTE. He was flattered to hear the comment by George's teammates. "That was weird," Walker said.

Walker said he's watched George play nearly every game this season and was looking forward to meeting him Tuesday at an awards banquet in Dallas.

"He's an outstanding young man. He'll be a credibility to this award," said Walker, a former Southern Methodist standout who won the 1948 Heisman Trophy and has been voted into the college and pro football halls of fame.

"His statistics and the love his teammates had for him was very impressive. I wish I was that young again. He'd be my idol."

George already is admired by Buckeye coach John Cooper. Although disappointed by the season-ending loss to Michigan that cost Ohio State (11-1) a Rose Bowl berth and a shot at the national title, Cooper said he was happy to see George recognized.

"This is a very deserving young man," said Cooper, whose school got $10,000 for George's honor.

Cooper made special note of how George pushed himself to be a star.

"He was not the most highly recruited person," Cooper said. "But I've never coached a player with a better work ethic."

Nike rules basketball with college contracts

PHILADELPHIA - There isn't much to be unhappy about these days at Nike Inc. - unless you are the person in charge of college basketball. That person has a little extra to do, but only a little.

Kentucky and Kansas are the top two spots in the polls. The coaches, Kentucky's Rick Pitino and Kansas' Roy Williams, are among the elite group of approximately 40 Division I basketball coaches making at least $100,000 per year from contracts with shoe companies.

Pitino and Williams, however, aren't getting the cash from Nike. They are with Converse. The company that once ruled the world of ketalball shoes. Converse is still around, as are Reebok, adidas and Fila.

But it is Nike that rules college basketball, college sports. St. Joseph's - Phil Martelli and Drexel's Bill Herrion are with Nike. Martelli gets $15,000 per year; Herrion $10,000. La Salle's Speedy Morris is in the third year of a three-year contract with Converse that paid him $10,000 and $11,000 the first two years and, this year, will pay him $12,000. Penn's Fran Dunphy is with adidas.

That's as bad as I've seen him," Rypien said. "In Seattle he got dinged but he pretty much came to the sideline and tried to group. Against Chicago, in that game he said he didn't feel bad but didn't know what the hell was going on."

Also, the day after the Chicago game Miller showed for the walk-through.

Saturday - on the jerseys of players from Penn State, Florida State, Miami, Michigan, Syracuse.

Well, Villanova hopes it's serious this year. So Nike, which has been with Steve Lappas since the coach was at Manhattan, has upped the ante.

Nike made the Wildcats' uniforms for the first time. It deals out socks and all the rest of the usual athletic manager. In return, the swoosh goes on the pants, and Nike shoes. Nike socks and Nike wristbands run up and down the court. And anybody who sees the person on television becomes mesmerized by the swoosh. And runs out to dress like Kerry Kittles.

And he was at Manhattan, Lappas just got shoes for his team. He got no money himself.

"They don't want me in any commercial yet," Lappas laughed.

Commercialism remain the purview of Villanova's Martin and Jerry - the professionals. For now.

Villanova does well with its Nike deal, but it is the big-time football schools that are making the giant scores.

"I really can't violate the contract with Nike," Villanova athletic director Gene DeFilippo said of the financial terms. "They do something for coach Lappas and they do something for the school."

Villanova would love to have one of those deals, DeFilippo said. "I don't know if it's a real possibility. It helps you budgetwise. And at the same time, the coaches get paid."

This fall, Colorado signed an all-sports agreement with Nike that will last until 2001. Under terms of a $5.6 million deal, Nike also will equip 15 of Colorado's 17 teams with uniforms, shoes and other apparel.

Aikman: 'Joyless season' for Cowboys

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Those Dallas Cowboys brave enough to venture forth and talk after an embarrassing 24-17 loss to the Washington Redskins offered no excuses on Monday at a gloomy Valley Ranch.

"This locker room is becoming a bunker mentality," said quarterback Troy Aikman. "From what I sense, this has been a joyless season."

The Cowboys dropped to 10-3 with the shocking loss to the 17-point underdog Redskins and now have to win their next three games to guarantee the homefield advantage throughout the NFC playoffs.

"The success of our season, right or wrong, will be determined by the playoffs," Aikman said. "This team knows a lot of pressure. When we win a game, we were supposed to win it. When we lose, it always a game we were supposed to win. There haven't been many occasions for celebration."

Aikman predicted a quick rebound for the Cowboys who have to play Philadelphia on Sunday.

"Historically, this team plays every well with its back to the wall," Aikman said. "This team is still very much together. I think we will all respond together."

Aikman's frontcourt, Bill Bates and Darren Woodson made appearances in the locker room while others, like Michael Irvin, Deion Sanders, Nate Newton, and Charles Haley dropped the media.

Haley had a good reason. His bad back may keep him out of the Philadelphia game.

"Haley is in the worst physical condition he has been since he's been here," said Dallas coach Barry Switzer. "He came up to me at half-time crying. He said, 'Coach, I can't play. My back is hurting bad.'"

Switzer said the Cowboys' pass rush has dropped off almost to the non-existent category.

"Our best player is hurting and the pass rush is going to fall off," Switzer said.

The Cowboys two middle linebackers, Robert Jones and Godfrey Miles, also are nursing injuries and Jim Schwartz may have to be in the middle against the Eagles.

Defensive end Tony Tolbert is playing with two bad knees.

Tolbert will have to have operations on both knees after the season," Switzer said.

"Our defense is really hurting."

Switzer said the Cowboys deserved to lose to Washington the way it played.

"There's no joy in Mudville around here," Switzer said. "In fact, there's no joy even when we win. This loss was devastating. The only win this team will be able to enjoy is the Super Bowl."

Switzer admitted his defense isn't good enough to win a Super Bowl right now. "We would have to be in a lot better condition," he said.

"We'd have to play with a lot more intensity."

After Philadelphia, the Cowboys host the New York Giants then travel to Arizona on Christmas night.

"We know what we have to do and it's the hard way," Switzer said.

Jets suspend guard for drug abuse violation

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) - Carlton Haselrig, whose whereabouts were unknown for nearly a week, was suspended for one year for violating the NFL's substance abuse policy.

Haselrig, who received a personal leave of absence from the New York Jets Nov. 25, last was seen in Bayonne (N.J.) Municipal Court Nov. 27, where he was fined for reckless driving and had a disorderly persons charge dropped. The team said it has not spoken to the 29-year-old guard since then.

The league notified Haselrig by mail of the suspension Nov. 27. He had five days to appeal, but did not, so the suspension was announced Monday. An NFL spokesman could not confirm that Haselrig received notification of the suspension.

Haselrig, who sat out last season while a member of the Steelers, also was due in a Pittsburgh court Monday for a hearing on a year-old case of carrying an unregistered firearm. He did not show up, and a warrant was issued for his arrest.

A one-time Pro Bowl guard for the Steelers, Haselrig has had four stays in substance-abuse rehabilitation centers since he was arrested several times for incidents in which alcohol was involved.

Under Stage 3 of the league's substance abuse policy, Haselrig is required to take up to 10 urine tests per month for three years at the direction of a league medical advisor. Any positive test will result in banishment for one year.

But the NFL did not say Haselrig had failed a drug test. He did miss his required test during the Jets' bye week last month, but took it the next day.

"We're very concerned, this is a human being and he has not been able to make contact with us," Jets president Steve Gutman said. "We do not know his whereabouts. We're very anxious his well-being is maintained. We've made a great many efforts in the last couple of weeks to get him back."

Jets defensive end Donald Evans, who also played with Haselrig at Pittsburgh and is Haselrig's closest friend on the team, said there was no indication of a relapse.

Haselrig had been a starter all season since signing as a free agent in July. He missed two games during his leave.

"It's a big surprise to me he just disappeared," Evans said. "He seemed more relaxed here, nobody had him here. He was kind of isolated. There was no pressure on him."

"I talked to his wife (from whom Haselrig is separated) Wednesday and she had not heard from him since a week ago," Evans said.

Rams' Miller suffers yet another concussion

ST. LOUIS (AP) - It's back to that foggy feeling for St. Louis Rams quarterback Chris Miller after sustaining his fifth concussion in 15 months.

Miller was nursing a headache and fighting drowsiness at home Monday, a day after getting knocked unconscious by a helmet-to-helmet blow from 260-pound Marvin Washington in the Rams' 23-20 victory over the New York Jets.

Washington, who was ejected and faced a hefty fine, said he didn't believe the hit was that strong.

"That guy should consider retiring," Washington said. "If he takes a hit like that and gets one (a concussion) he'd better get out."

But the Rams don't appear worried about his future. Indeed, coach Rich Brooks wouldn't even rule him out for Sunday's game against Buffalo.

"Nobody likes to get knocked out," Brooks said. "I've been knocked cuckoo several times in my life. It's not a lot of fun."

"The thing I will say is that getting knocked cuckoo happens in football. It happens in a lot of sports, it happens in life."

St. Louis Rams quarterback Chris Miller, shown here during the Rams training camp in St. Louis in August, suffered his fifth concussion in 15 months during the Rams game on Sunday.

Also, the day after the Chicago game Miller showed for the walk-through.

Brooks said the latest blow to the head was no more serious than the forearm to the helmet delivered by Chicago's Vinson Smith Sept. 24. He also said team doctors have told Miller there should be no long-term effect. Miller, 30, underwent a brain scan Sunday night in St. Louis and Brooks said the reading had no "significant change."

National study finds most unwed mothers are white and under 20

PROVIDENCE, R.I. - When Linda Pierce turned 30, she made up her mind.
'I had always planned on getting married and then having children,' she says. 'The getting married part just wasn't happening.'
So Pierce got pregnant, through artificial insemination. And today her daughter, Lily, is the unquestioned center of her life.
'The hardest thing is leaving her to go to work,' says Pierce, a nurse in the post-partum normal nursery at Women & Infants Hospital. 'I know some people think (unwed motherhood) is not the right thing. But I had to do what was right for me.'
Despite political rhetoric to the contrary, most of today's unwed mothers aren't teen-agers, poverty-stricken or members of minority groups.
They're white women, over 20, who are choosing to have babies without getting married, according to a recent national study.
The study, conducted by the socially or economically disadvantaged, says Kristin Moore, executive director of Child Trends, an agency that conducted the study at the debate of Congress as part of the request over welfare reform.
'But, she concluded, 'Research does not support the widespread contention that teen-agers, unmarried women or mothers already on welfare seek pregnancy in order to obtain welfare benefits or greater welfare benefits.'
Pierce, on the contrary, earns enough to support herself and her daughter comfortably. 'If I couldn't have done it financially, it wouldn't have been a very wise decision,' she says.
Some politicians had seized on the belief that they could 'push this button' and reduce a host of social problems by cutting welfare, Moore said. 'They're going to be disappointed' to find out it's not that easy, she said.
The study showed that about a third of the 1.2 million births across the country in 1993 were to unmarried mothers. About 30 percent of those mothers were teen-agers, Moore said. But the other 70 percent were women over 20 - and about 60 percent of them were white.
The percentage of unwed white women giving birth is rising faster than it is for teen-agers and minorities.

Specialists try to help children cope

Knight-Ridder News Service
By the time psychiatrist Gilbert Kliman saw the little girl, her nickname seemed like a cruel joke. Her long brown hair was shiny, and her features still charming, but that effervescent 4-year-old bounce that had won her the nickname Sunshine was long gone.
There was nothing sunny about the tense child who sat in Kliman's office, yanking out clumps of her own hair, sitting in a sexually provocative pose so inappropriate for such a young girl.
But as abnormal as the child's behavior was, it did not surprise Kliman, a specialist in treating catastrophic childhood trauma, and a therapist who has truly seen and heard it all.
Kliman's job was to try to save Sunshine's terribly damaged soul.
One of a growing number of specialists and agencies aimed at healing traumatized children, Kliman's San Francisco-based Children's Psychological Trauma Center has never been busier. Responding to the same rising tide of violence affecting children, the non-profit Cleo Eulau Center recently opened offices in three Northern California cities (Palo Alto, San Mateo and San Jose), dedicated to studying and treating child and adolescent trauma. Unfortunately, says Eulau, Center director and social worker Karla Hummer, the need for such services has grown significantly in recent years.
Statistics suggest the dimensions of the problem:
• 6.6 million cases of child abuse reported from 1971 to 1994.
• 644,294 in 1994, according to Children Now, a non-profit advocacy agency which published its report this month.

Fraternities turn attention to studies

Chicago Tribune
One noted higher education researcher at the University of Illinois at Chicago has even completed a national study suggesting that because of academic biases first-year students not be allowed to join Greek organizations. The study said the problem is greatest with fraternities but also affects sororities.
All of which leads to a growing realization and increasingly loud wake-up call throughout the Greek-letter world. It's time to hit the books. At least a bit more.
'You can't have a fraternity if you don't have people in school,' explained Ray Najera, president of the Sigma Lambda Beta chapter at the University of Illinois at Chicago. 'By emphasizing academics we keep people in school and then we keep the fraternity.'
As the country develops in a public-relations move to appease cost-conscious parents and college administrators ready to pounce on the next rule violation. And on another it's a necessary step given the growing sense that more of one's college-years should be spent on one's education, surprisingly enough, and that Greek organizations must accordingly return to their roots as scholarly brotherhoods.
'The university climate has changed in the last 10 years. There's a lot more pressure to get good grades and it's harder to get jobs, so now it's more, 'What can this fraternity do for me?'' said Steve Lesteron, DePaul University's program coordinator for student life and fraternity adviser.
'Fraternities have to sell themselves, and one of the primary ways they can do that is through academics,' he said.
Moreover, chapters are 'getting themselves backed into a corner and they're trying to keep their heads above water by doing things they should have been doing all along,' said Michael Hayes, president of the Association of Fraternity Advisors. 'It's do it or else, even if that's the wrong attitude to have.'

Albertson's president announces retirement

BOISE — John B. Carley announced Monday he will retire as president and chief operating officer of Albertson's Inc., effective Feb. 2.

He will be succeeded by Richard L. King, currently senior vice president and regional manager of the Florida, Northern California and Southern California divisions for the nation's fourth-largest supermarket chain.

King, 46, is a 28-year Albertson's veteran.

The Boise-based company also announced Monday that former chairman Warren E. McCain, 69, will retire Feb. 2 as an employee and chairman of Albertson's executive committee. Carley will take over as executive committee chairman.

Carley, 61, started his career dipping ice cream at the original Boise Albertson's store in 1950 and, except for college and military service for four years in the 1950s, has worked for the company ever since. Albertson's has 742 stores in 19 Western, Midwestern and Southern states including Idaho; with an outlet in Twin Falls.

Movie makes man billionaire

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Steven P. Jobs, who helped start Apple Computer Inc., became a billionaire Wednesday when a small digital studio he bought nine years ago went public to a storm of investor demand.

His company, Pixar Animation

Studios, which made the current No. 1 movie "Toy Story," ended its first day of trading with a market value of $1.46 billion.

Pixar's stock, priced by underwriters Tuesday at $22, shot to $46 on its opening trade, reached as high as $49.50 and closed at $39 on the Nasdaq Stock Market.

Jobs, who is Pixar's president, owns 80 percent of its 37.4 million outstanding shares. His net worth had reached several hundred million dollars a decade ago when Apple represented the cutting edge of technology.

The initial public offering had been one of the most widely followed since the

Stocks surge, hit record high

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Stock prices surged to record levels Monday, fueled by a rally in the bond market on expectations that the Federal Reserve would soon lower interest rates.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 52.39 to 5,137.52, topping the all-time high set last Wednesday. It was the 66th record for the blue-chip index this year.

Broad-market indexes were also ahead, with the Nasdaq composite, New York Stock Exchange's composite index and the Standard & Poor's 500-stock index also at new highs.

"Bonds getting down to around 6 percent was the spur of this market," said Larry Wachtel, vice president at Prudential Securities Inc. in New York. "Then we saw the Dow, IBM, new margins and the Nasdaq come back strong, and it was a powerful day overall."

Advancing issues led decliners by about 13 to 6 on the NYSE. Big Board volume totaled 405.10 million shares as of 4 p.m., vs. 392.66 million Friday.

The NYSE's composite index rose 3.17 to 327.60 and the S&P 500 was up 6.70 to 613.68, both topping the record levels set last Wednesday.

The Nasdaq composite index benefited from rally in technology shares, gaining 13.87 to 1,069.18 to beating the all-time high of Sept. 20.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained 1.69 to 538.53. Technology stocks rebounded from Friday's selloff and helped send the broad market higher.

In Nasdaq trading, Sun Microsystems rose 5% at 89%, Quarterdeck was up 2% at 38% and Microsoft gained 1% at 87%. On the Big Board, IBM was up 1/4 at 96 and Digital Equipment rose 4% to 52%.

Feds investigate whether Windows '95 conflicts with rivals

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Justice Department investigators went to work Monday for Microsoft Corp. to determine if Windows 95 software expressly to block rival programs that give users access to the global computer network known as the Internet.

Microsoft said Monday some problems arose during testing earlier this year, but that the kids have been worked out with the newer versions of most competitors' software.

The investigation shows the government continues to monitor closely Microsoft's dominance of the software industry.

The Justice Department's antitrust division issued civil subpoenas last month to Netscape Communications Corp. and CompuServe Inc. on-line services, said Don Baker, a Washington lawyer representing CompuServe. CompuServe also confirmed the investigation.

The subpoenas indicate Justice investigators are focusing on whether Microsoft's Windows 95 and its related Internet software either dis-able or raise the costs of rival programs that let users access the world-wide computer network known as the Internet.

The extent of the problem remains unclear. A CompuServe spokesman said its so-called browser software for the World-Wide-Web now works with Windows 95, but only after additional cost.

"We have had to take active steps with actual costs to make sure the system runs properly," said CompuServe spokesman Jeff Shafer.

A continuing theme of the Microsoft antitrust investigation has been whether Microsoft designed Windows 95 and its on-line service, Microsoft Network, in such a way as to gain a pricing advantage over rivals. Please see WINDOWS/D2

Activists, Boise Cascade tangle over operation

BOISE (AP) — Boise Cascade Corp. dismissed as "a smear campaign" an article in the Wall Street Journal that it closed a Council sawmill to take advantage of cheap labor and lax environmental laws in Mexico.

He conceded that Boise Cascade has moved a few pieces of equipment from Council to the leased mill in Mexico, such as a front loader and two motor control units, along with surplus equipment from mills in other states.

Sex dreams 5th most popular Sydney Omarr Horoscope

L.M. Boyd
What's what?

Q. Aren't sexual dreams the most common?
A. Not if you accept recent sleep research. The dream list in order of frequency: 1. Falling. 2. Being chased or attacked. 3. Trying but failing to do some simple thing. 4. Chores at work or school. Sex ranks No. 5 for men. That sort of book you and I might call a "whodunit" is known to the French as a "black" novel; to the Italians, a "black" novel to convey emotions; the big beast couldn't demonstrate with arm waving and chest thumping. Still, they'd it rather well, didn't they?
Eddie Murphy used to sell shoes; So did Harvey Kziel. And Rod McKuen. "Could be you didn't know Louisa May Alcott "hated" little girls. "Hated" is the word the literary scholars use. She wrote "Little Women" for money. Indeed, she was highly professional. Seventy percent of your brain is water. One medical source says you tend to lose some sort of skin moles as you age. A 30-year-old with 45 such moles may only have half a dozen by age 50, it's claimed. Check your body for moles. Go ahead. All over. Research turns up three terms for irrational fear of cats: typhophobia, gathophobia and gallophobia. And nobody uses any of them.

Q. How many inches of beard can a man expect to grow in a year?
A. About 5 1/2.
Everybody knows collective nouns - "herd" of cows, "flock" of sheep, so on. But curiously many when asked cannot bring to mind the familiar collective noun for oysters - "bed".
