High-tech headgates

Canal company opens gates by remote control

By William Brock
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — For 90 years, the Twin Falls Canal Co. has delivered water the old-fashioned way — with a ditch rider spinning a headgate — but now the company is beginning to rely on remote-control satellite technology.

The company is installing remote-control devices at about a dozen major water gates — stretching from Milner Dam to the tail end of the canal system, near Castleford.

"After five or six years, we're probably going to have 50 of them," company Manager Vince Alberdi said Monday. "But we'll never get to the point where we'll do headgates for individual farmers."

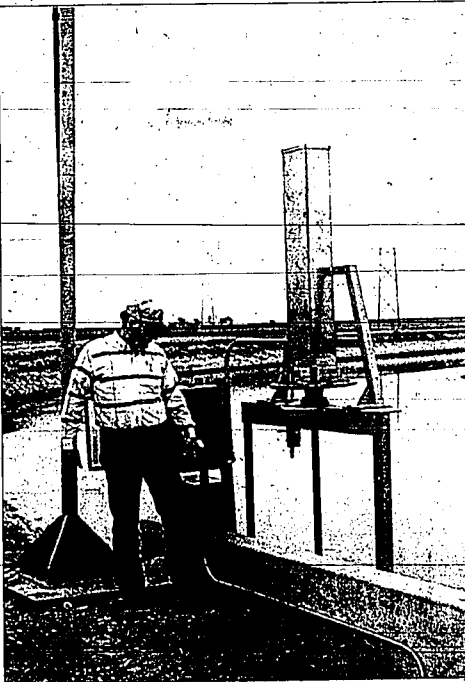

Alberdi spoke during a pre-irrigation-season tour of the canal system. Other tour highlights included the first release of irrigation water for 1996 and a variety of construction projects undertaken during the company's "off" season.

Remote-control technology is standard fare in many hospitals and factories, so the canal company is spending about $5,500 per gate to install new equipment. The actual gates aren't changing, but the ease of operation is improving dramatically.

The gates are operated by small, solar-powered electric motors. The motors are triggered by sensors at water measurement weirs on major canals and laterals leading from the main canals; the precisely calibrated weirs are accurate to within 2 percent.

If flows over the weir are too low, or too high, then sensing equipment commands the gate to open, or close accordingly. Best of all, Alberdi said, target flows can be reprogrammed at the company's main office in Twin Falls — then radioed to specific gates along 110 miles of main canals.

Knowing how much water has been used also will allow company water managers to know how much is left, Alberdi said, "and we won't have to continually operate in doubt about what supplies will be in August."

Bill Morse, canal company engineering technician, explains how new remote control equipment works at a gate on A Coulee, where Highway 30 crosses the mainline canal between Hanson and Murtaugh.

The new technology will be invaluable in years when water supplies are meager, but it also will be useful in years — such as this one — when water is abundant, Alberdi said. Major catastrophes generally occur in heavy water years, when the consequences of a canal break are severe.

High court widens scope of law covering age bias

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court made the nation's employers more vulnerable to being sued for age bias, ruling Monday that some lower courts have been reading a major anti-discrimination law too narrowly.

The unanimous decision said employers who fire workers over 40 and replace them with significantly younger people may be breaking the law even if the new employees also are over 40.

The court reinstated an age-bias claim by a North Carolina man who was fired at age 56 after his supervisor allegedly told him he was "too damn old for this kind of work."

The federal Age Discrimination in Employment Act protects workers age 40 and over. Federal appeals courts had split over whether any illegal bias occur if an employee is fired and replaced by someone over 40.

But Justice Antonin Scalia wrote for the nation's highest court that the replacement employee's age is irrelevant. "The fact that one person in the protected class has lost out to another person in the protected class is...irrelevant, so long as he has lost out because of his age," Scalia said.

David Gregory, a St. John's University law professor who had studied the case, called the decision "potentially very significant in this era of corporate downsizing."

"This will force employers to be more meticulous," he said. "It won't open any floodgates of new litigation but it will

New term limits proposition unconstitutional, Lance holds

The Associated Press

BDISE — The proposal to let voters know where congressional and legislative candidates stand on term limits would probably be declared unconstitutional by the courts, Attorney General Al Lance says.

In an advisory opinion issued Monday, Lance said the initiative would violate constitutional guarantees to freedom of speech, equal protection and the right to vote.

The proposition offered by Citizens for Federal Term Limits calls for the Idaho ballot to designate whether incumbents have done everything possible to enact the terms of the 1994 congressional term limits initiative and whether challengers have pledged to support that campaign.

They now have 15 days to file the initiative — modified or not — with the secretary of state so official ballot titles can be assigned.

If the proposition is filed, backers have until July 5 to gather the 41,335 registered voters' signatures needed to put the initiative on the November ballot.

In the opinion, Lance said identifying candidates for their support of the congressional term limits provision that the U.S. Supreme Court has declared unconstitutional essentially injects the state into the political debate of a public issue in contradiction of the First Amendment.

"By favoring candidates who support term limits, the government is supporting certain political expression because of its content," the opinion said.

TWIN FALLS — The ruckus next door Sunday morning shouldn't have yet another part to the apartment maintenance man, so he banged on the wall in hopes of quieting things down.

Seven hours later, two bullet-riddled teen-agers' bodies were discovered on the bed inside tiny apartment "zero" at 836 Second Ave. W.

Police identified the pair Monday as tenant Jatra Sumaya and Walter Jasso — 18 and 19 — who had no information about the deaths.

The maintenance manager, Richard Dowell, said he pounded on the wall at about 5:30 a.m. Saturday. He returned to bed when the pipe stopped.

"I heard her door slam and people walking out," Dowell said. "I figured they were gone."

Shortly after noon Saturday, a friend of Sumaya's came to pick her up for work, Dowell said. The friend summoned Dowell after she discovered the bodies.

A sound between Ellison's eyes appeared to have come from a small caliber bullet, Dowell said Monday. Sumaya lay across Ellison's lap, face down, he said.

A neighbor in another apartment building, Marlene Holloway, said Monday she had heard a woman crying, "no, no," Saturday morning, and three gunshots — but when she looked out of her window, she saw nothing unusual.

"There was no car, there was nobody anywhere," Holloway said.

Sumaya, an attractive local waitress, lived alone in the apartment for about two months, Dowell said. Though she had thrown several noisy parties, she was "a sweet heart" who "always had a smile," he said.

Ellison had a criminal record that included misdemeanor convictions for assault, disturbing the peace and petty theft, according to court records filed in Twin Falls County. Ellison had attended Sumaya's parties in the past, Dowell said.

Reporters crowd around eight Freeman supporters from Idaho at a rally in Lewistown, Mont., Monday. A turnout of 600 had been forecast.

Handful show up at rally in support of Freeman

The Associated Press

LEWISTOWN, Mont. — A rally called to show support for the Montana Freeman drew eight people Monday instead of the hundreds predicted by organizers, who insisted their ranks would grow as the week progressed.

The Freeman supporters, outnumbered 4 to 1 by reporters and TV camera crews, held court at a paint-chipped picnic table in a snow-covered campground west of town.

The rally was held about 120 miles west of the remote Garfield County farm where the militants are holed up and surrounded by more than 100 FBI agents.

Participants said they would remain as long as the standoff continues, and pitched two small tents at the campground. Organizer Ed LeStago predicted attendance would increase as supporters around the country see news of the camp.

"The word is going out," said LeStago, a spokesman for the Freeman Patriots of the Northwest, based in Kamiah and, despite its name — unaffiliated with the Montana Freeman.

"We're here for the duration," he said. "We'll be staying until the FBI leaves Jordan. We're in the early stage of a long rally."

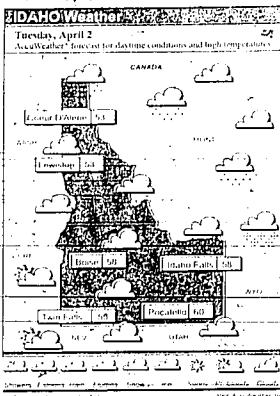

Another rally organizer, Chad Erickson, said the gathering was held in Lewistown because it is far enough away from the stand-off that law enforcement officials won't be unduly concerned.

FBI agents have twice stopped a pair of sympathizers trying to reach the compound.

The Freeman, who have named their 960-acre compound "Injury Township," deny the legitimacy of the government and have set up their own laws and their own courts.

Neighbors said the group has built bunkers and openly stockpiled food, fuel and weapons — possibly including military armaments.

Key witness takes stand in Whitewater trial

Dallas Morning News.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — David L. Hale brought his story of financial intrigue in the Arkansas "political families" before a jury for the first time Monday.

Hale — a man who has accused then-Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton of pressuring him to make a loan to one of Clinton's Whitewater partners — is the star witness for the Whitewater special prosecutor. Hale is expected to testify Tuesday and Wednesday about the Clinton incident. President Clinton has said that Hale's allegations are "bull".

The trial who pleaded guilty two years ago to defrauding the U.S. Small Business Administration told a packed courtroom that his ties to two of the defendants go back to the early 1980s and that he had extensive political and financial contacts with them.

Hale said that he was a fraternity brother and political contemporary of Jim McDougal, Arkansas Attorney General. He said he was involved in the Clinton Bill and Hillary Rodham Clinton to join him and his ex-wife, Susan, as investors in the Whitewater Development Corp. in 1978.

And, he said, he was the co-chairman for a 1978 U.S. Senate campaign for current Arkansas Gov. Jim McGovern.

Clinton once served as attorney for Hale's Capital Management Services, Inc.

The McDougals and Tucker are being tried on a 21-count indictment that charges that they fraudulently obtained $3 million from McDougal's defunct Madison Guaranty Savings and Loan, and Capital Management Services during the mid-1980s.

On the steps of the federal courthouse after the testimony Monday, McDougal said, "I always thought of David as a recreational fisherman who likes to be outdoors."

The attorney for Susan McDougal, Bobby McDaniel, said, "The only surprise is his ability to make it appear that he wasn't being coached."

Assistant special prosecutor Jay Rahn brought Hale to the witness stand early Monday afternoon and led him through his early relationships with McDougal and Tucker to a series of business deals they struck since 1983 when Tucker took an SBA-backed loan from Capital Management because of campaign debts.

Hale said that SBA rules prevented him from making a loan to a personal friend or co-worker and that Tucker would have been doubly disqualified.

"So we had to put the loan in someone else's name," Hale testified.

Hale, who also was a Little Rock municipal court judge until shortly before his indictment in 1993, said that he met with Tucker and McDougal in late 1985 to consider a loan from Capital Management to help Tucker buy a 34-acre plot in the Castle Grande development in southeast Little Rock.

Hale said that McDougal told him more money was going to be needed because "We're going to have to clean up some members of the political family."

Hale said McDougal did not identify that "family" but he was convinced it included Clinton and Tucker.

into "potential suspects."

"Their deaths are not linked with a third shooting that wounded an Arkansas State Police trooper," he said. "I don't think the public was in danger of a random killing."

Fall injures Mother Teresa

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — Mother Teresa was hospitalized Monday after breaking her left collarbone in a fall at her Missionaries of Charity headquarters in Calcutta.

The 85-year-old Nobel Peace Prize laureate spent the night under observation at Calcutta's Woodlands Nursing home. She suffered the injury Monday night when she fell off a bed. S.K. Sen, medical director of the hospital, said without providing additional details.

"The fracture had been dealt with and her condition is now stable," Sen told The Associated Press.

She is expected to be released today, said Asim Bhardwaj, the attending physician.

For decades, Mother Teresa has ministered to the poor in India and other countries for poor people and orphans.

The fall forced her to cancel the flight to Calcutta airport Monday to accept $12 million of medical supplies, toys and garments donated by Heart to Heart International, a non-profit relief organization based in Olathe, Kan.

Freemen

The compound has been surrounded by more than 100 FBI agents since a week ago today when Lekny Schweitzer and Daniel Peterson Jr., two Freemen leaders, were arrested.

A third member of the group, Richard E. Clark, surrendered Saturday and was arraigned Monday on charges including conspiracy, mail and bank fraud, and planning to kidnap and murder a federal judge.

In court, he refused to confirm his identity, reportedly saying the court had no jurisdiction over him and said his charges were false. He refused a court-appointed lawyer and would not enter a plea. U.S. Magistrate Richard Anderson ordered an in-person plea on Clark's behalf.

Schweitzer and Peterson were charged with threatening public officials and millions of dollars worth of bank, financial and mail fraud. Judges said he had refused to be fingerprinted or photographed and would not speak or write.

Authorities don't say how many people are still at the farm, but 12 of them are believed to be wanted on various state and federal charges.

Stay-back-from-gates, Freemen ask media

JORDAN, Mont. (AP) — Freemen asked that the media stay one-half mile away from entry gates to Justus Township in a notice posted Monday on a barricade outside the compound.

The announcement appeared to have been prepared on a computer and printed on a laser printer. It was posted after two camera crews apparently got too close to the ranch.

The document bore the signature of Rodney Owen, apparently one of those in the compound.

open things up, especially for those who are replaced by their proteges after training them.

"In other action of the court," he ruled in a Georgia case that a death row inmate's first federal appeal generally cannot be dismissed as an abuse of the legal system even if it is filed just before a planned execution.

Agreed to use a Mississippi case to decide whether people whose parental rights have been terminated must be allowed to appeal even if they cannot afford to pay the court fees.

Said it will review a voting-rights dispute over how municipal court judges are elected in Monterey County, Calif. A decision could provide important new guidelines for other local elections nationwide.

Rejected an appeal in which Tennessee officials argued that parents do not have a right to sue their state government for not doing enough to help them collect child-support payments.

In the age-bias case, lower courts had thrown out James O'Connor's lawsuit because after being fired he was replaced by someone aged 40 — not 39 or younger.

But Scalia said: "The fact that a replacement is substantially younger than (O'Connor) is a far more reliable indicator of age discrimination than the fact that (he) was replaced by someone outside the protected class."

Scalia noted that the age discrimination suit significant, but did not offer a specific definition of "substantially younger."

He did say that replacing a 68-year-old employee with one who is "very thin" evidence of age discrimination.

Robin Conrad of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce pointed to that language in the ruling to claim a substantial victory for the business community.

"We may find more cases being filed but fewer going to trial," he said. "The scarier prospect was letting anyone over 40 sue."

Sally Danaway, a lawyer with the American Association of Retired Persons, called the decision a "win" that puts employers on notice.

Although the decision focused on firings, it could apply as well to people who contend they were discriminated against in some other way — such as not being hired, or being demoted or transferred.

Liberty Bell for sale? Only Taco Bell knows for sure

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A cursory check of the Liberty Bell Monday found no trace of taco juice on the iron, but Burrito Supremes in the crack.

No, Taco Bell didn't buy the Liberty Bell.

In an April Fools' Day joke, the fast-food chain took out full-page ads in eight newspapers announcing that it had purchased America's symbol of freedom to help shrink the federal debt.

The bell will henceforth be called, the ads said, the Taco Liberty Bell.

By noon — the traditional time for confessions — the company came clean. The bell will remain in its home outside Independence Hall, and the Irvine, Calif., company will donate $50,000 toward preservation and maintenance.

"We would never say we didn't need the money," said Martha B. Aikens, superintendent of Independence National Historical Park. "But the word sale never came up."

Taco Bell refused to say how much it paid for the ads.

Legally, the federal government couldn't sell the Liberty Bell even if it wanted to. The city of Philadelphia actually owns the bell (which a Taco Bell press release points out weighs the same — 2,000 pounds — as 11,093 Tacos, and would need 5,376 packets of hot sauce to fill it up).

Taco Bell Chairman and CEO John Martin, left, looks over a mock Liberty Bell with "Boh Franklin" as part of an April Fools joke in which the Mexican fast food chain announced that it had purchased the bell to help reduce the national debt.

"We're not about to run for the border," said Kevin Feeley, a City Hall spokesman. His boss, Mayor Edward G. Rendell, said he was not, he would hit up the company for a new Liberty Bell pavilion.

The joke provided several hours of amusement — and amazement — before the truth came out.

Clinton threatens to veto 3 more Republican bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's an election-year battle of wills: Bob Dole wields legislation as his weapon, and President Clinton tightens back with his veto pen.

Last week, Dole's Congress approved a stack of bills in the rush to spring vacation.

Now it is Clinton's turn to render judgment.

The verdict, three more bills are headed for the veto junkyard. By the time the dust settles, Clinton will have hosted his veto output to 15 bills during the two years of the Republican Congress.

Clinton will veto an anti-labor law measure, legislation to disband three foreign affairs agencies and a bill to limit damages in product liability lawsuits.

None has enough support for Congress to override the president's decision, but Republicans are apt to try, particularly on the abortion bill, to keep the heat on Clinton.

As presidential rivals and lesser politicians of opposite ends of Pennsylvania Avenue, Clinton and Dole are in an extraordinary position to wage this test of strength. It's the first time that a president and a Senate leader from opposing parties are competing for the White House, with Congress' record as ammunition for both sides.

Wyoming set to drug test more drivers

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Workers who build commercial driver licenses and drive for smaller Wyoming towns and cities will soon be required to take random drug and alcohol tests.

Previously, only those employed by larger cities like Cheyenne and Casper have faced these mandatory tests. But the federal requirement was expanded to include the smaller municipalities.

"The object of the whole thing is to make our roads and workplaces safer and to deter people that are using drugs or alcohol off the road," said Wyoming Association of Municipalities Assistant Director Richard Waggoner.

The federal Omnibus Transportation Employee Act of 1991 requires that municipal employees holding CDL's be tested periodically — and randomly — for evidence of drug and alcohol use.

So far, 45 employees have been tested in Cheyenne.

Irv Cross has chance to turn ISU athletics around

As soon as Idaho State University's incoming athletic director unorks his bags, there are a few things that merit his immediate attention.

Irv Cross is inheriting an athletic program rife with coaches who can't stay out of the NCAA's doghouse, and with linebackers and point guards who can't stay out of the criminal-justice system. The program has lost the confidence of many alumni and friends of ISU.

If it continues its downward trajectory, ISU could be without an NCAA Division I football or basketball program in the not-so-distant future.

More importantly, ISU and equally trouble-prone athletic programs at Boise State University and the University of Idaho are embarrassing all Idahoans who care about the integrity of their higher-education system.

Cross played for the Philadelphia Eagles and the Los Angeles Rams in the NFL, and spent 17 years as a football commentator for CBS. He may be just the kind of high-profile figure with the clout and integrity to turn ISU's fortunes around.

Cross should pack his car and take an extended back-roads tour of Idaho, telling every service club and high school class that will listen to him that ISU is committed to recruiting student-athletes - with the emphasis on the student - who are Idaho residents.

Not that ISU and the U of I have gone to the big-time Big West Conference - and its winning-is-everything ethos - they simply won't be recruiting as many Idaho high school seniors for football and basketball. Cross should explain, will redouble its efforts to get more of these kids to come to Pocatello.

Cross should call a special conference and announce a one-strike-and-you're-out policy for ISU athletes: Being charged with any crime more serious than a traffic ticket will get an athlete suspended from the team until the matter is settled; any conviction for such an offense will get the athlete kicked off the team and get his scholarship from the university canceled.

He should tell the ISU community that an athlete's race will not protect him. Being "disadvantaged" or from the "inner city" of some distant state is not a license to commit any crime in Idaho.

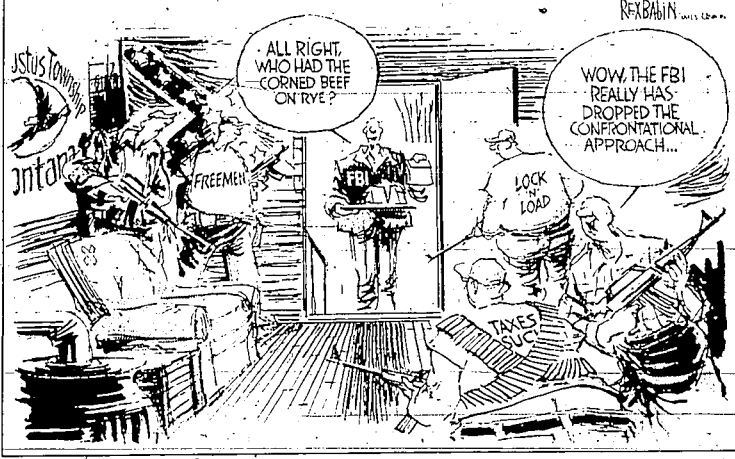

Cross should instruct his coaches to inform potential recruits that ISU reserves the right to run a criminal background check before it offers an athletic scholarship. Better yet, the university should stop recruiting anyone, regardless of race, who has a criminal record. If there's a legal challenge to that practice, the Office of Legal Education should be willing to go to court to defend it.

He should also tell his coaches that graduation rates will figure equally with win-loss records in determining whether a coach's contract will be renewed. And no future coaches will be hired who aren't able to demonstrate a commitment to academics in their previous jobs.

Cross' position is unusual for his new profession in that he isn't under immediate pressure to win at all costs. Most folks who care about ISU athletics are more concerned right now with the state of the program than with the state of its win-loss record.

It's a unique opportunity. Cross could use it to continue business as usual, or he could shake up ISU's athletic department to its core.

Let's hope he chooses the second option. All Idahoans have a proprietary interest in the off-the-field success of our schools' athletic programs, because we're weary of the consequences of their failures.

Where is Perot when you need him?

He's back. Ross Perot is making loud noises about running again for president as a third-party candidate. But the real question about Perot is where was he while Congress and the president struggled to balance the budget - an issue that Perot says is critical?

The answer is that Perot was scowring around the country trying to start his own party. For those (including me) who see Perot mostly as a self-centered spoiler, the episode speaks volumes about his true motives.

Perot legitimately wants influence on budget deficits. "The Perot campaign of 1992 failed to create a new constituency for deficit reduction," write reporters Daniel Ball and Ronald Brownstein in their new book "Storming the Gates: Protectors, Politics and the New Republicanism." "With his infomercials and easy-to-read charts, Perot is most single-handedly plying the deficits near the top of the political agenda."

Robert J. Samuelson

What might Perot have done? He could have kept both sides honest.

By calculated inactivity, he might have saved each from its worst impulses - Clinton from compulsive deception, the Republicans from suicidal irresponsibility. It was not to be for the impetuous Perot. He dislikes anything but the starring role.

It's not surprising that Perot wants his own party, called The Reform Party. In late September, he decided to create it.

Russ Verney, a top party official, says that Perot simply responded to a poll among 11,000 United We Stand members in which 77 percent urged him to form a distinct party. Perot then went to Maine, California, Utah and South Carolina to get his party listed on the ballot. In California, Perot workers collected about 120,000 signatures for a ballot petition in three weeks.

Suppose (as increasingly seems likely) he "accepts" the nomination of his self-created party at its September convention. What will that accomplish? He won't win, and his candidacy may deprive the country of a clear choice between two men with contrasting leadership styles, if not political philosophies. And the winner may be wounded by being denied a popular majority.

The result would be to make governing harder. This is what Perot is really about. He can't have the existing political system work even imperfectly, because that would make him less relevant. If that's not a formula for cynicism, what is?

Liberals are destroying lifestyle
Crime can be drastically curtailed, but not with President Clinton!
Clinton claims he is tough on crime. Real-ly?

One hundred thousand more police officers for two years. Yes, more police officers will help. But some places need a computer or patrol car more. Worse after two years, the "new" police officers lose their jobs! A computer or patrol car would last much longer than two years. But big government knows best. Right?

Conservatives in Congress passed a law providing money to help communities with crime. Money was to be used to combat crime. It could be spent on whatever was needed worst. President Clinton vetoed it. We badly need judges who are tough on crime. But the "liberals," including Clinton, appoint judges tough on the victim and easy on the criminal. Those judges, instead of interpreting the laws to our own laws to the detriment of law-abiding citizens and the person who pays taxes, Red-handed evidence is thrown out. Hard-core criminals get responsible defense attorneys. No wonder we need more police officers to catch these criminals again and again and again.

Criminals lose their rights when they commit violent crime. Jail time does need to be more than animal cages, but not plus House Hillans built at your expense (taxes). Appeals must be limited. Frivolous appeals not only plug our justice system but allow criminals to harass their victims.

Stop pussy-footing with drugs (or would it destroy the profits and lavish lifestyles of those who are enslaving our people and our children). We have to start early in our schools. Students must learn in detail the effect of drugs. Projects where students gain firsthand experience working with drug-dependent families. No wonder we have "Kids Without Fathers" is a product of our "dear" liberals. If it feels good, do it. Pass out the condoms. Make sex objects of our women. "Use 'em, abuse 'em, make 'em out."

These "Kids Without Fathers" are rejected, mistreated, abused. Their mothers do not want them - druggies, 13-year-olds. It would be difficult to produce a labor system to develop criminals. They could care less what happens to them. The likes of these broke into a home in Utah. Those inside were forced to drink Drano. Great amusement for these punks. And without our guns, you can bet these punks will have plenty of guns, the including the ones will be totally helpless. CHARLES SICCARVER Kimberly

'Great Rift' tag is ludicrous

The Great Rift of south central Idaho is a geologic wonder, perhaps equalled nowhere else on earth. It is a series of fissures in the earth's surface which stand gaping in the desert in places up to 800 or 1,000 feet deep. The fissures are probably growing wider year by year.

Deep within some of the Great Rift fissures are spectacular ice formations which remain year around unclothed by 130-degree temperatures at the surface. Massive caves in lava tubes left by ancient volcanic activity lace the lava flows surrounding the Great Rift. Other caves in the lava have been home and workshop for prehistoric Indians.

Creators of the Moon National Monument occupies the north end of this vast area of recreational activity, although it has few, if any, of the breaks in the surface which characterize the Great Rift farther to the southeast.

To those of us who live nearby this geologic wonder and its accompanying lava flows and have taken the time to hike into the ruggedly beautiful landscape, the Great Rift is intensely interesting.

Sad to say, most everyone else knows little or nothing about the Great Rift. They don't even associate it with Craters of the Moon Monument, even the vast majority. I would wager of those who have visited the monument.

To attempt to gain publicity for the airport at Twin Falls by attaching the Great Rift to its name is ludicrous. There is little doubt that "the Great Rift" means nothing to 99-plus percent of the travelers who may be flying into the Twin Falls airport.

Those who decided to rename the airport with the long and ambiguous name, "Idaho's South Central Airport: Gateway to the Great Rift and Sun Valley," reportedly have decided to rename it. Well, they should.

The Magic Valley Regional Airport would be much more meaningful.

Tax system needs to be fair

Once again, it is time to pay our income taxes, and once again the poor and middle class will pay a disproportionately larger share of the bill. Last year's federal government levied $496 billion tax revenues in 1995 alone, mostly because of tax exemptions and loopholes for the wealthy.

Our income tax system is very unfair and extremely complicated. The Citizens for Tax Justice recently estimated that our federal government levied $496 billion tax revenues in 1995 alone, mostly because of tax exemptions and loopholes for the wealthy.

Our tax system must be fair for everyone, but it should also be simplified so the tax form could be filled out by anyone without help from a tax consultant. If our Republican Congress does not provide a fair tax system soon, the Democrats or a third party will surely have their chance after the 1996 elections. I, for one, will vote for whichever party requires a fair and reasonable tax for the wealthy and allows the least possible tax for the working poor and middle class.

I believe our present income tax system is the most deplorable and irresponsible one that Congress has ever imposed on the American people. Congress should either fix it or junk it and adopt a new tax system.

A simple flat tax would not be fair for the poor and middle class. The Republican tax reform committee has proposed a form of flat tax which would exempt at least some capital gains and interest incomes. Earned income would be taxable. With these proposals, the working poor and middle class would continue to pay most of the taxes and the wealthy would pay little or none - as usual.

I suggest a progressive income tax system that starts at 0 percent until the working poor and remains at 0 percent until their income reaches $15,150 (spousal level for a family of four), then goes up a small percent to 537,000 (medium income) and finally goes up further with income until it reaches 50 percent for the most wealthy Americans.

I urge Idaho voters to disregard the unfair flat tax proposals and seriously consider a progressive tax system with no tax exemptions or loopholes for the wealthy. This progressive tax would require large companies, corporations and wealthy individuals to pay their fair share of taxes (for the first time in decades).

Craig needs honest agenda

How can Larry Craig in one voice say there is not going to be the monies necessary for the federal government to manage the public lands and in another voice say that the federal government will honor its commitment to remove certain portions of the nuclear wastes stored at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory?

Larry Craig is a leader in stopping reform to antiquated mining, logging and range laws regarding the public lands, which could, if managed with integrity, pay for their own management. He stands against the kind of open debate which would lay our public policies regarding energy, resources and thus defense on the table so that we can, in totality, measure the impacts of our decisions. With limited monies, scarce resources and continuing physical and spiritual responsibilities we have for our children, our children's children and the creator, it only makes sense to use those resources that sustain life wisely.

As to the public lands being managed by the state rather than the federal government: First, of course, one would have to question the management philosophy of the state. Idaho's Constitution states that philosophy as "for the best economic gain," which, if done in the short term, doesn't mean long term viability. Here it could mean sell off. Take a look at the forested lands of some states, where, but particularly the private forested lands in the state of Washington. It is very clear cut. Think about the recent floods, about wildlife habitat (two are not the only ones of this plan); think about the resources lost and the money spent on recovery. Short-term economic gain meant a destroyed watershed. We can and must do better.

We are destroying this planet, making it uninhabitable for our children. Whether it be the nuclear questions, and there are many, or questions about the management of our natural resources, there are interactions that must be looked at. We have to quit wasting so much of our resources, our monies and our talents. It is doable. It is going to take the best we have in ourselves. This is the challenge, and thus far, we've cheated ourselves of rich, full lives, opting rather for mediocrity.

BILL CHISHOLM Buhl

Franz perpetuates ego

John F. Kennedy, early in his presidency, made an administrative error in judgment. His response to this was, "To error is not a mistake unless you refuse to correct it." And he proceeded to correct his error.

Art Franz and his not to "snick our tails between our legs" is typical of someone who cares not what is right for the Magic Valley's image. His only interest is satisfying his own ego. It is an arrogant attitude.

My suggestion is keep the current Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional Airport name. It says it all in an honest, straight-forth way.

Cancer vaccine near ready for human tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — A vaccine from genetically engineered cells eradicates tumors in laboratory rats and may be ready for testing on a vicious kind of human brain cancer by this summer, researchers say.

Habib Fakhrai, a University of California, Los Angeles, cancer scientist, said the vaccine has the effect of removing a biological disguise from cancer cells, thus turning them into targets that are tracked down and killed by the body's own immune system.

Fakhrai is the lead author of a study that will be published Tuesday in Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences. Cancers of the brain, breast, lung, colon and prostate all secrete a substance called transforming growth factor-beta, or TGF-B, which suppresses the immune system and protects the cancer, Fakhrai said.

TGF-beta blocks the cancer cells so they are not recognized by the immune system," said Fakhrai. "To alert the immune system to the presence of cancer, the UCLA researchers developed a way to prevent tumor cells from making TGF-B."

Using rats with brain cancer, the scientists removed cancer cells and purified the tumor DNA. They then used this DNA to make a protein that blocks the genetic process that leads to secretion of TGF-B.

"We actually created molecules that attach to precursors of TGF-B and instructed them genetically to stop working," said Fakhrai. "The new molecules were then used to inoculate a group of rats with cancer. Another group of rats with cancer received only placebo shots."

Among the rats receiving the anti-TGF-B vaccinations, 100 percent survived for the 12 weeks of the experiment and the cancers were destroyed by the animals' immune system cells. The control rats, which received only the placebo, all died swiftly.

Fakhrai said the technique has been approved for human experimentation by a committee at the National Institutes of Health and is now awaiting action by the Food and Drug Administration. Once approved, Fakhrai said UCLA researchers plan to offer the experimental therapy to patients with glioblastoma, an invariably fatal brain cancer.

"We hope to be using this vaccine technology in humans by this summer," said Dr. Keith Black, a UCLA neurosurgeon and co-author of the study.

Feds will not prosecute drunk Marine

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials will not prosecute a Marine who was arrested as he allegedly tried to scale the White House fence because he thought he was at his base south of Washington.

The Secret Service said Cpl. Jebediah Morris, 21, of Enid, Okla., was "extremely intoxicated" when arrested early Sunday and charged with unlawful entry. The U.S. Attorney's office decided Monday to drop the charge leave any discipline to the Marines, U.S. Attorney's spokesman Kevin Olson said.

A Secret Service spokesman said an agent found Morris, who was unarmed, outside the fence before dawn. Querted, Morris told the officer he thought he was at the Quantico Marine Base in suburban Virginia.

A few minutes later, Morris allegedly tried to climb the fence but was restrained.

FDA will begin review of abortion drug RU-486

WASHINGTON (AP) — American women may know by the end of the year if they can buy the French abortion drug RU-486.

The Food and Drug Administration confirmed Monday that the nonprofit Population Council filed an application last month seeking to sell RU-486, based on its results of testing in 2,100 American women.

FDA Commissioner David Kessler told Congress last year it would take six months to determine if RU-486 is safe enough to sell to Americans. However, the review could take up to a year, the time the agency typically spends on drugs that don't address life-threatening diseases.

The FDA is expected to approve the drug based partly on records of its use on 15,000 European women, where it had about a 97 percent success rate.

But the U.S. testing also would have to show the drug worked. The Population Council would not release those results Monday, because it is awaiting publication of the data in a medical journal.

Almost all of the nation's 13 million abortions are surgical, although doctors last year began publicizing the fact that a drug already on the market to treat cancer — methotrexate — also can be used to induce abortion.

Taiwan drugs concern U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department expressed concern Monday about a reported Taiwanese plan to build military drills on nearby islands near the Chinese coast at a time of heightened tension between Beijing and Taipei.

Spokesman Glyn Davies said the administration was trying to clarify Taiwan's intentions.

A published report in Taiwan said Taiwanese troops will test-fire live artillery shells and surface-to-air missiles during training drills in the front line Matsu islands over the weekend.

All routine drills reportedly were suspended during China's recent war games as Taiwan's troops went on alert for a possible surprise attack.

Defense will Thrash CSI opponents

By Karen Hammet
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Defense, defense, defense is what Golden Eagle fans will see next season when James Thrash takes the floor at the College of Southern Idaho's new basketball coach.

Defense is Thrash's specialty and what he believes will win games for CSI. In fact, players' time on the court will depend on how well they execute defensively, he said.

Thrash, 50, returns to coaching after 12 years as an executive. He replaces Steven Irons, who resigned March 11 after three seasons as CSI head coach.

Thrash played basketball at Thornton Junior College in Harvey, Ill., and at Eastern New Mexico University in Portales, N.M. He coached at Manzano High School in New Mexico for two years before being named associate professor and assistant basketball coach at Fresno State University, under current CSI athletic director Boyd Crane.

Testimonials about James Thrash

"Coach Thrash spent three days in the fall and helped me learn defensive with much top defense. His great knowledge of the game, his ability to run the Thrash defense and his great personality made me a great defensive player. I have a great improvement. He spoke at our evening clinic and did a fantastic job."

—Coach Larry Holley, William Jewell College

"The College of Southern Idaho is fortunate to have Jim Thrash with his outstanding coaching ability and great knowledge of the game. He is a great mentor and will be a plus for the community. Jim is very fortunate that CSI recognized his talent and hired a person who has been an excellent professional for the past few years. I think this will be a great marriage. I'm happy for both parties."

—Coach Gene Keady, Purdue University

During his seven years at Fresno State, the Bulldogs won the National Invitational Tournament, qualified for the first round of the NCAA tournament and made it to the Sweet 16.

One of Thrash's greatest assets during that time was recruiting. Thrash said Thrash found Rod Higgins, who eventually played in the NBA.

"Five years from now, I think you'll like him better than today," Grant said.

In a news conference Monday, Thrash said he hopes to use his contacts and knowledge of the Chicago area to bring in some high-quality recruits.

But CSI President Gerald Meyer interrupted that Thrash also will recruit in Idaho. His first recruiting contact is with an Idaho player today, Meyerboecker said.

Although Thrash has been away from coaching for 12 years, he has continued working at basketball clinics across the country. He switched over from selling real estate to selling his abilities to the fans in Twin Falls does not have Thrash concerned, he said.

"The expectations are high," he said. "That's the only way I would come back — if I had the chance to be No. 1. Losing isn't fun."

Although Thrash has never held a head coaching position at the college level, he Please see THRASH/B2

Kentucky king in NCAA

Wildcats take championship from Syracuse

The Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Kentucky has its first national championship in 18 years, the one it was supposed to win last season. The Wildcats got it with a 76-62 victory over Syracuse on Monday night, a loss that earned the Orange and Blue the respect few gave them going in.

The sixth national title in school history, second only to UCLA's 11, came through the scoring of senior Tony Delk and freshman Ron Mercer. And, of course, the famed pressure defense and the ability to use college basketball's deepest roster.

"We're a little bit like the Green Bay Packers," Kentucky coach Rick Pitino said. "The entire state of Kentucky owns our basketball team."

Kentucky's rich tradition starts with the sport's winningest coach, Adolph Rupp. Under "The Baron," the Wildcats won four titles from 1948 to 1958. He won 876 games and lost 190 over 42 seasons.

Joe B. Hall was the coach when the Wildcats won it all in 1978 and the program is the youngest in the history of college basketball with 27-49, two more than North Carolina.

Syracuse, a 14-point underdog, has the most NCAA tournament victories without a title. A 3rd NCAA win would have meant a first national championship. Now, this Syracuse team joins the one-point losers to Indiana in the 1987 championship game in sustaining the most bitter Syracuse's Otis Hill tries to pass through the Kentucky defense in the national championship game Monday.

Delk is a great senior and a great player." Delk, noted the outstanding player, finished with 24 points and tied the championship game record with seven 3-pointers.

"We knew it would be tough," Syracuse coach Jim Boeheim said. "Kentucky made a couple of great plays when they had to."

The Wildcats finished with 12 3s, critical in cracking Syracuse's 23 zone. Kentucky tied the championship game record for 3s by a team.

Triple play throws CSI past Snow in 1st of three

By Larry Hovey
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A 10-run inning built on bunts and perhaps a pre-emptive strike triple play helped the College of Southern Idaho baseball team beat the Snow Badgers 10-7 Monday afternoon.

It was the first match in a three-game scenic West Conference series that will conclude with a pair of seven-inning battles beginning at noon today at Frontier Field.

Coach Jim Walker stuck with the bunt in the 10th, fifth inning even though his Eagles were trailing 4-0 at the time.

"We were both playing games," said Walker of the moment. "It all worked out in our favor."

The inning opened with a bunt, however, as Larry Panaro drilled a double leading off. Mike Gonzales dropped a bunt for a single and Troy Tebbis followed with another sacrifice attempt that turned into a two-bag, when the catcher's throw to first sailed into right field.

Ben Florence stuck an RBI single between two Eagle outs and then pinch hitter Kevin Kinball came up with a great drop bunt that scored the tying run.

"We caught them there," Walker said. "I know Kevin could get it to the left side, it had to be a hit."

Nate Forbush of CSI scores the Eagles' seventh run of the fifth inning as Snow catcher Joseph Johanson has difficulty handling the ball Monday in Twin Falls.

After that, Josh Duda's draw walk and Nate Forbush led the two-run double, down the left-field line. That brought on reliever Eric Carter who was greeted by Panaro's second hit of the inning. After the third error of the game by Troy Tebbis-like, Chris Starbuck wound it up with a two-strike single.

The triple play came on Snow's next at bat and smuffed out a promising start. Joe Johanson was hit by a pitch and Doug Hagerler singled to put runners at first and second. Chad Miller hit a hot two-roller to CSI shortstop Tebbis to start a routine 6-3 double play.

But Johanson rounded third a little too much, drawing a throw by Forbush and a tag by Panaro to wind up the triple play.

"I've had two of them against us," said Walker. "Remember in regional in Pacific, just when it might've come back and won a game, the right fielder snags comes a fly over his head and gets them out of a major jam. But as far as I can remember, I think this was our first one. It was pretty heady up there."

Snow had destroyed a good pitcher dual between CSI's John Northey and his own Dan Ahrensman in the fourth inning. A flooring homer by Johanson ruined any hopes Ahrensman had going for him.

In the fifth, the Badgers jumped on reliever Kent Howell for two quick runs. A single by B.J. King started the inning and Britton Terry followed with a hard hit, which turned into a double as CSI threw the ball away. The runs scored on Jack Ratter's ground out and Scott Carlson's double.

Walker said he remains convinced that the bunt and hit run will remain in Eagle staple.

"We've sold the short game all year," he said. "But some players still don't believe that that's what's been going on in this spring."

"Last year we had all those double plays because we had little speed. This year we're a little more versatile but there are some players we definitely will have to get away from the DL."

Walker said he remains convinced that the bunt and hit run will remain in Eagle staple.

Trio leads pro-am tourney Delk buries Syracuse with 3-pointers

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Tom Sanderson, John Graham and Mike Hamblin posted two-under par 70s Monday to lead the professional sweepstakes in the two-day Twin Falls Municipal pro-am tournament.

The trio will continue action today with a concluding round at Twin Falls Municipal. Being the host pro, Hamblin will have the home court advantage. However, Sanderson, Sun Valley, always plays well at Muni and Graham has the ability to run hot and post very low scores.

One stroke back are former Nike tour player Ted Hallows, Bob and Buster Whitney, Boise, Blue Lakes, Rob Ellis and Rupert's Scott Erlick are tied three strokes back at 73.

In the only team team and amateur sweepstakes, Hamblin had two team winners. The first was composed of Norm Lancaster, Carl Berger and Tracy Frank and the second bill Cook, Doug Vollmer and Steve Faber would lead.

Sanderson's Ketchum crew of L. Mallane, C. Wester and D. Gates was third while the home team of Ellis, Bob and Hank Wilks and Roy Ramond were fourth.

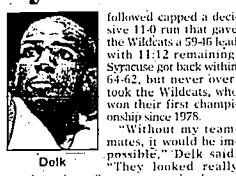

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — On a night when Troy Delk tied a record for 3-pointers in the NCAA championship game, his most memorable play was a 3-pointer.

Delk, 6-foot-7, Syracuse forward, Monday ended the mark set by Indiana's Steve Alford in 1987, made his last shot from beyond the arc with Todd Burgan charging straight at him.

Delk received a split-second too late, and both players tumbled out of bounds into the Kentucky bench.

Meanwhile, the ball was plunging straight through the basket, a fatal blow to Syracuse's chance of pulling a major upset.

Delk's 3-pointer and the free throw that

Delk followed capped a decisive 114-101 win over the Wildcats at 59-46 lead with 11:13 remaining. Syracuse got back within 64-62, but never overtook the Wildcats, who won their first championship since 1975.

Delk, who led Kentucky with 24 points and was named the outstanding player of the Final Four, did most of his scoring in the final half.

He was 6-of-7 on 3-pointers, a potent weapon against Syracuse's tightly packed 2-3 zone defense. Delk was right in the middle of a 1987 sport which he had hit, his three free throws in the final 4:20 to send the Wildcats to the locker room with a 42-33 lead.

Delk made only 2-of-10 shots in the second half, but he already had done enough. Appropriately, the senior guard had the honor of scoring the Wildcats' final basket on a layup with two seconds to go.

Errors cost Wendell, Bruins game each

The Times-News

WENDELL — In an error-filled doubleheader Monday, Wendell and Twin Falls junior varsity picked a different game to give away.

The Bruins took advantage of seven Trojan errors in the first game to take an 11.5 victory before turning around and committing seven errors to give the Trojans a 14.5 win.

The few errors were enough to send Wendell coach Rick Beckford said. "We had runners on first and second and they overthrew third. In that game, it was more that they but it was not us."

The only notable batting performance of the day was by Bruin Chris Westburg, who went 3-for-4 at the plate in the first game.

Wendell moves to 1-4 overall.

Pinino writes out winning prescription

By Bernie Lincoln
Chicago Tribune

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Undergraduates should have goals. While other college students are off on spring break seeing how many beers they can chug before they pass out, the boys from Syracuse had another purpose.

"To shock the world," said guard Jason Cipolla.

That's a hard thing to do these days, shock the world, and more difficult still in short pants and sneakers, even when you are Dennis Rodman.

Now, in Kentucky, the world, no matter how inflated their own opinion, and college basketball was no more than just this month's sports carnival, an amateur attraction at that.

The stakes for Kentucky were more modest, to do the expected, to achieve, in the words of senior guard Troy Delk, "what we've been waiting a lifetime to do." And Delk's Kentucky has already listed 21 years.

This Delk and Kentucky did with sporadic adequacy, withstanding the bothersome Syracuse, their own poor shooting and a leaky arena roof.

Commentary

This is Kentucky's sixth national title, second only to UCLA, the first for Pinino and the second time in Syracuse coach Jim Boeheim's tenure that Syracuse has lost the title game.

"Win or lose," Kentucky forward Antoine Walker had said, "you don't get too many chances to play for the national championship."

Athletic teams seem not able to function these days without working from spite. Without a grudge.

There's no grudge in the Orangeburg between the Orangeburg, Syracuse center Ois Hill had said. "Even some of our own fans don't believe."

The truth is, of course, Syracuse fans fill the Carter Dome every game and they had been dancing in the streets since Syracuse's regional win over Georgia.

"There's not much to do in Syracuse," Boein said.

Even Kentucky had to find a way to deflect almost universal applause for its talent and success. Like being favored to win it all.

"The media and coaches who are picking us are just trying to teach us up," Kentucky ## forward Walter McCarty said, "trying to get us fat so we can't perform well."

Sombody might to teach athletes how to take a compliment. Coaches, too.

Pinino told a story of Kentucky fan devotion that was amusing, but also an illustration of how well-schooled coaches and players get with their own priorities.

Pinino said he got an urgent envelope from a Kentucky doctor that demanded to be opened before the Final Four.

"And it listed six things we had to do to win the national title," Pinino said. The doctor urged shooting more threes, setting more screens, passing earlier on the break, rather than hitting.

"I answer every letter," Pinino said, "so I wrote back and said there are six things I would like to help you with. First, you're making too many air strikes in strategy, you're giving too much anesthesia, you're charging too much, your nurses are not using the right procedures and I listed six things."

"I said when I get back I'd like to meet you and help you with your surgery because I think you're way off the mark and I signed it Rick Pinino."

He said he was just said thanks for caring, but, after all, brain surgery is not basketball.

Thrash

downplayed the pressure he'll face.

"The pressure is when you don't have the tools," Thrash said.

Thrash will begin at Fresno State, the team played behind its wooden backboards, traveled in vans and got by on a $250 equipment budget. At CSI, he inherits an established and well-funded program.

"When you have the tools to achieve those expectations — what more can you ask?" he said. "This job is exactly what I want."

After two days of head coach, Thrash has compiled a list of recruits, including fans, and is planning to sit down with this year's Golden Edge freshmen.

"I look forward to working with them," he said.

Though Thrash emphasizes defense, he acknowledged that players as well as fans like a run-and-gun offense.

"At home we're going to run," he said. "On the road we'll do whatever it takes to win."

Thrash also emphasized the importance of academics. His goal is "to prepare kids for life after basketball," and that's why he gave up real estate, he said.

"I was the youngest of six children—and the only one to go to college," he said. He did that on a basketball scholarship.

Assistant Coach Kevin Jones plans to stay at CSI and work with the program. Darren Gibson, the other assistant, still in negotiations.

Thrash and his wife, Denise, have two sons, Jason, 24, and Mark, 16.

Twin Falls Bruin fans will be happy to see a basketball player. He stands 6 feet 4 1/2 inches tall and will transfer to Twin Falls at a junior next fall.

Empire John McSherry is attended to after collapsing during the Cincinnati Reds game with the Montreal Expos Monday. McSherry, 51, was pronounced dead later at a hospital.

Collapse postpones Reds-Expos game

CINCINNATI (AP) — Empire John McSherry, who planned to see doctors the next day about an irregular heart beat, collapsed on the field seven pitches into Cincinnati's opening game Monday and died at a hospital about an hour later.

The Reds and Montreal Expos postponed the game about an hour after McSherry collapsed. It will be replayed in its entirety today.

University Hospital said McSherry died of "sudden cardiac death," a condition in which the heart beats out of control.

McSherry, 51, was listed at 328 pounds and had a history of medical problems. He had told the other umpires that he was going to be treated Tuesday for arrhythmia, or abnormal heart beat.

"McSherry was believed to be the first major league umpire to be fatally stricken during a game. Ray Chapman is the only player to die after an on-field accident. He was beaten by Carl Mays in 1920 and died shortly thereafter.

Braves 10, Giants 8

ATLANTA — Greg Maddux wasn't at his best, but he was still good enough to score the Atlanta Braves.

Maddux, winner of an unprecedented four straight Cy Young Awards, allowed nine hits and four runs in 5 2/3 innings as the Braves opened defense of their World Series Championship with a win over the San Francisco Giants.

The Braves hit five homers off three San Francisco pitchers, but they barely held on in the ninth. Training 10-5, the Giants scored three times off Mark Wohlers on McHalls RBI single and Glennallen Hill's two-run homer before Pedro Borbon got Shawn Dunston on a fly to left for a save.

Ryan Klesko had a two-run homer and two-run single for Atlanta. Jeff Blauser, Fred McGriff, Mark Lemke and Jerome Walton also homered for the Braves.

Mets 7, Cardinals 6

NEW YORK — The New York Mets began the 1992 season where they left off 1991.

Picked by some to make a run at the playoffs despite an inexperienced lineup, the Mets thrilled their opening-day crowd of 42,000 by rolling from six a game deficit to beat the St. Louis Cardinals.

Held to four hits by Andy Beane and trailing 6-3 through six innings, the Mets string together five singles and a sacrifice fly to score four times in the seventh and spoil Tony La Russa's debut as St. Louis manager.

Todd Hundley hit a two-run homer and former Cardinal Bernard Gilkey had a solo home run and a key single for the Mets. Rookie shortstop Rey Ordonez made two nice plays up the

Sandberg returns to game he left

CHICAGO (AP) — He stood at his locker, put on the familiar blue cap and gave it a tug, dropped his batting gloves in his hip pocket and then headed to the field.

Ryne Sandberg, the butterflies churning, returned to work Monday, came back to Wrigley Field as a player for the first time since retiring June 1994.

It was April and it was cold but Sandberg, a nine-time Gold Glove winner and 10-time All-Star, was warmed by a renewal with the game he once played so well.

"I get jittery before every game, that's nothing new," he said. "I just want to be part of the team. It's good to have the Cubs uniform back on and be back here at Wrigley Field. This is what I've been looking forward to."

Sandberg, Chicago's second most famous No. 23 to retire and then return, couldn't move without camp capturing his every step.

"One thing we're trying to keep from doing is dump too many expectations on Ryne. To expect Ryne Sandberg circa 1980 is not fair," Cubs general manager Ed Lynch said.

Umpire's death casts pall on Big Day

The Associated Press

On a day when it dearly wanted to celebrate, baseball mourned instead for a beloved figure.

The death of umpire John McSherry, who collapsed Monday while calling balls and strikes in the first inning of the Expos-Reds game in Cincinnati, cast a pall over what many had counted on to be a warm breath of life after a long, cold winter and two strike-shortened seasons.

The game, which under a more traditional baseball schedule would have been the first of the season, was postponed until Tuesday.

McSherry's death from an apparent heart attack was the most tragic event of a day when snow and rain forced postponement of three other games, and fans from the Deep South to the East River cheered in their seats.

A storm that dumped up to 7 inches of snow on the Cleveland area caused a day's delay in the openers for the Yankees and Indians at Jacobs Field, where a 4-foot-high snowman in an Indians' cap patrolled the third base line. Cold rain and wet grounds did in Kansas City at Baltimore and Colorado at Philadelphia.

It was a stormy start to a spring of promise and hope.

Although professional baseball officially opened its 128th season Sunday night with its earliest ever game, a 3-2 victory by Seattle over the Chicago White Sox in 12 innings, Monday was opening day, with nine games scheduled and sellouts abounding.

It seemed the perfect setting for baseball and its fans to start to push up their differences and resume a sporting love affair. For the first time in three seasons, on threats of labor strife loomed, and there were rich promises of record-chasing years by the game's new legion of superstars.

But those visions vanished quickly in Riverfront Stadium, where McSherry was behind the plate seven pitches into the first inning of the first game.

With temperatures in the 40s and Rondell White, the Expos' No. 3 hitter, at bat against Pete Schourek, McSherry walked away from the plate and, unnoticed by the other umpires, before collapsing on the warning track in front of a tunnel near the backstop. Emergency workers rushed to his side and tried to revive him.

But the 328-pound McSherry never regained consciousness. He was pronounced dead about an hour later at the University of Cincinnati Hospital.

"It probably had a massive coronary," said Richard Johnson, one of the Reds' doctors.

McSherry, popular with players, managers and the media, had a history of medical problems. He was named a crew chief in July 1988, replacing Lee Weaver, who died of a heart attack two weeks earlier.

Baseball was played elsewhere Monday, often in conditions more akin to football or ice skating.

Owens Ted Turner sported a snap helmet that, as he watched the Atlanta Braves get their World Series championship rings, then opening 1996 with a 10-8 victory over San Francisco in chilly Atlanta.

At Shea Stadium, where a cold wind whipped the rain, the Mets rallied for a 7-6 victory over St. Louis.

And in Chicago, Rene Sandberg returned to a frigid Wrigley Field and helped the Cubs beat San Diego 5-1 in 10 innings. Sandberg went 0-for-3 with two walks and handled seven fielding chances flawlessly in his first game since June 1994.

Twins tweak Tigers, 8-6, on opening day

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Brad Radke and Matt Lawton made sure the Minnesota-Twins didn't need Kirby Puckett on opening day.

With vision problems keeping Puckett out of the opening-day lineup for the first time since 1984, Radke struck out a career-high eight, and Lawton had two hits and two RBIs in Puckett's place as the Twins beat the Detroit Tigers 8-6 Monday.

Radke, making the first opening-day start, gave up five singles in six innings.

Dave Stevens worked the ninth for the save.

After John Flaherty opened the second with a hit, Radke retired 15 of the last 17 batters he faced.

Dave Hollins had two hits, two RBIs and two runs scored in his Minnesota debut before a crowd of 30,195 at the Metrodome.

Felipe Lira was the loser, giving up six runs and eight hits in three innings.

Minnesota Twin Chuck Knoblauch slides safely past Detroit Tigers catcher John Flaherty to score on a first inning hit by Marty Cordova.

American League

Rangers 5, Red Sox 3

ARLINGTON, Texas — Ken Hill, making his debut for Texas, allowed eight hits in 8 2/3 innings.

Craig Worthington, starting because Dwain Palmer had an injured hamstring, homered for the Rangers, who drew 40,484 to The Ballpark in Arlington, about 8,000 short of a sellout.

Hill pitched for St. Louis and Cleveland last year, then signed an $8.15 million, two-year deal with Texas.

After Tim Lincecum homered in the sixth, Ed Vosberg finished for the save.

Roger Clemens, 3-1 in seven season openers, coming in, allowed four runs and three hits in five innings, struck out five and walked six.

After John Flaherty opened the second with a hit, Radke retired 15 of the last 17 batters he faced.

Dave Hollins had two hits, two RBIs and two runs scored in his Minnesota debut before a crowd of 30,195 at the Metrodome.

Felipe Lira was the loser, giving up six runs and eight hits in three innings.

Sandberg received a big ovation when introduced before the game, and a louder and longer one when he walked to the plate in the bottom of the first. It was his first game since June 10, 1994, when he abruptly retired.

Houston Astros.

With Houston leading 10 in the fifth, Brett Butler, Mike Piazza and Eric Karros hit consecutive one-out singles to tie the score. Mike Blowers walked with two outs, leading the bases, and Hollandsworth drove a pitch from Shane Reynolds to center, with the ball rolling to the fence.

The game drew 34,475 to the Astrodome, leaving about 18,000 empty seats. Astros owner Drayton McLane has threatened to move or sell the team unless attendance improves this season.

Ramon Martinez won his seventh consecutive decision for the Dodgers, allowing three runs and six hits in six innings.

Pirates 4, Marlins 0

MIAMI — Paul Wagner pitched 6 2/3 scoreless innings and rookie Jason Kendall threw in two runs.

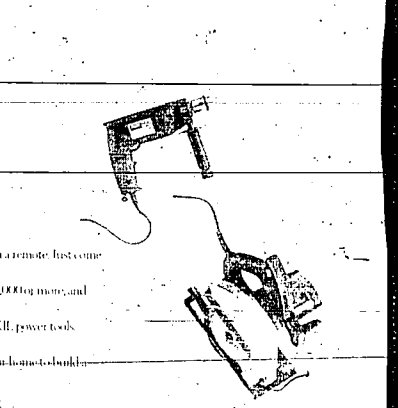

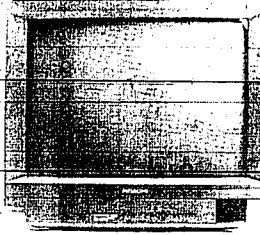

Before a sellout crowd of 41,815, Kendall made his major league debut at age 21, going 3-0 with two RBI singles and a double. The catcher also threw out a runner attempting to steal.

Jay Bell added a two-out, two-run double in the eighth.

Wagner, who had a major league high 16 losses last season, earned the victory by allowing just two hits and one walk while striking out five.

Marlins starter Kevin Brown, making his first NL appearance after 213 games in the AL, was the loser, allowing one run and six hits in seven innings.

Dallas Cowboys star wide receiver Michael Irvin leaves the Dallas County jail after being released on bail on two counts of drug possession Monday.

Irvin indicted on drug charges

DALLAS (AP) — Michael Irvin, the Dallas Cowboys' all-time leading receiver and one of the NFL's most popular players, was indicted on two counts of drug possession Monday. He faces up to 20 years in prison if convicted.

Irvin and two female companions were indicted by a grand jury less than a month after police found them in a motel room littered with cocaine and marijuana.

The indictment charges Irvin with felony possession of at least 4 grams of cocaine and misdemeanor possession of marijuana.

Irvin, former teammate Alfredo Roberts and the two women, described by police as topless dancers, were found in an Irving motel room on March 4 with drugs and paraphernalia.

Jail officials said Irvin was arrested shortly after the indictments were returned, then released on $5,500 bond. He was seen entering the grand jury courtroom about 1:30 p.m. Monday and was seen leaving the Lee Street Justice Center with Roberts about 4 p.m.

Just 10 weeks earlier, Irvin helped the Cowboys to their third Super Bowl championship in four years.

Telephone messages left with Irvin's attorney, Kevin Chance, were not immediately returned. No trial date has been set for the case.

A statement released by the NFL said: "We are aware of today's grand jury charges and will closely monitor the case. Players ultimately convicted of drug-related violations of law are subject to disciplinary action by the commissioner."

"Pending resolution of such court cases, the NFL drug policy and program for drugs of abuse and alcohol status that players involved in drug-related incidents are required to undergo on a confidential basis a medical evaluation by independent doctors that could result in a mandatory treatment program. In addition, players in the drug program are subject to 10 tests per month for two years. Failure to comply with any portion of the policy would result in fines leading to suspension."

There was no decision on whether to indict Roberts, a 31-year-old business associate of Irvin, said a spokeswoman with the district attorney's office.

Irvin and one of the women, 22-year-old Yvonne Beck, face a punishment of two to 20 years and a fine of $10,000 if convicted on the cocaine charge. The misdemeanor charge is punishable by up to 180 days in county jail and/or a $2,000 fine.

Beck was charged with felony possession of at least 4 grams of cocaine and misdemeanor possession of marijuana. Jasmine J. Nalwanga, 21, was charged with possessing less than a gram of cocaine, a felony, and with misdemeanor possession of marijuana.

Nalwanga could face 180 days to two years in jail and/or a $10,000 fine if convicted of the cocaine charge.

Police said Beck claimed the drugs belonged to her, and officials estimated their worth to be $6,000. She was the only one arrested when the drugs were seized on March 4.

Roberts said the woman had been offered immunity from prosecution for their testimony. Fort Worth television station KNXS had reported.

Maleeva earns birthday win in Family Circle Cup

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Magdalena Maleeva, overcoming humid weather that made for slow play, celebrated her 24th birthday Monday by beating Lisa Raymond 6-2, 7-6 (7-5) in the second round of the Family Circle Magazine Cup.

Girls' tennis singles matches were played at the Corel WTA Tour's first clay court event of the year, with the field trimmed from 59 to 28 players. Maleeva was the lone seed competing.

Maleeva, the youngest of three sisters who have played on the tour, was a finalist in the event last year and is seeded fifth this time.

"The balls were extremely heavy and the weather was very humid and the ball was just not playable," she said. "I decided I was just going to play the high top spin and if I had a chance, I would attack."

In other matches, Barbara Paulus of Austria defeated Nathalie of Indonesia 6-3, 6-2.

Maleeva had no problem in the first set, breaking three times and winning in 27 minutes.

In the second set, Raymond led 3-2, breaking in the third game. Maleeva came back to run off three straight games. But Raymond broke at 3-4, and each player held serve the rest of the set to force a tiebreaker. Maleeva won it easily, 7-3.

The tournament is without Monica Seles, the world's No. 1 player, who withdrew Friday, citing a shoulder injury.

Five of the world's top 10 players are in the field at Sea Pines Racquet Club. Two-time defending champion Conchita Martínez, the top seed, along with Arantxa Sanchez Vicario, Iva Majoli and Gabriela Sabatini all received first-round byes.

Jana Novotna, Amanda Coetzer and Mary Pierce are expected to play their first matches Tuesday.

Worm is back, but will he behave?

DEERFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Dennis Rodman is on trial again — with the NBA, with the referees and with his own teammates.

Suspended six games for head-butting a referee March 16, Rodman returns to the Chicago Bulls for "The Show" night's game at Miami.

"Everybody's going to be watching Dennis," teammate Scottie Pippen said Monday. "I'm hoping that he's going to be professional enough to get himself back on the right track. He's not some rebuilding do."

Michael Jordan just wants Rodman to behave for 10 weeks — long enough for the Bulls to complete a victorious run through the NBA Finals.

"We go out and bust our huts to put ourselves in a position to win a championship," Jordan said. "If he can't adhere to that, he wants to be a distraction."

"We have to be able to rely on him being there every night. He let this team down."

Jordan and Pippen, the Bulls' two stars, were leery when Chicago traded for Rodman just before training camp. After all, the "Worm" had a reputation as a hot tempered, selfish player who undermined the San Antonio Spurs in the playoffs each of the previous two seasons.

This season, Rodman leads the league in rebounding. And his energy has helped the Bulls (62-8) in their pursuit of an NBA record 70 victories. Though he has been assessed 23 technical fouls, he had avoided any serious problems until the incident with referee Ted Bernhardt.

That incident, however, has renewed doubts in the minds of his teammates.

"Once again, we fell back to where we started from Day 1," Jordan said. "We have to put trust in this individual for the talents that he provides for this team. We hope that he can fall in line and adapt to what we need him to do for this team to be successful."

But Rodman — with his ever-changing hair colors, tattoo-covered torso, vulgar language and penchant for posing in Playboy — is no fall-in-line-and-adapt kind of guy.

At Monday's practice, he showed off his new 'do. Bright red.

"I think Dennis looks best as a blond," coach Phil Jackson quipped.

Rodman couldn't talk about his return, but during a paid appearance on Chicago's WMAQ-TV Sunday night, he was more descending than contrite: "I've been a bad boy. I'm sorry. I'll be good now."

Of his relationship with referees, Rodman said: "It's going to be touch-and-go in the beginning, but I will work my way through it. He gets away with dozens of grabs, pushes and shoves during the course of a game. Rodman claims that the league in general and referees in particular pick on him.

"He should feel that he's definitely going to be picked on now," Pippen said. "Anytime you try to intimidate an official, they're going to go together. He's in a tough situation now."

Jordan, who has taken on the basketball establishment in the past, said Rodman must learn that the NBA will never lose a confrontation with a player.

"The league is going to test him. The referees are going to test him," Jordan said. "He should be aware of that. He's got to turn the other cheek. Right now, he should know that he can't turn against commissioner David Stern or against the referees."

Panthers slink past Whalers, 3-2

MIAMI (AP) — Ray Sheppard has turned out to be the Florida Panthers' golden parachute. Sheppard once again put an end to a Panthers freefall in the Eastern Conference with a goal and an assist to lead Florida to a 3-2 victory over the Hartford Whalers on Monday night. The victory put a halt to a four-game losing streak.

The right wing came over from San Jose on March 16 and the next day the Panthers stopped a nine-game winless streak. Sheppard has six goals and two assists — including a hat-trick — since coming to the Panthers in the trade with the Sharks.

"He has provided a spark for us," said Panthers All-Star Scott Mellanby, who also broke out of a 10-game scoring slump with a goal. "He has provided a confidence factor. We know when he gets a few good chances, he's going to score."

The Whalers dropped to 0-5-2 in recent road games and still must travel to Tampa Bay and New Jersey this week.

Bruins 1, Senators 1
KANATA, Ontario — The Boston Bruins scored a lucky goal in the third period credited to Tim Sweeney and held on for a 1-1 tie against the lovely Ottawa Senators.

Boston (36-30-10) squandered the chance to pull even with Washington for sixth place in the Eastern Conference. Both teams have six games remaining, while New Jersey and Tampa Bay have seven games left and fell two points behind the Bruins.

Ottawa rookie Daniel Alfredsson broke a scoreless tie at 2:21 of the third period, but 68 seconds later Boston caught a break. Dave Archibald's hard clearing attempt from the Ottawa goalmouth hit Sweeney's ship and bounced straight back past Senators goalie Dominik Rhoads.

ESPN sets standard for baseball coverage

The Associated Press

pieces of the root won't fall off. I had only three small problems with the telecast, one of which was out of ESPN's control.

The baseball season is only one day old, and already ESPN has given Fox something to shout for. With its fresh camera angles, super slow-mo and the best broadcast team in baseball in Jon Miller and Joe Morgan, ESPN does baseball better than anybody. So far anyway.

While ESPN telecasted the game Sunday night at Seattle, Fox does not chime in on its inaugural season until Saturday, June 1 when it resurrects the Game of the Week.

In the meantime, Fox can take some hints from ESPN.

ESPN's use of field level angles down the foul lines and direct overhead shots makes for some pretty classy TV, playoff style. ESPN used both angles to help illustrate a chase play at first base involving Chicago's Tony Phillips in the third inning.

First, the foul-line camera got some beautiful shots of Seattle shortstop Alex Rodriguez going into the hole on Phillips' grounder, and the overhead camera gave us a unique perspective on the close call at first. It was the perfect shot.

Of course, the overhead angle is only available in certain stadiums, such as domes, and only when technical crews are convinced that any other part of the screen at any time, and it is more difficult to isolate.

The lower left corner of the screen would be a less obtrusive place to put a score board, but that's where the other graphics go.

Fox isn't sure what it's going to do in the way of an on-screen scoreboard for baseball yet.

"It's not the worst thing in the world. I'm not offended by it," Fox Sports executive producer Ed Goren said Monday. "But I think it's a little distracting. If a ball is hit up the alley in right field and a guy is about to make a sensational catch, I'm not sure I want to see the Fox Box."

Twin Falls airport officially named

By Virginia S. Garber
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—They hope this one takes flight. City and county officials Monday selected another new name for the Twin Falls airport — "Justin Field, Magic Valley Regional Airport."

That's a slightly lengthened variation on the winner of officials' call-in poll — "Magic Valley Regional Airport."

But it's shorter than the name officials picked last month, "Idaho's South Central Airport, Gateway to the Great Rift and Sun Valley," which drew public ridicule and was discarded later by the city and county.

The move satisfied one Twin Falls woman who called in to vote for "Magic Valley Regional Airport."

"This is much better. They got reasonable," Marion Van Engelen said. Van

April fool

The new name of the Twin Falls airport, Justin's Southern Idaho Magic Valley Regional Airport, managed by the South Central Idaho Regional Solid Waste District, Corp., No. 13, that's just the April Fool's Day proposal of Councilman Lance Clow. The City Council failed to give it serious consideration.

Engelen wrote a nine-sentence letter to the City Council and county commissioners after they approved the Great Rift airport name.

"I really don't think the name of our airport should be longer than the airplanes that use it."

The newest name also pleased Anne Loebs of Twin Falls, who said "Magic Valley" is a term familiar to locals and intriguing to outsiders.

Tourists don't choose a destination for the name of its airport, Loebs said.

so the name should be something to which residents are accustomed, and the new name fits the bill.

A few of the Twin Falls residents — attracted either who "have no business" giving their opinion on the airport name.

"Everything we do, we do for Magic Valley. We do nothing for Twin Falls," Griggs said. He said the airport, which Twin Falls city and county residents taxes help fund, should contribute to Twin Falls' "community spirit."

Twin Falls city and county pay about $100,000 expense annually for the airport's operating expenses; city finance director Gary Hays said that's more than half the airport's operating budget. They also shelled out roughly $400,000 for the new $2.6 million terminal, he said — a federal, state and passenger fee money paid for the rest.

Officials say the newest Twin Falls airport name will embrace other communities and retain something of the airport's history.

Before last month, the facility was called "Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional Airport, Justin Field." Justin Field was named in honor of the first Magic Valley resident to die in World War II.

The county — but not the city — also tried to recommend an airport marketing slogan, "Gateway to Sun Valley and the Snake River Plan."

City will collect Falls gate fee earlier this year

TWIN FALLS—Weeks after crowds starting showing up at the swollen Shoshone Falls, the city has decided to start collecting an entrance on weekends — beginning April 15.

Gate-fee collections at the falls usually begin later in the spring, but city officials say they want to capitalize on tourist-attracting high water flows in the Snake River. The city did not set a starting date for daily fee collections.

The gate fee is $2 per vehicle and $10 per bus for entry to the falls overlook and Bierkes Lake.

Rezoning to affect Wilmore Ave. off Blue Lakes Blvd.

TWIN FALLS—Wilmore Office Park received a rezoning from the City Council Monday to allow a professional office on a residential lot at 114 Wilmore Ave. just off Blue Lake Boulevard North.

The city also approved a zoning change from residential to commercial at 1120 Wilmore Ave. for the office park to build a parking lot.

Councilman Gale Kleinkopf voted against both rezoning measures, asking the council to preserve the residential area. Councilman Chris Talkington, also citing commercial creep on Wilmore, opposed just the second rezoning.

Vinsant fails to enter plea, continues to be held in jail

TWIN FALLS—A 61-year-old Twin Falls man appeared in district court Monday, but has not yet entered his plea of guilty or innocence to seven child-molestation charges.

Earl Lee Vinsant was being held in the Twin Falls County Jail Monday evening on $950,000 bail, according to a jail official. He is charged with three counts of sexual abuse and four counts of lewd conduct.

The charges accuse him of molesting five pre-teen girls between December 1992 and October 1995 in Twin Falls, according to a grand jury indictment.

Vinsant has pleaded innocent to another sexual-abuse charge accusing him of having molested a pre-teen boy on Oct. 15, 1995. Vinsant was convicted of sodomy in Provo, Utah in 1981, indecent assault in Ogden, Utah in 1958, and lewd conduct in Ogdah County in 1987.

New restaurant to open soon in Old Towne district

TWIN FALLS—Dining options in Old Towne will expand soon with the opening of Creekside Steak House, serving steak, poultry and some seafood.

"Creekside should open in early May beside Castle Brewery and Frame Shoppe in a renovated warehouse on Fifth Avenue South," said Jim Durr, who owns the new restaurant with his wife, Shawna Gilmore.

A brick interior, wooden floors, an indoor fountain, antiques and a "check of a fine display," Durr said, are meant to make the new business compatible with the historical and artistic flavor of the redeveloping warehouse district.

Creekside will serve a variety of dishes and "unusual" sandwiches for lunch, with prices ranging from $4.95 to $8.95. Formal dinners will cost from $8.95 to $22.50, Durr said.

Durr's specialty will be a beef tenderloin steak stuffed with mushrooms, and his restaurant will make "everything from scratch." Sundays at Creekside will feature a sit-down champagne brunch, Durr said.

NCAA night

The NCAA men's basketball championship game is projected onto a screen at the Twin Falls Reformed Church Monday for a monthly gathering arranged by the church's Men's Ministries.

Men gather at church to watch basketball

By H.R. Weisel
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS—The NCAA basketball championship game Monday night brought out a jumbo screen and giant servings of pretzels amid cheers and groans of men and teenage boys gathered at a Twin Falls church.

"This wasn't meant to be a religious event — just a place and time for all men to hang out and pig out a fun time for them all regardless of church affiliation," said Rudy Walker, chairman of Men's Ministries at the Twin Falls Reformed Church.

Not welcome were women.

But according to telephone interviews, about 150 men and boys from many Magic Valley churches were in the church's event center for the championship game between the Kentucky Wildcats and the Syracuse Orangemen.

"This is great! We men need a place to go to just get together with the other guys and ask everybody how they're doing," said church member Marty Riordan.

"Even with no religion and no preaching, there was something there that made it different," Walker said.

At half-time, the 16-by-16-foot screen was turned off, and former College of Southern Idaho coach Steve Irons was presented with a community-service plaque.

"Set yourself up for success as you play the game of life," Irons said in a speech to the group. "Instead of setting yourself up for a big letdown if you don't reach your ultimate goal, you can be successful every time you reach a lesser goal."

Jeff Robinson, a member of the church, said he took a random sample of the audience "and it looks like the majority are rooting for the Orangemen."

Syracuse ended up settling for the lesser goal.

Jerome County may get new prosecutor

By Rob Lundgren
Times-News correspondent

JEROME—Three area deputy prosecutors have filed for election to the Jerome County prosecuting attorney position — apparently because incumbent John Horgan has not publicly declared his retirement — but Jerome County Commission Chairman Roy Prescott announced during his last report to the commissioners Monday that Horgan would not seek re-election.

"I will make an official announcement on Friday," Horgan told The Times-News. "That is the last day to file petitions to enter the primary race."

Two of the three hopefuls were talking about Horgan in the past tense Monday.

"With John's (Horgan) departure, this is an opportunity for me to advance," said Jerome County Deputy Prosecutor John Meienhofer. "I enjoy prosecuting and enjoy the challenge. Crime is going to increase in the future, and I'm going to be a real challenge keeping up."

Twin Falls County Deputy Prosecutor John Lohspeich said, "It would be an honor to succeed Horgan."

Also filing for the seat is Loren

Bingham, a Jerome County deputy prosecutor. All three were filed with the county clerk as Republicans.

Meienhofer, 31, has served in Jerome's prosecution office since August 1994. Prior to that, he worked for a private law firm in Boise, and served as a clerk for a Boise judge.

Bingham, 45, has been a deputy prosecutor with Jerome County for the past six months.

He served as a clerk for District Judge Meehl, was in private practice for 10 months, and held a deputy prosecutor position in Twin Falls for 18 months.

"Part of law enforcement is to make sure the law is enforced evenly and justly across the board," he said. "As a native of this area, I'm interested in how the prosecutor's office is run."

Lohspeich, 31, started his law career in Jerome as a deputy prosecutor in 1991.

He left the job in 1993 for a similar position with Twin Falls County, and has been the chief deputy prosecutor since.

Lohspeich also resides in Jerome.

Lohspeich said his priorities will be "attacking the drug problem and continuing to prosecute sex-abuse cases. I'll simply do the best I can in keeping this a nice place to live."

Rupert parking lot divider may jeopardize dance club

By John Thompson
Times-News writer

RUPERT—A three-foot-high concrete wall, recently installed to separate the parking lots of two Rupert businesses, could ruin one of the establishments, its manager says.

Lorena Ortega, manager of the Fiesta Mexicana dance hall, isn't sure why the concrete divider was installed recently by the owners of King's Variety Store. But Ortega is sure the wall is hurting her business.

"King's has tried to snop our customers from entering the property and I think it's an extreme position. It is keeping a lot of our customers away," Ortega said. "We have tried to talk with King's but there has been no communication. But if that's how they feel, then by all means, it's their parking lot."

Tom King, owner of the variety store, declined to explain the wall at this time.

Ortega added that in the past, King's has hired a tow truck to remove cars from his side of the parking lot.

The dance hall is normally open on weekends from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. and is also used as a reception center and for fund raising events, she said. Fiesta Mexicana has been the subject of several complaints from other nearby businesses over the past two years.

Rupert City Attorney Rick Bollar said nearby business owners have made a variety of complaints to police, including fighting, littering and public urinating by the patrons of Fiesta Mexicana.

In response, the city placed restrictions on the establishment's liquor license, requiring that the buyers notify the police department when large crowds are expected.

Fiesta Mexicana has an occupancy license for a certain number of people, as regulated by the city's fire code. Bollar said installation of the concrete wall could lead to a lower occupancy rating.

"Fiesta Mexicana has a certificate of occupancy based on available parking, and the question this raises is whether or not the wall curtails that available parking," he said.

Bollar added that he intends to research and discuss the matter further with county Zoning Administrator Paul Aston.

Ortega said the establishment has been unfairly treated by the press and the Rupert business community. She said the March 24 shooting in Rupert happened more than a block away and after Fiesta Mexicana had closed.

"This is just one more thing affecting one business," she said. "We have complaints from the city's police and we wish those who have a problem with our business would come forward and talk to us about it. There are other ways to deal with it."

Minidoka narrows search for new superintendent

Times-News writer

RUPERT—The Minidoka County School District will select from 11 applicants who want to be its new superintendent, a district official said.

The district received 20 inquiries in all, after advertising the opening at school districts and universities all over the Intermountain West, according to Assistant Superintendent Richard Goodworth.

Friday was the application deadline. Goodworth said the number of applicants is encouraging, and the narrowing down of those 11 prospects begins immediately.

Radio-collared wolf shot, killed in Wyoming
MEELETSSE, Wyo. (AP) — A radio-collared wolf was shot to death on grazing lands over the weekend, Wyoming Game and Fish officials said Sunday.

Ranch managers in the Meeteetse area said Sunday they had been advised by federal wildlife agents to do anything about Saturday's shooting. But they were upset that they had not been told wolves were in the area because it is calving season.

"My understanding when they went into it was that they would monitor the wolves and let us know when the came around," said rancher Alice Renner. "So far, they don't seem to have followed through on that at all."

Since the shooting, state game wardens have warned ranchers to watch for other wolves.

The wolf was the fifth Yellowstone National Park wolf killed since an initial 14 wolves were freed in the park early last year. Two other wolves have been shot illegally, one was snared by a predator control agency's agent after it killed sheep and the other was struck and killed by a delivery truck in the park.

Bombs explode during Spokane bank robbery

SPokane, Wash. (AP) — Robbers in ski masks who used a pipe bomb to hold up a bank Monday in the suburban Spokane Valley set off a secondary bomb Monday's earlier at a newspaper office, Sheriff John Goldman said.

No injuries were reported at either location, but both buildings sustained heavy damage, he said.

Investigators believe the pipe bomb explosion at The Spokesman-Review's Spokane Valley office was meant to divert attention from the bank robbery, Goldman said. Witnesses saw a customized white and maroon van at both locations.

A year later, a newspaper note left with the newspaper office bomb made religious references and mentioned Yahweh, an English rendering of the Hebrew name for God, The Spokesman-Review said in a statement.

The term Yahweh also is used by some members of the Christian Identity movement, which is known to have ties to white supremacist organizations. The newspaper said it turned the note over to authorities.

Goldman refused to comment on the note or discuss whether the bombings might be connected to an ongoing standoff between FBI agents and Montana Freedom at a remote farm in Montana's Garfield County.

The Freedom deny the legitimacy of the government and have set up their own laws and their own courts.

Federal agents from the FBI and Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms quickly joined the Spokane investigation.

Shortly after the robbery, authorities recovered an unregistered vehicle fitting the van's description at a hardware store parking lot a few blocks from the bank, Goldman said.

The van was reported stolen over the weekend from an Ellensburg car dealership, Ellensburg police Sgt. Bill Hutson said. Ellensburg is about 200 miles west of Spokane.

Goldman gave this account: The Spokane County Sheriff's Department received a report of a house blast at the newspaper's Spokane Valley office about 3:36 p.m. MST. A witness reported seeing a man get out of a van and run to the rear entrance of the building. Moments later, an explosion was heard.

About 10 minutes later, two gunmen wearing black ski masks entered a U.S. Bank branch about 30 blocks west of the newspaper office. The gunmen ordered everyone inside to evacuate, then took an unspecified amount of cash. A pipe bomb exploded inside the empty bank building. The two men fled in a van driven by a third person.

Burley City Council OKs utilities increases

By Jennifer Bunch Times-News writer

BURLEY—City residents will have to pay extra to discard old sofas, garden waste and other rubbish that can't be squashed inside a garbage bin.

The City Council publicized Monday its proposed utility rate increases for garbage, water, sewer and cemetery services. The increases could be in effect by May. The City Council will address the increases at least one more time at its April 15 meeting.

Tacked onto customers' regular monthly hauling fee will be extra charges for extra hauling. And the regular fee is going up, too.

Residents as well as businesses will be charged $100 for the first hour the city spends using a loader to pick up refuse that weighs more than 70 pounds. The city will charge $75 for each additional hour. An additional fee of $50 an hour and $35 for each additional hour will be charged for hauling away the refuse.

The city will charge $5 for each tire it must haul, and $25 for appliances, furniture and boxes of free limbs not bundled properly or that exceed 70 pounds.

Residential garbage rates will increase from $6.25 a month to $9. Residential customers filling 90-gallon garbage bins will be charged $12.50 a month, up from $9 monthly.

Commercial rates will be increased slightly. Rates will vary based on the number of containers and weekly pickups. The cost to dump a 20-yard container will double from $50 to $100.

In December, city auditor Ed Evans reported that Burley utilities operated at nearly a $48,000 loss in 1995. The city was able to absorb the losses.

In the past, an increase in property taxes has helped the city to keep up with operating expenses. But a 3 percent tax cap has kept property taxes down. Water and sewer rates haven't been increased since 1976. Garbage and cemetery fees were increased a few years ago.

The philosophy behind the proposed increases is to have users pay for the services, Mayor Frank Badman announced last month.

Burley proposes to begin charging city residents for hauling refuse that doesn't fit in garbage bins, such as the pile of tree limbs beside this city garbage truck.

Nuclear plant wrestles with fuel rod

PHOENIX (AP) — A 1,500-pound uranium fuel bundle remained stuck in a reactor at the nation's largest nuclear power plant Monday as experts worked round the clock to devise a plan to remove it without risking the release of radioactive gas.

Officials at the $9.3 billion, triple-reactor Palo Verde Nuclear Generating Station 55 miles west of Phoenix first noticed the problem March 22 when one of 241 fuel-bundles in Unit 2's reactor core could not be lifted out during a routine refueling operation.

Plant workers are worried that in trying to dislodge the fuel assembly, they may damage one or more of its 236 fuel rods. That could release radioactive iodine, krypton and xenon gas into a containment building and drop highly radioactive spent uranium fuel pellets into the bottom of the reactor.

There has been no radiation leak thus far and the public is not in danger, according to Palo Verde spokesman Jim McDonald.

Even in a worst-case scenario, McDonald said, there is no chance of a nuclear meltdown or any release of nuclear radiation outside the containment building because there isn't enough fuel in the 12-foot-long rods to cause a reaction.

Also, extra boron has been added to the reactor's coolant water to reduce the possibility of any reaction, he said.

Fifty plant officials and six U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission inspectors have been studying blueprints, computer records and videotapes of the assembly core since Sunday before attempting to dislodge the fuel assembly sometime Tuesday.

Mark Hammond, a spokesman for the NRC's field office in Walnut Creek, Calif., said the tentative plan is to use hydraulic jacks to push the 14-foot-long by 8-inch-square assembly up and then lower a rectangular, slink-like metal structure over it.

A pair of hooks on the structure then would grab onto either the sides or the bottom plate of the fuel assembly so it could be hoisted.

"I think that will work," Hammond said. "All the video inspections done so far show there is no structural damage to the fuel rods."

McDonald said the fuel assemblies usually are hoisted from the top by a crane-like device.

Plant officials believe a damaged cap, part of a 100,000-pound device used to set the bundle in place, caused the problem during a refueling last year by driving the bottom of the fuel assembly lower than intended.

A damaged fuel rod would result in a costly cleanup and a possible increase in electricity rates for the plant's 4 million customers in four states.

Unit 2's reactor's 49-day refueling outage was scheduled to end May 10 — about the time Phoenix starts experiencing 100-degree days.

Palo Verde, which began operations in 1986, is owned by a consortium of Arizona, California, New Mexico and Texas utilities.

Arizona Public Service Co. operates the 3,810-megawatt plant and owns 29.1 percent. Other owners are Salt River Project, 17.5 percent; El Paso Edison, 15.8 percent; Southern California Electric Co., 15.8 percent; Public Service Co. of New Mexico, 10.2 percent; Southern California Public Power Authority, 5.9 percent, and Los Angeles Department of Water and Power, 5.7 percent.

Although the fuel assembly problem is a first for the plant, Unit 2 has been plagued by problems in recent years, including a 1993 leak from a reactor coolant system that caused up to 15,000 gallons of radioactive water to spill out the door of a turbine building.

Being the nation's most productive electrical utility plant last year with 28 billion kilowatts produced, Palo Verde has been fined almost $1 million by the NRC since 1989 for safety and security violations, problems relating to emergency shutdowns and retaliating against whistleblowers.

Thomas Saparito, a former plant employee who relayed his safety concerns to the NRC in 1991 and settled his discrimination suit against APS out of court in 1994, said Palo Verde is unsafe.

Ill feelings may dampen bison meeting

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — Montana officials have declined to meet with some West Yellowstone critics of the state's policy on killing bison straying from Yellowstone National Park.

John Mindinger of the Department of Fish, Wildlife and Parks said state officials were concerned that a meeting would not be productive because emotion instead of reason might prevail.

"There are some people who are concerned this meeting is set up to do nothing but to feed the agencies," Mindinger said. "We need to have a good, honest dialogue with the community of West Yellowstone."

Some officials even suggested ed that those pushing for the meeting were being manipulated by national animal-rights activists.

But resident Donna Lane, who has been pushing for the session, vehemently denied that.

"This was my program," she said.

The policy is intended to prevent the spread of brucellosis that causes cows to abort calves, Critics claim there is no proof that the disease can be transmitted from wild bison to domesticated cattle.

Because of the state's decision, Lane said the April 6 meeting is being rescheduled to April 20. State officials said they had not been notified of that change, but Lane claimed it was. Lane said she was concerned "the world make a point of having somebody here."

Racicot policy chief Glenn Marx said he was willing to meet with Lane after the state completes its review of a new bison plan for trapping and testing the animals for brucellosis before eliminating any. But that could be up to six weeks.

"This is a serious issue and we respect it as such," Marx said. "To say that we don't care is a gross misrepresentation of the facts and of our perspective and our involvement."

Applicants

The MCEA has countered that Bishop was not responsive to teachers' needs.

The average employment longevity for a school district's top administrator is 27 months in the United States. Starting pay for the Minidoka job is at least $70,000 per year.

Goodworth said a screening committee will select about five candidates from among the 11 applicants. A second committee will submit a recommendation from the group and the School Board will make the decision.

One of the committees will be made up of taxpayers, and the other is made up of school district employees. Not all of the committee members had been selected by Monday afternoon, but Goodworth said a list of names would be available today.

Although the school district is in sound financial shape, it has three elementary schools that are less than sound structurally.

In January, the district suggested a bond election to upgrade or replace Yehburn, Acepuna and Pershing elementary schools. But in the wake of the Bishop matter, the district has temporarily backed away from idea.

BSU graduate overcomes obstacles for Air Force

BOISE (AP) — Mandy Wilson of Boise would not take no for an answer, even from the U.S. Air Force Academy.

Not when her dream since fifth grade has been to attend the military school in Colorado.

When her Scholastic Assessment Test scores were just 10 points below academy standards, she took the test a second time. A third, a fourth, a fifth time she repeated the SATs, raising her score 240 points.

And when the academy declined to admit her in 1995, she attended a Malibu, Calif., preparatory school for four months to hone up on calculus, chemistry and English. To stay in shape, she got a personal trainer at Gold's Gym.

Wilson's perseverance paid off on March 19, when the Defense Department appointed her. Only 15 percent of applicants are accepted.

Explosion rips through refinery

MARTINEZ, Calif. (AP) — A series of major explosions and fire rocked a Shell Oil refinery Monday, sending flames shooting out of smokestacks. There were no reports of injuries.

Flames roared through the section and smoke billowed into the air, witnesses said. A red glare from the flames was visible 10 miles away.

Residents were warned to stay indoors by county health officials.

The explosions began just before 7 p.m. in the refinery's light-oil processing area, Shell spokeswoman Tomi Van de Broeke said.

Idaho Court refuses to let prosecutors raise evidence

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court today refused to let Idaho prosecutors present evidence that might support the death penalty in the resentencing of a man convicted of a double murder.

The court, without comment, rejected prosecutors' argument that they did not promise to recommend a life prison sentence when Bryan Stuart Lankford earlier agreed to testify against his brother.

Lankford's lawyer, Joan Fisher of Genesee, said Idaho Solicitor General Lynn Thomas should never have permitted the Supreme Court to hear the case again.

The petition "wasn't based on the record, it was based on his frustration," Fisher said. "But the record was really clear."

Thomas, however, said then-Idaho County Prosecutor Dennis Albers "expressly disclaimed any intention of making such an agreement."

Lankford, 35, was convicted of two counts of felony murder for the 1983 beating deaths of Robert and Cheryl Bravovick. The couple, from Fort Worth, Texas, were camping at Santian Creek near Grangeville, Idaho.

After his conviction but before his sentencing, Lankford agreed to testify against his brother, Mark, who he said beat the Bravovicks to death.

At Lankford's sentencing, the prosecutor recommended a life sentence but the judge sentenced him to death, according to court records. The nation's highest court threw out the sentence in 1991, saying Lankford and his lawyer had not been given adequate notice that the judge was considering the death penalty.

At his new sentencing, prosecutors sought the death penalty. But 2nd District Judge Ronald Schilling ruled that they had promised to recommend a life sentence when Lankford agreed to testify, and that they must fulfill that promise.

The judge, however, let prosecutors present aggravating evidence that might support a death sentence. Schilling then sentenced Lankford to two consecutive life terms without the possibility of parole.

But the Idaho Supreme Court ordered yet another sentencing, saying prosecutors should have been barred from presenting aggravating evidence.

In the appeal acted on Monday, Thomas argued that prosecutors did not promise to recommend a life sentence.

Agencies picked to promote spuds.

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Potato Commission has affiliated with two national agencies to get the word out about the state's top product.

The Chicago office of Borell Worldwide will handle consumer and trade advertising for Idaho potatoes. The New York City office of Colby & Velle will provide public relations, educational and other promotional services.

Idaho Wisconsin landfill law revival refused by court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to revive a Wisconsin law that had banned recyclable materials from landfills and incineration.

The justices, without comment, let stand a federal appeals court ruling that said the law unduly interfered with interstate commerce because some trash comes from outside the state.

The law had prohibited disposal of trash anywhere in the state by anyone whose local community did not have certain recycling regulations.

Wisconsin's appeal was supported in friend-of-the-court briefs submitted in behalf of 17 states and the League of Women Voters.

They said the appeals court ruling threatens state efforts "to regulate local concerns, such as recycling, when such regulations are non-economic and protect local health and safety, natural resources or the environment."

The 17 states are California, Delaware, Florida, Idaho, Indiana, Kentucky, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, New Hampshire, New Mexico, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Texas and West Virginia.

The Wisconsin law, which took effect last year, named 11 kinds of recyclable materials that could not be dumped in the state. But it allowed the dumping of some quantities of those banned if among waste generated in a community or region that had adopted an "effective recycling program" — one that matched Wisconsin regulations.

The law was challenged quickly by landfill operators in the state and a solid waste trade association.

A federal judge upheld the recycling part of the law but the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals disagreed.

"With respect to non-Wisconsin communities, the statute mandates that they comply with any recycling laws of their home state as well as the requirements of the Wisconsin statute," the appeals court said.

Pocatello sees benefit from INEL funding

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Idaho Falls lost most of the jobs cut at the INEL last year, but so far Pocatello has grabbed most of the economic stimulus funding intended to replace the jobs.

The jobs projected to grow out of the new INEL-supported ventures during the next three years in Pocatello outnumber those projected for Idaho Falls by nearly six to one, 1,120 to 194.

Less than two years into its contract to run the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, Lockheed Martin Inc. has already begun to close to making its five-year commitment to grant $2.5 million to regional companies that create new jobs not dependent on the site.

The program is meant to diversify the economy as the U.S. Department of Energy site retreats from its dominant position.

Lockheed Martin has distributed $2.1 million already, about $1.5 million of it to Pocatello. Of the seven companies sharing the assistance so far, four with the largest payroll projections are based in Pocatello.

Two new Idaho Falls ventures have received help, along with a meat company in Blackfoot.

Discussing the job-recreation program last week, Lockheed Martin Idaho President John Denson said the city 50 miles down Interstate 15 has made all the right moves.

"Pocatello is very aggressive," Denson said. "That does not mean Idaho Falls economic officials are failing. Denson said, but Pocatello was ready to go as soon as Lockheed Martin was."

"I don't want to get in between these two cities," he said. "I'm saying Pocatello brought deals down immediately."

Lockheed Martin officials view economic Idaho's economy regionally, and say they have tried to put the money wherever proposals seemed timely and likely to succeed. Their view is supported by economic development officials from the various cities who have worked together on such projects as an attempt to lure a Micron microelectronics semiconductor plant to the region.

"I see it as a regional concept, not Pocatello versus Idaho," Lockheed Martin spokesman Greg Ossman said.

He said there is no favoritism toward Pocatello, just well-timed proposals from that city.

Idaho Falls and Blackfoot companies have won the last three grants, and Ossman said he expects them to continue picking up jobs.

Judge rejects Paradis' petition

BOISE (AP) — U.S. District Judge Edward Lodge Monday rejected the final federal petition for a new trial from condemned murderer Donald Marred Paradis.

The decision came as the 46-year-old former motorcycle gang member waited for 1st District Judge Gary Haman to issue a new execution date for the mid-1980 murder of 19-year-old Kimberly Ann Palmer.

Defense attorney Bill Mauk said Lodge's ruling would be appealed to the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in the next several days. But with the issuance of a death warrant looming, Mauk said the defense team was concentrating on filing a new state commission on Pardons and Parole.

Mauk expects the commission to decide next week whether to grant Paradis a hearing on that petition. But based on various legal requirements, there was a real possibility that any hearing would be scheduled after the new execution date.

That would require Paradis to either win a stay of execution from the federal appellate court — which has also previously rejected a petition similar to the one Lodge denied — or a temporary reprieve from Gov. Phil Batt so that at least the hearing could occur before the execution.

The state has vigorously objected to the continuous delays in the Paradis case, although Batt has declined to take any specific position on the case in which consideration of the grave questions raised by the defense has been blocked on technical grounds.

Mauk had asked Attorney General Alan Lance to join him in asking Haman to delay setting a new execution date until the clemency hearing and federal appeals have run their course. But in a letter to Mauk on Monday, Lance declined.

A delay in setting an execution date, Mauk argued, would "give everybody involved, the governor, the board, the attorneys, the prison officials, sufficient time to hear the clemency petition and not have to consider it in an atmosphere of crisis."

Even if the parole board sided with Paradis, it can only recommend that his death sentence be commuted. Batt would have to sign off on the recommendation for it to take effect.

Rigby family claims officials didn't give proper warning

RIGBY (AP) — Last Nov. 17, Rigby High School student Jeffrey Tinker was airlifted to a Salt Lake City hospital with a potentially deadly meningococcal infection.

On the same day, area health officials were ordering $56,000 worth of vaccine to treat 2,400 Rigby-area students.

Now a $10 million tort claim has been filed against the Rigby School District, Jefferson County and the state on behalf of Tinker. The claim alleges that officials did not properly warn parents about the outbreak of the disease.

The claim alleges Tinker lost his toes and part of both feet and suffered serious damage to his arms, legs, hands, fingers and lungs due to the infection. The claim, required before a lawsuit can be filed against a government entity, was filed in Jefferson County last week. Area health officials say the school district acted quickly to stop the disease from spreading further.

"I feel they handled the situation as they should have," Bibbe Crapo, District 7 Health Department's physical health director, said Monday.

"It was really a matter of quick responsiveness," said Karon Conwell, District 7 Health Department epidemiologist.

Tinker was diagnosed days after the second Rigby teen had his illness confirmed as the bacterial disease. The health department considers an outbreak of the infection after two or more related cases are diagnosed.

The first case was diagnosed in early October, and Tinker came down with symptoms on Nov. 16.

Tinker's family had no comment on the tort claim or the boy's condition.

Valley life

Twenty-somethings choose to stay single, unlike parents

Chicago Tribune
 "CHICAGO — Patrick Dillon sees himself as an average guy. He's 29, is immersed in his job and has not had a lot of time to think about getting married."
 His father, on the other hand, was married at age 21. It was 1965 and baby Patrick was born in 19th. Simple math, but an equation that leaves the younger Dillon shaking his head.

"I can't even imagine what that would be like," said Dillon, a computer programmer for a downtown bank. "By the time my dad was my age, he had an 8-year-old son. Most people I know can barely take care of themselves."
 Dillon is typical, according to a recent Census Bureau report. A generation ago, a man nearing 30 without a wedding ring was considered an oddity; for women, the label was "spinsters" at one time, but between 1970 and 1994, the number of never-married adults more than doubled, from 21.5 million to 44.2 million.

The median age at first marriage hit 29.7 for men and 27.4 for women — the oldest since the Census Bureau started collecting data about a century ago.
 "Though it might be tempting to assume that the shift represents a general aversion among young people on the institution of marriage, it may be more complicated than that. Certainly, the first generation to come of age from the divorce boom that began in the 1970s may feel more cautious about giving a leap they've seen unravel. But economic, educational, health control and rising individualism are equally important forces, experts say."
 "The vast majority of people would still like to get married eventually," said Linda Waite, professor of social policy at the University of Chicago. "What has changed is the tolerance for not getting married. People are far more neutral on what other people do than ever before, so there isn't the social pressure that there once was."

With the stigma removed, singles can relax about making the "I do" altar. They see their lives mirrored in TV shows like "Seinfeld" and "Friends," where the main characters are long on companionship and short on commitment. Their relationships between the sexes are more about hanging out than hanging on.

Good story is bad history, to our chagrin

DEAR ABBY: I read your column and find it entertaining and often educational. But I think you have a problem. Today I read a "true" story in your column about a woman who couldn't remember the name of someone she ran into on the street. As she raved her hair in, the other lady mentioned something about her brother. Figuring it might give her a clue to the lady's identity, the woman asked, "Your dear brother — what is he doing these days?"
 "He's still president of the United States," she replied. (She was Calvin Coolidge's sister.) Well, Abby, that's a cute story, but it cannot possibly be true. President Coolidge's only sister died in 1890, many years before he became president in 1923.

Dear Abby
 Abigail VanBuren

If you print this, please do not use my name.

TEXAS READER: Well, but me with a history book — but, please, not too hard because I'm beginning to feel like a battered woman. I apologize for the error.
DEAR ABBY: Regarding "Frank's Wife in Springfield, Va.," whose husband wouldn't help with the thank you notes for their wedding gifts? Thank you for printing her letter. It makes me realize once again how fortunate I am. My husband and I have been married for almost six months. Not only did he help me address and mail all 250 of our wedding invitations, he also willingly helped me write and mail all of our thank you notes. I'm a very lucky woman and say a prayer of thanks each night before I go to sleep.

My husband cooks most of the meals (he is an excellent cook, I might add) and helps me clean up afterward. On the weekends, he might do something with a friend from work, but only if it doesn't interfere with something that we might do together. This includes going to church, going shopping, and cleaning our home.

He does little things for me all the time and brings me little surprises such as my favorite snack or a bouquet of flowers. "Anything to make you happy," he says. I hope he realizes that he can't possibly make me any happier than he made me six months ago.

I don't think this is something that will soon pass. My husband and I dated for many years before we were married, and he treated me this way when we were dating. I wanted to send you a new twist to the "husband" letters. Your single female readers need to know that thoughtful, wonderful men do exist.

DAVID'S WIFE
IN TENNESSEE
DEAR DAVID'S WIFE: Thanks for the reminder. From time to time I get letters from men telling me they are disillusioned because they were taught to treat women with respect, and for that they have gotten nothing but rejection. You know how to recognize a man with quality. May you both enjoy many healthy, happy years together.

Early puberty adds to youths' growing pains
 Knight-Ridder News Service

Karen Turner was 9 — "just shy of her 10th birthday," says her mom — when she had her first period.

During the middle of a typical weekday morning rush to get out the door, Johanna Turner, 11, said her daughter, sitting quietly on the bottom of the staircase,

"Mom, it's happened," she said.

Johanna Turner knew almost immediately what "it" was. She called her mother and said that Karen had complained of mild stomach cramps the night before. Without a word, she gave her four-year-old a bear hug.

Luckily, the two had had their mother-daughter talk already. Without alarm or hysteria, Karen had recognized that she had begun menstruation, the monthly flow of blood and tissue from the uterus.

"The Turners were surprised by Karen's earlier-than-normal onset of menarche (the first menstrual period), but they weren't traumatized. Johanna, 11, said that Karen had had a frightening situation calmly and lovingly. A year earlier, she had been gently urged by Karen's pediatrician to discuss menstruation with their daughter, who had started showing physical signs of puberty.

"We started to talk about it right away in the car on the way home from the doctor's office," she recalled. Turner, a Palo Alto, Calif., resident who asked that her family's real names not be used. "It was a very matter-of-fact conversation."

Researchers consider the average age for the first menstrual period to be about 12 1/2 years old, but it is not uncommon for girls to start young. Sometimes much younger.

"To be the first in the family is incredibly isolating," says Sheila Dubin, a parenting counselor for Children's Health Center of Palo Alto. "And at that age, they're still children in a lot of ways. They're not really to be dealt with adolescence."

But understanding the biology of early menarche or listening to the theories as to why it happens doesn't make it much easier to live with. "It's not you or your daughter who's growing up sooner than expected. And the difference between a 10-year-old and a 12-year-old can be tremendous when it comes to child-life. At the very least it means a young girl is thrust into womanhood while she's still in elementary school.

No joke — new ATM fees start adding up

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Starting April 1, consumers across the nation could be charged an extra fee to use an automated teller machine outside of their bank's own system.

"This is an April Fool's joke to the consumer," said Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y. "Only it's not a trick because it's not going to go away."

The charge is a result of decisions last year by two major ATM systems operated by Visa International and MasterCard International. Visa did not set a maximum fee that could be charged but said it expects banks to charge 25 cents to $2.50 per transaction for machines not owned by their bank.

Some consumers could end up getting charged twice. Until now, ATM users typically were charged an average 95 cents per transaction by their own bank, if they were charged at all. For the first time in most states, consumers may have to pay two fees, one to their own bank and one to the owner of the bank machine.

"This amounts to a secret double-whammy on bank customers," said Schumer, who has proposed a bill that would require ATMs to disclose how much they're charging and give the customer the option of canceling the transaction.

Visa's Plus ATM Network and the MasterCard-Cirrus ATM Network both require banks that levy surcharges to post signs at the ATM and notify customers on the ATM screen that they face an additional fee. A Schumer spokesman said he's aware of these efforts, but that Schumer wants the disclosure written into law.

The first place consumers might notice the changes is while on vacation. Banks want to charge fees at ATMs located in tourist areas.

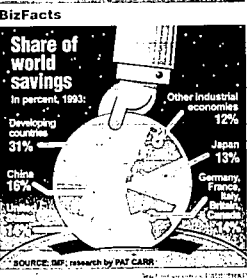

Banks lobbied Visa to limit its ban on ATM surcharges by asking it to levy fees at ATMs located in banks and resorts, convention centers and highway rest stops. These ATMs are convenient to customers but expensive for banks to operate.

At the meeting of local banks, 15 states already had made ATM surcharges illegal — several within the last year. Those states were Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Idaho, Louisiana, Maine, Mississippi, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, South Dakota, Texas, Utah, and Wyoming, according to the American Bankers Association.

ATM fees

Money-machine users who use another bank's machine may soon have to pay two fees: one to their own bank and one to the bank operating the ATM.

Stocks renew upward trend for 2nd quarter

NEW YORK — Blue-chip stocks led a broad advance Monday as blockbuster buyers dominated trading, lifting shares of telecommunication and health insurance companies.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 50.58 to close at 5,637.72, led by gains in General Motors Corp., which released details of its plans to spin off its computer services subsidiary, Electronic Data Systems.

Broader indicators also were positive. Advancing issues outnumbered decliners by about 3 to 2 on the New York Stock Exchange, where volume totaled 390.2 million shares as of 4 p.m., down from Friday's pace.

The NYSE's composite index rose 40.2 to 5,619.94.

The Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 8.23 to 653.73. The Nasdaq composite index rose 5.17 to 1,106.57.

The American Stock Exchange's market value index rose 1.66 to 522.43.

Overseas, Tokyo's Nikkei stock average rose 0.8 percent, Frankfurt's DAX index rose 0.1 percent and London's FTSE 100 rose 0.5 percent.

PUC official: Customers may fight Idaho Power

POCATELLO — Pocatello residents whose electrical appliances were damaged by a March 2 power surge may pursue claims against Idaho Power Co., an Idaho Public Utilities Commission official said.

In letters sent March 19, the utility informed 46 households on Pocatello's west side that it would deny their damage claims following a large surge of energy through their lines.

Beverly Barker, the Public Utilities Commission's director of consumer assistance in Boise, said regulators usually do not get involved in trying to resolve damage claims because they lack the expertise to determine causes.

But even if utilities contend the damage is not caused by their negligence or malfeasance, customers may still file claims, Barker said.

Small claims court is another avenue consumers may pursue if damages were minimal or if they lack homeowner's insurance, she said. Small claims may be filed for up to $3,000.

Burlington Northern to sell Palouse, North Idaho lines

SPOKANE — Burlington Northern Santa Fe Corp. said Monday it will sell 227 miles of track in Eastern Washington and northern Idaho for potential short line operators.

The properties being sold include the 108-mile Coulee City branch, from Cheney to Coulee City, a 47-mile line from Palouse to Bovill, Idaho, and a 122-mile branch from Marshall to Arrow, Idaho.

The segments being sold include a Moscow-Arrow, Idaho, branch that was abandoned in 1984 and a line from Harvard, Idaho, to Bovill, Idaho, that is currently restricted.

The company is soliciting bids for the lines, track, right-of-way and other structures, but will retain mineral, water and other rights, spokesman Doug Babb said from company headquarters at Fort Worth, Texas.

Falling pulp prices may ease costs

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Tissue paper, disposable diapers, note pads, envelopes, they all have one thing in common: pulp, a decidedly unglamorous raw material made from wood chips.

With little ads, pulp prices have dropped precipitously during the past six months, resulting in major savings for those who buy it. Procter & Gamble recently announced it is cutting prices on Charmin, Puffs tissue and Bounty paper towels since it can now make them more cheaply.

"Other companies, too, suggest price cuts may be on the way."

The reduction in pulp prices comes as manufacturers of all types of paper are finding they can't charge as much for their goods. Producers of newspaper, copy paper, medical and corrugated boxes and the like are suffering.

On the flip side, prices are falling only after recently rocketing to wild heights. The dramatic moves are anything but pulp fiction.

"Clearly, on the tissue side it's starting to show up already," said Mark N. Diverio, a paper industry analyst at UBS Securities Inc., a brokerage firm. "If it's a quick downturn followed by a snapback later, consumers might not see a big benefit."

"But if it settles down for several months," he said, "it will trickle to lower prices for not only those who buy at Staples and K&M of paper for your copy machine."

Sellers of products hit by paper prices that increased sharply during the last year — some grades as much as doubled over 18 to 24 months — are unlikely to rush through price cuts to immediately give back their newfound savings.

Pulp, which looks like rough, white cardboard, is made from wood chips and used as the raw material of all paper products. The list price of the benchmark pulp grade has fallen to $600 a metric ton from a peak of $1,000 or so in late 1995. With discounts it sells for less.

Reasons for the decline are complex.

Companies tend to buy large amounts of pulp during the price run-up to lock in prices, and are now working through those stockpiles and buying less new pulp. Economic weakness is playing a role, particularly in western Europe. Additional pulp-making capacity is also coming on line.

"We think the decline in prices, which started late in '95, is really because there has been so much inventory buildup," said Monty Mole, a spokeswoman for Weyerhaeuser Co., the nation's leading maker of pulp for sale in the open market.

"That suggests once the stockpiles have been used up, demand will return and prices will snap back. Not all agree."

But regardless of whether prices improve quickly, current pulp prices declines only affect certain products and certain producers.

The difference lies in whether paper products companies make their own pulp.

Joseph Sebastianelli, co-president of U.S. Healthcare Inc., left, speaks to reporters as Ronald Compton, mildo, chairman of Aetna Life and Casualty Co., and Leonard Abramson, chairman of U.S. Healthcare Inc., speak with others following the announcement of a $8.9 billion deal.

Aetna, U.S. Healthcare announce $8.9 billion merger

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Aetna Life and Casualty Co. is buying U.S. Healthcare Inc. in an $8.9 billion deal that would create the nation's biggest provider of health insurance, reaching one in every 12 Americans.

Combined, the companies' medical plans cover 23 million people receiving such things as life, health and disability insurance, and mental health, vision and dental care. Of that number, 14 million get full-scale medical coverage through HMOs or other programs.

The deal, announced in London, marks a major push by Aetna further into the fast-growing arena of health maintenance organizations and managed care, where U.S. Healthcare is an innovative leader.

They will merge under the name Aetna Inc., which will be based at Aetna Life's headquarters in Hartford, Conn. U.S.

Healthcare is based in Blue Bell, Pa.

Aetna spokesman Fred Laberge said that the merger will result in an undetermined number of job cuts. "It would be irresponsible to throw out a last jobs estimate before we've done all our homework," he said.

Aetna said it expects the deal to add $300 million in profits within 18 months by reducing operating expenses and creating synergy, he said.

In addition to approval by shareholders and regulators, the deal is subject to completion of Aetna's $4 billion sale of its property-casualty insurance unit to Travelers Group. That deal, announced in November, was meant to allow Aetna to concentrate on health care and financial services.

Aetna Chairman Ronald E. Compton said the deal is "an excellent strategic fit, and it establishes a strong platform for growth."

Together, the two companies have 10.3

million managed care members.

U.S. Healthcare provides managed care through HMOs in 13 Eastern states and Washington, D.C.

Aetna is one of the nation's largest financial services organizations with operations in retirement services, investment and a variety of insurance businesses. But it has lagged in developing HMOs, a business that has thrived as big employers try to cut the cost of providing health care to employees.

Compton will be chairman and chief executive of the new entity, U.S. Healthcare chairman Leonard Abramson will join Aetna's board of directors.

Aetna agreed to pay $34.20 in cash and 0.2246 of a share of its stock for each share of U.S. Healthcare. Based on the recent value of Aetna's shares, the deal values U.S. Healthcare at $57 a share, compared with Friday's closing price at $45.88 a share.

Expert bashes 'anti-business' media

By John Cunniff
 The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Early in the 1980s the press information officer of a very large corporation called to announce a work force reduction involving thousands of white-collar workers and mental health, vision and dental care.

"When do the layoffs begin?" the newsman asked.

"Not layoffs," came the starkly simple reply. "Terminations."

Crises of business say job cuts have become a bad habit, and that corporate executives must lift their eyes from the bottom line and consider their responsibilities to workers and community.

Executives respond that they are doing so, maintaining that a profitless, uncompetitive company causes even greater damage to shareholders, employees, community and country in the long run.

It takes no survey, however, to determine that the message from business has been less well received than that of its critics. Stories of human beings are more interesting than the drab economic statistics from business.

Business is taking a beating. Who's to blame?

Speaking to the Economic Club of Detroit, Eaton attributed at least part of what he called the "democratization of corporate America" to "some of our most promiment politicians and news organizations."

He is not alone. Many executives share similar notions, contending that the media has a liberal bias on economic matters, and an outright anti-business attitude on jobs and environment. Some add their own choice descriptors.

Few, however, are eager to declare themselves as forcefully as Eaton, and so the blame perhaps lies with them, as well as the media. Business has a story to tell, and it can be a very convincing one, even to the victims.

The very productivity that companies seek to curb, through downsizing, is what creates the bigger economic pie, one that allows each American to have a bigger share without cutting into the slice of his or her neighbor.

It doesn't come without pain, however, and business hasn't met the challenge of explaining that. The displacement of farm families by machines and technology, for example, is generally portrayed as tragic.

It is, of course, but the piffle that laments the event simultaneously enjoys more for less. While farmers were being displaced, for example, crop production was soaring, helping to keep prices stable and sometimes falling.

In the 22-year period from 1969/4 to 1992/86, cotton bolls output per man-hour rose 900 percent. Potato tonnage per man-hour rose 170 percent, corn bushels 246 percent, wheat bushels 46 percent. Turkey productivity leaped 1,099 percent, pork 534 percent, milk 500 percent.

In such a limited sense, business, therefore, could claim to be the creator of the good life. If productivity fails to grow, so does the chance of higher incomes, better housing, community services, tax revenue, and worker pension funds, to which workers contribute, and mutual funds, in which millions of workers invest, are the two largest institutional investors in stocks of corporations. Four profits equal four returns.

And, of course, business is correct in asserting that the wholesale layoffs of downsizing attract more attention than the smaller increments of hiring, which in total equal much larger figures.

Jack Faris, president of the National Federation of Independent Business, which represents 600,000 business members, calls attention to statistical facts available to all, most obvious among them: the very low jobless rate.

Layoffs are not trivial to those who lose their jobs, he concedes, but he feels we should be more aware that a 40,000-job downsizing, painful as it is, pales in comparison with the overall size of a 125 million labor force.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

...the man who has picked a pocket with his tongue.

Today's contract went to the highest bidder, South (clubs) in a 3-2 bidding to make. With distribution hands, it usually plays to bid more when the auction is in doubt. Therefore, South's bid was a reasonable one, but just not his pocket picked in the defense.

One of America's leading pairs, Bobby Goldman and Paul Solberg both players, played six hands to the Aces. Goldman was one of the original six players. Some years ago, this pair held today's East-West cards and perpetrated this disaster and ruined their seasonal result.

Did Bobby and Paul allowed South to play at four hearts, there was no defense to beat it. So they had five clubs, intending to play a five club suit. South was probably would have gone down one, so he continued on to five hearts.

Had West led a high club, five hearts would have scored South and club. However, West started with two spades. East started with a king, he underled both his ace and king of clubs. East won, returned a spade for West to ruff and instead of minus 50 points, Bobby and Paul paid a plus.

Sacrifices can pay if the opponents get less than they can score at their own contract. And more importantly, a sacrifice can punish one trick higher than they can make.
