Court to rule on official language

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Stepping into a politically charged dispute, the Supreme Court agreed Monday to review whether states can make English their official language and require its use for most government actions.

The justices said they will examine a lower court ruling that said Arizona's official-English constitutional amendment violates state employees' right of free speech.

Official-English laws have been growing in popularity along with proposals to limit immigration and restrict government benefits to immigrants.

Twenty-two other states and at least 40 cities have enacted some type of official-English law, and Congress is considering legislation similar to the amendment Arizona voters adopted in 1988.

Bob Dole, the prospective Republican presidential nominee, supports the federal legislation, saying, "We need the glue of language to hold us together."

But President Clinton has criticized the idea, saying English is "of course" the language of the United States but that people should value "the culture, the traditions of everybody."

In other action Monday, the court:

- Agreed to use an Oregon case to decide whether people may use the Endangered Species Act to file lawsuits accusing the federal government of doing too much to protect a species.

- Agreed to decide in a Kansas case whether people must pay income taxes on punitive damages they are awarded in personal-injury lawsuits.

- Turned down Louisiana's bid to deny Medicaid-funded abortions for women impregnated as a result of rape or incest. Federal law allows Medicaid-funded abortions for such women.

The justices may not reach a decision on the merits of the Arizona official-English amendment. Both sides were asked to address whether supporters of the amendment have legal standing to carry the case to the nation's highest court.

Only if the court finds that Arizonaans for Official English has legal standing will its decision set a precedent for other states.

Arizonaans for Official English says governments can regulate their employees' speech while they are on duty.

"Making English our official language recognizes the unique role of a common language in society," said Daphne Magnuson of U.S. English, an advocacy group supporting the Arizona amendment.

But Stephen Montoya, lawyer for Arizonaans Against Constitutional Tampering, which opposes the amendment, said,

How to compose compost

Packed house turns out to learn proper methods

By William Brock
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Grass clippings, cantaloupe rinds and used coffee filters are nothing more than garbage for many folks, but for gardeners who know a little organic alchemy, they are basic ingredients for rich soil known as "black gold."

Turning organic garbage into compost also keeps it out of local landfills, which extends their effective life.

"About 40 percent of what we throw out in an average household is organic and could be composted," said Barbara Morales, a solid-waste specialist with the University of Idaho's Extension service. Morales led a workshop on composting techniques for a capacity crowd at the College of Southern Idaho on Monday night; many people were turned away because the event was fully booked.

Gardeners love compost. Morales said, "because when you put it on your plants, you'll see them just pop up. Once you've had it, you won't ever want to be without it."

Simply put, composting is a process of microbial decay that reduces organic "garbage" to thick, rich humus. It is a dynamic process — in many respects similar to cooking — so there are countless "right" ways to accomplish it, Morales said.

Central to any successful composting scheme is a proper container with adequate

'Braveheart,' Cage, Sarandon lead Oscars

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — "Braveheart," the epic about a 13th-century Scottish patriot, won five Oscars Monday night, including best picture and best director for its star Mel Gibson.

Like Gibson, Emma Thompson also won an Oscar in another area of her craft, adapting the Jane Austen novel "Sense and Sensibility" for the screen.

Susan Sarandon, who played a nun trying to redeem a condemned killer in "Dead Man Walking," took best actress honors and Nicolas Cage was named best actor for his role as a suicidal alcoholic in "Leaving Las Vegas."

Gibson, a plaid vest flashing from between the lapels of his tuxedo, thanked writer Randall Wallace and producer Alan Ladd Jr. for bringing the script of the early Scottish epic to a "fiscal limbo." "Like most directors, what I really want to do is act," said Gibson. He granted his own wish, casting himself as the wild-haired warrior who drove the English from Scotland.

"Braveheart" was Gibson's second outing as a director, the first being "The Man Without a Face" in 1993. He follows a line of actors-turned directors who have won Oscars: Robert Redford, Warren Beatty, Woody Allen, Kevin Costner.

Thompson, who won the best actress award for "Howard's End" in 1992, collected her second Oscar.

The English actress told of visiting author Austen's grave at Winchester Cathedral "to pay my respects and tell her about the grosses."

She concluded by dedicating her award to Ang Lee, who directed the film but was overlooked for an Oscar nomination though the film was up for best picture.

Supporting actor awards went to Kevin Spacey, the verbal con man in "The Usual Suspects," and Mira Sorvino, who played a hooker in "Highly Anticipated."

Spacey thanked his mother for driving him to acting classes when he was 16: "I told you it would pay off, and here's the pudding."

Sorvino thanked her father as the veteran actor openly sobbed in the audience.

"When you give me this award you honor my father, Paul Sorvino, who taught me everything I know about acting," she said.

Lost boy, 4, wanders mountains for 2 nights

ZUNI, N.M. (AP) — For two cold nights, 4-year-old Danny Finko wandered alone through the Zuni Mountains without anything to eat or heavy clothes to keep him warm.

More than 200 people searched for him on horseback, in vehicles and by air. Finally, the crew of a New Mexico National Guard helicopter spotted the lost youngster Monday and whisked him to safety.

His only request: An apple. "That's one lucky little boy, and it speaks loudly of our volunteer search and rescue people," said Rick Goodman, state search and rescue resource officer.

Danny told his parents he spent most of his time walking after wandering off from his parents Saturday during a hike in Fence Lake, a remote farming and ranching community in the mountains about 20 miles east of the Arizona border. He disappeared after trailing behind them in a hilly area of ravines and pine trees.

A small snow storm hit the area later that day. The temperature fell to around 17 degrees with wind chills of 10 degrees below zero.

Danny's body temperature was 92 degrees, 6.6 degrees below normal, when he was found late Monday morning, said David Kessler, clinical director of Zuni Public Health Service Hospital.

The boy was reunited with his parents, who are doctors at the hospital.

Farm payments to commence in late spring

WASHINGTON (AP) — Now that the farm bill is almost finished, the Agriculture Department is gearing up to start sending the first checks to farmers in late spring and summer.

Farmers may start signing contracts for the new seven-year government payments 45 days after the farm bill becomes law.

The annual payments will be made in two installments, with the first checks this year likely going out in May, June and July, said Bruce Weber, associate administrator of the Consolidated Farm Service Agency. The final payments will be made in September.

"We've got most of our policy papers, procedures and regulations already written, so once the bill is enacted we can move pretty quickly," Weber said Monday.

For farmers who are used to getting a portion of their annual subsidy early in the year to pay for spring planting, the wait this time will be unusually long. But many farmers say they're just glad Congress is finally finishing work on a farm bill. The old law that governed farm programs expired at the end of 1995.

"Everybody says it's about time," said Dave Torgerson, director of the Minnesota Association of Wheat Growers.

House and Senate negotiators finished work on compromise farm legislation last week. It is now awaiting final House and Senate action. President Clinton has said he would sign it.

The bill ends the traditional way of subsidizing farmers. Farmers used to receive a "deficiency payment" to cover the difference between market prices and a fixed target price set by the government. Under the new law, farmers will receive a fixed but declining payment regardless of market prices.

The payments will be made on 85 percent of the eligible land. Farmers will be eligible for the new payments if the land received a crop subsidy in one or more of the past five years.

Virtually every producer who has been enrolled in the farm program is expected to sign the seven-year contracts.

"There's not any incentive at all to drop out," said Barry Jenkins, a spokesman for the National Association of Wheat Growers.

Witness

incident at an off-duty police lieutenant.

Canu must wear a radio tracking device on his ankle pending sentencing on the October charge. He has been granted immunity in the homicide prosecution.

Meanwhile, across the hall from the murder hearing, Velasquez was arraigned on a felony charge of being an accessory to Wiggins' murder. Velasquez had told a magistrate judge he knew nothing about the homicide except rumors, according to a police affidavit.

Velasquez and Trevino remained in Twin Falls County Jail Monday evening. Velasquez was being held on $50,000 bond. Trevino has no bond.

Compost

quade ventilation; chicken-wire or old wooden pallets work admirably. Other key ingredients are adequate water and food.

Morales suggests forming a base layer of twigs, sticks or corn stalks — anything to keep subsequent layers off the ground and provide good ventilation. Aeration is essential to speed the process and minimize foul aromas.

Next, add "green materials" — such as kitchen scraps, fruit and vegetable peels, eggshells, coffee grounds, tea bags and fresh grass clippings.

After a layer of green materials, add a layer of "brown materials," such as leaves, straw, sawdust, wood chips and grass that's been dried by the sun.

"Grass is the most versatile ingredient you've got," Morales said. Alternate between green and brown layers, then top with a thin layer of soil and sprinkle with water, turn and mix periodically.

"Keeping it wet enough is a constant challenge" in southern Idaho, Morales said. "Things should be not too crispy in there, nor should they be too soggy."

From a practical standpoint, it's best to keep compost piles out of the wind and in the sun. Heat speeds the process, which generates heat of its own — warming the center of compost heaps as high as 160 degrees.

If the process is moving too slowly, try adding nitrogen in the form of fresh grass clippings or nitrogen fertilizer. Morales says the ideal ratio of carbon to nitrogen is about 30:1.

"Don't contaminate a compost heap with meat or fish scraps, cooking oil, dairy products, dog or cat feces, mature weed seeds or diseased plants, Morales advised.

Flights suspended

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Marine Corps commandant ordered a 48-hour suspension of all non-essential flights by his service's aircraft while aviation procedures are reviewed, a spokesman said.

But said he knew of no direct link between the review, and recent crashes of three Harrier vertical-takeoff attack jets.

Hyakutake wows stargazers

BOSTON (AP) — Other comets have come closer to Earth.

Others have shone brighter. But as comets go, Hyakutake, the little greenish fuzzball in the sky, is a heavenly reward for skygazers.

"All of the sudden, all of your neighbors who thought you were a little odd hunting for dim, little, distant galaxies in a telescope in your backyard in the middle of the night suddenly can step outside their door and there it is," said Alan MacRobert, an associate editor at Sky & Telescope magazine in Cambridge. "For amateur astronomers, these are wonderful times."

Hyakutake, making its first appearance in about 9,000 years, has been drawing countless eyes to the night sky.

Internet sites are crowded with enthusiastic observations. "Boy is this fun," began one message. "Dang, what a sight!" read another. "You simply can't miss this comet. It just jumps out at you."

"WOW! WOW! WOW! WOW! WOW!" opened still another. Not bad for a big chunk of dirty ice that's been drifting alone since the solar system formed.

"There's something about the appearance of a comet," said Brian Marden, associate director for planetary sciences at the Smithsonian-Harvard Center for Astrophysics. "I suppose it's the fact that you can't see this thing ... just for a little while and know it's come from a great distance."

Hyakutake (hya-koo-TAH-kay), named for the amateur Japanese astronomer who discovered it in January, is the brightest burning comet since Comet West in 1976. It is visible throughout the Northern Hemisphere.

Comet Hyakutake comes within 9.5 million miles of Earth as it passes the tail of the Big Dipper early Monday.

Observers say there have been few more watchable comets this century, though the much larger Hale-Bopp due to pass near Earth next year could top Hyakutake's show.

At Hyakutake's nearest point to Earth — about 9.5 million miles away Sunday and Monday — sky-watchers said it had the brightness of Sirius, the brightest star in the northern sky. Its tail of glowing gases is an estimated 62,000 miles long.

A comet came closer to Earth as recently as 1983, but it was nowhere near as bright.

Experts say the comet will start to fade after Monday until the first week in April as it drifts farther from the Earth, but may brighten again as it gets closer to the sun. It should become visible to people in the Southern Hemisphere in mid-May, MacRobert said.

Traveling 198,000 mph as it rounds the sun, Hyakutake's orbit and the gravitational effects of the planets should bring it back this way in about 17,000 years. Halley's Comet returns every 76 years.

"Things like this spur people to look up beyond the surface of our tiny little planet here, where we live our tiny little lives running around in tiny little circles," MacRobert said, "and see something of the bigger, wider universe that is out there for us waiting to see if we only look up."

Study: Heart benefits from vitamin E

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Doctors are astonished by a British study's conclusion that a dime's worth of vitamin E seems to reduce heart attacks by 75 percent when taken daily by people with bad hearts.

The researchers, led by Dr. Nigel G. Brown of Northwick Park Hospital in suburban London, published their findings in Saturday's issue of the journal Lancet and presented them to the world's heart specialists Monday at the annual meeting of the American College of Cardiology.

Vitamin E is one of a group of nutrients known as antioxidants. Heart disease often results from the accumulation of lumps of fat in the walls of blood vessels.

However, this fat in the blood may be harmless unless it is oxidized — the same process that turns iron brown and makes food spoil. Oxidation is one of the steps that put fat and cholesterol into a form that is deposited in the arteries.

FDA approves nasal spray to help smokers quit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hard-core smokers are about to get new help in kicking the habit: a nasal spray that gives them a shot of nicotine from a bottle instead of a cigarette.

Nicotrol NS is a pump bottle that holds 100 milligrams of pure nicotine that smokers can inhale to vaporize cigarette cravings. It is to be sold by prescription only to adult smokers trying to quit, the Food and Drug Administration announced Monday.

But the FDA warned that smokers could become as dependent on the nasal spray's nicotine as they are on cigarettes. Scientists already discovered one desperate woman who plotted ways to get the nasal spray for a year when she ran out of a three-month supply received during a research study.

Smokers should try to use the spray for just three months — and never longer than six months, the FDA said.

Despite the risk, Nicotrol NS "will be a very big help to smokers in general, but specifically to the heavier smokers," said Dr. Richard Hurt, director of the nicotine dependency center at Mayo Clinic.

"It's clearly safer for the patient to use the nicotine nasal spray than cigarettes."

Perot shrugs off Dole's appeal to stay out of presidential race

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ross Perot brushed off Sen. Bob Dole's appeal to stay out of the general election Monday and called his efforts at fielding a major U.S. party "an idea whose time has come."

Making the rounds of morning television talk shows, the Dallas billionaire had harsh words for both existing parties.

He criticized Republicans for not completing their "Contract With America" and Democrats for not fulfilling President Clinton's promise to balance the budget.

"I think both parties are very serious about not wanting anybody to disturb the status quo," he told NBC's "Today" show.

And, he told "CBS This Morning," both parties are "addicted to spending, to try to give us free candy for our vote. And we pay for the free candy. We've got to cut that out."

He said he "absolutely" intended for his Reform Party to be on the ballot in all 50 states in November and to field a presidential candidate and make endorsements in House and Senate races.

Dole, the certain GOP nominee, urged both one-time GOP rival Pat Buchanan and Perot to stay out of the general election and not siphon votes away from him to help Clinton.

"I would say to Ross Perot: Ross, we are the reform party," Dole said on Sunday in Yorba Linda, Calif.

Asked about that on ABC's "Good Morning America," Perot said, "I hadn't heard of it until now, but the thing that drives this whole issue is the fact that we have a critical financial situation in our country (and) we have a narrow window of opportunity to solve it."

Perot disputed the notion that he would draw more votes away from Dole, noting that some surveys suggested the opposite might be true.

"But facts don't matter in politics. Everybody has stories. Everybody has myths. Everybody has propaganda. That's the reason the country's in such a mess," he told ABC.

On all three shows, Perot declined to discuss his own plans, saying his main priority is getting his party on the ballot and preparing for its convention, to be held around Labor Day.

Saying some surveys suggest a majority of Americans want a new party, Perot told NBC, "This is an idea whose time has come."

His back-to-back TV appearances were part of a blitz of speeches and TV appearances that began when he told a San Antonio, Texas, radio station a week ago that he would run if drafted by the party and "would give it everything I've got."

Buchanan holds to convention plans

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Pat Buchanan had the Republican National Convention site all to himself Monday as he paid an early visit to the city where Bob Dole will claim the GOP presidential nomination this summer.

Buchanan promised he'll be back.

"I'm not coming to our convention in San Diego to walk out," Buchanan told reporters at the San Diego Convention Center. "My hope is to stay inside the party and help defeat President Clinton. But we're not ruling anything out."

After today's primary in California, Buchanan said he will head home to McLean, Va., to write out his positions in what he called the "McLean Manifesto."

"It will talk about this issue of the 'New Conservatism of the Heart' that I believe is going to be the philosophy of the Republican Party in the future," he said. "It's rooted in the idea and values of faith, family and country."

Sen. Bob Dole has the GOP nomination clinched, but Buchanan reiterated his intention to focus the party's attention on the issues of abortion, the economic insecurity of the middle class and illegal immigration.

"My party is going to be a pro-life party or it's not going to be my party," Buchanan said. "We've seen not only the expansion of abortion to 4,000 a day in the United States, but now we're seeing the rise of a sort of culture of death where euthanasia is acceptable and assisted suicide is getting great currency."

"I think my party has got stand up against this."

Buchanan said he wants to stay in the race, because other candidates who have dropped out lost any power to shape the Republican agenda.

"I want to go all the way to San Diego and I want to bring my voters' support with me," he said. "If I quit now, they will be ignored."

Buchanan's communication director, Greg Mueller, said Buchanan was not ready to rule out a third-party run despite encouraging "signs from the Dole campaign that they're listening and taking in what Pat's saying."

2 'Freemen' arrested in Montana

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Federal agents Monday arrested two leaders of the fugitive "freemen" anti-government group who have been held up more than a year in a remote enclave outside Jordan, authorities said.

LeRoy Schweitzer, 56, and Daniel E. Peterson, 53, were arrested without incident, U.S. Attorney Sherry Matteucci said.

Federal agents also were negotiating with a dozen or so fugitives at the remote farm they have used as headquarters 30 miles northwest of Jordan, Matteucci said. She declined to elaborate.

Neighbors reported unusual traffic and several vehicles they did not recognize in the farm and ranch area.

Schweitzer and Peterson are charged in a federal grand jury indictment along with 10 others in schemes involving issuance of fraudulent checks and money orders, Matteucci said. They are to be arraigned Tuesday before a federal magistrate.

Both also face state charges of felony criminal syndicalism — the advocacy of violence for political aims — in Garfield County.

The "freemen" deny the legitimacy of existing government and existing law. Their band in Garfield County includes nine fugitives, facing criminal charges ranging from tax offenses and contempt of court to threatening the lives of public officials.

Former banker sent to prison

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A former small-time banker who claims President Clinton pressured him to make an illegal $300,000 loan was sentenced Monday to more than two years in prison and ordered to repay the government $2.04 million.

David Hale, 55, whose allegations launched the Whitewater investigation, also was given three years' probation and fined $10,000.

Hale left the courthouse smiling and said he would continue to cooperate with Whitewater investigators.

He brushed off questions about the investigation, describing instead the two years he has spent in seclusion since he pleaded guilty in 1994 and agreed to expose his friends.

Hale pleaded guilty to lying to the Small Business Administration to obtain millions in matching funds that he then used to make loans to enrich himself and his friends.

After he was charged, Hale sought to strike a deal with prosecutors and claimed that Clinton, as governor, pressured him in 1986 to loan $300,000 to Susan McDougal, one of Clinton's partners in the Whitewater land development.

Muskie critical after heart attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie was in critical condition Monday after suffering a heart attack while recovering from surgery.

The surgery last week to clear a blocked artery in his leg was successful, but Muskie, 81, suffered a heart attack a few days later while still at Georgetown University Hospital, said his assistant, Carole Parmelee of the law firm Chadbourne and Parke.

Muskie, a former governor and former senator from Maine, joined the law firm in 1981 after serving as secretary of state under President Carter.

Around the valley

'Great Rift' airport name dies before city

TWIN FALLS — City Councilmen on Monday struck down the name they gave the local airport two weeks ago — "Idaho's South Central Airport: Gateway to the Great Rift and Sun Valley" — and "put the Great Rift to rest," Mayor Jeff Gooding said.

Officials are inviting residents to call the county at 736-4068 or the city at 736-2287 to vote for one of the following names: "Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional Airport," "Idaho's South Central Airport," or "Magic Valley Regional Airport."

By 4 p.m. Monday, Twin Falls County had received about 250 calls, with opinion leaning heavily toward the third suggested name, commissioners said. A high school government class showed up at the courthouse Monday morning to cast votes as well.

Officials could disregard the public's majority vote, but "I think they do at their own peril," Gooding said.

Both commissioners and councilmen have said they'll make a decision on April 1. A marketing slogan will be chosen later, they said.

Twin Falls hikes fees for zoning change applications

TWIN FALLS — Applicants for zoning changes in Twin Falls may pay higher fees, the City Council decided Monday.

Applications for a special-use permit and a nonconforming building-expansion permit will each cost $50. Other zoning fees will include a fee for city staff costs: for a variance, $110; rezoning, $180; rezoning with a planned-unit development, $215; vacation, $250; annexation, $200; zoning code change, $200; appeal, $50; and rezoning at the applicant's request, $50.

Applicants also will pay the costs of ordinance publication directly to the newspaper, the council decided.

Jerome board to finalize '96 fair theme at meeting

JEROME — The Jerome Fairboard is scheduled to discuss the theme for this summer's Jerome County Fair and Rodeo during its meeting today at 7:30 p.m.

Also scheduled will be further discussion of a proposed multi-chase sound and lighting details, and capital improvements.

The meeting will be held in the Messersmith building.

Health agencies sponsor stress management class

TWIN FALLS — The third class in a series of non-credit personal stress management workshops will be from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday at the KVMU Community Room, 1100 Blue Lakes Blvd. N.

Jill Chestnut, a registered nurse who coordinates occupational health for the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, will discuss stress management.

Admission is free, and no sign-up is required. Free child care is available with advance notice at South Central Child Care, 296 Falls Ave. W. Call Tahna at 736-7649 to arrange child care.

The event is sponsored by the Child Care Resource Center (South Central Community Action), Twin Falls School District's Title I and Student Assistance programs, and Region V Health and Welfare.

Chisholm plans celebration of freedom Wednesday night

BUHL — A Freedom Party to celebrate activist Bill Chisholm's release from jail is planned for 7 p.m. Wednesday at the Cosmic Jolt, 120 S. Broadway.

The open house will feature music by the U.S. Army Band, refreshments and good conversation.

Admission is free. For more information, call Chisholm at 543-4418.

Jazz Ambassadors tickets for April 3 no longer available

TWIN FALLS — Tickets for the performance of the Jazz Ambassadors of the U.S. Army Field Band are no longer available, according to Wiley Dodds, Times-News Public Relations manager.

The concert will be held at 7 p.m. April 3 at the Fine Arts auditorium at the College of Southern Idaho. Admission is free to ticket-holders.

Curbside recyclers seek OK

By Virginia S. Garber
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — So far, curbside recycling hasn't appealed to local officials, but a couple of entrepreneurs are willing to give it a try.

They'll charge $5 per house per month to pick up aluminum, tin, newspaper, clear glass, plastic, mixed paper, junk mail and magazines in front of Twin Falls homes — if the city says they can.

But city councilmen said Monday they'll have to see a more detailed business plan before granting DR Curbside a rubbish-collection license.

Ron Aguirre said he and David Cooper would target large subdivisions for a year before offering their recycling services to the entire city. DR Curbside would sell divided recycling bins at $10 and tell customers how to prepare their recyclable rubbish for Saturday collections, he said.

"We're really optimistic," said Cooper's wife, Cyndi. "We think that it can go over big."

Councilmen were encouraging but wanted to know how the fledgling business would deal with fluctuating recyclables markets, potential conflicts with regular trash collection, worker's compensation and liability insurance.

DR Curbside will guarantee to recycle all it collects, Cyndi Cooper said. The goal, she said, is to help slow the flow of trash to the rapidly filling county landfill.

But the partners aren't interested in hurting the Kiwanis Club, whose newspaper-and-can-collection bins around town support local youth programs, Aguirre said.

DR Curbside hopes to collect other recyclables — such as Styrofoam — as new markets open, he said.

Police charge 3 in shooting at dance hall

By Kevin Miller
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Seventeen-year-old Jorge Ramirez remembers seeing a man point a gun at the car that Ramirez was riding in, and he remembers hearing shots fired.

But it wasn't until his cousin stepped out of a few blocks away that Ramirez realized the bullets had struck the car less than five feet from where he was sitting.

Roberto Huerta, 22, was arrested shortly after the shooting, which took place early Sunday morning near the Fiesta Mexicana dance hall, 309 F St. He was charged with being the triggerman in the shooting.

Huerta, who police say is an illegal alien residing in Hailey, was being held without bond Monday.

Ramirez was in the front passenger seat of a Pontiac Grand Am driven by Roberto Ruiz, 18, of Burley, that was backing away from a crowd behind Fiesta Mexicana when the shots were fired.

"We were about to take off and this big light came close to us. We just saw this guy pull out the gun. I didn't get a good look at him, we were backing," Ramirez said. "He pointed it right at us. I told the driver, 'Just step on it.'"

Fredy Gil, 19, of Rupert was injured when a Budweiser beer bottle crashed through the car's driver's side window, moments before the shooting began. He was treated for a small cut on the left side of his head.

There were no other injuries.

Witnesses told police that the gunman fired two to three shots in the air before shooting at the car. According to a police report, the shooter was in the back of a red pickup with a canopy top when he fired the gun.

Police found eight shell casings from a .380-caliber gun near the scene. On Monday, Rupert police found a loaded 9 mm semi-automatic handgun under a car a few blocks from the shooting scene.

Detective Terry Quinn said it matches the description of the weapon used in the shooting and will undergo ballistics tests.

Two of the bullets struck the driver-side door, leaving impressions where they failed to penetrate. A third round went through the front fender.

"I've just lucky no one got shot," Quinn said.

The gunman fled the shooting scene with six others in the red pickup, according to a police report.

Huerta was arrested by Idaho State Patrol troopers near Dietrich on Highway 24. Two other people were booked on charges of accessory to aggravated battery. Police did not release their names.

Sunday morning's shooting comes almost a year after another shooting near Fiesta Mexicana, involving the dance hall's owners, Albino and Efrain Ortega still face aggravated assault charges, stemming from a confrontation last March with a tow-truck driver, who was towing the cars of Fiesta Mexicana customers from an adjoining parking lot.

One shot was fired in the incident.

Sen. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, lunches at the Oregon Trail Elementary School cafeteria Monday in Twin Falls.

Craig, Minnick debate control of federal lands

By Kuzen Tolkinen
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Chiming the federal government will run out of money within 10 years to manage federal lands, U.S. Sen. Larry Craig said Idaho could do it cheaper if it had control.

Craig, in town to explain the Farm Bill to area farmers, said that Idaho could manage the land for one-third the amount spent by the federal government and pay for it by imposing grazing and timber fees.

His ideas were cut down by challenger Walt Minnick, an independent now seeking the Democratic nomination for Senate, who quoted the $90 million price tag for managing the lands that state Controller J.D. Minnick calculated last fall.

"That's an 8 percent tax increase," Minnick said. "I don't know anyone in Idaho willing to pick up an 8 percent increase to pay for the cost the federal government is paying now."

In the past two years, rhetoric has steadily evolved from an initial proposal to sell off public lands to pay off the national debt, to a proposal co-sponsored by Craig to transfer control of federal lands to the states, and now to Craig's latest proposal to allow states and the federal government to co-manage selected tracts of public lands at the discretion of the Forest Service director.

He's just talking Forest Service lands now, as well — not Bureau of Land Management lands, which are often less productive.

His latest proposal depends on the movement of the Western states, he said, and whether they pass laws similar to a proposal passed in this year's Idaho legislative session to allow the state and the federal government to co-manage lush north Idaho public lands.

"It depends on where the states go," he said.

He based his assertions that the federal government would run out of money to manage public lands on his own observations of the cuts in the Forest Service budget, he said.

Minnick said the state would be constitutionally obligated to manage the land solely to make the best profit possible. If he were elected, he said, he would oppose subsidies to ranchers and low-cost timber sales and possibly support some co-management.

Earlier in the day, Craig ate lunch in the Oregon Trail Elementary School cafeteria, where he answered interview questions about the latest hot topic in Congress, the immigration reform bill.

Idaho parks bills stall in Congress

By Meredith Cohn
States News Service

WASHINGTON — While legislation involving land in Idaho is often in dispute, three provisions now with the unlikely support of all sides still can not escape controversy.

Two of the bills would shift the boundaries at Craters of the Moon and Hagerman Fossil Beds national monuments, and the third would swap land in the Targhee National Forest for privately owned lands within the forest in Wyoming.

All have the backing of the Idaho delegation, federal agencies and environmentalists.

And all are breaching their way into law when they were dumped into a 50-bill package anchored by a highly controversial bill to designate wilderness areas in Utah. Democratic lawmakers, led by Sen. Bill Bradley of New Jersey, are seeking to kill the package because they oppose the Utah bill for releasing too much land for development.

The legislation was lumped together by Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee Chairman Frank Murkowski, R-Alaska. He said it was to relieve the logjam of bills passed by the panel but languishing on the Senate calendar.

But environmentalists say GOP leaders are holding all the other bills hostage to ensure passage of the Utah wilderness bill, which sets aside 18 million acres of roadless land. The conservationists, who want 5.7 million protected, fear land not included in the bill will be developed if it is not shielded by Congress.

The unenacted Idaho lands bills include:

- The Craters of the Moon National Monument bill, which has been in the park service's legislative wish list for years. It would allow the agency to transfer 315 acres to the Bureau of Land Management on the north boundary where livestock enters in return for 170 acres of that agency's land. Thirty-seven acres of private land would also be added to the monument.

- The Hagerman Fossil Beds National Monument bill, which is also supported by the park service. It would allow the agency to purchase 65 acres of land on the east bank of the Snake River for a visitors' center.

The bill would allow states to prevent children who are illegal aliens from attending public schools, as well as bar illegal aliens from applying for some forms of welfare on behalf of their U.S.-born children.

Schools shouldn't be the enforcement wing of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, but they should have reporting authority if illegal aliens enroll in school, Craig said. The INS would then take steps to ship the aliens back to where they came from.

"I don't want school district personnel to be cops," he said.

The policy is aimed more at states such as California and Texas that draw more illegal immigrants than Idaho, he said. It's designed to ease the burden on taxpayers who support services for illegal aliens, he said, and would likely have little impact on Idaho schools.

Said Minnick: "So he wants to punish 6-year-olds for the sins of their father? I can't think of anything more heartless or more cruel."

Both candidates plan to spend more than $2 million during the campaign. Craig has set his budget at $2.2 million. Minnick said he will spend $500,000 of his own money and another $2 million through contributions.

• And the Targhee National Forest land swap bill, which is sought by the U.S. Forest Service. It would trade federal land now peppered with private cabins for some property owned by Ricks College in Wyoming. That land is prime grizzly bear habitat and has been long sought by the conservation community and the federal government for protection.

"A lot of good things in that bill could be torpedoed by the Utah Wilderness provision and it's unfortunate," said Kevin Collins, a spokesman for the National Parks and Conservation Association, an environmental group. Collins said the group is willing to sacrifice the Idaho bills and the others for now, in order to kill the Utah bill. The group prefers that all the bills included in the package be passed by Congress separately so they are properly debated and publicly aired.

Supporters and opponents of the massive package, which includes the Idaho bills, privately said they expect the package to win enough support to pass the Senate and then the House. However, President Clinton is expected to veto the legislation.

Husband recounts scene in Kimberly native's murder retrial

The Associated Press

PROVO, Utah — Allen Lafferty, nearly a dozen years after finding his wife and baby daughter dead, described the horrifying scene Monday at the retrial of his oldest brother Ron, who is accused in the slayings.

Allen Lafferty was the first witness called by the prosecution to retell the bloody tale and its bizarre religious underpinnings to a 12-member jury empaneled for the murder trial in 4th District Court.

At times holding back tears, Allen Lafferty recalled coming home from work the night of July 24, 1984 to find blood on the walls and curtains of his American Fork duplex. He remembered touching the cold bodies of his 15-month-old daughter Erica, found slumped in her crib, and his wife Brenda, who fought her killer in the home's kitchen.

Brenda Wright Lafferty was a native of Kimberly.

Jim Wright, Brenda's father, said it was the first time in about eight years that he had seen his former son-in-law, who has remarried and lives in Southern California.

Allen Lafferty, dressed in an olive green suit, black T-shirt and hair pulled back into a ponytail, briefly talked with Wright, his wife and four of their daughters during a break in the trial.

"I feel very sorry for Allen ... he was a victim too," Wright said.

The 61-year-old Kimberly, Idaho, resident said the name Wright is prominently displayed on Brenda's headstone.

He said attending the trial is a show of support for his late daughter, granddaughter and those who have worked on the case.

"It opens old wounds," he said. "But we felt we needed to do it."

Asked to confirm a photo of his former wife lying on the blood-covered floor, an electric cord wrapped around her neck, Allen Lafferty hesitated and in a barely audible voice said, "Yes, that's how it looked."

Twin Falls

Norman W. Jacobson

Norman Wilbur Jacobson, 79, of Twin Falls, died Sunday, March 24, 1996, at the Heritage Retirement Center in Twin Falls.

He was born Feb. 20, 1917, in Alameda, Calif., the son of John G. and Amanda Floodman Jacobson. He grew up in Alameda and Berkeley, Calif., and for a short time, lived with his grandparents in Auburn, Calif. He graduated from San Jose, Calif., High School and then enlisted in the U.S. Navy where he spent six years on sea duty and 3 1/2 years on submarine repair. Following his Navy service, he worked for 25 years for the U.S. Civil Service at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and the Ames Research Center.

He married Vivian Kowalski on July 9, 1954, in San Jose, Calif. After retirement in 1972, they moved to Twin Falls where he was known as "Mr. Fixit" at his home, church and neighborhood. Mr. Jacobson became a born again Christian in December of 1983, at the First Presbyterian Church in San Jose, Calif., where he served as an Elder and taught the fifth- and sixth-year Sunday School classes. He also taught Sunday School at Twin Falls Reformed Church. He was Legislative Chairman of the American Legion Post in Sunnyside, Calif. Norman was a charter member of the Neighborhood Watch Program in Twin Falls.

He loved gardening, hunting, fishing, and had been a rock hound since his high school days. His favorite places were the hills and mountains of California's Yosemite Wilderness area and Yosemite National Park. His favorite trips were to Alaska, Australia, and Switzerland, and his greatest inspiration was his wife.

Survivors include his wife, Vivian Jacobson of Twin Falls; one brother, Marvin Jacobson of Auburn, Calif.; three sisters, Alice Darby of San Jose, Calif., Mildred McHenry of Palo Alto, Calif., and Doris Bellumini of Carmichael, Calif.; and several nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by his parents, two brothers, and one sister.

A memorial service will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday, March 27, 1996, at the Twin Falls Reformed Church, with the Rev. Brian Vetter officiating. Cremation took place at White Crematory and arrangements are under the direction of White Mortuary in Twin Falls.

Buhl

Emil L. Haumont

Emil Laron Haumont, 86, of Buhl, died Sunday, March 24, 1996, at the Snake River Rehabilitation and Living Center in Buhl.

He was born Jan. 31, 1910, in a sod house near Broken Bow, Neb., the son of William T. and Phyllis Govaerts Haumont. He received his education in Dry Valley High School in 1929. He married Helen Christensen in 1930, and they had one son, Larry. He later married Garnet (Toots) Dickman in 1941, and moved to Buhl that same year. He owned and operated school buses for 30 years. He also did custom farming and was a volunteer fireman for 17 years. Due to ill-health outdoors and was an avid fisherman and hunter.

He was survived by his wife, Garnet (Toots) Haumont, three sons, Larry (Doris) Haumont of Lincoln, Neb., and Dean (Maxine) Haumont of Buhl; a daughter, Donna Haumont (Richard) Crook of Sandpoint, Utah; three grandchildren, Darin Haumont, Danny Crook and Cadeo Crook; two great-grandchildren, Challe and Betsy Wood in Ketchum. Rev. Mark Cox will be the speaker. Interment will follow at the Ketchum Cemetery. Arrangements are under the direction of the Wood River Funeral Chapel in Hailey.

Ketchum

Carl R. Pothier
Carl R. Pothier, 80, a native Ketchum resident, died Saturday, March 23, 1996, at his home in Hagerman.

Carl was born July 26, 1915, in a log cabin on the Farman ranch south of Ketchum, the son of Fred and Ella Pothier. His family moved to Boise during his childhood years, with many summers spent in the Wood River Valley where he worked for his uncle, Smith Farman.

After high school, Carl served a term in the Merchant Marines, and then attended the University of Washington for two years studying architecture. During World War II, he served as a U.S. Navy flier in the Pacific Theater. After his military service, Carl returned to Ketchum where he and Frank Morrison operated the P and M Sawmill on Warm Springs Creek. During his lifetime, he built many beautiful log cabins, homes and other structures in the Ketchum area, including the first house in Warm Springs. In addition to construction, Carl was active in mining and oil ventures.

Carl met Mary Lee House in Ketchum in 1948. They were married May 9, 1953 in Elko, Nev. Several years ago, they purchased a second home in the Bannock Valley, and have been year-round residents there since 1993.

Survivors include his wife, Mary Pothier of Hagerman; six children, Jerry Mintun of Nevada, Tom Mintun of San Diego, Calif., Rene A. Pothier of Colorado, Joanne Kropf of Bona Oro, Colorado, Kropf of Ketchum, and Val Webster of Boise, and four grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his parents, three brothers, one sister, and one grandson.

Carl will be remembered for his firm faith in God, and for his love of sharing his salvation in Jesus with others.

The funeral will be held at 1 p.m. Tuesday, April 2, 1996, at the Presbyterian Church of the Big Wood in Ketchum. Rev. Mark Cox will be the speaker. Interment will follow at the Ketchum Cemetery. Arrangements are under the direction of the Wood River Funeral Chapel in Hailey.

Conservation effort could involve swapping of land

ISLAND PARK (AP) — A unique conservation effort could allow construction of more homes in one part of the Island Park area to preserve a wetlands-rich ranch in another.

The Targhee National Forest has proposed trading 40 acres of its near Island Park Village for the 160-acre Lucky Dog Ranch, a prime piece of land east of U.S. Highway 20 that the agency has coveted for years.

The swap would preserve important springs and meadows, but development would increase in the woods around the village. Some neighbors of the existing public land say the tradeoff is not worth the price.

But Island Park District Ranger Adrian Keller said the Lucky Dog land has a greater variety of habitat than the Forest Service property. There also is no development between the ranch and Yellowstone National Park, making it a valuable corridor for grizzly bears.

Initial estimates by Fremont County show the trade could result in up to 176 new homes, while only 42 would be allowed if Lucky Dog were developed.

The 40 acres to be traded have been logged in stages over the decades, most recently last fall. The Nature Conservancy bought the remote Lucky Dog Ranch last year, but cannot afford to keep it. So the conservancy offered to trade for forest land next to an existing pocket of development, and gave an option on that land to Rexburg developer Rex Warden.

Much of the land Warden would get is on a forested bench overlooking Henry's Lake Flat, the Centennial Mountains and Sawtooth Peak. Still, an independent appraisal found the Lucky Dog land is worth more as a potential vacation home spot, and the government would get an undiscussed cash payment to The Nature Conservancy.

It may seem odd for The Nature Conservancy to make a deal that increases local development. But the group's Henry's Fork Project manager said the Lucky Dog land is that important.

"There's definitely a tradeoff," Louise Keller said. "It is a perfect world, we'd like to see both pieces protected."

Sixty of the 160 acres at Lucky Dog are wetlands and could not be developed even if someone wanted to build on the land. All 440 acres of Forest Service land near Island Park Village are dry, although building would not be allowed on some of the bench slopes.

Several owners of land adjacent to the Forest Service property have written letters protesting the swap.

"We all paid top dollar for this," said Jerry Nave of Idaho Falls, who is building a vacation home in Island Park. "These are large lots because we didn't want a lot of traffic. We didn't want it to become another Mackinac Island."

The Forest Service will accept public comments about the proposed swap until Wednesday, and could have a decision from the regional forester by April. The trade could become final after a 45-day appeal period.

Birds of Prey area to limit guns, vehicles

BOISE (AP) — Hunting and motorized vehicles will be restricted in portions of the Snake River Birds of Prey National Conservation Area this spring.

Soaring use of the area is increasing conflicts between gun users and others, as well as between hikers and off-road drivers. Visits to the area have grown fourfold since 1994, according to the Bureau of Land Management.

So much hunting in an area used by so many people has become dangerous, said John Sullivan, the area's manager. He said a bullet hit the arm of a man roofing his house on Kuna Cave Road. Sullivan also said a National Guardsman in the Orchard Training Area caught a bullet in the thigh.

Bullets fly fiercest in the spring, when hunters seek ground squirrels. The animals, key food for the area's 1,600 to 2,000 hawks, owls, falcons and other raptors, hibernate over the winter and then return to their burrows for the summer.

Excessive use of four-wheel-drive vehicles is hurting vegetation and cutting into the rabbit population crucial to golden eagles, Sullivan said.

The restrictions:

- As soon as signs can be posted — which will likely be by April — vehicles will not be allowed on about six miles of road along the Snake River between Swan Falls Dam and Celebration Park.
- Later, when more signs are posted, vehicles will only be allowed on some of the dirt roads that crisscross the 483,000-acre area. Officials say they will leave enough posted roads to permit access to all parts of the area.

• Public lands will be closed to rifles and pistols year-round on a half-mile on either side of the Snake River from Grand View to near Celebration Park. Shotgun and muzzleloaders will be allowed, except from Feb. 15 to Aug. 31 when the area will be closed to all firearms.

• A region on the Snake River Plateau in the eastern part of the area will be closed to rifles and pistols year-round.

Cassia cracks down on road irrigating

By Jennifer Bunch
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Farmers in Cassia County will face stiffer penalties this year if convicted of watering county roads.

County commissioners voted Monday to crack down on the problem of irrigation water spraying onto roadways. They had the support of about a dozen highway district representatives.

Commissioners approved a $100 fine for a first offense. Subsequent violations will cost a farmer $300 apiece. No warnings will be given.

"We've had 10 years of warnings," Commissioner John Adams said.

Irrigation water spraying roadways can be a safety hazard for passing cars. Studies also show that water on roads speeds up their deterioration.

Until this year, a farmer's first offense has resulted in a warning. A $100 fine was imposed for the second offense, rising to $200 for the third and up to $300 thereafter.

Commissioners said the county received several complaints last year of irrigation water on roads, which is a misdemeanor crime. A few months ago they appointed a committee to come up with a plan to halt the problem.

The committee, which included law enforcement and highway district representatives, recommended the county impose harsher penalties and enforce them strictly. It recommended second violations be punished with $500 fines.

Commissioner Paul Christensen suggested the $300 fine instead, saying he thought it would be sufficient to draw farmers' attention. Highway district representatives and the other commissioners agreed, but the county may consider a $500 fine next year if $300 isn't enough to get the message across.

The Burley and Oakley highway districts together will look for someone to patrol county roads, at least on a part-time basis south of Burley. The highway districts and county will share in the staffing cost.

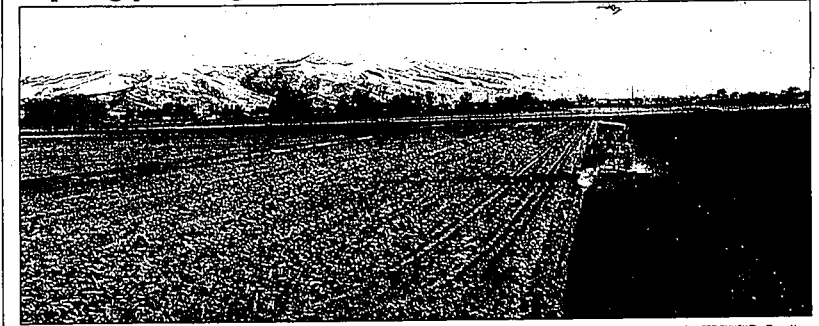

The consensus Monday was that it would be difficult to find someone willing to do such an unpopular job in a community where anonymity is nonexistent.

"Nobody wants to be the bad guy," was an often-repeated phrase at Monday's meeting. Many of those present expected to take some heat for supporting the stricter penalties.

"I really don't have any problem with throwing the book at it," Oakley Highway District Chairman Bill Grumney said.

If the fines are strictly enforced, the problem should be solved quickly, he said.

After a year, graffiti law looks good

By Kevin Miller
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Since a tough anti-graffiti ordinance was passed almost a year ago, the walls in this town have virtually been wiped clean of unwanted gray paint.

Only a handful of minor graffiti cases have been found in Rupert during the past few months, and the city's hard line against vandalism has received much of the credit.

In April 1995, the City Council passed an emergency graffiti ordinance that made parents financially responsible for any damage caused if their children are found guilty of defacing property.

Following passage of the ordinance, City Attorney Rick Bollar filed five civil suits against parents for their children's involvement in last year's graffiti outbreak. The suits sought more than $5,000 in compensation for property owners.

That sent a strong message to would-be vandals, Rupert merchant John Cox said.

"I think the city and the prosecutor cracking down on those guys has a lot to do with the fact that we haven't been hit for some time," said Cox, owner of the Rupert Trading Post, which was a graffiti target three times in 1995.

Within hours of discovering his business had been vandalized, as vandals like to call their handiwork, Cox would scrub the paint away.

"These guys have not earned the right to make their mark on my building," Cox said.

As part of their punishment, juveniles convicted of vandalism are made to serve their community service time cleaning up around town.

"It was really a treat to see those young boys out here pulling weeds and sweeping the streets with a police officer standing by," Cox said.

"That was a program that worked quite well," Mayor Dwinelle Allred said.

Warm-weather months have been the worst for graffiti, and police are preparing to deal with the vandalism if it creeps up again, Rupert Police Detective Terry Quinn said.

The recent discoveries of graffiti alarmed police enough that additional surveillance was ordered, Quinn said. "I've already instructed our police force to vigorously pursue any graffiti, petty thefts, vandalism or any other undesirable activities and to strictly enforce the law," Allred said.

"It is our intent to prosecute any violators of our ordinance."

Rupert's graffiti committee, an ad hoc association of business people and community leaders, is scheduled to begin meeting again as well, to head off any problems that may crop up this spring, Allred said.

He urged residents to report any signs of graffiti immediately. The last report of a major graffiti outbreak happened on Oct. 4, when vandals did more than $4,000 damage by spray painting businesses, vehicles, a city building, a residential trailer and a sign welcoming visitors to Rupert.

Buhl plans summer school program for K-3

By Mary Lou Potts
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — Popplewell Elementary School is preparing to launch a pilot summer school program for kindergarten through third grade. The program is in conjunction with the Title One Project.

Title One is a federally funded program for remedial students who are slower in developing their skills in reading and math. Students selected to attend the summer classes will be based on the following criteria:

- Kindergarten Readiness Test first and second grades — teacher referral and students who are being served by the Title One Project.

- Grade 3 — Iowa Test of Basic Skills scores and students under the Title One program.

Parental cooperation also will be needed to successfully complete the summer school schedule. The program was presented by Helen Brown at the regular meeting of the Buhl School District on March 19.

Also on the agenda was the presentation and demonstration of the department's Tech Prep Program. In conjunction with the College of Southern Idaho, students may earn college credits in this program that may be applied to the college of their choice.

The business education department also has a Tech Prep program where students can earn college credits in keyboarding, accounting and Word Perfect. One semester at CSI will secure these credits for the students.

A report on the bond election campaign was given by Michael Harlan Feldman.

The board approved Lombard-Conrad of Boise as the architects to plan the proposed high school complex. The plans are tentatively scheduled to be presented to the board in a special meeting on April 22. An owner's representative also will be selected to work with the architects.

When the plans are final, the bond committee will present the program to the public through brochures, informative meetings and personal contact.

The election date has been set for May 16.

That Tony Perkins was hired to do an evaluation of the police department last fall.

Perkins' report gave the police department a good review but added it needed more officers.

Romero said his reappointment by the mayor in January was based upon a list of accomplishments he had to do to keep his job, but interference from Geska would prevent Romero from accomplishing the tasks.

Geska said Monday night he thought he had a good working relationship with Romero. And he wanted Perkins to look at the department's operations, but not because of any concerns about personnel.

He tried to do a good job as a councilman, he said.

He was elected in 1993 to a four-year term and won the councilman's job by 286 votes. The votes in a recall election must equal or exceed that number.

Harris said that signature-collection tables will be set up on street corners, and he indicated he has many people waiting to sign the document.

Ex-Police Chief Ron Romero, who resigned his position last month to take a police job in Shoshone, said that Geska interfered in police business continually and did not support the officers in any situation.

Geska was the influential reason

JEROME — Sheriff George W. Silver III told county commissioners Monday he may need more money in his budget to cover holiday and overtime expenses for his staff.

While his expenses are on budget through the first five months of the current fiscal year, Silver said his officers' accumulated overtime and vacation pay may result in a $10,556 deficit by the end of the year.

In addition, his constantly full jail, and increases in the cost of food, require more for another officer, Silver said.

The "current expense" budget shows a surplus of $241,519.

"That $241,000 everybody thinks we have hanging out there, just isn't there," County Clerk, Cheryl Watts said. "We are going to need that money to carry us from October through December until tax levies are received."

While both sides appeared to agree the sheriff's department could make do on existing funds, next year may pose the real problem.

With the expected start of the multi-county 911 dispatch system around late summer, the sheriff's department will lose nearly $100,000 in "fees" it generates through dispatching contracts with other entities.

Commissioner John Toolson said that with the 3 percent tax levy cap, the justice fund could only generate an additional $72,000 in taxes next year, despite the loss of the $100,000.

"We'll need to look at increased income from other sources," Commissioner Roy Prescott said. "I don't know where we're going to make major changes in the courthouse budget. We tell the courts to lock up offenders, which requires more jailers, which in turn requires more staff to process more paper work."

Other business: Prescott said he hoped to arrange a meeting Tuesday with representatives of the city and school district to discuss further a coordinated effort in the sheriff's plans to pursue bond elections.

Approved a request from Emergency Medical Services to purchase an ambulance service-specific computer software program for $7,000. The software will enhance the department's record keeping and billing procedures, according to EMS Director, Larry Wood.

Consented to potatoes and an average yield of 280 100-pound sacks per acre, it makes a huge difference whether the average price per sack is under $2 as it was in 1985 or more than $8 as it was this year.

Bessley, who has campaigned for a cooperative effort to tame the process market, could not be more pleased. "For farmers, for the whole industry, the timing is perfect," he said.

Increased demand in the snack food arena and in Asian markets finds dehydrators and their customers more willing than ever to venture into uncharted territory to secure raw product.

Farmers find market for low-quality spuds

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Eastern Idaho potato growers are on the brink of a first-ever set of contracts for lower-grade potatoes.

A little more than a year ago, eastern Idaho growers banded together to push prices up on premium-size potatoes.

For the first time in the industry's history, a contract is on the table for wet process-grade potatoes — those culled when spuds are packed for the fresh market.

For the first time in the industry's history, a contract is on the table for wet process-grade potatoes — those culled when spuds are packed for the fresh market.

A contract for dry eliminators — potatoes culled as they come out of the field — also has been offered by a second wet processor.

Idaho Pacific Corp. of Ririe is negotiating both wet process and dry eliminator contracts, while Pillsbury of Shelley has put forth two contracts for dry eliminators.

Besides giving growers more control over their product, the contracts also stand to boost the entire economy in eastern Idaho. In an industry plagued by wild swings in prices, the contracts represent stability.

Idaho produced 138 million 100-pound sacks of potatoes last year. Of that, 29 million sacks went to delidration, representing nearly two-thirds of the 42 million sacks that were dehydrated nationwide. So the prices a grower gets for his process-grade spuds — 40 percent of the fresh crop in eastern Idaho — greatly affects the overall average price of his entire crop.

In Madison County alone, the impact of prices can be as much as $80 million annually. With 33,000 acres planted in potatoes and an average yield of 280 100-pound sacks per acre, it makes a huge difference whether the average price per sack is under $2 as it was in 1985 or more than $8 as it was this year.

Bessley, who has campaigned for a cooperative effort to tame the process market, could not be more pleased. "For farmers, for the whole industry, the timing is perfect," he said.

Increased demand in the snack food arena and in Asian markets finds dehydrators and their customers more willing than ever to venture into uncharted territory to secure raw product.

Hillary Clinton receives instructions on using an MRE (meal ready to eat) U.S. military ration from Sgt. Ellen Sutherland during a lunch with U.S. soldiers in Tuzla Monday.

First lady sees troops in Bosnia

MARKOVIC, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Protected by sharpshooters, Hillary Rodham Clinton swooped into a military zone by Black Hawk helicopter Monday to deliver a personal "Thank you, thank you, thank you" to U.S. troops.

"They're making a difference," the first lady said of the 18,500 Americans working as peacekeepers in Bosnia.

Mrs. Clinton became the first presidential spouse since Eleanor Roosevelt to make such an extensive trip into what can be considered a hostile area, though others have visited hot spots.

She was proud of the distinction: "To be here on the ground is something I wanted to do so that maybe people back home would see it — not through the eyes of the secretary of the Army or someone in a position in the military — but like Eleanor Roosevelt, who has always done everything first, to visit the troops to say thank you."

Accompanied by her teen-age daughter Chelsea, the first lady plunged into a grueling goodbyes tour designed to boost troop morale in Bosnia and highlight efforts by Bosnians, Croats and Muslims to resolve deeply held differences. Standing on a dusty, makeshift boardwalk near an out-of-the-way military hospital, Mrs. Clinton said, "For the first time, children are playing again. Farmers are in their fields. People are moving into their homes."

The first lady acknowledged several "bumps in the road," a point underscored just three days ago when a U.S. soldier was killed in a vehicle accident. Mrs. Clinton visited the soldier's driving companion in the military hospital.

"It's not going to be easy," she said, pointing to the flight of Serbs from the area. "Sarajevo they held as the city came under Bosnian control. Feelings are very deep. There is a lot of pain. There is a lot to get over — a lot to forgive if there's going to be reconstruction and reconciliation."

But this was a day of celebration and celebrities — a day for the U.S. troops helping to uphold the Bosnian peace accord. Mrs. Clinton hosted a USO show with comedian Sinbad and singer Sheryl Crow and briefly addressed the gathering.

Under hard, gray skies, the first lady held a 1,000 cheering soldiers. "The first thing I want to say on behalf of the president and everybody else is thank you, thank you, thank you."

She applauded their efforts to keep peace in this troubled land. "We know we can lead in war," she said. "We are leading in peace."

But the highlight of her trip were visits to two fortified posts outside the U.S. base in Tuzla. Even President Clinton, restricted to the base by bad weather in January, did not see as much of this war-wracked region as Mrs. Clinton did Monday.

The troops seemed to appreciate it. Cameras chirped like a thousand crickets as she chatted with mine-disposal experts, examined heavy tanks and met a hero or two. Chelsea, 16, kept her usual low profile but remained constantly at her mother's side, posing for soldiers or talking softly with them.

Watching the first lady troop around in muted trench coat and pants, Sgt. Michael Tucker of Miami said, "She's a very important person. For her to take time to come and see us means a lot."

For others, though, this wasn't much more than a nice change of pace.

"Out here, it's kind of like 'Groundhog Day'! One day just like the next," said Sgt. Dave Mills of Somerset, Ky., referring to the Bill Murray movie about a day that wouldn't end. "So anything good is really good."

Taiwan, China move to peace

TAIPEI, China (AP) — China cooled its rhetoric and ended its war games Monday, and Taiwan proposed a significant peace move to Beijing, saying that both sides want to end their eight-month war of nerves.

China sent thousands of troops on military maneuvers near Taiwan and test-fired ballistic missiles in a failed attempt to undercut support for Taiwan's president, whom Beijing accuses of harboring dreams of independence.

Monday's developments indicate that the two rivals, having plunged into a confrontation that alarmed their Asian neighbors and drew in the U.S. Navy, are now looking for ways to get relations back to normal.

The end of the war games had been scheduled, and Taiwan warned another may be imminent, although not so threatening. But China's move coincided with a shift in emphasis from vilifying President Lee Teng-hui of Taiwan to talking about what must be done to restore the peace.

The Atocha Chronicle

In September, 1622, during a hurricane off the Florida Keys, the Spanish galleon "Siererra de Atocha" sank to the ocean floor. She took down with her a most generous cargo of silver and gold not to be seen again for more than three centuries.

On July 20, 1958, after twenty years of heartache, hard work and frustration, the resting place of the lower half of the Atocha was located by Mel Fisher's Treasure Salvors, Inc. They painstakingly retrieved the fabulous Treasure that had been destined for King Phillip IV of Spain.

OWN A PIECE OF HISTORY

...The Treasure of the Atocha

You've all read or heard the story... how Mel Fisher recovered a king's treasure from the Spanish galleon shipwrecked in 1622.

Now, after more than 3 centuries, part of the treasure, in the form of silver ingots, has been skillfully wrought into exquisite jewelry depicting the period of its disappearance: tall ships, anchors, crucifixes, spanish crowns and sand dollar earrings, rings, pendants, chains, medallions and more. Each piece bears the stamp "Atocha 1622" and comes with a certificate of authenticity.

This precious cargo has reached a new destination: JCPenney... and ultimately YOU!

Idaho

Lawmakers side with clinic by cutting inspectors

BOISE (AP) — When an eastern Idaho substance abuse clinic got in trouble with the state health department, it turned to the Legislature.

Lawmakers reacted by cutting funding for state inspectors, whose job was to protect people treated by the clinic.

The lobbying began after the center, Ashton Memorial Chemical Dependency Unit in Idaho Falls, had its license downgraded to provisional status.

"These concerns have stemmed from the quality of client care, record-keeping, planning treatment programs and questions regarding staff training,"

Department of Health and Welfare spokesman David Ensens said.

"We have had an ongoing investigation of that facility and we've taken a critical eye at their operations."

Defending their actions as a cost-cutting move, Republican lawmakers cut seven regional substance abuse coordinators for a savings of $241,000. They left in enough money for Health and Welfare to continue providing some monitoring, with a skeleton crew of two based in Boise.

They are charged with making sure that $6.5 million in state and federal treatment money is not being wasted at private treatment centers across Idaho.

Gov. Phil Batt has labeled the Legislature's decision "extremely unfortunate."

"Those folks were part of the backbone of the entire effort against drug dependency," Batt said. "I will see if there is a deficiency caused by this and if so, I will try to see that (the money) is restored."

Regional substance abuse coordinators license some 40 treatment centers across the state, help develop and coordinate drug treatment and prevention programs and provide people with information on local services.

They also monitor the three firms that hold the contracts for the $6.5 million in funding.

Port of Hope operates in Coeur d'Alene, Lewiston, Nampa, Boise and Twin Falls. Road to Recovery works in Pocatello, and Ashton Memorial serves eastern Idaho with an inpatient treatment unit in Idaho Falls.

During the last two years, Ashton Memorial has been under fire from Health and Welfare.

Evans pleads guilty

POCATELLO (AP) — The wife of Oneida County Prosecutor David Evans — former Gov. John Evans' daughter-in-law — has pleaded guilty to two of three felony charges of obtaining a controlled substance by prescription fraud.

Marian Zamorano Evans, 42, of Malad, entered her pleas last week before 6th District Judge William Woodland in exchange for prosecutors dropping the third charge.

Mrs. Evans was accused in December of forging prescriptions and using them to purchase drugs from local pharmacies. Her husband said she became addicted to cocaine after taking the medication for back problems, and had been undergoing rehabilitation since last August.

WASHINGTON — Interest rates on short-term Treasury securities fell in Monday's auction.

The Treasury Department sold $13.6 billion in three-month bills at an average discount rate of 4.99 percent, down from 5.02 percent last week. Another $13.5 billion was sold in six-month bills at an average discount rate of 4.97 percent, down from 5.06 percent.

The three-month bill was the lowest since they sold for 4.95 percent on March 11. The six-month bill rate was the lowest since they averaged 4.80 percent on March 4.

The new discount rates underscore the actual return to investors — 5.12 percent for three-month bills and a $100-bill bill selling for $97,873.90 and 5.17 percent for a six-month bill selling for $97,748.70.

Software Spectrum to buy Spokane's Egghead division

SPOKANE, Wash. — Software retailer Egghead Inc. said today it will sell its corporate, government and education division to Software Spectrum Inc. for $45 million.

The sale will allow the Spokane, Wash.-based Egghead to focus on its core software retailing business. The company operates 164 retail software stores.

Garland, Texas-based Software Spectrum said the purchase will increase its presence as a reseller of computer software to businesses and organizations. The acquisition is expected to nearly double the company's annual revenue to $767 million.

Egghead said it will retain and liquidate the division's inventory and receivables. The division being sold has $429 million in revenue, about half of Egghead's fiscal 1995 revenue of $863 million.

Software Spectrum will assume control of Egghead's North American sales force and call center in Spokane. The purchase is subject to regulatory approval and should close by May 31.

Advil runs ads blaming Tylenol for liver damage

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — It just keeps getting uglier. Makers of the painkiller Advil opened a new front in their advertising war with Tylenol this week by publishing in major newspapers a patient's letter blaming Tylenol for destroying his liver.

The attack came less than two weeks after the major television networks said they were yanking commercials for both pills, ABC, which led the trend, said the drug makers were unduly alarming consumers by overstating the dangerous side effects of each other products.

The confrontations illustrate a big change in strategy for the leaders in the nearly $3 billion market for headache remedies. Instead of touting the potency of their own products, Tylenol and Advil have spent the last few months tearing each other down in increasingly blatant spots.

Marketing experts said Friday if the sniping doesn't end soon, some people will get so scared that they'll stop taking all over-the-counter painkillers.

What the ads fail to mention is that doctors increase the blame to the attack ads in the political arena. There's a lot of evidence that the bottom line is fewer people are going out to vote," said Al Reis, owner of the Great Neck, N.Y. marketing consultancy Reis & Reis.

Laurel Carter, a director of marketing with the big ad agency Foote, Cone & Belding said the ads risk making a cynical public distrustful of all advertising.

Laurel Carter, a director of marketing with the big ad agency Foote, Cone & Belding said the ads risk making a cynical public distrustful of all advertising.

How America's cures pain

Tylenol still leads the $2.7 billion U.S. market for painkillers, but its sales fell last year.

would ban future drug ads that question the safety of competitors. Other networks followed ABC's lead, to varying degrees.

Advil's barrage resumed Wednesday, first in the New York Times.

Without identifying itself as the maker of Advil, Whitehall-Robins Healthcare Co. reprinted a full-page advertisement originally placed March 14 in The Washington Times by Antonio Benedi of Virginia.

Benedi won an $8.8 million verdict in 1994 against Tylenol when he convinced a jury that the combination of Tylenol and his habit of two to three alcoholic drinks per day destroyed his liver, necessitating an emergency transplant.

Benedi said he was angered by Tylenol ads touting it as "the safest type of pain reliever you can buy."

"We proved in a court of law that the makers of Tylenol had known for more than a decade about the danger of devastating liver injury caused by Tylenol in people who regularly drink alcohol," the ad said.

"Liver disease experts had asked the public for many years to warn the public about the risk. Tylenol ignored the plea."

Ron Schmid, a spokesman for Tylenol's maker, McNeil Consumer Products, said Friday that the reprinting of the Benedi ad was "outrageous and set a new low in negative advertising."

Particularly galling, said Schmid, is that the Food and Drug Administration has recommended alcohol warning labels on all over-the-counter painkillers since 1993 — including Advil.

"We voluntarily put the warning label on our product. They did not and now they're taking advantage of the situation," he said.

At Whitehall-Robins, a division of American Home Products Corp., spokeswoman Carol Dombush defended the company's refusal to put the warning on Advil.

Tylenol remains the No. 1 painkiller with about a 30 percent share of the market compared to Advil's 13 percent.

While acknowledging Tylenol's sales decline in 1995, Perkins said sales were up 4 percent in the fourth quarter and will probably rise an additional 8 percent in the first three months of this year.

Stocks end mixed

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Stocks ended Monday's session mixed, after coming under pressure for most of the session from end-of-the-quarter profit-taking.

The Dow Jones industrial average rallied in the final minutes to close up 7.22 at 5,643.86. The blue-chip index rose more than 23 points early in the day, retreated at mid-morning to spend most of the session slightly lower, but rallied gently into the close.

Declining issues edged out advances on the New York Stock Exchange, where volume was light at 334.72 million shares as of 4 p.m. but above Friday's sluggish pace.

Broad-market indexes ended mixed. The NYSE's composite index was unchanged at 348.77. The Standard & Poor's 500-stock index fell 0.58 to 650.04.

The Nasdaq composite index fell 15.13 to 1,087.09. The American Stock Exchange's market value index fell 1.57 to 567.78.

Study slams managed care's cheaper drugs

Chicago Tribune

CHICAGO — When she finished a study of managed-care practices in 1992, Susan Horn was so surprised by the results that she spent another two years verifying them.

But for Mary Lynn Moody and Dr. Pam Kushner, the results, which ruffled the feathers of the managed-care industry when they were released this week, confirmed what they already knew: that managed care, in its persistent push to cut costs, may be performing nose surgery to spite its face.

More important, the study further confirmed that the managed-care industry needs to place less emphasis on the cost of prescription drugs and more on their effectiveness and safety, said Moody, drug-information coordinator for Michael, Reese Hospital, and Kushner, who has a family practice in Long Beach, Calif.

The study, published last Wednesday in the American Journal of Managed Care, raises serious doubts about one of the main tenets of managed care: that use of cheaper prescription drugs provides high-quality but lower-cost health care.

The yearlong study tracked 13,000 patients at six health maintenance organizations in the East and West. Half the HMOs were for-profit, half non-profit. The patients were treated for at least one of the following ailments: ear infection, arthritis, ulcers and high blood pressure.

The study found that patients in HMOs with restricted formularies — the menu of prescription drugs from which their doctors are allowed to choose — were more likely to be ill longer, to make more physician and emergency-room visits, to be hospitalized more and to require more prescription drugs. For patients in HMOs with severe restrictions, this was twice as likely to happen as when there were no restrictions.

The outcome so contradicted earlier evidence that Horn, senior scientist at the Institute for Clinical Outcomes Research in Salt Lake City, was inclined not to believe it. But after she reviewed them for two more years, and after a peer review of another year or so, the results stood.

The significant difference, she said, was that the study for the first time looked at individuals in managed care and not at overall averages, which show that health costs are falling, thanks in large part to restrictions on what drugs can be prescribed.

The study, which was funded by the six

HMOs and the National Pharmaceutical Council, drew strong criticism from the managed-care industry.

Not only did it fail to establish a cause-and-effect relationship between drug formularies and quality of care, but it also "leaves the impression that HMOs make decisions simply based on cost," said Carol Sardinia, director of communications for the Academy of Managed Care Pharmacy.

"Perhaps the greatest flaw in the analysis, however, is that it fails to look at what drug costs and drug/medical-utilization patterns were at the plans before the formularies were put in place," Sardinia said in a statement.

Horn said that some of the HMOs studied have had formularies for as long as 12 years and should have been "able to get utilization under control" in that time.

Michael Reese's Moody said, "In managed care, the people making the decisions about drugs" are more apt to be bean counters who do not look beyond the cost of drugs to their effectiveness.

Women prove SEC power, too

The Associated Press

Georgia star Saudia Roundtree and Tennessee coach Pat Summitt made sure the SEC will show up well in the women's Final Four. Connecticut, meanwhile, ensured itself of a chance to win another championship.

Connecticut slowed Vanderbilt's Sheri Sam for a 67-57 win Monday night in the NCAA Midwest Regional final.

The Huskies advanced to play Tennessee in the national semifinals next Friday night in Charlotte, N.C. — a rematch of last year's championship game. Connecticut won that game 70-64 and also beat Tennessee in the regular season this year, 59-53 on Jan. 6.

Roundtree scored a career-high 37 points as the Lady Bulldogs beat top-seeded Louisiana Tech 90-76 to win the Midwest Regional. Tennessee, urged on by Summitt during a halftime talk, rallied from a 17-point deficit margin to beat Virginia 52-46 in the East final.

"Pat told us 'We're going to win. We're going to win,'" point guard Michelle Marciniak said. "We've been listening to her all year, and we weren't going to stop now."

Later Monday night, Auburn, also from the Southeastern Conference, faced Stanford in the West final.

The men's Final Four has also an SEC slant, with Kentucky and Mississippi State among the remaining teams.

Elliott and Nykesha Sales led Connecticut back into the Final Four.

The Huskies (34-3) are trying to become just the second team in 15 years of NCAA women's play to win consecutive national titles. Southern California did it

Sabatini beats Capriati in Lipton

The Associated Press

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. — Jennifer Capriati walked off the court with a wave and a smile, refreshed about life and tennis despite a straight-set loss to Gabriela Sabatini.

Sabatini won 6-1, 6-4 Monday in the fourth round of the Lipton Championships, interrupting a comeback but reviving a rivalry dormant for the past three years.

"I could have done a little bit better," said Capriati, who officially puts her teenage years behind her Friday when she turns 20. "But still, I feel like I had a good tournament and a great time, so I'm very happy with myself and with everything."

Rebounding from personal problems, Capriati was playing in her third tournament since mid-February after just one match the previous 2½ years. A first-round loss in the 1993 U.S. Open left Capriati in tears and drove her from the WTA Tour.

She found Monday's defeat easier to accept.

"I feel like I'm back, so I'm back," she said. "I'm ready to play."

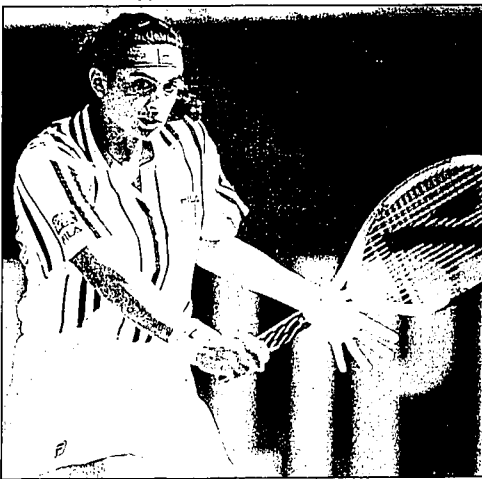

With a record this year of 7-3, Capriati will enter the computer rankings next week at about 105th. She said her schedule is undetermined, but the comeback will continue.

"I was surprised with the way she was playing," Sabatini said. "She seems to be very fit, and she's hitting the ball very well. Her rhythm was very good. I had to play a great match to beat her."

Advancing to the fourth round in the men's draw were Andre Agassi and Stefan Edberg.

Agassi, seeded third, survived his second consecutive three-set duel to beat Jean-Philippe Fleurian 6-2, 4-6, 6-2. Edberg posted a 6-4, 6-2 victory over Nicolas Pereira, who upset top-ranked Thomas Muster in the second round.

Other women reaching the quarterfinals included top seed Steffi Graf, No. 3

Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina returns the ball to Jennifer Capriati at the Lipton Championships in Key Biscayne, Fla., Monday. Sabatini beat Capriati 6-1, 6-4.

Anke Huber, No. 5 Kimiko Date and No. 6 Chanda Rubin.

Graf won the final 11 games to stun No. 9 Mary Joe Fernandez in 47 minutes, 6-1, 6-0; Huber defeated Judith Wiesner 6-4, 6-4; Date beat Silvia Farina 6-2, 6-2; and Rubin eliminated Nathalie Tauziat 6-3, 6-4.

Monday's Capriati-Sabatini matchup was their 15th but the first in three years.

"Just like old times," Capriati said with a grin.

The rivalry dates to 1990. Capriati's first loss as a pro came in the final of her first tournament against Sabatini at Boca Raton, Fla.

Cubs' Dibble announces career hiatus

The Associated Press

MESA, Ariz. — Fiery Rob Dibble, a two-time NL All-Star and member of the "Nasty Boys" bullpen of the 1990 World Series champion Cincinnati Reds, retired from baseball Monday, then later said he might be back.

He said he was only taking a month off and would decide then whether to launch a comeback in the minors.

Chicago was carrying the 32-year-old veteran as a non-roster player this spring.

Dibble told Chicago's WGN radio station Monday evening that he has been confused by too many pitching coaches telling him too many different things in the last few years.

"I'm going to take a month off to regroup," Dibble said. "I got to get my head on straight and I got figure out how to pitch again."

Cubs officials did not return telephone messages Monday night.

Dibble, a fastball-throwing right-hander known for his temper and brush-back pitches, missed most of the last two years after arthroscopic surgery on his right shoulder in April 1994.

"I can't go through anymore what I've been through the last three years," Dibble said earlier Monday at the Cubs spring training site. "It's embarrassing and I can't live with it anymore. It's tearing me apart."

He was 0-2 with a 24.55 ERA in 3.2 innings during spring training.

CSI coach search may end sometime this week

Sports
Larry Hovey

CSI president Gerald Meyerhoeffer has completed talking to his second basketball candidate and will have two more interviews this week.

"Both have been very impressive. I think all four of the finalists are of a caliber that we could take any of them and be successful," the president said.

This time, however, he omitted the possibility of a fifth interview late this week.

"There is a chance we can have the decision made by next Saturday," Meyerhoeffer said. "If nothing occurs, I think we're still on course for a press conference announcement the following Monday."

Other musings on a cold March afternoon:

When Ft. Hays State, Kan., won the NCAA Division II basketball championship Saturday, another notch went on the Trenkle family coaching record.

Suede Trenkle, oldest son of Fred and Anita Trenkle, is an assistant coach at the Kansas school. He transferred there from the University of Idaho, played three years, was a graduate assistant last year and joined the staff full time this year.

Father Fred, current head coach at San Diego State, of course, has a national title under his belt while coaching at Valley of Southern Idaho.

Utah Valley is the first team from the Scenic West Conference not to win a game at the national tournament since CSI dropped two straight in Hutchinson, Kan., in 1981.

You must remember, however, that the CSI losses came before the conference was reorganized into District 13 (i.e., Scenic West Athletic Conference, 1985) in the national program.

CSI also lost a couple of bi-regionals in Arizona, thus failing to qualify for the national tournament after winning the region.

Although the schedule — on-again, off-again — and the weather have worked against the CSI baseball Eagles, it is starting to appear that Coach Jim Walker has one of his better outfits in a while.

No, it doesn't have that booming long ball, big-inning prospect, but it appears solid on offense. What makes it look better is the pitching staff. For the first time in a while, Walker and pitching coach Dave Carter have some sophomores on the pitching staff. And Walker was pleased with the performance of a couple of freshmen on the mound last week.

"Most of the pitchers have shown maturity and that usually means consistency. They're coming in and throwing strikes," said Walker Saturday.

But, here again, the weather has stymied the Eagles, knocking off the final day of the McDonald's Slugout invitational.

Walker wanted that extra day to get a better gauge on his pitching depth and the ability of the team overall to hang in over a four-day, nine-game period. That type of run gives a coach a good idea as to team conditioning and mental toughness.

Broken arm keeps Browning out for good

The Associated Press

Tom Browning, who pitched a perfect game in 1988, told the Kansas City Royals on Monday that he was retiring because he was not able to bounce back from the broken arm he sustained in 1994.

Browning, 35, pitched 13 2-3 innings this spring, going 2-1 with a 9.88 ERA.

The left-hander said he never recovered what he lost when he broke his arm throwing a pitch on May 9, 1994.

Browning made it to the big leagues in 1984 with the Reds and stayed with them until he broke his arm in San Diego. The force of his throwing motion snapped a bone in the upper part of his pitching arm.

The Royals signed him to a minor league contract in April 1995, and he was 0-2 with an 8.10 earned run average in 10 innings before he was sidelined for the year with shoulder problems.

"I just don't have the endurance or the stamina to go on long innings," said Browning, adding that he would not consider going to the minor leagues or becoming a relief pitcher. "The agony and the amount of effort started wearing on me."

His career record was 123-90 record, with a 3.94 ERA. He pitched for the Reds' 1990 World Series champions, and was selected to the National League All-Star team the following season.

His perfect game, a 1-0 shutout, came Sept. 16, 1988, against the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Braves
Third baseman Chipper Jones will be sidelined from one to two weeks after undergoing surgery to remove a floating bone chip from his right knee.

Jones, who hit 23 home runs and 86 RBIs as a rookie last year, hurt himself while walking around during an off-day last week. Braves general manager John Schuerholz said Jones' arthroscopic surgery was successful.

Jones, 24 next month, was second to Hideo Nomo in the NL rookie of the year voting last season. He hit .265 and played in 140 of the Braves' 144 regular-season games.

Mets

Pete Harnisch will start the season on the 15-day disabled list, and the New York Mets' pitcher doesn't agree with the move.

Harnisch will open the season with St. Louis, the Mets' Class A affiliate of the Florida State League.

"I understand their position, but I don't feel it is necessary to go on the disabled list," said Harnisch, who had off-season surgery on his right shoulder and pitched in his first spring game only last Thursday.

Harnisch allowed six runs on seven hits — including four homers — in a 10-6 loss Monday to a split squad of Los Angeles Dodgers.

Rangers

Texas shortstop Benji Gil will undergo surgery Tuesday to repair a herniated disc in his lower back, and could be sidelined six to eight weeks.

An MRI exam on Gil's spine Monday detected the problem, said Dr. Drew Dossett. Gil had not played since March 15.

The Rangers are talking to other teams about shortstops, but it appears Kevin Elster will be the starter for Texas when it opens the season April 1.

Cubs

Rob Dibble, a two-time NL All-Star and member of the "Nasty Boys" bullpen of the 1990 World Series champion Cincinnati Reds, retired from baseball, then later said he might be back.

Dibble, known for his brash behavior and fiery demeanor, later said he plans to take a month off then determine if he wants to try to restart his career in the minors.

He had missed most of the past two years after arthroscopic surgery on his right shoulder in April 1994. Dibble also was with the Chicago White Sox and Milwaukee Brewers last season.

He was 27-25 with 89 saves and a 2.58 ERA in a major-league career that began in 1988. Dibble was a member of Cincinnati's World Series championship team in 1990, striking out 14 batters in 9 2-3 shutout innings in the post-season.

Blue Jays

Danny Cox, a middle reliever for Toronto for the last three seasons, was released by the Blue Jays. Cox, 36, was 1-3 with a 7.40 ERA in 24 games last year.

He pitched five scoreless innings in the 1993 All-Star game, and made three appearances in the 1993 World Series victory over Philadelphia.

The right-hander began his major league career with St. Louis in 1982. He pitched in the World Series for the Cardinals in 1985 and 1987, going 1-2. He tied a World Series record by allowing seven earned runs in a game in 1987 against Minnesota.

Cox also appeared in the post-season with Pittsburgh in 1992, and with the Cardinals in 1993. He pitched 276 games during his big league career.

Pirates

Kevin Young, once considered to be the Pittsburgh Pirates' top prospect, has an uncertain future in the organization. The first baseman cleared waivers. Young apparently will be released or sent to the Pirates' Triple-A Calumet club, although he could be traded.

Red Sox

Pitcher John Doherty, a 19th-round draft choice by Detroit in 1983, reached the end of the line with the Tigers when he was waived. The 28-year-old right-handed pitcher was quickly claimed by the Boston Red Sox.

Cardinals

Catcher Tom Pagnozzi sat out St. Louis' exhibition with the New York Yankees with an inflamed left wrist after having been struck by a bat in Saturday's game against Cincinnati. He's listed as day-to-day after an MRI was negative.

Reds

Cincinnati optioned starter Kevin Jarvis and reliever Johnny Ruffin to Triple-A Indianapolis. The Reds also assigned pitcher Trevor Wilson to their minor-league camp. Wilson was in camp on a minor-league contract.

Mariners

Seattle purchased first baseman Ricky Jordan from the California Angels. Jordan, 30, spent last season in Vancouver, the Angels' Triple-A farm club. He was with Philadelphia from 1988-94, hitting .282 with 54 homers and 300 RBIs in 662 games.

Angels

California placed right-handed pitcher Steve Ontiveros and Bryan Harvey on the 15-day disabled list, retroactive to March 24. Both pitchers are recovering from surgery on their right elbows and are eligible to be activated on April 7.

Giants

The Giants have given up on Jose Bautista, whose signing they hailed as a key move for their bullpen a year ago. Bautista was waived Monday after compiling a 10.80 ERA in seven games this spring.

Dodgers down Mets with 6 homers

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Raul Mondesi hit two of the Dodgers' six home runs, and had four RBIs as Los Angeles beat a split squad of New York Mets 10-6 Monday.

Mets starter Pete Harnisch took the loss, allowing six runs — and four of the homers — in four innings. Harnisch had been informed last Sunday he was going to start the season on the 15-day disabled list.

With the wind blowing out, the Mets combined for eight homers. Mike Blowers, Billy Ashley, Delino DeShields and Dave Hansen also connected for the Dodgers. Roberto Petagine and Charlie Greene homered for the Mets.

Red Sox 8, Phillies 7

CLEARWATER, Fla. — A three-run homer by pinch hitter Felix Jose off Ricky Bottalico broke a 5-5 tie in the top of the ninth inning, then Boston held on.

Tim Lincecum had a homer among three hits, and two RBIs, and Reggie Jefferson added two hits for Boston. Mickey Morandini, who had two RBIs, Mike Lieberthal and Gregg Jefferies had three hits each for the Phillies.

White Sox 6, Blue Jays 5

DUNEDIN, Fla. — Dave Martinez, who had a run-scoring triple during a three-run seventh-inning rally that tied the game, homered in the eighth to give Chicago the victory.

The Jays had built up a 5-2 lead after five innings, but the White Sox tied it in the seventh off Paul Spoljaric. In addition to the triple by Martinez, Chad Kreuter had a sacrifice fly and Robin Ventura had an RBI single.

Indians 4, Orioles 3

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — Orel Hersher turned in a strong pitching performance and Manny Ramirez homered as Cleveland won its seventh straight exhibition game.

Hersher allowed three hits and a walk in 4 2-3 shutout innings. He left with two on and two out in the fifth, and Alan Embree struck out Brady Anderson on three pitches. The Orioles got all their runs in the ninth off Jose Mesa.

San Diego Padre Jody Reed slides safely behind Chicago Cub catcher Scott Servais during the second inning of their spring training game in Mesa, Ariz., Monday.

Tigers 9, Marlins 7, 10

MELBOURNE, Fla. — Alan Trammell and Danny Bautista had two hits and two RBIs apiece, and wildness in the 10th inning by Florida's Matt Whisenant helped Detroit win.

With the score 7-7 after Detroit got two runs in the top of the ninth, left-hander Whisenant came on to walk four of the first five Tigers he faced — including Kimera Bartee break the tie. Trammell's grander accounted for the final run.

Cardinals 3, Yankees 0

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Ray Lankford had two hits and scored two runs, and five St. Louis pitchers combined on a three-hitter.

Starter Alan Benes, sidelined since March 10 with an inflammation of his neck, retired the first 13 New York batters. The rookie right-hander allowed only one out single by Paul O'Neill while striking out seven and walking none over five innings.

Rockies 8, Angels 7

TEMPE, Ariz. — Andres Galarra hit two home runs, and Colorado broke a tie with two runs off major league career saves leader Lee Smith in the ninth inning.

Galarra, who has seven hits including three homers in the last two games, had a solo homer to begin the scoring in the second. He also hit a three-run shot in the sixth off Angels starter Shawn Boskie.

Brewers 16, Mariners 4

PEORIA, Ariz. — Turner Ward hit a grand slam and Matt Mieske also homered as Brewers pounded out 16 hits.

Paul Monhart, starting for Seattle after a 12-day injury because of a muscle strain in his right calf, gave up a two-run double to Dave Nilsson in the first inning.

Padres 7, Cubs 6

MESA, Ariz. — Left-hander Fernando Valenzuela may have pitched his way out of the San Diego rotation when Chicago hit for six runs, but the Padres escaped with a victory.

Brad Ausmus — who was 3-for-5 — had an RBI triple off Cub reliever Turk Wendell in the ninth inning to tie the game at 6-6, and he scored the winning run on Jody Reed's double.

Athletics 13, Giants 6

PHOENIX — Phil Plantier had an RBI double in his first at-bat for the Athletics, and later had an RBI single as Oakland defeated the Giants to keep its record perfect against San Francisco this spring.

The A's have won all five games against their Bay Area rival, outscoring the Giants 56-28.

Plantier, obtained from the Detroit Tigers on Friday in a trade for minor leaguers Fausto Cruz and Ramon Ferrin, hit a liner to right-center in the first inning that hit the wall after taking one hop.

Thomas' 5-year spurt raises comparisons with the best

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Can you sign some baseballs, Frank? Just a quick picture, please. Hey, Frank, you got five minutes? Frank ... Frank ...

Frank Thomas, tall, muscular and strong with an engaging smile, puts up with the attention. It's part of being a big-time star with a big-time paycheck.

"There is a point where you don't feel like doing things and you tell people no," said Thomas, whose first five seasons with the Chicago White Sox have been five of the most consistently powerful in the game's history.

"I've learned to say no at the appropriate times. A lot of things that I do are very small in my mind, so it's not that hard for me to sign an autograph or something like that because it's second nature."

He can be a normal guy, too. He can soak his ankles in the same tub of ice water he's cooling a post-practice beer and cheer loudly during the final seconds of an NCAA playoff game, just like any fan.

Forbes magazine estimated last December that Thomas was the 25th highest paid athlete in 1995, making $7.8 million in salary and endorsements.

None of this would be possible without his bat and his uncanny eye for the strike zone. He's a big man who played one season as a tight end at Auburn, who can hit the ball out of sight. But most power hitters don't know the strike zone like Thomas, who finished 1995 hitting .298, with 40 home runs and 111 RBIs.

Johnson questions Ceballos' actions

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — If Cedric Ceballos expected his Los Angeles Lakers teammates to forgive his unexcused four-day Arizona vacation, forget it.

Ceballos finally turned up Sunday, but the Lakers didn't toss out a welcome mat for him. His sudden disappearance last Wednesday has splintered a team fighting Houston for fourth place in the Western Conference and home-court advantage in the first round of the playoffs.

Ceballos

"He abandoned us, you know. At a time like this, at a time we have to stick together," guard Nick Van Exel said. "It's going to be hard. We've got a team captain who just walks out."

Ceballos, 26, claimed unspecified family problems needed his attention, but he didn't otherwise explain his trip to Lake Havasu, Ariz., where he waterskied while the Lakers wondered why they didn't hear from him for four days.

"I had some personal and family problems to deal with. I apologize for myself and the actions of not letting my employers at the Lakers organization know this," he said. "It just got to a point where it was just a little too much for me. I just needed time."

Ceballos was taken off the suspended list Monday, and left with the team on a six-game road trip beginning Tuesday night at Orlando. Instead of starting against the Magic, he will play in a reserve role, coach Del Harris said.

Ceballos insisted his absence had nothing to do with basketball, and he dismissed rumors that he is unhappy about playing fewer minutes.

since Magic Johnson rejoined the team Jan. 29.

"I've always been happy with my role," Ceballos said. "You bring a Hall of Fame player back, everybody's going to adjust. Those adjustments were made and they're fine with me."

Angriest of all the Lakers is Johnson, a self-described "ultimate team player" who put retirement on hold to return to the team this season.

"This is the worst time for all this to happen," he said. "I'm really sick and tired of it."

Johnson said Ceballos going AWOL has taken away from his comeback. He said he plans to wait until the offseason before deciding whether to return next year.

"Maybe I won't throw myself back into next season. I don't know," Johnson said. "It's hard for me to deal with all this. I'm too old."

Just as Michael Jordan recently lit into Dennis Rodman for head-butting an official, Johnson expects to have a long talk with Ceballos. As of Sunday night, Ceballos had not explained his hiatus to his teammates.

"What is he going to do? Is he going to commit himself or not? That's the big question," Johnson said after scoring 28 points against Charlotte in his second start in place of Ceballos. "I want to welcome him back, but let him understand we need a commitment from him."

Johnson fondly recalled a time when players didn't abandon their teammates and willingly sacrificed personal glory to win.

"What happened to the good old '80s? I never would have seen a guy walk out," Johnson said. "If a guy had personal problems with us years ago, we would've helped him through."

In a further sign that all is not well in Lakers dressing room, someone placed a decorated milk carton in Ceballos' locker, with words clipped out of the newspaper to form the phrases, "Where in the world is Ceballos?" and "MIA."

Ceballos is respected, if not well-liked by his teammates. He is the Lakers' leading scorer with a 22.4-point average, but his erratic behavior could jeopardize his status as co-captain.

"A lot has to come out of everybody's chests," Johnson said. "He's going to have to sit down and listen. We have to set our priorities straight or we're going to be an early exit (from the playoffs)."

Ceballos met with Lakers executive vice president Jerry West and general manager Mitch Kupchak on Sunday.

"He didn't look like the same lively, active guy that I know," West said. "I could see something there that I hadn't seen before."

Ceballos wasn't the only starter who didn't play in the Lakers' 103-91 loss to Charlotte. Center Vlade Divac stayed home due to tonsillitis, and wasn't on the flight for Orlando on Monday.

A team spokesman said Divac's status was uncertain, that he was scheduled to see a doctor.

A Final Four history lesson

The Associated Press

A conference having more than one team in the Final Four is nothing new in the 1990s.

With Kentucky and Mississippi State of the Southeastern Conference both heading to the Meadowlands this weekend, five of the seven Final Fours of the decade have had a pair of schools from the same league.

The conference that was expected to keep the tradition of multi-berths alive this year was the Big East, which had three teams in the Top Ten all season. It did get one team to the national semifinals, but it wasn't one of the big boys, it was Syracuse, the fourth-best team in the league.

The other team in the mix for the national championship will be top-ranked Massachusetts, like Mississippi State making its first appearance in the Final Four.

So 60 NCAA tournament games have given us a matchup of No. 1 vs. No. 2, the first in the NCAA tournament since top-ranked Houston and Louisville met in the Final Four in 1983.

This Final Four has already been compared to that one, with many calling the Kentucky-Massachusetts meeting of top seeds the title game and Monday night a mere formality for net-cutting purposes.

That's what people thought 13 years ago when Houston prevailed in an epic tournament game and then waited 48 hours to be ambushed by North Carolina State, coached by the late Jim Valvano, in the shocking championship game.

Syracuse was the No. 4 seed in the West and Mississippi State was a rung lower in the Southeast. Both took different roads to reach the Meadowlands, making its third Final Four appearance and first since 1987, went on a regional thriller ride, beating Georgia in overtime on a couple of last-second shots and then hanging on to knock off second-seeded Kansas.

Andre Agassi, shown here competing in the Lipton Championship on Monday, is pursuing the Olympics rather than join America's Davis Cup team this year.

Top tennis players missing from U.S. team

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. — The United States will be without its top four players in next month's Davis Cup tie against the Czech Republic.

Pete Sampras, Andre Agassi, Michael Chang, and Jim Courier, all ranked in the top 10, chose not to play because of their tournament schedules, team captain Tom Gullikson said Monday.

"I started at the top and worked my way down," Gullikson said. "I talked to each guy once."

Todd Martin and MaliVai Washington will play singles, and Patrick McEnroe and Pat Galbraith will play doubles in the second-round tie April 5-7 against France. The Czech team will be led by streaky Petr Korda, ranked 50th on the ATP Tour computer.

Gullikson and Martin declined to criticize the top Americans for failing to participate.

"With all four of them having won Grand Slam tournaments and at this point pretty much being in the chase for No. 1, I think that's where their priorities lie," Martin said.

Only Agassi will be unavailable for Davis Cup all year, Gullikson said, and the other top-10 players would be willing to participate if the U.S. team advances to the third round.

"Andre has really indicated that the Olympics are his main patriotic priority for the year," Gullikson said. "He really said, 'Don't count on me for the Davis Cup. I think the other guys would certainly be available.'"

Martin, ranked 18th in the world, has a 7-2 record in Davis Cup singles. Washington, ranked 19th, swept two matches in his only Davis Cup appearance, which came in 1993 against the Bahamas.

IAAF drops doping case against British runner

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Reversing its previously stubborn policy, the International Amateur Athletic Federation decided Monday to drop a doping case against British 800-meter runner Diane Modahl.

The decision announced by IAAF secretary general Istvan Gyulai means that Modahl, a Commonwealth champion — can compete at the Atlanta Olympics if she qualifies for the British team.

Gyulai said the IAAF had "grave concerns" about the way drug testing on Modahl was done at a meet in Portugal in 1994.

"Until now, we blindly followed the message from these laboratories," he said. "The message from this (case) is that this should not be so. There should be double or triple checks."

Speaking to the British Broadcasting Corp. from her training base at Albuquerque, N.M., Modahl said she was "absolutely delighted" with the outcome.

"I feel that what it happened in the first place," she said. "I have fought for this for just over 20 months. Now both the IAAF and BAF have accepted my innocence."

Modahl tested positive for 42 times the legal amount of testosterone. But the results were not sent to the British Athletic Federation

Modahl

The BAF and IAAF then banned her, but Modahl protested the urine samples had been contaminated at the laboratory in Lisbon and that testing procedures were flawed.

Last year, a BAF appeals committee lifted its ban based on new evidence of possible irregularities in the drug testing, but the IAAF questioned the validity of the new evidence.

On Monday, the IAAF debated for 90 minutes on whether to seek arbitration in the case or drop the matter. The decision represented a sharp shift from previous IAAF stances against efforts by other athletes, including Butch Reynolds and Germany's Katrin Krabbe, to get drug bans lifted.

Gyulai defended the IAAF posture, both in imposing its four-year ban and now dropping the case.

Hippos are known to sprint

Q. Is it true a healthy hippo can swim 30 mph?

A. No, but it can sprint short spurts underwater on the river bottom with remarkable speed. Maybe even that fast.

First toothpaste sold in metal tubes instead of jars was Colgate. What you wear when you go to bed is perennially researched by survey-takers, and in their most recent report, they claim 17 percent of the men nationwide wear nothing while only 4 percent of the women do likewise.

Sixty-seven percent of Germany's pain clinics use acupuncture, correspondents report.

Q. What's a "Stirling engine"?
A. A complex but efficient external combustion engine that alternately heats and cools gases in sealed cylinders to power its pistons. A Scot named Robert Stirling invented it in 1816. Claim is such engines have worked with no more than the heat of a man's hand.

L.M. Boyd What's what?

that no woman in search of male companionship should overlook this statistic: Among U.S. dirt players, the men outnumber the women by three to two.

You rode on spoked wheels much of your life and you still didn't know until now that any segment of the rim of a spoked wheel is called a "felix." Or maybe I should speak for myself.

Our Language man is embarrassed by that "human resources" label now current in the corporate cathedrals. "Why sensible executives let academist foist that neospoken neologism into their vocabularies I do not know," he says. "Human resources" is an exploitative term that sounds like something organic shipped in batches by rail from distant suppliers."

Husband's mementos are nobody's business but his

Dear Abby
Abigail VanBuren

DEAR ABBY: I have been reading your column for years. A letter in your column today really caught my eye. It reminded me of a conversation I had with one of my sisters years ago.

The letter was written by a woman who was irritated that her husband of 12 years still kept old letters from a former girlfriend.

My sister and I were looking through some old picture albums when she came across a picture of my husband and a pretty girl, taken before we were married. She looked puzzled and said: "How come he still has pictures of his old girlfriend? I sure wouldn't let my husband keep pictures of his old girlfriends!"

I replied: "Listen, I didn't find him under a cabbage leaf. He wasn't born the day before he married me. He had a life, and she was part of it. I also had a life before him and I have mementos of that life. Our experiences make us what we are, and any and all memories he chooses to preserve are fine with me."

"We have been married almost 40 years. He has stood by me during good times and bad, and has been a loyal and loving husband always. He's been a wonderful father to our daughter and a wonderful grandfather as well. And the best part of all is that he chose me to marry. So he can keep as many pictures, letters and souvenirs from his past as he cares to. I have HIM!"

- PAT IN ST. HELENS, ORE.
DEAR PAT: Wow! What a sensible attitude. My congratulations to both of you. You are lucky to have found each other.
